PATHFINDER FORCED DOWN AT SANTANDER, SPAIN

$100,000 Investment To Launch "World's Largest" Farm For Milkfed Chicks

TESTS AT NEW BROILER PLANT PROVE SUCCESS

Wichita Enterprise Linked With M. Johnson's Poultry Farms

FIRST SALES TUESDAY

Capacity of "Forcing" Plant To Be Raised From 25,000 to 100,000

With the sale of 3,000 milkfed broilers to the Wichita Poultry and Egg company, active production of the Milkfed Broiler Farm, Inc., 809 Austin, the largest establishment of its kind in the world, was inaugurated Tuesday, according to informtaion given by C. B. Jackson, manager of the concern.

Forced feeding of baby chicks secured from the White Leghorn flocks of the M. Johnson poultry ranch was begun several weeks ago, the one-day-old fowls being placed in sanitary batteries and developed under conditions conducive to rapid and even growth to a weight of from one and one-half to two pounds in eight weeks. The building in which the farm is now located has a floor space 70 by 40 feet in dimension, and the batteries now contain 25,000 chickens, ranging in age from one day to seven weeks.

Large Scale Production

Inauguration of large scale production of milkfed broilers is the result of several years of study and experimentation, according to Mr. Jackson, with the object of perfecting a system under which chicks may be brought quickly to broiler weight without sacrificing the strength gained by the fowl in foraging for itself, and which is essential to "keeping the bird on its feet" during eight weeks of confinement in the batteries. Proper combinations of minerals and nutritive elements, together with careful regulation of air and temperatures, have made possible the successful growth of meat chickens under forced conditions, Mr. Jackson said.

According to the information given, one of the principal factors which figured in the location of the project in Wichita Falls was the practically unlimited supply of baby White Leghorn chicks afforded by the presence of the Johnson poultry ranch, the largest in the world. The concern has been recently incorporated, L. C. Heydrick, Judge W. M. Moore and Reese Allen being associated with Mr. Jackson as incorporators.

Besides the sale of broilers, the plant is designed to supply pullets for egg-producing purposes. At the age of seven or eight weeks, it was said, pullets will be separated from the cockerels, and made available to farmers and poultrymen for replenishment of flocks reduced through the usual spring and summer sale of hens. It was pointed out that the brooding farm will create an increased demand for fertile eggs in this community in order to keep incubators supplied for the plant's baby chick requirements.

Larger Plant Planned

For the development of a fowl having the maximum meat weight, Mr. Jackson stated, experiments are now under way with a cross-breed of Dark Cornish King with White Leghorn hens. The resulting chick, it was said, has unusually large legs and heavy breast. The cross is designed to retain the egg-productivity of the Leghorn and to secure the weight and flavor of the Cornish King breed. Actual tests made with chickens of the same hatch, it was said, showed the cross-breed outweighing the Leghorn by almost 100 per cent.

On the basis of results obtained with the plant now in operation, plans are now being made for the establishment of a plant before Jan. 1, 1930, which will have a capacity of 100,000 chicks brooding at the same time, making possible the output of 12,500 chickens of broiler weight every week, Mr. Jackson

Germany Exhibits Huge Seaplane

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, July 9. (UP)—The largest heavier-than-air machine ever built—a mighty 12-motored seaplane—was put on exhibition here today preparatory to test flights next week which may herald an amazing new step in the progress of aviation. It is built to carry 112 persons.

The seaplane has been built secretly at the Dornier Works on the shores of Lake Constance and only rumors of the great size and power had reached the public until this afternoon.

The craft has three decks and 12 motors. Each engine is capable of 500 horse-power.

The plane itself is approximately 150 feet long with a wingspan still greater—about 160 feet.

The builders of the craft claim that it will be able to develop a maximum of about 155 miles per hour and a normal cruising speed of 118 miles per hour.

Electra's Second Oil Field Casualty Reported In Grave Condition

N. Bryan Linville, 29, driller for the Staley-Wynne Oil company, died in a local hospital at 3:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon as a result of injuries received in an oil field accident in Wilbarger county early Tuesday morning. The body was taken in charge by the Merkle Undertaking company and will be forwarded to Hammon, Okla., Thursday morning.

The accident occurred when Linville was caught in the cathead of a rotary in the Greyback field in Wilbarger county. He had lived in Electra and had been an employe of the Staley-Wynne company for several years.

Survivors are his widow and one infant child; his mother, Mrs. Mattie Linville, and six brothers and four sisters, all of whom live in Hammon, Okla. Interment will take place in Hammon Friday.

The condition of E. C. Miller of Electra, brother of Lester Miller of Wichita Falls, who suffered a fractured skull in an oil field accident Tuesday morning, was reported unchanged by attendants at the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital where the injured man was brought for treatment. He was injured about 10:30 o'clock when a catline on a well near Electra struck him in the head, causing severe fractures of the skull.

He was brought to Wichita Falls in a Totten company ambulance. His condition was said to be grave by attending physicians. Mr. Miller worked for his brother, E. C. Miller, an Electra rig builder.

Legislature Cuts Down On Appropriations to Moody's Figure

AUSTIN, July 9. (UP)—Approximately a million dollars was cut from state appropriation bills by the Texas legislature today in an effort to meet Governor Moody's demand that the total be not more than $46,000,000.

This amount was taken by both house and senate from the judiciary, eleemosynary and rural school aid appropriations. The senate acted also upon the educational appropriation adding $175,000 to it.

Departmental appropriations, which are to come up tomorrow, are scheduled for the heaviest cut.

HIGHER MAIL RATES URGED

Deficit of $120,000,000 for Year Alarms Hoover

WASHINGTON, July 9. (US)—President Hoover will ask for an increase or revision in mail carrying charges of sufficient proportions to offset an estimated deficiency in the postoffice department of $120,000,000 a year for the next five years.

This was stated officially at the White House today where it was learned that the president has ordered a complete audit of the various classes of mail charges to be determined where the increase or revised rates should be applied.

Program Faces Fight

It was announced as his first important step in government reorganization and generally regarded as one to face a stout fight in congress, where the rates as well as other post office expenses are fixed by law.

The president emphasized his view that the post office department should be a business organization instead of political and that those who benefit from the service rather than the tax payers should pay for it. It was made plain that increases in rates, where it is found the government is losing money, rather than increases in taxes should be applied.

At the same time it was emphasized that the increases will not be applied to the infant airplane mail industry, which is regarded as experimental, but to other classes of mails.

1929 Deficit $95,000,000

The White House pointed to the gradual increases in deficiences over the last few years. In 1924 the deficiency was $13,000,000. In 1925 it had jumped to $23,000,000. In 1926 it was $39,000,000. In 1927 it dropped to $27,000,000, but jumped again in 1928 to $32,000,000.

For this fiscal year closing it had jumped according to estimates to $95,000,000, exclusive of $51,000,000 to be paid the railroads because of under-payments for mail service during the past four years as fixed by interstate commerce commission.

Based on the present calculations it was stated that the deficiency over the next five years, unless the rates are increased will be $85,000,000 annually for new buildings, to bring the total up to $120,000,000.

The White House said that the increases were almost altogether due to acts of congress in increasing allowances and pay to postmasters and postal employees and at the same time decreasing postal rates. These items alone increase the deficiency by $30,000,000 a year, it was stated.

Rescue Vessels Keep Hopeless Vigil Over Spot Where 21 Went to Bottom

LONDON, July 9. (UP)—The submarine H-47 lay under 50 fathoms of water in St. George's channel off the coast of Wales tonight, its hull ripped and its crew of 21 men dead or as hopelessly trapped as ever men were trapped by the sea.

The H-47, a small type of submarine, was rammed by the submarine L-12 about 20 miles due west of Fishguard this morning and dropped to the bottom of the channel so rapidly that only two men escaped. The estimated toll of the accident was brought to 23 lives—the admiralty was uncertain of the figure—when Arthur Sampson, able seaman on the L-12, died of injuries received in the crash.

One man from the L-12, Signalman Charles Bull, is missing.

Rescue vessels of every description available and seaplanes hovered over the dark waters which hid the sunken H-47 tonight in what the admiralty considered an almost hopeless attempt to salvage the craft.

The submarine L-12 arrived at Milfordhaven under its own power tonight but none of its crew was landed. The admiralty announced that Petty Officer Henry James, who originally was listed among the missing, had been found to be among the survivors.

The vessels were on or near the surface—returning from flotilla maneuvers off the Irish coast—when they crashed.

WILL ROGERS SEES ANGELENO SMASH RECORD

Notables on Hand to Give Cheers to Culver City Endurance Fliers

PLANE STAYS ALOFT

'We May Stay Up Month,' Says Message Dropped From Craft

By RONALD W. WAGONER
United Press Staff Correspondent

CULVER CITY, Calif., July 9.—While a carnival spirit held sway beneath them, Loren Mendell and R. M. "Pete" Reinhart swooped their Buhl Airsedan, Angeleno, over Culver City airport at 2:30:29 p. m. today and accepted the cheers accorded them as the new endurance flight champions of the world.

At that time the California airmen had been aloft an hour more than Byron Newcomb and Roy Mitchell of Cleveland and under the regulations governing flying, became the holders of the new refueling record at 175 hours 50 seconds.

Mendell Waves Greeting

With Reinhart flying the plane within 100 feet of the ground above the cleared center portion of the airport, Mendell stood erect in the rear cockpit and waved a vigorous greeting to the 10,000 persons gathered behind the guard ropes.

Then the Angeleno shot for higher altitude and circled the field with a narrow radius and official observances of the feat were started.

William Gibbs McAdoo, member of President Wilson's cabinet, and Will Rogers, noted humorist and former mayor of Beverly Hills, were among the southern California celebrities at the field.

Rogers Wisecracks

Rogers, an aviation enthusiast, admitted he received a "big kick" out of the record smashing. In fact, he sat down as soon as the preliminary whoopee was over and penned the following note which was relayed by plane to Mendell and Reinhart:

"Stay up there, boys, for I don't mind telling you, you are not missing a thing by not being down here.

"We had an earthquake here yesterday but we won't know what damage it did until we get the San Francisco papers.

"Fly over Beverly Hills, the air is lighter there than any place I know.

"Too bad you boys didn't go somewhere while you were up there.

"Next week go to Oklahoma.
(Signed) "Will Rogers."

McAdoo Looks It Over

McAdoo, whose son, William G. McAdoo Jr., is one of the two backers of the flight, took another plane and went up "to look the boys over."

"They looked fit at close range," McAdoo said when he landed. "I'll be out next Tuesday to look them over again."

Mendell and Reinhart were in excellent spirits. They arranged with their supply plane to put on a refueling exhibition an hour after the record was broken and then circled away while Mendell wrote a note which was dropped over the airport.

Up for Month

"Listen, once and for all," the message read. "It took us a week to get this far and don't think we are coming down now. We may stay up a month. At any rate, we won't be down until the motor stops and we'll bet when it does we make a three-point landing."

Culver City drew a cosmopolitan crowd from all sections of the country to witness the aviation event.

Hospital Patient Jumps From Third-Story Window

Delirious Wichitan Battles Nurses and Escapes Injury In Fall; Spectators Recapture Nude Man.

Fighting his way free from the grasp of two nurses, a delirious patient at the Wichita General hospital Monday night leaped from the window of his third floor room, it was revealed Tuesday morning. The drop was broken by a clutch at knotted sheets which gave way as the nude man swung against the side of the building. After a moment of futile grasping he dropped, practically without injury, to the ground.

A crowd of men and women who had heard the man's cries for help as he pulled away from the nurses in the window of his room, stood helplessly by as he made the leap. They rushed to his aid as he dropped, but the patient was on his feet and in flight before the onlookers or hospital attendants could reach him.

Battles Rescuers

It took the efforts of half a dozen men to stop and hold him after a chase about half way down the block. He was forced back into the hospital and placed under observation in the detention ward. His injuries were said to include only minor sprains and bruises.

The patient is reported to have first pushed his bed across the door of his private room in the hospital in an effort to escape without the knowledge of his special nurse. The plan was discovered after he had knotted the sheets together and slipped them over the window sill. The commotion caused by his actions and the protests of the special nurse attracted the attention of Mrs. A. J. Evans, night supervisor, who joined the nurse in her efforts to quiet the patient. After a struggle in which both of the young women received severe bruises, the man wrenched himself free and sprang to the window. As he pulled away, the night shirt, which had been his only garment, slipped off and the man went down, naked, to the ground.

Unexpected Attack

His calls for help attracted the attention of employes and visitors in the Melon Garden just east of the hospital. Mrs. Morris Black, cashier, saw him fall, and rushed to offer aid. Alex Sanders, one of the employes at the Garden, was the first to reach his side and to try to stop his flight. Attendants at the hospital explained that the delirious attack had been sudden and without warning. Special precautions are to be taken for his safety in the future, Mrs. Evans said. He was reported to be resting quietly Tuesday night.

HIJACKER ROBS GAS STATION

Lone Bandit Gets $50 at Gulf Service Plant

A lone hijacker held up the attendant of the Gulf filling station at Tenth and Holliday streets about 10 o'clock Tuesday night and escaped with about $50 in cash.

According to the attendant, whose name police did not learn, an automobile drove past the station and parked in the shadows about half a block from the station. In a few minutes a man approached the station and walked up to the door. He did not enter, it was said, but stood outside and held a pistol on the attendant, ordering him to place all his money in a sack which he tossed inside.

The attendant complied with the order, placing the contents of the cash register in the sack and handing the parcel out to the hijacker, who then backed away from the station and drove away in the automobile. The attendant was unable to obtain the number of the automobile or to give a description of it, due to the darkness, it was said.

Only one attendant was at the station at the time of the holdup.

This was the first hijacking reported by Wichita Falls police since the "epidemic" of holdups and burglaries here last winter.

SAFE CRACKERS OBTAIN $50

Rule's Croquet Marathoners Give Up Ghost Soon After Stunt Begins

HOUSTON, July 9. (UP)—Two "socking" marathoners were A. W. O. L. tonight.

The Rule, Texas, barber and tailor who left League City today for Houston on their "batting spree" from Galveston to Gotham, had disappeared. Not only had they apparently given up their attempt to knock croquet balls over the long route, but they had packed themselves off the highway, away from the eyes of scoffers.

Three days of hot South Texas sunshine, combined with frequent fumblings in the "rough" at the side of the road, were believed to have discouraged C. G. Hart, the barber, and L. R. Rose, the tailor.

It is thought that "crazy croquet cronies" had discovered without even leaving Texas that it was a long, hard road to New York, and had given up the "croquet ghost."

Newspaper men, anxious to watch the boys sock the big wooden balls along the road, patroled the highway between here and Genoa late today, but no trace could be found of the marathoners. Indications were that they had packed their mallets and balls into their supply car and struck out for their nice cool barber and tailor shops at Rule, giving up their visions of fame and notoriety.

The pair left Galveston Saturday and hoped to bat their way to Gotham by the end of the year.

WANING FUEL SUPPLY BRINGS FLIGHT TO END

Fresh Supply of Petrol Ordered While Spaniards Give Welcome

By REGINALD A. CALVERT

SANTANDER, Spain, July 10. (US)—(Wednesday 1 a. m.)—For the second time in less than a month, Santander, a forgotten capital of a forgotten Spanish province, is playing host to another set of daring transatlantic fliers—Roger Q. Williams and Capt. Lewis Yancey, pilot and navigator of the Pathfinder.

Their fuel tanks almost drained of the last faltering drops of the 450 gallons of gasoline with which they took off from Old Orchard beach, Maine, at 8:40 a. m. Monday, Williams and Yancey dropped from the twilight sky to a perfect landing at the Albericia airfield here at 9:20 p. m. last night (Tuesday).

Request for Fuel

The two intrepid Americans, nothing daunted by their failure to reach Rome, their goal, exchanged greetings with the fliers and officials at the field, and then sent a message to the civil governor of Santander, requesting petrol with which they would continue their flight to Rome last night.

But the hospitality of northern Spain again had its opportunity to become self-evident, and the people of the town, gathering in thousands, cheered the aviators, prevailing upon them to accept the invitation of the officials to spend the night there. As a consequence, Williams and Yancey, grinning from ear to ear, listened to the pleas in a strange language, and decided to take off some time today.

Maritime Club Guests

The two daring Americans, not disclosing for a moment any disappointment over failing to have completed their spanning of the 4,700 miles to Rome, were tonight the guests of the Maritime club of this little coastal city, where they were entertained most sumptuously at a banquet spread at almost a moment's notice.

Their drop out of the dimming heavens took Santander by storm. That this town should become a

JUST THE
Baer Facts
By Bugs Baer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., July 9. (US)—Most impressive thing about Hollywood is the California mocking bird.

This feathered alarm clock sounds off every morning at 3 o'clock. We have heard the scream of the American eagle, have inhaled the melodious orchestrations of a humming bird's wings and listened to victory song of the boll weevil as it marched through the cotton orchards.

But all these magnificent harmonies are but tepid chirpings when a California mocking bird yanks the throttle and whistles for a grade crossing.

We are on the ninth floor of a Hollywood hotel, and every morning at 3 a mocking bird rosins up the bow and fiddles a cantata that has all the beauty of Beethoven and all the power of a community chorus of sales agents.

We have tried to find a trapeze on which that bird swings. The trees are far below and the roof is 50 feet above. We couldn't locate the home office of that diminutive dynamo. There was no place where a bird could perch. Finally, we looked up at the flagpole with the idea that somebody had given shipwreck Kelly a piccolo.

Often have we been awakened by a rooster in the middle Atlantic states as it sighted the sun over the hill. We have watched the rooster as it squared its shoulders, took a toe-hold on a wobbly rail, threw back its head and let the world know that day was here.

But, fortunately, the rooster is a near-sighted bird. Therefore, we are enabled to sleep until the fingers of day are twigging at the shirt-tails of night.

But, a California mocking bird, which is really a 30-piece brass band with wings, is none of your astigmatic Rhode Island Reds.

After we listened to that bird outside the hotel window in the dead of night, we are convinced that the California mocker can see daylight, as far east as Ohio.

He gives you eastern daylight saving and Rocky Mountain time all in one robust note that rings like a bell and causes your false teeth to snap in their glass on the bureau.

Having heard that a California mocker will imitate anything it hears we tried to teach it a softly whistled lullaby.

But that bird wasn't taking lessons from any Pennsylvania rummy.

If we could have succeeded in teaching it a lullaby then we know that we could sleep the night out. But that sun-kissed twitterer continued to bellow its beautiful clamor with an enthusiasm strong enough to have brought Sitting Bull to his feet.

We are not criticising the technique of the California mocker. We know we must be wrong for nature never makes any mistakes.

But we do think that nature might have postponed its improvements a little bit.

LACK OF FUEL STOPS FLIGHT

Fliers Tell of Battling Fog Banks

transatlantic rendezvous was beyond the hopes of its residents, for, despite the landing of the Yellow Bird at Comillas, further down the the beach, on June 14, Santander is still reaping all the credit for having coaxed the gallant Frenchmen—Jean Assolant, Rene Le Fevre, Armento Lotti, and their American stowaway, Arthur Schreiber—out of the air.

News Spreads Quickly

News of the fliers landing spread like wildfire, nothing less. It was not long before the hard-working tillers of the soil from near-about hamlets had harnessed up their puny ox-carts and fought their way into the capital of the province. They made their way directly to the flying field, which had been lit up with flares in case the aviators saw fit to pass over the town during their flight—but the crowds were at first disappointed—for the aviators had disappeared. But they were soon located by the throngs at the Maritime club—and since then, there has been no holding down the exuberant Spanish spirit. Not a moment but cheers have split the air to the accompaniment of Spanish folk songs and impromptu ballads, lauding the daring aviators.

Williams and Yancey, while being feted at the hands of the gladsome Spanish airmen and civil officials, did not hesitate making further arrangements for their flight.

Plane Is Guarded

Their plane, the gallant Pathfinder, another conqueror of the Atlantic and its many terrors, was carefully guarded at the airfield to keep the hands of souvenir hunters away. Williams and Yancey, looking none the less chipper for their 31 hours and 31 minutes of air-journeying over the treacherous Atlantic in the face of rain, fog and wind, settled down later to enjoy themselves and the hospitality of the Spanish nation.

They spent some time acknowledging the congratulations of numerous Spanish airmen—among these were messages from Maj. Ramon Franco and Maj. Julio Ruiz de Alda, two of the crew of the Numancia lost for eight days near the Azores—before they consented to give a few terse comments about their flight. Williams said:

Fog Worries Them

"Bumped into great gobs of fog. I never saw so much. And did it rain—say! We had swell winds—everything was with us that way—but crawling through that awful fog was the best way to start us worrying and weighing our chances of fighting it out.

"We wanted to get on to Rome last night, but it was getting so and we are, naturally, so confoundedly unfamiliar with the country over here, that we decided to delay our hop. But we certainly want to thank these people—they are the kindest in the world. No wonder Assolant landed the Yellow Bird here—he must have known about them.

"I suppose we shouldn't have dumped off those 50 extra gallons of gas before we left Old Orchard. Although we still have some fuel left, we could have made Rome with those discarded gallons. Oh, well! It's all in the game, I guess. We're not disappointed—although we really did miss our goal. We're safe—and what is anything else, beside that?

"We had good winds—but they didn't help anything but our speed. Gas consumption went right along, tail wind or no—and there was that rotten fog.

"We only saw the sea twice. Once we zoomed down low to find out if there still was an Atlantic ocean—we hadn't seen it for so long—and the second time, we just passed out of one load of fog into another—but we sneaked in a peak—and there, by golly, just below us—although a long way off—was the great old Atlantic. We licked her, all right.

"We slipped over the Azores on our plotted course—perhaps just a few miles south. We calculated when we hit them, because the fog was so great to the south we didn't even think of looking in that direction. We didn't catch a sight of land until we hit the Spanish coast over Sante Pedro Del Mar. We had figured by that time that our gasoline was low—and we looked at each other—shook our heads, and made for the nearest landing field."

The petrol ordered by the two men arrived with the compliments of the Spanish governor, and has been placed in tanks beside the Pathfinder for the resumption of its flight early today.

Stimson Gives Workers In State Department Chance to Cool

WASHINGTON, July 9. (INS)—Old Sol's rays proved to be too much for state department workers today. They sweltered so over their work that Secretary of State Stimson invited all to take the air at 2:30. Other federal offices are closed down for the afternoon—their initial closing this summer.

The big thermometer in a kiosk on Pennsylvania avenue topped 93 at noon with every indication of an upward jump.

BROILER PLANT OPENED HERE

Announcement of Industry Follows First Sale

stated. Plans are now being drawn in Springfield, Ohio, he said, for the units to be erected, which will give this city a broiler farm with four times the capacity of that now in operation.

According to the information given, two frame buildings will be erected near the M. Johnson ranch, covering together an area of 406x179 feet in size and will cost about $25,000. The larger of the two will contain 72 "banks," or double batteries, in which the feeding of the baby chicks will be carried on from day they come from the shell to the age of three weeks. This structure will be 156 by 129 feet in dimension. The smaller, to be built with a floor 250x50 feet, will contain a warehouse for feed, which will be secured in carload lots; the fattening rooms, killing plant, and cold storage rooms.

The equipment to be placed inside the two buildings will cost more than $75,000, it was stated, and will represent the latest improvements of science in artificial brooding methods. The total outlay in the plant will be more than $100,000. In the "brooding battery" building, as the larger will be known, interior walls and ceiling are to be finished with celotex as the maximum insulation against changing temperatures. Thermostatic control will maintain an even temperature in every portion of each "bank" at all times, it was stated. This effect is obtained by the use of a system of electric fans, enclosed, which pull air over pipes heated by steam from a large boiler in a corner of the building.

System Explained

An even, unretarded development of the chicken was described as the result obtained by this artificial brooding system. With even temperature obtaining in all parts of the compartment, all parts of the chicken's body are kept uniformly warmed. With this distribution of heat, it was pointed out, the prevailing temperature in the battery may be kept about 10 degrees lower than that required with more direct heat radiation.

The 72 "banks," each of which will contain 4,200 baby chicks, will be arranged in long rows, each row being set off by a partition of celoglass. This variety of glass provides for the growing chickens, Mr. Jackson stated, those strengthening benefits of sunlight which are now being provided by science for the treatment of many human indispositions. Besides the ultra-violet light rays afforded by use of the special glass, the banks will have equal illumination at all points. The partitions of celo-glass will reach to the ceiling, and extend to the lowest level of the banks, about 12 inches above the floor.

No sweeping or carrying of refuse will be required in keeping the plant clean, according to the plans announced. Each compartment in the battery has a sliding tray, which tilts. At the top of each bank are water faucets with which the batteries will be flushed forcibly, carrying all refuse to to concrete floor, which will be built with grades falling to drains.

As shown in plans of the proposed buildings, feed for the thousands of young chickens will be drawn from a chute similar to those used in elevators. One of its principal ingredients is dehy-drated milk, it was said, and during the final two weeks of fattening for the market, the chickens will be fed principally on milk, receiving no water at all.

The outstanding feature of the farm in its present location, aside fro mthe raising of 25,000 chickens on 2,800 square feet of floor space, is the immaculate cleanliness of the plant. Water pans and feed receptacles are sterilized in boiling water once every 24 hours, it was said. Fresh air is drawn in and foul air expelled with large rotary fans. The floors are spotless.

HEBER CITY, Utah, July 9. (UP)—A wrecked plane bearing the number 4498 and the body of the dead pilot, believed to be Masashi Goto, 32-year-old Los Angeles Japanese aviator, were located by sheriff's officers today.

The body was badly decomposed and indicated the crash had occurred days ago, the officers reported. An undertaker was sent to bring the body to Heber City.

Goto took off for Reno, Nev., from the Oakland airport at Oakland, Calif., on July 3 in a plane designed and built by himself in Los Angeles. He passed through Salt Lake City on July 4 and had been unreported since.

PROF. THOMPSON REGAINS HEALTH THROUGH SARGON

"For six years I have been going through some of the best clinics in Texas trying to regain my health, but six bottles of Sargon have done me more real good than all the medicines and treatments I tried put together. I have gained 14 pounds and am in better health than I ever thought I would be again.

DAN J. THOMPSON

"My health began to fail six years ago and my weight dropped from 145 to 123 pounds. My digestive organs were all out of order, and often after meals I had to use a rubber tube down my throat to get rid of undigested food. I could not eat any kind of solid food without suffering and I almost had to live on milk. I was told that I had gall bladder trouble, and my whole system was so poisoned that my throat was actually yellow inside and so sore that I could hardly swallow. My physician suggested that I have my teeth extracted and I did, but still got no better. I suffered with severe pains in my back and through my body, my circulation was poor, my color was bad, and I was run down, weak and nervous.

"I have not had a minute's trouble with my stomach or digestive organs since I began taking Sargon. I can now sit down and enjoy a steak or anything else I want. My nerves are steady, I sleep fine and my strength and energy have returned. My circulation is good and I feel better than I have felt in years.

"Sargon Soft Mass Pills cleansed my system of poisons. My throat is normal again, my color is good and I am like a different man in every way."

The above statement was made by Dan J. Thompson, principal of the Reinheart public school, who lives at 903 Waverly avenue, Dallas.

Cargon may be obtained in Wichita Falls from the Renfro Drug Co., Eighth and Scott streets, No. 1 main store, and Seventh and Indiana, No. 2; in Electra from Lough's Drug store; and in Burkburnett from Burkburnett Pharmacy.—Adv.

KOTEX Laboratories have discovered a process which deodorizes each Kotex pad. The results, in peace of mind, are vitally important to women.

85% of hospitals use Kotex filler

Can you imagine any more eloquent tribute to Kotex than this? Surgeons in 85% of the hospitals in this country select Kotex filler (Cellucotton absorbent wadding) for their patients! Not only for sanitary pads, but for all surgical dressings! This is the same, identical, Kotex-made Cellucotton.

Corners are rounded and tapered to permit no evidence of sanitary protection.

Greater softness of texture; instant disposability—no laundry; and the fact that you can adjust the layers of filler—these things are of great importance for comfort and good health.

Wichita Falls Girl Given Lead In New Broadway Production

Mrs. Louis Jean Heydt, Formerly Leona Maricle, Visits Here After Successful Season on Stage

Mrs. Louis Jean Heydt, formerly Miss Leona Maricle, who has just completed a successful season with "The Trial of Mary Dugan," John Kirkland's phenomenal stage success, is in Wichita Falls visiting her mother, Mrs. Emma Maricle, between theatrical seasons.

Mrs. Heydt, who still plays under the name of Leona Maricle, closed with "The Trial of Mary Dugan" in Boston a few weeks ago, and is booked for the lead in "The First Mortgage," written by Louis Weitzenkorn and produced by William Farnsworth, to open on Broadway in the early fall.

Miss Maricle worked with Ann Harding and the original Mary Dugan cast throughout the play's long run in New York, Philadelphia, Boston and other eastern cities. Her work there and in "The Legacy" and "Frankie and Johnnie," both Broadway productions, has attracted widespread attention and won the recognition that gave her the leading role in the new comedy drama. Weitzenkorn is the Sunday editor of the New York World and critics are expecting a spectacular success of his play.

It was in August of last year that Miss Maricle married Louis Jean Heydt, himself an actor and a dramatic critic. He worked with her in "Frankie and Johnnie" and played the lead in the company which took "The Trial of Mary Dugan" to England. Mr. Heydt, a Dartmouth graduate, is a one-time newspaper man, and his theatrical ambitions include the work of the playwright and the critic.

Mrs. Heydt is expected to be with her mother and sister at 1700 Collins during the next 10 days before returning to New York to open rehearsals for "The First Mortgage."

Since 1918, 1,250,000 houses have been built in England, providing homes for five or six million people.

442 of the 451 important Hollywood actresses use Lux Toilet Soap

PHYLLIS HAVER, Pathé star, in the striking tiled bathroom built in Hollywood especially for her blonde loveliness. "No star can look lovely unless she has a really velvety skin. Lux Toilet Soap leaves my skin so gently smooth that I have no fear of the high-powered close-up lights."
Phyllis Haver

"Charm depends on lovely skin," say 39 leading Hollywood directors

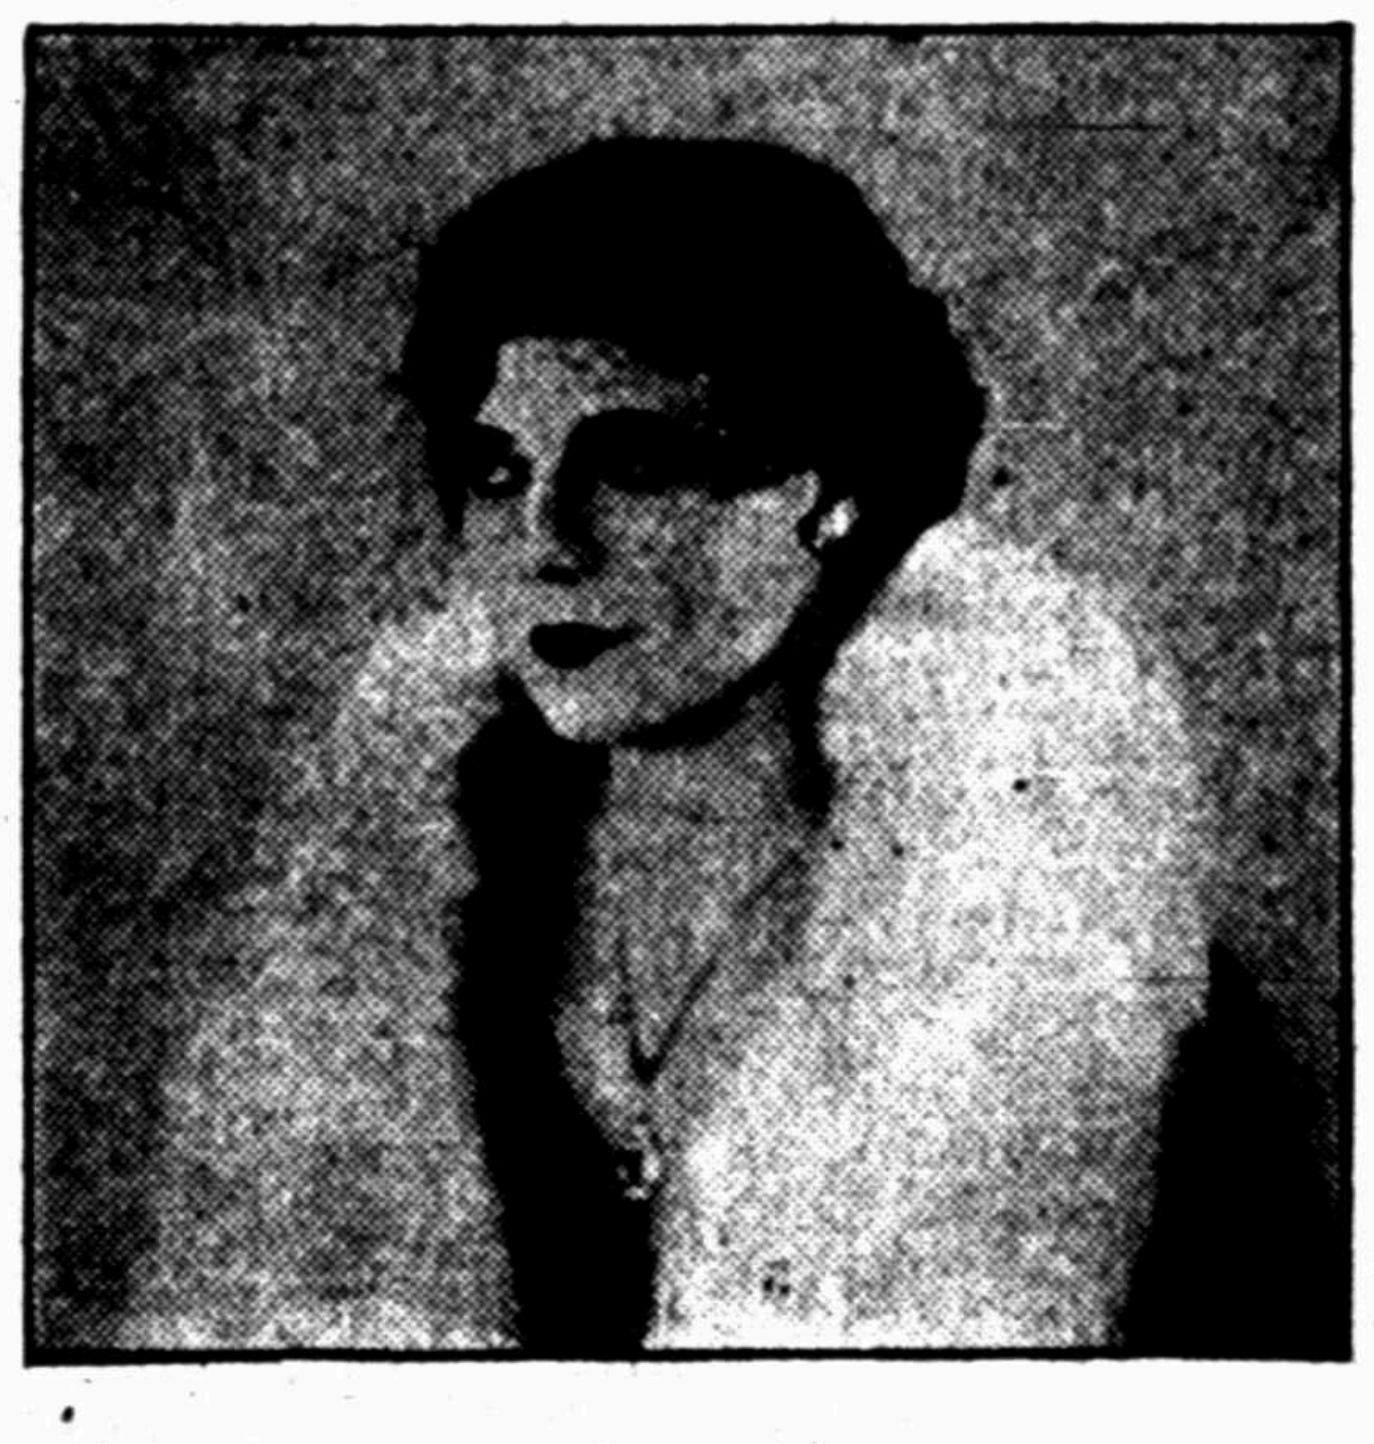
ANY girl's greatest charm is lovely smooth skin. As Howard Higgins, Pathé director, expresses it, summing up the experience of leading Hollywood directors: "A girl's greatest loveliness is a beautiful skin—it is more important in a girl than wonderful eyes or a beautiful mouth."

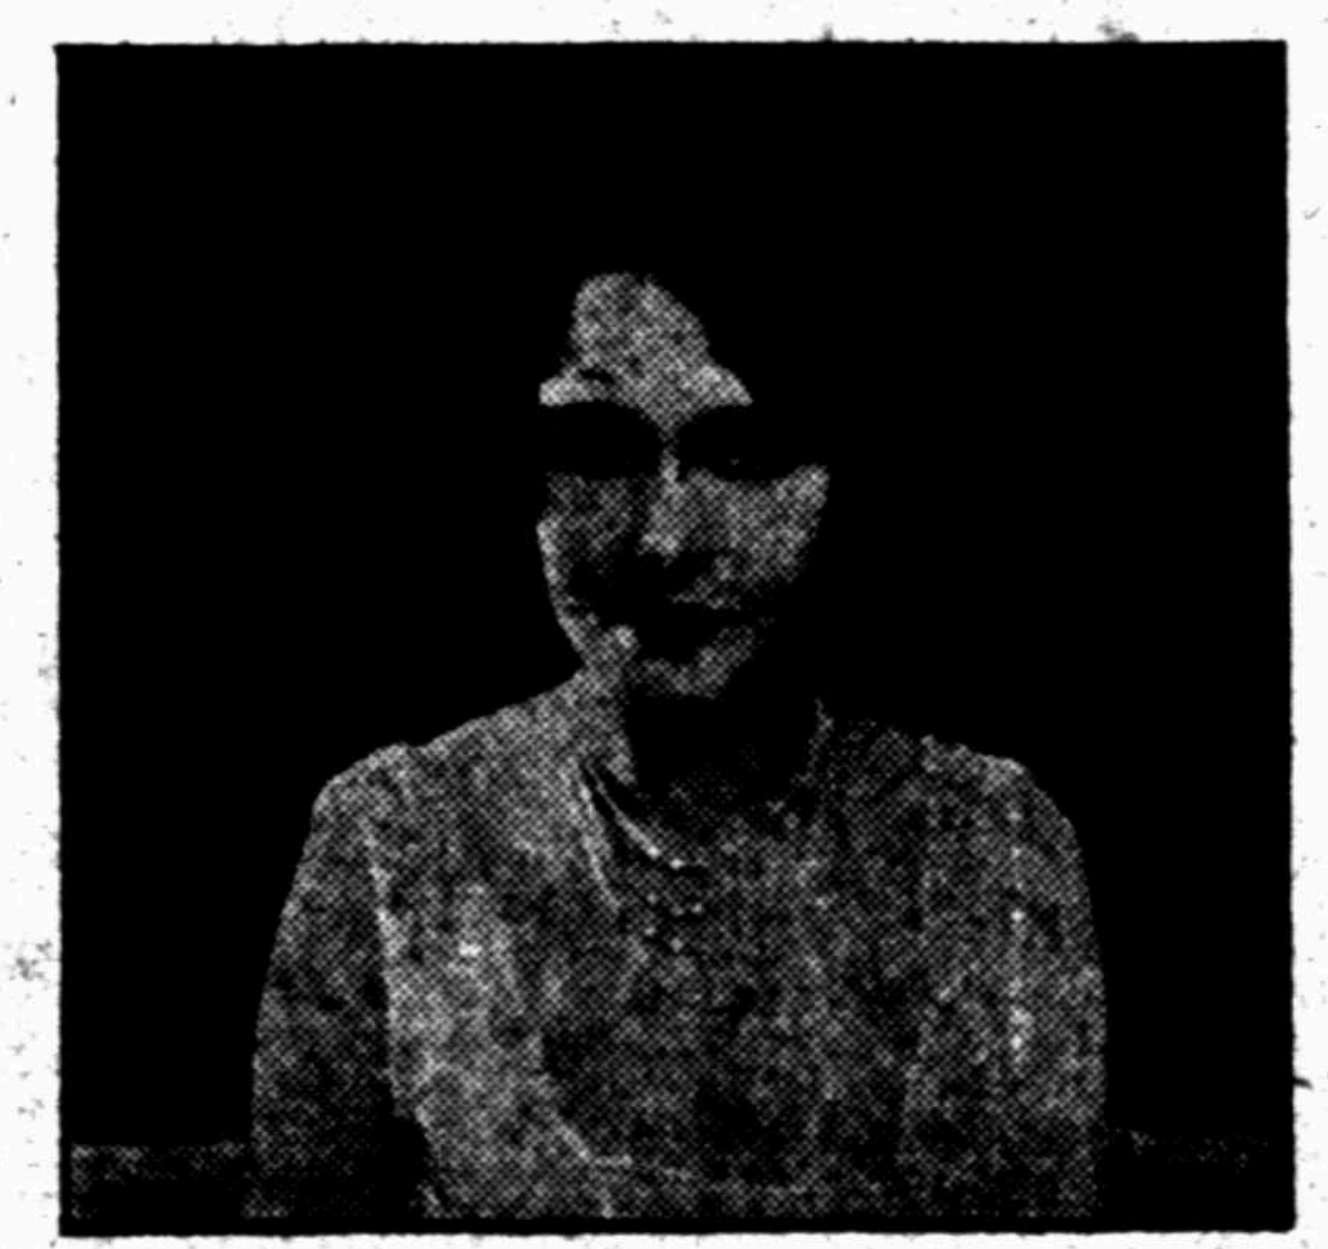
He goes on to say: "I don't remember a girl ever reaching screen stardom without a rarely lovely skin—for make-up is no help under the all-revealing lights of the close-up. Smooth skin is absolutely necessary for popularity and loveliness."

Because this is true, nine out of ten screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap, and all the great studios have made it the official soap in their dressing rooms. In Hollywood they have found that this delightful soap—made by the famous French method—keeps the skin exquisitely lovely.

If you aren't already devoted to this daintily fragrant, white soap, do try it—this very day. Such abundant lather! And it keeps your skin as smooth as satin.

LOIS WILSON, Warner Brothers' popular star, says: "The satin-smooth skin that a close-up reveals must be as lovely as it looks—it is something that even the cleverest make-up cannot fake. I'm delighted with Lux Toilet Soap. It's a lovely soap!"





The next time you see DOROTHY SEBASTIAN, beautiful Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star, in a close-up, notice how petal-smooth Lux Toilet Soap keeps her skin. She says enthusiastically: "Lux Toilet Soap gives my skin such a lovely soft bloom that I never have to worry about whether it is exquisite enough to be 'studio skin.'"

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS L. N. CASON

"No punctuation marks were used in printing until the year 1520." Some printers don't use them to this day.

◇ ◇ ◇

There's a drive east of Wichita, a broad road running south, where one can see more things to eat than we have seen on many farms in this state of Texas. And another thing we will not soon forget was a rolling field where the sun was setting on the golden shocks of grain.

◇ ◇ ◇

"Miss Spain" at the Galveston beauty pageant said she did not like American men because they were dominated by their women. That's the first we knew of it.

◇ ◇ ◇

One must not say "there's nothing new under the sun." We've just read of a woman who married a railroad brakeman and six years later, oil was found on his homestead ranch. She stood it a while then wrote him she could not stand expensive things and went back to being a waitress. He divorced her. We hope he gets a wife who can use the money.

◇ ◇ ◇

There's a house built in the trees out on the driveway past the Municipal golf course. Not just little new trees, brought from far away and trying to live under the Texas sun, but fatherly and motherly old trees that shade the windows and must peep lovingly into the rooms. We fancy that birds nest in them and sing to the inmates. We don't know who owns the home, but anyone who would save the trees and build in a nest of them deserves the songs of the birds.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mrs. John Sippel, president of the General Federation of Women's clubs, says there is always this difference between the habitual drunkard or drug taker and the woman card inebriate. The first always wishes to conceal the habit and the second is rather proud of it.

◇ ◇ ◇

We'd like to know who the man is who drives over into North Wichita every Sunday morning and goes to a boarding home where some dozen children, under the care of the Children's Aid Society of West Texas, live as happily as it is possible for children to live who do not know the tender love of a father and mother in their own home.

He takes every child old enough and drives with them to the First Methodist Sunday school. Sometimes there are enough of them for two carloads. That is one case of not letting the right hand know what the left does. And how those children enjoy it!

Dr. Grenfell, now Sir Wilfred Grenfell, has done the most wonderful work in Labrador of which we know. He has just gone again to do summer missionary work and as usual, he took with him two college boys to help. The ones who went this year—a current magazine calls their work "Labrachores"—are Nelson Aldrich Rockefeller and Laurance Spelman Rockefeller, both grandsons of John D. Rockefeller.

We Women

By BETTY BRAINERD

Minerva's Mirror

To accept life without making a sustained effort to understand it is to live numbly as well as humbly.

The narrow dimensions of such a life and outlook finally dwindle down to the plane of animals in a jungle, and instinct and the hunger for food, shelter and clothes alone rule.

A woman who says that all men are alike is usually of the sort that men have in mind when they say all women are alike.

Dogs and cats don't get along with each other for the reason they are dogs and cats . . . and people don't get along with each other for the reason they are—people.

Girls will be girls—but sometimes women old enough to know better will make fools of themselves trying to be, to look or to act like girls.

Paraphrasing the geometric axiom: The shortest distance between two hearts is straight thinking.

The voice with a smile may not always win but at least it does not start with a handicap.

Wild women are wild because, obviously, they sowed wild oats in their youth.

"Applesauce" does not grow on trees and is not a fruit. It's a social liability.

Red is used as a danger signal but the foolhardy are color blind.

MARRIAGE FOR WEALTH FAILS

Likewise Weddings for Beauty Alone, Says Dix

If the Boys and Girls Who Would Marry Only for Wealth and Beauty Actually Carried Out Their Plans They Would Cheat Themselves of Every Essential of Domestic Happiness.

What sort of a fairy prince does the modern girl ask for when she prays for a husband?

How does the modern youth paint the dream girl that he desires for a wife?

In an effort to find out something about the matrimonial ideals of the younger generation a questionnaire has just been sent out to the students in a large co-educational college asking them what qualities they will demand in the men and women they marry.

The response explained why divorce is so common and indicates that it will be still more frequent in the future if these boys and girls really represent the youth of today and they select their life partners for the same reasons that they would pick out partners for a whoopee.

For the girls, almost without exception, demanded as the first and practically the only requisite for a husband that he should be rich. Millionaires had the call over men with brains, ambition, character and principles. Money seemed to be the only thing that counted, though one or two choosey maidens expressed a preference for handsome millionaires over homely ones. But looks really didn't matter. It was only the fat pocketbook that counted.

The boys were a trifle more demanding of their wives than the girls were of their husbands, for they not only wanted to marry heiresses, but girls who were plentifully supplied with it, and were ravishing blondes who knew how to cook. One forward-looking youth specified that his girl should be a money-maker and capable of supporting the family if necessary.

So far as this survey went, it showed that not one of the young people of either sex demanded brains in their mates. Nor did they take into consideration the temperament and disposition of those with whom they were proposing to spend the next 30 or 40 years. Neither did they give a single thought to the matter of congeniality and whether they had the same interests, tastes and habits and would be able to coo together like turtle doves or be predestined to fight like cats and dogs.

Fortunately the vaporings of youth mean nothing, for the first breath of real life knocks down all of our school girl and boy plans of what we are going to do and be and have as a cyclone would a house of cards. The girl who was so sure that she would never marry anybody but an aged millionaire who would take her to live in a palace and load her down with ropes of pearls and put a fleet of Rolls Royces at her command falls in love with an impecunious youth who installs her in a two-by-four flat and presents her with a gas range and a vacuum cleaner and she is happy and content pushing a perambulator instead of riding in a limousine.

The boy who had fully made up his mind that no girl who wasn't a combination of Miss Moneybags and Theda Bara and Dolores Costello would ever get him finds that the only woman in the world who really matters to him is some poor little girl who hasn't two frocks to her back and who isn't even pretty or vampish, but who somehow is just the one for him; and he marries her and spends the balance of his life working to support her.

So that's that, and nature sometimes is in a benevolent mood and saves us from our youthful follies, even in marriage. Also it is fortunate that the supply of millionaires, both male and female, is so strictly limited that the temptation of any youth or maiden to sell himself or herself for gold is practically negligible.

But one would like to tell these blundering youngsters that the very things that they purpose to marry for are the things that soonest turn into matrimonial cinders, ashes and dust. Take money, which the girls believe will secure their felicity. The one thing that money will not buy is happiness. It will not buy love nor tenderness nor understanding nor consideration, and no woman is satisfied with a husband who is nothing but a meal ticket and a charge account. Some of the most homeless women in the world own a dozen houses. Hearts break under brocades as well as homespun. Look at the number of divorces among the multi-millionaires and you will see how far money will go in purchasing domestic happiness.

And look at the men who marry for money. Not even the grace of God can keep the poor husband of a rich wife from looking and acting like her pet Pomeranian. And feeling like it. And from wanting to bite the hand that feeds it. And the man who marries her beauty makes an equally foolish bargain because he is bound to lose out in a few years. In time the most beautiful bathing-beauty figure changes its contour, the glossiest hair grows dull and gray, the fairest cheeks lose their freshness and if good looks were all that the girl had, then what have you?

But the qualities that these boys and girls in their blindness overlooked as nonessential in a husband or wife are in reality the only ones that are important. The girls did not ask that the men they marry have intelligence nor did the boys look for that in their wives. Yet if the girls marry men with brains they will get them the money they crave and if the boys marry women with brains they will have charm left after their beauty had fled.

Besides, intelligent husbands and wives lift matrimony out of the slough of boredom in which it is apt to fall. They are interesting and amusing companions and they are pleasant and easy to live with because they have sense enough to meet the exigencies of everyday life with philosophy and humor.

And there is the matter of congeniality. Next to having a plentiful supply of good, hard, horse sense in the one you marry is having the same point of view and liking the same kind of cooking and literature and amusements and having the same brand of politics and religion. Nine-tenths of married happiness consists in husbands and wives being able to yes-yes each other instead of being in a perpetual argument. The people whose society we enjoy, with whom we can talk endlessly, who double our every joy and halve our sorrows are those who are sympathetic with us, not those who rub our fur the wrong way.

So if these young people had been wise, instead of asking for money and beauty when they marry they would have prayed Heaven to send them husbands and wives who had plenty of gray matter in their heads who had a well-developed funny bone and who liked the things they liked.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a man of 27 and single, and until a few months ago I intended to stay single the balance of my life, but now I have met a girl who has attracted me strangely. Maybe it is love, only if it is I never thought that love was like this. Just a companionableness. Then I found out that she cared deeply for me, but that she is engaged to another man who can give her all the luxuries that I can't and never will be able to give her. Now suddenly I seem to care quite terribly for her, but I can't decide if it is because I really love her, or because she belongs to some one else that I want her. Another angle is my extreme selfishness that makes me feel that I might chafe under the restrictions that married life naturally imposes. The girl has put off her marriage for a year so that we may try to decide what is best to do. Can you see any solution to the problem? I swear that I am just going round in circles.

—FREDERICK.

Answer—And my advice to you, Frederick, is to keep young. Anyway that doesn't lead to the altar, for evidently you have only a platonic affection for the girl, and that isn't enough to marry on, especially when you haven't anything to offer her but love in exchange for all that the other man can give her.

If you were overwhelmingly, passionately in love with her that would compensate for the fine establishment, the ease and luxury that she would sacrifice for you, but when she found out, as a woman is bound to find out, that you only had a lukewarm liking for her, she would feel that she had made a pretty bad bargain and regret it.

Evidently you are strongly predisposed toward matrimony, anyway. You have no cosmic urge toward your own woman, your own children, your own hearthstone, and that type of man is not easily domesticated. He always hears the call of the wild and even the most silken of marriage fetters gall him.

So my advice to you is to stay single until Old Dan Cupid hands you a blow that will knock you out for keeps. Wait until you find some woman that you won't have to debate whether you love or not. You will just know that you can't live without her. Wait until you don't dread the bondage of matrimony—until you look upon it as a blessed privilege.

In the meantime you will always find plenty of women that you will like as well as you do this girl, intelligent, companionable women who will have the same interests that you have and you can have their society without assuming their board bills and shopping tickets.—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I have been married twice. My first husband I divorced after three years of hell and drunkenness. My second husband died. Now a man 11 years younger than I am wants to marry me. I am extremely well off. The young man has nothing to offer, except companionship, no savings or home. His family object. Would you marry him?—ANXIOUS.

Answer—You have had one unhappy marriage. Why chance another? A rich widow has a right to be suspicious of the motives of an impecunious boy 11 years younger than she is when he comes a-wooing. She can hire a companion more cheaply. I think you had better let well enough alone, for there is nobody who can have a better time than a widow with a fat pocketbook.—DOROTHY DIX.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

CHICAGO, July 8. (US)—A Chicago woman has given concrete form to the idea that beauty culture is founded on a state of mind. She has made a fortune out of the idea.

She never has advertised. She hasn't even had a sign on the door of her establishment to tell what sort of business she has.

She knows that women believe only in those things that are costly, so she charges enough. She shows customers checks from people of importance, for sums that run into four figures. They are so surprised that they tell others.

The lady who tells me about her went there for a treatment. She saw the checks. She sent someone else and that woman saw the checks, all bearing imposing names. They were told that certain somebodies, and they were somebodies, never passed through Chicago, or came for a visit that they didn't place themselves in her hands for a few hours, or a few days, before they will let anybody see them.

The lady takes you from one room to another, giving you soothing somethings, until you are in sort of a pleasant daze (if you don't have to worry about the check.) You hardly remember all the things she does to you, because you feel that when you come out you are going to be thinner, more beautiful, almost irresistible. That's what the sales talk does.

She tells you that you will lose not less than three pounds in the process. When she weighs you after she has done with you, her scales say three pounds less than when you went in.

It's the woman who follows you from room to room handing you glasses of lemon juice and water the entire time you are there, who turns the trick—if you ask me. But you didn't.

One feature is the message that "breaks down fat cells." While you are getting it, the lady tells you that you are going to be all these things you want to be, and to get your mind "right," and to think what she is doing will bring about the desired results and if you are a fast thinker, you begin to wonder if it isn't you who does the work while she furnishes conversation.

The trickiest thing about it, is the hose treatment. A strong woman with a big garden hose in each hand, and a healthy stream of water shooting out, (at body temperature), aims the two streams at you, one on each side, and she seems to be tracing your figure with the streams of water.

"It feels," said the one who had spent her money, "like she might be tracing your figure in the shape it should be, and actually cutting off the bulges. She even runs one of these big streams of water under your chin to shape that."

"Doesn't it knock you over?" I asked her.

She hesitates and says: "Well—not quite."

The lady told of a girl due to be bridesmaid at a fashionable wedding. Three hours before the event she was in a taxicab smash, and her face was bruised and slightly cut. The beauty expert fixed her up so that she herself believed the accident must have been a myth. It took the whole three hours.

"What did she do?" I asked.

"Well," said the girl, "she told me she used a couple of pounds of honey. Rubbed it into the face somehow. I don't quite understand it."

If you want to get a couple of pounds of honey rubbed into your already funny face, it's a wonderful chance—for somebody. Somebody else—not me!

NEW YORK POLICE FORM 'SHADOW SQUAD' TO WATCH GANGS

CRIME SECRETS TO BE SOUGHT

Special Detectives to Mingle With Gangsters

NEW YORK, July 9. (INS)—Failure of the New York police to make any headway in solving the Marlow, Rothstein, Yale and other recent gang murders resulted today in one of the most startling innovations in the history of the department, the creation of a supersecret body within the detective bureau, the members of which will mingle with gang leaders.

Organizations of the bureau, the actual operation of which will put to shame the most fantastic secret service or detective fiction, was announced today by Police Commissioner Whalen.

$50,000 Available

A fund of $50,000 has already been set aside for the initial work of the 50 operatives assigned to begin the bureau's work.

They will carry no shields, equipment or identification of any kind and will be allowed to make no arrests. Nor will they be required or even permitted to assist officially in any police investigation or prosecution.

Their sole duties will be to mingle with various gangs and underworld characters so that when such a murder as Marlow's occurs, the department instantly will know what men might have plotted the death and what men might have carried it out, together with all the motives and reasons.

They will make their reports in three ways—by mail, over the secret telephone lines, and by word of mouth to other agents, who will meet them at rendezvous, give them money and carry back the information to the offices. Full reports of all the characters they observe will be filed at the bureau headquarters under another set of numbers. The identity of the underworld characters will be concealed in another master file.

Watch "Lone Wolves"

The agents will be instructed not to bother with vice or gambling except where a ring is involved that might resort to crimes or violence.

All underworld groups, however, will be closely watched, as well as individual "lone wolves" who commit crimes of violence.

Commissioner Whalen said he was determined to stamp out gangs in New York and felt that such a bureau, modeled upon existing ones in European capitals, was the only manner in which he could do so.

He pointed out that only one man in the entire police department had been able to give him any information on the Marlow case and that man was an ordinary patrolman who had used his eyes on his beat.

Patrolman Timothy Nussron, he said, telephoned the detective division of his own precinct to report, following the murder of Marlow, that he had seen the racketeer dining with friends at a restaurant in his beat a few hours before the murder. It was only because of the patrolman's information that Commissioner Whalen was enabled to obtain the material which he hopes may help to solve the case.

Texas Flower Dealers in Session at Galveston

GALVESTON, July 9. (AP)—A long fight for and against the chain store system looms ahead of Texas florists, it was said at the annual meeting of the Texas State Florists association here today.

A motion by R. C. Kerr of Houston for the organization of a research committee to delve into major problems confronting individual florists was recognized as an effort to thwart within the next several years the merging of florist firms into chain systems.

Warm discussion followed introduction of the motion, and several amendments were added. Finally, it was decided to shift the motion to the board of directors, who will take the matter under advisement and report before the close of the convention.

CANADIAN RUM EXPORTS DROP

Treasury's War on Smuggling Gets Results

WASHINGTON, July 9. (AP)—The treasury's intensive war upon bootleggers who import liquor into the United States from Canada in the month of June cut the amount of alcoholic beverages exported from the Windsor, Ont., area by 357,155 gallons.

Figures showed that in the year ending last May 31 more than 5,000,000 gallons of alcoholic beverages had been exported from points opposite Detroit into this country, and scores of prohibition, coast guard and customs agents were sent into the region with orders to stop the smuggling.

The first definite indication of how effective the rum blockade had become was received yesterday by the treasury from the Canadian collector of national revenues at Ottawa, who reported that exportations of liquor in the Windsor area last month totaled 112,878 gallons. The statement also showed that in June 1928, the exportations amounted to 470,033 gallons.

The treasury said that data on all Canadian exportations of liquor to the United States was not yet available. Figures made public for the preceding year by the department of justice showed that Canada exported 1,169,000 gallons of whisky valued at $18,883,541 to this country, and that exportation of other alcoholic beverages to the United States brought the value of such liquors to a total of $24,397,925.

DIRECTORS MAKE PLANS FOR ANNUAL CHILDRESS FAIR

LIVESTOCK TO BE FEATURED

Explosion to Be Held From Sept. 23 to 28

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, Texas, July 9.—Stressing livestock, more especially farm dairy cattle, will be the aim of the directors of the Childress State fair, states Jerry Debenport, secretary. The fair will begin Sept. 23, closing on the 28th.

Childress county farmers have been giving a great deal of attention to dairying during the past few years, the county standing near the head of Texas counties in this line of endeavor. During the year 1928 dealers in the county paid out a little more than $325,000 for whole milk and cream.

Premium Lists Studied

The premium lists now under consideration will give a far greater space to farm dairy cattle than any other classification. By this it is meant that the dairy cows to be judged under that title will be grades and not pure bred stuff. It is realized by the directors of the fair that the farmers of Childress county have been building up their herds for some years, but as yet few farmers have only registered animals.

If registered animals alone were to be judged the ring would only show a few head. But with the grade cows there should be a large number of entries, officials said.

Entertainers Chosen

The Bill H. Hames shows will be placed along amusement row. This is the same company that was on the midway at the Fort Worth Fat Stock show in March, and is recognized as one of the best in that line. There will be auto races for two days. One day will witness a football game between the teams of the high schools of Childress and Plainview.

The open air program will consist of eight acts, according to contracts recently made. The performers will appear at Childress three days, when they will go to Marshall to appear at the East Texas fair, while the performers appearing there will come to Childress for three days.

Scout Exhibits

There are three troops of Boy Scouts in Childress and it is expected that a feature of the fair will be an exhibit arranged by the members of the troops. The boys will show their handicraft work, the exhibit to be very large, according to statements made.

The Childress State fair is one of the oldest fairs in Texas, having been originally organized in 1887, when the first barbecue was held in the county. For many years the organization met on July 18, but about 20 years ago it was decided that July 18 was too early in the season for farm exhibits and a later date was selected. The fair has been a financial success for many years and is recognized as one of the best fairs in the state.

Dangerous Age for Women Put at 19

NEW YORK, July 9. (INS)—The dangerous age for women is 19, according to Elizabeth Butler, a social worker.

Miss Butler's declaration was contained in a report made by her to Commissioner of Correction Richard R. Patterson on four months of study of women offenders in local penal institutions.

Out of 41 shoplifters studied, Miss Butler's report states, 19 per cent of the total were 19. And out of 45 other women studied, 39 per cent were the same age.

The report listed "bad company," "working as a waitress" and "working in dance halls" as the principal reasons for girls' falls from grace.

LONDON, July 9. (UP)—The anxiety which the British nation has felt for a day and a half since it became known that King George had changed his plans to go to his summer home in order to submit to additional X-ray examinations, was lifted somewhat today.

While the eminent physicians continued to study the X-ray plates, and indicated their study would continue tomorrow the king went about the routine affairs of his royal existence and devoted a considerable portion of the afternoon to sitting out of doors about the grounds of Buckingham palace.

GIRLS' PROGRAM AT CHILDRESS

Clubs Offer Financial Aid To Work

CHILDRESS, Texas, July 9. (Spl.)—A girls' work program for Childress, similar to the unique boys' work program now under way here, seems assured for this city since different organizations have pledged financial backing. The Business and Professional Women's club voted their support at a meeting held last Friday night. A committee had worked out tentative plans on Friday morning and appointed Jerry Debenport, secretary of the chamber of commerce, as spokesman to the Business and Professional Women's club. Mr. Debenport pointed out the success of boys' work financed by the Lions and Rotary clubs, the Y. M. C. A. and the city and suggested that the girls' work be carried on through support of the Business and Professional Women's club, the city school, the Department club and the Kiwanis club. Mrs. Marshall Duke of Wichita Falls was a special guest at the Friday night meeting.

American Film Concern Seeks Movie Combine

LONDON, July 9. (INS)—The Fox film company of America was reported today to be attempting to obtain control of the Gaumont-British Picture corporation, largest movie combine in Great Britain.

Fox interests, it is understood, have offered to buy $5,000,000 worth of shares in the British company at 50 cents a share more than the price at which the stock is now selling.

This would place ultimate control of the British company entirely within reach of the Fox concern.

Officials of Gaumont-British admit that an offer has been made, but refuse to divulge any information. It is said, however, there is considerable opposition among the directors, and it is regarded as certain that Fox would have great difficulty in asserting control, even if the shares were bought.

It is feared in British film circles that, unless the directors resolutely refuse the offer, it may bring about another quarrel similar to that in which the British General Electric Co., Ltd., was concerned.

The British film company was formed in 1927 and dominated the industry in the United Kingdom.

Saltless Diet Found to Cure Even Advanced Cases of Tuberculosis

By WILLIAM HILLMAN

BERLIN, July 9. (US)—That tuberculosis, even in the advanced stages, may be cured by a simple method of dieting in which all salt is eliminated and only little meat is used, is the sensational announcement made before the Berlin Medical society today by Professor Ferdinand Sauerbruch.

Not only tuberculosis of the lungs, but also of the bones, joints, glands and skin, have been cured by patients adhering strictly to the diet formulated by Dr. Hermannsdorfer, of Munich, and Dr. Gerson, of Bielefeld, it was stated.

This diet consists of foods rich in fats, and fruit, vegetables and salads consumed mainly in their raw form, thus increasing the vitamins. The diet contains absolutely no cooking salt, very little meat, and moderate albumens, and little food with carbohydrates, such as bread, sugar, sweets or deserts, or anything made of flour.

The mineral salts in this diet compensate for the total lack of cooking salts, the elimination of which helps the destruction of the dreaded "white plague."

This cure is the result of four years of experimentation and careful observation, and has roused the greatest hope in the medical world in combatting the great scourage of mankind.

THE NEW VIKING
Ninety Degree V-type Eight

INTRODUCES New Qualities of Performance --New Tailored Smartness --New Luxury and Comfort to the Medium Price Field --

The Viking engine embodies distinctly new and desirable principles of engineering design

PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS

THE VIKING, an entirely new car—a product of General Motors, built by Oldsmobile—brings to the medium-price field the advantages of ninety-degree, V-type, eight-cylinder design.

Never before has any medium-priced car offered more completely balanced performance—more brilliant styling—more luxurious comfort. Never has there been a more significant event in automotive history than the introduction of the new Viking.

Viking performance is the result of the ninety-degree, V-type principle—characteristic of high-priced cars—brought to a new high stage of development by the introduction of new engineering advancements based on well-established time-proven fundamentals.

This new engine delivers 81 horsepower, with exceptional smoothness throughout its entire speed range. Its response to the throttle is remarkable in all gears. Its top speed is more than ample for any emergency. And it provides a mighty power reserve for steep hills, long grades, and hard pulling.

An advancement that makes possible many of the new features of the Viking is the integral casting of the cylinder block and crankcase in one unit. This results in greater rigidity, easier accessibility, a new and highly efficient valve arrangement, and advanced cooling and lubrication.

The natural compactness of the Viking engine . . . the ribbing and trussing of the crankcase—the short, rigid crankshaft, which is counter-weighted for maximum balance—large, oversize bearings—and special shock-absorbing rubber engine mountings . . . assures exceptional smoothness, quietness, and long life.

Another important advancement in automotive engineering practice is the new Viking valve arrangement, which combines the fuel efficiency of the overhead location of valves with the quietness, simplicity, and rigidity of side-valve design.

The Viking engine is more accessible than the conventional automobile engine. For example, the valve mechanism may be easily reached by lifting the two horizontal cover plates located on top of the engine.

Fuel distribution is based on the down-draft principle. A new type of manifolding takes the incoming fuel vapor always downward, after it leaves the carburetor—an equal distance to each cylinder.

In the new Viking lubricating system, all main, connecting rod, camshaft, and rocker arm bearings are pressure-lubricated—as are the piston pins—through rifle-drilled connecting rods. Oil dilution is prevented by crankcase ventilation. Injurious foreign matter is removed by the new Viking precipitating-trap system of oil cleaning.

Cooling is also exceptionally efficient. Equal manifold distribution of the water in the twin blocks, with graduated outlets direct to points of greatest heat, assures uniform, efficient cooling of the entire engine. Cylinder walls, valves, valve stem guides, and combustion chambers are water-jacketed. There is an engine temperature gauge on the dash, and thermostatically-controlled radiator shutters are standard equipment.

And the great Viking ninety-degree, V-type, eight-cylinder engine is mounted in a great chassis—a chassis that is truly noteworthy for its strength and balance.

The strong, rigid frame is built of heavy steel reinforced by five stout cross-members. It tapers to the front to permit a short turning radius and is low-swung to provide a low center of gravity.

The wheelbase of the new Viking is 125 inches. It is equipped with oversize mechanical four-wheel brakes of the new two-shoe internal-expanding type. Four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers, synchronized with the spring action, assure restful riding comfort.

The bodies of the new Viking are the smartest, latest style creations of Fisher artist-engineers. In designing the Viking, they sought distinction along the most difficult path—the achievement of beauty and grace through simplicity. The result justifies their diligence, for the new Viking takes its place among the smartest of cars, regardless of price.

In keeping with their beauty, the Viking bodies are luxuriously furnished. There is plenty of head room and leg room. Seats are deep-cushioned, and incline at just the right angle to provide arm-chair comfort. Upholsteries and appointments are rich in quality and tasteful in design.

For the driver's comfort and convenience, both steering wheel and front seat are adjustable, making the driving position a matter of individual choice. All controls are easy to reach and to operate. Dash instruments are grouped under glass on a handsome, directly or indirectly lighted panel.

Because it provides, at a medium price, qualities of advanced design, beauty, luxury, performance, and stamina heretofore found only in costly cars, the Viking is a value leader.

The new Viking is now on display. Come and see it. Inspect it closely. Take it for a trial drive. Compare it critically with other cars. You can come to only one conclusion—that the new Viking offers a combination of appearance, performance, and value unsurpassed by any other car.

Frederick, Okla., Expects to Get New Federal Building by Next Fall

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., July 9.—Posamaster A. M. Dennis has been notified by W. C. Beal, a postoffice inspector of Omaha, Neb., that the latter will be in Frederick this month to inspect the site to be used for the proposed $65,000 federal building.

Estimated value of the site, which is 150 by 140 feet, located at Eleventh and Grand, facing Eleventh street, is from $10,000 to $12,000. These lots were purchased by the government in 1915 through the efforts of Congressman Jim V. McClintic. Although McClintic has since been making every effort to get a federal building erected on the site, it was only last fall that Senator W. B. Pine was able to get an appropriation for buildings at Frederick and other points in Oklahoma.

While in Oklahoma Beal will also inspect the sites for proposed buildings at Hobart, Ada and Duncan.

The postoffice department has a lease on the lower floor of the Masonic temple, erected about a year ago, but the contract provides that it can be vacated whenever a federal building is erected. The money for construction is available this year and it is expected that the building will be erected before fall.

Daily Editorial

NATURE and the automobile manufacturer are alike turning out a remarkably efficient product.

Time and experience have taught both to eliminate unnecessary mechanism, balance stresses with strains and secure the maximum of power with the minimum of energy.

The trouble with most cars and most people is a matter of mishandling and reckless abuse.

We drive ourselves and our machines above the speed limit, postpone attention to body squeaks and piddling defects, permit jangled nerves and wires to go too long unattended, then finally lay up for compulsory repairs, which reasonable caution and forehandedness might easily obviate.

Automotive engineers, at balance sheet suggestion, are increasingly occupied with the problem of service.

One company after another is amplifying the facilities of dealers to cope with the premature deterioration of their vehicles, so that the consumer may get a longer run for his money.

And life insurance, studying mortality averages, is tearing a leaf from the same book.

Statisticians find, upon analysis, that there's more money to be made out of keeping folk well and sound than permitting them to go completely blooey, through disregard of apparently minor ailments, admonitory back cricks and the informative twinges with which overworked or mal-nourished organs signal the need of diagnosis.

Half of us die before the slightest necessity to quit operation.

SURGERY has so many available tools to recondition the system, and medicine has lately added so many lubricants and spark-plug cleaners to its assortment, that most of yesterday's "hopeless" ills yield to early treatment and cease thereafter to corrode and disable essential parts.

Canadian insurance men, at their recent convention, have voted to furnish free medical examination for all policy holders—each of whom will be entitled to periodic consultation with the ablest corps of physicians in the dominion.

The cost of the innovation will add a staggering sum to overhead, but careful survey indicates that it will prove an investment instead of an expense.

Another version of the proverbial "stitch in time."

As well as a vindication of the Chinese system of "an ounce of prevention rather than a pound of cure."

The Canadian public foots the bill in the end, but faces lighter premiums, through longer average and consequently gets the best of the bargain.

A little vigilance now and then, robs the junk pile, graveyard and dentist's chair of many a victim.

Collisions begin with loose brakes. Chronic ailments are born of insignificant derangements. And big cavities always start as little enamel holes.

Fourteen cases of malaria at the Canal Zone in 1928 suggest what may still be done against the forces of disease and decay, when we see other seeming trifles besides mosquitos—not as negligible mites but as mighty mischiefs.

When man finally makes up his mind to extend the Biblical three score and ten life-span by an extra decade or so—he'll discover the wherewithals waiting in phophylaxis, sanitation and the abundant collection of monkey wrenches which science and common sense stand ready to provide.

The Law and the Races

IT BEGINS to look as if the sacred duty of law observance is one of those things that nearly everybody is glad to endorse, but that few people are willing to observe in daily practice.

The subject is a ticklish one, because "law observance" is usually just a left-handed way of talking exclusively about prohibition. But the question arises in connection with many other laws. It did before we had prohibition, and it will continue to do so for many years; and there is more loose thinking and self-deception connected with it than with any other phase of national life.

Consider, for instance, the matter of horse racing.

In the state of Ohio you can always get a round of applause by demanding the strict enforcement of existing laws. Ohio is a law and order state. Its citizens would grow pale if anyone sugested that they nullify any of their laws.

Now there are a number of racetracks in Ohio. And in Ohio, as in most other states, there are strict laws against gambling. The state laws permit horse racing, just as they permit baseball and golf; but they very plainly forbid any betting on them.

Everybody who knows anything about horse racing knows that no track can operate for a week without betting. The "percentage" from the betting machines is what gives the track its profit. If there is no betting, there is no racing. That holds good everywhere, always.

Yet, despite Ohio's strict laws against betting, Ohio has plenty of horse racing.

Here's the way it usually works.

The tracks are located in small suburban towns near the big cities. One of the announces a three weeks' meeting. The mayor of the village remarks that it isn't his job to stop racing; that's up to the sheriff. The sheriff says that he doesn't know anything about it; that he has received no complaints, and that he can't enter the village to make arrests unless the mayor calls on him for help. State officials sometimes say that the whole matter is up to the local authorities.

So, with everybody passing the buck, the race meeting is held, a lot of money is bet quite openly, and everybody is happy—except, maybe, the families of the luckless wage earners who have lost more money than they could afford.

To be sure, the tracks don't have everything their own way. If there are too many meetings in one place, business suffers—and the business men speak to the sheriff, and the law gets enforced beautifully. But where the track owners are "reasonable"—you can take that any way you want to—they aren't interfered with.

The problem of law enforcement includes lots of laws besides the Volstead act. It's pretty nearly time we stopped kidding ourselves about it and modified some of those other laws that we don't really intend to enforce.

The Real Golf Fans

THE HUGE CROWDS that watched the national open golf match at Mamaroneck testified abundantly to the strong hold that this game has on the American public.

Yet one of the pictures of the final round between Jones and Espinosa gave, by accident, a sidelight that helps to explain better than the big throngs of spectators the popularity of the game.

In the foreground of the picture, Jones and Espinosa were on the putting green. Several thousand people were grouped around them, watching the championship being decided. But away in the background, ignoring the historic struggle, could be seen other figures—a few ordinary golfers, taking advantage of the absence of the crowd to play their own game in the trail of the great ones.

That is the sort of thing that makes golf live. Those golfers who chose not to wach the play-off, and instead went out and played themselves; they are the true golf enthusiasts—the sort of people who give golf its standing.

A Tip for State Legislators

FOURTH OF JULY accident figures show that many young Americans are still being killed or maimed each year by fireworks—and this in spite of years of agitation for a "safe and sane fourth."

The cities are doing their part. Nearly every town of any size forbids the sale of fireworks. But the vendors put up stalls on the country roads, just beyond the city limits; and in this day of automobiles, that makes fireworks as easily bought as if they were on sale in the downtown department stores.

The remedy would seem to be state laws against the sale of fireworks. Firecrackers, Roman candles and toy cannon are very fine, but they're too dangerous for kids to play with. Our state legislators might give this matter a little serious thought.

Special to The Record News

MUNDAY, Texas, July 9.—The Farmers' Co-operative and Educational Union of Texas, in annual session here today passed a resolution urging President Hoover to name E. A. Calvin, Houston, on the federal farm board.

The resolution, wired to the president late today, urged that "the greatest farming state of all, and the actual farmers be represented on the farm relief committee," and further pleaded with the executive not to "complete the board until you send for Mr. Calvin for a personal interview." The telegram was signed by J. D. Henderson, Munday, president of the association, and other officials.

Other resolutions passed by the association endorsed the farm relief bill passed recently by congress and urged farmers of the state and nation to organize to more fully derive benefits from the legislation; urged farmers and tenants to co-operate more fully in the production of poultry and livestock, and in a general diversification program; and favored the reduction in auto license fees and the five-cent gasoline tax.

About 50 delegates from unit organizations throughout the state attended the meeting, which closed late today. The meeting began this morning.

All officers of the association were re-elected by acclamation. In in addition to the president, the officers are: Joe Koenig, Rhineland, vice president; J. E. Edwards, Munday, secretary; C. F. Steves, Runge, chairman, and A. L. Baker, Stockdale, secretary of the executive committee.

MOODY URGES 2 AMENDMENTS

Governor Especially Pleads For Court Change

ROUND ROCK, Texas, July 9. (AP)—Adoption of an amendment to the constitution increasing membership of the supreme court from three to nine was advocated as a step to strengthen materially Texas' judicial system in an address by Governor Moody here today. The governor's appearance was in connection with the annual reunion of Williamson county residents.

The proposed amendment, together with another increasing the governor's salary from $4,000 to $10,000 annually, will be balloted on at an election set for July 16.

The governor asserted adoption of the amendment would not be a political victory for himself and its rejection would not be a political defeat.

"I advocated submission of this amendment and I now advocate its adoption, because conditions are such that the welfare of the state and the speedy disposition of litigation demands a supreme court of nine judges," he said.

BOY LOSES ARM IN ACCIDENT

LAWTON, Okla., July 9.—David Turner, aged 5 years, was recovering nicely today at a local hospital from the shock of the amputation of his right arm, just above the elbow, as a result of an automobile accident Sunday afternoon.

The boy was struck by a car driven by C. L. Ferguson, of Chickasha, at Ninth street and South boundary when, Mr. Ferguson states, he ran out from between two cars parked at the curb, immediately in front of his car. The boy was dragged some distance and the arm was run over and badly mangled, making amputation necessary.

The GREEN SHADOW - By Herman Landon

(Copyright by Public Ledger)

Police Captain Summers is meditating on the escapades of the Picaroon, whom he is convinced is really his friend, Martin Dale. Mr. Alexander Ferryman calls to relate a tale of strange happenings at 262 Bank street and requests police investigation. Axelson, a watchman employed by Ferryman, has heard footsteps and seen an eerie green light. Ferryman is showing the captain a picture when the telephone rings. A voice tells of finding a woman's body at the above address—the dead woman is Ferryman's wife. Summers finds only one clue, a bit of green lens.

Meantime, the Picaroon has written a note to Adele Castle requesting a meeting in Central Park. Adele has had a terrifying experience. Taken by a mysterious Miss Conway to a strange light through which she could glimpse only the faint outline of a man, calling himself Dr. Moffett, she is told that her father has been connected with a crooked financial deal. Dr. Moffett demands $100,000 for his silence and certain papers.

Adele and Dale meet. He tells her he was present during her strange interview with Dr. Moffett and promises to help her. Dale also meets Adele's friend, Paul Ainsworth. They become suspicious of one another. Dale "on his own" enters the house where the murder occurred and is trapped within by Summers, Ferryman and Axelson, who discover Dale taking a rope of pearls from behind a sliding panel. Dale darkens the room, throws Axelson through a window, and in the resultant confusion escapes.

Summers at luncheon next day receives a note and package from the Picaroon. In the package he finds the missing pearls.

Meantime, Dr. Moffett is getting anxious and telephones, giving Miss Castle just 24 hours in which to make payment to save her father from disgrace and prosecution.

Dale draws cash from his bank and makes an appointment with Adele. He then visits the Ferryman home, agreeing to capture the murderer within a week.

Adele Castle is instructed by Dale how to handle Dr. Moffett when he telephones. Wambley, a servant, is revealed as a spy.

All is set for the Mummers Frolic, where Adele is to make a $50,000 payment to Dr. Moffett's agent. Dale is also present, disguised as the Picaroon.

Miss Castle reviews certain papers presented to her by Dr. Moffett's agent on a balcony just off the ballroom. A streak of fire shot into the sky brings the exchange of papers for $50,000 to a climax. Temporarily, at least, the deal is off.

"Murder This Time"

"Hello, Dale," said a grim, low-pitched voice.

Dale started. A sharp quiver of apprehension ran through him. A short, stocky, curiously soft-footed man stepped out from the shadow of a tree. Dale sprang from his seat.

"Oh, you, Summers!" His voice was hard and gruff. "What do you want?"

Summers came closer, fixing Dale with alert, wary eyes. "You've sure traveled a queer course tonight, Dale. I tried to get the hang of it, but I couldn't. Too deep for me!"

"What do you want?" asked Dale again.

"You're under arrest—for murder," said Summers.

"Murder?" Dale gasped, and before he could recover from his astonishment his arms were seized by two powerful men in uniform who had come up behind Summers. For a moment or two he was too dumfounded to protest or resist. In an instant his hands were manacled with steel links, and he was being led toward a car that was slowly coming up from the end of the block.

The car stopped and two strong arms lifted him to a seat. A numbing daze seemed to have seized his mind and body. The car started with a jerk and swung rapidly down the broad avenue. The sudden start threw his head against an obstruction in the back, and the jolt seemed to shake his mind clear. A horrible thought came. Miss Castle! In a few moments she would start out on her adventure—alone!

He sprang up, tore at the links that incapacitated his hands, and aimed a vigrous kick at one of the two officers seated on either side. In a moment has was roughly shoved back. He struggled fiercely, with a maddening fear torturing his brain, but his manacled hands were powerless against the combined strength of the two officers.

Summers, seated beside the driver, turned his topheavy head and looked back.

"It's no use, Dale." There was an old trace of gruff gentleness in his voice. Summers' triumph was alloyed with just a grain of regret. "This is your finish and you might as well know it."

Dale's mind worked with frantic haste. He realized that resistance would be worse than useless. If he could only stop Miss Castle before she went forth on her perilous mission! He tried to count the minutes that had elapsed since Summers emerged from the shadow of the tree. Not more than 10, surely. There might still be time.

"Summers!" he cried hoarsely. "Stop the car! I must telephone!"

The captain turned again and shook his head. There was a reluctant grin on his lips. "No, Dale. I know your tricks. You have played too many. I'm not taking any more chances with you."

Dale writhed in torment. Frightful visions flashed through his mind. He could see Summers was adamant. He was suspicious of even such a simple request as the privilege to telephone. And no wonder. He had been surprised and humiliated too often. This was Dale's punishment for the unmerciful jests and ingenious tricks he had played on the captain. But he tried again.

"Listen, Summers! I simply must get a message to somebody. These officers can stand beside me. You can hold a gun against my back. But I must——"

Summers shook his head. "No, Dale. You're not going to make a fool of me any more. You got away from me the other night. I was holding a gun to you then, and there were two officers watching you besides. Yet you got away."

"But it's a matter of life and death!"

"So you say." The captain shrugged his sturdy shoulders.

Dale groaned. Moments charged with dire possibilities were flitting away. The old and rickety car pursued its bumping progress through deserted streets. He racked his brain for an argument with which to impress Summers, but he could find none. They all rebounded against the captain's suspicious attitude.

"Summers," he began again.

"Might as well give it up, Dale. I'm not going to let you pull any tricks on me. It's murder this time."

"Murder?" Dale echoed the word in a stupefied tone. "I never killed anybody, but I'll plead guilty to anything if you will give me one minute at a telephone."

"Not one second—not until I get you inside four walls."

"But then it will be too late!" Dale cried in dismay.

"To bad," said Summers with a shrug.

Dale squirmed in a torment of despair. Adele Castle—Doctor Moffett—the lonely, sinister house in the woods. And he, Dale, unable to raise a hand against the evil contrivances!

"What time is it now?" he asked hoarsely.

Summers looked at his watch, and then he looked at Dale as if suspecting that even this simple question might be fraught with some subtle stratagem.

"Two minutes to 11."

A sickening despair wrenched at his heart. Miss Castle would have started now. It was too late to try to stop her. Nothing could be done. A curtain of finality hung over the drama that was to be enacted in the lonely house in the woods. There was nothing now to hinder Doctor Moffett in the execution of his diabolical scheme.

Doctor Moffett! The name seemed to stab a realization into life in Dale's brain. He could not know on what grounds he was being arrested, but probably they were of Doctor Moffett's contrivance. Probably that crafty villain's plots ran a far deeper course than he had realized. He had been warned not to meddle, and now the warning had been put into effect. He stood in Doctor Moffett's way and so he had to be rendered harmless. The whole thing smacked of a carefully prearranged plot.

He shrugged. The exact reasons could not matter now. It was enough that he was utterly helpless. Yet the mere realization of his helplessness turned his thoughts away from the major problem. He gazed at Summers' sturdy shoulders and oversized head.

"What did you say the charge was, Summers?"

"Murder!" Summers looked at him as if he thought the question peculiar. "The murder of Mrs. Ferryman."

"Oh! I suppose you have found a few more cigar bands?"

"No." The captain made a wry face. "The cigar band didn't mean much. Neither did the pearls—though it was queer you should know exactly where they were. It's something stronger. I've got the real goods on you this time."

The car bumped its way over a rough spot in the street.

"Indeed?" said Dale. "What is it? An eyewitness to the crime?"

"No, but something just as good. It will mean the chair, Dale." Summers jerked up his shoulders as if to stifle an emotion of which he was ashamed. "I have the murdered woman's own word for it that you killed her."

Dale sat as if stunned for a moment. The car slackened its speed. They came out of a dark block, and now they slowed down before a building with many lighted windows.

"The murdered woman's word?" Dale exclaimed.

"Yes, Mrs. Ferryman's. She ought to know."

It sounded idiotic to Dale, but he had no time for further questions. The car came to a full stop, and he was led into the building by the two officers, with Summers in the rear. They entered a long, narrow room with a long table in the center. One of the uniformed men remained at the door while the other stood a few paces behind the chair in which Dale was directed to sit. Over the table hung three glaring arc lights.

Opposite Dale at the table sat a robust individual in civilian dress. His face was broad and looked as if it had been carved out of a block of wood, and the little caterpillar mustache under his nose seemed grotesquely misplaced. He had an immense head, utterly bald, that curved into a peak at the top.

"Mr. Gossler of the district attorney's office," said Summers. "You take him, Mr. Gossler."

The captain dropped into a chair at Dale's side. At a nod from Gossler the handcuffs were removed from the prisoner's wrists. He stretched his hands to ease the strain in the muscles while he looked into Gossler's small, crafty, yellowish eyes. A clock was ticking on the wall. Half past 11. Adele Castle was speeding toward her fate now, brave and confident in the belief that Dale was not far away.

He stifled a groan. The clock ticked blithely on. Again he looked into Gossler's hard, imperturbable eyes. No consideration was to be expected from that quarter. An appeal to brain or heart would be equally useless. He knew the type. But Summers——

He turned in his chair. Summers sat with lips drawn grimly tight, his head hunched down a little and cocked to one side, his face cast into a mold of studied stolidity. The majesty of the law was functioning. his face seemed to say and Summers was only a cog in the machine, without power to interfere, even if he should be so inclined.

In his mind he tried to frame an appeal to the heart he knew was beating behind that stolid exterior. There might still be time. He knew exactly how to reach the sequestered house in the woods. A fast car could cover the distance in a little more than an hour, reaching the house soon after Miss Castle's arrival.

"Summers," he spoke, "I don't know what new evidence you think you have found against me, but it's a frame-up. That's a positive fact. You will realize it before long. The man who murdered Mrs. Ferryman is about to commit another crime tonight. He wanted no interference, and so he faked this new evidence, whatever it is. He is duping you—"

"Oh, is he?" Summers spoke as if he had been stung in a sensitive spot. "Duping me, is he? There's only one man that ever duped me, and that's you. No, Dale, it won't work. There's no frame-up. I found the new evidence myself this afternoon."

"Then it was planted where some one knew you would find it."

Summers shook his head with a positive air. "No, that kind of evidence can't be planted. You can't plant a dead person's voice."

"A dead person's voice?" It sounded wildly absurd, but Dale brushed his astonishment aside for the present. "Please listen, Summers. There is a house over on the Connecticut side." He described the location as well as he could. "A young woman was lured there this evening. She is in desperate danger. You can easily satisfy yourself that I am telling you the truth by sending a car and some officers out there. I'll stay here."

"You bet you will! What's the telephone number of the house?"

"I don't know. I'm not even sure there is a telephone."

"Who owns the place?"

"I can't tell you that, but a certain slick devil who calls himself Dr. Moffett is there tonight."

"Moffett—Dr. Moffett? I've heard that name before." Summers' brow was corrugated with perplexities and indecision. "I think you are lying, Dale," he declared bluntly. "But, just to make sure, I'll telephone the Stamford police. You said it was near Stamford, didn't you?"

He pushed his chair back and left the room. Dale heaved a sigh of profound relief. It was not likely that anything serious would happen to the girl before the Stamford police arrived. He could face his own predicament with an easier mind now.

Soon Summers returned and without a word resumed his seat at Dale's side. Gossler, facing him across the table, rubbed his plump, white hands and looked at Dale. They were curiously soft, those hands, for a man with such a hard face.

"I'm ready," said Dale. "Bring on your third-degree stuff."

Gossler continued to rub his squashy hands and look at the prisoner. Dale cast a furtive, calculating glance over the long room. There were four windows, two at each side. An officer was stationed at the door, another behind Dale's chair. At his side, so close to him that their elbows touched, sat Summers.

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, July 9.—Familiar sights—Morris Gest, the old devotee of high Russian art, having a gorgeous time watching the vaudeville acts at the Palace. . . . Samuel Shipman, whose hair needs combing, lunching in the Hunting room of the Astor. . . . Dennis King, who is growing a beard so that he will look like Villon in the movie version of "The Vagabond King," having lunch at the same place, but not the same table. . . . Mayor James J. Walker, standing on the steps of city hall and being photographed with the distinguished visitor of the moment. . . . The visitor might be a great explorer or Rin-Tin-Tin. . . . Alfred E. Smith taking an evening stroll along Madison avenue, and getting little more than a second glance from passersby.

School for Bums

Across the way from Cooper Union, Dan O'Brien, self-named king of hoboes, is conducting a school for teaching "the art of depending upon oneself when not supported by our economic system." King Dan stands ready to teach all he knows about being a weary Willie to scissorbills, working stiffs, shovel stiffs, scenery tramps and even hitch-hikers. The curriculum includes methods of traveling on freight and passenger trains, hitch-hiking, finding the most likely place to sleep, cooking mulligan and finding the ingredients, hobo language and the gentle art of staying out of jail.

Our Own Baedeker

Eighth Avenue.—After seemingly years of being a no man's land of crudely covered subway excavations, this thoroughfare is again becoming a usable street. The new underground has been completed—as far as its concrete shell goes—for many months, but not until recently has paving replaced the world's roughest cobblestones. The reason for the cobblestones, incidentally, is that such paving allows water to seep into the roadbed and pack the earth down tight. A sharp dip in the roadway indicates gratifyingly that the earth is packing—so, the rougher the road, the better is the condition of the earth beneath.

It would be useless to put asphalt on earth freshly laid over the subway roof, for in no time it would become mountainous. But now the cobblestone era is passing, and a broad boulevard has come into existence. With the change in the paving has come a change in the character of the street. The largest hotel in the city, the New Yorker, is nearing completion on it. A monumental, angular pile of stone, it is a glorious view in the moonlight. To the north, between Fortieth and Fiftieth streets, are rows of ancient four and five-story buildings that soon will fall before the onslaught of wreckers and construction gangs. A whole new theater zone has been built up in anticipation of the new Eighth avenue, and a year or so more will see it thriving.

The Missing Fish

The aquarium, down at the Battery, has fallen on evil days. Among all the specimens its glass tanks contain, there is not a single sea horse—and it was in the Hudson river, at the aquarium's very door, that the sea horse first was found. So the aquarium directors have offered a bounty of $1.50 to those who will search the depths of the Hudson and find one. There is, indeed, the opportunity for some of the urchins who swim in the river to make a more important income, for the Aquarium stands ready to sell surplus sea horses to those who prefer them to goldfish for the parlor tank.

The Veteran

One of the oldest inhabitants of the aquarium is a dignified old lady penguin, who is the first of her kind to have survived many of New York's vastly varied seasons. She lives on the roof, and visits the interior only on Sundays for the benefit of the Sabbath crowds. She is very particular about her food, and insists on having fish of a certain color for dinner.

A Pastime

Up in Van Cortland park, and also in a huge lot alongside the Polo grounds, West Indian negroes, who speak with British-French accents are playing cricket. The game has gone on for years, and is still a source of mystification to the American negro of Harlem, who prefer baseball.

Lights of N. Y.

Generally speaking, a skyscraper commands more rent per square foot than an old, low building in the same section of the city. The exception, however, is the rental of wall and roof space for electric signs. For such displays the demand for space on low buildings is tremendous, and often a source of greater revenue than the offices within. In the theatrical section, space rental for a sign runs as high as $50,000 a year. To that figure add the cost of construction and operation, and the sum is most likely to be $100,000, which was the estimated yearly cost of the old Wrigley sign on Broadway. That sign, which is yet to be surpassed for size along the great white way, was on the site of the Paramount building. Wall space is more desirable than roof space, and frequently the rental brought more than makes up for the necessary reduction in the price of darkened offices behind the sign.

Opinion Shift

Public opinion is swinging away from gaudy electric signs, and various midtown merchants' organizations are campaigning to restrict their use to side streets. They claim that the signs mar the beauty of the city's architecture, and injure real estate values. The Broadway association, however, endorses the signs as an asset—for what would Broadway be without its thousands of winking lights?

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

The Bird Bath

She: Now the place is just lovely, except for one thing.

He (highly apprehensive of additional expense): What's that?

She: We ought to have a bird-bath.

He: Don't be silly; we haven't any birds yet.

She: But, dear, you don't . . .

PHILLIPS

He: now listen, honey, I've laid out a lot of money on this place and you've got to go easy. A little later I'll buy you a couple of birds and then it will be time enough to talk about their baths.

She: I mean a bird-bath for the outdoor birds, darling. You put it out in the yard, you know, and all the birds come from everywhere to bathe in it.

◆ ◆ ◆

He: Just what's the idea of a bird-bath, anyhow?

She: It brings the birds from everywhere to bathe.

He: Why bring 'em here to bathe? Let 'em bathe somewhere else and come here when they get through.

She: Oh, you just don't understand, Casper.

He: Yes, I do. I know all about it, but I don't see why we should go to any expense to wash birds this season. Let's take 'em as they come this summer, dirty or not. Next year, maybe, I'll feel more like going in for a bath for them. If things go good I may even build 'em a shower.

◆ ◆ ◆

She: What little money a bird-bath would cost would never be missed. It would give the grounds the right touch.

He: The grounds look fine. Have I skimped on a thing so far? Didn't I go the limit on the landscape gardening and everything. Didn't I even have that woodland walk built for you just because you saw it in a magazine? Why does a bath for birds mean so much in your young life, woman?

She: You know very well I love birds.

He: You don't love birds any more than I do.

She: You've never done anything for a bird in your life. Give me a single instance where you did anything to make a bird happier.

He: Luvvamike, woman, have I gotta go around neglecting my work and doing them favors to show I love birds. I've loved birds all my life. Say, on the level, do you think these bird-baths mean a thing to the birds?

She: Of course they do. Mrs. Feedge has one in her garden next door and you should see the birds flock to it and frolic in the water. She gets birds that never come to our yard.

He: What did they do before Mrs. Feedge built them a bath?

She: Oh, everybody has a bird-bath in the yards these days.

He: That's just the point; there are more baths than there are birds.

◆ ◆ ◆

She (breaking down and crying): You always oppose everything I want.

He (always overcome by tears): There, there, don't cry. What'll one of them bird-baths cost?

She: You can get a lovely one for $32.50.

He: Well, go ahead and order one. Be sure it holds enough birds.

She: You big dear.

He: Aw, that's all right. I'll be a sport. Buy 'em some soap and a few Turkish towels too. Life is short and we might as well enjoy our money while we live—we and the birds.

Fever Epidemic Among O'Donnell Cattle Checked

Almonds—Concentrated Food

Almonds are among the most wholesome of all nuts, as they contain a large amount of fat and protein, but no starch. They are one of the few alkaline-forming nuts, and for these reasons may be used by those suffering from diabetes or acidosis. They are especially rich in phosphorus, calcium and magnesium. That the value of the almond is being appreciated is shown by the fact that more almond trees are grown than any other nut trees.

The almond is closely related to the peach tree. In fact, Luther Burbank performed an interesting experiment of crossing almonds with peaches, producing a peach with an almond center.

If almonds are finely chewed they are readily digested, but they are even more valuable in the form of finely ground almond butter, since the digestive juices can penetrate the finely divided particles more readily. Finely ground almonds may be used as a butter substitute for bread or sandwiches. The almond butter may be diluted with water to make an excellent dressing for vegetables and for salad. It may also be mixed with a large amount of water and a little honey so that it will resemble milk in composition, flavoring, and appearance, and even in the fact that it will curdle after a short time.

Almonds contain a large amount of oil and are for this reason fattening with most people. The oil is easily extracted by pressing and is of approximately the same nutritive value as the olive oil but more agreeable in flavor.

The oils usually used in soap and perfumery are taken from the bitter almonds and is not quite as wholesome for eating as the oil of the sweet almond. This oil is quite readily absorbed by the skin and for this reason may be used to advantage in massage.

Almonds are as rich in protein as lean meat. About nine ounces of almonds will provide the body with sufficient protein for one day.

In roasting almonds in large quantities, they are not baked in ovens as is commonly supposed, but are literally French fried by being immersed for a short time in boiling hot cocoanut oil. A longer roasting produces the burnt almond frequently used for flavoring ice cream.

The blanched almond is the sweet almond with the brown outer skin removed after which the almond is dried in the warm oven. Almonds may be blanched at home by first pouring boiling water over them and letting them soak for about a half minute after which they are rinsed in cold water and the skin removed by pressure of the fingers. The brown almond skin, being acid forming, should not be eaten.

Almonds combine readily with all of the fruits and non-starchy vegetables, but because of their richness, should not be used with other proteins or fats or with starches. They make an excellent substitute for meats by those who are inclined toward vegetarianism and who have a good digestion.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Arm Gets Numb

Question—Mrs. A. A. writes: "My right hand and arm 'sleeps' so much I can hardly do any writing. What do you think is the cause of it? I am 63 years old, and had it a few years when I was abuot 40, but it left me. Please tell me what to do."

Answer—The numbness in your right arm is due to poor circulation, and this in turn may be caused by pressure on the nerves which go from the spine to the arm. A chiropractor or osteopath may be able to help you in one or two treatments.

How to Use Milk

Question—Mrs. A. R. writes: "I read in your column that milk should not be taken with sandwiches. When should milk be used?"

Answer—Milk should never be used with sandwiches or with regular meals. It should be taken by itself, or combined with one kind of fruit, or with only non-starchy vegetables.

Stomach Trouble

Question—Mrs. S. S. R. writes: "I have had stomach trouble for nearly two years, and very often I have distressing pains below the stomach. The doctor thinks I will have to have an operation and have the gall-bladder taken out before I shall be better. Do you think I shall be obliged to have this operation?"

Answer—It is unwise for me to attempt to diagnose your case through this column or to estimate whether or not you should have the gall-bladder operation. I find only a small percentage of gall-bladder cases require operations, as a diet treatment will usually effect a complete cure. The diet should be tried first and if this fails it is time enough to try surgery.

Vitamin X

Question—Alice V. asks: "What foods, including vegetables, contain vitamin E?"

Answer—The vitamin E, is now called vitamin "X," and is supposed to be an unknown principle found mostly in grain. This principle is believed to be necessary to the human body for the purpose of reproduction.

BATTLING SPUDS BEAT STEERS TWICE AND TAKE LEAGUE LEAD

PAYNE BESTS TAUSCHER, 1-0

Wichita Slams 9-6 Victory In First Game

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Our Spudders are money ball players. Money ball players are not those whose interest is centered mainly on pay day, they are the athletes who arise to their greatest heights on the most important occasions. The occasion was there yesterday and the Spudders delivered in the clinch, as usual. They battled from behind to take the first game of a double-header from the Dallas Steers, winners of the first half pennant, and then fought through a great pitching duel between George Payne and Walter Tauscher to win the second contest.

The scores were 9 to 6 and 1 to 0 and more than 2,000, a most gratifying, and needless to say highly gratified gathering of customers, saw the pastimes, which not only gave the Spudders the rubber game in the series of three, but shot them into first place.

George W. Payne, the W standing for won, and Tauscher hurled the most brilliant game here this season. Payne had slightly the best of the duel and it was his own bat that scored the winning run in the eighth inning of the contest, which had been carded to go seven innings by agreement.

Payne Drives Home Run

Payne gave up four hits to two off Tauscher. But two of the blows made by the hostiles were the scratchiest sort of infield hits. Both pitchers struck out five each and Tauscher passed one. Payne's control was almost perfect. Not only did the screw ball master not issue a single base on balls, but he always was ahead of the batter, thus enabling him to chuck for the corners.

The Spudders won when Jack Crouch hammered a three-base hit to far right near the foul line after one was out; Payne sent a fly to Johnson and the Spudder catcher slid across the plate, beating an excellent throw by the Herd center fielder by an eyelash.

Howard Fitzgerald, brilliant Spudder center fielder, was struck on the head by a pitched ball and forced to retire from the game. His injury was not serious and he will be able to play within a day or two.

Sparkling fielding by Benton and Sullivan were important factors in helping George hurl his shutout.

Spuds Rally to Win

The Spudders came from behind in the first game to take a free-hitting affair in which both clubs bashed 13 blows each. They played loosely in first innings and trailed 5 to 3 in the sixth when they tallied three runs. The Steers counted one in the seventh but Fitzgerald hammered a home run scoring Turgeon, who had doubled, ahead to eventually win, though our nine counted one more in the eighth.

Dick Sullivan clouted four hits, one a double and Turgeon whaled a double and two singles to lead the Spudder attack. The Moores, Randy and Jim, also hit three apiece. Jeffries and Bischoff clouted homers.

Whitey Glazner was forced to retire from the game in the third inning when he was struck by a ball batted by Benton. Settlemire, a lefthander, was routed by the Spudders later in the pastime and Vic Frasier and Charlie Barnabe finished on the mound.

Steengrafe settled down to his task in late innings and held the Herd to one run and two hits after being unsteady in preceding innings.

Fast fielding by Turgeon, Stapleton and Rosenthal marked the opener.

The crippled Steers were forced to use Randy Moore, an outfielder, at second base in both contests, with Ray Flaskamper, regular shortstop, and Manager Milt Stock, reserve infielder, out of the game with injuries.

Steers Start Scoring

Morse led off with a base on balls in the first inning of the opener, but Stapleton and Benton completed a double play on Johnson's grounder to Bud. The Spudders went out in order.

Randy Moore opened the second with a hit to center which he stretched to a double by some pennant-winning hustle. Jeffries' homer over the left field wall tallied Randy ahead of him.

The Spudders tied the count in their half. Rosenthal took Bennett's drive off the right-center fence. Sullivan singled to center, the first Wichita Falls hit. Hermann walked. Stapleton hit sharply to right, scoring Sullivan and advancing Hermann to third. Lapan forced Stapleton, scoring Hermann.

Johnson started the third with a single to center and continued to second when Fitzgerald's throw-in was not fielded. Rosenthal popped to Benton. R. Moore lifted deep to Fitzgerald, sending Johnson to third. Davis doubled to left, scoring Johnson. J. Moore dropped a two-base hit into short left, scoring Davis.

Glazner Is Injured

Glazner collapsed after fielding Benton's drive, a terrific smash which hit the pitcher in the stomach. He was carried off the field and Settlemire went to the hill. After a delay for some obscure reason, they finally resumed play. Davis went far for Turgeon's foul and Fitzgerald hoisted to J. Moore.

Bischoff opened the fourth with a single but was left on the base lines.

Sullivan hammered his second hit, a single to right, but he was stranded.

The Moores scratched infield hits in the fifth but Hermann made a fast play on Jeffries' tap for the third out.

The Spudders got back in the ball game by scoring a run. Benton doubled down the left field line for two bases and scored on Turgeon's hit to left. Davis made a sparkling stop of Fitzgerald's bounder and tossed to Settlemire for the third out.

Bischoff Clouts Homer

Bischoff started the sixth with his circuit drive over the left field fence.

The Spudders fought their way to the lead with three runs in their sixth. Bennett and Sullivan singled. It was Sullivan's third hit in as many times up. Hermann bunted and Settlemire, making a hurried play threw wild to third, Bennett and Sullivan tallying, and Hermann going to second. Bischoff made a fast play on Stapleton's bunt to throw out Bud at first, but Hermann advanced to third. Lapan's lift to Johnson scored Hermann.

Dallas tied the score in the seventh at 6-all. R. Moore was safe on Benton's fumble after one was out. Stapleton and Steengrafe retired Davis, R. Moore going to second. J. Moore singled to left, scoring R. Moore.

Fitz' Drive Wins Game

Turgeon's double to left, his second hit, followed by Fitzgerald's mighty home run over the center field wall, and Sullivan's triple to right, Dick's fourth blow, made it a day for Mr. Settlemire and he was replaced by Frasier, who prevented further scoring.

Steengrafe turned back the Steers one-two-three in the eighth.

Milt walked, advanced to second on Benton's sacrifice and scored on Turgeon's single to left. Pete's third hit. Fitzgerald was called out on strikes, though he and Galloway argued to Donohue he had not struck at the third called strike. Bennett doubled to right, Turgeon stopping at third. Johnson made a running grab of Sullivan's liner to rob Dick of his fifth hit.

Moore doubled to center in the ninth, his second two-base smack and third blow of the contest, but Bennett was under Davis' fly for the third out.

Payne and Tauscher Duel

Nary a hostile reached first base in the opening inning of the second game.

Benton singled to left but Turgeon hit into a double play, Morse to R. Moore to Davis, the decision on Pete being questionable.

Jim Moore beat out a roller to Benton in the second after two were out and continued to second on Benton's wild throw. Sullivan was under Jeffries' lift.

Hermann walked after two comrades had fanned, the second Spudder to get on base, and was called out stealing by Donohue though Jeffries hasn't touched him yet.

Payne again turned back the Bovines in order in the third.

Sparkling fielding prevented the Herd from tallying in the fourth. Rosenthal doubled sharply past Hermann and continued to third when Benton let Bennett's throw roll through. Benton and Turgeon made brilliant plays on grounders by R. Moore and Davis.

Fitz Hit on Head

Fitzgerald was hit on the head by one Tauscher's cross-fire hooks after two were out.

Sullivan, playing center with Eldred in right, went far back for J. Moore's drive. Jeffries beat out a bunt to Payne and scampered to second on George's wild peg to first. Payne bore down then and struck out Bischoff and Tauscher.

Payne came close to driving home a tally in the Spudder fifth. Crouch went all the way to second on R. Moore's erratic peg on his grounder. Rosenthal went near the foul line for George's liner for the third out.

Sullivan rambled far for Morse's lift and Donohue gave us a break by calling Johnson out on a grounder to Turgeon, on which Pete made a fast play. Another bit of sharp fielding by Turgeon and Stapleton on Rosenthal's grounder retired the opposition in order in the sixth.

Tauscher prevented the Spudders from getting on base.

Benton Saves Run

J. Moore slammed the left field wall near the foul line, his second hit, but an inspired play by Benton on which he took Jeffries' bounder in deep short and made a great throw, averted the run.

Bennett was safe on R. Moore's boot on his grounder but was forced by Sullivan. Johnson was under Hermann's long lift and Sullivan was out stealing.

Benton took Bischoff's pop and then grabbed Tauscher's liner in the seventh and Sullivan gathered in Morse's lift.

NEW YORK, July 9. SONNENBERG BEATS LEWIS

BOSTON, July 9. (AP)—Gus Sonnenberg's famous flying tackle overcame Ed "Strangler" Lewis for the second time in seven months and enabled the former Dartmouth football player to retain his heavyweight wrestling title here tonight.

The champion suffered the first fall of his mat career. Lewis flattened him with a breast lock, but Gus gained the next pair with his deadly butt.

MOE MEDALIST IN WEST GOLF

144 Leads Carter by Stroke; Evans Fails to Qualify

KANSAS CITY, July 9. (AP)—Don Moe, collegian from Portland, Ore., today became medalist of the 30th annual western amateur golf tournament with a score of 144 for 36 holes. Moe turned in two consistent par 72 rounds yesterday and today to nose out by one stroke Keefe Carter of Oklahoma City, champion in 1925.

Three of the four who had 71 to lead the qualifiers the first day gained entry into the select 32 who will play for the title beginning tomorrow.

Frank A. Aylward, Kansas City, 80; Chester C. Jones, Kansas City, 80, and Clarence Hubby, Waco, Texas, 78, were the three first day leaders still in the running. Aylward's and Jones' totals were 151 each. Hubby had a total of 149.

Charles "Chick" Evans Jr. of Chicago, for the first time since he began competing in the western amateur more than 20 years ago, failed to qualify. His two-day total was 156.

T. J. Dunn, Greenville, Texas, had a 162.

The SPORTLIGHT

By GRANTLAND RICE

(Copy't, 1929, New York Tribune Inc.; Trademark Registered U. S. Patent Office)

Loughran and Braddock

Tommy Loughran, the light heavyweight champion, believes that he will be able to show again that a good, fast boxer can nearly always beat a better puncher. The idea is that a hard puncher has to be set, as a rule, before he can punch. It is extremely difficult to be a hard puncher and a clever boxer at one and the same time.

"I could slug and hit with any of them when I started out," Jim Corbett once said, "but when it came to a choice between boxing skill and the old wallop I decided to work for the speed and skill that I believe is more important."

Braddock is a good boxer, but a better hitter. Loughran can outbox Braddock, but Braddock can outhit Loughran. On the general run of things this would give Loughran an edge, as the better boxer always carries an edge. But in this case Tommy has been around for some years, while Braddock is younger and improving. Loughran has shown no improvement in his last few fights. It may have been that weight making took away some of his stuff, but he will have to make weight for Braddock.

Braddock is a first class prospect. In addition to his punching he has a cool head and a stout heart. He will find Loughran the hardest target to nail he has fought to date. There will be more than average class on both sides in this meeting, and if the winner decides to take his shot at the heavyweight apple he will be something to consider in the reckoning on ahead.

The Winning Touch

"Form," wrote Hughey Keogh, "is the brief interval between getting ready and growing stale."

This applies to golf and football more than it does to any other game. It explains in football why a team may be three or even four touchdowns different from Saturday to another. It explains why a team can look like a world beater one week and like a second rater the next week. It explains in golf why a Hagen can win the British open one month and finish around twentieth in the United States open the next month.

In the recent United States open at Winged Foot Bobby Jones was just coming to his top form when the championship ended. He was barely ready after a long lay-off from golf. Most of the leading pros came to the championship approaching staleness. They were beginning to lose the keen edge of earlier months. Of the two positions Jones was in the better one. It is much better to be underworked than overworked. The former at least has his nerve reserve to call on. The latter has not.

All the nerve in the world, as it is called, won't help a competitor whose nervous system is shot to pieces.

The Mental Side

In both football and golf the chief pressure comes from the mental side, or the side of nerves. Football also has its heavy physical pressure, but this won't do the damage that wrecked nerves will bring about through two or three hard games.

There is no great physical pressure in golf. But the nerve strain, which often starts at 10 in the morning and lasts until 5 in the afternoon, can wear any one down if over done.

Knute Rockne could slip through a killing schedule two or three years ago because he had 30 or 35 good football players to call on, shock troops who could let his stars rest a big part of the game. Last year he had no such reserves and the result was a badly worn outfit by the end of the season.

Al Espinoza was a far better golfer than he looked to be through the play-off. But Espinoza had started a hard campaign back in midwinter and he was still in the midst of heavy competition all through May. He was close to a keen edge when the championship started and this edge was beginning to wear away down the stretch. He showed that when he took an 8 on the twelfth hole in the final round, not so much that he took an 8 but the way he got it. His recovery and his final spurt where he finished the last six holes two under par just about removed all the nerve reserve that he had left. He had no keenness in his system to face the pressure which Jones applied after the third hole, where he started on a march of pars and birdies, where it looked as if he would never miss another shot.

It will be a long time before any one crowds the mile close to four minutes, but it might be remembered that in practice Nurmi has run the mile around 4:08. There were many at the Olympic Games of 1924, when Nurmi was at his best, who believed he could do 4:06 if he would train for that distance.

Improved equipment and faster tracks have had something to do with many modern records beyond a doubt. Another point is that thousands are training and being trained today against the dozens of 20 years ago. Yet in many instances the improvement of records has been slight. What the human limit is for the 100, the 440 and the mile is open to debate. No human today is equipped to stand up under a 9-second clip. The same is true in regard to running the mile around 4 flat. As heart and lungs are now made they could never stand the strain of a 4-minute pace without collapsing or running into serious results.

"If Schmeling," writes Oldtimer, "had Jim Corbett's ambition for developing speed and skill when Jim was coming on, the German might make the greatest heavyweight of them all. For he can also punch with any of them." No fighter yet has ever used as much brains and as much hard work as Corbett did on his way up. Unless possibly it was Tunney, who lacked Corbett's physical qualifications. If Schmeling has the ambition to work as Corbett and Tunney worked, especially the former, he might easily rule the heavyweight crowd six or seven years. If he or his handlers take it for granted that he is already good enough it will be a different story.

BUFFS GET CATCHER

HOUSTON, July 9. (AP)—Gus Mancuso, catcher with Rochester of the International league, was obtained by Houston today on option. He is to report Saturday.

Movies Call

Ernie Orsatti

Ernie Orsatti, Cardinal outfielder, is hearing the siren call of the movies these days.

This is nothing unusual, for Ernie is a stunt actor of considerable experience and broke into baseball from the studio of Buster Keaton. The comedian encouraged the agile little chap to break into the Pacific Coast league in 1925 and a year later the Cards bought him.

Ernie's brother is an assistant director and his wife, a writer. He plans a family combine but not just now, for the Cardinals need his help.

BROWNS MAY FIRE HOWLEY

Release Dan's Likely Reward for Fine Work

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK, July 9. (UP)—Success is a dangerous thing for St. Louis baseball managers and Dan Howley, able leader of the St. Louis Browns, appears headed for the same fate Rogers Hornsby, Bob O'Farrell and Bill McKechnie experienced at the helm of the St. Louis Cardinals.

It is accepted in baseball circles that Howley is through as a manager of the Browns, but not as an American league leader. He is mentioned as a probable successor to Walter Johnson, who is expected to retire from baseball when his one-year contract as manager of the Washington Senators expires.

The storm brewing around Howley's head has aroused considerable discussion on both sides of the case.

Howley's supporters claim that he is a victim of inside interference and has been hampered in handling the Browns this season.

Mr. Ball Takes Credit

Another angle to the story is that Phil Ball, president of the Browns, made the successful trades which strengthened the club and that Howley's success was largely a result of Ball's efforts.

When Howley became manager of the Browns in 1927, he is said to have agreed to take orders from Ball or hand in his resignation.

In many quarters it is said that not only Ball, but L. C. McEvoy, vice president of the club has attempted to force Howley to abide by his decisions on pitchers and players.

Ralph Kress, erratic but brilliant shortstop, is involved in the tangle in some manner, and it is believed that Howley refused to take Kress out of the lineup against orders from the higher-ups. Kress has rewarded Howley's faith in him and is now playing sensationally.

Howley's players swear by him which is one of the best recommendations any major league manager can receive. By the same token Howley is for his players first, last and always.

A glimpse at Howley's record is another tribute to his leadership. In his second year as leader of the Browns he lifted the club from seventh to third place. The Browns have exceeded all expectations this season and are by no means completely out of the pennant race, with an even chance to finish second.

In 27 years in the American league the Browns have finished in the first division only eight times, and have never won a pennant.

Since Howley has got the ultimate of the players during his regime, he should be given free reign and allowed to have the whole say.

BRAVES WOULD WELCOME DAN

BOSTON, July 9. (AP)—Dan Howley, manager of the St. Louis Browns, will not have far to look for a new job if he decides to quit the American league club at the end of the season. President-Manager Emil Fuchs of the Boston Braves today said he would "give a great deal of consideration to the question of tendering Howley a contract to manage the Braves" if the latter decided to leave St. Louis.

Fuchs refused to make any kind of a definite statement, pointing out that he did not want to be accused of tampering with another club's property.

Ex-Endurance Champ Takes Off for Texas

ST. LOUIS, July 9. (UP)—Reg Robbins took off from here for Fort Worth today where he will become sales representative for the Ryan Aircraft company, according to an announcement of the company headquarters here today. Robbins teamed with a fellow Texan, Jim Kelly, to set a world's endurance flight record which was broken by two Cleveland fliers several days ago, and again bettered in California today.

McCraw Slated to Run For Attorney General

DALLAS, Texas, July 9. (AP)—A belief that William McCraw, district attorney for Dallas county, would be a candidate for attorney general of Texas next year was expressed by several county officials today. McCraw, however, was silent as to his future plans.

The injured boy was taken to the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital by the driver of the car, but after an examination had revealed no serious injuries, he left the institution while attendants were talking in another room with the driver.

SHRINE LUNCHEON

The objectives and aims of the working units of Maskat temple were outlined in brief speeches by representatives of the units at the regular meeting of the shrine luncheon club Tuesday noon at the temple auditorium. Other features of the luncheon were a dance by Miss Mary Louise Yeargin and a singsong by the entire group.

Did you ever hear of a woman who hates shopping? Sounds incredible? Yes, it does, but Marguerite Churchill, who plays the lead in the all-talking picture, "Pleasure Crazed," happens to be the one-in-a-million who can't be dragged in a store. Believe it or not, but her mother says Marguerite would rather be punished than shop for herself.

New Argentine Heavyweight Looms As One of Greatest Ring Prospects

Vittorio Campolo, Bigger Than Jess Willard, Viewed by Runyon and Other Experts as Likely Fighter

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, July 2.—In Lou Stillman's dimly lighted gymnasium in Eighth avenue the other afternoon, I sat on a hard, narrow pine bench with three of the greatest boxing champions this world has ever seen, and saw a new heavyweight prospect who may one day rattle the tall town.

He is Vittorio Campolo, the big horse of the Argentine, the mightiest figure of a fighting man these well worn specs have glimmed in many a day.

He is bigger than Jess Willard, the old Pottawatomie pounder. He is three times as fast, and a leather chucker from who-laid-the-chunk. He seems to have a ponderous pop in either duke.

On one side of me as I viewed the giant from the Argentine sat John Arthur Johnson, burly, and black, and the former heavyweight champion of the world. On the other side was the wiry looking little man who was the ring magician of his time, Abraham Attell, former featherweight champion of the world.

Next to Attell, sat the dapper, swarthy little Italian who came after Attell in the featherweight championship line of succession, Johnny Dundee. A fairly competent jury, I would say, leaving me out.

The Jury Agrees

There were only a few others in the gymnasium. The motley crowd that usually gathers there of an afternoon to watch the gladiators at work had long since departed. Campolo purposely works late to avoid the gymnasium death watch, which rarely calls a stranger on top.

Bill Duffy, in white flannels, was coaching a marvelous young physical specimen of black humanity called Joe Jeannette, after the great old negro gladiator of that name. Bill's Joe was serving as a sparring partner to the horse of the Argentine, and as they bounced about the ring, John Arthur Johnson leaned over to me and muttered:

"Damon, this Campolo is a great natural puncher. He's raw in spots, but he's got the makings. I like him. He's better right now than Looie Firpo, and you know I worked with Firpo when he was getting ready to fight Bill Brennan."

In my other ear, Abraham Attell buzzed a few words.

"The guy can smack, Damon," he said. "He can smack plenty. I never saw a better looking youngster."

It only lacked word from Johnny Dundee to make up the verdict of the jury.

"This is a pretty good fighter," Johnny remarked. "He's apt to make it tough for a lot of our heavyweights."

Damon Likes Him

And to these opinions, I cheerfully add my own, if that means anything. Vittorio Campolo is a big, rough guy, with plenty of fighting instinct. He handles his sparring partners in the Dempsey manner, even taking a few solid pastes at a lively 150-pound middleweight who came up from the Argentine with him.

Campolo stands six feet seven inches in height and weighs around 230 pounds. He is taller than Willard, but not as heavy. He moves around with astonishing agility for a man so big.

He doesn't stand up straight, as Willard did, but crouches low, and far back at times. He seems to punch well with his left, but is mainly a right hand smasher. He has a good idea of body punching.

He seems easy to hit with a left hand, hook or jab, and this weakness may prove his undoing in the the first fight in this country, which is with Arturo De Kuh at Ebbet's field in Brooklyn, on the night of July 17.

De Kuh Is Hard Hitter

The fight is under the auspices of the good Signor Humberto Fugazy, who was also in the gym the other day, and who has Campolo signed up for three fights. De Kuh is a tall, lanky, lantern-jawed fellow, who has been knocking around for several years, and who in my opinion is one of the best punchers among the heavyweights.

De Kuh has an exceptionally good left hand. Unless Campolo can get past Arturo's left, he isn't apt to last long. I think the fight is a sure-fire knockout one way or the other. De Kuh has had more experience than the big horse of the Amazon, whose professional career is limited to about a dozen battles.

COURT WILL GET ROW OVER DOG

Poodle Name 'Tsoule' Causes Untold Trouble

By SAM LOVE

NEW YORK, July 9. (UP)—Trouble, in the form of a lap dog named Tsoule, is headed straight for the United States supreme court.

Documents pro-Tsoule and con-Tsoule have already been filed in superior court, highest trial court in the state, until their bulk and weight considerably exceed that of Tsoule, who is nothing but a poodle. And the unhappy judges of the august tribunal are aware that no matter what they do about Tsoule, an effort will be made to have the higher court reverse them.

Suit May Outlast Dog

Their only comfort is that the law suit, because of its complexity, will probably last longer than Tsoule.

Mrs. Caroline M. Robinson, a landlady, has filed the first batch of documents against Tsoule, alleging that the dog is a violation of the constitution of 751 Madison avenue.

But Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stavel have filed another and larger batch setting forth that Tsoule is not a violation of the constitution of the apartment house, but merely a violation of an amendment to the constitution, passed by Mrs. Robinson and a fanatical group of tenants who do not enjoy Tsoule themselves and do not want anybody else to enjoy Tsoule.

As will be readily apprehended, this put a finer point on the case of Tsoule. It has made the Tsouleing of un-Tsoule-ing of 751 Madison avenue a matter of principle, aligning tenant against tenant and household against household. Whereas a short time ago it would have been possible for a member of the anti-Tsoule party to hurl a milk bottle or purchase a mastiff, now there is nothing to do but let Tsoule ripen and wither until the courts have acted.

Mrs. Robinson asked the supreme court to exercise its not inconsiderable powers to enjoin the Stavels from further harboring Tsoule unless Tsoule will consent to refrain from racing up and down the halls and yipping.

Barks at Any Hour

"Said dog," the complaint continues, "whines, scratches, barks, snuffles and yelps at various hours of the night and day."

The dog tale with which Mrs. Robinson hopes to wag the supreme court asserts more firmly than anything else that Tsoule, by his very existence, violates the constitution of the five-story apartment kingdom, because the constitution says that dogs shall not inhabit it.

Stavel contends, however, that Mrs. Stavel, who is a specialist in French millinery under the name of Mme. Alice Hougere, has had Tsoule for two years and that two years ago the constitution of 751 Madison avenue recognized Tsoule as a legal commodity.

Affidavits from the janitor and tenants concerning Tsoule's whines, scratches, barks, snuffles, yelps, wags, wriggles, cajoling, sniffing and racing are being collected by both sides.

Large enrollment in the free swimming classes, of the park department's "learn to swim" campaign, was also reported by Mr. Bunnenberg.

Relative of Daniel Boone, 99, Misses Third Wedding of His Daughter, 70

MILFORD, Neb., July 9. (UP)—A 99-year-old relative of Daniel Boone was disgruntled today.

His 70-year-old daughter eloped with a civil war veteran, 81 years old, and the father missed the wedding. His daughter was married in Lincoln last night.

The daughter, Mrs. Ida B. Carter and William H. Campbell, inmates of the soldiers home here, went shopping in Lincoln. On the way in town, Campbell proposed. His proposal accepted, they planned to be married at the soldiers home, with the father, Hiram Boone, a witness.

Instead they were married in Lincoln and the great grand-nephew of Daniel Boone, who had witnessed two other weddings of his daughter, missed the last ceremony.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, July 9. (AP)—Cotton was more active today with prices higher on increasing apprehensions of boll weevil damage and a feeling that the technical position of the market had been strengthened by the selling noted in advance of yesterday's offical acreage report. October contracts sold up to 18.72 or 25 points above Monday's closing quotation and about 60 points above the low level of Monday morning. They closed at 18.59, with the general market closing steady at net advances of 9 to 18 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 4 to 7 points on the new crop months on buying influenced by the relatively steady showing of Liverpool and continued reports of boll weevil infestation in the South.

Liverpool was reported a buyer here early but a good part of the day's demand was supposed to represent covering by recent sellers and a readjustment of the technical position. Private cables reported covering, London and continental buying in Liverpool. Exports today 5,095, making 8,064,917 so far this season. Port receipts 2,226. U. S. port stocks 685,757.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, July 9. (AP)—Cotton worked into somewhat higher ground today due partly to more favorable Liverpool cables and more bullish view of yesterday's acreage statement.

The advance also was stimulated by two private reports, one making the indicated crop 15,196,000 bales and the other 14,500,000 bales. After advancing 23 points, the market eased off 10 to 11 points on selling due to expectations of a bearish textile report by the textile bureau tomorrow. October after advancing to 18.56, up 23 points, closed at 18.46, down 11 points from the top and 13 points net higher for the day. The general market closed steady at net gains of from 2 to 13 points.

Liverpool came in 4 to 5 points better than due and first trades here showed gains of 5 to 6 points.

DEPEND ON CORN

NEWKIRK, Okla., July 9. (UP)—Farmers in Kay county knowing that they cannot expect much of a yield from their wheat crops are placing their hopes this year on the corn crop, according to Ed Martin, county farm agent. Acreage is below normal but since the recent rains the yield promises to be large.

BOSTON WOOL MARKET

BOSTON, July 9. (AP)—Inquiries for wool showed some increase but the volume of actual business was only about steady. Manufacturers hesitated about making commitments, due to the uncertainty over the outcome of a new series of London sales which open today. Buyers entertained the hope that London prices might be easier.

Auto Shares Receive Big Jolt As Profit-Taking Sweeps Exchange

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, July 9. (US)—Automobile shares suffered most in profit-taking reaction on the stock exchange today. Motors was the one group to feel short covering while others slipped off as a result of desire to take profits due to continued tight money and fear that the reserve board would take sterner measures if the market did not quiet down.

Steel dropped 2⅛ and other standard industrials lost from 1 to 3 points while General Motors lost 3, Chrysler 3¾ and Hudson 3 points. American Telephone gained 7 and a few others benefited from individual influences. Coppers enjoyed a little better demand and closed higher on the average while Rails and Oils remained quiet and somewhat irregular. Bethlehem Steel gained 2 and Gulf States jumped the same amount from knowledge of increasing earnings. The call rate was held at 9 per cent throughout. Turnover remained under the 4,000,000 share level.

Nearly everyone expects easier money for the rest of the week. The argument is that with the Tuesday afternoon settlement with the reserve taken care of the banks will be able to put out more funds. However, in the banking world it is stated that the trend of money will depend entirely on the activity in the stock market. A quiet, orderly market will permit of lower call rates but any indication of undue increase in trading will bring another jacking up of rates. Some bankers admit there was no reason for the high rates of Monday and Tuesday except the desire of powerful interests to bring about improvement in the bond market before another period of great activity in stock speculation is witnessed. As for time money the bankers expect a downward trend in rates for the next two months at least.

There has been further quiet picking up of General Asphalt coincident with revival of report that it is planned to dispose of the roofing and asphalt department to Johns Manville. The charter of the company is to be changed so as to permit of such action. This would leave asphalt strictly an oil organization. Those who were recently in Eastman Kodak were interested in Chesebrough due to expectation of a split up of the stock in the near future. Utilities and power stocks benefited somewhat from the indication that the state would find nothing wrong with the Niagara Hudson power combine although insiders never seemed to have any fear of interference. United Light buying is due to expectation of offer for exchange of stock with Commonwealth Southern. United Corporations' next report to the stock exchange, it is learned, will show greater enhancement of security asset value than is generally realized.

The Chicago crowd was active in Montgomery Ward again. They talk of the increase in sales resulting from inauguration of system of paying full postage but the main factor of bullishness is the expectation as to how much gain in income will result from opening of new retail distributing agencies. Funds derived from recent sale of stock permits of broadening of the chain of stores. Safeway Stores made a new high on the move due to the report of increased sales for June which was the largest gain reported by any company for the month. The old group is interested in Cash Register again and the talk of merger is heard once more. It is believed, however, that the next important combination in the field will be Underwood and Business Machines and that seems quite aways off as yet. Liquidation of old controlling interests in United Cigars, Tobacco Products and others going into the new Smorrow merger is reported completed.

There is increasing bearishness in the automobile shares. Considerable talk is heard of how dealers are being loaded up but inquiry reveals this erroneous as most manufacturers have the dealer situation well in hand. However, the balance of the year is likely to prove a period of declining output for most companies and as the greater number of the stocks fully discounted the "good news" of the first six months there is little incentive for aggressive bullish operations. Demand now is reported less than it was this time a year ago.

Grain

TEXAS CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, July 9. (AP)—Wheat closed sharply lower here today in sympathy with declines on the contract markets. Heavy receipts at all southwestern markets were causing congestion and were largely blamed with the decline.

Export Grain—Exporters bid as follows, basis delivered gulf ports: No. 1 ordinary export wheat 2½c lower at $1.18¾@1.19¼; No. 1 soft red mixed unchanged; No. 2 barley, slightly higher 73½@75c.

Milling Wheat—Mills bid 2 to 3c lower for wheat basis delivered T. C. P., No. 1 ordinary hard $1.20@1.21; 13 per cent protein $1.23¾@1.24; 14 per cent $1.27¾@1.28; 15 per cent $1.31@1.32; 16 per cent $1.35¾@1.36.

Dealers bids and offers on other grains as follows, basis delivered T. C. P.:

Corn—Demand steady, 2c lower. No. 2 mixed $1.02@1.03; No. 2 white $1.06@1.07; No. 2 yellow $1.06@1.08.

Oats—Demand fair, stronger. No. 2 74@75c.

Sorghums slow but steady. No. 2 milo per hundred pounds $1.50@1.52; No. 2 kaffir $1.36@1.37.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, July 9. (AP)—Sellers far outnumbered buyers of wheat in the late dealings today, and prices tumbled down fast. Word of beneficial rains in Argentina together with some prospects of moisture tonight both north and south of the Canadian line, tended alike to stimulate selling and curtail demand toward the last, would-be purchasers meanwhile apparently holding off to await United States and Canadian government crop reports due tomorrow.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous, 2¼c to 2⅜c under yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1¼c to 2⅛c net lower, oats ⅜c to 1¼c off, and provisions varying from 2c decline to a rise of 7c.

Although today's advices from the spring wheat belt northwest continued to tell of ill-starred crop conditions, the plants in widespread districts fired and dying, with farmers plowing the wheat under, many traders leaned to the bear side of the market, and effects of numerous standing orders to sell on advances in price were much in evidence.

Notwithstanding that for at least the time being the drought news appeared to be of less influence than has been the rule of late, good absorption of offerings kept the market two-sided and fluctuating rapidly, with rallies frequent until near the end of the day.

Corn and oats weakened with wheat.

A business founded in 1880 was the basis of the incorporation in 1929 of the Bullard company. The concern manufactures and sells tools and machines for working iron, steel and brass. It numbers among its customers some of the largest manufacturers of automobiles, railroad and electrical equipment and airplanes. Its production is confined to specially designed machines and tools in the manufacture of which there is little competition.

The plants of the company, including a casting foundry are located at Bridgeport, Conn., and employs about 1,100 men.

Since the operations of the company are closely allied with those of the automobile industry 1928 showed record earnings of $1,412,080. This compared with $476,924 in 1927. There is no funded debt. Capital stock outstanding consists of 276,000 shares of no par common. Early in 1929 the common stock was increased from 100,000 to an authorized issue of 300,000 and three new shares were issued for each old share outstanding. On the old no par common stock, quarterly dividends of 37½ cents were paid with extras from time to time. On the present stock, 40 cents a share quarterly is being paid.

As of Jan. 1, 1929, total current assets were $2,179,720. Current liabilities amounted to $518,739 and net working capital was $1,660,981. Book value applicable to the common stock amounted to $15.70 a share.

131 Religious Prisoners Freed in Mexico

GUADALAJARA, Mexico, July 9. (UP)—The government today ordered the release of 131 religious prisoners, most of them women, who recently were deported to Tres Marias island penal colony. They were charged with complicity in the religious rebellion. Their release was due to the religious settlement with the Catholic church.

FARMERS USE TRUCK LINES

Transportation Aids Wide Distribution of Produce

Well organized truck lines and varying price scales have figured in a wholesale migration of vegetable produce from east to west in Northwest Texas during the present season, according to local producers and dealers.

Wichita county has produced perhaps a greater volume of garden truck than in any preceding year. Without an established retail market of their own, growers have disposed of their crops directly to retail grocers, to wholesale houses, and some in house to house deliveries. It was said by one leader in the industry, however, that local wholesalers buy probably no more than 10 per cent of locally grown produce.

The explanation offered was that vegetables and some fruits can be grown south and east of this section at considerably lower cost than that commonly entailed here, partly due to larger scale production it was said. These seasonable commodities begin moving in by truck early in the local harvest, commanding prices sufficiently high to make the transportation profitable.

The movement to less productive localities then begins to take large amounts of green vegetables from Wichita county by truck to the Panhandle and the plains territory further south, it was reported. A higher scale of prices than that which draws North Central Texas produce into Wichita county in turn draws crops from this section into markets further north and west.

CO-ED HELD IN $7000 ROBBERY

Girl Arrested in Norman And Questioned

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 9. (UP)—Alma Lee Couch, former University of Oklahoma student, was arrested in Norman today and was charged with the robbery of the John B. Frederickson home here April 10.

She was brought here for questioning.

She was nursemaid in the Frederick's home when the robbery of about $7,000 of jewels and silverware occurred.

Her arrest followed discovery of $2,500 of the loot in parcels checked with the Oklahoma Railway company checks stand. The loot consisted of five diamond rings, 208 pieces of silverware, linens and articles of clothing.

She told police at the time of the robbery that while she was alone at about 11 o'clock at night, two men knocked her unconscious, bound and gagged her and looted the home.

W. E. Davidson, check man at the railway stand, said that Miss Couch was the woman who checked the parcels containing the loot.

That will get you his business!

The job of getting an audience is difficult enough—as every salesman knows. After running the gauntlet you are in the presence of the man who can say "yes" or "no," then you have another problem.

If he has a million other things on his mind it calls for tact, personality, patience and quick thinking on your part to get him interested in what you have to sell.

However—there is another way of talking to your prospect. If you have something for sale, folks are looking for it through our Classified Ads.

When Mr. Jones settles down to read after a good meal he is in an entirely different mood than he is at the office. He has an open mind and is ready to listen to bargain talk. He turns to the Classified Advertising section of his favorite newspaper and goes over it carefully. If your Ad is there—it will have more effect than if you "peddled your wares" to his office.

The new flight will be scheduled from London to Ceylon, about 6,000 miles.

Wichita Oil Man Gains Daily on Orgatone

"I Have More Life and Energy Than I Have Had in Several Years and Feel Like Orgatone Has Made a New Man of Me," Says G. W. Whitman.

"The way I have gained on three bottles of Orgatone is going some, but that is just what happened to me since I began using it," said G. W. Whitman, a well known retired oil man and residing at 1409 Tenth street, Wichita Falls, Texas, recently.

"My trouble started six or seven years ago," he continued, "and I wasn't able to get straightened out since that time. My system was badly run down, I lost my appetite and had to be very, very careful of what little I did eat. My vision got very poor and I would have severe attacks of dizziness which made me miserable and my system was clogged up so with a billous condition that I just felt tired and worn out all the time. I fell off in weight and strength and was in such a bad fix I didn't feel like getting around like I used to.

"I had already tried about everything else I could get, without finding relief and I was sure surprised to find this Orgatone getting hold of my troubles before I had taken many doses. I feel hungry all the time and am actually ashamed to eat enough to satisfy my appetite. My weight has increased to 156 pounds and I feel fine in every way. I have got over that tired and drowsy feeling and have more life and energy than I have had in several years. I feel like Orgatone has made a different man of me and I will gladly recommend it to anybody."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific bile preparation and is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by Allison's Drug store, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative.—Adv.

MAJESTIC: Six-course entertainment: "The Night Club," with Fannie Brice; "Pusher in the Face," with Estelle Taylor; the Victor artists; Walter Huston in "The Bishop's Candlesticks. Vitaphone vaudeville. Paramount news.

STRAND: Ruth Chatterton in "The Dummy." Movietone news. Mermaid comedy.

OLYMPIC: "Seven Footprints of Satan," all-star cast. Comedy. Pathe news.

GEM: "The Hawks' Nest," with Milton Sills. Comedy.

Origin of the plan on which the present Majestic program was built is found in Arthur Sullivan's charming light opera, "The Mikado," where the royal-blooded minstrel announces his wares with:

"My catalogue is long, through every passion ranging, and to your humors changing I'll tune my supple song."

Something for everybody, folks; you step right up, you pays your money and you takes your choice.

Headlining the bazaar is a 30-minute view of night club life in New York, with such celebrities as Fannie Brice, Pat Rooney and Pat the Second, Bobby Arnst, champagne, and an impressive cover charge. No less an authority than Jimmie Maxwell vouches for the authenticity of the glimpses given of those nocturnal frolics which made Tex Guinan famous, or vice versa if you will.

"Pusher in the Face," offers a vicarious satisfaction to any suffering male who has endured the quacking of the chocolate-eating matron in the next row behind him at the matinee. But lest the impression be given that all is frivolity, consider Walter Huston's large contribution of pathos and heart throbs as he carries away the bishop's prized candlesticks for a brand new start toward better times.

Billy Murray and his seven famed colleagues, the Victor artists, introduce a surprising number of their hilarious harmonies in a 10-minute country show. The catalog is completed by a typical Mack Sennett comedy and Paramount news.

BAR ORGANIZES FOR CAMPAIGN

Lawyers to Launch Drive For Amendment

The Wichita County Bar association organized Tuesday morning in support of the proposed constitutional amendment increasing the membership of the state supreme court from three to nine members, to be voted upon in an election on Tuesday, July 16.

The association was called together in a special meeting at the courthouse by J. T. Montgomery. A committee for directing an intensive campaign in favor of the amendment was appointed and a meeting called for 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon for the launching of the program. The committee includes: J. W. Akin, A. H. Carrigan, A. H. Britian, C. I. Francis, T. R. Boone, Luther Hoffman, W. N. Bonner and B. D. Sartin, of Wichita Falls; John Murphee of Iowa Park; R. S. Ragsdale of Burkburnett, and Conrad Engleking of Electra.

The committee will work for the adoption of the amendment through newspaper advertising, radio broadcasts, and a widespread series of talks before civic gatherings, Mr. Montgomery explained.

Ice Company Awarded Verdict in $15,000 Suit

Judge Allan D. Montgomery Tuesday morning instructed a verdict in favor of the defendant in the $15,000 damage suit brought by Mrs. Elizabeth Tracy against the Wichita Ice company in connection with the death of her husband, C. H. Tracy, last year. The instructed verdict was rendered at the end of the testimony offered for the plaintiff. Judge Montgomery ruled that the complaining parties had not proved "gross negligence" as charged in the petition. Mr. Tracy died from injuries received in a boiler explosion at the ice factory.

TRASH FIRE

Firemen were called to the 3100 block on Ninth street about 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon when trash in the rear of a residence caught fire. No damage was reported. Another call to the 1600 block on Speedway shortly after 3 o'clock also was extinguished with no damage reported.

Slaughter Acquitted by Jury On Charges in County Court

After about 30 minutes consideration a jury in the county court at law Tuesday afternoon acquitted E. D. Slaughter of aggravated assault and drunkenness charges brought in connection with an alleged attempt to force a girl into an automobile here last week.

Mrs. Slaughter and a young girl described as the sweetheart of Dan Aulsbrook, accused with Slaughter, both took the stand for the defense, declaring that they had observed the incident from an automobile several yards away from the machine occupied by Slaughter and Aulsbrook and that there had been no attempt to force the girl into the car.

The trial of Aulsbrook is set for Monday of next week in the county court at law, L. V. Abernathy, assistant county attorney, declared Tuesday afternoon.

MARTIN CALLS J. P. TO COURT

Gibbs to Answer Plea In Court Saturday

Judge P. A. Martin Tuesday morning ordered O. L. Gibbs, justice of the peace, to appear in the 89th district court next Saturday morning to answer a plea for a writ of mandamus forcing the magistrate to remit fines imposed in a night session of the justice court here last week.

The petition was filed in the names of two husbands and wives who paid fines after officers had arrested them in their homes. The plaintiffs allege that they pleaded guilty and paid the fine in order to avoid spending the rest of the night in jail. They ask for the remission of the fines.

Judge Gibbs will contest the plea, declaring that the pleas of guilty were voluntarily entered and that he is following the advice of the county attorney in refusing to reopen the cases.
