Russians Recall Military Boss In East Germany

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union today recalled Marshal Ivan Koniev, military commander in East Germany who backed up the Communists when they built the Berlin wall.

The return to Moscow of the soldier who moved into the East German command as a sign of the Soviet Union's tough policy on Berlin last August was seen as a possible Kremlin move at this time to further reduce tension over the divided city.

Koniev's departure came shortly after it was disclosed that Gen. Lucius Clay, President Kennedy's personal representative in Berlin, is returning to the United States.

The announcement of Koniev's new assignment came three days after Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin met in Washington to discuss the Berlin situation. There were complications at that first meeting and no date was set for another session. But both sides expressed belief further talks would take place.

Koniev, 64, was named to the command of Soviet forces in East Germany early last August, and was in command there when the Communists built their anti-refugee "wall of shame" through the center of Berlin.

His appointment at that time was viewed as a Russian demonstration of a tough policy in Berlin during the height of the East-West crisis over the city's future.

A brief Tass news agency announcement said Koniev had returned to Moscow to resume his duties in the Soviet Defense Ministry.

He was replaced as commander in chief of Soviet troops in Germany, Tass said, by Col. Gen. Ivan Yakubovsky, who held that post before Koniev took over last August.

The Tass announcement gave no official reason for Koniev's recall, although speculation

Commies Try To Show US Has Entered War In South Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI) — Two U.S. Army enlisted men captured by Viet Cong guerrillas are alive and are being paraded through South Vietnamese villages in an attempt to show that the United States has intervened in the Communist "war of liberation," it was reported today.

The reports, brought here by travelers from Da Nang, were not confirmed by U.S. military authorities or South Vietnamese government officials.

The travelers said the two soldiers are being led from village to village by the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas who are trying to convince the villagers that the American captives are evidence of U.S. intervention in South Viet Nam.

Da Nang, on the South China seacoast, is about 350 miles northeast of Saigon and about 100 miles south of the 17th Parallel, which divides North and South Viet Nam.

The reports conflicted with a South Vietnamese government statement which said the Viet Cong were taking the Americans through the dense jungles of South Viet Nam's central highlands towards the sanctuary of the Laotian border.

The two missing soldiers are St. I.C. Francis Quinn of Niagara Falls, N.Y., and Sgt. George E. Groom of Stewartsville, Mo. Quinn and Groom, along with two other U.S. Army enlisted men, were training a group of South Vietnamese soldiers when they were ambushed near the town of An Chau, west of Da Nang, April 8.

All four were captured, but two of the men, Staff Sgt. Wayne E. Marchand of Plattsmouth, Neb., and Spec. James Gabriel of Honolulu, were murdered later by the Viet Cong because they were too badly wounded and apparently were slowing the rebels' escape.

Humorist Slates Talk Tuesday In Local Cafeteria

The customary serious discussion of world affairs is to be definitely sidetracked when members of the Knife & Fork club meet Tuesday evening, April 24, at the High School Cafeteria. And, doing the side tracking, will be the nation's number one humorist, Edmund Harding from down Washington, D.C., way.

Given the appellation of D. L. (Doctor of Laughter) by the many audiences he has addressed over the score of years he has been serious about the funny side of life, Harding is said to have accumulated a fund of stories for every pleasant occasion, He is said to relate them at the rate of one a minute.

"Laughter is like a ball; once it gets started frequent little pushes keep it going smoothly along", he remarks sagely when asked about his speed of story telling.

Harding hasn't always been a humorist; and that isn't his only endeavor now. He has at times been a tobacco auctioneer, writer, newspaper man and retailer. At present he is engaged in the insurance agency business.

A trip to Europe two years ago was his first real vacation from business and the platform in years. But the journey wasn't made to study international conditions he insists, "I dug around in some of the archives over there to get some funny stories. Believe me, before the Germans invaded Czechoslovakia about 20 years ago, there were a lot of funny things going on."

Election Date On Commissioner Is To Be Discussed

A date for the election of a city commissioner in Ward 2 to succeed Newt Secrest, resigned, is expected to be set when the City Commission meets in called session at 9 a.m. tomorrow in City Hall.

Commissioner Secrest submitted his resignation at last Tuesday's meeting of the commission.

City Atty. Bob Gordon said today that under Texas law it becomes the duty of the mayor to set an election date. Mayor E. C. Sidwell is ill with pneumonia in Highland General Hospital.

Gordon said in all probability an election order would be taken to Highland General hospital for the mayor to sign. The order then would have to be ratified by the commission at its meeting tomorrow.

Officials had not yet decided upon a definite date for the election, but stated the nearest date probably would be five weeks from next Tuesday.

Sufficient time must be set up for candidates to file and the election date, according to law, could be set 30 days from that time.

City Secretary Edwin Vicars said today that no candidacys for the Ward 2 commissioner's post had been filed up until noon today.

Acting Mayor Leon Holmes said today that insofar as he knew the only other business to come before the commission tomorrow would be the canvassing of votes in last Tuesday's election on the recall of Mayor Sidwell.

Mayor Sidwell was reported improving today, but is not expected to be released from the hospital until the middle of next week.

Test Issue Overshadows U.S. Disarmament Plan

GENEVA (UPI) — The nuclear testing issue today overshadowed the introduction for the first time of an American draft treaty for general and complete disarmament in about a decade.

The 24th plenary session of the 17-nation disarmament conference was called to order by Mexican Ambassador Luis Padilla Nervo shortly after the eight non-aligned delegation chiefs held an early-morning caucus.

The conference resumed for what probably would be its last pre-Easter meeting, with about a week remaining before the United States starts conducting nuclear tests in the atmosphere after a self-imposed moratorium of 3½ years.

The United States and Britain both rejected a Soviet appeal for a new moratorium on grounds that Russia broke the last one and the Western powers no longer can gamble their security on the Kremlin's "paper promises."

The Soviet Union continues to refuse to consider any international verification of a nuclear test ban treaty, even though it accepts the principle that disarmament as such must be accepted and verified.

The eight non-aligned members —Brazil, Burma, Ethiopia, India, Mexico, Nigeria, Sweden and the United Arab Republic—attempted earlier this week to break the stalemate by offering a compromise solution.

The neutralists idea called for a monitoring system based mainly on those now in existence, but reporting to an international body of scientists which would analyze the information to determine if anyone were testing nuclear weapons secretly.

The neutralists admitted that on-site inspections of suspicious events which could not be identified at long-distance might be necessary to maintain international confidence and trust, but they could take place only if the suspected nation invited the inspectors inside its frontiers.

West. The play will be presented Friday and Saturday April 27 and 28 in the Pampa High School Auditorium beginning at 8 p.m. each night. Mrs. McCausland portrays the heroine blind girl and Mrs. Black is the household maid. Tickets will be on sale at various locations in the business district Saturday. (Daily News Photo)

UN Comes To The Rescue Of Tshombe

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI) — The United Nations today came to the rescue of Katanga President Moise Tshombe whose flight to Elizabethville had been grounded by Congolese orders.

The U.N. forces, defying a command from the Congolese central government, helped Tshombe take off down a darkened runway on his flight to the Katanga capital.

The operation was carried out in pre-dawn secrecy under the supervision of U.N. Congo civilian chief Robert Gardiner.

Tshombe had indicated he would return to Leopoldville next week to resume negotiations with central government Premier Cyrille Adoula, but there was strong reason to believe Tshombe now would regard such a trip as too risky.

Many Western diplomats said the repercussions over the grounding incident could plunge the Congo into another crisis.

Tshombe had spent many hours in apparently fruitless discussions with Congolese officials before deciding to return to Elizabethville. It was not immediately known whether the talks had broken down completely or why Tshombe's plane was grounded.

Scotland Yard Detectives Sought Defector Aboard Russian Airplane

LONDON (UPI)—Scotland Yard detectives reported that Guy Burgess, the British diplomat who defected to Russia nearly 11 years ago with Donald Maclean, was not aboard the Soviet passenger ship Baltika which arrived here today.

British authorities had speculated that Burgess might have been one of six unidentified passengers on the Russian ship. But detectives who boarded the Baltika along with customs men left a few minutes later, apparently convinced that none of the passengers was Burgess.

Scotland Yard said Wednesday that it had received reports that the two turncoat diplomats may have left the Soviet Union. A British European Airways (BEA) spokesman said the men were believed to be on a flight heading for London. But when the plane arrived from Moscow Wednesday night, neither of the defectors was aboard.

A Russian Foreign Office spokesman said he had no idea where the two men were. So far as Westerners could find out, neither of them had applied for a Soviet exit visa.

Maclean, 49, was discovered by newsmen Wednesday afternoon in Moscow, and Burgess, 51, was reported by friends to be on a holiday somewhere in Russia.

However, British officials still believed that Burgess might try to slip into Britain. Scotland Yard detectives, armed with warrants, were stationed at the London Airport waiting for the arrival of several flights from Moscow.

The government said it will arrest both men if they step on British soil.

Burgess and Maclean touched off a worldwide sensation when the highly placed Foreign Office men disappeared from London on May 25, 1951, and later turned up in Moscow. It was feared they had taken many Western defense secrets with them.

Maclean and Burgess had served with the British Embassy in Washington and had access to important sources of information.

They were known to have Communist sympathies stretching back many years.

Two Filed On For Burglary

Charges of burglary and breaking and entering were filed yesterday afternoon against two 18-year-old Pampa youths arrested in connection with a number of thefts in Pampa and Miami.

Charles Richard Spain, 1315 E. Frederic, and Harry Edward Taylor, 515 S. Somerville, were arraigned in Justice J. W. Graham's court yesterday afternoon and each was placed under $1,500 bond. Both still were held in county jail today.

The youths are being held in connection with the theft of pay telephones from the E. M. Keller Trucking Co., 725 S. Cuyler, and from an apartment house at 418 N. West.

Taylor was charged with the theft of tools from Tommy Bass, 719 Zimmer. Spain and Taylor will face charges in Roberts County for the alleged burglary of a cafe and the Miami school. Police say $120 was stolen from the cafe and about 95 cents from a desk in the school.

A 15-year-old youth who accompanied Spain and Taylor has been turned over to juvenile authorities.

Dallas Plane Crash Kills Three

DALLAS (UPI)—A blue and white two-engine DC3 owned by Purdue University and being outfitted to fly Big Ten football and basketball teams to games, crashed, exploded and burned late Wednesday. Two men were killed instantly and a third died early today.

It happened just seconds after the plane had taken off of runway No. 13 at Dallas Love Field for a check flight.

The plane's tanks held 900 gallons of gasoline. The fuel engulfed the wreckage in flames less than 300 yards from a freeway clogged with motorists on their way home, and from a number of homes with children playing in the yards.

Jimmy Smith, 34, was sitting on his front porch and watched the plane nose over into a gentle arc and plow into the ground at the end of the runway. He was one of the first to arrive at the scene and narrowly escaped possible death trying to help.

Paul Maissonneuve, 49, pilot and chief of maintenance for Purdue Aeronautical Corp., and Tom Cogburn, 29, an electrician for the Dallas Aero Service, were killed in the crash and three explosions that followed.

Arthur J. Mitchell, 29, a radio technician for Dallas Aero Service, was thrown out of the wreckage. He was critically hurt and died early today in Baylor Hospital. Death came at 3:40 a.m.

Smith and Julius Hudson, a veteran pilot and operator of a charter flying service, leaped a six-foot steel fence at the end of the runway and risked their lives to pull Mitchell away from the wreckage.

The third explosion occurred seconds after they pulled Mitchell free. Other witnesses said the blast probably would have killed, or at least seriously injured, all of them if they had been a few feet closer.

"We saw this figure rolling in the grass," Smith said. "Most of his clothing was burned off. All of his hair was gone, and his mouth was crushed."

Smith and John Thomas, 19, who rushed to help, pulled off their shirts and smothered the fire consuming Mitchell's clothing.

Although badly injured, Mitchell managed to answer a few questions before an ambulance arrived. He said there were two other men aboard the plane and he had been riding in the mid-section.

It was not immediately determined what caused the crash.

The plane was flown from Lafayette, Ind., 45 days ago for modification work and replacement of one of its engines.

Purdue University operates an airport, and owns Purdue Aeronautical Corp., which has a fleet of planes operating as a freight and passenger flight service.

It transports seven of the Big Ten Conference's football teams and other athletic groups to sports events. The school has aviation courses and aeronautical engineering courses in its regular curriculum. A school spokesman said this was the first fatal crash involving a Purdue plane.

Maissonneuve and Grove Webster, vice president and general manager of Purdue Aeronautical Corp., had flown to Dallas to see how the work on the DC3 was progressing. Maissonneuve was taking the plane up for a 30 minute to one-hour check flight around the Dallas area when it crashed.

Red China After Latin American Influence

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China has made a pitch to swing Latin America into its sphere of influence by attacking United States "imperialism," it was reported today.

Peiping Radio said in a broadcast monitored here that Communist Chinese Foreign Minister Chen Yi declared Wednesday night that the "Chinese people ardently desire to live in peace" but that the United States will not let them.

Nehru Reports Red China Penetrations

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru today told Parliament the Chinese Communists have made new penetrations into northern Ladakh on the Sino-Indian border.

Nehru did not disclose exactly when the fresh advance was made, but he said the Indian government has protested to Peiping and asked that the Chinese troops be withdrawn.

Property Should Be Rendered To Tax Authorities

April 1 and May 1 are important deadlines for Texans to render their property to various taxing agencies. State laws require all real and personal property to be rendered for taxes on or before prescribed dates. Those who fail to comply can blame only themselves for the money loss they may consequently suffer.

Some Texas cities set their own tax deadlines. These are the cities of more than 5,000 population which have incorporated under the "Home Rule" provisions of our statutes. All other cities are governed by the general laws of Texas.

In towns operating under the general laws property must be rendered for taxes between January 1 and April 1 each year. A number of home rule cities set up the same requirements in their ordinances, while others prescribe different periods.

For state and county tax purposes, property must be rendered to the County Tax Assessor by April 30, and homestead exemptions must be claimed by the same time.

In some localities a third taxing unit is involved — the independent school district. In other places school taxes are collected by the city or county. In addition, some localities have water, irrigation, or levee districts which assess and collect taxes. Make inquiry as to where these various taxes are assessed, and as to applicable deadlines or rendition.

What property must be rendered for taxes? If Texas laws were strictly enforced, we would be required to render to all taxing units nearly every piece of real and personal property which we own, down to the very clothing on our backs. An exception is the constitutional exemption of $250 worth of household furniture. However, no taxing unit carries its requirements this far, and it will be necessary to inquire of each tax assessor when rendering your property whether specific types of property are ordinarily rendered in that locality. Some cities and counties collect ad valorem taxes on automobiles, television sets and other personal items, while others ignore practically all personal property. Business and professional men are generally required to render all merchandise, furnishings, fixtures, business automobiles and equipment.

If property is not rendered by the tax payer, it may then be placed upon the unrendered tax roll, and the taxing agency places such valuation thereon as it considers fair. One advantage of rendering your property is that you can set your own valuation. Then, if the county or city decides a higher valuation is in order you will be given an opportunity to appear before a board to explain why the higher figure should not be used in computing your taxes.

Thereafter, an appeal to the courts is possible in some instances. Generally speaking, however, the courts are unable to strike out a valuation unless the agency or board has acted arbitrarily and placed on the property a valuation higher than that placed on comparable property owned by others. If you do not render, the valuation set by the taxing agency is final.

Remember these facts: You may need to render your property at three or more different tax offices. Ask each tax assessor if in doubt concerning the deadline for the rendering of specific personal items.

(This newsfeature, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform — not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

Market 'Ain't What She Used To Be'

FINANCIAL REVIEW
By JESSE BOGUE
UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)— When a broker shakes his head over the morning coffee these days, it's seldom over the brew in his cup. He's worried about the lack of percolation in the market.

To borrow a phrase from an ancient popular song, the market right now "ain't what she used to be." Not what it was a year ago, at least. Why this should be uses up a lot of type in the analysts' daily letters in which they tell why the market acted that way Monday and what it ought to do soon.

There is no widespread feeling that stock levels are going to keep slipping indefinitely. Too many of the business index figures are good news to allow for long-range pessimism.

But when you are concerned primarily with the market itself as a means of livelihood, you can't help noticing figures like these:

After the close of trading Monday, the first day the stock market was active after U. S. Steel hauled back its price increase, volume for the year to that date on the New York Stock Exchange was around 249,778,000, on the American Exchange 101,463,000. After trading on April 17, 1961, a comparable Monday, trading volume on the NYSE was 360,465,447, and on the AS Ewas 169,053,100.

The Dow-Jones stock average Monday closed at 684.06. This is a little below the 696.72 it recorded April 17, 1962. But at the close of business last Dec. 29, last trading day of 1961, it was 731.14.

"It just sits there," one Wall Street source complained in discussing this year's market.

The steel price furore had its short - range effects, analysts agree; what the long-range effects will be is a matter of divided opinion.

One researcher reported that "what the market needs is some buying interest," and he said that he thought it was likely to develop at any time.

Actress Reacts Own Way After Show Flop

By ALBI KREBS
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Actress Kim Hunter is a woman with an independent spirit, so when her Broadway play folded last Saturday she refused to react in the stereotyped fashion — as though tragedy had struck.

"I had great fun in 'Write Me A Murder'," she said today, "but in a way I'm glad it's over. I'm tired, for one thing, and now I have more time to take care of my family."

Miss Hunter was quick to add she looks forward to new stage, television and film roles, but she was explicit about the terms under which she would accept them. She's independent that way.

"I'd love a continuing role in a television series," she said, "but only in New York, with lots of time off. Of course this is only dreaming, so I'll settle for guest shots."

Last Sunday she was seen in the Hall of Fame's "Give Us Barabbas."

Miss Hunter possesses a fierce love for New York, where she lives in a Greenwich Village house with her husband, writer Robert Emmett; daughter Kathy, 17, and son Sean, 8.

She is rather cool toward Hollywood despite the fact it gave her its highest honor, an Academy Award in 1952 for best supporting actress for her role in "A Streetcar Named Desire," which she created on Broadway.

"I may sound like I'm slapping at Hollywood, but I don't mean to," Miss Hunter said. "It's just that my life there, the five years I spent there, were unhappy ones —personally — and that's what sticks with you. Hollywood is fine for some peoole, like Bette Davis, who conquered the medium of films and knew how to cope with the town."

Miss Hunter's frankness is the sort of talk most actresses avoid, in the fear their "image" of a star will be tarnished. But she's not the star type, anyhow, despite the fact she is one of Broadway's most respected performers.

"I'm too busy to bother with the fancy act," Miss Hunter said. "Sure I won an Oscar, sure I've been in some good plays and movies. But I'm not too different from a lot of working mothers. Some actresses don't do a thing all day, preparing for those two murderous hours onstage, I can't be like that."

Miss Hunter does her own shoping for food and whips up most of the meals served in the Emmett household.

"I like to cook, however unglamorous that sounds," she said. "Besides, I don't like the regimentation of having a cook. When you have a cook you have to eat on schedule. I prefer the freedom of cooking myself."

Another thing about cooks, said Miss Hunter — that independent woman with independent ideas— is that "they're too independent."

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

For the bereaved families, who for the last year have lived on the razor's edge of hope and despair, there clearly was no other course than to attempt to deal with Fidel Castro on his offer to barter lives for money.

Twenty-five thousand for one life, $500,000 for another to a grand total of $62 million.

For the refugee families of the men taken prisoner in last year's Bay of Pigs invasion, the figure obviously was an impossible one. It had almost tripled since Castro first offered to exchange his prisoners for $26 million worth of heavy tractors.

Whether Castro would live up to a deal once it was made remained to be seen.

Communist barter in human lives is not a particularly new tactic.

The Communists attempted to use it 10 years earlier in Korean armistice negotiations at Panmunjom.

In the seemingly endless talks between the U. S. and Red Chinese ambassadors in Warsaw, the Reds attempted to use American prisoners as a bartering weapon in exchange for a switch in the American attitude toward Formosa and Red Chinese membership in the United Nations.

Of the latest one, the Sao Paulo, Brazil, newspaper O Estado editorialized:

"While there is, in accordance to humanitarian and Christian standards, no material equivalent for the value of human life, Fidel Castro's new demand not only demonstrates his growing cynicism but also the total bankruptcy of the Cuban economy."

Castro himself was acting peculiarly. He still proclaimed himself a Marxist-Leninist but he denounced Cuba's old-line Communists and complained his own revolutionaries were being deprived of jobs.

There was speculation that perhaps Castro was on the way to becoming an American hemisphere Tito.

Defense Money Bill May Be In For A Long Wait

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The record $47.8 billion defense money bill, approved by the House, appeared today to be in for a long wait before the Senate gets around to it.

The House passed the big appropriation bill Wednesday, producing no real questions about its general provisions during two days of debate.

But debate was expected to assume filibuster proportions over literacy tests in the Senate. It was scheduled to begin in the Senate Tuesday and promised difficulties for the defense bill.

A filibuster over the proposal to restrict use of literacy tests as a federal voting prerequisite would make committee meetings impossible.

The Senate Military Appropriations subcommittee has held hearings on the bill, but it must hear the Pentagon's requests for restoration of House cuts before it can draft its version of the giant money bill.

The House passed the bill 388-0, and its sponsors said additional billions not carried in the legislation will be spent on nuclear development, arms aid to other countries and military construction in the United States and abroad.

The bill is to run the Army, Navy and Air Force during the fiscal year beginning July 1. It was $1.3 billion bigger than last year's appropriation and $7.4 billion higher than the bill the year before that.

It is a record for peacetime, and was last exceeded during the height of the Korean War.

Koniev was appointed to the command in East Germany on Aug. 10, 1961, just three days before the Communists built their wall dividing Berlin.

The wall went up shortly after East German Communist leader Walter Ulbricht returned from a visit to Moscow, where he conferred with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and apparently obtained backing for a harder line on the Berlin issue.

The crisis over Berlin flared sharply after that. At one point, American and Soviet tanks faced each other at point - blank distance.

Khrushchev Says Nothing Can Save US

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev today told 6,000 cheering Young Communist League members that "no medicine can save the rotten capitalist world" from the march of communism.

Khrushchev addressed the national convention of the league for 90 minutes and was applauded for another quarter of an hour, the Tass news agency reported.

"We are keeping the Western hotheads at bay by the strength and the might of the Soviet armed forces, the might of all the Socialist camp," he said, stressing the 'role of youth in this effort.

He warned of the dangers of Western "ideological subversion" but said this will fail because succeeding generations of Soviet citizens subscribe to Communist ideas.

"The old capitalist world cannot advance any idea," he said. "No medicine can save the rotten capitalist world. The new, militant, and eager will triumph. And this is the Communist movement."

'Desperation' Is Evident In Talk By Khrushchev

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

When Nikita Khrushchev addressed the Communist Party Central Committee in Moscow early in March, a note of desperation clearly was discernible.

Soviet and satellite agriculture was in bad shape.

Goals had not been met, and complaining letters were coming into the Central Committee from city dwellers who could find no butter or meat in the shops. Many of the letters accused the committee of bad planning.

This latter, with his own reputation at stake, Khrushchev stoutly denied. But he admitted:

"If we do not solve this task we shall be placing the country in great difficulties. The cause of building Communism will be dealt a dire blow."

There were several contributing factors to Khrushchev's dilemma.

One was the fact that the Soviet population is increasing by about three million per year.

Because of the trend from farm to city, its urban population was increasing even faster—by nearly five million in 1960 and nearly two million in the first half of 1961.

Another factor was a shortage of farm machinery which in some cases were less than 50 per cent of requirements. Collective farms possessed only 43 per cent of needed tractors, and many of those they did have could not be used because of failure to make repairs.

Khrushchev admitted these failures and placed further blame for shortages on the grasslands system which took a large proportion of the land out of production.

But he ignored the main problem which simply was that peasant farmers would not labor as well or as effectively for the collective as they would for their own private plots. As controls were increased and private plots reduced, production decreased accordingly.

Radio Free Europe notes that "despite overwhelming evidence that collectivization of a country's agricultural resources can lead only to failure, the Communists are continuing along the road of regimenting the countryside."

Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Romania, Hungary, all fell short of production goals and all are heavily collectivized.

Strike Ends At Missile Sites

ROSWELL, N.M. (UPI)—Striking members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW), under pressure from all sides, returned to work at 12 Atlas missile launch sites today after gaining a major concession.

Malcolm Damon, IBEW business agent, said the union returned "100 per cent" for the 8 a.m. shift for the first time since Monday, when a dispute over a non-union contractor flared up.

President Kennedy's Missile Labor Commission Wednesday night asked five labor union presidents, including IBEW head Gordon M. Freeman, to pool their efforts to help end the walkouts at the Atlas launch sites encircling Walker Air Force Base.

Julius Kuczma, executive secretary of the commission, asked the union presidents for their "personal intervention in this matter to again instruct all members of your union to return to work immediately at this site which is critical to the national interest."

Operetta Given In Local School

The three first grades at Horace Mann Elementary School presented a holiday operetta, "Easter Fairyland" this morning at 10 a.m. in the school auditorium for parents and students.

The operetta concerned a little boy named Billy, who did not believe in the Easter Bunny or fairies. The Fairy Queen makes the nests for the Easter Bunny to hide the eggs; naughty elves steal the eggs away, but the Fairy has the Easter Bunny bring more eggs and finally Billy is convinced there are fairies and an Easter Bunny.

The operetta was directed by Mrs. John Branham, school music instructor, assisted by the three first grade teachers, Miss Yvonne Goss, Mrs. S. B. Flowers and Mrs. A. E. Berry.

'Beach Buggies' Are Making Surfcasting A Family Affair

By DICK DEW
United Press International

BOURNE, Mass. (UPI) — The new nomad of the sports world is the mobile fishing fraternity, an expanding, dedicated band of shoreline gypsies who seldom stray in season from the sound of the surf.

There was a time when Daddy announced "I'm going fishing," the kids kissed him goodbye and Mom got ready for a long summer of mowing the lawn.

Today when Dad hears the striped bass are running, everybody in the family starts packing and damn the dandelions.

The fisher clan spend their winters building every conceivable comfort into an endless variety of vehicles known as beach buggies.

The stripers begin "hitting" for the surf fishermen along historic Cape Cod about the last weekend in April. In their "season," which often runs into November, multiplying numbers of surf fishermen are taking their families along in the sand riding buggies.

Stoves, foam rubber bunks, refrigerators, even curtains on the windows, make for the homey touch.

Patsy Diana of Framingham, Mass., president of the Suburban Sea and Surf Club, typifies the didication of the beach-buggiest.

"Most of our members in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut take off the first weekend they hear the striped bass are hitting. After that, they spend every weekend and all their vacations living with the family in the beach buggies. That way, we can fish and not neglect our families.

"It really is an inexpensive vacation and the incurable surf fisherman gets in all the casting he wants. It's in our bylaws that we must comply with all local laws. For example, we never stop over in towns where you can't sleep on the beach."

Perhaps the strangest thing about beach buggiests is the friendship of the postman parked next to the business tycoon who lives on his route. The bank president is liable to sleep 16 feet away from his most delinquent mortgagee.

At one time, beach buggy associations were made up of owners of the nearly extinct Model "A" and a few four-wheel drive Jeeps.

But a Worcester, Mass. resident named Bob Williams is credited with determining that relatively conventional two - wheel drive vehicles, with proper weight distribution, would plow through sandy areas.

Another Worcester man, newspaper outdoor sports editor, Frank Woolnes, formed the Massachusetts Beach Buggy Association. Ted Mitten of Weymouth is president of the organization which numbers 1,500 members.

Today, the true to-it - yourself beach buggiest hunts high and low for an old milk or bakery truck. Addition of a fourth forward speed and fitting out of the rear of the truck comes next.

Then, it's off to the shore with Mom, the kids, even the family cat.

matter of Fact

On Halloween, children wear masks to scare each other and adults. Once, masks were used to frighten children into behaving. For example, a child, repeatedly told not to, might have persisted in following its mother to fetch water. To discipline the child the mother would paint a hideous face on her water gourd.

The Cancer 'Nobody Talks About' Can Be Beaten By Many Potential Victims

DEADLY PATTERN — Normal cells (left) were taken from the rectal lining of a healthy person. Deformed cells (right) show what happens when cancer sets in.

By HAROLD SHEEHAN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA) — The biggest news this year in the fight against cancer is that three major varieties of this disease can now be headed off.

There are no miracle cures yet for these three serious ailments —cancer of the lung, cancer of the rectum and colon and uterine cancer — but they can be beaten. How? Let's start with the disease "nobody talks about," cancer of the colon and rectum, the No. 1 cancer killer today.

Cancer's nightmarish pattern of malignant cells attacks many organs of the body indiscriminately; so there is no sense in mincing words. This is not a pleasant disease.

Colon-rectal cancer is agonizing and generally fatal. About 40,000 persons will die from the disease this year. Anyone who contracts it has about one chance in three of living through it.

Cancer of the colon and rectum strikes about the same number of men as women. Its area is in the last five feet of the intestinal tract.

The cause of cancer in this organ is not yet known. Small growths, called polyps, often mark the beginning stages. They arise in the lining of the colon (or large intestine) and rectum. All polyps are not cancerous, but since many are malignant, they should be removed as soon as possible.

Polyps tend to run in families. Persons whose relatives have had colon-rectal cancer should have frequent examinations.

The medical examination is the best way to fight this disease—catch the polyps before they become spreading cancerous growths. Early examination is also the best protection against most forms of cancer.

In the New York headquarters of the American Cancer Society, Dr. Roald N. Grant, the Society's director of professional education, showed the device which has become the chief weapon against the disease. It is called a proctoscope —"scope" for short.

The scope is essentially a shiny metal tube some 10 inches in length. Dr. Grant explained its use:

"After an internal cleansing of the lower intestinal canal, the scope is inserted into the area. The physican then can search visually for the polyps. If he sees something suspicious he can work through the scope to cut out tissue for microscopic examination."

The search for colon-rectal cancer is no picnic for either doctor or patient, but the method can catch three-fourths of the cases.

Like all cancers, this variety should be treated as soon as possible. Often, a simple operation through the scope to remove a polyp with forceps is all that is needed.

Delay frequently results in death or, at best, lifelong disability, because more involved operations usually mean the cutting out of the sphincter muscles of the rectum, with resulting loss of voluntary control of its important function.

The American Cancer Society, said Dr. Grant, has been urging physicians and patients to make the scope test a regular part of regular check-ups. Statistics show that the drive has been partially successful. About 14 per cent of the doctors regularly include the test in examinations of patients who have no symptoms of trouble.

More advanced symptoms of the disease include, abdominal pain, changes in bowel habits with appearance of blood. If symptoms persist for a couple of weeks the suspecting person should waste no time in making the acquaintance of a physician and his proctoscope.

(Next: The dramatic drop in uterine cancer.)

EDITOR'S NOTE: If you knew that a murderer would strike two out of every three families in your neighborhood you would probably call the police, arm yourself with a weapon or move out of town.

Cancer is a killer which in coming years will invade two-thirds of the nation's families. One in every four will get this disease. Moving out of town will not help to avoid this killer. But protection is available, and the weapons to fight this relentless assassin are at hand.

The three-part series which begins here is your personal guide to the counterattack against the disease which this year will strike some 320,000 Americans.

Importance of early diagnosis of cancer

*If detected in its earliest, presymptomatic stages with the "Pap" smear examination, cancer of the uterus can nearly always be cured.

Actress Lana Turner Is Thinking About Retiring...Hollywood Style

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Beautiful Lana Turner is talking about retiring — Hollywood style.

To most people, retirement means going away parties, gift luggage, a speech from the boss who couldn't care less and tears from an old maid secretary.

But not in movieland. Retirement for an actor usually means, "I'm quitting, but I'm not."

Usually, a star retires, settles down for a while and, after a short stint of boredom, returns to makeup and sound stages.

Miss Turner hinted at retirement after finishing a co-starring role with Dean Martin in "Who's Got The Action."

"I'm not going to make one of those retirement announcements that are more often than not repudiated the next year," Lana said. "When I speak of retirement I suppose I really mean taking it easy, picking a few films I want to do, doing them and traveling, making a home and just having fun the rest of the time."

Miss Turner has managed to put a few dollars together, one reason she's considering semi-retirement.

"For the first time since I've been acting, I am financially secure," she said. My husband Fred May, is quite competent to take care of us without stinting. He has varied business interests in which I wish to be a part.

"We have purchased a home in the Malibu colony and are doing it over from top to bottom. I have been spending evenings and weekends redecorating and planning our new home.

For a role in her picture "Imitation of Life," Lana received a percentage of box-office profits. The picture did well and cured the actress' financial problems.

"'Imitation of Life' alone will set me free financially," she said. "I was certainly paid well during my years with Metro Goldwyn Mayer, but it was a straight salary, with most of it going for taxes. Since the money from percentages comes in over a long period of time, I'm much better off financially with this arrangement."

What would a glamorous actress like Lana Turner do ir retirement? Miss Turner would probably spend much of her time traveling and watching hubby May's race horses run.

"It's the most exciting thing in the world to watch one of your own horses race," Lana said. "Every spare minute I have I like to get out to the ranch or at whatever track we have our horses and watch them."

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C.—The sister of U.N. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, attacking the policies of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) from which she resigned:

The Canadian Production Credit Association Holds Annual Meeting

CANADIAN (Spl) — Farmers and ranchers were urged here Tuesday to become active public relations representatives for the agricultural industry of the nation, and to quit being apologetic for their contributions to the nation's economy.

H. H. Calkins, vice president of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Houston, told more than 500 stockholders and guests of the Canadian Production Credit Association that "it is time farmers and ranchers became their own public relations men," and to let the general public know about the progress and advances made in their industry.

Calkins spoke at the 18th annual meeting of the agricultural credit organization, with stockholders and guests, attending from across a six-county area of the Panhandle,, held in the Canadian City Auditorium.

The speaker also traced the founding and growth of the Intermediate Credit Bank system and the Production Credit Associations across the nation. The Houston bank serves as discount and supervisory agency for all 36 PCA groups in Texas.

In other business meeting activities, Dale Nix of Canadian and M. Lawrence Ellzey of Perryton were reelected to the board of directors for three-year terms. Others nominated for the posts were H. R. Hext of Canadian and Grady Yeary of Perryton.

Holdover directors are President H. H. Keahey of White Deer, Vice President Wallace N. Hamker of Booker, C. B. Henderson of Wheeler and Hugh F. Parsell of Canadian.

At a board reorganizational meeting, held following the stockholders session, Keahey and Hamker were reelected president and vice president, respectively. Erbin F. Crowell was reelected General Manager and Secretary-Treasurer and Keahey, Parsell and Crowell were named to the executive committee.

DALAVAN, Ill. (UPI) — Fran W. Hatten Tuesday reported success in his drive to add the word "quasquicentennial" to the English language.

Hatten said Wilfred Funk, of Funk & Wagnall's dictionary wrote him, "to my amazement you have created a word that will live in our language." Hatten said quasquicentennial means 125th anniversary.

AUTOMOBILE CABOOSE—Although U.S. railroads have long been transporting new cars on special double decker freight cars, only recently has one line begun experimenting with hooking them onto pasenger trains. The B&Os "National Limited" is shown crossing the Thomas Viaduct at Relay, Md. These were new cars, but the railroad is studying the possibility of transporting train passengers' own cars, as is already being done in Europe.

An Adopted Problem.. Who Should Play The Part Of Sophie Tucker?

The Lighter Sde
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — I have this compulsion for adopting other people's problems, which explains why I have been worrying over who is going to play Sophie Tucker.

In a way, I am glad the Sophie problem came up because it took my mind off Liz and Eddie. I darn near went batty worrying about their problem.

But while it provides a refreshing change of pace, the Sophie problem is certainly no small matter, and I don't mean that as a pun on Miss Tucker's girth, which is considerable.

I became apprised of the problem during a talk I had with Miss Tucker, who is appearing this week in one of our local cultural centers.

She happened to mention that some Broadway types are planning to produce a musical play based on her 58-year career as one of the first, and now the last, of the "red hot mamas."

This started me to wondering how the producers would be able to fill the title role. It seems to me that they are going to have a peck of trouble casting that part.

If it were a Hollywood production, casting would present no problem. They could dub in Sophie's voice from an old phonograph record and let Tuesday Weld play the part.

Even Elvis Presley could handle it if he dyed his hair.

But Broadway is different. The stage Sophie will have to use her own voice, and that presents complications, mainly because female vocalists have changed a lot in 58 years.

Girl singers nowadays tend to moan into the microphones, rather than make the welkin ring. Furthermore, most of those who do belt out songs the way Sophie used to probably can't act.

There are, to be sure, plenty of night club singers who thrive on Sophie Tucker impersonations. But that doesn't necessarily qualify them to carry the lead in a Broadway show.

I asked Miss Tucker if she could suggest any candidates for the job and she shook her head. At one time, she said, Judy Garland would have been fine in the part. Also Betty Hutton.

But offhand, she said, she was not aware of any potential Sophie Tuckers among the newer crop of entertainers.

It's really not my problem, but I can't help worrying about it. In fact, I've been racking my brain to think of a suitable Sophie. But I'm afraid it's got me stumped.

At age 74, Miss Tucker's public image is that of an institution—indomitable, near indestructible, and steeped in "the show must go on," "there'll always be an England" tradition.

Thus far, the only person I can think of who might feel at home in such a role is Winston Churchill.

NO BICARBONATE?

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The last sentence of the invocation before the annual dinner of the Knife and Fork Gourmet Club Monday night was, "Lord, grant us good digestion."

MINTED Frozen Green Peas . . . a delight with Pecan-Cheese Ring

Corn-Crisped Cooking Solves Calory Problem

Corn-crisped cooking solves a long-standing problem: how to enjoy the crispness and flavor of fried foods without frying them. It is a boon to the cook, who can put the oven to work instead of hovering over a skillet. It is a boon to the calorie counter, who can please his palate with corn-crisped foods cooked without the use of fat. And it is a boon to everybody who enjoys well-browned, appetizing meat, fish or poultry with a crisp crust and a juicy, succulent interior.

The discovery of this "dip, roll and bake" method began with the search for a greaseless way to "fry" chicken. Pieces of chicken are first dipped in evaporated milk to give them a smooth texture and a moist surface to which a coating adheres evenly. Cornflake crumbs, mixed with salt, pepper and Ac'cent, provide a coating that turns to a golden crsp crust as the chicken bakes. While the chicken cooks, the Ac'cent penetrates the meat to emphasize the juicy tenderness and delicate flavor.

Chicken coated this way is then baked in the oven on a pan lined with aluminum foil. Unlike the conventional method of frying chicken, which requires careful regulation of heat, proper timing for turning the pieces and just the right quantity of oil or shortening, corncrisping permits the cook to attend to other matters. The chicken pieces do not even need to be turned and, thanks to the aluminum foil, the clean-up job is virtually eliminated — a nice bonus for the lady of the house.

Corn-crisped chicken proved to be so delicious that it quickly became a favorite specialty all over the country. It took only a short step to extend this easy and excellent cooking principle to other foods. Corn-crisped fish fillets, for example, are a pleasure to cook and eat. The fillets, brushed with melted butter and sprinkled with a few capers and a little minced parsley, are rolled and corn-crisped in the same manner as chicken. They emerge from the oven brown and tempting, needing only a lemon slice for garnish.

Corncrisped kabobs offer still another appealing menu idea. In this case, the evaporated milk is mixed with an equal quantity of prepared mustard, making an agreeably spicy dipping mixture to point up the flavor of the luncheon meat cubes. Alternate the corn-crisped luncheon meat with cubes of pineapple and bake them on skewers for a colorful and pleasing family or party dish.

If you like a built-in garnish for your corn-crisped chicken, decorate it with curried fruit. Place drained peach halves and pineapple slices in a baking pan, spoon over a mixture of melted butter, brown sugar and curry powder, and let the fruit bake alongside the chicken. It will be done at the same time and, while the fruit will retain its firmness, the curry mixture has had time to season it beautifully.

CORN CRISPED CHICKEN WITH CURRIED FRUIT

1 cup corn flake crumbs
1 teaspoon Ac'cent
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 broiler-fryer chicken, but in serving pieces
½ cup evaporated milk

Combine corn flake crumbs with Ac'cent, salt and pepper. Dip chicken in evaporated milk, then roll in seasoned crumbs. Place chicken pieces, skin side up, on aluminum foil lined baking pan. Place in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) with Curried Fruit. Bake 1 hour, or until tender. Yield: 4 servings.

CURRIED FRUIT

1 can (1 pound) cling peach halves
1 can (8 ounces) pineapple slices
4 maraschino cherries with stems
¼ cup butter
½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
2 teaspoons curry powder

Cut Kitchen Time To Minimum In The Spring

There's no doubt about it, pleasant weather is here and with it, we have the urge to cut kitchen time to a minimum! The call to outdoors is almost overpowering. We can fully appreciate the mood of James Whitcomb Riley when he wrote, "Work is the least o, my idees, When the green, you, know, gits back in the trees."

But appetites, we find, are not appeased by poetry! Here's the answer to our dilemma - a flavorful combination of garden-fresh frozen peas, redolent of aromatic mint and piquant seasonings served with a palate-pleasing ring mold of pecans and cheddar cheese.

It's a perfect cook-ahead delight - for it can be made early in the day and tucked into the refrigerator to mellow while you are outdoors enjoying the warm sun.

MINTED PEAS WITH PECAN-CHEESE RING

MINTED PEAS

2 tablespoons vinegar
1-3 cup salad oil
½ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash white pepper
1 teaspoon minced mint leaves
2 packages (10 ounce each) frozen green peas, cooked and chilled

SALAD RING

2 envelopes 2 (tablespoons) unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
2½ cups milk
½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon prepared horseradish
3 drops Tabasco sauce
2 cups chopped pecans
2 cups shredded Cheddar cheese
½ cup chopped celery
1-3 cup chopped green pepper

Prepare salad ring. Soften gelatin in cold water; set in hot water over low heat to dissolve gelatin. Add milk, mayonnaise or salad dressing, salt, horseradish and Tabasco sauce; blend. Chill until mixture begins to set. Fold in pecans, cheese, celery and green pepper. Pour into oiled 1-1¼ quart ring mold. Chill until firm. Prepare Minted Peas, 30 minutes to 1 hour before serving. Combine vinegar, oil, paprika, salt, pepper and mint leaves; mix. Pour over peas; toss lightly. Marinate in refrigerator until serving time. Unmold salad ring onto crisp salad greens and fill center with peas. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

Ingredients Combine In Spectacular Way For Year-Around Dessert Fare

Here's a year-around recipe for your salad or dessert file. The ingredients are always available and they combine in a rather spectacular way. Rose', the pretty pink wine from California, is used as part of the liquid in this gelatin mixture, giving it an elusive flavor that guests won't be able to identify, but will certainly enjoy. Glasses of the same wine, well chilled, enhance this salad-dessert.

STUFFED PEARS, ROSE' (Makes 6 to 8 servings)

1 (3-oz.) package raspberry-flavored gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 cup California Rose' wine
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
Few grains salt
1 (3-oz.) package cream cheese
¼ cup chopped walnuts
6 to 8 canned pear halves

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add wine, lemon juice and salt; chill. Press package of cream cheese into walnuts until coated on all sides; cut into 6 to 8 equal-size pieces. Place drained pear halves cut side up, and with pointed ends toward center, in 8-inch round cake pan; set a cream cheese square in center of each pear half. When gelatin begins to thicken pour around pears (fruit will not be entirely covered). Chill until firm. Cut into pie-shaped wedges to serve.

Salad Dressings Are Secret Ingredients That Make Salads Memorable Or Dull

Everybody . . . well, almost everbody . . today knows that a crisp, crunchy salad is the course which adds that extra special good eating quality to every meal in which it appears. But what most people don't know that the salad is also one of the most nutritious, dishes in American cuisine.

Ever since time began, good cooks have industriously searched for the special ingredient which makes their culinary efforts excell in taste and eye-appeal. Now everyone . . . well, almost everyone! . . . knows that salad dressings are the secret ingredient!

ITALIAN JADE SALAD

1 10-oz. package frozen green peas
¼ cup water
½ teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup sliced green onions
1 cup sliced celery
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
¼ teaspoon ground tarragon
½ teaspoon celery seed
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon monosodium glutamate
1-3 cup dry white wine
½ cup Italian or Garlic Dressing

Place unthawed peas in a sauce pan with water, sugar and salt. Cover and bring quickly to a boil over high heat, separating peas with a fork, if necessary to hasten thawing. Reduce heat and simmer three to four minutes. Turn peas immediately into a refrigerator container with ice cubes. Chill thoroughly and refrigerate until ready to use.

Prepare a marinade of wine and remaining seasonings. Pour in a jar with a tight cover and refrigerate for several hours, stirring occasionally so that all of the vegetables are seasoned.

At serving time, add the Italian or Garlic dressing to the marinated vegetables. Mix well. Drain chilled peas, and toss all together lightly. Serve on crisp lettuce cups.

Television In Review
By RICK DU BROW
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The remarkable thing about NBC-TV's "Wagon Train" is how it has managed to stay at or near the top of the audience ratings with the original star, Ward Bond, dead and his scout, Robert Horton, riding off the series.

The main reason can be summed up in two words: John McIntire. Whoever chose him as Bond's replacement was uncanny. Wednesday night's episode, in which McIntire played a dual role—as the wagonmaster and his ailing, mentally-slipping, ex-convict brother—was a sample of a professional at work.

In the story, the older brother is paroled into wagonmaster Chris Hale's custody. And Hale tries to shield him from a showdown with a law officer involved with his going to prison for murder 10 years before. In the dual role, McIntire looked and acted like two different people: One a white-haired, dying man, the other a hardy trail boss.

When McIntire, formerly of television's "Naked City," joined "Wagon Train," he was in an enviable position from a professional standpoint. He was replacing a performer beloved by the public. At one point, Bond earned $5,000 a week on the show—at that time the highest salary paid to any series star.

In addition, there was a sensitive personal situation. It was really not his show. Bond and Horton had had no love for each other. Bond considered himself the sole star. Horton considered himself on equal terms. Cliques formed around the rambunctious oldtimer and the more studious younger man. So when McIntire arrived, he found himself definitely No. 2 to Horton, who already had his audience.

McIntire stuck to business. Horton wanted out of the series anyway. More and more, McIntire became "Wagon Train." Wisely, he tried not to follow in Bond's footsteps; instead of playing a lovable old coot, he portrayed himself: A quiet, human man with a face you can't distrust.

Wednesday night, as the older brother, McIntire is warned by a warden not to return to Wyoming or he will hang. The wagonmaster heads with his brother for Utah, but a sheriff who once was a friend of the brother follows him, determined to kill him because of a family feud.

Years before, the elder Hale had killed some of the sheriff's friends, who lynched his brutal, insane son.

Still holding the illusion that his son was good, the brother escapes from the wagon train and rides through the rain for a showdown at the sheriff's office, in Wyoming. A snake scares his horse away, and there is a fine scene of McIntire pathetically stumbling, half-blind, through the mud toward a gunfight he can't win because of his sight.

When he gets to the sheriff's office, his mind snaps, and he thinks of the law officer again as his friend, imploring him to stop the long-gone lynching. It was a poetic mad scene, and McIntire was up to it. At the climax, he suffers a fatal heart attack, but dies beautifully as all present assure him his son was a fine man.

Next season, "Wagon Train" moves to ABC-TV. It's McIntire's show now.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York has begun to open up on a campaign theme that just might get him elected president of the United States.

Rockefeller is talking about unbalanced budgets—President Kennedy's unbalanced budgets. The governor is in a good position to do that. He is a big spending executive, himself, but well equipped with the courage it takes to lay on new taxes to cover expenditures.

But Rockefeller is a piker among estimators of the treasury deficit now impending. He told a Detroit audience this week that the deficit may be as much as $5 billion when the 1962 fiscal year ends at midnight next June 30. The Kennedy administration was estimating last autumn that the '62 deficit would be nearly $7 billion.

Chairman Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., of the Senate Finance Committee estimates now that this fiscal year will end with the treasury in the red for from $7 to $10 billion. If so, somebody should be shamed, but not the U. S. taxpayer.

The U. S. taxpayer is doing all that is asked of him which is plenty. He puts up 53 cents of every tax dollar collected by the treasury for a grand total of nearly $50 billion individual income taxes alone. He contributes indirectly most of the entire $93 billion that Kennedy has budgeted to collect in taxes this year.

That enormous tax take is more that twice as much revenue as was collected in any year during World War II. Put another way, the Kennedy administration is collecting in a cold war era more than twice as much tax money as the Roosevelt administration collected in any year of the hot war.

The Roosevelt and Kennedy administrations have much in common, however, including budgets that do not balance. FDR never had a balanced budget. For Kennedy, all of the returns are not in. Fiscal 1962 is just about down the drain as far as the government living within its income is concerned. Fiscal 1963 may show a balanced budget but, on the record, that is almost too much to expect. There have been in the past 30 years 24 unbalanced budgets. Bad habits are hard to break.

As Byrd is pointing out to those who will listen, the United States this year is in a strange position, a year of the highest revenue ever collected and the year of the highest public debt. The debt limit was hiked by $2 billion to an even $300 billion a few weeks ago. The administration shortly will ask for another increase to $308 billion.

"It is my frank and considered opinion," Byrd said in discussing the public debt, "that there will not be a balanced budget next year (fiscal 1963). Is it possible for us to destroy ourselves from within? Every American should ask himself that question."

If Rockefeller will be patient, Byrd will supply him with all the facts on Kennedy administration spending policies. Byrd has begun a Finance Committee investigation of the U. S. financial position.

For U. S. citizens there will be some frightening news in that committee report.

Signs In Washington Aren't Really Confusing... Just The Tourists Are!

By DICK WEST
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Visitors to the U.S. Capitol frequently complain that the system of lettering and numbering the floors of the various buildings is confusing.

On the other hand, people who work in the Capitol contend that the system is logical but the visitors are confusing.

With a new tourist season now getting underway, I thought it might contribute to better understanding between the public and the Congress if I undertook to explain just how the system works.

It's simple, really, and once you get the hang of it you have no trouble finding your way around, particularly if there is a guard handy to give you directions.

For instance, if we enter the new House Office Building through the main door, we might think of ourselves as being on the ground floor.

But technically we will be on the first floor. The ground floor or the ground floor, depending on how you look at it.

Or, if we enter the main door of the old House Office Building, we will be on the second floor, which corresponds to the first floor of the new building.

Technically, the old building does not have a ground floor, so its street level is either the first floor or the second floor. You follow me thus far? Very well.

If we now take an elevator to the lowest level, we will be on what is technically known as the basement floor. Here we will see a sign which says "subway to the fourth floor."

This doesn't mean the subway runs to the fourth floor. It means the elevators run from the subway to the fourth floor.

The subway runs to the Capitol proper, where the floors are lettered, "B," F," "P" and "G." If we ask the elevator operator for the ground floor, he will let us off at "F," not "G."

"F" stands for "first," but is usually called the street floor. There is no "S" floor except in the old Senate Office Building. But there "S" stands for "subway," not "street." Elsewhere, the subway is lettered "B," which stands for "basement."

The level on which the House and Senate chambers are located is called the "floor." It, however, is not lettered "F." It is lettered "P," which stands for principal."

In the Capitol itself, "G" stands for gallery," but in the new Senate Office Building, "G" stands for "ground." However, the "G" floor is at ground level only at one end. At the other end, the ground, or street, level is the first floor.

This completes our orientation tour of the Capitol. All we have to do now is find our way out.

Pet Business Big Business In U.S.

By JESSE BOGUE
UPI Financial Writer

NEW York (UPI)—The growing number of Americans who want a dog around the house, or a bird in or out of a cage, a tank full of fish has over the past decade or so helped to build what amounts today to a multi-million dollar annual business.

The figure includes not only the original investment but the supplies needed to keep pets.

Most variety store shoppers, supermarket buyers and others know from their own experience how the pet departments, for either live pets or their supplies, have bobbed up increasingly in retail marts.

Wayne L. Hammond, head of pet operations for F. W. Woolworth Co. notes that his organization now has a well-defined program of setting up pet centers; 22 of them, mostly in larger stores, and found customer interest such that more such centers are contemplated.

Jerome Van Wiseman, chief of the flourishing pet division at Gimbel's in New York City, estimates that in 10 years the volume in the industry has gone up by 20 per cent a year, and that the retail outlets for live pets of all kinds have more than doubled.

"In the major outlets," Van Wiseman said, "there isn't much 'bulge' in business at Easter. The baby chicken, duck and bunny business is pretty much left to the smaller places.

"Instead, we now see a steady year-round business, swelling during the Christmas season. For example, if you picked 100 as an index figure, you'd seldom find one month below 90 or another over 110, except perhaps the Christmas month which might hit 200."

Hammond said in 1961 Woolworth's marketed more than 4 million fish, a half million birds, even 750,000 turtles, and 20 million packages of food. Some stores had chameleons, alligators, and even horned toads.

Behind Beauty, Tears High Cost Of Wedding

THE FASHIONABLE BRIDE: The background music is the jingle of cash registers.

By GAILE DUGAS

NEW YORK (NEA) — When that beautiful bride walks down the aisle this June, the music in the background won't only be the wedding march from "Lohengrin." It will be the musical jingle of cash registers heard across the land.

For while weddings are romantic, they are also big business. Before that bride ever takes a step down the aisle, an army of experts will have been hard at work —at a price.

These experts include caterers, bakers, florists, musicians, printers, photographers, bridal and lingerie shops, department stores specializing in household linens, and travel agencies specializing in what is now known as the "packaged honeymoon."

And even this somewhat staggering list doesn't begin to cover all of the experts that the big bridal business has created. For there are agencies which specialize in renting candelabra, punch fountains, silver, china, crystal, carpeting and furs.

The total, for launching one daughter into the sea of matrimony, can be overwhelming. It can easily cost $10,000, although the average figure these days is about $3,000. These figures come from New York experts who specialize in handling weddings.

Though a bridal budget may, in a town of 10 or 20 thousand people, run as low as $500, it isn't likely to because a wedding has become a sort of status symbol in our society. Nobody relishes appearing financially pinched on the big day with the possible exception of Old Dad, the man who pays the bills.

The bride's budget begins with her wedding gown. According to Macy's Herald Square, who have advised many a bride over the years, a bridal gown may cost as little as $44 or as much as $800. It's likely to average out about $300. The bridal veil costs about $50 and silk shoes run another $20. Hoops and petticoats may bring the total up another $100.

The bride's cake, a three - tier size that will serve 100 guests, will cost about $65 ornamented. Engraved wedding invitaions for the same number of guests will eat up $51.50 for nine lines of engraving.

By the time of the wedding reception, things are really getting costly. Food and liquor for 80 guests averages, in a big city, about $5 per couple. This means a total of $2,200. Floral decoratons run $32 per table, with the exception of the bride's table. Here, the cost is $50. This is a total of $274 for for flowers, exclusive of church decorations. (Florists suggest that the bride get an estimate on flowers well in advance.)

Now we come to wedding photographs. Nobody is content with one group photograph, as in the good old days. These days, we have the wedding album and the cost here is $135 for an album containing 30 eight by ten candid pictures. There's an additional fee of $50 for two more albums for th mothers of the bride and groom. These contain 24 size five by seven pictures each.

These days, people like to dance at a wedding reception. A four-piece orchestra costs $195 for the first four hours and after that the price goes to $50 an hour.

Brides are getting out of writing thank you notes themselves for all those wedding gifts. Instead, they have thank cards printed; these cost $35 per hundred.

The household trousseau, as department stores call it, proves that it takes a heap o' money to make a house a home. This includes essentials like towels, sheets, silver, china, blankets, pots and pans, table cloths and those electrical appliances. These can and mostly do include a toaster ($25), a steam iron ($15), a percolator ($21 for 8 cup size), a vacuum cleaner ($50), a blender ($30), a hot tray ($22) and at least one electric clock ($18).

But the list still isn't complete. There's the matter of lingerie for the bride, her honeymoon trousseau, luggage, gifts for the bridesmaids, souvenirs for the wedding guests and other odds and ends that could be listed under et cetera. All of them cost.

Happy is the bride who makes a heavy haul in needed wedding gifts. But the truth is that she's a lot more likely to wind up with a collection of ceramic lamps, odd dishes for holding peanuts and potholders.

About the only way the modern bride can cut costs is to elope or stay single!

Thought For The Week: Ideals and Service, reach out toward the best, the noblest and the loftiest dreams of mankind. True, we may never reach these ideals, but we are moving in the right direction and will come closer to them than the one who does not make the effort to reach up. We never achieve anything worthwhile unless we reach toward it. At the close of life, the question will not be "How much have you got but how much have you given? not how much have you won, but how much have you done? not how much you have saved, but how much you have sacrificed; how much you have loved and served? not how much you have been honored. Let us all pray for peace. Love, Mrs. Wagner.

Dear Abby....

Show Report To Man ... Not His Wife!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I promised my wife I'd abide by your decision. I stuck my neck out and got a chap a job because I know that many times his family went hungry. He has lost five jobs in the past two years. His last employer just sent me a confidential report on him stating the man is lazy, unreliable, attempts to be a big shot, abuses his authority and many other uncomplimentary remarks. I say I should show this report to his wife. She is a very refined and educated girl who thinks "the world" is against him. My wife says she is blindly in love with him and we should not wise her up. I think it's time she knew these facts. What do you think?

FRIENDS

DEAR FRIENDS: If you really want to be helpful, show the report to the MAN, not his wife.

DEAR ABBY: Four years ago my husband died and left me with two small children. This summer I plan to marry a widower who has a son. His son's name is Gary and so is mine. It will be very confusing with two Garys in the house. Have you any suggestions?

MY PROBLEM

DEAR PROBLEM: If either Gary has a middle name, use it. Or give one Gary a nickname. But don't say, "my Gary" and "your Gary" or it will be psychologically bad for all concerned.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going with a girl for three years. We shall soon be 21. After a year and a half we became engaged, when her parents said we could on one condition — that we not announce it. I gave her the ring (it took me a year to pay it off) but about three months ago she stopped wearing it. This really hurt me. I feel very unwanted. She said people would talk about us being engaged for so long. I am still in college and can't afford marriage for a while. I love her with all my heart and think she loves me, too. How can I get her to wear my ring again?

UNWANTED

DEAR UNWANTED: Your girl could be under parental pressure and confused. But you had better be sure she WANTS to be engaged—ring or no ring.

CONFIDENTIAL TO LYNNE: Even more important than "where a man came from" is where he is going.

Stop worrying. Let Abby help you with that problem. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

★ Polly's Quiz ★

By Polly Cramer

A good furniture arrangement consists of more than lining up things around a wall with perhaps a piece or two placed catercorner with the center of the room a large expanse of carpet.

Some large pieces must be placed flat against a wall but right angle arrangements can add interest to rooms. A table or desk can be placed with the narrow end against a wall, perhaps between two windows or in front of one. This right angle arrangement might have a lamp on the end near the wall and a chair at either side.

A spinet piano or small console organ could also be placed at right angles. The exposed back presents the opportunity to use a decorative attached panel or may be hidden by a low screen. Place a sofa or two love seats at right angles to the fireplace or picture window. A fashion of several years back is returning: placing a sofa to face the fireplace with a table and lamp back of it.

Dear Polly: We are remodeling a small house that has charm and character. I would like to do it throughout in lavender shades We want wall-to-wall carpeting. Furniture is mostly Victorian. — D. K.

Dear D. K.: Lavender can become hard to live with when used in large doses. Do have the lavender as only a connecting color link throughout your house. One room might have lots of blue with bits of purple; another could use a more delicate lavender with pink. A crisp violet - patterned chintz on a white ground could impart a different feeling to an other room. Let lavender be a subtle and less obtrusive color in most of the rooms.

Dear Polly: I need help: Wha kind and color drapes should get for my living room? Furnitur is fruitwood French provincia Couch and one chair are toa with a darker brown pattern. Tw chairs are gold and the carpet green. What kind of lamps ar knicknacks are appropriate wit this period of furniture?—Mrs. B.

Dear Mrs. J. B.: Do accent th French Provincial theme. Mult colored toile draperies wit brown, green, gold and brick re on a cream ground would be lov ly with cream walls. Tole lamp perhaps a pair of green ones, ar lovely in such rooms. Coppe pieces and pottery such as th easily obtained Quimper war would be effective accessories.

Dear Reader: A heavy volum of mail doesn't permit Mrs. Cra mer to answer her letters an post cards invididually. But sh will comment in her column o decorating problems of general in terest. She cannot undertake t return floor plans or fabri swatches which are enclosed wit letters.

hat's Where The Town's Going' Was Story With Important Theme

By DICK DU BROW

OLLYWOOD (UPI) — After ching Tad Mosel's verdict on ere we are headed in his play esday night on CBS-TV, a per- could be forgiven for seeking some light reading for laughs; "Hamlet."

Mosel, who won the 1961 Pulit- Prize for his play "All the y Home," returned to televi- with a skillful but depressing dern drama, "That's Where Town's Going!", which places squarely in the age of beasts, h cruelty triumphant over hu- anity.

Some might say this is where have almost always been—but, any rate, this is Mosel's plot: Two spinster sisters of good mily, Kim Stanley and Patricia al, find their lives jolted by the turn to their small Midwestern wn of an old acquaintance, Ja- n Robards Jr., who came from wrong side of the tracks but now successful in the shoe siness.

He is a vicious, bitter man who s come back to taunt the sisters out his success and their empty es, especially Miss Stanley, who ce rejected his marriage pro- sal. He mocks her, but pro- ses again: acceptance would ean she and what she stands r must now come to him.

Miss Neal, the domineering sis- r, begs Miss Stanley to turn Ro- rds down, to preserve the fam- . Miss Stanley — nervous, sim- e-minded but instinctively kind d desirous of a useful life—re- cts Robards, even though she as waited for him. Her basic nesty, in a small moment of iumph, compels her to tell the aken Robards she does not love m.

Miss Neal immediately proposes Robards, who accepts. In the nal scene, as they prepare to go the East, leaving Miss Stanley lone in the old house, Miss Neal ears a wedding present from obards: a cheap dress symbol- ing the degeneration of her ste and values.

Mosel makes it clear he is not erely telling of three isolated eople. At one point, Robards, re- alling the tasteless shoes he ore when he proposed to Miss tanley 15 years before, says: Patent leather is made of plas- tic now. So much for patent leather."

At another point, Miss Stanley talks of moving to a new, suburban area of ranch-style homes called "Shadyside" because that's where the town's going. But a real estate agent, played by Buddy Ebsen, says of the area: "The whole town's got no place left to go, so they're building on sand."

Throughout the play, Miss Stanley, the only decent character, has three choices: she can marry Robards, move to Shaydside or fritter away her remaining years in the old house. Whatever choice she makes, she loses. There is no exit. That seems to be Mosel's verdict.

The principals were excellent, especially Miss Stanley in the pivotal role. Dowdy and trapped, she gave new meaning to Ernie Pyle's words, "Any man's war is only a few yards 'wide."

Mosel is welcome back to television. His theme was important. The degeneration of taste and gentility has haunted our Southern writers, resulting in the creation of such famous characters as William Faulkner's vulgar, ambitious Snopes family. As for Tuesday night, those more optimistic about man's ability to survive periodic ages of beasts might argue that a house on sand is preferable to a dead one, no matter how secure; that it could represent a life urge, making the best of a bad situation; a detour, not a dead-end.

The Channel Swim: Dennis Day, of CBS-TV's "Jack Benny Show," forfeited one night's pay at a Seattle club rather than appear in a special show with strip-teasers. . .CBS-TV cancelled two more series: "Ichabod and Me" and "Window on Main Street."

Art Carney will narrate and star in a musical-historical show about American fads and foibles on NBC-TV's "Show of the Week" May 13. . .Opera star Eileen Farrell duets a blues number with Carol Burnett on CBS-TV's Garry Moore Show next Tuesday.

NBC-TV's "Outlaws" series will be replaced next fall by "Wide Country," starring Earl Holliman as a rodeo rider who travels to different contests. CBS-TV's "The Alvin Show" will be back next season but not in prime time.

Walter Rogers Reports

FOREIGN TRADE

Washington is buzzing at the present time on the subject of Reciprocal Trade. It all centers around H. R. 9900, which is the Proposed Trade Agreements Act to be presented to the Congress in the near future. The first Trade Agreements Act was passed in 1934. Many words have been spoken and written on the subject since that time, and it can be expected that much more will be said and written during this session of the Congress. It is a measure that has a direct effect on as many businesses and individuals as the Tax Bill. These effects vary. Hence, there are many reactions, both good and bad.

In a recent release, Secretary of Commerce, Luther H. Hodges, made the following statement: "Today the Soviet Union and members of the Communist Bloc are engaged in a campaign to 'bury us' through economic warfare. They are increasing their trade throughout the world. They feel that through trade they can generate alliances and allegiances. Our country must counterattack with a trade offensive of its own, and exports must be our weapon."

Everyone can appreciate the many complexities of this problem and the many, many facets of each problem involved, each of which could require many pages to discuss. It occurred to me that many might want some of the facts and figures with relation to our own 18th Congressional District of Texas. This Congressional District includes 28 counties in the Panhandle of Texas. During the 1960-61 crop year the United States exported $4.9 billion of agricultural products; $66.4 million of these products came from the 18th District of Texas. Included were $62.1 million for field crops, $4 million in livestock and livestock products, $241 thousand for vegetables, and $5 thousand for fruits and nuts.

The Panhandle also exported some manufactured goods to the tune of $28 million in 1960. There were eleven establishments exporting more than $25,000 each. These establisments employed 3,737 workers out of a total number of manufacturing workers of approximately 12,000. The major exporting industries in the 18th District are chemicals and allied products, petroleum, primary metals, food and kindred products, and non-electrical machinery. The exports of these manufacturers represented over 18 per cent of their total value of shipments.

The equivalent share of agriculture exports from the 18th District is more than three times as large as the equivalent share of competing imports. The imported agriculture products to our District are largely tropical or semi-tropical products such as coffee, tea, spices, bananas, rubber, etc.

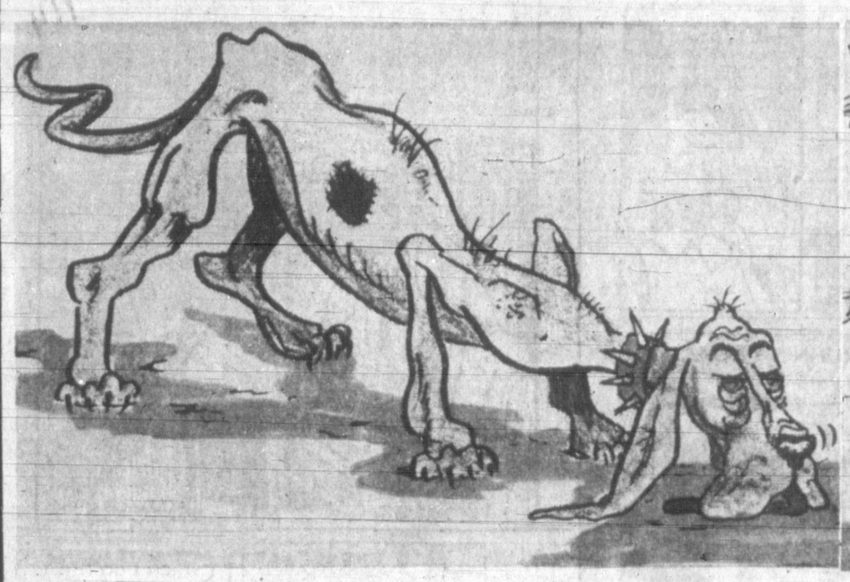

These figures will afford you some idea of the overall problems faced by bringing into focus the effect of foreign trade on our own District. The problem that will be faced by the Congress is to create a proper balance between imports and exports to meet the needs of the American consumer at a cost he can afford to pay without impairing the particular industry or segment of the economy in which the consumer makes his living. This problem is made more difficult because of the emerging European Common Market and the greater industrialization of Japan. Our world markets in agriculture, manufactured products, and raw materials will be vigorously challenged by this new economic community and Japan. We will also be measurably challenged in these markets by the Soviet Union and the Communist Bloc countries. However, this latter challenge will not be as serious now as it is expected to become later on. This is due to the fact that the Soviet Union cannot equal the quality of goods produced in this country, nor the amount. The satellite countries do have abilities in quality products, but the limited production facilities create a situation where most of these are absorbed within the Soviet orbit. This can be expected to change in the future. Hence, we must not only girt ourselves for the challenge to be mounted by the Common Market countries and Japan, but we must lay the predicate to meet the additional future challenge of the Soviet.

Matson Is Major Threat To Marks

Pampa's Randy Matson, Highland Park's John Roderick, Fred Brocker of Austin S.F. Austin and San Antonio Tech's Richard Romo pose major threats to state records when the five-division Texas Interscholastic League meet is staged May 4-5 in Austin.

Matson bettered the state meet record of 175 feet, 1 inch in the discus last Saturday as he hurled the disc 186-6 to win the regional Class AAAA title at Odessa. Russ Wayt of White Oak set the state mark in 196[illegible].

The big P[illegible] weightman also equalled the state's best schoolboy shot put mark of 62-8½ in taking that crown as well. Richard Inman of Belton set the state record in 1960.

Roderick and Brocker raced to 13.9 second times in the 120-yard high hurdles in winning their Dallas and San Antonio regionals last week, compared with the 14.0 state mark owned by Lee Miller of San Antonio Burbank since 1947.

Roderick also won the 180-yard low hurdles at Dallas in 18.6, which equals the nine-year-old state record set by Roy Thompson of Houston Lamar in 1953.

Romo won his specialty, the mile run, by 60 yards in 4:25.4 in the San Antonio regional as compared with the state mark of 4:17.9 owned by John Cooper of Fort Worth Tech since 1958. However, Romo has been clocked in 4:17 flat earlier this season.

The best mile time turned in in the regionals was a 4:21.3 by Ernest Osborne of Beaumont High in the Houston regional.

Abilene's David Jefferies and La Porte's Norris Weir could menace the state meet record of 13-7¾ in the pole vault. Jefferies cleared 13-6 and Weir 13-5 in the regionals. Steve Guynes, Grand Prairie, set the mark.

Denison's Roger Hunt also might make a run for the 1:53.7 state 880-yard run record owned since 1960 by Abilene's Larry Rhodes. Hunt ran a 1:54 flat last Saturday night in the Dallas regional.

A spirited mile relay battle is shaping up in Class AAAA with several teams possibly capable of threatening Abilene's meet record of 3:17.5. Denison has a 3:18.1 and Baytown a 3:18.7 regional winning time, while Amarillo Tascosa has a 3:19.2 and Dallas Jefferson a 3:19.3.

Several divisional records may be threatened.

CRITICAL EYE — Manager Walter Alston, barely visible behind the batting cage, seems pleased as he casts an eye on Willie Davis. The young Dodger outfielder is bunting in batting practice before an exhibition game with the Baltimore Orioles in Miami, Fla.

Foyt Is Aiming For Third Straight Title

HOUSTON (UPI)— A. J. Foyt Jr., the busiest driver and currently the top money winner in auto racing, is off on a flying start toward an unprecedented third consecutive U. S. Auto Club driving championship.

The handsome young Texan figures he now is ahead of the money-making pace he set last year when he collected over $170,000. His winnings included the big one—first place check from the Indianapolis 500-mile classic.

"I got off to a good start this season with the win at Trenton," Foyt said. "But I need to win the 500 again to keep up with last year."

His victory at the Trenton 100-miler got the 27-year-old Houston native off to a perfect one-for-one start in the national driving competition. A win at Indianapolis, would be a big boost toward his current goal.

At 27, Foyt is a 10-year veteran of the racing game. He has never considered being anything but a professional race driver.

He began his career by stretching his age and driving stock cars at Arrowhead and Playland Parks in Houston. His father encouraged A. J. and later bought him an Offenhauser midget racer. Now the senior Foyt serves in his son's pit crew.

Foyt will drive anything—anywhere. Last year he drove championship cars, sprint cars and midgets in almost 50 races, an unusually busy schedule.

Some drivers specialize in the Indianapolis race and have other jobs while waiting for the annual 500. But Foyt says it hurts his timing to be off the track for any length of time, so he keeps busy.

For his hazardous career, Foyt has been injured an amazingly few times.

"Oh, I've crashed four or five times," he said. "But that's not bad for 10 years of driving."

He grins about breaking his arm at the age of 4 when he bumped a kiddie car into a backyard fence. He frowns when he tells of flipping at Cincinnati, his most serious accident to date, and coming out with a concussion and wrenched back.

Foyt is quick to list the Indianapolis speedway as the most dangerous track—not because of any physical condition there but because of the speed and competition.

"The 500 is a lot harder race than any of the others. You sure can get into trouble quick there," he said.

The racer's beautiful wife, Lucy, usually takes Tony Jr., their 4-year-old son, to Foyt's parents while A. J. is out of town. She makes the Indianapolis trip with her husband but usually stays in Houston the rest of the year.

Does Foyt plan to retire anytime in the near future?

"No, I really don't have any such plans. Things are working out pretty good so far," he said.

Foyt is trying to shake off what he calls a "strange virus" that has kept him in bed this week. The illness threatens to keep him out of two local races this weekend.

Arthur Leads Pampa Batting With .360

Pampa's Harvesters finished up the first half of the District 3-AAAA competition Tuesday with a 3-4 record and an overall .226 team batting average, for the first seven games.

The Harvesters, behind the smooth six hit pitching of Mike Clark made it number three in loop play against the Borger Bulldogs to close out the first half of district play.

The Harvesters currently have three sluggers belting the horsehide at a better than .300 clip. John Arthur leads the local nine with the timber with a lusty .360 average, followed by Kenny Hebert and Jerry Glover with .333 averages.

Arthur has connected with nine hits in 25 trips to the plate while Hebert and Glover each have five hits in 15 trips to the plate.

The Harvesters outfield crew dominates the averages, with Arthur, Hebert and Howard Reed, a .281 hitter, sporting the best swat marks.

The infield averages vary considerably, with first - baseman Gerrel Owens hitting at a .250 clip, second-baseman Larry Gregory, .203; shortstop Butch Crossland, 140 and third - baseman Ricky Stewart, .050.

Glover leads the mound corps with the stick with his .333 average while Mike Clark, the other Harvester starter is hitting at a .250 clip.

Clark is 2-2 in loop play and Glover 1-2 at the end of the first half of league competition.

Arthur and Hebert have been the most productive Harvesters in the extra - base department, with Arthur banging out two doubles, a triple and a home run, Hebert, on the other hand, has smashed out three doubles.

Glover has a home run and a double, Mike Stewart has connected for a double and a triple and Reed has two doubles to share long-ball honors with the timber. Owens and Gregory each have a triple to their credit while Wright has connected with a double to round out the extra base barrage.

Rose O'Neill Rates As One Of Top Racing Bargains

By United Press International

Rose O'Neill, 4-year-old daughter of Lord Putnam, rates as one of the best bargain basement buys in racing.

Purchased for $1,800 by Bert W. Martin as a yearling, Rose O'Neill boosted her earings over the $100,000 mark with a neck victory in the $23,100 Distaff Handicap at Aqueduct Wednesday.

Her winner's share of the purse was $15,015, giving the dark bay filly career earnings of $104,550.

Ismael (Milo) Valenzuela urged Rose O'Neill from fourth halfway through the stretch to beat Seven Thirty, favorite of the 27,363 fans. Mighty Fair finished third in the field of 10 fillies and mares.

Rose O'Neill paid $7.10 in scoring her second victory in five starts this year.

English-bred Vimy Ridge, with Sammy Boulmetis in the saddle, paid $8.00 in winning the featured mile event at Laurel. A powerful closing rush earned the victory over Post Exchange and Jalico.

At Tanforan, Crazy Kid continued his fine form, registering his eighth triumph in 10 career starts. Angel Valenzuela rode the 4-year-old son of Krawatao to a $16.00 payoff, defeating the favored Pemet by more than a length.

Deacon Owens, with Jack Kurtz up, paid $10.40 after outlasting five rivals in the featured five furlong sprint at Lincoln Downs. Mixed Deal finished second, followed by Capt. Hullabaloo.

At Gulfstream Park, Indian Judge, with Tommy Barrow up, returned $18.30 as the winner of the one mile feature on turf. Lady Mannequin ($10.80) won the top race at Keeneland and Road Maid ($18.40) finished first in the feature event at Sportsman's Park.

Speedway Champ Will Enter Auto Races This Weekend

HOUSTON (UPI) — Indianapolis 500 winner A. J. Foyt Jr. of Houston says he plans to enter two Texas auto races this weekend despite doctor's orders to stay in bed.

Foyt, the national driving champion, is recovering from a virus attack. He said Wednesday he plans to race Friday at Austin and Saturday at Houston despite his doctor's order to rest until he recovers from a siege of headaches.

"I'm sure what's wrong with me mostly is nervous tension," Foyt said. "I've covered 12,000 miles in the last few weeks and raced from California to New York.

"He (the doctor) doesn't want me out, of course, but I know I'm going to be well enough to make the races."

Aggies Host Three Schools In Track

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI)— Texas A&M today hosted Louisiana State, Rice and Southern Methodist in a quadrangular track meet and played the first of a two-game baseball series with Sul Ross.

The track meet renewed the pole vault duel between SMU's Dexter Elkins and Rice's Fred Hansen. LSU's Joe Harris also was a top contender in the event. All three vaulters have cleared the 15-foot mark this season.

The 880-yard run offered another face-to-face meeting between SMU's Brian Bolton and Aggie Thad Crooks. The A&M half-miler edged Bolton in the Dallas Invitational last week in 1:51.4.

Sul Ross and A&M were to meet at nearby Bryan, Tex., in their baseball match, which was billed as a Little League benefit. The Friday night game will be played here at Travis Field.

Reds Roaring Back To Life With 14-0 Win

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sport Writer

Those Cincinnati Reds may not be so bad off, after all, because the 'big three" of the mound that carried them to the 1961 National League pennant is back in form again.

The Reds lost five of their first six games but they've rebounded with three straight victories behind the strong pitching of Bob Purkey, Joey Jay and Jim O'Toole. The latest was a rousing 14-0 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Wednesday night with O'Toole turning in a four-hitter.

A 19-game winner in 1961, O'Toole struck out nine and didn't walk a batter in notching his first victory of the new season. He was backed by a 15-hit attack that produced four three-run innings and was featured by Vada Pinson's five runs batted in and a homer and a single by Jerry Lynch.

Purkey, Jay and O'Toole have now yielded a total of 26 hits and four runs in consecutive victories over the San Francisco Giants, Milwaukee Braves and the Dodgers.

The Pittsburgh Pirates rolled to their seventh straight win, 4-3, over the Philadelphia Phillies, the Braves downed the Giants, 6-4, the St. Louis Cardinals stretched their winning streak to five games with a 15-5 rout of the New York Mets, and the Chicago Cubs shaded the Houston Colts, 3-2, in other National League action.

In the American League, the Detroit Tigers beat the Washington Senators, 5-1, the Baltimore Orioles defeated the New York Yankees, 1-0, the Chicago White Sox beat the Minnesota Twins, 3-2, and the Los Angeles Angels eked out a 3-2 win over the Kansas City 's.

Bob Skinner's three-run fifth-inning homer was the big blow for the Pirates, who are within three victories of matching the 1935 Dodgers' record of 10 straight victories to start a season. Earl Francis, relieving Vinegar Bend Mizell in the fourth inning, pitched shutout ball for 5 2-3 frames to win. Bill Mazeroski also homered for the Pirates.

Warren Spahn received credit for his first win of this season and the 310th of his career although he needed relief help in the ninth inning. Hank Aaron and Ed Mathews homered for the Braves, who overcame a 3-2 Giant lead with four runs in the eighth inning. Relief ace Stu Miller was the loser.

Ken Boyer drove in four runs with two homers and a single and Bill White also had three hits to lead the Cardinals' 18-hit attack that dealt the Mets their sixth straight defeat. Larry Jackson went eight innings to win his second game of the season while Sherman Jones was the loser. Ed Bouchee and Frank Thomas homered for the Mets.

Ernie Banks hit the 300th homer of his big league career to give the Cubs their 10-inning triumph over the Colts. Dick Ellsworth pitched an eight-hitter to win for the Cubs, while Dick Farrell was the loser. Banks also had a triple and two singles in the Cubs' hit attack.

Don Mossi pitched a five-hitter and fanned five behind a seven-hit attack featuring Al Kaline's homer and a two-run single by Chico Fernandez. Joe McClain tagged for all Detroit's runs, while the loser.

Milt Pappas homered in the fifth inning for the Orioles' only run and won his first game of the season with the magnificent relief aid of Hoyt Wilhelm, who went through the Roger Maris-Mickey Mantle - Johnny Blanchard - Bill Skowron heart of the Yankee batting order with the tying and winning runs on base in the ninth inning.

Floyd Robinson's sixth-inning single drove in the winning run for the White Sox who dealt Don Lee the loss. Ray Herbert went 7 2-3 innings to win his first game of the season for the White Sox. Robinson has now had seven hits in his last nine trips to the plate.

Los Angeles pitcher Bo Belinsky singled home his own winning run in the sixth inning although he reitred with a blister on a finger and needed the shutout relief pitching of Art Fowler to clinch the triumph. Belinsky struck out six en route to his first major league victory.

102 Pros Tee Off Today In Houston Golf Classic

HOUSTON (UPI) — With $10,000 added money in the kitty and without the distractions of Arnold Palmer and Gary Player, 102 pro golfers and four amateurs began teeing off today at the $50,000 Houston Classic.

Californians Gene Littler and Billy Casper, second and third in winnings this year, started play on the 7,200-yard Memorial Park course as co-favorites.

Jay Hebert of Lafayette, La., winner here in 1961 by beating Ken Venturi in an 18-hole playoff after each posted 276 for 72 holes, was hoping to become the first golfer ever to win the Houston Classic twice in a row.

Palmer and Player, first and fourth money-makers on the current tour, respectively, are the only pros missing of 40 tournament winners this year.

Palmer said private business kept him away and Player returned to South Africa earlier this month to be on hand at the birth of his third child. But the local golfing clan ventured that relatively poor greens on city-owned Memorial might have influenced their decision.

A winter freeze on the Gulf Coast damaged the grass and unusually cool weather this spring has hampered its recovery.

Musial Will Play One More Year

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stan (The Man) Musial admitted today that this might not be his last year as an active player, after all.

"I said when I signed my contract that this prob-ab-ab-lee would be my last season," the 20-year star of the St. Louis Cardinals explained. "I guess I stuttered on it a little bit but if I feel like I do now, why not play another year?"

There are two reasons for this current change of opinion.

One is the fine start Musial got off to this year, his best in five years. The other is the pleasing-to-Musial manner in which Manager Johnny Keene works him.

"When you get to be 41 years old, you just don't know how long you can go on." Musial pondered as he stood beside the batting cage at the Polo Grounds. "And I'll be 42 by the time next season starts.

"But, as I said, if I feel as good as I do right now, I don't see any reason why I can't help the club. That's the big item."

Then there's the way Keane is handling the seven-time National League batting champion.

"There were times I sat around too long and the best thing about this game is playing," said the fit, quick-speaking Musial. "But Keane works me a couple of weeks and then gives me a couple of days off, instead of playing me a couple of days on and a couple off. When you do it that way you lose your timing and you're in trouble.

"Playing regularly and then resting," Musial continued, 'I wasn't the least bit tired at the end of last season. That regular rest is important because when you get to my age and you get run down you don't snap back like those young fellows. The secret is to keep on an even keel and not let yourself get too tired."

The three-time Most Valuable Player thinks, too, that a "sensible approach" to spring training has something to do with "my best start since 1957."

"I worked harder, earlier," he remembered. "Right after the first of the year I started going to a St. Louis gym three days a week. When you get to Florida for spring training you only have about 10 days to get in playing shape. Older fellows find those the toughest 10 days of the year. This time I was in good shape and made it easily in the 10 days because of that gymnasium work. I was ready to go."

Playing more regularly this spring in the exhibition games also put the old snap back in Stan's muscles and, at a rock-hard 181 pounds, the lean six footer had only five pounds to shed before the season got under way.

Musial, who has a lifetime batting average of .333, didn't feel disgusted and ready to quit because of his three poorest seasons in a row. He batted only .255 in 1959, .275 in 1960 and .288 in 1961.

"I just thought that if I wasn't going to hit, I'd only hurt the club and I'd step out on my own," he said. "Well, with this start, and this working formula, maybe I've got another year."

The man who holds 36 major and league records, and sets another almost every time he goes to the plate, grinned widely.

"Anyhow, Keane knows me pretty well and he figures if I have a good year, I'll be back."

Picking up a bat, he headed into the cage. Looking back over his shoulder he laughed:

"I figure maybe the same way."

So if it goes as it has been going for him, and he won't tire himself out by playing double headers, the man prob-ab-ab-lee still will be wearing the same uniform at the same old stand again in 1963.

Russell Leads Celtics Past Lakers For Crown

BOSTON (UPI) — This now is the land of the bean, the cod, and Bill Russell.

For the unitiated, goateed Bill Russell is the difference between winning and losing for the Boston Celtics basketball team. It has been like that for six years now and the 6-foot, 10-inch Russell proved it again Wednesday night.

When the former San Francisco All-American and Olympic basketball ace came here, the Boston Celtics had never won a National Basketball Association Division or playoff championship.

They've now won six straight division crowns and five out of six playoff titles including an unprecedented four in-a-row.

What happened the year they lost (1958)? Why, Bill Russell was out with an injury, naturally.

The Celtics turned back the Los Angeles Lakers, 110-107, in overtime before a packed Boston Garden house Wednesday night. The victory ended a best-of-seven trans-continental title playoff which had been tied at three wins apiece.

The crowd lugged Russell, the veteran play-making ace Bob Cousy, Coach Red Auerbach, and the rest of the Celtics off the court.

The cold statistics showed that Russell, who averaged 19 points during the season and 25 during the playoffs, had a Boston high of 30 points and a record-tying game total of 40 rebounds. He scored four of the ten Boston overtime points.

The loss was a tough one to take for the Cinderella-like Lakers, Elgin Baylor, completing a season in which he spent off-days in the Army and leaves scoring baskets, had a game high of 41 points before fouling out. Four days ago he scored an all-time playoff record of 61 points in a single game here.

The defeat only delayed the Los Angeles championship charge according to Laker Coach Fred Schaus. "We'll be back," he said. "We'll win the title. I don't know whether it will be next year or when, or whether I'll be the coach, but we'll be back to win."

The comment touched off speculation that Schaus expected to be fired by the Laker management. He declined to comment further on the situation.

Both the Celtics and Lakers agreed there was little difference between the two teams. They all said "the breaks" settled the game, series and championships.

Backing up Russell's pace were Sam Jones with 27 points, only two of which came in the first half and five in over time. Frank Ramsey scored 23 points, 17 in the first half and 15 of them on 16 trips to the foul line.

Jumping Jerry West was second to Baylor in top game scoring with 35 points. Frank Selvy had ten, four of them in the last 90 seconds to tie the game in regulation play, and he barely missed a jump shot that could have won it.

The Celtics post-game commentary was mostly incoherent. Auerbach said he told his players, "You are the champions. Go out there and play like it."

And they did. Especially Bill Russell.

Indians Lead Bisons 1-0 In Playoffs

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI)— Bill Sweeney's sharp-shooting and Marcel Paille's back-stopping have earned the Springfield Indians a 1-0 lead over the Buffalo-Bisons in the American Hockey League's final playoffs.

Sweeney scored a pair of first period goals and Paille handled 20 shots flawlessly as the Indians blanked the Bisons, 4-0, Wednesday night in the opener of the best-of-seven series.

The Bisons had knocked off the Rochester Americans and the Hershey Bears in advancing to the final round, but they were no match for the Indians, who are bidding for their third straight Calder Cup championship.

Sweeney scored his first goal with the game only two minutes old and tallied again at 7:33 of the opening period. Springfield went ahead 3-0 on a second period goal by Jimmy Anderson and Ted Harris added another for the Indians in the final session.

The second game also will be played on the Indians' home ice Saturday night. The third and fourth games will be played in Buffalo on Sunday night and next Wednesday night.

Long Ball Hitting Marks Action In Texas League

By United Press International

The Texas League's reputation as a pitcher's loop may dry up like a powdre puff if strange things keep happening out in the thin air of West Texas.

One of the league's new teams —El Paso—hosted San Antonio Tuesday night. From the opening inning it was a hitters' game.

A total of 10 home runs were struck. El Paso whacked seven of the balls out of the lot, including three by Gerald Van Robinson.

But even with all the long-range help, El Paso only managed to beat San Antonio, 10-8. In other league games, Tulsa regained a share of the early season lead by whipping Austin, 5-2, and the Amarillo at Albuquerque game was postponed after one-inning of play because of high winds.

El Paso shortstop Charles Peterson had two homers. A total of three home runs were smashed in the first inning to give fans an idea of what the evening was going to be like.

Gordon Figard, Al Herring, and Daryl Robertson homered for the Missions.

Ohio Court Rules In Favor Of State On Boat Licenses

CHICAGO (Spl.) — The Ohio Supreme Court has handed down what could prove to be one of the most important decisions affecting pleasure boating since the passage of the Federal Boating Act of 1958.

In a four to three decision, the court denied the city of Akron the right to license pleasure craft on city-owned waters. The court ruled that the Ohio boat registration law is a valid exercise of the police powers of the state and as such pre-empts the power to license solely for the state. The ruling also applies to privately owned waters.

In holding that licensing power is reserved for the state the court said:

"Due to the increasing tendency to shorten the work week, there is a consequent increase in the amount of leisure time, and public recreation and public recreational facilities have become a matter of statewide concern which definitely relates to the public welfare."

The issue between the state and the city of Akron arose when the state boat numbering act went into effect January 1, 1960. In July of that year the Attorney General sought an injunction to enjoin the city from collecting license fees for boat operation on reservoirs within the city limits under an ordinance already on the books when the state registration law went into effect. The city argued that the provision of the state law prohibiting licensing by political subdivisions was unconstitutional.

The Court of Common Pleas, where the injunction was sought, decided in favor of the city. The ruling was supported in the Ninth District Court of Appeals and the state appealed to the Ohio Supreme Court.

In his majority decision, Supreme Court Justice Radcliff cited figures from the Outboard Boating Club of America on the growth of pleasure boating in the United States and state figures on the increase of boat and motor ownership in Ohio, an increase from 37,958 in 1950 to 98,696 in

Fullmer To Vie With Paul Pender

CHICAGO (UPI)—Middleweight champions Gene Fullmer of the National Boxing Association and Paul Pender, who reigns in New York, Massachusetts and Europe, will battle for the division's undisputed crown at Bozeman, Mont., in mid-June.

Promoters Sam Silverstein of Boston and Norman Rothschild, Syracuse, N.Y., ironed out all but minor details of the 15-round match scheduled for the 13,000-seat Montana State College Field House on a date yet to be decided.

At Bozeman, fieldhouse manager Bud Purdy said the fight probably would be staged June 9.

The promoters, who met with both champions and their managers in a Chicago hotel Wednesday, said they expected to draw at least $150,000 gate, not counting television receipts.

They modestly billed it as the "second biggest fight of the year," conceding top honors to Floyd Patterson and Sonny Liston. But they called the Pender-Fullmer go "most unusual" because both boxers agreed to share equally.

Rothschild, who has staged eight Fullmer fights, said he was delighted to land this one.

"Our offer topped all others—and there were some pretty good ones," he said. "This fight has been two years in the making and it should have tremendous interest. It will settle the middleweight picture and give us one champ recognized throughout the world."

Toronto Will Seek Revenge In Cup Series

TORONTO (UPI) — Toronto hockey fans, taking their cue from Chicago's rabid mobs, won't be sitting on their hands tonight when their Maple Leafs meet the Black Hawks in the fifth game of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final series.

Stung by an offhand remark tossed at reporters, that "our fans sit on their hands and aren't worth the two goals Chicago's rooters are to their team," Leaf backers have vowed to toss hats and old rubbers on the Garden ice for this critical meeting.

The remark was attributed to Toronto Manager-Coach Punch Imlach following Tuesday night's 4-1 defeat in Chicago, a defeat which squared the series at two games apiece.

The Leafs had been humbled in a bitter game which had been frequently delayed by showers of hats, minor debris, rubbers, firecrackers and eggs, as the Windy City fans lifted the roof while backing up the Hawks.

Folley Cards Decision Over Cleroux In Bout

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Zora Folley, winner of a cinch decision over brawling Robert Cleroux, sat back today and waited for the offer bearing the biggest price tag.

"We might fight Cleroux in a re-match at Montreal," Manager Bill Swift said Wednesday night after Folley had given the Canadian quarry worker a post-graduate course in blocking and counter-punching. "Or we might fight Cassius Clay or Great Britain's Henry Cooper. It all depends on who offers the most money."

Not a word was whispered about Floyd Patterson or Sonny Liston, the heavyweight champ and number one challenger, who are slated to meet in a bout of their own next September.

Cleroux, speaking through comanager Alvin Bachman, said that he felt sure he could beat Folley if he got the chance.

I hurt my hand, in the third round and lost my zip," big Bob said with a shrug.

Folley, who weighed in at 193 against the square-rigged Cleroux's 205, won by a landslide on the three official cards, piling up points with snappy uppercuts to the face and left hooks that would jar his onrushing foe.

The Pampa Daily News

AN INDEPENDENT FREEDOM NEWSPAPER

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by any government, with the gift of freedom, and that it is every man's duty to God to preserve his own liberty and respect the liberty of others. Freedom is self-control, no more, no less.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guides expressed in the Ten Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and enccurage others to see its blessings. For only when man understands Freedom and is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities in harmony with the above moral principles.

Recallers, Kayoed Once, Ask For Return Bout

The statement issued yesterday by the pseudonymous Citizens for Better City Government calling on the City Commission to order a recall election on the three remaining city commissioners would seem to be hanky-panky that falls into the category of a punch-drunk prizefighter who has just been knocked out, but is still hanging onto the ropes struggling to get off the floor, and at the same time feebly shouting, "Let me at him!" All of this after he has been counted out by the referee.

The people of Pampa expressed their opinion of this frivolous recall election business at the polls Tuesday when they voted more than 2 to 1 against the recall of the mayor.

The CBCG continues to ignore the decision after pleading for the people to have a chance to speak. They have spoken, but apparently the CBCG isn't listening.

Perhaps we should have reprinted here today the editorial comment carried on this page last Monday and let it go at that.

The issue in a recall election on the commissioners would be precisely the same as in the recall election on the mayor. Instead of asking the commission to set up an election on the commissioners, the Junior Chamber of Commerce should lay the groundwork for another top award by urging the Citizens for Better City Government to join them in dropping the recall movement by withdrawing the petitions and thus end the controversy they started six or seven weeks ago.

The CBCG mentions in its statement the hope that the taxpayers can be spared further legal expense. If the CBCG means what it says, it now has an opportunity to call the whole thing off, eliminate further expense to the taxpayers and at the same time call a halt to a bunch of foolishness.

The people indicated Tuesday that they were satisfied with the present city governing body. They disposed of one of the recall petitions with a resounding right to the chin. They shouldn't be asked to do it all over again. It would be like sitting through the same movie twice.

By their actions at the ballot boxes they expressed disapproval of the recall petitions and of the Citizens for Better City Government support of the recall movement.

In the light of Tuesday's recall rejection, it is reasonable to assume that should recall elections be held on the other three city commissioners, the voters would again speak out in the same voice and, in all probability, even louder than before.

Prolonged community strife over this frivolous recall matter (already settled as far as the voters are concerned) is not to be desired and should not happen.

Taxing For Propaganda

We object to a few propaganda purposes. We believe in freedom of speech and cannot abide a situation in which the public is coerced into providing the money so that one particular set of ideas can be made popular. If politicians want to promote some scheme, let them do it with their own money.

We Lose Sight Of Early Goals

Does your freedom depend on your actions or upon the actions of others?

This is an important question. Nearly always, men in the past have concluded that freedom was wholly dependent upon the actions of others. These men who so concluded have always aided in losing freedom for everyone. The history of the human race provides melancholy repetition of this fact.

But what is wrong with the idea? Surely, if some men exert force and power over you, they are in a position to deprive you of your freedom. And this is true.

But if we base our thinking concerning freedom on this point, then our first actions to win freedom for ourselves must consist of efforts whereby we limit the freedom of others. So we divide the world into two groups of people. These groups are: "the good guys" (us) and the "the bad guy" (them).

"Our side" is for freedom. "Their side" is agressive, vicious, intent only on enslaving us. Therefore, we must enslave them so they don't enslave us or we cannot be free.

But speaking practically, freedom cannot exist even for us if our principal concern is to eliminate the freedom of others. The slave master . . . he who binds . . . is himself bound by his own device. The man who holds another man down so that the second man is not free, is himself deprived of freedom. He can do nothing constructive. He must nullify himself in order to nullify his opponent.

In other words, expending energy in promoting slavery, is a non-freedom expenditure of energy.

One cannot argue, of course, that there is no such thing as a threat from "others." Alas, it is true that such threats exist now and that they have always existed. But we are of the view that the existence of such threats resides firmly on a base of ignorance and fear.

Those "others" who threaten have taken the same short-sighted view of freedom that we have taken. With the same rationale they act to rob us of our freedom because they are both ignorant and fearful insofar as we are concerned.

This has been the history of the human race

But there is a rift in the cloud which otherwise might overwhelm us. That rift is the fact that human beings have made progress in rolling aside ignorance and in overcoming fear. It is knowledge, experience, wisdom . . . true education . . . which has opened a hole in the darkness. And men have made progress through this opening in spite of the glowering overcast which perpetually has shadowed their efforts.

Ignorance and fear go together. The things we fear are almost always the things we do not fully understand. And here, partial knowledge is almost as bad as no knowledge at all. For it is also true that the things we understand only superficially are frequently the things we fear the most.

Take the early history of America. This nation arose in a hostile world. It was an armed camp, which all our neighbors maintained.

What was our own situation then? Militarily speaking we were a non-entity. We could never have defeated Britain in our first engagements with her during our Revolutionary War period. If Britain had concentrated her energies against us.

But we had made it clear in our Declaration of Independence that our aim was not to topple the British government, but rather to get the British government off our own backs. We did not want to harm Britain. We did not want to harm anyone. We wanted to go our own way and we did not propose to take sides within the armed camp which was Europe and the rest of the world.

In other words, we created an image of harmlessness. We were not bound to commit aggression Rather, we were bound to mind our own business. And in spite of our pitifully weak position, militarily, this was something the other nations of the world respected. We convinced them that we would not hurt them. They might hurt each other but we would not be on either side of such injury.

Apparently, we have been forgetful of these early lessons in the real meaning of freedom.

The Doctor Says:

Just Doesn't Make Sense To Stop Drinking Milk

By DR. HAROLD T. HYMA

These days, almost everything that happens seems to have far-reaching effects, often in the most unlikely places. President Kennedy's rocking chair is news in Moscow. Premier Khrushchev's tantrums disturb the world. But never before, to my knowledge, has medical theory upset a basic industry.

The industry is the milk business. The theory is that people can be slimmer and defer hardening of the arteries by cutting down on milk drinking.

According to figures just released by our Agricultural Department, American consumption of milk fell 35 million quarts last year as compared with the consumption of the preceding year. To be sure we did put away some 36.4 billion quarts. But, if the trend toward diminished milk consumption continues, we taxpayers will have to pay more than the $300 million per year than we are now paying to support dairying.

High milk prices and fear that nuclear explosions have contaminated milk with stronium are regarded as possible factors in this crisis in our dairy industry. However, the President and his advisers seem to believe that dieting and fear of cholesterol are largely responsible for the greatly lessened consumption of milk in our country. Since none of us enjoys paying higher taxes, perhaps we might make an "agonizing re-appraisal" of the cholesterol theory.

While it is true that "hardening of the arteries" is due in part to the presence in the arterial walls of deposits that contain cholesterol, that cholesterol is not the same cholesterol we eat and drink.

It is cholesterol that is formed in the body from almost any foodstuffs we happen to take in. As I've pointed out on many previous occasions, no farmer in his right mind would feed a cholesterol-containing product to his cattle or pigs. Yet these are the livestock that provide us with milk fat and bacon.

Especially when we overeat, many of us share with cattle and pigs the capacity for manufacturing cholesterol. As you may know from your own observations, there are certain families that consistently produce "fatties." Indeed, in some of these families, fat appears to deposit in some easily recognizable characteristic fashion: double chins, abdominal aprons, heavy things or ballooning buttocks.

These fat deposits, like cholesterol deposits in arterial walls, are products of manufacturing processes within the body. If fat and cholesterol deposits were merely made up of dietary fat and cholesterol, they would be products of an outside process. You would expect to become muscular by eating steak — that's about as sensible.

In this light, as you can see, the way to prevent and-or reduce the cholesterol content of the blood and cholesterol deposits within body tissues is merely to cut down on the total quantity of basic foods that normally grace the table of the American family.

It makes no sense to cut back only on milk, the almost perfect food on which we were reared at our mothers' breasts.

However, if you think otherwise there's nothing to stop you from further penalizing the American dairyman and necessitating a further increase in your taxes.

U.S. Delivering 3 Gunboats To Indonesia Despite War Threats and 'Neutrality' On Dutch Planes

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — The U.S. is selling three gunboats to Indonesia despite that nation's war-threatening dispute with the Netherlands over West New Guinea.

Two of the ocean-going patrol craft, ideally armed for island warfare, are now enroute or have arrived at Jakarta's heavily-guarded Tandjung Periuk harbor.

A third former U.S. Navy gunboat is scheduled to be delivered to the Indonesian navy after it is outfitted and rearmed in a U.S. shipyard.

The 101-foot, 77-ton gunboats are part of a purchase made by the Indonesians under an arms agreement signed in 1960 while former President Eisenhower was in the White House. In making delivery of the warships, the State Department takes the position that it is carrying out commitments inherited from the Eisenhower administration.

In addition to the gunboats, Indonesia is obtaining 21 tons of small arms, and spare parts and ammunition for the gunboats and their anti-aircraft guns.

The U.S. delivery of the gunboats comes at a time when State Department policy prohibits the landing of troop-carrying Dutch planes at U.S. bases.

Secretary of State Rusk barred these flights after Indonesia objected that the use of U.S. fields violated President Kennedy's policy of strict neutrality in the dispute. These flights carry reinforcments from Europe to West New Guinea and are being rerouted through South America.

UNEASY ALLIES — Netherlands, a close ally of the U.S. in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, is greatly displeased with both U.S. arms decisions and is going to bring the issue before the NATO Foreign Ministers meeting in May.

Through their Washington Embassy, the Dutch government unsuccessfully protested the gunboat sale on the ground it increases the chances of war over West New Guinea. The official protest pointed out that the Netherlands' naval superiority has kept Indonesia's President Sukarno from risking an invasion at this time.

However, the Dutch claim that this slender "balance of power" is slowly being upset by Russian and U.S. ship deliveries to the Indonesian navy.

Russia has turned over four undertermined number of motor torpedo boats to the Indonesians since January. Soviet sailors are now training Indonesian crews to operate these naval vessels.

Four Soviet army generals are now in Jakarta helping Sukarno's top military officers prepare invasion plans, according to information the Dutch have turned over to the Defense Intelligence Agency.

Note: Former U.S. Ambassador to India Ellsworth Bunker, who is acting as mediator, has proposed to Indonesia and the Netherlands that the disputed territory be put under a UN administrator for 18 months and then turned over to the Indonesians on their promise to hold a plebiscite later among the native Papuans. There has been no reply.

TOUGH DECISION — President Kennedy faces another agonizing decision on the future of Laos, the communist - harassed buffer state along the southern border of Communist China.

He must decide before the end of April whether to cut off American military aid to the present anti-Communist Laos government in a cold-blooded pressure move to force agreement on a new regime which will include out-and-out Communists.

The President is being urged to take this drastic action by Secretary of State Rusk as the only way the U.S. can force the Laotian government of Premier Boun Oum into a coalition government under Prince Souvanna Phouma, the so-called neutralist leader.

Assistant Secretary of State Averell Harriman recommended the military aid cut-off after he failed to get Premier Boun Oum to go along with a U.S. & Soviet plan to "neutralize" Laos.

The essence of this plan, worked out by the big powers at Geneva, is that a coalition government including communists, neutralists and officials of the Boun Qum government be set up to run Laos.

General Phoumi Nosavan, the 42-year-old head of the Laotian army, is supporting Premier Boun Oum in opposing the coalition unless the Premier is allowed to name the Defense and Security Ministers in the new government.

U.S. military aid to Laos is now running at approximately $12 million a month. These funds help meet the payroll of General Phoumi Nosavan's 60,000 - man army that is now opposing Prince Souphanouvong's Communist Pathet Lao forces which are being supplied by Russia.

President Kenedy has already cut off U.S. economic aid, that averaged $3 million a month. The Laotian government has $20 million in reserve. If military aid is cut, these funds would be exhausted within two months.

Aides close to the President say he will make at least a start on cutting off U.S. aid as a warning to Premier Boun Oum to give in.

King Savang Vatnana, who is greatly disturbed at the pressure the U.S. is putting on the Boun Oum government, sent a private message to President Kennedy last week warning him that present U.S. policies in Laos will bring Communist rule there.

NOW HEAR THIS! — The late great General Patton's Chief of Staff, Lieutenant General Hobart Gay, is leading a drive for a student loan fund for the New Mexico Military Institute. A much-decorated veteran of World War I, World War II and Korea, where he commanded the famed 1st Cavalry Division, Gay is Superintendent of the noted military school, and is seeking $25,000 as a loan fund to assist outstanding students to complete their education for military careers.

The Air Force has more married officers than the other armed services; 88 per cent of Air Force officers are married, followed by 80 per cent of the Marine Corps, 79 per cent of the Army and 76 per cent of the Navy. Similarly, Air Force enlisted men lead in the number who are married with 58 per cent, followed by the Army with 40 per cent, the Navy 38 per cent, and the Marine Corps 33 per cent . . . Twenty-nine veterans of the Indians wars are still on the pension rolls — survivors of more than 105,000 who fought in those conflicts from 1860 to 1898.

Widespread surveys of the eating habits of elementary and high school and college students indicate clearly that elementary school children generally eat better than their elder brothers and sisters. One reason the diets of teenagers (13 to 19) are often less adequate than those younger is that the adolescent abandons in some degree his family's eating habits in protest to parental control. Another reason is large amounts eaten as snacks without consideration of nutritive value.

Today's favorite gag: SPECTATOR—"I can't imagine how anyone could miss a putt as short as that." GOLFER—"Look, mister. Thoughts while shaving: 1. If the U.S. and Great Britain ever adopt the metric system, as is being urged by European nations, we'll have to change the wording of some of our proverbs, such as: "A miss is as good as 1.6093 kilometers"; "I wouldn't touch it with a 3.049 meter pole"; "It's all wool and .9144 meters wide"; and "Texas men wear 37,853-liter hats.". . .2. Don't know how it'll ever make out, but one New York clothing outfit is promoting among companies with a large number of young white collar employes a distinctive "company blazer." It would promote "internal morale," it's suggested. (Whoops!). . .3. Wonder would world history have been changed if there had never been established the rank of corporal in the army? For early in their military careers, Napoleon was a corporal, Mussolini was a corporal, and Hitler was a corporal. . .4. Half a century ago a fair percentage of risque stories concerned a traveling salesman and a farmer's daughter. It may be that nowadays there are fewer "drummers" on the road in rural areas, and fewer farmers' daughters, but we haven't heard a traveling - salesman - farmer's daughter joke in years. (And that's still all right with us.)

Louis Pasteur brings to mind pasteurization and that in turn makes some think of milk. But the pasteurization process was actually discovered when the famous scientist was investigating the causes of troubles in the making of beer and wine. Each Side Convinced The Other Won't Start A War

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The most severe criticism thrown at the Kennedy administration today is that it has a "no win" foreign policy. What this apparently stems from is a growing belief that total victory over Soviet Russia by war is not in the cards.

Total victory of freedom and democracy over communism, however, is still considered very much in the cards, but only in the process of time and over a long hard road.

Both the United States and Soviet Russia now have the capability to inflict devastation on each other without their conventional forces coming into contact. For this reason, each side is convinced the other doesn't want and won't start a war.

But this is leading to an arms race in which the country that develops the first successful anti-missile missile — if such development is possible — will have the advantage.

Dr. Hans Bethe says an anti-nuclear missile missile is not possible. That makes the arms race to develop it all the costlier.

Another significant aspect of this U.S.-U.S.S.R. rivalry is that there is no point of contact for conflict between the two countries themselves. All potential causes for conflict are over third countries in other areas—Berlin, Korea, Southeast Asia — or the ideological conflict of communism with democracy.

It is easy to propose drastic solutions for these clashes of interest. Shoot down the Berlin wall. Shoot up the Russian planes that buzz the western air corridors to Berlin.

But if minor incidents here lead to general incineration of the whole northern hemisphere, they are not solutions. For this reason the situation must be handled with extreme caution.

This is why more brains and money must be expended to find some way to block an arms race and why negotiations are continued at Geneva on disarmament and a solution for Berlin.

While the U.S. and U.S.S.R. may be said to be on collision course over Berlin, it is considered noteworthy that at Geneva, U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko did not move towards crisis. They backed away from it. They agreed to negotiate further without saying when.

Russia's reluctance to force a showdown at this time may be due to its own internal weaknesses.

Its economy is not as strong as it would have the world believe. Its farm policies do not provide adequate food for its people. Its industrial capacity cannot match that of the Western powers. There are strains within the Communist bloc which may become disruptive. Russia's satellites are not as strong as America's Western European allies.

But the United States as the leader or strongest power in the western alliance also has its problems, as well as its assets. American economic and social development are the greatest positive influence in the world today. Allies and neutrals alike depend on this force for their continued existence. In these countries' disputes with each other, all come to the U.S. for support.

This puts the United States in the middle of many local conflicts and makes it impossible for this country to say that its policies have 100 per cent support from any of its allies.

The most striking example today is over disarmament and nuclear testing. The United States is under pressure to abandon its scheduled atmospheric tests and to yield more to Russia on inspection of explosion sites within U.S.S.R. territory.

The United States has already yielded to Russia on a score of points in previous disarmament negotiations, only to have the Russians then repudiate their own previous positions.

If the United States gives up on inspection now, a conclusion might be drawn that it has a "no win" policy. And if it gives up the coming atmospheric tests even in exchange for a test ban treaty with too limited inspection inside Russia, it will be almost as vulnerable.

The Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Thursday, April 19, the 109th day of the year with 256 to follow in 1962. This is Patriots' Day, commemorating the battles of Lexington and Concord.

The moon is approaching its full phase.

The morning stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1775, the American warfor independence began about an hour after sunrise when the British met the Minutemen at Lexington, Mass.

In 1783, eight years after the battle of Lexington, Congress announced the end of the Revolutionary War.

In 1933, the United States abandoned the gold standard.

In 1956, film actress Grace Kelly of Philadelphia was married to Prince Rainier III of Monaco.

A thought for the day: Greek writer of fables Aesop said: "It is not only fine feathers that make fine birds."

Sunday School Teacher — Why, children, I once knew a little boy who cut off a cat's tail! Think of it, children — took a knife and cut the tail right off! Can any one tell me a verse in the Bible that would have taught this cruel boy that he should not have cut off the cat's tail?

Sunday School Teacher — What is it, my boy?

The 'Big E' Practices Nuclear Survival

EDITORS NOTE: Down through the centuries, the United States has let the other fellow strike the first blow in war. To continue this policy, a means must be found of riding out an atomic attack and still have power to strike back. In this respect, the nuclear aircraft carrier is an instrument of this policy. UPI Correspondent Norman Runnion, who was aboard the Enterprise during her shakedown cruise, tells how this would be done in the following dispatch.

By NORMAN RUNNIO
United Press International

ABOARD USS ENTERPRISE (UPI) — The Enormous E is ready.

It has worked under simulated battle conditions, taken and survived an "atomic" attack, catapulted its bombers and fighters into the sky, and brought them back home in the inky blackness of a subtropical night.

From its first sea trials last October until its just-completed shakedown training off Guantanamo Bay and the Cuban coast, this $440 million warship has exceeded all expectations.

It is bigger, faster and more powerful than any carrier afloat, and it shortly will carry enough nuclear weapons punch to deliver a crushing blow against any aggressor.

Now it will spend four to five weeks in Newport News, Va., undergoing its post-shakedown analysis. Then on June 2 it is to go on station with the 2nd Fleet in the Atlantic.

And probably next fall, it will take its enormous power to the Mediterranean to serve with the 6th Fleet.

There's never been anything quite like this ship, the deadly successor to the old "Big E" of World War II Pacific combat fame.

It can carry 100 jet and piston engined planes which pack a nuclear punch; has a flight deck covering 4½ acres; and a crew of 4,200. It also has a dedicated and highly talented crew and some of the best pilots in the world.

It is an atomic age carrier in every sense of the word — offensively and defensively.

During its shakedown training in the Caribbean, the crewmen went through intensive drills to prepare for the eventuality that they one day might be subjected to an atomic attack.

The drill started with general quarters and ended with a full-scale aircraft launch operation after the Enterprise had been subjected to a "near miss" by an atomic bomb.

After the initial "shock waves" had passed, the great carrier turned tail and ran — its four nuclear-powered propellors churning up the blue seas with speeds that can reach 40 miles per hour. The objective: outrun the fallout.

Since the Enterprise has nuclear power, it has no smokestacks. It therefore can be closed up into a "gas-tight" envelope.

When this has been done, and the crew has vanished to leave the flight Deck looking as empty and strange as a big city on early Sunday morning, the ship can be washed down from top to bottom by seawater.

In effect, this would turn the carrier into an enormous fountain 1,123 feet long and 23 stories tall. Most of the fallout from the bomb would be washed overboard.

Some, however, would remain, and before the Enterprise could retaliate it would be carefully inspected by crews carrying Geiger counters who would mark out radioactive "hot spots" on the flight deck.

It wouldn't be long, however, before the carrier's planes would be off. During the Caribbean drills, it took only 20 minutes from the time of the "attack" until the flight deck was declared sufficiently safe to begin launching preparations.

If the Enterprise has nuclear capability, so does its top command. Each officer dealing with the nuclear plant was personally selected by Adm. Hyman L. Rickover, the "father" of Navy nuclear power.

This includes the Enterprise skipper, Capt. Vincent Paul De Poix, a trim, efficient man of 45 who served as a combat fighter pilot aboard the old Enterprise in the South Pacific. He had to learn how nuclear propulsion operates before he took over.

In charge of the reactor department is Cmdr. Daniel Brook, who was skipper of the Sargo, the third U. S. nuclear submarine. He and his specially trained crew—all of them subject to security checks as well as psychiatric tests — are virtually the only ones allowed near the Enterprise nuclear plant.

While on duty all of them wear special film badges, which can be analyzed to test the degree of radioactivity they encounter.

The eight reactors they handle, each about twice the size of those in nuclear submarines, churn out 280,000 horsepower. It is the largest accumulation of nuclear power in the world.

They are confident nothing dangerous will happen. But just to make sure they constantly run special drills for reactor accidents —sometimes 60, and sometimes 12, in a day.

They all agree, too, that if the Enterprise were ever subjected to an atomic attack, probably the safest place on the ship would be deep down below — right alongside the nuclear reactors.

Backstairs At The White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House:

With President Kennedy as honor guest aboard the mammoth nuclear-powered aircraft carrier USS Enterprise last weekend, the Navy was a bit embarrassed by what happened during a fire power demonstration.

Highly touted surface-to-air and air-to-cir guided missiles missed their target, a small red drone plane operated by remote radio control. Bob Pierpoint of the Columbia Broadcasting System swears that after the second batch of vaunted missiles missed the darting red target plane, one of the foreign diplomats aboard the carrier turned to his escorting officer and said:

"Your missiles are very nice, but what my country would like to have is one of those drone planes."

After the air power demonstration, the President left the carrier by helicopter and went ashore to watch a Marine amphibious assault against a North Carolina beach. Someone scribbled a card and handed it to Kennedy's military aide, Maj. Gen. Chester V. Clifton. The card said:

"Score of the game at halftime: Drones 6 Missiles ?".

Possibly influenced by lessthan-perfect missile shots, some members of the travel group thought the President in his farewell speech to the Atlantic Fleet task force praised the men for their "drone-killing courage."

A check of the transcript showed, however, that he was paying tribute to "your own skill and courage."

Middleburg, Va., may not know it, but the folks down there are in for some mild crowd action on the weekend of April 28-29. The President currently is planning to have British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan as a guest at Glen Ora, possibly just for a day, but maybe more.

There undoubtedly will be a heavy concentration of British, as well as American, reporters, plus photographers and television newsreel crews. To say nothing of spring sightseers.

Press Secretary, Pierre Salinger is due to end his Virgin Islands vacation this week and join the White House party in Palm Beach in a day or two. In past administrations it was almost impossible for a press secretary to get away for as much as a week or 10 days, particularly when Congress was in session.

Salinger is indeed fortunate. Furthermore, he needed the rest because May and June are expected to be among the more active months of 1962 for the President.

It makes the President's staff somewhat indignant to hear outsiders, particularly those posing as insiders, refer to the Chief Executive as "Jack."

Members of Kennedy's staff, in talking among themselves, never engage in such informality even though the President may be miles away.

Furthermore, this is not peculiar to the current President. When a man is elected to this nation's highest job, his first-name relationships drop off sharply and he is referred to largely by his title.

Wall Street In Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—Martin Gilbert of Van Alstyne, Noel & Co. says he still thinks the market is in the process of bottoming out, particularly as it approaches the 690 range in the Dow-Jones industrial average.

However, Gilbert feels that the long term trend is still upward and while the optimistic forces are having a rough time, the D-J industrial average will soon hold with buyers exerting their influence on the price structure.

In short, Spear & Staff Inc. says, "we feel that near-term bearishness may have been overdone." Where positions in strong stocks are concerned, it would think of adding to them, rather than giving them up, at this ti[me].

LESTER A. JONES

Democratic Candidate State Representative—87th District

REPRESENTATION

I am a Democratic Candidate for State Representative from the 87th District. This is the seventh in my series of newspaper columns and radio speeches.

Much of my campaign material has carried the statement, "Restore Representation with Lester A. Jones." This column will examine that statement.

We have had a man who has held the office of state representative for the past fourteen years and is asking for two more years which would give us an elected office holder in the same office for sixteen years. This is entirely too long to serve in one office without becoming more obligated to special interest groups, both political and economic, than he is to the people of the 87th District.

The present representative of this district has lost all concept of representation. In the official House Journal of the Regular Session of the 57th Legislature, the present representative proposed a Constitutional Amendment which would have allowed a representative, defeated by a vote of the people in his district, to serve as Speaker of the House of Representatives. This shows a complete disregard for our Constitution and for the will of the people as expressed at their Ballot Box.

We need a new man as our representative who is obligated to no group other than the people of Gray, Wheeler and Collingsworth Counties.

A detailed discussion of our representation will be made on radio Friday of this week.
