

A FAVORITE SPOT—This is the main entrance to Camp David, Md., the presidential retreat. It has become a favorite getaway for President Carter as it was for his predecessors. The compound, surrounded by three fences, offers complete privacy.

Talk of shuttering Camp David muted

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — Before Jimmy Carter took office, there was talk about saving money by closing Camp David, the presidential retreat about 60 miles north of Washington.

Then the new President had a chance to look around the hideaway, a kind of personal country club with a membership of one. The talk stopped.

Carter returned to the White House on Sunday after his first extended stay in Maryland's Catoctin mountains. It was his seventh trip to Camp David and every sign indicates he enjoys the retreat, with its rustic atmosphere, its tennis court and its swimming pool.

Camp David gives Carter privacy and relief from the highly organized schedule he follows at the White House. "There is no set routine," says Tim Kraft, the President's appointments secretary and one of a handful of aides who accompanied the Carters on their vacation last week.

Carter is free to put on casual clothes and wander alone through the woods. Or he can indulge his interest in softball.

But the symbols of the presidency are never far away.

A Marine in a red and blue dress uniform raises the President's flag on the Camp David flagpole the instant the President's helicopter touches down.

When Carter leaves, a Marine stands at attention and then marches to the flagpole to lower the flag the instant the helicopter lifts off.

The camp is situated in the Catoctin Mountain Park, run by the National Park Service. It is surrounded by two chain-link fences topped by barbed wire. An electric fence runs between the two other fences. The perimeter is patrolled by rifle-carrying Marines in battle fatigues.

Every President since Franklin Roosevelt has used the presidential retreat. FDR called it Shangri-La. Dwight Eisenhower renamed it Camp David, after his grandson, David Eisenhower. It is about 20 miles south of the Eisenhower farm in Gettysburg, Pa.

Richard Nixon retreated to Camp David for weeks on end as the Watergate scandal unfolded and chipped away at his administration. He reportedly enjoyed the rustic atmosphere so much that even during the height of the 1973-74 energy crisis he turned his air conditioning on full blast so he could keep the fireplace in his lodge glowing during the summer.

When Carter and his family make the 30-minute helicopter flight from the White House, they guard their privacy jealously. Few staff members accompany them.

Q. As an interested taxpayer, I would like to know how many people in Howard County receive food stamps. What are the qualifications? I hear that many well-paid people such as those at The Herald, some in the military and even Civil Service receive the stamps. Is such the case?

A. According to Paula Talbot of the State Welfare office, there are 289 active food stamp cases in Howard County. Of those, none is employed at the Big Spring Herald, none is military and less than one per cent (or under four cases) are employed in Civil Service. Of the Civil Service cases, the average income is $531 per month to feed six persons. If you think you may qualify for food stamps, contact Paula Talbot at the welfare office.

Offbeat: Bike rider sees red

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Barry Laessig thought it was a joke when a policeman pulled him over to the curb last week. Laessig was riding his new bicycle.

It was no joke, however, and the officer gave Laessig a $35 ticket for going through a stop sign.

Laessig had violated Pennsylvania's new Motor Vehicle Code, which requires bicyclists to observe the same traffic laws as motorists.

The only difference is that the fine for running a stop sign on a bicycle is only $10, not $35. A police sergeant in the 35th District said "the officer may have erred in the fine" and suggested Laessig contact the city's Traffic Court.

"I think it's ridiculous," Laessig said. "What about a 10-year-old kid. Are they going to fine him?"

Police said they aren't going after every bike rider, only those who cause problems for police and motorists.

That won't include Laessig anymore. His bike was stolen Wednesday.

And foes look formidable

Stand on canal opposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, hoping for ratification of its proposed Panama Canal treaties, faces a threatened filibuster in the Senate and an expensive advertising blitz by conservative opponents.

Under terms worked out tentatively by U.S. and Panamanian negotiators, one pact calls for the United States to turn over control of the 50-mile waterway to Panama at the turn of the century. A separate agreement provides for the canal's security and neutrality after that date.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., declaring, "You've got to stand up for your rights," vowed Sunday that Senate opponents will conduct a filibuster to block ratification.

Helms said "you can count on" a filibuster when the issue comes to the Senate. Treaties must be approved by two-thirds of the senators present and voting. If all 100 senators vote, support by 67 members would be required to ratify a treaty.

Helms and Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., the leading Senate opponents of ratification, said in a joint television appearance that the United States should not allow itself to be blackmailed into giving up its property.

The pair appeared on NBC's Meet the Press.

While Helms and Thurmond were scoring the agreement as a giveaway, the American Conservative Union was launching a nationwide letter-writing and lobbying campaign to get the pact killed.

"There is no Panama Canal. There is an American canal. Don't let President Carter give it away," said a newspaper advertisement sponsored by the ACU. The advertisement appeared Sunday in Jackson, Miss., a spokeswoman for the organization, said the group plans to spend $50,000 this week on a newspaper campaign aimed primarily at Southern states.

"As far as the treaties go, if the Southern Democrats remain with us on this issue, we could defeat it in the Senate," she said, in explaining the advertising strategy.

Meanwhile, an Associated Press poll indicates the administration may have been overstating its earlier estimate that 50 senators support the pact. The poll showed 17 senators saying they endorse the treaties, an equal number oppose them and 62 are undecided. The other four senators could not be reached for comment.

The Carter administration, by putting its own strength in the Senate at 50 votes for ratification; acknowledges it faces a tough fight in a search for 17 more votes.

Tornado kills 5

NEOGA, Ill. (AP) — Only a pile of rubble remains where a tornado ripped through this lakeside community, killing five people and injuring another 50. A two-by-four driven like a nail into the side of a mobile home attests to the storm's violence.

"In the path of the tornado, itself, there was nothing left standing," said Mark Busekrus, Coles County emergency services coordinator. "Everything in the path was reduced to rubble. No walls. Nothing."

A twister touched down at 1 p.m. Sunday, demolishing dozens of homes on the western side of Lake Mattoon in east-central Illinois and splitting buildings on the eastern shore.

Summer cottages were flattened, mobile homes blown from their pedestals and hurled into the lake. About 50 homes were destroyed.

Boats were swamped and overturned. Trees, telephone poles and power lines were smashed.

Although there were no reports of missing persons, several officials said they believed it likely that more dead would be found in the waters of the lake or under piles of rubble.

"There could be people still out in that water," said Fire Chief Elred Myers. "There was no way we could be sure if anyone was there or not."

State troopers and sheriff's deputies fought their way with trucks and ambulances past scores of gawkers who clogged the two access roads to the small vacation community. Some of the injured were taken to hospitals in vans because there were not enough ambulances available.

"There was debris all over the place," said Jim Russell, a volunteer fireman. "There were hurt people. People just looking for someone to tell them what to do. There was propane gas all over the place. The tanks were blown off their pedestals. A lot of places were so flat there was just no way I could get inside those trailers and campers to see if anyone was there."

Rate of giving slowing down

Friends of the Bible Fund apparently had other things on their mind than seeing that the campaign attained its $10,000 objective.

Only $143 was contributed toward the fund over the weekend, $50 of that amount by two former residents who now call Wichita Falls home. They are Mr. and Mrs. Lester Brown.

Only one week remains before school starts. The sponsoring organization, the Howard County Ministerial Alliance, would like to have as much money as possible in the fund's coffers by the time the first class is held.

If the money is raised, Bible chairs will be assured at Big Spring High School, Forsan High and Coahoma High.

Donations should be made to the Bible Fund, care of The Herald.

OIL MAGNATE SON TAKEN INTO CUSTODY — Julian Hammer, the 42-year-old son of oil magnate Armand Hammer, lies handcuffed, rear, Sunday after being taken into custody by police from his home in Pacific Palisades, Calif., after allegedly firing a shot during an apparent dispute with a neighbor. Over actions of teens

Businessmen on Gregg upset

By BOB BURTON
"I'm not saying that every 18-year-old boy is doing it, but we have some who are."

Louis Stallings at the Patterson Insurance Agency on Gregg St., is protesting the mess left every night by the groups of teenagers whose cars line the strip after dark. Stallings is not alone.

"We need to get these young people to stop making a mess. It's wrong to disturb the peace," said Joe Langford, manager of the Sherwin-Williams Paint Store on Gregg.

"It is the kind of thing that can get out of hand. We definitely have a bunch now that has the attitude that they'll park wherever they can and do whatever they want to," said Chief Stanley Bogard. "But," he added, "it's also the kind of thing that is very hard to control."

"I support the merchants and I agree that this is a bad situation," commented Mayor Wade Choate. "I'd welcome their delegation to a city council meeting."

Every night the teens are there, with beer and radios and stereos and police monitors. They line Gregg St. on weekends, parked in every parking lot, filling station, business and driveway. And when they leave, it is the businessmen who pick up their trash and clean up their damage.

"It has been bad all summer," continued Bogard. "I think it will decline when school starts next week, but meanwhile we've been doing the best we can with what we've got."

The police are limited by several things. First, the city ordinance provides that private property must be posted before the police can chase people off.

"It didn't help White's," remarked Langford wryly. "I don't see why I should have to spend $50 on a sign to keep my driveway clean and my store undamaged."

"The people have to help," was Bogard's answer. "They can sign a complaint against someone who litters or trespasses. But if we get a call and go up there, often they'll have been monitoring the call and be gone when we arrive."

"And if we warn them to leave, they'll just go to a different location. That is what makes the problem so difficult."

The program may be difficult, but it is gaining the attention of the merchants on Gregg.

"I've been here 11 years, and I've been cleaning up the trash," said Langford, "but it has gotten much worse. Some merchants are afraid to come out and say anything because of vandalism at night. They feel defenseless."

Stallings had a flat tire last week when he drove into his parking space. It was filled with broken beer bottles.

The problem is one common to any city. The merchants are right; it is embarrassing and it is messy. The police are right; it is hard to control and it can easily get out of hand. And the teens are right; not all of them do it, and not all of the ones who park make noise or leave a mess.

But the problem remains. Langford wanted to take a delegation of merchants to the city council meeting Tuesday. He says he does not have to organize the group.

"I have to manage the store," he said. "I can't take on a second job like this. But something needs to be done."

Hold the phone! Drainage of lake may be postponed

Environmentalists may have stalled the drainage of the One Mile Lake for as much as a year, according to City Manager Harry Nagel.

Nagel received notification today that funds from the Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) which were to be used for the project have been frozen.

"These funds were to come from the Aid To Community Development Grants. We had planned to drain the lake to alleviate the mosquito problem on the north side of the city. Now, at the last minute, HUD wants more information about the environmental impact, and we are stuck," said Nagel.

The funds were frozen due to efforts by Bebe McCasland, local environmentalist, to alert HUD of possible danger to endangered bird and animal life at the lake. Ms. McCasland also claimed that draining the lake would not only be an ineffective deterrent for mosquitoes, but also that it might make the problem worse.

"If the lake is drained, the holes in the bottom will become filled with standing water; a perfect breeding ground for mosquitoes. At least now we have minnows and tadpoles there to eat some of the insects," she said.

The environmentalist denies the claim by city officials that her actions were a spur of the moment thing.

"I became aware of the situation six months ago. I then got a copy of the environmental review when the public notice about the project came out in July. I found that the study was inadequate, and informed the mayor (Wade Choate) in person and in writing on Aug. 12 that I would contact HUD," she said.

As the situation now stands, the city will have to go through three federal agencies in order to get the project moving again.

HUD will ask for additional information on the possible environmental impact of the project. The revised report will then be passed on to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for comment.

Finally the report will be sent to the Environmental Protection Agency which will determine whether or allow the project to be continued, and may require a detailed environmental impact study.

"A study like that could take up to a year," said Ms. McCasland. "But Big Spring runs the risk now of destroying a priceless habitat for birds and a variety of other animal life," she added.

Police beat Arsenal stolen

Another small arsenal is in the hands of the underworld after burglars hit the residence of Dr. Ralph Eisman, 3703 Conally, sometime Saturday afternoon.

Taken in the burglary were 14 weapons including 6 shotguns, two .22 caliber rifles, several high powered rifles and scopes, and an M-16 and an M14 both of which are semi-automatics.

Several of the guns were valuable collectors items, and total loss to Dr. Eisman was over $7,000.

According to Detective Avery Falkner, the burglary appeared to be a very professional job, and at this time police have no leads as to suspects or location of the guns.

Officers Eggleston and Sims made a fairly routine suspicious vehicle inspection at 4 a.m. today and ended up recovering nearly all the items taken in the burglary of the Gas House Lounge and the Bush County Lounge earlier.

Arrested were two young male subjects who had in their possession some beer, cigarettes and money taken from the Gas House Lounge of an undetermined value.

Police are confident that the two suspects arrested will lead them to solutions of several other burglaries in town during the last 6 months.

Unsuperstitious Vandals hit the southwest part of town Saturday night and went on a mirror breaking rampage amounting to over $185 total damage.

Between the hours of 6 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. Sunday, vandals destroyed the side view mirror of a car belonging to Robert A. Fitzgibbons, 2513 Carleton, the side view mirror of a pick-up belonging to Claude Morris, 2400 Alamesa, the windshield of a car belonging to Thomas H. Amont, 2602 Carleton, another outside mirror of a car belonging to Ronald A. Dallefield, 2509 Carleton, the side view mirror of a car belonging to William D. Warner, 1902 Winston, and finished their spree by breaking the mirror of a car belonging to Jim Craver, 1805 Duguoin.

It is generally hoped that the vandals will have the worst of luck.

In an unusual assault, Phelia Rios, 506 E 6th, was Southbound on Gregg, when a car following close behind her forced her off the road at 18th street.

An unknown man jumped out of the car, came up to Miss Rios and pulled her from the car by the hair and then proceeded to beat her about the face and arms with his hands.

Fortunately a patrol car appeared on the scene, made an arrest, and threw the man in jail.

No charges have been filed at this time.

Sometime between 4 p.m. Saturday and 3 a.m. Sunday burglars gained entry into the Universal Body Shop 1221 W 3rd and ransacked the offices.

Seeming a second thought the burglars also took all the money from the Coke machine. It is unknown at this time what else might have been taken.

An unidentified man driving a 1957 Chevy made his get-away after pumping $4.89 of gas from the self service pumps at the 7-Eleven at 8th and Gregg.

At 9:37 a.m. Sunday, cars driven by Kerrie Sue Knox, 2808 Ann, and Richard Oscar Fielder, 2302 Merrily collided at Ann and Merrily.

APPRECIATION PLAQUE FOR MIKE EZZELL (R) Howard College prexy Charles Hays makes award

Role of junior colleges stressed by Mike Ezzell

State Representative Mike Ezzell was awarded a special plaque today as a token of appreciation for the stand he took on the value of Junior Colleges in the Texas State Legislature.

Giving the award was Dr. Charles Hays, President of Howard College, at faculty orientation breakfast in the student union at 8:30 a.m. today.

In his talk, Ezzell stressed the importance of junior colleges in the state of Texas in that they fulfilled a need which four-year colleges or other institutions could not provide.

He said that by 1980 at least 75 per cent of all jobs would be centered around goods and services, and their maintenance.

"Community colleges are here to meet the coming needs for these industries, and we are on our way to doing just that," he said.

Ezzell remarked that despite what others had said, the past year in the legislature had been a successful one for junior colleges, and that he expected good things in the future.

Ezzell said that to make the State Government work for the interests of the people in this area, it was important they get involved and that they get informed, about the strengths and weaknesses of the legislations passed.

"There's no reason to roll over and play dead just because we've lost on certain issues. Legislation can be changed, but we can't do anything if people continue to take things for granted," said the representative.

Stressing the importance of becoming involved and informed, Ezzell summed up his talk by stating that the citizens of Texas could take failure and turn it into success.

Several new teachers were introduced to the faculty by Johnny Lou Avery including Stephen Clark, who will teach drafting, Mrs. Charlotte Green, nursing; Mary McClendon, AVM; and John Marder, who will be in the English Department and will assist in student publications.

Mutual interests cited by Vance

PEKING (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, here to explore chances of establishing full diplomatic relations with China, opened talks with Chinese leaders today by emphasizing the two countries' common political interests in various parts of the world.

In a sitting room in the Great Hall of the People, Vance began his first meeting with a Chinese team headed by Foreign Minister Huang Hua by saying there are areas where the two countries have "mutual interests."

One of these areas is Africa, where both the United States and China are eager to blunt Soviet penetration. They are concerned about inroads the Russians are making in east Africa and with insurgent movements in southern Africa.

Square and elsewhere, tens of thousands of Chinese marched behind banners proclaiming the completion of the 11th Communist party congress.

The celebration bore no relationship to Vance's visit. The congress formally selected Hua Kuo-feng as party chairman, thereby ratifying his policies of economic advancement and greater openness toward the outside world.

Vance's arrival was low-keyed, with Huang Hua, Vice Foreign Minister Wang Hai-jung and Huang Chen, chief of the Chinese Liaison Office in Washington, heading a modest welcoming delegation at the airport.

But the festive atmosphere, with clanging cymbals and exploding firecrackers that had children covering their ears, lent a special dimension to this first high-level U.S.-Chinese contact in two years.

Hijacker arrested

DENVER (AP) — Passengers on Western Airlines Flight 550 to Denver first learned something was amiss when pilot Dave Bender announced: "We're passing Las Vegas and we have a passenger who would like to get off in Salt Lake."

Actually, the man who burst into the cockpit 10 minutes after takeoff from San Diego on Saturday had given Capt. Bender a choice of destinations — Mexico, Kansas City and Milwaukee in addition to Salt Lake.

"My first thought was, this can't be happening to me," said Bender, who had never been hijacked in 22 years of professional flying.

"He told us it was a hijack, that he had a bomb and we were going to Salt Lake. He told us he'd blow us all up," Bender said in an interview Sunday.

"I asked him to let us continue on to Denver, but he said again Salt Lake. Then he mentioned a couple of other places he had in mind — Mexico, Kansas City, Milwaukee. I told him Mexico would be the last place he would want to be, so we went to Salt Lake.

"He didn't seem to be very rational. He told us not to turn around, to look straight ahead," said Bender, one of the seven crewmembers on board, who added that his main concern was to just "get the plane on the ground."

When the Boeing 707 landed safely in Salt Lake City, Jerry Richard Mills, a 36-year-old plant manager from Escondido, Calif., was arrested after he surrendered to FBI agents and police on the runway, authorities said. No one was hurt and no explosives were found.

Immunization is required

STANTON — Immunization in Stanton schools will be observed much more closely this time than in previous years, according to Supt. Russell McMeans.

Parents of school-age children (grades K-12) are being encouraged to read and help the schools meet state requirements regarding immunizations.

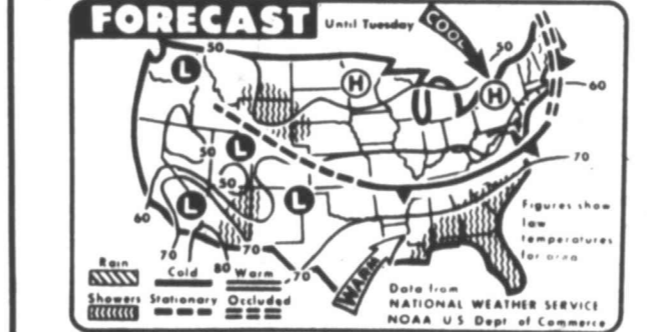

The law governing immunization requirements for school children does specify for oral polio "at least three doses of vaccine, provided one or more doses have been received since the fourth birthday," and for "Diphtheria-Tetnus," "minimum of three doses, with at least one dose having been received since the fourth birthday." The law specifically requires that at least one dose of each of these vaccines must have been received since the fourth birthday.

This is state law and takes precedence over any medical interpretation or personal opinion of any physician. In order for a student to enter and/or remain in school, this requirement must be met along with other requirements.

Other requirements include immunization for Measles (Rubella) and Rubella (three-day or German Measles).

State law requirements indicate that all immunizations should be completed by the time school is entered and that each student must have a record of immunizations on file with the school.

Drugs gulped by Hughes in last years of life

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Howard Hughes received regular and frequent doses of Valium and codeine-based pain killers in the last years of his life, an assistant attorney general says the exclusive magnate's aides told him.

One aide said in a sworn deposition that Hughes' final move, from the Bahamas to Acapulco, was linked to a power struggle within Hughes' financial empire, Asst. Atty. Gen. Rick Harrison said Sunday.

Hughes died of kidney failure April 5, 1976, and is buried in Houston. He evidently died aboard his plane as it flew from Acapulco to Houston.

Harrison was taken taking depositions in Los Angeles for use by the state in its effort to collect 16 per cent of Hughes' estate in inheritance taxes.

A jury trial to determine Hughes' legal residence begins Sept. 12 in Judge Pat Gregory's Harris County Probate Court No. 2.

Hughes' closest living relatives contend he was a Nevada resident, while Atty. Gen. John Hill claims he was born and died a Texan.

California courts have ordered Hughes aides John Holmes and Chuck Waldron to answer questions about how drugs were obtained and administered to the exclusive magnate, Harrison said.

He said Texas will petition Los Angeles Superior Court on Monday or Tuesday to order Hughes' physician, Dr. Norman Crane, to answer questions about the same subject.

The aides, Harrison said, were "six male secretaries who lived with Hughes on a rotating basis, three on and three off. There always was an aide with Hughes to answer the phone, give messages, and dictate messages back. We've deposited all of them."

Depositions obtained thus far from Holmes, Waldron and several other Hughes aides indicated heavy medication, Harrison said.

"We are talking about soluble codeine, taken by hypodermic, Empirin Compound No. 4 and Valium."

He was taking all three of those frequently and regularly over the last 10 to 15 years of his life," Harrison said.

Codeine, a pain-killer, is on the federal dangerous drug list, and a physician must have a narcotics license to prescribe it. An Empirin, Compound No. 4 tablet contains 64 milligrams of codeine, and Harrison said the depositions indicated Hughes "took it in large quantities."

He said Hughes took 10-milligram tablets of Valium, "the strongest dosage made."

"Aides called them blue bombers. He took eight to 10 at a time. That came out in the depositions," Harrison said.

Guerrillas murder 16

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Rhodesian security forces were hunting for a band of black guerrillas who attacked the black living quarters on a farm in eastern Rhodesia and slaughtered 16 men, women and children.

In another development, Rhodesian authorities reported that guerrillas fired 20 to 30 rockets from Zambia into the popular Rhodesian holiday resort of Kariba on Sunday. They caused no casualties or damage.

It was the second shelling of the town in two months. In the last rocket attack, on June 4, one man was injured and some cars and buildings were damaged.

Officials said the guerrillas who raided the east Rhodesian farm herded some of their victims into a circle and shot them. Others were bayoneted, and one was burned to death when the attackers set fire to the compound.

"It was a terrible sight. There were men, women and children lying in the bushes nearby — some of them dead and some were screaming with pain," said the white owner of the farm, Marius Sleight.

A pregnant woman was among those killed.

The farm 17 miles north of Umtali is near the Mozambique border, an area in which militant black nationalists have stepped up cross-border raids in their five-year war against Prime Minister Ian Smith's white government.

Trudeaus reunited

OTTAWA, Canada (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, his wife, Margaret, and their three children dodged reporters and photographers surrounding their first public reunion in almost three months.

Trudeau's office declined to say Sunday whether Mrs. Trudeau would return to the prime minister's official residence or would stay in the nearby apartment she has rented.

Mrs. Trudeau, 28, said in Vancouver on Thursday that she and the 57-year-old prime minister would stay together in Ottawa as "mother and father, not husband and wife" but expressed optimism that they would eventually be reconciled.

Takes time and effort

Shop wisely and save money

Alice cops take tests

EDITOR'S NOTE: No matter what you do, grocery prices seem to keep going up. You can save cash, however, if you're willing to spend time and effort. Here, in the first of a three-part series, is a look at learning how to shop.

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Never pay full price for anything. That's the motto of Heinz Biesdorf, a Cornell University professor who contends that American families could save thousands of dollars during their lives if they would follow a few simple rules of shopping.

Biesdorf and his colleagues at Cornell recently issued a revised version of a step-by-step guide, first published in 1968, to saving money at the supermarket and the professor says the same techniques can be used in other areas of shopping as well.

The rules seem deceptively simple: —Buy only when the price is right. —When the price is right, buy in quantity. —Compare price and size to get the lowest price per unit.

—Shop in at least two competing stores. —Plan your meals around the weekly meat specials.

Individual savings may seem small. But Biesdorf says that by rigidly following the rules you can easily trim 15 per cent from your grocery bill.

Putting the rules in practice to save substantial amounts takes time — probably an extra hour or more a week to start with, and effort — keeping track of prices and supplies.

Not everyone would be willing to make the sacrifices. To follow the Biesdorf plan completely, you often have to be willing to put price before individual taste. You may have to give up a little leisure time.

Surveys have shown, however, that consumers are willing to take extra steps to save money. A recent study by the Economic Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, for example, showed that a growing number of people are shopping at more than one store in order to get the best value.

In general, consumers are interested in more information and are using available information to help them make better food purchase decisions," said Evelyn Kaiz of the USDA. "They are more aware shoppers and are checking the ads before doing their shopping. They are reading labels and express a need for additional label information."

Biesdorf's kit, "Be a Better Shopper — Buying in Supermarkets," includes a 65-page guide to buying techniques, a series of forms on which individuals can report purchases and prices, and pamphlets to help people compare prices of different size packages.

The kit is published by the New York State Extension Service on a nonprofit basis. It costs $2.50. Checks, payable to Cornell University, should be sent to Better Shopper, Box 191, Dept. N-2, Ithaca, N.Y., 14850. (A more expensive version, including slides, is available for schools and community groups.)

The first step, says Biesdorf, is to determine family spending priorities. Decide what things are most important. If you decide you want steak once a week, fine. But you must be ready to pay the price.

"Economists call this opportunity cost," says Biesdorf. "If you spend something on one item, you spend it at the expense of not spending on something else." Once you know priorities, you can work to eliminate impulse items that don't contribute to your goal. Weigh each purchase carefully.

Before you can cut your grocery bill, you have to know where your money goes. That's where the record-keeping sheets come in. In the beginning, you probably will have to refer to your records fairly often to check prices and products; as time goes on, you will remember the figures automatically, says Biesdorf.

Although there are over 10,000 items in the supermarket, most families will find their weekly purchases are fairly similar. You know there are some items you never use. Other items — toilet paper, for example — are things you will always need, no matter what. These staple items are the things you will want to stock up on.

Start shopping at home by going through the newspaper to check advertised specials. Although only a few items in a given store are likely to be on sale in a particular week, the savings can be large.

Once you have determined that the price is right, be prepared to buy more than you need for one week. Suppose, for example, 46-ounce cans of tomato juice are on sale at two for 99 cents, compared to a regular price of $1.30. Assume your family uses tomato juice regularly, at the rate of two cans a week. If you buy 12 cans, you have six weeks' supply and have saved $1.86.

Reminder: read the fine print in the ads. Some stores make savings conditional on a minimum purchase. If you have to buy items you don't really need in order to meet the minimum, you haven't saved. As a rule of thumb, Biesdorf says that if you have to buy only $5 of groceries or less to get the special, it's usually worthwhile.

Over a period of two or three months, you will probably find specials on most of the items and, a little at a time, can build up your own stores of various products. Once you have this backlog, you can pick and choose your shopping times, buying replacement items only when they are on sale.

In order to buy now for future use, you need extra money, but it may take less than you think. "If you have $5 which you have not planned to spend in a supermarket, you're well on your way," Biesdorf says, "because the first week there is no way you could find everything you use at the best price." You can even start with as little as $1 extra, he says.

What if you don't even have the dollar? Find it, says Biesdorf. "If you have no money at all, you skip something that you don't need very badly." Suppose you eliminate window cleaner and shoe polish. "I would say, 'Okay. That's a dollar. Find a place where you get a special price and use that dollar that way.'"

You should also remember that the extra supplies you buy this week will help cut next week's bill.

How big a supply of staples should you keep on hand? "Enough so you never have to buy at the regular price," says Biesdorf. After shopping carefully for several months, you should be able to gauge the frequency of specials. Two or three months' supply of a product generally will suffice, although properly stored items will last much longer. Canned goods, for example, can be kept for up to three years in dry, cool places, but most experts recommend storing them for no more than one year.

What if you don't have the time to shop around? Again, Biesdorf says: Find it. How much time do you devote to television? "How much does it cost to watch television? It costs time."

Once you have become familiar with the better shopper program, Biesdorf says, it takes less than half an hour a week to cut your grocery bill by 15 per cent. How much money can you earn in half an hour — even if you work overtime? Biesdorf also dismisses arguments that his plan requires a lot of storage space. "If somebody offered you $50 worth of free groceries, would you turn them down because you didn't have room? Of course not." Rearrange cabinets to get the maximum use of available space. Consider shelves in the closets for more surface area. Store paper goods in cartons under the bed.

Biesdorf stresses the importance of using unit pricing where available to compare the cost of items sold in different size containers. Suppose, for example, a six-ounce can of something is 29 cents and a 13-ounce can is 60 cents. Which is cheaper? The unit price label will tell you the cost per pound of each item — 77 cents for the six-ounce size and 74 cents for the 13-ounce size.

If the unit price is not given, figure it out yourself.

Biesdorf refuses to be discouraged because many people are unable to do the necessary arithmetic. "The fact that some people are unwilling, unable, incompetent, don't want to be bothered, not enough education, shouldn't stop a professor from teaching what he knows will work," Biesdorf says, somewhat dogmatically. "The ones who pick it up will benefit greatly."

The better shopper kit includes detailed explanations of how to figure out which size is the best buy, how to read labels and how to understand the information which is provided.

Shopping in more than one store is another key factor of the Biesdorf plan. He says any expenditure for gasoline used in traveling is offset by the savings if you buy in quantity.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — Twenty-three Alice police officers, led by Chief Juan Rodriguez, were to take lie detector tests in Corpus Christi today as part of an investigation into the police department and drug traffic through their South Texas city.

Rodriguez said he will be first in line for the tests, to be administered by Texas Department of Public Safety officers. He said he and his men volunteered to take the tests.

Action by Alice Mayor Ren Reid sparked the probe. Reid requested the investigation from the Jim Wells County grand jury July 15, and has also asked Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill for help.

Reid said Rodriguez is dedicated and honest, but is a poor administrator.

"That's his view," Rodriguez said. "It's easy to question the police administrator, especially when you have a crime problem."

The grand jury requested a state agency to aid in the investigation, and Rodriguez said Texas Ranger Gene Powell was placed in charge of the investigation.

The investigation centers around marijuana traffic through Alice, which straddles U.S. 281 in South Texas, a road referred to as the "marijuana highway" that links the Lower Rio Grande Valley with Texas' larger cities to the north.

Before going to the grand jury, Reid said he was tired of "using the fox to watch the chickens."

Consumers still hesitant

Coffee prices are down

By the Associated Press

Drop by drop, coffee prices have started coming down. Supermarkets say sales of the brew are gradually picking up again, although consumers still seem reluctant to buy.

An Associated Press spot survey showed the price of a pound of coffee is generally about $3.50, down from a high of $4 and more in some places in March and April. In a few cities, where prices topped $5 a pound, current levels are still around $4.

Edward Maron of Ralphs, an 82-outlet chain in the Los Angeles area, said the stores ran an ad recently advertising lower coffee prices — $3.49 a pound, 47 per cent higher than the $2.38 level of January, but 13 per cent below the mid-April price of $3.99.

It was the store's first coffee promotion this year and Maron said sales increased slightly. "There is still a supply and demand problem," he said. "I don't think it's as severe as it was six months ago, but it's still with us. We're now in a kind of holding pattern."

Store spokesmen in Atlanta said sales dropped about 20 to 25 per cent in the first half of the year. Recent coffee promotions helped slightly, but sales remain sluggish. "We feel that one reason customers are not buying right now is that they're using up what we call 'pantry stuff' in anticipation of lower prices to come," said Arthur Levitt, coffee buyer for Alterman Brothers, operators of the area's Big Apple chain.

A spokesman for a large chain in the Kansas City area said he didn't think sales would ever return to normal. "It's still not cheap," he said, when asked about coffee. "As time goes on, I think they're going to lose coffee drinkers."

Corwyn Wnke of Falley's, an independent retailer in Topeka, Kan., said a pound of coffee is selling for $3.79, down from a high of $4.49. He said customers seemed to buy only when coffee was on sale.

Retail prices generally have decreased by a smaller margin than wholesale ones, mainly because the supermarket prices rose more slowly as stores sold coffee at a loss to draw customers. Now the wholesale and retail levels are about equal in most areas and, in a few cases, the supermarkets are selling coffee at up to a nickel a pound more than the wholesale price.

Coffee prices started soaring after a frost in Brazil — the world's biggest producer — destroyed part of that country's 1975-76 harvest and set off speculation about a possible shortage in future years.

Increased production and apparent cutbacks in consumption helped start the downward price trend earlier this year. By the middle of August, the price for green coffee beans was just above $2 a pound. Wholesale prices dropped from about $4.25 a pound to the current $2.90 to $3.70 range.

Dick Risk takes public relations job in Tulsa

Richard B. (Dick) Risk, former Public Information officer at Webb AFB, has been named senior public relations representative with Getty Refining and Marketing Company, based in Tulsa, Okla.

Earlier this year, GRMC was merged with the old Skelly Oil Co.

Risk spent 14 years as a public relations officer in the Air Force, three years of which were spent at Webb. He departed the base last June.

As such, he was chief spokesman for Webb during base closure events. He served the military as coordinator of the Base-Community Council (for which the Air Force nominated him for the prestigious Silver Anvil Award of the Public Relations Society of America).

Risk was also supervisor of the award-winning base newspaper, the Prairie Pilot. At the end of his tour of duty at Webb, Risk was presented with the Meritorious Service Medal by Col. Harry Spannaus, wing commander. He was active in St. Mary's Episcopal Church, which he served as vestryman and chief warden. In the latter capacity, he had the opportunity to be involved in the conceptual stages of the retirement complex and was instrumental in the creation of the board directors, serving as an ex-officio member of the board after it was formed.

RICHARD B. RISK

Mrs. Risk (Carroll) was also active in the church.

Risk also found the time to take major roles in three musical theatrical productions at Howard College, after an appeal went out for community participation.

Because Getty has some production in this area, Risk says he may be visiting here occasionally.

Risk's present address is 5021 S. 85th East Ave., Tulsa, Okla., 74145.

Area men interested in race

Big Spring may field a candidate, or maybe several, in the race of 17th District congressman.

The latest possible candidate is Jim Baum, manager of KBYG Radio in Big Spring.

Baum, a longtime Democratic Party worker and former Howard County chairman, is all but officially in the race. He has decided to give it a go.

Baum will be a strong candidate because he has ties to the two largest cities in the 33-county district. Well known in Big Spring, the former professional baseball player grew up in Abilene, the district's largest town.

While any candidate might find it a little difficult to run out of one corner of the district, and Big Spring is the western edge, Baum is a charming fellow, and he would have to be considered a very serious contender.

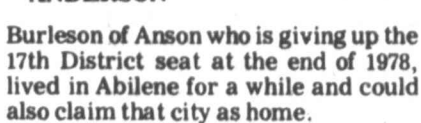

Another person who calls Big Spring home (or maybe Abilene) is Jim Sharp, the 25-year-old son and grandson of Methodist ministers in West Texas.

Sharp was to have gone to a family retreat last week to discuss a possible candidacy in the 17th District. Unfortunately, he let it be known that he might run in the 19th District (Cong. George Mahon's seat), and the decision is not helping him.

Sharp, a former aide to Cong. Omar

RICH ANDERSON

JIM BAUM

Burleson of Anson who is giving up the 17th District seat at the end of 1978, lived in Abilene for a while and could also claim that city as home.

He is currently driving a taxicab in Dallas.

Because Sharp is not well known across the district, he would have to be considered a very dark horse candidate. The long odds didn't seem to bother him, however. He says that he has picked up quite a bit of political savvy during his stay in Washington, which also includes a period as one of 41 doormen in the House of Representatives.

On the Republican Party side, Borden County rancher John R. (Rich) Anderson is eyeing the race.

Anderson ran for Congress once before. That was in 1960 on a Constitutional Party ticket against Mahon, and pulled a surprising 25 per cent of the vote.

If the Gail area rancher and banker decided to run and run hard, he would have to be considered a most serious GOP contender, if not the front-runner to date.

He would probably face Bill Fisher, 33, an Abilene tax attorney who is new to the district but is serving as chairman of the Taylor County (Abilene) Republican Party.

Anderson has run for Texas Legislature twice, losing in fairly close races. He is widely known in much of the district.

THE DEMOCRATIC Party side of the spring primary looks as if it will become the crowded field.

First out of the blocks was Abilene attorney A.L. (Dusty) Rhodes, who is organizing hard and obviously willing to commit time and money.

Other names being mentioned as possible candidates are State Sen. Grant Jones of Abilene, who would be a strong runner even though his present senatorial district is almost completely different from the 17th; Rep. Joe Hanna of Breckenridge; and Charles Stenholm, a Stamford farmer and former district committeeman.

DALE KING, aide to Cong. Burleson, was in town Friday, and he said that he and aide Walter Grubbs of Abilene had given their two-hour briefing on the district to six men who had requested it.

King, emphasizing that Burleson would not support or endorse any candidate publicly, said this service was available to any possible candidate who requested it, Democrat or Republican.

King said that so far the six who had gone through the briefing were Rhodes, Jones, Hanna, Stenholm, Anderson and Fisher.

King speculated that Jones and Hanna would not run, while he felt like Stenholm was inclined to give the race a try.

Whoever does declare, they had better be ready to exhaust themselves for a year of their lives. The district is wide and broad, and much time will be required to meet the people.

Estimates of how much money would be required for a candidate to assemble a viable campaign range from a low $100,000 to a high of $250,000. Raising that much money will not be easy for any potential candidate.

It does appear that Big Spring could have at least a couple of candidates giving the campaign a go.

That's good for Big Spring. It's good for the district. It's what democracy is all about.

Prime Energy Theory

Around the rim

Danny Reagan

Remember my pyramid rims of a few months ago, detailing many of the fascinating and unfathomable aspects about the effects the pyramid shape has on various objects?

Well, Serge V. King has come up with a very interesting theory on why the pyramid shape does what it does. It is called the Prime Energy Theory.

According to this idea, there is a prime energy — some might call it cosmic energy — of which all other energies are effects. To use an analogy, under certain conditions, water may be ice, liquid or steam.

IN A LIKE manner, the prime energy — Serge calls it "mana" — may appear as electricity, magnetism or gravity. This is why electricity can be converted into magnetism and vice versa.

Very little is known about gravity as yet, but there is no logical reason why, in addition to the electro-magnetic spectrum, there might also be a gravito-electric and gravito-magnetic spectrum as well, King offers.

Both electricity and magnetism have their polarities, and pyramid energy exhibits polarity effects too. Gravity is thought by some to be mono-polar, but King feels that the upward growth of plants, for instance, demonstrates the existence of what we can call an anti-gravity force. ("Do you realize how much anti-gravitational force it takes to lift a sequoia two hundred and fifty feet above the ground, or to push a blade of grass through a concrete sidewalk?" King asks.)

And as everyone familiar with pyramids knows, plants under those geometrical shapes are supposed to grow quickly.

Another aspect of "mana" is what King calls "life force," that mysterious quality that promotes patterned growth, regeneration of cells and sensory experience. The pyramid supposedly enhances all of these effects.

So much can be done with pyramid energy, King avers, that it seems obvious there is a common denominator. The same specific effect, such as mellowing coffee, can be produced by electricity, magnetism, sunlight, pyramids, manaplates or your own hands. Some common thread must connect them all, King insists.

THIS IS THE Law of the Elephant, he says. If it looks like an elephant, walks like an elephant, talks like an elephant, and acts like an elephant, then it's probably an elephant.

Evidence seems to point to a prime energy.

As to where the energy of a pyramid comes from, King thinks that the pyramid is a condenser — not a generator, but a condenser.

"We are living in an ocean of prime energy, an ocean which has currents such as the earth's magnetic flow. I believe the pyramid shape causes a distortion in that flow, an eddy, so to speak, where the energy becomes more condensed and thus its effects more noticeable," King says.

King, who travels around the country lecturing about the pyramid, has a standard reply, however, for those who constantly ask him "How does it work?" He borrowed it from Edison, who was constantly asked the same question about electricity: "Don't worry about how it works, just use it!"

More on treaty

William F. Buckley, Jr.

There has been much talk lately about the "exact language" of the proposed Panama Canal Treaty, and one respects the inclination to prudence. If we did not need to worry about exact language, what would we do with all our lawyers? Don't answer that question.

But, in fact, it is unlikely that Messrs. Bunker and Linowitz are engaged in duplicitous activity. The treaty may or may not be approved by the Senate. I believe it will be, and should be. There is one thing that would guarantee its disapproval, namely a substantive misrepresentation. Messrs. Bunker and Linowitz, quite apart from the fact that they are honorable men, are simply too intelligent to go in for that kind of thing. We can, I think, safely assume that the text, when it is finally Xeroxed and distributed, will not bring us any surprises. Is anybody seriously worried about it? Well, yes.

FOR INSTANCE. A bright conservative journalist wonders whether the text will disclose that United States military intervention to protect the Canal can only be invoked by an appeal from the government of Panama. We all recall that such were the terms of the SEATO Treaty: the participating powers could only send in help at the specific request of the government against which aggression was being carried out. But in the instant case, such an arrangement is inconceivable because, although the Treaty is obviously not going to footnote the item, the government of Panama is notoriously unstable.

At the hearings to discuss the treaty, skeptics are bound to deal extensively with a hypothetical situation in which the government of Panama is taken over by a Castroite instructed by the Soviet Union to close the Canal: "What rights do we have in that situation, Mr. Bunker?" If he is not in a position to say that whatever the president decides to do, he is authorized to do it under the treaty, the treaty will sink into the vasty deep. So that there are grounds for assuming, I repeat, that the text will not bring any surprises.

President Ford has said yes to the treaty, and so has Henry Kissinger. It is relevant to recall the paradoxical juxtaposition. Two years ago, Gerald Ford and Henry Kissinger pleaded with the Congress of the United States to permit us to carry out our commitment to intervene in Vietnam in the event of a violation of the Treaty of Paris. Congress did nothing. Now it is Congress that is looked to by the American people to do the cautious thing.

Messrs. Ford and Kissinger know from bitter experience that written obligations are only as good as Congressional resolution. The same Congress that would never tear up the SEATO treaty is capable of declining to accept responsibilities under it.

Hound Dog

Some tips on morning sickness

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I don't think you've ever discussed morning sickness. I've been losing weight because of it. I am only a couple of months pregnant, and at this rate I'll be a rail before the time comes to deliver. How long does this go on? I get so I can't even take liquids. — Mrs. D.Z.

Morning sickness usually lasts only a few weeks, then subsides, so you may be done with it by the time you read this. But I should discuss it, anyway, for the benefit of other women who are perhaps experiencing it at this moment.

The most recent speculation I've seen about this phenomenon is that it is somehow linked to a decrease in hydrochloric acid in the stomach. This tends to be lower in the early stage of pregnancy. It is easy to see how this deficiency could cause poor digestion and the queasy, gassy, nauseous feeling generations of women have come to know as "morning sickness."

But other women can tell you that morning is not the only time it can occur. It can occur in the morning, afternoon, or evening or, as apparently is the case with you, all day long.

I presume you are being checked by a doctor for your weight loss at this time. He would want to be sure you are at least getting the vitamins and minerals your body needs. In very rare cases, hospitalization may be necessary, but, as I mentioned, the situation is usually relieved before the end of the first three months. The chief threat is of anemia from under-nourishment.

The best rule is to avoid medications of any kind during pregnancy, but in some instances some may be needed to keep the mother-to-be healthy enough to carry through the pregnancy. Some women have reported success with small, frequent dry feedings of carbohydrate foods. A cracker before getting up in the morning can help. It's best to avoid excess fluids. For women who have morning sickness during the day, periodic rest can help.

Dr. Dr. Thosteson: I want to know if diverticulosis will cause a big stomach. Will it cause swelling? I swell in the stomach, making me look nine months pregnant. — M.H.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I believe that once a person receives salvation, they remain saved forever. One answer in your column gave me the impression that you believe that a person who receives Christ and then leads a "wild" life, may not go to Heaven. What is your belief in this matter?—M.J.

DEAR M.J.: It is true that once a person has been truly saved, in the full meaning of that term, there is nothing that can deny him the fruits of that salvation. "I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord" (Romans 8:38, 39). Jesus said: "I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand" (John 10:28). These great assurances are given to those who have received salvation. But if a person claims to be saved, yet denies the truth of that experience by living a sinful life, then I question the fact of their salvation.

To be saved is a three-fold experience. You are saved from the penalty of past sins, you are constantly being saved from sin in the present and you are assured of complete salvation in Heaven. The evidence of salvation is not the boast of being saved from the penalty of past sins, but rather the clear indication of being saved from sinning day by day.

Christians will always show the evidence in their lives that Christ is gaining the victory and gradually saving them from further sinning. Paul described the gospel as "the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth" (Romans 1:16). When someone tells me they are saved, I expect to see the evidence of that power in their lives.

WASHINGTON — The big game hunters who are slaughtering endangered animals may have found an ally at the Interior Dept.

The hunters are taking careful aim at the list of endangered species, which protects such rapidly vanishing animals as the leopard, zebra, antelope, quail and Mexican duck. If the hunters water down the safeguards, they will be able to kill and import greater numbers of the imperiled animals. Should restrictions be lifted, for example, the sleek leopard may soon be seen nowhere except in the windows of chic fur salons.

Until recently, the United States has been leading the fight against wholesale slaughter of endangered animals. But that policy has now been jeopardized by the Interior Dept.'s top official in charge of protecting wildlife.

HE IS THE pipe-smoking, personable Robert Herbst, who has quietly caved in to the demands of the hunting lobby. He will permit a hunter to be one of two private U.S. representatives to an international conference which will decide whether many endangered species will survive. That decision, fumed one environmentalist, "is like sending a member of the Ku Klux Klan to an international conference on human rights to provide 'balance' to the delegation."

Herbst insists, however, that the hunters should have a vote at the convention. "They represent a certain element of the conservation community that has a right to be heard," he told us. "I just saw it as a fair thing to do."

Herbst made up his mind after huddling privately with three officials of Safari Clubs International. Even though the hunters fiercely opposed U.S. policy on endangered species, Herbst permitted the Safari officials to choose one of their own to attend the conference. Growled one Interior official: "Everybody found out about it after the fact."

During Herbst's recent tenure as Minnesota's top environmental official, the Interior Dept. formally threatened to take him to court for allegedly authorizing the slaughter of endangered timber wolves. Herbst maintained the regulations were confusing.

We have discovered that Herbst misled the Senate when he testified at his confirmation hearings that he tried to change the Wolf's status from "endangered" to "threatened." We have obtained a letter in which Herbst requested that Minnesota wolves be removed from all federal protection.

The hunters, however, were so impressed with Herbst's previous performance that they enthusiastically supported him at his Senate confirmation hearings.

LIKELY CHOICE: Rep. Clement Zablocki, D.-Wis., a one-time choir director and organizer who now chairs the House International Relations Committee, is not exactly shy about tooting his own horn.

Recently, for example, Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill asked a number of House chairmen for nominees to serve on the new committee on intelligence. Five respected congressmen on the International Relations Committee vied for the opportunity. Zablocki carefully surveyed the available talent and decided on an even better choice — himself.

Zablocki told us he had asked for and received the speaker's permission before selecting himself. He has developed expertise in the intelligence field, he added.

O'Neill was reportedly miffed at the plodding but amiable Zablocki for picking himself. A spokesman for O'Neill officially denied this.

THIS ISN'T the first time the Milwaukee congressman has promoted his own candidacy. Last February, Zablocki raised a ruckus when someone else was chosen as chairman of the House delegation to the North Atlantic Assembly.

"I feel as chairman of the committee I should be chairman of the delegation," he whined to O'Neill. The speaker scolded Zablocki and the congressman threatened to pick up his marbles and go home.

Zablocki later changed his mind about quitting the delegation. But he's now learned the rules well enough to make sure he's chosen for the important games.

INDOCHINA UPDATE: North Vietnamese pilots have been flying some of the sophisticated U.S. jet fighters, bombers and transport planes that were left behind when Saigon fell. They are astounded, say our sources, at the technical assistance and knowledge the United States shared with South Vietnam. The Soviets gave the North Vietnamese plenty of supplies but would never relinquish their technical expertise.

The Communists in Laos, say diplomatic sources, are anxiously trying to secure U.S. economic aid. They continually bring up the subject on their radio broadcasts and to visiting U.S. diplomats. In return, the Laotians may offer to help find missing U.S. pilots shot down over their country.

When the brutal Khmer Rouge Communists took over Cambodia in 1975, thousands of refugees fled to Thailand and Vietnam. At first, the refugees were returned to Cambodia.

Dear Editor: The proposed giveaway of the Panama Canal by the Peanut Puss Carter has to be the biggest sellout in history.

Not only are they wanting to give the canal to a communist dictator, they also want to give him hundreds of millions of the taxpayers' money for taking it!

Now, isn't it wonderful to pay taxes to where you can't pay off the mortgage on your home and go behind every year, so that our President who says we have nothing to fear from communism gives our canal away which is just as much a part of America as California and Kansas.

Let's make President Peanut the first President in history to get 50 million letters saying NO to the sellout of America.

We also need to bombard our Congressmen and Senators and tell them to stop the sellout. It can be done.

Schlesinger: They always want more

WASHINGTON (AP)—No matter how much profit petroleum companies make, says Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, they always want more, and they don't really need it. But Schlesinger says he thinks the companies will accept the energy bill passed by the House, even with its price controls and taxes, rather than fight it to a standstill in the Senate and be stuck indefinitely with existing regulations. In his first on-the-record interview since taking office on Aug. 5, Schlesinger said the prices allowed by the bill offer petroleum companies adequate incentives to produce more oil and gas, and higher prices would risk generating excess profits for company stockholders. "Greed, of course, is an unflattering term," Schlesinger said in answer to a question about the companies' intentions. "But if one employs it, one must recognize that greed is the virtue that drives the free enterprise system, the desire to acquire substantial profits." As the nation's first secretary of energy, Schlesinger also said he will take a close look at the jacking up of world uranium prices by an international cartel, and the possible involvement of U.S. energy companies. On another subject, he said the Carter administration may favor an overland pipeline through Canada for Alaskan natural gas if it would be cheaper for U.S. consumers than a pipeline through Alaska that would require costly tanker shipments to the West Coast. U.S. and Canadian representatives are discussing the pipeline question.

Schlesinger said he may enter negotiations with Canada in time to permit a policy recommendation by President Carter soon after Congress reconvenes next Sept. 7. In the interview, conducted for an hour and a half last Friday in his White House office, Schlesinger also: —Left the door open for administration consideration of a proposal to allow petroleum companies some higher profits to be "plowed back" into further energy development. —Said the Carter administration will not try to keep oil and gas companies from moving into coal, uranium and other energy resources, at least for the present. —Said Carter's effort to discourage the spread of nuclear fuel technology that could be used for nuclear weapons has had "partial success," achieving international agreement to work on the problem.

Ridin' fence

Old Bull Durham

with Marj Carpenter

I came to work the other day and there was a sack of Bull Durham tobacco lying on the desk.
The sack looks just the same as the very first one I ever saw.
It was the Depression. As I've said before, the Depression deserves a capitol "D".
Dad came home from the garage where he worked hard all week around 9 p.m. one Saturday. We had very late suppers on Saturday because that was the night that Dad worked "late."
He washed his hands and sat down on the back porch chair in his very greasy khakis. Mother had put black oil cloth on Daddy's chair, so that he could sit down in his work clothes without alarm.
After a supper of frijole beans, milk and fried mush, Dad pushed back his chair and got out a sack of Bull Durham.
I had never seen one. My brother and I watched in silence as he rolled a cigarette. He lit the strange looking thing that kind of dipped in the middle.

My brother said, "What happened to the Camels?" Mother began to cry.
Dad said, "Oh come on, Beatrice. Bull Durham isn't bad. And it's just a nickle a sack. Or less, when it's on sale."
I know now that my parents had just completed their "worst year" financially. Dad had appendicitis. Mother had her teeth pulled. Somebody stole their car from in front of the church and it turned up in California, but needed an overhaul.
But we never really suffered like some folks did during the Depression. We had grapefruit, oranges, lemons and dates growing in the yard. Grandpa had chickens and we had eggs and chicken on Sunday.
We didn't know that beans and fried mush were cheap foods. They were good.
We thought nothing of going barefoot all summer and only wearing shoes on Sunday. We were glad to go barefoot.

We didn't understand why Dad had to work longer hours. We didn't care that Mother made our clothes. We felt lucky that Grandpa made us doll furniture and other toys by hand for Christmas.
We were excited when we got to go to the beach twice a year for our main outings. We thought it was great when we earned a nickle to go to the Saturday show by shaking all the rugs, mopping the floors and dusting the baseboards.
We understood that the only other nickle we were likely to get was a nickle for the Sunday School collection on Sunday.
We never saw a Coca Cola or an un-Coca Cola. We drank lemonade. We never had a candy bar. We ate fudge.
And Dad smoked Bull Durham. It was the Depression. And we didn't know any better, so we were happy . . . in the days when hobos came and went by the east yard fence.

Big Sur area in peril

Heavy rains feared

BIG SUR, Calif. (AP) — If heavy rains fall this winter on the blackened countryside of this lovely coastal area, 80 per cent of the fish in mountain streams will die, tons of topsoil will wash away, and flood damage could top $3 million.
The estimates come from a U.S. Forest Service team of scientists assigned to assess the environmental impact of a devastating wildfire which ravaged more than 230 square miles of hill and valley.
The scientists also want to find ways to minimize flood damage.
So far, the fire has been the worst of a series of lightning-sparked blazes that have burned more than 670 square miles of drought-stricken California countryside this summer. On Saturday, the fire here had been contained but was still burning in spots.
Floods are a major danger after large fires which burn brush and trees whose roots normally keep storm runoff from sweeping down slopes into streams unable to handle the tide.
In August 1972 rains which followed a 4,000-acre fire caused mud and rock slides which buried homes and highways and cut heavily into the tourist trade here.
The latest fire already has charred 33 times more acreage.

Bob Ettner, a hydrologist with the Forest Service team, said, "This fire is north of most developed areas, so all the mud and debris would wash right down into the Big Sur community."
"Big logs would clog waterways and rivers and the overflow would flood streets, wash out bridges and sweep away foundations."
Erosion would also leave silt, sediment and debris in streams and rivers, killing fish, their eggs, and river-bottom vegetation.
"It's really hard on the fish," Ettner said. "It's a pretty safe bet that they'll be 80 to 100 per cent wiped out. The damage will be nearly complete for 5 to 10 years."
By contrast, he said, the fire will benefit plant and animal life.
"The fire gets rid of a lot of old, dry chaparral that has no nutritive value to animals anyway . . . New grasses and herbs will grow. The new vegetation will be able to support more wildlife, and you'll actually see an increase in the number of deer and other animals." almost certainly be extensive.

Timber losses will not be great from the Big Sur fire, but the lumber industry will suffer a serious blow from other fires in the northeast corner of California and in Klamath National Forest.
"We'll begin a replanting program," Ettner said, "and the trees will be growing again within five years, but it will be 80 to 100 years before any can be cut for commercial timber."
There are some measures ecologists can take to minimize the impact of the Big Sur fire, but they need time to take effect, Ettner said.
Reseeding is one option to reduce erosion and silting of waterways.
But Ettner says this is stopgap measures, and if the rains are heavy, damage will

Three are dead in auto wreck

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Three persons are dead and a Houston man has been booked with negligent homicide following a three-car accident which dumped wreckage for 100 yards along Interstate-10 near here.
State police said the crash occurred Saturday when a small van was hit from behind by a car and shoved into the path of an approaching tractor trailer. Witnesses said the top of the van was torn off by the impact.

Pride in effort

By Bill Albright
Executive Vice President,
Big Spring Area Ch. of Commerce
Industrial Growth and Development

I was privileged to attend a really fine event last Wednesday evening. It was a recognition dinner for the McMahon Indians, state champions in the Senior Division of the teenage Baseball League.
In addition to the pride that we can share and the favorable publicity that they bring us, we can also take a page from the young people's book. This is a wonderful example of what an unselfish team effort can do. Congratulations to the team; the adults who worked with them; their manager, Don Spence; Coach Bill Battle and the parents and sponsors — ("and a little child shall lead them").
Speaking of our young people, now is the time to be thinking of support for all our forthcoming school activities whether it's academics or band, athletics or vocational, the teachers and administrators need all the help and cooperation that we can give them. They have a major and most important task in our community — actually — the future of our youngsters is greatly influenced by these educators. It wouldn't hurt a thing to let them know that we appreciate them and that we can be counted on to assist when necessary.

In the September issue of the Volunteer.

Business women hear home economist speak

The Cactus Chapter of the American Business Women's Association (ABWA) met Aug. 15 at the Texas Electric Reddy Room for a salad supper and to hear Mrs. Sandra Killough, home economist, speak.

Mrs. Killough said that 74 per cent of electricity is now generated from oil and gas and 28 per cent from lignite, a soft coal.

By 1983, she said, 56 per cent of our power will come from lignite, a fast rising source of energy.

Mrs. Killough said it takes $243 million for construction of lignite plants, one reason why electric companies have found it necessary to increase costs.

Vocational speaker was Ms. Virginia Bryant, a medication nurse at Malone-Hogan Hospital. Her shift is from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. Ms. Bryant said she enjoys her work because she feels she is helping people.

Three scholarship recipients who are sponsored by the chapter were present for the meeting. Aliene Boudreaux, who is in nursing training, Tammie Lewis, who is training to be a

Chewing Over Chick Tooth Dispute

DEAR ABBY: My son who is a junior in high school has an English teacher who must have a warped sense of humor. She recently gave her students an assignment, of which I think you should be aware.

She asked them to write a "Dear Abby" letter, and she told them to make them as wild and far-out as possible, but also to make them believable.

I don't know the literary value she thinks there is to this kind of creative writing. I imagine by this time, you have become an expert at detecting the phony letters, but I want to warn you that about 40 of them will be coming your way soon.

This is modern education?
RAT PINK MOTHER IN CLEVELAND

DEAR FINK: No matter how "wild" the students' phony letters are, they couldn't possibly match some of the authentic ones I receive.

DEAR ABBY: Someone asked if chickens had teeth, and you said they didn't.

Essentially you were correct, but if you want to get technical, every chicken is born with a single tooth. It's called an "egg tooth," and is located on the end of the upper beak. This egg tooth is the means by which a chick breaks the eggshell to gain entrance into the world. The tooth falls off a couple of days after hatching.

HENRY HAHN

DEAR HENRY: You certainly laid a new one on me with that story about the egg tooth. Sure it's not a yolk?

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I went to a restaurant with my best friend and her husband, who I'll call "Al." The bill came to $55, and the men paid the bill with $60. The waiter didn't return with the change, so Al called him back and asked for the change. The waiter looked puzzled, but he gave him the change and a dirty look.

Well, this couple asked us to go on a vacation with them, and we said we'd go, but that was before we knew that Al didn't believe in tipping. (He says as a matter of principle he refuses to pay somebody else's help.)

We'd really like to vacation with them because we enjoy their company, but my husband isn't sure he can put up with the embarrassment of being with a guy who refuses to tip.

Answer soon because we don't know what to do.
STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: If you enjoy their company, go! Your husband can tip for HIS share of the check while Al sticks to his principles.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the bride-to-be who wanted her real father, instead of her stepfather, to give her away, even though she said that her real father had disappeared during the most important years of her life, and her stepfather had been more like a "real" father to her.

I had that decision to make a few years ago, and the circumstances were identical. My parents were divorced when I was 2 years old. (My father left my mother for another woman.) I figured that my real father had already "given me away" once, so when it came time for me to marry, I chose my stepfather to give me away. I have never regretted it.

Alcoholic's fiction has basis in fact

NEW YORK (AP)— 8 Ten ago Joyce Rebeta-Burditt was an alcoholic. "Two years away from brain damage, five years away from death," about to lose her husband and children and suffering from a nervous breakdown.

Today she is an attractive, healthy woman, proud mother of three teenagers, secure in her marriage of 20 years, a television program executive and author of a successful book.

She is also a member of Alcoholics Anonymous and a "recovering" alcoholic.

"We call it 'recovering' because like diabetes it can't be cured, and because you keep getting better all the time," explained the slim, dark-haired author of the "The Cracker Factory," a novel which she frankly admits is autobiographical.

It's the story of an alcoholic suburban housewife who winds up in a psychiatric ward after she tries in her despair to overdose on children's aspirin. With the help of a psychiatrist and AA she makes her way back to sobriety.

"I always wanted to tell that story, which was so vivid in my memory, and I always wanted to write. My 35th birthday was coming up and I thought it was time to start doing what I wanted to do," said Ms. Rebeta-Burditt, 38, in an interview.

"But it was one thing to reveal my life, and another to reveal the lives of those around me," she says, adding that her daughter, 15, and sons, 17, and 19, "like the book a lot." Her husband, writer, George Burditt, gave her "total support."

Married at 18, she "started producing children at a rapid rate," and by 22 was drinking seriously. Between 26 and 28, she says, it was a "downhill run."

"I was an almost instant alcoholic," she says. "In six years I went through all the physical and emotional stages of an alcoholic. If you have a physiological predisposition and you drink, the results are almost inevitable unless something intervenes."

The results in her case were that she was in a mental hospital for the second time at the age of 28 and her husband had told her that though he really cared about her, his first priority was the children, whom she had been driving around in the car while she was drunk.

"I was very sick physically and that shocked me. My friends had tended to avoid me a lot. For the first time I was feeling the distinct possibility that I might be alone," she says. "I was literally falling apart, unable to function."

Planning to voluntarily commit herself, she decided before she packed to go to the liquor store and get what would turn out to be the last drink she has ever taken.

"I got a pint of vodka," she relates, "and after I drank it I stood and looked in the closet, wondering what does one wear to the psychiatric ward.

I ended up taking three cocktail dresses and a long coat — nothing I could wear."

For the first year and a half after she got out of the hospital, they kept no liquor in the house, situation she found reassuring. But now her husband who drinks socially, feels free to keep it around. At parties Ms. Rebeta-Burditt merely says "No thank you" when offered a drink, or drinks club soda with lemon.

"The women of AA are the strongest I know, to overcome the stigma," says the author, who feels doctors are too reluctant to say "alcoholism" to a woman because of that stigma.

"But there's nothing to feel guilty about any more than having diabetes. Alcoholism is a killer disease. Alcohol is so physiologically and psychologically addictive that people really don't believe they can live without it. It takes something significant to make them stop drinking."

"You can be protected to your death when you're a woman alcoholic," she says. "The Cracker Factory" is published by Macmillan.

A NIGHT TO WATCH THE SHOW — Veteran actress Shirley McLaine arrives at the box office Friday night in New York for the Broadway show "I Love My Wife". Miss McLaine, who has appeared in numerous Broadway productions, took the occasion to enjoy the theater from the other side of the lights.

I read your life like an open book. Tell you all you want to know. I answer all questions. I have helped thousands and thousands and I can help you out of your troubles and bad luck. I give advice on Business, Marriage and Love Affairs. Bring your problems to me and I will solve them — no matter what your problems may be.

Assembly scheduled at Westbrook

The Westbrook schools hosted an area in-service workshop Wednesday, Aug. 17. The workshop was the first for Westbrook teachers. Schools which were invited to come included Ira, Hermleigh, McCauley, Trent, Blackwell, Divide, Highland, Loraine and Roscoe.

Registration began with a coffee. Elementary teachers met in the auditorium with consultant Cathy Stallard of the University of Southern Illinois, who discussed reading. Secondary teachers studied the metric system.

From 11:15 a.m.-2:15 p.m. groups reversed the schedule and the secondary teachers studied reading and elementary teachers studied the metric system.

From 2:15 to 3 p.m. groups met in classrooms.

An assembly is scheduled for parents and students at 8:30 a.m., and buses will run.

Lions' wives entertained

Mr. and Mrs. John Quigley, 1301 Birdwell, hosted a backyard dinner for members and wives of the Thursday Lions Club Tuesday evening.

Horseshoes were played by the members. Floral arrangements decorated the picnic tables and gladiolus filled the surrounding flower beds.

Mrs. Sam Anderson and Mrs. Cannamae Rudd were guests.

Future bride honored

Miss Patricia Cherry, bride-elect of Johnie Ray Wright, was honored with a bridal shower in the home of Mrs. Roy Worley, 2904 Melrose.

Other hostesses were Mrs. Bill Hicks, Mrs. Robert Jones, Mrs. Harold Levens, Mrs. John Rhea, Mrs. Jim Thorne, Mrs. Don Newsom, Mrs. John Stencil, Mrs. Sam Majors, Mrs. Ronald Overend and Mrs. Jim Myers.

The table was set with a fresh strawberry tree offset with an antique crystal dish of cream dip. Other appointments were of silver and crystal laden with small radish sandwiches. Cheese and shrimp molds topped with fresh red and pink carnations along with assorted crackers and chips were served.

A buffet serving table was used to exhibit a centerpiece of white daisies and mums in a silver compote along with hot ham and cheese finger sandwiches and stuffed crab apples.

The honoree is the daughter of Mrs. D.L. Dorland and Ed Cherry of Big Spring. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnie D. Wright of Coahoma. The couple will be married Aug. 26 in the First Baptist Church.

Yanks riding high

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — The well-paid New York Yankees are beginning to show the rest of the American League why they command such astronomical salaries.

And, to hear third Graig Nettles tell it, the Yankees aren't feeling the pressure of a torrid pennant chase.

"This is the fun time of year," said Nettles Sunday night after he knocked in both runs with a homer and a double in a 2-1 victory over the Texas Rangers.

The Yanks edged within a half-game of the losing Boston Red Sox in American League East with their eighth consecutive victory and 13th in their last 14 games.

"Some may think this is a tense, pressurized time of year," said Nettles, who now has 29 home runs. "I think it's a lot of fun to look in the paper and see those tight races.

"I mean I spent some years at Cleveland where we were out of it in April . . . that wasn't any fun."

Nettles said "We are starting to play like we can now. The last three weeks we've really had it going . . . like today we knew Boston had lost and took advantage of it. That's how you win pennants . . . you get a break and take advantage of it."

He added "We've got a lot of hot hitters right now except (catcher) Thurmon Munson who is struggling and when he starts to hit, look out."

Ron Guidry, with relief help from Sparky Lyle, earned his 10th victory against 6 losses. Guidry went seven innings and allowed four hits and one run, striking out eight Rangers with his burning fastball.

Lyle gained his 20th save of the season by permitting Texas just one hit in the final two innings.

"Guidry has been the steadiest pitcher on the team since we brought him in from the bullpen," said Yankee Manager Billy Martin.

"Nobody believes Guidry throws the ball as hard as he does," said Nettles. "It's fun to watch teams who are seeing him for the first time. They have a hard time handling his fastball."

Robinson hangs up glove

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Brooks Robinson, whose defensive exploits have earned him a reputation as one of the finest third basemen in baseball history, says his first World Series was his biggest thrill in a 23-year professional career.

"The 1966 series has to be the biggest thrill of my career," the Baltimore great said Sunday after announcing his retirement as a player. "We were in four, but the first was the best."

He also said winning the American League's Most Valuable Player award in 1964 and a pinch-hit, game-winning homer he hit in April of this season also ranked as special personal moments.

Robinson, who became known as "The Human Vacuum Cleaner" for his defensive excellence, was regarded the premier third baseman of his time. His defensive ability brought him 16 consecutive "Gold Glove" awards from 1960 through 1975.

The Orioles, who are embroiled in a furious battle with the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox for the American League East title, asked Robinson to step down because they wanted to activate catcher Rick Dempsey.

"Our club will be a little stronger this way," said Robinson. "I wish I had 20 more years."

"I knew when I came back I'd get a lot of playing time if the young guys didn't play well," said Robinson, 40. "Just the opposite happened though. The young guys have performed extremely well."

"It's not really that big of a transition since I've been a coach all year," he said.

Robinson said he would remain as a coach through this season, but that he would then leave baseball.

"I have no ambitions to be a coach or manager," said Robinson.

In 23 seasons, Robinson played in 2,896 games and had 2,848 hits, 268 home runs and 1,357 runs batted in. He hit .317 with 28 homers and 118 rbi in his 1964 MVP season.

Robinson hit only .149 with one homer and four runs batted in while making 47 plate appearances this season. However, the homer was a three-run pinch-hit blast off Dave La-Roche in the bottom of the ninth inning that boosted Baltimore to an early-season victory over Cleveland April 19.

Carlton jumps on Astros

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Steve Carlton, with an 18-7 record, is having the kind of year that reminds people of his super years of the past.

To Philadelphia Phillies manager Danny Ozark, Carlton's performance Sunday night, in which the big left-hander allowed only five hits and struck out 14 in a 7-3 win over the Houston Astros, brought to mind 1972.

That was Carlton's first year with the Phils and he won the Cy Young Award by posting a 27-10 mark for a last-place club.

"He was kind of like five years ago," said Ozark. "He reared back and threw the fastball."

"Timmy (McCarver) had a tough time catching the ball. It was sailing and it seemed the fast ball didn't do the same thing twice."

"He only made 113 pitches and that's low for him with that many strikeouts," said Ozark.

McCarver, Carlton's designated catcher and former St. Louis Cardinal teammate, saw similarities between Sunday night's game and the one in St. Louis in 1969, in which Carlton fanned 19 but lost, 4-3, to the New York Mets as Ron Swoboda hit two home runs.

"He had superb stuff," assessed McCarver. "If there were ever a time when I would say a guy could pitch a no-hitter, it would be tonight."

Carlton lost his no-hitter early, however, giving up a home run to Houston third baseman Enos Cabell, the second Astro batter of the ball game.

Cabell also homered leading off the fourth and doubled in the ninth, scoring after two infield outs.

McCarver nominated Cabell for "Star of the Game" honors for his three hits off Carlton.

"You've got to give Cabell credit," said McCarver. "The balls he hit were right where we wanted them."

Cabell's first home run came off a fast ball low and away, the second was belt high and inside and the double was off a fast ball down the heart of the plate.

"He hit two good pitches," Carlton said of Cabell's homers. "I was kind of amazed."

Carlton, who earlier this year complained of back problems and has been nagged with soreness of the throwing arm at times in his career, said nothing was bothering him Sunday, the first Sunday night game in the club's history.

"I felt really good and the fast ball was really popping. It was one of my top fast balls this year," he said. "The ball was taking off real good."

RETIREES — Baltimore Oriole player Brooks Robinson waves his cap to the Minnesota Twins fans Sunday afternoon after it was announced that Robinson had retired Sunday as an active player. In background left is manager Earl Weaver who is clapping for the Orioles star who spent 23 years with that team.

Belton hot, Oilers not

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston rookie running back hopeful Horace Belton must have thought he was touring Grand Canyon from the holes that opened for him Saturday, despite the Oilers' eventual 14-10 loss to the Chicago Bears in a National Football League exhibition game.

"It wasn't all my running," said the former Southeastern Louisiana star, who was the game's leading rusher with 60 yards on 10 carries. "Some of those holes were so pretty I wanted to stop and take a look at them."

Instead, Belton plunged ahead and joined rookies Tim Wilson and Rob Carpenter as running backs capable of making the roster.

Belton personally gained 50 yards in a 65 yard Houston drive that led to a 30-yard field goal by Skip Butler but a pair of fourth down clutch plays by the Bears preserved the victory.

Chicago took a 7-3 halftime lead on a two-yard pass from quarterback Mike Phipps to Johnny Musso after Houston's defense had stopped three straight running plays from inside the two-yard line.

After Houston had taken a 10-7 lead in the third quarter on Had's 22-yard TD strike to rookie Jimmy Giles, Chicago came back to score the winning touchdown on a one-yard, fourth down plunge by Roland Harper with 8:40 left in the game.

Chicago wide receiver Bo Rather, coming off a hyper-extended knee injury from last season, keyed the TD with a clutch 40-yard catch from Bob Avellini that gave the Bears a first down at Houston's five.

Belton was another surprise in a growing list of promising young running backs. "I just got the ball, looked for a hole and took off," Belton said. "I saw last week our offensive line had some spark, and I knew if I ran like I'm capable, I could help this team."

Chicago's victory gave the Bears a 3-1 exhibition record while Houston dropped its third straight this preseason and its ninth straight exhibition loss over the past two years.

"We played well enough to win," Oiler Coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips said. "We played a lot better than we did last week. We had some opportunities to put points on the board and that was with a lot of people."

"Last year we couldn't make a first down with the regulars. As long as we have a chance to win, you've got to feel you're getting better."

El Paso ties Midland

By the Associated Press

The Texas League West Division tightened up Sunday night as El Paso slipped ahead of San Antonio to a virtual tie with leader Midland.

El Paso clipped San Antonio, 10-5, while Midland was trimming Amarillo 7-3. In the only other contest, Jackson nipped Shreveport 7-6.

Midland stayed in first place by percentage points with its win over Amarillo. Joe Hernandez paced the Cubs with a triple and two singles. Mike Umfleet chipped in with a double and triple for three RBIs. Ivan Murrell pumped his 22nd home run for Amarillo. Jeff Albert picked up the win and is now 8-11. Rusty Gerhardt took the loss and dropped to 4-8.

El Paso led 8-1 after the first three innings and ended up the night with 17 singles. Steve Strouther slammed a three-run homer in the first inning to set the pace for the night. He added two doubles and a single before it was all over. Chuck Porter picked up his seventh win against a single loss, while Bob Welch dropped to 3-3.

Jackson rallied for four runs in the ninth inning to clip Shreveport. Marshall Brant paced the Mets with four hits and four RBIs. Ernie Young's four hits and three RBIs kept the Captains close. Larry Prewitt got the win in relief and nailed down his first victory in six decisions. Randy Brandt was the loser, slipping to 2-1.

Austin likes winning

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — It took Debbie Austin more than nine years to win on the Ladies Pro Golf Association tour. Now the rest of the pros would like to know how long she intends to keep on winning.

Miss Austin won her second straight tournament and third in four weeks Sunday by capturing the $50,000 Wheeling LPGA Classic by one stroke over fast-finishing Hollis Stacy. Miss Austin, who shot a 67 in Friday's opening round, finished with a tournament record 209 — three strokes better than any previous winner in the four-year history of the Wheeling tournament.

Miss Stacy, shooting a 67, narrowly missed forcing a playoff as a late rally fell short. She birdied two of the final four holes.

Miss Austin held a three-shot lead over Miss Stacy with three holes to go, but bogeyed the par-four 16th and 17th holes, while Miss Stacy birdied the 450-yard, par-five 18th hole to put the pressure right back on. On 18, Miss Austin's drive struck a cart path and bounded into the fairway, while her approach shot flew onto the back of the green about 40 feet from the cup.

She then went for the cup on the long, down-hill putt, just missing an eagle while rolling the ball three feet downside of the hole. She then easily made the short putt to capture her fifth tour victory of the season.

"It took me a long time to win out here, and now that I'm doing it, I want to keep on doing it some more," Miss Austin said.

The Figure Seven Tennis Center will sponsor a Junior Development Program for young tennis players beginning Aug. 30.

The program will be offered for junior high aged students, Tuesday through Friday, from 4 to 6 p.m. Cost per person is $25.

The aim of the program is to help those who join to become good competitive players, according to Barry Stephens, program director. If enough interest is shown, out-of-town competition will be provided.

For more information, contact Stephens at 267-7777.

New officers were elected recently for the Big Spring Tennis Association, and a number of activities have already been planned for the coming season.

Sherill Easterling was elected president of the association, while Woody Mann became vice president. Lana Coats was elected secretary-treasurer, and Ann Weaver was appointed social chairman.

As one of the first activities of the coming season, a doubles tournament has been scheduled for Saturday. Three divisions of men and women players will compete, and a social dinner will be served following the tourney.

Scratch Division champs at this weekend's Big Spring Golf Association tourney were team members Bernard Rains and Mike Weaver who shot a 132 for both days.

Jimmy Newsom and Robert Caffey took second with a 136. Handicap flight champs were Carl Small and John Arrick who shot a 132.

According to tournament officials, both winning teams took an early lead, and didn't budge from it the entire weekend.

Winners in the Big Spring Tennis Association Tournament were also announced today.

Jamey Easterling was victorious in the men's A-Division singles competition, while Vicky Murphy took the trophy in A-Division women's singles play.

Other winners included: Vic Coats, men's B-Division singles; Lynda Redwine, women's B-Division singles; Aubrey Weaver, men's C-Division singles.

Big Spring's Steers kick off their only scrimmage of the season 7 p.m. Friday at Memorial Stadium against Sweetwater. The public is invited to see what kind of talent Coach Don Robbins has pulled together this year.

Coahoma's Bulldogs will scrimmage Friday against the Stanton Buffs at Coahoma High School. That clash will get under way at 7 p.m.

Who's best in Midwest?

CHICAGO (AP) — Michigan, Notre Dame and Oklahoma: that's how they stack up alphabetically in the Midwest, but take them in any order desired and one could come up with the national collegiate football championship rankings this season.

Michigan, with only Ohio State to fight off, is favored to win another Big Ten football title; Oklahoma is the choice in the Big Eight, and Notre Dame could field its best team since winning the 1973 national crown.

The Mid-American Conference doesn't figure to produce a contender for the national title but will have a wide-open race within its confines. Ball State will have a tough time defending the surprising title it claimed last year.

Defense is the key for Notre Dame, which suffered a couple of unexpected losses in the offensive backfield. Al Hunter, who became the first Irish back to gain more than 1,000 yards in a season, ran afoul of university rules and was suspended. Another blow was the academic loss of Willard Browner, who also was expected to be in the starting backfield.

All 11 defensive starters are back including ends Ross Browner and Willie Fry and back Luther Bradley. Coach Dan Devine has picked Rusty Lisch as his quarterback. Veterans Joe Montana and Gary Forystek are in the wings.

The Big Ten title showdown will be at Ann Arbor Nov. 19, but it looks like Michigan all the way over a tough Ohio State team.

Even without running back Rob Lytle and wingback Jim Smith, who accounted for half of Michigan's yardage last season, Coach Bo Schembechler calls his Wolverines the "most veteran offensive team I've had in some time."

The offense centers around quarterback Rick Leach, who, although only a junior, already has played in as many college games as the immortal Tom Harmon did in his career. Harlan Huckleby and Russell Davis will do the running.

Ohio State tied Michigan, for the Big Ten title last year and went on to defeat Big Eight co-champion Colorado 27-10 in the Orange Bowl and Coach Woody Hayes flatly states "We expect to have another good football team this year."

How good should be determined Sept. 24 when the Buckeyes take on the powerful Oklahoma Sooners. Ohio State should have an explosive offense with elusive Rod Gerald at quarterback. Jeff Logan gained 1,248 yards last season and is back again. Ron Springs has great breakaway potential.

Oklahoma has 18 starters returning and not only is favored to win the Big Eight but could claim its third national championship in four years.

The Sooners wishbone will be directed by quarterback Thomas Lott, who will hand off to the likes of Elvis Peacock, Kenny King and Billy Sims. Lott does not figure to throw much. He attempted 12 last year in the seven games he played and completed only two with three of them being intercepted.

Linebacker Daryl Hunt and defensive back Zac Henderson anchor the Oklahoma defense.

There'll be a scramble behind Oklahoma in the Big Eight. Colorado has an awesome offensive line and Coach Bill Mallory hopes leading junior college rusher Eddie Walker will do the job.

Oklahoma State has running back Terry Miller, a top Heisman candidate, returning after gaining 1,600 yards, but he's about all. Nebraska lost six top players including quarterback Vince Ferragamo.

Missouri, which defeated Southern Cal and Ohio State last season, could be a factor in the Big Eight race. Coach Al Onofrio has Pete Woods returning at quarterback to throw to Joe Stewart and Leo Lewis.

Iowa State's hopes were dashed along with quarterback Buddy Hardeman's academic difficulties. But the Cyclones have running back Dexter Green, who gained more than 1,000 yards last season.

WIN AND BEAR IT — Westchester Golf Classic winner Andy North wasn't all smiles during play Sunday when he won the Classic at the Westchester Country Club with a 12 under par 272. Here he reacts after a bad tee shot at the 16th hole, which he bogeyed.

North wins Westchester

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Andy North almost skipped the tournament that provided him the breakthrough into the winners' ranks of the pro golf tour.

"I was so discouraged after the PGA, really down, I didn't know if I'd even come here," North said after winning his first pro title by two strokes in the rich Westchester Classic.

"This is the sweetest game there's ever been," the 6-foot-4, 27-year-old North said. "You can play two rounds exactly the same and shoot 65 one day and 80 the next. It's just the difference of the ball bouncing right or wrong, making a putt here and there."

"It's a crazy way to try to make a living."

North, who missed three cuts in a row when he was playing well and feeling good, came to suburban New York with an aching back and some reluctance. And he became the ninth first-time winner this season, shooting a final-round par-71 over the hilly, 6,803-yard Westchester Country Club course.

His 12-under-par total of 272 was two strokes better than former Masters champion George Archer, who came out of the pack and took second with a final-round 67.

North started the mild, hazy final round with a three-stroke lead and wasn't really challenged. His closest pursuers took themselves out with a variety of problems, a double bogey-bogey start by Leonard Thompson, double bogey-bogey by Howard Twitty on the eighth and ninth holes, and a double bogey by Tom Weiskopf on the 11th.

Weiskopf, however, hung on for third at 72-276, four strokes back of the winner, with George Burns, 66, and Andy Bean, 69, next at 277.

Masters and British Open champion Tom Watson was another shot back after a closing 71.

Cuban breaks records

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — Cuba's Alberto Juantorena and Alejandro Casanas, who passed up the 400-meter run at the World University games, he will race the event at Duesseldorf in an effort to repeat his two gold medals at the Montreal Olympics.

Lee Evans of the United States set the 400-meter world record of 43.86 at the Mexico City Olympics nine years ago. Juantorena's winning time at Montreal was 44.26.

Casanas was edged out of the gold medal at Montreal by France's Guy Druet, who clocked 13.30 to 13.33.

If the Boston Red Sox and Kansas City Royals wind up in the American League playoffs, the home field advantage might be the deciding factor.

"They don't like to play here," Royals outfielder Tom Poquette said Sunday after Kansas City beat the Red Sox 6-4 on Kansas City's artificial turf and swept the three-game series between the division leaders. The two teams split the season series 5-5, with each side holding a 4-1 advantage at home.

Meanwhile, Boston's AL East lead diminished to one-half game over New York when the surging Yankees 8-1 defeated the Texas Rangers 2-1 for their eighth consecutive triumph and 13th in the last 14 games and climbed into second place when the Baltimore Orioles, who are 1 1/2 games out, lost to the Minnesota Twins 9-5.

In the West, the Royals lead Chicago — the White Sox split a doubleheader with the Milwaukee Brewers, losing 7-1 and winning 6-3 — and Minnesota by one game and Texas by 1 1/2.

In other games, the California Angels shaded the Toronto Blue Jays 3-2, the Cleveland Indians downed the Oakland A's 4-1 and the Detroit Tigers edged the Seattle Mariners 5-4.

The Royals, who have won 16 of their last 18 home games, broke a 3-3 tie by tagging Boston relief ace Bill Campbell for three runs in the eighth inning. Campbell had two victories and a pair of saves in five previous appearances against the Royals.

Campbell relieved starter Don Aase with the score tied in the seventh and retired the side. However, Al Cowens opened the eighth with a single and one out later, Darrell Porter also singled and Amos Otis walked, loading the bases.

A walk to pinch hitter Joe Lahoud forced in the lead run and Poquette, who doubled in the fifth inning and scored the tying run on George Brett's triple, followed with a high bouncer to first baseman Scott and beat Campbell to the bag as both Porter and Otis scored.

Yankees 2, Rangers 1 Graig Nettles knocked in both Yankees runs with a homer and a double and reliever Sparky Lyle earned his 20th save. Lyle was nicked for a run-scoring single by Juan Beniquez in the eighth inning and survived a leadoff walk in the ninth in preserving Ron Guidry's 10th victory.

Twins 9, Orioles 5 Lyman Bostock drove in three runs with a sacrifice fly, single and home run and Ron Schueler hurled 4 1-3 innings of one-hit relief as Minnesota ended Baltimore's three-game winning streak. Trailing 5-4, the Twins chased Rudy May with a four-run sixth.

No formal Farm service for Marx

LOS ANGELES (AP) - About 30 friends and family members attended a private memorial service for comedian Groucho Marx and reminisced about the man "whose whole life was making people laugh."

"I still can't believe that Groucho is gone," said screenwriter Irving Brecher, a friend of the most famous of the Marx Brothers for 39 years. "I think he must still be around somewhere, because I don't think he'd leave without a good exit line."

No formal services were planned for Marx. His body was to be cremated, possibly today, according to his son, Arthur. The private gathering was held Sunday in the son's Bel Air home.

Groucho, born Julius Marx, died Friday night at age 86 after lapsing into unconsciousness with a mild form of pneumonia. He had been in and out of the Cedars-Sinai Medical Center all year, plagued by a broken hip and the complaints of old age.

Prior to Sunday's private memorial, some of Groucho's longtime colleagues expressed surprise over the lack of arrangements.

"I was closer to him than anybody," said actor and comedian George Jessel. "I was the only person who could make him laugh these last six months. I haven't heard anything."

Comedian George Burns echoed Jessel's confusion, saying Sunday morning that he was still "waiting to find out myself."

Arthur Marx said that those at his house had been excluded from close contact with his father since Erin Fleming became Groucho's companion more than five years ago. Miss Fleming and Arthur Marx had been involved in a court battle over Groucho's estate. Gagwriter Nat Perrin was awarded charge of the estate for a brief period until last July, when Arthur's son Andrew was made permanent guardian.

The mourners included Brecher, Harpo Marx' widow and son, Perrin, movie producer Irwin Allen, and screenwriter Morrie Ryskind. Ryskind wrote "Animal Crackers" and "A Night at the Opera."

"It's such a strange feeling up there," Arthur told reporters outside his house. "Everybody has said we finally got back together again after all these years ..."

"That's the kind of service my father wanted. It's too bad he can't be here ..."

TEXAS TECH AG PAVILION - Construction is under way at Texas Tech University for this agricultural pavilion which will be used for laboratory instruction and special events.

Ag Pavilion work is under way at Lubbock

LUBBOCK - Construction is under way on Texas Tech University's Agricultural Pavilion, expected to be completed in time for fall semester, 1978, classes.

The structure will have 37,451 square feet and will be used primarily as a facility for laboratory sessions for animal science students.

It will also house continuing education events, at which beef and swine producers, horse breeders, and others will present lectures and demonstrations.

Student organizations, such as the Block and Bridle Club, 4-H or FFA, will be able to use the arena for their functions.

According to Dr. A. Max Lennon, newly-appointed assistant dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences, this will not only give these organizations indoor facilities to use, eliminating weather problems, but it will also introduce prospective students to the university.

The main portion of the structure, situated west of the Brownfield Highway, is a 100 by 200-foot arena. It will be used in laboratory instruction in such subjects as animal production and management, and will have the capacity to hold three separate, on-going lab sessions simultaneously.

The north end of the building will house the animal holding pens, for temporary stabling of animals used in the laboratories; animal working facilities, for such activities as dehorning cattle, and an area for cleaning the animals before their use.

Two wings will stretch from the arena on the front of the building. The wing on the north end will house approximately 15 horse holding pens, as well as a tack room and storage facilities. The south wing will hold two classrooms for as many as 40 students each, or one classroom for 80 students when a dividing panel between the rooms is removed.

The south wing will also house a kitchen for use during special events. Two offices will complete the south wing.

All courses meet the Texas Real Estate Commission requirements in education and for obtaining a Real Estate License.

Real estate courses are valuable not only to people interested in obtaining a license but also anyone who owns or is interested in real property.

Instructors in the program for the fall semester are Del Austin, Rufus Rowland, Bobby McDonald and Theron Lee.

A Real Estate Principles class and a Law class are being offered in the mornings for the benefit of those who do not find it convenient to attend at night. The remaining classes are scheduled in the evening where up to four courses may be completed during the fall semester.

Registration at Howard College starts Thursday.

Grain ticket prices down

Grain sorghum target prices for 1977 will be $3.75 cwt. This is according to USDA's latest calculation and is down from the $4.02 level earlier expected by GSPA.

The drop comes as a result of USDA using the average of 1974 and 1975 cost of production instead of 1975-76.

The dramatic increase in cost of production in 1975 and 1976 will boost 1978 target prices to about $4.27 cwt., USDA sources indicated.

Under the new 1977 farm bill, grain sorghum targets will be set in relation to the cost of production. This is a result of years of work by Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board and Grain Sorghum Producers Association in studying production cost and fSPA initiating legislation in 1973 that required USDA to do an in-depth study of production cost.

'Starvation' in energy is predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) - The top executive officer of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association says a national program of energy conservation "will eventually become nothing more than a program of energy starvation" unless new fuel supplies are developed.

"There is no way we can even begin to conserve enough energy over all to meet the growing future needs of America," Robert D. Partridge said in remarks prepared for the opening session Monday of a two-day energy-conservation conference.

In a survey last week of half of its nearly 1,000 member systems, the association learned that the members will have to buy an estimated $1 billion worth of wire, transformers, poles, meters, insulators and other equipment next year to distribute electricity.

An earlier survey had found that the rural electric co-ops want to invest $6 billion in 1978 for generating and transmission facilities.

The member co-ops, which serve about 8.1 million farms, ranches, rural homes and businesses, expect to hook up about 350,000 new meters next year and oversee 9.73 million meters, or 30 million persons, by 1982. An anticipated doubling of consumer demand in Alaska is largely responsible for the projected increase.

Manure offered circus goers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Visitors to the 124th Ohio State Fair have been invited to help cut down on cleanup costs for the visiting Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Thrill Circus by taking home animal manure.

Leaflets handed out at the fair Sunday offered fairgoers all the animal waste they can carry home, for use in gardens or farms as a soil enricher.

Circus officials estimated they would have a ton of waste from elephants, llamas, and other circus animals, to dispose of daily.

No formal Farm service for Marx

LOS ANGELES (AP) — About 30 friends and family members attended a private memorial service for comedian Groucho Marx and reminisced about the man "whose whole life was making people laugh."

"I still can't believe that Groucho is gone," said screenwriter Irving Brecher, a friend of the most famous of the Marx Brothers for 39 years. "I think he must still be around somewhere, because I don't think he'd leave without a good exit line."

No formal services were planned for Marx. His body was to be cremated, possibly today, according to his son, Arthur. The private gathering was held Sunday in the son's Bel Air home.

Groucho, born Julius Marx, died Friday night at age 86 after lapsing into unconsciousness with a mild form of pneumonia. He had been in and out of the Cedars-Sinai Medical Center all year, plagued by a broken hip and the complaints of old age.

Prior to Sunday's private memorial, some of Groucho's longtime colleagues expressed surprise over the lack of arrangements.

"I was closer to him than anybody," said actor and comedian George Jessel. "I was the only person who could make him laugh these last six months. I haven't heard anything."

Comedian George Burns echoed Jessel's confusion, saying Sunday morning that he was still "waiting to find out myself."

Arthur Marx said that those at his house had been excluded from close contact with his father since Erin Fleming became Groucho's companion more than five years ago. Miss Fleming and Arthur Marx had been involved in a court battle over who should be guardian of Groucho's estate. Gagwriter Nat Perrin was awarded charge of the estate for a brief period until last July, when Arthur's son Andrew was made permanent guardian.

The mourners included Brecher, Harpo Marx' widow and son, Perrin, movie producer Irwin Allen, and screenwriter Morrie Ryskind. Ryskind wrote "Animal Crackers" and "A Night at the Opera."

"It's such a strange feeling up there," Arthur told reporters outside his house. "Everybody has said we finally got back together again after all these years."

"That's the kind of service my father wanted. It's too bad he can't be here ..."

To point out 'm' Davis

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — blonde Fort Worth socialite Pr Davis took the stand again morning to point a finger at estranged husband Cullen — the "in black" she claims shot her killed her lover and her 12-year stepdaughter.

"Good luck," a well-wisher she shook hands with Mrs. Davis came to the courtroom surrounded by deputies and guards. The sl Mrs. Davis, 36, wore a pink suit white ruffled blouse which contrast with the revealing costumes she often at social affairs in Fort Worth.

As she has done previously Davis was expected to point-estranged husband as the guilty who triggered the shooting of her showplace mansion last year. She is the state's key witness case.

She spent much of the morning identifying color snapshots inside and outside the mansion correlating them with a pointed large chart mounted in front of the jury box.

She testified only briefly Monday and did not touch on the shooting.

Davis is on trial for the slaying of her husband, Cullen, 32, accused also of the shooting of Stan Farr, 30, and the woman Priscilla and a young visitor mansion, Gus Gavrel.

A bitterly disappointed learned Monday that a Fort judge had denied his application bond, thus ending his testimony.
