O.J. interest poll

Recent polls conducted nationally indicate Americans have grown weary of the events surrounding the O.J. Simpson pre-trial hearing. However, when the actual trial begins — as it is expected to within the next few days — do you think you will again find yourself interested in testimony and following the events as they unfold? Call Cityline's Community Pulse Poll at 560-2400, category 7655. If you think you will be interested in the trial, press 1. If you feel you will no longer find the story of interest, press 2. You also may leave a comment after you cast your vote. We ask that you leave your name, but that is an option. The poll will remain open until noon today. Results will be published in Wednesday's edition.

Major quake jolts Japan

7.2-magnitude-temblor death toll at 597, mounting

Trains are derailed as smoke billows from burning homes in Kobe, Japan, Tuesday after a 7.2-magnitude earthquate hit.

OSAKA, Japan — A powerful predawn earthquake slammed western Japan today, killing at least 439 people, injuring more than 1,300 and trapping hundreds more in the rubble of collapsed buildings.

The earthquake, with a preliminary magnitude of 7.2, devastated Kobe, a port city of 1.4 million people 280 miles west of Tokyo. The quake was barely felt in Tokyo.

National police reported 597 dead and 2,198 injured, and said 531 people were missing. The toll was expected to rise.

The quake knocked trains off their tracks, collapsed elevated highways, knocked down buildings and set off hundreds of fires. Thousands of buildings were damaged.

Kobe was a landscape of wreckage grand and small. Television showed a teen-age boy standing atop a mound of debris from his destroyed home, crying "Grandma, Grandma!" His father wandered nearby, dazed.

"I thought it was the end of the world," Minaru Takasu, 64, told the Asahi newspaper. "I'm happy to be alive."

Huge pillars of smoke rose into the sky over Kobe and could be seen from Osaka.

Egos of O.J.'s lawyers clash in public feud

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — O.J. Simpson's lawyers continued their high-profile feud Monday, with attorney F. Lee Bailey criticizing Robert Shapiro for a "public outburst" in which Shapiro compared his ex-friend to a snake.

■ SIMPSON UPDATE: Call Cityline, 560-2400, enter 6202

Meanwhile, opening statements in Simpson's murder trial were to begin Thursday.

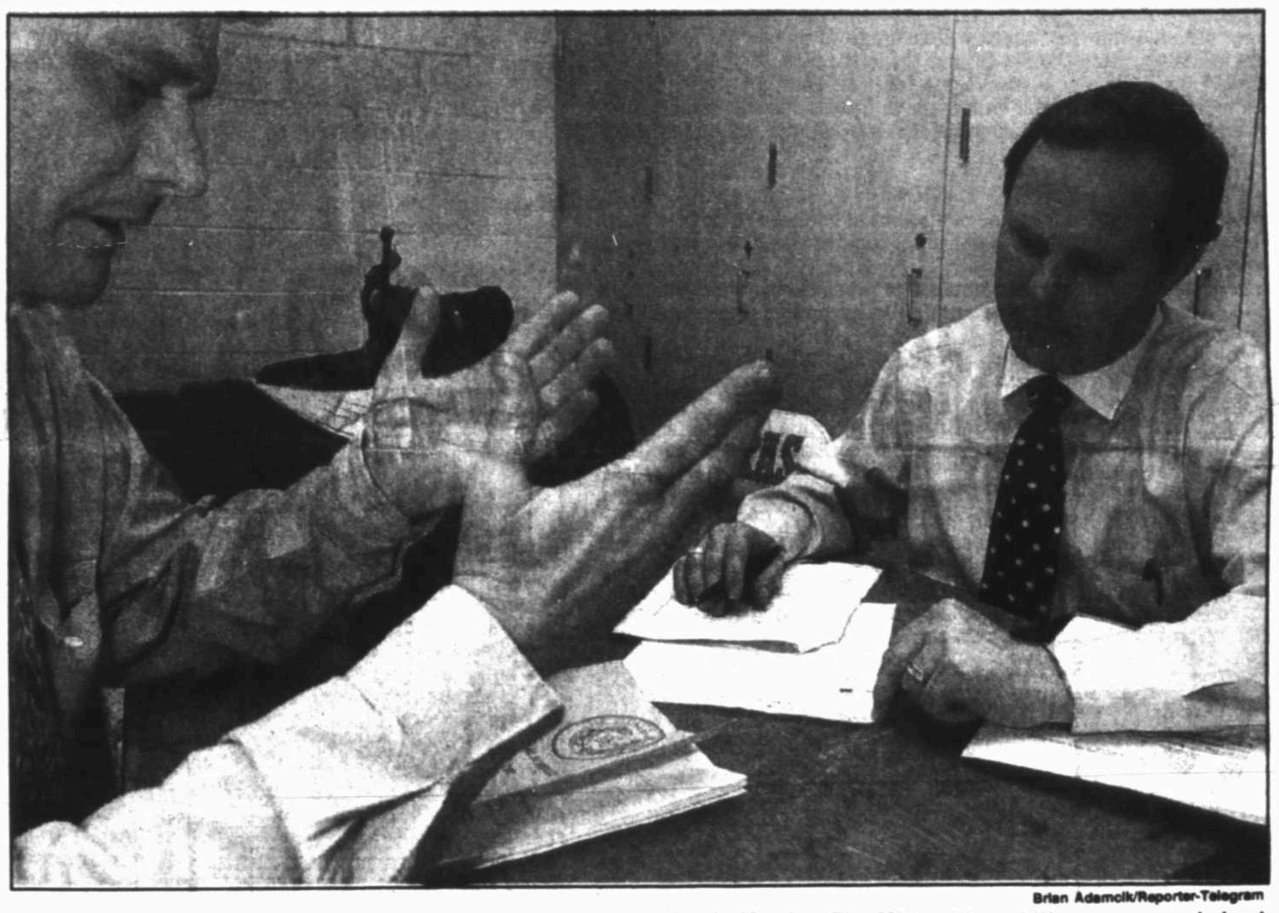

The feud erupted amid reports that Bailey and his associates had leaked information to the media for months in an effort to denigrate Shapiro's courtroom skills and enhance his own position.

Over the weekend, Shapiro told The New York Times and Los Angeles Times he is fed up with Bailey and wants him off the defense team.

"We can't have snakes in the bed trying to sleep with us," Shapiro told the Los Angeles Times.

Bailey condemned the characterization Monday.

Battle against high blood pressure up; stroke deaths rise

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Doctors may be losing the battle to control high blood pressure, as stroke deaths begin to rise after a 20-year decline, a study shows.

Dr. Russell Luepker of the University of Minnesota said the disturbing trend could be explained by a drop he found in the use of blood pressure medication. High blood pressure leads to strokes, heart attacks and other ailments.

Luepker tracked three groups of 4,000 to 7,000 people each from Minnesota's mostly white, middle-class population since 1980 and found that while the national campaign to control high blood pressure produced a dramatic drop in deaths during the past two decades, the curve appears to be turning upward.

The same thing is probably happening across the country, although federal

Court juvenile program draws state kudos

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff Writer

Less than two years since its inception, the city's Municipal Court's Juvenile Community Service Program has received kudos from the state for its contributions in fighting crime.

"If we can change just one person it makes you feel good," said Municipal Court Administrator Bill Schammel. "If you can guide him to become a productive member of society rather than going by the wayside, then the program is a success."

The program takes juvenile offenders and gives them the opportunity to perform community service for the city rather than pay a fine for their crime.

Attorney General Dan Morales recently presented the program with a certificate of appreciation in the AG's Criminal Justice Awards Program. The program recognizes various groups across Texas for significant contributions in the fight against crime.

"The city of Midland Community Service Program exemplifies one of the best combination of educators, community leaders and law-enforcement officials working together to help our children," Morales said in presenting the award.

The youths are "hand-picked" for the program by Municipal Judges Sharon Ryan and Robin Smith.

Misdemeanor offenses such as traffic offenses, minor in possession of alcohol and thefts under $20 are among the most common for the juveniles who appear in the municipal court.

Normally, a fine is assessed for

High won't escape mid-50s

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a high in the lower to mid-50s and north to northwest winds at 10-15 mph. Tonight should have increasing cloudiness with a 30 percent chance of rain and a low in the upper 20s to near 30, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Wednesday should be mostly cloudy with a 30 percent chance of rain and a high in the mid-40s.

After an overnight low of 48, Monday's high reached 76, compared to the record high for that date of 79 set in 1971. The record low was 15 set in 1972.

STATE

Mild temperatures accompanied clouds and wind in Texas on Monday, with more of the same expected during the next few days.

There were wind advisories for the western one-third of North Texas. Highs ranged from the mid 60s to low 70s.

In West Texas, middle and high level cloudiness increased Monday. Temperatures generally were in the 50s and 60s.

In South Texas, low level cloudiness prevailed. Winds were gentle. Temperatures ranged from the mid-50s to mid-60s.

Today, skies will be partly cloudy in the western area of North Texas. The central and eastern areas will be under mostly cloudy skies with a chance of thunderstorms. Highs will range from the low 60s to near 70. Lows will range from the low to mid-30s to the mid- to upper 40s.

West Texas, Oklahoma Panhandle forecast calls for partly cloudy skies today. It will be cooler with highs in the 40s over the Panhandles, Northern South Plains and mountains. Temperatures will be in the 50s and 60s elsewhere.

NATION

Blowing snow spread from the mountains of northern Arizona to North Dakota on Monday, and the Northeast got another taste of unseasonably balmy temperatures.

Heavy snow and high wind combined to produce near white-out conditions across parts of the Intermountain region through the central Rockies to the northern Plains.

In the high country of northern Arizona, Flagstaff collected 4 inches of snow by midday. To the north in Utah, Salt Lake City got 2 to 5 inches and more than a foot fell in the nearby mountains.

Casper, Wyo., reported near-zero visibility with 4 inches of snow on the ground, with the same conditions and accumulation at Williston, N.D. Eastern Montana got 4 to 8 inches.

Up to 6 inches of snow fell on the Nebraska Panhandle, closing the few schools not already shuttered for the Martin Luther King Day holiday. During the weekend, the state had temperatures in the 60s.

Freezing drizzle during the night iced highways and brought down some power lines in central South Dakota.

Up to a foot of snow was possible by morning at higher elevations of Utah, Wyoming, Colorado and western Montana.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

STROKE: Doctors may lose control battle

(From 1A)

figures, which are not as detailed as Luepker's, have not shown the trend as clearly.

"The national trend is behind ours, and now they're beginning to catch up," Luepker said Sunday at the American Heart Association's annual meeting for science reporters.

The decline in the use of blood pressure medication probably reflects two things, Luepker said. One is that controlling blood pressure is no longer at the top of the national health agenda, as it was for much of the past 20 years. The second is that the price of blood pressure drugs has shot up dramatically.

Some of the newest drugs cost as much as $1.50 per pill, which must be taken once or twice a day. Patients paid only 1½ cents per pill for older drugs.

Many factors affect the nation's heart disease death rates, such as diet and exercise. But Luepker looked at death rates from strokes, which are less affected by those other factors and directly related to high blood pressure.

He found that the decline in stroke-related deaths had leveled off and appeared to be on the rise. Luepker plans another survey this year to assess that rise.

Among men, the stroke death rate dropped from about 100 per 100,000 people in the mid-1970s to about 40 in the mid-1980s, where it leveled off, Luepker said. Among women, the death rate was about 60 per 100,000 in the mid-1970s, and it fell to fewer than 30 in the mid-'80s.

The campaign to encourage Americans to know their blood pressure and seek treatment if it is high began in 1973. But it was gradually overshadowed in the 1980s by a campaign to persuade Americans to lower their cholesterol.

Many doctors may have been less careful about assessing and treating patients for high blood pressure because of a "feeling we'd done very well with it, and there was nothing to worry about any more," Luepker said.

Dr. Sidney Smith Jr., president-elect of the American Heart Association, agreed with Luepker's assessment. "I see a disturbing trend toward forgetting about hypertension, and we can't do it," he said.

A blood pressure of 120 over 80 is considered normal. In the United States, high blood pressure is generally defined as anything more than 140 over 90, Luepker said.

EGOS: O.J.'s lawyers clash in public feud

(From 1A)

"Mr. Bailey has supported Mr. Shapiro in every way," said a statement issued by his office in Boston.

"This case is not about Mr. Shapiro or Mr. Bailey," the statement said. "It's about O.J. Simpson, an innocent and wrongly accused man who can hardly feel well served on the eve of trial by this public outburst."

The statement didn't say if Bailey was still on the case.

The bickering not only comes day before opening statements but on the eve of a crucial ruling by Superior Court Judge Lance Ito on whether to allow domestic violence evidence during the trial.

Ito has said he would rule Tuesday or Wednesday on whether evidence that Simpson beat his wife can be presented at trial.

Simpson is charged with the June 12 slayings of his ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman.

Legal analysts said that while the dispute may distract the lawyers at a critical time, it likely will cause little or no damage to Simpson's overall defense because Johnnie Cochran Jr. is expected to handle most of the immediate courtroom work.

"I certainly believe that Johnnie Cochran, after 30-some-odd years in the business, is able to surmount this and has enough of his case prepared that it won't hurt them," said Southwestern University law professor Robert Pugsley.

There had been reports of internal tension within the defense camp for weeks before Shapiro confirmed them in the weekend newspaper interviews.

His secretary said Monday he was busy with the case and wasn't giving any more interviews. Cochran did not return numerous phone messages left at his office.

Bailey and Shapiro had been close friends for years, and it was Shapiro who brought Bailey onto the Simpson defense team. Shapiro had often described Bailey as his mentor, and he named Bailey godfather of his eldest son.

KUDOS: Juvenile program draws praise

(From 1A)

the offenders. Through this program, the youth is given the option of "working off that fine."

Smith said he "kicked around the idea for a few years" before coming up with the program. In 1991, state law changed, giving the municipal court more jurisdiction over juveniles.

"We saw more of a problem with them paying the fines," he said.

On Monday, the 41st offender was signed onto the program, which began in June 1993. The 15-year-old girl was given a fine of $230 for a disorderly conduct by language offense. She cursed at a teacher, according to the offense report.

She'll have to work 30 hours with a city department to "pay out" her fine. Her work is valued at $6.25 an hour, Schammel said.

But, not every juvenile is eligible for the program.

Schammel said the judges look at the candidate in the courtroom and decide who is selected for the program by the youth's need and demeanor. Juveniles between 10-16 are eligible for the program.

"We select the youths for the program for the benefit of the kid rather than just having the parent pay the fine," said Smith. "Often the parent pays and the child simply walks away."

"This makes the juvenile pay for the crimes," Smith added.

"Rather than having the parent pay, this way, the juvenile learns and has to pay for what he has done," Ms. Ryan said. "We have a lot more options available to give these kids second chances."

"We want the children to work this out rather than causing a financial burden on their families. This gives kids a way to work it out ... plus, providing a positive role model for the youth. Maybe both parents work and there is no one at home," Schammel said.

The offenders can work on weekends, and in the summer they can work all day, Schammel said. The youths have 90 days to complete their service.

So far, Schammel said, more than 1,300 hours of service to the city departments have been applied by the juveniles in the program in departments such as fire, animal control, parks, garage and public works.

The juveniles work at any job the supervisor sees fit, Schammel said.

"They are under the wing of someone who oversees them and is appreciative of a job well-done ... the departments are pleased with the work and it frees them up to do other tasks," Schammel said.

To date, 80 percent of the juveniles who have started the program have completed it, Schammel said.

"If they go in with the right attitude this can be very beneficial," the administrator said.

The greatest success story of the program involves the first youth who was selected to participate, he said.

"He went in with a great attitude and the Fire Department had to tell him to stop coming because he was done," Schammel said. "Now, he wants to be a firefighter."

"There was a big difference in that very first one. He was inspired by the Fire Department ... it changed his whole attitude," Ms. Ryan said.

Through the program, the youths are responsible for setting up their interview with the city department supervisor as well as being responsible for their own transportation to and from the job as well as their own meals while on the job, Schammel said.

"It requires discipline from the juvenile to get the work done and it helps the city," Ms. Ryan said.

TUNES: Midlander provides entertainment

humor."

Grubb — who has worked with musicians from Roy Orbison to Tony Bennett to Garth Brooks — said being in charge of inauguration entertainment was an honor.

"I am very proud to do it for myself, my friends and George," he said.

Grubb isn't the only Midlander with a part in the inauguration celebration. Don Evans, president and chief executive officer of Tom Brown Inc., is the inauguration planning committee chairman.

"We're all working as a team to make this thing come off and make George W. proud," Grubb said. "There's a big Midland coalition here."

Grubb — a former oilman — admits that his friendship with Bush and Evans played a part in securing the job. But, he added, Bush and Evans are astute businessmen who would only hire someone more than capable.

And the feelings are likewise. "I'm doing it from the heart and also from a sense of business," Grubb said.

Grubb's road to success in the highly competitive world of music began in 1983 when he formed Wemus Entertainment in Midland.

"The oil business was bad ... so I went back to my roots in the music business," said the former guitarist.

He started by booking concerts in the Midland-Odessa area, graduating to managing bands and setting up larger engagements.

"It really started to take off," he said. The company expanded and, in addition to Midland, now has offices in Dallas and Nashville, Tenn.

Grubb's expertise also is responsible for entertainment at three inauguration balls tonight.

The balls will bring to an end the two-day inauguration celebration. At noon today, Bush will be sworn in as governor on the south steps of the Capitol Building. A barbecue and parade — which will include Midland's two high school bands together — will follow.

Grubb said he sees the new Texas leadership as indicative of things to come.

"It's a whole new fresh outlook," he said. "He (Bush) is a very conscientious guy. He's really geared into this and he's doing it from his heart and is very capable."

QUAKE: Strong temblor rocks western Japan

(From 1A)

The shaking lasted about 20 seconds. The jolt was strong enough to twist doorframes, making it difficult to escape from buildings.

More than four hours after the quake, fires burned out of control in Kobe, darkening the skies over the city with a thick cloud of smoke. One fire appeared to cover at least six city blocks in a residential area.

The quake was also felt strongly in Osaka, Japan's second-largest city — 15 east of Kobe — but the most widespread damage was in and around Kobe.

The western city of Ashiya, a posh residential area between Kobe and Osaka, was reportedly devastated. Japan's national television, NHK, said up to 200 people were believed buried in rubble there.

Deaths also were reported on Awaji Island, closest to the epicenter.

The quake, which struck at 5:46 a.m. (2:46 p.m. CST Monday), was centered 12½ miles under Awaji in the Inland Sea, the Central Meteorological Agency said. Part of the quake's destructive power was due to the shallowness of its epicenter, quake watchers said.

Many people were trapped in their homes as the quake tore down buildings just before dawn. But roads and trains were less full than they would have been at a later hour.

"If the earthquake had occured a couple of hours later, it would have been a massive, chaotic disaster," said Yoshiaki Kawata of Kyoto University's Disaster Research Institute.

Ben Deeley, a U.S. businessman from the Philadelphia area who was in Kobe during the quake, told the Cable News Network that the television in the room where he was staying flew towards his bed, which moved about four feet.

"The building next to ours fell down on top of a car. ... The whole house must have picked up and moved about five feet," he said.

Outside, he said, it was pitch black.

"All of us were outside, some with clothes, some without clothes, some with blankets," he said. "There were no sirens at all. No emergency sirens, nothing. It was very eerie."

Japan is one of the world's most seismically active areas, but this quake's destructiveness shocked even Japanese rescue officials.

"I've never felt such a large earthquake before," said Takeshi Sakamoto, head of rescue operations on Awaji Island.

Sections of several elevated highways collapsed, including the Hanshin Highway, the major link between Osaka and Kobe. At the newly opened Kansai International Airport in Osaka Bay, walkways broke.

Telephone service was disrupted, and calls to Kobe and Osaka only yielded recordings saying they could not be connected. Within Kobe, local lines were dead, leaving many residents unable to report fires and summon help.

More than a dozen aftershocks rattled the area in the hours following the quake. More aftershocks were expected, adding to fire danger from broken gas mains.

"I couldn't control my legs because of the shaking. I've never felt anything like it," a middle-aged man told Japanese TV.

The Cabinet was to hold an emergency meeting to discuss disaster measures. Defense Agency chief Tokuichiro Tamazawa said troops were being mobilized and dispatched to the quake zone.

Stock trading was suspended for the morning on the exchange in Osaka, about 22 miles east of Kobe. The Tokyo stock market was down Tuesday in light trading as investors waited to see the quake's effects.

A quake of magnitude 7 can cause widespread, heavy damage. No warning was issued for tsunami, or tidal waves caused by earthquakes. Tsunami are often generated by quakes in open water in the Pacific Ocean, but this one was centered in the Inland Sea, which is almost completely surrounded by land.

The country has been shaken by a series of strong quakes since Dec. 28, when a quake with a magnitude of 7.5 jolted northern Japan. In Tokyo, where normally about three dozen quakes a year can be felt, 10 shocks were felt in the first weeks of the new year alone.

Several active faults run through the Kobe region, which was hit by a magnitude 6.1 quake in 1916 that caused great damage.

ROOTS: Midlander to move in

(From 1A)

Bush's description of herself —"are really excited and a little afraid ... but they'll do great," she said.

On Monday, Mrs. Bush made her first public appearance since the move. She hosted several Texas writers reading from their works at the University of Texas' Harry Ransom Humanities Research Center.

"Books have always been an important part of our lives. ... The last time I was in Austin, I worked as a teacher and librarian," she said.

Mrs. Bush worked in public education in Dallas, Houston and Austin from 1968 to 1977.

As first lady of Texas, Mrs. Bush said she plans to showcase Texas writers and/or children's issues.

For now though, Mrs. Bush said she is excited about her husband — who she met and married in Midland in 1977 — taking the oath of office."I am very proud of George. ... It (the inauguration) will be a great family time."

Mrs. Bush's mother, Jenna Welch, will attend the festivities. Mrs. Bush said she was saddened that her father, Harold Welch, isn't well and would not be able to come. The Welches reside in Midland.

Russian attack in Grozny stalls; prime minister urges resolution

GROZNY, Russia (AP) — With its offensive in Chechnya stalling, Russia on Monday called for immediate peace talks to end a secessionist rebellion it said threatens the nation's security and well-being.

"The future of Russia, our future, depends on resolving the crisis in Chechnya," Prime Minister Viktor Chernomyrdin said Monday night in a 15-minute address on national television.

He called for talks "with all interested parties and forces" and a simultaneous cease-fire.

Both sides have appealed for negotiations before, but Chernomyrdin's speech — which did not impose the usual Russian conditions that the Chechens disarm — was one of Moscow's strongest statements yet.

The prime minister, saying he was speaking for President Boris Yeltsin, expressed "profound grief and condolences" to relatives of the dead. He repeated Russia's insistence on new elections to replace Chechen President Dzhokhar Dudayev, who has led the independence drive.

Thousands are believed to have been killed since Dec. 11, when Moscow sent troops into Chechnya, a mostly Muslim republic of 1.2 million people in southern Russia's Caucasus Mountains.

Russia says fewer than 400 of its soldiers have been killed. But the ITAR-Tass news agency, quoting North Ossetian Medical Services, reported that the city Mortuary in Mozdok, North Ossetia, had about 800 bodies of Russian soldiers.

Yeltsin earlier this month put Chernomyrdin in charge of resolving the Chechnya conflict, and the prime minister's TV appearance indicated he may be assuming a larger role.

In the early weeks of the conflict, Chernomyrdin remained largely uninvolved, and therefore relatively unblemished while the military suffered humiliating defeats. Yeltsin has kept a low profile.

The Russian ground assault on Grozny has turned the city into a daily meat grinder that consumes bodies, buildings and weapons.

On Monday, the Russian campaign faltered again. Chechen fighters claimed to have pushed the Russians back and taken part of the railway station. Heavy machine-gun and rifle fire was heard in the direction of the station, but there was no way to confirm the claim.

For some civilians, a lull in shelling was reason to smile. "At least we got to sleep last night," an elderly woman on a street corner said.

But on Monday morning, the routine resumed: Russian artillery picking up after 10 a.m. and regular air attacks before lunch. Chechen fighters change shifts twice a day, heading home for meals and rest.

New convoys of Russian infantry moved toward Grozny and Russian helicopter gunships were operating outside the city in larger numbers than before.

Chernomyrdin defended the army in his address, saying "the Russian soldier is doing his duty honorably."

The prime minister called for a moratorium on movement of troops and equipment, a halt of artillery and other heavy weaponry, the creation of safe zones for handing in weapons and guarantee delivery of relief aid to civilians.

He also insisted the war would not sink Moscow's economic reforms. Parliament has discussed amending the 1995 budget to account for the war's financial cost, which Chernomyrdin put at about $1.3 billion.

Russia's army — one of the world's largest and most powerful — has failed to defeat a few hundred lightly armed Chechen rebels. Most of the Russian infantry is made up of young, poorly trained conscripts who lack motivation. Paratroopers and other elite troops also have been beaten back by the rebels.

The Chechens, many of them skilled fighters, are motivated by their fight for independence against their traditional enemy.

The Russian government warned of a possible epidemic caused by the many Russian corpses on the streets of Grozny, and senior officials flew to Chechnya on Monday to address the problem. But the temperature was below freezing, and Chechens said there was no immediate danger of disease.

Grozny's fall would allow Russia to install a provisional government but would not give it firm control over Chechnya.

Mexico peace talks resume; disputes rife

N.Y. Times News Service

TUXTLA GUTIERREZ, Mexico — Peasant rebel leaders met Sunday with representatives of President Ernesto Zedillo Ponce de Leon for the first formal negotiations in almost a year to end the uprising in southern Mexico.

Despite a dramatic air to the encounter, which was held at an undisclosed location in the Lacandon rain forest and announced in the outlying city of San Cristobal de las Casas only as it got under way, hopes for peace in the state of Chiapas were tempered by political and land conflicts that have deepened even as the threat of new fighting has waned.

Although the demands of the rebels range from economic support for poor farmers to the replacement of Zedillo's administration by a transitional regime, they said in a statement that the talks would focus only on "measures to defuse the hostile climate and distance the danger of armed clashes between the two armies."

In separate statements issued as the talks began, both the rebel Zapatista National Liberation Army and the government, which was represented by a three-person delegation headed by the interior minister, Esteban Moctezuma, pledged good faith. As of Sunday evening, however, they had released no further details on their discussions.

In the five months since elections that many hoped would ease tensions in the state, its politics have become sharply more polarized.

While Zapatistas have backed away from their threats to break a cease-fire that has held for the last year, the prospects for a lasting peace have appeared to grow steadily more remote.

The paradox of Chiapas remains that while support for the insurgents has waned elsewhere in Mexico, the tensions fed by their rebellion have spread steadily out from the rebels' strongholds in the Lacandon rain forest.

The principal legacy of the August vote may in fact be that the forces on either side of the political divide are now more organized and militant than ever. Peasant groups backed by the Zapatista National Liberation Army and the opposition Democratic Revolutionary Party are on the left, with big landholders and the governing Institutional Revolutionary Party on the right.

Peasants who have seized tens of thousands of acres of land are digging in on their new holdings and vowing not to give up.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, JANUARY 17, 1995

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Insurance coverage and solid investments receive new attention now. Do not underwrite any big ventures. Spring will find you traveling for both business and pleasure. A chance meeting could lead to a beneficial career change. Refuse to be influenced by malcontents at work.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: comic Jim Carrey, boxing legend Muhammad Ali, puppeteer Shari Lewis, actor James Earl Jones.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A professional alliance will be strengthened by a bond of genuine affection. Welcome the assistance and suggestions of those who have been at your side through thick and thin.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Taking greater interest in your community brings you new social contacts. Harness your vivid imagination to practical endeavors. Tackle difficult tasks with gusto, working alone when possible.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Heed your own instincts over the advice of your friends. You can analyze trends better than almost anyone! Discuss topics of national interest with people who are open-minded. Give-and-take is vital in romance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A candid exchange of views could be beneficial all around. Cultivate people who can be a source of inside information. A friendly approach helps you win co-workers over to your side. Do more favors.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You sometimes permit yourself liberties that many other people would not take. Be careful; even the appearance of impropriety could hurt your career. Loyal friends or trusted associates boost your spirits this evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The paperwork could increase now. You make the decisions while others carry out the boring details. Use charm, not ultimatums, to secure someone's assistance. Stay steady and calm with those who depend on you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Put your best foot forward in a job situation. Speaking out forcefully may take others by surprise. Your clear overview of a business get-up gives you a different perspective on a complicated business matter.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Behind-the-scenes moves will help you gain power. Influential people respond in a favorable way to your persuasive manner. A pet plan gets the green light. Something beautiful could happen tonight. Be appreciative.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Contentment can be found in intellectual pursuits. Read a thought-provoking book or take a class in the arts. A romantic strategy will work well tonight. Go slow on making promises. Your feelings could change.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You are under a lot of pressure to make a far-reaching financial decision. Err on the conservative side. Your feelings could betray you unless you have learned to master them. Curb your temper!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Obtaining other people's views will help you form your own. A rousing debate provides a fine education. Refuse to commit yourself to a major loan or purchase until you have had more time to study the situation.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Do everything you can to convince your associates of the undesirability of acting complacent or overconfident. Sudden changes are possible. Do not cloister yourself away from the public. Kick off your plans with style.

The bidding:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
1♠	Pass	2NT	Pass
3◇	Pass	3♠	Pass
4♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♣

When both partners have balanced hands, no trump is a logical contract to play. If one hand is highly distributional, a suit contract is often a better spot even if an eight-card major-suit fit does not exist.

Note North's preference to three spades with a doubleton. Having already shown a balanced hand, that probably lacked three-card support for South's major, there was no reason to rebid no trump, especially since aces are normally of more use at a suit contract. So North made the waiting bid of three spades, to see what would ensue. South's raise to game ended the auction. After a club lead, possible from East's holding, three no trump might well fail, but four spades required no more than normal breaks in spades and diamonds.

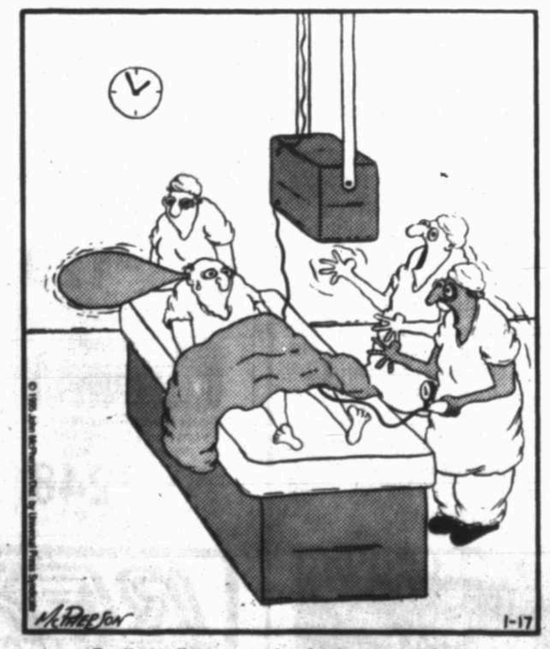

West led the king of clubs, taken in dummy with the ace, and the jack of spades was played in an effort to tempt East to cover. When East followed low, however, declarer spurned the finesse in favor of cashing the ace and king, in an effort to drop her majesty. When the queen did not appear, declarer abandoned trumps in favor of setting up the diamond suit.

A diamond to the ace and a diamond back fetched the king from East, and declarer was in control. The diamond suit was established and, even if East gave West a ruff, the best the defenders could do was to take two trumps and a diamond. East tried valiantly by forcing declarer to ruff a club. Another trump lead now by South would have been fatal, but South simply started running red-suit winners, allowing West to score both trumps at leisure, but no more.

Britain's royal peep show moves to Parker Bowles' four-poster bed

LONDON — The royal peep-show moved to Camilla Parker Bowles' bedroom Monday with publication of photos of her four-poster bed and a snapshot of her in a bikini.

Mrs. Parker Bowles, intimate friend of Prince Charles, issued a statement with her estranged husband, Andrew, accusing The Sun of publishing stolen pictures.

The statement said the tabloid published photos, "copies of which have either been purloined, without our consent or knowledge, from a family album at our home or which have been taken inside our home, presumably in our absence."

The statement, issued through the Parker Bowles' lawyers, did not threaten legal action.

Mrs. Parker Bowles, 47, announced last week that she is divorcing, sparking speculation that Charles, 46, may one day marry the woman reputed to be the love of his life.

Charles is separated from his wife, Princess Diana.

On its front page Monday, The Sun carried a large photo of Mrs. Parker Bowles in a black bikini walking on a beach. Beside it ran the headline, "Charles; nights of sex and wine in Camilla's 4-poster." The photograph was apparently taken some years ago.

Inside the newspaper were photos of the Parker Bowles home, Middlewick House: "The Bed: Camilla's stunning four-poster ..." and "Andrew's lonely room" with a single bed.

TUCSON, Ariz. — They came to celebrate a milestone for the wiseguy-turned-good-guy. And they didn't want to relive the past.

They came to celebrate wiseguy-turned-good-guy.

About 300 guests turned out Saturday night to celebrate the 90th birthday of Joseph "Joe Bananas" Bonanno, retired boss of New York's Bonanno crime family. He retired to Tucson in 1968.

"He's been a wonderful, intelligent, loving godfather to us all," said Russ Andaloro, an instructor at Pima Community College.

"He was whatever he was back in New York, but I've never known him as anything other than a good Tucsonan," said former local newscaster George Borozan.

Bonanno, who turns 90 on Wednesday, served nearly two years in prison for obstruction of justice and refusing to snitch on reputed leaders of New York's mob.

"With great profound humility, I thank you for coming to honor me and 90 years of traditional life," he said in a thick Sicilian accent.

NEW YORK — Carre Otis is philosophical about her reportedly abusive relationship with Mickey Rourke.

"Whenever there is suffering, there's growth," the Calvin Klein model said in the February issue of Mirabella. "Whether there was physical or verbal abuse, it's a question of how much I learned."

She refuses to blame Rourke — a boxer and actor — for the two-year hiatus she took from modeling at his behest.

"I will not blame my husband for demanding that I not work," she said. "I have to take responsibility for being the person who said, 'All right.'"

Abuse charges against Rourke were dismissed in December when Otis refused to testify against him. She had claimed that he slapped her, kicked her and knocked her down last July. Otis and Rourke were married in 1990.

LONDON — Andrew Lloyd Webber and Faye Dunaway waxed lyrical after settling a lawsuit over "Sunset Boulevard."

Andrew Lloyd Webbe,Faye Dunaway wax lyrical.

Lloyd Webber fired the actress in August before she had a chance to replace Glenn Close in the lead role of the Los Angeles production of "Sunset Boulevard." He said it was because Dunaway couldn't sing.

Dunaway sued for $6 million.

On Monday, the two announced they had reached a settlement. The amount wasn't disclosed, but Britain's Press Association placed it at less than 1 million pounds, or $1.56 million.

Dunaway said she was hurt by the firing because of her "admiration of Andrew Lloyd Webber's ability to put his finger on the pulse of the theater-going public. He has created memorable musical theater."

Lloyd Webber described Dunaway as an "extraordinary talent. I hope our paths cross one day in happier circumstances where my regard for her abilities can be shown more fruitfully."

"Sunset Boulevard," based on the 1950 film classic, relates the story of a forgotten silent film star trying to make a comeback.

Bush inauguration a day of promise!

When former Midland resident George W. Bush takes the oath of office today as only the second Republican governor of Texas since Reconstruction, he will be watched by thousands of Texans hoping that he will put the state back on a road to sound, conservative leadership.

Bush will be among friends in Austin today, as he and Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock take the oath of office at noon in a ceremony at the State Capitol. Numerous Midlanders will be present for the inaugural parade and ceremony, including 280 members of a band representing the combined bands of both Midland High School and Lee High School.

An air of excitement has hovered over Midland since the November gubernatorial election which hurtled Bush into the Governor's Mansion, ousting Democratic one-term Gov. Ann Richards. While there's no question that Bush's victory was part and parcel of the conservative surge by voters felt across the nation, there's also little doubt that he wisely verbalized the concerns of average Texans during the campaign — specifically, the need to put control of education back in the hands of local school districts and resolve the school funding dilemma, strengthening the state's juvenile law, getting tough on crime overall, and seeking to reform the welfare system.

Of course, it's impossible for any governor to accomplish such major tasks by himself. It will be particularly difficult in Bush's situation since the Texas governor is, essentially, a figurehead with little real power. Bush will need the help of others, and particularly the man sworn into office today along with him — Bob Bullock. A knowledgeable and efficient state official for decades, Bullock holds the power to influence legislators and reshape the state bureaucracy. If Bush gains Bullock's confidence and the two establish a good working relationship, much of what the voters of Texas indicated they want will be accomplished. That's the result we would like to see because it would benefit all Texans.

It's a great day for George W. Bush, but it's also a great day of promise for all Texans. We look forward to the future of Texas!

Sale of cluster bombs should not be approved

An American company wants to sell cluster bombs, which do not discriminate between destroying tanks and killing innocent civilians, to Turkey. Given Ankara's punishing tactics in its war against Kurdish rebels in southeastern Turkey, these bombs are likely to be misused. The State Department should refuse to license the sale.

Turkey denies it wants to use the bombs in its war on the Kurdistan Worker's Party, or PKK. As a NATO ally it would normally be entitled to receive such deadly exports, which are used in air strikes against tanks. Yet Turkey is in no imminent danger of tank attack from anyone.

Cluster bombs disperse 202 smaller bomblets in midair that in turn explode into hundreds of fragments with a force that can penetrate light armor 50 feet away and maim a person up to 500 feet from impact. The bomblets are unreliable, and unexploded duds can lie undetected beneath shifting sands or under water, ready to detonate if disturbed. Duds dropped by the U.S. caused numerous casualties among allied troops and Kuwaiti civilians after the Persian Gulf war.

Turkey's armed forces have used U.S. cluster bombs already in its arsenal against Kurdish rebel strongholds across the border in Iraq. They have also used U.S.-supplied aircraft in the war. What is to keep them from using new cluster bombs?

In prosecuting the war and in arbitrarily arresting and mistreating its Kurdish citizens, Turkey has engaged in a consistent pattern of human rights abuses. Under U.S. law that is grounds for suspending all military aid and arms sales. At the least it warrants disapproval of the cluster bomb sales.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Jan. 17, the 17th day of 1995. There are 348 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

Fifty years ago, on Jan. 17, 1945, Soviet and Polish forces liberated Warsaw from the Nazis during World War II.

On this date:

In 1562, French Protestants were recognized under the Edict of St. Germain.

In 1706, Benjamin Franklin was born in Boston.

In 1806, Thomas Jefferson's daughter, Martha, gave birth to James Madison Randolph, the first child born in the White House.

In 1893, Hawaii's monarchy was overthrown as a group of white businessmen and sugar planters forced Queen Liliuokalani to abdicate.

In 1893, the 19th president of the United States, Rutherford B. Hayes, died in Fremont, Ohio, at age 70.

In 1917, the United States paid Denmark $25 million dollars for the Virgin Islands.

In 1945, 50 years ago, Swedish diplomat Raoul Wallenberg, credited with saving tens of thousands of Jews from the Nazis, disappeared in Hungary while in Soviet custody.

It's time to put sacred cow out to pasture

WASHINGTON — Across the street and down the block, a languid construction gang is renovating the Department of Veterans Affairs. When finished, entrenched bureaucrats will have a magnificent view of the White House from Vermont Avenue at a cost of $43 million.

Safire

Nobody asks questions because any veterans' boondoggle has been "untouchable." The gun lobby, the abortion lobby and the welfare lobby all are opposed by powerful counterforces, but the veterans' lobby has no opposition — which is why it causes the most wasteful special-interest spending in Washington.

The bloated DVA employs a quarter-million people; half the males are non-veterans; 7,163 make more than $100,000 a year.

Spending shot up from $23 billion in 1980 to $37 billion now, even as the aging veterans' population declined from 31 to 26 million. The DVA's 54,000 hospital beds are 23 percent unfilled.

Even so, the Clinton DVA is spending $494 million building hospitals (not including the palace rehab on Vermont Avenue). When 21 surgeons in six hospitals performed no surgery in a recent year, nobody was laid off or transferred — despite an inspector general auditor's comment that "surgeons should be doing some surgery."

Ronald Reagan, supposed foe of big government, elevated the Veterans Administration to cabinet status. George Bush was no less obsequious to the special interest: "There is only one place for the veterans of America, in the Cabinet Room, at the table with the president." What other lobby gets such access?

When Ed Derwinski, Bush's veterans' secretary, dared to suggest that three under-used rural hospitals be opened for use by local poor whites, blacks and American Indians, the vets' lobby demanded his scalp.

"I was dumped," Derwinski tells me, "because Jim Baker panicked and thought he had a deal with the American Legion and VFW to get their support. But the rank and file didn't go for Bush anyway."

Who is Bill Clinton's man to counter the power of the veterans' lobby? Jesse Brown, a combat veteran, was president of the Disabled American Veterans; a lobby fox runs the henhouse. Brown tells me, "The private sector, motivated by profit, cannot meet the unique needs of veterans."

But nine out of 10 veterans disagree; 23 million have chosen private medicine over the lobby's government largesse.

Of the fewer than three million who turn to the DVA, less than half are cared for because they were wounded or fell ill while in service. The seriously disabled, in Lincoln's words, have "borne the battle"; they deserve the best care — and not the second-rate treatment now given because the lobby wants more socialized medicine so as to enlist more members.

Give the lobby this: Never have we had a more controlled experiment in the philosophy of government than in our treatment of veterans after World War II.

In providing free education to returning veterans, the government wisely took the voucher route; under the GI Bill, vet-students chose their own schools and the feds paid the bill.

Computers aren't always true to every Schmuck, Putz

Home computer sales are booming, but do most people really need them?

There are those who scoff that it's money wasted on a fad, the national craze to buy the latest high-tech gizmo, whether we need it or not.

Royko

They question how many people really need elaborate accounting programs or spreadsheets to balance their checkbooks and track their expenses. To be happy, must we have printouts of precisely how much we spend each year on coffee or toilet paper?

And when did we become so hungry for data that we're all supposed to be surfing the Internet? If there is so deep a craving for significant information, why do millions watch "Roseanne" or "Beavis and Butt-head"?

No, the skeptics say, most of those who go online just wander aimlessly, nameless blips passing in the night.

But a computer-loving reader believes he can provide a rebuttal to those who doubt the usefulness of having a lot of RAM and ROM flickering on your own monitor.

He gave me a folder stuffed with computer-generated data, and he asked this question: "Could you provide an exact count of every putz and schmuck in this country?"

I had to admit that I couldn't. And I doubted that anyone could.

He proudly said: "Well, thanks to my computer and an amazing software program that I bought over the counter, I can do it, and I did. It's all there in the data. Take a look."

An examination of his data proved him correct, sort of.

What he had was a listing of every person named Putz or Schmuck who is listed in a telephone directory.

"With this program," he said, "I can type in any name and it will give me everyone with that name in the United States who has a phone listing.

"After I got this program, I happened to hear someone at work say: 'Boy, there sure are a lot of schmucks and putzes running around.' So I decided to look it up and see how many there are."

It turns out there are 652 Putzes and 464 Schmucks scattered across the United States.

"You probably thought there were more Schmucks than Putzes," he said. "Most people do, but now we know that it isn't true."

Actually, I had never given it any thought. But I suppose it's worth knowing if the question ever comes up on a quiz show.

Of course, there are flaws in this data. They are only published phone listings. It's possible that a lot of Schmucks are unlisted. That would be understandable, because the word is often used in a derogatory way.

The dictionary says a schmuck is a person who is "clumsy or stupid; an oaf." (Incidentally, there are four people named Oaf with phone listings.)

But a co-worker who is knowledgeable about Yiddish words said schmuck has broader meaning. She explained:

"Strictly speaking, it is a male organ, but in popular usage, it has gone beyond that.

"A schmuck is someone's ex-husband or boyfriend who putzed around too much. A creep, a jerk. It can also be used to describe a stranger, as in: 'Hey, schmuck, ever heard of a turn signal?' Or a known person, as in: 'My husband, the schmuck, forgot to come home last night.'

"More recent derivations include schmuck head, schmuck face, schmuck breath and your royal schmuckness.

"But a putz is more of a harmless dolt, that goofy, awkward geek who's the same guy he was in the 3rd grade when everyone spit on him. Weenie, wimpy, wimpish, nerdy, doofy, goofy. It usually replaces someone's name, as in: 'Move it along, putz!'"

So I suppose that a person would be better off being a Putz than a Schmuck, although the proud Schmucks would probably disagree and self-effacing Putzes might not even care.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

Differences don't mean direction isn't right

"The devil," as a favorite American catch phrase has it, "is in the details." And so it may prove in the matter of implementing the Republicans' now-famous Contract With America.

Murchison

The contract itself is a splendid document, embodying principles to which only political scourpusses could object. But the details of implementation are proving downright diabolical.

1. On term limits, Speaker Newt Gingrich says he will vote against a six-year term such as Young Turks in his party are supporting.

2. How do we balance the budget through amendment — with a three-fifths super-majority necessary for tax increases, as under the Republican plan, or, as supposed "moderates" want, and has been our practice up to now, a simple majority?

3. On welfare, do we give it to the states through "block grants" or do we run it from Washington in a new way altogether — one that can supposedly be relied on to foster work and family formation? From Republicans, you can hear it both ways.

The massive media, or at least a good portion of it, would have us mop our brows at these developments. See! The Republicans can't even get their act together! This misses the point. We are talking, for the first time in 60 years, about getting the welfare problem under control, about limiting the terms of lawmakers, about balancing the budget. To disagree on means is far less inauspicious than disagreeing on ends.

Let's not interpret differences as showing that the direction isn't right to start with. That is the danger — that disagreement could be taken as signifying the collapse of the effort to improve life through limiting government.

Here's one middle-aged journalist's response to the disagreements that are arising now.

1. Term limits — What's wrong with 12 years for House members — the same as Senators have? Are House members inferior to senators? They, themselves, certainly don't think so. If not, it seems to me a wretchedly small thing whether the limit imposed on House members is 12 years.

The term-limits groups and some new House members who ran on the issue want a six-year limit. As far as I know, however, that's the only compelling argument for the change.

2. The budget super-majority — Requiring a three-fifths majority to raise taxes sounds to me like the essence of common sense. Again, what's wrong with it? Such a requirement would have saved George Bush's bacon in 1990 and probably secured his re-election. That should please the supposed "moderates."

A decision to raise taxes — which are penalties on hard work — should itself be hard work. Make things too easy on the tax-raisers, and you subvert the cause of whittling down government. No one wants to do that. At least, I hope no on does!

3. Welfare reform — Dadgummed if our middle-aged pundit really knows. The thing is, I don't think anyone else really knows, either. The desire is to hurt long-term beneficiaries in order to help them and to take care of those who have shown they can't look after themselves. How do you do it best and most effectively? Clearly in some way other than the present system, which stinks to high heaven, and which we can't afford anyway.

As an inveterate states-righter, I can see no good and much harm in ruling the states out of the conversation. If the states were given the power to use federal funding as they want, we would, of course, have divergent solutions. Some states might liberalize the requirements, but such states could become welfare refuges. Other states, by tightening the screws, could prosper.

I want to think about it. In any case, what a joyous dilemma!

DEAR ABBY

Pushing stroller isn't always walk in park

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am writing about your response to "Mildred From Minnesota," who wondered about using strollers with babies facing forward. Your response: "If the baby is facing its mother, the baby would have to ride backward. I would assume that babies, like adults, prefer to see where they are going — not where they have been."

Van Buren

Abby, before strollers came on the scene, we had prams and buggies with babies facing their mothers, but more important, with mothers facing their babies.

In my opinion, mothers facing their babies is more important than babies seeing where they are going. After witnessing a baby in a forward-facing stroller being strangled by the strap holding him in the stroller while his mother was totally unaware of the situation, I began observing stroller situations and talking to mothers. I found a frightening number of mothers who had experienced incidents with forward-facing strollers.

One mother did not know that her baby's foot was rubbing against one of the wheels until she walked around to the front of the stroller to pick up her baby, and saw his bloody foot! In still another incident, a baby was choking on a bonnet ribbon until an oncoming stranger alerted the mother.

Although manufacturers have vastly improved the safety of strollers, nothing is safer than a mother's constant view of her baby. Besides, do you really think the baby knows the difference between traveling forward or backward? I would think most babies would feel insecure seeing only strangers all the time rather than their own mother or father. — DEANNE DINGLEY, PORTLAND, ORE.

DEAR DEANNE: It's been a long time since I pushed a pram — and even longer since I rode in one — but perhaps the mothers who are currently pushing prams will write with a more current evaluation of prams. And by the way, we used to call them "baby buggies."

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, your advice carried the adage, "The squeaking wheel gets the grease."

Many years ago, prior to my retirement, a woman from an adjacent office came to me repeatedly, voicing her complaints about how unfairly she was being treated by her supervisors.

I asked her if she had discussed the matter with others in the office, to which she replied with a resounding "No!" I then told her that if she didn't speak up to her supervisors, they wouldn't know how she felt — and added, "Remember, the squeaking wheel gets the grease."

A few days later she came into my office with an odd expression on her face and said, "Well, I took your advice about the squeaking wheel . . ."

When I asked her how it turned out, she replied, "I got fired!"

I learned that he who cackles the loudest is the first to lose his head! Your advice certainly brought that back to me, and I was reminded that for every adage, there is another adage which contradicts it. — BETTY J. MURDOCK, TACOMA, WASH.

AT WIT'S END

When writing letter, make every word count

By Erma Bombeck

I was going to write my best friend a letter the other day, but I didn't have anything to say that was worth 32 cents.

Bombeck

When I wrote her in December, I didn't have anything worth 29 cents, so to justify my extravagance, I told her I was thinking about going on fertility drugs to get into the Guinness Book of World Records.

I'm not going to bash letter carriers for the increase or the service; I've got some of the nicest people you'd ever want to meet delivering my mail. But the U.S. Postal Service is becoming a bad joke. Example: If you want to declare a war, let the post office handle it. They may not stop it, but they'll sure slow it down.

I was reading the other day where it took the Pony Express eight to 10 days to deliver a letter from St. Joseph, Mo., to Sacramento, Calif. If it was an emergency, the riders could do it in seven days. The Pony Expresss lasted for only 18 months before it filed for Chapter XI.

Today, in the sophisticated world of automation, mass air-transit service and motor routes, we've been able to cut that time to five days from Phoenix to New York.

A month ago, 40,000 pieces of mail, including 43 invitations to President Clinton's inauguration, were found on the tarmac of a Blytheville, Ark., airport. I'm guessing that's where my invitation ended up.

I know these are isolated stories, but think of the impact on the child who mailed a Mother's Day card in May 1987, and it didn't arrive until 1993, with 7 cents postage due. By this time, he was probably out of the will.

Letter writing is fast becoming a rich man's game, like polo or baccarat. I talked with my friend the other day and said, "I could fly out and see you or I could write you a letter."

She said, "That's a lot of money. Why don't you just hop on a plane?"

But we've been friends for more than 40 years; she's worth it.

"Dear Marianne: By the time you receive this, Brooke Shields will be doing Depends commercials and possibly the Denver airport will be operational. I told you I let my hair grow out. I looked like an old Gidget, so I had it cut. However, I am letting it grow out again.

"How are the grandchildren? In nursery school? College? Married? Greeting people at Wal-Mart? I lose track of their ages.

"Write me soon. I'm not getting any younger, or postal rates any lower.

Nation honors Martin Luther King Jr.

By Janis L. Magin
Associated Press

ATLANTA — The nation remembered Martin Luther King Jr. on Monday amid a feud between his family and the National Park Service over who will preserve his memory and how.

At Ebenezer Baptist Church, where King was pastor, Dexter Scott King vowed to continue his father's work through economic opportunity, calling for a $10 billion investment in the black community.

"My father had a dream, I too have a dream," the 33-year-old said in a Martin Luther King Day address. "My father delivered to his generation political freedom. I would like to deliver to my generation economic freedom."

More than 400 people packed the church, next door to the Martin Luther King Center for Nonviolent Social Change and the crypt that holds the body of the civil rights leader, who would have been 66 on Sunday.

The park service wants to build a museum and visitors center near the King Center. King's widow, Coretta Scott King, and children want to create their own interactive museum.

The dispute prompted the family to halt park service tours of King's birthplace. The service now shepherds tours past the home and presents a slide show at its own facility about a block away. The sides are to meet Saturday and discuss the disagreement.

Retirees enjoy southern states best, study says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sun avens Florida and California are still the most popular states for retiring Americans, but both lost ground in the lucrative retiree market during the 1980s, according to a new study.

Meanwhile, North Carolina's star continued to rise, to fifth on the list of most popular states for retirees. And Virginia and Georgia climbed into the top 10 for the first time in 1990, reports Charles F. Longino, a professor at Wake Forest University and Bowman Gray School of Medicine in Winston-Salem, N.C. Most Americans stay put when they retire, Longino observed, with 84 percent of people age 55 and over saying they want to remain in their current homes.

But those who do relocate have become the focus of intense marketing campaigns, creating a "mailbox economy" in retirement communities that receive a monthly infusion of cash from pensions, investments and Social Security.

Becoming a retirement center can be a real economic boon for a state, he said, and the process tends to feed on itself. Once an area becomes known as a retirement center, services move in and it becomes more attractive to retirees — until it becomes too crowded or too old.

"California has really become, in the last decade, more of a sending state than a receiving state," Longino said in an interview. "The net balance has shifted."

Maine imposes cookie tax; Girl Scouts fight it

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — The state of Maine is trying to collect a few crumbs from the Girl Scouts, slapping a 6 percent "snack tax" on sales of Thin Mints, Trefoils, Samoas and Do-si-dos.

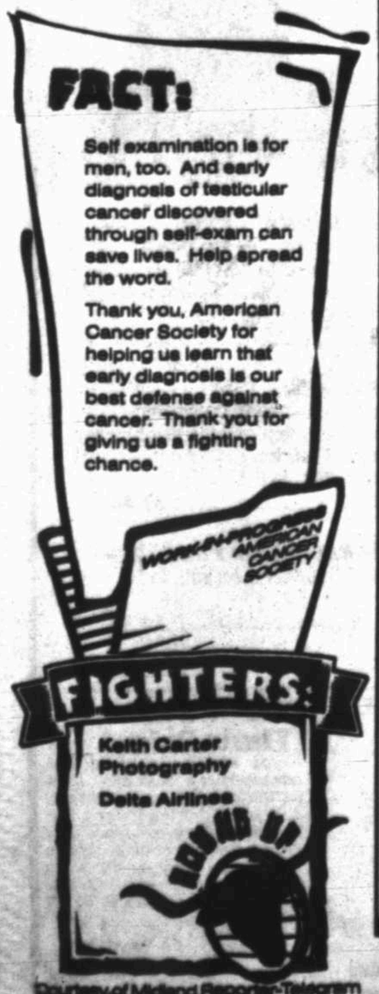

The Girl Scouts say it's a half-baked idea to tax a nonprofit group.

"We're just a bunch of girls trying to raise money for our organization and we don't need the tax people picking on us," said Julia Payne, 13, of Houlton.

The state imposed a snack tax in 1991 on cookies, chips and candy bars. Initially, the Bureau of Taxation wanted to tax Girl Scout cookies on the wholesale level but backed down when challenged and returned $100,000 to the group.

Now the state argues that the Girl Scouts must pay taxes at the retail level because they're running a major retail enterprise, more than just a "casual sale."

"A casual sale is hit-or-miss," state tax assessor John LaFaver said Sunday.

Voter league holds discussion

By Katherine Poteet
Staff Writer

Ongoing city projects, City Council/citizen relationships and the recent surge in new businesses in Midland were among topics at a League of Women Voters discussion of city government on Monday.

Council member Pat Schneider, who represents District 1, and Midland Assistant City Manager Glen Hackler were on hand at the discussion to explain their jobs and answer questions.

Ms. Schneider, who said the City Council is a "policy-making board," said that in addition to serving during council meetings, she and other members serve on many different committees.

"I am the council liaison to the airport committee," she said. "I have had a hand in working on the plans for the new air terminal."

She said representing the district where "everything seems to be going on lately," has taught her how to work with the public.

"It is very important that these neighborhoods where changes are taking place have a say in what is going on," she said. "In the past, the idea was that the City Council would just do what needed to be done, but that's not how it is now. I get many phone calls and attend many meetings. I want to know what people think.

"It has worked," she said, continuing. "Meetings between the developers and neighborhoods have worked. The developers realize now that they have to get the problems worked out with the public before they come to the Planning and Zoning committee."

Ms. Schneider said the main reason behind much of the development in her district, which includes the northern part of Loop 250, has been the combining of Midland and Odessa into one Metropolitian Statistical Area (MSA).

"All of a sudden, these businesses and restaurants are seeing that there are 225,000 in this area and that

Street closing

A large portion of Neely Avenue from McDonald to Midland Drive will be closed starting today for about two weeks, according to a police spokesman. The Midland Drive-Neely Avenue intersection will be reduced to one lane of traffic because city crews will be laying pipes, the spokesman said. He said Rusk Elementary School is directedly affected by the closing, and he advised parents to allow extra time for finding an alternate route.

Teacher dies

AUSTIN — University of Texas professor Susan Hadden's lifelong dream of seeing Cambodia's ancient ruins ended tragically.

Mrs. Hadden, a 15-year professor at UT's Lyndon Baines Johnson School of Public Affairs, was killed Sunday after gunmen opened fire on a van full of tourists at the Angkor Wat temple complex, 150 miles northwest of Phnom Penh, Cambodia.

Mrs. Hadden's husband, James Hadden Jr., was injured in the attack. He was being treated Monday at a hospital in Singapore, and it was unclear when he would return to Texas, according to a U.S. State Department official.

Colleagues and friends remembered Mrs. Hadden, 49, as a "true intellectual" and a professor who went above and beyond her responsibilities to assist students/3B

Blind eyes don't stop volunteer

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Nine years ago Darlene Brazell and her husband, Alvin, who suffered a heart condition, moved from Duncanville to retire in Midland. They wanted to be near their eldest daughter.

Four years ago, their daughter's family moved when her husband was transferred out of town.

"My advice to seniors is don't follow your children. You might be disappointed," Mrs. Brazell said.

But the Brazells didn't feel abandoned and alone. They had become acquainted and active in the community.

Many people around town know Mrs. Brazell, 62, from her volunteer work during the last seven years. And Brazell, 66, shares most of the volunteer time with his wife.

"He's my helper. He's my buddy. We're a team," she said.

Mrs. Brazell, blind since she was 3 years old, is sometimes accompanied by her faithful guide dog, Tera.

"Sometimes I turn on the stereo and let her stay home and listen to music," Mrs. Brazell said.

Mrs. Brazell admits that being blind sets some limitations on her volunteer work.

"You have to pick and choose what you do," she said.

But she's quick to point out that being

Lawyers seek to halt felon's death order

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Attorneys for Texas death row inmate Mario Marquez said the convicted killer was tortured by a father who abandoned him at the age of 12, forcing the mentally retarded youngster to cope alone on the tough streets of San Antonio.

Mentally retarded people like Marquez, 36, who faced execution after midnight, should not be put to death, his attorneys said.

But prosecutors contended the sixth-grade dropout knew what he was doing almost 11 years ago when he raped and strangled his estranged teen-age wife and her 14-year-old niece and should pay the ultimate price.

"He wasn't so mentally retarded he didn't know right from wrong," Edwin Springer, the lead prosecutor at Marquez's trial, said. "He's a very dangerous individual. I have no reservations. I have no doubts. He's quite capable of doing it again."

The Supreme Court, without comment and without recorded dissent, rejected Monday an emergency request and a formal appeal that sought a delay of the punishment while justices reviewed the question of putting to death people like Marquez, who has an IQ of about 65. The action cleared the way for the second execution of the year in Texas.

"The public in the country overwhelmingly does not want mentally retarded people to be executed," lawyer Robert McGlasson said. "We believe there is plenty of evidence now to show that evolution has come about."

At least four other convicted killers considered mentally retarded or claiming to be mentally retarded have been

Bill stalls emissions tests

AUSTIN (AP) — The state Senate voted unanimously Monday to give Texas drivers in high-pollution areas a three-month break from federally required automobile emissions testing.

The legislation, which now goes to the House for consideration, was touted as a test of support for the individual against big government by its sponsor, Sen. John Whitmire.

"The people of Texas want government off their back. That's what this vote is all about," said Whitmire, D-Houston.

"Yes, we're all for clean air. Yes, we're for some type of test. But not one that is onerous on the back of every Texan, whether he or she has an automobile that emits too much pollution or not," he said.

Whitmire, who is among Texas officials planning to meet Thursday in Washington about the program, said he would ask the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency for an even longer extension to give Congress time to reconsider the testing requirements.

He said California received a two-year moratorium on implementing the program.

King deserves better than marketing with Elvis touch

Ott

More rambling thoughts ...

— Let's begin with a bit of unfortunate news: It seems, according to published news reports, that heirs of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., have decided to step up their efforts to reap financial benefits from the memory of the slain civil rights leader.

— Some family members have even traveled to Graceland to learn marketing techniques.

— The selling of Martin Luther King with an Elvis touch. Please say it ain't so. The man deserves better.

— Do you somehow get the feeling that Jimmy Johnson, the former Dallas Cowboys coach with the big ego, is gloating right now?

— Best nickname for a city: The Big Apple.

— The world's population is divided into two groups: those who think computers are "really neat" and those who consider them man's worst nightmare.

— All right, be honest now: How many guys out there, especially those over the age of 40, got your first glimpse at the female body by sneaking glances at the lingerie section of the old Sears & Roebuck catalog?

— Pretty exciting, wasn't it?

— Most older women don't look very good with long straight hair that hangs down past their shoulders.

— When you see a movie like "Driving Miss Daisy," even if it is for the third or fourth time, it makes you realize that Hollywood can indeed produce a product that is both enjoyable and clean.

— It makes you wonder, as well, especially since these movies are often commercial successes, why Hollywood doesn't try it more often.

— Remember when corduroy pants were popular for men?

POLICE REPORTS

Death

ODESSA — Odessa police officials are investigating the death of a woman, whose body was found early Monday.

According to a police report, the body was found just after 7 a.m. in the 400 block of N. Washington St. Officials later identified the body as 39-year-old Karen La-Blanche, who also went under the name Roylene Cole.

Ms. La-Blanche was officially pronounced dead at 9:15 a.m. by the medical examiner investigator.

The body was sent to Lubbock for an autopsy.

Sunday - Burglary of a Building: William Scott reported $360 jewelry and various automobile parts taken from Britt Imports, 1004 S. Midkiff Road. He also reported $5,100 in damage done to the building.

Monday - Burglary of a Business: Curtis Foster reported a Browning 12-gauge shotgun and a Remmington 12-gauge shotgun taken from 707 Shell Drive at 3:37 a.m.

Vandalism: Paul Woodless reported the driver's side window of a vehicle broken out and obscenities shoe polished on the vehicle at 4606 Anetta Drive at 7:16 a.m.

Burglary of a Residence: Regina Cole reportd a washer and dryer taken from 1208 Cottonwood St. at 7:40 a.m.

Vandalism: Vandalism to a vehicle was reported at 4400 N. Holiday Hill Road at 8:36 a.m.

Vandalism: Tywla Clutter reported the front door broken with a rock at 1134 Wolfcamp Circle at 9:16 a.m.

Vandalism: Eastside Park, 2201 E. Cuthbert Ave. reported grafitti on two buildings at 9:02 a.m.

Anyone with information concerning these incidents should contact the police department at 685-7108 or Crime Stoppers at 694-TIPS.

BLIND: Woman doesn't let handicap slow her down

blind isn't a handicap.

"I just believe it's a real inconvenient disability," she said. "We can work around it if people give us a chance."

It hasn't stopped her from volunteering at the Midland Senior Center for the past seven years. She goes to the center on a regular basis for several hours one day a week and other times when needed.

"I answer the phone and take messages. He does copy machine work and we both help people who come in," said Mrs. Brazell, who uses a Braille writer for messages.

And she helps with sending out the monthly newsletter for the Midland Association of Retarded Citizens. She also helps organize and assemble mailings for Community and Senior Services, Multiple Sclerosis Society and Centers for Families and Children.

"I usually fold them and assemble the sheets ... and a lot of the time, I'm the counter," she said.

"My husband helps me to get started and shows me how it's done and after a few minutes I'm going," she added. "It's simple."

The Brazells' volunteer work doesn't stop there.

"Every Wednesday afternoon, we go to Hillcrest Manor, a low-income nursing home, and call bingo," she said.

"I pick out the number and I tell her and she calls," her husband said.

"It's fun," she added.

Even at home, the volunteer work doesn't stop.

As part of the telephone reassurance program, Mrs. Brazell makes daily calls to four female shut-ins to make sure they're all right.

"You get kind of attached to them. I think it does as much for me as it does for them," she said.

The Brazells also take part in community service work through the Westside Lion's Club and anticipate adding to their volunteer work this year.

"Anytime they call us we go," Brazell said. "Most of the time," she added.

"I think it helps fill a void in our lives. We're busy," Mrs. Brazell said.

"I think it's really wonderful for seniors ... If you're not doing something useful, it gets boring," said Mrs. Brazell, who praised the Retired and Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP).

RSVP — operated through Community and Senior Services — matches senior citizens and their skills with non-profit agencies that need volunteers for specific jobs.

In addition to volunteer work, Mrs. Brazell works as a dispatcher for the Visiting Nurses Association.

Her interests include knitting, reading, exercising and voicespondence, a pen-pal-like correspondence using cassette tapes. His interests include leather work — making a variety of goods.

The Brazells have two grown daughters and two granddaughters.

OTT: UFOs, life might exist on other planets in universe

(From 1B)

— I can't decide if I believe in UFOs or not, though I'm beginning to accept the fact that life might indeed exist on other planets.

— There are few things in life more irritating than a stopped-up ear. All sound has a dull echo effect to it, as though you are stuck in a dungeon.

— Most offices have at least one prankster, the kind of person who is constantly playing practical jokes on his co-workers.

— Those people can really get on your nerves.

— No matter how strenuously we may deny it, having "a bad hair day" is sometimes enough to destroy an entire 24-hour period.

— And we say we're not vain.

— Surprise, surprise. News accounts out of Washington indicate newly elected congressional Republicans are already finding out it is not as easy as they thought to make dramatic changes in the way government works.

— Seems like President Clinton learned the same lesson two years ago.

— So has everyone else who thought they could just snap their fingers and make everything A-OK.

— And today's final quote comes from Mark Twain, who once said, "The fact that man knows right from wrong proves his intellectual superiority to the other creatures; but the fact that he can do wrong proves his moral inferiority to any creature that cannot."

Friends, students remember UT professor dead in attack

AUSTIN (AP) — University of Texas professor Susan Hadden's lifelong dream of seeing Cambodia's ancient ruins ended tragically.

Mrs. Hadden, a 15-year professor at UT's Lyndon Baines Johnson School of Public Affairs, was killed Sunday after gunmen opened fire on a van full of tourists at the Angkor Wat temple complex, 150 miles northwest of Phnom Penh, Cambodia.

Mrs. Hadden's husband, James Hadden Jr., was injured in the attack. He was being treated Monday at a hospital in Singapore, and it was unclear when he would return to Texas, according to a U.S. State Department official.

Colleagues and friends remembered Mrs. Hadden, 49, as a "true intellectual" and a professor who went above and beyond her responsibilities to assist students.

"She was one of the most committed and dedicated professors that you could have," said Max Sherman, dean of the LBJ school. "She really had a good working relationship with students. She wanted everyone to catch the excitement of learning."

Sherman said the Haddens had been planning to visit the ancient temples in Cambodia for nearly a decade but repeatedly had to put off the trip because of fighting in the region.

Chandler Stolp, a professor at the LBJ school who taught several classes with Mrs. Hadden, said, "Ever since she was a little kid, she wanted to see Angkor Wat."

DEATH: Lawyers attempt to get stay of execution

put to death in recent years in Texas, which has executed 86 men since 1982.

In 1989, the Supreme Court in a 5-4 decision said the Constitution's ban on cruel and unusual punishment did not prohibit execution of juveniles as young as 16 or adults with the reasoning capacity of children.

Marquez, who was not tried for his wife's murder but was convicted and sentenced to die for the niece's slaying, had numerous earlier appeals where prosecutors said the issue of his mental competence was reviewed and rejected.

Defense attorneys argued that Marquez was beaten with sticks, boards and whips be a father who thought he was "slow." Once abandoned to the streets, he turned to sniffing paint and doing drugs.

Marquez was on delayed sentencing, awaiting jail after pleading guilty to burglary and leading police on a 100 mph chase while driving the wrong way on a freeway, when he was arrested for the Jan. 27, 1984 murders of his wife, Rebecca, 19, and her niece, Rachel Gutierrez, 14.

Testimony indicated Marquez killed his estranged wife because he believed she had been unfaithful. The two bodies were found together at the Gutierrez home in a San Antonio housing project, where Rebecca Marquez was living with her mother.

When Marquez's mother-in-law returned home, he showed her the bodies, then sexually assaulted the woman before fleeing.

TALK: Midlanders discuss renovations, new projects

is attractive to them," she said.

Hackler, who oversees engineering and development and utilities for the city, described his job as both challenging and fun.

"You get to see the development of issues and the growth, like we have had," he said. "It's a very dynamic part of city government because it affects what we do daily."

Hackler said the most difficult part of dealing with utilities has been following state and federal mandates that are the same for all cities, no matter what their geographical location.

"We don't have the same problems with waste, water and other utilities that they have, say, in Houston or New Jersey," Hackler said. "But, these mandates are the same for everyone. So, sometimes we have to do things because they are mandated, not because of our situation."

Hackler spoke briefly on a few ongoing projects, including the loop expansion.

He said residents should be able to drive on the loop from Midland Drive to Midkiff Road by March. The expansion from Midland Drive to Andrews Highway is expected to take about 15 months.

"Within the next 24 months, we hope to see a continous loop around Midland," Hackler said.

In an effort to balance the major increase in businesses along the northern part of the loop, Hackler said Mayor Bobby Burns has set up a task force to look into the revitalization of downtown Midland.

"In about six months, they will probably be moving into the planning stages," he said. "This a long-term project, something that will require a lot of research and planning. Fort Worth's renovation of its downtown area took 15 years."

Super Bowl

SANTA CLARA, Calif. — It didn't take the San Francisco 49ers long to toe the party line. Point spread? What point spread? As the spread kept climbing in Las Vegas, making the 'Niners 20-point favorites over San Diego in the Super Bowl to be played 12 days from now, the San Francisco players stuck to basic footballese.

"I don't even look at those things in the paper," right tackle Harris Barton said of the odds. "I'm already nervous thinking about San Diego."

"This is the NFL," defensive end Tim Harris said. "In the NFL, anyone can beat you."

Indeed, the size of the spread, the largest in Super Bowl history, seemed a little ridiculous. Oddsmakers in Vegas attributed it at least in part to the preponderance of big names like Steve Young, Jerry Rice and Deion Sanders and the relative obscurity of the Chargers' stars. Many fans outside San Diego might be hard-pressed to name two Chargers besides Junior Seau, Natrone Means and Stan Humphries.

San Francisco's 38-28 win over Dallas Sunday was billed as the "real" Super Bowl. It didn't help that the Chargers qualified instead of the Pittsburgh Steelers, who like the 'Niners would have been going for a record fifth Super Bowl win without a loss. It also didn't help that in his moment of euphoria after Sunday's game, San Francisco's president, Carmen Policy, called the Super Bowl "anticlimactic."

Lady Chaps turn back Western Texas

■ Midland College coach Ron Jones' reunion with former team turns into a narrow Lady Chaparral escape.

By Stewart Doreen
Staff Writer

It was a reunion of sorts Monday night when Western Texas College came rolling into town with its undefeated conference record to meet former mentor and current Midland College women's basketball coach Ron Jones.

But the Midland College Lady Chaps did their best to ruin the party by getting off to a big lead and holding on for a 101-98 win Monday night at the Chaparral Center.

"It was different because they (Western Texas) had a bunch of girls that I recruited," Midland College head coach Ron Jones said. "But it was a conference game, and we needed to get another conference win.'

It was Midland College's clutch freethrow shooting down the wire that sealed the win for the Lady Chapparals while Western Texas' big scorers sat and watched after fouling out as 61 total fouls were called during the game.

The win almost slipped through the turnover-prone hands of the Lady Chaps as they turned the ball over 29 times (16 in the second half) to keep Western Texas in the game.

The Lady Chaps were also finding it difficult to get the ball to attack the inside when their hot hand from Dallas Cowboy Bill Bates packs up belongings from the lockerroom at Valley Ranch on the day after the Cowboys lost their first NFC Championship in three years.

Valley quiet on day after

■ Very few Cowboys found reason to hurry back to Valley Ranch after loss to San Francisco.

Associated Press

IRVING — The offseason began two weeks earlier than expected and as quietly as possible for the Dallas Cowboys on Monday.

Valley Ranch was silent as very few players found reason to hurry back to the team's training facility a day after a 38-28 loss to the San Francisco 49ers kept them out of a Super Bowl for the first time in three years.

The only official purpose for stopping by was to take a season-ending physical, and for most players it could wait. For defensive lineman Charles Haley, it won't be necessary if he's serious about his plans to retire.

His surprising decision and questions about offseason plans were the main topics of conversation among the handful of players who showed up.

One excuse for the absences was that the team plane arrived from California about midnight. With no more games to prepare for, there was little urgency in waking up.

The few who attended wasted little time getting in and out.

Cowboys need to stop talent slide from free agency

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — Charles Haley says he is leaving. He won't be the only Dallas Cowboy.

If Haley really does follow through on his retirement plans, he will free $1.8 million under the salary cap for the Cowboys next year. Owner Jerry Jones will need the money to try to hold together what could be a fast unraveling team.

■ Analysis

Nine Dallas starters will be free agents, including wide receiver Michael Irvin, who entered the NFC championship record book with 12 catches for 192 yards in Sunday's 38-28 loss to the San Francisco 49ers.

Because of all the free agents, the Cowboys could be disassembled faster than any Super Bowl team in history. The Cowboys lost five top players to free agency this season, and it helped keep them from winning a record third consecutive Super Bowl.

The Cowboys will need a productive draft and keep their veteran players at home or the talent slide could continue.

Safety James Washington was talking as though the Cowboys won't sign him again.

"It's been a great three years," Washington said. "You ride it out and enjoy it as long as you can."

The Cowboys might not try to re-sign former first-round draft pick Russell Maryland, who had an off-season and might have to take a pay cut from his $1 million-a-year salary to stay with the team.

And with Irvin demanding a $3 million a year salary, the Cowboys will find it difficult to keep him and Alvin Harper.

Steve Endicott, Irvin's agent, said, "Mike needs to be paid in the $3 million category. He should be paid with the best receivers in the NFL. "

Harper, who almost left the team last year, likely will move on down the road. Harper is a big-play receiver but Irvin gives the Cowboys more consistency.

Center Mark Stepnoski is sure to draw some bids

MHS, Lee try to hold grip on 4-5A

By Amy Wolfenbarger
Staff Writer

The pretenders in District 4-5A entered Midland territory last week and were turned away as all four Midland schools either lead the league, are tied for the lead or are a half-game back.

■ Stats/ 3C

As Lee boys coach Jon House pointed out before last week's wins against Odessa High and San Angelo Central in which his Rebels took a slim half-game lead over Midland High and Abilene Cooper, a big week on the schedule can "separate the pretenders from the contenders."

But the big weeks aren't over yet as the girls enter the second half of league play and the boys near the end of the first half.

Today, the Midland High boys (17-4, 3-1) host Abilene High (7-13, 2-2) while the Lee boys (10-12, 4-1) travel to Abilene Cooper (17-4, 3-1).

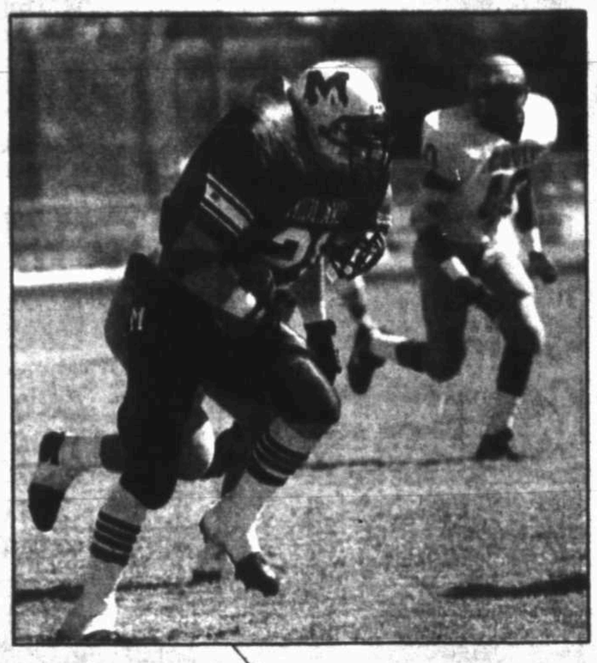

On the girls side, Midland Lee (14-7, 5-1) hosts Abilene Cooper (6-13, 1-5) while Midland High (18-3, 5-1) travels to Abilene High (16-6, 4-2). All games begin at 8 p.m.

After today, the boys race could get really jumbled at the top. Wins by Midland High and Cooper would produce a two-way tie for first place with the Rebels in second. If the Rebels win, it won't matter if Midland wins because Lee will still hold the slim edge. If Lee loses and Midland loses, defending champ Cooper would take first, Lee would hold second and MHS would fall to third and possibly be tied with San Angelo Central.

For the Rebels, the game at Cooper is huge. A Lee win would produce a 5-1 record and would close out the first half with Friday open before the big Lee-MHS rematch next Tuesday. But House isn't letting his players lose their perspective on the season.

"A big game on the road doesn't matter to us," House said. "They're (Coo-

Midland High running back Roy Coats verbally committed to continue his football career at Southern Methodist.

Joe D. Williams /Reporter-Telegram

Coats committs to SMU

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

The heart of Midland High's offensive attack is headed for Southern Methodist University.

Roy Coats, MHS' most successful running back in well over a decade, gave a verbal commitment to the Mustangs over the weekend and will help guide the SMU football program into the transition years of its new allegiance with the Western Athletic Conference.

"The choice basically came down to SMU and Rice," Coats said Monday. "I liked Rice and the players there, but I also love Dallas and felt that was right for me.

"There are some big things happening at SMU, going into the WAC and moving back to the Cotton Bowl to play their games. It's an exciting time in Dallas. There are major changes underway and I think it is for the best."

The verbal commitment is nonbinding for Coats until Feb. 1, the national signing day for colleges to grab high school athletes.

"I'm glad to get this decision behind me," Coats said. "It has really been hectic around my house with the phone ringing off the hook."

In addition to SMU and Rice, Coats talked with Texas Tech a couple of times, visited Oklahoma State unoffically and was contacted by New Mexico State and TCU.

Coats rushed for 1,416 yards and 12 touchdowns in 1994, becoming the first MHS running back to crash the 1,000-yard barrier since James Lee turned the trick in 1990. Those are the only two MHS backs to gain more than 1,000 yards rushing in a single season in over a decade. His numbers would have been even more impressive, but he missed the better part of two games.

Coats also broke Midland's all-time single game rushing record in 1994 with 337 yards against El Paso Bel Air, which was the 16th best rushing game in Class 5A state history.

Sampras opens with easy win

By Robin Finn

MELBOURNE, Australia — Preferring comfort to novelty, Pete Sampras, the Australian Open's defending champion, wore old sneakers and used an old racquet Monday to produce a familiar result: a first-round victory without a hitch.

■ Australian Open

"Hopefully things will work out for me here," Sampras said after his 73-minute demolition of Gianluca Pozzi of Italy by 6-3, 6-2, 6-0.

What constitutes things "working out" for Sampras, who has been No.1 for the last 90 weeks, is nothing less than a two-week reaffirmation of his dominance on the Grand Slam frontier.

"I'm here to defend my title; anything less is simply not good enough," said the 24-year-old Sampras, for whom title defense has become habitual. Last year he was rewarded on six of seven defense attempts.

"Trying to defend a title is something I've gotten used to," he said. "Nobody remembers who comes in second."

Sampras admitted he was anxious to regain the same early season form that carried him through the first five months of 1994 with only two losses.

"I was basically just unbeatable; I felt unbeatable," Sampras recalled of an aura of invincibility that came to an abrupt halt just after he repeated as Wimbledon's champion.

After a summer of battling sore feet and sore ankles as he tried to break in new sneakers, Sampras failed to reclaim his U.S. Open crown.

"Not playing well at the Open really hurt," said Sampras, who is wearing old shoes in Melbourne while Nike puts the finishing touches on a pair of sneakers guaranteed to be friendly to his feet. "My New Year's resolution was to stay

4-5A: Bulldogs, Rebels battle with Abilene schools per) on a roll right now. But so are we. I think the pressure is more on them playing in front of their home crowd.

(From 1C)

"I try to keep our guys on an even keel. The season is full of peaks and valleys ... We haven't peaked, yet but we don't want to slip down in the valley," House said.

Midland High has to be careful about the Eagles, who despite bringing in a losing overall record, are scrambling to stay in the league race after having suffered two losses in the first half. And the Bulldogs have to travel to San Angelo (2-2) on Friday before they begin the second round of league play.

But after their improbable loss to Midland Lee, the Bulldogs have rebounded offensively scoring 90, 118 and 98 points in their last three games.

"I think we're in good shape right now," MHS coach Jack Stephenson said. "We're playing better now that any time in the season. Abilene High's not bad. They're not having a year like they have had in the past, and I don't think they have the athletes like they've had in the past. They did beat Lee, so we can't take them lightly.

"They've lost two district ball games and if they lose to us, that would be three. That's pretty tough to overcome. So I expect they'll come after us," Stephenson said.

The Midland High girls are in a similar situation in their game with Abilene High. MHS beat AHS to open district play and the Lady Eagles dropped another before rebounding with four straight wins. The Lady Dawgs must beat Abilene in order to keep pace with Lee, who should beat Cooper.

Again, the loss to Lee sort of sparked the Lady Dawgs.

"These girls certainly understand they're going to have to show up every time they toss it up," MHS coach Jim Raughton said. "The Lee game was a wake-up call in a way. But I don't see why they (Lady Dawgs) won't respond to the situation against Abilene."

The Lee girls are on a four-game winning streak since falling to Abilene High, and it doesn't look like it will stop against Cooper, which narrowly edged San Angelo Central last week to avoid the 4-5A cellar.

Lee coach Elise Kail said the confidence level on her team is high.

"I'm pleased with how we're doing since the win over Midland expect for the first half of this game," said Kail after Lee's overtime win over Permian. "When we got into overtime, you could see the looks on their faces change. It was like, 'We know we're going to win.'" the perimeter cooled off.

"We quit doing the little things," Jones said. "They were getting a lot of the rebounds, were more aggresive than we were and were getting the ball. They wanted the game worse in the second half."

Another reason for the comeback from the 23-point halftime deficit was the clutch shooting from the Lady Westerners led by the strong play of Jackie Wright, who scored 21 of her 28 points in the second half to go along with her 10 rebounds.

"They (Westerners) played a great second half," Western Texas head coach Brenda Nichols said. "We can come back from 30 points, but we needed a few more minutes to win it. It takes a full 40 minutes with a full team."

Midland College, 16-4, got off to a hot start going 24-of-40 from the field and 10-of-19 from the three-point arch. Taking advantage of their strong outside game and an inside game that kept the Lady Westerners' Jackie Wright at bay for most of the first half, the Lady Chaps got off to a 23-point halftime lead. Leading the way was guard Pam Hicks who fired in 16 of her team-high 20 in the first twenty minutes.

"We've been talking about playing well and we did that for a lot of the game tonight," Jones said. "If we play 40 minutes, we're a good team."

The Lady Westerners, 9-12 and 2-1, would have been down by more than the 23-point halftime deficit if not for their precision shooting from the free throw line. The 20-25 performance from the charity stripe and the 19 fouls that sent them there were the only bright spots for Western Texas, a team that shot a meager 11-37 from the field in the first half.

Midland College, 2-1, is now tied with the Lady Westerners behind conference leaders Frank Phillips which was idle on Tuesday and Howard College who defeated New Mexico Junior College 55-53 Monday. Both Teams are 2-0. The Lady Chaps will host South Plains College Thursday at 5:50 p.m. at Chaparral Center.

COATS: MHS running back tallied 2,632 yards for career

(From 1C)

For his entire career, Coats rambled for 2,632 yards and 19 touchdowns, averaging 5.3 yards per carry over that span of time. He also had 332 receiving yards on 29 catches in three years. He just missed the 1,000-yard mark in 1993 with 966 yards rushing.

Also locally, Midland Lee offensive tackle Rex Tucker, who was named to the Dallas Morning News' Top 100 list of national recruits, is still weighing his options among Texas Christian University, Texas, Texas Tech, Miami and Texas A&M.

OPEN: Chang, Courier win

healthy all year."

After a weekend of rain that forced the closure of the stadium's retractable roof, Monday the sun blistered through what little is left of the ozone layer above Australia and, helped along by a mitigating breeze, the year's first Grand Slam got through its opening-day on schedule. But rain again delayed matches early Tuesday.

And it was devoid of any of the first-round upsets of seeded performers that seem customary at the three other Grand Slam events.

Besides the top-seeded Sampras, two other Americans with Grand Slam credentials, the fifth-seeded Michael Chang and the ninth-seeded Jim Courier, twice a champion here, passed the first round without incident.

Courier, for whom tennis has turned sweet again after a sour 1994 in which he fell from third to 13th in the ranking, was in full control against David Rikl of the Czech Republic. With the exception of a third-set lapse that he corrected in the ensuing tie breaker, Courier advanced with ease, 6-4, 6-0, 7-6 (7-2).

"I'm trying to get back up the mountain," said Courier, who ended a 17-month title drought in Adelaide two weeks ago.

After tuning up for this event by humbling Sampras in an exhibition final at the Open's former headquarters at Kooyong on Saturday, Chang eliminated the first of the 27 Australians entered in Melbourne with a 6-2, 6-4, 5-7, 6-2 victory over Paul Kilderry, the wild card.

Chang skipped the Australian last year and in two previous appearances has never ventured beyond the third round. But Chang, like Sampras, said he is not here simply for the exercise.

"I wouldn't have shown up here if I didn't think I could win it," he said.

Courier was followed onto Court 1 by the 14-year-old Martina Hingis, who shares the distinction with Andre Agassi of being the Australian Open's most highly hyped newcomers. The 73rd-ranked player made an impressive main-draw debut with a creative 6-0, 7-6 (7-2) defeat of 90th-ranked Jolene Watanbe.

Hingis, who wears braces on her teeth, pompoms on her socks and the same bunny tail of a ball keeper favored by Arantxa Sanchez Vicario, cruised into the big leagues with her usual poise.

"It's always a step more, from the fourteens to the sixteens to the level of the adults, but I wasn't nervous," said Hingis, who bought herself an Australian travel guide to prepare for her first Grand Slam but nonetheless found this venue "a long way to travel to."

While Flinders Park was kind to the teen-aged Hingis, it failed to treat the older generation with any indulgence. Mats Wilander, who won the last of his three Australian Open titles in 1988, was despatched by Jacco Eltingh of the Netherlands, in straight sets, 6-3, 7-6 (7-3), 6-4.

And local favorite Pat Cash, the player who was runner-up to Wilander in 1988, failed to survive his Court 1 encounter with Alex O'Brien, losing by 4-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2 to the four-time all-American from Stanford.

Cager leaves Tech

LUBBOCK (AP) — Guard Jason Hamm, a redshirted freshman, has decided to leave the Texas Tech basketball program.

Coach James Dickey said the decision was finalized Monday morning.

University officials said the only reason they had for Hamm's departure was his wish to transfer to another school.

Hamm was not available for comment Monday evening.

SLIDE: Free agency could shatter former world champs

(From 1C)

well over the $1 million per year range. Tight end Jay Novacek is another free agent and the club will do its best to sign him.

Novacek made 11 catches when the Cowboys beat Green Bay 35-9 in the divisional playoffs.

The club will make a strong big to keep defensive end Tony Tolbert, who had an excellant season. Tolbert will get top dollar because of a year that included an intercepted pass returned for a touchdown.

With Haley gone, it will be imperative that last year's No. 1 draft pick, Shante Carver, comes on strong in summer camp. Carver was a bust in 1994 as a defensive end.

Other significant free agents include placekicker Chris Boniol, tight end Scott Galbraith, quarterbacks Rodney Peete and Jason Garrett, guard Derek Kennard, defensive end Jim Jeffcoat, punter John Jett, linebacker Darrin Smith, defensive backs Clayton Holmes, defensive back Kenny Gant and fullback Tommie Agee.

Gant was paid $400,000 in 1994 and may have priced himself out of the market.

"We're going to be OK," Jones said. "We've got a good, young team and we're going to keep the players we think can help us down the line."

Jones will have to open his billfold. Quarterback Troy Aikman will make $4 million in 1995 and running back Emmitt Smith won't be too far behind.

"I'm confident the Cowboys will be back in a big way next year," Aikman said. "Who we will be back with, I'm not sure. We'll still have a team of winners. We will have a great nucleus of talent."

Smith said, "I know we'll have to live with all that 'Dallas is dead' talk next year. But we'll be back."

By losing to the 49ers, the Cowboys not only blew a chance to win a record third consecutive Super Bowl, but took themselves out of the running to become the first franchise in history to win five NFL championships.

"This loss really hurt," Jones said. "We were in position to make history."

All Seasons Cleaners:

Putting the customer first

With today's modern fabrics and finishes, it is important to find a cleaning company which really does care about cleaning your clothes. Inexperienced staff, old fashioned machines and dubious practices can all damage your expensive clothes.

All Seasons Cleaners, located at 905 Andrews Highway, is a new company that continues to grow because of its consistent high quality results.

With over 50-years combined experience in the cleaning business, the staff at All Seasons have the know-how to take care of any request. Service minded, confident, experienced employees ensure that each customer gets personal attention based on the principle that each customer's needs and wants are going to be different. It is the personal service that really makes the difference: customers know that at All Seasons Cleaners their clothes will come out looking their best because the people who are cleaning them want them to.

All Seasons uses state-of-the-art equipment to ensure consistent results, and they can handle virtually any type of dry cleaning or laundry request. The dry cleaning machine uses a 3-bath system with fresh chemicals in each bath to ensure complete odor elimination and that there is no 'graying' of the fabric.

Of course, as with any other responsible business, all equipment meets or exceeds the requirements laid down by state and federal regulations.

All finishing equipment uses steam heat, not electrical heaters, to finish clothes. This means that clothes will never be scorched or burnt. In addition, the system is adjusted to suit each garment; ensuring perfect results each time.

The variable techniques to dry clean clothes also apply to the laundry. Colored shirts, delicate fabrics or new denim are no problem because all the equipment is adjustable to the fabric. The weight of the fabric, temperature, required finish and starch are all taken into consideration to get beautiful results every time.

Many people discard clothes because they are stained or the color has changed. All Seasons has many years of experience in saving clothes using special techniques and chemicals.

In addition, a full alteration service is available, but, most minor mending (replacing lost buttons, mending loose seams, etc) is done free of charge when the garment is cleaned.

As a service orientated business, All Seasons takes great pride in ensuring that customers needs are taken care of quickly, accurately and with respect..

For more information about All Seasons wide range of quality services, stop by their location at 905 Andrews Highway, or call them at (915) 697-2536.

Paul, Rhonda, Paula, Elaine, Sheila, Nikki, Mark, Christy and Paz make up the staff of All Seasons cleaners. Located at 905 Andrews Highway (at the corner of Andrews Highway and Cuthbert,) they specialize in all forms of cleaning. Using modern, high tech equipment they have the 'know-how' and experience to handle virtually any type of cleaning requirement. For more information about prices and services, call Paul Graves, the owner/operator at 697-2536

Turner breaks off NBC pursuit

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Ted Turner has ended his courtship of NBC.

His company, Atlanta-based Turner Broadcasting System Inc., said it had "discontinued discussions about possible business combinations with NBC due to the issue of ownership and control."

The cable network owner had been talking for several months about buying NBC from General Electric Co. but neither side was willing to accept less than 51 percent control of NBC in striking a deal, said people familiar with the discussions, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

There have been reports in recent months that GE was seeking $6 billion or more for National Broadcasting Co., which owns the NBC television network, TV stations and the cable network CNBC.

It could not be determined how much Turner Broadcasting, whose holdings include CNN and Turner Network Television, was willing to pay for NBC. Details on how a deal would be structured also were not disclosed.

Ted Turner, TBS' chairman, met with GE chairman John F. Welch and NBC chief Robert Wright last week and the executives realized they would not be able to reach agreement on issues of ownership and control, sources said.

But Turner did not close the door on future combinations.

"As in the past the company will continue to pursue strategic opportunities as they arise in order to maximize shareholder value," Turner Broadcasting said in a statement.

Turner, who is one of the cable industry's pioneers, has made no secret in recent months of his desire to add a broadcast television network to his stable of cable networks, which also include Headline News, the Cartoon Network and Superstation WTBS.

He has reportedly talked at various times about buying or striking alliances with CBS as well as NBC.

Welch has hired the investment banking firm Allen & Co. to evaluate proposals for NBC, which GE acquired as part of its purchase of RCA Corp. in 1986.

But people familiar with Welch's thinking say he has been more interested in striking an alliance that could help NBC expand rather than in selling the media company.

After a few last-place finishes in the prime-time ratings, NBC's performance has improved markedly this season.

GE has reportedly had discussions about NBC with companies including Time Warner Inc., ITT Corp. and Walt Disney Co.

But a combination of NBC and Turner struck many media analysts as a superior combination because of the savings the companies could achieve by combining their newsgathering operations and possibly coordinating their broadcast and cable sports activities.

Prices surge

Natural gas futures prices rocketed higher Monday, halting a nine-day slide amid forecasts for colder, more seasonal weather in the northern United States.

Heating oil, gasoline and crude oil futures also rose strongly on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Wholesale natural gas for February delivery soared 6.7 cents, or about 5 percent, to $1.39 per 1,000 cubic feet.

West Texas Intermediate for February delivery rose 36 cents to $17.88 a barrel. Local crude purchasers raised their posted price 25 cents to $16.25 a barrel.

Natural gas futures have been trading at their lowest levels in nearly three years due to mild temperatures most of this winter in the Midwest and Northeast, the key consumption areas for heating fuel. February delivery prices had fallen 23 percent from Dec. 30 through last Friday.

The selling ended abruptly Monday after meteorologists revised their forecasts, which now predict a return to seasonal temperatures later this week and below-normal temperatures in the Midwest this weekend.

SEPM meeting

Dr. Al Reid, local paleontological consultant, will be the guest speaker at today's meeting of the Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists. The meeting will be at the Midland Center beginning at 11:30 a.m.

Reid will present a paper on "Things Your 3-D Seismic Never Told You: Horsehoe Atoll to Eastern Shelf Highstand and Lowstand Reefs as Affected by Paleowind and Paleogeography."

Dollar weakens

NEW YORK — The dollar weakened against most key currencies Monday in quiet foreign-exchange dealings, hurt by worries that the Federal Reserve won't raise interest rates later this month.

In late New York trading, the dollar was quoted at 98.52 Japanese yen, up from 98.50 late Friday.

The dollar also changed hands in New York at 1.5318 marks, down from 1.5335 late Friday.

Late in New York the peso was trading at 5.4400 against the dollar, weaker than Friday's 5.2500 level.

Other late dollar rates in New York, compared with late Friday: 1.2855 Swiss francs, down from 1.2880; 5.2915 French francs, down from 5.2965; 1,603 Italian lire, down from 1,613; and 1.4127 Canadian dollars, up from 1.4110.

The British pound was quoted at $1.5695, up from $1.5680.

Markets gain

NEW YORK — Hope that interest rates soon will stabilize rather than head higher propelled stock prices aloft Monday for a second straight session.

Sales tax rebates up 10.8 percent

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas cities this month saw a 10.8 percent increase in sales tax rebates from the state compared with last January, thanks to robust pre-Christmas sales, according to the comptroller.

State Comptroller John Sharp announced $122.6 million in rebates to 1,075 Texas cities, for a 10.8 percent increase over the same month a year earlier. He forwarded $13.1 million to 111 counties, an increase of 4.3 percent.

The payments include taxes collected on November sales and reported to the comptroller in December. Sharp said November sales were strong, particularly in consumer electronics. Local rebates on December sales are scheduled to be sent to cities and counties on Feb. 10.

Associates moves units to Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Associates Corp. of North America said it will move two units and some 180 jobs from Cleveland and Buchanan, Mich., to its corporate headquarters in the Dallas area.

All employees will be given the chance to relocate to Dallas, or be given severance packages if they decline, the company said.

About 30 people will be affected by the move of the Vendor Finance Division in Cleveland. In Buchanan, the relocation of the Clark Credit Corp. will affect about 150. The moves will be completed in July.

Both units are part of The Associates Equipment Finance Group, which manages about $3 billion in equipment finance receivables, the company said. Both were acquired in 1991.

The company said the moves are aimed at cutting costs and allow quicker response to industry opportunities.

The Associates, which provides consumer finance, commercial finance, leasing and insurance, is a part of the Financial Services Group of Ford Motor Company.

Boutique owner sews up business

■ A San Antonio entrepreneur has found pattern to success.

By Chuck McCullough

SAN ANTONIO — Celia Salomons has been stitching a business career together since she was a young teen-ager.

Today the Cuban native is co-owner of an upscale women's apparel boutique and a recognized leader among Hispanic Republican women.

Mrs. Salomons and her husband, Edward, own Fashion Collections Inc. in Central Park Mall.

In March 1990 the couple purchased a Gonzales clothing outlet, named it Fashion Collections, and a year later opened the second store in Central Park Mall.

They operated the two Fashion Collection stores for several years, but finally closed the Gonzales store to concentrate on one location.

Celia Salomons, who runs the business, has expanded the 5,000-square-foot Central Park location twice since opening it in November 1991.

"We started with 1,800 square feet and expanded by 1,000 feet and then another 2,000," she said.

They added a bridal shop operation to their store last spring.

"We expect bridal sales to be 50 percent of our volume within a couple of years. Did you know there are half a million weddings in the United States every year?" she said.

"Our store carries upscale merchandise for the price-conscious shopper. Many of our customers are professional women and women active in social and community activities," she said.

About 15 to 20 percent of the store's business comes from Mexican shoppers.

Sales to the store's Mexican customers have not been greatly effected by the peso's devaluation just before Christmas, Mrs. Salomons said.

However, they declined to reveal annual revenues.

Celia Salomons displays some clothing in her Fashion Collections boutique in San Antonio.

In 1973, they bought land in Kerrville with the intention of retiring there. Being used to a metropolitan area, the couple decided instead to move to San Antonio in 1980.

Soon after moving here Edward Salomons started a jewelry manufacturing business, but was forced to give up the company after undergoing two open-heart surgeries.

By 1990 he had sufficiently recovered for the couple to consider buying a business.

Celia Salomons is one of 30 local small business owners nominated by the San Antonio Hispanic Chamber of Commerce for the Blue Chip Enterprise Initiative Award. Winners will be announced next month in Washington, D.C.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Deferred gains on sale of house full of pitfalls

By Bill Doyle

Q: I moved into a new house this year and kept my other house to use as a rental property. My previous house was my principal residence for more than two years; my current house is my new, principal residence.

The purchase price of my new house exceeds that of my old house. The basis -- cost for tax purposes -- of my previous house included deferred capital gains from previous house sales.

What tax reports must I file in order to transfer the deferred capital gains from previous house sales to the basis of my current residence without selling my previous residence?

I assume that I should use the purchase price of my previous house as its basis for the purpose of reporting depreciation offset against my new rental income.

Doyle

A: First off, the Internal Revenue Service says you can't transfer the deferred capital gain from one property to another when no sale is involved. The basis of your rental property is the original cost reduced by the deferred capital gains. After that, you have to separate the cost of the land in order to calculate the depreciation. Land is not depreciable.

My advice is that you consult a tax adviser experienced in real estate law. Don't try to do all the calculations involved in setting up a depreciation schedule for your rental property. There are just too many potential pitfalls.

Q: I traded my Series E U.S. savings bonds for Series HH bonds in December 1993 and June 1994 to defer the interest payment. Do the bonds have to be turned in if I wanted to pay tax on the interest on some of them now, or can the interest be paid without turning them in?

My family lives in Canada, and this might be a problem. Who eventually pays tax on the interest, the beneficiary or the estate? And, how long must you hold the bonds before they can be redeemed?

A: You can't pay the tax on the interest of some of your bonds, without cashing them in.

When you acquire HH bonds, you can defer reporting the interest earned on Series E or Series EE bonds for up to 20 years.

If you want to pay tax on some of the interest now, you have to cash in some of those HH bonds. The earned-interest amount is written on the bottom portion of each bond.

You indicate that the beneficiary listed on your bonds is living in Canada. When you join the choir silent, if the beneficiary does not have an American Social Security number, the bonds would have to be liquidated within the estate and taxes would have to be paid.

HH bonds must be held for six months before they can be redeemed.

Q: What is the current value of five $1,000 Series E bonds purchased in October 1979? What is the current interest rate applied to them? Would it be wise to convert these bonds to HH bonds at this time? What is the current interest rate for HH bonds?

A: The current value of each $1,000 bond is $2,443.

The current guaranteed interest rate for Series E bonds is 4 percent. HH bonds also have a current guaranteed rate of 4 percent.

If you don't need the income provided every six months by HH bonds, it makes sense for you to hold onto the E bonds for now.

You have a guaranteed rate of 4 percent with the E bonds. If the guaranteed rate is adjusted upward, you could then transfer the E bonds to HH bonds and enjoy the higher rate. If you got the HH bonds now, before a rate hike, you'd be locked in at the 4 percent guaranteed rate. So, a waiting game is indicated.

How to use StockQuote Hotline:

1. Call CITYLINE at 560-2400. When prompted, enter Category 9991.
2. At a second prompt, press 2.
3. THEN, for Stocks, press 1. For Mutual Funds, press 2. For Money Markets, press 3. For Market Indices, press 4.
3. When prompted, enter the numerical code of your ticker symbol (i.e., for IBM, enter 43-22-61) followed by the star (*) key. Ticker symbols can be found in Standard & Poor's Ticker Guide, or by calling your broker. Refer to the Alphabet Code listings at left for instructions on converting the ticker symbol into its numerical code. (Quotes are current, delayed by 15 minutes.)
4. To exit the StockQuote Hotline and request another CITYLINE category, press the pound (#) key.

Stock quotes are from the Associated Press. Over 9,000 stocks are listed from NYSE, AmEx and OTC, and are available 24 hours a day.

Timberwolves devour Rockets

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Isaiah Rider scored 24 points and the Minnesota Timberwolves held Houston to 28 second-half points Monday night in a 94-75 victory over the Rockets.

Minnesota kept the Rockets scoreless for a span of 5:31 early in the fourth quarter and used a 13-0 run to open an 80-62 lead with 7:04 to play.

Chris Smith scored eight of his 16 points in the fourth quarter, including a pair of 3-pointers in a 23-6 run that gave the Wolves a 90-68 lead with 3:12 to play.

Christian Laettner scored 15 points and Doug West had 11 points, six assists and a career-high 11 rebounds for the Wolves, who held Hakeem Olajuwon to 4 second-half points.

Things went so well for the Wolves in the fourth quarter that Laettner and Rider were able to sit out the final 10 minutes of the game.

Olajuwon scored 22 points for the Rockets, who dropped their second straight after an eight-game winning streak. The victory was Minnesota's fourth in its last seven home games, but just its second in the last 10 overall.

Olajuwon and Rider each scored 18 points in a see-saw first half that ended with Houston leading 47-45.

Knicks 107, Nets 90

NEW YORK — Patrick Ewing had a season-high 32 points and 15 rebounds as New York Knicks won for the ninth time in 10 games, beating New Jersey.

Ewing had 18 points in the decisive second quarter when the Knicks broke open the game. Derek Harper added 15 for New York.

Derrick Coleman had 22 points and 12 rebounds for the Nets, who have lost five of seven games, and Kenny Anderson had 16.

Bullets 109, Bulls 101

LANDOVER, Md. — Washington ended its 10-game losing streak, getting 14 fourth-quarter points from Calbert Cheaney in a comeback victory over Chicago.

Cheaney scored 23 and Juwan Howard 22 for the Bullets, who had been winless since beating the Los Angeles Clippers on the road Dec. 23. Washington also ended its eight-game home losing streak.

Pistons 116, 76ers 110

PHILADELPHIA — Joe Dumars scored 35 points, including 13 in the fourth quarter, as Detroit beat Philadelphia, sending the 76ers to their ninth consecutive loss.

Dumars, who made 12 of 18 shots, helped the Pistons pull away when he connected on a 3-pointer with 1:02 left, giving Detroit a 112-106 lead.

■ NBA Roundup

Hawks 99, Heat 95

ATLANTA — Mookie Blaylock scored 20 points and Craig Ehlo 19 as Atlanta edged Miami, lifting their regular season home court record against the Heat to 12-0.

The Heat cut the lead to 98-95 with 18 seconds left on a basket by Glen Rice, who was fouled on the play. Rice missed the free throw, Atlanta got the rebound in a scramble and Blaylock eventually put the game on ice, hitting one of two free throws with just under eight seconds remaining.

Jazz 99, Pacers 98 (OT)

INDIANAPOLIS — Antoine Carr scored all six Utah points in overtime as Jazz won its club-record 13th straight on the road with a overtime victory over Indiana.

Utah won its sixth straight overall and is 7-1 in January.

Indiana took a 97-95 lead with 1:37 left in overtime when Reggie Miller stole the ball from John Stockton and drove for a layup. Karl Malone, who had 42 points, committed his sixth foul on the play, but Miller missed the free throw.

Warriors 77, Nuggets 73

OAKLAND, Calif. — Tom Gugliotta hit a 3-pointer with 41 seconds left as Golden State broke an eight-game losing streak with a win over Denver, playing its first game since the sudden resignation of coach Dan Issel.

With the score tied at 73-73, Gugliotta hit his shot from the top of the key as the 24-second clock was winding down. Tim Hardaway, who led the Warriors with 21 points, added a free throw with 12 seconds left.

The 73 points were the fewest by Denver since joining the NBA in 1976-77 and just one more than the franchise worst, set on Nov. 3, 1973, when the Nuggets were in the ABA.

Lakers 96, Clippers 88

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Nick Van Exel scored 13 of his 24 points in the fourth quarter and rookie Eddie Jones added 23 as the Lakers dealt the Clippers their sixth straight loss.

Cedric Ceballos scored six of his 18 points during a pivotal fourth-quarter rally and had 13 rebounds, helping the Lakers win for the 12th time in 15 games.

The Lakers turned a 12-point deficit into an 88-81 lead, outscoring the Clippers 23-4 during a 6:06 span of the fourth quarter. Jones made a 3-point shot and a three-point play during the rally, which Ceballos capped on layup with 3:09 remaining.

UConn sweeps ranked teams

Associated Press

HARTFORD, Conn. — Second-ranked Connecticut used a 12-0 spurt early in the second half to take command Monday night and remained the only unbeaten Division I team with a 93-73 victory over No. 10 Georgetown.

■ Top 25

The Huskies (13-0, 6-0 Big East) ended the Hoyas' 11-game winning streak and won their 11th consecutive Big East regular-season game, the second-longest streak in conference history.

Georgetown (11-2, 5-1), which hadn't lost since the season opener against Arkansas, scored the first basket of the second half to get within 37-36, but then it was all Connecticut.

Women

No. 2 Connecticut 77, No. 1 Tennessee 66

STORRS, Conn. — Kara Wolters scored 12 of her 18 points in the second half and Jen Rizzotti had 17 points and led a poised offense as Connecticut beat Tennessee in a battle of unbeatens.

Rizzotti scored 10 points as Connecticut took a 41-33 halftime lead. The Huskies, using a mix of man-to-man defense and a 2-3 zone, held the Lady Vols to 12-of-34 shooting in the first half.

Tennessee (16-1, 4-0 Southeastern Conference), frustrated by turnovers the entire game, never got closer than five points twice in the second half, the last time when Dana Johnson's layup made it 58-53 with 9:26 left. The Huskies (13-0, 6-0 Big East) played most of the second half with Rebecca Lobo in foul trouble.

St. Louis poised for Rams' deal

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis is poised to give the Los Angeles Rams what the team's president calls the best deal in pro football. An opponent of the deal says it's too sweet.

The city has assembled an attractive package, a deal that could mean $20 million in annual profits for a franchise that was 4-12 this season and projected to lose $6 million. The deal is exepected to be finalized today.

The Rams will get a $260 million domed stadium to play in, a $15 million practice facility to prepare in, and a cushy $250,000 annual lease that won't cut into those profits.

The city is retiring the Rams' $30 million debt to Anaheim, Calif., and paying $15 million in assorted relocation fees.

Rams president John Shaw told the Los Angeles Times that the agreement "is as good an economic deal as there is in football today."

So what does the city get in return?

"We all think St. Louis is better off with football for all of the intangibles: emotional, prestige, pride," said Frank Viverito of the city's Convention and Visitors Commission. "All of those are going to make this a winner."

Not everybody is happy, however.

"Look at the loot they're going to get," said Tom Sullivan, who heads the Campaign For Better Government in St. Louis. "The Rams are getting all the revenue and taxpayers are picking up all of the cost."

According to analysis by the St. Louis Regional Commerce and Growth Association, total gains in business revenues to the region are estimated at $100 million per year. The analysis also projects 1,700 new jobs, many which will be with the Rams.

It's a nice success story for the city, which lost the Cardinals in 1988 when Bill Bidwill moved them to Phoenix, and twice lost out in the 1993 expansion sweepstakes to Charlotte, N.C., and Jacksonville, Fla., when squabbling among the ownership group bogged down the bid.

New Bucs owner committed to staying in Tampa

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Palm Beach financier Malcolm Glazer agreed to buy the Tampa Bay Buccaneers on Monday, ending a bidding war for the franchise with the worst record in NFL history.

The trustees overseeing the estate of late Bucs owner Hugh Culverhouse declined to disclose the purchase price but indicated it was the largest ever for a pro franchise, surpassing the $185 million paid last year for the Philadelphia Eagles.

Glazer said he was committed to keeping the Bucs in Tampa. The sale agreement included a provision calling for a $35 million penalty if the team is relocated within 10 years.

"We expect the Bucs to remain here forever," Glazer said. "Operating the Buccaneers in any area other than the Tampa Bay, Florida, community was never a thought, an option or anything else."

The sale likely will become official in March when NFL owners are to next meet. Twenty-three of the league's 30 owners must approve the deal. Until then, trustees will run the team.

The agreement also includes provisions for additional payments to the Culverhouse family if renovations are made to Tampa Stadium and $20 million if a new stadium is built.

The sale ended weeks of speculation about the future of the club Culverhouse purchased for $16 million in 1974.

Three of the four bids the trustees were considering, including Glazer's original offer, had ties to Baltimore, which lost the Colts to Indianapolis in 1984 and is trying to land a replacement.

Glazer, who came up short in five previous efforts to buy pro franchises, led an unsuccessful bid for an NFL expansion team for Baltimore 14 months ago.

The other bidder pledging to keep the team in Tampa was New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner, who reportedly offered $170 million.

Baltimore Orioles owner Peter Angelos submitted a two-tiered bid — $205 million to move the team to Baltimore, a former NFL market, or $170 million to operate the club in Tampa.

Another group led by Baltimore attorney Robert Schulman also submitted a bid.

SALESPEOPLE

Where are all the good sales people? I'm tired of interviewing people for a career and end up talking to people who are content earning $400 to $500 a week; people without ambition.

I'm looking for people who have a positive mental attitude, are energetic, and are not afraid to work. If you have a strong desire for a healthy financial future....

THEN WE OFFER:

1. A Competitive commission schedule
2. Bonuses
3. Advancement potential
4. A complete training program
5. Major medical, dental, disability and pension - when eligible
