Sparks ignited a nearby store which also was destroyed. Deputies at first believed the negro perished in his home but on further search found him in weeds 200 yards from the scene of the shooting. He was wounded. He was placed in jail.

Hargis was the father of five children.

In order to guard against possible violence, Sheriff Lambert of Nacogdoches county removed the negro to the Angelina county jail at Lufkin tonight.

He issued a statement thanking Iowans for the reception given himself and Mrs. Hoover.

"It is a great experience to have had the welcome at one's birthplace that Mrs. Hoover and I have had in the last few days," he said. We will long remember with gratitude the kindly expression and good wishes we have had on every side."

Holds Conferences

The republican presidential candidate's last day in Cedar Rapids was given over to conferences with farm and political leaders in which he received supplemental reports as to the political outlook in the grain states west and east of the Mississippi.

Summarizing these reports, James W. Good, western campaign manager, said he believed Hoover would sweep the northwest, but conceded situations in Minnesota and Wisconsin were not as satisfactory as he would like to see them.

"It looks to me also as if governor Smith is in a fight with the American Legion," Good continued, making this prediction upon the democratic nominee's complaint of increased cost of independent bureaus, the largest of which is the veteran's bureau.

Delegates visiting Hoover today at Brucemore included those from Indiakota, Ohio, North Dakota and several other states.

More Opposition For New Freight Rate Plan Heard

Representatives of Steel, Peach and Vinegar Shippers Add Voice to Clamor or Protest.

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Aug. 23.—Representatives of steel, peach and vinegar shippers before the railroad commission today opposed Texas railroads proposed adoption, intrastate, of the new interstate freight rates, insofar as such rates apply to products named.

Testimony also was introduced by oil company representatives in favor of making the commission's "Rule 7" apply to interstate petroleum products rates, if adopted intrastate. This rule, opposed by railroads, would be advantageous to shippers.

George W. Armstron, president of the Texas Steel company, Fort Worth, who has attacked existing steel rates in the cours, appeared in opposition to the proposed new scale, which he said would increase shipping costs for his plant about 15 per cent.

Armstrong indicated he was laying basis of another court fight in case the decision in the current rate case is adverse.

A. L. Reed of the Dallas chamber of commerce had a lively tiff with H. B. Gummins, assistant manager of the Texas tariff bureau, Dallas, over the question of whether regulations allowing the mixture of peach shipments with other fruit shipments in carloads shall be maintained.

Reed served notice that chambers of commerce in Texas are opposing any effort to rearrange the provisions as to mixed fruit carloads so that the cost of shipping will be increased. Under interstate commerce rates, which the railroads seek to adopt for Texas, a separate rate is provided for carload peach shipments.

Both the commission and those at the hearing took time out from the discussion to admit the question of mixed car shipments, when new rates are prescribed for some products formerly going mixed with others, presents quite a problem in this case.

Varying Views On Smith Prohibition Remarks Are Given

Curtis, Opening Campaign, Says Al Trying to Fool People; Some Applaud as Others Condemn.

(By Associated Press)

ROCKY POINT, R. I., Aug. 23.—Proposal of Governor Smith, Democratic presidential nominee, for state control of intoxicating beverages was described today by Senator Curtis, republican vice presidential nominee, in his opening campaign address as an attempt "to fool the American people."

The Kansas senator departed from a prepared speech promising fuller tariff protection to take issue with the Democratic nominee here in the governor's neighboring state. And in one of the two states which failed to ratify the Eighteenth amendment. Curtis told how he had enforced the Kansas dry law in 1885 and recalled his speech of acceptance in which he had declared against repeal of the Eighteenth amendment or of the Volstead act.

"Our friends on the other side are trying to fool the American people. They are making promises in regard to prohibition which you know under the constitution of the United States it will be impossible for them to keep," Curtis said.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—Prohibition proposals of Governor Smith in his acceptance speech, were described today by F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the anti-saloon league, as offering "no possible hope of eliminating the drink habit or the liquor traffic."

McBride asserted there is nothing new in the Smith plan, adding he had "simply accepted and become the advocate of the program of the association against the prohibition amendment.

Nothing to Offend A Sensible Dry, Smith Avers

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—As a full pledged presidential nominee, Gov. Smith today came back again to his native New York City, still uncertain when he would start active campaigning.

His views on public issues were before the nation, and, a bit worn by the strain of his notification last night in Albany, the Democratic standard bearer seemed anxious for rest and recreation.

The governor tomorrow will move on to New Jersey to take part in a big Democratic rally at Seagirt Saturday. He will make no speech at Seagirt.

Sleeping late after his notification ceremony, held indoors because of bad weather, the nominee read congratulatory messages before taking the train to New York.

The governor was asked whether he thought there was anything inconsistent in a dry Democrat running for the senate or house on the ticket with him.

Falls Back On Platform.

"Everybody who is nominated for office stands on the platform of the supreme body of the party, to-wit: the national convention," the nominee replied.

"Then you don't regard them bound by your acceptance speech?"

"No one can amend the platform," Mr. Smith came back, dismissing the subject.

"Has the reaction to your speech been favorable to you."

Receives Many Messages.

"Yes, judging from messages I have received." He reported telegrams from all parts of the country had reached him in bundles of 50 to 100. He estimated at least 3,000 arrived within an hour after he had concluded delivery of his acceptance speech.

The governor said that if anyone had sent him a message expressing disapproval of any of his views he had not seen the communication.

"Do you think any dry could take offense at what you said on prohibition?" asked a reporter, recalling Smith had advocated modification of both the Volstead Law and Eighteenth amendment.

One For the Extremists

"No sensible one could," the governor retorted. On his trip from Albany he was accompanied by Mrs.

Status of Voters With Respect To Pledge Uncertain

Committee Meets At Two o'Clock In Courthouse; Wheelock Stands Pat and Says Pledge Not Required

ACTION TO BE TAKEN AT MEETING MYSTERY

Powell, Who Called Session, Says It Is Merely For Instructing Voters; Lively Meeting Expected.

With the status of the party pledge, insofar as Lubbock county is concerned already somewhat a doubtful matter, further fuel is expected to be heaped upon the simmering pot of county politics at the meeting of the county democratic executive committee called for 2 o'clock this afternoon at the court house.

Frank E. Wheelock, who has bluntly refused to recognize the action of the committee last Saturday in asking his resignation, yesterday stood pat on his assertion that the primary pledge did not apply to the national party candidates. He urged all voters to go to the polls and vote, "according to the dictates of their own conscience."

The committee on the other hand, stands pledged by resolution to force each voter to take the party pledge. With the understanding that it means the voter will support all party nominees, from president down to constable.

C. B. Powell, acting chairman of the county committee, yesterday refused to go into details about matters that will be considered at the session. He dismissed the subject with the statement that it was for "instructing voters on procedure at the ballot boxes."

Fading Hope For Rockford Fliers Revived By Report Plane Sighted Flying Over Greenland

By DONALD B. MacMILLAN
Famed Arctic Explorer

SCHOONER, BOWDOIN, OFF BIG BAY LABRADOR, ENROUTE TO HOPEDALE, Aug. 23. (AP)—(By Radio to the Associated Press).—All members of the Rawson-Field Museum Expedition were elated today in learning of reports that the Greater Rockford monoplane was reported seen near Fiskenaesset, and Liechtenfels Sunday morning. This is an area cutting of Fjords and hundreds of smal islands, many of which are substations of the Greenland royal trading company.

I am now confident Hassell and Cramer will be saved by the Eskimo fishermen and Caribou hunters, who are scattered along that coast.

The Danes of that region will care well for if they are found, and they entertained us royally and are a most hospitable people.

As yet we have heard no signals from the Greater Rockford but will continue to maintain a sharp lookout.

Continued radio transmission with the Associated Press has been maintaind by Commander MacMillan through his station WNP, and station 9-APA operated at Calumet City, Ill. By Ralph Brooks, since the fliers were last heard from.

Authoritative Report Says Place Sighted

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Aug. 23. (AP)—Fading hopes for safety of Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, American airmen missing since Sunday somewhere beyond Labrador, were revived swiftly today with receipt of an authoritative report from Greenland indicating the two men reached Greenland Sunday.

Report by the Greenland administration department from the sheriff of South Greenland and Landsfoged stated the airplane Greater Rockford undoubtedly was seen Sunday morning over the village of Piskenaeset in South Greenland coming from the northwest.

The machine was seen by many persons and its "National marks" were noted although they were not given in the telegram. Since inhabitants of the town, however, had been instructed to be on lookout for the fliers, this was understood to mean the American markings.

So definite was information received from Fiskenaeset that

Engagement, Approaching Marriage Of Miss Lucille Hardberger Is Told At Bridge Party Given By Mrs. Holland

Nuptials for Local Girl and Ozona Banker Are Set For September 10 At First Baptist Church.

Announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Lucille Hardberger was made yesterday afternoon when Mrs. I. F. Holland entertained with a bridge party at her home, 1920 13th street.

The announcement came at the close of the party in a clever nuptial scene enacted by Eugene Clifford Holland, representing a groom, Maurine Boswell, who was in the role of a bride, and Elmer Holland, who read a mock-marriage rite. The wedding is to be on September 10th at the First Baptist church.

High score at the party was won by Miss Verna Wilson. It was a bride's book. Low score, a lemon plate, was won by Mrs. Leslie Pergener.

Miss Hardberger, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Hardberger, 1921 13th street, is a 1927 graduate of Simmons University, Abilene. She taught school last year. She will wed Lowell Littleton, Ozona banker, who graduated from Simmons University two years before Miss Hardberger.

Pictures of brides and grooms were painted on dainty score pads and tallies for the party. With asters and Japanese butterfly predominating among the flowers, a general color scheme of pink and blue predominating. A two-course refreshment collation was served.

BRIDGE MADE EASY by W. W. Wentworth

(Abbreviations: A—ace; K—king; Q—queen; J—jack; X—any card lower than 10.)

OPENING BLINDLY—3

In the previous installment were discussed the four most desirable opening leads when the declarer has named a suit. But the necessary holdings for those leads do not always occur. Below are other examples which should cover practically every situation.

All of the following leads are fraught with danger, as they may place your partner in a vulnerable position and help the declarer establish winning cards.

FOURTH-FROM-TOP LEAD. For want of a better lead, open a four card suit as Q X X X, J X X X, or 10 X X X or X X X X, with the lowest in the suit.

WEAK THREE CARD SUIT. A lead from Q X X, J X X, 10 X X or X X X often leaves your partner in amaze as to your holding and is not desirable. The lead from K J 10 is less desirable.

DOUBLETON LEAD. A lead from a two card suit, as J X, 10 X X, A X or K X is decidedly undesirable.

WASTED LEAD. Holding A X X or A X X X, avoid leading these suits without capturing opponents' King or Queen. If you do open these suits, lead the Ace.

DENOUNCED LEAD. The lead from a suit headed by K, as K X X X, K X X X, K J X X or K 10 X X will usually be denounced by your partner if you lead the lowest.

LEAST DESIRABLE LEAD. The ten-acre suits as A Q 10, A J 10, A Q X, A J X.

The Woman's Day

By Allene Sumner

All the girls on the street car were gazing at the picture of Gene Tunney's fiancee as I went downtown one morning, and reading with obvious rapture the story of the romance. The most frequent comment heard as girls talked together was, "Isn't she the luckiest girl? Money, beauty, and to get a man like Tunney."

It is curious to reflect that probably infitely more people envy the girls than envy the man, thought she is marrying "only a prize fighter," and he is marrying blue-blood, wealth, social position everything. This is a situation so American as to be unbelievable anywhere else, and even for America it is a bit out of the regular run of the mill.

An office philosopher just remarked, too, that the girl was to be envied. I asked him why? He explained that the attitude was the inevitable produce of an age which made husbands a scarcity and girls a drug on the market, with more women than men, and matrimony less of an asset than at one time. Therefore, any girl who made any haul was to be envied, while a girl who found a Tunney got a real hand.

HEENEY, TOO:

Rather a coincidence, the marriage of Tom Heeney right after the fight and the announcement of Tunney's engagement. One doesn't need such reminders, of course that women still like cave men. That's one of the taken-for-granted things as is the fact that the cave men are not averse to the gentler domestic arts, also.

FASHIONS

Carrying $30,000 worth of fashions to Paris, as Miss Dolores Del Rio, of Hollywood did the other day, may seem much like carrying coals to Newcastle. I haven't a doubt, however, that most of those fashions were Paris born. Competition has grown so fast in the world of fashion as everywhere else, that nobody knows what styles are Paris or New York or Chicago or London born, and nobody cares.

"JENNIE'LL RUN IT"

"Jennie is running the thing—ask her," suggested an 80-year-old bridegroom lying on a hospital cot in Boston when asked by reporters to tell the story of his romance with his 76-year-old bride which had led to their marriage in a hospital.

"Jennie" simply explained that since they were going to be married anyway she didn't see why they didn't go on about their business and do things as they had planned, busted bones or no busted bones.

Many a cynical male will opine that the bridegroom should be glad he's 80 and not 20, starting out on his "Jenny'll run things" policy.

Theatrical Types of Gowns Not Wanted In Salons of Society, Jean Patou Says

At the left is Pola Negri in a Patou frock which she wears with the air of a tragedy queen. She lends a slightly exotic touch, in the picture at the right, to the sports costume designed especially for her.

By JEAN PATOU
For NEA Service

PARIS, Aug. 23.—Some people have expressed to me their surprise to my not having more cinema artists as clients. The reason for this perhaps lies in the fact that a cinema artist's way of wearing a dress is incompatible with the 'genre' of my creations.

I do not say this in any spirit of criticism. A cinema artist could in fact, turn the criticism back on me. I also do not mean to imply that cinema artists dress badly. A woman with character and originality always looks well but there are other couturiers who are specialized in creating stage dresses and can meet the requirements of both stage and screen.

A dress which is destined to be worn on the stage always has to be more striking, more nearly of the "costume" type, in order to look effective. The theatrical style of dress is also necessary in the movies and consequently is not in any way related to the Patou style, which explains why I do not count many actresses among my clientele.

Touch of Originality.

What may be true as far as the cinema is concerned does not necessarily mean that off the stage an actress cannot wear my creations. I believe anyone will admit that my dresses, as worn by Pola Negri lose nothing of their character which a woman imparts parts that touch of originality to them which every dress needs and which, after all, a couturier likes to see. It is just that touch of character which a woman imparts to a dress which repays a creator for all his efforts.

Pola Negri is a woman of nice discernment where clothes are concerned and she showed it in her choice of the gowns I made for her. The black georgette dress she chose, for example, is quite complicated in cut but still is in line with the present fashion. It is a dress, however, which was created especially for her. There are few women who could impart that touch of originality to the sleeves which leave the arm bare or who could carry off the unusual neckband which lends the finishing touch to the gown.

People may be surprised to hear that Pola Negri looks equally well in sports clothes, to which, however, she manages to impart a very personal touch.

The sports suit she chose was not meant originally to be worn with a turban. A turban suits Princess Divani's style of beauty, though, and does not in any way spoil the effect of the sports ensemble. This does not mean that another woman could carry it off as well, but therein lies the secret of personality.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

Cornelia Stratton Parker has written an article called, "Take Your Children to Europe."

It is instructive, entertaining and enlightening, for perhaps it is the only article of its kind ever written. In it she states not only the reasons she and her husband had for taking a four-year-old and a one-year-old abroad to spend five formative years, but describes the result of the experiment.

After an interval of five years in America, they returned to Europe, this time with three children, and spent five more years in foreign countries.

The children learned many languages, for they obtained their education in German, Swiss and French schools. But better still they made friends with children of other nations, other races, other creeds than their own.

Now they are what Mrs. Parker calls internationalists. They do not hesitate to make friends with anyone whom they like. We cannot take our children to Europe, but the result of this courageous woman's experiment handed over for our judgment deserves serious consideration.

The world is all one now. There are no barriers of distance or communication. If we are to have lasting peace and progress, children must be taught not only nationalism, but internationalism as well.

They should not hear from their parents that such and such a family is queer or inferior merely because they have a different religion or nationality.

Of course the millenium is not here. We cannot overcome our race or creed prejudices overnight perhaps. But say what you will and put up any argument you like, it is the right and only foundation for world peace and it is the only way. If real and lasting, children have a right to be free from the prejudices of their ancestors and from our prejudices.

National prejudice is as detrimental and as ignorant as New England witchcraft. Such a thing as patriotism must not be lost sight of. But there is a difference between real patriotism and patriotic snobbery.

McWHORTER-ROBERDS INTRODUCE THIS DIGNIFIED NEW WAY OF BUYING FINE CLOTHIN G, SHOES AND FURNISHINGS TO THE MEN OF LUBBOCK AND THE SOUTH PLAINS.

10 PAY BUDGET PLAN

one-fourth down-balance in 10 equal weekly payments

It is the most important message you've ever had from a man's store, presenting as it does the opportunity to buy the very finest of men's wear on the most convenient terms and do it in a dignified manner.

And since men naturally look to this store for leadership in style, quality, values and ample assortments, it is only natural that McWhorter-Roberds should inaugurate this striking new policy.

It is being inaugurated for the vast number of responsible men . . . . men who have been accustomed to buying homes, automobiles, radios, insurance on the deferred payment plan. Too it affords the opportunity for college and high school students to wear fine clothes this store features, enabling those who work or who receive monthly allowances to pay as they earn or receive this money. The huge difference in this plan is that unlike most deferred payment plans, YOU DO NOT PAY ANY INTEREST, BROKERAGE OR SERVICE CHARGE, for the price is the same whether you pay cash or use the 10 Pay Plan.

For those who appreciate and desire to wear clothing and furnishings of latest design and color, but who do not find it convenient to make a single payment of $45, $60 or the total amount of the purchase, this novel plan offers a remarkable solution to the problem of how to be well dressed and yet stay within the income available.

Pay one-fourth at time of purchase
Balance is payable in ten weekly payments.

Remember that the cash selling prices and 10 Pay Plan prices are identically the same.

NOW that the new Fall Suits, Hats, shirts, neckwear, and shoes are here, no better time than the present can you find to take advantage of this 10 Pay Plan that permits you to enjoy them while paying for them.

Here's How It Works

BUY A—

Suit	$42.50
Shirts (2)	$4.00
Hat	$8.50
Shoes	$8.00

Total	$70.00

Storti's Hitting Features As Aces Take Series Lead

Former Lubbock Player Gets Home Run, Two Base Hit and Pair of Singles As a Day's Record.

(By Associated Press)

SAN ANGELO, Aug. 23.—Abilene blasted its way to a 14 to 3 triumph and took the lead Thursday over San Angelo for the championship of the West Texas league. Abilene has captured two games and San Angelo one in the play off series. The fourth game is to be staged here Friday afternoon. Manager Les Tullos of Abilene will send either Hillin or Cromer to the pitching knob. Pilot Red Snapp plans using Jubilo Clements, ace of the Concho chunking corps who has not appeared in the series yet.

The Junior Spudders shelled Rufus Hall, diminutive San Angelo righthander, from the dome in the second frame, spraying the outfield with nine base hits and scoring seven runs before Hokey Garcia was sent to the rescue. The rampant Abilenians continued at a boisterous gait against Garcia in the third stanza and shoved across six more counters. Thereafter Garcia hurled tight ball.

Storti Hitting Features

Home runs by Storti and Roberts with two baggers by Storti and Sullivan featured the onslaught.

Bus Roberts, big righthander of the Tullos squad, pitched a comparatively brilliant brand all the way. He failed to slacken even though his team had amassed such a mammoth lead in the first three innings.

San Angelo did not get a hit until the fourth when Higginbotham singled and scored on a two bagger by J. T. (Cy) Williams. McMillan combed the Roberts delivery for a safety in the fifth and Tuck doubled to right center. Doty sent them home with a single past third. Roberts was master the remainder of the route.

Storti paired a brace of singles with his homer and double to top the swatsmiths. Wright contributed a quartet of one bases. Garms poled a double and two singles. Bean and Orr of Abilene fielded sharply.

Chicago Miss Takes 1st Big Tournament

CHICAGO, Aug. 23 (AP).—In her first tournament Rena Nelson, 15, Chicago, today won the women's western junior golf championship, defeating the favorite, June Bebee, Chicago, 7 and 6, in the final 18 hole round here.

The championship match was played over a sodden course on which nearly every stroke raised a spray of water. The new champ won the first four holes before Miss Beebe could break the charm and was six up at the turn with a card of 41 as compared with her opponent's 47. She clinched the title by winning the tenth and eleventh in par and it was over when the twelfth was halved with par fours.

WAR ON WEEDS

Move for Beautification To Be Made Here

An effort to beautify Lubbock will be made by Dr. J. W. Rollo, city health officer, and John Lemond, chief of police by asking the co-operation of the citizens in ridding the city of weeds which have achieved a stronghold as result of the recent heavy rains.

Letters are being sent to property owners whose premises have been inspected and found to be in insanitary condition because of weeds and other conditions likely to spread disease. Five days of grace are given in which to rid the property of the bad conditions.

OLD GOLD bats 1000%
as Hornsby takes the Blindfold cigarette test

ROGERS HORNSBY—capable manager of the Boston Braves—captain of the 1927 New York Giants—manager of the 1926 St. Louis Cardinals, who won the World's Series.

Mr. Hornsby was asked to smoke each of the four leading brands, clearing his taste with coffee between smokes. Only one question was asked . . . "Which one do you like best?"

"They say 'there's not a cough in a carload' of Old Golds.

"But I can tell you there's a home-run hit in every cool mouthful.

"For no other cigarette, of the four leading brands in the blindfold test, could compare with Old Golds for pure pleasure to taste, tongue and throat."

Rogers Hornsby

What gives OLD GOLD this winning charm?

Here is the answer, in three words...heart-leaf tobacco. No coarse, heavy top-leaves of the tobacco plant...for they irritate the throat. No withered ground-leaves...for they are lacking in aroma. Only the cool and fragrant heart-leaves . . . golden ripe . . . can give Old Golds their honey-like smoothness. That's why you can tell them in the dark.

Hobbs Well Runs 490 Barrels When Given First Test

Residents of Oil Boom Town Say Oil Was Sprayed Over Derrick; New Buildings Being Constructed.

When placed on a 20-hour run recently, the Mid-West No. 1 oil well near Hobbs, the producer that first caused attention to turn to this new center of New Mexico oil play, ran 490 barrels and shot oil over the derrick when released, it was stated yesterday by Paul Miller and Jake Levy, Hobbs residents, who were visiting in Lubbock.

Rumors are circulating to the effect that some twenty tests are contemplated but so far the Mid-West well is the only one that has been drilled.

Roads recently have been nearly impossible in the Hobbs direction, but Miller and Levy reported that the highways were much improved at the present time. A concerted effort, in which neighboring towns of Carlsbad, Seagraves, Lamesa, and Lovington are cooperating, is being made to secure better highways.

Five new business houses—a grocery store, meat market, bakery and two hotels—are being constructed at the townsite bringing the number of business houses in Hobbs to eighteen, it was stated.

Vote
For Commissioner, General Land Office
J. T. ROBISON
OF MORRIS COUNTY — FOR RE-ELECTION

In the first primary Mr. Robinson received 319,344 votes, lacking only 1748 votes of a majority over all of his three opponents. He had 142,088 votes more than his nearest opponent, Mr. Otis Terrell of Travis County.

Though Mr. Terrell was raised in Austin and is known to the people of Austin and Travis County, Mr. Robinson carried that City and County by a good majority over Mr. Terrell and his other two opponents, however, each of the other opponents carried his own home County by good majorities.

Mr. Robinson originated the present system of selling school land. That plan has brought to the school fund $27,552,145.41 more than the same land would have sold for under the former system. Also oil and gas on school and university land are being developed under the plan originated by him. That has increased those funds about $11,000,000, which would be much more but for litigation attacking the rights of the state and the land owner. He has defended both of those rights. When land is for sale write him at Austin for a list.

Do not let the name Terrell mislead you as he is not one of the famous Terrells who has been on the state ticket for the past several years.

Cure To Unbelief, Revival Subject

Onderdonk Brings Inspiring Message to Audience Attending Services At First Methodist Church.

The congregation that gathered at the First Methodist church last night were well pleased with the message brought to them by Dr. Frank S. Onderdonk, on the subject "Christ's Cure for Unbelief." It was one of the very best sermons that this noted preacher has brought to his hearers since he has been preaching in this series of sermons, and will no doubt result in many people taking a more definite stand for the church and righteousness.

Preceding the sermon, the pastor urged the importance of the people to be thinking about the matter of voting in the election Saturday. He urged that they go to the polls, and vote, and, thereby express their choice for the men they would have represent this country in public office, and then after the choice has been made, to back them up in the performance of their duty.

Services will be held again this morning at eight o'clock and this evening at 8:15, and special sermon will be delivered for young people. However, everyone is invited to attend.

Heavy Decline In Broker Loan Seen

$20,000,000 Drop In Face Of Rising Price Movement Features Day On New York Stock Exchange.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Decline of nearly $23,000,000 in federal reserve broker's loans, in the face of a rising price movement during the past week, was outstanding developments in today's financial markets. Heavy selling of stocks, based on expectations of a large increase, took place today, giving irregular appearance despite aggressive pool operations which hiked more than a score specialties to new high records.

Call money renewed unchanged at 7 per cent and held steady at that figure all day. Banks called $20,000,000 in loans but these were easily replaced, and it looked for a time as though money would go lower. Time money held firm at 6 1-2 per cent and there was no change in prime commercial paper rates.

In view of approaching government financing, and the fact that any further stiffening in rates probably would depress sterling and lead to the importation of gold, Wall Street does not expect any immediate increase in the rediscount rate.

Revival of wild speculation of a few months ago probably would necessitate further drastic measures on the part of federal reserve authorities to curtail the volume of speculative credit.

Indications Are That Peddler Fete Will Be Success

More Interest Manifest This Year Than Ever Before In Annual Party for Traveling Men.

More interest is manifest this year than ever before in the annual Peddlers' Jubilee and Traveling Salesman's party, to be held at the fair grounds Saturday night under auspices of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

Ticket sales thus far have been very successful, W. H. Meador, arrangements chairman for the celebration declared.

Registration of the peddlers will be from 10 o'clock Saturday until 2 o'clock that afternoon at the Hotel Drug Store. Badges and tickets will be presented free to all traveling men upon registration.

Starting from the Hotel Lubbock and led by the high school band a parade will wend its way through the downtown streets starting at 2 o'clock. Following the parade an entertainment will be held at the fair grounds after which a chicken dinner with all the accessories will be served. A snappy program is scheduled to follow the meal.

Several hundred salesmen from all parts of West Texas are expected to attend the jubilee.

Alex McDonald is in charge of the eats; L. C. Ellis, the serving; Tom White, the program, and R. C. Smith, the ticket selling.

Streets to Be Paved

The streets and aleys to be improved by paving as authorized by the commission include; Avenue X from Sixteenth to Nineteenth; Avenue G, from Thirteenth to Nineteenth; Eighteenth from Avenue G to F; Fourteenth from Texas Avenue to Avenue H; Avenue L from Broadway to Main; El Tiana from Nineteenth to Twentieth; Twentieth from Avenue X to El Camino; and Avenue M from Nineteenth to Twenty-third; and the alleys in blocks 103, 118, 119, 132, 133, 134, 150 of the original townsite.

Two petitions from citizens were heard, one by W. W. Campbell with reference to sewage in the southeast part of town, the other by a number of union plumbers with regard to prohibiting non-licensed plumbers from bidding on plumbing work. To engage in the plumbing business without a license is a violation of the law, they contend.

Both of these petitions were disposed of satisfactorily to parties concerned.

The commissioners voted to send City Manager Gus W. McCleary and City Engineer Marlin R. Smith to a meeting for the discussion of sewage problems, to be held in Cleburne next Monday.

Other routine matters were disposed of.

Robert H. Bean Makes Statement

Candidate for County Judge Office Says He Has Tried To Conduct Campaign On High Plane.

As there are large numbers of voters I have been unable to see in person during my campaign for county judge, I want to assure you, through this paper, that I will appreciate your support in the second primary, to be held on Saturday of this week. I have tried to see everyone, but limited time has prevented me.

As most of you know, I received a liberal support in the first primary, and was given five hundred and fifty-two votes more than my nearest opponent. I take that good support as evidence of confidence in me and my ability, but I do not want my friends to be over-confident that I will win in this second primary. I want to urge every friend and well-wisher to come to the polls and vote, Saturday of this week.

I have tried to conduct this campaign fairly and squarely, to do no mud-slinging, and to make no more promises about what I would do, if elected, than necessary, because I do not believe in deciding questions without all the evidence before me. I find that in some instances I have been misquoted and condemned, and that in others I have been accused of things I did not do, and things have been said about me that are not true. In at least one instance my opponent misunderstood me, and his supporters have accused me of breaking a solemn promise. I believe most people are too fair minded to condemn me without hearing my side.

A statement has been circulated that my opponent has the support of our former opponent, Dennis E. Kemp. Mr. Kemp has authorized me to state that he is supporting neither of us, is taking no part in this run-off, and does not wish to have his name brought into it.

There has even been an insinuation that because my father is a practicing attorney, I would show favoritism should I be elected. That is a reflection upon both my father and myself, and is based upon a mistaken assumption. If the person who originated that would look at the court records, he would find that my father's practice is nearly altogether in the district court, and has been for a number of years.

I appreciate the support I received before, and want to thank the voters for whatever support I may receive Saturday.

In the party also were Mrs. Mary Collins, a close friend of Mrs. Smith; Miss Rose Pedrick, Mrs. Smith's secretary; Jesse Jones, Houston, active in Democratic party councils; three close friends of the governor—William F. Kenny and James J. Riordan of New York, and William H. Humphreys of Albany; Robert Moses, secretary of state of New York; Major General William N. Haskell, commander of the New York National Guard division, and William Leany, chief inspector of New York city police.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic vice presidential nominee, in Albany for the notification, had intended to accompany the governor but found it necessary to leave earlier.

During a train press conference he reiterated he was still at sea as to his stumping plans, and said he did not know when it would be possible to settle on an itinerary.

LOVE FOR TWO

THIS HAS HAPPENED

BERTIE LOU WARD marries ROD BRYER, who had previously been engaged to LILA MARSH. Lila makes life miserable for the bride until she meets a rich MR. LOREE and marries him. Then she asks Bertie Lou to forgive the past.

Trying to keep up socially with wealthy friends plunges the Bryers in debt and Rod becomes depressed. Lila seizes her chance to persuade him to accept a higher salary from Loree. Shortly after she asked Rod to put some jewels in the safe during her husband's absence. They disappear and Rod wants to notify the police, but Lila insists that they keep the matter secret, pointing out that suspicion against him might spoil his career. Bertie Lou finds out that he has been seeing Lila secretly and is heartbroken.

She is called home to her sick mother and catches a train without seeing Rod. The separation added to Lila's plotting, causes a coldness to spring up between them. Each expects the other make advances or explanations. Rod goes to the Lorees without her and Bertie Lou goes out with MARCO PALMER to retaliate.

They grow farther apart, and one evening Rod finds her packing a suitcase for a week-end at the Palmer estate. Angered, he admits to himself that their love is dead and that he is infatuated with Lila.

He is stunned to learn that Lila deceived him about the stolen jewels when a connoisseur admires her pearls at a dinner party. Confronted, she admits that she gave him an empty case and plotted to make him dependent on her generosity to win back his love. He repudiates her treachery and disloyalty to her husband and she sneeringly reminds him that Bertie Lou is at a house party with young Palmer. He leaves her and drives madly out to the Palmer estate. Entering the house by an unlocked door he sees Marco emerging from a room in his dressing gown and hears Bertie Lou's voice inside, and departs without learning that they were merely coming upstairs from a morning swim.

Rod leaves Bertie Lou with no explanation, and she thinks that Lila has won him. Both women try to find him without success. Bertie Lou obtains a position and is puzzled when Rod makes no move to get a divorce although his lawyer offers her one. The suspense and dreariness of her lot causes her to seek forgetfulness in Marco's gay crowd. She decides to buy a "dream home" with the money Rod had sent her when he left.

Marco falls in love with Bertie Lou and is deeply through all her trouble. He begs her to marry him, and she is tempted by his wealth but tells him that she still loves Rod.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLI

Marco said good night to Bertie Lou with great reluctance. He thought she was really ill and needed the attention of a physician. But Bertie Lou would not consent to have him take her to the doctor who had attended her during her nervous breakdown, as he wished to do.

"Let's just stop at the hospital a minute," Marco pleaded when they got back to the city.

"No no. I'm all right," Bertie Lou protested. Marco did not believe her. She looked so tortured, with a wild, feverish light in her eyes, and a heartbreaking way of pressing her finger-tips to her lips, as though to keep back a cry of anguish.

"You shouldn't have come out today." Marco told her reprachfully. "Buying that house was too much for you, Bertie Lou. Of course it's your own affair, but that sort of sentimental indulgence is worse for you than the kind of things you say you won't do any more."

Marco spoke harshly. It annoyed him that Bertie Lou wouldn't take him into her confidence about the house. He could guess that it meant something close to her heart. And he was jealous of her interests.

In reality he was gratified at the change in her—the way she was turning her back on the drinking, jazzing, youth-squandering life they had been leading. It would give him a strong factor in favor of his marriage to her when the time came to talk to his father about it.

He suspected, of course, that the man was her husband. The suspicion prodded him to harshness. Then, too, he dreaded leaving Bertie Lou without someone to look after her during the night.

He remembered, with a pang of remorse, that it had been he who had made it possible for her to follow the health-wrecking road that leads from pleasure haunt to pleasure haunt.

He though of that day on the train when he'd met her for the first time. She had been aloof, unwilling to promise a future meeting. He'd never expected to hear from her again.

It was easy to guess now, in the face of his greater knowledge of her, that she had been driven by unhappiness to seek his companionship. She could he offered in his own defense, have found another willing courier on her voyage to a hospital cot. Blue—and this was what troubled his conscience—there had been times along the way when her spirit had lagged and her feet had grown weary—times when he knew she was tired of the brittle hollowness of their contact, with a world of incandescent radiance, mad music, and "don't care" people.

Close to her laughter had been honest tears. Her dancing feet had wanted to stop. And Marco had known it. He admitted to himself, that he had known it. And now it troubled him that he had urged her on, piqued her when he could, done everything, in fact, everything that he could think of to keep her going.

He had always liked her, from the start of their friendship. He hadn't wanted her to drop out.

"You're in no condition to be let alone," he burst forth crossly, seeking in a solicitude for her, to put down his troublesome self searching.

Bertie Lou's nerves were beginning to cover her body with the feel of a fine network of searing wires. She knew what that meant. The hospital cot again. Somehow she must hang on, must keep calm.

Marco had been right. The emotional crisis she had undergone in buying the house of Rod's dreams had upset her. No, it was Marco himself, with his unending desire to marry her.

She knew better. It wasn't Marco. It was her memory. Cameo clear. Dear God couldn't she forget the past. That hot night in her room. So brave she'd been—to marry Lila Marsh's castoff suitor. The heat might have come from a crucible wherein burned her chance for happiness. And then she had only to think a little further to feel Rod's kisses upon her hair, her eyes, her lips. Sweet, the hour of youth . . .

Marco was saying something. She would not listen. Why try not to relieve her brief joy when it was impossible to forget it? Marco would be talking sense, and there was no sense in the world.

She could not ignore him, though; she must not. If she sank so far into the past as to forget him entirely she might lose consciousness. She felt as if she could sink into a stupor from sheer inability to let go her poignant remembrance. Marco would rush her off to the hospital.

If she gained her bed . . . by morning she would be better. It had never been quite so bad before—this looking backward. Induced by imagination, of course. She had pictured, too unenduringly, herself with Rod in the little house at Moonfields.

But it must be dispelled, this mood of black regrets for a dead past. She must not be silly. Perhaps . . . if she had word of Rod . . . tomorrow she would do what she had resisted doing many times . . . she would telephone to Cyrus Loree. She could disguise her voice . . . oh, she would not have him speaking of it to Lila . . . Lila would carry it to Rod. Cyrus might tell her what Rod was doing if she pretended to be a friend from Wayville.

She knew Rod was not working for Cyrus. Her mother had told her that much. But no one who would have told her more about him seemed to know. Molly, she was sure, could have given her some information had she wished.

Bertie Lou had suffered over Molly's attitude. It indicated that Rod had made unkind remarks about her. That was hard to believe, though. Rod had never been contemptible. Hadn't he though? Since he'd fallen under Lila's influence. Still, Molly never had liked her. It did not need an effort on Rod's part to make her more unfriendly.

Bertie Lou was buoyed up by the promise to herself to try to get word of Rod. It was a comfort she had stoically denied herself, but now that she had made up her mind to it, she felt better, in spite of the bruise she knew it would be to her pride to risk having Lila or Rod guess that the call had come from her.

She turned to Marco and he long enough to see that she had grown calmer. There had been a silence of many minutes since his last remark to her.

"I'm out of it now," she said quietly.

"What the devil was the matter with you?" he replied peevishly. She had given him a good scare.

"A touch of homesickness," she told him. Marco did not like what she said because he did not believe it, but he was too much in love with her to express his doubt. He knew he had no right to his jealousy. Bertie Lou had never encouraged him to think she loved him.

When he left her at the door of her rooming house he gazed very earnestly into her eyes. Bertie Lou put out a hand to say goodnight. Marco took it and did not let it go.

"I wish you would let me take care of you," he said. "This is so dumb, Bertie Lou; your living in a place like this."

"Maybe it is," Bertie Lou returned with a wistful smile, "but just now, just this minute, Marco I'm glad I didn't listen to you."

She was thinking of the call she was going to make the next day—the telephone call to Cyrus Loree. There was no hope of a reconciliation with Rod—she wasn't sure that she could love the man Lila had made of him as she had loved him when he was her ideal—but still she found a faint measure of happiness in being unchanged herself; in being the same Bertie Lou that Rod had married.

A miracle might happen—she did not expect it to, but it might. Cyrus could tell her something fine of Rod. It might be a mistake about him and Lila. It might be. And then she would be so indescribably, so deliriously happy that she had not said yes to Marco.

She laughed at herself as she undressed for bed, laughed and called herself a little fool. It was a sad sound, her laughter. And partly on account of Marco. She hated to treat him shabbily keep him hanging on until she made up her mind. Her mind was made up! Why had she though shuch a thing?

Bertie Lou lay long awake, asking herself questions. And she found that under all her surface denials, and even her joy in being free to dream impossible dreams of a reunion with Rod there was a feeling of satisfaction in her heart over knowing that Marco stood by to take her out of her hall bedroom whenever she was ready to leave it.

It made her feel like a cheat, To be subconsciously leaning upon his love, while professing her deterceitful, she realized.

She broke the next engagement she had with Marco. She told him over the telephone that she would not see him again.

Marco worked up a little huff over it. A huff that lasted several days, during which time he made no attempt to see her.

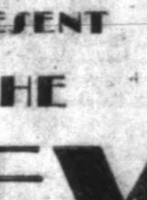

Bertie Lou went back to work. She was in a dual state of firmness and softness. She would be firm about Marco, but she was extremely tender over the house she was building. It was to be the temple of a ghostly love. Rod was dead. Her Rod, that is. The other? She would forget him.

Cyrus had spoken very abruptly to her when she had telephoned and asked about Rod. She had given a fictitious name and said she was from Rod's home. And Cyrus had let her understand that he had no interest in Rod whatsoever. His tone was so caustic, and short, that Bertie Lou had quickly hung up.

SCRIPTURE: "Jesus had compassion on them, and touched their eyes; and immediately their eyes received sight, and they followed Him."—Matthew 20:34.

Immediately they saw Him they followed Him. They couldn't very well follow until their eyes were opened. This simple statement explains why so many folks are not following Jesus. Their eyes haven't been opened. A blind understanding is the worst kind of blindness. Pity the blind.

ENFORCE THE LAWS

Whether it be blamed to the republican party or just who, we are of the opinion that there is not a thing in the world the matter with the prohibition laws of the United States, except one thing out side of the enforcement joke. In the first place we will say that there is absolutely no excuse for the prescription law whereby people can buy the stuff from licensed drug stores. It is unnecessary that people drink the stuff at all, and if for some reason or other a doctor wants to use it for medicine, he should have the right to prescribe it just like he would strychnine, or salts, or other medicines, if it ever needs to be used as such. The present prescription laws should be wiped out. We honestly believe, while we might be wrong, that 90 per cent of the whiskey sold on prescription is sold, not as a medicine, and is sold to people whom the physician knows there is nothing the matter with them other than a desire for a drink. Every fellow that gets a prescription should swear that he was sick when he bought it, and be made to prove it, or be prosecuted for perjury. And every physician who writes a prescription when he knows full well that there is nothing the matter with the fellow except a weakness for drink, should lose his license to practice medicine, and we are of the opinion that if that is all he knows about what a fellow needs when he is sick, it would be easy to substantiate a claim that he was incompetent and dangerous in the practice of medicine, and his licenses should be revoked. This would certainly stop at least 98 per cent of the whiskey being sold on prescription. This is our idea of enforcing the laws, and making it effective, which is all that it needs. Just a strict enforcement of the law.

There is a lot of talk about modification and all of that stuff. It does not need modifying, but it needs enforcing. We read an article a few days ago written by Mrs. Stella C. Stinson, director of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, on the subject of each state making its own liquor laws, and she says that a lot of the so-called Jeffersonian democrats, preaching under the guise of "personal liberty" are urging that it would not be a violation of the 18th Amendment to permit each state to declare for itself when liquor is intoxicating.

Iowa, they claim, could permit no alcohol at all while Wisconsin if it followed the advice of one or two of its wet leaders, could permit alcohol up to 14 per cent. New York would declare that no liquor intoxicates unless it contains 22 per cent of alcohol, and Illinois lawmakers would not permit any drink of more than 2 per cent. To interpret the Eighteenth Amendment in that silly way is in effect to return to local option, which was a complete failure. A local measure cannot cope with a national evil. Assuredly the liquor business will organize nationally if we change our prohibition laws to permit intoxicants to be manufactured anywhere. Prior to prohibition a situation existed that approximated the condition advocated by the west in their present plea for a state determination of alcoholic content. Three-fourths of the country, by state laws, limited the alcoholic content to less than half of one per cent of alcohol—yet from the wet states there was a constant stream of illicit liquor. A majority of the people did not want liquor shipped from wet to dry territory, and yet the liquor interests persisted. Congress finally put a stop to the shipment of booze to dry territory, and after that the shipment went on to some extent illegally, for no law limiting booze has ever been respected by the liquor trade. That is exactly what would happen under the proposal that each state should interpret the Eighteenth Amendment to suit its liquor-supporters. Give booze one community where it is legal to make and sell the stuff and that community will become a plague spot from which will emanate the same disease which sickened America until it had to adopt the only effective remedy—the complete outlawry of the liquor trade on a national and not a state basis. Many who are opposed to national prohibition now claim that there is more legality in the idea of state-control of the liquor traffic than in Federal prohibition. But at the same time we who have been fighting this battle against rum for a life time recognize among the enemy the self same men who used to say that the states could not successfully legislate against liquor and that therefore each neighborhood, each little town or city should take care of its own problems regarding liquor. Then, when a local option bill was in a state legislature, every effort would be made by the wet interests to force bars or booze-selling cafes into cities that actually did not want them. We hear considerable oratory about personal liberty and the Constitution; but with millions of women the issue is whisky. If there is any way of restoring the legal traffic in this thing we are sure the whisky interests of Canada or Europe, if not America, will combine with whatever political element it can find. In the half-century of the existence of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union we have faced the same set of foes on different battle grounds. They fought us on the hours of sale; they fought us on Sunday closing; they fought us on local option, unless they felt sure they could force saloons on us by that means; they fought us on state regulation; they fought us on the Eighteenth Amendment; they fought us on the Volstead Act. With us the only solution for the liquor problem is prohibition enforced to the limit.

AS WE WOULD LIKE IT

As we have been passing down the highway of life, passing one milestone after another till we have come dangerously near the fiftieth one, we have been observing some things, and among some of the amusing things that we have noticed that people running for office, and especially campaign manager's headquarters see and hear things just about as they would like for it to be, and like them hope it will be.

As we read in the newspapers every day, reports from the headquarters of the campaign managers of the two presidential candidates this is brought very forceably to our attention. Chairman John Raskob, of the democratic party, is pepping the democrats up very much over a report that he received from some where, that Pennsylvania would be in the democratic column this year and then right over on another page of the same newspaper we find that the republicans are receiving assurance that the Lone Star state is going to go republican this year for the first time in the history of the state. Raskob and Moses received these reports with becoming enthusiasm, but failed to express their private opinions. Political leaders realize the November elections may result in changing the political map very materially, but it is hardly probable that the change will be sufficiently complete to reverse the respective political alignments of Texas and Pennsylvania. However, in many Eastern and Northern states it is apparent that a political upheaval may be expected, but how far-reaching its effect may be is conjectural. Hoover's conservation program, as outlined in his recent address in California on the Boulder Canyon dam project, will serve to add to republican prestige in the West, where conservation is the paramount issue. His farm relief proposal has not added strength to the party in the Middle West nor has his proposed investigation of prohibition as a means of determining changes necessary materially strengthenen the republican position in the South. However, in the wet states of the East, Hoover's prohibition pronouncement has been grasped with the avidity of a drowning man grasping a straw, the wet element of the party pointing out that it opens the door to modification. Curtis' acceptance address will meet the approval of the agricultural sections, indicating there has been no change in the senator's allegiance to the farmers' cause, but the farmer organizations will take into consideration the fact that such influence as a vice-president may wield in their behalf will not prove very valuable. Vice-President Dawes was an ardent supporter of the McNary-Haugen bill, but his support did not prevent Coolidge from twice vetoing the measure. At no time since the Civil War and reconstruction period has such a variety of issues been placed before the American voters, and the natural result is a condition of political chaos that baffles the most astute observers. However, when the smoke of battle clears away in November it is very probable that Pennsylvania will still be republican and Texas democratic, notwithstanding the optimistic claims of state leaders.

The wires carried the information recently that a New York marathon dancer had been compelled to stop because of a serious brain affection. An earlier diagnosis would have kept the gentleman from starting.

OUT OUR WAY— By Williams

SO THINK WE

We think that every man who pays taxes and who is entitled to a vote in every other way, and wants to vote in the election Saturday should be permitted to do so, and not be bound by any party name or pledge further than the men he votes for on that ticket, and we are of the opinion that this will be the way many people will vote Saturday, and there will be no law to keep them from doing so.

—o—

We think that in nearly every thing that has ever amounted to anything in the world, a price has been paid for it, either in money or life, and it seems that in the matter of flying across the ocean, it is taking a great deal of each

—o—

The main trouble that we see is that very few of those who have attempted the flight get back to tell it, and therein lies the trouble If they might come back and tell where the trouble lies, it might be corrected more readily.

—o—

We think there is one thing that is helpful in this political speaking schedules. The politicians hardly ever play a return engagements and that means much for the general public. There is another bright spot in the matter of politics, and that is so much of it comes over the radio, and so many people do not have one of the things and those who do very often do not know how to tune in, so they will not be bothered with political speeches. Most every one knows how to stop the machine, so that in these days and nights of tense political heat, there can be the refreshing thought that you can turn the switch and go to bed, and let the political speaker get through raving, and then come back to your radio after midnight, and enjoy a program more suitable to your taste.

PRESS COMMENT

THE RUN-OFF RACES

State run-off races will be held for state superintendent of schools and land office commissioner. The greatest interest undoubtedly would have been for lieutenant governor had not Love withdrawn, as the leading candidates for the two other offices lacked only a few votes of obtaining majorities.

S. N. N. Marrs, will be opposed for superintendent by Garner. Marrs received 318,000 votes compared to 347,000 votes for his three opponents. Marrs lacked only 28,000 votes of receiving a majority.

J. T. Robinson, land commissioner, received 316,000 votes, while his three opponents received 323,096. Robinson lacked only 6,436 votes of obtaining a majority. Both Marrs and Robinson undoubtedly will be elected by a large majorities in the run-off.

Birth Justice

Oscar Slater has returned to civilization from the city of the living dead. Sentenced 18 years ago for murder which he did not commit, he has spent the intervening period of time within prison walls which aged and saddened him. Today, a broken man, he steps into the light of day once more and obtains a full retraction of the false charges which once had threatened his very life. When first convicted, the jury assessed the death penalty, but the fact the he was doomed by circumstantial evidence, uncertain and conflicting, impelled 30,000 inhabitants of Great Britain to attach their names to a petition for clemency which did not fail. To this fair-minded multitude of British, Slater owes his life; to Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and other well-wishers, his freedom.

The fact that the Scottish court of appeals reversed the ancient and incorrect verdict was not enough for the highly developed British sense of justice. To make more substantial amends, Ramsey MacDonald sponsored in the house of commons a bill awarding $6,000 to the man whose freedom had been unfairly forfeited to the state. The bill passed and Slater accepted the financial reimbursement in the spirit in which it was given. Slight recompense perhaps for years of suffering, yet an inspiring symbol of that inherent instinct for decency which pervades the courts and parliaments of Great Britain.

The example set by England might very well be followed in this country. Though generally it is the lawless who pay a just penalty for their crimes, at times an innocent man, caught in a merciless web of circumstances, is fated to pass long years behind prison walls. If later his innocence be established, it is not enough that the state restore to him his citizenship rights. It owes to him a greater debt for the payment of which it should make adequate provision. When such a case occurs, a state's legislators would honor both themselves and their constituents by granting to the unfortunate something substantial than apologetic gestures.—Houston Chronicle.

YOUR HEALTH

EDITORS NOTE: This is the first of a series of three articles on the human voice and how it is best used. Tomorrow: Vocal Defects.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

The organs of speech include the lips, the tongue, the gums, the palate and the lower jaw as well as the uvula. The uvula is the little tip which comes down from the soft palate to divide the throat cavity in two parts.

Absence of the teeth causes an unnecessary escape of air and defective pronounciation of the sounds "f" and "th"; when these sounds are made the tongue or lips rest against the teeth.

Receeding gums or physical abnormalities of the jaw interfere with the "t" sound. The purpose of the soft palate and uvula is to close the space back of the nose for all sounds except the nasal sounds "n", "m", and "ng".

If the palate is paralyzed, the voice sounds dull and dead. Exercise of the soft palate and uvula may be brought about by opening the mouth wide and saying "ah-ah". If the person watches himself in the mirror, he will see the palate and uvula rise to the occasion. The same action takes place in yawning.

Action of Jaw

If the lower jaw projects too far, the lips do not meet properly and the person has trouble in saying "f" "v" "p", "b" and "m" and sometimes trouble with the "s". On the other hand, if the lower jaw is too short and receding the "s" sound is too prominent and may even sound like "sh". In order to say "s" "f" "v" the upper lip mustetaoin "f" and "v" the upper lip must be raised.

Exercises

The following exercises are for singers who wish to obtain good control of this important organ.

Push the tongue out of the mouth as far as possible and downward toward the chin.

Push the tongue out of the mouth as far as possible and upward toward the nose, even touching the nose.

Point the tip of the tongue upward and downward alternately for a count of ten.

Rotate the tongue to the right, then down, then to the left, then up. Repeat ten times.

Protude the tongue, grooving it at the same time by raising both sides.

Curl the tip of the tongue back of the front upper teeth with the mouth wide open. Repeat ten times.

Press the tip of the tongue back of the front lower teeth. Press and relax for ten times.

Let the tongue lie flat on the floor of the mouth, with special care that the front, middle or back are not elevated.

It is reported that an automobile dealer has purchased an airplane, in order that he can better cover the territory around Midland in the interest of his automobile agency. He does not acknowledge that his cars cannot make it through the deep sands of some of his territory, but he will admit that the air is better traveling.

—o—

It is reported that tomatoes have been placed in the class with fruit. Now what in the world are all of the vegetarians going to do since it must be cut out of the vegetable list. Here we have been eating those things thinking they were vegetables all these years, and now we must cut them out because we must not eat fruit.

—o—

It is reported that a certain Lubbock young man was "expt" out of $621, because he was superstitious. Probably he will not be such a strong believer in black cats, Friday, the 13th, etc. Experience some times comes high, but its a mighty good thing to knock the suspicion out of some folks, and Miss Experience is one of the best teachers in the United States and has had some classes in other nations.

—o—

It is reported that the democratic pledge is too deep for some people. We can see through that all right but the gnats that fill the air every day. There are too many for us.

—o—

It is reported that Al Smith has the biggest smile that has been offered to the White House. It is said that a smile always wins. We will wait till November to see.

—o—

It is reported that some people do not know enough to even know where the South Plains is. A fellow writing recently to one of the state papers even thinks that South of Big Spring is part of the South Plains, and because they have some pink boll weevils down there he thinks they are all over the Lubbock country as well. There is nothing like that in this section of the country, but we have gnats, and to spare.

THEN HIS HEART FELL!

Hopeful—Tommy, does a young man call here in the evening to see your sister?

Tommy—I guess he doesn't exactly come to see her, because there's never any light in the room when he's here.

PICKING A WEAK ONE

"If I ever go lion hunting—"

"Yes, if ever you go lion hunting—"

"I'm going to make darned sure that the cat I'm up against is going to be one of those lions of least resistance.—Louisville Satyr.

CUTTING OUT THE WORRY

"What's the result of the examination, doc?"

"You're all run down—my advice is that you lay off golf for a while and get a good long rest at the office."

It's the Upkeep

"Since I bought a car I don't have to walk to the bank to make any deposits."

"Ah, you ride there?"

"No, I don't make any."—Temple Topics.

Landlady: "Isn't this a good chicken?"

Boarder: "It may have been morally, but physically it's a wreck."

Different

"I got my start through picking up a pin."

"Yes? I suppose the merchant was impressed by your carefulness in picking it up, called you back and made you head of the firm."

"No, I picked up the pin, and sold it for a thousand dollars. It had a big diamond in it."

South Plains Press

For the first time in the history of this audacious organization it reaches out openly for national power, having previously opposed Democracy's great leaders, Tilden, Cleveland, Wilson and Bryan. It now presents its own favorite son for residence in the White House. This effort creates a national issue, a national issue of paramount importance. Let there be no misunderstanding: Governor Smith has opened his campaign with a commendably frank endorsement of the organization that is his political creator. He does not disavow the facts; the nation dare not ignore them. Another has said: "The shadow of Tammany lies ominously over the Smith campaign. It will become bigger and blacker as the campaign continues. Knowledge is power, and in 1928 the simple truth concerning Manhattan's striped beast will send him soundly thrashed from the polls in November."

Oliver W. Stewart, formerly Chairman of the National Prohibition Party, has characterized the recent convention of this organization with its nomination of candidates for the presidency and vice-presidency as "a weak and futile gesture." He goes on to say that with such candidates as Hoover and Curtis before the American people, the placing of a third ticket in the field "shows a political obtuseness which never would have met the Prohibition Party leaders of other years." Mr. Stewart is right. We are sure, however, that Mr. Varney and his running-mate Mr. Edgerton, will be found on the right side of this proposition, that they will withdraw and direct whatever vote they might have received to Hoover.

OUR TRADE TERRITORY

Twenty-five years ago the farm located five or ten miles from a given town or city was thought to be quite a distance. In those days taking a twenty-five or thirty mile trip was considered something big and generally a day or two in preparation was necessary.

Today conditions are quite changed. Instead of plodding along those five or ten miles with a wagon or team, eating the dust as one went, 25 or 30 miles can be made in the automobile as quickly and much more pleasantly in the same time.

Today it is easier for merchants to draw trade 40 to 50 miles than it was to draw it 15 to 20 miles a few years ago. It is also easier for the enterprising competitor in the next town to get in his work. Farmers, a few years ago did practically all their trading at the nearby town, now go to the farther town or city to do much of their bargaining, if they do not get the service and prices they think they ought to have in the home town.

Littlefield has several good business concerns and they get some of the distant trading, but the Leader believes that with more effort and more cooperation that amount could be doubled. During the past year there has been little effort made to extend the trade territory, of this town.—Lamb County Leader.

We think the Lubbock Board of City Development is now on the right track. They are going to put this road business in the form of something definite and it is to be hoped that since the ball has been started to rolling that it will be boosted along. All of Lubbock county should whip in line with the board in this matter and get Lubbock county roads in shape so that they can be traveled over in any kind of weather without fear of being stuck in the mud at most any place along the line.

Public Opinion

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP

I see the Brownwood Bulletin commends President Coolidge for vetoing the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, also for failing to sign the Norris bill for government operation of Muscle Shoals, and further goes on to say "Government operation of the railroads during the war gave a fair sample of what might be expected of such a system." The facts are that was neither government ownership or government operation, and not even a shadow of a sample of government ownership or government operations, as has always been set out by the government ownership advocates. This is a fact well known by all well informed people.

As to railroads in war times the same private owners operated them, but the government did control them, to some extent as to transportation of troops and supplies, and while so doing paid for said service and also spent multiplied millions on improvements and gave the operators many millions in guarantees, bonuses, reimbursements so called, etc.

It is also a well known fact that at that time such high wages and salaries and graft were never known. Then how any intelligent man could have the "gall" in the face of these facts and intelligence to claim this a fair sample of government ownership and operation on democratic and economic principles is a travesty on intelligence. It was a fair sample of waste and extravagance —That's all.

Now honestly, did you ever think how foolish and absurd it is to assert that government operation, rightly conducted is a failure and what a stigma or slur that is on civil government on the intelligence of our statesmen and government officials, and also on ourselves, who do and should carefully select them to represent us and our interests and to transact our public business. It knocks, belittles and hits the very foundation life and principles of democratic government "of, for and by the people". Government ownership, rightly conducted has never failed, and never will notwithstanding the voluminous amount of propaganda and misrepresentation against it.

Do you think that private interests could, would or do run public utilities and public institutions more efficiently and successfully. To say nothing of the public interests, than wisely chosen efficient and well qualified representatives of the people and the government, for their actions and have no selfish interests to care for in the discharge of such duties.

As private ownership and operation is so immensely profitable. Why not government ownership and operation be just as profitable to the public and for the public interests.

After the establishment of government buildings and institutions, they are ours and we pay no tax, rent, interest, present profit—just have to keep up the running expenses. But you know private interests collect these off the public.

But you say investigate, regulate. That's enough. Yes that's the old joke and farce that has been played up until its threadbare—give us another that is not so funny.

T. J. ESTES.

THE FAMILY PRAYER

As though this world we go
We hear on every hand
The question ask by so and so
Where is a rightious man?

Among the Christians that we know
I fear there isn't any
Who to their family altars go
I'm sure there isn't many.

Oh: yes there's some bound to be
Who live a Christian life,
That to their family altars flee
When sin has caused them strife.

Then how their tormented souls do cry,
To God the good and true
To pass their imperfections by
And let them start anew

And God will bless their souls and oh,
It seems that all is now complete
And then he says I told you to
Now stand upon your feet.

Its ever been and is today
As true if we tread the narrow way
That if we tread the narrow way,
Our lives will happy be.

Its also true that if we fail
To do our Lords command
The devil will our lives assail
With sin on every hand

The family altar you may say
Is old and out of date
Not needed in this present day
We're modern now at any rate.

They practiced this when Christ was here
He says so in His book
Then you are wrong my friend I fear
You'd better take a look.

A wrong you cannot modernize
And make the thing just right
But oh, how some folks theorize
And make an awful fight.

But right is right and wrong is wrong
And will be to the end
If I were you I'd change my song
You're on the downward trend.

Of all the things thats needed most
It is the family prayer
Attended by the Holy Ghost
Who knows our every care

It would be better far, by chance
To hold a family prayer
Than to attend a social dance
Where naught but sin is there.

Twould help our boys and girls to know
That we their parents live
A truer Christian life and so,
Would much more pleasure give.

Then when we meet Him face to face
Before the judgment throne.
We, I know that in and through
Gods grace
That heaven is our home.

Well done thou true and faithful one
Reward thou shalt have
God's blessings thou hast won
Throughout eternity.

Farmers' Course To Be Held Here

Enrollment of Fifty Or More For School Conducted By Local Cotton Firm Is Expected In City.

A Farmers' Short Course, in which cotton judging and other phases of the sale of cotton will be discussed, is to be staged by the Waters Dean Cotton company here starting next Monday.

An enrollment of fifty farmers is expected for the course, which follows the annual cotton buyers school, held from July 16 until August 17.

Conducting the course will be R. H. Waters, who possesses considerable experience in this line of work, and H. O. Waters, who has been in the cotton business in West Texas for the past twenty years.

KIWANIS MAKES ....

A plea for full participation by voters in the August run-off primary was made yesterday by Dr. Fred W. Standefer, president of the Lubbock Kiwanis club in the meeting held at the Lubbock hotel.

The proposed Lubbock county road improvement project was outlined to the club by Mayor Harley D. Woods and President B. Sherrod of the Board of City Development.

Two violin selections were given by Miss Beulah Dunn, who was accompanied at the piano by Miss Myrtle Dunn of Abilene. Miss Dunn played "Songs My Mother Taught Me," and "A Bandanna Ballad."

DAILY MARKETS

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 23 (AP).—Brisk upturns in wheat values today accompanied reports that the quality of a considerable part of the Canadian crop has been damaged by frost. Meanwhile, export demand for wheat from North America broadened out, and it was estimated that more than 1,000,000 bushels were taken for shipment to Europe.

Closing quotations on wheat were strong, 2 1-4c to 3c net higher, with corn 1-4c to 3-4c up, oats showing 7/8c and 1c to 1 3-8c gain.

Predictions of more frost in Canada tonight followed advices today telling of seven degrees of frost at various points in Canadian wheat territory.

Much of the speculative buying of wheat today was on opinions that regardless of the final outcome of the North American spring wheat harvest, wheat prices were at a level which had discounted to a large extent all the favorable aspects of the crop situation, and had furnished to the buying side of the market the better chances for profit. As against this, reports were at hand that beneficial rains had fallen in Australia and Argentine crop prospects continued excellent.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 23. (AP)—Cotton prices sought lower levels today under selling brought out by more favorable crop prospects in Texas as a result of a forecast for cooler weather and rain there. December contracts after advancing 16 points to 18.51 declined to 18.12 and closed at 18.18, 19 points net lower for the day. The general market closed steady at a net decline of 19 to 21 points.

Liverpool cables were higher than expected and the market here opened firm in response. First trades showed gains of 10 to 11 points. At the beginning of the second hour the market weakened on the predictions of showers and cooler weather in the western belt, which traders believed would check shedding in that section and aid the crop generally. Selling was also stimulated by the census bureau ginnings total of 280,530 bales which it was slightly larger than the trade expected.

October closed at 18.18, or 21 points off for the day.

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK

FORT WORTH, Aug. 23. (AP)—The cattle trade here today generally was steady. Steers sold from $10.65 to $12.25, cows $8.50 to $9.50 and calves $10.50 to $13.00.

The hog and sheep market largely were nominal affairs.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. (AP)—Early advances were followed by declines in the New York cotton market today under renewed realizing or liquidation and some southern selling. December declined from 18.94 to 18.56 and closed at 18.59 compared with 18.80 at the close of the previous day. The general market closed steady at net declines of 8 to 21 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 3 points to an advance of 9 points, generally 3 to 9 points higher, in response to relatively firm Liverpool cables. The demand was not active, however, and after selling up to 19.08 for October and 18.90 for March, or about 10 to 15 points net higher, prices turned easier under local and southern selling which appeared to be promoted by prospects for showers in dry sections of the southwest. The outlook for showers in the eastern belt was considered unfavorable and was probably a disappointment to some of the early sellers but failed to bring in much fresh buying and except for occasional rallies, prices work lower during the afternoon.

At the lowest October sold at 18.71 and March 18.57 with the general list showing net declines of 19 to 24 points, and closing prices were within 2 or 3 points of these figures.

Two Day Swimming School Will Be Conducted Here

WALTER WICKS

A special representative of the Life Saving service of the American Red Cross, Walter Wicks, expert swimmer and diver, is in Lubbock today to hold a two-day instruction in swimming and life saving at the City Swimming pool.

A two day instruction program in swimming and life saving activities will be given in Lubbock today and tomorrow by Walter Wicks of St. Louis, national Red Cross representative.

At 10 o'clock each morning of the two-day program Mr. Wicks will judge the life saving contests.

K. N. Clapp, local Red Cross examiner has arranged for two contests and will award a bathing suit for the highest score made among those who passed their test in former years under A. Ragland, or C. E. Graham, and another suit to the one showing the greatest improvement in score who passed the test this season. The best score of either contest is the champion of Lubbock and will be awarded a silver medal suitably engraved.

On Saturday night at 8 o'clock there will be a water carnival with races, fancy diving, and life saving contests in three divisions, boys, men and women. Each class will have races of twenty and thirty-five yards free style, a twenty yard back stroke, and a fancy diving contest. The life saving event is open to all. Entries will be accepted until the race is called but Mr. Clapp urges those intending to compete to post their entry on the board at the pool or communicate with him.

Apropos

A woman observing a mule owned by a colored boy asked: "What do you call your mule?"

"Ah calls him Utility," responded the boy.

"How did you come to give him such a name?"

"Well," he replied, "I'se been studyin' de animal and readin' de papers. Dat mule gets mo'blame an' abuse dan anything else in de city, an' goes ahead doin' his level best just de same."

K. N. CLAPP

In charge of the City Swimming pool and an ardent believer in all kinds of physical training, K. N. Clapp, Lubbock cotton man, is the leader in the two-day swimming school being conducted here by Walter Wicks, St. Louis Red Cross swimming and diving expert. Great credit is due Mr. Clapp for the success of the city's swimming pool and for the wide-spread interest in water sports here.

STOP! In the Name of the Law

And Consider Well Before You Cast That Vote Against

H. L. (Bud) JOHNSTON For Sheriff

Or Before You Decide Not To Vote Next Saturday!

BUD JOHNSTON is honest.
BUD JOHNSTON will enforce the law.
BUD JOHNSTON will work in harmony with the other enforcement officials you have elected.
YOU DO NOT KNOW whether his opponent possesses these qualifications or not, because he has never been tried.
DO YOU THINK it is wise to swap your faithful old horse off in the middle of a new Presidential race, for a colt that is not even halter-broke?

THE ENEMIES of Bud Johnston will vote.
THE ENEMIES of Bud Johnston do not all believe in law enforcement.
THE ENEMIES of Bud Johnston who do not believe in law enforcement would like to keep all law abiding citizens from the polls next Saturday.
NO BOOTLEGGER or crook will vote for Bud Johnston.
THEY will vote for somebody.
DO YOU WANT THEM to select your sheriff for the next two years?

This is a call to every law abiding citizen, man or woman, who wants the LAW ENFORCED, who wants PROHIBITION ENFORCED, who believes in UPHOLDING THE ARM OF THE GOVERNMENT, to turn out next Saturday and elect a SHERIFF.

Lubbock county cannot elect a President, but Lubbock county can spend two years regretting its lack of interest and inaction should it forget the importance of electing good home officials.

You know very well who is going to vote next Saturday. If you want them to name your SHERIFF, just stay away from the polls and they will do it. The same political machine that has tried to name other officials in this county is trying to name the next SHERIFF. BUD JOHNSTON HAS NO POLITICAL ORGANIZATION BACKING HIM.

WE CALL ON YOU to exercise your constitutional and God-given right to vote, and ask you IN THE NAME OF THE LAW, if you believe in law, to cast your ballot for
