Proposed housing project bogs down in legal proceedings

A proposed 150-unit housing project for elderly citizens still is bogged down in a quagmire of legal proceedings and one project spokesman said it could be up to a year before any definite decisions are reached, although this, hopefully can be done within the next few months.

At the present time, a survey is underway to see just how large a housing project is feasible for the city of Hereford.

Loyd Pool, a local insurance salesman involved in the proposed project, said anyone 62 years of age and over who would be interested in living in such a proposed housing unit, can make application at his office as soon as possible. The results of the survey will indicate just how large a complex the federal government will build.

"The main thing we need this survey for," Pool said, "is because HUD will make a feasibility survey here to decide whether we need this complex. When they come we want to be able to show them the response to it and just how many persons are interested."

The survey application can be filled out at Pool's office on 25 Mile Avenue and the information given will be confidential.

The legal process calls for a local housing authority to make application for the project, then have Housing Urban Development come in and make its own feasibility survey. If HUD decides there is a need for the project it will then decide just how many of the units it will take.

The builders then apply for Federal Housing Administration financing. If FHA agrees to finance the project, it then can be started.

The estimated cost of the multi-level complex is about $1.5 million.

The unit will be located, if present plans work out, at the corner of Sixth Street and North Main. It will be about five stories high with the bottom floor designed only for recreational purposes.

The unit will have an arts and crafts center, interior and exterior recreation areas, a community room, a demonstration kitchen, catering area, out-patient clinic, a small library, hydraulic elevators, air conditioning, private balconies for each of the units, individual kitchens in the apartments furnished with a stove and refrigerator and the exterior of the complex will be fully landscaped.

There will be no covered parking areas, but there will be adequate parking space.

There will be one and two bedroom apartments and the rent will be based on the income of the tenant.

Robert Buck and Associates of San Antonio are handling the design of the building.

Members of the local housing authority, appointed by the city commission about two months ago, are Myron Morgan, chairman, Ray Cowsert, Troys Carmichael, Rex Lee and Harlan VanderZee.

Two separate accidents end in injuries, heavy damages

Two accidents within 36 hours of each other and within 200 yards of the same location left two persons with only minor injuries while another was hospitalized with a factured back.

A grinding car-truck accident Friday afternoon, which almost ripped the top of the car off, resulted in only minor injuries to two of the four persons in the vehicle.

That accident occurred at the road from Wilson Beef and Lamb to U.S. 60 West. Injured were Sammy Carro, 19, of the Buena Vista addition and Richard Colderas of 206 Bennett.

Also in the car but uninjured were Sammy Ramirez, 432 Long, who was the driver, and Omar Villerreal of 402 13th St.

The driver of the truck, William Curtis White, was not injured.

The accident occurred as both vehicles were traveling east and the truck attempted a right hand turn toward the packing plant. Ramirez apparently did not see the truck turning and rammed his 1965 Ford up under the rear of the truck, almost taking the top off the car.

Carro and Colderas were taken by ambulance to Deaf Smith General Hospital where they were treated and released.

A citation was issued for failure to control speed.

The accident that left a Roswell man hospitalized occurred about 2:30 a.m. Thursday, just about 200 yards west of the scene of Friday's accident.

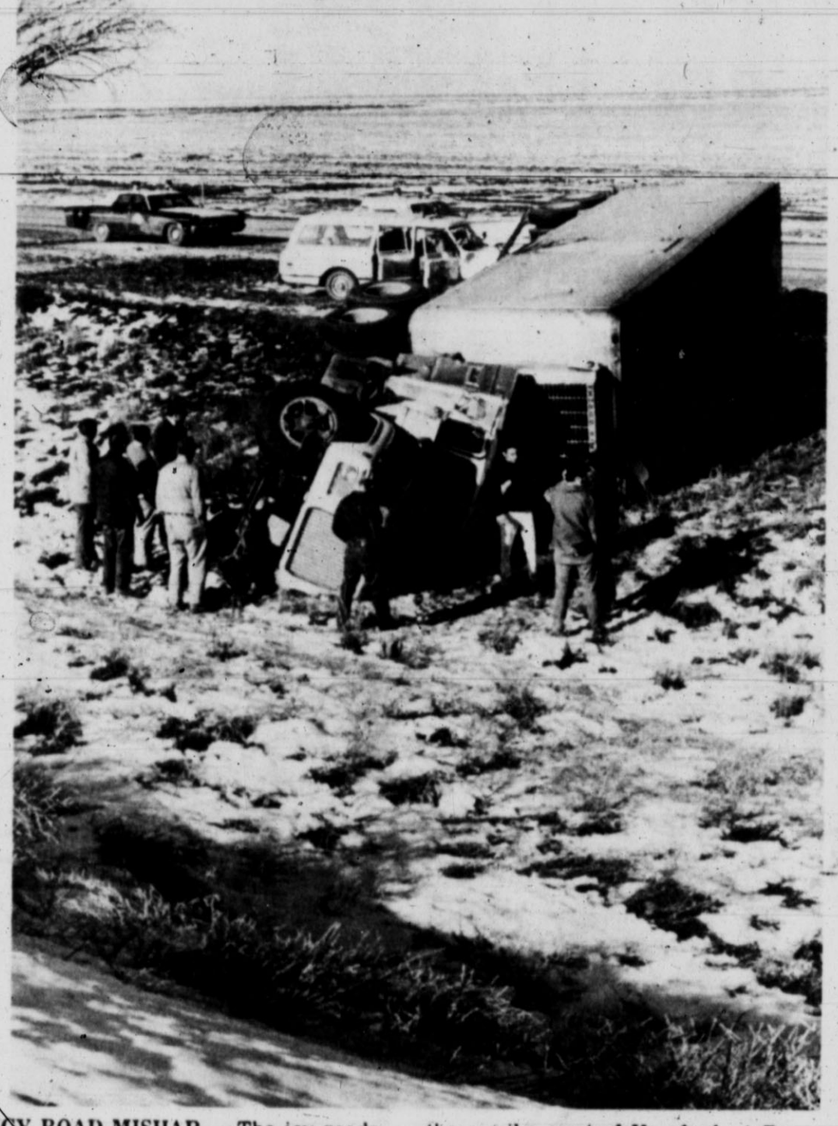

Richard Willis, 30, was reported in good condition at the local hospital, suffering from a fractured back. He will be transferred to Roswell as soon as a brace is put on his back and he can be moved.

Willis was a passenger in a large meat transport truck that skidded on the icy roads and overturned.

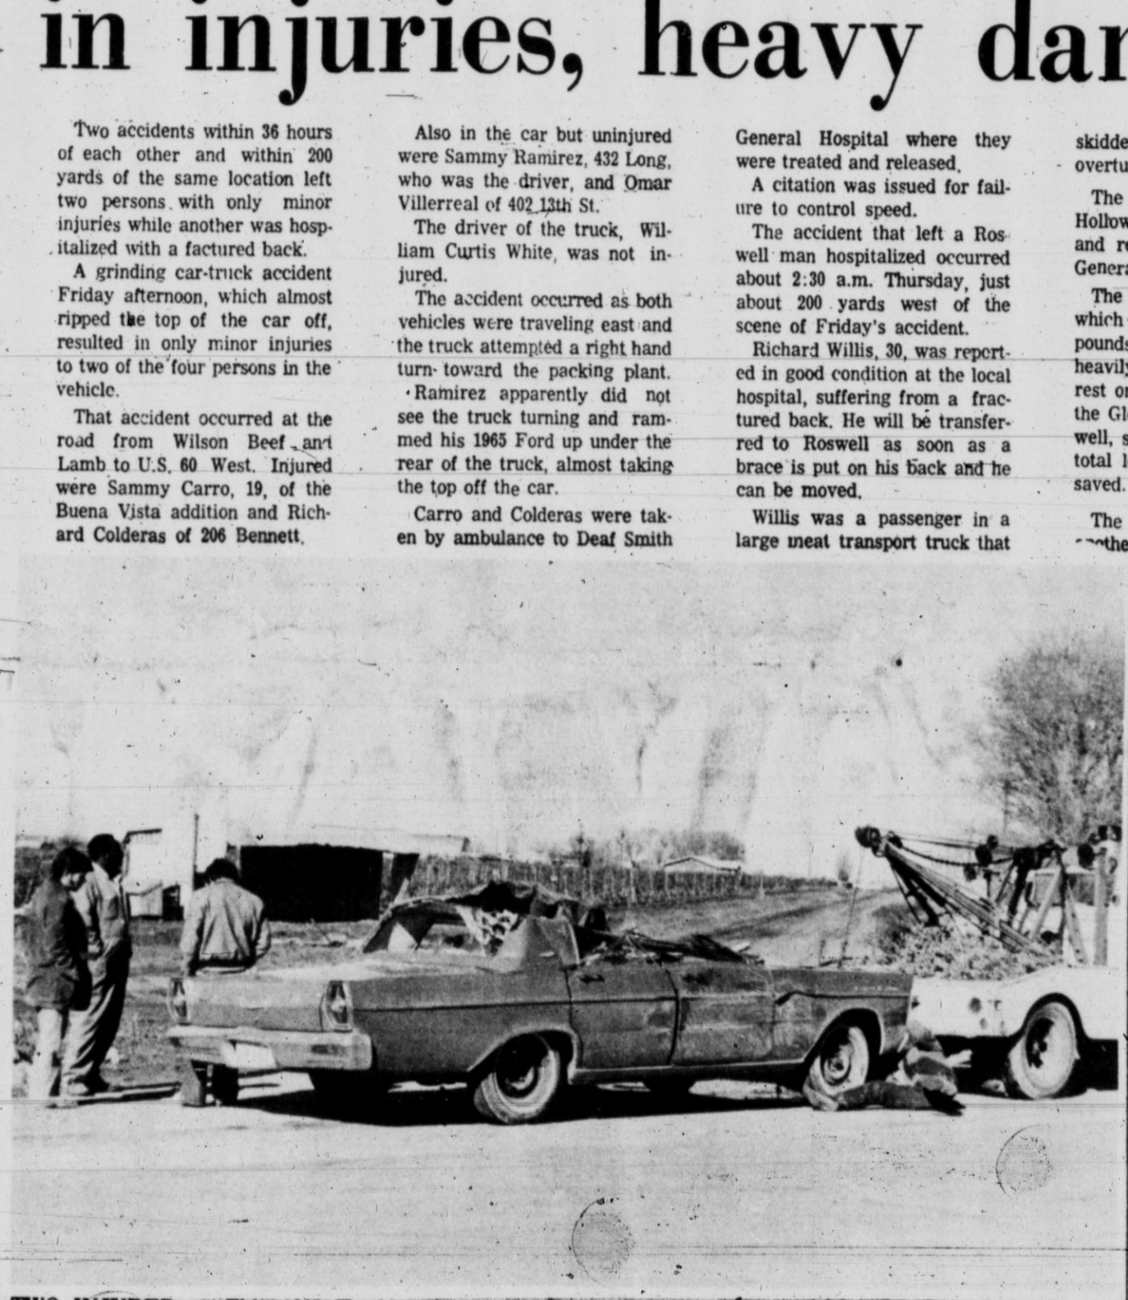

The driver of the truck, Glen Holloway, also 30, was treated and released from Deaf Smith General Hospital.

The $40,000 refrigerator truck, which was loaded with 30,000 pounds of processed meat, was heavily damaged as it came to rest on its left side. Officials of the Glover Packing Co., of Roswell, said the truck would be a total loss, but the cargo was saved.

The meat was transferred to another truck before it spoiled.

ICY ROAD MISHAP — The icy roads of last week caused this $40,000 meat transport truck to overturn about three miles west of Hereford. A Roswell man was injured in the accident.

TWO INJURED — This 1965 Ford, with its top almost ripped away, was involved in a car-truck accident Friday that injured two persons. There were four persons in the vehicle, but only two were injured, though not seriously.

Boosters change meetings

The Hereford Whiteface Booster Club will discontinue its regular weekly meetings until mid-January, according to Ted Higgins, president.

The next scheduled meeting is for 7 p.m. Jan. 17.

It is the policy of the club, which helps boost the high school athletic programs, to stop meeting after football season is completed then begin again when district basketball starts.

This is done because of the many games played each week by the basketball team which would cause some complications for players and coaches alike.

At the Jan. 17 meeting, basketball coach Ron Mayberry, his assistants and the varsity basketball team will be introduced.

Grand jury returns 5 more indictments

The Deaf Smith County grand jury, in its second session in seven days, Friday returned indictments against five persons arrested Nov. 30 and charged with possession of marijuana.

Two other indictments also were handled Friday. They were indictments that were changed from the grand jury's meeting of Dec. 3 against three men in the area grain theft case earlier this year.

The first indictment against the three men was handed down as a joint indictment on Dec. 3, but was changed to one joint and one single indictment in the most recent session.

The Friday indictment was against Donald Gene Mixon and Ronald Stewart for theft over $50. The name of the third man was not released because he is still at large.

Arrested Nov. 30 on possession of marijuana charges were Linda Reynolds, 27, and her husband, William J., 25, of Seattle, and Becky Holland, 19, and her husband, Ralph R., 24, and David Stanford Larsen.

The five were arrested at the home of Larsen and the Hollands who all gave addresses of 807 N. Main.

Officers found six "lids" of marijuana, over an ounce of "hashish," about 50 white tablets and one small container of clear liquid.

The "hashish" is a pure derivative of rosin from marijuana and is more potent than the usual marijuana, officers said.

The five were arrested about 1:30 a.m. after officers had watched the house for about nine days. Officers had received word that a large haul of narcotics was on its way from out-of-state and they should watch for a car bearing Washington state license plates.

The Reynolds, to whom the car was registered, arrived late the night of Nov. 30 and officers waited a while then obtained a search warrant. They went to the house and found all five sitting in the living room. Water pipes were there and the smell of marijuana filled the air, officers said.

Officers searched the house and found some of the narcotics hidden in the kithcen, some in the bathroom and some in the living room.

All five were taken into custody, booked on possession charges and later released on $2,000 bond each.

Mixon and Stewart were arrested early this year in connection with a grain theft ring suspected of large-scale theft of grain from elevators throughout this area.

Stewart was the first to be arrested in connection with the thefts after he allegedly abandoned a truck when it broke down carrying a large amount of grain stolen from Farmers' Corner Elevator between Here-

BY MELVIN YOUNG

It's later than you think, as the trite old expression puts it, but if you're going to make a contribution to Project Christmas Card this year, you need to do so soon. Since Christmas day falls on Saturday this year, the Brand's Christmas special will be published on Thursday, which means the ladies of the Medical Auxiliary will have to have the contribution list in earlier than usual this year to get it in the Christmas paper. So do it tomorrow or at your earliest convenience.

And while you're at it, better finish that Christmas shopping. Don't wait until the last minute.

—HB—

That's what we tell everyone else to do—not necessarily what we do.

—HB—

But you always know that Christmas is just around the corner when the Christmas party invitations begin pouring in. Sometimes there are more than time allows you to make. . .or, as in the case of the Rotary and Lions Club, the events are being held on the same night. And that's too bad. We had made plans to attend the Lions Club party this year just to see who would play Santa Claus. We're pretty sure it won't be Lynton Allred. He's too skinny, and besides, he's president of the club.

Actually, we always enjoy going to the service club Christmas parties, and we're real sorry that we have to miss the Lions event this year, but unfortunately the Lions and Rotarians scheduled their affairs the same night, and since the Rotarians haven't kicked us out—yet, that is—we will attend that one. Understand they have a very entertaining program lined up for this year.

—HB—

Haven't heard any first hand reports about it, but suspect the skiing slopes of New Mexico and Colorado are in better shape now than in most previous years. The abundance of snow which fell this past week should have fixed them up good. There are usually a number of people from Hereford who visit the slopes over the Christmas holidays and really make a family outing of it.

By the way, if you like skiing but don't like that cold ride up the mountain side on the lift, then you should journey to Mount Snow, Vt. The resort there is now featuring an all new bubble chairlift which provides complete protection from cold and precipitation. Coming back down however, you're on your own.

—HB—

Apparently some folks have been doing their skiing at home however. We understand that Doris Dickerson slipped on the ice Thursday morning and broke a wrist and Harry Lomas took a spill the same day and broke his knee—in two places. But either of them will tell you—it's no fun.

—HB—

Governor Preston Smith will be in Hereford Tuesday, December 14 and everyone interested is invited to attend a reception planned for him at the Hereford Country Club, 4 p.m. He will go to Amarillo from here to attend a banquet that evening and will have the opportunity to hear Wayne Thomas make the principal address.

But if you'd like to shake hands with the Governor—or perhaps bend his ear a little—you'll have the opportunity Tuesday. Come on out.

—HB—

And we've heard it said—about the time a man is important enough to take two hours for lunch, the doctor limits him to a glass of milk.

Moores hosts at dinner

Holiday entertaining is getting into swing in Hereford with parties large and smaller as homes are opened for pre-Christmas hospitality.

The Troy Moores were hosts for a gay party of this weekend when they invited close friends for dinner in their home, 212 North Texas, Saturday evening.

An out-of-city couple, Mr. and Mrs. John Sims of Lubbock, were among the guests.

The entire house was bright with holiday color, focused on the large lighted tree in the living room.

Dinner was served buffet style from a table where Christmas greens and big red candles added the holiday touch.

In 1972 Michigan State's home football foes will be Georgia Tech, Notre Dame, Wisconsin, Purdue, Ohio State and Northwestern.

Small talk

BY SUE COLEMAN
Women's Editor

THERE HAS BEEN a good deal of humor, over the years, expended on society page descriptions of wedding clothes, with cute remarks about paragraphs devoted to the lace and ruffles on the girls' dresses, but not a word about what the poor men wore.

It's all true, in the main. Oh, there are exceptions; in the case of a bridegroom who is an officer in military service and who has fellow-officers as groomsmen, mention is made sometimes that they all wore dress whites, or whatever.

And an effusive society writer on a terribly country weekly may go so far as to write that men in the wedding party "wore the conventional black" or even that they had white carnations for boutonneires, but that's frowned upon by the more sophisticated.

ANY WAY you look at it, the bridegroom and his attendants have had short shift as subjects for sartorial description, but with men's acceptance of brighter clothes there may be a change coming.

When Mary Mock of Guthrie, Okla., and Lee Williams of Hereford married lately, there was some sign of the change. It might have sounded rude in the story of the wedding, but I was tempted to report that "the bride wore conventional white but the bridegroom and best man chose purple shirts."

They reall did, and I've an idea they looked good, since girls in the bridal party wore that color.

Incidentally, Belle Willaims followed the color scheme of the wedding; the groom's mother was dressed in a purple and white cape suit for the ceremony in Guthrie.

BIRTH OF A SON, named Robb Marvin, to Mrs. Marvin Berry of Lubbock and the late Dr. Berry, made the Stan Knoxes proud grandparents this week. The baby was born Wednesday in St. Mary's of the Plains hospital at Lubbock. Mrs. Berry is the former Kathy Knox of Hereford.

Her mother rushed down to Lubbock to welcome the new grandchild, but Stan had a touch of flu and couldn't get there immediately. He had stocked up on a new supply of film for his camera, too, just to be ready for the occasion.

ANOTHER PROUD grandparent, Jewel Curtis reported Friday that she was leaving for Abilene where her first grandchild, Cody Lynn Culp, was born Wednesday to Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Culp, who live at 1965 Amarillo St. in that city.

Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Bedford Culp of Hereford. The father is stationed at Abilene in Air Force duty.

Oh, yes; the young man weighed seven pounds two ounces at birth.

NAOMI HARE, who is spending a six-month furlough from her work as a United Methodist missionary in Mexico with relatives here, is in Columbus, Ohio for a furlough conference, Dec. 9-14, with other missionaries of that church from foreign fields.

Miss Hare, principal of a Methodist school in Chihuahua, is spending most of her furlough here with her mother, Mrs. A.A. Hare, and other relatives. She expects to be here until the last of March.

WHEN ELIZABETH and Jim Witherspoon and Jay Boston were in Fargo, N.D. last week on business for the Sugar Beet Growers Association, they weren't surprised that the weather was cold. After all, Fargo reports the lowest temperature in the U.S. quite often in the wintertime.

But when they got back to Amarillo, their plane couldn't land because of our recent snow-fog-ice storm and they had to fly on to Dallas. That they didn't expect, here in Texas!

Former county resident dies

Funeral services for John Ray Oglesby, 77, of Canyon, former resident of Summerfield and Dawn, were conducted Saturday afternoon in Canyon funeral chapel by Rev. Gene Meacham, pastor of Dawn Baptist Church. Burial was in Memory Gardens at Canyon.

Mr. Oglesby was section foreman for the Santa Fe Railway at both Dawn and Summerfield in past years. He was retired and had lived ten years in Canyon. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge.

Survivors include his wife; three daughters, Mrs. J.B. Caraway, Mrs. R.T. Stewart and Mrs. H.R. Stewart, all of Dawn; a son, John R. of Old Ocean; three brothers, 12 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

New features available in latest almanac publication

Figures from the 1970 U.S. Census, a history of the Texas tidelands and many other new features are found in the 704 pages of the 1972-'73 Texas Almanac, published by the A.H. Belo Corporation, publishers of the Dallas Morning News.

While data from the decennial U.S. Census are expected to be among the most widely used material in the new publication, editor Walter B. Moore said that there are many other features not found in the previous edition. Among these are:

A history of telephones in Texas, prepared by leaders in the telephone industry.

A history of grain sorghums in Texas, co-authored by J. Roy Quinby, sorghum researcher who received the Hoblitzelle Award for his achievements.

The tidelands history prepared with the collaboration of Judge Price Daniel, formerly U.S. Senator and Governor of Texas; and Attorney General Crawford Martin, both active in the successful program to save this rich asset for Texans.

Election results, listings of county, municipal and state officials, amendments to the Texas Constitution and those to be voted on in 1972, appointive boards and commissions, officials of state and regional civic and trade organizations and many other listings are expected to make this edition widely used as a reference for business offices, schools, public offices and other centers, Moore said.

A night view of San Jacinto Monument appears on the front cover of this edition.

A new Texas map, in color, with major highways, distances and other information supplements 254 county maps, updated from maps prepared by the Texas Highway Department.

The county maps are published with information about each Texas county supplied by chambers of commerce, county agricultural agents and others.

Tourism and recreation are featured, with many photographs in color and black and white of Texas scenes.

Each of the 24 Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas, the urban concentrations in which most Texans live, has an editorial page devoted to it.

Joe M. Dealey, president of The Dallas Morning News, point out that this is the 46th edition the Texas Almanac that has been published since 1857. "We believe that this edition will maintain the high standards that have characterized previous issues and have caused this to be known as 'The Encyclopedia of Texas'," Dealey said. "By publishing it, we hope not only to provide a useful reference, but also a tool to attract new industries and individuals who will build the economy of the nation's fourth most populous state."

Hereford men put on board

Gerald McCathern and A. R. Dillard of Hereford were among the four new board members of the Texas Grain Sorghum Producers who were sworn in recently to six-year terms.

Bob Grey, representing Texas Agriculture Commissioner, John C. White, did the swearing in. The other two members were C.C. "Pap" Reed of Kress and Worth Jones of Hart.

The 12-man board is charged with the responsibility of developing programs of research and market development, promotion and education for the grain producer, with the 5 cent per ton collected at the first point of sale or processing. No legislative work is carried out with these funds.

The new board members, along with the new officers, were elected during a meeting at Lubbock recently.

Research projects discussed were the continuance of weed studies, cattle and swine feed trials, greenbug and aphid control, breeding resistance into plants for insect control, new plant diseases now appearing on the High Plains and the value of grain sorghum stubble to producers.

Dillard, who was re-elected to his second term on the board, was presented an award in appreciation of his service to the board and the producers during the first term of office he completed this year.

Special recognition also was given to Melvin Barton of Dimmitt, Charles Heck Jr. of Nazareth, and Reed.

Dr. Frank Payne, like father like son

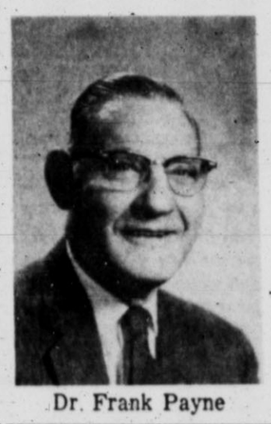

(Editor's note: Dr. Frank Payne, the football team physician at Breckenridge, is the father of Whiteface team physician Dr. Gerald Payne. The following story was written by Nell Bills of Breckenridge and printed in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.)

BY NELL BILLS

BRECKENRIDGE—Dr. Frank C. Payne, Buckaroo team physician for the past 25 years, is as much a part of Breckenridge football as the gridders themselves.

Known as "Doc" to players and patients alike, Dr. Payne has been on the sidelines for every Buckaroo game since 1945, unless he had a very good reason not to be. Like when somebody's baby picked a football night to be born. Even then, he might have to be called from the field at the strategis moment, likely as not to return to the game time permitting.

Dr. Payne has seen his Buckaroos win four state championships and tie for another, and come within a game or two of the state crown several other times.

Dr. Frank Payne

All four of Doc's sons starred on Breckenridge teams. Now they are grown, and he and his wife have 11 grandchildren. Doc is hoping for "an even dozen."

Frank Jr., now a pediatrician in Dallas, was an outstanding gridder at SMU during his college years. Jerry, the third son, also followed Dad into the medical field and is a practicing physician in Hereford. Jerry starred on Oklahoma University teams and was awarded the Medalion Award, the highest honor for an athlete, while at OU.

Jimmy, next to the oldest of the Payne boys, was a star quarterback in junior college, but a shoulder injury and surgery prevented his playing varsity ball at SMU where he graduated. Coach at Ector High School in Odessa for nine years, Jimmy had three district championships and tied for two more there. At Corsicana, where he has been head coach since 1968, his 1970 team advanced to the quarterfinals in 1970.

Ronny, youngest of the boys, played professional football for the Calgary (Canada) Stampeders after graduation from Oklahoma University, and is now a coach for the Stampeders.

Doc played high school football in the days "when you could get by with almost anything, if you worked it right." He played seven years on the Rockwall High School team. "It took a bit of doin'," Doc laughs.

He played one year of high school ball while still in junior high, four years as a high school student, one year as a post-graduate, and tacked on the seventh year by "slipping home on weekends" during the freshman year at SMU.

The football-minded physician played three years at guard and tackle on the SMU varsity and made the All-Conference team his senior year. In 1921 his parents moved to Breckenridge and he gave early Buck coaches some help coaching the line.

From 1924 through 1929, Doc attended the University of Tennesee Medical School in Memphis. He played football with the Tennessee Docs, a team medical students made up themselves. They played all comers, much to the "comers" sorrow more often than not. He also played some semi-professional ball with the now defunct Memphis Tigers while in medical school.

It wasn't all football and medicine for Frank Payne while he was in Memphis, however. He met and married Lucille Bedgood there in 1927.

When Doc and his wife moved to Breckenridge in 1941 from Rising Star, he didn't get to stay long. He enlisted in the Army in 1942 and served as a major until 1945. Shortly after he resumed his practice here he took on the job of team physician.

Being "team physician" is a bit more than the name implies.

Until recently, Breckenridge boys began playing organized football in the fourth grade. It has been Doc's job to take care of them, too, as well as the junior high team. One thing sure, Doc never missed an East Ward game for a number of years; all the Payne boys played their elementary ball there.

Over the years, Doc has come across just about every kind of football injury.

Funeral planned in Enid, Okla

Arrangements were made in Enid, Okla., Saturday for the funeral of Jimmy May, 54, of Vega who died Friday in Deaf Smith General Hospital after a brief illness. Burial was to be in Hackberry Cemetery near Enid.

A contract carpenter, he had been living in this area the past three months. He was a native of Oklahoma, born June 7, 1917 at Fairmont. He was a member of the Catholic Church.

Survivors include a son, James May of San Angelo, and a sister, Mrs. George Funk of Hereford.

Local arrangements were by Gililland Funeral Home.

Senior Dan Pflueger of Salem, Wis., at 6-foot-8, is one of the tallest athletes in Air Force Academy history.

Funeral held for longtime county resident

Funeral services for James Burl France, 90, of 304 East Sixth, farm and ranch owner who had lived in Deaf Smith County since 1900, were conducted Friday afternoon in Central Church of Christ, of which he was a member.

Bob Ware of Littlefield, former pastor here, and J.T. Marlin, pastor, officiated for the services. Burial was in West Park Cemetery, directed by Gililland Funeral Home.

Mr. France died Wednesday evening in Deaf Smith General Hospital after a long illness.

He was born Nov. 15, 1881 at Midlothian and came from that city to Deaf Smith County. He married Maude Anna Smith in Hereford Nov. 25, 1908.

She survives him, with a daughter, Mrs. G.D. Caison Jr. and a son, Jack, also three grandchildren, all of this city.

Odd Fact

Prison guards from all over England are taking a course at Lilleshall on "how to coach prisoners to improve their cricket."

Ketosis, displaced abomasums or breeding complications may be brought about as a direct result of feeding cows on diets lacking a proper hay ration, according to Dr. Samuel B. Guss, veterinarian with the Pennsylvania State University.

ford and Vega.

The arrest of Stewart came about three weeks after sheriff's officers became involved in the Dec. 30 theft of the grain from Farmers' Corner.

On the night of Dec. 30, officers said, a traveler was passing the elevator and saw a large truck stopped there. He suspected someone was stealing the grain so he notified the police. Officers then stopped the truck as it was traveling south, questioned the driver, then let him go.

On Tuesday, Jan. 12, someone apparently attempted to steal another truck load of grain from the elevator, but when they pulled their truck under the hopper, the vehicle's air conditioner became wedged and the men could not move the truck away from the bin.

The drive shaft of the truck was twisted in the attempts to get it out from under the hopper, officers said.

Officers said whoever was driving the truck then apparently went after another and pulled it on and down the highway about 100 yards.

A surveillance was later put on the truck after it was discovered it may have been used in the theft, but no one appeared to pick it up. Officers then checked out the registration then went to Littlefield where Stewart was arrested.

Mixon later was brought into the picture along with the third man.

Junior highs clash Dec. 20 in basketball

The three teams of each of the city's two junior highs will clash on the basketball courts Dec. 20 in Stanton gym in the first confrontation of the year between the two schools.

The annual battle for city supremacy originally was scheduled for Dec. 13, but that changed to Dec. 20.

The second meeting between the two schools will be the final game of the year, on Feb. 17 when they meet in La Plata gym.

The La Plata Mavericks, with all three teams fresh off wins of last week, will see little or no action between now and the Dec. 20 meeting.

Only the seventh grade will play and that will be on Dec. 16-18 in the Canyon seventh grade tournament.

Last week the La Plata seventh, led by the 24 point performance of Roy Martinez, defeated the Canyon White team, 49-36.

The eighth grade won 35-17 behind the eight point scoring of Mike Crim and Dave Charest and the ninth won 50-48 with Lynn Tarr getting high point honors with 19.

Award-winning essay has subject, My Responsibility to Freedom

One of the top-ranked essays in the recent Voice of Democracy contest sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Hereford High School was Dale Hairgrove, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Hairgrove and a high school junior.

Subject of the essays this year was My Responsibility to Freedom. Hairgrove's entry, which placed third, follows:

"Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal."

These lines, a portion of a speech made by Abraham Lincoln at Gettysburg, very well characterized our heritage as Americans. The first colonizers of the American continent left their countries to find a new home away from religious, racial and political strive.

We fought a great war with Britain to secure our rights as free men, and many people died so that we might live in freedom.

Today, however, it seems that we have forgotten the principles on which our country was built. We freed the negro slaves so that they might have an equal opportunity in life but we still have racial discrimination.

Many of the citizens of our great nation are in a state of political apathy and are not taking an active part in our country's affairs. Many people are telling us that we should stop fighting with other countries and lay down our arms. But they forget that our country was built upon freedom and that many men died to protect that freedom.

I am trying to uphold the belief that all men are created equal, upon which our country was founded. I am trying to live with my fellow man in peace and harmony, without any regard to his color or nationality.

I do not believe that riots are the answer to our problems as young people, but we should seek more peaceful means for accomplishing our purposes.

I hope that, through my preparation as a high school student and many activities as a young person, I can become a responsible citizen and do honor to my country.

Therefore, I feel that it is my responsibility to freedom to uphold the ideals that our country was founded upon. Because I believe that worldwide peace is the best answer, I will be glad to fight if our freedom is infringed upon, and will fight so that other countries can have the opportunity to live in freedom.

I feel that it is our responsibility as citizens to give all men equal opportunity and to help our fellow man. It is our responsibility to freedom to halt racial discrimination and to treat our fellow men as equals and to live beside them in peace.

Jaycees name cage officials

The Hereford Jaycees, in a meeting Thursday, named officers for the upcoming Little Dribblers' Basketball program and discussed the clubs' involvement in a statewied program of automobile insurance.

Bill McKinney was elected president of the Little Dribblers' Basketall League and Perry Ray and Terry Hill were elected vice presidents. Dan Warrick was named secretary-treasurer.

Hill will be representing the major league of the program while Ray will oversee the minor league.

The Little Dribblers' program is going into its second year under the sponsorship of the local Jaycees organization. It is a basketball program for boys 8 through 12.

The Jaycees also were looking into backing a cumpulsory insurance measure that died in committee in the last regular session of the state legislatrue. The measure proposed that it be mandatory for a person to have automobile insurance before he could obtain license plates for his vehicles.

The club also is looking at and considering going statewide with the Jaycees on no fault insuranc

Miss Kendrick party honoree

A bride-elect of early 1972, Karen Kendrick was honoree at a shower Saturday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Bartley Dowell. Miss Kendrick and Lonny Joe Coffee are to be married here Jan. 8.

Shower hostesses with Mrs. Dowell were Mmes. C.P. Worthan, Howard Gore, Oscar Williams, Myles Funk, Ted Higgins, Clinton Ward, Albert Maxwell, Lloyd Sharp, Fred Boren, E.H. Hendon, Jimmy Victor and Ray Boyer.

Mrs. Dowell greeted callers at the door. In the receiving line were the bride-to-be with her mother, Mrs. Marvin Kendrick, her sister who will be her maid of honor, Twanaha Kendrick, and her fiance's mother, Mrs. Marvin Coffey.

The honoree was dressed in a grey skirt and vest ensemble with Christmas red blouse, and wore a corsage stressing the red and white color note which will be used in wedding decor.

Hostesses in turn served punch and cake from the dining table, which was centered with red and white carnations.

Tea-decorating party at manor

A holiday tea and decorating party at Kings Manor retirement home, with Hereford Garden Club members playing hostess to the residents, filled the December meeting date of the club Friday.

Therapy committee members, Mmes. Art Stoy, R.L. Wilson and Ray L. Johnson, arranged the program which had as its subject, Pathway of Love, one of a series being given this year on the general topic, Pathways of Gardening.

Mrs. R.L. Layman, president, poured tea and was assisted by her daughter, Holly, in serving the refreshments. Holly is a member of the High School Gardeners, a junior club sponsored by Hereford Garden Club.

The juniors assisted also in other phases of the party. Their group was organized last week, with Rhea Ann Wesson as president, Glinda Daum vice president and Miss Layman secretary.

Red candles and holly were used in the tea table centerpiece. During the afternoon club members and residents made centerpieces for other tables in the Manor dining room and door decorations for all the rooms, using fresh greenery and colorful Christmas symbols.

Informal conversation during the work and tea hours supplied entertainment.

Rainbow girls honor local grand officer

Presentation of a pin to the local grand officer of the Order of Rainbow for Girls, Kathy Roberts, was a feature of this week's meeting of Hereford Rainbow Assembly.

Karen Scott, past worthy advisor, presented the pin designating Miss Robert's office, junior member of the grand music committee in behalf of the assembly.

Kay Hagar, worthy advisor, presided for business.

After the meeting Mrs. R.B. Hutson, recently returned from a Hawaiian trip, was hostess for refreshments, serving cakes decorated with souvenirs of the trip. A plant from Hawaii centered the table. Miss Roberts poured tea.

At a recent meeting when Kathy Wheeler and Pam Bradford were initiated, Mrs. Cortez Dowlen of Canyon, grand visitor, and eight other adults were present, including Mrs. J.W. McWhorter, mother advisor.

Mrs. Charlie Brown presented the assembly a gift she fashioned, line officers' and altar cloths with colors of the rainbow on white velvet.

The Pittsburgh Penguins have the lightest team in the National Hockey League. They average 175.9 pounds.

Goalie Roger Crozier with the Buffalo Sabres is the shortest man on the team. He is 5-feet-8.

Social security

Q. My husband and I have been separated for several years but not divorced. He plans to apply for social security benefits next month. Since I am 62 I would like to know if I can get wife's benefits. If I received wife's benefits would his payments be reduced?

A. The separation of a husband and wife does not prevent a wife from receiving wife's benefits as long as there is no divorce. Payment of wife's benefits does not reduce payments to her husband. You should apply for wife's benefits as soon as your husband applies for his social security payments. Bring proof of your date of birth and your social security number when you visit the social security office.

Q. I am receiving social security benefits and my file is in your office so why am I always asked for my social security claim number when I visit or phone your office?

A. By furnishing your social security claim number you help us to give you prompt and efficient service. There are several thousands of persons receiving social security benefits in the area serviced by this office. Several have the same name as yours. We need your social security claim number to distinguish your file from that of other persons having a name that is the same as or similiar to your name.

"My husband, Eugene, is a
Lieutenant-Commander in the Navy.
He's been a prisoner in Vietnam
for 4 years.
They're bargaining to get the prisoners released.
But what I want to know... is he still alive? Is he well?
I can't find out.
Hanoi won't tell our government.
Hanoi won't tell me."

There need be no "bargaining table" when the plea is for humane treatment of prisoners of war.

THE prisoner-of-war issue is complex and confusing. It is loaded with political overtones and emotional tension.

But one side of the prisoner-of-war issue is simple. That's the part which deals with the condition of prisoners.

Who are they? Where are they? How are they?

Those are the questions the families of American prisoners want answered. Those are the questions the conscience of the world wants answered...now.

Of course, they want the war to end and the prisoners of war to be released as soon as possible.

But meanwhile there is no need for Hanoi and its allies to delay even a day in answering this plea:

Admit official neutral observers into the prison camps in North Vietnam, South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos, where Americans are being held in secret captivity.

Assure the world, through these neutral observers, that American prisoners are being decently and humanely treated, according to the standards of civilized nations.

Hanoi can do this without bargaining, even without consultation.

By opening the prisons now to official neutral observers, Hanoi would earn the gratitude of millions of Americans and find new stature in the eyes of the world.

We ask and pray they will.

SUPPORT OUR PLEA TO HANOI AND ITS ALLIES:

Clear away the doubts—
Open your prison camps to neutral observers...
now!

We ask no more than we give. All American and South Vietnamese prison camps are inspected regularly by official neutral observers—The International Committee of the Red Cross.

PARMER COUNTY
We have the following described property in Parmer County listed for sale:
The Southeast ¼ and west ½ of Section 23, CFL Block B and the Northeast ¼ and South ½ and 2.686 acres of Northwest ¼ of Section 12, CFL Block B, Parmer County, Texas.
This is a total of 963 acres (approximately) of which approximately 240 acres is in grass. The 2.686 acres contain the improvements which consist of a hand house and pens. There are 720 acres in cultivation.
Section 12 has two wells on it (one does not have a pump in it) and an excellent soil water system that catches runoff from the North. All three facilities are tied together with underground pipe.
Section 23 has two good wells on it tied together with underground pipe, and water can be put to all fields by underground pipe.
The crop allotments are: feed grain base—369 acres; wheat—36.6 acres; and set aside—101.2 acres; 1971 government check to date is $8,486.41. I beleive there is still some $260 or $300 to come.
All of the crop land is excellent soil and produces excellent crops. There is approximately 200 acres of the pasture land that, according to tests conducted by the Texas Highway Department, will yield from 35,000 to 50,000 cubic yards of caliche per acre that meets federal highway specifications. the highway department has optioned this site for State Road 214 South of Friona and for U.S. Highway 60 through Castro and Parmer County. According to their estimates, the amount total value of the deposit appears to will amount to about $200,000. The required for the two projects above be from $750,000 to $1,000,000.
We are offering this farm for sale at $425 per acre for a total price of $409,275. There is a travelers insurance 6½ per cent loan on this property in the approximate amount of $215,000. The 1971 payment which was made April 1, 1971, was in the amount of $23,353.20 of which $9,360 was principal.
Taxes on this property are as follows:
State and County $168.86
School $876.59
$1,045.45
The mineral rights on Section 23 are intact; one-half of the royalty on Section 12 has been reserved by a previous owner.
With the potential offered by this large caliche deposit, we feel this farm is an outstanding buy.

Newcomers club has holiday tea

Newcomers in Hereford returned the hospitality they have received from city residents, with the annual Christmas tea of the Newcomers Club in Community Center Friday afternoon.

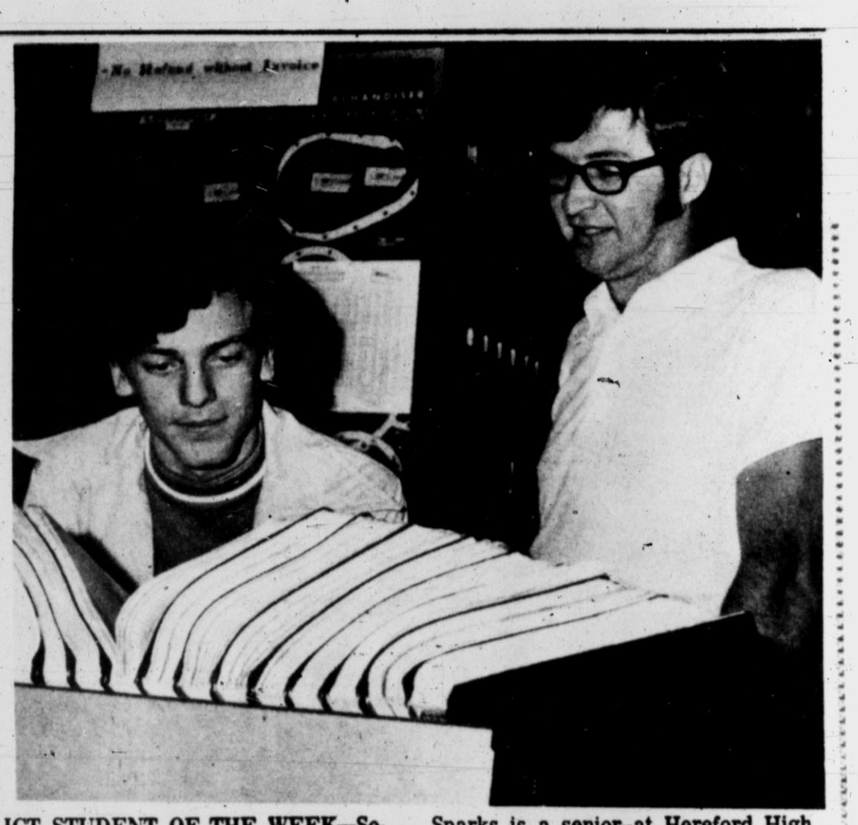

They invited members of other women's clubs here, and extended a general invitation to women of the area to call during the afternoon.

Mrs. William Farrow, president, and Mrs. Dale Krows, treasurer, received guests at the door of the clubroom, and Mrs. R.W. Eades invited them to register at a table decked with a cluster of berried holly sprays.

Members of the hostess committee, Mmes. Richard Ottesen, Gaylon Bryan, L.J. Crump, Frank Bethune and Gene Batterman in turn poured coffee and punch and served holiday sweets.

The table was covered with a sheer red cloth bordered with felt and appliqued with scrolls of green and sequined bells. Set at center back on the table was a bouquet of red and white carnations in a silver epergne.

Beckman-Brisendine vows are exchanged

Marriage vows were spoken by Miss Michelle Beckman and Mickey Brisendine in a late af noon ceremony Friday in St. Anthony's Catholic Church. The Rev. Boniface Riedmann pastor. conducted the double ring service.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Beckman, 244 Elm, and the bridegroom a son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Brisendine, 805 South 25 Mile Avenue. Her father escorted the bride to the altar and gave her in marriage.

Mrs. Tyler Vance of Amarillo was her sister's matron of honor and Lynn Brisendine, brother of the bridegroom, was best man Misses Stephanie Beckman and DiAnn Brisendine, sisters of the couple, acted as bridemaids, Danny Thompson and Lonnie Noyes as groomsmen.

Candelabra holding white tapers were based in ferns as altar decorations. Guests were seated in the church by John and Joe Beckman, brothers of the bride.

Wedding solos were On This Day, sung by Miss Margaret Schlabs, and Whither Thou Goest, by the bride's uncle, Edward Dziuk. Miss Patricia Herr, organist, played their accompaniments, also a musical prelude including the theme from the motion picture, Love Story, and the traditional marches.

Starwhite velvet made the bride's gown, with fitted bodice, dropped waistline from which the skirt flared gently to carpet length, and long fitted sleeves. The train was attached with a bow at center back.

Bands of white fur edged with pearls circled the portrait neckline and a similar band of fur was the headpiece holding the floor-length veil. Pearls were stitched around the waist and circled the lower edge of the sleeves.

For the bridal bouquet, glamelias were arranged in a nosegay with sprays of green leaves.

The green and white color note was repeated in bridesmaids' costumes. Their empire style dresses, floor length and short sleeved, had pine green velvet tops and white moire taffeta skirts. White bands at the high waistline ended in bows at the back.

Green ribbons were worn in their hair and each carried a single white rose.

Mrs. Beckman chose for her daughter's wedding a sky blue knit dress, long sleeved, with matching sleeveless tunic. Mrs. T.E. Brisendine was in a royal blue knit suit. Both had white carnation corsages.

The just - married couple received good wishes from friends at a reception in the Knights of Columbus Hall after the ceremony.

Miss Diedra Dziuk invited guests to register. She is a cousin of the bride, as are Misses Becky Dziuk and Sherry Phillip, who with Mrs. Gerald Nunley served refreshments.

The four-riered wedding cake iced in green and white and topped with bride-and-groom figurines, was set at one end of the table and the crystal bowl of green punch at the other end, between crystal candleholders.

In the center was a bouquet of carnations and greenery. White net was draped over the satin table cover, caught at the corners with green bows.

After a short trip Mr. and Mrs. Brisendine will be at home at 206 Whittier.

Both are graduates of Hereford High School.

She is employed in The Brand's advertising department and he with the Firestone store here.

Washington report--from Cong. Bob Price

In response to hearings being conducted regarding the recently announced U.S. feed grain sale to Russia, Congressman Bob Price today commented: "I have always been opposed to trade with Communist countries, especially nations such as Russia which have furnished guns and shells to North Vietnam that have killed thousands of American and allied soldiers in Vietnam. However, since the decision has been made by the Administration and the State Department to allow certain nonstrategic materials of industry to be sold to Russia and other countries, then certainly farm products should not be excluded if this will benefit the farmers' income and help our Nation's balance of payments. It should be noted that these sales are for cash."

Congressman Price's remarks were made in reference to a hearing being conducted today at the Subcommittee on Livestock and Grains, of which Price is a member, and the Subcommittee on Department Operations of the House Agriculture Committee. The purpose of the hearing was to inquire into recently announced sales of feed grains totalling more than $125 million by two U.S. grain firms to the Soviet Union. Grains to be sold include corn, grain sorghum, barley and oats. The corn and grain sorghum will be purchased on the open market. The barley and oats have been sold to the U.S. firms by the U.S. Department of Agriculture from stocks of feed grains taken over under the commodity loan program.

The principal Government witness was Clarence D. Palmby, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture for International Affairs and Commodity Programs. Advantages of the sale pointed out in the hearings by Assistant Secretary Palmby, Representative Price said, include the following:

First, it opens up a brand new market for U.S. feed grain exports in Russia at a time when that country and many of its East European neighbors have established huge goals for increased meat production and show signs of a swing to Western feeding practices.

Second, it paves the way for expanded future grain trade with Russia following the President's decision in reversing the earlier directive that required at least half of grain tonnage destined for the USSR and certain other East European nations to be carried in U.S.-flag vessels.

Third, it provides for the export during the present marketing season of up to 80 million bushels of U.S. corn and grain sorghum for which no market was otherwise in sight. This is approximately one-sixth of total U.S. corn exports during the 1970-71 marketing season.

Fourth, it cuts burdensome Government inventories of barley and oats, recovers almost $45 million of public funds invested in these commodities, and saves storage costs in excess of $9 million a year.

Representative Price said the Department explained at the hearing that when the USSR began to express interest in the purchase of U.S. feed grains some months ago, Department officials said that they would be willing to sell barley and oats at the world price if they could be sure that a substantial amount of U.S. corn and grain sorgugm could be sold as well.

It was on this basis that the transaction was finally worked out. As a result, two of the Nation's largest grain firms—Continental and Cargill—are now obligated to export 1.2 million metric tons of barley and oats and a corresponding amount of corn and grain sorghum from U.S. production to the Soviet Union during the present marketing season. In addition, Continental has a contract with the USSR to supply an additional 1.1 million metric tons of corn and sorghum and may elect to supply a substantial part of that from the U.S. market as well. With U.S. feed grain production at an all-time high, these sales should help relieve the pressure on domestic market prices.

Congressman Price further commented, "sales of grain sorghums that result will be particularly helpful to Texas growers, who lead all other states in grain sorghum production with a 1971 crop estimated at 330.5 million bushels. Nearly one-fourth of our total grain sorghum has been exported in recent years, and sorghum exports were of major importance to Texas in fiscal 1971, when Texas ranked fourth among the 50 states in value of agricultural exports. And, if this transaction proves satisfactory, prospects are good for continued substantial imports of corn and sorghum by Russia and other East European countries, which are seeking to produce more meat for consumers and are turning toward modern Western feeding methods. And, in that case, I shall be certain to press for the most favorable trade conditions on behalf of our grain producers."

Area Witnesses to attend seminar

The world headquarters of Jehovah's Witnesses in Brooklyn, New York, this week announced December 24-26th, as the date area members of the group will convene in Clayton, New Mexico, for a three-day Bible seminar, according to Chester L. Proctor, local presiding minister.

"We are interested in performing a service beneficial to our hometown community," Proctor pointed out.

"Our three days of Bible convocation will eduacte us to be more effective in carrying the Word of Life to others in Hereford," he continued.

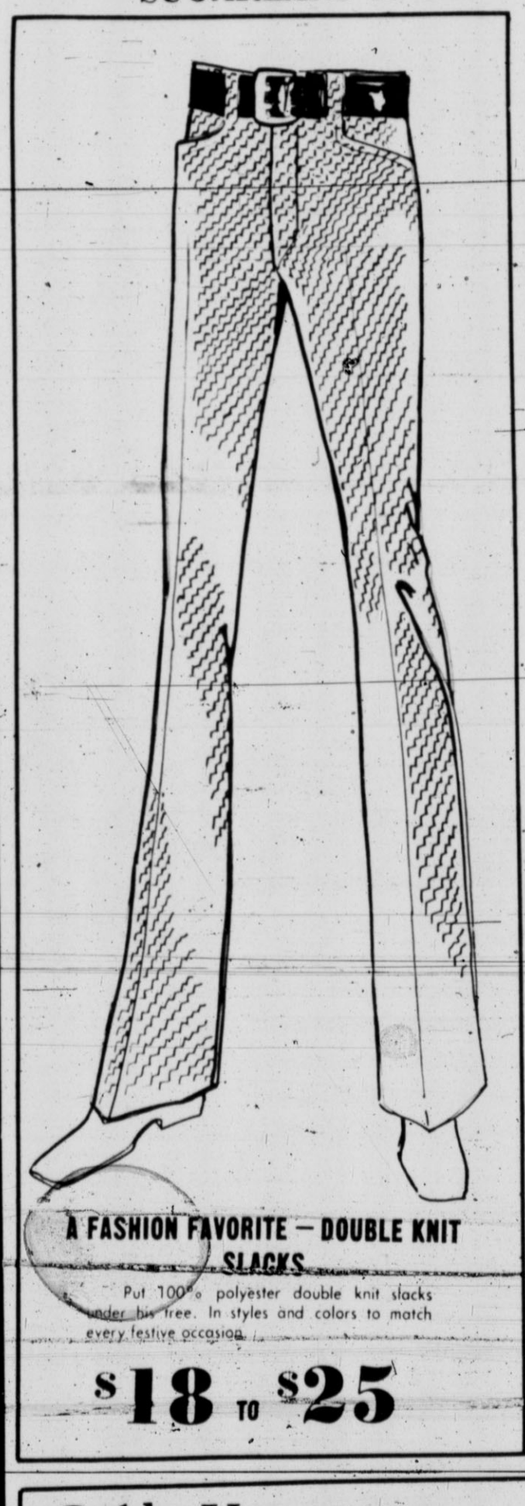

Speakers from the world headquarters of the Witnesses will have major portions on the assembly program that will attract many persons from the surrounding area. Delegates representing three states are expected to increase to 600 by peak-time Sunday afternoon. According to Proctor all of the sessions are open to the public and there will be no collection taken, no admission fee required.

THE INFORMED CONSUMER

By Crawford C. Martin
Attorney General of Texas

Happy holidays can be marred by unscrupulous businessmen who take advantage of consumer ignorance. My staff and I take the following method to bring to your attention some things of which you should be aware while you are Christmas shopping and also to extend our best wishes to you during the holiday season.

Manufacturer's prices printed on cartons, packages, or labels are often used on cheap items such as cuff links, imitation pearls, billfolds, Christmas cards and Christmas wrapping paper to give the illusion of bargains. Don't be fooled by misleading manufacturer's prices.

Expect that the popularly advertised toys will be featured as leaders at deep-cut prices almost everywhere. The so-called "list prices" will be totally meaningless as a basis for comparative pricing.

Remember to save your sales slips. Don't discard them until you are sure the product you purchased is satisfactory.

Refunds and exchanges are privileges granted by some firms They are not a customer right. (Refunds and exchanges depend on store policy.) If you expect these privileges, have a definite agreement and a thorough understanding.

You should select your Christmas purchases carefully so that exchanges, adjustments or returns won't be necessary.

Carefully read all papers you are asked to sign and keep copies of them.

High pressure sales tactics are used by unethical firms and individuals to sell inferior merchandise. Don't fall victim to high pressure salesmanship.

Read ads carefully. If they sound too good to be true, they probably are. Enticing ads may be designed to lure you into the store so you can be talked into a more expensive purchase. Learn to recognize illegal "bait and switch" methods.

If you pay an advance deposit on the lay-a-way plan or otherwise, be sure that you can and will go through with the deal. If you change your mind later on, or if you are unable to take the merchandise out as you have agreed, you may sacrifice your deposit.

Shop at reliable stores with established reputations. Seasonal stores and vendors won't be around after the holidays to service complaints.

Take your time—never buy in a hurry and regret it later.

Make sure you understand the terms of a guarantee and remember guarantees are as good, or as poor, as the company making them. Guarantees should always be in writing. Guarantees should tell by whom, for how long, what parts, and for whose lifetime.

All sales are final unless a definite agreement exists to the contrary. Some shoppers seem to think contracts are binding only on the "other fellow." Contracts are two-way streets, binding on both parties.

Send complaints about false or deceptive Christmas sales practices to the Consumer Protection Division, Office of the Attorney General, P.U. Box 12548, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711.

IRS news...

Good records can save tax dollars at income tax filing time for North Texas taxpayers.

Ellis Campbell, Jr., District Director of Internal Revenue in North Texas, said good records help you get all the deductions and credits you are entitled to.

A good system for keeping records is to label envelopes or folders according to the types of income and deductions you have, Campbell said. Bills and receipts should be put in the appropiate folder as they are paid.

Taxpayers who itemize their deductions on Form 1040 must have available cancelled checks, receipts, statements, and other material to support the claimed deductions.

Campbell said that, in addition to saving tax dollars, good recordkeeping makes preparation of the tax return a much easier task.

Thanks to modern methods of harvesting, each acre of corn now yields three times as much as it did 30 years ago, according to New Holland, the farm equipment division of Sperry Rand.

CONTEST WINNER—Tony Don Allen, who recently won a baby contest in Friona, is the six-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Allen, former Hereford residents, and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Billie Cockrum, Rt. 4, and Mr. and Mrs. John Allen of Friona. The red-haired, blue-eyed winner tips the scales at 20 pounds.

Housewife creates her own

Christmas ornaments inexpensive and fun

BY JANIE BANNER
Staff Writer

WHILE MANY OF us are out spending outrageous amounts of money on Christmas centerpieces for tables and ornaments to dress up rooms in our homes, Mrs. Pete Carmicheal is at home making her own, using an array of unusual items.

Old magazines and paper books along with inexpensive articles purchased at variety stores can be turned into a beautiful angel, a jolly Santa Claus, choir boys or other table pieces, with just a trickle of imagination.

To make the Santa, Wilma Carmichael is holding in the accompanying picture, she used three Readers Digests, red and black felt material cut to a pattern, cotton, cardboard sprayed gold for his buckle and some sprayed black for his boots, curly angel hair for a beard and hollow face on a styrofoam ball.

"YOU CAN BUY the cute doll faces in some hobby shops," said Wilma, "but they are sometimes hard to find.

"We have a son, Kenneth, who is a rancher in Montana. When we visit them we stay about 10 days or two weeks and my daughter-in-law and I have a ball in the hobby shops there! You can't imagine the things they have!"

Wilma attributes many of her ideas to her daughter-in-law, friends in Montana and magazines. She'll tell anyone, "I only make things that are so simple a child can do them."

SHE BEGAN THIS hobby 10 years ago when she made a trio of choir boys using folded magazines of different sizes sprayed with blue paint, lace doilies cut serve as collars, and faces on styrofoam with yarn for hair.

The arrangement is the only one she has found to be versatile. By simply placing the choir boys behind Easter lilies rather than Christmas flowers and balls, it becomes appropriate at Eastertime.

Cardboard tubing from paper towels, Christmas wrapping and Christmas balls are put together to form a grouping of the Three Wise Men.

MRS. CARMICHAEL makes a new piece each year to add to those she already has and often gives duplicates as gifts. Felt Christmas trees, two felt tree patterns sewed together around the edges, decorated as desired, and set over a long-necked bottle, are popular gifts at Christmastime.

Santa's boot, shown to the right in the photo, is felt over a three-pound coffee can which may be used as a cookie jar. Boots are dressed up with shoe lace, the aid of pinking sheers and trim as desired.

Wilma said "I buy a 12 by 72-inch wide strip of felt to make two boots and two 12-inch squares of felt of a different color for the cuff." She fills the top with artificial Christmas flowers small figurines, candles or whatever she prefers.

"I'd be happy for anyone to use my pattern," she added.

ALTHOUGH CHRISTMAS decor is seen most abundantly in her work, Mrs. Carmichael has also made Thanksgiving Turkey centerpieces and owls and turtles with magnetized backs for sticking on kitchen appliances. For these, she says, "I used art foam rubber, sequins and a lot of glue."

When and where needlework is necessary, Wilma does it by hand, saying "A sewing machine isn't ever needed."

What about antiqueing? "Oh, I've done a cream can and a coal skuttle, but that's all. I don't want a whole lot of old junk sitting around the house."

That sentence reminded her, however, of one "old" piece she is proud of—a matchbox dating back more than 100 years.

HER HUSBAND, SEATED nearby added "Actually she has two old pieces—the matchbox and me." Wilma agreed with a smile.

The Carmichaels moved to 213 Sunset 11 years ago from their farm 10 miles northeast of the city in Progressive Community where Wilma recalls "enjoying yardwork and a garden, raising chickens and even driving a truck."

Their sons, Bill, a dentist at Bedford, and Kenneth in Montana have given the Carmichaels five grandchildren, two girls and three boys, respectively.

Daughter Shari, now Mrs. Wiley James, is an art education major at the University of Texas in Austin. She supplies her parents with paintings for the walls of their home.

WILMA HAS BEEN a member of Progressive Home Demonstration Club for 31 years, serving in every office position. She is current secretary-treasurer of the club. A favorite recreation is bridge.

She is a member of the First Christian Church.

Date of bazaar is moved ahead

Date changes because of recent bad weather include the rescheduling of La Madre Mia Club's annual Christmas bazaar for Tuesday, Dec. 14, instead of Saturday. The sale of handmade holiday gifts will be held in Sugarland Mall, beginning at 10 a.m.

Final arrangements for the event were made at this week's meeting of the club for a Christmas party in the home of Mrs. Dave Honea.

Mrs. Dean Herring and Mrs. Bobby Owen were hostesses with Mrs. Honea. Mrs. G.C. Merritt directed the business session preceding the party.

Informal conversation and a gift exchange entertained the group through the remainder of the evening. Christmas suggestions appeared in the refreshment course.

Those present included Mmes. James Gentry, Charles Frye, Ray Moore, Wayne Lady, Herschel Black, Charles Watson, Waldo Baxter, Lynton Allred, C.D. Adams, Ben Scott, Dale Sains, Richard Ward, Don Walser, Gene Sparks, Bud Synder, Ron Zimmerman and Roger Williams.

What are the little ones wanting for Christmas this year?

JUST LIKE THE BIG BOYS—Lance Taylor, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Taylor of Dimmitt, shows here one item that his Christmas list contains.

DOING SOME WINDOW SHOPPING — Tracie and Christie Fletcher, five and two-year-old daughters of Mrs. Carol Fletcher of Hereford, express delight and amazement at the variety of toys they found in a local store's window. Santa Claus, in the background seems to be watching the tykes.

ISN'T HE SOFT? — Kelly Wied of Friona, right, shows her mother, Mrs. Bobby Wied, a cuddly stuffed kitten toy, while 1½ year old Karen, holding a bright eyed monkey toy, watches her 3½ year old sister. Stuffed toys remain favorites for most girls of all ages.

It's red and green season!

By Mrs. Argen Draper
Home Demonstration Agent

EVERYONE STARTS seeing red, this time of year. And green and gold, too. And one of the favorite red things is in plentiful supply, this month, is Christmas eating. Cranberries have been designated among the monthly plentiful foods according to the market consumer service.

You can do fantastic, pretty things with cranberries for holiday menus. Quick loaf breads are a favorite among the baked goods for it can be made early and stored or even frozen.

Cranberry Fruit Nut Bread

2 cups all-purpose sifted flour
1 cup sugar
1-1½ tsps. double acting baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
¼ cup shortening
¾ cup orange juice
1 tbsp. grated orange rind
1 egg well beaten
½ cup chopped nuts
1-1½ cups fresh or frozen cranberries, coarsely chopped

Sift flour, sugar, baking powder, soda and salt together. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse cornmeal. Combine orange juice and grated rind with well-beaten egg.

Pour all at once into dry ingredients, mixing just enough to dampen. Carefully fold in chopped nuts and cranberries.

Spoon into greased loaf pan (9x5x3-inches). Spread corners and sides slightly higher than center. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 1 hour—until crust is golden brown and toothpick inserted comes out clean. Remove from pan. Cool. Store overnight for easy slicing.

NOTE: If quick frozen fresh cranberries are used, do not thaw. Give them a quick rinse in cold water and chop while frozen.

PUNCH

46 oz. Pineapple juice
1 Qt. Cranberry juice
1 6 oz. can froz. lemonade (reconstituted 5 cans)
1 Qt. ginger ale
1 Qt. crushed ice

CRANBERRY NUT PIE

2 c. fresh or frozen cranberries
1 c. sugar
1 c. heavy cream
½ c. chopped nuts
1 frozen vanilla ice cream shell

Put cranberries through food chopper using fine blade. (Grind your cranberries frozen-less juicy). Add sugar; let stand overnight.

Whip cream. Mix cranberries and nuts. Fold in whipped cream. Pour into cream shell. Freeze.

CRANBERRY SALAD

4 c. cranberries
½ c. water
3 c. sugar
1 (6 oz.) or 2 (3 oz.) pkgs. lemon flavored gelatin
1 c. boiling water
2 c. diced celery
1 c. chopped black walnuts
Crisp lettuce or salad greens

Combine cranberries and water in saucepan; simmer until skins burst. Add sugar. Cool 3 minutes more. Combine gelatin and boiling water; stir to dissolve gelatin. Chill until syrupy. Fold in celery and nuts. Pour into 2 qt. mold or 8 individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on lettuce or other greens. Serve with fluffy fruit dressing or whipped cream.

THE LIVEGREEN TREE is a symbol of the beauty and joy of Christmas. But a dry tree is recognized as a fire hazard by all fire protection authorities. A simple household formula for keeping a Christmas tree fresh throughout the holiday season:

¼ c. copper sulphate
1 gal. hot water
2 c. light corn syrup
4 t. chlorinated household bleach

HOME DEMONSTRATION club women send ditty bags to Vietnam to the soldiers. This morning a note came from a soldier who received one of the ditty bags.

He wanted to thank the women for the items and said he really could use them. He is ready for leave for home and said he only wished all of the troops could come home now. He wished all those who helped with the ditty bags a Merry Christmas.

Veteran's affairs

Veterans enrolling for GI Bill training for the spring semester can speed their VA payments by submitting required information to the VA or their school prior to enrollment time, according to Jack Coker, VA Regional Director at Waco.

Also to help veterans, Coker said, the VA has changed its procedures on future enrollments to permit submission of documents direct to colleges by veterans who have not had time to get certificates of eligibility from the VA prior to the school start date.

Veterans should submit a copy of their separation papers, proof of dependency and application for education to the VA prior to enrollment if possible. If circumstances do not permit the veteran to do this and school enrollment has started he may submit his "package" of required documents direct to the school. Most colleges and universities have agreed to accept the "package" and forward it to the VA for processing along with the certification of his enrollment.

The key to rapid start of GI Bill checks for veterans who will start school for the first time in the spring semester is to get his "package" of documents in as soon as possible, Coker said.

Servicemen getting "early outs" before the end of the year who plan to start school under the GI Bill in January should apply for their certification as soon as possible if they wish to head off GI Bill payment delays.

Veterans and servicemen desiring information on education benefits should contact their local VA office, veterans county service officer, or veterans service organization representatives.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Duty of a Wife

"Whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge."

Does the modern wife owe this kind of biblical loyalty to her husband? Under today's law, is she still obliged to let him choose the family home?

Almost everywhere, that continues to be the basic rule. By and large, it is the husband who has the last word as to where they will live. If the wife refuses to follow his lead, she is guilty of desertion—grounds for divorce.

Thus:

To cut expenses, a man prepared to move to a smaller apartment. But his wife decided it was "not stylish enough" for her, and went home to her parents. After a long impasse, the man finally sued for divorce and won a decree. The judge said the wife's refusal to live with him, for no good and sufficient reason, made her a deserter in the eyes of the law.

Nevertheless, the husband's authority is far from absolute. He cannot insist on a housing arrangement which is simply not fair to his spouse.

For example, one man decided to move in with his mother, even though he could well afford separate lodgings—and even though his mother and his wife did not get along with each other.

A court held, in these circumstances, that the wife had a legitimate excuse for not joining the household.

Furthermore, when a man invites his wife to join him at a new location, he must really mean it—not just be going through the motions. One cantankerous husband, having journeyed alone to the West Coast, sent back the following "invitation" to his wife:

"I have completely gotten over my regard for you, if I ever had any. However, I am doing what I must do, even though you have ruined my life. I ask you to come and make your home with me, as the law requires."

When she held back, he tried to divorce her on the grounds of desertion. But the court ruled against him. The judge said this was the kind of an invitation that no self-respecting wife could possibly accept.

EAGLE RANK ACHIEVED — In a ceremony attended by families and friends, two members of Boy Scout Troop 52 attained the high rank of Eagle Scout this week. Dale Hairgrove, in photo at left, turns to show his mother, Mrs. Dale Hairgrove, the insignia which has just been pinned on. In the group at right are Scott Turner, displaying his award, with his younger brother, Mike, his father, Doyle Turner, and his mother. Steve Coneway, Scoutmaster of Troop 52, which is sponsored by First United Methodist Church, invited Frank Ford, former Scoutmaster under whose leadership the two new Eagle Scouts did most of their work, to present the coveted awards.

Autumn to winter, Winter into spring,

Spring into summer, summer into fall,

Each with their changing weather, rain, storms,

Now banks of snow, city streets, and Christmas coming soon,

So rolls the changing times in our year, and so we change:

Really with motion so swift, we scarcely know that we move

According to the calendar winter has not yet arrived, but by all conditions around Hereford, winter is blowing his cold wintry blasts of snow, cold wind, creating ice everywhere.

The snow was beautiful, it fell so gently, and coated the world all about with the soft white dress of winter. From my window, I looked and thought to myself how beautiful can be the handiwork of God. The trees were creations of loveliness.

This is the time of year when we are thinking of a certain kind of tree. The Christmas tree. If the tree has not been purchased, soon it will be, and care should be exercised in the selection and care of the tree, that it may be as pretty as you want, and serve the purpose for which you plan.

One of the chief considerations when selecting a tree is that it is fresh and sturdy. Before the selection, it is imperative that you know just where it is to be placed and something of the decorations, size relationship to the room, and the number of people that will be sharing.

Douglas and balsam Spruce, especially the Norway variety, tends to shed needles much sooner, and they are not available at many markets. The fir and spruce are the most popular trees in our locale. One can tell the spruce from the fir by touching the needles.

Fir needles are flat, soft at the tips and are evenly spaced. Spruce needles necessarily are sharp (therefore not too good for small children) and pointed. Balsam twigs form a cross at the end of each branch. If needles fall when the tree is bounced, then it is not fresh.

The all-important thing is to keep the tree fresh after purchase. Store in cold room, or outside in a cool garage.

To make the tree last longer, and continue to be attractive cut an inch or two on a slant from the base when it is first purchased. Peel back the bark another inch, then place the tree in water, or the following mixture:— to one gallon of water add one cup of sugar or white corn syup, 2 tablespoons of Clorox, mix well and stand the tree, (where fresh cut) in this until it is set up for decoration. Then it should be so placed that it is in water, the average tree drinks approximately 1 pint of water a day, so add to the water each day, or the same amount of the mixture.

While it is stored sprinkle generously with water. If the above mixture is used, then each time it is added, replenish the sugar by putting in 2 to 3 tablespoons stirring until dissolved. The sugar is to feed the tree and aid in keeping its sheen, the Clorox is to keep down bacteria. I have also learned that one can spray with green glow plant spray, where the decorations are not so heavy, and this will aid in keeping the needles from shedding so badly.

The added moisture and thorough soaking of the tree will be a good preventive to fire. Be sure and check all bulbs and wires, as well as connections, before placing them on the tree. Use every precaution to not have a fire or other damage. A bit of pruning, to shape the tree will add to its beauty, and usefulness. The cuttings can be used for other Christmas arrangements.

It is by request, the recipe for Mrs. Ray's Vanilla Cake has been obtained. It is as follows:

¾ cup of oleo
1½ cups of sugar
6 eggs
3 cups of crushed vanilla crumbs (or a 12 oz. box)
½ cup milk
1 cup pecans, chopped
1½ cups angel flake coconut

Cream sugar and oleo well, add eggs one at a time, mixing thoroughly, add milk and stir in, then fold in the crushed vanilla crumbs, nuts and coconut. Bake in a loaf or tube pan, at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Very good!

Correction: In reading the paper, I found that the name of one of my friends who made the trip to Hawaii was not listed. Mrs. Bill (Gladys) Smith was on the tour. Gladys always is good company and adds glamour, by her attractiveness to any group. Was good to have her.

Also it was the Henry Kupers of Summerfield, instead of Walter, who were on tour. Sorry about these errors. I really tried hard to make a correct list. Anyhow it was jolly good fun and enjoyment to be with such a wonderful group of people, and am very thankful that it was my pleasure, to be with all of them on the tour.

TREES OF HAWAII: In the above, mention was made of some of the native trees of the States. One of the very interesting and exciting studies I made while on the Islands was of the many trees they have.

The Food Trees are: Mango (manako)—The tree reaches a height of 70 feet, and the fruit from the trees is used raw for eating such as our oranges, is also used to make chutney, jelly, marmalade, and is stewed to accompany other foods. The leaves hang limp, and they have a secretion of sap with a turpentine odor when crushed. They hang very limply on the tree. There are about 40 varieties of these food trees. The jelly was dlicious!

Passion Fruit (liliko'i)—Early European travelers gave the name to the Passion Flower. Upon study of the minute parts of the flower, one finds that they represent to 10 apostles at the Crucifixion, and the other parts are relative to the Crucifixion. Most interesting study. The fruit of the tree is used in many ways and is one of the favorites of the natives.

Coco Palm. The coconut is common to Polynesia, Malaysia, India, Australia, Africa and America. Origin was probably on the shores of the Indian Ocean basin. The trees vary in height as some short trunks while others grow to a height of 100 feet or taller. Leaves spread in a cluster at the trunk's top, from six to 18 feet long, smooth fibrous stems and narrow leaves. Tree begins to flower and bear when approximately six years old, and may produce 40 years or longer. The coconut grows in a cluster in the top of the tree in the long leaves. A tree can produce as many as 40 coconuts a year; ripens in nine to 10 months, and the ripening period is not all at once.

Usually when the fruit has thoroughly ripened it falls to the ground, therefore it is well to be watchful when in a grove.

We made a visit to one of the largest groves in the Islands. Very interesting. The coconut is used for many purposes, and is delicious. I liked the coconut syrup with Macadamia Nut waffles very much.

Unusual Trees—There were so many unusual and interesting trees, that I was most fascinated by them. Some of those which I will never forget were: Pandanus (Screw Pine) is a small tree or shrub, sometimes called the walking tree because of the manner in which the aerial roots grow out to brace the trunk. The long anrrowleaves are very pointed, unusually fibrous and spiny and are used to weave mats, after having been dried. They grow in a spiral manner thus the name screw. The fruit is similar to the pineapple only smaller. The flower of the male tree is a droopy plume like cluster, frosty soft in texture. The mats woven from the fiber, are used as mats in the homes, also on the seashore for sun bathing. The Manjeots 4 carry their mats in the car, for swimming and sun bathing all the time, whether in U.S.A. or the oriental countries.

Banyan. Is a sacred tree to the Hindus and is native to India. The most unusual feature of this tree are the aerial roots which grow from the limbs and horizontal brancnes to support them and permit the tree to cover a wide area. Often they grow to be 175 feet across, and when one approaches one of the trees, it seems like you are in a jungle. The fruit is a small red berry, and is used for medical purposes. It is a member of the fig family, and many other types are grown in Hawaii. They grow best in very moist regions and higher altitudes. Leaves are beautiful, color and texture lovely.

Sausage Tree: Came to the Island from West Africa (most of the trees grown in Hawaii have been brought to the Islands). Is rare and often does not bare fruit because of pollination, a certain type insect must pollinate the blooms. Is most interesting to see, on one of our tours we saw the largest one on the Island. And the fruit looked exactly like sacks of sausage. The kind when our mothers used to make the sacks out of materials and then stuff sausage into them for keeping.

On the tree we saw, there was a full crop and the sausage were growing at various lengths. Really most interesting. It takes the fruit six months to mature and may weigh as much as 12 pounds then.

The flower only lasts one day and that accounts for the pollination. . .the insects must be ever present. The guide told us that in Hawaii that the flower blossoms were usually pollinated by botanists of the University of Hawaii. Did not learn, what the fruit was used for.

Breadfruit (ulu) — originally from Malaysia. Grows to a height of 30 to 60 feet. Has large leathery leaves 3 to 4 feet long and very irregular in shape. The fruit, when ripe, resembles a bowling ball, is brownish when ripe and weighs 10 pounds. Rind is rough and warty, yet the meat is sweet and mealy, very much like our sweet potato. Fruit is baked or boiled and is very high in food value. Wood used for canoes, bark for tapa, sap for caulking to catch birds, and is also used for chewing gum. The fruit is tasty.

One can easily understand that these trees are of great benefit to the economy of the Islands.

The FDA-DES issue

The Food and Drug Administration is up to its old tricks and the victim this time is the cattle feeding industry. It is highly likely that the use of DES, a hormone now used in the industry to lower the cost of gain, will be banned from use if positive action is not taken soon.

On Oct. 12, FDA increased the withdrawal period from 48 hours to seven days—an action taken in spite of its own admittance that the "48-hour period is scientifically adequate when observed."

The new ruling came after Consumer and Marketing Service Laboratories detected DES residues in 10 of 2500 cattle and sheep sampled in April, May, June and July. Detection came following instigation of a new laboratory analytical procedure which is sensitive to a level of 2 parts per billion of DES. All of the positive samples were in the liver and NO positive samples have ever been found in muscle tissues that are most generally consumed as meat.

Extension of the withdrawal period will probably work no hardship on the beef industry, but the total ban of the hormone would. DES is now being used in 80 to 85 per cent of all cattle fed in the U.S. and if alternates have to be used the estimated additional cost to consumers will be from $300 to $460 million annually.

Certainly, if there is a danger to health, then the product should be banned, but here again FDA is not telling all. As in the "cranberry scare" of a few years ago which almost wrecked that industry, the FDA fails to tell the whole story. The consumer is left to believe that consumption of even the smallest amount of the beef in question will cause dire consequences. Nothing could be further from the truth.

According to Dr. Wise Burroughs, Iowa State University ruminant nutritionist who developed the practice of using the hormone in beef feeding, at the level of 2 parts per billion, a person would have to eat a half-ton of liver a day to receive a therapeutic dose. Sounds rather incredible that the FDA would become so concerned over so minute an amount of residue, but that seems to be the story. Actually, a half-ton of anything taken internally would do the trick, no matter how pure.

Nevertheless, a band of consumer, environmental and welfare organizations has already filed suit in Washington asking the federal district court there to ban the feeding of DES to cattle and sheep. The group, according to our information, accuses the government of failing to protect the public from misuse of DES. Now we're wondering who should protect the public against the government and the environmentalist?

Actually, we're not sure just where to place the blame for this fiasco. Certainly the federal government should use more discretion in its public announcements and that would solve a lot of problems. On the other hand, in this era when the federal government's credibility-gap is so evident, we tend to wonder why the wire services and television news services carry such information without checking further. Perhaps it's not their responsibility, but we believe they could perform a much-needed service to the public by so doing.

Meanwhile, the beef industry has been condemned before the trial—the environmentalists are having a heyday—and the consumer will pay the bill in the end.

Freedom of freedom

Under a dictatorship, the government does what it wants to do. The state comes first. The citizens don't count.

In a free country like ours, the citizens do count. The government is responsible to the people. And it is responsive to the will of the people.

But, even here in America, if the people do not take the time and trouble to express themselves, through the ballot and in other ways—if they do not participate actively enough in the formulation of national policies, if they do not let the government know, in clear and positive terms, what they want done—then, the government begins to act somewhat like a dictatorship.

It goes ahead and does what it deems best.

For some time now, the government has been operating on the basis that the best way—or, at least, the easy way—to solve economic, social, urban and human problems is to spend money, the taxpayer's money.

It makes no difference whether it has the money. The government spends it anyway. Red ink or black, who cares?

This fiscal year the Federal Government, if left to its own devices, will spend $35 billion beyond its income, Rep. George H. Mahon (D-Tex.), chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, reminds us, adding: "It may come nearer to being $40 billion."

The government will spend more money for existing programs which have long ago proved to be worthless, or practically so.

And it will spend money for an array of nonessential new programs.

In some cases, it will spend money for programs that are promoted by politicians simply to get votes and to keep themselves in office.

Besides going deeper into debt, the government — through the Federal Reserve system — continues to increase the supply of currency excessively.

As a consequence, we have inflation, which President Nixon has characterized as "theft" because it has stolen billions of dollars from the savings and life insurance of the American people.

As a temporary expedient to help curb inflation the government has put controls on wages, prices and rents.

The businessmen of America feel that these emergency controls have a place as a temporary expediency. We want to make them work — but get rid of them as soon as possible.

But—these controls merely get at the effects of inflation, and not at the root cause, which is: Continued deficit spending.

The government, therefore should put a freeze on itself. It should reduce rather than increase its spending. And it should restrain the overly free flow of currency.

On a recent three-week Aircade trip for meetings in 15 cities across the country top business and community leaders discussed the matter. Everywhere, people deeply concerned about inflation, and about the danger of the present "temporary controls" becoming permanent.

Mere concern is not enough.

Your concern must be converted into action.

Let the government—your representatives in Congress and the Administration—know how you feel about senseless deficit spending.

As an American citizen, you do count—provided you use your freedom to maintain your freedom. Don't wait.

Discovering the Lone Star State with... Frank Oliver

When you hear a Texan get to bragging about the world's finest Highway System being in Texas, he's right. But what he might neglect to say is that some of the most rewarding discoveries in the state are to be made when you get OFF the super highways and take to the quiet, shady roads. Like going through the charming and beautiful city of Huntsville, just off Interstate 45 . . . the city Sam Houston called home.

Here on 15 acres of sweeping lawns with its giant trees and exquisite gardens, is Sam Houston Memorial Park, a fitting shrine to a great Texan and his family. A tour through these grounds of Houston's original home, directly opposite the Sam Houston State College and right in the middle of town, impressively points up the connection between Houston the Tennessee-Texas pioneer, frontiersman, military genius and politician . . . and Houston the devoted family man. The Sam Houston Museum, a large, beautiful copper-domed building, contains a remarkable collection of Houston memorabilia, in addition to a sizeable study of early life in Texas generally. Elsewhere on the lovely grounds, the original Houston home, his law office and a replica of the detached kitchen are in excellent condition, and invite detailed inspection. The grounds are preserved just as they were when Sam and Margaret Houston lived there with their family (eventually four boys and four girls) between 1847 and 1858.

Also on the grounds is a comparatively recent and intriguing addition to the memorial compound . . . the Steamboat House. In 1858 Sam Houston sold the homestead to raise money for his successful campaign for the Governor's chair in 1859. He served as Texas' last pre-Civil War Governor only until March 16, 1861, when he resigned rather than vote for secession. Brokenhearted, he returned to his beloved Huntsville where he tried unsuccessfully to buy back his old home. Determined to remain close, he rented the Steamboat House on the far side of town, where broken heart begat broken health and he died of pneumonia in 1863 at the age of 70. In honor of the old Texan and his heirs, the state moved the Steamboat House to the grounds in 1936.

Take a few hours off the high road, Texan, and step back into Texas history more than a century. Stroll with a Texas stalwart who loved children, flowers and the peace of a quiet home, for himself and for his fellow Texans . . . and who whipped an entire nation to earn them!

Congressmen show haste makes waste

BY BERT MILLS

Washington, D.C.—Congress is engaging in its annual struggle to adjourn and is demonstrating anew the imperfections of our system of adopting laws. The legislators dawdle for months then try to solve complicated questions in great haste at the end of the session.

This happens every year, not only in Washington, but in most state capitals. There seems to be something in the make-up of political animals which inspires procrastination. Also, the cumbersome method by which laws are made is imperfect to say the least and the lack of central authority and responsibility encourages stalling.

The Washington scene this December is one of disarray. Congress, and particularly the Senate, is meeting early and late and even some Saturdays but it cannot possibly complete all it should do before the next session opens in January. The prospective date for adjournment of the current session has been pushed back several times, and now there is talk of a possible special session after Christmas.

The Supreme Court has been forced to get along for months with two of its nine seats vacant, because the Senate has stalled on confirming President Nixon's appointees. There is little doubt that both Lewis F. Powell and William H. Rehnquist will be allowed to take their seats but the Senate has taken an inordinate amount of time to act.

Politics Causes Some Delays

Politics explains some of the delays. Congress is controlled by Democrats but a Republican occupies the White House. One major goal of Congressional leaders is to frustrate and embarrass the President as often as possible. With a solid majority in both the Senate and House, such opportunities present themselves almost daily.

President Nixon also plays the political game. He delays submission of certain programs, then blames Congress for not acting on them promptly. He also imposes conditions, such as insisting that his Supreme Court nominations be considered together. This has given the Senate an excuse to hold up both nominations, even though that of Powell is unopposed.

Also, the President waited until mid-August to adopt a new economic program. The first step, a 90-day freeze, was accomplished without the necessity of legislative action. However, Phase 2 requires a law and it was mid-November before Congress received the proposal.

Similarly late was the nomination of Dr. Earl Butz to be Secretary of Agriculture, and his selection stirred up a time-consuming controversy which the White House probably did not anticipate. Nor did the Administration expect the Senate to kill foreign aid, even temporarily.

The tax bill Nixon proposed in August received relatively prompt action by the House but the Senate stalled and tacked on so many amendments as to jeopardize the whole package, and to bring the threat of a White House veto. If vetoed, a special session might be called by the President.

Major Bills Held Over Until '72

Most of the Administration's major reform bills have been sidetracked in Congress and will not receive attention until 1972, if then. Welfare reform, reorganization, and strike control legislation fall in that category. The House did pass a welfare reform bill but the Senate has put it on its "wait-until-year.

THE BOOTLEG —Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm ought to know the President isn't going to have time to answer the question he asks this week.

Dear editar:

I know that President Nixon is going to have a lot of things on his mind when he visits Red China in February but I sure wish he had time to find out something that's bothering me about that country.

According to an interview I saw on television the other night with two Americans of Chinese extraction who talk English and Chinese fluently and who have just returned from a visit to China, everybody over there or down there I guess I ought to say, knows about Mr. Nixon's forthcoming visit.

"I talked with lots of people," one of the men said, "even lots of farmers, and they all know about the coming visit. They know that Dr. Henry Kissinger has visited there twice preparing for the trip. They know he's a brilliant scholar and they're looking forward to the President's visit."

"You mean even the farmers know about it?' the T.V. reporter asked.

"Yes. I talked with lots of farmers, and they all know about it."

The thing I want Mr. Nixon to find out is where abouts on those oxen-drawn plows do the Chinese farmers keep their radios? How do they keep from missing a lot of news while trying to listen to the radio and yell at their oxen to gee and haw, however that may be translated into Chinese?

I don't know anything about China, but I understand there are 800 million people living there and two-thirds of them are farmers. What I want to know is, if they all know about Henry Kissinger, how come they never found out about modern tractors?

If two-thirds of the people in the United States were farming, instead of 8 per cent, there'd be so much food and produce stacked up a man couldn't get his car out of his garage.

I guess you could tie your radio to the handles of a walking plow or around the neck of the off-ox, but still Mr. President I'd like to know.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Talk of Texas

BY JACK MAGUIRE

FROM TEXAS, WITH LOVE—About 90 per cent of all of the mistletoe packaged and sold commercially in the U.S. this Christmas will be from trees in Central Texas.

For more than 50 years, Texas has been the principal supplier of parasitic mistletoe—a plant endowed with magical qualities in European folklore—but primarily used in the U.S. as an excuse for stealing kisses. From Thanksgiving Day until mid-December, the gathering, grading, packaging and shipping of the green plant with the pearl-like berries is a primary occupation in a dozen Central Texas counties.

Mistletoe that doesn't get to market isn't wasted. It's a favorite food for cattle and hogs.

SHOPPING NOTE—For the man who has everything, a Dallas firm has turned hundreds of old U.S. Post Office lockboxes into piggybanks for frugal executives.

These newest toys for the tired businessman utilize postbox fronts from dozens of now defunct fourth class post offices in towns like Votaw, North Zulch, Salt Flat and Old Ocean. Some of the old mail slots are more than 80 years old.

More than seven tons of the old boxes, their numbers still intact, will appear under Christmas trees across the nation this year.

SANTA'S STOREHOUSE—In Houston, the largest collection of old playthings to be seen anywhere in the U.S. is housed in the Nine to Ninety Antique Toy Museum.

It began more than a decade ago when Mr. and Mrs. Preston Weatherred decided to buy some antique toys to decorate an upstairs study in their home. They continued to acquire toys, and by 1969, they had collected hundreds. Most of the playthings were in vogue before 1900 and many are two centuries old.

In 1969, they decided that their home couldn't hold another toy. They teamed with Mrs. Durrell Carothers, another collector, and opened their unique museum. More than 4,000 toys are on display in the museum—a 50-year-old building converted to look like a giant doll house.

COMING EVENTS—By Christmas, 1972, Houston men will have a $350,000 barber shop where they can be coiffured, massaged, shaved and manicured on five different levels.

The facility, now being built by Norris of Houston, will represent the largest investment in a barbershop in the U.S. This elegant tonsorial palace will occupy an acre of ground and have 130 employes. Haircuts with that "natural look" will cost up to $10. Plus tip, of course.

SENSING THE NEWS

By Anthony Harrigan
EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT
Southern States Industrial Council

Monopoly unionism which can paralyze the nation's economy is one of America's most serious problems. The United States won't be able to recover its economic health unless the union monopolists are curbed.

For many weeks, the state of the economy has been the No. 1 domestic concern of the American people. The President and the Congress have been grappling with economic issues, hoping to increase prosperity. Millions of ordinary Americans have been asked to do their part to get the economy moving again.

Throughout most of this period, however, a handful of powerful union bosses kept vital seaports shut down and closed coal mines essential to industry. These actions by union leaders evidenced the complete irresponsibility and arrogance of the union bosses. It is shocking that a handful of union officials should be able to halt ocean commerce through the port of New York and other seaports, or that coal—essential to the electric power industry—should cease to be mined on the orders of union leaders.

Union bosses who issue such orders—and the rank and file of the unions have no choice but to obey—are the equivalent of the robber barons of medieval times. They hold up essential commerce in our society. They cost seaport cities millions of dollars per day in lost business.

Something must be done about such modern-day highway robbery, about such an abuse of power that violates the rights of millions of working people, manufacturers and communities. And, at long last, something is being done in Congress. Last month, U.S. Rep. Sam Steiger of Arizona introduced a National Right to Work law. Thus, for the first time, a serious drive is being mounted for a national ban on compulsory unionism. Seventeen other congressmen are co-sponsors of this important legislation.

The sponsors of this legislation don't expect victory this year. But they have started a legislative process that offers great hope to a nation weakened by union tyranny.

Rep. Steiger's bill isn't anti-labor but pro-worker. In many industrial disputes, the workers don't want to be called off the job. They want to continue working. But the unionized worker hasn't any voice in union decision-making. Unions are monolithic organizations with powerful officials at the top who make ALL the decisions. If rank and file members protest, they may find themselves stripped of union membership and of a job. In some unions, protest results in personal danger.

Rep. Steiger believes that each worker should enjoy the benefits of democracy, that each worker should be free to decide whether or not he will join a union. This freedom doesn't exist today on a nationwide basis. Congressman Steiger described the situation in these words:

"Existing law authorizes a labor union to make an agreement with an employer whereby all employes must pay dues to the union as a condition of employment. As a result of these agreements, millions of workers throughout our country are being compelled to pay dues to labor organizations for representation they do not want. If they refuse to pay, the employer has no choice but to fire them."

The national need—and the objective of the Steiger bill—is to make union membership entirely voluntary in all 50 states. Thus it will get at the root of union monopoly power.

It should be borne in mind that unions don't represent anything like a majority of working people. Out of the 80 million working men and women in America, only 19 million are members of "organized" labor. But the officials of the unions can paralyze vast industries, transportation systems and communities, thereby throwing out of work millions of non-union working people.

Unwanted brush, weeds take toll on rangelands

Unwanted brush and weeds in Texas infest 82 per cent of the state's rangelands and drink between 38 and 40 per cent of all the state's water.

In addition to the water these plants need, they waste more than is used by all the towns, farms, factories and all the people in Texas. Loss in the marketable live calf weight in the Rolling Plains area alone amounts to approximately 87.2 million pounds per year.

Some things can be done about the massive problem, and discovering some of the right things to do are researchers who have been working four years in concentrated Brush Control Studies at Texas Tech University.

Dr. Joseph L. Schuster, director of the program, outlined progress Thursday (Dec. 9) "A dollar increase in the output of the range livestock industry," Schuster emphasized, "will typically have a greater effect on the regional economy than a dollar increase in most manufacturing activities."

Schuster used slides to describe various approaches to brush control and post-control management. He addressed members of the Southwestern Mesquite and Brush Eradication Association (SMBEA) and their guests at Texas Tech. Principal researchers for all brush control studies were present to answer questions.

Research interests range from dragging mesquite with heavy chains and mowing it down to encouraging a population explosion among twig girdlers to kill mesquite biologically.

The ecology, economics, biology, mechanics, engineering, nutrition and range management involved are all part of the research.

Major targets have included mesquite, prickly pear cactus, yucca, redberry juniper, sand shinnery oak and salt cedar. Although many work on the research projects, the total manpower -- including parttime investigators amounts to more than 23 full time workers at Texas Tech.

One of the earliest successes was achieved when it was discovered that night spraying of prickly pear cactus with 2,4,5-T and diesel oil provided a good kill. The reason the chemical works at night is because this cactus has stomata (pores) which open at night, allowing more chemical to penetrate.

Understanding plant physiology underlies research progress, Schuster pointed out.

In chemical mesquite control key words are "phenology" (stage of growth) and "translocation" (the upward and downward movement of chemicals within the plant).

When soil temperatures reach 82 degrees Fahrenheit at a depth of 12 inches, mesquite is more easily killed by chemical spraying because translocation is best at this temperature. In addition, the researchers said that by adding a chemical which costs about an extra nickel an acre, the temperature factor can be offset.

They found further that chemical spraying has less effect on mesquite trees in full bloom than when trees have few blooms. Work is in progress now to synchronize the bloom stage for any group of mesquite trees, and so make it easier to set a good time for spraying.

An associated study for synchronization in mesquite relates to the tree's dormant buds, almost all of which are below the soil. These cause resprouting but they are not connected to living tissues of the live tree. Consequently spraying can kill the tree but leave the buds ready to sprout. If dormant and live growth are synchronized the resprouting problem should be solved.

Another major advance in mesquite control involves shredding the trees and using microbilogh to convert the harvested mesquite to protein. A research team has developed a process to combine shredded mesquite and feedlot waste (which furnishes nitrogen) into a high protein diet for livestock.

The tree girdler is an insect which lives in mesquite and can reduce its cover by girdling the limbs. An entomologist working in brush control is concentrating on a study of a possible population explosion of tree girdlers being induced to kill mesquite biologically.

Extensive work at Texas Tech has been done in the use of fire to control brush. Fire has achieved as high as a 32 per cent kill on mesquite, and researched predict a time when "prescription burning" will be a usable tool on ranches.

Recognizing the dangers involved, researchers are devloping formulas using air temperatures, fuel supplies, wind velocities and all other factors contributing to a successful burn. When completed, ranchers would use the formulas to know when to burn, how much to burn, and what management practices to adopt after a burn.

In redberry juniper, the researchers found a good kill agent, but it has not been released for agricultural use. Picloram (Tordon) will kill the juniper when applied between April and October, and an 88 per cent gain in forage can be realized. The chemical, however, is only slowly degradable in water. Ultraviolet rays from sunlight do degrade it.

Additional research is needed, Schuster said, to establish safe limits for using picloram or to find a substitute chemical. In tests picoram was used both in solution and in dry form.

Studies on yucca and mechanical means for grubbing it have met with considerable success at Abilene Christian College in cooperation with Brush Control Studies at Texas Tech.

As with a great many of the brush species, the underground problem is big with sand shinnery oak in which nine-tenths of the total weight of the oak is below the soil surface. Root kill up to 76 per cent has been achieved with equal parts of picloram and 2,4,5-T, although picloram appeared to the most useful agent.

Working in brush control at Texas Tech are faculty and students from eight departments in four colleges. Electrical engineers are working in instrumentation for studies. Other departments involved are biology, food and nutriton, agronomy, agricultrual engineering, agricultrual economics, animal science and range and wildlife management.

Most of the support for research comes from the State of Texas and, said Schuster, "outstanding cooperation" has been offered by ranchers, the Welder Wildlife foundation and other interested private associations.

Voice pupils to hear recital from WTSU

A Sunday afternoon recital of a type which has become a pre-Christmas tradition for voice students of Mrs. Dolson Palmer, will be presented in her home today by Elsa Porter, voice instructor at West Texas State University, and four of her pupils.

A workshop for Mrs. Palmer's pupils will precede the program by the visitors. Then parents and other invited guests of the students will come for the recital by the WTSU singers.

Miss Porter will present Margaret Hathaway, mezzo; Linda Pinkerton and Brenda Cason, sopranos, and Johnny Johnson, tenor. Lorne Schultz, pianist, will play accompaniments.

Opening the recital will be selections from the Magnificat by J.S. Bach: Et exultavit, by Miss Hathaway; Misericordia, a duet by Miss Hathaway and Johnson; Susepit Isreal, by Misses Cason, Porter and Hathaway.

Next is a group of songs, From My Window (Kendrick) by Miss Pinkerton; Blow, Blow, Thou Winter Wind (Quilter) by Johnson; Mockingbird at Night (Templeton) by Miss Cason, and the aria Una Voce Poca Fa from Barber of Seville, by Miss Hathway.

Miss Pinkerton and Johnson will present songs from Puccini's opera, La Boheme, and Miss Cason will sing Chanson des Bijoux from Gounod's Faust. The final program number is a solo by Miss Hathaway, Black Roses, by Sibelius.

Holiday foods sampled by club in tasting bee

A tasting bee of Christmas confections was held for Sweet and Fancy Decorating Club at its meeting Friday morning in Community Centary. Each member brought a special holiday food to be sampled.

Popcorn balls, peanut brittle, cherry-nut cake, apricot petit fours, tarts and fudge were among the cakes and candies displayed. Recipes were swapped to complete the coffee hour.

Lunch, shower given

Jan West, whose marriage to Jim Bob Perrin is planned December 22, was feted Saturday afternoon at a luncheon and lingerie shower in Hereford Country Club. Mrs. Wayne Thomas and Mrs. Bill Waldrep hosted the courtesy.

Thirty close friends of the honoree and her mother, Mrs. Samie West, lunched at individual tables covered with red linen cloths and centered with red carnations and holly arrangements.

Corsages similar to the table arrangements were presented the honoree and her mother, her fiance's mother, Mrs. Jim Perrin, Mrs. Lewis West and Mrs. Bob Thomas of Post, grandmothers of the bride-to-be, and Mrs. Nina Collins, grandmother of the prospective bridegroom.

More than 2.6 billion dollars of fire and lightening damage occurred on our nation's farms from 1954 to 1968.

Letter to the editor

Dear Editor:

Success is something all desire and a lot of people achieve it.

These are some suggestions that might help more folk, especially our young people to attain it.

THE ALPHABET OF SUCCESS

Attend carefully to details.
Be prompt in all things.
Consider well, then decide positively.
Dare to do right—fear to do wrong.
Endure trials patiently.
Fight life's battles bravely.
Go not into the society of the vicious.
Hold your integrity sacred.
Injure not another's reputation.
Join hands only with the virtuous.
Keep your mind free from evil thoughts.
Lie not for any consideration.
Make few special acquaintances.
Never try to appear what you are not.
Observe good manners.
Pay your debts promptly.
Question not the verity of a friend.
Respect the desires of your parents.
Sacrifice money rather than principle.
Touch not, taste not, handle not intoxicating drink.
Use your leisure for improvement.
Venture not upon the threshhold of wrong.
Watch carefully over your passions.
X-tend to everyone a kindly greeting.
Yearn for a home with God when this life is o'er.
Zealously labor for the right, and success is certain

Highlights and sidelights from your state capital

BY BILL BOYKIN

AUSTIN, Tex. — Insurance bounced back into the news on three fronts here last week.

State Board of Insurance Chairman Larry Teaver promised, after a public hearing, to review all aspects of the new catastrophe pool for windstorm coverage in high risk coastal areas.

Agents and property owners complained of price gouging and of companies' allegedly unloading on the pool properties which should be insured at standard rates. Companies denied the charges.

Board also took under consideration an Allstate Insurance Company proposal to cut auto coverage rates up to 20 per cent for new-model cars equipped with shock-absorbing bumpers.

All 1973 and later cars must have bumpers which can withstand a five miles an hour front-end crash and a two and a half miles per hour rear-end wallop without damage.

Allstate proposed to allow discounts to become effective with 1972 model cars equipped at owner's expense with the tested shock-absorbing bumpers.

Initial reduction would be 10 per cent in premiums for the five mph front, two and a half mph rear safety protection. The cut would reach 20 percent for cars which can be crashed at five mph into a test barrier, front and rear, with no damage to the vehicle.

Board members heard support and opposition for proposed new rules to curb arbitraty cancellations and non-renewals on property and casualty insurance. Under the regulations, auto insurance in effect 60 days could be cancelled only for failure to pay premiums or where driver's licenses have been suspended or revoked. Comppanies could cancel coverage at annual expiration dates by giving 30 days written notice.

Teaver advised a rule prohibiting cancellations for "age alone."

COURTS SPEAK—Texas Supreme Court ordered Cooke County district court trial of a teenager's suit against his father for alleged negligence on the job which led to a serious permanent injury.

Case was the first in which the state's top court had considered whether parents should be immune to actions brought by their children due to events outside the normal family relationship.

In two other cases, the Supreme Court sent applications for savings and loan association branches—in Hallettsville and Bay City—back to Commissioner W. Sale Lewis for further proceedings. Lewis had approved the applications, but had not filed a required concise statement of underlying facts supporting his finding, court opinions concluded.

AG OPINIONS—Laws prohibiting dumping of refuse within 300 yards of public highways and anti-dumping statutes pertaining to public and private properties and public waters are both valid and can be harmonized, Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin held.

In other recent opinions, Martin concluded:

*Flight schools are subject to new Texas Proprietary School Act.

*Texas Water Rights Commission can test any claim of a right to use water under water code provisions by the legal requirement of past beneficial use of water without a formal adjudication of all claims on the stream.

*Legislators are entitled to 16 cents per highway mile for use of personally-owned airplanes on official business trips.

*Authority exists for establishing a central services account for Texas Tech University and Texas Tech University School of Medicine.

*Procedure for assessing the Harris County domed stadium for taxation is unchanged by legislation passed this year. Taxable leasehold estates on exempt property are to be valued at the price they would bring at voluntary sale for cash based on value of comparable improvements on non-exempt property.

*A hydrologist employed by the Rio Grande Compact Commissioner can be paid $11,616 a year, although the commissioner himself is limited by law to $6,000.

LAND BIDS ACCEPTED—Bonus bids of more than $1.7 million on oil and gas leases were accepted by the School Land Board for the permanent school fund.

Seventy-six bids covered 39,843 acres of state-owned lands and averaged $44.77 an acre.

Meanwhile, Land Commissioner Robert Armstrong said revised rules and regulations for oil drilling pollution control in coastal waters will require all oil spills or other mishaps to be reported to the land office within 24 hours of discovery. Written notification will be required of all operations on state leases.

APPOINTMENTS ANNOUNCED—Charles E. Wright Sr. of Austin, an AFL-CIO local official, was named by Gov. Preston Smith to the board of regents of Texas State Technical Institute.

Smith also announced these appointments:

American Revolution Bicentennial Commission—Mrs. H.K. Allen of Temple.

State Commission for the Deaf—Landy W. Hillis Sr. of Robstown, Dr. Jack N. Walker of Seguin, Dr. Audrey W. Kelton of Port Lavaca, Mrs. Shirley Ann Pacetti of Houston, Ralph H. White of Austin, and Louis B. Orrill Sr. of Dallas.

Texas State Board of Public Accountancy.— Robert J. Hibbetts of Amarillo and Angus H. Cockrell Jr. of San Antonio. Lloyd J. Weaver of Fort Worth was reappointed.

Battleship Texas Commission —Frank E. Tritico of Katy and (reappointments) C. H. Taylor of Houston and Mrs. Margaret Ezzell of Port Neches.

Texas Commission on the Arts and Humanities—Mrs. S. Allen Guiberson of Dallas, the Reverend George S. Heyer Jr. of Austin, Edward R. Hudson Jr. of Fort Worth, Dr. Lorrin G. Kennamer of Austin, Mrs. Roy Riddel Jr. of Houston and Mrs. John M. Wallace of Galveston.

PARTY RULES COMPLY—New state Democratic party rules on delegate selection comply with national and statutory requirements, Texas National Committee woman Mrs. Carrin Patman of Ganado reported.

The rules for selection of convention delegations will soon go to the State Democratic Executive Committee for consideration. SDEC Chairman Roy Orr indicated a meeting will be held in mid-January to act on them following a public hearing.

12,000 GET RAISES—Retroactive pay raises have been cleared for 12,000 (of 63,000) state employees who get $2 or less an hour.

Raises were approved for the low-pay workers back to September 1 in line with a federal Pay Board definition of "severe inequity" permitting retroactivity for those paid less than the minimum wage before and after the August freeze.

CONROE GETS GRANT—The city of Conroe got the first state matching grant—of $443,000—for construction of wastewater treatment facilities on the west fork of San Jacinto River.

The city's $1.77 million plant was started November 8, with an estimated completion date set for August, 1972. Federal aid will finance 55 per cent of construction and the state 25 per cent on a loan basis. State grants were made possible by passage of a state constitutional amendment setting up a bond fund last May.

SCHOOL SITE SELECTED—A 200-acre site in south Tarrant County has been accepted for a new state school for the mentally retarded.

Selection follows recommendations of a 1966 study which also advises considering residential-need factors for the mentally retarded in the Rio Grande Valley, El Paso and Northeast Texas. Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation officials said a solution is underway for the Rio Grande Valley's needs, and a plan is developing for El Paso.

Selves, others get club gifts

Gifts to be sent to Girlstown for the Christmas party next Sunday in that girls' residence home at Whiteface, were brought by members of Garden Beautiful Club to their Christmas tea Friday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Don Robinson.

Also, an exchange of gifts was held in a matching numbers game.

A reading, Thoughts of Christmas, was presented by Mrs. G. S. Solomon.

Mrs. Tom Carter told, informally, of her recent trip to the Holy Land, where she visited places associated with the First Christmas - the inn and manger at Bethlehem traditionally as signed as the birthplace of Christ.

Holiday decor in blue, green and white throughout the Robinson home made an appropriate setting for the party. The table was covered with felt cloth made by the hostess, and centered with pine cones and reindeer figurines.

Coffee and cake were served to Mmes. Charles Hood, Charlie Noland, Deward Roberson, Ray Cowsert, Bill Weatherly, Carter and Solomon.

Twins Ken and Kirt Donaldson of Novato, Calif., are wrestlers and cheerleaders. Both are juniors at the Air Force Academy.

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: A NEW DAY DAWNS AND TWO INNOCENT YOUNG GIRLS AWAKE, THEIR FACES AGLOW WITH ANTICIPATION. FOR TODAY THEY PLAN EXQUISITE TORTURES FOR THEIR PRISONER....

.... ZANEDON, A PETULANT YOUTH WHO DEMANDED THEY FIND A HIDING PLACE AND AID HIM IN AVOIDING AN UNWANTED MARRIAGE.

A NIGHT'S SLEEP IN THE STABLE HAS NOT IMPROVED HIS TEMPER. HE DEMANDS A VALET, BETTER ROOMS, "AS BEFITS ONE OF MY NOBLE BIRTH."

"IT MUST BE NICE TO BE OF NOBLE BIRTH," MOURNS KAREN, "OUR MOTHER WORKS FOR THE GOVERNMENT OF THE MISTY ISLES."
"AND OUR FATHER HAS A JOB, TOO," ADDS VALETA, "HE WORKS FOR A MAN NAMED ARTHUR AND IS PAID MOSTLY IN SCARS."

TO ADD FURTHER COMPLICATIONS, THE SHIP BEARING THE BRIDE-TO-BE ARRIVES AND THE PARENTS ARE NOT PLEASED TO FIND THEIR DAUGHTER HAS BEEN JILTED.
VALETA IS DELIGHTED: "MAYBE WE WILL START A LITTLE WAR AND I WILL BE A SORT OF HELEN OF TROY!"
"WITH A FACE THAT WILL LAUNCH A THOUSAND QUIPS!" ANSWERS KAREN.

NEWS OF THE TROUBLE REACHES THE PALACE. EACH PARTY HAS AN ARMED SHIP IN THE HARBOR AND ANGER IS MOUNTING. ALETA CALLS UPON HER TROUBLESHOOTER, AMIENS, TUTOR TO THE CHILDREN, HISTORIAN, PHILOSOPHER AND, AT TIMES, COURT JESTER.

AS THE PARENTS OF THE JILTED GIRL ARE THE INJURED PARTY, AMIENS GOES FIRST TO THEIR SHIP, HOPING HE WILL NOT HAVE TO TALK TO A SNIVELING, TEAR-STAINED, ABANDONED FIANCÉE.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

When I had my last birthday party, I didn't have a chance to buy invitations . . . so I made my own.

I took some typing paper and cut it into different sizes and folded each one in half. Then I found some cute little pictures in magazines and in the comics to put on the cover and inside left-hand page.

Opposite the inside picture, I put the time, date, where the party was to be, and who it was for.

It's real cute and it does not cost anything except a little time and patience.

Janet
Age 12

Janet, you deserve a gold star. "Aunt" Heloise

ROCKABYE BABY

DEAR HELOISE:

I am just one of your many young fans. Being a member of the clan of Heloise lovers, I thought I would share this nifty idea with you.

My sister-in-law is going to have a baby and I have a great little decoration for the baby gift.

You take half of a walnut shell (to act as a cradle) and clean it out. Then put in a little cotton to act as a mattress, purchase a package of tiny baby dolls, glue the cotton to the shell, and the doll to the cotton. You can then make a blanket (a piece of leftover material) and just glue the decoration to the gift.

I'm sure the expectant mother will enjoy this better than a ribboned-up package.

A Heloise Lover

You're a luv, you know it? And I think that's a real nifty idea. Thanks a heap, pet. Heloise

LETTER OF THOUGHT

DEAR HELOISE:

Believe it or not: Your arms outstretched to the sides will measure your height.

This won't vary over a half inch either way.

G. G.

CUCUMBER CUTIE

DEAR HELOISE:

My husband brought home a half bushel of very small cucumbers for me to pickle.

I made myself comfortable at the kitchen sink and began the chore of cleaning those cukes with a vegetable brush.

My husband took one look at me and at the cucumbers, then picked up the basket and emptied the cukes in our automatic washing machine and washed them through a full cycle (naturally no suds!). They came out beautifully clean.

If they are extra sandy, run them through again.

A real time saver!

Mrs. Ernest Nijem

KEEP IN TRIM

DEAR HELOISE:

We hate to see the beautiful lace wear out on our slips and nighties. I have made mine last almost twice as long by sewing the same color of nylon net over the lace.

No need to try to cut a pattern of the design, just lay a strip of net over the lace. With a machine, follow the design just inside the edge, then trim close to the stitching.

The net takes the strain off the delicate lace but does not cover up or detract from the beauty of the lace.

A Devoted Reader

If you have a hint, problem or suggestion you'd like to share . . . write to Heloise today in care of this newspaper. 12-12

TV MAKE-BELIEVE

DEAR HELOISE:

To provide hours of entertainment for your child, take two cardboard rolls (from foil or wax paper) and between these two rolls tape or glue about six feet of paper. I used the wrong side of freezer wrap, but white shelf paper is good, too. Make sure to leave about two inches of cardboard roll at the top.

Now take a cardboard box slightly smaller than the rolls, turn it upside down and cut out a hole near each end of the bottom (to allow the tops of the cylinders to come through). Then cut a square out of one side.

You now have a "TV" set for your child. He makes his own shows by drawing figures, etc., on the "screen" or paper, and to make the picture move he has only to twist the roll around at the top.

And his shows can be changed by inserting a new screen. Mrs. H. M. G.

TAKE A STROLL!

DEAR HELOISE:

Our librarian thought I should write you about what I discovered to be a good idea when walking with a stroller that has no basket on it.

I place my library books in a clothespin bag that has a hook which can be fastened to the side of the cart where baby can't grab and play with the books.

I know it's hard to keep your eyes on your youngsters — especially if you have one in the stroller and another or more walking. This idea eliminates torn pages, and the bag could also be used for a small supply of groceries.

Sally Fiske

THE SHORT OF IT

DEAR HELOISE:

My son is growing so fast that his long-sleeved knit jerseys are too small for him the following winter.

So, come spring, I cut the knit cuff off the long sleeves, cut the sleeve off and sew the cuff back on and he has short-sleeved jerseys that will last him through the summer.

Mrs. R. J. Quinlan

PICNIC PICK-UP

DEAR HELOISE:

The next time you go on a cook-out, take along an old twin-sized contour sheet to put over the outdoor picnic table.

It says neat and the wind won't bother it.

Bobi Berkowitz

SOME COAXING!

DEAR HELOISE:

To remove a bee from your home, coax it onto any flat surface then place a tumbler over it. Tear off a piece of newspaper or grab whatever paper you can find. Lift the tumbler just a bit and slide the paper underneath it.

You now have the culprit a prisoner. Be sure to turn the edges of the paper up on the sides of the tumbler and keep the paper tight around the tumbler.

Now walk leisurely to the door and go out, closing the door behind you. Then remove the paper and let the insect fly away.

A one-day workshop seminar for young adults with diabetes mellitus will be held Dec. 18 and 19 at Holiday Inn West in Amarillo.

The seminar is being sponsored by the local Lions Clubs and other Lions Clubs in District 2-T 1.

Enrollment is limited to diabetics between the ages of 17 and 25 with the spouse or fiancee invited to attend. The number of participants is limited and prior registration is essential.

Anyone who is interested can contact any Hereford physician. However, registration should be done as soon as possible.

A distinguished panel of diabetic specialists will discuss such things as acceptable goals for the diabetic, development of resiliency of diabetic life, the handling of emergencies, diets and meal planning, sexuality in diabetes, and other subjects.

The seminar will begin at 9 a.m. Dec. 18 and run as long into the night as necessary. On Sunday, the morning program will begin whenever the participants decide.

Westway club's party features lunch, story

The menu featured turkey and other traditional Christmas fare when Westway Home Demonstration Club had its annual December lunch in Mrs. T.B. Thomas' home Thursday.

All the house was decorated with Christmas color, with a tree as the focal point. The hostess prepared the turkey for lunch and each member present added a dish to the meal.

Gifts were exchanged and an hour spent in conversation. Mrs. J.C. Morrison told the Nativity story from the New Testament.

Places were laid for Mmes. Bess Werner, George Turrentine, Joe Artho, Paul Rudd, D. W. Dieter, Merlin Weber, Andy Kershen, Albert Lamm and Morrison.

Study aimed at finding influences on football

Winning may be the "only thing," as the late Coach Vince Lombardi once said, but it is only one factor in filling football stadiums, a sociological study of student attendance at games contends.

The study was done through questionnaires completed by 400 students enrolled in sociology classes at West Texas State University last spring.

Entitled "The World of the WTSU Athlete: A Sociological Analysis," the research project was carried out by Dr. Robert D. Finney, assistant professor of sociology who now is working on a Master's Degree in social work at Washington University in St. Louis.

Several soical factors influence spectator attendance at West Texas State football games, he says.

The research findings, which were expressed in sociological statistical relationships, were of a rather esoteric nature but several trends were discernible.

Although personal interest in the game rated high in determining spectator attendance, the presence of high-interest students with low attendance and low-interest students with high attendance suggested intervening factors affected attendance, Dr. Finney says.

The sociologist adds that a correlation was found between a father's interest and attendance and his son's or daughter's interest in football.

A son's interest in the game did not appear significantly related to the father's interest, he says. However, a girl's interest in football did appear related to her father's interest.

The lack of correlation between father and son interest in the game was attributed to what Dr. Finney calls the "generational experience and sons declaring independence from paternal attitudes and values."

Among factors influencing personal interest in football, neither belonging to a campus organization nor encouragement to attend games by faculty members appeared to be significant in governing attendance.

However, an influential factor on attendance was having a steady boyfriend or girlfriend interest in football or "having friends on the team."

Dr. Finney recommends "encouraging team members to get acquainted with other sutdents" and assigning athletes to dormitories with non-athletic students rather than having athletic dorms.

West Texas State returned to the athletic dorm system this fall after more than a decade of having athletes living in the various residence halls.

The study contends that if students "develop an identification with a player or players, there will be a greater chance for their attending games."

LAFF-A-DAY

"NOW what has that idiot invented?"

Make phone calls early, avoid rush

Even with Christmas only a few days away, one company in town still hasn't been affected by the season's fast pace - the telephone company.

"The Christmas rush hasn't bothered us yet," said Mike Patrick, Southwestern Bell manager here. "We know it's coming, though. Our Christmas rush is only one day, Christmas Day but it's our busiest day of the year."

Patrick said the telephone c pany will add extra long distan circuits and will have every available operator on duty Christmas Day cut down on calling d lays.

"Despite our best efforts, however, the avalanche of Christmas greetings by long distance, sometimes stacks up calls at key swithching centers around the nation," Patrick said

He advised callers not to wait until Christmas afternoon or evening to call. "If people dial their calls direct Christmas Day there's less chance of delay--and the low rates will be in effect," he said.

The low evening rates will apply Christmas Day on calls dialed direct to cities within or outside of Texas. The same rates will be in effect all day New Year's Day.

"Call early and avoid the rush," Patrick said.

Shower honors Miss Sebastian

A bride-to-be who plans a Christmas week wedding, Susie Sebastian, was complimented with a shower in the home of Mollie Jo Schofield, with Mrs. Roger Ruland, Mrs. M.J. Koelzer, Violet Noon and Debbie McDonald as other hostesses.

Miss Sebastian's marriage to Wayne Poarch is tc be solemnized Dec. 22.

Guests at the evening party were served cookies, coffee and punch from a table brightened with gold Christmas decorations. The hostesses served in turn at the refreshment table and in receiving and registering callers.

Gift packages were presented to the honoree and opened at the informal party.

Guests included her mother, Mrs. Viola Bowman, and Poarch's mother, Mrs. Earl Poarch.

Book reviewed at class party

Review of Dale Evans' book, Christmas Is Always, was the highlight of a program for Avenue Baptist Victory Class Thursday evening, when Mrs. Billy Wall was hostess in her home.

Mrs. G. W. Duncan gave the book review and directed games in the holiday spirit, after a prayer by Mrs. Johnny Townsend, class teacher.

Gifts were exchanged from a tall white-flocked tree, set near a life-sized Santa figure in a room with numerous holiday touches.

Mrs. Clois Kemp was welcomed as a guest. Other members present were Mmes. Louis Hagar, Herman Hendrix, C.E. Coleman and Carlyle Sargent.

Holly hybrids now available worldwide

Betaseed, Inc. of Minneapolis and Holly Sugar Corporation of Colorado Springs announced recently that they have reached an agreement which gives Betaseed marketing rights to Holly sugarbeet hybrids worldwide except to Holly's own contract growers.

This marks the first time that a domestic beet sugar processor has made its seed commercially available on a worldwide basis to anyone other than its own growers.

Betaseed, Inc., is an affiliate company of Northrup, King and Co., Minneapolis.

Holly is an independent provessor of sugarbeets with extensive seed breeding and research departments.

According to the joint announcement, the seed breeding and research departments of the two companies will continue to operate separately.

However, the new varieties being developed by either Holly or Betaseed reserach will b made available to Betaseed's potntial customers as well as to Holly's growers.

"We have varieties adapted to the major sugarbeet areas of North America, and we feel some of these outstanding varieties will perform equally well in other parts of the world," says Glen W. Yeager, Holly's vice president-agriculture.

These Holly varieties with high tonnage and sugar potential also carry resistance to the major sugarbeet diseases—Cercospora Leaf Spot, Curly Top and Virus Yellows — prevalent throughout much of the United States sugarbeet producing area.

While the new agreement immediately transforms Betaseed into a worldwide sugarbeet seed company, Duane Melling, Betaseed business manager, said that initially he will be concentrating on the North American markt.

The two companies will be working together on a broad varietal testing program to evaluate performance in all beet growing areas. This will provide the necessary performance data of interest to both processors and sugarbeet growers.

Beet sugar processors or growers interested in obtaining additional information may contact Betaseed, Inc., P.O. Box 959 Minneapolis, Minn. 55440.
