FLIER MAKES NEW TIME IN EAST TO WEST

INTREPID BIRDMEN IS OUT FOR ROUND TRIP RECORD

(By Associated Press)

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., June 28.—Captain Hawks on his return flight to New York passed over Albuquerque at 9:27 A. M., Mountain Standard time. He was flying swiftly at an altitude of about 5,000 feet.

EAST-WEST HOP IS MADE IN 19 HOURS

LOS ANGELES, June 28 (AP).—Seven hours and 14 minutes after he had landed here, establishing a new non-stop trans-continental flight record from New York to Los Angeles, Captain Frank Hawks took off again this morning in an effort to break his own mark for a west-east cross-continent aerial dash.

Hawks flew from Roosevelt Field to Metropolitan airport in 19 hours, 10 minutes and 32 seconds yesterday, shattering the mark of 24 hours 51 minutes set last year by Captain C. B. O. Collyer and Harry Tucker.

Planned Earlier Take-Off

Under the program which Hawks had outlined for himself he expected to take off again after about an hour and a half and fly back to New York in about 14 hours, thus crossing the continent twice in 36 hours.

Trouble of several kinds which appeared in Hawks' plane while mechanics were grooming it for the return flight prevented him from taking off on schedule. First the stabiliger had to be repaired. Then a leak in the carburetor was found to be irreparable and a new one had to be obtained.

When Hawks took off for New York at 3:37.47 a. m. he was out for speed, declaring he would be in New York in 14 hours.

"I'm going to fly high, perhaps 12,000 feet, and give her all she's got. I'm out for speed," he said. "My course will be the same as the westward flight, the more important cities in the line of flight being Flagstaff, Ariz., Albuquerque, Wichita, St. Louis, Terre Haute, Columbus, and Pittsburgh.'

If Hawks reaches New York in 14 hours he will have flown from there to Los Angeles and return in a little more than 40 hours and will have smashed his previous record of 18 hours 21 minutes, 59 seconds for the trans-continental course from west to east. Such schedule would bring him to the Atlantic coast goal at 9:37 p. m. Eastern Daylight Time.

PLAINSMAN GETS SHORT PANTS

Beg your pardon for taking up valuable front page space but The Plainsman is forced to make public confession that he is now the more or less proud possessor of a pair of short gawf pants, presented by an admiring crowd of customers.

In yesterday's Journal, The Plainsman, in his column on the editorial page, asserted that the only reason he hadn't taken up gawf was because he didn't have any short pants—short pants being essential to good gawfing.

This afternoon, a committee composed of Senator Don Mitchell, Jack May, Homer Dane Grant and Ellsworth J. Parsons presented the pants to The Plainsman who humbly but not thankfully acknowledges same and will announce his first appearance upon the gawf links in the near future.

Fliers Soar On For Endurance

With the death angel hovering over one plane which crashed early today near Roosevelt Field, N. Y., two more ships soared on above the clouds today in attempts to break the refuelling endurance recorl of 172½ hours held by Reg Robbins and James Kelly, Fort Worth.

The monoplane "Miss Minneapolis with Owen Haughland and Thorwald Johnson aboard was on its sixth day of flight above Minneapolis while Martin Jenson and his young wife soared above Roosevelt field in their plane "The Three Musketeers" in another attempt.

Girl Near Death

In a hospital in Mineola, N. Y., Miss Viola Gentry lays at the point of death as a result of th ecrash of her plane "The Answer" near Roosevelt field today. Her pilot, Jack Ashcraft was killed instantly.

A message was sent from the hospital to Roosevelt flying field that the woman pilot needed blood. Who would volunteer?

And as one man the flying and ground staffs stepped forward. Pilots whose names are often in the papers, office executives and their clerks, grimy "grease balls" who oil and tend theengines, not a man on the field but begged for the chance to help Miss Gentry.

Doctors said that as soon as preliminary blood tests were made a donor would be selected and the transfusion operation performed.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 28.—The endurance record seeking plane, Miss Minneapolis, started its sixth day in the air today as friends began plans to honor the pilots, Owen Haughland of Minneapolis and Buffalo, Minn., and Thorwald Johnson of St. Paul.

Residents of Buffalo announced completion of arrangements to hold a celebration as soon as the fliers land. If the plane stays up until 10:35 a. m. Sunday it will better by on hour the present record of 172 1-2 hours for refueling flights recently set at Fort Worth, Texas.

Station to Describe Flight

Announcement also was made that KST, St. Paul radio station, expects to broadcast a description of the fgiiht, beginning about 10 a. m. (central standard time) Sunday over a nationwide hookup.

The elements and a fuel shortage spelled disaster for the Miss Minneapolis yesterday. Haughland and Johnson were forced to struggle through three thunder storms.

(By Associated Press)

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 28.—The monoplane "Three Musketeers" was crawling through a heavy fog over Long Island today in a quest for a new endurance refueling flight mark, with its crew unmindfu lof the tragedy which befell "The Answer," Viola Gentry's plane which took off last night in another assault on the record.

Martin Jensen, pilot of the Three Musketeers, saw the Answer disappear into the fog, however, and in a note dropped to the flying field asked "what happened to Viola? Saw her disappear at low altitude. Am worried."

The Three Musketeers was refueled at 7 a. m. The operation was carried on 2,000 feet in the air as the two ships were forced to climb above the fog bank.

A newspaper account of the burglary, read by friends or relatives of the boys, was cause for writing of the letter, it was said.

GERMANY STAGE ORGANIZED PROTESTS AT CONTINUATION OF "WAR GUILT LIE"

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN, June 28—On the tenth anniversary of the signing of the treaty of Versailles with its charge of blame for the World War the German nation today staged organized protests at continuation of "the war guilt lie."

President Paul Von Hindenburg headed the signatories to a statement which termed today "a day of mourning' 'and rejected the assertion that Germany alone was responsible for the war.

With the exception of the Rhineland, where an interdiction of the Inter-Allied Rhineland commission interfered, there were demonstrations of protest the length and breadth of the nation.

Nationalist opposition in the Reichstag, strengthened probably by the manifestations, prevented prolongation of th edefense of the republic act, requested by the government. The defeat will make it legal for former Kaiser Wilhelm to return to Germany at expiration of the present act July 22.

German newspapers appeared with borders of heavy black mourning, and one Berlin organ, Der Tag, surrounded scenes from Danzig, Posen, Kattowitz and Strassburg with borders of chains. A huge sky sign in the

LUBBOCK HOUSEWIVES

This Message Is For You

Its either down hill or up hill! Its either success or failure! The better part of a life-time spent for you has either been wasted or it has been profitably spent. Twenty years of hard labor, twenty years of honest effort, twenty years of serious thought, twenty years of idealism has been baked into a loaf of bread upon which our whole life-time's work dependts.

MARTIN'S BREAD

Is Made With Milk and Honey

And when we place our name on the wrapper, when we tell you its made with PURE HONEY and PURE MILK we mean to specify the acme creation of our career!

IT'S UP TO YOU; MADAM LUBBOCK

The standard of bread set for Lubbock twenty years ago was far ahead of that offered other cities. The standard maintained throughout all these years has been just that far ahead of bread offered in other sections. The standard Martin has set has brought to Lubbock the finest loaf in the whole South and voluminous testimony is available for proof.

It's An Expensive Loaf of Bread

It, no doubt, costs more to manufacture, even in the very modern and efficient plant we operate, than any other loaf of bread you can buy. Martin takes less PROFIT out of each loaf than any bakery we know of. Our idea of success has been to deserve it—to build better—to make better—to serve better—and to merit confidence and good-will through sheer excellence.

It's Either Success or Failure

Its up to you, Housewives of Lubbock, to help maintain this modern, pure, wholesome, rich standard of bread in this city. Only by your patronage, creating a great volume can it be maintained. Had you not rather have such a loaf than to have in your city a chain-owned, virtual monopolized bakery producing an inferior loaf, when by its very magnitude of financial strength, quality becomes secondary.

Martin's Bread Has Never Been Made To Meet A Price

—and regardless of what comes and goes, our whole future will be staked on QUALITY—purity, cleanliness and richness. The name Martin means highest quality bread and for your children's sake, for your own sake and for the good name of Martin and of Lubbock we now call upon you to ask for MARTIN'S bread when you buy bread.

TWO-YEAR-OLD NOTE FROM SENATOR GOULD OF MAINE REVEALS HIS STAND FOR MODIFICATION OF PRO LAW WORK

(By Associated Press)

ST. LOUIS, June 28.—A two year old letter written by United Sttates Senator Arthur R. Gould of Maine, known as a dry, to a St. Louis grape juice company, in which he told of getting "some very good results" with the concern's unfermented product and said he favored modification of the prohibition law, was made public here today.

The letter was taken into federal court by Ray Weinbrenner, attorney fo rthe Colony Vintages Co., successor to the Fresno Vineyards Co., of St. Louis, for presentation along with letters from several other customers to support its claim that its products were satisfactory.

Case On Trial.

The case on trial is a $100,000 breach of contract action brought by West Coast Vineyards Co. of California, charging the grape juice which the West Coast concern had contracted to distribute spoiled in the hands of customers.

The letter was written on stationery of the committee of commerce of the United States senate and was dated May 11, 1927. It spoke of "our little unsettled matter, and said in part:

"When In Rome."

"As you know I come from a prohibition state and I am supposed to be a prohibitionist, but I am as loyal to the prohibition element as some of these Southern Democrats are to the Democratic party. While I am from a prohibition state and find i is not policy to be too outspoken as to my sentiments, I don't mind telling you and the world that I believe a license for light wines and beer would be a great improvement over the present prohibition law that seems impossible to enforce."

The letter stated that a great many other senators and congressmen "feel just about as I do but lack the moral courage to stand up and vote as they believe." It concluded that "I may be able to be of service to you people before my term expires here."

SENATOR SAY'S HE IS IN FAVOR OF CHANGE

PRESQUE ISLE, Me., June 27 (AP).—U. S. Senator Arthur R. Gould, today said he had purchased unfermented grape juice from a St. Louis company and reiterated statements in a letter to the company to the efefct "I believe a license for light wines and beer would be a great improvement over the present prohibition law."

He addded that the prohibition law "seems impossible to enforce."

FORD SELLS HIS RAILROAD LINE

CAR MANUFACTURER TERMINATES EXCURSION INTO TRANSPORTATION FIELD; WAS SUCCESS

(By Associated Press)

DETROIT, Mich, June 28—Successfully terminating his excursion into the transportation field, Henry Ford has sold the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railroad to an undisclosed group of investors believed to represent the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The sale was announced yesterday by officers of the First National Bank in Detroit. Ford officials had announced Monday negotiations for the sale of the line to he Pennsylvania Railroad were "almost completed."

Purchased in 1920

Purchased in 1920 to round out the Ford program of controlling every step in production of his motor cars, the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton later was so renovated under the motor magnate's administration that it became a paying business.

Much of its success was attributed to the fact that its business was obtained from other roads holding Ford transportation contracts, but Mr. Ford derived a great deal of pleasure from turning the once decadent road into a profitable enterprise, and his methods were as startling in railroad circles as were his innovations in the motor industry.

Increased Expenses

Instead of inaugurating a policy of economy he radically increased expenditures for improvements. The wage scale of his automobile plants were brought into cabs and roundhouses, much to the dismay of other railroad owners who subsequently fought him at every turn, and employees were permitted to obtain certificates which have paid 12 per cent annually.

The announcement of sale of the railroad did not mention the price. Ford bought the line for $5,000,000 but in 1924 it was learned it had earned more than $1,000,000 a year over the four year period of Ford administration and in 1926 before the Interstate Commerce commission, Ford attorneys argued the rate setting valuation of the road should be placed at $23,061,208. The road is 529 miles long.

PHILLIPS PLANS BIG WAREHOUSE

The Phillips Petroleum company will soon erect a large fire-proof warehouse and six mammoth storage tanks at Avenue K and Fourth street, according to T. E. May, local wholesale representative of the company.

The storage tanks will be erected and a district office established here, making Lubbock headquarters for the surrounding territory. Gasoline, kerosene, lubricants and the Ethyl "66" gas will be handled in Lubbock and distributed to cities in this immediate vicinity.

The cost of the structure will be approximaely $30,000, it was learned.

Mr. May also announced that an industrial track will be run through the property of the company just as soon as the Santa Fe railway has assembled materials on the ground sufficient to insure uninterrupted work. Some of the materials already have arrived and it was said that work probably would be started in a week or ten days.

Hoover Intervenes

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP)—President Hoover personally intervened to halt the plan of the prohibition unit to use the public schools of the country for dissemination of prohibition law observance propaganda.

GIRL IN TOWN NEEDS WARDROBE OF HER OWN

BY FRANCES CLYNE
Fashion Writer for Central Press

NEW YORK, June 28. — The girl who remains in town through the summer has a very different clothes problem to face than she who goes away, and in selecting her summer frocks, she should bear this in mind, and not make her choice from models primarily designed to be worn in the country. This does not mean that she must confine her choice to dark and uninteresting dresses. On the contrary, she should make every effort to have her wardrobe composed of frocks that are both cool, and gay and dainty, but she should learn to discriminate between those that will serve practically as well as prettily, and those that can do no more than serve prettily.

Wash dresses of cotton belong in the country, as do pastel kid shoes, voluminous organdies and day-time garden party dresses. For these the girl in town will substitute checked gingham silks, lizard-skin or beige kid slippers, and chiffon frocks with little chiffon jackets. The girl in town needs, if anything, even more frequent changes than the one in the country, and to this end, she should have a wide variety of little figured silks, or crepe frocks, in solid colors. One-piece tub-silks which bear up under frequent laundering, and the checked gingham silks make an attractive array for ordinary day-time wear, while for that more important luncheon engagement, a little three-piece dressmaker suite of crepe de chine will prove to be a cool and attractive solution.

For Dinner and Dance

Early dinner and dancing in town is best met with in a sleeveless chiffon dress, accompanied by a matching jacket and semi-tailored straw hat, wide of brim and simple of trimming. Without the hat and jacket, a frock of this type can do double duty when worn with crepe or satin slippers, as an out and out dinner dress.

The girl in town will more often be a sports spectator than a participant, and to this end she should provide herself with several simple two-piece crepe de chine frocks and blending or contrasting flannel jackets; together with two sports hats of felt or straw, one light and one dark, and with turned down, medium brims, she is supplied for any emergency of this type, and, moreover, with the type of wardrobe that can answer the needs of the week-end in the country as well as the weeks in town.

A special warning should be sounded against the illusion that because dark dresses do not show dirt very readily, they are, therefore, clean. No girl can remain dainty in the warm weather simply by hiding behind the mask of a dark-colored frock.

Two of my summer models are pictured. The printed crepe de chine afternoon ensemble, left, displays capucine and dark blue figures against a white background. The dress has the fitted hipline, a circular skirt and five cut crystal buttons to match those that appear on the short jacket. A feature of this ensemble is the softly draped lace collar with cuffs to match.

A flowered rose motif against a background of black crepe satin is the effective material used for the evening dress, right. It has a graceful cape back and trailing hemline.

During the afternoon Miss Kate Pressley gave two readings and Miss Hazel Kokanour directed other entertainment.

Delicious refreshments were served to Mesdames Provence, J. E. Alexander, W. B. Yeager, Tom Nowlin, A. H. Travis, D. C. Davis, F. K. Mitchell, J. G. Biffle, R. L. McCraven, T. D. Furlow, H. W. Cherry, W. R. Pickas, C. O. Akard, W. A. Childers, R. E. Swain, J. H. Lewis, W. D. Haney, W. E. Holder, W. H. Trice, Dick Abbott, C. A. Paulger, J. D. Webb, E. E. Richards, George Moore, Fred A. Owens, A. L. Hawkins and L. L. Coleman.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

The most unhappy and discontented creature on earth is the married woman who has not enough to do. Sometimes it is her fault and sometimes Friend Husband is to blame because he objects to anything and everything she wants to do.

Children might endanger her health and looks, and he wants her always as young and slim and beautiful as when she was a bride.

Business—a job outside the home—is not to be thought of, because people would think he could not support her and because she could not take care of him properly if she had another job.

If the "little woman" is not one of those people who will busy herself in church or club work, that keep her busy and interested with no social stigma or detriment to her beauty, she is left a prey to all the inhibitions and complexes that flesh is heir to.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: Four years ago, before I was hardly old enough to realize the seriousness of it, I married a popular young man. I realize now I was too young, but I have been happy until recently.

"He has always discouraged my desire for children, therefore we have none. Although I never worked out of my home, I have wanted to find some employment, but to this also, he objects.

"I come to you with the same old story, another girl. I do not trust him any longer. He is untrue to me, and although the facts are so convincing that the truth is undeniable, he still persists I am wrong in my accusations. I must admit I am very jealous.

"I am hoping you can offer some advice, but I fear it is useless to even hope for return of lost love. His manner has become so changed that I know now that which he shows for me is only assumed affection out of fear of myself and my mother. We have always lived with my parents. I shall anxiously watch your column for my reply.

"WORRIED WIFE."

Your fears may be well founded, my dear, but I can't help wondering. Your husband's business undoubtedly forces him to meet people in a way that would look suspicious to anyone who did not know the circumstances, and without in the least intending to be mistrustful, you and your mother might get the wrong idea, especially as, by your own admission, you are jealous.

The feeling that he was under suspicion would naturally give your husband a self-conscious air before you, which would look like guilt, and I don't know that I blame him, under those circumstances, for not acting very affectionate.

My advice to you, my dear girl, is to get a job. Your husband made a big mistake when he objected to your having babies or a job. Make yourself independent. Get interested in something besides your husband and the question of whether he does or does not love you as he did when you were married.

Then if he has strayed from the paths of rectitude you can take the blow standing up and be independent. And in any event you'll be busy holding your job and won't have time to be suspicious. And set up your own little place, so that you won't have anyone to interfere between you and friend hubby, no matter how loving such supervision has been.

If you can't get a job, have a baby. Hubby many think he doesn't like them, but I'll bet he'll be crazy over one of his own.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: There is a boy in our school that I care for a great deal. We do not speak to one another although I certainly would like to. I have liked him for seven or eight months, but still I can not get the courage to speak to him.

"What would you advise me to do in a case like this?

"DISAPPOINTED."

Simply "screw your courage to the sticking point, and"—speak, my dear. Maybe you had better break the ice by smiling. Smiles will do wonders in this line. The boy might almost be tempted to speak first.

PUZZLED GEORGIA: If you have read this column at all you know what I will say to you. Keep yourself clean and sweet, no matter what a boy says, and even if it loses you some boy friends. Such boys are not worth having for friends. You will surely be very, very sorry some day if you give way to this boy.

SLIDING SCALES TO BE PROPOSAL

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP)—The propcsal that sugar imports duties be put on a sliding scale basis, increasing as the price of the domestic product declines and vice versa, is likely to become one of the major subjects of debate during the Senate's consideration next fall of the controversial sugar schedule in the tariff revision bill.

Revived in the hearing being continued by the Senate finance subcommittee assigned to consider that schedule after arousing considerable discussion on the House side of the capitol while the tariff bill was under consideration there, the proposal has brought from President Hoover the first formal statement he has made on any specific part of the revision legislation.

"The president has had sliding scales of sugar duties submitted to him by members of the committees,' the statement said. "The object of these was to protect the consumer as well as the producers. He has not expressed himself on them, but of course would be glad to see any arrange ment which effect the dual purpose."

SCOUT CAMP IS READY TO OPEN

All accommodations are ready for the opening next Monday of the first term of the South Plains Area council boy scout encampment at Post, H. B. Yates, executive, announced this morning.

Issuance of a permit this morning for a service station increased Lubbock's building valuations for the month to $125,024, representing 44 permits.

Valuations for the year are $2,459,041 for 389 permits.

The lone permit was issued to Magnolia Petroleum company for erection of a $5,000 service station at 2424 Main street. T. A. Brown is contractor.

EDDIE CANTOR PLANS RETIREMENT FROM SHOWS; TO MAKE SOME MOVIES

By AL SHERMAN
Central Press Writer

NEW YORK, June 28.—To be able to retire at 38, with more than your shares of worldly goods and worldly —of relief. At least so he says.

"But don't get me wrong about this retirement business," he cautioned. "I'm not going to quit in the exact sense of the word. When I told the newspapers I was retiring next year I didnt mean that I was through with the stage. I merely meant that I am not going to appear in any large stage shows any more. I want to be able to take a little vacation now and then and I couldn't do that if I were employed in a big stage production, without depriving a couple of hundred people of their livelihood during the time I am out of the show. But I'll still be appearing in vaudeville and motion picture theaters, and maybe I'll make a movie or two.

"After all, the stage has been so much a part of my life that I don't believe I could ever part with it entirely."

"Well, here I am—with the announcement of my retirement out—but will I loaf? Say, I'll be working harder than I ever worked before!

"But, and here's what I'm beginning to like about this retirement business, if I want to take a little jaunt to Palm Beach just around the time when people begin sneezing up here in New York, all I'll have to do is pack up the kids, get out my straw hat and bathing suit, tell my wife—and I'm off. THAT'S what I like about this retiring!

"You ought to ask my wife what she thinks of my retiring. When you have your hands full taking care of five growing girls, and a husband who comes home every evening dog-tired after working all day in a show, I think it'll really be my wife who is going to retire."

applause!

To Eddie Cantor, who has surprised the amusement loving world with the announcement that he would retire next year at 38, it brings a great and glorious feeling

SCHMELING REIGNS AS CONTENDER FOR HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE

BOBBY JONES TAKES LEAD AS U.S. OPEN FAVORITE

IN THE REALM OF SPORT

WITH ALLAN CARNEY
Journal Sports Editor

A GOOD MAN GONE

The resignation of Frank Snyder from the managerial post of the Houston Buffaloes has been expected for some time, but coming as it did on the heels of a recent spurt of the Bisons, the requested release was quite a surprise. Winning five out of their last six games with the league-leading Dallas Steers, the Buffs succeeded in toppling the Herd from the top rung in the Texas league Wednesday, playing the sort of baseball that carried them to the Dixie championship in 1928.

Poncho had been appealing to the St. Louis officials all year for reenforcements and it seemed he was about to have his requests granted when he was given his unconditional release by President Fred Ankenman. The veteran outfielder, Gene Bailey, has been named temporary manager of the Houston club.

Asked to explain the why and wherefore of Snyder's release, President Ankenman, said the Buff skipper had been asked to go to St. Louis in the hope he would make a winning pitcher of "Wild Bill" Hallahan, the ace of the Texas league strikeout kings during the season of 1928. Hallahan virtually won the pennant for Houston over Wichita Falls and made possible the Buff triumph over the Southern champions. Snyder declined this offer, however, and asked for his unconditional release as manager of Houston. And he got it. It is extremely doubtful that Poncho will stay in the Cardinal system. Several major league clubs have sought his services during the current season.

BOBBY JONES, THE WIZARD

It's the same old story when Bobby Jones, the Atlanta lawyer, enters a golf tournament. The man who made the legal profession famous with his sensational play on the golf course, took a big stride toward his third National Open title yesterday at Mamaroneck, N. Y., by shooting a brilliant 69 over the rugged Winged Foot course. Jones' card was three under perfect figures. While Bobby was leading the field with his record-breaking round Johnny Farrell, the 1928 champion, encountered numerous difficulties and practically eliminated himself in the first round by taking an 84. Farrell's downfall was the major upset of the opening day's play.

The potent right of Max Schmeling all but murdered the rugged Paulino Uzcudun in their heavyweight elimination battle at the Yankee Stadium last night, but the rock-ribbed Spaniard weathered the storm and came out with his absorbing record clear. Paulino has yet to be knocked out or knocked from his feet. Try as he might, with the Basque practically helpless, the Teuton could not put the sturdy Paulino on the canvas. After the sixth round, it was only a question of how long Uzcudun could stand up under the punishment being inflicted by the German Schmeling.

Spaniard was decisive. Schmeling he is of real championship calibre. did not convince the experts that Jack Sharkey, with his years of experience in the ring, could doubtless give Maxie several lessons in the gentle pastime of nose massaging. No boxing skill was necessary to hit the Spaniard from all angles but Schmeling did display his ability to take 'em on the chin and keep going. At the end of the scrap the German appeared as fresh as in the first round, according to dispatches.

Down at Dallas, loud speakers have been installed at Steer Stadium. Jazz music is furnished the customers between innings to prevent anyone from going home while the Herd is engaging in an extended argument with the visiting players. Great idea, and why not cut off a section of the stands for the bridge maniacs to pass the time away while the ball game is in progress. And by all means, serve tea at intervals.

TEUTON PUTS HEAVY MITTS ON SPANIARD

UZCUDUN ENDURES THE FIFTEEN ROUNDS IN COURAGEOUS FORM

BY ALAN J. GOULD
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, June 28 (AP)—Just before the start of the fifteenth and last round of the slugfest between Max Schmeling and Paulino Uzcudun, Referee Arthur Donovan looked anxiously at the bloody, battered face of the Spaniard and asked: "Are you all right? Can you go on?"

Paulino snorted between bruised and swollen features, shook his head in a vigorous nod and leaped back into the fray, much as a gored bull toward the matador.

Schmeling Opens Attack

Last night, Schmeling, the sharpshooter of Berlin, was the matador, spearing and wounding the Spaniard. After a slow beginning, with eight of nine mauling monotonous rounds that drew continual derision from a crowd of 45,000 spectators, Schmeling opened a slashing attack that shook the celebrated Oak of the Pyrenees, even though it failed to cut him down. Paulino's head was bloody but unbowed, right up to the final charge, but he was thoroughly beaten nevertheless under the German's cutting uppercuts and jabs.

Schmeling received the unanimous decision of referee Arthur Donovan and the two judges. From the tenth round on there was no question of the result. The German took about a dozen of the fifteen rounds altogether, in the verdict of most newspapermen, but he piled up so decisive a margin on points in the last six that the lifting of his hand by the veteran Joe Humphries was merely a formality.

Is Sensation

Herr Max Adolf Siegfried Schmeling, clean cut, 23 years old, a capable boxer and good puncher, stands out today, therefore, as the reigning sensation of what remains of the heavyweight division.

Herr Max may now be ballyhooed to fight Jack Sharkey, the Boston sailor, who was introduced amid a chorus of boos last evening. The Schmeling-Sharkey bout is a prospect as the 1929 final of the heavyweight elimination business. Then again, there may be talk of Jack Dempsey's comeback and a match with the young German, who not only resembles the old Manassa Mauler in striking fashion but who also gained some inspiration for his ring career from a chance sparring match with Dempsey, then the champion, in Cologne several years ago.

However unconvincing to the critics his decisive victory over Paulino may be, Schmeling unquestionably has fought his way into the top flight of the heavyweight list by a knockout of Johnny Risko and his latest conquest to show for a brief American invasion. France, the Argentine and Australia have furnished heavyweight title contenders since the war and now Germany joins the list with an aspirant for the crown relinquished by Gene Tunney.

BIG BILL LEADS TENNIS TOURNEY

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 28 (AP). Bill Tilden continued his parade through the English Tennis championships at Wimbledon, defeating Christian Boussus, one of the French invaders, 6-3, 9-7, 6-4, today.

As Big Bill was downing the Frenchman John Hennessey was forced to admit defeat at the hands of another Frenchman. Henri Cochet, ace of the French Davis cup team took the first two sets easily but was forced to play his best before annexing the third set. The score was 6-1, 6-4, 9-7.

Senorita Di Alvarez, Spanish star, was eliminated in one of the biggest upsets of the play. Her conqueror was Mrs. C. G. McIlguham of Great Britain.

Miss Helen Jacobs of California disposed of Miss Joan Fry, one of the younger British stars, 6-3, 6-4.

CITY LEAGUE RACE IN TIE

RAILMEN - HARDWARE DEADLOCKED; GAME IS CONTESTED

Hardware sluggers delivered timely blows with ducks on the pond Thursday evening at Merrill Park and won a stubborn five-inning battle from the Railroaders, 6 to 4, to go into a tie for first place in the City League. Following the defeat, Manager Hargrove of the Santa Fe club, entered a protest on the game before President J. A. Raley over a disputed decision at third base in the fourth inning.

The play in question came after two were out in the fourth. Curtis advanced to third as Powers grounded out, second to first, and Karr returned the ball to catch the runner. One arbiter called Curtis safe and the other reversed the decision. The ruling of the former carried. Had Curtis been called out, the side would have been retired and the winners prevented from scoring three runs, enough to take the lead.

Railmen Get Lead.

Railroaders took the lead in the first inning with a three-run spree, resulting from Hardware errors and were not headed until the fourth when the disputed play occurred. Four hits in this inning, including a double by Hensley, produced the winning runs for the winner.

Dunlap started for the Santa Fe but was relieved in the fourth after Hensley had cracked out his double and Jackson walked. Gaither greeted Pressley with a smash to center field that sent both Hensley and Jackson across the platter.

Manager Terry served his slow curves to the Railroaders, and came through without serious damage in all but the first inning.

BY WM. M. BRAUCHER
NEA Service Sports Writer

Once upon a time it was practically impossible to hold an American League baseball game in Philadelphia without the services of Mr. Mack's 100 per cent talking employe, Edwin Rommel.

It came to a point last summer where Mr. Rommel had to speak to somebody about it. He did.

"I don't care seven and one-half damns what happens out there today," spake Rommel. "I don't care two whoops in anybody's hades if 16 pitchers get their domes knocked loose and we drop a 15-run lead.

"I'm not going into that box today. I wouldn't go in for Mussolini, King George ,Rasputin or the ex-czar of all the Russias. That's final. I'm no relief pitcher. It's a dirty, lousy job!"

It wouldn't be a very wild guess to infer from this that Edwin Rommel wasn't so fond of being a relief pitcher.

Gets the Call

But, be that as it may, half an hour after Rommel had unburdened himself of his groans, he was out there on the hill trying to win a ball game that George Earnshaw had started.

This year, though, its' different, and it appears that Eddie's moan fell not upon deaf ears. For lately the big knuckle ball specialist has been starting games for Mr. Mack and finishing quite a few of them, too. Up to June 15 his mark was six games won and none lost, out of 11 in which he took part. Last year he was in 43 games, of which he won 13 and lost five.

As much as he hates the job, Rommel is rated as probably the greatest relief pitcher in the game today. That would be discounting some very nifty trouble shooting the last few years by Firpo Marberry of Washington and Wilcey Moore of the Yanks, of course, but the fact remains that American League managers have not yet formed the habit of leaping up and down in glee when they see Eddie walking out to taws.

Throws Mean Knuckler

Taws here is a proper word, too, for Rommel is master of one of the wickedest knucklers a batter ever guessed at. That, in spite of the fact the young man started out in life as a spitball pitcher and had to learn all over when the wet delivery was banned in 1917.

Rommel's first shot at the big show came in that year when the Baltimore Orioles took him south for the training trip. When the club returned to Baltimore Rommel was dropped. He continued to hang around the Oriole's park, however, and one day "Cutter" Drury, first baseman, showed him how to hold a knuckle ball.

Eddie worked with the ball three years before he conquered the pesky delivery. Meantime he pitched in the Blue Ridge League and for Newark. At Newark he finally began to show stuff and in the spring of 1919 the Giants took him on.

Rides the Boys

Rommel is a great "jockey," his wisecracks from box and bench furnishing good copy for the scribblers upstairs.

In the middle of 1919 Mack bought the young pitcher. The first game Rommel pitched for Mack was in the role of a relief hurler in the first inning of a game with Cleveland. The Indains had three runs in and one out. Later on Philadelphia tied the score, and in the 8 2-3 innings that Rommel pitched Cleveland got only one hit.

SPUDS HOLD SLIGHT LEAD

BAILEY HAS DIFFICULT TASK IN INAUGURAL AS MANAGER

By GAYLE TALBOT, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Gene Bailey made his debut as manager of the second assistant St. Louis Cardinals, otherwise known as the Houston Buffs, yesterday and was given a swell party by the Spudders with fireworks and everything.

It was a tough spot for Gene to take over the managerial reins. The Spudders, in their present beligerant frame of mind, don't care whose feelings they injure. Bailey just happened to don the toga on the day Jim Galloway's hearties decided to win their twentieth victory in their last 24 games.

Snyder Out of Game

Frank Snyder, out of his "monkey suit" for the first time in many a year and financially able to remain out of one indefinitely if he chooses, probably felt a twinge of sympathy for his successor. Managing the Houston nine this season is no picnic.

The Spudders salted away the contest in the credit column, 9 to 7, due principally to a six-run outburst off Young Gerald Myres in the second frame. Gus Foreman did very well in a relief role outside of the sixth inning, when the leaders put over a couple of tallies that proved decisive.

Great as their record has been in the last month, the Oilers needed that triumph to stay ahead of the Steers, who came back after three straight pokes from Houston to nose out the Indians, 4 to 3, in their inaugural. A half game still separated them today.

But for Davis' timely blow, the Mavericks would have found themselves sharing the second floor with the Sports today. The Sports celebrated their eighth straight triumph at the expense of the Waco Cubs, 9 to 2. Tiny Owens permitted the Prattmen nine scattered hits, while the Sports were making merry with Dumovich's offerings.

The Exporters proved their feat in dropping six straight at Dallas and Shreveport was no flash by succumbing to the Cats, 9 to 4, at Fort Worth. Charlie Sullivan turned in a nice game, keeping 10 Export hits strung out and whirling six men in the pinches.

A'S CONCEDED FLAG; OTHERS START BATTLE

NATIONAL LOOP TAKES ON WAR-LIKE STATUS BETWEEN CLUBS

By WILLIAM J. CHIPMAN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The beginning of the end is apparent in the American League, but John Heydler's contenders seem to have begun the fight. The Athletics increased their lead over the champion Yankees to eleven and one-half engagements by defeating the Hugmen, 6 to 3, in the opener of a three-game series at Philadelphia yesterday, but the Browns held their ground ten and one-half games from the front and moved into second place by nipping the White Sox, 4 to 1.

Cubs Step Up

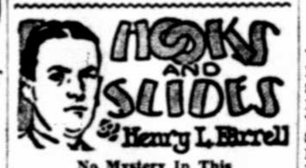

Meanwhile, the Pirates were winning from Cincinnati, 5 to 3, and the Cubs were shading the Cardinals, 5 to 4. Safe from the reach of the Robins, the Giants had a pleasant afternoon against their cousins, the Phillies, whom they defeated 9 to 3 for the eleventh time in twelve starts. If the rest of the second division only would pay the Giants the same respect the Phillies pay, John McGraw's troubles would end. The Red Sox defeated Washington, 4 to 1, and Detroit won from Cleveland, 6 to 2, in the remaining American League fixtures.

Rogers Hornsby continued the Cub streak against the Cardinals by rapping Clarence Mitchell for a home run in the eighth with the score tied at 4 to 4. The Rajah went on something of a spree with three out of four, driving in two runs.

Meine Wins Another

The victory continued the Cubs in second place, one small game behind the Pirates, and dropped the Cardinals into a tie with the Giants three contests from the lead. Young Henry Meine, considered a daring experiment ten days ago, turned in another winning game for Pittsburgh.

Brooklyn rallied to nose out the Braves by 8 to 5, with Win Ballou doing some fine relief pitching.

No Mystery In This

Our young John Dawson from Chicago was knocked off in the British amateur championship by an unknown postman from Scotland. And there was much made of the story in this country.

But they don't make so much of those stories in Scotland. All of the amateurs come up as unknowns And they may be of the nobility or they may be tradesmen or drivers of milk carts or even the proprietors of pubs.

The Scottish people play golf almost as a custom and the peculiar weather conditions in their country enable them to play 18 holes after they have finished their day's work.

They Eat It For Supper

As late as nine o'clock at night, in 1926, when we were covering the British amateur championship at Muirfield, we saw golfers flocking over the courses and some of the laborers told us that they never went out on the course before seven o'clock and that they usually made at least nine holes.

In every village in Scotland there is a commons, a sort of a public square, and the commons is a putting green. And the natives use the putting green just as some of our rustics use the front street for tossing horseshoes.

Here Goes the Records

Two leading coaches have predicted that George Simpson's remarkable 0:09 4-10 100-yard dash would probably be equalled and perhaps excelled in the rarefied and stimulating atmosphere at Denver where the National A. A. U. track and field championships will be held on July 3, 4, and 5. And strange as it may seem, one is Simpson's own coach, Frank Castleman.

Just before Simpson crashed through with his record feat at the N. C. A. A. games at Chicago, Castleman predicted that Simpson would do 0:09 4-10 at Denver. After the meet Castleman revised his estimates and made the even more daring prediction that Simpson would clip another fifth of a second off the mark in the national title meet.

"They can have the track at Denver in shape for the fastest race of all time," Castleman declared. "There is something about the soil, the dry climate and its drainage in that country that makes tracks fast. If the Denver track is well soaked underneath, rolled hard on top and the weather is good, marks in the sprints and hurdles are going to electrify the world."

According to reports from Denver, the track has been soaked deep every day for months, rolled with heavy roller daily, and is so hard one can hardly drive a spike in it, and yet it is springy and elastic underfoot.

Ernie Hjertberg, coach of Claude Bracey, who lost by a foot to Simpson's record performance, also expects the 0:09 4-10 mark to be in danger next month.

CUYLER CLIMBS

HAZEN CUYLER

CHICAGO, June 28 (AP)—Hazen Cuyler, that triple-threat star of the Cubs, is pulling away from the field again in the stolen base business.

He picked up 21 steals in his first 55 games. This gives "Kiki" two-thirds of the season to go in his dash to beat his own championship mark of 37 set for the majors last year.

In addition, the versatile Hazen has hit around .350 and has been whipping those rifle pegs in from the outfield to shoot down many of the boys trying for extra bases on hits into his territory.

GEORGIAN HAS BRILLIANT 69 ON FIRST DAY

NATIONAL TITLE MAY GO BACK TO HANDS OF AMATEURS

BY BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

MAMARONECK, N. Y., June 28.—A rising young attorney at law of Atlanta, Ga., Bobby to the golfing public, Bob to his family and close friends, and Mr. Robert T. Jones, jr., in the open golf championship competition, today had his friends the pros polishing up their Niblacks and Putters and wondering if they could keep the title in the professional family.

All the pros were looking up at Bobby. Some were far down the ladder. Al Espinosa and Gene Sarazen were only a wee pitch away. Espinosa's score of 70 being as close as it could be to the great amateur's 69 without making a tie for the lead Saraszen, who has been a champion and liked it, O, well, he would like to be again, was two strokes out of first place with 71.

Charles Hilgendorf, one of the big group of professionals in the Detroit district, scored par 72 for the first round and modestly said he was "lucky." Jack White, 55 year old Scotchman who was British open champion a quarter of a century ago, equaled par of the course and after admitting his putter was good to him, talked of mascots he had brought with him from England, and anything else but golf.

Leonard B. Schmutte struck a valiant blow for Lima, Ohio, with a first round of 73 and Denny Shute, former Tar amateur playing from Worthington, Ohio, was also one over par.

A number of pros started their second round with credits of 74, including the always dangerous Leo Diegel, entered as a pro from Mexico, and Tommy Armour, 1927 champion. Larry Nabholtz, Houston, Texas, burned up the course for a while and finished with 74.

Walter Hagen and Horton Smith were back with the 76's and Johnny Farrell, current champion, practically eliminated himself from the competition with a bad 84, "doing everything wrong," he explained.

Foreigners Falter

John Wyland, only entry from Cuba, never got going and took 95. Of the two entries from Canada, the amateur, C. Ross Somerville, outscored the professional, James Johnston, 79 to 81.

To score his dazzling 69, his first score under 70 in a National open, Bobby had to give par a five stroke drubbing on the second nine.

PRESBYTERIANS GIVING RECEPTION TONIGHT FOR NEW UNIT

A reception will mark the opening of the new annex to the First Presbyterian church here tonight at 8 p. m.

"The public," said Dr. Jack M. Lewis, pastor, "is cordially invited to attend this open house. We now have one of the most complete plants in West Texas, and feel that the public will be interested in inspecting it."

The new building is thirty by seventy-five, is three stories in height, and adds fifteen new rooms and four assembly halls to the present capacity of the church. It is directly behind and connected with the main building which was built four years ago.

Class Rooms Provided

The lower floor is made up of class rooms for the junior and cradle roll departments, and an assembly room. On the second floor there is the pastor's study, the secretary's office, and class rooms for the young people's department. A portion of one side of this floor has three connecting rooms which are separated by sliding walls, thereby serving as three class rooms or one large assembly hall. The senior and intermediate departments, with class rooms that border and open into an assembly hall, are located on the third floor.

After the reception and open house inspection, refreshments will be served to the guests. Mrs. W. B. Price is the chairman of the reception committee.

Screen Star Hurt In Car Accident

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 28 (AP). Gladys Brockwell, screen actress, was fighting for her life in a hospital here today as a result of injuries received last night when an automobile in which she was riding with P. Stanley Brennan, Los Angeles advertising man, overturned near Calabasas, Calif.

Police Surgeon Burrell said she sustained compound fracture of the jaws, a fractured skull and other serious injuries. There was little hope for her recovery. Brennan suffered broken shoulders.

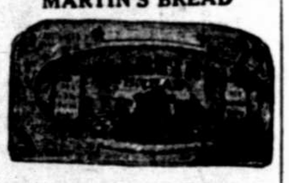

They were brought here by passing motorists.

The big grasshopper hopped along, and my, but his queer legs seemed strong. He'd bounce away up in the air just like a little spring. His hind legs were as big as him, and they kept him in jumping trim. If you have seen one, you know he's a funny looking thing.

The Tinies ran as best they could. Of course their legs were not so good. They wouldn't spring up into space, but stayed right near the ground. "Oh, we'll be caught," one Tiny cried. "The hopper's almost by our side." The rest were really much too scared to even turn around.

"By jingoes, if he tries to bite," said Clowny, "we will start to fight. All four of us might lick him if we battle good and strong." And then the Scarecrow smiled and said, "You Tinymites run right ahead. I'll teach this silly hopper that to scare you boys is wrong."

But Mister Scarecrow found he was quite helpless at the task because the hopper hopped right o'er his head and soon left him behind. "Well, goodness me," the scarecrow cried. "I ne'er thought that trick would be tried. If I am going to head him off some new way I must find."

He tried, but gave it up at last. The grasshopper was much too fast. By this time all the Tinymites were tired as they could be. "I can't run further," Clowny said. "I'm going to drop and hide my head. I want to save my ears at least, if he starts biting me."

So Clowny dropped, and very soon he heard a little buzzing tune. It was the hopper. Clowny thought, "Oh, my, I have no chance." Upon his knees he tried to crawl away. It didn't work at all. The hopper hopped right up and grabbed poor Clowny by the pants.

(Scouty rides the grasshopper in the next story.)

Police Station Mistaken For Depot

CHICAGO, June 28 (AP)—Mr. Ben Halstead, of Danville, Ill., very much in a hurry, raced into the Englewood police station last night.

"Can't wait for a ticket", he shouted to the sergeant, who gazed at him agape.

Mr. Halstead raced down the the corridor to the door leading to the cell block.

"I gotta make the 9:16," he gaped as he neatly straight-armed the lockup keeper, Joe Condon, and plunged into a cell.

Condon slammed the cell door shut and went out to the sergeant to inquire into this strange proceeding.

After a while it came out. Halstead, bored by Chicago, was intent upon getting back to Danville. He asked a pedestrian the way to the Englewood station. He neglected to say which station, so the pedestrian pointed out the police station.

At 11 o'clock last night Halstead started home on the Illinois Central.

"It was my fault," he told the police sergeant in parting, "I should have said depot."

Thought For Today

And, behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every many according as his work shall be.Rev. 22:12.

It is no flattery to give a friend a due character; for commendation is as much the duty of a friend as reprehension.—Plutarch.

We Admire It

A Massachusetts professor advises college men to be snobbish if they want to succeed, while an English busines man urges late marriage and strict frugality. In Ohio an educator stresses unceasing toil as the highroad to success, and a westerner tells young graduates to retain the "cool balance of the educated man" under all circumstances.

These are all notable bits of advice, and probably will do a great deal of good. But it strikes us that one thing has been left out.

No one, so far, has told the 1929 crop of graduates that one of the best traits a man can have is the ability to be wildly, daringly foolish now and then.

However much we admire the more sober virtues, the man we admire most is always the man who is willing to do something that runs counter to common sense.

Up on the coast of Maine, at this moment, there is a little gasoline yacht which, for the time being, is more interesting to the American people than any other ship on earth. In it is a pair of honeymooners—one Colonel Lindbergh and his bride. This young man has won the hearts of his countrymen so much that he can't even get them to leave him alone on his wedding trip.

And Lindbergh, if you'll recall, did it by doing something that no man who considered common sense and steady plodding the greatest of virtues would ever have dreamed of doing.

There really wasn't much sober sense in flying alone across the Atlantic. It was extremely dangerous, and it served no obvious utilitarian end. A young man who minded the commencement speakers would never have tried it.

But Lindbergh shoved the maxims of frugality and sobriety aside—and did it. And, as a result, he made himself the nation's most popular hero in a generation.

His, of course, is an extreme case—but it illustrates the point.

Secretly, all of us are a bit sick of the sober virtues. We work hard and we save our money and we do all the other things that the copy books advise—and, somehow, we don't get any overwhelming measure of success. We are too used to doing this sort of thing to dare break away, take chances and risk everything on a throw of the dice, but we have a deep admiration for the chap who does.

It might be a good thing is someone could buttonhole each senior class just as it gets through listening to its commencement oration, and whisper softly to it:

"That's all very well, but don't believe too much of it. If you really want to get ahead—take long chances, be a spendthrift, learn how to risk all that you have. You may lose; but if you win, you'll win everything."

National Meat

If England's great staple of diet is supposed to be roast beef, the national meat of the United States seems to be pork.

At any rate, the American people eat more pork than any other meat. Figures compiled in the Outline of Business, issued by the Central National bank of Cleveland, show that more than one-half of all meat eaten in the United States is pork, with beef ranking second and veal, lamb and mutton trailing in the rear.

Incidentally, we are eating more meat now than ever before. In 1919 the per capita consumption of meat in this country was 130 pounds; now it has gone up to 138, and it's still rising.

A conceited man is one who believes President Hoover will recognize him if he sees him on the street because he shook hands with him once.

THE PLAINSMAN Says

That Girl on Broadway says it's a wise wife who has sense enough to make her hubby her hobby.

'Way back in September, when Lubbock trade trippers were traveling around the country advertising the Panhandle-South Plains fair, The Plainsman decided that Business Manager E. W. Provence, of Texas Tech, should have some kind of an honor bestowed upon him for his fine work at the college. Now it so happened that The Plainsmen was doing some of the speech-making on that particular trip so he decided that in honoring Ernest Provence there was no time like the present.

After thinking the matter over very carefully he decided that the degree of "Doctor of Horse Sense" should be conferred upon the gentleman in question and that the additional title, "Dean of the School of Fine Points," should go with it. Consequently, in the speeches, The Plainsman got considerable delight out of introducing a plain, hard-headed business manager as an academic personage. The titles, by the way, have continued to stick and your humble servant, at least, has never failed to hail E. W. by and other term than "doctor" ever since.

Now Doctor Provence has decided to leave Lubbock for reasons best known to himself, and journey over into the wilds of New Mexico to be a college president. He can take The Plainsman's honorary degree along with him, because every college president should be some kind of doctor or another. But his leaving here is going to present a vacancy on the Tech faculty—that of "Dean of the School of Fine Points"—which must be filled by a man worthy of the high honor.

The Plainsman was frankly puzzled over whom to promote to the high honors and after an exhaustive study of credentials of all the faculty members, past, present and future, he has finally made his decision. The degree and the dean-ship shall go to W. L. "Casey" Stangel, professor of animal husbandry—whatever that is—who's a real fellow and who has been right in the big middle of worthwhile things ever since he hit Lubbock. From here on out he'll be referred to either as Doctor Stangel or Dean Stangel in this column and he deserves the distinction.

Listen for a minute about this fellow "Casey" Stangel. He's a college professor, and all that sort of thing, but he's as human as any of us. He doesn't mind working a darn bit and out there at the Tech you're just as likely to find him working with the cattle and horses as you are to find him sitting in his office where its quiet, clean and cool. He has contributedd his time, efforts and knowledge to the Board of City Development's Dairy committee, to the Panhandle-Plains Dairy show and association, to the Panhandle-South Plains fair and to the Kiwanis club and on top of that he has helped Texas Tech to a place in the sun in the department of animal husbandry. When he's not doing something else he's helping run athletics at the college and how Lubbock and this country ever, got along without "Casey" before the Tech opened is more than The Plainsman can see.

He doesn't go in much for dignity or glory. He wouldn't look so hot galloping around in a cap and gown and the chances are he's blushing like a school girl while he reads all this tonight. But he's going to continue to do his part in the upbuilding of the Tech, the city and the surrounding country and in selecting "Casey" for the mythical honors of Doctor of Horse Sense and Dean of Fine Points The Plainsman knows he's picked a winner.

That Man on Avenue Q says this is the kind of weather when all mamas are "hot mamas."

Getting back to this "doctor" business, The Plainsman was once the recipient of numerous congratulations based upon his stirring plea "If he isn't a doctor, don't call him a doctor; if he isn't a juddge, don't call him a judge." A lot of folks seemed to appreciate the thought but after thinking it over seriously we've decided that it's all right to call 'em doctors and judges if you want to. After all, there's enough knocks in the world and if you can make a fellow feel better by letting him think you think he's good—whether he is or not—have at it. We'll all be happier as we go along.

The Plainsman, personally has seen young attorneys who don't know any more about law than a hog knows about Sunday, swell up like poisoned pups when addressed as "judge" and if you want to make a hospital interne feel like Louis Pasteur just call him "doctor." Call a rural school teacher "professor" and a college assistant professor "doctor" and you've made the day brighter for him while a few "doctors" levelled at preachers will make for better sermons next Sunday. Yes sir! The Plainsman has changed his mind and will try to make the world happier for everybody, use of wrong titles not excepted.

Censorship Joker In New Tariff Law, Designed To Put Seditious Books On Hummer, Will Probably Be Vetoed

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, June 28.—There seems to be a good chance that the "censorship poker" in the tariff bill will be knocked out by the senate before the senate gets through with the measure.

A large howl has been raised against it and no one has risen to its warm defense, not even in the treasury department, which sponsored the provision. Progressive senators probably will insist that it be stricken out.

The "joker" forbids importation of "any book, paper, pamphlet, writing, advertisement, circular, print, picture of drawing containing any matter advocating or urging treason, insurrection, or forcible resistance to any law of the United States, or containing any threat to take the life of, or inflict bodily harm upon the president of the United States.

University professors have led the outcry against this proposed new law, insisting that many classics of economic thought would be barred if it were rigidly applied.

Would Hamper Research

"This law is a kindergarten measure which assumes that the American people are so stupid and untrustworthy that it is unsafe to let them read anything about revolutions because they would immediately become converted," says Prof. Zechariah Chafee in a recent article distributed by the National Popular Government League.

"If this legislation is enforced with any impartiality, it must necessarily cut us off from the economic and political thought of Europe and the rest of the world in our time.

Chafee says Harvard has been collecting in its library books, posters, pamphlets and other material relating to the Russian revolution which will some day be of great historical value, but that the proposed tariff act would bar further importation of such material.

Other educators, agreeing with Chafee, point out that even the quotation of revolutionary utterances would automatically bar a book from the country, though the book itself might be completely opposed to ideas thus expressed. They believe the law would prevent Americans from obtaining books abroad by such men as Marx, Lenin, Proudhon, Bakunin or even Bertrand Russell, whose works have had a large circulation in the United States.

Considerable mystery has been attached to the "joker" because of the inability of investigators to discover who was responsible for it. Chairman Hawley of the Ways and Means Committee and other committee members interviewed said they had never seen the thing before.

A very slight amount of sleuthing by your correspondent, however, reveals that the measure was put into the tariff bill at the instigation of the Treasury Department. Officials at the Treasury Department say they had it put in so the customs service would have a law on seditious literature paralleling that of the postoficfe department. Furthermore, they don't regard it as highly important and profess to be surprised at all the fuss that has been made about it. It is admitted unofficially that treasury officials will shed no bitter tears even if it i satricken out.

Parallels Postal Regulation

"It's only an administrative measure," says E. C. Alvord, special assistant to Secretary Mellon. "The postoffice regulations bar such literature from coming in by mail; this would prevent it from coming by express, freight or handbag."

The postoffice regulations, in barring "indecent" publications, specify that anything inciting "arson, murder or assassination" is "indecent." They also bar anything "containing any matter advocating or urging treason, insurrection or forcible resistance to any law of the United States."

The protesting professors are not anxious to spread revolutionary tracts. What they object to is leaving it to the customs agents to decide just what American scholars and other citizens shall be allowed to read.

The Postoffice Department, since the war, has not given any tyrannical exhibitions of censorship over radical literature, although some of its judgments concerning what constitutes obscenity, as in the Mary Ware Dennett cast, have been widely criticized.

NEW YORK, June 28—In June Manhattan tosses listlessly in the doldrums.

It's "important" people —if they are important—have shifted their address to Europe or the suburbs. Heat presses in. The city's pace slackens and its trails grow singularly dull, and trodden chiefly by visitors. Tourists from every which way begin a feverish invasion, for Manhattan is one of the nation's leading summer resorts, in case you don't know it.

School teachers arrive in droves for the advantages of summer lectures and college courses. Artists pile in, headed for the many nearby colonies. The music schools are swamped with maids and youths who feel that New York training is necessary for future careers, and who can get away only when school terms have ended.

And Manhattan itself pours out as the strangers pour in.

As for myself, I am an incurable sufferer from nostalgia—which, in its more virulent forms, is infinitely worse than mumps, measles or malaria. It leads to feverish dreams of undulant grain field, of barefoot boys sloshing through cool muddy paths, of the trim, green squares formed by truck gardens, of fresh and fragrant smells at nightfall and the perfume of Indian grass on a hot day.

And so, if it makes any difference to anyone but myself, I'm going to take to the open road. I'm going to wander through countrysides and towns and along rivers. I'm going to run away from New York. Nor do I intend to question very closely how or where I go, or how I get there. In these days of airplanes, bus lines, express trains and river communication anything is possible.

Eventually, I hope, I'm going to recapture some of the scenes of childhood and adolescence—"going home," as it were. But "going home" is a rather vague mission for a newspaper man who has suffered from itching feet. There's a little town in Lapeer county, Michigan, called Imlay City, which might be "home." Once I adopted San Francisco as my dwelling place—and Denver, and San Bernardino, Calif., and even Honolulu. Detroit and Port Huron and Los Angeles have been home ports—and New York, as well.

I have yet to meet a man who, at some time or other in his life, didn't pray to revisit the scenes of his childhood—to follow again the path that led him to the frog pond, armed with a fork harpoon; to see if the old barn where he staged his 10-pin circus is still there; to find out what has become of Maggie, first of his puppy loves; and the little school that once seemed like a dragon's fiery head, yet which came fondly to haunt his dreams; the alley where the gang played "mibs" and the corner where the same gang played "prisoner's base"; the river where the gang "chawed beef" and skated in winter and the park where kite flying was made simpler by the lack of telephone wires.

I've forgotten so many things that arae important—but I can't erase the names and the appearance of two ice cream soda resorts, nor the minute details of a hotel in Michigan where, upon rare Sundays, my family indulged me to the luxury of a Sunday dinner "out."

Well, anyway, I'm going to wander here and there to see what the rest of the United States is like. For I have been fearful that, like so many New Yorkers, I might overstay—and forget that I, too, was a small town lad who came to the city quite by accident.

BABY SIX MONTHS OF AGE SHOULD BE FED FRUITS VEGETABLES, WITH MILK

Answers to Mothers.

God could not be everywhere; therefore He made mothers.
—Jewish Proverb.

"Dear Doctor: My baby is 15 months old, and is just cutting his first molars and his upper teeth, and they are all black and look as though they would decay before long. Am I not feeding him correctly, or was my own diet before his birth wrong? I should like to know, because I am pregnant again and want to do the right thing. My baby takes 24 ounces of milk in 24 hours. Won't eat any bread and very little cereal.

"MRS. H."

There is no doubt that your baby's diet is wrong, Mrs. H. You don't mention fruits or vegetables and he should be getting quite a bit of these by now; he should have been having them since he was six months old. Milk is the main prop of the baby's diet, but teeth, as well as other organs, depend also upon fruits and vegetables for proper development.

It may be posible that your diet, too, was wrong during pregnancy and nursing. Even before the fifth week of prenatal life, the foundations for the second, as well as the first, set of teeth begin to be laid down! So what the mother eats is having its influence on the condition of the permanent teeth the baby is going to carry through life! If there is a structural deficiency at this time, they are going to break down much sooner than if they were perfect from the start.

One quart of milk daily should be taken during pregnancy and nursing, for its very valuable lime and protein. If the mother is inclined to put on weight, this can be skim milk; or, if whole milk is taken, she can omit part of her butter. She should have a goodly amount of fruits and vegetables, at least one and one-half pounds, partly raw, especially the green leaf vegetables, and she should have some protein besides what is taken in the milk, so some meats, or eggs, or nuts or cheese should also be taken. (Meat or eggs but once a day.) Not all the milk needs be taken as a drink, but can be made up into soups, custards, sauces, etc.

Whole grain cereals and breads had better—I'll say should—be eaten, not only for their bulk to prevent constipation, but for their higher content of vitamins and better protein and mineral elements.

If the activities are lessened, the mother may have to cut down on her breads, cereals and sweets, for she should not gain more than 15 to 20 pounds during the entire period of pregnancy, that is, unless she is underweight. Fifteen to 20 pounds will allow for the weight of the baby, its protective coverings, etc.

We have an article on the diet during pregnancy and nursing which goes more into detail. We also have a list of books on the general care and feeding of children, which can be obtained by following the column rules.

"Could a child wear his sun bath suit all day long in the summer, or only for certain intervals? How about a baby of one year, after he gets accustomed to it? MRS. R."

Yes, the child can wear his sun suit all day long, if he has very gradually been accustomed to his sun baths, so that he gets tanned, not sunburned. The same thing applies to the year old child. And it would be a good thing for both.

AID TO FARMER SEEN IN MUSCLE SHOALS' OPERATION

BY EDWARD B. ALMON, Congressman From Alabama

(Edward Berton Almon was born at Moulton, Ala., April 18, 1860. He is a graduate of State Normal college, Florence, Ala., later obtaining an L. L. B. degree at the University of Alabama. Admitted to the bar in 1883, he practiced at Tuscumbia, Ala. From 1892 to 1896 he was a member of the Alabama senate. He was judge of the eleventh judicial district from 1898 to 1906 and speaker of the Alabama house of representatives in 1911. He was elected to congress in 1915 from the eighth Alabama district and has been returned each year since.)

One of the chief causes of the bad condition in which the farmers are is due to the fact that lands are growing less fertile each year and as a result large quantities of commercial fertilizer are needed to replenish the soil. The farmer is not making enough on each acre. Congress realized this in 1916 and authorized this development at Muscle Shoals for two fundamental purposes, to make explosives in times of war and fertilizer for American agriculture in peace times.

Edward Almon

About $14,000,000 was expended by the government at Muscle Shoals. We have one of the largest and best air nitrogen plants in the world with an abundance of hydroelectric power with which to operate it, and fertilizer can be produced there at from one-third to one-half the current price. This has been shown by evidence of experts before the congressional committees.

We have failed after 10 years of effort in congress to enact legislation providing for its operation. Both houses of congress have never agreed on a bill but one time, and that bill was not approved by President Coolidge.

I believe that one of the reasons that Muscle Shoals has not been settled is due to the failure of the president heretofore to give congress a definite program of what, in his opinion, should be done with this plant.

The nitrogen plant is idle and practically all of the power is running to waste. This is not a power plant. There is but one unit there. The hydroelectric plant was constructed to create power to operate the nitrate plant, and should be used for that purpose. If they are ever separated and the power should be disposed of without making provision for the operation of the fertilizer plant there would not be a pound of fertilizer made.

Germany is using its war-time nitrogen plants in the production of fertilizer and has been so successful that she no longer imports nitrates from Chile, but has become a large exporter of fertilizer, and we are importing it into this country. What Germany has done in this respect we can and should do.

In this country we continue to import Chilean nitrates, and in 1925 we imported from Chile 1,018,183 long tons of nitrate valued at $36,261,894 on which we paid the Chilean government an export tax of $12.53 per long ton, which amounted to $12,757,000.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Because she is in love with her employer, JOHN CURTIS MORGAN, successful lawyer, NAN CARROLL, secretary, decides to resign. She lingers however when she learns Morgan is to defend a supposed friend, BERT CRAWFORD. Morgan wins Crawford's acquittal and he leaves town at once. IRIS, Morgan's wife, follows closely, writing back to Morgan that she will never return. She cleverly omits reference to Crawford, whom Morgan trusts implicitly.

Nan saves Morgan from despair by forcing him more deeply into his work. For six months she acts as long distance housekeeper for him, winning the love of little Curtis, his son, and bringing comfort to a man who ironically thinks only of another.

Morgan finally stutters a proposal, and after a quiet wedding, they are prevented from going on their honeymoon by the unexpected arrival of a pleading client. Nan urges Morgan to stay with the case.

For three months their farcical marriage continues. Nan is on the verge of despair. She decides to leave but Morgan finds her packing. He confesses he adores her but has believed she married him out of pity. She confesses she thought the ghost of Iris was forever between them. The next morning, while they are at breakfast, Iris returns.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVI

Nan Carroll Morgan was not one of those women who thrive on drama. She had never lost her little-girl horror and sick distaste of scenes. Her own well bred home had been singularly free of open discord, but once, inadvertently, when she was a child, she had overheard her mother and father quarreling bitterly. For days her shamed eyes had avoided them, fearful of seeing those two she had idolized in that dreadful state of soul nakedness to which their quarrel had stripped them.

Now, her hand on the knob of the door beyond which an unspeakable shameful scene was being enacted, every once of physical courage which the girl possessed had to be desperately summoned before she could force herself to go on.

A wave of nausea swept over her. If she had had only herself to consider she would still have done as Estelle had feared—she would have fled the house, leaving Iris in possession. But, as always, John Curtis Morgan came first. What was it he had said last night?—"I was a slave in bandage—" Could she, whom he had loved as his deliverer, condemn him to slavery again? He had said, too, "I hope I shall never see Iris again." Well, now that he had sent Estelle to fetch her. He had needed her. She had never failed him yet.

Nan's icy fingers turned the knob slowly, noiselessly, though with no intention of muting her entrance. She forced her eyes to take in every detail of the tableau before her:

Morgan standing tall and stiff, his pale face stern and forbidding, but such agony in his deep-set black eyes that Nan could have screamed. Swaying against his stiff body, her hands locked behind his rigidly unbending neck, was an Iris Morgan such as Nan, in her most uncontrolled flights of imagination, could not have pictured.

The divorced wife had torn off her hat and thrown aside her fur coat—the same mink coat in which she had gone away to join Bert Crawford. The glorious red gold hair was in wild disorder, the thick knot on her neck almost shaken free by the violence of her emotion.

Before Nan became aware of the words Iris was pouring out upon her former husband her eyes took in, with curious detachment, the fact that Iris' normally slender body had become painfully thin. But somehow, subtly, her beauty had fed upon the wasting of her body. Undoubtedly Iris had suffered, and as a result was far lovelier than ever. Even her voice had a new quality, a throb of sincerity in what had formerly been an artificial, beautifully modulated ripple of music. Gradually her words beat into Nan's still half dazed brain:

"It can't be true, Jack! You've said these horrible things to punish me. I'm punished! See! I'm crying, Jack! Now put your arms about me. Kiss me! Hold me so tight I can never leave you again! And then tell me—tell me!" While her hands still locked behind his neck, she tried frantically to shake the rigid figure—"Tell me you were lying—that you haven't divorced me and married that girl—"

Over the wild disorder of red gold curls Morgan's harassed eyes caught sight of the small, erect figure of his new wife, waiting before the door she had closed softly behind her. Nan's wide brown eyes met his steadily, unflinchingly, without question or reproach. As if their aloof gravity had a magic power over him, the man suddenly raised his hands and tore apart the locked fingers of the woman who was no longer his wife.

"Stop, Iris!" his hoarse voice commanded sternly. "I can't have you humiliate yourself and me like this. I've told you the truth. I'm sorry you had to learn the truth in this way. If you had written before returning as could have spared you—all this—"

"So I should have written, should I?" Iris panted, stepping back from him and rubbing the delicate wrists which his repudiating hands had bruised. "As your wife, I had a right to return without warning if I pleased. And I am your wife! Do you think for a minute that I'll let you cast me off like this—?"

"It was not I who cast you off, Iris," he reminded her sternly. "You dissolved our marriage by deserting me. I merely made the divorce legal—"

"Legal?" Iris shrilled. "When I had no chance to contest it? I wasn't a lawyer's wife eight years for nothing, Jack Morgan! And I'm a lawyer's wife still! I'll fight you through every court in the land—"

"Iris, please!" Morgan interrupted sternly, but with a betraying tone of pity in his voice. "I'm more sorry than I can say that you could not be reached before the suit was filed, but I give you my word that it was perfectly legal and that Nan is my lawful wife."

"Nan? Nan!" Iris cried, her voice rising on hysterical laughter. "Nan! Oh, oh!" What started as laughter rose and rose until it was a nerve shattering scream.

Then, abruptly, when Nan felt that human ears could no longer endure the agony of that dreadful assault, the sound broke off. Iris' clenched hands, which had been flung above her head, dropped suddenly, wavered. Then, before either Nan or her husband could move to give her help, the tall, fragile body crumpled, fell in a heap at John Curtis Morgan's feet.

"Nan! She's fainted!" Morgan called hoarsely, as he dropped to his knees. "Brandy—quick! The sideboard! I'll carry her into the living room—"

Nan was too sick and dazed to obey quickly, but somehow she managed to find the brandy bottle, spilled some into a glass, caught up from the breakfast table her own untouched glass of water, ran with them jerkily, on icy feet. But just on the threshold of the living room she halted involuntarily. Her husband had laid the unconscious body of his former wife upon the big couch and was kneeling beside her, his head bowed upon her breast, his hands locked above his head in a gesture of such profound despair that Nan's heart cried out in a passionate prayer for unconsciousness for herself.

As if that prayer had reached him, instead of the God to which it had been directed, John Curtis Morgan suddenly raised his head and turned it toward the door where Nan stood. In his eyes was no recognition of the girl as his wife, only a wild urgency.

"For God's sake, hurry! I'm afraid she's dead—"

Nan stood beside him, watching with that queer grave aloofness which had come upon her, as his shaking hands held the tiny glass of brandy to Iris' pale, parted lips. She did not speak. What could she possibly say that would help him now? But when Iris' bronze lashes began to flutter against her almost transparent white cheeks, Nan quietly moved out of range of Iris' returning vision, took her place at the end of the couch, her grave eyes fixed in an unwinking stare upon her husband's ravaged face.

A white hand rose feebly, wavered, then fluttered to rest upon Morgan's black and silver head.

"Such a horrid dream, Jack," a thread of a voice whispered. "I knew all the time I was dreaming, but I couldn't wake myself up. Dear, silly Jack!" The long white fingers rumpled his hair feebly.

With a groan of sheer agony the man dropped his head to her breast again. Nan knew he did not even remember that she was there. The thread-like voice went on:

"So tired, Jack—so tired! Poor Iris has been awfully sick. Did you know? So sick! Tried to—commit suicide. So sick, Jack! . . . Wanted you, Jack. So lonely. Ashamed to come home—but I did—I came home—" the thread spun itself gossamer fine and broke; the eyelids fluttered down over the blue green eyes.

"Oh, my God!" The words were wrung from the man on a sob that shook his body.

"Jack! Silly Jack!" There was a ghost of a laugh. "Everything's all right. You're glad, aren't you, Jack? In that horrid dream you told me you'd divorced me and married Nan Carroll. Wasn't that a foolish dream, Jack?"

The long white fingers twined about a lock of the man's hair, tugged at it with feeble playfulness, which suddenly became frantic as his head remained bowed on her breast. "It was just a dream, wasn't it, Jack? Tell me!"

Suddenly, though how she knew she could not have told to save her life, Nan was sure that Iris Morgan was shamming, that the fainting spell had been faked, just as this feebleness of voice and hand, this childlike prattling of a "horrid dream" were faked—for the purpose which had been so completely accomplish—of bringing John Curtis Morgan to his knees.

She might have known—she told herself with that queer, aloof calm that had descended upon her—that Iris would fight like this. What other weapon had been left to her? Well—Nan shrugged mentally—it seemed to be a very effective weapon. Odd how little pain she felt; just an absorbed, grave curiosity, as if she were looking upon the melodramatic second act of a drama whose conclusion she could not guess. Her queerly aloof mind elaborated the metaphor: "A modern problem play entitled, RIVAL WIVES, starring Iris Morgan, including John Curtis Morgan and Nan Carroll Morgan—"

She felt a smile twist at her lips; wondered "Am I going crazy? Or am I just having what Iris calls a 'horrid dream'?"

But if it was a dream her husband's voice—or was he Iris' husband, really?—seemed amazingly real. She listened with grave attentiveness.

"You mustn't talk just now, Iris," he was saying slowly, hoarsely, as if each word was wrung from him. "Close your eyes and try to sleep, darling—" He caught himself, remembered Nan, flashed her a look

DR. ROLLO CALLS FOR WEED KILLING AND OTHER WORK

Dr. J. W. Rollo, city health officer, urged the extermination of weeds and cleaning of premises in Lubbock at the semi-monthly meeting of the City Commission Thursday afternoon, and the governing body, cooperating with the cleanup campaign, laid plans for increasing facilities to handle garbage disposal.

Proposals were adopted for immediate improvement of the city disposal plant. Some of these improvements have already been made, while others will be started soon.

An improved water ordinance, which the commission has been considering for several weeks, was passed for its second and final reading.

Crockett Sheriff Can Go Longer Distance

OZONA, June 28—Though this county is not the largest in Texas, the sheriff can be called for a greater distance than any other in the state to make arrests.

He must travel through part of Pecos county to get to a strip of his county just east of the Pecos river at the S crossing.

He also must travel almost 125 miles from Ozona to reach another strip of land west of McCamey, and must pass through three counties on that route—Pecos, Upton and Crane.

Historic Bell Will Peal At Brady Races

BRADY, June 28 (AP)—Brady's historic bell will ring again but no more from the old court house steeple.

The relic has been donated to Richard's park and placed in the athletic stadium beside the judge's stand, where it will toll out the time of the horse races on July 3, 4 and 5.

For many years the old bell hung in the courthouse steeple, sounded the alarm for Brady's "bucket brigade" and was rung in other emergencies. With the passing of the "bucket brigade" the bell was supplanted by an electric siren, less sentimental in tone but more practical. Recently it was unearthed in a pile of debris and given to the park.

Radio Compass Is Installed On Watch

SABINE, Texas, June 28 (AP)—A radio compass which will prove of untold value to pilots and ships coming into the Sabine district is being installed at the Sabine lighthouse.

The compass will enable ships to get their positions at any time, according to officials of the Sabine Pilots' association, especially when there is fog and the skippers can not take their own bearings by the sun or moon. With the installation of the compass, masters will be able to wireless the Sabine lighthouse for their position.

Jefferson County Plans For College

BEAUMONT, June 28 (AP)—Though Jefferson county already has a junior college plans have been launched for another.

With the construction of a new million dollar high school here the old high school building and grounds will be abandoned unless they are put to educational purposes, as the deed of grant to the city provides that otherwise the land should revert to the heirs of the doner. The school board has evolved the junior college plan to save the property to the city. No definite plans for raising funds have yet been worked out.

Stimson Goat Must Go Back To Philippines

SAN FRANCISCO, June 28 (AP) "Old Soaks" when they happen to be parrots and belong to secretaries of state may wangle entry into the United States, but with goats it's something else again.

William Hamilton Bones, a goat, belonging to Secretary of State Stimson, knows this today, if goats can be made aware of such legal and social discriminations. Mr. Bones arrived here recently in the army transport Meiggs to join his play mate "Old Soak," the Stimson parrot. Both had lived at the executive palace in Manila while Mr. Stimson was governor general there. The "Old Soak" got in, but as no quadrupeds are allowed to enter the U. S. from countries where hoof and mouth disease is known to exist, Bones must go back to the Philippines, department of agriculture officials said here today.

The Super Service RIVERSIDE TIRE
TRADE MARK

World circling mileage World beating quality

The simple statement that this tire assures every owner of complete immunity from major tire troubles and expense for at least 30,000 miles is ample proof of its superlative quality.

It is purposely a tire of supreme quality. The manufacturers use only the finest materials obtainable in it. By every standard measurement it is in our opinion, the Finest Tire Ever Built!

In size it is so much larger than ordinary tires, we recommend its use only in pairs, never singly. Its tread, extra thick, with extra-deep non-skid blocks is a design acknowledged to be one of the most attractive ever produced. It will appeal especially to the man who prides himself on owning equipment "as fine as money can buy".

The guarantee behind Super-Quality Riversides is absolutely unconditional. It is a LIFETIME guarantee against defects of material and workmanship. In addition, it covers all kinds of wear and all kinds of damage, including rim cut, blow out, stone bruise, rut wear and curb damage—for 30,000 miles. To our knowledge, the longest and strongest definite guarantee ever placed on ANY tire. Only superlative quality can justify such a guarantee.

ORAH NOTES VALUABLE TO U. S. ABROAD

LETTERS HONORED BY SOVIET OFFICIALS ON PASSPORTS

BY JAMES L. WEST
Associated Press Staff Writer

Americans traveling in Russia on business, scientific or other missions, have found that letters written for them by Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, are of almost inestimable value in facilitating their movements in the Soviet Union.

Some travelers have described such letters as "magic wands," opening to them territory from which even the national of other countries having diplomatic relations with Russia are barred and in obtaining privilege first refused upon the presentation of passports issued by Russian diplomats in Paris, Berlin and other European capitals.

Signature Goes Afar

Word of the potency of the Borah letters, or, to be more exact, of the signature "Wm. E. Borah," scrawled in the handwriting of the leading proponent of American recognition of the Soviet government has traveled far and wide in this country with result that the Idaho senator receives almost daily requests for such documents.

These come not only directly from business men and scientists, but from senators and members of the House of Representatives in behalf of constituents, with one from William Howard Taft, chief justice of the United States.

During May and the forepart of this month, Senator Borah issued from one to three letters a day.

Because of the peculiar shape of trousers being worn in Australia, men are wearing both suspenders and belts.

the event the proposal is completed, Lubbock county will be included in the charter for the new railroad," wrote Mr. Phillips. No bonus was asked of this city.

Hospital Men Invited.

Announcement was made at the directors meeting that the Northwest Texas Clinic and Hospital Managers Association has been invited to hold their annual 1930 convention in Lubbock. No information as to the next meeing has been received.

Following a resolution passed several weeks ago to invite the rural carriers and postal workers to hold their 1930 state convention in Lubbock, the directors decided this morning to send Garnet Reeves, publicity director, to his year's convention at Dallas, where he will personally extend Lubbock's invitation. Mr. Reeves will accompany the local postal workers to the convenion.

Band To Go.

The Lubbock municipal high school band will be sent, accompanying a delegation from this civ. to the celebration at Hobbs, N. M., July 4 and 5. The New Mexico fete will last two days, but the band will be sent for only one of he days.

Steps toward forming a good representation for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce motorcade were announced. The directors will assemble a group of local citizens to represent Lubbock in the good will excursion through West Texas and New Mexico. The assembling point will be at Ballinger, and the motorcade will last from July 10 to 19.

tempt," Creager said.

Arrest Threatened

"Please see that you don't, for we don't want to arrest you," McKellar warned.

After two or three witnesses had testified, Bullington apologized for Pg 1—folo 10 pt —WARNING IS the Garner question.

"We didn't mean to intimate that he is crooked any more than other good men," he said.

Creager told the senate committee Bullington had made the apology at his request.

"Free" is Erroneous

J. F. Berry declared he was "one of the citizens of the 'fre state of Hidalgo,' but the 'fre' is erroneous."

hICeSL-d.1a(AP).ohnI-raafa 'n'z mb

"For several years I have been watching the operations of one of the most nauseonus political rings I ever heard of," he said. "We feel that we have been betrayed by the republican party of this state."

Berry, as had other witnesses, contended that if the state republican party had aided last year by putting a republican ticket in the Hidalgo field the democratic ring would have been broken.

Creaker Not for Party

"We have come to the conclusion that Mr. Creager is not interested in the good of the republican party—we believe he only wants to control patrcnage," Berry said.

"We believe we could sweep the country in a fair election, which was denied us last year. Baker has built up an organization with airtight fences, and he went to the republican party to do it." Sheriff A. Y. Baker is recognized head of the Hidalgo democratic "ring."

Offers Expenses

Berry said he would guarantee expenses of the patronage committee if i tchoset o go to Hidalgo county.

"We are very sorry, but we don't be ableto do that," Senator Brookhart explained.

Mrs. Schaleben told the committee that in eight months $2,700,000 in school bonds was voted in Hidalgo county. She quoted from an article in a national weekly, saying she had "every reason it to be true."

The other witness, J. M. Houston, San Antonio, said he discussed an appointment as postmaster at Austin with Creager and Eugene Nolte, Seguin, chairman of the state republican executive committee.

Must Pay 10 Per Cent

"The conference was friendly," Houston said. He added that after he returned to Austin, which then was his home, he was informed he would have to pay 10 per cent of his salary to the state campaign fund to get the appointment.

"I wrote to Mr. Creager and Mr. Nolte withdrawing my application," he declared.

Willard M. Ferguson, Mission, declared republicans in Hidalgo county, "do not think much of the party loyalty of Creager," for "he wants to build an organization from the top down," while J. E. McClellan, Edinburg, said:

People Tolerating It

"The American people of Hidalgo county are tolerating a situation which I am amazed they do tolerate.

"Senator Brookhart, if you will come to Hidalgo county I will promise a gathering of between 8,000 and 10,000 per sons who will be anti-democratic and anti-Creaker. I am convinced that if you make a thorough investigation it will reveal a close connection btween Creager and Baker."

"Then you think there a combine?" Brookhart asked.

"I am certain of it."

The Republican organization attempted to assess him $7,500 to put his name on the ballot in 1926, Harry M. Wurzbach testified. Wurzbach was a representative to congress for several years, losing last year to Augustus McCloskey, Democrat.

Court Action Relieved Him.

Court action relieved him of the assessment, Wurzbach declared. He also read a transcript of testimony at a trial of McCloskey for election frauds, quoting a witness, David Dedhurst, as having said:

"Nolte and Creager said get this election from them no matter how in the hell you get it."

Eugene Nolte, Seguin, is chairman of the state Republican executive committee.

Wurzbach declared he had heard that Creager got $80,000 in retainer fees from Sanger Brothers of Dallas, Carl Hoblitzelle of Dallas, and Walter Stark of Orange, for representing them before the treasury department.

He was informed that the national committeeman's name would not appear on the records since he was working through a Houston mouthpiece, George Hill," Wurzbach said.

Senator McKellar promised that Creager will have an opportunity to defend himself by testifying.

ity to distinguish between right and wrong. They also contend he is unable to realize the full meaning of the death sentence against him.

Warden E. F. Harrell of the State penitentiary, S. E. Moore, secretary to the warden, and Dr. J. A. McIntosh, mental disease specialist, were the concluding witnesses. Dr. McIntosh said McKenzie is sane.

Warden Harrell and Moore both said McKenzie is sane.

BOSTON, June 28.—One juror had been selected at noon today for the trial of Ocie Nix, 22, charged with the poison murder of his wife, Vinitia, 17.

J. A. Thrapp, farmer, was accepted after declaring he was not opposed to assessing a death penalty.

With the original panel of 300 reduced to less than 50, difficulty was anticipated in completing the jury. About 150 were excused when they informed the court they had fixed opinions on Nix's guilt.

Disheveled and haggard, Nix paid little attention to his attorneys as they questioned veniremen.

west end of Berlin adjured German citizens to unite in repudiation of the "war guilt lie."

There was a tenseness in the situation which led the government to request that its functionaires, high and low, refrain from joining in the public demonstrations, the authorities fearing unpleasant consequences. President Von Hindenburg himself refused numerous invitations to preside at meetings called to hold the "shameful treaty" up to obloquy.

LEGISLATURE

House wants it to come down to $16,500,000, about $500, in excess of the House bill. At that, appropriations for the biennium will exceed the available revenue by $750,000, according to John F. Wallace of Teague, chairman of the House finance committee.

Provisions for the highway department's construction program necessitate an increased gas tax, it is contended. The House has passed a four cent tax. The Senate committee reduced it to three cents, but now there is a movement on in the upper house ti enact a combination bill, fixing the gas tax at four cents and reducing registration fees on automobiles. The House had passed a bill reducing fees on privately owned passenger automobiles 30 per cent.

Unless the appropriations are brought within the revenue of the state and highway needs adequately provided for it is likely the governor will convene the legislature immediately in a third called session.

Lutherans Vote To Continue Lodge Ban

RIVER FOREST, Ill. June 28 (AP)—After debating three days the 34th biennial convention of the Evangelical Lutheran Missouri Synod has reaffirmed, with only one negative vote, its traditional application of the synod restriction barring lodge members as communicant church members.

Congress decided to divert $500,000,000 to relieve the farmer. That's enough to buy them a few automobiles, anyway.

GUARANTEED Ford used cars

USED CARS

Our policy in selling used cars is just what you would hope

WHEN you buy a car which has passed from the hands of its first owner, you would like to be sure of two things. First—you want to know, of course, that the used car you buy has a generous amount of unused mileage in it. Second—you hope you are not being charged for an excessive trade-in allowance which the dealer may have made in order to sell a new car. In short, that you are paying just what the used car is worth.

The Ford dealer's policy in selling used cars is exactly what you would hope to find. For instance, when we sell a Model T Ford which has been traded in for a Model A, that used car has been thoroughly and carefully reconditioned. With it goes a guarantee. When we sell used cars of other makes (and we have many kinds traded in for Model A Fords) we tell you frankly what you may expect, and the price is based on the amount of mileage we think you'll get from that car.

Regarding the price of the used cars we offer, you can be certain there has been no inflation to care for excessive trade-in allowances. The new Ford car is priced right—so close to the cost of production and selling that there is no margin, or leeway, for unreasonable trade-in concessions.

For these reasons it is worth your while to come to us when you are thinking of buying a used car. Nearly always we have a generous selection. Come in today and look over the following bargains in unused mileage:

THE VACANT LOT MARKET
Seems to be looking up, and lots all over town are worth a little more money than they were 60 or 90 days ago. But our client still advises us to sell those two we have listed for him on 26th, just west of Ave U., at $325 each, cash. These lots are well worth $450, and they sold for $400 two years ago, so this price makes what is the very best small opportunity in Lubbock to buy open lots low down and either to build on or to hold for the advance.

TAHOKA FARMER GAINS HEALTH IN A SHORT TIME

Thirteen Months' Stomach Disorder Disappearing After He Took Orgatone; Now Feels Fine

"...ce Orgatone is over coming ...troubles I am gaining in health ...d strength and am in better ...alth in general than for years," was the statement made a few days ago by J. W. Armotrout, a well ...known farmer living on Rural ...oute 4, Tahoka, Texas.

"During the fourteen months I suffered I tried every thing I knew of to get relief, but nothing reached my case until I got hold of Orgatone," Mr. Armotrout continued. "I had a poor appetite and my indigestion was so bad that sometimes I could hardly retain a thing I ate. I had pains in my stomach caused from the gas and bloating so bad at times that I did not feel able to do my work. Sometimes for hours I would be in misery which would upset my nerves terribly. I could never sleep good at night and I became so run-down I felt bad all the time. I was also troubled a great deal with constipation which only added to my other troubles.

"Orgatone was certainly a blessing to me and from the way it went after my troubles it seemed it was made especially for me. My digestion now is perfect and it makes no difference what I eat I am never troubled afterwards. The pains in my stomach have disappeared and I never miss any time from my work now. The constipation has left me and I am no longer nervous and every night I sleep sound. I have regained my lost strength and I am feeling stronger than I have in years. I am always going to keep Orgatone in my house so it will be handy at all times."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific bile treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Lubbock exclusively by the Bowen's Drug Store who are direct laboratory agents. Adv.

Foreign exchanges opened firm, with cables unchanged at $4.85.

COTTON ADVANCES ON ORLEANS MART

NEW ORLEANS, June 28 (AP).—The cotton market opened quiet at an advance of 1 to 3 points. Relatively steady cables seemed responsible for the advance. There was further buying on rains and October traded up to 18.50 and December 18.69, or 2 to 3 points net up. Later the market turned easier. October declined to 18.45 and December 18.63, or 5 to 6 points down from the highs. At the end of the first hour the market was quiet and at or near the lows.

The market later improved under a demand prompted by prospects for unwelcome rains in south Texas and a bullish private Texas crop report. The demand developed a scarcity of contracts and October traded up to 18.53 and December 18.72, or 8 to 9 points above the early lows. July sold up 9 points to 18.50. At mid session the market was rather quiet but near the top.

MARKET OPENS STEADY IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, June 28 (AP).—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 5 points to a decline of 3 points. No further May notices were reported, and near months were relatively firm on some trade buying and covering which sent the price of July up to 18.25 or about 12 points net higher. On selling encouraged by relatively easy cables prices worked 3 or 4 points below yesterday's closing quotations right after the call. Later the market was quiet and fairly steady within a point or two either way of yesterday's closing figures except for July which held the early advance.

At mid-day July was selling at 18.24, or 11 points net higher, while later months were within a point or two of yesterday's closing quotations with December holding around 1886.

OIL NEWS NOTES

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 28 (AP)—A new gusher blew in today in the Oklahoma City field, Coline Oil company's No. 1 Olds, in C SE NW 24-11-3 W, coming in for an estimated flow of more than 5,000 barrels daily. The plug had been drilled and operators were bailing down at 1,700 feet when the oil gas cleaned the hole.

HOISINGTON, Kas., June 28 (AP).—Estimated 250 barrels natural. Slick and Prairie's Russell county wildcat today was on the pump. Up to midnight the well, with 3,100 feet of oil in the casing put 25 barrels an hour into the tanks. Today it was making about ten. A field test showed gravity at 38.1. The well, in 36-15-13 on the farm of Mrs. Lucinda Sellens, a widow, opened a new western Kansas oil pool. It is near the Barton county line, 15 miles north of here.

BRECKENRIDGE, June 28 (AP).—E. C. Stovall, operator and land owner at South Bend, in the edge of Young and Stevens counties, last night brought in his No. 12 Stovall, with an initial production of 5,000 barrels daily from the 4,240 foot level. The well is in the center of a large undeveloped block in proved territory.

BRECKENRIDGE, June 28 (AP).—West Texas' newest oil field is being brought in by the Buttram Petroleum company on the Boyd No. 1 in Jack county four miles from the nearest production. Sand was penetrated at 2,450 feet, where control head was put on, awaiting setting of pipe and establishment of pipe line connections. The well is 10 miles north of Jacksboro.

Two Planes To Communicate By Telephone

GALVESTON, June 28 (AP)—Telephone conversations between the pilots of two attack planes will be made possible by a new circuit and telephone radio set invented by Sergeants Frank Dobluski and C. P. Smith of the Third Attack Group here. The set is small, weighing about fifteen pounds, and is powered by a 50-watt Aeion tube. Current is supplied from a generator and battery cell attached to the motor or through a wind turbine.

The hook-up was designed on the request of Maj. John H. Jouett, commander, to fill a long-felt need for better communication between planes in flight. The set has worked successfully on short wave lengths, and will be adjusted for general use by the group.

BEAUMONT, June 28 (AP)—Three hours after he went to work for a local ice company, Johnny Howell, 19, slipped into an ice saw and his right foot was severed at the ankle.

Texan's Story of How He Came To Adopt Black-Draught As Remedy for Indigestion.

Anna, Texas.—Mr. J. C. McAnally, who lives near here, says:

"In 1877 and 1878, I had typhoid, and after this I was in an awful bad fix; not able to work. I would eat, and eat so much, then would have indigestion. My system was clogged and I would feel just awfully bad.

"My brother-in-law came to see me, and I told him what a miserable fix I was in, and he told me of Black-Draught.

"I believe this was the first time I used it. I remember the date, because it was the winter before I came to Texas, in February, 1878, and Black-Draught has been my medicine ever since. It is a good purgative. It gives relief.

"If I have smothering after meals, Black-Draught relieves this. I don't suppose my house has been without it more than a month since I began its use. I carry it in a little box in my pocket, and take a little pinch during the day, if I have the least disagreeable feeling, and it does me good."

Twenty-five doses, 25 cents. Insist on the genuine. E4-1564

Cow And Chickens Profitable To Man

LA FERIA, Texas, June 28 (AP)—Chickens and cows have proved a winning combination for Edward Nordham of La Feria.

He owns a farm of about 10 acres one-half mile northeast of La Feria. At present he has 300 White Leghorns and 2,300 baby chicks. He plans to increase his flock to 2,000 Leghorns as fast as he can get desirable pullets to add to the flock.

Nordham also is building up a dairy herd. He now has 10 cows which cost him $1,000. They will be used as his foundation stock. In time he hopes to have a herd of 30 or more Jerseys. The dairy returns this year will be around $1,500.

Cows and chickens together give him an income of more than $2,500 a year.

Port Arthur Plans On Seawall Project

TWENTY THOUSAND ACRES OF FAMOUS OLD "S'S" LANDS TO GO UNDER PLOW SOON; COLONIZATION IS ANNOUNCED

Cow trails will become furrows as the tractor digs into 20,000 acres of Hockley and Cochran county ranch land which will be soon converted into farms of from 80 to 640 acres each, it was announced here Thursday by Jo Dick Slaughter and W. P. Soash of Lubbock.

Officials of the Lone Star Land company, the men will have charge of the sale and settling of the George M. Slaughter block, located near Whiteface, Hockley county, 55 miles west of Lubbock. The tract is a part of the famous "S's" ranch, originally owned and operated by Col. C. C. Slaughter who was one of the pioneer cowmen of this section. Following Colonel Slaughter's death, in 1919, George M. Slaughter, his eldest son and one of the western managers of the Colonel's million acre estate, fell heir to the tract which has been designated as the George M. Slaughter block by members of the family. George M. Slaughter, for years a prime factor in the cattle business on the plains, is still remembered by many of the pioneers of this section.

Other Tracts Sold

Recently a 17,000 acre tract of Cochran county lands was placed on the market by C. C. Slaughter of Dallas, and associates, which by the time sales have been completed is expected to add approximately 70 new families to Cochran county. A third tract, owned by Bob Slaughter and composed of 15,000 acres, has recently been sold out giving Hockley county an additional 70 families to its population.

The Lone Star Land company, with W. P. Soash, Lubbock, as its president, was organized in January of 1924 for the purpose of colonizing West Texas ranch lands with farmers, Mr. Soash reports. He is one of the pioneers in the immigration business in this section and associated with him in the sale of the George M. Slaughter block are Jo Dick Slaughter, sales manager; George W. Soash, secretary; E. C. London, field man, and Dr. George T. Teal, R. L. Slaughter and Bob Slaughter, directors. Main offices are located in Lubbock while branches have been placed in Levelland, Lehman, Dallas and Vealmoor. The company has colonized extensive tracts in Hockley, Cochran, Lamb, Hale, Howard, Borden and Martin counties, including large portions of the original C. C. Slaughter lands.

raided Tennant's quarters, and seized his trunk which was found to contain narcotics. Balaban said the raid followed numerous complaints that drugged horses were being run at the track.

Jockey E. Roehm, employed by the stable for which Tennant acted as trainer, was suspended indefinitely by the stewards for "heedless riding."

Noted Racer To Try For Segrave Record

LONDON, June 28 (AP)—The Mail says today an order has been given for an automobile in which the noted racer, Kaye Don, will attempt next February to break the world's speed record held by Major H. O. D. Segrave, forestalling a contemplated American attack on the mark at Daytona.

The car has been designed by Louis Coatalen for a speed "well in excess of 280 miles per hour," the estimated maximum of Segrave's Golden Arrow. The new speeder is to be built at Wolverhampton at a cost of 25,000 pounds.

Drugged Horses To Be Object of Probe

CHICAGO, June 28 (AP)—Reports that drugged horses have been run in races here today were under investigation, following the arrest of Frank Tennant, trainer at the Washington Park track, on charge of violation of federal narcotic laws.

CITY PLAN GIVES AIRPORT FEATURE

SWEETWATER, June 28 (AP)—Anticipating future development of aviation in West Texas, the Sweetwater city plan commission is considering the best means of protecting its airport against future obstructions by building on adjacent property.

Sweetwater is zoning the land in a five-mile radius with the view of daking that territory into the city as it develops. The airport is inside that radius. Herschel M. Colbert, newspaperman and secretary of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce aviation committee, suggested legislation to protect airports.

"Airports are a part of interstate commerce and undoubtedly will some day be placed under some sort of interstate commerce commission regulation, at least where the airport is a terminal for interstate lines," he said.

"If common carriers such as railways, telephone and telegraph lines, oil pipe lines, etc., have the right of eminent domain and other privileges, why should not a parallel situation exist with airports?" He suggested the right to condemn land needed for an airport and the right to protect that land so it will retain its usefulness as an airport.
