CHICAGO IS LEADING

MANY THOUSAND ATTEND

Initial Game in Series for World's Championship in Progress at Detroit, Michigan.

By Associated Press. Detroit, Mich., Oct. 10.—The Detroit American League and the Chicago National League clubs will take the field at Bennett Park this afternoon in the first game of the series for the world's championship. Both teams are in the finest condition for the series.

Both managers, Chance of Chicago and Jennings of Detroit, declared that there would be no excuses offered when the series is over. All reserved seats for today's game were sold in two hours yesterday, leaving hundreds of would-be purchasers unsatisfied. The park accommodates from eighteen to twenty thousand spectators.

Twenty minutes before the game was called a light shower of rain began to fall, but the practice was continued.

BULLETIN—At the end of the seventh inning the score stood four to one in favor of Chicago.

Postal Telegraph Special. BULLETIN—In the last half of the eighth inning the score stood 5 to 4 in favor of Chicago.

Postal Telegraph Special. BULLETIN—Chicago won today's game by a score of 10 to 6. In the last half of the ninth inning Chicago made five runs. Detroit made one score in the first half of the ninth inning.

Pennington Co.'s Opening.

The crowd which attended the fall opening at the Pennington Co.'s dry goods establishment at 720-722 Indiana avenue, last night were variously estimated at between 1200 and 1500 people, and it was success in every sense of the word. The Wichita Concert Band furnished excellent music for the occasion.

Long before the hour of opening the sidewalk in front of the store was blocked with the great crowd. At 8 o'clock sharp the lights were turned on and the doors thrown open, when the people began to crowd in. The store was handsomely arranged and decorated for the occasion and presented a most beautiful sight.

These openings of prominent dry goods establishments are becoming very popular in Wichita Falls. More than 750 souvenirs were given away.

Notice to Classified Advertisers.

Hereafter the Times will refuse to accept ads for its "want ad" or "classified column" which are not signed by the parties ordering same, unless such ads are paid for in advance. House, street or phone numbers will not do, as it is more trouble to keep track of and collect for unsigned ads than the price charged for such ads are worth. Advertisers will please bear this in mind when they want to use the "want or classified" columns.

Sheldon, treasurer of the republican national committee, when asked about the contributions, declined to discuss the matter, saying that he would publish a list of all contributions made to the republican committee after the election. An appeal for contributions to the national campaign fund of $50 each from 1,000 business men was published today by Treasurer Sheldon of the national committee.

FIRE AT COLLEGE.

Roof of Agricultural Building Partially Destroyed.

College Station, Texas, Oct. 9.—Fire caused by defective wiring in the attic of the agricultural building at the Agricultural and Mechanical college tonight burned about half of the roof off this structure, one of the finest on the campus. The fire was discovered at 11 o'clock and before 1 o'clock the flames were extinguished.

The college fire department soon got action and the flames were quickly under control. No other building was damaged. The cadets worked hard and it is due to their heroic efforts that the building was not a total loss.

The fire department from Bryan, five miles away, was sent here by Mayor Maloney on a special train on the International & Great Northern railway. The agricultural building was built seven years ago at a cost of $30,000. It is fully equipped with a modern laboratory and also contains a creamery plant.

In addition to class rooms, the offices of the various professors of agriculture and the headquarters of the feed control are located in this building.

The loss will be several thousand dollars. President Milner and L. L. McInnis of Bryan, a director, are now at Prairie View.

Nearly 600 Bales Ginned.

It is estimated that fully seventy-five bales of cotton were brought into the two gins here today and it is believed that the sales on the streets today have been more than a hundred bales. ARCHER COUNTY JURY FINDS ROTRAMEL GUILTY OF ASSAULT TO MURDER.

The trial was started on Thursday and Rotramel was defended by Attorney L. H. Mathis of this city.

Mrs. Rotramel is now nearly fully recovered from her injuries.

ORIENT-DENVER DEAL.

A. Glissen in Chillicothe to Close Contract for Passenger Traffic.

General Passenger Agent A. A. Glissen of the Denver road was in Chillicothe yesterday for the purpose of closing the deal with the officials of the Orient line to handle the passenger business of that line into Fort Worth and other points along the Denver.

It is understood that as soon as the Orient finishes construction into Kansas City arrangements will be made between the two lines for an interchange in freight business as well as passenger business with prospects of the Orient wanting to use the Denver tracks into Fort Worth for freight trains.

When the Orient is completed into Kansas City that line will have almost as direct a line between Kansas City and Texas as has the Katy and an interchange of passenger business with the Denver means a great deal to the latter line.—Fort Worth Record.

Responsibility for the Panic.

Houston Post. Alluding to the business depression which followed the panic of last October and the tremendous losses which the people have suffered, Mr. Bryan says: "This tremendous loss comes at a time when crops are reasonably good and when nature has not withheld her bounty. It comes when the republicans are in complete control. They have a president whom they eulogize in their platform; a senate completely in the hands of the republican party; a republican house of representatives dominated by a despotic speaker. We can assume, therefore, that they have done everything they could consistently. Their policies seek to prevent the panic, and yet the panic is here. It comes, then, when we have a tariff so high that even the republicans promise unequivocally to revise it immediately and Mr. Taft has ventured the opinion that the revision will be downward."

There is no escape from this argument. The panic and its losses resulted from the republican policies and the republican party has been unable to repair the mischief. Mr. Taft offers no specific for the depression. On the contrary he is pledged to maintain the policies which brought on the conditions that caused the panic.

The genesis of the panic is to be found in Dingleyism. The Dingley conferred special privileges which enabled the favored few to reap such profits through the exploitation of the public that it became necessary to water their stock issues and float vast volumes of securities in order to make it appear they were not exacting too much from the public. Through a crookedly manipulated stock exchange billions of these fictitious issues were unloaded upon the public and when the boom burst, panic and depression overtook the country.

The only cure for this condition is to return to a sound basis. To proceed along the lines of the Roosevelt administration, to which Taft is pledged, means recurring panics and continued losses to legitimate business and the producing masses.

The policies that produced the panic are in force and if they are continued in force will produce other panics. The longer wholesome remedies are deferred the worse it will be for the country.

The time has come when it is imperative that the United States return to safe and sound economic conditions and the road to safety does not lie through a continuation of republican rule.

Privilege is the poison that is undermining not only the industrial well-being of the republic, but its political stability, and Mr. Bryan is right in declaring that the poison must be eradicated before a return to healthful conditions is possible. Mr. Taft will find it difficult to convince the hundreds of thousands of men in the North who have been idle for months that republicanism is a cure for its own infirmities. He will find it difficult to convince the people that privilege is a specific for injustice.

It is well that the country is heeding the admonitions so eloquently delivered by Mr. Bryan, for to disregard them means disaster compared with which the country's present troubles are but bubbles.

In Society's Realm

Miss Sarah Ulmer.

Monday Afternoon.

The Ladies Missionary Society of the Baptist church held a social meeting on last Monday afternoon in the church parlors. October 6, was "Enlistment Day" throughout the Missionary unions of the Southern Baptist Convention. This includes the states from Maryland to Texas. Five new members were received. Chocolate and cake were served, and a delightful social time was enjoyed. The decorations were in roses.

Unpremeditated.

By a sort of mutual consent plan on the part of hostess and guests of six young people of the city were guests Monday evening of Mrs. J. A. Richolt 1506 Burnett avenue, who until recently has been out of town. A very merry evening was spent, and a jolly time generally, participated in, while the hostess was assured of her welcome home. Just because boys and girls are invariably hungry, they were indulged in a two course luncheon, first a salad course, followed by one of fruit.

Those who were fortunate enough to be recipients of the serenade echoes could not help enjoying the evening with the active participants, as they vanished down the otherwise quiet street.

B. Y. P. U. With Miss Stengle.

Miss Jean Stengle entertained about twenty members of the B. Y. P. U. on Monday evening at her home. The refreshments consisted of ice cream, cake and chocolate fudge. Mr. L. H. Lawler was the only married guest present, and he delightfully entertained the company with an account of a merry widow sale of which he had been an eye witness, on his recent trip to Dallas.

Choir Reception.

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Kreuger royally entertained the members of the Presbyterian choir last Tuesday evening at their home on Indiana avenue. The house was profuse in floral decorations of chrysanthemums in parlor, and cosmos in dining room, while the hall was brilliant in a variety of blossoms, and ferns and vines adorned the windows. The color scheme was green and white, and this was daintily carried out in the cream and cake of the refreshments.

Mrs. Kreuger was assisted in receiving by Mesdames C. L. Fontaine and J. T. Montgomery. The in-town guests, not affiliated with the choir were Mr. and Mrs. Osgood and Mr. Flint, friends of the host and hostess.

First Meeting of the Season.

The New Century Literary Club held its first meeting since the summer vacation, at the home of Mrs. C. M. Andrews on Burnette St., Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock. Addresses were made by the retiring president, Mrs. I. A. Farris and the incoming president, Mrs. J. W. Lee. A business session was held, Mrs. William McGregor acting as secretary pro tem, in the absence of Mrs. Montgomery, the regular secretary.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent in a social way in reminiscences and the comparison of vacation notes. Punch was served. Fourteen ladies were in attendance. The next meeting is with Mrs. Ashmore.

With Miss Gorsline.

Miss Esther Gorsline was hostess to the Young People's forty-two club on Wednesday evening. Three tables were played, and a business session called, at which the first officers of the organization were elected. Miss Mary Anderson is now president, and C. V. Durland, vice.

Two vacancies in the membership were filled by Miss Mollie Sifton and Mr. Sheppard, who takes the place of Mr. James Freeman, who has moved from Wichita.

A salad course was served.

Church Reception.

The ladies of the M. E. Church South were entertained at the home of Mrs. P. P. Langford Thursday afternoon at three o'clock. The house decorations were beautiful with LaFrance and red roses in parlor and dining room, and nasturtiums in the living rooms.

Peanut sandwiches and chocolate were served.

Those assisting the hostess were Mesdames Nolan, Fleming, Gorsline, and Waggoner. Pleasing piano solos were furnished by Miss Esther Gorsline, and greatly appreciated by the guests.

At Forty-two.

Mrs. M. H. Barwise and Miss Nina Barwise entertained the Thursday afternoon forty-two club, of which they are members. The "extra club" guests were Misses Mary Ruth Ingram and Kate Haynes. The house was appropriately decorated in cut flowers, and refreshments were served. Only one member was absent. The club meets next week at the home of Mrs. C. W. Beavers.

With Mrs. Reese.

Mrs. T. T. Reese entertained, informally the original forty-two club at her home, on Thursday evening. The customary tables were played and usual refreshments served.

Unity Club.

The Unity Literary Club met yesterday afternoon with Mrs. A. H. Carrigan in its opening session. The program consisted of roll call, answered by current events. Mrs. J. J. Dalton gave an excellent introduction to the first chapter of "Literary Criticism." The life of James Whitcomb Riley was ably reviewed by Mrs. Gorsline, followed by a general discussion on the subject by the members. "That old Sweetheart of Mine" was effectively read by Miss Blanche Joline. Mrs. Carrigan gave the life of Eugene Field, and sang his "Little Boy Blue." Other selections from the dead singer were read by Mrs. Carrigan and Mrs. Darnell. A social time followed, and light refreshments were served. Mrs. Hugh Taylor, the guest of Mrs. H. B. Patterson, added to the pleasure of the occasion by rendering several vocal solos.

Heart Club.

Miss Grace Nolen entertained the club of high school girls and their friends last night at her home. Those in attendance were Ethel Frieze, Ka'leen Coffield, Katy Stonecipher, Della Young, Kathleen Benson, Bertha May Kemp, Martha Bentley, Bessie Kell and Grace Nolen. The guests were Mesdames Ned Murray, Gerald Pond, Russell Jones, Cliff Bullock, Joe Hatcher, Harry McPherson, Claude Cooper, Rhea Howard and Ralph Mathis. Chocolate and cake were served at a late hour, and the merry crowd dispersed by two.

Mis-Christened.

After announcing with due pomp and gusto that the new Saturday afternoon social club for young ladies had a name, it is to be regretted that the thriving cherub could not, at least, have been correctly reported to the world in the columns of this department. The name is wrapped in mystery, but to make it more mysterious, the gloomy title, which should have been "S. E. W. C." came out in print with the initial letter rudely supplemented. Our most humble apology for so grievous an error. The club is in session today with Miss Lucile Brooks.

Fire Near Granfield.

W. A. Fondren, of near Kell, was in town Monday for the purpose of buying a good serviceable team for farm work.

On Thursday before Mr. Fondren had the misfortune to lose his barn and contents by fire. His small boys were in the building alone smoking corn silk cigarettes when in striking matches the hay was ignited, and in a few moments it was a mass of flames.

A span of mules valued at $500 was burned, together with the barn and a large supply of feed.

This total loss was about $850, with no insurance.—Frederick Leader.

Easy Trick.

Marshall P. Wilder once showed Alexander Herrmann a new trick at cards. "Alex," said the humorist, "I will tell you the name of a card that you will select in your mind." After a pause he asked, "Now, what is it, Alex?" "The queen of diamonds," answered the magician. "Yes," said Wilder, "that is right." Herrmann stood puzzled for a moment, then smiled and admitted that the laugh was on him.

Cure for Round Shoulders.

There is nothing that so detracts from one's personal appearance as round shoulders, and mothers should make a great fight toward keeping their children straight and erect in carriage. The following article from an exchange contains excellent suggestions:

In the growing child one often sees and expects round shoulders, but the children under 10 and 12 years of age never should be round-shouldered. However, when a child begins to show signs of round shoulders immediately steps should be taken to break the habit.

First of all the general health should be looked after. Give the child plenty of nourishing food and an abundance of exercise in the open air. In summer there is no exercise for straightening round shoulders like swimming.

Insist upon an early bed hour and let the child sleep on a thin hair pillow about an inch high, instead of a great big feather pillow. One thing that will cause round shoulders in a young child is having no chair for him to sit on in which he can touch the floor, and if you find there is no such chair in your house procure one at once.

The "flannel time" of the year is almost with us, and so a suggestion or so in regard to the washing of flannels will not, I am sure, be amiss.

Flannels should always be washed quickly and hung out in the sun as early as possible. When the process has been started it should be finished with dispatch and the flannels ironed while still damp. Sometimes carelessness in the first washing of the most expensive flannels will render them wholly unfit for further service. They should be washed in a tub by themselves. The water may be as warm as can be borne by the hand, but there should be no variation in the temperature in the waters used for the rinsing as well as the washing. Add to a half a tubful of water enough dissolved soap to make a good suds and also a little ammonia. Use nothing but white soap on flannels, and only this to make the suds. Never rub the soap on the flannels. Dip them into the soapy water, rubbing them as lightly as possible, and sop up and down, depending upon this action to do most of the cleaning. Now squeeze free of suds, shake out well, stretch and wash in a second tubful of water less soapy. Rinse in clear water with a little ammonia added, shaking out each piece thoroughly to prevent shrinkage. Send through the wringer, shake well, stretch again and hang out to dry in the sun. When almost dry take them down and fold up in a clean, dry cloth, to be ironed as soon as possible. Delicate colored flannels should be hung in the shade lest they fade, and no ammonia or borax used in connection with them. If the day be cloudy and damp hang the flannels in doors, but never close to heat, for the extreme temperature causes it to shrink and harden. If desired, a little bluing may be added to the rinsing water.

One of the salient features of the fall and winter wardrobe is very apt to be the separate coat. Of course it is too early to definitely offer such a prediction, yet everything points that way. And if that is so, the wise woman can see that the velvet coat will be reinstated. There is no coat, separate coat, for cold weather days nearly so effective as the velvet coat, unless it is the handsome fur coat, and women in this city have really no use for the fur coat, as the weather is rarely cold enough to demand so much warmth in "covering." The fruit shades are being shown in velvets, and coats built from silken velvet in the rich fruit colorings are going to be most stunning.

If you want to be classed with the smartest of the smart, you must see to it that you possess a ring for your little finger with a perfectly huge setting. Some of the rings measure quite an inch one way by half an inch the other. The day for the dainty little affair for your tiniest finger is past and you must select one that looks as if it might be a trifle large for father, brother or "the man." Of course, this fad will be featured, like every other one that is born, and in time the tiny, ladylike small setting will come back into favor, but just now it is the B-I-G ring that holds the day, and every "faddy" girl in Christendom will be wearing one.

Have you noticed the long and droopy affairs the women are wearing in their ears? Aren't they hideous? Don't they make you think of the days when barbarism reigned supreme and it was the joy of every female to bury herself under loads and heaps of beads and flashing jewels? However, fashionable women have returned to the drop earrings, and so we may expect to see any number of them in spite of the harm they do to one's ears. The ones worn today are very modest in comparison with those worn by our grandmothers, and they will not prove quite so injurious for the delicate ears, but I believe I would feel just as satisfied with a ring of shining jewels suspended from my nose as with them dangling from my ears. However, women how to fashion, no matter what it is, and we shall, in all probability, see very wonderful earrings dangling at the side of my lady's head before the season is much older.

French Sandwiches.

If one is tired of the ordinary sandwich for an afternoon tea or card party the following one may be a refreshing change:

Chop one cupful of white meat of chicken, three olives, one gherkin and a tablespoonful of capers.

To this add half a pint of mayonnaise dressing, which should be made quite thin, with a tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar.

This is enough to make a pile of sandwiches. It should be spread on thin slices of sandwich bread, with the crust cut off.

Though regarding Bryan as a better man personally than Taft, yet we hope for the defeat of the democratic nominee, believing that such defeat will dishearten the democratic hosts, and that subsequently Southern democrats will align themselves with the prohibition party. In case prohibition becomes the national issue in 1912, as it will if the large national vote the prohibition party expects this year materializes, the prohibition party will have a better chance for success than will the democratic party. This was the statement yesterday of P. F. Paige, secretary of the prohibition party in Texas.—Dallas News.

This paragraph would be more interesting had Mr. Paige given the size of the check he is entitled to draw from the republican campaign committee. Doubtless, had he wanted to wholly truthfully, he would have said: "I am a republican, but being in Texas, realize that my vote will not help Taft out, therefore I am voting the prohibition ticket in order to cripple the democratic party, and hope within a few years the scheme will succeed to that degree where the prohibition party will be a good strong rival of the democratic party in Texas and other southern states where this shall occur, my party (the republican) will have some chance of carrying some of the southern states in a presidential election, and in that way, the solid south will be broken. That is probably the inward thought of Mr. Paige, but southern democrats will not be deceived. The prohibition question has no place in state or national politics.

An Alabama Veteran Writes the Times.

C. B. Rolling of Saco, Alabama, living on rural route No. 1 out of that place, writes the Times an interesting letter in which he says that the country about Saco is in a bad fix and that he would come to Texas if he was a young man. Mr. Rolling is 69 years of age and belonged to the Sixty-First Alabama Regiment in Battle's Brigade and was in the Virginia Army. Mr. Rolling has four children in Texas, a son living in Clay county and a son and two daughters living in Hopkins county. He asks any of his old comrades who may read this to write him.

Grandfield Will Get Postoffice.

Lawton Democrat.
Although for a time Grandfield boosters were threatened with serious trouble because of their unceremonious appropriation of the old postoffice of Escholt, shortly after the compromise between Escholt and Kell by the establishment of Grandfield, the new town is now given promise of the establishment of a postoffice there very shortly, according to the statement of Editor W. E. Lindblad of the Grandfield Enterprise, who is in Lawton today, making final proof upon a farm in the pasture. This assurance comes indirectly from the department since it is now evident that such a move would be the best method of settling the long controversy. Grandfield now claims a population of six hundred.

ECHOES OF CHAMBER OF COMMERCE WORK

J. T. Young, in charge of the Wichita Falls exhibit at Oklahoma City, writes that the exhibit has been a winning card and that results are sure to follow. He also wired for more literature, showing that he is distributing a large quantity of it from the supply on hand. Dallas will be next on the list and between these two fairs Wichita Falls will have come before thousands of people.

Samples of oil from the Petrolia field will be exhibited in the Wichita exhibit at Dallas. Secretary Gohlke says he is going to have a large bottle of gas labeled "Sample of Natural Gas to be Piped into Wichita Falls from the Petrolia Field, Sixteen Miles East."

Don't forget the regular monthly membership meeting next Tuesday evening at 8:00 o'clock. Business men who have not been approached on the membership question are invited to be present when they will be enthused to the point of volunteering their aid.

Electra and Childress are becoming active in commercial club work. That's good—the more the better for this neck of the woods. Childress applied to Wichita Falls for pointers.

It will be the aim of the Chamber of Commerce to run a business men's excursion into the surrounding country about once a month. The amount of time and small expense connected with these excursions are the best investments which can be made by our business men.

Last Wednesday one cotton grower lost $50 by being around the corner feeding his team when his number was called during the distribution of the first installment of the $1,000 prize cotton fund. Wonder if his team knew they were eating $50 worth of oats.

Inquiries are being received in every mail concerning many different lines of business and opportunities. The largest number come from farmers wanting information about the nature of the soil, price of lands, crops grown, climate and other particulars. Over thirty States are represented in the list of inquiries, although the middle west contributes the majority of the correspondents.

Several factory propositions have been discouraged, owing to want of sufficient merit to give inducements along the lines demanded. The right one will show up one of these days along with the culls and then something will be doing.

Active correspondence is being carried on with a number of educational organizations with a view to locating a boys' school along the lines of the Academy for girls. Wichita Falls is an attractive location for such a school and there are many chances in favor of securing such an institution.

Every week Secretary Gohlke sends out some current news items to every newspaper in the State. It is a good idea to get well acquainted at home. Texas is large, and the older sections are furnishing immigration to the newer portions of the State. The Wichita corn crop secured some good publicity.

The Chamber of Commerce receives a bulletin three times each week covering new incorporations seeking locations for factories and particulars of factory fires all over the country. The secretary directs the attention of the most logical lines related to this section and its advantages. Persistence in publicity is the keynote of success.

Some excellent publicity about the industrial advantages of this section has been secured without cost by the secretary in the nature of special correspondence with such publications as the Manufacturers' Record of Baltimore, Tradesman of Chattanooga, Trade Review of Dallas, Texas Realty Journal and other periodicals. Special attention is being directed along these lines and much free publicity can be secured in this manner.

SOME PET ECONOMIES.

Saving String and Paper We Never Use—Wasted Medicines.

Hardly a person exists without some favorite economy, some little senseless tribute which he offers at the shrine of thrift and by which he saves—just nothing.

Some people refuse to cut the string of parcels and waste precious minutes laboriously untying knots. Others store away scraps of lace and silk and are delighted when a stray occasion justifies their practice by making use of a hoarded treasure.

I myself have a weakness for half sheets of note paper. I am annoyed exceedingly when I receive a letter with the third page covered and the second blank. It seems an opportunity missed. Yet as I rarely make use of my pieces I can only keep them from a magpie's love of saving.

Appropos of this subject, I remember a clergyman once telling me about an aunt of his who in her eagerness that nothing should be wasted insisted upon drinking the remaining doses in my medicine bottles that the invalids in the household had been unable to finish.

This seems carrying a good principle a little too far.—London Black and White.

FORCED THE PLAY.

Career of a Tragedy Written by the Great Napoleon.

The Scene Illustrators of Rome tell the story of the first Napoleon as a dramatic writer. He had seen a performance of "The Cid," which impressed him so forcibly that he decided to write a classic drama. Within a short time he had finished nearly four acts of a play, which he entitled "Hector." Then came his election as a brigadier general, and the manuscript was thrown into a desk, where he found it again by chance in 1805. Napoleon then sent for Lucie de Lancival, gave him the manuscript and directed him to finish the play. This was done, but the players refused to accept it. When Napoleon returned to Paris from the coronation at Naples he learned of the contemptuous manner in which his work had been treated. He demanded the manuscript and wrote across it: "The Players of the Comedie Française will produce the tragedy which in their stupidity they rejected. Napoleon." Two hours later the work was accepted. In three weeks it was produced before a brilliant audience, declared a success, and the alleged author was decorated with the grand cross of the Legion of Honor.

Swift Birds.

That birds of the family termed swift birds in the Hawaiian Islands should leave that paradise of the Pacific to go and rear their young in the tundras of Alaska would seem to many an extraordinary proceeding, yet the turnstone and the black bellied plover and the Pacific golden plover make the long journey of about 4,000 miles thither annually.

Quieting Him Down.

A farmer sued a cattle dealer for damages in the local county court.

"When I bought the bull," said the complainant, "he told me it was gentle and perfectly harmless—a child could play with it, in fact. Half an hour after I got the animal home he disabled a couple of my farm hands and then turned on me."

"Perhaps the animal was excited by his strange surroundings," suggested his honor. "Is he quiet enough now?"

"Well, yes; but you see—"

"Ah," remarked the defendant, "then my description was correct, after all. I said if he did get excited at first he would quiet down."

Malaprops.

The pious old lady who, returning from a visit to the zoo, announced that she "always did enjoy a visit to the theological gardens" and the servant who, describing her master's last illness, explained that the "doctors held a consolation and found that it was something eternal" have found a recent equal in the lady who observed that when she was in Italy she "saw so many people in the garbage of monks with tonsils on their heads."

Veterinaries.

Hippocrates, the "father of medicine," wrote a treatise on the veterinary art, but his true founder was Vegetius, who wrote "De Arte Veterinaria," 300 A. D. But the first attempt to elevate the practice into a science was as late as 1701, when France set the example of establishing the first veterinary college at Lyons.—Exchange.

Heavily Laden.

"This play in its intensity," said the go-out-between-the-acts young man, "fairly takes my breath away."

"I only wish it would," gloomily remarked the lady in the next seat.—Baltimore American.

Golden For Him.

Bunker I see by the papers that Ardopp has just celebrated his golden wedding! Why, he was only married yesterday. Hunks—Yes; but he married an heiress.

Showing Him.

"You young scoundrel," said the father, seizing his disobedient son by the hair, "I'll show you how to treat your mother!"

And he at once proceeded to show young hopeful the way by hanging him across the ears two or three times and then shaking him until his hair began to fall out.

Defined.

A little girl who had listened to a discussion of nature fairs in literature when asked to define the human and animal families replied: "A brute is an imperfect beast; man is a perfect beast."—Judge.

The Voyager.

The voyager was a large dish in which were collected the broken vessels which were removed from the table with a large knife with a broad, flat blade, called the voyager knife, from voyer, to empty, clear or make void.

"The Book of Nurture," by Hugh Rhodes, the date of which is 1577, one of the curious set of handbooks of manners and etiquette reproduced by the Early English Text society, speaks of these vessels as follows: "See ye have voyders ready for to void the morsels that they doe leave on their trenchers. Then with your trencher knife take off such fragments and put them in your voyder and then sette them downe cleane agayne."

Few silver ones remain, but some large brass voyders or dishes which have probably been so used may still be seen, of the history of which nothing is known by their present owners.—"Old English Plate," by W. J. Cripps.

Types of Female Beauty.

In northern Europe, among the Teutonic races, there are distinct types of beauty to be met with in Sweden, Poland, Saxony and Austria. The Swedish type, however, lacks animation, but the mold and figure to some extent atone for this, says the London Globe. The Austrian women possess a composite beauty in which are united the charms of three or four races. Vienna ladies are tall and stately, with great harmony and proportion in feature and figure. The Tyrolean maiden often lacks a good figure, but her face and manner possess all that is most bewitching in the two races of which she is composed, Latin and Germanic.

FIGHT AT PETROLIA.

Postmaster Dunn, Gus Hobbs Slashed With Knives

Saturday night about 12 o'clock postmaster Harry Dunn and Gus Hobbs of Petrolia, engaged in a fight in which Dunn was stabbed in the left shoulder and Hobbs was slashed across the face from a point two inches above the left ear to the chin. A man by the name of Terry was concerned in the affair. It is said he first tried to get Hobbs and Dunn to shake hands and quit quarreling, failing in which he then agitated them on. Hobbs was cut by Dunn, but there is some doubt as to whether Dunn was stabbed by Terry or Hobbs. Neither wound is dangerous. All three parties were arrested and put under bond.

The difficulty originated over a dispute about some chickens. Dunn and Hobbs had been partners in buying and shipping chickens and disagreed over a division of profits, and in addition, they were somewhat under the influence of liquor.—Henrietta Independent.

$6,000 Hotel at Petrolia.

The bonus of $500.00 and lot offered by the Business Men's League of Petrolia was accepted this week and a contract entered into by Mr. Leath and the League whereby Mr. Leath is to erect on the former hotel site a brick hotel building.

This structure will cost over $6,000 completed and will not only be one of the best structures of its kind in north Texas, but will be quite a convenience to the traveling men and oil field visitors, which heretofore had a difficulty in obtaining hotel accommodations.

Material for the building has been ordered out by wire and will arrive in a few days when a full force of workmen will begin the erecting of same.—Petrolia Round-up.

Raid on Gambling Den.

Sheriff George, Constable Schwend and County Attorney Moss, made a raid on a room in the second story of a building at the southwest corner of the square Sunday night and arrested six persons for alleged gambling.

Admission to the room was refused and the officers forced an entrance by throwing their weight against the door breaking it open. All the paraphernalia necessary for gambling—table, poker chips, cards, etc., were found in the room.

One of the sextet endeavoring to escape by hiding under the bed and another got behind it.—Henrietta Independent.

The Higgins Oil & Fuel Co., under the direction of Mr. H. P. Nichols, will put in a large tank one mile east of Oil City. They are expecting 100 feet of 13-inch pipe, 700 feet of 10-inch pipe, 100 feet of 8-inch pipe, 2000 feet of 6-inch pipe and a special heavy California rig to arrive this week and then work will begin on their new well.—Petrolia Round-up.

A PERILOUS FEAT.

Eating a Savage Hippopotamus in the London Zoo.

Many more little dramas are enacted at the zoo than the outside public wots of, says the London Standard. Behind the lion house there is a black leopardess which is implacably savage and tries to eat her keeper. Her neighbor is a great romping leopard which a lady reared in India. He comes out to play when the British public is represented by only a liveried zoo man. Sometimes the animals get out without the consent of their keepers. One which did so was Obash, the hippopotamus. He proved a savage indeed when the attempt was made to deprive him of his liberty. Happily the gardens were closed at the time. Try as they would, the keepers could not entice or coerce the monster in the direction of his den. At last the superintendent called up an assistant whom the hippopotamus hated. The chief put a bank note into the man's hand. "Scott," he said, "throw open the paddock gate, show yourself to Obash, then run for it." Scott did. The animal went for him, raging along the path and after him into the paddock. Scott climbed the railings just in time, and the hippopotamus on turning found the gate secured behind it. Presently a press representative arrived to investigate the story, which had somehow become known. "Hippopotamus escaped? Oh, dear no! Come and see him in his den," he was answered as they led him to where the monster was caged.

A CHILD'S HEROISM.

The Story of a Visit to the Beautiful Glasnevin Cemetery.

A pathetic story of a child's heroism is told by a Dublin gentleman. Recently he proposed to drive with his wife to the beautiful Glasnevin cemetery. Calling his son, a bright little boy, some four years old, he told him to get ready to accompany them. The child's countenance fell, and the father said:

"Don't you want to go, Willie?" The little lip quivered, but the child answered, "Yes, papa, if you wish." The child was strangely silent during the drive, and when the carriage drove up to the entrance he clung to his mother's side and looked up in her face with pathetic wistfulness.

The party alighted and walked among the graves and along the tree shadowed avenues, looking at the inscriptions on the last resting place of the dwellers in the beautiful city of the dead. After an hour or so spent they returned to the carriage and the father lifted his little son into his seat. The child looked surprised a breath of relief and asked, "Why, am I going back with you?" "Of course you are. Why not?" "I thought when they took the boys to the cemetery they left them there," said the child.

Many a man does not show the heroism in the face of death that this child evinced in what to him had evidently been a summons to leave the world.—London Telegraph.

How to Fish.

On many occasions one might imagine the fish saying to the anglers, "Take me while I am in the humor," but they take no notice of it and often attempt the feat when they are not. It is little use trying to catch fish either in the sea or fresh water when they are not in the humor to bite.—Fishing Gazette.

YOU MAY CHOOSE FOR YOURSELF

Either "Hard Times" or "Good Times," for It Has Come to be a Personal Problem With Each Business Man. . .

THE "hard times" are over, generally speaking. They are not over for those people who are content to have them continue. With the advent of Fall activities in business will come to each merchant, to each man who is conducting a business, the opportunity to say a long good-bye to "hard times," or to cling to them a little longer. It is to be largely a test of courage--the making of this choice. A test of advertising courage--mainly.

The stronger business men will choose good times as a matter of course--and will proceed to make the choice effective by a campaign of real advertising. There will be better, bigger, more effective advertising done this Fall than ever before.

The afraid-merchant will wonder "where the money is coming from to pay the bills." He will, in some cases, decide that he must not "take the risk." That will be HIS DECISION FOR "HARD TIMES" in preference to "good times," so far as he, personally, is concerned.

Prosperity is now a personal question. Yours is a personal question with you. This is both true and important.

"Yes," he said to the company at large, "the greatest honor in the land once paid me the biggest compliment I could wish."
