Local man sentenced

A local man was recently given two life sentences in the Texas Department of Corrections for his part in the stabbing deaths of two Temple men. Joseph Bernardo Lopez, 20, who fled Big Spring in violation of his parole sometime after Dec. 27 and had a warrant issued for his arrest Jan. 31, pleaded guilty to two counts of murder in a Bell County District Courthouse.

Lopez's two life terms will be served consecutively, Bell County Assistant District Attorney Muff Bledsoe said today.

Lopez pleaded guilty to the murders of Larry James Womack Jr., 26, and Gregory Dennis Reed, 31, in a plea-bargained agreement, Bledsoe said. A charge of attempted murder against another Temple man, Ernest Ray Anderson, 49, stabbed once in the chest, was dropped, he said.

Lopez, who had served eight months in the Texas Department of Corrections for burglary and was paroled June 6, was scheduled to be discharged from his parole in April of 1994 before he violated the terms of his parole by fleeing Big Spring, District Parole Officer David Harman said previously.

HC's Riley honored

Howard College President Bob Riley is one of several junior college presidents across the country who have been recognized for steering their schools through tough economic times.

Riley will receive an award from the League for Innovation at Community Colleges at its convention Tuesday in San Francisco.

Riley said the honor came about after the league conducted a three-year study to determine how certain junior colleges dealt with declining revenues.

"(The League) asked junior college presidents to nominate people who did an outstanding job and exhibited a creative approach to problem solving and leadership," Riley said.

DRRC to host tourney

Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center will host a three-day golf tournament at the Municipal Golf Course June 7-9.

Celebrities who have agreed to attend the tournament include women's hall of fame golfer Carol Mann, former Denver Broncos' quarterback and Big Spring resident Charley Johnson and NFL Hall of Fame members Sammy Baugh and Don Maynard.

Formats for the tournament will be a practice round on June 7, low ball on June 8 and scramble play on June 9, according to DRRC director John Yater.

Entry fee for the two-person teams is $125 and is tax-deductible, Yater said. The fee covers a cocktail party, barbecue dinner and a chance at the grand door prize: an all-expense paid trip for two to Las Vegas, Nev.

Registration forms can be obtained at the Chamber of Commerce, Big Spring Country Club, Municipal Golf Course and at DRRC, Yater said.

Elusive gator vanishes

IRVING (AP) — An elusive alligator that gave this Dallas suburb a short-lived tourism boom when it entered a man-made lake following heavy flooding last month apparently has slithered through a drainage culvert and back into the Trinity River.

Alligator expert Sidney Gardner, hired by a local company to rescue the animal from Las Colinas' Lake Carolyn, has left and doesn't plan to return, said Don Harris, a spokesman for Cambridge Associates, which hired Gardner.

"We haven't spotted it for the past week," said Don Parker of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. "He probably just searched around until he found a way out."

Texas District Judges may get a pay increase of nearly $15,500 next year if Gov. Bill Clements ratifies a raise approved by the Texas House and Senate.

The governor's approval of House Bill 101 would mean that base salaries for district judges — including 118th District Court Judge James Gregg — would increase from $57,258 to $72,675, or about 12.5 percent.

Gregg said although the raise would be substantial, it is still lower than the amount district judges in other states make. "I've seen some figures . . . We're low in comparison," he said.

The pay scale is also lower than most judges could make if they were in private practice. "We're still the lowest paid lawyers in the courtroom. I've had several friends resign . . . It didn't pay enough for them to make a living," he said.

If the bill is approved, salaries for state district judges would increase to 85 percent of what a U.S. Supreme Court justice earns, Gregg said. Wages for state appellate court judges would increase to 90 percent of a supreme court justice's salary. A provision in the bill would keep the district and appellate court judges salary consistent with the supreme court pay level, he said.

State-supported salaries for district and appellate judges are uniform within each group — the number of years served makes no difference in the level of pay, said Gregg, a district judge for the last 11 years.

"A judge of 20 years makes the same (amount) as one who would start today," he said. Not having differential salaries based on the number of years served is not a big issue to judges, though, because most don't serve for long periods of time, he added.

The reason for the short terms of office is because judges are not usually re-elected over long periods of time, particularly in the larger urban centers. Gregg said elections for judges that coincide with state elections usually see Democrat-affiliated judges win; elections for judges during presidential elections usually see Republican judges elected.

"It (the average length of time a lawyer will serve as a judge) is a whole lot less than it used to be," he said. Gregg estimated his length of service puts him in the upper half of all state district judges.

Despite the state-set wages for district judges, there is some variance in pay scales because counties can provide additional funding for judges, with the state's approval. Gregg said his annual salary is about $72,000 with the extra funding the county provides.

The pay for retiring judges is half the base salary of active judges. Gregg, who intends to retire next year, said the pay raise would mean a difference of about $7,000 in retirement benefits for him. Under the retirement plan, Gregg said he will also receive half the amount of any future raises district judges receive. The salary

Porter: Plaza construction on schedule

By BRADLEY WORRELL

Although members of Big Spring Main Street Inc. failed to reach a quorum and were unable to take any action at a scheduled meeting Wednesday, progress on the railroad is continuing on schedule, a committee member said today.

"Have you looked at the plaza? You can see the results," committee member Pat Porter said.

Porter said poor weather last week temporarily stalled some of the plazas, but that work on the project is continuing. "The contractor wasn't too happy last week," she said. Some of the previous work on the sand base around the railroad cars will have to be re-done, she said.

"The contractor is moving along as weather permits. They're redoing the sand base (around the cars), getting them fixed up and getting the cars moved in . . . They're moving along on schedule," she said.

Porter, who said she last talked with the contractor on Friday, said

Iranian speaker offers help with U.S. hostages

By ALEX EFTY
Associated Press Writer

TEHRAN, Iran — Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani said today that Iran will help free American hostages in Lebanon if the United States tries to win freedom for Iranians held by Christian forces in Lebanon.

It was the first time a top Iranian leader has commented on the foreign hostages since the death of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini on Saturday. Under Khomeini, Iran supported pro-Iranian groups in Lebanon which are believed to be holding most of the 15 foreign hostages, including nine Americans.

Responding to a recent appeal by President Bush to help gain the release of U.S. hostages, Rafsanjani said that if "the Americans who have more influence than us on the Phalangists (right-wing Christians in Lebanon) take action in securing the release of our hostages, then they can expect our help."

Rafsanjani was referring to four Iranians who have been missing in Lebanon for nearly seven years. Although the four are widely believed to be dead, Iran has repeatedly tried to use them as a bargaining chip with the United States.

In his other remarks during an unusual news conference with foreign reporters, Rafsanjani said it could take a long time to formally end the Iran-Iraq war and that Khomeini told him to improve relations with the Soviet Union. He also said Britain must take the initiative to improve ties with Iran. According to British news reports today, Iran will not withdraw Khomeini's February order that Moslems seek out and kill Salman Rushdie, author of "The Satanic Verses," but "is prepared to let the matter drop." Many Moslems believe the book defames Islam.

The four Iranians Rafsanjani referred to were seized by right-wing Christians in Beirut in 1982 during the Israeli invasion. They include Ahmad Motevaselian, commander of the contingent of Iranian revolutionary guards based in the Bekaa valley in east Lebanon; Embassy Charge d'Affaires Hussein Musavi and Kazem Akhavan, a correspondent for Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency.

The fourth was their Lebanese Shiite Moslem driver, Rastegar Moqadam, who also held an Iranian passport.

Pro-Iranian groups are believed to be holding 15 foreigners, including nine Americans. Terry Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, is the longest held of the foreign hostages in Lebanon. He was kidnapped March 16, 1985.

On the 8½-year Iran-Iraq war, Rafsanjani, who is acting military commander, said Iran was not willing to make any concessions to Iraq in the peace talks. The U.N.-sponsored talks stalled soon after they started Aug. 25.

The official Islamic Republic News Agency quoted him as saying, "We are determined to put an end" to the war. He said the statement in peace talks may last for some time.

At his news conference, Rafsanjani quoted Khomeini as saying days before he died that Iran should improve ties with the Soviet Union. Rafsanjani said he would visit the Soviet Union later this month but that a date had not been set.

Rafsanjani said Khomeini told him to "try to promote your relations with your big northern neighbor" and we will follow this policy drawn by the imam.

Iranians refer to Khomeini as their imam, or spiritual leader. He died of a heart attack Saturday.

McKiski, musicians to reunite

By KAREN MCCARTHY
Staff Writer

Do you remember your days in high school band? Russell McKiski does, vividly.

McKiski was a member of the band at Belvidere High School, Belvidere, Ill. in 1929, when the band traveled to Denver, Colo. to participate in national band competition. The band was chosen on the basis of district and state competitions, and Belvidere High School won first place in the class B division in the state.

"I remember it like it was yesterday," said McKiski, who was 16 at the time. "I still remember the hotel we stayed in — the Oxford Hotel. I think it's still there."

The band plans a 60th reunion of the memorable trip next week in Belvidere, where they will be joined by other former students to honor the memory of the bandmaster who led them, Clarence F. Gates.

There were about 80 students in the band at the time, said McKiski, and the town was behind them all the way. Even though money was tight, the community raised $5,000 to send the group to Denver. It took two Pullman cars, a dining car and a separate baggage car on the train for all the band.

The trip took a week, McKiski said, and the students also toured Pikes Peak, Colorado Springs, Manitou Springs, and the Garden of the Gods.

McKiski, an oboe player, graduated from Belvidere High School in 1931 and went on to become a band teacher himself. He taught at Goliad for ten years, until his retirement in 1972. Until recently he owned and operated McKiski Music Co. on Gregg Street.

McKiski had other fond members of his high school band days. On Sunday afternoons the band would give a concert in the park, a tradition that lasted for 20 years. The town was also fond of parades, with one for every possible occasion, and the band always marched, said McKiski.

And, of course, the band played at football games, although they played from the stands instead of on the field. "There was always more mud and slush and ice on the field than you could imagine," McKiski laughed. "Football games were played on Saturday afternoon because there were no lights on the field."

While he is in Belvidere, McKiski will visit friends and relatives in the area, as well as remember old times with fellow band members. But they won't play the old tunes.

"We played 'til a few years ago, but we're all over 70 now. We had to give it up."

Will Pickens run?

HEREFORD (AP) — He says he hasn't yet made up his mind, but Amarillo oilman T. Boone Pickens Jr. sounds a lot like a gubernatorial candidate. Pickens, 61, employs no official campaign staff, but he has been crisscrossing the state giving speeches on the need for stronger leadership in Texas and economic restructuring. He is scheduled to appear this weekend — along with other possible GOP candidates — oilman Clayton Williams Jr., Railroad Commissioner Kent Hance and Secretary of State Jack Rains — at a state meeting of Republican county chairmen.

Pickens also has commissioned several polls from outside political consulting groups, said his assistant, Andrew Littlefair.

Pickens has moved up his self-imposed deadline for deciding whether to enter the governor's race, saying he will make his choice within the next 45 days.

Phony money found

HUMBLE (AP) — An estimated $2 million in counterfeit money has been pulled from the San Jacinto River near Humble after a fisherman saw what he thought was an unusual amount of trash floating in the water.

Jamie Pinter was maneuvering his boat toward his favorite fishing hole Wednesday when he discovered the first of the counterfeit money in a secluded cove near this Houston suburb.

Pinter, 17, suddenly discovered it looked like money, piles of $100, $50 and $20 bills. So he reached into the water and grabbed a six-inch stack for a closer look.

It was his only catch of the day, but it was a whopper. Authorities speculated that the money was dumped by counterfeiters who feared the authorities were about to close in on them.

Numerological birth

EL PASO (AP) — Amber Lynn Pucelik boasts a birthday that probably will be the envy of her schoolmates: she was born at 1:23:45 a.m. on 6-7-89.

Dr. Neal Ross, who delivered the dark-haired girl Wednesday morning, was keeping his eye on the clock and told Susan Pucelik exactly when to push.

"He was really excited when it came on time," Mrs. Pucelik, 25, said Wednesday from her bed at Providence Hospital. "He said, 'One, two, three, four, five!'"

Last week, a couple of California psychics predicted that anyone born at 1:23:45 a.m. or p.m. Wednesday would become a world leader or at least someone famous. Mrs. Pucelik sounded somewhat doubtful.

Gramm criticizes proposed gasoline standards

"To some bureaucrat in Washington, that looks like a nice line. But the problem is that the distribution system in Texas for gas does not recognize logic. It's based on least cost and greatest efficiency." — Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas.

that runs straight down the state, from the Wilbarger-Wichita county line on the Oklahoma border through Brownwood to Falcon Dam in Zapata County.

"To some bureaucrat in Washington, that looks like a nice line. But the problem is that the distribution system in Texas for gas does not recognize logic. It's based on least cost and greatest efficiency," Gramm said Wednesday.

"I'm asking the EPA to go back and employ some rules of practicality," the Texas Republican said. "The Lord did not set down the 99th longitude, mapmakers did. And what we've got to do is set out some rules of reason. There is no reason Brownwood is split into two gas zones."

Because the 99th longitude runs right through Brownwood, Gramm says the cost of gasoline will be more expensive on the city's west side. And in Uvalde, a filling station there must now buy its gas from an Abilene refinery 220 miles away, rather than getting from a San Antonio refinery 70 miles away, Gramm said.

"By setting a higher standard for gasoline west of the 99th longitude ... western service stations will have difficulty getting supplies of gasoline because most of the refineries are in the east," Gramm told EPA administrator William K. Reilly in a letter this week.

"Because these refineries east of the line can no longer distribute their gasoline to western service stations, the potential for gasoline shortages in West Texas is great," Gramm told Reilly.

EPA says it didn't draw the line for the volatility standards in Texas — it based its decision on boundaries drawn years ago by the American Society of Testing and Materials, an organization representing the petroleum and auto industries and the scientific community.

Under the ASTM's boundaries, refineries and gas stations were supposed to be complying voluntarily with ASTM-set standards for volatility in their regions, said Don Zinger, EPA assistant administrator of the office of mobile pollution sources.

And when EPA announced in August 1987 it wanted to use the ASTM boundaries for its mandatory and more stringent volatility standards, no one from Texas protested during a lengthy public comment period, Zinger said. The petroleum industry even backed the existing lines.

Armored car spill prompts cash dash

EL PASO (AP) — A blizzard of $20 bills stopped rush-hour traffic cold on Interstate 10 and sorely tempted a man who returned $440,000 after staring for five hours at a 45-pound sack of cash on his kitchen table.

More than $500,000 fell out the back of a Loomis Armored Inc. truck about 9 a.m. as it drove eastbound on I-10 just east of downtown, police said. One sack broke, and $20 bills littered the four-lane highway.

"With the turbulence of the traffic, the money was flying in the air like a Toyota commercial," police shift supervisor Hank DiMatteo said, adding that at least 20 motorists stopped to grab some cash.

"Humans were reduced to such a state that they would compromise their own safety on a highway for some money," DiMatteo said in disgust.

Not that the people were dodging traffic — the highway was blocked almost immediately by money-grabbers, causing a half-mile-long traffic jam.

Rudy Vega stopped and grabbed a canvas sack of money, threw it in his car and drove home, where he stacked the money on his table and counted it.

"It was $440,000, and I said this was too much money," Vega said, explaining why he decided to turn the money in to the FBI. "My conscience would have really bothered me."

But others weren't quite as honest. Officers Roberto Campos and Ed Porterfield were the first police on the scene, and they chased and caught a pair of men who had stopped and grabbed a total of $3,840 in loose bills. The men were charged with felony theft.

Police said the driver of the truck apparently didn't secure the back doors before embarking on a delivery trip from the Federal Reserve Bank in El Paso to the one in Dallas. Loomis supervisor Ted Harmon had no comment, and he would not disclose how much money was in the truck.

But FBI spokesman Terry Kincaid said at least $100,000 was still missing. Police found $8,800 in loose cash on the side of the highway, and the rest presumably was taken by passers-by.

Campos said police had license plate numbers of about 20 people who were seen taking money. He said police intended to trace the license plate numbers and charge thieves with felony theft.

The incident in El Paso apparently wasn't as serious as a similar occurrence last October in Columbus, Ohio. Officials estimated about 200 people converged on Interstate 71 near downtown Columbus after the rear door of a Metropolitan Armored Car Inc. truck swung open.

Decision soon on oil, butter sale to Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — A decision may be announced soon by the Agriculture Department on whether to sell the Soviet Union some vegetable oil and butter at cut-rate prices.

The Bush administration has been under pressure to add soybean oil to the list of commodities eligible for the Export Enhancement Program, or EEP, so that Moscow can buy the oil at subsidized prices.

Corn oil and butter are also being sought for the EEP arrangement with the Soviets. Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yutterm has the proposal under advisement, although there has been some resistance to expand the subsidy program.

A consumer advocate, Rodney E. Leonard, executive director of the Community Nutrition Institute, told Yutterm in a May 26 letter the soybean industry's proposal for subsidizing oil exports would be "patently unfair" for several reasons.

Soybeans are in short supply in the United States and a bumper harvest this fall will not change the situation. Food price inflation will remain "a constant threat to American consumers until more normal food reserves are in place," he said.

The global supply of soybean oil also is reported to be tighter than normal, Leonard said.

"Soybean processors argue that domestic soybean oil supplies are slightly at a surplus, a condition they say could be eliminated by the Soviet sale," he said. "However, domestic market conditions appear to be tight enough so that the U.S. would likely need to import 60,000 to 70,000 metric tons of food oil for every 100,000 tons of soybean oil sold to the Soviet Union."

Leonard contended that export subsidy programs for farm products "are of doubtful value, even during periods when domestic supplies are large."

But Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, and others in Congress contend that soybean oil should be made available to the Soviet Union under EEP, a program set up in 1985 to counter foreign subsidies.

Harkin said last month that the Soviets want to buy 200,000 to 500,000 tons of U.S. soybean oil, and urged President Bush to approve the sale under the subsidy program. He also asked that corn oil be included.

Of immediate concern, Harkin said, are Argentina's tax laws that allow its processors to undercut U.S. soybean oil prices on the world market by more than $160 per ton.

"The Soviet Union is a potential market for the equivalent of 1 billion bushels of soybeans a year," Harkin said. "We need to move vigorously to develop that market and secure a fair share of it for our soybean industry."

Loan

Q. What happens when payments are not made on a VA-guaranteed home loan?

A. According to the VA Medical Center Office of Public Affairs, failure to make payments on the loan may lead to foreclosure and the loss of the veteran's home. In addition, if the government is required to pay a claim of failure to repay the loan, the veteran will become indebted to the government for the amount of the claim.

Researchers report progress toward AIDS vaccine

MONTREAL (AP) — The first AIDS vaccine tested in the United States on humans triggered their immune systems into action, raising hopes that one vaccine may protect against many forms of the AIDS virus, researchers said.

One top U.S. researcher said he is optimistic enough to recommend wide testing of the vaccine.

"We are making progress, and I think we will be able to make a vaccine eventually," said Dr. Clifford H. Lane, head of AIDS vaccine testing at the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases.

Despite the encouraging results reported Wednesday, many important questions remain about whether this — or any — vaccine can keep people from catching AIDS.

Similar vaccines have failed to prevent AIDS virus infections in chimpanzees.

The vaccine is a synthetic copy of the outer coat of HIV, the virus that causes AIDS in humans. The goal of such vaccines is to warn the body's immune defenses about what the AIDS virus looks like. Then, if all goes well, the body's sentinel blood cells will quickly zero in on the virus and kill the invader if it somehow gets into the bloodstream.

The initial human testing of this approach, carried out on 115 homosexual men who were not infected with AIDS, was intended primarily to see if the vaccine is safe.

However, Lane said he will recommend that the next stage of testing be started to see if the vaccine actually protects people from AIDS infection. In the comparison study, a large group of people at risk of AIDS but not infected would randomly be given either the vaccine or dummy injections.

In the study, those who received the vaccine produced microbe-attacking T-cells that recognized different strains of the AIDS virus, Lane said. Since the virus has mutated into many related forms, some doctors have worried that a vaccine that works against one variety of the virus might be useless against others.

Lane's report was one of several on potential vaccine strategies presented at the week-long Fifth International Conference on AIDS.

Lane said he did not think the men in the initial study received large enough doses of the vaccine to produce neutralizing antibodies, probes produced by another branch of the immune system — the so-called B-cells — that target viruses for destruction.

Many researchers believe that for a vaccine to work, it will have to trigger the production of such neutralizing antibodies. In another report, Dr. Scott D. Putney of Repligen, a biotechnology firm in Cambridge, Mass., said his group had identified the single tiny region of the virus' outer coat that can prompt these killing antibodies.

He and some other scientists believe that small fragments, rather than the whole coat, have a better chance of serving as a vaccine. And while not sure that it will work, he said, "I'm certainly more optimistic than I was a year ago."

Other researchers are exploring a variety of other vaccine strategies, including using killed whole viruses, harmless viruses that carry an extra gene or two from the AIDS virus or synthetic antibodies.

Scientists are trying many different possibilities because they do not know which immune defense has the best chance of beating the virus.

"There are no known cases of recovery from AIDS, so we have no idea of the immune parameters that are important," said Dr. Marc Girard of the Pasteur Institute in Paris.

Some researchers are trying to create a vaccine that will protect monkeys from a simian version of the AIDS virus. They believe this will give them important clues that can easily be adapted to a human AIDS vaccine.

Flood rescue

LAWTON, Okla. — Shelly Bryson wades through waist-deep flood waters Wednesday to rescue her dog and kitten after a series of thunderstorms dumped 4 inches of rain, swelling area creeks and closing most roadways to traffic.

Pi calculations doubled

NEW YORK (AP) — Two mathematicians have calculated pi to 480 million decimal places, more than doubling the mark set last year, according to Columbia University.

Pi is an infinite string of numbers that is the ratio of the circumference of a circle to its diameter. It is roughly equal to 22 divided by seven.

Gregory and David Chudnovsky, brothers who are associate research scientists at Columbia, made their calculation using super-computers, the university said in a statement.

Their approach will allow mathematicians to grow the number from its middle or end without having to start at the beginning, the university said.

The number they produced, if printed out, would be 600 miles long, the university said.

It surpasses a calculation of about 201 million decimal places made last year by a Japanese researcher, Columbia said.

Weather

Thunderstorms accompanied by damaging winds and torrential rains hit northeast Texas, across Louisiana, and into southern Mississippi on Wednesday night and early today.

In central Louisiana, a tornado struck Marksville early today, destroying a brick home and injuring a woman trapped inside. High winds toppled a chimney and downed trees in eastern Baton Rouge Parish.

In Texas, four people were injured Wednesday night when a twister destroyed several homes in Gary on the Texas-Louisiana border.

Other showers and thunderstorms moved ahead of cold front from eastern Kansas into northeast Iowa. An upper air disturbance triggered showers and thunderstorms across much of New England. Showers were widely scattered from northern California into central Colorado.

Today's forecast called for showers and thunderstorms from the lower Mississippi Valley across the Gulf coastal states to the mid and south Atlantic coastal states; severe thunderstorms from eastern Mississippi across Alabama and Georgia into western South Carolina; showers and thunderstorms in the Great Lakes region; scattered showers and thunderstorms over eastern Texas, the upper Mississippi Valley and much of the Plateau; widely scattered thunderstorms over the mountains and eastern sections of Colorado; and showers over New England and eastern New York.

Temperatures were forecast in the 60s over eastern New England and North Dakota; in the 50s and 60s over the upper Great Lakes and Minnesota; in the 90s from south Texas across southern Arizona to interior sections of central and southern California; between 100 and 105 over parts of the lower Rio Grande Valley and southeast California; and in the 70s and 80s throughout the rest of the nation.

Mauro hails ruling to bar incineration in Gulf

AUSTIN (AP) — State Land Commissioner Garry Mauro says he is pleased with a federal decision that bars toxic waste burning in the Gulf of Mexico, but he says Texas should be prepared to fight similar environmental threats in the future.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has refused to issue a permit to allow offshore industrial waste incineration for a site 220 miles east of Brownsville.

EPA officials said the decision was based on the fact that the agency has no regulations governing ocean burning. SeaBurn Inc. of Connecticut sued in federal court to force issuance of a permit, but the court agreed with the EPA.

"To have allowed shipping of immense amounts of toxic wastes through the Gulf would have been a travesty. The EPA decision is the right one," Mauro said Wednesday.

EPA identified high-risk plants Texas plants on the list

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency today identified more than 200 industrial plants in 37 states that it says release enough toxic chemicals to pose a severe cancer risk.

Risk estimates for those exposed are a thousand-fold greater than the cancer risk level most policy makers consider acceptable, said Rep. Henry A. Waxman, who released the figures.

Waxman, chairman of the House Energy and Commerce environment subcommittee, cautioned that the list could change later because the figures are preliminary. Nonetheless, he said, the numbers represent a "stunning demonstration of the urgency of the public health threat" from the now-unregulated toxic emissions.

The estimates assume a 70-year lifetime exposure to the contaminant at the maximum exposure level.

Waxman coupled release of the data with introduction of legislation to control toxic releases from industrial sources and motor vehicles; prevent accidental releases; protect the Great Lakes, which have been seriously damaged by airborne toxic chemicals; and control emissions from small businesses.

Waxman wants to incorporate the legislation into a comprehensive clean air bill that also would address urban pollution and acid rain.

The figures show that 205 facilities pose cancer risks for the most exposed individuals that may exceed 1 in 1,000. Forty-five of these facilities have maximum individual risks of greater than 1 in 100, and one has at least a 1-in-10 risk.

In comparison, when ordering cleanup of toxic waste dumps, the EPA tries to reduce potential cancer risks to 1 in 100,000, or less.

The new estimates represent evaluations of the maximum individual cancer risk that might arise from the inhalation of a single toxic air pollutant from an individual facility. The estimate does not indicate the risk for the entire population in the community, because not everyone would suffer the same exposure. For example, a risk estimate of 1 in 1,000 means that one person out of 1,000 could be expected to contract cancer from maximum exposure to a single pollutant.

The EPA said the new preliminary list is the first of its kind, although Waxman noted that two previous studies found cancer rates two to four times the national average near some major chemical facilities.

There are strong indications the risk is even worse because the data is so limited, Waxman said. For instance, the information only measures cancer risks, but not other potential hazards such as birth defects, nervous system damage or respiratory disease.

The figures do not reflect the combined cancer risk of all air toxics released by each facility, but only measure a single pollutant. Only the cancer risk from direct inhalation of air toxics is evaluated, although numerous studies indicate the potential contamination of crops in nearby areas, or accumulation of toxics in the food chain, can far exceed the risk from breathing the chemicals.

Also, the EPA did not evaluate some of the most important toxics, including benzene and coke oven emissions.

The EPA said the worst plant on the list was the Texaco butadiene plant in Port Neches, Texas, with at least a 1-in-10 risk of cancer. Texaco Chemical Co. objected to the rating in a letter to Waxman, saying that "subsequent information...based on actual test results and updated operating information, indicates the 1984 information used...significantly overstates the plant's current emissions."

The company asked Waxman not to use the information. The lawmaker refused the request, but released Texaco's letter of protest.

A decision concerning the possible pay raise will be issued June 19, Jay Rosser, a deputy press secretary with the governor's office said Wednesday. The governor has three options: veto the bill; sign it into law; or choose not to sign the bill — in which case it will automatically become law.

Rosser said he did not know if the governor intended to approve the legislation. Gregg said he has no indication how the governor will vote, but said money for the pay increase has already been appropriated.

she mostly handles the paperwork involved with the project. She advised calling other board members, but attempts to reach them were unsuccessful.

Because the committee was unable to take any action Wednesday, all business will be put on hold until the next meeting, scheduled for Monday. A main topic committee members will discuss will be "redrawing the (downtown steering coordinator's) job description now that we're a corporation — defining the position," Porter said.

Former steering coordinator Teri Quinones recently resigned from the post to attend graduate school in Arizona.

Porter said that when Quinones first took the job it was necessary for the coordinator to help define the purpose of the organization. "That part of the job is complete. We're looking at it from more of a marketing angle at this point," she said. "We're not going to put up the same job description because things have changed."

Porter said no businesses have been chosen to occupy the caboose and two railroad cars in place at the site now, but that "several people who have approached us... We're currently looking at some of them."

Deaths

Ben Hannum

Ben Hannum, 65, Big Spring, died Tuesday, June 6, 1989 in a local hospital.

Graveside services with full military honors will be at 1:30 p.m. MDT Friday in Fort Bliss National Cemetery in El Paso with Chaplain Ernest Davis officiating under the direction of Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home.

He was born Aug. 9, 1923 in Front Royal, Va. and was an Army veteran of World War II. He came to Big Spring in 1962 from Ripley, Va.

Survivors include four daughters: Darlene Evans, Big Spring; Patricia Hannum, Dawn Shubnok and Barbara Sollenberger, all of Baltimore, Md.; six sons: Bernard Jr., Amarillo; Randolph, Calif.; Winfred, Evans, W. Va.; Romanus, Thomas and Leonard, all of Big Spring; his mother, Hazel Hannum, Richmond, Va.; one brother, Kenneth Edwin Hannum, Elkins, W. Va.; 26 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by one sister, Nellie Mae Hannum.

Pallbearers will be Military Honor Guard.

Urges council to pass drug law

We recommend (the Houston) City Council approve the proposed ordinance which would make it a misdemeanor punishable by up to a $2,000 fine to attempt to buy illegal drugs.

It seems to us that if it is a crime to solicit prostitution — which it is — it can and should also be a crime to solicit drugs.

The very same reservations being expressed in opposition to the drug-solicitation law proposed by the police chief and the mayor could be applied to the prostitution-solicitation law: possible harassment, free-speech concerns, swearing matches between police and citizens.

Yet, we are not aware of any such significant abuse of the prostitution-solicitation law. Any law can be abused; that does not argue against passing laws, but rather seeing to it that there is no abuse.

The drug problem is so bad that society needs every possible weapon to curb it. This ordinance is one more weapon.

Thanks to Cisneros for good job

After eight years of service, Henry Cisneros gives up the mayoral post in San Antonio this week, handing the reins to former Mayor Lila Cockrell.

Thousands of San Antonio residents who have come to love the hard-working, well-respected mayor thanked him for his years of service at a big party Monday in his honor. And we would like to offer our thanks as well.

Cisneros led the Alamo City through tough economic times and managed to lure thousands of new jobs and new development — to both San Antonio and Texas. Most San Antonio residents are able to say they are better off today than they were before he took office.

Marital problems and the critical illness of his son forced Cisneros to step out of the political limelight. But we hope he'll be back, as a candidate for governor or perhaps something greater still.

Don't bet that we've heard the last of Henry.

Legislators missed a chance

Legislators have passed up an opportunity to make Texas highways safer by watering down a bill that would have made it illegal for drivers to have open containers of alcoholic beverages in their vehicles.

In its place, lawmakers approved legislation — sponsored by Sen. Judith Zaffirini, D-Laredo — that would fine people previously convicted of DWI $200 if they are caught with open containers in their cars or trucks.

While Sen. Zaffirini's measure is a step forward in trying to restrict drinking while driving, it's disturbing that the Legislature didn't go all the way with an open container law. The inevitable consequence of the Legislature's failure to take stronger action will be more highway deaths.

The second communist revolution

The images from the communist world have been stunning. Poland has just held elections, Hungary and Czechoslovakia are discussing democratization, and popular nationalist movements have arisen in the western region of the Soviet Union.

China has been all but paralyzed as its citizens demand democratization under the gaze of a statue of Liberty erected opposite the stern gaze of Chairman Mao.

In the Soviet Union, more than 200 million people have watched telecasts of elected delegates to the Congress of People's Deputies denouncing the party, the president, Stalin and the KGB.

Throughout the Third World, young nations that had embraced the egalitarian nature of communist doctrine have reversed themselves, and appealed to the International Monetary Fund for economic guidance.

The West has no active roll to play in the drama engulfing these nations. But Ronald Reagan in his second term and President Bush of late have correctly noted that an economic hand extended during periods of liberalization in communist countries pays dividends to all. In the future, economic relations with the communist bloc should be geared to the degree of which these nations reform themselves and encourage private-market initiatives.

That won't prompt the East to embrace capitalism. But it will stimulate the transition from a political system economically bankrupt at its inception to a new economic and political order befitting a world about to move into the 21st century.

How the 71st Legislature rated

The just-completed session of the Texas Legislature was notable mainly for the number of state leaders and lawmakers who were trying to position themselves to run for more power in the next session. Other than that, there were the usual high jinks, low humor, hardball politics, the armadillo crusade, the plaid-coat brigade.

Too much of importance was put off to the closing days, where too many fast and loose compromises occur, and where too many odd deals go unnoticed. Worse, the overriding issues of school finance equalization, judicial reform, campaign finance reform and worker compensation reform were not addressed at all. Still the House did a better job in moving on these issues, and in taking the initiative on lesser issues.

Don't ease up on immigration yet

The Immigration and Naturalization Service says its get-tough policy toward asylum-seekers in the Brownsville sector is succeeding. Since detention and deportation have replaced bus rides to Miami, what had been a flood of border crossings has slowed to a trickle. So the INS is talking of reducing its manpower in the area. It shouldn't be hasty. Instead, a way to expand manpower all along the border should be sought. Illegal immigration can't be halted any other way.

Hey, take me over . . .

By ART BUCHWALD

There are so many takeovers, mergers and leveraged buyouts in the United States that no one knows who owns what any more.

I saw this with my own eyes the other morning when I stopped by Al & Rose's One-Stop Lunchroom on Route 312.

I ordered breakfast and was sipping my coffee when the Japanese man on the stool next to me told Al he was putting too much butter on the toast.

"What business is it of yours?" Al wanted to know.

"My company, Nummi-Nummi-Summi Limited, bought your store yesterday."

Al was outraged. "They couldn't have. Rose and I are independent."

"It doesn't matter. We bought up every convenience store in America, including this one. Please take this with our compliments."

"What is it?"

"A golden parachute from Tokyo — it's just a small token for each person that we buy out."

"Just a minute," a man with a distinct English accent said. "I don't believe that Nummi-Nummi-Summi still owns this business. My firm, London Grabbers Associates, made a successful raid on Al & Rose's this morning. We bought the whole kit and caboodle for $1 billion."

"That can't be true," the Japanese man retorted. "No one would offer to pay such a sum for this establishment."

"We're not going to keep it all. Our American subsidiary plans to spin off the stools in the lunch room to the West Germans and just hold on to the convenience store."

Rose popped out of the kitchen. "Who ordered eggs and who wanted the corned beef hash?"

A Saudi Arabian businessman walked in with his entourage. He checked the tables and the condition of the jukebox, and then told one of his lackeys, "Call Drexel Burnham and have them make an offer to acquire everything."

"You want to own this place?"

"This and every building on Route 312 from Baltimore to Atlanta."

"Now, see here, my good man. Al & Rose's is ours. You have to deal with us for either the kit or the caboodle," the Englishman said.

"No, we don't. It was sold this morning to the Tortellini Brothers. They put it on the market 15 minutes after they gained control."

Rose asked, "Al, what's going on?"

"We're being bought and sold by every multinational in the Swiss telephone book. Our business is now worth $3 billion, and there are buyers standing in line."

"Oh, yeh," Rose said, "and if they take us over, who is going to cook the scrambled eggs and hash browns?"

"I don't believe they've thought that far ahead, Rose. They're only interested in the market value of our place."

The phone rang and Al answered it. He turned to the people at the counter and yelled, "It's Salomon Brothers. They want me to tell everyone here that they have a mystery client from Brunei who is willing to pay $4 billion for the jukebox alone."

The bidding lasted for over an hour. The Saudi businessman and the Englishman were getting ready to leave when Al shouted, "You each owe me five bucks for breakfast."

The Englishman replied, "Everyone knows that people who deal with takeovers never carry cash. We'll send you a junk bond instead."

Sweetness and light prevail

By TOM RAUM

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Rep. Thomas S. Foley was 30 minutes late for his first meeting as speaker with President Bush. But Bush couldn't have minded, since the Democratic leader was running late from a speech that warmly praised the Republican president.

A few days before, Senate Democratic Leader George Mitchell stood outside Bush's ocean-side vacation home in Maine and publicly hailed the president's NATO arms-control initiatives and his response to the turmoil in China.

At the highest levels of the nation's elective government, sweetness and light is the prevailing theme.

And while this harmony may be threatened by rumblings below, including new efforts by the Republican National Committee to discredit Foley, some political analysts are predicting a period of rare bipartisanship ahead.

There are some striking similarities among Bush, Foley and Mitchell, both in matters of style and personality. And in their appeals to bury partisan differences and work on forging consensus positions, they often sound alike.

Foley's acceptance speech on Tuesday following his election as speaker echoed Bush's own inaugural address invocation of "the age of the offered hand" to the Democratic leadership.

After lavishly praising Republican Leader Robert Michel, Foley said Republicans and Democrats should "come together, put aside bitterness and hostility."

Of Bush, Foley declared: "We

Capitol report

have one president at a time. And he who does not wish President Bush well is no friend of the Republic."

Foley then came to the White House — late — and the love fest continued, with Bush telling a bipartisan group of congressional leaders Foley's election was a "main happening."

Outside, Foley told reporters, "the problem is to turn whatever rancorous atmosphere we have in the Congress . . . back to a spirit of conciliation and cooperation."

Like Bush, who kept a low profile in eight years as vice president and in a string of top appointed jobs before then, Foley earned a reputation for working quietly behind the scenes.

He is far more subdued than his immediate predecessor, the highly partisan Jim Wright, under whom Foley worked as majority leader, as well as the colorful Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill, who was speaker when Foley was majority whip.

Much of the same could be said of Mitchell, a former judge who was appointed to the Senate in 1980 to fill the unexpired term of Sen. Edmund Muskie when Muskie quit to become secretary of state.

Even though he had no prior political experience, Mitchell went on to win in 1982 and 1988 and became widely respected for his hard work and even-handed approach.

As chairman of the Senate Democratic Senatorial Committee, he helped engineer the Democrats' recapture of the Senate in 1986.

All three men — Bush, Mitchell and Foley — have been accused of having a somewhat wooden speaking style and a low-key approach. But all three have made large numbers of friends in both parties.

Mitchell has even been known to hitch a ride to Maine on Air Force Two from time to time, back when then-Vice President Bush headed to his home in Kennebunkport on weekends in the days when he had more time on his hands.

"These three men are, in a single word, professionals," said William Schneider, an political analyst with the American Enterprise Institute.

"Bush values professionalism, you can tell from the kind of appointments he made. Foley worked up through the ranks, trusted and admired by his colleagues. Mitchell was a judge, which might automatically suggest judiciousness. These are people who know what they're doing," Schneider continued.

Stephen Hess, an analyst with Brookings Institution, agrees, says "this is unique for a period in which you have divided government" with one party controlling the White House and another the Congress.

"The sort of conciliation these individuals represent is perfect for this moment. But not necessarily for all times," Hess continued. "It's not necessarily the best way to create innovation, or to take the political risks that are sometimes needed."

Beyond the realm

Kent State, China and glass houses

By STEVE REAGAN

Staff Writer

A reader asked a question the other day that stumped me for an immediate answer.

We were talking about other things when he suddenly asked: "Is there any difference — aside from the numbers involved — between what happened in China last weekend and what happened at Kent State in 1970?"

The incidents he was referring to were the recent killing of thousands of protesters in Beijing and the shooting of four Vietnam protesters at Kent State in 1970, respectively.

I have to admit there isn't much difference at all.

Both tragedies involve the army cracking down on student protests; in both cases the students were largely unarmed; and both — needless to say — were inexcusable.

For those old enough to remember the furor surrounding this country's involvement in Vietnam, what happened at Kent State must be remembered as a very sad chapter in U.S. history.

Students had gathered at the Ohio campus to protest the war, and the National Guard had been called to the site to ensure that the demonstrations didn't get out of hand.

What ensued, of course, is that the Guard — not the students — got out of hand.

Four students — four U.S. citizens participating in their guaranteed right to peaceful demonstration — were gunned down by soldiers whose supposed mission was to protect the very people they killed.

What happened in Beijing last weekend was on a far larger scale than the Kent State killings.

Chinese students, who had peacefully occupied the city's main square for weeks protesting for more democratic reforms, were routed by elements of the Chinese People's Liberation Army. U.S. intelligence reports estimate the number of dead at about 3,000.

So, aside from the number of dead involved, is there really a difference between the two tragedies?

After thinking about it for a few days, I decided that there was, indeed, a difference, and it has to do with the purpose behind the respective demonstrations and the countries' reactions to the killings.

The Kent State demonstrators and the Chinese students were protesting for different goals. The Chinese were demanding their government make a substantial change in the way it governs the people, while the U.S. students were simply protesting against a portion of their government's policy.

To some, that may sound like splitting hairs, but it would explain the difference in the armies' reaction. Anytime you threaten a dictator's power — as was the case in Tiananmen Square — it is naive to assume that the despot will not react forcibly.

In reflection, therefore, what happened at Kent State was a matter of some soldiers losing control. The Chinese Army, in comparison, was acting on the orders of its leaders.

As for the respective governments' reactions to the tragedy, that speaks volumes. After Kent State, public and private indignation was so strong that tighter controls were put in place to try to ensure that such an event did not reoccur.

In China, however, official response has simply been to dig in further. This action, however, may return to haunt the government.

The latest dispatches from that country speak of factional fighting between PLA units, and a general sense of chaos that has gripped the Chinese capital.

This is not to say that the country's communist form of government is in danger of toppling, but it has lost a great deal of credibility with its people — and that is a sure-fire signal of a country in turmoil.

So, what does all this mean? I think it means that we as a country should denounce what happened in China last weekend. At the same time, however, we should remember the old saying about people who live in glass houses.

Panel to review Medicare plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, after narrowly rejecting an attempt to postpone major parts of the new catastrophic health provisions of Medicare, has ordered a committee review of the program.

The aim of the Finance Committee review is to consider reducing the income tax surcharge on the elderly that pays for the new benefits.

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., fell two votes short Wednesday evening of attaching an amendment to separate legislation that would have forced a delay of at least one year in the so-called "supplemental premium" imposed this year on Medicare-eligible individuals to pay for a package of benefits that start taking effect next January.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, seeking to head off the McCain attempt, introduced a substitute amendment that put the Senate on record as instructing the Finance Committee to look into reducing the surtax if it is shown that more money is being collected than will be needed.

Finance Committee Chairman Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, first raised that possibility several weeks ago but the administration, as well as influential House leaders, are on record against any tax rollback.

In debate on McCain's proposal, Bentsen also pledged to look closely at ways to exempt from the catastrophic surtax those retired Americans who have equal coverage under "Medigap."

Tieless teacher wins reprieve

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — A math teacher fired for failing to wear a tie to class has been vindicated in court, but could face the same problem next year if a school board decides to ban denim and require neckwear.

"If they're smart, they'll quit while they're behind. Otherwise, they'll get farther behind," said Bill Webb, who was suspended for insubordination three times and finally fired last December.

Judge Charlie King said Wednesday the Mason County Board of Education erred when it suspended the 46-year-old Webb. King said a dress policy drafted by the superintendent last year was improperly imposed and Webb had every right to ignore it.

But under the judge's order, a similar dress code can be put into effect by the school board. Board member Harry Siders, who introduced the motion to fire Webb last Dec. 19, said the matter would come up at the board's meeting June 19.

"If they go on and say they'll ban any fabric made of denim, I won't go back," said Webb, a Gallipolis, Ohio, farmer who had taught across the Ohio River at Point Pleasant High School for 19 years.

Webb was hit with three suspensions of four, 11 and 30 days, the last two without pay, for challenging Superintendent Charles Chambers' requirement that male teachers wear dress pants and neckties.

First lady plans low-key birthday

WASHINGTON (AP) — First lady Barbara Bush observes her 64th birthday today but has no particular plans for celebrating the event, says her press secretary, Anna Perez.

"It will be very low key," Ms. Perez said.

Actually, she already has had one birthday party of sorts. Members of the First Congressional Church of Kennebunkport, Maine, presented Mrs. Bush with a home-baked birthday cake last Sunday during a social session after church services.

The Bushes spent the weekend at their vacation home in southern Maine on the way home from a week-long visit to Europe.

The first lady isn't the only Bush with a birthday this month. President Bush turns 65 on Monday.

Mrs. Bush will spend part of her birthday attending to a favorite cause: literacy and education. She speaks at graduation ceremonies in Washington tonight for 800 students, mostly adults and older teens, who earned high-school equivalency diplomas.

BEIJING — A Beijing bicyclist rides past a company of Chinese foot-soldiers marching away from Tiananmen Square Wednesday. The troops were making a sweep after a convoy of several hundred trucks moved up the street firing indiscriminately in the air and into the foreign diplomatic compound from which this photo was taken.

Li praises soldiers for weekend assault

BEIJING (AP) — Premier Li Peng appeared in public today for the first time since the military launched its bloody invasion of Beijing. The government issued new martial law orders demanding that student leaders surrender.

Li gave a rousing speech to hundreds of soldiers inside the Great Hall of the People. "You've worked hard, comrades," he told them.

Li's speech was shown on television after hundreds of military trucks roared into the city center with new supplies. Busloads of foreigners, fearing new violence, rushed to the airport to catch emergency flights out.

The occupied capital's streets were relatively calm.

Li is believed to be among the leaders who pushed for the military crackdown that ended in the weekend massacre of hundreds of unarmed civilians as troops cleared Tiananmen Square of pro-democracy protesters.

He had not appeared in public since May 25, five days after declaring martial law in the capital, and his appearance indicated hardliners may have prevailed over leaders who opposed turning troops on the citizenry. The student protesters had demanded Li resign for declaring martial law after weeks of pro-democracy protests, primarily in Beijing.

The martial law orders issued today called the leaders of independent student and union groups "important members of the counter-revolutionary turmoil." It demanded that all members of the groups, leaders of the pro-democracy movement smashed by the military, turn themselves in to police.

The order appeared to suggest the government was planning large-scale arrests of activists who led the movement for a freer and less corrupt China.

Radio and television gave telephone numbers for people to call to report those who stood up against the military takeover of the city.

In a continuing propaganda campaign supporting the harsh military actions, national television repeatedly showed footage of crowds attacking soldiers and burning vehicles during the crackdown in Beijing on Saturday night and Sunday.

It showed gruesome shots of three soldiers who were burned to death. One was disemboweled.

POWs reported held in Vietnam

TOKYO (AP) — Five or six American POWs were sighted in Vietnam by a Japanese Buddhist monk who spent 14 years in Vietnamese re-education camps before being freed in January, a Japanese news report said today.

Ganshin Yoshida, 65, now in a Sapporo hospital being treated for ailments resulting from his detention, told Kyodo News Service on Wednesday that "five or six" American prisoners of war were at the camp where he was last held.

The location of the camp was not disclosed.

Kyodo quoted Yoshida as saying he did not know what the living conditions of the POWs were like because they lived in a separate building from him.

An official of the Vietnamese Embassy in Tokyo called Yoshida's remarks "groundless."

"Our government has repeatedly discussed that issue in the past. There are no more American POWs" in Vietnam, the official told The Associated Press.

Yoshida, formerly a city councilman on Japan's northernmost main island of Hokkaido, became a monk in 1966 and emigrated to Vietnam, where he set up a temple in Saigon, now called Ho Chi Minh City.

Kyodo said U.S. government officials received the information about the POWs through Yoshida's daughter in Tokyo on Wednesday.

An official of the U.S. Embassy in Tokyo would not confirm that the information had been conveyed. "All reports and information concerning MIAs (missing in action) in Vietnam will be sent to the home government for analysis by experts," he said.

Bhutto makes no-nuke promise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto of Pakistan ended talks with President Bush and other U.S. officials after winning a commitment for new F-16 fighter sales and promising not to provoke a regional arms race by producing nuclear weapons.

She made the promise in an address Wednesday to a joint meeting of Congress in which she urged the United States to work aggressively for a broad-based political settlement in Afghanistan and said that Pakistan's fledgling democracy deserves continued U.S. military and economic assistance.

Mrs. Bhutto, a 1974 graduate of Harvard University, was attending Harvard's commencement ceremonies today and addressing members of the Harvard Alumni Association.

On Friday she is scheduled to meet with officials of the United Nations in New York before leaving the United States on Saturday.

The F-16 sale, said to be worth $1.4 billion, will give Pakistan a total 100 of the sophisticated warplanes.

MiG 29 crashes at Paris Air Show

PARIS (AP) — A Soviet MiG-29 fighter crashed and exploded today at the Paris Air Show, but no injuries were reported on the ground.

It was not immediately known how many people were aboard the plane or whether they survived the crash.

The fighter was making its final pass over Le Bourget airfield before landing when two pieces came away from the aircraft and it plunged to the ground and burst into flames.

He apparently lost an engine and tried to use his airplane parachute. He didn't make it," said John Klinghult, manager of operations for the USA national pavilion who witnessed the crash. "He was about 500 feet in the air. There was a big burst of flames and a lot of smoke."

The crash occurred in the middle of the airfield, up to 700 feet away from the nearest spectators, witnesses said.

The two MiG 29s at the airshow arrived on Monday as part of a large contingent of Soviet aircraft on display at the show.

Business groups oppose mandated family leave

WASHINGTON — Four congressmen and a coalition of small business groups Wednesday stepped up opposition to the Family and Medical Leave Act, saying the proposal would discourage employers from offering a menu of benefits for their employees.

Iowa Republican Fred Grandy joined with three Democrats — Timothy Penny of Minnesota, Charles Stenholm of Texas and Robert Carr of Michigan — in supporting business groups' efforts to kill the bill.

The opponents of the Family and Medical Leave Act added nothing new to the fierce debate over the legislation, which is opposed by business and supported by labor organizations and women's groups. But their Capitol Hill news conference demonstrated that rhetoric over the legislation is heating up as the House and the Senate prepare to vote on the bill early this summer.

On the other side of the issue, the AFL-CIO is collecting "signatures" of American children across the nation in support of the bill. The labor coalition is planning to bring the petitions to Washington later this month as part of its campaign for the leave bill and a comprehensive child-care proposal the union also supports.

The family leave legislation would guarantee 10 weeks of unpaid leave to parents to care for a new baby or a sick child. It also would entitle employees to take up to 13 weeks of unpaid leave per year to recover from a serious illness.

"Providing leave is a laudable goal," Penny said. "But I fear passage of this bill will actually reduce fringe benefits."

Grandy echoed that concern, saying businesses would be forced to cut other employee programs to make up for the expense of granting family leave.

"A benefit mandated ultimately means a benefit denied," the Iowa Republican said.

But the lawmakers, conceding that public opinion polls have revealed strong public support for family leave legislation, said they will offer alternative bills so that they will not be seen as opposing a "family" issue.

1955 Hyperions install officers

The 1955 Hyperion Club met for lunch at Waldrop's Well, Lamesa. Mrs. W.L. Wilson Jr., president, thanked the officers who served with her, noting that they helped make it a good year.

Seventeen members answered roll call. Mrs. LaVoy Yarborough, daughter of Mrs. W.A. Moore Jr., was welcomed as a guest.

Minutes of the April meeting were read and approved as read.

Wilson presented gifts of pot-pourri to her officers, and stated that Mrs. Robert F. Penner would install the officers.

"A good club year was the result of the 'magical' spirit of cooperation enjoyed by the members of the 1955 Hyperion Club," Penner said.

The following officers were installed: president — Mrs. W. A. Moore Jr.; vice president — Mrs. James Killian; corresponding secretary — Mrs. H. B. Perry; recording secretary — Mrs. Carl Small; treasurer — Mrs. Loyd Underwood; parliamentarian — Mrs. W. L. Wilson Jr.

Penner blew 'whiffle dust' (glitter) into the air; each officer was presented an imaginary box containing their duties for the coming year.

She also presented the new officers with miniature items they would need and use to fulfill their duties.

The next meeting will be in September.

Workshops offered for singles

A weekend of workshops for singles is scheduled for June 23-25 at Methodist Camp Butman, near Sweetwater. The conference is expected to draw hundreds of singles from the area, according to a news release.

Approximately 10 workshops will focus on concerns of single persons with an underlying theme of establishing and maintaining intimacy in relationships, according to Emily Ward, First United Methodist Church coordinator of the Singles In Ministry program. All singles are invited to register. Deadline is June 19. Registration fee is $50, and includes all costs on fees except transportation expenses.

Ward noted that Camp Butman is a rustic, oak-groved, setting, one that will allow singles to wander woodland trails, yet is equipped with modern learning facilities and lodging.

"Such gatherings are important for those of us who are single," Ward said. "Whether one lives in a large or small community, but especially in small towns where singles may feel isolated from the larger married community. This is a fact of life that formerly married persons do not learn easily or willingly. However, once we accept this, there are many positive aspects to singlehood. These workshops are often a turning point for singles."

Leading the conference, titled "The Intimate Single," are John Christie, singles pastor at Pulaski Heights United Methodist Church, Little Rock, Ark.; and Rev. Dixie Robertson, Northwest Conference director. Robertson is a former associate minister of First Methodist Church, Big Spring.

To register, call First United Methodist Church at 267-6394.

12th annual reunion scheduled

The 12th Annual "Cannibal Draw Reunion" will be conducted held Saturday at La Posada Restaurant, with visitation, hand shaking and hugging beginning at 6:00 p.m., said Mack Underwood, reunion organizer.

A Mexican dinner buffet will follow. Anyone who doesn't prefer Mexican food may order from the menu. Following the meal everyone will introduce themselves and state where they now reside.

A hand-made quilt, made by Ernestine (Tiny) Gulley Styber, will be given to the "lucky ticket holder," Underwood said.

Members, their spouse, or widows or widowers of deceased members are eligible to win the quilt. The remainder of the program will be dedicated to Dr. Clyde E. Thomas Jr., who has been a loyal and devoted participant of the reunion, Underwood said.

"He has missed only one of the 11 meetings held to date," Underwood noted.

"This is just a friendly way for this group of Dr. Clyde's lifetime friends to pay tribute to him, for his many years of service and dedication in his profession to the people in this community, and to say — once again, thanks for all those wonderful memories."

Underwood noted that because of the tremendous response, there will be standing room only.

Early childbirth encouraged

From LADIES' HOME JOURNAL A Meredith Magazine

Experts today are encouraging women to have children as early as possible, depending on their circumstances.

"If a woman is 35 or 36, I tell her to get on with it," says Dr. Luella Klein, professor and chairman of the department of obstetrics and gynecology at Emory University in Atlanta.

In a recent report in Ladies' Home Journal, experts from the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists warned about risks affecting women who delay childbirth until their late 30s or beyond.

First, they have statistically higher chances than younger women of having a baby with Down's syndrome, a birth defect marked by mental retardation and physical defects. Second, they run a slightly higher risk of having a miscarriage.

After age 35, fertility declines for several reasons. Some women ovulate less frequently and there's a greater chance one has had or may develop endometriosis or infections that affect the fallopian tubes.

Thanks to modern prenatal tests, women who do get pregnant after 35 can find out whether their babies have serious birth defects fairly early in pregnancy. One common method is amniocentesis, a test of amniotic fluid to check for fetal abnormalities. After testing, women have the option of deciding whether to continue the pregnancy. Overall, however, a woman's chances of delivering a healthy baby after 35 are very good.

Man says a body should remain intact

DEAR ABBY: Having read the letter in your column urging people to donate their organs after death, I am appalled by the piece entitled "To Remember Me" written by Robert Test. It was positively gruesome!

The author was asking that his body be dismembered so that it is no longer a body — in order for others to live a fuller life.

As many others do, I consider my body as the temple that God built to house my soul. It was not meant to be cut to pieces at death as if it were an old radio or some other non-living structure.

As far as I'm concerned, that letter was totally depressing. — T.G. HAYES, CLIFTON, N.J.

DEAR MR. HAYES: I cannot believe that the God in whom I believe would object if a blind person were to regain his sight through a cornea transplant, or that a dying baby were to miraculously survive following a liver transplant.

I am sorry that you found that letter depressing. Perhaps if someone you loved had had years added to his or her life due to an organ transplant, you would have a more tolerant view of donating organs after death.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: In the middle of April, I saw a movie on television called "A Deadly Silence." It was about a 16-year-old girl who paid somebody to kill her father. She was a victim of incest, and she feared for her little sister.

Abby, I, too, am an incest survivor. My father was very religious — and nobody ever suspected a thing. The incest started when I was about 3 or 4 and lasted until I was 18. I remember hiding under the bed so my father wouldn't find me.

I never told anyone because I didn't want my dad to get arrested, or my parents to divorce. I never went to counseling. I never even knew any was available until I saw that movie. I thought I was alone in this. I suppose I probably should go, because my feelings are starting to surface in my relationship with my boyfriend. I am 22 years old now and living away from home and supporting myself.

To this day, my father has never said he was sorry. I wouldn't go back home for a million dollars.

Abby, please tell kids whom to report this to if this is happening to them, too. I'll bet there are a surprising number of them.

Thanks for listening. I didn't know who to write to, but I've always read your column and thought maybe you could help me. You did just by listening! — ANGRY AND HURT

DEAR ANGRY: "Just listening" is not enough. You need to resolve your feelings of anger and resentment. Counseling is available. Call your county family service agency or your local mental health association. How sad that you did not know that any child who is being molested by anyone — family member, neighbor or stranger — should immediately tell a trusted adult, a teacher, counselor or policeman.

Adults who have not come to terms with themselves after having been sexually molested as children will forever suffer from feelings of low self-esteem and unearned guilt.

DEAR ABBY: About 10 years ago, through your Operation Dear Abby, I started writing to a young Marine named Nick Carpenter who was stationed in Cuba. We became great friends and I wrote several times a week for 10 months.

Then he took a leave and came to visit me. We became engaged during his visit, and on Feb. 27 of this year we were married in Camp Lejeune, N.C.

I don't think either of us could be happier. Thanks, Abby. I would never have met the great guy I married if it hadn't been for you. — KATHERINE HERRIN-CARPENTER

MEDICAID ELIGIBILITY UPDATE FOR NURSING HOME CARE

I thought you would be interested to know about a major step taken by the Texas Legislature to ensure that our state's elderly have the nursing home care they need without unreasonable financial hardship on family members.

As a result of legislation recently passed, beginning September 1, 1989, elderly Texans with incomes of up to $1,104 a month will be eligible for Medicaid supplements to pay for their nursing home care. This is a dramatic improvement over the current income cap in Texas of only $715 a month — one of the lowest in the nation. Many people needing nursing home care but with incomes of only $800 or $900 a month have been unable to get the care they need, or have had to rely on family members for their support.

The Texas Department of Human Services, which administers Medicaid, estimates that some 5,000 elderly needing nursing home care will become eligible under the new income cap of $1,104.

The Legislature also expressed its intent that in subsequent years the income eligibility cap should be increased to stay current with increases in social security benefits. In addition, the Legislature asked that "to the extent permitted by federal law," these same new income criteria be applied to community care for aged and disabled persons.

We feel this action is a clear sign that our elected representatives in Austin are growing in their awareness of and commitment to the needs of the elderly in Texas. And we feel it is important to let them know that we appreciate their realistic and timely attention to these matters.

Sincerely,
Billy Hendrix

Williams, 'Dead Poets' wonderful

By the Associated Press

John Keating is the kind of teacher of which every student dreamed but rarely encountered. He tickles the ribs, he fires the mind, he preaches nonconformity. He even instructs his pupils to rip out the innocuous introduction from a book of poetry. Obviously, John Keating isn't going to last at a rock-ribbed New England prep school in the 1960s.

Robin Williams portrays John Keating in "Dead Poets Society" with only a trace of Adrian Cronauer of "Good Morning, Vietnam." While trying to rouse his bored students, he demonstrates how Shakespeare could be done by Marlon Brando and John Wayne. Otherwise, he plays it straight-arrow, and he is wonderful.

"Dead Poets Society" itself is wonderful, like a cool oasis amid the arid summer of sequels. It is that rare comedy-drama that stimulates the mind as well as the emotions.

The title may be a turnoff for some folks, but it shouldn't be. When Keating was a student at the school, he and other freethinkers formed the society to read poetry and plot against the faculty. Unbeknownst to him, his own students revive the custom in an obvious collision course with the authorities.

The film focuses more on the boys than on their teacher, and they are portrayed with true insight. The central figure is Neil Perry (Robert Sean Leonard), who yearns to be an actor despite his father's stern opposition. Neil's roommate is Todd Anderson (Ethan Hawke) who is so withdrawn he can't speak up in class.

With their teacher's inspiration, Neil decides to defy his father, and Todd comes out of his shell. There is a terrific scene in which Williams forces Todd to recite a poem he had written. The other boys in the cast are equally well drawn; they talk and behave as you would expect rich boys of the period to.

Australian Peter Weir, who captured the American scene in "Witness," does it again in "Dead Poets Society." His direction of the young actors is brilliant, and he keeps Williams on a tight rein. Tom Schulman's script is literate and clever, veering to the ultimate tragedy. The ending may jar some viewers unless they note the portents along the way.

Robin Williams should be applauded not only for his performance but for taking a role that is not a star turn in a film that may have to hunt for an audience. A major factor in the film is John Seale's gorgeous photography of the New England scene (actually Delaware).

A Touchstone Picture produced by Steven Haft, Paul Junger Witt and Tony Thomas, "Dead Poets Society" is the biggest movie treat of the year so far. Rated PG for language and intensity. Running time: 126 minutes.

Motion Picture Association of America rating definitions:

G — General audiences. All ages admitted.

PG — Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.

PG-13 — Special parental guidance strongly suggested for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.

Jackson knows how to touch the heart

By the Associated Press

Freddie Jackson says he was born into singing.

"My mother went into labor during a concert; she was singing in church. Ten hours after that, I was born."

As a child, he sang gospel in church in New York's Harlem. His mother still sings in the choir. Now, at age 31, his forte is romantic ballads, but he can sing other styles, too.

As of May 27, his latest Capitol Records album, "Don't Let Love Slip Away," was still in the top 50, after 42 weeks on Cashbox Magazine's best-selling rhythm 'n' blues chart. At the same time, his latest single, "Crazy (for Me)," was No. 40 and climbing.

He used his vocal versatility to sing the country song, "Your Cheatin' Heart," and the standard,

"The ladies in church would expect me to touch their hearts and make them cry, so they'd feel whatever spiritual contact with God they needed to. When I didn't touch them, they would let me know."

— Freddie Jackson.

"As Time Goes By," on the Songwriters Hall of Fame show. It was taped at Radio City Music Hall to be televised in June.

Jackson says his soulful ballad style came from his childhood days as church soloist.

Jackson was one of seven children. Two died. The rest sang five-part harmony. "People used to call us the original Jackson Five. The other four were stage shy. I wasn't. I went to the Apollo Theater Saturdays as a child. I wanted to sweat like Otis Redding sweat on stage."

Jackson cut his first album, "Rock Me Tonight," in 1985. It and "Just Like the First Time" went platinum with more than a million copies sold. "Don't Let Love Slip Away" has sold more than 500,000 and is certified gold.

"Freddie Jackson has grown," he says, "but his heart is still in the same place. I know what my principles are. I haven't let all the fine things that have come into my life bend me out of shape."

Jackson had a chance to go to New York's High School of Music and Art, but he wanted to be with his friends so he went to high school with them, studied business and took a job in word processing.

"It enabled me to have a solid job and backbone for when I was trying to pursue my career as an entertainer," he says. "It paid well, and at night I played clubs."

He auditioned for Mystic Merlin when its lead singer became a minister and sang on its last recording, in Los Angeles. The group disbanded and he returned to word processing in New York.

Melba Moore heard Jackson sing at Freddie's Supper Club in Manhattan.

NBC moves toward 52-week 'season' with new programs

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC Entertainment President Brandon Tartikoff, having long favored the notion that the networks should run original programming year-round, is taking a small step in that direction by putting on three new series and bringing back new "Highway to Heaven" episodes later this summer.

As usual, and despite evidence that the networks are losing viewers to cable and videocassettes, most summer TV fare will consist of reruns.

CBS is introducing one new comedy series, though, "Doctor, Doctor," this month. And ABC will air new episodes of "Hooperman," and otherwise rearrange its schedule. In August, ABC will premiere the new Diane Sawyer-Sam Donaldson newsmagazine, tentatively titled "Prime Time." ABC will also have prime-time baseball on Thursdays in June and July.

NBC, which is so successful it barely had any room for new shows on its fall schedule, is using the pre-season to give air time to some new products. No air dates have been set, but two of the new shows on tap, most likely to premiere in August, are:

— "Knight and Daye," starring Jack Warden ("Crazy Like a Fox") and Mason Adams ("Lou Grant") as a one-time radio act reluctantly reunited after 40 years. Hope Lange plays Adams' wife. The series comes from Lowell Ganz and Babaloo Mandell, who wrote "Laverne and Shirley" and the hit movie "Splash."

— "13 East," set in a hospital and starring Diana Bellamy as a supervising nurse and Ellen Regan as a trainee.

One other half-hour comedy, yet to be picked from among shows in development for NBC, will also make a bow this summer, while "Highway to Heaven," the hour drama starring Michael Landon as an Earth-roving angel, will return with 10 new episodes. It was absent this past season.

ABC is basically in the business of rearranging deck chairs this summer, giving "Coach" a shot at a better time period on Tuesdays after "Roseanne." "Hooperman" will return June 14 in the Wednesday time period vacated by "Coach," which makes its move June 20, bumping "Have Faith," which will move to Sundays, filling half of the hour left empty by the cancellation of "Moonlighting." Phew. "Thursday Night Baseball" premieres June 8 and runs through July 27 in the time periods now populated by canceled shows.

CBS is expected to once again let viewers see the really bad stuff that didn't even make it to air by reviving the "CBS Summer Playhouse," a weekly display of busted pilots. But the network will add one new show, "Doctor, Doctor," a comedy starring Matt Frewer ("Max Headroom") as an idealistic young M.D. trying to

"Love Season" (Orpheus) — Alex Bugnon

The first cut on "Love Season," keyboardist Alex Bugnon's debut album, is fantastic — a playful, strutting number that jumps out from the speakers with a shout of joy.

That the rest of the album fails to live up to "Going Out," is less the fault of the material than the high standard set by the lead song. The seven other songs on "Love Season" are pretty good, too.

"Going Out" should be required listening for anyone who thinks — maybe with good reason — that most jazz fusion music is too sterile and mechanical, music for admiring rather than enjoying.

Bugnon brings a lot of humanity and feeling to his music, and avoids allowing his varied influences (his background includes classical, jazz, gospel and rock) to meld into faceless mush. As they say, this guy's got personality.

The album shifts effortlessly from elegant to all-out jams, with high points including a sharp version of the Brenda Russell hit, "Piano in the Dark," the funky "Falling for You" and "Magie Noire," a percussion and synthesizer party.

Heroic acts among Beijing carnage

BEIJING (AP) — A young woman wanted to tell the invading soldiers they were unwelcome in her city. Thinking they wouldn't shoot a woman, she walked fearlessly toward their lines.

They fired. She fell. A bullet wound turned her white shirt scarlet.

A stranger ran to her body. Bullets ricocheted by his feet as he hauled her onto his back and carried her toward safety. The woman, bleeding heavily from a chest wound, was loaded onto the platform of a bicycle pedicab and taken to a hospital.

The incident Sunday on Tiananmen Square is one of thousands of heroic acts that have marked the public's response to the five-day martial law crackdown in Beijing.

From moments of great courage to ones of quiet defiance, the people of China's capital have shown they will not soon capitulate to the army's brutal occupation. Troops continue to fire automatic weapons into unarmed but unyielding crowds.

"The people of Beijing will not die," said a worker as he stood watching troops on Tiananmen Square Wednesday. "The people will be victorious."

To stop soldiers from ripping their way into the city's center Saturday night and Sunday morning, citizens lay down their lives in front of trucks and tanks.

At one point, a young man in a white shirt stopped a line of tanks as they rolled out of Tiananmen Square onto Changan Jie, the city's main boulevard whose name means the Avenue of Eternal Peace.

Placing his arm up and palm out like a traffic policeman, the defiant youth stood gallantly in front of the tanks.

As the lead tank moved right, he moved right. As it moved left, he did as well. Astonished onlookers first cheered and then ran out onto the street to rescue the man as the military convoy prepared to run him down.

"Only the people can do things like that," said an elderly man, who witnessed the incident. "It shows our power."

On street corners throughout the city, groups huddled together to tell episodes of singular bravery.

At the Muxidi intersection on Saturday, machine-gun fire hit a middle-aged man in the back, sending him sprawling. Bullets whipped about his body. Tear gas canisters exploded overhead.

Zhao Min brought his bicycle-pedicab to the middle of the road, picked up the wounded man and brought him to safety.

"He was down and needed someone," said the 19-year-old after he returned from bringing the man to a nearby hospital. "There's no time to think now about why. These are fascist troops invading my city. He's a defender so he's my brother."

At the Beijing Radio station on Sunday, an announcer broadcasting on the English-language service read a report that troops had killed thousands of people, mostly innocent victims.

"Please remember June the 3rd, 1989, the most tragic event happened in the Chinese capital Beijing. Thousands of people, most of them innocent civilians, were killed by fully-armed soldiers."

The maverick announcer was replaced by a man who repeated the Communist Party's approved version of events.

Landmark burns

AMARILLO — Fire early Wednesday gutted the Amarillo Livestock Auction Co., which first opened for business Dec. 24, 1935 and was once considered the largest livestock auction company in the world. Fire officials are not yet sure as to the cause of the blaze.

Hungary joins nations condemning China

TOKYO (AP) — The first Soviet bloc communist party Wednesday denounced the military crackdown on pro-democracy protesters in China, while Taiwan announced it will end a 40-year ban on telephone and mail links with the China mainland to help spread reports of the carnage.

Hungarian Communist Party chief Karoly Grosz condemned the military action in Beijing last weekend, saying it had shocked his nation.

The Chinese events have had special repercussions in Hungary, where many remember the bloody end of a 1956 revolt crushed by Soviet armed forces.

Hundreds, and possibly thousands, died when Chinese troops moved into Beijing to crush the student movement.

In a statement issued by the official news agency MTI, Grosz said "the tragedy in China has shocked Hungarian Socialist Workers' Party members and Hungarian society as a whole."

"I firmly declare that we deeply condemn violence and fratricidal war. These methods have nothing to do with socialism," Grosz said.

In Taipei, Taiwan, Communications Minister Chang Chien-pang said telephone service to 80 cities on the mainland will begin Saturday through a switching center in Hong Kong, and mail service will start in a week.

Shaw said this will not change Taiwan's policy of refusing to have any official contacts with the mainland government because the telecommunication and postal administrations of the rival governments will not be directly linked.

The Nationalists in Taiwan were defeated in a civil war in China in 1949, but continue to claim they are the legitimate government of all China. The Nationalists and Communists are technically still at war.

Also on Wednesday, the Taiwan government-run Broadcasting Corp. of China began a 24-hour news broadcast to China on short-wave channels. The station also established a hot line to receive telephone calls from Chinese listeners.

In Miaoli, 75 miles southwest of Taipei, about 10,000 people held a rally and condemned the mainland government for the killings.

In an interview by the mass-circulation Bild newspaper of Hamburg, West Germany, Chancellor Helmut Kohl suggested the ideology governing China and other socialist nations is dying.

President schedules conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush will hold his first prime-time televised news conference tonight and will probably break with tradition by answering questions for more than a half hour, his spokesman said Wednesday.

The session, at 8 p.m. EDT, comes amid confusion and violence in China and the evacuation of Americans from that country.

Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Bush would open with a prepared statement but likely would not make any announcements, as he did Monday in ending military sales to China.

Bush will meet with reporters in a stately, chandeliered East Room of the White House. He has had numerous news conferences in his first 4½ months in office, but they usually have been informal, quickly called affairs in the White House press briefing room.

Explaining why Bush was holding a formal news conference, Fitzwater said, "Well, it's just one of those things that had to be done at some point."

Traditionally, White House news conferences run for 30 minutes, but the president frequently answers questions for 40 or 45 minutes. Fitzwater described Bush as "a president who has trouble confining himself to 30 minutes."

Joshing with television correspondents, Fitzwater said, "Will you stay on the air no matter how long he goes?"

Fitzwater said it was fair to say that Bush would go on longer than 30 minutes. "Maybe we'll make a deal that says we'll do a minimum of 30, and after that let him call it whenever he's done — something like that."

Fitzwater said Bush was not making any special preparations for the news conference, although his Wednesday afternoon schedule was largely clear of appointments.

Former President Reagan used to study briefing papers and sample questions for days and hold one or two dress rehearsals with staff members.

Fitzwater said Bush has held from 16 to 23 news conferences, depending on what's counted as a news conference.

In another development, Fitzwater said Bush will visit Yellowstone National Park and the Grand Tetons in Wyoming on Monday after proposing legislation to overhaul the Clean Air Act.

The press spokesman said Bush would stop in Lincoln, Neb., on the way home Tuesday to deliver a speech on alternative fuels, also part of the environmental package to be unveiled Monday.

While at Yellowstone, the president will visit some of the areas charred from the fires last summer that are now undergoing revegetation, Fitzwater said.

Former local boxing coach at Olympic training camp

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Former Big Spring boxing coach J.V. Martinez now living in Bryan, has been named by the USA Amateur Boxing Federation to coach at a training camp at the U.S. Olympic Center in Colorado Springs, Colo. The camp has been underway since May 20.

Three U.S. boxing teams have been chosen from the camp. The competitions will be two 1989-USSR Amateur Boxing Duals and the Canada Cup.

The bouts against the Soviets are slated for June 10 in Atlantic City, N.J., and June 13 in Orlando, Fla. The Canada Cup in June started Wednesday and will conclude Monday. The bouts will be televised on the USA Channel or ESPN.

Three-time Olympic coach Pat Nappa of Syracuse, N.Y., is overseeing the coaching staff at the camp. Other coaches besides Martinez are Glenn Bailey of Squaw Valley, Calif., Charlie Daniels of Pittsburgh, Pa., Jose Santiago of the U.S. Army in Fort Carson, Colo., and Texan Edward Vasquez of Troup.

Gretzky MVP ninth time

TORONTO (AP) — The Great One is the greatest, again.

Wayne Gretzky of the Los Angeles Kings accepted the Hart Trophy on Wednesday night, the ninth time in 10 years he has been named the NHL's most valuable player.

Winning the Hart capped an astounding 10-month period for Gretzky. It started last August with the blockbuster deal that sent him to the Kings from the Edmonton Oilers. His wedding to Janet Jones, considered the closest thing Canada could get to a royal wedding, followed, and next was the birth of their daughter.

Gretzky helped the Kings improve to fourth from 18th place overall in the NHL standings, and he had an emotional roller-coaster ride in the playoffs when the Kings eliminated the Oilers.

And just when everybody was about to declare Mario Lemieux the NHL's No. 1 superstar, Gretzky returned to center stage to become the first player in NHL history to win the same trophy nine times.

"It means more to me this time than ever before," Gretzky said. "I think the very first one I won was something I would never forget ... but tonight is real special."

Special to everyone but Lemieux, who was sour in defeat.

Since 1982, the player who won the Art Ross Trophy for the top scorer has added the Hart to his trophy case.

Lemieux won his second consecutive scoring title last season with 199 points, the most ever by a player other than Gretzky. For most of the season, Lemieux was scoring at a clip that if, had he been able to continue, would have surpassed Gretzky's single-season points mark of 215.

"In the past, they gave the Hart to the best player or top scorer. I don't know why it changed," Lemieux said. "Nothing in this league makes sense."

"The facts are there."

The Montreal Canadiens, who lost to Calgary in the Stanley Cup final last month, gained some revenge on the Flames, winning four of the five categories in which they went head-to-head.

Patrick Roy won the Vezina as the best goaltender; Chris Chelios the Norris Trophy for the best defenseman; Guy Carbonneau the Selke as the best defensive forward, and Pat Burns the Adams as best coach. Joe Mullen was the only Flame to get an individual honor, winning his second Lady Byng for the most gentlemanly player.

Defenseman Brian Leetch was named winner of the Calder Trophy for the best rookie while Bryan Trottier of the New York Islanders won the King Clancy Trophy for community work.

The Canadiens had Roy and Chelios named to the all-star team. Joining them were Mullen, Lemieux, Luc Robitaille of the Los Angeles Kings and Paul Coffey of the Pittsburgh Penguins.

Gretzky amassed 267 of a possible 315 points, including 40 of 63 first-place votes, to outdistance Lemieux and Steve Yzerman of the Detroit Red Wings, who finished with 187 and 109 respectively. Five points were allotted a first-place vote, three for a second-place vote and one for a third-place vote.

No respect for Sunday Silence?

NEW YORK (AP) — Respect? That's a word often heard around Sunday Silence's barn. He beat the favored Easy Goer in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, and somehow, he still seems like the underdog.

There are those who believe it's because Easy Goer comes out of the East, Sunday Silence from the West. Belmont Park, where the third race in the Triple Crown series will be run on Saturday, is Easy Goer's home. Part of it also is because Easy Goer was the 2-year-old champion.

Even Charlie Whittingham, Sunday Silence's 76-year-old trainer, believes New York bettors are likely to make Easy Goer the favorite. He says they're mad at Sunday Silence for beating Easy Goer twice.

Respect?

"I think most people respect him," said Sunday Silence's jockey, Patrick Valenzuela, a West Coast rider. "I know in California they do, and I think they do in New York."

Ten horses were expected to be entered today for Saturday's 1½-mile Belmont Stakes. Besides Sunday Silence and Easy Goer, they will be Easy Goer's stablemate Awe Inspiring, Hawkster, Irish Actor, Triple Buck, Rock Point and three Triple Crown newcomers — Imbibe, Fire Maker and Le Voyageur.

Each 3-year-old will carry 126 pounds, and if all 10 go to post, the race will be worth $689,200 with $413,520 going to the winner. Sunday Silence also stands to claim a

NEW YORK — Trainer Charles Whittingham gives Sunday Silence a reward after a Wednesday morning workout at the Belmont Race Track.

$5 million bonus, which includes the purses of all three races, if he wins the Triple Crown.

Besides the possibility of being short-changed once again by bettors, Sunday Silence has some other numbers going against him as he tries to become the 12th Triple Crown winner and first since Affirmed in 1978.

No horse has ever won the Triple Crown without going off the favorite in at least one of the three races. Assault came closest, winning the Triple Crown in 1946 while going off as the favorite only in the Preakness. Lord Boswell, Knockdown and Perfect Bahram were favored as an entry in the Derby that year, and Lord Boswell was a slight favorite in the Belmont.

Gallant Fox, in 1930, was the only other Triple Crown winner not favored in the Belmont, while six of the 11 Triple Crown winners were favored in all three.

Also, the Triple Crown has never been won with a field of more than eight in the Belmont. Seattle Slew in 1977 and Citation in 1948 each faced seven challengers, while Secretariat in 1973 and Affirmed faced only four.

Whittingham said he wasn't surprised by the size of the field. "There are more horses now than there ever have been, and maybe people figure the top two will fall down," he said.

There have been 13 horses who have won the Derby and Preakness and not the Belmont. Two of those, Burgoon King in 1932 and Bold Venture in 1936, did not run in the Belmont. Of the 11 others, six were beaten by horses that ran in neither the Derby nor the Preakness.

The last time that happened was in 1981 when Pleasant Colony came to Belmont with a chance at the Triple Crown and finished third to Summing. In 1979, Spectacular Bid, whom some consider second only to Secretariat in this era, was third to another Triple Crown rookie, Coastal. It also happened in 1971 when Pass Catcher beat Canonero II, in 1968 when Stage Door Johnny upset Forward Pass, in 1958 when Cavan beat Tim Tam, and in 1944 when Bounding Home defeated Pensive.

"When horses run that hard, it's bound to take a toll down the road," said Imbibe's trainer, Tim Kelly. "Maybe he'll still look good and act good, but it takes something away mentally. You have to be a little leery when a horse has been through two races like that."

Graf has tough time with Yugoslav

PARIS (AP) — Defending champion Steffi Graf, pushed to the limit by the tournament's youngest player, outlasted 15-year-old Monica Seles 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 today to reach the French Open women's final.

French

Open

Seles, an unseeded Florida-based Yugoslav with smashing groundstrokes on both her forehand and backhand, gave Graf her toughest match in a Grand Slam tournament for more than a year as she forced the West German into a stream of errors.

In the final on Saturday, Graf will meet 17-year-old Arantxa Sanchez, the first Spanish woman ever to reach the championship match at Stade Roland Garros.

Sanchez, the No. 6 seed, downed Mary Joe Fernandez of Miami — fourth-round conqueror of Gabriela Sabatini — 6-2, 6-2.

The Spaniard has met Graf in two semifinals this season already, at Amelia Island, Fla., and Hilton Head, N.C., winning a total of 11 games.

"I've got nothing to lose now," said Sanchez, who has reached the semifinals of all eight clay court tournaments she has competed in this season. "I'm playing the No. 1 player in the world. I'll just try to play my game."

Sanchez, a member of a tennis-playing family that includes Emilio and Javier Sanchez, only had to keep the ball in play to make it to the final.

Fernandez made a catalogue of elementary errors and hardly hit a winner as she was blown away in an unspectacular match that lasted one hour, 18 minutes. The American managed to save two match points when Sanchez served at 6-2, 5-2, but sailed a service return long on the third.

By contrast, the Graf-Seles match was full of thrills.

Going for the lines on almost every point, Seles stopped Graf from getting into her usual attacking groove and stayed with the world's No. 1 player until 3-3 in the final set.

Only in the last three games did Seles' hopes of pulling off one of the greatest upsets in women's tennis evaporate. She dropped her serve to go down 5-3 and Graf, relaxing for the first time, served out the match at love.

"I'm really satisfied," said

Seles, who was playing her first Grand Slam event and had eliminated two seeded players, Zina Garrison and Manuela Maleeva.

"It doesn't matter I lost. I'm proud of myself. To tell the truth, all through the match I didn't think I could win," Seles said.

"Maybe just a little bit, when it was 2-1, 30-love in the third set, I thought I might have a little chance, but when I started to think about it, my hands started shaking."

"I had nothing to lose. I was just hoping to getting a game off her."

Seles did far better than that, becoming the first player since Sabatini in the final of the U.S. Open eight months ago to take a set off Graf in any of the world's four major tournaments.

HOCKEY

TORONTO (AP) — Wayne Gretzky of the Los Angeles Kings was named the National Hockey League's most valuable player, winning the Hart Trophy for a record ninth time.

Gretzky, who scored 54 goals and 168 points in 78 games, is 13 points behind Gordie Howe's all-time record for career points with 1,837. He became the first player in NHL history to win the same award nine times. Bobby Orr won the Norris Trophy as best defenseman eight.

Mario Lemieux of Pittsburgh, who broke Gretzky's eight-year reign as MVP last season, was second in the voting, conducted by the Professional Hockey Writers Association.

Four members of the Montreal Canadiens received individual awards. Patrick Roy won the Vezina Trophy as the best goaltender, defenseman Chris Chelios took the Norris Trophy and Guy Carboneau repeated as winner of the Selke Trophy given to the best defensive forward. In addition, Montreal's Pat Burns won the Jack Adams Trophy as the league's top coach.

Joe Mullen captured the Lady Byng Trophy for skillful and gentlemanly play. Brian Leetch of the New York Rangers won the Calder Trophy as the rookie of the year and Bryan Trottier of the New York Islanders won the King Clancy Memorial Award for humanitarian contributions to hockey.

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Rick Ley, a former Hartford captain and minor league coach, returned to the Whalers when he signed a multiyear contract for his first NHL coaching job.

Ley succeeds Larry Pleau, who was fired in a front-office shakeup on May 17. Ley coached Milwaukee of the International Hockey League last season after four years with Muskegon, also in the IHL.

FRENCH OPEN

PARIS (AP) — Andrei Chesnokov eliminated defending champion and fourth seed Mats Wilander in straight sets to reach the semifinals of the French Open.

Chesnokov, who also beat the Swede in the third round of the 1986 tournament, won 6-4, 6-0, 7-5. He became the first Soviet to reach the semifinals of a Grand Slam event since Alex Metreveli at Wimbledon in 1973.

Michael Chang, who ousted top seed Ivan Lendl on Monday, also moved into the semifinals by beating Ronald Agener 6-4, 2-6, 6-4, 7-6. The 17-year-old American is the youngest player ever to reach the semifinals of the French Open.

On Friday, Boris Becker, the second seed, takes on No. 3 Stefan Edberg, while Chesnokov and Chang will meet in the other match. None of the four has ever won the French title.

TRACK AND FIELD

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Ed Temple, who coached 13 Olympic gold medalists at Tennessee State during his 38-year career, led voting for the Track and Field Hall of Fame conducted by The Athletics Congress.

Temple was joined in the Hall of Fame by 1956 Olympic decathlon champion Milt Campbell; the late Nell Jackson, a pioneer in women's track and field as an athlete, coach and administrator; and 1972 Olympic marathon winner Frank Shorter. They will be inducted at the TAC Convention in Washington in November.

CYCLING

MONTE GENEROSO, Switzerland (AP) — Luis "Luchito" Herrera of Colombia scored his second stage victory in the Tour of Italy cycling event while Frenchman Laurent Fignon retained the pink jersey as the overall leader.

Herrera won a seven-mile uphill against-the-clock race, ending at 1,223 meters of altitude on the top of this Swiss mountain.

HORSE RACING

WEDNESDAY'S RACES
CHICAGO (AP) — Shake Rag Ruthie, $22.20, defeated odds-on favorite Showtime Deb and outsider Flirting Flame in a three-horse photo finish at the $25,000 Sea Shell Purse at Hawthorne Race Course.

EPSOM, England (AP) — Favored Nashwan broke away from the pack in the final two furlongs and easily won the 210th running of the English Derby.

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Singing Pirate, $8.40, posted a three-length victory over Felidia in the $31,000 allowance feature at Hollywood Park.

Blue Jays win in new home

By The Associated Press
The Toronto Blue Jays' first victory ever in the SkyDome was an open and shut case.

Wednesday's game between Toronto and Milwaukee started under sunny skies, so the roof was left open. However, a heavy downpour hit around the fifth inning and the retractable roof was quickly set in motion.

By the end of the game, almost everyone was dry and the Blue Jays had a 4-2 victory over Milwaukee led by Ernie Whitt's three hits and three RBIs.

The closing operation began at 8:48 p.m. EDT and ended at 9:22 — too late to prevent a six-minute stoppage in play. When the roof was working perfectly, the procedure is scheduled to take 20 minutes. But SkyDome officials are still working out some minor problems.

Indians 1, Angels 0
Greg Swindell pitched a two-hitter and Luis Medina homered in the seventh inning to snap a scoreless tie, leading Cleveland past California at Anaheim.

Red Sox 6, Tigers 1
John Dopson and Rob Murphy combined on a four-hitter as Boston beat Detroit at Tiger Stadium. It was the Tigers' sixth loss in their last seven games.

Dopson, 6-4, allowed one run and four hits in seven-plus innings and Murphy pitched hitless relief.

Carlos Quintana had a two-run pinch single to give the Red Sox a 2-1 lead in the sixth.

White Sox 6, Rangers 4
Ozzie Guillen's third single of the game drove in the go-ahead run as Chicago rallied for three runs in the eighth inning to beat Texas in Arlington.

Ken Patterson, who got one out in the seventh, improved to 3-0 and Bobby Thigpen pitched two innings for his 10th save.

Athletics 3, Twins 2
Rookie Larry Arndt started a three-run fifth inning with his first major-league hit as Oakland edged visiting Minnesota.

Tony Phillips and Dave Henderson hit RBI singles as the Athletics won the series two games to one despite scoring just five runs in the three games.

Royals 9, Mariners 6
Kevin Seitzer had three hits and three RBIs as Kansas City got 18 hits and beat Seattle at the Kingdome.

Mark Gubicza, 6-4, gave up 12 hits in eight innings. Jeff Montgomery finished for his first save.

Fernando wins first game in long time

By The Associated Press
There were those who wondered whether Fernando Valenzuela would ever win another major-league game.

NL

Valenzuela put those doubts to rest — at least for a day — with his first victory in nearly a year as the Los Angeles Dodgers held off the Atlanta Braves 5-4 Wednesday night.

Valenzuela gave up four runs on nine hits in 6 1/3 innings. He walked four and struck out two.

Reds 12, Giants 5
Paul O'Neill homered twice, including a grand slam, and drove in a career-high six runs as Cincinnati beat visiting San Francisco.

Astros 3, Padres 2
Mike Scott won his 10th game and Houston defeated San Diego at the Astrodome. The Astros have won 12 of their last 13 games and moved into a first-place tie in the West with Cincinnati and San Francisco.

Cardinals 5, Expos 2
Tom Brunansky homered and drove in three runs, leading St. Louis past Mark Langston and Montreal.

A crowd of 30,214, the largest in Montreal since opening day, turned out to see Langston in his home debut since being traded by Seattle. Langston, 1-1, pitched seven innings and gave up four runs on seven hits. He struck out eight and walked five.

Phillies 7, Pirates 5
Curt Ford's pinch single keyed a three-run eighth inning that sent Philadelphia over Pittsburgh. The Phillies won their second straight after an 11-game losing streak and the Pirates lost their sixth in a row.

Ford singled with the bases loaded, breaking a 4-all tie. Darren Daulton's two-run, pinch double provided insurance.

Mets 10, Cubs 5
Dwight Gooden improved to 17-3 lifetime against Chicago as Kevin McReynolds homered and drove in four runs for New York.

McReynolds' three-run homer broke a 4-all tie in the fifth inning. Howard Johnson also homered for the visiting Mets.

Shockers break FSU's win streak

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Florida State bullpen ace Ricky Kimball thought a rain delay was just what the top-seeded Seminoles needed to break Wichita State's momentum with the score tied and the bases loaded in the eighth inning. He was wrong.

CWS

After a delay of nearly an hour, however, the Shockers' Eric Wedge blooped a two-run single to center to break the tie and Florida State's 12-game winning streak as Wichita State kept its national title hopes alive with a 7-4 victory.

Wedge, a catcher drafted by the Boston Red Sox, had four RBIs to force a rematch Friday between the Seminoles, 54-17, and fourth-seeded Shockers, 66-16. The winner of that game will play for the NCAA title on Saturday against Texas or Louisiana State.

"I thought I threw a good pitch to Wedge. He's just a big strong guy and he hit it," Kimball said.

"I thought the rain was going to help me because they had gotten the crowd in the ballgame and had a little momentum going. As it turned out, it was the worst thing that could have happened," he said.

Wedge said he wasn't nervous as he waited in the dugout for the game to resume.

"I thrive on that," he said. "As a hitter, if you don't want to be in that position, you shouldn't be here. I was just going to treat it like any other at bat," he said.

Florida State had beaten Wichita State 4-2 in the Series opener on Sunday and another victory would have guaranteed the Seminoles a spot in the title game.

Seminoles coach Mike Martin said he doesn't expect a letdown in Friday's rematch.

"We do not look at this game as a disaster. We know if we win that ballgame we have a chance to play for the national championship," he said. "We know there will be a lot of incentive for them, also."

Shockers relief ace Jim Newlin pitched the last two innings, striking out four to earn his 18th save. He said he was thinking about the earlier loss to the Seminoles.

"There was definitely a revenge factor. I was pretty pumped up," he said.

Wichita State Coach Gene Stephenson said he was fairly confident of the victory with a 7-4 lead and Newlin on the mound.

"We feel like we're going to win every ballgame, but when you've got a lead and Jim Newlin in the pen, you've got to feel pretty good," Stephenson said.

Wedge helped the Shockers to an early 3-0 lead with an RBI grounder in the first inning and a run-scoring double in the third.

But consecutive doubles by Rob Bargas and Buddy Cribb sparked a rally that tied the game in the sixth.

The Shockers opened the top of the eighth with three consecutive hits, including Mike McDonald's bunt single to load the bases. It was McDonald's second hit of the game and led to the suspension when Kimball slipped on the wet grass and was unable to field the ball.

Wedge's hit after the break made it 5-3. The Shockers, who finished third in last year's Series and were second in 1982, added a pair of runs on sacrifice flies by Pat Meares and Todd Dreifort for a 7-3 lead.

Florida State cut the margin to 7-4 when Bargas and Cribb opened the bottom of the eighth with consecutive singles and Bargas scored on Brian Gilliland's hit with no outs. But Newlin came out of the bullpen to strike out three batters and end the inning.

FSU starter Gar Finnvald held Wichita State to four hits over seven innings, but was pulled after Jim Audley started the eighth with a single to center. Audley scored three runs.

Shocker freshman Charlie Gaudrone held the Seminoles hitless until the fifth inning when he slipped and was unable to field a bunt single by Gilliland. Gilliland stole second and went to third when the throw went into center, then scored on an error by the shortstop Meares.

Trailing 3-1, Bargas opened the sixth in a downpour with a double down the right field line and scored on Cribb's double to the same spot. Cribb moved to third on Brad Parker's infield hit and scored on Gilliland's sacrifice fly to center.

Jeff Bluma, 3-1, picked up the victory in relief for the Shockers. He gave up four hits and one run in two innings before leaving with no outs in the eighth and runners on first and third.

Texas will advance to the championship game with a victory tonight over Louisiana State. If LSU wins, the two will play again Friday to determine who plays Saturday.

Slam last year, ripped through every match in straight sets at the Australian Open in January. She hadn't dropped a set in Paris either before Thursday's match.

Graf, who had dropped only 13 games in five matches before Thursday, said she just had an off-day.

"I was playing pretty badly; I wasn't scared of her," Graf said. "Sometimes you have good days and bad days. Today was not my day at all."

"She was playing very well today. She had nothing to lose. She was playing some great winners."

Throughout the tournament, Seles had attracted more attention than any other woman player because of her age, colorful costumes, bubbly personality and devastating baseline game. The confrontation between the new young star and the world champion was one of the most eagerly awaited of the tournament.

The action matched the expectations as Seles, who is based at the Nick Bollettieri tennis academy in Florida, put the defending champion off her game with a non-stop barrage of winners.

Down 4-1 in the first set and seemingly unable to cope with Graf's speed and experience, Seles suddenly shook off her inhibitions and broke Graf two games later by blasting a service return down the line. When Graf broke back and served out the set, it seemed she was on the verge of another straight-sets victory.

Instead, after a quick exchange of breaks at the start of the second set, Seles improved and Graf — forced on the defensive — couldn't hold her opponent.

With a crackling cross-court winner, Seles broke for a 4-2 lead, and with the crowd behind her, held serve for 5-2.

Two games later, she moved to 4-0 with three straight winners and tied the match when Graf netted another forehand.

By now the rallies were fast and furious.

Seles had the crowd on their feet when she broke for 2-1 in the final set, only for Graf to break back immediately and then move up 4-3 on serve.

Then came Graf's chance to end Seles' challenge to her throne.

At deuce in the next game, a Seles service was called long but over-ruled by the umpire. When the point was replayed, both players traded what seemed like winners from all over the court until a cross-court forehand left Seles stranded.

Meanwhile, Remington Park officials lifted a four-day quarantine imposed Monday on other horses in barn B4.

The quarantine was lifted at 6 a.m. Thursday, and the horses were able to participate in morning workouts at the track.

"We're fairly well satisfied that we've been able to eliminate some things," Vance said.

Vance said the problem appears to be a combination of a "potential" pathogenic organism, stress or medication. Any one, two or three of those.

Three quarter horses die

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Officials expect to have answers this week to what caused the deaths of three quarter horses and a pony at Remington Park race track.

The fourth horse, an 18-year-old pony named Jeff, died Wednesday morning, track spokesman Keith Chamblin said. That followed the death of three other horses earlier this week — Sir Ego, Flash To The Finish and Tex A Roon.

A fifth horse, The Big Urge, appears to be all right, track general manager David Vance said.

Two of the horses died at the track and the other two died at Oklahoma State University School of Veterinary Medicine in Stillwater. Oklahoma State has said the horses died of colitis, but that the exact cause of the illness hadn't been determined.

Track officials hope to hear something from Oklahoma State today, although it could be as late as Friday, Chamblin said.

The horses came from barn B4, which has been quarantined since the body of the first horse was discovered Sunday.

Six horses from Barn 4 were scratched from Wednesday's races. David Frizzell, the racing secretary, said those horses will get preference when they re-enter

Lakers needs more offense

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) — With Byron Scott injured, the Detroit Pistons believe they can stop the Los Angeles Lakers if they can again hold down Magic Johnson and James Worthy.

"I expect Worthy to come out more offense-minded," one of his defenders, Rick Mahorn, said Wednesday. "He's going to be putting the ball up. I have to work hard against him and hope for help from my teammates. I can't stop James Worthy by myself."

Johnson and Worthy were held to 17 points each in Tuesday's opener of the best-of-7 Finals, won by Detroit 109-97. Game 2 is at the Palace tonight.

Worthy, who was 6-for-18 from the field, said he has to be more patient.

"I have to recognize when to take shots and when not to," said Worthy, the Lakers' leading playoff scorer with 23.9 points per game. "I'll get better shots if we play better defense."

"James was trying to put us on his shoulders," said Johnson, who blamed himself for taking only 12 shots. "He knew we needed more from him because Byron is out. I give him an 'A' for effort, but sometimes you try so hard that nothing goes in for you. We need him to stay aggressive, but more in the flow of the offense."

"It was good that Worthy didn't come out and go haywire," said Pistons forward John Salley, who had all five of Detroit's blocked shots. "He was kind of sluggish. I don't think it will be like that (tonight). I think he will be a lot more aggressive offensively."

Salley said that Pistons coach Chuck Daly kept reminding the team that Worthy was the most valuable player of last year's Finals. Worthy had 36 points, 16 rebounds and 10 assists in the Lakers' seventh-game victory.

"Chuck doesn't forget stuff like that," Salley said. "Worthy had that great game in Game 7 and it makes Chuck mad when someone has their best games against us."

Dennis Rodman, whose 10 rebounds Tuesday night gave him six straight games in double figures, described Detroit's defense as "a brick wall or a barbed-wire fence."

"We try to key on Magic, but they have other guys who can burn you, so you can't go too far with it," he said. "I think he's going to be more aggressive on the offensive end, take more shots."

The Pistons' victory was the 16th consecutive game they allowed less than 100 points, 14 of those have been in the playoffs.

Detroit has allowed an average of 90.5 points in those 14 games. The record low for points allowed is 94.6 by the 1971 champion Milwaukee Bucks, who gave up less than 100 points in 10 of 14 playoff games.

The Lakers, averaging 113.5 points while winning their first 11 playoff games, played without Scott who suffered a partial tear in his left hamstring during Monday's practice. His status will be re-evaluated before Sunday's third game.

Game played 26 years later

By HOLDEN LEWIS
Associated Press Writer

EL PASO (AP) — Almost 26 years after their double-homescoming game was canceled because of the assassination of President Kennedy, alumni from Bowie and Jefferson high schools finally consummated their rivalry on the football field.

The southside schools have always fostered the hottest rivalry in El Paso. On the morning of Nov. 22, 1963, the schools were holding pep rallies and preparing to end their football seasons with the annual double homescoming. But an assassin's bullet in Dallas prompted officials to cancel the game. "If you beat Jefferson, that was it. That was your season — nothing else mattered," said Felipe Peralta, who played wide receiver as a Bowie senior in 1963 and coached Wednesday's game. "I think at the time most of us thought it was important to play the game. You don't actually complete your high-school season when you can't play your main rival."

Wednesday night, Bowie and Jefferson completed their high-school season more than 25 years after it officially ended. In a spirited game of touch football before 400 spectators at Bowie Stadium, Bowie won, 20-8.

The contest wasn't pretty. The game was tough football, seven men on a side, with a three-second count before a defender could rush the passer. The Bowie Bears threw bombs on almost every play and the Jefferson Silver Foxes threw so many laterals that it resembled a volleyball game.

"It was a lot of fun," said Bowie's Rudy Molinar. "It was just friends against friends."

The friends were thinking a lot about the past during and after the contest.

"I was excited," Jefferson alum-nus Oscar Gomez recalled about

EL PASO — Bowie High School 1963 team member Joe Estrada celebrates his team's score against arch rival Jefferson in a touch football game Wednesday. The two schools were making up a game that was cancelled in 1963 because of President Kennedy's assassination. Bowie won the game 20-7.

the week leading to the canceled 1963 game. "Then our dear president passed away, which was terrible. It was nice to get to play again."

His teammate, Manny Florez, said: "The whole country was down because of the shooting, but we were down because of the game. It's a game you look forward to all year."

Or look forward to for a quarter of a century. Alumni from both schools had talked for years about playing the canceled game. Last week, Bowie's class of '64 — which is celebrating its 25th reunion this week — decided to actually go through with the contest. Most Jefferson players didn't know about the game until they read about it in Wednesday morning's newspaper.

After Wednesday night's clash, the men felt they had completed something that should have been finished a generation ago.

"There was a piece missing from our lives when we didn't get to play that game," Peralta said. "We were trying to fit in that last piece of our lives."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Entertainer Dinah Shore will interview former first lady Nancy Reagan this summer for a new cable television show.

The interview will be taped in Los Angeles for broadcast this fall on the series "A Conversation With Dinah," The Nashville Network announced Tuesday.

The interview will be one of 26 half-hour shows about people in entertainment, sports and politics, the cable channel said.

Others to be interviewed include comedian Bob Hope, actor Jack Lemmon and singer Rosemary Clooney.

"We'll learn as much as we can about what makes them tick and what makes them interesting, and if I'm lucky, I'll get them to talk about things they haven't thought about before," Shore said.

Shore previously was host of such TV programs as "The Dinah Shore Chevy Show," "Dinah's Place" and "Dinah."

IRVINE, Calif. (AP) — Donny Osmond, known for sugarcoated songs with sister Marie, has charted a comeback designed to shed his squeaky-clean image.

The resurrection of his career is off to a fast start with the Top 5 single "Soldier of Love," and Osmond has shed his polyester shirts, favoring a leather jacket, blue jeans, T-shirt and biker belt buckle.

A whisker-stubble has replaced the peach fuzz. But Osmond, 31, said in a recent interview that he is still having image troubles.

"This guy at a radio station in Florida refused to play the record," Osmond recalls. "I called him and asked, 'Why? He said, 'Because you're a wimp!' So, I gave him as good as I got and we agreed to arm wrestle."

"If I won, he'd have to play it. I won and he's playing it."

Osmond even considered changing his name to express his maturity.

Jeanne Dixon's Horoscope

FRIDAY, JUNE 9, 1989

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE:

multitalented actor Michael J. Fox, former Cabinet member Robert McNamara, "21 Jump Street" star Johnny Depp, newsman Marvin Kalb, Oakland A's slugger Dave Parker, jazz guitarist-arranger Les Paul, Russia's Peter the Great, composer Cole Porter, actor Joe Santos, conductor Fred Waring.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): New developments will bring you greater happiness and satisfaction. You find yourself immersed in more rewarding activities. Reach out to those who share your high ideals. Joint endeavors have an excellent chance of success.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Try to do everything you undertake in a first-class way. A legal matter can be cleared up if you act quickly. Romance gets a lucky break. You are there when needed most.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You will find a lot of grassroots support for your ideas this weekend. Expect positive developments within a love relationship. Travel is satisfying but a bit expensive. Keep entertainment costs within reason.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A letter or call from someone at a distance brings a message of hope. Share your wit and wisdom with those who will appreciate it. Be good to yourself today.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You have the strength to overcome almost any problem now. Count on someone with a warm heart if the going gets rough today. Those who have helped you before will do so again.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Look forward to new progress in almost every part of your life. Job opportunities abound for a change. Tailor your resume to meet a potential employer's needs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Love comes complete with true friendship and total dedication. A blissful moment will make this evening a time to remember. Do not ask for a permanent commitment until certain that partner is ready.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get involved in undertakings requiring both mental gymnastics and manual dexterity. Make your time in the office really count. Those in authority will promote people who show initiative.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A legacy may be yours in the near future. Improved financial conditions will enhance your relationships. Travel is favored. Plan to visit an area you have never seen before on your next vacation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A good day to visit someone confined to a hospital or nursing home. Take along a small but carefully chosen gift. An act of kindness will be richly rewarded. Put your best foot forward.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A great love relationship helps you cope with any trials and tribulations at work. It feels wonderful to have someone in your corner! A business turnaround is near. Avoid rocking the boat.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You had better get busy; you have many letters to write and calls to place. Make a financial decision based on what is best for a family member who is in distress.

Summers of years gone by

By STACY PAYNE
Herald Editor

Teenagers have really changed. When they were younger, my parents actually dreaded school being out for the summer because they had to work.

My mother had to help chop cotton, can the garden, iron clothes and clean house. Then she got to read Anne of Green Gables or Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm while sipping lemonade on the front porch and waving daintily to the preacher as he made his way to visit his country parishioners.

My father, of course, had it especially rough because he was a boy. He had to milk the cows, haul the water, feed the chickens, slop the hogs, plant the cotton, plow the cotton, water the cotton, chop the cotton and pray for the cotton, all before he was allowed to eat breakfast.

Then his workday really began. The only good thing about summer was not having to do all the chores before walking five miles to school and five miles back — uphill both ways.

The next generation only helped out on the farm or at the feed store or at the dry goods store during the summer. Then they were allowed to go have fun. Which meant they jumped into their '54 T-birds and drove all over Stanton, then Big Spring, then Midland and then back to Stanton, all the while listening to Johnny Rivers, Sam Cooke and whoever the dude was that sang, "Ooh, My Baby Does the Hanky Panky."

When that generation became high schoolers I was five, maybe six. I used to sit out on my front porch and watch Herb Sorley race Peggy or Peggy race Herb. I can't remember who, but one of them drove a Mustang, and all I could think about was getting old enough to drive a Mustang up and down Carpenter Street while "Last Date" blared on the radio.

My uncles were high schoolers then and I just loved it when they came over. Uncle Phillip was always "fixing" to go on a date. He'd just drop by to say hello since he was in town (after all, he was a farm boy and didn't get to come in much). I'd beg him to tell me what he was going to do, and who his date was going to be, and would it be like a Beach Boys' song, and couldn't I just come along to get a cherry coke for a minute? He never would let me.

My uncle Rodney was much nicer than Uncle Phillip, of course, because he could not say no to me. So, there the three of us would be, me sitting in the middle of his car while his date teased her hair and talked about how Sandra Dee never had to deal with these sorts of things. And Uncle Rodney smoothed his flat top, grinned a sort of sheepish grin and told her that I had emotional problems, that doctors said cherry cokes were good for my mental health. What could he do, really, I was his brother's kid?

His dates always wore little velvet bows right where the ratted hair met their bangs, and he always wore his britches legs about a half-inch above his white-socked ankles. And I remember more than anything, that his generation was the car generation. Always, always, always, everyone was out on a date in their daddy's car, and hadn't driven very far.

A few years later everybody got out of the car, went to the Little League park and awaited the dawning of the Age of Aquarius. I was getting closer to being a high schooler and I desperately wanted to be one of them. I wanted to run away to a big city like San Angelo and find myself, or at least find a yellow submarine.

The hardest part of those years was that Twiggy burst on the scene and the nickname stuck to me like super glue. While all those people a few years older than myself were feeling groovy and California dreamin' my mother was making me "the most darling Twiggy out-

Minister decries 'New Age' movement

By STACY PAYNE
Herald Editor

Rick Montgomery takes his job as Minister of Education at the First Baptist Church in Stanton pretty seriously. He intends to educate the Permian Basin about the New Age Movement, and one of the ways he plans to do so is holding seminars. He just completed his latest at the Highland Mall in Big Spring last Saturday.

Montgomery has spent the last few years researching all aspects of what is considered "metaphysical" or "New Age."

"There are seven major doctrines of this movement," he said. "And all of them are removed from Christianity, which is the perspective from which I teach."

The doctrines are not interpretations by Christian theologians but are, Montgomery says, statements written and promoted by New Agers themselves.

"The first doctrine states that 'All is one,' Montgomery said. "Christianity says that God is creator and separate from his creation. Humankind is the highest aspect of God's personality, but is distinct from God."

"Doctrine number two states that 'Everything is God.' The Bible makes it clear that all is not God. 'The Bible says that He is in heaven, and we are on Earth. This separates man from being God. Also, the Bible teaches that we are made in God's image, but we are not, in essence, God, which is what the third doctrine of New Age says: 'You are God, God is within you.'"

"The fourth doctrine states that 'you will never die, you have lived before and you will live again,' meaning reincarnation. The Bible clearly rejects reincarnation as a doctrine of salvation and says that Jesus Christ died a sacrificial death for individuals."

"Doctrine number five says that 'you can create your own reality and transform your consciousness.' Christianity also affirms the need for a change in consciousness, but the Christian perception of that need is quite different from the New Age idea. From the Bible's perspective, the basic human problem is not ignorance of true divinity, but the reality of our sin."

"Doctrine number six states that 'all religions are true and therefore one.' The Christian response to this is that different religions begin with different assumptions and proceed toward different goals. To claim that various religions are all one is to make a claim that most of those religions do not make, and to hold that all religions are true ignores the substantial differences among religions.

Rick Montgomery, education minister at Stanton's First Baptist Church, intends to educate

"The last assumption by these people is that a new world is coming, a new age is dawning. To that, the Bible also announces the coming of a new world, but the Bible records history as moving according to God's sovereign plan. History won't culminate in a great planetary consciousness, but God, in his own time and way, will bring the world to its appropriate end." Montgomery said the New Age

Reunion slated for next month

By FRANCIS BIGGS
Old Settlers Committee

Y'all Come! This is the message to everyone in Stanton concerning the Old Settlers Reunion. The 56th annual celebration begins on the morning of Saturday, July 8. This year's theme is Martin County, Past and Future.

At the last OS planning meeting, activities for the day were discussed as well as the possibility of new events. We want to make this the best celebrations ever. We are planning events that will interest every age and group.

The local band will assist in leading off this year's parade. We expect a larger number of local floats, as well as an increased number of antique cars this year. The parade marshals will be Billy and Sammy Houston.

Cap Rock Electric is observing their 50th year of service in Martin County and will feature a parade float and an open house at their facilities. A lucky visitor will be the recipient of a free trip at a drawing.

There will be the usual visiting, registration, and entertainment at the Community Center. In addition, a display of antique quilts will be held at the Center. A new method of protection for these quilts while on exhibit will be used. Please help us in this endeavor. If you have a quilt you would loan for the display, please call Kathryn Burch at her office at 756-3316.

Downtown games, sponsored by the Martin County Chamber of Commerce, will begin soon after the parade.

The Martin County Historical museum will be open for tours as will the Old Jail Museum and the Convent. Sponsored by the Convent Foundation, the tours will benefit the restoration work at the convent.

Another new interest will be an open house at the old Texas theater. Jim and Jean McGilvray have restored this into a home. Their restoration is incomplete, but they want to afford visitors the opportunity to see "the progress in this interesting project."

The American Cancer Society plans a week long event that will culminate in an exciting moment on Old Settlers Day. It is the Kiss a Pig contest. Jars will be provided with the names of willing and good-natured local people. These jars will be used to collect money for the American Cancer Society. The person whose jar has the most money will "kiss the pig." So each contestant will work diligently to get contributions for their opponents.

A craft show is planned for downtown.

The Courtney community reunion will be at the Stanton Junior

Summer fun

Sandy Bundas took to the air before taking to the water just a few days after school was out. Lots of Stanton youngsters made their way to the Martin County Country Club pool last week. The pool is open from 2-6 p.m.

Tillie Pribly's family will be home for a reunion on June 17. An open house will last throughout the day. Friends of the family are invited to stop by.

Gary Cleavenger has graduated from Odessa College with an Associate degree in Applied Science of Nursing. He was awarded the Outstanding Clinical Performance Award.

Clevenger was Martin County Extension Agent from August, 1982 until August, 1987. He is a volunteer for the local Emergency Medical Service Unit.

Karen Graves, 1989 Stanton High School graduate, was honored recently with a Barbecue Supper. Hostesses were Sissy and Jolyn Graves.

Friends who attended were Kelli Glaspie, Kaki Elmore, Stacie Tom and Cheryl Stewart. Family members were Karen's grandmother, Mrs. S.C. Middleton; aunts, Linda Scott and Sheryl Kinney; uncle, Blaine Middleton and cousins, Denise Davis and Cindy Bailey.

Rainnie and Jeremy Hull competed in the Pitch, Hit, and Run contest at the SportsFest held at Angels Stadium in Midland on Saturday, June 3. Both won first place trophies. Approximately 50 area children competed in the event sponsored by the Midland Junior Baseball Association.

The Lunch and Learn Extension Homemakers will meet at noon on June 14 at Bonnie's Restaurant. Katie Hughes will present a program on T-shirts. According to a club spokesperson, lunch will be dutch treat, and everyone is invited to join the members.

The Martin County Country Club pool opened on Saturday, May 27. Pool hours are from 2 p.m. until 6 p.m. Days are Tuesday through Sundays.

The Challenger Crew Memorial Scholarship, sponsored by Xi Epsilon Delta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi was awarded to two Martin County students on May 11. Recipients were Kathryn Elmore and Tim McKaskle.

Elmore is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Elmore of Stanton. She is a graduate of Stanton High School and plans to attend Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos and major in physical therapy.

McKaskle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charley McKaskle of Lenora, is a 1989 graduate of Grady High School. He will be attending Texas A&M this fall at College Station and prepare for a career in dentistry.

The fund, according to a chapter member, was created to help students "reach for the stars as exemplified by the crew members of the space shuttle, Challenger." It is awarded annually to one male and one female graduate of a Martin County High School.

High Cafeteria

Many class reunions of Stanton and Courtney school classes are being planned. Please call Ruby Payne at the Historical Museum at 756-2722 and let her know the location and times of any and all reunions. Many former students need assistance finding the locations of the reunions each year, so please make sure we have all the necessary information.

Tom Ed Angel will assist the children with games at the City Park at 6 p.m. These will be followed by the traditional barbecue. The cost is $4.50 per plate.

The program that evening will recognize special persons. A memorial for deceased Martin Countians will close the day's events.

For folks interested in participating in the various programs and events, the committee chairpersons are listed below:

Finance, Bob Deavenport and Butch Howard; Publicity, Frances Biggs and Stacy Payne; Registration, Vena Fortune; Business window decorations, Beulah Mae Hall, Hope Hazlewood and Tere Garlington; Parade Floats, Nancy Holt and Ruth Reid.

Other committee heads are Parade, Billiw Houston, Cliff Hazlewood Jr., Dan Yates, Danny Ireton, Morgan Cox, Todd Smith and Tere Garlington; Color Guard, Dan Saunders; Antique Cars, Don Tollison; Parade narration, Rodger Burch and Jonama Cox; Sound system, Morgan Cox and Shelby Barley, and Lemonade, Donnie Hull.

Committee chairpersons also include Community Center display, Kathryn Burch, Mary Kathryn Bristow, Ruby Haggard and Mary Prudie Brown; Afternoon entertainment, Mike Payne; Bar-B-Que, Sammie Houston, Tickets at the Park, Lorabel Tom, Sue Graham and Evening Lions Club.

Other committee heads are Music at Park Gazebo, Gary Reid; Awards, Edythe Kelly, Lorabel Tom and Billie Houston; Programs, Mary Prudie Brown and Kathleen Lewis; Judges, Nelda Hazlewood and Marsha Todd; Special recognitions, Nelda Hazlewood, Gwen Sawyer, Tere Garlington and Amy Barley and Park Cleanup, Bob Deavenport.

The next planning meeting will be at Bonnie's Restaurant at noon, Friday, June 30.

New Age

movement is not a structured organization, but a loosely affiliated network of individuals, activists groups, business, occult activities and spiritual leaders.

"The term 'new age' generally describes movements, groups and ideas that advocate approaching life in ways different from established norms in economics, education, religion and family," Montgomery said. "The term 'new' does not refer to time, but to difference."

Montgomery quoted Marilyn Ferguson, author of The Aquarian Conspiracy, and a leader in the New Age movement, who said, "New Age is an ill-defined term to describe a very broad-based movement, which should be called a shift of cultural values, shift toward the experiential, characterized by spiritual values."

Montgomery maintained, however, that not all New Age movements are openly religious; some present themselves as secular, or as self-help strategists.

Others, he said, like cults, may take spiritual truths, or may use the Bible to gain new members.

"Cults take the word of God and distort it in some way. They either take something away from it or they may add something to it. They won't let the word of God stand alone, it is used as a recruiting tool." He added that cults get their new members to leave behind traditional values and beliefs and totally embrace the new ideology.

"When you talk to any group of people," he said, "you ask 'what is your belief on Jesus Christ?' Most of the time they will say they believe Jesus is the son of God, so you ask them if they believe that Jesus is the same as God, do you believe that the Holy Spirit is the same as God, and that they are all one — if they deviate in any way from that, then it becomes cultic."

Montgomery said that some of the other new age groups include yoga, hinduism, anything involved in the occult, astrology, astral projection, Ouija boards, transcendental meditation, witchcraft and Satanism.

"Satanism is alive and well today," he said. "I just got back from a seminar in East Texas in a town that had just experienced the effects of Satanism being practiced in their city. At first they couldn't believe that Satanism was so rampant nor that New Age literature was inside their town."

"So I showed them two New Age magazines that I had purchased from the grocery store in their own town. A town of 1500. Then they listened."

Montgomery believes that the practice of Satanism and witchcraft is bigger than most people in the Permian Basin realize and getting bigger.

"Our youth are influenced by musicians and celebrities. Stevie Nicks has dedicated her concerts to all the witches of the world. Daryl Hall, of Hall and Oates, is a follower of Aleister Crowley, who was a self-proclaimed Satanist in the 1900s. Though some groups don't claim to be Satanists, the words to some of their music and the designs on their album covers suggest that they are involved."

Montgomery quoted headlines from the nation's newspapers describing Satanic ritual and murder among teenagers, including youngsters who are sacrificed to Satan by their own friends, teenagers who kill their own parents to honor Satan and countless suicides in the name of Satan.

"The world has gotten away from 'the church,'" Montgomery said when explaining why he thinks people, especially youth, are turning to Satanism and witchcraft. "My objective is to make people aware of what is happening, not just on Satanism, but on all that's involved in the New Age.

"I want to add that I do not come from a spirit of condemnation, nor one of judgment. I come from a spirit of love and compassion."

"I admit it. I come from a Christian perspective, and my main goal is to bring people to Christ. The seminars that I conduct are designed to increase awareness on the deception of the New Age movement as well as bring the lost to Christ."

Montgomery is the Minister of Education and Evangelism at the First Baptist Church and has a bachelor's degree in religious education from Howard Payne University. He received a Master of Arts in Religious Education from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth.

He was certified to teach on the New Age movements by the Interfaith Witness Department of the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention.

"This program is designed to teach how to witness to all unorthodox faiths that come under the New Age movements," Montgomery said.

From there we went south to Stalag Luft 17D.

"We were put in little cells. They didn't hurt us. The only really bad thing we experienced was the shortage of food. I don't know why they didn't torture us, they just didn't. We ran out of fuel in December and it was awfully cold. They moved us in that cold weather on the 28th of January because the Russians were coming in from the East."

"We represented, in the Germans' minds, I suppose, some sort of bargaining tool if needed because there were thousands of us prisoners there. We moved out of there at 2:30 on that January morning in a blizzard. We walked 75 miles in that blizzard to a place where they loaded us in boxcars, and hauled us off to Nuremberg."

"Two months later we were moved even again because the Americans were coming in from the west. On the 4th of April we were moved again. We walked 100 miles that time."

"That first march was so cold. It was snowing real deep. All we had was what we had on. And what we had on we wore 24 hours a day. We pulled our shoes off at night. (We didn't have it nearly as bad as the prisoners in the South Pacific, though. They had a much, much worse time than we did. Our worst problem was the cold and a shortage of food. The prisoners in the South Pacific endured a type of cruelty we didn't have to deal with.)"

"We were finally liberated by Patton. It was real exciting to see him. It was on a Sunday. We heard shooting begin near the camp at about 8 that morning, it was about 1 o'clock when they finally got there. We were all real excited."

"I was standing just inside the front gate of the camp, and it wasn't 20 or 30 minutes after they opened fire that a jeep came through the gate. It stopped and ol' Patton got out. He had those pistols everybody heard so much about, and there he was, big as Dallas."

"He was a rough, tough ole boy and he had that armor, and he was really eating those Germans up. He really got after it. He just walked in there like he was in charge. He left his impression that he had his show on the road and there wasn't any changing it."

"We had no idea who it was coming up the road when we first heard those shots, but by George, I just happened to be standing there when that jeep drove up right in front of me and Patton stepped out of it. Boy, we let him know we were sure glad to see him."

"We knew the war was going in favor of the Allies, but the worse it got for the Germans the worse it got for us prisoners. Since we didn't have any priority to start with, we couldn't have had less by the time Patton arrived. In other words they were going to be concerned about us last. Supplies got shorter and shorter, and they paid less and less attention to us as the Allies got closer. We didn't know if they were just going to leave us there or not."

"There was only one time when I felt like I might not make it back home. It was when we made the first march at the tail end of January. It was so cold! We walked for several days and nights, just kept on going. It was about 2 a.m. and we came to a wide open area after having followed a two-track path. It was so so cold and we were strung out across this big opening. We were then ordered to stop walking."

"The blizzard was really blowing that snow from the north. We stood out there for two or three hours. We just stood there. We were really tired because we had already come a long way. We began to be concerned about how long we could stand out there and take the cold because when we stopped, we got too cold. And it rained a lot. We got colder and colder, and then we got wet. There was nothing we could do about it."

"The bottom line was, if you had ever gotten sick and couldn't make it on your own, that was it."

"But most of us made it. The bad thing about the interrogation camp was the uncertainty. In a burning airplane that's rapidly losing 10,000 feet, you know real quick what the situation is, but it was all uncertainty in the interrogation center."

"I'd only been out of high school a year and a half when I went to war. I realized later that I had really not paid much attention to the news or to what was going on with the war. There was a lot in the newspaper, mostly about Britain, but it didn't really register. As far as fighting them, though, there was never any question in anyone's mind. We did what had to be done in order to win the war."

"Here I was, coming out of a little ol' dusty town in rural America, but when Japan attacked Pearl Harbor, it welded this nation and it didn't matter where you were from. Everybody got singled minded in a hurry. The idea was to get after it and get the job done."

"It was difficult saying goodbye to my mother. I left on a little train called the 'doodle bug'... and I knew where I was going. And I went, gladly."

"Yet, I hope that my family never has to go through anything like what we did during the war."

"If the situation arose today, I would be ready and a great majority of the other men that were in World War II would feel the same way."

"I was telling someone just the other day, I do not care how long it's been. I can still see it, and hear it and smell it."

"Freedom has never come cheap."

The members of Xi Epsilon Delta met on May 25 at Cap Rock Electric for their final meetin of the year. Members discussed the end-of-the-year party to be held on May 31 at Angels Stadium in Midland. Tere Garlington was presented with a farewell gift from other members of the chapter.

Newly installed officers included Pam McCampbell, president; Jackie Williams, vice president; Nancy Bradshaw, secretary; Judy Ireton, treasurer and Jeanne Halslip, Extension Officer.

Tere Garlington presented a program on counted cross stitch and instructed members on how to make their own counted cross stitch hearts.

Members present were Judy Ireton, Pam McCampbell, Jackie Williams, Tere Garlington, Nancy Bradshaw, Jeanne Halslip and Pam McAnally.

The china-painting students of Eva Burns honored her with an appreciation party, May 29, in the home of Corene Manning. Burns plans to discontinue teaching China painting next year.

According to a student, a money tree was presented to Burns by the students.

Noon Lions Club met May 30, according to Pauline Woods, club secretary and musician. After a short business meeting, Eugene Byrd introduced Jerry Lewis, who entertained the club with his singing. He also played the guitar and piano.

Leroy Linney, local farmer, rancher and gin manager, was the Friday Evening speaker for the Lubbock Full Gospel Businessmen Fellowship International. Linney's wife Janie said that the fellowship consists of "Christian men from every denomination and every vocation of life. It is designed to strengthen men spiritually and to be better men in their individual churches."

Mrs. Linney performed special music for the gathering and "shared a short testimony."

The Linneys teach Bible study classes in Midland and Big Spring one day a week. He has been ministering at the Federal Prison in Big Spring for six years, Mrs. Linney said.

Matthew Tollison and his horse, "Mr. Sonny Money Man," participated in the Andrews county 4-H Horse Show on Saturday, June 8. They won a second place in the Halter and Showmanship categories. Matthew is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Tollison.

Stacy Tollison, Matthew's aunt and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Tollison, also participated in the show with her mare, "Jamars Sissy II." They won first place in Western Pleasure, first in Showmanship and second in Mares at Halter.

Kelli Glaspie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Glaspie, was honored with a graduation supper at Mr. Gatti's Pizza Parlor in Midland.

Guests included Velma Clements, Kelli's grandmothers, Mrs. Grace Glaspie and Mrs. Ona Bickley; her great aunt from Franklin, Mrs. Velma Clements; cousins, Stacy and Marci Stone; her aunt, Shirley Stone and several classmates, Kaki Elmore, Karen Graves, Cherlyn Stewart and Stacie Tom.

The party guests received jewelry as gifts from Kelli. The center piece was made of flowers and balloons, and was in the shape of "Class of '89."

Chuck Elmore and Vallene Wilkerson of Caprock Electric attended the National Postal Forum West in Las Vegas, Nevada on May 21-23.

fits" and my daddy was making me learn three new words a day during my summer vacation, words like: establishment, patriotism, authority, supervision, surveillance, government, Sunday School, discipline, conservative, absolutism, Barry Goldwater.

When I finally got to have a summer vacation as a high schooler, life was so different than I expected that all I could manage to do was write poetry worse than Rod McKuen and tell my friends that my life was over. I always managed to do something horrible right before school ended, so I was pretty much grounded the whole summer anyway.

It wasn't until my senior year that I was back in Stanton anyway (having spent a few years in Arizona), and everything was finally great because the car generation was back, working for a living was in vogue again and acid rock was being replaced by Toni Tëxille.

The very best part was that my daddy had bought me a car just a to be more productive and cost effective. Barbara Dickenson, Accounts Representative for Express Mail at the Midland Post Office, said that a major benefit of the Postal Forum is the Vendors Display which helps mailers to choose the equipment most beneficial to their mailing operation.

Elmore and Wilkerson were joined by Dickenson and other representatives from West Texas.

Jerry and Jackie Williams, and Steve and Mary Woodfin were involved in a bass tournament at Lake Hubbard in Breckenridge recently. Radio station KEAN FM of Abilene sponsored the event. Williams said that a man from Graham won the $60,000 prize for his 7.46 pound bass.

Rodger, Kathryn, Justin and Jeffery Burch spent Memorial Day weekend at Prude Ranch in Fort Davis attending a Cowboy Camp meeting. Dennis and Donna Yadon, formerly of Stanton, were also in attendance.

Kathryn Burch said that as the group was leaving, a Texas Star party was being set up. "There were hundreds of telescopes being put up in two football field size areas," she said. "Justin and Jeffrey got to see the North Star, which is really two stars. If you ever get to look through a big telescope, tell them you want to see M 13. It is a huge star cluster that is just breathtaking."

Mike and Susa Hall, along with their children, Jeff, Lance and Angie, took an eight-day vacation cruise. They visited Jamaica, Grand Cayman and Cozumel. They went swimming, snorkling and attended ship shows.

few weeks before summer vacation, and I felt like my life had begun.

Teenagers now, the computer generation, seem to fall into several groups. Group I involves those with what I call the Video Game Syndrome. They spend most of their summer days playing Nintendo games and their summer evenings speaking monosyllabic new age-isms to their folks.

Group II is the Neo Yuppie Club, otherwise known as the Alex Keaton Club. I would rather hear high schoolers talk about Nintendo games or not speak at all than to listen to them talk about the virtues of corporate takeovers.

There is something frightfully wrong with kids who would rather spend their summer vacations preparing a stock portfolio than going to the beach.

Group III is a combination of the groups above. It's just that the video games are about Bankers and Brokers, not Dungeons and Dragons.

Summertime just ain't what it used to be.

Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Greg Smith of Stanton announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Shelly, to Curtis Huff, son of Buck and Pam O'Neal of Stanton.

The couple, recent graduates of Stanton High School, will be married in the First Baptist Church on June 10. The Reverend Tommy Hurst will officiate the ceremony.

Who'll be the next scapegoat?

To the editor:

I would like to share some of the memories of the Martin County Hospital with all the ones still living that had a part in making it possible for Stanton to have a nice, small hospital.

I remember the pride everyone had, even in the starting of the first hospital that was located in the Brantley building; young Dr. Leslie Hall and his wife, a nurse, were the first ones over the new hospital. Our youngest son, Jim, was born in that one; Edgar's mother died there.

After Dr. Hall was inducted into the service in World War II — where he died — Dr. Virgil Sanders took over until the present hospital was established. I do not remember all the first board members, only two — B.F. White and Jim Tom.

As our family grew up, we supported this hospital and my husband and I still do.

I started going to Dr. Worrell when I fell and broke my arm, and I couldn't have been more pleased with the care and concern that I received during the one and one-half years that I have been going to him.

I couldn't believe the reasons given for his eviction from his office in the clinic, after giving so much of himself for the poor and needy and the elderly; it makes me angry and very ashamed that he was treated so badly.

Now, I wonder what the rest home will do for a doctor.

Stanton residents are mostly elderly and low income people; what will they do? This hospital was never intended to be a money-maker because there is no way it can compete with Midland or Big Spring — we should not expect it to compete with these larger hospitals.

I wonder who will be the next scapegoat?

TU's Gibbs to address Noon Lions

H. Jarrell Gibbs, executive vice president and general manager of the Texas Electric Service Division since May, 1989, will be speaking to the Noon Lions Club on Tuesday, June 13.

Gibbs, who also serves as a member of the TU Electric Board of Directors, previously was vice president of operations for the Texas Electric Service Division.

Before transferring to the Texas Electric Service Division in 1988, he was vice president of TU Electric where he was responsible for the marketing function, including economic development, the development of load management and conservation programs and wholesale power customers.

A native of this area, Gibbs joined the TU System in 1980 as an administrative assistant in the office of the corporate secretary. In 1981 he became executive assistant to the executive vice president and chief financial officer of Texas Utilities. In 1983 he was promoted to director of finance for Texas Utilities Services Inc.

Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Louder of Stanton announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Lisa Renee, to Michael James Neese of Carrollton. He is the son of Thomas and Judy Neese of Amarillo.

Miss Louder is a 1985 graduate of Stanton High School. She will graduate in December, 1989, from Texas Tech University with a degree in Deaf Education.

Neese is a 1984 graduate of Tascosa High School in Amarillo, and is a Texas Tech graduate with a degree in Agricultural Engineering. Neese is a member of the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity.

The couple will exchange vows at the First Baptist Church of Stanton on July 22 at 6:45 p.m. All friends and relatives are invited to attend the ceremony.

Farm news

By GREG JONES
Martin County Extension Agent

Beginning June 1, representatives from the Texas Agricultural Statistics Service will be contacting farmers and ranchers across the state to help set the 1989 planted acreage estimates and midyear livestock inventories.

"Information from these surveys will provide Texas producers with solid facts and figures they can use when making their production and marketing plans for 1989," state statistician Dennis Findley explained.

"The continued dry weather this spring and the changes in the national farm program may have altered producers' plans for 1989, and this survey will be the first accurate measure of midyear livestock inventories and acreage estimates," Findley added.

Individual reports will be combined with other reports to set state estimates. Results of the confidential interviews, conducted by telephone or in person by field enumerators, will be published later this summer. The 1989 acreage forecast will be published July 12, and the midyear cattle inventory will be published July 28.

"Remember, these are sample surveys, so if you are contacted it is important to provide the requested information, since your one report represents similar operations of the same size and type. Our estimates can be no better than the numbers producers provide," Findley added.

Youths of today should be preparing themselves to become leaders for tomorrow, and that's where 4-H can play an important part. 4-H projects allow youths to investigate areas that might be career opportunities for tomorrow.

Project opportunities are unlimited — except by a youngster's imagination. Projects allow 4-Hers to develop skills, ideas and knowledge to the fullest potential.

4-H clubs provide leadership, organizational, educational and recreational experiences. Through these clubs, youths learn the democratic process, self-expression, self-esteem and group cooperation.

Through meetings, programs recreation and achievement events, 4-Hers learn to share, to be good sports and to accept recognition gracefully. They learn each time they perform at a club, county and district, regardless of whether they place first or last, they are winners because they have worked and achieved. From the first project in home economics and agriculture, youths develop as they progress to bigger and larger projects.

As 4-Hers round out their years in 4-H, they become mature, self-sufficient, self-confident, self-supporting young adults ready to take their place in society to become worthwhile citizens.

4-Hers are, and will be, found in every career field available. As 4-H continues into the next decade and century, members will be outstanding and easily recognized because of their vast experience in this worthwhile organization.

4-H today and in the future will continue to make the best better.

For more information on the 4-H program contact me at the Courthouse.
