War, Peace Major Issues As Election Climax Nears

Off The Fence . . . Rep. Rogers Casts Vote For Stevenson

Rep. Walter Rogers revealed late Monday afternoon he had cast an absentee ballot for Gov. Adlai Stevenson for president and voted straight Democratic the rest of the way — from governor to constable.

He made the announcement following several queries he reported receiving by mail, wire and telephone on how he will, or had voted.

Rogers gave the following reason for remaining in the Democratic column with his vote.

"I am still a Democrat — a Jeffersonian Democrat — and always will be."

In his telephone conversation with a Pampa Daily News reporter about 4 p. m., yesterday, Rogers added:

"However, I shall continue to vote in Congress as I always have regardless of who is President—Stevenson or Eisenhower."

He declared the fight for return of the tidelands to Texas would be continued, adding:

"And, we'll get them back, too."

Not Campaigning For Either Yesterday morning Rogers posed for a picture with movie actress Mary (Nobilit) Cassell of Pampa on the steps of the Capitol. The Pampa actress who has made several movies is now touring the eastern seaboard.

But, Rogers still refused to ask others to vote for Stevenson and said:

"It is not my intention to influence anybody. I personally think every voter should go to the polls and vote the way his conscience dictates. Vote one way or the other, but vote."

In his weekly newsletter the Pampa congressman said a good many "undecided" voters are swinging to Stevenson, including a lot of small businessmen in the East.

Rogers drove back to Washington and stopped in several communities.

Board Stamps Approval On School Plans

Final architectural plans for the new elementary school in the southwest part of town have been approved unanimously by the Pampa school board.

This action came at the board's first meeting of the month Monday night—exactly five months and three days after a bond issue of $350,000 for the new school had been voted.

A deadline of 7:30 p. m. Nov. 24 has been set by the board for contractor's bids. But if bids are in earlier, the board decided, a special meeting will be called to select the contractor — in order that construction work can get underway sooner.

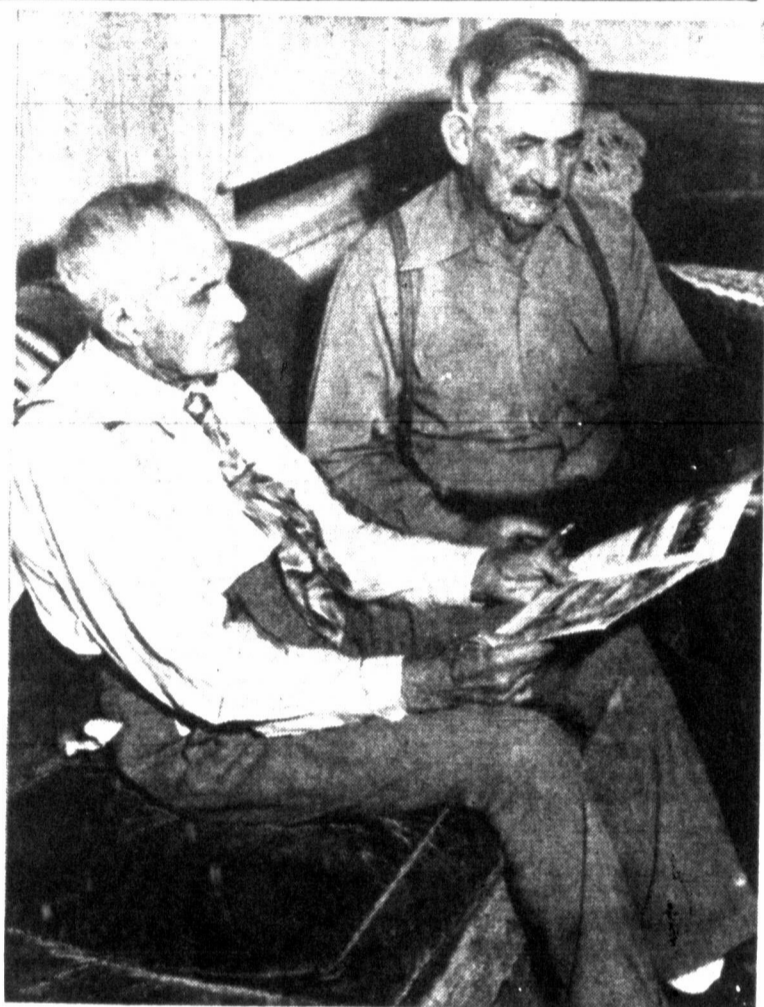

Deadline Aug. 1, 1953 B. R. Cantrell, school architect, was on hand to answer any last-minute questions board members might have. He suggested a completion date of not later than Aug. 1, 1953, in order that equipment and furnishings could be installed in time for the beginning of the fall semester.

"A good building — will stand a lot of wear and tear" were the words Cantrell used to describe the proposed school. He said he thought the board would "get a good bid."

The school board reserved the right to throw out any and all bids, should it see fit.

Other activity on the 11-point agenda included hearing a representative from the area adjacent to the new school; a representative from a fire-resistant service; a proposal from a local service club on diabetes; and discussion on paving a walk by a Pampa school and on use of an auditorium by the Boy Scouts.

Asked to "Dedicate Property" J. A. Bond, 1300 W. Crawford, appeared at the request of the school board to talk over his approval of his property becoming.

THIRD TIME IN 50 YEARS — Only three times in the past 50 years have John (Uncle John) Beverly, 95, of 616 N. Cuyler, and his son, Lon Beverly, 73, of Martine, Calif., got together for a visit. Uncle John, left, points out to his son some of the old family photographs. A copuncher all his life, Uncle John has been a Pampa since 1929. Lon left for California Monday afternoon. (News Photo)

Rioting Prisoners Call For Governor

CHESTER Ill. (AP)—Three hundred rebellious prisoners, threatening seven hostages with death, held out early today inside Illinois' trouble-plagued Menard Prison and were reported calling for Gov. Adlai Stevenson.

The prison was the scene of a 27-hour uprising five weeks ago. That one was quelled by a two-hour tear gas barrage.

Warden Jerome E. Munie stated armed guards and state police at strategic points around the prison and ordered them to "shoot, to kill if anyone makes a move."

But he abandoned plans to storm the cell block when convicts threatened to hurl the seven hostages from a 50-foot high balcony fronting the top tier of cells. The guards were marched to the balcony when the rioting began about 5 p. m. (CST) Monday.

Some inmates were quoted by officers as calling out, "we want to see the governor." Other shouts of "we want to see the big boss" were reported. Munie said he thought they wanted to see him, not the governor.

Gov. Stevenson, campaigning for president of the Democratic ticket, is in New York.

When told that, some inmates were quoted as saying: "He flew out there an he can fly back."

The latest violence at the Southern Illinois prison along the Mississippi River set the city of Chester abuzz with false rumors of a mass break. The prison has 1,850 inmates.

A murky fog-smoke mixture, even smog, hovered over the upper Texas coast but was being dispersed Tuesday morning by the mounting breeze from the north.

Sen. M'Carthy Flays Stevenson's Record

War and peace was the major issue in both political camps Tuesday as the presidential campaign moved toward its election day climax now just a week away.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican aspirant, pounded away at his Democratic opponent, Gov. Adlai Stevenson, as "completely untutored in the tough business of world relations."

In speech after speech Monday, Eisenhower repeated his Detroit promise of Friday that he is determined to go to Korea and try to "diminish this flow of American blood . . . no matter what anybody says."

Stevenson in turn charged the general with promising something he can't deliver — an early peace in Korea — and in a speech transcribed for broadcast Tuesday, he said he does not believe there is "an easy way out of Korea" and he wouldn't make false promises "even if the election depended on it."

President Truman, in the Midwest on his final whistle stop tour of the campaign, said Eisenhower himself was responsible for recommending the withdrawal of U. S. occupation troops from Korea in 1949—a move some believe encouraged the Communist attack there.

Taft On West Coast Sen. Robert A. Taft, campaigning on the West Coast, said at Helena, Mont., Monday night the general, if elected, would go to Korea to explore all possibilities of ending the war—not to confer with the Chinese Reds.

Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican, touched off immediate waves of comment and reaction with his widely heralded "Stevenson story" which he had said would show Stevenson's connections with known Communists and Red causes.

The Senator, in a nationally broadcast radio-TV address from Chicago, Monday night, charged that Stevenson has given "aid to the Communist cause."

Although saying he did not accuse the governor of being a Communist or pro-Communist, he added: "I must believe that something was wrong somewhere."

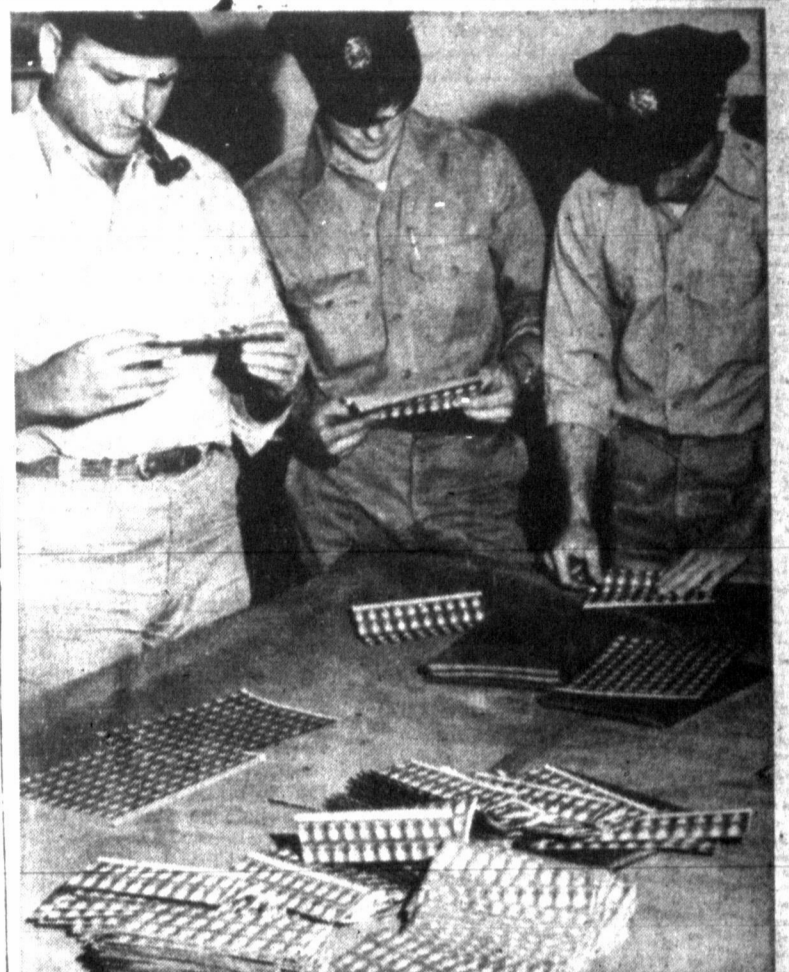

Stevenson Claims Smear Among other things, McCarthy said Stevenson is surrounded by some left wing advisers, that he endorses "suicidal Kremlin-shaped policies for America" and once had a plan for "foisting Communism upon Italians after Mussolini's fall."

McCarthy also said the Communist Daily Worker in effect is endorsing Stevenson. The newspaper later said it was supporting the Progressive Party ticket.

Before McCarthy went on the air, Stevenson predicted the senator would level "the most magnificent of all smears of all time" against him.

And after the speech, Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell said Eisenhower "must assume full responsibility for Sen. McCarthy's speech last night" because the general "has publicly stated that the decisions in this campaign 'have

Texas Rolls Toward Election With Battle Lines Swaying

Nixon and McCraw . . . Kerr and Shivers . . . Nolte and Daniel . . . Rayburn and Dies . . . Connally and Porter. The furor was terrific and the noise was deafening. Texas was rolling like a juggernaut toward Nov. 4 and General Election Day, a scant week away.

The battle lines, drawn at Amarillo, San Antonio and Chicago Democratic and Republican conventions, swayed and buckled in the do-or-die fight for Texas' 24 blue chip electoral votes.

On the outcome probably hung the presidential election, the destiny of a nation for at least four years. A party in power 20 years was in deadly combat with a party fighting back from five straight defeats.

Adlai vs. Ike It was Richard Nixon, GOP vice - presidential candidate, touring Texas by plane and speaking in seven strategic population centers. It was Allan Shivers at Breckenridge. And it was Bill McCraw in Dallas and Sen. Robert Kerr in Wichita Falls. It was Mike Nolte at San Antonio and Wiley Sam Rayburn in Dallas.

Today it would be Atty. Gen. Price Daniel at Austin in another statewide broadcast to tell are being used "to threaten Texans into voting for four more years of Trumanism."

And it will be fighting old Sen. Tom Connally, singing his political swan song this year, speaking over a statewide network Tuesday night for his beloved Democrats, the party that kept him in office for 36 years. He speaks at 8 p. m. over the Texas State Network.

Gregg Crowd Large Nixon, police estimates said, spoke to 39,000 Texans in his seven stops from Texarkana to El Paso Monday. The crowds ranged, the estimates said, from 1,500 at El Paso to 12,000 at the Gregg County Airport.

The young vice - presidential candidate told his audiences that a "vote for Stevenson is a vote for Truman and Dean Acheson."

At Midland, introduced by Robert Stripling, former investigator for the House Committee on Un-American Activities, Nixon said:

"Bob can tell you it was the Communists working in the government who made it possible for Russia to develop the A - bomb (See TEXAS ROLLS, Page 3)

Girl Scout Official Is Speaker Here At Organization Meet

Gay Sheppard, Dallas, Girl Scout regional field staff and community advisor, emphasized senior scouting in a talk Monday night at the Girl Scout organizational meeting in the Palm Room, City Hall.

She stressed the five fundamentals of scouting, troop organization, good leadership, abiding by a scout promises, democratic troop government and progressive programs.

A board meeting in the Scout office followed the program. It was decided to increase the valuation of Camp Sullivan and additional fire insurance was approved. Mrs. Rufe Jordan, president, presided.

The board made an appeal for more contributions to complete the fund drive — officially closed — which fell $3,000 short of the goal.

Board members present were Dr. Douglas Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Fathere, Mrs. Harvey Nemstler, Mrs. Frank Kelley, Louis Chamberlain, Joe Cree, J. C. White, Mrs. John Nutting, Mrs. Ellen Keough and Mrs. Jordan.

Appearing on the entertainment program were Sylvia Gryder, Kay Wagner, Mrs. Gene Massey's Brownie troop, Nancy Goodnight, Joan McMurray, Judy Baer and Kay Thompson.

Shooting Victim's Wife Returns Home

Mrs. A. D. Silvey, wife of the 72-year-old Pampa man shot early Monday morning on the floor of his service station, was scheduled to arrive in Pampa from Dallas sometime today.

Drought Tightens Its Grip . . . Forest Fires Out Of Control

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Sixty-two fires raged out of control through Arkansas timberland late last night, and State Forester Fred Lang said weary fire fighters might not be able to cope with the spreading flames.

Lang warned Arkansans that "the forest fire situation is out of control" and "your lives are in danger."

"Our men are at the point of exhaustion and our equipment is rapidly breaking down," he said. "There are no areas of our state which are not in a tinder-dry condition."

Asst. Forester T. S. Martin reported 43 fires were out of control in the rich forests of South Arkansas, where 8,000 to 10,000 acres were burning.

Another 19 fires raged over 860 acres in mountainous North Arkansas.

Texas—drought-ridden for nearly three years—had even drier weather Tuesday as bone-dry northers headed toward the Gulf of Mexico and lowered humidity on its way.

Four Are Injured In Auto Accident

All four teen-agers injured in a two-car collision Monday night are reported "doing very well" in Charlotte Ann. Cal., 16, of 112 Terrace, was starting to turn around on a county road northwest of town at 8:30 p. m. Monday, highway patrol reports, when her vehicle was involved in a collision with a car operated by Keith Lee Bonny, 15, of 628 N. Somerville, who was headed west.

Riding with Miss Call was Sue Ann Toepfer, 17, of 1148 N. Starkehurst. Bonny's passenger was Wayne Griggs, 16, west of Pampa.

Bonny walked to a neighboring house, patrolman said, and called an ambulance; but while he was gone, Griggs collapsed at the scene of the wreck. All four were taken to the hospital by ambulance.

Damages to the Call car were estimated by investigating officers at $1,000. For the Bonny vehicle damages were calculated at $1,250.

On the scene of the mishap were P. C. Wynne, highway patrolman; Buck Haggard, deputy sheriff; and H. A. Doggett, county juvenile officer.

According to Dr. Raymond Laycock and Frank Kelley, the four teen-agers suffered bruises and lacerations but they are not considered in serious condition.

Portland Sale Is Confirmed

Sale of the Portland Gasoline Plant near Pampa, in the rumor stage for several days, was confirmed today by a source close to the transaction.

However, little more than the actual confirmation was revealed. Buyer and disposition of the plant was not made available.

The spokesman, who declined to be identified, said the transaction was in the hands of a brokerage firm and completion of the sale might take some two or three weeks.

According to available information, 75 per cent of the company stock must be transferred.

The plant, located five miles west of Pampa on the Borger highway, was built in 1929.

C-C Installs Officers Today

New faces, beginning tonight, take over the reins of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce for the next 12 months when the 1952-53 officers are installed at the annual chamber banquet in the high school cafeteria.

Fritz Thompson, Borger, vice president of the Texas Good Roads Assn. will be the installing officer.

Lynn Boyd, local lumber dealer; Clinton Evans, automobile sales manager, and Floyd Watson, banker, will be officially installed as president, vice-president and treasurer respectively along with advisory board members and members of the Board of City Development.

Dr. Alfred P. Haake, economist and business consultant to General Motors, will make the principal address.

Long-Simmering Parole Board Row Out In Open — Part Way

AUSTIN (AP)—A long simmering row between members of the State Board of Pardons and Paroles was out in the open today — part of the way, at least.

The rift was obvious but what caused it was still the secret of the three board members who wouldn't tell reporters what it was all about.

There had been signs of dissension for months. Yesterday it broke into the open when board member R. A. (Smoot) Schmid, Dallas, refused to attend an open hearing on a plea to save Booker T. Reed from the electric chair.

The Reed hearing apparently had no connection with the ruckus. Chairman Lyle C. Harris said the board had not met as a unit for about three weeks. It has been deciding on cases individually.

Begert Sets Mailing Date For TB Seals

Sam Begert, Gray County Christmas seal sale chairman, announced Nov. 17 as mailing date for 600 envelopes of seals to area residents at a Tuberculosis Association board meeting Monday noon in the Pine Room, Schneider Hotel. Local firemen are folding the seals.

Mrs. Carlton Nance, constitution and by-laws chairman, presented the revised set of guiding principles which were approved. Major change, according to Mrs. Nance, is the setting of a definite board meeting date — the fourth Monday in each quarter.

Biggest step by the board since the last meeting, said Mrs. Nance, is the hiring of a permanent executive secretary, Mrs. Ethel Anderson.

Harvesters Set Sights On Lubbock

The Fighting Harvesters, preparing for an encore to their role of "Jack, the giant killer," held a light workout yesterday. With the game against the pre-conceded district champion Lubbock Westerners scheduled for Saturday afternoon, the Pampans gain one more day of workouts this week.

After feeling themselves out and finding most of their facilities still in operation after the bitter, but victorious battle last Friday night, the griders ran through light punting, kickoff and defensive maneuvers. Spirit was high, and a long bench of afternoon quarterbacks testified to the interest drawn by the Saturday game.

Tickets for the battle were placed on sale yesterday morning, and were almost gone as rapidly. An overflow crowd of 12,000 has been predicted, with a full trainload of Westerners back to Lubbock to arrive in Pampa on a special at 1:20 p.m., forty minutes before kickoff Saturday. Lubbock was issued a total of 1,148 reserved seats and they were completely sold out yesterday morning in two hours.

In addition, the fact that Borger meets Odessa at the Carbon Black City on Friday night, means that Pampa will be overrun by Borger citizenry as well as many Odessa fans who plan to make a big two-game week end trip to the Panhandle.

Coach Tom Tipps and Guerri-

Sports Shot

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Editor
DALLAS (AP) — When a football team loses you can hear all about the deficiencies of the coach. Apparently he didn't have those deficiencies while he was winning.

The latest is that Rusty Russell, coach of Southern Methodist, received aid from Matty Bell in building a defense so SMU could beat Rice. Matty, you know, retired as head coach of SMU in 1949 and Russell, who had been his assistant and in charge of the offense, was advanced to the head man's job. Bell remained as athletic director and the story goes, he came to Russell's rescue when the wolves got hot and showed him a defense that would keep the other side from scoring all the time.

Of course, it wasn't explained why Russell didn't already know about the defense since he coached with Bell for several years. And surely Rusty didn't throw away that great defense when SMU played Kansas Saturday. If Matty had given him one that would click, Rusty wouldn't be about to abandon it, Kansas beat SMU, 26-0. That'll teach Russell to mind his elders. Or is Matty older than Rusty?

Next Coach?

Out on the hilltop at SMU these days most everybody will button-hole you with the query: "Whom do you think will be our next coach?" You blantly want to know when the change is going to be made and where's Rusty going. But the imber of information brushes that aside with the reply that Russell won't be around after this year but that Doak Walker will be.

Doak Walker coach of Southern Methodist?

Certainly that would be popular. The Doaker is his most famous football player Southern Methodist every produced. His name is magic at the box office.

They say Walker plans to retire from professional football this year. It will be his third season.

When he entered pro football this year, it will be his third season.

When he entered pro football he said he was going to try it for a year or two. The Doaker has been beset with injuries this year. Maybe he'll do it now wearing on a little fellow like him to stay in the rough and ready pro game any longer.

Anyway, there are a lot of folks out at SMU who say, without authority of course, that the Doaker is coming back to coach his beloved Mustangs.

Bowl Choices

Shortly Southwest Conference schools still in the running for the championship will submit preferential lists of teams they would be willing to play in the Cotton Bowl. Only then can the Cotton Bowl move to obtain the visiting team. But it's a good bet that Georgia Tech would be a solid choice of all the schools and it seems the Cotton Bowl ought to get busy and find out Tech's intentions right now. Last year the Cotton Bowl waited too long and Tech went to the Orange Bowl.

FIVE YEARS AGO — World Welterweight Champion Sugar Ray Robinson stopped Jackie Wilson in the seventh round at Los Angeles.

TWENTY YEARS AGO — Ken Myers, 36, of the Bachelors Barge Club, Philadelphia, said he would not defend his Olympic doubles sculling rowing title in the 1936 game in Berlin.

IN ACTION TONIGHT — A pair of fighters, both under contract to Bill Bentley of Clarendon, will appear in action at the Clarendon Junior College gym tonight on the first professional fight card in the Panhandle in years. Professional Bouts Climax Ken Davis Day At Clarendon

Today has been "Kenny Davis Day" in Clarendon, and tonight the young Panhandle feather-tonic heavy-weight meets Johnny Hollins in Austin. Hollins, a 199-pound Negro, made an auspicious debut in mid-summer by kayoning 6-5, 210-pound Tiger Rose, in the first round. In his most recent bout he fought to a draw with Ricky Mills of Austin.

A pair of four-rounders will open the night's action, in the first bout Cookie Jarillo, 126, Austin meets Baby Baypan of San Antonio. Jarillo is a veteran campaigner and recently drew with Peter Gutierrez of Victoria and whopped Kid Henry of Orange. In the other four-rounder, Larry Perez, 130, San Antonio meets Bobby Jones of Austin, 129.

The bouts will be held in the Clarendon Junior College auditorium starting at 8:30. Radio Station KPDN will carry the complete coverage of the matches. Tickets set for $2.00 ring-side, $2.40 reserved, and $1.80 general admission.

Davis was the recent subject of a lengthy article in the latest Ring Magazine, boxing's official publication. He holds a long string of amateur victories, winning 108 of 115 bouts, over 70 of the wins by knockouts. Kenny is 22 and started gaining boxing experience six years ago, fighting for Clarendon in the Pampa District Golden Gloves. He won the district as well as the regional title at Amarillo.

They Say About Kenny

This past summer Davis toured Europe with the United States Golden Gloves. Highlight of his visit he said, was an informal, private audience with Pope Pius XII while in Italy.

Says Arch Ward, sports editor of the Chicago Tribune and founder of the Golden Gloves as well as the all-star baseball and football games: "Davis is a better fighter today than Barney Ross was when he won the inter-city title at the same weight in 1929. He has extra reserve and ring-knowledge that earn him the close ones. He was the most polished workman on the Chicago Golden Gloves squad."

Pampa fans tonight can get their chance to see this two-fisted, square-jawed fighting machine in action. He has won his other three professional fights, decisions over Louis Adame of Tijuana, Mex., Mickey Northrup of Los Angeles and Bobby Gardner of San Antonio.

Davis could well enough be the boy who is going to someday challenge for the featherweight championship of the world, now held by Sandy Saddler.

SWC Elevens Preparing For Week End Of Title Bouts

By CLAYTON HICKERSON
Associated Press Staff

Six Southwest Conference elevens meet in championship games this week end with only Rice Institute meeting a non-conference opponent.

The Ovis play Wisconsin at Rice Stadium Saturday and have turned to early scrimmage sessions in an effort to stop the Big Ten team. Coach Jesse Neely's hayou chargers are expected to be in the best condition of the year for the Barbers.

The return of Bob Garbrecht to the Owl lineup was the biggest note of encouragement for the Ovis.

Texas - SMU Set

Texas and Southern Methodist, set for an important conference contest, took to the scrimmage route Tuesday after Texas took it easy Monday and SMU spent the day counting up injuries.

The Longhorns were due to spend most of the week on pass defense in trying to avert a Puny upset win. But the Mustangs climbed their chances received a severe jolt with five players on the injured list.

Duane Nutt, classy soph back from Corican, will be out of the SMU lineup for the rest of the season with a knee injury sustained in the loss to Kansas last week and four other top-notch players are sidelined for the week end, at least.

The Longhorns are expected to be at top shape.

Michigan State Solid Choice As Nation's Leading Eleven

Few Available Bowl Clubs

NEW YORK (AP) — Don't envy the sponsors of the football bowls this year. Their pickings are the slimmest in years, perhaps ever.

With new conference restrictions, the Jan. 1 operatives will have to scrape the bottom of the barrel for talent.

Of the top 10 teams in the latest Associated Press poll, only two — Georgia Tech, No. 4, and Villanova, No. 10 — are open to invitations and Tech is halfway committed to the South-eastern Conference.

The other teams either have banned bowl consideration or are bound by the Big Ten-Pacific Coast agreement involving the Rose Bowl. The Southern Conference and Big Seven have anti-bowl laws.

The Big Ten and Pacific Coast can put only one team each in the Rose Bowl. Others must sit on the sidelines.

Here's the bowl availability of the top 20 teams in the AP poll:

1. Michigan State, No.
2. Maryland, No.
3. Oklahoma, No.
4. Georgia Tech, Yes.
5. Southern California, Maybe.
6. Duke, No.
7. UCLA, Maybe.
8. Kansas, No.
9. Villanova, Yes.
10. California, Maybe.
11. Tennessee, Yes.
12. Notre Dame, No.
13. Texas, Yes.
14. Michigan, Maybe.
15. Virginia, Yes.
16. Penn, No.
17. Wisconsin, Maybe.
18. Alabama, Yes.
19. Florida, Yes.

The "maybes" above refer to Big Ten and PCC teams which still have a Rose Bowl chance, but only two can make it.

Iron Man Is Grid Beginner

PITTSBURGH (AP) — What does a college football coach do if he needs a 60 minute iron man? Pick out the player with the most experience? The toughest guy on the squad? Last year's star?

Not Lowell (Red) Dawson of the University of Pittsburgh. His "iron man" is shy Eldred (Al) Kraemer, a giant 215-pound tackle who never played a game of football in high school.

Wrestling Ducats On Sale Wednesday

Tickets for the grudge battle between Milwaukee's Tommy Martindale and Seuse Oyama of Yokohama, Japan will go on sale tomorrow noon at the Sportsman's Store. The boys started their troubles in the main event of the program last week at the Southern Club.

Oyama took the first fall and then came back to rub resin in the eyes of Martindale to open the second fall, followed by ripping Tommy's head open with a sharp instrument. Martindale finally got his eyes opened and put the Jap on the canvas and started choking him into submission when the referee tried to intervene. Martindale floored the ring official with a solid right, which brought about his immediate disqualification.

Martindale sitting in the dressing room nursing his wounds asked Promoter Howard Vineyard, for a rematch on a win-take-all basis, and he got it. There will be no time limit, the two battling it out to the end.

In the semi-windup, big Art Nelson, the brutal Canadian heavyweight, meets Herb Parks, also of Canada, in a 45-minute match. Parks is making his first appearance in the local ring in four years, and is a very capable veteran who follows the books.

In the 20-minute, one fall opener a couple of new faces will be around. Buck Weaver of Terre Haute, Ind., who wrestled here once before this season, will tangle with Gus Johnston, the Swedish Express of Seattle.

The first match will get underway at 8:15.

Oklahoma. In these days of platoon football, this is unusual but Kraemer loves every minute of it.

"I wanted to play football in high school but we didn't have a team," said Kraemer. "In fact I only saw one game—a high school contest—until I entered the service."

"I was always big (that's no exaggeration—he's got hands like hams and a 6-2 frame) and when I got the chance to play in the Navy—we'll that did it."

Kraemer, native of Clearlake, Minn., dated clear for the first time in 1940 with the Navy's San Diego Submarine Eleet coached by Commander Slaven Cutter, ex-Navy tackle.

Cutter recommended Kraemer to Pitt after he finished his two-year hitch.

Class AA Boasts Important Tilts

By the Associated Press

Class AA division of Texas schoolboy football has more important games this week than you can shake a stick at. There is little fiddle-faddle — the teams are playing for keeps in practically every instance.

Headlining the schedule are clashes between Quannah and Burkburnett and Anson and Stamford.

All four teams are undefeated and untied and their battles will pretty well determine the winners of their districts.

Quannah and Burkburnett open the conference race in District 4. Anson and Stamford, each winner of two games in District 5, will be pushing into the heart of the conference campaign.

Huntsville vs. Humble

Still another game matching unbeaten teams comes in District 20 where Huntsville, undefeated and untied, plays Humble, unbeaten but once tied. Humble is undefeated and untied in conference play.

Huntsville will be making its start in the district championship race.

All along the line top-rated teams in the various districts will be battling each other. One of the most important games will be in District 13 where Terrell, a strong state championship favorite, meets the only other team undefeated in conference play — Pleasant Grove.

Other major games are Kermitt at Monahans in District 8, Nocomas at Graham in District 12, Dekalb at Clarkville in District 15, Kirbyville at Jasper in District 17, Waco Tech at West in District 21, Killen at Hamilton in District 22, Navasota at Bellville in District 25, Eagle Pass at Del Rio in District 29 and Raymondville at Weslaco in District 32.

Undefeated and untied

There are 15 undefeated, untied teams in the class. By the end of the week this probably will be reduced to 10. With perfect records are Dumas, Phillips, Floyd, Burkburnett, Quannah, Anson, Stamford, Terrell, M. Pleasant, Paul Hewitt, Center, Killen, Humble, Gonzales and Uvalde.

Humble, La Porte and Seminole are undefeated but have been tied.

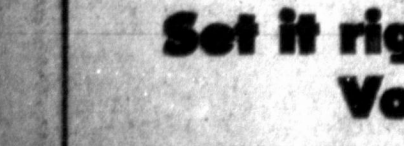

The week's schedule includes 12 games with almost all of them counting in district races.

Commission Awaits More Witnesses In Cree-Sykes Hearing

AUSTIN (AP) — The Railroad Commission today awaited the arrival of witnesses with "first-hand information" on why 82 wells in the Cree-Sykes fields, Runnels County, were found dead shortly after operators reported them at full production.

Emergency hearing on the situation began yesterday but was delayed until this afternoon because the commission was not satisfied with hearing only attorneys for the companies involved.

Pipe Line connections on the leases of G. B. Cree, Saxon Exploration Co., Skiles Oil Corp. and Southern California Petroleum Corp. and Union Sulphur and Oil Corp. in the Cree-Sykes (Lower Gardner), Cree-Sykes (Upper Gardner), and East Cree-Sykes (Upper Gardner) were ordered severed Oct. 21.

Cree operates two wells in the field.

The hearing was called to allow operators to explain what the commission called "irregularities" and to show cause why their properties should not remain closed in.

Commission Chairman Olin Culberson and Commissioner William J. (Bill) Murray hammered at the question yesterday of whether wells capable of producing in excess of their allowable have been doing so to make up for ones that couldn't.

An attorney for one company, Hamilton McRae, Midland, said he thought this had been the case but said he had no first-hand knowledge.

Testimony of Commission Engineer Mac L. Coker indicated considerably more wells off production from Oct. 7 through Oct. 19 than had been reflected in sworn company reports for September.

Culberson said he didn't see how 82 wells could suddenly go dead in just 10 days after they had been reported at full production.

Because many of the wells in the Cree-Sykes fields are dual completions said Culberson, the commission is checking possible abuse of the fact such wells get separate allowables on each of the reservoirs from which they produce.

Attorneys for the companies yesterday said the Lower Gardner sand is the one that has been giving them most of their production trouble.

five years before they could have otherwise. That's the record and they can't change it. Adlai Stevenson and his jokes can't change it. Dean Acheson and his foreign policy can't change it. And Truman and his lies can't change it. It is in the record.

Nixon stopped at Texarkana, Gregg County Airport, Beaumont, Corpus Christi, Midland, Abilene and El Paso.

Kerr Rips Back
Sen. Robert Kerr told an enthusiastic audience at Wichita Falls that Eisenhower "perpetrated a fraud on the American people" by saying he would "go to Korea in an effort to settle the war."

"Eisenhower knows better than anyone else that if he were sincere and honest about this he would have to say he would go see Stalin," Kerr said. "Stalin holds the power. Eisenhower knows that in Korea he would find only slaves and underlings."

The crowd of about 1,500 gave the Oklahoma senator several standing ovations.

"Eisenhower started his campaign making more speeches as a moral crusader than Carrie Nation," Kerr said. "Men one day along came a little whirlwind and ripped open the folds of his pure white robe."

"Your Nixon's Showing"
"Someone tapped him on the shoulder and said: 'Like, be careful. Your Nixon is showing.'"

At Breckenridge, Gov. Shivers said Texas was a president who "knows he isn't going to retain Dean Acheson as secretary of state."

blackest marks against this administration," the governor said. He told his audience the Democratic nominee won't say what he is going to do about Acheson if he is elected.

"Is all this a smoke screen to cover up Stevenson's intention?" Shivers asked.

William McCraw, robust former attorney general of Texas, had words of criticism in Dallas for Price Daniel, present attorney general and nominee of Republicans and Democrats for U. S. Senator.

He accused the attorney general of misrepresentation in talks on the tidelands controversy, and in a speech over the Texas Quality Network quoted Daniel as recently saying:

"Those who are now saying that Texas mixed its case up with other states in the Supreme Court are uttering a falsehood. My briefs are available for all to see."

McCraw Slaps Daniel
Then McCraw asked:
"Mr. Daniel, who is telling the falsehood?"

McCraw said that in Daniel's brief before the Supreme Court in the California case that Daniel said "in addition to the same claim as California and other coastal lands to the three-mile limit, Texas has title out to its original boundary three marine leagues in the Gulf of Mexico."

And Daniel was ready to fire back Tuesday night.

His subject in statewide broadcast, set for 9 to 9:30 p. m. will be "will Texas disapprove or approve of Trumanism Nov. 4?"

Daniel said he would answer what he called threats of political reprisals made by National Democratic Committee Chairman

Eisenhower himself, before McCarthy delivered his speech, said subversives must be cleared out of government "the American way" -- in such a way that no innocent person is injured. Aides said the general was making his position clear in advance of the McCarthy address -- which, one aide said, Eisenhower had not seen.

Sen. John J. Sparkman, Democratic vice presidential nominee, said in Stockton, Calif., that McCarthy's speech was a "pathetic" attempt to smear Stevenson. He said "this kind of performance has become the last ditch defense of the Republican Old Guard."

The New York Times, backing Eisenhower, was sharply critical of the McCarthy address in an editorial.

Nixon Leaves Texas
Sen. Richard Nixon, the GOP vice presidential candidate, moved his campaign to San Bernardino, Modesto and San Francisco in his home state of California after a swing through Texas in which he told audiences there that Republicans feel they have a "very good chance" of winning the Lone Star State Nov. 4.

In most of his seven speeches in Texas, he rapped Truman and Stevenson, calling them traitors of Democratic principles who are willing to put up with Communists.

The congressman said most of the people he talked to were highly complimentary of both General Eisenhower and Governor Stevenson, and at the same time highly critical of both vice-presidential nominees -- Senators Nixon and Sparkman.

"One criticism against Senator Nixon that I heard repeated many times was the fact that he called upon Governor Stevenson and attempted to smear Stevenson. He said 'this kind of performance has become the last ditch defense of the Republican Old Guard.'"

Mayor C. A. Huff and Commissioner Crawford Atkinson voiced opinions declaring the method of evaluating real estate and personal property as basically unfair.

Mayor Huff contended it was unfair to assess personal property prices, then turn around and assess valuations -- merchants' inventories etc. -- on present-day values as has been the policy since real estate property on 1942 down in 1948.

Atkinson reminded the commission that the policy decided on ing incorporated within the city limits. Rex Rose and Herman Whalley, board members, had been formed into a committee to handle the problem. Bob Gordon, city attorney, was present to represent Arthur Teed, local attorney.

Nub of the problem was whether Bond, whose property connects the new school and the city limits, would be willing to "dedicate" a right-of-way for the purpose of laying down sewer and water lines. Bond agreed to discuss the matter with Ray Evans, city director of public works.

C. R. Thomas, representing an Amarillo fire-resistant service told board members that his business was "saving old schools" by a "flame-proof" material called Flamort. Estimating the cost of his service at one per cent of the cost of a school, he maintained that 95-98 per cent of the fire hazard in a school is in the wooden attics. And Flamort, he said, is designed to keep all wood from oxidizing.

Lions Seek Survey
Dr. Joe Donaldson, boss of the Pampa Lions Club sent a letter to the board asking its cooperation in a public school survey during National Diabetes Week. Board members passed a motion to invite Donaldson to the next meeting to work out the details.

A bill for $1187.03 for paving on the west side of Carver School was presented to the board but was tabled for further discussion.

Exemption of a $25 fee for the use of the junior high school auditorium by E.S.A. and Boy Scouts was denied on the theory that it might set a precedent.

Further action included the approval of bus service for pas-

New Lamps Leaning To Cleaner Lines

The trend toward coordination hasn't stopped at table top level. Accessory manufacturers, as well as including themselves in the movement snowballing through the home furnishings industry.

Lamp furnishings in particular are bestowing upon their product a new style individuality in harmony with architectural demands. Lighting units are shrinking in size under lowered ceilings. They are lightly scaled to jibe with modern furniture.

Retailing Daily's fashion staff found that in contrast to the design formula adopted at the start of the modern swing, there is kept simple, free of frilly, meaningless ornamentation. Form speaks, but with modulated voice.

Decorators are receiving increased interest: flat decoration against basic geometric shapes or in the form of contrasted materials. Both techniques add up to a feeling of elegance, an advance style characteristic lamp designers have been among the first to accept.

Bright brass and black metal are replacing last season's color-contrasted theme of black and white. They are seen often together or alone in combination with other materials. White, also, has emerged as a color entity and is seen with about the same accents as are black and brass.

Ceramics are appearing in simpler shapes, a range of modulated colors. Earth tones are popular; pale yellow, slate gray and sea-foam green new. Matte finishes are first choice among many ceramists, glazes often applied to give textural effects. Decoration on both flat glass and all types of glass is toned down, geometric, in a galaxy of colors.

Ceramics of glass are being combined with metal and wood to form the base of a single unit in a now mixed materials trend, again following a similar movement in furniture design and architecture. The effect is a dramatic one and used with unified clarity of expression will fit into almost any decorative scheme.

Use of multi-materials, surface decoration and a third element, whimsicality, all mark the release of today's designers from the bonds of sterile, functional modern.

While style trends are most

MATURE PARENT

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

She is 30 years old and comes from New England. When she recently became a great grandmother, she and I were among those at the hospital visiting the new mother. Noting that she was looking a little tired, I offered to take her home when I left.

As we settled ourselves in the taxi, she said, "Ah, well, young Babsy won't have her sorrows to seek now."

She is not at all the kind of old lady who makes doleful pronouncements like this and I was startled. "Why more sorrows than you or I?" I asked.

She gave me a sharp little look. "Why don't you write a column on duty?" she demanded. "That's what I gave my young one a few weeks ago. You see, I had twelve times when I just couldn't give it. Then I did my duty. My boys and girls got on all right. You younger folks wear yourselves out to frazzles, so scared you're going to fail your children. Duty's nigh as good as love. Why don't you say so and so I said I would say so and I'm keeping my promise."

Duty is doing what we are supposed to do.

It is not concerned with feelings but with deeds. Like so many old practical ideas, the idea of duty has fallen among light-minded thieves who have so robbed it of value for us that we no longer credit what it can do.

Duty is to act from moral conviction. Though an act of duty is less noble than an act inspired by love, it is still an act of which we mortals can be quite proud.

Duty comes in handy, for example when Sheila or Bill want to embark on an excitable detour against an insolent or false charge. It does not require us to feel tenderness for bad temper, but just to do what we are supposed to do.

It calls for the control of the tongue's biting retaliation. It strengthens you and me to leave the room where juvenile anger rages and make a kitchen neat and tidy. It fortifies us to calmly iron the shirt needed for school tomorrow. It sends us to the sewing basket and the angry boy's socks that need darning. Though it cannot assert the divine peace of love, it can assert order of action in the midst of emotional disorder — and order is the root of peace.

If we do not think creatively for ourselves about this fine gift to children, we will continue to regard duty as a smugness and self-righteousness, and fall into the frustrations inevitable when we give nothing because we can't give the best.

Dr. Albert Schweitzer is one of the great loving spirits of our day. In his book, "Memoirs of Childhood and Youth," he recalls a teacher — a man who always had every lesson carefully prepared; who never gave more or less knowledge than he had planned to give; who always returned copy books on the proper day at the proper hour.

"Experience of this self-disciplined activity had a distinct effect upon me," writes Dr. Schweitzer. "That a deep sense of duty, manifested in even the smallest matters is a great educative influence and that it accomplishes what no exhortation or punishment can, has become with me a firm conviction."

Duty done well is humility and courage. It is both the recognition that we have failed to give the perfect thing and the decision to give the best perfect.

Those who sneer at it are romantic people. While they are still making pretty speeches about love, these of us who have turned to duty when love has failed in us, are enjoying the love the sneerers are just talking about.

Cook's Nook

Football season is here — time for a party. According to Nancy Van Buren of Hospitality Service, a real party success is the after-the-game "come to our house for supper" party. Whether the game is a victory or disappointment, everyone will be tired and hungry after an afternoon of cheering and will enjoy relaxing over supper while they discuss the day's highlights.

Plan a menu that can be ready except for a few last minute touches. Make it hearty — appetites sharpened by excitement and a whole afternoon outdoors are big ones. Hot baked beans, broiled cheese-topped frankfurters, tossed green salad, sliced brown bread, crusty French bread, chilled milk for the younger set and coffee for the adults will please the most ravenous rosters.

Set a gay table in advance — buffet style with colorful pottery serving accessories and an appropriate centerpiece. Carry out the air of smart entertaining by serving the coffee in festive-looking pottery mugs and the milk in attractive glass mugs.

Home from the game, simply heat the beans, combine the salad, broil the franks, and supper is ready to come to the table.

No Such Thing As A Chicken-Turkey

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — There isn't any such thing as a cross between a chicken and a turkey, says E. W. Glazener, professor of poultry genetics at North Carolina State College school of agriculture.

What farmers are probably raising when they speak of their "turkhen" is the Naked Neck fowl, known variously as the Transylvanian Naked Neck, Bare Necks and Hackles. The breed has no feathers on most of the neck, and the area of skin lacking feathers becomes loose, thickened and deep red in color at times, he says.

"Attempts to produce such a cross have been made at Kansas State College and at the Agricultural Research Center, Beltsville, Md.," Glazener says. "Experiments there have resulted in the fertilization of some of the eggs, but the embryos died in the early stages in incubation."

American Indians enjoyed roasted crickets, as well as the guns of lat-cutting ants.

"I realize that your early plans for a hand may have to be altered as the play goes on," writes a Tulsa correspondent, "but my trouble is that I cannot choose my early plan. For example, I was recently dealt the following hand:

Joker J-J 9-9 7-7 4-4 3.

The pack was born frozen, and the initial meld was 90 points for both sides. I couldn't make up my mind whether or not to meld at my first opportunity. One of the players said my course should have been very clear.

"Is that correct? If so, what should I have done?"

Yes, your course should have been clear at the beginning of the hand. You should have gone along without melding, hoping to get the discard pile in short order.

When you have the count and four or more pairs, you have a very good chance to win the pile. For the first few rounds, at any rate, that should be your goal.

You must give up if somebody else takes the pile or if you suddenly develop too many cards of the same rank. For example, suppose you are dealt the hand already cited. You draw another jack, and discard the black three.

Now you have two triplets and two pairs. Next you draw another nine, and you decide to release a seven as the west discard.

You then draw a fourth jack.

By this time, with two four-card bases and only one other pair, your hand has changed its character. It is now better or melding out than for winning the discard pile. Your best bet is to put down the four jacks and the four nines, adding the joker to whichever your partner is more

Infant Blindness Prevention Is Being Studied With Cats

CHICAGO (AP) — Kittens have helped point the way to a possible means of preventing a common cause of blindness in premature human infants, a Texas researcher has reported.

Dr. W. R. Hepler of the University of Texas School of Medicine at Galveston said experiments with newborn kittens gave first scientific evidence to strengthen a theory that a diet high in salt might tend to produce a visual defect known as retrolental fibroplasia — and that, therefore, a low-salt diet might prevent it.

Retrolental fibroplasia (RLF) is a condition wherein blood vessels behind the lens of the eye become enlarged and thickened — often resulting in a total loss of sight. It's been known to affect up to 90 per cent of a given group of premature infants. It ranks high among the causes of blindness in all pre-school children and its specific cause is still unknown.

Specially Selected

Dr. Hepler told the annual meeting of the American Academy of Pediatrics that kittens were chosen for the tests because, of all easily available animals, the newborn cat has an "immature" eye closely akin to that of the premature human infant from the standpoint of physical development.

Feeding the kittens diets high in salt content, he said, caused optical defects closely resembling those of human infants suffering from RLF.

Following the kitten tests, he declared, diets "extremely" low in salt were fed 27 premature infants in the "acute" stage of the disease — and 24 of them achieved "perfectly normal vision."

But the doctor stressed that the human cases were especially selected ones, who had the ailment at a stage which would not ordinarily be diagnosed in general practice.

Still No Cure

"The point is," he told a reporter, "that these studies suggest a possible means of prevention of the condition for a condition already established."

He said this concept was strengthened by a finding that RLF was almost universal among a group of premature infants whose diet was "loaded" with salt, but was rarely seen among a group of similarly-sized infants who were fed a low-salt diet.

The physician said "many" of the present food formulas for babies are high in salt content.

He added that breast milk can vary in salt content from "very low to very high."

He also said there is some suggestive evidence that excessive use of oxygen and of blood transfusions in premature babies might tend to produce RLF and be recommended caution along those lines among pediatricians.

Hepler said he stated his research while on the staff of the University of Chicago School of Medicine.

One of the purposes of early automobile clubs was to overcome antagonism of livery stable operators who frequently barred "horseless carriages" from their premises.

Scotching A Bogey

A college sophomore recently asked his father in all seriousness what he thought about 60 families owning 90 per cent of the wealth of this country. The father said, "I think you have been getting a lot of misinformation."

For years politicians, labor agitators and left-wingers have used large corporations and the capitalistic system as the basis of attack to gain publicity. You never hear them mention the fact that there are over 4,000,000 business enterprises in the United States of which over 97.10 are classified as "small business." Small business accounts for 45 per cent of the total employment of all business enterprises.

How many people know that more than 3,000 meat packers are in this "small business" classification? Look around your own community and it's a safe bet you will find a meat packing plant within a radius of a few miles. It buys and sells its products in competition with the largest meat packers.

Among the largest property owners in the nation are farmers and ranchers. Their land and buildings have a total value of $55,000,000,000. Meat is the biggest cash crop of the farmer. People in the United States have more and better prepared meat products, as well as all other kinds of food, than any other people. They get their food cheaper and when they want it because it isn't controlled by 60 families or 600 families or by the government. It is sold in a free competitive market which offers incentive to produce at a reasonable profit.

Why don't our schools and colleges and politicians present some of these facts which are available for all who care to find them? Why don't they try to build pride in our millions of small businesses and millions of farms instead of undermining confidence and belittling the record of American enterprise?

It's time to call the bluff of those who sell our American system short. They have no substitute to offer that even begins to equal it.

The Distaff Side

We might as well face it now, men. We've fought a good fight but it's been apparent to many of us for some time that our fight was a losing one. Thing to do now is to face up to the facts and admit it, while there's still a chance of arranging a peace on some kind of honorable terms.

The cold facts, right out of the Census Bureau are these, simply these: we're outnumbered. Have been since 1950. And we're getting more outnumbered all the time.

Beginning two years ago, the Census Bureau reports, American women for the first time outnumbered the men. At that time their forces numbered 1,430,000 more than ours.

For one thing the women have been slipping in recruits from other places. How they managed to swipe an idea like that from us, is a mystery. Because for years and years we were the ones who were slipping in most of the recruits.

But along about 1930 there was a big SNAFU somewhere along the line and the women began getting the edge on us. By 1936 there were only two-thirds as many male immigrants coming into the country as there was female.

If that was all, it wouldn't be so bad. But it's not all. The fact is a lot of our guys went over the hill. Deserted. They just threw down their stuff and ran like dogs, and somebody ought to have to answer for that.

During the 1930's, when the going was tough, about twice as many men were going out of the country as women. Then somebody apparently got on the ball, and cut down on some of our AWOLs.

But even as late as 1950 a lot of our guys were still taking off. In the five years ending then, 13,000 more men than women left the country.

But the women sure have been missing one good bet all along. And it's sort of hard to figure. Here they are, the ones who have the children, so you'd think naturally they'd have more girls than boys. But it's just the other way around. Regular as rain, every year for a long time, there have been 1055 boy babies born for every 1000 girl babies. There must be some kind of a trick there somewhere. That's just not like a woman.

On the other hand, men don't seem to be able to stand up under the strain of the battle as well as women. Instead of putting their minds on the fight all the time, they worry a lot about business and get heart trouble. They also get too fat, but on the rations you get these days it's pretty hard to see how.

Anyway women seem to live longer, and so it looks like when you take all these things into consideration the best thing for us to do is just to give up now. No use trying to be a bunch of heroes. What does it get you, anyhow?

Our National Wealth— Is It Increasing?

There is more on a subject that should be understood by more readers in order to intelligently vote. The question is whether our national wealth is increasing. The article is written by William Chamberlain and was published recently in the Commercial and Financial Chronicle.

It is in its failure to find and establish a method for reflecting in accounts, expressly enacted or deliberately calculated changes in the standard unit of value, that our system of accounting plays its fatal role. By this failure a mechanism devised to faithfully record the facts has become accessory to truth respecting business transactions and deceit. It repudiates fact and records a fiction. For the purpose of ascertaining profit and loss or capital gain it demands that cost entered in terms of an expressly abandoned unit be compared with sales prices received in terms of a unit expressly decreed to be of 40 per cent less dimension than that abandoned. In a word in respect to gains, profits, return, and essential reserves it demands the important segment of the country's business be carried on in a faulty land of self-deception and make-believe.

Under our accepted and applied methods of accounting that which is considered to matter is not the name of the unit of value and medium of exchange remain unaltered. The substance of the unit, even though diminished by express act of government, is ignored. Thus if one dollar of the new and lesser unit are received than were paid in the old and greater unit a profit must be recorded and taxes paid on that recorded profit. Dividends are paid on that recorded profit. The surplus is distributed from the surplus that created and the worth of the business is deemed to have been increased by that retained. Yet it is quite possible that in terms of real value the transaction has resulted in no profit whatever or even in loss.

This is not the accounting of truth and reason but of falsehood and folly. It represents a triumph of form over substance. It is a record of reason by unreason. It constitutes refusal to recognize and record a fact of supreme importance, a change in the unit of measurement. As I have pointed out, in our own case the refusal extends to an expressly enacted change reducing the unit by 40 per cent of its former dimension.

By this refusal false pretense is clothed in the labors of truth, the masses deceived, and governments aided in perpetrating the basest of frauds upon the innocent and unsuspecting. In its practice both peoples and individuals are led to consume and dissipate the substance under a false facade of profit and prosperity. Under that false facade the American people are today being led to the unwarranted waste and consumption of the nation's wealth and resources. From the standpoint of the people as a whole this constitutes the very essence and evil of paper money inflation.

Refusal to recognize in our accounting the truth respecting the change in the standard unit of value is justified by the existence of difficulties apprehended in its application. Will this justification be considered valid should the dollar shrink to 10 per cent of its former purchasing power or 5 per cent? If now is the time when it is supposed to be a point in accounting within which false pretense is permissible, and a limit beyond which it must not go?

Do you shrink from the charge I have made and deem it overdrawn? If so I suggest for your examination those historical records in which are portrayed the fiscal follies and consequent political and social disasters of people of yesterday. But it is unnecessary to go so far afield. An examination of the record of our own times provides ample proof.

Reflect upon the nature of earnings accounts computed without adequate charge to operations for replacement of that worn out or become obsolete in service; of surplus accounts swollen upon paper in defiance of the truth as manifest in physical plant and established price levels; of "excess profits" taxes assessed and levied upon "excess profits" which exist only upon paper and then only because investment is entered in terms of one unit and selling price and return in terms of another. And what is to be said of "profits" arising from the sale of merchandise at prices which, after cost, expenses and taxes, fail to yield sufficient funds for the replacement of similar merchandise in stock; and of cash dividends declared and paid while management is under the necessity of pleading with shareholders to supply it with additional working capital?

And what is to be said in support of the practice of regulatory bodies which, while calculating a substantial portion of a utilities rate base in terms of a one hundred cent dollar (original cost), demand that it accept payment in the allowable 5 per cent return in 80 cent dollars?

Is there not ground for grave apprehension in these practices which flout reason and fact as though both were non-existent? (to be continued)

Johnny, who remained for church after Sunday school, was asked to play chess with the boys. He was told that the preacher's text was when he got home. Johnny reported the text as, "Many are called, but few are chosen." What the preacher said was, "Many are called but few are chosen."

National Whirligig... Adlai Could Have Kept Truman From Leading Demo Drive

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON — As the presidential campaign enters its final week, the decisive factor may be the popular reaction to the relationship between Governor Stevenson and Harry S. Truman. Never in American political history has an outboard President become such a controversial figure. In blunt words, does the Democratic nominee approve the shoddy tactics and language which has been employed by the man he hopes to succeed, especially his inaction in respect to racial and religious issues that were supposed to have been banned from American politics after the disastrous Hoover-Smith struggle in 1928?

And, if elected, will Stevenson's sense of gratitude to Truman lead him to uphold and to press the Truman program of domestic and foreign issues on the next Congress? Even Stevenson regards it as a deplorable development. Despite far more important problems in the presidential struggle, "Trumanism" is now the principal issue.

TRUMAN SPECTACLE — Almost every survey of American opinion, both public and private polls, reflects a deep and natural disgust with the Truman spectacle especially among the women and independents, who have been attracted to Stevenson's winning personality, and by the fact that, in his political background and in his speaker, he is a delightful departure from Trumanism. This politically important element of the electorate was favorably impressed when Stevenson, beginning with his acceptance address at the Chicago convention, tried to disassociate himself from the Pendergast politician in the White House. But they have become disillusioned, according to reliable reports, at the Democratic candidate's slow but sure embrace of Harry.

The Truman-Stevenson flirtation, so many independents seem to think, is far worse than the Eisenhower-Taft reconciliation. Stevenson could have conferred with Truman, whom he has not met since the Chicago Convention, and arranged for a schedule o'clock shadow. After all, Stevenson is now the ruler of the Democratic Party.

Truman is a has-been. He did not dare to seek renomination and re-election. TOO LATE — As a matter of fact, the original Stevensonian program was for Truman to have only minor part in the 1952 play. He was supposed to make about a dozen speeches on radio and television in the closing weeks. He was to permit the Illinois Governor to impress his attractive personality on the electorate. It was to be a high-class campaign between Ike and Adlai, instead of a Truman descent to a level which offends so many original Stevenson supporters.

It would be asking too much of Stevenson, politics being what it is, for him to repudiate Truman's offenses against ordinary decency codes. But there always was a way by which he could have kept the Missouri in the White House, discharging his presidential obligations, instead of going on the stump.

DEMOCRATS ARE BROKE — The Democrats, according to National Chairman Mitchell, Stevenson's hand picked and anti-White House selection, are broke. Personal and political dislike of Truman has siphoned the pockets of wealthy men like Bernard M. Baruch, Jesse H. Jones and many other Democratic tycoons. As a result, several Stevenson fireside chats have been financed by passing the hat at the last moment.

Despite this political poverty, Stevenson and Mitchell have okayed a series of Truman whistle stops that will run up a bill of at least $200,000 on the Democratic treasury and on the taxpayers. That is the amount of money which Truman and his White House entourage, in violation of Hatch Act restrictions on political expenditures, are donating to Stevenson's campaign.

Bid For A Smile

A wedding old woman accused one of the contractor workmen of having reverted to drink because "with her own eyes" she had seen his wheelchair standing outside the tavern. The accused man made no verbal defense but that evening he placed his wheelchair outside her door and left it there all night.

Upon her return home from the park, little Alice greeted her mother enthusiastically confiding the emotions she had experienced as she wound round the curves of the roller coaster. Another—Were you frightened, dear? Little Alice—No, I wasn't frightened. But when I went round those awful turns so fast I felt just as if I had freckles on my stomach.

A country minister was driving a spirited horse through a local doctor and offered him a lift. Ten minutes later the horse bolted, upset the carriage and spilled them both. The doctor rose to his feet and turned angrily toward the clergyman. Doctor—What do you mean by inviting me to ride behind such an animal?

Minister—Well, it was luck that this time there was no bones broken, but I always like to have a doctor with me when I drive that horse.

A young man whose father had been haunted was faced with a life insurance proposal form. After the usual questions inquiring about her health, the agent asked her to sign for the cause of death of his parent. He put: "Mother died of pneumonia, father was taking pills in a political function, when the platform gave way."

Bronislaw Malinowski says, "I once talked to an old cannibal who, hearing of the Great War, was raging, then quiet, then weeping. He said that European war was most curious to know how European managed to eat such enormous quantities of human flesh. When I told him that European did not eat their slain foes, he looked at me in shocked horror and asked what sort of barbarians we were, to kill without any real object."

That is the amount of money which Truman and his White House entourage, in violation of Hatch Act restrictions on political expenditures, are donating to Stevenson's campaign.

TRUMAN FOR HIMSELF — It is quite obvious that, if Stevenson were the strong and decisive personality he is proclaimed to be, he could have persuaded Truman to stay out of the 1952 political picture. Truman will do anything to achieve personal vindication by a Democratic triumph next month. He is campaigning for himself rather than for Stevenson.

Wage Enough... HST Guaranteed Miners Raise In Agreement With John Lewis

By WESTBROOK PEGLER (Copyright, 1952, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The merits of the dispute need not be considered in this discussion of the decision of the Wage Stabilization Board to reduce the pay in the coal mines from the goal figure of $1.90 a day, which John L. Lewis "negotiated" with the industry, to $1.50 which was firmly established by the board at the insistence of the members representing the "public."

The most important point is that the White House, a bureau denoting the office of the President of the United States, made a secret deal with Lewis whereby Truman's administration undertook to guarantee the $1.90 in return for an endorsement of Adlai Stevenson by Lewis in the role of political spokesman for the miners.

Lewis came through but Truman could not deliver. He was thwarted by the "public" members of the board. Of course, Lewis is not the political spokesman of his subjects and many of them hate him and would vote against any candidate whom he endorsed on the plausible assumption that such a candidate must be a ven-

LOOKING SIDWAYS

By WHITNEY BOLTON

There is no particular point to be made (like Little Joe, Fighter from Decatur, or even just plain sense) today, but I have every intention of doing a few kind words about Miss Margot Fonteyn, a British prima ballerina assoluta, a lady I have never met and who, so far as I know, needs what I have to say the way she needs measles.

But that's how it is going to be and if you are not in a ballet mood you might just as well move over to another man's switch of prose. What happened was that I was sitting in a small Italian restaurant minding my business and my new overcoat when a couple came in and it didn't take a stretch of deduction to figure her for a ballet dancer. She had the walk, the look, she wore that perfume I once told you about, and she had her little black cotton drawing bag in which she carried a bunch of eight-to-five, reposed her ballet slippers. The fellow looked like a young doctor or lawyer, but it didn't matter. They ordered a saucer of gibson and while dashing this off, she turned and asked if I would please share one of two ashtrays with them. That wasn't a tall order to handle and one word led to another and we began talking, the three a hour ballet. When the chance came I let it be plain that I knew nothing much of technique and other mysteries of the art but that Miss Fonteyn was my notion of the greatest ballerina within memory, which included the sainted Pavlova. The girl said there was no argument, and then this little fellow, the doctor-lawyer, went to work with the words.

"I saw her do things believed impossible in ballet," he said with obvious awe. "After that first Sadler's Wells opening at the Met I saw ballerinas sitting around 75th Street tea room tables in utter silence and shaking their heads in turned disapproval. They accomplished positions and held them without a trace of motion, positions that had defied every dancer I know. Such as the motionless, quite long stance on one toe while being passed from the other. Let me tell you of the four in 'The Sleeping Beauty.' Nothing moved. Not even the edge of her tou-tou. Not a quiver. Yet for appreciable time she was alone, unsupported on one toe with hands outstretched. Let anyone try that and not have something in motion, a tremble, a quiver, something."

But that is tremendous skill, artistic. There is another side I saw that seems more important. There was a party for her here in New York. Three great ballerinas came early, each found a suitable big chair and each set up her own court, magnificent and haughty, and their adorer sat at their feet. And, later, she came in. No jewels, a blue serge jumper, hair combed back, low voice. She stepped in and sat on the wall. The astonished hostess finally found her. She bowed in deep reverence to each of three queens. Then she went and sat on a small sofa and talked to a boy from the corps de ballet. Not a principal, not a personality or celebrity. A kid. She wanted to know rehearsal customs in this country. They talked for an hour—but at the end of that hour there were three vanquished, lonely queens of ballet occupying their carefully selected thrones and, on the floor in rapt silence, the entire party sitting before this simple, unadorned, quiet-voiced girl. She had no postures, no force, no color. She talked to this boy as though no one else were in the room. And she talked only about her work, its rigors, its demands and its joyous rewards of a job well done. I have never in my life seen a more genuinely simple and honest person. Here was greatness of soul in the way she talked and sat on a small sofa and talked to a boy from the corps de ballet. Not a principal, not a personality or celebrity. A kid. Here was greatness of soul in the way she talked and sat on a small sofa and talked to a boy from the corps de ballet. Not a principal, not a personality or celebrity. A kid. She wanted to know rehearsal customs in this country. They talked for an hour—but at the end of that hour there were three vanquished, lonely queens of ballet occupying their carefully selected thrones and, on the floor in rapt silence, the entire party sitting before this simple, unadorned, quiet-voiced girl. She had no postures, no force, no color. She talked to this boy as though no one else were in the room. And she talked only about her work, its rigors, its demands and its joyous rewards of a job well done. I have never in my life seen a more genuinely simple and honest person. Many Texans Fear Victory By GOP Means Depression

Editor's note: How important in the presidential election is the "depression factor" — the Democrats' claim that a GOP victory will bring back hard times? Here is the answer, as developed by the Associated Press survey of Texans' political thinking in mid-October.

By The Associated Press

There is a fear among many Texas voters that a depression will follow if the Republicans win the Nov. 4 election.

This thinking is a factor among many voter groups but is strongest on the farms and among the small-income people where memories of hard times are the bitterest.

That the "depression talk" factor carries a lot of weight was apparent in the Associated Press survey of Texans' political thinking in mid-October. Survey forms from rural counties often referred to the "Hoover Days" of the early 1930's and a fear they might return.

One coastal county editor reported his survey indicated Democrat Adlai Stevenson will carry his county. Here's the way he summed up voter feelings:

"The general agricultural prosperity, plus deep rooted Democratic feeling, outweighs the swing to Ike. Sentiment is with Eisenhower but farmers have voted Democratic for generations and still think of Republican and depression as the same word."

Both Handicapped

Fear of a depression is an inherited handicap which, presumably would have to be borne by any GOP standard-bearer. Similarly, the survey indicated Stevenson has an inherited handicap — the charges of corruption, waste, and mismanagement against the Truman administration. The survey showed many Texans cite "Trumanism" as their reason for supporting Eisenhower.

Out in the Big Bend country, a county-seat editor estimated Stevenson will carry his county by a 4 to 4 margin. He based this on extensive personal contacts with the people in his sparsely-settled county.

"There is almost no open and avowed support for Stevenson," he reported. "But there are a good many folks who 'harp still on the 'Republican depressions' of 1931-1932 and have a sincere belief that the political party has more to do with our prosperity than economic forces and trends."

Rayburn Cites Feeling

House Speaker Sam Rayburn has used this feeling to advantage, as did Stevenson himself in his Texas campaign speeches. Both spoke of "Hoover beet" — jackrabbits eaten in the hungry days of the depression. Both recited the low prices of cotton, wheat and corn during the 1930's.

"I don't want to drag a cotton sack all fall, then wear the sack for drawers this winter," one voter told the Texarkana Gazette, which concluded 70 per cent of Bowie County ballots would be marked for Stevenson.

Although Eisenhower has offered a farm price support program, "Farmers still suspect the GOP would eliminate many rural benefits and price supports," a North Central Texas daily reported. Its county survey showed a 65 per cent preference for the Illinois governor.

Farm Stands Talked

A Houston Post reporter who button-holed people in seven counties for the survey reported that "most of those who said they were going to vote Democratic referred to Hoover and the depression."

"Surprisingly enough," he added, "the reporter found that most farmers knew that the Democrats had promised 90 per cent farm parity support, but few knew that Ike had come out for 100 per cent support."

"Among the small-income groups in the cities, depression talk is effective."

"A great many people do not care where 'prosperity' comes from," reported a Northeast Texas county-seat editor. "War and deficit spending seem remote as evils as long as money circulates. Santa Claus is hard to beat."

Labor For Stevenson

Between Dallas and Fort Worth is Grand Prairie, one of the most predominantly union-labor communities in Texas. United Auto Workers (CIO) locals have more than 9,000 members at the Chance-Vought and Temco aircraft plants there — in a city of about 20,000 persons. UAW-CIO officials say 85 per cent of the union members favor Stevenson. The UAW-CIO officials were on the reception committee which met Stevenson when the Demo-

Late Bronze Age Found In Ireland

(AP)—What may prove to be the largest concentration of late bronze age (500 B. C.) lake dwellings in Europe outside Switzerland has been uncovered at Lough Gara, County Roscommon, Ireland.

So far, 22 of these crannogs, or artificial islands where early men made their homes for safety, have been found. Also brought to light are bronze rings, tools and pots.

The first discovery was made last summer, when the Irish government's scheme for draining Lough Gara had been under way for 10 months. A wooden dugout canoe was found in the River Boyle near the lake outlet. A perforated stone sinker for fishing was also found.

Arizona Has Biggest U. S. Copper Mine

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—The biggest underground copper mine in the U. S. is being sunk into the desert slopes overlooking San Pedro Valley, 50 miles northeast of here.

Only Anaconda's underground workings at Chiquicamata, Chile, will be greater anywhere in the world.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has granted the San Manuel Copper Corp. the biggest business loan the government agency has ever made — $4 million dollars. The money, along with private capital raising the total to 114 million dollars, will be used to bring an estimated 800 million tons of ore valued at two billion dollars to the surface.

The ore is expected to boost the nation's defense-needed copper output by eight per cent and increase production of molybdenum by 16 per cent.

It will take the new San Manuel Mine four to five years to get into full production. During that time 1800 houses will go up for the men who will build the mine. A new town that will eventually have a population of 7,500 will appear on the barren desert.

A crushing mill will be constructed containing about 16 pounds of 000 tons of ore a day, with each ton containing about 16 pounds of copper. A smaller mill will go up to reduce the concentrate to almost pure copper and molybdenum. The actual refining will be done in the East. The government is expected to buy a large part of the output.

A red hill that stands out on the drab desert like a beacon light marks the vast ore deposit. From the hill area the mining company expects to take 140 million pounds of copper and six million pounds of molybdenum a year for the next 50 years.
