NUMBER 254

TEXAS

By WILL H. MAYES.

WH Y TEXAS TEXTILE MILLS.—J. W. Carpenter, chairman of the Texas Textile Mill commission, recently appointed by Governor Moody, enumerates a number of reasons why textile mills should be built in Texas to handle the Texas cotton, wool and mohair production. Among these reasons are: This state leads in production of the raw products; the mills operating here have all succeeded; the climate assures favorable working conditions, consistent good health and relatively low cost of living; wages are lower than in New England; labor is of high character, is plentiful, mostly American-born, and is not easily disturbed by professional agitators; consuming centers are moving toward the middle west and are closer to Texas than to the Atlantic coast factories; trade with Mexico, Central South America is increasing; and Texas provides easy shipping access to all foreign markets.

Could a clearer, more concise statement be made as an argument for textile manufacturing in Texas? It might be well to clip that paragraph and paste it away where it will be readily available in the coming campaign for textile mills, for sure as fate such campaigns are going to be conducted soon in every progressive Texas town.

LAND RECLAMATION PLAN.—A bill now before a congressional committee proposes the establishment in several Southern states, including Texas, of organized rural communities to demonstrate methods of reclamation of swamp, cut-over, neglected, abandoned or poorly farmed land. The government would purchase the land in each of the states of sufficient area to create at least 200 farms for the demonstration of the reclamation and sold to actual settlers and cultivators with payments over a long period, and the land would be bought into the highest state of cultivation under the direction of experts.

One Louisiana land owner who has 60,000 acres has offered to donate a third of it believing that the remainder would be increased in value enough to justify the donation. While the idea is somewhat Utopian, there appears to be wonderful possibilities in it.

TEXAS GATEWAY STATION.—Texarkana has always been an important gateway to Texas, and proud Texans have long had cause to be ashamed of the railway gate there. In truth it has always been a disgraceful run-down looking entrance for so grand a domain as Texas. Passengers alighting there have been prone to look about and remark, "So, this is Texas," with a feeling that if it is, Texas isn't much. Conditions are to be changed and Texarkana is to have a station to cost $1,500,000, through which travelers from the North will enter Texas.

This is a good place to say something that every Texan who passes through Fort Worth, has often thought. If Fort Worth is to continue its claim to being the place "Where the West Begins," that city should be rid of its dingy, unsanitary old railway depots and erect a union station in keeping with the city itself and the progressive section of Texas that city claims to represent.

TRUCK SHIPMENTS INCREASE.—Figures secured from the railroads show that shipments of fruits and vegetables out of the lower Rio Grande valley this season have reached a total of 4,458 cars, which is an increase of about 25 per cent over last season's shipments to this date and which sets a high record for that section.

The Valley, instead of suffering from frosts this season to any great extent, has profited by the freeze in other parts of the south and is shipping large quantities of cabbage plants to Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi and other states to replace plants killed by frosts.

TEXAS "COMING OUT PARTY."—Speaking to Houstonians and through them to all Texas, Jesse H. Jones, whose patriotic liberality was so largely responsible for the Democratic National convention coming to Texas, says that "the state must put on its best bib and tucker and all join in making it a great convention, for it will really be the coming out of the south."

There is only a little more than four months for Texas to get its best dress ready for the occasion, and a dress that will just cover Houston and possibly Galveston, will not do at all, as our visitors are going to see pretty much all of Texas while here. Texas must be in gala attire in June, and in June Texas can look its sweetest, if only it will.

300-BARREL OIL WELL IN

PAYMENT DEAD BANDIT MONEY BEING HELDUP

PORT WORTH, Feb. 6.—Rebels totalling $15,000 for dead Texas bandits remain unpaid.

Whether these will ever be paid is problematical, for before the Texas bankers will pay the rewards for dead bank robbers they must be furnished conclusive evidence that the payee held the gun and fired the shot that ended the career of the robber. The unpaid rewards are held up because of disputes and unproven evidence that the claimants actually ended the lives of the bandits in question, according to W. M. Massie, president of the Texas Bankers' association.

It is this factor that may cause the withdrawal of the bankers' reward in the future, and not any public sentiment against the "sordid head price," Texas bankers point out. The three unpaid rewards are for alleged bank bandits, one killed at Cisco in the raid on the First National bank of Cisco and for two slain in the attempted robbery of the State bank of Rankin.

In the Cisco bandit killing there are three claimants to the reward, the widows of Chief of Police G. E. Bedford and Police Officer G. W. Carmichael and Mrs. B. P. Blasingame. The widows claim that their husbands fired the fatal shots while Mrs. Blasingame claims a part of the reward because of the fact that she escaped from the bank while it was being robbed and warned the police.

The Rankin reward is being contested by several, all of whom claim they fired the fatal shots.

Massie said that the Texas Bankers' association was ready to pay the rewards on the day of the killings, but his organization, to protect itself against lawsuits must be sure to whom the rewards are due.

Ousley to Plead For Less Cotton

CORPUS CHRISTI, Feb. 6.—Clarence Ousley of Dallas, president of the Safe Farming association, will speak at Robstown, Nueces county, Feb. 9, it is announced.

Reduction of cotton acreage will be the principal topic of the meeting. The governor's conference to be held at Jackson, Miss., Feb. 20, will be to let to affect plans of the South Texas cotton farmer, it is stated.

president of the Brown County Fair association, and pastor of the First Christian church of Brownwood. The "Heart of Texas" Fair association is a regional organization of all the fair associations of that part of Texas, the purpose being to supervise all fairs in the district. There is no reason why Texas fairs and Texas churches may not work harmoniously together, or why the duties of a minister and a fair president should conflict. Rev. Johnson is in position to demonstrate the truth of this statement.

S. M. U. GLEE CLUB

Opera Esther Tonight; Cast Has 60 People

A great number was turned away from the High school auditorium last evening before the curtain was drawn for the first act of the musical drama, "Ruth," presented by the Southern Methodist University Glee club. The club, with a personnel of sixty people, arrived from Breckenridge in two special busses Sunday afternoon. Promptly at 7:30 the orchestra opened the program, followed by a prayer led by Rev. P. T. Stanford, Prof. J. Abner Sage, head of the vocal department of S. M. U., and director of the club was introduced. The four acts of "Ruth" were enacted with a promptness seldom seen in amateur organizations. There were no long waits between acts and the movement was rapid.

The same cast presents its elaborate production, the biblical opera, "Esther," this evening at 8 o'clock and solo numbers by Prof. Sage will fill in the short periods between acts. The time of the story is about 500 B. C. The place is supposed to have been the Persian palace at Shushan during the Act one, scene one, street in front of the king's palace, with Haman, his friends and Mordecai. Scene two, the court of the king. No. 1 Ward, 3 Miles Northeast Of Cisco, Hits Pay Sunday Night; May Stimulate Local Oil Activity

One Dead; Another Dying Result of Explosion

Home Should Come I

The Chestnut & Smith No. 1 Ward well, three miles northeast of Cisco, came in Sunday night as a 300 barrel producer at 3902 feet. Reports are that the production is found in the Ranger sand, though no direct communication could be had with the operators. The oil is high gravity, though not yet graded.

This is the nearest production to Cisco yet found. It is located just east of Williamson dam, and about one-half mile west of the Gilman well, which has been producing a large volume of gas for several years. In fact the Gilman well has been classed as a gasoline producer, as many replenished their fuel tanks from the drip tanks at this well for some time after it was brought in. The Lone Star Gas company has been taking gas from the Gilman well for quite a while.

The No. 1 Ward was spudded in some time last fall, and has been expected to come in for several days. This production demonstrates what many have long maintained, that a good pool would some day be found in the territory north and northeast of Cisco. There are several good gassers within that vicinity—the Walter Ray well, which has been producing for some time, southeast of this locality, and there is the C. M. McClelland well, drilled in about two years ago, which is said to be a good gasser. Old wells drilled in that section several years ago indicated that oil in paying volume existed, and a good well would be brought in there some day.

The bringing in of this well will doubtless stimulate activity in that section as it has long been considered good oil territory. Other locations may be made at an early date it was intimated by oil men in touch with the situation.

Avey Roudneff, the Russian who was killed by a Texas & Pacific freight train near Dathan Saturday, spent last Thursday in Phoenix, Arizona, according to a message from that city to Justice J. H. McDonald this morning. Roudneff, Dathan people said today, came to that place Saturday from the west in a big automobile, bearing a California number, with three other men. When they stopped at Dathan they seemed to be quarreling about something, and Roudneff is said to have gotten out of the car and walked away from the others. Seating himself on the station platform he waited until the car pulled out, and then disappeared down the track in the direction from which he came. It is reported. The men in the car waited for him to rejoin them, but when he made no effort to do so, they drove away after telling some one at Dathan to tell Roudneff that they would leave his overcoat and hand bag at the Red Ball station at Dallas. When Roudneff disappeared down the track it was the last seen of him until he was run down and killed by the east bound freight train. Justice McDonald was told.

No message had been received at 2 o'clock from the bank at Aberdeen, Washington, to which a telegram was sent Saturday, Justice McDonald told the News.

BUS HEARING BEGAN AT SWEETWATER TODAY.—SWEETWATER, Feb. 6.—Mark Marshall, supervisor of the state railroad commission's motor bus division, reopened the bus hearing today in Sweetwater, to "clean up" the docket of motor bus operation and sales permits affecting lines in this section. One of the petitions to be considered is by the West Texas Coaches for a permanent permit to make a through run from Fort Worth to El Paso by closing the only gap in the route, between Midland and Pecos. A local bus line now runs between these two points and the West Texas Coaches proposes to make an arrangement with it to divide revenues from passengers destined to points outside the local run to points within it, and vice versa. Some of the other cases were left over from the recent Cisco bus hearing.

FORT WORTH IS NINTH IN POSTAL INCREASE.—FORT WORTH, Feb. 6.—Fort Worth ranked third with 9.44 per cent increase in postal receipts for January, the postoffice department announced today. Memphis was first, and Newark was second.

OLSON WANTS NEWS TO KEEP POSTED.—A. J. Olson, a well known citizen and builder in Cisco, has ordered The Daily News sent to him at Tulsa, saying that he wants to keep abreast of the times and what is going on in Cisco and Eastland county. There is no better way in which the gentleman can do this than by reading the News daily. Mr. Olson has been on the Plains for several months, where he is engaged in the construction of church buildings. He has just finished a beautiful and spacious church for the Presbyterians of Tulsa, and is now at work on a $40,000 structure for the Methodists. He stated that he had hoped to return home immediately after the finishing of the Presbyterian church, but that the Methodist building was offered him, and he is remaining in Tulsa to finish it. The News will go to him regularly, and it is certain he will enjoy it.

NO MUNITIONS TO BELIGERENTS

The house committee on foreign affairs has recommended the passage of Congressman Theodore Burton's arms export resolution. It is already a principle of international law that a neutral government is forbidden to furnish implements of warfare to a belligerent, though private citizens may do so. The Burton resolution goes much further than this, since it would forbid any exportation of munitions of war to any belligerent. The manufacture of munitions has long ranked high among American industries, and warring foreign countries naturally expect to make large purchases of such materials here. Export prohibition ought to give pause to any nation likely to embark lightly upon warfare. In its unanimously favorable report, the foreign affairs committee said:

"As the United States has taken a leading part in the establishment of beneficial principles of neutrality and has adopted regulations tending to promote peace, it is regarded as of the greatest importance that this resolution should pass.

"It will be a declaration on the part of the United States that we do not desire to participate in the profits of implements of destruction.

REALISM AND

David Belasco says that the drama is going on what form of expression will Zeigfeld says that curves are speaks of curves he does not highways. He is speaking most wanted in chorus girls straight lines and angles, he knows what he's talking about these two prophecies would joining by some people and others. Such is the diversity of human taste. The important fact, however, is not any particular style in any branch of nature or art at any particular time, but the inevitableness of change. Fundamental things remain pretty much the same. The point of view toward them changes with almost pendulum-like regularity. Some things seem to speed up the swing of the pendulum a bit and others to slow it down. The World War is pretty generally blamed for hastening and intensifying the present—and now waning—period of realism. This constant changing may annoy the deplorers—although they sometimes seem to enjoy their pessimism. Yet, on the whole, it is a great boon to the human race. It affords opportunity for trying out all theories and opinions and gratifying widely different tastes, and it certainly provides an interesting variety to life.

YACHTING CLOTHES NEXT

There was a time when innocent Americans, pleased at the development of sport clothes, thought these comfortable styles had come about merely through native love of outdoor activities. In their simplicity they supposed the sports costume was free from fashion dictations. The truth is oh so different! M. Worth, one of the fashion dictators of Paris, reveals our helplessness when he announces that the golf influence in sports costumes has now run its course. This year yachting will be the dominant influence. Outing clothes will go back to blue and white for their color inspiration, and they will be decorated with sailor collars and symbols of nautical life. Things may even go so far as epaulettes, though the thought is well-nigh unbearable. But maybe the situation isn't so bad. Perhaps it is only prejudice on our part that makes the golfer's plus fours and sweater appear more suitable to all sports than the yachtsman's trim outfit.

TWO GREAT GENIUSES

A Shakespearean scholar in Boston expressed doubt that William Shakespeare wrote the plays attributed to him. Whereupon a Shakespearean scholar in another city says: "I cannot prove that William Shakespeare of Stratford wrote those plays—if it needed any proof—but I can prove historically that Francis Bacon did not." It seems a rather late day to bring up the Baconian theory again. Surely anyone of ordinary intelligence who reads a volume or two of Bacon's writings and a few of Shakespeare's plays, observing the literary characteristics and mental equipment of the authors, may realize to his own satisfaction that the philosopher could not have written the poet's works, nor the poet the philosopher's. The "cipher" proofs may be thrown away as so much nonsense. Critics have shown that such cryptic "evidence" of Bacon's authorship as has been read into the First Folio edition of the Shakespearean plays could be read into any other works. Perhaps the best commentary, however, is that of Will Durant in his "Story of Philosophy." "To assign to so overworked a man as Bacon," he says, "whose reconstruction of philosophy had to be crowded into the crevices of a harassed and burdened political career, the vast and complicated creations of Shakespeare, is to waste the time of students with the parlor controversies of idle theorists. Shakespeare lacks just that which distinguishes the lordly chancellor—erudition and philosophy. Shakespeare has an impressive smattering of many sciences, and a mastery of none; in all of them he speaks with the eloquence of an amateur. He is forever making mistakes which the learned Bacon could not possibly have made, as when his Hector quotes Aristotle. He makes countless references to his early life and his matrimonial tribulations. He perpetuates vulgarities, obscenities and puns natural enough in the gentle roisterer, but hardly to be expected of the cold and calm philosopher. Carlyle calls Shakespeare the greatest of intellects; but he was rather the greatest of imaginations, and the keenest eye. He is an inestimable psychologist, but he is not a philosopher; he has no structure of thought unified (as Bacon has) for his own life and for mankind. He is immersed in love and its problems, and thinks of philosophy only when his heart is broken.

THE FUTILE PHRASE

"Meanwhile the police are continuing the search," is a statement we constantly see appended to the accounts of persons being robbed, floored, murdered, or otherwise criminally dealt with.

"Meanwhile the police are continuing the search." And about nine times out of ten that is all that is done. Anyone can search. But not everyone can find.

For some reason or other we have drifted into the belief that about the only necessary qualifications for being a policeman are size, ability to live on $100 a month, and a willingness to take a dangerous job, out of which the next administration may kick him out on short notice.

So when a crime is committed, these well-intentioned men come around and more or less hastily look the ground over, do the best they can, ask the cook which way he went, and the newspaper announces "meanwhile the police are continuing the search."

The way Hickman, the Los Angeles kidnaper and child-murderer, played fast and loose with the police illustrates the point. Two hundred policemen, looking for Hickman, surrounded and swarmed the apartment house where he was living. They met him and talked with him. But their unpracticed eyes failed to discern him. The unmistakable evidence of his guilt was right there in his room. But their untrained faculties failed to perceive it. It was doubtful if Hickman would have been captured at all had he not left a trail of marked bulls, by which tradespeople turned him up.

But we shall have to do more for our police before our police can do more for us. If there is one calling that should be elevated it is that of being a policeman. The business of protecting society from its enemies is one of the most important of businesses. The security of the citizenry depends on the policeman. We must rely on him to save us from the vicious, and to catch and lock up the vicious after they have shown themselves to be vicious.

If any man should be intelligent, trustworthy, expert and appreciated, the policeman should be. He should rank with the medical expert, the legal expert, the financial expert. He should be naturally fitted for his work, and his training should be intensive and extensive—and he should be started in young enough to learn his game, as are men in other professions. The career should offer prospects of good pay, high standing, and glory.

But so long as we fail to realize that any old somebody cannot track down and capture cunning criminals, and so long as conditions are not such that the policeman can and will take as much pride and interest in doing his job as a physician does in saving a life, and a lawyer in winning a case, just so long will our newspaper crime stories continue to carry the futile phrase "Meanwhile the police are continuing the search."

Personal Opinions

By W. H. ALBURN.

THE FLAT EARTH

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion, Ill., has always maintained that the earth is flat. Now he says he will prove it by taking a trip abroad. He's going to "walk around its edges as though it were the rim of a plate."

That's all right with us. We're willing to be shown. And we're just friendly enough to Voliva to suggest a way in which he could produce incontrovertible proof.

Let him hit down on the edge. When he comes to it, and gently ease himself over, and when he's gone into the ether nothingness everybody will be convinced that he was right.

AUXILIARY POWER

The average American workman is now to have mechanical help to the extent of five horsepower. That is a gain of 50 per cent in the last year—so rapidly does power pile up in this country.

It means that every workman is one man and five horses.

But this tells only a small part of the story, the manufacturing part. Consider also the enormous power used by railroads and steamships and electric transportation lines. The power available in 25 million automobiles and trucks, the power used in offices and homes in a hundred ways.

It is said that the average American has at his command day and night the power equivalent of a team of 50 horses. Some driving in this country.

WELL, WHY?

Nicholas Murray Butler, the belligerent president of Columbia university, wants to know why, in our presidential campaigns, we are "so patient with sonorous platitudes," and "why we permit our candidates to be either without opinions or to content themselves with resounding phrases in undying support of the multiplication table and the moral law."

He wants candidates to unfold their views on what Dr. Butler considers the six major political problems of the day, viz: The Volstead act; Cooperation for world peace; Mississippi flood problem; Government economy; Growth of bureaucratic government; Assembly of congress in January after its election, as provided in the pending Norris amendment, instead of waiting a year.

LANDING AT SEA

The big dirigible Los Angeles landed the other day, out in the Atlantic, on the deck of the airplane carrier Saratoga. Airplanes are expected to do that regularly, but it is the first time it has been done by a lighter-than-air craft.

It proves that in fair weather, at least, it is possible for any type of air craft to refuel at sea from such vessels. A commercial craft, equipped with a suitable deck, would serve the purpose as well as a warship.

This may be as important as billion-dollar plans for new naval construction.

COURTEOUS FILMS

One of the things of international moment considered at the Pan-American conference has been American movies. Many of the Latin-American delegates felt that their race had not been treated with enough respect by our film producers. When a Mexican or Chilean or other Latin neighbor has been portrayed in film drama, it has been usually as a bad man. Heroic qualities have been reserved for our own fellow-countrymen.

A resolution presented by the Salvadoran delegation asks to have this evil corrected, and to have Latin-America portrayed more "truly." It is a legitimate request. It would be bad enough if the films were made merely for home consumption, ministering to our self-pride and prejudice. But the movies are made for a world market and exert a powerful international influence for good or ill.

Courtesy in films promotes courtesy among nations. And courtesy in international matters is as good a peacemaker—and as profitable, too—as courtesy in personal matters.

Grand Jury Commends Officers In Report to Judge Davenport; Returns 35 Bills of Indictment

The 91st district court grand jury, in its final report made Friday afternoon to Judge Geo. L. Davenport, took occasion to commend District Clerk W. B. Collie and his deputies, W. H. McDonald and Miss Dorothy Watson and the condition of the records in the office; "Dug" Barton, jailer, on the sanitary condition of the county jail; District Attorney J. Frank Sparks and his assistant, Sterling C. Holloway for the splendid work of that department; Judge Geo. L. Davenport for the courtesies and assistance to the grand jury; and Miss Iva Moors and L. D. Hilger, court reporters, for their assistance.

In connection with the Cisco bank robbery the grand jury especially commended Chief of Police G. E. (Bit) Bedford and Policemen Geo. Carmichael, who lost their lives in efforts to protect the bank, and the peace officers of a number of other counties and towns.

Following is their report in full:

To the Hon. George L. Davenport, Judge of the 91st district court:

We, the grand jury for the December, 1927 term of your court, beg leave to make this as our final report:

We have been in actual session twelve days, and have carefully examined approximately 150 witnesses and returned thirty-five true bills of indictment, thirty-four being felonies. We have thoroughly examined every matter that has been called to our attention and have found bills in every case in which the evidence warranted such action.

We have inspected the county jail and find same in a sanitary condition, and we desire to hereby commend the jailer, Mr. Doug Barton, for the efficient manner in which he handles same under the unusual crowded conditions of the past two months.

We have received a report from Mr. W. B. Collie, district clerk, showing a final statement of his office. Mr. Collie deserves to be highly complimented upon the clerical and financial condition of his office. We find that during the past year something over five thousand dollars has been turned over to the county by the district clerk in excess of all salaries and expenses connected with his said office.

We particularly wish to commend and thank the sheriff and officers from the following counties and cities for their untiring efforts in apprehending and bringing to justice the perpetrators of the Cisco bank robbery, and the murders connected with the same: Stephens county, Young county, Shackelford county, Wichita county, Callahan county, Taylor county, Brown county, Comanche county, Palo Pinto county, Jack county, Jack county, Stonewall county, Jones county, and Eastland county and the cities of Cisco, Ranger, Breckenridge, Graham, Spur and Eastland, and we particularly wish to commend those two good men, Chief of Police G. E. Bedford and Policemen George Carmichael who gave their lives in line of duty in defense of property in Cisco.

We wish further to express our appreciation to Judge George L. Davenport for the courtesies and consideration shown us. We wish also to record a grateful acknowledgment of the efficient services rendered by Mr. L. D. Hilger and Miss Iva Moore, court reporters who were at all times cheerfully ready to lend us their assistance.

In conclusion we wish to thank Mr. J. Frank Sparks, county attorney, and his able assistant, Mr. Sterling Holloway, for their excellent support and assistance during our term.

Having completed our deliberations we ask this honorable court to discharge us from further service.

Respectfully submitted:
E. E. FREYSCHLAG,
Foreman.

PASTOR USED GIFT OF SELF AS SUBJECT

"Gift of Self" was the subject of Rev. Lenox yesterday at the First Christian church. The minister said that a separation from the world was not an end in itself; but was a means to an end. A man was separated from the world that he might be joined to Christ. This resulted in a deep and thorough consecration to Christ. That the separate life made him impervious to the conditions under which he had lived, hence he triumphed over his environment.

The pitiful, spineless plea that a man could not live the Christian life in this day found a stern rebuke in the life of the early church; that in the giving of self to God through Christ they became the salt of the earth; that the fundamental principle in stewardship was the gift of self; Paul gave himself to Christ and preached the gospel in Rome.

Mrs. H. V. House brought the message in a beautiful song, entitled, "One Day." The evening program was in charge of the young people of the church, which left a vision for a larger service. Good audiences were present throughout the day.

Western Films Put Many Stars Into Big Game; An Interesting Glance Into Hollywood Fashion

By CHARLES F. CARTER
International News Service Special Correspondent.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 6.—Seated at luncheon in the Montmartre recently, Virginia Lee Corbin, Carmel Myers and Alberta Vaughn launched a discussion of feminine film celebrities who received their start in western pictures and here are the results of their discussion, as checked on the back of a menu card:

Clara Bow, one of the biggest box office attractions of today, played opposite Tom Mix and his horse, Tony, a few years ago.

Esther Ralston, beautiful blonde, was a star in western features at Universal before she began her career in comedy dramas.

The second screen version of "The Virginian" was an important factor in sending Florence Vidor to stardom in more serious productions.

Doris Hill started her life in pictures with George O'Hara in "The Timid Terror," after she was discovered dancing in a theater prologue in Los Angeles.

Sally Blane, who recently played the feminine lead in a Wallace Beery-Raymond Hatton comedy feature, started not long ago in a Tom Mix picture.

Thelma Todd and Marietta Miller received their screen training in westerns. Thelma played opposite Gary Cooper in "Nevada," and Marietta was featured in "Drums of the Desert."

But Mar. Brian, on the other hand, "backfired" into westerns after being introduced to the public as Wendy in "Peter Pan."

"Which only shows that Mary is the exception to prove that westerns are the first rung of the ladder to motion picture success," concluded Carmel Myers as the luncheon discussion ended.

A glance at the earliest of the new dresses for spring wear in the film colony reveals that scarfs, belts and kerchiefs play colorful and decorative roles.

Jacqueline Logan is wearing, with her plaited skirt sport suit, a wool shantung scarf of blue and red geometrical designs on a white background. It is cut on the bias so the scarf falls in soft draped lines about the throat.

A gay fashion adopted by Leatrice Joy for wear with a white flannel sports dress is the kerchief belt. It is a diagonally folded square of blue and white polka dot silk wrapped about the hips and tied at one side.

With a straight green crepe dress, Vera Reynolds is wearing a belt of heavy silver links, resembling the earlier types of slave bracelets. It is fastened in front with a buckle of four slightly larger links.

Elinor Fair also is wearing a belt of woven silver, flanked at both edges, with tiny silver beads. The buckle is of dull silver.

From the east word comes to Hollywood that Charles Ray, who soared to fame as a film comedian only to suffer bitter financial reverses when he attempted production, has written a play, "Phoenix," and will star in it at the Court theater in New York. Rehearsals are being held in Providence, R. I., with the Broadway opening scheduled for late in February.

For the first time in the history of the screen, black titles will be seen soon on a feature photoplay. Edwin Carewe will launch the novelty in "Romona," Dolores Del Rio's first offering for the United Artists. The director-producer is convinced that black titles on a white background will be welcomed as more restful to the eyes of motion picture audiences.

Did you know that: Ernst Lubitsch's program for physical fitness includes spending two nights a week in a track outfit running slowly over a course of three miles?

Jean Hersholt is said to be the only motion picture star in Hollywood who has never been in New York City?

Re-be Daniels recently told an interviewer she will never marry until she retires from the screen?

Dorothy Dwan studied the pipe organ in Philadelphia, and her early ambition was to be a church organist?

A special soap preparation, designed to remove all dirt but not affect the natural weather-green of the bronze, is to be used. The statue, designed by Frederick August Bartholdi, was unveiled on October 28, 1886.

TOOLS FORCE BACK ENGLISH WORKING MEN

By VICTOR H. POLACHEK, Jr.
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Feb. 6.—The English worker produces one article while the American produces two. England has a total production of only one-fourth as large as American production and she has half the number of workers.

Figures pointed to in a recent number of the British Economic journal, "The Round Table" bring out these astonishing facts, the magazine says. It is rather because he works with inferior machinery.

"A bad carpenter always blames his tools," is a saying handed down from old times. The "Round Table" blames the British "tools" but insists that the Britisher is not a "bad carpenter."

Machinery Helps
Less drinking among American workers and a greater chance in America for advancement, the "Round Table" admits, do tend to make the American a slightly better worker. The one big thing, however, which has increased American output per man in recent years is mass-production by means of automatic machinery.

And this, says the "Round Table," is what Britain lacks.

Handwork by American workers is a thing of the past according to the magazine. "At a big Henry Ford power plant a shoveler and a rake are kept in a glass case as relics of a bygone age. The raking and shoveling of furnaces is now performed automatically."

The human element is represented by a few engineers walking about in clean elite ducks. Wholesale suits of clothing are no longer cut one at a time out of the cloth. An electric cutter now cuts twenty at a time. In baking the American dough-mixing machine with one operation performs the work of twenty bakers."

England, the opinion is, has these machines, but she hasn't them to the same extent that America has. England is bound to her ways and kept from adopting new because of her traditions.

In America, says the magazine, new machines and new methods are constantly introduced because the American citizen has within him the desire for change and the desire to raise himself. The traditional rigid class lines of England "lines that are as yet unknown in America" make a Britisher's attempts to raise himself so much "travel up a blind alley."

These English traditions, thinks the "Round Table," are the things which keep the British back.

HEARST ATTORNEY DIES
NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—John Thompson Studevant, 46, a member of the legal staff of William Randolph Hearst publications and at one time a law partner of John F. Ryan, former mayor of New York, died Sunday. His widow and two children survive.

CHASTAIN IS IN RACE FOR LEGISLATURE

Hon. Oscar Chastain, prominent Eastland attorney, is a candidate for representative in the lower house of the Texas legislature from this district composed of Eastland county. Hon. M. H. Hagaman, of Ranger, is the present representative. No information has come to the Cisco Daily News of Mr. Hagaman's plans, and it is not known that he will be a candidate to succeed himself.

Mr. Chastain, it will be remembered, made the race two years ago for judge of the commissioners' court, opposing Judge Ed S. Pritchard. He is capable, and thoroughly familiar with conditions in West Texas that will enable him to represent his constituents in a creditable manner. He is announcing subject to the action of the democratic primaries. Following is his statement to the people:

To My Fellow Citizens:
I take this method of announcing to you that I will not be a candidate for county judge of the commissioners' court. I thank all of you good people for the many expressions of confidence you have reposed in me and for the many solicitations you have given me to run; but in justice to myself and to my law firm, I have concluded that it is to our interest financially for me not to be a candidate for judge.

However, as some of you know, I have had aspirations to serve a sentence in our state legislature and, although the state is practically nothing, I can take off a few days from my work and go to Austin and, I believe, can do something for my county and state that will be beneficial to the people. The compensation for my time will be nothing as compared to the service I hope to render my people.

I do not intend to make a campaign of the county; but hope to make a few speeches in the different centers of the county, in which I shall tell you a few things on my mind and of a few reforms I think we need. If I know anything at all, it is some of the ills from which the people are suffering, and if I can cause to be written on our statute books the correction of a few such ills, I will feel amply compensated for my time.

With a heart full of gratitude, I beg to remain, Truly yours,
OSCAR F. CHASTAIN.

To Construct Pier At Battle Ground
AUSTIN, Feb. 14.—The first official act of R. B. Walthall, as chairman of the state board of control, was to request the federal government for a permit to build a concrete wharf in the San Jacinto bay at the landing of the San Jacinto battlefield. The last legislature appropriated $10,000 for the construction of the wharf and bids have been received, but before the contract can be awarded the constitution of the federal government must be obtained.

As soon as approval can be had the contract will be awarded and the work rushed to completion in time for the democratic national convention at Houston.

EAGLES EASY FOR LOBO 5; SCORE 24-16

Saturday night, some of the few Abilene fans who saw the basketball game between the Lobos and the Abilene High school Eagles, wanted to know if "Goobert" Keyes, "that little quarter-back" of the Lobos played basketball. "Goobert" showed them that he was present by leading the Lobos in scoring while they were defeating the Eagles by the score of 24 to 16. He made four field goals and one free throw for nine points, besides playing a great defensive game and showing excellent floor work. The game was played in the McMurray college gymnasium and was witnessed by a rather small crowd. The Eagles had three of their football stars on the team and they seemed to want to convert the game into football. This is shown by the fact that they made fifteen personal fouls. Andrus and Groseclose, of Abilene, both left the game after making four personal fouls each. W. Smith, of the Lobos, also made four personal fouls and had to leave the game. However, the Lobos could make only seven of their free throws out of fifteen tries, while the Eagles made six throws out of nine attempts. The box score shows that the Lobos made eight field goals to five for the Eagles. The Lobos outplayed the Abilene team in every phase of the game, except the pitching of free tosses. Their guarding was especially good considering the lack of practice on a large court. Andrus, who has been leading the Eagles in scoring, made only one point. P. Mitchell, forward for Abilene, was next to Keyes in scoring, making eight points. B. Phippen was third with four points. The first half of the game was rather close, with the score 8 to 7 at the end of the half. The Lobos did their best work in the third quarter when they scored eight points while holding Abilene scoreless.

The box score follows.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

"Beat The Bulldogs" Is Slogan of Lobo Cagers; Championship Clash at Breckenridge Tuesday

All Lobo fans who can possibly make the trip will be in Breckenridge Tuesday night boosting the fighting Lobos in their battle to win the Class A championship of Eastland county from their traditional rivals, the Ranger Bulldogs. An effort is being made to secure transportation cheap enough to make it possible for the large number of high school students who wish to go. All those who are going, and who have any extra room in a car should offer to take some of these students who are ardent fans and who are very anxious to see the game and root for the Lobos. All those fans who have seen the two games which have been split between these teams predict that the game will be well worth the trip and

"Every last button in its place when washed with the NEW Maytag"

ALONG with several other features of convenience, this latest Maytag incorporates a new method of soap and water removal—the safest, gentlest, but most efficient method ever devised.

The top roll of the wringer is made of compensating rubber. This soft roll with large working surface rides on the firm bottom roll much like a balloon tire hugs the pavement. Instead of riding on the high spots, it penetrates every fold of the clothes the full length of the wringer. Everything is wrung thoroughly yet so gently that the most delicate buttons or filmy lace go through unharmed, and without pressing in hard-to-remove wrinkles. There is also a new safety feed—an exclusive Maytag feature. This new Roller Water Remover is exclusively owned and controlled by Maytag.

Try a Maytag on your next washing. Experience the joy of complete freedom from hand-rubbing; of a cast-aluminum tub that keeps the water hot throughout a big washing, that cleans itself and empties itself. An average washing only takes an hour with a Maytag.
