Majority Interest In AM Plant Acquired

Roger Wheeler, Tulsa businessman and one of the founders of American Magnesium in Snyder, has acquired the majority interest in the American Magnesium Co. and has become the operator of the Snyder plant.

The announcement, anticipated for the past several weeks, was made shortly after noon Friday by Grover Eaton who has been named general manager of the Snyder plant, effective April 1.

The official release announced that Snyder Magnesium Co., headed by Wheeler, had acquired the majority interest in the American Magnesium Co. here.

Snyder Magnesium Co. acquired all the interst of National Steel Corporation, and the latter company has withdrawn from further participation in the Snyder plant operations. Snyder Magnesium also has arranged increased financing for the operations, a company spokesman said.

Wheeler has been involved in the Snyder plant since the beginning of construction in 1968, and he stated that he has high hopes that plant capacity would be increased in the future. "This opportunity will be studied over the next few months," Wheeler said.

Ray Engelhardt, formerly general manager of the Snyder plant, has elected to remain with National Steel Corp. He will be moving in May to become vice president of manufacturing of National Pipe and Tube at Liberty, Tex.

Engelhardt has been general manager of the Snyder plant since 1975. He is president-elect of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce and he also has been active in the Snyder Kiwanis Club.

Eaton has been plant manager in Snyder for several years and is stepping up to the general manager's position. The Snyder plant, located 10 miles southwest of Snyder, employs about 200 persons.

Diggs Enters Plea

WASHINGTON (AP)-Rep. Charles Diggs, a 12-term congressman from Michigan pleaded innocent today to charges that he received more than $101,000 in kickbacks from employees on his federal payroll.

Diggs entered the plea at his arraignment before U.S. District Judge Joseph C. Waddy. Diggs was charged in a 35-count indictment March 21.

Waddy set June 26 as a tentative trial date.

Ballots Get Go-Ahead

AUSTIN (AP)-Local election officials had the word today they could start printing the May 6 Democratic primary ballots.

The go-ahead came late Thursday after the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals refused to give opponents of a referendum on horse racing betting an injunction to further delay preparation of the ballots.

However, State Democratic Chairman Calvin Guest warned there might still be more court action.

Summit Clouded

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP)-The Common Market summit is being overshadowed by unhappiness over President Carter's policy on the falling dollar and deliveries of nuclear fuel to Europe.

The Europeans want more action from the U.S. government to bolster the price of the dollar on world exchanges.

"It is part of the world problem which calls for more stable currencies," said Danish Prime Minister Anker Joergensen, chairman of the meeting, which opens today and ends Saturday.

Hart Guarded Closely

McALESTER, Okla. (AP)-A stoic Gene Leroy Hart, charged in the grisly slayings of three Girl Scouts at a northeastern Oklahoma summer camp last June, was under close guard at the state prison here today 10 months after he eluded the largest manhunt in Oklahoma history.

Production Of Bomb Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter today announced he will delay production of neutron warheads and watch for the Soviets to show restraint in both conventional and nuclear arms.

In a brief statement at the White House, the president said the ultimate decision on the production of neutron weapons will be made later and "will be influenced by the degree to which the Soviet Union shows restraint in its conventional and nuclear arms programs and force deployments affecting the security of the United States and Western Europe."

Carter added that he has ordered the Defense Department to proceed with modernization of nuclear warheads for the Lance missile and 8-inch artillery but leave "open the option of installing the enhanced radiation or neutron elements" at some future time.

Carter made clear by his statement that he expects some action on the part of the Russians in response to his move to defer production of the neutron warheads, thus using the new weapon as a "bargaining chip" in arms limitation talks.

Neutron warheads are designed to kill primarily by use of radiation. The weapons have smaller blast and shock effects than traditional nuclear weapons. Military officials say the weapon was designed for use against Soviet tank crews in any Russian invasion of Western Europe.

Critics of the weapon have said its limited blast and shock damage would make it more tempting to use, thereby adding to risk of a nuclear war.

Keeping tab on our neighbors:

Orlin Brewer of the Vernon Record, commenting on the quickening political activity with the approach of the primary election, said some lawns in Vernon already have enough campaign signs to offer a Christmas tree effect.

This type of campaigning has not developed in Snyder and in our opinion both the citizenry and the candidates are fortunate that it hasn't. It would be another expense to the candidates and it would create a lot of needless litter. Also, we suspect that yard posters have very little influence on the voters. In fact, we doubt that they serve any purpose at all, except proclaim the yard owner's political leaning--and you could not even be certain of that.

We noticed a lot of these little cardboard yard signs in San Antonio a couple of weeks ago, some for school and city candidates and some for county and state hopefuls. And if we read them correctly, some yards had signs for two or more candidates for the same office.

If Farm Bill OK'd...

Early Strike Results Seen

The hoped for results of the 1978 farmers strike may be reaped early if an emergency farm bill currently before the Congress and Senate is passed, said local farmer Bill Houston.

Houston, a striking farmer and a supporter of the American Agriculture Movement, said the bill calls for an increase in price as production of corn, wheat, and cotton decreases.

Known as the 1978 Emergency Farm Bill, the bill is an amendment to the 1977 Farm Bill, Houston said. The bill emerged from the Senate-House Conference Committee Wednesday morning and is currently [illegible] action.

"In the bill they're calling for a corn set aside of 10-35-50 percent, a wheat set aside of 20-35-50 percent, and a cotton set aside of 20-35-50 percent," said Houston.

"A drastic decrease in production will be offset by a drastic increase in price," added Houston, "with three options depending on what route you prefer to go."

Although the farmer who cuts back production by 50 percent will not have as much produce as the farmer who cuts back his production only 35 percent, he will get more money for his goods, Houston cited as an example.

The farmer who cuts back his production by 35 percent will get more money for his goods than the farmer who cuts back production by only 10 or 20 percent, was another ex-

Saturday Is Big Day For Area Dogs

Dog owners in Snyder and Scurry County have been urged to bring their pets to the county agriculture building at the coliseum Saturday for registration and vaccination.

The special registration-vaccination day is for all dogs in the city and county and the city will issue free registration tags. These are required for all dogs in the city and they may serve for identification purposes for dogs outside the city.

Local veterinarians will be on hand from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. to vaccinate dogs against rabies. The vaccination fee will be $4 each.

Mayor John Fagin has proclaimed Saturday as Dog Vaccination and Registration Day. The City Council approved the annual event at its Monday meeting, and Snyder Jaycees and the county are joining is sponsoring and promoting the event.

Councilmen And Mayor Sworn In

The votes were canvassed and Bryce Booker, Milton Ham, and Vernon Rannefeld were sworn in to their respective slots on the city council while John Fagin was sworn in to another term as mayor at a special session Thursday night of the Snyder City Council.

The men ran unopposed to their respective spots in city government in last Saturday's election. An examination of the election returns shows that Place 2 Councilman Booker received 209 votes; Place 4 Councilman Ham, 235 votes; Place 6 Councilman Rannefeld, 225 votes; and Mayor Fagin, 244 votes.

In other action at last night's meeting, the council let stand an earlier decision concerning water drainage in a new residential development in the west part of town.

Residents in the area of the development presented a petition to the council at the board's April 3 meeting questioning the plan. The council members again discussed the petition last night, but took no action in the matter. Thus, the council's original decision was left intact.

The plans call for diverting part of the water runoff from the new development through an alley south of 44th St. into Towle Memorial Park.

The council also authorized the sale of a lot at the intersection of 23rd St. and Ave. R. The lot was transferred to the city by Mr. and Mrs. C.L. Noble on Dec. 5, 1975 and is located immediately west of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

In reports presented to the council last night, board members were informed that a public hearing, concerning the city's request for an amended permit to continue intermittent discharge into Deep Creek from the sewage treatment plant will be held at 11 a.m. May 10 in Lubbock.

Briscoe Vows Fight On Smut

By The Associated Press

Gov. Dolph Briscoe promised Friday in Fort Worth that legislation against pornography would be an important part of his new anti-crime package in the 1979 Legislature.

"I am especially concerned about the use of children as the subject of pornography and will propose that criminal penalties for this offense be made stronger," Briscoe told supporters.

He said other anti-crime priorities would include tougher laws against drug smuggling, heavier penalties for those who prey on the elderly and increased penalties for rape of a child.

unmistakable result

The American people are witnessing a sham battle involving the question of when an increase in the price of a basic commodity such as coal or steel becomes inflationary in its effect on the general economy. And, as usual, the black bean will wind up in the hands of the average consumer.

This is not to imply that representatives of the Federal Government, leaders of organized labor and steel industry executives got together, like members of a robber gang, to divide some loot and select the next victim of their attention.

There is no indication of collusion. All parties are in the clear, so far as possible violation of the law is concerned. But elements are there and the results as unmistakable as would be the case if there had been a conspiracy in the usual meaning of the term. Coal miners have just won a smashing victory at the bargaining table. They got the biggest single pay increase ever won in a major industry and it will be reflected in the price of coal.

Whether worker gains are justified by the nature of the business and general economic conditions is beside the point. They have become a factor in the cost of getting coal out of the ground and that is all that really matters.

For that reason it is actually rather naive, assuming he really believes miners can get a 39 percent hike in wages over the next three years without affecting the general economy, for President Carter to quibble over whether a $10-per-ton increase in the price of steel is too much or about right.

Again the point is being missed. The economic fact is that the cost of mining coal has been substantially increased. Regardless of how it is broken down in accounting practices, the increase becomes a part of the price consumers must pay for goods and services. The ultimate effect will be the same, whether steel producers and other users absorb part or all of the increased cost or pass it on to their customers.

Also naive is the argument about whether the result will be inflationary. The answer is obvious. Any time there is a markup in the price of a commodity that isn't offset by quality or utility, inflation follows.

It is a trifle discouraging to realize that people in positions of national leadership either aren't aware of the facts or choose to ignore them.

little help at home

President Carter has wound up his eight-day trip abroad. It began with a friendly reception in Venezuela and ended with an equally pleasant stop in Liberia, the West African nation that has special ties with the United States because it was the site of re-colonization undertaken in the hope that it would help solve this country's pre-Civil War race problem.

Between the first and last stops was the awkward situation in Brazil, where public officials made no effort to conceal their distaste for lectures on human rights from abroad, and a pleasant stopover in Nigeria. Along the way the President offered unwelcome criticism of South African national policy, deplored the presence of Cuban combat troops in Africa, and scolded the Soviet Union for its involvement in African affairs.

The trip was officially declared a huge success. National leaders throughout the world have a better understanding of U.S. foreign policy, according to the official evaluation, which is not a surprising statement. Except in instances like Khrushchev's public insult administered to President Eisenhower, when the latter journeyed to Paris for what had been planned as a friendly exchange of views between the two heads of state, pronouncing Presidential junkets as huge successes is par for the course.

There is no precise method of evaluating an official act which involves nothing more, so far as the public is permitted to know, than an exchange of expressions of high esteem between the principals. It seems fair to assume that so far as relations between this country and Venezuela, Nigeria and Liberia are concerned results belong in the plus category.

As for Brazil and some of the countries which were targets of the President's critical comments there is reason to doubt if any good purpose has been served.

The important consideration is whether the President's absence helped matters here at home. Congress has been in recess. The coal strike was finally brought to a conclusion, not a particularly pleasant one from the point of view of the average American family, but it's over and miners are back in the pits. Inflation continues to rise. There is no sign of improvement in any sector of the nation's economy.

In that situation it is a safe guess that the average American is unimpressed. He knows about things here at home and can't be sure about claims of improved conditions on the international scene.

"All this talk about taking away our goodies by tax reform — WHAT IS LIFE ALL ABOUT?"

"If that's tear gas, this must be Tokyo."

at wit's end

by erma bombeck

One of the questions talk show hosts frequently ask is, "Do your children show signs of an acute sense of humor?"

I will share with you what I got for my birthday this year and you can be the judge. My daughter bought me an electric can opener (I've already worn out three), one son wired me a bouquet of spring flowers (I've always loved him best), and the other son bought me a bicycle.

The bicycle has two wheels, three gears, and is guaranteed to shorten my life by ten years. I have never been what you would call athletically inclined. I had to repeat showers. According to my son, "You need this, Mom. After all, you don't jog, swim, ski, and you play tennis like you just had a spinal."

Three weeks later, he came over and said, "Why haven't you ridden your bicycle?"

"Get serious," I laughed. "You know I haven't had a chance to buy a bicycle wardrobe."

"What wardrobe? Why don't you just take off in what you're wearing?"

"Do you actually think I'd be caught on the road in public with a waistband that gaps and shows half of my underwear when I bend over the handlebars?"

A few more days passed by before he said, "Why don't you take the bike out of the bedroom and onto the street?"

"I'm trying to find a time when there is room for me out there. Between 6:00 and 7:00, the joggers are out. Then it's time for the workers' traffic of cars until 9:00 a.m. Then the streets are full of dogs until 10:30 and by this time the kids are coming home from school for lunch. When they're back at 2:00, I nap and at 3:00 the people are coming home from work again."

This morning, he dropped by and found me straddling the bicycle in the driveway. "It was terrible," I whimpered. "My backside has grown around the seat, my legs are cramped, my foot has a kink in it, a dog tore my slacks, the wind from a truck nearly threw me to the ground, my handbag slid from my shoulder and caught in the spokes and I just remembered something important...I'm old."

"Great!" he said. "Maybe tomorrow you can take it out of the driveway."

That kid NEVER had a sense of humor.

NEW SHOPPING CENTER

Sunday's announcement on a new mall in Snyder came as no great surprise. It has been rumored for several months; in fact, beginning about the same time as Varsity Square's opening.

The proposed new 200,000 square foot center, more than twice as large as Varsity Square, brings up the same questions as we've had in the past. "Is Snyder large enough to support it?" If Snyder wasn't, it wouldn't be constructed here. No company would sink $4 million into a project of this nature without doing a sizeable amount of investigation.

BENEFITS

Being chosen as the site of this development shows others feel Snyder is "on the move" and has potential. Besides the 400 new jobs it will produce, the center offers other benefits to our community.

Two aspects are obvious. First, it will provide additional merchandise and services to keep local shoppers at home and away from such places as Lubbock, Abilene and Big Spring. Second, it will provide additional merchandise and services to induce more out-of-town shoppers in surrounding communities to shop in Snyder instead of Lubbock, Abilene and Big Spring.

Keeping local dollars at home and securing new dollars are the keys to becoming a self-sufficient city. Millions of dollars a year are lost to the aforementioned cities because consumers can't find--or won't look for--specific merchandise here.

NO BARGAINS

When local shoppers return from such a trip, they'll usually find merchandise purchased is no less expensive than merchandise available locally. And if that piece of merchandise happens to be faulty, they have to drive all the way back to exchange or expect a local merchant to "make it right."

Looking even further, those out-of-town merchants don't pay any taxes in Snyder, employ no local citizens or support any community betterment programs. They don't know you and could, basically, care less about anything but making the sale.

When you consider the cost of transportation and a meal, you could rarely save enough money on your purchase to come near breaking even.

Give local merchants a chance for your business. We have the products at competitive prices and local merchants care about what happens to Snyder. The people in Lubbock don't.

RETAIL SEMINAR

To help Snyder merchants promote their products, the Snyder Chamber of Commerce Retail Merchants Committee will offer a free breakfast seminar entitled, "Competing in Today's Marketplace."

The seminar will be open to all Chamber member merchants and will begin at 7:30 a.m. Friday, April 14, at the Smorgasbord Annex. Keynote address will be given by Noel Johnson of Snelson, Randell and Johnson Advertising Agency of Midland.

TEXAS INDUSTRIAL WEEK

Nearly 40 local industries were visited by members of the Chamber Board of Directors, Gold Coaters, BCD Board of Directors and Scurry County Industrial Foundation to Salute them for their operations in Snyder. These major employers have been the backbone of this community and should be continually thanked for their efforts. Hopefully, through this salute during Texas Industrial Week, our manufacturing employers know the community cares.

FOUNDATION DRIVE

Beginning Monday, many local business owners, managers and concerned citizens will be asked to invest in the Scurry County Industrial Foundation. The Foundation is raising funds for the construction of a "spec" building in Snyder to entice manufacturers to move into the area.

It's a very important job and needs your financial support. Please invest in the future of Snyder and Scurry County when asked next week.

Thanks.

the cities and the nation

Money as such is not the problem or the answer.

If it were, the billions of federal dollars long since channeled into the cities would have relegated the American urban crisis to social history. And Lyndon Johnson's Great Society very likely would be reverently recorded therein as a miracle-working domestic Marshall Plan.

It is in acknowledging this insufficiency of mere dollars that President Carter's urban policy pronouncement is perhaps most distinguished from similar nobel efforts in this line on the part of his predecessors.

He is proposing a minimum - $4.4 billion being so termed in the current context of half-trillion-dollar budgets - of new programs requiring additional funding.

Instead, emphasis is to be on more effective implementation of existing programs - 38 by the administration's count - through which something in the neighborhood of $80 billion in federal funds presently is reaching local governments.

What in the long run may well prove to be the most significant aspect of the Carter plan carries no price tag at all. At least directly. It is the pledge that henceforth all new federal programs will be evaluated as to their specific effect upon the cities - an "urban impact analysis."

As the president noted, otherwise well-intentioned programs have often worked to the detriment of the cities. Too often the effectiveness of past urban-assistance efforts has been negated by conflicting federal and state activities.

All too sadly true. A conscientious effort to implement this pledge, however, is likely to confront policymakers with some very tough decisions among priorities and interests.

Had such a policy been in effect 20 years ago, for example, how might it have affected the interstate highway program? Would the latter have been modified to any significant extent in recognition of the likely detrimental demographic and fiscal impact upon the cities? Or would the decision have been that the future of the nation's transportation network took precedence over the existing structure of the cities - and the latter would simply have to adjust, as has been the case?

The highway program happens to be of particular relevance in this context because it has had a very considerable urban impact, quite possibly contributing as much as any other single development of recent years to the crisis Washington is now seeking to alleviate. The highways have made the cities not only more accessible to each other but to the vast suburban belts now surrounding them. They have devitalized the old centralized cities of the North, accelerating the outflow of the middle class and business with consequent diminishing of the urban tax base, and shaped the development of the newer sprawl cities of the Sunbelt.

And how, for an ongoing example, will an urban impact analysis affect school integration policies as promoted, administered and financed by a multiple federal agencies?

As justified constitutionally and ethically as integration may be, it contributes to the middle-class exodus and thus the compounding of urban problems.

The answers will not come easily. But again, it may be the primary virtue of the Carter program that it does not seek to buy easy answers.

It has drawn criticism from, among numerous others, Vernon Jordan of the National Urban League who finds it "disheartening" and not "on a scale commensurate with the problem."

But we have had our large-scale attempts to deal with the specific problems of the cities, and they manifestly have not worked. The urban crisis is a national problem and the relative success or failure of its resolution will be determined in the long run by developments and policies of national impact.

Dear Abby

He Wants To Unglue Son From the Tube

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have been divorced for 12 years. For business reasons. I have lived in another city, so my three sons have been raised by their mother. I have always provided more than the court required and have tried to maintain a good relationship with my sons over the years.

The problem is my oldest son. He graduated from high school two years ago and he is still sitting at home, watching television all day, sleeping late and staying up until all hours. He has no desire to do anything else; no need to get a job because I am required to pay him an allowance until he's 21. This provides cigarette and pocket money. His mother isn't concerned about his idleness because if and when he becomes financially independent, her child support payments will drop, and she doesn't want her income reduced.

I don't think I should support this 19-year-old as I did when he was 12. It encourages his inactivity, but I can't kick him out of his mother's house. Don't recommend psychological help. His mother wouldn't permit it. It would mean that she isn't perfect. I can't cut off the money and force him to get a job. He's not interested in college or trade school. All he wants to do is watch television. He knows every program that comes on between noon and sign-off time.

How can I wake this guy up to the fact that he can't sit on his can forever? Besides, it's a poor example for his two younger brothers, who are still in high school.

CONCERNED BUT HELPLESS

DEAR C AND H: You can't "force" him to do anything. Your only hope is to spend more time with him and inspire him to lead a more productive life. Otherwise he may watch television for another two years, then circumstances may force him to get off his can and be a man.

DEAR ABBY: Have you or any of your readers ever heard of tipping a waitress before she even takes your order?

I have a friend who invariably slips money into the waitress's hand when she first approaches our table.

I asked this friend where he got the idea of tipping first, and he said it was just common sense. A tip in advance usually insures good service.

I would appreciate any light you can shed on this subject.

CURIOUS IN LOWELL, ARK.

DEAR CURIOUS: Tipping generously in advance seems more like a bribe than a tip, but it makes sense. The word "tips" (I am told) is an abbreviation for "to insure prompt service."

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I divorced my husband because he beat me up several times. He never showed any signs of being violent before we were married. There were times when he beat me so brutally I was afraid he would kill me.

I heard that he is going to be married again. I don't know the lady, but I know how to get in touch with her.

I am debating as to whether I should warn her. What do you say?

DEBATING

DEAR DEBATING: On the chance that she'll bring out the best in him while you brought out the beast in him, let mum be the word.

Muriel To Say Saturday

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)- Will she or won't she run?

That's the question Sen. Muriel Humphrey says she will answer Saturday at the annual Democratic-Farmer Labor Party's dinner.

The dinner is being dedicated to her late husband, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, who died of cancer Jan. 13. The affair also will serve as a forum for the widow to announce whether she will be a candidate in a November election to fill the remaining four years of his term.

NEW YORK—(NEA)— Being King of England wasn't always a picnic, you know. Charles II, who did it for a time in the 17th century, could have told you that.

On top of everything else he had to do, which isn't clear, he felt responsible for how his court dressed. The men, anyway. Of course, he didn't have any control over that when he was sulking in France because Oliver Cromwell had chased him there.

But as soon as he got the throne back in 1660, he got everyone together and made them promise they'd deck themselves out like the French who, after all, had been willing to pass the time of day with him.

We're going to wear great things, he said, like doublets and stiff collars and cloaks, shoe strings and garters. From now on, that's the royal costume. Now, you guys do this one thing for me and I won't ask you to think about clothes ever again.

Well, if a king can't change his mind, who can? At least Charles waited six years — until October 8, 1666, in fact. That's when he called everyone together again and said, I know what I said, guys, but trust me. Wait 'til you see the vests we're all going to wear, "after the Persian mode," with long black "cassocks" or coats lined with silk over them...

There was a lot of snorting and hooting, and some of the court even told the King to put his money where his mouth was when he said this was the last time he'd ask them to change.

But they did what he said and that seems to have been the time vests became the thing to wear instead of tunics or doublets.

Not what we think of as vests, though. Those collarless, V-neck affairs with a half belt and a slip buckle in the back for a good fit didn't come along until the 1840s or so.

Still, vests being the thing to wear this summer, for women, at any rate, it's nice to know what Charles did.

Although his vest wasn't what gentlemen wore in the early 20th century, even. That was modeled on what a postboy wore — a vest cut high under the armholes and cut snug for warmth, which was important since he was riding to guide the horses on a coach.

That vest was killed, practically speaking, by the coming of the wristwatch, because men didn't need a "waistcoat" anymore with two pockets — one for the watch, the other for the fob.

But that doesn't bear too much on what women will be wearing this summer — if they can be convinced to slip into vests during the hottest time of the year. Unconstructed, boxy, man-tailored or a simple snip of netting, they'll all be full of surprises. Exotic prints reverse to plaids or solids or other exotic prints.

And the best thing of all? If you want to bypass the surprises and stick to a T-shirt and jeans, there's no fuzzy-headed king around anymore to say you can't.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

VESTS FOR SUMMER dressing this year have come a long way from those popularized by Charles II in 1666. Here, Liz Claiborne's batik print vest in olive combination ($28) picks up colors from both skirt and blouse to pull her fluid look together.

Three-tiered crinkle cotton skirt in olive drab ($38) is worn here with a blackberry short cuffed sleeved peasant blouse ($26). Both blouse and skirt are also available in rust, brown, indigo and vanilla. Vest is also available in blue combination.

Duplicate bridge has been held to be a game of skill in several courts of law, but no one will ever convince the unlucky expert that it isn't a game of luck and that the Gods of chance take special pleasure in victimizing him.

We'll let him tell the story of today's hand in his own inimitable fashion.

"There I was sitting West. It was the last hand of the game and all I needed was a fair score to win the tournament."

Our friend always uses the first person singular, except when talking about a partner's mistake.

"I picked up the usual collection of garbage I hold when I want to be able to decide my own fate and all I could do was pass while my opponents bid to six notrump. Mind you, six notrump — not six hearts. I made my safest lead — a heart. The queen was played from dummy. My partner took his king and declarer claimed the rest of the tricks.

"It was a well bid hand, but that didn't help me. Most pairs stopped at game. A few played six hearts. I had to defend against the one pair to bid six notrump for a complete top score."

Netters At Fort Stockton

FORT STOCKTON - Snyder tennis team was to join Big Spring, Brownwood, Monahans, Odessa High, Lubbock Dunbar and a local squad for the Fort Stockton Team Tennis Tournament held here today and tomorrow.

The Tigers grabbed the Seminole Tournament championship last weekend, and are favored by some to do well in this weekend's meet.

The two-day tournament marks Snyder High School's final action prior to the District Meet scheduled for next weekend in Lubbock.

Tracksters Try Cub Relays

BROWNFIELD - Snyder High School boys and girls varsity track teams are among those scheduled to compete in the Cub Relays here Saturday.

The single-day meet will begin at 9:30 a.m. with running finals scheduled for 2 p.m.

Andrews, Lamesa, Seminole, Lubbock Estacado, Lubbock Dunbar and Brownfield are among the other schools expected to participate.

Golfers To Host 3-3A Meet

SHS golf team welcomes District 3-AAA schools here Saturday in a league meet at Western Texas Course.

The teams, which include two from Sweetwater and Snyder, and one each from Lamesa, Brownfield and Lake View, will tee off at 8:30 a.m.

The meet will be the second district tourney of the season. Sweetwater won the first one - held in Sweetwater - while Snyder teams placed third and sixth.

Snyder Dusters Host Lamesa Next...

Tigers Turn Back Big Spring

Snyder tossed off its final non-league baseball opponent of the season here yesterday, whipping Big Spring 3-1 at Moffett Field.

The Tigers, who advanced their graph to 15-4, return to 3-AAA action Saturday as they welcome Lamesa at 1 p.m.

Snyder finished the Steers with little trouble or style Thursday, counting three of its own would-be scores tagged out at the plate, and committing a trio of errors--one of which led to the lone Big Spring score.

Leading 1-0 in the bottom of the third inning, Richard Crayton snapped a single which appeared to get the Tigers clicking. Tracy Witherspoon walked, as did Mitch Mackey, and Sid Everton's shot--a fielder's choice as it turned out--scored Crayton and forced Witherspoon out at third.

With only one out and runners on first and second, Scott Crenwelge blasted a hard shot into the outfield. The hit should have paid off nicely, but instead both base runners were tagged on the play.

"It was poor coaching," commented Albert Lewis, coach, after the game. "I was over here trying to get Mackey to come on in. He had the time, but he just stopped over here and then he stopped over there," he said indicating areas between second and third and third and home.

"He got tagged out at home and then Everton was coming right behind him," he added, shaking his head. "Boy."

Earlier in the game, in the first inning, Witherspoon was tagged at the plate also, giving Big Spring catcher Gomez three clutch "big plays".

"We were trying something to see if we might be able to use it against Lamesa," Lewis commented of the first try-for-home. "It didn't work, we know that for sure," he laughed.

Snyder scored its other run in the fourth inning. David Lee got on on a fielder's choice which tagged David Zajicek out at second. Mike LaPointe slapped a single and Sikes batted into another fielder's choice to score Lee.

Manley, centerfielder, scored the only Steer run, in the fifth stanza. Manley garnered a single off of Tiger pitcher Mike Hicks to set up the point.

Hicks, making only his second appearance on the mound this season, went four innings and gave up the hit to Manley before Lewis put in Walter Banks. One of the fastest pitching changes in Tiger history occurred next, as Banks threw a wild toss to first baseman Crenwelge, and was promptly pulled.

"He was too wild," said Lewis. "I had seen all I needed to see. In a situation like that, you needed to be calm."

Lewis went with top pitchers Mackey, for two innings and Everton, for the final stanza.

Mackey handed next-up Rubio an intentional walk which set Big Spring players on first and second with a force-out possibility at three bases, but an error on the next play scored Manley. Mackey, with the help of his fielding crew, worked off the next four batters, and in the final two innings, only six Steers ever manned the batter's box.

Myers picked up the loss for Big Spring. He gave up the trio of runs on seven hits. Snyder pitchers handed out five hits.

Quarreling Rangers Welcome NY Yanks

ARLINGTON (AP)-The sometimes turbulent World Champion New York Yankees arrive today and can take comfort that their opening day opponent, the Texas Rangers, have their morale problems, too.

Moody lefthander Roger Moret, who had a spat recently with several other members of the Ranger pitching staff, reiterated Thursday he wanted to be traded or released.

Why?

Moret wasn't specific but said "I'm no troublemaker. It's a long season and I didn't come here to fight. I came here to play baseball."

Moret, fireballing 28-year-old Puerto Rican, was sweet-talked by club official Eddie Robinson Thursday. It paid no dividends.

"I'll be gone in 24 hours," said Moret.

Majority owner Brad Corbett said "I'll give Roger a big kiss. Everything will be OK."

But it wasn't.

"I want to go," said Moret.

Moret was scheduled to be a spot starter and long reliever for the Rangers. He said he had no quarrel with Ranger Manager Billy Hunter.

"I don't have any complaints with the way I've been used," said Moret.

Hunter said he thought everything had been smoothed over with Moret "for now."

"Roger said nobody likes him" said Hunter. "I told him, 'Roger, I like you.'"

Robinson said "I told Roger he had done real well. When you have 25 guys on a team, not everyone can get along."

Moret had a 3-3 record last year and has a buzzing fastball that's tough on lefthanded hitters - like the Yankees.

The Yankees work today but the Rangers were given the day off.

Ron Guidry of the Yankees will face Jon Matlack of the Rangers before was is expected to be a sellout crowd of 41,065 fans and a national television audience Saturday.

Matlack came to the Rangers from the New York Mets and has sparkled during spring training.

AAU Marks Keep Falling...

Swim Records Sunk

AUSTIN (AP) - Prerequesites for setting American records at the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) Short Course Swimming Championships do not include being a junior high student and giggling a lot.

It just appears that way.

After two days of competition, eight American records have fallen in the women's division alone and the oldest record setter is 18-year-old Linda Jezek of Santa Clara, Calif. Swim Club.

Tracy Caulkins, a 15-year-old schoolgirl swimming for the Nashville, Tenn. Aquatics Club, led the pack once again Thursday, knocking almost five seconds off her own American record with a 4:11.38 clocking in the 400 yard individual medley.

She then came back later in the evening and joined teammates Joan Pennington, her sister Amy and Karinne Miller to set an American record in the 400 yard medley relay in 3:42.54.

Stephanie Elkins, Amberjax, Jacksonville, Fla. felt left out Thursday so she joined the record derby with a 1:45.91 clocking in the 20 yard freestyle.

"All my friends were setting records and I'd never had one," the 14-year-old Elkins said. "I knew I had to get out quick against Cynthia because I knew I would die and she would not."

In addition to Nashville Aquatic's American record in the 400 medley relay, Jezek established an individual American record with a 54.94 clocking on the 100 yard backstroke leg of Santa Clara's relay.

AAU rules permit individual records to be set on the first legs of relay races.

Mission Viejo, Calif. Swim Club's Jesse Vassallo set a 3:51.69 American record in the 400-yard individual medley and the Florida Aquatic's "A" team established an AAU meet record 3:18.14 in the 40 yard medley relay.

Sprint Stars Invited To Texas Relays

AUSTIN (AP)-Saturday heroes Curtis Dickey of Texas A&M and Johnny "Lam" Jones of Texas are among nine sprinters invited to run in a special 100-meter dash Saturday at the Texas Relays.

Jones, an Olympic gold medal winner, was an all-Southwest Conference flanker for the Texas football team last year, and Dickey rushed for nearly 1,000 yards as a halfback in the A&M Wishbone-T offense.

Both are sophomores.

Jones won the 100 meters last year with an amazing hand-clocked time of 9.85 seconds, but has not run in a meet this year following a muscle pull in Texas' Jan. 2 Cotton Bowl loss to Notre Dame.

Dickey won the NCAA indoor 60-meter race earlier this season.

The presence of Jones, who ran on the United States' winning 400-meter relay team in the 1976 Olympics, was credited last year with attracting a record relay crowd of 18,000-20,000 for the Friday night-Saturday meet.

Nevertheless, to bolster attendance the meet has been switched for the first time to Saturday-Sunday.

In addition to the 100-meter race, which climaxes Saturday's events, there are world-class performers in the discus and pole vault.

Ken Stadel is ranked fifth in the world in the discus with a throw of 222 feet 9 inches.

Larry Jesse, former vaulter for Texas-El Paso, has jumped 18-3 while 1976 Olympian Terry Porter has gone 18-2.

Sam Walker, the former star at Southern Methodist and a member of the Olympic weight-lifting team, has the best mark of 66-9½ in the shot put.

Another 1976 Olympian, Len Hilton, is entered in a special mile race Sunday.

Texas-El Paso, the NCAA indoor team champion, is rated the best of the 46 schools in the relays.

The theme of the program will be associational missions. This will be the 10th anniversary of the Sweetwater, Mitchell, Scurry Baptist Area. Features on the program will include a brief history of the area, a film presentation on associational work, and a message by Dwayne Martin, moderator of the Sweetwater Baptist Association and pastor of First Baptist Church in Sweetwater.

The program also will recognize Malcolm Brown who has been the area director of missions for the past 10 years.

PLANNING — Members of Trinity United Methodist Church are shown discussing ideas presented in the book "Lay Witness Mission" which is being used as a guide in preparing for their coming Lay Witness Mission April 14, 15, 16. The public is invited. Shown are, from left, David and Vene Hayes, Bobby Shifflett, Van Hayes, John and Sammie Jarrell, and Anne Overhulser.

"THOSE CRAZY EPISCOPALIANS"

do the "roman collars" label them catholics?

Episcopalians and Roman Catholics and Presbyterians and Baptists and Methodists ...these and countless other denominations exist because of the differences between men.

It's the similarities between men that produce Christians.

Episcopalians are proud of both their differences AND their similarities to other denominations. You can call them anything you like. They're Protestant because their forebears were among the leaders of the Protestant Reformation in 16th-Century England. But the word "Catholic" means "universal, whole, or complete"... and, certainly, Episcopalians are proud to embrace all the traditions of Christ's "universal church."

In short, they don't feel that heaven is reserved for those who agree with the Episcopal viewpoint. They say, "There's only one God. Let's share. OK?"

By the way, would you believe that the "backward collar" was not a Roman-Catholic invention? It was introduced by a priest of the Church of England, parent of the Episcopal Church in the United States. He devised it as a mark of identification during his ministrations to the London Dock area.

It's surprising how often people new to the Episcopal faith discover that its "peculiarities" help them appreciate the universality of the Christian religion. Think about that.

Love Bug Bites Senior Citizens

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Edith Schaefer says it doesn't bother her that her new husband, Edwin, is older than she is.

"It just makes me a young bride," says Mrs. Schaefer, 65. Schaefer is 80.

The couple marked their third week of marital bliss during a reception in their honor this week at the Ella Austin Community Center, where they met in a senior citizen's program.

"The love bug bit us - it bit us strong and powerful. Like love at first sight even though we had known each other for about four years," said Mrs. Schaefer, a widow for 18 years until recently.

"We missed seeing each other for about 10 days and then upon meeting again, well, it was a nine-day whirlwind courtship.

"We feel like teen-agers again - just starting out!" she exclaimed.

Schaefer, who is less talkative, said he had no reservations about their marriage on a brisk Sunday morning in New Braunfels, northeast of San Antonio.

"She's a talker, but she didn't talk me into marrying her," said Schaefer. "We just got to courting and before we knew it, we both remarried. So far it's been all right. Her cooking's okay."

"We were going to run off, you know, elope. But my son got it into his head that we should go to a church and do it that way," Mrs. Schaefer added.

Her new husband said: "At our age, why go through a big wedding deal? We had just decided to run off somewhere and do it."

Mrs. Schaefer said she and Schaefer "did not believe in living together without getting married first.

"We just wouldn't have lived that way. And he had his own house and I had mine. But now he's moved in with me. I just couldn't leave my new carpets for his house," she said.

"Now I just spoil him rotten. I treat him like a baby."

Schaefer said he couldn't be happier now.

"I always said I wouldn't marry again. My first wife has been dead for 11 years. I got lonely living by myself."

Mrs. Schaefer chimed in again:

"We intend to live forever - our spirits are very much alive. I'm 65 years young and Edwin is 80 years young. We're not old.

"The main thing is that we'll be able to share a few more years of happiness with each other. He'll probably go first but those few years will be worth it."

Break the laxative habit

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 77 years old. I suffer with daily constipation and it is a constant pain and drain on my whole system. The only somewhat meager relief I find is when I take Senokot, but is taking Senokot daily to the point of dependency the answer? You are my last resort — any help at all will be more than appreciated.

DEAR READER — This is a common problem and it is worse in older people. Why? Because many older people don't eat enough bulk and often don't get enough exercise.

Senokot is a good gentle medicine and contains ingredients to stimulate colonic contractions as well as to soften the stool. However, it is much better if people can regulate their life style in such a way as to promote normal bowel function without taking medicines.

First you need to know that you don't need to have a bowel movement every day. That nonsense has caused many a person to take harmful laxatives. If you empty the colon prematurely there is not going to be a normal elimination the next day. The person who insists he must have a bowel movement then takes another laxative and empties prematurely again. The colon doesn't respond well to this constant whipping with chemicals to empty, empty, empty. It gets irritated and cramps. Then the irritable colon problem is in full swing.

Breaking the laxative habit is not easy for many. I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-1, Irritable or Spastic Colon and Constipation to give you details on a program you can follow. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

It usually takes about 48 hours or longer for undigested food to be eliminated. It won't harm you in any way. The cramping and gas associated with spasm from having irritated your colon with medicines or its response to excess nervous tension makes you uncomfortable but that is not because of the undigested food residue.

I would suggest that you increase the bulk in your diet by eating whole wheat bread — be sure it is real whole wheat and not just colored brown and made partly with refined flour. If you can tolerate it, start gradually to increase the bran in your diet with breakfast foods that contain wheat bran. There are a number of them available.

Also start training your bowel. Be sure to get at least two glasses of fluid each morning at breakfast even if it is two glasses of warm water. This will stimulate your natural reflexes. If you will go to the bathroom at that time after each meal and sit there without straining each day you will soon develop this reflex. It will help you to develop smooth normal contractions of the colon rather than dysrhythmic contractions which are spasms.

If you can't tolerate bran you may need to use a bulk laxative such as Metamucil. It serves about the same function as bran in the diet. The increased bulk in the colon prevents overcontraction of the colon, which is what a spasm really is.

Just follow the program in The Health Letter I am sending you, increase your daily activity, by walking, and be patient. You will improve.

Recalls Eight Murders...

Killer Blames Self, Parents And Society

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP)-When Allen Leroy Anderson drove into Albemarle County two summers ago, he had just killed one stranger and was about to kill several more.

The 34-year-old Austin, Minn., native displayed no emotion this week as he admitted killing eight people in his cross-country spree in the summer and fall of 1976.

"Whatever road looked like a fun road to go down, I turned and went down it," said the four-time convicted murderer. He received his third life sentence Monday in Albemarle County Circuit Court for the Aug. 24, 1976, shooting death of Stony Point storekeeper James Norford Jr.

"There are probably many people in this area who are probably lucky I just drove on by," he said. "Nothing was pre-planned."

Norford, a father of six, was shot the morning Anderson walked into Bell's Store as it opened for business. The country store proprietor's fatal mistake was his reaction to Anderson's inadvertent display of a .22-caliber pistol.

"That gun was with me all the time," Anderson recalled. "When I attempted to pay for the stuff (breakfast), I was so unaware of the gun" it popped into sight and "he just stood there staring at it."

Anderson said he started to lock Norford in a back room, but something made him feel "he was going to slam the door in my face or throw boxes at me ... If the man had not attempted to do what I thought was a threatening move, he would be here today ...

"Anybody that has a gun in your face .. don't provoke him. You don't know where he's coming from. You don't know what he's like ... There is no amount of money, no amount of groceries, that's worth dying for ...

"I knew that his life was in my hands, and I may have felt 25 feet high," Anderson continued.

Anderson said he felt no remorse over the Norford slaying or most of the rest of his undetermined number of murders. Police said he has been questioned about as many as 20 murders. Anderson admitted to eight and said any others would be revealed in an autobiography.

"Nothing can justify killing," he said. "I don't have a lot of guilt as to what I've done because any capacity I had for loving and caring for people has been taken away from me."

Interviewed for more than two hours, Anderson blamed the killing spree on himself, his parents and the attitude in American society toward homosexuals.

Rejection in May 1976 by a homosexual lover in Seattle "touched off a rage I've never known," Anderson said.

"At that time, I hated society. I hated anybody. I just decided I was never going to be used again. If I could afford it, I today would hire someone to find him the lover and kill him. That's how hurt I was ...

"When I left Seattle, I just intended to run, steal, travel, use people ... and take back what was taken from me."

Broken Window, Mishap Reported

A criminal mischief report this morning and a minor traffic accident Thursday topped the list of activities investigated by police.

The criminal mischief was discovered shortly before 2 a.m. today at Snyder High School. Reports show that a cement block was thrown through a window on the northwest corner of the breezeway and that a cement bench was also broken.

Also investigated yesterday was a minor collision of a 1976 Chevrolet driven by Ray Courtney and a 1966 Dodge Pickup driven by William Jackson. The mishap occurred about 2:44 p.m. at Snyder High School.

Royal Clan Gets Pay Raise

LONDON (AP)-The Labor government today announced a 9.2 percent pay raise for the royal family, a move sure to stir up new controversy around Princess Margaret.

It will not be known for weeks how much of the $450,000 increase might go to the 47-year-old princess. Some of her critics not only oppose any increase for Margaret but also have suggested that she lose her current $101,750 stipend.

The princess, Queen Elizabeth II's younger sister, has been under fire for her relationship with brewery heir and aspiring pop singer Roddy Llewellyn, 17 years her junior, for their frequent vacation trips to the Caribbean island of Mustique, and for her alleged inattention to royal duties.

The so-called Civil List, the annual allowance granted to members of the royal family to pay their staffs and enable them to carry out their official duties, was raised to $5.29 million from last year's $4.84 million.

The allotment among family members will be decided later in consultations between Civil List trustees.

County Court Pleas Heard

Nine men were sentenced Thursday in county court on charges ranging from driving while the license was suspended to possession of a controlled substance.

Charged with two counts of DWLS, James Carl Webster pleaded guilty to the charges and drew two $25 fines and two 72-hour jail terms. He had been arrested Feb. 17 and again on Feb. 20.

Two more DWLS guilty pleas were entered by Manuel Medrano and by Reymundo Pena De La Rosa. Medrano received a $50 fine and a 72-hour jail term for his March 10 arrest, and De La Rosa was handed a $25 fine and a 72-hour jail term for his March 20 arrest.

Entering guilty pleas to charges of driving while intoxicated were Jimmy Leon Carpenter, Jessie Bee Earwood, Levi Lynn Hill, and Frank Fuentes, Jr.

Carpenter, Earwood, and Fuentes all received $100 fines and three-day jail sentences. Hill received a $100 fine and a 30-day jail sentence probated for six months.

A $100 fine was assessed Dora Romero after she pleaded guilty to a charge of unlawfully carrying a weapon. The offense is reported to have taken place March 10.

Randal J. Muise also pleaded guilty yesterday in county court to a misdemeanor charge of possession of a controlled substance. He was assessed a 60-day jail term.

Butz Portrait Hung Quietly

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-A $5,000 oil portrait of Earl L. Butz, hung without ceremony or nameplate, now graces a corridor of the Agriculture Department he headed for almost five years.

There is no brass nameplate or other marker to identify Butz or indicate the job he held: secretary of agriculture during the Nixon and Ford administrations.

Plans are still underway to hang Butz' portrait officially if he can be persuaded to attend a ceremony, a department spokesman said.

Butz resigned Oct. 4, 1976, after protests over remarks made public at the height of Gerald Ford's unsuccessful presidential campaign. Butz made a racial joke to companions about the bathroom, sexual and footwear preferences of black people.

The oil portrait, traditional for secretaries of agriculture, was delivered last fall but has gathered dust waiting until an official hanging ceremony could be arranged.

Butz indicated months ago that he would not come to Washington just to have his portrait hung, but that he would think about participating in a ceremony if he happened to be here on other business.

Butz, now 68, lives in West Lafayette, Ind., the location of Purdue University where he taught for many years.

Passman Fails To Appear Today

WASHINGTON (AP) - Former Rep. Otto E. Passman failed to appear today for arraignment on charges of taking $213,000 in bribes to help Tongsun Park sell U.S. rice to South Korea.

Lawyers for the 77-year-old Louisiana Democrat asked to postpone Passman's plea indefinitely because of his health.

Bond Posted In Theft Of Food Stamps

Reginald W. Reid, a starter for the Western Texas College basketball team, has been released from custody after posting a $750 bond.

Reid, 22, was charged yesterday with misdemeanor theft. He is alleged to have stolen $100 worth of food stamps from the Snyder Post Office on Wednesday.

Following Reid's arrest, police officers reported they had found half the stamps stashed in a trash can at WTC. The other half, they said, had already been sold. All, however, were recovered.

A second person questioned by police at the same time as Reid was released with no charges being filed.

Area Evacuated In Derailment

AUSTIN (AP)-Department of Public Safety headquarters said today that persons were being evacuated from a rural area northwest of Brenham after a 27-car derailment on the Santa Fe railway.

First DPS reports said one of the cars was a tank car leaking an inflammable and toxic liquid that turns into gas.

The evacuation was effective for two miles downwind.

Members of the Somerville fire department were spraying the tank car in an attempt to control the fumes.

DPS said the derailment occurred about 8 a.m. in Somerville, north of Farm 1361.
