Valley Wealth—
Opportunity at Home—
The Blind Goddess—
Oil Activity—

THE Record News knows of no two projects more likely to result in benefit to Wichita county than those proposed at the Real Estate board luncheon Tuesday.

Realtors launched two movements, a survey of the acreage and products of the Wichita irrigated valley and a campaign to induce more people to "buy a piece of the valley."

WICHITA has long needed a comprehensive and accurate survey of the irrigated valley, and if Real Estate board members push their plans to completion, the information which they secure will be of unusual value.

Such a survey should produce some surprising information for residents of Wichita Falls, as well as for the country in general.

"BUY a piece of the Valley" is a good slogan, but would not be needed if residents of Northwest Texas were as well acquainted as they should be with the valley.

If Wichita Falls residents knew the possibilities of irrigation development in this section as well as many of those who daily are experimenting with its soil, proving its possibilities, and visioning its future, there would be a mad scramble for tracts of land, rather than a campaign to sell acreage.

Some day, and that day isn't far off, a great number of people are going to be telling about how "I could have bought all of that land I wanted at a third of the price a few years ago."

It has always been so in America, or at least since the Indians sold Manhattan and Long Island for a couple of blankets and a bottle of whiskey.

WICHITA county needs hundreds of small farmers, truck growers, fruit, dairy and poultry men who will develop on an intensive scale the fertile valley land, and take advantage of the possibilities of crop rotation which Wichita climate and water afford.

These inhabitants will come with time, and will develop their lands to many times the present value. In the meanwhile, there is golden opportunity for scores of city residents who would buy small tracts and develop them along such lines while carrying on daily occupations in the city of Wichita Falls.

The city resident with a small tract of land producing fruits, vegetables, butter, eggs and poultry, both for his own table and for market has two sources of income, and a double cinch on health and independence.

THOSE who do not often come into contact with the courts and their system of operation, must have received somewhat of a shock on finding that two innocent men can be tried and sentenced by a jury to two years in prison, only to be released a short time later on evidence which might never have been presented in court.

It sometimes happens, of course. In this instance, circumstantial evidence seemed to justify the verdict. It is contrary to the popular belief, however, that both the guilty and the inocent are usually freed.

We hear much of demands for swifter and surer conviction, but here is an instance where justice was served by delay.

Had not Judge E. A. Martin, ever cautious in his procedure and watchful of the rights of all, granted a new hearing to the two men, their release of new evidence collected by Sheriff W. G. Bralley might have been much longer delayed and complicated by legal technicalities.

THERE were 16,238 oil and gas well applications of all classes received by the state railroad commission during the first six months of this year. Of that number, 5341 were to drill, 1476 to shoot, 2109 to plug, 2221 producing, 2054 dry, 1856 plugged and 181 gas.

The total for June was slightly higher than for May, but much less than the other four months of the year.

In the year 1919 a Standard Oil geologist and scout declared there were petroleum prospects to be found in 148 of the 250 counties in Texas. He was a very modest man. Wildcatters are in evidence in 200 counties, and yet this is said to be the dull season of the year.

FOUL PLAY IN DEATH OF BOY

Body Found On Track Of Denver Line

CHANNING, July 12. (AP)—Belief that foul play and not a train accident, caused the death of a young man whose body was found Sunday afternoon on the Fort Worth and Denver right-of-way near here grew today in the minds of officers, as additional evidence to support it came to light.

The body was discovered by the conductor of northbound No. 7 as his train passed it Sunday afternoon. Examination of the body yesterday indicated, it was said, that gash on the head had been made after death and that the man had been dead at least 12 hours when found, despite the fact that crews on other trains passing Sunday did not see the body.

Papers in the pockets of the young man's clothing indicated his name was Ralph M. Davis. His address is undetermined. He was about 22 years old.

UTILITY HEAD SPEAKS HERE

W. C. Grant Tells Ad Club Of Services

Substantiating his argument that public utilities are as necessary to civilization as the air we breathe, W. C. Grant of Dallas, director of public relations for the Texas Utilities company addressed an enthusiastic gathering Tuesday, at the weekly meeting of the Advertising club.

Mr. Grant said that "the bread we eat is composed of flour ground with electric power and yeast cooked by electricity."

"When you get up in the morning," said Mr. Grant, "you eat toast cooked on an electric heater and drink coffee brewed in a coffee pot heated by electricity. And during the day every move you make is assisted in some way by electricity until the time you go to bed and push the electric switch to turn off the electric light."

Stressing the fact that utility companies must tell their story to the public which they serve, Mr. Grant declared that the best way of telling the story was by advertising in the newspapers.

During the meeting committees for the club during the coming year were appointed. Members of the committees are: Program and entertainment, Alva Wilgus, chairman; R. E. Shepherd, Don Moss; membership, P. B. Roberts, chairman; Ray Hanks, Paul Colvert; finance, Lester Jones, chairman, T. C. Scott and A. E. Kelly; convention, W. S. Abbott.

Optimist Delegates Return Home After Telling Denver of Wichita

At all times in the limelight at the Optimist Club International convention which came to an end Saturday night in Denver, the Wichita Falls club received as much of the light as could possibly be thrown on one club, according to members of the Wichita Falls club who returned Tuesday.

During the convention Bert King was selected as one of five international directors and Joel McGregor walked off with second money in the "best program" contest. Solon Featherston was honored with places on two committees and was selected as chairman of one.

"Dolled up" in sombrerro hats, the Wichitans became the "talk of the town" and obtained considerable space in Denver newspapers with their singing activities on streets and hotel lobbies.

Ed Hall of Oklahoma City, who was backed by the Wichita Falls delegation for president of the international justified the backing of the Texans and was elected.

Eleven members of the Wichita Falls club attended the convention. Some returned home Tuesday and the balance will stay a few days in Colorado "investigating the trout streams."

Those who returned home Tuesday were: Judge B. D. Sartin, Floyd Friberg, Solon Featherston, Jim Hanks and Bert King.

Posses Search Bush For Negro

to Fort Worth in an effort to arrest the second negro wanted in connection with the Terrell killing Sunday.

Belief here was that the negro, who escaped when his companion, Willie Robinson, was shot and captured early today, would lie in hiding during the day and would attempt to get out of dangerous territory Tuesday night.

County Attorney Elbert Hooper, Denton, said Tuesday night that a special session of the Denton county grand jury would be summoned Thursday morning to investigate the slaying of Terrell and that if the negro held at Dallas is indicted a special term of court probably would be called to try him.

Murder Charges Filed.

Charges of murder were filed against Robinson today by Hooper before Justice of the Peace Mathews in Denton.

Robinson stated in his confession to Hooper that he was the same negro who called at the Terrell home Sunday afternoon seeking work. After Terrell and his wife left for church Robinson and his companion entered the house through a window and ransacked each room, according to the negro's statement. When they heard the Terrell automobile returning they left by the window through which they had entered.

While Robinson ran toward a wood pile, his companion went to the rear of the house, uttered an exclamation and fired upon Terrell, later followed up the attack by hitting the farmer over the head with a four pound piece of concrete the confession said, according to Hooper.

A short time was spent in a hay stack 300 yards from the house where officers Monday found shoes, a deck of cards and a portion of cake left by the blacks and the negroes then ran across the Tarrant county line into a patch of Johnson grass where they hid all Monday without food or water.

Try to Hop Train.

Robinson told Hooper that when he and his companion entered the farm house there was no thought of murder in their minds but that they were hungry and in search of food. He could offer no explantion of why Terrell was shot.

100 MEN BEAT BUSH FOR NEGRO SUSPECT.

DENTON, July 12. (AP)—While all roads and railroads leading from the vicinity of the Blue Mound crossing of the Santa Fe railroad were being patrolled Tuesday night a posse of nearly 100 men was beating the bushes in search of the companion of Willie Robinson, negro, held in Dallas on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of J. C. Terrell, farmer, near Justin Sunday.

If the Denton county grand jury which is to be called into session Thursday, returns a true bill against Robinson the district court likely will be called to try the negro at once, County Attorney Hooper said Tuesday night.

The negro being sought Tuesday night is one whom Robinson claims was with him when Tellerr was slain. He also told police that his companion fired the shots which killed the Denton farmer.

Dodge Four Causes Stir On "Motor Row"

Addition of a new line of four-cylinder motors by the Dodge Brothers that will have a high rate of speed, a low price and the traditional quality of dependability is the latest talk in motor row, this information being confirmed by Bob Cornelison, manager of McFall Brothers, local dealers for the line of cars. The dodge Brothers will produce a four that will prove a strong contender against any in its class, according to Mr. Cornelison, but insofar as specifications of the car or the date of delivery are concerned no definite statement may be made now.

Information received by McFall Brothers from the factory is that the Dodge Brothers expect to produce the fastest four-cylinder car in America. In addition to the high speed and low price level, the car is to be the most economical in operation, it is stated. In the past the Dodge Brothers motor car has not stressed speed, being content to stipulate that "it is ample." If the new addition to the line measures up to the traditional qualities of the established cars, McFall Brothers expect to have a strong selling card. Price is not mentioned yet.

The new car, it is stated, will have distinct body lines and their design will mark a new departure from the motor cars now produced.

COURT CLEARS TWO SUSPECTS

Convicted of Burglary Two Men Win Liberty

Hitting the road for their Oklahoma home, Hoyt Taylor and Frank Elmore, who Monday night stood in the shadow of the penitentiary but were free men Tuesday when Judge P. A. Martin, in the 89th district court, dismissed charges of burglary against them, probably wondered at the tricky cards the hand of fate can deal out in the game of life, as they shook the dust of Wichita county roads from their feet, walking to Oklahoma.

Immediately after the charges were dismissed by Judge Martin, the two men set out on foot for their home in Oklahoma after advising jail officials that "when the sun goes down tonight in Wichita county it'll take a dollars' worth of postage stamps for a letter to reach us, where'll we'll me."

Shoes as Evidence.

Two pairs of shoes were the main factors in the circumstantial evidence presented to the court which resulted in Taylor and Elmore being convicted and sentenced to two years each in the penitentiary for a crime which they did not commit.

They were brought to trial on charges of burglarizing the Nehi Bottling works. Circumstantial evidence pointed toward their guilt. Foot prints tallying with the shoes worn by the men on the night of the robbery were discovered outside of the bottling works building.

The jury was convinced of their guilt and it only took a short time for the conviction verdict to be returned.

Judge Martin's policy was justified when Sheriff W. G. Bralley uncovered an alleged knob knocking ring the latter part of last week. Members of the ring are said to have acknowledged implication in the robbery of the Nehi Bottling works and to have absolved Taylor and Elmore of all blame.

When the facts of the case were presented Tuesday morning to Judge Martin by Sam Spence, assistant district attorney, the charges were dismissed.

They Deny Charge.

When arraigned Taylor and Elmore asserted that they were not in Wichita Falls at the time of the robbery and declared they could furnish witnesses to show that they were in Oklahoma.

After their conviction, one witness testified during a hearing on a motion for a new trial that Taylor and Elmore were in Oklahoma on the day of the robbery and that it would have been impossible for them to have been in Wichita Falls.

On the strength of the testimony, Judge Martin granted new trials and the hearings were set for Tuesday morning.

NEW SEES HIS DREAM TRUE

Air Mail Service Pays Own Way Now

WASHINGTON, July 12. (AP)—Harry S. New is writing "finis" to a chapter of his life that has meant much to him, for the air mail which he helped nurture from a nestling to a full fledged flying eagle is being turned out "on its own."

Experts who have watched the progress of American aircraft building and flying, accord the services headed by the postmaster general much of the credit for bringing commercial aviation to its present position. Nine years of quiet pioneering and trail blazing by the air mail has shown the way to many a laggard.

Praise For Pilots

To the spirit of the pilots and the operating personnel of the air mail a great deal of the praise must go for overcoming the difficulties the science of commercial aviation has encountered. The postoffice department was the first to operate an air mail service in the United States over specificiem routes on regular schedule and the first service in the world to operate over lighted airways at night either on regular schedule or otherwise. It also was first to undertake and successfully accomplish a regular schedule for flying by day and by night in all kinds of weather, winter or summer.

Development of the American air mail lines, which now constitute a net work of 7340 miles covering the entire country and which were described as "the envy of Europe" by Charles A. Lindbergh, has not been an easy problem. The government, through the postoffice department, has spent about $17,000,000. The lives of 33 pilots have been sacrificed. The service has not paid for itself but it never was intended that it should.

To Better Service

Postmaster General New points out that the prime idea was first to supply a highly desirable service of an industry capable of engaging successfully in commercial aviation and to build the planes and equipment necessary to that end. That aim, he considers, has been accomplished.

In turning over to private enterprise soon the last of the government operated air mail lines, that between New York and Chicago the government goes out of the air mail transportation business. The first experimental line was opened May 15, 1918, between New York and Washington, using army biplanes and pilots. Its operation was taken over by the postoffice department August 12, 1918.

Millions of Families Depend on Dr. Caldwell's Prescription

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

TWO PICTURES

I saw across a field today
Wild strawberries aglow,
But memory pictured there instead
A day of long ago.
I saw a curly-headed child,
Sunbonneted in blue,
And through the basket on her arm
Wild strawberries peeped through.

I saw a dear form welcome her,
And then that mother made,
With sunshine on the table there,
Wild berry marmalade.

Two pictures lie in every scene—
The real one that we see,
And like a half-remembered dream,
The sweeter—Memory.

don't fool yourself

It makes you unpopular

No matter how charming you may be, or how fond of you your friends are, you can't expect them to put up with Halitosis (unpleasant breath) forever. Don't fool yourself that you are always free from halitosis. Few people escape it.

Since you yourself cannot tell whether you offend this way, the wisest thing to do is to use Listerine, the safe antiseptic, before any engagement with nice people.

1/3 Had Halitosis
200 dentists declare that about every third patient is frequently halitoxic—and further declare they have been forced to use Listerine in self-defense.
Face to face evidence

Better keep a bottle handy in home and office, so that you may always be sure. Send for our free book of etiquette. Address Lambert Pharmacal Co., Dept. G-2, 2101 Locust St., St. Louis, Mo.

If Boys Can't See You Then Try Career, Advises Expert On Women

If You're a Drug on Dance Market, If You've Tried Different Sets of Boys and None of Them Sees Your Charms, Then Concentrate Entirely on a Career.

What is a poor girl to do who has no attraction for men?

I get hundreds and hundreds of hundreds of letters from young women who write me that they are pretty and intelligent, that they dress well and dance well, are jolly and amiable, and, so far as they can see, carry just as good a line of attractions as the other girls of their sets. But the boys do not flock around these other girls like bees around a honeypot, while they never have a single date with which to bless themselves.

And these forlorn, neglected maidens ask what they shall do in order to make themselves popular with the boys. Alas, no one can unriddle their riddle for them, for no one has ever yet been wise enough to discover what mystery lies at the heart of a woman's appeal to a man nor has human ingenuity ever devised any synthetic feminine charms that will work.

You cannot say to a girl: If you want to be admired by men you must be beautiful, or you must be a good sport, or you must be clinging and helpless, or you must be vivacious and entertaining, or even that you must suffer yourself to be kissed and petted. For she may be a headliner in any of these things and yet have never a beau. Or she may fail to qualify in any of these attractions and yet be besieged by the shieks.

Nor does it avail for a girl to study the technique of the popular girl and attempt to adapt it to her own needs. The copycat always falls between the stools. The quiet, demure, little girl who tries to imitate some gay and audacious girl who does outrageous things and gets away with it only makes herself loud and vulgar. The plain, sesible girl who tries to roll her eyes as some pretty little flapper does merely looks as ridiculous as a dying calf. The big girl who tries to snuggle is no more allurring than a love-sick elephant.

So it all comes back in the end to the stark fact that if nature didn't endow a woman at birth with what Elinor Glyn calls "it," she just hasn't got it. That's all there is to it, and there is nothing she can do about it.

She may break her neck trying to please men and they wont even notice that she is making an effort to signal them down. She may run her feet off chasing men and they will always outsprint her. She may feed them and entertain them and they will eat her food and dance with some other girl at her parties. She may make herself everything that men ought to admire and they won't cast a second glance in her direction. She may fit herself to make an ideal wife, but she will never get a chance to be one.

Let no one undervalue the tragedy it is to a girl to lack attraction for men. It is hard when you are young and filled with the joy of living to be shut out from the pleasures of the other girls of your age because, for some mysterious reason that you are powerless to help, you have no lure for the masculine sex. It is bitter hard to sit at home on an evening bearing your parents company or go out on ghastly twosomes with another girl when the other girls have gone on gay parties with their steadies.

No man standing amidst the wreck of his hopes apd ambitions ever knows a moment of more acute humiliation than does the girl who is a wall flower at a ball and who knows that every man who dances with her has been coerced into doing it by his hostess and that he will drop her the first moment that he can unload her on some other man who is trying his best to dodge her.

What then can the girl do whom boys never date up of their own volition, whose partners have to be conscripted for her at dances and who knows herself an undesired addition to any party she wishes herself upon?

Before succumbing to the inevitable she might give herself one more chance by making a change in her environment.

Men are like sheep where women are concerned. They follow their leader. They admire the girl that other boys admire. They fight for dates with the girl that all the other chaps want to take out. They want to dance with the girl where other fellows cut in before they have had half a turn around the room.

So it happens that the girl who hath beaux has other beaux given to her even more abundantly while the girl who hath few has her one poor little date taken away from her. Also, sometimes the boys at home are so familiar with a girl's attractiveness that they don't realize it. They are too close to her to get any perspective on her charms.

Many a girl who is a social failure at home is a success abroad. Many a girl whom the boys on Main street couldn't see, strange men behold with admiration, as is witnessed by the number of girls who marry away from home.

If, however, a girl finds that after threshing different water no fish rises to her bait, then she saves herself mortification and wear and tear on soul and body if she just accepts the situation, gives up the struggle to attract men and fills her life with other interests.

And the world is so full of such a number of things besides dates that no girl nowadays need feel that life is cinders, ashes and dust if she isn't popular with men. She can concentrate on her career.

Any girl who puts as much study and thought and effort and real heart interest in trying to please a boss as she does in trying to vamp some little cake-eater will find herself shinning up the ladder of success at a rate that will amaze her. She can give herself more pleasures and indulgences than any steady is likely to be able to give her and she can have all the men friends she wants, for there are no women that men like better than the women who have ceased to pursue them.

Undoubtedly the girl who yearns to be admired by men who find cold comfort to be told that charm is a gift of nature and not to be acquired by art or study, but it is the sad truth.

When a woman finds herself uninteresting to men the wisest thing she can do is to interest herself in something else.

MODISH MITZI Paging the Goofer By JAY V. JAY

Mitzi bought a lot of underwear in Paris. In fact, every time Mitzi didn't know what else to do, she went out and bought more lingerie. This chemise shows how good the excuse was—a chemise of peach colored crepe de chine with lace bands for fitted yoke and bassiere. Somehow the fashionable new lingerie is so frilly and feminine that one can't resist it. This gown of pleated chiffon with its wide sash and bertha collar, the separate panties of lace and pleated crepe de chine . . . Mitzi didn't realize how much she had bought. No, not even when she had to pay duty on it! This is an evening chemise with silver straps that follow the line of a V-necked evening dress. The garment is of apricot chiffon trimmed with ecru lace. The maid holds a chiffon step-in trimmed with embroidery. It does seem to Mitzi that something should be done about it, and as she sits here comfortably clad in a glove silk step-in with a fitted waist, trimmed with colored piping, she is thinking that certainly this frilly lace-trimmed underwear is most suited to a trousseau.

WAREHOUSE PERMIT

Permit to erect a sheet iron warehouse at 101 Henrietta street was granted Ed Sprajel, owner and manager of the Sproles Motor Freight lines of this city, Tuesday at the city clerk's office. The warehouse will measure 34x50 feet, be one story in height and cost approximately $1500, it was learned.

Two small shopkeepers in London's poorest district have offered to give ground ponies to golf, tennis or cricket clubs that will agree to provide the animals with homes for life, and permit the present owners to visit them occasionally.

For damaging an army officer's clothing to the extent of $1250 because he owed money to her mother, a 16-year-old girl was recently banned from London by the police.

SUIT ATTACKS PAVING PLAN

Injunction Asked to Halt Assessment

Petition for an injunction to restrain the city of Wichita Falls from levying an assessment on property for paving purposes was filed Tuesday by M. G. Cotter in the 78th district court, Judge W. W. Cook presiding.

The petition, prepared by W. H. Sanford, attorney for the plaintiff, sets out that the city is preparing to levy an assessment for the paving of a section of Fourth street in front of Mr. Cotter's property.

The plaintiff contends that the assessment will be more than an increase in the value of the property due to the paving.

Hearing on the petition for injunction was set for Saturday morning by Judge Cook.

Democracy Must Be Saved

CONGRESSMAN Tom Connally of Marlin appeared before the former service men on the second day of the Texas American Legion Convention in the City of Houston. He said that members of the American Legion had saved democracy for the world, "and now you must save it for yourselves. It must be saved from radicalism and reaction. It must be saved from the tyranny of a Lenine and the despotism of a Mussolini—only the people themselves can save it and contest former soldiers can render valiant service."

Lenine is dead. His Soviet Republic is said to be tottering and nearing its fall. Mussolini is seated on the apex of the Roman world empire. He came 100 years too late. Yet the advice of Tom Connally is sane. Democracy should be saved from radicalism and reaction. And the reactionaries are just as great a menace as the radicals.

Col. Alvin M. Ousley was another speaker. Col. Owsley refused to discuss politics. He said it would be out of place. Congressman Connally refused to discuss politics. He knew it would be out of place.

Governor Dan Moody did not overlook the Legion Convention. Nor the meeting of the State Bar Association. Col. Owsley was Over There. Congressman Connally was Over There. In fact Connally was a buck private in the Spanish-American war and a Captain in the World War.

Governor Moody is said to have played his best to get Over There, but peace came with the signing of the Armistice and it was all off. Owsley would like to be a senator. Connally would like to be a senator. Some men say that Moody would like to be a senator.

All the Texas would knows that Earle B. Mayfield hopes to continue to be a senator for six years to come. There is another Owsley who would like to be a senator. He has been one of the old guard and of and for the old guard for many years. He was a newspaper editor and publisher for many years.

He has been identified with the organized farmer movement for many years. He has made more speeches for farm relief than any ten men in Texas. He has studied farm economies under the flags of many lands. From a reading of the press dispatches it does not appear that former Governor Oscar B. Colquitt attended the American Legion convention or the convention of the Texas Bar Association.

Colquitt admits that he would like to be a senator. There will be a special session of the legislature in the coming month of September. There will be campaign in August for and against the four constitutional amendments.

In the near future the political pot will begin to boil in Texas and the warriors and their henchmen will be out on the fieldpdag will be out on the firing line.

Will it be the same old bunk, the same old dry rot issues, the same appeals to the prejudices of voters or will live issues, those of an economic nature, be discussed by intelligent men in the campaigning to come in the near future?

Levine Has His Nerve

CHARLES A. LEVINE intends to fly back to New York as soon as he can find a French pilot to go with him. He made the flight from New York to Berlin as the companion of Clarence Chamberlin. Having tasted blood, he dearly loves the game and prefers a sky craft to an ocean palace on his return journey.

Charles A. Levine is said to be the possessor of a fortune of $5,000,000. He made it in America. He must have sand in his craw or he would not have stolen away from his family as the companion of Clarence Chamberlin on his wonderful non-stop journey.

Now to show it wasn't an accident, this American millionaire who was born in Poland, is going to tempt the fates a second time. He may win a dip and a resting place in Davy Jones' locker.

It Happened in Tennessee

AND now a State Senator in Tennessee admits that he has been offered bribes of $2500 on two occasions by members of the Tennesse legislature. Well, he didn't take it. What's he crying about? He didn't name the tempters at the proper time. What is he squealing about? It is best to strike while the iron is hot.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By BURTON RASCOE.

NEW YORK, July 12. (EFS)—Street vendors on Broadway have always been numerous. Their latest article offered for sale is another of those simple, cheap devices, the attraction of which is in the skill of the manipulator, not in the article itself. The thing is a harlequin doll made of paper honeycombed. Its legs, arms and trunk expand from less than an inch to some three feet with the slightest pressure.

The manipulator sets a suitcase on the sidewalk and opens the lid. To the top of this he attaches a thread which is virtually invisible when in use. He then runs the thread through the top of the doll's head (two dolls, in fact) and twines the end of the thread around his fingers.

He then stands some 10 feet away from the suitcase, and by simply holding his hand behind his back and twitching the thread, the dolls appear to dance of their own accord. The thing is done most cleverly and people stand and watch for hours without discovering what makes the dolls move. They sell for 10 cents apiece.

On the package are briefly stated directions how to manipulate the thing. But how is one to get a thread as invisible as these gentlemen use, even after having bought the doll?

The Warner Brothers, motion picture producers, are at present the foremost display showmen in the city. Within the past week they have opened two pictures with a deal more of fuss than the pictures deserved.

They were, "Old San Francisco" at Warners' and "The First Auto" at the Colony. In each case there were large and powerful violet-tinged spotlights mounted on trucks in front of the theaters, making a glare that attracted attention all along Broadway.

Every few minutes, even during the intermission, flashlights would boom. Just what pictures of this ordinary audience were wanted for I cannot imagine.

Men who work in the makeup rooms of morning tabloid newspapers are getting a little tired of these transatlantic flyers who are hopping off at 4 o'clock in the morning. These newspapers send their last edition to press at 1:30 a. m., and so, when the report comes in at 1, that a plane is to hop off at 4, it means that the paper must wait for two or three hours to get the story of the actual departure. This means overtime for the men.

In the elevator of a tabloid I overheard two compositors grumbling about the start of Byrd on Wednesday morning. "If another guy leaves at 4 a. m. again I'm going to quit. Why can't they be decent and leave at a reasonable hour?"

At one of the famous night clubs there is staged the ultra-ultra of revealing shows. The last point in feminine nudity has been reached. The girls march out costumed in shawls—Spanish shawls. At the climax of the dance they open these shawls, revealing their bodies entirely nude. Underneath the shawls they wear not so much as a single bead.

At the same club, the man who puts on the show, also announces over the radio. One of his favorite speeches over the air concerns the purity, the modesty and the loveliness of the chorus girls at the club. The radio audiences are regaled with stories of how the simple virtue of these "little girls" often put to shame the advances of ribald male customers who patronize the place to secure victims for their lust. While this applesauce is being broadcast, the customers are falling out of their chairs with ironic laughter.

In case anyone wants to know what has become of Charlotte Mills, the daughter of Mrs. Mills of the notorious Hall-Mills murder, my sleuths inform me that Miss Mills is working on the New York Daily Mirror. She conducts a department called the "Dog Exchange." Readers send in offers of various dogs to persons who will give the animals good homes. The Mirror publishes pictures of the dogs with captions like, "Who will give this little fellow a bone?" or "Towser is looking for a good mama?" The reader who sends in the most appealing application gets the mutt.

It will be remembered that Charlotte Mills reported for the Graphic the second trial that resulted from the murder of her mother. That was her first newspaper experience.

* * *

A reporter who had been working on one of the tabloid newspapers had the borrowing habit worse than is common with reporters. Moreover, while most reporters are borrowers but scrupulous about paying back, this reporter never paid back at all. He borrowed so frequently and from so many persons on the staff that he was finally discharged because of this.

He went to other newspapers looking for a job and explained that he had resigned from the tabloid because in working for it he was "losing prestige among his friends."

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:

Phillip Wynne Tracy IV has had a childish engagement with Natlee Jones. Becoming interested in Lyra Hilliard, an old friend of his mother, he falls in love with her. Natlee, overhearing him making love to Lyra, breaks her engagement. It all comes to nothing, however, because America enters the war.

Phil is one of the first to enlist. Just before leaving for France, he meets Natlee again and they plan to be married. The immediate departure of the troops, however, prevents this. The regiment is sent to the front soon after arriving in France, and Phil is wounded, receiving the croix de guerre for bravery.

While in Paris he comes face to face with his mother, who has come to France to hunt him. She is accompanied by Major Aukland, who is devoted to her.

Mrs. Tracy learns that Phil intends to marry Pat, a rich French divorcee. She refuses to give her consent to the marriage.

Phil compromises with his mother. If she will refuse Major Auklands proposal of marriage, he will give up Pat for two years. She agrees and they take passage for America.

Mrs. Tracy invites Natlee to their home the first morning after their return. Phil is somewhat upset by the change in Natlee. She is apparently frivolous in manner and dress and he is jealous of Jerry Kenyon, who has paid ardent attention to Natlee.

Natlee makes the excuse that she has some errands to do, and leaves the house hurriedly. Phil follows her to her car.

Here the story further unfolds—

CHAPTER LIV.

Off With the Old Love

"Are you talking to me or at me, Wynne Tracy?" asked Natlee Jones, throwing up her head in her characteristic way and looking Phillip straight in the face.

Her eyes were now dry, bright and hard. "Whichever way you're speaking, I'll tell the cock-eyed world I do not intend to tune in my radio on your station. Good morning."

Quickly the car smashed into gear, almost knocking Phil down as the fenders came within an inch of hitting him, and its sudden speed pulled his hand off the door where Natlee was sitting.

As Phillip returned to his mother, he fell back into his blase mood. Everything was all blah again. One by one he had noticed that his expected thrills had been only the veriest commonplaces. His arrival in New York had given him nothing. His old home had only evoked a sadness, for it brought back memories of Rod—and Natlee! Natlee seemed to be the greatest disappointment of all.

True, she might develop into something that would prove amusing, but at the present moment he seemed decades older than she. Her ideas and conversation were something that might become a bore.

"Was Natlee having trouble with her car?" Mrs. Tracy asked serenely.

"I think, Mum, she was having more trouble with herself. I think she was weeping a little. She said she missed Rod greatly.

"That makes me think, the car she was driving was much like the one you gave me so long ago. I wonder if by any circumstances she might have purchased it. I think I'll go around and see if they've sold it."

Phillip kissed his mother and left the room sedately. The moment he was out of sight of the house, however, he unconsciously quickened his pace. To find out who had bought his blue roadster seemed to him the most important thing in the world at present. He wanted to get his hands on the wheel of it again.

At the salesroom he was told it was bought by Mr. Jerome Kenyon, and he took the information almost as a personal insult. That fate should parcel out one of his most cherished possessions to his rival while he was away tramaping through the rain and mud of France, was a joke he didn't like.

Fortunately, there was a smart model of an English car of the same color on the floor. He bought it then and there, but his heart sank as he wrote the check. The contrast between his feelings as he gave orders to have the much better car sent around to his house and his memory of that day when he and Natlee went driving up the street at 65 miles an hour in the one his mother gave him, was too great.

This was just another car. The other was pure, unadulterated joy.

He had just gotten to the door of the salesroom when he met Jerome Kenyon face to face.

"Hello, Phil. Trying to buy back your car? I'll sell it to you if you wish."

"Tranks, Jerry. I've just bought another."

"Oh, new car?—and a new affair with Mrs. Hilliard? Wish you luck. She's had lots of practice while you've been away."

Kenyon staggered, then recovering himself, he rushed toward Phil.

Instead of answering, Jerry planted a blow under Phillip's ear, "Take that, damn you."

Phillip's fist again connected with Jerry's face.

At that moment they were separated by some of the salesmen on the floor. The blood was trickling from Jerry Kenyon's mouth. Coughing, he tried to raise his left hand to wipe it off. He spot opt two teeth.

"Let me go," begged Kenyon. "Let me get at him."

"All right, boys, let him go," said Phil. "He hasn't got enough yet. He evidently is not as tired of fighting as I am."

"You go to hell, Tracy, and take Mrs. Hilliard with you."

Phillip almost broke away from the men who were holding him, but at last he consented to calm down. With a derisive smile, he opened the door and walked to the curb, where he signaled a taxi and ordered the chauffeur to drive to his home.

He felt very weak and cursed himself for it. There was a sickly, sweetish taste in his mouth.

He pressed his handkerchief to his mounth and it came away flecked with bright pink. "Damn that old wound," he said, as he wiped his lips.

At the sight of the blood on his handkerchief, Phil shrugged his shoulders. "Oh, go to hell with it. What's the use of worrying anyway. If I'm going to pass out—" Phil sat back in the corner of the taxi and made up his mind to get as much out of this dreary old world as possible and let the future take care of itself.

When he arrived at his home Nonnie met him at the door. She told him that his mother was out and gave him his meal. Hurriedly shuffling through the envelopes he dropped all but one on the table. This one had the postmark "Paris" on it. He hastily tore it open. It was from Pat.

"I know this letter to you will come as very much of a surprise. When I went to Switzerland, I thought my heart was breaking, but when you get this note, I want you to know that happy I will be. I told my mother when I left that she could arrange a marriage between Monsieur Gaston Le Page and myself.

"I came down to Le Harve to tell you this, but did not get there in time, and besides, I wanted to clasp your hand once more before we parted forever. Poor me! I only saw your face and it looked happy.

"Monsieur Le Page is very good looking, very rich, and two years older than myself. It will be a convenient marriage and everybody is most delighted with it.

"Tell Madame, your mother, that she need not fear Pat any more.

"I hope you are very well and that the little Natlee has welocmed you with open arms, for after all, Phillip, a young American girl would have a better chance of keeping your vagrant heart, than "PAT.

P. S.: Cherie has been grieving much for you. She has just asked me who I was writing to, and when I told her, she inquired, "Is he never going to stay all night in my papa's room again?" Fortunately, M. L. Page was not present to hear that awkward question.

"I am putting this postscript in, dear Phillip, so that you may read the end of my letter with a smile, as I did, when I wrote it."

GREEN CORN FOR CONSTIPATION

Those who are persistently troubled with constipation will find green corn to be of great help in overcoming this disorder of civilization which is so responsible for creating disease. The intestines of those who are constipated are usually bloated entirely out of their normal shape and, consequently, a large amount of bulky foods must be used in order to properly fill the intestines so that normal peristalsis will be promoted. Bran is often recommended for this purpose, but there is grave danger of the bran being too scratchy and thus further irritating the intestines. It is apparent that colitis is often caused from using too much bran in an effort to cure constipation. Green corn contains a large amount of soft, pliable cellulose which is only partially digested in the intestines, but has even more value because of this fact, as it supplies bulk which is filling but not irritating.

Green corn contains a much larger proportion of mineral salts than that found in cornmeal or in dried field corn. Its potassium alone is four times the amount in ordinary corn flour. Green corn is listed as a starchy food but, when young, the starch seldom reaches a percentage of one-fifth of the total bulk. Whole cornmeal is 68 per cent starch, while the ordinary bolted cornmeal is 10 per cent higher than this in starch. Green corn, being something under 20 per cent starch, gives us a barbohydrate food which is very palatable, yet does not burden the system with excess starch.

It is quite safe for anyone troubled with constipation to use corn on the cob once a day during the summertime, always combining the corn with some of the green vegetables, such as spinach, asparagus and string beans. Add also a salad vegetable, as celery or young carrots. Avoid acid fruits near the "corn" meal, including tomatoes, which are really an acid fruit. The average person can thus use three or four small ears of corn at a meal, with none but the most beneficial results.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Sixteen writes: "You have helped me before, and I sincerely hope you will help me again. Please advise me what I can do for flat feet and a large stomach."

ANSWER: Reduce the size of the abdomen by cutting down your food supply and taking the "setting-up" exercises twice daily. At the same time, use the exercises I recommend for correcting fallen arches: Stand barefoot, with both feet on a large book and try to grasp the edge of the book with your toes. Also, while taking your daily walks try walking pigeon-toed about half the time.

QUESTION: Barbara writes: "In Your Saturday menus you always give "raw" cabbage, but I never see "cooked" cabbage. I thought cooked cabbage a good non-starchy vegetable."

ANSWER: Cooked cabbage is a great gas producer, and even though it contains many valuable minerals, it should not be used if any of the "good" greens, such as spinach, asparagus, string beans, or squash can be secured. Excessive gas pressure is the common cause of so many functional disorders in the stomach and intestine that all gas-forming food should be avoided.

QUESTION: V. G. writes: "Will you please tell me at what age a child should be allowed to have meat?"

ANSWER: At the age of two years the child may be given finely minced lean beef, mutton, chicken or rabbit, in combination with as much as desired of the non-starchy vegetables at the evening meal. And remember, no milk with this meal.

DOES PETTING WIN LOVE? By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HER BROTHER GIVES HER ADVICE.

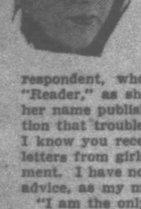
HER CHUM'S MOTHER SAYS THE SAME THING.

HE'S GLAD SHE WAS "DIFFERENT."

Charming Refusal Wins and Holds Real Friends

By Beatrice Fairfax,
An Authority on the Problems of Love and Marriage.

AS I write there are literally hundreds of letters before me, all of which I long to print. But this is impossible. So I shall choose a representative letter on a much-discussed subject, which seems to be troubling girls today more than any other phase of social life.



"Dear Miss Fairfax," writes my correspondent, whom I shall call "Reader," as she does not wish her name published. "The question that troubles me is petting. I know you receive innumerable letters from girls in my predicament. I have no one to go to for advice, as my mother is dead.

"I am the only one of a group of five girls who does not pet with every young man she meets. I am eighteen.

"I am no prude and I like nice, lively times. I can dance very well and am fond of sports. But I cannot see why a young man should expect a girl to accept his advances, and why, if she does not permit his mauling, she is no longer anything to bother with.

"Young men always speak to me and joke a little. But when it comes to taking a girl out they choose girls who pet. They take them to movies, dances and theatres. Everyone has a good time it seems, and the girls get what every girl wants—popularity.

"I have talked this matter over with the mothers of some of my girl friends. They claim petting is unnecessary—that they never did it. But now I am inclined to believe there is not a girl and young man who go out together who do not pet.

"I have two brothers and we are confidential friends. They tell me they do not think much of a girl who smokes and necks. I even overhear them ridiculing girls for necking. Still they take these girls out.

"The elder of the two is keeping steady company. Soon I am to meet his girl. From the way he speaks of her, which is different from his talk of any other girl, she must be a peach. He speaks almost reverently of her—just the way I want some young man to talk of me. I do want to have purity when I meet the man who loves me, if that time ever comes.

"My brother says a man who is looking for something 'different' will take a girl who has not necked and petted and smoked. Yet when I asked him whether his girl went with anyone else before she met him, he replied he wouldn't want her if she hadn't.

"So what is to be done! I am beginning to wonder whether petting can't be indulged in moderately without losing self-respect and causing gossip. Whatever I do, I want to do what is right. I'd even be an old maid for the right if necessary. Still, that thought doesn't seem cheerful.

"I intend to cultivate the acquaintance of my brother's girl friend and learn the secret of her success. I have never met a girl who doesn't pet.

"I am not bad-looking. Worse-looking girls than I, with poor dispositions, succeed where I fail.

"Do you think it is permissible to kiss a young man you have met about four times? I thank you for your help and will eagerly await your reply.

"A READER."

The question of the good-night kiss is one each girl must decide for herself according to all the circumstances and the dictates of her own conscience. But do not be afraid to say "No"—you will not lose one real friend that way. And say "No" good-humoredly and light-heartedly.

You may miss a few gay times by your refusal to neck with every young man you know, my dear. But I can assure you, there are any number of truly popular girls who do not pet promiscuously. They are interesting, entertaining girls, friendly and attractive.

Are you sure that you are not just a little solemn and fearful and ill at ease with young men for fear you will fail to achieve popularity with them? Your anxiety will make them uncomfortable and they will avoid you in that case.

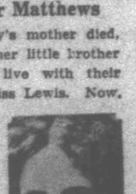
I feel sure you will hear some interesting practical suggestions from your brother's "steady" friend. I agree with you it would be preferable to be an old maid rather than deliberately cheapen and degrade yourself. But that won't be necessary. Make yourself as dainty and attractive as you can. Be sympathetic and friendly. Don't worry about whether you are making a hit, but try to be interested in those you are with, not yourself. Listen well and talk lightly and brightly. Continue staunchly to live up to those fine ideals of yours. Seek your social life where the finest type of girl and men are to be found if you wish to make the right kind of friends.

One of these days you will find that some worth-while young man finds you the dearest, friendliest pal in the world and the Only Girl who can make him happy as his loved sweetheart and wife. Then won't you be glad you waited and refused to compromise with your own convictions of right and honor?

Will Your Child Waste the Months of His Vacation?

By L. Lamar Matthews

WHEN Mary's mother died, she and her little brother went to live with their father's sister, Miss Lewis. Now, one would suppose that the children's father would at least supply the means of support for his own offspring, but he just isn't that sort of man. He sent small sums to his sister for a while, and then he took unto himself a young wife and apparently forgot all about his son and daughter. So that's that.



L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

Miss Lewis is a professional woman and her income is limited. So when the necessity of maintaining a household faced her she talked the matter over with her young niece and this is what they decided.

Mary would keep house for her aunt, her little brother and herself, and at the end of the week, Miss Lewis would give her the money that would otherwise go to a maid.

That supplies the girl's spending money and saves her the humiliation of utter dependence. But above all it is giving her the kind of training that makes a fine, useful woman.

Going to high school and keeping house, too, was not an easy task; but Mary managed it.

And now that the vacation days have come, she has enough to do to save her from being bored and restless.

Across the street from the Lewis household lives the Reynolds family—mother, father, a son in grammar school and a daughter of high school age.

The father slaves all day every day, and worries many nights over ways and means of meeting his obligations. The mother also keeps busy.

But there is nothing for the children to do. A woman comes in every day to clean the house, and a man does the odd jobs around the place when he is needed.

Naturally, the boy and girl are lazy and troublesome.

It is perfectly true that young people as a rule hate to work. But that is no reason why they should be allowed to spend their days in idleness.

In every town there are scores of boys and girls who will do nothing worth-while the whole Summer long. And most of them will find something to do that they should not do.

A small percentage of young people attend vacation school. Another small percentage go to Summer camps. A few find employment during the vacation months. But that still leaves a great army of adolescent youth with nothing to do for three long months.

Parents will do well to give the matter serious consideration and to find some sort of occupation that will keep their children interested and busy. For, verily, idleness is the curse of youth.

Youngsters need activity. They need some outlet for their pent-up energies and emotions. And profitable work is a wonderfully effective remedy for what ails them.

New Recipes for Vegetables

By Hannah Wing

WHETHER or not you or your family really like vegetables they must be eaten. Variety in cooking and sauces or combinations which more or less "sugar coat" the idea of vegetables will do much to increase their popularity.

Spinach, for instance, when it's not complained of as "sandy" is as bitterly opposed as "mushy." Of course it should never be either of these things but to overcome prejudices a mushroom sauce is a very good disguise with which to present it.

Spinach with Mushrooms.

Wash one pound of spinach. Remove the root. Be sure to free each leaf of sand. Drop this into one cup boiling water which has been salted. Cook ten minutes. Lift from the water. Drain and chop. Serve with mushroom sauce as follows:

Cook, but do not brown ¼ pound mushrooms in 1 tablespoon butter. Add 1 pint rich milk. Blend one large tablespoon butter with 2 large tablespoons flour. Add to the milk and cook eight minutes. This should be prepared while the spinach is cooking so that the whole dish is finished in ten minutes.

Apple with cabbage serves to offset the perhaps too definite flavor of this highly desirable vegetable.

Heat 3 cups water. Chop enough cabbage to fill 3 cups. Chop fine unpeeled apple. Add the apple and cabbage to the boiling water. Boil rapidly five minutes. Add 1 tablespoon butter, salt and 1 rounding teaspoon paprika. Add 1 cup thin cream and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Cook five minutes longer and serve.

Even potatoes as the Spanish eat them may be welcomed, for the variety they lend to the unwelcome sameness of this literal-minded vegetable.

One tablespoon minced onion, 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper, 2 tablespoons chopped pimento, 4 tablespoons oil, 2 cups cold cooked potatoes sliced, ½ cup cold cooked ham chopped, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon paprika.

Fry the onion and pimento in the fat until light brown, add the diced potatoes, the chopped ham and seasonings and cook until thoroughly heated through.

Eggplant baked with pineapple has all the advantages and none of the disadvantages of both of these foods.

Cut a long eggplant in half crosswise. Hollow out the center, fill with chopped pineapple, sprinkle with butter, salt and pepper and bake in a moderate oven for forty minutes.

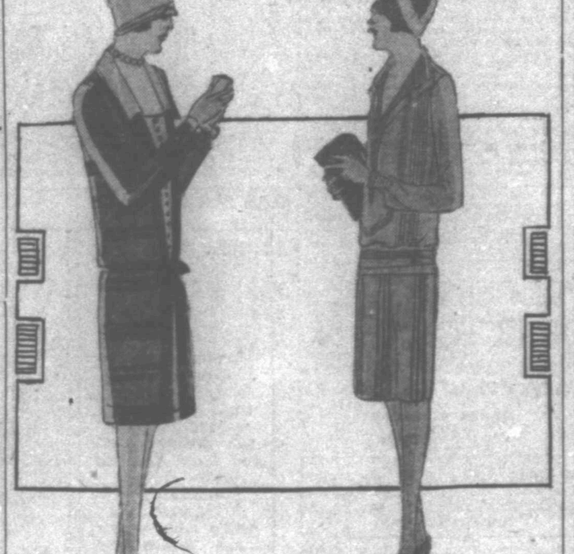
Household Hints

To Roast Meat in a Saucepan.

Take a small joint of mutton, beef, veal or pork (one or two pounds), and put it in the saucepan with two or three ounces of dripping. Place some peeled potatoes round the meat, cook over a moderate flame for about thirty-five to forty minutes, baste the joint with dripping every little while, and turn the potatoes as they brown.

Summer Afternoon Frocks

—Republished by Special Arrangement with Good Housekeeping—



AN ideal dress for Summer is this georgette coat dress of navy blue or black. It has a crepe de Chine slip of the same color while the collar and cuffs are of beige crepe de Chine. There are double tucks in front of the blouse and all around the skirt and the dress opens all the way down the front.

The second frock is of cool cotton voile. It has a sash which ties in back, the blouse is hemstiched and tucked. Glass buttons and a collar, cuffs and vestee of contrasting color, form the trimming. It would be particularly pretty in gray and French blue, navy and bisque, of bisque and a lighter shade.

Frocks of this type are ideal for wear about the house during the warm weather. They launder easily and always look cool and fresh. If you have marketing to do, if you have errands to run for your household, these are the things to wear.

Then, when your household tasks are done and you are ready to dress for dinner, you can slip out of them, take your bath, get into a more elaborate frock and be ready for the evening. You will save any amount of wear and tear on your more expensive clothes by wearing this kind of dress during the heat of the day.

Starvation for Child Who Won't Eat

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.,
Former President of the American Medical Association.

HAS your child what the doctors call anorexia? In other words, does he refuse to eat? If so, the condition may be serious and, of itself, call for professional advice.

Half the children taken by mothers to the child specialist are suffering from it.

Anorexia is not a disease but a symptom, and often a very difficult one to account for.

Anorexic children fall roughly into two classes—those who are well-nourished, well-colored and fat, in whom the reason is purely psychological, and those whose weight is normal or subnormal but whose color is either only fair or poor. It is the latter type of cases who really have something the matter with them.

The first class, the psychological cases, are by far the more difficult to deal with. They are nearly always children one or both of whose parents are nervous, hysterical, self-willed, introspective, phobic, egotistical, or present some other abnormal mental characteristic. They are very often "only" children, and their parents do not want any more. They have not, as a rule, refused to suck when infants. But the beginning of anorexia could be dated from an attack of colic. They, as a consequence, have generally been weaned much too early. The mother weaned them because she conveniently persuaded herself that her milk was poor and found some physician foolish enough to back her up. Thus, in infancy, was laid a foundation of doubt, fear and numerous kinds of artificial pacification. The child consequently grew up in an environment of cajolery, promises, threats, smacks, hugs, pinches, scoldings, pettings, pats, kisses and all the paraphernalia and performances of hysterical incompetence, besides continual disharmony and wrangling between the parent and possibly between them and the nurse—or most probably a series of nurses. The air the child breathed, says Lowenberg (Journal of the American Medical Association), was full of "don't," "stop," "you mustn't," "you must," "you can't," "if you do I will," "if you don't I will not," and it naturally regarded its caretaker from the first as a monumental liar. Its belief in rewards and punishments, either here or in the hereafter, became a myth.

Constant supervision and attempts to suppress its personality, shuttlecocking it back and forth, soon bring out the child's own love of power and its own innate stubbornness.

Thus is soon developed what Dr. Hugh Cameron calls "negativism." The negativistic child is the one who will do nothing that is asked to do—will not sleep, will not move its bowels, or empty its bladder, except in bed, will not eat—without exacting its price, without exerting its power and without creating a scene. The mother is distracted. She soon distracts the doctor, if he is weak enough to let her. Every food suggested is monotonously refused by the child or is promptly vomited. Drugs are useless because they can no more be given than food. Many of these children are still kept on the bottle up to six years old. They will drink as much milk as they are given but will refuse anything else, and generally manage to thrive perfectly on it.

The way to manage these children is to leave them alone. Give them nothing to eat till they ask for it. Then give them what they ought to have and let them eat it or go without. Hunger in such cases is a good doctor. A little starvation is a good persuader and will do no physical harm. As a rule the sooner it is tried the better.

In these cases it is a good plan sometimes to let the natural law of self-preservation have its own sway.

—By Aline Michaelis—

THROUGH the ages since first Earth went flying down the limitless regions of space, day by day have its wonders unfolded for man's quickening thought to embrace; day by day has it opened new vistas, laid new paths for his progress to trace. Yet, in viewing the marvels around him, he still finds folks greatest of all, of such infinite fabric and pattern that their charm and allure never pall. Day by day on his way they are marching, weak and strong, good and bad, great and small. But the best folks are fashioned of sunshine, breathing ever the message of mirth; they are bearers of hope and promise and their lives form the gladness of earth. There are folks of all kinds and conditions, men of folly and others profound, but the folks who are fashioned of sunshine are the ones who keep Earth spinning round!

Folly's Daughter

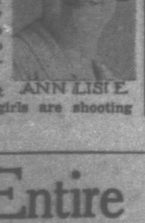
A Thrilling New Mystery of New York Night Life

By Ann Lisle

Mac Gives Orders to Roy

THE woman who wrote "Juicy Jottings" decided that a bird in the hand was worth two in any bush and incorporated in her column an ugly bit which read:

"The opening of the new Shannon Hotel brought out society and its debutantes and sub-debutantes. It also brought out a few sub-cellars and sub-rosas. I have told you about the really smart folk who turned out to honor the handsome young grayhead at whom all the girls are shooting their most provocative smiles. Now let me add that Roy Scarlett and Bonnie Clair were right out in the open where handsome husbands of gorgeous girls like Viv Scarlett are beginning to come so daringly. One gathers that Vivian was away visiting country cousins or presiding at some of the charity affairs in which she is so deeply interested. But it seems to me that the wife of a gay young dog like Roy should watch her property. Leaving a charming man lying around loose would be bad enough in any city. But in our own dear Manhattan, when Bonnie Clair is on the loose, wives beware!"



ANN LISLE

The woman, who doesn't appear again in our chronicle, was so pleased with that paragraph that she decided not to write another about Sam Kerby and his unknown blonde. She thought it might detract from the smartness of her column to mention a mere theatrical producer! And she was sure it would counteract her air of being in the know to mention a negligible blonde whose face didn't carry its own advertising and personal card of introduction with it.

Mrs. Sam Kerby, up in Maine, read the Juicy Jottings and told her maid, Liz Tilden, that men were getting awful nowadays and that if Mr. K. tried any such funny business as trailing one of his floosies around in public she'd show him a trick or two. But Vivian Scarlett, devoting her heart and soul and all her money to finding a refuge for a pathetic old woman who perhaps deserved very little from her, had no time to read smutty weeklies and the opinions of tawdry news scavengers. Bonnie Clair bought a copy of the magazine, marked the item and sent it to Roy Scarlett with the comment:

"Look who's here. Us among the stars. Come on down to my apartment tonight and I'll cook you a nifty little meal privately and discuss ways and means of keeping out of the public eye."

Viv was away. Roy had nothing to do. The meal was good. Bonnie was alluring. She flattered him. She gave him something to do in a hot city where he was hanging around nervously hoping that the Shannon account would be his.

On Friday MacNeil Shannon sent for him.

"The publicity on our opening wasn't well done," he said crisply. "No class. I gave our advertising to an agency my dad thought well of. The publicity went out under the supervision of my secretary and a press agent she hired. The things didn't dove-tail. I'm wondering if you couldn't work out both. I'll have you meet Mrs. Moore. If you can work with the old lady the contract is yours. She's as faithful as they come. She's a devoted mother to a nice young sap who may some day develop the guts she thinks he's got—bless her! If you can smooth her down and work out some decent stuff with her the job is yours."

Roy liked Mrs. Moore on sight. Her prim, Plymouth Rock honesty, her intelligence, her quietness and determination amused him. They were qualities he loved in a fellow-worker, not in a wife. Mrs. Moore, whose idolized only son was a colorless young shadow of his sturdy mother, liked Roy's primness and trimness in a fellow worker, though she despised them in a son. So, Mac's secretary and Roy Scarlett worked away till midnight on Friday, and by noon on Saturday their campaign was begun.

When Mac Shannon went down to Connecticut for a week-end at two, Roy had lunched with his new boss and was in possession of a letter of agreement as binding as a contract. He was to do the Shannon publicity and advertising at a monthly salary in four figures. His budget for the year had been agreed on as a hundred thousand, minimum. He felt that the whole Shannon chain would soon be his. Instead of conducting his agency with vast dignity and on a shoe-string, he was about to be president of one of the biggest advertising concerns in the U. S. A. He would soon be a millionaire.

"By the way," Mac said as Roy was drivin to the station with him in a taxi, in which some final details were discussed, "Don't get yourself any undesirable publicity, Roy. I like everyone connected with my hotels to have a good name—and a name for being conservative. I saw you the opening night with that dancing girl named Clair. Next time you come to the Shannon bring Mrs Scarlett. Eh?"

"Sure!" said Roy.

Suddenly taking Viv out was a duty. And Bonnie Clair became forbidden fruit and very sweet.

To Be Continued.

Correct MANNERS

—By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman—

A Dignified Attitude.

MY DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have made a wager with a friend, and I would appreciate it very much if you will answer this question:

Is it proper for a lady to hold a gentleman's arm while walking, and when is it proper? M.

IT is not considered proper for a lady to hold a gentleman's arm when they are walking together on the street. It is not necessary, and it is not dignified for her to appear in public in the attitude of the "clinging vine." Some women take such a desperate hold on a man's arm—and what is worse, some men take such a desperate hold on a woman's arm—that one would think that they were taking every precaution against losing their companions!

Of course the exception to this rule is in the case where the woman needs assistance. For instance, when they are walking on a slippery pavement, or when they are crossing a crowded thoroughfare, it is proper for the gentleman to say as he offers his arm, "Won't you take my arm? It is not easy to walk here."

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

RUNYON SAYS

How Sharkey Failed—
Old Harry Wills—
He's Made-to-Order—
Another Comeback—

Strange as it may seem the pugilistic proletariat is manifesting no little interest in the impending struggle at Ebbett's field between Harry Wills, the old brown panther of New Orleans, and Pauline So and So, the only man I ever saw from the Basque country.

It may be because heavyweights are in the air, to speak, and it may be because the clients anticipate some thrilling pulling and hauling, but whatever the reason the folks are stepping up to the good Signor Humberto Fugazy's counters in large numbers and demanding chairs for the night of July 13th.

There is a considerable Spanish speaking population in New York City, and they are quite steamed up over Pauline So and So, Spain's leading exponent of the Manly Art of Scrambling Ears in the heavyweight division. The squatbuilt woodchopper drew well in his appearances at Madison Square Garden, and his following displaced more evening dress and jewelry than Mr. Rickard's millionaires. The air reked with Bravos when Pauline took his bows.

This following is evidently following Pauline to Flatbush to see how he makes out with the old Brown Panther of New Orleans. Perhaps it takes seriously Paulino's announcement that he will knock the old Brown Panther into a living room rug.

Pauline says, in his quaint Basque dialect, that he will do this if only to show Mr. Tex Rickard that he made a grave mistake when he gave the pugilistic representative of old Spain the go-bye, not to mention the good-bye.

Sharkey Couldn't Do It

If Pauline should chance to spear the Brown Panther in a few rounds he would make small of the terrible Sharkey man who was unable to drop Wills in 13 rounds, but who is none the less up there in the role of leading contender for the heavyweight title.

The old Brown Panther was still present and accounted for with the terrible Sharkey man when the referee disqualified him for holding. I thought that step a bit unfair to Wills and certainly somewhat belated, although there is not the slightest question but what the terrible Sharkey man would have won by seven lengths even if the fight had gone on to the fifteenth.

I always criticized the old Panther's method of holding and hitting, but the time to disqualify was immediately upon the violation of rules not when only a couple of rounds remained of the fight. Moreover, I have seen scores of other fights get away with far more holding than disqualified Wills that night.

The Brown Panther was generally persecuted by referee ag beyond his deserts. The crowd would get to bellowing at him in his battles as for tactics that are perfectly legitimate under the rules, and then the referees would start in nagging him.

The nagging would fluster the Brown Panther no little. I never thought he was as great fighter as his admirers fondly believed, but there is no doubt he was better at times than the referees would permit him to show.

I make bold to say that the latter Harry Greb, one of the greatest fighters I ever saw, was habitually guilty of more violations of the rules than Wills ever was, but you rarely saw Greb warned by a referee.

They let him snatch an opponent around the neck with his left and pummell with his right in a manner that certainly trangressed the law against holding and hitting. Under a strict interpretation of the rules, the styles of Ace Hudkins, the Nebraska wildcat, might be construed as holding and hitting.

But while Greb had with one hand he made spectacular flourishes with the other, and so does Hudkins, while Wills' method was to yank his opponent in close with his left while he tried to deal out one good smack to the body with his right. Then Harry would keep on holding without doing much fighting.

It would seem that Pauline's rushing, bouncing style is made to order for the old Brown Panther, for all he has to do is stand still and wait to drive his right to the body. But I would not be surprised to see Wills' long arms so busy trying to ward off Pauline's roundhouse hooks that he will have no time to spare for body punches.

Pauline is a very little busy cup of tea when the bell rings, and while he is built so close to the ground that he would seem to have cause for a damage suit against the sidewalk constructors and he is very strong. Moreover, I think he is a dead game fellow. I never saw a Spanish fighter that didn't have plenty of heart.

SPUDS CHASE STEERS, 13-3

Locals Wallop Offerings Of Twirlers

The Spudders slammed and hammered two Dallas pitchers Wednesday while Joe Kiefer was keeping eight Dallas hits well scattered and the Spudders took their fourth straight game since their return to the home lot and their second straight over the Steers, 13 to 3. Errors behind Kiefer played a great part in the Dallas scoring, but hard hitting behind the New Yorker gave him the victory.

Lyman (Lucy) Lamb, the outstanding hero of the first game of the series again played a great part in the game. Lamb's great catch in the eighth inning of Baumgarten's slash to right that was tickted for at least two bases cut down a brief Steer rally. Again in the fourth Lamb made a nice bit of fielding in the field. Woeber lined one against the right field wall, and Lamb making a perfect recovery and a bullet-like peg held the drive to only a single. Lamb also slammed out three singles and a double and scored three runs.

Jenkins Hits Four

For the hitting laurels, Jenkins tied Lamb with four hits. Jenkins slammed three singles about the field and then topped off the day on his last appearance at the plate by slamming his thirteenth home run of the season with Lamb perched on second base.

Wee Pete Turgeon had a good day with the willow wielders. The little fellow slammed out two triples and a double in five times at the bat. His triple in the first inning winning for him a gallon of Colvert's ice cream for getting the first three-base hit of the present home stay.

Pug Griffin arrived in Spudderville just in time to take the place of the injured Fitzgerald and the new arrival had a great day on first time in the game. He had a trio of nice catches to his credit in the outer gardens, and at the bat he slapped out a pair of hits. In the first inning he batted in one run with an infield out. On his next appearance in the hit column, he smashed one high, wide and handsome over the left field fence with Turgeon on base.

Mulvey was the only Dallas player that could get over one hit. The Dallas center fielder slammed out a single and a double in five times at bat.

Kiefer Tops Along

Kiefer toyed along with the Dallas swatters and men were left on the bases in every inning when the Steers failed in the pinches time and again. Kiefer issued three bases on balls and cut down four men over the strikeout route. It seemed that the short armed slab artist has broken the low score jinx that has been folowing him all year.

Mulvey opened the game for Dallas with a crashing double to right field. Swenson trapped Manager Gross' roller and heaved him out at first with no advance. Tate flied to Jenkins, whose quick return to the infield held Mulvey at second. Berry hit to Turgeon who let the ball go through him. Mulvey raced home and Berry stopped at second. Griffin handled Riley's fly to center.

The Spudders came right back at the Steers and tied the score.

LaFayette rolled out to Gross. Turgeon's short fly to right was kicked to the clubhouse fence by Baumgarten after he had failed to make a shoestring catch and went for a triple. Griffin was given a hand as he came to the plate, Griffin grounded to Bauman and Turgeon scored while Griffin was being tossed out. Lamb was given a cheer as he came to the plate but the best he could do was roll one to Owens.

Threat By Steers

The Steers made a threat in the second that crossed signals put on the blink. Bauman beat out an infield hit past third. Woeber laid down a sacrifice bunt and was safe when Turgeon let Kiefer's throw get away from him. Bauman going to third and Woeber holding first. Baumgarten lined out to Jenkins with no advance. With Owens at the bat, Bauman made a dash for the plate. Owens made no offer at the ball and Bauman was tagged out by Lapan. Kiefer then tossed out Owens.

The Spudders took the lead in the third inning never to lose it. Pete Lapan, the peppery little maskman, fouled out to Riley. Kiefer swung for the third strike. Tate knocked down LaFayette's hard smash past third for a base hit. Turgeon doubled against the left field wall scoring LaFayette. Griffin popped to Bauman in short center.

Lamb opened the fourth inning with a long single to center field. Jenkins bunted down the first base line and Owens fell down fielding the ball and Jenkins beat it out. Benton forced Jenkins at third. Swenson lined one over the left field fence for a home run, scoring Lamb and Benton ahead of him. Lapan slashed a single to center, but was caught off the base by Berry. Kiefer singled to center, but LaFayette filed to right.

Dallas scored twice in the fifth inning. Edwin (Slim) Love batted for Owens and singled to right-center. McColl ran for Love. Mulvey hit to LaFayette, who heaved wild to second and McColl went to third and Mulvey second. Gross struck out. Tate doubled to left field scoring McColl and Mulvey. Berry flied to Lamb and Riley fanned.

Love Blows Up

Ruel Love held the Spudders for two and two-thirds innings and then blew higher than a kite. Kiefer was first up in the seventh and he rolled out to Gross. LaFayette flied to center. Turgeon drove one against the left field fence for a triple. Griffin stepped into one and drove it over the left field fence, the ball clearing the lumber by about 20 or 30 feet. Lamb singled over Gross' head, stole second and continued on to third when Berry threw low to second. Jenkins crashed a single to center and continued to second when Mulvey fumbled the ball, Lamb scoring. Benton doubled to right scoring Jenkins. Swenson doubled to left scoring Benton. Lapan walked and Kiefer forced Lapan at second.

Dallas made a threat to score in both the eighth and ninth, but failed. Lamb's great running catch to the fartherist corner of the right field garden robbed Baumgarten of a sure extra base hit. It was a sure case of highway robbery.

Griffin Slams One

After LaFayette and Turgeon had gone out in the eighth, the Spuds opened another attack on Love. Griffin slammed one back at the box that hit Love's knee and bounded toward third while Griffin hot footed it to first. Lamb's drive sailed to the green batting screen in center field for two bases and Griffin scored. Jenkins crashed one over the left field barrier for a home run scoring Lamb ahead of him. Benton walked. Walloping Wally crashed one back at Love that he knocked down and threw him out at first.

While the players gathered about the plate before the game, the class B attendance trophy was presented to President J. Alvin Gardner, president of the Wichita Falls baseball club, by Mayor R. E. Shepherd. Doak Roberts, president of the Texas league was carded to do the presentation, but due to sickness in his family he was unable to be on hand.

ANOTHER OIL AREA DEFINITELY ADDED TO TEXAS LIST

SOUTH PLAINS FIELD SUCCESS

Large Number of New Tests In Fall

AMARILLO, July 12.—Another new oil area has been definitely added to the list that the Lone Star state already possesses.

It is the SouthPlains field, and it starts off with two small oil wells, and quite a number of drilling tests, and the promise of a large number of new tests in the late summer, fall and winter.

The South Plains field came into being, officially Saturday night at a get-together meeting and banquet at Lubbock, which is claiming the capital of the new area. The South Plains fills a niche in the geographical alignment of Western Texas, being due south of the great Panhandle field, the leader of 1926, and north of West Texas, now heralded as the leader for 1927.

More than 400 persons attended the Lubbock meeting and it was one of the most harmonious and representative gathering of Texas oil men of the year.

The proximity of the 'grass roots" well of the L. L. Donnell Petroleum company at No. 1 Mullican Ranch, in section 21, block B, of R. M. Thompson survey, and near Hale Center, in Hale county, helped to swell the crowd with oil men from Fort Worth, Wichita Falls, Dallas, San Angelo, Abilene, Amarillo and Tulsa.

No official organization has been formed to carry out the spirit of the South Plains field, but it is to be effected shortly.

The South Plains oil field includes the following counties: Parmer, Castro, Swisher, Briscoe, Hall, Childress, Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Floyd, Motley, Cottle, Crosby, King, Dickens, Lynn, Hockley, Cochran, Yoakum, Terry, Garza, Kent, Stonewall, Gaines, Dawson, Borden, Scurry and Fisher.

Some of these have been placed with the Panhandle and others with West Texas, but it is expected that they will be developed and operated from South Plains oil centers, now consisting of Lubbock, Plainview and Snyder.

Hale county, with its shallow well of 407 to 423 feet and making 3 to 5 barrels a day, and with six wells drilling or starting, is inclined to want Plainview made the capital, but the oil men indicated that Lubbock would be given a chance to prove itself the capital. In the past Lubbock officials have been inclined to be hard-bolled towards visiting oil men and the oil men resent some of these steps and declare that if they are continued, that they will not stay at Lubbock.

Through Pink L. Parrish, mayor of Lubbock, the South Plains oil men were given to understand that they were welcome and that Lubbock wanted them and would do all it could to make them contented there. Spencer A. Wells, president of the Lubbock chamber of commerce, was toastmaster and he reiterated the welcome.

Maljamar Announces New Location in New Mexico

ARTESIA, N. M., July 12.—The Maljamar Oil and Gas corporation, the discoverers of the Lea county pool in southeastern New Mexico, announces the location for No. 1 Sterling S. Beardsley Perkit in the northeast corner of the southeast of 15-17-32.

George Getty, Inc., found a second flow of 30,000 feet at 1140 feet in No. 1, in 14-20-29, Eddy county. It brought the total from the two sands to 110,000 feet.

Henderson, Dexter & Blair in No. Wyatt, in 34-17-33, Lea county, are drilling below 5160 feet.

In the extreme southeast area of Lea county, the Texas Production company has abandoned No. 1 Rhodes, in 22-26s-37e. Total depth was not learned, but it was after fishing for lost tools.

Oil Operators company will drill a deep test in the northwest of the northeast of 4-18-26, in the heart of the old Artesia field in Eddy county. It will cause Flynn, Yates and Welch to drill No. 50, in the northeast corner of the northwest of the southwest of 3-18-28.

McCulloch County Well Making Wet Gas, Report

SAN ANGELO, July 12.—Hagsdale No. 1 P. C. Dutton, 12 miles north of Brady, in McCulloch county, Tuesday was making a reported six to seven million cubic feet of wet gas daily and preparing to deepen Wednesday from 778 feet. It is in the southeast quarter of the west half of survey 585. The possibility of production in an entirely wildcat area drilled but little since the early stages of development in West Texas is attracting much attention.

Bailing In Tom Green Wildcat Seven Miles West of San Angelo

SAN ANGELO, July 12.—Bailing of three barrels of oil from a Tom Green county wildcat, seven miles west of San Angelo, the shooting into the pay of Texon's second Pecos county well and completion of several wells in Crane and Howard counties, a number through shooting, have been late oil developments on the Edwards plateau and in the Trans-Pecos region of West Texas.

Production is doubtful in H. D. Camp's No. 1 Willeke Bros., section 4, Blind Asylum survey, seven miles west of San Angelo, but the oil showing at 728 feet indicates a shallow pool, which, it is believed, the sinking of three tests now contemplated will open up. Three barrels of oil, estimated at 35 degrees gravity was bailed Friday and again Saturday with the hole almost full of water and showing some gas. The third Santa Rita well in Reagan county was but little better, being an edge well and abandoned, but is one of only three duster: that have been drilled in a field which since May, 1923, has produced nearly 24 million barrels of oil.

Texon Oil and Land company No. 2 Yates, section 55, block 1, I. & G. N. Ry Co. survey, in eastern Pecos county, made 7 1-2 barrels of oil in 12 hours ending Saturday morning after being shot with 40 quarts from 1250 to 1300 feet. Only a rainbow had been struck at that level in drilling to 1752 feet. The well is about 1300 feet northeast of No. 1, in the center of the section, which now will be cleaned out and shot. It has been pumping about five barrels daily, but much of the oil is believed to be shut off by the packer. The Texon area is about three miles southeast of the Yates field, where nine Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental joint producers remain pinched in to around 4000 barrels daily due to restricted acceptances of pipe line oil. Illinois Pipe Line company is clearing the right-of-way for its third line from the field, to lead southeast to a point on the Southern Pacific railroad, and United Producers Pipe Line company is surveying in the same direction to determine whether this route or the nearer route to Texon, already surveyed, will be selected for its pipe line.

Reiter-Foster Oil company's well in the northeast quarter, survey 971, Throckmorton is down 3841 feet. The pay in this section is at 3880-3900.

A test in Las Animas county, Colorado, just across the Oklahoma state line will soon be spudded in by Reiter-Foster, it was announced Tuesday in the Wichita Falls offices.

McElreath and Suggett's No. 1 Harris in Cooke county is down 402 feet. The hole is on the W. A. Harris farm.

PAMPA POOL

H. W. Wilcox Oil and Gas company is getting a new well in the Pampa pool of Gray county, Texas, in its No. 1 Phoebe, in section 40, block 3. The well topped one sand at 2948 feet and is in 10 feet with 1600 feet of oil in the hole. It will probably be drilled through the sand before it is given a shot, after which it wil no doubt make a big producer.

The W. G. Burton and associates No. 1 Strickler, in section 575, block 43, of H. & T. C. survey, in Ochiltree county, which failed to make an oil well when tested recently at 3886 feet is to be deepened. The casing was run a second time, and it failed to shut off water and it is now planned to swab the hole dry and go ahead. The last measurement showed 2800 feet of water in the hole.

The southeast diagonal offset of the Gulf Production company's No. 1 Saunders, in section 40, block 3, of I. & G. N. survey, which some months ago found 3000 barrels a day production in an east tension well of the Pampa oil pool is a failure. It is Atlantic Oil Producing company and Prairie Oil and Gas company No. 1-C Combs-Worley, in section 29. It had pay from 2947 to 3050 feet and had a brief show, and shot with 560 quarts it tested dry.

Maintaining an output which varies little the Roxana Petroleum corporation's No. 1 McCully, SW corner NE SE of 30-19-4w, in the Marshall pol of northwestern Logan county continues the Mid-Continent field's most interesting producer. This wonder well produced 2420 barrels of high gravity oil the 24 hours ended Saturday morning, from a total depth in the second Wilcox sand of 5989 feet. The Ozark Pipeline company is running the oil, having built a line from the Garber pool of Garfield county to the well.

The Fain-McGaha test on the Binford farm, north of Marysville, has been abandoned as dry at 2500 feet. The rig was transferred to the J. C. Embry farm southwest of the Bulcher pool.

The 120-quart shot that was set off late July 8 in the Morton and Company's No. 1 Reeder, in section 191, block 3-T, of T. & N. O. survey, near Dumas, in northeastern Moore county, did not help the well a lot. It was making 125 to 130 barrels a day and one per cent water daily before it was shot from 3372 to 3408 feet, and made one head of 70 barrels Sunday while cleaning out 20 feet off bottom.

Monday it did 133 barrels in 11 hours, along with considerable water. Interest in that area continues brisk and the Morton well should make better than 300 barrels a day completed.

DISPUTE GRAY COUNTY TEST

Drillers Claim Work Only Halted

AMARILLO, July 12.—The St. Clair Petroleum company has shut down its No. 1 Crews, in section 9, block 25, of H. & G. N. survey, to the northeast of Alanreed, in southeastern Gray county, at 2937 feet. It was stated that drilling was halted to test the well, but field representatives of major firms watching the well declare that it was dry at that depth.

This is the well that had oil showings from 2715 feet, along with 3,500,000 fet of gas from 2250 feet. Some criticism has come from both Alanreed and McLean because reports on the well had the showings as of "inert oil."

Other criticisms have come from M. Visell Nicolle of Nicolle & Nicolle, petroleum prospectors, because geologists have asserted that the St. Clair well is obviously south of the crude ridge that extends from southeast to northwest through the Panhandle field.

M. Visell Nicolle writes over his own signature that the well has made sufficient oil for "about 100 bailerfuls of high gravity greenish and very much live oil ,and this can be attested to by not less than 200 reputable citizens."

Scouts were handed some oil there Saturday that tested 41 gravity at 88 degrees, but when they insisted on samples from the well itself, and the bailer was run little oil came forth. This is the official report about the well.

Moore County Deep Test Plugged at 4062 Feet

AMARILLO, July 12—Douglas Oil company found salt water at 4062 feet in No. 1 Beauchamp's, in section 112, block 44, of H. and T. C. survey, and it will be plugged.

This is the deepest drilling test in Moore county, and is about 15 miles southeast of the A. D. Morton No. 1 Reeder, in section 191 block 35 of T. and N. O. survey, which is making 300 barrels a day and still cleaning out.

After being shot, southwest in Hartley county, the Deej Rock Oil company had a briew show of oil at 3280 feet in No. 1 Lyman Balfour, in section 9, block 2, of G. M. survey.

West Texas Gas company, a Prairie subsiary today announced it had gotten additional franchises from Idalou, in Lubbock county, and Lorenzo, Ralls and Crsbyton, in Crosby county, and a loop from its 217 mile Panhandle to South Plains Gas line will be laid to the four towns. They are in an agricultural area where much irrigation is done to keep crops growing, and these water plants will used natural gas.

Deep Rock Hartley Test Interesting Wildcat

AMARILLO, July 12. — The Deep Rock Oil company and others in No. 1 Lyman and Balfour ranch, in section 9, block 2 of G. & M. survey, and near Channing, in southeastern Hartley county, continues to be one of the Panhandle's most interesting wildcat drilling tests.

It was reported below 3400 feet today in red rock, and seeking a casing point so the 6 5-8 inch casing could be landed.

It has more than 1000 feet of open hole to case, much of it being in lime. The shale stratas are caving slightly.

Oil field workers from the Borger area, in Hutchinson county, who have visited the Deep Rock well declare that the green shale caves are similar to what is found around 50 feet above sea level in the Borger district.

The well is making 13,000,000 feet of gas, by actual gauges, and it is making some drip. The drip coming in contact with brown shale is making the fluid appear like oil to many.

University Land Well Standing In Oil

SAN ANGELO, July 12.—The deepest oil production in Texas and the third producing horizon on the Reagan county field on university land is indicated by No. 1 B of Group One Oil corporation subsidiary of the Texon Oil and Land company, standing 800 feet in oil at 6350 feet, the well is making one hundred thousand cubic feet of gas daily and will resume drilling when sand lines are changed.

It struck oil at 6270 feet when it passed from the Permiam into Pennsylvania formation, oil saturated sand, alternated hard and soft continuing to the bottom.

The oil is free from sulphur and tests 37 gravity. The well is in almost the center of the east line of the golden lane that divides the properties of the Texon and Big Lake Oil companies and is the second location south of the Orient railroad in section 36, block 9.

The field already has yielded approximately 24 million barrels fro mthe 2400 and 3000 foot horizons, from these levels 1-B produced around one hundred thousand barrels.

Stocks Close In Steady Tone On Wall Street Despite Heavy Realizing Sales Tuesday

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, July 12.—Stocks closed with a confident undertone today despite realizing in some issues. Railroads and industrial of the better grade were in excellent demand during the day. Specialties also came in for attention as rising prices. The market acted well at the close in the face of realizing.

A severe break occurred in wheat on the July 1 crop prospects. Cotton made a further additional rise with speculative interest attached to the December option which the big traders favor for higher prices.

Wall street studies the British trade figures for June. They disclosed that Great Britain is importing more than she is exporting. Money loaned at 4 per cent; foreign exchange, quiet.

One reason for the buying of railroad stocks is the belief that earnings the remainder of the year will show up satisfactorily. This is based on huge fall and winter shipments.

Atchison led the rails and sold up three dollars. Accumulation has been going on for months in this stock on the expectation that directors will vote a distribution of the four oil companies' stock in Atchison's treasury. Those stocks are appraised by oil men in excess of $200,000,000, the form of distributing the Southern Pacific plan. A stock dividend of 50 to 75 per cent is in prospect.

Atchison is earning more than $20 a share in addition to spending huge sums for railway equipment and betterments. It has the largest hidden assets of any railroad in the country, and is the only double track system running from Chicago to the coast via the southwest. C. and O. was higher and Gulf Mobile and Northwestern strong. June loadings of the latter increased 17 per cent over last year, the largest percentage increase reported by any line in the country.

Railway equipment stocks came in for attention under the leadership of Timken, which reached a new 1927 level. Pullman was higher. Both companies look for bigger business from the railroads, particularly Timken, contracts for ball bearings which make for more comfortable riding with less power required. Steel stocks were leaders at times on the new orders placed by some of the carriers. Orders received from the Pennsylvania and Chicago and Northwestern call for 80,000 tons of rails. The rise in Colorado Fuel was resumed.

With the exception of Mack Trucks, which was reported to have met considerable selling orders, the automobile stocks held ground well. Dodge closed strong and little change occurred in General Motors. Buying continued in Nash and Jordan met profit-taking sales following its steady climb. A big speculative following has become interested in Jordan.

Allied chemical spurted half a dozen points. The company has entered into a contract with the Koppers Coke company to receive all of the by-products of the latter for making coal tar and other intermedites used in the dye and chemical trades. This places Allied Chemical in an impregnable position and gives the company the cheapest intermediates in the world.

Specialties were in demand at times with a good inquiry for National Distillers, Grabiel Snubbers held ground on publication of its income report for the first quarter, which showed an increase of 25 per cent over the same quarter last year. Income for the second quarter showed an increase of 43 per cent above the same three months last year and 25 per cent over the preceding quarter. Six months' earnings equal a share compared with dividend requirements of $1.87 1-2 for the period and approximately 20 per cent in excess of the total annual dividend of $3.50.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, July 12. (AP)—Big selling today o nthe part of holders of future deliveries of whea throught about sharp breaks in price. Most of the selling was associated with the United States government crop report indicating wheat yields much larger than were looked for. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 2⅜ to 2½c net lower, corn unchanged to ½c off, oats 1¼ to 1⅝c down, anr provsions varying from 2c decline to a rise of 15c.

Corn derived strength from official confirmation that the 1927 prospective corn yield is the smallest since 1903 and that the crop condition at present is the lowest on record. Government figures on oats were construed as bearish.

Provisions tended upward, influenced by firmness of hog values.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, July 12. (AP)—Reports of less favorable weather conditions in the eastern belt stimulated buying in the cotton market today. Prices made new highs for the season on new crop positions, October contracts selling up to 17.93, or 25 points net higher. Offerings increased at this figure and there were reactions later under realizing. October closing at 17.77 in the general absence of steady at net gains of 4 to 8 points.

The market opened unchanged to 3 points lower, but very quickly firmed up on reports of rains in the eastern belt and reversed from which were thought likely to increase the boll weevil danger. December contracts, which had sold off to 17.84 early, advanced to 18.26, while July sold up from 17.98 to 18.27, or 25 points above the previous active months.

The decline in weather reports showing considerable rain in Georgia, with precipitation slightly over five inches at Atlanta, and in the Carolinas, caused a spurt of activity during mid-day when there was covering and a broadening commission house demand. The market met increased offerings on October approaches at the 18-cent level, however, and after the more urgent demand had been supplied by this selling, trading became quieter, with prices easing under profit-taking or some selling for a reaction.

Closing prices showed declines of about 11 to 20 points from the best, but there was enough buying on scale down orders to give the market a generally steady undertone.

Exports today 10,045, making 16,997,460 so far this season. Port receipts 8260; U. S. port stocks 1,104,998.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, July 12. (AP)—A slump in the late trading today cut 20 points from the early cotton market gains which had carried December prices across the 18-cent line. The close was steady with net gains of 6 to 9 points.

Poor cables and good weather reports brought an opening decline which set the day's lows when October traded at 17.54 and December at 17.75, six to eight points below the previous close.

Good trade buying and short covering induced a rally in mid-session that carried October to 17.88 and December to 18.09, 22 to 24 points above the lows and 26 points above yesterday's close.

Absence of rain in th ebelt brought a closing hour slump which sharply cut down the gains of the day.

Exports totaled 10,117 bales.

COTTON GOODS.

NEW YORK, July 12. (AP)—More interest was shown in cotton goods buying today, flannels, domestics and gray cloths attracting more buyers. Tropical worsteds opened for spring showed advances ranging from 1 to 2 per cent over last season. Raw silk was stronger, and the local markets were 5 cents a pound higher. Burlaps were stronger in Calcutta and unchanged here.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, July 12. (AP)—Prices were churned about considerably in today's stock market, with a resultant confusion in price movement. Speculators for the advance appeared to maintain their advantage, bringing forward several new leaders when some of the old favorites showed signs of yielding on profit taking. New points of weakness also cropped out, but selling generally was well absorbed. Trading showed a moderate expansion in volume, the day's sales falling just short of 1½ million shares.

Credit conditions continued easy. Call money held steady at 4 per cen tall day, but there were plenty of funds available and concessions were again allowed in the "outside market." Time money also displayed a somewhat easier undertone although 4½ to 4⅝ was still the prevailing rate. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Baldwin was again a sensational performer, climbing to a new record high for all time at 244 and then slipping back to 239½, off one point net, on realizing. Commercial Solvents B soared nearly eight points to a new peak at 184 and then fell back to 180½. Allied Chemical, which has been rather quiet of late, suddenly leaped more than six points to a new peak at 149⅜. There was little in the day's business news to influence the price movement. Pullman stockholders' approval o fthe reorganization plan by jumping six points to 189½. Dodge Brothers reported earnings of 55 cents a share on the combined A and B stocks in the first half of 1927, against $1.58 in the same period last year, with second quarter earnings substantially better than those of the first quarter.

Expectations by trunk line carriers of a substantial pickup in business in the last half o fthe year influenced the buying of the seasoned dividend paying carrier shares, with Chesapeake and Ohio, Lehigh Valley, New York Central, Southern Pacific, and Southern Railway making the best showing. Erie issues were again in good demand, but Kansas City Southern and some of the other "merger rails" were heavy.

Barnsdall A turned heavy on reports of a further increase in output in the Seminole field.

A rise of more than three points in German reichsmarks to around 23.72¼ cents, the first change of any consequence in months, was the only feature in the foreign exchange trading. Demand sterling ruled around 4.85⅝ and French francs around 3.91½ cents.

SELLING PUTS WHEAT DOWN

Bearish Crop Report Is Cause of Slump

BY CHARLES J. LEYDEN.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, July 12. —An avalanche of selling swept the wheat pit at the outset today as a result of the bearish government report which indicated a total crop this year of 854,000,000 bushels or 32,000,000 bushels fore than harvested a year ago. The opening was 2¾c down at the outside. A fair rally occurred later, but renewal of pressure, a good part of which was liquidation, caused further decline. Trade in wheat was big with scattered commission houses taking the voluminous offerings well on the break. Corn was independently strong for a while but gradually lost ground in sympathy with the leading cereal. Other grains were lower.

July wheat opened at $1.44¼@1.44⅝, firmed to $1.44⅞, broke to $1.43¾ and closed at $1.44⅛@1.43¾. September opened at $1.41⅝@1.42⅛, dipped to $1.41⅜, rallied to $1.42⅝, broke to $1.40¼ and closed at $1.40⅝@1.40¾. September corn opened at $1.06⅛@1.06⅝, sagged to $1.06⅜, rallied to $1.08⅝ and closed at $1.06⅝@1.06¾.

Moderate export trade was reported at the seaboard. Liverpool wheat futures closed 1⅝ to 2 pence lower.

Locally wheat closed 2¾ to 3¼c lower, corn unchanged to ¼c lower, oats 1¼ to 1⅝c down and rye 3¼ to 4¼c off.

Corn was steady in tone despite extreme weakness in wheat. Some of the local bulls bought aggressively following the initial dip and brought about a brisk rally, but holders sold in a scattered way on the rise because of the slump in other grains.

Oats were heavy under liquidating pressure in the September and December deliveries.

Rye slumped with other grains, the government report showing a great deal more rye in this country than had been figured on.

Becky Rogers Wins Delay in Trial By Change of Venue Order in Court

By Universal Service.

SAN MARCOS, Texas, July 12.—The slow grinding wheels of justice again were retarded by a mere slip of a girl in Judge M. C. Jeffrey's courtroom here today and now the state of Texas must wait until Dec. 6 before making its fight to send Rebecca Bradley Rogers, demure former Texas university co-ed, to the penitentiary for the part the state charges she played in the daylight robbery of the Farmers National bank of Buda.

The continuance was won when Judge Jeffrey granted a change of venue to the petit housewife after 20 veniremen had been examined and found wanting for duty in the jury box. Mrs. Rogers' trial was sent to La Grange in Fayette county.

Witnesses Absent

Becky made an unsuccessful fight for a continuance yesterday. Her motion was based upon the absence of several material witnesses whom she said would testify that she was of unsound mind and irresponsible at the time the cashier and bookkeeper of the Buda bank were herded into the vault at the point of a rusty, wavering pistol in the hands of a wee bit of feminity.

All morning both state and defense attorneys attempted to pick a juror acceptable to all hands. Even Judge Jeffrey put forth his best efforts but not even this combination of legal talent could get one of the 100 veniremen called into the box.

Near noon, the state informed the court that the job appeared hopeless. Defense attorneys immediately sided in with the state and so did the judge. A short conference and the trial was sent to La Grange.

Wichita Crops and Livestock in Best Condition in Years, Says County Agent

Cotton plants in Wichita county are in better condition now than at the same time in 1926; feedstuff crops are in excellent shape and range cattle in a practically perfect state, G. C. McGown, county agricultural agent, said Tuesday.

Judging from present prospects cotton in Wichita county will have a larger yield per acre this year than last, Mr. McGown said.

Although feedstuffs are in excellent condition, a heavy shower of rain would materially help the growth, Mr. McGown said.

The better condition of cotton in 1927 than in 1926, according to Mr. McGown, is due to the fac that in 1926 farmers had to contend with a large influx of cotton fleas, which are not prevalent in the county this year.

A few feedstuff growers in the county this year have had to contend with cinchbugs, especially those growing milo maize, according to Mr. McGown, however the bug menace is not serious.

Due to the June rains grazing lands are heavily grassed and as a result cattle are in excellent condition.

Today { At the Theaters
By Ruth Morrison

Majestic: Reginald Denny in "Fast and Furious," comedy and Pathe News.

Olympic: "Sorrows of Satan," with Adolphe Menjou and Ricardo Cortez, comedy and Fox News.

Garden: "Hi-jacking Rustlers," with Jack Perrin and comedy.

When Reginald Denny is crouched behind the wheel of anything that zips along at more than the popular sixty-mile-an-hour gait, whether it be his racing motor, his speedy yacht or an airplane, he is right at home, and land, sea and air seem to be his natural sports elements.

Long before the popular star donned the movie make-up he used to show his heels to anything that rolled, back in his home town in England. And during the late but not lamented fracas "over there" the intrepid Denny manipulated the joy stick of a pursuit plane over the Hindenberg line.

So it was only natural that when the versatile Denny sat down and took his pen in hand to write a story for his next production, he would seize upon a theme and a subject closest to his sporting instinct and accustomed hobbies.

You will see Denny at the Majestic Theater this week through Friday, in his latest successful starring vehicle, a zipping, thrilling, colorful farce-comedy, done in his inimitable style, entitled "Fast and Furious."

Playing opposite the famous film funster is a new and charming leading lady for the star, beautiful auburn - haired Barbara Worth, who was recently signed on a long term contract to play in Universal productions.

Mel Brown directed the picture, which was adapted by Raymond Cannon, and the cast includes Claude Gillingwater, Armand Kaliz, Lee Moran, Chas. K. French, Wilson Benge and other popular screen players.

Real Estate Board To Sponsor Survey of Valley and Products

Five Acres of Wichita Irrigated Land a Good Farm For Scientific Worker, Says Kemp

A suburban acreage survey to determine acreage of all crops that can be grown in the Wichita irrigated valley and a comparison with other districts in the United States is to be made in the near future by the Wichita Falls Real Estate board, it was announced Tuesday. A. W. King and Walter Curlee were appointed to draft a questionnaire and L. H. Frapks and Floyd Frieberg to divide the territory, at the Tuesday noon luncheon.

Compares California

According to the arrangement, each member of the board will have a definite area to survey and report to the general committee. This information will be used in advertising the valley to Texas and other states from the standpoint of concrete accomplishments and potentialities.

J. A. Kemp addressed the board Tuesday on the necessity for further development of the valley and for intensive farming by experienced men with modern methods and vision.

"Any man can take five acres of this valley with a few hogs, cows, sheep, an orchard, vineyard and small crop and vegetable acreage and be as independent as any other on earth," Mr. Kemp declared. "We have everything here that you will find in California with the one exception of tropical fruits, and we have much better facilities for prosperous dairy and poultry industries."

Mr. Kemp stated that enterprising citizens and water were the two things responsible for the growth and wealth of Los Angeles and the sections soon to be visited by the special train from here. He urged real estate men to take advantage of the opportunity to study conditions there with those making the trip and to "get busy and capitalize the things we have here as they did."

The force of Mr. Kemp's own vision of the future of the valley was revealed in his talk when he stated that it was one of the greatest dreams of his life to see every possibility realized.

"Some call me the 'daddy' of the scheme—I'm not," he said. "Wichita Falls is the daddy of the Wichita valley, and I want to see the entire community get busy right now and hear every person talk its development."

Baldridge Talks

Several instances of preeminently successful farming ventures in the irrigated region were cited and many crops in their infancy here as yet told. Mr. Kemp stated that growth for these things "won't come naturally," insisting on the need for a systematic campaign to let the world know what is being and can be done.

W. M. Baldridge, president of the club who has been ill for several weeks, made a short address at the meeting, urging that the board start the publication of a bulletin adopting the slogan "Buy a piece of the valley." A meeting of the executive committee was held to discuss further this plan and it is believed it will be adopted.

Floyd Frieberg and Walter Curlee will attend the national convention at Seattle next month, it was announced.

Wichita Girl to Take National Camp Course

Miss Edith Crump, office secretary for the Wichita Falls Camp Fire Girls, will leave Wednesday afternoon for Denver, Colo., from where she will go to Idaho Springs, Colo., to attend the natural training courses for camp fire guardians. These courses are offered each summer under the direction of the members of the national staff.

For the past 10 months she has served as half-time secretary to Miss Mary McIlheran, local executive.

In addition, Miss Crump is secretary of the guardians' association; guardian of Temskatawa Camp Fire group and editor of the local bulletin, "Flickers." She is a student in Junior college and vice president of the Escalator class of the First Methodist church. Miss Crump was also employed for morning playground work at Scotland park, and has taught handcraft in the church training schools.

Hot Weather Dries Out Your Kidneys, Liver and Bowels

Perspiration carries off body moisture and the liver and bowels become dry and constipated. Then —biliousness, headaches, sour stomach; the heat makes you drowsy and lazy, and your skin breaks out with pimples and boils.

Don't take calomel. That's wrong—calomel is mercury—a dangerous drug. It jars the liver and cleans the bowels, that's true. But the damage it does to them, ugh! It crashes into your system like a charge of dynamite and makes it numb. It stifles the muscles of the stomach and bowels, takes YOU a day to recuperate and no telling how long for your bowels.

All you need is Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful at night and you wake up feeling great. It doesn't upset you, but cleans you out good. You don't lose a day from your work and you can eat anything you want.

Get the big bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone from your nearest store. They all have it. Keep it in the house so you will have it handy to take nights before going to bed.

The Best Buy On The American Market

As you well know, Dodge Brothers cars have for years been recognized by the automobile world as the yardstick —the measure cup—the comparative standard by which the value of all cars within or near its price zone have been reckoned. This because the public has so long recognized the dollar for dollar value—the absolute dependable transportation built into every unit of Dodge Brothers entire line.

The Senior Line

Today Dodge Brothers are offering the automobile world another car—the Senior line—not a sensation—simply all you would expect from Dodge Brothers at the price, the greatest value that money can buy.

This car will just as certainly and surely occupy the same place in the hearts of the automobile public as the four cylinder line and will very, very soon become the standard of value and comparison of all cars selling up to $2500—for it too has built into every unit the same dependable performance, the same dollar for dollar value that has, since the first Dodge Brothers car was built, been placed in every Dodge Brothers car.

May We Demonstrate

A demonstration will convince you at once why we make the foregoing prophecy regarding the Senior line—furthermore, it will answer the statement that has so often been made since the first showing of the car, that it is the best buy on the American market today that is priced under $2500. MAY WE DEMONSTRATE? Thanks.
