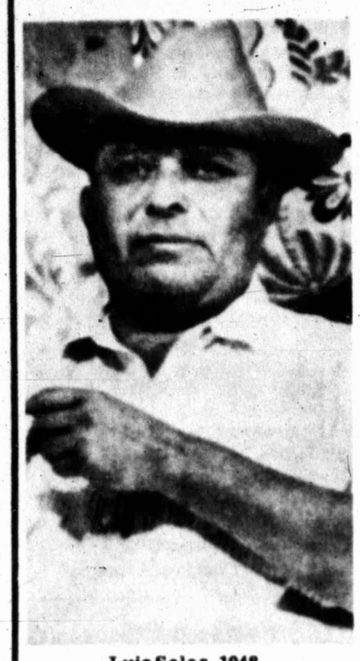
Ex-Parr aide unveils fraud in LBJ win



Luis Salas, 1948

By Jim Mangan

ALICE, Tex. (AP) — A former Texas voting official seeking "peace of mind" says he certified enough fictitious ballots to steal an election 29 years ago and launch Lyndon Johnson on a path that led to the presidency.

The statement comes from Luis Salas, who was the election judge for Jim Wells County's notorious Box 13, which produced just enough votes in the 1948 Texas Democratic primary runoff to give Johnson nomination, then tantamount to election, to the U. S. Senate.

"Johnson did not win that election; it was stolen for him. And I know exactly how it was done," said Salas, now a lean, white-haired man of 76; then a swarthy 210-pound political henchman with absolute say over vote counts in his South Texas precinct.

The controversy over that election has been a subject of tantalizing conjecture for nearly three decades, ever since U.S. Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black abruptly halted an investigation, but the principals have been silent. George B. Parr, the South Texas political boss whom Salas served for a decade, shot himself to death in June 1975. Johnson is dead and so is his opponent. Salas is among few living persons with direct knowledge of the election.

Johnson's widow, Lady Bird, was told of Salas' statements and said through a spokeswoman that "she knows no more about the details of the 1948 election other than that charges were made at the time, carried through several courts and finally to a justice at the Supreme Court."

The Associated Press interviewed Salas frequently during the past three years, seeking answers to questions that, save for rumors, were left unanswered. Only recently did Salas agree to tell his full version of what happened. In his soft Spanish accent, Salas said he decided to break his silence in quest of "peace of mind and to reveal to the people the corruption of politics."

Salas says now that he lied during an aborted investigation of the election in 1948, when he testified that the vote count was proper and aboveboard.

He told The AP that Parr ordered that 200-odd votes be added to Johnson's total from Box 13. Salas said he saw the fraudulent votes added in alphabetical order and then certified them as authentic on orders from Parr.

The final statewide count gave Johnson an 87-vote margin in a total tally approaching 1 million and earned him the tongue-in-cheek nickname, "Landslide Lyndon."

Here is how Box 13 generated the haze of suspicion Johnson never quite dispelled.

In the Texas of the 1940s, the Democratic nominee was the sure winner in any statewide general election. Any battles were fought in the party, and if they had to be settled in an election, it was the primary that counted.

Texas Democrats were split in 1948. Johnson, then 39, was a brash, 6-foot-3 congressman, representing "new" Democrats in his bid for the U.S. Senate. His opponent was Coke R. Stevenson — 60 years old, six feet tall, three times Texas governor, never beaten and the candidate of the "old" wing of the party.

In the July primary, Stevenson polled 477,077 votes to 405,617 for Johnson. But a third candidate, George Petty, siphoned off enough votes to deny Stevenson a majority. That forced a runoff between Stevenson and Johnson, set for Aug. 28, 1948.

Stevenson, known as "Calculating Coke," didn't stay in Texas to campaign during the next month, but went to Washington, looking, it was said, for a place to live after the general election.

Johnson spent the month campaigning intensely.

One of the places Johnson went stumping was the hot, flat, brush country of South Texas, to George B. Parr country, where the Mexican-American vote seemed always to come in a bloc.

Parr was powerful not only in School district's financial plight may raise taxes

By JIM STEINBERG

City taxpayers — some of whom have been clutching their calculators in a state of anxiety since learning of the 1977 tax reevaluation — can be sure of one thing: although the city may lower its taxes by 2 per cent, by the time the year is over, nearly everybody will be paying more.

The magnitude of the increase is hard to gauge at this point, although it may all be decided Aug. 9 when Midland Independent School District board members tackle a teachers' request for a 25 per cent pay increase.

With considerable fanfare, Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. said during a press conference July 22 that the proposed 1977-78 city budget would register a 2 per cent decrease for taxpayers.

That announcement appeared to make good repeated claims by city officials that the council was committed to lowering the city tax rate to a level that would generate the same income this year as last. It could be seen as a move to quell charges by some that the city had intended to use the reevaluation as a "back-door" way to raise taxes.

The equivalent rate to last year's $1.14 per $100 assessed property valuation calculated to be 66.2 cents, but after a budget study session earlier this month, the council agreed to set the rate at 65 cents. That move accounted for the slight decrease in tax rates.

ARCO Juneau eases to berth, prepares for oil

VALDEZ, Alaska (AP) — Heavy with ballast that will soon be replaced by Alaskan crude oil, the 120,000-ton tanker ARCO Juneau was eased to her berth at this pipeline terminal Saturday by a gaggle of tugboats.

The arrival of the supertanker brought the flow of oil from Alaska's Prudhoe Bay field a step closer to delivery to markets in the Lower 48.

The 95-foot Coast Guard cutter Bitt stood off about 300 yards from the 883-foot Juneau as the ship was secured to its loading berth at the $1-billion trans-Alaska pipeline terminal across the harbor from the city of Valdez.

The curious, who approached by boat to catch a glimpse through the rain and fog, were shooed away by the men of the Bitt if they got too close.

The Juneau entered the harbor at 7 a.m., but a blanket of fog and drizzle obscured it from the shoreline. The tanker was just a blip on the radar screen of Coast Guardsmen guiding it in.

Then, with tugs controlling its movements, the Juneau was eased in sideways to the loading dock, where the big ship will be linked by feeder lines to the oil storage tanks at the marine terminal.

The first oil to travel the length of the 800-mile pipeline arrived Thursday.

Draining the Juneau of ballast will take about 24 hours, according to Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. officials. Then the process of flooding the Juneau's tanks with oil will begin.

Henry Mowell, Alyeska vice president for operations, said, "We're going to take it slow and easy. We're going to take it one step at a time, so our people can get the experience they will need for the ships to come."

The loading process normally takes about a day, but Alyeska says the first one may take a little longer.

William J. Darch, Alyeska president, said only about 800,000 barrels of crude will be loaded aboard the Juneau for its first payload voyage with Alaska crude, a trip that will take the ship south to Atlantic Richfield Co.'s Cherry Point refinery near Bellingham, Wash. The Juneau can handle a load of 830,000 barrels.

The tanker is expected to pull into Cherry Point Aug. 7.

Alyeska, the consortium of eight oil companies that built the pipeline, reported that crude oil was flowing into the storage tanks Saturday at a rate of about 430,000 barrels a day. Alyeska said that by midmorning Saturday there were 710,000 barrels of oil in the terminal.

Alaskan oil tariffs filed by companies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oil companies began filing reduced tariffs with the Interstate Commerce Commission on Saturday in preparation for shipping the first tanker loads of oil brought through the Alaska pipeline.

"It looks like all systems are go for the trans-Alaska oil," said Daniel O'Neal, chairman of the ICC.

"The oil is in Valdez, ready to be loaded on tankers, the companies are cooperating with ICC in filing tariffs, and the last legal barrier to the shipment of north slope oil to the lower 48 states has aparently been cleared."

Town's ghost still likes to haunt rival

SHAFTER LAKE — The ghost of Shafter Lake is still flinging barbs at its old rival.

"What city on earth has lights that rival the noonday sun?" asks the old bitterweed of a ghost.

"Andrews."

The ghost likes to answer his own queries.

He poses another one.

"What is the sum of all things worth having in West Texas?"

The answer, of course, is "Andrews."

The old ghost is "speaking" words printed in ink 67 years ago, when the two Andrews County settlements were battling for the county seat of Andrews County.

Shafter Lake City lost. Back then, in 1910, Shafter was a lakeside ranching village of 500 people.

Andrews, though it had no comparable lake, was about the same.

Today, Shafter City is no more.

About all that's left is an aging cemetery and a shallow, salty but clear lake—that's fit for little more than looking at. It has lots of sand.

Andrews is a city of about 10,000 people, and their only use for brine water is pumping it into oil wells.

And they don't need any from Shafter Lake, either.

Andrews thrives on drilling activity, oil production and associated businesses, farming and ranching, and other industries.

Shafter City doesn't.

But it almost did.

And the ghost, who sounds about as satirical as ol' Ambrose Bierce himself, is merely recalling the past.

His barbs come from the defunct and partisan Shafter Lake Herald, which was the voice of the Shafter Lake campaign committee.

Its spitting-back rival was the Andrews Progress Club.

And the two vested interests were bitterly exchanging words to influence votes in leading up to the July.

Basin group vows energy fight

"The time for compromise is over," the head of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association said late Friday night following a day-long meeting of the association's executive committee.

Charles D. Fraser, president of the association, said Saturday morning the committee had reached a decision to make an all-out effort, with no compromise on any front, to defeat President Carter's energy program.

The committee adopted a three-point plan that will be hand delivered Monday to each member of the Texas and New Mexico delegations in the United States Senate and the United States House of Representatives.

"For the last six months, the Permian Basin Petroleum Association and its members, along with other associations across the nation, have worked diligently with members of Congress and the Carter Administration trying to develop viable energy legislation," Fraser said.

"We now realize our efforts have been frustrated completely and that Congress is moving at breakneck speed toward enactment of legislation that will suppress the development of domestic oil and gas supplies and worsen our already tragic dependence on foreign countries for energy, the life blood of our economy," Fraser said.

Fraser said the executive committee Friday night voted unanimously to:

1. Advise our elected representatives that the Carter energy bill, now evolving in Congress, will, if enacted, doom our nation to ever increasing energy deficiencies, worsen already unacceptable security risks, and vitiate the economic system under which the American citizen has enjoyed unparalled prosperity;

2. Ask our elected representatives to utilize every means at their disposal in an all-out effort to defeat the Carter legislative package, in total;

3. Urge the Independent Petroleum Association of America, and all other cooperating petroleum associations across the nation, to join us in a broad scale attack on the Carter plan.

"Our efforts to date, have been devoted to modifying the Carter energy plan. We have worked in a spirit of cooperation and mutual concern about this nation's energy problems.

Fraser said that spirit prevailed in recommendations made in a letter to Dr. James Schlesinger, Carter's top energy adviser, and in subsequent formal testimony, and private conversations with members of Congress and the Administration.

"In all of those moves we have attempted to depict weaknesses and errors in the proposed legislation. Sincere efforts were made to obtain corrective and productive modifications. To date, we have failed to achieve, and see no hope for, any improvement in the administration's dogmatic position on wellhead price controls, illusory drilling incentives, a tax and rebate shell game, and other areas," he said.

"We have been almost totally frustrated by the combined unwise efforts of the Carter Administration and anti-industry members of Congress, even though by the narrowest of voting margins at times," Fraser added.

An eight-member task force, headed by Fraser, will go to Washington Monday and place the resolution in the hands of each member of the Texas and New Mexico delegations.

The Permian Basin Petroleum Association already has contacted 16 oil industry organizations throughout the United States and stated their plans for the all-out fight. Each of the organizations said they would back the PBPA in the all-out battle.

Ex-Parr aide unveils vote fraud in LBJ win

Jim Wells County. "He had several others — Duval, Nueces, Jim Hogg, Starr, Webb. All those counties, they voted the way Parr wanted," Salas said.

The power had passed to Parr from his father, Archie, a state senator who sided with Mexican Americans in a 1912 battle with Anglos over political control in Duval County. The Mexican Americans didn't forget; and, said Salas, they delivered their votes on demand for Parr.

Some time after the election, Parr expounded on how this worked:

"We pass the word along who are our friends. Voting comes from long training. We teach them that it is their duty to vote in every election. It takes a long time, but if you teach them for a long time they will vote, and Latin Americans are inclined to vote as a bloc because of race and religion. They stick together for self-preservation. They do what we ask only to the extent it is satisfactory to them. But we never ask them to do anything that is not calculated to be beneficial to them."

Parr was a usually genial, nonsmoking, nondrinking man who stood out in this little town because of his practice of wearing business suits. He accumulated wealth from oil, participated in most major business ventures in the area and never sought high political office for himself. He did serve once as county judge and another time as sheriff, but his main interest was dispensing power. He was the patron, the "Duke of Duval."

Salas said he was Parr's right-hand man in Jim Wells County from 1940 to 1950. He said he quit then over Parr's failure to support a fellow Mexican American who had been charged with murder.

Salas, who retired in 1965 as a telegrapher for the Texas-Mexican Railroad, said that South Texas in the 1940s was Parr's empire.

"We had the law to ourselves there. It was a lawless son-of-a-bitch. We had iron control. If a man was opposed to us, we'd put him out of business. Parr was the Godfather. He had life or death control," said Salas.

"We could tell any election judge: 'Give us 80 per cent of the vote, the other guy 20 per cent.' We had it made in every election.

"I carried a gun all the time," said Salas, who once rode with Mexican revolutionary Pancho Villa. "Oh, I tell you, we had real power. Every year, every election year — 1942, 1944, 1946, 1948 — we used to buy poll taxes. I would go to the courthouse there, tell the county tax collector: 'Give me three, four books poll taxes.' That would be about a thousand poll taxes."

Until the practice was outlawed, a receipt for payment of the $1.75 per person poll tax had to be shown before a voter was permitted to cast a ballot. Salas said, "I would tell my assistant: 'Go to every house and give them the poll tax (receipt) free.'" He said Parr would later pay for all of them, telling him, "Don't worry about the money. I don't pay for it out of my own pocket."

The runoff election came on a Saturday. That night, Jim Wells County's vote was wired to the Texas Election Bureau, the unofficial tabulating agency: Johnson 1,786, Stevenson 769.

Votes trickled in from the rest of the state, and over the next few days the lead seesawed back and forth, the outcome uncertain. As the count neared completion, Stevenson had a slight lead.

Salas says Johnson's eventual victory, his first in a statewide race, was built on fraudulent votes, added after the polls closed Saturday.

Salas told The AP it was done this way:

"On the third day, Tuesday, there was a meeting in George Parr's office ... 10 miles from Alice. Parr, Lyndon Johnson, Ed Lloyd (a Jim Wells County Democratic executive committeeman), Bruce Ainsworth (an Alice city commissioner) and myself were there. Stevenson was in the lead with almost all the votes in.

"Lyndon Johnson said: 'If I can get 200 more votes, I've got it won.'

"Parr said to me in Spanish: 'We need to win this election. I want you to add those 200 votes.' I had already turned in my poll and tally sheets to Givens Parr, George's brother.

"I told Parr in Spanish: 'I don't give a damn if Johnson wins.'

"Parr then said: 'Well, for sure you're going to certify what we do.'

"I told him I would, because I didn't want anybody to think I'm not backing up my party. I said I would be with the party to the end. After Parr and I talked in Spanish, Parr told Johnson 200 votes would be added. When I left, Johnson knew we were going to take care of the situation."

Lloyd and Ainsworth, like Johnson and Parr, now are dead.

Salas said he saw two men add the names to the list of voters, about 9 o'clock at night, in the Adams Building in Alice. He said the two were just following orders and he would not identify them.

The AP interview then produced this exchange:

Q. When you told Parr you would certify the votes, he said he would get someone else to actually add the names?

A. Yeah. And I actually saw them do it. I was right there when they added the names.

George Parr, longtime political strongman, of Duval County, was involved in the fraud, Salas says. Parr, revealed here in a photo made in the early 1950s, committed suicide in 1975.

Q. Were all 200 names in the same handwriting?

A. Oh, yeah. They all came from the poll taxes, I mean, from the poll tax sheet.

Q. But some were dead?

A. No one was dead. They just didn't vote.

Q. So you voted them?

A. They voted them.

Q. You certified?

A. I certified. So did the Democratic County chairman. I kept my word to be loyal to my party.

Q. Had some of those names already voted?

A. No, they didn't vote in that election. They added 'em. They made a mistake of doing it alphabetically.

Q. They added them alphabetically, as though they had walked in to vote alphabetically?

A. Yeah, that's what I told George B., and he wouldn't listen to me. I said: 'Look at the A, you add 10 or 12 names on that letter. Whey don't you change it to the other, C or D or X, mix 'em up?' George said, 'That's all right.' George was stubborn. He would not listen to anybody. But it was stupid. They went to the poll tax list and got those names. For instance, on the A they got 10 or 12 names.

Q. People who had not voted?

A. That's right. They went on the B the same way, until they complete 200, and I told George, "That's wrong."

Q. While they were doing it you told him?

A. Yeah, and he said: "It's OK."

Q. They should have changed the handwriting?

A. How? Only two guys? How they going to change it? The lawyers spotted it right away, they sure did.

Salas said he remembers the first named added to the poll list was that of Mrs. Miguel Acero, followed by the name of Miguel Acero. "We also added Hector Cerda. He was against our party and we voted him for Johnson. Cerda was in Kingsville (about 25 miles away) on election day. Cerda was mad as hell."

Six days after the runoff, on Sept. 3, a second telegram to the election bureau changed Jim Wells County's vote: Johnson 1,988, Stevenson 770.

Johnson had gained 202 votes; Stevenson 1. They came from Box 13, the Mexican-American precinct in Alice, controlled by Luis Salas.

The next day, the official statewide vote canvass gave Johnson 494,191 and Stevenson 494,104. Box 13 gave Johnson the edge.

Stevenson protested, claiming the 202 Johnson votes from Box 13 were added after the polls closed. There was more than a touch of irony in the complaint. Salas said Stevenson himself had received one-sided votes from Parr's area of South Texas in his gubernatorial campaigns. "Mr. Stevenson was on our side then," Salas said. "I told him after Johnson was called the winner, 'You're mad this time because the votes didn't go your way as they did before.'"

Johnson lost no time in pointing this out. He made a speech, saying Stevenson "issued a statement inferring that the county's vote was for sale. If he had evidence to that effect in those years when he received the vote, it was his duty to present the evidence to a grand jury. If he has the evidence today, it is still his duty. I know that I did not buy anybody's vote."

Thirteen days after the runoff election, on Sept. 10, Stevenson went to Alice. His party included former Texas Ranger Frank Hamer, a respected and feared lawman whose exploits included a role in the 1934 ambush slaying of desperadoes Bonnie Parker and Clyde Barrow, and former FBI agent T. Kellis Dibrell. They demanded the Box 13 poll and tally lists. The poll list records names of individuals as they sign in to vote; the tally list gives the total votes cast.

B.F. "Tom" Donald, secretary of the Jim Wells County Democratic Executive Committee, produced a copy of the poll list, but, Dibrell said Donald snatched it away when Dibrell began to copy names from it. "We didn't have a court order or anything and legally there was nothing we could do about it," Dibrell said.

Dibrell told The AP recently that the brief look confirmed a suspicion that the last 202 names were in alphabetical order. "It stuck out like a sore thumb. Also, the last 202 names were made with the same colored ink, and in the same handwriting, whereas the earlier names in the poll list were written by different individuals and in different color inks," Dibrell said.

(Donald, reached at his home in Alice, said: "I'm old and retired. I don't want to talk about it. I hate to be rude, but I don't want to be bothered. If I gave an interview, what would you pay me?")

The chairman of the Jim Wells County Democratic Executive Committee in 1948 was Clarence Martens, now an oilman in Laredo, Tex. He told The AP his committee met after the election and routinely certified the results. "I did not actually see the poll and tally lists for the precincts. Once the total was certified by the committee, it was over as far as I was concerned. I heard rumors afterward, of course."

Stevenson decided against suing in state court. Dibrell said a judge supported by Parr would have presided. Also, time was short. Ballots for the November general election had to be printed in early October, and one name or the other had to be included.

Instead, Stevenson went to federal court in Fort Worth. On Sept. 14, Judge T. Whitfield Davidson signed a temporary restraining order forbidding certification of Johnson as the Democratic nominee.

On Sept. 21, Judge Davidson opened a hearing on his order with a surprise suggestion that both names be placed on the ballot. "In other words, let the people of Texas decide the winner, he suggested."

Stevenson agreed immediately. Johnson refused.

The hearing lasted two days, but none of the witnesses testified to the key allegation that the last 202 names on the Box 13 list were in alphabetical order. The judge ordered an on-the-spot investigation of voting in Jim Wells County.

When that inquiry began, on Sept. 27, reporters from around the country showed up in Alice. By then it was national news. That same day, in Washington, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black agreed to hear Johnson's petition to lift the injunction. Johnson's attorney was Abe Fortas, in later years a Johnson appointee to the high court.

Stevenson was in Alice that day; Johnson was on President Harry S. Truman's campaign train elsewhere in Texas. During a campaign stop in Temple, Tex., Truman brought Johnson to his side and publicly endorsed him as the next senator from Texas. Also on the train at San Antonio that day, according to Salas, were George B. Parr, who had received a presidential pardon from Truman in 1946 after serving nine months on an income tax conviction, and executive committeeman Lloyd.

Salas told The AP he was summoned the next day by Lloyd and told: "Luis, everything is all right. We talked to Truman on the train. Don't worry about the investigation."

At the hearing, Salas, as the election judge, was subpoenaed. He testified: "I went to see Mr. Donald on the night of Sept. 14. I borrowed his poll and tally lists. I wanted to

No charges to be returned in Alice

ALICE, Tex. (AP) — A Jim Wells County grand jury, looking into the Alice Police Department's alleged involvement with South Texas drug traffic, has told a state district court judge that it will not return any indictments.

But the panel told State District Court Judge Myron Johnson that it is still considering asking the state attorney general's office to assist in the case.

Judge Johnson granted the jurors' request for permission to reconvene on Aug. 19.

Alice Mayor Ren Reid, who has asked for the attorney general's help in the investigation, was among city officials who testified before the grand jury Friday.

Members of the city council and local law enforcement officials also testified.

The investigation was spurred by the arrest in San Antonio earlier this month of an Alice policeman on drug charges.

Cabinet pleasant surprise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six months into his term in office, President Carter says he has been "pleasantly surprised" by the quality of his Cabinet.

"There is not a weak person on it, and not a single one that I would want to change if I had the whole choice to do over again," he told a group of newspaper, radio and television executives Friday.

A transcript of the discussion was released by the White House on Saturday.

Rats likely to get the death penalty

DALLAS (AP) — Evidence is disappearing from a federal Drug Enforcement Agency evidence vault in the federal building here and it appears that the "criminals" responsible are going to get the death penalty.

The evidence is about 5,00 pounds of marijuana used in a recent marijuana smuggling conspiracy trial. Federal officials say that rats are eating the marijuana and an exterminator is being consulted.

"That's a million dollars worth of evidence being eaten by those rats," said Asst. U.S. Atty. Jay Ethington, who handled the prosecution of the persons charged in the marijuana smuggling conspiracy case.

Federal law requires that the marijuana not be destroyed until all appeals are exhausted.

Defiant Crystal City guards gas supply stations

By RICK SCOTT

CRYSTAL CITY, Tex (AP) — Crystal City's three natural gas supply stations were under constant police guard Saturday to prevent a threatened service cutoff by Lo-Vaca Gathering Co.

The guard was ordered Friday as the city council voted unanimously to defy an ultimatum from Lo-Vaca, the town's only natural gas supplier, that it either pay a $720,000 bill or face termination of service Aug. 26.

"We will not permit anybody — not even Gov. Dolph Briscoe's gendarmes — to come cut us off," declared Mayor Francisco Benavides.

The town of 8,000 residents has only eight policemen and Benavides did not explain how they would cover the gas supply stations. Police Chief Ramon Garza said, however, he would follow the order and would not need extra manpower.

Lo-Vaca, which supplies the city utility and its 2,000 gas customers, announced Wednesday in Austin it would terminate service Aug. 26 unless Crystal City pays $720,000 it owes the company.

"The city doesn't even have enough money to pay the finance charges on the bill," Mayor Benavides said Friday.

Lo-Vaca officials announced their ultimatum after negotiations between the company and the city over paying the bill fell through last week.

The council said it would not even consider negotiating again with Lo-Vaca until the cutoff threat is abandoned.

The city faced a similar threat in 1975, but court rulings and appeals prevented Lo-Vaca from terminating service until the Texas Supreme Court ruled recently the company had that power.

The $720,000 in back charges to the city is the result of a nearly two-year dispute between the town and company.

Mayor Benavides on Friday told the council the city must begin to look for alternate fuel supplies because it cannot pay the "astronomically high prices" of Lo-Vaca.

Benavides said he had been in Mexico during the week and had discussed with officials of the Mexican petroleum industry, PEMEX, the possibility of supplying Mexican gas to Crystal City.

"We know we will have to pay for any fuel we consume," said the mayor. "All we're asking is to pay a reasonable price for it."

"We know that this situation has made a lot of Gringos happy, especially the ones with hating minds. But who started this? Lo-Vaca did by raising the rates," the mayor said.

"Gas is a natural resource. The same as food. We must have it to live," he said.

Many Crystal City residents, however, do not seem concerned about the threat of a cutoff.

"It will never happen," said one man in a local cafe before the council meeting Friday.

"The gas company just can't do it. Think of the bad publicity all over the country."

The man pointed out that other cities, such as Del Rio and Governor Briscoe's hometown of Uvalde, also have refused to pay the higher gas price and have not been threatened with a cutoff.

But the other towns have collected the money and put it into escrow accounts to pay the company if they lost their cases in court.

Officials confiscate pill cache

More than 2,000 pills, believed to be an assortment of dangerous drugs, were confiscated Saturday afternoon in the residence of a west Midland man, a spokesman for the Midland County Sheriff's Office said.

The largest quantity of pills was found wrapped in a sheet and stored in a bedroom of a duplex located in the 3100 block of W. Storey Ave., sheriff's officials said.

Other caches of pills were found scattered around the duplex in various places, the spokesman said.

A 24-year-old man was taken into custody, deputies said, adding that an investigation is continuing.

Californians battle new blazes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two wind-driven brush fires that blackened nearly 6,000 acres in fire-ravaged California appeard near containment Saturday.

Fires raced through 5,500 acres near Corona, 40 miles southeast of Los Angeles, and through 350 acres near Newhall, 40 miles north of the city.

Nearly 1,500 firefighters in Corona — some of whom had helped fight a fire that destroyed 234 expensive Santa Barbara homes earlier this week — contained about 55 per cent of the three-day-old blaze. Full containment was not expected until Sunday, said U.S. Forest Service spokeswoman Debbie Gold.

The Newhall fire began when an oil tanker truck exploded after colliding with an 18-wheel cargo truck about 4 a.m. Saturday. Interstate 5 was closed until 10:30 a.m., with southbound traffic backed up for 5 miles in the early morning.

The driver of the cargo truck fractured four ribs and received a concussion, according to a hospital spokeswoman in Valencia. The other truck driver was not hurt.

About 250 firefighters fought the Newhall blaze, which broke out in an unpopulated area on Interstate 5 north of Lake Castaic.

Meanwhile, three U.S. Air Force planes each carrying 3,000 gallons of flame retardant joined firefighters Saturday in their struggle against a three-day-old blaze near Corona in Riverside County that has blackened more than 5,000 acres of brush in several nearby canyons.

About 150 persons in Mabey Canyon were forced to evacuate their new tract homes Friday when erratic winds fanned flames up to their backyards. The homes, located in a tract on the outskirts of a 30,000-resident community, ranged in price from $75,000 to $150,000.

A last-minute wind shift drove the fire away from the houses, none of which was reported burned. The only property damaged Friday was a camping trailer and a woodpile next to one of the tract homes.

On Thursday, the fire charred about 400 acres of citrus and avocado trees in the area.

City school district's financial plight may raise taxes anyway

board meeting, announced that it would drop its ad valorem tax rate from 31 cents to 22 cents. College President Al G. Langford said at that time that the 22 cent tax rate would bring in a slight increase in tax revenue. Independent calculations later showed that the 22 cent rate was 8 per cent above a 20.3 cent rate, which would have equalized revenues for 1977-78 with revenues received in 1976-77.

The evaluation for 1976-77 at 31 cents brought in $1,943,117 in revenue, according to figures released by the college May 25. Tax income for 1977-78 at 22 cents per $100 evaluation, with a reevaluation total of $960,551,790, is $2,113,200.

"In effect, we are bringing in the approximate same amount of money we brought in last year. We took approximately $50,000 in new construction out of that, and increased utilities and salary costs account for the slight increase ($170,083) in the total we brought in," said College President Al G. Langford.

The darkest clouds on the local ad valorem scene shroud the school board's budget.

Putting aside the teachers' request for a 25 per cent increase, total expenditures for maintenance and operation are $22,184,593 and estimated revenue is $21,988,072, leaving a $196,521 deficit.

"We have three choices," said Johnny Warren, school board president. "We can keep our tax rates exactly the same and pare some off the budget or use some of the reserve. We can go with Dr. Mailey (and the budget as it now stands) and raise the effective tax rate 2 to 2½ cents, or we can go more than that." (Dr. James H. Mailey is schools superintendent.)

To generate approximately the same amount of tax revenues as 1976-77, the tax rate for the schools has to be lowered from $1.62½ per $100 of assessed valuation to $1.13.

A 2 to 2½ cent increase in the rate would cover a 10.7 per cent salary increase recommended for teachers by Mailey.

A 15 per cent increase in teachers salaries would require a tax rate hike of 7.3 cents, according to Joe Dominey, member of the school board. And the 25 per cent pay increase would up the tax rates by approximately 8 to 9 cents.

Ex-Parr aide unveils vote fraud

compare his lists with mine. They tallied, the election was level."

"Where are those lists now, Mr. Salas?" a Stevenson lawyer asked.

"Well," Salas testified, "I put my lists and the ones I got from Mr. Donald in the glove compartment of my car. I went to a party and parked my car outside. Somebody stole them (the lists) while I was inside."

Salas told The AP, "That's what I said but I lied. I was just going along with my party. I was told by Ed Lloyd what to say."

The hearing ended abruptly two days later, on Sept. 29. Justice Black, in an order he dated himself in longhand, voided the temporary injunction against putting Johnson's name on the ballot. Black said "it would be a serious break with the past" for a federal court to determine an election contest.

Stevenson had lost; Johnson had won.

The Box 13 ballot box was opened in court just as the hearing was ended. Subsequently, the ballots were destroyed as prescribed by law and the poll and tally lists vanished.

Salas said he was convinced that if the investigation had been allowed to continue, the vote fraud would have been revealed.

Salas said he felt sorry for Stevenson. "He won that election, he sure did. But our machinery was too tough for him."

Shortly before his death in 1975, Stevenson told a reporter: "I remember that we have had for years the calculation that Box 13 deals only with 200 votes, but they actually stole 50,000 votes."

Stevenson said he felt the Johnson-Parr forces had called in the Mexican-American vote from San Antonio to El Paso, and south to Brownsville. A check of the voting records for this predominantly Mexican-American area did show Johnson doing dramatically better in the runoff election than in the primary.

For example, in Bexar County, where San Antonio is located, Stevenson received 23,471 votes in the primary, but lost nearly 8,000, reducing his total to 15,511, in the runoff. Johnson received 11,994 in the primary and increased his vote by nearly 4,000, to 15,610, in the runoff.

Eventually, Parr lost his power base, and federal investigators obtained an indictment on new income tax charges, related to money he allegedly received as political payoffs. In June 1975 he shot himself to death with a pistol in a Jim Wells County field at the age of 74.

The 1948 chairman of the Texas Democratic Executive Committee was Robert W. Calvert, now a retired Texas Supreme Court justice. In a recent speech, he quoted former Texas Gov. Jimmy Allred as summing up the Box 13 dispute this way: "Well, Lyndon's backers thought Coke Stevenson had stolen the 1941 election in East Texas and they didn't see anything wrong with doing the same for their candidate in 1948."

Map locates Alice, Tex., where a former voting official says he certified enough fictitious ballots to steal an election 29 years ago and launch Lyndon Johnson on his path to the presidency. (AP Laserphoto Map)

Salas speaks with wonderment about the bizarre events in South Texas in the 1940s.

"Sometimes I wonder why I didn't get the electric chair," he commented at one point.

"It was awful what we did. The 'Godfather' book was fiction; what we did was real."

"I did plenty wrong, and I repent now. I also did plenty of good. Like, say, a man's wife is sick. I would say to him: 'Go to the drugstore and get medicine.' I would tell the drugstore to give him the medicine and charge the bill to me. Parr would pay it. All that kind of stuff, you know. Funerals. I would tell the funeral home: 'Go ahead and bury them, and charge Parr.'

"It was a way of life to threaten people.

"I carried a gun all the time. Oh, I tell you, we had real power. I changed three chiefs of police in Alice in less than three years. I would just tell George B.: 'I don't like that guy' he's against our people. Get him out.' And he sure did.

"That's the way it was. I would go into a saloon, 10 or 15 men drinking there, and I would say: 'The beer's on me.' Sometimes I'd stay two or three hours, spend $30-$40 every place I go. I would just sign my name, and the saloon would collect off George B. Parr.

"Parr also told me not to worry about spending. He said I should spend all I wanted on the elections, and I did. He said the money came from Austin; all those places."

Cliff DuBose, an employe of the Alice News who was the election bureau's correspondent in Jim Wells County, recalled the 1948 Johnson-Stevenson election in a recent interview.

"I just sent in the figures as they were given to me on election night," DuBose said. "Then six days later a county executive committeeman, Mike Rios, came by the office and gave me the changed figures as approved by the committee. Usually, there's only a few votes difference from the unofficial election night figures; this time there was a tremendous change." DuBose dispatched the new figures to the Election Bureau in Dallas.

Salas said that in a book he is writing about the entire Box 13 episode, he would name the persons who actually wrote down the 202 additional names.

Salas explained that regardless of how the ballots were marked, he called them on election night for whichever candidate he wanted. "I could have given Stevenson whatever I wanted. I should have given him only four votes."

Jim Holmgreen, now a mortician in Alice, worked as a poll watcher in Box 13 during the runoff balloting. He said in a recent interview:

"I saw more votes stolen for Lyndon Johnson than Johnson won the election by. A ballot would be pulled from the box marked for Stevenson but would be called out for Johnson. I know because I watched and saw it."

Although there had been a writ of mandamus issued stipulating that poll watchers be permitted full access to the balloting process, it was ignored, Salas told The AP. "I just ordered them to go sit in a corner and keep out of the way."

Holmgreen said he tried to look over shoulders to see how the ballots were marked. "A police officer seemed to just grow out of the ground and next thing I knew he took me to the city jail and locked me in a cell, on the orders of Luis Salas," Holmgreen said.

Asked about his testimony in the aborted Alice hearing, Salas said:

"I was in the middle when they stopped the investigation. But, you know, they had all the election clerks subpoenaed. But I was gonna ... if they started to implicate my clerks, I wouldn't let 'em. I would just tell the truth."

—To save the clerks?

"Damn right. But it never got to that point. Black stopped it."

—If the investigation had been allowed to continue to the end, would they have proven a vote fraud?

"Yes, absolutely. Because what they did, they did wrong. I mean, because those people didn't vote. And the lawyers knew it right away."

In a recent public speech, the chairman of the 1948 Texas Democratic Executive Committee that voted in Fort Worth to name Johnson the party's nominee said he was convinced at the time that a fraud had taken place in Jim Wells County.

Retired Texas Supreme Court Justice Robert W. Calvert recalled that he ordered the committee secretary to keep all county chairman election reports unopened in a vault until the official canvass.

The canvass committee counted the county reports and declared Johnson the winner by 87 votes. Calvert said he had reminded them of a 1932 Texas Supreme Court ruling that the canvassing committee was only to count the county returns, certify the reports came from the county chairmen, and declare a winner based on the majority of the vote as reported.

"I was convinced that a fraud had been perpetrated in Jim Wells County" Calvert said in his speech. "The 202 names added to the voter signature list were all in the same handwriting and were in the same ink. Nevertheless, if I had been forced to vote to break a tie, I would have voted for Johnson. My decision would have been based on that 1932 Supreme Court decision." Calvert said he did not actually see the 202 names on the list, however.

Parr once indicated that his split with Coke Stevenson — the split that brought Lyndon Johnson into Parr's favor — came about because of Stevenson's failure to appoint E. James Kazan, a Parr candidate, to the post of district attorney in Webb County, when Stevenson was governor.

Town's ghost still likes to haunt rival

12, 1910, election to decide the location of the county seat.

The Andrews partisans had a few unkind things to say about their Shafter Lake neighbors several miles to the northwest.

"The Herald boasts of untold and certainly unheard of mineral resources for Shafter Lake," the Andrews partisans said. "The only one (mineral) that has shown concrete form is the salt from the lake adjoining the town."

They would not let the ghost go unscathed.

"The dogs of war are unleashed at last," noted an unblushing blurp in one of the barb-shooting publications.

The Andrews partisans let loose with another one at Shafter Lake.

"The Herald makes a loud noise about the wonderful possibilities of its town in the matter of a great sewerage system. The Herald's town will have to grow some before its 'pipe dream' can — be realized."

Well, the Shafter Lake town never got its full-blown waste-disposal system. Instead, it fizzled out.

What it didn't get was enough votes to place the all-important county seat at the salty lake.

Andrews got the nod.

And that "battle" between the two settlements perhaps was edged along by Andrews partisan Robert "Bob" Means, a rancher-landowner who "donated lots to local cowboys so they could vote" in the election 67 years ago.

Except for the sandpipers, gnats, grasshoppers, the cemetery tombstones that overlook the lake, a few oilfield pumping jacks and passing traffic, Shafter Lake is virtually desolate.

The lake bears the name of Army Col. William Rufus Shafter, who made an expedition out of Fort Concho in 1875 to prove "that the (West Texas) country was not absolutely devoid of water . . ."

In their search for water holes, Shafter and his men finally came upon this shallow lake of "brackish but usable" water.

Eventually, the site became a settlement.

And before the fatal election of 1910, "The population of Shafter had great dreams for a railroad and eventually a university," noted one account. "Promoters made a big thing of their lake front property."

The ghost of Shafter Lake is not forgetting its old rivalry with Andrews.

The ghost, who always gets the last snicker, asks:

"Where should we all want to die when we go to?"

"Andrews, of course," the ghost answers.

Days hot, sunny

More of the same — hot and sunny days, not rain — is in the forecast today and Monday in the Midland area.

Midland got a sprinkling of rain Friday afternoon and night but none Saturday.

That was not unusual around the area.

Across much of West Texas, from Rankin to Lamesa and from Andrews to Stanton and Big Spring, it was just "hot and dry" under clear skies Saturday.

Today's offering should be the same, indicated a weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

10 persons arrested during concert melee

Police ended up arresting 10 persons Friday night during a fist and bottle throwing melee at a rock and roll concert in Cub Stadium, a police spokesman said Saturday.

Only two of those arrested on a variety of charges that ranged from disorderly conduct to inciting to riot, remained in the city jail Saturday.

Parks and Recreation Department Director Bob Thomson said he called off the free "Battle of the Bands" concert when bottles were thrown at police from the back of the stadium.

Officers from the Midland police and sheriff's office, and the Department of Public Safety arrived at the stadium between 10:30 p.m. and 11 p.m. to help officers already at the scene control the crowd after two fights erupted in the stadium area.

Thomson blamed heavy beer drinking in the parking lot and in the stadium for the disturbances Friday.

Panama concedes point to U.S.

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Panama's chief negotiator at talks on a new Panama Canal treaty says his nation would allow the United States to defend the canal if the waterway was attacked by an outside power.

Dr. Romulo Escobar Bethancourt's statement at a news conference Friday night represented a concession. Panama's chief of state, Gen. Omar Torrijos, had insisted America play no role in canal defense after the year 2000, when Panama would take full control of the zone.

Escobar, who returned from Washington during a recess in treaty talks, also told reporters Panama has reduced its earlier demand for $300 million annual rent and $1.02 billion in a lump sum to be paid on signing the treaty.

"In the spirit of trying to reach agreement," he said, Panama is now asking for $460 million at the outset and $150 million annually.

The United States currently pays $2.3 million annual rent. Informants said the previous U.S. offer of increased rent was about $34 million annually. Escobar said Panama's economic representatives will meet with U.S. negotiators Ellsworth Bunker and Sol Linowitz starting Tuesday and they expect to receive a new financial offer.

Escobar said he carried a letter from President Carter to Torrijos. Carter called in the letter for moderation so agreement could be reached on a treaty to replace the 1903 pact.

Chief negotiators from both nations were called to the White House for a Friday morning meeting with Carter, who intervene personally for the first time in an attempt to break the impasse at the talks.

Escobar said at the 45-minute session, Carter "expressed a strong desire to conclude the negotiations." The President said after the meeting that "we've resolved some of the major difficulties."

At the Panama City news conference, the Escobar explained the future U.S. defense role this way:

"Under the neutrality pact (under negotiation with the new canal treaty), as of Dec. 31, 2000, the only troops and military installations on the isthmus will be Panamanian.

"The neutrality agreement does not authorize United States intervention in Panama's internal affairs, or any foreign military presence here beyond the year 2000 ...

"There can only be an intervention by the United States, within the neutrality pact, if the attack on the canal were coming from other powers."

Currently, 9,000 U.S. troops are stationed on 14 military bases in the American-controlled Canal Zone. Panamanian students have demonstrated both at the U.S. embassy and the foreign ministry in recent months against any continued U.S. role in canal defense.

Muscular Dystrophy bike-a-thon explained

The Muscular Dystrophy Association bike-a-thon will begin at 7 a.m. Aug 20 at the 7-11 store at Neeley and Midland Drive, a spokesman for the organizers said Saturday.

The route will be a 6 mile course. Most riders will ride 20 miles, making three trips around the course. Two rest stops will be manned along the way. The route will be patrolled by police.

Entry cards and pledge cards for those interested in participating may be picked up at any 7-11 store. The bike-a-thon is open to all ages.

Prizes will be awarded to the male and female who collect the most in pledges. They will receive 10-speed bicycles. Other prizes will be awarded to the person who rides the most miles, the person with the best decorated bicycle, the person with the best costume and the hard luck award.

Further information may be obtained from Jim Galyean, Pat Moore or Jean Watson.

Last year, the first year for a local bike-a-thon, $4,376 was collected for Muscular Dystrophy.

MC begins counseling, preregistration Monday

Early counseling and preregistration for the fall semester at Midland College begins Monday, according to registrar Dee Windsor.

"It's important for persons who wish to enroll to complete these preregistration procedures as early as possible," Windsor said. "We will issue time permits for registration in the order persons appear, so the earlier they come the better chance they will have to obtain the schedule that suits them best."

Preregistration can be completed by visiting the Office of Student Services, Administration building, between 7 a.m. and 5:30 p.m., or room 130 of the Science-Faculty building between 5:30 and 8:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday through Aug. 11 or the Office of Student Services between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday from Aug. 15 through Aug. 23.

Official registration is scheduled for Aug. 24 and 25 in the Midland College Physical Education building from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Fall classes begin on Aug. 29.

Yes, it's ridiculous!

The $10.6 billion annual budget proposed for the new Department of Energy planned within the federal government "is more than twice the total value of all the oil and gas produced in the entire history of University Lands."

This was the statement made by James B. Zimmerman, geologist in charge of the headquarter offices of University Lands here, in commenting on the new department before members of the Midland Downtown Rotary Club Thursday noon.

Oil and natural gas in vast quantities have been produced from University Lands in the last half century, but the $10.6 billion budget is more than twice the total value of all of the production. Ridiculous, isn't it?

"How much money is $10.6 billion?" Zimmerman asked in his Rotary newscast.

He answered his own question, saying: $10.6 billion is 120 times the estimated 1977 income to The University of Texas and Texas A&M University from University Lands.

Even more significant is the fact that the huge budget figure is more than the total value of all the oil produced in Texas during 1976 ($9.7 billion).

Zimmerman said also that the $10.6 billion is almost three times what the entire petroleum industry will spend in Canada in 1977.

It also is a little more than the American oil industry plans to spend on drilling and exploration in the United States in 1977.

Staggering is the word for it. Yet it appears that the budget will be approved as proposed.

It also is an almost certainty that the energy department will be created to carry out President Carter's energy plan. A House-Senate conference committee on Friday a week ago completed work on legislation creating the new, expensive department, which will begin life with approximately 20,000 employes. The number of employes also is ridiculous — and this is only the starting figure.

It certainly would be well, as recommended by Zimmerman, to try and get some limits established NOW on this department.

He suggests four limits which might give the energy industry a chance, as follows:

1. "The DOE should never have more employes than the energy industry. No more than one regulator for each regulatee. (Let's be fair.)

2. "The DOE should never be allowed to have a larger budget than the entire domestic industry.

3. "DOE should not be allowed to have more offices than there are service stations.

4. "DOE should not be allowed to establish offices in any community too small to support a service station."

Jim Zimmerman knows the score and he is as right as can be on each of his observations. We will go along with all of them, including his suggestions on department limitations.

Let's go over it once more: "How much money is $10.6 billion?"

Take smaller bites

Those big, five-cent Hershey bars of years past really were something great. Remember them?

It hasn't been too many years ago now that the price started up and the size of the bar was reduced, Hershey's standard-sized bar now sells for 20 cents.

But the word presently is that inflation has dealt chocolate lovers another blow. The Hershey firm said it again is forced to reduce the size of the candy bars by an average of 12.8 per cent rather than raise unit prices. This really cuts down on the already limited number of bites per bar.

Hershey said raising unit prices interferes with vending machines and other marketing operations more than adjusting the size of the bar.

Oh well, maybe the smaller bar is all we should eat anyway.

INSIDE REPORT:

Liking Jimmy Carter without loving him

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

BALTIMORE — The flight from involvement in the great affairs of Jimmy Carter's Washington is in full swing on the white ethnic east side of Baltimore where blue-collar wage-earners give the President a high approval rating but one stripped bare of emotional connection with him.

With Patrick Caddell and three of his top pollsters from Cambridge Survey Research, we sampled reaction to Mr. Carter's politics in 83 separate households of the 29th Precinct, 26th Ward. The reaction there, so different from recent passions of Vietnam and Watergate, is typified by a 56-year-old bartender who voted for Mr. Carter last year and approves of his performance but adds: "Honest, I can't think of too much he's done."

In response to "What is the best thing President Carter has done in his first half year?" almost 60 per cent of our 83 voters either said "nothing" or "I don't know." These are the same voters who gave Mr. Carter an approval rating of 63 to 9 favorable (with 11 uncertain).

Just under one-half of the voters could not answer the other side of that question — the "worst" thing Mr. Carter has done.

By their own testimony, 51 of our voters backed Mr. Carter last November, 23 voted for Gerald Ford and 9 did not vote or could not remember. The lack of emotion for or against the President was scarcely different between Carter and Ford voters.

In the absence of any earthshaking issue today, Mr. Carter and his administration might not exist, as far as these voters of East Baltimore care. The President clearly has not yet made a durable impression. While comfortably accepted as President and generally liked, he remains remote and elusive, his policies often puzzling.

Consider human rights, both praised and damned, but little understood. "That's good, because he's sticking up for the U.S.A.," a disabled World War II veteran told us in the living room of his small, attached house on Bonview Avenue. "Yeah," his wife put in, "but you'd better be careful, Mr. President, or you'll make those Russians too mad at us."

Mr. Carter's Soviet policy emerges here as a potential cause for political trouble. By a four-to-one margin, relations with the Soviets were labelled "worse" than under Ford; by a margin better than two-to-one, Mr. Carter was blamed for being "too soft" rather than "too tough" on Moscow; yet, by almost two-to-one (28 voters to 15 voters, balance undecided), Mr. Carter is perceived as conducting a "tougher" policy with the Russians than Ford did.

The high level of confusion over U.S.-Soviet relations was sustained in answers to this question: "Would you favor Carter continuing his human rights campaign even if it damages our relations with the Soviet Union?"

The replies split almost evenly, with 39 voters favoring and 34 opposing continuation (10 having no opinion). Thus, the same voters who see rapid deterioration in U.S.-Soviet relations and who blame Mr. Carter for being "soft" on Russia, split down the middle when asked if Mr. Carter should pursue his policy of human rights, identified as a cause "damaging our relations."

Another area of incipient trouble is the President's Middle East policy. Although 44 voters say he is showing no preference for Israel or the Arabs, 17 see a pro-Israel bias against only 4 perceiving a pro-Arab bias. That probably results from the non-Jewish ethnic nature of the 29th Precinct. But one voter volunteered concern over Mr. Carter's backdown during Prime Minister Menahem Begin's visit here with its saturation television coverage, which may have caused others to see a pro-Israel tilt.

The absence of political passion in the way these voters view Jimmy Carter is only partly the legacy of what some Carter aides call a new era of good feelings. Lack of interest in Washington is revealed by a Young city construction estimator, who voted for Mr. Carter in November, but is now unhappy.

Why? "He hasn't fulfilled his promises," he said, "like cutting that big White House staff." By coincidence, a nearly 30 per cent cut in the White House staff had just been announced three days earlier.

But there is still another explanation for lack of passion here: the problem voters are having in getting a handle on their President and deciding who and what he is. A meter-reader who voted for Ford told us the "best" thing Mr. Carter has done "is backing off his lousy promises in the campaign." But unable to name the "worst" thing he has done, he said: "Wait till I know him better."

After six months, Jimmy Carter's strength still is rooted in the elusive, indefinable quality of his politics. That is clearly an asset for now, but lack of passionate support could turn into a dangerous liability if and when the going gets tough.

WASHINGTON MERRY—GO—ROUND

The case of Nicolas Shadrin

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — One year ago, I killed a story to save a man's life. But the man's lawyer tells me that some newspapers got wind of the story and perhaps already published it. The attorney, therefore, has agreed to let me relate the dramatic details.

The endangered man is Nicolas Shadrin (Shad-rin).

He is a former Russian naval officer who defected to the United States two decades ago.

He has worked closely with U.S. intelligence. On Dec. 20, 1975, Shadrin disappeared from the streets of Vienna, Austria. It was later learned that he had been kidnapped by the Soviet secret police, the KGB. There has been no word from him.

It now can be revealed that Shadrin was a double agent for the United States. He originally bolted to the West in June 1959. He had attended the Soviet Uniop's most advanced naval training schools. He was able to talk in detail, therefore, about Russian naval tactics and strategy. In the words of my intelligence sources, he was a "gold mine of information" for the Pentagon and the CIA.

After months of debriefing, Shadrin went to work for the Pentagon. He and his wife settled in the Virginia suburbs. Then, in 1966, Shadrin was approached by two KGB agents who worked at the Soviet embassy. They pressured him to spy for the Soviets. He immediately reported the incident to the FBI. The G-men asked him to become a double agent.

He thought about this for awhile, then reluctantly decided to cooperate. He kept his other life so secret that not even his wife knew about it. For nine years, he obediently passed along FBI-prepared information to the KGB. He also was sent on two missions abroad — one to Montreal, another to Vienna — before the final, fateful mission in December 1975.

In Vienna, he received some intensive training in codes and security devices. On Dec. 18, he met with two KGB agents on the steps of a church. Another meeting was arranged for two days later. He caught a taxi for the rendezvous. He was never seen again. My sources believe he was dragged by the KGB across the Czechoslovakian border and was taken to Moscow.

U.S. officials lodged a few cautious protests. On Jan. 5, 1976, former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger mentioned the incident to Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin. The Russians claimed they had never heard of the man.

In February, the missing man's wife, Blanka Shadrin, retained an attorney, Richard Copaken, of the prestigious Covington and Burling firm. He questioned officials in the Defense Intelligence Agency, Central Intelligence Agency, FBI, National Security Council, Justice Dept. and State Dept.

He learned that each of these agencies knew only parts of the story.

Copaken established private channels, held a series of meetings in West Berlin and tried to arrange a prisoner exchange. At first, he tried to swap a second-rate Soviet spy, Sarkis Paskalian, for Shadrin. But the Soviets wouldn't deal. They wanted Gunter Guillaume, the Communist spy who brought down the government of Willy Brandt.

Back in the United States, Copaken met great resistance to this idea from Henry Kissinger. Copaken also believes U.S. officials violated the ground rules set by his negotiators, when a White House official took up the Shadrin case directly with Soviet officials in Washington. From that moment on, the Russians resisted all attempts at a prisoner exchange.

Still, Copaken persisted. At one point, he took advantage of a White House reception to bring up the Shadrin matter with President Gerald Ford, face-to-face. Later, Ford wrote to Soviet Premier Leonid Brezhnev directly. But the word came back from the Soviet embassy that the Soviets simply didn't know where Shadrin was.

Copaken stubbornly pushed on. At one point, he took a list of 75 Communists imprisoned in the West to his Berlin meetings. Which ones did the Soviets want? he asked. All efforts failed.

The Carter White House also was briefed on the Shadrin case. Minimal efforts were made to secure Shadrin's release, but nothing came of them.

All this time, in the interest of preserving Shadrin's life, I sat on the story. Not until other reporters picked it up did attorney Copaken get a call from the State Dept.

Things were finally moving, he was told. It would be best to keep quiet.

Copaken told his caller it was too late. The story was out and he was relieved.

"I'm beginning to believe," he told me, "that publicity is the only way to get this government moving."

NICK THIMMESCH

Nixon's first thoughts run to international arena

Nick Thimmesch

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. — The once-President Richard M. Nixon's best skill was in making and executing foreign policy. His poorest performance (this is understatement) was in dealing with Washington's power-structure and talking straight to the American people.

These days, when he is not working on his memoirs, Mr. Nixon's first thoughts run to the international arena. His concern for America's position, and his Watergate experience, makes him worried that the "Koreagate" investigation could destroy the program of U.S. aid to Korea and thus jeopardize our role in the Far East.

The Carter administration's plan to gradually withdraw U.S. troops from Korea carries with it the necessity to grant Korea more military aid to offset the loss of American strength.

For a generation now, Congress has strongly supported Korea. But the current probe could make many a congressman, innocent or guilty, leery about voting for more aid out of fear that his constituents might think such support was a payoff for Korean favors.

A weakened Korea, Mr. Nixon believes, could greatly disturb the power-base in the Pacific basin. Communist China, knowing the United States is no threat to Asia, would be concerned about any power vacuum in the Far East. The Japanese are already fretting over decreasing American strength in the region. Lacking a strong military, Japan could be pushed to extreme left or right positions, thus re-arming and frightening all Asia or in developing strong ties with the Soviets.

When in office, Mr. Nixon kept a strong U.S. military presence in South Korea because he felt any attack by North Korea was an attack on the United States; therefore, there would be no such attack by North Korea. He has not changed his views on this question. A U.S. guarantee of South Korea's security does not have the inhibiting effect on North Korea that a substantial U.S. military presence does.

Mr. Nixon would argue that his own Nixon Doctrine of supplying economic and military aid to Asian nations, and letting them furnish the men, applies only on a case-by-case basis, and South Korea is a special case.

Earlier this month, a Republican member of the House Ethics Committee, Bruce F. Caputo (R-N.Y.), said he "personally" believed that Richard Nixon and Henry A. Kissinger knew about Korean attempts to bribe Congress and probably discussed the matter in the Oval office. Therefore, this discussion would be on White House tapes which the Ethics Committee should have, the way Caputo sees it.

It has been reported that the CIA cabled information from Korea as early as 1970 (when President Nixon was in office) that there was a plan for bribery of American congressmen. Mr. Nixon denies that he or Kissinger knew of any such plan and doubts there is a record of it on the tapes.

Whatever, while Mr. Nixon feels the Carter administration should have its chance to develop and execute foreign policy different from the Nixon-Kissinger approach, he believes Asia and Europe rate equal attention from the United States and that there should be no turning away from Asia.

He also believes that the much-criticized "secret diplomacy" approach achieved good results in his years as President. By not negotiating in public, Nixon will point out, the United States: persuaded the Soviet Union to allow a record number of its Jewish citizens to migrate to Israel; made an opening to Communist China; arranged for the release of American POWs and accomplished a successful cease-fire in the Middle East in late 1973.

Most of his time now goes to finishing his personal memoirs, scheduled to be published next April in a huge single-volume work. Mr. Nixon and his editorial helpers relied largely on what material he was allowed to take with him when he left the White House and his own recollections. The enormous collection of notes and tapes, which remain in government custody, would have been useful, principally to check the accuracy of his recollections.

The celebrated Frost-Nixon interviews were not watched on television by Mr. Nixon. He tells visitors he does not watch himself on television. Some 40,000 letters and wires were received here as a result of the interviews — a response second in volume only to key (and controversial) speeches he made during the Vietnamese war.

Mr. Nixon's health is good. Associates say that he shoots golf in the 80s. He works to get Mrs. Nixon into the pool in an effort to further her recovery from the stroke she suffered one year ago. She still has limited use of one arm.

If Mr. Nixon stresses anything to visitors now, it is his high rating for Kissinger, with whom he frequently confers on the phone. While remarking that he wishes the Carter administration well, believing it should use its own foreign policy approaches, he stresses that the advice of Kissinger should be sought and utilized now and in the years to come.

POSITIVE THINKING

Here's how to live to a ripe old age

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

A vice president of a large industrial organization recently organized what he calls his "Coronary Club." The membership rules say, "Your job comes first . . . personal considerations are secondary . . . take your office work home evenings, Saturdays, Sundays, holidays . . . accept all invitations to banquets, meetings and committees."

The regulations also enjoin the member to regard "fishing, hunting, golf, bowling, billiards, gardening as a waste of time and money;" forbid him to "take all the vacation allowed;" and insist that he "work all day and drive all night to keep an appointment the next morning." No sure way to have a heart attack is overlooked by the "Coronary Club."

On the other hand, Dr. John McWhinny, a medical school faculty member, outlined a prescription to protect his doctor students against early heart attacks. He recommended:

1 — One less hour of worry for one more hour of laughter.

2 — One less week of high-pressure living for one more week of restful vacation.

3 — One less luncheon conference for one more midday period of relaxation.

4 — One less evening of a social event for one more evening with a good book.

5 — One less hour under the electric light for one more hour in the sunshine.

6 — One less hour in the automobile for one more hour jogging or walking on foot.

Every businessman would do well to clip this prescription and put it under the glass of his desk top or in his wallet as a constant reminder. As Dr. Arnold A. Hutschnecker pointed out in his book, "The Will to Live," too many people devote the first half of their lives to making money, only to spend it in the second half getting their health back.

But perhaps the most important prescription of all for those who want to live to a ripe old age was that of Sara M. Jordan, long-time director of the gastroenterology department of Boston's famous Lahey Clinic:

"That man is blessed who has a philosophical and optimistic outlook on life. But even the born pessimist and mental defeatist can change his spots. I have seen it happen often in patients who learn by teaching or experience the value of optimism and philosophy in guarding against their disease."

There was a wonderful old man, a cherished friend of mine, who had learned this lesson well. At 93, he needed no glasses and stood straight as a ramrod. Formerly an American ambassador, he liked to spend his time working with his hands — carpentry was his hobby. "There is more trouble avoided," he said, "by working with your hands than any other way except praying." He did both. As a result of this sound philosophy, he lived with health and vigor until 96 years of age.

It would be pretty smart to make his formula your own. Learn to take it easy, find time for relaxation, and cultivate an optimistic outlook. Take advantage of the quieting and relaxing effect of your religious faith — it can assist you in having good health and strength. Your health, according to psychologists, is largely determined by focusing your attention upon the things which make for mental happiness. Find this happiness — and you will find health and a ripe old age.

Brown doesn't like politician label

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown doesn't like to be labeled a politician.

"I'm not a political animal," Brown declares, "and I don't want to be . . . I want to be a statesman."

Whether a politician or a statesman — or both — there's one thing Brown definitely is: a cagy, hard-working, hard-traveling, articulate officeholder, who likes what he's doing and intends to keep on doing it.

Brown hasn't yet declared officially for election as commissioner; it's just a matter of timing, however (the campaign kick-off is planned for Brazos County in September or October).

Brown's appointment by Gov. Dolph Briscoe to replace 26-year veteran John White, when White left for the Potomac's waters, has been one of the most popular decisions by the governor, judging from the reaction Brown draws from farm organizations.

Most of the folks in those groups already knew Brown — he's made the rounds of those meetings, along with 5,000 chamber of commerce functions and speeches in nearly every community in the state.

He also ran the annual conference for county judges and commissioners for 17 years and was a county agent in three counties and served as a county extension specialist for 25 years.

Brown projects a combination of good-ole-boy hometown friendliness with an evangelical zeal for his work, and an ability to rattle off information about what his agency is doing, farm prices and related matters.

Brown may end up as a shoo-in for the Democratic nomination — which virtually assures his victory in the general election — since some potential opponents have indicated they see no way to overcome what appears to be widespread enthusiasm for the incumbent.

At the moment, Brown is busy forming a "Committee of 1,000 for Brown," along with "Women for Brown," "County Officials for Brown," "Farmers and Ranchers for Brown" and "several others."

"The support and encouragement I'm getting has been tremendous from all over the state," he reports (with standing ovations at many of the meetings he's attended lately).

Also, he says, he's receiving promises of support from minority groups and Democratic party leadership.

Some of those who were thinking earlier about challenging Brown agree there is considerable support for him. At least one potential opponent has all but changed his mind about running — unless the situation changes radically.

And it appears that Deputy Commissioner Bill Pieratt, who had been rumored interested in making the race, will be appointed to a post in the Farmers Home Administration.

Rep. Joe Hubenak, Rosenburg, chairman of the House Agriculture and Livestock Committee, appears to be the most probable challenger to Brown, but Hubenak hasn't indicated what his decision might be.

But the possibility of opposition doesn't seem to worry Brown at all.

He expects, he says, to win with the greatest majority of any public official.

And he thinks if it becomes necessary — which it appears it won't — he would receive the endorsement of a lot of Texas politicos, including former Commissioner John C. White.

Brown acknowledges that part of his strong position is due to White — who left the Department of Agriculture well-respected by the agricultural community and in the good graces of nearly everyone.

Brown says he stepped into White's post without any disruption of programs, and feels he has the loyalty of agency employes.

All in all, it appears that the people who supported John White for over two decades have decided they can transfer some of that support to Brown—perhaps even for 26 years.

"We're in good shape," Brown agrees, "if we don't beat ourselves."

There's no indication that is likely to happen.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To The Editor:

I want to thank Councilman Gordon Marcum for his support of a Rental Subsidy Plan for Midland to be included in our Community Development Fund application.

With the grace of God and the hard work of the people of our community many Midlanders enjoy the pleasure and rewards that come from owning their own homes or renting homes of their choice. No doubt our present city councilmen and our mayor enjoy the pleasure of living in good, comfortable housing. Our city fathers no doubt have worked hard to be able to afford good housing. Our heavenly Father has blessed them with the zeal, motivation, determination and knowledge needed to assist them in providing for themselves as well as for others.

Many people, for various reasons do not have the same ability to provide for themselves, some because of laziness, others due to lack of skills or knowledge, and many others for health reasons. How can we as Christians deny the opportunity to serve our Christian brothers and sisters who are not able to provide for themselves when the opportunity is given to us through the use of the Community Development funds available to us?

As a former director of Midland's Lease Purchase Program, I am aware of the abuses that can occur in any subsidy program. However, I am also aware of the tremendously intelligent people we have on our city council. There is no doubt in my mind that our city fathers could implement a program for Midland that would be successful and would serve the needs of the people who are really in need of such a program.

I hope all Midlanders who agree with Mr. Marcum and with me will let the council know how they feel. It is very important that they hear from you in case HUD turns down the Community Development application. Then the council will have to decide whether to include the rental subsidy plan or turn down nearly a million dollars that is needed for housing rehabilitation, paving, drainage, parks improvement and a senior citizens center.

Carry it further

To The Editor:

The problem with Anita Bryant's war on sin is that it doesn't go far enough.

In addition to homosexuals, there are cohabitators and self-abusers in our very midst.

To combat these perpetrators of God's wrath, I hereby submit two proposals that would, I'm sure, stave off the vengeance He has planned for us.

First, let's see to it a law is passed requiring that everyone over the age of 21 be married — to members of the opposite sex, of course.

A certificate of marriage would have to be on prominent display in every household, and each couple would have to carry cards attesting to the validity of their presence together.

That way, it would be an easy matter for police to check the legality of any suspicious looking couple they may come across.

Second, although self-abuse may at first glance seem hard to eliminate, there is indeed a solution.

All it would take is for our state chemists to come up with an indelible dye that would, by law, have to be injected into every infant at birth. Then if they ever touched themselves illicitly, a big red "M" would appear on their hands.

A firm stand

To The Editor:

Congratulations to Mayor Ernest Angelo and the Midland City Council for their refusal to accept HUD dictated Housing Assistance Plan funds. Their firm stand against the pressure groups will help preserve our freedoms from federal encroachment.

Mayor Angelo properly stated that the HUD program would serve as a disincentive to work and would offend working families who could not live as well as the subsidized families.

The council properly applied for $900,000 in block grant funds in areas where the need is greatest, and these requests should be judged on their own merits. If HUD withholds these funds, it is violating the intent of Congress. Midland should not submit to this dictatorship. There must be some point at which we say NO!

I oppose the rent subsidies at the municipal level for the followint reasons.

1. — Such programs require professional staffing. The cost of a city welfare office to Midland taxpayers would be substantial. This would duplicate services being performed by the Texas State Welfare Office in Midland.

2.—If administration of the subsidy is left to an amateur committee, Midland would be faced with a possible repeat of the recent abuses in the Midland Community Action Agency. We do not need any more of that.

Mayor Angelo and the city council are trying to preserve our freedoms against HUD meddling. They deserve our wholehearted support.

Do it our way

To The Editor:

"Hurray" for a majority of our city council members who stood on "principle" instead of knuckling under and capitulating under the coercion and blackmail efforts by the Washington bureaucrats of HUD. The dangling of the carrot ($950,000 Community Development Funds) has always been the typical tactic of our bureaucratic friends. Once you have agreed to accept the carrot, you had better look out since the tentacles of the octopus bureaucracy will not be far behind.

The above sequence of events happens each time the federal government becomes involved in your school, church, city or business. The result is a complete loss of control, an increase in your taxes, and more inflation to diminish the value of the hard-earned dollar of the productive segment of the United States. Surely citizens of this community know by now that federal help means federal control.

Surely Midland can help the elderly and the handicapped without the federal government adding on its cost and telling us how or how not to do the program. The rent subsidy programs have turned out to be a degrading fraud on the people that it leads to believe that it will help. It locks the poor into poverty and there is certainly no incentive to improve oneself under this program.

Please let your city council members know of your support in this matter. They are your elected officials and represent the community and you should not be influenced by the few who constantly show up at city council meetings trying to intimidate the council.

Small consolation

To The Editor:

Your editorial, "Blow to Petroleum," was carried in the July 27 Manchester (New Hampshire) Union Leader. The only salve to our guilt by association is the fact that 53 senators, other than our Massachesetts transplant John Durkin, voted for this foolishness. Not that 53 others following like sheep is any excuse.

It is small consolation, but most of the people of New Hampshire voted for either Lou Wyman or Carmen Chimento, Durkin's two opponents. So what you see is a minority-supported senator in action.

We'll try to correct this in 1980. We are building a strong, free enterprise Libertarian party in New Hampshire, and if we can survive a few more years of Juhn Durkin and his ilk, perhaps we can head of 1984. What we all need is to elect people like Ron Paul of your 22nd (Houston) Congressional District.

It's ridiculous

To The Editor:

In Alaska, the Alyeska Pipe Line was shut down several days following an explosion in a pumping station. Maintenance crews completed repairs in a short time, but oil could not begin moving again until federal authorities in Washington were certain that all was safe. How ridiculous!

No ferm of transport is ever completely safe. All forms, air, highway, rail and water, are forever subject to accidents by man-failure, mechanical failure and acts of God.

Ask veteran pipeliners Vondill Willis (Atlantic), J. Rudy Wright (Mobil, retired) and Lewis A. Feagan (Humble, retired) how far they might have gone if, after every line break, they had been compelled to await clearance from Washington, D. C., before they could pump oil again.

The Permian Basin would definitely still be in an early state of development.

Action correct

To The Editor:

I personally commend the city council members and the mayor for their recent stand regarding rent subsidies here in Midland. I think it is well-known that only 29 families would receive the benefit of the $66,000 in question making a total of $2,275 per family.

Recent evaluations show that it costs the federal government $3 in administrative and collection fees in order to distribute $1 to charity. Private organizations averaqe around 28 cents per dollar distributed and some churches are capable of charitable contributions at the rate of eight cents per dollar distributed.

This, once again, shows the fallacy and inefficiency of our federal system and the gigantic rip-off perpetrated to citizens of this country. Perhaps if each of us would realize that in order to distribute this $66,000, whereby $264,000 had to be taken away from people in this country through taxes, more people would be against this program and would applaud the efforts of our mayor, and if more people realized, rather than $2,275 being given to each affected family for rent subsidies, that the real cost was $9,103, a more favorable attitude would be taken for Mayor Angelo's stand.

Support earned

To The Editor:

Mayor Ernest Angelo and the city council are to be commended for their action in standing up to the dictatorial tactics of HUD bureaucrats during the city council meeting last Tuesday. Despite tremendous pressure and pleas from the vocal opposition, our elected official displayed foresight and wisdom by voting to correct the "technical deficiencies" and resubmitting the city's application without the Housing Assistance Plan.

All of us are increasingly aware of the tentacles of federal bureaucracy in our everyday lives. Whether we are in farming, ranching, energy and automobile industries, or our public schools and hospitals, these bureaucrats are determined to alter our freedom of choice and our free enterprise system.

It is high time that the silent majority takes notice and be thankful that we have this type of elected city leaders in our community — but to show this gratitude, we should be at these meetings and show our support for them.

Praise deserved

To The Editor:

Our city council deserves special commendation for having the initiative to question federal bureaucracy's dictum. Federal government deficit spending has been a chief contributor to inflation of our money supply and the declining purchasing power of the dollar. Midland's stand is a step in reversing this trend.

I happened to see a recent issue of the Chicago Sun-Times with a letter to its editor from a lady in that city. She said regarding subsidized housing in that large city, "I love Chicago, and I want to continue to live here, but cannot do so when my back yard is being transformed into a slum by the bureaucrats that govern the city." She suggests that rather than destroying her particular street, that subsidized rent be "dispersed throughout the metropolitan area."

Sadly, one of the bad features of subsidized rent is that the person who gets a better-paying job is penalized, thus the program is a dis-incentive for better employment.

It's refreshing

To The Editor:

This letter is written to express my appreciation to the city council for their firm stand on the Community Development grant.

It is refreshing to know that our locally elected officials are not awed by the federal government, or concede to the tactics employed by HUD, notably blackmail.

With the current spending deficit, one wonders how HUD and the federal government can share revenue with any community.

Gifts destroy pride

To The Editor:

I appreciate the action of Midland's mayor and city council in the Tuesday meeting regarding the Housing Assistance Plan. Opposition to "federal bureaucratic bribery" is commendable and I must say quite rare in this day by local governments.

Someday society will realize that continued gifts to individuals will destroy all traces of human dignity and pride. This untimately will reduce this country to a mere shadow of its one-time greatness.

Prisons can aid some inmates in changing

Editor's Note: The following article is an interview by a board of Copley editors with Norman Carlson, director of the U.S. Bureau of Prisons, who says the purpose of prisons is to punish, but in a humane way that allows for the possibility of rehabilitation.

Copley News Service

Question: Mr. Carlson, what is the purpose of a prison?

Answer: It is to confine people, of course, who have violated the laws of the country. Society has used a variety of criminal justice sanctions over the years. Today the elemental sanction — the last resort, so to speak — is imprisonment.

Q. Do prisons penalize or rehabilitate?

A. I think basically they penalize. Anytime you deprive a person of liberty, that is punishment.

Q. But the trend in prison is away from punishment.

A. I think for a number of years in this country the trend tended to shift over to considering rehabilitation a primary function of imprisonment. I think today there is reassessment going on toward an awareness that sending people to prison or jail is essential.

Q. As a deterrent to crime?

A. As a deterrent to crime, but in addition to that it is to provide opportunities to change those inmates who want to change their behavior.

A lot of comments are made, of course, about the new institutions — that they are modern and they are humane and to some people they are too plush — but so far as I am concerned, they do provide an opportunity to change. We do not just lock up a person in a warehouse, a jungle, so to speak. We are at least attempting to provide a safe and humane environment in which to incarcerate those that have been committed by the courts.

Q. You said prison provides an opportunity for change for prisoners who want to change. Does that indicate a concession that we cannot make somebody want to change?

A. Precisely. There was a period in our country when the underlying assumption was that prisons could rehabilitate all inmates, given enough chaplains, psychiatrists, psychologists and caseworkers.

Today we are willing to admit that some people have no desire nor motivation to change and there is nothing that I can do or anyone else can do to force that person to change.

Q. Do you think the system would be helped if criminals were brought to justice more quickly?

A. Yes, I do. So far as I am concerned, it is not the length of punishment that is effective; it is the certainty of punishment. I personally believe that if we had a fast method of imposing judgments by the courts and imposing sentences, that would be a tremendous asset to the system.

Q. Are prisons overcrowded? Do we need more?

A. Very definitely. Our federal prison population is 28,700 right now. It has gone up 3,500 in the last 12 months. Part of the reason, however, is the speedy trial act is now being implemented in the federal courts so that cases are being processed much more rapidly than in the past. The actual time of sentence imposed has gone up, the use of probation has decreased slightly in the federal courts for the first time in many years and the parole board also is showing a more conservative approach to releasing an inmate.

Q. Are there aspects of our system of juvenile justice that concern you?

A. Very definitely. The people we deal with in adult criminal justice are basically graduates of the juvenile system. Very few that we see have not had their first contact with the law at a very early age, 9 or 10 or early teens.

Lees celebrating

LONDON (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Lee, patriotic parents of a baby girl born in this silver jubilee year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth II, have chosen a novel way to mark the event.

The latest issue of the journal of the Institute of Population Registration reports that the couple, who live in Glamorgan County, have named their daughter Jamie Elizabeth Jubi Lee.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Solvents, metals can be dangerous

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have a friend who is an enthusiastic amateur artist and craftsman—he does painting and pottery and he also works in wood out in a studio he's built near his house. He absolutely loves working there all weekend. But I notice I get a headache whenever I go there to watch him, and I really think it's something he uses. He says it's just my imagination, and that he doesn't get a headache, ever. But I keep worrying that maybe the sprays or some of the paint or other things he works with may be to blame. Is that possible?—Janet T.

Dear Janet: Many of those chemicals can, indeed, be dangerous. People are concerned about industrial pollutants, and rightly so, but they do tend to ignore similar hazards from other sources—such as hobbies.

An authority on pollutants, Dr. Badi M. Boulos of the University of Illinois School of Public Health, says that chronic poisoning from long, slow exposure may be much more widespread among artists and craftsmen than we realize. In a recent Medical Tribune report, he points out that many toxic substances—volatile solvents, acids, fumes from heated plastics, dust—are involved in crafts like ceramics, pottery, plastic and metal sculpture, silkscreening and lithography.

The symptoms of poisoning are usually not very definite: nausea, a headache such as you had, a "high" feeling. If a doctor is consulted, he may attribute them to artistic eccentricity. And he may miss the diagnosis entirely if the patient just dabbles with a hobby at home.

Here are some of the points that Dr. Boulos makes:

Lead, mercury, cobalt, manganese, beryllium are present in pigments, ceramics and metal casts. They can poison through skin contact or inhalation.

Sculptors who solder and weld metal are exposed to "metal fume fever."

Solvents such as toluol, benzene, xylol, and carbon tetrachloride, which are used with paints and plastic resins, can cause liver and kidney damage, hepatitits, anemia, leukemia, pulmonary edema and skin troubles.

Acids used in etching and printmaking and plastics used in casting and laminating can also cause multiple organ damage.

Dr. Boulos says that most artists and craftsmen don't know the dangers of the materials they use and that warning labels are usually inadequate.

He urges proper ventialtion in the studio, with exhaust hoods or spray booths, and the use of a facial respirator mask when working with dangerous materials. Rubber gloves will protect the hands from caustics. Don't eat or smoke in the work area, he adds; clean up the place with a wet mop or a vacuum—not a broom; and wash your hands thoroughly after each artistic stint.

Young car thief stays jump ahead of Dallas police

DALLAS (AP) — A youthful car thief — too young to even be tried as a juvenile for allegedly swiping three cars — has Dallas County officials stumped.

Authorities were looking late Saturday for the 9-year-old youth, who walked out of the Children's Emergency Shelter Thursday with another 9-year-old and promptly stole his third car of the day, Grand Prairie Police Sgt. C.L. Miller said.

He and his 8-year-old brother had earlier allegedly swiped a luxury car. They were apprehended after driving the car through a fence and sideswiping a tree, Miller said.

Because they were not 10 years old, they were taken to the shelter instead of the juvenile hall. A child must be 10 years old before he can be handled as a juvenile, Miller said.

After what was described as a "frank discussion" between authorities, the boys, and the parents, authorities released the boys in the custody of the parents. "We thought we'd made some real progress," said David Donovan, a welfare caseworker.

A short time later, an automobile was stolen in Grand Prairie. An hour after the stolen car was reported, Dallas police spotted it being driven by the boys. After a chase, the car was stopped after it crashed into a mailbox and a traffic sign.

The boys were taken to the shelter again, but the 9-year-old youth and another boy slipped away and stole a station wagon. And they haven't been seen since.

At the time of the first car theft, Miller said, the boys were riding on a stolen bicycle. Despite their age, the boys are no strangers to police in the Dallas suburb of Grand Prairie. Last week they stole another car and have been implicated in about 20 bicycle thefts.

"He's very outward and has a good memory. With proper training and atmosphere he probably could turn out to be a pretty good boy," Miller said.

But he wasn't overly optimistic about the boy's future. "At this rate, he'll probably be in the pen by the time he's 17. They think it's fun and games," Miller added.

Donovan said the boy wants to be placed in a foster home, but he said he'll probably end up in some sort of treatment facility.

"He's manipulating the system. He wants to go to a foster home," Donovan added.

Phone service offered

A court-ordered desegration plan, primarily involving fourth, fifth and sixth graders, will go into effect in Midland when school starts Aug. 29.

Anyone with questions on the plan, its implementation, bus schedules or anything else, can get the answers through a phone service being sponsored by Midland Alliance, said Mrs. Pat Baskin, a member of the Midland Alliance steering committee.

The number for the service is 682-0024. The phone service will be in operation from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday during August, beginning Monday. The phones will be staffed by PTA and Action Line Fish volunteers.

Midland Alliance is an organization to promote a safe and orderly transition to the court-ordered integration plan.

Oil field accident kills one

BIG SPRING — An oil field accident 18 miles southeast of Big Spring Friday morning resulted in the death of 22-year-old Mike McClure of Colorado City.

McClure, employed at Riley Drilling Co., was found lying on the rig floor with his head against a piece of pipe, according to a spokesman at the company.

He apparently had been taking a battery cable off a 12-volt battery but it was unknown whether McClure died of electrical shock or as a result of a blow to the head.

The battery should not have given a fatal jolt, according to Peace Justice Gus Ochoterino Jr., but McClure did have burns on his chest.

He was taken by ambulance to Malone-Hogan Hospital emergency room where he was pronounced dead. Ochoterino said an autopsy was planned.

Services for McClure were at 10 a.m. Saturday morning in the Oak Street Baptist Church in Colorado City. Burial was in Colorado City Cemetery.

New group will form association

A homeowners-taxpayers group, which held its first meeting last Thursday, has decided to organize and form an association.

Purpose of the group is to bring tax increases back to the vote of the people, according to Pat Conway, one of the originators of the association.

Approximately 500 people joined at the first meeting. The next meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 18 at Furr's Cafeteria.

Band practice starts Monday

Midland High School summer band practice will begin at 8:30 a.m. Monday at the Midland High band hall. Members of the band should attend. Practice will include preparation for the first football game in September.

Car makes surprise garage entrance

The Keith Bohrer family was startled in the late afternoon Friday, when a car suddenly came crashing into the family's two-car garage.

It missed the entrance.

"Oh, it sounded, really ... like a loud clap of thunder," Mrs. Bohrer recalled, "and we heard someone scream. And we knew what it was. It was really frightening."

Margaret Bohrer said that she, her husband and 16-year-old son Steve were in their living room "reading the paper" when the 1969 sports car crashed through the brick wall of the garage at 3600 Stanolind Ave.

Midland police identified driver of the car that plowed into the garage as Billy Wayne Dodson, 16, of 4503 Cimarron Dr.

He and his only passenger, Wesley Joe Wadley, 16, of 4309 Leddy Dr., were injured.

Dodson was treated and released at Midland Memorial Hospital. Wadley was admitted for treatment and was being held for observation.

At the time of the accident the streets apparently were damp or slick from a recent light rain.

The car jumped the curb, crossed the yard, split a pine tree and hit a bush before it knocked down about an 18-foot section of brick and entered the garage.

No cars were parked in the garage at time of the crash.

Deferring retirement, benefits suggested

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps favors deferring mandatory retirement to age 68, and withholding full Social Security benefits until Americans reach that birthday, her chief spokesman said Saturday.

Mrs. Kreps, who has held that view for years, has discussed the plan with HEW Secretary Joseph Califano. But the proposal remains in the exploratory stage and is not administration policy, said Ernest A. Lotito, her communications director.

Mrs. Kreps believes that later retirement will give workers more flexibility in their lives and help prevent the Social Security system from bankruptcy.

The health, education and welfare secretary "doesn't have an opinion," but feels that "careful consideration might be a good idea," said Califano's spokeswoman, Eileen Shanahan.

The Social Security reserves, depleted by recession, would run out by 1983 without congressional action. President Carter has proposed a plan that would, in part, use general tax revenues to revive the fund.

Some key congressmen have opposed that plan, including the powerful Senate Finance Committee chairman, Russell B. Long, D-La. Long said instead he favors adding "whatever tax it takes to pay for the program."

Mrs. Kreps, a former vice president and economics professor at Duke University, has not placed a total savings figure on her plan, Lotito said.

Kreps "does believe that there are many reasons why retirement should not occur at 65 but rather should occur at some later time in life," Lotito said in a telephone interview.

"Among her reasons are opportunities to interrupt normal work life for mid-life educational opportunities and to give parents opportunities to spend time with their children while they're growing up.

"One of the side effects of this approach would be deferment of Social Security payments, and that would be money-saving in nature."

Mrs. Kreps believes her proposal could be accomplished within eight years if the Carter administration embraces the plan, Lotito said.

Under current law, Social Security recipients are entitled to partial benefits at age 62 and full benefits at 65.

Social Security pays benefits to 33 million persons. Under current law, an employe pays 5.85 per cent of his first $16,500 in annual salary, a maximum of $965 a year, to Social Security. The contribution is matched by the employer.

Even without enactment of additional bailout proposals, the tax rate and ceiling are scheduled to rise, from 6.05 per cent of $17,700 next year to 6.3 percent of $23,400 in 1982.

Services held for Blackstock

MORAN — Services for L. L. "Rabbit" Blackstock, 41, brother of Ray Blackstock and Bernice Petty of Midland, were Saturday at Moran Church of Christ. Gary Adams, former minister, officiated. Burial was in Moran Cemetery.

Blackstock died Wednesday at his home following an apparent heart attack.

Blackstock was born Dec. 31, 1935. He was a member of the American Legion, the Disabled American Veterans and had served in the U.S. Marine Corps.

Other survivors include his wife, five stepsons, another brother, three other sisters and two stepgrandchildren.

Rites Monday for Dick Peyton

Graveside services for Richard E. "Dick" Peyton, 64, formerly of Midland, will be at 2 p.m. Monday in Fairview Cemetery with the Rev. Duane Beauchamp, associate minister of St. Nicholas Episcopal Church, officiating, directed by Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Peyton died Friday in Brownwood of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Peyton was born Aug. 4, 1912, in Bokhoma, Okla. and was raised in Texarkana, Ark. In 1930, Peyton moved to Loving County, where he worked as a cowboy on the Driver Ranch. He moved to Detroit in 1937 and entered the military service with the 436th Anti-aircraft Artillery unit of the Army in 1940. He served five years, including combat in North Africa, Sicily, Italy, the D-Day invasion and the taking of Berlin. Peyton received a Bronze Star, a Defense Medal and a European, African and Middle Eastern Service Medal. After the war, he moved to Midland where he worked for Superior Oil Co. In 1952, he opened Peyton's Toys in the 300 block of E. Texas Ave. Peyton retired in 1970.

Survivors include three brothers, Fred J. Peyton of Odessa and W. L. Peyton and Bob Peyton, both of Midland, and two sisters, Mrs. R. M. Hoover of Oklahoma City and Mrs. Betty Peyton of Brownwood.

Honorary pallbearers will be Louie Koonce, Ken Griffin, Don Johnson, Gladney Smith, Verl Harner, Francis Stickney, David Ham, George Vannaman and Dub Gunter.

Midlander's sister dies

PLAINVIEW — Mrs. Joe (Tommye) Jackson, 69, of Plainview, sister of H.K. Thomas of Midland, died at 5:45 a.m. Saturday in a Plainview hospital.

Services will be at 4 p.m. Monday in the First Baptist Church at Plainview, with the Rev. Dr. Carlos McLeod, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Plainview Cemetery under the direction of Lemons Funeral Home.

Born Tommye Thomas on June 7, 1908, in Decatur, Mrs. Jackson moved to Plainview with her family in 1912. She attended schools in Plainview, including Wayland Baptist College. She taught in public schools in Plainview and the surrounding area 35 years. She married Joe Jackson in June 1959. Mrs. Jackson was a member of the Delphean Club, the Order of the Eastern Star and the Pink Ladies Auxiliary. She was also a member of the First Baptist Church of Plainview.

Other survivors include her husband and four sisters.

LAMESA — Services for Cliff R. Jamison, 43, of Lamesa, will be at 3 p.m. today in the First Baptist Church with the Rev. Cecil Foster officiating. Burial will be in Lamesa Memorial Park.

Jamison died at 5 p.m. Thursday in a Roswell, N.M., hospital from injuries suffered in an automobile accident June 25.

Jamison was a lifelong resident of Lamesa. He farmed near the Klondike community and was a member of the First Baptist Church.

Survivors include two daughters, Mona Rae of Amarillo and Lynnellen of Tucumcari, N.M.; a son, Jim Bob Jamison of Lamesa; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Jamison of Lamesa, and a sister, Mrs. June Santiago of Albuquerque, N.M.

Three suspects held in drug store burglary

STANTON — Three suspects are being held in the Martin County Jail in Stanton in the burglary early Saturday of a Stanton drug store according to Martin County Sheriff Dan Saunders.

Jackie Thompson, 22, Kenneth Hughes, 18, and David Jones, 17, all of Midland, are being held in lieu of $5,000 bond each. All have been charged with burglary, Saunders said.

Saunders said three persons were surprised by Stanton city patrolman Robert Harbin around 3:45 a.m. Harbin reported seeing a woman inside Walgreen Drug Store and two men in a car outside the store.

Upon seeing Harbin, the woman got into the car, which was driven away from the scene, Saunders said.

When the suspects did not stop, Harbin fired three shots at the car. One bullet hit the radiator and two others struck a tire. Harbin was afoot at the time.

The trio reportedly fled on foot. Thompson was arrested about dawn on Interstate 20 west of Stanton. Hughes and Jones were arrested later in Midland.

Officers said they recovered a sack containing about $1,000 worth of narcotics.

Midland man hospitalized after shooting

A Midland man remained in critical condition at Midland Memorial Hospital late Saturday night following a shooting incident Saturday afternoon.

J. R. Garlerton of 1104 E. Cowden, was shot in the right arm, the right foot and in the lower left portion of the abdomen, according to police reports.

Midland police said the shooting resulted from a family dispute. A .38 caliber pistol and a .32 caliber pistol were involved in the incident, according to police.

Police were called to the parking lot of the Leisure Lodge Nursing Home at 12:50 p.m. Saturday. Officers arrived at the scene at 12:52 p.m. to find a man lying on the parking lot. A woman was reported kneeling over him and several persons were standing around him, police said.

The woman identified herself as Garlerton's wife, police said. She had reportedly taken Garlerton to Leisure Lodge, thinking it was Parkview Hospital.

The shooting took place in Garlerton's home, police said.

Fire threatens 750,000 acres in north Alaska

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Forty tundra and timber fires in northern Alaska had spread to more than 750,000 acres Saturday and threatened at least one village, the Bureau of Land Management said.

A BLM spokeswoman said record hot weather, with temperaures in the 80s, has turned the northland into a tinderbox. A drought has left the area with only 10 per cent of its normal moisture, she said.

Of the 40 fires, six of them began Friday, the BLM said.

At least two major fires were abandoned by suppression crews when they grew so fast it was considered impossible to control them.

About 850 men were fighting fires. Another 600 persons and 70 aircraft were working in support, the spokeswoman said.

A crew of firefighters was rushed into the Shungnak area, about 150 miles east of Kotzebue, early Saturday when it appeared a 73,000-acre blaze was heading towards the village.

The spokeswoman said another crew would make a second try at bringing under control a 900-acre blaze about six miles west of Five Mile construction camp along the trans-Alaska pipeline. The line itself was not considered to be in danger, she said.

The fires are far from a record. During 1968 and 1969, fires covered more than a million Alaskan acres, including one giant blaze of 600,000.

The BLM estimates that it has spent about $10 million so far this summer fighting Alaskan fires.

Alan Wootan, first baseman for Goodrich Service Center of Midland, is greeted by teammates after hitting first of two homers against the Tomball Rangers Saturday in the Men's Open State Slow Pitch Softball Tournament at Hogan Park. Wootan is greeted by James Donnell, Jim Gallemore, Donnie Thompson and Greg Harless. (Staff Photo by Bruce Partain).

Eight teams remain unbeaten in tourney

Goodrich Service Center of Midland headed a group of eight teams who advanced into Saturday night's winner's bracket quarterfinals in the Men's State Open Slow Pitch Softball Tournament being held at Hogan Park.

Joining Goodrich on that elite list of teams who were still unbeaten after three rounds in this three-day double elimination event were Mr. Burger of Amarillo, Hamilton-Bryan of Wichita Falls, D&D Farm & Ranch of Seguin, the Alcapulco A's out of Killeen, Brazos Sports of Lake Jackson, Barrett's of Abilene, and BB&L Builders of Freeport.

Eleven other teams were still alive in the loser's bracket at press time Saturday night, including HNG No. One of Midland.

A third Tall City team, Schumann Engineering, was beaten earlier Saturday by Brazos, 14-10, and then was eliminated shortly after that by Aaron-Kimball of Waco, 22-5.

Action gets underway today at 9 a.m., with semifinal contests in both the winner's and loser's brackets. The championship game will begin at 1:15 p.m., with a second game to follow it if necessary.

Barrett's of Abilene, champions in the holiday tournament held at Hogan Park earlier this month, and one of the favorites this weekend, had little trouble in its third round contest, blasting Carpet Warehouse of Amarillo, 34-8. Barrett's had 11 home runs in the one-sided win, including three by Donny Wood, and two apiece by Keith Fletcher, Henry Peacock, amd Jared Moss. Mike Fraley and Hugh Sandefer each had one home run.

In another one-sided battle, BB&L Builders of Freeport dropped HNG No. One into the loser's bracket, pounding the Tall City team, 23-9, with the help of nine round trippers. Kelly, Brooks and Callais had a pair, and Jones, Norton and Smith contributed one apiece. Scharbauer, Cramer and Burr hit home runs for HNG in a losing effort.

AFTER MAKING it into the third round of the winner's bracket, Tinsley's Bucs of Huntsville was first beaten by D&D Farm and Ranch, 26-22, and was then eliminated by the Lubbock Raiders in a loser's bracket battle, 21-15.

(Related story, 5-B)

The Raiders, who finished third in the holiday tournament here, were upset by C&H Sports of San Angelo in the opening round Friday, but have won their last three games, and are still alive.

GOODRICH WON its second game of the tourney Saturday morning, polishing off stubborn Jay's Auto Sales of El Paso, 9-3 and there were no home runs in that tilt.

In other games Saturday morning in the winner's bracket, HNG #1 and Schumann Engineering, both Tall City entries, won their second straight too.

HNG took a 10-7 victory over Marion's Strokers from Seguin and Schumann edged past the Gainesville First Realtors, 6-3.

Jim Burr and Kenny Wood slapped homers for HNG as it moved into the next round against Freeport's BB & L Builders, 17-15 victors over El Paso's Western Auto team.

The Brazos Sports from Lake Jackson, played its first game of the tourney and edged past Baggett-Bridwell of Wichita Falls, 14-12. Jones and Warny had two homers each for the winners while Baker connected for one for Baggett-Bridwell.

ANGLETON'S J'S opened play in the tourney by polishing off C&H Sports from San Angelo, 20-15. C&H had upset the Lubbock Raiders late Friday night in a real stunner, 17-16. Dick Thomas, John Morgan and John Chlebek hit triples for Angleton while teammates James Paulette and Morgan added home runs. Reggie Williams and Ken Dierschke homered for San Angleo with Dierschke hitting a pair. The Oil Patch Resturant from Odessa nipped the El Paso Astros, 8-7, mainly on homers by Shelton and Veith. Ortiz homered for El Paso Carpet Warehouse of Amarillo knocked off Paris Lumber, 11-7 with Yogi Rossi connecting for a homer. The Tinsley's Bucs of Huntsville ripped Toco of Paris, 18-3 with Joe Boaz, Mike Brumberg and Joe Jackson powering homers.

SMALL TOOL of Big Spring took its second win of the tourney, downing the Tomball VFW, 7-6. Jody Flores rapped a three-bagger for the winners.

Another Tomball team — the Rangers, edged the Lewisville Lobos, 17-15 in a slugfest. Lewisville had opened the tourney with a 15-4 victory over Round Rock. Scott Fiene hit two homers while Merv Johnson and Don Garland added single shots.

The Acapulco A's of Killeen showed some power in ripping the San Marcos Sonics, 26-11. Lynn Strickland poked a grand-slam while Eddy Buhidap also homered for the Sonics, but three homers by the A's Wade along with two by Foster, was too much to overcome. McNeish, McGarity, Doughtry and and Lambert also hit homers for the South Texas power.

In loser's bracket games, D&D Farm and Ranch of Seguin took an easy 16-1 victory over the Abilene Realtors with Ken Keil, Dale Stollenwreck, Joe Skyloss and Jeff Corley all homering.

BROWNWOOD'S BEARS edged past Jay's Auto of El Paso, 5-4 and C&M Sports bounced back on triples by Baty and James Bible to blank Fort Stockton, 12-0.

HAMILTON-BRYAN of Wichita Falls came roaring back to blister Oil Patch, 14-0, to get back into the thick of things. Frazier, Brown, Robertson, Gossett, Townsend and Dorman all homered for the winners.

In other games, Mr. Burger of Amarillo stayed unbeaten by beating the Angleton J's, 12-6 while Goodrich took a tough 12-10 victory over the Tomball Rangers.

Al Wootan slammed two homers while teammates Mark Withrow, Don Schroeder, Mark Thomas and Bud Glaspie also homered, but the Rangers scored five runs in the seventh inning to make things interesting. Catcher Bill Bell homered for Tomball.

In other games Saturday afternoon, the Lewisville Lobos outslugged the Brownwood Bears, 26-20; Lubbock's Raiders downed the San Marcos Sonics, 19-4 and the Tomball VFW to the tune of 17-4.

Philadelphia tournament has three sharing lead

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jerry McGee and Bob Gilder, playing in the same group and laughing and joking all the way, matched six-under-par 65s and moved into a tie for the third-round lead Saturday in the $200,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic.

"It's a lot of fun playing in a group like that, where everybody is making birdies," said the 26-year-old Gilder, winner of the Phoenix Open a year ago. "Everybody was loose and easy, relaxed, joking, just having a good time out there. It was a lot of fun."

They finished with matching 54-hole totals of 203, 10 under par on the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club course, a tight little 6,687-yard layout that was dampened by overnight rains.

The third member of their group was Bill Rogers, who had a 66 and goes into today's final round just one shot back at 204.

"Jerry and Bob both had real fine first nines and I was just kind of hanging around getting in the way, then I kind of got my little thing going on the back nine," said the chipper Rogers, who played that side in 31. "Man, that's really fun to be in something like that."

In all, the three-some accounted for 19 birdies.

McGee, who has won $195,000 without taking a title in the last 1½ years, holed two birdie putts in the 20-foot range on the front side, twice got his approaches inside of six feet and made a single bogey, from a bunker on the fourth.

New Zealand's John Lister, who made eagle two when he holed out from the left rough on his second shot of the cool, cloudy day, had a share of the lead until he bogeyed the 17th hole. The lanky Lister hit a spectator with his drive and was short of the green in two. He finished with a 69 and was tied with Gilder one stroke off the pace at 204.

Blalock captures three-stroke lead in Pocono Classic

POCONO MANOR, Pa. (AP) — Jane Blalock birdied five of six holes in one spree and shot a three-under-par 70 to take a three-stroke lead Saturday in the $75,000 Pocono Northeast Classic.

A bogey on the 18th kept her from a four-stroke lead. Her 36hole total was five-under-par 141.

Amy Alcott headed a group of four players in second position at two-under 144. Ms. Alcott, who had a piece of the first-round lead, shot a one-over 74 Saturday. Also in the group at 144 were Debbie Austin, Sally Little and Sandra Post.

"I played ordinary golf on the front nine and super golf on the back," Miss Blalock said. "I could have had a birdie on every hole on the back nine except 18."

Miss Blalock, who trailed the leaders by one stroke after the first round, played the front side of the par-73 Pocono Manor Golf Club in a one-over 38. But she got hot on the back nine, knocking in birdies at 11, 12, 14, 15 and 16.

She said her plan for the tournament was to adjust her aim "to hit everything to a target 10 yards short of the green. I want to hit it high and straight. I'm trying to maneuver the ball a little."

Looking ahead to the final round today, she said: "I used to say I preferred to come from behind and play an aggressive game. Now I've learned you have to be aggressive in the lead. I don't plan to play any different tommorow; you can't be tentative."

Dot Germain, another of the first-round leaders, ballooned to 78 and dropped back to 148. Pat Meyers shot the tournament's best round, a six-under 67, to put her at even par 146.

Kathy Mant got her first career hole in one with a three iron on the 180-yard 17th hole. Her second-round 74 left her at 151.

Newhouse stands out

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Veteran Robert Newhouse gained 70 yards in 13 carries and scored once on a five-yard pass from quarterback Roger Staubach in a Dallas Cowboy intra-squad srimmage Saturday.

Coach Tom Landry said the 205-pound Newhouse was the "bright spot" of the scrimmage.

Landry said Newhouse, who suffered leg injuries last season, "has worked very hard this summer — and extremely well."

The scrimmage was largely a defensive struggle after Staubach connected with Drew Pearson on a 17-yard scoring tally. At one point, the first team defensive unit held a combination second and third-string offensive group to no gain on six straight plays.

Second-year cornerback Aaron Kyle led the defense with two interceptions — returning one for 33 yards and the other for 24.

Tony Dorsett, the Cowboys' No. 1 draft choice, did not play in the scrimmage because of a bruised knee.

The Cowboys open their pre-season schedule Saturday night at home against the San Diego Chargers.

Cubs game washed out

SHREVEPORT, La. — The second game of the fivegame series between the Midland Cubs and Shreveport Captains was rained out Saturday night and will be made up in a doubleheader tonight.

Midland had taken the first game of the series Friday to the tune of 6-5.

The Cubs return home to Cubs Stadium Friday night when they open a five-game set with the San Antonio Dodgers.

Then they hit the road again until Aug. 20 when they battle the Amarillo Gold Sox in a five-game series.

Bears topple Jets, 20-6

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Defensive gems by Don Rives, Waymond Bryant and Jerry Meyers helped Chicago to 17 points in seven minutes of the second half Saturday, leading the Bears to a 20-6 victory over the New York Jets in the season's first National Football League exhibition game.

Rives, a fourth-year linebacker from Texas Tech, intercepted a Steve Joachim pass and lumbered 38 yards for a touchdown to send the Bears in front 10-6 late in the third quarter in the annual Pro Football Hall of Fame game.

Bryant, another fourth-year linebacker from Tennessee State, recovered a fumble that led to one of two field goals by Bob Thomas, a 49-yarder with 49 seconds left in the third quarter.

On the next play, Meyers, a second-year tackle from Northern Illinois, recovered a fumble by Clark Gaines at the Jets' 38, firing the Bears on another touchdown drive.

Mike Phipps, a Cleveland Browns' castoff, quarterbacked the Bears to their victorious rally. The veteran from Purdue rifled a three-yard scoring pass to Greg Latta to wrap up the decision.

A crowd of nearly 20,000, including Hall of Fame inductees Bart Starr, Forrest Gregg, Frank Gifford, Gale Sayers and Bill Willis, watched in muggy, 82-degree sunshine in Fawcett Stadium.

The Bears' triumph gave the National Football Conference a 5-2 lead over the American Football Conference in the Shrine's series. Chicago also won in Canton in 1968, beating the Dallas Cowboys 30-24. It was the first appearance here for the Jets.

Bob Avellini, the Bears' No. 1 quarterback the last two seasons, connected on only six of 18 passes for 52 yards in the first half. Phipps, who suffered a shoulder injury in the 1976 opener against New York, played the entire second half and hit nine of 13 passes for 66 yards and one TD.

The Jets' defense was dominant in the first 30 minutes, holding the Bears to just four first downs. The Bears did not muster a single first down in five possessions in the second quarter.

Meanwhile, Pat Leahy booted second-quarter field goals of 35 and 43 yards.

Rangers win

ARLINGTON (AP) — Catcher Jim Sundberg led off the bottom of the 12th inning with a solo homer off Detroit reliever John Hiller to lift the Texas Rangers to a 6-5 victory over the Tigers Saturday night.

Detroit tied the game in the ninth when Mickey Stanley singled with two outs and Ron LeFlore drove a triple high off the wall in center.

The Rangers loaded the bases in the bottom of the ninth with two outs, but Hiller who came on in relief of Steve Foucault to strike out Sundberg and end the rally.

Sundberg's homer was only his second of the year and made a winner of Paul Lindbald, 3-3, the last of four Ranger pitchers. Hiller, 5-11, was the loser.

Dodgers post win

MONTREAL (AP) — Winning pitcher Rick Rhoden smashed a three-run home run to cap a seven-run explosion in the first inning as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Montreal Expos 7-4 Saturday night.

Rhoden's home run, his second of the season, came off reliever Fred Holdsworth after the Dodgers had driven veteran right-hander Jackie Brown from the mound. Brown, 7-8, ran into control problems early, walking three of the first four men he faced. Steve Garvey then bounced a single to left to score Dave Lopes and Reggie Smith, and Dusty Baker drilled a double to the left-field wall to score Ron Cey and Garvey.

After Brown gave up a single to Joe Simpson, Holdsworth came in to fan Steve Yeager before Rhoden smacked a 2-2 pitch over the left-field wall.

Lopes then drew his second walk of the inning and got his second of three steals during the game before Bill Russell drew a walk. But Holdsworth got Smith to fly out to shallow center on the 59th pitch of the inning for the third out.

Rhoden, 12-7, gave up four runs on nine hits in the six innings he worked. Mike Garman, the third Dodgers pitcher who shut out the Expos over the last two innings, got his sixth save.

Astros thump Chicago Cubs

HOUSTON (AP) — Enos Cabell's bases-clearing double capped an eight-run Houston explosion in the seventh inning as the Houston Astros thumped the National League East division-leading Chicago Cubs 11-3 Saturday.

A helmet-night crowd of 42,916, the largest Houston home crowd of the season, saw the Astros tie a club record with eight doubles in a nine-inning game.

Houston took a 3-0 lead in the second on Bill Buckner's error, an RBI single by Terry Puhl and a run-scoring double by Cesar Cedeno.

Milwaukee topples Toronto in seventh

TORONTO (AP) — Don Money's two-run double keyed a three-run seventh inning as the Milwaukeee Brewers edged the Toronto Blue Jays 3-2 Saturday night.

It was Toronto's ninth straight defeat.

Robin Yount and Cecil Cooper led off the seventh with singles and scored on Money's double, knotting the score at 2-2. Money moved to third on a disputed play in which reliever Pete Vuckovich was charged with a wild pitch.

Money scored the winning run when Vuckovich mishandled Jamie Quirk's slow roller back to the mound for an error.

Toronto scored its runs on Otto Velez' RBI single in the fourth and Hector Torres' solo homer in the fifth, his fourth of the year.

The victory went to starter Jim Slaton, 8-9, while Jeff Bryd, 1-4, took the loss.

Pittsburgh nabs win over Braves

ATLANTA (AP) — Bill Robinson's eighth-inning grand slammer, his second this week, powered the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 10-6 victory over the Atlanta Braves Saturday night.

It was the ninth victory in 10 games and the 20th in 26 for the Pirates, who had trailed 5-0 after three innings.

Robinson's homer, his 14th of the year, highlighted a five-run rally.

Pittsburgh gained a 6-6 tie on a soft, high throw to the plate which was scored as an error for Cito Gaston, allowing Fernando Gonzalez to score. Gonzalez had singled and advanced to third on pinch hitter Jim Fregosi's single.

Following a sacrifice, Dave Parker was walked intentionally, setting the stage for Robinson's homer off reliever Dave Campbell.

Jeff Burroughs gave Atlanta a 3-0 lead with his 24th home run, in the first inning, following singles by Jerry Royster and Garry Matthews. Gaston had a two-run single in the third and the Braves scored an unearned run in the fourth when Mario Mendoza dropped a pop fly.

Trim roster

CHESTER, Pa. (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles trimmed their National Football League roster to 76 players Saturday by waiving two rookie free agents, offensive guard Steve Hoins of Nebraska and linebacker Nate Toran of Rutgers.

The team will not practice Sunday.

Bethea still holding out

NACOGDOCHES, Tex. (AP) — Defensive end Elvin Bethea, involved in a contract dispute with the Houston Oilers, reported to practice Saturday after holding out for six days.

Bethea said the matter remains unsolved.

"I can't make any statements right now, but I was advised by my attorney to report to camp," Bethea said.

Bethea reportedly was fined $500 each day he did not show up for practice.

Fought gains golfing finals

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — John Fought of Portland, Ore., will meet defending champion Bill Loeffler of Denver today in the final round of the 56th Annual Broadmoor Men's Invitational golf tournament.

Both men survived Saturday's quarterfinal and semifinal competition over the par 72, 7,032 yard Broadmoor East course.

In the quarterfinals, Loeffler defeated David Edwards of Edmond, Okla., one-up. Lee Mikle of Camarillo, Calif., edged Warren Simmons of Colorado Springs 6 and 4.

Fought downed John Grace of Dallas, Tex., 6 and 5 in another quarterfinal match, while David Lee of Englewood, Colorado's high school golf champion, beat Carter Mathies of Evergreen 2 and 1.

In semifinal competition, Loeffler, a member of the Arizona State University varsity golf team, went two up after nine holes en route to a 4 and 3 victory over Mikle.

Fought had a one-up lead at the end of nine holes and went on to defeat Lee 4 and 3. Fought plays at Brigham Young University, but was not on last year's varsity team.

Gildemeister gains semifinals

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Unseeded sensation Hans Gildemeister of Chile Saturday joined top-seeded Guillermo Vilas, second-seeded Eddie Dibbs and seventh-seeded Phil Dent in the semifinals of the $125,000 Louisville International Tennis Classic.

The 21-year-old Gildemeister wo the last three points of a tiebreaker in taking a thrilling 7-5, 4-6, 7-6 decision over 11th seeded Victor Pecci of Paraguay, the Chilean's third victory in as many days over a seeded opponent.

Vilas, of Argentina, made short work of his 38-year-old coach, Ion Tiriac of Romania, breezing 6-0, 6-1.

Dibbs, of Miami Beach, Fla., coasted past unseeded Bernie Mitton of South Africa 6-4, 6-3, while Dent surprised third-seeded Dick Stockton of Dallas, 7-6, 6-3.

Gildemeister's victory was the highlight of the day as he and Pecci spent over two hours trading blows like gladiators in an arena.

The back-and-forth action finally boiled down to the 12-point tiebreaker.

Gildemeister jumped ahead 6-4 in the tiebreaker when a Pecci lob was just outside the baseline. Gildemeister needed only one more point to close out the match, but netted two shots and watched helplessly as Pecci hammered a backhand winner.

Suddenly, Gildemeister was within a point of elimination. But the nerveless left-hander ripped a short Pecci volley for a winner, jumped ahead 8-7 when Pecci couldn't handle a serve and won it with a brilliant backhand passing shot that landed about an inch inside the line.

Dent broke open a tense match with Stockton by running off seven straight games.

Cardinals dump slumping Reds

CINCINNATI (AP) — Tony Scott's pinch-hit ninth-inning double over first base snapped a 1-1 tie, and Jerry Mumphrey added a two-run double to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 4-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Saturday night.

The Cardinals' outburst came against Fred Norman, 9-8, whose teammates have scored only one run for him in his last four starts. Norman's loss was his fifth in a row while the Reds have lost 12 of their last 14.

Butch Metzger, 2-0, the third of four St. Louis pitchers, threw two innings of shutout relief to gain the victory.

Keith Hernandez walked to open the ninth and moved to second on a sacrifice. After Ken Reitz was walked intentionally, Mike Tyson grounded to Joe Morgan at second. Morgan flipped to shortstop Dave Concepcion for the forceout, but Concepcion dropped the ball attempting to throw to first.

Hernandez slugged his 11th home run in the sixth inning for the Cardinals' first run.

San Diego captures win

NEW YORK (AP) — George Hendrick blasted a home run and two doubles and drove in five San Diego runs Saturday to lead the Padres to an 8-6 victory over the New York Mets.

The Padres pounded 16 hits off four New York hurlers, with starter Nino Espinosa, 5-8, taking the loss. Dave Freisleben, 4-5, lasted 5 1-3 innings to pick up the victory. He was relieved by Tom Griffin and Rollie Fingers, who earned his 22nd save.

Hendrick capped a three-run Padre outburst in the first inning with a two-run double. In the third inning, Hendrick doubled and scored on Dave Roberts' doubled.

Roberts drove in another run with a fifth-inning double and Hendrick hit his three-run homer, his 13th of the season, in the sixth after Bill Almon singled and Dave Winfield was intentionally walked.

The Mets scored twice in the fourth inning. Felix Millan singled with one out in the fourth. Steve Henderson singled and went to second on center fielder Hendrick's error. Millan tried to score on the play but was thrown out at the plate.

After John Milner walked, Mike Vail doubled home two runs.

The Mets pulled closer with a single run in the sixth inning and two more in the seventh, highlighted by Lenny Randle's two-run triple. Fingers then came on and allowed an additional run in the eighth on a walk and John Stearns' RBI double.

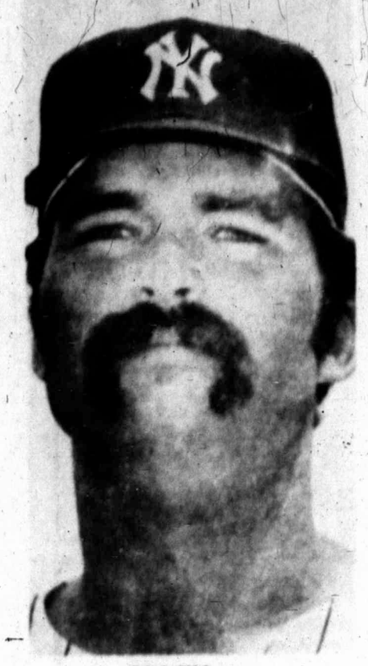
Monzon recovers to score win over Rodrigo Valdes for title



Dick Tidrow

MONTE CARLO (AP) — Carlos Monzon got up from a second-round knockdown Saturday night and outpointed Rodrigo Valdes in what the Argentine said was the last fight of his seven-year reign as world middleweight champion.

The victory for Monzon, in his 14th title defense, was a unanimous 15-round decision. The judges and referee each gave the champion clear margins although Valdes started fast, took the fight to the Monzon in the middle rounds, and then closed with a flurry.

It was the 82nd fight without a loss for Monzon, dating back to 1964. There have been nine draws in the string.

Monzon, who will be 35 Aug. 7, owed the victory to a spurt in the ninth, 10th and 11th rounds when he seemed to change gears after a sluggish start and battered the Colombian challenge.

In the ninth round Monzon fired a strong right hand to Valdes' head, jerking it back. A series of strong rights followed.

The 10th followed the same pattern. After taking a series of punches from both hands, Valdes began wobbling in the center of the ring. One short right opened a deep cut over the Colombian's eye and Monzon appeared close to stopping Valdes.

But the advantage slipped away in the 11th round. Monzon was still able to reach Valdes' head, but he never again had Valdes in trouble.

Monzon split the final rounds with Valdes as each man grew wearier. Valdes was never able to get close enough to Monzon to do any damage as he tried to pick up points with a flurry of punches in the 14th and 15th rounds.

The Colombian seemed to give Monzon more trouble, however, than in their first fight here in June, 1976, when the Argentine knocked Valdes down and won going away.

Valdes was more aggressive, frequently beating Monzon to the punch this time, but he was unable to capitalize on his single big opportunity. That came in the second round after a small cut opened on the right side of the champion's nose.

Valdes then caught Monzon coming in with a short right hand to the head and the champion dropped to one knee.

Monzon rose immediately holding his hands above his head as if to signal he was not hurt, but the referee, Ronald Dakin of Britain, counted to seven.

Monzon finished out the round without trouble and was completely again himself in the third, dosing out quick jabs.

Valdes stayed on his feet but suffered a deep cut over his left eye in the second half of the fight.

Nino Benvenuti, the Italian champion who Monzon beat for the title in 1970, said afterwards: "Valdes is just too small. Monzon is an extraordinary fighter and as far as I'm concerned he won easily."

Roy Smalley's home run wins for Twins in 14th

CLEVELAND (AP) — Roy Smalley walloped a leadoff home run in the 14th inning to give the Minnesota Twins a 4-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday.

Smalley's fifth homer of the season, over the left field fence, came off reliever Sid Monge, 1-2, and extended Cleveland's losing streak to six games.

The victory went to Minnesota reliever Tom Johnson, 12-3, who pitched the final 4 2-3 innings. Johnson allowed just one hit and walked only one.

A one-out single by Dan Ford in the 13th inning was the first hit off Cleveland pitching since a single by Craig Kusick in the sixth. Don Hood and Pat Dobson combined for six innings of one-hit relief for the Indians before Monge took over with one out and one on in the 12th.

The Twins grabbed a 3-2 lead with three runs in the sixth. Rod Carew started the rally with a one-out solo homer, his 10th of the season. Butch Wynegar then walked and Glenn Adams singled. Third basemen Buddy Bell misplayed Larry Hisle's grounder, loading the bases, and pinch-hitter Kusick stroked a two-run single off Hood.

Andre Thornton, who earlier drove in a run with a double, knotted the game at 3-3 with a homer in the eighth, his 16th of the year.

White, Tidrow guide Yankees over Oakland

OAKLAND (AP) — Roy White drove in four runs with a home run and three singles to pace the New York Yankees to a 9-3 victory over the Oakland A's Saturday.

Don Gullett, with relief help from Dick Tidrow, picked up his 10th victory of the season against three defeats.

White homered in the third inning, his ninth of the season, singled to drive in two runs in the fifth inning and singled home his final RBI in the eighth.

Reggie Jackson drove in two New York runs with his 18th homer of the year with the bases empty in the second inning and an infield out in the fifth when the Yankees broke the game open with four runs.

Rick Langford, 7-12, gave up six runs before leaving the game in the fifth inning. Reliever Paul Mitchell was pounded for seven hits and the other three New York runs in the 11-3 innings of relief.

Padres activate ace lefthander

NEW YORK (AP) — Cy Young Award winner Randy Jones was taken off the disabled list by the San Diego Padres, the National League club announced Saturday.

Jones, who was placed on the 21-day disabled list on June 18, has a 4-7 record and a 4.61 earned run average this season.

The 27-year-old California native, the first San Diego pitcher to win 20 games in a season, had an operation on the left arm to correct a nerve related injury to the bicep muscle last October. He had hurt the arm in a game against Cincinnati in the closing week of the 1976 season. However, the arm has been slow in responding to treatment.

Jones had a 22-14 record last season and compiled a 2.74 earned run average in winning the Cy Young Award. He also was the starting pitcher for the NL in the 1976 All-Star game.

Luzinski's slam wins

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Greg Luzinski hit a grand slam home run in the eighth inning and Richie Hebner's two-run homer keyed a three-run third inning as the Philadelphia Phillies posted a 9-3 victory over the San Francisco Giants Saturday night.

Luzinski's seventh career grand slam, over the 408-foot sign in center field, came after Jay Johnstone tripled and Larry Bowa and Mike Schmidt walked. Garry Maddox also hit his second triple of the game and scored on a sacrifice fly in the eighth.

The Phillies trailed 3-1 when Luzinski led off the third with a single. Hebner then socked his 12th homer to tie the game.

Upsets top tourney play

By BOB DILLON

Upsets set the stage Friday and early Saturday morning in the opening round of the Men's State Open Slow Pitch Softball Tournament at Hogan Park.

Aaron-Kimball's Brewers from Waco were polished off by Hamilton-Bryan of Wichita Falls while the Lubbock Raiders and San Angelo Spectrum also bit the dust in opening games.

One nice thing about losing in this tourney is the fact that you can still come back through the loser's bracket to claim the title.

Forty-one teams squared off to open the big threeday affair with 12 games being played Friday night.

IN GAMES late Friday night with the two-hour rain delay, Hamilton-Bryan knocked off the pre-tourney favorite, Aaron-Kimball, 21-15, in a game that finished after 2 a.m. Saturday.

Manuel Robert ripped four homers for Aaron-Kimball, but it wasn't enough. Darrell Frazier was the big hero for Hamilton-Bryan with a grand-slam blast in the seventh inning to break up a 17-15 game.

Jerry Gossett, J. W. Young and Maurice Roberston also hit homers for the Red River crew.

Besides Robert's four homers, Gary Hughes, Stan Schlueter, Satch Sanders and Warren had round-trippers for the Waco entry.

In other games, Abilene Barrett's had to struggle before beating the Surrey Shop from Weatherford, 8-6. Donnie Wood and Mike Murphey hit homers for Barrett's while Bourland hit one for the Surrey Shop.

A BIG UPSET came when C&H Sports of San Angelo beat the Lubbock Raiders, 17-16. C&H scored 12 runs in the first inning, but the Raiders couldn't quite catch up.

Gary Baty powered four homers for the winners while Glen Dierckle added three more.

Dudley Coapland went five-for-five at the plate for the Lubbock team, including a homer while Ray Patterson and Randy Barrett also homered.

Mr. Burger of Amarillo downed Walls Ind. of Cleburne, 16-12 on homers by John Robertson and Dick Jay, while HNG #1 of Midland bombed Big Spring Texaco, 21-6. Jim Burr had three homers and Clarence Scharbauer two for the Tall City team.

Schumann Engineering of Midland also won, 19-12 over the Brownwood Bears. Joey Dudenhoeffer, Danny Krawietz, and Timmons homered for the winners.

BAGGETT-BRIDWELL of Wichita Falls romped past Round Rock, 19-9 with Mike Smith hitting four homers.

In other opening round games, Carpet Warehouse of Amarillo whipped San Angelo Spectrum, 17-9 on homers by Jackson, Cherry, Crawford, Brady, Barrick and Gasper. Sandy Lawrence and Scotty Chastain homered for the Concho City team.

Small Tool of Big Spring zipped past Fort Stockton, 22-5 with Wayne Krause knocking four homers over the fence for the winners.

Oil Patch Restaurant beat a late entry — Andrews, 12-10, to wind up the first round of action Friday.

Soderholm's home run hands Chisox victory

CHICAGO (AP) — Eric Soderholm's three-run homer in the seventh inning Saturday powered the Chicago White Sox to a 6-4 victory over the Kansas City Royals Saturday, stretching Chicago's lead to 5½ games in the American League West.

After the White Sox stranded nine runners in the first five innings and had two others thrown out at the plate, the Sox scored twice in the sixth on Jorge Orta's two-run single to cut Kansas City's lead to 3-2. Orta slammed his 10th homer of the season in the eighth inning.

Oscar Gamble and Chet Lemon singled in the seventh before Soderholm smashed his 14th homer into the left field seats off loser Doug Bird, 8-2.

Francisco Barrios, 11-4, was the winner although he needed ninth-inning help.

George Brett slammed Barrios' first pitch of the game six rows deep into the right field upper deck to give the Royals a 1-0 lead. Doubles by Amos Otis and Fred Patek made it 2-0 in the fifth, and the Royals added another run in the sixth on Hal McRae's single and John Mayberry's bloop double.

Ninth-inning singles by Otis, Darrell Porter and Joe Lahoud scored Kansas City's final run and brought in relievers Lerrin LaGrow and Dave Hamilton, Hamilton getting his fourth save of the season.

The White Sox left 12 men on base, including seven in the first three innings. In addition to having two men thrown out at the plate in the first inning, the Sox also left the bases loaded.

Laufer, Perry in MCC lead

Walt Laufer and Wes Perry combined to shoot a 13-under-par 59 Saturday, and take the opening round lead in the Men's Hi-Lo Team Golf Championship being held at Midland Country Club.

The final round of play gets underway early today in the low ball event.

Seven duos carded 60's Saturday, and are bunched together in second, one stroke off the pace. They include Jim Lacey and Tom Brandt; W.B. Newberry and Bob Winkler; Dave Griffin and Fred Goodman; Ken Dean and Dr. Robert White; Andy Shapiro and Clarence Scharbauer; Bill Chancellor and Russ Ramsland; and Charles Long and John Euston.

Seven more teams of competitors stand two strokes back of the leaders, at 61. In that group are Pete Montgomery and Jim Steadman; Gene Motter amd Buddy Redden; Jack Huff and Dave George; D.D. Ferris and John Bullard; Bill and Russell Yost; Bill Harris and Bill Gesell; and Bob Coleman and Ralph Preston.

Waltrip gains pole slot for Grand National race

MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip won his first superspeedway pole position, and Bobby Allison earned a front row starting position for the first time this season in qualifying Saturday for today's $125,000 500-mile Grand National stock car race.

"We're a young team, and we're learning more all the time, but we've finally got the right people worjing in the right places," said Waltrip after his run at 147.591 miles per hour around the 2½-mile Pocono International Raceway.

"We have a good engine man, knowledgeable people setting up the chassis, and I think experience has made me a better driver too," said Waltrip.

"We won at Nashville in our last race, and we're on the pole here. I'd have to say I feel better about the future than any time this year."

Allison was also in a good mood after gaining his best qualifying position since switching to a AMC Matador for 1977.

"We've been gaining a little all season, and lately we've been gaining a lot," said Allison, who was less than onetenth of a second slower than Waltrip's Chevrolet at 147.434 m.p.h. "After finishing second at Nashville, we came back and put that motor on the dynamometer and picked up another 20 horsepower.

"We still aren't running as fast as I think we can run, but I'm really pleased."

Disappointed, at least mildly, was Buddy Baker who was on what he termed "a super lap" when the qualifying clocks malfunctioned. He was allowed to requalify, but he didn't think his official speed of 146.582 was as fast as his first attempt.

Waltrip agreed. "I thought Buddy might have been a little faster than me on his first try." Baker starts seventh.

Defending champion Richard Petty qualified fifth fastest at 145.979, while Cale Yarborough was next at 146.694.

The race, scheduled for a 12 p.m. CDT start.

Oh leads Giants

TOKYO (AP) — Sadaharu Oh blasted his 26th home run of the season, a three-run shot, to lead the Central League-leading Yomiuri Giants to a 6-3 victory over the Hanshin Tigers at Osaka's Koshien Stadium Saturday.

Seahawk injured

CHENEY, Wash. (AP) — The Seattle Seahawks' defensive player of the year last season, second-year tackle Steve Niehaus, will undergo surgery on his troublesome right shoulder and will be out from 10 to 12 weeks, says Coach Jack Patera.

Patera said today "the effect of this injury to Niehaus is a good-sized blow" and that he had "counted on Niehaus to be an integral part of this year's Seahawk defense. Steve gave us the pass rush we need so much."

Niehaus suffered a minor shoulder dislocation.

'Ring My Love With Diamonds,' Part 4

'Only One Can Win at Solitaire'

In this last of an original four-part series, mystery weaver John D. MacDonald concludes a tale with as many bizarre facets as the ill-starred Hope Diamond. His latest character, gimlet-eyed private detective "Duke" Rhoades, sifts through strange corruptions behind the respectable facade of "quality folks" about town . . . and comes up with a surprise ending that is trickily constructed on 32-karat logic.

STORY SO FAR: Flying to Mexico, private eye "Duke" Rhoades is following a tip on the whereabouts of Anne Farley — a plain-vanilla clerk wanted for heisting 32 near-flawless diamonds from the safe of her boss, J. Trevor Laneer. But the trail vanished in the hot sands of Yucatan. Was Anne now a glamorous blond? Did she come back with or without a lover (or blackmailer, as the case may be)? Did she come back at all? Returning to Atlanta — and to the charms of his pretty informant Libby Franklin — Duke questions Laura Wheelock, the jewelry firm's bookkeeper, who scoffs at the investigator's latest theory, that Anne could have been in collusion with their mutual boss. If Mr. Laneer has any "vice," Laura avers, it is his devotion to his invalid wife.

I spent a part of Saturday afternoon in the small, walled sun yard behind Libby's townhouse apartment. Her cat Fido stalked imaginary monsters. Libby, in string bikini atop a picnic table, asprawl on a huge towel imprinted to resemble a $1,000 bill, worked on her tan and complained about mine. I carried empties into the apartment and brought new beers back out.

After I had walked around and around the table, reciting my doubts, suspicions, and inadequacies, she said in a sun-dazed mumble, "How'n hell'd she plan so far ahead?"

"You mean making the hotel and air reservations in October? Well, everybody says she was a very orderly person and . . ."

I stopped. "Hm," I said. "How orderly do you have to be to know you can heist all those stones on a Friday when you didn't know whether Laneer would be there or not? Damn it, he told her a week or so ahead of time he was going to that auction in Chicago to bid on the yellow diamond. And that's when she asked if she could start her vacation. Vacation in November?"

"He owed her a week, Duke. She took just two weeks last summer."

"But she had the reservations all made before she asked."

"She could be pretty sure he'd say okay."

"Do you think she could have managed the switch anyway? I mean, even if Laneer hadn't gone to Chicago?"

"I suppose so. It wouldn't have been easy, though. It would have been more risky."

"So she had the date all picked," I said, "and his going away was just a lucky accident."

"So why didn't she set the date for the other week of her vacation earlier?" Libby asked. "From what they found out about what she'd been doing, she was already moved out of her apartment by the time she asked for that week."

"Maybe she asked for it a lot earlier," I said. "Would the other women have known?"

"No. She didn't talk to us about things like that. She was always . . . you know . . . distant. Are you saying Mr. Laneer lied about it?"

LIKE CLOCKWORK—AT FIRST

"I don't know what I'm saying. The timing is all screwed up. She had to start planning the robbery months and months before it happened. She had to get 32 fake pieces made, smuggling out the photographs and specifications and smuggling them back in again. Careful, long-term planning. Very smart in the beginning, and very stupid toward the end."

"So how should she have done it, Investigator Rhoades?"

"Don't needle me. She's gone and the diamonds are gone, so it had to be a pretty good job. I keep wanting to tie J. Trevor Laneer into it. But facts and instinct say no. I have seen so many people react to so many different things, I can tell when I'm being conned. Laneer's reaction when I first saw him was exactly right. It wasn't overdone or underdone. He had the settlement. He'd told everything he knew so many times he didn't want to talk about it any more. And the reaction was exactly right the second time, too. Remorse—apology—not too much or too little. You know, Lib honey, I like the guy. He's okay."

"Duke, I told you the first time we talked that Laneer is one cruel, mean person."

"Come on!"

"I really mean it." She rolled up onto her elbow, and squinted at me through the hot yellow sunlight. "Lots of people complain about their boss. It isn't like that; he's really a bastard. He goes out of his way to do mean things. A long time ago, when I was about 12, my parents took me and my brother to see him in a play at Halloween. It was supposed to be for kids. He was an evil wizard, and he scared me so bad I had nightmares for a week."

"In a play?" I said wonderingly.

"Oh, yes, he was very big around town in the Peachtree Playhouse Amateur theater, but they have a professional director and a big budget and do good things. He quit about seven or eight years ago, I think, when his wife had that stroke. He's an actor, Duke. He can make people like him. They say that's how he snared Betty Wescott. She was getting some family jewelry repaired — that was after the divorce 25 years ago — and he was the one in the Piedmont store, the old store, who was doing the bench work at the time, and she wanted to explain exactly what had to be done. At least, that's what they say. She's older than he — 10 years, I guess. Because he didn't have the breeding or the advantages, they never had much to do with the social stuff before her stroke. Just the little theater is all."

I sat on a corner of the picnic table, glowering over at where Fido was shaking the shrubbery and marveling at the chronic incompleteness of the investigations they do, and the reports they file. And I marveled at my own gullibility in believing yet another set of misleading, incomplete reports.

She nudged me in the small of the back with her bare heel and said, "Hey! You!"

"He just left," I said.

"Let me know when he gets back."

A NEW VIEW

She was a little bit of a woman, somewhere on the windward side of 60, living alone in a highceilinged apartment full of mahogany, silver, lace and old portraits. Her cropped hair was dyed fudge-brown, and her face was weathered to a red-brown. She wore jeans and an embroidered cotton blouse. She was slim and moved well. She let me in at a little past nine in the evening.

"It's good of you to see me so late, Mrs. Culver."

"Late, hell, Mr. Rhoades. I'm a night person, and you better call me Mim because everybody else in the world does."

"I'm Duke."

"There's ice and water and bourbon over there, if you'd fix us both one, Duke. I spent four hours on the practice range today. I had to stop when I got this blister. They won't let women play at the club on Saturday, the chauvinist rats. But I think I found my trouble. I was coming off the ball too soon. On Monday, I am going to see just how much of Doris Jane Cupper's money I can take away from her. Thank you, dear. No, sit there, on the side where I hear better. You said on the telephone you had talked to Tammy Rice? Yes, she was right. I was Betty Wescott Boland Laneer's best friend in all the world, all through school and Briarcliffe, but who sent you to Tammy Rice?"

I explained that I had gotten access to the back file of clippings on the Wescott family at the newspaper, and had weeded out some people who might have been lifelong friends and then tried to find them. "I'm a hired snoop," I said.

She studied me pertly. "I would say you are probably brighter than you look, young man. And I am not as rattlebrained as I might seem to some. So, I will have to know what you are snooping around."

I smiled my best smile and said, "I am presently representing a company which paid out over half-a-million dollars to J. Trevor Laneer, and we want to be sure he deserves it. And needs it."

"Oh, Anne Farley! You know, that used to be a very good family name in Atlanta. Every bit as good as Culver or Boland. Wescott wasn't quite as good a name; you see, they were in trade. But, really, they made most of their money in land way out north of town. I knew Roger Farley, her father, quite well. Nearly married him, in fact. Oh dear, all my . . . values mean so little nowadays. Atlanta has turned into a monstrous place, really. We are all swallowed up by this terrible energy of growth. Every time you look around, there is a new bank or a new hotel or a lot of yellow machines tearing up lovely old buildings. Trevor Laneer was what my father would call a counter jumper. My departed husband couldn't stand him, but Betty and I used to lunch together often. It makes me feel guilty to think about the poor dear. But I just can't go see her. It's too horribly depressing. And what good does it do? Those blank, dead eyes. And she has to be waited on hand and foot. He talks to her as though she could understand every word. There's something very strange about that, somehow."

A COMPASSIONATE MAN

"Does Trevor Laneer need the money? Well, I would hardly think so. I have to say that one must credit the man with compassion. I would think it has been a very long eight years for him. But he does seem unwaveringly faithful and constant.

"I went to see Betty . . . would it be six months ago or longer? Longer, God help me, it could be a year. That lovely rock garden. On a slope, you know, below the bedroom window. He turned a downstairs study into her bedroom because it is so much easier that way for the nurses. Her grandfather built that house. Except for the sound of traffic—not very loud because of all the trees you would think you were in the country. It is very private, really. There must be at least three acres there, and heaven only knows what that land might be worth now."

"I suppose the house and land are in a trust arrangement, too."

"Too?"

"The store is."

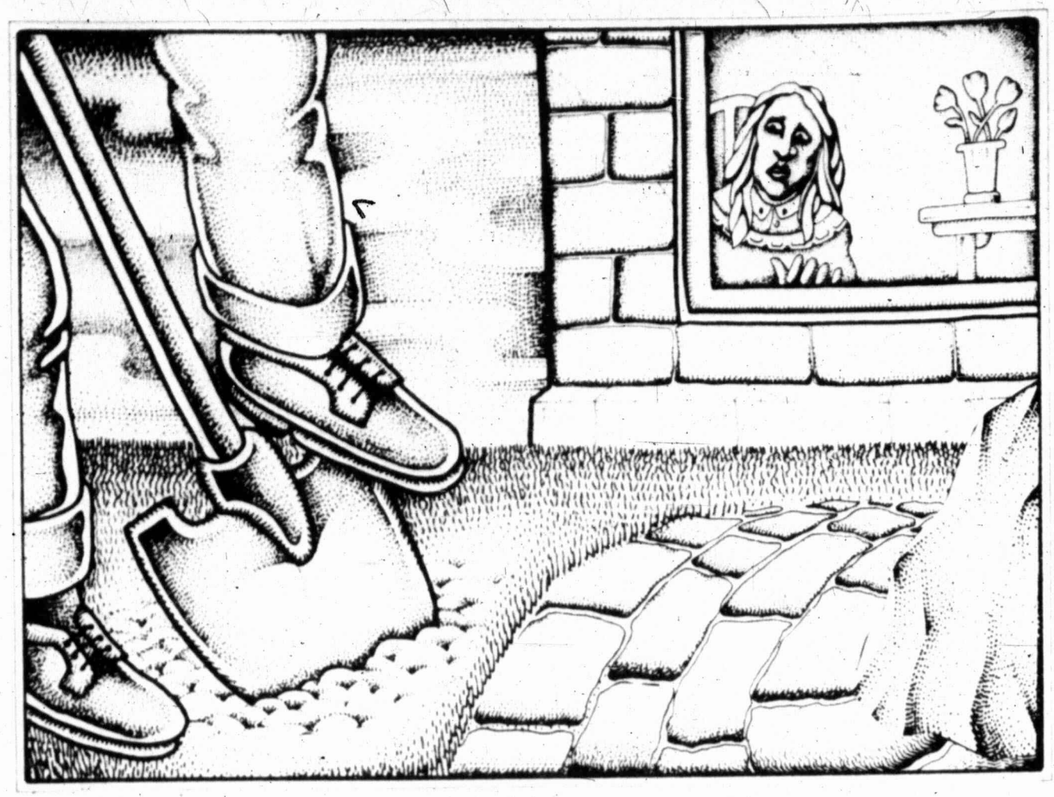
"Really? I didn't know that. I do know that Betty's affairs are handled by Mid-Georgia Fidelity. And mine and Tammy's. We all have the same trust officer. Tammy's grandfather founded that bank. Bunny Gearhart takes care of us old ladies. He's a dear young man. Well, not so young, I guess. Young to me. He must be getting on toward 50. I could call him if you want to talk to him, but I have to ask you something first."

"Anything. Almost."

"Could this all wind up in such a way that people find out Anne Farley was innocent?"

"It could," I said, and, smiling, she reached for the phone.

Those determined ladies, Mim Culver and Tammy Rice, put so much pressure on Bunny Gearhart that I was able to see him at his tennis club on Sunday morning. He was a big, pink, rubbery fellow with all the social graces and a very correct tennis outfit. As a senior trust officer, he felt that he should not disclose any information at all without a court order. After I told him all my reasons, he looked slightly ill. But he wouldn't talk until I threatened to call Mim Culver and tell her that her favorite banker was being uncooperative. Then he sighed, shrugged and talked. I have discovered one thing about the professions. Get a banker, lawyer, doctor, politician away from his familiar office and he is much more likely to tell secrets. One of the interesting things Bunny told me: that the doctors did not believe Betty Laneer could last much longer. Eight years of inactivity had caused a fatty degeneration of the heart muscle structures, and the decreasing circulation was beginning to affect other major organs. And, of course, Trevor Laneer knew this.



IN THE GARDEN

"The Wescott estate used to be much larger," Trevor Laneer told me.

"I didn't mean to interrupt your Sunday afternoon, Mr. Laneer."

He smiled. We were walking from the iron gates up the gentle slope toward the house. "You said on the phone it was important, Rhoades. I have to hope you've located Anne. If you can recover the diamonds, you won't have to prosecute; will you?"

I admired the rock garden. He took me over for a closer look. It seemed to cover a half-acre slope at least, where probably there had once been lawn. There were paths, raked gravel, river stones, huge boulders, pools, fountains, rivulets of water over stone. The plantings were not overdone. The whole area had a sparse, Japanese flavor. The back of his work shirt was dark with sweat in a pyramidal pattern. His bare arms were sinewy. I could see the place where he had been working with a shovel. He said he was preparing a place for another boulder, a very interesting one he had picked out at the stone yard. They brought them in by flatbed and crane to place them in the prepared spot.

I looked up at the house and saw a pale oval beyond the glass...a motionless face, a motionless woman apparently on a chaise longue or uptilted hospital bed. Two dark circles and a slit for a mouth. A child's drawing of a face.

"It gives her something beautiful to look at," Laneer said.

We talked inside a garden house, an octagonal screened structure with a Japanese roof. It was in heavy shade and smelled of wood rot. I moved a little way from his so I could face him more directly.

"Preface to my question," I said. "Your wife's father, Prentiss Wescott, reorganized his personal financial affairs a few months before he died, when his daughter was separated from her previous husband but not yet divorced. He put everything in trust for her—all the securities, this house, the business, everything. Income during her lifetime, with the income divided between her and any children she might have as they reached 21. Is that your understanding?"

"Yes, of course. The bank manages the estate."

"If she dies without issue, everything goes to Emory University Hospital. Immediately after her death, the trust officer must start liquidation of everything not in cash or securities, close the estate as soon as possible, and turn over the bequest to the hospital trustees. And your wife, I understand, is not expected to last out this year."

He laughed as he held up his hand. It was a very good laugh. "Wait! You are really straining at a gnat, Mr. Rhoades. Are you serious? Is that your script? Store manager conspires with clerk to steal diamonds? Fears unemployment? I think I'd be angry if it weren't so amusing. Whoever buys the business would be a fool not to hire me to operate it my own way. If that didn't work out, I'd start my own shop. My customers would be loyal. I have savings, you know. Quite a lot. The trust department has always paid our living expenses, and I get a salary in line with my position. I suggest you stop inventing fantasies and get on with finding Anne Farley."

FINAL INVENTORY

On Monday I was very busy. On Tuesday, the signs on the doors of Wescott and Sons announced: Closed for Inventory. It was a rainy Tuesday afternoon. I didn't want to be out in Libby's enclosed yard with her and Fido anyway, for fear I wouldn't hear the phone.

"HE made the duplicates, then?" Libby asked.

I told her he had, and had made the switch himself — that they did not know where he'd done the work yet but they would probably find out. She told me to stop pacing around and I was too tense to sit down.

"What you are saying is that he talked Anne Farley into laying her own false trail. Why would she do such a dumb thing?"

"She believed whatever he told her. Some plot against him or the business. Some kind of rip-off he was trying to avoid. He told her to paint herself blue and live in a tree, and she did."

"What?"

"Never mind, honey. He thought she'd lay a clumsy trail and it would have been followed to a dead end in Yucatan a long time ago. But nobody found the loose ends, except me, the old hound with the sore feet and the great nose."

"That nose has been broken."

"I didn't mean great-looking. I meant functioning."

"Oh."

"The way I read it, he had her all set to leave for someplace else on the Saturday he returned from Chicago. Per instructions, she had checked out of that airport Holiday Inn with her suitcase and her tropical clothes and waited for his plane. His car was at the airport. He took her home and . . ."

The phone rang. I didn't knock anything over getting to it. A wonder. I didn't have to say much. Grunt and listen. Sigh and listen. Hang up. Plod back to the couch and sit down heavily. Sigh.

I finally responded to Libby's anxious questions. "After locating the right stone yard and talking them into letting me see the records on delivery dates to Laneer, and after talking all those official types into picking him up and getting the warrant, wouldn't I have looked like all kinds of damn fool if I'd been wrong!"

"But . . . they found her?"

"Under the boulder they delivered the day before he found, to his horror, that all those diamonds were missing. Since then, he's been selling them back to the business, a few at a time under a dummy name and pocketing the funds. He paid himself almost $700,000 to buy them back, they think."

"Poor Anne," she whispered.

COLD COMFORT

"The weather bureau says it was a nice November afternoon. Warm and sunny. They say it looks as though he clubbed her in the back of the head with the flat of his spade, using a full swing. Then he dug the hole, buried her and her suitcase, and prepared the site for the two-ton boulder he'd preselected. Journey to nowhere."

Libby shuddered and looked gray. I put my arm around her. "And it's a good guess that woman in the house watched it all through the window. I wonder how much she saw, how much she comprehended. J. Trevor couldn't care less, because she could not tell anyone anyway."

It got to me too, just then — a little more than usual. I put both arms around the lady, looking for, as much as trying to give, comfort.

Laneer had told me to get on with finding Anne Farley. And, God help me, I had. Cold winds blow through the loveless heart.

Down Easters go for Doc's beans

SOUTH PARIS, Maine (AP) — Every summer, Doc Hall cooks beans — not your run-of-the-mill beans, but old-fashioned, Down East, bean hole beans, placed in big cast-iron kettles, buried in sandpits lined with firebricks and cooked underground for at least 24 hours.

"An awful lot of people plan their vacation around it," said Charles "Doc" Hall as he prepared for the annual Bean Hole Bean Festival, which marked its 24th anniversary Saturday. "I can't understand it. What the hell are they coming for? A plate of beans."

More than 2,000 people converged at the nearby Oxford Fairgrounds to sample Hall's beans, now a savory New England institution.

Hall, a South Paris optometrist, and some friends cooked up the idea of a bean festival in 1954 as a way to publicize South Paris, until then distinguished only by its position as the site of a murder.

Now it's known for the aroma of Hall's beans, and people have forgotten "about this other business," he said.

"There's four of us left who started this foolish thing," said the 62-year-old Hall, who has traveled around New England to show folks how to cook bean hole beans. "I'm the one who does the cooking actually. They're the ones who do the work."

For $3, Hall and company provide "a complete feed," including charcoal-broiled hot dogs, brown bread, sauerkraut and beverages.

Bill battlers keeping insulation demand up

By MARK POTTS

NEW YORK (AP) — Insulation manufacturers are finding it hard to keep up with demand as housing starts climb and as Americans discover one of the best ways to cut heating and air conditioning bills is to insulate their homes.

Although shortages of insulating materials haven't been noted at retail levels, manufacturers say they are limiting how much they ship to stores.

"It's a consumer distribution system," said Stanley Collins, a spokesman for Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., in describing his company's allocation program, which began July 1. "It's not rationing as such."

Owens-Corning, the nation's largest insulation manufacturer, is giving retailers supplies based on what they received last year, adjusted upward for increased production.

"It allows a customer to grow at the rate Owens-Corning is growing," Collins said.

That rate is high. Owens-Corning has doubled its insulation manufacturing capacity since 1971 and plans a further 35 per cent increase by the end of the decade.

The company's chief competitor, Johns-Manville Corp., is growing at an even faster rate. A $100 million expansion program started in 1971 was completed two years ago, and the company has just begun a $200 million growth program scheduled for completion in the early 1980s.

By the time the second program is completed, Johns-Manville will have quadrupled its 1971 capacity.

In other business developments this past week:

—The recent decline of the dollar against foreign currency "is a matter that no one in our government can or does take lightly," said Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns in the strongest statement yet by a U.S. official in defense of the dollar, which has taken a beating overseas in recent weeks.

—Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal said the recent decline in the index of leading economic indicators is a cause for concern only if it "translated itself into a substantial slowdown" in coming months.

He said he was optimistic that the economy would continue to grow, though perhaps at a slower rate than in the first half of 1977.

—The stock market plummeted to its lowest point in 18 months, fueled by fears of an economic slowdown, higher interest rates and poor second quarter figures released by Bethlehem Steel Corp., which also halved its dividend.

—The nation's basic money supply, M1—the total of currency in circulation and demand (checking) accounts—rose $5 billion in the week ending July 20, the Federal Reserve said. The surprising rise was the biggest since April.

—The Big Three U.S. auto manufacturers' combined profits in the second quarter of 1977 were $1.73 billion, the highest three-month figure in history.

Farm commodity prices continue to sag under 1976 bumper crops

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm commodity prices continue sagging under the burden of last year's huge grain crops and current prospects are that 1977 soybean, wheat and corn production will add further to the load.

Overall, farm prices dropped 2 per cent from June 15 to July 15, the second consecutive decline, the Agriculture Department said Friday. Prices had plummeted 5 per cent from May 15 to June 15 the sharpest drop in 20 months.

Compared with a year ago, farm prices on July 15 on the average were down 7 per cent the Department's Crop Reporting Board said.

Meanwhile, farm expenses dipped ½ of 1 per cent, but unlike the prices farmers get for their poducts, they were still 5 per cent higher than July 15 of last year.

The crunch between cost and prices pushed down the USDA's parity ratio even further, to 65 per cent on July 15 from 67 at mid-June and 74 a year ago. A spoksesman said the 65 per cent reading was the lowest since it was 55 per cent in March 1933 in the midst of the nation's worst economic depression.

As an economic indicator, the ratio theoretically indicates at 100 per cent that farmers have about the same buying power as they had in 1919-1914 when costs and prices were said to have been in favorable balance.

The decline in prices from June 15 to July 15 was led by lower prices for soybeans, grain, hay, oranges and tobacco, the department said.

Soybean prices at the farm nationally, averaged $6.30 down $1.91 from $8.21 on June 15. Wheat held steady at $2 a bushel, but corn dropped 19 cents to $1.93 from mid-June. Declines were also reported for barley sorghum and oats.

Meat animals as a group gained 4 per cent from mid-June and averaged about the same as they did a year ago. Beef cattle rose 80 cents to an average $34.90 per 100 pounds, while hogs at $44.90 were up 3 per hundred pounds from June 15.

The poultry and egg price index rose 6 per cent from June 15 with eggs up .9 cents to an average 50.7 cents a dozen.

South's businessmen complain of red tape

ATLANTA (AP) — Buoyed by the South's growing economy, southern businessmen and state officials seem to have only one common complaint — excessive federal red tape, a researcher said Friday.

"There was no consensus on economic problems," Evan Brunson, director of research for the Southern Growth Policies Board, said of a recent informal poll of southern business leaders, state officials and "opinion leaders."

"We found the economy booming in most areas," he said. "About the only reading you get that is consistent is opposition to federal regulations. There is nothing new about that."

Brunson made his remarks during a meeting of the board, which advises southern states on developing policies for managing growth.

He said researchers found problems peculiar to a handful of states, but few which extended throughout the region.

For example, Virginia "has more growth-antigrowth conflicts than anywhere except Florida," he said. "Many older cities are experiencing central city problems," and despite attempts to revise downtown areas "we found a lot of pessimism."

And fuel producing states such as Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana "are extremely worried about their economy . . .and what they're going to do if they run out of gas."

But "the antifederal attitude" was the common denominator among respondents, who view federal regulations as "more of a handicap than a help" and want to reduce federal, and often state, government, Brunson said.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration is one of the federal programs most unpopular with businessmen, he said, adding, "You can't talk to businessmen without talking about OSHA."

Vandygriff scheduled to be commissioner

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — State Finance Commission members plan a special meeting Sept. 15 to name Alvis Vandygriff as Savings and Loan Commissioner, after having indicated their intention to pick Vandygriff at their regular session this month.

Vandygriff now serves as deputy commissioner under W. Sale Lewis, who retires Sept. 1 after 10 years as commissioner.

Vandygriff, who served as executive secretary of the Veterans Land Board and practiced law for nearly three decades in Austin, had been regarded as the most likely choice to replace Lewis.

Members indicated a readiness to name Vandygriff at their July meeting, but since the matter had not been posted for action, the decision was delayed.

There were some decisions on other matters at the meeting, however, on the budgets of the Department of Banking, Savings and Loan Department and Office of the Consumer Credit Commission — the three agencies controlled by the Finance Commission.

And OCCC Commissioner Sam Kelley reported a potential problem facing banks issuing two credit cards to the same individual — saying those banks may be running into problems of usury under the Consumer Credit Code.

Chapter 3 of that code provides that lenders may not make two loans to the same person if the interest rate charged is higher than it would be for one loan — for example, two $200 loans instead of one $400 loan, since the rates for the two smaller loans would be higher under the code than for the single loan.

Kelley reported the situation is particularly unclear as regards national banks, since there's some doubt as to what regulatory agency should be enforcing the credit code provisions.

Officials of the Texas Bankers Association see the problem the same way, Kelley said, asking the Finance Commission to allow him to write the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency in an effort to straighten the matter out.

The commission agreed, with some members reporting they were aware of some banks which are issuing two credit cards — which could lead to problems.

Officials of the three financial agencies indicated their operations are progressing without particular problems, with the Department of Banking noting efforts to implement the Haskins & Sells management study which it received last year.

The department is now renting office space in Dallas and Houston for its regional offices, but is having to replace Dallas regional examiner Troy LaFoy, who leaves in August, with Weldon Clayton.

Which points up, the banking folks noted, the fact that they are still trying to lower their high rate of employe turnover — one of the problems noted in the Haskins & Sells study.

•

Work continues at the State Board of Insurance on proposed amendments to the minimum standard rules for individual accident and health policies — but no final decision is in sight.

The main problem, it appears, is what to require as regards pregnancy benefits.

The three board members are still divided on how the matter should be handled — and industry officials also indicate some dissatisfaction with the proposals.

The board takes up auto insurance rates Tuesday (Aug. 2) — and has approved rates for expanded uninsured (and underinsured) motorist coverage, as provided by lawmakers in a bill effective Aug. 29.

Rates range from $12 to $20 for $25,000 bodily injury and $50,000 property damage limits, to $19 to $49 for $100,000-$300,000 limits.

Meanwhile, drivers sent to the auto assigned risk pool registered a new high — 93,793 for the first half of the year, compared to 66,012 for the same six-month period in 1976.

Record reported

HOUSTON — Texas International Airlines, Inc., has reported a record first half profit of $1.7 million or 35 cents per share, up sharply from net income of $127,000 or 1 cent per share for the same period last year.

Second quarter income of $1.4 million or .27 cents per share substantially exceeded net income of $615,000 or 13 cents per share in the same quarter of 1976.

Total revenues for the first half were $65.9 million, a 17.4 per cent increase over first half 1976 revenues. Second quarter revenues were up 17.6 per cent to $34.4 million, compared with second quarter 1976 revenues.

Corvair fans gather

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — With chrome wrenches and soft cloths they worked on their prized possessions, swapping tales about how they located parts and bragged about the durability of the car branded "unsafe at any speed."

"Ralph Nader thinks he killed the Corvair, but he didn't," said Tony Fiore, president of the Corvair Society of America (CORSA). "He gave the car a black eye ..."

Fiore and nearly 1,000 other CORSA members are attending the group's convention here this weekend. All are fans of the Chevrolet Corvair, the rear-engine compact built from 1960 until 1969 when General Motors ceased production after charges by consumer advocate Nader that the cars were unsafe.

Fiore, of Sarasota, Fla., estimates that 70,000 of the 1.7 million Corvairs built are still registered and that at least 15,000 of them are owned by the club's 6,500 members.

"We're car buffs," he said. "We're in Corvairs and CORSA for the fun of it."

Mechanic Everett White of Middleton, Wis., buys, restores and sells Corvairs. He owns about 150.

Robert M. Peterson, 43, an auto salesman from Springfield, Ill., boasted that his 1966 Corvair with 43,000 miles "will last as long as me."

Erik Nielsen drove 1,100 miles from Toronto in one of his nine Corvairs. A mechanic, Nielsen uses them for everyday driving.

"I enjoy them," he said. "I can't find a new car as good."

Some owners race their cars, or compete with them on obstacle courses. Fiore said most are hobbyists just interested in keeping Corvairs in their original condition.

Wheat yield falls short

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Final 1977 yields in the main winter wheat belt appear to be about 10 per cent under estimates made last June, the Santa Fe crop report said Saturday.

However, the Santa Fe's August report said the production in Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Colorado and New Mexico was considerably better than predicted last March before favorable late spring rains benefited the crop over the region.

The Santa Fe estimated that 26.1 million acres of wheat was harvested in the five states, producing nearly 727 million bushels, an average of nearly 28 bushels an acre.

The report also said there is "considerable uncertainty" among farmers in the winter wheat belt whether to plant as much as they have been planting in recent years.

Since the start of the year 1,037 permits have been issued by the Midland Inspections Department for a total value of $34,882,873.

Nineteen permits were issued for new house construction for a total value of $961,800.

They were issued to Wallace Construction Co for $45,000, 905 Ventura; Wallace Construction Co. for $45,000, 907 Ventura; Russell Miller for $55,000, 2917 Goddard St.; Carroll Grafa for $55,000, 2903 Emerson Place; Leprechaun Homes for $35,500, 4702 Aretta; Leprechaun Homes for $35,500, 4704 Anetta; Leprechaun Homes for $37,300, 4708 Anetta; Clyde White for $42,000, 4206 Ferncliff; Clyde White for $42,500, 4300 Ferncliff; Jeff Carter for $50,000, 1801 Western Drive; Jeff Carter for $50,000, 1001 W. Scharbauer; Leo Proctor For $45,000, 4301 Ferncliff; Leo Proctor for $45,000, 4303 Ferncliff; Jamar Const. for $42,000, 4600 Leisure.

Sixteen permits were issued for residential repairs for a total value of $68,962.

They were issued to Ronny Harbright for $1,200, 2602 W. Washington; Douglas Scharbourgh for $20,000, enclose existing carport at 2207 Western Drive; Wayne Stringer for $8,950 2607 McClintre; John Peters for $9,225, 2211 Culver; Don Hedgelt for $8,462, 706 W. Louisiana; Roy Jones for $3,000, 1604 W. Tennessee; James Clouse for $5,000, 1601 W. Tennessee;

Two permits were issued for commercial rennovation for a total value of 55,900.

They were issued to the Midland Independent School District for $3,900, 200 W. Dakota; W. Roberts for $50,000, 206 N. Main; Fas Gas for $2,000, new sign at 3300 W. Wall.

Midlander gets award

Joe Swartz, owner of Swartz Framing Studio, 2601 N. Midland Dr., recently received honorable mention for his picture-framing abilities at the Seventh Annual Convention of the Professional Picture-Framers Association.

The convention was held July 20-23 in the New Orleans Hyatt-Regency Hotel.

Every picture-framer who attended the convention was sent a print and asked to frame it for the contest. Several hundred persons entered the contest. Prizes were awarded through the first three places, and three honorable mention awards were given, Swartz said.

Farah plant purchased

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. — The Womenswear Division of Levi Strauss & Co. has announced the purchase of a 200,000-square-foot manufacturing facility in San Antonio, Tex.

The plant, formerly owned by Farah Manufacturing Co., will employ approximately 1,000 operators and has the capacity to produce more than 5 million garments a year.

The San Antonio plant and the building of a new plant in Corpus Christi will add substantially to Levi's womenswear production capacity, a company spokesman said.

Levi Strauss also announced it recently singed a long-term lease with Amarillo for a city-owned building adjacent to the Amarillo air terminal.

Kelly honored

Dene Kelly of Roberts Realtors has received the Co-op Salesman of the month award for June from the Midland Board of Realtors Multiple Listing Service.

Tenneco says earnings up

HOUSTON (AP) — Tenneco Inc. reported today all its major divisions had increased operating revenues in the second quarter and first half of the year.

Second quarter earnings of $106.5 million or $1.10 a share compared with $105.6 million or $1.14 for the comparable year earlier period. Record revenues of $1.9 billion compared with $1.6 billion.

Earnings the first six months of the year were $211 million or $2.19 a share compared with $195 million or $2.11 in 1976. Revenues totaled $3.7 billion compared with $392 billion.

Occupation taxes grow

AUSTIN — Comptroller Bob Bullock said revenue from 10 Texas occupation taxes has grown a remarkable 133 per cent in the last five years, reaching almost $1 billion in 1976.

Bullock said the increase was led by the oil and gas production taxes, which leaped from a combined total of $305.2 million in 1972 to $793.7 million in 1976.

Oil and gas production taxes account for 80 per cent of all occupation tax revenue in the state, he said.

The comptroller noted that during the five year span, gas production taxes rose 219 per cent and oil production taxes 125 per cent.

Bullock said occupation taxes are levied on the privilege of engaging in certain businesses in the state. His report on occupation tax revenue growth was contained in the comptroller's July financial statement.

The monthly report noted that May state revenues totaled $803.8 million, bringing total receipts during the first nine months of fiscal 1977 to $5.2 billion, a 12 per cent increase.

The biggest chung of the increase, Bullock said, was a $391.9 million jump in sales tax collections, which are running 15 per cent ahead of 1976 levels.

State spending during May totaled $587.8 million, boosting total expenditures thus far in fiscal 1977 to $5.06 billion, a three per cent increase.

Bullock said the state closed out its fiscal books at the end of May, with a cash balance of $1.5 billion.

Governor approves four area releases

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—Gov. Dolph Briscoe has approved the release on parole of four persons sentenced to state prison for crimes committed in area counties. The releases followed recommendations by the Board of Pardons and Paroles and occured during the week ending July 23, 1977.

Released were:

Charlee Allen—sentenced in Howard County Sept. 9, 1966 to 20 years for robbery by assault; served and earned 16 years, 10 months and was paroled to Cameron County.

Lamar C. Cole—sentenced in Sterling County June 18, 1969 to 15 years for assault with intent to murder with malice; served and earned 13 years, six months and was paroled to Burleson County.

Felix Dominguez—sentenced in Howard County May 21, 1974, to 10 years for burglary and forgery; served and earned five years and was paroled to Howard County.

Charles R. Prather—sentenced in Ector County Feb. 4, 1977, to three years for theft by check; served and earned one year and was paroled to Illinois.

In addition to these releases, one person sentenced in Ector and Brewster counties in 1970 was returned to prison for unsatisfactory adjustment on parole.

Trinidad B. Fuentes Jr. was sentenced to 16 years for possession of marijuana, burglary and passing a forged instrument. His parole was granted May 6, 1974.

Some senior citizens may get help on utility bills

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Qualified persons living in the Midland area may be able to receive emergency financial assistance to pay utility bills under the Special Crisis Intervention Program funded by the federal Community Services Administration.

The Texas allocation, according to the Texas Department of Community Affairs, is $4,080,000.

The local administering agencies below are now certifying elderly, low-income persons who, as heads of households, could receive up to $250 in aid, depending on the amounts of utility bills and the financial needs of those individuals 65 years of age or older who can prove eligibility by Aug. 31.

The Midland area agency which will be administering the emergency funds and the amount of its allocation is West Texas Opportunities Inc. in Lamesa, Pecos, Terrell, Crane, Dawson, Gaines, Borden, Andrews, Martin, Howard, Glasscock, Upton, Ector, Midland, Reeves, Loving, Winkler and Ward counties — $111,000.

Kuwait imports rising

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kuwait, in the heart of the oil-rich Middle East, is expected to import $520 million worth of farm commodities this year, up from $435 million in 1976.

But the U.S. share of Kuwait's market is going up slowly and probably will be only $21 million or about 3 per cent of the total, according to the Agriculture Department.

FBI steps up Hoffa death probe

DETROIT (AP) — Former Teamster Union boss James R. Hoffa disappeared from a suburban restaurant parking lot two years ago today, and now the FBI reportedly is stepping up its campaign to find out what happened to him, and why.

U.S. Atty. Philip Van Dam says the FBI wants to talk with former Nixon administration officials to see if Hoffa's parole had any connection with his disappearance.

And, according to Detroit News reports Friday, the agency has begun extensive investigations into possible offenses — no matter how small — by those it believes know what happened to Hoffa. FBI agents hope the investigation will pressure those people hard enough so that someone will talk.

Hoffa is believed to have been murdered, although his body has not been found.

More than 200 FBI agents have worked on the Hoffa case, interviewing some 10,000 persons over the past two years. Now there are a half-dozen agents working on the case.

Hoffa had been paroled from federal prison by President Richard M. Nixon on condition that he stay out of Teamster politics.

Before he vanished, Hoffa accused Teamster officials, including President Frank Fitzsimmons, of making a deal with the Nixon White House to get that stipulation.

NBC-TV this week reported it had learned from sources close to the investigation that the FBI believed Teamster officials paid $250,000 to someone in the Nixon administration to get Hoffa barred from union affairs.

"The government wants to talk to former Nixon aides to determine if the parole may or may not fit into the motive for Mr. Hoffa's disappearance. Who was interested in the parole? Maybe the same people who were interested in the disappearance," Van Dam said.

The FBI is believed to have a theory about who killed Hoffa and why. So far it has been unable to prove it.

In documents filed in U.S. District Court in Detroit, the U.S. attorney's office has named three men as suspects in Hoffa's disappearance.

They are Thomas Andretta, Salvatore "Sally Bugs" Briguglio and his brother, Gabriel.

All three are longtime associates of East Coast Teamster boss Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano, a one-time Hoffa friend who turned against him in a dispute over a union appointment.

On the day he vanished from the restaurant parking lot, Hoffa told acquaintances he planned to have lunch with Provenzano and Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone, identified in U.S. Senate testimony as a leader in the Detroit Mafia.

Both Provenzano and Giacalone later came up with apparently air-tight alibis for the time of the disappearance.

Arabs growing pessimistic about U.S. peace power

By NICK LUDINGTON

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Arabs are increasingly pessimistic that the United States can pull a rabbit out of the hat but are dependent on U.S. diplomatic efforts as the only alternative to war with Israel.

The semiofficial Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram reported Saturday Egypt is coordinating a united Arab front that will present a peace plan to U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, who begins his Mideast tour in Egypt Aug. 1-3.

The plan includes phased Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab lands, creation of a Palestinian state from the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza strip and an end to the state of war.

These demands may be altered to include acceptance of some Israeli presence in occupied areas Israel considers critical to its security and linking of a Palestinian state to Jordan or other Arab states.

In the view of observers in Beirut, bridging the gap between the Arab "bottom line" and Israel's basic demands presents America with an impossible challenge of diplomatic engineering.

"Everyone is beginning to see at least the remote possibility of solutions between Israel and Egypt, Syria and Jordan on their bilateral problems. But that has focused attention on the toughest issue, the Palestinians, and it just depresses people," said an experienced U.S. diplomat.

A key stop for Vance on his new Mideast tour will be in the Syrian capital of Damascus (Aug. 3-5) where he is likely to encounter the untractable realities of the Palestinian problem.

Syrian President Hafez Assad has used force and persuasion on the Palestinian leadership to accept Syria as the guerrillas' most effective sponsor. But to maintain his role as Palestinian protector and avoid trouble with radicals at home and in neighboring Iraq, Assad cannot compromise too far.

Syria and the mainstream Palestinians are insisting on two key points: PLO representation at a reconvened Geneva peace conference, which Israel rejects, and return of refugees to Palestine.

Syrian officials have flatly rejected proposals made by Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin in Washington July 20. Begin suggested mixed Arab-Israeli commissions to work out peace treaties and boundaries with Egypt, Syria and Jordan.

The only solution anyone can see involves the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River, which Israel says is part of the Jewish state.

A reported U.S. plan calling for Israeli trusteeship over the West Bank is certain to be rejected by the Palestinians and unlikely to please other Arab leaders.

The Syrians express disappointment at Carter's public "tolerance" of what they see as Israeli intransigence and President Carter's switch from endorsing a "Palestinian homeland" to endorsement of a nonindependent Palestinian "entity."

Palestinians are taking hardline positions. The PLO has intensified a campaign of sabotage in Israel, obviously timed to show what will happen if their demands are not met. Hani al Hassan, an Arafat aide, said this week the PLO will only accept a Palestinian homeland "which will not emerge out of recognition of or peace with Israel."

King Hussein of Jordan predicted Israeli preemptive military action in an interview published Saturday in Beirut's An Nahar newspaper.

"Israel can't resist the superpowers pressure too long," he said. "So it most probably will strike a surprise military blow to create a new fait accompli and change the current Middle East status quo in its favor."

Tass decries potential deployment of bomb

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union said Saturday that U.S. deployment of the controversial neutron bomb "can only bring the world closer to a nuclear holocaust."

The official policy statement, reflecting the views of top Kremlin leaders, was carried by the official Soviet news agency Tass.

The unsigned statement said the Soviet Union hopes "the U.S. leadership is aware of the responsibility it assumes in starting a new arms race." Hopefully, "sanity and political realism will prevail in Washington," Tass said.

The statement capped a vehement Soviet propaganda campaign against the neutron bomb, which produces twice the deadly radiation of a conventional nuclear bomb but less than a tenth the blast power and fallout.

Scientists say the bomb could kill people while leaving structures undamaged.

President Carter has not yet decided whether to order production of the bomb, but he has said he considers the weapon "in this nation's security interests."

The Tass statement accused the Carter administration of "striving to justify its line of stepping up the arms race...

"Washington is trying to put on a serious face in proving the advantages of this new type of mass destruction weapon on the grounds that it only kills people, while leaving material values undamaged," the Tass said.

It added that "this is how 'humanism' and 'morality' figure in U.S. government policy."

The Tass statement said proponents of the neutron bomb who describe it as a "clean" weapon "are trying to gloss over the fundamental difference between conventional and nuclear weapons."

Maine fire sparks debate

MILLINOCKET, Maine (AP) — The fire that devastated part of a vast wilderness park here has set off a bitter fight over who knows the best way to save the wild woods of northern Maine.

It is more than a war of words. Officials and foresters say militant environmentalists were partly to blame for the fire.

The environmentalists, on the other hand, say the firefighters who risked their lives to save the forest would have done it more good by letting it burn.

The quarrel is over forest management in Baxter State Park, a 200,000-acre preserve which the late Gov. Percival P. Baxter donated to Maine under the stipulation that it remain forever wild.

But what does "wild" mean?

The environmentalists say forest fires are part of nature's scheme, and that the heavy equipment used to fight them is more destructive than the flames.

The Baxter Park Defense Fund says fire is a natural part of the cycle of forest regeneration and often produces a healthier forest in the long run by burning out trash and brush and opening up the forest to light and air. Such views are winning acceptance among some foresters, after decades of antifire thinking.

Foresters and state officials call that kind of talk nonsense.

"Where the fire is burning along park land, where it doesn't threaten life or private property, it should be allowed to burn," said Ronald Davis, a botanist at the University of Maine and a leader of the Baxter Park Defense Fund.

"I have seen what a number of individuals have done for the state in the name of preservation and I have become concerned," said state Sen. Charles Pray, a Democrat from Millinocket who said he spent time himself on the fire line.

Pray denounced the environmentalists on the floor of the legislature. Gov. James B. Longley did the same from his office.

Debate flared on the fire line, where hundreds of rangers and volunteers fought the fire.

The fire began July 17, set by lightning in an area of dead trees.

The trees had been blown down by a windstorm nearly three years ago. At the time the Baxter Park Defense Fund got a court order preventing state officials from taking heavy equipment into the forest to remove the dead wood.

The fire burned over some 3,500 acres in and around the park's southern end.

Innocent kite flying leaves others contemplating housing

By BILL GARDNER

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — The wind was up. It was a fine evening to fly a kite.

But this kite tangled in a power line, and sparks flew, igniting a roaring brush fire that 10 hours later had left 234 houses burned to charred rubble on a hillside that was an enclave of the wealthy.

It was the hot, dry wind out of the mountains — the same wind that had tempted a young man to fly a kite on a summer evening — that drove flames from house to house faster than firemen could respond.

On Tuesday, the hillside had been a neighborhood of winding streets with expensive homes looking out over the city and the ocean.

On Wednesday, charred wood floated in swimming pools, bushy green junipers were black skeletons and cactus pulp had turned black and orange like a burnt pumpkin.

The governor sent the National Guard in to prevent looting, but there was little left to loot.

Damage was estimated at $23.5 million.

One woman, whose house was spared, looked at her neighborhood and moaned, "How can I live here?"

But, then, could she live anywhere else? There is no place better in Santa Barbara. This is as expensive a neighborhood as you will find here and for many, nowhere else will do.

Pamela Cochran had lived in her house on the hill 10 years before it burned to the ground Tuesday night. As her husband and son picked at the rubble, she said she didn't know if they would rebuild.

But minutes later, she turned excitedly to her aunt and said, "Look, Aunt Audrey, if we rebuild, we could put the entrance over there on that side street instead of on this busy street."

EMOTIONS CAN HURT

One of the greatest risks involved when an owner tries to sell his own home can be summed up in one word: Emotions. "Can one become emotional about a home?" you may ask.

If you've lived in that home for ten, fifteen, or more years, you've got a lot of memories invested in it. You remember how your children grew up there...birthday parties...graduation parties...family gatherings...cookouts. That home has actually become part of you. This is the way it should be, and no one can take those memories away. But this emotional involvement can be detrimental to your sales effort if you try to sell your own home; many sales are lost because of this reason.

We, on the other hand, can approach your home objectively, dealing with hard facts when it comes to the selling effort. In the practical world of real estate and building, that's wheat really counts. We don't let emotions get in the way of getting you the best price and the quickest sale. After all, that's the reason so many satisfied customers come to us!

If you have any questions on this subject or any other aspect of real estate, feel free to phone or drop in at DON HARVEY realtors. 702 Andrews Hwy. Phone 683-5333. We're here to help! come in for your free copy of "Homes for Living" magazine.

FPC concerned about prevention steps in blackout

NEW YORK (AP) — Federal investigators reportedly blame Consolidated Edison for not taking proper steps to prevent a night-long blackout in New York City and parts of Westchester County two weeks ago.

While a preliminary report from the Federal Power Commission praises Con Ed for its effort to restore power, the FPC is not satisfied with the utility's answers so far, according to news reports today.

The news reports quote FPC sources as saying Con Ed was too dependent on links with upstate power sources and had faulty load-shedding devices.

The utility's initial explanation for the blackout blamed the load-shedding devices and lightning for the power outage from about 9:30 p.m. on July 13 to late morning July 14.

Looting and arson during the power failure resulted in thousands of arrests and caused hundreds of millions of dollars in damage in some sections of the city.

Con Ed said that when lightning struck its above-ground power lines in Westchester County, the load-shedding devices cut off too many customers, causing a dangerous surge of power within the system. The system then shut itself down to prevent damage to equipment, Con Ed said.

A Con Ed spokesman said the utility had not seen the FPC report and would not comment until it was made public.

While the FPC reportedly is critical of Con Ed, it does not support Mayor Abraham Beame's charge that the utilty was guilty of "gross negligence."

Members of the city's congressional delegation were said to be upset that the FPC did not come down harder on Con Ed.

Looking back: Beaver, Wally influenced by childhood roles

By MIKE GOODKIND

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jerry Mathers and Tony Dow grew up in somewhat of a fairy-tale world — as make-believe brothers in the make-believe town of Mayfield on television's "Leave it to Beaver."

Now, 20 years later, they talk of what it's like to be childhood stars who had to cope with the adult world.

Mathers, a 29-year-old real estate salesman, says playing Beaver helped him make the transition from boy to man. But Dow, now 32, thinks maybe his six years as Beaver's older brother, Wally, created a gap in growing up because he never had to learn to hustle.

Mathers and Dow were part of a cast of five in the family comedy which ran from 1957 to 1963. Barbara Billingsley and Hugh Beaumont played the parents, June and Ward Cleaver, and Ken Osmond played Wally's best friend, Eddie Haskell.

"My problems tend to relate to the way I was brought up, because I tended to be brought up in a very idealistic world," says Dow, who owns a contracting and remodeling firm and who takes an occasional part in movies, television commercials and soap operas. "My early development was influenced by nonrealistic relationships with people.

"For instance, I never had any trouble getting service in a restaurant, a room in a hotel. I never had any trouble getting anything because everybody was perfectly interested in bending over backward, everybody was always saying that I had a great future and there were no problems in life.

"Consequently, I don't have a lot of drive and I don't have a lot of the pushy attitude, and I don't tend to understand manipulations as well as people do who seem to be more successful in the business world."

In contrast, Mathers, who several months ago left his job as a bank operations officer to go into real estate, is satisfied with the direction he is going.

"When you're a star you're kind of cloistered," he says. "I'm a very sociable person, and selling real estate you get to meet a lot of people."

The childhood adulation, he says, "was nice. That you can't deny. But it was nothing that I became so accustomed to that I felt I had to have it."

Mathers says his careers in banking and real estate have given him an inside look at how to invest the money he made in television. Dow says he made some bad investments and a vacation house on Catalina Island is the last remnant of the money from the Wally role.

Still, his current activities finance comfortable living in a home sequestered behind a fence on an acre of land in Van Nuys.

Ward Cleaver, the stern, kind, wise and always evenhanded father on the show would have been proud of how the boys turned out to be good, stable family men:

Dow and his wife, Carol, a travel agent, have been married eight years and have one son, Christopher, 4.

Mathers has been married three years and lives in Woodland Hills. His wife, Diana, teaches high school Latin.

Mathers thinks he may see things a bit differently than Dow because he started working when he was 2 years old as a model for department store clothing advertisements.

As a result, he says, he began to understand early what it was like to be turned down for a job and how it felt to get up at 6 a.m. "to go to work" instead of to school.

Dow, as a teen-ager, wound up as Wally shortly after a YMCA lifeguard, a would-be actor, took him for a studio interview.

After the series ended, Mathers quit acting because he wanted to attend a regular high school and play sports.

Dow graduated from high school on the set and went on to UCLA to study psychology and film but quit before graduation to take acting jobs.

During his late teens and early 20s, Dow appeared in a few films and soap operas.

"I probably turned down 10 beach party movies because I didn't think they were morally healthy. I didn't feel they were particularly entertaining, which was dumb from a business standpoint.

"The job of an actor is to act, not to pass judgment on the piece he's acting in."

Wally and Beaver grown up play a few college jobs, where personal appearances are combined with old clips from their show.

Joining them is Osmond, who spends most of his time as a Los Angeles motorcycle cop.

Barbara Billingsley is married to a Santa Monica physician and spends much of her time traveling or working with charities.

Hugh Beaumont is recovering from a stroke but directs an occasional TV show and appears on occasion in little theater productions.

Shivering time planned by Pickwick performers

Midland Community Theatre's Pickwick Players promise audiences a shivering, shuddering good time during performances of "Dracula's Treasure" this week.

The mystery comedy for young people will be onstage at Theatre Centre Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoons as the Pickwicks' third and final production of the current summer season. Reserved seat tickets for the three presentations will go on sale at the box office Monday morning.

The Pickwick Players, the young people's performing company at MCT, believes "a good scare never hurt anyone — in fact, it can be fun," especially when the scare includes a creepy old house with secret rooms and strange inhabitants. The fun really begins when the Boone family moves into the old place (unoccupied for many years — that is, unoccupied by the living) and all kinds of strange and hard-to-explain events start happening.

The Pickwick production is headed by Jody Youngblood as Count Dracula himself, with Barry Fleming portraying Nick Boone and Penne McAdams portraying his sister, Nancy Boone. Still others in the cast are Rhonda Huxman as Mrs. Boone, Ken Barragan as Dectective Ryan, Chris Sullivan as the timid handyman, Mr. Plumber, Aretha McGruder as the ominous housekeeper Mark Andrade as the bully, Blade, and Bobby Caruthers as a mysterious statue.

"Dracula's Treasure," written by Dudley Saunders, is being directed here by Deborah Waddell, MCT children's theater director. Sets were designed by Miss Waddell and Randy Bonifay, MCT's technical director. The production is being stage-managed by Beverly Walker, assisted by Rolli Jo Taylor and Greg Hancock.

The three performances of "Dracula's Treasure" will begin at 2:30. Tickets are priced $1.25 for adults, 75 cents for students.

Tickets on sale for Twain show

Tickets will be on sale at Theatre Centre this evening in advance of the 8 p.m. performance of "Mark Twain Live!".

The one-man show by Midlander Douglas McGrath will present the humorous observations of famous author and philosopher Mark Twain on a variety of subjects — and thoughts some of the more serious of the great man as well.

McGrath presented a similar impersonation of Twain at the theater last December, performing to a packed house. The show is fashioned after one of Twain's famous lecture evenings.

Tonight's presentation will be a benefit for the Midland Community Theatre building fund. Tickets for the benefit, priced $5, are tax-deductible.

In addition to tonight's special event, McGrath plans four additional performances of his show. They will be at 8 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday, and Aug. 8 and 10. Admission will be $3, with tickets now on sale at the Theatre Centre box office. These performances will be at the American Legion Hall downtown.

Dracula appears on ASU stage

SAN ANGELO — Count Dracula has a way of turning up in unexpected places.

The legendary Transylvanian nobleman comes to the University Theatre stage at Angelo State University this week as the star of a dinner theater production, "Dracula."

The production is a dramatization by Ted Tiller of Victorian author Bram Stoker's novel. The Angelo State University production, staged and directed by Raymond Carver, will open Friday night, with additional performances scheduled nightly through Aug. 10. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m. daily, with the play scheduled to begin at 8. Reservations may be made by telephoning 942-2000 between 2 and 6 p.m. daily. Tickets for the dinner and show are priced $8 for the general public, $7 for patrons.

Director Carver promises theater-goers thrills, surprises and lots of laughter in the show, despite its ominous title.

Goldsmith play leads schedule

ODESSA — Performances of the Oliver Goldsmith comedy, "She Stoops to Conquer," are scheduled for 2:30 p.m. today and 8 p.m. Wednesday to initiate the current week's schedule at the Globe of the Great Southwest.

The Globe is in the midst of its ninth annual summer festival, with the three festival productions presented in rotation Wednesday through Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons.

Thursday's presentation will be Shakespeare's "Two Gentlemen of Verona" and the Friday night offering will be the Bard's "Measure for Measure." Saturday's presentation will be "She Stoops to Conquer."

Tickets for all presentations are on sale daily at the Globe box office and may be reserved in advance by telephoning the theater at 332-1586.

Soili Arvola, left, and Leo Ahonen, stars of the Houston Ballet, will be featured artists in Southwest Ballet Center's "Swan Lake" at 8 p.m. Wednesday and "Giselle" at 8 p.m. Friday in Fort Worth's Scott Theatre.

Guests aid in season's climax

FORT WORTH — Climaxing the sixth summer season of the Southwest Ballet Center will be full-length performances of the ballets "Swan Lake" and "Giselle" this week.

ENTERTAINMENT

The performance series begins Wednesday and continues through Sunday in the Wm. Edrington Scott Theatre of the Fort Worth Art Center. Tickets for the performances are now on sale at the Scott box office and at Central Ticket Agency downtown, priced $5 for adults and $2.50 for students. Tickets may be reserved by telephoning 817-738-6509.

The performances will feature students of the Southwest Ballet Center, including several from Midland's Permian Civic Ballet and others from other regional ballet companies in Texas, Oklahoma and elsewhere. Southwest Ballet Center is under the artistic direction of William Martin-Viscount, founder of the center.

Joining the students in the performances will be a number of internationally-known ballet stars. They include Joyce Cuoco, a star of the Bavarian State Ballet in Munich; Japanese ballet prodigy Kumiko Maeda; Finnish ballerina Soili Arvola, currently a leading artist with the Houston Ballet; Leo Ahonen, also a principal dancer with Houston Ballet, and Martin-Viscount, who regularly fills performance engagements in South America and Europe, as well as in the U. S.

Wednesday's opening performance will be "Swan Lake," featuring Arvola and Ahonen. Thursday's concert will be "Swan Lake," featuring Maeda and Martin-Viscount.

Friday's presentation, "Giselle," will have Arvola and Ahonen as the stars, while a Saturday matinee of "Giselle" will feature Maeda and Martin-Viscount.

The Saturday night presentation will be "Giselle," starring Cuoco and Martin-Viscount, and the Sunday matinee, "Swan Lake," also will feature Cuoco and Martin-Viscount.

All evening performances will begin at 8, and the matinees at 2:30.

Beatty's second TV attempt success in summer tryout

By JERRY BUCK

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Szysznyk" is Ned Beatty's second attempt at a television pilot, and, so far, his most successful.

Three years back he was cast as the father in the first version of Alan Alda's "We'll Get By." But he didn't get by and was recast right out of the show.

"They fired the parents and kept the kids," said Beatty. Which may have been a blessing, since the show quickly went under.

"Szysznyk" went through similar gyrations, with two pilots being made. But this time most of the other cast went and Beatty remained.

"Szysznyk." Oh, yeah, it's Sizz-nick. Nick Szysznyk. Polish.

In this summer tryout series, Beatty plays a retired Marine sergeant who becomes a supervisor at community center in Washington, D.C. He finds the kids who frequent the playground aren't as easy to control as recruits.

Beatty, widely known for his roles in "Deliverance," "Network," "White Lightning," "Nashville" and "Silver Streak" stars in the series with Olivia Cole, who was in "Roots."

He said he was fascinated that the shows were taped in front of an audience like "a one-act play."

Asked how he got involved, he said, "All I remember is being called into a meeting after reading the script. I was told they wanted me. I believe that was back in October. I talked to the other actors and we went into production.

"Then we had to reshoot the pilot. The first time it was just an outdoor playground. Now it's a community center with a gymnasium. The first time I was married and had a fatherin-law. This time I'm a bachelor."

Beatty said the second time he was involved a little more in the creation.

"I wanted a wide open feeling about the show," he said. "I wanted everyone to have an input. Every actor on a show like this has to have the right to say if he is uncomfortable.

"I was working with a lot of young actors and it's easy for them to feel overwhelmed. I believe the more input the better, even if it gets to be crazy. One young actor came up with the secret of what the first show was all about."

In that first show — which was not available for review — Beatty's job at the community center is being discontinued.

He said, "That young actor said what happens when people come up against an outside force they can't fight is that they turn on each other. Once we got hold of that premise it worked out great. That's why I believe everyone working a show should have the right to make comments.

"My experience has led me to believe the auteur theory of filmmaking is nonsense. I've worked with some powerful directors, but they can't put something on film if the actors don't create. Robert Altman has a great signature on films, but his films have to be the most cooperative going."

Festival participants exemplify state spirit

SAN ANTONIO — From bowlegged cowboys to bonneted butter churners to overalled shingle splitters, participants in the sixth annual Texas Folklife Festival will be exemplifying the pioneer spirit of Texas.

During the festival, which opens Thursday and continues through Aug. 7 on the grounds of the Institute of Texan Cultures at Hemis Fair Plaza, thousands of Texans will flock to savor the demonstrations, crafts, food, games, music and dances of some 30 ethnic and cultural groups which helped settle the state. The emphasis this year is on Texas' frontier heritage.

The festival will reveal the multicultural diversity of a state whose people have origins in literally the "four corners of the world."

The annual folk fest is sponsored by the Institute of Texan Cultures of The University of Texas at San Antonio.

ANIMAL TRAINER CHARLEY BAUMANN, called "The Titan of the Tigers," demonstrates his expertise in the exciting 106th edition of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, due in Abilene's Taylor County Coliseum for Tuesday and Wednesday peformances, and then booked into Lubbock Municipal Coliseum for six performances beginning Friday and continuing through Aug. 7. Above, Baumann gets a friendly nuzzle from "playful" feline Kismet.

Play features Leslie Uggams

DALLAS — Sky Masterson, Nicely-Nicely Johnson, Miss Alelaide and a host of other colorful denizens of Damon Runyan's Broadway come to life this week in the Dallas Summer Musicals' production of "Guys and Dolls."

The 1950s musical will open Tuesday night at the Music Hall in Fair Park here, with performances to continue through Aug. 14. Actress Leslie Uggams, star of stage, screen and TV, will be featured as the lass from the Save-A-Soul Mission, Sarah.

"Guys and Dolls" will have performances at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday each week, in addition to matinees at 2:30 each Saturday and Sunday. Tickets are available at the State Fair box office, Preston Ticket Agency and other outlets in the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex.

Outdoor theater in final week

ALPINE — The Theatre of the Big Bend is in the final week of its 12th summer season.

The outdoor theater series, presented under auspices of Sul Ross State University, will have performances Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights and a closing presentation Saturday night.

The week's schedule calls for a performance of the comedy, "The Wager," Wednesday night, a performance of another comedy, "6 Rms Riv Vu," Thursday night, and a performance of the suspense thriller "Night Watch" Friday night. The concluding event on Saturday night will be "The Wager." All performances begin at 8:45 p.m. at the SRSU outdoor theater at Kokernot Lodge, in northeast Alpine.

Obscure rock group carving new 'niche'

NEW YORK (AP) — Is America finally ready for "sophistifunk"? Little Feat hopes so.

The six-member Los Angeles band has always garnered rave reviews for its funky, shuffling blues-based sound. Premiere rock guitarist Jimmy Page of Led Zeppelin calls Little Feat "my favorite American band" while Paul McCartney, Mick Jagger and Peter Frampton offer similar raves. But erratic concert tours and the lack of a hit album or conventional musical niche has left the band one of the most critically acclaimed and least known groups in rock.

"My new term for it is 'sophistifunk,' " said guitarist Paul Barrere, who has replaced Little Feat's founder, Lowell George, as the focal point of the band's on-stage performance. "We soaked up all influences in music. We've graduated now to 'sophistifunk.' "

Most of the attention the band has received comes from George's ode to truckdrivers, "Willin," a hit song for Linda Ronstandt who also covered the group's "Roll 'Um Easy."

They've received solid FM airplay on songs like "Tripe Face Boogie" and "Day At the Dog Races" from their latest album. But without continual touring, sales of the group's six albums are only fair and well below gold record status.

"I think they were disillusioned with the whole touring syndrome at first. There was no management at that time," Barrere said.

New train to operate in Texas

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Amtrak will put newer passenger trains into service on its Laredo, Tex., to Chicago run, hoping to increase ridership, overcome air conditioning problems and improve the late record of the train.

The equipment, known as Amfleet, has been built for Amtrak within the past three years and will replace the 26-year-old cars and locomotives now in use on the Inter-American train, Amtrak spokesman Joe Vranich told The Associated Press Friday night.

The first Amfleet train on the route will leave Chicago Aug. 8 on its trip through Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas and Texas.

The Inter-American has had one of the worst on-time records of any Amtrak train. In April, for example, it was late 92.3 per cent of the time, Amtrak said. Between March 2 and July 2, the train was so late that about 25 per cent of the northbound runs ended in St. Louis and passengers were bused the final 300 miles to Chicago.

Equipment failures have accounted for some of the late Inter-American runs, but the largest single reason was freight trains taking prefrence over the passenger trains, Amtrak said earlier this month.

Amtrak also said earlier that it might sue the Missouri-Pacific Railroad in an effort to get better service. Federal law requires railroads to give passenger trains preference, Amtrak said. MoPac crews operate the Inter-American over most of the 1,449 mile route, although three other railroads also handle portions of the trip.

The change to Amfleet equipment means that the Inter-American no longer will have cars with sleeping facilities. Vranich said the decision to drop sleeper service was based on the low use of such equipment on the Inter-American.

An Amfleet dining car will be included on the Inter-American.

The Amfleet passenger cars are heated and air conditioned with electricity, and the power is generated in the locomotives, rather than by the wheels of the cars. Vranich said that means that when the Inter-American is stopped, the heating and air conditioning will continue to operate.

Riders of the Inter-American have complained of frequent breakdowns of the air conditioning system.

Vranich said the Amfleet cars have automatic sliding doors, tray tables for each seat, individual reading lights, carpeting, and a suspension system designed for a smoother ride than older cars.

He said with the new cars and the good MoPac track, the Inter-American would give passengers one of the "smoothest rides in the country on the Amtrak system."

The cars are no more than two years old. The locomotives, which were built three years ago, have just been completely overhauled, Vranich said.

He said the Amfleet equipment is designed for speeds up to 120 miles an hour, but would be limited to 60 miles an hour by MoPac and 79 miles an hour by the other three railroads which handle the train.

The Inter-American will be the longest route in the country using Amfleet equipment, Vranich said.

New astronaut candidates named

HOUSTON (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has announced selection of the first 20 potential space shuttle astronauts.

Remote station now has new job

By ROBERT WELLER
Associated Press Writer

POTATO POINT, Alaska (AP) — This remote radar station has been a dream assignment for Coast Guard personnel, with its dazzling scenery, clear skies and good fishing.

But the era of the supertanker dawned Saturday, and this guidepost for mariners changed with it.

"We'll have less time to go fishing," said Coast Guard Lt. Roger Holmes as the first of a huge fleet of supertankers approached the Valdez Narrows.

The 120,000-ton ARCO Juneau, which will carry the first load of Alaskan oil to West Coast refineries, went through the Narrows Saturday on its way to the trans-Alaska pipeline's southern terminal at Valdez, some 15 miles to the northeast.

The first Prudhoe Bay oil flowed from the 800-mile, $7.7 billion pipeline late Thursday. The Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. said oil was coming in at the rate of 550,000 barrels a day.

The marine leg of the pipeline has long been the focus of criticism from state officials, fishermen and environmentalists. In addition to the possibility of tanker accidents somewhere on the route south, the Narrows has attracted special attention.

It is six-tenths of a mile wide, about 50 miles from Hichenbrook Entrance — the gateway into Prince William Sound from the stormy Gulf of Alaska.

The job of Holmes and the other Coast Guard personnel assigned to Potato Point is to keep the tankers apart.

"We can fit 18 supertankers side by side in the narrowest part of the channel," said Radarman 2.C. Chris Nettles.

But he also concedes, "Murphy's law says that if something can go wrong it will, although chances are slim."

Drug renews potency

WASHINGTON (AP) — An experimental drug increases sexual desire in women and restores potency in men, an American Chemical Society magazine says.

"In some women who have never had erotic feelings in their entire lives, bromocryptine restored sexual desire and led to normal sexual activity," Dr. Andrea Genazzani of the University of Siena, Italy, was quoted as saying in the Aug. 1 issue of Chemical and Engineering News.

Bromocryptine is credited with inducing menstruation in women whose cycles had stopped, alleviating depression from lack of menstruation, and restoring the production of sperm and sexual potency in men, according to the magazine.

Women who had never menstruated began menstruation within 67 to 140 days after the drug was administered. Women whose menstrual cycles had been interrupted for up to 12 years returned to normal in 22 days to four months.

The magazine said these same women were freed from mental depression within three months and were able to lead normal sex lives within six months.

Bromocryptine alleviates sexual problems by suppressing excess secretion of a pituitary hormone called prolactin that is associated with abnormally low levels of sex-related hormones such as testosterone in men, the report said.

It said men who received the hormone supplement testosterone undecanoate have experienced increased sexual activity, facial hair growth for the first time and generally increased mental and physical activity.

Bromocryptine is available by prescription in West Germany and Switzerland to treat abnormal growth and to inhibit milk production in women. It is available in the United States on an experimental basis.

Distance between emergency room, ICU critical

By GEORGE JOHNSTON

Three persons deeply involved with the Midland medical community agree that it is an unusually long distance from Midland Memorial Hospital's emergency room to the intensive care unit.

Maybe too long for a critically ill patient.

Although there is no documented case of a death caused by the distance between the emergency room, located on the first floor of the west wing, and the ICU, on the fourth floor of the east wing, hospital Administrator Wayne Ulrich said Friday, "there is always the possibility."

Midland physician Dr. Viola Coleman said if a patient stops breathing while being transported, all the nurses can do is yell because there is no communication system to contact a physician, and no way to immediately give the patient oxygen.

And Mickey Cappadonna, Midland Memorial Hospital board chairman, said that although he knows of no specific cases, "a closer ICU would certainly help save many more lives."

What is being propsed to solve this and other hospital problems is a $10 million bond issue to finance an addition and extensive renovation to the hospital.

The bond issue will go before Midland County voters sometime in the middle of September, along with an election to create a hospital district.

If the bond issue is approved, a critical care unit (CCU) will be located directly across the corridor from surgery and the emergency room.

"The old unit is isolated from the other critical medical services," Cappadonna said. "It needs to be near the emergency room or operating room so they can go right in to receive the proper treatment."

Cappadonna added that the current ICU is about 15 years old and does not have the most modern equipment. The new addition will be fully equipped, he said.

Also, he added, the current unit is in a square room, which requires the nurse to walk to each bed to check on the patient. The proposed unit will be circular with the nurses station in the middle, so that a nurse can just glance up to quickly see each patient.

Ullrich agreed that the distance was the primary reason for wanting to relocate the unit, but another problem is that a patient currently must be transported through the same corridors and in the same elevators that the general public uses, subjecting him to possible infection.

According to Cappadonna, another advantage of the proposed CCU is that physicians will be closer at hand when they are needed.

"In a code four (life threatning) situation, they need all the emergency personel on hand. The relocation will bring everything together," he said.

"The unit is always staffed with nurses," he added, "but doctors are on call, and they must be close by."

It sometimes takes physicians 10 minutes to go from the emergency room to the ICU, he added.

Another critical time element is in post emergency care, according to Cappadonna.

While a cardiac arrest victim can be taken immediately to the ICU, but a car accident victim must be cleaned up before he is transported. The time to clean up the patient is critical, he said.

The CCU will also help increase the the survival rate of critical cases, Cappadonnaa said.

"Only 20 years ago 70 per cent of the critical patients were lost, but now 80 per cent are saved because of quicker attention," he said.

Carter delaying action on postal service

By JEFFREY MILLS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, who promised during last fall's election campaign to take "quick steps" to attack the problems of the Postal Service, is delaying taking a position on legislation dealing with those problems.

The legislation would seek to eliminate the Postal Service's chronic deficit by sharply increasing the taxpayer subsidy of the U.S. mail but at the same time prevent the Postal Service from halting Saturday deliveries. The bill also would allow the President to appoint the postmaster general, a power taken away from the White House in 1971.

Testimony by Carter administration officials, which had been scheduled for last week, now has been postponed until after the August congressional recess, the House Post Office Committee said Friday.

A committee staffer, saying "the White House is postponing a decision on" the bill, complained that the panel hasn't "an inkling from the administration what the position will be."

White House domestic aide Robert Malson confirmed that Carter was still pondering the matter.

The Post Office Committee, which has been seeking Carter's views for weeks, said the administration testimony is now scheduled for Sept. 8 with the probable witness Burt Lance, Carter's budget director.

Last October, Carter made a campaign statement that he would act quickly on the Postal Service.

"If I am elected President, I will take quick steps to make our Postal Service efficient and dependable once again," he declared.

Lobbyists representing mail users expect the eventual administration stand to be against major parts of the bill because of budgetary concerns.

"All indications are that the higher subsidy in the bill will go against the administration's desire to balance the budget," one lobbyist said.

Carter so far has made only one suggestion on the mail service, that the 13-cent letter rate for private correspondence be retained. The Postal Service adopted the suggestion while proposing that other rates go up next year.

Registration continues for work-study plan

Registration will continue through Aug. 8 for a program which will offer to qualified candidates the opportunity to earn a college degree while working full-time as an apprentice auto mechanic.

Interested persons may register for the program at the Texas Employment Commission office, 501 N. Loraine.

The program is coordinated through the Texas Employment Commission, the National Automobile Dealers Association, the U.S. Department of Labor and area franchised new car dealers.

Registration is open to people between the ages of 18 and 30 who have the equivalent of a high school education. Those accepted for enrollment will be employed at one of 11 dealerships taking part in the program. Participants will also attend classes at Midland College two nights a week.

Classes will begin Aug. 29.

Apprentices who successfully complete the three-year program will be qualified as Certified General Mechanics by the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence. They will have earned associate degrees in Automotive Technology from Midland College.

Teachers claim salaries not equal with others'

Teachers' salaries in Midland have not kept pace with the salaries of other workers in the community, a spokesman for the Midland Classroom Teachers Association charged Saturday.

"According to nationally published figures in Sales and Marketing Management, the median household effective buying income for Midland was $14,032 in 1975," said Maridell Fryar, a member of the association's communication committee. These figures represent take-home pay, she said.

In contrast, she said, a Midland teacher with 10 years experience and a master's degree has an effective buying income of $8,792.

Midland Independent School District has not yet set teacher salaries for the 1977-78 school year. That action is scheduled to be taken Aug. 9.

A two-year study in Today's Education showed that teacher preparation and experience influenced student achievement more than other factors in education, Mrs. Fryar said in a prepared release.

"Yet, if salaries reflect our values, those are not highly prized in Midland," she added.

AS RESPONSIBLE CITIZENS TEACHERS WANT TO BEAR THEIR FAIR SHARE OF THE INCREASING COSTS OF EDUCATION.

TEACHERS NOT ONLY ARE PROVIDING THEIR SERVICES BUT ALSO ARE RESPONSIBLE CITIZENS OF THIS COMMUNITY!

As citizens we have to accept the increasing costs of an excellent educational system as everyone else does.

ARE TEACHERS ASKED TO PROVIDE A BIGGER PORTION OF THE INCREASING COST OF THE BUDGET THAN THE REST OF THE COMMUNITY?

We have difficulty understanding why our profession should always be the last consideration in the system's budget. Because it is last, it's our salaries that too often carry the total blame for increase in taxes. Consider some of the other costs:

1. AS CITIZENS OF A RESPONSIBLE COMMUNITY, TEACHERS are shocked over the increasing inflationary costs of materials, utilities, supplies, equipment, building insurance, and other expenses EXCLUDING all salaries. (Up 21.6 percent last year, estimated 17 to 19% this year)

QUESTION: If our profession is NOT receiving fair and just cost-of-living adjustments for our services, are we not being asked to absorb a greater part of the financial load than the rest of the community to which we ALL belong?

2. AS CITIZENS OF A RESPONSIBLE COMMUNITY, TEACHERS fully support the aims and purposes of the Midland Alliance. It is no secret, however, that more school buses were purchased and more drivers have had to be hired. We of course, wish to share in the responsibility of thai cost and the cost of the additional programs that will begin a successful desegration this fall. We are excited about the opportunities and possibilties these programs will provide.

QUESTION: Is our profession being asked to bear the greater protion of the costs that is a total community responsibility?

3. AS CITIZENS OF A RESPONSIBLE COMMUNITY, TEACHERS want their children taught by the best educators available. The greatest "drawing card" for the best to this area is an excellent financial incentive. Many fine educators have been drawn into other professions. The best are not easy to replace.

QUESTION: Can we afford NOT to continue to attract the best and keep the best for our children?

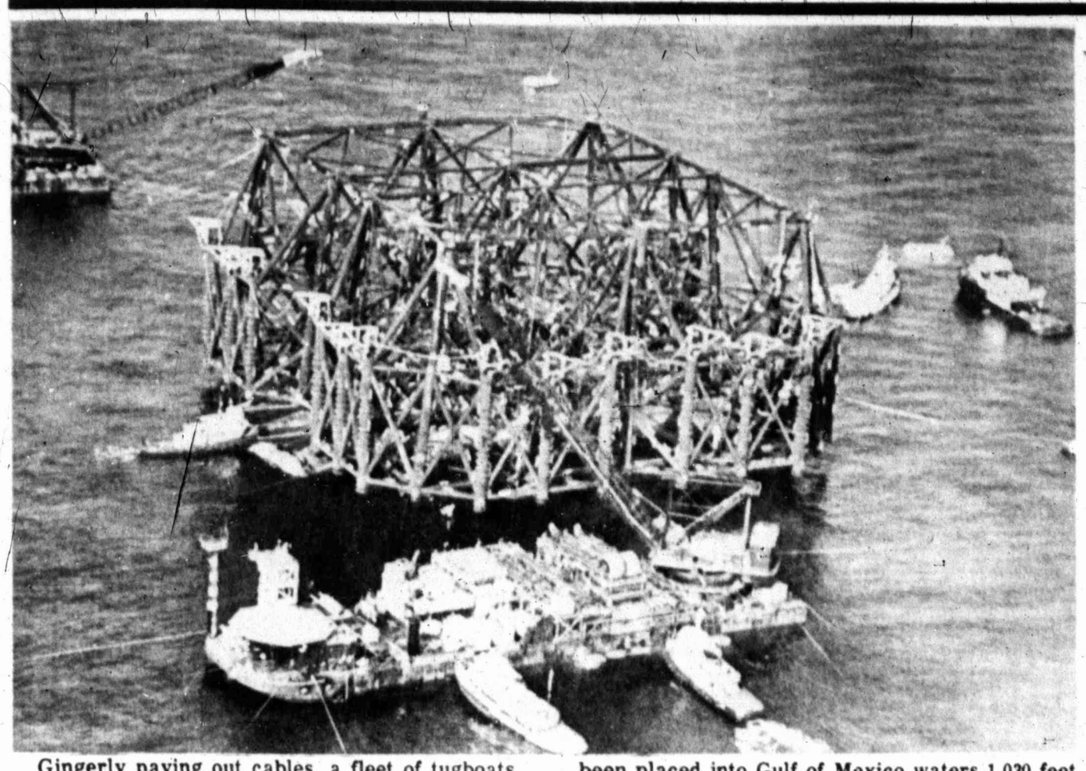
4. AS CITIZENS OF A RESPONSIBILE COMMUNITY, TEACHERS are interested in the economy of Midland. Adjustments to our salaries are investments to that economy. There are approximately 750 teachers and an additional 300 auxiliary staff who spend a very large percent of their salaries here.

QUESTION: Is this community expecting teachers to provide their services for less? Is this community asking charity from those who are finding themselves financially less and less able to be charitable?

TEACHERS' SALARIES HAVE NOT KEPT PACE WITH COST OF LIVING!

We have had a decrease in purchasing power of approximately 25 percent in the last eight years.

Paid for by Midland/Educators Association and the Classroom Teachers Association of Midland.



Gingerly paying out cables, a fleet of tugboats and derrick barges begin lowering the base of what will become the world's tallest offshore oil platform. The base alone is 175 feet high, and it has been placed into Gulf of Mexico waters 1,030 feet deep. The entire rig will be 15 feet taller than the 1,250-foot Empire State Building. (AP Laserphoto)

World's tallest offshore platform lands on bottom of Gulf of Mexico

By BILL CRIDER

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The giant geometric steel framework that is the base for the world's tallest offshore oil platform decended to the ocean bottom 1,030 feet below last week.

Two powerful derrick barges will lowers the 14,000-ton structure on eight steel cables to a precise landing on the muddy bottom of the Gulf of Mexico at a point 15 miles south from the mouth of the Mississippi River.

Acoustical homing devices planted on the seabottom guided the descent. Engineers watched it with underwater television cameras.

The structure was eased off the special launch barge Monday. Then the derricks held it poised at the surface, steady as an island in the gentle swell.

About 50 feet of it loomed above the blue water, dwarfing the barges and tugs around it.

Shell is the lead company in an eight-company combine that is sinking a total of $700 million into this venture out on the technical frontier of offshore oil.

Building and installing this platform will eat up $275 million of the total. The rest goes for lease payment, equipment, underwater pipeline connections and other costs.

The base is bigger than most city blocks — 400 by 380 feet at the bottom. It is 175 feet high.

Before lowering it, technicians had to check out complex telemetering equipment — 140 sensors which, among other things, tell whether the structure develops a tilt.

When finished, the top of drilling rigs on the platform's working deck will be 15 feet higher than the Empire State Building. It will drill and handle 62 oil wells, sending up to 40,000 barrels of crude ashore each day.

It be the world's deepest offshore production system. The deepest U.S. production now is from wells under less than 400 feet of water, though Exxon is setting up in water 800 feet deep in California's Santa Barbara channel.

Oilmen cannot get into water much deeper than 1,000 feet without developing a radically new system.

When this base reaches bottom it will be nailed to the ocean floor. Twenty-four 600-foot steel pilings will be hammered down through steel sleeves around the base perimeter.

Then two more sections will be stacked on top of it. The midsection, under construction, is 310 feet by 280 at the bottom and 315 feet high. The top third of the tower is 270 by 254 and 530 feet high.

Shell's partners in the venture are Continental Oil, Florida Gas Exploration Co., Barber Oil Exploration Inc., Drillamex Inc., Sonat Exploration Co., Offshore Co. and Getty Oil Co.

Meyer, Exxon head, to speak at reunion

Randall Meyer of Houston, president of Exxon Co., U.S.A., will be the principal speaker at the 10th biennial reunion of the Permian Basin Petroleum Pioneers Association, Chairman John P. Butler announced Saturday.

The reunion is scheduled to be held Friday, Oct. 28.

Meyer will speak at the men's luncheon session in the Midland Hilton.

A luncheon for women will be held at Ranchland Hill Country Club.

Butler said that notices of the October meeting have been sent to all registered members of the association.

An effort also is being made to get all persons eligible for membership and who have not previously enrolled to do so promptly at the Midland Chamber of Commerce. Les Weatherall is in charge of this phase of the program.

Any man or woman who was engaged in some phase of the oil busineas in the Permian Basin Empire 30 or more years prior to Oct. 1, 1977, is eligible for membership.

Making the reunion even more attractive this year is the fact that the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum will stage it 1977 Hall of Fame Dinner at the Midland Hilton the night preceding the reunion. Maurice R. Bullock, vice chairman of the museum's board of executors, said other information concerning the dinner will be announced soon.

Reunion arrangements call for a men's get-together between the hours of 9:30 and 11:30 a.m. in the Hilton.

Immediately following the two luncheons, the Pioneers, both men and women, will tour the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum.

An informal reception for both men and women registered for the reunion will be held from 6 to 9 p.m. in the Midland Petroleum Club.

Butler said he expects a record attendance at the 1977 reunion.

Details for the celebration are being handled by Fred Tyler, executive vice president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

Leslie Hawkins

F. L. Linton

Phillips men to retire

Two Midland employes of Phillips Petroleum Co. will retire in August.

F. L. Linton, a maintenance foreman for the Spraberry Gasoline Plant, will retire Aug. 10 after 35 years with the company.

Leslie Hawkins, who has put in 30 years with Phillips, will retire from his job as field operator at the same location.

Linton began his Phillips career at the Denoya Plant at Shidler, Okla. Other locations at which he has worked include the Naval Reserve Plant, Faifay, Okla.; Hansford Plant, Guymon, Okla; Borger Plant and the Goldsmith Plant.

He has been a resident of Midland five years.

Hawkins has lived in Midland the last 25 years. He joined Phillips in Odessa in 1947 as a roustabout. He later worked at Goldsmith and Penwell and moved to the Spraberry plant in 1952.

He has served as an engine operator, stillman, meterman and in his present position of field operator.

Knight now with Cleary

Buddy Knight has joined the Midland District staff of Cleary Petroleum Corp. as district production manager, reports Max Douglas, district manager.

Knight was graduated from New Mexico State University at Las Cruces and has worked in various capacities with companies in New Mexico and Texas.

He previously was associated with Texaco and more recently with Texas Pacific Oil Co. in Midland.

Knight will be responsible for all the production activities in the Midland District, Douglas said.

Uranium ore deposit found

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — "Potentially significant" uranium reserves have been discovered in a band of sandstone that runs from near Rio Grande City to Newton County on the Sabine River, paralleling the Texas coast, a University of Texas news release declared today.

Dr. William E. Galloway, working under contract with the UT Bureau of Economic Geology on loan from the Energy Research and Development Administration, conducted the investigation that discovered the deposit in the Catahoula Formation.

Texas is the third leading state in uranium production, but that production today is mostly from two other formations — the Jackson in Karnes County and the Oakville in Live Oak County.

WASHINGTON OIL

FEA's action confirms fear of too much profit

By CLYDE LA MOTTE
Reporter-Telegram
Washington Oil Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The Federal Energy Administration's action last week in continuing the freeze on domestic crude oil prices is a further indication of the government's continuing fear that domestic oil companies may make too much money.

Under the existing control program, prices are supposed to escalate at a rate of 10 per cent annually to offset inflation and to provide incentive to domestic producers.

However, a freeze was imposed when the government discovered that the prices it had set for "old" and "new" crude oil did not average out to the $7.66 composite price for all domestic crude oil. Instead, the actual average turned out to be above that level.

The problem originally started when Congress in its wisdom decided late in 1975 that the price of "new" domestic crude oil, which at that time was not subject to controls, should be rolled back and brought under the price control tent. "Old" crude oil was already under regulation, with the price set at $5.25 a barrel.

The 1975 congressional action retained the "old" price level and specified that the price for "new" crude should be set so that the composite would be $7.66.

To attain this goal, the government established a ceiling price of $11.28 on "new" domestic crude. The government figured that the resulting mix "old" oil would attain the desired $7.66 level.

As it turned out, more "new" oil moved into the market than the government had anticipated, so the composite price exceeded the congressional limit of $7.66.

At first the government figured that this problem could be solved simply by delaying application of the 10 per cent annual increase. So it froze the "old" and "new" prices at the levels they had reached.

This did not get results quickly enough to satisfy the government, so it subsequently cut the price levels, first by 20 cents a barrel and then by 45 cents. That is, not only was escalation suspended but the price was rolled back.

The government's stated intention at that time was to keep the freeze in place only for the time required to offset the "overage" that had accumulated to the companies during the time the actual average price was higher than $7.66. It estimated this amount late last year to be about $322 million.

FEA said at the time that the price freeze would probably be lifted July 1 because by that time the $322 million gain would have been offset.

Current calculations are that the "overage" not only has been offset but that the domestic companies now have some money coming to them.

Even so, FEA decided last week to keep the freeze in place, which means that the amount the companies are being short-changed will continue to accumulate.

FEA said there were two primary reasons for its decision. One was that it takes about three months to compile pricise data on acutal price levels, so that while it appears the companies may be due about $200 million at this time, FEA wants to make sure.

The other reason is that FEA deliberately wants to create a "surplus" owing to the companies so that it can avoid letting the companies get ahead of the game again in case the price mix does not turn out to be exactly $7.66 a barrel. Also, FEA is anticipating that the plan for establishing a third, and higher, price for new oil discoveries will put upward pressure on the price composite established by Congress. So it wants to be ahead of the game.

What it adds up to, therefore, is that the current price of $11 a barrel for new domestic oil and $5.17 a barrel for old oil will remain in effect at least through August.

Domestic producers content that this approach simply reduces the cash flow available to them and thereby rduces their ability to drill more holes in the search for additional oil and gas supplies. It is, in effect, a disincentive because it slows down domestic exploration and drilling.

Government officials concede that keeping the price down even lower than required under the law will not spur new drilling efforts. But it will enable FEA to report to Congress that it has made sure the domestic oil companies aren't making too much money off their crude oil.

Discovery wells final

HOUSTON — Mitchell Energy & Development Corp. has reported completions of two gas discovery wells about one mile south of production in the Calhoun field of Quachita Parish, La.

The company said one of the wells was dually completed as a discovery in one zone and a development producer in the other.

No. 1 Brimberry Gas Unit was finaled for an estimated open flow potential of 3.4 million cubic feet of gas per day from perforations between 9,583 and 9,593 feet in the Cotton Valley Upper Cadeville sand. The closest comparable production from the Cadeville sand is four miles west in the Cartwright field of Jackson Parish.

The discovery zone of the dual producer, No. 1 Norris Gas Unit, is behind perforations from 9,437 to 9,461 feet. The well tested 1.2 million cubic feet of gas per day on a ½-inch choke. The closest production from the pay zone, the Hosston Chapman sand, is two miles northwest and separated from No. 1 Norris by dry holes.

North Sea petroleum doubles production

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP)—The North Sea has enabled Western Europe to more than double its crude oil production since the 1973-74 Arab embargo.

Unlike the United States, Western Europe now is importing less oil than it did prior to the embargo.

In 1973, crude production in Western Europe averaged 445,000 barrels a day and the area imported 15,310,000 barrels daily in crude oil and petroleum products.

By the end of 1976, the area's crude output had increased to 905,000 barrels daily while imports had dropped to 13,725,000 barrels a day.

During the same period, demand for petroleum products dropped from 15,155,000 to 14,340,000 barrels a day.

The latest trends for Western Europe have been recorded in the 21st edition of the British Petroleum Statistical Review of the World Oil Industry.

The new review records the increasing importance of the North Sea by placing Norway's 1976 production at 280,000 barrels a day and that of the United Kingdom at 235,000. West Germany followed at 110,000 barrels daily.

The review's 1973 edition had West Germany as the area's leading producer at 130,000 barrels a day. Norway and the United Kingdom were not listed.

Between 1973 and the end of 1976, the United States increased its imports of crude and products from 6,205,000 to 7,290,000 barrels a day.

Domestic crude oil production meanwhile was dropping from 9,185,000 to 8,120,000 barrels a day while petroleum demand was increasing from 16,815,000 to 16,980,000 barrels daily.

The Middle East and Africa were the big losers as Western Europe reduced its import requirements.

Last year's imports from the Middle East averaged 9,405,000 barrels a day compared with 10,350,000 in 1973. Imports from Africa were down from 3,575,000 to 2,540,000 barrels a day.

The only areas increasing their shipments into Western Europe were Russia and Eastern Europe. Last year's imports from those areas averaged 1,355,000 barrels a day, compared with 935,000 in 1973.

The United States meanwhile was more than doubling its imports from both the Middle East and Africa.

Middle East imports last year averaged 1,910,000 barrels a day compared with 820,000 in 1973. Imports from North Africa increased from 360,000 to 915,000 barrels daily while those from West Africa jumped from 515,000 to 1,085,000 barrels a day. Shipments from Southeast Asia increased from 240,000 to 585,000 barrels daily.

Canadian shipments into the United States meanwhile were dropping from 1,335,000 to 595,000 barrels a day while those from Latin America, primarily Venezuela, were dropping from 2,540,000 to 2,010,000 daily.

At the time of the oil embargo, Japan was importing 5,760,000 barrels of crude oil and products a day, including 4,385,000 from the Middle East and 1,115,000 from Southeast Asia. By the end of 1976 such imports had been reduced to 5,320,000 barrels daily, including 3,955,000 from the Middle East and 1,080,000 from Southeast Asia.

Between 1973 and 1976, Western Europe's proved crude oil reserves increased from 16.4 billion barrels to 24.9 billion. Those of the United States declined from 41.8 billion to 37.3 billion.

Middle East proved reserves meanwhile increased from 349.7 billion to 367.3 billion, while those of Africa declined from 67.3 billion to 60.6 billion.

In 1959, Western Europe claimed only 16.6 per cent of the world's oil refining capacity at 3,640,000 barrels a day. The United States claimed 42.2 per cent at 9,225,000.

Western Europe now is the leading refining area, however, with a processing capacity of 21,205,000 barrels a daily or 28.2 per cent of the world total. At 16,450,000 barrels, the United States follows at 21.9 per cent.

The new edition of the British Petroleum publication includes for the first time a section on natural gas reserves with a world estimate of 2,325 trillion cubic feet.

Russia is the leader at 918 trillion, followed by the Middle East at 535.9 trillion, the United States at 216 trillion, Africa at 209.1 trillion, and Western Europe at 142.4 trillion.

Basin rotary count lists 278 operations

The weekly rig count for the Permian Basin area decreased by nine units last week according to Reed Drilling Equipment.

The count of 278 is, however, 61 more than the 217 reported this time one year ago.

There were 33 rotaries making hole in Eddy County, N. M., followed by 22 units working in Pecos County.

Sixteen rigs were tallied in Lea County, N. M., with 14 units reported in Reeves County and 13 in Ward County.

Head of AAPG speaks out on oil 'crisis-glut'

(The following statement on the "energy crisis" and an oil "glut" were released by Edd Turner, president of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists headquartered in Tulsa, Okla.)

TULSA, Okla. — Questions are being raised about the validity of an "energy crisis" in times of an oil "glut." In spite of the seeming contradiction, glut and shortage can coexist. Let's examine some facts.

The "glut" is temporary. Oil now beginning to flow from the Alaskan North Slope will not substantially extend the period during which we can expect to rely exclusively on fossil fuels for our energy needs. We are using 17 million barrels of oil each day. That is 6.2 billion barrels a year.

Alaskan oil will raise American production from 8.1 million to 8.9 million barrels daily. The positive effect of this increase is to reduce the amount of oil we are forced to import, leading to a more favorable balance of payments situation with the OPEC countries. But consumption is increasing, and the Alaskan fields may not extend the time during which we can rely on fossil fuels by more than two years.

Even taking Alaskan oil into account, U.S. oil production peaked in 1970 at 9.6 million barrels a day. The figure for 1976 was 8.1 billion.

Canadian production peaked in 1973. Production has declined steadily since then, at a rate of 350,000 barrels less each year. The oil-rich Middle East saw its highest production year in 1974, with 21.8 million barrels drawn, but more recent figures are down 2 million barrels. Africa peaked in 1970.

Production of oil and natural gas in the free world reached its highest level in 1973, but discovery and production in communist nations is still rising.

No matter how much oil is being found, pumped and used, the supply of fossil fuels is finite, so there is an energy crisis.

For the short run, we have a "Glut" of oil — on the West Coast. If by "glut" we mean that more oil and gas are available than can be used where produced, then we have had for a number of years a "glut" of oil in Texas and Louisiana. Both states produce more than they can use, but that oil and gas is trans-shipped to the rest of the nation.

The coming "glut" of oil on the West Coast is government inspired: federal, state and local authorities are standing in the way of shipping the oil where it is needed and can be used.

For months, permission has been sought to reverse flow in an existing pipeline running from New Mexico to Long Beach, Calif., which would enable movement from the West Coast of Alaskan oil into existing cross-country pipeline systems. The Federal Power Commission has been delaying the plan by asking for detailed information in a continuing series of queries.

Now the California Air Board is saying it wants no tankers coming into the port at Long Beach. It might be said that the West Coast is not cooperating with the rest of the country.

President Carter has discarded the idea of trading Alaskan oil with Japan, in exchange for Japan's supplies of Persian Gulf oil delivered to East Coast ports.

It is not possible to move large volumes of North Slope oil through the Panama Canal: large tankers are too big for the canal.

If tankers are required to go around the Horn, oil arriving at East Coast ports could cost more than the highest priced Middle East oil. To build a pipeline across the Panama Isthmus would cost somewhere in the neighborhood of $2 million a mile — roughly a $100 million project, and that cost does not take into consideration building loading docks and deepwater ports. There are no deep-water facilities — needed by super tankers — either end of the Canal.

One envisions tankers full of Alaskan oil, like the Flying Dutchman, plying the Pacific forever.

On the political side, it needs to be made clear to consumers that control of prices holds down production. Oil and natural gas price control, rather than meaning savings to consumers, means we must rely more and more heavily on greater quantities of imported oil — from countries over whose pricing policies the U.S. has no control.

G. F. Elliott promoted

George F. Elliott Jr. has been promoted to group leader of the Purchasing Department in The Ortloff Corp.'s Midland headquarters office.

Elliott joined the department in 1976 as a senior engineer. In his new position he will be responsible for the procurement of engineered equipment and materials used in the construction of processing plants for the petroleum, natural gas, petrochemical and chemical industries.

He received a B.S. degree in Chemical Engineering from Lamar University in 1970. Following his graduation, he was employed as a process engineer for Diamond Shamrock Chemical Co. in Deer Park. He is a member of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers.

Show directors slate meeting

ODESSA — The board of directors of the Permian Basin Oil Show will meet in the Odessa Country Club at 6:30 p.m. August 9.

The main item of business will be plans for the 1978 Permian Basin Oil Show.

Forrest C. Weber

Thomas W. Peeks

Peeks, Weber to retire

Forrest C. Weber of Odessa and Thomas W. "Woody" Peeks of Denver City will retire Monday from Texas Pacific Oil Co., Inc.

Weber, a pumper in the North Cowden Area, has been with the company and its predecessor, Texas Pacific Coal and Oil Co., 37 years.

He was graduated from Ranger High School and attended Ranger Junior College. He joined Texas Pacific Coal and Oil Oct. 16, 1940, as a roustabout at the Butler Camp at Ranger. He was in the pipe line department.

Weber served in the armed force in World War II, from 1943-1945. In November 1963, he was promoted to pumper in the North Cowden Area.

He is a member of the First Baptist Church of Odessa and the National Organization of AARP.

Peeks, a native of Eolian, attended school at Cisco and Breckenridge, and was graduated from Breckenridge High School.

He started work with Texas Pacific Coal and Oil Co. in Odessa as a pumper on the O. B. Holt lease Jan. 23, 1945. He worked there until 1952 then was assigned as a roustabout in the Odessa and Monahans areas until 1961.

Peeks was promoted to production foreman in 1961 while at Monahans. From 1961 to 1971, he worked as foreman at Monahans and Odessa. He was transferred to Denver City in 1971 and has been a foreman in the Denver City Area since that time.

Dividends announced

Adobe Oil & Gas Corp. of Midland has announced a cash dividend for the third quarter of 1977 of 4 cents per share to be paid Sept. 30.

The dividend will be given to shareholders of record Sept. 2.

The board of directors of Adobe Corp., a subsidiary of Adobe Oil & Gas Corp., also authorized a quarterly cash dividend of 4 cents per share to be paid Sept. 30 to shareholders of record Sept. 2.

Council names 1977-78 officers

KILGORE — The Oil Field Haulers Association's Council of Safety Supervisors recently elected Milton Keck of Iowa Park its chairman.

Other new 1977-78 officers are Nick Miller of Abilene, first vice chairman; Jerry Watson, Dallas, second vice chairman, and Buzz Roye of Austin, secretary.

The Council of Safety Supervisors is a group of safety specialists from trucking firms with nationwide operations dedicated to making motor transportation safer for their employes and the public.

John McCarthy

TO&G adds J. McCarthy

John McCarthy has joined the West Texas District office of Texas Oil & Gas Corp. as a geologist.

A graduate of Northern Illinois University, McCarthy holds B.S. and M.S. degrees in Geology.

He is a member of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists, the West Texas Geological Society and the Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists.

ARCO seeks to speed up Alaska oil shipment

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Atlantic Richfield Co., one of the major owners of the trans-Alaska pipeline, says it will file a reduced tariff with the Interstate Commerce Commission to avoid a delay in shipping the first tanker load of North Slope oil to West Coast refineries.

ARCO announced its decision Friday following a ruling by a federal appeals court which upheld the ICC in overturning tariffs filed by the eight pipeline owners last month. It said it would file the new tariff — the amount the oil companies can charge for transporting the oil — Saturday.

Two other pipeline owners, Exxon and British Petroleum, quickly followed ARCO in announcing that they also would file amended rates in line with ICC guidelines. The other five pipeline partners were expected to do the same.

The ARCO decision to file amended tariffs while maintaining the right to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court eliminated the prospect for anti-climatic delay in the sailing of the first tanker from the pipeline terminal at Valdez, now scheduled for Monday or Tuesday.

Federal law would have prevented the first tanker, the 120,000-ton ARCO Juneau, from taking delivery of the oil without a valid tariff.

The eight companies filed tariffs with the ICC, ranging from $6.04 to $6.44 a barrel. But in a precedent-setting action, the ICC rejected the tariffs as excessive and told the firms to come back with rates which could not exceed a maximum range of between $4.56 and $5.10 a barrel.

The oil companies appealed the ICC ruling to the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans without filing amended tariffs, leaving them without legal authority to move oil out of the pipeline terminal.

ARCO bowed to the ICC order to reduce its tariff from $6.04 to $4.91 after Alaska officials threatened to halt the first tanker.

The state is vitally interested in the tariffs because every one-cent increase in the transportation charge means a $1 million cut in state income from taxes on Prudhoe Bay production. Budget officials calculate that 60 per cent of the state's funds are coming from oil revenue.

Recovery starts at Gulf leases

ARDMORE, Okla. — Samedan Oil Corp., a subsidiary of Noble Affiliates, Inc., has announced the startup of production from two offshore blocks.

Samedan said its Samedan Offshore Corp. subsidiary owns a 10 per cent working interest in East Cameron Block 231 in federal waters offshore Louisiana.

The company reported that development drilling has been completed, resulting in 18 gas-condensate wells, of which five are dually completed.

The platform went on production last Wednesday at an estimated rate of 95 million cubic feet of gas and 600 barrels of condensate per day.

In addition, Samedan has a 12.5 per cent working interest in Buccaneer Block 255 offshore Texas. This platform commenced production in June at a rate of 17 million cubic feet of gas and 1,000 barrels of oil per day, from six of the seven wells completed.

Pair of discoveries final; confirmers potential

A pair of discoveries have been completed in West Texas, two new field area wells have been reported, a pair of field projects have been staked, and a reentry has been reported.

SCHLEICHER WELL

Gas Development Corp. of Midland has completed a Canyon gas discovery in Schleicher County, two miles southwest of Eldorado.

The strike, No. 1 Williams-State is ¾ mile southwest of Mallard Petroleum, Inc., No. 1 Williams, Canyon gas well in the Eldorado field.

The discovery was finaled for a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 2,460,000 cubic feet of gas per day through perforations from 6,395 to 6,483 feet after 3,000 gallons of acid and 40,000 gallons of fracture solution.

Gas-liquid ratio was 42,070-1. Gravity of the condensate was 65 degrees.

Hole is bottomed at 6,560 feet and 4½-inch pipe is cemented at that point. Plugged back depth is 6,510 feet.

The Canyon B zone was topped at 6,370 feet, the C at 6,471 and the D at 6,500 feet. Ground elevation is 2,441 feet.

Location is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 81, block A, HE&WT survey.

RUNNELS STRIKE

Midstates Oil Co. of Abilene reported potential test on a gas discovery from the Dog Bend zone in Runnels County.

The opener is No. 1 Lena Clayton, eight miles east of Ballinger and 1⅛ miles southeast of the one-well Talpa, Southwest (Capps gas) field.

No. 1 Clayton finaled for a calculated, absolute open flow of 460,100 cubic feet of gas per day, through casing perforations from 3,191 to 3,195 feet. Gas-liquid ratio was 10,500-1 and gravity of the liquid was 51 degrees.

Completion was natural.

Wellsite is 4,016 1,980 feet from southeast and 1,320 feet from southwest lines of A. A. Millican survey No. 260.

Hole is bottomed at 4,016 feet and 4½-inch casing is set at 3,800 feet. Plugged back total depth is 3,390 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from southeast and 1,320 feet from southwest lines of A. A. MiNican survey No. 260.

Formation tops include Speck Mountain lime, 2,017 feet; Home Creek, 2,498 feet; Capps, 3,303 feet, and Caddo, 3,742 feet.

NEW WELL

Geo-Tech Petroleum Management Corp. of Dallas No. 2 Alvin Gerngross and others has been completed as the second gas well in the TJC (Capps) field of Runnels County, seven miles south of Ballinger.

It is one location north of other production from the same zone.

Operator reported a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 3,998,000 cubic feet of gas per day through perforations from 3,564 to 3,578 feet after 1,000 gallons of acid.

Gas-liquid ratio was 866,000-1, and gravity of the liquid was 61 degrees.

Four and one-half-inch casing is set at 3,601 feet, and the total depth is 3,603 feet. Plugged back depth is 3,592 feet.

Location is 467 feet from south and 600 feet from east lines of Henry Scherin survey No. 142, abstract 427.

KENT OILER

Lobo Oil Corp. of Midland No. 1-11 Spires has been completed as a location south extension to its No. 2-11 Spires, recently completed second Strawn C-3 oil producer in the Spires multipay field of Kent County, 10 miles southwest of Clairemont in Kent County.

Operator reported 24-hour pumping potential of 60 barrels of 40-gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio of 1,200-1, through perforations from 6,858 to 6,903 feet after 3,000 gallons of acid.

The total depth of the well is 7,448 feet, and 5½-inch casing is set at 7,440 feet. Plugged back depth is 6,940 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 11, block 4, H&GN survey.

CROCKETT TESTS

Robert M. Wynne of Midland announced locations for a pair of projects in the Pure-Bean, South field of Crockett County, eight miles northwest of Ozona.

No. 8-88 Paul Pearson is one location east of production and 159 feet from north and 1,704 feet from west lines of section 89, block OP, GC&SF survey. Ground elevation is 2,613 feet. It is slated for a 1,500-foot bottom.

Another 1,500-foot operation is No. 9-99 Paul Pearson. It is 330 feet from south and 413 feet from west lines of section 88, block OP, GC&SF survey and one location west of production.

IRION PROJECT

Great Southwest Oil & Gas Co. of Houston will attempt to extend the Cal, South (Canyon oil) field in Irion County with a reentry operation.

The company will reenter and clean out to 7,300 feet, the old total depth, the former Fortune Drilling Corp. No. 1-1219 Murphey, nine miles southwest of Mertzon.

The project, abandoned May 15, is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 1219, GC&SF survey.

Elevation at the project site is 2,580 feet.

Drought, insects causing trouble

By CHARLES GREEN
Midland County Extension Agent

West Texas weather generally remains hot and dry, and drought conditions are putting stress on crops and native pastures in the area. Some very light and widely scattered showers last week failed to bring any appreciable amount of relief from the hot, dry conditions.

Cotton crops in the area vary in condition, with more being noted under-some stress as the extremely heavy square lead places plants in need of more moisture. Bollworm activity is basically light. The peak July moth emergence occurred around the 15th. Egg counts are running from 0 to 15 per hundred plant terminals. Square damage varies from 0 to 25 per cent. The peak August bollworm lay is picked to occur on August 19th by computer prediction.

This office has been receiving more calls concerning the cicadas which this year appear to be more numerous than ever in Midland. Cicadas, often miscalled "locusts", have become very troublesome the past few years throughout the Trans-Pecos area. Adult cicadas usually start appearing on shade trees and shrubs in June. The adults range in size from 1½ to 2 or more inches in length and ½ inch in width. The cadence of high-pitched, shrill sounds is considered noise pollution by many people.

Only the male cicada makes this noise. The sound is produced by vibrating membranes on the underside of the first abdominal segment. The females have no sound producing organ — hence the saying, "Blessed are the cicadas lives, for they all have voiceless wives."

The female cicada normally lays eggs in small slits in small branches or twigs. Females use their long, curved, saw-like ovipositors to open a series of slits in the small branches into which eggs are laid. The egg laying process is the only apparent damage that cicadas cause to trees and shrubs. The injured branches often bleed, die and break off. This damage is now being noted throughout Midland.

The question of control of cicadas by sprays comes up often. Carbaryl (Sevin) may be used on ornamental plants, shade trees and some fruit trees that are listed on the label. One application of carbaryl just before egg laying starts will provide protection for 5 to 8 days, depending on the degree of infestation and the character of the surrounding area.

Three to five applications are generally necessary where heavy infestations of cicadas are present throughout the area. Community effort is usually required for spraying to be effective. One or two homeowners spraying within a heavily infested area is hardly noticeable in its effect.

The continued high stress weather is taking its toll on landscape plants and lawns in the area. The high air temperatures being experienced this summer cause plants to give up water vapor from their leaves (transpiration) rapidly. Our only means of compensating for these conditions is to do the best possible job of water management.

Coarse textured (sandy) soils have limited water holding capacity and under high evaporation-transpiration conditions need to be irrigated more often. Home gardeners can often improve their water management practices by shortening water intervals. Perhaps no more total water will be used by rather two waterings a week are used instead of one.

To give some idea of the tremendous water requirements of plants under high temperatures, consider a fruiting tomato plant. A tomato plant will require an irrigation of at least 1 to 1½ inches every 3 days. This is equivilant to a volume of 60 to 90 gallons per 100 square feet.

Lawns should receive water twice a week in about the same amounts. Many of the lawns that suddenly brown out are just suffering water deficiency symptoms. In some instances insects are involved, but most often closer attention to watering practices will correct the problem. The true chinchbug which is often often blamed for lawn browning has not been officially indentified in the West Texas area.

'Roots' changing Gambian picture

By MAUREEN JOHNSON

BANJUL, Gambia (AP) — This sliver of a country on Africa's northwest hump, to which author Alex Haley says he has traced his roots, has been host to an estimated 300 black and white Americans in the 10 months since "Roots" was published and 130 million Americans saw a television dramatization of the book.

The little country of 525,000 and an annual budget of only $18 million now is looking for more Americans to come in search of roots or to see where Kunta Kinte, whom Haley claims is his ancestor, was captured in 1767 and taken as a slave to America.

Gambians say they are making plans for more Americans to make the journey to Juffure, the village where Kunta Kinte is said to have lived.

For the 200 or so villagers of "Jufuray" — the local spelling — the 300 Americans who have visited amounted to a stampede. The village "acola" or headman, Momadou Taal, said he is thinking of opening a souvenir stand.

Villagers greet visitors warmly and say they are delighted at their newfound prominence. Those questioned through an interpreter attributed it to the "importance of Kinte affairs."

The journey to Juffure from Banjul starts with a half-hour ride on a creaky, crowded ferry followed by 30 miles on a rutted road along the Gambia River which runs down the middle of the country to the Atlantic.

In Banjul, the government is pressing ahead with plans to expand its tourist industry. Gambia has a new brochure billing itself as the "Roots to the Haleys."

About 90 per cent of Gambia's foreign currency earnings now comes from exports of peanuts. Only about 25,000 Gambians have paid jobs, with the rest earning their living off the land.

Right now, however, Gambia cannot accommodate any large influx of tourists. Its hotels, most of them in Banjul which is on the ocean and Gambia River, can handle only about 1,600 guests at one time.

Its airport still cannot handle large jet aircraft, but a runway extension is scheduled for completion in 1979.

The prospect that more Americans will be coming to Gambia prompted Omar Faal to quit his job as a government tourist officer and open the first Gambian-owned tourist agency.

He said he plans to offer a three-day "cultural program" with cutrate flights and hotel packages. Visitors would fly to Dakar, Senegal, which is 250 miles from here, and then come to Banjul.

His plan also calls for an upriver ferry trip to Juffure, where visitors would receive a dockside welcome from the Kintes, and then to the mid-river island of St. James, a former slave-trading post.

THESE KITTENS may look like tame house cats, but appearances are often deceiving. They actually are very rare Pallas cats born recently at the Los Angeles Zoo. Their forebears are from the frozen steppes of Siberia. The cats, which grow to about the size of a large house cat, never have been domesticated. (AP Laserphoto)

Vacation bedlam starts

By The Associated Press

The gun went off Saturday for Europe's annual race to relaxation. Millions jammed roads, border crossings and public transportation in the frenzy inaugurating the annual month-long August holiday one vacationer called "part of our human rights."

Traffic jams up to 25 miles long were reported in Britain as families encountered inland rain and fog in the push to get to seaside resorts.

Motoring organizations reported "absolute chaos" on the main roads leading to Devon and Cornwall counties. Traffic also was heavy along routes to Britain's south coast, East Anglia, Wales and northern resorts.

In Paris vacationers headed for sunny spots. Many were bound for the Mediterranean coast and southern Spain.

Dominique Blondin, 18, took Friday off from job at a Paris bank to get a head start on her holiday. She was headed for the Caribbean island of Martinique. Although she made reservations in March, the Friday plane was the only one she could get on.

Many workers took suitcases to their offices Friday to get a running start.

The exodus shut down many businesses across Europe as shopkeepers hung signs in windows announcing they had joined the rites of August.

The French Equipment Ministry's roads division estimated 5.5 million Frenchmen would be on the road this weekend. For weeks government-sponsored television commercials have urged vacationers to use side roads to avoid congestion.

Paris airport authorities estimated 3,500 commercial planes will take off and land between Friday and Monday, including more than 700 charters and extra vacation flights.

Police in Rome said automobiles could back up 12 miles at key interesections on superhighways heading toward summer resorts south of Rome. They said cars were backed up six miles Friday at toll gates south of the capital.

In Germany and in northern Europe the roads south were filled with vacationers heading for Italy and Yugoslavia. Even traffic on the superspeed autobahn highways of West Germany was slowed by the congestion.

Delays of up to half an hour were reported along the Austrian border. Normally the crossing takes two or three minutes.

Most German workers, like the French, Italians and many other Europeans, now get a month off each year, and most take it during August.

The French government has tried to persuade Frenchmen to take their vacations before or after August, but few listen.

French President Giscard d'Estaing asked his ministers to stay at their desks this summer to set a good example. But Premier Raymond Barre apparently found Paris' wettest summer in years too much to bear and was reported on the sunny, southern coast of Spain for a few days' rest.

Two short courses in designing wind-resistant buildings slated

LUBBOCK — A part of the defense against disastrous winds is good design in buildings, and 32 specialists are expected to participate in two short courses Monday through Friday in designing for wind and tornadoes.

The short courses will be conducted by the Texas Tech University Institute for Disaster Research.

The basic objective of the course in designing for wind is to acquaint participants with current approaches to the design of structures to resist wind loads. Engineering background on the nature of extreme winds, including hurricanes, and their effects on the behavior of structures will be emphasized.

Director of the institute, Dr. Joseph E. Minor, said methods for the design of glass in buildings will be treated as a special topic.

The second workshop will include current information regarding the intensity, frequency and geographical distribution of tornadoes in the United States.

Examples of tornado resistant designs, Minor said, will be presented to illustrate the type of protection needed for various types of facilities, including nuclear power plants, schools, hospitals, public buildings and private residences.

"The need to provide occupant protection in public and private buildings," he said, "to maintain vital functions and public services and to prevent accidents in nuclear power plants and nuclear related industries have made engineers increasingly aware of the requirements for designing against damage from tornadoes. "Research in recent years has demonstrated that it is desirable, practical and within economical bounds to design certain structures to resist tornadoes," he said.

The courses, which will be taught at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center, has attracted engineers, architects and personnel from government agencies and educators. The fee for either of the courses is $250 and for both courses $400.

The civic center stands on a site which received some of the heaviest damage in the 1970 Lubbock tornado, and it is a memorial to the 26 persons who died in the disaster.

"It is interesting to note that if there were two good things to come from the tornado they are the civic center and the Disaster Research Institute with its emphasis on wind engineering at Texas Tech University, and these two will be joined in these short courses," Minor said.

Lecturers will include Minor, Dr. James R. McDonald and Dr. Kishor C. Mehta, all on the civil engineering faculty at Texas Tech; Dr. Richard E. Peterson, a meteorologist on the Texas Tech geosciences faculty, and Robert F. Abbey of the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Baylor heart teams soon may work in Saudi Arabia

HOUSTON (AP) — Baylor College of Medicine announced plans Friday for a program to send several heart surgery teams to Saudi Arabia to perform operations and conduct training services.

"We have reached verbal agreement," Dr. Michael E. DeBakey, internationally-known heart surgeon and president of Baylor.

The proposal would have 12-member cardiovascular surgery teams from Houston going to the King Faisal Special Hospital and Research Center in Riyadh.

A formal contract between Baylor and the Saudi hospital "should be signed within a few weeks," said DeBakey and Dr. Hussein al-Gezairy, minister of health for the Middle East nation.

The Saudi health official, a surgeon with special interest in heart surgery, and DeBakey spent several hours together Friday as part of the minister's 14-day tour of American medical centers.

DeBakey said the first Baylor heart team might go to Riyadh as early as November or December.

Daughter arrives

HOUSTON (AP) — The wife of internationally known heart surgeon Dr. Michael E. DeBakey has given birth to an eight-pound daughter.

Ringing the bell

With BOB TIEUEL

From a Black Point of View: Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell was preceded by a former president of a prestigious mid-western university who came to the Justice Department with the reuptation of being a great liberal—J. Edgar Hoover. Many black leaders, including the national black-oriented Courier believe that he was dissappointment and a failure at many points, especially in inter-racial matters.

It was against this cloudy background that Griffin Bell came to the Justice Department as its chief officer. His nomination was bitterly assailed by the NAACP and other civil rights organizations. His memberships in two lilly-white country clubs was cited as well as some of his opinions on school integration.

Yet Bell has surprised both his supporters and detractors. His performance to date is at the highest level of the responsibility vested in him. Especially "in the highly combustible and politically laden school busing issue, where he has not hestitated to put the power of his office in line with the requirement of the law" cites the Courier.

Bell has appointed black lawyers to top slots—something that has not happened since the establishment of the Justice Department as an integral function of the federal system. As keen-eyed black columnist Carl T. Rowan observes in the Dallas Morning News: "Bell has proposed and endorsed some far-reaching changes in our laws to give the under-privileged something close to equal justice with the privileged." It is a good augury.

On Negro College Fund: Here in Dallas, we have had an opportunity to meet a number of staff members of the United Negro College Fund, and they inform us that they will be in West Texas real soon. A series of telethons are planned for the Lubbock area, the Midland-Odessa area and other points. Would like to see one launched for Southeastern New Mexico that would take in the Clovis-Roswell-Carlsbad area.

The United Negro College Fund is a group of some 41 black colleges throughout the nation, who have banded together to raise funds to keep the colleges operating. Last year nearly 15 million was raised through the combined efforts of people who really believe that "a mind is a terrible thing to waste."

T. J. Patterson, editor of the black edition of the West Texas Times is on the lips of many staff members here in Dallas, and he is coordinating the West Texas Drive for the fund, it is reported. Also had opportunity to meet Tony Davis, black publisher of the Dallas Weekly, with a circulation of over 50,000. He directs the Dallas area "telethon" of the United Negro College Fund.

Alex Haley, author of "Roots," will serve as national vice-chairman of the United Negro College Fund this year. A. Dean Swift, president of Sears, Roebuck and Co. is general chiarman. Lewis W. Foy, chairman of Bethlehem Steel, and John R. Opel, president of IBM Corp., are serving with Haley as national vice-chairmen.

A nation-wide A. M. E. Laymens Covention will be held in Kansas City Aug. 1-7, 1977. Some 5,000 delegates and visitors are expected and Baptists prepare to invade Miami, Florida in September with Church of God in Christ members preparing for their annual trek to Mephis.

More later. Until then Peace.

Quinn & Co. is currently looking for two kinds of people.

One, we want registered representatives or account executives who consider themselves successful; and two, capable individuals are wanted to enter our training program which leads to a career in the securities industry. Our company is growing and we would like to add a few top quality producers throughout our system as well as several trainees for future development.

LUCRATIVE COMMISSION STRUCTURE
If you're already a successful account executive at another company, why should you join Quinn & Co.? Well, perhaps the best reason is our lucrative commission schedule which allows you to put more money in your pocket. We believe that Quinn registered reps should be well-rewarded for outstanding efforts.

PARTICIPATE IN OWNERSHIP
But our biggest advantage is our ownership situation. You see, very recently Quinn & Co. became the first New York Stock Exchange member-firm to be owned entirely by its employees. This was accomplished by the establishment of an ESOP or Employee Stock Ownership Plan. The ESOP purchased all of the stock of the 31-year old company, and the result is that the present and future employees of Quinn are its owners. Your share of ownership is related to your compensation. Best of all, your contributions to the ESOP are made 100% by the company. The better you do, the more you own.

WHO IS QUINN & CO.?
We are a regional securities company which operates twelve offices in four southwestern states — New Mexico, Colorado, Arizona and Texas. So as long as you're with Quinn, you're assured of living in the nation's sunbelt.
Founded in 1946 and headquartered in Albuquerque, New Mexico, we are members of the New York Stock Exchange, American Stock Exchange (Associate), Midwest Stock Exchange and the Chicago Board Options Exchange.

THE COMPANY YOU KEEP
The people who work at Quinn have one thing in common — enthusiastic attitude. You can see it right away. From the reception desk to the back office operation where you get unexcelled support and cooperation. Quinn's back office is run with solid efficiency — making your job easier and smoother. All around, Quinn is a company of professional men and women who want to associate with other true professionals.

A CAREER WITH SECURITY
If you're good and know it, Quinn & Co. may be the environment you've been seeking — high income opportunity and a share of ownership. One call can answer many of your questions. Contact Norman Betts, Vice President, at (505) 842-1000 or write him at Quinn & Co., Inc., P. O. Box 528, Albuquerque, New Mexico, 87103.

Mothers planning new outfits for children's back-to-school days

By PATSY GORDON

School bells will begin to ring again in the Tall City in one month and some children will trudge reluctantly to class, while eager kindergartners who will be in the classroom for the first time, will be both bright-eyed and bewildered.

But to mother, the beginning of school means the outfitting of each child with new clothes for the fall and winter.

While some mothers who are creative on the sewing machine can well-dress their children economically, other mothers who are not so talented or who do not have the time to sew will have to clothe their children in ready-made designs.

Now is the time to begin, however, as the selection of fabrics and ready-to-wear items is at its best. And all are in durable and easy-care materials.

According to Mrs. Joyce Tyson, owner and operator of one of Midland's children's apparel shops, overalls, jumpsuits, rugby pullover sweaters and knit shirts, usually boyswear image, will reflect nicely on little girls too this fall.

The classic back-to-college look is provided for the boy who is not quite ready for college with Ivy League pants and woven shirts, and fatigue jackets and slacks both casual and fashionable.

Knit shirts have more stripes than a barber pole. They are narrow, wide, bold, heathertone and rugby. Some will feature pocket treatments.

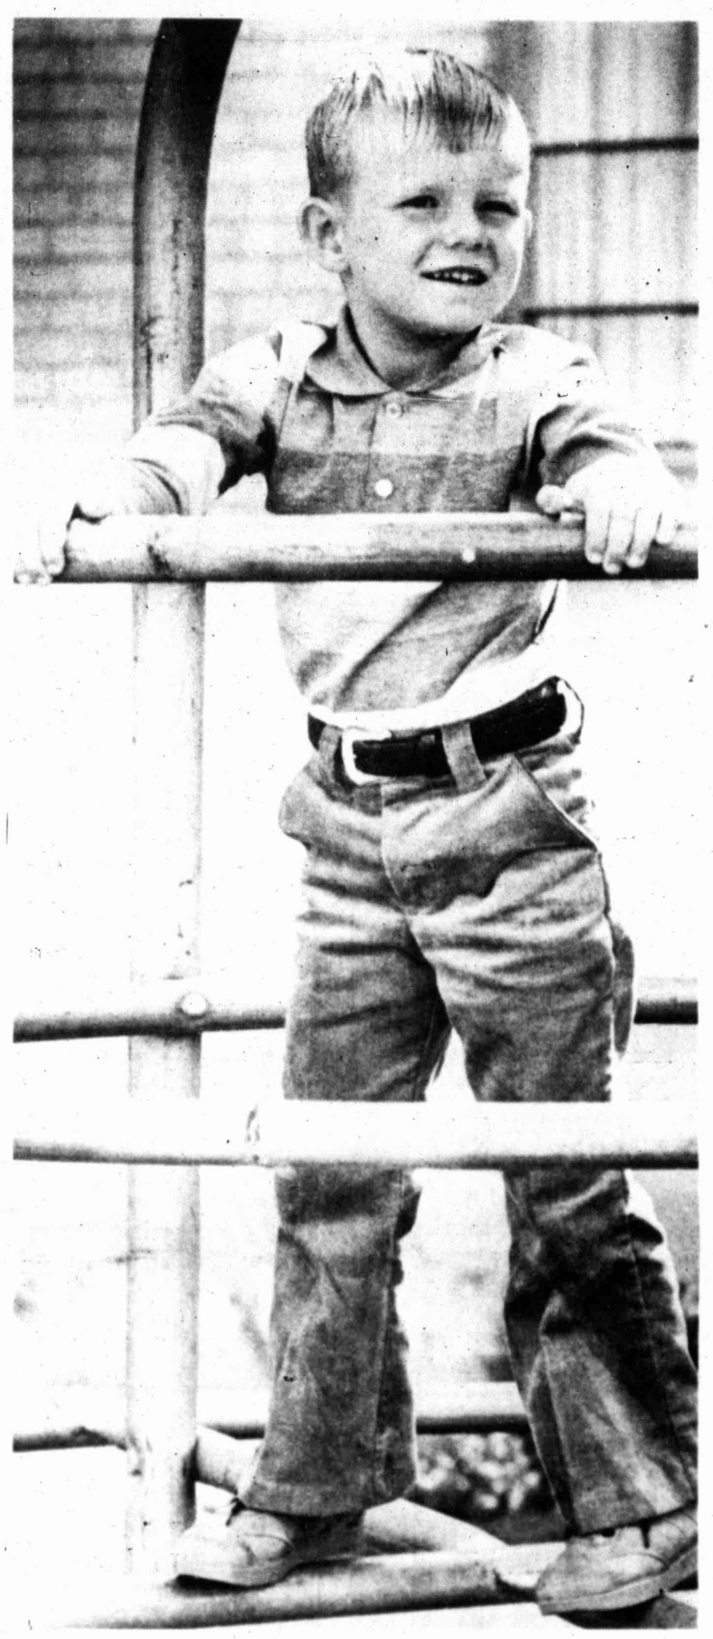
Pinafores and jumpers will give variety and the layered look to a girl's wardrobe this fall. Dressy blouses with pushup sleeves enhanced with appliques and a lace bib-effect front will add softness. Gaucho dresses with divided skirts will provide ease and comfort.

Hoods will be the "in" thing this year, predicted Mrs. Tyson. They will be seen on coats, sweat shirts and sweaters.

When the going gets rough, young male students can be tough in pants of denim, corduroy and twills with trim of piping on pockets or legs.

It will be the Shetland look in sweaters given a smart look with bold stripes, herringbone and classic solids.

It's a cinch mom's daughters and father's sons will be warm and comfortable when the leaves turn brown and the wakeup time in the morning gets earlier.



Flash Gordon, 5, can climb with the greatest of ease in corduroy pants and a long-sleeved, wide-striped knit shirt. The buttoned front makes for simple on and off action. Flash, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Gordon of 208 Mitchell St., Apt. B, will be a kindergarten student at West Elementary School in the fall. (Staff Photos by Bruce Partain)

Comfort and ease on the school playground will be possible for Flash, in a denim jumpsuit featuring stitching all-over.

Soft, flowing hairstyles give total look for fall

By LANA CUNNINGHAM

As clothing is going toward a softer, more fluid look, so are the new fall hairstyles.

This is the word from two Midland hairstylists, Larry Hill and Jon Jenni, who attended a haircutting seminar in Hawaii conducted by Paul Mitchell.

Mitchell, who was with Sassoon in London, has helped to revolutionize haircutting techniques. He opened a shop in New York City and has done the hair of several magazine cover girls and celebrities ranging from Pat Nixon to Raquel Welch. He appeared with Barbara Walters while she was still on the Today show, and he now teaches in Hawaii.

Mitchell stressed the importance of the cut, Jenni said. The cuts are still geometric in feeling, but without the hard edges.

The newest cuts are those where the woman can shampoo her hair, mold it into position with her hands, and then not move around too much while it dries. When it is dry, the woman is ready to go, and this eliminates the need for a blow dryer, curling iron or electric curlers.

Jenni describes the styles as "the natural look." Although the wedge is on its way out, he said there really is nothing "in" or "out" except for the bouffant or very teased styles.

Hair determines its own style by the way it grows at the scalp, he said. Therefore, the stylists are cutting it to fall into a natural pattern.

"You shouldn't ask more out of your hair than it can give you," he explained. "You have to adapt to the way your hair grows. If you cut and style the hair the way it grows, you will get the most flattering look every time."

Lengths are getting longer for fall and more curls will be seen, he said. The younger and athletic set still will be holding onto the shorter styles, though.

The new look is mid-length with a mid-curl, or curls that are loose. The tight curly styles will be high fashion. Some of the hair styles will be similar to the 1930s, with looks resembling Rita Hayworth or Carol Lombard.

More width is being seen in the styles, also. The triangular shape is being used because it is more adaptable to most face shapes than any other pattern, except possibly for someone with a triangular-shaped face, according to Jenni.

Another reason for the increased width goes back to the look in fashions. Fashions are gathered and full on the figure, and the hairstyle must match to give the woman a "total" look.

For the past three years, the top fashion designers have been having hairstylists do the models' hair before a major showing so the designer can achieve the complete look. The hairstyle is as much a part of the look as the clothes, he added.

The importance of a good cut is stressed in the new fall hairstyles. The style can be loose, soft and natural for normal day-to-day care, or curly for special occasions.

Hair does one thing naturally, and that is drop. To achieve the loose curl seen in many of the new styles a woman must have a loose permanent. It is not a body permanent, Jenni stressed, "but a support or foundation perm. They provide support and bulk and last about 2½ months while the other tight permanents last three to four months."

This type of permanent also is known as directional waving, since the rods are rolled in the direction the curl will go according to the cut. "This reinforces the line of the cut and is getting more popular."

For women who prefer some color in their hair, shades are becoming more natural, the Midland hairstylist reported. "They look more like a young girl who has spent three months on the beach" and has the natural highlights in her hair.

Henna is coming back on the scene for coloring and as a body-builder for limp hair. It is natural herb grown in the Near East, and has been used on women's hair since the time of Cleopatra. "Years ago, it used to be dirt cheap," Jenni said. The product is more in demand now and is quite expensive. It gives body and fullness to the hair and, as Jenni said, "it is good for the hair." It also takes some of the oiliness out of oily hair.

Men's hairstyles are beginning to change, but to the shorter lengths. Jenni said some of the styles are as short as the hair was in the days before the Vietnam conflict.

While the permanent is returning for women, it also is coming into men's hairstyles. Jenni said it is being used on men with very fine, thin hair or on those with receding hairlines to give their hair a fuller look.

Society's lifestyles have changed, and especially those of the women. The hairstyles have changed to fit that lifestyle, according to Jenni.

The woman had a standing appointment every week, and the styles were laminated with hairspray. She never touched her own hair during the week and the dirt settled into it. Jenni said the hair then was extremely dirty and with the increasing pollution in cities, it has become worse.

Hairstylists today are teaching women to maintain their own hair so they will only have to go to the stylist every six weeks for a cut and every two to three months for a permanent.

Women are busier today than they have ever been, which accounts for the fewer trips to the beauty shop. "More women are in business today and they don't have time to go around with rollers in their hair all day," Jenni said. "Neither does the young mother who stays at home with her children. She has too many other things to do during the day."

For the modern busy woman, the new fall hairstyles should fit their lifestyle and add the final total look to their fall wardrobe.

David Smith marries Sheri Seay

David Wayne Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy L. Smith of 712 Ruby St., married Sheri Lynn Seay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Seay, 2800 Marmon Drive, at 3 p.m. Saturday in the First Presbyterian Church.

Officiating for the double ring ceremony was the Rev. Jonathan M. Hole, pastor at large of the Presbytery of Alamo, Austin.

Attending as matron of honor was Mrs. Truett Feitz of Kingsland, cousin of the bride. Nessia Mitchell and Holly Ellis were the bridesmaids, and Mrs. Craig Lee, Mrs. Larry Kargl and Mrs. Bill Malone were bridesmatrons.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Groomsmen were Steve Seay, brother of the bride; Tim Smith, brother of the bridegroom; Dennis Riddles of Cedar Park, cousin of the bridegroom; Ted Craig, uncle of the bride, and Larry Kargl. Ushering the guests were Truett Feitz of Kingsland, cousin of the bride; Terry Wiles, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Sheldon Milsap and Ronnie Moore.

Kenny Smith, nephew of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

Junior groomsmen were Scott Seay, brother of the bride, and Roger Smith, brother of the bridegroom.

Music was furnished by Diana Solari, organist, and Tim Schism and Debbie Brotherton, vocalists.

Mr. Seay presented his daughter in marriage. She wore a formal gown of white silk-finished satin and pearl embroidered French Alencon lace. The gown was designed with a wedding band neckline, sheer yoke, long tapered sleeves and chapel train. A molded high-rise waist fell from the English net bodice into an A-line skirt. The bodice and sleeves were appliqued with Alencon lace and complimented with clusters of seed pearls. The hemline was bordered with scalloped lace encrusted with pearls. She also wore a chapel-length double layer illusion veil edged with seed pearls. The veil was attached to a lace-covered cap. She carried a bouquet of Harrisonian orchids, stephanotis and variegated green foliage.

The reception was held in Midland Country Club before the couple left on a trip to Florida. They will reside in Midland.

Out-of-city guests attending the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Sharp of Louisville, Ky., grandparents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Lynn of Marlow, Okla., grandparents of the bridegroom.

Mr. and Mrs. James Stone entertained the couple with a wedding day brunch in their home, with members of the wedding party and out-of-city friends and relatives as guests.

A bridesmaids' luncheon was held in the Garden Room of Midland Country Club. The hostesses were Mrs. Gilbert Bates, Mrs. David Griffin and Mrs. Gary Burnett.

The parents of the bridegroom entertained with the rehearsal dinner in Daddy Don's Steak House.

Couple says double ring Baptist vows

Rebecca Ann Cranford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Edd Cranford, Route 1, and Johnny Evan Womack, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Wayne Womack, Route 1, were married at 3 p.m. Saturday in Greenwood Baptist Church.

The Rev. J.W. Arnett performed the double ring ceremony. Connie Stroud was the organist, Donna Pyle was pianist and Sabrina Huse was soloist.

Mr. Cranford gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a formal gown in white with A-line skirt fashioned of crepe with an overlay of organza and lace. The full sleeves with ruffled cuffs matched the neckline. The gown had a chapel train, and her veil of the same lace as the bodice was arranged in tiers. The veil was designed and made by her mother. She carried a cascade of crystal daisies, blue roses, white carnations and baby's breath.

Dale Wainscott of Tulia was the matron of honor. Christy King was maid of honor, and Deann Womack, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. The bridesmatron was LaGaytha Womack, sister-in-law of the bridegroom. Danielle Cranford of Denton, niece of the bride, carried the bride's train. Diane Womack, sister of the bridegroom, and Melissa Cranford, niece of the bride, were the flower girls, and Scotty Cranford, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

Mrs. Johnny Evan Womack

Russell Brooks served as best man. The groomsmen were Wayne Womack, brother of the bridegroom, Gil Pyle and David Williams. Pete Bryant, Rayme Williams and Glenn Stroud were ushers.

The reception was held in Greenwood High School.

After a wedding trip to San Antonio, the couple will reside at Route 1, Box 137-M.

Susan Kelly, Langlie wed

DALLAS — Suaan Kerr Kelly of Dallas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Benjamin Kelly, also of Dallas and formerly of Midland, became the bride of Gordon Clifford Langlie Jr. during a ceremony performed in University Park United Methodist Church here by the father of the bridegroom and Bill Elkins of Dallas.

Parents of the bridegroom are the Rev. and Mrs. Gordon Clifford Langlie of Broken Bow, Neb.

The bride also is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Lokey of San Antonio, formerly of Midland, and the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Warren D. Barton of 3410 Thomas St., Midland.

When presented in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a gown of candlelight imported re-embroidered Alencon lace appliqued on English net and ivory silk satin traced with tiny seed pearls, sugar pearls and pailettes. The moulded Empire bodice, veiled with the jeweled lace and accented by a squared yoke outlined with the jewelling was fashioned with a high Victorian collar and long, fitted sleeves to her wrists.

The slim skirt of back gathered fullness accented with medallions and appliques of the jeweled Alencon lace swept to a wide chapel-length train.

The bride wore a cathedral-length veil of re-embroidered Alencon lace

Husband, wife chase culprits

CHICAGO (AP) — Matthew, 10 weeks old, and Tara Burke, four years old, snoozed in the back seat of the car recently, unaware that their parents were zooming along the streets in pursuit of two armed robbery suspects.

Their parents, John and Alana Burke, are police officers. They were returning from Mrs. Burke's physician and an afternoon of shopping trip when they noticed two men stuffing what looked like money into their pockets as they ran from a restaurant.

The men, pursued by the Burke's, jumped into a car and ran two traffic lights and sped the wrong way before skidding into a curb. The men, both in their 20s, were arrested by Burke and other police officers after they attempted to flee on foot, and were later charged with armed robbery.

Ex-Rankinite married

Mrs. Geoffrey Daniels Miller

ELDORADO—Pamela Gene Love of Monterey, Calif., and formerly of Rankin, married Capt. Geoffrey Daniels Miller of Fort Ord, Calif., Saturday in the First Presbyterian Church here. Officiating were Rev. Lyman Mobley of the First Presbyterian Church and Rev. Keith Wyatt of the First United Methodist Church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Love of Eldorado, and formerly of Rankin, and Mrs. Geraldine Evans Miller of Gallipolis, Ohio.

The bride's attendants were Margaret Moehl of Baumholder, Germany; Mrs. Martha Love Ellis, the bride's sister of Menard; Mrs. Susie Scott McAngus, the bride's cousin of Eldorado, and Mrs. Glenn Lloyd of Midland. Flower girl was Wendy Rene Ellis, the bride's niece of Menard.

Attendants to the bridegroom were Justin James Miller, the bridegroom's brother of Gallipolis; Capt. Steve Hollingsworth of Fort Ord; Capt. David Peterson of Savannah, Ga., and Lt. Sol Grear of Fort Sill, Okla.

After the ceremony, a garden reception was held in the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Scott of Eldorado.

After a wedding trip to Acapulco, Mexico, the couple will reside at 300 Glenwood Circle, Monterey.

Pre-nuptial courtesies included a rehearsal dinner in the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Scott with Mrs. Miller, the bridegroom's mother, as hostess.

Mrs. Leslie Frank Burke

Couple takes Colorado trip

Caryl Jean Hallman and Leslie Frank Burke, both of Midland, were married at 7 p.m. Saturday in a double ring ceremony in St. Luke's United Methodist Church with Dr. O. A. McBrayer officiating.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hallman of Brownfield and formerly of Midland, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burke of 3611 Humble St.

Serving as attendants to the bride were Mrs. Ralph Aman, the bride's sister of Midland; Jan McKinney of Dallas, and Mrs. Steve Miller, the bridegroom's sister of Midland.

Attendants to the bridegroom were Bob Mease of Houston; Steve Miller, the bridegroom's brother-in-law of Midland, and Gerry Hallman, the bride's brother of Midland.

Ushers were Steve Perry of Midland and Gerry Hallman. Candlelighter was Larry Hallman, the bride's brother of Brownfield.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white silk sheer and Venise laces fashioned in an A-line silhouette. The fitted bodice featured a scalloped lace edged yoke overlaid with lace appliques and bridal pearls. The high neckline was covered with lace. Full bishop sleeves, trimmed with appliques, gathered onto deep cuffs edged with self-ruffles.

The A-line skirt with lace appliques on it flowed into a deep chapel-length train. Scalloped lace traced the hemline. Her two-tiered veil of French illusion was edged in lace and attached to a matching lace and pearl bandeau. She carried a bouquet of white daisies, white carnations, pink roses and baby's breath.

Wedding music was provided by Luanne Orrell, organist, and Barbara Fairbanks, soloist.

After a reception in the Fellowship Lounge, the couple left for a wedding trip to Colorado Springs, Colo. They will reside at 2928 W. Louisiana St. after Aug. 8.

Special out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Bruce of Colorado City, the bride's grandparents. Pre-nuptial courtesies included a rehearsal dinner in the Sheraton Inn given by the bridegroom's parents; a bridesmaid's luncheon given by Mrs. Herb Hunter, Mrs. Jimmy Brewster, Mrs. Gerry Hallman and Julie Dixon; and a rice bag party given by Mrs. Steve Miller and Mrs. Ralph Aman.

Wish granted

ELLISVILLE, Miss. (AP) — When little Virginia McInnis died here in 1886, she was said to have had one wish — to be buried where she could "hear the children singing."

Her request was granted and she was buried in a churchyard near a school. She was then 9 years old. Today, 91 years later, the little grave still is where Virginia can hear the children singing, marked by a weathered stone with an inscription: "Her End Was In Peace."

THE VISIBLE WOMAN

Women's prisons filling up

By JANET LOWE
Copley News Service

Something strange and different is happening in our county, state and federal prisons for women. Most of the people who work and live in those institutions know it is happening their walls are swelling with inmates.

Lady R. Ruzinski, deputy superintendent of Albany County (N.Y.) Jail, says that when she began that job less than three years ago, the number of women there averaged five or six. Now the jail houses between 15 and 20 women at a time.

At Bedford Hills, New York state's only correctional facility for women, the population is at its all-time high.

"We're at capacity, 400 people, now, and we're too crowded," claims Francis Clement, superintendent there.

Albany County Jail, like other county jails, is often the first place a person goes after he or she has been arraigned, and though Albany jail is reputed to be far from the worst in this country, it is not a pretty place.

The ominous brick building, off in a field without fence or a sign to identify it, was built in 1932 as a depression-era WPA project. It is massive, solid and gloomy. The women's section is in need of paint. The barred windows are bare, and the sooty brick walls unadorned. The long line of steel cages leaves no doubt that this, indeed, is incarceration.

A glance at the small group of women collecting lunch trays confirms the statistics and what Ruzinski has said.

"Our population is young. Seventy-five per cent of our inmates are under 25." At Bedford Hills, where women are sent for more serious offenses and longer terms, the average age is between 35 and 37 years.

The women, like most women in jails, are predominantely of minority races, poor and undereducated.

"In many instances," says Ruzinski, "the people who come to us have never worked before, they are young people who have learned to live and exist off the streets. When you tell them they can hold down a job, they are a little skeptical."

In a recent check of one week's arrivals, both male and female, Ruzinski discovered that only one of the 70 had a high school diploma.

Arrivals at Bedford Hills are tested for placement in training programs.

The education director reports that "about 5 per cent of these people read at a second- or third-grade level. A larger number haven't progressed past sixth-grade level."

When asked to suggest a reason for the increase in women in jails and prisons, neither Clement nor Ruzinski could pinpoint one major cause. Unemployment levels could contribute, the baby boom that hit the schools could be hitting the jails, drugs and drug-related crimes were definitely a factor.

Both women feel, however, that women are protected from arrest less by their families and by police. More women are arrested, booked, and when they appear in court, they receive stiffer sentences than they did in the past.

"Women's lib has come to the courtroom," said one deputy, "and women aren't getting off easier than men anymore."

Cherylyn Reeves, Coy B. Murray exchange double ring vows

Mrs. Coy Blain Murray

The home of the bride's parents was the setting for the marriage at 7:30 p.m. Saturday of Cherylyn Vee Reeves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Reeves, 3202 W. Shandon St., and Coy Blain Murray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Coy Murray, 216 N. Eisenhower St.

Bert Mercer, minister of the Golf Course Road Church of Christ, performed the double ring ceremony. Alan O'Neil, cousin of the bride, played the guitar, and LeAnna Brewster and O'Neil were the soloists. Miss Brewster also played the piano.

The sister of the bride, Tracy Reeves, was maid of honor, and Kelly Murray, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Mark Murray, brother of the bridegroom, and Bryan Reeves, brother of the bride.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of candlelight silk sheer and Venise lace. The fitted Empire bodice was enhanced with rows of lace forming a yoke and tracing the deep V-neckline and waist. Full bishop sleeves highlighted with rows of lace were gathered to lace trimmed deep cuffs. The gored circular skirt ended in a chapel train. Her circular veil of French illusion was edged in matching lace.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held.

The couple will reside at 4000 W. Illinois St., No. 113.

The bride attended McMurry College and Tarleton State University. The bridegroom attended Midland College and is employed by his father.

Mrs. Roy Michael Breeding

Birthday girl in Dallas famous during one week

DALLAS (AP) — Signs on both sides of five buses plying downtown streets recently proclaimed: "Happy Birthday Alice Martin."

Alice, the wife of George Martin, had turned 50. Martin, who retails women's sportswear, plunked down $225 to make his wife famous all week.

There was alao a surprise party for Alice attended by 30 people at a restaurant.

George has always observed Alice's birthdays in high style. Four years ago, he hired a helicopter for $300 to fly around Dallae, trailing a streamer that said, "Happy Birthday, Alice Martin."

McPeak becomes bride of Roy M. Breeding

Donna Sue McPeak became the bride of Roy Michael Breeding in a double ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Wilshire Park Baptist Church. The Rev. John D. Riggs officiated.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Don L. McPeak of 1600 N. C St. and Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Breeding of 4723 Wilshire St.

The matron of honor was Phila Harris, aunt of the bride. Allan Brown was best man, and Jerry McPeak, brother of the bride, and her cousins, Greg Parr and Chris Hines, were ushers.

Organist for the ceremony was Kayla Fletcher. Elaine Hines, cousin of the bride, was soloist.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional gown of white silk organza and Brussels embroidered lace. It was fashioned with a wedding ring neckline finished with a band of lace and complemented with long full sleeves with narrow cuffs. The fitted high rise bodice overlaid with lace ended in a bell-shaped skirt cascading into a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion edged with lace and lace appliques was held to a lace Juliet headpiece. She carried a cascade of yellow roses and mixed white flowers.

The annex of the church was the setting for the reception.

Nation's teenagers use their many creative talents

CHICAGO (AP) — Garner Holt of San Bernardino, Calif., is an inventor. He's built a six-foot-tall computerized man named Sam who walks and talks. He's designed a haunted house and he's developed a mine ride for a Wild West town near his home.

This may seem like the stuff that ordinary inventions are made of unless you consider that Garner Holt is 16 years old. Sam became a reality when Holt was only 15 and his latest project is a commission to convert his high school's swimming pool heating system to solar energy.

Garner has a lot of company. Thousands of teenagers across the country are into exciting, creative ventures, according to a recent survey of top teens who are listed in "Who's Who Among American High School Students." At the same time that they're busy maintaining perfect academic records, these young people are inventing and building complicated machinery, running their own businesses or dabbling in politics.

Science and technology tempts many teens, the survey revealed. Edward Morgan, a high schooler from Chattanooga, Tenn. has constructed his own computer terminal which he hooks up to the family telephone and television set. "It's great when I have a question or need to do some research," he said.

Child's fears still live somewhere inside the adult

By ELAINE SMYTH
Copley News Service

A frightened child cries out in the night, "Mommy, I'm afraid of the dark. I'm scared."

Mommy, curled up on the sofa in a well-lighted living room, puts down a newspaper and snaps, "Shut up and go back to sleep. There's nothing to be afraid of."

Isn't there?

Dr. LaMar Fox, a child psychiatrist, sees a strong but invisible thread linking a child's fears with adult phobias.

"There is a small child inside each one of us," Fox says.

"This is a part of us that retains all the fears and anxieties of childhood.

"We still live with our child. We've grown to adulthood but that child lives somewhere inside of us."

So, for many adults, fear is part of that childhood baggage we bring with us into our grown-up world.

"The important thing to determine when talking to anyone about fears is how badly does this fear incapacitate them," Fox addy. "Does their fear of heights mean they can't work on a floor past the first floor when their job demands they work on the 15th floor, for example?"

Fear of entering a dark, empty house today is a justifiable fear, Fox says, considering today's society and crime rates.

"But there are more neurotic fears that are the reality-based fears, plus fantasies that could go wild with that fear."

All children, he says, have fears of one kind or another.

Fox says the peak time when childhood fears and phobias develop is around the third to fifth year.

"Kids usually begin developing nightmares at this stage — fears of the dark — fears of animals and, sometimes, phobias.

"And all children, to a certain extent, have a fear of abandonment."

Some childhood fears represent a psychological displacement — the child substitutes one fear with another that is less threatening, for example.

Say that daddy comes home from work, he's had a bad day, he's tired and crabby. The child manages to do all the wrong things that compound dad's mood. Dad overreacts and starts yelling or spanking the child. The child then becomes angry with his dad.

Because the child can't associate all of dad's feelings and experiences of the day, the child "decides" it was his own aggressive and angry feelings towamd dad that caused the spanking.

"Because the child so vitally needs mommy and daddy, he recognizes that if he gets too fearful of them being against him, he knows he's dead without them," Fox says. "So, if this happens repeatedly, he becomes anxious all the time and may displace that anxiety with something such as fears of dogs or heights or he may develop some phobias.

"Now he has this displacement object and he doesn't have to fear mom or dad anymore."

Fox emphasizes that this can become pathological in the child if it's a sustained situation and in a family where the parent-child interactions are unhealthy.

A child's fear of the dark can be handled simply and without creating any permanent damage, he says.

"If parents could accept the fact that it's not abnormal for a kid to be frightened and not push too hard, this would make it easier on everyone.

"Parents or the parent should tell the child, 'I know what it's like to be afraid — I'll help you. But it's OK, there's nothing to be afraid of.'"

Fox says if a child is more comfortable with a night-light, for example, then he should have one in his room.

He doesn't recommend, however, that parents or a parent continually allow the child to stay up later and later. And he's opposed to a child sleeping with the parents on a regular basis.

If a child still can't sleep because of some real or imagined fear, then the parent may have to further reassure him by sitting with the child until he does fall asleep, he says.

"It may take several nights, but the child will generally become more comfortable and will fall asleep. It's a kind of desensitization process."

Fox feels the most important thing parents can do to help a fearful child is to remember what it was like to be a child "because then we can remember our own fears of helplessness."

The psychiatrist accepts the need for an occasional spanking, but not when fear is involved. Fears can't be spanked away, he adds.

"It's only going to make it worse. If not the current situation, then down the road somewhere," Fox says. "The child can internalize it and it may affect his personality. He could become an insecure adult."

Also recognizing that children can be manipulative, Fox says that parents should maintain "a posture of being understanding but firm."

He says one of the secrets to raising a happy child "is not taking the problems so seriously that you lose track of the fun of relating to them. And don't expect them to be miniature adults."

A 4-year-old, for example, is going to be afraid of things, with or without reason.

And a 2-year-old will get angry without reason.

"There are a great many guilty parents going around this world anxiously managing their children and not realizing that they are really good parents if they'd just relax," Fox says.

"Parents are afraid some of the things their kids doing means they're not good parents."

Dying woman champions terminal illness club

By DAN REEDER
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — "Look at me. I look healthy. I feel healthy. I feel good. I can do anything I want. There's nothing different."

No, you can't tell by looking. Judy Mace is dying. Mace, like thousands of other persons, suffers from cancer. Only one of 100 persons stricken with her form of leukemia recover. She is fighting to survive, but she's all too aware of the probable outcome.

Yet she doesn't really feer the cancer.

She fears the attitude most Americans have about the terminally ill. And she fears the moments she has to deal with those who don.t understand.

"My own image is not of a downer, but of always being up," she says. "People come up to me with great faces of horror when they greet me.

"I go, 'Hey, this is Judy Mace, the same person I always was.'"

That's why Mace is leading a drive to found a chapter of Make Today Count, a mutual-support group composed of people who have encountered cancer either directly or through a family member.

The group's headquarters is at Little Company of Mary Hospital in Torrance, a Los Angeles suburb.

Meetings are held for patients who want help in coping and anyone else who wants to be educated.

"They're particularly for doctors and nurses," says Mace. "They need to learn what dying patients are thinking.

"Doctors often erect a wall. They should approach the patients medically and leave the mental aspects alone.

"Before, doctors weren't sure to tell the patients, but rather the family. Now, doctors are being told by patients they can handle it."

Mace says it's important to educate everyone about terminal illness. It's just as important to educate the people around a patient, she seys, as it is to educate the patient.

"When I was diagnosed last year, I did what most people do in the same situation," she says. "I took off running.

"I went to Miami, my sister's home, but that wasn't far enough. So I went to Nassau.

"I sat there and said to myself finally, 'Well, it's still here. It's not going away.

"'So I might as well learn to live with it.'"

She came back and tried, but realized she needed help.

During the first three months, all she thought about was the illness and why she had been stricken.

She was asked to join a women's group that meets weekly at a church headed by the Rev. Orlie White, renowned for his help in dealing with death.

While the group provided an outlet for her tensions, Mace needed something more. White directed her to the nearest Make Today Count chapter, in West Los Angeles.

After just a few meetings, she began to handle her situation differently. Her life began resembling what it was before the diagnosis.

Mace and her mother opened a real estate office soon after. She began to grow again.

Once you understand your own mortality, she says, it's easy to put your life in order. She now realizes she should make every day count.

"With a thing like this, you have a chance to get your affairs in order," Mace says. "You do things for your children. It's important.

"To face death, you look at things closer in your own life. If neighbors down the street talk about you, then you don't mind. It's trivial. You look for larger things, for larger goals. My goals? To write a book, maybe two or three."

Gift of gab started grandmother on world tours

NEW YORK (AP) — "A gift of gab and a free trip around the world in 80 days" started Louise H. Morse, 72-year-old grandmother, on her annual treks to remote areas of the world.

For the past 20 years the Newbury, Mass., woman has traveled by air, jeep, dugout canoe, donkey, horse and foot, visiting poverty-stricken people.

And after her return each year she has given over a hundred one-woman lecture-and-slide shows to help those people, not only to survive but to work toward self-support.

In her visits to some 85 countries to date, Mrs. Morse has stood on the rim of a volcano in Costa Rica, bounced through barricades in Cyprus in a jeep and ridden a donkey across a frail rope bridge high in the Andes.

She has stepped into a communal Japanese bath, chatted in the afternoon with Lesotho women building roads and with the king and queen of that small African country the same evening.

"It all began after I married, when I gave up teaching and moved to Newbury," Mrs. Morse said in an interview here. "I got involved in all kinds of community activities and became president of various organizations. I was an incorrigible story teller, with the accent on humor.

"One day the lecturer booked by a local club canceled and I was asked to fill in. I talked about my family, about the zigs and zags in raising three boys. The audience seemed to like what I dished out. Soon I was giving shows at clubs, church groups, PTA or whatever."

One Sunday, she recalls, her minister outlined various charitable causes he felt were worthwhile and CARE, the international aid and development agency, was one of them.

"I went home and the phone was ringing," Mrs. Morse relates. "I said I'd come if the club would send a contribution to shows, someone from the CARE." After she had Boston CARE office done several such benefit called her.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get together with good friends and relaties and come to a fine understanding with them. Attend a worthwhile social function.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Fine time for handling philosophical and philanthropic matters and getting good results. Get a new system set up for handling regular routines.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study new outlets that could prove good for you in time to come. Good time to plan business or personal trip.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Modernize any systems you have so that you get more done with less clutter. Try pleasing loved one more.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Consider some civic work that can also be of help to you. Don't lose your temper with anyone, especially your mate or loved one.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to do something thoughtful for those who have been good and loyal to you and show appreciation. Take time for personal pampering amd making yourself look more attractive.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Getting into a new type of recreation can make this a most interesting time for you. Avoid one who has strange ideas.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Bring more harmony into your home by right handling of others. Entertain those you admire and get good results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Contact the wisest person you know and get good advice and ideas you need so that your life improves. Your hunches are also good, go follow them for best results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Elevate your consciousness and you can soon command a greater abundance. Study assets well and know just what you must do to increase them. Take time to confer with an expert.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Use positive methods in going after some personal aim and you can easily gain it. Good time for entertaining, but avoid the bores who could be depressing.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Good day for meditation and getting the right answer to a problem. Some time alone with a loved one can bring true rapport.

(Mon. Aug. 1)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You find today brings a chance that there will be a number of annoyances. Make a point to avoid making promises at this time as they are likely to be broken at a later date.

AIRES (March 21 to Apr. 19) You may find it difficult to come to an understanding with your mate now. Be less belligerent and you both will benefit.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take care you don't force your wishes on others in order to gain a personal aim. Strive for increased happiness.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) An annoying credit matter must be handled without delay. Make sure to keep any promises you have made to others.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Continue to persevere at the work you are currently engaged in and success will follow. Consult an expert for advice.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Show others you understand your duties well and will handle them wisely. Sidestep a situation that could lead to trouble.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to avoid an argument with an associate or it could lead to a severance of connections. Make plans for the days ahead.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make sure you work carefully and avoid any difficulties that could other wise arise. Take care of a physical ailment you have.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Your mate could be upset, so be more thoughtful at this time for best results. Safeguard your reputation and be happy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Being objective where home affairs are concerned brings excellent results now. Not a good day for entertaining at home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan 20) You have to be most careful in motion today or you could get into trouble. Be sure not to criticize others at this time.

AQUARIUS (Jan 21 to Feb 19) Don't commit yourself to more than you can handle at this time. Others may break promises, so be prepared for such.

PISCES (Feb 20 to Mar. 20) Take steps to become more efficient person and then you can easily gain personal aims. Do something to improve your health.

Loyce Keen, Buster Hines marry

ABILENE—Loyce Ellen Keen of Silver City, N.M. and Buster Blaine Hines of Midland were married in a double ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the First United Methodist Church here. Dr. Tilden B. Armstrong of Paducha officiated.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Clay Keen of Silver City and Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Blaine Hines of Slidell, La.

The bride, presented in marriage by her father, wore a gown of imported ivory organza fashioned with a high neckline and a re-embroidered Alencon lace bodice with seed pearls. The long full sleeves were attached to cuffs of matching lace. The full skirt fell from the natural waistline into a chapel-length train trimmed by re-embroidered Alencon lace.

The mantilla headpiece covered with Alencon lace had a cathedral-length veil carried by Vicki Lea Keen, the bride's niece. The bride carried a colonial nosegay of silk ivory roses, miniature carnations, lavender forget-me-nots and fresh baby's breath. She presented two long stem ivory silk roses to the mothers of the couple.

Attendants to the bride were Mrs. Debra Munsell of Odessa; Lori Hines, the bridegroom's sister of Slidell; Mary Beth Baxter, the bride's sister of Victorville, Calif., and Judy Allbright of Odessa. Flower girl was Lisa Keen, the bride's niece of Redmond, Wash.

The bridegroom's attendants were Hollis Hines, the bridegroom's father; Jeff Hass of Houston; Mark Hines, the bridegroom's brother and Steven Hines, the bridegroom's brother, both of Slidell.

Ushers were Jack W. Keen, the bride's brother of Redmond; Clay Keen, the bride's brother of Campbell and Bobby Craig, the bridegroom's brother-in-law of Tyler.

Candlelighters were Wayne Keller, the bride's nephew of Victorville and Jennifer Rae Keen, the bride's niece of Campbell, Michael Craig, the bridegroom's nephew of Tyler, was ringbearer.

Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Faye White, organist, and Fred Kunckel, soloist.

Mrs. Buster Blaine Hines

A reception was held in the church parlor. After a wedding trip to Lake City, Colo., the couple will reside at 4405 N. Garfield St. in Midland.

The bride is a graduate of the Dallas Fashion Merchandising College.

Gwennette Hocker wed in Methodist ceremony

Hollowell United Methodist Church was the setting at 7 p.m. Saturday for the double ring ceremony of Gwennette Sue Hocker and Wilbord Burns, both of Midland. Officiating was Rev. Wilbart Bledsoe.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Jeanie Burns, L. V. Burns and Mr. and Mrs. Alvin P. Hocker, all of Midland.

The bride, presented in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of white organza and fashioned with an Empire bodice. Small forget-me-not lace trimmed the waistline of the A-line skirt, and a chapel-length train was edged with wide Venise lace.

She wore a long veil of silk illusion attached to a Juliet cap of matching lace. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white and blue carnations with baby's breath and blue ribbon streamers on a small blue Bible.

Rose King of Midland was matron of honor. Bridesmatrons were Lottye Lathan of Midland and Iwo Jima Whitten of Fort Worth, both sisters of the bride. Flower girl was Carla Lathan of Midland.

Candlelighters were Debby Lusk and Danny Dyer. Ringbearer was Eric Lusk of Dallas.

The bridegroom's brother, Louis Burns, was best man. Groomsmen were William Rabb of Midland and Floyd Miller of Fort Hood. Ushers were Michael Hocker, Michael King, Jesse Brown and Carl Thomas.

Mrs. Wilbord Burns

Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Mamie Williams, organist, and Betty Lathan and Thelma Moultrie, soloists.

A reception was held in the church Fellowship Hall following the ceremony.

AT WIT'S END

Supermarket trip becomes mission

By ERMA BOMBECK

There is some talk that the driving age of shoppers operating supermarket carts is being raised to 35. I should know. I'm doing the talking.

Going to the supermarket used to be an adventure. Today, it's a combat mission.

As I was telling my friend, Gloria, the other day over produce, "It's a jungle out there what with all the inexperienced drivers and little old ladies who only drive a shopping cart on Sundays after church."

"I know," said Gloria, "did you see that teen-ager just speed by? Barreling up and down the aisle hoisting a soft drink to her lips. When will they ever learn drink and shopping carts do not mix."

"What about the mother over there?" I cautioned. "I mean is she a menace? She has three children in the cart. One is eating the top off a cereal box, one throwing raw potatoes in the aisle of traffic and the other one sucking the pot roast. She couldn't possibly be looking where she is going."

"If that isn't the truth," sighed Gloria, "I was following a senior citizen down pickles and spices. She was going along at a browsing speed so I figured it was safe to pass. At the end of the aisle, she made a sharp left and I nearly ended up in facial tissue."

"Umnmm," I nodded, "What about the careless shoppers who leave their carts unattended for some young joy riders to steal and run the wheels off."

"I know what you mean," said Gloria. "Or the woman who stopped dead in front of me to fix a wheel that was going the wrong way."

"That is a bore though, Gloria, when three wheels want to shop and the other one wants to go to the parking lot."

"I guess, but she could have pulled over to the side to make repairs."

"Is it my imagination," I asked, "Or do there seem to be more men in the aisles today? They really shouldn't let them drive in a supermarket until they've had experience in a discount house or a garden center. They're inclined to panic and fall apart the first time they've rammed in the side."

"I noticed that. Well, it's back to the wars. Where's your cart?"

"Over there in front of meats blocking traffic. Where's yours?"

"Mine was towed away from the center of the aisle 20 minutes ago. Actually, it's the only way to get through this traffic."

Midland women attend session

LOUISVILLE, Ky.— Two Midland, Tex., women attended the 43rd national convention of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs which concluded here Friday.

Particpating were Kathy Peters, past president of the Midland B&PW Club and Dolores Scoggins, president of the club.

The convention theme was "Women in the Third Century," which climaxed a three-year cycle of topics.

Included in the convention highlights was Ivor Richard, Britain's ambassador to the United Nations, who moderated a panel on "Human Rights — Women's Rights."

German wines are easily identifiable from their bottle. Tall, slender green bottles usually contain young Moselle wines, taller brown bottles house golden Rhine wines, and those squat flagon type bottles usually contain light, dry Steinwein wines. The labels on the wines are a challenge in themselves. They tell the exact site from which the grape is picked, the year, the grower and owner, and sometimes the vintage conditions and method used to make the wine. The first word on the label tells you the village, the second the vineyard, then the grape name. After that is usually some indication of the ripeness or sweetness of the wine. Reading the labels on the wine you buy can be educational and certainly very informative.

And of course, we at IMPERIAL LIQUORS, 3209 W. Wadley, 694-4256 will always be happy to answer your qestions about wine. You can choose from an outstanding array of imported and domestic wines to suit your taste and budget. Wine also makes an excellent hostess gift, and at the home of the friendly MOUSTACHE, WE CAN ASSIST YOU IN CHOOSING AN APPROPRIATE WINE. Open 10-9 Mon-Sat.

WINE WISDOM:
When storing your wine bottles be sure to lay them down so that the cork will retain moisture and not dry out.

DEAR ABBY

New bride gets marriage tips

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You are always so short and to the point. Have you a list of 10 tips for wives to follow if they want a successful marriage? —NEW BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: No. But I'll compose one.

1. Don't keep telling him about all the other men you could have married.
2. Don't bring out the bills at breakfast time.
3. Don't try to start a conversation with him while he's reading or watching a sports event on TV.
4. Don't correct him in front of other people.
5. Don't try to make him jealous.
6. Don't bad-mouth his relatives.
7. Don't put a shirt in his drawer with a button missing.
8. Don't call him at work unless it's absolutely necessary.
9. Don't use his razor.
10. Don't threaten to leave him unless you have a better place to go.

And next week, I'll print my 10 tips for husbands.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 41-year-old woman who was divorced last year after a miserable 20-year marriage. I get $800 a month alimony. I have one daughter who is 19 and away at college.

Three months ago I met a young man at a church singles' meeting and it was love at first sight. He's the most sensitive and charming man I've ever met. He says I'm the only woman he's ever loved, and in bed, on a scale of one to ten, he rates a ten.

He's recently divorced and has a 4-year-old son living with his ex-wife. He moved here from the Midwest and is looking for a job.

Now the problem: He's only 27, but he's very mature for his age and says the age difference doesn't bother him.

He wants to marry me, but if I accept, I'll lose my alimony. I've considered having him move in with me, but it might cost me the respect of my daughter and parents which means a lot to me. What are your thoughts on this?—IN LOVE

DEAR IN: The age difference may pose problems later on, but I see bigger problems now. Since he's unemployed, moving in with you might be a great move for him, but feeling as you do about your daughter and parents, I don't advise it. If it's love, it will last. Take your time.

ODESSA WINWOOD MALL

Center prepares for sale, show

Vivian Roseberry wraps the green stem on a silk daisy to be part of a silk flower arrangement on display at the show.

By LANA CUNNINGHAM

Joan Mondale, wife of the vice president of the United States, is urging Texans to renew their interest in local arts and crafts, and Midland residents will have a chance to do that Monday and Tuesday.

The Midland Senior Center, a Midland Parks and Recreation facility, will be having their annual art show and center sale from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. those two days in the First Christian Church, 1300 W. Michigan St.

Art works will be on display with many for sale. Along with that will be needlework and handicraft items with demonstrations given by painters and crafts people.

The paintings are by beginning and advanced painters who take art classes each week with Mrs. Red Roberts and Mrs. Ken Peeler as instructors. The stitchery classes have been turning to Mrs. Bernice Hughey for instruction and new ideas.

Money from the sale of stitchery items will go into a fund for purchasing a new sewing machine, explained Mrs. Hughey as she stitched quilt pieces together on an old black metal Singer machine one morning.

People at the center have been working for weeks preparing items for the sale.

Several of the women have been working on quilts, such as Alice McFarland who hand stitches together quilt pieces, and Minnie Lawson, Erva Kinsar, Eunice Lewis and Belva Graham who have been stitching together a quilt in a quilting frame. They said they have been sewing on quilts for so long that it is hard to remember when they started. The one exception is Mrs. Graham who remembers starting her first one at the age of 10.

Quilting in those days, according to the women, was the main form of entertainment the women did in their spare time, since there was no radio or television.

"We didn't even have blankets then," one of the women recalled. "We carded our own cotton, too." They also remembered cutting up old coats and shirts to make the quilts warm.

Among the items on display will be silk flowers made by Vivian Roseberry, a throw by Florence Pahl, a pillow and afgan by Bessie Davis, a shawl by Myrtle Jones and various dolls by Gladys Harris.

Concentrating on the shawl she is crocheting is Myrtle Jones while one of the dolls made by Gladys Harris is ready for display.

The old-fashioned apple doll will be included in the sale. Mrs. Harris, who learned the process for making the dolls in Hot Springs, Ark., said she has to let the apples dry from six to 10 weeks before she can peel and carve them. Beads are used for eyes. She enjoys making them but admits, "I think they are the ugliest things."

Ugly or not, the dolls will be there along with other items made by the people over the age of 55 who visit the center.

Luncheon, style show planned

The Midland Christian Women's Club meets for a luncheon from 12 to 2 p.m. Wednesday in Ranchland Hill Country Club.

Judy Stone will present vocal selections. Fashions from Grigsby's Rag Doll will be modeled by Ann Startz, Kelly Lawson, Karen Poteet, Mindy Beane and Sharon McDonald.

Blanche Alcorn of Odessa will the inspirational speaker. Mrs. Alcorn is past president of the Permian Basin Porcelain Arts Club and is a graduate of East Texas State University, majoring in music.

Christian Women's Club is a social organization with religious emphasis. Interested persons may attend by making reservations with Frances Watkins, 684-4950; Bettysue Caudle, 694-3478, or Cleo Pillows, 682-8933.

Nursery facilities will be available at Memorial Christian Church.

She's losing her pencils

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)— Nan Rossnagel, who operates a one woman ad agency, addressing the Women's Advertising Club of Toledo on the problems of running a business, pointed out, "The most puzzling part is—well—I have no employes, yet I can't figure out who takes all my pencils and notebooks."

Lee, Caldwell marry in Spearman ceremony

SPEARMAN — Johnette Lee, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Johnnie Lee of Spearman, and Robert Dwayne Caldwell Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dwayne Caldwell of 3614 Boyd St., Midland, were married at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

The double ring ceremony was held in the First Baptist Church of Spearman.

Officiating was the Rev. Russell Pogue. Mrs. E. N. Pack was organist, and Mrs. Richard Booth was the soloist.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was her sister, Jolinda Lee, of College Station. Ronda Caldwell and Becky Caldwell of Midland, sisters of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. Karen Roberts of Abilene, cousin of the bride, and Jyniece Lee of Fritch, sister-in-law of the bride, were bridesmatrons. The flower girl was Kara Lee of Fritch, niece of the bride, and the ring bearer was Eric Sim of Hereford, cousin of the bride.

The best man was Tab Williams of Midland. Groomsmen were Jock Lee of Fritch, brother of the bride, Tim Brown and Paul Kerr of Midland and Davy Moger of Independence, Kan., cousin of the bridegroom. The ushers were Cary Collier and Jeff Beedy of Spearman, Richard Kilgore of Canyon and Van Williams of Midland.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white silk organza over bridal satin with Valenciennes lace encrusted with seed pearls accenting the bodice and cuffs of the bishop sleeves. Lace also adorned the hemline and cathedral train. Her veil was accented with appliques of lace and seed pearls and the headpiece was lace clustered with seed pearls. She carried a cascade of peach roses, stephanotis and chrysanthemums.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held.

Mrs. Robert Dwayne Caldwell Jr.

The newlyweds will be at home at 4602 50th St., Apt. 118, in Lubbock after a trip to Padre Island. The bride is a sophomore business major at Texas Tech University. The bridegroom is a junior finance major at Tech and member of Phi Eta Sigma, scholastic honorary fraternity.

Levens, Gauthier exchange vows

Mrs. Craig A. Gauthier

Sheree Levens, daughter of F. T. Levens of 2011 Winfield St., and Mrs. Genneye Ford of Lubbock, and Craig A. Gauthier, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Gauthier of 3613 W. Louisiana St., were married at 4 p.m. Saturday.

The Rev. Bill Weir performed the double ring ceremony in the First United Methodist Church.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Attending her as maid of honor was Dansi Henshaw. Brad Deatherlin was best man, and Randy Griffin and Bob Fough were the ushers.

She carried a bouquet of phaleonopsis orchids, lily-of-the-valley and stephanotis.

The reception was held in Ranchland Hill Country Club, before the couple left on a trip to Colorado. They will reside in the Haystack Apartments.

Out-of-city guests included the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Levens of Houston.

STITCHING WITCHERY

Sewing fashions saves

By BETTY W. KINSER
Copley News Service

If you have ever doubted (shame on you!) that sewing saves, you will want to pay close attention to this letter:

Dear Betty: The week before Easter I started making a vested suit. Two days later I said to myself, "Self, if you made a skirt to go with this, you could get a lot more wear out of it."

So, I rushed out to buy material for the skirt. But it was all gone! Finally I found just enough on the remnant table.

I worked very hard on the suit, then went out to buy a blouse to wear with it. The blouse cost $5 more than all four pieces I made!

Could hardly believe it. — Twilla Wallace, Yokon, Okla.

I believe it, Twilla. Sewing saves. Even more substantial savings can be realized when you go into the designer fashions. You can make a hard-to-tell-the-difference designer outfit for $75 to $85. Sound like a lot of money? Not when you consider the original sells for $375 to $400. Now, that's what I call a savings.

All the major pattern companies feature well-known designers. Choose your favorite pattern, select quality fabrics and take your time. You will amaze yourself.

Dear Betty: I was water-skiing and caught my swimsuit on a screw on the ski. It pulled a hole in the material. I stitched the hole together to prevent running, but the appearance is sloppy.

Is there any kind of patch for this type of material? There is a place on the suit where I could clip a patch if that would work. — Jenny Strawn, West Alexander, Pa.

Unless you can find someone to reweave the hole (which is expensive), I say cover it up.

There are so many cute little appliques available that are just the right size for covering a tiny hole. Because they are small, these appliques would not interfere with the stretch of your suit.

Stitch one over the hole and then scatter a few more over the suit. Absolutely no one will know it is a repair job (unless you tell!).
