War update

- Saddam Hussein has told a Soviet envoy that Baghdad is prepared to cooperate with the Soviet Union and other nations to find a peaceful solution to the gulf war, Baghdad radio reported.
- Marine and naval gunners combined fire with U.S. air strikes to pound Iraqi tanks and artillery. Below the Kuwait border, battle-ready American units shifted and maneuvered as they readied for ground war.
- Despite the non-stop air raids, Iraq retains its "lethal developed weapons," the Iraqi Parliament speaker said.
- Iraq said allied rockets demolished the headquarters of a government ministry headed by President Saddam Hussein's cousin.

Flag ban loses, 4-3; opponents vow fight

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

Midlanders who are offended by Lee High School's Rebel flag vowed to continue their battle Tuesday night after school board trustees narrowly defeated a motion to replace the flag.

"We'll see you in court!" several people shouted while exiting the board meeting.

Before the meeting about 30 flag opponents staged a demonstration speaking about their commitment to rid Midland public schools of symbols of the Confederacy.

Some of them carried signs that said, "Down with the flag." Others wore buttons with the same words.

But once the vote was taken only three board members — Adela Marmolejo, James Fuller and Ken Morrison — voted in favor of replacing the school's Rebel flag at the end the school year, creating, instead, a flag of neutrality and instituting an upbeat version of the song "Dixie."

The motion — which was defeated 4-3 — was essentially the same one made by Fuller at the Dec. 7 board meeting. Fuller made the motion Tuesday night with an amendment (suggested by Morrison) to keep the Rebel flag until the last day of this school year.

"I did feel an obligation to the students who voted to keep the flag this year," Morrison said.

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia — Allied shells fired from land, sea and air rained down on a large concentration of Iraqi infantry, armor and artillery in southern Kuwait on Tuesday in what military spokesmen called the largest combined operation of the Persian Gulf war.

Saudi howitzers and rocket launchers, U.S. Marine Corps attack planes and artillery and the 16-inch guns of the battleship Missouri opened up on "a lucrative target," Brig. Gen. Richard I. Neal, an American spokesman, reported at a briefing in Riyadh, the Saudi capital.

He said he had no assessment of the damage caused by the bombardment, which began at 4 a.m. Tuesday morning and lasted for more than three hours.

Court throws out Bakker's sentence

■ Panel rules that judge was influenced by his religious beliefs; conviction upheld.

Associated Press

RICHMOND, Va. — The judge who gave Jim Bakker a 45-year prison term was influenced by his religious beliefs, said an appeals court that Tuesday ordered the former television evangelist resentenced.

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond upheld Bakker's 1989 conviction on 24 counts of mail fraud, wire fraud and conspiracy.

But the three-judge panel threw out the sentence because of remarks made by U.S. District Judge Robert D. Potter at the sentencing hearing in Charlotte, N.C. The court ordered that Bakker be resentenced by a different judge.

"I am just delighted. I just talked to my husband and the whole prison was excited for him. He was in a no-smoking class, and they broke in on the middle of the class and said, 'Jim, Jim, you've won part of your appeal!' " Bakker's wife, Tammy Faye, said at her New Covenant Ministry Church near Orlando, Fla.

Bakker's lawyers said they would try to get him released on bail until he is resentenced.

"I would think that common sense justice would require that. He should never have been incarcerated during this appeal," said attorney George T. Davis from San Francisco.

Bakker, who founded the PTL network, was sentenced to 45 years in prison and fined $500,000 on Oct. 24, 1989, for defrauding followers who bought partnerships in PTL's Heritage USA vacation park and retreat in Fort Mill, S.C.

Bakker, who was taken away in leg irons after his sentencing, is serving his sentence at a federal prison in Rochester, Minn.

During the sentencing hearing, Potter said Bakker "had no thought whatever about his victims and those of us who do have a religion are ridiculed as being

Saddam says he's prepared to seek peace

N.Y. Times News Service

President Saddam Hussein of Iraq said Tuesday night that he was willing to cooperate with the Soviet Union to end the Persian Gulf war, but he also said that Iraq was resolved to keep fighting "until aggression and the aggressors are beaten back."

Saddam's remarks were read on the Baghdad radio after he met with a Soviet special envoy, Yevgeny M. Primakov.

Primakov was in Baghdad to deliver a personal appeal from President Mikhail S. Gorbachev of the Soviet Union to Saddam to withdraw Iraqi forces from Kuwait in conformity with United Nations Security Council resolutions to avoid further destruction and casualties.

Whether Saddam's statement represented a change in Iraq's position was not immediately clear because it made

Council vote accepts new board nominees

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

The Permian Basin Airport Board received its wings Tuesday when the Midland City Council appointed the entity's members, who will represent eight communities.

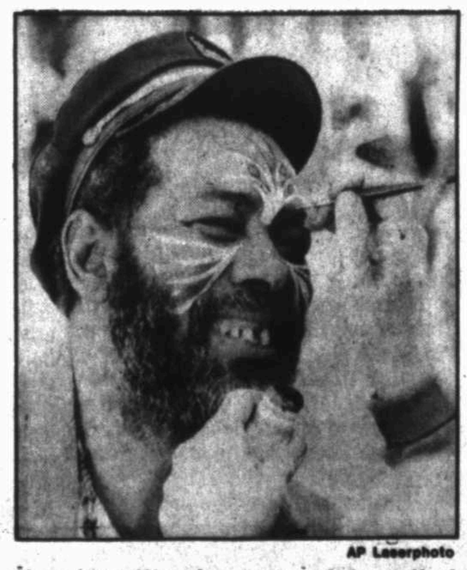

The council voted 6-1 to accept nominees from the cities of Odessa, Big Spring, Snyder, Lamesa, Andrews, Monahans and Hobbs, N.M.

The newly appointed members, three from Odessa and one from each of the other cities, will join the 10 members of Midland's existing airport board to compose the Permian Basin Airport Board.

Members will brainstorm for ways to improve and market Midland International Airport. They also will act as advisers to airport authorities and city management.

Irreverence, flamboyant patriotism mark Mardi Gras

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Traditional Mardi Gras drunkenness and breast-baring irreverence exploded on New Orleans streets Tuesday, colored this year with extra doses of flamboyant wartime patriotism.

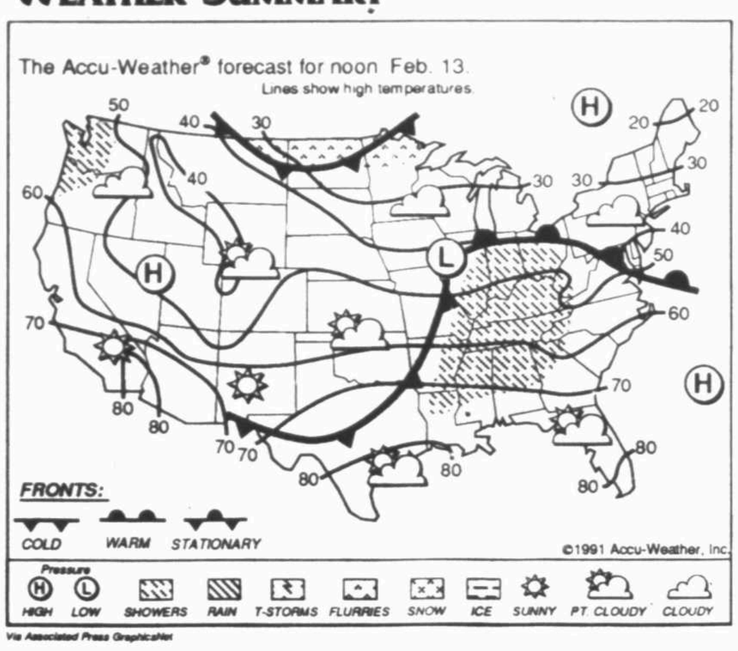

Effigies and caricatures of Saddam Hussein hung from oak trees and lamp posts. Among the usual scantily clad men and women lining the streets were dozens of Statues of Liberty, Betsy Rosses and make-believe soldiers.

"You can forget about the war for a little while, especially today," said tourist Donna Crowe, 27, dressed as Miss Liberty. "But it will be back before long."

The Evansville, Ind., medical technician said the daughter of one of her co-workers is just 40 miles from the front lines in Saudi Arabia.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Via Associated Press GraphicsNet

Sunny skies forecast

Today's forecast calls for mostly sunny skies with a high in the lower 70s and northwest winds at 15 to 20 mph and gusty, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tonight will be clear and cooler with a low in the mid-30s.

Thursday is expected to be clear with a high in the mid-60s.

Tuesday's high was 78 compared with the record high for that date of 86 in 1962. The overnight low was 44. The record low for this date was 13 set in 1963.

STATE

Skies were mostly sunny across West Texas Tuesday while clouds lingered in northern and southern regions and moderate temperatures held across the state.

Gusts of up to 25 mph were reported in South Texas as an area of low pressure continued to developed in the far west.

State highs ranged from 61 degrees at Guadalupe Pass to 79 degrees at Laredo, McAllen and Del Rio.

In South Texas, temperatures hovered between the upper 60s in parts of the Hill Country to the upper 70s in the lower Rio Grande Valley.

Intermittent sunshine was seen in North Texas with temperatures in the lower 70s for most areas.

An upper-level disturbance is moving towards North Texas and may produce a few isolated thunderstorms in the area Wednesday, according to the National Weather Service.

A cold front is expected to bring cooler conditions to the North Texas area by Thursday night and linger until Friday.

Midland statistics

Today: Mostly sunny, high in the low 70s, northwest winds 15-20 mph.
Tonight: Clear and cooler, low in the mid-30s.
Thursday: Clear, high in the mid-60s.

BARRAGE: Pounding of Baghdad is relentless

(From 1A)

vehicles snaking south near an airfield in Iraqi-occupied Kuwait, shot down a helicopter west of Mosul in northern Iraq and attacked four launchers for Scud surface-to-surface missiles, the U.S. command said.

Reports from Baghdad said the aerial pounding of the Iraqi capital continued without letup. Allied bombs were reported to have demolished a fourth bridge across the Tigris River in the city's center, leaving only two intact there, and blasted two government departments, including the Justice Ministry and the Local Government Ministry, headed by one of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's cousins.

Some of the heaviest air raids in Baghdad came as Yevgeny M. Primakov, a special envoy from Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev of the Soviet Union, was meeting with Saddam somewhere in the metropolitan area. Earlier, he examined bomb craters and other structural damage in the capital.

An Iraqi military communique said a hospital and maternity ward had been hit, but also acknowledged, in an unusual step, that 135 military targets had been attacked in 24 hours.

The allies denied hitting the hospital and maternity ward, and the controversy over the number of civilian casualties intensified, with President Bush asserting that Saddam was exploiting them for propaganda by "cranking out myths and falsehoods."

"This is a systematic campaign by the United States to destroy Iraq," said Najif Hadithi, director general of information in Iraq. "These are deliberate attacks on the city with intention to kill people."

Capt. Orlando Cisneros, an Air Force pilot, told pool reporters he was concerned about the people who were forced to endure the allied raids.

"Down there, it is hell," the captain said, according to a dispatch reaching Dhahran. "This is war. It's not funny or pleasant, but it's necessary."

American pilots in twin-tailed F-15 Eagles bombed Scud launchers in western Iraq and said they had destroyed three of them. An F-16 Fighting Falcon was just rolling in on a launcher elsewhere in Iraq, the command said, when a huge explosion went off below it, apparently from a missile.

Nevertheless, Iraq managed to fire three Scuds during the night. Two landed in Israel, one in an uninhabited area, the other in a prosperous urban neighorhood. About 20 people were hurt in the second incident, most of them slightly.

A third missile was launched toward Riyadh, where it was intercepted by American Patriot missiles. Falling debris caused slight damage.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir again hinted Israel might retaliate but said he did not want to alienate Arab nations in the allied coalition.

Asked if the United States had not already claimed the destruction of more missile launchers than Iraq was thought to possess at the start of the war, Neal said he was sure pilots had mistaken some decoys for real launchers.

Beyond that, he added, "I don't think we at the command were ever really comfortable with our original numbers."

A total of 2,600 missions were flown by allied pilots, including 650 operations over Kuwait and southern Iraq. Neal said air operations were so intense that parts of the battlefield made busy airports like Atlanta's or Los Angeles International "pale by comparison."

SADDAM: Baghdad radio broadcasts remarks

(From 1A)

no reference to an Iraqi withdrawal, the central issue Soviet officials have been urging Saddam to address.

The White House spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater, said "it's just too premature to make a judgment" about Saddam's remarks, adding, "The deciding factor is what he has to say about getting out of Kuwait."

The Baghdad radio report, which was monitored by Western governments and news agencies at about midnight Baghdad time, quoted Saddam as saying:

"Iraq is prepared to extend cooperation to the Soviet Union and other nations and agencies in the interest of finding a peaceful, political, equitable and honorable solution to the region's central issues, including the situation in the Gulf."

The statement said Saddam also emphasized to Primakov that "the people and armed forces and leadership of Iraq have firmly resolved to tackle aggression with all that the national and pan-Arab responsibility entails in the way of honor, pride and courage, regardless of the sacrifices needed, until aggression and the aggressors are beaten back."

Saddam sharpened his accusations that the Persian Gulf conflict had been transformed from an U.N. police action to a campaign of destruction against what he called "the civilian infrastructure built by the Iraqi people."

FLAG: Opponents of flag stage demonstration

(From 1A)

Board members Jackie Hamilton, George Staley, Ken Marks and Larry Rusk opposed the motion.

Board members voted, instead, to form a committee to "come up with a recommendation about what to do with the Confederate flag." That motion passed 5-2 with Fuller and Ms. Marmolejo voting in opposition.

About 75 citizens showed up in opposition to the flag. No proponents of the flag spoke.

The vote came after the board listened to 2½ hours of brief, but impassioned, speeches from Midlanders of all races, and board members engaged in dialogue with some of the speakers.

"The time to make a decision is tonight," said Alma Marshall, chairman of FOCUS (Federation of Citizens United to Serve). "We are not going to wait any more. You do what you have to do and we'll do what we have to do."

Several speakers said that they had formed a committee with Ernest Angelo and persons who are members of the LHS athletic booster clubs, LHS band booster clubs and LHS PTA.

"We entered into a discussion with a group of people who purported to want a compromise," Ms. Marshall said. She said communications broke down once she and hundreds of others came out in support of the cluster system, the school's system of desegregation.

Staley said he was told by members of the committee from his district that they weren't ready for a compromise.

"We can have committees until the year 2000 and we will still be wrestling with this issue," said Odessan Gene Collins, a property owner and taxpayer in Midland and president of the Odessa Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

Collins said, "The vote needs to be taken now. I challenge you to quit passing the buck. You ran for office. People voted for you because they had confidence in you, now vote."

Several persons speaking to the board said that they had contacted national agencies about the issue and outside media including the national office of the NAACP, the U.S. Justice Department, USA Today, the Houston Chronicle, the Dallas Times Herald, the Austin American-Statesmen, Fort Worth Star-Telegram, Ebony magazine, Jet magazine and the television show "60 Minutes."

The Rev. Wayne Russel said that he had contacted the Oprah Winfrey Show. "When I talked to Oprah's associates, they couldn't believe that this issue was coming from the same town where they had a talk show on the Jessica McClure rescue," he said.

Cheryl Franklin, a member of Citizens for Positive Change, made a formal request of the board for copies of all recordings of board meetings concerning the flag issue by Feb. 16.

Morrison said, "This is an issue of perception. To the majority of the community, which is Anglo, the flag does not mean something evil. It reminds them of the men who died in the Civil War."

But, the school board president said he had seen Anglos who previously spoke in opposition to the flag change their minds. "No one will step forward and take a leadership role from the white community," he said. "I'm willing to do that. I would rather resolve this issue at the local level and get it over with."

Morrison said he made the decision to vote for a compromise before attending Tuesday's board meeting.

Staley said he wanted "further dialogue."

"I was asked not to support the compromise until more time was given for the other committee to meet," Staley said.

Ms. Hamilton said, "I have to go back to Lee High School and look those students in the eyes. I will never carry or place a Rebel flag in a stand again, but I am committed to my kids and my district."

Marks agreed. "I voted before to support the students."

Following the vote, Fuller said, "We have made a mistake, again. This is another demonstration of reneging on our responsibility to do what we are supposed to do. You think there was some divisiveness in our community before?"

Most of the boardroom was empty by the time members decided to appoint a committee to study the flag issue.

The committee will be composed of three persons from the school's central office, one of whom will be superintendent Joseph Baressi Jr., LHS principal Jack Fryar, and three persons from each of the single-member districts — two adults and one student. They will be selected by board members.

"I don't think I will be able to get three people from my district," Ms. Marmolejo said. "They are going to tell me that they will feel like they are wasting their time."

Fuller agreed.

Ms. Marshall, who stayed until the end of the meeting, said she was disappointed, but not surprised about the vote.

Her parting words to the board were, "I'm sorry the meeting had to end this way,. You want us to wait longer. Well, 200 years is long enough ... we have done all the waiting we are going to do. Stay tuned there is more to come."

Will Huston, who has a son who will be attending LHS, exited distraught. "I can't believe it," he said. "They can take down the Berlin Wall, but we can't take down this flag."

BOARD: Panel will seek ways to improve airport

(From 1A)

port hangar leases, will remain intact.

Councilmen last month unanimously approved creating the new board, which will have no authority to make decisions directly affecting Midland International.

Members on the board will report suggestions and concerns to Midland's airport board, which could then relay the information to city management. The ultimate decision-making authority lies with the Midland City Council.

Deputy City Manager Mike McGregor said the board's first meeting will be held in late March or early April. The body will meet quarterly, he said.

The first meeting will be an organizational session for new members, McGregor said.

The members will serve one-year terms, although the terms of representatives selected Tuesday will end Oct. 1, the beginning of the 1991-92 fiscal year.

Representing Odessa are Councilman James Goates, former Mayor Jim Reese and businessman T.L. "Woody" Gregory.

Other board members are Joe Jackson, a bank president of Snyder; Max Clampitt, a Hobbs city commissioner; Lynn Hise, a retired school superintendent from Big Spring. Also serving are Lamesa Mayor Donald Bethel, Monahans Mayor Richard Hoyer and Andrews County Clerk William "Bubba" Hoermann.

District 2 Councilman Tony Carrillo cast the sole opposing vote Tuesday.

Carrillo said he would have preferred that the 10 Midland representatives come from outside the current airport planning and development board.

"My vote was not intended to be against the nominees from the other cities," he said.

Ed Vogler, chairman of Midland's airport planning board, said the new board will play a vital role in marketing Midland International as a regional facility.

That effort will be even more critical in the wake of the recently announced departure of America West, Vogler said. The loss of service, which will end April 7, will leave Midland International with only two commercial carriers but will not affect future airport expansion plans, he said.

"We will be able to receive input from the new board members in addition to picking up additional congressional support," he said. "We're going to concentrate on marketing and use every aspect available."

In other action Tuesday relating to Midland International, councilmen unanimously approved hiring six additional police officers.

Midland Police Chief Richard Czech said the officers will be assigned to Midland International security once they are hired. It is uncertain how soon the police will join the force, Czech said.

The Federal Aviation Administration mandated that security be raised to the highest possible state of alert at airports nationwide following the outbreak of war last month in the Persian Gulf.

In response, the city of Midland added 20 officers to security forces prowling for possible terrorist activities at the airport, Czech said. The upgraded security is costing the city $1,200 a day in overtime, he said.

With no end in sight to the elevated security, Czech requested additional officers.

He said the officers will be needed anyway in the future as the airport is expanded and flight traffic grows.

The additional police staffing will cost the city an estimated $117,000 this year and $200,000 next year, Czech said.

In other action Tuesday, councilmen:

- approved $23,203 in landscaping for Windlands Park;
- allotted $10,000 for playground equipment for Cowden Park; and
- appropriated $210,000 in additional funds for the city's share of administration, survey and land acquisition costs of pipeline from O.H. Ivie Reservoir to Midland.

BAKKER: Conviction stands

(From 1A)

saps (for) money-grubbing preachers or priests."

The appeals court ruled Tuesday that judges cannot punish defendants for offending the judges' personal religious beliefs.

"Whether or not the trial judge has a religion is irrelevant for purposes of sentencing," said the opinion written by Judge J. Harvie Wilkinson III and joined by Judges J. Dickson Phillips Jr. and John D. Butzner Jr. "The imposition of a lengthy prison term here may have reflected the fact that the court's own sense of religious propriety had somehow been betrayed."

Bakker has not granted any interviews while in prison, and continued to refuse interviews after learning of the ruling Tuesday, said John Chreno, executive assistant to the warden at the Federal Medical Center in Rochester.

Tom Ashcraft, U.S. attorney for the Western District of North Carolina, said prosecutors were gratified that the conviction was upheld.

"We are especially pleased by the holding of the appeals court that the defendant's rights at trial were 'meticulously observed,'" he said. "With respect to the sentencing issue, the government will withhold comment until the appropriate time in court."

Mrs. Bakker said she had learned of the ruling in a telephone call from her crying daughter, Tammy Sue.

"Everyone is excited and we're deeply grateful. And I believe that before this is over, Jim is going to be totally exonerated of all wrongdoing," Mrs. Bakker said.

Davis said the defense team would likely appeal the ruling on the conviction to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Bakker's appeal was argued last October by Alan M. Dershowitz, a Harvard University law professor who joined the case after Bakker was convicted.

Dershowitz had also argued that Bakker's sentence exceeded federal sentencing guidelines that took effect Nov. 1, 1987. But the court said the guidelines do not apply because the conspiracy began in 1982.

FAT: Crowds stand a dozen deep

(From 1A)

Parade-goers camped out overnight along parade routes to stake out territory, setting up tents and barbecue grills. They wanted to be in position to catch beads and other junk tossed by maskers on the hundreds of floats in successive parades on Mardi Gras — French for Fat Tuesday, the day before Lent begins.

Parades included the procession of Rex, King of Carnival and head of a secretive "krewe" of high society, old-money businessmen. Also rolling was the all-black Zulu Social Aid and Pleasure Club, which started 75 years ago as a spoof of the more staid, all-white krewes.

In between traditional krewes rolled the truck parades, in which any group with a decorated flatbed truck and a few hundred dollars for an entry fee could join.

Parodies of Iraqi dress were the costume of choice for many. Andre McDonald, 42, of New Orleans donned Arab robes and called himself Abdullah the Absent.

"I wish I could be with my people in the desert," he joked, "but there's shooting going on there, and there's drinking going on here."

There had been talk of canceling Carnival parades when the Persian Gulf War broke out last month, but city officials said that would be economic suicide in a city still suffering the effects of the mid-'80s oil bust. Officials estimated that Mardi Gras would pump some $480 million into the local economy this year.

Various estimates put the crowds at about 1 million, although there had been speculation that terrorism fears and the recession might reduce the attendance. Hotel bookings were down to 91 percent from about 98 percent going into the final weekend.

OPERATION DESERT STORM

U.S. troops in desert place bets on land-assault timing

■ Gulf notebook

By Charles J. Lewis
Hearst News Service

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia — A lot of betting on when the land war will start is going on all across Saudi Arabia

Among those wagering in the foxholes and trenches and on the ships and air bases are winners and losers from last month's bets on when war would break out after the Jan. 15 U.N. Security Council deadline for Iraq to get out of Kuwait.

Those wagering that the land assault won't start for another two or three weeks point to statements by some field commanders that they need more time to get their equipment running right, get their supplies built up, and get their troops trained to survive in the desert.

They also point to political pressure on President Bush to keep the air war going longer to minimize casualties when the land war starts.

Those betting that the land war will start very soon counter that U.S. forces are ready enough. They say some commanders always want more time to get ready.

They also note that a new moon will appear Feb. 14. U.S. commanders prefer to fight on the darkest nights because U.S. equipment can "see in the dark." Other evidence for their argument is that the sandstorm season usually starts in March. And battle strategists would like to avoid war during the Moslem holy month of Ramadan that starts in mid-March.

And, the president is being pressured to "get it over with fast," they say. They buy the theory that an early start would give the U.S. the benefit of surprise because recent news accounts have hinted that the land war may be delayed.

Christian worship is coming out of hiding.

When U.S. troops poured into this strictly Islamic country last August, U.S. commanders put out the word that Christian worship should be heavily camouflaged so as not to offend the Saudi hosts.

The worship services led by Army Sgt. Robert Wise are the latest sign that religion is going public.

Wise, an evangelist, has been energetically organizing prayer meetings at a field hospital near the front lines. He claims to have saved 200 souls since he arrived from Germany in December.

His church, "The Field Med House of Prayer," features gospel music, hand-clapping and shouts of "hallelujah" and "amen."

Coalition demands CNN pull correspondent

By S. Kelly Hull
Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — A coalition of conservative organizations, charging that Cable News Network correspondent Peter Arnett is an "unofficial mouthpiece" for Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, demanded Tuesday that the network pull Arnett out of the Iraqi capital of Baghdad.

"CNN is not providing a service to the U.S. or to the armed services," said Reed Irvine, who heads the coalition calling itself the Victory Committee. "They are providing a service to Saddam Hussein, broadcasting what he wants the world to hear and see."

Arnett, a veteran war correspondent who won a Pulitzer Prize for his coverage of the Vietnam War, has been broadcasting for CNN from Baghdad since before Operation Desert Storm began Jan. 16. His reports are subjected to Iraqi censorship, a condition noted by the cable network following each broadcast.

CNN declined to respond to the coalition's specific charges, but the cable network issued a statement, which read in part:

"Some of the words and pictures are painful, but so is war," said the CNN statement. "The censorship is onerous, but so are the restrictions of other countries, including the United States, involved in this war."

But at a news conference here, the Victory Committee charged that while "the images are true," the Atlanta-based TV network "has failed to read between the lines."

"The propaganda aspect of this is the repetition and the narrow point of view," said Irvine, who founded Accuracy In Media, a conservative watchdog group. "We need to tell Ted Turner that we will tune out CNN until CNN tunes out Peter Arnett, Saddam Hussein's unofficial mouthpiece."

New York City's three-term mayor, Robert Wagner, dies

N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — Robert Ferdinand Wagner, who oversaw a vivid transformation of the city's politics and even its personality in three terms as mayor, died early Tuesday at his home in Manhattan. He was 80.

The police and emergency medical technicians were summoned at 2:30 a.m. CST to his townhouse on E. 62nd Street, where the ailing former mayor was pronounced dead of heart failure. He had been suffering from bladder cancer.

Wagner's cautious style frustrated his critics, but helped New York City cope with the accelerating pace of its social, economic and polical evolution. He presided from 1954 through 1965 with sagaciousness, grace and dry wit as the keystone of a political dynasty: his father was a U.S. senator; his son, who is known as Robert F. Wagner Jr., has been elected and appointed to city posts in his own right.

Only two other modern mayors of New York City — Fiorello H. La Guardia and Edward I. Koch — served for 12 years, too. None surpassed Wagner's 1957 plurality of more than 920,000 votes.

After he left City Hall, he was appointed a diplomat overseas and became a trusted adviser to political figures in New York, Albany and Washington. Twice, though, his "sentimental journey," as he once described it, to succeed his father in the Senate ended in failure.

Yet his legacy for New York, a city that his father had adopted as a German immigrant, was profound. He was inaugurated as its 102nd mayor during a period that, in retrospect, typified simpler times.

When he left 12 years later, social and economic pressures had turned New York into a city that critics said epitomized the urban dilemma and his administration's reticence in responding to it.

Flexing his political muscle, Wagner won infusions of state and Federal funds to clear slums in urban-renewal areas, build public housing and to help maintain the 15-cent subway fare. He granted collective bargaining rights to municipal labor unions.

He integrated government with more black and Hispanic appointees who began to reflect the city's rapidly changing population. And his third-term campaign against his estranged political mentors dealt the Democratic machine a defeat from which it has never recovered.

His administration contributed to bringing Shakespeare to Central Park and a World's Fair to Flushing Meadow. But his city also lost two institutions, the Brooklyn Dodgers and the baseball Giants to California, although the mayor was instrumental in luring another National League franchise, the Mets, to a new stadium in Queens.

Gov. Mario M. Cuomo, who once described Wagner as the city's greatest mayor, said Tuesday: "A large, living piece of our best political history has fallen away, and there is nothing adequate to replace it. Robert Wagner was a superb public person, servant of the people and adviser to their leaders — so great, he became and will remain an institution."

Mayor David N. Dinkins, who ordered flags on municipal buildings to be flown at half-staff for 30 days, traced his own election as the city's first black mayor, in part, to Wagner's role in the election of the first black Democratic leader of Manhattan.

Airport expansion should continue

While America West Airlines' announcement that it will cancel its routes through both Midland and Lubbock is disappointing since it comes at a time when the City of Midland is planning to launch a major expansion at Midland International Airport, the decision should not significantly alter the city's plans.

Over the past decade or so, numerous airlines have pulled out of Midland, but other airline companies — attracted by this region's steady reliance on air travel — have always moved in to fill the void. In fact, over the long haul Midland's air service has grown and improved, which prompted the city to embark on the major expansion at Midland International.

Even after America West's flights end on April 7, Midland and Lubbock will still be locked in a struggle for dominance in the air service market. Realistically, both cities must have air service and neither city will have an advantage in attracting new airlines, yet the needs of Permian Basin air travelers will remain: oil executives from Midland will still need to catch flights to Houston or Denver, and West Texas ranchers and business people will still need timely flights to Dallas, Los Angeles and elsewhere.

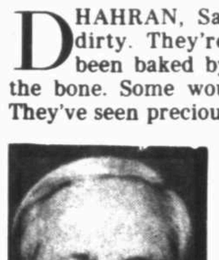

To continue to compete with Lubbock for air service, however, Midland needs to improve its airport facilities. With improved facilities, it should be easier for Midland International to attract other air carriers. A decision to pull back from the expansion, on the other hand, would relegate Midland to the sidelines in the quest for air service. That would be counterproductive when viewed in light of all the work that has been done here in past years to put Midland International in a prestige position where air service is concerned. Specifically, we're speaking of the Foreign Trade Zone designation and the acquisition of the Confederate Air Force by Midland — two feathers in Midland International's cap.

While the city may have to put certain aspects of the planned expansion on hold until a replacement for America West can be acquired, the overall direction that has been set for Midland International's development must be maintained. Air service will largely determine the economic winners in the years ahead.

U.S. infantry exhibits determination

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia — They're dirty. They're homesick. They have been baked by the sun and chilled to the bone. Some would dearly love a drink. They've seen precious few homemade cookies since Christmas. But the allied voices at the front, from the high command to the lowly private, tell a story of determination that has been enhanced instead of suppressed by six months of waiting out Saddam Hussein in the desert.

Anderson

From a lance corporal: "I hope this is Armageddon so we can get it all over with."

Lt. Gen. Chuck Horner, the man in charge of the air campaign: "This attack on Khafji — that's stupid! That's the stupidest thing he could do. Now, why is he doing that? To me it occurs one of the answers is that he's desperate, and he sees that he's getting chewed up. Maybe he sees the sand running out on them."

Pvt. First Class Kenneth Johns of Chico, Calif., an Army engineer: "This is one big cat box. Nothing more, nothing less."

A staff sergeant with a tank division: "We've got a personal vendetta. It's all because of one man. There is not a doubt in our minds this guy's history."

Lt. Col. Dick "Snake" White of Arkansas, commander of a squadron of Harriers flying over the Khafji battle: "My biggest danger was running into another U.S. aircraft. It was almost like trying to get into the checkout during a close-out sale on lady's lingerie." Speaking of the Iraqis coming out of their defensive positions to fight, he added, "Now, it's almost like you flipped on the light in the kitchen late at night and the cockroaches start scurrying, and we're killing them. They're moving in columns, they're moving in small groups and convoys. It's exactly what we've been looking for, and it sounds to me like he's lost his marbles."

Staff Sgt. Rick Taylor of the Marine Corps combat engineers, lecturing the Marines on the job of the troops who search for mines: "When they disappear into that big pink mist with body parts flying, you'll know what to do."

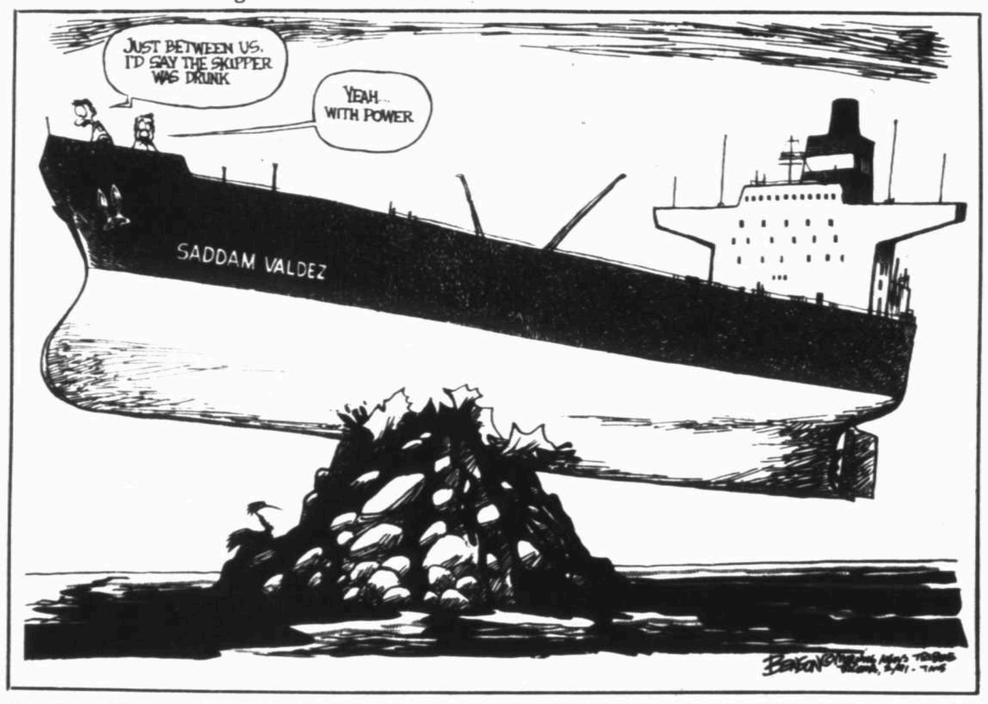

Staff Sgt. Benjamin Hoover of Oklahoma: "We've got to attack the Iraqi forces unless Saddam gives up. But he's like a tick on a dog. He won't leave."

Maj. Frank Timmons, who gets supplies for his troops, when asked what gave him the courage to go straight to the top, to a major general, demanding tents: "What was he going to do, send me to Saudi Arabia? The worst he could do was say no."

A Marine major speaking of the ground offensive: "I expect we're going to expel them rather violently. ... We're going to spank them pretty hard."

MINI-EDITORIAL — President Bush, who went golfing when Saddam Hussein invaded Kuwait last August, now says he isn't losing any sleep over the war. We assume this is just the propaganda of bravado. Bush is in a tight spot. He doesn't want to look like Jimmy Carter, who was emotionally and politically paralyzed and locked himself in the White House for the duration of the Iran hostage crisis. Nor does he want to look like Ronald Reagan, who appeared for all the world to get a good night's sleep no matter what the crisis. At this point in history, and no matter what Bush says publicly, we would feel better if there was one light burning in the White House after quitting time.

World body must counter arms sales

The routes arms take before they reach their final destination in the Middle East often are as tortuous as the region's politics. We're now seeing the tragic results of these uncontrolled, surreptitious arms deals that have left the nations of the Middle East bristling with weapons from a multitude of sources. In many cases, these same weapons are being unleashed against the very people from whom they were bought. ...

It is imperative that the new world order President Bush talks about include some mechanism to stanch the flow of arms to the Middle East. In this regard, we welcome the initial efforts of Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., the chairman of the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on the Middle East.

Mr. Hamilton is urging an international conference be called to discuss what he rightfully calls weapons of mass destruction. Mr. Hamilton even has suggested ending all arms sales to the Mideast.

Such goals will remain lofty — and elusive — as long as the region remains on the boil. Settling the Palestinian question and ensuring the safety of Israel would go a long way toward alleviating the obsession with weaponry that grips the region.

Perhaps one good that can result from the tragedy unfolding in the Mideast is the realization that dumping more arms there only would portend even greater disaster. Once the United Nations resolution ordering Iraq out of Kuwait is enforced, the world body should take up the issue of arms control.

— Dallas Times Herald

Technological ability cuts civilian deaths

Considering the extent of allied bombing over the last three weeks, it is somewhat amazing that Saddam Hussein has so little propaganda footage to show to the world of non-strategic targets bombed.

There was film of a mosque half-demolished. Pictures have been shown of a residential area hit, of a hospital room full of injured children, plus more photos that might play on international sympathies.

But the fact is, evidence of that nature has been sparse. All things considered, allied forces really have done an amazing job of hitting strategic targets and avoiding civilian casualties. ...

All of which raises questions about the reported firing of cruise missiles toward Baghdad last week by allied ships. It would seem that with domination of the skies and with highly accurate airborne weapons, long-range missiles would be trained solely on the theater of war and on Iraqi troops. ...

It is an awesome task. No war takes place without civilian casualties, but allied forces have shown the technological ability to minimize such casualties like never before. They should remain devoted to that objective.

— Waco Tribune Herald

Some sage advice for a new speechwriter

WASHINGTON — To a sailor, a telltale is a strip of cloth attached to the mast to indicate the wind's direction; to a railroader, a telltale is a ribbon hung over a track before a tunnel to warn trainmen off the roofs of cars; to a pundit, a telltale is some seemingly insignificant sign that is a portent of a change in political emphasis — as when a president hires a new chief speechwriter.

Safire

Last Halloween, as Chriss Winston prepared to take her 2-year-old out trick-or-treating, the White House reached her with a hurry-up assignment. Little Ian, dressed in his bunny suit, fell asleep on the couch as his mother cranked out a statement. That was it; early this year, Ms. Winston let her bosses know that her immediate future would be as mother and freelancer.

Chief of staff John Sununu and the pollster Robert Teeter seized the opportunity to search for a writer with a harder edge. The half-dozen other writers were passed over — one, Mark Davis, was leaving to be word-smith to Gov. Pete Wilson of California — because the president's men were looking ahead to 1992.

In six months, the war will be over and the sky-high Bush ratings will begin to sink; unemployment will be up, whether or not the recession bottoms out as soon as hoped; and Democrats will be taking pot-shots at "the first president to lead us into both a war and a recession." Partisanship time.

Needed: not a heavy hitter with a big reputation and a lot of baggage, but a hard hitter not known for speechwriting, relatively young, and with independent, right-wing credentials.

Sununu's choice, not yet announced but who was introduced to the man in the Oval Office last week: Anthony Snow, 35, a Cincinnatian who worked at The Detroit News and for the past three years has been editorial page editor and columnist at the conservative Washington Times.

Articulate enough for TV opinionfests, Snow has already begun to clam up: the FBI is now visiting his kindergarten teachers, and Sununu would be proud of the way his choice parries press queries, even from certified bigfeet. Apparently Peggy Noonan's irreverent memoirs have set insiders' teeth on edge, and the new man is expected to revert to what FDR's Louis Brownlow called "a passion for anonymity."

Most members of the Judson Welliver Society, the club of former presidential speechwriters, would go along with that, even as we wince at the thought of a polemicist who has never written a speech — and who doesn't know the principal's thinking intimately — starting at the top. I hope op-editors seek out my colleagues (Clifford, Sorensen, Valenti, Cater, Schlesinger, Price, Herzberg, Elliot, etc.) for their guidance, but here is one old hand's advice to the new superspook:

1. Don't look for a hot new phrase: stick with the New World Order. Of course it's vulnerable — every time some plan falls apart or some tinpot hollers at Washington, critics will hoot, "You call this a new world order?" — but it's Bush's baby.

2. Fight for the Union. Up to now, the most pellucid prose to come out of Bush's mouth has been by the National Security Council's Richard Haass, in a news-conference statement of war aims; he also drafted the powerful letter to Saddam Hussein. But Haass is merely a policymaker, not a card-carrying speechwriter; insist that NSC stuff be routed through the writing shop, lest you wind up in a domestic backwater.

3. Discover the Bush domestic design and lay it out in a series of speeches. Under all those Pinkerton paradigms and Darmanesque ditherings must be some pattern of decisions: find that gestalt, give it a Weltanschauung, and push it with some passion. Even moderates stand for something.

4. Don't be haunted by Reagan's Ghost. Bush is fearful of comparison with Reagan speechifying, and instead shows off his ad-libbing advantage over his predecessor — perversely boasting of his inadequate speech delivery. Enough of that; you've been brought aboard not for sound bites and snippets, but for serious red meat and potatoes.

As the Ides of March approach, in prime time, the president will solemnly come before us to explain this war's endgame. He has the sense of history in his head but not on the tip of his tongue. It's your enviable job to help him make weapons out of his words.

Hail, the $1,450,000,000,000,000 budget

You might have missed it last week, but President Bush's budget was unveiled. It was a mere $1.45 trillion. It didn't bother me, but when I told my friend, Gordon Manning, he expressed surprise. "Bush told us during the election campaign that it would be only $1.35 trillion."

Buchwald

"Presidents always fudge on budgets. They can never distinguish between a billion and a trillion."

Manning asked, "How do they come up with the figure in the first place?"

"They have trained chimpanzees who work with slide rules. At the beginning of the financial year each chimp in the OMB is allowed a trillion dollars to shape into anything he wants. Once you crunch numbers, it's every budget director for himself."

Manning was fascinated with the process. "Has anyone ever seen a trillion dollars?"

"Not too many. We've seen military weapons that cost a trillion dollars, and HUD obligations and S&L debts. But not even the President's dog has seen a trillion dollars piled up in front of the White House."

"How does the President know that the $1.45 trillion is all there?"

"One of Dan Quayle's jobs is to count it and make sure that it checks out."

"The President is lucky to have a Vice President who can count."

"That's why Bush took Quayle on as VP. Dan can do wonders with a golf score."

Manning said, "The President is asking for $1.45 trillion. Where is he going to get the money from?"

"Mostly from the boom times that should be with us at any moment," I told him.

"What boom times?"

"The ones that are just around the corner when the white clouds drive the dark clouds away. Some budget money will come from income tax, some from excise taxes, and a lot from borrowing. When it comes to borrowing money the U.S. is No. 1."

Manning said, "What amount of new taxes is needed for the $1.45 trillion to make sense?"

I got mad, "Wash out your mouth with soap and water. You don't ask for new taxes when you have a budget of a little over a trillion dollars. Anyone who talks taxes in the Bush administration is nothing but a Scud missile. As Bush has stated many times, 'My country right or wrong — but my country with no taxes.' "

"I would like to do something with the budget," Manning said.

"Such as?"

"I'd like to cut it, so that it would be easier for the White House to count it."

"It really doesn't matter. Unfortunately, no one cares what the President's budget is any more. Once you break the trillion-dollar barrier it all becomes rather boring."

"If we agree to the President's budget, will our children have to pay for it?"

"No, their children will. But you don't have to worry about being stuck with the bill."

"Why not?"

"You have already paid for the thousand points of light."

Tower returns to Washington to settle score

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — If all had gone according to plan, John Tower would have been ensconced in his Pentagon office Tuesday overseeing the Persian Gulf war.

Instead, the former Texas senator was launching missiles of a different kind.

Employing a scorched-earth policy, Tower returned to the nation's capital to settle some scores from his 1989 rejection as President Bush's nominee for secretary of defense.

The Texas Republican zapped his former enemies on their own turf during a whirlwind week-long promotion tour for his new book, "Consequences: A Personal and Political Memoir." Operating on little more than five hours' sleep, Tower lambasted his political adversaries in a grueling day of talk show appearances, interviews and book signings.

"It's not vindictive," he said during a brief break. "The idea is to put it in perspective and tell my side of the story. Those guys dragged me through a character assassination campaign. I think I have a right to put everything in perspective."

Echoing the tone of his book, Tower directed his harshest criticism at Sen. Sam Nunn, the George Democrat who led the effort to derail Tower's nomination.

On "The Diane Rehm Show," a radio call-in program, Tower charged that Nunn ramrodded the opposition because the Georgia senator did not want to compete for media attention with a knowledgeable and articulate defense secretary. As chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Nunn is considered the single most knowledgeable member of Congress on defense issues.

"It turned into a vote of confidence in Sam Nunn," Tower said of his nomination fight. "I think really that Sam wanted to be the principal defense spokesman in Washington."

Nunn has declined to respond to Tower's allegations.

"It's just one of those things. He's welcome to speak his piece," an aide to the Georgia senator said Tuesday.

Tower also vented his ire at the media, especially newswoman Andrea Mitchell of NBC.

"She was viciously partisan. I don't understand why," he told his radio audience.

The former senator said the Washington press corps gleefully published unsubstantiated allegations of drinking and womanizing. The charges culminated in a 53-47 Senate vote against Tower's nomination.

"The press is very easily manipulated in a case like that because they love the salacious stuff," he said. "There's a herd instinct in the media and once somebody seems to be stumbling they all will descend on him."

Tower's Washington visit was the second stop on five-city tour that started in New York on Monday. The newly published author will be in Chicago on Wednesday before heading to Houston and Los Angeles.

"This is a like a campaign schedule — hitting all the major media markets in the last week of an election," Tower joked. "It's a little bit of a grind."

The conservative Republican, who spent 24 years in the Senate before retiring from office in 1985, said he hasn't heard from any of the former colleagues singled out for criticism in his 368-page book.

The book describes Sen. James Exon, D-Neb., as a "genuine booozer," who "drinks, and drinks heavily." It calls Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., "a study in arrogance and pomposity." And it says Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., "has a tendency to resort to flatulent indignation."

Tower said he has no regrets about his harsh assessments.

"Everything I regretted putting in I took out before it was published. I struggled over it pretty carefully," he said. "If I'd wanted to be vindictive, the book would have contained a lot more material."

The former lawmaker also rejected suggestions that his personality contributed to his rejection by the Senate.

"That's something the press cooked up," he said. "I'm not saying that I was an endearing personality at all. I'm saying I don't think it was a major factor."

The veteran politician said he has had little difficulty adjusting to private life. Tower, a business consultant in Dallas, said he is exploring investment opportunities in Eastern Europe.

Corporate, Banking & Business

Q. My family corporation has five shareholders. We are tired of shareholders' and directors' meetings. What is a close corporation and would we have less paperwork if we converted to a close corporation?

A. A close corporation is one organized under or amended to comply with the Texas Close Corporation law. A close corporation may have no more than 35 shareholders and may elect short-cut some governance procedures, such as board of director actions, by adopting a shareholder agreement. Close corporation status may be more appropriate for some small businesses. Thoughtful consideration of management style and liability issues should be made prior to conversion.

Family Law

Q. What is a Guardian Ad Litem?

A. A Guardian Ad Litem is a person who is appointed by the Judge in a Court proceeding in which a minor child is the subject matter of the suit. The Guardian Ad Litem represents the minor child and is appointed to insure that the child's best interests are protected in the case. Usually, an attorney is appointed as the child's Guardian Ad Litem in suits where termination of parental rights, custody or other parent-child relationships are litigated. The Guardian Ad Litem may make an independent recommendation to the Court as to the needs of the child. Fees for the Guardian Ad Litem may be set at a reasonable amount and are generally paid by the parent, unless the parents are indigent. In that case, the fees charged by the Guardian Ad Litem are paid from the general funds of the county where the lawsuit is tried.

Estate Planning And Probate

Q. Will estate taxes be imposed on my estate when I die?

A. The estate tax is a tax on the transfer of your property when you die. The tax is based on the value of all assets you own on the date of your death. If the value of your estate is less than $600,000, no estate taxes will have to be paid. If the value of your estate is greater than $600,000, estate taxes will be imposed at rates ranging from 37% to 55%. For example, if the value of your estate is $1,000,000, the estate tax will be $153,000, an effective rate of 38% of the taxable amount. If the value of your estate is $2,000,000, the estate tax will be $587,200, an effective rate of 42% of the taxable amount. If you have a taxable estate, you should consider implementing a good estate plan to minimize estate taxes when you die.

Tiananmen Square protesters given 13-year sentences

BEIJING (AP) — Two longtime democracy activists were sentenced Tuesday to 13 years in prison, apparently receiving the most severe punishment yet stemming from the 1989 Tiananmen Square protests.

The court gave a six-year sentence to a third man convicted of sedition and released a fourth who it said was guilty but repented.

Wang Juntao, a 33-year-old newspaper editor, and Chen Ziming, 38, the head of a private social science research institute, received the 13-year prison terms after being convicted of sedition.

Robin Munro, a researcher for the human rights group Asia Watch, said authorities were seeking to make the two the scapegoats for the 1989 democracy movement, which drew millions of protesters into the streets of cities nationwide.

"They said there was a conspiracy. By their own logic they had to produce scapegoats and conspirators," Munro said in a telephone interview from his Hong Kong office.

Sources close to the two men's families said Chen asked the court to investigate alleged tampering with documents and tapes used against him, but his petition was turned down.

They said the judges in both trials also refused to let the defense attorneys present new information that showed their clients' innocence,

■ More world stories/3D

and repeatedly interrupted Chen and Wang when they tried to defend themselves.

Asked about the sentences, State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said the administration finds them "deeply troubling."

"No prison sentence imposed for non-violent activity could be considered lenient," she said.

"The speed of the verdicts, the limited opportunity afforded defendants to prepare a defense and the inability of independent observers to attend the trails inevitably raises questions of justice, fairness and due process."

She said China denied permission for U.S. Embassy personnel to observe the trials.

The sentences were revealed one hour after the court finished hearing evidence in Wang's case and less than an hour after it finished hearing Chen's.

"Obviously the sentences had already been decided," a friend of the two activists said on condition of anonymity. He said relatives of the two men who attended the sentencing reported that they stood calmly.

He said Chen, who was thin and weak from a recent three-day hunger strike, smiled slightly. Neither man was allowed to speak to the relatives who attended.

Chen and Wang also were convicted of counter-revolutionary propaganda and incitement, which covers any statement considered harmful to the Communist revolution. The official Xinhua News Agency said the two have "shown no willingness to repent."

Liu Gang, 30, a researcher at Chen's institute who helped organize student protesters, was given a six-year term because he "acknowledged his crimes and showed willingness to repent," Xinhua said.

Chen Xiaoping, a 29-year-old law lecturer who had ties to the institute, was convicted of sedition but released because he surrendered and showed repentance, Xinhua said. The two Chens are not related.

As in previous sentencings, the government combined heavy and light terms in an apparent effort to blunt criticism.

Plane crash kills 10 in Chihuahua

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico (AP) — Helicopter crews Tuesday removed the bodies of 10 people who died when their chartered jet crashed into a hillside near this northern Mexico city, an airport official said.

Search planes Monday located the scene of the crash on a remote hillside about 22 miles from the Chihuahua city airport, Aeronautics Commander Adolfo Gamboa in a telephone interview.

The 3-person crew and all seven passengers perished as the Sabre Liner jet, operated by Mexico City-based Travel Air charters, tried to land in rainy weather late Sunday, he said.

"We don't know if it was instrument failure or human error," Gamboa said.

A Turbo Commander from Oklahoma crashed into the same hillside five years ago, in an accident that killed everyone aboard, Gamboa said.

Diario Latino back on track

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — El Salvador's oldest newspaper resumed publication Tuesday, four days after it was shut down by an arson attack. The abbreviated return edition bore the banner headline: "Onward."

The headquarters of the century-old Diario Latino, the only local paper that regularly included the perspective of leftist rebels in its pages, was nearly destroyed in an arson fire before dawn Saturday.

Editor Francisco Valencia blamed the attack on extreme rightists in the military, who presumably were angered by the newspaper's pluralist editoral policy.

The nearly 100 employees of the afternoon daily used improvisation, ingenuity and the solidarity of academic and other institutions to put out a four-page edition.

2 councilmen announce candidacies

■ John Castro and J.D. Faircloth throw their hats in for May 4 election; Bill Williams and Tony Carrillo haven't said if they will run.

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

Two Midland city councilmen jumped on the election bandwagon on six days early when they announced their candidacies Tuesday.

At-large councilmen John Castro and J.D. Faircloth threw their names in the hat for the May 4 election.

Castro and Faircloth, both winding down their first stints on the council, each said they wanted to continue to monitor the progress of municipal projects started during their terms.

District 1 Councilman Bill Williams and District 2 Councilman Tony Carrillo also are up for reelection. Neither would say Tuesday whether they will run.

Filing for council elections will open Monday and close March 20, with a drawing for ballot placement scheduled for March 22.

Absentee voting will begin April 15 and end April 30. The winners, elected to serve two-year terms, will be sworn in June 3.

If elected, Faircloth said monitoring completion of the Southeast Senior Citizens Center, animal control shelter, Loraine Center and various water and sewer projects will be among his goals.

Castro said the city's effluent farm and Wadley Avenue drainage are on his list of projects needing immediate attention. He also said he wanted to help oversee the progress of the city's fledling Neighborhood Housing Services agency.

Other projects listed by the two candidates include economic development and Midland International Airport renovations.

The council at a Tuesday meeting approved putting two proposed charter amendments on the May 4 ballot.

One proposed amendment would affect the maximum purchase the city can make without seeking competitive bids. The other charter change would allow the city to conduct money transactions electronically instead of by check or warrant.

The charter requires the city to seek bids on any purchase of more than $5,000. City Attorney David Reagan said the proposed amendment would allow the city to push the amount up to $10,000.

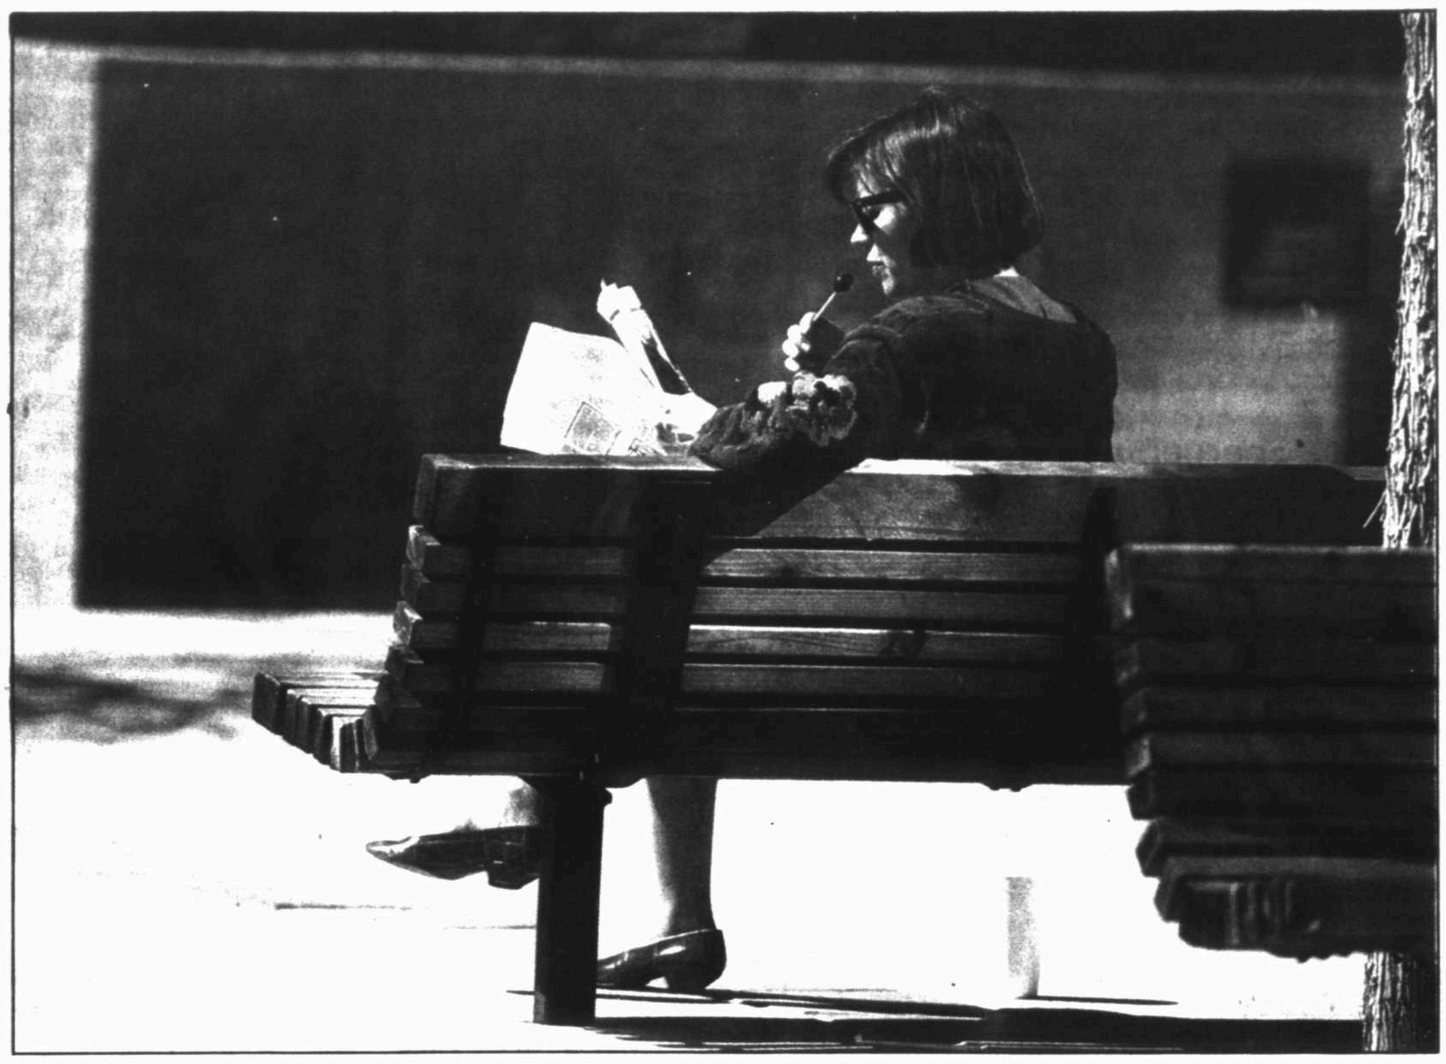

The state allows a local governmental entity to make purchases of less than $10,000 without entering a bid process. Reagan said a bill expected to be reviewed by the Texas Legislature this spring would propose raising that amount to $25,000.

A clause in the proposed charter change would allow the city to push its ceiling up to whatever the state sets.

Under the other proposed amendment, Reagan said the city could save time and paperwork by using computers to handle transactions such as investments and direct depositing of employee paychecks.

The charter mandates that financial transactions be made only be check or warrant, a sometimes time-consuming and labor-intensive affair, Reagan said.

It is important to move quickly when making investments, he said, adding that transactions by paper normally take a minimum of three days to complete.

Law enforcers urge use of car seats

■ During Child Passenger Safety Awareness Week, parents urged to buckle up their children.

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Motor vehicle accidents are the number one killer and crippler of children, according to the Texas State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

In 1989, highway crashes killed 723 children across the nation.

But an estimated 500 lives a year could be saved if there was a 100 percent correct use of child safety seats, said Evelyn Hughes, spokeswoman for the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation in Odessa.

When used correctly, child safety seats and seat belts are 71 percent effective in preventing death and 67 percent successful in the prevention of serious injury, statistics show.

As part of the nationwide annual Child Passenger Safety Awareness Week, which continues this week, the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, law enforcement agencies and citizen groups are urging parents to use child restraint systems.

But buckling up children is more than an effort to save lives — it is the law.

Under Texas law since 1984, all children 4 years old and younger are required to use some type of safety restraints while riding in a motor vehicle.

And children 2 years old and younger are required to to ride in an approved safety car seat.

Reasons vary why some parents fail to protect their children and disobey the law.

"I don't think they are really aware how unsafe that it is until they have an accident," Ms. Hughes said.

County seeks help from incarceration consultant

Jailer Alan Thompson monitors the control board at the Midland County Central Detention Facility.

■ Commission on Jail Standards asks county jail to look into supervision staffing.

By Erin Blair
Staff Writer

Staffing problems at the Midland County Central Detention Facility have caused the county to seek professional help for the 8-month-old facility.

The jail was state of the art when it was completed May 24, 1990, but now the Commission on Jail Standards is not satisfied with its operations, Precinct 1 Commissioner Durward Wright said.

The state commission told the county it needed three more jailers and three more booking clerks when it evaluated the jail in September, Wright said.

The county hired the additional personnel, boosting jail staffing to 67.

In December, the commission told the county it needed to staff the jail's guard stations 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

"They told us it appeared that the jail was properly staffed for the number of prisoners we had, but we don't comply with supervision standards," County Judge Charles W. "Bro" Seltzer explained.

Seltzer said the $3.8 million facility's design was driven by staffing concerns and built in compliance with existing state jail standards.

"What they've told us doesn't match with what we've heard before," he said.

Now the county is asking for proposals from incarceration consultants for a task-and-scheduling study that will determine how best to staff the jail with the existing number of employees.

Wright said the county and the commission are working on the problem together to see if they can come up with a solution that won't require the hiring of 14 more jail staffers — a move that would cost the county an additional $500,000 in salaries and benefits.

The six jail employees already added to the staff are being paid out of the county's general fund.

"We want to exhaust all possible remedies before we add any more men," Seltzer said.

He said the commission has backed down on the 24 hour-a-day guard station staffing since the December letter. It now requires staffing the guard stations with employees whose "primary focus" is guard duty 24 hours a day.

Sheriff Gary Painter said the jail standards comission's manpower report has prevented the jail from being certified.

But he said the lack of certification is not a cause for concern because the facility only recently opened.

"We're still operating, we're still bringing in prisoners, but we're up in the air right now," he said.

"We've changed the shifts and moved some people around to make it work right and we're making do with what we've got."

Painter said an outside consultant will have a different perspective on the problem and may see a simple solution to it.

After the county commissioners select an incarceration expert, the sheriff said the study should take between 60 and 90 days to complete. The county ommissioners

Baskin presents case for fourth court

■ Local judge testifies before House committee about the need for another district court in Midland.

'They're referring it to a subcommittee, which is one way of getting rid of things, but it's also a way to get things done.'

— Judge Pat Baskin

By David Morris
Staff Writer

Fiscal considerations may keep lawmakers from adding a fourth district court in Midland during this legislative session, Judge Pat Baskin said Tuesday.

Baskin, who presented the case for a fourth court to the House Judicial Affairs Committee in Austin Monday, said Tuesday he was well-received in Austin.

However, he said state legislators are looking for areas in which to cut back, and the creation of new courts — especially in non-urban areas like Midland — may be relegated to low-priority status.

"They're referring it to a subcommittee, which is one way of getting rid of things, but it's also a way to get things done," said Baskin, who presides over Midland's 142nd District Court.

Baskin appeared before the committee at the invitation of Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland, who introduced the bill calling for the creation of a fourth court.

The bill is the first petition for a new court presented in the House, according to officials. Three petitions are pending in the Senate.

Both Craddick and Baskin testified before the committee Monday. They presented committee members with a resolution from the Midland County Commissioner's Court requesting a fourth court.

Baskin was the "logical choice" to testify because he has been a district court judge longer than either 238th District Court Judge John Hyde or 318th District Court Judge Dean Rucker.

He has also studied the need for a fourth court.

In a 1990 survey, Baskin showed that between 1976 and 1989 the number of criminal cases filed in Midland district courts jumped by 173 percent. Family law cases increased by 80 percent, while civil cases decreased by 2 percent.

Meanwhile, the number of district courts has remained steady at three since 1977, when the state Legislature created the 238th and 318th district courts to relieve the caseload in the 142nd.

Officials have estimated that a fourth court would cost the county between $85,000 and $100,000 a year for courtroom space and administrative support. The salary for a fourth judge — $76,309 a year in 1990 — would be paid by the state.

Precinct 1 County Commissioner Durward Wright said the cost might place the county in a financial bind.

"From all the numbers I've seen relative to caseload, I don't think there's any question that the need is there," he said. "I certainly don't like the budget aspect from the county standpoint because we are so tight anyway. But I understand the criminal justice system must operate efficiently."

He said that a two-year courthouse renovation project will provide space for an additional courtroom which can be used by visiting judges even if a fourth court is not approved.

Fire investigated as arson

Staff Report

Evidence found at the scene of a fire that occurred Monday morning at the Cafe West restaurant indicates the fire was intentionally set, fire marshal's officials said Tuesday.

The blaze, being investigated as arson, was ignited with a flammable liquid in the second dining area of the restaurant located at No. 9 Plaza Center off Wadley Avenue, fire officials said.

The fire caused heavy damage to much of the inside of the establishment, officials said.

Fire marshal's officials said the blaze was still under investigation Tuesday.

Former sheriff, DPS trooper plead guilty to drug charges

LUBBOCK (AP) — Former Eastland County Sheriff Dee Oselene Hogan and former Department of Public Safety Trooper Acey Steel Tuesday pleaded guilty to federal charges accusing them of helping a West Texas drug ring.

The ring allegedly produced and distributed methamphetamine as far away as Florida.

Hogan, 59, who confessed to one count of obstructing justice, and Steel, 40, who admitted to failure to report a felony, appeared in U.S. District Judge Sam Cummings court Tuesday.

Neither man would comment after his court appearance. Sentencing is not expected for a few weeks, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Dick Baker.

According to court records, Hogan had a close alliance with Guy Regan Kincaid and Steven Patrick Benifiel, the alleged leaders of a methamphetamine-manufacturing and distribution network based in Eastland County.

Hogan admitted in court Tuesday that he altered an arrest and booking sheet in connection with a July arrest of Kincaid on suspicion of possession of narcotics paraphernalia and unlawfully carrying a firearm.

After learning of a federal written request for copies of bonds relating to Kincaid, Hogan had an employee of the jail make out a new jail booking sheet deleting the sheriff's authorization to release Kincaid.

Hogan, who had been sheriff for two years, was arrested on Jan. 11 by FBI agents and Texas Rangers. He resigned his office Jan. 22 as part of a bond agreement.

Two sources close to the investigation said Hogan was allowing Benifiel and Kincaid to manufacture and distribute drugs in exchange for leads on other drug offenders in the county.

"Hogan reaped the political gain of making several drug arrests," according to one source. "He appeared on the outside to be a real heavy toward drug dealers. But that was not the case."

Steel, who received numerous awards for outstanding service during his 17 years as a DPS trooper, told the court Tuesday he knew of crimes committed by Benifiel between Nov. 16 and Dec. 4 and failed to report them.

Steel said he informed Benifiel of surveillance by DPS narcotics investigators in Eastland County.

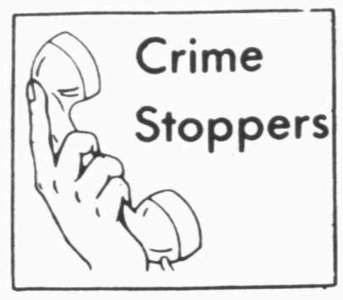

Steel resigned Jan. 30, one day before he was indicted by a federal grand jury.

"I've known Acey Steel for many years and it's pretty sad when someone you have known that long pleads guilty to felony crimes," said Eastland County district attorney Leslie Vance.

"The law is a little bit bigger than the individuals involved and they are going to have to suffer for it."

Hogan faces up to five years in prison and $250,000 in fines, while Steel could get four years in prison, and also be fined $250,000.

Crime Stoppers seeking oil field theft information

This week Crime Stoppers is seeking information on two oil field thefts that occurred at the Nail Ranch located just northeast of Midland.

On April 29, 1990, someone entered the ranch and removed four electric 30 HP 1200 Marathon Oil field pumper motors valued at $2,500 each. Again on Jan. 15, 1991 another pumper motor was taken.

At this time there are no suspects in this crime. Crime Stoppers is offering up to $1,000 this week only for information which leads to the arrest and indictment of the actor or actors responsible for these crimes. Call Crime Stoppers in Midland at 694-TIPS or in Odessa at 333-TIPS. All callers can remain anonymous.

6 people arrested for possession

Staff Report

Six people were arrested at about 6:30 p.m. Tuesday for possession of heroin as a result of an investigation by the Midland County Sheriff's Office, officials said.

Sheriff's deputies and SWAT team members executed a search warrant in the 200 block of S. Carver Street where the suspects were arrested.

About one half gram of heroin — that reportedly was being packed for distribution and sale — was confiscated during the raid. Street value of the drug is approximately $400.

All six people arrested were either on probation or parole from the Texas Department of Corrections, officials said.

The suspects remained in jail Tuesday evening awaiting arraignment.

Accident scene

A Midland police reconstruction team was called to investigate the cause of a two-vehicle accident that occurred about 6:30 p.m. Tuesday at the intersection of Ward Street and Wadley Avenue, police at the scene said. Glen Greenwood, driver of the car, was transported to Midland Memorial Hospital as a result of the accident and remained in fair condition Tuesday evening, hospital officials said. Amy Nelson, holding her child, was the driver of the pickup truck. They were not injured in the accident, police said.

CHILD: Law enforcers urge parents to use car seats

(From 1B)

Gordon Marcum said the main problem with lack of use appears to be confusion about the law. "They don't understand that any child 4 and under must be restrained," Marcum said.

An average of two cases per week for failure to have a child in a restraining seat passes through the municipal court system, Marcum said.

Marcum said he considers the lack of compliance the result of parents' lazy attitudes.

"A lot of people buy that child safety seat and have it in their other car," Marcum said.

Unfortunately, parents sometimes fail to transfer the car seat when another car is used, he added.

The average fine for failure to restrain a child in Midland is almost $40, with a state minimum of $25 and a maximum of $40.

But the problem isn't only failure to restrain a child, but failure to properly do so, Ms. Hughes said.

About 33 percent of people who put their children in a safety seat do so incorrectly, she said.

Most commonly, parents either don't strap the seat down or don't belt the child in the seat properly, she said.

Another misuse occurs when infant seats, most made to position the child backwards, are situated in the wrong direction.

"Most seats just need to be used according to the instructions," Ms. Hughes said.

Some parents falsely believe that holding a child is as safe as a safety seat.

"That is just not true," Ms. Hughes said. "Parents hold their kid in their lap and think they can hold onto them in an accident. They (the children) are always propelled. And if the adult doesn't have a seat belt on either, the baby can be smashed between them and the dashboard."

After a child passes 4 years of age, the parents sometimes think the youngster doesn't need to wear his or her belt any longer.

"Parents are not consistent and don't keep them in the seat belt. But it is a good habit to form when they are young," Ms. Hughes said.

Teacher to demonstrate making paper airplanes

Staff Report

Fourth, fifth and sixth graders with a slightly scientific bent are invited to participate in the "special science session" at Pages and Prints Bookstore, 40 Plaza Center, from 9 to 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

Jack Hickman, science and art instructor from Trinity School, will be in the Children's Center for a special demonstration and hands-on learning experience making with paper the "world's best paper airplane — bar none" and other action toys.

"This is the second in our Saturday morning series, designed to introduce or review some basic principle of science and then create a model which illustrates the principle," said Patteann Daniel-Beverley, owner of the bookstore.

After receiving the Christa McAullife Grant in 1987, Hickman created a hands-on learning center at Trinity School called the Curiosity Shop where elementary-age students learn to make toys based on scientific principles. He also teaches fourth grade science, art history and junior high art classes.

Fee for the class is $3.50 and includes the model building materials.

Enrollment is limited and prepaid registration for the session may be made at the bookstore.

Justice calls for judiciary reform

■ Chief Justice Tom Phillips says backlog of cases can be cleared by using retired judges and increasing the staff.

By James Cullen
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Texas Supreme Court Chief Justice Tom Phillips on Tuesday called for more money to lure judges out of retirement and more staff to clear the backlog of court cases.

In his "State of the Judiciary" address to a joint session of the Texas Legislature, Phillips said visiting judges, assigned by presiding judges in each region, served more than 13,000 days on trial benches and wrote more than 250 appellate opinions in the past year.

Their work was worth 61 full-time trial judges and three appellate judges, or roughly 15 percent of the state court workload, he said.

But while former judges receive the same daily pay as the regular judge for whom they sit, retired judges receive only the difference between their pension and the daily pay.

Phillips said that leads to "absurd results," such as a district judge who received $17 for two days of work in a county court-at-law. A former judge who had not served enough time to retire would have received $473 for the same work, Phillips noted.

"This false economy is depriving the state of our most effective resource to keep the judicial system current," he said.

While there are complaints about the use of visiting judges, he said the alternative is to create 61 new courts, and the U.S. Justice Department said it would oppose new courts under the at-large election system used in urban counties, including Midland and Ector counties.

Phillips called for a change from the current election system, which he said is "too partisan, too expensive and possibly unlawful," to a "modern" system that he said would enhance "accountability, independence and competence."

Phillips, a Republican, favors election of judges from single-member districts, with later countywide retention elections.

Rep. Henry Cuellar, D-Laredo, Rep. Bruce Gibson, D-Godley, and Rep. Sylvester Turner, D-Houston, have been working on a similar plan to alternate sub-district elections with countywide retention elections.

The lawmakers have been looking at possible alteratives since 1989, when U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton of Midland ruled the current system violated the U.S. Voting Rights Act.

The U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans overturned that decision, but the minority plaintiffs, led by the League of United Latin American Citizens chapter in Midland, have appealed the case to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Phillips also said the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has an especially acute need for more staff. The state's highest criminal appeals court has 199 death penalty appeals now pending, and it takes an average of 30 months to dispose of those cases, he said.

District trial courts also need computers and staff to help them manage their dockets, he said. County courts-at-law need uniform jurisdiction, salaries and qualifications, he said.

The chief justice also called upon lawyers to devise better ways to provide free legal services for the poor.

Phillips said the courts plan to create two special committees to study abuses of pre-trial discovery of evidence and the use of pre-trial sanctions by judges.

Oil prices up

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil prices rallied in choppy trading Tuesday, with market participants focusing on cold weather in Europe.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in March settled at $22.93 per barrel, up 46 cents, at the New York Mercantile Exchange.

"Crude was higher off European prices," said William Byers, an analyst with Bear, Stearns & Co. "You continue to have abnormally cold weather in Europe that's kept prices firm."

Natural gas for delivery in March closed at $1.348, down .5 cent for 1,000 cubic feet.

Crude oil stocks were at 329.6 million barrels for the week ending Feb. 8, up from 328.0 million a week earlier but down from 348.7 million a year earlier.

Stocks fall

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market's strong sprint in past weeks temporarily ran out of wind Tuesday as some investors cashed their winnings in heavy trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed down 27.48 to 2,874.75.

Please see MARKETS/6-7B

Dollar advances

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar mostly advanced on world currency markets Tuesday, propped up by early central bank intervention and technical buying.

Gold prices retreated overseas but rose in domestic dealings. On the New York Commodity Exchange, gold bullion for current delivery rose 90 cents a troy ounce to settle at $368.

Analysts said the market was largely confused by mixed signals from U.S. officials and the major central banks.

In Tokyo, the dollar closed at 127.70 yen, down 0.50 yen from last Friday's close of 128.20 yen.

In London, the British pound fell to $1.9920 from $1.9980 late Monday.

Other late dollar rates in New York, compared with late Monday's rates, included: 1.4742 German marks, up from 1.4477; 1.2460 Swiss francs, up from 1.2370; 4.9565 French francs, up from 4.9360; 1,094.75 Italian lire, up from 1,091.00, and 1.1536 Canadian dollars, down from 1.553.

Gold fell in London to a late bid price of $365.95 a troy ounce, from $367.25 bid late Monday.

Silver prices were mixed. On New York's Comex, silver bullion for current delivery settled at $3.704 a troy ounce, up from $3.685 on Monday. But in London, the metal fell to a late bid price of $3.70 an ounce from $3.75.

Bush predicts quick economic recovery

■ Looking back at past recessions, lawmakers wonder if the White House is doing enough to keep the economy stimulated during the present one.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush conceded Tuesday that the recession is causing "genuine economic distress" but, in his annual economic report, predicted a quick recovery that could well exceed the record-breaking expansion of the 1980s.

"Despite the economic events of 1990, we have reason for both hope and optimism in full measure as the nation approaches the next century," Bush said in his introduction to the "Economic Report of the President."

With the economy in its first recession since the 1981-82 downturn, Bush was less upbeat than last year, when he had proclaimed the nation's economy to be "in excellent health" with not a hint of a recession in sight.

"The events of 1990 were a reminder that even a healthy economy can suffer shocks and short-term setbacks," Bush wrote.

"I know that in some regions of the country, people are in genuine economic distress," he said.

Bush

The administration blamed the recession on the jump in oil prices and the jolt to consumer confidence that occurred after Saddam Hussein invaded Kuwait Aug. 2. Bush insisted that the downturn would be short and milder than the other eight economic contractions since World War II.

Democrats in Congress said the report glossed over major problems facing the economy, including a rash of bank failures and a chronic federal budget deficit projected to hit an all-time high of $318 billion this year.

Michael Boskin, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, was questioned sharply by members of the congressional Joint Economic Committee over whether the administration was not making a major policy error by failing to offer proposals to deal with the recession.

"My concern is that I see factors of weakness that were not present in past recessions," said Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md. and chairman of the committee. "If the recession is deeper, will the administration do anything?"

Boskin said the administration was involved in contingency planning but repeated administration opposition to such Democratic proposals as job-creating public works programs or cuts in the Social Security payroll tax.

Boskin said one major drag on the economy, higher oil prices, had already moderated significantly. He said this, along with lower interest rates being engineered by the Federal Reserve, should help speed a recovery, whether or not the Persian Gulf War ends by mid-April.

The president's economic report said that even before Iraq's invasion sent oil prices soaring the United States was enduring weak growth, which the report blamed on a worldwide increase in interest rates, stricter lending practices by banks and tight-money policies pursued by the Fed to fight inflation.

The overall economy, as measured by the gross national product, fell at annual rate of 2.1 percent in the October-December quarter. The economic report forecast it would fall further in the current, January-March period before starting to grow again.

Even with a mild recession, Boskin said the unemployment rate, now 6.2 percent, could rise to 6.9 percent, which would mean an additional 600,000 Americans would be out of work in addition to the 1.2 million increase in unemployed workers since last June.

The administration forecast that the economy would grow at annual rates topping 3 percent per year from 1992 through 1996, growth it said would push the budget into surplus by 1996.

"With sound economic policies in place," the report said, "there is no fundamental obstacle to an expansion in the 1990s at least as long and strong as the record expansion of the 1980s," a recovery that lasted nearly eight years and was the longest in peacetime history.

However, Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., said the administration was obtaining robust future growth by making extremely optimistic assumptions that worker productivity in coming years will be far higher than in the last two decades.

NCNB demands payment

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Toyotaville Inc. didn't think it was in trouble until NCNB Texas came to town.

Suddenly, the bank brought in to rescue First RepublicBank Corp. was demanding payment of a $1.3 million loan, even though the Fort Worth car dealership had never missed a payment and had plenty of collateral.

NCNB Texas National Bank even rejected a $1.5 million offer to pay off the loan, turning its back on an apparent $200,000 profit for the taxpayer-supported bank bailout fund.

NCNB officials won't say why, refusing to discuss transactions of its customers. But Toyotaville's soon-to-be former owners think they know the reason.

"They make more money not collecting the (debt) immediately," said Al Capua, who with partner Art Sebastian started Toyotaville in 1972 with a $100,000 loan from a First RepublicBank predecessor.

Capua's allegation is disputed by some banking experts, but NCNB Texas, a subsidiary of Charlotte, N.C.-based NCNB Corp., remains a favorite villain in some business circles since arriving in 1988.

Stories abound of loans called due early, or being shifted into a special division set up to collect $9 billion in bad debts.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. agreed to assume the risk on those loans, and pay NCNB's costs of renegotiating or collecting them. Last summer, the FDIC renegotiated the deal and agreed to pay NCNB a sliding fee of 3 to 7 percent of collections.

A congressional panel harshly criticized the First RepublicBank rescue Jan. 30, saying payments to NCNB for managing the failed bank's troubled loans will contribute to a possible doubling of the bailout's $3 billion cost.

Mitch Glassman, who heads the FDIC's office that watches over NCNB's management of the portfolio, said the transaction was structured to give the bank incentive to collect as much of the problem loans as possible.

"They were handed a very, very difficult portfolio to deal with," Glassman said. "When you take a look at overall size of what they had to do, they've done a good job as far as getting the job done."

He said the bank has pursued relatively few foreclosures. But he added, "I know there are horror stories out there."

Analysts say plan to revamp FDIC inadequate

■ A new plan to replenish the FDIC is under attack by some analysts who claim that not enough money is being set aside to bail out bank failures during the recession.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The banking industry's plan to replenish the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. may not be enough to handle bank failures even in a mild recession and it cloaks taxpayers' risks, analysts said Tuesday.

Under the proposal from five industry trade associations, outlined in a letter Tuesday to FDIC Chairman L. William Seidman, some banks voluntarily would lend $10 billion to the struggling fund that insures their deposits.

To repay the borrowing, the FDIC would charge all banks a special insurance premium of about $1 billion a year, on top of the existing premium of around $5 billion.

"Ten billion is at the thin edge," said Robert Litan of the Brookings Institution, a Washington-based research organization. "If you believe we're going to have a mild recession, it could be enough over the next three years ... but it easily could be more than that."

The White House Office of Management and Budget, for instance, has projected the fund will need an extra $22.2 billion over five years.

More than 1,000 bank failures over the past six years depleted the FDIC to $8.5 billion at the end of 1990. Government projections show it running out of money as soon as the end of this year.

Richard A. Kirk, president of the American Bankers Association, said,

Marjorie Vincent, the reigning Miss America, holds a doll from Kenner Products' Miss America fashion doll collection at the Toy Fair in New York. The fair is the toy industry's annual trade show.

Toy fair faces subdued market

NEW YORK (AP) — Raggedy Ann and Andy welcomed visitors, a brass band heralded the arrival of the Toxic Crusaders environmental watchdogs and Mattel proclaimed rapper M.C. Hammer will join Barbie as its latest doll creation.

But behind the festivity and public relations hype, it was a relatively subdued Toy Fair that began Monday at the midtown Manhattan buildings known as the Toy Center.

Industry officials released a downbeat report about their business as the 10-day trade exposition opened.

Many companies appeared to be taking a more conservative approach as they presented new lines, sticking with ideas that worked well in 1990. That meant more baby dolls for girls, wrestling action figures for boys and games and toys spun off from television shows and comic books.

Opened at 4420 Andrews Highway is DOG GONE GROOMING, which offers dog and cat grooming.

Roger Wells, husband of the owner, Diana Wells, says the store plans to also sell pet supplies such as high protein dog and cat food, vitamins, leashes and collars, toys and bedding, in the near future.

The minimum price for grooming a dog is $16 and the price rises depending on how matted the coat is and if the dog needs dipping.

For cats, the minimum price is $30 and again depends on how matted the coat is and other needs.

The average amount of time for grooming is two to two-and-a-half hours.

Dog Gone opens at 7:45 a.m. and closes at 6 p.m. "We plan to cater to the working people, who want to drop their pet off on their way to work and pick him up in the afternoon, or drop him off after lunch and pick him up after work." Pick-up and delivery is also available.

Currently the business employs three groomers.

Just opened at 4311-B W. Illinois, just east of Michael's Charcoal Grill, is PRATER'S JEWELRY.

Owner David Prater has been in the wholesale trade business five years. "We've been selling retail by appointment for about five years, and business has been so good we decided to open an outlet," he explains.

Prater custom-designs jewelry, can take existing jewelry and recast it — for example a wedding ring recast into a dinner ring — and can repair jewelry. He also offers watch repair, largely on the fine-movement watches. With electronic watches, he says, all he can do is replace the battery.

Prater also carries a line of estate jewelry.

FDIC: Bankers want FDIC provisions

(From 4B)

"We believe we have outlined a program that will meet the immediate needs of the insurance fund."

But, he conceded, "If we go into a long-term recession, your guess is as good as mine."

Asked if the industry would be willing to pledge more if needed, Eugene A. Miller, chairman of the Association of Bank Holding Companies, said: "We'll have to cross that bridge when we come to it."

Other trade groups endorsing the proposal are the Consumer Bankers Association, the Independent Bankers Association of America and the Association of Reserve City Bankers.

In return for their commitment to lend $10 billion, bankers asked for a number of concessions.

They want taxpayers — not the industry-financed FDIC — to pay the cost of protecting uninsured depositors in failed banks when top government officials decide that must be done to protect the entire financial system. The FDIC should pay only up to $100,000 per account, they said.

Also, they want their regular insurance premium to be capped at its current level, 19.5 cents per $100 of deposits.

Spokesmen for the FDIC, the Treasury Department and the Federal Reserve had no immediate response to the proposal. However, a senior Federal Reserve official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said officials were concerned the $10 billion would be viewed as inadequate.

Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Texas, chairman of the House Banking Committee, said it was time for the Bush administration to propose its own plan.

"The bailout must be approached in a hard-nosed, business-like fashion, not as some public relations smokescreen designed to hide the fact that banks may soon be at the federal welfare window," Gonzalez said.

Under bankers' proposal, the FDIC will borrow the $10 billion by selling bonds, whose maturity has not been determined, to syndicates of banks. The bonds would be backed by the full faith and credit of the federal government, allowing the banks to resell them to other investors. They likely would pay an interest rate slightly higher than the rate the government pays on standard Treasury debt.

Litan and economist Martin Regalia of the National Council of Savings Institutions, a trade group that was not included in the deliberations, said it would be cheaper and simpler for the FDIC to borrow directly from the Treasury. The loan could still be repaid by bank premiums.

The bankers plan "is all very clever. It keeps everything off the budget in the short run," Litan said.

A group of 12 private banking experts, the Shadow Financial Regulatory Committee, said the bankers' position reminded them of savings and loan executives' maneuvers in the 1980s.

"The industry ... has put a covered basket with a baby on the doorstep of the taxpayers. .... It may be a very, very ugly baby," said University of North Carolina economist Robert A. Eisenbeis, a member of the shadow committee.

Another provision in the bankers' proposal would provide $2 billion from the Federal Reserve for an early intervention program to entice weak but still-solvent banks into merging with stronger partners before they fail.

That money would come from banks' reserves kept at the Fed, which eventually would get the money back if the assisted banks survived. Banks regard the reserves as their money but economists point out that if it is lost, it reduces the amount of money the Fed forwards to the Treasury each year.

NCNB: Foreclose on car dealer

(From 4B)

Sebastian and Capua believe theirs is one.

In March 1989, NCNB said it wanted to renegotiate Toyotaville's $1.3 million loan. It was NCNB's first opportunity to renew the note.

The partners, like thousands of other Texans after the banking shakeout of the late 1980s, found their loan had been classified "non-performing" despite being backed by adequate collateral and a history of timely payments.

"When they renewed the loan the last time, they just set us up to call it," Sebastian said.

They filed for bankruptcy to prevent NCNB from foreclosing on them since they didn't have cash to pay off the note. After four days of testimony, U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Massie Tillman in December rejected the partners' reorganization plan, renewing NCNB's option to foreclose.

NCNB has first claim on Toyotaville's used car lot, but that would bring less than $1 million in a foreclosure sale, documents provided by Sebastian and Capua indicate.

Garry McKinney, a longtime Fort Worth auto executive who is trying to buy Toyotaville, last month offered NCNB $1.5 million to settle the debt. But NCNB attorneys said last week that wouldn't be good enough because the bank is owed more than $1.8 million by the time interest and expenses are added.

"I thought I offered a solution that was decent for me, decent for Art and Al and decent for the bank," McKinney said. "The bank didn't want to do that."

His efforts to purchase Toyotaville accelerated this weekend after the city of Fort Worth seized 400 cars from Sebastian and Capua for non-payment of $400,000 in property taxes. The city said it would keep the cars until the loan is paid.

FAIR: New toy trends

(From 4B)

The Toy Manufacturers of America, the trade group that sponsors the big show, said sales of traditional toys — those other than video games — were virtually unchanged last year. Shipments rose just 0.3 percent in terms of dollars and 0.2 percent in terms of units.

The group estimated that video game sales rose 20.9 percent in dollars and 33.8 percent in units.

Officials forecast wholesale and retail toy sales would rise 5 percent for 1991, but they said as much as two-thirds of that increase would be due to price increases and not sales of more toys.

George R. Ditomassi, the trade group's chairman, said business was difficult in 1990 because budget-conscious consumers spent less on toys. A number of individual toymakers suffered when their product lines failed to bring in expected sales.

Now you know what it's like to be a business without a Yellow Pages ad.

There's one moment in the buyer-seller relationship found only in the Yellow Pages: when someone, mind made up and money in hand, turns to the Southwestern Bell Yellow Pages to find exactly what they want. Did we say one moment? It's a scene repeated more than 10 million times a year in Midland alone.* Which is exactly what you want.

What? Cougars win in OT

■ Abilene Cooper knocks Midland High out of a District 4-5A championship bid, but not out of the basketball playoffs.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

Abilene Cooper, a team long on height and short on victories, dealt the Midland High Bulldogs out of the District 4-5A basketball championship run at Chaparral Center Tuesday night with an 84-82 overtime victory.

The Cougars, tied with Midland Lee for fifth place in the league race with identical 4-7 marks, couldn't drop the Bulldogs out of the state playoffs, but some damage was done.

San Angelo, a 96-66 winner over Odessa Permian, captured the 4-5A title with a 10-1 record and Midland Lee left to play. MHS fell to 9-3 in its last district game, and will settle for the district's runner-up playoff berth and will face the District 3-5A winner, probably Plainview, next week in the bi-district round of the playoffs.

Cooper got four quick points in overtime on baskets from Mike Thompson and Mark Ferry to turn the trick in rather undramatic fashion. But a win of this magnitude over a league giant was dramatic by any standard as far as Cooper coach R.M. Currin is concerned.

"We haven't played with that kind of intensity for a long time," said Currin. "We let a couple of games in district get away from us, so these kids deserved to have something good to happen to them.

"But I have to give Midland High credit. I know they had a shot at winning the championship, but this game didn't really mean a lot to them. They're in the playoffs. Things weren't going their way, but they kept plugging. That's a sign of a playoff team to me."

But MHS coach Jack Stephenson didn't agree.

"I take the blame for this loss because I didn't have the kids ready to play," Stephenson said. "What's disappointing is that we had a chance to still win the district title and that bothers me — a lot."

Three-Point Goals: Cooper 7-13 (Thompson 1-1, Spiker 1-3, Ferry 2-3, R.Patterson 3-5, Dowell 0-1), MHS 2-9 (Rounding 2-8, McDonald 0-1). Total Fouls: Cooper 18, MHS 17. Fouled Out: A.Patterson. Technicals: None.

It was a strange game from the beginning. MHS misfired on its first 12 shots from the field and went 3:34 without scoring while Cooper raced to an 8-0 lead. However, the Pack showed the form that got them into the playoffs by hitting 20 points over the next 4:26 span and eventually led 23-16 early in the second period.

Cooper's 6-7 freshman sensation Andrae Patterson then ripped off 12 of his 15 points in the game in the second period, including an impressive slam dunk, and senior Rodney Patterson had 12 of his 19 points for a 31-point Cooper quarter and a 45-39 lead at the half.

"We missed a few shots early and then got tight," Stephenson said. "It's not much fun when you get in a situation like that and play catch-up all night."

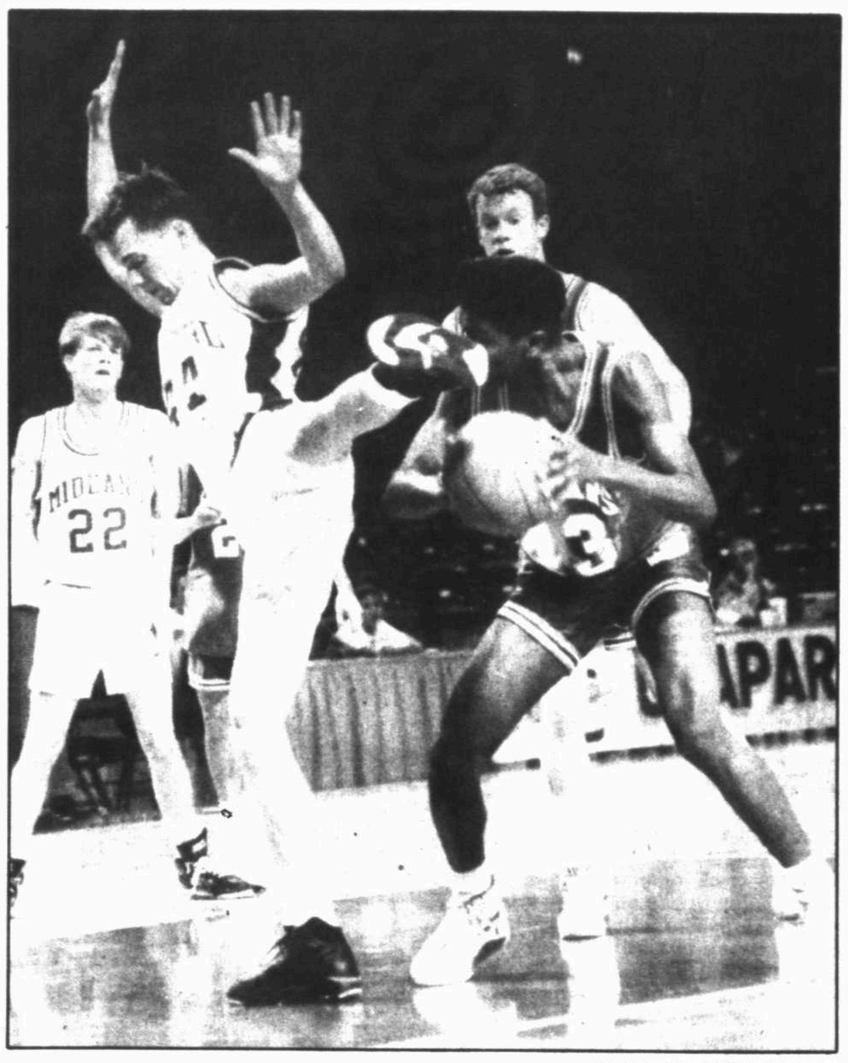

In addition, Cooper got 12 points from Jon Spiker, 13 from Ferry and 15 from Thompson. MHS sophomore Antwan Goodley had a game high 23 points while Earl McDonald had 17 points, with 15 of them coming after the third period of play. It was McDonald who helped erase a 12-point Cooper lead in the fourth period to send the game into overtime. MHS also got 12 points from Skeet Bowers and 10 from Brian Rounding.

Cooper's Ferry was a big factor late in the game hitting 11 fourth quarter points and two in overtime. Cooper also connected on seven of 13 three-point shots. Cooper hit 45 percent from the field and 19 of 23 free throws while MHS hit only 39 percent from the field and 10 of 17 from the charity stripe.

The Bulldogs end regular season play Friday with a non-conference game against powerful Hobbs, N.M., at the MHS gym. Hobbs already owns a 130-78, 52-point victory over MHS, the Bulldog's worst outing of the year.

Midland High's three district losses this year have been by a mere total of seven points, losing two games on buzzer shots and one in overtime.

In junior varsity action, Cooper won 73-60 with Ryan Tucker hitting 22 points and J.C. Johnson 18. MHS got 17 points from Mike Melzer and 16 from Scott Lunsford.

Hillin moves closer to slot at Daytona

Associated Press

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — Midland's Bobby Hillin Jr. jumped in a Moroso Racing backup car Tuesday and led the third and final round of time trials for the Daytona 500.

Hillin, who lost his regular ride at the end of the 1990 season, drove the second Moroso Oldsmobile to a fast lap of 192.160 mph on the 2.5-mile oval at Daytona International Speedway.

"That was all she had, but I've only driven the car about three laps," Hillin said. "We did awfully well under the circumstances.

"I wasn't expecting even to have a ride, even though I'd helped the team test in December. I feel really good about what's happened."

Hillin's lap was the 28th fastest overall and easily qualified him for one of Thursday's Twin 125-mile races that will help determine the lineup for Sunday's 500-mile event.

The top 14 finishers, excluding pole-winner Davey Allison and outside front-row starter Ernie Irvan — the only drivers who have clinched starting positions — in each of the qualifying races will advance to Sunday's race. The rest of the field will be filled by the 10 fastest remaining drivers from the time trials and up to three provisional starters.

Dick Moroso, the team owner, decided to continue his commitment to Winston Cup racing despite the death of his son Rob, the 1990 Rookie of the Year, in a highway accident last Sept. 30. He hired sprint car champion Sam Swindell to drive the primary car.

Brett Bodine, whose Buick Regal had an engine problem on Monday, came back and qualified at 190.654 on Tuesday.

MHS earns first league win

■ A penalty kick by Joe Dominguez lifts the Bulldogs past Odessa Permian in District soccer.

By Bill Grimes
Staff Writer

Midland High scored first in Tuesday's District 3 soccer match with Odessa Permian, just as the Bulldogs had in their four previous district matches.

This time, they made it stick.

Joe Dominguez' penalty kick in the 46th minute was all the Dawgs would need for a 1-0 win at the MHS field — MHS' first district win of the season after a loss and three ties.

Elsewhere in the district, Midland Lee blasted Odessa High 5-0, while San Angelo nipped Abilene Cooper 2-1 to keep pace with the Rebels. Both Lee and San Angelo, 3-0-1 in district play, pulled ahead of third-place Cooper, now 3-2.

Midland High moved into a tie for fourth with idle Abilene High.

The Bulldogs, 5-2-3 overall and 1-1-3 in district play, had been equal-opportunity deadlockers, tying co-leaders Midland Lee and San Angelo, along with cellar-dwelling Odessa High.

And Bulldog coach Tom Esikhati was getting tired of the trend.

"I was getting tired of ties," he said. "We have goofed up enough.

"We weren't going to settle for a tie."

Goalkeeper Bryant Mueller said a confidence factor was involved, too.

"We needed to know we could still win," Mueller said.

Dominguez broke the tie when he pushed his penalty kick to the left of Permian keeper Jason Bowling. The Bulldogs received the break when center forward Stephen Canon was pushed from behind in the penalty area by Permian's Chris Para.

Dominguez, who tied Canon for the season scoring lead with his fourth goal, said he's not the designated penalty kicker.

"That's the first one I've taken this season," the senior midfielder said. "Nobody came forward to shoot, so I just took it.

"He thought I was going to go to my left, because I usually go that way, but

Rice takes UT to wire

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Benford Williams scored Texas' winning points on a field goal with 1:15 to play, and Sam Campbell of Rice missed an eight-footer just before the buzzer Tuesday as the No. 24 Longhorns squeezed by Rice 65-64 in Southwest Conference basketball.

Texas (17-5, 11-1) won its 10th straight game. Rice fell to 10-12 and 4-7.

Texas and Rice each had two turnovers in the final 32 seconds, and Dexter Cambridge of Texas missed a layup with seven seconds left.

"Not since I was in junior high school have I seen a game played so poorly in the final seconds," said Texas coach Tom Penders.

The 65 points represented the lowest total in Penders' three years at Texas. His current squad is averaging 89 points per game.

"We were fortunate to come out of here with a win," Penders said. "It was a very sloppy game and we tried to give the game away and they just didn't take it."

Campbell, a freshman who played high school basketball in Austin, said, "I thought it was money when I let it go."

Rice coach Scott Thompson said, "I just thought it'd go down ... we had our chances but it just didn't bounce our way at the end."

Texas had just regained the Top 25 in college basketball after falling from No. 22 in late December, following a 79-71 road loss to Georgia.

Brent Scott led Rice with 24 points, including 18 in the second half, but missed five of six free throws in the last 1:43 before a screaming Texas crowd of 12,065.

Texas had what appeared to be a comfortable 49-39 lead when Cambridge was whistled for an intentional foul with 10:56 to go and Rice rallied, taking a 61-60 lead on Scott's tip-in. The 6-foot-9 sophomore scored Rice's last five points.

Joey Wright led Texas with 19 points and Williams had 15.

Texas was 17 of 24 from the free throw line, Rice only five of 13.

Rice, on a 13-2 run, grabbed a 19-12 first half lead but Texas responded by scoring 15 straight points and led at halftime 34-26 as Texas' Guillermo Myers tipped in Wright's missed shot with 0:01 left.

MHS: Dawgs shoot better

(From 1C)

I took the shot to my right , instead," Dominguez added.

Permian went with a brisk west wind in the first half, but the Panthers still couldn't get anything going offensively and the Bulldogs were optimistic going into the second half.

"They had a couple of chances in the first half on fluky balls, but nothing really threatening," Mueller said. The Panthers took only five shots, none of which particularly challenged Mueller.

In contrast, MHS teed off on Bowling in the second half. The Bulldogs outshot their visitors 11-3 in the second 40 minutes, and Bowling had several close calls, including two shots by Mario Rodriguez that bounced off the crossbar.

"We're getting to a level where we're taking better shots," Esikhati said.

Permian coach Fred Dallava refused comment after the match.

MHS has a chance to move into third place on the road Saturday at Abilene Cooper, while Lee hosts Abilene High.

Lee controls OHS kickers

Staff Report

ODESSA — Foreign exchange student Danny Grossman scored a goal in each half to lead the Midland Lee Rebels to a 5-0 win over the Odessa High Bronchos in District 3 soccer action here Tuesday.

Lee, which remains tied for first place in District 3 with San Angelo, took a 3-0 halftime lead on goals by Grossman, Chris Murray and Mark Steward. Grossman opened the scoring with a header off a crossing pass by Julio Silva in the 18th minute.

The Swiss senior added another goal in the second half. Pat Stanley also scored in the second half.

Even though Lee coach Eddie Bull substituted freely, the Rebels outshot the winless Bronchos 27-1, and OHS crossed the center line only three times in the second half.

Permian girls down Abilene

Staff Report

SNYDER — The Odessa Permian girls claimed the first place playoff spot in District 4-5A girls action Tuesday night with a 66-54 win over the Abilene High Lady Eagles at the Scurry County Coliseum.

The Lady Panthers' win means Permian, 24-6, will face District 3-5A runner-up Amarillo Tascosa; Abilene High, 25-5, will meet 3-5A runner-up Plainview. Dates, sites and times are to be announced.

L'Tonya Williams led the Lady Panthers' scoring with 18; LaShon Powell added 16.

Hornets sting Mavericks, snap four-game skid

Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Johnny Newman scored 21 points and Charlotte used an 11-2 run at the beginning of the second half to beat the Dallas Mavericks 100-92 Tuesday night, snapping a four-game losing streak.

Mike Gminski had 18 points and 14 rebounds as the Hornets beat the Mavericks for only the second time in eight games.

Spurs 102, Bullets 92

SAN ANTONIO — Willie Anderson scored 22 points and David Robinson 20 to lift the Spurs over Washington.

The Spurs outscored the Bullets 13-4 at the start of the fourth quarter for a 20-point lead after Washington cut a 75-55 deficit to 83-72 at the end of three quarters.

Magic 129, Nuggets 12

ORLANDO, Fla. — Scott Skiles scored 33 points while Jerry Reynolds and Otis Smith had 26 each as Orlando defeated Denver for the first four-game winning streak in the Magic's two-year history.

NBA Roundup

Cavaliers 94, Heat 78

MIAMI — Brad Daugherty had 25 points and 15 rebounds, and the Cleveland Cavaliers overcame 19 first-half turnovers and snapped a three-game losing streak.

Neither team played well in the first half, which ended with Cleveland on top 41-39.

Knicks 114, Pacers 110

INDIANAPOLIS — Patrick Ewing had 29 points and Kiki Vandeweghe broke a tie by scoring New York's final four points in the last 20 seconds, lifting the Knicks over Indiana.

Vandeweghe scored 21 points while Chuck Person led Indiana with 24 and Micheal Williams had 20, including two free throws with 1:08 left that gave Indiana a 110-109 lead.

Suns 99, Lakers 95

PHOENIX — The Phoenix Suns ended the Los Angeles Lakers' 16-game winning streak Kevin Johnson scored 10 of his 35 points in the final 8:13 and Tom Chambers hit a decisive hook shot with 28 seconds left.

Jeff Hornacek added 23 points for the Suns while Chambers finished with 18, giving him 16,008 in his nine-year NBA career.

Bulls 122, Hawks 113

CHICAGO — Michael Jordan scored 32 points and Horace Grant 23 as the Chicago Bulls won their 14th consecutive home game.

The win was the third in a row for the Bulls, who are 19-3 at home.

Jazz 113, Rockets 92

SALT LAKE CITY — John Stockton had 19 points, 11 assists and nine steals as the Utah Jazz snapped Houston's four-game winning streak.

Crane defeats Greenwood

Staff Report

CRANE — The Greenwood Rangers went on a 12-2 run halfway through the fourth quarter but came up short in the end, losing to Crane's Golden Cranes, 62-60, in the final game of the District 8-3A season for both teams.

The win means Crane is the outright district champion, having won both the first and second halves. Crane finished the regular season with a 16-8 overall record, 9-1 in district, including 5-0 in the second half of league play.

Greenwood, which also qualifies for the playoffs, fell to 14-14 overall and 8-2 in district. The Rangers finished both halves of league play with identical 4-1 records, losing both times to

Jayhawks hang on to beat Missouri

Associated Press

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Terry Brown and Mike Maddox made high-pressure free throws in the final 44 seconds Tuesday night as No. 11 Kansas overcame a horrid first half and beat Missouri 74-70 for its ninth victory in a row.

The Big Eight-leading Jayhawks (18-4, 7-2) made only seven of 26 shots from the field in the first half and trailed by nine, but Missouri (13-8, 5-4) was unable to take advantage of the cold spell.

Doug Smith, Missouri's 6-10 Big Eight player of the year last season, muscled underneath for a layup with 45 seconds remaining that drew the Tigers to 69-67. But Brown, who led the Jayhawks with 18 points, then sank a free throw and was fouled by Antony Peeler a few seconds later after Melvin Booker and Jeff Frost both missed from 3-point range.

Brown made both foul shots with 28 seconds to go, then Maddox canned one and Alonzo Jamison added another to seal the victory and give Kansas a season-sweep of the Tigers.

Jamison had 11 points for the Jayhawks and Mark Randall, who had scored 83 points in the four previous games, had 10.

Smith led Missouri with 23 points and Peeler had 16.

Top 25

No. 7 Syracuse 101
Providence 83

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Billy Owens scored 20 first-half points and Syracuse matched its best-ever 3-point shooting performance to rout Providence.

Owens finished with 25 points and Dave Johnson and Michael Edwards each added 19 as the Orangemen (21-3, 8-3) extended their lead in the Big East to a full game over Georgetown. Providence (14-9, 5-7) had won four of its previous six games, including victories over Syracuse and No. 13 St. John's.

Syracuse appeared to have blocked out the off-court troubles that have resulted in a university investigation into the men's basketball program. That investigation led the brief suspension and reinstatement of seven players, including Owens and three other starters, before Saturday's game at Notre Dame, won by Syracuse, 70-69.

The Orangemen made 7 of 9 3-pointers in building a 13-point first half lead. They finished 10 of 16, tying their all-time high of 10 set against U.S. International in 1988.

The 101 points marked the first time this season Syracuse cracked the century mark in Big East play.

Seton Hall 83
No. 22 Pittsburgh 73

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Terry Dehere scored 25 points and Anthony Avent had 21 as Seton Hall beat Pittsburgh.

While the Pirates (15-7, 6-6) got usual scoring performances from their two top scorers, Pittsburgh (17-8, 6-5) was hampered by the two-point effort of Brian Shorter, who entered the game averaging 14 points. He had 22 in the Panthers' 86-80 victory over Seton Hall earlier in the season.

Seton Hall, which had lost three straight conference games, started the second half with an 8-2 run to take a 45-38 lead with 16:55 to play. Avent, who also had 11 rebounds, scored the first six points of the run as Seton Hall was able to establish an inside game.

Watson leads Rankin past Miles

Staff Report

MERTZON — James Watson scored 25 points to lead four Rankin Red Devils in double figures en route to a 94-64 romp over Miles in a practice game for playoff appearances by both teams.

Watson tied Miles' Brian Taylor for game scoring honors. Francisco Gonzales added 22 points for Rankin, 13-3, while Kirk Kennedy added 17 and Jimmy Low pitched in 12.

Randy Chaves added 10 points for Miles.

Rankin faces Irion County in another practice game at 7 p.m. Thursday in Garden City. Coach Shannon Hooker's Red Devils face O'Donnell in bi-district playoff action at 6 p.m. Feb. 22 in the Odessa College Sports Center.

UTEP to conduct internal investigation of wrongdoing

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Texas-El Paso will conduct its own investigation of alleged wrongdoing uncovered by the NCAA during an investigation of the Miners' basketball program, school officials said Tuesday.

"We do want to find out if these are indeed true and that takes an investigation on our part," Athletic Director Brad Hovious said.

The school appointed attorney Ricardo Adauto III to look into the allegations. UTEP President Diana Natalicio said Adauto, her assistant, was present at many of the interviews conducted by the NCAA.

"The real point here is that there has been 14 months of speculation about various incidents, some of which may have occurred, some of which may not have occurred or may have been exaggerated. I think our job now is to sort out all of these facts," Natalicio said.

UTEP has until May 7 to respond to the list of 13 allegations lodged by the NCAA following a probe that lasted more than a year.

Coach Don Haskins, who has headed the program for 30 years, was not at Tuesday's news conference. He also was not at his office just prior to a 2 p.m. basketball practice.

"We didn't invite him," Natalicio said when asked why Haskins was absent.

Hovious and Natalicio said they take all of the infractions seriously. Some of the more serious allegations are:

— An assistant coach is accused of tutoring recruit John Staggers at least four times to prepare him for three separate General Equivalency Diploma exams. The assistant also is accused of arranging for the athlete to retake the test, even though a six-month waiting period had not expired.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1991

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Look forward to a series of exciting events. A unique career opportunity presents itself in April. Seize it! A summer vacation will help you sort out a personal relationship. August is the ideal time to make new investments. Concentrate on short-term projects in late fall. A compromise and an overdue reconciliation will make Christmas especially memorable.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: artist Grant Wood, actress Kim Novak, actors George Segal and Oliver Reed.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The mail brings good news. Consistency will help you get better results in business. Letting children know what is expected of them will encourage them to develop good habits.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Trust your own instincts. If a long-distance romance makes you feel like an exile, get out and socialize more. Your creativity is at a peak. Look for new outlets for your talents.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your influence grows at work. Use any spare time to complete important paperwork. A new office or apartment brings great satisfaction. Break out of a rut. Accept a spur-of-the-moment invitation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Remain close to your family but enjoy your freedom. Developing your skills as a public speaker will help your career. Travel is favored. Accept an invitation to visit friends at a distance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Review the pros and cons of a recent business proposal. Seek experts' advice before signing. Let a past love fade away; someone more compatible is on the horizon. Avoid making demands.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Although overseas travel holds great appeal, postpone it for a more favorable period. Be sensitive to a child's or parent's feelings. Influential people will reward your original ideas.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The success of a business partnership will banish any financial worries! Hang tough if others give you a hard time or attempt to deceive you. A change of residence or lifestyle is overdue.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An idealistic but focused approach helps advance your career. Use your influence to get loans and expand business. Free-lancers do brilliantly today. Nurture an ailing relationship.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Speaking your mind will clear up a misunderstanding. You feel energized after enrolling in an exercise or dance program. Additional education boosts your earning power.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Spruce up your wardrobe with carefully chosen accessories. A contemporary image is a big plus in business. Check out stock tips proposed by friends. A prominent individual plays a major role in your career.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Admit your mistakes and you will win big at work or home. Your financial instincts are right on the money. Take time out to recharge your batteries. Lunch with one of your favorite chums.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You move into a position from which you can feather your nest. Beware of strangers bearing gifts. Tune out anyone who asks too many personal questions. New technology can save you time and money.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are curious, friendly and anxious to explore the world around them. Wise parents will provide these youngsters with plenty of books, puzzles and challenging games. These Aquarians are keen readers, eager to learn what other people are thinking and doing. They are interested in the latest fashions and fads and sometimes wear offbeat clothes. Count on them to do lots of entertaining. They have many friends from all walks of life.

Very few people have the type of computer mind that enables them to work out all the percentages of the various lines available on most hands. What sets the expert apart from the run-of-the-mill player is not so much his ability to spot the right line as the wrong one.

We endorse South's decision to preempt with four spades. It's a two-way action—partner might produce enough for 10 tricks, but if not, the level of the preempt might deter the opponents from entering the auction when the hand belongs to them.

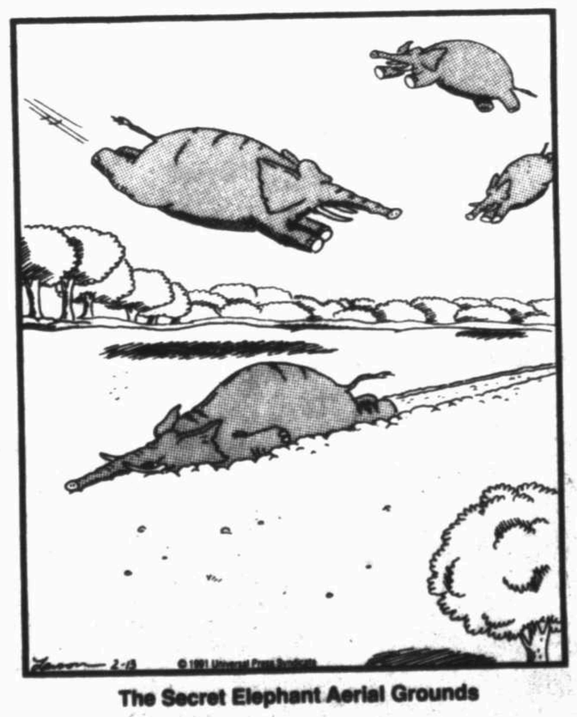

Both declarers in a team match were in four spades and received a heart lead. A competent declarer won in dummy, cashed the remaining high heart and ruffed a heart high. He was delighted by the even break. After cashing the ace of spades, he crossed to the king in dummy. Unfortunately, trumps were 3-1, so declarer could not use the established hearts. South tried a club to the king—down one.

The expert declarer saw at once that the heart suit could not be developed as a source of tricks unless both major suits broke evenly, and that was considerably against the odds. South, therefore, decided to play on the club suit in an effort to secure a 10th trick.

Declarer won the king of hearts, drew two rounds of trumps, ending in dummy, then led the nine of clubs, intending to run it if East followed with a low club. When East split the club honors, declarer covered with the king, losing to West's ace. The heart return was taken in dummy and another club was led. East played low smoothly, giving declarer a guess. After a few moments thought, declarer inserted the ten and the contract was home.

'Razzie' nominees include Bo Derek, Stallone, Trump

LOS ANGELES — It's not an award Bo Derek, Sylvester Stallone or Donald Trump is likely to brag about. All three were nominated for a Golden Raspberry Award — the film "honor" known as the Razzie.

Derek

The Golden Raspberry Award Foundation bestows the prize on the films and actors it thinks were the biggest bombs of the year. The group, which boasts 300 members nationwide, announced its nominations Tuesday for its 11th annual awards.

Miss Derek's "Ghosts Can't Do It," the little-seen movie intended to be her comeback, led with nine nominations in seven categories, including worst picture, worst actress, and worst new star — for a cameo by Trump.

Stallone's "Rocky V" also got battered, getting seven nominations for worst picture, worst actor and worst original song, among other dishonors.

Last year, the group dubbed Stallone and Miss Derek as the worst actor and actress of the 1980s.

In the worst actors category the nominees were: Andrew Dice Clay, Prince, Mickey Rourke, George C. Scott and Stallone. The foundation nominated Derek, Melanie Griffith ate Midler, Molly Ringwald and Talia Shire as worst actresses.

Stallone

Trump got a double-whammie: He was nominated for worst new star and worst supporting actor for his role in "Ghosts Can't Do It." Wayne Newton also was cited in the worst supporting actor category for his role in "The Adventures of Ford Fairlane."

Sofia Coppola got two nominations, for worst supporting actress and worst new star, for her role in "The Godfather, Part III." Miss Coppola was panned for her portrayal of a "Sicilian Valley girl" in father Francis Ford Coppola's long-awaited sequel.

Razzie winners are scheduled to be announced March 24, one day before the Academy Awards. The Oscar nominees are scheduled to be announced today.

MINOT, N.D. — A woman who missed a chance to see Wayne Newton in concert when the entertainer canceled a show here last year is being flown to Las Vegas for a concert and a meeting with her idol.

Dorothy Fairweather, a kidney dialysis patient at Trinity Medical Center, thought after the show was canceled that she would never get another chance to see Newton because of her medical condition.

After Newton's Minot performance was scratched in August, two nurses at the medical center wrote to Newton's management company and explained the situation. The company offered to fly Fairweather and an escort to Las Vegas for a concert next week.

"I always thought it would be terrific to go to Vegas and see his show there," Fairweather said. "I'm really looking forward to it."

OAKLAND, Calif. — Barbie's new friend wears gold lame baggy pants and a short jacket over his bare chest. The latest entry in the 12-inch fashion doll market from Mattel is M.C. Hammer.

The real rap star, who hails from Oakland, will appear Wednesday at Mattel's New York showroom for a dance party to introduce the M.C. Hammer doll, which is scheduled to debut this fall. A wardrobe of glitzy fashions will be available, too.

LOS ANGELES — As a Shakespearean actor, George Takei labors in relative obscurity. But he's instantly recognizable to millions as Sulu in "Star Trek."

Takei sees both benefits and drawbacks to the role as an officer on the "Star Trek" starship that he's played on and off since 1966 on television and in films.

"The character in many ways I consider a breakthrough," he said in a recent interview near the Mark Taper Forum, where he's currently appearing in Philip Kan Gotanda's "The Wash."

"Before that, Asian characters were very stereotyped, generally a buffoon," said the Japanese-American actor. "Here we had a character who was a crack professional."

However, Takei said: "There is the problem of your tombstone reading, 'Here lies Sulu.' My challenge is to take that blessing and expand on it, to demonstrate that I am an actor and not a character."

GREENVILLE, S.C. — The associate director of the Soviet State Symphony says the repression of independence movements in his country pushed him to defect during a tour of the United States.

Edvard Tchivzhel, 47, walked away from his countrymen at a Washington, D.C., airport Sunday morning and entered the custody of U.S. immigration agents along with his wife and 4-year-old son.

"There is blood being shed, barricades in the streets. The dictatorship is strong everywhere in the Baltic states," he said.

Foreman-Holyfield fight finally set

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The movers and shakers behind the Evander Holyfield-George Foreman heavyweight title fight did everything Tuesday but sing "On the Boardwalk at Atlantic City."

The fee of $11 million for the Trump Plaza to be live-site promoter remains the same, Donald Trump and co-promoters Dan Duva and Bob Arum said. Of that amount, $3.5 million has been paid and the rest will come out of the gate receipts, which they said, will be no problem.

The date remains the same, April 19.

What was all the fuss, the movers and shakers wondered aloud?

"Rumors of our divorce were premature," co-promoter Dan Duva said at a news conference at the Trump-owned Plaza Hotel about the possibility of moving the fight to Caesars Palace at Las Vegas.

One "rumor" was a statement last Thursday, by Donald Trump, who bid $11 million so his Trump Plaza in Atlantic City could be live-site promoter. It said he would attempt to invoke an "active war clause" in the contract and renegotiate the fee. The new fee reportedly would be $5 million-$6 million.

Trump said he thought the war in the Persian Gulf would effect the worth of the fight.

"I never had any question or doubt about the financial ability of the Trump organization to hold this fight," Arum said.

Last Thursday, Arum said, "It's apparent Mr. Trump can't perform to the contract terms. In that case we will move the fight to Las Vegas."

Caesars Palace had bid $9 million for the match.

"It was the greatest publicity stunt I've ever seen," Duva said of Trump's action.

Arum, however, said of the apparent disagreement, "It obviously was not staged."

Trump had things on his mind other than the fight, Duva patiently explained, "and one thing he had to be assured of was that this was going to be a success."

"I have been assured that this will be a tremendous success," Trump said. As for going on with the fight, he added, "Let's just say we've made some adjustments and I'm very happy with the adjustment."

What adjustments?

"Different things," Trump said.

"Technical adjusments," Arum said.

"Ticket sales are going very well, very briskly," Trump said. "In fact, all this recent publcity has helped even further."

NFL players file suit against league

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Six players for the Washington Redskins, Detroit Lions and the Chicago Bears filed suit against the NFL's retirement system Tuesday, saying it has refused to disclose the amount of benefits they are earning.

The lawsuit, filed in U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia, asks that the New York-based Pete Rozelle NFL Player Retirement Plan and its administrator, Dennis Curran, be ordered to pay a fine for failing to make disclosures required by federal pension law.

The plaintiffs are Earnest Byner, Gary Clark, Darrell Green and Jim Lachey of the Redskins, Lomas Brown of the Lions and Jay Hilgenberg of the Bears.

The lawsuit said the retirement was required to give the players a summary description of the plan by the end of 1989, but it did not do so.

Passion rises with aphrodisiac foods

HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) — Valentine's Day is typically celebrated with chocolates, and perhaps this tradition among lovers exists for good reason.

Recent evidence shows that chocolate may be considered an aphrodisiac — a substance that is said to increase passion. To be specific, chocolate contains large amounts of phenylethylamine, a chemical that is also naturally produced by the body when one has feelings of love. Apparently it is possible, at least theoretically, for someone to duplicate that sensation by eating large quantities of chocolate.

Throughout history, mankind has pursued the fountain of youth in search of immortality. One manifestation of this search has been the hunt for an aphrodisiac.

Although certain substances have been scientifically proven to act as aphrodisiacs, much of the subject is shrouded in mystery. This mystery is at least partially responsible for the intrigue and allure of both the substances and the subject.

Thousands of years ago in the Middle East, the magical "love potion" was thought to be a mixture of camel's milk and honey. According to ancient lore, the sticky, sweet substance secreted by bees was widely revered as a gift from heaven, a notion that may shed new light on the still disputed origins of the reference to the Promised Land as "the land of milk and honey." For a more modern-day example, consider the frequency with which the word honey is used to express affection.

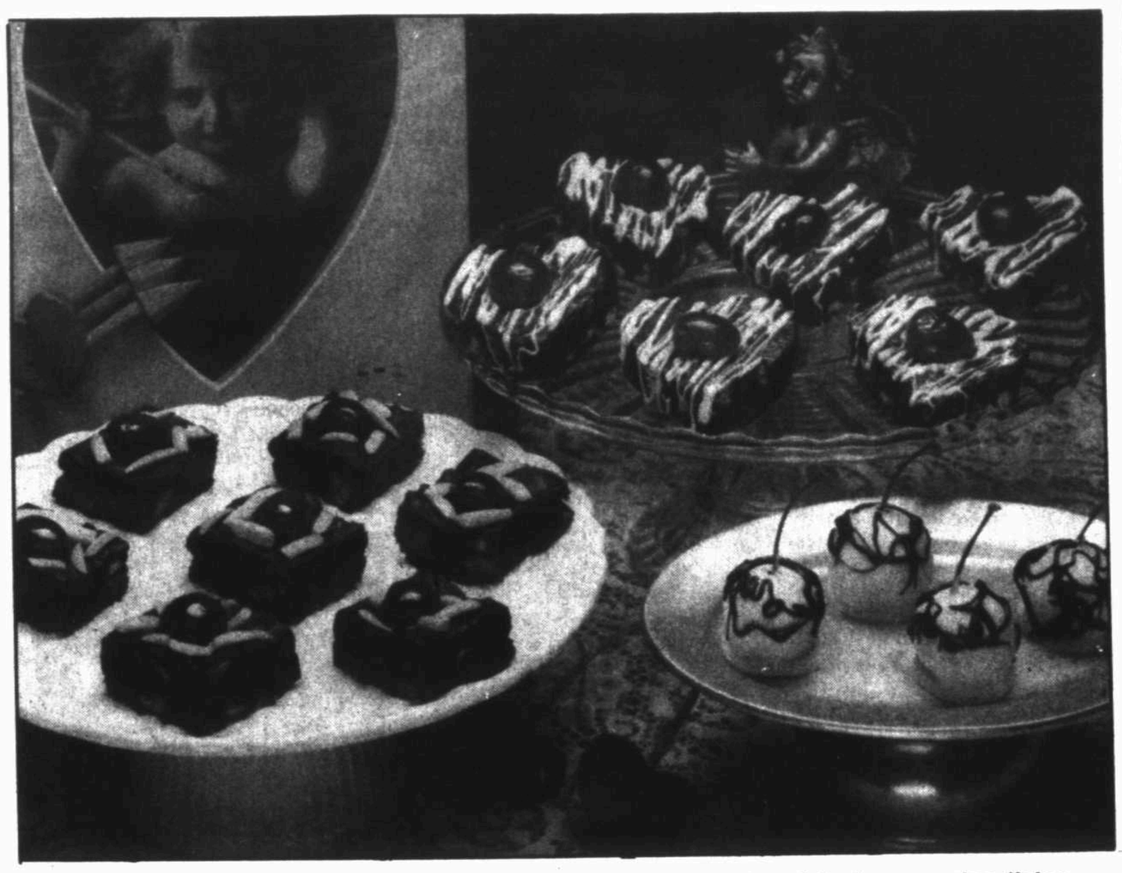

Many herbs noted for large concentrations of essential plant oils have long been considered to have aphrodisiacal properties. Jonathan Zearfoss, a chef-instructor at the Culinary Institute of America's St. Andrew's Cafe, says there are frequent references in English literature to basil and its association with the quickening of romantic love.

"The story of Isabella and the Pot of Basil appears in the prose of Giovanni Boccaccio, the poetry of John Keats, and the paintings of William Holman Hunt," he says.

Fruit, of course, has long been considered a symbol of temptation and desire. Colorful and succulent, fruits of various kinds have been widely used in art to represent seduction. This symbolic association is the result of the role fruit plays in the life cycle of plants. Plants devote considerable energy to the production of attractive fruit so that the fruit will be consumed and its seeds dispersed. Eating of fruit and the scattering of seeds is an essential part of plant reproduction.

Dried spices such as nutmeg have also received notice. "Cinnamon, paprika, pepper, ginger, clove and ginseng have been acknowledged in a variety of cultures as possessing life-enhancing properties," Zearfoss says.

And don't forget fungus. Certain varieties, particularly truffles and wild mushrooms, have well-established reputations as aphrodisiacs. Hunting for the morel mushroom has become a spring ritual in some countries. The famous gourmand Brillat-Savarin wrote of the erotic properties of truffles in his "Physiology of Taste." Like morels, truffles cannot be domesticated, at least not examples that compare to those grown in the wild.

Chocolate, found in foods such as these brownies, is claimed to be an aphrodisiac.

Of all the different foods linked with the art of love, none has received more publicity than oysters. Amid all the myth and mystique, there is some validity. Oysters, like snails, contain comparatively large quantities of zinc, a supplement often used by men to revive themselves.

In conclusion, there is a variety of evidence on the special properties of foods. Whether certain foods, alone or in combination, will ignite passions is questionable. In some things, mysteries should be left as they are.

OYSTERS WITH CHAMPAGNE VINEGAR AND CAVIAR

1 large shallot, minced
¼ teaspoon freshly cracked black pepper
¼ cup champagne vinegar
24 fresh oysters
1 ounce good-quality caviar, preferably sturgeon
1 tablespoon chopped chives

Combine minced shallot, pepper and vinegar; refrigerate. Scrub oyster shells, then shuck oysters. Loosen each oyster from its shell but do not remove from bottom shell. Place oysters on half-shells on crushed ice. Stir vinegar mixture well. Then drizzle a little of the mixture over each oyster. Distribute caviar equally over tops of oysters. Sprinkle with chopped chives and serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

Bread pudding adds caramel twist

By Nancy Byal
Associated Press

Remember how great caramel apples rolled in nuts tasted when you were a kid? Here are the same flavors, but now they're easier to eat.

CARAMEL-APPLE BREAD PUDDING

4 eggs
2¼ cups milk
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon vanilla
⅛ teaspoon ground nutmeg
2 cups dry whole-wheat bread cubes (about 3 slices)
1 6-ounce package dried apples, snipped
Caramel-Nut Sauce (recipe follows)

In a large mixing bowl use a rotary beater to beat together eggs, milk, sugar, cinnamon, vanilla and nutmeg. Set egg mixture aside. In an ungreased 8- by 1½-inch-round baking dish toss together dry bread cubes and dried apples. Pour the egg mixture evenly over the bread-apple mixture. Bake in a 350-degree F oven for 40 to 45 minutes or until the bread pudding tests done. Serve warm with Caramel-Nut Sauce. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

CARAMEL-NUT SAUCE: In a small saucepan melt ¼ cup margarine or butter. Stir in ½ cup packed brown sugar and 1 tablespoon light corn surup. Cook and stir over medium heat until the mixture comes to a full boil. Stir in ¼ cup whipping cream. Return to a full boil. Remove from the heat. Stir in ¼ cup chopped pecans. Serve warm. Makes about 1 cup.

DEAR ABBY

Gift of yourself is best valentine

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: Don't tell me that tomorrow is St. Valentine's Day already — we just finished with Christmas. Well, it is, so be a sweetheart and call someone and say, "Hi, I love you." Make two or three calls — who said you can't love more than one person? In different ways, of course.

Van Buren

Be a sweetheart and go through your closets and part with all those clothes you've been saving until you lose 10 pounds. Your favorite charity can turn those good-as-new garments into cash.

Be a sweetheart and call someone who's lonely and say, "I'm thinking about you." Or better yet, say, "I'll be over tomorrow and take you to lunch, run some errands or give you a ride."

Arrange a date for some nice person who doesn't get many. Be a sweetheart and forgive an enemy, quit smoking, count your calories, return that book (and everything else) you've borrowed. Update your will, donate your eyes, your kidneys and all usable organs to someone who can use them after you're gone. Spay your dog, neuter your cat, toss some bread crumbs out for the birds, pay your doctor and your dentist. If you can't pay all your bill — pay part of it to show good faith. Hug your teen-ager, listen to a bore, vow to separate your trash, and recycle your paper if you're not already doing it.

Promise yourself to drive carefully, and if you're walking, thank God you're able to, and watch where you're going. Pray for the safety of all our men and women who are serving their country in all four corners of the world, and pray for their families at home who are doing without them. And don't wait until next St. Valentine's Day to be a sweetheart again. — LOVE, ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a wonderful man, and we are talking about getting married.

We are both mature people and have been on several trips together, so we are not exactly strangers — ahem. I think you get my drift. There is one problem:

I find it impossible to sleep in the same bed with him. I am a very light sleeper and need my full eight hours' sleep, but this man is not only a snorer, he constantly tosses and turns, and he talks in his sleep!

The idea of separate beds has entered my mind, but it is not a possibility for me because I love to fall asleep in his arms.

Is there a solution to this problem? — INSOMNIAC

DEAR INSOMNIAC: Go ahead and fall asleep in his arms, and when he starts to snore and thrash around, take your pillow and move to a quieter place.

DEAR ABBY: Last year, a woman (unmarried) who works in our office received flowers, candy and several valentines — all from imaginary "admirers." Everyone knew she had sent them to herself, but nobody let on, of course. She will probably be "remembered" by these same gentlemen friends whom nobody has ever met tomorrow when St. Valentine's Day rolls around again.

What do you think of a grown woman who would pull such a childish stunt? And how should we — who are not fooled — react? — THE OFFICE GANG

DEAR GANG: I think she's pathetic and sadly in need of attention. React as if she had put one over the home plate. You will have made her day, and it won't cost you anything.

To get Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Roasted pork tenderloin makes low-fat main dish

NEW YORK (AP) — Roasted pork tenderloin served with crumbled blue cheese is a savory main dish that contains only 13 grams of fat per serving. The recipe is provided by the National Dairy Board.

ROASTED PORK TENDERLOIN WITH BLUE CHEESE

2 tablespoons butter, melted
1 pound pork tenderloin, trimmed of fat
2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley, or 1 tablespoon dried parsley flakes
2 tablespoons chopped fresh thyme or 1 tablespoon dried thyme
2 tablespoons chopped fresh oregano or 1 tablespoon dried oregano leaves, crushed
1 tablespoon sage
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
2 cups mixed salad greens
½ cup (2 ounces) blue cheese, crumbled

Place melted butter in a shallow, non-reactive baking dish. Roll pork in butter until coated. In a small bowl combine herbs, salt and black pepper. Sprinkle over pork, pressing seasonings onto surface of meat. Cover and let stand at room temperature for 1 hour.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees F. Place pork on a rack in a roasting pan. Roast until the internal temperature of the pork registers 155 degrees F, about 15 to 20 minutes. Remove from oven; let stand at room temperature for 10 minutes; pork will reach internal temperature of 160 degrees F. Cut into thin slices. Serve over salad greens; sprinkle with blue cheese. Makes 4 servings.

To prepare in the broiler: Preheat broiler to hot. Broil until pork reaches temperatures as directed above, about 15 minutes.

Nutrition information per serving: 237 cal., 13 g fat.

Carnival winds down, but debate over 'numbers bosses' heats up

By Ken Silverstein

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Brazil's four-day Carnival celebration headed to a close Tuesday, but a debate over the increasing control exercised over the event by Rio's illegal numbers bosses is just heating up.

From the steamy Amazon to the southern pampas, Brazilians partied and played on the festival's final, raucous day. Stores, banks and businesses, which were closed throughout Carnival, reopen at noon on Ash Wednesday.

But in northeastern coastal cities such as Recife and Salvador, where millions of people have packed the streets dancing the lambada and samba, festivities continue throughout the week.

In Rio, Carnival's unofficial capital, the city's famous two-day parade came to an end in the wee hours Tuesday after the the final performance of 16 "samba schools," neighborhood clubs from the city's poor districts.

The groups of up to 5,000 members, most clad in elaborate feathered costumes, rhinestone bikinis and sequins, are backed by a rythmn section that pounds out a contagious Afro-tropical beat on hundreds of different sized drums and exotic percussion instruments.

The Samba schools march down a six-block-long outdoor paradeway in downtown Rio, and compete for the top prize based on points awarded for costumes, floats, music and theme. The winner will be announced on Wednesday.

Last year's winner, Mocidade Independente, put on a flawless show and is favored to retain the title. The group, whose theme was "The Waters Are Going to Roll," marched alongside floats with flashing purple lights, a globe, a spinning star and a mermaid's tail of blue and green that turned into a fountain.

Another strong contender was Portela. One of the group's attractions was a red-and-white float adorned with 10 long-haired women samba dancers who wore only bikini bottoms, winning applause from many of the estimated 80,000 spectators.

A new rule banning genital nudity, even if disguised, was respected until Imperial Serrano entered at 3 a.m. A male dancer appeared at the top of a tall float, clad only in a tiny strategically-placed mock traffic sign, with an arrow pointed in a suggestive direction.

The debate about the control exercised over Carnival by the numbers kings, who head many of the most popular "samba schools," began last Wednesday, when Rio's governor met with four of the leading bosses to donate a piece of state property for a Carnival museum.

The illegal but tolerated "jogo do bicho," or "animal game," is played openly on street corners throughout Rio. It takes in an estimated $1 million per day and provides jobs for about 40,000 people.

The animal game pays winners immediately and is known for its efficiency. Many city residents joke that it is the country's most honest institution.

The numbers kings, known as "bicheiros" in Portuguese, began moving in on Carnival in 1984 when they formed the Independent Samba School League. It now largely runs the event, controlling ticket sales, merchandising and media coverage.

This year, the Globo and Manchete television networks, which broadcast the parade live nationwide, paid the numbers' kings $1.25 million for broadcasting rights.

The Samba League's president, known as "Capt. Guimaraes," caused a stir this year after pressuring Manchete to fire three of its longtime announcers for their criticism of Carnival's growing commercialization.

One of the dismissed commentators, Sergio Cabral, a respected music historian, said the League was destroying Carnival.

"A samba school is for the samba dancers," he said, adding that the numbers kings have "no interest in preserving (Carnival's) roots."

The numbers kings, nevertheless, have many strong supporters.

"If the 'bicheiros' took power, they'd straighten this country out with their power of organization," said Joaozinho Trinta, the artistic director of the hugely popular "Beija-Flor" samba school — whose president is a numbers king.

Rebel attack leaves up to 45 dead

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — Rebels in Mozambique ambushed a military-escorted convoy ferrying food for refugees, killing 38 soldiers and seven civilians, witnesses said Tuesday.

The rebels, apparently disguised as government troops, mounted the attack with bazookas and automatic weapons shortly after daybreak last Friday in northwest Mozambique near the border with Malawi.

"You saw this big fireball and bodies flying all over," said a European businessman traveling in the convoy, bound for camps in Malawi harboring Mozambican refugees. The witness was unhurt. He spoke in an interview in Harare on condition of anonymity.

The semi-official Mozambique news agency AIM reported from Maputo, the Mozambican capital, that 19 people were killed, most of them soldiers, and nine seriously injured. It said the gunmen wore red berets, part of the uniform of government troops.

The convoy of cars, pickup trucks and 20 trucks loaded with grain was ambushed about 10 miles north of Moatize, a coal mining town in Tete province.

The vehicles were traveling on the so-called Tete Corridor, a highway winding through northwest Mozambique and linking Malawi and Zimbabwe. About 40 soldiers rode shotgun in the lead on a flatbed truck.

Most of the army deaths came when about 25 gunmen, believed to be guerrillas of the Mozambique National Resistance, fired on the lead truck, the businessman said.

Among the civilian dead were a man and his infant son returning from a funeral, the witness said.

"It all took about five minutes," he said. "... The Mozambique soldiers were completely disorganized. ... It was panic, everyone trying to get away and everyone for himself."

The convoy was part of an operation to move about 32,000 tons of grain from the Rome-based World Food Program to some of the 850,000 Mozambican refugees in Malawi. The refugees fled famine and a civil war that began in 1977, two years after independence from Portugal.

A cease-fire was signed in December, but the leftist government of President Joaquim Chissano has reported violations by the rebels.

The war has killed hundreds of thousands and left Mozambique desperately poor. Per capita income is about $200 a year and almost half of the 15 million people in the southeast African nation require food assistance.

50 Legal Notices

TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS AND PARTIES:

You are hereby notified of the opportunity for written public comment concerning the Construction Permit Application No. C-19119 by Conoco Inc., to modify a natural gas compressor station near Sterling City, Sterling County, Texas. The station is located in Section 47, Block 7, H & TC RR Co. Survey, 5 miles south of the dead end of County Highway 2600 on A.A. Sugg's Ranch. The facility proposes to emit the following air contaminants: nitrogen oxides, carbon monoxide, and volatile organic compounds.

A copy of all materials submitted by the applicant is available for public inspection at the Texas Air Control Board Region 6 Office at 1901 East 37th Street, Suite 101, Odessa, Texas 79762, telephone (915)367-3871 and at the Texas Air Control Board, 6330 Highway 290 East, Austin, Texas 78723. All interested persons may inspect these materials and submit written comments to the Executive Director of the Texas Air Control Board. Any person who may be affected by emissions of air contaminants from the proposed facility may request a contested case hearing from the Board on the construction permit application pursuant to Section 3.271 (c) of the Texas Clean Air Act. All comments and hearing requests must be received in writing by March 15, 1991. All written comments submitted to the Executive Director shall be considered in determining whether to issue or not issue the permit. All comments will be made available for public inspection at the Texas Air Control Board offices in Austin.
