UN Security Council Seat Plan Approved

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—A compromise agreement was reached Saturday night ending the East-West deadlock over filling a vacancy in the U.N. Security Council.

It was agreed that Communist Poland and U.S.-backed Turkey would split a two-year term with Poland serving the first year.

The agreement was disclosed by U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge after a conference which included representatives of the Soviet Union, the two contending countries and Victor Andres Belaunde, of Peru, president of the General Assembly.

Earlier the General Assembly approved unanimously a plan for giving the United Nations a role in the peaceful exploration of outer space.

The Assembly failed to approve a new Asian-African resolution urging informal French-Algerian talks for ending the five-year-old rebellion in Algeria. The vote was 30-22 with 20 abstentions, which fell short of the required two-thirds majority. The United States abstained on the resolution.

Agreement on outer space was reached in approval of a resolution setting up a 24-nation committee to study international cooperation in the peaceful uses of outer space.

Given representation on the committee were 7 Communist, 5 neutral and 12 countries from the West or allied with them.

The pattern for the agreement was similar to that which produced unanimous U.N. approval on a disarmament resolution earlier in the session.

It referred all disarmament proposals advanced here to the forthcoming East-West disarmament conference to take place in Geneva early next year.

Big Spring Week

With Joe Pickle

Like the ground rushing up to meet a parachute, Christmas is rushing up on all of us. The exuberant round of parties, meetings, dinners, etc., is in full swing; shopping is reaching a feverish pace; Wednesday evening 18 churches will present the religious Christmas parade; and Thursday Santa will visit several thousand youngsters.

Big Spring is more than a square mile larger than it was a week ago. If everything is in order, around 707 acres will be added to the total inside the corporate limits as the result of recent annexations.

The sale average was only $2 lower at $607 than it was last year, but the volume of $30,975 was the best yet for the Howard County South Plains Hereford Sale. Last year the total volume was for $24,980. The champion bull this year brought $1,000 against last year's $1,275 while the champion heifer brought $2,050 compared with last year's $700.

Fortunately not everyone is like us last-minute boys, for some 2,000 families already have up Christmas trees. We inadvertently missed mentioning that the De-Molay boys were selling trees as usual at their lot adjacent to the Masonic Hall at 2101 Lancaster. We missed some other things during a week beset with gremlins, for we had Boone Horne deceased (which he denies in person) and we had C. A. Walker posing with an aristocratic bull—but the bull was a she.

Ralph W. Caton was appointed Friday to succeed Charlie Sullivan as judge of the 118th judicial district. Developments of the past fortnight had left Caton as the foremost contender, then the governor made it official. At 34, Caton will be one of the youngest district judges in the state.

If you're handy with a needle and can spare a little time, the city firemen could certainly use you. They have around 100 to 150 dolls in need of dresses or dress repairs. Incidentally, if you have toys around the house which you can give, take them to a Corden station or a fire station as soon as possible. Firemen will make them good as new for some poor kid.

The city commission gave the green light for planning on an 86-block paving program which will cost better than half a million dollars. It would be an assessment program, about the only effective type for closing existing gaps, and is badly needed by the city.

In another action, the commission also moved to offer the land on which part of Webb AFB is located to the U. S. Air Force. This (See THE WEEK, P. 8-A, Col. 8)

BIDDING IS BRISK

Hereford Sale Sets New Record Total

Paced by spirited bidding on the top side, 46 bulls and 5 heifers went for an aggregate of $30,975 in the 16th annual Howard County South Plains Hereford sale here Saturday.

Dr. G. T. Hall, Big Spring, paced the sale with a $2,050 bid for Miss Domino 47, the classy grand champion heifer consigned by Buchanan Hereford, Big Spring. This was an all-time top for females in this sale. He also paid $600 for Blanche 78, a half sister to the grand champion.

CHAMPION BULL SOLD
The grand champion bull brought $1,000 to Charlie Creighton, Big Spring, breeder of CC Major Mischief 450. Walter Graham, Happy, was the buyer of this Mischief-Lampighter bull.

Other top bulls included WLH Anzal, consigned by W. L. Harkrider, Big Spring, and bought for $1,000 by N. H. Reed & Sons, Sterling City; OHR Husker Rupert 9, consigned by Odom Hereford Ranch, Snyder, and bought for $1,215 by Frank Jordan, Mason; Noble Lampighter 9, consigned by Leland Wallace, Big Spring, and bought by M. M. Edwards, Abilene for $1,100.

The pens of three bulls, although the average of $607 was only a hair ($2) under last year's

AVERAGE SALE PRICE
The 46 bulls brought $27,510, which was an average of $600, slightly under the $607 average last year. Single bulls this year averaged $641, slightly over last year's however, only averaged $420 this year as compared with $460 last year.

Auctioneer Walter Britten kept the sale moving at a fast tempo, putting the 51 head through the ring in two hours and 45 minutes. Frank Jordan, Mason, was the biggest buyer of the day, bidding in seven bulls for a total of $3,465. (See AUCTION Page 8-A, Col. 8)

Suicide Is Ruled In Farmer's Death

COLORADO CITY—Suicide was ruled in the knife death on Thursday of James W. Padgett, 52, Mitchell County farmer. Justice of the Peace S. H. Hart Jr., held that Padgett came to his death of knife wounds, self-inflicted.

Body of the victim was found

Boy's Body Is Found In River

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—The body of James Rukstalis, 9, was found floating in the Providence River Friday only six hours after his devoted 49-year-old father's funeral.

A medical examiner ruled the boy drowned when he slipped down a steep embankment while playing near the river.

Although accidental drowning was listed as the cause of death, Jimmy's family believes the bereaved child committed suicide in grief over his father's death.

When the father, Stephen, died Tuesday, Jimmy, wiping away tears, told his sister Stephanie, 10, he was going to "jump in the river."

Red Payola?

MOSCOW (AP)—Youths coming to the Soviet Union from other lands next year will pay half fares on Soviet railroads, the Soviet Youth Committee announced in the newspaper Evening Moscow. The group added that other concessions will be made for young people.

by members of his family who had launched a search for him. He was in a field on his farm. His throat had been slashed and a butcher knife was near the fingers of one hand.

District Attorney Eldon Mahon said that when the body was examined, another knife wound had been found near the base of Padgett's ribs. He apparently stabbed himself. Mahon said, and then slashed his throat.

Funeral services for Padgett were conducted Saturday afternoon.

Shopping Trip Ends In Death

HILLSBORO, Tex. (AP)—Three members of a farm family en route here to do Christmas shopping died in a head-on collision of two cars Saturday night.

The crash killed Paul Burns, 50; his wife Lera, 45; and their daughter Linda Kay, 12. Their home was in the Woodbury community near here.

Jerry Paul Burns, 17, the only other member of the family, was brought to a hospital with a broken leg, internal injuries and a concussion.

Doctors said Jimmy Ray Taylor, 25, of Bynum, driver of the other car, appeared to have escaped with cuts and bruises.

The collision occurred a mile west of Hillsboro near the Hackberry Creek bridge.

PRIVATE SESSION

Ike And Nehru Spend Three Hours Discussing Problems

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Nehru held private talks Saturday night on a range of pressing world problems.

More personal discussions between the two will follow Sunday.

Saturday night's meeting came after a dinner Eisenhower gave for Nehru at the U.S. ambassador's residence. There was no official announcement on the ground covered, but reliable informants said the talks centered on issues ranging from India's border troubles with Red China to world disarmament.

After the meeting Eisenhower returned to his suite in the Indian presidential house for the night.

The stage for their latest meeting on this fourth day of Eisenhower's visit to India was set by a glowing tribute from Nehru to Eisenhower's "pilgrimage in quest of peace."

THREE HOURS TALK

A U. S. official said the three hours of discussions Eisenhower and the leader of the world's most populous democracy have had previously were "exceedingly cordial." He declared U.S.-Indian relations at the moment were at the highest peak since India became independent.

M. C. Chagla, Indian ambassador to Washington, said Eisenhower's visit to India will open "a new chapter in world history."

One major result of the Eisenhower-Nehru meetings so far seems to be an easing of tension between Pakistan and India—long at loggerheads over boundaries, water rights, and the princely State of Kashmir claimed by both countries.

The Indians are reported to have been assured that U. S. military aid to Pakistan is granted as an ally in the anti-Communist CENTO pact and not a menace to India.

This seemed implicit in Nehru's repeated statements that there are no problems between India and the United States.

A communique the two will issue before Eisenhower's departure is expected to dwell on the principle of negotiation rather than force to settle disputes. It also is expected to declare that disarmament is the only means of warding off the annihilation of humanity.

The unprecedented outpouring of affection for Eisenhower from the masses the past three days was matched by 8,000 of New Delhi's elite Saturday afternoon. They nearly mobbed the U. S. President at a garden party given in his honor at the magnificent Moghul Gardens by President Rajendra Prasad.

About 100 Indian security men and U. S. Secret Service agents, shielding Eisenhower, almost had to fight their way through the eager crowd pressing around the famous visitor. The agents locked hands in a human chain circling the President as he strode smiling about the six acres of gardens before taking a seat near Prasad on a wicker sofa.

DINNER FOR NEHRU

Eisenhower gave a dinner Saturday night honoring Nehru at the U. S. ambassador's residence. Then they met for private talks. Eisenhower and Nehru were reportedly reported to be concentrating their talk on these five major issues: prospects of an East-West summit conference, disarmament, Communist-Chinese threats to India, Indian-Pakistan relations, and India's food and economic development problems.

The two leaders in final Sunday talks also will review how much India may expect in the way of U. S. economic aid for 1960.

The United States already has provided two billion dollars worth of food, raw materials, and technical assistance to India since 1951.

Nehru, who previously had lauded Eisenhower as "a messenger of peace," paid his latest tribute to the President in an impromptu news conference at press headquarters set up by the Indian government for the duration of the Eisenhower visit.

While his son John and daughter-in-law Barbara rode a highly trained and magnificently decked out elephant in the presidential palace grounds, Eisenhower remained inside the palace catching up on a backlog of White House business and snatching what rest he could.

Eisenhower's doctor Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, said the President is bearing up amazingly well under the strain of the rigorous round of events. At the garden party Eisenhower looked vigorous and happy. He was wearing the famous Eisenhower grin.

SECOND FAILURE

Huge Titan Rocket Blows Self To Bits

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A Titan, America's biggest military rocket, exploded into a roaring inferno Saturday as it lifted off on its most critical test flight.

The 96-foot intercontinental-range giant barely struggled from its launch pad when it was ripped by tons of burning fuel. The eruption sent an orange ball of fire soaring hundreds of feet into the air.

A cloud of black smoke capped the spectacular scene. When the wind blew the smoke away, the Titan service tower was a fire-blackened mass. None of the 60 members of the launch crew, in a blockhouse 100 yards away, was hurt.

The blowup was almost identical to the last Titan launch on Aug. 14. That missile also rose a few feet, then was consumed in a holocaust.

The August explosion was blamed on a faulty release mechanism. There was no indication of what caused the latest blowup.

Both the ill-fated launches were aimed at igniting the Titan's huge second stage for the first time. If successful, it would have been the most powerful rocket engine ever fired in flight by the United States.

The 41-foot second stage was set to ignite after the 57-foot first stage had reached an altitude of about 27 miles. If all had gone right, the 80,000-pound thrust of the upper engine would have boosted a dummy warhead to an ocean target 2,000 miles down the Atlantic missile range.

Only 6 Killed So Far In Deer Hunting Season

AUSTIN (AP)—This has been a safer hunting season so far in Texas.

Six persons have died from gun accidents during the season, says Cecil Reid, executive secretary of Sportsman's Clubs of Texas.

"We don't consider there is a single valid reason for a single hunter being killed," he said. The SCOT sponsors gun safety programs. Reid said that increasing care is necessary because of the increasing number of hunters.

They parachuted from an Air Force C-46 transport for the nuptials. The best man and 12 others taking part in the marriage ceremony also parachuted.

They have obtained 1,051 signatures on petitions, urging Sen. Lyndon Johnson to make himself available for the Democratic nomination for the presidency.

This is nearly two-thirds of the county's voting strength, said Ben Geeslin of Brady, president of the club.

Christmas Kettles Seeking Yule Fuel

The Downtown Lions Club manned the Salvation Army kettles Saturday in an effort to bring the pots to a boil for Christmas cheer.

Don Young headed up the team of 18 men who gave a boost to the collections of funds desperately needed to finance baskets for needy families.

In the meantime, Capt. James Jay, in charge of the work here, urged those wishing to apply for baskets to do so not later than Tuesday. He asked others who may know of families in need to notify him by that date in order that he will have time to make personal investigations to determine the degree of need. Organizations and church groups wishing to adopt families may obtain names from him, or if they adopt a family on their own they are asked to let the Salvation Army know so that there will not be duplication.

George Zachariah is to be chairman for the American Business Club group which mans the kettles on Thursday, and Dr. P. D. O'Brien will be chairman of the Rotary group on Friday. The Jaycees will announce their chairman and their day at their meeting on Monday. The Evening Lions Club also is to announce its date later.

Judge Rules State Failed Prove Charge

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—Uranium promoter John Milton Addison won acquittal on a theft charge Saturday.

The husky, talkative ex-boxer quickly claimed a jury verdict of innocent, returned on instruction from Dist. Judge John Olson, vindicated his widespread borrowing to finance operations in 24 states.

Addison, 31, and his supporters engaged in an orderly round of backslapping at the decision, delivered at the end of a 12-day trial.

Dist. Atty. Charles Lieck Jr. said the state had not decided whether to seek early trial of Addison on two companion indictments. These, like the indictment on which he was tried, charge securities law violations and conspiracy in addition to theft.

$1,000,000 LOAN

Prosecutors claim Addison obtained more than one million dollars from about 500 lenders, whom he told a Benson upgrader would convert low-grade uranium ore claims into profitable enterprises. Addison says he received the money simply as loans and promised nothing more than 10 per cent interest.

Jury foreman E. H. Rensmeyer told the court he and his colleagues were dissatisfied at the verdict.

"The consensus of the jury was that the state should have proceeded with the prosecution, but we were under instructions from the judge," Rensmeyer said.

Defense lawyers moved for the instructed verdict on the ground that the complaining witness sent Addison an unsolicited $1,250 before ever meeting the uranium promoter. Judge Olson granted the motion after the state conceded it found no legal basis for contesting it.

Prosecutors previously dropped counts accusing Addison of violating securities laws and conspiring with associates to commit such violations.

In reply to the jury foreman's complaint, Judge Olson explained at length the law and his reasoning on an instructed verdict.

"It would have been far easier for me to allow this case to go to the jury and then grant a motion for a new trial or let the Court of Criminal Appeals decide on a motion for reversible error," the jurist said.

"However, a trial judge has the duty to order an instructed verdict in certain instances. To have done anything else would have been a coward's way out."

"VICTORY CELEBRATION"

Addison called a victory celebration of his backers at a downtown hotel Saturday night, styling it "a get-together of extraordinary friends." He said he would leave by private plane afterward en route to Flagstaff, Ariz. His ore upgrader is set up at mine 30 miles north of Flagstaff.

"I am very thankful for the opportunity of going through our court system," Addison said after hearing the jury's verdict, "and I am thankful also for a fair trial and a fair judge."

"There never was any question in our minds about the outcome. We always had the facts and right on our side. All we needed was a trial to prove it."

Many of his 200-odd supporters here for the trial were in the courtroom. They wore red ribbons with the message "I am a lender to John Milton Addison" or white ribbons with the legend "I am a satisfied lender to John Milton Addison."

HOUSTON (AP)—Lester Correll, 45, of Barrett's Settlement, was charged with murder Saturday in the stabbing of his son-in-law, L. L. Lott, 23. Investigators said Lott was stabbed with a hunting knife Friday during an argument between the two Negroes.

FOLK FORGETFUL

What Do You Do With Keys To Motel And Hotel Rooms?

People are just naturally forgetful.

Bill Cooke, who lives on Route 1, gets from 6 to 100 reminders of this every week. He's getting quite a few daily now that the holiday rush is in full progress.

Bill is general delivery clerk at the post office here. He sees an instance of forgetfulness when people write to a general delivery address and forget to include a return address on the envelope.

He sees more instances of it when he receives hotel and motel keys. Most keys used by motels and hotels now have a label on them to "drop in any mail box" if the key is accidentally carried away.

PART OF HIS JOB

Handling these keys are part of Bill's job. He gets from six to a dozen almost every day. A convention or meeting will result in 100 or more keys returning from all sections of the country.

Hotels and motels pay the postal service—six cents each—for handling their keys. The key and plastic tag costs the hotel or motel from one to two dollars. They're happy to get them back for only six cents.

Bill said he used to wonder why so many keys would appear at certain times and then only a few for several days or a month. He looked into the reason.

100 IN ONE WEEK

In one instance there were over 100 keys returned in one week. Bill checked with the hotel and found there had been a convention in town several days before the keys started showing up in the mail.

After 15 years in the post office Bill is now an old hand—and something of an expert—on why people forget things. Said he even carried off a key himself once and returned it by mail.

Most patrons of hotels and motels don't turn in their keys at the office, especially if they intend to be in and out of their rooms very much. They stick them in a pocket or purse. Sometimes the key is found in another pair of pants after the visitor gets home.

Or when the visiting woman changes her purse to go along with her evening attire she leaves the key in the old one. Most often it is a case of changing convention or business clothes to more comfortable ones for travel.

And no particular group has a monopoly on forgetfulness, either. Bill said he has received batches of keys after veterans conventions, professional association conferences, and women's club activities.

In fact, Bill said, two instances he particularly recalls show that forgetfulness is a common trait. One was after a meeting of top-notch executive secretaries. They are the women who, supposedly, keep track of everything which goes on in the complicated realm of big business.

Several of these secretaries forgot to leave their keys when they returned home.

Another instance came after a religious meeting which attracted delegates from all over the state and several areas outside the state.

Cooke said so many keys returned here after that one that he wondered how the hotels and motels were able to rent any of their rooms for a few days.

F. R. Weeg, 1306 Scurry, for 42 years an employee of the Texas & Pacific Railroad, is in the St. Paul Hospital in Dallas suffering from either a blood clot or a brain tumor.

Surgery for Mr. Weeg is to be attempted as soon as specialists have determined their diagnosis. Relatives here said that Mr. Weeg was injured about four weeks ago in a car accident and that it is possible the blood clot, if that is his trouble, originated from this mishap.

He is an engineer with the T&P and is said to be the worker with the longest tenure of employment with the road. He began his career as a youth as call boy for the line.

Do-It-Yourself Gimmicks To Speed Up 1960 Nose Count

WASHINGTON (AP)—A couple of do-it-yourself gimmicks to be used in next year's census will save the government considerable time.

The Census Bureau made public Saturday one of two do-it-yourself—a four-page item that will be mailed to the nation's 55 million households late in March.

Householders will be asked to fill out this form before census takers make personal visits starting April 1. The census takers, officially called the enumerators, then will merely copy down the information instead of asking questions that might be difficult to answer on the spur of the moment.

The bureau tested this advance form last February in two North Carolina counties. It said use of the form had cut the average visit of the census taker to 7 minutes from about 15 minutes and produced more accurate information.

Basic questions on the advance form include: names of all residents of the household; address; sex, color or race; date of birth; marital status; number of rooms in the household; whether the dwelling is owned or rented, and whether it has running water, plumbing and cooking facilities.

In addition, census takers will leave at every fourth household a somewhat longer form asking more detailed questions about the dwelling and its residents.

Householders will be asked to fill this out themselves and mail it promptly to the local census office. In past head counts, census takers took about 20 minutes to get answers to this second set of questions. This time they will have only to copy down the answers after the forms are received by mail.

The last big census was in 1950.

Stamps In The News

By SYD KRONISH

A Christmas scene of renown appears on the latest stamp issued by Australia.

Depicted on the new 5-pence purple stamp are the Three Wise Men being guided by the Christmas Star to the town of Bethlehem seen in the distance. The design was the combined work of the artists and engravers of the Note Printing Branch, Commonwealth Bank of Australia.

U. S. Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield announces that the new 10-cent International Air Mail Stamp, used to prepay air mail postage to Central and South America and the West Indies, will be released June 10 at Miami, Fla.

This new stamp will be similar to the 15 and 25-cent denominations. The illustrative panel at the left side of the stamp will feature a drawing of the Liberty Bell. The inscription, "Let Freedom Ring," appears directly below. A silhouette of a jet airplane is superimposed over the "U" of "U. S."

Collectors desiring first day cancellations of the 10-center may send their addressed envelopes together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed to the Postmaster, Miami 31, Fla. The outside envelope should be endorsed "First Day Covers 10-Cent Air Mail Stamp."

This is one of the few times the Post Office Department has made such details available on a new issue as far in advance as seven months.

Israel's forthcoming provisional issue will contain 10 stamps, according to the Israel Philatelic Agency in America. As previously announced, the denominations will be in the new currency—agorots.

Of special interest to collectors is the news that, beginning with this issue, plate numbering will begin with Plate No. 1. The number will be enclosed in a hexagonal frame. The familiar running stag is being retained as part of the plate number block.

The Republic of Korea has issued a two-value set commemorating the centenary of the Red Cross and the 10th anniversary of the Korean Red Cross. The 40-hwan red and green shows the emblem of the Red Cross and the Korean peninsula. The 55-hwan orchid depicts the Red Cross emblem on a globe.

Wall Street Rally Moves To 3rd Week

By ED MORSE

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market, based on the popular averages, stretched its rally into the third week despite a few stumbling blocks in the past week.

In fact, there was some argument among market technicians as to whether the market as a whole was really rising, regardless of what the averages said.

Of the 1,443 issues trading during the past five sessions on the New York Stock Exchange, losers outnumbered gainers by 677 to 620 and new highs for the year were overbalanced by new lows to the tune of 95 to 82.

The Dow Jones averages of 30 industrials, however, had a solid gain of 6.50 for the week, putting the level at 670.50.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up $1.90 to $227.70.

At the close of a big rally Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrials stood at 675.39 and the AP 60-stock average at $229.00. It looked as if these barometers were about to challenge their historic highs of 678.10 and $235.80, respectively, achieved last Aug. 3.

R. E. (Dick) Collier is one of the city's newest developers of new homes. He began building a year ago and has 40 homes constructed and sold in College Park Estates. He recently opened his own lumber company. His new sign on Baylor St. stands amidst 440 lots which he has under option for future building. Collier is a member of the citizens committee drafting a subdivision ordinance for control of future city development.

IMPROPER PACKING

Why Cookie Crumbled Is Easy To Understand

Ever wonder why that nice fresh-baked batch of cookies you mailed for Christmas were a mess of crumbs when they arrived?

Or maybe several days after Christmas you'll get a letter saying "the presents got here in time but Junior's toy won't work because something was broken."

Contrary to popular opinion, postal workers don't jump up and down on every nice looking package. Things get broken because they aren't packaged properly.

Postmaster E. C. Boatler said today that proper packaging of gifts is as important as getting the gift itself, if you intend it to be delivered by mail.

Boatler traced a theoretical package to show how some things get broken. This theoretical package was mailed in Big Spring to a relative in a small town in Maine.

ROUNDABOUT JOURNEY
The package was received here and was worked into mail sacks. Since the local post office had no mail sacks going directly to Maine, the package was deposited in a sack going to the terminal at El Paso.

El Paso terminal receives these sacks from all over this section of the state. They handled the Big Spring package and it went into another sack. This time it headed for Chicago.

Postal workers at Chicago at this time of year are receiving thousands of sacks of mail from terminals all over the country. They re-work each sack and the package from here got handled again.

In this particular case the package got into a mail sack going to Portland, Maine. It arrived there and was worked again into a state mail sack to get to the town of destination.

The final working came when the Maine post office sorted it for home delivery.

There are a number of routes which any given parcel or letter might take, Boatler said. Mail to the southeast section of the country can be sent to New Orleans, St. Louis, or other terminal points in that area.

Mail to the northwest goes either to a terminal at San Francisco or Seattle or other designated points.

Sometimes packages and letters are dealt with by railroad mailmen while en route between two terminal points if the train makes deliveries of mail along the route. Most of these, however, are state mail sacks already handled at a terminal point.

MANY FACTORS
Which sack a package gets in, depends a lot on the volume of mail, the schedules of dispatching mail, and the destination of the package. Postal workers now move mail as fast as they can. Even a few minutes delay will cause a given letter or package to miss a mail sack and have to be

Rocky On Junket To Middle West

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller flew into Indiana today to kick off a seven-state trip widely regarded as a scouting tour for a possible shot at the 1960 Republican presidential nomination.

His chartered plane was met at the airport by Sen. Homer E. Capehart (R-Ind.) and a group of Hoosier GOP leaders.

Rockefeller will address a $25-a-plate Republican fund-raising dinner tonight on the University of Notre Dame campus.

Young Developer Busy Constructing New Homes

By V. GLENN COOTES

A growing city, struggling at the bonds of its city limits, found only two directions to move.

Hemmed in on the west by a military base and on the north by the railroad right of way, Big Spring and its developers looked to the east and the south for growing room after the war.

Immediate growth began in the high school area and moved east. Some of the terrain was a stubborn foe, but a modern trend made this area desirable for homesites.

In the early 1950's, a young fellow accepted a position with the City of Big Spring as design engineer. Under the tutelage of City Engineer C. N. Bellamy, he watched the city grow and took part in the development.

His designs put new water and sewer pipe in the ground and covered dirt streets with a layers of cement. After four years of experience, he went into the construction business, working for Lloyd Curley. Then, about a year ago, he hung out his own shingle as R. E. Collier, Inc.

PROFESSIONAL ENGINEER
Well qualified for his start in business, Dick Collier is a registered professional engineer and a licensed public land surveyor. He is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the National Home Builders Assn., and the Texas Home Builders Assn.

Collier is one of the members of the citizens committee working on a subdivision ordinance for the city. He has the advantage of having worked from both sides of the problem.

Collier set up shop in the east part of the city in one of the best ter subdivision areas. In his first year as a developer he has built 40 houses on Drexel St. of College Park Estates.

"I plan to build about 40 or 50 houses a year," he said. He holds options from John Little, who owns land in this area, for 440 more lots in this subdivision.

Going into the new year, Collier will finish building on lots on Drexel and then begin on Duke. "Most of these sites are approximately 61 by 120 feet," he explained.

However, there are other lots in the subdivision that go as large as 100 by 135 feet.

Collier points out that his houses are 100 per cent brick and have all ceramic tile baths. They are three bedroom and have central heat. Some have one and others 1½ baths. Single and double garages are available.

POPULAR PRICES

Collier said his houses are priced between $12,500 and $15,000. The sales office is on Baylor, between Kentucky Way and Drexel, northeast of Howard County Junior College.

"Ernestine Smith," Collier said, "is my right arm. She shows the new homes when they are ready for sale and maintains the sales office."

Explaining the future of the area, Collier pointed to the elementary school site. The planned

PROGRAM LAUNCHED

Paved Streets Here
Are In Short Supply

About half of all Big Spring streets are unpaved.

Not including last week's annexations, the city has 113 miles of streets. Of these, only 62 miles are paved.

Bruce Dunn, director of public works, said this is a low percentage and that most cities have a much larger percentage of paving.

"We are behind, but the current paving program will help us in catching up," he said.

PROGRAM APPROVED

The Big Spring City Commission last Tuesday approved an assessment paving program that will cover a total of 66 blocks. Benson, Thompson and Nash were given the green light to prepare the final plans for the program.

Louis Jean Thompson, who has worked with the commission and city officials on paving programs, has suggested that the city consider a larger paving program.

"The larger the program, the lower the unit cost will be," he said. Estimates prepared by Thompson indicate the 66-block program will cost a total of about $557,000.

The city will pick up the tab for $155,000 and the property owners will pay the remaining $402,000 on a front foot basis.

Thompson emphasized that these cost figures are only approximate and the actual figures may be a little more or a little less.

WANTS MORE BLOCKS

He recommended the city include in the program as many streets as it can afford. "If possible, the program minimum should be 150 to 200 blocks." His preliminary plans included specifications for other streets, which were not added to the program.

Basically, the commission approved a program which includes only those streets where property owners have indicated an interest in participation. Only 15 blocks of the total have not been petitioned, and these property owners will be asked to sign up.

The commission followed the recommendations of Thompson in this respect. "Assessment paving is a privilege," he said. The commission should make it available primarily to those residents who want it.

Dunn listed three advantages of a paving program. "First," he said, "the city pays 20 to 25 percent of the cost." This makes paving available to the individual at a cheaper price.

"Second, due to the quantity of work done on one contract, the cost is less."

"Third, paving is usually done only on a program such as this. It may be several years before a similar program is planned again."

Dunn pointed out that it is not too late for property owners to participate in the program. Big Springers who would like to be included in the program can still be signed on.

GRANDSON WRITES

South Gave Up Too
Soon, Old Vet Says

By MALVIN MAGERS

Great-grandson of Walter Williams
Written for The Associated Press

"The South gave up just five minutes too early. The Yankees were getting ready to stack rifles and we beat them to it."

This is a statement made to me by Walter Williams, 117-year-old Confederate.

He is my great-grandfather. I am naturally proud of him.

Some of the things he said to me are worth sharing. This is a personal glimpse of this last surviving veteran of the Civil War.

He was a forage master, equivalent to the present day Army quartermaster. His job was that of provision supply, mostly hunting for food.

His concern over provisions was long evident, even after 95 years of farming, cattle buying and oil drilling.

Returning one time to his farm near Franklin, Tex., from a visit to Houston, he told me, "I declare, I don't know how they all eat. Why don't half the town starve to death. Thick as bees."

Ten years ago was his last time to spend the day at his favorite pastime, fox hunting.

His sons put him on a horse and off the country they rode. Walt had more fun fox hunting at 108 than at anything I have ever seen him do in the past 15 years.

Later a man drove to the farm home and wanted my great-grandfather to go hunting. The family wouldn't allow it.

"Even with this one eye I could still bring down a fox," he said.

About this time, after a rigorous physical checkup which proved him in remarkable physical condition, he took his first airplane ride. His heart was as strong at 110 as that of most people at 30.

Three years ago, he asked about one of his relatives, Uncle Bill James. He was told that Uncle Bill was 85.

"Why didn't someone let me know when he celebrated his birthday? I would have liked to go to his party,"

In San Angelo

Rupert P. Ricker is in San Angelo today to attend the 31st anniversary meeting of the Men's Bible Class, an inter-denominational downtown Sunday morning fellowship.

One of its organizers, he served many years as a teacher of the class. Each year on the anniversary date he tries to be back with the group.

Safety Sunday
Plan Is Urged

"Safety Sunday" was being encouraged by James Eubanks, executive secretary of the Citizens Traffic Commission, last week.

He said he was asking all Big Spring ministers to mention today as the signal for the opening of the holiday traffic safety campaign.

Gov. Price Daniel designated today for the special observance and appealed to all Texas ministers to encourage moral responsibility of motorists from the pulpit.

Eubanks echoed the words of the governor by requesting that drivers realize that traffic safety is a spiritual concern.

The governor called on drivers to realize that negligence at the wheel of an automobile is a transgression of God's own command, "Thou shalt not kill."

Daniel recalled that Texans put forth the effort last year to cut down traffic deaths during the holidays. From a prediction of 95 deaths, there were actually only 63 reported.

"If Texans can do this once, they can do it again," the governor said.

Ship From Fire

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP)—A new 4,900-ton refrigerator ship being built for the Soviet Union on a Danish island off Copenhagen was damaged extensively by fire today.

The fire broke out before dawn in the compressor room. Hundreds of firemen and 24 fire engines had to fight the flames for several hours. Government agents were called in to investigate.

New Method Join
Severed Vessels

Development of a stapling device that enables the surgeon to join blood vessels together rapidly with tiny staples of stainless steel has been announced by the Veterans Administration at its annual Medical Research Conference in Cincinnati, Ohio.

The research on the stapling device was supported in part by the American Heart Assn.

Dr. Timothy Takaro, chief of the Cardiovascular Section at the Oteen, N. C., Veterans Administration Hospital, and chief investigator in the project, said the instrument consists of but eight parts, in contrast to a much more complicated and bulky Soviet vascular stapling device, which is composed of 26 or more parts.

Dr. Takaro said the stapling device developed at the Oteen VA Hospital has been tested successfully in animals more than a dozen times, but has not yet been used for humans.

Car Dwellers
Given Relief

DETROIT, Mich. (AP)—The Grosse Pointe Crisis Club has come to the aid of a young mother and her two daughters who have been living in an automobile.

The plight of Delores Louise Zamojcin, 30, was disclosed Thursday night when she was arrested in suburban Grosse Pointe Shores for speeding.

Police forgot about ticketing her for speeding after she explained, "the car heater doesn't work well when driving slow. We were headed for Belle Isle to park and sleep overnight, and we wanted it warm."

Police gave Mrs. Zamojcin and her daughters, Adele, 7, and Carmen, 6, temporary shelter. For the last five months they had been living in the car most of the time.

Then Friday the Grosse Pointe Crisis Club went into action. It is made up of business and professional men organized to meet just such emergencies.

Overdue rent that caused Mrs. Zamojcin's eviction was paid. So was the $25 due a boarding home which held the children's winter clothing. Groceries were provided.

Alienation Suit
Cause Of Suicide

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—A 44-year-old engineering executive denied alienation of affections charges in a suicide note addressed to his wife and punctuated with a fatal pistol shot.

John E. Bing's wife, Jenny, found his body early Friday in the back yard of their fashionable home. A .45-caliber pistol and the note were nearby.

Only the day before he had been served with a $300,000 alienation suit filed by the husband of his pretty secretary, Peggy Gray, 27, mother of two children.

The husband, Harold E. Gray, 29, an engineering student at Georgia Tech, also is employed by an engineering company of which Bing was a junior executive.

Gray charged that the older man by deceitful and fraudulent blandishments had changed Mrs. Gray from an affectionate wife to a woman "with lustful desires for the defendant."

The police did not disclose the text of the suicide note, saying only that it was addressed to Mrs. Bing and denied the alienation charges. They said the death definitely was suicide.

Jets May Open New Role For Pipelines

By MAX B. SKELTON
HOUSTON (AP)—Jet aircraft are affecting future planning within the oil pipeline industry. The jets have such heavy appetites for petroleum they create supply and transportation problems. The answer seems to be an increasing number of pipelines to airports.

One turbojet can consume 2,400 gallons of fuel an hour. This is five times the appetite of most modern conventional aircraft.

Some jet airports already are being serviced by pipeline. One oil executive believes such lines will be a major factor in the pipeline industry's future growth.

"It appears these markets and the jet age which fostered them are only in early stages of development," said W. W. Gibson, vice president of Humble Pipe Line Co.

Current crude oil pipe line capacity appears to be adequate for some years to come but Spangler is confident new or proposed applications of products to pipelines assure the industry's continued rapid growth. Liquefied gases will dominate such growth.

"But there are areas in which pipelines may assume new roles in the coming decade," he said.

Spangler said many persons in the transportation industry are watching with interest these recent or proposed applications for products pipelines.

The movement of pulverized coal by pipeline from Cadiz to Cleveland, Ohio.

The transporting of gilsonite from Bonanza, Utah, to Grand Junction, Colo.

The use of a line, jacketed by another line containing hot water, to move molten sulphur from offshore Gulf of Mexico deposits to the Louisiana coast.

"Also considered eligible for transportation by pipeline are grain, wood chips, salt and several other products," he said.

An estimated 20 per cent of all refined products currently are being moved through pipelines. Some 924 million barrels were transported in this manner last year, a 200 per cent increase in 10 years.

Interstate oil pipeline companies operate about 75 per cent of the nation's trunk and gathering capacity. Last year these 84 companies had 143,000 miles of line in 43 states and Washington, D.C. Last year's volume of crude and products handled exceeded 3 billion 800 million barrels.

Volume handled increased 72 per cent in 10 years. The total number miles of line, however, increased only 16 per cent in that the emphasis was on larger diameter lines.

Spangler said the oil industry for many years thought and planned in terms of a 5 per cent annual increase in demand for domestic petroleum.

"In the coming years, the industry is likely to increase at a rate of only 3 per cent a year. This slower growth in demand indicates the capacity of crude oil lines in existence is generally adequate for the country's needs the next 10 years."

But he said there has been an increasing acceptance of liquefied petroleum gases on farms and in industry.

"And pipelines have proved to be an efficient and economical means of transportation for this product," he said.

"Another growth factor will be the transportation of petrochemicals, such as ethylene, propylene and benzene. In the next five years demand for petrochemicals is expected to increase at a rate approximately double that of total petroleum products. It is believed pipelines will participate in this advance."

THREE COUNTIES

Working Rig Count Slides For Second Week In A Row

The working rotary rig count in the Permian Basin at week's end showed a decline for the second straight week.

The tally, as reported by the Reed Roller Bit Co., was 345, two off the 347 pace set last week.

The high mark since last August was 355 reported two weeks ago. Then the count began the current slide.

The decrease was reflected in the immediate eight county area. Thirty-seven working rigs were counted as compared with 39 last week.

Only Martin County had an increase in this area, having four against last week's three.

Refinery Design May Be Affected By Cost Cutting

NEW YORK — Oil refiners are seeking ways to cut costs of construction and operation in order to offset the rising prices of new equipment and the increasing difficulty of obtaining capital for new ventures, a survey conducted by "Petroleum Week" indicates.

The importance of cost reduction is so great today that many refiners feel the time has come to re-evaluate the philosophy which has governed the design of refineries.

To help keep costs down, refineries now are designed scientifically. As a result, smaller equipment often yields capacities equal to, or greater than, yesterday's large designs.

Also, because of greater knowledge of their product, refiners are warning that safety measures need be much less stringent—and therefore less costly.

Oil Scouts Set Meeting In Dallas

Directors of the International Oil Scouts Association will meet Jan. 16 in the Adolphus Hotel, Dallas, W. J. Garrison, president, has announced.

The association was formerly known as the National Oil Scouts and Landmen's Association. Its name change, effective Jan. 1, 1960, recognizes the Canadian members. Garrison, president of the association, is William Allen, Imperial Oil Ltd., Calgary, Canada.

Rig Tally Falls Throughout Nation

Rotary rigs across the nation hit unemployment trends during the week, falling from 2,213 workers to 2,167.

The fall leaves the total over 100 rigs less than the 2,274 reported a year ago, but about 50 more than 2,111 on the survey last month.

The weekly working rig count is announced by the Hughes Tool Co.

Texas fell from 800 reported last week to 782. The current figure is about 30 more than last month's tally of 755 but almost 100 less than was reported a year ago.

West Central Texas counted 253 to lead all other regions of the state, but it was still less than last week's count of 255. A year ago this section had 308 working rigs and a month ago the total stood at 216.

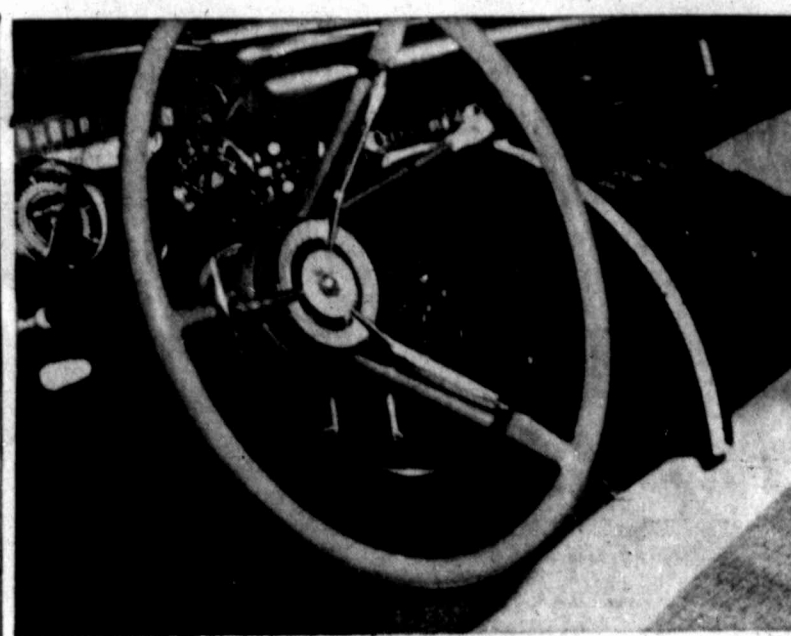

Canadian prospects held up, gaining five more operations for a total of 190. Last week, this figure was 194 and a month ago it was 166.

In New Mexico, the survey reported a steady employment figure with 128 reported this week and last week.

Project Staked In Clear Fork

Bob Dean Ltd. staked a new Turner-Gregory (Clear Fork) project Saturday in Mitchell County.

It is No. 1 Gospel Trumpet and will be five miles northwest of Westbrook and 2,310 from south and east lines of section 19, block 28, township 1-north, T&P survey. It will test the section at 3,500 feet.

Cosden's Test Car

Special Car Tests Four Cosden Gasolines On Road

A new test car, outfitted with special equipment, is now on the road testing and evaluating Cosden Petroleum Corp. gasolines under various operating conditions.

The new V-8 with automatic transmission, was outfitted for this testing program by Ethyl Corporation's Research and Engineering Laboratories.

It is equipped with a tachometer, which indicates engine revolutions per minute, and a vacuum gauge, which gauges manifold vacuum or engine load. A unique device called the distributor spark advance control allows the operator to advance or retard the ignition timing.

By advancing the spark, the operator creates a tendency for the fuel to "knock." This "knock" factor, combined with information recorded from the other special devices, permits the operator to evaluate the octane rating and performance of Cosden gasolines under various temperatures and altitudes, at varying speeds, and the effect of additional equipment such as heater and air conditioner.

By use of four auxiliary tanks the operator can test four different fuels in a matter of minutes, under actual road conditions.

Offset Due New Perfs

Big Spring Exploration No. 1 French, diagonal offset to the Maricell (San Andres) discovery in Hockley County, acidized Saturday from 4,630-40 after having swabbed 14 barrels per hour from the 4,714-30 interval. Another perforation and acid treatment from 4,657-77 was due.

In Dimmitt County, Big Spring Exploration No. 1 Erdley, seeking the Olmos sand pay, was coring Saturday at 2,517 feet.

Big Spring Exploration No. 1 Combs, a test taken over from Kay Kimbell in the South Yellow-house field, swabbed after squeezing with 75 sacks at 4,010 feet. Operator was swabbing off the water head.

A rig had been moved in on Big Spring Exploration No. 1 George M. Slaughter in Cochran County. This venture has been shuttin for the past two weeks after cementing surface string at 460.

228 Completions Logged During Week

AUSTIN (AP)—The Railroad Commission reported 228 oil well completions for the week, making a total of 11,640 for the year, compared to 11,688 in 1958.

There were 33 gas well completions and 128 dry holes. There were 15 oil wildcats and one gas wildcat completed and 72 dusters.

A total of 199 gas wells were plugged, including 12 gas and 59 oil.

Curtis Dall Named D&E Board Member

Curtis B. Dall, Philadelphia, has been named to the board of directors of the Big Spring Exploration Company.

"I am delighted to be associated with a group of fellows like these," Dall said here Saturday. "I hope that I can be of some help to them."

Dall, for many years an investment banker and broker, has been interested in oil and gas investments since World War II. He was a partner in Fenner & Beese and was organizer and first president of Tennessee Gas Company, the concern which pioneered in the collection of gas in Southwest fields and delivering it to the Appalachian markets.

He yielded control to enter the Air Force and became a colonel before his separation from service. Afterwards, he settled in San Antonio and began to trade in oil and gas interests, a field in which he has continued after returning to Philadelphia.

John R. Hatch, president of Big Spring Exploration, said that Dall would be here for several days touring properties of the company.

Two Cosden Tests Ready To Final

Cosden Petroleum Corp. had two projects pumping for completion tests Saturday morning.

Col-Tex No. 33-29 Abrams, in Mitchell County, and Cosden No. 9-B O'Daniel, in Howard County, were both reported on the pump.

Cosden No. 7-B O'Daniel, Howard County, is making hole in lime at 2,609 feet. Col-Tex No. 41-30 Abrams, Mitchell County, is digging at 1,500 feet.

In Coke County, Cosden's No. 1 Millican is drilling at 6,230 feet. Near Lovington, N. M., Cosden No. 2-B University is making hole at 3,165 feet.

Texas American Oil Co. Corp., Goodwin & Stoltz, all of Midland, have staked a new explorer in Dawson County.

The project is No. 1 J. D. Hogg. Operator will test the Pennsylvania at 9,000 feet about six miles southeast of Lamesa.

Decline Is Expected In '60 Drilling

NEW YORK — The petroleum industry, feeling the effects of the steel strike and its own excess capacity, plans to cut its capital expenditures for drilling and production by four per cent next year, a reduction that means a one per cent decline in overall capital outlays, reports "Petroleum Week."

The planned total new investments by the industry for 1960 are $5,154,000,000, down from the estimated $5,220,000,000 spent during 1959. In 1961, the industry plans to spend nearly $5.1 billion for drilling and production, processing, liquid transportation equipment and marketing facilities.

Planned total capital expenditures by the oil industry for 1960 and 1961, as well as for 1959, are down slightly from the estimates made by companies last spring.

The estimated total expenditures in the current year are 2.2 per cent below what the industry indicated last spring. The planned total capital outlays for 1960 now are 3.9 per cent under earlier plans.

Other than mining, the petroleum industry is the only major one now planning a reduction in capital spending next year.

The impact of the continued world surplus of crude is reflected strongly in the reduction planned for capital outlays for drilling and production in the U. S. next year.

The total of $3,528,000,000 now scheduled to be spent in 1960 is four per cent under the $3,762,000,000 to be spent this year, and is 6.6 per cent under the 1960 plans that were made last spring.

The reduction in capital spending for drilling and production does not necessarily indicate a cut in drilling, the magazine states. Estimates indicate that about 52,000 holes totaling more than 200 million feet will be drilled in 1960, 2,000 more than expected to be completed in 1959.

Drillsite is 660 from north and 1,800 from east lines of section 20-34-50, T&P survey.

The prospect is three miles southeast of a hole that found the formation for discovery potential at 8,671 feet.

Bakke and Westwater No. 1 Browning is digging in lime below 5,647 feet. This wildcat is three miles southwest of Fluvanna and 2,310 from north and 467 from west lines of section 407-97 H&TC survey.

Champlin No. 1-A Miller is drilling at 1,165 feet. This Romac field project is 660 from north and east lines of section 46-30-J. H. Gibson survey. It is seven miles northeast of Gail.

Great Western No. 1 Allen is boring in lime at 11,642 feet. This wildcat is C SW SE of section 41-37-1n, T&P survey. It is eight miles northwest of Stanton.

Alaskan Peninsula Has Leasing Boom

WASHINGTON (AP)—A boom is under way in the leasing of Alaska public land for oil and gas development.

Oil and gas leases on only 19,000 acres were recorded with the Interior Department 10 years ago. On June 30, 1958, the figure had climbed to 19,500,000. It reached 32,100,000 June 30.

A sharp increase in the Alaska leasing was noted by the Interior Department after a July 1957 oil strike on the Kenai Peninsula. At least four wells now are producing on the peninsula. More are being drilled.

A dozen or more companies are doing the leasing. The area involved is mainly in the lower half of the main body of Alaska.

Commissioners To Study Bids On New Bulldozer

Howard County Commissioners plan to buy a new bulldozer for the road and bridge department at its meeting on Monday. Bids for the new equipment will be opened at that time.

The county considered bids for similar equipment some weeks ago but rejected all those submitted and re-advised for new offers.

The county wants to trade in an old road maintainer as a part of the deal for the new bulldozer. On Wednesday, the commissioners will consider bids on a new car for the sheriff's department.

Sea Lion Fails In Escape Effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sandy the baby sea lion is headed again for a place under the Christmas tree at the home of Robert S. Kennedy.

Sandy disappeared Friday. But he was captured and returned today after having flipped and flopped his way a mile and a half from home.

Kennedy, former chief counsel for the Senate Rackets Committee and brother of Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.), bought the 2½ foot long baby sea lion as a gift for his seven children. They range in age from three months to eight years.

But Sandy didn't like the Kennedy swimming pool and took off over a four foot fence—a day after he arrived from San Francisco.

DALLAS (AP) — Vandals destroyed Christmas decorations at two Dallas homes Friday night.

Police said a thug tore down all the Christmas decorations on the lawn of the home of Mrs. Christine Johnson. Several reindeer, a Santa Claus, a sleigh and floodlights were smashed.

T. Z. Winters reported that a lawn chair was thrown through a plate glass window while he was away from his home. The chair smashed a Christmas tree and its decorations.

COMPANY REPLIES

Anti - Arthritis Drug Price 1,410 Per Cent Over Cost

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate investigators said today the Upjohn Co. sells an anti-arthritis drug to pharmacists at a price 1,410 per cent above its bulk sale price.

But E. Gifford Upjohn, president of the Kalamazoo, Mich., drug firm, disputed the description of this as a "markup."

Upjohn said there are a great many more costs involved in selling the drug, prednisolone, in tablet form for the retail trade than there are in selling it in bulk form.

He referred to administrative, selling, advertising and distribution costs, as well as taxes, that have to be taken into account as part of the "cost of doing business."

Upjohn testified as the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee neared the windup of six days of hearings on the pricing of cortisone derivatives used in treating persons afflicted with arthritis.

The subcommittee made this the first phase of a broad-scale investigation it is undertaking into drug prices. Chairman Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) said the inquiry already has shown the need for new federal legislation.

Rand Dixon, chief committee counsel, said Upjohn in 1958 sold prednisolone in bulk form to the Schering Corp., another major drug firm, at a price of $2.37 a gram.

For an equivalent amount of the drug, he said, Upjohn charges druggists $35.80. Dixon said this was the price for two bottles of 100 tablets each of the drug.

Upjohn said he was sure his company had made more than its bare manufacturing cost on the sale to Schering. But he said that if all other costs of doing business were allocated to bulk sales, then Upjohn would have lost money—"a lot of money"—on it.

He said the company's profit for 1958 was 13.7 per cent.

The Upjohn Company was listed by the subcommittee as one of the three principal manufacturers of cortisone derivatives used in treating persons afflicted with arthritis.

Officials of the other two drug firms, Schering Corp. and Merck & Co., were heard earlier in the week.

Kefauver said Upjohn's testimony would close out the subcommittee's inquiry into the pricing of arthritis medicines. But another round of hearings, possibly dealing with the prices of antibiotics, is planned for late next month.

While Kefauver said the need for new legislation already is evident, he said it is too early to say what form it should take. Before deciding on that, he said, officials of the Food and Drug Administration and other federal agencies will be consulted.

He said, however, that he expects legislation to be offered in the coming session of Congress.

A small New Jersey drug maker, Seymour N. Blackman, told the subcommittee Friday the prescription drug industry should be treated as a public utility, with its profits and advertising expenditures regulated by the government.

Blackman, executive secretary of Premo Laboratories, Inc., South Hackensack, N. J., contended that the public is being overcharged for drugs to the tune of three-quarters of a billion dollars annually.

He blamed high prices for drugs on what he called the "huge profits and huge advertising expenditures" of the big pharmaceutical firms.

The judging, with Bill Reed, Sterling City, as judge, was witnessed by a throng which nearly filled the seats in the fair building. Winners of the numerous trophies and ribbons were roundly applauded by the spectators.

Howard County Home Demonstration Club members did a thriving business at the concession stand, particularly during the lunch hour. Judging terminated almost on the nose at noon.

The colorful trophies, including the two big roving awards, occupied important places on the announcer's desk.

The roving trophy for the championship bull was donated by the First National Bank of Big Spring and that for the champion cow by Big Spring Chamber of Commerce.

Champion bull also received the trophy from Texas Electric Service Co.; reserve grand champion trophy was donated by State National Bank.

Farmer Badly Burned In Odd Auto Accident

Ralph James Neill, 45, prominent farmer and president of the Center Point School Board, is in Big Spring Hospital recovering from extensive burns over the upper portion of his body.

He was burned when an inflammable liquid he was using to clean a 1958 car suddenly ignited and exploded at 4 p.m. Friday. The accident occurred on the Wheeler Estate 2.8 miles north of Big Spring.

According to the highway patrol, which investigated the accident, Neill had the car out-of-doors when he was working on it.

The sudden flash burned over 40 per cent of his body, the hospital reported, most of the burns being classified as second degree. He was said to have had a restful day Saturday and to be in no danger on Saturday night.

The car was not extensively damaged, the patrol said, most of the damage being restricted to a front fender and one wheel.

DETROIT — The worldwide appeal of the Soap Box Derby as an amateur competition for boys will be depicted in the 1960 Pasadena Tournament of Roses on New Year's Day with a colorful float made up of approximately 400,000 living flowers.

Barney Townsend, 13-year-old from Anderson, Ind., who won the 1959 coasting car event for boys, will be featured on the float with his winning racer. With him will be Cowboy Star Roy Rogers, his wife, Dale Evans, and Mike Costello and Larry Ashley, 1959 Soap Box champions of Pasadena and Long Beach respectively.

The float is being prepared by Chevrolet Motor Division which annually sponsors the Soap Box Derby competition in cooperation with leading newspapers and other local groups.

Bruce Overby, general manager of the Soap Box Derby, said the float being built for the 1960 competition will have the theme, "Today's Champions — Tomorrow's Leaders." It will display a large world from which emanate large streaks of floral lighting and stars. Projecting from it will be a large Derby car as if girdling the globe.

Into the making of the floral masterpiece will go 150,000 chrysanthemums, 10,000 roses, 25,000 Vanda orchids, 50,000 bachelor buttons, 10,000 carnations and 1,000 Cattleya orchids, a huge number of corn flowers and many other blooms.

Holiday Death Toll Set At 111

AUSTIN (AP) — The Department of Public Safety estimated Saturday that highway accidents will take 111 lives in Texas during the Christmas to New Year's holiday.

Murders and suicides will take another 47 lives and accidental deaths will account for 42 more, Homer Garrison Jr., DPS director, predicted.

ADEPT POLITICIAN

No Candidate So Hard To Figure As Lyndon

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the season when presidential hopefuls beat the bushes and probe the political talking, walking, running, and waiting. Associated Press political writers have been traveling with potential candidates, taking a close-up look at the men who could wind up in the White House. Here are some observations from the Washington scene, reports on three potential candidates, and a look at Lyndon B. Johnson.

By ARTHUR EDSON
MARSHALLTOWN, Iowa (AP) — Of all the coy presidential aspirants who flit around the land, none is harder to figure than the tall, ambitious, hard-driving Texan, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson.

Johnson acts like a candidate. He hustles from spot to spot, in his own twin-engine, six-seater plane, like a candidate. His words are the words of a candidate.

He even smiles good like a candidate should.

But publicly and privately Johnson will assure you that he's not a candidate. Since he's making no effort to win the Democratic presidential nomination, he says, he hasn't a chance.

Johnson's own explanation of what he's up to seems true enough. He's the Democratic leader in the Senate, responsible for legislation for all the people. He should see what's happening outside of Texas, and he often does when Congress isn't in session.

But as you watch and listen and wonder, a few impressions fall into place.

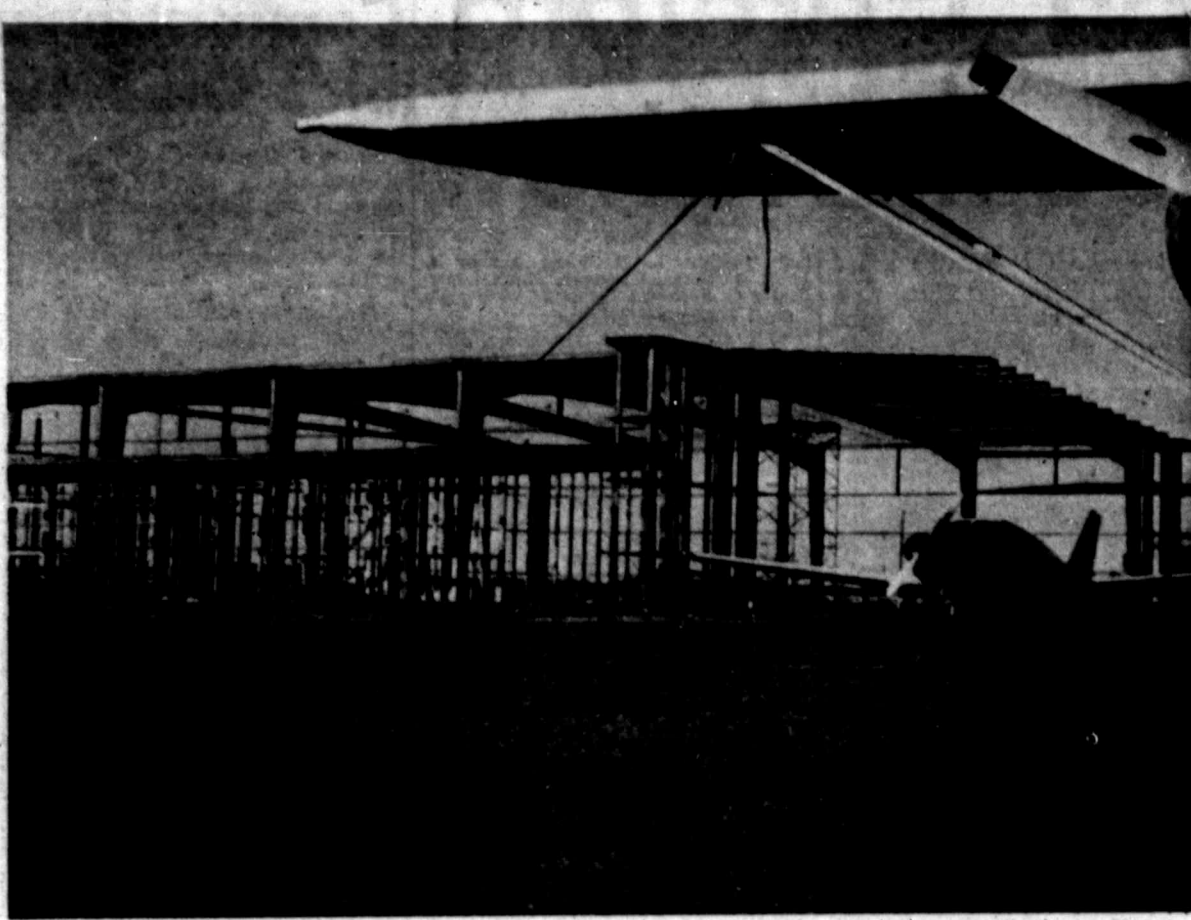

Johnson is more skilled at counting the political horse than Lyndon Johnson. He's such a shrewd and careful political leader that even Republicans in the Senate sometimes speak of him in awe and in envy.

Johnson is proud that the lights in his office burn late as he and his staff check and recheck on how other senators plan to vote.

"We're busy with our homework," Johnson says.

But Johnson doesn't have to stay up late at night to discover the fact of political life. Since the County Airport Hangar Taking Shape

Hangar-administration building at the new Howard County Airport looked like this late last week. The hangar is being built by Jimmie D. Jones, local contractor. When completed it will house the airport official repair shops, hangar space, and the administration offices for the project. Contract price for the hangar was $38,411. Lee Porter, county auditor, said that Jones was paid $9,711 on account last Monday and that so far he has received $33,341.46 of the total. Meantime, the county commissioners are wondering when they will receive additional money due to the county from the Federal Aviation Agency. The commissioners said they will need this unpaid money to settle with Jones when the hangar is finished. The airport was built by the county and FAA. The money the county is waiting for was that expended for land in the original site purchase.

Death Nears For Old Vet

HOUSTON (AP) — "I don't see how he can rally this time," said the doctor of Confederate veteran Walter Williams Saturday.

It's only a matter of hours, we believe," added Dr. Russell Wolfe. Williams, 117, has been in critical condition running a temperature of 102 to 105 degrees since he contacted pneumonia again last Sunday.

It was the fourth attack for the last surviving veteran of the Civil War since last July.

Strike Blamed In Bomb Attempt

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Two liquid bombs were thrown early today at the home of a packing house employee who has been going through picket lines daily at the Wilson & Co. plant.

The missiles, one of which ignited, were thrown at the home of Ray Duncan, whose wife, Mattie, has been an employee of the plant for 34 years.

There was no damage. Police said one of the bombs had broken a screen and a windowpane and fallen back into the yard after spraying part of the house with liquid. The house did not catch fire. The other bomb was found in the yard. It had failed to ignite.

Mrs. Duncan said she had not missed a day of work at the plant, which is being picketed by members of the Packing House Workers of America in a labor dispute which led to a strike Nov. 1.

URGENT MATTER

Farmers Urged To Protest New Rule

Howard County Farm Bureau Saturday said that it is urging Howard County cotton farmers to protest the ruling of the Department of Agriculture on strip-row planting.

Letters, the bureau said, should be sent to F. Marion Rhoades, director of the cotton division of the Department of Agriculture in Washington, D. C.

The farmers should urge that the ruling be revised or cancelled, the bureau said, pointing out that it works an unfair financial hardship on dry land cotton growers.

The bureau also suggested that the congressmen and the United States senators from Texas.

The bureau believes that the ruling, if it is left intact, will mean a financial loss to this county of more than a million dollars a year. It points out that the ruling may have been designed to lessen cotton production in areas where more abundant rainfall occurs.

However, it was not restricted in its application to such areas and applies with equal force in this county.

Yule Tree Stolen

BERLIN (AP) — Police in West Berlin have made their first arrest of the season for theft of a Christmas tree. The suspect turned out to be an off-duty patrolman.

Poachers Preying On Poor Pachyderms

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The Legislative Council has been told that elephant poaching in this British colony is being conducted by a highly organized ring police are unable to uncover. Denzil Blunt, minister of game and fisheries, said that cars and trucks are used to hunt elephants and tusks are smuggled out of the colony.

Car-Truck Smash Kills State Woman

MISSION, Tex. (AP) — Leandro Garza, 56, of Mission, was killed in a car-truck collision here Saturday. Mrs. Irene Trejo Cantu, 20, of Edinburg, alone in the car, was taken to a hospital. Her injuries were not believed serious.

Coolness To Mark Herter's Paris Welcome

PARIS (AP) — U.S. criticism of President Charles de Gaulle's military policies Saturday insured a testy welcome for Secretary of State Christian A. Herter Sunday.

Herter arrives for preliminary talks before the foreign ministers of the 15-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization open their talks Tuesday. He had planned to arrive Saturday night, but bad weather forced his plan to fly on to London, where he will remain overnight.

Herter said before leaving Washington he will press NATO members to meet their obligations and shoulder a bigger share of the costs of maintaining the defensive shield against the Soviet Union.

Gen. Nathan Twining, chief of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, made the opening move for the United States. He told a secret session of NATO's top military men Thursday that foot-dragging in NATO is endangering the West's military position in Europe.

This bluntness surprised Paris diplomatic circles. With the foreign ministers' meeting commencing before the Western summit meeting Dec. 19-21, it was expected the United States would avoid serious controversy which might add to the difficulties of the meeting of President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Macmillan, and De Gaulle.

Twining placed the major share of the blame on France for NATO's current military weakness. The Foreign Ministry is understood to have made representations to the U.S. Embassy because the Twining speech leaked out.

On France's initiative, NATO Secretary General Paul-Henri Spaak called NATO's Council together Saturday and chided members for "indiscretions."

The French reply to Twining remains to be heard. De Gaulle is in Africa attending a meeting of the French Community in Senegal. However, he was informed of the Twining speech, and the telephone between there and Paris has been active.

De Gaulle has pulled most of his forces from NATO's integrated command, the heart of the alliance's military concept. In the atomic age, military planners say, the old ideas of national commands, favored by De Gaulle, are too cumbersome.

No Fireworks Inside City Is Edict Of Fire Marshal

The approaching holiday season will also bring the usual sale of fireworks around the edges of the city limits.

Big Spring Fire Marshal A. D. Meador pointed out Saturday that Big Springers are prohibited by city ordinance to fire these explosives inside the city limits. The ordinance was approved by the city commission in August.

State law allows the dangerous explosives to be sold after Dec. 15 and until midnight, Jan. 1, Meador said. As a result, the stands are usually set up around the perimeter of the city.

MR. JIM KELLY

Journalistic Honors For Stanton Newsman

STANTON (SC) — James Edwin Kelly is being honored today by the Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalists' fraternity, in Lubbock as the oldest active newspaperman in West Texas.

Mr. Jim, as he is known to his friends and associates, has been editor of the Stanton Reporter for more than three decades. He began his career in newspaper work as a lad as a printer's devil, and can remember vividly when everything in the newspaper was hand spiked.

Several members of the committee came to meet and said it would be in the best interest of the party if he would step down.

Morton said he will talk frankly with Benson about the suggestions that he quit.

He added that he will confer with Benson at next Friday's cabinet meeting, if the secretary attends.

Benson, convalescing in the hospital from a gall bladder operation, could not be reached for comment. An aide said, however, that the secretary has no thought of resigning.

Morton's news conference came at the end of a two-day meeting of the national committee, the ruling body of the party. The committee, drafting a blueprint for next year's elections, expects to run into trouble in the farm belt.

Morton said three members of the committee made the suggestions that Benson step down, but he did not identify them.

Morton stated he will not ask Benson to resign. He said the secretary is an outstanding man who has been the victim of a Democratic hatchet job while supervising a system that traces back to a Democratic administration.

The 143-member national committee completed its work on plans for the 1960 convention.

The convention will open July 25 in Chicago's International Amphitheatre for a four-day run.

Vice President Nixon is the substantial favorite for the nomination among leaders who attended the committee sessions.

Morton, who expects no more than two men to bid for the nomination, reiterated that it is "within the realm of possibility" to get both Nixon and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York on the 1960 national ticket.

Judson Morhouse, New York's police officer said the youngster recovered nicely from the brief, but unpleasant experience. He is the son of Mrs. C. J. Harris, 611 San Antonio.

Little Jay Harris, one-year-old, found a strange object Saturday and similar to youngsters his age, he plopped it in his mouth.

Unfortunately the pesky thing wouldn't go down. A River ambulance rushed him to Big Spring Hospital where attendants removed it about 8:30 p.m.

Donkey Is Mulish And Show Hurt

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — Sally all but turned the final dress rehearsal of a Christmas dream pageant into a Saturday night-mare.

Sally is a donkey, and like most of her kind she has an impish inclination about when to be bulky.

Such a stubborn moment came Saturday. Little children of the First Reformed Church were assembled on the stage or in the wings, all of them in costumes of Biblical times and keyed up for the director told them it was most important that the dream quality of the play be undisturbed, so would the children please stop pedal their high spirits. Try to be a bit ethereal, that was the idea.

Sally, essential to the pageant's theme, went along meekly enough to the church door. Then she turned on the temperamental. She flung her feet to the ground. She slanted her flanks to the rear defiantly. She rolled her eyes wickedly. On stage, the mood was fast slipping from the ethereal. As for Sally's handlers, they were jostling that decorum appropriate to the surroundings.

"Did you ever see such a prima donna?" said one. "Wants to be carried, just like a bride."

It had to be done, no less. Two men huffed and puffed and lifted Sally across the threshold and by firm shovings got her down the aisle.

Sally's humor changed fast once she was on stage. She flicked her ears and played it soft and gently.

CONFERENCE PLANNED

GOP Leaders Ask Benson Step Down

CHICAGO (AP) — Several members of the Republican National Committee have suggested that Ezra Taft Benson step down as secretary of agriculture, the party's chairman reported Saturday.

Sen. Thurston B. Morton (Ky.), the GOP chairman, told newsmen "Several members of the committee came to me and said it would be in the best interest of the party if he would step down."

Morton said he will talk frankly with Benson about the suggestions that he quit.

He added that he will confer with Benson at next Friday's cabinet meeting, if the secretary attends.

Benson, convalescing in the hospital from a gall bladder operation, could not be reached for comment. An aide said, however, that the secretary has no thought of resigning.

Prison Break Leader Pleads To Gun Charge

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — The ringleader of 20 escaped North Carolina convicts pleaded guilty Saturday to a federal charge of transporting a weapon in interstate commerce.

Charles W. (Yank) Stewart, 52, waived a hearing and was taken to Roanoke, Va., City Jail where he will await the February term of U.S. District Court in Danville, Va. He was held in lieu of $50,000 bond.

Stewart told U. S. Commissioner English Fox he wanted to be tried and imprisoned elsewhere before facing North Carolina authorities.

"They treat you good in a federal penitentiary," he said.

State police captured Stewart Friday after a car he was driving had crashed and he fled into nearby woods. He was armed with a .38-caliber revolver.

Only three of the 20 Ivy Bluff Prison escapees remain at large.

Hospital Aid For Youngster

Little Jay Harris, one-year-old, found a strange object Saturday and similar to youngsters his age, he plopped it in his mouth.

Unfortunately the pesky thing wouldn't go down. A River ambulance rushed him to Big Spring Hospital where attendants removed it about 8:30 p.m.

2 Car Mishaps On Police List

Police officers investigated two automobile mishaps Saturday.

Miguel Briones, Brownsville, and Estaban Castillo, Edinburg, were involved in a crash in the 1700 block of Gregg.

Earl G. Jameson, Webb AFB, and Edmondo McAllen, 1604 Canary, ran together at NW 44 and Lancaster.

No injuries or major damage was reported.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Boy Scouts of America announced Saturday the sixth edition of the Scouting Handbook is ready for the printer. The first printing run of 1,500,000 copies is one of the largest book orders in the history of the printing press.

This put the Handbook directly in line behind the Bible as the best-selling book in America. The sixth edition will start rolling off the presses next Tuesday.

Only the brightly colored neckerchief—which still can be used as a signal flag, tourniquet, arm sling, fire fanner, rescue rope, etc.—has withstood the passage of time.

The Boy Scout camp equipment of 1959 includes a hair mattress and a roll of aluminum foil. The 14-mile hike—introduced in 1913—has long since shrunk to five miles. Pajamas are now considered de rigueur under the stars.

And, in the most amazing concession to progress of all, the recipe for pancakes over an open fire begins: "Make the batter according to the instructions on the box."

CHANGED TIMES
Have the Boy Scouts gone soft? No, but as the neighborhood woods give way to burgeoning suburbs, the movement has had to adapt itself to changing times. The Boy Scout of today hikes less but camps more and better—in the millions of acres of scout-owned camps—than his 1910 comrade.

APPALLING INCREASE

45 More Road Deaths In This District This Year

Fatalities in the 24 county Midland Highway Patrol District during the first 11 months of 1959 have risen a fantastic 45 deaths over the same months of last year.

This was revealed with the issuance of the November traffic accident summary by Capt. Ray B. Butler, district commander.

Last year, a total of 96 persons died on roads and highways in the district from January through November, but this year the total has climbed to 131 deaths. The November report showed a total of 16 fatalities in the district — with Pecos County leading the list with five persons killed during the month.

Martin and Reeves Counties both had two persons killed, and in Reeves County a total of 22 other persons were injured. Eleven persons were injured in Pecos County. Totals for the month in the district pointed out there were 12 fatal accidents, 41 personal injury accidents, 115 property damage accidents, for a total of 168 accidents. There were 78 persons injured.

Property damage during the month totaled $190,239.00, with Culberson County leading the individual county list with a total of $32,559.00. Pecos County had $30,909.00 in damages. Neither Loving or Glasscock Counties chalked up a traffic mishap during November.

"With the Christmas-New Year facing us, and the traffic toll that goes with it, we are faced with a grim picture trafficwise," Butler concluded.

Sgt. Billy Smith also released

Borden, Dawson, Glasscock, Howard, Martin, Midland and Reagan Counties' Rural Traffic Accident Summary for November.

The Highway Patrol in this area investigated a total of 36 accidents with the following breakdown: Property damage 25, personal injury 6, and fatal accidents 5.

Smith reported a total property damage of $41,374.00 with 11 persons injured and 5 killed. This is a decrease of 21 accidents and an increase of 2 deaths for the same period of November 1958. During November 1959 the Patrolmen in the above counties made 399 arrests for the following violations: DWI 15, speeding 207, improper passing 9, wrong side of road 16, defective equipment 35, all other violations 117.

Rocky Plans Dallas Visit On Thursday

DALLAS (AP)—Nelson Rockefeller comes to Texas Thursday looking for support for his obvious desire for the Republican presidential nomination.

The New York governor is expected to find Texas Republicans friendly and polite.

But the state party leaders at this time profess a strong preference for Vice President Richard Nixon for leader in the 1960 campaign.

Rockefeller's first stop Thursday will be in Dallas, the stronghold of Republican forces in the predominately Democratic state. Only Dallas has a Republican in Congress. He is Bruce Alger, who twice has won election.

From Dallas, Rockefeller flies to Houston, home of the Texas Republican committeeman, Jack Porter.

Although the invitations to the Houston reception went out under Porter's signature, he is in South America on vacation. Thad Hutcheson, state GOP committeeman, will be official host.

Should Rockefeller be nominated, and few are fully counting him out, he could find Texas a fertile field for campaigning. Twice the state has rejected its Democratic traditions and voted for Republican Dwight Eisenhower for President. Only other such defection from the Democrats was when the state went for Herbert Hoover over Al Smith in the 1920s in an emotion-packed campaign.

The Dallas luncheon is sponsored by the Dallas Council on World Affairs and the Dallas Press Club.

His speech is expected to be on Latin American affairs, on which he is an expert.

The Texas trip is part of a swing into the Midwest, Southwest and South. He left Albany Saturday for the seven-state journey.

The trip is expected to be his last before he says early in January whether he will be a candidate.

The governor is traveling by chartered plane, with about 50 reporters and aides traveling with him.

HC Hawks Grab Santone Title

SAN ANTONIO, (SC) — HCJC team of the HCJC Hawks, 77-74, in the finals of the San Antonio Junior College basketball tournament here Saturday night.

The Hawks succeeded the Mountaineers from Kerrville as the title in the meet. The win was their seven in eight starts this year.

The Hawks had a commanding 41-31 lead at half time but the Mountaineers tied the tally at 70-70 with three minutes to go.

Jimmy Evans led HCJC surge that again swung the issue his team's way, however. He was given a big boost by Harold Henson.

The Big Spring club lost big Tom Garrison early in the game on fouls and Larry Cruise followed him to the penalty box a short time after that.

Henson wound up as the Hawks' leading scorer, with 22 points, while Evans had 21.

Durbin paced Schreiner with 26 while Conaway turned up with 16. The Hawks beat Victoria JC in the first round Friday morning, 89-59; and then turned back Del Mar of Corpus Christi Friday night, 89-51.

In that one, Coach Buddy Travis made liberal use of his substitutes. He removed his regulars from the floor after ten minutes of play, at which time HCJC was leading, 28-6.

Preston Hollis was the Hawks' top point-getter with 15 points while Joe Cook had 13.

John Timmerman kept Del Mar in contention, with a 17-point out-pout.

San Antonio won third place, defeating Del Mar by a score of 87-69. Victoria captured consolation laurels, fogging Lubbock Christian College by a score of 67-59.

Henson, Cruise and Bob Shirey of HCJC were named to the all-tournament squad, along with Durbin, Schreiner, Timmerman, Del Mar, Watson, Victoria; Jay Sherard, Lubbock Christian; Wehman, Schreiner; Doges, San Antonio; and Woodall, Lee College.

The Hawks had big trouble on the way to San Antonio and almost didn't complete the trip. The vehicle's clutch went out at Kerrville and they limped on in the Alamo City.

The Hawks are scheduled to play Tarleton State in Big Spring Tuesday night.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

This threatens to be a long basketball season for Harold Davis, the former HCJC mentor, and his Texas Western College Miners. I was part of a Big Spring party which watched the El Pasoans in their home debut last Wednesday night, at which time Hank Iba's Oklahoma State University Cowboys defeated them, 68-41. It's quite apparent that several of the boys on Harold's team couldn't have made his traveling squad at HCJC last year. In that one, Bobby Davis, an ex-Jayhawk, started the game and emerged as the leading scorer. Benny Carver, who also played for HCJC, saw plenty of action, as did Doug Funk, former San Angelo College player. Davis made three of the first four field goals the Miners scored. The Texas Western coach adjudged real well in the second half but had too far to go after trailing 39-16 at the halftime break. Davis doesn't figure on picking up anyone who can help him at midyear but he plans to do a lot of recruiting during the summer. One of the boys he wants and will probably get is Harold Henson of HCJC. Davis will take his Miners to the Coast if he can arrange two more games in the Los Angeles or San Francisco area. He has already booked San Francisco University. He'll also take the Miners back to Oklahoma for games with Oklahoma State and the University of Oklahoma. Luke Thompson, the former winner of the Big Spring Invitational Golf tournament, and Jackie Barron, one-time Big Spring football quarterback, are among ex-local residents who now make their homes in El Paso. Thompson is pro of the Mesa Fairways Pitch-and-putt golf course. Barron, who was a coach for a while in New Mexico, is currently a television advertising salesman. Everyone in El Paso who knows him or of his feats speaks highly of Big Spring's Charley Johnson, who will lead the New Mexico State Aggies into the Dec. 31 Sun Bowl game there. Some refer to him as one of the great quarterbacks in Border Conference history.

Coach Nervous In Autumn Of Year

One of the applicants for the Big Spring High School coaching job, when he came to the line inquiring about his health, put down: "My health is good except for the fact that during the months September through November I am extremely nervous." When the local basketball arbiter, Boyce Hale, called that Phillips Tire Company-Reese AFB basketball game last week, it represented the 60th game this season in which he had officiated—and here it is only half of December gone. Amarillo Tascosa tried to stall the ball against the towering Midland Bulldogs recently but lost, 34-28, in Amarillo. Tom S. Lubbock High School in Lubbock will open its 1960 football season with Andrews, which was Big Spring's opening foe for several years. A Long Island (N. Y.) golfer named Cabot has come up with a self retrieving golf ball for practice at home. It will fly about ten yards, then recoil. If the golfer slices, the ball will veer back to his left. If he hooks, it will return to his right. Cabot devised it while recuperating from a fractured hip socket. One hears the Air Force track and field team will do its training for the 1960 Olympic trials in Abilene. Abe Saperstein, who owns the Harlem Globetrotters and a portion of the Philadelphia Warriors, recently took out a fight manager's license. He has a couple of battlers he wants to build up. Mickey Mangham, the LSU end who will have the All-America tubs drifting for him next fall, beated to the Baton Rouge school on his own—without an athletic scholarship. He's a product of Maryland. Tom Tibbs, who was coach of Pampa when the Harvesters upset the 1953 Big Spring Steers, was one of those considered for the West Texas State College grid coaching job. This item gleaned from the El Paso Herald Post's "25 Years Ago" section: "Two 16-year-old youths were arrested in connection with the back-firing of automobile motors in the pep parade preceding the Big Spring-El Paso High School bi-district championship football game."

Colts Shade Rams To Sew Up Crown

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Baltimore Colts locked up the Western Conference title of the National Football League Saturday but it took a 21-point blast in the final quarter to stomp down the Los Angeles Rams, 45-26.

The Rams played their finest if losing game of a sad season after Coach Sid Gillman announced before the game that he was quitting. The resignation was not unexpected but the dramatic timing did come as a surprise.

The title-bound Colts, now headed for a game with the New York Giants for the National Football League championship, could not be contained in a wild final quarter.

A crowd of 65,528 saw the Rams wind up their season in the cellar, with 10 defeats and two victories. The game was nationally televised.

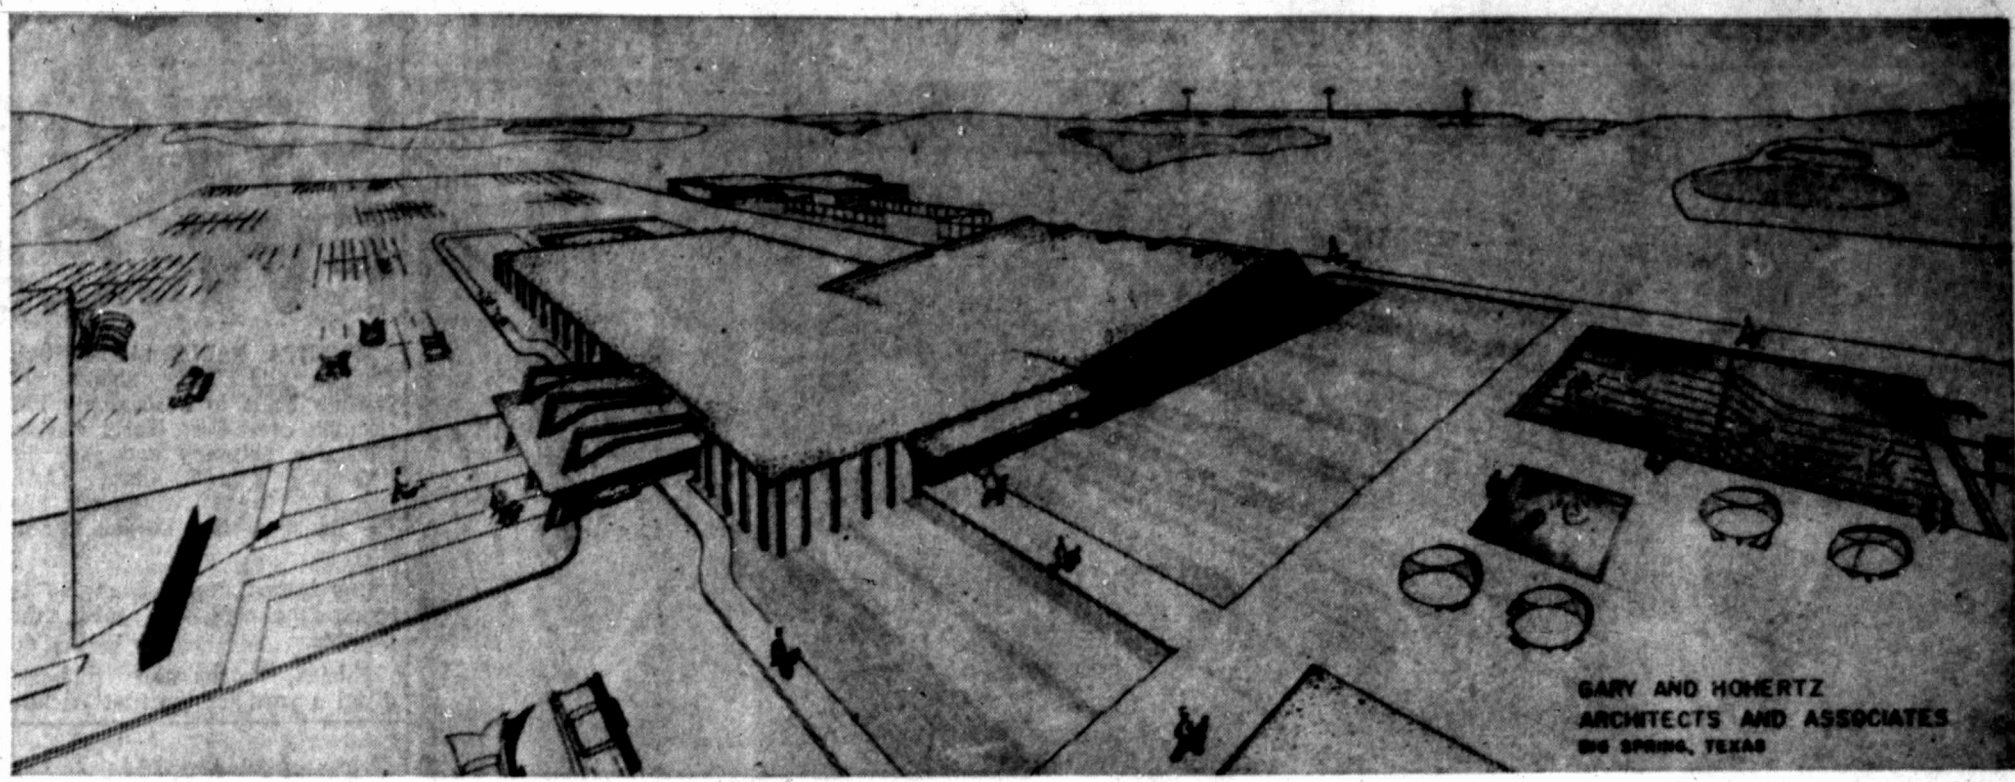

Whereas the crowd booed the Rams against Green Bay last Sunday, they cheered them Saturday as the local idols went into the final period with a 26-24 lead.

The lead didn't last long. Quarterback Johnny Unitas passed for the third of his three scoring strikes to put the Colts in front.

Then linebacker Dick Szmanski intercepted a Billy Wade pass deep in Ram territory and romped 15 yards for another touchdown.

Steers One Of 32 Teams In Tournament

One of the applicants for the Big Spring coaching job is a former Southwest Conference star back who has had two years of coaching experience. A coach who has expressed a lot of interest in the local job is Bill Jurney, one-time University of Arkansas gridders, now head coach at Coffeyville Junior College. Jurney guided Coffeyville to the Kansas state championship the past season. His team lost to the ultimate National title, Northeastern Oklahoma A&M, 13-7, but had the ball on the Oklahoma's one-yard line when the game ended. Jurney has had seven years experience in the coaching field. Don Looney, the NFL official who was scolded publicly by Bobby Layne over a play which occurred in a recent game between the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Chicago Bears, is currently a resident of Midland. There's 32 teams entered in that Nacogdoches Basketball tournament in which Big Spring is competing next week but they are divided evenly into two divisions. In the top division, seven Class

Clubhouse For Country Club

Pictured above is the proposed new clubhouse for the Big Spring Country Club, which is due to be opened in its new location south of town sometime during 1960. The building was designed by the local architectural firm of Gary and Hohertz. The entire layout may cost upwards of $200,000. The golf course will be 18-holes. Warren Cantrell of Lubbock is designing the course itself. The swimming pool is at the right while the parking lot can be seen to the left and in back of the clubhouse.

ROUGHNECKS WIN, 27-12

PLAINVIEW (AP) — Sundown came from behind Saturday to whip Crowell 27-12 and advance to the finals of the Class A schoolboy football race against Katy.

Haskell Davis led the wild charge of Sundown, romping for 189 yards, scoring two touchdowns and running over a conversion.

A crowd of 6,500 watched Crowell score first—late in the second period—on an 80-yard drive with Jim Henry, the big star for the hitherto undefeated, untied Northwest Texas teams, making the last 27 yards. Henry tried to run over the conversion and failed.

Two minutes later Sundown came back to score and go ahead. Sundown, with David McInturff leading the way, took a short kick and rolled 57 yards to a touchdown, made by McInturff with a 22-yard run. Davis carried across the conversion to make the score 12-0.

Early in the third period Davis raced 56 yards for another Sundown but the try for conversion failed.

Rematch Set In Pro Loop

By The Associated Press

A rematch of last year's National Football League championship between Baltimore and New York was set up Saturday when the Colts rallied for 21 points in the final quarter and a 45-26 victory over the Los Angeles Rams.

The triumph gave the Colts the record New York's Giants wrapped up the Eastern title last Sunday. They'll meet in Baltimore Dec. 27. Last year the Colts won 23-17 in overtime.

Sunday the Chicago Bears (7-4) put their six-game winning streak on the line against the Detroit Lions (3-7-1) in Chicago while the San Francisco 49ers (7-4) play host to the Green Bay Packers (6-5).

In the Eastern Division the Philadelphia Eagles (7-4) play the Cleveland Browns (6-5); the Giants (9-2) end their regular season at Washington against the Redskins (3-8); and the Chicago Cardinals (2-9) meet the Steelers (5-5-1) in Pittsburgh.

Breck Humbles Mt. Pleasant

FORT WORTH (AP) — Jerry Gibson and Dickie Rogers carried champion Breckenridge back into the Class AAA schoolboy football finals Saturday on a smashing 32-6 victory over Mt. Pleasant.

Between them they gained 251 yards rushing, 43 more than Mt. Pleasant's total offense. Gibson passed 37 yards for the first touchdown, ran 17 and 4 for six-pointers and carried the Buckaroos only successful conversion. He gained 100 yards on 13 runs and completed 4 of 12 passes for 78 yards.

Rogers scored the other two Buckaroo touchdowns and gained 151 yards in 18 rushes.

Breckenridge struck 45 yards in just two plays at the start of the second quarter. Rogers ran 8 yards to start it, then Gibson threw to Leonard Tolbert on a tackle eligible play for the touchdown. Gibson ran right end for the two conversion points.

The Bucks moved 54 yards in nine plays to score again on their next possession. Gibson connected on passes of 15 and 19 yards and ran the final 7.

Mt. Pleasant charged 66 yards with the ensuing kickoff for its lone touchdown. The big gainer was a guard around by Donny Newsum for 32 yards. Masters scored the touchdown from five yards out.

Breckenridge struck again with a 57-yard scoring drive from the second half kickoff. Gibson 35-yard roll out to the Mt. Pleasant 15 was

CORPUS CHRISTI RAY DECISIONS JACKETS

HOUSTON (AP)—Fullback Jerry Rogers scored two touchdowns, one a 58-yard ramble, and scabbard Johnny Williams added another on a 55-yard scamper Saturday and led the Corpus Christi Ray Texans to a 26-7 victory over Port Arthur in a state Class 4-A schoolboy football semifinal.

Rogers, a 215-pound junior, punched the Port Arthur line repeatedly for big gains in helping the Corpus Christi team to the state championship game for the second time in the school's 19-year history. He plunged over from three yards out for Ray's final touchdown in the fourth period. Williams, a

New Zealander Scores Gift Win In U.S. Grand Prix

By BEN FUNK
SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — Little-known Bruce McLaren of New Zealand scored a "gift" victory in the first U.S. Grand Prix Saturday when Australia's Jack Brabham's car ran out of gas on the last lap.

Brabham, who had led almost from the start of the 218.4-mile race, still won his first world driving title.

The Aussie's car stopped as he wheeled into the last straightaway in the front of the pack. He pushed it to the finish line to take fourth place as McLaren, only a few yards back, flashed past to win.

Both drove British Cooper Climaxes.

As it turned out, the half mile of pushing was unnecessary because the coveted world title virtually was handed to Brabham when his top challenger in the world rankings, Stirling Moss of London, was eliminated by a broken gear box on his Cooper on the fifth lap of the 41-lap test.

Moss needed a victory here while Brabham finished third or lower to overtake the Australian in the world standings.

The winning speed around the twisting, turning Sebring course was 96.83 miles an hour. The time was 2 hours, 12 minutes, 35.7 seconds.

Doug Weaver New Kansas St. Coach

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Doug Weaver, first assistant football coach at the University of Missouri, was named head coach at Kansas State University Saturday.

Selection of Weaver to succeed Bus Mertes, who resigned, was announced by the Kansas State Athletic Council. His salary was not announced.

Weaver, 29, is a 1953 graduate of Michigan State University. He came to Missouri in 1958.

Weaver is not expected to assume his duties here until after Jan. 1.

He was a linebacker on the 1950-52 Spartan team which won 26 of 27 games. He was an assistant coach at MSU in 1956.

Stamford Defeats Olney Team, 15-7

By The Associated Press

Yellow Jackets, throwing five times for scores, Buck McCall ran for two touchdowns while Billy Cohen got the other with a 35-yard run.

Tom Lovvorn scored both touchdowns and Mark Hinson kicked a 23-yard field goal as Stamford rolled on undefeated and untied in 14 straight games. It also removed Olney from the unbeaten, untied ranks.

Tony Brooks of England finished third in his Ferrari.

So brutal was the pace around the 5.2-mile course, that only seven of the 18 starters were still around at the end.

It was a weird finish as the crowd of 15,000 ignored McLaren and cheered wildly for Brabham as he struggled slowly toward the line. Soon after he made it, the Australian dropped to the track from exhaustion.

After a rest of about five minutes, he recovered and talked with reporters. He said his climb to the throne of road racing, was "the greatest thrill of my life."

Wait Hagenen of Westfield, N.J., drove a British Jaguar to an expected victory over America's economy automobiles in a two-hour international compact car race—a preliminary to the Grand Prix.

Hagenen covered 167.4 miles in two hours, three minutes for an average speed of 78 m.p.h.

Forsan Bisons Win, 44 To 39

ROBERT LEE (SC) — The Forsan Buffaloes got off on the right foot in District 15-B basketball play here Friday night, turning back Robert Lee, 44-39.

The win left the Bisons with a 3-3 won-loss record for the season. They play Water Valley at Forsan Tuesday night.

Jerry Barwell led the Buffs with 14 points while Benny Barnett captured 14 rebounds.

Forsan hit 31 per cent of its shots in the game. Barwell also did a splendid job of stopping J. Tinkler, the leading scorer for Robert Lee, who failed to get a point.

Robert Lee won the girls' game, 44-34, after leading at half time, 21-18.

Pat Fowler had 24 points and Diane Lynch 17 for Robert Lee while Jan Stockton tallied 14. Darla Dunagan nine, Janet Gooch six and Carla Hughes five for Forsan.

Boys' scores:
FORSAN (44) — Barwell 7-14, Benny Barnett 3-5, Sandy Barnett 0-6, Park 3-7, Ashbury 2-4, Hardner 2-2, Conner 2-4. Totals 17-54.

ROBERT LEE (39) — Tinkler 6-10, Robertson 5-11, Rose 6-11, Blair 3-8, Wind 1-3, Harmon 5-16. Totals 31-59.

Tom Lovvorn scored both touchdowns and Mark Hinson kicked a 23-yard field goal as Stamford rolled on undefeated and untied in 14 straight games. It also removed Olney from the unbeaten, untied ranks.

Farrell Cuipepper, a big fullback, was the man of the hour for Stamford in its decisive victory over Madisonville. He ran for 108 yards in 26 carries.

Quarterback Max Darden scored from the two five plays later but his attempted pass for two points was knocked down.

Power-driving fullback Kyle Haines put the Yellow Jackets ahead briefly minutes later in the first period with a four-yard touchdown plunge and Jack Sonnier's point after touchdown, but Ray went ahead for keeps in the second on Williams' long jump.

Texas Coach Bill Stiles' charges chalked up their 12th victory of the season while the Yellow Jackets took their third loss against nine wins and a tie. Port Arthur lost two of their first three games before hitting the playoff trail.

Coyotes Turn Back FW Carter-Rivers.

WICHITA FALLS (AP)—Travis Reagan and Larry Shields led Wichita Falls to a smashing 27-7 triumph over Fort Worth Carter-Riverside Saturday and shot the defending state Class AAAA schoolboy football champions into the finals against Corpus Christi Ray.

Ray lashed Port Arthur 26-7 to reach the big one with the Coyotes.

Shields, sophomore fullback, dived a yard for the first Wichita Falls touchdown in the first period, climaxing a 66-yard surge. Shields then led an 84-yard march which he wound up with a 3-yard smash for the second Wichita Falls touchdown.

Carter-Riverside scored on a 65-yard dash midway of the second period with Robert Baker running the final 15 and Fred Jones kicking the extra point.

The Coyotes led 12-7 at the half. In the third period Wichita Falls took the kickoff and drove 64 yards for a touchdown with Reagan running around left end for 17 yards to get it. Shields ran over the conversion to make the score 20-7.

In the fourth period Reagan took a pitchout and raced four yards for the final Wichita Falls touchdown. It came at the end of a 51-yard drive. Joe Watkins kicked the extra point.

Carter-Riverside had two chances to score late in the game but failed. Once the Fort Worth team drove to the Wichita Falls 22 but Ronnie Strange intercepted a pass. Then Carter-Riverside pounded to the Wichita Falls 16 but a fourth down pass was incomplete in the end zone.

Reagan ran for 74 yards on 11 carries and caught five passes for 128 yards. Baker made 82 on 17 runs to lead Carter-Riverside.

Henley Breaks Scoring Mark

By The Associated Press

Garnley Henley of Huron, S.D., Gary Campbell of Whittier, Calif., and Dale Mills of Northeast Missouri State all broke outstanding records in winning individual of fence championships in small college football circles for 1959.

Henley topped all scorers with 141 points on 22 touchdowns and 9 points after. This gave him a four-year total of 394 that surpasses anything on record for both major and minor school competition. The legendary Willie Heston of Michigan piled up 370 for Michigan.

Campbell, quarterback in Whittier's T formation, capped the total offense record—2,383 yards—and hung up a three-year mark of 5,177 yards. He also won the passing crown with 111 completions in 183 throws for a 607 average and 1,717 yards.

Mills, the busiest ball carrier of the year, ran off with the rushing crown for the second straight year and snapped the record for yardage in a season. He ran 248 times, 24 more than the record set by Reggie West of Texas A & T in 1952, and ground out 1,385 yards. His two-year total of 2,743 yards established another record. He also was second in scoring with 124 points.

The figures were released Saturday by the NCAA's Service Bureau.

Snow Is Falling

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Snow began falling Saturday at this site of the 1960 Winter Olympic Games after a long dry spell which had caused concern to games officials. The games are scheduled to begin Feb. 18.

Sid Gillman Quits As Coach Of Rams

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Sid Gillman, in a dressing room news conference that resembled a wake disclosed Saturday that he was asked to quit as head football coach of the Los Angeles Rams.

"The ownership of the Rams told me I should resign and I agreed I just didn't up and resign," Gillman said.

An earlier announcement by a club spokesman gave the impression Gillman had resigned by his own decision. The spokesman said Gillman had advised the team before it took the field against the Baltimore Colts Saturday afternoon that he would not be with the club in 1960.

Co-owner Dan Reeves, General Manager Pete Rozelle and another owner, Fred Levy, also were at the dressing room news conference.

"I feel very sad," Reeves declared. "It was one of the most unhappy decisions that I personally ever have had to make.

"None of us are blaming Sid Gillman for the Rams' poor record this year. But we figured the hue and cry would be too great a pressure if Sid should return next year."

The name of Bob Waterfield, a former Ram quarterback and one of the team's greatest stars, immediately cropped up in speculation about Gillman's successor.

Asked if he would be interested, Waterfield told newsmen: "Certainly I would."

Gillman came here in 1955 after a highly successful career as coach at the University of Cincinnati.

The announcement of Gillman's resignation was not made until shortly after the game began. He was on the sidelines to direct the team for this last game.

A dedicated student of football, Gillman is recognized nationally as one of the more astute men in the profession.

In his first year as coach, the Rams won the western division title. Cleveland walloped them in the NFL championship game, 38-14.

Then it developed that all was not serene among the players. The matter came more into focus when the club's great quarterback, Norman Van Brocklin "retired" after the 1957 campaign.

The outspoken Van Brocklin subsequently "un-retired" and signed with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Van Brocklin once explained: "The first year, when Gillman was new to professional football, he asked for help from the (veteran) players. We gave it to him and everything was fine.

"The next year was different. Gillman knew all the answers. He didn't need our help. So . . ."

'62 COACHING CLINIC WILL BE IN LUBBOCK

DALLAS (AP)—Directors of the Texas High School Coaches Assn. awarded the 1962 coaching school to Lubbock Saturday. Ben Schwartzwalder of Syracuse and Darrell Royal of Texas were added to the staff of coaching instructors for next year.

Thus coaches of the competing Cotton Bowl teams will be on the faculty of the big clinic when it is held in Dallas July 31 to Aug. 3. The 1961 school will be at San Antonio July 30-Aug. 4. The one at Lubbock in 1962 is scheduled for July 29-Aug. 3.

El Paso, Galveston, Houston and Dallas also bid for the 1962 school.

Schwartzwalder and Royal round out the list of instructors for the coaching school except for track. Ara Parseghian of Northwestern previously had been named to the football staff and there also will be two special lecturers. These will be named soon.

Olmedo And Fleitz Head Net Ratings

NEW YORK (AP)—Alex Olmedo, the Peruvian Davis Cup ace who recently turned pro, and Mrs. Beverly Baker Fleitz, a California mother, have been recommended to head the U.S. amateur tennis rankings for 1960.

The rankings were released Saturday by the U.S. Lawn Tennis Assn. They must be approved by the convention at the annual meeting in Scottsdale, Ariz., Jan. 16.

OLMEDO FLEITZ

A mild surprise was the placing of Bernard (Tut) Bartenz of Dallas in the No. 2 position ahead of Barry MacKay, the Davis Cup singles regular from Dayton, Ohio.

Bartenz apparently won the spot on the strength of his victory in the National Clay Courts and his easy 6-3, 6-4, 6-4 triumph over MacKay in the quarter-finals of the U.S. National at Forest Hills. The Texan lost in straight sets to Australian Neale Fraser, who beat Olmedo in the final.

Hunt, Baker Back From JC Conclave

Dr. W. A. Hunt, president of Howard County Junior College, and his assistant, Dr. Marvin Baker, have returned from Dallas, where they attended a meeting in which the theme was "athletic expenses."

The general consensus was that if the schools' athletic programs are to stay alive, they must cut expenses.

H.C.J.C. was one of 21 schools represented at the Friday conclave and 20 of them agreed to eliminate board and room for athletes.

The other abstained, pending instructions from his college officials.

A showdown decision on the matter will probably be made Jan. 9, at which time the college representatives will meet again in Waco.

Writers Nominate Syracuse Mentor

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—Floyd (Ben) Schwartzwalder of undefeated Syracuse Saturday was named coach of the year by the Football Writers Assn. of America.

Schwartzwalder drew more than one-third of the 600 votes cast. Ray Eliot of Illinois, whose team surged to a 5-3-1 finish in his final coaching year, and Wally Butts of Georgia, tied for second with 92 votes.

Wiley, P. View To Play Again

PRAIRIE VIEW, Tex. (AP)—Wiley College of Marshall gets another shot at Prairie View A&M New Year's Day when they meet in the annual Prairie View Bowl.

Yanks Obtain Roger Maris

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Yankees and the Kansas City Athletics, old hands at swapping players, have completed their 15th transaction with outfielder Roger Maris the key player in the seven-man deal.

Thwarted in an attempt to trade with other clubs in both leagues, the Yankees Friday obtained Maris, on whom they have had designs to plug an outfield hole since they wound up third in the American League last season.

With the 25-year-old, long-ball hitting outfielder they also got veteran shortstop Joe DeMaestri and first baseman Kent Hadley. A Yankee spokesman said DeMaestri probably will be used as trade bait in an effort to strengthen the pitching staff.

To Kansas City, the Yankees sent Norm Siebern, a hard-hitting but weak fielding outfielder; pitcher Don Larsen, plagued with a sore arm almost ever since writing his name in the record books with a perfect World Series game in 1956 and Hank Bauer, 37-year-old outfielder and Marv Throneberry, utility first baseman-outfielder.

The deal came only four days from the end of the interleague deadline and five days after the pennant-winning Chicago White Sox and the runner-up Cleveland Indians apparently strengthened themselves in another seven-player swap.

"We have tried unsuccessfully to trade with other clubs in both leagues," said Yankee General Manager George Weiss. "The Yanks and Kansas City have faith in each other."

A total of 59 players have shuttled back and forth between New York and Kansas City.

No Limit Is Placed On SW Scholarships

DALLAS (AP)—The Southwest Conference found Saturday that athletic scholarships were being kept within reasonable bounds so placed no limit on them. But it was decided to maintain a close check.

Executive Secretary Howard Grubbs will report at each winter meeting on the number of scholarships being carried in each sport, something he did at the winter meeting that closed here today.

His study disclosed that the Southwest Conference schools average about 140 scholarships per year in all sports with 114 of them for football and basketball.

The conference wants to keep the scholarships within bounds both as economical and an equalization measure.

Up To 8,000 Deer Could Be Killed In Llano County

By EARL GOLDING
Waco Tribune-Herald Staff
LLANO, Tex. (AP)—This year, for the first time, the Game Commission will have an accurate count of the number of deer killed in Llano County.

The count is being made by commission biologist Jim Teer and several assistants. Every deer, buck or antlerless, killed in the county must be checked in at the experimental station they operate here.

As of midweek they had counted 6,415 deer killed in Llano County—4,326 bucks and 2,089 antlerless deer.

By the end of the season, Teer feels that something like 7,000 to 8,000 whitetails will have been killed in this county.

Bud Otto, a game assistant who has worked Llano County for five years as Teer's right-hand man, says 7,000 permits were issued for antlerless deer. He expects 3,000 to be collected for the deep freeze.

And we think there'll be around 5,000 bucks killed here this year," Otto says, which would make the total kill in the neighborhood of 8,000 deer.

The deer aren't running large. In fact, the average buck, from the first 100 checked here this year, averaged only 60.7 pounds, field drawn weight. It is about 13 pounds smaller than the average buck a year ago.

The biologists say this is partly due to the unusually large number of yearling bucks showing up in this year's kill.

They estimate 80 per cent of the total kill is made up of deer no more than 18 months in age.

Also, they think there are too many deer for the deer's good. With fewer deer, they think the average buck would be a larger trophy, with a better rack of antlers.

The check station may prove to be a valuable tool in the future management of Texas game herds, and in Llano County, hunters and ranchers alike have shown a surprising interest in it.

Wilson Is Likely To Be Re-Hired

DETROIT (AP)—George Wilson is almost certain to return next season as coach of the Detroit Lions of the National Football League.

President-General Manager Edwin J. Anderson, in the same precarious position as Wilson, likewise is expected to return in his same capacity next year.

Both men had been under fire from some of the Detroit football Co.'s 13 directors and some fans in recent weeks. The Lions, who end their season against the Bears in Chicago Sunday, have won only three of 11 games.

The Lions' executive committee supported Wilson and Anderson in a statement Friday after a meeting. The committee consists of 16 of the 13 directors. Only four attended the meeting.

The full board meets next Friday when official approval is expected.

While the conference fathers—the faculty committee—went along with the athletic directors and coaches that they were not excessive in awarding athletic scholarships, they would not permit the football coaches to add two days to spring training.

The athletic officials had asked that the conference bring its spring training rule equal with that of the NCAA which allows 20 practice sessions in 36 days. Only 18 sessions in 28 days are allowed by the Southwest Conference.

The faculty committee took the view that the rule it already had was equal to that of the NCAA because the Southwest Conference specified "physical sessions" whereas the NCAA called only for "sessions." It also indicated that it felt 36 days was too long for spring training.

Under the NCAA rule a session that might be rained out would be counted. In the Southwest Conference sessions would have to be held to count.

A system of graduated penalties for rules violations was worked out by a committee at the spring meeting and this was up for action here today. But the faculty committee merely filed the report for "future reference." Under the plan there would be graduated penalties for schools, coaches, students and the alumni. The conference does not now have specific penalties listed but can assess any penalty it deems necessary.

Jim Swink May Ink A Pro Grid Pact

DALLAS (AP)—Jim Swink the former Texas Christian All-American, indicated today he might return to football after being out three years. If he does it will be as a member of the Dallas Texans of the American Football League.

Swink, a third-year medical student here, said if he could continue his school work and play football, too, he might do it.

Visits Here

Sammy Oates (above), star end of the HSU Cowboys, visited the past football season, visited a former school chum, Larry Smith, here Friday night. A 205-pound speedster, Oates has two years of eligibility remaining at the Abilene school. He revealed he might give pro football a tumble when he departs college.

Veeck Ranting About Trades Involving NY

By JERRY LISKA
CHICAGO (AP)—Owner Bill Veeck of the pennant-winning Chicago White Sox Saturday blasted what he described as the "apparent closed combine" of the New York Yankees and the Kansas City Athletics in the American League.

Irrked by Friday's seven-player deal between the Yankees and A's, Veeck told The Associated Press:

"I don't know whether there is any unusually close connection between those two clubs. But whether there is or not is immaterial because it appears there is. 'I would think for the good of public opinion, they would not have operated for some time—this is the 15th deal between them—as an apparent entry.'"

At Havana, General Manager Frank Lane of Cleveland noted it was the 15th Yank-A's deal since 1955. "It's legal but should cause some eyebrow lifting," said Lane.

Said Veeck: "All this talk about nobody wanting to trade with the Yankees is wrong. I know Lane tried to deal with the Yankees at the recent major league meetings. Hank Greenberg of our club talked to George Weiss (Yankee general manager). Weiss said he'd talk to him later. Hank has yet to hear from the Yankees."

"As for the Athletics, only yesterday morning the Detroit Tigers tried to talk to Kansas City about Roger Maris but were told there could be no deal unless it included Harvey Kuenn."

Lane disclosed he tried to get Maris from the A's last week but was told the young outfielder could be had only for Kuenn. "You don't spell Kuenn 'Larsen,'" snapped Lane.

In the deal, the Yanks received Maris, infielder Joe DeMaestri and first baseman Kent Hadley and sent Larsen, outfielders Hank Bauer and Norm Siebern, and first baseman Marv Throneberry to Kansas City.

Veeck said he planned no official protest about the trade.

Jim Bottomly Is Victim Of Death

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Sunny Jim Bottomley, 59, the only player in major league baseball history to drive in 12 runs in one game, died of a heart ailment while Christmas shopping Friday.

The former first baseman, the National League's most valuable player in 1929 and a veteran of 15 seasons with the St. Louis Cardinals, Cincinnati Reds and old St. Louis Browns, lived up to his name until the end. He was joking with a friend only moments before he was found slumped over the wheel of his car in a downtown parking lot.

It was on Sept. 16, 1924, that James Leroy Bottomley wrote his name into the record books with six hits good for 12 RBIs against the Brooklyn Dodgers. The hits included two home runs, a double and three singles.

He repeated his six-for-six achievement on Aug. 5, 1931, against Pittsburgh, this time with a double and five singles. He is the only National Leaguer to go six-for-six two times.

The cocky first baseman, who wore his cap at a rakish angle and was noted for his sunny disposition, had a lifetime batting average of .310 and fielded .988 during his 1,991-game career, most of it with the Cardinals.

Gator Bowl Will Be On Local TV

The 15th Gator Bowl football game in Jacksonville, Fla., will be presented on Saturday, Jan. 2, at 1 p.m., Big Spring time on the CBS Television Network. This will be the fifth straight Gator Bowl game to be covered by the network. The contestants will be Arkansas, one of three teams tied for the South West Conference championship, and Georgia Tech. The Razorbacks of Arkansas, under their youthful coach, Frank Broyles, had an 8-2 record this season while Bobby Dodd's Georgia Tech eleven had a 6-4 mark. However, Tech, a contestant eight times, never has lost a bowl game. Arkansas, making its fourth bowl appearance, has a 1-1 record. This will be their first Gator Bowl game.

700,000 DUE TO SEE MAJOR BOWL OUTINGS

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
Philadelphia, Houston and St. Petersburg, Fla., light the fuse next Saturday on the holiday football bowl hysteria which is expected to draw 700,000 spectators paying 2 1/2 million dollars into arenas from coast to coast.

Penn State is a one-point favorite over Alabama in the Liberty

Bowl at Philadelphia. Texas Christian rules a three-point choice over Clemson in the Bluebonnet Bowl at Houston. And Lenoir Rhyne and Texas A&M are a tossup in their battle of small college giants in the Holiday Bowl at St. Petersburg.

Those are three of the advance attractions in a gaudy 18-game program which reaches its crescendo on New Year's Day with the four established post-season events—the Rose, Sugar, Cotton and Orange Bowls.

All of the 10 top teams in the final Associated Press poll will be in action, as will virtually all the All-America players and other leading individual stars.

Untold millions will watch the fanfare from the comforts of a living room chair. The headline attractions will be nationally televised by NBC and CBS.

The Liberty and Bluebonnet are new additions to the bowl list and both were fortunate to line up attractive games despite the heavy bidding for talent from the older and more famous promotions.

Liberty Bowl sponsors expect a crowd of at least 50,000 in the huge Philadelphia Stadium, site of the annual Army-Navy game.

Penn State, with one of the year's top quarterbacks in triple-threat Richie Lucas is one of the East's gridiron powers, losing only two games. One of those was a two-point defeat '29-18 on a two-point conversion, that failed by unbeaten, national champion Syracuse.

Alabama, being rebuilt to its oldtime stature by Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant, finished the season on a powerful wave. After losing its opening game to Georgia and being tied by Vanderbilt and Tennessee, the Crimson Tide won its last five games for a 7-1-2 mark. Two of the victims were Georgia Tech and Auburn.

The Cotton Bowl at Dallas got the nation's No. 1 team, Syracuse, which will play Texas, No. 4. The Nos. 2 and 3 teams—Mississippi and Louisiana State—clash in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans where Mississippi hopes to avenge a 7-3 regular season setback. This game features an individual duel between rival All-America players, LSU's Billy Cannon, the AP back of the year, and Mississippi's Charley Flowers.

The Rose Bowl at Pasadena brings together the champion of the Big Ten, Wisconsin, and the co-champion of the Pacific Coast, the Big Five, Washington. The Orange Bowl at Miami features Georgia, the Southeastern Conference king, and Missouri, runner-up in the Big Eight.

Top Defensive 11's Tangle On Saturday

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Texas Christian and Clemson, a couple of defensive specialists with sparkling backfield stars, inaugurate the Bluebonnet Bowl football game next Saturday in 70,000-seat Rice Stadium.

The nationally televised game (CBS 3:30 p.m., EST) matches the champion of the Atlantic Coast Conference against a Texas Christian team that shares the Southwest Conference title with two other bowl-bound schools, Texas and Arkansas.

Houston's first experiment with post-season classics since the Oil Bowl of 1946-48 may not draw a full house but the 150 businessmen launching the Bluebonnet have guaranteed each team $100,000. A crowd of 45,000 is needed to break even and the sponsors anticipate little difficulty in exceeding that mark.

Both teams featured rugged line play led by outstanding tackles all season but the Bluebonnet places one of the nation's best ground gainers against Clemson's greatest all-time passer.

TCU's Jack Spikes, a 205-pound fullback, led all Southwest Conference rushers with 660 yards in 140 carries. Harvey White, a 6-foot-2 senior quarterback, led Clemson on total offense with 719 yards and ended his year varsity career with a Tiger record of 2,026 yards passing.

An All-America tackle, Don Floyd, leads the TCU line, while Lou Cordileone, a third team All-America tackle leads the Clemson forwards.

Both of the veteran teams—the 22 starters will include 16 seniors—completed their regular schedules with 8-2 records.

TCU enters the game as the nation's No. 7 team, Clemson No. 11. Clemson nailed down its seventh bowl trip while losing only to Georgia Tech and Maryland. TCU won seven straight games after losing in early season on muddy fields to nationally ranked Louisiana State and Arkansas.

The TCU string included a 14-9 victory over previously undefeated Texas.

Clemson moves into town at noon Thursday. The Horned Frogs follow 24 hours later.

The national champion Syracuse team will be among those witnessing the Clemson-TCU battle. Syracuse also arrives Friday to establish training headquarters for its New Year's Day Cotton Bowl date with Texas in Dallas.

TCU has compiled a 4-5-1 record for trips to the Sugar, Cotton, Orange and Delta bowls. Clemson holds a 3-3 record for Cotton, Gator and Sugar Bowl appearances.

Sponsors organized the Bluebonnet Bowl with an unofficial policy to try to match the Southwest Conference runner-up team against an outstanding intersectional opponent.

The Southwest champion is pledged to the Cotton Bowl but this year's three-way tie opened the way for TCU to come here and for Arkansas to meet Georgia Tech in the Gator Bowl. Texas got the Cotton Bowl bid since it had not played there since 1953.

Hatcheries Produced 18 1/2 Million Fish During Year

AUSTIN (AP)—The Game Commission said Saturday fish hatchery superintendents and inland fishery biologists will meet here Jan. 7. They will work out details of the 1960 program at the annual session.

The commission reported in 1959 that 18 1/2 million fish were produced at commission hatcheries and released in Texas lakes and streams.

Corpus Christi and the Rio Grande. Pintails were heaviest in the Sabine to Galveston area.

AUSTIN (AP)—The Game Commission said Saturday public oyster reefs in Aransas have been closed.

Howard Lee, director of marine fisheries, said the reefs in Aransas Bay have been overworked or damaged and production is such that a slowdown is necessary for conservation. The reefs are in Aransas and Nueces counties.

Aaron Is Crowned Official Titlist

CINCINNATI (AP)—Hammerin' Hank Aaron of the Milwaukee Braves, who led the National League batters from the opening week to the season's end, Saturday was crowned the official champion for 1959.

Aaron wound up with a 355 average to win the senior circuit title for the second time. The Braves' outfielder won his first crown in 1956 with a 323 mark. Joe Cunningham of St. Louis finished second with a 345 average last season, official averages released by National League Headquarters disclosed.

Eddie Mathews, another Milwaukee slugger, edged Chicago's Ernie Banks for the home run championship. Mathews hit one in the final playoff game against Los Angeles, giving him 46. Banks had 45. Ernie led in 1958 with 47.

TCU enters the game as the nation's No. 7 team, Clemson No. 11. Clemson nailed down its seventh bowl trip while losing only to Georgia Tech and Maryland. TCU won seven straight games after losing in early season on muddy fields to nationally ranked Louisiana State and Arkansas.

Zoning Board Plans For Future Of City

Planning the future of Big Spring and providing protection through zoning regulations for the existing city, are the important functions of the Big Spring Planning and Zoning Commission.

On the surface, these matters may appear routine. But in practice, the commission runs into many thorny problems. In many of these cases, the commission turns to the people, through public hearings, to find an answer.

OPEN MEETINGS

Horace Reagan, chairman of the commission, has insisted that all residents attending the meetings get an opportunity to speak. This was true last week, when the commission called a public hearing regarding a zoning change in the Coronado Hills subdivision, at the Marcy Dr.-Wasson Road intersection.

Developers of the subdivision asked the commission to change 14 lots in the subdivision from Zone A, residential, to Zone E, commercial. Residents in the change, telling the commission that commercial property would de-value surrounding property. The noise of a commercial section was another objection.

The commission voted down a change of zoning following the hearing.

Tuesday, the developers took their request before the Big Spring City Commission, which can hear appeals from decisions of the planning and zoning board. The city commissioners declined to act on the matter, suggesting that the developers bring the matter up at a later date.

ANOTHER PROBLEM

Still another problem on zoning faces the next meeting of the planning board. This one involves a half block on E. 5th, between Franklin and Circle Dr.

City zoning maps, until last week, carried this plot as Zone E. Developer Lloyd Curley purchased the land to build an apartment house, which is allowed in this zone.

The city requires that a structure observe a 25 foot setback from the front property line. Curley asked the zoning board of adjustment to allow a variance from the requirement as he wanted to build within four feet of the front property line. The board called a public hearing.

Then, Jimmy Parks and A. A. Graumann appeared before the planning and zoning commission and asked for a public hearing to change the plot from Zone E to Zone A. This move, if approved, would prohibit an apartment house.

The residents of the area told the commission that an apartment house would hurt land values and increase traffic in the area. Curley's building would have 29 apartments. He pointed out that parking would be from the alley side of the building.

Wayne Basden, attorney representing the people in the area, told the commission that his clients held a meeting to discuss the matter and were opposed to the building.

The commission tabled any action on the change until after the decision by the Zoning Board of Adjustment.

NEVER ZONE E

The next round came at the city commission meeting when it was announced that the plot had never been legally changed to Zone E in the first place. Apparently, the city commission in 1955 approved the change, but it was not formally adopted as an ordinance or legally published.

Certain other plots in this area, thought to be Zone F, also are still Zone A. The city commission turned the matter back to the planning and zoning board in the light of this new information.

The adjustment board public hearing was called off due to the fact that Curley could not build the apartment house until the plot is officially changed to some zone other than A or B.

Thus, the planning and zoning board faces the problem of zoning these areas in question, calling a public hearing for resident consideration, and then giving final approval.

Zoning is only half of the problems of the commission. Every plan for a subdivision must have the approval of this official body.

The commission, at almost every monthly meeting, must study and approve or disapprove future additions to the city. Developers bring their plans before the commission asking approval of a plan containing lot layout, water facilities, sewer facilities, and other improvements, including paving and drainage facilities.

The decisions of the commission, in large part, shape the appearance of the Big Spring of the future.

Besides Reagan, the planning and zoning commission includes Olen Puckett, Wendal Parks, Brown Rogers, George Elliott, J. D. Jones, Dewey Martin, Jim Bill Little and Shelby Reed.

Death Cause Puzzle To Port Arthur Officials

PORT ARTHUR (AP) — Officers admitted Saturday they are still baffled at how Clifford Byrd, 55, insurance man and fishing enthusiast, died.

Bodies of Byrd and his wife Dorothy, 52, were found on the floor of their fashionable home Thursday. She had been shot repeatedly apparently with a .22 caliber pistol which was found on the dining room table.

Byrd, first believed also shot, later was found to have suffered no wounds and his body bore no marks of violence.

The woman had been shot in the hip, abdomen, chest and twice in the head, where the wounds bore powder burns. Byrd was lying on the grating of a floor furnace, part of his body seared.

Byrd's wrist watch with the metal band broken was picked up near the body of his wife who lay in the doorway connecting the dining room and kitchen. The man's body was halfway in the bathroom. Nothing else in the house was in disarray.

The house was found locked when friends became suspicious that something was wrong. A son-in-law, Lynn Meyer, who had returned from military service the previous day, was called. He forced entry and found the bodies.

An examination of the viscera of the man is being performed by a laboratory in Houston. It may be two weeks before a final report is ready, Justice of Peace Lloyd Blanchard said. Contents of medicine and drug bottles in the bathroom also are being analyzed.

Funeral services for the two were held Saturday.

Two Children Die When House Burns

TEXARKANA, Tex. (AP)—Two small Negro children perished Saturday in fire that destroyed their frame house.

They were Liza Jane, 1½, and Joe Anne, 6 months, children of Mr. and Mrs. Otha Minefield. Four other children escaped. Both parents were away at work.

Painting Of Nude Causes Traffic Jam

FORT WORTH (AP)—A painting of a nude, as big as life and almost as graphic, stopped downtown pedestrians—or forced them to move quickly by—on W. 7th St. Saturday.

The painting is in a big window of the Ellison Galleries.

It shows a woman lying on her back, holding a sheet of music in her hand. The sheet covers not a thing.

It is by a New York artist, Ben Johnson, and is called "The Song."

Also in the window is a sign saying: "This painting was rejected from the Fort Worth Art Assn. as being 'vulgar.' What do you think? Come in!"

Also on display is a telegram to Robert Ellison Jr. from artist Johnson. It says:

"Am shocked that someone in Texas considers themselves as superior in judgment to the living father of us all who created man and woman without clothes. Let us remember that man was banished from the Garden of Eden because he became conscious of what he considered his and his wife's nakedness, thereby presuming to sit in judgment of his Creator."

Garland Ellis, president of the art association said Ellison wasn't sticking to the bare facts when he put up that sign.

"We didn't reject the picture. We just didn't have room for it that was all," said Ellis. "And the word 'vulgar' is something Bobby (Ellison) coined."

"The female form has been painted for years but we've got some old ladies who criticize these things—they just give us hell."

"The city supplies more than half the money for us and we can't be subject to criticism. There are some things you can't do—like putting on a striptease in Will Rogers Coliseum."

"The Song," by the way, isn't going for a song. It's priced at $1,500."

93-Year Old Innkeeper Is Still Active

BURY ST. EDMUNDS, England (AP)—One of Britain's oldest innkeepers plans to spend her 93rd birthday at the bar next week. She is Ellen Bruton, owner of the Elephant and Castle pub for the past 38 years, who says her son helps but she spends long hours daily behind the bar and—on the consumer side—tips a glass or two herself.

Festive Tables For Holiday Fun

RED AND GOLD made a gay combination for the table setting arranged by Mrs. John Taylor, seated, and Mrs. Hayes Stripling Jr. in picture at left, when they entertained members of the 1955 Hyperion Club in the Stripling home. For the informal Christmas tea, a red cloth was bordered in golden spruce clusters with accents of silver. At the table's end, a cluster of gilded spruce with red and golden balls, followed the border motif and held an arrangement of gilded tapers. British ironstone appointments were used for serving.

WHITE CHRISTMAS THEME was chosen by Mrs. Merrill Creighton, in picture at left, for her table decoration. A flocked arrangement in white featured red and gold Christmas balls, red Christmas ribbon, white tipped pinecones and three white candles. This arrangement was set upon a gold lame tablecloth edged with gold Christmas tinsel. An ironstone tea service was used, and milkglass serving dishes. Red napkins put the added touch to the white, gold and red color scheme.

SILVER SPARKLES on the forest green background used by Mrs. Carl Marcum for her table decoration. The arrangement features a silver reindeer on a styrofoam base and surrounded by dried material sprayed silver. Two silver candles, sprinkled with glitter, stand in the background. White snowflakes decorated with silver glitter are scattered on the dark green cloth among the silver appointments. Mrs. Harrol Jones watches as her hostess puts the finishing touches on the attractive table.

TWINKLING CANDLES float in a shallow dish in the center of Mrs. J. D. Leonard's table. Greenery circles the dish holding tiny red and green star-shaped candles, and is interspersed with small multi-colored Christmas balls. The tablecloth was designed and made by Mrs. Leonard. It is red net over red taffeta with a red felt border. Felt poinsettias, angels, bells, candles, reindeer and Santa Clauses decorate the skirt. On the buffet in the background are two angel chimes that have been in the family for years.

A MODERNISTIC CHRISTMAS TREE formed an attractive accompaniment for the silver and red table decoration used in the tea given for members of the 1955 Hyperion Club. Fashioned of painted lumber, the angular tree was hung with tinsel, lights and gay Christmas bells. A mobile in the center was made up of bells, balls, birds and other sparkles. On the festive table, a silver reindeer stood in a base of red carnations and silvered foliage. Red Christmas balls enhanced the base of silver which held the grouping. Three-year-old Luan Carlton watches as Mrs. Jimmie Morehead, president of the club, prepares to serve the hostesses. At left is Mrs. Travis Carlton, in whose home the party was given; others are Mrs. Raymond River, Mrs. Allison Muneke and Mrs. L. D. Harris, reading from left to right.

Money Trees?

No, money doesn't grow on trees around the Randal Stewart home, but it seems to grow in picture frames. Mrs. Stewart and three-year-old Casey look at just a part of the coin collection that is the hobby of their husband and father.

New Family Collectors Of Old Coins

Randal Stewart doesn't know why he started collecting coins, but his wife Druella laughs and says, "He likes money!"

Judging by her husband's collection of over 300 American coins, she must be correct.

Randal began collecting coins when he was in the Army. Stationed in Korea, he had an opportunity to collect foreign currency, too. He now has both coins and paper bills from Korea, Japan, Germany, France, Greece, Mexico, Italy, and Canada.

In coin folders he has a complete collection of Roosevelt dimes, and partial collections of a number of other coins.

His father, who saves nothing but dimes, has a complete collection of this coin. Pennies seem to be the specialty of Randal, however.

The Stewarts, Randal, Druella and three-year-old Casey, moved here recently from Tampa. He is employed by Jay Dement Wrecking Yard.

Originally the Stewarts hailed from Jacksonville. Here their families are second generation friends. Druella's parents went to school with Randal's parents. Their fathers played professional baseball together. Druella and Randal went to school together, too. They were married four years ago.

Druella enjoys old painting, but with irksome Casey around doesn't find too much time for it.

"I have to wait until he is asleep, or he sticks his fingers in my paint," the collector's wife relates.

Yule Parties Entertain Forsanites

FORSAN — Christmas parties have filled the December schedule of Forsanites.

Mrs. Bob Cowley was hostess at a covered dish luncheon for the Belle Overton and Willie Mae Kennedy Circles of the Forsan Baptist Church during the Week of Prayer. She also was hostess for the Christmas social of the Willie Mae Kennedy group. Eight members exchanged gifts.

They were joined by other members of the church in wrapping gifts for an orphanage in Lubbock.

Eighteen members and one visitor, Roy Walraven, attended the Forsan Service Club meeting Thursday evening. Joe T. Holladay, presiding officer, discussed the sponsoring of a welfare fund. Other clubs will be asked to participate.

At a Friday afternoon meeting, members of Girl Scout Troop 340 finished gifts which they had been making for their fathers. Mrs. Lee Burklow was hostess for the gathering.

Two new members were welcomed into the troop; they are Vicki Coffey and Corinne Collins. Ellen Loftis served refreshments.

Feminine and flattering is this fitted princess robe in bowknot-print corduroy with small baby-ribbon bows trimming the bodice. Washable, of course.

Corduroy Now Goes Glamorous

AP Women's Editor

Loungewear has come a long way since the day of the Mother Hubbard.

Nowadays it's easy to look smart and pretty around the house, since designers have turned their attention to glamorizing the home scene. A favorite of the season is our old friend, cotton corduroy — still inexpensive, practical and washable but newly glamorous.

For at-home wear you may choose a gay flower-print, a bold plaid or a vivid solid color, imaginatively styled, gay and flattering. There are house coats with oriental styling, in vivid Chinese colors. There are swashbuckling trench-coat styles for wear around the house and there are pretty, feminine robes in delicate prints. Also popular with the younger set are jumpsuits — a glorified version of the overall, easy to jump into in the morning. New this season is a jumpsuit in bright red, peacock or purple pinwaile corduroy, with treader pants, drawstring waistline and ball-fringe trim on collar and pockets.

King-size plaids are important in the loungewear picture, as they are in the entire winter fashion lineup. A top hit is a loose duster in bold plaid-print corduroy, with huge patch pockets and wide collar.

For the ladylike look there are graceful fitted princess-style short robes that look like dresses, with dainty feminine trimmings such as lace, braid or baby-ribbon bows.

Fire Ma'ams Have Yule Dinner

A Christmas dinner highlighted the evening for the Fire Ma'ams when they met Friday in Coker's restaurant.

A basket was packed by club members with groceries and toys for a needy family.

Mrs. Sam Lewis assisted Mrs. Taylor in serving fruit cake and coffee to the 12 present.

January meeting of the group will be held at the state hospital where the women will sponsor a party for patients.

Modern Forum Joined By Guests At Luncheon

Three guests joined members of the Modern Woman's Forum for luncheon Friday in the home of Mrs. J. D. Leonard. The occasion was the annual Christmas party of the group; cohostesses were Mrs. Hugh Duncan and Mrs. Clyde Thomas.

Bo Bowen, a guest speaker, chose as her topic, Make Every Day Christmas, and she stressed the importance of helping the needy throughout the year, rather than just on holidays.

Mrs. C. B. South and Mrs. W. F. Taylor were the other two guests.

Traditions and customs which lands observe at the Christmas season, were discussed by Mrs. W. A. Laswell, who spoke of how the youth of many nations might be brought together with the spirit of peace and Christmas.

Mrs. Duncan related the story of how the poinsettia, a native of Mexico, was improved into the blossom that we know today and was named for the horticulturist, Poinsett, who worked with it.

Foursome tables were centered with vigil lights surrounded by a blossom of poinsettia; guests were served from a buffet table covered in red net over red taffeta; appliques of poinsettias, Santa and reindeer and trees enhanced the skirt of the cloth, bordered with red felt.

Gifts were exchanged by the group; announcement was made of the next meeting, to be held Jan. 8 in the home of Mrs. Ira Driver, 1206 Johnson.

Has Diet Problem, Too

Debra Paget discusses the trouble she has had in maintaining her normal weight. She is soon to be seen in a "Riverboat" segment for NBC-TV.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Strenuous Dieting Effective, Harmful

By LYDIA LANE
HOLLYWOOD.—When I went on the "Riverboat" set at NBC-TV I wasn't prepared to see Debra Paget a brunette because only a few nights before at a party she had been a blonde.
"This is a wig," Debra explained, "but it's the natural color of my hair."
"It's certainly a lot easier to keep my hair natural, but I'm a moody person and I'm always changing the color of my hair. To keep it in good condition, every four days I give myself a hot oil treatment. There is no question about it," she continued, "the color of your hair affects your personality. I can go along with any shade but platinum and that is too flashy for me."
As we sat on the side of the set, the snack cart passed by displaying candy bars, ice cream and chocolate covered doughnuts.
"What's happened to your sweet tooth?" I asked Debbie who did not seem to be aware of all these goodies parading in front of us.
"You were a teen-ager with a weight problem the first time we met," I reminded her.
"Until a very short time ago," Debbie declared, "I was an adult with a weight problem. I have gone through some terrible years, struggling to keep my weight down. It is no fun for anybody but when your career depends on dieting this can really become a problem."
"You look wonderful now," I commented.

"I am five-feet-three and I like to keep around 102, and when I'm dancing or doing a show I have no trouble at all. But as soon as I'm not working, when I have time around the house, I gain."
"My heart goes out to all the women with a refrigerator within a few easy steps. When I have time on my hands, that is where I go and eat anything in sight. It's nervousness, because I often eat things I don't even like."
"I know that I'm not eating from hunger or even for taste, but that doesn't stop me. I have a tendency to retain water in my tissues and this always makes a weight problem; I find it helps me to go to a gym and have a steam bath for about 10 or 15 minutes every day."
"I used to get so nervous when I looked fat in a dress I knew I was going to have to wear. But now I go on an emergency diet and lose five pounds in one day. It is quite severe but was worked out to have an effect on my body chemistry. The doctor warned me against going on it for more than one day. But," Debra smiled, "you know me. I always go to extremes, so I decided I would lose 10 pounds in two days, but nothing happened. The second day I didn't lose anything at all. It's only effective after normal eating."
"What is this diet?" I asked.
"You can't work when you are on it," Debbie warned, "because you feel weak. But if for some very important reason you have to lose a lot of weight quickly, you can."
"Here it is," she said. "Three times a day I have a scoop of ice cream and a cup of black coffee. That is all. It won't work if you break the diet with any substitution or nibbling. This I learned from experience. When I follow the rules it always works, but," Debbie cautioned, "I call this my emergency diet because I only go on it in extreme cases."
"Just within the last year I have been able to stick to three balanced meals a day without going on those terrible sweet binges. I found that once I started eating healthful foods such as meats, vegetables and salads, and stayed away from the unhealthy ones I began liking what I was eating. But this takes discipline," Debbie held up her crossed fingers. "I hope my weight problems are really in the past and that I will never again find myself eating from nerves."
"The best advice that was ever given me was, 'Keep busy.' Try putting your mind on a good book or work at something because going to the icebox can be caused by boredom as well as having a problem," she concluded.
MENTAL SIDE OF DIETING
Leaflet M-3, "The Mental Side of Dieting," is designed for those who have a sincere desire to be thin, yet cannot bring themselves to control their appetites. If you are having trouble reducing, stop worrying about it and try to find out why you are overweight. Then send for your copy of Leaflet M-3. For your copy send only 10 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Lydia Lane, Hollywood Beauty, Big Spring Herald.

Lamesan Takes Bride In Abilene Ceremony

LAMESA — Wedding vows were exchanged at 5:30 p.m. Saturday in the chapel of College Church of Christ, Abilene, by Nancy Louise Ridgeway and Rodney Gerald Bearden of Lamesa.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ridgeway of Fly, Ohio, are the parents of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bearden of Lamesa are the bridegroom's parents.

The double ring ceremony was read by Robert Johnson, minister for Dyess Air Force Base congregation of the Church of Christ, at the all-white altar centered with a white Gothic archway flanked by gleaming candles in pedestaled candelabra and baskets of white gladioli and white stock.

A chorus from the North Side Church of Christ sang preceding the ceremony and the "Wedding Prayer" after the benediction.

The bride's gown of lace and tulle over taffeta was fashioned with fitted bodice long tapering sleeves and a rounded neckline sprinkled with seed pearls; lace formed a peplum over the ruffled tiered floor length skirt and fell into a chapel train in back with a ruffle of tulle edging the train hemline.

Her veil of illusion was attached to a tiara of pearls. The bride carried a shower arrangement of pink roses with bridal ribbon tied in sweetheart knots.

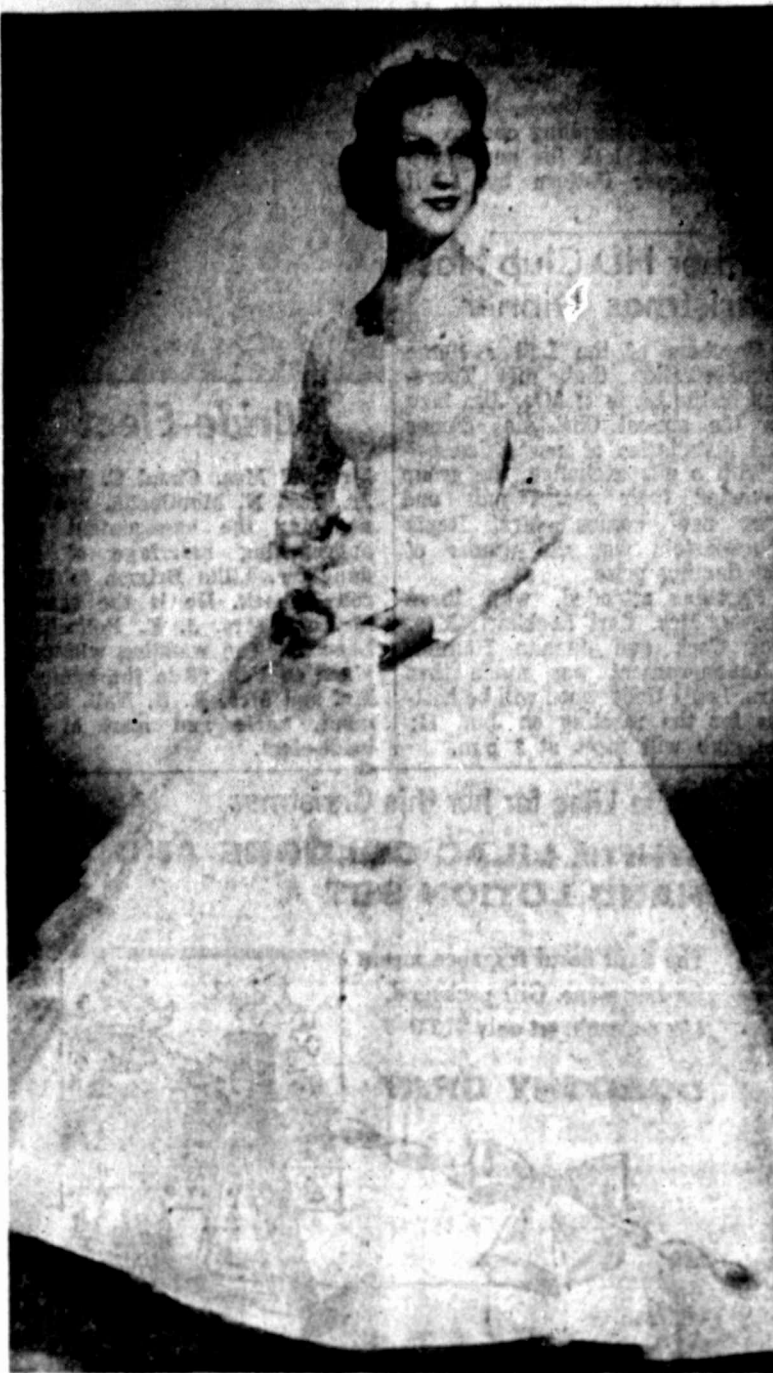

Maid of honor was Nadine Chambers of El Paso, and Shirley Morrison was bridesmaid. They wore identical dresses of turquoise velvet with matching Dior bows and carried colonial bouquets of white carnations.

The bridegroom's sister, Dawn Bearden, of Lamesa, was flower girl. Best man was Dal Ballew of Bartlett. Ushers were Johnny Patterson of Brownfield and Dale Wofford of Stamford; Allen Ballew of Bartlett was groomsman.

Wedding guests attended a reception following the ceremony in McKinzie Hall parlor on the campus of Abilene Christian College. Members of the house party included Jackie Hance, Suzanne Rushing and Mary Nan Fitch.

For a wedding trip to Dallas, Mrs. Bearden selected a cherry pink two piece wool dress with matching feather hat. Following her graduation from Matamoras High School, New Matamoras, Ohio, the bride attended Abilene Christian College for two years. She is employed by the City of Abilene.

A graduate of Lamesa High School, Bearden is a junior at ACC.

Try Celery Root

If celery root (called celeriac in bygone days) is available in your food markets and you have never used it, do try it! Pare, slice thin and then cut into matchstick-size pieces. Dress with French dressing or mayonnaise, or some of each, and serve as a first course.

Re-Use It

With a gift exchange, the group revealed their secret pals and drew new names. Mrs. Regis Fleckenstein was the winner of the floating prize.

Fourteen attended, with three guests, Mrs. Carl Lockhart, Mrs. Don Cook and Juanita Hamlin.

Announcement was made that Mrs. Louis Underwood will be hostess for the meeting on Jan. 14; the club will meet at 2 p.m.

Guests came from Abilene, Lawn, Throckmorton, Brownfield, Plains, Big Lake, Sonora, Odessa, Midland, Snyder, Monahans, Sweetwater, Colorado City, Hereford, Fort Sumner, and Hobbs, N. M., Lamesa, Blackwell, Gail, Tarzan, Plainview, Sterling City, Mason, Memphis, Stanton and Coahoma.

'ROUND TOWN

With Lucille Pickle

There should be at least one week set aside just before Christmas for mamas to get themselves in condition for doing justice to their families on Christmas Day. With all the festivities by the time the reason for the celebration arrives, we are all shot from too much going. But it is a very pleasant sort of tiredness and being with one's friends makes the weariness more bearable.

Visiting in the home of MR. AND MRS. BILL CROOKER and their children are Mr. Crooker's parents, MR. AND MRS. W. D. CROOKER of New York City. The couple arrived in Midland on the 3 o'clock plane Saturday, and they plan to be here for three weeks. This is their first trip to Texas and they were probably disappointed when the family didn't meet them in a buckboard, which would have been fun if they could have found one. Anyway, we're looking forward to meeting them. I understand Mr. Crooker boned up for the visit by reading "Giant" and I can't help but feel he's in for an awful let down. Of course the three grandchildren, Karen, Billy and Dorie, will help take some of the disappointment away and will offer enough excitement to make him forget what Miss Ferner wrote, which was all a bunch of stuff anyway. "We-all" don't act like that. Welcome to Big Spring, Crookers!

MRS. JACK SMITH and Stevie, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Rutledge, returned Friday afternoon from Del Rio where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Louis Knight, who spent last week here with the Smiths.

In Snyder Thursday night to see Dark at the Top of the Stairs were MRS. W. N. NORRED, MRS. ALTON UNDERWOOD, MRS. FELIX JARRETT, MRS. J. C. IRWIN and MRS. C. W. MAHONEY.

Among the many charming women who have come to Big Spring to make their home recently is MRS. CHRIS WATSON who among other things is a national flower show judge, a pilot, and a former teacher at the University of Houston. With all these accomplishments, she's pretty, too.

H. F. TAYLOR accompanied by his daughter, MRS. HENRY EDWARDS of San Angelo, returned here Friday from Henrietta where he attended funeral services for Joe Edwards.

MR. AND MRS. S. P. JONES are back from a weeks visit with relatives in McKinney, Dallas and Sulphur Springs.

MRS. DESSIE LUTZ, whose home is in Lucasville, Ohio, is here to be with her daughter and her family, MR. AND MRS. CARL E. CALL, VICKI and CINDY. Mrs. Call is to enter a local hospital Monday for surgery. Her mother plans to be here for three or four weeks.

MRS. JAMES CHOATE was in Dublin Wednesday for funeral services for her grandfather, W. E. Ellison, who died Tuesday. Also present for the services was T. Sgt. BILLY ROSE of Big Spring, who is stationed at Sheppard AFB, Wichita Falls.

MAJ. AND MRS. A. A. ADAIR and their son, Robert, have returned from Phoenix, Ariz., where they spent a two weeks leave with her aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Cook.

MR. AND MRS. ALTON BAGWELL and Jimmy, are spending the weekend in Snyder with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Bagwell.

The holiday season has officially begun in the FLOYD WHITE and H. C. STIPP homes. It began when MRS. LOUIS STIPP and her little son, David, arrived from Houston for the holidays. Mr. Stipp plans to join the family next Saturday. Also on that day another of the White children, Jimmy, will arrive from New York, where he has been for three years during which time the parents have not seen him. Also planning to be here for the Christmas reunion of the White family are Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Robinson of Knot.

MR. AND MRS. O. H. McALISTER, who reside mostly at their ranch at Rhine, were among those back home this weekend for the annual Howard County South Plains Hereford Association show and sale.

If your family is going away for a visit with relatives or friends, or if you are planning a family gathering for this Christmas season, call me at 3-2542. It doesn't even have to be a family gathering. If you have one person, who is coming to your house from out of town to honor you with a visit, all of us would like to know. Let us know before they come, so they won't be gone before their friends here can call them or drop by for a short chat.

Credit Club Sees Movies At Party

Movies of a Christmas party taken some years ago were shown to the Credit Club members at a party Friday evening in the home of Mrs. Noel Hull.

Two guests, Mrs. Claud Miller and Mrs. Letha Massie were present for the fun and the dinner, which was served buffet style.

Foursome tables were done in pink and white with pink cardies in a base of frosted cedar as a centerpiece for each table. Pink cloths furthered the color scheme. Food was contributed for a basket to be presented to a family, and members exchanged gifts.

Toyland Is Ready For Young Scientists' Play

Modern-minded Santa is all set for the 1960s, with toys that mirror every facet of contemporary living, from shooting the moon to raising babies.

No matter how breath-taking the advances of modern science, children take them in stride, says Mel Freud, president of Toy Guidance Council. Small fry accept as routine the conquering of outer space, peaceful uses of the atom and all the other wonders of our jet age.

As a matter of fact, nostalgic toys inspired by our historic past are just as popular as those of the space age this year. Antique automobiles and Wild West paraphernalia are top of the 1959 toy pack.

Model sports car kits are favorites with small boys, and little girls are taking up embroidery.

Housekeeping in toyland is strictly up-to-the-minute, with models of the last word in all kitchen appliances, with electric dishwashers, washing machines and dryers that really work.

Playroom highways this year will have trucks designed to carry half-a-dozen motor boats and a special vehicle for transporting horses in addition to the more familiar wheel toys.

Career-keyed toys include a drive-in movie theater and a print-

Impish Small Boys Are Models For Cherubs

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The most precious little cherub on a Christmas card is likely to be an imp in real life. So says greeting card artist Sheila Beckett, whose angelic little Christmas card people are modeled by her sons, Sean, 3, and Ian, 13.

"Oh, they don't sit still while I draw," she laughs. "I just try to remember how little Sean looks when he's asleep and how Ian used to look as a small boy, and I look at old photographs, and go on from there."

Sean is at that interesting age, climbing all over Mom as she tries to draw, getting into the brushes. Aside from that he's an angel. A new dog, a basset hound, has been introduced on the family scene and Sean is paying him some attention.

Sheila draws everything from greeting cards to nudes. She does ribald readers and children's books. She likes to do costume drawings, because she's always had a yen to be a fashion designer or ballet dancer.

She has been painting for 13 years — displays, brochures, billboards, backgrounds for windows in Los Angeles, where she had moved from Portland, Ore. — until she began the Christmas cards about seven years ago.

She was born in Canada but lived in Ireland, her mother's home, during her teens.

"I always did my own Christmas cards and someone suggested I do them for others. I enjoy it more than anything else. I'm not really a painter, though. I draw and then sort of fill in the drawing with paint," she says.

Sheila's rich celestial scenes are best sellers each year. A typical one is a madonna-like figure, colorful flowers and a number of gay, angelic fair-haired children dancing about.

The family lives on two and a half acres in Ossining, N. Y. Her artist husband, John Frederick Smith, has turned to commercial photography, but can still help her with perspective in her drawing, she says.

Ian shows promise of becoming an artist, but flirts with photography now like Dad.

TEL Class Party

Instead of the regular exchange of gifts, members of the Baptist Temple TEL Class changed the routine Thursday evening. The group contributed to the Lottie Moon Fund in place of buying and giving gifts. Mrs. J. C. Eudy was hosting for the party, and Mrs. Monroe Gafford brought a devotion for the nine attending.

Evidence Of Political Interest Is Developing

By SAM BLACKBURN

Politics at a county level is already beginning to bubble in Howard County.

One candidate, not now in office, has publicly avowed himself; another has indicated in public print that he intends to seek election. And all of the incumbents who must seek re-election if they are to continue their jobs — with one or two exceptions — have definitely stated they will be in the contests.

The change in state election laws which makes it requisite the candidates officially file their names with the county committee chairman by the first Monday in February has tended to fan the political fire somewhat earlier than is normal. In the past, the filing date was later in the spring.

OFFICES AT STAKE

Offices at county and district level which will be filled this year are:

Sheriff, county tax assessor-collector, county attorney, two county commissioners, district attorney, district judge, one justice of the peace, two constables and a state representative.

The one office holder who has not definitely made up his mind if he wants to seek return to the post he now holds in Guilford Jones, district attorney. "I'm thinking about it," he said, and right after the Christmas holidays I am going to make up my mind."

Ralph W. Caton, who will become district judge of the 118th Judicial District on Jan. 1 by virtue of his appointment Friday by Gov. Daniel, will have to begin campaigning almost simultaneously with his assumption of office. Under the law his appointment extends only until the next general election, which will be next Nov. 8. It is assumed that Caton intends to seek election.

In the county office bracket, all

D-Jockey Never Sausage Assorted Payola Presents

CROWLEY, La. (AP) — Alden Sonnier, a Cajun-French radio disc jockey in Evangeline Land, always thought a gift from a listener was laziapape — just a little something extra.

Then came payola, radio-TV. That's when, Sonnier said, his conscience began to hurt. So he wrote to the Federal Communications Commission in Washington. "I understand," he wrote, "you are checking up on so-called payola to persons engaged in playing music on the radio. I wish to report that for the past several years I have been conducting a Cajun-French radio program on this station, and that during these years I have received for playing one record, one dozen home-grown grapefruit from Alex Broussard of Duson, La., for playing his recording of 'Le Sud de la Louisiane'."

"However, over the years, I have received quite a few things from listeners in appreciation for playing their favorite kinds of music. These include, as best as I can remember:

"About 25 yards of boudin (a highly seasoned rice sausage); about 35 yards of smoked sausage; seven or eight muscovy ducks, some dressed, some live; one pork shoulder roast; one pumpkin to make a Jack-O-Lantern for my kids (no papers concealed in it); several watermelons; half a case of open-kettle cane syrup; three messes of sweet potatoes; a half-sack of peanuts, fresh dug; a live guinea hen; one dish of hogheads cheese; a pound of hog cracklings; a paper sack of kumquats; a wild goose, dressed; innumerable cups of coffee bought for me by people who recognize me on the street; eight pounds of head- ed shrimp; a bottle of homemade orange wine; a mess of turnips; about a dozen jars of fig preserves."

Sonnier, long a staff announcer for radio station KSIG, told friends today with a straight face: "Now I have it off my conscience."

MUTTS DRAW LOOKERS BUT FEW TAKERS

Several came to look but only a few took a dog home with them.

City workers at the Warehouse at East 2nd and Dingley said that several Big Springers had been to the dog pound this past week to look at the impounded dogs.

"Unfortunately," said one of the men, people expect to find pedigreed dogs here. We just don't get them."

The pound does have three pups now. They were picked up earlier in the week and, like the others, are just dogs. An average of about six dogs each week, the dog catchers say, get bailed out. The rest are destroyed.

The city ordinance which spells out the licensing of dogs says that any dog running at large is illegal. Most family pets, if impounded by the dog catcher, carry a license tag and get redeemed.

A dog without a tag is assumed to be a stray. Most of the dogs picked up in the city fall into this category.

A Devotional For Today

What seest thou? (Zechariah 4:2.)

PRAYER: May my heart be always ready, O God, to receive Thy Word. May the light of the Holy Spirit give me insight and understanding. Help me to discern what Thou wilt have me learn. In Jesus' name. Amen. (From The 'Upper Room')

The Long Look At Our Bond Problems

Significant decisions are in the early future for the people of Big Spring, if the community is to keep pace with its population growth in the matter of providing public facilities. The phrase "public facilities" can be taken to cover everything from paving to school buildings.

Some decisions are inexcusable, brought about by our growth. They are uncomfortable decisions to make, because they mean more expense to the taxpayer, an individual who already is heavily burdened and who, if our feeling of the public pulse means anything, is about ready for organized resistance, if not revolt.

Public-spirited men who sit on our public councils such as the City Commission and the School Board are not unaware of this. And yet, because of their intimacy with the serious problems of providing more and more facilities, are pressed to try to provide them. There is only one way to do this—through bond issues.

The school administration already has publicized its problems in a study program that was designed to build public acceptance for more bond issues. The city administration is worried over the great need for more paving, more water lines, a more adequate sewer service, a system of storm sewers or flood control, more parks and more fire protection facilities.

The county may be facing some of the same problems, in acquisition of highway right-of-way, of meeting staggering welfare loads, of facing up to an eventual public hospital need.

So which of all these things are more pressing? For how many of these things can the people pay? What improvements are they ready to finance?

There ought to be a way to evaluate all these, and The Herald feels that some communities have found a route that is worth considering here. That would be the formation of a Progress Policy Committee (or call it what you will) that would study the bond issue proposals of all public agencies, and make recommendations as to priority. This is proposed because there needs to be a clearance to avert heavy bond issues being put to the people at nearly one and the same time by the city and the school district.

This would not be a group to divert any authority from the duly elected bodies, but to try to help them arrive at a balanced schedule. It is only normal that school trustees are first concerned with municipal problems. Perhaps a policy group could find the happy medium.

The Committee ought to be made of perhaps as many as 50 top people of this community; representatives of major taxpayers, of business, of labor, of the retired group. In any event, people who are willing to use time, skill and brains in meeting important community problems.

The school district is on a sound path in charting a long-range program; the city is following commendable policy in looking toward the master plan results. It seems to us that an advisory Committee could and would help dovetail just these programs; to help put the master plan into force and being, and to help the school adjust its sights in long-range planning. The county problems, too, ought to be considered.

The group could avoid some bad collisions or competitions between agencies, can adjust some differences in time schedules, and help take the message of money needs to the people. It could be another factor for orderly growth. This is what the community wants.

Terrific Grind Even For A Soldier

NEW DELHI — To give any real sense of the speed, the kaleidoscopic swiftness of the changing scenes, on this tour with President Eisenhower seems to one following in his train all but impossible. One fantastic detail overlays another until it is all but impossible to take in.

Wednesday was the most extraordinary day of the 11-nation pilgrimage for peace. Yet in pace and variety it is rapidly becoming typical. And the question that arises is simply whether the President and those accompanying him can survive.

Roughly it went like this: Out of the Metropole Hotel in Karachi at 5:30 a.m. to drive 40 minutes to the airport to take the press plane to Kabul in Afghanistan, one hour in advance of the President's departure.

IT IS PITCH DARK and the stars in the desert sky shine out brilliantly. Within a few minutes after the jet has roared into the air the East begins to reddens and soon it is a scarlet blaze. We are flying over fold after fold of blue mountain ranges that like waves gathering height as the great plane at 615 miles an hour approaches the snow-capped Hindu Kush Mountains to the northwest. The military airport at Kabul, built by the Russians, is at the center of a bowl of snowy peaks running up to 20,000 feet, with a narrow pass to go through. On the ground after a flight of an hour and a half the temperature is just under freezing. It is Shangri La, or the end of the world.

Along the edge of the bleak runway the diplomatic corps, an oddly assorted dozen — the British Ambassador in a slightly seedy top hat and monocle, one of the Arab Ambassadors in burmese and turban — is lined up. Three Afghan military jets — Russian Migs — take off to escort the President's plane to the field. And then out of the distant sky over the farthest range of snow-covered mountains the President's plane is visible, the sun catching the orange markings on nose and wings.

IT IS ALWAYS THRILLING to see his plane glide down and then slowly return from the end of the runway to the group waiting at the dais where the microphones are in place. The King of Afghanistan, Mohammed Zahir Shah, wearing a smart British-style uniform with scarlet facings and a military cloak that almost touches the tips of his highly polished boots, does the honors after the President has been formally presented by the chief of protocol. Then the routine is familiar — the military band playing the national anthems of the two countries, the guard of honor presenting arms and, in this instance, a traditional invocation to the soldiers by the President and a response by the guard drawn up at attention.

Eisenhower looks solemn and a little grim, with the scurry of the photographers plainly annoying to him. He had said goodbye to his previous host, President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan before dawn, flown nearly a thousand miles and now he is going through another ceremonial arrival.

ON THE 35-MILE ride from the airport to the capital the President sees a country that has a lonely, lost look, bare and cold, on the eve of winter which sometimes shuts this valley away for weeks at a time. Near the whitewashed adobe villages lined up along the highway are the men from the surrounding countryside, turbaned, wearing ragged draped costumes. They shoot some kind of welcoming cry and wave here and there a pathetic paper American or Afghan flag. But it is in Kabul that extraordinary crowds of these same ragged peasants along with city dwellers and a few women in modern dress roar their welcome. They throw confetti and flowers until the President's black Holtz is white and the floor of the open car in which he is riding with the King is ankle deep. Repeatedly he stands up to acknowledge the cheers and often masses of confetti hit him square in the face.

Chitloot Palace, where lunch and an hour long conference are held, is a square reddish building on a small cliff above the town. It, too, has the look of a lost Shangri La. The communique, which is only part of the ritual and a mere verbiage of goodwill, is issued in the last-minute rush.

THEN THERE IS A rush for the helicopters that will take the President and his party back to the airport. But the route is again through Kabul and the wildly enthusiastic crowds delay the passage of the royal cars.

So the President is more than half an hour late taking off for New Delhi. We on the press plane arrived at Palam Airport, 10 miles from the Indian capital, a little before four and the word is that the Eisenhower plane will be nearly 45 minutes late.

The large crowd, up to 50,000, at the airport is constantly being pushed back by police with their long, steel-tipped lathi. Prime Minister Nehru himself, delayed by the traffic jam blocking all roads to the airport, arrives to take personal supervision of all details of the welcome. He bobs about with the energy and the good humor characteristic of his moods of optimism, giving orders to the brilliantly garbed police and ceremonial officers and seeming to enjoy himself thoroughly.

THERE IS AN UNDERCURRENT of disappointment over the delay, since peasants from the country who along the route from the airport have been waiting since 11 a.m. will be unable to see him, as darkness will have fallen. At last the busy Nehru is satisfied that all is in readiness.

Against the backdrop of a glaring sunset the great plane once more comes out of the sky. Once more the greetings at the ramp, once more the national anthem, the greeting from President Rajendra Prasad of India, the response from President Eisenhower. As the red sun sinks below the horizon and the quick dusk begins to come on at this point, Eisenhower has already been on the road for 14 hours.

TRUCKS AND CRUDE BUSES packed to suffocation are crisscrossing the route, together with hundreds of bullock carts. There is no keeping the procession in order and the press buses are soon hopelessly blocked by every kind of vehicle. Somewhere up forward, dimly silhouetted in the dusty light, the President of the United States is being given an ovation such as few men have received here or anywhere else.

The triumphant ride through the heart of the city takes more than two hours. When Eisenhower arrives at President Prasad's palace for a dinner alone with his son, Maj. John Eisenhower, and John's wife, Barbara, he has been going for nearly 17 hours. That is the pace of this journey and the man at the center of it seems to take it in the stride of a soldier accustomed to long marches and the endless demands of campaigns that call for a concentrated time on all of the commander's energy and effort.

SOMETHING NEW HAS BEEN ADDED

We're All In Debt More Than Ever Before

Consumers are having quite a year on the cuff. Nineteen fifty-nine may not be the biggest year of going into debt, but it will be right up there with 1955.

You, I, and our many neighbors have been boosting owing to automobile dealers, banks, personal loan companies, department stores, and other merchants at an annual rate of more than six billion dollars.

In the 1955 spurge, we wound up $38,900,000,000 in debt, as against $32,500,000,000 at the start of the year, a 20 per cent jump. So far in '59, our borrowings have risen from $45,600,000,000 to just under $50 billion (see chart). However, after the Christmas mercurism, they'll approach $52,000,000,000. The indicated rise for the year is 14 per cent.

There's a difference in the two spurges. Autos account for only 40 per cent of the increase this year. In 1955, automobile installment debt accounted for 60 per cent of the growth in debt.

Then more than 7,000,000 passenger cars were sold. Automobile dealers and finance companies rediscovered the art of thinning down payments and stretching out terms — from 24 months to 30 months to 36 months. The ratio reduction continues to this day. "No Cash, three years to pay. Your old car is your down payment."

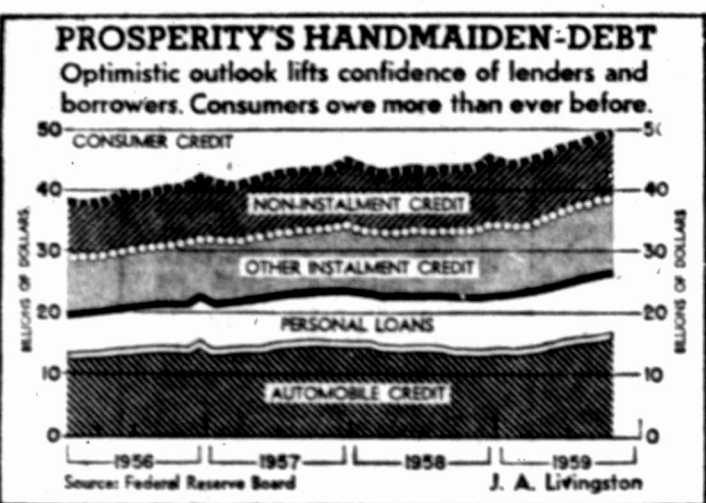

In one important particular, consumers seem to have their debt under control. Total consumer debt outstanding amounts to 14.9 per cent of disposable personal income. This is higher than it has ever been, but only a bit higher than in 1957 when debt amounted to 14.7 per cent of disposable personal income.

However, new debt is being extended more rapidly than consumer income is increasing. In 1955, new debt extension amounted to 14.2 per cent of income. This ratio dropped to 12.9 per cent in the 1958 recession. But now it's up to 14.8 per cent. Christmas buying will lift the percentage still higher.

At this juncture, the obvious warrants restatement. "Debt is helping make the mare go." And when consumer debt increases more rapidly than consumer income, as has been happening, the greater must be the increment in new debt to sustain economic expansion.

The 1959 increase in debt is a consequence of confidence. People feel secure in their jobs. They're willing to assume obligations. In turn, lenders are confident. They are satisfied that the great, great majority of people are honest — good pay.

Bankers, particularly, are sold on consumers as debtors. They've taken to charge-account lending and revolving credits. Both are variants of the same technique. Customers apply for a line of credit. If granted, they can use it to pay charge accounts at certain stores, or, in the case of revolving credit, in any way they see fit. They are expected to pay off a certain amount each month to the bank.

Example: If a customer is granted a $600 revolving credit payable in 20 months, he repays $30 a month, which, however, he can reborrow. Suppose he has made five monthly payments of $30 each, then he can write a check for $150 to raise this debt from $450 to $600.

Proponents of revolving credit argue it's no different from personal loan company lending. There a customer will borrow a set amount and proceed to pay it off. But, often, before the debt is repaid another — and sometimes greater loan — is made.

Under revolving credit, the banker doesn't see the customer once the "line" is set up. He relies solely on the monthly repayment, which, as noted, can be reborrowed — "rolled over." Bankers reason that a man who has a job and income is entitled to a line of credit even as a corporation is.

Lending has now swung full cycle. One of the quarrels with mortgage lenders — after the 1929 crash — was that they never required payment. Then came the amortized mortgage — regular reduction of principal. Now, through bank credit to consumers, we are lifting the level of personal debt. A permanent line of credit is advanced to a customer — so long as he makes his monthly payments.

In every era of expansion men find new ways to create money substitutes. In this era, it's revolving consumer credit.

THIS DAY IN TEXAS

By CURTIS BISHOP

Citizens of the quiet little lumber town of Conroe paid surprisingly little attention when George Strake's No. 1 South Texas Development Company well came in as a strong gas producer on this day in 1951.

As a matter of fact, even the experts — geologists and oil operators — showed considerable skepticism about the importance of this new discovery. But on its heels came Strake's second well, a 900-barrel producer, and the Heep Oil Corporation's No. 1 Freeman, and suddenly the possibilities of the Conroe field were apparent to everyone.

Within the next seven years this new Gulf Coast field produced over 77 million barrels of oil. Though its output fell off somewhat in 1939 and 1940, the field rose admirably to the challenge of World War II, having a particularly good record during the early war years.

This development brought industrial activity of a new sort to Conroe — such as carbon and recycling plants — and also a substantial increase in population.

Choosy Chimps

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — The chimpanzee show at the zoo was eliminated because Dr. Charles Schroeder, zoo director, said he had determined that the chimps performed only under threat of discipline—not for the reward of food, as with the case of sea lions and dogs.

Believes In Signs

LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Onlookers gawked in amazement as a motorcyclist stopped his machine at an intersection, waited until the "walk" light went on, dismounted, walked his cycle across the intersection, mounted and rode off.

Words For Thought

By a Greenwich Village, N. Y., visitor—"Cool, man, cool."

By a little girl—"If mama lets me make an investment, I would."

By a Tucson attorney—"I am deeply grateful and indebted to your fine bank."

How Do You Like Our Decorations?

One of my contemporaries (this is a good word meaning a fellow who writes a column for another newspaper) just this week became concerned over the startling development of using tumbleweeds for Christmas decorations.

He learned, to his amazement, that somebody was gathering those devilish weeds, spraying them with silver stuff, and selling them for $7.50 apiece. He bemoaned the fact that tumbleweed, never before mentioned in polite society, would be given such dignity. All I've got to say is that there is no use worrying about the tumbleweed, but to start worrying about the people who think they will get it out of their house—silver-colored or not—when the holidays are over.

Worse things are happening to Christmas decorations than the use of tumbleweeds.

A lot of people have been saying in recent years that commercialization is ruining Christmas. My own opinion is that what ruined Christmas was the spray gun.

Santa Claus, as I understand it, used to go about in standard red and white, and slipped some fruit into black stockings and put some toys underneath green trees. 'Tis dreadful to contemplate the reaction Santa suffers these days—unless he's changed, too—when he sees these modern (pronounced no-DURN) arrangements of pastel decorations, and Christmas trees made out of everything from felt to stainless steel.

I cannot argue that such Christmas decor is not impressive. So is abstract painting. And perhaps I shouldn't be worrying about Santa's reaction. For all I know, he's traveling this year in a get-up that looks like Liberace's. But if he is, and I catch him coming down MY chimney, I'm gonna douse him with cold water.

Oh, well, as I keep preaching on my worst weeks, life has gotten too complicated for any continuation of the old traditions, even Christmas ones.

One of the big thrills of the holiday season many years ago, was for kids to tramp the hills and find their own cedar tree, spend the day chopping it down and dragging it home. If a kid started out to do the same thing today, he would either be shot for a deer, or hauled into the house for trespassing.

And another big event of the season was the trimming of this tree—once it was planted in a sand box and wired up in the corner of the parlor—with such things as strings of pop corn and cranberries, foil covered cardboard cut into stars, and a few nondescript lights.

Now, all you have to do today is get a spray gun with the right colors, being sure to follow a decorative scheme, and let 'er loose.

I suggested to the Dream Girl the other day that we try the old-fashioned tree trimming, with popcorn and cranberries. She said OK. Bud, I'll string the popcorn, and you handle the cranberries. This shows you my status, so we compromised and agreed to go ahead and modernize the whole living room, if we could get some pink and silver paint and a spray gun.

The Art Of Quietness

Christmas is almost upon us. The streets of our cities are thronged with the bustle of busy shoppers and our homes are filled with the sense of excitement that inevitably precedes the holiday season. It is probably a strange time of year to write about the art of quietness, but somehow I think that quietness has much more to do with the coming of Christ than all the bustle and bustle men have invented to honor His birthday.

We Americans do not excel at the art of quietness. When faced with difficulty we are likely to go into a dither.

When I visited Japan I was impressed by how well the Japanese cultivate quietness. In fact, it is one of the things about them that I admire the most. An Englishman who runs an American company in Japan told me that he had learned and benefited greatly from the Japanese technique of becoming quiet before tackling a problem. He practices what is called ryomi.

The nearest you can come to an English translation of this term is "the taste of coolness." The idea is that you can handle a problem if you keep cool — if you get the "taste of coolness." And the method for accomplishing it is unique. The first thing is to take a bath. In taking a Japanese bath, you first cleanse yourself with a self-administered shower which is accomplished by splashing water over yourself with a wooden pail. Then you submerge in hot water to your chin in a large, deep pool where you leisurely sit and soak yourself. This soon induces relaxation and gives you time to think.

When you come out of the bath you put on a yukata, a cotton kimono, and go in to a cool room unencumbered by furniture, as is the Japanese style. You sit cross-legged on a tatami. The tatami, is a lovely, soft straw matting covering the floor. And there you sit, listening to the windbells tinkling in the gentle breeze. You don't talk; you just sit. You are brought amber tea in a little bowl. You do not gulp it down. You savor it and smell it; you sip it and commune with it. You sit and meditate and enter into deep silence. Gradually the restless ness goes out of your mind and you begin to think clearly. As you practice ryomi you get the "taste of coolness."

Now you are in a condition to grasp your problem and perceive an answer. Out of quietness comes the power to take a difficult apart and put it together again properly. We need to develop an American counterpart of ryomi — something that will give us this mental coolness.

When difficulty strikes there is in all of us a tendency to become nervous, apprehensive, disturbed. But no one can handle a difficulty with any degree of skill unless he becomes calm and composed.

The Japanese have their technique and it is an excellent one. But there are many others. In my own church, we have several minutes of creative silence. A deep quietness falls over the great congregation. People often say they come miles just to experience the "immense power" of those quiet moments in God's house. They say they find answers to their problems and peace for their minds.

Among the Quakers, meetings consist in large part of the practice of spiritual silence. And more and more, our churches and synagogues are remaining open for long periods for private prayer and meditation. You can find innumerable opportunities to practice the art of quietness. Try it today. You'll find it most helpful.

The Temper Is For Changes

WASHINGTON — Just as James R. Hoffa was unwittingly responsible for the anti-racketeering legislation passed by Congress at its last session, so David McDonald, also unwittingly, may be responsible for the enactment of the most severe legislation in history to prevent America from being damaged again by another big strike.

When a potential candidate for the presidency on the Democratic ticket — Adlai Stevenson — feels obliged to make a public plea for restrictive labor legislation, it is a sign that public opinion is aroused and that both political parties must pay attention to such sentiment.

Normally the Democratic candidates would be expected to pussyfoot on the issue or suppress their feelings on any labor question lest the union leaders be offended. But it is apparent now that the rank and file of the union members and their wives, as well as the general public, are truly alarmed about the bungling way in which the steel negotiations have been handled.

ADLAI STEVENSON'S SPEECH on Tuesday is the most significant utterance this year on labor issues by any political figure. He said:

"The steel strike has dramatized the fact that we are at the end of an era. Everybody is agreed that this cannot happen again; that the public interest is the paramount interest, and that irresponsible private power is an intolerable danger to our beleaguered society. . . . And if there are more stoppages, Congress may be expected to reflect the public temper in legislation, which would not only stop strikes but might stop or seriously cripple collective bargaining, too."

Mr. Stevenson reminded his listeners that he had made similar suggestions in 1952 for the amendment of existing labor laws, including a provision for arbitration, but he now adds this proposal: "The President should have authority to convene a special public board — a board of public responsibility — well in advance of the strike date in any key industry, perhaps as listed by Congress. The board would meet with the parties to the dispute. It would express the public interest to the parties, keep the President advised and perform whatever mediation functions appeared advisable."

"ITS EFFECTIVENESS would be immeasurably enhanced by the parties' knowledge that the board's final responsibility — if its efforts at mediation fail — would recommend to the President what further action should be taken. . . . If the parties were unable or unwilling to resolve their dispute, to exercise responsibility consonant with their power

— then I would see no reasonable objection to requiring that the dispute be taken out of their hands entirely; that the President be authorized in that case to require in one form or another that production be continued while the dispute was resolved by process of reason rather than by subjecting the economy to grievous injury."

Mr. Stevenson declared that, with the development of industrywide bargaining, "decisions affecting the entire economy are made by a small group of men sitting at a single table, and the public has no alternative to accepting those decisions." He added:

"I THINK IT (THE public) is entitled to be represented at that table in the restricted sense I have suggested."

This and other proposals now being advanced are symptomatic of the deep feeling aroused by the damage done in the steel strike. No matter how the controversy itself is settled, there will be a demand for legislation. For the belated agreement reached between the parties cannot possibly restore the losses of the union members in wages, of the companies in profits, and of the U. S. Treasury in tax receipts. These losses are too big to be ignored, and do not by any means include all the injury done to the American productive machine at a time of stiff competition with the Soviet Union.

The question of who was to blame will be argued endlessly. Certainly there has been little disagreement on wages. The real clash is on working rules. The union leaders have arbitrarily refused to discuss changes. They have refused also to submit the issue to arbitration. They have mistakenly resorted to epithets and clichés about alleged plots to "bust the unions."

BUT THE NEED FOR changing the working rules is a condition and not just a theory, and the employers have agreed to submit the issue to arbitration with the understanding that the report need not be made until the middle of next year. The companies want the subject tackled seriously. The union leaders are adamant in refusing to do so, and that's where they have misjudged public opinion.

The speech of Adlai Stevenson, a prominent Democrat and a friend of labor, is a sign of the changing times. Union-labor leaders cannot any longer rely on the politicians in government to take care of their battles with employers. For this time the public, which is bigger in vote-power than all the unions and corporations, is demanding an end to the irresponsible use of economic power by private groups.

New Cotton Planting Rule Due To Stir Referendum Interest

The Federal ruling that all acreage planted to cotton—strip planted or not—will be considered as solid planting may have a big bearing on which option farmers choose here, observers feel.

What may have normally been a routine quota referendum election next Tuesday might turn into a mass "get all you can" if farmers feel the Federal ruling cannot be set aside.

Eligibility to vote regulations and polling places have been posted in notices throughout the county. Voting in Big Spring will be at the ASC Office at 403 Lancaster and in Coahoma at Acuff's Gin. Two other polling places, in Knott and Luther, have also been set up.

Reason for the unrest among cotton growers, most observers feel, is that if a grower has to count strip acreage as total acreage they will plant it solid. In past years they have used the strip planting system and gained heavier yields per acre because of the additional moisture available to each row by this method.

The Tuesday voting is on whether producers will sanction marketing quotas on the 1960 cotton crop. If two-thirds vote "yes," then producers will have two choices. Under plan A, the producer may obtain a guarantee of a higher percent of parity for cotton planted within acreage limitations. Under plan B, he will get larger acreage but a smaller per cent of parity guarantee.

Since the second plan allows up to as much as one-third more acreage, and is only 15 per cent or less on the parity guarantee, observers feel farmers may decide to try the larger acreage.

Farmers may choose the larger acreage for another reason. Future acreage allotments will depend, in part, on next year's plantings.

Should less than two-thirds favor marketing quotas, then there will be no acreage restrictions. However, growers who comply with their regular farm allotments will receive a support of 50 per cent of their parity.

In any case veteran farmers

provide dryland farmers, who are wholly dependent upon rainfall, to gain greater utilization from available moisture. This is because roots from plants on the outside rows extend under the fallow rows and make use of that moisture and plant food. If solidly planted field plants in all rows compete with each other, consequently yielding less weight and quality of lint.

Another problem posed is that if producers are forced to plant solidly, they will more than likely be obliged to put something on the fallow land, which now would be in one block. If they go to milo, they will be producing a crop which already is in surplus and which is now on a paper thin margin of profit.

Just how the Agriculture Department came to adopt this ruling is not clear, but the course probably was taken in an effort to reduce cotton yields which have been greater than the current demand. Some irrigation states, or those which have large amounts of rainfall, already plant solidly and would not be affected.

NO ESCAPE SEEN
Is there any escape from the ruling? Producers are frankly pessimistic. The regulation went on the Federal Registry on Dec. 3 and within 30 days it becomes effective. Rep. George Mahon, aided by producer organizations as well as individuals, is exerting pressure to gain a suspension of the regulation at least until Congress can have time to look at the problem. Mahon has urged Marion Rhodes, in charge of the cotton division of the USDA, to hold up on the new rule. But at this stage, no one is optimistic over chances of success.

Is there any escape from the ruling? Producers are frankly pessimistic. The regulation went on the Federal Registry on Dec. 3 and within 30 days it becomes effective. Rep. George Mahon, aided by producer organizations as well as individuals, is exerting pressure to gain a suspension of the regulation at least until Congress can have time to look at the problem. Mahon has urged Marion Rhodes, in charge of the cotton division of the USDA, to hold up on the new rule. But at this stage, no one is optimistic over chances of success.

Even if fields are planted solidly yields will decline and possibly staple. One of the reasons for strip cropping has been to provide dryland farmers, who are wholly dependent upon rainfall, to gain greater utilization from available moisture. This is because roots from plants on the outside rows extend under the fallow rows and make use of that moisture and plant food. If solidly planted field plants in all rows compete with each other, consequently yielding less weight and quality of lint.

Another problem posed is that if producers are forced to plant solidly, they will more than likely be obliged to put something on the fallow land, which now would be in one block. If they go to milo, they will be producing a crop which already is in surplus and which is now on a paper thin margin of profit.

Just how the Agriculture Department came to adopt this ruling is not clear, but the course probably was taken in an effort to reduce cotton yields which have been greater than the current demand. Some irrigation states, or those which have large amounts of rainfall, already plant solidly and would not be affected.

County Farmers Joining In Campaign Have Rule Voided

Howard County cotton producers are joining in an area campaign to void a federal regulation which will practically eliminate strip cropping.

Allowed to stand, this rule could cost Howard County $1,500,000—possibly much more.

The rule has been that a farmer could plant four rows of cotton and skip four rows and count only half of the total area required as having been planted to cotton. Or he could plant two rows and skip four and count one-third of the total area required as having been planted to cotton.

The new rule will require that the total area required under strip planting to be computed as though it had been solidly planted. This would leave producers with two alternatives — (1) either plant their cotton acreage solidly, or (2) else suffer a 40 per cent cut in yields on strip planted fields. The latter would result from only 50 per cent of a field being planted in cotton when 4 and 4-rows striped, or 33 per cent when striped 2 and 4 rows.

Santa Teaches Higher Math

TYLER — Santa Claus taught a number of students mathematics and geometry this year. They learned to make icosahedrons for Christmas decorations. They're about as difficult to build as they are to pronounce.

Icosahedrons are 20-sided figures.

All were done by students of Miss Charlotte Griesser.

The icosahedrons range from three inches in diameter to a granddaddy of three-foot diameter made from 20 18-inch circles cut out of wall paper.

Some of the other icosahedrons were fashioned of construction paper and shiny giftwrap.

"The trick in getting these shapes," she said, "is putting these circles together, and it will not work unless you put them together according to certain mathematical rules."

Miss Griesser also said the circles have to be arranged on a flat surface and in a certain formation. After this, the circles are brought together, stapled and glued.

And by varying the number of circles, you can make other shapes," she said. Sixteen circles, for instance, instead of 20 make long oval shapes. Or you can get an oblong or bowl-shaped oval form by using 24 circles.

The big icosahedron must be a descendant of Humpty Dumpty, however, judging from the trouble his big size gave his creators, Connie Hallmark and Babs Dean, both 13.

We just about had it finished when what did it do but fall apart," said Connie. But unlike all the King's horses and all the King's men, the two girls, with determination as fast as one of the hundreds of staples that went into them, could and did put granddaddy back together again.

Two thefts were reported in the city Friday.

Louis Murdock, 616 E. 17th, told police a tire and wheel was stolen from his car while parked on the T&P parking lot.

Mrs. Wilburn Warren, 806 Johnson, reported an antenna stolen from her home.

Two thefts were reported in the city Friday.

Band Takes 1st Place Honors In Odessa

BY TERESA SMITH

Another week has somehow slipped by and the holidays draw nearer. It is rapidly becoming a vivid fact to the seniors that this is a year of "lasts" for them — the last football season just passed, the last Thanksgiving activities, and now the last fun at high school during Christmas.

Really a royal group for the week, the band has been keeping a proud eye on the trophy they brought back from the contest in Odessa. They were rated excellent in the marching division which won them a first place. Now their cry is, "Sweetstakes or Bust!"

They have to compete and win in several different contests before they can nab such a title. More power to you, band members!

When it comes to dressing dolls, the homemaker department is really "on a stick." Officially named as Santa's helpers at BSHS, they dressed 250 dolls which will make several little girls very happy during the Yule season. This has become an annual affair with the department. Doesn't it bring back fond memories, girls?

The football boys had a last "get together" Tuesday night and had their annual banquet. Benny Edwards, senior, was announced as having the highest scholastic average of the varsity team. Alf Cobb was outstanding lineman and Jerry Dunlap was outstanding back of the year.

Our speech students have done it again! They entered another speech contest held at Denton. Mr. Bedford Forrest took the group which will compete both at TWU and NTSC. Those going were Ilametta Carr, Linda Morton, Janet Thorburn, Gary Pickle, Doug Davis, Mary Jane Engstrom, Dorothy Wheeler.

Thursday night, the Bible Club presented their pageant at the old Baptist encampment. The fruits of their labors turned out to be better than expected as everyone did their utmost to make it a success.

Big plans are being made by the Science Club for their first Science Fair to be held in the first part of '60. Many different projects will be displayed by members for the public to see. Mr. Douglas Whitley, head of the science department, Mr. Jerry Kelly, and Mr. Arnold Oates, science instructors are making an all out effort to promote the fair.

SPECIAL EDITION
The Christmas edition of the Corral will be a "special," with six pages. Distribution is to be in the foyer after the Christmas assembly. Enough papers have been printed for everyone. Included in the paper will be the annual announcement of Who's Who. The 12 seniors and eight juniors selected are named by the faculty. Incidentally, no one knows who has been chosen until the papers announce the honor.

Band fruit cakes are still on sale. If you haven't bought one yet, you may still buy yours from any band member or call AM 4-5144. These fruit cakes are very good, so don't miss this opportunity for some delicious cake.

The Christmas needy drive, sponsored by the student council, is now under way. It will end Wednesday and on Thursday morning, the classes that had 100 per cent participation will receive a free period. If it is as successful as the Thanksgiving Drive, about 1,400 articles of food are expected.

TICKETS ARRIVE
Tickets for the junior play, "The Bad Seed," are now on sale.

The speech department's presentation of this production will be Jan. 7-8. Mary Jane Engstrom is the student director of the play under the direction of Bedford Forest, speech instructor.

Tickets can be purchased from any junior. Adult tickets will be 75 cents, and student tickets 50 cents.

The Rev. Frank Pollard, associate pastor of the First Baptist Church, will be the speaker for the traditional Christmas assembly, Friday, Dec. 18, at 9:30 a.m. Parents are invited to attend.

Mrs. Janice Harris, librarian, stated that the library has received 99 new fiction books, some of which are best sellers, and three new encyclopedias.

The new encyclopedias received are the New Century Encyclopedia of Names, Britannica, and World Book.

The Light Crust Doughboys from Burrus Milling Company in Fort Worth will present an assembly Wednesday, Dec. 16, at 9:30 a.m. in the auditorium. The public is invited to attend.

Charlotte Nobles is to be hostess of the Christmas party to be given for the members of the Library Club. The party will be on Dec. 17 at 7:30 p.m. Members will exchange gifts.

STEREETTES TO PLAY
The Stereettes "A" team has been invited to participate in a volleyball clinic, Jan. 20, to be held at Odessa Junior College.

Approximately 40 coaches representing the West Texas area will attend. Instructive lectures are on the morning agenda, along with an exhibition game between Big Spring and Kermit. Dr. Belle Holmes, Odessa Junior College athletic director, stated that Big Spring has always had a consistently good team and she felt that it would be an added attraction to see the Stereettes in action. See you in church!

Christmas Play To Be Presented Thursday

By DE MASON

The Christmas spirit is really running high around Goliad, and it is being expressed in many different ways. When you enter the school from the main entrance, a gaily decorated showcase will greet you. The Curtain Club has decorated the case using Christmas and their up-coming play, "The Christmas Rose," as the theme. The play will be presented on Dec. 17. Two performances will be given, one during the day for students and one in the evening for parents and those wishing to attend.

DOOR DECORATIONS
When you walk down the halls, many brightly and prettily decorated doorways and ledges will catch your eye. It seems as if each room is trying very hard to obtain the honor of having the best-decorated room.

The canned food drive is really going over in a big way. A day doesn't pass that students don't bring some kind of food to school.

Monday and Tuesday pink slips were passed out. These slips are a warning that a student is failing.

Thursday during 2nd period a fire drill was held in which students and teachers participated.

Wednesday, five girls representing the homemaker classes visited the state hospital. These girls took cookies baked in their classrooms. Darla Moore, president of the Goliad chapter of FHA presented the cookies to Mrs. Ira Thurman. The girls making the visit were Mary Lynn Guthrie, Peggy Watkins, Mary Jane Wood, Judy Parkerton and Darla Moore.

CHRISTMAS LITERATURE
According to Miss Ruth Beasley, school librarian, the library has gathered a lot of Christmas literature which will be of great use to those who have received assignments having to do with the origin of Christmas.

Saturday an all day math and science meet was held in Andrews. Those attending were Karen Kee, De Mason, Bobby Daves, Tommy Simpson, Susan McNary. Accompanying them were Mr. Albright, biology teacher, and Mr. Bill Daves.

Thursday during the noon hour a short pep rally was held to promote the game play that night between the 9th grades of Goliad and Colorado City. Goliad won by a score of 43-28.

Have a nice Sunday and I'll see you Monday.

Four Place On All-District Teams

By ELLABETH STORY

FORSAN — Forsan High School was well represented on the 4-B eight-man all-district football team. Bill Conger, a junior, and Fred Park, a senior, were selected for offensive team and Jerry Pike, a senior, and Dewey Howard, a junior, were selected for defensive team. Rodney Allison and Johnny Bob Asbury, both juniors, received honorable mention for offensive team. Jerry Bardwell and Fred Park, both seniors, and Johnny Bob Asbury, a junior, received honorable mention for defensive team. Rodney Allison and Johnny Bob Asbury missed by one vote winning a place for all-district guard on the team. Jerry Bardwell and Fred Park were also selected to play on the all-star eight-man football team, which will be played in Abilene this summer.

The boys' basketball team came out with the high end of the score with Ira this week. The score was 32-28. The girls had a little bad luck and lost to Ira. Both boys' and girls' basketball teams played at Robert Lee Friday night. This was the beginning of their district play.

STUDENT COUNCIL BUSY

The Student Council is in the process of painting both boys' and girls' dressing rooms in the gymnasium. The council is also planning to erect a reindeer scene with the jolly old fellow, Santa Claus, in front of the school building. Monday, The Student Council is sponsored by Mr. W. M. Romans and Benny Barnett is president.

The senior class met at the home of their home room teacher, Mrs. McGee, Thursday night and went on a Christmas caroling party. Carols were sung in Forsan and at the homes of patrons and teachers outside of Forsan. Refreshments were served to all. All seniors agreed that they would like to do it again next year, but we won't be seniors next year.

The Spanish II class had a Christmas party Thursday night. Class members, their guests, and the teacher, Mr. James Childress, met at Carlos' Cafe for dinner and then enjoyed bowling afterwards. The Spanish class will more than likely be larger next year.

The High School Choir will meet Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. to practice Christmas carols for the Christmas program which will be given in the high school gymnasium, Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. Mrs. Tom Spell, director of the choir, asks that all choir members be present.

Twirlers, Band Win Prizes

STANTON — The band went to contests Saturday, Dec. 5, which were held in Odessa. They received a first division in inspection which is composed of neatness, uniformity, and personal alertness. They received a fourth division in the marching contest.

The bands were graded on formations, continuity-fluency and musical ability. Marsha Bristow and Linda Saunders received third divisions in the twirling contests and Diane Turner, Nancy Robnett, Carolyn Manning and Patricia Miller received fourth divisions. The ensemble, composed of Linda Saunders, Diane Turner, Patricia Miller and Marsha Bristow, received third division. The twirling judge was Mrs. Woody Woodard.

The basketball teams are off to a good start this season. Both girls and boys won first place trophies in the Welch tournament. Frances Graves, Gracie Welch, Norman Denson and Ronny Aihart were placed on the all-tournament team. Tuesday night the girls beat Garden City 63-21. The boys' first team won with a score of 59-46, but the second team lost by a score of 47-51 to the Garden City team.

Christmas Decorations Make Their Appearance

By PAT LOUDAMY

Next Friday our Christmas holidays begin. Christmas decorations are already making an appearance in our building.

A religious Christmas assembly is being planned for Friday morning. Our choir will give the program, along with a guest speaker. The Christmas Story will be read from the Bible. Parents and friends are invited to attend this assembly.

PARTIES PLANNED
All home rooms are planning parties. Decorations are being planned and separate rooms will start decorating Monday. The parties are to be the last hour Friday afternoon.

The Runnels choir, directed by Mrs. F. C. Gambill, participated in the "Christmas Under the Stars" pageant. This was presented at the Baptist Encampment Grounds Thursday night.

Our basketball teams met Snyder in our gym. The seventh grade won with a smashing victory of 25 to 8. The eighth grade was victorious with a score of 26 to 23. The ninth grade lost by three points, 49 to 46.

The Student Council sponsored a dance and social hour in the gym at noon Friday.

SCIENCE CONVENTION
A science convention was held at Andrews Saturday. Attending

New D. E. Sweetheart

James B. Drake, president of the Big Spring Senior High School Distributive Education Club, presents a plaque to Carol Wicks, the newly elected D.E. Sweetheart. Drake works for Hull & Phillips Groceries and Miss Wicks for Zale's Jewelers.

Both excel in academic subjects and on the job. Travis Dunlap, D.E. teacher, has also cited several other outstanding students who should win honors in the State D.E. Contest, to be held next February in San Antonio.

$20 IS STILL AVAILABLE

You still have a chance to pick up $20 for your Christmas shopping.

The Herald is looking for a name for this page, and all the students in schools of this area, as well as HCJC, are invited to submit suggestions.

Boxes have been supplied at the Goliad and Runnels Junior High Schools and at Big Spring Senior High and HCJC. All you have to do is jot down the name you are suggesting, together with your name, address, grade and school, and drop this in one of the boxes not later than Wednesday, Dec. 16.

Numbers of students in Coahoma, Forsan and other points have mailed their suggestions in to The Herald, and such entries postmarked not later than Wednesday night will be considered.

The young man or woman submitting the name judges believe is best will receive a $20 cash prize.

HCJC Christmas Formal Will Be Held Thursday Night

By KAY LOVELAND

Here I am again after a week's absence! I'd like to say "thanks" to Nancy Branch for a fine job last week.

The speech festival in San Marcos was a most enjoyable event for Mr. Short and the five students who attended. We learned a great deal by just listening to other people speak, and from the criticisms we received. The festival was a statewide event with about eight colleges and universities attending; in fact, Howard County was the only junior college entered.

Each person competing was required to enter all three rounds of each event for which he registered. Saturday ratings of excellent and superior were listed, and HCJC turned up with two excellent certificate ratings. Jerome Crumpton received excellent in poetry reading, and Reece Bevers in discussion on labor. Jacques Hewlett, Sherry Coats and yours truly received excellent ratings in one round of persuasive speaking each; Jerome Crumpton received one superior rating. Hewlett also received one excellent in poetry reading. Both Crumpton and Bevers will receive certificates of awards. Even though the students had to pay their own way to the event because of the one-year moratorium the college is undergoing, they felt it was well worth it for the experience they gained in speaking.

GET YOUR DATES
Got your date for the Christmas Formal yet, boys? If not, you'd better hurry because time is growing short with the dance scheduled for Thursday night. As you know, Rocco Rocca Hanna is sponsoring the dance, and decoration plans have been shaping up. The club is going to institute one or two new innovations in the way the room is arranged—some things we hope will make it different from all preceding Christmas Formals. Admission will be by activity ticket. In other words, every couple must have one activity card from HCJC to gain entrance. With the music of the Hi-Fi's, the decorations and the refreshments the dance should be one of HCJC's best; so why not grab yourself a date before 8 p.m. Thursday and come on out to the SUB until 12 midnight.

The regular Christmas assembly will be held Wednesday morning at activity period in the auditorium. The choir will present Christmas music, and the speech department plans to do a platform reading of "Star Song," an inspirational one-act play about Christ's birth. Attendance at every other assembly this year has been exceedingly small, but I think this one should be important enough that everyone would want to attend.

TURKEYS ANYONE?
The members of the Rodeo Club are selling tickets to a raffle this week. For 50 cents you could win a turkey. The club is giving away five big turkeys, dressed at 15 pounds each, on Dec. 18. If you want a turkey, here's a chance to get one cheap.

Congratulations to all our basketball boys, especially Larry Cruise, who scored 32 points in winning their games Tuesday night. The freshman team outscored Reese Air Force Base 71-52. Then, the almighty Jayhawks lambasted the San Angelo College Rams 83-61 in a fast-paced game. During Lifetime the San Angelo College Ramettes performed a precision marching drill. Thursday the boys left for San Antonio to attend the tournament there.

The initiation of seven new members into Delta Psi Omega took place the first three days of last week, with the formal initiation coming Friday night. During the week I'm sure you saw a few people with pacifiers, signs and masks hanging around their necks.

from Runnels were Douglas No. Pam Boyer, Joyce Patton, Donald Bradford and Alfred Martinez. The group was sponsored by Mr. Sparks, the science teacher.

The canned food drive, held annually, is in motion. This is to help people in the city and help them to have a happier Christmas.

The seventh grade football boys had a wiener roast Tuesday night. This was sponsored by the parents and coaches. Dancing and a social hour followed; the coaches were presented a pen and a memento set.

Student Council members voted to hold a dinner for the faculty at Coker's Restaurant. They hope to make this an annual affair.

Thursday the Christmas edition of The Roundup will be on sale. Be sure to buy our school paper. So long for now.

FFA Boys Winners In Area Contest

By ROSALIE DEVANEY

COAHOMA — Congratulations to the FFA boys on their team winning area in Big Spring last Saturday. They went to state competition in Huntsville this weekend. The team consisted of Billy Carl Reid, president; Gorman Finley, vice president; Roy Griffith, secretary; Tommy Neil, treasurer; Ronnie Lindsey, reporter; Sammy Buchanan, sentinel; Aubrey Ray Darden, advisor; and Dewayne Richters, Wayne Smith, Donnie Reid as members. In the contest, the boys have to go through the FFA opening ceremonies, the order of business and the closing ceremonies, they are judged and graded on accuracy, team participation and parliamentary procedure and are asked 10 questions.

They were to leave for Huntsville at five o'clock Friday morning and arrive about one o'clock. On their way they stopped and visited the State Penitentiary near Huntsville and A&M College at College Station.

The FFA chapter jackets came in this week but the company had made a mistake in the spelling of the names, so they were returned to the factory for correction.

The Miss Coahoma High School contest was held Saturday night in the high school auditorium.

The homemaker classes have been giving demonstrations on Christmas decorations the last two weeks and have really come up with some clever ideas. Everything from egg shells to coat hangers has been used. I'd gladly let them decorate my home for the holidays. The three homemaker classes are finishing their class projects this week and from the looks of things, they are really going to have some beautiful clothes. Sharon Finley, Nancy Hodnett, Zena Kay Robinson, Nadine Lambright, Pat Lindsey, Patsy Gilmore, Judy Brooks, Mary Kiser, Lavonda Greenfield are making dress suits and Donna Cramer is making a very lovely formal.

In an all school assembly Friday the juniors were awarded their prizes for selling magazines. Each person that sold at least 10 subscriptions received a large stuffed animal of assorted colors. The juniors that were recognized and awarded prizes were Jerri Nell Thomas, Nancy Hodnett, Lavonda Greenfield, Glenda Haney, Marie Hamilton, Phyllis Anderson, Don Lilly, Quinett Reid, Patsy Gilmore, Lyn Nell Mason, Pat Lindsey, Johnnie Nichols, Wiona Moore, Doc Reeves, Melody Carr, Lydia Harrington, Robert Carley, Kay Earnest, Sue Gaines, and George Turner.

The regular FFA meeting will be Monday at activity period. The program is, Why We Should be Thankful. Girls, don't forget the meeting!

BASKETBALL TROPHIES

Our basketball girls and boys brought home a first and third place trophy from the Ira tournament this week. You're both doing great, keep up the good work. Joe Davis and Pauline Graves made the all tournament teams for the girls and Edward Reeves made it for the boys. Congratulations! The teams also defeated Westbrook in return games Tuesday night. The girls' score was 54-39 and the boys' 63-50. Claudine Bales was high point girl and Willie Tyler was high point boy, both had 21 points. The teams went to O'Donnell Friday night for games.

The band made a great showing at the Snyder Christmas parade, Thursday. About 60 members marched in the parade with the majorettes and drum majorette leading. The drum majorette is Patsy Greenfield and the majorettes are Phyllis Anderson, Yvonne Knouse, Johnnie Wayland and Marianna Malmstrom.

Showman Shooter was the title of the film seen Thursday at activity period. It was a demonstration of gun safety and expert shooting which the boys really enjoyed.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

| Day       | Book    | Chapter | Verses |
|-----------|---------|---------|--------|
| Sunday    | Isaiah  | 4       | 2      |
| Monday    | Luke    | 2       | 7-21   |
| Tuesday   | Luke    | 2       | 12-16  |
| Wednesday | Luke    | 2       | 17-21  |
| Thursday  | Matthew | 2       | 1-6    |
| Friday    | Matthew | 2       | 10-15  |
| Saturday  | Luke    | 1       | 46-55  |

Mommy said that this year I could help trim the tree, if I'd be very careful. The ornaments are so shiny and bright, and it's such fun to decide where to put them.

Mommy let me help fix our little crèche, too. I put in the figure of the Christ Child and He looked so pretty... all sort of pink and gold.

We fixed the crèche first because Mommy said that we must always remember that Christmas is, first of all, the Christ Child's birthday. When we finish trimming the tree, Mommy is going to read us the story about the first Christmas... about the shepherds and the angels... about the Wise Men and their star... about the little Jesus, born in Bethlehem, in a manger.

Mommy's told me the story before but she says that this year I'm big enough to stay up with the rest and hear her read it. And, of course, we'll go to Church, and Mommy says I can carry my fur muff.

I think this is going to be the best Christmas I've ever had!

THE FRONT ROW

By Bob Smith

Pioneering social scientists of the last century, after Mendel and before Freud, came up with some interesting notions.

Among these was the idea that certain characteristics of human personality could be inherited. Application of this theory brought about discovery of the noted Jukes and Kallikaks, case histories with fictitious names that were supposed to prove that practically all facets of character and personality were inherited.

These inherited characteristics were supposed to include criminality or lack of it, honesty, truthfulness, morality in general, knowledge of right and wrong, and all the varied colors of the human rainbow.

Later, the inheritance theories were completely drowned under the revolutionary psychological theories which put the blame for all human ills on environment.

It is only within the last few years that science has found a somewhat median ground between the two viewpoints, and it is now known that most human traits are developed as a result of the environment, but that some can be inherited. Or, can fall to be inherited.

"The Bad Seed," a successful Broadway play that shocked the jaded Big Town audience, was based upon the premise that, in spite of environmental factors, there are some people who are born without emotion, without any of the traits that make the rest of us human.

In the play, there is a little girl who, unknown to any but the foster grandfather, is a descendent of an infamous killer. The girl, as the play develops, does in a schoolmate, and finally a gardener who knew too much. And it is discovered that she had also done away with an elderly lady neighbor in another town.

She murdered without compunction, and for the merest baubles. The schoolmate died over a medal he had won, and which the girl wanted; the elderly lady was killed because she had promised the little killer a pretty crystal ball after she (the elderly lady) died.

The girl's mother, the only one left who knows the nature of her own daughter, feeds the child an overdose of sleeping pills and then goes offstage and shoots herself. But the neighbors, hearing the shot, rescue the girl.

The play ends with the girl safe once more and no one suspicious. But the audience knows that she is doomed to go through life continuing to murder, until she makes the mistake that will find her out.

Hollywood made the inevitable movie version a few years back. And, with the usual false morality that demands that all evil must be punished before the show is over, and ignoring the fact that a lot of evil goes unpunished (at least in this world), the film version had the little girl struck by lightning.

Indeed, there is but one thing wrong with the play—the author assumes that, if criminality is inherited, then it must have come from our primitive ancestors, the cave-men and the Neanderthals, or the Cro-Magnon Men being natural born killers, the race would never have survived.

We are much meaner than our ancestors ever conceived possible. The author, however, has thrown in a salient point that neutralizes the cave-man indictment—he points out that these emotionless creatures such as the little girl killer with the innocent eyes and sweet smile may actually be the precursors of a new race, just as Cro-Magnon came out of the Neanderthal; that the emotional human race may soon give way to a race of heart-hearted creatures better fit for our cruel and mechanical age.

Fortunately, Bedford Forrest chooses not to insult our intelligence, so he has stuck to the original Broadway script—none of this bolt-of-lightning business. Forrest, as high school speech and dramatics instructor, is directing production of the junior class production of "The Bad Seed," scheduled for Jan. 7 & 8 in the high school auditorium.

Your critic paid the young thespians a visit last week. I was struck by the way the kids are working at it. There is very little play under Forrest's discipline, and the actors are vitally interested in their production.

This is the first rehearsal of a Big Spring production I have ever peeked in on that was so far advanced so early a date.

Space grows too short to describe behind the scenes activities of the high school players, so we'll have to leave that to a later column.

HUNTER & LOREN

Sophia Loren Plays 'Bad' Girl In Film

A daringly frank love story, as sophisticated as its ultra-smart, luxurious New York City background, is told in Paramount's romantic comedy-drama, "That Kind of Woman," starring Sophia Loren and Tab Hunter, which will show Tuesday and Wednesday at the Ritz Theatre. The film, which was shot entirely in New York, also stars George Sanders, Jack Warden, Barbara Nichols and Keenan Wynn.

It is a modern story about an expensive and glamorous woman, portrayed by Miss Loren, whose "protector" (played by Sanders) gives her everything a woman could want—except love and marriage. A chance encounter with a naive young man, from Vermont (in the handsome person of Tab Hunter) causes an emotional crisis that changes all of their lives and leads to interesting and provocative complications.

The role filled by Sophia gives her a wonderful opportunity to show her many charms to great advantage. As the beloved of a multi-millionaire tycoon—a suave, handsome man-of-the-world—the lovely star is the recipient of the kind of gifts and attentions most women dream of (although under more conventional circumstances) and few attain. Believing herself to be a completely materialistic person who has achieved the success "That Kind of Woman" seeks, Miss Loren, as Kay, discovers a need within herself for something more. Since she cannot have both the material things she requires out of life and the intangible "something more" from the same man, Kay is faced with the necessity to make a difficult decision.

"The Jayhawkers," Paramount's drama of the early days in Kansas history, Sunday and Monday at the Ritz, marks the first time that Fess Parker has played a romantic lead and kissed a girl on the screen. Parker is co-starred in the Panama-Frank Technicolor production with Jeff Chandler and Nicole Maurey. Nicole portrays a French pioneer woman with whom Parker falls in love, and whose influence not only affects his and Chandler's affairs, but the course of history itself.

Naval Hero 'John Paul Jones' Is Subject For Movie Epic

Although John Paul Jones is recognized as one of history's most fascinating heroes, as well as the father of the United States Navy, it has remained for producer Samuel Bronston and Warner Bros. to bring him to life on the screen for the first time in "John Paul Jones," a multi-million dollar production in Technicolor and Technicolor.

Directed by John Farrow, and with Robert Stack enacting the title role, this adventure drama dealing with America's early struggles for freedom and justice plays at the Ritz Thursday through Saturday.

The story of John Paul Jones spans seas and continents. Sea rover, friend of George Washington, protégé of Benjamin Franklin, intimate of King Louis XVI and Queen Marie Antoinette, his historic life and times ranged from Scotland, where he was born, to the West Indies, from the coasts of England to Imperial Russia, from the grace of Colonial Virginia to the pomp and glitter of the French Court. In sea battles which he fought in the North Sea, the Caribbean, the Black Sea and the Mediterranean, his victories earned for him a place in history which no other American naval figure has achieved.

All of these adventures are vividly pictured in "John Paul Jones," including the engagement between The Bonhomme Richard, captained by Jones, and HMS Serapis, which took place off Flamborough Head on the eastern coast of England on the evening of September 23, 1779.

Shown on the screen in Technicolor, this sea battle is perhaps the most spectacular scene of its kind ever filmed. As it was in real life, the sea and sky are tinted by the bright flames of the guns and the decks become a shambles of uprooted cannon, mangled bodies and flaming junk before an explosion from a well-placed grenade sets fire to the lower deck of the Serapis and forces its captain to surrender.

There are a total of 107 speaking parts in "John Paul Jones," interpreted by stars from six nations in one of the season's largest casts. In addition to Robert Stack's portrayal of the dominant character, the roster includes Charles Coburn as Benjamin Franklin, Marisa Pavan as Aimee de Tellison, with whom Jones had his most ardent love affair, Erin O'Brien as Dorothea Danders, Macdonald Carey as Patrick Henry, Jean Pierre Aumont as King Louis XVI, David Farrar as John Wilkes, Peter Cushing as Captain Pearson, Susana Caneles as Marie Antoinette, Bruce Cabot, Thomas Gomez, Jorge Riviere, Tom Brannum, Basil Sydney and Bette Davis, in a guest star appearance as Catherine the Great.

Much of "John Paul Jones" was filmed against authentic back-grounds in England, France and Spain. Most spectacular of these were staged in the Royal Palace, Madrid, where its throne room served as a setting for the court of Catherine the Great and its magnificent State Dining Room background for a royal banquet in the court of Louis XVI.

"John Paul Jones" stands unique in that not a single miniature or "process shot" was used in recreating the sea scenes. The full-scale replicas of The Bonhomme Richard and HMS Serapis are perhaps the most expensive "props" ever used in a motion picture. Built in Italy, at a cost of $400,000, the skill of 400 craftsmen was required to convert the seaworthy wooden hulls into the authentic square-rigged fighting frigates in the film.

CINEMA COMMENT

By Bob Smith

Sophia Loren continues to prove that she is as talented as she is beautiful.

Her latest opus is "That Kind of Woman," based on the Robert Lowry short story. She is portrayed as a kept woman, a delicate beauty with a not-so-delicate code of morals who is used by business promoter George Sanders to swing deals he never could have mastered man-to-man in a business office.

But the characterizations are not drawn in black and white, and this gives Sophia her opportunity. In spite of her "evil" (which turns out merely to be weakness) she comes up with a good side.

Sophia has no trouble winning the audience's sympathy as she begins to ask herself embarrassing questions. Her sensitivity, Roman beauty and quick emotional reaction are expertly used to portray the soul of a troubled girl as she discovers that kindness can lead to love.

She discovers that the kind of "love" she has had so far is not love at all.

Co-starred are Tab Hunter, Barbara Nichols, Jack Warden, Keenan Wynn, and Sanders. Tab shows improvement as an actor, but he is still too wooden in most scenes. He portrays the GI who meets Sophia on a crowded World War II train. Sanders and Wynn are ordinarily good actors, but their present roles for some reason lack depth. Warden, as the crap-shooting, girl-chasing buddy of Tab's, and Barbara Nichols should be praised for sensitive performances.

Boris Kaufman's camera work on a crowded train actually pulses with life and action, and tends to draw the viewer into the scenes.

Director Sidney Lumet held fast to his dramatic line, and never wavered toward the sensational.

"John Paul Jones" has the kind of naval action, scenes that will excite most any audience.

Robert Stack, too handsome for his role, is nevertheless excellent in his characterization of the pug-nugly fighting spirit that even today centers a controversy.

The film takes Jones' questioned patriotism for granted. The story follows the young man through his troubles with the British, into the Colonies, and finally into the first colonial warship.

The war scenes, however, do not fill the entire screen. Also featured prominently are the turning points of Jones' life, and the characters (many of historical prominence) he knew and worked with.

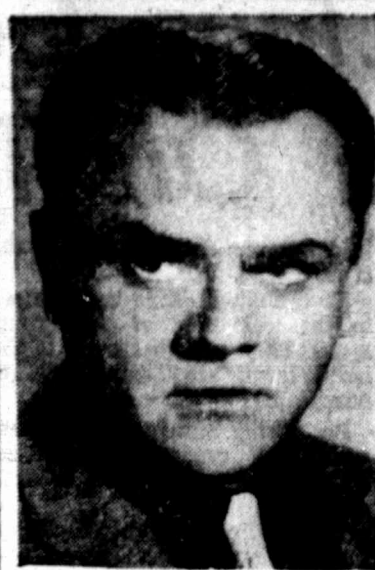

Perhaps the most dramatic moment comes in the immortal battle between Jones' Bonhomme Richard and the British Serapis, at which the fighting little admiral voiced his famous words, "I have not yet begun to fight!" But there is plenty of other action, too.

Vincent Price gives a slick performance, and Agnes Moorehead provides an attractive name for the billboard, but "The Bat" is still lacking.

What the Mary Roberts Rhinehart classic lacks most is suspense. The viewer, even if he has forgotten the plot of the years-ago Broadway thriller, knows exactly what is going to happen. The killer, disguised as a bat, slays too easily. Therefore, there is none of the tension that builds up with the difficult rendition of a delicate murder plot.

You'll do better to say home and watch "The Twilight Zone."

Musical

James Cagney tries his hand at musical comedy in "Never Steal Anything Small," returning to the Jet Sunday and Monday. The film combines music with a yarn about a labor racketeer. Shirley Jones co-stars.

'The Bat,' Mystery, Opens Here

"The Bat" plays at the State Thursday through Saturday with Vincent Price and Agnes Moorehead starring.

"The Bat," which grossed upwards of $9,000,000 as a stage play, was modernized by Crane Wilbur from the stage hit by Mary Roberts Rhinehart and Avery Hopwood, who, in turn, had adapted it from Mrs. Rhinehart's famous novel, "The Circular Staircase."

"The Bat" is the account of eerie happenings in a creepy old three-story mansion rented for the summer by a writer of mystery novels and her middle-aged companion, who do not know that a million dollars in stolen money is hidden in the house and that a master criminal known as The Bat, and others, are after the loot and do not care how many persons they have to kill to get it.

Actor Wrapped Up In His Work

Here's an actor who is literally all wrapped up in his work.

For a scene in "Face of a Fugitive," the Morningside production for Columbia Pictures in Eastman Color Thursday through Saturday at the State, James Coburn is supposed to be mending a barbed-wire fence illegally put up by his boss, Star Fred MacMurray cuts the fence with some fancy sharp-shooting. The taut wire snapped and wrapped itself completely around Coburn's body.

The scene was kept in the film.

Tony Randall Ad-Libbed His Way To A Big Success

"The most potent comedy is something that happens spontaneously," says Tony Randall, who teams with Debbie Reynolds for love and laughs in "The Mating Game," returning to the State Sunday through Wednesday.

It was Randall's gift for off-the-cuff chatter that almost had him sacked as an Arthur Godfrey replacement on TV.

"I couldn't resist kidding the commercials," he said. "There is something about a commercial that places it in the same category as the urge to throw an egg into an electric fan. Somehow, sometime, it has to be done."

So Tony satisfied the urge. TV executives bit their nails to the skin-line. Sponsors started screaming for Randall's scalp. But then the miracle happened. Mail started pouring into the TV network.

"We've never used this or that product," was the general gist of the text, "but from now on we're buying. Any sponsors who are good enough sports to let their product be kidded get our dollars. The product would have to be good to survive."

That's why Randall continued as a Godfrey substitute and then, when his contract expired turned down offers to star on a show of his own, six days a week.

TONY & DEBBIE

"It's too rough," he said. "Ad-libbing one's way through an hour and a half every day is killing."

Santa Claus Coming To Town On Thursday

Santa Claus will arrive in Big Spring Thursday. He will visit children all day on the Court House lawn.

His conveyance for the early visit will be a brand new convertible.

Details for the annual Santa visit were announced Saturday by the Chamber of Commerce, city and school officials, and Webb Air Force Base. All are cooperating for the day-long visit.

The automobile will bring Santa to the Court House at 8:45 a.m. The first busload of school children are due to arrive at 9 a.m. Santa will be there all day and will visit with all children of the first, second and third grades of the city schools.

Project officer Col. Jack Goode of Webb AFB listed further details of the event. Schools outside the city have been invited to participate in the ceremonies. This includes county schools and three independent school districts.

Transportation for city students will be provided by school and Webb buses. City police will direct traffic at the unloading and loading areas east and west of the court house.

Each bus will bring the children to the west side of the court house. They will go around to the north lawn, see Santa, and re-board a bus on the east lawn.

Big Spring merchants are sponsoring the candy-filled stocking which Santa will present to each child.

The Air Force is providing more than 50 helpers including drivers, ushers and attendants on the lawn.

Martin County Pays Poll Tax

STANTON — A total of 308 Martin County residents have paid their 1960 poll taxes.

The deadline for getting poll tax receipts is Jan. 31, 1960.

All county residents have been urged to get their poll tax receipts as soon as possible this year. The year, 1960, will be a year of great interest to voters as county, state and national elections are scheduled.

Col. Goode said that Santa will talk with any pre-school children who come to the lawn to see him. Parents are requested to accompany children for the visit.

Christmas songs and carols will be played over the public address system provided by Webb AFB.

Much planning and preparation has gone into this visit, officials say. It has taken a lot of hard work and time to set up schedules and get everything ready.

Their payment for the effort, the joint sponsors agree, will come from the knowledge that any child who wants to will get his chance to see and talk with Santa Claus.

Denies Engagement

ROME (AP)—Princess Soraya's secretary said today she is authorized to issue a "categorical denial" of reports that the former queen of Iran is about to announce her engagement and become a convert to Roman Catholicism.

DEAR ABBY

COOL DOWN!

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband stays home nights, but I'm sure he runs around in the daytime. I have been married to this chiseler for 32 years and I can tell.

He is almost 60 and I am 53. When I want a little affection he tells me he's tired. Of course he's tired. He gets tired from chasing women all day. He sells real estate, so you know he can get around plenty and make it look all right. He tells me I am imagining things.

Our children are married and we could settle down to a happy old age together if only he would behave himself. He is a good provider and doesn't smoke, drink or gamble. Can you help me?

SUSPICIOUS: DEAR SUSPICIOUS: What makes you think a man of 60 can't be tired just doing a day's work? Unless you have more than just your hunches to go on, you'd be wise to give your husband a warm welcome when he comes home instead of a lot of heat.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old boy who wishes he were dead. I feel so left out of things. I am a big failure. My teachers say "I don't apply myself" (whatever that means). My father says I think only about myself. He is probably right, too. Look at all the sentences with "I" in them. Everything I do is wrong. Is there any hope for me?

HATE MYSELF: DEAR HATE: Everyone on this earth has a duty to live. You aren't a failure because a real failure is satisfied with himself. You recognize your weaknesses and want to improve.

You need a mature, straight-thinking adult to talk things over with. Your father should be that person. But if you have a father you can't talk to and unfortunately there are many, I suggest that you go to your coach, a favorite teacher or to your clergyman. You've won the first round. You've admitted your need help. Now, go get it! Good luck!

DEAR ABBY: It is obvious that neither you nor the person who complained that her HI-FI was too loud knows anything about HI-FI. HI-fidelity means TRUE reproduction and the closer you are to it, the more it sounds like the real thing. How quiet do you think a 100-piece symphony would sound in your living room? Anything less than this would be a plain phonograph. And who wants that?

HI-FI EXPERT: DEAR EXPERT: I, (and according to my mail, several thousand other people) want it. A 100-piece symphony in my living room would shatter the chandelier and burst my ear drums. If THAT is true HI-FI, I am going to shop for the lowest of LOW-FI.

CONFIDENTIAL TO LARRY: To borrow a very old phrase from BUDDAH: "Believe nothing, no matter where you read it, or who said it, no matter if I have said it, unless it agrees with your own reason and your own common sense."

What's your problem? For a personal reply write to ABBY, care of the Big Spring Herald. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.
