'Magic cure' lures locals to Greece

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

The Greeks were the first to develop a democratic way of life. The ancient civilization was far more advanced than any that had come before.

The country brought the world its first great dramatists, historians, orators, philosophers and poets. In addition, they were first people to study botany, geometry, zoology, physics and medicine on a scientific basis.

And now, according to many who have visited the land of the acropolis, a Greek has discovered the cure for cancer.

In August 1981, a Midland woman walked into an Athens hotel where she was injected with what is claimed to be a cancer-cure serum.

In February, three people from Kermit traveled to Greece in search of the "magic cure" and several other Midlanders have also made the trip this year.

THEY DID NOT KNOW WHAT was in the injection — it's a secret — nobody knows except the doctor and his father.

Dr. Hariton Alivizatos says he has the cure for cancer. He claims to have discovered it 25 years ago.

The 43-year-old Greek physician, who promises a cancer cure, has drawn many Americans to Athens. Currently, there has been an influx of West Texans.

"We've had a sufficient number of calls from the West Texas area," said Mike Dany, director of services at the Texas Division of the American Cancer Society, adding that the word seems to get out in certain geographical areas and the people flock to Greece.

"Then it dies down and you won't hear much about it," Dany said.

It has been reported that the believers of the Greek cure have been visiting service clubs, church groups and woman's clubs in the area "spreading the word."

Dany said these testimonies can be dangerous because they draw believers.

"MANY PEOPLE WILL BEGIN to feel better because they want to. When they are told 'this will cure you' it may, for a while. These people then rationalize their beliefs. These spontaneous cures do happen. They are the cause for quick testimonials," Dany added.

"But when people understand what chemotherapy and radiation is, they generally make the right decisions which are the proven treatments," he said.

In 1979, one Washington cancer specialist estimated that 10 to 15 percent of his patients had gone for the "Greek cure."

Dany said a "good portion of calls" have been from Midland-Odessa physicians whose patients are inquiring about the Greek cure.

Donna Lemmon of Midland took her mother who has lung cancer to Greece.

Mrs. Lemmon said her mother is cured.

Barbara Cox, a Kermit resident whose breast cancer spread to the lungs, lymphatic system and intestines, also went to Greece.

She is having good and bad days.

INEZ GLASS, A BONE CANCER victim who's also from Kermit, said she is feeling "better than ever."

And another Kermit resident, whose one last hope was the Greek cure, made the trip.

He recently died in Athens.

"He was just too far gone," Mrs. Glass said.

According to reports, Alivizatos will not administer his cure to anyone "who is too far gone." But, there have been exceptions.

Mrs. Lemmon and her "cancer-free" mother claims that the "gentle" physician is there to help people, not make judgments or money.

Alivizatos declares the cause of cancer is bio-chemical, but he will not disclose anything else about his discovery. He said it will remain a secret until the world acknowledges the treatment and his contribution.

ALIVIZATOS IS NOT recognized in the U.S. However, he was invited to submit his cancer-cure evidence by the American Cancer Society. He never replied.

His followers say he can pinpoint the location and severity of the cancer from one single blood test on a rating scale from 1 to 10.

Mrs. Lemmon said her mother's 7.1 blood-rated level, which is considered high, dropped to 6.2 after six injections and then to 2.5, which is "cancer-free," after the full 20 injections.

"That's when he (Alivizatos) will let you come home," the Midland women said.

It is reported that the serum remains in the body's system for six months and a diet must be followed closely during this time.

The doctor claims the diet, which forbids alcohol, salt and acid foods, helps the serum. In addition,

Not much is known about the Greek cancer treatment offered by Dr. Hariton Alivizatos, except that it involves a series of injections and a strict diet.

British official resigns over islands seizure

LONDON (AP) — British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington resigned today, taking responsibility for a diplomatic failure to prevent Argentina's seizure of the Falkland Islands that Britain threatens to retake by force.

Carrington quit only hours after the aircraft carrier Invincible, leading Britain's mightiest fleet since it tried to prevent Egypt's takeover of the Suez Canal 26 years ago, steamed out of the southern naval base at Portsmouth on an 8,000-mile, two-week expedition to recapture the Falklands.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher accepted the resignation after three days of mounting demands from newspapers and lawmakers — including members of the ruling Conservative party — for the 62-year-old Carrington and Defense Secretary John Nott to be sacked over what critics called the Falklands debacle.

"In my view much of the criticism is unfounded but I have been responsible for the conduct of the policy," said Carrington's letter of resignation. "I think it right that I resign."

Mrs. Thatcher told Carrington in a letter that she accepted his resignation with a "heavy heart" after failing to dissuade him from his "unalterable decision."

Nott also tendered his resignation but Mrs. Thatcher refused it, telling him in a letter she needed him to continue "as our forces prepare for the possibility of armed action. I have the fullest confidence in your ability to carry out the crucial tasks ahead."

Two of Carrington's aides, Deputy Foreign Secretary Humphrey Atkins and Richard Luce, Foreign Office minister of state for Latin America, also tendered resignations which were accepted.

"God speed Invincible!" shouted 30,000 Britons at the Portsmouth harbor as the 19,500-ton carrier stacked with Harrier vertical-takeoff jets and Sea King anti-submarine helicopters put to sea. A flotilla of destroyers and frigates prepared to follow it.

ARGENTINE PRESIDENT Leopoldo Galtieri said his nation would go to war with Britain to defend the islands Argentina seized Friday. The main islands are 250 miles off the Argentine coast had been under British rule 149 years.

In the Falklands the invaders dug in, imposed a 24-hour curfew on the 1,800 staunchly pro-British islanders, threatened jail terms for resisters to Argentine rule and decreed Spanish the official language. Most islanders are sheepherders of English and Scottish ancestry.

Argentina announced its forces also occupied South Georgia, an island dependency of the Falklands 800 miles to the east. But the garrison of 22 British marines on the island was reported to have killed three of the invaders, raising Argentina's casualties to four dead and two wounded. No British casualties have been reported.

Nott claimed the marines destroyed one of the Argentines' helicopters and damaged one of their ships before they were overwhelmed. Argentine naval sources denied this.

Meanwhile, the British governor of the Falklands, Rex Hunt, and the 82 marines captured with him on Friday were flown home. Argentina deported them to Uruguay.

Crews at the Portsmouth naval base worked feverishly through the night to ready the aircraft carriers Invincible and Hermes and their escort of destroyers and frigates for the expedition to the South Atlantic.

They were to rendezvous with another group of ships off Gibraltar to form a fleet of 40 warships, nearly two-thirds of Britain's naval strength. Rear Adm. John F. Woodward was named commander of the task force.

The force includes 22-year-old Prince Andrew, second son of Queen Elizabeth II and one of the Invincible's 12 helicopter pilots.

"IF WE HAVE TO FIGHT, we will. And we are not going to fight unless we win," said the defense secretary in a television interview.

"We are not making the largest task force available outside the two superpowers without the intention, if we have to, of using it."

In the Falklands, the new Argentine military administration ordered a round-the-clock curfew with 15 days in jail for violators; driving on the right side of the road instead of the British left, Spanish as the official language although none of the islanders speak it, 30 days in jail for making obscene gestures to the Argentine troops and 60 days for disrespect to the Argentine flag.

British press reports from the Falklands said six marines had escaped the invaders and were hiding in the hills behind Port Stanley, the capital. Argentine naval sources said later they surrendered.

London Times correspondent Simon Winchester, one of the last four British journalists ordered off the Falklands, reported the islanders desperately want to retain British heritage but are "terrified" of a battle between British and Argentine troops.

Correction

The story on first quarter bank deposits in Saturday's edition of The Reporter-Telegram contained an error in the Midland National Bank figures.

The first-quarter deposits of Midland National Bank reflected an increase of $13,803,340 over the first quarter of 1981. The deposits jumped from $335,305,328 in 1981 to $349,108,668 in 1982.

The original story, due to a transposition of figures, incorrectly stated there had been a decrease of $4.1 million in deposits.

The Reporter-Telegram regrets the error.

United States now has 76-day hedge against OPEC shutoff

WASHINGTON (AP) — Uncle Sam is one-third of the way through paying off his oil insurance policy.

Officials were gathering on the banks of the Mississippi River this afternoon to switch on the pumps that will send the 250-millionth-barrel of oil into the Stragetic Petroleum Reserve. The ceremony marks six long, often frustrating years for the government's biggest energy program.

Before it is all over in 1990, it is expected the program will spend more than $30 billion to stash away 750 million barrels of oil as insurance against another foreign oil embargo.

That's a far cry from the $6 billion to $7 billion the program was originally estimated to cost for a smaller, 500-million-barrel reserve.

Huge cost overruns have been only one of the problems. Construction delays and world oil shortages have thrown the government far behind its original timetable. And last week a House subcommittee heard allegations that oil switching and other fraud may have cost the government millions of dollars.

But even with the problems, Energy Department officials say the program's accomplishments have been remarkable given the staggering size of the undertaking.

Congress, shocked by the disruptions caused by the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo, approved creation of the reserve in December 1975.

An abandoned salt mine and five groups of salt caverns carved out by the chemical industry along the Texas and Louisiana coasts were purchased for storage and the first oil began arriving in July 1977.

The original caverns had a capacity of 250 million barrels. With that storage now filled, the government is creating its own caverns by injecting fresh water into the salt domes, dissolving the salt, extracting the brine and filling the resulting cavern with crude oil.

THE TYPICAL NEW cavern is 2,500 feet tall and 246 feet wide. By comparison, the World Trade Center towers in New York are 1,350 feet tall and not quite as wide.

To create those caverns at just one site, Bryan Mound, three miles southwest of Freeport, Texas, the government is injecting 42 million gallons of fresh water daily from the Brazos River into the salt domes and pumping out 42 million gallons of brine into the Gulf of Mexico.

Each of the new caverns will hold 10 million barrels of oil, each barrel containing 42 gallons. That means the government will need to construct 50 of the caverns to reach the total storage goal of 750 million barrels.

The trouble is it can't build the caverns fast enough to take advantage of falling oil prices in the current oil glut. Last year, when the government didn't face any storage constraints, it averaged a fill rate of 335,000 barrels a day.

But this year, with storage problems, the government will be able to maintain a fill rate of only 185,000 barrels daily and does not expect to surpass a 200,000-barrel-per-day storage rate during the remaining years of the program.

The 250 million barrels now in the reserve represent a 44-day supply if the United States lost all 5.7 million barrels of oil imported daily from all foreign supplies. In the more likely case that the United States faced a cutoff of all supplies only from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, the current reserve would cover the loss for 76 days.

Paris residents bury dead, begin cleanup after tornado

PARIS, Texas (AP) — Residents of this storm-torn city prepared to bury their eight dead today as relief agencies extended help to the survivors of tornadoes that turned hundreds of homes into rubble.

Friday's storms injured at least 200 people and left thousands homeless, but many people gathered on Palm Sunday to remember the victims of the storm and offer prayers of thanksgiving.

City Manager Bob Sokoll said Sunday night the latest Red Cross estimate of the damage included 480 homes destroyed by the twisters and 397 sustaining major damage, making them unfit for habitation. Relief workers counted as many as 2,700 people without homes, he said.

Five funerals were scheduled. The services included those for two elderly sisters who died while trying to seek shelter in a church that the tornado splintered.

The dead also included a young mother and her infant son, and an elderly woman who died with her grown daughter.

Two disaster assistance centers were scheduled to open at 1 p.m. today, said Red Cross spokeswoman Jo Anne Jones, who added that workers there would provide food, clothing and medical assistance.

Congregations of Victory Baptist, First Christian and Lakeway Baptist held Palm Sunday worship services in temporary quarters. The churches were among those destroyed in the twisters.

West Plains endorsement ruled inadmissible by commission

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

AUSTIN — West Plains Hospital's recent endorsement by Odessa City Council was ruled inadmissible by the Texas Health Facilities Commission this morning in the opening day of the three-way fight for a similar health facility.

Midland Memorial Hospital, Parkview Hospital of Midland and West Plains are in Austin this week for the hearings on a psychiatric/chemical dependency unit. All three hospitals want to build chemical dependency facilities, but it will be up to the THFC to decide which of the three will build.

West Plains, a subsidiary of Southwest Health of Midland-Odessa, is proposing a $4.169 million, 60-bed psychiatric hospital with substance abuse services to be built at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Michael Bullitt, vice president of operations and development of Southwest, was the first of three witnesses to testify before J. Kay Trostle, THFC hearing officer.

Ms. Trostle rejected the Odessa endorsement after objections by MMH attorney Kevin Reed, who claimed the evidence was hearsay. The Odessa City Council adopted a resolution endorsing West Plains after a presentation at a recent meeting.

Winds expected to be gusty on Tuesday

Midlanders can look forward to another day of blowing dirt Tuesday, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Although it will be fair tonight and Tuesday, the wind is expected to be gusty and blow from the south and southeast at 15-25 mph Tuesday. Winds will be easterly at 10-15 mph tonight.

Temperatures will be cooler with the low tonight dropping near 40 and the high on Tuesday once again reaching into the middle 70s.

Monday's high of 89 was four degrees cooler than the record high of 93, set for that date in 1937. The overnight low of 52 was 24 degrees cooler than the record low of 28, set in 1970.

Midland man in critical condition

FORT DAVIS — A Midland man was in stable condition and an Odessan in critical condition this morning in the intensive care unit of Odessa's Medical Center Hospital where both are being treated for injuries suffered in a traffic accident Sunday morning near here that killed two other Odessans.

Rudolpho Lomeli, 23, of Midland, was listed as stable, while Jaime Galindo Sotelo, about 17, of Odessa was listed as critical. The two were injured about 7 a.m. Sunday 18.9 miles north of Fort Davis on State Highway 17 when the pickup in which they and two others were riding overturned.

Department of Public Safety investigators say they are unsure who was driving the vehicle at the time. It may have been Juan S. Galindo, 36, of Odessa, they say. He and 14-year-old Juan B. Galindo of Odessa were pronounced dead at the scene of the collision by Justice of the Peace George Spencer of Fort Davis. Their bodies were taken to Geeslin Funeral Home in Alpine.

Investigators say the northbound pickup, apparently traveling at a high rate of speed, ran off the right side of the roadway, jumped a ditch, became airborne for 25 to 30 feet and then landed on its right side. The vehicle then skidded another 250 feet, hit the pavement, flipped and switched ends, ejecting all four passengers.

The mishap was investigated by Trooper Bob McMahan of Fort Davis.

Police investigate two thefts of cash

Midland police this morning were investigating a theft of $550 in cash from a man staying at a local motel and the theft of a cash register from a service station.

Kwen Wilder reported the theft of the cash and a knife from him. He said the incident occurred at Motel 6, 1000 S. Midkiff Road.

A police officer reported a burglary at the Texaco service station at Garden City Highway and Interstate 20. According to police reports, the station was entered through a south window and a cash register and a case of motor oil were taken. Total value of the items was listed as $650.

Seven Midland firemen responded to a house fire at 105 S. Jefferson St. early Sunday morning and spent half an hour extinguishing the blaze.

The residence, occupied by Brenda Ward but owned by Novella Rowe of 300 S. Carver St., was slightly damaged in the fire which burned a rear wall.

Bryant re-elected as Odessa's mayor

ODESSA — Voters here tucked Mayor Bob Bryant into another term of office by giving him 56 percent of the 6,300-plus votes cast in the Odessa mayoral election here Saturday.

Bryant, 49, knocked out challenger Ron Wells, 30, by 3,562 to 2,807 votes. Bryant, who served two terms on the Odessa City Council before he was elected mayor, is a businessman. Wells, who had been critical of the mayor's campaign tactics and who promised to monitor the City Council's actions, is in the oil pipeline supply business.

Thomas Perkins, 28, won a landslide — 63 percent — victory in beating out opponents Abel Quintela and Jake David Dominquez for a seat on the Odessa City Council. Councilman Dick Sivalls was re-seated by defeating challenge Pete Anchondo.

In the Ector County Independent School District and Odessa College board elections, five incumbents were re-elected. Mickey Jones, president of the ECISD board, and Vickie Gomez kept their seats on the ECISD board. Jones, a 34-year-old lawyer who was challenged by Jerry Keele and Ruth Richardson, ended up with 60 percent of the vote. In the college race, Phil Parker, Bob Clark and James Gilliland were returned to their posts on the OC board.

Endorsement of West Plains ruled inadmissible

County Judge Gary Watkins are all expected to testify today in West Plains' behalf.

MMH is being represented at the hearings by President Ray Branson and Reed. Parkview's representatives include Dick Liley, administrator, and Ace Pitkins, attorney.

West Plains' testimony is tentatively expected to end Thursday, with MMH and Parkview to follow. The entire procedure is expected to take 2½ weeks, with a final decision by the THFC expected sometime in May.

Greek's magic cure attracts believers

booster injections are sometimes needed depending on the person.

The theory of the serum, according to literature brought back by those he has treated, is:

"THE CANCER CELLS build a protective jelly-like substance around it, thus preventing our natural immunity system from killing it. His serum tricks the cancer cells into thinking it will help them, so the cancer cells invite the serum in. The serum then dissolves the jelly-like substance and our white blood cells kill the cancer. The serum then works for six months dissolving the dead cancer cells and they are eliminated from our bodies through the urinary system, bowels or it is lung cancer through the mouth in the form of blood and phlegm. The serum cures the cause of the cancer, dissolves the tumor and restores tissue to its normal healthy state."

When the Americans go to Greece they usually stay at the Acropol Hotel, where, until recently, Alivizatos administered his serum.

According to Mrs. Glass, the Greek government will not allow the doctor to give any more treatments at the hotel, so he now has a clinic.

But, when these West Texans went, the doctor came to the hotel to give the injections.

This has not been the first time the Greek government has intervened with Alivizatos' practice.

According to a December 1979 Seattle, Wash., newspaper article, Alivizatos' practice was closed down for "administering a drug not recognized by the Ministry of Social Services."

APPARENTLY THE GREEK government had the Greek Central Laboratory for Control of Drugs test the secret formula. The agency said the drug was lacking in scientific evidence to support its claims.

Eldon Jewett, president of Baron Travel Agency in California, said the action was taken to discourage Americans, from flocking to Greece for the serum.

Alivizatos treats 20 Americans and 80 Greeks per day, along with people from other countries.

"You must have an appointment. We can do this for you," said Jewett, who has travel packages available for those who want to take the trip.

The travel agency's literature about the trip includes such information as tipping, sightseeing, customs, weather forecast and costs of the hotel and treatment.

The Acropol Hotel charges approximately $20 a day for two people, including breakfast. Alivizatos' injections cost $40 each with blood work after six injections, costing $50.

Jewett said the entire trip, including the average 20 injections that Alivizatos gives, would cost approximately $4,300.

MRS. GLASS SAID ONE intravenous (orthodox) chemotherapy treatment in Lubbock would cost her $80. Other reports have been cited as $1,000 a week for the treatments.

She added that she would not hesitate to tell anyone to go to Greece. On April 12 she will go to Lubbock to see a cancer specialist.

When a person receives the serum, he cannot have any kind of other treatment, such as radiation or chemotherapy, not even an X-ray for six months.

According to Alivizatos the serum stays in the body for six months and other treatments will interfere with his "cure."

Additionally, it is imperative that the physician's diet, which includes omitting alcohol, certain fruits, meats and condiments, must be followed religiously. Other instructions include abstaining from sexual intercourse for one month, avoiding all emotional problems, sunbathing, swimming, hot baths and showers, drafts and limiting exercise.

Alivizatos has just begun keeping records of his patients, alive and dead. He claims that autopsies have been performed and documented to show that Americans were cancer-free when they died. But he has not released this evidence.

JEWETT SAID HE HAS been keeping medical records in the form of questionaires of the people who have been to Greece.

"I go over there three times a year to gather the names," he said.

Jewett said he tells his customers that this a 50-50 proposition.

"Five or six people have died this year who should not have gone," Jewett said, adding that 80 percent of the Americans are terminal.

But, he said the Greek doctor does have "some kind of cure."

In Big Spring, Skipper Travel Inc. will offer a travel package to Greece upon request.

"We have not sent anybody, per se; we could organize a package. We do have (access to) a translator for people to talk to make an appointment," Mary Ann Davis, Skipper travel agent, said.

In the literature from Greece, it is stated that patients can help Alivizatos by "creating a groundswell through newspaper articles and talking to our Senators and representatives."

"This is classic with these kind of cures," Dany said. "They won't tell you what (the cure) it is.

"OUR POSITION ON ANY unproven method is that we would never recommend that anybody take the chance, especially if they have a treatable cancer. There are experimental programs with testing the blood to dectect cancer, but we're not at that stage yet."

It has been speculated that Alivizatos' cure sounds like it is immunological.

Researchers at The University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio, have been conducting an immunotherapy treatment program for bladder cancer patients. The team of scientists have discovered high levels of interferon levels in patients who have responded favorably. Interferon is a hormone-like substance produced by the body which has found to be effective in treating some kind of cancers.

According to the American Cancer Society, experimental treatments in the U.S. must be published and tested numerous times before the treatment is given any validity.

Alivizatos states that cost of each injection which costs the doctor $33.65 could be mass produced in the U.S. for $15. The doctor would like to control the price of the injections, it is stated, so that everyone would be able to afford it.

Believers of his cure claim this could not be accomplished because of the U.S. free enterprise system. Alivizatos has signed an agreement wth an American drug company where part of his royalties would be spent on advertising to let people know how much the serum cost to mass produce.

Alivizatos was educated in Athens. He has a medical degree from Athens Polytech and four years advanced studies in microbiology.

According to Jewett, Alivizatos will be visiting the U.S in June and he will not see any patients from June through September.

Local women think treatment 'worth it'

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

In November of 1980, Donna Lemmon's mother was told she had lung cancer. She underwent surgery. Later she found out the cancer had spread to her other lung.

"The doctor told me my one hope was chemotherapy," her mother recalled. "I asked him what would happen if I refused it. He said 'you'll be back in two months begging me for it.'"

Mrs. Lemmon took her mother to Greece where she had heard there was a cancer cure.

The mother asked to remain unidentified because she needs complete rest and her local physician does not know she made the trip.

HOWEVER, IN an exclusive interview with The Reporter-Telegram, the two women told of events leading to the decision to go to Greece and what happened there.

Mrs. Lemmon and her mother had planned a trip to London before the second diagnosis of the spread cancer, so they decided to go ahead with their plans.

"We heard about the treatment in Greece through an uncle who heard about it at an Odessa country club. We were going to Europe anyway so we thought we would take a chance and stop in Greece," Mrs. Lemmon said, referring to Dr. Hariton Alivizatos, who claims he has a cancer cure.

By this time, Mrs. Lemmon's mother had began to retain fluid and it was difficult for her to breathe.

"I had nothing to lose. The man who told us about the treatment was so convincing.

"I FELT chemotherapy would have killed me slower. They use adriamycin. As far as I was concerned, the treatments (chemo) were worse than the cancer. I've seen it. My father died two months after beginning chemotherapy," the mother said.

Adriamycin is a drug used in combination with two other drugs for the third most common type of lung cancer, called oat cell, along with other type of cancers, according to Dr. Eric Svenson, radiologist at the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center.

"Many patients complain about the initial side effects of hair loss and nausea. Another side effect which could occur is a possible inflamation of the heart muscle.

"But this condition would depend on how much of the drug is given," Svenson said, adding that because of past experience with the drug, it is discontinued or changed to a different drug at a point where there may be a risk of heart problems occurring.

"The heart enlargement scared me," the Midland woman said. "And the hair loss, getting sick...it wasn't worth it to me."

MRS. LEMMON SAID when they arrived in Greece, they were apprehensive and scared. But, at the hotel, where Alivizatos administered his drug, they saw many Americans.

"We saw miracles," both women said.

Mrs. Lemmon took her mother to the hotel room where Alivizatos at that time saw his patients. He now has an office.

"You take a number and when it's your turn, he takes a blood sample. He can tell you where and what kind of cancer you have from the blood test. He's no quack. I wouldn't be alive today," Mrs. Lemmon's mother said.

The serum is injected into a vein in the arm. Mrs. Lemmon said her mother experienced feeling of heat through her body.

"After a couple of days, I felt a drawing pain in my back. I spit up blood and phlegm. In a week, I felt better," the mother said.

ALIVIZATOS CLAIMS the cancer is shed from the body through spitting blood for lung cancer and the through the urinary tract and bowels for all cancers.

Mrs. Lemmon said her mother emitted "white flaky cells" through her urine which the Greek physician told them would be the cancer leaving the body.

The woman stayed in Greece for 20 days. She received an injection every day.

"You're a little weak. The first 30 days after the treatment are critical. You've got to stay in bed and get lots of rest and stay on the diet," the Midland woman said, adding that because the immunity system is low, she was also advised to stay away from crowds.

"If my mother passed away tomorrow, she has not suffered one bit," Mrs. Lemmon said. "In our opinion the treatments were worth it."

IN AUGUST 1981, her mother's blood-rated level, which Alivizatos uses on a scale from one to 10 to rate the severity of the cancer, was 7.1 when she began the treatment. When she left, it was 2.5 which the Greek physician claims is cancer-free.

In February, Mrs. Lemmon took her mother back to Greece for a booster; she received 11 more injections. Her blood sample which she sent to Alivizatos has risen to 3.4, but when she left it was back down to 2.5.

On their fist trip, the two women went through a California travel agency. They said the trip cost approximately $5,000 for everything.

Her restrictions are to avoid alcohol, salt and acidic foods.

"Even if I should die, it's all been worth it. But, I'm not advocating that it will help cancer patients who have had long term (orthodox) treatments. However, some are helped," the Midland woman said.

Man, two sons pour gasoline in jet, hijack it to Cuba

By MIKE McQUEEN

MIAMI (AP) — A hijacked Delta Air Lines jetliner returned to Miami early today after a Latin father and his two sons sloshed gasoline on a stewardess and forced the pilot to take them to Cuba.

"They poured it everywhere, I was petrified," said Linda Infantino, an 18-year-old passenger who boarded Flight 591, which carried 96 passengers and a crew of seven, in her hometown of Chicago.

The Boeing 727 jet left Chicago at 10 p.m. EST Sunday and was hijacked at 12:15 a.m., 22 minutes before it was due to land in Miami, Delta spokesman Jim Ewing said in Atlanta. It landed at Jose Marti International Airport in Havana at 1:09 a.m., and returned to Miami at 3:55 a.m. today.

Miss Infantino said she saw one of the men produce a white bleach bottle filled with gasoline.

"THERE WERE three people — a father and two sons," said passenger James Phillips of Miami. "They poured it all over the airplane and on a flight attendant."

He said he heard the two younger men call the older man "father" in Spanish.

Miami FBI agent Jim Freeman said the men were believed to have brought the gasoline aboard in carry-on luggage.

Freeman said the hijackers poured the liquid around the front entry door, the rear door and the lavoratory area of the jet and made menacing gestures with a cigarette lighter, demanding in broken English to be taken to Cuba.

"When the stewardess asked what he was doing, he poured some gas on her," Freeman said. "It soaked her clothing."

FREEMAN SAID that when the plane landed in Havana the three hijackers left in the company of Cuban security personnel. Their status was not known.

Freeman said authorities think the older man was between 50 to 60 years old and that the younger men were in their 20s.

"They were Latin males," he said.

Andy Johnson, 16, a tennis player from in Lincolnshire, Ill., said the smell of gasoline was so strong aboard the plane that it nearly made him sick. He said he was sitting near the back of the plane when he heard the announcement by captain William Pitts.

"We have a slight problem here," Pitts said. "Two men want to head to Havana."

A PASSENGER who spoke with the three hijackers, Miami accountant Herb Johnson, said he asked one of the men why they commandeered the jetliner.

"I don't like the United States," Johnson quoted the man as saying.

It was the first successful hijacking of an American jetliner since Feb. 2, when a calm, well-dressed man carrying a bottle of gasoline forced an Air Florida flight Miami-to-Key West flight with 72 people aboard to land in Havana. That plane returned to Key West about four hours later.

Cuban authorities later announced they would prosecute the hijacker, believed by U.S. authorities to have come to the United States with 100,000 other Cubans during the 1980 Mariel boatlift.

The FAA said the Air Florida hijacking was the first successful one in the United States since July 1981, when an Eastern Airlines jetliner was ordered to fly to Havana from Chicago by two men armed with flaming gasoline bombs.

HIJACKINGS DECLINED drastically after September 1980, when Cuban President Fidel Castro vowed to punish air pirates who hijacked planes to his island nation. The Cuban government said it would either return hijackers to the United States for prosecution, or punish them in Cuba.

Airline employees and passengers foiled two hijacking attempts this year. On Feb. 16, an alert Air Florida flight attendant slammed the door of Flight 34 in the face of a would-be hijacker firing a gun, as the plane loaded up with passengers in Miami for a trip to Key West. Jesus Villa Munoz, 41, of Hialeah, was later charged with attempted first-degree murder, attempted air piracy and use of a firearm in the commission of a felony.

Congressman optimistic about breaking stalemate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Richard Bolling, one of the House insiders working to break the budget deadlock in Congress, says he is "moderately optimistic" that the efforts to reconcile Democrats and Republicans will be successful.

But the Missouri Democrat, chairman of the House Rules Committee, cautioned it will take "an enormous amount of give and a great deal of good faith" among negotiators to bring the federal deficit for 1983 as low as $90 billion.

"I would be delighted if I could be sure we could get to 90," Bolling said Sunday in an interview on NBC's "Meet the Press."

He called current administration projections of a $96 billion deficit "totally unrealistic," adding the correct figures — assuming no further program cuts or revenue increases — are more likely to be in the $175 billion to $190 billion range.

Bolling has been among a group of congressional leaders meeting secretly in recent days with White House chief of staff James Baker in an effort to reach an agreement that could break the stalemate over President Reagan's deficit-ridden 1983 spending plan.

House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, D-Mass., also has given Bolling the job of bringing together the work of House Democratic task forces trying to come up with alternatives to Reagan's budget.

Bolling said one key to compromise is dealing with the third year of Reagan's three-year, 25 percent individual income tax cut passed by Congress last year.

Some politicians have argued that expected loss of revenue from the cut is a major factor contributing to rising deficits, which in turn are blamed for continued high interest rates and economic stagnation and high unemployment.

"We have to get into the third-year issue," Bolling said, adding it will be politically difficult for Democrats to accept any compromise which leaves the third year untouched. "There are a variety of different ways to get at it that do not directly confront that. You could have surtaxes of a variety of kinds, you could have energy taxes.

"But somehow or other, we're going to have to do something about revenue that restores, from our point of view and the point of view of the people generally, some fairness to the whole program," he said.

Reagan, meanwhile, has remained firm in his opposition to abandoning the tax cut. Speaking in a national radio address Saturday, the president said he may accept "some compromise" on the federal budget.

But he said he won't bow to pressure to revise the tax cuts already enacted because that would be "like trying to pull a game out in the fourth quarter by punting on the third down."

The first increment of the income tax cut took effect Oct. 1, 1981, and the second phase is scheduled to begin in July.

Jury selection begins in capital murder trial

COLUMBUS, Miss. (AP) — Prosecution and defense attorneys prepared to select a jury in the capital murder trial of Marion Albert Pruett today, a process that is expected to last all day.

Pruett, 32, is accused of kidnapping and murdering Peggy Lowe, 43, of Brandon during a robbery at the Metrocenter branch of the Unifirst Savigs and Loan last Sept. 17.

Hinds Circuit Judge William F. Coleman, who will preside, granted a defense motion to move the trial from Hinds County to Lowdnes County because of extensive pretrial publicity.

—Marion A. Pruett

Coleman has said he will not begin hearing testimony until Tuesday, if a jury has been seated by then.

The trial will proceed amid heavy security and Lowdnes County deputies planned to use metal detectors on all people going in and out of the courtroom.

Pruett lost in a last minute attempt last week to have his indictment dropped and to have incriminating statements ruled inadmissible as evidence.

Pruett had argued that he was promised cocaine if he made the statements. FBI agents and police denied the allegation and Coleman denied the motions.

District Attorney Ed Peters, who has subpoenaed 25 witnesses, plans to seek a death sentence, a penalty Pruett once said he wanted.

On Oct. 28, Pruett, a Gastonia, N.C. native, called a news conference at the Jackson city jail and told four reporters that he had killed five people including Mrs. Lowe.

"I've been a mad dog killer, doing so much cocaine...I killed an innocent person...I think the people of Mississippi want to see me dead as much as I want to die," he said as television video cameras recorded the interview.

The video tapes have been subpoenaed, but for use only if the trial reaches the sentencing phase, when jurors decide between the gas chamber or life in prison.

Mount St. Helens undergoes two eruptions

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Mount St. Helens awoke unexpectedly from a fortnight's slumber with two mild eruptions, the latter coming in two brief "pulses" early today, shooting a plume of steam and ash nearly four miles high, officials said.

No evacuations were ordered and there were no reports of injuries, property damage or flooding.

"We had a small eruption of Mount St. Helens at 8:52 p.m. PST (Sunday)," said Kathy Cashman, a geologist with the U.S. Geological Survey volcano information headquarters here.

Early today, the volcano erupted again in two pulses four minutes apart, said A.B. Adams of the University of Washington's Geophysics Center. Although today's eruption also was described as mild, Adams said monitoring equipment recorded "enormous" seismic activity at the time, although it later calmed down.

Geologists considered the recent blasts a continuation of an eruptive phase that began with steam and ash eruptions March 19 and 20, said Bill Chadwick, another USGS geologist.

Bob Norris of UW's Geophysics Center said that because most of the snow in the volcano's crater melted during last month's eruption, he didn't expect any mudflows or flooding.

After Sunday night's eruption, the National Weather Service issued a flash flood watch for a 15-mile radius around the volcano and along the north fork of the Toutle River, which flows west from the mountain. There were no "significant changes" in the levels of streams and rivers near the mountain, weather service observers said.

Sunday's and today's eruptions shot a cloud of steam and ash into the sky, although the ash quickly dissipated, Ms. Cashman said. Winds were blowing to the north-northeast, but there were no reports of ashfall.

The restricted access "hazard zone" around the peak has been closed since March 19, Chadwick said, and seismic activity at the volcano did not return to background levels after last month's blasts.

The USGS immediately dispatched a plane to the volcano, but Chadwick said thick clouds made it unlikely scientists would see much.

At its peak, about 9 p.m. PST, the plume reached 28,000 feet above sea level, or almost four miles above the mountain's 8,400-foot crater rim, Chadwick said. The plume showed up on weather radar in Portland, Ore., about 50 miles southwest of the volcano.

Seismic activity at the peak continued at "moderate to high levels" in the hours after the first eruption, Ms. Cashman said.

Heat and volcanic debris from the March 19 eruption melted snow in the volcano's crater, generating a mudflow which eventually sent an 8-foot wall of water down the Toutle and prompted the temporary evacuations of about 60 Toutle Valley residents.

"We've got people up there watching the (Toutle) river, but there has been no apparent rise," Gary Lee, Cowlitz County chief criminal deputy sheriff, said Sunday night.

The low-frequency volcanic earthquakes which normally precede eruptions of St. Helens did not begin until early Sunday evening, said Steve Malone, a UW seismologist.

"We had maybe half a dozen or so (quakes) total," Malone said. "We'd get one, then another, then maybe two or three in a half hour. About 8 p.m. we started calling the USGS, the Forest Service, our normal call-down list."

Poor weather has kept USGS scientists out of the volcano's crater for the past 10 days, Chadwick said. When scientists last saw the lava dome in the crater, they decided it had stopped growing.

Geologists characterized the March activity as a dome-building eruption with an explosive twist.

The dome grew about 80 feet in height, to 680 feet, in the days after the eruptions two weeks ago as new chunks of crusty lava were pushed up from the depths of the mountain. When last measured, the lava dome was about 2,200 feet long and 1,800 feet wide.

The volcano's cataclysmic May 18, 1980 eruption left 60 people dead or missing and leveled 150 square miles.

Last month's blasts were the first eruptions in 4½ months and the first explosive eruptions in almost a year and a half. Not counting those episodes, Mount St. Helens has had five explosive eruptions since May 18, 1980, and six non-explosive, "dome-building" eruptions.

Alleged mental institution escapee kills self

RATON, N.M. (AP) — A man whom police said may have been an escapee from a mental institution shot and killed himself Sunday as the vehicle he was in approached a state police roadblock south of here.

The identity of the dead man had not been released by state police pending a definite identification. However, authorities said they were checking a report the man was an escapee from a mental institution.

Officer Dave Bryant of the state police said the man died instantly from a single gunshot fired from a .45 caliber pistol.

Bryant said three girls and a man, who were with the victim in the vehicle were not injured. The four, whose identities police declined to release, were being questioned by officers.

Police said no charges would be filed against them.

The state policeman said the four told officers they had left Amarillo with the victim last Wednesday. They told police that the man had hired them and asked them to accompany him to Wyoming as part of a car selling and purchasing venture.

Bryant said the man allegedly later threatened his four companions and and the five left Colorado and headed for New Mexico in a vehicle stolen at Buena Vista, Colo.

The vehicle broke down in northern New Mexico near the town of Tres-Piedras, Bryant said. The officer said three youths who stopped to offer help then were abducted and later were left tied up at a ranch house east of Springer in eastern New Mexico.

State police began looking for the vehicle belonging to the missing youths after relatives reported they did not return home early Sunday.

Bryant and another state policeman, Finis Roberts, spotted the vehicle headed north on Interstate 25. Bryant followed the vehicle until it reached the roadblock seven miles south of Raton shortly after noon Sunday.

"The initial report we had was that all of the occupants were armed and that they had high-powered rifles with them," said Bryant.

Bryant said three handguns were found in the vehicle by officers.

Officers charged with drownings go to trial

DALLAS (AP) — A jury was to begin hearing testimony today in the trial of three Limestone County officers charged in the drownings of three teen-agers in Lake Mexia.

Peggy Greenfield became the last juror picked for a six-member panel Friday to hear the negligent homicide case against Deputy Sheriff Kenny Elliott, jailer Kenneth Archie and probation officer David Drummond.

Dallas County Criminal Court Judge Tom Price said testimony was to begin at 9 a.m. The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals refused to postpone the trial after defense lawyers had argued that Price did not have jurisdiction to hear the case.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Sharing ideas

DEAR HELOISE:

I often wonder where all these new ideas in your column come from each day.

Once, many years ago, I thought up a slick way to finish decorative pillows without using a zipper or a needle and thread to close them up neatly.

Many years later, I learned that my invention was called a French fold. Leave it to the French to think up smart things, but don't be too sure that the rest of us haven't some good ideas too.

There's truly nothing new under the sun — it's just that we don't know everything. Even if we did, we might not think of passing a good hint along to someone else. — Martha R.

+++

That's why I'm here, as a go-between for sharing ideas.

As I've said before, just because you've done it all your life, and just because it's a simple hint, don't think we all know it.

So keep sharing and together we'll keep our heads above that proverbial water, a.k.a. INFLATION! — Heloise.

PJ HODGE-PODGE

Dear Heloise: We have been blessed with many gifts of hand-me-downs because, with four children, friends and relatives know we can always use them.

Since the kids seldom wear sweatshirts, I decided to use them for pajamas. The kids love them!

They are very warm plus some of the shirts have cute pictures and sayings on them.

In the summer, my boys wear loose shorts and soft button-down shirts in matching colors for pj's.

They seem to wear longer and it's a saving when I don't have to buy ready-made pajamas. — J.M.C.

ICE CREAM SERVICE

Dear Heloise: Being the mother and wife of ice cream eaters, I've found the easiest way to dish out ice cream that's frozen hard is to use a fork.

It penetrates the ice cream much easier than a spoon or scoop.

Try it and you'll enjoy your ice cream much more since your hands won't be sore and your disposition razzled.

We Moms must look out for one another. — Cheryl Wlliver

Everyone loves ice cream and Heloise loves hints on how to serve it. If you have a goodie send it to Heloise, P.O. Box 3200, San Antonio, TX 78216. She can't answer your letter personally but she'll print the yummiest hints received in her column.

DEAR ABBY

The second time around

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed "Missing Something" rang a bell with me. The writer was a young woman who was living with a man whom she described as "almost a saint," but she wasn't as madly in love with him as he was with her — so she felt that she was missing something.

I was 17 when I married. He was a wonderful man who adored me, but I, too, felt that I was "missing something," so I divorced him for a man who had what I thought I was missing. I soon found out that I had made the worst mistake of my life.

Now, 30 years later, I am alone. (Divorced.) My first husband is also single (divorced) and I would like to have him back, but he has been terribly hurt in his life (it all started with my leaving him) and he is a bitter and disillusioned man.

I realized too late that I didn't miss a thing but the love, kindness and respect of my first husband. Sign me ... MISSED THE BOAT IN YAKIMA

DEAR MISSED: That boat may sail again. Why don't you pick up the phone — or write a note — and let him know how you feel? The worst thing you could experience would be rejection. And the best would be a reunion. What do you have to lose?

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem with my son (I'll call him Billy), and I pray you will have an answer for me. He is 12 years old and has a terrible temper. This morning, a neighbor kicked our dog for snapping at him, so Billy pulled a knife on him. This isn't the first time Billy pulled a knife on somebody. He pulled a knife on his sister last summer after an argument and she called the police, but after talking to Billy a while, they dismissed him. (I was at work.)

A few months ago, Billy moved my car after being told he was never to touch it, so I smacked him. Then he took a run at me and drove his head into my stomach with such force he knocked the wind out of me. I nearly fainted.

At times he's a sweet and loving boy, but when he's reprimanded or somebody provokes him, he gets violent. I'm at my wit's end with this boy. I'm so afraid when he is older he will get into real bad trouble. Help me. — TROUBLED MAMA

DEAR MAMA: Please don't wait until Billy kills somebody before you have him psychiatrically examined. His violent behavior could be a symptom of a mental disorder. Your son should not be allowed to have a knife in his possession, and if you knowingly permit it, you must share the responsibility for whatever occurs as a result of it. Please act at once. Ask your family physician to guide you, or call your local mental health clinic. Billy clearly needs evaluation and therapy.

DEAR ABBY: "Too Tired for Love" complains because her husband works the night shift and she works days. "When he comes home at 2 a.m. he's wide-awake and ready for romance, but I am already three hours into a deep sleep by then," says she.

She asks how she can keep him happy and get enough sleep. You suggest they "synchronize" their work schedules. That's easier said than done.

Haven't you heard there's a recession going on? Synchronizing work schedules could be hazardous to that couple's economic health.

I have a better idea: Have the wife set her alarm a little early and wake her husband after he is already a few hours into a deep sleep. She can start off her day with a bang, and he can see how ready for romance HE is in the middle of the night. Or they could alternate. And after alternating a few times, maybe they will both be so tired they will decide to save it all up for the weekend. — WIFE OF A NIGHT-SHIFTER

Gov. Brown's sister making her mark in New York

By JOY HOROWITZ
Los Angeles Times
Washington Post News Service

NEW YORK — Kathleen Brown, youngest sister of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., moved here 18 months ago and has already transformed her political image from Los Angeles moderate to Park Avenue renegade.

"I'm considered the house radical in this building," she said, laughing, and explained that she has been elected monitor of her posh Upper East Side apartment building to lobby against a proposed 20-story "eyesore" of a splintered building around the corner. Among neighbors whom she has organized to join in the anti-development battle are NBC newsman Tom Brokaw and his wife, Meredith, who live downstairs.

"I'm fighting the ogre developers and bringing my California environmental understanding to New York," the former Los Angeles Board of Education member said in a recent interview. "When everyone gets depressed and says, 'Developers have all the money,' I say, 'Wrong! We can do it. We have the right problem at the right time.' So, they have to get a variance and we're raising money and starting an association. They all think I'm a hippie from California."

At 36, Kathleen Brown is at once whimsical and pragmatic, an East Side gadfly on sabbatical. The new wife of CBS News president Van Gordon Sauter, she calls herself an "efficiency liberal." And if she lives by any political maxim, it is this: Here today, gone tomorrow.

THE DOMINANT FORCE in the political scene right now is not particularly congenial to the moderate-progressive perspective," she said. "Efficiency liberals are not too much in vogue these days. I felt this was the time for me to check out, if you will."

She first toyed with the idea of opening a Tex-Mex restaurant so her friends would have a place to meet over margaritas in Manhattan. But she decided to go the way of so many other liberals these days — back to school. Rather than move with the ideological tides, she is going to study them.

Following a family tradition, of sorts, she zeroed in on law school. "When you grow up in a family of lawyers," she said, "it's something you aspire to do. It's something I've always wanted to do — ever since I was 19."

Her sibling, the California governor, may have been dubbed "Governor Moonbeam" for his fascination with outer space, but Kathleen Brown's passions are more aroused by her roots on Mother Earth.

"See," she began, "the earth is tipping. And Horace Greeley's folks who went West — the children and grandchildren — are coming back to discover their roots. I think there is something about roots, about going back to one's beginnings. Not as a Californian or a Brown but as an American. I absolutely love New York City and the East Coast. This is where it all started.

"If someone had told me two years ago today that I would be remarried, living 12 stories in the sky in this town, had quit my job on the board (of education) and abandoned my political career in California, I would have asked them what they were smoking," she said.

"But my life changed. And coming back here has been an opportunity to refill my personal tank and to renew my own spirit and to have time with my family. When I came here, I swore to myself I wouldn't get involved for a year. I just let this new city and this new life pour over me. I nested. I traveled with my husband in his job. I've been very, very happy in this transition period."

Relaxed and tanned from a weekend tennis trip to Florida, She wore her "New York uniform" — white cotton blouse, brown cardigan sweater, brown woolen pants, brown cowboy boots, a pearl necklace and gold, leaf-shaped earrings.

GONE ARE THE BOARD of Education blues. "I feel full of fire and full of energy after having really felt the burn-out factor," she said. "The board changed dramatically in the five and a half years that I'd been on from being a group that was collegial, fairly academic and public service-minded to a group that was fractious, single-issue oriented and, I thought, small-minded. I was reaching a point of diminishing returns. I have no regrets about leaving. It was time to move on."

There is one glaring irony about Kathleen Brown's new life. A champion of public education in Los Angeles, where her three children attended public schools, she has enrolled them in private schools in New York.

There is the Stevenson School, which is visible from her living room window, for 10-year-old Zebediah; Convent of the Sacred Heart on Fifth Ave. for 12-year-old Sascha; and the Riverdale School in the Bronx for 16-year-old Hilary.

WHY ABANDON PUBLIC EDUCATION? "I'm a heretic," she said, smiling. "There is no easy explanation, except that when I moved here and took my children out of their home and neighborhood and away from their father, I felt they deserved the best I could give them in terms of a nurturing school and social environment. I wasn't prepared to put them on the political-sociological firing line.

"It doesn't diminish my support or belief in public education," she added. "It's there. It's an institution. But I don't think it's a big deal that my kids are in private schools. What I think is a big deal is they're doing well in their lives here and they're excelling. I decided to invest in their future."

The future. It is a constant source of discussion. She's already talking about choosing beween a job on Wall Street or in the Brooklyn district attorney's office after graduation in 1985.

"I'd love to make money and be a hotshot Wall Street lawyer," she said. "That has some appeal. But I really have this irrepressible desire to participate in the public policy-government arena. When it comes down to what it is that I could get up every morning to do, it has to involve people and the political process that brings positive change in society."

Clearly, she has no illusions about the grandeur of the legal profession. Her father's a lawyer, her brother's a lawyer, her former husband's a lawyer. How many lawyers does one family need?

"I'm not here to argue for more lawyers in the world," she said. "God knows, there are enough. I mean, give us more auto mechanics who can fix cars and plumbers who truly know what they're doing and computer programmers because that's what the future is all about.

"But I think the study of law is a mental exercise. It's like putting yourself thorugh the Swiss army exercise book on a three-year body improvement program. It's a mental retread. Beyond that, it's a badge, a skill, a license. And I want to have a license to do something."

AT A TIME WHEN CONSERVATIVES in Congress are trying to strip the courts of jurisdiction over busing, law school, she said, will provide the chance to rethink basic social issues — like integration — by understanding some of the rules of the game in court through classes in civil procedure.

Miss Brown has taken to consulting other specialists these days. She recently made the first podiatrist appointment of her life because adjusting to life in Manhattan means mastering a form of transportation that is foreign to Los Angeles: walking.

"In Los Angeles," she said, "you get in your car, you turn on your air conditioning, you turn on your little stereo sound system — and you cruise. The only time you feel up against the elements is when you're in a traffic jam on the freeway. Other than that, you live in this bubble.

"In New York, you're much more in touch in a face-to-face way with people because you're walking everywhere. I walk at least a couple of miles a day because every other means of transportation is hostile in one way or another."

She views her husband's arguably lofty status with a wry sense of the politic. "Here today, gone tomorrow," she quipped. "You can be recalled in politics and you can be recalled in the media business. It's a demanding and treacherous world.

"I'm enormously proud my husband is the head of CBS News," she added. "But I just want to know if he wants chili or meatloaf for dinner and that we're going to be staying here for three years. That's real important to me now."

Cuban embargo pains detailed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. embargo against Cuba has hurt the island's economic development and has forced Cuba to rely on Soviet sugar subsidies to conceal its massive trade deficits, acccording to a report prepared for Congress.

"Without subsidized prices from Moscow, Cuba's modest 1978 global trade deficit of $187 million would have been $2.8 billion," said a report prepared for the Joint Economic Committee by Lawrence Theriot, a Commerce Department expert on East-West trade.

"As a result of this subsidy system, Moscow in 1979 paid the equivalent of about 44 cents a pound — five times the world price — for 3.8 million tons of Cuban sugar," the report continued.

The study shows the "trade impact of Cuba's reorientation...has been pretty dramatic," committee spokesman Bill Maddox said in a telephone interview Sunday. He pointed to the finding that Cuba has undergone a nearly total turnaround in trading partners.

"Prior to the (Cuban) revolution, 75 percent of the exports and 65 percent of imports were in trade with the United States. Twenty years later, Soviet trade bloc countries accounted for about 75 percent of Cuba's foreign trade, with Cuba's dominant trade partner, the Soviet Union, alone accounting for 65 percent of total trade turnover," the study said.

The report, which does not represent Commerce Department policy, documents the economic price Cuba has paid following its shift in trading partners.

"The 20-year-old U.S. embargo has narrowly restricted Cuban gains from hard currency trade, both directly by foreclosing trade with Havana's natural partner (the United States) and indirectly by preventing trade with the west from achieving full potential.

"It has also forced dependence on distant Soviet trade bloc suppliers whose unreliable delivery of a limited variety of generally poor quality products has retarded Cuban economic performance," according to the study, released over the weekend.

Moreover, Havana must rely on subsidized Soviet imports for 99 percent of its oil, the report said.

In addition to its trade problems, Cuba is facing a labor surplus and has adopted what its planners feel is an "optimal" solution — exporting it to underdeveloped nations, the study said.

Brandt downplays U.S. influence

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Former Chancellor Willy Brandt criticized the "nonsense and confusion" of the Reagan administration and said West Germans should not "run around like a frightened rabbit" trying to please Americans, a magazine reported Sunday.

In an interview published in Der Speigel, Brandt was quoted as saying that statements that West Germans are anti-American should not lead them to bend to Washington's every whim.

"We should get out of this rather curious behavior that is riddled with inferiority complexes, as if we only have to take notice of something when someone furrows their brow in Washington offices," Brandt was quoted as saying.

"The Social Democrats in Germany could not produce as much nonsense and confusion as is being produced there (in Washington) right now, even if they really tried," said Brandt, who is the party's chairman.

He said some U.S. politicians and commentators are reading too much into calls by some party branches for rejection of deployment of new U.S. missiles in West Germany.

He asked if West Germans should consider statements by some American officials as anti-German. As an example, he said, it could be asked why West Germans did not get excited about such "barbed speeches against the Bonn government" as one given by Fred Ikle, U.S. undersecretary of state, in Munich last week.

Ikle called for a "trade war" with the Soviet bloc, while Bonn's ruling Social Democrats favor continued trade with the Soviets as a means of detente. Ikle made his speech at a meeting of Bavaria's Christian Social Union, the sister party of the conservative Christian Democrat opposition in Bonn.

Brandt's comments on German-American relations came when he was asked about his party's position on the 1979 NATO decision to deploy new U.S. missiles in Europe next year if negotations fail to persuade the Soviets to dismantle their SS-20 rockets aimed at Western Europe.

The Social Democrats meet in Munich later this month for a national congress expected to reveal deep rifts in the party over the missles and a plethora of other key issues.

However, Brandt said he was confident the party would back a security policy proposal that broadly endorses the 1979 NATO decision to deploy missiles starting late in 1983 if by then arms control talks have failed to limit or scrap the weapons.

The proposal also states that British and French nuclear forces must be included in European nuclear arms counts. The Soviets have frequently insisted on this, but it has so far always been rejected by the West.

Israel extends Sinai evacuation deadline

YAMIT, Occupied Sinai (AP) — Defense Minister Ariel Sharon decided Sunday to extend the already expired deadline for Jewish settlers to leave the homes they occupy in northeastern Sinai Peninsula, a senior Israeli official said.

The decision was announced by opponents of the withdrawal and confirmed by the official, who declined to be identified.

The March 31 deadline for leaving the area was extended to April 15, leaving Israel no more than 10 days to evacuate about 2,000 settlers and illegal squatters from the Sinai, which it is to turn over to Egypt on April 25.

The extension came as no surprise. The army had made no move to evict squatters in the four days since the original deadline expired.

Sharon told a delegation of the anti-withdrawal movement in Tel Aviv that the settlers could stay in the Sinai town of Yamit and surrounding settlements until the end of the eight-day Passover holiday.

Many of the settlers broke into applause and singing when they heard of the extension.

The official said the entension was granted to enable settlers to remove equipment captured from Egypt in the 1967 Middle East War from the area and to give the army time to move out personnel stationed there.

But the government was also motivated by a reluctance to evict the Israelis during Passover, which commemorates the Jewish exodus from Egypt 4,000 years ago.

The anti-withdrawal movement says it hopes to bring another 8,000 supporters into Yamit during Passover, defying an army order. Army roadblocks bar civilians from entering the region.

However, an Israeli Cabinet minister visiting the settlers said Israel would proceed with its withdrawal in keeping with the terms of the Israel-Egypt peace agreement outlined in the Camp David accords.

Communications Minister Mordechai Zippori arrived to a noisy and defiant reception from hundreds of Yamit squatters.

"We signed a peace agreement and we all want to believe that the Egyptians will fulfill their part and keep the peace for a long, long time. It's a fact we have to live with," Zippori told reporters later.

Brezhnev reported home from hospital

MOSCOW (AP) — Ailing President Leonid I. Brezhnev has been sent home from the hospital and may be able to join the rest of the Soviet leadership in a television appearance in a few weeks, according to a Soviet source.

The source, whose information on the health of Soviet leaders has proved accurate in the past, said the 75-year-old Communist Party chief is still under constant medical supervision and might have to go back to the hospital at any time.

But he predicted Brezhnev would make a TV appearance "soon," either on April 11, the birthday of Vladimir Lenin, the founder of the Soviet state, or at the annual May Day parade through Red Square.

Soviet sources reported earlier that Brezhnev was taken to a hospital when he returned from Tashkent, in Soviet Asia, on March 25. Some sources said he was suffering from exhaustion; others said he had a stroke.

Bad bill with good intent

Advocates of the bill to make it a federal crime to reveal the names of American intelligence agents keep bringing up the name of Philip Agee. He's the former CIA agent who made a career of publishing the identities of intelligence agents. His activity has been blamed for the murder of a CIA agent in Athens, Greece, seven years ago, and an attempt on the life of an American official in Jamaica in 1980.

It would be hard to object to a bill specifically designed to go after the likes of Philip Agee (although many constitutional authorities have problems even with that).

The "Intelligence Identities Protection Act," however, approved on a 90-6 vote of the Senate, is not so specifically designed. To the contrary, if it were to become law, people legitimately engaged in reporting crimes or abuses of what is supposed to be a democratic government, or the wrongdoing of people who work or worked for it, could be prosecuted on felony charges.

"Obviously," Sen. John H. Chafee (R-R.I.), asserted, "this legislation is not designed for legitimate newsgathering organizations which have published derogatory information about the CIA but have managed to do so with no disclosures of names, or with very few exceptions."

It is not so obvious at all. Consider a couple of other names, those of Edwin P. Wilson and Frank E. Terpil. They are the former CIA agents (or at least the CIA insists they are former) who, the New York Times reported last year, trained terrorists and purchased weaponry for Libya's Col. Khadafy while continuing to provide information to the agency.

The information about the activities of Wilson and Terpil is vital public knowledge bearing on the CIA's control, or lack of control, of its agents, present or former, and on the credibility of the agency and the government itself.

Yet under the bill, a zealous Justice Department could prosecute the paper and its reporters for having engaged in a "pattern of activities intended to identify and expose covert agents" with "reason to believe that such activities would impair or impede the foreign intelligence activities of the United States."

The Senate voted down an amendment, offered by Sen. Bill Bradley (D-N.J.), to narrow the wide and probably unconstitutional net that the bill would throw over legitimate news gathering. On the final vote only Sen. Bradley, Sens. Joseph Biden (D-Del.), Alan Cranston (D-Calif), Gary Hart (D-Colo.), Daniel P. Moynihan (D-N.Y.) and Larry Pressler (R-S.D.) had the courage, in the atmosphere of super-patriotism that pervaded the Senate chamber, to vote no.

The House version is even more sweeping than the Senate's, so it seems likely that the conference committee will vote a bad bill and that President Reagan, who is enthusiastically for it, will sign it. It may be hoped, though, that Congress will have second and wiser thoughts. No one quarrels with the idea that intelligence agents abroad deserve protection. No one ought to quarrel with the idea, embedded in the Constitution, that the people's right to know about the activities of their own government must be protected if liberty is to survive.

Time for a cleanup

Late in 1980 and then again in the summer of 1981, the City of Midland and the Midland Chamber of Commerce co-sponsored an event we believe is worth repeating this year: A citywide cleanup campaign.

As we've noted in the past, Midland's gusty winds and blowing sand (particularly in the spring and summer months), aren't conducive to a sparkling, litter-free community. But neither is it necessary that the accumulated debris of the fall and winter months be left to spoil the real beauty of a springtime in the Tall City.

There are numerous points around the city that could be used to illustrate how a good citywide cleanup could vastly improve Midland's appearance. But just one will suffice: The property along Front Avenue and the Missouri-Pacific railroad tracks. That area is particularly susceptible to blowing debris, but could be cleaned in a relatively short time by a crew of workers. Many other parts of the city are equally unattractive.

The previous cleanup campaigns have more than adequately shown Midlanders will respond to an all-out effort to clean the city of unattractive debris. Now, with spring just beginning is the time to consider yet another campaign to make Midland sparkle this year. It would be wise, of course, to wait for a couple of months until the winds Midland is currently experiencing have eased somewhat. But the campaign should be completed prior to the onset of summer's hot temperatures.

A good cleanup campaign in the near future likely would once again boost community morale and pride, and help bring Midland's springtime mood into full bloom. We would back another cleanup 100 percent and we are certain most Midlanders are similarly supportive.

A spreading danger

The nation faces a most serious problem with the uncontrolled spread of genital herpes, a disease for which there is no cure and which is suffered by some 20 million persons.

The federal Centers for Disease Control say the disease has reached epidemic proportions. Of the babies who contract the disease during birth, half die and a quarter suffer mental retardation. Babies can be delivered safely by Caesarian section to mothers with herpes.

Rep. Henry Waxman, chairman of the House Commerce subcommittee on health, has criticized the government for inaction. "It has taken the government 16 years to document the epidemic officially," he said. "How long must we wait before we begin real research and control?"

A stepped-up research program is needed but so are clinics and public awareness programs. Medical science must be granted every assistance in finding a cure for this disease.

Flirting with negotiation

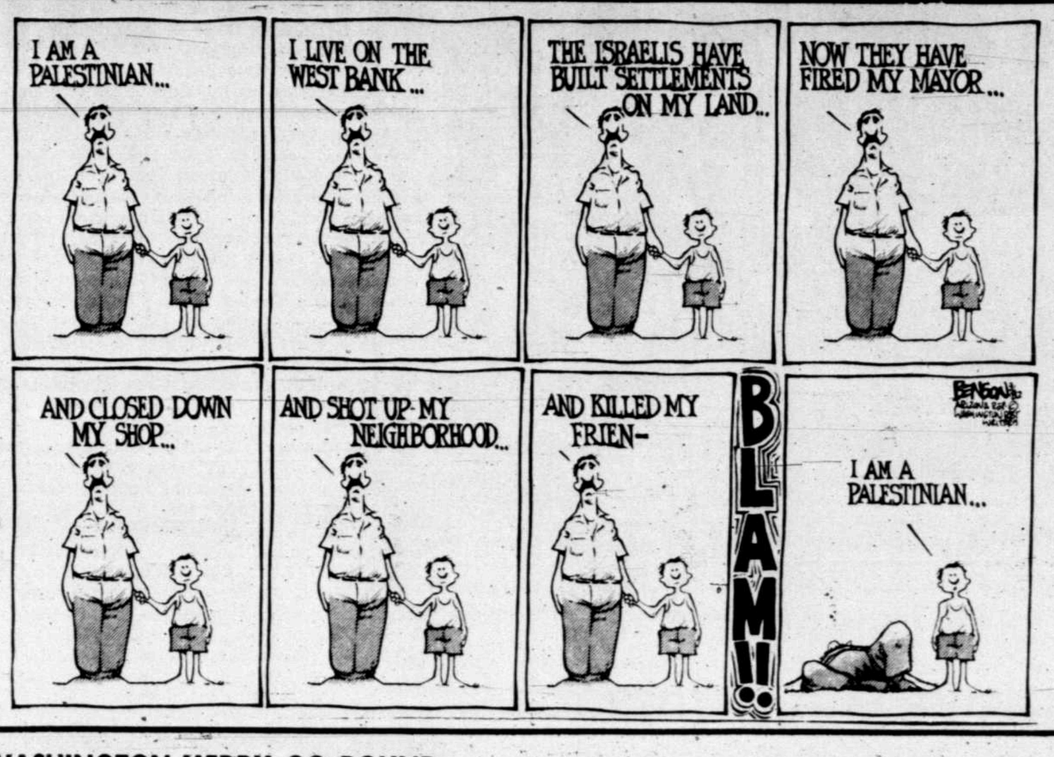
Alexander M. Haig Jr. is a complex man and occasionally something of an enigma. The four-star general Haig always talks a tough anti-communist line but Secretary of State Haig often behaves like a seasoned diplomat.

There was a recent news story attributed to "a senior administration official" that had the hallmarks of the Haig style. The official was quoted as saying about El Salvador, "And I urge you not to be overly mesmerized by a myopic preoccupation with that problem right now." That sounds like Haig talking.

The point of the story was that El Salvador cannot be considered as a problem in isolation from regional and even global influences. And that it must be settled by some kind of negotiated agreement that involves all parties.

Precisely, and that was the point of Haig's recent meeting with Mexico's foreign minister, Jorge Castaneda, their second meeting in a week.

If we're lucky, a process of negotiations is starting in the Caribbean and the dialogue will continue.



WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Inmate feels betrayed; fears for his life

WASHINGTON — Michael Zepin is a federal prisoner with probably less than seven months left to serve on a conviction for bank fraud and car theft. But he's afraid he won't live to make it. He fears he has been marked for death because of testimony he gave that helped New York authorities convict a gang of murderers.

Jack Anderson

What makes Zepin bitter as well as scared is that the prosecutors promised to do what they could to protect him from retaliation by friends of the convicted murderers, or from fellow prisoners enforcing the underworld code of death to informers. Apparently, the prosecutors did try to help Zepin, but they could not prevail on a tough law-and-order federal judge.

Zepin wrote me for help, in the hope that publicity will reverse what he views as a doublecross. Here is his story, which has been confirmed by my associate Sam Fogg:

In 1980, Zepin was temporarily lodged in the county jail at Waukesha, Wis., pending trial on federal charges. One of his cellmates confided that he had participated in the murder of four persons in Utica, N.Y.

To obtain Zepin's testimony, Oneida County prosecutor Richard Enders promised him, in writing: "I will not put you on the stand to testify unless some positive agreement is made beforehand that you will not be returned to the federal prison system ... I will do all in my power to have you placed in the witness protection program or such other disposition as will keep you out of federal incarceration and an environment where any fellow prisoner would have a chance to retaliate because of your testimony."

As it turned out, Zepin testified in good faith, but the authorities reneged. Oneida County Assistant District Attorney Edward A. Wolff Jr. wrote later that Zepin's testimony "played a valuable part in the conviction," and added: "It is my feeling that because of cooperation by Mr. Zepin, he has been placed in a great deal of jeopardy with regard to his presence in the general population of any prison ..."

What Zepin hoped to get in return for his testimony was either probation or the protection of serving time under a new identity. What he got from U.S. District Judge Robert W. Warren of Milwaukee was four years at the federal prison in Englewood, Colo. The unsympathetic Warren, the last federal judge appointed by Richard Nixon, was Wisconsin attorney general during the anti-Vietnam campus protests, and gained a reputation as a strict law-and-order man.

Zepin's forebodings came true at Englewood. Twice he was assaulted by other inmates until he found refuge in "the hole" — confined away from the other prisoners.

Finally, by appealing directly to another federal judge, Zepin won a transfer to the federal facility at Texarkana, Texas. Prison officials there insisted that Zepin is "enjoying all the privileges of the general prison population." They contend he has no troubles.

But Zepin doesn't share their complacency. In his latest letter, he wrote that three other inmates had tipped him off that prisoners, transferred to Texarkana from Englewood, were spreading word that "I was a rat-snitch and should be dealt with the way snitches are in the system."

Besides his feeling of betrayal by the authorities, Zepin can't see why he couldn't be paroled. He is 36, has a 15-month-old daughter, a stable home and a firm job offer awaiting him upon his release — if he lives that long. And his crime was not a capital offense.

Meanwhile, the prisoner who cooperated with the prosecutors lives in fear of his life. As he put it, with stark poignancy: "Plain and simply, I am very, very scared."

WATCH ON WASTE: The Pentagon recently asked Congress for $44 million to train and equip reservists for "combat support activities." What might raise eyebrows is that the reservists in question are West Germans, not Americans.

The amount requested is the opening gun of a $300 million raid on the Treasury for a five-year program to outfit 93,000 West German reservists as, among other things, ambulance drivers and stretcher-bearers. The West German government is to pay the salaries of the reservists, but U.S. taxpayers will pick up the rest of the tab.

Meanwhile, American reservists are badly in need of equipment and training funds.

WATCH IT GROW: "Voices from the Grassroots" is a small group with an ambitious goal. It wants to educate the Potomac-feverish news media and politicians about the views of average Americans.

As one of its founders, Carlton Price, explained, "Grassroots" hopes to get the hard-driving city fellers in politics and the media to slow down a little and take time to contemplate the simple, eternal verities at "the grassroots." The new group has so far recruited mainly engineers and farmers, but Price says "anyone is welcome." The ultimate aim is to achieve "common sense in government."

Price, a 72-year-old Virginian, has offered his backyard as the site of the organization's first press conference. "I don't think there's a better place to talk about grassroots than in a backyard," he explained. Even a city slicker can understand that.

INSIDE REPORT:

Price-fixing bailout shows 'real Washington'

WASHINGTON — The decision Wednesday by the Senate Judiciary Committee in favor of bailing out companies convicted for price-fixing, a major victory in the lobbyists' superbowl, was preordained two weeks earlier when the referee — Sen. Strom Thurmond — dropped neutrality and vigorously joined the battle.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

As chairman of the Judiciary Committee, Thurmond was responsible for an abrupt change of position by two of the nation's most important business organizations: the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the Business Roundtable. What probably mobilized the 79-year-old president pro tempore of the Senate was no super-lobbyist but a famous conservative tycoon back home in South Carolina.

Thurmond's role is part of perhaps the most expensive battle between lobbyists Washington has ever seen. Largely ignored by the news media, here is the real Washington and how it works. Not the battle of the budget, not the Caribbean crisis, not even the deep recession can compete in the real Washington with this intense struggle for behind-the-scene bucks.

The commotion has been caused by five companies who owe more than $2 billion in court-imposed treble damages for price-fixing. They are pleading for relief by way of a retroactive amendment to a bill intended to restrict liability for damages in future cases.

Their struggle, running up against both precedent and the efforts of dozens of companies suing the price-fixers, enlisted the big names that turned the fight into what we last October called the lobbyists' superbowl. Still, as the struggle droned on through mindless months of Senate Judiciary Committee meetings and unrelenting pressure on senators, the retroactivity amendment was stalled. It seemed likely to remain so for one basic reason: Chairman Thurmond had promised his neutrality.

Then, with a rush hard on the ides of March, the stalemate broke. In open session of the Judiciary Committee March 17, Thurmond announced support for a modified retroactivity amendment (which at least would put the burden of proof for reduced payments on the price-fixers rather than the plaintiffs). The Business Roundtable changed its position the next day to support Thurmond, with the U.S. Chamber quickly following suit.

Precisely what happened is obscured in the mists of how Washington really works. But insiders report the hand of a red-haired, multi-millionaire textile tycoon and conservative Republican activist from South Carolina named Roger Milliken. Milliken & Co. was the least liable of the five convicted price-fixers (losing only a $22 million treble-damage antitrust suit to Burlington Industries). But Milliken, a generous and energetic force in national Republican politics for over 20 years, pushed hard on his old friend Strom (who denies that Milliken was a factor in his decision).

The swift reversal of position by the two business organizations, without formally consulting their policymaking bodies, resulted from senators lobbying the lobbyists. Sen. Paul Laxalt, President Reagan's closest Senate friend, had been demanding a change in the big business position but failed until joined by chairman Thurmond.

As reported privately by staffers of both the Business Roundtable and the U.S. Chamber, Thurmond put this word to both organizations: If you have any hopes for the bill to restrict future liability (strongly supported by all business) you better swing into line behind the Thurmond amendment. They did so — swiftly and without apparent regret.

Still, there were not enough votes on the Judiciary Committee. Sen. Howell Heflin, a former Alabama Supreme Court justice, steadfastly refused to take a stand, creating a deadlock.

Two weeks of frantic activity followed, in an attempt to resolve the issue before the Easter congressional recess. Lobbyists scanned campaign contribution lists for pressure points on senators. Rainmakers back home were solicited. Each day, the Judiciary Committee hearing room filled with famous faces — former Cabinet members, White House aides, senators and judges — all handsomely paid for handsome lobbying.

Thurmond himself met individually with his own committee members in quest of the decisive vote. Under particularly intense pressure was Sen. Charles Grassley, a conservative freshman from Iowa (who incidentally was beneficiary of a personal $1,000 contribution in 1980 from Roger Milliken in far-off South Carolina). Finally, on March 31, Grassley joined his chairman, and the Thurmond amendment was adopted.

The issue itself — whether Congress should change laws retroactively to bail out antitrust transgressors — is all but lost amid high-powered lobbying. When a lobbyist opposing retroactivity tried to argue the higher principles involved, an aide to Senate majority leader Robert Byrd shot back that businessmen on both sides were "pigs at the trough," pushing and shoving to get the most slop. That vividly describes the real world in Washington.

CHARLEY REESE

Revealing 'the enemy' revealed 'us'

Let's take some risks and look honestly at our country. Many of our cities have become jungles. The public education system has become ineffective, at best, and in some areas, a total shambles. Our country has become the drug capital of the world. At every level, our institutions appear to have become ineffective.

Charley Reese

We have not solved our dependence on foreign energy (a worldwide recession makes it appear that we are in a better position than we actually are). Our criminal justice system doesn't work. Even civil litigation has become so expensive and time consuming that it is often simply impossible to pursue justice. We have great difficulty in reaching a public concensus on any issue, whether it's foreign policy or economic policy. Dishonesty is rampant, both in the public and private sectors. We do not seem to be able even to produce the arms we need to defend ourselves at a reasonable cost and within a reasonable period of time.

In short, we are a nation seemingly in the process of disintegration. Do you understand the full implications of a situation in which a government cannot guarantee the safety of its people in the streets of its major cities? This represents an almost total collapse of government. Did you know that in Cairo, an incredibly impoverished city of 10 million people, you can walk without fear on any street at any hour of the day or night? Why there and not in New York? The government of New York has 100 times more resources than the government of Egypt.

Some of you are thinking, "Well, New York was okay until and blacks and Puerto Ricans moved in." It's true that there are areas in New York City which were once prosperous and safe and they are now run down, filthy and unsafe and they are inhabited by blacks and Puerto Ricans instead of whites.

Must be something wrong with blacks and Puerto Ricans. But wait a minute, let's think this through. Blacks and Puerto Ricans did not suddenly appear on the planet in the 1960s. Most of our cities have always had large black populations. Harlem, for example, has been black for years, but it was once black, prosperous and safe. Poverty is not a recent invention either. Every city has always had its poor sections, but in the past, they, too, were reasonably safe and livable.

The breakdown in public order is not a result of ethnic groups nor of poverty. The breakdown in public order is a result of the breakdown in our institutions of government and these institutions of government are controlled by whites. Therefore, the problems we face are white problems, not black or Hispanic problems. This is still a white dominated society whether you are talking about government, business, or the intellectual fields. As Pogo Possum said, "We have met the enemy and he is us."

So what did we whites do wrong — we who control the government, control the educational establishments, control the press, control the arts, and control the business enterprises? We castrated ourselves philosophically, or to be more precise, American intellectuals castrated themselves philosophically. They rejected Judeo-Christian ethics, but had nothing with which to replace them; they rejected the philosophy of capitalism, which is individualism, and accepted the philosophy of socialism, which is collectivism. Inherent in individualism are the concepts of individual responsibility and accountability; inherent in collectivism are the concepts of group responsibility and a free ride for the individuals. This is the philosophy which has wrecked our nation.

When hoodlums rose on the campus of Berkeley to shout obscenities in the name of free speech, the intellectuals were paralyzed. They were unable to defend civility and order and respect for the rights of others. Instead of blaming the hoodlums, they blamed their parents, society in general, or the war in Vietnam. When some blacks turned to crime, instead of holding the criminals responsible, the intellectuals blamed racism and poverty. These intellectual eunuchs literally cannot defend themselves against criminal or political assault because they do not know what they themselves stand for or if any idea or behavior is better than any other idea or behavior.

We will not repair our nation or our institutions until we replace these walking suicides with people who believe in the philosophy of individualism, who hold themselves and others accountable for their actions and their words, who are able to make a moral decision about what is right and what is wrong, and who have the courage to punish what is wrong and reward what is right. It's that simple.

Jackson disagrees Soviets have weapons superiority

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., says he disagrees with President Reagan's statement that the Soviet Union has a nuclear weapons superiority over the United States.

"I don't agree with the president that they are superior...and I think he would have been better advised not to say it," Jackson said. "There are imbalances, but in the aggregate, we have the capability now of deterring the Soviets."

Although Jackson said the Soviets enjoy a numerical superiority, "they know we have a qualitative advantage."

Jackson, along with Sen. John Warner, R-Va., has sponsored a nuclear freeze resolution that would require the Soviets to reduce the number of their missiles aimed at Europe and at U.S. silos in exchange for an agreement by Washington to forego deploying any more weapons.

Reagan has endorsed the resolution.

Jackson, Paul Warnke, the chief arms negotiator in the Carter administration, and Richard Burt, head of the State Department's Bureau of Politico-Military Affairs were all interviewed Sunday on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley" show.

Warnke claimed Reagan's declaration of Soviet superiority was mistaken.

"Obviously he has been misled," Warnke said of Reagan. "There is roughly a situation of parity at the present time."

But Burt contended Moscow has a nuclear advantage in Europe and a superior capability to knock out U.S. land-based missiles — the so-called widow of vulnerability.

"What we have to be concerned about is that, at any level, because the stakes are so high, the Soviet Union would not believe that it could get away with using nuclear weapons," Burt said, adding that has been the policy of every American administration back through President Kenndy.

While backing the Jackson-Warner freeze resolution, the administration has opposed another resolution sponsored by Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Mark Hatfield, R-Ore. That measure calls on the United States and Soviet Union to "pursue a complete halt to the nuclear arms race."

"If we could wave a magic wand and freeze the situation at the present time, the balance of terror exists," Warnke said. "Neither side could possibly figure that they could gain anything by starting a nuclear war, because they know that they would be obliterated. Now that's the best you can achieve."

Burt agreed that the United States, even if it is struck first, has the capability of destroying the Soviet Union with nuclear weapons. But he said there is a difference between a nuclear strike aimed at knocking out an enemy's retaliatory ability and an attack intended to obliterate its country.

Wreckage of Navy plane found on Crete

NORFOLK, Va (AP) — Navy rescuers made preprations today to examine the wreckage of a cargo-passenger plane following its discovery on a mountainside on the island of Crete.

Eleven people were aboard the plane, found Sunday, when it took off from the Norfolk-based aircraft carrier Dwight D. Eisenhower last week on a flight to Souda Bay on Crete.

"Due to darkness and terrain, a Navy casualty assistance team from the Eisenhower will not be able to get to the scene until first light," a Navy spokesman said Sunday night.

There was no word on the possibility of survivors aboard the C1A Trader, found scattered 800 to 1,200 feet up a mountainside six miles north of Souda Bay, said Lt. Cmdr. Tom Connor, a spokesman for the Atlantic Fleet Naval Air Headquarters in Norfolk.

The wreckage was spotted by a Navy search plane about 11:15 a.m. EST Sunday, 6:15 p.m. Greek time, Connor said. The plane, carrying four crewmen and seven passengers, all assigned to the Eisenhower, had been missing since Friday.

Search efforts over the weekend had been hampered by haze and low clouds, Connor said.

The crew members were identified as Cmdr. Richard W. Beiser, 38, the pilot, of Cincinnati, Ohio; Lt. Cmdr Bruce L. Cook, 39, the copilot, Laporte, Ind.; Petty Officer 1st Class Carter C. Criz, 34, Syracuse, N.Y., and Airman Brian E. Haley, 19, South Yarmouth, Maine.

Milk intolerance common allergy

Dear Dr. Solomon: What is the most usual food allergy in children? If a child is allergic to one food, does that mean he will be allergic to others? — Sue, Miami, Fla.

Dear Sue: In testing many young children, I have found that allergy or intolerance to cow's milk is the most common. In addition, I have found that these children are allergic or intolerant to other foods as well. The more common ones include orange juice, egg and wheat.

Solomon

Dear Dr. Solomon: My younger brother received radiation treatment for acne about 25 years ago when he was a teen-ager. His doctor now says he should get yearly checkups because of it. What is the purpose of these checkups? — Hal, Chicago, Ill.

Dear Hal: Dr. Douglas B. Thomson, of the Geisinger Medical Center in Danville, Pa., believes patients who receive radiation for acne appear to have an increased risk of thyroid cancer and he is one physician who therefore recommends a yearly thyroid examination for these patients.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have run in one marathon and plan to enter another. I have two questions about my menstrual period. First, how common is it for women athletes to have irregular periods? And second, does this mean they will have trouble becoming pregnant? — Ann, Dallas, Texas

Dear Ann: Estimates of the incidence of menstrual dysfunction among athletes vary. Dr. Dorothy Haris, professor of physician education at Pennsylvania State University, places the figure at between 15 and 20 percent. However, it is possible that at least some of these women were irregular before they became physically active. About one-third of the women who completed the New York marathon are said to have had some degree of menstrual dysfunction.

As for the question of pregnancy, there is no evidence that exercise impairs a woman's fertility.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I thought I was in pretty good shape until I had an operation a few weeks ago. I was completely wiped out after the operation. I felt weak and had to be helped like a baby. I'm just about getting back to myself. Was my reaction to the operation unusual? — Sonny, Albany, N.Y.

Dear Sonny: Post-operative fatigue is not uncommon, although I can't speculate as to whether your response was typical. In fact you don't even mention the type of surgery you had. Most surgical patients seem to regain their strength after a couple of weeks, but some still experience impairment of function after three weeks.

An important reason for the feeling of fatigue following surgery is the inactivity to which surgical patients are subjected. A study of healthy control subjects who were placed on bed rest showed that they, too, experienced a decline in psychomotor function.

Bad guy actor Warren Oates dies of apparent heart attack

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Warren Oates, who played a boozing, brawling bad guy in scores of television and film roles, has died of an apparent heart attack at the age of 52.

Oates, whose most recent appearance was in "The Border" with Jack Nicholson, died Saturday afternoon after attempts to revive him failed, said Phillip Shwartzberg of the Los Angeles County Coroner's office.

Oates was at his Hollywood Hills home with his wife, Judith, when the attack occurred. His wife told authorities he had complained recently of chest pains and breathing difficulties.

Oates

Oates' first role was in the television series "Have Gun, Will Travel." Other major appearances included a slovenly police officer who was a peeping tom in the 1967 movie "In the Heat of the Night."

He was in "The Wild Bunch" in 1969, "Two Lane Blacktop" and "The Hired Hand" in 1971, "Badlands" in 1973 and "The Border" this year.

He often was cast as the villain, rather than the lead, but that didn't bother him, he once said.

"I'm not angry not being a leading man," he told an interviewer. "Whatever they give me to do, I can do...

"When I came out here from New York, I played Westerns because that's what was going on. There were 40 series, and I went from one to the other...I started out playing the third bad guy on a horse and worked my way up to No. 1 bad guy," he said.

Oates said his evil characters retained separate identities.

"Even when I did the heavies I stayed away from stereotypes," he said in a 1980 interview.

Oates was a rodeo rider in the television series "Stoney Burke," made in the early 1960s. In 1980, he appeared with Kristy McNichol and Eileen Brennan in the television movie "My Old Man."

He made several television pilots, including "True Grit" and "The African Queen," in which he starred with Mariette Hartley. Neither sold, but a movie pilot, "And Baby Makes Six," won high ratings.

Oates was born in a poor coal mining area in Depoy, Ky., and moved with his family to Louisville when he was 13. Five years later, he joined the Marines to "stay out of jail" and served there as an airplane mechanic for two years.

He attended the University of Louisville, where he enrolled in a drama class.

"They put me in a play and it opened a new world for me," he said. "After that, I didn't care about much else."

Later he went to New York City to study acting and landed roles in "The Kraft Theater," "Studio One" and the "Philco Playhouse" while staying financially afloat with jobs as a dishwasher, short-order cook and hat check boy at the "21" club. He moved to Hollywood in the 1950s.

Oates had some personal problems along the way. A bout with liquor continued until an episode of hepatitis ended his drinking.

He and his first wife, Terry Farmer, were divorced in 1969.

No services were set.

Weekend weather causes havoc for much of nation

A wild spring weekend of snow, high winds, forest fires and tornadoes bore down on the nation, forcing 200 people to flee Sierra Nevada avalanches, engulfing Virginia homes in flames and killing 49 people in a swath of swirling destruction from Texas to Indiana.

"I bet it didn't take five minutes for that house to burn down," said Ernest Brookins, a resident of Suffolk, Va., where 17 homes were destroyed Sunday by forest fires fanned by 50 mph winds.

Residents of Paris, Texas, were to bury their eight dead today as relief agencies sought to help the 200 injured and the thousands left homeless Friday by two tornadoes. City Manager Bob Sokoll said 480 homes were destroyed and 397 sustained major damage, making them unfit for habitation.

Snow piled 21 feet deep at Norden in northern California, threatening new avalanches today while rescue workers attempted to determine how to search for two more victims at the Alpine Meadows ski resort. An avalanche there Wednesday killed six.

Winds gusted to 81 mph Sunday in Johnstown, Pa., as the storm moved east after spawning weekend tornadoes that killed 28.

In Arkansas, where 13 died in twisters, Gov. Frank White pulled a family Bible out of the debris in Conway as workers loaded the remaining possessions of Ruby Stubits, 73, onto a pickup truck.

Her cedar chest was broken. "My husband bought that for me the first year we were married, and I thought more of that than I did all the rest of the furniture put together," she said.

The remnants of the storm pushed eastward Sunday, leaving 9 inches of snow in some areas of Michigan. About 500 motorists stranded in Grand Rapids on Saturday were able to return to the roads on Sunday. Several thousand customers were without power around the state.

In Illinois, the storm knocked 18 trailer homes off their foundations in suburban Chicago early Saturday and blew a DC-9 off a taxi strip while it was moving to a runway at O'Hare International Airport. There were no passengers aboard the Eastern Airlines jet and the crew was not injured.

Snow in western Pennsylvania caused an 11-vehicle accident on Interstate 79 that claimed two lives.

Winds toppled a Conrail freight train carrying chlorine crystals through Indiana, forcing the evacution of 200 residents of LaPorte County. In Angola, a Tri-State University professor was killed when a tree limb hit him.

One hundred forest fires in Virginia scorched 3,500 acres Sunday, but there were no reports of serious injuries. Winds gusting to 50 mph fanned the flames.

There were nine major fires in North Carolina. At least one home and three house trailers were destroyed as the fires advanced before 45 mph winds.

"We haven't had weather this bad in 19 or 20 years," said Tom Hegele of the state Forest Service.

America going south to lessen manufacturing woes

By CHARLES J. HANLEY

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — American industry, battered by low-priced foreign competition, is fighting back — with Mexicans.

Tens of thousands of Mexican women are stitching together blue jeans, clipping together electronic gear and assembling small automobile parts in a string of 620 factories, most of them American-owned, that stretches along the Mexican side of the U.S. border from the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific.

The workers are paid one tenth or less of what Americans would receive, and the products are shipped almost duty-free.

DESPITE A SLOWDOWN caused by the U.S. recession, economists and businessmen say this special program of U.S.-Mexican industrial partnership can only expand. Some see it as a vital American weapon in the economic wars of the coming decades.

"If the United States did not have these assembly plants, we would lose the competitive edge on the world market," said Edward George, an economist at the University of Texas at El Paso who has studied the system of "maquiladoras," a Spanish word for assembly plants.

The National Bank of Mexico forecasts that the number of Mexicans employed in the maquiladoras will leap from the current 135,000 to almost 500,000 by 1990.

"I think the future is unlimited," Carlos Riquelme, former president of a national association of maquiladoras, told a reporter.

"I see the whole border area becoming a center of technology and industry in the 1990s."

One sign of growth: the population of this dust-blown city on the Rio Grande has doubled to 800,000 in just 14 years. Ciudad Juarez now has 130 maquiladoras, with 45,000 workers.

U.S. labor unions complain the Mexicans are taking jobs away from Americans. But George and other economists maintain the long-range survival of the companies involved — and their U.S. employees — would be threatened if part of the manufacturing process was not carried out by cheap, unskilled labor.

THE MUSHROOMING of the border factories is also causing some alarm south of the border. Mexican nationalists see it as a new kind of American invasion, and some labor activists complain of exploitation by U.S. multinationals.

Under the program, begun in 1965 with just 12 plants, foreign-owned factories can import components from abroad without paying Mexican customs duty, assemble the parts into televisions, clothing or other products, then ship them back to the originating country. On products sent north, the companies pay only a small U.S. import duty on the value added by the labor.

Companies taking advantage of this lucrative system include RCA, General Motors, Farah, Hughes Aircraft, AMF and General Instrument.

Eighty percent of the maquiladora workers are women. They were found to be more dextrous and patient with assembly-line work — and, some say, less complaining — than Mexican men.

The factories pay the minimum wage — 280 pesos for an eight-hour day. Before February's 40 percent devaluation of the Mexican peso, that equaled about $11. But now it is $6.20, or 77 cents an hour. The Mexican government is urging businesses to boost wages to help make up for the devaluation.

Here in Ciudad Juarez, Mexicans now have to pay 40 percent more pesos for milk, eggs, chicken and other staples brought from nearby El Paso. The multinationals, on the other hand, spend 40 percent fewer dollars to finance their payrolls.

"The devaluation means the gringo factory owners make more profits," said Maria Elena Villegas Gonzalez, a nurse who is a leader of the Center for the Orientation of Working Women, which offers counseling and other services to workers.

She said the workers' greatest problems are health-related, caused by overcrowded conditions and poor ventilation, too few cafeterias and rest facilities, and speed-conscious supervisors who keep workers from going to the restroom. The women suffer particularly from kidney and respiratory ailments, and from stress and related psychological problems, she said.

GEORGE SAID WORKING conditions are poor because Mexican law lags far behind U.S. law on occupational safety and health.

"The lighting is bad. Workers in textile firms inhale cotton dust all day," he told a reporter. 'Invariably, the women end up after two or three years with health problems, bad eyesight or whatever, and then they are fired."

Although he agreed maquiladoras are valuable to American industry, George said he believes they will not help Mexico in the long run.

"They are almost an island of economic activity, by no means integrated with the Mexican economy." He noted the factories bring little new technology to Mexico, provide little training for Mexicans, and send 100 percent of their profits back to the home country.

Some Mexicans object on more political grounds.

"There is a risk of losing our own 'economic space,' of being incorporated into the United States' productive activity," scholars at Mexico City's Center of Third World Economic and Social Studies wrote recently. They favor a Mexican economy made by and for Mexicans.

Edwards earns Masters berth with GGO win

Clampett loses bid for green jacket

Danny Edwards chips to the fourth green during Sunday's final round of the Greater Greensboro Open at Forest Oaks Country Club. Edwards won the tournament for the second time with a three-under-par 285.

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Danny Edwards, who hadn't expected to make it, is in the Masters.

And Bobby Clampett, who fully expected to make it, who planned on the trip to Augusta, Ga., to the extent he'd made housing and plane reservations, is out. He will be among the missing this week when the game's outstanding players gather for the first of the year's four major tests of golfing greatness.

Moments after Edwards had holed a 3-foot bogey putt on the final hole for a one-shot victory over Clampett in the Greater Greensboro Open, Danny received a telephone call from Col. David Davis of the Augusta National Golf Club with the formal invitation, the one reserved for the winner of this event if he hadn't previously qualified.

It was the telephone call the 22-year-old Clampett wanted so desperately to receive.

"I've been thinking about Augusta since December. And I was thinking about it all day today," said Clampett, who needed a victory here to qualify for the Masters field.

"My family already had made housing arrangements and their plane reservations, so they share in my disappointment," he said. "I'd worked very hard to try to peak right now.

"Now I have a two-week vacation. We won't be going to Augusta."

EDWARDS, WHO had planned on a two-week vacation, also has to make some adjustments. He's in the Masters and also became eligible for the following week's Tournament of Champions — when he'd expected to be participating in the other half of his two-sport career as a race car driver.

"I'd planned on a little vacation and then had a race scheduled," Edwards said.

While Clampett was obviously bitterly disappointed, Edwards took a rather casual approach to his last-minute qualification for the two important tournaments.

"It's nice," he said. "It'll be nice to go to the Masters. It's a major tournament, a major championship."

Edwards, whose two previous tour victories had come in the 1977 Greensboro tournament and the 1980 National Team Championship with his brother Danny, won this one with a front-running, wind-blown final round of 75 — 3-over-par on the Forest Oaks Country Club course that was scoured with winds gusting up to 40 miles an hour.

Edwards, winner of only $4,547 earlier this season, picked up $54,000 from the total purse of $300,000 with his winning total of 285 — 3-under par. Clampett, who chased but never caught Edwards throughout the day, had a closing 73 and a 286 total.

He was followed by Jack Renner, one of three men able to break par on the final day. Renner was alone at 287, one under, after a 70. Woody Blackburn, 73-283, was next, with British Open champion Bill Rogers and Ben Crenshaw tied at 289. Crenshaw had a 69, Rogers 72.

EDWARDS STARTED the day with a three-shot lead and retained sole control of the top spot all the way, despite a double bogey on the seventh. Clampett, who also had some troubles in the wind and missed 11 greens, closed to within one shot with a birdie on the 16th, but dropped two shots back when he bogeyed the 17th from a bunker.

That sent Edwards to the final hole with a two-shot lead. He needed it. He drove into a fairway bunker, hit the lip coming out, reached the green in three and had to make a 3-foot second putt for the bogey that won it.

"I just couldn't catch him," Clampett said. "It was all there. I seemed to have position all day. But I just couldn't catch him."

Edwards said a new, more casual approach to the game was a key for him.

"In my desire to improve and do well, I've made it difficult for myself," he said. "I tried to take a more happy-go-lucky, couldn't-care-less attitude, just go out and play and not be concerned with how many over or how many under I was.

"I'm a good player. I have a good record. I've worked hard on my game. I can do well in every part of the game — if I let my ability come out. In the past I've made it difficult for myself.

"I think I learned something this week: to be easier on myself, just let things happen."

Little talks about becoming U.S. citizen after Shore win

By KEN PETERS
AP Sports Writer

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Sally Little, a native of South Africa, says she wants to become an American citizen "because I make my living here and I feel I should be part of it."

Little has indeed made quite a living in her 11 years on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour since coming to the United States from Capetown.

On Sunday, she collected $45,000 for four days of work in the richest women's tournament as she rallied to win the $ 310,000 Nabisco-Dinah Shore.

LPGA golfer Sally Little admires her trophy presented to her Sunday for winning the Dinah Shore Invitational at Mission Hills Country Club in Rancho Mirage, Calif. Little shot a record tieing 64 on the final round and won the tournament with a four-day total of 10-under-par 278.

Afterward, an elated Little spoke of her desire to become a U.S. citizen. She said she had filed all the necessary papers and was awaiting word on her application.

"I don't ever see myself going back to South Africa to live," she said.

The 30-year-old Little shot a tournament record-tying 8-under-par 64 Sunday to make up a five-shot deficit and win the Dinah Shore by three strokes over third-round leader Hollis Stacy and Sandra Haynie.

LITTLE FINISHED the 72-hole event at 10-under-par 278 with rounds of 76-67-71-64 over the 6,255-yard, par 36-36—72 Mission Hills Country Club course.

She began the final day in a fourth-place tie, five shots behind Stacy and one behind Jan Stephenson and JoAnne Carner. Stacy had an unusual closing round, parring every hole for a 72. Haynie, in her 22nd year on the LPGA circuit, fired a 65 to tie for second.

Carner, who turned 43 Sunday but didn't get the birthday victory she wanted, shot a 74 to finish nine strokes behind Little in a group that included defending champion Nancy Lopez-Melton. Stephenson had a 75.

Little's 64, which included four birdies on each nine and no bogeys, tied the tournament record set by Lopez-Melton in the 1981 event.

Little caught Stacy with a birdie on the 10th hole, then took command with another birdie on No. 11.

THE VICTORY was the second in a month for Little, who moved to the top of the LPGA's 1982 money list with $95,788. She now has 12 titles to her credit and has won $733,487 in her career.

The victory in the Dinah Shore, her first in the prestigious event, was particularly exciting for Little.

"I don't know where I am," she said with a grin after her impressive closing round. "I'll have to come down to even think about it.

Stacy, despite her failure to hold the lead, was cheerful at the finish.

"Asked about Little's round, Stacy replied: "I kept seeing her backside all day as she was picking up the ball out of the hole."

MHS at home against OHS, Rebels face Mojo in Odessa

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

The Midland High Bulldogs are returning home Tuesday with a .500 road record under their belts to play winless Odessa High at Memorial Field. Over in Ector County, Midland Lee will battle Odessa Permian. Both games are scheduled for 4 p.m.

The Purple Pack is coming off its first District 5-5A victory of the season and according to head coach Tim Whalen, the win was the result of one bad pitch on the part of San Angelo's Zeke Barron.

The pitch in question came in the fifth inning with Bulldog designated hitter Tim Davis at the plate. Barron put high over the plate and Davis drilled it over the fence for the only score of the game.

"It was a long son of a gun into the wind," said Whalen. "He hit it into the street, Knickerbocker its called. The kid (Barron) made one bad pitch all day, belt high and Tim drilled it."

The home run gave the Bulldogs a 1-0 victory over San Angelo and their first win since the district season got underway. MHS is now 1-3 in 5-5A play and 7-9 overall. The Pack will try to up that record when they host the Bronchos Tuesday. OHS will be looking for its first victory in four 5-5A games and its fifth in 18 overall.

Despite their record, the Bronchos have been playing respectable baseball of late, taking both Abilene Cooper and Abilene High into extra innings before giving up the ghost. The way they've been play combined with a good history against MHS has Whalen a bit worried.

"They're struggling right now," he said. "They'll play us tough though, they always do. If they get their heads up they'll be competitive. I just hope it's not tomorrow. Their coach (Ronny White) is a good friend of mine and he enjoys beating me. That's good because I enjoy beating him."

Billy Miles, 1-1 in 5-5A, will probably get the starting call for the Bulldogs while Odessa High's probably starter will be Tommy Stahl, 2-5.

Davis, who hit the winner Saturday, could be back in his catcher's position for Odessa High if his injured finger is well enough. If not, he'll be the designated hitter with Daniel Castaneda behind the plate. If Davis is able to go, Castaneda will DH.

Jim Gunnels will continue at first base with Faustino Granado at second, Judd Ryan at third and Jose Carrasco at shortstop. The outfield has Peter Galindo in left field, Hipolito Zarate in center and Mike Foulds or James Pitts in right.

MIDLAND LEE has a 2-2 5-5A record, 10-8 overall, and coach Ernie Johnson is still looking for the combination of players that will provide his team with the desired offensive and defensive punch that is lacking in a few positions. But, going into the Rebels' game against Odessa Permian, he isn't quite sure who will be moved where.

"Our pitching is not to bad and most of the time our defense is not so bad," he said. "But we're not so productive offensively. We are leaving to many runners on base. Our main idea now is to score more runs.

"I'm still not happy with the play at first and second bases. We're not productive there, not hitting any. And, our catcher is not productive offensively. The other positions are stable.

Johnson has already decided on one change for the Permian game, and that's bringing Dennis Matta from the outfield to second base. About the other two, he isn't sure yet.

Offensive production could be the key to beating Permain Tuesday since Bruce Hollander, 2-2 in 5-5A play, will probably get the starting call on the mound for the Panthers. Hollander is the ace Mojo pitcher and according to Johnson, the Panthers seem to do better overall with him on the mound.

"They seem to be a real good team with Hollander pitching and not so good without him," he said. "They don't seem to play as well behind the other pitchers. I don't know to much about them really."

Bryan Willis, 2-0 in 5-5A play, will be the starting Rebel pitcher and will be throwing to Scott Page or Monty Chastain. Scott Carrell is a possible at first base with Matta at second, Barry Blackwell at shortstop and Chris Parker at third.

In the outfield, Lane Marks will play left with Bart Ryan in center and Scott Ullom in right.

Elsewhere in the 5-5A, Abilene Cooper and Big Spring, both 3-1 in district play, will square off for at least a share of the lead while Abilene High, also 3-1, takes on San Angelo, 2-2.

Lauda wins Long Beach Grand Prix

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Cautiously protecting a big lead through the last 10 laps of the Toyota Long Beach Grand Prix, Niki Lauda of Austria bounced and skidded to his first Formula One victory in nearly four years.

Lauda, 33, driving a McLaren racer for only the third time since his return from a two-year retirement, won the 18th Grand Prix race of his career.

He easily outlasted new Grand Prix point leader Keke Rosberg of Finland and the Williams team in the finishing laps on the 2.13-mile course through the streets of Long Beach.

"I'm right on schedule," said Lauda.

Asked how this victory rated among his career triumphs, which places him fourth on the all-time list, five behind Juan Manuel Fangio of Argentina, Lauda replied, "The latest one is always the best."

THERE WERE complaints by several drivers, including Lauda and Rosberg, about the course, which was reshaped from previous races because of the construction of a hotel within the circuit. Some newly-laid sections of asphalt broke up as the 75.5-lap race progressed.

That caused both leaders to slow down by 15 to 20 mph compared to speeds in the early part of the nearly two-hour endurance test for the exotic cars. And only 11 of the 26 starters were running at the finish.

"I slowed down because it was important to win," said Lauda, who last picked up a victory in the 1978 Italian Grand Prix. "The (time) difference didn't mean a thing," he added, speaking of his final 14.660-second margin over Rosberg.

"There was no racing for the last 20 laps. It was everybody just trying to save themselves amd finish the race," said Rosberg, who took over the point lead after three rounds of the Formula One series with 14 points. That's one more than Alain Prost of France, who lasted just 10 laps in his turbocharged Renault, and two points ahead of Lauda.

"If you were five centimeters of f the lipe, you crashed," Lauda said of the asphalt torn up by the cars on new sections of the revamped course. "I think it is not a good idea to resurface the course just before a race."

LAUDA AVERAGED 81.4 mph, far below the record of 88.47 mph set by Brazilian Nelson Piquet of Brabham in 1980 on the old course. Lauda kept turning laps in 1 minute, 35 seconds or less most of the race, then slowed to laps of 1:50.2 to 1:58.3 in the final six trips around the course.

Rosberg, however, was unable to do much better. He kept creeping closer, but never really made a serious challenge.

Gilles Villeneuve of Canada was third in a turbocharged Ferrari, more than one minute behind the winner. Riccardo Patrese of Italy was fourth in a Brabham, and Michele Alboreto of Italy was fifth driving a Tyrell.

Only 22-year-old Italian Andrea de Cesaris and his Alfa Romeo had been able to match Lauda for the first half of the race. De Cesaris protected the pole position he won in qualifying until Lauda took the lead on the 15th lap, just when the leaders began to get into traffic.

Dallas' major seeking 1986 Super Bowl

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Mayor Jack Evans says he will meet with National Football League officials in May to discuss holding the 1986 Super Bowl here.

Evans said Sunday he is convinced the NFL championship game could be lured to the Cotton Bowl to coincide with the Texas Sesquicentennial Celebration festivities to be held at Fair Park, site of the Cotton Bowl Stadium.

"The sesquicentennial could mean so much more if we had the Super Bowl here," Evans said. "It would give us a real advantage even though the celebration will take place throughout Texas."

Evans noted that Dallas would have to overcome a number of hurdles in order to get the Super Bowl.

He said as many as 10,000 seats would have to be added to the Cotton Bowl to reach the capacity needed for such a game. Current capacity is about 76,000.

The mayor also noted that NFL officials have said recently they want the Super Bowl held in covered stadiums.

NHL ROUNDUP

Pederson leads Boston to 7-2 win over Whalers

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

On a night when Wayne Gretzky closed out the most prolific scoring season in National Hockey League history, Barry Pederson was the one who played like Wayne Gretzky.

While Gretzky, the Edmonton Oilers' 21-year-old points machine, registered one assist in a 2-1 victory over the Winnipeg Jets — giving him NHL records with 92 goals, 120 assists and 212 points — Pederson had three goals and four assists as Boston blasted Hartford 7-2 to clinch second place in the Adams Division.

"I'm pleased with what I accomplished this year," said Gretzky, who surpassed by leaps and bounds any offensive numbers ever achieved in the league, "and with what the team did. But these last two weeks, it has been difficult. We found it tough to be interested in a lot of games, including this one."

The Oilers stayed interested enough to end the season with a nine-game unbeaten streak and wind up second in the overall standings with 111 points. As Smythe Division champions, they'll oppose the fourth-place Los Angeles Kings in the best-of-five opening round of the playoffs, which begin Wednesday.

Risto Siltanen and Jari Kurri scored power-play goals 72 seconds apart in the first period for Edmonton, with Gretzky assisting on Kurri's goal.

THE BRUINS, who wound up three points ahead of Buffalo in the Adams, will face the Sabres in the playoffs. If Boston gets the kind of production from Pederson it received Sunday, Buffalo is in trouble.

"I put the puck on the net and it went in," said Pederson, a rookie who received a new automobile prior to the game for winning the team's Seventh Player Award. "You have to be lucky. Other nights you get a lot of good shots and nothing will happen."

Blues 3, Red Wings 2

St. Louis secured third place in the Norris Division as rookie Joe Mullen scored twice. The Blues wound up with 72 points, the same as Chicago, but were awarded third for having two more victories.

The Blues take on Winnipeg in the playoffs, while the Red Wings, with the next-to-worst record in the NHL, head home.

"I'm glad Chicago won today," said Blues Coach-General Manager Emile Francis. "I wanted my team to win it themselves. It scares me to go into the game not wanting to win. You develop bad habits."

Canucks 7, Kings 4

Blair MacDonald scored a pair of goals as the Canucks closed out the season with a nine-game unbeaten string. Vancouver grabbed second-place in the Smythe away from Calgary with its late surge and will have the home-ice advantage over the Flames in their playoff series.

"It's a great way to finish," said Canucks Coach Harry Neale. "We couldn't ask for more going into the playoffs."

Nordiques 7, Sabres 4

Real Cloutier and Michel Goulet each had a goal and three assists as Quebec rushed to a five-goal lead after only 15 minutes and held on. Yvon Lambert scored twice for the Sabres.

Quebec will meet archrival Montreal, which won the Adams, in the opening round of the playoffs.

Black Hawks 4, North Stars 3

Chicago, which will play Minnesota, the Norris Division champs, in the first round, got two goals from defenseman Doug Wilson, who finished the season with 39 scores — second only to Bobby Orr for goals in one season by a defenseman.

Penguins 7, Islanders 2

Pittsburgh, headed for a first-round matchup with the two-time Stanley Cup champion Islanders after finishing fourth in the Patrick Division, scored four power-play goals. That gave the Penguins 99 scores with a manpower advantage this season, an NHL mark. Pittsburgh Rookie Steve Gatzos had two goals.

The Islanders finished the campaign with a club-record 118 points, most in the league.

Flyers 7, Maple Leafs 1

Tim Kerr paced a 59-shot Flyers assault on Toronto goalie Michel Larocque with three goals, his second NHL hat trick. Bobby Clarke had three assists and Bill Barber a goal and t assists.

Philadelphia, thi rd in the Patri faces the second-pl ace Rangers in t playoffs. Toronto r nissed out on po season action.

Capitals 3, Canadiens 1

Washington, whi ch has not made t playoffs in any of its eight seasons, w led by Dennis M aruk and Darr Veitch with two assists each. Rook Bobby Carpenter , Chris Valentine a Lee Norwood di d the scoring for t Caps. Mark Napi er got his 40th goal f Montreal.

NBA ROUNDUP

Celtics three away from best record

By The Associated Press

For the Boston Celtics, good things come in threes.

They're on a three-game winning streak and three more victories will guarantee them the best record in the National Basketball Association this season.

They squeezed past Chicago 114-112 Sunday, leaving the Bulls one loss away from playoff elimination.

And despite the closeness of the score, Larry Bird said there was no doubt in his mind that the Celtics had a lock on the game — especially after grabbing the rebound with three seconds remaining that sealed the victory.

"They still have to get that last shot to beat you. We had control of the game the whole way," he said. Bird had 29 points, including eight of Boston's final 16 points. When Ricky Sobers intentionally missed a free throw, hoping the Bulls would get the rebound and put in the tying basket, Bird got it instead.

Rockets 95, Spurs 93

Houston pulled within a game of the first-place Spurs in the Midwest Division as Mike Dunleavy sank a pair of three-point baskets in the closing minutes to help the Rockets wipe out a 14-point deficit.

His second one, with 41 seconds remaining, tied it 93-93, then Robert Reid sank a jumper from the corner with eight seconds to play. Mark Olberding's three-point shot at the buzzer hit the rim and bounced away. Houston scored 18 of the game's final 24 points.

Moses Malone had 21 points and 15 rebounds and Reid added 20 points. The Spurs, losing their fourth in a row, were paced by George Gervin, Mike Mitchell and Olberding with 20 apiece.

Sonics 140, Nuggets 116

The Nuggets, who had an opportunity to slip past San Antonio and into first place, remained instead one-half game off the pace as they had their 12-game winning streak snapped.

"We were due for one like this," said Denver Coach Doug Moe. "We are not big and physical and you cannot expect us to be emotionally up for every game."

Jack Sikma's 29 points and Bill Hanzlik's career-high 25 helped Seattle ~~clinch a playoff berth. Dan Issel~~ had 25 and Alex English 22 for the Nuggets.

Lakers 129, Blazers 111

Los Angeles retained its 2½-game lead over Seattle in the Pacific Division as Jamaal Wilkes scored 32 points for the Lakers. "He was awesome, in the first half especially (when he scored 22 points)," said Lakers Coach Pat Riley. "We design a lot of plays around him."

Portland, falling to .500, pulled within three points midway in the third period, then LA outscored the Trail Blazers 13-3 in the next four minutes to put the game away.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar added 24 points and Norm Nixon had 22 for Los Angeles. Kelvin Ransey had 23 points to lead Portland.

Bucks 129, Pacers 115

Marques Johnson, who had played subpar ball much of the season until putting it all together five games ago — the Bucks have won all five — hit 10 of their first 11 shots and wound up with 28 points against Indiana.

"Yeah, I'd have to say I'm finally back," Johnson said. "This week, anyway ... Basketball finally is fun again after a couple of months of it being hard work."

A 63-50 Milwaukee lead just before the half was shaved to four points as Don Buse, Indiana's scoring leader with 19 points, went on a brief tear. But Sidney Moncrief then led a quick burst with a couple of field goals and a free throw to widen the margin to 88-77.

Nets 119, Cavaliers 109

Ray Williams had 29 points and Buck Williams 21 as the Nets strengthed their grip on a playoff berth with their fourth consecutive victory. The Cavaliers have lost 11 in a row.

New Jersey used a 13-point burst to put things away, breaking away from an 81-81 tie late in the third period. Scott Wedman had 21 points for the Cavaliers.

"We're handling the pressure pretty good," Ray Williams said, reflecting on the prospects of a playoff berth. "We're taking this on a game-to-game basis. We're not good enough to do otherwise."

Suns 104, Kings 95

Phoenix put together a 10-point string midway in the second period en route to a 58-47 halftime lead. And after the Kings cut the margin to four points in the third quarter, the Suns ourscored them 15-6 to go up 81-68, starting the final period.

Walter Davis scored 22 points for Phoenix, 16 in the first half. Dennis Johnson and Alvan Adams added 17 points apiece as the Suns won their fourth in a row. Mike Woodson had a season-high 28 points for the Kings.

76ers 121, Knicks 106

New York stayed close to the 76ers until the early stages of the third period, when Philadelphia ran off 13 consecutive points for an 86-69 lead. The setback extended the Knicks' losing streak on the road to 10 games.

Julius Erving, with 24 points, led a contingent of seven 76ers in double figures. Campy Russell had 24 for New York.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Tuesday, April 6, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: The late Lowell Thomas, whose popular radio broadcasts spanned more than a half a century (1925-76), was born on this date. He was the first to broadcast directly from a ship, airplane, submarine and coal mine. Also sharing this birthday: Country singer Merle Haggard. Journeys abroad are a definite possibility in the months ahead. Moderate your independent ways and you will find new success in career and romance. Cooperation is the key to moving forward now. Look for new business opportunities late in the year.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Make use of a burst of creativity and your success will know no bounds! Stop postponing things. Get organized. The evening hours promise to be romantic.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A hunch can pay rich dividends if you back it all the way. You receive inspiration from an unsual source. Spiritual as well as material gains are featured.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Work very hard during the day and you will feel free to play this evening. Romance takes a sudden turn for the better. A money matter is resolved in your favor.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You have to give something up but this loss will help you move forward in other areas. Teamwork boosts profits while increasing your chances for a promotion or raise.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Move ahead with enthusiasm, but know when to stop. A positive, forward-looking attitude will help you get through some difficult problems. Learn to laugh at yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): An urge to get away from it all is strong, but you balance it with practicality. Be flexible around your business associates. A beautiful romance is in full bloom.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Go ahead and be adventuresome today! You make important new business and social contacts. Late afternoon brings welcome news from a loved one in a distant city.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Select your business partners carefully. A lost article turns up in a most unlikely place. You discover a hobby that could be an excellent source of income.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 22): A very productive day for those in the arts. Give a wide berth to friend's get-rich-quick schemes. Business travel is best postponed. Speculation will not solve financial problems.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Cooperate with individual who works behind the scenes on your behalf. Sales are up and you benefit! Someone's advances could prove embarrassing unless you make your feelings known.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Keep business expenses low. A good working relationship will develop with young person if you use greater tact. Romance is somewhat anticlimactic.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Romance is exciting now. Postpone signing important contracts, agreements. Consult legal adviser if in doubt. Family members are easier to deal with now.

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠6 ♡AK98 ◇A9652 ♣J76
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 ♠	2 ♣	?

What action do you take?
A.—You could easily have a game; however, the hand could just as well be a total misfit. What you do know is that you are looking at three sure defensive tricks and a singleton in partner's suit. A penalty double could bring in a bonanza if partner has the right hand, but if partner's hand is unsuitable for defending a low-level contract, you should have no difficulty finding your best spot.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠72 ♡KQ1065 ◇A83 ♣762
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
1 ♡	Pass	1 NT	Pass

What action do you take?
A.—Partner has a minimum opening bid and you have a balanced 9 points. You have no reason to suppose that you have a better contract than one no trump. A bid of two hearts tends to show a six-card suit and an unbalanced hand. Pass.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A872 ♡AK652 ◇J5 ♣83
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	?

What action do you take?
A.—There is nothing you can do with any degree of safety. Neither East nor West has limited his hand, so it is quite possible that your partner has a bust, in which case you might be soundly thrashed at any eight-trick contract. Yet you have sufficient defensive values to suggest that your opponents might have difficulty in fulfilling any game contract. Take the prudent course. Pass.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠5 ♡AQ1096 ◇A76 ♣AQ83
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	2 NT	Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Naturally, you intend getting to game, but because of your singleton spade, you should not bid three no trump. Partner has not yet denied holding three hearts, and you should give him the chance of playing in a suit contract in case his spade stopper is not all that secure. Bid three diamonds. That leaves all the options open.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠6 ♡KJ97 ◇KQ10 ♣AKJ83
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♡	Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Even if partner's response was shaded, you want to be in game — your hand is worth 20 points in support of hearts. Bid four hearts. Bear in mind that a jump to three hearts, while highly encouraging, would not be forcing, and partner might pass with many hands that would easily produce game opposite yours.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠J82 ♡AQ10954 ◇A ♣AK5
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
3 NT	Pass	4 ♡	Pass

What action do you take?
A.—North has shown a good hand — first by responding at the two-level, then showing his spade control and subsequently supporting hearts. He should, therefore, have the ingredients to produce twelve tricks. The scientific treatment is to cue-bid your minor-suit aces, in case partner has the right cards for a grand slam. But the pragmatic approach, which appeals to us, is a direct bid of six hearts.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Buy orders limited by others in front

BY BILL DOYLE

Q. For almost two months, I have had an order in with my broker to buy 100 shares of stock listed on the New York Stock Exchange at 11 — $11 a share. The stock has dipped as low as 11 on at least eight occasions in that period. Every time I call the broker, I am told my order hasn't been executed. But I am never given a reason why. Can you explain what is going on?

A. You have run into a situation called "stock ahead." Other orders to buy that stock at 11 were placed before yours. Until all those previous orders to buy at that price are filled — "executed, as they say in Wall Street — you won't get your 100 shares.

An order to buy or sell a stock at a specified price is called a "limit order." You placed a limit order when you told the broker to buy at 11. Your broker sent your order to his firm's representative on the NYSE trading floor.

Since your order wasn't executed immediately, it's clear that stock was then trading above 11. So, that order was turned over to the specialist "making the market" in that stock, as were other limit orders, and placed in the specialist's "book."

Every time the stock dips to 11, limit orders to buy at 11 before yours are filled from the specialist's book. You just have to wait your turn.

One big problem with a limit order is that it might never be filled, because the stock might not stay at the price specified long enough to accommodate all the stock ahead — orders placed before yours at the same price. If the stock you want to buy then moves up, you'll never get it at 11.

You could avoid this by placing a "market order," to buy or sell at the best possible price when your order reaches the exchange floor. Market orders are executed immediately.

•

Q. I had to wait in excess of 35 days for a balance due me on a purchase and sale of stock. Doesn't a brokerage house have a time limit on payment to a customer? I know I have to pay the brokerage within a certain time.

A. The rule is that a purchase or sale of stock must be "settled" within five business days.

When you buy stock, you must pay the broker by the settlement date — the fifth business day following the trade date on which your buy order was executed.

When you sell stock, you must make "good delivery" of the stock certificate within the same five-day period. And the brokerage firm is supposed to make your money available to you at the close of business on the settlement date.

Technically, you could go to the brokerage office and ask for your money at the close of the settlement date. Or, you can instruct the broker to put your check in the mail the next morning.

If you don't give specific instructions, the brokerage firm could very well credit the money to your account, where it will sit -- perhaps, drawing no interest — until you ask for it.

It's no secret that some brokerage firms will hang on to customers' money, until the customers start making noises. When you want your money from the sale of stock, be firm with the broker and let it be known you want the check, post haste.

•

Q. In 1960, I purchased 102 shares of stock, at a cost of $5,025. In 1967, that stock was split two for one, giving me another 102 shares, for a total of 204. In 1970, that company was merged into a larger company and I received 255 shares for my 204 shares.

Last year, I sold the 255 shares for $8,542. For tax purposes, what was my purchase price?

A. Your cost "basis" for the 255 shares you sold was the $5,025 you paid for the 102 shares you bought. That's because your investment in 102 shares of the first company eventually became 255 shares of the second company.

A quick calculation shows you had a long-term capital gain of $3,517 — the difference between your cost basis and your proceeds from the sale.

BUSINESS MIRROR

Buying power still less, but more than last year

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Can $8,500 buy more today than a year ago even though inflation has averaged roughly 8 percent? It's unlikely if not impossible, but the President left that impression with some people.

Your pencil or pocket calculator tells you that when you cut 8 percent from $8,500 you have $7,820 left. But President Reagan suggested at last Wednesday's news conference that somehow you can have $375 more.

"Take the average family of four that is living on the threshhold of poverty, which we say now is $8,500 a year income," said the President in response to a question about whether people are better off today.

"That family now has $375 more in purchasing power with their $8,500 that they did at the rate of inflation in 1980, and leading up to the Inaugural in '81."

More purchasing power? No, they have less purchasing power, things other than inflation remaining equal. As a butcher might say, any way you cut the baloney you're always left with less than you had.

What the President could have said with almost no misunderstanding was that anyone with $8,500 today is less badly off than if inflation had continued at the old rates. But he emphasized "more," not "less."

Still, economists were found who defended the President's message albeit with qualifications such as "perhaps he should have said ...."

The President used inflation rates in his calculations. The inflation rate he used for the period prior to the inaugural apparently was 12.4 percent. The rate used for the time since then apparently was 8 percent or so.

If inflation had continued at 12.4 percent — for a time during that period it was closer to 16 percent — that $8,500 would have been reduced in one year's time to $7,446, a buying power loss of $1,054.

Since the inflation rate fell to about 8 percent, the actual loss of buying power was $680, which reduced the $8,500 total to $7,820. The difference between the two rates amounts to $374.

Does that $374 constitute "more" in purchasing power?" If you wish, you can at this point plunge into a semantics argument that would drown the point entirely. Suffice it to say, there's a problem in "more."

The possessor of that $8,500 would indeed be more equipped to deal with inflation at an 8 percent rate than he would have been at a 12.4. He would be able to buy more than he would have been able to buy had inflation continued at the old rate. But he wouldn't have more power.

He would, of course, be worse off, although he would be less worse off than he would have been at the old rate. He would still be losing, but losing at a slower rate.

Regardless of all this, most will concede the President has a point. Things are indeed improving if buying power is falling at a slower rate. It suggests that sometime in the future it might rise again.

In fact, for many families the return of greater buying power has already begun. Because the inflation rate has slowed, wages in general are rising faster than prices.

Any rates vary with the period considered, but price inflation is down to around 5 percent, wages are rising at about three points more. Last year prices rose more swiftly than wages, and buying power fell.

But if over the past year your income was static in dollar terms — if you didn't get any raises to offset inflation — then any way you cut it, you had less money to spend. Whether you earned $8,500 or $85,000.

Dollar, gold post gains

LONDON (AP) — The dollar gained against all key currencies today, recouping losses last week that came amid expectations of lower U.S. interest rates.

The price of gold also climbed by as much as $8 an ounce, boosted by news of Argentina's Friday seizure of the British-ruled Falkland Islands in the south Atlantic.

Wife says Henry Fonda bedridden for more than year, 'kind of fades'

NEW YORK (AP) — Oscar winner Henry Fonda has been virtually bedridden for more than a year and sometimes "he kind of fades," according to his wife, Shirlee.

Fonda

"People hear that he's up and walking again, but when we're talking about walking, we're talking about a man who hasn't been out of bed for nearly a year," Mrs. Fonda said in an interview with People magazine.

The 76-year-old actor, who has suffered from heart ailments since 1974, won the Academy Award for best actor last week for his performance in "On Golden Pond." In the movie, Fonda portrays Norman Thayer, a man whose failing heart forces him and others to face his own mortality.

"When he takes two steps, that's walking," Mrs. Fonda, 50, said of her husband. "Some days he seems fine. On others, he kind of fades. I just have to play it by ear, hour by hour."

During his convalescence, Fonda has a five-day-a-week nurse. But Mrs. Fonda said she also keeps a cot by his bed.

"It's our special time and it belongs only to us," she said. "Even as sick as he's been, he's never said an impatient word. If he wants something, he asks for it graciously, and he always has a word of thanks.

"If anyone can will himself to be better, Henry can," she said. "I heard him telling someone the other day how much he wants to get better so we can travel again and stay in our apartment in New York. 'I want to be able to walk to the Dover Delicatessen,' he said. I'm hoping he will."

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Songwriters Burt Bacharach and Carole Bayer Sager, co-winners of an Oscar last week with two others for the melody "Best That You Can," have collaborated on another project: marriage.

The tunesmiths said their vows Saturday night before a Santa Monica municipal court judge at the home of Neil and Joyce Bogart, said Linda Dozoretz, Miss Sager's publicist. Bogart heads Boardwalk Records, she said.

Singer Neil Diamond and his wife Marsha were the only other guests, said Ms. Dozoretz.

It was the third marriage for Bacharach, 51, and the second for Miss Sager, 34. "Best That You Can," is the theme song from the movie "Arthur," and was also co-written by singers Christopher Cross and Peter Allen.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Patty Duke Astin has been presented the Eleanor Roosevelt Award for humanitarian service for her efforts to help pass the Equal Rights Amendment.

The presentation Saturday night by the Southern California Americans for Democratic Action Foundation goes to the person in Southern California who best exemplifies Mrs. Roosevelt's philosophy and principles. Mrs. Astin's co-recipient was trade union leader Justin Ostro.

Actor Sidney Poitier was guest of honor at the presentation and former Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., was keynote speaker.

Reagan civil defense plan based on week's warning

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's ambitious civil defense program — intended to assure the survival of most Americans in a nuclear war with the Soviet Union — is based on the belief that this country will have a week's warning before the attack comes.

The president's plan also assumes that the Soviets won't target America's big cities for destruction, according to civil defense spokesmen.

The $4.1 billion, seven-year program anticipates that 80 percent of the U.S. population could survive a nuclear war if the program is implemented.

The plan calls for evacuating all U.S. cities with more than 50,000 residents and relocating people away from missile sites, bomber bases and ports.

Up to two-thirds of the U.S. population would be moved from 380 such "high risk areas" into lower risk areas — places one study calls "farms and hamlets."

Evacuees would be expected to bring their own food.

A 1978 study performed under contract by Systems Planning Corporation, a consulting firm, predicted that 10 percent of the population would leave without waiting for orders, 14 percent would refuse to leave and 6 percent would have to stay behind to perform essential services.

In that event, the study said, "the relocation could probably be performed within two days for all areas of the nation except the New York and Los Angeles metropolitan areas, which would require about three days."

THE PLAN ASSUMES AN attack on America would be signaled by indications that that Soviets were emptying their cities. Such movement could be detected by satellites.

"Surprise attack is considered highly unlikely," says the Federal Emergency Management Agency, which has responsibility for civil defense.

"Most experts believe that an attack on the U.S. would come only in the context of a lengthy period of international crisis."

The agency cites a 1978 Central Intelligence Agency report to bolster the view that Soviet activity would provide a warning.

The CIA said the Soviets would seek, through evacuation, "to assure survival of the homeland and to leave the U.S.S.R. in a stronger postwar position than its adversaries."

Despite the emphasis on evacuation in their plan, U.S. civil defense officials assume that the Soviets would not seek victory by merely killing off vast numbers of Americans.

"Our intelligence studies indicate that as a matter of policy they are not bent on destroying populations," said James Holton, spokesman for FEMA.

"It wouldn't do them any good to have all the people here dead, to have this vast country and nobody to run it," he said.

On those assumptions, FEMA asserts, "a balanced, moderate-cost civil defense program emphasizing crisis relocation might save — in a large-scale attack preceded by strategic warning — up to twice as many Americans as the 40 percent expected to surive under present civil defense."

NONETHELESS, REAGAN'S CIVIL defense plan ran into trouble. The usually receptive Senate Armed Services Committee voted to cut the request for a $252 million first installment to $144 million — scantly more than is now spent. Civil defense has been an orphan in Congress for years.

Officials acknowledge that many communities are unprepared.

"We can't make any apologies for the present program," Holton told a reporter. "We know it's bad. We know it's almost unworkable."

The money Reagan sought would have been spent to double the number of state civil defense planners; designate a radiological defense officer in each state; start making 7 million radiation detectors; provide half the salaries of 6,200 state and local civil defense workers; identify structures in "host areas" for conversion into fallout shelters.

It would also have been used to mark with yellow and black signs 345,000 fallout shelters; print emergency instruction in the telephone books in a quarter of the country's "high risk" areas; and identify vital workers who would stay on the job in evacuated cities.

Reagan's endorsement came last month when he signed a national security directive, Holton said. No announcement was made at the time.

Poll shows U.S. divided over economic program

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans are sharply divided over whether President Reagan's economic program is helping or hurting the nation, the latest Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

Unemployment remained the top choice for the most important economic problem for the government to help control, but inflation was still the problem that affected more people personally.

In the March 29-30 poll, a scientific random telephone sampling of 1,603 adults across the country, 37 percent said they think Reagan's program is helping the nation, while 36 percent said it is hurting. The rest said they were not sure or that the program is neither hurting or helping.

The president has vowed to stick with his program of tax and spending cuts and a tight money supply despite high unemployment and interest rates and a federal budget deficit that is larger than expected.

Among the 36 percent who said Reagan's economic program is hurting the nation, a majority said they now think less of the president because of it.

In answer to the question, "Do you think the Reagan economic program has helped people such as yourself, has it hurt people such as yourselfor hasn't it made any difference?" 46 per cent said it has made no difference.

But 38 percent said it has hurt people such as themselves, compared with 13 percent who said it has helped people such as themselves. Three percent were not sure.

The lower the respondent's income, the more likely the respondent was to say the president's economic program has hurt people such as themselves.

The poll also said public confidence in the president's economic program is slipping. Fifteen percent said they have more confidence in it now than a year ago, while 34 percent said they have less confidence and 49 percent said they have about the same amount of confidence. Two percent were not sure.

In January, 22 percent said they had more confidence, 23 percent less confidence, 53 percent the same amount of confidence and 2 percent were not sure.

Unemployment, meanwhile, remained the most important economic problem for the government to help control: 45 percent said unemployment, 27 percent said interest rates, 24 percent said inflation and 4 percent were undecided.

At the same time, inflation remained the economic problem which affects most people personally: 49 percent said inflation, 30 percent said interest rates, 17 percent said unemployment and 4 percent were unsure.

People who said unemployment was more important either for the government to help control or to them personally were more likely than other respondents to say the Reagan economic program has hurt the nation, while those who said either inflation or interest rates were more likely to say it has helped the nation.

Unions want answer to unemployment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Union leaders in the recession-plagued construction industry are mounting an intense lobbying campaign in hopes of making the Reagan administration and Congress work harder for a business turnaround.

The No. 1 priority of some 4,000 building trades union representatives gathered in the nation's capital is restoration of jobs in the hard-hit construction industry.

President Reagan was to address today's opening session of the AFL-CIO's Building and Construction Trades Department legislative and political conference. Reagan had just finished speaking to this same group little more than a year ago when he was shot leaving the Washington Hilton hotel.

Robert A. Georgine, president of the building trades department, and other construction industry union leaders, have been on better terms with the Reagan administration than the top leadership of the AFL-CIO.

But in his keynote address to the conference's opening session, Georgine said Reagan must shoulder some of the burden for the plight of the construction industry.

"The administration and Congress seem preoccupied with trying to pin the blame on the other, rather than doing the work that must be done — finding jobs for the unemployed," Georgine said.

"There's enough blame to go around in the government, enough to spread around both parties," he said. "And so we say to both parties and to the executive branch, 'Stop being part of the problem and start being part of the solution.'"

Georgine said that "instead of experimenting with economic theories, it is time for an honest assessment of what has worked in the past and what hasn't."

Georgine said, however, that the building trades unionists "apologize to no one for our single-minded obsession with making the construction industry healthy again. It is truly the bell wether industry of the entire economy. When our industry is sick, the economy is sick."

Americans worried about AT&T breakup

WASHINGTON (AP) — A majority of American consumers are worried that the proposed breakup of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and legislation now before Congress could harm telephone service and lead to higher rates, a poll commissioned by the Bell System shows.

"People are convinced that their telephone service is one of the few things that works well, and they are fearful of any measures which are taken that could hamper the full infusion of all scientific and technological improvements that would make the system better," said Lou Harris, chairman of Lou Harris and Associates, the firm that conducted the survey.

"Second, there is strong feeling that AT&T has made the system work well and that a sense of fairness dictates that the Bell System be treated equitably with its competition," Harris added.

Release of the poll Sunday follows by less than two weeks AT&T's vow to launch a massive lobbying campaign to prevent passage of a telephone regulation bill that it claims is premature and too restrictive. The House communications subcommittee approved the bill March 25, saying it was necessary to protect consumers and AT&T competitors alike if AT&T is to be broken up.

Halliburton Services' Hale Tide, the first marine service vessel for California offshore production, passed through the Panama Canal March 28. The vessel is scheduled to arrive at its new home port April 9.

First marine service vessel heads for west coast

PANAMA CITY, Panaman — The first marine service vessel for the West Coast offshore petroleum industry passed through the Panama Canal on March 28, en route to its new base at Port Hueneme, Calif.

Halliburton Services' M/V Hale Tied is the most specialized service vessel ever built. It will be able to perform stimulationand other technical oil field services about twice the size of well teatments now possible in Pacific waters.

"This is really an occasion for us," said J.R. Fehrenbach, Halliburton's division manager for california and Alaska. "Back in 1938, in the Gulf of Mexico, we used a pump truck tied down on a barge for cement for the first well drilled out of sight of land.

"Now here we are with something as advanced as the Hale Tide."

The 180-foot vessel was outfitted at Halliburton's Harvey, La. marine center with a modular configuration that permits adapting the Hale Tide for the varying requirements of fracturing, cementing, acidizing, sand control, completions, nitrogen applications or general pumping services.

When it ties up at Port Hueneme on April 9, the Hale Tide will intoduce two major advances in electronic to marine well servicing. One is real time ship-to-shore telemetry that instantaneously prints out the progress of a well treatment and transmits the data to remote locations for immediate review or conference.

The other is a fully automated computer system that permits preprogaming as many as three stages of a complex well treating design involving changing pumping rates and the introduction and terminiation of several materials at different times. The changes are executed automatically by control system.

Support facilities for the vessel include the Halliburton dock at Port Hueneme, dedicated to the Hale Tide, and a new district service location at nearby Oxnard. Both land locations will store dry bulk materials and liquid and dry additives used in well treatments.

Port Hueneme is lcated jst south of the active drilling in California's Santa Barbara channel.

"We feel that the Hale Tide, together with two backup facilities, will enable us to provide response time to offshore locations within hours rather than what, in some cases, has been days," said Fehrenbach.

Britain hoping to 'sell' papal visit

By ROBERT GLASS

LONDON (AP) — The Roman Catholic Church in Britain has joined forces with American entrepreneur Mark McCormack to market 250 different souvenirs for the upcoming visit of Pope John Paul II — the first time church officials have used souvenir sales to help pay for a papal tour.

With John Paul's six-day visit starting May 28 expected to cost $10.8 million, the British Catholic hierarchy hired McCormack to market papal mementos and provide business expertise. The souvenirs will range in price from a 45-cent plastic bag to a $2,250 platinum medallion.

McCormack's Cleveland-based International Management Group, whose clients include tennis ace Bjorn Borg, golfer Arnold Palmer and boxer Muhammad Ali, stands to make $2 million from the deal, according to London's Observer newspaper.

McCormack, a Yale Law School graduate, formed IMG in 1959. With 400 employees, it's now the largest sports marketing and management organization in the world.

With 13 offices in 10 countries, IMG produces films and television programs, including the Wimbledon tennis tournament. It represents about 500 professional athletes in nearly every field of sports.

Richard Crow, an IMG executive in London, would not disclose how much the company expects to make from the souvenir sales but said it was "looking reasonably healthy."

The church, however, probably will not recoup the tour costs from souvenir sales and will have to make up the difference through private donations, Crow said in an interview.

IMG is involved in all commercial aspects of the tour, including transportation, catering and setting up altar sites, but not with the tone of the pastoral visit, the first to Britain by a reigning pope, Crow said.

"We're not promoting the pope. The pope is not a client of ours," said Crow.

Because the pope's tour is a pastoral visit and not an official state visit, the British government is paying none of the costs. However, the Rev. Kevin O'Connell said taxpayers in cities where the pope will appear "may have to" bear some of the costs. He said discussions were already under way with the various municipalities involved.

The main expenses will be setting up and dismantling five large altars to be used for Masses expected to draw at least 500,000 people each. The church will have to provide on-site security, catering and press facilities.

The church is buying six vehicles, including two bubble-topped "popemobiles," one for motorcades and another for manuvering among large crowds. It is also hiring two helicopters and several buses.

IMG has contracts with 63 companies to manufacture souvenirs. On display near Crow's office is a sample — balloons, sweatshirts, neckties, coasters, mugs, badges, clocks and rosary beads.

There is a also a brick, costing $6.50, with the inscription, "to commemorate the visit of Pope John Paul II to Great Britain, 1982." People who buy the brick are supposed to use it to replace one in their own house.

Upscale items include a $1,080 gold bust of the pope, a $1,800 gold pocket watch and the $2,250 platinum medallion struck by the Royal Mint, bearing the image of the pontiff and Queen Elizabeth II.

They all bear the official tour logo — a cross and Union Jack embellished by the keys of St. Peter — meaning they have been approved by IMG and Papal Visits Ltd., a company set up by the church to handle the commercial end of the pope's visit.

Crow said all souvenirs must meet standards for quality and "value for money." Both IMG and church officials also try to ensure they are in good taste.

Among items rejected, Crow said, was a screwdriver with a handle in the shape of the pope's head.

The Rev. Patrick Olivier, a church spokesman, said it would be impossible to raise enough money from Britain's 5.3 million Catholics to pay for the pope's tour and so the deal was struck on souvenirs.

The pope's 1979 tour of Ireland was reported to have cost $8 million, three-fourths of which had to come from church funds because of a lack of donations.

"What the church has done is try to control what is actually produced and recoup some of the money that will be generated through sales," Olivier said in a telephone interview.

"It's not a question of promoting the pope or marketing the pope," he said.

The 63 approved manufacturers pay a 10 percent royalty on their wholesale prices. The church receives 80 percent of the royalty and IMG gets 20 percent, Crow said.

The pope will visit nine cities — London, Canterbury, Coventry, Liverpool, Manchester and York in England; Edinburgh and Glasgow in Scotland and Cardiff, Wales. He will leave June 2.

Palm Sunday celebrants retrace old steps

JERUSALEM (AP) — Chanting "Hosanna" and carrying palm fronds, thousands of Christian pilgrims retraced the steps of Jesus down the Mount of Olives to celebrate Palm Sunday.

A Franciscan priest led the procession past the Garden of Gethsemane and into Jerusalem's Old City. The mile-long march down a steep, twisting path ended with prayers at St. Anne's Church, built over the spot where tradition holds the Virgin Mary was born.

Thousands of other pilgrims, local Arab Christians and interested Moslems and Jews lined the procession route through Arab neighborhoods or watched on a hillside outside the Old City walls.

Devotions began with prayers at an outdoor chapel on the Mount of Olives, which overlooks Jerusalem and the surrounding Judean hills. A brisk wind chilled the crowd as Monsignor Giacomo Guiseppe Beltritti, the Latin patriarch of Jerusalem, led the brief prayer service. Outside the chapel, Arab youngsters hawked elaborately braided palm fronds, soft drinks and pastries.

"We're a world of different languages, but this today is one world together," said John LeVecke, a seminary student from Anaheim, Calif. "We're all Christians living together."

Overcast skies threatened to cancel the march, but intermittent sunshine later broke through.

Security seemed more relaxed than in previous years, despite Palestinian unrest in recent weeks on the neighboring West Bank in which five Arabs were killed by Israeli gunfire. A few soldiers stood along the procession route, and Jerusalem police and Arab Boy Scouts maintained crowd control.

Kenneth Walther, a college professor from Ashland, Ohio, said the religous ceremonies provided a strong contrast with the Arab-Israeli tension.

"The religious events are ecumenical, and therefore deserve to be observed, but I don't (think) the events on the West Bank can be ignored. I think the church at large needs to be more conscious of the political events," he said.

Some watched the proceedings with skepticism.

"All of the problems here come from religious sources: Moslems and Jews and Catholics, Oriental Jews and European Jews," said Tom Puntman, a Catholic student from Amsterdam, Holland.

"The religions are very chauvinistic and naive. They all have some attitude of imperialism," said Puntman. "Yes, I'm a participant here, but from a skeptical point of view."

Religious observances continue throughout the week. Christians celebrate Christ's Last Supper on Thursday. On Friday, pilgrims will bear heavy wooden crosses as they follow the Via Dolorosa, "The Street of Tears," which Christ walked to his crucifixion.

Easter Sunday will be celebrated with a pontifical high Mass of the Resurrection in the crusader-era Church of the Holy Sepulchre, erected on the spot identified 1,600 years ago as the site of Calvary and Christ's tomb.

Jews begin their eight-day Passover holiday Wednesday evening, marking the exodus from Egypt.

Venezuela reinforces guerrilla stance

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Venezuela on Sunday tacitly rejected a request by Salvadoran guerrillas to help negotiate an end to the 2½-year-old civil war in that Central American nation.

In a sweeping review of its foreign policy in Central America, the government called for democratic solutions to the problems facing Nicaragua, Guatemala and El Salvador, where leftist guerrillas are fighting to overthrow the civilian-military junta.

A special two-day meeting between President Luis Herrera Campins, Foreign Minister Jose Alberto Zambrano Velasco and the nation's ambassadors stationed in Central America ended Sunday.

A Foreign Ministry communique issued afterward said Venezuela would continue to provide aid and cooperate with El Salvador to help further its democratic process.

"The Salvadoran people voted massively and in a free and orderly way because (they) knew that (their) electoral opinion was going to be respected," said the communique, transmitted by the official Venpres news agency.

"Venezuela has opposed and opposes positions which would give guerrilla movements the popular representation that they lack," the communique added.

Two weeks ago, Herrera was asked by leaders of the leftist guerrilla group Farabundo Marti Liberation Front to help mediate an end to fighting in El Salvador, where an estimated 33,000 people haved died in political violence since the U.S.-backed junta came to power in an October 1979 coup. Herrera had said he would await the result of the March 28 Salvadoran elections for a constituent assembly before replying.

The government statement, while not specifically mentioning the letter from the front, said Venezuela would not recognize such groups "unless such a position became an obstacle" in the search for a peaceful solution to the Central American problem.

Herrera has been a strong supporter of Jose Napoleon Duarte, El Salvador's president and a fellow member of Latin America's Christian Democratic movement.

Duarte's centrist Christian Democratic Party won 24 of the 60 assembly seats in voting last week, but the five rightist parties challenging it together control the rest — enough to form their own government.

The Venezuelan policy statement also expressed concern about the course of the Sandinista revolution in Nicaragua and supported the idea of a Central American Democratic Community, formed by Honduras, Costa Rica and El Salvador.

Concerning Nicaragua, the government said it wanted to maintain relations at a friendly level with the leftist Sandinista government, but added that it shares "the hope of all the peoples of America to see the promise of free elections realized in Nicaragua."

"Venezuela reaffirms its position that Central America and the Caribbean should be a peace zone, removed from global strategies of domination by superpowers...which aspire to divide the world into areas of influence," the communique said.

Constituent Assembly member murdered

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — An ultra-rightist member of the new Constituent Assembly from a party linked to right-wing "death squads" was assassinated on the outskirts of San Salvador in an area favored by rightist killers.

David Joaquin Quinteros, a member of retired Maj. Roberto d'Aubuisson's Republican Nationalist Alliance (ARENA), was found Sunday in a garbage dump in Mariona, where rightist assassins often dump the bodies of their leftist victims. He had been shot three times in the head and once in the neck and died in a hospital several hours later.

"The most painful part of it is that we are always accused of being violent," said d'Aubuisson, whose party ran second in the assembly elections March 28.

He said Quinteros and his brother-in-law, Marco Tulio Aguuilar, were kidnapped in San Salvador, taken to Mariona and shot. He said the brother-in-law survived three bullet wounds but was in critical condition.

"We are not accusing anyone yet," said d'Aubuisson. "...But if this is the way they plan to stop sovereign will...they will not be able to do it."

He demanded that members of U.S.-backed President Jose Napoleon Duarte's military-civilian junta "in their last and crucial days...make all possible effort in their power to stop such incidents."

The death of Quinteros will not reduce ARENA's holding of 19 seats in the assembly since an alternate for each of the 60 deputies was elected. Although Duarte's centrist Christian Democrats won a plurality and 24 seats, four rightist parties won the other 36 seats, and d'Aubuisson is trying to form a coalition.

The assembly will name a new government to replace the U.S.-backed, civilian-military junta and write a new constitution. Election officials said the deputies would receive their credentials after Easter, and the assembly is not expected to meet before April 20.

In other violence, three part-time security guards were found shot in the head, with their hands tied behind them, at a San Salvador shopping center.

The leftist rebels' Radio Venceremos reported two guerrilla attacks in Morazan province, a rebel stronghold in the northeast part of the country. The targets were the airstrip at San Francisco Gotera, the provincial capital, and a military post at Jocoaitique, but the results of the attacks were not reported.

Four Soviets fast in hope of joining mates in West

MOSCOW (AP) — Four Soviet men and women today entered the fourth day of a 10-day fast to pressure the government to let them emigrate to the West to join their spouses.

The two men and two women, who say they are only drinking mineral water, told Western reporters they have repeatedly been denied permission to emigrate. Friends have said if there is no official response by the 10-day deadline the fasters plan an indefinite hunger strike at a later date.

Young Iranian fighters wish Islamic martyrdom

EDITOR'S NOTE — The writer is among a group of Western news correspondents permitted by the Iranian government to go on escorted tours of the warfront with Iraq. Here is a report on the use of young boys in the Iranian army's fight against Iraq.

By TOM BALDWIN

DEZFUL, Iran (AP) — "See this little boy. He is one of our fighters. This little boy helped fight and capture these big men."

Speaking at this frontline outpost of the Iran-Iraq war was a spokesman for the Iranian army. Standing beside him was a boy described as being 13 years old. The "big men" were 2,200 Iraqi prisoners and the boy was one of their guards.

The boy, the spokesman explained, is one of thousands trained for combat and other duties in the conflict and some of them, he said, have already excelled in combat.

Iranian press accounts have told of child warriors who cleared an Iraqi minefield by marching across it, knowing they could perish in a single step.

Martyrdom is highly esteemed by Iran's Shiite Moslems and a soldier becomes a martyr if killed in the war with Iraq because the conflict is regarded as an extension of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's Islamic revolution.

THE IRANIAN ARMY, which allowed Western reporters to visit the front lines of the 18-month-old conflict, introduced the 13-year-old boy who was armed with a U.S.-made assault rifle and was said by the army spokesman to have helped in Iran's recent offensive, in which Iraqi invaders were pushed back 24 miles.

Asked if the use of children might be taken as a sign of Iranian desperation, the army spokesman, who said he was a biologist in civilian life, replied: "Everyone in Iran is a soldier of Islam."

The young irregulars are part of a recently created militia called "Baseej" (Mobilization), a virtual kiddie corps that receives arms training from the more adult Revolutionary Guards.

A non-Moslem Iranian, who said his sympathy with the revolution went only as far as ousting the Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, described the Baseej members as "models of the popular army and not uncommon in any revolution or national war effort."

"The difference with these youngsters is they are more willing to die," he added. "It is truly their faith."

A year ago, on the second anniversary of the revolution, Khomeini gave the nation a child hero named Fahmidei, 13. News reports at the time said he had strapped grenades to his waist and threw himself beneath an Iraqi tank.

"He is our leader," Khomeini told the nation.

At the battle front west of here, reporters saw many young Iranian fighters. None, though, looked younger than about 15.

Iranian officials say about three million Baseej members have received arms training. The government under Khomeini's directive has a goal of training up to 15 million more youths in this nation of 37 million people.

THE BASEEJ RECRUITS help distribute food and control traffic. Sometimes they stand guard duty on the streets at night.

They receive Islamic religious training in mosques, where sources said they learn that another of their assignments is to inform on anyone suspected of straying from Islam.

One of the sources, who commented on condition they would not be identified, said this means "anything that opposes the government."

The Tehran news media in January gave wide play to a story that said about 100 young Baseej volunteers, inspired by Islam, walked across an Iraqi minefield in the battle for the southwestern Iranian city of Bostan.

"This kind of publicity was inspiring to many fundamentalists," said the source. "A Baseej was shown on television with his legs and part of his arm blown apart. He was on a stretcher being carried from the battle. He was shouting 'God is great' and that he wanted to become a martyr for Islam.

"Old people saw this. They wanted to go and do the same thing. The government told them they would be summoned when they were needed."

A berobed woman wept as she explained in an interview that her 15-year-old son had run off to fight in the latest offensive but had survived, thus failing to become a martyr.

"If he will fight for Islam he must also die for it," she said.

Western-educated Iranians, many of whom have spent years studying in the United States and who are active in the revolution, explain their form of fatalism by drawing parallels with the patriotism that figured in so many of Hollywood's war-hero films, especially those that were popular during and after World War II.

Commented one 27-year-old revolutionary, who said he spent a third of his life in the United States: "How many late-night television movies did I watch in which the hero died while killing a communist in a war for Christianity and the American way?"

Gromyko critical of U.S.' missile deployment stance

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko criticized the United States on Sunday for succumbing to "nuclear fever" in trying to deploy additional missiles in Western Europe.

In a wide-ranging speech at a dinner here in his honor, Gromyko also blasted the Reagan administration for failing to strive for an agreement on nuclear arms limitation at the talks in Geneva, Switzerland.

"Unfortunately, at the Geneva talks we thus far have not seen signs of a serious striving of the other side for achieving agreement on the basis of the principle of equality and security," he said.

Washington rejected Moscow's moratorium on the deployment of medium-range missiles in the European part of the Soviet Union, saying it would freeze the advantage already held by the Soviets.

Gromyko arrived Sunday in Belgrade for the first high-level Soviet visit to this non-aligned Communist country since the death of Yugoslav President Josip Broz Tito two years ago.

Yugoslav president and foreign secretary, Josip Vrhovec, said relations with the Soviet Union were rooted in the principles of independence and sovereignty, as well as of equality and noninterference.

At the Belgrade airport, Gromyko said he hoped his two-day visit would "further bolster" Soviet-Yugoslav friendship. He later placed a wreath on Tito's tomb.

Relations between the two Communist countries have been often turbulent since Tito broke with Soviet strongman Josef Stalin over ideological differences in 1948.

In recent months, Yugoslavia has denounced Soviet intervention in Afghanistan and warned against outside interference in Poland.

But Yugoslav trade with the Soviet Union has increased sharply during the last year, and observers here speak of improving relations between the two countries.

The state-run Tanjug news agency said Gromyko's visit had "great importance" for Yugoslavia, but did not elaborate on any of the topics to be discussed.

*The first year's payment and future qualification will be calculated equivalent to a rate of 12.5% for 95% loan to value. Interest will be charged at the most recent six-month Treasury Bill rate plus 3.5% rounded to the highest 1/8 of 1%, but not to exceed the maximum rate allowed by law. Payments on GPAM mortgages are graduated on an increase 7.50% each year for the remaining four years. At the end of the first five year period, the graduation in payments will cease. A new payment schedule will be computed using a variable rate mortgage to amortize the remaining balance over the remaining 25 years of the mortgage based upon the then current Treasury Bill rate plus 3.5%. The 7½% maximum increase can be made if the original loan principal exceeds 125%. At each 5 year anniversary date, the payment may be adjusted to allow the remaining payments to fully amortize the loan. ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE APPROXIMATELY 13.2% ON 95% LOANS.
