Galveston preparing to weather storm

Hurricane strengthens

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Thousands of people fled inland today in Texas and Louisiana as Hurricane Alicia bore down on the Gulf Coast with sustained winds of 85 mph, torrential rains and pounding waves.

But thousands more in the Galveston area, which the National Hurricane Center said was most likely to absorb the brunt of the storm later in the day, chose to ride out the hurricane and flocked to supermarkets for food.

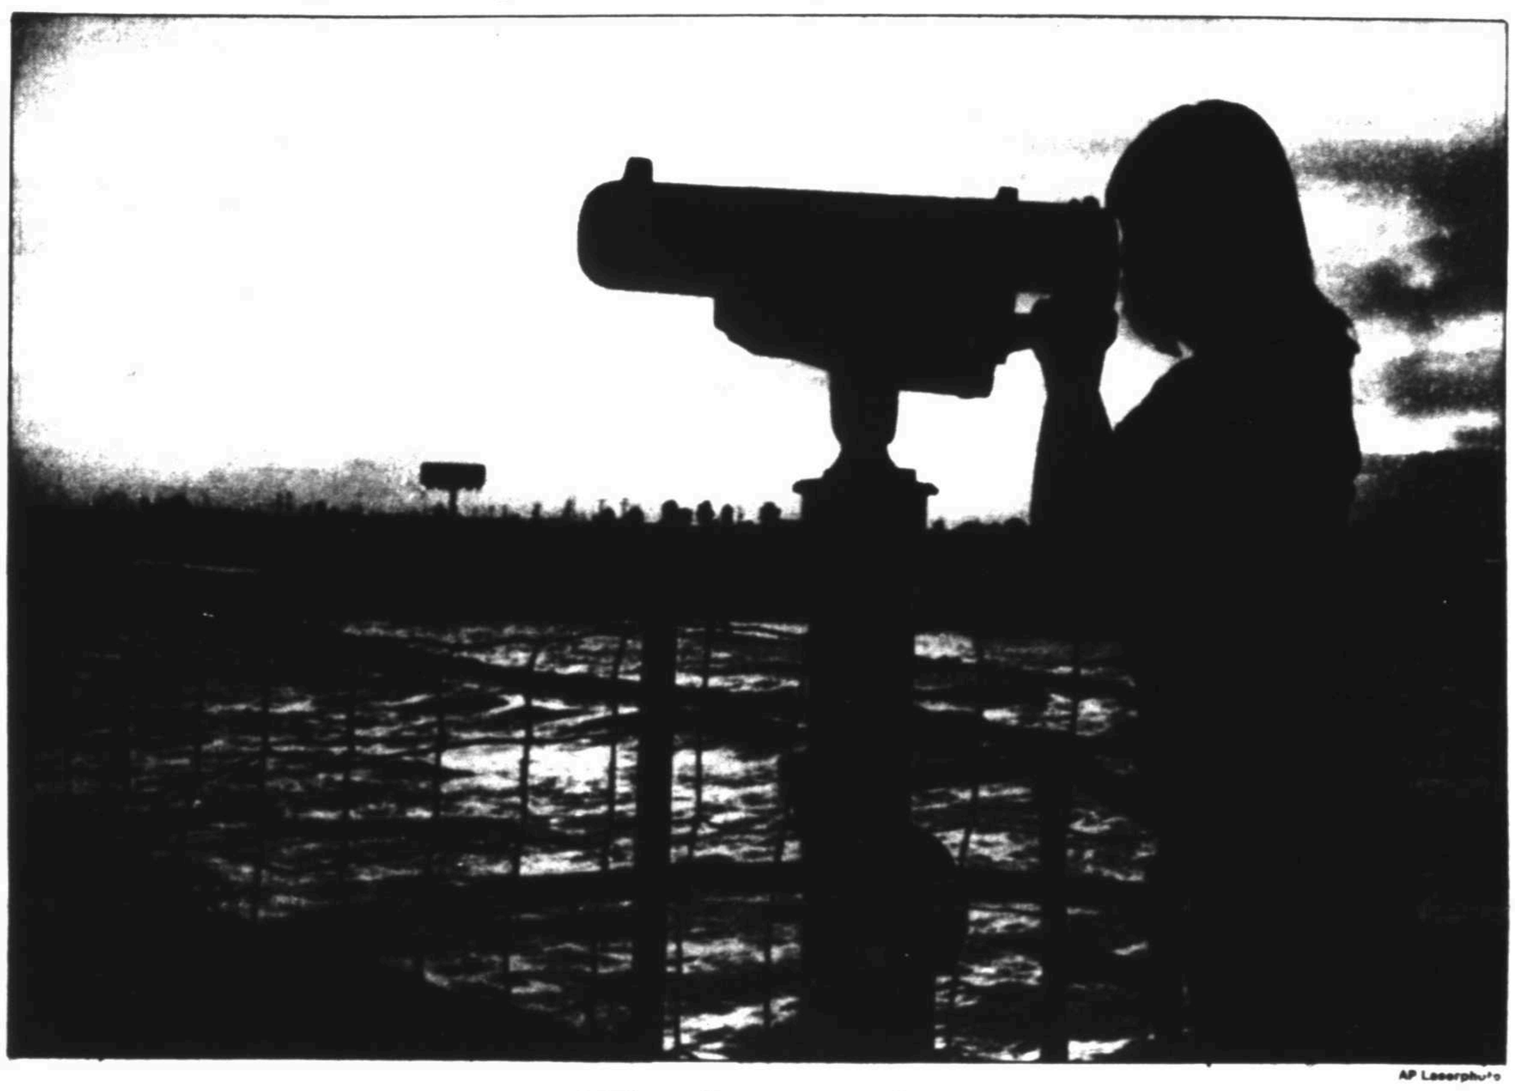

"We just hope they're out getting their canned food, their candles and their bottled water," Steve Harned, chief meteorologist of the National Weather Service in Galveston, said late Tuesday.

Three volunteers from the Midland Red Cross chapter left for Corpus Christi in the disaster relief truck at 11 p.m. Tuesday. According to Elvis Curb, local Red Cross executive director, Red Cross chapters from several states probably will be sent to Texas and Louisiana communities along the Gulf Coast.

Air Force reconnaissance reports indicated Alicia "continues to strengthen and is moving slowly toward the west northwest," the weather service said. "Increasing probabilities indicate that the greatest threat is along the upper Texas and western Louisiana coasts."

At noon EDT today, Alicia was centered about 90 miles south-southeast of Galveston, near latitude 28.0 north, longitude 94.5 west. The eye was "wobbling and nearly stationary," the weather service said, a common occurence when a slow-moving hurricane approaches land. The storm was expected to resume a 5 mph drift to the north northwest later today, forecasters said.

Rains could end drought

By PATRICK DEAREN
Staff Writer

On Tuesday, 20 West Texas counties were declared disaster areas due to drought.

Now, Hurricane Alicia is headed for the Gulf Coast, and if it continues inland, that two-year dry spell plaguing farmers and ranchers could begin to be alleviated.

"Some of the heaviest rains I've seen here came as the result of tropical storms," said National Weather Service specialist Roger Mallory, who has been in Midland 11 years.

The five-day forecast issued by the NWS indicates a "significant" increase in the chances of rain for West Texas on Saturday, he noted, while the probability will decrease dramatically by Sunday.

Just how great the chances are for drought-ending rains depends largely on the strength of the tropical storm remnant when and if it reaches the area.

"If it continues moving west northwest, it eventually will have some effect on West Texas," said Mallory. "But at some point they start to curve and stop moving west."

On occasion, he added, such storms fail even to reach as far inland as Dallas.

Mallory said in his tenure at Midland NWS station the heaviest rains all have been spawned by tropical storm remnants approaching from the Pacific.

"We've got the result of a tropical storm right now over Baja," he said, "but it's weak."

He added that West Texas stands as great — or as little — a chance to gain rainfall from a storm originating in the Gulf of Mexico as it does the Pacific.

New UTPB president sees bright future for school

By HALLYE JORDAN

ODESSA — "You don't always look at the problems without seeing the promises behind them," the new president of The University of Texas of the Permian Basin said. "I don't believe in three-day wonders, but my firm conviction is the future is and can be bright."

Dr. Duane Leach, 48, arriving Monday to take over as president of the upper-level university that has been the center of controversy for the past couple of years, said he is aware of problems facing the institution.

Addressing members of the media during a news conference this morning, Leach said the three main ingredients of any university should mend the tear in the region, which was split with the possibility of four-year status.

Those ingredients are the people, programs and facility, said Leach, former chancellor of The University System of South Texas in Kingsville.

While area junior and community colleges fought four-year status, fearing the inclusion of freshman and sophomore students at UTPB would decrease their enrollments, Friends of UTPB, a 3,000-member group of businessmen and civic leaders throughout the area, advocated the expansion of the university.

Dr. V.R. Cardozier, president of the university since 1970, resigned in August 1982, citing his advocacy of four-year status might become a obstacle that would block four-year status.

July sales tax rebate only slightly below last year's figure

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Midland's sales tax rebate check received by the city earlier this week surged ahead of the past two months, indicating a possibility the economy may be easing its downward spiral.

Rebate checks for the month of July were mailed last Friday to the cities by the State Comptroller's Office.

Midland's rebate was $977,000.39, only a slight drop off the $1,004,414.92 recorded for the same month last year. For the calendar year to date, Midland has received $4,872,615.21, a 25.11 percent decline from last year's total to date of $6,506,271.16.

Odessa also saw a larger figure in its rebate check, which was made out for $881,004.14. It was almost $400,000 below last year's comparable monthly check of $1,201,451.56.

For the calendar year to date, that city has received $4,925,577.01, compared to last year's rebate of $7,301,768.35. According to the comptroller's office, Odessa's rebates have dropped 32.54 percent.

Midland operates on a fiscal year that starts Oct. 1, which means the city will receive only one more rebate check this year. Looking at the past 11 checks, the city has received $6,943,096. Finance Director Troy Gifford is hoping to get $325,000 for next month, which would close out the city's fiscal year with $7.2 million.

A year ago, Midland City Council had estimated it would receive about $11 million in sales tax this fiscal year. When the shortfall became evident in February, the budget was cut to avoid a large deficit by the end of the year.

Next year's budget shows $6.65 million is anticipated. And if the economy turns upward, the sales tax rebate could hit $6.9 million, according to Gifford.

"Maybe at least we've reached the bottom," said Gifford. "I would hope we could say we've reached the bottom. Maybe the economy will be flat or we'll have some growth."

Explaining why fiscal year 1983 will end on a higher note than 1984 in sales tax, Gifford said the city received its larger amounts in the early part of that fiscal year before the economic downturn became visible.

September's check will reflect sales made in July. "There are so many cyclical and seasonal trends, it's hard to say which ones will have an impact. Consumer buying is only one part of it," said Gifford. But he acknowledged that it does play a role because the February check normally is the largest of the year, covering December sales.

Programs offer help, hope for drug abusers

On the average, Midland high school juniors who indicated they were users of alcohol in a recent survey, said they were introduced to drinking in the ninth grade — users of marijuana said their introduction to that drug came a year later.

"I walked into one elementary school and was greeted by the principal and a few teachers," said Rod Seals, Outreach Supervisor at Teen Challenge. "They told me, 'We really don't have a drug problem here, but we appreciate you coming.'

"I walked down the hall and smelled marijuana coming from the boys' bathroom. There was a group of sixth graders in there. It's there — it's even down to the elementary schools."

"In some affluent middle-class families — I know of three or four sixth graders who have drinking problems," said Bob Savage, director of the Palmer Drug Abuse Program. "There is no such thing as social drinking at that age — it's abuse."

Savage, pointing out that about 98 percent of the alcohol abusers PDAP sees began drinking at age 12, said Midland is into the so-called social or harmless drugs. He named alcohol, marijuana, cocaine and, primarily used by college students cramming for exams, amphetamines.

Galveston residents prepare for hurricane

GALVESTON (AP) — Tides were rising here and hundreds of residents were fleeing the feared arrival later today of hurricane Alicia, the season's first Atlantic hurricane.

The National Weather Service said tides were expected to rise by 4 to 6 feet by sunrise today with winds gusting up to 30 mph and that Galveston Island could be cut off if the tides exceeded that.

The storm quickly grew from a tropical disturbance Monday to a hurricane on Tuesday. Alicia's maximum winds late Tuesday had been clocked at 80 mph and weather experts predicted the storm would gain strength overnight.

Steve Harned, chief meteorologist for the National Weather Service described Alicia as a "minimal hurricane," saying it popped out of a thunderstorm unexpectedly. But people should still take it seriously, he said.

The Galveston area had a 35 percent chance of being within 65 miles of the center of Alicia by 1 p.m. today, weather forecasters said.

Galveston, 50 miles south of Houston, was the scene of the nation's worst hurricane disaster in 1900, when some 6,000 people lost their lives.

Harned said he hoped tides would not exceed the 6-foot level.

"If that happens, we're going to have serious problems," he said. "Once you get above 6 feet then we should start worrying about the island being cut off."

Galveston Island, home to 60,000 people, is accessible to the mainland by two bridges and a ferry. The main six-lane bridge, which carries Interstate 45 over West Galveston Bay and north to Houston, would be impassable if tides grew over 6 feet, he said.

A second bridge, over San Luis Pass at the western end of the island, has limited traffic because of a boating accident there several weeks ago. Ferries would be halted by high waves, officials said.

By evening, tides began rising. Several youths braved high waves on surfboards. Motorists parked along the Galveston seawall, watching the increasingly angry Gulf.

"We're leaving here at daylight," Jimmy Fox, who lives in the Spanish Grant subdivision on West Galveston Island, said Tuesday.

"I've boarded up the windows to my house and to two other houses. We're packing two pickups and the boat with our TVs, our stereos, our silver, anything that's small and valuable."

Traffic from the low-lying west end of the island moved out steadily but without panic late Tuesday.

Civil Defense authorities had asked residents to stock up on batteries, water and canned goods to prepare for the storm.

Ed Muncie, general manager of Stewart Beach Park, said the beach front businesses would not be boarding up "until the last minute."

AP Laserphoto

Members of the maintenance crew of the Moody House Retirement Community in Galveston board up windows in precaution against the hurricane threatening the Texas coast.

"It takes about 12 hours to box and move everything. We've been through this drill in the past. We did it with Allen three years ago and it was a waste of time," he said. "Normally, we have a lot of spectactors, people who are curious, driving down because they want to see a storm. As for me, I would never leave Galveston."

John Gretchen III of Galveston said he has been through three hurricanes — Allen, Beulah and Carla — and intended to go through a fourth one.

"Carla (in 1961) was the most fun. We went swimming in the streets and watched all of the roofs come flying off the houses," he said. "They (the authorities) said today that we should stock up on canned goods. So I went out and bought a case of beer. I'm going to stay right here (an apartment on Stewart Beach)."

Gretchen, a carpenter, said he planned to "hang around because afterward there's going to be lots of money to be made."

Operators of two gas stations said business was no heavier than usual on Tuesday. Beaches were crowded late in the day with sun bathers and tourists.

"We've been listening to the radio all day and from what we've heard this is just the standard stuff — the warnings and preparation," said Tom Willis of Richmond, Va. "I'll probably park my bones right here and stay. I've never seen a hurricane before so this should be lots of fun," he said.

Sides at odds over future Continental workers

HOUSTON (AP) — Negotiators for Continental Airlines and its striking machinists union met at the request of a federal mediator, but came away at odds over the future of workers hired to replace strikers, a company spokesman said.

Continental spokesman Bruce Hicks said during the 4½-hour meeting Tuesday the airline "made it clear that if there was to be a settlement, it would have to include job security" for the unspecified number of workers Continental began hiring Monday to replace striking mechanics.

"The strikers would not displace any people working today, but would go on a preferential hire list" in the event the airline hires more machinists, Hicks said. "We would assume, if the (union) plans to negotiate a contract, they would understand that."

But International Association of Machinists' spokesman Jim Conley said the union remains firm in its position that any settlement must permit all striking workers to return to their jobs.

"That is our position in every strike," said Conley.

Hicks said Tuesday's talks were requested by the National Mediation board and were not negotiations. But it was the first time representatives of both sides had met since the 2,000-member union walked off the job at 12:01 a.m. Saturday.

"We have nothing on the table. I don't believe the (union) does either," Hicks said while the meeting was in progress.

Federal mediator Robert Brown said he would "be in touch" with airline and union representatives again today.

Also Tuesday, Continental said it plans to restore service Thursday to 11 of 17 cities whose routes were dropped when union machinists went on strike.

The restored flights would bring Continental to 93 percent of its regular flight schedule, Hicks said. The resumed service would add an average of 44 flights a day to the carrier's service, increasing its daily flights from 545 to 590.

Machinists are seeking a 36 percent raise for a 17-month contract, improved benefits and job security.

The company has proposed changing work rules it said would increase productivity and eliminate up to 120 mechanics' jobs and 60 other jobs in the 2,000-member union.

"The single primary issue is our job security, and having some jurisdiction over what type of work we do," Young said. "The company's proposal is to take some of our work and subcontract it to other types of companies."

Continental, with its contract proposal no longer in effect because it was rejected, has eliminated 800 jobs since the strike began.

About 600 of the jobs were for kitchen- and cabin-cleaning attendants. That work now is being done by Marriott Corp., under a long-term agreement.

The Houston-based airline, the nation's eighth-largest, employs about 12,200 workers.

Officials discuss island evacuation

AUSTIN (AP) — State officials have done practically all they can to prepare for a hurricane, but the director of the Texas Department of Public Safety warns "there's no perfect answer."

"If it comes in in a populated area, we are going to have major problems, and there's just nothing you can do to avoid that," DPS head Col. Jim Adams said Tuesday as Gov. Mark White activated the state's Emergency Management Council.

Adams and representatives of 11 other state agencies briefed White on efforts to prepare for Hurricane Alicia, the season's first Atlantic hurricane, which weather forecasters said could hit Texas as early as today.

Adams said it would take 26 hours to evacuate Galveston Island.

"But there's no way you can get everybody to evacuate. There's no perfect answer. The only thing you can do is plan to minimize the effects to reduce the damage, to reduce the casualties," Adams added.

The council told White that they were as prepared as possible for the hurricane.

"Everything that I understand could be done is being done," White said after the briefing.

State Highway Department representative Tom Ohlendorf said there were four potential traffic problems in the coastal area of Southeast Texas, but he said there were alternate routes and in some cases traffic could be routed over the area under construction.

Jury must decide punishment of woman convicted of murder

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A Texas housewife convicted in the 1978 slayings of five people has been depicted by character witnesses as a church-going, compassionate woman who tried to convert fellow prison inmates to Christianity.

Linda May Burnett, 35, cried softly Tuesday when her daughter took the stand in an effort to persuade jurors not to send Mrs. Burnett back to death row.

The Nederland housewife has been convicted of capital murder for the death of one of five people abducted, shot at close range and buried in a mass grave.

Jurors must decide whether to sentence Mrs. Burnett to death by injection or life imprisonment. She spent almost four years on death row before her first conviction was overturned.

Final arguments in the trial's punishment phase were set for this morning, with the jury then to begin deliberations.

The bulk of the defense's testimony in the punishment phase came from Austin psychiatrist Richard Coons, who attacked a prediction made by a prosecution psychiatrist Monday that Mrs. Burnett almost certainly would commit future violent crimes.

Dr. Clay Griffith of Dallas estimated there was a "99 percent probability" Mrs. Burnett would commit future violent acts, which Coons said "just won't hold water."

He said he based his conclusion on Mrs. Burnett's lack of a previous criminal record, "non-agressive" personality and the absence of a pattern of childhood problems.

Both doctors acknowledged they had not personally examined Mrs. Burnett, but instead relied on a hypothetical personality profile.

Mrs. Burnett's 17-year-old daughter, Debra Kay Miller Landry, broke into ragged sobs after telling jurors, "My mother always took care of me."

"She taught me how to color, she taught me my ABCs and she taught me to be kind to people, no matter what they say or what they did," said Ms. Landry, who has been adopted by Mrs. Burnett's sister.

NTSU offers degree program on disaster management

DENTON (AP) — North Texas State University is offering students a curriculum for disaster — a new bachelor's degree program designed to train specialists to manage emergencies ranging from mudslides to nuclear war.

"They'll learn how to bring a crisis in under budget. The federal government only allows so much money for dealing with disaster, so this is important," said university spokeswoman Charlotte Guest, who added it is the first such degree program in the nation.

Students in the Emergency Management and Administration program will take courses in sociology, psychology, public administration, rehabilitation and business administration.

White meets with Valley residents

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White, telling Lower Rio Grande Valley residents he is "frustrated" with years of unsuccessful attempts to help them, says he's made it a top priority to deal with their housing, health and education problems.

White called for a "coordinated effort" to put federal and state money together to help residents of "colonias," rural settlements that have been without utilities and services for years. Valley Interfaith organization chairwoman Juliet Garza said there are about 200 colonias, some housing up to 3,000 residents.

White also promised improved health care for the thousands of poor people living in the Valley. He said a regional hospital probably could be built without action from the Legislature, but if that plan fails, White said he would ask legislators to consider the hospital at a special session.

PUC faces major decision

AUSTIN (AP) — Public Utility Commission members today faced their first major decision — a motion to throw out the case — in Southwestern Bell's request for a $1.7 billion rate increase.

The Texas Municipal League and Consumers Union have argued that SWB does not have the information needed to back up the rate request. PUC Hearing Examiner Jacqueline Holmes denied the TML and CU motion, but the groups appealed to the full commission.

The SWB request, if approved, would triple basic monthly bills for Texas residential customers. Company officials say much of the money is needed to replace revenues that will end on Jan. 1, when a court-ordered break-up of the nationwide Bell System takes effect.

Business temporarily halted

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox says an Austin district judge has granted a court order temporarily stopping Limestone Life Association of Groesbeck from doing any insurance business.

Mattox said Tuesday that District Judge Hume Cofer had granted a temporary restraining order and set a hearing for Aug. 23 on Mattox's request for a temporary injunction.

The attorney general filed suit Tuesday stating that Limestone's 1982 annual statement showed deposits of $281,746, but an examination by the State Board of Insurance showed deposits of only $5,305. Mattox said in a statement that the association is insolvent with $167,077 of liabilities in excess of assets.

Mattox aides: Missing phone records oversight

AUSTIN (AP) — Aides to Attorney General Jim Mattox say it was only by an oversight that a week's worth of phone logs from Mattox' office were not turned over to the Travis County district attorney's office last month with other subpoenaed documents.

District Attorney Ronnie Earle had said Monday he hoped to have an announcement Tuesday concerning the papers handed over by Mattox, the target of a grand jury investigation of several alleged conflicts of interest.

But an assistant to Earle said Tuesday that prosecutors needed more time to go over phone logs from June 9-17, which were discovered last week to be missing from the subpoenaed documents and which Mattox's office delivered Monday morning.

"Due to subsequent developments, there are not going to be any announcements" David Garza of the district attorney's Public Integrity Unit said Tuesday. "We haven't had time to fully analyze them for accuracy and completeness. We're still going over those records."

Mattox press aide Elna Christopher said the missing records were simply an oversight.

"Another secretary was here then, and we were using two phone logs. We didn't even know they weren't there until we got the letter" from the district attorney's office, she said. "We had to track down the other secretary. We didn't know those records weren't in the batch we already sent over."

Earle was not available for comment Tuesday. His secretary said only that he was "out of the office" and that Garza was handling all media inquiries.

Garza said his office notified Mattox's office Friday, and the missing logs were delivered Monday morning.

Mattox's office records, schedules, travel itineraries, phone logs and other documents were subpoenaed and surrendered under threat of arrest on July 28.

The grand jury that is investigating Mattox's 1982 campaign finance reports, an alleged threat to a private law firm over a personal dispute and, according to Earle, "other allegations of misconduct" held its regular Tuesday afternoon private session, but Garza said no witnesses were presented.

"They are taking up regular business and that might include the Mattox case," he said.

Mattox has said he has done nothing illegal and even if he were guilty of everything alleged, it would amount to nothing more than misdemeanor offenses calling for fines.

Rain associated with Hurricane Alicia is forecast for parts of Texas and Louisiana, and showers are expected in parts of California, Nevada, Idaho, Colorado and New Mexico, according to the National Weather Service.

Much-needed rain unlikely to fall

The much-needed rain has less than a 20 percent chance to sprinkle on Midland through Thursday.

According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, it should be partly cloudy through Thursday. Early evening thunderstorms are expected tonight, becoming fair with the low dropping to the low 70s.

Thursday should be partly cloudy with less than a 20 percent chance for isolated showers in the late afternoon. High Thursday is expected to be in the mid-90s. Southeasterly winds should breeze through at 5-15 mph.

Wednesday's high of 99 didn't quite match up to the record high of 104 set in 1946, and the overnight low of 71 was warmer than the record low of 60 set in 1972.

Becoming mostly cloudy tonight and Thursday southeast with scattered thundershowers. Partly cloudy northwest with widely scattered thundershowers. Lows mid to upper 70s. Highs Thursday near 90 southeast to near 102 northwest.

South Texas: A hurricane warning is in effect for the Texas coast from Corpus Christi to Port Arthur. Increasing clouds with increasing chance of rain and winds over eastern half of South Texas and along the coast today and tonight. Cloudy and rain continuing Thursday. Elsewhere partly cloudy with isolated to widely scattered thundershowers west. Wednesday. Highs today and Thursday in the 90s except near 100 along the Rio Grande. Lows 70s.

Port Arthur to Port O'Connor: Hurricane warning in effect. Northeast winds 15 to 20 knots near shore and 35 to 45 knots offshore increasing later today to 30 to 40 knots and gusty near shore and hurricane force offshore. Easterly winds at hurricane force tonight. Southerly winds decreasing to 20 to 30 knots on Thursday. Seas building to 15 to 20 feet today and 15 to 20 feet and higher tonight. Heavy thunderstorms and squalls.

Port O'Connor to Brownsville: Hurricane warning in effect. Southwest winds 10 to 15 knots near shore today and 30 to 40 knots offshore. Winds increasing to 20 to 30 knots and gusty near shore later today and to storm or hurricane force offshore. Winds southerly at hurricane force tonight. Thursday winds southerly decreasing to 20 to 30 knots.

Gulf Coast residents flee hurricane

Along the Galveston seawall, souvenir shops were closed but not boarded up. A few displayed signs "Closed For Alicia." A trickle of sightseers took pictures of the waves hitting the wall and splashing over the sidewalk.

The wind began howling early in the day. Rain was steady but not heavy immediately.

Mayor Gus Manual said he was not ordering the city evacuated.

"There has been no change in Alicia's intensity or direction that would cause us to alter our plan. We are encouraging those citizens living in the low-lying areas to leave," he said.

The hurricane neared landfall exactly 14 years to the day after Hurricane Camille slammed into the Gulf Coast of Mississippi, killing 255 people and leaving 68 missing. A hurricane which hit Galveston in 1900 with 77-mph winds killed 6,000 people, mostly as the result of storm tides which inundated the city. It was the nation's worst hurricane disaster.

While about 6,000 southwestern Louisiana residents and hundreds of workers on offshore oil rigs heeded warnings to leave, most of the 60,000 residents of Galveston apparently chose to remain.

Bill Bloom, at the National Weather Service in Galveston, estimated the evacuation warnings in Texas would affect up to 15,000 people in low-lying areas but there was no way to know how many were leaving.

"Traffic hasn't been abnormally heavy," said Irving Clark, deputy Civil Defense director.

Ron Castle, National Weather Service specialist at Galveston, said some residents of Galveston Island's west end were slow to leave.

"No one there really seems to be taking it seriously," Castle said. "By daybreak, they could find that their escape routes are being cut off. They're just kind of ignoring it and apparently hoping for the best."

Police said some roads on the island's west end were closed today. Department spokesman Andre Gibbs said that a segment between 16½-Mile Bridge and the San Luis Pass bridge was blocked, and other roads were beginning to flood.

Alicia, which grew quickly from a tropical storm Tuesday, had maximum sustained winds of 85 mph and was expected to reach land sometime today. Hurricane warnings were posted along a 500-mile stretch of coastline from Corpus Christi, Texas to Morgan City, La.

"We'll see an increase in winds and rain and tides will increase," Harned said. "Low-lying areas could be subject to tidal flooding of 4 to 6 feet. Winds are 80 mph with possible gusts to 95. That would keep the hurricane a minimal hurricane but hurricanes are so difficult to predict."

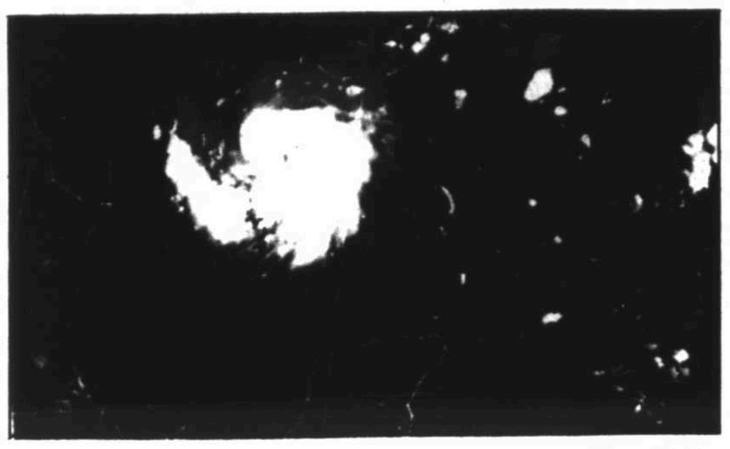

The hurricane was ranked as a 2 on a scale of 5 with 5 the worst, said Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Fla.

"It looks like the central part of the storm ought to cross the upper Texas coast or at least the central Texas coast sometime later this afternoon or this evening," Frank said this morning in an interview on NBC's "Today" show.

Officials determined there was a 51 percent likelihood that the storm would hit Galveston. That means "if we forecast the storm to move over Galveston, one out of two times we'll be right," Frank said.

"If you ignore the warnings when the odds are one out of two," he said, "do you know what you're risking? You're risking your life. And I don't believe there are many people who would like to play those kind of odds."

Civil Defense authorities in Galveston County and the city of Galveston, about 50 miles south of Houston, recommended people living in low-lying areas leave by daybreak today, when high tides were likely to cover roads. Tides already were rising Tuesday evening.

Mississippi coast residents recall Hurricane Camille

By TERRY GOGGIN
Associated Press Writer

JACKSON, Miss. — As winds from Hurricane Alicia began to batter the Texas Gulf Coast, residents of Mississippi's shoreline recalled the horror spawned by Hurricane Camille 14 years ago today.

Alicia posed no danger to Mississippi. But people here still pay attention to even distant storms, mindful of the 134 lives that were lost that summer night along the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

"It was a monster," said Hattiesburg banker David Stainton, who was living in Long Beach when his bank, home and church were leveled by the 200-mph winds and tidal surge on Aug. 17, 1969.

His family had already gone to visit relatives out of state, and Stainton recalled "battening down the hatches" in his house, just a half-block from the beach, as Camille approached.

"The house started creaking when I ran out," Stainton said. Determined to make a last-minute check of the beachfront, he turned down U.S. 90, where crashing green waves nearly swept his car away.

Finding refuge inland at a national guard armory, Stainton pushed back home the next day, hiking through a cemetery and then across debris 10 feet deep that had been the houses along his street.

"A concrete slab was all that was left of the bank," he said. "Everything I was associated with was just gone."

France reacts to Barbie apology

PARIS (AP) — France today deplored the way U.S. intelligence officials protected "Butcher of Lyon" Klaus Barbie and spirited him to safety in Bolivia, but said at least he now faces trial for his Nazi war crimes.

Government spokesman Max Gallo's remarks were the first official French reaction to a U.S. Justice Department report issued Tuesday that said the U.S. Army Counter-Intelligence Corps shielded Barbie from French officials who wanted him tried 34 years ago.

"Although frank, the U.S. Justice Department's report on the Klaus Barbie affair leads one to deplore the practices which were outlined in it and which were followed by certain agencies, without the knowledge of their government, that allowed the Nazi criminal to avoid justice for a long time," Gallo said.

"But the thing that is important today is that Klaus Barbie has been arrested and that he will answer for his acts before French justice in the same place of his crimes," he said.

In sending a copy of the 218-page report to the French government, the State Department expressed "our deep regrets over the actions taken to conceal Barbie."

Barbie, 69, is known as the "Butcher of Lyon" because of his role as chief of the Gestapo in that French city from 1942 to 1944. Now held in a Lyon prison cell, he awaits trial on charges of torturing and killing hundreds of Jews, and shipping thousands of others to death camps.

He was brought to France for trial upon his expulsion last Feb. 5 from Bolivia, where he had lived under an assumed name since 1951.

Legal officials have said it would take at least a year to prepare the case against Barbie. He was rushed to a hospital in March for an emergency hernia operation but since then, French officials have said Barbie should be fit to stand trial.

However, his French lawyer, Jacques Verges, has expressed fears that Barbie might be murdered in jail "for fear he would reveal the collaboration of French officials with the Nazis during World War II."

Verges has sought Barbie's release on grounds he was brought to France illegally because no extradition treaty exists between France and Bolivia. But a Lyon judge rejected that petition in June, saying Barbie technically was expelled and not extradited from his South American refuge and that his safety could not be guranteed if he were released.

The attorney contends Barbie was "kidnapped" by the French government, which he claims paid the Bolivian government more than $125,000 for Barbie's expulsion.

Postwar military courts in France twice sentenced Barbie to death in absentia.

Sales tax rebate figures may show easing of downward spiral

The finance director had explained in a previous story that some businesses don't have to report the sales tax until the last month in a quarter, thus the largest amount usually shows up that third month. He averages the three to get an idea of what sales may have been each month. For example, Midland received a rebate check of $376,000 in June, reflecting April sales. The July rebate — for May sales — was $241,687.53. He added in the $977,000 for this month, giving an average of $530,000.

The Comptroller's Office noted seven out of 27 of the largest cities were continuing their downturn in rebates. Those seven were Houston, Odessa, Midland, Tyler, Abilene, El Paso and Beaumont.

Gifford compiled figures on these and other cities throughout the state. Of the seven, Houston showed a 7.9 percent decline over last year; El Paso a 7.8 percent drop; Abilene, 8.4 percent; and Beaumont, 3.9 percent.

Brownsville, near the Mexico border, continued its sagging sales as the rebates totaled 35.8 percent below last year. Laredo is in the same position with a 46 percent drop.

Bright future foreseen for UTPB

Dr. Donald Rippey has served as acting president since October 1982.

According to Leach, the Permian Area Cooperative Academic Program (PACAP), a joint effort between local junior and community colleges and UTPB, will be revitalized. A planning document for UTPB's programs and directions, mandated by the University of Texas System Board of Regents, will include input from faculty, students and the community.

The low enrollments, poor campus atmosphere and weak course studies cited by proponents of four-year status can be changed, according to Leach.

"Merely because it is lacking doesn't mean it has to continue," Leach said. "We do not intend to remain stagnant."

When criticism of a shallow geology program in an oil-based community was mentioned, Leach responded: "Certainly, located within the Permian Basin Regions, it seems to me we should be able to employ certain academic opportunities."

"I think the overall plan which in the end is designed to help students — that's what we're here for."

He said he doesn't have any concern about pulling advocates of four-year status to rally with him and the university.

"I have no qualms we can win the concensus for higher education and an upper-level university in the community. I think it can be done. We need to set out what The University of Texas of the Permian Basin is all about. Not only as a place to go to school but as a service to Odessa, Midland and the entire region. Really, universities are a public resource."

With the cooperation of the Permian Basin area, Leach said the probability of enrollments reaching as high as 3,500 students is not unrealistic.

"But it's not something done overnight," he said. "I don't come to you with instant answers."

Drug programs offer both help, hope

Seals agreed: "Marijuana, speed, heroin and cocaine abuse are on the high upswing. From the white collar businessmen, down to the kids."

"There was a day when I wore T-shirts and jeans with my hair hanging down my back to work," Savage said. "Now I can't dress that way and come to work — people are wearing Izod shirts. There is a shift in social approval."

Affluence in Midland as well as an ideal location between the Mexican border and the Dallas area, have encouraged the availability of drugs, drug abuse counselors and law enforcement officers agree.

Although the recent survey indicated 76.6 percent of Midland juniors taking the survey use alcohol and 37.4 percent use marijuana, only 9.8 percent reported using cocaine. Some 32.2 percent of the juniors reported using stimulants while 5.8 percent said they used other drugs, which include psychedelics, tranquilizers, heroin, other narcotics, qualuudes, and LSD.

Those figures are too low, according to some.

"These people here have a higher income, so the kids have access to more money so they can afford cocaine," said Ron Benton of the Midland Police Department Crime Prevention Office. "Narcotics (division) stays pretty busy in all types (of drug abuse)."

"I've been over to what is referred to as the poor part of town," Seals said. "And I've been in some of the most affluent schools here, including the private schools — there is a big drug problem."

At PDAP, only 2 percent of the Midland participants are indigent, according to Bob Warren, former counselor in Midland and now director of Brownsville's PDAP.

Most of the people at PDAP "are not strung out on drugs. They aren't living a full-blown life of drugs. But they have the tendency to," Savage said.

While the program is based on the 12-steps of Alcoholics Annonymous, Savage said, "We want to get to people before they are down and out, before they have lost everything. We want to give them a choice.

"AA says you have to hit a bottom. For us, one man's bottom is another's ceiling."

When the program began in Midland, it was geared toward those between the ages of 13 and 25. Because they have found involvement with drugs at a younger age, the program was backed up to include 12-year-olds, Savage said. Also, education and prevention programs are given to children ages 5 through 12 and adult, parent and family group counseling sessions are offered.

"When you're working with 9-year-olds and above, it's intervention, not prevention," Warren said. "With first and second graders, it's prevention. With third and fourth graders, they are already caught up in their podners (peers)."

Funded through private, corporate and church donations — and recently, through United Way — the program receives referrals from family members, teachers and ministers. If a couple goes for marriage counseling and the counselor realizes alcohol or drug abuse is the root of their problem, he may refer them to PDAP.

Those needing medical detoxification are usually referred by PDAP to Midland Memorial Hospital, MHMR or the Johnson Center, Warren said.

At Teen Challenge, counseling and a live-in program are offered for persons ages 17 to 35, although most seeking help there range in age from 18 to 25.

A Christian program, the emphasis is on re-directing one's life, getting priorities straight, and usually avoiding old friends and old hangouts.

According to Greg Hammond, who resigned in July after serving as head of rehabilitation and dean of men, when a person reaches their mid-20s, they think "no longer am I 18 and foot-loose and fancy free.

"They realize they've just sorta thrown their life away. If they have a drug problem, they can kick it right here. Some need medical attention and we're not physicians. They can kick it cold turkey. We try to snare them with an alternative lifestyle — through Jesus Christ and the family. We work real hard at changing their lifestyle.

"You can't cure cancer by putting a band aid on it," Hammond said.

Those needing 24-hour supervision may live in the home where Bible classes are conducted every morning and group and individual sessions are held.

Teen Challenge has people from all over the country living in the home, Hammond said. Most Midlanders are dealt with on an outpatient basis or are sent to another Teen Challenge home for the in-house program.

"Some of them have been in the drug culture for so long and they need to get away to help them cope. We need to get them out of that environment," Hammond said.

One Midlander who tried the local live-in program had grown up in the same neighborhood, Seals said. "He knew only dope and old buddies."

He was sent to another Teen Challenge and "now he's back, he's coping, he's making it," Hammond said.

A new lifestyle is also dealt with at the Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center of Midland.

"They have to get new friends and that's the hardest thing of all," said Valorie Burks, MHMR drug abuse counselor. "They ask, 'How do I find friends that I want?' To them, they are all straight, weird squares that don't do drugs. We have to work on their self confidence and self image."

Many of the drug addicts Ms. Burks works with recently were released from prison. As part of parole procedures, they must attend group sessions at MHMR once a week. The sessions focus on handling the outside world and participants are encouraged to talk about personal experiences. For some, coming out of prison means facing changes in marriages, families and friends.

"When they're coming out, they have to sign a stipulation to parole saying they will go to MHMR. A lot of times they are very hostile. But those that know they're going to be here know they might as well make the most of it. One hour at MHMR and 15 minutes with a parole officer aren't anything compared to looking at those (prison) walls."

When some come in, they are ready to confess, Ms. Burks said. However, one patient didn't tell her he was "a needle freak" until he'd been there two months.

"I try to put them in my place," she said. "How would you help someone on drugs? Eventually, when they begin to trust you, they'll tell you a lot more. But you don't let them become too dependent (on a counselor) or they'll blame you.

"All I can do is advise them — but it has to be their decision. It's not frustrating because that's not the attitude. If I take the attitude I'm going to save these people, then your're going to be coming here getting someone to talk to me.

"You're going to win and you're going to lose."

Israel, El Salvador strengthening their diplomatic ties

By ARTHUR ALLEN
Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Israel will reopen its embassy in El Salvador in October as both nations seek closer ties that could lead to Israeli military aid for the fight against leftist guerrillas, the government says.

Salvadoran diplomatic sources said Israel feels a stronger relationship with El Salvador will help to counter relations between the Palestine Liberation Organization and Central American leftists, including the Sandinista government of Nicaragua.

Francisco Jose Guerrero, a senior aide to President Alvaro Magana, said the agreement to strengthen relations followed meetings this month in Jerusalem between Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and a high-level Salvadoran delegation.

Guerrero said the delegation did not mention arms sales or military training for El Salvador during the five-day mission trip, and mostly talked about agricultural projects. But he said military aid also is a "possibility."

He also said top Salvadoran military officers plan to visit Israel later this year.

"We have opened the ballroom doors. Now all those who want to dance can come in," Guerrero said in response to questions by The Associated Press. He refused to provide other details.

Asked whether training and arms sales may follow, a Salvadoran Foreign Ministry official replied: "It is logical to think that this visit will lead to something concrete."

Israel, Japan, West Germany and several other countries closed their embassies here in 1979, after a series of terrorist kidnappings, bombings and assassination attacks against diplomats and foreign businessmen.

Guerrero said the talks on reopening the embassy followed El Salvador's agreement in September to move its embassy from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem — thereby supporting Israel's disputed claim to the holy city as its capital.

He said the two countries also agreed to support each other at the United Nations. El Salvador has voted with other Latin American nations in favor of Palestinian participation in Middle East negotiations and supported having the PLO as the legitimate representative of the Palestinian people — a position Israel's government rejects.

Diplomats in El Salvador, who spoke on condition they not be identified, interpreted the new agreement as a move by Israel to expand its influence in the region and to aid the United States, which is fighting what the Reagan administration says is a Soviet-backed effort by Nicaragua to spread leftist revolution in Central America.

Israel has been supplying arms to Guatemala since a U.S. cutoff of arms sales in 1977, when the Carter administration criticized that nation's human rights record.

Diplomatic sources say Israel also promised military aid to Honduras earlier this year, during a secretive visit to the region by former Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon.

Carlos Martinez, center, is escorted out of the Spanish Consulate in Los Angeles Tuesday after surrendering to authorities. Martinez held four people hostage for more than nine hours.

'Intelligent' gunman holds four hostage

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A "very intelligent" gunman who held Spain's consul general and three other people hostage for 9½ hours surrendered when he was tricked into thinking his family had been flown to Puerto Rico, police said.

Carlos Martinez of Spain was in custody today after his surrender at the Spanish consulate about 20 minutes before midnight, said police Capt. Jack Smith. Martinez had been told his wife and two children were en route to Puerto Rico, he said.

The four hostages, including consul general Joaquin Munoz del Castillo, were released unharmed minutes before the surrender, Smith said.

Martinez, a stocky man with dark, curly, collar-length hair and a handlebar moustache, was being held at Parker Center jail for questioning, Smith said. The Spanish embassy in Washington said Martinez held a Spanish passport and was from Malaga, Spain.

Authorities said Martinez demanded his family be flown to Puerto Rico, although the reason for that request was unclear.

"He felt he was unable to make a living in the United States," Smith said. "The demands appear to be the result of a domestic situation. The man is not an American citizen and the demands are not political."

"He is very intelligent" and appeared to be educated, said Smith, commander of the police department's Wilshire Division.

Tourismo Internationale, a Spanish travel agency, provided three tickets on an Eastern Airlines flight scheduled to leave Los Angeles International Airport at 11:15 p.m. and the woman and two children boarded the plane, Smith said.

Martinez was told the plane had departed, but it in fact had been detained, Smith said. Authorities took the woman and two children off the plane and into custody at the FBI's airport office, Smith said.

The FBI said Diana Sala De Martinez was arrested for investigation of violating a federal law "for the protection of foreign officials and official guests of the United States."

"He felt he was unable to make a living in the United States. The demands appear to be the result of a domestic situation. The man is not an American citizen and the demands are not political."

— Police Capt. Jack Smith

She was held at Parker Center jail today, authorities said. The whereabouts of the children, their names and ages, could not immediately be determined.

Smith identified the other hostages — all consulate employees — as Jose Garcia, 43, Rose Bustamonte, believed to be 52, and Vivan Rosenfeld, whose age was not available.

All four hostages talked with authorities briefly after their release and were sent home. They declined to talk to reporters.

The drama began about 2 p.m. Tuesday when a man with a handgun took five people hostage at the consulate, located on the 14th floor of the Ticor Building in a busy business district on Wilshire Boulevard, about seven miles west of downtown Los Angeles, Smith said.

The man asked for "plane tickets for three members of his family to go to Puerto Rico, not for himself," said Dionisio Garzon, a press attache at the Spanish embassy in Washington.

One of the hostages, a secretary, was released to arrange for the transportation to Puerto Rico and was designated the man's contact to confirm his family was safely on board the flight, Smith said. He would not identify the secretary.

AT&T, strikers begin bargaining

Local union discusses AT&T breakup — Page 1C

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both sides in a nationwide strike against American Telephone and Telegraph Co. are showing optimism following the first formal bargaining sessions since the walkout began 11 days ago.

The parties met for two sessions Tuesday — their first gathering around a bargaining table since the strike began Aug. 6. Another bargaining session was scheduled today.

"We view it as a happy prospect that the parties are willing to get together," said Duayne Trecker, spokesman for the Communications Workers of America which represents 525,000 of the 675,000 strikers.

"The fact that they're meeting is progress," said Charles Dynes, spokesman for AT&T.

But Trecker said none of the issues that led to the strike has been settled. "There has been movement...I assume that means there have been some modifications" in proposals, he said.

A CWA negotiator, Paul Gray, told reporters following an evening session that "collective bargaining is a matter of you have to reach agreement on everything before you can reach agreement on anything." Aside from that, none of the negotiators would respond to questions or make any comments.

AT&T negotiators met with teams from three unions involved in the strike, with the CWA considered the bellwether since it represents the great bulk of the strikers. Also involved are the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, representing 100,000 strikers, and the Telecommunications International Union, representing 50,000.

"I think we can keep the system working for quite a while," Dynes said when asked if supervisory personnel who have been filling in for the strikers are wearying of their 12-hour days. And he said service is improving as the fill-ins acquire experience at their unaccustomed jobs and are better deployed.

Asked if the court-ordered divestiture of the giant company may be held up by the strike, Dynes said "we're going to make it one way or another" by the Jan. 1 date.

"I'm not sure the system's working as well as it's been characterized," Trecker countered. He said he had talked to many people who said they were having trouble with their telephone service.

With 97 percent of telephone traffic handled by computer, the main reports of service curtailment have been delays in getting operator assistance and installation and repair of equipment.

Major issues in the strike are employment security, wages and working conditions. The two sides are attempting to negotiate a three-year pact — the largest labor agreement under negotiation this year.

Top-scale wages for CWA workers range from $345 to $389 a week for operators and $497 to $565 for technicians.

Strike may affect AT&T divestiture

An Analysis

By MERRILL BROWN
The Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

NEW YORK — If the telephone workers' strike against American Telephone & Telegraph Co. continues for more than a month, it could pose serious planning problems as the company attempts to meet the Jan. 1 deadline for its court-ordered breakup, Bell System executives, union officials and analysts said recently.

In some parts of AT&T, key executives are spending time serving as phone operators, and although the company's financial, network and strategic efforts have not yet been delayed by the 11-day-old strike, a prolonged work stoppage could raise serious questions about the company's ability to meet the divestiture deadline, these observers say.

"As far as divestiture, 1-1-84 (Jan. 1, 1984) is our target date," AT&T President William M. Ellinghaus said "We've made no changes in that. Our planning is not affected."

But Ellinghaus went on to say that if the strike were "prolonged" for several months, the "tight schedules" for completing complex divestiture planning assignments might be altered by the strike. "I'm sure it could happen," Ellinghaus said. "I'm sure there are some areas where we may have to move away from some planning work."

AT&T OFFICIALS noted pointedly that, although they have set Jan. 1 as the target date for divestiture — a date picked for its value as the beginning of the company's fiscal year — under the terms of the divestiture decision by U.S. District Court Judge Harold Greene, they actually have until late February 1984 to complete the breakup, 18 months after the entering of the court's divestiture order.

Although the company and the Communications Workers of America held their first formal bargaining talks Tuesday, neither side expressed hopes for an imminent settlement.

"I think it's going to be a long strike," said James McCabe, an analyst with Prudential-Bache Securities Inc., a prediction other industry analysts shared. "It's difficult to negotiate job security. The company sees the opportunity to significantly reduce the labor force. They are not going to cave in."

He also noted that even delaying divestiture by several months could significantly alter the immediate competitive positions of the seven operating telephone companies AT&T will spin off under its consent decree with the Justice Department. "If they can't do what needs to be done, it would hurt because the more uncertainty, the more it would impact the stock prices," McCabe said.

SPOKESMEN FOR several local phone companies said Monday that their divestiture planning was continuing, particularly the complex financial restructuring the effort entails. Yet some key planners on the local level are clearly altering their duties because of the strike.

For example, Dana Campbell, chief spokesman for Southwestern Bell in St. Louis, said that when he called the divestiture network and operations planning office at his company, he could not "get anybody to answer the phone."

Campbell said that most of the members of that office are "out working the (switch) boards or are out on installations," but that the company had not yet fallen behind in its planning efforts. "Nobody is really worried right now, but if we go on for a few more weeks, it may cause problems," he said.

Among those potential problems is the possibility that state regulators might be called upon to reconsider pending local rate increases or figure in the impact of the strike on those proposals. At a time of dramatic change within the telephone industry, with at least $13 billion in rate increases now before state utility regulators, there is mounting public pressure on those panels.

IN NEW YORK, an effort already is under way to link rate cases to strike action. New York State Attorney General Robert Abrams said over the weekend that New York Telephone Co. is saving $30 million a week on labor costs and that the state's Public Service Commission ought to suspend rate tariffs and investigate the possibility of actually reducing local phone rates here.

CWA officials said the efforts like the one initiated by Abrams might take on more steam with union support a program that CWA President Glenn Watts said "sounds logical."

Further complicating the negotiating effort is the fact that AT&T's top negotiators appear to be checking for approval from top officials of the to-be-divested regional companies, firms whose interests are rapidly parting from those of AT&T's top management.

"A lot of the regional companies are doing a lot of thinking about whether they want nationwide bargaining," said Winston E. Himsworth, a first vice president with Lehman Brothers Kuhn Loeb Inc.

Analysts also noted that the company's per share profits could be boosted by anywhere from 7 to 10 cents for each week the strike continues.

Sonar reveals 22 piers of Revolutionary bridge

FAIRPORT, N.Y. (AP) — Sonar readings have revealed 22 piers of a pontoon bridge that stretched across Lake Champlain during the Revolutionary War, two amateur surveyors say.

The 400-yard-long floating bridge apparently was built in 1776, the year after Ethan Allen's Green Mountain Boys captured Fort Ticonderoga from the British, according to surveyors James Kennard and Scott Hill.

Kennard said he could not tell when the bridge was destroyed or dismantled. British forces under Gen. John Burgoyne retook Fort Ticonderoga on July 6, 1777.

Sonar readings in the murky, 20-foot-deep waters at the southern end of the lake showed 22 stone piers, some of which still stood 7 feet high and others of which had collapsed into rubble, Kennard said.

The piers apparently once anchored wooden pontoons that measured 12 feet across and 65 feet in length, he said.

According to a British map of 1776, the pontoon bridge reached from Fort Ticonderoga to Mount Independence, a fortified hill on the east side of the lake with a commanding view.

U.S. denies 'enticing' correspondent's son

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department is denying Soviet accusations that FBI agents tried to entice the teen-aged son of a Washington correspondent for the Soviet news agency Tass into remaining in America.

The Soviet Union has lodged a diplomatic protest in the incident, which grew out of the State Department's insistence on an interview with another teen-ager, the son of a Soviet Embassy diplomat, who reportedly begged President Reagan in a letter that he be permitted to remain in the United States.

"We strongly deny that the U.S. government or its officials enticed or harrassed the Tass correspondent or his family," Bryan Carlson, a State Department spokesman, said Tuesday.

U.S. officials, speaking privately, acknowlege, however, that FBI agents did interview the son of Vyacheslav Kukharenko at Dulles International Airport in the Virginia suburbs Friday night.

"But we did not entice him," said one official who asked not to be identified by name.

The denial was issued shortly after another in an apparently fruitless series of meetings between U.S. and Soviet diplomats to discuss the U.S. demand that American officials be permitted to speak with 16-year old Andrei Berezhkov, whose father, Valentin Berezhkov, 67, is a first secretary at the Soviet Embassy.

Department officials insist the interview be granted to give them the opportunity to learn the teen-ager's wishes for themselves.

It was just "more of the same," the acting Soviet ambassador, Oleg Sokolov, told reporters Tuesday as he emerged from an hour-long meeting with Richard Burt, assistant secretary for European affairs.

In Santa Barbara, Calif., White House spokesman Larry Speakes insisted the United States has a legal right to interview the youth. But he refused to discuss the issue, saying, "Not being a lawyer, I don't want to debate."

Speakes added: "We continue in our desire to interview the young man."

Sokolov said Monday his government was insisting on "an unhindered departure...without any prior interviewing by anybody from the U.S. authorities."

It is "a matter of principle," said Sokolov, who is in charge of the Soviet Embassy during the home leave of Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin.

The diplomat's son is said by embassy officials to be scheduled to begin the school year in his homeland on September 1.

Pan Am rehires hero of hijack attempt

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After Spicer Lung broke up a hijacking on a Pan American World Airways flight two weeks ago, all the laid-off Pan Am worker really wanted in return was a chance to get his job back.

He started a new job Tuesday in the airline's terminal at San Francisco International Airport — his grateful bosses' reward for his high-altitude heroics.

"My return to Pan Am prior to the incident was very uncertain," said Lung, 45. "I realize the incident affirmed my return to the active roster. I appreciated the recognition. All I asked for was an opportunity to continue working."

But Lung doesn't think the airline owes him lifetime employment.

"My possibility of staying with Pan Am depends on Pan Am's own survival," said the Nicaraguan-born manager. "Such is life. You roll with the punches."

In his old job, Lung was a catering manager in Houston.

For the next two weeks, he will be assisting terminal manager Pat McGowan at Pan Am's new $100 million terminal. He then will become a ramp and operations manager, supervising flight briefings, plane loading and other ground services.

"Well, I'm glad to have him here — not from the point of view that he's a hero. I like him because he's had a lot of experience with Pan Am," said McGowan.

But some workers didn't even know about the hijack attempt.

"I didn't recognize him, to tell you the truth," said secretary Joyce Harris. "He seems to be a very wonderful man."

"Some know, some don't. I like to keep a low profile," Lung said.

"At one time, I put in for a transfer to San Francisco," he said. "I feel quite comfortable in San Francisco. I have a lot of friends here."

Lung began his Pan Am career in Managua, Nicaragua, in 1964. He became manager of passenger and terminal service before leaving the company to move to Miami in 1979. He moved to Houston a year later and rejoined the company when Pan Am merged with National Airlines.

Although laid off in late June, Lung was hoping to get a new job with Pan Am. In fact, he was on his way back to Houston from applying for a Pan Am job in Miami on Aug. 2 when a man identified by the FBI as Alfredo Ayala, 30, tried to take control of Flight 925 while it was cruising at 30,000 feet.

Lung, who was sitting in the first row of the first-class cabin, said he knew something was wrong when he saw the would-be hijacker reach for the cockpit door.

Flight attendant could only pray instructions were heard

FORT MITCHELL, Ky. (AP) — A flight attendant said she shouted emergency instructions to passengers in the smoke-filled cabin of a burning Air Canada jet in which 23 people died, but told federal authorities she could only pray that everyone heard.

The DC-9 caught fire while carrying 41 passengers and five crew members from Dallas to Toronto on June 2, and the pilot made an emergency landing at Greater Cincinnati International Airport.

The crew testified Tuesday in hearings on the fire by the National Transportation Safety Board, which continue today. Investigators were to make recommendations to prevent such tragedies in the future.

Judith Davidson, a 10-year flight attendant for Air Canada, said heavy smoke made it impossible to give individual instructions to all passengers.

"I don't know, given the condition we were in, if 100 percent of the people knew," she said. "We just had to pray. We did our best."

The three flight attendants — Sergio Benetti, Laura Kayama and Ms. Davidson — told investigators they gave individual instructions to only a few passengers as the plane descended, but shouted other commands.

Ms. Davidson said she shouted: "Heads in your laps. Brace for landing." Ms. Kayama, seated several rows away, said she heard the instructions.

The fire apparently started in or near a rear lavatory, said first officer Claude Ouimet, who said he assumed the fire was electrical because of the "gray, very nauseating" smoke that poured into the cabin area.

After that, three circuit breakers which controlled toilet flushing in the lavatory popped. Capt. Donald Cameron and Ouimet tried twice to reset the breakers but failed.

Cameron testified that he postponed making an emergency landing because crew members repeatedly told him the lavatory fire was under control and the smoke appeared to be clearing.

Voice recordings on the plane's on-board flight recorder showed that crew members five times told the pilot the fire appeared to be under control after Ouimet first suggested an emergency landing.

About three minutes later, Ouimet again recommended making an emergency landing, and Cameron responded, "O.K."

Cameron said he wasn't fully aware of what was happening in the cabin because he was concentrating on landing the burning plane after all electronic navigational indicators failed.

"I was told there was a fire in the washroom," Cameron said. "I assumed it was a (trash) bin fire...The airplane was my chief problem and I was going to take it into Cincinnati. I can only say I was totally occupied with flying the airplane."

Cameron said he wasn't sure if crew members reported to him about the fire and smoke during the last five miles of the plane's approach to Cincinnati. He said he was busy trying to control the plane without electronic instruments that normally helped guide it.

Blind sailor missing on Pacific voyage

HONOLULU (AP) — A blind sailor who set out on a solo voyage to Hawaii hasn't been seen since shortly after leaving San Francisco three weeks ago, his contact in Hawaii said.

Hank Dekker, 42, began the 2,376-mile voyage on July 27 aboard the 25-foot sloop "Dark Star," said Vern Rankin, who arranged to sail out and meet Dekker as soon as he gets close to the island of Oahu.

Dekker, legally blind from glaucoma with only 2 percent vision, said he undertook the voyage to "prove to handicapped people that they can do new things."

He had hoped to reach Oahu by Thursday, but has not made radio contact since three days after he left San Francisco.

Amendment to immigration bill upsets law enforcement officials

By GARDNER SELBY

From Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Congress appears likely to approve a comprehensive immigration package this fall, but some law enforcement officials say a last-minute amendment leaves their mouths dry with anticipation.

At issue is a provision tacked onto the Senate bill on the floor and the House package during a committee meeting — without public comment.

Backed by civil libertarians and Hispanic activists, the amendment would require police officers to get a search warrant before entering a field to interrogate suspected undocumented workers.

While Border Patrol agents petition for search warrants, suspects could easily escape to adjoining fields, opponents of the amendment say. In turn, weary local judges, disappointed by a lack of arrests, will turn down requests for additional search warrants, the opponents contend.

"We've been prostituting the law for years," said Jack Richardson, chief of the Border Patrol sector in Del Rio. He said the amendment will leave Border Patrol agents helpless in the face of blatant hirings of illegal aliens to harvest Rio Grande Valley crops.

"It's tantamount to watching your mother-in-law drive off a cliff in your brand new Lincoln Continental," Richardson said.

Amendment supporters say the requirement of search warrants rightly places Border Patrol agents under the same restrictions as other law officers blocked from entering buildings without warrants.

"Growers should be allowed the same courtesy as other employers," said Joe Trevino, spokesman for the League of United Latin American Citizens. "It (the amendment) might curtail the eagerness of INS officials to engage in pursuit that might have the end effect of lost lives," Trevino said.

Although the Immigration and Naturalization Service is on record against the amendment, Richardson said INS leaders have not taken a tougher stand because they fear losing any kind of legislative controls on a continuing surge of illegal crossings into Texas and California.

Between October 1982 and July 1983, Border Patrol apprehensions of illegal aliens increased between 50 and 80 percent from the same period during 1981-82, INS statistics indicate.

At Del Rio, agents apprehended 67,111 aliens during the 1982-83 period, an increase of 75.9 percent from 1981-1982. McAllen reported an 84.9 percent surge in apprehensions, from 25,026 during the 1981-82 period to 46,297 this year, while Laredo and El Paso recorded 62.7 and 33.4 percent increases respectively.

"It's gotten to the point where we don't have enough buses to send them back across," Richardson said.

"They can't catch any more than they're catching," said Patrick Burns, spokesman for the Federation for American Immigration Reform, a group which favors strong immigration controls.

Noting that only 15 percent of the apprehended aliens are nabbed in agricultural settings, Burns downplayed the significance of the search warrants' amendment.

But, he said, "The word is out in Mexico. You're talking about areas that become free zones," where aliens would work without fear of arrest.

INS Washington spokeswoman Janet Graham said the Simpson-Mazzoli Immigration Reform and Control Act is necessary, in almost any form.

"We need to cut off the attraction that draws people to the United States — jobs," Graham said.

Red Cross volunteers learn to cope with nuclear disaster

LIMERICK, Pa. (AP) — A two-day course prompted by the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant accident has begun to teach Red Cross volunteers how to respond in a similar emergency, officials say.

The program launched Tuesday is designed to have "our first responders to a disaster understand radiation, what it is, what it can do and what it can't do," said James Johnston, assistant director of disaster services for the Red Cross' Southeastern Pennsylvania chapter. "At Three Mile Island, people were fearful, they were fleeing...We're hoping this kind of training will eliminate the immediate panic."

Radioactivity was released into the air when a TMI reactor lost cooling water and overheated in March 1979, the worst accident in the history of the U.S. commercial nuclear power industry.

New York's homeless increasing

NEW YORK (AP) — The number of homeless people being housed in city shelters has increased by about 1,000 per night from last summer, and officials are bracing for still more demand this fall and winter.

Two more shelters added Tuesday brought the city's list of care facilities for the homeless to 14 along with a handful of boarding houses. Each shelter offers three hot meals daily, showers, recreation programs and social services, said James Krauskopf, Human Resources Administration commissioner. He said 4,234 men and 594 women were housed Monday night, while 3,108 men and 396 women used city shelters on the same date last year.

They will help in "the fall and winter months when the number of homeless...seeking shelter is expected to increase," he said.

Woman won't face charges

NEW YORK (AP) — A 65-year-old woman who waved an unloaded .32-caliber pistol at eight people she accused of trying to mug her expressed relief at learning a grand jury has refused to issue a gun possession indictment in the case.

"Thank the Lord the charge is dropped," Roberta Leonard, of Sylacauga, Ala., said Tuesday. She could have received a year in prison if convicted.

Charges also were dropped against four of the men after Ms. Leonard said she went for the gun outside a bus terminal Monday before any robbery attempt was made. Two men were charged with possessing knives while two juveniles were referred to Family Court, officials said.

Gold bullion dealers indicted

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Two brothers who ran the largest gold bullion exchange in the nation have been indicted in an alleged scheme that took in as much as $200 million from 25,000 customers for precious metals never delivered, authorities say.

William and James Alderdice were indicted Tuesday by a federal grand jury on 18 counts of conspiracy, mail and wire fraud, the FBI said.

They had been jailed in lieu of $500,000 bond each since July 14, when they were arrested on behalf of New York authorities who had charged them with 10 counts of second-degree grand larceny, seven counts of third-degree grand larceny and 17 counts of intentional engaging in fraudulent sales of securities.

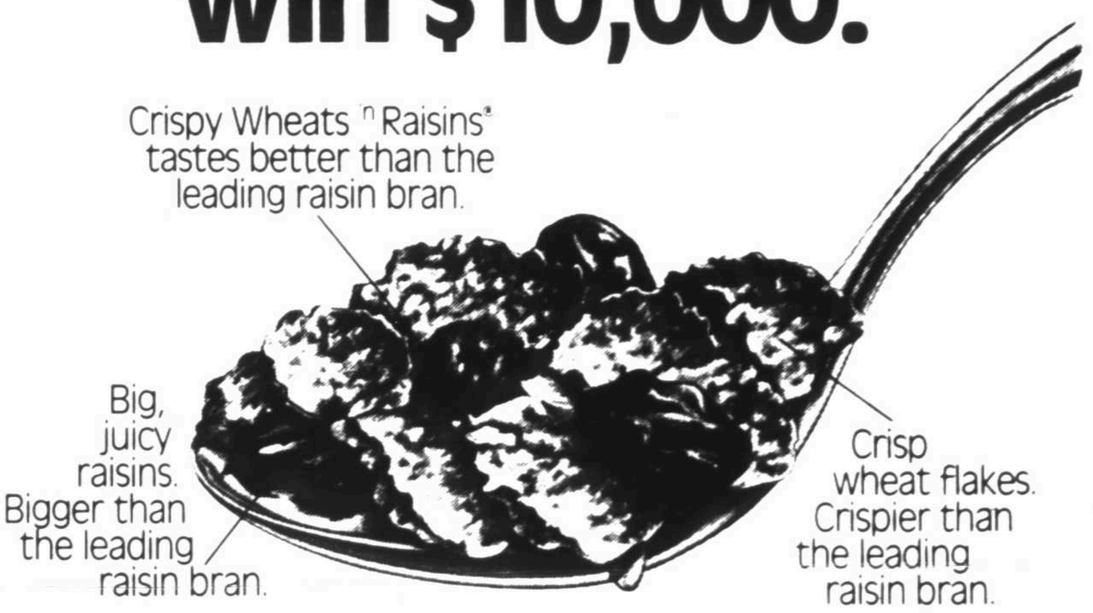

Encephalitis danger continues

BOSTON (AP) — The danger from equine encephalitis, which has killed one human so far this season in the Northeast, may last at least six more weeks until cold weather eliminates the disease-carrying mosquitoes, officials say.

While increased ground spraying of the pesticide cythion "will reduce the danger considerably," only widespread aerial spraying or a killing frost would elminate all the danger, Alan DeCastro, superintendent of the Bristol County Mosquito Control Project, said Tuesday. With a frost not expected until the end of September, "the potential is for six weeks more of this situation," he said.

The state laboratory has confirmed the disease killed Normand L. St. Onge, 65, of Taunton, in a Boston hospital last week.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Explorer Meriwether Lewis (Lewis & Clark), American businessman Marshall Field, baseball great Burleigh Grimes and Pittsburgh Pirates superstar Roberto Clemente were born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, former First Lady Rosalyn Carter, Robert Redford and Olympic athlete Rafer Johnson. A kindly act brings your family new prestige. Couples reconcile. Trivial matters can grow into serious problems if you fail to meet your responsibilities. Pay more attention to a young person. A timely suggestion could prevent an expensive mistake.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A rash business decision could backfire. Be more discreet. Success in sports makes you feel good about yourself. Complete financial negotiations as soon as possible. You need to know where you stand.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Get to work on a suggestion before someone else moves in on your territory. Entertaining enjoys favorable influences. If necessary, you can juggle two jobs. Put any extra money to good use.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): An unexpected bonus could be in the mail. Do your best to finalize a business deal today. Your boss is more impressed by deeds than words. Employment disputes can be amicably resolved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You find a partner with the right chemistry. Romance stands in the way of an important decision. Do the right thing. A teenager deserves the chance to handle greater responsibility.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Someone gives you cash to invest. Train others to handle your duties when you are away. Romance puts you in a happy mood. Refuse to be blinded by either ambition or love.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your timing is right. Requests will be granted. Pursue a travel opportunity. A change of pace helps you improve your position at place of employment. Romance is in the air.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A financial windfall is possible. Seek expert advice if thinking about making new investments. An important matter is brought to your attention. Use confidential information wisely. It could mean money in the bank!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Showcase your special talents and you will make a big impression on influential people. Someone offers to back you in business. Be faithful to your true love. A change in lifestyle in indicated.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Community affairs hold special interest. A neat appearance lets others know that you care about yourself. The atmosphere at work improves so much that profits begin to rise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): To find out where you stand financially, go over accounts. Work done behind the scenes should go well. A friend plays matchmaker. You may soon meet that special person you have been dreaming of.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You have high aims but need the right partner. Seek expert advice. Someone who mocks your ideals is shallow. A chance meeting could ignite romance. Do not confuse infatuation with love.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Creative ventures bring success. Call someone who has been on your mind. Put your best foot forward at work. You could be approached about a promotion.

Anchorman celebrates 30 years

PITTSBURGH (AP) — In 30 years as a news anchor, Bill Burns has become a household name in Pittsburgh and the man behind the country's most-watched noon news show in a multi-media market.

"I've really loved working here and working in this business," says Burns, who on July 19 marked three decades of television news at KDKA.

"This is the only business for me," he adds. "The only thing I ever wanted to be was a reporter. I never wanted to be a doctor, an airplane pilot, a cowboy, a boxer or any of that jazz."

Generations of Pittsburghers have grown accustomed to watching the curly haired Burns deliver the news with a distinctive local flavor, which includes voice inflexions to match the tone of a story. The audience has rewarded his longevity with fierce loyalty.

According to figures complied by KDKA, using ratings from the A.C. Nielsen and Arbitron services, Burns' noon news ranks No.1 in the Top 25 markets in the country, and has held that lofty perch since he took the air.

In May of this year, Neilson numbers showed, "Eyewitness News at Noon" had a rating of 20 and a 63 share, meaning 20 percent of all the television sets in Pittsburgh were tuned to his show, on average, and 63 percent of all sets in use were watching.

"It's extraordinary for someone to 'aintain a following like that for that period of time," says Jean O'Brien, research director at KDKA.

"He is Pittsburgh. He belongs," says Art Rooney, 82, owner of the Pittsburgh Steelers, who is lavish in his praise of his close friend. "He's as much of Pittsburgh as the Pirates and the Steelers."

Burns' daughter, Patti, now co-anchors KDKA's 6 p.m. and 11 p.m. news programs. They co-anchored the noon news for three years, beginning in 1976, making them the first father-daughter anchor team on a regularly scheduled newscast.

On the air, Burns relishes his intimacy with viewers.

"I like to think I'm looking at one person instead of a vast audience. A lot of times, I don't broadcast, I talk," he says. "I like to have the camera just a little closer to me because I feel like I'm closer to you, that I'm talking directly to you."

He has been criticized fo editorializing with a delivery that sometimes includes a shake of the head, a cocked eyebrow or little asides. But that is Burns' style.

The computer was made for bridge instruction, and CBS Software has just released our first program: "Goren: Learning Bridge Made Easy." The basic instruction (five-card majors, strong two-bids, weak jump overcalls) is in a book that accompanies the disk, but all quizzes are on the computer.

There are ten quizzes that deal hands at random, so that you can test yourself for as long as you like on any facet of the game without repeating hands! And then there are 100 hands to teach you play and defense, starting from simple suit establishment to hands as challenging as this. The program is currently available for IBM and Apple personal computers, but will soon be available for other popular home computers.

After a normal auction you reach six no trump. You show a balanced hand of 19-20 points and partner with a balanced 15, knows exactly how far he wants to go.

West leads a spade, and you win. You have 11 tricks available, and it seems that you will have to take the club finesse for your 12th. But there is another chance — if hearts are 3-3, you can set up dummy's fourth heart for the fulfilling trick.

But playing ace-king and another heart exposes you to defeat if the hearts are 4-2 — a defender will be able to take two heart tricks. The solution is to play a low heart from both hands at trick two.

Now you can win any return and cash the ace-king of hearts. If the suit divides evenly, you are home. If it does not, you can still fall back on the club finesse for your contract.

Ma Bell's strike

The current AT&T strike, unlike those in years past, is a ball of confusion for both company officials and striking workers, and threatens to defy quick resolution.

Yes, it's true that the strike really is not a part of the court-ordered divestiture of the giant monopoly; the contract the communications workers were operating under simply expired at this particular time.

But the strike, which has affected literally thousands of telephone company employees nationwide — including many of those in Midland — and millions of people across the nation, centers around a number of questions which are inextricably related to divestiture. For example, communications workers want some assurances that their jobs will remain intact after AT&T is broken into a number of different companies or they want provisions guaranteed for their retraining for other positions with those divested firms.

AT&T officials note that the concern of strikers for their employment futures is understandable, but add that at this stage of the monopoly's breakup answers to some of the questions being posed may be impossible to give.

Jay Allen, public relations manager for Southwestern Bell's Midland operation, noted that jobs won't be eliminated and, in fact, "the Bell system has never laid anybody off, as far as I'm aware."

Whether AT&T and the strikers can arrive at a solution that will alleviate fear of the future for workers while addressing needs of the monopoly as it breaks apart and still take into account the public's best interests remains to be seen. As some AT&T officials and strikers have observed, the complications surrounding this strike increase the possibility that a settlement won't be quick in coming.

Locally, there haven't been any reports of strike violence or vandalism, but that's not the case elsewhere. Already there have been outbreaks of violence at various locations around the state and the nation. That's regrettable, but it's apparent that the longer negotiations drag out, the greater the likelihood for violence. Cool heads should rule the ranks on both sides, but, of course, cool heads don't always win out.

Meanwhile, John Q. Public is as confused as anyone. He's probably privvy to less information about divestiture, technological changes altering the company's jobs picture and wage negotiations at AT&T than anyone. He merely wants to know what's going to happen, how much he'll be paying for his phone service after divestiture, how easy it will be to obtain repairs and all that. Those questions aren't necessarily easy to answer either, but as Allen noted, one thing is certain: Telephone customers will be paying more for less after the first of the year.

What is clear as the strike enters its second week is that both strikers and the company would be wise to concentrate on putting this unsettled time behind them as quickly as possible and to get on with the business at hand — bringing about this nation's communications future in as smooth a manner as possible.

Another View:

Sri Lanka's sorrows

The tragedy of Sri Lanka is symbolized in the migration of many of its 130,000 homeless Tamils from the capital city of Colombo, where this preposterous group has suddenly become a vulnerable minority, to the relative security of the predominantly Tamil northern province of Jaffna. That exodus marks the increasing division of the nation into two ethnically distinct camps, uneasily coexisting on an island in the Indian Ocean smaller than California.

Although ethnic rivalries and sporadic clashes between the Tamils and the numerically dominant but less well-off Sinhalese have been part of Sri Lanka's history for a millenium, these tensions had gone little noticed in the island's recent flush of prosperity. A conservative government, elected six years ago, has slashed inflation from 35 percent to 10 percent, while attracting new industry and almost halving unemployment.

These economic gains, it now turns out, did not settle the bloody grudges that Tamils and Sinhalese hold against one another. Jealousy of Tamil wealth, on the one side, complaints of discrimination by the Sinhalese, most particularly in the touchy matter of language, on the other, surfaced when Tamil terrorists ambushed and killed 13 Sinhalese soldiers late in July. In the weeks that followed, the Sinhalese have taken their revenge, burning Tamil homes and businesses, slaughtering their old antagonists. The costs are just now being summed: At least 300 and perhaps as many as 1,000 dead, 17 major factories destroyed, $300 million in damage to property. The calendar of economic development has been set back three years, perhaps longer.

The government's response to the terrorist attack has only exacerbated the situation. Instead of stepping in quickly to restore order by isolating the handful of terrorists, it stood by as Sinhalese soldiers massacred Tamil civilians. In rewriting the constitution to outlaw Tamil separatism and punishing those who advocate secession with the loss of their civil rights, it pushed the largest opposition party, the Tamil United Liberation Front, to quit Parliament, and so has cut off the possibility of negotiations.

Sri Lanka is an unfamiliar land, a faraway dot on the globe more commonly remembered as Ceylon. But Sri Lanka's troubles are all too familiar. Though the sources of conflict vary from one country to the next — religion, ethnicity, language and tribal identity are the most frequent culprits — the nature of those conflicts seems much the same. Until recently, it seemed that Sri Lanka had figured out how to maintain a democratic order capable of balancing the competing claims of its rival groups, but that has proved not to be the case.

Add Sri Lanka to that depressingly long list of places where efforts to share political power and economic prosperity are undermined by ancient rivalries and potent prejudices.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Military squanders tax dollars

WASHINGTON — Those government spending figures, with all the goose eggs at the end, aren't easy to comprehend. As the late Sen. Everett Dirksen, R-Ill., once said, "A billion here, a billion there and pretty soon you're talking about real money."

Sometimes the expenditures have to be reduced to simple digits before the taxpayers fully realize that they are being ripped off. For some examples of misdirected spending that could be brought down to a comprehensible level, my reporter Kathy McDonald turned to the Pentagon.

She found, as expected, that the military brass spends the taxpayers' money on fripperies while essential equipment and services are allowed to deteriorate for lack of funds. For instance:

— The Army spent $75,000 to repair a bowling alley floor at Fort Bragg, N.C. For the same amount of money, the base communications center could have purchased a badly needed replacement for its emergency generator.

— The Army spent $266,000 to repair the interiors of two unused, historical buildings at Fort Bliss, Texas. But $163,000 couldn't be scraped up to install a proper fire alarm system. Auditors found that the fire alarms weren't working in several barracks and the noncommissioned officers' club.

— At the Naval Training Center in Orlando, Fla., the Navy spent more than $2,700 to re-carpet the living room, dining room and hall of the commanding officer's quarters. For $200 less, an emergency exit could have been installed in the base telephone room. On the same base, meanwhile, the Navy spent $303 to repaint a boathouse and dock that were torn down a few months later.

— At the Naval Construction Battalion Center in Port Hueneme, Calif., the Navy refused to spend $314,200 to repair unusable railroad tracks that the auditors described as vital to the base's mission. Yet it cheerfully laid out $290,000 to repair the officers' club and $35,000 to resurface the tennis courts.

— Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington, D.C., spent $72,000 to improve some softball fields and $3,200 to install some doors in the bowling alley. For little more than the same amount, the Air Force could have installed smoke and heat detectors in 22 buildings that were in violation of safety regulations.

— The Army spent more than $123,000 to repair basketball and volleyball courts at the Army Test and Evaluation Command in Aberdeen, Md. But it couldn't find $40,000 to overhaul a chiller unit in a ballistics laboratory that housed more than $4 million in computers and laser equipment. The chiller unit was leaking oil and making noise; engineers told the auditors that a breakdown could put the computers and lasers out of business for as many as six months.

Last month, Deputy Defense Secretary Paul Thayer called upon the services to get their act together. "We must take immediate steps to fund the most critical and highest priority work, and get the most value we can from the resources available," he wrote in an internal memo.

Among the steps to be taken, Thayer ordered, is "holding accountable any individual responsible" for questionable expenditures.

Dear Mr. Deputy Defense Secretary: You might begin with the examples cited above. Please let me know who was held accountable and what disciplinary action was taken so that I may report it to the American people.

UPDATE: Back in October 1981, I reported "a scandal of extraordinary proportions" involving top Egyptian political figures and former CIA and Pentagon officials. My columns led to a federal grand jury investigation, which is now focusing on two retired Pentagon people, arms sales chief Erich Von Marbod and Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard Secord, and a high former CIA official, Thomas Clines. All three have denied any wrongdoing. But a few days ago, an Egyptian businessman, Hussein Salem, pleaded guilty to filing $8 million in false shipping bills with the Defense Department. He's now cooperating with investigators.

— Last May, I wrote two columns describing an "orgy of spending" by the U.S. Synfuels Corp., using the taxpayers' billions. This was followed in July by a Senate hearing, which generally confirmed the charges. Last week, the story hit the front pages when three of the seven Synfuels directors called for the dismissal of their president, Victor A. Schroeder.

— I also reported last May that Ashland Oil had made "multimillion-dollar payments to officials close to the Sultan of Oman in apparent violation of the law." The story precipitated investigations by the Securities and Exchange Commission and two House committees, which have now verified the charges.

— I reported in February that President Reagan wanted to sell the government's land and weather satellites to private industry. But I warned that it was "not at all clear" this would save the money that Reagan believed it would. The transfer of these satellites is now going ahead. And officials of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, which operates the satellites, have acknowledged that the transfer may not save any money.

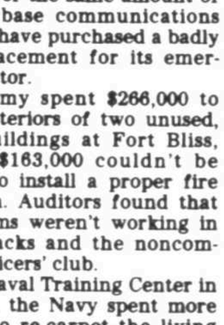

— Last March, I reported on the care and coddling of ex-presidents. The cost of their upkeep, I reported, was "staggering." I noted that "the three current living ex-presidents are all either millionaires or close to it, thanks largely to the opportunities that arose directly from their years in the White House." The story subsequently was picked up by news magazines and radio-TV networks. Members of Congress are now scrutinizing these expenditures more closely.

HEMISPHERE REPORT

Americans don't want to fight

WASHINGTON — Americans may object to communist expansion in Central America, but not enough to fight to stop it, public opinion polls show.

William Giandoni

What is more, to judge by the opposition voted in the House and voiced in the Senate to U.S. covert funding of anti-Sandinista guerrillas in Nicaragua, Congress doesn't want those who have the will to do battle against Marxism to fight either.

What is generally overlooked is that the House of Representatives not only voted July 28 for a bill that seeks to cut off covert aid to the Nicaraguan insurgents, but which also proclaimed in some detail that the Sandinista regime is all that President Reagan has been saying it is.

The amendment to the Intelligence Authorization Act that House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas offered and which was approved, 228 to 195, included not only a condemnation of Nicaragua but also of Cuba by name.

"In the absence of a state of declared war, the provision of military equipment to individuals, groups, organizations or movement seeking to overthrow governments of countries in Central America violates international treaty obligations," the amendment said. True, that might be considered applicable to the United States because of the covert funding of anti-Sandinista insurgents.

But, then Wright's amendment went on to specify:

"Such activities by the governments of Cuba and Nicaragua threaten the independence of El Salvador and threaten to destabilize the entire Central American region, and the governments of Cuba and Nicaragua refuse to cease those activities."

That was not all.

"The government of National Reconstruction of Nicaragua has failed to keep solemn promises made to the Organization of American States in July 1979, to establish full respect for human rights and political liberties, hold early elections, preserve a private sector, permit political pluralism and pursue a foreign policy of non-aggression and non-intervention.

"By providing military support, including arms, training, and logistical, command and control, and communications facilities, to groups seeking to overthrow the governments of El Salvador and other Central American governments, the government of National Reconstruction of Nicaragua has violated Article 18 of the Charter of the Organization of American States which declares that no state has the right to intervene, directly or indirectly, for any reason whatsoever, in the internal or external affairs of any other state.

"The government of Nicaragua should be held accountable before the Organization of American States for activities violative of promises made to the organization and for violations of the charter of that organization," the Wright amendment affirmed.

In other words, the House considers the Sandinista regime to be a threat to Central America, at least.

As Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. representative to the United Nations, pointed out, though, little attention was paid that part of the bill. The prime focus was on the prohibition on covert assistance for military operations in Nicaragua.

That brings up a point not reported by the "establishment" press that Rep. Edward Boland, D-Mass., made in comments to reporters after the House passed the cutoff of covert aid to the anti-Sandinistas and recommended that $80 million e provided for overt interdiction of arms shipments from Cuba or Nicaragua by friendly Central American governments.

Boland told us that as chairman of the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence he supports covert action. In fact, he said, his committee has "approved a number of U.S. covert operations" in recent years. But he led the House fight against covert aid for the anti-Sandinistas.

Although Boland would not list any of the covert operations his committee approved, with the exception of the initial action in Nicaragua, quite obviously another such is the Afghan freedom fighters' struggle against the Soviet-supported regime in their country.

Why then the furor over Nicaragua?

Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., told reporters that the House action indicated that "the radical wing of the Democratic Party is the dominant force" in the House of Representatives. "It is perfectly willing to risk defeat in El Salvador to protect the (Marxist) regime in Nicaragua," Gingrich said.

ART BUCHWALD

Getting rid of a piece of the rock

I had a kidney stone attack in Evansville, Indiana. I wouldn't have even mentioned it except that an alert Associated Press urology correspondent picked up the story, and it made the AP wire. So many people have written in asking what a kidney stone attack really feels like that I decided to try to explain it in terms that the layman can understand.

Art Buchwald

A kidney stone is about the size of a tiny pebble to everyone except the person who has one. To this person it is the size of the Rock of Gibraltar. In fact, many people when they get a kidney stone attack scream out, "I've got a piece of the Rock!"

There are two kinds of kidney stones. One is made up of uric acid, and the other of calcium. Doctors can differentiate between the two, but patients can't, nor at the time of an attack do they give a damn. If you've felt one kidney stone, you've felt them all.

This is what seems to happen as far as the victim is concerned. He is going along minding his own business when suddenly, out of nowhere, a mountain forms in the kidney which, as I said, feels like the size of the Rock of Gibraltar.

The kidney reacts angrily to this interference with its function and tries to push the rock into what might be described as the Suez Canal. Obviously the Suez Canal cannot accommodate the Rock of Gibraltar, and without any warning war is declared between the kidney and the rock.

An urgent message is sent on the hot line from the kidney to the rock. "Unless you get out of our canal immediately, we will attack with everything we have in our organ."

The rock sends back a one-word reply: "NUTS!"

The patient, who is a horrified neutral spectator to this exchange, tries everything to achieve peace. He paces up and down, rolls to and fro, and eventually tries to climb the wall in hopes that the kidney and rock will come to their senses.

Using diplomatic tactics, the patient tries to persuade the rock that if it will just move a few inches down the canal, the kidney will not try to break it up.

But the rock is adamant and demands tremendous concessions in exchange for withdrawing from its position.

"How do I know," the rock asks, "that if I move from where I am now I will not be driven into the sea?"

The victim assures the rock the kidney has no intention of pushing it into the sea. All the kidney wants to do is live in peace with the lower part of the body. As long as the rock doesn't try to prevent the kidney from doing its work, the rock can live in the bladder for as long as it wants to.

If negotiations fail and the rock refuses to move, then a UN doctor is called in who immediately fires a volley of Demerol or some other painkiller into the bloodstream.

This does not stop the war between the rock and the kidney, but it gives some shelter to the innocent, while their kidney tries to push the enemy out of its territory. This can only be done with gallons of water which the kidney forces against the rock.

If the good guy (the kidney) wins, the rock will retreat and even sue for peace. If the rock is able to repulse the water attack and hold its own, then the kidney will have to surrender, which means handing over negotiations to the Blue Cross.

It would be nice to report that once a kidney stone has lost a battle others would learn their lesson. But unfortunately this is not the case. Even though my kidney moved the enemy to a safe place, I distinctly heard, in my Demoral stupor, the rock say to the kidney, "I may go down the drain, but there's a lot more of us where I came from."

TODAY IN HISTORY

In 1940, Germany announced a total blockade of Britain during World War II.

And, in 1969, Hurricane Camille slammed into the Gulf Coast, causing about 300 deaths.

Ten years ago: Defense Secretary James Schlesinger said the Soviet Union had conducted a successful test flight of a missile with multiple warheads that could be aimed at separate targets.

One year ago: On the New York Stock Exchange, the Dow Jones posted a one-day record rise — up 38.81.

Today's birthdays: Actress Maureen O'Hara is 63 years old. Actor Robert DeNiro is 40.

Thought for today: "Art may make a suit of clothes, but nature must produce a man." — David Hume, Scottish philosopher (1711-1776).

U.S. will delay plans to choose Kuwaiti envoy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, in a show of displeasure, is planning to hold off on appointing a new ambassador to Kuwait after that country surprised U.S. officials by rejecting the proposed nominee, veteran diplomat Brandon Grove.

It is standard policy for the administration not to discuss personnel matters but that practice was set aside Tuesday when the State Department publicly expressed its "profound disagreement" with the Kuwaiti decision.

Deputy spokesman Alan Romberg said he found it "especially ironic" that Kuwait cited Grove's recent service as U.S. consul general in Jerusalem as the reason for turning him down.

Contrary to Israel's position, the United States "does not recognize Jerusalem as Israel's capital" and regards the Arab-dominated eastern sector of that city as "occupied territory," Romberg said.

The implication of Romberg's comments was that it was the Kuwaiti position was illogical because the question of Jerusalem's status has been an enduring sore point in U.S.-Israeli relations. Israel adamantly opposes the U.S. view that the final status of the city should be determined in negotiations between Israel and the Arabs.

Aside from withholding the nomination of an alternate choice for an extended period, U.S. officials, speaking privately, say it is doubtful the administration will take any additional steps to reflect its displeasure with the Kuwaiti government.

Among oil producing states, only Saudi Arabia and the Soviet Union are believed to have more recoverable oil than Kuwait's estimated 50 billion barreis. In addition, Kuwait is viewed as a moderate force in the Arab world, generally choosing to stay within the Arab mainstream on regional issues.

At issue in the dispute over Grove is a diplomatic procedure under which a government seeks the prior approval of a foreign nation before nominating an ambassador to that country.

The State Department's view is that foreign governments should be willing to work with whatever envoys Washington chooses to send, regardless of local sensitivities. To make the point, the department has sent blacks to South Africa and Jews to Moslem countries.

There are some exceptions to this general rule, however. For example, the White House backed down without recriminations last year when Panama expressed reservations about the prospective appointment of Arizona State University professor Lewis Tambs as ambassador.

The administration accepted Panama's contention that Tambs would not be suitable because of his past opposition to the Panama Canal treaties.

During the Carter administration, relations with Colombia were strained when that country showed its disappointment over the proposed nomination of a Puerto Rican lawyer, Jose A. Cabranes, as U.S. ambassador.

Military exercise not 'dangerous'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reagan administration officials are downplaying possible danger to U.S. troops who will be deployed next month near suspected Salvadoran guerrilla supply routes in southern Honduras.

"I don't see any danger in this (although) you could always run into a terrorist act," said one senior Defense Department official, who spoke on condition he not be named.

U.S. military officials in both Washington and Honduras said U.S. troops engaged in exercises with Honduran forces in the lowlands area could also help block alleged supply routes used by leftist Salvadoran guerrillas.

"This is not an interdiction exercise, but with the extra people in the area, this is going to make it more difficult for the ammunition to come through there," said the Pentagon official. He said ammunition, communications gear and medical supplies continue to be smuggled to Salvadoran guerrillas from Nicaragua, but added that the flow of weapons is at a "low ebb."

U.S. troops, many of them Army engineers, are scheduled to move into the lowland corridor between Nicaragua and El Salvador next month as part of a series of joint American-Honduran military exercises designed partly to show U.S. resolve in the region.

As part of that demonstration, the 62,000-ton aircraft carrier Coral Sea and four other U.S. warships arrived off the Caribbean coast of Nicaragua on Tuesday to start the second phase of American naval exercises in the region, the Pentagon announced.

The 57,000-ton battleship New Jersey and five other warships are headed for the Pacific coast of Central America as part of the naval maneuvers, which are designed to demonstrate U.S. support for its Central American allies.

Possible risk to the U.S. troops in Honduras has raised concern in Congress, where some critics of President Reagan's Central American policies call the troop deployments another step toward a Vietnam-style military commitment in the strife-torn region.

Besides the civil war in El Salvador, CIA-backed Nicaraguan rebels based in the Honduran highlands are fighting the leftist Nicaraguan government. Reagan has accused Nicaragua of working with Cuba and the Soviet Union to subvert the rightist Salvadoran government and other U.S. allies in Central America.

U.S. Army troops march past an Air Force transport plane upon their arrival Tuesday in San Pedro Sula, Honduras, for deployment as participants in joint maneuvers with the Honduran military. The maneuvers, which may last until March 1984, are expected to involve as many as 5,000 Americans and 6,000 Hondurans.

Honduras fears U.S. 'loss' of region

By FREDDY CUEVAS
Associated Press Writer

Honduras said the United States may "lose Central America" without intervening to stop leftist rebels, more U.S. warships arrived in the turbulent region, and fighting in El Salvador's civil war reportedly left at least 28 combatants dead or wounded.

"If everything continues the same, we will not need the Americans to come to defend what's ours," Honduran Gen. Gustavo Alvarez Martinez said late Tuesday. "But if there exists indecisiveness or if the American decisions are inopportune or late, a case in which the United States might have two alternatives could be presented — intervene directly or lose Central America."

He spoke at a news conference where he accused neighboring leftist-ruled Nicaragua of helping at least 200 Hondurans trained in Cuba and the Soviet Union enter Honduras in the past three weeks.

The military command said the subversives were captured in eastern Olanch province after entering from Nicaragua. Alvarez Martinez charged they were among 3,000 Hondurans trained abroad to destabilize the government of President Roberto Suazo Cordova.

The general said the capture shows that Nicaragua is "a serious and real threat for peace in Central America."

He said there is still time to "prevent the advance of communism in the area" if the United States continues to provide military and economic aid.

Honduras is a key supporter of the Reagan administration's policies on Central America. Preparations are under way for military maneuvers that will involve as many as 5,000 American and 6,000 Honduran troops through February or March, in what is seen seen as a clear warning to Nicaragua to halt its alleged support for leftist revolutionary movements in neighboring nations.

In Washington, the Pentagon said the 62,00-ton aircraft carrier Coral Sea and four other U.S. warships arrived Tuesday off the Caribbean coast to start the second phase of American naval exercises designed to demonstrate U.S. support for Central American countries under leftist pressure.

The Pentagon also said the 57,000-ton battleship New Jersey and five other warships have left Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, steaming toward the Pacific coast of Central America in what will be the third battle group to visit.

U.S. Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., said on a visit to Nicaragua that he believes the United States and Nicaragua must immediately defuse tensions.

Lebanese leader protests Arens' visit

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Moslem Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan canceled all office appointments and stayed home today to protest a visit by Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Arens to Beirut's Christian sector, a government spokesman said.

Syria's state-run media today called for the overthrow of President Amin Gemayel's pro-American government because it allowed Arens to visit Beirut.

Information Minister Roger Shikhani told reporters Wazzan's stand was an expression of protest against the Arens visit, but said the prime minister did not plan to resign.The Lebanese capital's leftist newspaper As-Safir said Wazzan was considering resignation to protest the Arens visit.

The 57-year-old prime minister has long been critical of Christian politicians who sympathize with Israel, saying the Jewish state is Lebanon's prime enemy.

Arens met Tuesday with Lebanon's ex-president Camille Chamoun, head of a coalition of right-wing Christian groupings known as the Lebanese Front, and with the front's Lebanese Forces militia, Fadi Frem.

He also declared the Israeli army plans to withdraw from Lebanon's central mountains "in the near future" even if the Gemayel government fails to halt Christian-Druse warfare in the region.

The Israeli minister also met with Pierre Gemayel, the president's father and head of the Phalange Party, the nation's largest rightist Christian group.

The newspaper Al-Baath of Syrian President Hafez Assad's Socialist Baath Party called Arens' visit a challenge to Lebanon, Syria and the rest of the Arab world.

"The visit confirms that the (Gemayel) regime has severed all ties with the people," the paper said in an editorial broadcast by Syria's state radio.

"The visit also shows that nationalist forces in Lebanon are right in giving top priority to bringing down the regime."

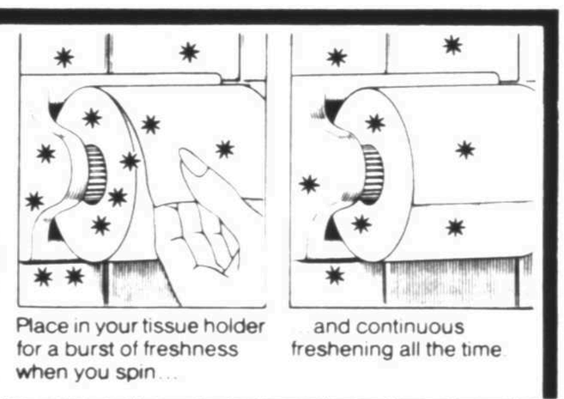

The Syrian media calls its Lebanese allies who recently united in a "National Salvation Front" as the nationalist forces. The front, which includes leftist Druse leader Walid Jumblatt, says it wants to prevent the Phalangists from establishing a one-party rule in Lebanon and to scuttle Lebanon's U.S.-sponsored troop withdrawal pact with Israel.

Al-Baath's editorial also said the Arens visit would complicate the mission of U.S. presidential envoy Robert C. McFarlane in resolving the Lebanon crisis.

Lezcano's late drive falls just short

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

San Antonio managed to milk a paltry five hits for enough runs to beat the Midland Cubs, 6-4, in the final game of the Texas League series at Cubs Stadium Tuesday night.

First baseman Tom Beyers hit a three-run homer and a run-scoring singled to fuel the Dodgers' offense while hard-throwing Ken Howell and relief ace Roberto Alexander held Midland in check with a nine-hitter.

The win gave San Antonio the series, 3-2, but the Dodgers still trail in the season's series, 15-12.

Midland goes on the road for five games at Beaumont and five at San Antonio before returning home to end the season with a five-game series against El Paso, starting Aug. 27.

Carlos Lezcano gave the fans a thrill in the ninth when his long drive to left-center at first looked like it was out and then as though it might carom off the scoreboard, but left fielder Stu Pedersen bounced off the fence to make the game ending catch. Randy LaVigne, who had walked with two out, was on base at the time.

It was the closest the Cubs could come to roughing up Alexander, who came on to relieve Howell, 8-11, after a leadoff walk in the seventh. Alexander pitched one hit ball over the final three innings to notch his 21st save of the season and second of the series.

Midland's Ron Richardson, 3-10, had a no-hitter going with one out in the fifth, then with one mighty swing, Tom Beyers not only ruined the no-hitter, but put Midland behind, 3-1, with his eighth homer.

Scotti Madison reached first on an error to open the fifth inning, then a walk and force out set the table for Beyers.

Midland rallied for three runs in the home fifth with singles by Rick Baker and Mike Anicich preceding Randy LaVigne's two-out triple. Carlos Lezcano then singled to right to give Midland a 4-3 lead.

It didn't last long. San Antonio chased Richardson, who left while working on a three-hitter, in the sixth. Base hits by Madison and Holman followed an error which put lead off batter Pederson on first. Holman's hit tied it. After a walk to Larry See, Carlos Gil replaced Richardson and was greeted by Beyers' run-scoring single and a sac fly by Mark Sheehy.

Midland's first inning run came when Bill Hatcher walked, stole second and scored on a single by Anicich.

CUB PRINTS—Nervous about singing the national anthem before a crowd of 2,400 Monday? "No, I used to sing with a rock group that put on shows and concerts all over New Jersey. I'm no longer perform with a group, but I still perform during the off season," said Tom Lombarski, the golden throat with the golden glove...Rick Baker now has 55 stolen bases after a fifth inning swipe, which tops Henry Cotto's 52 of a year ago...LaVigne, now 13-for-20 with about as many walks during the same stretch, says, "I'm doing what I always do. The hits are just falling in."....Lezcano collected two hits Tuesday, the fifth straight game, and is 10-for-20...Fans had to rough it without benefit of a scoreboard. Something had shorted out just before game time...

Cranes will be experienced unit

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY
Sports Writer

The Crane Golden Cranes are sporting a very un-sleek look this year, but that is not necessarily bad.

In fact, for head coach Rickey White, it's just fine.

White's team is big, strong and experienced. In fact White sounds extremely certain when he says about this edition of the Golden Cranes: "It's by far the best team we've had since I've been here."

Which is good news for the people of Crane, but possibly trouble for the teams that will line up against them this fall. Crane had a very respectable 7-3 mark in 1982, and with 15 seniors ready to take on District 6-AAA, the Cranes could land in some playoff action come November.

"We'll be better this year," White says of this team as opposed to last year's squad that had the misfortune of suffering three defeats within the district.

THINGS WILL be different this season, and the key word will be defense.

That is where White will have the privelege of playing at least nine seniors, and that kind of experience is rare. For White, it is also a pleasant fact of life. "On defense we are very strong," understates White. "I'm very optimistic."

Offensively, the Golden Cranes will try to exploit opposing defenses with a balanced attack lead by quarterback Todd Rogers (5-10, 163, senior) and big running back Junior Sena (6-0, 187, senior). Their production will figure prominently in what the Cranes do this season.

With this defense, point production will not have to be overwhelming to be the right mix for Crane. In fact, if the Cranes can improve on their 15.0 points per game average of last season, the sky could be the limit for this high-flying bird.

Sena and Rogers are openly pleased about their chances. Rogers had the reins last year, and of this team's ability he is "pretty confident. We still have a lot to do."

Sena is large, quick, and capable. 150 pound defensive backs had best hope he isn't loosed past the linebackers, because Junior is anything but.

"We're better than last year," Sena said. "We have more overall speed, and we all get along with each other. I want us to go all the way." Rogers agrees: "December 19th. 16 games."

16 games, of course, would put the Cranes in the state title game.

Of the senior-laden squad, Sena and Rogers concur with White that experience is a plus. "We have quite a bit," Rogers said. Both players also noted that this team was very dedicated - a fact obvious to anyone watching the spirited workouts.

Crane has used the forward pass amply historically, but Sena's presence will make White utilize a more balanced scheme.

ON THE other side, there is that defense. Crane's defensive front weighs in in the vicinity of half a ton. That is no typo, that is a fact, and one that must have opposing coaches already sleepless. The heftiest of these marauders is Junior "June Bug" Bishop, a 6-2, 261 pound bruiser that will literally cause some headaches this season.

Bishop will also place kick, and has 50-yard range. White was quoted in Texas Football as saying Bishop should be "one of the best in the state."

Of Crane's down linemen, all but a few tilt the scales at over 170, and many are in the 185-200 range. Impressive.

perhaps the only fear the Crane staff might have is a slow start. Senior teams can be streaky, thus Crane's opener at Big Lake Reagan County is a critical game. But otherwise, this team is loaded.

Golden Cranes Report Card: Offensive Line, A - size; Receivers, B plus - four seniors and a promising soph; Quarterback, B - experienced; Running Backs, B - Sena strong, good size, could be even better than expected; Defensive Line, A - size, experience, strength; Linebackers, B minus - skill is there; Backs, A - again, experience. Overall - A, experience on defense plus size and coaching equal district crown. Predicted finish: 9-1.

Tickets on sale

Season football tickets are on sale daily, Monday through Friday, for all Midland Lee and Midland High home games until Aug. 26 at the Midland athletic office, located at the northeast corner of Memorial Stadium.

Season tickets for Lee games are $15 for five home games and Midland High tickets are $18 for six home games. Lee is the home team when they play MHS, so Midland High fans will have to purchase tickets for that game separately.

Hogs drop soaps for new outlook

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Maturity is the big difference between this year's Arkansas football team and the 1982 edition of the Razorbacks, says Coach Lou Holtz.

"Last year's team was mature," he said. "During the day, they would watch 'All My Children' and 'Search For Tomorrow.' This year's team watches 'Romper Room' and 'Captain Kangaroo.'

"We're starting the season with a lot of unkowns. That doesn't bother me. I just hope they're not unknowns at the end of the season."

Ten of the Razorbacks' 22 starting spot figure to be filled by sophomores.

Gone are defensive end Billy Ray Smith, the fifth player taken in the National Football League draft, running back Gary Anderson, a star in the United States Football League; guard Steve Korte, the first player selected by New Orleans in the NFL draft, and defensive back Danny Walters, a fourth-round pick. Also gone are center Jay Bequette, offensive tackle Alfred Mohammed and defensive linemen Richard Richardson and Earl Buckingham.

"If it were just the offensive line or just the receivers or just the running backs, it would be one thing, but there are so many question marks, there is trepidation," Holtz said.

In the offensive line, Holtz said, there are about a half-dozen players who have won his confidence. Up front on defense, Ron Faurot is the only experience. The other end should be Robert Brannon, a 6-foot-7, 248-pounder, who played basketball last fall. Four sophomores are in the secondary.

"Our linebackers would have to be the strength of our football team right now," he said. "It's probably the best group we've had since I've been here."

Bert Zinammon and Milton Fields were starters last year. Calvin Shaw played quite a bit. Mike Castleberry transferred from Oklahoma.

The four tailbacks in the Razorbacks' I formation in the spring have a total of 21 carries. The top six rushers are gone from last year, as are the two top receivers — Derek Holloway, who caught two scoring passes in the USFL championship game, and Anderson.

Quarterback Brad Taylor, brilliant at times behind Tom Jones during the past two years, is the No. 1 quarterback. "I can't think of anything more important to us or to his teammates than Brad Taylor having a good year," Holtz said. "It's going to be difficult because the supporting cast is young. When you lose 10 starters on offense, it's hard to put the whole thing together."

In six years, Holtz is 18-0 against competition outside the Southwest Conference. This fall, those three non-conference games could be the key to the Razorbacks' season.

They open against Tulsa in Fayetteville, then play New Mexico in Little Rock and Mississippi on the road. Tulsa's only loss last year was to Arkansas. New Mexico, with 18 starters returning, was 10-1.

Willie Gault gives up track dream for NFL

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — As he was flying into Chicago on the last leg of a long journey, track star Willie Gault saw an omen that he had made the right decision to play professional football instead of pursuing an Olympic dream.

"We were still a mile or two above the clouds...and I saw a rainbow with all the colors. I thought of it as an indication of God telling me I made the right decision," Gault said Tuesday after his first practice with the Chicago Bears.

Only hours earlier, he found the pot of gold at the end of that rainbow, signing a four-year contract reportedly worth $1.3 million with a $500,000 signing bonus. It made him the highest-paid rookie receiver in National Football League history.

But the 22-year-old speedster, who starred in track and football at the University of Tennessee, explained that he agonized over the decision to pass up a chance run in the Olympics next summer in Los Angeles.

"A lot of tears and a lot of emotion went into this decision," Gault said. "It was like losing part of my family."

Last week, he ran the third leg of a world-record breaking 400-meter U.S. relay team at the World Track and Field Championships in Helsinki, Finland. And on Saturday, he ran his last race, the 110-meter high hurdles.

"As I stepped into the blocks, I said to myself that this could be my last race ever," Gault recalled. He finished third.

During practice Tuesday, he appeared to make a smooth transition from the starting blocks to the line of scrimmage.

"He looked good today. I was impressed," said Bears' Coach Mike Ditka, who at noon Tuesday predicted Gault would not sign a pro football contract this season.

"But he's got a lot of work to do on his timing. The deep patterns I'm not worried about," Ditka added. "But he's got to work on the bump-and-run, the short and medium patterns. He's got to work on the slower gear."

Ditka said Gault may see action as soon as Saturday, when the Bears travel to Los Angeles to play the Raiders in the third of four NFL exhibition contests.

In the meantime, the young wide reciever will catch about 100 balls a day and try to learn the the Bears' pass patterns.

BATTLE SCENE

Picture day for footballers at Texas Tech is Sunday, "but cameras and film WILL NOT be supplied," says Tech SID Joe Hornaday. Now what brought that on, Joe?...

In case you are wondering, Texas A&M's early season home games against California, Arkansas State and Oklahoma State are 6 p.m. kickoffs. Apparently, last year's trial with the unusual starting time was a succcess with Kyle Field crowds for Boston College, 55,177; UT-Arlington, 54,098; Louisiana Tech, 53,214; and Texas Tech, 59,416. The 2 p.m. kickoff for Baylor drew even better, 64,017, but that was in October, when the weather had cooled off...

FORMER MIDLAND Lee quarterback Brad Wright was released by the Dallas Cowboys, same as last year, but the Cowboys last year brought Brad back when injuries struck during the season. This season they won't have that chance. Soon after the release of the former University of New Mexico star by the Cowboys, Detroit grabbed him.

Center Keith Bishop, who also played for Midland Lee back in the mid-1970s before playing college ball at Baylor, is playing offensive guard for the Denver Broncos while recovering from a hand injury that has been impairing his ball-snapping capabilities...

Idle thought dept. while watching ex-Midland Cub Lee Smith brush back Dusty Baker with a high, tight pitch, "Would anyone in his right mind charge the mound in anger after a Smith intimidation pitch?"

Apparently, Dusty has thought about it, too. He says, "I won't run from any one, but around the general opinion around the National League is that you're in no real hurry to get to him."...

The Big Eight is thinking about committing its champion to the Fiesta Bowl after the present agreement with the Orange Bowl runs out, which would confirm that the Tempe-based bowl game has indeed arrived as a "major". Unless, of course, they also sign up the Pac-10 runnerup as the automatic opponent...

FRESHMAN DERRICK Shepard, a walkon, will see a lot of action at wingback for the University of Oklahoma this fall. If the name sounds familiar, it's because he's from Odessa, where they have a lot of Shepards. In fact, two, old brothers Woody and Darrell, preceeded Derrick to Norman...

Gee, what if the Houston-Southern Methodist game Nov. 26 is for the SWC championship? Why the panic? It's being played in Tokyo and has a 9 p.m. kickoff, that's Tokyo time and no one know is sure what time that is in Texas, but if they carried it on TV, it would be the weirdest kickoff since Houston and Texas A&M began play at 11:33 p.m. in an Astrodome game sandwiched between Astros' playoff games Saturday and Sunday afternoon...

ANYONE WHO has ever played golf with the writer, can go do something else at this point. You wouldn't believe it anyway.

At Monday's LaJet Media Open on Abilene's Fairway Oaks, Dave Pelz of Golf Research, who is conducting a statewide tournament to determine the best amateur-pro putter in Texas, decided to get the media folks in on the competition that is going on at many of the golf clubs throughout the state.

With a captive audience, Dave conducted one of his "draw back" putting tournaments. If you miss, you move the ball the length of the putter shaft away from the pin and try again.

Guess who won?

I wasn't paying attention when Dave was explaining the details before the match. So many were participating, I wasn't sure I'd enter something I couldn't possibly win anyway. However, I think I'm obligated to go back for the LaJet Classic to putt against Tom Kite, Ben Crenshaw and the rest of the amateur champions. All right, you guys, stop laughing. I told you to go do something else...

'Huskers want whole ball of wax

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — University of Nebraska quarterback Turner Gill says two years of nearly making it to the top is enough incentive to make another run at a national football title in 1983.

Gill nearly passed up his senior season at NU to pursue a professional baseball career. But he announced in May that he would return to Nebraska, where he has earned all-Big Eight Conference football honors the past two seasons.

With Gill at quarterback, second-team All-American Mike Rozier at I-back and second-team all-Big Eight wingback Irving Fryar, Coach Tom Osborne believes he has the offensive nucleus to have "a good team this year."

"With those three back there, and Mark Schellen at fullback, I think we have one of the best if not the best backfield in the nation," said Osborne.

Osborne returns only four starters each on offense and defense from a 12-1 team that finished third in the final Associated Press poll a year ago. The lone loss (27-24) was to Penn State, a team Nebraska faces in the inaugural Kickoff Classic in East Rutherford, N.J., Aug. 29.

Two years ago, the Huskers had a shot at a national title but lost to No. 1-ranked Clemson in the Orange Bowl.

"We've missed national titles the last two years by this far," said Gill holding his fingers inches apart. "I don't like to lose. I've never been a loser and I don't expect to start now."

Nebraska Preview

Osborne has great confidence in his returning offensive players, noting that the three backs and guard Dean Steinkuhler are the strength of his 1983 team.

"For what we do, run the option and pass, Turner Gill is the best quarterback in the country," said Osborne. "Mike Rozier is the top back in the country. Irving Fryar is great with breakaway potential. In Dean Steinkuhler, we have a great football player.

"I feel like we will have a good football team. But whether we are a great team or not hinges on the development of our offensive line and development of several defensive players."

According to Osborne, Steinkuhler was overshadowed last year by two-time Outland Trophy winner Dave Rimington, and all-Big Eight selections Mike Mandelko and Randy Theiss. "But he probably graded out better than any of our linemen last year," said Osborne.

Backup players like tackle Scott Raridon, guard Harry Grimminger and tackle Mark Traynowicz last year actually logged as much or more playing time than did the offensive line starters, said Osborne. Traynowicz has been converted to center this year.

"It's more like two years ago with the line," said Steinkuhler. "Normally Nebraska has fifth-year seniors move into starting positions so they aren't really new. Last year was unusual with so many people coming back. I'm confident we'll be able to hold our own this fall."

A's rehire Steve Boros

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Steve Boros, rehired as Oakland A's manager before the game, went onto the field just once during Tuesday night's victory over the California Angels.

Many of the 16,560 fans at the Oakland Coliseum booed.

"No one likes to see a young pitcher leave a game when he has a shutout going. The fans didn't know he was sick. I hope they read that in the newspapers in the morning," said Boros, who saw humor in the reaction he stirred up in the eighth inning.

He went to the mound to remove starter Chris Codiroli, who was pitching with a bad cold. Dave Beard completed the seven-hit 4-0 shutout which extended the pitching staff's string of scoreless innings to a club-record 32.

Boros, 46, signed to a one-year contract by the A's after Billy Martin was fired last fall, received a new one-year contract.

Youth lifts Bucs, age aids Phillies

By The Associated Press

Young Doug Frobel reminded Chuck Tanner of a young Reggie Jackson and old Tony Perez reminded everyone of...well...young Tony Perez.

Frobel, called up from the minors last week, belted his second home run in two games, a fourth-inning shot that produced the final run in the Pittsburgh Pirates' 3-1 victory over the New York Mets.

"He reminds me a lot of Reggie because he has the power to hit the ball in the upper deck and he's capable of hitting the ball out to any field," said Tanner, the Pirates' manager.

Meanwhile, the Philadelphia Phillies, who lead the National League by one game over Pittsburgh, were bombed 10-1 by the Chicago Cubs in the opener of a doubleheader and tied 1-1 in the nightcap until Perez led off the seventh inning with a home run that triggered a 6-2 triumph.

"Not bad for a 41-year-old kid who isn't playing much and has lost his stroke and timing," said Perez, a 19-year veteran who has hit 369 homers. "When I signed with the Phillies, I expected to do a little pinch hitting and not play much. But I got off to a great start winning games and knocking in runs. Lately I haven't been used too much. Still, I've got 40 RBIs and eight game-winners."

With scheduled starter Larry McWilliams sidelined with tendinitis, Lee Tunnell and two relievers combined on a six-hitter as the Pirates won their fifth game in a row. The Pirates trailed 1-0 when Marvell Wynne drew a one-out walk in the third and Johnny Ray tripled off loser Craig Swan. Bill Madlock's sacrifice fly gave Pittsburgh a 2-1 lead and Frobel contributed an insurance run an inning later.

"We've got five rookies and a lot of second-year players and they're all playing and contributing," said Tanner. "This is the best young contending club we've ever had. They want it badly. Our future here is solid for a lot of years."

Frobel, who hit 51 homers in his last two seasons in the minors, is considered as the possible successor to right fielder Dave Parker.

"I'm just trying to help this club win a pennant. That's all I'm worried about right now," he said."I'm just trying to hit up here the same way I did in Hawaii. Home runs got me here and I hope they're going to be what keeps me here."

Cubs 10-2, Phillies 1-6

At Chicago, Garry Maddox homered one out after Perez's tie-breaking shot off Mike Proly and Bo Diaz rapped a two-run double in the eighth inning to help the Phillies gain a split.

Jody Davis had three singles and three RBIs for the Cubs in the opener, while Dick Ruthven pitched a five-hitter. Ruthven gave up a run in the second inning, but the Cubs came back with three in their half on Ron Cey's 18th homer and a two-run double by Thad Bosley. Davis singled a run home in the third and singled two more runs across in the eighth.

National League

Dodgers 5, Giants 1

At Los Angeles, Jerry Reuss scattered seven hits in seven innings to snap a personal seven-game losing streak. Bill Russell drove in two runs with a pair of doubles and Greg Brock homered as the Dodgers beat the Giants for only the fourth time in 12 meetings this season and moved within 4½ games of Atlanta in the NL West. Reuss, who had started 12 games without a victory, struck out six and did not walk a batter before Tom Niedenfuer hurled the final two innings. Bill Laskey lost for the first time in four career decisions against the Dodgers.

"It's been a long time," said Reuss. "I'm glad it's finally over and the only thing I'm wondering now is why it took so long."

Padres 3, Braves 2

At Atlanta, Garry Templeton's sacrifice fly in the 10th inning drove in the winning run as the Braves suffered their third consecutive loss. Pinch hitter Gene Richards opened the 10th with a single and was sacrificed to second. Alan Wiggins singled him to third before Templeton's game-winning fly off reliever Steve Bedrosian.

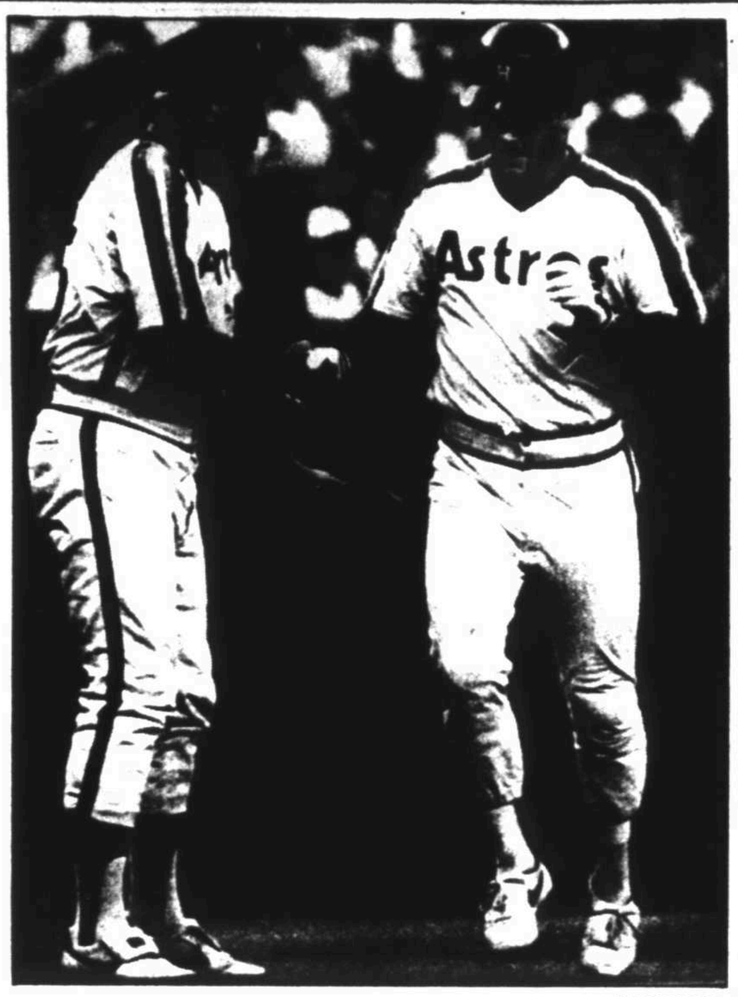

"I'm just a little concerned now because we have to guard against a letdown because (Bob) Horner is not able to play," said Braves Manager Joe Torre. "But I'm optimistic we'll be all right."

Astros 8, Reds 5

At Cincinnati, John Mizerock, batting only .195, hit a two-run double, his first major-league homer and drove in a fourth run with a sacrifice fly as Houston closed to within 7½ games of the Braves, the closest the Astros have been since May 6. Mizerock's homer, a single by winning pitcher Mike Scott, Bill Doran's double and Terry Puhl's two-run single erased a 2-0 deficit in the third inning. Ray Knight also homered for Houston.

Cardinals 4, Expos 3

At St. Louis, the Cardinals scored two runs off Montreal relief ace Jeff Reardon in the bottom of the ninth on pinch hitter George Hendrick's triple, David Green's double and Floyd Rayford's pinch single for their third victory in the last 15 games. Rayford batted for winning pitcher Neil Allen, who made his first relief appearance after 12 starts since St. Louis acquired him from the New York Mets on June 15.

Chapparals acquire all-state footballer

Chris Gomez, a three-year letterman in football and all-state defensive back in football, has signed an athletic scholarship to Midland College. Gomez also was a three-year basketball letterman at Hayden, Kansas, High in Topeka.

MC isn't introducing football to its sports program. Gomez, after considering various football and basketball offers, decided to concentrate on golf and will play for Coach Delnor Poss' team in 1983-84. Gomez was the state Class 4A medalist, regional medalist, Centennial League medalist and medalist at two invitational tournament.

As a cager Gomez was second leading scorer and rebounder on Hayden's 22-3 and 25-0 state cage champions the last two seasons. "Chris is a great athlete with tremendous desire and he's also a 3.3 grade point average student," says Poss. "He wants to concentrate on golf while in college in hopes of making it on the professional tour after getting his degree."

Now if Delnor can just keep him out of Jerry Stone's reach...

Super Dog night

Midland High will unveil the 1983 Bulldog football edition Saturday, Aug. 27, at 6:30 p.m. at Memorial Stadium in a special Super Dog Night which is open to the public.

Hot dogs with all the trimmings will be served and tickets are $3 per person. Tickets may be purchased at the gate or from the MHS Booster Club.

The MHS band will play from 7:30 to 8 p.m., prior to the introduction of Bulldog football players and coaches.

Yanks to vote on pine tar

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees will vote today on whether to finish the "pine tar game" with the Kansas City Royals on Thursday, as American League President Lee MacPhail has ordered.

"We'll probably have an idea before we hit tomorrow (Wednesday)," said Don Baylor of the Yankees, the team's alternate player representative after Tuesday night's 5-3 loss to the Chicago White Sox. "We'll get everybody together at one time and make a decision."

The July 24 game ended as a 4-3 victory for the Yankees when the umpiring crew voided a two-run homer by Kansas City's George Brett after New York Manager Billy Martin claimed Brett's bat had pine tar too far up its handle.

MacPhail later overruled that decision, declaring that Brett's counted and the game would continue with the Royals leading 5-4 and two out in the top of the ninth.

The Royals already have voted to resume the game.

"It might rain Thursday," said Dave Winfield, the Yankees' player representative. "We don't want to tip our hand."

Baylor said he is not anxious to resume the game but "will play if the team votes to play."

If either the Royals' game against Detroit or New York's contest with Chicago is rained out Wednesday, the makeups of those games would take precedence over the pine tar game, which would be completed at a later date.

Sampson close to fortune as Rockets talk $20 million

HOUSTON (AP) — It may be "just a matter of days" before Ralph Sampson, the No. 1 pick in the 1983 National Basketball Association draft, signs a long-term contract with the Houston Rockets that could pay him nearly $20 million, the Houston Chronicle said today.

The newspaper said Sampson's agent, Tom Collins of Los Angeles, is expected to meet with Rockets officials in California later in the week to discuss details of a contract that would bind the 7-4 center to the Houston franchise for 10 years.

Rockets owner Charlie Thomas, president and general manager Ray Patterson and coach Bill Fitch will be at the meeting, the Chronicle said.

Collins, who also represents Los Angeles Lakers center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, telephoned Rockets officials Monday to inform them that Sampson had selected him as his agent.

But Collins, who is not an attorney, may not be Sampson's sole representative in the discussions, the newspaper added, quoting unnamed sources.

Collins said his main role will be as a negotiator. He also reportedly is set to act as Sampson's agent on outside business, such as product endorsements, the newspaper said.

Sampson and Collins were introduced by Abdul-Jabbar, who has frequently acted as an adviser to the University of Virginia superstar, college basketball's player of the year.

Collins has almost finalized an endorsement deal that will net Sampson $1 million for wearing Puma basketball shoes, the newspaper said.

Contract talks between the Rockets and Sampson had been delayed in the two months since the draft while Sampson tried to decide on an agent.

TBS picks Raiders

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — The Texas Tech-Air Force Academy football game on Sept. 10 at Colorado Springs, Colo., will be telecast nationally by the Turner Broadcasting System to kick off its 1983 college football coverage, Texas Tech officials announced Tuesday.

Approval by the NCAA is tentative since both ABC and CBS have first rights to any game, but both networks have already announced they will carry other games or other programming on that weekend, school officials said.

The game, which was moved from 2:30 p.m. to 7:05 p.m. two weeks ago to accommodate the cable network station, will be televised into 27 million homes across the nation, officials said.

Falcon Stadium has no permanent lighting fixtures, so portable lights will be erected to provide the first home night game in Air Force Academy history, officials added.

Strock thinks he fits Memphis' needs

MIAMI (AP) — Unsigned quarterback Don Strock of the Miami Dolphins says the newly formed Memphis Showboats of the United States Football League are looking for a veteran — and he thinks he fits the bill.

"I'm optimistic. These people are going about things the right way," Strock, who has previously refused to discuss his contract, told The Miami Herald for publication in today's editions.

"They want a veteran quarterback who can play, and I think I certainly meet those requirements."

Strock said he would probably meet personally later this week with Memphis owner Logan Young Jr.

Strock said his talks with Memphis were very different from his contract negotiations with the Dolphins.

"I'm talking with people who want me," he told The Herald. "The people I've worked for for 10 years and who I think I've done a good job for? We're not talking. That's kind of strange, but it puts things in perspective."

Dolphins owner Joe Robbie broke off talks with Strock several weeks ago, saying he had made the veteran quarterback a "good offer" and that the remaining issues were "coaching decisions" — Strock's desire to start.

Showboats officials, however, were upbeat about their contacts with Strock, who has been the Dolphins' "relief pitcher" most of his 10-year NFL career.

Young said Strock and his agent, Jerry Kapstein, were asking for a three-year, $1 million contract.

"It's going to be awful expensive, but we can't go to war with a rookie quarterback," Young told The Miami News. "We are looking for a proven quarterback who is good at reading defenses and Strock is both. We are very interested in him."

Boxers' dream alive

Pan Am Games

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The U.S. boxing team's dream of a medal for everyone in the Pan American games is still alive.

While Cuban boxers were upset in two of their three bouts, Steve McCrory, the only American in action Tuesday, had to fight off both a hostile Venezuelan crowd and a dogged Jorge Arcia of Panama Tuesday night to win his preliminary-round bout in the 112-pound division.

That put the 19-year-old from Detroit into the quarterfinals on Saturday, one bout away from a medal that would be a start toward fulfilling the coaches' predictions of medals for all 11 of their boxers.

It was a good day overall for Americans, who won six gold and four silver medals in shooting, and three golds in judo.

Michael Jordan led a second half rally that erased a 10-point deficit and gave the U.S. basketball team a 72-69 win over Brazil. The U.S. baseball team won its second straight, downing Canada 10-5.

The United States' nine gold medals gave it 13 golds and 24 medals in all. Cuba, with 12 golds in weightlifting, still had the overall lead with 15 golds and 30 total medals.

More American gold may be on tap today with the start of swimming, in which the United States is heavily favored. Four swimming golds will be decided tonight.

AMONG THE outstanding individual achievements on Tuesday was a no-hitter by Lori Stoll of Chillicothe, Mo., in the U.S women's softball team's 16-0 victory over Venezuela. And Cuba got the first world record of the games when weightlifter Daniel Nunez snatched 304 pounds on the way to three gold medals.

But there were still problems for the games' organizers.

Americans continued to talk about leaving the athletes village, where problems with cramped conditions, low-water pressure and dirty floors have persisted.

High winds blew out the Pan Am flame at Olympic stadium, which had to be relighted, and two banks of lights at Palo Verde Stadium went out for 17 minutes during the U.S.-Canada baseball game.

McCrory, the world amateur champion and the brother of newly crowned World Boxing Council welterweight champion Milt McCrory, danced and jabbed through the first two rounds, winning both on the judges' cards. But in the third, the Panamanian started boring in, continually pinning the American to the ropes and staggering him several times before the final bell.

"I couldn't move away from him," McCrory complained after the 4-1 decision that left the overflow crowd of 6,000 at United Nations park hooting and whistling and chanting "Cuba, Cuba, Cuba" and "Pa-na-ma, Pa-na-ma, Pa-na-ma."

"He's a very good fighter. He kept coming and coming at me and I couldn't move my arms or my legs."

McCrory's only support came from his teammates, who clustered on the open cement floor near the ring to cheer him on. As McCrory walked off to the jeers of the Venezuelans, the Americans waved and gestured at the crowd.

"Just let them do all the yelling they want," Coach Pat Nappi told the team in the dressing room. "Don't egg them on."

And super-heavyweight Tyrell Biggs, a veteran of international competition, said, "You just have to close your ears to it."

Both Cuban boxing losses were to Puerto Ricans, who won all three bouts they fought on Tuesday.

Rafael Sainz, one of the favorites in the 106-pound class, lost a controversial decision to Rafael Ramos. Three judges gave the fight to Sainz, the aggressor for much of the bout, and two awarded it to Ramos, the more effective counter-puncher.

But under a new international rule affecting split decisions, the fight went to a three-member jury, which voted unanimously for Ramos, giving the fight to the Puerto Rican. The Cubans said they would appeal the decision.

The second Cuban loss postponed the first meeting between an American and a Cuban. It took place in the 119-pound weight class, where Puerto Rico's Juan Molina outpointed Cuba's Luis Ernesto Delis.

So American Floyd Favors, the world champion in the division and a heavy favorite, now opens Saturday against Molina instead of Delis.

The comeback for the American basketball team was its second straight. On Monday, the U.S. trailed Mexico 20-4 early in the game and 47-36 at halftime before suring in the second half to win 74-63.

THIS TIME, the Americans trailed the veteran Brazilian team 55-45 midway in the second half before Jordan, who scored 17 of his 27 points in the last 10 minutes, led a final surge that pulled out the win and silenced the pro-Brazil crowd of 13,000 in the Poliedro.

"I really felt confident on my shots," the All-American from North Carolina said. "I thought I could beat my man. He was a little slower than I was."

Said Coach Jack Hartman: "We had a horrible night shooting, but we showed a lot of character."

American shooters were a lot more accurate. Their medals included two to a father-daughter team in shooting events. Deena Wigger, a 17-year-old from Fort Benning, Ga., captured a gold in the women's English match rifle and her father Lones Wigger Jr. picked up a silver in men's match rifle.

Other golds went to Matt Dryke of Fort Benning in men's skeet shooting; to Rod Fitz-Randolph of Palm Bay, Fla., in English Match rival and to the skeet and men's and women's match teams.

For a while Tuesday, it looked like many of the 500 Americans in the village might be moving out and into downtown hotels.

NFL brings out the ax

By The Associated Press

For National Football League veterans Efren Herrera, David Lewis and Dennis Boyd, it might be the end of the line.

All three players were cut Tuesday as NFL teams reduced their rosters. Originally, all 28 teams were required to get down to 60 players but were given a reprieve when club owners decided to extend the rosters from 45 to 49 this season. In doing so, they allowed all clubs to carry 70 players through the third weekend of preseason play before trimming to 60. The final cut, just prior to the start of the season, will be to 49.

Most of those cut Tuesday were rookies. But the Los Angeles Raiders released Herrera, a nine-year veteran place-kicker who also kicked for Dallas and Seattle. Herrera lost out his battle with two other longtime NFL kickers — Chris Bahr and Benny Ricardo — for the job.

San Diego waived Lewis, a six-year veteran linebacker who was obtained prior to last season from Tampa Bay, where he was a regular on one of the best defenses in football.

Seattle released Dennis Boyd, a five-year veteran tackle who was a starter prior to last season's players' strike. When the teams returned he injured his knee and missed the remainder of the season.

Despite the reprieve, a number of teams got down to 60 players, including the Cardinals, Jets, Bears, Lions and Dolphins.

Washington and Seattle were granted roster exemptions by the league. Washington will not have to carry defensive back Tony Peters on its active roster. Peters will be formally arraigned in Alexandria, Va., on Wednesday fo his alleged involvement in a conspiracy to sell $115,000 worth of cocaine.

Seattle was given the exemption for running back Sherman Smith, a seven-year veteran and original member of the Seahawks. Smith was traded to Kansas City last week but failed to pass the Chiefs' physical examination because of a neck problem. He previously passed a Seahawks' physical and will take another one later this week.

Chicago signed top draft pick Willie Gault, a wide receiver from Tennessee who won a bronze medal in the 110-meter hurdles at the World Championships of Track and Field last week.

Placed on injured reserve were veterans Craig Puki, a linebacker with St. Louis, linebacker Jerry Muckensturm of Chicago, and quarterback Tom Flick of New England.

'Slingers start clearing grass

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Despite official city opposition, workers stripped the grass off the field of Alamo Stadium Tuesday to prepare for the laying of an artificial turf and the entry of the San Antonio Gunslingers into the United States Football League next summer.

The San Antonio City Council met in an emergency closed-door session Tuesday night to discuss possibilities that included a lawsuit to stop club officials from continuing their renovation of the stadium.

But officials emerged after the meeting to say that although there was extensive discussion, no decisions were reached. A public hearing will be held Thursday night, and Mayor Henry Cisneros said "We'll take some definitive action at that time."

Front-end loaders and graders leased by the Gunslingers were at the stadium Tuesday, but a city councilwoman said she had the votes to try to stop the machinery.

By the time the council met, the grass had been stripped off the field, however. High school football teams are scheduled to play on the field in early September.

The dispute between the city and South Texas Sports, owner of the USFL franchise, over Alamo Stadium was discussed at the special meeting Tuesday night.

City council member Helen Dutmer said she had collected signatures from a majority of the council members instructing the city manager to seek a court order to stop installation of the new field.

South Texas Sports has signed a lease with the San Antonio Independent School District for the stadium, but the land on which the it was built belongs to the city and a deed restriction prohibits the stadium from being used for profit-making sports events.

Is it Chargers or Raiders?

By The Associated Press

AFC West Preview

The American Football Conference West appears to come down to a struggle for the title between San Diego and the Los Angeles Raiders as the other three clubs are in need of much improvement.

The legal entanglements with their former home of Oakland behind them, the Raiders won't be travelling from an Oakland training camp for their games in Los Angeles this season. However, even with that impediment in 1982, they won the division with the best record in the AFC, 8-1.

Denver, meanwhile, could become more competitive with an improved passing attack.

The Broncos were only 2-7 a season ago. But this year, they have John Elway, the Stanford All-American quarterback who was the top pick in the NFL draft.

Baltimore drafted him, but Elway ended up with the Broncos via trade when he said he would never sign with the Colts.

The Raiders could have a quarterback battle with Jim Plunkett, the most valuable player in the 1981 Super Bowl, being challenged again by Marc Wilson. And the club expects another starring season from 1981 Heisman Trophy winner Marcus Allen of Southern California who won 1982 rookie of the year honors.

San Diego's Chargers (6-3) also made the playoffs and, during the off-season, reached contract agreement with star quarterback Dan Fouts — a multi-year, multi-million dollar pact.

Both Seattle (4-5) and Kansas City (3-6) hired new coaches. Veteran Chuck Knox went to the Seahawks and John Mackovic moved to the Chiefs from an assistant's job at Dallas.

However, tragedy hit the Chiefs during the off-season when running back Joe Delaney drowned in a Louisiana pond while trying to save three youngsters.

Los Angeles won its final five regular season games of 1982 before falling to New York 17-14. Coach Tom Flores says, "We'll continue to find ways to win, make the playoffs and strive to finish on top."

But trouble may be brewing on the offensive line. Longtime stars Art Shell and Gene Upshaw have retired and Curt Marsh, one of those expected to take over, has undergone surgery that could keep him out for the season.

On the defensive line, there is nose tackle Reggie Kinlaw and defensive ends Lyle Alzado and Howie Long. The linebacking corps is strong with Ted Hendricks, Matt Milen and Bob Nelson. The secondary includes Chester Hayes, a Pro Bowl performer the past three seasons.

San Diego finished second in the AFC West last year, after three years of winning or sharing the title.

Coach Don Coryell is putting his faith in a promising rookie crop to help solve the defensive problems that led to the second place finish. Arkansas All-American Billy Ray Smith, shifted to linebacker from end, and cornerback Gill Byrd of San Jose State, two of three No.1 draft picks, are likely starters.

"Another year under (defensive coach) Tom Bass' system should help alot," said Fouts, whose passing has produced 21 team records and seven NFL marks.

In Seattle, Knox, who previously coached the LA Rams and Buffalo Bills, calls Jim Zorn his regular quarterback. A year ago, Dave Krieg started in the first two games and then came back in the Kingdome finale to marshal the winning touchdown drive of 87 yards bringing a 13-10 victory.

Knox also has installed shotgun formation plays to give the quarterback more time and beefed up a weak offensive line with the addition of center Blair Bush from Cincinnati and guard Reggie McKenzie from Buffalo.

The Seahawks also drafted Curt Warner, Penn State's all-time leading ground gainer, to improve their running attack. He was the third overall pick in the draft. The Seahawks also acquired veteran fullback Cullen Bryant from the Rams.

"I think we're going to be able to run the football," said Knox who feels a winning club must move on the ground.

Denver owned the worst turnover-takeover ratio in the NFL last season. This year Coach Dan Reeves has instituted fumble recovery sessions and has worked his offense on tackling defenders who have made interceptions.

Elway presses veteran Steve DeBerg for the starting quarterback job, but, despite the rookie's $5 million contract, Reeves says he won't rush things.

NFC East presents muddled picture for title chase

NFC East Preview

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tough National Football Conference East division may be decided this season as much by developments off the field as on it.

Key players holding out for more money and drug charges hanging over a half-dozen players have further muddled a division picture already clouded by the appearance of two new head coaches and two fights for the No. 1 quarterbacking spot.

"Pick a winner in this division? You must be crazy," says Washington Redskins assistant coach Richie Petitbon. "With everything that's going on, who knows who is going to be playing, let alone how well they will play?"

Pressed further, Petitbon cautiously picked the Super Bowl champion Redskins to again rise to the top of the division.

"We are the defending champs so you have to say we are the team to beat. Of course, you know Dallas is going to be there are at the end because they always are, the Giants are the most physical team in the division, that (Neil) Lomax kid keeps getting better in St. Louis and the Eagles can beat anyone."

The heart of the New York Giants defense is All-Pro linebacker Lawrence Taylor, who just reported to training camp last week after settling a contract dispute.

The Redskins, meanwhile, are trying to get cornerback Jeris White in camp. White has threatened to sit out the season if the Redskins refuse his contract demands. Washington defensive back Tony Peters is also not in camp — he's preparing a legal defense for charges of trying to sell cocaine to an undercover federal agent.

The Redskins, 8-1 in the strike-shortened 1982 season, avenged their only loss of the year in the NFC Championship, beating Dallas 31-17 in the friendly confines of RFK Stadium.

Public opinion to the contrary, the Redskins are no fluke, having won 20 of 24 games over the last two seasons. Offensively, this year's team is stronger than the one that beat Miami 27-17 in the Super Bowl.

"Art (Monk) and Joe (Washington) are healthy and that can only help," notes Redskins quarterback Joe Theismann. "Our kicking also gets a boost from Darrell Green (the team's No. 1 draft pick). That kid can really fly."

Injuries sidelined both Monk and Washington last year. Monk, the team's leading receiver, is running well this summer after breaking a bone in his foot last year. Washington, who led the club in rushing in 1981, looks sharp following arthoscopic surgery on both knees.

The Atlanta Falcons can attest to Green's ability returning punts. The rookie out of Texas A&I ran 61 yards for a score the first time he touched the ball in the NFL in the team's first preseason game against the Falcons.

A healthy Washington will provide relief to John Riggins. Despite his record-breaking performances for carries and yardage in the playoffs, Riggins is 34 and cannot hold off Father Time forever.

Clarence Harmon, Riggins' backup in the playoffs, is another player facing drug charges and will stand trial in Texas for possession of cocaine.

The Cowboys, too, have been preoccupied with talk of drug inestigations. Five players — Tony Dorsett, Harvey Martin, Ron Springs, Larry Bethea and Tony Hill — have all been mentioned in a federal drug probe.

Coach Tom Landry, who has guided the Cowboys to 10 NFC championship appearances in the last 13 years, must decide on a starting quarterback in time for the season opener Monday night, Sept. 5, in Washington.

Danny White, who had led the Cowboys at quarterback for the past three years, will be pushed for the job by backup Gary Hogeboom, who looked impressive in relief in last year's NFC championship tilt with the Redskins, throwing two second-half touchdown passes.

The Cowboys, 6-3 last year, are a year older but no better following a mediocre draft.

The Giants have a new coach and an old problem — who will play quarterback?

The new head coach is Bill Parcells, moving up from defensive coach. He repplaces Ray Perkins, who returned to his alma mater at Alabama to succeed Bear Bryant.

Parcells will have to choose between Scott Brunner and the often-injured Phil Simms. Simms may better but has spent more time in the hospital than on the field over the last three years with two shoulder injuries and knee surgery.

The Giants running attack looks solid with both Butch Woolfolk and Rob Carpenter capable of big afternoons.

The Giants also figure to get a lift from Terry Kinard, a safety out of Clemson, who may be the division's top rookie.

St. Louis could be the suprise of the division with quarterback Lomax continuing to mature as the Cardinals signal-caller. Finally establishing himself over Jim Hart as the Cardinals No. 1 quarterback, Lomax has started the team's last 15 games, fashioning a 9-6 record.

Lomax's one major flaw is a failure to dump passes off to his tight ends. Last year, Cardinal tight ends caught a league-low 11 passes.

Moving to shore up the team's weak spot, its secondary, the Cardinals top two draft picks were defensive backs Leonard Smith and Cedric Mack. Both could find themselves in starting roles.

Drilling permit costs to soar September 1

By DAVID C. SODAMANN
Business-Energy Editor

There ain't no such thing as a free lunch; and starting September 1 there won't be any free drilling permits either. What's the oil patch coming to?

The answer is better times are coming to the the oil patch, although it will cost a lot more — in relative terms. Better times are coming in two ways. First, beginning Sept. 1, drilling permits will be issued faster; and, secondly, beginning Sept. 1 the Texas Railroad Commission will begin stockpiling ammunition it's needed to intensify the fight against oil field pollution.

And the reason better times are coming is because beginning Sept. 1, it will cost $100 to get a drilling permit in Texas.

The $100 filing fee was imposed by the Texas Legislature last session. Fees collected will be used to plug improperly abandoned wells and to enforce pollution prevention and abatement laws and regulations.

To make compliance with the new law easier, the RRC has made changes in the drilling permit application procedure that will, as an added benefit, make it possible to issue drilling permits faster than ever before.

BILL GALLAGHER, the RRC's supervisor of drilling permits in Austin, said "The Commission is out to take care of the good operator; and really out to take care of the bad operator."

Gallagher told Permian Basin oil and gas finders Tuesday that they must attach a check or money order for $100, (payable to the Texas State Treasury) to all RRC form W-1s, applications for drilling permits filed on or after Sept. 1, if they want a drilling permit.

"When we open the mail Sept. 1," Gallagher said, "if there is no check, we have to send it (the application) back to the operator."

Gallagher made his remarks during a drilling permit seminar sponsored by the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

The fees collected will be depostied in the State Treasury. Because of that, applications for drilling permits can no longer be filed at Railroad Commission district offices — such as the District 8 office in Midland.

INSTEAD, W-1S must be sent directly to RRC headquarters in Austin. There, mail will be opened under the watchful eye of a cashier, who will make sure all fees are credited to the State of Texas.

Because the applications will go directly to RRC headquarters, and not be routed by mail from operators, to district offices, to headquarters and back again along the opposite route, drilling permits will be issued much faster than before, Gallagher said.

Beginning Sept. 1 permits will be issued within 12 working hours after a proper application is received. During the boom of 1981, Gallagher said, "turnaround time" was 30 days, and during 1982 it was 14 days.

"We'll do everything we can, so there won't be any more big delays," Gallagher said.

After Sept. 1, Gallagher said, as soon as a W-1 is received in Austin, it will be logged in by computer. Each RRC district office will be tied into the computer and the district offices will be able to check the computer file and give operators a complete report on the status of an application if it is wanted.

"District office personnel can tell you right away if there is any problem with an application," Gallagher said.

THOSE NEEDING a drilling permit in less than 12 hours can take an application directly to RRC headquarters in Austin on working days and walk the application through the filing process.

Gallagher said operators need to remember to:

— Use current filing procedures until Sept. 1.

— After Sept. 1, send each W-1, an accurate plat showing well location and the $100 fee to RRC headquarters in Austin.

— Send a copy of the documents to the appropriate RRC district office.

— Make sure the check or money order for the fee is made out to the State Treasurer.

— Make sure if more than one W-1 is sent in, a check for the correct total is sent, or all applications will be returned.

AN ADDITIONAL $100 fee will be collected if an operator makes a "material amendment" to a W-1 after filing.

Sandra Joseph, an RRC attorney, told those attending the seminar a material amandment is:

— Any change requiring the issuance of a new drilling permit.

— A change of location in a field for a previously permitted well.

— Changes made necessary because of RRC action, however the RRC may waive the additional fee if it chooses. For example, there will be no additional fee charged should a W-1 be amended because the RRC adopts new field rules or temporary rules.

Basically, Gallagher said, no additional fee will be charged when a W-1 is amended to show a new operator name, new lease name or new well number. An additional fee will be charged when a W-1 is amended to show a change in field name or a change in physical location of a well.

Gallagher said if there is a possibility a well may be drilled through several potentially producing formations, or fields, each field or reservoir name should be listed on the original W-1 to save the need for filing an amendment costing $100 later.

THE LAST NAME an operator should list, Gallagher said, is "wildcat."

"That word wildcat will get you a free ride," Gallagher said, "you will not have to come in for another $100."

Beginning Sept. 1 a new form W-1 will be used. These may be picked up at RRC district offices. Those needing the new W-1s in large quantities can get them by phoning the RRC Supply Department in Austin at 512-445-1100.

A number of procedural changes have been made. Those who need help figuring out the new system can phone 1-800-772-0091. The line will be in operation through September. RRC district offices can also help. The district office number in Midland is 684-5581.

Gallagher said he will also help those with questions about the new procdures. His number in Austin is 512-445-1106.

If all else fails, phone the Permian Basin Petroleum Association at 684-6345.

Even in a buyers' market, it's frequently less expensive to add a room or other improvements to your present home. Maybe you should talk to Susi Tucker about a Home Improvement Loan.

Let's talk business.

Funk & Wagnalls New Encyclopedia
1983 EDITION
Volume 1 only 9¢

Volumes 2–29 only $3.99 each

If you've been wanting a good encyclopedia, but figured you would have to spend hundreds of dollars for it, we've got a surprise for you... Funk & Wagnalls New Encyclopedia.

This week we're offering Volume 1 at the incredibly low price of 9¢! Which is our way of introducing you to an encyclopedia that contains over 9,000,000 words in 25,000 articles; more than 7,500 illustrations, many of them in full color. In addition, you'll find over 300 maps, plus up-to-date census revisions for U.S. and Canada and other nations.

You can complete your set as you shop each week. In no time at all, you'll have what you've always wanted: an encyclopedia set that contains a wealth of information.

But hasn't cost a fortune.

FREE 2-Volume Matching DICTIONARY

Get Funk & Wagnalls 2-volume Standard Desk Dictionary FREE when you purchase Vols. 2 and 3 of the Encyclopedia.

MC board decreases tax rate

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

Although assessed values were lower than preliminary estimates made in June, Midland College trustees axed the tax rate from 10.4 cents per $100 valuation to 10.2 cents for 1983-84.

According to Bob Phillips, MC vice president of fiscal affairs, the tax rate for the 1982-83 year was 10.4 cents per $100 valuation. With the unanimous approval of a 10.2 cent tax rate, the split will be made with 7.6 cents going for maintenance and operation and 2.6 cents reserved for debt service.

In other action, trustees approved the 1983-84 budget, amendments to the 1982-83 budget, the appointment of a financial advisor for the possible construction of a $1.7 million Health Sciences Building, a resolution honoring the retiring assistant to the president, the promotion of one instructor and the appointment and resignation of other staff members.

According to Phillips, Midland College's $3.85 billion tax base is less than preliminary estimates made in June. The 1983-84 budget was approved at $9,430,327 and a "conservative" 91 percent collection rate was made because of economic conditions in the area.

"Hopefully, we will do better than that," Phillips said.

Trustees also approved amendments to the budget for the current fiscal year, which ends Aug. 31. With most income items increasing because of the growth in enrollment, the college realized $98,071 more in revenue than expenses.

Looking at the time schedule for construction of the proposed health sciences building, Phillips recommended the appointment of Bob Davis of Kidder Peabody & Co., Inc., to act as financial advisor.

Phillips emphasized the college was not issuing any revenue bonds as of yet and the appointment of a financial advisor was necessary "to make sure we do things legally."

CWA members worried divestiture might affect jobs

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

Jay Allen

Tommy Haislip

When the Communications Workers of America union's contract was signed three years ago, divestiture was just another word in the dictionary.

Webster's Dictionary defines divestiture as the compulsory transfer of title or disposal of interests (as stock in a corporation) upon government order.

Local union members and management personnel agreed this week that the upcoming breakup of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. is an issue shadowing the recent CWA strike against AT&T.

"It's a big shadow," said Tommy Haislip, vice president Midland's CWA local 12127.

"The main problem is that nobody knows what's going to happen to our jobs."

On Jan. 1, 1984, Ma Bell will divest her 22 Bell Operating Companies (BOCs). AT&T will split into a national company and seven regional holding companies.

Each BOC will become part of a holding company, including Southwestern Bell which will be known as Southwestern Bell Holding Co. The slimmer, restructured AT&T will be out of the local phone service business, shedding about 75 percent of its $145 billion assets.

Almost a million people work for Ma Bell in its current structure. Some 675,000 CWA union members opted to strike AT&T this month, instead of accepting Ma Bell's 3.5 percent wage increase for each of the next three years.

Yet, wages aren't the only issue. According to Haislip, in addition to more money, "divestiture and givebacks on our medical benefits are the underlying cause of the strike. Wages are the big issue that are easy for the public to understand. These issues (divestiture and medical benefits) are complicated and hard to understand."

CWA's three-year contract expired this month. Divestiture is scheduled for Jan. 1, 1984. The timing of the two is coincidental, according to Jay Allen, public relations manager for Southwestern Bell in Midland.

But they are connected, he said.

"It is an issue that is definitely on the employees' minds, not only the union, but also management" Allen said. "Divestiture is apparently an issue in this strike. But there's so much uncertainty."

"It's connected," Haislip said. "Security '83 was our theme for our 1983 bargaining."

Haislip added that U.S. District Judge Harold Green, who ruled on the divesititure decision, "didn't want a strike in the first place. He wants us to get back to work so he can give the go ahead with the plans for divestiture."

Under the terms of the decision, AT&T has until late February 1984 to complete the breakup.

Allen said there's been no word — from the top to the bottom. "The answers aren't there. Nobody knows what's going to happen."

Haislip said he's worried and he's got a lot of questions.

"Are we going to be retrained? Are we going to have a job? With the new equipment (technology) are we going to be retrained or are college computer whizzes going to be brought in?

"We want a chance to retrain," he said. "We've had a lot of experience. When we took these jobs, like anybody else, we knew that you've got to do a good job to keep them. We just want to know there's going to be a place to earn our living.

"We're not fly-by-night employees. We don't stay six months and move on. We go in as long term employees. People who have put in 35 years want to know there will be a return on their investment."

Allen said management is sympathetic.

"We're in the same boat," he said. "I think about it (job security) personally."

He noted that although he would "never say never" concerning layoffs, AT&T received the nickname Ma Bell during the depression.

"She did not lay anybody off," Allen said. "As far as I know, Ma Bell did not lay off anybody. I understand, however, that when divestiture begins, jobs will be eliminated through natural attrition."

But this doesn't reassure the CWA.

"The company has changed a million times over since then," Haislip said. "This isn't really any reassurance. We need some kind of commitment from the company. We know or understand from what we've heard, that we will follow the company when the company spins off from AT&T. But we don't know what we'll be doing.

"We need some good contract language pertaining to training and retraining. This is one of the reasons to hold out. Security was one of our bargaining items submitted nationally. The company has failed to address this."

Damaged cable not strike-related, spokesman says

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

A damaged telephone cable which resulted in the loss of phone service at a Pepsi Cola bottling company Tuesday was not strike-related, according to a Southwestern Bell spokesman.

According to John Piowaty, regional manager of Consolidated Bottling-Pepsi Cola in Midland, a 100-foot crossover street cable was "apparently snagged, ripped loose and dragged off the side of the road."

Piowaty said the damaged line, which was connected to the warehouse, was discovered early Tuesday and the company was without service most of the day.

Telephone company management personnel have been manning switchboards and making repairs since Aug. 7 when the Communications Workers of America union opted to strike against the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

While strike-related reports of vandalism and violence sweep the nation from California to New York, Jay Allen, Bell's public relations manager said the incident Tuesday was not strike-related. He added that Midland has not had "any problems."

"Something did happen, but it's not unusual. It happens all the time," Allen said.

"We don't need people to call everytime a wire is down, implying that it is an act of vandalism related to the strike," he said.

Allen said the damaged line, a six-pair drop wire, was a temporary wire that "probably was pulled up by a tractor-trailer.

"We have not had any strike-related incidences of vandalism or violence," Allen said. "People don't need to start seeing shadows. This is a time that people need to keep a cool head.

"Cables are cut in different ways everyday, either accidently or from vandalism," Allen said. "If this would have happened in June instead of August, nobody would care."

Although Piowaty did not say he thought incident was strike-related, he noted, "it is evident that someone pulled up the line. It wasn't an accident."

Allen said there were two other out-of-service phone reports Tuesday, but they were caused by a power failure and a faulty phone. Allen added that repairs are only being done in the case of emergency.

Jury sentences disabled worker 20 years for murder

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

A 60-year-old disabled oilfield worker who was charged with shotgunning a "bully" to death on a Sunday morning last spring was found guilty of murder Tuesday in Midland's 238th State District Court.

The jury which convicted the man, Henry Dirl Rice, of killing Foy Johnson, 60, outside of Johnson's house at 509 S. Weatherford St. April 17 gave him a 20-year prison term. He could have been sentenced to life in prison.

Evidence in the 1½-day trial in Judge Vann Culp's court indicated that the slaying ended a feud which began in a bar five years ago when Rice kicked Johnson out of the bar operated by Rice's wife.

Assistant District Attorney David Joers told the three-man, nine-woman jury that Rice drove up to Johnson's house and honked twice. Johnson walked out of the house, down the porch, and smiled, he said. Rice then shot him twice with double-aught buckshot from a 12-gauge shotgun in the chest and face, Joers told the jurors.

Joers said witnesses to the shooting said Rice was "very calm" afterward and asked "Is the —— dead?" Rice displayed a "gleeful, boastful, proud attitude," Joers said.

"He was glad the 'son of a bitch' was dead," Joers quoted witnesses. "'I really fixed him...I really took care of him.'"

Joers disallowed self-defense, which he said Rice had held as an excuse for killing Johnson. Johnson supposedly had his hand in his pocket, and Rice "thought he had his hand on a gun." Even so, Rice had "time to retreat," Joers said. He said the killing was cold-blooded.

Defense attorney Tom Hirsch of Odessa said Johnson's death ended "five years of violence, threats, harassment my client has undergone."

Though he conceded that "It's not nice to talk about somebody that's dead," Hirsch said that Johnson's mother, sister, the "lady he was living with," and two women he had previously lived with had not come to court to testify "what a sweet man he was."

Hirsch said Johnson was a "bully."

"It appears Mr. Johnson picks on small people...There's something wrong with a person that does that."

Johnson, he said, was inclined to "shoot his mouth off at bars," and had threatened to "run you (Rice) out of Midland."

"Evidently, he got a kick out of scaring people."

"Johnson liked the power he had over people, (power) created by fear and that's what got him killed."

Hirsch said Rice was so bullied, threatened and shot at by Johnson that he complained of Johnson to Midland police, to the justice of peace, and to the District Attorney's Office, where he got some relief. He was allowed to testify before a grand jury, which did not indict Johnson for allegedly shooting at Rice.

"The law enforcement in this town did absolutely nothing (to protect Rice from Johnson)," Hirsch charged. "I don't know if they didn't care or if they liked Mr. Johnson...They chose to do nothing, and this is the consequence of what happens when you have no laws, and this is the equivalent of having no law."

Hirsch said Rice was distressed over the threats.

"He walked the floor at nights. You don't have to live that way."

"He had been under a heck of a strain for five years," Hirsch said, "and something has been done about this strain."

Contrary to the prosecutor's version of the April 17 incident, Hirsch said he doubted that Johnson smiled at Rice. "That doesn't make any sense."

"He was going to ask him to come in and have a cup of coffee and a sweet roll? I think Mr. Johnson brought it on himself. He carried it (the bullying) too far."

The defense attorney exhorted the jury to find his client innocent by reason of self-defense and harassment.

"You've got as much power over Mr. Rice's life at this time as a soldier does in combat or a policeman on the street," he said.

Co-prosecutor Steve Bruneman switched roles which Hirsch had devised for Rice and Johnson.

"I suggest to you (jurors) that he's a hot head, he's a bully, and I suggest to you he's a mean person," he said of Rice.

Krueger plans to attend political caucus fund-raiser

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Former U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger — an announced Democratic candidate for U.S. senator against Republican incumbent John Tower — will appear at the Permian Basin Women's Political Caucus fund-raiser here Thursday.

The event will run from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Odessa Holiday Inn mini-dome with about 200 persons expected. Tickets are $10 each and may be purchased at the door. More information may be obtained by telephoning Nancy Hart, 687-1624.

Also slated to appear are Cecelia M. Burke, comptroller of the Texas Women's Political Caucus, and a representative from the office of Lloyd Doggett, also a Democratic contender for the U.S. Senate.

Reasoning for the fund-raiser is two-fold, said President Tamra Oatman. The money is needed to carry out some projects planned this year and to set up a fund to pay the state and national dues of people who would like to join but can't because of the cost.

Membership is $40 per year with $10 of that going to the local group. The rest is sent on to state and national offices.

"It takes every penny of that ($10) just to send out the monthly newsletter," said Ms. Oatman. "We hope to have a fund for people who can't afford the full membership."

The fund-raiser is a celebration of the organization's first anniversary in the Permian Basin and to mark a successful year, she said. "We're trying to increase membership and to make people aware of us."

The Permian Basin Caucus has 50 members from Midland and Odessa "with a good distribution of Republicans, Democrats and Independents. Our goal is to be multi-partisan," said Ms. Oatman.

Last year's projects included hosting several receptions for local candidates in Midland and Odessa. Another program featured Ann Richards, state treasurer, who conducted a training session on how to run for office.

Another meeting featured a panel discussion by Judge Barbara Culver of Midland and Judges Jan Fisher and Carol Glegg of Odessa.

"Indirectly, we had a hand in getting some of these newly-elected women to offices and into appointed positions locally. That's what we'll be looking at strongly this year — getting a number of women in elected and appointed offices," Ms. Oatman said.

She said the organization wants to set up a clearinghouse for qualified women. When an appointed office is open, that organization can turn to the Permian Basin Caucus for names of women who would be qualified and interested in serving.

In addition, the caucus will be publicizing the proposed change in garnishment of wages that will appear on the November ballot, she said.

She owned and operated a dry cleaning plant for a number of years before she became ill. Mrs. Wilson was the sister of the late Raleigh D. "Big" Lee, a former lontime constable for Midland. She was a life long member of the Baptist church.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Berma Jay Cummings of Redondo Beach, Calif.; a sister, Mrs. L.V. Panky of Midland; five grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Ranchers finally get federal aid

Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — From the withering rangelands of West Texas, where tumbleweeds splash through dried-up arroyos, ranchers calling for federal support finally got some relief Tuesday.

Officials with the U.S. Department of Agriculture notified the two Texas senators and Hunt Rep. Tom Loeffler that 20 drought-stricken counties, including Midland and Ector, have been declared disaster areas.

"It has been a long time coming," said Claiborn Crane, agriculture specialist for the Texas Office of State-Federal Relations. "They're already reducing cattle, sheep and goat herds out there because of lack of grass and feed."

Most counties submitted claims in early July. Midland County, where damage is estimated at $795,015, turned in its claims July 14.

From a billion-dollar fund, the Farmers Home Administration can make loans to alleviate an estimated $11.1 million in drought-related damages.

Ranchers who show dollar losses in rangeland, pastures or grazing areas of 30 percent or more, and an inability to get credit from other sources, are automatically eligible for emergency 8 percent loans, the FmHA announced.

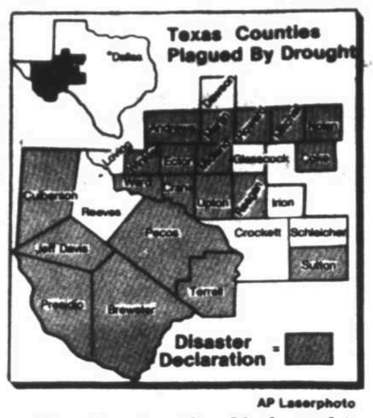

They can apply for the loans through their local FmHA agents.

Ranchers with those losses who can still get outside credit are also eligible for FmHA loans, at 13.75 percent interest, said Morris Monesson, deputy director of the FmHA emergency division.

"There's plenty of money ($1 billion), and we're not going to use it all," Monesson said.

The FmHA deferred a ruling on disaster assistance in connection with stunted cash crops, including cotton and sorghum grain, until after harvest in November.

Monesson said the FmHA had not approved any emergency feed provisions and has no plans to do so.

Map locates the 20 drought-stricken West Texas counties which have been approved for disaster relief by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"That program is inactive," he said.

As the drought continued through June and July, numerous ranchers contemplated selling their stock if they failed to gain emergency feed. In early August, Agriculture Secretary John Block turned down a request for emergency feed from Democratic Texas Gov. Mark White.

Although the emergency declaration grants ranchers a one-year exemption from taxes on drought-caused sales of cattle, sheep and goats, Monesson said there is no other livestock-directed aid.

"If they (ranchers) choose to sell their livestock, that's a management decision; there's no loss as far as we're concerned," he said.

Loeffler issued a short statement through his Washington office announcing the declaration, but was unavailable for comment later in the day.

Counties eligible for aid:

Andrews, Brewster, Coke, Crane, Culberson, Ector, Howard, Jeff Davis, Martin, Midland, Mitchell, Nolan, Pecos, Presidio, Reagan, Sutton, Terrell, Upton, Ward, Winkler.

Plant fined $1,530 in connection with accident deaths

LONGVIEW (AP) — Texas Utilities Generating Co. has been fined $1,530 in connection with an accident last month that killed one man and seriously injured another at the company's Martin Lake plant.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration on Tuesday ordered an $810 fine for not issuing fireproof clothing to the two men and a $720 fine because a section of metal flooring near where the men were working had been temporarily removed, causing one of them to fall 16 feet.

The company also has been charged with two safety violations, OSHA area director Charles Freeman said.

Mike Morris, 30, of Longview died from burns in the July 25 accident when hot gases escaped from a boiler at the plant 25 miles south of Longview. James Chambless, 19, of Henderson suffered second- and third-degree burns.

"The company denies any wrongdoing in connection with the accident, which is the subject of the citation," John Carlson, general manager of the plant, said in a prepared statement Tuesday.

Carlson said previously that Morris and Chambless were not wearing protective face masks at the time of the accident and that was why they were burned so badly.

But Freeman said Tuesday the men were wearing face shields but that they were inadequate.

"We are under no obligation to pay anything until we actually issue the bonds if and when we do it," Phillips said.

"It seems to me we're kind of putting the cart before the horse," Trustee Reagan Legg said.

"It's not too early to start our preliminary work," Phillips said.

"That's what I'm getting at," Legg said. "I don't think we've authorized any of this — why have that expense now?"

According to Phillips, there would be no expense until bonds were issued. Davis would advise them when to sell the bonds and work with bond rating companies.

"We've used Bob (Davis) on all of our other bond issues," Phillips said. "I recommend that he do the advisory work again. There will be additional costs at the appropriate time as far as getting the bond through the state and authorized."

Dr. David Norton, assistant to the president since Aug. 1, 1974, was recognized for his service to the college and the community with a resolution and plaque, presented by Kenneth Peeler, president of the board.

Norton's resignation is effective Aug. 31.

Trustees approved the promotion of Dr. Joe Blumentritt, MC chemistry and math instructor for 10 years, to chairman of the scientific studies division.

In other action, trustees accepted the resignations of Leon Taylor, machine technology instructor, and Julius Haye, data processing.

New appointments to the staff included Debbie Allmon, data processing; Dr. Elise Brinkley, Associate Degree of Nursing; Kathy Davenport, real estate; John Davidson, Emergency Medical Technician/fire science; Ann Doyle, office education; Bruce Elsom, data processing; Terry Gilmore, respiratory therapy; Clara King, CPA, accounting; Dr. Pamela Howell, English; Joe Williams, physical education/tennis; and Dr. Lynn Lalko, chemistry.

"He's got a bullet hole in his hat band. He thought he was a pretty mean actor (who) lived behind Koko Lounge" on East Front Avenue.

"But he found somebody who was tougher. He (Johnson) wasn't afraid of Mr. Rice."

Bruneman noted that there was "some bad blood between them...Had Johnson wanted to kill him, he had plenty of opportunity. He kind of bugged him a little bit, and that was his error."

The prosecutor noted that Rice held that "Johnson was running at him, cussing him and threatening to kill him" after Rice had honked. "It's tailored testimony," Bruneman charged.

"I believe there was trouble between them," Bruneman said. "Law enforcement for five years wouldn't do anything about it," he said. "The grand jury chose not to believe him (about Johnson alleging shooting at Rice)."

"He (Rice) was put down by Foy Johnson long enough," Bruneman said. "He was bad; he was tough. I suggest you send a message out to this bully that you can't get away with murder."

MISD 1981-1982 budget provided $2,701 per student, report says

AUSTIN — The Midland Independent School District's budget for the last school year provided $2,701 per student based on the 14,855 students reported in average daily attendance in 1981-82, according to figures released by the Texas Research League, a nonprofit educational corporation.

School budgets adopted for 1982-83 called for spending an average of $2,610 per student statewide.

MISD's tax levy was increased by 24.3 percent during the last school year, compared to a 14.8 percent increase for the average school district, the report stated.

The average shool property tax rate in 1981-82 was $0.531 per $100 of market value, the report says, noting the school tax on a property selling for $100,000 was $531 in an average district. The tax rate in Midland on market value was $0.609 in the district.

The school tax would be less if the property were owned by a senior citizen because of the various exemptions, the report notes.

Dead man at heart of suit

HOUSTON (AP) — Joseph D. Farrar died six months ago, but remains at the heart of a $2.45 million lawsuit he and his son filed in 1973 against state and county officials for closing a boarding school he operated for troubled teen-agers.

The lawsuit was dismissed, appealed and reinstated. The case came to trial this week before U.S. District Judge Robert O'Conor Jr., and a lawyer Tuesday began reading a deposition that Farrar gave in 1977 explaining events at Artesia Hall, the controversial Liberty County facility he operated.

Then-Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby toured Artesia Hall on June 22, 1973, to investigate reports of student abuse. A court ordered the closing later in the day, and the facility never reopened.

OC denied certification of criminal justice program

From staff and wire reports

AUSTIN — Odessa College has been denied permanent certification for its criminal justice program, the Texas Commission on Law Enforcement Standards has announced.

In denying OC's request for permanent certification, commissioners said no deficiencies were found in the college's basic 335-hour peace officer course planned for this fall.

Instead, according to commission Director Fred Toler, the denial was based on a feeling that certification of another police academy in the area would be a duplication of services.

Currently, law enforcement recruits receive their training at the Permian Basin Law Enforcement Academy at Midland Regional Airport.

The lack of permanent certification will not affect anyone taking the OC course, according to commission legal counsel Alfredo Villarreal, who said the college has received temporary certification for the course: "A person taking it will receive full credit that will be honored by any law enforcement agency."

Permanent certification "is just more prestigious," he added, and would have kept OC from having to seek certification on an ad hoc basis every time the school offers a law enforcement training program.

The 335-hour course is limited to 25 students and is geared primarily for persons who have no experience in law enforcement, according to school officials.

While this fall's program has a full contingent of students, the school plans to offer the course again next fall.

Police hunt CIC Finance robber

Police today continue to search for an armed robber who held up the CIC Finance Co. at 905 S. Main late Tuesday morning.

Employees said the man came in shortly before noon, brandished a chrome-plated automatic handgun and escaped with a watch, a ring and an undisclosed amount of cash.

He fled with another man in a two-door, white-over-red car. The bandit was described as black, about 5 feet, 10 inches tall and weighing 175 pounds. No description of the second man was available.

Big Spring Holiday Inn robbed

BIG SPRING — Approximately $360 was taken in the aggravated robbery of Holiday Inn at 2:58 a.m. today.

According to a police detective, a man walked in with shotgun in hand and demanded the money from the clerk. He was described as a Hispanic in his late 20s, five feet nine inches in height, weighing 160 pounds, with brown hair and wearing a blue jump suit and tennis shoes.

The man went out the front door and fled north on foot, said the detective.

Police also were looking for a light blue four-door Chevrolet possibly used in the robbery.

Phone company employee promoted

Jay Allen, Southwestern Bell's public relations manager, has accepted a departmental promotion with the company.

Allen left today to his new position in Tulsa, Okla. He came to Midland from Dallas in January 1981. In addition to his news media relations, community relations and employees information responsibilities for the Midland-Odess-Abilene areas, Allen also has been active in the community, including his work with the United Way.

Suit filed against FNB

An Abilene lawyer who alleges that The First National Bank of Midland charged usurious interest on $122,762 he had borrowed in May 1981 to buy a 1980 Rolls-Royce Camargue automobile in Midland has filed a $36,904.24 damage suit against the bank.

The lawyer, David L. Hooper, said he signed a promissory note for the loan, which he had secured at 1½ percent "above (the) prime" interest rate, which the bank was to determine "from time to time."

Hooper is charging that the bank's interest on the loan began at 21 percent in May 1981, peaked to 22 percent in July and September and dropped to 19 percent in February 1982, when he paid off the note.

He says that the "maximum rate" of interest allowed by state law was 18 percent.

Further, Hooper maintain that an asterisk (*) was in a blank space for interest rate on the promissory note when he signed it on May 12, 1981. Later, he said, the figure 21 appeared on the note.

Records in 142nd State District Court indicate that Hooper borrowed the money on an 180-day note, paid $12,913.55 in interest in December 1981, and in February 1982 paid the bank $128,300.57, which included $5,538.57 in interest.

In his petition, Hooper says he paid the bank $18,452.12 in interest and that the law on urury would allow him to collect in damages up to twice the amount of interest charged by the bank.

The Rolls-Royce was purchased from the John J. Schaler III Collection, court records indicate.

Californian romances elaborate

By The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — This is a day in the life of Serina Rockwell, a day that probably could happen only in Southern California, maybe only in Santa Barbara.

It began on a warm morning earlier this month when Serina got out of bed to answer the door. There on the front porch of her little frame house near a park stood John Clark, blond, tanned and smiling.

Serina was not surprised to see John. He works as a lifeguard on Santa Barbara's East Beach with her boyfriend, Bill Varney.

What surprised her was that John was wearing a three-piece suit and carrying a silver tray. On the tray was a champagne breakfast, complete with croissants and cantaloupe, compliments of her boyfriend, Bill.

So Serina ate breakfast in bed and then went to her job as a day camp counselor.

At about noon, a fellow employee asked Serina to accompany her on an errand to East Beach.

When she got there, she looked up into the bright blue summer sky to see a long banner streaming by. It was being pulled by a man, hundreds of feet above the ocean, who was hanging from a parachute tethered to a motorboat that was speeding through the water.

The banner said: "I Love Serina."

At the same time, 50 multicolored helium balloons rose into the air, released by boyfriend Bill from a passing truck.

Serina went back to work, finished her day and, at the invitation of a friend, stopped for a drink at a restaurant on Stearns Wharf near East Beach.

As she finished her drink, Serina looked up to see a man on a horse ride up to the foot of the pier.

Astride the horse, wearing a blue shirt and tie, gray trousers and cowboy boots, was the slender, tanned, handsome, mustachioed 24-year-old Bill.

He dropped to the ground, lifted his pretty blonde, green-eyed sweetheart onto the horse, climbed up behind her and rode off along the beach.

"I felt like a princess," Serina said.

"It was a white stallion," Bill said, "with black hooves."

(Actually, it was a gray gelding and it kept trying to buck the couple off its back, but why spoil the illusion?)

After about a mile, Bill halted the steed, helped Serina to the ground and ushered her into his car.

He drove to her house and presented birthday gifts: champagne, a black silk evening gown with lace trim, a box of soap and body oil, a pint of Swiss almond vanilla ice cream, a $5 certificate good at the Haagen-Dazs Ice Cream Shoppe (Serina has a weakness for ice cream) and a pair of ankle weights for exercising.

That night, Bill escorted Serina to dinner at an elegant restaurant on what is called the Riviera, overlooking the city and the harbor.

"Bill," Serina asked as the couple entered the restaurant hand-in-hand, "why are your palms so sweaty?"

She would soon know.

Bill's mind was not on his whitefish in wine sauce or on the Sauvignon Blanc. Serina, however, blissfully enjoyed her duckling in pepper sauce and was pleased when the waiter served ice cream for dessert.

But Serina's spoon hit something hard in the ice cream dish.

"Because we were eating by candlelight," Bill said, "she thought it was a bar of chocolate."

She was delighted. (Serina also has a weakness for chocolate.)

But it was was a clear plastic box, and when Serina opened it, a ring of gold and pearls plopped into her ice cream.

Bill fished it out, tried to wipe off the goo, dropped to one knee, slid the slippery ring onto Serina's finger and said:

"Serina Denise Rockwell, will you marry me?"

Tears streamed down Serina's cheeks as she sobbed:

"I'll think about it."

Bill then did what any red-blooded Southern California male would do:

"I groveled and begged."

And Serina said:

"Yes. I'd love to be your wife."

So when is the wedding?

"We're going to have it next June or July," Bill said. "Next summer, we're not sure."

What's the rush? After all, this is Southern California. This is Santa Barbara.

Man fascinated with shells

ELIZABETHTOWN, Pa. (AP) — It was in Canton, Ohio, hundreds of miles from the sea, that Jeff Brandyberry found his first sea shells.

His grandmother had returned from a trip to Florida bearing more shells than she cared to keep and Brandyberry, then 6, spotted them.

"They were just regular clam shells," he recalled 20 years later. "The unusual shape is pretty much what got me interested."

Now he scours scallop dumps in New England, harvests shells from the waters off the Florida Keys and corresponds with fellow collectors from Oman to California and from Argentina to India.

More than 250,000 shells, which he says are worth more than $100,000, are neatly and categorically arranged in his basement. One shell, an albino New England Neptune, is on display at the Smithsonian Institution.

"I got that one in Maine in July of 1961. It's one that no one had ever collected. That's my claim to fame," Brandyberry said.

"I'm working on a book. I have a photographer and publisher all lined up," he said.

DEAR ABBY

Book gives disabled access to world

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR READERS: In the United States alone, an estimated 36 million people have some kind of physical disability. The overwhelming majority of them are able to work and lead relatively normal lives. Yet until recently, only a small portion of them has ever attempted international travel — or even extended domestic travel — due to the lack of information.

There is now an excellent book containing a wealth of information for the physically disabled person who wants to travel: "Access to the World" by Louise Weiss.

It's for the wheelchair-bound (either temporarily or permanently); for those whose ability to talk has been impaired by neurological, cardiac or pulmonary disease; for those who have lost their sight, are aging or have any other condition that restricts mobility. This gem of a book covers all types of transportation — airplanes, ships, railroads, buses and automobiles. It lists hotels and motels that offer special accommodations for the handicapped all over the world — Ireland, Israel, Canada, Japan, Australia, Hawaii, Hong Kong, etc.

Whether one is interested in a cruise around the world or a gambling junket to Las Vegas, this book tells how to make travel arrangements, how to find out about special tours, what to take with you, what to do when you get there and provides important health and travel tips as well.

"Access to the World," a travel guide for the handicapped, can be obtained directly from: The Complete Traveller, 199 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y. 10016. The cost is $14.95 plus $2 for postage and handling. Every public library and rehabilitation facility should have one.

Plum muffins good

Muffins used to be sold by the muffin man who carried his tray and bell through the streets of English towns. The colonial settlers brought muffins to America and now these bready goodies are as ingrained in American tradition as in English. Muffins taste even better when you add spices, cheese and fruit to the batter. In fact, cooks are limited only by their imaginations when it comes to muffin making.

Gingered Plum Muffins are moist with fresh plums and spicy with ginger. They're fast enough to make on a weekday morning for breakfast and delicious enough to serve warm in a basket at a special Sunday brunch.

GINGERED PLUM MUFFINS

3 firm, ripe, fresh plums
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
¼ cup butter or margarine
¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 large eggs
2 tablespoons water

Pit and finely dice plums to measure 1 cup. Resift flour with baking powder, salt, soda and ginger. Cream butter well with sugar and vanilla. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Stir in half the flour mixture. Blend in plums, then remaining flour alternately with water. Spoon into 12 paper-lined muffin pans. Bake in center of 375 degree oven 20 to 25 minutes or until muffins test done. Serve warm or cool. Makes 12 muffins.

Gingered plum muffins are moist with fresh plums and spicy with ginger.

Chutney plum spicy

California leads the nation in plum production, accounting for 90 percent of the U. S. output of commercially grown plums. Almost all of the more than 120 plum varieties are Japanese; among the better known are the Santa Rosa, the Wickson, El Dorado and the green Kelsey plum.

A rare gourmet treat to make from the summer fruit is Spicy Chinese Plum Chutney, a versatile condiment for meats and rice.

CHINESE PLUM CHUTNEY

6 pounds fresh plums, quartered and pitted (16 cups)
1½ cups vinegar
1½ pounds light brown sugar, (4 cups packed)
1 pound granulated sugar (2⅓ cups)
¼ pound ginger root, chopped (2/3 cup)
2 tablespoons salt
¼ pound mustard seed (2/3 cup)
1 can (7 ounces) diced green chilis
2 jars (4 ounces each) red pimienos, diced
1 small onion, chopped
2 large cloves garlic, minced

Combine all ingredients in a large kettle. Gently simmer, uncovered, for 1 hour, stirring frequently until the sauce is thick as jam. Turn into hot clean jars; seal. Process in boiling water bath for 15 minutes. Cool. Makes approximately 14 half-pints.

BETTER BUSINESS

Smart shopping needed for soft water

By LINDA TRUITT

YUK! That is the reaction most people have when they taste West Texas water. It is understandable then why many people are persuaded to buy expensive water conditioning equipment when it is claimed the unit will produce water equivalent to bottled water. The truth is a water softener is not designed to purify water, so before you are conned study the facts.

Hard water, principally caused by invisible particles of dissolved calcium and magnesium, is present in over half the homes in the U.S. According to standards set by the government, very hard water is defined as water containing over 180 parts per million. Midland's water alone contains 285 ppm.

Water is "softened" by an appliance that removes sediment by filtration and invisible dissolved solids by a process called ion exchange. The ion exchange process substitutes sodium ions for the calcium and magnesium ions present in hard water, producing water containing less than 20 ppm.

The Better Business Bureau has seen water conditioning companies come and go. In the past, claims have been made by a few companies that could not be substantiated, therefore, use the following guidelines when shopping for water conditioning equipment:

1. You should be aware that no single type of water conditioning appliance will cure all water problems. A false claim is made by a salesman who promises the unit will remove the invisible dissolved solids and produce water equivalent to bottled water. Although there is a purifier available that uses reverse osmosis to remove the solids found in water, it affects only the water channeled through one faucet, usually water used in the kitchen. The surest way to have completely pure water is to buy a water distilling unit which is now available for home use.

2. If you are not sure you want to invest in equipment look for a company that will rent a water conditioning appliance or provide water conditioning service. Soft water service may be adequate for households with moderate water usage since the company merely hooks up a portable appliance to your water line and periodically replaces the unit with a recharged one. No electrical connection or drain is necessary. If you are considering renting a water conditioner, check to see if part of the rental cost will be applied toward purchase should you later decide to buy the appliance.

3. Since prices can vary dramatically from one company to another, shop around. If the company charges a flat fee that includes the appliance and installation you may be paying too much, particularly if your house is already plumbed for water conditioning equipment. The most reliable companies will send a qualified representative to review your situation, determine the costs and provide a written estimate.

4. Don't be pressured into buying by a fast-talking salesman. Many salesmen will try to close the sale by claiming you are getting a special price today but tomorrow the price will increase. Do your homework by gathering manufacturer's pamphlets, reading ads and consumer product testing magazines, and talking to friends and neighbors who use water conditioning equipment.

5. Find out about service after the sale by asking about warranties and the availability of parts. In the past, a few companies claimed the appliance had a lifetime warranty, but were not around a few months later to honor that warranty. Also, since salt must be added to the unit on a regular basis determine if the company provides that service and what it will cost.

6. Look for equipment that bears the Gold Seal of the Water Quality Association.

Water conditioning equipment can be considered an investment. Smaller quantities of soaps and detergents are needed, usually water systems last longer and water is more palatable. You can make a wise buying decision if you investigate before you invest.

Linda Truitt is president of the Better Business Bureau of the Permian Basin, Inc.

Japanese drink glacier's water

GIRWOOD, Alaska (AP) — Ponce de Leon, you looked in the wrong place.

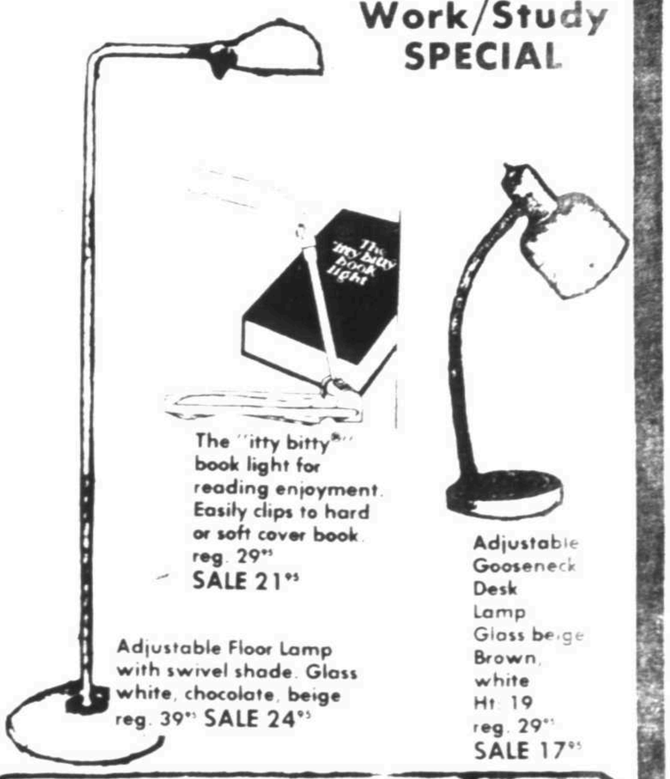

Some people believe you can achieve immortality not by drinking from a fountain, but by drinking water from a glacier near here.

According to Japanese folklore, drinking glacier ice water that is thousands of years old gives you eternal life. As a result, some Japanese tourists to Alaska drink the frigid water.

Skillet chicken

SUMMER SUPPER
Skillet Chicken

SKILLET CHICKEN

Rice and vegetables are good "stretchers."

1 cup brown rice
3¼-pound frying or roasting chicken, cut up
Salt and pepper
2 tablespoons butter
3 large ribs celery, sliced thin (1 cup)
4 large scallions, sliced thin (½ cup)
12-ounce can whole-kernel corn, drained

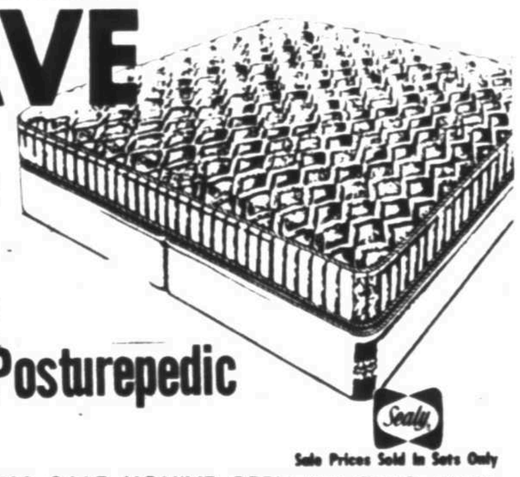

Cook rice according to package directions. Set aside, off heat, on the range. Season chicken with salt and pepper. In a 12-inch skillet, heat butter; add chicken and brown on both sides — 10 to 15 minutes. Cover tightly and cook over low heat, turning as necessary, until tender — about 20 minutes. Remove chicken and keep warm. Add celery to drippings in skillet; cook over low heat, stirring often, until wilted — about 10 minutes. Add scallions and stir until slightly wilted — a few minutes. Stir in rice and corn and heat; top with chicken. Makes 6 servings.

An Old-Fashioned Nectarine Pie is a traditional pie, which is good for occasions when only a classic will do.

Nectarine pie old-fashioned dessert

OLD-FASHIONED NECTARINE PIE

6 large fresh nectarines
⅓ cup flour
⅓ cup sugar
⅓ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
unbaked pastry for double crust, 9-inch pie
¼ cup butter or margarine

Slice nectarines to measure 1⅓ quarts. Combine flour, sugar, cinnamon, salt and lemon peel. Mix lightly with nectarines. Roll half of pastry and fit into 9-inch deep dish pie plate. Heap nectarine mixture into shell, mounding up in center; dot with butter. Roll remaining pastry for top crust and place over fruit; crimp edges to seal well. Cut 4 slits in top for steam to escape. Bake in 400 degree oven 45 minutes, until crust is brown and syrup boils with heavy bubbles that do not burst. Cool before cutting for best results. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Nectarine treats quick

SUMMER FRUIT KABOB

Place slices of fresh nectarines, peaches and plums on skewers. Brush lightly with a mixture of honey and soy sauce. Grill briefly. Serve with barbecued meat and poultry.

CONTINENTAL NECTARINE BREAKFAST

Top toasted and buttered English muffin halves with slices of fresh nectarines. Sprinkle with brown sugar and place under the broiler briefly.

NECTARINE MOONS

Melt chocolate chips and a little shortening in top of double boiler. Dip slices of fresh nectarines into chocolate and place waxed paper. Chill to harden chocolate.

FRUIT SHRIMP COCKTAIL

Halve and pit fresh nectarines. Mix together bay shrimp, chopped celery and enough cocktail sauce to moisten. Mound into center of each half.

NECTARINE-CHEESE APPETIZER

Set a whole wheel of brie in shallow pan and warm through on low heat in oven. Serve as an appetizer with sliced nectarines and bread or crackers.

Vegetarian recipes for all occasions

By DIANE SAVAGE
Copley News Service

Vegetarians are often confronted with such puzzling questions as: What can I serve instead of the traditional turkey for Thanksgiving or Christmas dinner? What can I cook on the grill at a barbecue? What wine is the appropriate accompaniment to an all-vegetarian meal?

The recently published American edition of Rose Elliot's "The Festive Vegetarian: Recipes and Menus for Every Occasion" answers these questions (and many more) with style. Written by one of England's most popular cookbook authors, it supplies plenty of ideas for what to serve on special occasions, be they holidays, dinner parties or summer picnics.

WALNUT PATE EN CROUTE

For the Flaky Pastry

1 cup chilled butter
⅓ cup ice-cold water
A few drops of lemon juice
2 cups whole-wheat flour

For the Nut Pate

2 tbsps. butter
1 large onion, peeled and chopped
1 stalk celery, finely chopped
2 large cloves garlic, peeled and crushed
1 cup ground walnuts
2½ cups ground cashews
1 cup chestnut puree
1 cup grated cheddar cheese
2 eggs
2 tbsps. brandy
½ tsp. paprika
½ tsp. dried thyme
Sea salt
Freshly ground black pepper
½ lb. mushrooms, washed
Beaten egg, for glaze

To make the pastry, make sure that the butter is really hard and the water s as cold as possible. It's a good idea to put the flour into a large bowl and chill that, too, if you can. One of the secrets of success with this pastry is to have everything, including your hands, as cool as possible.

Cut the butter into small pieces into the flour and mix lightly. Add the water and lemon juice and mix gently with a metal spoon to make a loose, lumpy dough.

Put the dough on a well-floured board and turn it once or twice in the flour. Then, using light strokes, roll it out into a long oblong. Fold the top third of the oblong down and the bottom third up so that you have three layers. Half turn the block of pastry and repeat this four times in all. Wrap the dough in wax paper and refrigerate at least two hours before using.

While the pastry is chilling, make the nut pate. Melt the butter in a medium-size saucepan and saute the onion and celery for 10 minutes, until soft but not browned. Remove from heat and stir in garlic, nuts, cheese, eggs, brandy, paprika, thyme amd salt and pepper seasoning to taste.

To assemble and finish the pate, preheat the oven to 425 F. Sprinkle a little flour on a pastry board and roll the fold of pastry into a rectangle about 12 by 16 inches. Spoon the pate in the center of the pastry and place the mushrooms on top. Brush the edges of the pastry with a little cold water, then fold them over to enclose the pate and mushrooms completely, but not too tightly, to allow for the pate to expand a little as it cooks. Place the pastry parcel seam side down on a baking dish, roll out the pastry trimmings and cut out some leaves to garnish the roll. Make one or two cuts or holes in the top to allow the seam to escape. Brush with beaten egg and bake in the top third of the oven for 30 minutes, then turn the heat down to 375 F, for a further 25 to 30 minutes. Serves 12.

Crab popular shellfish

By The Associated Press

America is a land of seafood lovers whose enthusiasm persists despite soaring costs.

For those with a full purse, this is the time for such delicacies of the deep as lobster, shrimp and crab.

Crabmeat is one of the most popular shellfish, with the blue crab of the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, the Dungeness of the Pacific and the Alaska king crab among the favorites.

The biggest of these is the Alaska king, which weighs from 10 to 20 pounds. Only the claws, legs and shoulders of these mammoths are edible.

One of the best-known crustaceans is the blue crab, which abounds in waters from Massachusetts to Texas. These are shallow-water creatures that live near the mouths of coastal rivers, bays and sounds.

These crabs are not actually blue, except for the tint on the claws. There is the mistaken belief that the blues and soft-shell crabs are separate species. The soft-shells are blue crabs that have "molted" or shed their shells, which they do more than a dozen times a year.

Soft-shells are so popular that in the Chesapeake Bay area of Virginia and Maryland, fishermen keep watch for blues about to molt. They then place them in special enclosures until the new shell hardens enough to withstand the rigors of shipping.

For those who get their seafood in the marketplace rather than fishing for it, soft-shells should be bought live and cleaned by your dealer as soon as you purchase them. After they are cooked, all parts of the cleaned crabs are edible, including the paper-thin shells.

STUFFED CRAB

6 medium soft-shell crabs, cleaned
Salt and pepper to taste
Paprika
12 wedges Muenster cheese
1 egg, beaten
½ cup bread crumbs
1 small can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Dry crabs, if you have run water over them. Season with salt, pepper and paprika. Lift up each side of crab and place 2 wedges of cheese inside. Dip into beaten egg, then into bread crumbs. Place crabs in a greased baking dish, pour tomato sauce mixed with Worcestershire over them, and bake in preheated 350-degree oven for 40 minutes.

These grilled Sweet Potato Mushroom Kabobs go well with grilled pork or beef.

Sweet potato mushroom kabobs tasty

1 large green pepper
8 oz. can sweet potatoes, drained, reserving liquid
8¼ oz. can pineapple chunks, drained, reserving liquid
3 oz. can mushroom crowns, drained, reserving liquid
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
2 teaspoons cornstarch

Cook green pepper until crisp, tender. Cut sweet potatoes into 1-inch chunks. In large bowl, combine reserved liquids with brown sugar and mustard. Add green pepper, sweet potatoes, pineapple and mushrooms; mix gently. Chill several hours or overnight.

Alternate vegetables and fruit on 6 skewers. In small saucepan, dissolve cornstarch in ¼ cup marinade. Stir in remaining marinade and heat until thickened, stirring constantly. Use to brush on kabobs while grilling.

Grill over medium coals 2 to 4 minutes on each side or until thoroughly heated. Serve with remaining marinade. Makes 6 servings.

Vegetables help stretch flounder

FLOUNDER PLUS
A goodly portion of vegetables stretch the fish.
½ cup diced (¼ inch) onion (1 medium)
½ cup diced (¼ inch) pared carrot (1 medium)
1 cup diced (¼ inch) celery (2 large ribs)
½ cup dry wine
10-ounce package frozen tiny green peas
1 pound fresh flounder fillets

In a 10-inch skillet simmer, covered, the onion, carrot and celery in the wine until tender-crisp. Add peas, breaking up as necessary. Top with fillets, overlapping if necessary. Cover and simmer until peas and fillets are just cooked through — 3 to 5 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

New milk safe, costly

UHT milk, a new product on the market, is as nutritious as regular milk, can keep fresh for three months without refrigeration and, when opened, can keep in the refrigerator for 15 to 21 days, according to "Family Circle."

UHT (Ultra-High Temperature) milk is processed at 280 F degrees and packed in five-layer aseptic cartons. Though it is safe and convenient, its cost — about 99¢ a quart compared to about 63¢ for regular milk — and its taste may not be so appealing.

In one blind taste test, seven out of 10 were able to tell UHT milk from regular milk and gave the UHT product low marks for taste.

Dish good for party

TOMATO CANNELLINI

Conveniently made ahead for a party.
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 medium onion, cut in thin strips
1 cup diced (¼ inch) celery
1-pound can whole tomatoes, undrained
6-ounce can tomato paste, undiluted
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ cup red wine vinegar
3¼-ounce jar capers, drained (generous ⅓ cup)
¼ cup pine nuts
Two 15-ounce cans white kidney beans (cannellini), drained and rinsed in cold water

In a large saucepan in the hot oil gently cook onion until transparent. Add celery, tomatoes and tomato paste and simmer for 15 minutes. Add sugar, vinegar, capers, pine nuts and beans; stir gently so as not to break up beans. Simmer to blend flavors — about 20 minutes. Cover and chill. Makes about 1 quart. Good as an accompaniment for cold sliced meats and deviled eggs. If you like, you may serve the Tomato Cannellini on salad greens.

Actress, singer plan 'working honeymoon'

NEW YORK (AP) — Movie princess Carrie Fisher and singer-songwriter Paul Simon planned a "working honeymoon" following their star-studded marriage in a ceremony in Simon's Manhattan apartment.

Simon and Miss Fisher, married in a traditional Jewish ceremony Tuesday, were to fly to Houston today, where the singer and his musical partner Art Garfunkel were scheduled to perform.

Lois Smith, a publicist for Miss Fisher, described the trip as a "working honeymoon."

Among the 109 guests at the wedding were actor Robin Williams and his wife, Valerie; singer Billy Joel and model Christie Brinkley; actress Penny Marshall; television producer Lorne Michaels; movie producers and directors George Lucas and Mike Nichols; composer and singer Randy Newman, and Garfunkel.

Miss Fisher's divorced parents, actress Debbie Reynolds and singer Eddie Fisher, also attended the wedding.

Miss Fisher's brother, Todd Fisher, told reporters the couple decided two weeks ago to get married after a five-year romance, but kept it secret to avoid "being hassled."

The two were wed in a double ring ceremony performed by Rabbi David Greenberg. Miss Fisher wore a white gown and a double strand of pearls and a white wreath in her hair. Simon wore a dark suit.

Among the gifts was a juke box loaded with 1950s records, a present from Joel.

Actress Terri Garr, who flew in from Paris for the affair, said "I wouldn't have missed it for the world."

Miss Fisher starred as Princess Leia in the "Star Wars" trilogy. Simon's career began in partnership with Garfunkel some 20 years ago. After they broke up the act about a decade ago, Simon and Garfunkel had moderately successful solo careers, and each did movies, before recently reuniting for a record and a concert tour.

Woman delivers her baby in car

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — A 26-year-old woman delivered her own baby daughter in the family car as it crossed a bridge over the Illinois River.

Marci Peterson Ford told doctors she didn't receive the proper warning signs before the birth Monday morning. She awoke at about 2:45 a.m. and told her husband they should rush to the hospital.

"It came so quick," Mrs. Ford said. "I didn't know what to do.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Pap smear not test for venereal disease

Dear Dr. Solomon: If a woman gets a Pap test once a year, can't she assume that she does not have a venereal disease? — Ms. A.I., Wichita, Kan.

Dear Ms. I.: A Pap smear does not show evidence of a sexually transmitted disease.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've been told that I'm allergic to grass and pollen and I've reluctantly given up outdoor gardening. But what about houseplants? Are they also a no-no for someone with an allergy? — Ruth, Queens, N.Y.

Dear Ruth: Most allergic patients seem to be able to tolerate their houseplants as long as the plants remain healthy and undisturbed. The results of a study by the University of Michigan Medical Center indicated that while indoor plants may harbor potential allergens, they generally do not constitute a major source of airborne fungus spores. However, repotting or disturbing the plants in some other fashion should be avoided.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've been trying to convince my husband that he should tell his doctor about his snoring. It's really become much worse during the past year. He treats it as a joke and says I should wear earplugs. I've heard that snoring is not a joke. Would you comment? — Mrs. W.G., New York City

Dear Mrs. G.: Snoring can be a symptom of a serious disorder that can have both physical and psychological ramifications. These may include sexual dysfunction, high blood pressure, intellectual impairment and excessive sleepiness while working or driving. It is not a laughing matter.

I consider snoring an important symptom

'The Great One' really comes through for his RALPH fans

Jackie Gleason

MIAMI (AP) — "The Great One," actor-comedian Jackie Gleason, will be sending one of his "great ones," a size 51 bus driver's uniform, to a fan club in New York.

The outfit is one he wore as Ralph Kramden on the 1950s TV show, "The Honeymooners."

The fan club, called RALPH, had bid $650 for such a uniform at an auction. Club co-president Peter Crescenti says the owner of the costume refused to part with it, claiming the club hadn't paid the $650 fast enough and that the uniform is worth much more, at least $5,000.

Crescenti says "I can see why they call him the Great One. He really came through." Gleason said he appreciates the support of the Long Island-based club with 200 members.

"I am sending you this absolutely genuine article," the 67-year-old Gleason wrote to the club. "I wish you all the best and thank you for your support. 'How sweet it is!' "

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The lyrics to country music singer Mel Tillis' newly released single say "She's a cowboy's dream, a vision in jeans." And Tillis figures he's found that dreamy vision in 20-year-old Playboy magazine playmate Kimberly McArthur.

Ms. McArthur posed recently with the 51-year-old Tillis for a promotional poster that MCA records put together to go with the song. And on Monday, Ms. McArthur, the former Miss January 1982, and Tillis wrapped up shooting a music video at a Nashville nightclub to go along with the disc.

Tillis has one concern, though. When the poster for "A Cowboy's Dream" was released, he reports, he ran into a nightmare at home. "My wife got mad at me, my mother-in-law got mad at me, my wife's aunt wasn't none too happy with me, and my dogs are looking at me bad and won't come when I call 'em no more," he recalls with a grin. And he wonders what the impact of the video production will be.

Ms. McArthur is taking voice lessons, and wants to be a country music singer someday.

Jimmy Conners

Patti Conners

MIAMI (AP) — It seems to be love all, again, for tennis star Jimmy Connors and wife Patti who have reconciled and are going on tour, accompanied by their 3-year-old son Brett.

The reconciliation was reported by Mrs. Connors' attorney, Daniel Neil Heller, who asked that a hearing in their divorce case set for Tuesday be canceled.

Mrs. Connors had filed for divorce in May.

"I am very optimistic and very hopeful and have every reason to think there will be a permanent reconciliation," said Heller.

The lawyer said he spoke to Mrs. Connors, a former Playboy magazine centerfold model, when she was in Cincinnati on Monday, and that she and Brett are traveling with the 30-year-old Connors to tennis tournaments.

"She said they are on their way to the U.S. Open," said the lawyer. "And then they are coming back to Miami."

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — Pop singer Frankie Avalon says there's no way he could pick a favorite among the beach blanket movies he made with former Mousketeer Annette Funicello.

"I don't know. They were all alike," the 42-year-old entertainer quipped. But he added, "The beach movies were too successful and made too much money for me to be unhappy about making them."

Avalon, best known for songs of the late '50s and early '60s, including "Venus," and films like "Beach Blanket Bingo," was given a gold plaque at a ceremony granting him honorary citizenship in this southern New Jersey community on Monday.

A native of nearby Philadelphia, the singer moved his parents here in 1961. About 200 people, mostly middle-age women, attended the ceremony at the Silver Palace Theater pizza parlor.

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Salvador Dali's works have gone on display in his hometown of Figueras, but the 79-year-old Spanish surrealist remained secluded at his castle home Pubol in the nearby hamlet of La Pera, where he has vowed to stay until his death.

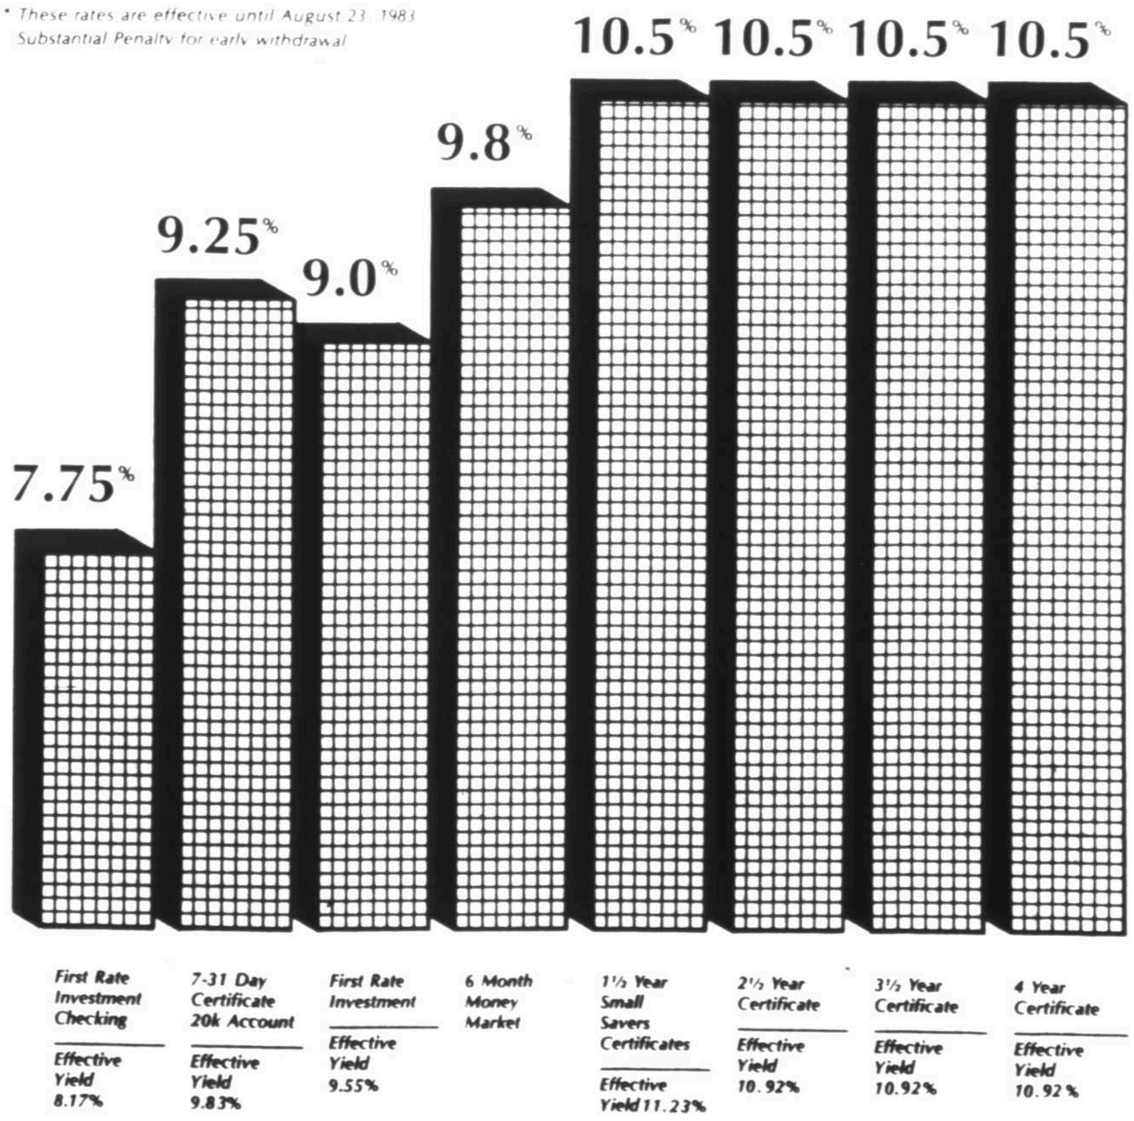

Doctors say the artist is suffering from Parkinson's disease and serious depression, which deepened following the death of his Russian-born wife, Gala, in June 1982.

An exhibit of 71 of the painter's works from 1923 to 1983, including 65 from his private collection, opened Tuesday at a museum bearing Dali's name.

Painter Antonio Pitxot, who spent the day at Pubol, said by telephone that Dali was "extremely lucid" but "did not have the necessary energy to submit himself to the crowd."

French troops deployed to protect Chad's leader

N'DJAMENA, Chad (AP) — French forces deployed at more outposts in eastern Chad today to help block a possible Libyan push towards the capital to oust President Hissene Habre and reinstate his predecessor, rebel leader Goukouni Oueddei.

Habre said Tuesday he would negotiate with Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy for withdrawal of Libyan forces. But the Chad president rejected what he claimed were Khadafy's political conditions, saying they were "tantamount to a Libyan annexation of Chad."

He said Khadafy demanded proclamation of an "Islamic Arab Republic," though at least half Chad's 5 million population is neither Moslem nor Arab; a special relationship between Libya and Chad, and Libyan army control of Chad's northern desert adjoining Libya.

Habre did not explain how Khadafy conveyed these conditions to him. The Libyan leader has consistently denied his forces are fighting in the former French colony.

French paratroopers moved forward today to two new outposts in eastern Chad — Biltine and Arada, located on the north-south road between Oum Chalouba and Abeche, 400 miles east-northeast of N'Djamena, the capital.

French forces, said by the French Defense Ministry to be on a "training mission," already were stationed at Abeche and Salal, 220 miles north of the capital.

French officials say the paratroopers will defend themselves if attacked, but not participate in offensive action. The French force now numbers more than 1,000 men, military sources said.

France's President Francois Mitterrand, anxious to defuse the dangerous confrontation between his and Khadafy's forces, sent his personal lawyer, Roland Dumas, on a mission to Tripoli to negotiate with the Libyan leader.

The Paris daily Le Monde said in an article Tuesday that Mitterrand feels Khadafy will negotiate if he really wants "to remove the American specter from his frontiers" — a reference by the newspaper to U.S. support of the Chadian government.

Le Monde said Mitterrand believes the rush of American aid to Habre has complicated the conflict. Le Monde said Mitterrand had received several letters from President Reagan in the last few weeks on Chad and was irritated by what he saw as efforts to pressure him.

Habre told a news conference the military situation has stabilized since Libyans and rebels seized the northern oasis of Faya-Largeau. He said all ground fighting and Libyan air attacks stopped Saturday "because it is necessary for the enemy and our own forces to reorganize."

Western military sources who claim they have access to intelligence information say there are an estimated 2,500 Libyan troops in and around Faya-Largeau.

They also contend that Khadafy is pouring in a big arsenal of sophisticated Soviet-made weapons, including T-62 tanks, heavy anti-tank and anti-aircraft weapons, rocket launchers and field artillery.

Though Habre said he was willing to negotiate with Khadafy, he said talks with Goukouni would be meaningless. He said Goukouni, a former president and one-time co-leader with him of a rebel movement in northern Chad, is a mercenary recruited by Khadafy for the invasion of Chad.

Habre thanked France for sending troops, in contrast to his earlier angry denunciations of the former colonial power for refusing his demands for assistance.

"But we demand that France does more — with the help of other countries — to put an end to the aggression which is a defiance of the conscience of the world community," he said.

"Other countries" presumably included the United States, which rejected his appeals for direct military intervention against Libya. But the Reagan administration is providing $25 million in military aid to Chad to counter what Washington calls Khadafy's aggression.

Ten African leaders who gathered in the Congo capital of Brazzaville indirectly supported Habre by calling on Chad's neighbors to "refrain from all interference on Chad territory," the Congo's official news agency said.

Approving the "Brazzaville Declaration" were the presidents of Angola, Sao Tome, the Congo, Ethiopia, Gabon, Cameroon, Equatorial Guinea, Rwanda, Burundi and the Central African Republic.

Enemies once fought side by side

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer

N'DJAMENA, Chad — The two mortal enemies who lead opposing forces in Chad's escalating civil war fought side-by-side for many years — with Libyan help — against successive French-sponsored governments in N'Djamena.

Hissene Habre, 41, self-proclaimed torch bearer of Western strategic interests in Africa, was the field commander of a Chadian guerrilla movement dedicated to wiping out "remnants of French imperialism" in this former colony of France.

Habre belongs to the nomadic tribe of the Toubous, meaning friends of the north. For thousands of years, its herdsmen have grazed their goats and camels in the wastelands of what is now the Chad-Libyan frontier.

Goukouni Oueddei, 34, is by birth paramount chief of the Toubous, although he never formally was installed in the post, known as Derdei.

Goukouni's father, the last Derdei, died several years ago in an oasis in southern Libya. Throughout the last years of his life, he sought to encourage Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy to expand Libya's borders southward to bring all the traditional Toubou grazing lands under a single sovereignty.

The young Goukouni joined Habre's guerrillas in northern Chad's Tibesti mountains in the 1960s. He served as the movement's tribal and religious leader while Habre was undisputed military commander.

On April 21, 1974, Habre led his guerrillas in a raid on a French army post in

Hissene Habre

Bardai, a desolate outpost in the heart of the Tibesti. About 20 of the defenders and civilian inhabitants were killed and a group of civilians, including French archaeologist Francoise Claustre, were kidnapped.

Habre later released all the hostages except Mrs. Claustre, who was held in the desert for nearly three years while Habre haggled with the French over his demand for a ransom of $10 million in weapons — with which to fight the French.

In 1975, the French sent an army major to Habre's camp to negotiate, but because he failed to bring the ransom, Habre had him tried as a spy and executed. The French public was incensed.

Early in 1977, Goukouni persuaded his tribal followers that Mrs. Claustre's long detention had become counterproductive. Habre disagreed, but was removed as commander by Goukouni's faction.

Goukouni immediately flew Mrs. Claustre to the Libyan capital of Tripoli and freed her, but not before having himself photographed with Khadafy in the Libyan ruler's office — with Mrs. Claustre sitting between them.

Habre, feeling shamed, never forgave Goukoni. He fled abroad with a few followers as his rival took over the movement.

French-backed President Felix Malloum later invited Habre to be his prime minister, believing that the former guerrilla commander would know best how to defeat Goukouni.

Habre accepted, but eventually broke with Malloum, who was ousted by Habre supporters in 1979. Political turmoil ensued, and Goukouni briefly became president with Habre as his prime minister. But during the period, armed followers of each man could be seen facing off, rifles cocked and pointed, outside the presidential palace.

The confrontations erupted into outright war. Goukouni invited Khadafy to occupy Chad in December 1980 to help him fight an "imperialist conspiracy."

Libyan troops held the Chad capital for a year, proclaiming a merger between Libya and Chad. Public burnings of Bibles and books printed in French and English were staged in N'Djamena's public square.

Reagan's aides push for Libya to pull out

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — As President Reagan vacations in seclusion on his mountaintop ranch, his aides are continuing to press Libya to "get out" of Chad and recognize its boundaries.

A senior Reagan administration official said Tuesday that the United States believes the Soviets are helping Libya "because the Soviets do have a lot of equipment there and their past history in dealing with the Libyan government is well-known."

The official, speaking on the condition that he not be identified by name, said the administration has "made our views plain to the Soviets.... They are perfectly aware of our feelings about Libya and certainly about Libyan involvement in Chad."

He said the United States, which supports the government of President Hissene Habre, "would encourage discussions among the parties involved rather than ... continuing hostilities there."

Habre has offered to negotiate with Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy for the withdrawal of Libyan forces from Chad, but has rejected all of Khadafy's political conditions.

Nkomo back with plan

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — Opposition leader Joshua Nkomo returned from five months' self-imposed exile with a political strategy — but said he would keep it secret until he could confront the government-dominated Parliament.

Nkomo, president of the Zimbabwe African People's Union, said Tuesday he would take his seat in today's session of the 100-member National Assembly and oppose government efforts to expel him.

He also said he would decide after the session whether to seek a meeting with Prime Minister Robert Mugabe to try to mend the rift between his party and Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Union.

Nkomo, saying his time as an exile in London was spent forming a plan, flew to Harare on Tuesday. But he gave no details of his strategy, saying only that it was time for his return.

Mugabe's party sponsored a motion for Nkomo's expulsion for missing 21 straight sessions of the assembly. The prime minister's party occupies 57 seats, but failed to get the 51 votes needed to expel Nkomo during two previous sessions because only 40 party members were present.

Indian scholars arrested

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Six writers and language scholars are under arrest in the southern city of Bangalore, accused of pulling the plug on the local television station to protest lack of programs in Kannada, the local language.

Police arrested the group Tuesday after they broke into an electric power station and cut off the supply to the transmitter, blacking out television for 70 minutes during coverage of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's appearance at India's 36th independence day celebration in New Delhi Monday.

The Bangalore station transmits programs in Hindi, English, Mavathi and Tamil, but not Kannada, one of India's numerous languages. Kannada is spoken by an estimated 22 million people.

Whalers' bones found

RED BAY, Newfoundland (AP) — Archaeologists working at Red Bay on the Labrador coast have found about 50 skeletons believed to be the remains of Basque whalers buried hundreds of years ago.

Excavation in the area will be extended a year because of the recent find, William Frost, assistant deputy minister of culture, said Tuesday.

He said the discovery was a major development in attempts to piece together the history of fishermen and whalers from northeastern Spain who came to the waters off Newfoundland as far back as the 1500s.

Laugher sent to prison

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — Nicholas Williams, 22, has been sent to prison for a week because he laughed in a Birmingham court.

When the magistrates asked him what was so funny, he answered: "I find some people's faces in this court very funny."

When told to apologize, Williams said: "You must be joking. I'm not going to apologize for laughing."

He was imprisoned Tuesday for contempt and the charge of criminal damage he was facing was adjourned for one week.

Bus, train fares hiked

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The government has authorized increases averaging 25 percent for bus and train fares and freight rates nationwide, despite critics who say the move will increase the already-soaring inflation rate.

A Department of Transportation decree published in Tuesday's Official Gazette authorized the increases for interurban bus fares, passenger railway fares, freight and trucking rates — as well as some transportation insurance rates.

Inflation last year touched 100 percent, up from 30 percent in 1981, when Mexico was hit by a severe recession caused by falling world prices for oil, and was caught with a huge $85 billion foreign debt to finance industrial development.

Belgian man sentenced

MOSCOW (AP) — A court in the north Caucuses has sentenced a Soviet-born Belgian to death by firing squad as a World War II criminal and rejected Belgian demands to free him, the state-run Tass news agency reported.

Yermak Lukianoff, 70, was sentenced by a military tribunal, Tass said Tuesday. It did not say when the sentence was passed, but Belgian officials have said it was July 8.

Tass called Lukianoff a Nazi collaborator who "personally supervised the extermination of Soviet citizens." Prosecutors have "45 volumes of evidence" against him, it said.

Lukianoff went to Belgium after the war and became a citizen in 1967. He visited the Soviet Union that year and again in 1968, when he was arrested.

Pageant planned

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Thirty-nine candidates have been chosen from 300 women who will compete Sept. 12 for the title of Miss Hungary, the first national beauty contest in the East bloc nation since the end of World War II.

Such competitions are rare in the Soviet bloc, where Communist officials have long condemned such events as signs of Western decadence. The finals of the first Miss Poland contest in 25 years are to be held in September.

In the Hungarian semifinal competitions last weekend, candidates paraded in bathing suits before a jury which based its findings on "health, sporting appearance, personal charm and graceful movement," the state-run news agency MTI said Tuesday.
