West German Chancellor Agrees to Sign Ban Pact

Crime-Busting Senator Dies of Heart Attack

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Estes Kefauver, who came out of Tennessee's farm country to combat big city vice lords and business monopolies and twice seek the presidency, died Saturday of a heart attack. He was 60.

The tall, amiable Democrat succumbed "quickly and peacefully" at 3:40 a.m. EDT at Bethesda Naval Hospital. He had entered the hospital Thursday for what was believed to be a slight case of indigestion. But this was diagnosed Friday as a mild heart attack.

Early Saturday, the inner wall of the aorta ruptured and the senator died before his wife could reach his bedside from a Colorado vacation. They have four children—three girls and a boy.

A successor to serve until the elections next year will be named by Democratic Gov. Frank Clement of Tennessee.

There were many bipartisan expressions of shock and regret from Kefauver's Senate colleagues and other public officials. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., said "he was a crusader and an idealist and his contribution to the betterment and the welfare of the nation will be long remembered."

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., said he and Kefauver had their political differences but "I entertained a high respect and deep admiration for him." He added that "he made a great contribution to the country and was indeed a crusader with deep convictions."

Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson said: "I am deeply shocked by the passing of my good friend Estes Kefauver. Millions of Americans have lost a good and true friend."

Adlai E. Stevenson who twice frustrated Kefauver's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, called him a "gallant champion of the people."

It was as the crusading chairman of a Senate Crime Investigating Committee that Kefauver

Adenauer Satisfied with Guarantees Given by U.S.

BONN, Germany (UPI) — West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer declared Saturday night after a meeting with U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk that he is satisfied with U.S. guarantees and will sign the partial nuclear test ban treaty.

Adenauer made the statement after Rusk, who flew here fresh from talks in the Soviet Union with Premier Nikita Khrushchev, assured the chancellor he had no cause to worry that the Moscow test ban treaty might give back-door recognition to Communist East Germany.

The chancellor's decision to sign the treaty was announced in a statement issued through the West German government press chief.

Adenauer made the decision following a two - hour conference with Rusk, a government spokesman said.

The U.S. secretary of state stopped here on his way home from signing the treaty in Moscow in order to resolve West German fears the Communists would use the treaty to bolster the East German regime and undermine Adenauer's government.

The West German government press chief, State Secretary Karl-Guenther Von Hase, told a news conference:

"A way was found today which makes it possible for the West German government to make a positive attitude in the matter of accession to the treaty."

Rusk had a series of talks in this West German capital Saturday with Adenauer and other West German leaders — including Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard, designated as Adenauer's successor.

The secretary of state, who will fly on to Washington Sunday, told newsmen he will open Senate hearings Monday on the Big Three treaty for a ban on all but underground nuclear tests.

Will Be Answered

"I am confident," Rusk said, "that the many questions raised here will be fully taken care of and answered in these hearings. . ."

The White House said Saturday that President Kennedy will confer by telephone Sunday and personally Monday with Rusk on his talks with Khrushchev.

Adenauer has been concerned that the East German Communist regime, by signing the test ban treaty, would enhance its international status and gain implied recognition by the Western powers.

But President Kennedy said at a news conference and in a message to the Senate that East Germany's signature of the treaty does not grant it international recognition.

(In Paris Saturday, the French Foreign Office disclosed France has been consulting with West Germany in advance of a decision by the Adenauer government on signing the test ban treaty. French President Charles de Gaulle has refused to sign the Moscow treaty and is pushing ahead with his plans for a separate French nuclear force.)

Rusk wasted no time Saturday in reassuring the West Germany leaders they are not pawns in a larger East-West game.

The secretary of state also assured Adenauer he had told Khrushchev that any further step toward an East-West non-aggression pact or any other arrangement for Central Europe must include fresh guarantees for West Berlin.

Upset over the possibility that the Western Allies might have paid for the nuclear treaty with backdoor recognition of the East Germans, the West Germans asked Rusk to stop here en route home from Russia, where he signed the treaty and had man-to-man talks with Khrushchev.

Harriman Says U.S. Leading in Nuclear Weapons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — W. Averell Harriman said Saturday the United States has a lead in nuclear weaponry and can maintain it under the pending test ban treaty if the nation wants to pay the price and "Congress continues to give appropriations."

"We are ahead in the number of weapons, the weight of our weapons, our stockpile of atomic weapons, and there is no reason, with the continuation of underground testing we cannot keep—continue—our lead," said the undersecretary of state who was the principal treaty negotiator for the United States at the Moscow treaty talks.

He made his statement as administration spokesmen undertook to document President Kennedy's assertion that the treaty will enhance, not endanger, the nation's security.

Will Testify

Their drive gains momentum next week when Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara testify at hearings preliminary to Senate ratification of the pact.

The sessions, starting Monday, will be conducted by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee with members of the Armed Services Committee and senators from the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee as guests.

A pre-hearing survey, made for administration strategists, showed that about four-fifths of the senators are disposed to support the treaty—well in excess of the two thirds necessary for ratification.

Rites for Kennedys' Son Held in Boston

BOSTON (UPI) — President Kennedy, sorrow etched on his face, buried his infant son Patrick Saturday after simple funeral services and a moving farewell at the side of the grave.

Only the closest members of the Kennedy family were with the Chief Executive at the Mass of the Angels said for the child and later at the cemetery in suburban Brookline.

The graveside service took just a few minutes and the mourners then moved back to give the President a final moment with the son who died Friday after living just 39 hours.

The President moved close to the little white casket and placed his hand on the cover for a moment, his head bowed in grief. Then he turned away and followed the other members of the party to the waiting cars.

The President flew immediately back to Otis Air Force Base on Cape Cod to be with his sorrowing wife, Jacqueline, who is recuperating at the hospital there from the Caesarean section she underwent last Wednesday. The surgery prevented her from attending the funeral services with the President.

The Kennedys' two other children, 5-year-old Caroline and 2-year-old John Jr. remained at the summer White House in Hyannis Port.

Only Dr. John W. Walsh, Mrs. Kennedy's obstetrician, was with her while the services were held here. It was understood that Dr. Walsh requested she have no visitors during the trying time.

The President spent about 50 minutes with his wife after returning to Otis.

The Mass of the Angels, which is celebrated for a dead child, was said by Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston in the private chapel at his Brighton residence. Among those attending was Francis Cardinal Spellman of New

President's Wife Spends Day Alone In Hospital Room

OTIS AIR FORCE BASE, Mass. (UPI) — First Lady Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy spent most of her day alone Saturday, mourning the loss of her baby, who was buried after quiet funeral services in Boston.

The 34-year-old wife of the President remained here in the privacy of her hospital room while her husband flew to Boston to attend the final burial services for Patrick Bouvier Kennedy, the son she had seen only twice.

Only her devoted physician, Dr. John W. Walsh, looked in on her every once in a while to see how she was bearing up under the emotional strain.

Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said Mrs. Kennedy's condition "remains excellent." But her doctor, believing she needs more rest and quiet because of her sorrow clamped a limit on visitors except for the President and her sister and closest confidant, Princess Lee Radziwill of London and other close family members.

Three Die in Auto Crash West of City

Cris Kelley, 13, of Route 1, Pampa, remained in critical condition in Highland General Hospital late last night from injuries suffered in a two-car head-on collision which took the lives of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elwyn W. Kelley.

A third person, Carroll Cleo Lisenbe, 37, of Panhandle also was killed in the wreck which occurred three miles west of Pampa on U.S. 60 shortly after 9:30 p.m. Friday.

Kurt Kelley, 12, brother of Cris, and Darrell Crafton, 12, were hospitalized but were listed in good condition in Highland General Hospital late last night.

According to Highway Patrolman Laurence Macha, the Kelley automobile apparently was traveling west on U.S. 60 after attending a little league baseball game at Optimist Park. The accident happened about one mile from the Kelley home in the Cabot Kingsmill camp.

Lisenbe was traveling toward Pampa, and apparently hit a slick spot on the highway, swerving crossways in the road and the Kelley car hit the oncoming auto in the right hand lane, Patrolman Macha said.

The weather bureau said it was drizzling rain at the approximate time of the accident.

"At present we cannot figure the rate of speed, or even prove the direction of travel of either car," Macha said. "Both cars were facing west when I arrived at the scene of the accident."

Double funeral services for Mr. and Mrs. Elwyn Ward Kelley will be held at 2 p.m. Monday in the Assembly of God Church with the Rev. J. S. McMullen, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery under direction of Duenkel-Carmichael Funeral Home.

Mrs. Joan Kelley, 32, was born May 8, 1931 in McLean. She finished high school in Pampa and married Elwyn Kelley in 1947.

She is survived by two sons, Chris and Kurt of the home; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. McAdams of Amarillo; two sisters, Mrs. Clyde Tidwell and Mrs. M. L. Cooper of Miami, Okla., and one brother, Calvin McAdams of Amarillo.

Mr. Kelley, 35, was born Nov. 10, 1927 in Pampa. He attended Pampa schools and has been employed by Cabot in the laboratory of the Research and Development Department. He is survived by the two sons; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Kelley of Pampa; two brothers, Buster Kelley and Alfred Kelley of Pampa; three sisters, Mrs. Ray Graham of Amarillo, Mrs. Dale Everson and Mrs. Ochasa Kimberline of Pampa.

Pallbearers will be Henry Bensel, L. O. Thornton, Earl New, C. L. Carter, Harold Ledbetter, Ted Atwood, Francis Webb, Jerry Hopkins, Joel Middleton, Kermit Lawson and Clifford Scott.

Honorary pallbearers are P. D. Powell, Harold Hosten, A. S. Morgan and C. L. Crafton.

City Patrolman C. L. Wallace and Deputy Sheriff Shirley Nichols were on hand to assist Macha in

Pampa Gibson Discount Center to Open Soon

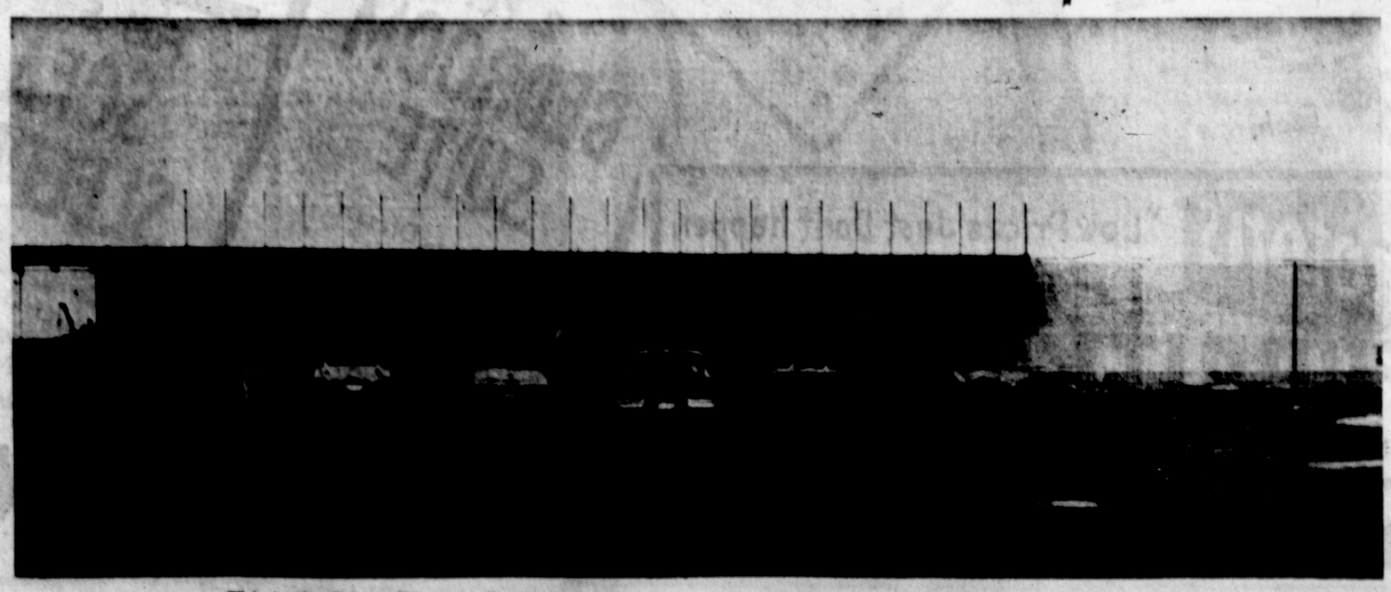

A new Gibson Discount Center will soon be open in Pampa, according to an announcement by Bill Cavel and Delmar Watkins, co-owners.

The Center will be housed in a 20,350 square-foot building, which is now being constructed at 2211 Perryton Parkway. The interior of the store will be completely air-conditioned. A 250 car parking area will be provided around the store with additional free parking available in the immediate vicinity.

Cavel and Watkins said the local store will be a part of the huge Gibson Discount operation, which is considered one of the first true discount firms in that the multi-store chain of retail outlets in 12 states eliminates the middleman and brings customers top name brands direct from the manufacturers.

Total sales of the Gibson firm will reach over $100 million in 1963, according to Cavel and Watkins. They added that there are 92

U.S. Officials Report No Signs of Stampede by 'K'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has found no evidence that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev wants to stampede the West into full-scale cold war negotiations before the Allies have had time to thresh things out among themselves.

On the contrary, Khrushchev appears as anxious as President Kennedy is to move slowly and for the same reason—difficulties within his own camp.

The cautious Russian approach has eased the fears that some officials had about a possible Russian peace offensive in the wake of the limited nuclear test ban treaty to try to draw the disorganized Western Allies into European security talks before they were prepared.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk, in his Moscow and Black Sea talks with Khrushchev and other officials, is said to have found them greatly preoccupied with handling their bitter dispute with Red China and not pressing for early East-West negotiations.

Both the White House and the Kremlin undoubtedly recognize that the explosive core of their European conflict still lies in the division of Germany and the dispute over the fate of Berlin. Neither has come up with any new idea on how to defuse this issue and this is another factor which causes both sides to approach new negotiations with caution.

Prospects are that the Soviet-American probe will not be resumed until late September when Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko meet at the annual session of the United Nations assembly.

The absence of Soviet pressure for "next step" talks eased Rusk's task in Bonn Saturday. He was able to reassure Chancellor Konrad Adenauer that Washington did not intend to plunge into any discussions with Russia before fullest consultation with the Allies to make certain their vital interests are safeguarded.

SEC Committee Seeking Stock Market Flaws

WASHINGTON (UPI — A special committee of the Securities & Exchange Commission (SEC) has criticized the operation of mutual funds and the procedures of two private agencies which regulate the stock market.

In a report to Congress, the (SEC) has critized the operacommittee also said it was unable to "isolate and identify the cause" of the big break in market prices which started in May, 1962.

The group, headed by Milton H. Cohen, a Chicago attorney, said in the last of three reports on the market that the break last year was brought on by "complex interaction of causes and effects."

It recommended that the SEC and private business work out a plan that might be invoked in time of crisis to keep disruption of the market down to a minimum.

The report said that certain factors peculiar to mutual funds, create pressures toward "undesirable selling practices."

It recommended controlling these practices by eliminating or altering the so-called "front-end load" contract, the long-term installment agreement, under which most of the selling charge is due during the first few months of the contract.

It Says Here... More for Money

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (UPI) — Housewives are paying proportionately less for meats today than their mothers did, a livestock marketing specialist says.

Ed Uvacek, with the Texas A&M College extension service, says prices may be higher, but the percentage of family income spent on meats is lower. It had dropped from 7 per cent in 1920 to 4.5 per cent now, Uvacek reports.

"At the same time, we are getting better quality meat and a wider selection to choose from at the retail market," Uvacek said. He concludes — "Meat is a bargain today and any of the retail cuts can be appetizing if prepared properly."

California Girl Watcher Has a Tough Job, But the Pay Is Good

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jim Crooker, a handsome Californian, holds a job whose only pay is a surrounding of international pulchritude.

It's also an exhausting job, the girl-watching he constantly does, he said. But before you men reading this rush to volunteer assistance, let us explain.

Crooker is president of the Long Beach, Calif., international beauty spectacular which each year chooses the international beauty.

Crooker also is safely married —to a stunning blonde named Marilyn, who remarked that maybe her husband's was a "dangerous" assignment from the wife's viewpoint.

"But," she laughed, "It's dangerous just to be married, isn't it?"

The couple discussed the beauty contest business during a trip to New York to arrange for television coverage of the finals of the contest in Long Beach, Aug. 18 and also to meet the first foreign contingent—22 girls arriving from European countries.

Seven judges will select the finalist from 43 U.S. girls and an equal number of representatives from foreign countries.

Crooker, 38, has an auto dealership in Long Beach, a city of 365,000 near Los Angeles. He serves as president of the pageant this year; some other Long Beach citizen from the 60-member board will take the job next year, he said. He explained that the contest is strictly a civic event now, sponsored by the city, Los Angeles County, and the Long Beach Harbor board of commissioners.

Life Magazine's Science Editor Visits in Pampa

By WANDA HUFF

Life Magazine is responsible for making its readers aware that news is not just "politics, floods, earthquakes and baseball games, but art, religion and science are just as much a part of the American scene and deserve just as much coverage," according to Albert Rosenfeld, science and medical news editor of Life.

Rosenfeld, his wife, Lillian and their two children, Robert, 11 and Shana, six, stopped in Pampa last week for a brief visit with Mrs. Rosenfeld's mother, Mrs. Lillian Snow of 423 Crest. They will leave today for their home in New Rochelle, N.Y.

During their visit they were honored with an open house Tuesday in the Lovett Memorial Library auditorium. Mrs. Snow is librarian for the library.

As an associate editor and medicine editor of life, Rosenfield is in charge of a 10-man department, that does all science and medical stories for the magazine. Seven of his staff are women.

Rosenfeld was an army sergeant in the European and African theaters during World War II. He and his wife were married before he graduated from New Mexico A&M in 1950. The college name has been changed to New Mexico State University.

Both received B.A. degrees in history and social sciences. Since Mrs. Rosenfeld had a minor in English, she had planned, before marriage intervened, to return to Pampa and teach English in junior high.

Rosenfeld began his career during college by writing free lance stories for magazines, including McCall's, Argosy, Today's Woman, Harper's, Reader's Digest, Coronet, Redbook and Life.

From 1950 to 1956 they lived in Santa Fe, N.M., where Rosenfeld continued to write, mostly nonfiction, science and medical articles.

"In 1956, I was asked to run Life's news desk operation in New York City for a six months trial basis. After the six months, I was given my choice of staying in New York as assistant science and medicine editor or going to work in one of their western bureaus.

"We decided we liked New York and so I stayed." He was appointed science and medical editor in 1959.

Science writing in general is tougher than nearly any other kind of writing, because reporters and editors don't always know when, where and from whom the news breaks will come, according to Rosenfeld.

Since Life is a picture magazine, one of the most difficult jobs is to tell in graphic form the story of a medical or scientific discovery he said.

"Often, there is nothing actively happening to photograph. A man writing equations or studying test tubes may not excite readers used to active, on the spot shots of news events like political rallies, sports, disasters or rockets going into orbit.

Department Store Sales on Upgrade

DALLAS (UPI) —Department store sales increased 4 per cent in the 11th Federal Reserve District for the week ended Aug. 3, compared with a similar period in 1962, the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas said yesterday.

Houston led with an 8 per cent increase. Dallas showed a 1 per cent increase. San Antonio sales dropped 7 per cent and El Paso 3 per cent.

Flagpole to Cost Taxpayers $18,000

HOUSTON (UPI)— It will cost taxpayers $18,000 for the flagpole at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Manned Spacecraft Center near Houston.

The center advertised for bids for the 99-foot steel pole to be placed in front of the NASA site offices at the Clear Lake location. A 14 - inch decorative rotating sphere plated with gold will top the flagpole.

Spokesman for NASA said the spacecraft center architects want the pole to be a focal point symbolizing man's work in space.

During fiscal 1962, 1,331,383 nonimmigrant aliens were admitted to the U. S. temporarily, according to Britannica Book of the Year.

THE VICTORY OF JOB—The Old Testament breathes with life in "The Book of Job," a biblical drama presented nightly during the summer in the "Cathedral of the Hills" in Pine Mountain State Park near Pineville, Ky. The play centers on man's victory through his submission to the Almighty. Make-up of the characters pictured here is patterned after Byzantine Church mosaics and gives the impression of stained-glass figures.

Berlin Garrison Being Beefed Up

BERLIN (UPI) — The U. S. Army announced Saturday it is stepping up the armored strength and fire-power of its Berlin garrison to make it a better-balanced military force with improved flexibility and mobility.

Under the reorganization, the American garrison will be equipped with more tanks and armored personnel carriers. The new M60 tank, described by Army officials here as far superior to the Soviet T54, will replace the old M48 tank.

"The M60 is the best tank in the world in its ability to hit and destroy enemy tanks," an Army official here said.

In a key element of the reorganization, the battle group will be replaced as the basic Army combat unit by the battalion.

The reorganization, effective Sept. 1, will increase the number of tanks from 25 to 30, double the numbered of armored personnel carriers from 15 to 30, increase automatic and anti-tank weapons, and replace towed howitzers by self-propelled howitzers.

first sprang to national prominence. The widely televised hearings were marked by Kefauver prodding away in a soft Tennessee drawl and getting surly, defiant responses from such crime kingpins as Frank Costello.

He first bid unsuccessfully for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1952. He made the Daniel Boone coonskin cap his symbol and as a campaigner showed an almost insatiable zest for handshaking.

At the nominating convention, however, he was passed over for the then Illinois Governor Stevenson. He was opposed by Southern politicos who disliked his moderate racial rights views and by Northern city bosses who felt that his crime exposures had hurt them locally.

Kefauver's presidential ambitions stayed afire. In 1956 he directly challenged Stevenson's bid for renomination and the two met in a series of head-to-head primary battles. Kefauver won in such states as Wisconsin, Minnesota and Maryland but was crushed in the more pivotal primaries in California, Oregon and Florida.

Pampa Gets Only Trace of Rain

By United Press International

A cold front crept through North Texas Saturday dropping scattered showers and lowering temperatures.

Rain fell at Dalhart, Alpine, Amarillo, Childress and Lubbock. Dalhart recorded three-fourths of an inch of rain.

Pampa got only a trace late Saturday afternoon.

One-hundred degree temperatures were still prevalent in the state.

The mercury climbed to 103 in Wichita Falls and hit 101 in Mineral Wells and Laredo.

It was coolest where it rained. Dalhart's high temperature was only 82. It only got up to 97 in Pampa.

According to Macha, he and Bill Barrett of Ford's Body Shop worked more than an hour extricating the bodies from the twisted wreckage.

According to Dr. Julian Key, Cris Kelley will be transferred to an Amarillo hospital today for further study of the brain damage he received in the accident.

The accident was first reported to city police by Paul Heiser of Lubbock, a passing motorist.

Kelley was employed in the research department of Cabot Corporation and Lisenbe was co-owner of the Panhandle Irrigation Company of Panhandle.

York. Both prelates are close friends of the Kennedy family.

According to Roman Catholic belief, a baptized child like Patrick is accepted into heaven immediately after death. Cardinal Cushing wore all-white vestments as a symbol of the infant's innocence.

The service took only about 20 minutes and the President and his family then left for Holyhood Cemetery in suburban Brookline, the town where the President was born and lived as a boy.

The grave where Patrick was buried is in a Kennedy family plot purchased by the President's father. It had never been used before.

The infant was born about 5½ weeks prematurely and succumbed to hyaline membrane disease, a lung ailment that makes breathing difficult. Death came in a Boston hospital after a desperate battle to save the child's life.

Recording Group At Borger Tuesday

BORGER (Spl)—The "Champs," popular recording group, will stage a show and play for a dance at the Borger Youth Center Tuesday night.

The "Champs" are considered one of the best rock and roll musical groups in the country. They have sold more than 7-million records including "Limbo Rock," "Night Train," "Tequila," and many others.

The Tuesday night show is being staged to raise money to install a tile floor at the Youth Center.

Burglars Flunk Out on Safe Job

Burglars failed Friday night in an attempt to rob the safe in the office of the Pampa Coca Cola plant, 1515 N. Hobart St.

Police Captain Denny Roan said entrance was gained through a rear window of the building and then by breaking the glass in a connecting door to the main plant.

The burglar or burglars picked up a sledge hammer and two claw hammers and used them to knock the knob off the safe, Captain Roan said.

The would-be safe robbers either were frightened away or gave up the job and left without getting the safe open.

The break-in was discovered shortly after 7 a.m. Saturday by James Quary, plant employe.

PIE IN SKY

NEW YOR K(UPI) — It will be some time before astronauts will have to cook their own meals in outer space, but you may be having a problem in high-altitude baking at your mountain retreat this summer. The Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association, which makes a study of such things, has this advice on cooking in high places where the air pressure is usually lower than at sea level: In baking, GAMA suggests, use less baking powder and sugar and increase all liquid measurements to prevent cake and pie failures. Most package mixes incorporate necessary adjustments in their instructions.

Texas Rangeland Is Hard Hit by Severe Drouth

AUSTIN (UPI)— The severe drought over much of the state has left Texas rangeland in its poorest condition since 1956, the U.S. Department of Agriculture said today.

Rangeland over the state as of Aug. 1 was rated at 72 per cent, 6 points below a year ago. The five-year average for this time of year is 85 per cent.

Some showers fell over the High Plains, East Texas, upper coast, parts of the Blackland prairie and South Central Texas. But other sections remained dry, with range conditions deteriorating over the entire state.

The only two regions of the state where range conditions improved over last month were South Central and the upper coast.

Stockwater is becoming critically short in many areas.

Hardest hit sections from lack of rain were the Trans-Pecos. Edwards Plateau and the Blackland regions. Bosque County reports no substantial rains to put water in tanks for 13 months.

Livestock also were reported suffering in Collin, Falls, Hamilton, McLennan, Ector, Terrell, Ward, Blanco, Burnet, Concho, Lampasas, Mason and Uvalde counties.

Lampasas stockmen reported range conditions in worse shape since 1956. Creeks and springs were drying up in Blanco County.

COMMUNICATION

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — You can reach Telephone by telegraph and Telegraph by telephone in Texas. Telegraph is a small town in West Central Texas, and Telephone is about 350 miles away, in Northeast Texas.

Nations of the World:

Montana-Sized Norway Is Home Of Descendants of the Vikings

By ANNE-MARIE PEDERSEN

OSLO (UPI) — Norway is the home of tall, fair-haired and blue-eyed descendants of the fierce Vikings who roamed the seas in search of adventure and the spoils of war.

Today, the Norwegian people are peaceful. But for two centuries, from 850 A.D. to 1050 A.D. the Vikings terrorized France and the British Isles.

Norway makes up the western part of the Scandinavian peninsula. To the east lies Sweden. To the north is Finmark, where Norway has a common border with both the Finns and the Russians. Also to the north lies the Arctic Sea. The Atlantic Ocean lies to the west, and the North Sea and Denmark are to the south.

Because of the Gulf stream, which flows alongside the jagged, 1,646-mile western coast of Norway, it is possible to grow potatoes north of the polar circle, where about one third of Norway lies and where the mean temperature during the year is about 35.6 degrees fahrenheit.

Size Of Montana

Norway is 1,091 miles long and has an area of 200,704,559 square miles. It is about the same size as the state of Montana. It has a population of 3.6 million persons in 20 counties, with a population density of 11 persons per square kilometer. (The United States has 19 persons per square kilometer, Sweden has 17, Denmark 106, Britain 215 and Belgium 300.)

About two-thirds of the Norwegian people live in rural districts. In the capital of Oslo, there are 480,000 inhabitants, but only 48 per cent of these were born here.

Norway lays claim to the northernmost city in the world—which was destroyed by the Germans during World War II and was completely rebuilt, was first settled in 1787.

The island group of Spitzbergen, which is near the North Pole, is also part of Norway. About 3,000 Norwegians work in the coal mines there, where a Soviet Union also has mines.

At its widest point, Norway measures 273 miles and only four miles at its narrowest point, near the city of Narvik in the north.

Sea-Faring People

Norwegians always have been a sea-faring people. Norway has the third largest merchant marine fleet in the world, topped only by the United States and Britain.

Oslo has one of the largest harbors in Europe. Every day an average of 10 foreign ships and 65 Norwegian vessels arrive here. In 1961, 27,500 ships loaded 4.2 million tons of goods and about 360,000 persons left Oslo by ship for other ports.

From the earliest days, fishing has been one of the mainstays of the country. Norway ranks sixth in fishing behind Japan, Peru, China, the Soviet Union and the United States.

Norwegians have been the pioneers in whaling, but the Japanese and the Russians have taken the lead in recent years. As whaling expeditions became less and less successful, Norwegian whaling companies turned more to carrying oil.

The working population according to the last census, in 1960 was 1.4 million. Of these, 320,000 were women. About 24 women out of 100 work in Norway, which has the lowest number of married women working in Europe.

Industry Claims Most

About 35 per cent of the workers are found in industry, while 20 per cent live off agriculture, forestry, fishing and hunting.

In northern Norway, there are 20,000 Laps. Only 1,400 of these are Nomads who move with their reindeer flocks. Much is now being done to try to preserve their language and culture.

There are two official languages in Norway. One if influenced by Danish and German and is the one used most extensively. The other is a mixture of dialects and its supporters try to breathe life into "good old" Norwegian words.

During the last 10 years, suburbs have sprung up around Oslo. Today, the majority of the capital's almost half million residents live in the suburbs and pay about 40 per cent of the nation's income taxes.

The old face of Oslo is changing rapidly, with tall, modern office buildings scraping the skies. Public transportation is mainly by bus or tram (streetcar). A subway is under construction and is expected to be in use by 1965.

As of Jan. 1, 1964, there were 83,400 automobiles in Oslo. The average for the entire country is a car for every eight persons. Norway does not manufacture automobiles.

Dick Tiger Blasts Fullmer Out in 7

By PETER LYNCH
United Press International

IBADAN, Nigeria (UPI)—Middleweight champion Dick Tiger of Nigeria gave American Gene Fullmer such a terrific beating and blood bath Saturday night in their third title fight that Gene couldn't see at the end of the seventh round and "retired" from the bout.

Fullmer's defeat will go into the record books as a seventh-round technical knockout, referee Jack Hart of England said.

"I don't know whether I'm going to quit fighting. It's too soon to decide. I just don't know."

Face Gory

Gene's face was a gory mess at the end of the seventh from cuts above and below both eyes. But it was a deep gash on the right brow and the river of blood that flowed down into the right eye that caused Fullmer to signal the referee and disclose that he couldn't see out of the right eye.

Fullmer was included with the idolized Tiger in the frenzied cheers of more than 35,000 sweltering in the outdoor Liberty Stadium, when referee Hart signalled that Tiger was the victor.

The American, who had lost the title to stocky, 33-year-old Tiger in their first fight and had held Tiger to a draw in their second, didn't have a chance, it was apparent almost from the opening bell.

Tiger lived up to his name and up to the expectations of his admirers as he tore into Gene in every round. And the big difference this time was that Dick wouldn't let Fullmer evade his tanklike attack, which trapped the American again and again on the ropes and had him bewildered and half-groggy in the opening session.

Fullmer Weighed 160

Fullmer weighed exactly 160 pounds, but he had to remove his red boxing trunks at the weigh-in to do it. Dick scaled 159¾.

Tiger who stretched his unbeaten string to 10 straight bouts, including a draw, praised Gene by saying: "This fight was tougher than our first one at San Francisco, but not as tough as our second at Las Vegas. At Vegas I couldn't catch him. Tonight I did."

Fullmer, halted for only the second time in his career of 62 fights, seemed half-groggy and perspiring too much from the heat in the second round. And the excited crowd began to sense that he was on the way "out."

In the third round, small cuts began to show under both of Gene's eyes. But Tiger shifted his attack to the body and almost folded him with smashes to ribs and stomach. Gene suffered a terrific battering in the fourth, almost without return, until it seemed that the bell may have saved him on his feet.

"Tiger! Tiger!" screamed the fans. "Finish him! Knock him out!"

Gene was bleeding so badly from cuts above and below both eyes — particularly the right — in the sixth round that when Tiger's gloves thumped into the challenger's face, blood splashed in all directions. And the splashes came more often in the seventh.

WATERLOO, Iowa (UPI) — Mickey Wright clung to her one-stroke lead in the $7,500 Waterloo Women's Open golf tournament Saturday but couldn't widen her margin over steady Marilynn Smith.

Miss Wright, Dallas, Tex., fired a two-under-par 70 for a 139 heading into Sunday's final round of the 54-hole tourney.

But Miss Smith, Tequesta, Fla., the defennding champion here, scored her second 70 to remain only one shot behind at 140.

Kathy Cornelius, Lakeland, Fla. also carded a 70 for a 143 and third place after 36 holes. Tied for fourth were Kathy Whitworth, Jal, N.M., and Sandra Haynie, Fort Worth, Tex., at 144.

Miss Whitworth, the runnerup here the past three years, posted her second par 72, but slipped five strokes back of Miss Wright to see her hopes for her third consecutive tournament triumph begin to fade. She won the last two stops on the women's tour—the Wolverine and Milwaukee Opens.

Three players were knotted in sixth place at 146—Marlene Hagge, Los Angeles, Betsy Rawles, Joann Prentice, Birmingham Ala. Spartanburg, S.C., and Joann Prentice, Birmingham, Ala.

Virgil Trucks Calls This 'Vintage Year'

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — This is a vintage year for pitchers, Virgil Trucks observed, because there are more established hurlers who work harder than ever.

"I don't think the enlarged strike zone helped the pitchers too much," said the Pittsburgh Pirate coach who doubles as batting practice pitcher.

"Several years ago Sandy Koufax, Dick Farrell, Ron Perranoski and Juan Marichal were promising. Now they have reached their vintage and are pitching superbly. Then there are the veterans like Warren Spahn, Bob Friend and Lew Burdette who have been pitching well right along.

"Perhaps Spahn does not have his fast ball of old but he has other pitches. And he gains more craft.

"I honestly think the pitchers work harder today, they constantly try to improve their stuff and they are more control-conscious."

Trucks' belief is supported by the standout performances in the National League this season. Koufax, Marichal and Don Nottebart have tossed no-hitters. There have been a pair of one-hitters, 18 two-hitters and 27 three-hitters, all by pitchers who went the route. A dozen pitchers have 10 victories or more in the senior circuit.

"Three no-hitters by the halfway mark of the season are remarkable," said Trucks who turned in two such performances in 1952 when he was with the Detroit Tigers.

The prime ingredients for a no-hitter are pitching skill and solid defense, of course, but Virgil adds "don't forget the luck."

Jaycee Golf In Midland

MIDLAND, Tex. (UPI) — Terry Lee Dear will defend his International Jaycee Golf Tournament crown against young golfers from 48 states at Midland Aug. 18-23.

The tournament started Jack Nicklaus, Gene Littler and a number of other top pros on their way to fame.

Bobby Richardson, a 14 stroke runnerup to Dear last year, will also be on hand for this year's tourney.

Four man teams will be sent from the 48 states to participate in the top flight, notice, junior and open divisions.

Colts' Farm Teams Show Future Hope

HOUSTON (UPI)—The hapless Houston Colts are mired in ninth place in the National League with little hope of getting any higher this year but things look a lot rosier down on the farm.

The Colts' five farm clubs are leading the National League with their total won-lost percentage.

Most of the Colts' personnel are young ballplayers on their way up, which is giving Houston's management one of its few reasons to smile this year.

The Colts' farm clubs, through last Tuesday, won 255 games while losing 215 for a .542 percentage. The Los Angeles Dodgers, with seven farm clubs, have the second best record, 344 wins against 299 defeats for a .533 percentage.

Houston's five farm clubs are Oklahoma City in the Pacific Coast League; San Antonio, Texas League; Durham, Carolina League; Moultrie, Georgia-Florida League, and Modesto of the California League. All five have been in the first division in their leagues for most of the year.

Colt general manager Paul Richards estimates Houston has a dozen or more first-year players in the organization who bear watching to determine which ones should be protected from the minor league draft.

Bo Belinsky Sub Starting Pitcher

By ALE KAHN
UPI Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (UPI)— Durable, hard-throwing Danny Osinski has been in professional baseball for a decade but he's been a starting major league pitcher only two months.

That's why the 29-year-old Los Angeles right hander says, "I'm just beginning to learn how to pitch."

Osinski has been a member of the Angels for a year, but he was obtained by the club as a relief hurler and appeared destined to work out of the bullpen until the club ran into problems with starters.

The strong-armed Osinski's career with the Angels is linked closely to that of the talkative Bo Belinsky. In fact, Belinsky was supposed to have gone to Kansas City last year in payment for the Angels getting Osinski from the Athletics' farm club at Portland, Ore.

But baseball commissioner Ford Frick banned the deal because it was made after the trading deadline. So the Angels had to give up Ted Bowsfield instead.

Sent Belinsky Down

And when Belinsky couldn't get rolling this season and could win only one game, the Angels ordered the eccentric southpaw to their Hawaii farm club and switched Osinski to a starting role. Belinsky wouldn't report to the coast league team, but Osinski still replaced him as a starter.

His debut as a starting pitcher came on May 16 against Boston. Although Osinski was the loser, 3-1, he proved in his first start that he could work an entire game despite making the shift from relief work.

And the smiling, pleasant hurler pitched seven shutout innings after giving up three runs in the first.

"I find that as a starter I have more opportunities to experiment than when I was relieving," Osinski says. "As a relief pitcher you come in when the team is in trouble and you have to throw the ball. As a starter, I've been learning how to pitch."

But Osinski says Angels pitching coach Marv Grissom had been imparting the fine points of pitching to him since he came to the club, using the idle time in the bullpen to explain things to the pitchers.

Worked As Starter

"I wasn't always a relief pitcher," Oskinski points out. "I worked as a starter most of the time until 1959 when I was at Duluth. I asked to go to the bullpen. I like to throw and I figured the only chance I had to get to the big leagues was through the bullpen."

And it was as a relief pitcher for Portland that the Angels first took notice of Osinski. The Los Angeles club played the Pacific Coast League All-Stars in an exhibition game last year and Osinski worked an inning and two-thirds in relief against the Angels and struck out four men. Ten days later the Angels obtained him.

Currently Osinski has a 6-5 record, which might have been better but for the lengthy losing streak the club ran up on its last road trip during which Osinski dropped a pair of games.

Gomez Hurls Et Al To Win Over Dixie

By JEFF COHANE
Pampa News Sports Editor

Big Alonzo Gomez pitched and batted Et Al to a 4-0 win over Dixie Parts last night, winning the City Optimist Youth Baseball Tournament.

Gomez almost matched his no-hitter in the quarter-finals as he hurled one-hit ball, walking two batters, with his blazing fast ball moving down 13 Raiders on strikes, setting the side down on K's in the second and fifth innings. Dan Carlton hurled a four-hitter in defeat, holding the Misfits in check in all but the fifth inning, when Gomez connected for a two-run homer, his fifth of the tournament. Carlton walked only two while striking out 11, but was hurt by five errors behind him.

A walk and error put men on first and third to open the first frame, but Buzzy Green tried to score on a short passed ball and was thrown out, catcher Sherwin Cox to Gomez.

The third frame. The Raiders threatened in the bottom of the fourth when Jim Addington led off with their only hit, a double to center field. Addington moved to third on Chuck Albus' grounder and Carlton worked a walk, but Gomez threw three strikes past the next batter to end the only Dixie threat.

Carlton tired in the fifth and Larry Yearwood led off with what appeared to be a clean single into the middle garden, only to have center fielder Addington threw a strike to first base for the out. Cliff Gage was safe on an error and Gomez unloaded his fourbagger. Sherwin Cox followed with a single and Kirby lashed a double into center, with Cox holding up for the catch. Carlton then got a new lease on life and struck out the next two batters. Neither team threatened the rest of the way.

Dixie	0	0	0	0	0	0	—	0

A walk and three errors gave Et Al two runs without a hit in Al Gomez and Sherwin Cox; Dan Carlton and Phillip Long.

Rookies From Nowhere Overshadow All-Choices

By OSCAR FRALEY
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—The wonderful nonsense entailed in the annual selection of All-America football teams is pointed up today by the rookies from nowhere battling for berths in National Football League training camps.

Annually the All-America teams are composed of players from the major football foundries. Those selected come from the big-time head-knocking schools and, if not, even a combination Bronco Nagurski-Jim Thorpe couldn't get honorable mention.

It's a payoff on publicity, pure and very simple.

The pros, of course, latch happily onto the "name" All-Americans because of the manner in which they can be exploited at the gate. But the NFL rosters are a true indication of player worth and show clearly how the pro scouts bird dog their way through the boondocks in search of true talent.

Receives No Votes

How many All-America votes, now, do you suppose were received last fall by tackle Lucian Reeberg of Hampton Institute? That's right. None. But this six foot, four inch 285-pounder is right there with the Detroit Lions. Along with players from St. Benedict, Huron College and Jackson State.

What about Larry Davis of Whitewater State? Maybe you never heard of him but he's a 250-pound guard up with the Los Angeles Rams, which also has players from generally anonymous seats of learning such as McNeese State, New Mexico Highlands and Heidelberg.

The odds are that tackle Jerry Wedemeier of Winona State, despite his 255 pounds, never had his name on many ballots but he's right there with the headline boys in the Minnesota Viking entourage. And with him are bruisers from St. Thomas, Southern Connecticut State, Jackson State, Whitworth and Parsons College.

Unless you're a member of his family, maybe you don't know six foot, six inch tackle Ernie Decourley of Morehead State. But the San Francisco 49'ers knew enough to grab him. Along with fullback Dick Lopour of Huron, and to give you a tip, that's in South Dakota and has 500 students.

They just never got the clarion call in the headlines but the pros found them and, usually, tried to hide these backwoods blockbusters from each other until they were labeled in the draft.

It proves rather conclusively that a horde of outstanding players are ignored at All-America time. The late U.S. Senator Estes Kefauver summed it up rather adroitly when he was running for vice president.

"I was a member of the squad at Tennessee," he said. "When I first ran for office, I found I had been a first stringer. When I ran for the Senate, I discovered I had been all-conference. But I didn't make All-American until I ran for vice president."

Amen.

Odessa to Host Junior Rodeo

ODESSA, Tex. (UPI) — At least 84 young cowboys will be entered in the National Junior Championship Rodeo at Odessa Aug. 21-24.

The rodeo is sponsored by the American Junior Rodeo Association and the Odessa Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Entrants are determined from winners in junior rodeo competition held throughout the U.S. during the year. Contestants will range in age from 10 to 19 years old and will compete in three age classes.

'Big Jim' Tyrer Is Big Business

By WILLIAM COOK

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Tackle Jim Tyrer, the biggest man on the Kansas City Chiefs (nee Dallas Texans) American Football League championship team, is nosing around town looking for business investments.

At 6-6 and 292 pounds, Tyrer is the giant of the Chiefs' lineup.

And with five automatic car washes and an insurance agency working for him in Ohio, the 23-year-old offensive tackle is the biggest businessman on the squad.

The husky redhead is using a portion of his pro football earnings for investments in the future.

"I've seen it happen too many times," Tyrer said. "Guys make a bundle during their playing days, but have to go down in their standards of living when they give up the game.

"What I'm trying to do," he said, "is to have business ventures bring in as much as my football earnings. Then when I give up football in seven or eight years, there will be no change necessary in my standard of living."

Third Year With Team

Tyrer now is entering his third year with the Chiefs, who this year moved from Dallas. His business ventures already are returning "almost as much" as his football earnings.

The former Ohio State star's business interests apparently are not interfering with his athletic ability. He was named to first team all-league honors last season. His coaches say he "has exceptional speed and agility for a man of his stature."

Tyrer figures it is good business to take care of his body. His method includes addition of health food to a regular diet.

Tyrer's business partner is Jim Houston, defensive end for the Cleveland Browns of the National Football League. Tyrer reports their five car washes in northern Ohio all are showing a profit, as is an insurance agency in Columbus, Ohio.

The two plan now to open an insurance consulting firm to serve Cleveland, Cincinnati and Columbus.

Had Texas License

When the team was in Dallas, Tyrer had his license to sell insurance in Texas. He said he would acquire a license here.

Tyrer was born in Newark. He almost gave up high school football because he felt he was too small. But at the end of junior high, he sprouted five inches and added 25 pounds to his frame.

The sudden growth gave him confidence, and Tyrer went on to win the Prep Lineman of the year award, all-Ohio honors and prep All-America. He weighed 215 when he completed high school.

At Ohio State, he played three years of varsity ball and was all-Big Ten his junior and senior years.

When Tyrer finished the 1961 season at Ohio State, he was the No. 1 draft choice of the Cleveland Browns, but he signed with the Texans.

Tyrer is the third largest man in the American Football League. Ernie Ladd and Sherman Plunkett, both tackles for San Diego, are larger.

He was married in June, 1960. His wife, Martha, is from his hometown. The couple has two children, Tina, 2, and Bradley, five months.

Stuart Takes AL Home Run Lead

Cepeda Leads Giants to Win

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) —First baseman Orlando Cepeda continued his batting rampage against Philadelphia Saturday and the San Francisco Giants staved off a last ditch rally to win 7-6.

Cepeda picked up three hits to give him a season mark of 22 safeties in 50 appearances against the Phils for a .440 average. His hits plus three each by Harvey Kuenn and Felipe Alou paced a 17-hit San Francisco onslaught on five Philly hurlers.

Giant starter Billy O'Dell twisted his ankle while batting in the second inning and Bob Bolin fanned nine before he tired in the seventh. Relievers Jack Fisher and Billy Hoeft encountered difficulty in quelling the hosts the rest of the way.

Chisox Chop Down Detroit

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ray Herbert's six-hit pitching and a pair of two-run spurts off Detroit hurlers Bill Faul and Allen Koch Saturday carried the Chicago White Sox to a 5-1 victory over the Tigers.

Herbert, upping his record to 11-6, missed his seventh shutout of the season when rookie Pete Ward's bobble at third base allowed the Tigers to score an unearned run after two outs in the sixth inning.

Herbert walked only one batter and permitted only one Detroit runner beyond second base. He was aided by four White Sox double plays.

Ron Hansen doubled home Dave Nicholson for a Chicago run in the second inning and the White Sox put Herbert in front to stay with two runs in the fifth when Ward singled home Camilo Carreon and Jim Landis.

Boston Loses Game to Twins

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (UPI) —Dick Stuart took over the American League lead with a pair of homers Saturday but the circuit blows were in vain as the Minnesota Twins beat the Boston Red Sox, 5-3, behind Bill Dailey's top relief pitching.

Stuart hit solo shots off Lee Stange in the fourth and sixth innings to run his season total to 27, one ahead of Harmon Killebrew.

The Twins jumped on Boston starter Earl Wilson for four runs in the first three innings. Jimmie Hall hit his 18th homer in the third with a man aboard.

Cubs Shut Out NY Mets, 4-0

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ellis Burton's two-run homer in the ninth inning ignited a four-run rally that carried the Chicago Cubs to a 4-0 victory Saturday and enabled Larry Jackson to maintain his perfect lifetime record against the New York Mets.

Jackson has now beaten New York six straight times without a defeat over the past two seasons and has held the Mets to one run in three games against them this year.

The veteran Cubs righthander gave up seven hits Saturday, including three by Ron Hunt, as he registered his 13th victory against 10 defeats and snapped a three-game winning streak by the Mets.

Galen Cisco, who suffered his 11th loss in 18 decisions, checked the Cubs on two hits through the first eight innings. He was locked in a scoreless duel with Jackson until Lou Brock led off the ninth with a single and Burton followed with his eighth homer into the upper rightfield stands.

Stan Musial Leads Cards to Victory

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Stan Musial's ninth inning pinch single started a two run rally which gave St. Louis a 6-5 victory over the Milwaukee Braves Saturday and snapped a three game Cardinal losing streak.

Musial went in to bat for right-handed reliefer Ron Taylor, who got credit for his seventh victory, of the year. Musial's base hit scored George Altman, who had doubled and moved to third on a ground out. That run broke up a 4-4 tie. The Cardinals added their final run on a pair of singles by Julian Javier and Dick Groat.

Hank Aaron's eighth inning triple scored Frank Bolling, who had doubled, to tie the score at 4-4. The Braves then left the bases loaded. Ken Boyer's eighth inning double had sent home two runs, giving the Cardinals their edge before the Braves came to bat in the inning.

Great, the National League's leading hitter, got four hits in five times at bat to increase his average to .345.

Senators Squeak By Orioles, 6-5

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Powell hit three home runs in a losing cause Saturday night as the Washington Senators—sparked by a pair of homers by Don Lock—came from behind to edge the Baltimore Orioles, 6-5.

All of Powell's homers came with no one on and each cleared the right field fence, approximately 400 feet away. Powell hit homers in the first, third and fifth innings to give him a total of 19 for the year and pace Baltimore to an early lead.

Don Schollander Sets New Record

By WESLEY G. PIPPERT
United Press International

CHICAGO (UPI) — California teen-ager Don Schollander broke the official world's record in the 200 meter freestyle Saturday in the National AAU Outdoor swimming championships for the second time in two weeks.

A world relay record — in which Schollander turned in an even greater performance — also fell during the second day of competition at the Rideeland Common Pool in Oak Park.

The tow-headed Schollander, 17, from the Santa Clar Swim Club won his second consecutive AAU 200 meter freestyle title with a time of 1:59.0. He qualified for the National AAU meet July 20 in the Los Angeles Invitational with a time of 1:58.8.

North Upsets South In All-Star Clash

HOUSTON — A defense led by John Lagrone and Dale Doyle allowed the North All-Stars to take a 12-7 victory over the South Friday night in Rice Stadium before a warm 20,000 fans.

The 29th Texas High School Coaches' Association coaching school game saw the teams battle between the 20-yard markers except for a Texas- — wild 36 seconds in the fourth quarter.

In that short period of time, all the scoring was completed.

Borger tackle Lagrone and Doyle, a fullback by trade but a guard during the game, led the spirited blue-clad North defensive unit. So completely did the North defense swarm, the South was limited to only 5 net yards rushing and 23 yards passing.

The South's only score came on a 94-yard kickoff return by San Benito's Jimmy Helms during the wild spree by both teams.

For three quarters the teams were scoreless and that hadn't happened since 1941.

The third quarter ended with the North driving and on the South 29-yard marker.

Three plays later, quarter-back Malcolm (Deacon) Lewis sneaked across from one yard out with 10:24 remaining on the clock.

Brownwood quarterback Terry Southall had his kick fall off to the left no good, but he redeemed himself shortly.

San Antonio Brackenridge's passing master, Victor Castillo, threw a pass on the first play after the kickoff which Southall picked off and dashed 53 yards for the second score.

On the North kickoff, Helmes sprinted up the right sideline for his score and it was 12-6 with 9:48 left in the game.

Joe De La Rosa of Round Rock kicked the extra point to complete the scoring.

So outstanding was the play of LaGrone and Doyle, they were both honored by sports writers after the game. LaGrone received 20 votes and was easily the outstanding lineman. Doyle, a Crowell graduate, was second with four votes.

Denton fullback Mike Jordon, who gained 63 yards in 16 carries and was a standout blocker, was voted the outstanding back of the game.

Neither team threatened seriously in the first half, but the South missed one golden chance.

Midway of the second quarter the South had driven to the North 48, with the aid of a 15-yard roughing the kicker penalty.

South quarterback Randy McCollom of Barber's Hill threw a perfect pass to Brownsville's John Poss, who had gotten behind all North defenders on the 10-yard line, but he dropped the ball.

That was the most serious threat either team made until the North started its drive late in the third quarter on its own 44-yard line. Jordon intercepted a pass by Bay City's Dennis Gann on his own 22 and took it out 22 yards to set up the drive.

Lewis passed 20 yards to Woodrow Wilson's Bobby Goodrick on the South nine-yard line as the key play in the drive.

On the next play, Jordan followed the blocking of Lagrone and Goodrick to the one-yard line. Lewis drove for the score on the next play.

On Southall's intercepted pass 21 seconds later, he followed the blocking of Jordan and Dumas' Kelly Baker, who was another standout on defense.

Baker knocked out the final dangerous South defender on the 25-yard line.

The second half was double tough on the South attack, except for Helms' run. The losers were able to get only one of their first downs during that half.

The South had three first downs rushing during the game, one passing and two by penalties.

It was the 16th North victory in the series.

Prospects Good At Texas Western

EL PASO — Football season is still a couple of months away at Texas Western but it is interesting to take a look at what lies ahead for Miner boosters in 1963.

Coach Warren Harper, a personable young man with a rich background in athletics, starts his first year as a head college mentor.

Harper and his staff will be blessed with 10 returning starters from the 1962 team which compiled a surprisingly fine 4-5 won-lost record in addition to several outstanding junior college transfers, an ex-serviceman and many improved returning squadmen.

The returning starters include ends Ulysses Kendall and co-captain Jim Evans; tackle Robert Glover; guards Tim Morton and Mart Adams center and co-captain Leroy Johnston; quarterback Jerry Tucker; wingback Bob Mortimer; halfback Larry Durham and fullback Ray Jackson.

Also returning are Dexter Pate, who drew the starting offensive

Sporting Sidelines

by JEFF COHANE

EARLIER THIS week, four men were inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame. Their names were Sam Rice, Elmer Flick, Eppa Rixey and John Clarkson.

To the majority of our readers these names mean nothing. . . . but then, few of the names of yester-yeur do. In the first days of the Hall of Fame, the immortals of earlier eras were installed — Ty Cobb, Cy Young, Nap Lajoie, Cap Andon, Wee Willie Keeler. . . .the names of the men who made baseball what it is were entered. . .these were the names that every baseball fan had heard of as a child.

Later, realizing that baseball had two separate era. . .the dead ball and the lively ball (actually it should have three classifications — from 1876, the organization of pro ball, to 1900, the advent of major league baseball as it now stands; from 1900 to 1920, the era of the dead ball; and from 1920 through the present), baseball started choosing honorees in two categories. . .the modern era, which every fan followed avidly and knows who is slated to go next; and a special committee to pick out those overlooked from the past.

THE OLD-TIMERS Committee was justifiable as a number of greats such as Jimmy Collins had just missed being elected on the first ballots, but were getting fewer and fewer votes as time went on and less and less people remembered them. They made sure that players who had been truly great, but had not had quite the color of a "Big Train" or "Big Six," such as Walter and Christy; or who had been forgotten through the years, or who had toiled ignominiously for losing clubs through their careers. . . .that men like Hugh Duffy, Mike "King" Kelly, Eddie Plank, Ed Walsh and other greats of the first years of baseball got their due.

★ ★ ★

HOWEVER, after viewing the names of the latest choices, we are forced to the conclusion that just about anyone who played in the old days can get a free ticket to the Hall of Fame. In other words, the Old-Timers Committee has run out of greats, and, either to justify its existence or to make sure that the memory of baseball in the "good old days" is perpetuated by letting anyone in, is sending up for membership in the sacred Hall men who really, no matter how laudable their careers, have no right in the same shrine as the memories of the Georgia Peach and the Bambino.

★ ★ ★

A FEW YEARS AGO, while in New York State, we made a pilgrimage to the Hall of Fame, and like any awe-stricken kid, gazed wide-eyed at the bats used by Shoeless Joe and the Babe, the baseballs thrown by Rube Waddell. Even then we felt somewhat irked by plaques to the memories of such men as Jesse Burkett, Tom McCarthy and Joe Tinker, feeling that they had no right to sit cheek by jowl with the Iron Man or Tris Speaker.

★ ★ ★

But the names of Sam Rice, Elmer Flick, Eppa Rixey and John Clarkson are just a little too much. Studying the record books very carefully for outstanding hitting, outstanding fielding, outstanding pitching and length of service, we come up with the following information:

John Clarkson led the National League in pitching in 1885 with 52 wins and 16 losses! He also led it in 1889 with 48 wins and 19 losses! Conclusion: John Clarkson belongs in the Hall of Fame.

Elmer Flick led the American League in base-stealing in 1904 with 42 and in batting in 1905 with an average of .306, the lowest average that ever won a batting crown! Elmer Flick was a fair-to-middling outfielder with a good bat, a singles hitter, averaging .320 lifetime. Conclusion: Flick was a good ballplayer, but not worthy of the Hall of Fame. Sam Rice, an outfielder with Washington, led the American League in stolen bases in 1920 with 62 (not an overwhelming figure in those days when Cobb was stealing 96, Clyde Milan 74 and Eddie Collins 81). Rixey, a workhorse pitcher, never led in any category whatsoever, nor was he distinguished for being anything but a good reliable pitcher. Conclusion: Both these men are good ballplayers, but neither of them deserves to be in the Hall of Fame.

NOT TO SAY that these men were not good. . .they definitely were good ballplayers. . .but to enter the Hall of Fame you must be great not merely good. To parallel it in modern terms, it would be as if the committee had run out of Mantles, Williamses, Musials and Spahns to enter, and were sending in the Kalines, Terrys, McCoveys and Davises. They are good ballplayers, but none of them deserve the appellation of great.

Nor do the Rixeys, Rices and Flicks. It would seem to us that just about all the really deserving old-timers have been received into the Hall of Fame. Let us close that department out before the honor and the glory of being in the Hall of Fame ends up with as little honor as the All-Star team did when they had two games a year!

Priority Big Headache for Water Use

TEXAS OUTDOORS
By WILLIAM CLAYTON
United Press International

The theme will be a familiar, unresolved one and the approach may have new urgency this year when the interim legislative committee studying Texas bays meets to see who gets priority over use of bay waters.

Houston state Rep. Don Garrison says the mere crush of population growth — probably the most repeated phrase in Texas planning today—gives great seriousness to the situation.

Garrison is joined on the committee by Sens. Culp Krueger of El Campo, chairman, Criss Cole of Houston and Roy Harrington of Port Arthur; Reps. Gus Mutscher of Brenham and James Slider of Naples.

Population Boom

"In 10 years," Garrison says, "there will likely be 50,000 more people in the immediate upper coastal bays area. This makes the problem a critical one. We have been putting it off for so long."

There was a similar committee in operation before the 58th session of the Texas Legislature, but most of its impact was lost in a legislative squabble.

"The last one (committee) did not really accomplish anything as for as resolving the conflicts.

And they are age-old conflicts. "It is the same situation — demands from the oil industry, shell people, sports pushers, industry backers, tourism promoters and others," Garrison said.

Stuly Needed

Two major areas of solution must be explored, he said — answers to the pollution problem and some sort of priority list for water use.

Garrison considers pollution the biggest bugaboo.

"We need to re - define and broaden our pollution laws. The law now generally says a person is liable only if he pollutes the water more by his use than it was before he started. This is hard to determine and hard to enforce," he said.

He said legislation could clear up much of the pollution law confusion, strengthening and clarifying the law.

Bill Yeoman Is Building U of H to Prominence

By KENNETH CARR
United Press International

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Southwest Conference has long been synonymous with college football in Texas, but a long-jawed 35-year-old grid coach is working about 80 hours a week now to change all of that.

His name is Bill Yeoman and he's the head mentor at the University of Houston, located in Space City, U. S. A.," but whose football teams never have been "out of this world."

The school's spirit seldom has risen to the heights of its mediocre teams. and Yeoman is working on that also.

No shrinking violet with the press, Yeoman has been quoted as saying (several times) that he would have a "good" team this year, an "outstanding" one next year and a "possible" national championship by 1965.

Out On A Limb

When a football coach predicts a possible national championship three years ahead for a school known only for its golf teams, he is out on a limb — Yeoman doesn't mind a bit.

"The big problem now is letting the nation know who we are . . . (we) must accept the responsibility of taking the school to the people of Texas and other states.

The university becomes a state-supported school this fall, and the enrollment is expected to jump from 16,000 to as high as 20,000. Yeoman believes the school must now perform a service for the state, and a national football championship could do the trick.

State schools and high national rankings are not new to Yeoman who came to Houston at the end of the 1961 season.

He coached defense and the backfield during eight years under Duffy Daugherty at Michigan State University. Before his MSU stint, Yeoman served as an assistant to Earl Blaik at West Point for two years.

All-American At Point

It was at West Point that Yeoman gained his fame as a player. He was an All-American center there in 1948.

Yeoman came onto the University of Houston and started with a big bang last year. The fans liked his 7-4 record, that included his Tangerine Bowl victory over Miami of Ohio. The fans especially liked the Cougars' wins over Southwest Conference foes Baylor and Texas A&M.

"Yeoman is young enough to be one of the boys," a close observer of UH football said recently," but they know he isn't. The players respect him, but they don't fear him."

Actually, the players never know what to expect of their coach. He is liable to run into a play in practice and intercept a pass — or pick up a loose ball and run with it.

Even the usually apathetic alumni have been affected by the new coach. He is trying to get them all to kick in a few dollars for the Cougar Club, which he helped form, so the school can get a new field house and buy a stadium. Meanwhile, the money rolls in.

'Character Building' Coaches Get the Axe

By STEVE SNIDER
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Another big batch of coaches lost their seats for 1963 in college football's annual game of musical chairs.

At Notre Dame, at Stanford, at Tennessee and at 91 others affiliated with the NCAA there'll be new coaches on the scene this fall as a result of firings, resignations and retirements.

That's 10 more than last year but about average for a hazardous profession in which "building character" is important but not quite as vital as a winning season. Thirty-seven of the new jobholders are rookies on their first head-coaching assignments.

Hughie Devore of Notre Dame, John Ralston of Stanford, Jim McDonald of Tennessee, Eddie Crowder of Colorado, Phil Cutchin of Oklahoma State, Jack Green of Vanderbilt and Johnny Pont of Yale head the list of coaches who wound up seated when the music stopped.

The lucky ones also included men in a wide assortment of jobs from Charles Marvin at Adrian, Mich., College through the alphabet to Wilmington, Ohio, College where Don Pinhey has taken over.

Dayton, Toledo and Miami, Ohio, all came up with new coaches. So did Hardin-Simmons, Lafayette, Utah State and Texas Western for a total of 14 among the major group.

Devore's Second Term

Devore, soft-spoken veteran of several college and pro chores, took over for the second time as an interim coach at Notre Dame when Joe Kuharich stepped down after four seasons to join the National Football League as supervisor of officials. Hughie was interim Irish coach in 1945 while Frank Leahy was in the Navy. He won't seek the permanent post this time either but will "take it if it's offered at the end of the year."

Ralston replaced Jack Curtice, long - time mentor at Stanford. Highly successful at Utah State, Ralston moved in after Jack posted a 5-5 record in 1962. Tony Knapp took over at Utah State and Curtice moved down to the Santa Barbara branch of the University of California.

Replaced By Aide

Bowden Wyatt went out at Tennessee and was replaced suddenly by McDonald, an assistant. Crowder came in to lend a more experienced touch to the situation at Colorado where William E. Davis was the emergency coach last season. Cutchin replaced Cliff Speegle who had a 4-6 record at Oklahoma State last year.

Art Guepe, long-time Vanderbilt coach, went out in favor of an aide, Green. Jordan Olivar relinquished the job at Yale which sent a hurry-up call to Miami, Ohio, for Pont. Pont led Miami to an 8-1-1 record last year including a victory over Purdue and a trip to the Tangerine Bowl. Bo Schembechler moved up at Miami.

Howard College of Birmingham, Ala., hired a new coach and so did Howard University of Washington.

Eddie Tryon, veteran at Hobart College of Geneva, N.Y., departed and Alva Kelley, who coached previously for 11 seasons, came out of retirement to take over.

And so it goes. . .nothing to do now but play a football season and wait for the next game of musical chairs.

center assignment much of last season when Johnston was used mainly as the middle linebacker; Louis James, a sure-handed defensive halfback; Ralph Kennedy, who was red-shirted last season because of a broken arm after being named to the All - Border Conference team as a sophomore; Harrison Gamble, the swivel-hipped halfback; Jim Nash, a 214-pound tackle who is probably the fastest lineman on the team, etc.

The ex-serviceman is big Bob Windham, a 6-5, 250-pounder who spent four years with the Marine Corps. The big guy looked quite impressive during spring drills and Harper and his staff have remarked that Windham will see a lot of action this fall.

Some of the transfers labeled for heavy duty this autumn are Val Tenorio, a talented passer; Stan Reeder, a speedy 200-pound fullback; Julius Glosson, the fastest man on the team who is a gifted halfback; Piti Vasquez, a hard-nosed lineman; Ray Scholten, a husky end; John Hellard, a 6-4, 210-pound end; Bethany Chapple, a 6-4, 255-pound center, etc.

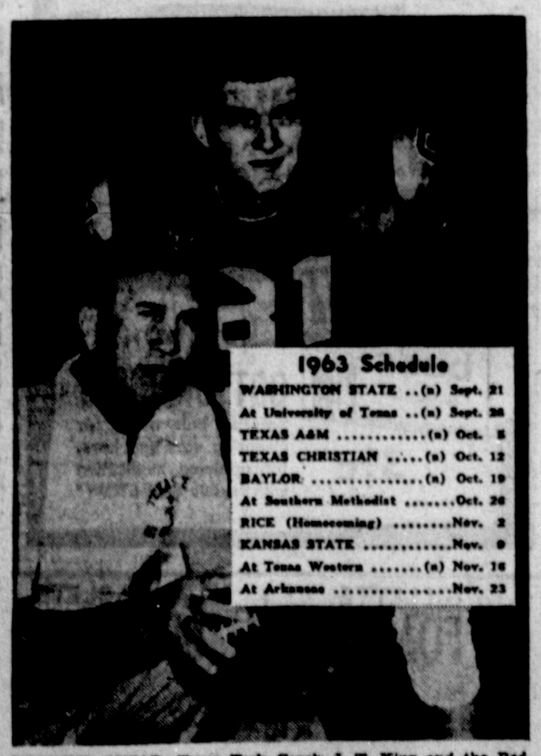

Many of the 1962 squadmen displayed a great deal of improvement during the spring and fit into Harper's plans for the coming season.

Cowboys Set For Green Bay

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI) —The Dallas Cowboys, who beat the Los Angeles Rams, 17-14, Thursday in their first exhibition win in four years, are set to take on the World Champion Green Bay Packers next Saturday night in Dallas.

Coach Tom Landry said that the main difference between the Packers and the Cowboys last year was defense, and he said he thought the Cowboys' defense looked "good" against the Rams.

"I think we played as good a defensive game as any game we played last year," Landry said. "The Rams came at us real strong at the start and I was happy with the way we hung in there with them."

Sports Patrol

By STEVE SNIDER
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's a good thing major league baseball writers don't have to make their most valuable player awards right now.

They're facing a dilemma in both leagues and all they can do is hope performances the rest of the way will get them off the hook.

In the National League, Dick Groat of the St. Louis Cardinals looks like a shoo-in—unless you prefer Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

In the American League, it's a wide-open race with the New York Yankees rolling toward a pennant on a general team effort and the voting certain to be split among many if matters continue as they are.

Kaline Doing Well

Al Kaline of the Detroit Tigers is having a fine year but the word "valuable" in the MVP Award is a hitch. How "valuable" is a player on a ninth-place club?

The writers are mulling a change from "MVP" to "player of the year" for the annual award they have been presenting since 1931 and that may come in time.

However, they're stuck with the "valuable" angle at the moment and it complicates affairs at least in the American League.

In the National, both Groat and Koufax obviously rate consideration as either "most valuable" or "player of the year." But Koufax also is in line for the Cy Young award as the year's outstanding pitcher and that's something that might count against him in the voting since some electors might feel one award is enough.

Newcombe Won Both

Don Newcombe of the old Brooklyn Dodgers is the only pitcher ever to win both the pitching award and an MVP the same year. That was in 1956, the year the Cy Young plaque first was handed out.

Groat, leading the National League in hitting with .342 at mid-week, proved his value by making the Cards a contender after he was obtained from Pittsburgh last fall. He has played every game to date, knitting the defense with solid if not spectacular shortstopping.

Koufax has been absolutely brilliant this year. He had a no-hitter and 10 shutouts in his first 18 victories.

Among the top clubs in the NL, the leading candidates would include Koufax and Tommy Davis of the Dodgers, Groat of the Cards, Willie McCovey or Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants, Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs and Jim Maloney or Vada Pinson of Cincinnati.

Second Flight

In the second flight of clubs are Tony Gonzalez of the Phillies, Hank Aaron of Milwaukee, Robert Clemente of Pittsburgh, Hal Woodeshick of Houston and Ron Hunt of the New York Mets.

American League possibilities among first division clubs are Elston Howard of the Yankees, Nelson Fox of the Chicago White Sox, Brooks Robinson or Steve Barber of Baltimore; Harmon Killebrew, Bob Allison, Rich Rollins or Earl Battey of Minnesota and Carl Yastrzemski of Boston.

Others included Jack Kralick of Cleveland, Leon Wagner of Los Angeles, Wayne Causey of Kansas City, Detroit's Kaline and Don Lock of Washington.

A slump by Koufax or Groat, perish forbid, could help solve the dilemma for the National League electors. But what are they gonna do about the American League's MVP?

Softball League

MIAMI (Spl) — Delbert Daniels pitched Cabot into a tie for the Industrial Softball League title Friday night by beating Miami, 12-3.

Cabot scored one run in the second and held the lead until Jerry Robertson hit a two-run homer for the Cowboys in the fifth frame.

Clown bats came alive in the sixth as they scored six runs off Scotty Daugherty, with the key hits being a triple by Doug Burress and a single by Daniels.

Cabot exploded for five more runs in the seventh inning with Hill Browning's two-run double the big blow.

In a coin-toss after the game, the Panhandle Packers, in a three-way tie for the loop lead with Cabot and Pampa, drew a bye in the playoffs, with Cabot and Pampa meeting next Wednesday at 8 p.m. at Lions Park. The winner will meet Panhandle for the championship.

Cabot	0 1 0 0 0 6 5—12 10
Miami	0 0 0 0 2 0 1— 3 7

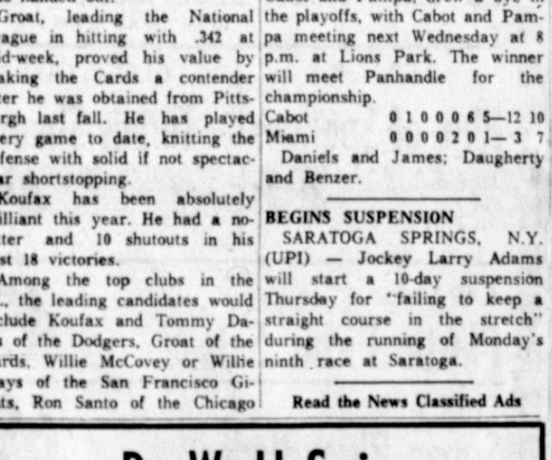

Daniels and James; Daugherty and Benzer.

CARRYING A BIG STICK

Et Al, Dixie Win Semifinal Tilts

Et Al and Dixie Parts battled their way into the finals of the Optimist Youth Baseball Tournament Friday night as the Misfits rolled over B&B, 14-5, and Dixie edged Hiland, 1-0.

The powerful Et Al squad continued their high-powered bombing, with two six-run innings off David Irwin, Mark Stephens and Johnny Moore. Cliff Gage rolled to a one-hitter, giving up the only safe blow in B&B's five-run third, striking out 12 and walking nine.

Et Al opened the bottom of the first with six singles for as many runs, Buzzy Green, Gage, Al Gomez, Stanley Kirby, Freddie Harper and Jackie Kirby delivering the hits.

The Misfits picked up two more in the second on walks, errors and Sherwin Cox, single.

Gage lost his control in the third and allowed four walks, a hit batter and the only safe B&B blow of the game, a clean single to center field by Johnny Moore.

Et Al wrapped it up with six more in the fifth on walks, singles by Gomez and Doug Davis and a triple by Edwards.

In the best-played game of the tournament, Lonnie Robbins walked with the bases loaded in the fourth inning to force in Phillip Long with the only run of the game, giving Dixie a 1-0 edge and breaking up a tremendous pitching duel between Big Jim Addington and Little Lee Waters.

Addington, who got faster as the game went along, struck out nine batters and allowed only one walk and one hit. Waters struck out three, walked three and gave up four hits. Both hurlers were backed by tremendous fielding support, including a second inning double play by Hiland, Doug Thompson to John Doucette to Kevin Parker.

Addington retired the first nine men in a row and then Doucette got the only Hilander hit, slicing a single through the hole between first and second. Ross Holman walked and then second-sacker Robbins came up with the play of the game. Eddie Hopkins slashed what apparently was another hit through the hole, but Robbins went far to his left, gloved the ball and fired to first for the out, stopping a sure run.

Long led off the fourth with a double. Addington walked and Chuck Albus beat out an infield single to load the bags. Waters got the next two out, but Robbins worked a walk and sent Long home.

Addington then really went to work, striking out the side in the fifth inning and getting the fourth straight K in the sixth for the win.

Pilot's Emotional Condition Plays Important Role in Air Accidents

By ROBERT J. SERLING
UPI Aviation Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — How much of a role does mental stress play in air crashes?

The mental and emotional condition of a pilot is one of the factors examined in an accident investigation. But unless a pilot has been knowingly consulting a psychiatrist, psychologist or doctor or has appeared openly disturbed to his colleagues, emotional stress is tough to pin down as a possible contributing factor.

An accident report published in the current issue of Army Aviation Digest underlines the problem. It involves a fatal helicopter crash in which the pilot was a veteran with 2,000 hours in "choppers"—and a host of personal problems.

The accident itself was caused primarily by engine failure. But the report noted that the pilot made no effort to avert disaster. In particular, he failed to go into "autorotation" which would have given his rotor blades enough speed to land without mishap.

Why?

Pilot Not Identified

The report, which did not identify the pilot victim, delved deeply into his personal life. It quoted at length from an analysis by a flight surgeon who said the pilot was unfit to fly before he took off on the fatal flight.

His personal problems, the report continued, mainly concerned a divorce in which both children were put in the wife's custody. She remarried and was subsequently divorced twice more, creating worry in the pilot's mind about his children's welfare. Just before the accident, he attempted a reconciliation and was rebuffed.

The flight surgeon said the pilot's personal difficulties affected his military duties to such an extent that he was reprimanded several times. His sleeping habits were known to be poor and an autopsy revealed that he had not eaten lunch or breakfast before the crash. Fatigue and inadequate diet, the flight surgeon wrote, were contributing factors as well as worry and emotional upset.

The report said one of two mental states may have been involved when the accident occurred. The first was ordinary day-dreaming which the flight surgeon described as "temporary mental withdrawal from reality." He compared it to what commonly occurs among automobile drivers when they suddenly realize they have not really seen anything passing by for several minutes.

Suicide Impulse

The second mental state was a possible suicide impulse. The flight surgeon said he did not intend to suggest that the pilot "willfully failed to take appropriate action in an emergency." But he said the man's emotional condition, plus fatigue and poor diet, "indicate a lowering of the normal self-preservatory urges to the point where he would be incapable of fighting off any suicidal impulses that occurred."

The Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) recently called for a study by the Federal Aviation Agency, aviation industry and the medical profession on the effects of mental and emotional strains on pilot proficiency. Some work is being done in the field, as the Army report indicates, but some experts would like to see a full-scale effort.

There is, for example, mounting evidence that fatigue is becoming a prevalent problem with jet pilots. American Airlines recently reduced maximum monthly flight hours from 85 to 75 in a move that probably will be followed throughout the industry. And fatigue could be the accident-causing catalyst in a pilot burdened with personal problems.

DENIES THAI CHARGES

PNOM PENH, Cambodia (UPI) — Cambodia Saturday denied charges by Thailand that it had massed troops along the Thai border. Secretary of State for Information Chan Seng said Thailand was trying to camouflage its own troop concentrations in the same area.

Board Approves $235,000 Funds

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Texas Legislative Budget Board has recommended that Gov. John Connally spend some $235,000 in state funds for various projects, but rejected an appeal for a computer for the state board of hospitals and special schools.

The action was taken in a closed meeting Wednesday—The first such session the director could remember.

Pampa Sees Newest In Western Fashions

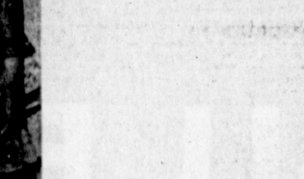

SMART SET — This charming young couple is all decked out in dressy Western clothes. Even though Howard Lewis, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Lewis, 1904 N. Dwight, did tug at his tie and wonder about the whole thing, he was a true Western gentleman at the Western Apparel Style Show held Thursday under the sponsorship of the Alpha Omicron Chapter of ESA with fashions being furnished by Anderson's. Little Miss Marsha Bentley 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Bentley, 1900 N. Dwight enjoyed the event dressed in true style of the West. She wore a patio dress in sunshine orange with colorful braid trim.

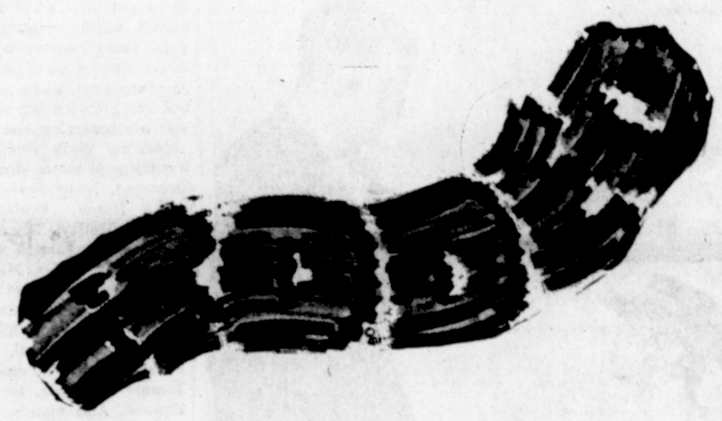

TRIO — Misses Connie Pairsh, Donna Cole, and seated, Miss Cynthia Hogsett, are ready for any party calling for Western dress. They are wearing colorful patio dresses of peau de soie, trimmed with metallic braid in gold and silver, with matching shoes.

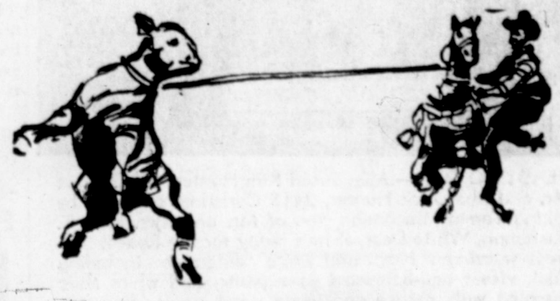

PATIO DRESS — This Dessert Flower patio dress goes along with the Western tradition of "Cowboys and Indians". Modeling this lovely fashoin of black georgette with silver on white trim is Miss Carmelita Hogan, 2007 Williston. Worn with heels or stretch slippers of silver color, this frock adds a feminine touch while following the Western theme.

SATIN BROCADE—Miss Cynthia Hogsett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Darrel Hogsett, is shown wearing red and gold brocaded costume. The bell-bottom pants have a matching vest and shirt of gold satin. She wears a white hat with black trim to bring out the pearl snap trim of her shirt.

BLACK AND WHITE—A favorite in the newest designs in Western Wear is the old standby, black and white. Here, Connie Pairsh, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Pairsh, south of Pampa, is wearing a black brocaded faille outfit which is set off by her white boots. The white shirt is western, yet so feminine. Connie is an active member of Leather n' Lace Riding Club.

Western Style Has Changed

Around Pampa, everyone is getting ready for the Top O' Texas Rodeo-especially local girls who will be participating in the Girls' Sponsor contest. The hum of activity goes on as some of our girls are busy being fitted for new clothes. Some are making their own, and all are choosing from the newest fashions designs in Western wear.

Gone is the day when a girl who really could ride had to depend on the unbecoming mannish clothes that were available for young ladies who loved the competition of rodeos and thrill that comes from winning a contest on a good horse trained for their personal use.

Not too many years ago, a cowgirl had to depend on awkward high-heeled boots, copies of men's shirts, pants designed, really for boys, and black or brown; not very pretty-but very servicable boots.

Usually a high crowned hat that was hard to crease and having a narrow brim was worn. Then in came the full, full sleeved shirts, or blouse, made of satin or some that was worn with a vest, and other hard-to-care-for material, double seated saddle pants that were copied from the California Spanish riding clothes. Straight legs in pants were still popular, and the cowgirl in the paraphernalia was more of a show piece, than chic.

When the Spanish design began to really become popular, bell-bottoms were added to the lines of Western wear. Now, fitted, yoked shirts, still copies of the stronger sex, became popular. They were fitted to the wearer, looked smart and were comfortable; but they were still not "just for girls".

With increasing rodeo popularity, boots began to under go changes. From the high-heeled version, part Texas style and part Mexico style, came a high topped boot. Bull-dogging became a skill instead of a chance, with a cow boy and the boot heel was made wider and flatter to enable the wearer to get out of the stirrups easily. Time went on and the roping heel was seen on many boots; and finally, the most popular of all with cowboys, the walking heel. Most cowgirls today choose this for their boots.

DRESSED IN RED — Miss Connie Pairsh is wearing a new drip-dry cotton suit in striking red. The white brocaded shirt is set off by a lace choker tie. She wears white gloves and boots to add a dressy note. Her white hat sports a red plume.

With the new rodeo season nearly upon us, a long look has been taken into the clothes preparation of local girls who ride.

Drip-dry cottons, stretch material, washable silk and cotton blends, and pale feminine colors have finally been allowed into the wardrobe of "real" cowgirls. Some of the new Western suits, tailored, yet with a definite touch of femininity are so new, and so beautiful, it is truly amazing to think that not too long ago, the garb worn by cowgirls could have been so un-becoming and just plain mannish.

The striking suits are so slim and chic in design with bell-bottoms, yoked backs, and often as we saw at, the Western Apparel Style Show, sponsored by Alpha Omicron Pi of ESA, in the Pampa Club Room Thursday night, ruffles have been added to highlight the lines.

Brand new hand-made ties are available to Pampa girls. These choker ties, made of rows of ruffled lace, accented by beautiful Western jewelry, worn with a Bandera hat trimmed, likely as not, with a pearl band and pearl edging, pale colored rough-side-out boots, and STYLE, made a striking picture.

The Texas cowgirl has made a place for her self. She has graduated from a gentle horse, "good for a girl to ride" to a well bred animal, which is highly trained for girls' rodeo competition. Designers in the Western wear field have finally recognized "that a girl is a girl" and has provided her with clothes that are becoming and feminine.

Modeling these new ideas in Western wear were: Misses Melinda Spearman, Mary Spearman, Carmelita Hogan, Connie Pairsh, Marsha Bentley, Susan Hunter, Trudy Hunter, Donna Cole, Gail Cole, Cindy Coffee, Miami; Phyllis Sorenson, Canadian; Mmes. Buster Higdon, Jack Hunter, Jake Webb, Buck Worley, Eugene Bentley, Carl Caldwell, Raymond Parker, W. R. Pairsh; Messrs. Tommy Buchanan, Ken Gill and Howard. Also modeling girls' ensembles was Miss Cynthia Hogsett.

From the bright, gay colors of the patio dress, a copy of those worn by the American Indian, and very Western, to the ruffled shirts in easy-to-care-for materials, feminine, comfortable boots, and striking hats, down to the just-right jewelry they chose, was perfection of design, style and taste.

We're a long way from the tied under the chin gawky hat, stilting boots, copies of man's pants, gaudy shirts, and the masculine or clownish looking dress of cowgirls.

They have made a place in the world of skill and competition, and their style has kept pace.

READY TO GO? — Miss Susan Kim Hunter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hunter, 2418 Christine, seems to be asking Tommy Buchanan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul T. Buchanan, White Deer, if he's ready for the Rodeo. Susan is wearing a black and white ensemble including black vlevet bell-bottomed yoke pants, and white shirt trimmed with ruffles and white pearl snaps. Tommy's Western dress suit is of black wool, and is worn with a white shirt with new French cuff design, black Denver tie and black boots.

Save House Repairs Next Spring Protect Closed Vacation Home

By KAY SHERWOD
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

As more homemakers find themselves mistresses of two houses, a new routine is added. Closing the summer or vacation house at the end of the season is not simply a matter of flicking off the lights. Knowing something about how to close a house may save costly repairs next spring. Even if you plan to use your vacation home periodically during the year, plan for the long stretches between occupancy.

First step is to check your insurance policy to determine whether the period your summer home is closed complies with the policy provisions. If a discrepancy exists, have the policy amended immediately.

Remove all matches, rags, turpentine and other flammable materials.

Have rugs and upholstered furniture moth-proofed.

If heat will be shut off, drain all plumbing to avoid frozen pipelines.

If heat will be left on at a reduced temperature (to protect musical instruments or decorative pieces) arrange for periodic inspections. Coat chrome kitchen and bathroom fixtures, metal garden and sporting equipment, door hinges with a thin layer of petroleum jelly to keep rust from forming.

Cover furniture with sheets, disconnect electric cords, and turn off all pilot lights except for the heating plant.

Notify police of your absence and leave your regular address and telephone number with a permanent resident of the area to insure prompt notification in case of emergency.

Druggists' Dilemma... Patients, "Rx-PRN!"

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A person goes to a physician. First comes the examination, then the diagnosis. Then the physician writes out a prescription for medication. Right? So why does the patient take the prescription to the druggist, and ask, "What is this prescription for?" Doesn't he know WHY he went to the doctor? Doesn't he know that most M. D.'s prefer that the patient ask HIM what the medication is for? and that most medication has a wide range of application? And that pharmacists aren't supposed to give medical advice? Also, why do some patients ask the druggist, "Can't you give me HALF a prescription, and if I need more I'll come back?" They don't ask the doctor for half an examination, do they? Or the shoe clerk for one shoe, saying if it satisfies him he'll be back to get the other one? Please tell your readers that the physician prescribes the amount HE thinks the patient should have. Thanks a million.

HENRY THE DRUGGIST

DEAR HENRY: All right: Confidential to everybody: "Rx — PRN" which means, "Take this advice when needed."

DEAR ABBY: I have a very good friend who is crazy about BINGO. She always asks me to go to Bingo games with her, and I go, but I don't enjoy it. You see, she is a highly emotional woman, and she beats on me, pounds on me, yells and plays four cards at once. She causes such a big racket in the place and makes us both conspicuous. How can I get out of going to Bingo with her? I enjoy her company everywhere else, I wouldn't hurt her feelings for the world.

A. A.

DEAR A. A.: You don't have to tell your friend WHY you don't want to go to Bingo games with her any more. Just tell her you don't want to go.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do with a man who refuses to eat store-bought bread? Meet my husband. His mother lived for her family. Her whole life was cooking and baking and she spoiled them all so bad nobody could match her. (She died at 58 — worked herself to death.) My husband says store-bought bread tastes like wallpaper paste. I've tried different bakeries and even the frozen kind, but if it came from a store my husband turns up his nose at it. Am I wrong for refusing to stand and bake bread when you can buy it in the bakery?

BUSY

DEAR BUSY: Some bakery breads are far better than what mother used to make, but that's not the point. Your husband undoubtedly has the nostalgic aroma of freshly-baked bread, the security of his childhood and the taste of Mamma's goodies all mixed up in his memory. Just for the fun of it, try to bake bread. And after that your husband might beg you to buy it.

DEAR ABBY: My husband thinks I am deaf, dumb and blind. Last week he forgot to turn the mileage back on his car and he

The serving table was laid with a gold slipper satin cloth covered with white net, made by their daughter, Mrs. Melba Holland.

The centerpiece arrangement was made of long stemmed red Yuletide Roses in a golden and white compote. Strings of golden Smilax garlanded the table. The "50" symbolic of the Golden Anniversary, was formed in gold letters in the centerpiece which was fashioned by J. C. Hopkins.

Mrs. Bigham was presented with a corsage of Red Happiness Roses and Mr. Bigham was given a Red Happiness Rose boutonniere.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Leon Eisele, Sheridan, Wyo., sister of the honoree; Mrs. Jessie Graves of Waurika, niece of Mrs. Bigham. POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY — I have found that a small steel knitting needle is better than a knife to loosen a cake baked in a tube pan. The needle slips around the rim and the center tube without tearing the cake edge.—A. M. H.

GIRLS — A No. 1 steel needle really does the trick. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — An old nylon stocking stuffed with several cleansing tissues makes an excellent dustcloth. The number of tissues you use will make the dustcloth any size you wish. After dusting, remove the tissues, wash the stocking and let it dry and it vis ready for further use. The nylon seems to catch and hold the dust.—G. C.

DEAR POLLY — Ever think of licking the envelope rather than the stamp? Try it next time you mail a letter and you will not have the taste of glue on your tongue.

Rubber stair treads come in handy for all sorts of things. Tacked to wooden swing seats they provide a dandy non-skid surface, prevent splinters and dry off easily after a rain.

Before you drive a picture hook in a papered wall, cut a V-shaped dart in the paper and gently peel it back. Then if at any time you decide to remove the hook, you can paste the paper back and the hole will not show.—MRS. R. L. R.

DEAR POLLY — Spray your favorite cologne or perfume on tablet blotters. Place one blotter in your lingerie drawer and another with your sweaters. The scent will cling to the garments.

An ice cream scoop which measures one-fourth cup is handy for dieters who must count calories.—MRS. P. M. W.

DEAR POLLY—Small children lose pieces to games so easily. If a "mover" (a piece to show one person's place on the board) is lost, I find a golf tee turned upside down makes a wonderful substitute. They come in all colors, too.—H. G.

GIRLS — Grownups could put this idea to good use, too. Children aren't the only ones who lose parts of games. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — If you put masking tape over the quarter-round baseboard molding when you paint a wall you will keep paint from dripping on tacked-down carpeting.

Also this tape is good for removing carpet fuzz and dust in corners where broom and sweeper cannot reach. The tape peels off easily, taking the dirt with it. — MRS. R. G. H.

Push Vitality Toward Own Life, Let Children Alone

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Dear Mrs. Lawrence: My mother lives with me, my husband and our little boy. Though she is over 50, she is so young in heart that all our friends include her in their invitations to us. My problem is one couple who recently moved into our neighborhood. Yesterday when the wife telephoned to ask us to a barbecue next Saturday night, I said, "You are including Mother, too, aren't you?" and she said straight out, "No, she is not invited." I have refused to go but my husband says he is going. . .

ANSWER: My dear, this is a hot day. I am also depressed by the state of the world. If anything could make me feel hotter, and more depressed, it is the thought you present to me of a 50-year-old skipping enthusiastically off to Saturday night barbecues with her children's friends.

Why does your mother want to go to your parties?

She is, I think, too young in heart. Look. Let me talk to her, will you?

Madam, children are delightful creatures. We derive great satisfaction out of their first astonished encounters with fireflies, cotton candy, sex, weddings, the birth of their own children. But it is at best a second-hand satisfaction.

We ourselves have finished with the kind of excitement they feel at these encounters. So we cannot be real participants in their Saturday night barbecues. At best we can be only spectators. For our difference in generation from our children's is inexorable, imposing on both them and us a difference of response to experience which no affection, however deep, can possibly bridge.

So I don't believe that you are content with the social life of your daughter and her husband. I urge you to welcome this discontent.

I am sure that it's felt in your truth-knowing moments. I think that before you fall asleep after returning from one of these youthful parties, you must painfully feel your difference and loneliness as an older participant. Stop running away from it. It's the push of your own vitality toward a life of your own—a runway to be used as your take-off into new encounters.

So let's use it. What about saying to these kids of yours, "Listen, I don't want to go to this party of yours Saturday night. I want to make one of my own. I want to help with my cocktails and canapes. And I'm going to the phone right now to invite people to come to it. . ."

Take It From Kathy

By KATHY PETERSON

Dear Kathy: Two years ago, my sister died. She was a little older than I and a wonderful person. I loved her and I miss her. We got along beautifully but now all my memories of her are being spoiled.

Every time I do something, my mother compares it with what my sister did or would have done. There doesn't seem to be anything I can do to get a pat on the back.

My mother and I used to be close but things are different now. We never seem to talk: I always feel as if I'm competing with my sister even though that never happened when she was alive. What can I do?—A. G.

Dear A. G.: Comparing you with your sister is your mother's way of reminiscing. Everything you do brings back memories. Your mother would love to see her right there beside you doing the same things. She wouldn't want to swap you for your sister but making you play two roles is the closest she can come to getting back a lost daughter.

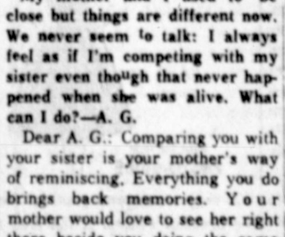

Resenting your sister is not the answer. Make allowances for your mother's grief. If you were ill or in trouble her affection would show and you would be assured. Let's hope it doesn't take something this drastic to prove that her love for you has been there all the time.

Teen-agers: Please send your personal problems to Kathy Peterson in care of this paper. While she cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

RUTH MILLETT

Why do most of us keep putting off until tomorrow the things we should do today, when—— The letter we have delayed answering is so much harder to write when we have to start it with an apology?

— The call we have been meaning to make on a newcomer for weeks doesn't carry half the welcome it would have if we had made it sooner?

— The tough job we have been dreading isn't half as bad as the constant, nagging thought that it has to be done?

— The moment when we could have been of some help to a friend passes before we get around to offering our services?

— The many small kindnesses we think we'll do "tomorrow" never seem to get done, but remain only good intentions that no ones else even knows about?

— The thing we wanted is no longer there when we finally make the effort to get it?

— The easy tomorrows we anticipate turn out to be more hectic than the todays during which we could have managed to do what we should have done?

— The belated "thanks" or "congratulations" or "sympathy" mean so much less if they had been offered at the first opportunity?

With all these reasons for not procrastinating, why do we so often put off the things that should be done, or need to be done, or that we really want to do, until tomorrow?

In Hollywood—Some Make It, Most Don't

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — If an eager young actress is called a starlet, what do you call the male of the species?

A fast-rising example of the male starlet is 22-year-old Tony Bill, a terribly serious young man who appeared with Frank Sinatra in his first picture and who finds himself co-starring in his next two with Steve McQueen and Jackie Gleason, and with George Peppard and Carroll Baker.

Exactly one year ago he graduated from Notre Dame with no prospects for making a living. Now he's on his way to stardom.

"A year ago, when I got out of college, I had no idea how I was going to earn $400 a month so I could settle down and get married," he said during a noontime break.

"Now I'm earning $400 a week and in a few months it moves up to $550. And no one could be more surprised and bewildered by what's happened than I am."

Tony's story is an amazing confluence of talent and luck.

Most young actors sweat out one of the toughest professions extant. They starve and strive to learn their craft in cold water flats in New York or in tumble down apartments in Hollywood.

Doors are shut in their faces. They play bit parts. They work free at benefits. They jump at the opportunity to play small roles in television shows — and most of them don't make it.

But Tony's first professional appearance was a fat part in "Come Blow Your Horn." And this summer he will go straight from "Soldier In the Rain" to "The Carpetbaggers."

"I'm thinking of all the reasons why this shouldn't be happening to me," Tony sighed.

A native of San Diego, Tony was a participant in Notre Dame's dramatic activities, and upon graduation headed for Hollywood with a letter of introduction from the dean of the university to director Leo McCarey.

McCarey lined him up with an agent who introduced Tony to producers Bud Yorkin and Norman Lear who just happened to be searching for a youth to play Sinatra's younger brother in "Horn."

Dark eyed and with a thatch of dark hair, the gangling Tony was just what the producers had in mind.

Blonde German Film Star Is Dedicated to Success

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The latest addition to Hollywood's glamor girls is blonde Elka Sommer, a German actress who became a star by accident.

Miss Sommer arrived in town for a role in "The Prize" with Paul Newman. It's her first picture in Hollywood after impressing American movie makers with her work in "The Victors," filmed in Europe.

Miss Sommer, 22, was born in Berlin, the daughter of a minister. She started training for an interpreter's career but a holiday trip led her into the movies.

"I never intended to act," said Miss Sommer, sitting on a couch in the living room of her rented Beverly Hills home. "I got into this business by accident. I was going to be an interpreter. So I went to London and worked as a mother's helper, taking care of children. That way I could learn my English.

"After I had been working for a while my mother and I went to Italy with a tourist group on a holiday. One night I went dancing and as the girls entered the hall, each was given a number plate to wear. My number was 14. We danced with the men for a while and suddenly the music stopped and an announcer said number 14 was chosen 'Miss Via Reggio'. That was me!

"My picture was in the newspaper and I took a screen test later in Rome. I couldnt have cared less but I was offered $2,000 to do a picture. I thought the money would pay for my schooling. However, I got to like acting and decided to stay.

Miss Sommer is not impressed with the glamor here, preferring to spend most of her free time at home painting and reading. While many young actresses are touring the towns night clubs, Miss Sommer is home with friends discussing subjects ranging from art to baseball, a game to which she was introduced on arrival here.

"I didn't try to come here because I never force things," she said. "For instance, I was offered a lot of money a year ago to make one picture here. I turned it down because I wasn't ready. I am more prepared now.

"Besides that, I wanted to have something in Europe to return to. So many European actors who had no career back home come over here and fail. They have nothing to go back home to. I'm not taking any risks. I made 12 pictures in Europe and I can always make more."

Miss Sommer will stay in Hollywood long enough to complete her role in "The Prize" and then return to Germany. She is a dedicated actress, one who has set a timetable for professional success.

"When I started acting I gave myself five years to reach the top," she said. "If I didn't do it by that time, I told myself I would quit. So far I've been lucky.

"I don't think I've made it yet. But I'm not at the point where I'll give up. I'm out to prove that I'm an actress and would do a role for nothing to do it."

Whisker-Face Al Hirt Can Really Blow That Trumpet

By GARY P. GATES
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Trumpet virtuoso Al Hirt is a huge bear of a man who prefers to bury his face in bushy whiskers. The overall effect makes him look like a cross between Jackie Gleason and Ulysses S. Grant.

Like Gleason, Hirt is a jovial fat man who knows how to translate his 299 pounds into showmanship. And like Ulysses S., he goes in for the kind of beard that sprawls all over the face.

His most notable characteristic, though, has nothing to do with how the man looks. It's what he does with a trumpet that makes him one of the nation's most popular musicians. Such popularity, however, is a rather recent and almost accidental development in Hirt's life.

For more years than he cares to remember, Hirt was all but unknown outside of New Orleans where his Dixieland style of jazz is as popular today as it was during its "Golden Age" three decades ago.

To a large extent, this obscurity was self-imposed.

Over the years he repeatedly turned down offers to leave his native city where, happy in the role of local hero, he made enough money to support his wife and eight children. Furthermore, he richly enjoyed playing the kind of music which brought New Orleans worldwide fame as the birthplace of jazz. In so many other jazz centers across the country, Dixieland was in a state of undeserved decline.

But he finally made the jump, accepting a few night club engagements in other cities as well as revealing his talents to nationwide television audiences.

The result not only has changed Hirt's life, it has revived national enthusiasm for a style of jazz that seemed to be dying. Now, thanks to Hirt and other traditionalists, Dixieland once again is alive and kicking.

"I never expected this to happen," Hirt confided between shows during a recent engagement at Basin Street East. "And frankly, I'm having trouble getting used to it. You see, I've still got this one-town attitude about everything. I sort of 'think' New Orleans. That's my town, man, and it always will be."

If Hirt had known how the rest of the country would respond to his trumpet, would he have come out of his New Orleans cloister any sooner?

"It's hard to say. Maybe if I had, the whole thing would have bombed. Maybe the people were just getting ready for a little New Orleans music and I caught them when they were in the mood for swinging. Anyway, there's no regrets."

It is not only his musical talent that endears Hirt to television and night club audiences.

He is gifted with an uncanny sense of showmanship and is able to get across to the audience that no matter what happens he, Al Hirt, is having a ball.

"I'm a pretty even-tempered guy and I've always tried to stay out of these debates between Dixieland fans and modern jazz fans simply because everyone is entitled to his own tastes," Hirts aid.

"But if there's one thing that bugs me, it's these phonies who try and put me down for clowning around too much and having a few laughs.

"Look, man, I never said I was the world's greatest trumpet player. The only thing I wanted to do is entertain people and make 'em a little happy. Is there anything wrong with that?"

Actor Makes Debut at 72

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — English actor Stanley Holloway is making his Hollywood movie debut at the age of 72 in a role he played for almost four years on stage.

Holloway, one of the original Broadway cast in the musical "My Fair Lady," has been cast in a movie version of that show. He'll play Alfred P. Doolittle, the role he portrayed in the hit show based on George Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion."

Warner Bros. studio is making the "Fair Lady" movie. Usually Hollywood producers shy away from original Broadway casts when they film a legitimate stage show. In "Fair Lady's" case, two of the original cast, Rex Harrison and Holloway, were cast in the movie version. Audrey Hepburn co-stars.

"I would have been very disappointed if I hadn't been cast in this picture," said Holloway. "I did the show for two years on Broadway and practically live in London."

Not Unknown

Holloway, despite his late debut in Holywood, is not unknown to American audiences. He was star butler in 'Our Man Higgins" television series. Stanley's pre-television series popularity rests on his English movies, including Hamlet and American video spectaculars.

"I've been in some English movies that played here," Stanley said. "Some of them have ever gotten onto the late, late television show.."

Stage Star Says Broadway's Sick

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jason Robards Jr. says Broadway is sick and that he's staying away from the main stem for the next two years.

The gaunt star plans to appear in the new Lincoln Center repertory company, appearing in three plays, which means giving up a weekly salary of $7,000 which he commands on Broadway.

The Lincoln Center will pay him less than a thousand a week. "Broadway is in terrible shape," Robards explained. "The financing situation has become impossible. The costs of putting on a play are unreasonable and ticket prices are almost as oad. Most of the economic problems are caused by stage unions.

"But the real sickness on Broadway is the lack of guts. Producers are afraid to try new things. They have no imagination."

Strong language. But Robards is no disenchanted novice. He has starred in long-run hits for the past decade when most plays flopped.

All parts of the laburnum tree are poisonous, especially the seeds, and insects never try to feed on it.

Pillars of Economic Wisdom

One pleasure-packed educational exhibit at the 1964-5 New York World's Fair will be embodied in the Hall of Free Enterprise-first structure ever devoted exclusively to the dramatic visualization of the economic principles upon which the free enterprise system is built.

A unique "pillar planting" marked formal start of construction on the Hall of Free Enterprise in May. Business leaders joined leaders from the sponsoring and cooperating organizations in "planting" symbolic pillars, representative of the "The Pillars of Economic Wisdom."

The Hall of Free Enterprise is sponsored by The American Economic Foundation with the support and cooperation of the National Small Business Association. The American Economic Foundation is a non-profit, non-endowed, educational organization. Its Hall of Free Enterprise is being financed by contributions from thousands of companies and individuals in the United States and more than 10 other nations.

Cooperating organizations include Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Junior Achievement, Inc., Foundation for Economic Education, Christian Freedom Foundation, Wilkie Brothers Foundation and the Canadian Economic Foundation.

Upon completion, the Hall of Free Enterprise will consist of a single-story, steel and concrete building. At the front resting upon a raised platform will be the 10 stone pillars. The fascade connecting the pillars will be inscribed "The Greatest Good for the Greatest Number" and will support an arch, bearing a gas-burning torch. Circling the flame of the torch will be the American Economic Foundation motto, "The Truth Shall Keep You Free."

The theme of the exhibit will be the Ten Pillars of Economic Wisdom. Here they are:

1. Nothing in our material world can come from nowhere, nor can it be free. Everything in our economic life has a source, a destination, and a cost that must be paid.

2. Government is never a source of goods. Everything produced is produced by the people, and everything that government gives to the people it must first take from the people.

3. The only valuable money that government has to spend is that money taxed or borrowed out of the people's earnings. When government decides to spend more money than it has thus received, that extra unearned money is created out of thin air, through the banks, and, when spent, takes on value only by reducing the value of all money, savings and insurance.

4. In our modern exchange economy, all payrolls and employment come from customers, and the only worthwhile job security is customer security. If there are no customers there can be no payroll and no jobs.

5. Customer security can be achieved by the worker only when the "boss" is allowed by the worker to do things that win and hold customers. Job security, therefore, is a partnership problem that can be solved only by a spirit of understanding and co-operation.

6. Because wages are the principal cost of everything widespread wage increases, without corresponding increases in production, simply increase the cost of everybody's living.

7. The greatest good for the greatest number means, in its material sense, the greatest productivity per worker.

8. All productivity is based on three factors: (1) natural resources, whose form, place and condition are changed by the expenditure of (2) human energy (both muscular and mental), with the aid of (3) tools.

9. Tools are the only one of these three factors that man can increase, and tools come into being in a free society only when there is a reward for the temporary self-denial that people must practice in order to channel part of their earnings away from purchases that produce immediate comfort and pleasure, and into new tools of production. Proper payment for the use of tools is essential to their creation.

10. The productivity of the tools—that is, the efficiency of the human energy applied in connection with their use—is highest made by millions of progress-seeking individuals, rather than in a state-planned society in which those decisions are made by a handful of all-powerful people, regardless of how well-meaning, unselfish, sincere and intelligent those people may be.

Toward Truth

Some people seem to feel that a lack of personal commitment to a belief is a great advantage. Actually, it is not. We are all of us weary of the prejudices so often voiced. But what we really yearn for is not non-prejudice but total truth and reliance on reason.

Accentuate The Positive —

Everyone knows the story of the nut who banged his head against the wall because it felt so good when he stopped.

Well, modern psychology has looked into this situation and found that it just doesn't work. That is, it's not the absence of bad things that makes you happy in life, it's the presence of positive, good things.

This is the conclusion of Dr. Norman M. Bradburn, University of Chicago psychologist, after a survey of people in four Illinois towns — one prosperous, two with depressed economies and one in between.

It was found that a person usually described himself as happy when there were enough positive satisfactions to outweigh dissatisfactions like an unhappy job or no job or a bad marriage.

On the community level, it was discovered that "it is the lack of joy in Mudville, rather than the presence of sorrow, that makes the difference."

"C'mon, Charlie, if you had let that one go, it would have been out."

The American Way

"AT LEAST EQUAL"

By WILLIS E. STONE
Chairman, National Committee For Economic Freedom

A recent statement by the President of the United States contained the amazing assertion that he considered the people "at least equal" to the government.

The newspapers have been full of the hectic tumult resulting from groups already enjoying "at least equal" citizenship seeking a status more equal than others, but not a word of the ascendency of government to this exalted position.

What happened to the American idea, voiced by every one of the Founding Fathers, that people have inalienable rights which government may not share—that people are supreme? What happened to the purposes of those who won our independence and established our organic law to "secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our posterity."

Questions

What happened to the immortal declarations of other Americans who helped make the American dream of human liberty come true. There were the ringing phrases of Webster, Clay, Hayne, Jackson, Adams, Van Buren, Hancock, Crockett, Henry and an endless parade of others.

Then there was Abraham Lincoln, who summed it all up in his prayerful hope that "this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from this earth."

And what happened to the American concept that people are important—that the "best government governs least." What ever happened to the constitutional design limiting the powers of government so government could never attain a position of absolute power.

Answers

The grudging admission by the President that people are "at least equal" to government can not be shrugged off as a mere figure of speech. There are too many facts, clearly established, indicating that people are no longer equal to government. They have been subdued. They have been subjugated. The odds against the individuality of people increase every minute.

The government has prevented the holding of patents by inventors in space travel and many other areas.

The government has taken over 40 percent of the land area and 20 per cent of the industrial capacity of the nation without any constitutional authority to do so.

The government has assumed authority over industry, property, wealth and even the decision as to whom we may associate with.

The very economic capacity of life has been subject to the conquest of the federal government, and the Secretary of Labor proves the point by proudly announcing that "government jobs at all levels accounts for one of every two non-farm jobs created in the past five years."

Imagine that—every job in industry now carries a bureaucrat on its back.

Tragic as the equation may seem, we have not reached the "point of no return." We have reached the "fork in the road" and must decide whether we go on to total government and oblivion, or turn back to the fundamental philosophy of constitutional law protecting us from excessive government.

We can, if we will, apply the advice of Thomas Jefferson who said "let no more be heard of confidence in man, but bind him down from mischief by the chains of the Constitution."

Solution

To apply this advice, we must get action on the LIBERTY AMENDMENT pending in Congress as H.J. Res. 23 and already approved by Wyoming, Texas, Nevada, Louisiana, Georgia and South Carolina. It provides that:

"Sec. 1. The Government of the United States shall not engage in any business, professional, commercial, financial or industrial enterprise except as specified in the Constitution.

"Sec. 4. . .Congress shall not levy taxes on personal incomes, estates, and-or gifts."

New Reading System Just Adds Confusion

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, Ph. D.

A couple of years ago I encountered a conference which was busily studying a new system for teaching reading to youngsters. After a little cautious contemplation of the system, I tossed it out of my mind as being not worthy of serious consideration. That was a mistake.

The "system" which shall be nameless as far as I am concerned since I certainly don't wish to publicize it, drops "Q" and "Z" and adds 19 new characters to our present alphabet. The item concerning this system admits there are many inadequacies in our present teaching system but it doesn't mention the fact that 8th grade pupils 30 years ago were reading books which stop high school students cold today, not to mention high school graduates and college graduates who seem to find it necessary to stick to the comic strips for reading material.

Take a look at the confusion which will ensue when a new "system" for teaching reading gets on the road. In the first place, all of the teachers or prospective teachers will require a long period of re-education. Obviously, regularly employed teachers will need the same training. An entirely new set of "reading books" will be necessary and other books students may study in the lower grades will also require extensive alteration.

On the other hand, responsible parents find ways and means to teach their children to read before they start to school, so it seems that only professional "educators" have trouble teaching youngsters to read. As a matter of fact, reading this kind of hogwash makes me wonder how my own daughter managed to learn to read beginning at the age of 3. At the age of 4, she could manage most of a daily newspaper and no one in my family spent a great deal of time on this part of my daughter's education. Nor was she a genius or child prodigy as she would be the first to tell you today.

On a fairly regular basis, the mail brings me news of children from 3 to 5 years of age who have learned to read quite well and such circumstances have been regularly reported in this column.

When I first encountered this "system" of teaching reading, I was particularly interested in the fact that students would first be trained to read with a 43-letter alphabet, after which they would be re-trained to use the normal 26-letter alphabet. Here is the typical socialist system of duplication of effort at work. This is a make-work deal with a vengeance and all of this will be at the expense of the taxpayers, of course.

Sure, there is an imperative need to overcome existing deficiencies in reading instruction in this country. The systems utilized more than 30 years ago could be re-examined, polished and made more effective. The systems used by socialist schools during the last three decades have only contributed confusion and an almost illiterate condition among too many victims of the progressive education system.

I believe most literate parents can teach their children to read before the youngsters are 5 years old, if they spend no more than 30 minutes a day, five days a week, at this vitally important obligation. To those who believe they have no spare time during the day, I ask—which TV program do you prefer? From a good many years of personal observation, I believe the majority of children really enjoy learning to read and this reminds me that in 1907 when I was 5 years old, my grandmother thought that a novel entitled "Whispering Smith" might be too old for me. I also remember that I pronounced the word "debris" exactly as it is spelled but I knew what the word meant, anyway.

With first-hand knowledge of the satisfaction I received from helping my daughter to learn to read, I can guarantee the value of this type of activity for both parent and child.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

BLASTS ADMINISTRATION

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Republican Whip, Rep. Leslie Arends, Ill., has charged the Kennedy administration with "government by crises."

Arends said Thursday that by failing to act on the problems when they arose, the administration had allowed them to become critical. "The New Frontier leadership is now trying to alibi the inaction of this 'standstill Congress' with references to the impending crises — civil rights, threatening railroad strike, outflow of gold and nuclear test ban treaty-requiring immediate attention," he said.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question: "How can taxing investors for buying stocks in a foreign corporation improve our economy?"

Answer: The avowed purpose of putting this tax on buying foreign stocks was to reduce the gold which has been leaving this country.

Foreigners, of course, can get their dollars exchanged for gold, but American citizens have been made second-class citizens for nearly 30 years by preventing them from protecting themselves by converting their dollars into gold.

Undoubtedly the administrators are worried, and might well be, at the rate gold is leaving this country.

It seems ridiculous to think that we can improve our economy by putting a tax on the man who wants to invest in good stocks in well-managed companies in foreign lands. It is just another step toward interference by the government in the free market. It is an attempt to build a fence around the United States and isolate it from the rest of the world. And anything that interferes with people freely exchanging goods and services through-out the world injures everybody. All nations that try to live by themselves and will not exchange goods and services with other nations eventually decay.

It also seems absurd to think that putting a tax on an individual buying stocks in foreign corporations from another American who owns the stocks in foreign corporations can help reduce the flow of gold from the United States.

It also seems absurd when the administration wants to spend $4½ billion in foreign lands where it can be turned into gold and deplete our base of money, for the administration to think that more restrictions will create goodwill and prosperity for ourselves and the rest of the world.

It is just evidence that the administration is desperate and does not know what to do and is willing to try any socialistic scheme suggested by the President's cronies, from whom he takes advice.

Goal Too High, Civil Rights Petitioners Face Failure

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The Aug. 28 March on Washington For Jobs and Freedom by 100,000 or more civil rights demonstrators may be doomed to failure before it starts.

Leaders of the six national civil rights organizations sponsoring the march have set their objectives so high they cannot possibly be realized this year.

Getting anything less than what the groups want may be considered a defeat, calling for more drastic action later.

Initial goal of the march was the passage of President Kennedy's civil rights bill as a bare minimum for this year.

Now, however, leaders of the six predominantly Negro organizations have issued a "March Organization Manual No. 1." In it they state their full program. It includes these demands:

Passage of the President's program without filibuster.

Immediate desegregation of all the nation's schools.

A massive public works program to provide jobs for all the unemployed and federal laws to promote an expanding economy.

A federal fair employment practices act to bar discrimination by government and private industry.

A national minimum wage of $2 an hour.

All these proposals have been made to Congress before in one form or another and have failed. Few, if any, congressmen would admit that these extreme measures could be passed this year.

This is especially true in view of the lateness of the session and the competition with major legislation such as tax reduction, the railway labor resolution, nuclear test ban treaty ratification, the backlog of unpassed foreign aid and other appropriation bills for this year.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People held a mass meeting on civil rights yesterday.

This apparently was a warm-up for the bigger march on Washington three weeks later. NAACP delegations would be sent to Capitol Hill to ask congressmen for support of the President's program.

The big six of the march on Washington also propose to take other direct action to influence Congress this year.

"In the event of a filibuster before Aug. 28," says the last, little-noticed paragraph of Organization Manual No. 1, "march machinery will be used to send daily waves of approximately 1,000 people to Washington for the duration of the filibuster.

"If the filibuster has not begun by Aug. 28, march participants will be asked to return to Washington at the time of the filibuster in waves of 2,000."

These threatened actions go far beyond restrictions being put on the big march of 100,000 or more set for Aug. 28. The planning for this event emphasizes there is to be no interference with the operations or daily routine of Congress.

While state and congressional district delegations from the Aug. 28 marchers may be sent to the Senate and House to present petitions for the President's minimum program, the instructions are that all marchers are to be off Capitol Hill before noon, when Congress normally convenes.

Only a small delegation will ask to be received at the White House. All marchers are to be out of town before dark.

Card Suits

Four suits of the familiar pack of cards represent the four orders of society in the Middle Ages. Spades, an adaptation of the scepter, represented the nobility; hearts, modification of a chalice, depicted the clergy; diamonds, the merchant class; and, clubs, an adaptation of an acorn or a stave, represented the peasantry.

Editor:

The world today places a very high premium on conformity. We have a surplus of: compromising on principle adults, me—too political candidates, do alike, think alike, wear alike teen-agers and do alike, drive alike build alike suburbanites.

It is strange indeed that we have so many do alike people and that so few of them really like each other. A picture of the blackest most uncompromising long-eared mule keeps coming to my mind. His name was Pete and there has never been one like him before or since. There never was a lock on a barn door or gate that Pete couldn't eventually get open.

The world was his oyster and he held the firm opinion that all grain fields, watermelon patches, etc., were put there to be consumed by his insatiable appetite. If gates were guarded too closely he would hunt for a fence where the bottom wire was a wee bit high, dropping down to his knees he would get his old neck under the bottom wire and raise up. It was good-by fence and good-by Pete. Sure he got cut and bruised but he also had his fill of good tasty food.

Why on earth did Paw keep such a nefarious critter around? When the chips were down Pete was there, meaning that when the wagon was piled high with mesquite wood to be pulled home to keep a house full of children warm and fed, old Pete would pull the tongue out of the wagon before he would let it be stuck in a sand bed or mud-hole.

Then I am reminded that it was Columbus who threw off the shackles of conformity and discovered America.

It was those people who would not conform to a State religion that left the old countries to come over and settle this great land.

Lightning had flashed through the sky since the dawn of time trying to attract man to its usefulness. It was the non-conformist Edison who finally bottled it for the use of mankind.

To those who feel that the Conservative is an onerous mule-headed non-conformist, I offer this bit of advice. When the chips are down we'll be there. We will not leave the ship of state sitting in the mud where the liberal has left it. Even though we may forever wear the label of non-conformist.

An organizational realignment of Skelly Oil Company exploration activities was announced today by W. W. Simpson, Tulsa, Vice-President, Exploration Department.

Ben W. Ploch, Tulsa, was named exploration manager for the Central Division covering offices in Midland and Amarillo, Texas, Oklahoma City, and Albuquerque, N. M. He is a geological graduate of the University of Kentucky and a Skelly geologist since 1946.

A. J. O'Rourke, Tulsa, was made manager of land. He is a 37-year veteran of Skelly land operations and was stationed in Hutchinson, Wichita, Midland, and Houston before moving to Tulsa headquarters offices in 1955.

H. H. Kaderli, in Skelly's land work for 26 years, was appointed Administrative Assistant for the Southern Division. J. H. Torbert, with Skelly since 1948, was made Administrative Assistant for the Northern Division, and J. W. Loofbourrow, who joined Skelly in 1949, was named Administrative Assistant for the Central Division. All will remain in Tulsa.

Four new District exploration managers were named by Simpson. They are William R. Kendall, Tulsa, as district manager at Albuquerque; Charles E. Buck, Tulsa, as district manager at Oklahoma City; William I. Mounger, Jackson, Miss., as district manager at Corpus Christi, Texas, and Claude A. Teel. TIPRO to Hold Annual Meeting

AUSTIN (Spl) — Texas independents will honor Colorado Conservation Commissioner Warwick M. Downing at the annual meeting of the Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association (TIPRO) in San Antonio September 29 to October 1.

Downing has been named the recipient of the association's Annual Recognition Award, to be presented at the Seventeenth Annual Meeting of TIPRO. Known informally as the "hat's off" award, replicas of the small state of an independent tipping a 10-gallon hat, have gone previously to Wm. J. Murray, Jr., Walter S. Hallana, Olin Culberson, Ernest O. Thompson, Russell B. Brown, Frank Ikard, Wallace E. Pratt, Bruce Netschert, and Jack Campbell.

Announcing the selection of the Denver lawyer, for the award, TIPRO President Johnny Mitchell described Judge Downing as "one of the nation's most distinguished and dedicated conservationists, an outstanding lawyer, independent producer, and all-around good citizen. He has enjoyed several concurrent careers spanning most of his 88 years, all combining to give him a special place of honor in the petroleum industry and an unparalleled status in the eyes of his fellow independent oilmen."

Judge Downing's career as an independent producer dates from 1906 when he and others drilled a well 1800 feet to bring out a bailer or two of oil — about a pint of which was his share. His career as a conservationist dates from 1932 when he began a 31-year-chairmanship of Colorado's state conservation commission.

Foreign Commentary

By WILLIAM THEIS
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress, which fled one mob in its infancy, now looks for an orderly civil rights demonstration when 100,00 Negroes demonstrate in Washington on Aug. 28.

But its leaders are expected to take no chances should the demonstration get out of hand and thousands of Negroes suddenly decide to move on Capitol Hill. Congress has the power to police its own grounds and has ohter federal help on call if needed.

The legislative branch sits under the protection of a federal city largely because of a brief military uprising in 1783, when the Continental Congress was threatened and moved its meeting place from Philadelphia to Princeton, N. J. The founding fathers moved across the Delaware when denied protection by the Pennsylvania militia.

Twice in its history, the federal capital has seen a major "march on Washington."

"Coxey's Army" First

The first was "Coxey's Army" in 1894, a depression-driven group of "funny money' zealots" which started from Massillon, Ohio, and walked to Washington. It's leader, Gen. Jacob S. Coxey, and two colleagues were jailed for invading the capitol grounds.

At its peak strength, Coxey's "Army of the Commonweal of Christ" was estimated at about 1,200 persons.

The second was the 1932 "Bonus Army."

The bonus marchers were drawn to Washington by the pressure of national depression and by suggestions that their presence might speed passage of Rep. Wright Patman's bill for repayment of World War I bonuses voted by Congress in 1924.

The Bonus Army grew to 20,-000 and camped through June and July of 1932 in abandoned federal buildings along Pennsylvania Avenue and in huts on the Anacostia flats. On June 17, the day the Senate rejected the bonus bill, some 10,000 of the middle-aged veterans and their families besieged the capitol grounds, but caused no trouble. That came later.

Police, Veterans Clashed

District of Columbia authorities began clamping down on veterans' use of federal buildings. On July 28, D. C. police and bonus marchers clashed over evacuation of Treasury buildings where some marchers were living. Two marchers were fatally wounded and one policeman was seriously hurt.

District officials asked President Hoover for help. Hoover ordered the army to deal with what he termed the "overt lawlessness." U. S. cavalry and tanks, under command of the then Chief of Staff, Gen. Douglas MacArthur and with an officer named Dwight D. Eisenhower in charge of liaison, drove the unresisting veterans from their makeshift camps.

The veterans' huts were burned, as tear gas and smoke rolled over Pennsylvania Avenue, and the sad event was over. The veterans drifted back to their homes. Later, the bonus bill was passed.

This year, talk of a march of from 100,00 to 300,000 Negroes on Washington with a mass invasion of Capitol Hill and a possible "sit-in" in Congress, got the legislators worried. They were quick to warn Negro leaders their cause would be hurt more than helped by demonstrations that would appear to be intimidation of Congress.

Peaceful March

Leaders of half a dozen national civil rights groups recently met with metropolitan police in Washington and announced that the Aug. 28 demonstration will be "peaceful and non-violent" and will not involve a march on Capitol Hill.

Their plans call for a demonstration at the White House and then a mass rally at the Lincoln Memorial — in full view of, but a mile and a half from the halls of Congress. Individual civil rights leaders will contact their lawmakers, rather than make any large group appearance, it was announced.

The National Guard will help direct traffic and all metropolitan Washington police forces are pooling their manpower.

Suggestions that Congress "take a recess" for a week or two over the period of the Aug. 28 demonstrations are unwelcome.

This Congress, with all its other problems, doesn't care to of "cut and run" lawmakers, go down in history as the body

Negro Criticism Balking Chances On Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Thruston B. Morton, the Senate GOP campaign chairman, warned today that criticism by Negro leaders was making it more difficult to muster Republican votes for a strong civil rights bill.

The Kentuckian said many Republicans were angered by the public rebuke of Senate GOP Leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., leveled by Clarence Mitchell, Washington director for the NAACP, at a civil rights meeting Tuesday.

In still another Negro move aimed at Congress, A. Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, said 1,000 integrationists will wage an around - the - clock filibuster of their own, if Southern senators begin a talkathon against the civil rights bill.

Randolph said lawyers and ministers will be asked to speak in churches for what he termed an "educational filibuster."

Some of Morton's concern about party unity on civil rights was eased Wednesday night when all but one GOP senator supported a minority move to write an anti-discrimination provision into the $5.5 billion money bill for the departments of labor and health, education and welfare.

TEA Official Says If You Can't Read - You Can't Learn

AUSTIN (UPI)—He has an I.Q. of 85 to 100 and a history of maladjustment, had a rough time making the change from elementary school to junior high, and has never been able to read well.

This, says V. C. Sumner of the Texas Education Agency (TEA), is a composite view of the 58,000 students who each year drop out of Texas public high schools.

"You can spot the potential dropout in kindergarten," Sumner said. "He is a fugitive from failure."

The TEA's studies show that the high school dropout is more likely to be a boy than a girl, that his parents probably never finished high school, and that he often belongs to a racial minority.

But most characteristic of all, according to Sumner, is his inability to read.

"Reading is the heart of all learning," Sumner said. "If you can't read, you can't learn anything.

"Actually these kids are very tough. Suppose you were unskilled in dancing: Do you think you could stick it out for 10 or 11 years in a situation where success depended on your dancing?"

The typical high school dropout had trouble with reading when he started school, Sumner said, and the problem was compounded as he progressed through school.

The only solution, he says, is remedial reading at every school level.

Schools should make reading "more important than anything else," and revamp curricula to help students who don't have linguistic skills, Sumner said.

"We do a pretty fair job with average, the gifted and the mentally retarded," he said. "But we aren't doing very much for the potential dropout, who is dull average."

Extra! Railroad Making Money On Passengers

ARCADE, N. Y. (UPI) — Two "old ladies" who habitually smoke in public, will be huffing and puffing through western New York again this year.

The venerable dowagers are a pair of steam locomotives rescued from the scrap pile and restored to operate on the 15-mile Arcade & Attica Railroad.

Built more than 40 years ago and still going strong, the two coal burners have been earning their keep hauling old-time coaches filled with railroad fans, picture-taking tourists and school children.

The week end excursions, which began last year, have proved amazingly popular — and they have probably made the Arcade & Attica the only railroad in the nation without enough rolling stock to handle passenger loads.

The trips leave the line's depot on Main Street here and meander up an unfenced grass - covered right-of-way through rolling hills to the hamlet of Curriers. With unscheduled stops for photography, or on some occasions to shoo cattle from the tracks, the leisurely 14-mile round-trip takes slightly over 90 minutes.

A & A President Richard Cartwright has estimated that 75,000 passengers will make the trip this year.

In fact, Cartwright is counting on the appeal of his oldtime equipment to provide the line's principal source of revenue.

Freight service, handled on week days with diesel locomotives, has been declining steadily over the years due to truck competition.

Hot, Dry Spell Has Two Faces

COLLEGE STATION (UPI)—The hot, dry weather now prevailing across Texas is both a blessing and a curse to the state's farmers and ranchmen.

While ideal for the fast moving cotton and grain sorghum harvest in the southern part of the state, it is rapidly sapping moisture from growing crops in the northwest, and depleting pastures everywhere, said the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Cotton harvesting is progressing well in the southern districts of the state as hot, dry conditions mature bolls rapidly. For the state as a whole, 17 per cent of the crop is open but the Lower Valley harvest is 35 per cent complete. Gins in some sections are beginning to operate longer hours to handle the rapidly advancing harvest.

Grain sorghum harvest is a week or more ahead of last year's progress and combines are working their way northward through fast drying grain fields. The corn and rice crops are progressing in their harvests and peanuts, except the early South Texas crop now being harvested, need rain.

High Plains potatoes and onions continue to be harvested but lower volumes are expected this week. Carrots are available in fairly good volumes and large shipments of cantaloupes, moving from Pecos last week, are expected to continue until mid-August.

Peach harvesting is concluding in Central and East Texas with some late varieties still being picked in North Central Texas. Pecan prospects remain good though rain is needed to fill the nuts. South Texas fall vegetable planting is underway.

Ranges and pastures have suffered greatly across the state from five consecutive weeks of hot dry conditions. Stock water is getting short and some livestockmen in southern areas are feeding. Farmers are seriously short of hay and some are baling sorghum stubble.

Center Wrap-Up

George Smith Director
Pampa Youth and Community Center

The Center would like to explain one of its most economical memberships called a sustaining membership. This membership is designed for businesses, clubs, and individuals who would like to make a larger donation each year. However, it has come into the picture as an economical means of budgeting a membership. This is the only membership that may be paid out in installments.

For a family who is interested in joining the Center but doesn't want to pay all the payment at once should consider this membership. The minimum sustaining membership is $25. This may be paid out $6.25 every three months.

The sustaining membership has two other very important features. (1) It may be deducted from your income tax as a donation (2) You receive full family privileges with the membership.

The Center will offer new swim classes for polywogs, beginners and Adult beginners which will start September 4. Enrollment will be held Aug. 22 and 23 from 2-5 p.m. Polywogs will start on Sept. 4 at 3 p.m.; beginners at 4 p.m. and Adult Beginners at 5 p.m. and will run Monday thru Friday except Tuesdays.

Center members will be enrolled free of charge with non-members paying a $2 per child fee for the three weeks course. Non-members are invited to become members of the Center.

Many of the present and former Harvester basketball players have been giving the new gym a good workout. They are trying to get back into condition and retain their eye for the bucket. Players frequently participating are Charley Price, Doug Altom, Gary Crossland, Wayne Kreis, Royce Harnsberger, Ricky Stewart and of course Terry Culley. Probably as baseball season draws to a close more of the athletes will be working out in the new gym with its glass backboards.

The Center will be opening on Sunday afternoons when school starts and close on Tuesday. This will allow full use of the Center by the pople who find time on their hands Sunday afternoons. The Center will be closed on all national holidays including Labor Day which is coming up very soon. Labor Day falls on Monday so the Center will be closed on Monday and Tuesday the regular closing day.

Also when the Harvesters are playing home ball games the Center will close at 7 p.m. and open up after the game for the dances.

Starting Sept. 4 the Center will also have lessons for different age boys and girls in the game of basketball. The classes will consist of fundamentals and game appreciation so that both boys and girls might enjoy the game more fully.

Bi-Racial Civil Rights Leaders Indicted by Jury

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nine members of a biracial civil rights movement have been in rights movement have been in-Macon, Ga., Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy announced yesterday.

Kennedy said three of them were charged with obstructing justice and six were charged with perjury.

The grand jury returned seven indictments. The first charged three defendants with obstructing justice by executing a conspiracy to picket and boycott a juror's grocery because he had voted against a Negro in a federal civil suit last April.

Named as defendants in this indictment were Dr. William G. Anderson, past president of the Albany Movement, and Robert William Colbert and Luther Woodall Jr., members of the movement, a bi-racial organization protesting discrimination.

"Peaceful protest demonstrations or picketing are not forbidden nor discouraged," Deputy Atty. Gen. Nicholas De B. Katzenbach said.

"The charges here, however, involve retaliation against a juror for his vote in a federal case. Such conduct must become a matter of serious federal legal concern."

Katzenbach said the market picketed was closed after the protest action.

Those charged with perjury were cited in individual indictments.

They are Slater Hunter King, president of the movement; Mrs. Elza Leslye Jackson, recording secretary and Thomas Chatmon, the Rev. Samuel Wells, Robert Thomas and Miss Joni Rabinowitz, members.

HUMMINGBIRD—The SV-4A Hummingbird, an experimental VTOL (vertical take-off and landing) aircraft, lifts straight up into the air in an untethered hover test at Marietta, Ga. Built for the Army by Lockheed-Georgia Co., the jet will begin transition tests from hovering flight to forward flight later this summer. The Hummingbird is designed to attain forward speeds of up to 500 m.p.h., yet land and take-off like a helicopter through a system of deflecting its jet thrust.

Test Pilots Are Duplicating Rocket Ship Space Rendezvous

HAMPTON, Va. (UPI) — A rocket ship rendezvous in space is being duplicated here by eight test pilots flying a cone-shaped Gemini capsule to nowhere on earth.

The "flights" are daily routine in a huge hanger at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's (NASA) Langley Research Center on Virginia's booming Lower Peninsula.

With the aid of sophisticated electronic equipment, the two-man capsule — America's second generation manned space craft — performs as if it were orbiting in the vacuum of space.

In orbit, a rendezvous will be a significant achievement in the nation's race to the moon. Here it is one of many steps designed to prove that such an orbital meeting is possible.

Went Smoothly

On one recent flight, the Gemini rendezvous with a motionless ring substituted for an Agena rocket was made quickly and smoothly. The capsule approached from 100 feet away, dropped a few feet, then rolled to the left. Its approach was corrected and slowly pilot Bob Sommer closed the gap.

Moving at less than one foot within 10 feet of its goal, then five feet, The Gemini stopped, hovered and then gently nudged its target.

NASA calls the Gemini research facility a "space vehicle rendezvous docking simulator." It is a full-size Gemini capsule suspended rigidly by eight cables and controlled by the commands of a pilot.

The Gemini is only about 50 feet from two disassembled C47 transports of 1940 vintage but it moves as if it were propelled by its 20 small gas gets in space.

Use Analog Computer

NASA scientists, many of whom worked on the successful Mercury man in space project, use an analog computer housed in a corner of the hanger to interpret the pilot's commands and simulate the capsule's space movements.

Since space environment cannot be duplicated to a large scale on earth, the research capsule cannot use its attitude control jets to duplicate the ship's action in space.

But the computer solves the problem. It analyzes each control move by the pilot and translates them into jet responses made in space. The computer sends electrical impulses to a series of motors around the capsule which move the Gemini as though it were being kicked around by jets.

The capsule can be moved in all possible directions. It can pitch with its nose moving up and down. It can yaw with its nose moving right or left and it can roll. The cables move the 5,000-pound craft vertically and horizontally.

The computer is able to determine to the fraction of an ounce how much hydrogen peroxide fuel would be used in space by the capsule's movements. Such information is invaluable for space flights.

Can Simulate Troubles

Not only can the machine duplicate the craft's space movements with all 20 jets operating properly, it can simulate troubles.

Roy Brissenden, NASA staff scientist, said the machine can produce the effects of various types of equipment failures which would end an unmanned space craft's mission.

"But with this we think it is possible to show a pilot can do it (control the craft) under rather severe conditions," he said. "If something in a perfect (unmanned) machine goes wrong, then it's done."

So far NASA's eight test pilots here have only "flown" routine missions since the facility became operational in mid-July. But more difficult tests are planned for the future. Six astronauts will also work in the facility.

The first unmanned Gemini capsule may be launched on orbital flight in December. The first manned flight is set for October, 1964.

North Dakota's honey production of 103 pounds per colony was highest in the nation in 1962.
