BUCS AND YANKS MARSHAL FORCES FOR WORLD SERIES OPEN

FIRST GAME TO BE PLAYED IN PIRATES' LAIR

TOSS-UP SEEN IN PLAY FOR BIGGEST STAKES ON THE DIAMOND

(Associated Press Sports Editor)
PITTSBURGH, Oct. 2.—Assembling their forces here today for the start of the world's series on Wednesday, the Yankees and Pirates, most colorful teams in baseball, seem likely to have a nip and tuck battle for the game's premier prize, with the outcome a toss-up, if their performances over the last month are accepted as a basis of comparison.

Last Three To Limit
The last three tussles for the world's championship all have gone the limit of seven games. It wouldn't surprise many of the experts if this series also develops a last ditch fight. If it does, attendance and financial records, established on a new high level last year when 22,631 fans paid $1,207,364 to see the Cardinals beat the Yankees probably will be shattered once more, with greater seating capacities available.

The last month of play has usually been the best guide of all in "topping" the relative merits of series contenders. It affords a significant index of strength this season, even though the Yankees kept their pennant clinched early, breezed through most of September while the Pirates fought it out in a hectic National league struggle decided on next to the last day of the season. But the Yankees, though minus a pennant incentive from September 13 on, put their full strength into the fray in quest for individual and team records.

Hard Contest Seen
Sizing up the rivals from this last month point of view, it looms as a battle between the Yankee artillery and the Pirate sharpshooters.

Emphasizing the tremendous clubbing power of the American league champions, their closing record discloses a big hitting edge in their favor, especially on long distance clubs, while at the same time revealing the Buccaneers hurling staff as steeper and more effective than their rival mound-men.

In games won and lost there is little to choose. The Yankees again showing a slight margin with 21 victories in 25 games over the period from August 31 to the season's close, while the Pirates, in their desperate fight to victory, captured 25 out of 35.

Yanks Lead in Slugging
The secret of Yankee success lay chiefly in their bats, where Ruth and his mates compiled an average of .324, higher than in the teams' whole season mark. The Pirates, showing a batting mark of .289 pulled through chiefly on the pitching prowess of four right handers—Ray Kremer, Vic Aldridge, Carmichael and John Higgs.

The Pirates are an array of hitters as they are, boast no runners of the calibre of Ruth or Gehrig, but the Yankees, on the other hand, possessed no pitching traveling at Kremer's pace over the last month of campaigning.

Kremer's Record Good
The star of the final Corsair cruise, Kremer, had 29 seven consecutive victories from September 2 to September 25. The big California twirler three shut outs during this streak and twice let his opponents down with the measure to close out the game.

In his bid for an eighth triumph, Kremer was knocked out of the box Saturday by the Reds but this, the Pirates contend, was just an off day. He is slated for the opening game assignment Wednesday and the Bucs are banking heavily on their ace.

Walter Hoyt, expected to oppose Kremer in the first battle, topped the Yankee hurlers for the season by 29 wins as the last month reveals he has not been quite as effective as George Piggars, Willy Moore, Urban Shocker or Herb Pennock. If his work in dropping his last three games is an indication of his form the veteran southpaw, Dutch Ruster, isn't likely to see any serious service.

Comparing the pitching starts as a whole for the closing month, the Pirate blunders have yielded averages of only 2.46 runs and 7.37 hits per game as against a Yankee allowance of 2.34 runs and 7.59 hits.

Bob Reeves Has Makings Of Star At Shortstop, Say Billy Evans; Harris Drops Worries As Kid Comes Across

BY BILLY EVANS

"He has the makings of a great shortstop, a world of natural ability and a keen mind. Once he learns the tricks of the trade there is no keeping him out of the headlines."

Roger Peckinpah, one of the game's greatest shortstops, ventured the above opinion about Bobby Reeves of Washington, after I had broadcast my belief that he looked like a great prospect.

Unless you are a baseball fan who follows the box scores closely the name of Bobby Reeves may mean little or nothing to you. So, here is the low down on the young man who appears to have a bright future in the big leagues.

Two years back, Bobby Reeves was a student at Georgia Tech. How much book knowledge he absorbed at that famous Georgia institution of learning I cannot say, but I know he made rapid strides to the front in a baseball way. He was a big sensation in southern collegiate baseball circles.

One of the Washington scouts was so much impressed and before he'd said good-bye to his new alma-mater, his name was affixed to a Washington contract. I am told that a bonus of $500 completed the deal. If so, the Nationals secured a great prospect at a bargain price.

For almost a year, Reeves sat on the bench awaiting a real chance to make good. He would occasionally fill in for a game or two but always returned to the bench when the regular was able to resume play. For was expressed in the few trials he received that he would not be able to hit big league consistently.

Fortunately for Reeves he had a chance to learn some of the finer points of property playing shortstop from Roger Peckinpah, a past master in the art of fielding. He profited greatly thereby.

This year, when Peckinpah was sold to Chicago, it was on the assurance that "Buddy" Myer would fill the vacancy. He faltered and in turn was traded to Boston for the veteran Riney. For a time Riney did well enough but when a bad slump hit him, Reeves felt he had the job, largely because there was no one else to experiment with.

Within a very short time Reeves had qualified for the position of regular shortstop and one of the big stars of Manager Stanley Harris had been eliminated. He is improving with every game.

Reeves is a six-footer, built very much on the lines of Pittsburgh's brilliant shortstop, Glenn Wright. Reeves can go to his right or left with equal ease. He is very fast on his feet and has one of the greatest arms I have ever seen. Incidentally he is going to hit big league pitching quite well enough, thank you.

At present the most glaring weakness of Reeves has to do with his throwing, despite the fact that he has a marvelous arm. There is one thing that he must learn in order to steady his play, the proper timing of base runners. He throws fast and slow runners out with the same speed, which means that he hurries every throw.

Most errors on the part of infielders are caused by hurrying the throw which cuts down on accuracy. On the slow runners it is possible to steady one's self and throw the ball that it gets the runner by a comfortable margin. In a hurry, of course, proper timing means throwing out the fast or slow man by about the same margin.

When Reeves learns to time each runner, basing his conclusions on the speed of the runner and the manner in which the ball comes to him, he will have secured his one big fault, hurrying the throw, resulting in many wild pegs.

Only recently in a game with Cleveland, Reeves demonstrated his ability to cover ground by accepting 13 assists, breaking the Ameri-

BALL CHASERS OFF FOR HOMES AS PLAY ENDS

CARDS TAKE SECOND IN NATIONAL ATHLETICS JUNIOR RUNNER-UP

(By Associated Press)
Fourteen major league baseball teams were disbanded today and more than 350 players were starting for their homes, barring the few who live where they play or who will witness the world's series, starting Wednesday at Pittsburgh.

Cards Take Second.
The curtain dropped on the 1927 season Sunday with only one contest on for position. The St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Chicago Cubs, 6 to 4, and gained second place in the National league. The New York Giants, who had aspired to the runner-up post, beat out Philadelphia, 5 to 4, in 19 innings, but landed only the runner-up position behind the world's champions. The Cardinals were booked for a double header against the Cubs but rain set in during the eighth inning and the second game was cancelled.

Pittsburgh closed the season one and one-half games ahead of St. Louis. The National league champions lost their final game to Cincinnati, 1 to 0. Chicago ended in fourth place, six and one-half games behind the Giants. Cincinnati was fifth and the Brooklyn Dodgers, who won their closing game from Boston, 5 to 3, finished sixth. Boston was seventh and Philadelphia last.

Yanks Not Scheduled.
The Yankees were not scheduled yesterday, but they won the American league pennant with 18 1/2 games to spare over Philadelphia. Washington beat Philadelphia, 9 to 5, in the last game and placed third. Detroit took a double-header from Cleveland, 11 to 5 and 5 to 4, and ended in fourth place. Two and one-half games behind Washington, Chicago finished fifth. Cleveland sixth, and the St. Louis Browns, who closed with an 8 to 3 win over Chicago, were seventh. The Boston Red Sox brought up the rear of the procession.

The Red Sox had the Philadelphia Nationals finished last in their respective leagues with the same percentage, each having won 51 percent and lost 101. Philadelphia was 43 games from Pittsburgh and 59 games behind the Yankees.

New Batting Leaders.
New batting leaders were crowned in both circuits. Harry Heilmann of Detroit snatched the National league honor away from Al Simmons of Philadelphia by getting seven hits in nine times at bat in yesterday's doubleheader at Detroit. Heilmann closed with a mark of .326. Simmons being second with .322. Heilmann succeeds Heine Manush of Detroit, who set the pace last year with .325.

Paul Waner of Pittsburgh carried off the individual batting honors in the National, his final average of .379 being 20 points better than his closest rival, Rogers Hornsby of New York. Waner succeeds Hubbes Hargrave, Cincinnati catcher, who led the circuit last season with .352.

Ruth Closes At 60.
Babe Ruth, with his record-breaking total of 60 home runs for the season, finished 13 home runs ahead of Lou Gehrig, his closest rival but Gehrig led the Babe in extra base hits, 146 to Ruth's 97. Ruth was the leading run-scorer with 153 tallies, and was followed in order by Gehrig, with 149; Combs of the Yanks with 137; Hornsby with 134; and Lloyd Waner of the Pirates with 132.

Frankie Frisch was away ahead of all competitors in both major leagues in stolen bases, with 48. George Sisler of the St. Louis Browns topped the American league base stealers with 23 thefts.

Jess Haines of St. Louis Cardinals topped the National league pitchers with 24 victories and 19 defeats, and Walter Hoyt of the Yankees led the American league with 22 wins and seven defeats.

TARIFF MUDDLE

ment does not refer to examining under the framework of its own legislation "the just complaint of French exporters."

The essence of the first French memorandum made public today is that France is willing to negotiate with the United States on the basis of reciprocity, the text thus follows: "The published summaries, and that as soon as the Washington government would agree to that as the basis of negotiations, France would reduce her rates of August 30 to 20 per cent."

American Reply.
To this the American government replied with the statement that while the tariff rates imposed by France are questions of interior politics, the United States considers that protests are justified when French rates are not applied equally to all countries. This insistence upon equality is the basis of the entire American memorandum, which recalls that the rates of the French general and minimum tariffs were provided with a view of negotiating treaties of commerce with a sufficient margin to furnish compensation for the advantages wanted.

The American tariff involves no such margins for bargaining. The American reply says: "The absence of discrimination, it declares, is the fundamental principle of friendly commercial relations. The American tariff laws, it adds, admit of no discrimination between the products of different countries, while commercial discrimination against the United States—practically has ceased the world over, France being the only country at the present time which seriously discriminates against American products."

Cochran Rallies To Hold Billiard Belt

CHICAGO, Oct. 3. (AP)—Overcoming a long lead by a sparkling brand of billiard genius, Walter Cochran of Hollywood, Calif., successfully defended his 182-bank line championship in the final block of a 1500-point match Saturday night with the German challenger, Eric Hagelbacher. The final count was Cochran 1500; Hagelbacher 1474. Cochran, who started the final 500-point block 292 points behind, chalked up an inning average of 99 points per 100.

Levine Received By Pope Today In Special Audience

(By Associated Press)
ROME, Oct. 3.—Pope Pius, today received Charles A. Levine in special audience in the small throne room of the vatican.

The pontiff, dressed in white, seemed surprised at the small stature of Levine who was accompanied only by M. Wranke, a nephew of the Russian General Baron Wrangel, who is serving as his social secretary.

The pope said that he was greatly pleased to greet the trans-Atlantic flier and then blessed Levine, his family and all future flights. Levine, who upon entering the pontiff's presence had bent his knee and kissed the Papal ring like a true Catholic, told his holiness that the honor of being received was the greatest he had ever experienced.

Levine's reception in the small throne of the vatican marked the first time that any American has ever been received in this room in spite of the fact that he did not conform to the rigid dress regulations of the vatican and went bareheaded from his hotel to the audience wearing the same blue business suit in which he flew to Europe with Chamberlain and which has stood him in good stead ever since.

the presidential staff, declared this morning that the soldiers had been deceived by their chiefs. Apparently all the members of thearrison started to go out but when the majority of the men learned they were being led into a revolt, they abandoned their chiefs and returned to barracks.

Destination Unknown.
Those who left the city did not exceed 500, he added. Their destination upon leaving the capital was unknown.

Although agitation has been reported among the troops at several points in Mexico, General Alvarez asserted that reports received by the presidential bureau indicated that quiet prevailed everywhere.

First Troop Clash.
Although there have been numerous clashes between government troops and rebels in recent weeks, the first presidential candidate, General Alvarez, has been arrested by Mexican military associates as Wilbert Robinson and Connie Mack rank among the greatest of all time.

Only Mack, the tall tutor of the Athletics, has won more American league flags than Huggins. Connie captured six over a 12-year period from 1902 to 1914. In seven seasons Huggins is only one short of this mark with a team which except possibly for its pitching staff appears equipped to dispute the top with any outfit for some time to come.

Never speaking the limelight, Huggins nevertheless is a forceful character. He makes his decisions without hesitation. The Yankees, most of them towering over their midsize manager, know who bosses the outfit. They respect his keen judgment.

Ruth Was Unfury.
There was a time when Babe Ruth was continually at odds with his manager. Affairs reached such a stage a few years ago that Huggins handed the Babe an unprecedented bit of punishment, a fine of $5,000 for misconduct. It is understood this fine was rescinded later, after Ruth apologized to Huggins and promised to turn over a new leaf but the manager's sharp disciplinary move had its effect. There is no friction now between Huggins and the game's highest salaried star.

Colonel Ruppert, Yankees' owner, has always had implicit confidence in Huggins, even when the little manager was subject to criticism and at odds with Colonel T. L. Huston, who shared the club control with Ruppert until a few years ago. "Colonel Jake" steadfastly refused to consider shifting pilots. Now that his judgment and faith in Huggins have been confirmed, there is small doubt that Miller will hold the job as long as he desires.

Managed Cardinals.
Huggins was manager of the St. Louis Cardinals before coming to the Yankees. It is one of the curious facts of his career that last year, in the world series with the Cubs, he broke in under his management—Rogers Hornsby.

"Like John McGraw, New York's other famous manager, Huggins hasn't had much luck winning world's championships. Of 12 series in nine attempts two were successful against the Yankees in 1921 and 1922. Huggins turned the tables on McGraw in 1923, but was nosed out by Hogsby's clan in the big battle last fall.

FIFTH PENNANT GIVES HUGGINS TITLE AS BEST PRESIDENT AND HOOPER SPEAK FOR RED CROSS

DIMINUTIVE MANAGER SHOWS ABILITY TO DEVELOP TALENT

(By Alan J. Gould)
NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The fifth American league pennant victory in seven years for the New York Yankees has established their pilot, the diminutive Miller Huggins, as one of the most successful managers the game has known.

Huggins has succeeded where it was predicted he would fail. He has demonstrated his shrewdness, his ability to develop new talent and direct baseball's most expensive cast in the face of criticism and skepticism.

Gets Little Credit.
When the Yankees won three successive pennants, in 1921-22-23, comparatively little credit was given to Huggins. It was said he fell heir to a "made team" built up with the aid of Colonel Jacob Rupperts ever-ready and well-filled fountain pen. It has taken the efforts of 1924-27, to bring out belated praise of Huggins' ability to shape his own destinies and construct another championship club after one fell by the wayside.

Of the stars of Huggins' first pennant-winning team only Babe Ruth, Bob Meusel and Waite Hoyt remain as leading cogs in the 1927 championship line-up.

Many Developed.
"Huster" Gehrig, Tony Lazzeri, Earle Combs, Mark Koenig and Wiley Moore have been developed by Huggins among others in gathering together a team that such veteran associates as Wilbert Robinson and Connie Mack rank among the greatest of all time.

Only Mack, the tall tutor of the Athletics, has won more American league flags than Huggins. Connie captured six over a 12-year period from 1902 to 1914. In seven seasons Huggins is only one short of this mark with a team which except possibly for its pitching staff appears equipped to dispute the top with any outfit for some time to come.

PRESIDENT AND HOOPER SPEAK FOR RED CROSS

CONVENTION TO OPEN MONDAY AND WORK TO BE RECOUNTED

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—President Coolidge and Secretary of Commerce Hoover will be the principal speakers at the seventh annual Red Cross convention which commenced here today and will last until October 6.

Flood Relief.
Deeds of Red Cross relief workers during the Mississippi flood disaster will constitute a leading topic of the convention and a special "flood relief session" will be held on Tuesday night. Secretary Hoover, who directed the entire flood relief and rehabilitation work, will be the leading speaker at this session, while Lieutenant Colonel George R. Spaulding, Army Engineers, of St. Louis, who was in charge of the huge rescue fleet of Navy and Coast Guard boats and naval airplanes, and Dr. William H. Redden, Red Cross medical director, who supervised the anti-disease crusade after the flood, also will deliver addresses.

Coolidge Speaks Monday.
The chief executive, who is president of the society, will give his annual address Monday night. John Burton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross, will be the only other speaker at this session. At the opening session this morning the speaker was Judge L. Fleiser, vice-chairman of the directors of the Red Cross, and James L. Fieser, vice-chairman of the organization, who with Secretary Hoover supervised the flood disaster relief.

On Wednesday night the convention will be addressed by President George E. Vincent of the Rockefeller Foundation, and Miss Julia Lathrop, former chief of the federal children's bureau.

Open Discussions.
Morning and afternoon sessions of the convention will be devoted mainly to round-table discussions and conferences on Red Cross activities, including nutrition instruction, first aid and life saving, the Junior Red Cross, nursing, public health and hygiene. The seventh annual roll call of the organization will be one of the leading problems for the convention to deal with.

The convention marks the tenth anniversary of the mobilization of the Red Cross to render service in the World War. All chapters of the organization in 48 states and the insular possessions of the United States will be represented by delegates.

Thought For Today

It is not good that the man should be alone.—Gen. 2:18.
When missing on companions gone, we doubly feel ourselves alone.—Scott.

Passing The Buck

In their embryonic form, the chamber of commerce, businessmen's luncheon clubs, trade associations, the civic club, and other related community organizations were looked upon with suspicion and distrust by those who belonged to none of them. Because they did not know what they were for, the non-members believed them for selfish gain.

Within recent years community clubs and associations have experienced an amazing growth in numbers and membership. At the same time they have earned the public confidence, both the growth and the public approval were the fruits of service to the community.
In winning the confidence of the public the civic bodies have gained a victory for the community in that their programs for civic improvement are no longer obstructed by forces alien to them. But the victory has erected a new obstacle one that is perhaps more formidable than the first. This new barrier to community progress is the feeling that the community is safe in the hands of the civic organizations, so the public needs no longer concern itself with community problems. The public's lack of confidence has been transformed into over-confidence. The community-at-large is playing the old army game of passing the buck.

This was the inevitable outcome of the effective exercise of the hand of commerce, luncheon clubs and other civic bodies have given the community. The public confidence they hold is desirable, but it is neither fair nor desirable that the several associations should bear the whole burden of civic improvement. They should work in concert for the non-member class to allow the member class to do all the "building" and give all the "service," but it is not the best thing for the non-member class and for the community.

Group and inter-group cooperation have been established. Let group and individual work hand in hand with but a single purpose—community service.

Superstitious

Many things thought commonplace and customary seem unusual and strange if by chance they get into print. A case in point is the delay in recording a deed in the capital city of Pennsylvania occasioned by the refusal of a woman to transact business on the thirteenth day of the month, and by the reluctance of a man to invest his money under an "unpropitious" sign of the zodiac.

It would be generally known that there are thousands of people, both urban and rural, who "swear" by the almanac and who believe the number thirteen is "unlucky," and get to great numbers, the thing seems so unbelievable when presented in newspaper type.

Many who deny being superstitious also deny that superstition has anything to do with "believing in signs" or planting the garden and transacting business by the signs of the zodiac. They place no credence in the supernatural, but never "make garden" without first consulting the almanac. To what portion of the country's population this applies is impossible to deter-minate, but it is evident it is no small minority.

After all the end and not the means is the thing to consider. If all business transacted on every other day of the month than the thirteenth were successful, would it be folly to do business on the "unlucky" thirteenth, and if the gardener's a zodiac always raises crops there is in a garden should adopt another superstition.

Maybe one of these days you'll pick up a newspaper and read the
headline, JOURNEMEN PILOTS
CALL FLYOUT.

THE PLAINSMAN

That Girl on Broadway says too many people fall to realize that marriage is an institution—and not a habit.

Now that the fair is successfully terminated Lubbock boosters must go to work to make October 25th the gala day which it should be.
The Texas A. and M. football game, a meeting of the board of regents of the Tech, the presence of aviation officials from Kelly Field and at least 3,500 visiting avid fans should make that date one of the most important in the city's history and Lubbock is expected to put it over in fine style.

The larger a city grows the more unwholly become its civic forces. Three and four years ago, before Lubbock had reached its present metropolitan aspect, almost any kind of a municipal program could be put over in fine shape. Now however, too many of us are satisfied to let the "other fellow" do it—a situation which, for October 25th, at least—must be remedied.

The Man on Avenue Q says
"neither a borrower nor a lender be" should be made the eleventh commandment.

It is unnecessary for the Plainsman to attempt to eulogize the Board of Directors of the 1927
Panhandle-South Plains Fair.
President L. E. Barr, Manager A. R.
Davis, Felix Kelly, Garnett Reeves, the various exhibitors or any of the scores of people who made the recent exposition the greatest in all Plains history. Printers ink, frankly, is incapable of personally knowing that the unselfish service of the individuals and groups mentioned above has accomplished for Lubbock and the territory a great undertaking. The only way the rest of us can make them feel, even in a small measure, our gratitude, is by telling them so personally at every opportunity. Don't be afraid to give them credit for their work.
They have it coming if anyone has.

Matthew Kimes has been granted a new trial. That's just like erecting a monument to Sacco and Vanzetti by the Daughters of the American Revolution. The Plainsman can not imagine anything siller than the "finger or more in-possible than the latter. It's a great age we live in.

Now that William G. McAdoe has retired from any candidacy in connection with the democratic presidential nomination, some thinking democrats are looking expectantly toward Governor Al Smith. It is possible that the latter, if Governor Smith is more ambitious for his party than he is for himself he will follow the lead of the California relation of the late Woodrow Wilson and give the rank and file of the party an opportunity to heal old wounds and get solidly behind a candidate who is acceptable to all. Party politics, as the Plainsman sees them, are necessary evils.
But, like the poor, they are with us always and it is better to have them presenting a solid front than lickering and maddening within their respective ranks.

A LEGION ALIVE

There was no mortuary veil over the parade of the American Legion in Paris recently, nor did any pennant of militarism snap above it.

How could we, who knew them, expect such trappings from them?
They are our own boys and they had to be; sad when their hearts were touched; always sober and solid underneath; but when on show, funny, whimsical, youthful, laughing and utterly beguiling.

Of course, the French loved the spectacle. A race so quick to know sincerity and react to humor could not help adoring their beards "bit of the dead America displayed in their historic streets. To see the march of the Elks, the convention and clam chowders of the Kiwanis or Lion are so familiar that it did not occur to us how utterly foreign it all might look in French eyes. The Legion boys put on a Rotary parade just as if the place of the Star were Main Street.

The boys who gave their lives in the war have not been forgotten in Paris. The spiritual side of the reunion has had its great moments in the military cemeteries and by the grave of the Unknown Soldier.

Yet we rejoice that our boys have made their great impression through life rather than death. We are glad that like Lindbergh, they "made their own stuff," were their own gay, lovable selves. Thus have they won their way back into the heart of France. Thus can they be our best ambassadors.—New York Post.

America has done much during the years that have passed between the signing of the Armistice and now, to try to help the European nations to realize that we are trying to help them to recover from the awful conflict that years of the nations of that country engaged in for years and years, before the Stars and Stripes ever raised a hand in the war.

The recent meeting of the American Legion we are sure will mean much toward the end of convincing the people of that country that America is not blood-thirsty. That America is not after conquest; that she is not after their money. We have stacks and stacks of money that we do not know what to do with, and that is no item with America. What this nation wants to do is to cultivate a friendly relation between the nations and not only between herself and other nations, but other nations with each other.

About the only thing you can't get on time in this country these days is meals.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
 While Vance is at breakfast in his fashionable bachelor apartment, Markham drops in on him and informs him that Alvin Benson has been murdered. Because of his interest in criminology, since accompanies Markham to the scene of the crime.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER II
 As we passed through the massive carved-oak front door into the main hallway, we were met by Assistant District Attorney Dinwiddie, a serious, swarthy young man with prematurely lined face whose appearance gave one the impression that most of the woes of humanity were resting upon his shoulders.

"Good morning, Chief," he greeted Markham with eager relief. "I'm damned glad you've got here. This case'll rip things wide open. Get-and-dried murder, and not a lead."

At that moment a tall, massive, middle-aged man with a pink complexion and a closely-cropped white mustache, appeared in the doorway of the living-room. Oh, seeing Markham he came forward stiffly with outstretched hand. I recognized him at once as Chief Inspector O'Brien who was in command of the entire police department. Dignified greetings were exchanged between him and Markham, and then Vance and I were introduced to him. Inspector O'Brien gave us each a curt, silent nod, and turned back to the living-room, with Markham and Dinwiddie, Vance and myself following.

The room, which was entered by a wide double door about ten feet down the hall, was a spacious one almost square, and with high ceilings. Two windows gave on the street, and on the extreme right of the north wall, opposite to the front of the house, was another window opening on a paved court. To the left of this window were the sliding doors leading into the dining-room at the rear.

The room presented an appearance of garish ostentation. About the walls hung several elaborately framed paintings of race-horses and a number of mounted hunting trophies. A highly-colored oriental rug covered nearly the entire floor. In the middle of the east wall, facing the door, was an ornate fireplace and carved marble mantel. Placed diagonally in the corner on the right, stood a waistn't upright piano with copper trimmings. Then there was a mahogany bookcase with glass doors and figured curtains, a sprawling tapestried davenport, a squat Venetian table with inlaid mother-of-pearl, a teak-wood stand containing a large brass smelter, and a bulb-topped center table nearly six feet long. At the side of the table nearest the hallway, was a high, fan-shaped back chair. In the chair rested the body of Alvin Benson.

As we entered the room in the wake of Chief Inspector O'Brien everyone ceased his occupation for a moment and served two years at the front in the World War and had seen death in many terrible guises. I could not repress a storm of revulsion at the sight of this murdered man.

Benson's body was reclining in the chair in an attitude so natural that one almost expected him to turn to us and ask why we were intruding upon his privacy. His head was resting against the chair's back. His right leg was crossed over his left in a position of comfortable relaxation. His right arm was resting easily on the center-table, and his left arm lay along the chair's arm. But that which most strikingly gave his attitude its appearance of naturalness, was a small book which he held in his right hand with his thumb still marking the place where he had evidently been reading.

He had been shot through the forehead from the front; and the small circular bullet mark was now almost black as a result of the coagulation of the blood. A large dark spot on the rug at the rear of the chair indicated the extent of the hemorrhage caused by the grinding passage of the bullet through his brain. Had it not been for these grisly indications one might have thought that he had merely paused momentarily in his reading to lean back and rest.

He was attired in an old smoking-jacket and red felt by-d-room slippers, but still wore his dress trousers and evening shirt, though he was collarless, and the neck band of the shirt had been unbuttoned as if for comfort. He was not an attractive man physically being almost completely bald and more than a little stout. His face was flabby, and the puffiness of his neck was doubly conspicuous without its confining collar. With a slight shudder of distaste I ended my brief contemplation of him, and turned to the other occupants of the room.

Two burly fellows with large hands and feet, their black felt hats pushed far back on their heads, were minutely inspecting the iron grill-work over the front windows. Another man, of medium height and dapper appearance, with a small blond mustache was bending over in front of the grate looking intently, so it seemed, at the dusty ash-tray. On the far side of the table a thickset man in blue serge and a derby hat, stood with arms akimbo scrutinizing the silent figure in the chair. His eyes, hard and pale blue, were narrowed, and his square jaw was rigidly set. He was gazing with rapt intensity at Benson's body, as though he hoped by the sheer power of concentration to probe the secret of the murder.

Another man, of unusual mien was standing before the rear window, with a jeweler's magnifying glass in his eye, inspecting a small object held in the palm of his hand. From pictures I had seen of him I knew he was Captain Carl Hagedorn, the most famous fire-arms expert in America. He was a large, cumbersome, broad-shouldered man of about 60; and his black shiny clothes were several sizes too large for him. His coat hitched up behind, and in front hung half way down to his knees, and his trousers were baggy and lay over his ankles in grotesquely comic folds. His head was round and abnormally large, and his ears seemed sunken into his skull. His mouth was entirely hidden by a scraggly, grey-shot mustache, all the hairs of which grew downward. Captain Hagedorn had been connected with the New York police department for 30 years, and though his appearance and manner were ridiculed at headquarters, he was profoundly respected. His word on any point pertaining to fire-arms and gunshot wounds was accepted as that by headquarters men.

In the rear of the room, near the dining-room door, stood two other men talking earnestly together. One was Inspector William M. Moran, commanding officer of the detective bureau; the other, Sergeant Ernest Heath, Markham had already spoken to us.

As we entered the room in the wake of Chief Inspector O'Brien everyone ceased his occupation for a moment and served two years at the front in the World War and

"It's a spring gun!" roared McNally wrathfully. "Look, fellows - look at that cord running through the pulley to the trigger. The cord was fastened to the door. When Willis jerked the door open the cord pulled the trigger and fired the gun. A murderous contrivance! Where is the wretch who set it?" "Just turn round, and you'll see him!" cried a voice behind them.

The startled boys whirled toward the door and saw a small, villainous looking hunchback who was armed with a rifle. He glared at them from glittering, beady eyes.

"You kin read, can't ye?" demanded the hunchback snarlingly. "You saw the warnin' on 'this door, didn't ye? It'd a been your own fault if you'd all been kilt!"

"Why, it's 'Old Hunchy,' the gummer!" exclaimed Jack, who had heard of the crazy digger of spruce gum who roamed the deep woods around Enchanted Mountain. "Yep, that's me!" confirmed the deformed hermit, "and this is my cabin. When I go away, I fix it so anybody that tries to bust in and steal my gum in them boxes zits kilt. Now you git outter here, quick!" (To Be Continued)

U. S. Officials Say Gotham Mayor Not Shadowed Abroad

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The state department authorized today a flat statement that it had not arranged for the movement of Mayor Walker of New York to be watched by agents of the United States government during his recent European tour and had no knowledge of any such surveillance on the part of the foreign service officials on their own motion. The statement followed publication in New York of sensational stories that the mayor had been under espionage. The suggestion was made at the state department that it was possible that the embassies or legations in countries visited by Mayor Walker had felt it necessary to arrange for some form of protection in view of the possibility of attacks upon him by fanatics and in connection with the Sacco-Vanzetti anti-American agitation. If this was done, officials declared, no report of that has ever been received from any of the countries the mayor visited. Department of justice and secret service officials also denied any knowledge of efforts to shadow the mayor's movements abroad.

One of the interesting facts brought out in the bulletin is that the scholastic enrollment of the county now is $159, the teacher force numbers 270, and the 26 districts have all brick buildings with the exception of two; while in 1917, 10 years ago, the enrollment was 2564, and there were only three brick buildings—with 28 wooden structures. The bulletin gives a directory of superintendents, principals, districts, teachers and an outline of the courses of study pursued in each grade.

We made a very close study along with exhaustive tests of the many motor oils offered the public, and after having done so have decided to distribute to our discriminating trade Nu-Pro Motor Oil as The Best year round oil. Therefore we are now exclusive agents in the Lubbock territory for this superior quality oil.

We found that Nu-Pro Motor Oil stands up and gives one hundred per cent lubrication service under the most severe of climatic and mechanical conditions.

Nu-Pro is free from all carbon, has a pure, transparent golden color, and furnishes a film of lubrication unequalled, we believe, in any other oil.

The northern states have given this oil a most thorough test during the severest of winter weather, and found that it lubricates perfectly even at a temperature way below zero.

Southern states have proven that it is an oil that stands up remarkably well under extremely high temperatures, and gives supreme satisfaction under these adverse conditions.

Consequently, it is with great pleasure that we announce to the motoring public of Lubbock and to our many customers who serve the public of Lubbock, that from now on Nu-Pro Motor Oils will be obtainable throughout the Lubbock territory.

U. S. Supreme Court Opens Fall Term Today Facing Most Important Docket In History Though Number Decreased

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Convening today for a new term the Supreme Court found that the summer recess has produced cases exceeding any record in recent years, but that the total number awaiting its consideration, including those carried over from the last term, is less than a year ago. The court will get down to business at once, having a list of 21 cases set for oral arguments, but it is expected to follow precedent and deliver no opinions during the first week in any of the five cases it has in hand from the last term awaiting decision. These include the famous Teapot Dome case, brought to trial Harry F. Sinclair and his companies from the naval oil reserves in Wyoming. The others are one attacking the validity of cooperative marketing laws, raised by the Liberty Warehouse company in Kentucky, an effort by the Skinner & Eddy company to force Comptroller General McFarland to pass on a $1,000,000 claim against the government, the right of states to tax the gross receipts of taxicab companies in a case from Pennsylvania, and a boundary dispute between Texas and New Mexico, involving land near El Paso. The most important dispute between states before the court which probably will be decided during the term involves Chicago's diversion of water from Lake Michigan. Former Justice Charles E. Hughes by direction of the court took evidence in the Wisconsin suit against Illinois and the Chicago Sanitary District, and the case will be set for argument soon after his report, including his findings, is filed. There are two other cases, one by Michigan and the other by New York, which may be controlled in a large measure by the Wisconsin decision.

All told, the court will be confronted with approximately 275 cases compared with 628 at the beginning of the last term, some of them of outstanding importance. Going to extraordinary efforts made by the court during recent years to expedite the disposal of accumulated business it closed its last term in June with 283 cases awaiting consideration against 469 the year previous. In the summer recess about 292 cases were filed, compared with only 259 during the previous summer recess.

250 Reviews Asked About 250 of the cases placed on the docket since last June are petitions asking the court to grant reviews, and of these about one in five will remain there to be disposed of on their merits. About 200 will be stricken from the list as soon as the court has had an opportunity to examine the questions presented. The 25 cases advanced for argument, all of which will be heard during October, present 28 different questions, and are headed by an attack upon the law regulating business in Detroit. Near the top of the list is the case of Swift & Company and other packers to set aside a court decree under which they agreed to confine their activities to the meat packing business. Number of Tax Cases The list includes a number of tax
