Long Probe Of Haskell Officer's Murder Brings Two To Jail

YOUTHS HELD IN CONNECTION WITH KILLING

Walter King, 20, and Rube Davis, 26, Held By Officers

STATEMENT GIVEN

King in Jail at Haskell Talks With State Authorities

HASKELL, Aug. 22. (AP)—Walter King, 20, is in jail here and Rubbin Davis, 26, in the county jail at Commerce, charged with the murder of a night watchman here Oct. 23, 1926, officers announced today. The arrests were made about a week ago.

King is said to have made a statement to officers.

NIGHT OFFICER FOUND SHOT TO DEATH.

J. K. Beauchamp, night watchman at Haskell, was found dead in the doorway of a Haskell grocery store on Sunday morning, Oct. 24, 1926, the victim of unidentified burglars who shot him to death when he surprised them in their robbery.

Two bullets had been fired into Beauchamp's body, one penetrating his brain and the other his heart. A rear window of the store was found open and it is believed that the bandit-killers gained entry to the building in this fashion.

Only one clue of a tangible nature was left by the robbers. This was a navy bag containing merchandise. Inspection of Beauchamp's fatal wounds revealed that the two bullets which struck him were fired from guns of different caliber, leading to the presumption that two men fired the shots which killed the night watchman.

One bullet had been fired from Beauchamp's gun as was revealed by a discharged cartridge found in the pistol. A bullet hole in the ceiling of the store where the night watchman died was evidence of the fact that he probably fired into the air to halt the robbers before they fired on him.

Grand Jury No Bills Youth in Theft Case

DALLAS, Aug. 22. (AP)—Shearon Bonner, 19-year-old scion of a well known Dallas family, and former student at Southern Methodist university, was "no billed" by the Dallas county grand jury here today. The grand jury gave no explanation to Judge Adams for the action. Bonner admitted stealing $5600 in bonds from an office building to "get a thrill."

Smith to Make Race For High State Meet

DALLAS, Aug. 22. (AP)—W. A. Smith, publisher of the San Saba News, would enter the race for Lieutenant governor. He is a former county judge of San Saba and a past president of the Texas Press association. Mr. Smith, who conferred here Sunday and Monday with friends from over the state, said his formal announcement and platform would be given out in a few weeks.

Mexican Arrested For Attack On Tiny Girl

DOLLOS, Aug. 22. (AP)—Reurning to Dallas two years after he had criminally assaulted a 6-year-old girl, a Mexican, 40 years old, was arrested by police. He did not deny the assault, but asserted he did not injure the child for life as her parents claim he did. The little girl was enticed from home by offer of candy, and taken to the basement of a schol house and there assaulted.

FAIR WEDDINGS

Three Couples Ready For Ceremony At Exposition

Three couples filed Monday applications with Mayor R. E. Shepherd to participate in the public wedding to be held in connection with the Texas-Oklahoma fair.

Mayor Shepherd, who is secretary of the fair association, announced Saturday that the public wedding would be held and that the fair association would purchase the marriage licenses, furnish the "parson" free of charge and in fact would do everything at the wedding except say "I do," leaving that formality to the principals.

All couples desiring to "hitch up" at the fair public wedding will be accommodated, Mayor Shepherd asserted. "The more, the merrier," he said.

CITY TIGHTENS POLICE RULES

Three Ordinances Voted By Council

Three ordinances regulating the business of junk and second hand dealers, pawnbrokers and draymen in Wichita Falls were passed on first reading Monday night by the city council.

The ordinances were presented by Roy Carter, police and fire commissioner. Commissioner Carter said that the laws if enacted would enable police officers to more easily locate stolen merchandise.

One ordinance covers junk and second hand dealers and sets out that each dealer must keep a complete record of all goods bought and sold; the second ordinance governs pawnbrokers and prescribes that the chief of police must be advised daily by each pawnbroker of merchandise received by him as pledges on loans and the names of the pledgees. The last ordinance is in regard to draymen and sets out that a report of all persons moving from one house to another in the city, or moving out of the city must be made to the chief of police by the drayman retained for the moving.

For the violation of any of the ordinances the maximum fine is $200 and the minimum $5. The laws will come up for second reading at the next session of the council, Monday night.

A. W. King, sanitary and park commissioner, notified the council that he was preparing a more stringent ordinance regulating the physical examination of applicants for city licenses as food handlers. Mr.

Police Unable To Locate Kin Here Of Girl Killed In Elevator Fall

Nora Moore, daughter of Henry Moore of Wichita Falls, was killed late Monday in an elevator shaft at Tulsa, Okla., according to a telephone message to Night Police Chief J. A. Glenn.

Police were unable to locate a Henry Moore in Wichita Falls. J. D. Moore, 1108 12th street, told The Record News that his daughter, Mrs. Edna Anna Ide, lives in Tulsa. Although he was confident that the woman killed in Tulsa was not his daughter, Mr. Moore wired to his daughter.

Mrs. Ide has lived in Tulsa about five years, Mr. Moore stated. She married about one month ago, and is not employed there, he said.

"Last Man's Club" Disbands

The Last Man's club, composed originally of 24 members of the famous civil war, company B of Minnesota has met in its 42nd annual meeting, with only three surviving members attending. Peter Hall, left; John S. Goff, center, and Charles Lockwood, right. A bottle of Burgundy which was pledged 42 years ago to be opened by the lone survivor was placed on the table at each meeting. At this final meeting the bottle was opened and toasts to the dead comrades were drunk. Inset shows 42-year-old bottle of Burgundy.

Loot In Austin Bank Raid Climbs To $26,500 As Records Are Checked

Texas Rangers Scour Hills Near Austin After Bandits' Abandoned Car Is found Near Railroad Track

AUSTIN, Aug. 22. (AP)—Scouring the rough, rattlesnake infested hill country in the Bull creek section northwest of Austin, Texas rangers, city and county officers continued their hunt tonight for three young robbers and their $26,500 loot, $1657 cash, taken in this morning's holdup of the University bank here. Search centered in the hills after discovery late today there of the abandoned sedan in which the robbers escaped, gaining a 15-minute start on officers. A freight train crew tipped officers to location of the car and reported to rangers that two or three men had been unsuccessful in attempting to board the train.

Because of the tangled undergrowth and cedar brakes, making the hill section almost impassable, the rangers feared the robbers, described as being between 20 and 25 years old would try to hold up some passing motorist and escape in his car to open country.

The bank was robbed shortly after opening time this morning, while students at the University of Texas nearby were passing between classes and business activity in the university addition was well under way. Loot at first was believed to have been confined to the cash and $5000 in Liberty bonds, but a re-check later today showed missing also $10,000 in non-negotiable University Park bonds, and $10,000 in signed American Bankers association checks. Some $65,000 in the vault was not disturbed.

Five employes of the bank were made to lie face up on the floor during the robbery but Miss Maude Potts, secretary to Representative M. C. Parrish, absent president of the bank, went out of the door of a back room and spread the alarm.

A mobilization call for members of Company O, 141st Infantry, Texas National Guard, to aid the search was issued tonight by Captain Arthur H. Stramler after returning from a trip with sheriff's officers across the mountains from Leander south. The company has a membership of 78.

HUNT FOR LOST FLIERS FAILS

No Trace of Missing Planes Found

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 22. (AP)—While navy boats and planes searched under an extended "zero hour" Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur, San Francisco visitor, and officials in Washington, D. C., agreed today that some federal move must be made to prevent a recurrence of the disasters that have befallen the Dole air race entrants, crews of the Golden Eagle, Doran, and the Dallas Spirit.

Admiral Eberle, acting secretary of the navy, said in Washington he predicted the enactment by congress of a law to prohibit long distance airplane "stunt flights" except under rigid conditions.

At the same time Admiral Eberle ordered the 40 naval vessels searching the Pacific for the missing fliers, to continue their efforts until Thursday. The original plans were that the hunt should officially terminate tomorrow night. Extension was given following the disappearance of the Dallas Spirit, piloted by Captain William Erwin of Dallas, Texas, and navigated by A. H. Eichwaldt of Hayward, Cal., which apparently dived into the sea nearly 700 miles west of San Francisco Friday night after flashing an SOS call on its radio.

DEATH CELL INMATE TRIED TO KILL SELF

Vanzetti Attempted To Hang Self On Eve Of Execution

NOISE FOILS PLAN

Guards Slash Improvised Noose as Radical Hangs in Air

By Universal Service.

BOSTON, Aug. 22.—Bartolomeo Vanzetti attempted suicide in his cell last Thursday night, but was foiled in his attempt when guards found him hanging and cut him down, Universal Service learned tonight.

The prisoner, according to information, wound strips of a cotton sheet about his throat. He attached the improvised rope to a notch in the iron brace of a transom above the door of his cell, climbed onto a bureau and swung himself into space.

Vanzetti's foot, it is believed, must have caught in the bureau and tipped it over. When guards heard the crash they immediately investigated and cut him free from the noose.

The attempted suicide took place on the eve of his removal to the death cell and just after the lights had been turned out for the night. Vanzetti was taken from his cell while all furniture was removed. He was taken back there to spend the night.

Guards and prison officials took every precaution against a repetition of the attempted suicide and Vanzetti was watched constantly day and night.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Mertie Parker.

Two Men Pay With Lives For Murder Of Paymaster

STATE PRISON BOSTON, MASS., Aug. 23—(Tuesday Morning)—Sacco and Vanzetti died game. Both made a speech in the death chamber just before they were electrocuted this morning.

"Long live anarchy," shouted Sacco in Italian after he entered the chamber.

Then, without any instructions, he sat down in the chair and said in broken English: "Farewell to my wife and children, and all my friends."

As the straps were being applied he added:

"Good evening, gentlemen."

He was speaking to the official witnesses.

Then: "Farewell, mother."

That was his last.

Vanzetti Denies Guilt

Vanzetti made alonger talk in which he protested his innocence. He was cool and collected. As he entered the death chamber he shook hands with his guards.

Then he sat down in the chair without any instructions and said: "I wish to tell you I am innocent and never committed a crime but sometimes a sin. I thank you for everything you have done for me. I am innocent of all crime—not only of this one but of all crimes. I am an innocent man."

Here he paused. The straps were being applied. Then he added:

"I wish to forgive some people for what they are now doing to me."

Thus Vanzetti's last words were those of forgiveness to those he had considered his enemies.

Madeiros in Stupor

Celestine Madeiros, who was also executed here this morning for another murder, preceded Sacco and Vanzetti to the chair.

He seemed to be in a stupor and said nothing.

There was no chaplain present. None of the men wanted spiritual consolation. They wanted to die as they had lived—"Outside the Pale," to use their own words.

All three were calm, but Sacco seemed a little excited. He jerked out his words. All were blue shirts and gray trousers and loose black slippers. They had no coats.

Heavy Shocks Given.

Sacco got a stronger shock than the other two. He was given from 1800 to 2000 volts. Vanzetti was given from 1400 to 1950 volts and Madeiros got from 1400 to 1900 volts.

All three were executed within the space of 25 minutes. Madeiros entered the death chamber at 12:02:47 and was dead at 12:9:35. Sacco, who was the second, entered the death chamber at 12:11:12 and was dead at 12:19:02. Vanzetti entered the death chamber at 12:20:38 and was dead at 12:26:55.

The procedure in the death chamber was about the same in each execution. The condemned man was taken from his cell by two guards and marched to the death chamber a few feet way. The straps were quickly adjusted. His pants were rolled up so the electrode touched the bare skin.

Warden Gives Signal.

At the same time other guards were adjusting the cap over his head after placing a rubber band across his face to keep the features from burning. His head was forced back to meet the electrode at the top of the chair back.

Warden Hendry gave the signal. Robert C. Elliott, the executioner, was standing at the switch and caught the signal instantly. He pushed the switch in with a firm hand. The lights went dim. The victim in the chair gave a lunge that made the strong leather straps creak. After ten seconds the switch was gradually drawn out, but not all the way. The lights grew bright again.

Second Shock Given.

In another ten seconds the switch was forced in again. More dim lights. There was a second lunge by the victim but weaker than the first. Again the switch was pulled out as the lights brightened. A brief wait and Elliott gave a third shove. There was no lunge this time; just a slump. But one could imagine he smelt the odor of singeing human flesh. Maybe it was just imagination.

Then Elliott opened the switch. The lights burned brightly again. The man was dead. He was so pronounced by Dr. Jos. McLaughlin, prison physician. The straps were loosened and the corpse lifted to a marble slab a few feet away from the chair.

Then the guards went out for the next prisoner and the performance

Their Loved Ones

The picture at the top is a photograph of Mrs. Nicola Sacco, wife of the condemned radical, who exerted every wifely effort to win him a pardon from the death chair. The lower picture is that of Miss Lugia Vanzetti, sister of Barto Vanzetti, who came from Italy only a few days ago to bid her brother farewell before his trip to the electric chair.

Shallow Oil Pool In Lubbock Area Found

LUBBOCK, Aug. 22. (AP)—Definitely establishing a shallow pool, the L. L. Donnell Petroleum company No. 2 Mullican, formerly the Kegans et al. well, 28 miles north of here, was drilled into pay sand at 405 feet for a production estimated at from five to ten barrels per day.

Stores Invite Shoppers For Combined Suburban and Dollar Day

Wichita Falls will be host to thousands of shoppers Thursday, the first combined "Dollar Day" and "Suburban Day." Merchants decided Monday to make next Thursday combine the two events into one of the greatest merchandising periods Northwest Texas has ever seen.

Police department officials have given assurance that many special courtesies will be extended to the visitors expected.

Wichita Falls stores have been very successful in staging both suburban and dollar days at regular intervals and it is believed that the added reductions in prices of merchandise will bring throngs of buyers from out of town as well as local shoppers.

MRS. CHAPLIN WINS DIVORCE

$625,000 Paid to Wife By Film Comedian

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 22. (AP)—Lita Grey Chaplin was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from Charles Spencer Chaplin at a brief court session here today after the film comedian had agreed to pay his girl wife $625,000 as a property settlement and grant her permanent custody of their two small sons.

Into an hour's session of Judge Walter Guerin's court, at which Mrs. Chaplin played the leading part, were rolled the final gestures to the eight months' marital strife.

Property Settlement

A property settlement reached out of court was announced by Edwin E. McMurray, chief of counsel for the suing wife, and Mrs. Chaplin made her own routine case of cruelty from the witness stand. A few corroborative witnesses were sworn, testified briefly and the decree was granted.

Within 15 seconds after Judge Guerin had completed reading a temporary ruling barring certain testimony, McMurray had announced reaching of the settlement and Mrs. Chaplin was on her way to the stand.

Rapidly and with finality she answered the questions which McMurray put to her.

Lita Charges Cruelty

Neglect of herself and their children, absence from home at night and cruelty which forced her to leave the film comedian were the burden of her testimony.

Not a word was mentioned of the sensational charges which she hurled at the screen jester in her divorce complaint. Almost forgotten in the hectic hour's court session were the references made to motion picture actresses with which the plaintiff wife declared Chaplin had been unduly familiar.

Chaplin, not present, was not undefended.

Gavin McNab, chief of Chaplin's quintet of legal advisers, dramatically came to the comedian's defense in a five-minute display of oratory. He pictured Chaplin as a dutiful husband and father and as a man whose purse was the object of the attack.

"Who steals my purse steals trash," McNab quoted from Shakespeare in drawing a parallel, "but he who robs me of my good name takes that which not enricheth him but makes me poor indeed."

Mrs. Chaplin came into court 10 minutes before Judge Guerin's gavel fell. With her was her mother, Mrs. Lillian Spicer, who took a short turn on the witness stand as a corroborative witness, and two girl friends.

City-County Parley On $5000 Bill Delayed

A conference scheduled for Monday between members of the city council and the county commissioners court relative to an account amounting to approximately $5000 presented by the county to the city for the maintenance of indigent patients at the county poor farm, was cancelled due to the inability of several members of the city council to be present. The meeting, it was announced, will probably be held the latter part of this week.

Two weeks ago the members of the court and the council held a joint meeting at which the poor farm account was discussed, however, no definite action was taken.

Charged in a complaint made by L. Steelman, city plumbing inspector, with violating the city plumbing ordinance, a Wichita Falls man was fined $10 in Judge W. L. Bass' corporation court Monday. The complaint alleged that the man installed a sink in a building at 701 1-2 Jefferson street without obtaining a permit from the city.

Law Exacts Death Penalty For Paymaster's Murder

was repeated until Massachusetts had enacted her penalties.

The game conduct of the condemned men in the death chamber was a surprise to the witnesses. Earlier in the night the men wilted but evidently regained their bravado at the end.

After each man had been pronounced dead his body was lifted to a marble slab. There are only three of these slabs in the death chamber and they were all occupied this morning.

The bodies will be kept in the death house until just before dawn when they will be turned over to relatives. A police squad armed with shotguns will escort them through the streets to the morgue and again to the cemetery.

This is to foil any demonstrations by sympathizers who want to use the corpses as a symbol.

Legal Fight Fails.

The executions came after every possible legal effort to save the men had failed. Their last hope went out when Governor Fuller at 11 o'clock last night announced that he would not reprieve the men.

The condemned men were officially notified by Warden William Hendry at 9 o'clock last night that the sentence of death would be carried out right after midnight.

For the first time the full significance of the thing seemed to sink in their minds and they began to wilt.

Word came out of the death house that the three men did not display the stamina and courage that was expected of them.

They had been in the death cells before and the last time they beat the chair in the last few minutes. But it was different last night. The end was near and they knew it.

Doomed Men Sullen

They were sullen and silent. No word came out of the death house. It was quiet there as if they had already been executed. The whole prison was as quiet as a tomb, save on the warden's front porch, where Father Michael Murphy, the prison chaplain sat and told humorous stories to the newspaper men.

The chaplin was waiting there for the condemned men to call him in if they wanted him. All three had informed him earlier in the day, that they wished to die as they had lived—outside the pale.

But Father Murphy had seen stubborn men face death before and change their minds as eternity crept closer on them. So he waited that they could call on him for spiritual consolation up to the last minute if they wanted it.

700 In Police Guard

It was just as quiet outside the prison gates where 700 policemen, mounted and on foot, kept everyone back two blocks from the walls. Even those officers were quiet, they walked back and forth in utter silence.

At 11 o'clock the official witnesses began to arrive and were taken quietly into the warden's office to wait their own solemn march to the death chamber.

The night wore on and still no word came from the death house. There was nothing to say. The men were sullen, quiet, thinking.

Last Farewell Said

They had seen their loved ones for the last time. Vanzetti's sister visited him three times during the day and Mrs. Sacco visited her husband thrice. They came each time together and departed together.

The last good-byes were said in the evening. Then the two women hurried away to make a last and a futile appeal to Governor Fuller.

The hours passed, 10 o'clock, 11 o'clock, and the condemned men remained silent, as their guards also in silence peered through the bars at them. All was silence, the silence of deep thought.

Last Plea Refused

Eleven o'clock came and with that hour came also word from the state house, that Governor Fuller had refused the last plea for a reprieve. That was the end of all the chances to dodge the chair.

Eleven o'clock. After that the three condemned men had no more hours. Only minutes remained to them and those minutes began to flit away rapidly—52, 53, 57. The backward count went on. The minutes click away—only 45 more to go.

Then rumors came from the death house that the weight of those few remaining minutes were affecting the doomed trio. It was not so quiet now in the cells of the condemned men. Their calm was gone.

Sacco Curses Aloud

Vanzetti began to rail. Sacco cursed aloud, the rumors said, though nothing from any official was given out on their conduct, and Madeiros sobbed.

This bore out earlier reports that they had wilted when the warden notified them that he would have to do his duty.

Sacco and Vanzetti did not go to their death with the calm defiance that had been expected.

But their attitude did not keep the minutes from slipping—43, 44, 43. So they ticked away.

Official Witnesses

By 11 o'clock all the official witnesses had arrived in the warden's office in addition to Warden William Hendry. They are: Deputy Warden James Hogsett; Dr. Joseph McLaughlin, prison physician; Dr. George McGrath, medical examiner; Dr. Frank P. Williams, surgeon of the state militia; Dr. Howard A. Lathrop, an imminent surgeon of Boston; Sheriff Samuel N. Capen, and Sheriff John A. Kelliher.

One of the sheriffs represents the county in which the murders were committed. The other is from this county.

At 11:20 o'clock Michael A. Musmanno, one of the attorneys for the defense, dashed up to the prison and hurried into the warden's office and asked if he could see the condemned men.

"It's too late," said the warden.

"Is there no hope of seeing them?"

"Not now," replied the warden. "But I will tell them that you were here."

"Can I go with you when you tell them?"

"No, too late," said the warden.

Lawyer Wilts Visibly.

Musmanno leaned against the wall completely wilted.

The reporters asked him:

"Did you have a message for them?"

"Of course, I had a last message," he replied.

"What did you want to tell them?"

"I wanted to tell them to embrace religion, I wanted to tell that we still believe they are innocent and that we will never doubt it."

Musmanno told the reporters he had hope until the governor refused the plea for a respite at 11 o'clock.

Then, he added, he lost hope for Sacco and Vanzetti and for mankind in general.

Death March Begins.

Musmanno then went in the warden's office where he sat until the executions were over.

Eleven forty-five with only 15 minutes to go, Sacco and Vanzetti could tell the end was near by the stir in the death house. The prison guards and officials were getting ready for them.

Fifteen, fourteen, thirteen—the minutes were rushing—twelve, eleven, ten.

In ten minutes the death march started.

FAKE CHARGED IN CAVE HUNT

Tennessee Official Calls It Publicity Stunt

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 22. (AP) L. S. Ashley, cave explorer, was not lost in the Knick-a-Jack cave at Shell Mound, and did not dig his way out of another opening to the cave after six days of confinement, in the opinion of O. P. Pile, state mine inspector, who said today that he would so report to Governor Austin Peay today.

There was no evidence to show that Ashley had been in the cave, he said and a great deal to indicate that he and members of the searching parties were working "a publicity stunt."

While, as he came down the mountain from the place where he "dug himself out," Ashley passed within a short distance of the main entry to the cave which the searching parties were gathered, he did not stop to look at those who were supposedly trying to save his life, Mr. Pile said, while the attitude of people there was not that of those witnessing "the return of a dear friend from the dead," in Mr. Pile's opinion.

Other evidence will also be included in the official report, he indicated.

Rev. Cook to Enter Evangelistic Work

The Rev. W. D. Cook, for five years pastor of the Yale Evangelical church here, will enter evangelistic work in this territory and will be succeeded by the Rev. J. Harben of El Campo in the Yale avenue pastorate, as the result of appointments made at the closing session of the Evangelical church conference here.

The Rev. F. Doege was reappointed pastor of the First Evangelical church and the Rev. C. S. Holley was returned to the Scotland Evangelical church. The appointments were read by Bishop J. S. Stamm of Kansas City.

Other appointments follow: Bowman, W. H. Mahler; El Campo, E. A. Copeland; Galveston, C. Ermil; Hahn, C. L. Clark; Houston, W. I. Gates; San Antonio, First church, Howard F. Cook; San Antonio, Sunnyside Mission, Evan Fridge; Lissie, George Causey; Post Oak, W. D. Dilbeck.

The entire debt of the First church here was liquidated with a collection taken which amounted to $4500. More than $500 was raised for missionary work.

City Tightens On Police Rules

King said that the present ordinance did not require a laboratory test which was necessary to determine the health of an applicant. Mr. King asserted he would present the ordinance to the council for consideration within the near future. His announcement followed the receipt by the council of a complaint from the Cooks, Waiters and Waitresses union in Wichita Falls that the law was not strict enough.

An ordinance governing the care of graves in city-owned cemeteries was adopted.

The North Texas Utilities company was awarded a contract for the supplying of gas to city-owned buildings for the next five years. The cost of the gas is on a sliding scale, depending on the amount used. The lowest price is 17 cents per 1000 cubic feet and the highest 45 cents.

Petition requesting the city to remove the municipal barns from the corner of Holliday and Sixth streets was presented. The petition, signed by 70 residents of that section, set out that the barns were a health menace to the community. Mayor Shepherd notified the committee presenting the petition that the council had recently decided to remove the barns to another section of the city and that the removal would take place in the near future.

The council ordered the paving of Kings Highway from block 1, Sunset Heights addition, to Fillmore, and Kings Highway from Polk to block 1, Sunset Heights addition.

An ordinance closing the north 25 feet of Underwood street, beginning at Fern street, was passed on its first reading. The need of the water departmnet for that portion of the street for the expansion of the waterworks system was the reason assigned for the presentation of the ordinance by F. B. Curd, water commissioner.

New Church to Name Board of Stewards

The board of stewards and Sunday school officials of a new Methodist church in the southern part of the city will be elected at a meeting next Sunday night, it was decided at the organization meeting held Sunday night in Sibley-Taylor park.

Dr. S. A. Barnes, pastor of the Floral Heights Methodist church, preached to a large congregation and 39 charter members were taken into the new church. The roll is to be held open this week and all joining during the week of next Sunday night will be classed as charter members.

The new religious organization plans to erect a tabernacle for temporary headquarters. The site of the tabernacle is on Princeton street. Construction will be started this week.

The pulpit of the new church will be filled by various Methodist ministers until next November when a pastor will be named for the new church.

This is the second Methodist church organized in in Wichita Falls in 1927. Dr. Barnes having organized the Grant street Methodist church several months ago. This church now has 150 members.

Deaths

KELLY NICHOLSON, JR.

Funeral services for Kelly Nicholson, Jr., 7-year-old grandson of J. W. Nicholson, 2315 Princeton street, who died of blood poisoning Saturday night at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Nicholson, at Ardmore, Okla., were conducted at the grave in Riverside at 10:30 o'clock Monday morning by the Rev. T. J. Furniss, pastor of the South Side Baptist church.

The body, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson, arrived here Sunday night from Ardmore, where services were held earlier in the day.

The blood poisoning developed about three weeks ago from infection in a slight foot wound.

Doheny to Enter Oil Fields of West Texas

NEW YORK, Aug. 22. (AP)—Organization of a new oil company is planned by E. L. Doheny of Los Angeles and his associates for the development of leases in West Texas, to be known as the Pan-American Western Petroleum company of Texas, it is reported in private dispatches to Wall street. GAS an outstanding convenience of the age

OF THE many modern home conveniences enjoyed by the housewife, and the whole family, gas is one of the most outstanding. It is one of the four basic conveniences—running water, electricity, gas and telephone. And gas is one of the biggest work savers and time savers of the four. Wood and coal—while depended upon for heat for many years—were never considered conveniences. But gas, because of its ease of handling, instant availability at all hours, is one of the last conveniences that the modern housewife would be willing to dispense with. Lone Star Gas Company takes real pleasure in the part it plays in making gas available to you.

BANDITS FAIL IN BANK RAID

Five Attempts Made To Open Bank's Safe

AMARILLO, Aug. 22 (AP)—Somebody is bound to rob the Wildorado State bank of Wildorado near here.

Saturday night, the third attempt since the first of the year to open the bank's safe was made by bandits who, after forcing entrance through the rear door, knocked the knob from the safe but were unable to open it. Failing in this, they went next door and stole cigarettes and clothing valued at several hundred dollars from a general store.

Last night two attempts to rob the bank were made. About 11 o'clock bandits forced their way into the bank, opened the vault and attempted to blast open the safe, but failed. H. H. Elam, living nearby saw the would-be robbers' car drive away from the vicinity of the bank. He and O'Neil returned to the bank to find the vault choked with flames and smoke. They extinguished the blaze and discovered that the bandits had attempted to open the safe with an acetylene torch outfit but had again failed.

Many valuable records were destroyed by the fire which it is believed was started inside the vault by intruders in anger at their failure to gain access to the safe.

Hunt For Lost Fliers Costs Navy $90,000

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22. (AP)—Naval statisticians estimate that the search for the lost Pacific aviators will cost the navy $90,000.

This amount, mainly for fuel, is above normal operating expenses of the fleet of 42 vessels engaged in the search. In addition, $20,000,000 worth of property in the form of ships and 3000 men have been tied up for eight days and the Pacific maneuvers have been interrupted.

TWO WOMEN FOUND HELP

Their Sickness Banished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Nina Matteson, Box 206, Oxford, N. Y., writes—"If it had not been for your medicine, I could not have done my work as it should have been done. Mother told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I had read in different papers what it had done for different women. She wanted me to try it, so my husband got me one bottle at first; then I took two others. • • • Now I am feeling quite strong again."

Mrs. Ernest Tanguay of Adams, Mass., says she was ill for four years and could not sleep nights or go out on the street. She read about the Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking eight bottles she was able to do all her work and go anywhere and is quite herself again.

This dependable Vegetable Compound is a household word in thousands of homes. The fourth generation is now learning the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. If this medicine has helped other women, why shouldn't it help you? At your druggist's.

Doing Things Your Own Way

By Lucy Lowell

DID you ever consider how unsafe it is to impose your judgment upon others?

No matter if you know a thing ever so much better than the other fellow—no matter how skilled you may be at any given piece of work — the surest way for you to draw resentment and dislike is to say, "No, you've got that wrong. You must do it this way; take it from me now, I know better than you."

LUCY LOWELL

There is something in human nature, a sort of stubborn pride in achievement, however commonplace perhaps, which makes every one of us wish to exercise, unhampered whatever ability he may have in so far as he is able.

He would rather go through with an undertaking on his own even though the ultimate result were not quite all it might be than to achieve perfection under the direction of someone else.

And it is a good thing this is true. It is only by experience we grow and experience is a subjective thing, one that we must acquire by ourselves for ourselves.

We read and hear of and see the experiences of others and learn something from these. But that is theoretical knowledge; the actual, practical understanding comes from our own living and doing and thinking.

We learn to do only from doing. There is no other way.

Another may try to save us from mistakes by pointing out his own mistakes—telling us how to avoid them. And this, too, helps.

But it is not enough. We have to expect to make mistakes; to be willing to make them and suffer the consequences with a high heart. For this, too, is part of experience.

The one who makes no mistakes and endures no set-backs is thoroughly educated in the art of living.

ANXIOUSLY you watch up the street under the green branches of the trees for the grey uniform of the postman. You have grown to know the very minute that he comes from behind the high wall of the house at the corner. The very set of his cap farther away than you would know your own double. If he is one tick late your heart begins to miss and hurry. And when at last he swings into your gate and his whistle thrills at the door, and you fly to meet him with a face like a Summer dawn . . . a face that he must smile at, for he knows the writing on a certain fat letter that he brings . . . and you have your letter safe in your warm hand, sometimes you wonder where it has been since it left his hand, and if everybody who saw it in the way of business on its way didn't open his eyes wide and think it different from any other letter that they had ever seen before. Surely all the world knew it was a LOVE-LETTER!

But the adventures of this postman letter are rather mild.

It is the hectic journey of a letter that sometimes goes by "boy" that are worth looking into! High and low adventure sure enough. It witnesses a fight or two. It flies high in the air on the wind and sees a bit of the world. It lies low under foot and sees how the grime lives. It nestles for a while in the purse of a pretty girl whose bright eyes rescue it from passing brogues—knowing it, did she? for a love-letter? by that strange instinct of a girl for the very look of a thing that breathes the perfume of love? None of the rest of the world gave it a glance!

It was stamped and mailed and jostled the other letters of the town.

And at last in the lower floor it was X-rayed by eager eyes —old ones in memory of a love-dream—young ones in gleeful sympathy—man ones in hilarity and curiosity.

And home it came at last—like a wave-weary little ship—to the haven of a girlish breast!

Read by bright eyes and taken to an innocent cool pillow to dream-land.

Fashion Fads and Fancies

By Mildred Ash

A LIGHTING Upon Lapels—Very lifelike butterflies with slightly stiffened wings of batik silk and soft, furry bodies, represent one of the most recent of imported novelty pins. About three inches long, done in most realistic colorings and markings, these ornaments will probably become one of the early Fall fads.

Bringing Brightness to Black—Wide girdles of diamante, made to be worn at a low waistline, are one of the most attractive ways of enlivening a black lace or chiffon gown. Wrought in a variety of unusual designs, these scintillating belts are becoming extremely fashionable.

Anticipating Autumn—Many of the advance showings are featuring crepe faille or satin frocks with coats of matching cashmere or broadcloth. Navy, deep green, rich brown, purple and gray promise to be the leading colors of the coming season, but black bids fair to continue foremost in the mode.

The Long and Short Of It is what determines the "vintage" of an umbrella handle. The newest handles are of increased length—five or six inches long—and have their decorations repeated upon the ferrules. Among the most striking types are the "pretzel" shapes, with a snake forming the large loop. These are made of iridescent composition, with colored stones to represent the snake's eyes.

Printed In Plumage Patterns some of the novelty velvets and velveteens for Fall have designs inspired by bird's feathers. These plumage themes are sometimes worked out in the natural colorings, but usually just form motifs for odd and interesting prints.

Aft And Fore fashion's wind blows a speadily increasing gale of popularity to the separate blouse. Of white crepe satin, in severely tailored and semi-tailored models, such blouses are extremely smart when worn with a small white felt hat and a black crepe or satin pleated skirt. One of the most stunning models follows the style of the banded, slip-over sweater, the horizontal bands, being a double thickness of the same material set in by fagoting.

-:- Our Rhyming Optimist -:-

By Aline Michaelis

WHY should I not be glad, although I have not had life's rich and splendid chances, although I have not known great ventures of my own nor shared in rare romances? For few indeed are they who see life's facets gay and drink its wine of gladness; the common lot, instead, it is to joy, to dread, and, mixed with bliss, find sadness. But who would not be glad to know that he had had a part in all of living? To know he understood his brothers' every mood, who would not feel thanksgiving? The truly thankful breast not only for life's best his pleasure voices; but that he shared in all, knows good, bad, great and small, his heart rejoices. This is true gratitude: To find in every mood, in all life's phases, some good that may be won; in shadow as in sun some cause for praises.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

Jupiter, 86,500 miles in diameter, is the largest planet. Mercury, 3,030 miles in diameter, is the smallest?

Fifteen to twenty per cent of the food crops of the world are lost through insect and fungoid attacks, such as mildew and mould?

The usual height at which swallows, wild ducks, geese, and other birds fly when traveling long distances is from 1,000 feet to 2,500 feet. Cranes have been known to fly five miles above the earth?

The Japanese have forbidden the ancient Korean custom of carving a design on the neck of a girl who has jilted her lover?

Proper Care Necessary for Swimming Pools

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

"WE live in the crowded section of a crowded city. The playground association has put in several swimming pools in which hundreds of children are constantly splashing about during the day. Is water used in that way safe for my two children, who insist on being among the 'splashers' "?

CHARLES A.L. REED, M.D.

Yours is a very pertinent question. The great good brought about by the Playground and Recreation Association of America through swimming pools can hardly be overestimated. But, like every other good thing, it must be carefully safeguarded.

This becomes apparent when you remember that every year a large number of cases of middle-ear inflammation (a most troublesome and painful disease), also infections of the outer ear and of the sinuses of the nose, occur through contamination picked up in swimming pools. These are but a few of the disorders that may be transmitted in swimming water, for all kinds of skin trouble, fevers, colds and eye infections are passed from patient to patient in this way.

The matter has been carefully considered by the American Medical Association which, through a desire to make the swimming pool safe, has formulated certain rules that should govern their use. These rules amplified by myself, may be stated as follows:

1. There should be a bacterial examination of the water used when it is fresh, which it should be daily. This should be done by your health department every morning when the pool is filled.

2. The bottom must be clearly visible at a depth of six feet.

3. To keep the water clean the first requirement is that all dressing rooms, hallways, toilets, etc., should be kept in first-class condition.

4. No one who has been outside the plunge enclosure should be allowed in the water again until he has been through a shower and a foot bath.

5. All persons with any kind of infectious disease or skin complaint should be forbidden to enter the plunge, as should persons wearing a bandage, which may conceal a source of infection.

6. Spitting in the plunge water, though unavoidable to a certain extent, should be guarded against by the provision of sufficient and adequate receptacles for sputum.

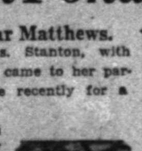

There are many other measures necessary to insure a safe and sanitary pool. For instance, managers who provide towels and dresses should issue them in a sterile condition from a hot chamber. Bathers who bring their own suits should bring clean ones, preferably of light-colored or undyed wool. The public hair brush and comb are abominations, and should be unknown in a present-day swimming establishment. What sometimes happens, however, is that bathers bring their own brushes and leave them behind, so that a public brush comes into being in spite of the manager's good resolutions. The only way to stop this is rigorously to remove everything of the kind left by bathers, and to make it understood that a brush once left behind is never seen again.

When Fond Grandparents Interfere with Baby

By L. Lamar Matthews.

YOUNG Mrs. Stanton, with her baby, came to her parents' home recently for a visit.

It is the baby's second Summer and he is cutting teeth, as is to be expected.

L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

However, he has not had very much trouble while teething for the reason that his mother has followed to the letter the instructions from her physician regarding the child's food, his sleeping, his clothing and his baths.

But at grandma's house the young mother had a hard time preserving the baby's health habits. Grandmother, grandfather, an uncle and two very young aunties all insisted upon making life joyous for the adored newcomer.

When the family gathered on the back porch and cut a big, red watermelon, the baby stood on tiptoe and reached out both hands for a piece of the melon.

"No, you can't have that!" exclaimed the mother, hurrying him away from temptation.

"Oh, daughter, let him taste it," protested grandfather. "Why, you were raised on watermelon, and it never hurt you. Here, sonny, grandpa will give you a bite."

And with that he dug out a bit of the red heart and laughed while the baby crammed it into his little mouth.

Late that afternoon a small cousin came in with a sack of candy in his hand. He stood eating the candy, while the baby gazed in admiration and longing upon the long stick of red and white sweetness. Then he asked with his eyes, his hands and his whole, eager, little person for a portion of that candy.

"He simply must not eat candy," his mother announced.

"How silly," answered grandmother. "The child is eighteen months old. A bit of candy won't hurt him. I gave it to my children and I don't see any invalids among you."

And without further ado she took a stick of the hard candy and placed it in the baby's hand.

"Sit down now and eat your candy," she said, kissing the top of his curly head.

And so the days passed. The young mother fighting for the health of her baby. The rest of the family laughing at her, scoffing at her new-fangled notions, over-riding her decisions and indulging the child in little ways that gave him pleasure for the time being.

Before the first week of their visit was over the baby was fretful and ill. His stomach was upset and that haggard look that sick babies so quickly acquire came into his face.

"I begged you not to feed him," argued the young mother.

"Oh, honey, it wasn't what he ate that made him sick. He is cutting his eye teeth, and children are always sick then," grandmother consoled.

But grandmother was wrong; and any doctor will tell her that she is wrong. Hundreds of babies are made ill every Summer by having the wrong diet. The hot weather is enough to upset them. Besides that, most young couples take their vacation during the Summer and the travel further disturbs the baby's digestion. Add to that the interfering ways of home folks and the baby hasn't a chance to escape without a spell of illness.

Of course, he is more likely to have stomach trouble at teething time than at other times; and that is why extra care should be given his diet then.

It is all wrong for outsiders to interfere with a young mother's care of her baby, and it usually results in trouble for the child, his mother and for the interfering relatives.

Folly's Daughter -:- A Thrilling Mystery of New York Night Life -:- By ANN LISLE

By Ann Lisle,

Whose Serials of Married Life Have Won a Big Popular Success.

AFTER a time Folly sat up and looked around the room. Jill was standing by the window, staring out at the ugly airshaft that furnished the view she had loathed progressively ever since Folly took her out of school and brought her to New York to try to aid in bolstering up their failing fortunes. Folly watched the girl a long time without speaking. Then she began to talk in a dry, monotonous voice drained of all feeling:

ANN LISLE

"I had no right to bring you into the world. But when you came, and terrible things that are hushed up and hidden now happened as a result of your birth, I felt I owed you something. So I ran away. And I took you along. I didn't know how much a baby of two had taken in, but I didn't want you to learn the facts that had cost me everything but my life. I put you in school. I worked to keep you there. I left you there as long as I could. Even after I took you out I tried to protect you."

"So you spied on me and stole from me and lied to me and refused me tenderness and love—to protect me."

"Yes. But I didn't want you to know I was your mother."

"Are you sure you weren't afraid the world would think you old or—know who you were if it discovered I was your——"

Jill stopped. She couldn't say it. She didn't want to believe it. Folly laughed recklessly, scornfully.

"Hate to acknowledge it, don't you?" she asked. "But it is so. I am your mother. And even now I'm protecting you. I'm not claiming your love. I'm not burdening you with the truth about yourself. I'm just letting you down easy."

"Why did you go to MacNeil Shannon yesterday?" Jill demanded. "Why did you warn me against him and then go to him? I've got to know."

"You shall know. When I warned you against him, I didn't know who he was, did I? All you led me to believe was that the man who gave you the fifty-dollar tip was an elderly person who seemed like a father to you, didn't you?"

"Yes, that's true," Jill agreed.

Folly pursued her advantage.

"If a mother had been through purgatory because she didn't know enough to guard herself against—what called itself love, wouldn't she warn her daughter?"

"You mean you weren't married?"

"I was married all right, but not to—the right man," Folly said.

"Not to my father. I haven't a name," Jill whispered.

"Don't be silly. Your name is Jill Hathaway. You have a right to that name," Folly insisted, nervously. "I've never let you suffer for my—agonies. Jem Hathaway was my second husband. Let's not talk about it. Even that—second marriage was for you. He adopted you—and abused me. So I warned you to wait till you met the right man, till you found the one who would love you right and give you everything, including his name. . . . And when I found Shannon's card, I went to him in desperation. And when I saw him I realized that what wouldn't be good enough for you might be just right for—me."

"What do you mean?" Jill asked. Strangely enough she was much more intent on what concerned MacNeil Shannon than on the mystery which so deeply concerned her and which, had she known it, she might have forced the weary Folly to tell now if she had put her through a cross-questioning "third degree." At that moment Jill's happiness hung by a thread—and snapped, for she chose to ask about Mac, to find out how much reason she had for the terrible jealousy of Folly that shook her. And her moment to learn the facts about Jill Hathaway passed.

"You love him," Folly said curtly. "That's it. I didn't know. I went to him without any plan or purpose. I saw that he was charming and powerful. I am at the end of my string since the man I really love has deserted me. I thought it didn't matter what became of me. And I've only blundered again."

Her tone was infinitely wistful. Jill looked at her oddly.

"Are you going to see Mac again?" she asked.

"How do I know? I left my card. Vivian saw it. That's how she found me."

"Would you—try to get him to—love you now—that you know I care?" Jill asked. "Tell me the truth. You've lied to me ever since I can remember. Tell me the truth now. MacNeil Shannon isn't interested in me. He's out of my life for good. I'm nothing to him. And I love him. I guess you'd know how to intrigue him . . . Are you going to?"

To Be Continued.

When Manners Are Correct

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Informal Wedding.

DEAR MRS. BEEKMAN:

I am to be married soon and I would like to know if it is proper to be married at the minister's house in a white dress and veil. If not, would you please tell me what is the proper attire? E. D.

SINCE a wedding held at the minister's house would be classified as an informal wedding, it seems consistent that the bride should wear informal attire, a dress and coat and hat, or ensemble, for the Summer, of silk.

Rough and Tumble Garner

"THE GENTLEMAN at the Key Hole," is the moniker of a writer who does the political stunts in a personal way in the city of Washington for Collier's Weekly. Every issue of the weekly contains a pen portrait and pen picture of some important leader of political thoughts on the stage of action. The current number is devoted to Congressman John N. Garner of Texas. There are men who say that George Creel is "The Gentleman at the Key Hole." This is his foreword:

"The retirement of Finis Garrett from the house of representatives to become a candidate for the senate from Tennessee will make John Garner of Texas floor leader of the democrats in the lower chamber and Jack Garner comes very near to being the best "all-around member of the house."

And "The Gentleman at the Key Hole tells the reason why, "he does not excel in any one quality except, perhaps, that of being the best politician on either side. But he has more of the qualities that go to make the ideal member than anyone who has been in the house since Uncle Joe Cannon was in his prime."

A remarkable tribute to say the least and now listen to this from the same pen, "onion grower and goat raiser he has wrestled with the soil of Texas. He has experienced life in direct contacts. He knows men and speaks their language. There is no member of the house on whose level he has not been and whose language he does not speak. He is a common man who has made his own money and is not stuck up about his wealth."

How old is Jack Garner of Texas? "The Gentleman at the Key Hole" answers, "He is as fresh at 59 as he was at 20." "The Gentleman at the Key Hole" would not care to see the Texan elevated to the senate. He would be delighted to see the Texan the coming floor leader "because he knows his onions and loves a scrap."

And there is another reason why "The Gentleman at the Key Hole" contends for the retention of the Texan on the floor, "the house is the right side for him. He belongs in a popular assembly. He is at his best in the rough and tumble of a debate where an opportunity not seized on the wing is forever lost."

"The Gentleman at the Key Hole" plays no favorites. He tells of the strong and weak points of his subjects. He has made the discovery that the Texan "has a touch of the frontier about him; of a frontier that is conquered by tractors and dynamite and oil derricks." Garner represents the winter garden country of America; he represents the summer garden country. There was a time when the Garner country was given over to herds of cows and flocks of goats. Not so now.

Where Gushers Flow

AWAY out in Scurry county, West Texas, the people needed water and a driller got busy. He brought in a well which has been making a thousand gallons of water per minute ever since.

More than 4,320,000 gallons of water was pumped from the well in a 72-hour test which proved the water to be pure.

This is one reason why the people of Snyder know that it is just a matter of a little money and drillers to guard against a water famine in their little city. There is no place like Texas.

Building Activities In Texas

ACCORDING to a recent building review contemplated new construction reported in Texas in July amounted to $45,870,000, or an increase of 52 per cent over June and 73 per cent of July of 1926. New construction started in Texas in the first seven months of 1927 has reached a total of $135,727,800, being a decrease of 4 per cent from the amount reported in the first seven months of last year.

Texas had $20,464,000 in contracts in building and engineering work last month. This figure was about the same as the amount reported in June and was 17 per cent above the amount reported in the same month in 1926.

According to a Magic Valley weekly newspaper total building in the lower Rio Grande Valley for the year 1927 should be in excess of $13,000,000.

There has been no decrease to speak of in building activities in Texas this year and a very prosperous fall and winter season for skilled workmen and material men and builders is predicted by the trade journals of the country.

Why the Farmer Kicks

ACCORDING to the federal department of agriculture the farm net returns for 1926 was $1132 and no allowance was made in the expense item for the labor of the farmer and his family.

"Back to the farm" is a dead slogan. It was popular in wartime. It is unpopular in peace time.

However, the farmers are to receive more than a billion dollars in excess this year of the sum total received in the year 1926. A distinguished republican leader has the figures. A presidential election will take place next year and the administration is preparing to build a navy that will sweep the seven seas.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By BURTON RASCOE.

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch To The Record News

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—It was raining heavily as I came out of the subway at Times Square. The theater for which I was headed was on Forty-sixth street, just four blocks away. Crowds of people were whistling and yelling shrilly for cabs and just by luck, I happened to get one. The driver went up Seventh avenue to Forty-fifth street and turned left, since Forty-sixth street is an east-bound one-way street. He intended to turn right at Eighth avenue, thence to Forty-sixth and by another right turn reach the theater.

But no. Just at that time, the traffic cop at Forty-fifth and Eighth happened to have a prejudice against turning right, and so we were made to turn left. The cop at the next corner semeed to dislike left turns, so we proceeded straight ahead. The next block was a one-way street going West and so we were forced to continue to Forty-second, where, after some wait, the left turn was accomplished.

A block more and we were back where we started from. A long wait at Times Square and up Seventh avenue we went for the second time. The driver, wiser now, drove on to Forty-seventh street, where he turned left to Eighth sixth, and with another left turn and a half block ride we were at the theater.

I could have walked this distance in about three minutes. As it was, it took me more than three-quarters of an hour to go these four blocks.

MODISH MITZI— Mitzi Settles Down to Business By JAY V. JAY

Mitzi decided that her clothes counsel was worth something so she found an office. Polly is not the first client. No indeed. She's just bought a two piece frock with wide belt. It's all box pleated, even the blouse. Polly and Adelaide have come to help with the interior decorations of the "office."

The Goofer is on the outside looking in as usual. Mitzi asked him to see that the new name on the door was polished. It's his fault that he is handy man around the house. Polly is admiring some new hats. Mitzi has to demonstarte that shaded tones of velvet are smart, that trimming at the side is popular.

Mitzi is holding a tightly draped turban. The price tag dangling from it would give most people something to think about. But as Mitzi says, "After all one has to have stock or capital or tools to work with." Is she wearing a dress with anew neckline—to be a shining example?

"It's collect," says the messenger to Dad. Dad groans. This business of Mitzi's is going to be no different from any of her other enterprises. It takes his attention completely from the illustrations on the wall that shows a flared skirt and bolero blouse. Don't ever believe that the woman pays. Ask Dad, he knows, too well.

Sally's Shoulders

READ THIS FIRST:

SALLY JEROME, pretty and clever, is the prop and mainstay of her family in the absence of her father, who has not lived with her mother for nine years. The family consists of MRS. JEROME, the twins, BEAU and MILLIE, and Sally herself. Mrs. Jerome enjoys poor health, so Sally does the housework mornings and office work for grouchy old MR. PEEVEY afternoons.

In the flat below the Jeromes lives young TED SLOAN, an automobile salesman, who wants Sally to marry him and keep on working. But the only man who interests her is JOHN NYE, whose real estate office is just across the hall from Mr. Peevey's. Nye hires Millie as his secretary and becomes blindly infatuated with her, making her prents and lending her his car, etc. But Millie confesses to Sally that, although she thinks Nye is a good-looking thing and that she would marry him for his money, she really prefers DAVIDSON, a former suitor. She tries to persuade John Nye to take Davidson on as a salesman.

Beau and Millie give so little towards the upkeep of the home that Sally is often obliged to borrow from her aunt, EMILY JEROME, who is giving up school teaching to turn her old country home into a wayside inn. She wants Sally to go into business with her, but Sally is afraid to risk her $21-a-week salary with Mr. Peevey to take a chance with Aunt Emily.

Beau gets $110 from Ted Sloan by means of bad checks. Sally borrows that sum from Mr. Peevey and gives it to Beau to turn over to Ted Sloan. But Beau uses it to elopse with his fiance, jazzy little Mabel Wilmot, and Sally has to start paying off his debt and hers at the rate of $2 a week to Ted and $2 a week to Mr. Peevey. A check for $200 comes from Mr. Jerome, and Mrs. Jerome gives it to Beau and Mabel, who buy a cheap second-hand car with it.

Millie is taken sick during one of John Nye's absences from town and one afternoon Mrs. Jerome telephones Sally at Mr. Peevey's office telling her to get home as fast as she can—that something dreadful has happened to Millie.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXX.

For just a half-minute Sally was too stunned to move or to think. Then her brain cleared in a flash, and began to work quickly and surely, as it always did.

She phoned for a taxicab, scribbled a few lines to let Mr. Peevey know where she had gone, picked up her hat and purse, and went down stairs to wait for her cab.

Five minutes after her mother's message she was on her way home, gazing out of the cab windows at the familiar streets with eyes that saw nothing. The ride was a nightmare while it lasted.

All her life seemed suddenly to have narrowed down to one single terror—the fear that Millie was dead or dying.

"It's my fault," she kept telling herself. "I should have had the doctor last night whether she wanted him or not. . . . I should have known that that sleep she was in wasn't natural sleep. . . . It's all my fault."

She prayed with stiff lips. She felt that there was nothing on earth she wouldn't do for Millie if only God would spare her now. . . . She would give her up to John Nye and never think of John Nye again. . . . What did anything or anybody matter now that Millie was at death's door?

For Sally never doubted that Millie was there, and she was cold and shaking with fear as she went up the stairs to the flat.

Half way up she heard the door above her open, and Mrs. Jerome's heavy footsteps on the landing.

"That you, Sally?" And then she was sobbing on Sally's shoulder. "Millie—Millie's got to go to the hospital! She's got to be—operated on—" Her words ended in a muffled shriek.

Crying like a child and clinging to Sally with her large, soft hands, she followed her into the flat.

Ted Sloan's red-headed mother stood in the center of the living room floor, holding Mrs. Jerome's coat and her hat and her high-laced shoes.

"I've been trying to get her into her clothes for the last half hour," she appealed to Sally. "And I can't do it. You hold her and I'll try to get her arms into this coat."

Between them they got Mrs. Jerome dressed and into a chair, and then Sally flew out to the bedroom where Millie was.

She lay on the bed with her eyes closed and her little drooping mouth half open. There was no "Chinese black" on her eyebrows and lashes, and her unrouged face had a gray, drawn look. She was no beauty now.

Sally took up one of the hot little hands in her own hands, and laid her cheek down against Millie's colorless cheek.

"Dear, I just won't let anything happen to you!" she whispered, tears pricking their way along her eyelids and a lump rising in her throat.

To her astonishment Millie answered her. She had thought she was unconscious, but the blue eyes opened and she droned out a question in a slow, drowsy voice:

"Does an appendicitis operation cost a lot?"

"Now, don't you worry about that," answered Sally, fiercely. "We'll take care of that." Then the lump in her throat choked her again and made her stop talking.

Outside in the street there came the clang of an ambulance bell.

"If you need any money, ask John Nye for it." Millie's voice ran on monotonously. "He'll lend you anything—for me."

Mrs. Sloan came bustling into the room. "The ambulance is here," she said, all importance. "Here, Sally, wrap the blanket around her when the men pick her up."

But Millie shook her head. "My pink bathrobe," she gasped, wincing as the white-uniformed doctor slipped his arm under her. Her vanity never deserted her, even in her hour of danger and agony.

The last glimpse Sally had of her showed her pulling her soft yellow hair into little tendrils over her forehead, which was too high.

* * *

The table in the waiting room at the hospital was covered with magazines.

But neither Mrs. Jerome nor Sally picked them up to look at them.

They sat there, staring at the pale-green painted walls, at the canary in its cage by the window, at the photograph of the nurses' class of 1917, at each other's solemn, unhappy faces.

"Did you telephone Beau and Mabel?" Sally whispered. The deadly quiet of the room and the hall outside the room subdued her.

Mrs. Jerome made a disgusted face. "Why should I call them?" she wanted to know. "They don't care anything about anyone but themselves—and racing around in that ramshackle car that's painted up like the Fire Department. I wish I had that hundred dollars back from them that I promised poor Millie."

She had given them the hundred dollars of her own free will, but now that Millie was sick she couldn't forgive them for taking it.

"I'll try to get Beau at the bank," said Sally, starting up from her chair. "He ought to be here." But Mrs. Jerome pushed her down again with a slick-gloved hand.

"I did try to get him when I phoned your Aunt Emily, but he wasn't there," she confessed. "I suppose he's helping that little china doll of his move into the flat they've taken. He's forgotten that he ever had a family—" And with that she burst into tears once more. Beau was the apple of his mother's eye and she never was going to forgive him for marrying Mabel Wilmot. And Sally knew that it would have been the same, no matter what girl Beau had married.

"Why, Mother, he was at the house last night to show us his car," she reminded her mother, gently. "Don't you remember? He and Mabel had steak sandwiches out in the kitchen."

Mrs. Jerome refused to be comforted.

"Somebody'd better telegraph your papa," she said suddenly, with a sniff. "After all, Millie's his child and he ought to be made to pay for this operation—and if Millie's going to die he'd better be here anyway. I'll wire him myself when I get home."

A nurse came into the room. "Miss Jerome's out of the operating room and she's still unconscious," she said, looking grave and pleasant at the same time, as nurses manage to look. "Dr. Ambleside is sure she's going to get along all right, but he'd rather no one saw her this afternoon. So if you'd like to go—" She held open the door that led into the white-walled hallway.

"We'll telephone you if there's any change," she added in that same half-cheerful way, and went rustling down the hall with her stiff white skirts rustling like autumn leaves in the wind and her rubber heels making no sound on the cork-covered floor.

All the day house Mrs. Jerome scolded because she had not been allowed to see her own daughter, and because Dr. Ambleside himself had not come down to the waiting room to tell them that Millie had come through the operation safely.

It was 5 o'clock when they got to Trellis street, and at the corner Sally stopped and kissed her mother. "I'm going back down town for an hour or so," she said. "Mr. Peevey wasn't at the office when I left, but I wrote a note and promised to go back some time today and do his letters for him."

Mrs. Jerome gazed at her with wet, reproachful eyes. "How can you think of working at a time like this?" she sobbed. "Sally, really, sometimes I think you haven't got a heart in your body."

Sally raised her black eyebrows. "Somebody's got to keep working in this family," she answered, with a grimness worthy of Aunt Emily. "And I thank fortune that I still have my health."

She did have it, she told herself exultantly, as she swung along in the warm, hazy afternoon. No matter how long Millie was out of work, or how seldom her father's checks came through the mail, she still could make enough to keep a roof over their heads and a loaf of bread in the pantry.

There never was a pain or an ache in the strong, young body that moved with the light grace of perfect health and firm muscles.

* * *

The door of John Nye's office opened as Sally was stooping to unlock Mr. Peevey's, and Millie's assistant came out into the hall.

"How do you do? Working late?" she asked, in a high nasal voice, stopping beside Sally.

She was a thin blond girl—the type that Millie, glorying in her own golden coloring, called "a dirty blonde." She wore double-lensed glasses that gave her eyes a queer, screwed-up look, and several dark strands of hair showed heneath her hat. "Dumb Daisy" was Millie's nickname for her. Millie had nothing but contempt for people who should have had her pity. She seemed to think it was their own fault that they were ugly or dull or dumpy.

"How's your sister?" she asked, and Sally told her what had happened to poor Millie.

The other girl frowned in an anxious way. "Well, that's too bad. I hope she gets along all right," she said. "I don't know what Mr. Nye will do when he gets back in the morning. You see, I'm not a stenographer. I just answer the phone and keep the files."

It was on the tip of Sally's tongue to say that John Nye would probably have to telephone an agency for someone to do Milly's work for a while.

Then she stopped, as a brilliant idea came to her.

"You tell Mr. Nye that I'll work mornings for him while my sister's sick," she told the girl. "That is, if he wants me to. He can call me up if he does."

Her only thought at the time was of serving John Nye—of helping him out. Of trying to earn the salary that she was sure he would keep on paying Millie all the time she was unable to work.

Jealousy Is Green Demon Spoiler Of Many An Innocent Relation

Why Can't a Married Man Have a Congenial Friendship With Another Woman?—Why It Is Impossible to Be a Business Woman by Day and a Housewife at Night—The Tragic Couple Separated by "Religion."

Dear Miss Dix—Is a married man ever justified in asking an unattached lady of his own age to go riding with him unchaperoned by his wife? What would be the good of asking her if his wife had to go along, making a third party? He might just as well stay at home. The man loves his wife and is of an age when no other woman could possibly gain his affections, and the other lady has no other feeling than plain friendship for the man.

How far do a wife's rights extend to governing every movement and friendship of her husband's? Should a man have some time for himself, and why should not this be shared with some old and valued woman friend whom he find congenial? R. S. V. P.

Answer—I suppose the answer to this question, R. S. V. P., is that it is because human nature is weak and selfish, and prone to jealousy as the sparks are to fly upward, and that, besides, we live in a suspicious and censorious world and all of our neighbors have eyes in the backs of their heads.

Of course, there isn't any real reason why a middle-aged man and woman shouldn't have a beautiful and soul-satisfying platonic friendship that would not poach on the preserves of either the man's wife or the woman's husband. Many a man adores his wife because she is gentle and sweet and has lived the sheltered life and has been kept unspotted from the world, and because all of her thoughts center around her home. He wouldn't have her any other way.

He wouldn't have her brilliant and argumentative and sophisticated and cynical. But none the less now and then he likes to talk to a woman whose life and experience and point of view are entirely opposite from his wife's.

And it's the same way with a woman. She may be perfectly satisfied with her husband, and she wouldn't change him for any other man on earth, but she gets a kick out of meeting men who discuss with her topics in which her husband has no interest.

It's just that we all like change and variety in people as we do in food and environment. It's the same that makes us relish a restaurant dinner occasionally, even if it isn't as good as the one we would have gotten at home.

Undoubtedly life would have a lot of zest added to it if married people could indulge in these harmless friendships. But the trouble is that the great majority of husbands and wives demand to be all-in-all to their spouses, and would not be able to take a broad and impersonal view of these little adventures in comradeship.

"What's the matter with taking me for a ride?" wife would demand. "If you want somebody to talk to, here I am right on the spot." And it would be awkward to explain to her that you had heard everything she had to say a million times, and that you were yearning for novelty.

And what excuse could you give your wife for leaving her at home when you took your lady friend riding? Of course, it is true that it cramps your style to have a third party listening in, even if you are discussing a thing as impersonal as the Einstein theory, but you couldn't offer that as a convincing alibi to even the most trusting Dumb Dora.

And, if the husband has the right to spend his spare time with a congenial lady friend, the wife has an equal right to find solace in the society of some entertaining gentleman, and that might be another pair of sleeves. Also, as I remarked in the beginning, there are the neighbors and what they would say about the situation would be aplenty.

So I fear, R. S. V. P., that your beautiful dream of liberty in the home pound, of being married yet free, of having a wife and no chaperin, must wait for fulfillment until we are far more advanced in liberality of thought than we are at the present moment.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a married woman 21 years old. Have been married seven months. I have kept on with my job since I married and I have to rush home from work, cook, plan meals, wonder what I am without in the way of household supplies, etc., and it makes me so tired and nervous that I am crabby, and the outcome of the whole thing is fuss and quarrels. Our home life is very unpleasant, but my husband insists that I continue working. I was so happy and carefree before I married that I wish that I had had sense enough to stay as I was. I am tired of trying to hold up two jobs. I want a few hours to rest and to make myself beautiful. Everybody tells me I am beautiful, but how long will my good looks last at this terrific speed? S. L.

Answer—Not long, S. L. There are mighty few men in the world who have the physical and mental ability to do two men's work and carry on two different occupations, and not one woman in a thousand can do it without bringing a mental and physical breakdown on herself.

No woman who works outside of her home should try to work in it. If she earns the money to buy the food, she should not have to cook it. If she gives the best of herself to her employer, and she is cheating him if she doesn't, she hasn't much left to give to the care of her home.

You can't concentrate on your job and half of your mind busy wondering whether the things in the fireless cooker are coming on right or not, and trying to remember to get the butter and the sugar on your way home.

Any woman, who hasn't the strength of an ox, comes home from her day's work at an office or store utterly worn out, and if to that fatigue she adds the labor of cleaning up the house and getting dinner, her outraged body will protest in frayed nerves and irritability. What she needs is to lie down and rest, and have some good hot food that somebody else has prepared for her.

These are the facts in the case, my dear, and you and your husband should have enough sense to face them and so avert a tragedy. For if you don't your marriage is going on the rocks. Your proposition is perfectly simple. Either give up your job or give up trying to do your own housework. You can do either one and keep yourself serene and amiable, and healthy and well, but if you try to do both you will be a peevish wreck.

If your husband makes enough money to support the family, stay at home. Meet him with a glad, sweet smile and give him a good dinner and keep yourself young and beautiful. If he can't make enough money by himself to support the family, keep your job but give up your house, and go to live at some nice boarding place.

But don't try to be a business woman by day and a cook by night. If you do, you will ruin your health and wreck your marriage.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I know a young couple who have been keeping steady company for eight years but who will never marry because they belong to different religious denomination and neither will go the other's way. The man gives the girl expensive presents which she expects, although she states that she will never in the wide world marry him and join his church and he is equally set against joining hers. They are out together three or four nights a week and he camps half the night at her home. Don't you think that unless they are going to get married the girl shouldn't take these presents and that they should give each other up? INQUISITIVE.

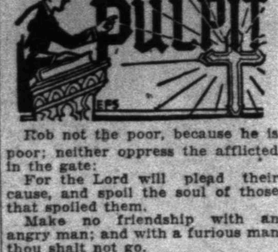

Answer—It is fair to presume that the young man doesn't give the girl handsome presents unless he can afford to, and unless he enjoys spending his money upon her.

The chief pleasure that men get out of money is in buying lovely things for the women they love, and in lavishing upon them jewels and the gay silken finery they can't wear themselves. So there is no use in wasting any pity on the man on that score, and if he is monopolizing the girl's time and society, he certainly owes her some return on that count.

But to me there is nothing more tragic than that a man and woman who love each other should let what they call their "religion" come between them. Real religion, which is the love of God, should draw people together. And the pity of it is that they can not see that different creeds do not matter. For creeds are just so many different paths leading up to Him.

DOROTHY DIX.

The ONE-MINUTE PULPIT

Rob not the poor, because he is poor; neither oppress the afflicted in the gate:

For the Lord will plead their cause, and spoil the soul of those that spoiled them.

Be not thou one of them that strike hands, or of them that are sureties for debts.—Proverbs: 22: 22-26.

FAIR DECISION.

VIENNA.—Since the very beginning of time, women, vain and heartless creatures, have enjoyed the combat of man against man to win her favor. So when Miss Linde Weiss, Vienna, could not decide which one of her two suitors, Albert Hampel and Hans Kugel, was the better man, she took them to a cafe and required that they compete in a beer drinking duel, the drinker with the greatest capacity winning her heart and hand. The novel duel was fought with quart tankards of beer and after the thirteenth tankard, Albert Hample downed Hans Kugel, who could hold no more. Hample and Linde Weiss walked away to live happy ever after.

Don't Think
The Landlord
Is Necessary

There will always be landlords and renters. There will always be some families which, for one reason or another, will turn over a good part of the earnings to a landlord every month.

But the necessity for landlords no longer exists. The family that wants to quit paying rent will find that, through our method, the same money will purchase a home of its own.

THE START OF TUBERCULOSIS.

Tuberculosis of the lungs rarely occurs in an acute form. Quick consumption, or galloping consumption, is the name given acute tuberculosis, but this form is rare and is almost the same as an attack of pneumonia. It is difficult to tell the difference until the eighth or tenth day, when the condition becomes more aggravated, with sweating and expectoration of greenish, muco-purulent sputum.

Most cases of acute tuberculosis do not get well, but die between the first and third months. If proper treatment were started at the beginning of the attack the death rate could be materially cut down. A few cases that do recover generally settle into cases of chronic tuberculosis.

The majority of cases of pulmonary tuberculosis are of the ulcerative type and begin in one of the lungs, usually in the apex or top lobe. Outside of the cases which have developed from galloping consumption, the onset of tuberculosis is generally quite gradual. There will be months, and even years of noticeable enervation.

The one who finally develops tuberculosis always has a tight, almost immovable diaphragh. The chest is small and extremely narrow at the lower ribs. Night sweats often begin quite early in this disease, and the patient will feel as tired in the morning as when he went to bed. A slight cough will develop, but usually only after months of weakness and increasing depression. The patient has plenty of warning, even before tuberculosis can be said to have developed into its incipient stage.

The steady decrease in the number of deaths from pulmonary tuberculosis is probably due mostly to the fact that widespread publicity has been given in recent years to the dissemination of information about this disease. The anti-tuberculosis societies have helped a great deal by warning people to avoid becoming over-tired. The good work of these societies could be multiplied many times if they would also start teaching every man, woman and child to take deep breathing exercises and thus develop strong diaphragms.

Much harm is being done by those who advocate "stuffing" for the cure of tuberculosis.

In tomorrow's article I will explain the proper method of treatment for incipient tuberculosis.

QUESTION: C. W. writes: "I have what the doctors call a gastric stomach. Was all right till two months ago. Was told to eat soft foods. Have been doing that but I still suffer from the gas which comes up about two hours after eating. No pain, except that it bothers my heart. The gas will move up and down, and I have to sip hot water to get relief."

ANSWER—The word "gastric" means stomach, so you were apparently mistaken about what the doctor said. He doubtless said you were suffering from gastritis which means inflammation of the stomach, as your symptoms seem to indicate that this is your trouble. Nothing could be worse for you than to take the "soft foods." The irritation in your stomach is not produced by foods which are too coarse, but rather by an over amount of hydrochloric acid in the gastric juice. The "soft" diet given for gastritis actually produces more trouble and is exactly the wrong diet for you to take. Leave out sugars and starches and balance your meals properly if you wish to get rid of excessive gas and stomach irritation. Drink a large amount of water between meals to keep the digestive fluids diluted until they naturally reduce in quantity because of your change to a correct diet.

QUESTION: Mrs. R. P. J. writes "Will you please explain through the health column what is meant by "dextrinized" food?"

ANSWER—Dextrinized food is that which has been thoroughly toasted or browned all the way through, thus changing any starch that particular food may have into what is called dextrose. In this form the digestive organs are saved much work, as the dextrinizing process prepares the food for immediate assimilation. When the starch, itself, is eaten it must be converted into a substance similar to dextrose before it can be assimilated.

Did You Know That—

By BLONDY CROSS

HEH, HEH.

Steengrafe was booked to throw at the Steers yesterday, but Manager Carl Williams made a strategical shift during the morning upon receiving letters from three feminine fans urging that "high-forehead" Payne be trotted out for "Ladies' Day" service. "We've seen enough of Mr. Steengrafe and would like to look at handsome George again in his try for that twentieth victory," one of the maidens (?) penned.

Johnny Buvid, the mighty marine returned to the club Monday. Johnny's league, the Lone Star, has finished for 1927 so he's back with his "father" club, the Spudders. Gardner expects to develop a hurler of big league caliber out of Buvid.

COULDN'T BLAME 'EM.

Carpenters and the like began work Monday getting the park in shape for the Dixie series and taking preliminary steps toward increasing the seating capacity. But there wasn't much accomplished, for the noble workmen dropped their tools, flopped to reclining positions in the knothole gang's grandstand promptly at 4 o'clock and watched the Spudder-Steer imbroglio the rest of the afternoon.

If the "two-base hit" by Tate scoring Dallas' run in the seventh wasn't foul by a yard then Umpire George Barr never miscalled one in all his life. Lamb was crossing the line at full gallop as he lunged forward after the ball which tipped his glove and fell to the turf making the play fairly hard too call but not so difficult that an arbiter should miss so flagrantly. But it didn't matter.

Fitzgerald is batting in poor luck. Hilarity Howard slammed a pair yesterday squarely on the snout, but they were pointed in the wrong direction, Sanguinet in center pulling them down without moving far out of his tracks.

CRACKS FROM CONSUMERS.

Dear Blondy:

While everybody is picking All Star teams and picking such stars as Tut Jenkins, Max West, Fred Fussell, Ken Penner, Fred Frankhouse, Bill Sweeney and that set of stars there is what might be called the second class of stars who should be remembered. Here is a team of players, that very few have picked and who have been playing great ball. They would give those other teams a mighty hot race.

Catchers, Berry, Dallas; Murphy, Waco.
First base, Riley, Dallas.
Second base, Philbin, San Antonio.
Third base, Richardson, Fort Worth.
Shortstop, Windle, Waco.
Centerfield, Mulvey, Dallas.
Right field, Gill, Shreveport.
Pitchers, Messenger, San Antonio; Kiefer, Wichita Falls; Wachtel, Burns and Pate of Fort Worth; E. Love and Shuman, Dallas; Williamson of Shreveport.

Take that team and let Jakie Atz or Carl Williams manage it and that would be hard to stop. If you want a utility man, why not pick up Rabbit Benton from Wichita Falls to go with it.

ICHIBOD TURNER.

Dear Sirs: Att. Mr. Blondy Cross.
Would like for you to reserve a place for myself and wife on the "Old Dixie Special" and give us the details as soon as possible.
Yours very truly,
J. A. BATES.

Answer: Aye, aye, sir. You're case referred to chamber of commerce.

Dear Blondy:
What do you think of this for an all star club:
Ran Moore, Waco, right field.
West, Waco, centerfield.
Jenkins, Wichita Fallsh, left field.
Sweeney, Fort Worth, first base.
Kilduff, Shreveport, second base.
Hock, Houston, shortstop.
Tom Taylor, Houston, third base.
Robertson, Beaumont, catcher.
Warwick, Houston, catcher.
Fussell, Wichita Falls, pitcher.
Slim Love, Dallas, pitcher.
Frankhouse, Houston, pitcher.
Penner, Houston, pitcher.
Tom Estell, Wichita Falls, pitcher.
JOHN W. F., FAN.

Answer: Sure, they all are stars. I don't want to argue.

Mac and Gene Issue Defi to Golf World

NEW YORK, Aug. 22. (AP)—One of those old John L. Sullivan defis, no one barred, has been issued by MacDonald Smith and Gene Sarazen, more or less prominent in the world of golf.

Smith and Sarazen have challenged any two golfers in the country to take part in a 72-hole match for $2500 a side. The conditions of the match are that the first 36 holes be played on the Lakeville club at Great Neck, N. Y., October 2, the remaining half of the match to be held on any course selected by the pair who accept the challenge.

Radio beams of power will light and heat homes, and electric waves drive trains and airplanes, it is predicted.

Payne Hurls 3 to 1 Victory Over Dallas

Lone Steer Run Scored On "Doubtful" Base Blow By Tate—Owens Cracks in Eighth And Donates Game

By BLONDY CROSS.

Another old soldier finally came into his own Monday afternoon on the Gardner battle ground. That tireless veteran, Old George Washington Payne, the Spudder work horse, broke into the victory column with 20 games won, capturing his twentieth by hurling almost spotless ball to turn back the scrappy Dallas Steers by a 3 to 1 score.

It was very much Payne all the way. At only one stage did the veteran look like faltering and that was in the seventh when a doubtful base blow sent a Dallas player scurrying across the dish for the enemy's only marker. That "doubtful" safety came in the form of a two-cushion drive to right that looked suspiciously like a foul ball. Bagwell was on second. Tate furnished the scoring clout.

The sturdy Payne was put on his mettle by the husky Tiny Owens from the initial gong to the last. The Dallas pitcher heaved a nobby brand himself. Both moundsmen were tagged for six base hits. Two of the Spudder runs came as a result of a flurry of wildness uncorked by Owens in the eighth round. Otherwise, the huge Steer tosser gave the Spudder veteran a bitter run for the victory wreath.

Inability of the Steers to find the wily Payne for safe hits at the crucial stages of the battle alibis the Dallas end of the melee. Ability to snatch the breaks and take the utmost advantage of them by the league leaders tells the Spudder side of the argument.

Payne Knocks Run In.

Wichita Falls rang the scoring bell first, tabbing a run in the second. Swenson whipped a hot bounder to short that Manager Ewell Gross handled to perfection, retiring the fiery Swede at first base. But George LaFayette followed with a zooming two-base drive to left center. He went to third base when Gross turned back Cobb on the latter's roller to short. Then Payne himself after fouling several and getting two strikes and one ball, tapped a gentle single to right field scoring LaFayette. Fitzgerald retired with a rocket to center.

There were two out in the seventh when Big Bill Bagwell hulled one of George's offerings for a double to right center. Jodie Tate followed with a drive to right that Lamb almost snagged and it certainly looked like it fell in foul territory whether or not caught. The umpire ruled the hit a safe one. Bagwell scored and Tate drew up at second. Payne protested lustily and then walked Gross but Owens bounded out to the box.

We Get Lucky.

Then the breaks came home. Your Spudders scored two runs in the eighth without the essence of a base blow. Fitzgerald, first at the platter, pulled Owens for a pass. Turgeon laid down a sacrifice bunt. Owens fielded the ball and threw late to second by a hair in an effort to force Fitzgerald. That play was a mighty close one. Then Benton dropped a bunt between the box and third. Owens scooped the pill and flung madly to Tate, trying to cut Fitz away at the hot corner. Another close call, but the arbiter ruled all hands safe. The bases were filled and nobody was out. Dallas players stormed around Umpire Countryman who for the first time in his life seemed to give Wichita Falls the advantage of the doubt. There was no decision reversal. With Lamb at bat, Owens uncorked a wild pitch and Fitz scored. Turgeon and Benton each moved up a hassock. Lamb shot one at the box and was thrown out at first, Turgeon holding third. Jenkins walked. Swenson fouled out to Catcher Berry and then Owens gave us another run, passing LaFayette and forcing Turgeon home. Cobb aviated to Sanguinet in center.

Payne Fans Eight.

Payne retired Dallas in order in the ninth. That the veteran meant business was seen from the beginning when he turned back the Bovines one, two, three in the first round, closing the chukker by striking out Diester. Diester had it hard all the way, fanning three times. Payne whiffed eight in all. He walked two. The Spudders fielded flawlessly behind the oldtimer but at no stage were forced to hump it. They just naturally weren't hitting George hard.

SPORTS SELL GILL

SHREVEPORT, La., Aug. 22. (AP) Sale of Outfielder John Gill of Shreveport to Cleveland of the American league was announced today by the Shreveport baseball club. Gill is a left handed batter and a right handed thrower. He was bought several weeks ago by Shreveport from Alexandria of the Cotton States league and began his career in 1925 with Knoxville, of the South Atlantic league. Gill is 22 years old and lives at Nashville.

BUFFS FINALLY GET HEADS UP

Junior Cards Beat Cellar Battalion Twice

HOUSTON, Aug. 22.(AP) —Larry Jacobus, veteran spit baller and Albert Grabowski, portsider, were in fine fettle and the Houston Buffs grabbed a pair of games, Monday from the Beaumont Exporters, 7-1, and 3-1. Jacobus held the visitors to four blows in the initial encounter, while Grabowski gave up but three bingles in the second affray. "Slim" Darrough, left hander, and Pat Townsend twirled excellent baseball but were given lamentable support by their mates, several of whom are rookies. In the first fracas Johnny Kane of the home team, turned in the most scintillating fielding game seen here this season, cutting off three blows that seemed certain base knocks. The score:

G. Washington Cracks 20 Mark

In the years to come when the hot stove leaguers are recalling that 1927 Texas league season and how the Spudders took the lead from the gong and held it right on through to the end, there is one man they certainly will not overlook in their discussions. He is George Washington Payne, the veteran righthander purchased from the Coast league the past winter by J. Alvin Gardner, and who has worked more innings than any other Spudder pitcher. For awhile, Payne carried the bulk of the relief work and was in there nearly every other day while Carl Williams was bringing along the rest of his staff slowly until he had pieced together a sure-fire pennant machine hitting on all cylinders. Payne cracked the 20 mark in victories Monday, turning back the tough Dallas club by a 3-1 score. Fred Frankhouse, the Houston hurler, was the first to break 20 games this season, Payne the second. And George expects to win several more before the season closes September 11.

TIGERS WIN THIRTEENTH.

DETROIT, Aug. 22. (AP)—Detroit's winning streak grew to thirteen games today as the Tigers defeated Washington in both sections of a double-header, 4 to 2 and 7 to 3. Sam Gibson held the Senators to five hits in the opening half and deserved a shutout.

Both of Washington's runs were due to Fothergill's failure to hold McNeely's line drive in the fifth.

Home runs by Heilmann and McManus off Walter Johnson in the fourth inning of the second game put the Tigers ahead after Washington had taken a two-run lead in the second game. The score:

"SPECS" SHOWS HOW

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 22. (AP)—Ed Taber, bespectacled left-hander of the Pittsfield team of the Eastern league, defeated Bridgeport, 2 to 1 and 3 to 0 Sunday afternoon and allowed only a scratch hit in the second game. He pitched to only 28 batters in the second game and failed to issue a base on balls. In the two contests he allowed but five hits.

But Indians Take Yankees In Fourth Straight

CLEVELAND, Aug. 22. (AP)—The Cleveland Indians ran New York's losing streak to four games today by defeating the Yankees 9 to 4 for a clean sweep of the series.

Babe Ruth hit his 40th home run of the season with none on in the sixth inning, taking the lead of one over Lou Gehrig in the race for distance clouting honors. Urban Shocker, right hander, who relieved Wilcey Moore on the Yankee mound in the seventh inning, suffered a broken finger when J. Sewell's fourth hit of the game caromed off his left hand.

ELECTRA LOSES

ELECTRA, Aug. 22.—The Electra All-Stars lost a hard fought battle to Frederick in the Cotton Oil league Sunday by an 8 to 6 score. The winners tallied six times in the first four innings which gave them an apparently safe lead, but a five-run rally in the sixth by Electra tied the score. Faulconer relieved Higgins after the sixth and held the visitors scoreless the rest of the way.

Ray went the entire route for Electra and was hit hard throughout the game. Rinehart led the sluggers with a triple and two singles out of five trips to the plate, and Shaw, Scott and Wade collected two each.

A $40,000,000 PLANT

Behind Budweiser Real Hop Malt Syrup is the finest plant of its kind in the world, a $40,000,000 structure comprising more than 110 separate buildings and covering more than 70 city blocks. A million-dollar unit is devoted just to sorting, grading, cleaning and malting the natural barley grains.

This entire plant is designed, built and equipped for malting. Facilities for the proper storage of barleys and hops are provided. Every operation is done by automatic machines built to standards set by Anheuser-Busch. And every step of manufacture is under the watchful guidance of the world's foremost maltsters.

It takes a plant like this—an organization like that of Anheuser-Busch—and the experience of Anheuser-Busch—to produce a malt as good as Budweiser Real Hop Malt Syrup. Do you know of any other place on earth where such a combination can be found?

SPORTS through Edgren's EYES

KIND WORDS

Writes Uncle Jake, Dallas sports columnist:

Well, customers, it looks like part o' th' Dixie Serious, is goin' t' cum off in Wichita County.

They is jsit one thing fer me t' git inny satisfacshun out o' th' Texas Leag season an' that is Houston didn't win. Th' Buffs is owned by outside interests an' I wanta see Texas money stay in Texas so long as it aint me what's talkin' it out.

* * *

Blondy Cross an' th' other sport riters up in Wichita kin git set t' have a lot o' fun. It's great stuff t' rite sports whin yer nine is up there in th' lead an' winnin' th' pinnint. Ya kin rite two columns 'fore breakfast with yer left hand an' then' have time t' press yer extry pair o' pants.

* * *

'Nother thing 'bout Wichita winnin' what pleases me is just Alvin Gardner is president o' th' nine up there. They dont maik 'em inny better then Alvin an' so long as men like him an' Tav Lupton is 'head o' ball clubs we kin depind on th' Texas League bein' clean an' square.

A fight fan is the most patient individual on earth. A fight fan can be charged $40 and handed a ticket entitling him to stand on a collapsible wooden bench 75 rows removed from the ring in which the fight he wanted to see is going on, with 74 rows of taller gents standing on the wooden benches in front of him. A fight fan will send his money in to the promoter six weeks in advance, and then accept seats a Philadelphia block from the ring instead of the near-ringside he should be entitled to because of his early application. He knows that he can't buy a Real Ringside Seat unless he gets it from a Speculator at the Speculator's Price, because the Boxing Commission must have a Fat Allotment of Free Seats for themselves, and be allowed to Purchase a couple of thousand more seats Not Too Far from the ring for their Friends' Friends. And the Politicians must get Their Share of Front Row Seats and Choice Seats at that. Besides, the Group of Club Backers and Stockholders must be Taken Care Of before the Public gets anything for its money, and the Friends of the Stockholders. Each Stockholder roars for 250 tickets. Then there are the Visiting Politicians from Other States where a fight may be promoted some time, and they bring some of Their Friends. There are also the Mayor and the Heads of City Departments, and a Complete Coterie of Gate Crashers who can't be kept out because they have a Genuine Pull at the Capitol and keep their car in the same garage patronized by the Governor.

* * *

It has come about that the Ordinary Fight Fan is about as welcome at the Box Office as an ant in a sugar barrel. Before every Big Fight he is impressed with the idea that he is being done a Real Favor when the ticket seller takes his genuine money and hands him a phony "ringside seat" only four blocks away and around the corner from the ring.

Yet the Ordinary Fan is the Guy who Pays and Pays.

Roberto Roberti, an Italian heavyweight, is said to be able to grip an ordinary building brick in his terrible mauleys and snap it in two like a soda cracker. If he fails as a fighter he can get a job as a bricklayer, so he won't be a dead loss.

La Barba to Give Up Throne

There will be a vacancy in the Flyweight championship after September. Fidel LaBarba, the champion, says he will retire and go to college. He will take a course to prepare himself for business, and never draw on the gloves again professionally. LaBarba has cleaned up about $100,000, which is pretty good money for a flyweight. His idea in becoming a professional boxer was to earn enough to cover the expenses of a college course, and he seems to have been fairly successful. That hundred grand ought to buy his frat pin and all the books he'll need.

When LaBarba began fighting professionally a dozen or so of his amateur club mates followed his example. They were all great amateurs. One, Jackie Fields, has done fairly well, and some of the others have made enough to keep their faces manicured after each fight, but LaBarba's success hasn't been duplicated. Going from an amateur to a professional title isn't much of a snap.

Jim Jeffries, once the greatest of heavyweight champions, is planning a trip to Australia and New Zealand to do a little vaudeville. He may go on around the world on a pleasure jaunt. Jeff's friends will be glad to learn that he is no longer "broke." Speculators took away his spare cash three or four years ago with mining and oil well schemes, but he now owns a large hunk of the town of Burbank, in Southern California, the town having grown around his home ranch, which has been cut up into city blocks.

Willie Ritchie, lightweight world's champion a dozen years ago, is fighting again. Ritchie's comeback has been successful to date. He has fought two or three of the "clever" new welters, and has made them look foolish. Ritchie is showing the present day fight fans just what real boxing looks like. The art has been almost forgotten in these days when "cleverness" is measured by the dancing steps a boxer indulges in. Willie puzzled his opponents by feinting them into knots. They hadn't seen real feinting before, that being one of the forgotten arts. His footwork was a puzzle too, being all straight ahead instead of consisting of a buck and wing effect complicated with St. Vitus dance. If Willie goes along as well as he has started he is going to be very unpopular in our younger set of boxers, who would rather dance than be punched in the nose.

Ritchie has kept in shape by playing golf.

AFTER MANDELL AGAIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 22. (AP)—An appeal to the national boxing commission to compel Sammy Mandell to defend his lightweight boxing title against Sid Terris has been made by Promoter Humbert Fugazy. A similar protest recently was made by Abe Katz, manager of Terris.

A stray ball bounced off a careless limb belonging to Joe Dugan and now the Yankee third baseman has a "hickey," said to be as large as an orange. Bet California folk get jealous when they read this.

By NORMAN E. BROWN

Just how long can Babe Ruth accept gracefully the success of Lou Gehrig, now outshining him as a home run hitter?

This isn't an idle question.

Babe Ruth is only human—with the normal amount of pride, the normal desire to ride the high road and the ordinary desire to hold his income at the peak.

Gehrig now threatens to dim Ruth's glory and in direct ratio share the dollars that have been tossed in Ruth's path of late.

Ruth's measure of magnanimity under the circumstances may have a direct bearing on the closing results in the American league.

Babe Ruth carries considerable of the prima donna in his makeup. He likes the spotlight. He always did. He has not changed since the early days of his career, except in that he has learned to control himself—through bitter experiences.

Were Ruth to kick over the traces he would not only demoralize the team's play in some measure, but would remove his own batting power from the team's offensive.

As Ruth goes, so go the Yankees.

It must be said in the Babe's favor that so far he has handled the situation in a generous fashion—has been one of Lou's biggest boosters.

A triumph for the French tennis stars, now in our midst, in the coming Davis cup matches and the national tourney will write a meaty chapter in the history of the net game.

Big Bill Tilden and Little Bill Johnston are bound to be the mainstays of America in the defense of Dwight Davis' famous trophy. Tilden has played in 12 singles matches in the Davis cup struggles and has been defeated but once. Little Bill Johnston has been beaten by a French player but once in his tennis career.

Tilden fell before Rene La Coste in a four-set match in the challenge round of the cup games last fall—his first defeat individually in the blue ribbon event.

Little Bill lost to Jean Borotra in the fourth round of the United States national tourney after seemingly having the match under his thumb.

If the French turn back the American team in the cup clashes it will be the first time that Tilden or Johnston have been on a defeated Davis cup team.

It will be the first time during their reign in the net world that the cup has been taken from America.

If La Coste repeats in the national singles he will be the first foreigner, at least in modern times, to win the title two years in succession—surely the first Frenchman to achieve such distinction.

Glory aplenty awaits these intrepid invaders.

* * *

France, riding on the crest in the tennis world, threatening in golf, plans as her next move a victory in the Olympic games. This victory may not come in 1928. France has not the material to match America, Finland and Germany at this short notice. But France is going into the next games with that end in view—adding the track and field laurels to her international honors.

Her participation in the games at Amsterdam was made possible recently when M. Coty stepped into the breach and produced 2,000,000 francs to finance preparations for the games. The French government had just voted down a similar appropriation on the plea of straightened financial conditions.

France has the determination to produce a winning Olympic team. Year after year, as America continued to rule the tennis world with ridiculous ease the French net enthusiasts plugged away. Year by year Cochet, Borotra, La Coste and Brugnon came forward a bit more until last year—as the sporting world knows—they won the honors in the U. S. national tourney and forced the American defenders to fight with their backs to the wall to hold the coveted Davis trophy.

France already has some feminine net stars who will demand sooner or later the place in the sun held by Suzanne Lenglen and Helen Wills.

In golf, France has long been a factor, and in Mlle. Simone de la Chaume now has a feminine star who will be reckoned within a year or two.

France produced Georges Carpentier and Eugene Criqui and other good boxers and is now seeking younger stars to replace them.

And now come the Olympics.

The United States led the other nations in 1924 by a wide margin. The points scored by Uncle Sam's representatives totaled 94. France took second place with 64 and Finland ranked third with 44 1-4, thanks to the running of Nurmi et al.

The French entrants won firsts in rifle shooting; with the foils and the epee (a type of sword), at water polo and cycling. Second, third and fourth places in these and other events brought up the total.

The French now have their hearts set, however, on developing sprinters and field athletes to compete with the American contingent, Finland, England and Germany.

There is a general feeling that the French government erred in refusing to back the Olympic team at a time when France's athletic star is in the ascendancy.

CALL OFF THE COPS.

CHICAGO.—When William Williams reported to police that his car was stolen he did not expect quite such prompt action. Two days later detectives Harry O'Donnell and Frank McDonald reported that the car had been recovered i Milwaukee where one Roy Willoughby had been caught driving it recklessly. So Williams got a warrant. But two days later Williams discovered that Roy Willoughby was not Willoughby at all. "Do you know who the man is?" the police inquired. "Yes, he is Roy Williams, my brother. I want to kill that warrant."

BRAVES SMACK CHICAGO AGAIN

Pirates Now Two and Half Games Behind Cubs

BOSTON, Aug. 22. (AP)—By winning their third straight victory over the league leading club today, 5 to 3, the Braves cut down the margin of the Cubs over the second place Pittsburgh club to two and one-half games. Two unearned runs in the eighth settled the issue for the Braves. Beck, English and Webb made misplays and Farrell, Clark and Robertson followed with base hits.

Ed Brown of Boston, set a new National League record when he played in his 534th consecutive game. The previous record 523 games was held by Fred Luderus of Philadelphia. The score:

Berly Return Only Flop

Other Ring Resurrections Prosper

Of these four big time scrappers trying to stage a comeback this year only Paul Berlenbach has so far failed. Jack Dempsey, Mike McTigue and Willie Ritchie are galloping right along.

The Comeback club, exclusive society of former fight kings in quest of their thrones, has had but one big disappointment this year. He is Paul Berlenbach, a whale of a champ when he was one, but now so far gone in age and softened muscles, folks won't let him fight any more.

The other members of the comeback club have made a more or less success of this, the year of the big comebacks.

First off, there is Mike McTigue. Mike was what some of the boys are unkind enough to term a cheese champion. His exhibitions in the ring before and during the time the golden headgear chafed his Irish ears were pretty sorry affairs. After he was divested of his title the old Irish blood welled up in Mike and he returned with a rush.

The Mick lammed his way back into a commanding position among light heavyweight contenders and when Jack Delaney decided he was too big and brawny for his class his title went back to Mike. McTigue's first test as a second-time champ comes when he meets Tommy Loughran in October. We'll know then whether his comeback dash was the goods or just a fluke.

Jack Dempsey today is really the king of comebacks though he is still shy of his title. When Dempsey was matched to meet Jack Sharkey the scribes had their usual laugh, which again, as usual, turned sour. Dempsey is the greatest puzzle the prize ring ever had. He beat the supposedly superior Willard, fought poorly against a weaker Gibbons, lost his title to Tunney who was rated by "experts" as a setup and beat Sharkey, the first man since Willard to be a favorite against him.

The third member of the comeback row still reported in the running is Willie Ritchie, ancient lightweight. Ritchie has been going about taking on some boys for some extra dough but the leaders of the division aren't worrying, because, in a recent fight, Ritchie barely escaped a kayo.

Still another comeback is to be tried by Jack Britton, the old-time welter king. Britton will take somebody on by the name of Irish Tommy Jordan at New York this month despite the fact that Britton has been in and out of prize rings for 24 years.

He was discharged from his post at Zion City after it was established that he and a young lady attended the Libertyville motion picture house, thereby breaking the Zionist taboo law against cinemas.

MATMEN MIX TUESDAY NIGHT

Roughhouse Battlers Billed For Finish Scraps

THE CARD

Yaqui Joe, Sonora, Mexico, versus Silvio Checco, Houston. Welterweights, two falls to a finish.

Place: Ross stadium.

Time: 8:15 o'clock Tuesday night.

The above is the wrestling program carded for tonight in the open air arena on Indiana between Tenth and Eleventh as announced last week by Matchmaker A. B. Ross. Whether or not the card holds good, whether or not any of the principals have come up with injuries or illness could not be ascertained Monday by the Record News sports editor, all efforts to locate the promoter being futile. He was in the city, different fans having seen him, but for some reason or other omitted the formality of notifying the sports editor yesterday in regard to final arrangement for tonight's show.

If all the wrestlers are on hand and perform, the customers may be assured they will see plenty of action. Neither Reed nor Mantell ever have been known to loaf on the job. Both give their utmost with the idea of winning regardless of the methods used.

Yaqui Joe and Checco are hustlers. Fairly evenly matched and a feeling of enmity between them developed by a rough encounter here last week, they should wage a noble fight tonight.

Spot Turns To Southern Race

Pels Open Five-Day Stand In Birmingham

Milt Steengrafe has been chosen to stop the Dallas Steers in the second game of the series Tuesday afternoon.

McColl is Manager Gross' probazle starter, he said yesterday.

Game starts at 4 o'clock. It is the next to last melee on the home card, the Spudders moving out Wednesday night on the final road jaunt of the year.

With the Texas flag practically sewed up by Wichita Falls, heavy attention switches to the Southern association race as the Spudders, 10 games out front, prepare for the Dixie series.

New Orleans, one game ahead of Birmingham, opens a five-day stand in the ballwick of the Barons this afternoon. So tight is the Southern scramble that should Birmingham win today they will be one point ahead of the Pels, or practically tied for top honors. This series which entails seven games should make one team and break the other.

Field Looms as Rival To Seminole

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, Aug. 22.—Plans by the Mazda Oil company to transfer Monday to the Red Bank Oil company control of their joint No. 1 M. A. Smith, a smaller flow by the well than was reported Friday, and the pinching in further of other producers were the chief developments in Pecos county over the week-end. Meanwhile the Illinois Pipeline company and the Humble Pipeline company speeded up the construction of their pipelines from the field to Del Rio and Kemper, respectively, to partly relieve the production situation now far in excess of facilities.

Due to the extension of the Pecos county wonder shallow field last week and indications that, if opened up, it would rival Seminole it is expected that the United Producers Pipeline company, pipeline division of the Trans-Continental, will not longer delay its plans for a pipeline from the area, either to a point on the Orient or the Southern Pacific railroads.

Unconfirmed reports are to the effect that the Mid-Kansas Oil & Gas company, developer of joint holdings with the Trans-Continental in Pecos county, will erect a large refinery in connection with its huge tank farm two miles east of Del Rio and that the Southern Pacific will be one of the heavy users of its fuel oil.

Julius C. Livingston left San Angelo Saturday night for Tulsa, his home and headquarters of the Mazda and Red Bank companies, where, he announced, transfer of control of the No. 1 Smith from the Red Bank to the Mazda would be made Monday. The Mazda drilled the well for 80 acres that adjoin on the east, the 140 acres on which the producer is located.

Build Tank Farm

Thirty miles of pipe have been strung for the Illinois eight-inch line from the Yates field toward the tank farm being built by the Mid-Kansas two miles east of Del Rio. Three crews are at work. The tank farm will be the largest in Texas, consisting of 25 80,000-barrel tanks providing storage for 2,000,000 barrels of oil. Humble also rushing work on its eight-inch line from the field to Kemper, via a connection with the Humble 10-inch line leading from McCamey to Ingleside, near Corpus Christi. The eight-inch lines from the Yates field will have a capacity of around 20,000 barrels daily, each, which with the Illinois' eight and six-inch lines now in use will increase the pipeline facilities to around 72,000 barrels. This, however, will not be adequate if all Pecos county's wells, now numbering 16, were opened.

The Trans-Continental Saturday spudded its No. 1 Blackstone and Slaughter in Pecos county.

Simms Oil company No. 2 Devlin, in section 2, J. C. Duval survey had drilled to 1.93 feet at the last report.

Seminole Field In Slight Decrease

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 22.—A slight production increase was noted in the greater Seminole field and the proration area, when figures yesterday morning revealed the total as 444,187 barrels.

The gain in the greater field Saturday morning over the previous 24-hour period was 308 barrels while the gain Friday over Thursday was 1903 barrels. The proration district yesterday increased 217 barrels over Friday. Friday's gain over Thursday was 2185 barrels for the proration area.

The Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company's producer in the Little River pool took a 91 barrel jump yesterday from 8038 to 8129 barrels.

Report Slick Test In Sulphur Water

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 22—Reports from the Seminole yesterday stated the T. B. Slick Oil company test in 1-6-6, was shut down temporarily with sulphur water showing from the Simpson at 3941 feet, but it could not be verified.

This test is seven miles south of the Indian Territory's Illuminating Oil company producer in the Little River pool which made 8129 barrels for the 24-hour period ending Saturday morning at 7 o'clock. Because of high prices paid for acreage and royalties around the test when it appeared to be running high in the upper formations, this well is the center of interest for oil men in the Seminole county fields. Scouts and lease buyers have been staying at the well for several days.

EAST OF SHAMROCK

The Texas company at No. 1 Gideon Bell, in section 71, block 13, of H. & G. H. survey, and northeast of Shamrock, in Wheeler county, was drilling below 2308 feet in black gabre.

WHEELER WILDCAT

After testing two sands, one at 1296 feet and the other at 1355 feet, the Consolidated Oil company is drilling at 1500 feet in its No. 1 Wheeler, located in section 56, block 4, H. & T. C. survey, Wilbarger county.

DENTON COUNTY

Big Indian Oil company is drilling at 2840 feet in its No. 1 Forrester, deep Denton county test, located in the J. W. Chandler survey and in the northern portion of the county. All other Denton county tests are reported shut down.

MONTAGUE COUNTY

Gulf Production company is drilling at 460 feet in its No. 1 Mrs. Loy in extreme northern Montague county and in the William Donohoe survey. The test is just a mile south of Red river.

SOUTH BEND

Panhandle Refining company's No. 21 McCluskey has been spudded in and is drilling. It is an offset to No. 7, which is flowing 5200 barrels per day and nearing its first month as a completion.

GOES TO CANADA

F. W. Suggett has departed Wichita Fals to spend the remaining summer days in a cooler clime with his family, he will go to Toronto and Montreal, visiting his brother in the latter city. On the return trip he will sojourn in Chicago a few days.

FOARD COUNTY

Clark, Adkins and Blair have spudded in their wildcat west of Foard county and in section 89, block 44, H. & T. C. survey.

ARCHER COUNTY

C. P. Burton is rigging up in the northeast corner of lot 7, section 98, A. T. N. C. L. survey, eight miles northwest of Archer City.

SOUTH OF GAINESVILLE

Receivers For Company Named

American Refining Joins In Action

DALLAS, Aug. 22. (AP)—Federal Judge William H. Atwell today appointed E. H. Eddleman, J. C. Mytinger, Wichita Falls, and John W. Hooser, Dallas, as receivers for the American Refining company of Wichita Falls, a $4,000,000 concern.

Appointment was made following granting petition for a receivership in which the American Refining company joined.

Receivers were placed under $100,000 bond.

Judge Atwell also granted an injunction restraining other creditors from pressing involunteer bankruptcy proceedings against the company. He will allow general creditors 90 days in which to intervene.

Among lawyers attending the hearing were former Senator Joseph Weldon Bailey, Dallas; Judge H. O. Head and Judge Rice Maxey, Sherman, and Judge Francis, Wichita Falls.

Officials of the American Refining company said Monday the company had joined the Dallas petition in order that complete protection would be afforded all interested in the firm's welfare and operation.

Terry County Test Will Be Deepened

AMARILLO, Aug. 22.—Kingsland Oil and Potash company is not to standardize its No. 1 Ray Brownfield, in section 7, block A-1, of E. L. survey, east of Brownfield in central-eastern Terry county, South Plains area, as it was stated at the well Thursday. This is the well where Kingsland officials said a good gas show was had at 2230 feet. Twelve feet of hole was made Friday and no more gas appeared so the Mauldin Drilling company was told to drill ahead. Unless gas or oil is found the hole will go to 2800 feet before standardizing.

Gasser Is Spraying In Throckmorton Pool

Red Bank Oil company No. 2 Cole, Parrot pool in Throckmorton county, topped the pay at 4282 feet. It is making a heavy spray and is estimated as a0,000,000 cubic feet gasser.

SLOW MARKETS FOR REFINERS

Jobbers Buy Jerkily And Prices Soften

The North Texas and Panhandle refinery markets are slow, with wholesale quotations at the plant softening.

Oklahoma refiners are lowering their prices in order to stop the business that Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas refiners have been getting lately. While the tourist travel is still extensive, jobbers are buying only in a hand-to-mouth fashion and this has the refiners perturbed.

Panhandle refiners are not worried about their gasoline sales as the piling up of cold test fuel oil. Demand, strong months ago, is now light and several plants are almost shut down because of the accumulation of fuel oil. Fuel oil constitutes about 55 to 60 per cent of the recovery of these plants and they are hard pressed to dispose of the material and still have storage room left for gasoline.

Wholesale, or spot prices, in tank car lots of 8000 and 10,000 gallons, f. o. b. the refinery appeared to be as follows:

Bull Tone Built Into Stock Market Outlook As Heads of Banks See Rosy Future For Business

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Business men as a rule look forward to a presidential year with apprehension but this year there appears to be sufficient confidence throughout the country regarding the future. The factor now, however, is the level of commodity prices, which is regarded as a favorable factor. Economists point out that the reason for optimism is that all signs point to good business because of the steadiness of commodity prices.

The money market is in splendid shape. While the present rate is 3 1-2 per cent the leading bankers of Wall street are predicting 3 per cent in the near future. As a result buying of stocks today was on a broader scale and in some banking quarters a bull market lasting six month is confidently expected. Trading in wheat resulted in higher prices while cotton closed steady. Foreign exchange was quiet but firm.

One of the stocks to make the biggest advances for the day was Pressed Steel Car. Its action would indicate that new negotiations are under way, probably with another company, following denial by the General American Tank. Mergers must be effected in this field; Pressed Steel Car could hook up with several other companies.

There was excellent buying of steel common. It is the belief in banking circles that steel should sell at 150 on this move. Orders should come in for steel from the railroads and automobile companies. Railroads on the other hand should profit by the movement of the crops, which are in a favorable condition with the outlook indicating big yields. There has been excellent absorption of standard dividend paying rails such as New York Central, Lehigh Valley, Baltimore and Ohio and Erie. With the fall too far off Erie should profit from the increased coal tonnage over its lines.

American Can sold at a new high and closed strong. A block of stock over-hanging the market has been liquiadted, which should mean clear sailing for the issue. A rise in Famous Players was due to covering by a large short interest. International Telephone was another investment issue to forge to the front. Earnings of this company should show a steady increase because of its additional plant facilities and the increasing of the telephone in foreign countries.

General Motors was active with Arbitrage transactions going on in the old and new. People with fat pocketbooks were selling the new stock to the smaller traders and buying the old, thereby profiting to the extent of a few points.

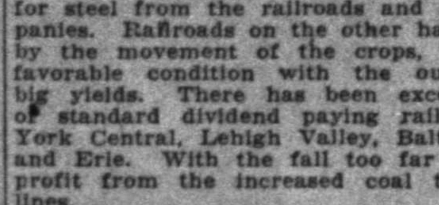

One reason for the optimism about General Motors is that it plans a big selling campaign in foreign countries in small cars, trucks and busses and in Delco light, a light produced from a machine run by gasoline. DuPont is another stock well thought of and fancy prices are predicted for it. DuPont is experiencing a big demand for its chemicals and artificial leather.

The leather business is believed to have turned the corner and this group is expected to come into the limelight. One stock believed to be neglected is Barnet Leather. This stock is expected to go on a $5 dividend basis. Sales of the company's products are understood to be showing a large increase, which would account for the dividend expectations. There are only 40,000 shares of this stock out which had earnings last year of $5 a share. Equity behind the stock is $75 while the preferred has an equity of $402.

Some of the specialties were strong and active. City stores was in demand on buying attributed to strong interests. Earnings for the first six months show an increase of 100 per cent over the first half of last year. Earnings in the second quarter totaled $143,809 against a loss in the same quarter last year of $44,000.

Gabriel Snubbers sold higher among the auto accessories. Earnings in the first half show an increase of 30 per cent over the corresponding period of 1926.

While the gas stocks did not do much, rumors prevailed that a large block of consolidated had been taken over at private sale.

THE CHESAPEAKE CORPORATION.

5-Year Record.

The Chesapeake Corporation was formed recently for the purpose of acquiring control of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway company through acquisition of 600,000 shares of the Chesapeake and Ohio common stock. These shares were acquired from the "Nickel Plate" road, and represented the total holdings of the Vaness company and of the Nickel Plate, both of which concerns are controlled by O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen. It is understood that the transfer was a step in the plans of the Van Sweringens to simplify their interests.

The capital stock of the Chesapeake corporation consists of 900,000 shares of no par value. The funded debt amounts to $48,000,000 in 20 year 5 per cent bonds due in 1947. These are convertible at par after May 15, 1932, into the pledged 600,000 shares of Chesapeake and Ohio stock acquired on organization, at $220 per share. In the event of the issue at par of 595,024 shares of additional common stock by the Chesapeake and Ohio as is now proposed, the conversion price of the pledged stock will become $180 a share.

Earnings of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway company have increased rapidly since 1920. In 1926, they amounted to $24.75 per share on its common stock. On this basis, the proportion applicable to the 600,000 shares held by the Chesapeake corporation would be approximately $14,850,000. After deducting $2,400,000 for interest on the funded debt, and an equal amount for the sinking fund, the balance remaining amounts to about $11.00 per share on the stock of the Chesapeake corporation now outstanding. Net income of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway for 1926 was $29,294,803. This compares with $20,152,269 in 1925.

Based on the pro forma balance sheet dated May 14, 1927, the indicated book value applicable to the 900,000 no-par shares of the stock of the Chesapeake corporation amounted to $66.43 a share.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Aug. 22. (AP)—Wheat encountered realizing sales in the late trading on the board of trade and much of the early gain wast lost. Initial firmness was due to the higher Liverpool quotations unfavorable weather advices from the northwest. At the finish wheat showed a net gain of ½@⅝c, corn advanced 1@1⅝c, oats were ⅛@⅜c off, and provisions unchanged to 15 cents up.

Corn was firmer on continued cool weather and official and private reports showed lo wprogress toward maturity.

Oats were unsettled, with the market running into selling orders on all upturns.

Provisions were firmer with hogs.

Livestock

TEXAS LIVESTOCK

FORT WORTH, Aug. 22. (AP)—Rather slow trading characterised a livestock market top heavy with receipts in comparison with a week ago at Fort Worth Monday. Supplies were in keeping with last week's activities with estimates calling for 4000 calves to place Fort Worth far ahead of all other markets in the country in calf receipts. Beef steers again were in the minority with one consignment of eight loads of fed cattle trying to find a buyer at $10 a figure higher than last week's top of $9.85.

Receipts consisted of 4800 cattle, 4000 calves, 1200 hogs and 1500 sheep, though fewer sheep and hogs than the figures called for were offered to the morning trade.

A week ago 3025 cattle, 2782 calves, 849 hogs and 1776 sheep. A year ago 2993 cattle, 962 calves, 679 hogs and 1063 sheep.

With 29 loads of cows plentifully supplying that division of the trade the market appeared to be slower than last week and values 25 cents lower. Notwithstanding the heavy run of calves some early sales of light vealers were at last week's high figure, $12.50, though talk was of lower calves and some of the sales of heavies and hand weights indicated a downward trend. Some calves in the 210 pound class sold Monday morning at $9 when they would have brought more last week. One lot of Brahma calves appeared to be a full dollar under values early last week.

Light butcher hogs took a top of $10.70 to within an advance over closing prices last week though there was no real test of the market during the closing days. Reports from other markets called for an advance. Some light butchers from territory which made packers doubt the firmness of their flesh in the kill brought $10 and $10.15. Feeder pigs were selling on a steady basis at $10.

The first freshly shorn wethers of the fall season arrived from Menard county and sold at $8, a price that was considered steady but is a little above values of last week. Two double decks aggregating 516 head averaged 90 pounds. A few native lambs sold at $12 and weighed 73 pounds.

Hogs—Receipts 1200; market active; mostly 10c higher on light and medium weights; packer top $10.70 on good to choice lightweight butchers; truck hog top $10.50; smooth sows $7.65@8.00; butcher pigs $9.75@10.

Cattle—Receipts 8500, including 4000 calves; good cake feds around 1150 pounds held above $10; desirable yearlings steady; 777 pound fed yearlings $11; butcher cows $4.75@6.00; bulls steady to easier; vealers and calves uneven, mostly 25@50c lower; odd choice veals $12.50; best bunches $12.00; few 300 pound calves above $8.50.

Sheep—Receipts 1200; market steady; fresh shorn slaughter wethers 90 pound average $8.00; best slaughter lambs $12; few ewe lambs to breeders $10; double good shorn goats $4.00.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK

CHICAGO, Aug. 22. (AP)—Hogs—Receipts 35,000; market uneven, 10@25c higher; top $10.85, bulk desirable 160 to 200 pound averages $10.50@10.80; bulk packing sows $7.75@8.25; lightweights up to $8.40; most pigs $9.00@9.75.

Cattle—Receipts 24,000; fat steers and she stock steady to 25c lower; vealers 50c@$1 lower; strictly choice weighty fed steers $14.65; long yearlings up to $14.25; most fat steers of value to sell at $11.50@13.00.

Sheep—Receipts 25,000; fat lambs around 25c lower; no range lambs sold, asking 25c lower; prices above $14.10; early bulk native lambs $13.25@13.50, sheep weak to 25c lower; fat ewes $6.00@7.00.

Cotton

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 22. —A further advance in the cotton market early today attracted heavy realising and after selling at 21.27, December contracts brokee to 20.81 or 31 points net lower. The bullish impression made by Saturday's boll weevil report was reflected in a renewal of covering or fresh buying at this decline, however, and losses were partly recovered. December closing at 21.07, compared with 21.13 at the close of last week. The general market closed steady, net six points lower to 20 points higher, late months being relatively firm.

The market opened steady at a decline of eight points to an advance of 15 points and soon showed net gains of 10 to 19 points on most active positions, all of which, except March, made new high records for the season.

October sold up to 21.03 and January to 21.26 before the demand was supplied, but these prices brought in a great deal of realizing, while there was some southern hedging and selling for a reaction. Sharp declines followed and some stop orders were uncovered on the break which carried the price of October off to 20.54, while January sold down to 20.84 or about 40 to 49 points from the early high prices and 30 to 35 points net lower.

The volume of business then tapered off and the afternoon market was steadier, when there was probably some buying no the outlook for showers in parts of the eastern belt and reports of a tropical disturbance accompanied by a caution to vessels between Bermuda and the Bahamas. Otherwise, the weather news attracted more favorable comment, apparently, and late fluctuations were rather nervous and irregular. Differences between near and late months which narrowed last week, broadened out again today when there appeared to be some covering or trade buying in May and July contracts.

Part of the early realizing was supposed to be in anticipation of comparatively large ginning figures from the census bureau tomorrow, but the reaction from early advances was attributed by some traders to an easier technical position.

Exports today 7547 bales, making 212,908 so far this season. Port receipts 25,334, United States port stocks 957,228 bales.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 22. (AP)—Following an early advance to new season highs, the cotton market turned easy on realizing and before the offerings were absorbed December had dropped from 21.10 to 20.66. The market rallied in the afternoon and December traded to 20.90, closing at that figure. The general market closed net unchanged to 13 points down.

Liverpool was lower than due and first trades here showed losses of 12 to 15 points. The market soon rallied on warnings of a storm in the Bahamas and October traded to 20.87 and December 21.10, 12 to 13 points above Saturday's close and new highs for the season.

The higher price level coupled with a dry weather map induced considerable realizing and some hedge selling and by the end of the first hour October contracts had declined to 20.41, 46 points under the highs. The low points attracted some trade and speculative buying and prices recovered some of the loss at mid-season.

In the afternoon another storm warning claiming that the Bahama disturbance was increasing in intensity caused an additional rally which carried October to 20.71 and December to 20.97. Realizing again set in in the final trading and prices eased off 7 to 9 points.

Exports for the day totalled 6405 bales.

BULL TONE IN WHEAT TRADE

Market Shows Good Gains At Chicago

By CHARLES J. LEYDEN

Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—There was enough bull news in wheat to give the market a big advance, but while the tone was firm, most of the news received but little attention, although in several cases it was the most radical received in a long time. Apparently the trade at present fear spring wheat hedging, and are afraid of buying on the rallies, for fear the outside demand will not follow. Even with the possibility of a frost last night in the Canadian northwest, there was a slow commission house demand and moreover there was but little eagerness in the buying of offers.

Rye was the strongest thing on the list, with September leading. Oats were heavy while corn scored substantial gains. Export business here was the best in some time and the seaboard also reported a big trade.

Closing prices were: Wheat⅝@⅞c higher; corn 1@1¼c up; oats, unchanged to ½c off, and rye 1@2c higher.

Reports from the central west and from the northern portions of the corn belt were favorable to holders. Prices advanced quite sharply in spite of the eager tone in the cash market. The weather map showed some rain in the northern portions of the belt. The forecast was for generally cool weather.

Big receipts of oats at primary points, and a slow shipping demand caused free selling of oats, which finished lower.

Rye was bought against export business apparently and there was a fair general commission house demand.

SKIT FEATURES KIWANIS MEET

Club Leaders On Griddle At Luncheon

The Kiwanis club saw what apparently was growing into a free-for-all fight and firing of the Kemp hotel chef terminate in one of the most pleasing vaudeville acts ever presented here Monday in the regular luncheon.

G. D. (Tex) Lloyd, former vaudeville performer, and now a champion insurance salesman, was the "chef." Kiwanian Wiley Brown unwittingly started a rucus when he good naturedly commented on the service. During the argument the chef emptied a water bottle on the table before Brown, who assured the chairman that he would settle the matter following the luncheon.

After a series of announcements the chef dived from the kitchen with a vicious bouncer at his heels and on demand that he apologize to the guests the vaudeville act was begun. Such Kiwanians as Walter Caldwell, Dave Paul, Dr. Felix R. Collard and others came in for warm pannings.

Then Lloyd opened up with a couple of novelty piano numbers which carried the audience back to old school and circus days. He sang a lively air which he is to enter in the state song contest.

Jim Baber was on his feet to take J. A. Kemp's place in telling about agriculture wonders in California when the "bouncing" took place. Mr. Kemp was out of the city and was unable to address the club, it was announced.

Homer Sanderford, who has been in Corpus Christi for several weeks, reported on the preparations being made in that city for the district convention to be held there.

Dr. Collard announced that the Henritetta club is to stage a box supper next Tuesday evening and urged that local members attend.

It was voted to dispense with the meeting scheduled for September 5 which is Labor day.

IN THE GLOW OF THE CAMP FIRE

Members of the Alahi and Pokkam Camp Fire groups spent the week-end at the Boy Scout camp at Diversion dam, returning home late Sunday evening.

Hiking, swimming and archery practice featured the afternoon, followed by supper cooked by the girls who are working for the fire makers rank. Games, stunts and a cornet solo by John Kauffman were enjoyed during the evening.

Miss Edith Crump talked on "Comradeship" Sunday morning, and the archery contest in the afternoon proved interesting, with two sides competing for the long distance honor.

Those attending, included Dora Nix, Lucile Hibbs, Frances Hyland, Margaret Ossenbeck, Lucille and Linnie Mae Baggett, Louise Van Emden, Marguerite McBee, Nina Reed, Mamie Remington, Edna Mae Stegall, Theressa Kauffman, Edith Crump, and Messrs. A. Ayers, H. L. McKinley, R. C. Stanfield, H. F. Hyland, Goldia Ayers, Anna Barnhill and four Boy Scouts, Crawford Stovall, John Hugh Kauffman, Ken Wharton, Orby Hodges and J. H. Kauffman, scoutmaster.

Executive Returns.

Miss Mary McIlheran, executive of the Camp Fire Girls, returned Monday morning from a short trip to Dallas, Fort Worth and Tyler where she spent four days in the Dallas Camp Fire Girls camp at the Grayson county Boy Scout camp at Hagerman.

Swimming was a part of the daily program with Miss Irene Lang of Dallas in charge. An interesting water pageant culminated the week's work. Dramatics, handcraft and camp craft offered projects which kept the girls happily seeking out new and interesting facts. Miss McIlheran talked to the girls on Saturday night, telling of the Wichita Falls camp fire.

Real Estate Board Called In Meeting

The Real Estate Board will meet Tuesday in a special called meeting at the Kemp hotel, it was announced Monday. The meeting was called by W. M. Baldridge, who stated that business which can not wait until the resumption of regular meetings will be discussed. The first regular meeting will be held on the first Tuesday in September.

Today { At the Theaters

By Ruth Morrison

Majestic: "The Unknown," with Lon Chaney, Fables and Topics of the Day and Paramount News.

Olympic: Norma Shearer in "After Midnight," Mabel Normand comedy and Pathe News.

Mission: "The City," with George Nash; comedy. On the stage Honey Hank Harris and His Honey Girls.

Gem: "The Sheriff's Girl," with Ben Wilson and comedy.

One of the most fantastic as well as one of the most beautiful cabaret scenes ever filmed plays a prominent part in the version of "The City," the screen edition of the famous play by Clyde Fitch, coming to the Mission theater today.

This scene, which marks a pivotal point in the action of the play, was planned to fit into the theme and action of the picture itself. Mary Morgan's screen dancers, all of them selected not only for their ability to dance, but for their beauty as well, take part in the tableau.

The first flash shows six of the seven deadly sins, gorgeously attired, waiting outside a curtain. They start to run inside, but are scourged aside by Wrath.

The climax comes when Cupid shoots his silver bow into the boy, where the girl is sitting. This brings about the teasing which results in the elopement leading up to the climax of the story.

Nancy Nash, one of Fox Films latest finds, and Walter McGrail, who has lately distinguished himself with his work in Fox Films "Marriage License?" have the principal roles in the production.

NEW SCHOOL MAP

A new map of the Wichita Falls independent school district is being prepared by John A. Donald, county surveyor, for the city tax assessor and collector's offices, Ralph Hyer, city tax assessor and collector said Monday.

The map will be 15 feet in length and the same in width and will be placed in Mr. Hyer's office. The present map now used by the tax department is not complete, Mr. Hyer said.

New Burk Constable Files $1000 Bond

Bond of $1000 presented by N. T. Sanders, recently appointed constable at Burkburnett, for the faithful performance of his duties, was approved Monday by the county commissioners court, which also approved a $2500 bond presented by H. C. Billingsley recently appointed public weigher in precinct No. 1.

A contract for the painting of buildings and fences at the county poor farm was signed by the court with J. D. Holland who was awarded the contract one week ago on a bid of $1324.

T. W. McHam, county treasurer, was instructed by the court to pay the Illinois Merchants Trust company, of Chicago, $1485 as interest on county jail bonds.

Shepherd to Speak At West Texas C-C- Meet

One of the principal addresses to be delivered Thursday at a district meeting of the West Texas Chamber of commerce at Wellington will be made by Mayor R. E. Shepherd, who will discuss the plans for the coming Texas-Oklahoma fair.

After delivering his Wellington address, Mayor Shepherd will go Thursday to Craterville park to attend the Indian fair and to invite the citizens of that section to be among those present at the fair.

COUNTY WILL GROUP SCHOOLS

Classifications Up For Final Action Saturday

Classification of Wichita county schools for 1927 which will be recommended by Burl Bryant, county superintendent of schools, to the county board of school trustees at a meeting to be held Saturday, it was announced Monday by Mr. Bryant.

There are four groups in the classification, which follows:

Seven grade schools, Beaver Creek, Rocky Point, Prairie Cottage, Barwise and Sunshine; eight grade schools, Deep Creek, Pleasant Valley, Howard and Cobb; nine grade schools, City View, Fowlkes, Weetil, Allendale, Friberg, Enterprise and County Line; eleven grade schools, Valley View, Cashion and Clara.

Equipment in the schools, number of potential pupils, number of teachers and the location, were the factors in determining the classification, Mr. Bryant said.

Residents in the various school districts not satisfied with the classification in which their respective schools have been placed can file a protest Saturday with the county board, Mr. Bryant said.

The board meeting will be held in the offices of Mr. Bryant, located in the courthouse.

Wichita Shop Opens In New Quarters

The Children's Shoppe is now located in its new home at 804 Indiana where it moved this past week from 813 Indiana.

New fixtures and rugs have been installed and Mrs. B. H. Greenberg, who has charge, said Monday that nothing will be left undone to make this one of the most modern shops of its kind in the state.

Services Today For P.B.Mashburn

Funeral services for P. B. Mashburn, 47, night clerk at the Joline hotel, 907 Indiana avenue, who died at 7:50 o'clock Sunday night following a heart attack, will be held at the First Christian church at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, the Rev. Leslie Miller, pastor of Grace Methodist church, to conduct the service. Burial will be in Rosemont with the Masons in charge of the service at the grave.

The active pallbearers will be M. A. Bundy, Dr. R. B. Wolford, Dr. L. D. Parnell, Arthur Howard, P. B. Curd and J. W. Bradley.

The body was removed at 5 o'clock Monday afternoon from the Hines mortuary to the family home at 1809 Eleventh street.

Mr. Mashburn was talking to a group of friends when stricken. Death followed in 15 minutes.

Mr. Mashburn was a member of Faith Lodge No. 1158, A. F. & A. M.; Wichita Falls chapter No. 202, R. A. M.; Commandery No. 59, Knights Templar, and Maskat Temple. He was past master of Burkburnett Lodge No. 1057, A. F. & A. M., formerly a member of the Scottish Rite bodies of Dallas.

Mr. Mashburn, who came to Wichita Falls from Burkburnett in 1919 and operated the Marion hotel here for three years, is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lalia Mashburn, 1809 Eleventh street; two daughters, Misses Janice and Fern Mashburn, Wichita Falls; two sisters, Mrs. Hugh Ashford and Mrs. Carrie Rich, Park Springs, and one brother, Marvin Mashburn, Hugo, Okla.

FAITH LODGE AND COMMANDERY MEETINGS.

Faith Lodge No. 1158, A. F. & A. M. of which F. B. Mashburn was a member will meet in a special called meeting in the lodge room, 813 1-2 Scott at 3 o'clock p. m. and will go in a body at 3:30 at the First Christian church for the church service. The Masonic lodge will then take charge and bury with Masonic honors immediately following the church service. All master Masons are invited and urged to meet with Faith Lodge at 3 o'clock for this purpose.

Wichita Falls Commandery No. 59, Knight Templar will meet at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon Masonic Temple, 10th and Scott streets to form Knight Templar escort for the funeral, he being a member of Wichita Falls Commandery No. 59.

Blandin Buys Spring Wheel and Body Works

George W. Blandin has announced the purchase of the Spring Wheel and Body Works located at 404 Indiana avenue in addition to his present business of top and car trimming at 804 11th street.

Mr. Blandin has been for the past 10 years engaged in car trimming, top painting and upholstering of automobiles and due to his increasing trade found it necessary to enlarge his business.

The building at 404 Indiana will be ready for occupancy about Sept. 1 and every convenience has been cared for in the remodeling of the structure. Mr. Blandin said that he will do his utmost to give car owners of the city satisfactory work and quick service.

Saloniki, Greece, is to have a new bank building costing a half-million dollars.
