Treaty Work Begins

JERUSALEM (AP)-The Israeli government began preparations today for peace negotiations with Egypt, its largest Arab foe, after the Israeli Parliament voted by an overwhelming margin to ratify the Camp David accords and withdraw all Jewish settlers from the Sinai peninsula if Egypt makes peace.

Prime Minister Menach em Begin said negotiations could start as early as next week on the peace treaty which he and President Anwar Sadat pledged at Camp David to complete within three months

Rio Grande Flooding

By The Associated Press

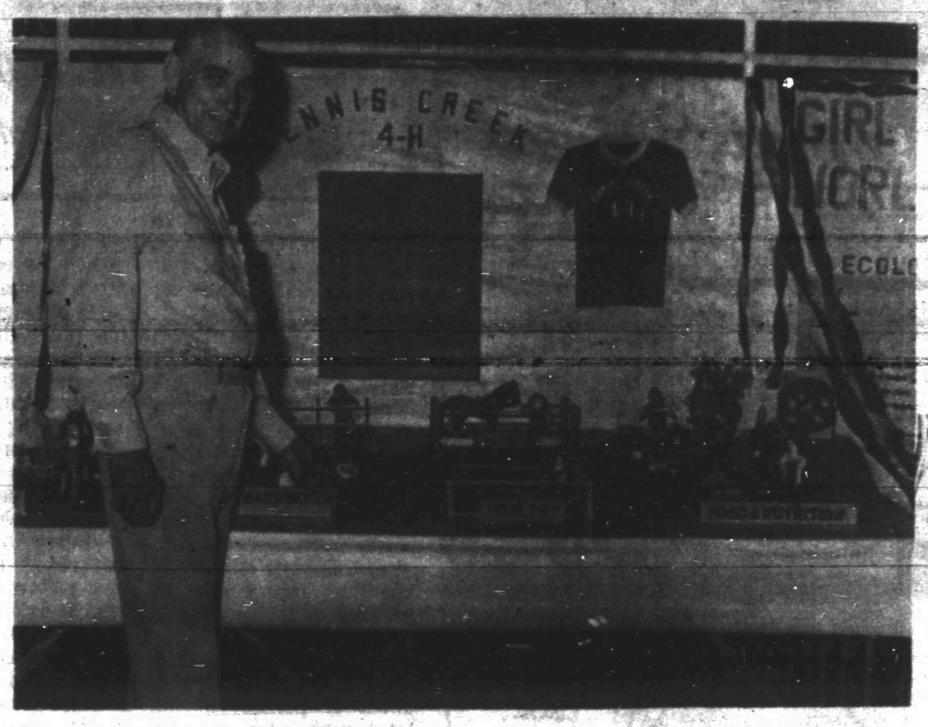

The Rio Grande, swollen by recent heavy rainfall and by releases of water from Mexican reservoirs, was expected to crest at Presidio well above flood stage, but perhaps just slightly below the tops of levees.

The flooding was triggered by a combination of heavy rains and releases of water from Mexican reservoirs. The Rio Grande was expected to crest at Presidio late today, forecasters said.

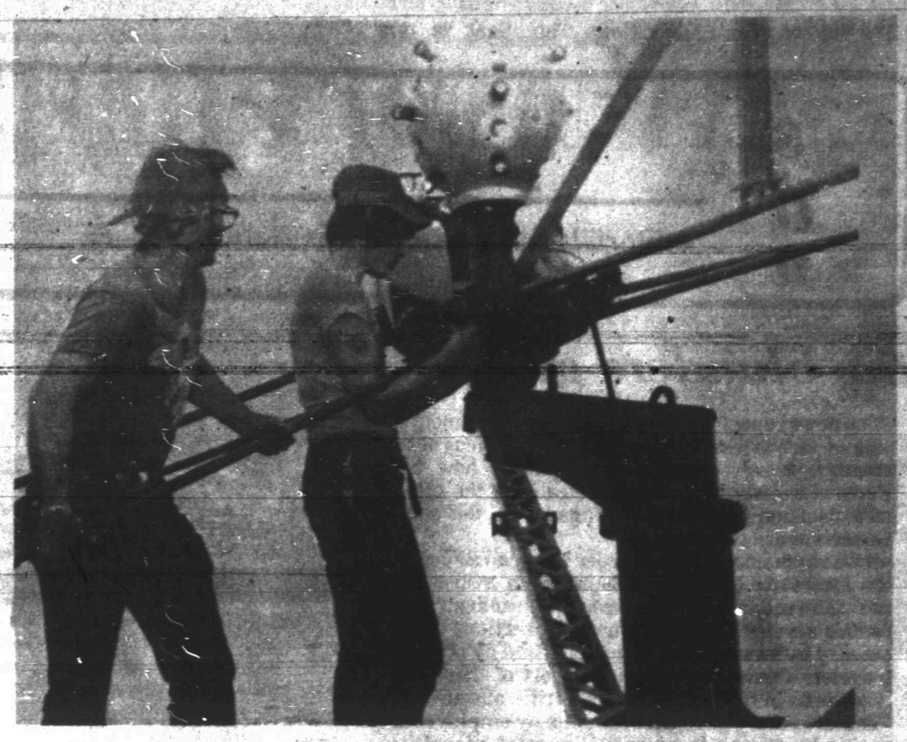

Bodies Identified

LAREDO (AP)-Authorities have completed the grisly task of recovering and identifying the bodies of seven Dallas-Fort Worth area iron-workers killed when their small private plane crashed north of here Saturday on the way to a Mexican shopping expedition.

The pilot and owner of the plane was identified as Connie Bowman, 35, of Fort Worth, according to a Texas Department of Public Safety spokesman. The other victims were identified as Mike Bates, 28, of Dallas; James Hodges, 30, of Fort Worth; Richard Booth, 20, of Dallas; A.J. Stroup, 22, of Dallas; Dale Whittaker, 21, of Ennis; and David Barton, 37, of Euless.

Top Booths At Fair Selected

The Ennis Creek 4-H Club had the grand champion educational booth as judging got underway this morning in the 14th annual Scurry County Fair. The champion booth had placed first in the junior division of the educational exhibits.

Hermleigh had the only community agricultural booth in the fair, thus earning a grand champion's emblem.

Judging of other exhibits was continuing late this morning as the fair was preparing to open its doors to the general public at noon. The competitive exhibits and commercial booths are located in the Scurry County Coliseum, while livestock is being shown for exhibit only in the adjoining agriculture-livestock building on the coliseum grounds.

The weather cooperated perfectly for the opening of the fair and everything was ready for a traditional harvest time weekend, with the carnival set up on the grounds and exhibits ready for viewing.

Judging results in the adult division of the educational booths included:

1. Hermleigh Booster Club; 2. Jaycee-ettes; 3. Leisure Lodge; 4. American Cancer Society.

Placing behind the champion Ennis Creek booth in the junior division were: 2. Boy Scouts; 3. Snyder 4-H; 4. Girl Scouts.

Results in the high school Future Farmers of America division were:

1. Ira FHA; 2. Hermleigh FHA.

The fail will continue through Saturday night. Special entertainment on the coliseum stage at 7:30 p.m. tonight will be presented by the Western Texas College Jazz Ensemble, under direction of Guy Gamble.

Ask Us

Q--What can be done about a situation where a couple of families in a neighborhood never see that their children go to bed and no one on the block can get any sleep for all the noise. These kids are yelling and running up and down the sidewalk at 2 a.m. and in some instances the parents are not home, either. They also destroy people's property, mark-up cars and have gone so far as to knock out the lights of automobiles. Older kids dare younger children to do very destructive things to neighborhood property as a game. How is the best way for the neighborhood as a whole to deal with this?

A--The problem should be discussed with law enforcement authorities if there is property damage and-or disturbance. If the children are unattended you might want to report it to the child welfare unit at 573-6501, or with the county juvenile officer.

Deadline Passes ...

Carter Prepares Rail Action Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Carter administration readied plans today to take emergency action to end a widespread, three-day rail strike as union and industry negotiators met past a midday government deadline without settling their dispute.

Sources close to the marathon talks said Labor Secretary Ray Marshall was making a final, personal attempt to mediate the dispute as aides prepared to announce that the two sides had failed to negotiate an end to the strike.

A Labor Department spokesman said Marshall was in contact with the White House, where President Carter was expected to invoke his emergency powers under the National Railway Labor Act to get the trains moving again.

The president could ask Congress to end the strike through emergency legislation, but congressional sources said legislative leaders were told that Carter would not take that route at this time.

It was understood that Carter likely would announce his action during a previously scheduled, nationally broadcast news conference at 4 p.m. EDT today.

Negotiators for the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks and the Norfolk & Western Railway met with federal mediator James J. Reynolds in round-the-clock bargaining as they sought to avert further government intervention.

Marshall, who had kept in touch with the negotiators by telephone throughout the night, met early today with Reynolds, a former undersecretary of labor and veteran labor-management mediator, for a report on the talks.

Shortly before dawn, Labor Department spokesman Donald Smyth said the two sides had made "considerable progress" but that "a number of serious issues" were unresolved.

Mob Leader In CIA Scheme

WASHINGTON (AP)-Reputed mob leader Santo Trafficante told Congress today he participated in a CIA assassination plot against Fidel Castro because "I thought I was helping the United States government."

Testifying before the House assassinations committee under a grant of immunity, Trafficante denied that he served as anything more than an interpreter providing English and Spanish translations for the others involved in the 1960 plot against the Cuban president.

He said he knows nothing about any attempt by Castro to retaliate.

The committee subpoenaed Trafficante to testify on the final day of a month of hearings examining whether there was a conspiracy behind the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

Some conspiracy theorists have speculated that organized crime figures plotted Kennedy's murder because of his administration's crackdown on the Mafia.

Trafficante, a hunched, gray-haired man of 63, has been identified by law enforcement authorities as the long-time boss of Florida crime syndicate operations. Until Castro came to power in 1959, he ran gambling casinos in Havana.

Tax Bill On Way To Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)-A $23 billion bill that would cut income taxes for 88 million couples or individuals is on its way to the Senate with the endorsement of the Finance Committee and the hint of a veto from the Carter administration.

The administration's disenchantment stems from sizeable cuts in capital gains taxes, which would largely benefit those in the higher income brackets.

The bill, which compares with a $16.3 billion version approved by the House last month, cleared the Finance Committee on a 15-2 vote Wednesday night. Senate debate will begin early next week.

The Senate bill would give larger tax cuts to virtually all classes of taxpayers, including corporations, than the House bill.

Differences between the House version and the final Senate bill would have to be worked out by a conference committee.

The new television season is upon us, and according to some of the critics, you had better try to watch some of the new shows quickly because several of them may not be around very long.

The National PTA Action Center has come out with its TV Program Review Guide for the new season. Some of the higher rated shows do not score very well in this guide, but some do. Donny and Marie have a listing among the "most commendable overall quality, the least offensive content and the least violent content." You can't get a higher score than that.

But Grizzly Adams matches Donny and Marie on all counts. We have never seen a Grizzly Adams show and we were surprised to see several on the PTA rating list which we didn't even know existed.

The fact that our television doesn't see much action duing the off-season (that's when there is no football on the tube) may have something to do with this.

We were shocked, however, to read one critic's prediction that Mary Tyler Moore's new show probably would not last the season. But, after catching just a few minutes of her first "variety" show, we decided this critic may be right. How could anyone with the talent and the looks of Mary Tyler Moore become associated with a lemon? We have a theory on that, also. It seems that many people who succeed in the entertainment world sooner or later become weary of the vehicles which take them to prominence. It has been hinted for some time that Mary Tyler Moore wanted to try something besides the situation comedies that brought her fame. However, to millions of television viewers she always will be either Dick Van Dyke's show business wife or the main attraction in a television station's newsroom.

They call it stereotyping, but it is a fact of life that entertainers seem to fear Nevertheless, viewers are that way. Just think how hard it would be to imagine Carroll O'Connor in a regular role besides Archie Bunker.

Weevil Control Project Pushed

The Scurry County Producers Association was signing up more farmers today for participation in the boll weevil control spraying program as they faced a deadline this afternoon.

The association, which administers the program in Scurry County, had been advised that state participation in funding of two sprayings this fall would be approved only if 90 per cent or more of the cotton land in the county is included. Farmers may participate by paying a fee of $2 per acre for the two sprayings.

It was estimated late this morning that something over 75 per cent of the cotton land had been committed to the program. This still left a substantial amount to be signed.

Milton Stephens, president of the association, urged farmers who have not paid their fees to come in this afternoon. Also, he said the association is anxious to hear from any farmers who have plowed up cotton or who left out cotton acreage when planting this year. Deletion of such acreage will be advantageous to the association in computing the percentage to determine whether it will qualify for state funding.

Those who have plowed up cotton were urged to call the Chamber of Commerce office at 573-3558.

The Texas Department of Agriculture officials will decide Friday morning whether the 90 per cent requirements has been met.

Response Good So Far...

C-C Survey Indicates Workers Needed Here

Response in a survey to determine personnel needs of Snyder area business and industrial firms has been good, Bill Warner, Chamber of Commerce manager, reported this week.

And, just as Warner suspected, there appears to be a definite need for more people to fill jobs here.

The chamber mailed out questionnaires late last week to owners and managers of businesses and industries of the area. The questionnaires requested information as to whether the reporting businesses need additional employes now, the type of work involved and whether the owner or the manager reporting would be interested in attending a meeting to discuss and seek a solution to personnel needs.

The first 30 questionnaires returned to the chamber listed 93 jobs for which the reporting firms would like to hire people now. They included positions in the industrial, retail and service fields.

Warner said the chamber is making the survey with a view toward developing a project designed to attract people from other areas. Snyder has had a low unemployment rate for several years, with the figure dropping as low as two per cent in some seasons. This, for all practical purposes, is zero.

"If there are not enough people here to fill all of the available jobs, we need to get out and get them to move to Snyder from other places," said Warner.

Executives of businesses and industries who have not returned the questionnaires are being urged to fill them out and send them in as soon as possible. And if there are some who did not receive questionnaires and desire them, they may be obtained by calling the Chamber of Commerce at 573-3558.

"The quicker we get them in, the quicker we can set up a meeting and begin to develop some definite plans," said Warner.

Stenholm Due At Fair Friday

Persons attending the Scurry County Fair are invited to meet Charles Stenholm, candidate for congress.

The Stamford farmer will be featured in a booth set up by Scurry County supporters from 5 to 10 p.m. Friday. Stenholm is the Democratic nominee for the 17th district seat being vacated by veteran U.S. Rep. Omar Burleson.

the blunders go on

The news report indicating possible curtailment of bus service in less densely populated sections of the country, is an excellent example of how one Federal agency goes about neutralizing the effect of a decision by a different agency of the same Government.

It was announced that an order has been issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission instructing the interurban bus transportation industry to reduce service in non-metropolitan sections of the country by less frequent scheduling and by offering travelers "fewer amenities." Import of these last two words in this connection is a trifle obscure.

The news story quoted a bus company employee as saying he doesn't know what the word amenities refers to, unless possibly bus stations rest rooms or seats and air conditioning in vehicles.

This particular order is of additional interest when considered alongside the more widely publicized general objective of reducing consumption of motor fuel. In support of the latter policy there is a general appeal for people to avoid unneccessary travel and make greater use of public transportation.

Cutting back on bus services to smaller communities would inevitably result in greater use of private automobiles. For example, curtailment of bus service between and such centers as the Fort Worth-Dallas metroplex would certainly result in greater use of private automobiles.

But there shouldn't be too much surprise to learn that people living outside metropolitan areas are faced with the possibility of being inconvenienced as a result of a public order which will not reduce the general level of motor fuel consumption.

We have, of course, a classic example in an impossible-to-understand policy of the U.S. Postal Service in its failure to make greater use of rail transportation facilities for handling mail between the nation's population centers. Scores of trucks and an equal or larger number of employees every 24 hours carry a volume of mail that could be moved by rail with lower fuel consumption, a saving in time of delivery and a substantial cut in man-power.

Some wag once said, paraphrasing a familiar passage of Scripture, "Government moves in mysterious ways its blunders to perform."

another lord warden

The mother of Britain's Queen Elizabeth II - 78-year-old Queen Mother Elizabeth, known to receive occasional public notice - was just named to the 1,000-year-old post of Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports.

She is the first woman ever appointed to the job, which originally involved responsibility for defense (with headquarters at Dover Castle) of the English Channel ports.

Nowadays the post, conferred in modern times on retired distinguished citizens, is purely honorary and carries no official duties.

The last person to fill the job was the late Sir Robert Menzies, a former prime minister of Australia.

A previous holder: Winston Churchill.

Mark Twain, an American humorist and writer, once noted that he never let schooling interfere with his education. That's because he never finished grade school.

Twain, along with several other notables, dropped out of school at a rather tender age. Was what he subsequently became in life due to his decision to drop out, or in spite of it?

Through years of aimless reading, I have gathered a variety of interesting tidbits about the early lives of a number of famous men.

Abraham Lincoln, for example, entered the Black Hawk War as a captain. He came out of it as a private.

F.W. Woolworth once got a job as a clerk in a dry goods store. The owners of the store, however, would not let him wait on any of the customers because they did not think of him as being bright enough for the task.

Walt Disney was once fired from a newspaper because it was claimed that he had no good ideas.

Louis Pasteur was rated as mediocre in chemistry when he went to college, and Thomas Edison never made it to college. He dropped out while still in grade school.

H.L. Hunt and Andrew Carnegie were another pair of grade school dropouts. Although Orville and Wilbur Wright completed grade school, they did not finish high school.

History is full of examples of famous men who did not show much promise as youngsters, but who subsequently went on to achieve some pretty great things.

How would the writing style of Mark Twain have been altered if he had gone ahead and finished grade school, junior high, or perhaps even high school? Twain, I suspect, just wouldn't be Twain if he had.

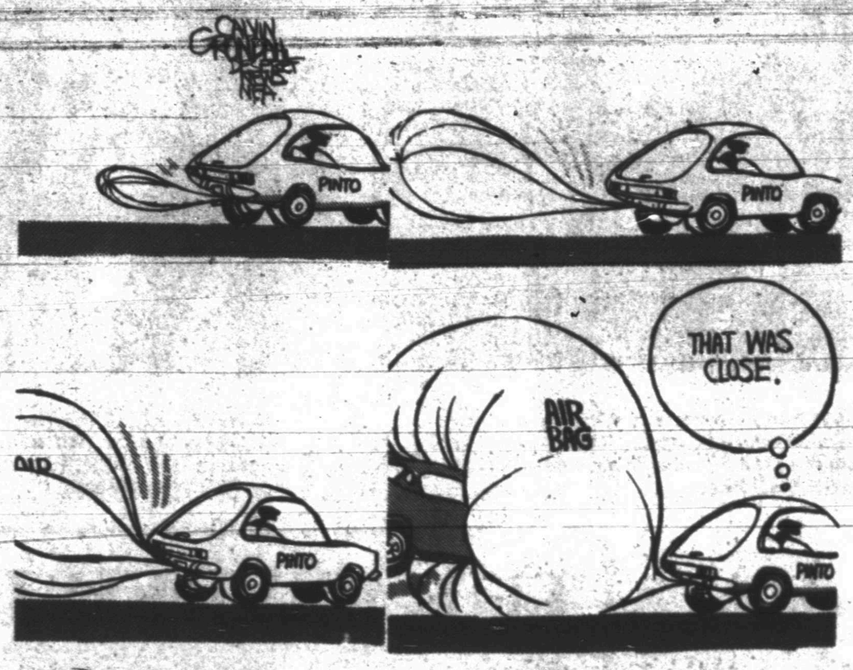

It is sometimes amazing how uncooperative friends can be when you are in a bind and need a quick idea for a column.

I asked one acquaintance what he thought would make a good column. He looked at me and replied, "About 500 words."

self-government on trial

Self-government won't work without self-discipline.

Businessmen fuss and fret over the usurpation of their prerogatives by alphabetical agencies of government - yet if they don't discipline themselves, government has to move in and free enterprise becomes that much less free.

This year the government had to order a major chain store to sell advertised bargains at advertised prices.

McDonald's hamburger restaurants in Los Angeles had to be court-ordered to stop advertising "fresh" orange juice when it is not fresh and "maple" syrup when it is not maple.

A health food distributor was caught buying up cases of ordinary mayonnaise, relabeling it "health food mayonnaise" and selling it at an inflated price.

One diet bread tried to get away with advertising "less calories per slice" by slicing thinner.

Self-government without self-dicipline is self-defeating.

For example when the FTC finds that up to 40 percent of all car repairs you get charged for were not made or were not needed.

From experience we know that without government surveillance somebody will try to put Chevy engines into Oldsmobiles.

The number of government regulatory agencies has doubled in 10 years. For every new law passed by Congress last year, unelected bureaucrats turned out 18 new regulations with the force of law.

President Ken Wessner of Servicemaster said it: "To the extent that we businessmen vacate our moral obligations of stewardship, to that extent our businesses will be taken out of our hands."

What is true of us collectively is true for us individually.

Already traditional American "freedoms" have been so abridged that you are not free to get on an airliner without submitting yourself, your luggage and, if indicated, your underwear - to search.

Why? Because there is a dictator in Washington determined to dictate?

No, sir. It's simply because we have a handful of screwballs running around - with guns and knives.

Because a few sickies hide razors in apples, whole states have had to outlaw Halloween.

They've taken away our fireworks and threaten to take away our guns - because some misuse theirs.

Not because there is tyranny in government, but because there is anarchy in the unbottoned brains of a handful of looneybirds who don't deserve to be free - so the rest of us can't be.

And it's down that road that nations go from regulations to regimentation to tyranny.

Self-government implies an immense responsibility: we must behave voluntarily or we will be forced to behave. We must work voluntarily or we will be forced to work.

Let's volunteer.

Let's preserve, protect and defend our beautiful, bountiful republic from all enemies - foreign and domestic, sometimes including ourselves - if only because so many people we never knew have broken their hearts to get it and keep it for us.

items of interest

NEW YORK (AP)-For the liberal arts student, for the homemaker worrying about prices, and for the gloomy of heart who believe the American worker has become a goof-off, these items of interest:

FOR THE LIBERAL ARTS GRADUATE: Liberal arts students are prized by some business organizations.

True, many companies look for business or related majors, but others esteem the liberal artists for their reasoning and other abilities.

Cargill, Inc., a Minneapolis-based, privately owned, multi-billion dollar, worldwide trader of commodities, traditionally hires liberal arts graduates among its management trainees.

"We feel they have a rounded education, are generally able to express themselves, and have an open mind," said W.B. "Barney" Saunders, a group vice president who interviews potential trainees.

FOR HOMEMAKERS: The message is less refreshing.

According to Howard Hjort, Agriculture Department chief economist, "a stable farm price situation in 1979 would likely result in food price increases on the order of 4 or 5 percent."

Not bad, so far.

At that point Citibank economists began making their own projections. Hjort's prediction, they said, assumes an inflation rate of 6.5 percent to 7.5 percent. "We expect 8 percent or more," they said.

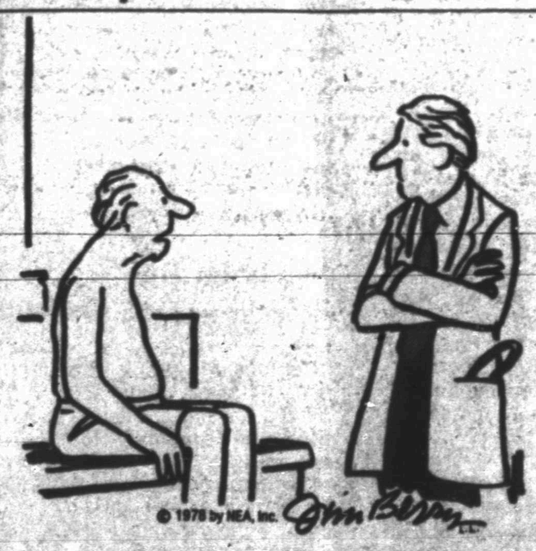

Based on Hjort's statement, they continued, the grocery bill of a typical four person family next year would rise by about $3.40 a week, if farm prices remain stable.

The calculations get even more foreboding. "Smaller meat and dairy supplies," the economists maintain, "could push that bill up by $6.15 a week." And the message continues to darken.

"These increases, if realized, would be on top of the $6.21 weekly increase already foreseen for 1978 for the typical four-person family who spent $63.10 a week on groceries in 1977," the economists state.

FOR THE WORKER: And for those who think they no longer are interested in a good day's work for a good day's pay, it isn't so, says Prof. David Cherrington of Brigham Young University.

WASHINGTON (NEA) - For public employee unions, the fastest growing segment of the American labor movement, these are the best times and the worst of times.

The bad news is more apparent than the good, with voters from California to Massachusetts on the warpath against high taxes and the government workers who spend them.

Yet this very climate of hostility and duress is paradoxically promoting the cast of unionism in the public sector. More than 16 million Americans, about 17 percent of the total work force, are now employed by federal, state or local government and about half of them belong to a union.

Wtih hard times at hand, that percentage is likely to grow. "I hate to say it, but Proposition 13 has been a terrific organizing tool," said one union official here. "People are scared, so they're signing up."

Public employee unions were caught unprepared by the vehemence of this year's much-heralded tax revolt. In the past, they have generally been able to defeat tax and spending limits proposed by state legislatures or placed directly on the ballot by warning that popular public services would suffer if such lids were imposed.

This time, it didn't work. California voters, infuriated by spiraling property taxes and staring at a $5 billion state surplus, simply didn't believe the dire predictions. And their skepticism proved justified.

Now the government unions are fighting a rearguard action to forestall similar tax initiatives or spending limitations in other states, but the momentum is against them.

"It looks like we're headed for a wipeout in November," conceded Donovan McClure, associated director of the Coalition of American Public Employees, an umbrella group for five major unions and associations.

CAPE is making no attempt, from the national level, to stem the tide at the polls. Instead, it is saving its resources and energy for combat this winter in the various state legislatures where tax and spending limits are sure to come up.

And it is seeking to get off the defensive and seize the initiative by advocating tax relief through major tax reform, rather than "meat-ax" cuts that benefit business and the rich more than ordinary homeowners and taxpayers.

"Nobody benefits from a great confrontation between public employees and the public," McClure said. "We learned from California that we cannot allow the right wing to control the debate. We've got to get involved early and shift the focus to tax reform that guarantees relief to those who deserve it without sacrificing services for those who need them."

CAPE plans to concentrate its campaign on six or eight states in the Northeast and Midwest where the tax structure is both burdensome and inequitable, seeking alliances with existing public interest groups already at work in those states.

"It's time to tell people who is paying taxes and who isn't, to get rid of special abatements for business, to shift from reliance on property taxes to a progressive income tax," McClure said.

"We take great solace from the polls that show the one group more unpopular than public employees right now is business."

The public employee unions have their work cut out for them. They have ridden the gravy train for so long, without inquiring about its ultimate destination or the source of its fuel supply, that their attempts to get in front of the tax relief issue will understandably generate suspicion.

Nonetheless, it will be interesting to see what they come up with in the way of reform suggestions. The tax structure in most states could use a thorough overhaul, and it is high time that those who spend our taxes start showing some sensitivity to the legitimate gripes of those who pay them.

battle beginning

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The action of the congress in sending the proposal to grant the District of Columbia the right to have two U.S. Senators and at least one Representative, should be the beginning of a battle rather than the end of it.

During the consideration of this amendment to the Constitution, there was a zealous lobby working in its behalf and almost no developed opposition to it. It is hoped that a more persistent effort will be made before three-fourths of the State Legislatures ratify the Amendment.

During the debate in the House of Representatives and Senate, principles involved were not the ruling consideration. It was a contest for political advantage and the liberal-left picked up the marbles.

The states called upon to ratify this amendment will face a very real principle when it is recognized that Washington will be the only City in the Nation with Federal voting representatives in Congress. This will mean that those representatives will be serving a strictly urban interest and will have no balancing rural or agricultural concerns. Before the various fifty State Legislatures act, they will recognize that unless membership of the House of Representatives is increased, any Congressman from the City of Washington would reduce Representatives from the States.

If the real objective of the amendment was simply to grant voting rights to inhabitants of the Nation's Capital, it could be accomplished by ceding the residential portion of the City to the State of Maryland as Alexandria was ceded to Virginia in the 19th century. This approach would confer on the residents of the District of Columbia the same voting rights as a State. It would void giving two U.S. Senators to a less than 70 square mile enclave-whose population is smaller than that of eleven other American Cities. Those two U.S. Senators, however, are exactly the point. If the District of Columbia can have Federal Legislators as though they were a State, the "big-government" faction would have added votes for every conceivable spending program to be dreamed up.

The liberalism in Washington is a "company town" where virtually everyone works or is otherwise dependent on the Federal Government. In 1976, there were approximately 224,000 employees in the District who worked directly for the Government while another 150,000 worked for industries servicing the Government. Only about 16,000 Washingtonians were employed in manufacturing. The Amendment to give what amounts to Statehood to the City of Washington would produce Representatives in the Congress to vote on matters contributing directly to its own well-being and could be in conflict with the interests of the Nation as a whole. Already Federal funds going to the District of Columbia have made it the most affluent metropolitan area in the Nation. For its population the City has become the most extravagant. With two U.S. Senators and two Congressmen to plead the case for still more Federal spending, this situation would certainly expand.

It is hardly a mystery why this amendment got the votes of many Conservative Congressmen and Senators. It was about as political as anything could get. The City of Washington is approximately 75 percent black and those with a heavy black Constituency in their State or District were well aware of this

A heart lead by West would leave South no play for his contract, but West elected to open the jack of clubs.

South won in dummy, led the nine of diamonds and let it ride. West could still beat the hand. He could take his king of diamonds and shift to a heart, but West ducked.

At this point South could be sure of nine tricks if he went after spades. Three spades, three clubs, one heart and two diamonds come to a total of nine.

However, South had never learned that a finesse is only proven when a defender fails to follow in a suit.

South repeated the diamond finesse. This time West took his king, thought a while, shifted to a heart and left South half way between a rock and a hard place with no way to get those nine tricks.

There is another lesson to be learned here. It is that if you don't know how to play the dummy you shouldn't rush to bid notrump.

Ask the Experts

A Virginia reader wants to know what is meant by the expression "He tapped the declarer."

To tap a declarer, dummy or defender is to force him to ruff and thereby reduce his trump holding by one.

Texans Hold Key To Gas Compromise Bill

By MILLER BONNER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Texans hold the key for House passage of the natural gas compromise bill, says Lufkin Democrat Charles Wilson, who suggests that a little political arm twisting may be in order.

House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill Jr. and House majority leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth should "be calling in all the people that should vote for the bill...and make it clear that folks who voted for the bill would be treated a little differently than folks who didn't.

"The speaker's prestige is totally on the line. The president's is totally on the line. And the majority leader is going to be awfully embarassed if he doesn't get any Texas votes," added Wilson.

The Carter administration-backed compromise, which calls for deregulation of most natural gas by 1985 and gradual price increases in the interim, passed the Senate on Wednesday - as expected - by a 57-42 vote.

"Right now it does not look by any means that it will pass the House," warned Wilson late Wednesday afternoon. "The Republicans are maintaining a pretty solid front... the North east liberals are holding pretty firm and we're not getting any signigicant breakthrough with producing-state Democrats.

An unusual coalition of liberals, who feel the compromise is too much a price for consumers to pay, and conservatives, who feel it doesn't deregulate prices quick enough, hope to defeat the measure when the House votes in mid October.

Wilson, a member of the House-Senate conference committee that hammered out the compromise, was named earlier this week to a 37-member task force by O'Neill and instructed to drum up support for the compromise.

"My job on the task force is to work with the producing-state Democrats," said Wilson. "That includes Colorado and Utah where I'm having some luck. Where I'm having no luck at all is Oklahoma and Louisiana."

And Texas.

Wilson admitted that right now only "six or seven" Texans will line up with the president and the House leadership.

"In the last analysis, when the speaker, majority leader and the president put the full-court press on them, I think we'll get half of the Texas Democrats, maybe more," continued Wilson. "I'll be very disappointed if we don't get 11 or 12.

"But if we don't have more than six or seven, which is what we've got now, then the bill will not pass."

Opponents to the bill can oppose the bill on "ideological grounds, saying it's not deregulations and on practical political grounds, which is really where the opposition comes from, because they don't want Carter to get the credit for resolving the issue," added Wilson.

The House leadership plans to lump the natural gas pricing compromise with three less controversial energy measures and stage one vote on the entire package.

"A lot of congressmen don't want to go before the voters in November without having passed an energy bill," said Wilson who noted that the "ones we're having the problems with are the real idealogues and that argument doesn't carry a lot of weight with them sometimes."

Wilson said he hoped that five "leaning" Texans - whom he refused to name - would be invited to meet with the secretary of the Treasury and the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board to "talk about the international implications of the bill."

Wilson said he believed the oft-repeated White House arguments on behalf of a comprehensive energy bill. Passage of such a measure would improve the dollar abroad and disprove "the general perception in Western Europe and Japan that the U.S. does not have the capacity to come to terms with a divisive regional issue," he said.

Should the measure pass, Texas consumers are "going to have an emotional reward because for the first time in ten years, they're going to be paying the same as everybody else...they'll know the yankees are paying the same that they do which has been a bone of contention for some time."

The intrastate gas market in Texas has supported higher at selling to interstate customers. The compromise would extend federal regulation to the intrastate markets, which will increase prices in most states.

The main Texas opposition to the bill arises from "the emotional opposition to any intrusion in the intrastate market by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission," said Wilson.

Opponents of the bill contend that the increased regulation will drive some small producers out of the business while continuing to raise gas prices as producers pass the cost of additional lawyers and accountants along to consumers.

New Swim Record Set

RANCHO PALOS VERDES, Calif. (AP) - A 17-year-old boy has set a new record for the 44-mile round-trip swim between the mainland and Catalina Island - 16 hours, 42 minutes.

John York, who has to be pulled from the water of the Catalina Channel just yards from shore and hospitalized in a similar attempt last year, was chilly but in excellent condition after the successful swim Friday, according to his mother, Dottie York. A physician greeted York on shore and pronounced him fit, she said.

Lowering Boom On 'Croakers'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)-HEW Secretary Joseph Califano Jr. says his department is forming "crackdown teams" to lower the legal boom on "notorious doctors" who use forged Medicaid forms to prescribe drugs to pushers.

Califano told the Commonwealth Club that Health, Education and Welfare Department fraud units are being set up in 16 states which accounted for 62 percent of Medicaid payments in 1977. He called the drug-purveying doctors "croakers." Califano said "pushers get pharmacists to fill the prescriptions. Then they sell the pills on the street. Uncle Sam pays all the bills."

La Raza Unida Will Swing To Clements

By GREG THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO (AP)- Mexican-Americans will eventually benefit if Republican Bill Clements is elected governor, says La Raza Unida gubernatorial candidate Mario Compean, who vows he'll get enough votes to swing November's election to Clements.

"I believe there is a strong chance Democrat John Hill will not be elected and Texas will have a Republican governor," Compean, 38, one of the founders of the Mexican-American political party, told reporters Wednesday.

"The election of a Republican means that from now on, the Democrats and no one else will be able to take the Mexican-American vote for granted," he added. "Because the Democratic Party has been in office too long, there hasn't been enough competition.

"It's not my goal to elect Mr. Clements, but if that happens, it's the next best thing to my being elected."

Compean has a campaign war chest of only $30,000 and virtually no television exposure, but he vowed he would garner 10 percent of the vote. That's enough, he said, to decide a close race between Clements and Attorney General Hill, both of whom are mounting expensive campaigns.

Ramsey Muniz got about 6 percent of the vote in 1972 and more than 5 percent in 1974 during the height of the party's popularity. He is now serving a federal prison sentence after being convicted of smuggling marijuana.

Compean called upon Mexican-Americans and labor union members to reject Hill, calling Hill "the same old-type gringo Democrat." He charged, "John Hill is a hypocrite and he has misled the public."

"Mr. Hill cannot change the fact that he is a false pretender who wants to be governor on the strength of a sell-out labor leadership and the chicanery of those opportunistic Mexican-American Democrats who see him as their passport to some state appointment," Compean said.

Compean said Hill has "lied" to Mexican-Americans by assuring them he is concerned about alleged police brutality, while refusing to support a new Civil Rights Act.

Counselling Solved Her Serious Problem

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the woman who had been married 15 years, had two kids and problems with her sex life (no kisses, and sex once every three months for 10 minutes) could have been written by me.

I did what you advised her to do. Got counseling. It was especially embarrassing for me because my husband is a psychologist who does family counseling.

I went to a mental health clinic and the doctor there was considerate and understanding. He ordered complete physical checkups for the whole family. We were then referred to an endocrinologist who examined us further and discovered that both my husband and I had low blood sugar — or hypoglycemia. Worse yet, our child was found to have diabetes!

The doctor told us to go home and throw everything out of the house that had sugar in it. We learned a lot about nutrition, and now we are doing well on whole grains, fresh fruits and vegetables, plenty of protein and very little fat. We feel better, have more energy and couldn't be happier.

ABBY FAN

DEAR FAN: The search for solutions to life's problems should always start with a physical examination. Unfortunately, most people take better care of their automobiles than their bodies.

Let this serve as a reminder to call your physician for a thorough check-up. Teeth, too! And when did you last have your eyes and hearing checked?

DEAR ABBY: I need your advice. My husband and I have had some pretty heated arguments about drop-in company. I do not like to have people drop in on me. I feel that a call ahead of time is not asking too much. My husband feels that I should be all smiles and play the gracious hostess no matter who drops in — or when.

I work full-time and must do my laundry and housecleaning on weekends. When I'm in the middle of my work, hot and sweaty and looking a mess, if friends drop in uninvited, I'm not about to put on a phony smile and pretend I am thrilled to have company. I'm steamed! And I guess it's obvious.

I wouldn't dream of dropping in on my friends, and I think they owe me the same courtesy.

What do you think?

HATES DROP-INS

DEAR HATES: I'm with you.

DEAR ABBY: I am an adult woman living alone. For the last two weeks I've been frightened by obscene phone calls. They're always at night.

At first, when I answered the phone, no one would speak, but I could hear this heavy breathing — then an awful outpouring of filthy language would begin. I hang up as soon as I know it's this party, but he keeps calling back. Lately I've been taking my phone off the hook until morning, but I dislike doing that because I could be missing some important calls.

What is the best way to handle obscene phone calls, Abby?

JOLIET, ILL.

DEAR JOLIET: If the caller says nothing, hang up! If the caller uses foul language — don't listen, cut him off. If the calls persist, notify the police department and the telephone company. And it wouldn't hurt to keep a police whistle by the phone. The next time he calls, use it to blast him into the next county!

Oil Lease Okayed By C-City Council

COLORADO CITY - The city council opened the door for drilling operations in Ruddick Park and the cemetery Tuesday when the mayor broke a deadlock and the only bid submitted for the lease of some city owned property was awarded.

Virginia Rachel was the successful bidder for a six year lease of 100 acres of city property located mostly in the cemetery and Ruddick Park. She will pay $25 per acre plus one-eighth royalty fees on any minerals sold.

Mayor Marian Bassham broke a tie when she joined councilmen J.O. Dockery, Rick Perkin and Loyd Ledbetter and cast her vote in favor of the action. Voting against the measure were Buddy Hertenberger, Jesse Munoz and Jody Neff who said they did not want the sanctity of the property to be violated.

City Manager James Campbell, presented for examination an ordinance regulating drilling and production precedures of oil and gas wells inside the city limits. It will be up for approval at the next meeting.

In other action the council approved a hangar-ground lease agreement at the C-City airport. The agreement spells out construction techniques and types of material permissible at the airport. It also clarifies the liabilities of those who use the facility.

The council also approved a 6.7 percent rate hike to Texas Electric Service Company. It will go into effect immediately.

Youth Convicted In Cafe Murders

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)- Melvin Yu has been convicted on five counts of first-degree murder and 11 counts of assault with a deadly weapon in connection with last year's gang-related massacre at Chinatown's Golden Dragon restaurant.

The 18-year-old Yu was the second of three triggermen accused in the incident in which five persons were killed and 11 were wounded. Police said the Sept. 4, 1977, raid began with an attempted assassination of Wah Ching gang leader Michael Hot Dog Louie by the rival Joe Boys gang. Louie was eating in the restaurant but was not harmed.

Water Witching Handy Skill For Well Digger

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent

NELIGH, Neb. (AP)- Merritt DeCamp, a well digger, has an edge on others in that business but he doesn't generally talk about it. He is a water witch.

He doesn't talk about it, he says, because too many charlatans have swindled their way through American folklore claiming supernatural powers. Merritt DeCamp, known above all as a man of strictest integrity, wants no part of that heritage.

I don't know why the stick bends," he said. "I don't know why it works for some and not others. I don't know what it tells about what is under the ground. All I know is that it is consistent."

A water witch, as country people are aware, is a person who can grip a forked willow switch in upturned fists and discover, by watching the tip bend downward, where to dig for water.

In Merritt DeCamp's workhardened fists, the dipping of the willow is unmistakable, and a bit eerie.

"The best I can deduce - and I'm not claiming this is accurate - is that the stick dips when it is above a gravel formation. Gravel is a water-bearing formation."

He discovered this by walking along a steep riverbank. When the stick dipped, he marked the spot. Then he retraced his patch along the riverbed. Sure enough, at every spot he had marked above, he found an outcropping of gravel below.

Merritt DeCamp has never advertised his unusual talent, or boasted about it. Quite the contrary. But it is well known hereabouts, and when a neighbor has asked his help, he has obliged.

"I have never charged a dime," he said, "and I have refused money people try to give me. It would be wrong to take it.

His results have been unerring, and not just locally. On Guadalcanal, he witched a well for the Seabees that far outproduced the Army's two scientifically located wells.

Merritt DeCamp was born in 1913 in the nearby village of Clearwater. Could that be significant? He discovered his water-witching ability when he was 14.

"A friend of mine, Frank McGee, told me he saw somebody get a well that way, by witching. Frank showed me how to cut the stick. We decided to try it and it worked, for me. It didn't work for him.

Montana had only 32 days of thoroughbred racing in 1977, the lowest for any state that had racing.

Drink lots of fluids

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — One of your columns recently talked about uric acid kidney stones. The treatment that you mentioned differed from that of our son's, so I thought you would be interested in our story.

When he was 13 years old he was hospitalized with a kidney infection and found to have a large uric acid stone. He was placed on a very strict uric acid free diet with no red meats — only chicken, fish, turkey. He drank a glass of water each waking hour to keep his kidneys flushed, plus four glasses of orange juice and a solution of sodium citrate and citric acid which, in turn, caused his urine to become very alkaline. Bathing a uric acid stone in alkaline solution over a period of time dissolves stones.

After three months of faithfully following the treatment, new X rays showed that the stone was gone and our son's kidney was back to normal. Surgery had been avoided. Our son is still checked at regular intervals but, to date, there has been no recurrence of uric acid crystals or infection.

We learned a great deal out of this experience. First, that uric acid stones appear in children and calcium stones appear in adults. And that uric acid stones are transparent and, therefore, you can't see them on ordinary X rays, but have to inject dye to observe them.

Also, children today eat more meat than is necessary and drink less water than they should. Consequently, they don't flush out the uric acids in their system.

DEAR READER — Most of the things you say are right on target and they are not particularly different from what I have commented on before in terms of uric acid stones.

The chief difference probably is in the method of making the urine alkaline.

This can be done in several different ways with different medicines. It is perfectly true that a high percentage of uric acid stones can be dissolved. Unfortunately, it is not true in all cases.

There have been enormous strides forward in learning how to treat kidney stones in recent years. You have to know what kind of stone it is before you decide whether you want the urine to be acid or alkaline. Some stones dissolve in an acid urine, whereas other stones dissolve in an alkaline urine.

Of course, there are stones that don't dissolve at all. With the current knowledge about stones, though, most of them can be prevented from enlarging further and a good many of them can be dissolved. Also, you can prevent formation of new stones.

It is perfectly true that uric acid stones cannot be seen on an ordinary X ray. It is not true that they occur only in children. Uric acid stones can and do occur in adults.

To give you more information about kidney stones and the current thinking about them, I am sending you The Health Letter number 11-2, Kidney Stones: Treatment Has Changed. Other readers who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Despite what kind of stone a person has, the one point on which there is almost universal agreement is that anyone who has such problems should drink lots of fluids, particularly water.

They should drink enough to cause the kidneys to flush water out of the body around the clock, rather than just drinking large amounts of fluids two or three times a day. The dilute urine helps to prevent the clumping of minerals and chemicals that form stones.

Store Offers Unusual And Expensive Gifts

DALLAS (AP) - Neiman-Marcus, the Dallas department store for customers who have everything, is now offering a suggestion concerning what to do with it.

The big gift heralded in this year's Christmas catalogue is a pair of his-and-her underground storage vaults, but not the kind you'd expect to visit frequently. They are located deep within the heart of a 9,000-foot granite mountain in Utah's Wasatch Range in a 150-foot long cavern where the temperature and humidity remain constant.

Besides its natural protection, there is a system of surveillance, closed circuitry and hair-triggered alarms - all powered by waterfall-generated electricity.

Operated by Omniwest Corp., the cavern is primarily a permanent storage site for the records of some of the country's leading corporations. However, Neiman-Marcus acquired three his-and-hers security units, each 700 cubic feet in size and subdivided into separate 350 cubic-foot areas.

"One may store here, with impunity and far from all uninvited eyes, the originals of oils you'd hate to lose, the real jewelry, a very rare vintage Bordeaux, a golden ingot or two, or the originals of the personal records without which we all would be lost - indeed, keep anything here that is not spontaneously combustible," the store's Christmas book says.

But you can't buy them. Instead, each of the three natural safety deposit boxes is available for a 50-year lease.

The price: $90,000 for the full term.

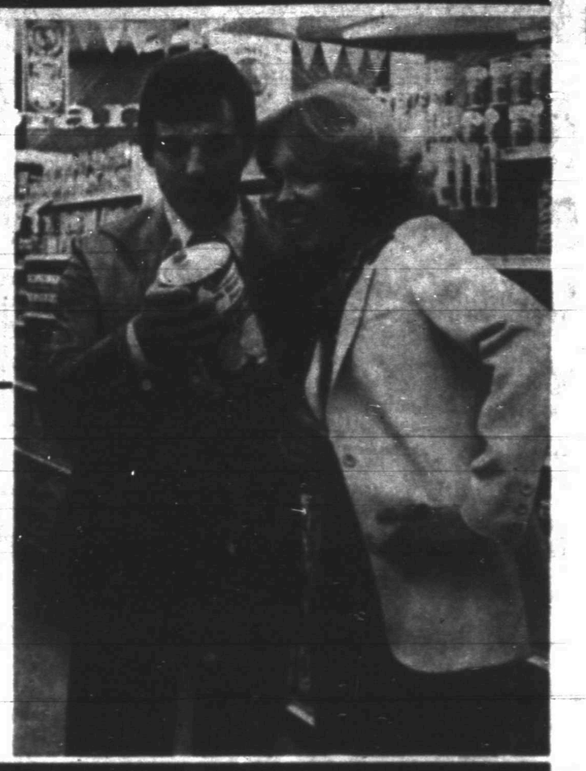

If that's not practical for you, a mere $600 will buy N-M's exclusive replica of the Monopoly Game - in chocolate - which "could be the greatest finale to a dinner party ever conceived."

One Little Game... But So Important!

One game - it could have been the loss to Cleveland in April, Toronto in May, Oakland in June, Minnesota in July or Seattle in August. Reverse the outcome in any of those games, and the Boston Red Sox would be in much better shape today.

They have been one game behind the New York Yankees in the American League East since Saturday and each day that one game looms larger.

Boston beat Detroit 5-2 Wednesday night, while the Yankees were defeating Toronto 5-1, so the Red Sox are still running, albeit running in place.

"This is the tightest race I've been in," said Reggie Jackson, who played for three straight world championship teams at Oakland. "I don't like it."

Red Sox 5, Tigers 2

The Red Sox, helped by a three-run first inning keyed by Carlton Fisk's two-run triple, posted their fourth consecutive victory and eighth in the last 10 games. Scott, fighting a season-long slump, knocked a pair of runs with a single and his 12th homer of the year. Luis Tiant, 12-8, allowed homers by Rusty Staub and Ron LeFlore before leaving after six innings because of a slight muscle pull behind his left knee.

Yankees 5, Blue Jays 1

Jackson and his old Oakland teammate Catfish Hunter helped reduce the Yankees' magic number to four in pursuit of their third straight division flag. Hunter, 12-5, won his ninth game in the last 10 decisions with a six-hitter. He gave up his usual homer, this one to Roy Howell, who committed a key error in the Yanks' three-run second inning.

Orioles 3, Indians 1

Dennis Martinez pitched in and out of trouble all game, giving up 10 hits and four walks. He stranded five runners in the first three innings but threw the right pitch at the right time to raise his record to 15-11.

Through the 1977 season, the New York Mets had only one 100-RBI man, Rusty Staub, who drove in 105 runs in 1975.

Humphrey To Retire

ATLANTA (AP) - Shocked Atlanta Falcons players set about regrouping today after learning their three-time All-Pro teammate, defensive end Claude Humphrey, is retiring from football.

The 34-year-old Humphrey, a 10-year veteran, announced his retirement Wednesday, saying, "The time has come."

The Falcons, 1-3, are already reeling from the losses through injuries for the season of wide receiver Alfred Jenkins and safety Ray Easterling.

"We've got to live with it," said five-year veteran Jeff Yeates, who will take Humphrey's place in the lineup.

Meanwhile, Southwest Texas State tied Elon and the University of Wisconsin at Eau Claire, all 2-0, for 12th. East Texas State, 2-1, ranked 18th and Texas A&I, 1-2, was 20th.

In NAIA's Division II, Tarleton State ranked fifth with 3-0 and McMurry College tied Chadron State, both 2-0-1, at eighth.

Kilgore Junior College claimed fifth place in the national junior college football rankings. Tyler Junior College was listed at ninth position and Ranger Junior College was 11th.

Home Sweet Home; Pirates Hanging On

The Pittsburgh Pirates have won 22 games in a row at their home park, Three Rivers Stadium. If they don't stretch the streak to 26, they can forget about winning the National League East title - and the Philadelphia Phillies will be division champions for the third straight year.

The Phillies, leading the NL East by 3½ games, and the Pirates, in second place, begin a crucial four-game series at Pittsburgh Friday night with a double-header. Thev play single games Saturday and Sunday.

Philadelphia needs only one victory to capture the championship. However, if the Pirates sweep the series, they would be one-half game ahead of the Phillies and would have to play a makeup game against Cincinnati Monday.

Should Pittsburgh win all four games against Philadelphia over the weekend, they would equal the longest home winning streak in major league history - 26 games by the 1916 New York Giants.

Astros 4, Braves 0

Vern Ruhle and Joe Sambito collaborated on a five-hitter and rookie Jeff Leonard rapped a three-run double during a four-run eighth inning, helping Houston top Atlanta. Ruhle worked the first seven innings, extending his shutout string against the Braves to 25 innings.

Rangers 10, Twins 5

Toby Harrah rapped out his 1,000th career hit, a three-run homer that capped a five-run fifth and propeled Texas over Minnesota. The two-out homer came off reliever Mike Marshall and followed a two-run single by Juan Beniquez.

Angels 4, Brewers 1

Dave Frost scattered 10 hits before needing last-out relief help from Dave LaRoche, who picked up his 25th save.

Rick Miller's second double knocked in two runs in the fifth, breaking a scoreless tie.

Oilers' Pastorini Back At Workouts

HOUSTON (AP) - Dan Pastorini, the Houston Oilers' tempermental $200,000 per year quarterback, was $500 poorer today but back with the team and concentrating on Cleveland, this week's opponent, instead of criticism by Oiler offensive coordinator Ken Shipp.

Pastorini boycotted Tuesday's Oiler workout but returned Wednesday to say he had been angered that Shipp had criticized him publicly for his play selection in Sunday's 10-6 loss to Los Angeles.

The Oiler quarterback also was unhappy that Oiler Coach O.A "Bum" Phillips didn't inform him first that the Oiler coaches would start calling plays in clutch situations. Pastorini read it in the newspaper.

"Bum will be working more with our offense and it will be much better now. I am sure everything will be all right."

Pastorini said Phillips and the team were most important to him.

"I didn't want to leave the impression I was walking out on them," he said. "I wasn't. Nobody told me the plays would be called for me at certain times during the game and I was upset about it when I read it in the paper. I wasn't fair to Bum. I didn't give him a chance to explain."

When asked how much bigger role he would play in the Oiler offense, Phillips said "a helluva lot bigger. But that doesn't mean there is anything wrong with our offense. I'm not second guessing. I'm just trying to help."

Test Sharpness Against Andrews Friday...

Cats Keep Honing Pre-District Claws

By BILL McCLELLAN

ANDREWS--Snyder Coach Mike Jenkins - who sometimes views the non-league campaign simply as a proving ground - noted that he will not "place a premium" on Friday's football game here, and added, "our objective is to improve each week."

The Tigers, beset with injuries in at least one key position, will nonetheless be looking to harness the 3-0 Mustangs for the first time in three years as they take the field at 8 p.m.

"We're definitely going out there to win," Jenkins confirmed. "We feel like we can win. But our main objective is to improve each week, and we feel like we have. If we've improved enough over last week, we can beat Andrews."

The visitors will be going against a tradition-minded Mustang team without the services of starting quarterback Clay Johnson, who has suffered a lower leg injury. Johnson is expected back in the lineup next week however.

Instead, the Tigers will go with back up man Paul Gafford, whose lone weakness may be lack of varsity playing experience. Gafford, 5-11, 170, has worked at the down-under spot all year, saw action during two scrimmages and was a starter at the position on last year's junior varsity team.

To Jenkins, replacing the quarterback is not so different than replacing any other starter.

"I don't think this position, in spite of its importance, is any different than any other time you lose a starter during the year. I feel like our kids are capable of filling any vacant position, and Paul's no different."

And the coach plans no offensive changes to offset the loss. "We think we're improving and to change at this point would not be very sound. What we need to do is to improve the things we are doing right, and eliminate our mistakes."

Those mistakes - a missed pass, penalties and a confused assignment or two - may have kept Snyder from beating Big Spring worse than 20-14 last week.

Basically though, Jenkins and company were pleased with the Tiger effort last week. "Defensively, I hope we rise up again like we did last week," Jenkins spoke of Friday's contest. "We've improved each week. The offensive and defensive line were the two main areas we were extremely pleased with last week."

The clubs have played only one common opponent, Big Spring. Andrews handed the steers a 27-7 loss, while Snyder whipped the 4A school by six points.

"I don't think you can compare those scores at all," said Jenkins. "I would doubt that the rivalry is as great between Andrews and Big Spring as it is between Snyder and Big Spring. And that plays such a key factor in the outcome of close ball games."

All of which doesn't mean the coach has no respect for the Mustangs.

"They are quick and agressive, especially on defense. They went 20-0 the last two years, and they've got a lot of tradition along with that. (New) Coach Bill Shipman has done a great job. That defense (which has held opponents to an average of 4.3 points per game) is tough, and they've got a kid, Steve Kolb (6-2, 240), who may be one of the better defensive tackles in the state."

Other Mustangs to watch are split end and kick return specialist Billy Green, quarterback Jay McWilliams, offensive tight end David Robinson (6-1, 210), and defensive backs Tim Trower, Johnny Madrid and Robbie Jones.

"I'm sure the kids who have been in our program the last couple of years would like to beat them (Andrews) over there. We lost the last two years and I'm sure some of our kids remember the 25-0 defeat last year. Yes, we're going over there to win. We'll give it our best shot."

Action Advances In Week Four For Area Gridders

Area gridders prepare for a fourth week of high school football, and for at least four teams, it will be a prelude to the start of district competition next week.

Colorado City, 2-1, comes off of a week's rest to take on winless Post this week. The Wolves are expected to do well at Antelope Field, and hopefully take a 3-1 slate to Anson on Oct. 6, where they'll open the district season.

Hobbs, which is taking this week off after straight losses to Bryson and Lueders-Avoca, will be tuning for its District 3-B six-man campaign which begins with Southland.

Two other area teams will take the results of this week's action into district batties the first weekend of October. Rotan, 3-0, will try out Hamlin at Yellowhammer Field on Oct. 6, but first it must wage war against another undefeated team, Robert Lee. That battle, which takes place at Steer Field (Robert Lee) on Friday, will be a good pre-league test for the 'Hammers, who have mauled weaker opponents by a combined point total of 154-28.

Ira, 0-3, will also open circuit play next week, but on Oct. 7, Saturday, instead of the usual Friday fare. The Bulldogs, which have the unfortunate experience of hosting powerhouse Christoval this Friday, will celebrate homecoming on the 7th by hosting McCaulley.

In the similar-opponents category, Christoval whipped Loop 58-38 earlier this season while Ira fell to that foe, 40-26.

Meanwhile, Hermleigh will try to remain undefeated as it travels to Water Valley this week. The Cardinals will sit out the Oct. 6 date, to begin district action Oct. 13 against Hobbs.

Finally, District 3-B, 11-man colleagues Roby and Borden County will not begin league drives until Oct. 13 either. This week 2-1 Roby will tackle 1-2 Rule at Lion Field. Rule whipped Aspermont 22-0 for its lone victory, while Roby handed a 12-6 loss to that opponent.

Borden County, still looking for a trip out of the cellar, will have its best chance yet in hosting Dawson, 1-1, Friday. The Coyotes have given up 114 points while scoring only 28, and have yet to get on track this season.

All of Friday's area games are scheduled to

Tiger Teams See Action

A trio of "under-varsity" football teams featuring local youths are scheduled for this week, here and over the area.

Snyder junior varsity, shooting for a fourth consecutive victory in as many outings, will host Andrews at 7:30 this evening.

Meanwhile, the local ninth grade, also undefeated, will play the Mustangs in Andrews at 7 tonight.

Eight grade Gold, 0-1, will play in Stamford at Bulldog Field, 1 p.m. Saturday. That game had orginally been set for today.

Snyder JV beat Big Spring last week, 18-13, while the local frosh edged the Ponies 8-6.

Smith Signs With Dallas

DALLAS (AP)-Former St. Louis Cardinal all-pro Jackie Smith, 11th on the National Football League's all-time receiving list, signed with the Dallas Cowboys to replace injured tight end Jay Saldi.

Ranger Head To Be More Strict

ARLINGTON (AP)-The Texas Rangers will see a different Billy Hunter in spring training next year.

The Ranger manager, who went through a disappointing season which was only his second as a big league skipper, said he would no longer ignore troublemakers.

Hunter said Wednesday night before the Rangers took the field for their final home game, "I chose to ignore the trouble-maker instead of doing something about it this year. I won't do that anymore."

Hunter did not say so, but he was obviously referring to a running feud he had with pitcher Dock Ellis, who challenged some of Hunter's rules.

"I learned something about handling situations this year," said Hunter.
