The Woman's Day

Well, now, isn't that nice of them? You may remember that a day or so ago I told you that all the boys who make the ladies' clothes decided that there were none such as 36's, 35's, et al. as they have been making clothes for. So far, so good! Now they've decided to make up their garments the party way, leaving such critical points as shoulders, belts, hemlines, buttons, unfinished. When we want a new dress or suit or coat we go to the nearest "station" erected by the central manufacturing company which sells the dress or coat and suit get fitted and "have it in a month or so, if all goes well."

I'm Peevish!
Gee-ree! It's thing like that which make the girls' turn man-haters. Why should the "critical points" of our duds be so much more difficult than those of a mighty male? And many males who don't wear custom-made clothes manage to get folks to speak to 'em, and they manage, too, to get into men's less than a month.

If the clothes-makers want a $10,000 a year arbiter of fashion to tell them how to handle the job and keep us satisfied, I'll take it!

Honey-Mooners
Mountain-climbing on a honey-moon sounds beautifully romantic but when such a honeymoon is unduly riddled by the wife's death from a stroke by lightning attracted by her mountain ax it is not so sweet. That's what happened recently when a bride and groom went mountain-climbing in Switzerland. When high up on a peak above Zermatt, thunder and lightning crashed and crashed. The bride struck by lightning attracted by her mountain ax it is not so sweet. That's what happened recently when a bride and groom went mountain-climbing in Switzerland.

Women Must Work
"A career for women is a necessity and not a hobby," says Mrs. Elizabeth Macdonald, professor of home economics at Boston University of Practical Arts and Letters. And I can hear a chorus of "buzzes" from thousands of wives working out side the home who are doing it from necessity rather than choice and who get fed-up on the reams of twaddle which praise and blame women for their stand on taking or not taking jobs—as though there were any choice in the matter, or that the MIST have in their minds, over-stuffed living room set, grand piano, phonograph and strawberry short cake out of season. As long as our average standard of living remains what it is, of course wives will have to work!

Makes every coffee cent count—because of its concentrated flavor

The economy of M. J. B. is merely a lesson in simple arithmetic. Here it is—
M. J. B. is a concentrated coffee. That means it is extra rich in strength and flavor. We blend it that way—always have. And that's why you can use less of M. J. B. to the cup and still enjoy a fine, flavor-rich cup of coffee.

Now consider that the average family uses 40 cups of coffee per week and you begin to realize how M. J. B. makes every coffee-cent count. You get more in the way of coffee contentment and it costs you less in the long run. Isn't that after all, the only kind of economy that counts?

WHY SLAUGHTER MOODY?

We presume that Dan Moody will display his usual good judgement and not allow those who would boom him for the Presidency to drag him into the typhoon of political enthusiasm but one can never tell, and it looks like some of the politicians are determined to get the young man tangled up in the next convention. Every thing is shaping up for one of the hardest scraps that has ever been pulled in a political convention. The Democrats are already so far apart on the men for the office, that it looks now that the Republicans can put most any man in the race and win. The liquor interests are taking a big part in the coming campaign but we believe they are whipped to begin with. It looks as though they have joined hands with the strongholds of Catholicism and will undertake to elect a president in 1926 if there is any chance at all. They are not particular about what political party they belong to, but they seem to have chosen the Democrats as their cat's paw, and they have put Al Smith in the lead, being a combination Catholic and Anti-Prohibitionist. They hope to be able to elect him by getting the solid wet vote for him, and the solid Catholic vote, together with a large number of people with a one-way mind who will vote for anybody just so they are a Catholic or for anybody just so they are an anti-Prohibitionist. With this combination they are going to undertake to nominate and elect a Democratic President. Dan Moody would not qualify for winner in a combination of this kind, hence any effort to elect him would prove futile.

It has been suggested by some that the condition that exists in Mexico has much to do with the maneuvers of the political heads. The Catholics figure that with a Catholic President in the United States there would be more hope to drag this nation into a conflict over religious quarrels in Mexico, thus increasing the chances of Catholicism to win in Mexico, and regain the control of governmental affairs. The President of that country has been sitting heavily on all matters that have smacked of Catholic control, and thus he has gained the ill-will of the heads of that church, and knowing the agitation that is going on in the United States over the Prohibition issue, and also the agitation of electing a Catholic as President of the United States an opportunity is being sought to put the plan over.

It behooves the Protestants of this country to look well to the importance of defeating both for there is danger in the combination that would place the people of the United States in a position to lose their freedom. This would of course bring about a bloody war—a thing that we are all trying to avoid, but there are certain interests in the world, that would not stand back one plunging the entire nation into a bloody conflict so long as they would carry their point, and that interest is nothing less than the liquorites. This interest will go the full length of the rope and stoop low enough to dip their bills in the bitterest dregs of the slime of the stills.

Anytime that the American people think the liquor interests are not at work are simply kidding themselves into believing something that is far from the truth. They have been working ever since the Eighteenth Amendment was placed in the Federal statutes. Not only are the efforts of the liquor people in the United States devoting their time and spending their money but all over the world, they are interested in the failure of prohibition in this country, and are using every influence to bring about its failure.

They are using such efforts as straw votes, as getting certain leaders in the United States to debate before a selected crowd and sending out big headline stories to the effect that the wets were very much in the majority, and all such propaganda in order to try to show that prohibition is a failure, and to disgust the people with it. Their work will be felt in all of the elections next year in the election of United States Senators and Congressmen, and in the appointment of enforcement committees and officers, and the people of this country who think anything of their freedom had better wake up to the real conditions and the real motive behind all of these efforts to get such men as Smith, and Darrow and others to carry on the fight under the camouflage of being men of broad and liberal minds who would not let such issues influence them.

BOYS' WEEK

Boys—freckled faced, clean faced, dirty faced, teen age boys—will be the center of interest for the coming week from New York to San Francisco and from Vancouver to Tampico. The period from April 30 to May 7 is the officially designated Boys' Week. The object of the movement, which will be observed in more than two thousand cities, is to focus the attention of the public on the boy as a nation's greatest asset, according to Walter W. Head, an Omaha banker, chairman of the general committee in charge of the affair. The committee also hopes to interest boys in themselves and to emphasize fundamentals in character building. Mr. Head is most insistent in stating what Boys' Week is not. "We are not trying to raise funds," Mr. Head said here today. "We do not want to exploit the boy and we do not want to provide him with a week's holiday in this celebration. We are anxious to give every youth an equal chance to work out his destiny without the handicap of under-privilege or over-privilege." Word reaching William Lewis Butcher, of New York, secretary of the committee, indicates that particular interest is being displayed by local committees in Hobby Fairs and Achievement Exhibitions. Hobby Fairs are for the display of whatever the boys of the community care to collect, such as stamps and coins, or botanical and geographical specimens. Achievement Exhibitions are prize contests for articles made by the boys own hands, such as radio sets, household utensils, leather goods, etc. Among the cities which are planning particular impressive celebrations are: New York, Kansas City, Memphis, San Francisco, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Fort Worth, San Antonio, Binghamton, N. Y., and Rome and Savannah, Ga. Each day will be devoted to some special phase of boy life. Saturday, April 30, has been designated Boys' Loyalty day. It will be featured generally by parades. In many cities, boys are being urged to bring their pets along with them to the march. Sunday, May 1, is Boys' Day in Churches. Fathers are urged to attend services for that occasion. Monday is Boys' Day in Schools and Tuesday, Boys' Day in Industry. Wednesday is turned over to athletics and entertainment; Thursday, to citizenship and Friday, to health. Friday evening has been set apart for the Boy in the Home and Boys' Day Out. Doors closes the week.

All of this being arranged for the benefit of the local boys and girls of Lubbock also, and the people of Lubbock will be given an opportunity to show their interest in them: Those who are at the head of this work will greatly appreciate every assistance the people of Lubbock will give them in this program of work. Every day in the week will have something to do in making the program what it should be, and every mother and father and big brother and big sister ought to be willing to do their part in making the effort worthwhile. It is only a short time out in the dim future that these boys and girls will be the men and the women of Lubbock, and will have to take the responsibilities of carrying on, and we ought to see to it that they are given a better opportunity to know more about the actual things that will confront them in their life, and learn to do by doing.

Rev. Jack M. Lewis, pastor of the First Presbyterian church has very appropriately been chosen chairman of the committee, and will lead in the work of the program to make the week one of the great events in the lives of the boys and the girls of this city. Begin now to familiarize your self with the program of the week, and for fear that you have not preserved the story that was published in the Avalanche-Journal of last Sunday we are giving below in brief what the program committee hopes to put over. The program begins Saturday, April 30th as is stated in the general program of the nation, but in order to suit the convenience of this community Sunday, May 1 will be the first day, and it has been designated as "Boys' Day in all the churches in Lubbock, and every pastor in the city will preach a special sermon for the boys of the community, and every parent is urged to be present with his son or accompany some boy to one of the churches of the city.

Monday has been designated as "Boys Day in school," with M. H. Duncan, superintendent of the public schools here chairman of the day. Each school in the city is being asked to offer a special program at some time during the day for boys.

Tuesday is "Citizenship Day," with Pink L. Parrish, mayor of Lubbock chairman of the day. On this day it is planned that boys will have authority and charge of all administrative department of the city, from the mayor on down, and plans will be worked out for this participation of boys in the city government the coming week.

Wednesday will be "Boys Day in Rotary," and Thursday "Day in Kiwanis," when the two civic clubs of the city, which meet on the respective days with the boys as guests of the membership and so far as possible, it is planned to have boys in charge of the program on such occasion.

Thursday night will be "Boys Evening at home," and in order to better emphasize the occasion a questionnaire is being prepared to be published that is being designed to be participated in by both boys and their fathers. Prizes are to be offered for the most accurate answer of the questionnaire. Boys and their fathers will be urged to stay at home, together during the evening and work out the questionnaire.

OUT OUR WAY

THE RATTLE HEAD.

SO THINK WE

We think it is about time for the powers to send another sharp note to China.

We think the farmers had better look out. The politicians are planning to help them next year—in their campaign for office.

We think those subscribers who forget to pay their subscription on the first of April possibly did not feel as anxious as they thought they would. We will accept it on the first of May just as gladly.

We think that possibly the floods and tornadoes may be mighty hard on the people in the loss of life and property, but it may reduce the cotton acreage.

We think that it is not always the fellow that puts his hand in his pocket while the collection basket is passing that gets it out in time to put the penny in the plate.

We think it is a good time to play sweat the fly.

We think that not every son will write his mother on the 31st of May, but he should do it if she is living.

We think after a couple have been married for fifteen or twenty years they often wonder why they were married or how they ever agreed to the match, and when this is the case their friends are also wondering why.

We think the people who attend the West Texas chamber of commerce convention at Wichita Falls will hear from Lubbock. The high school band is going to take force and effect, and the Tech band is going with more than forty members, and the city orchestra is going from the Tech. Besides a number of other Tech students and high school members also a large number of the citizens of the town.

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that some folks seem to think that Dan Moody can be elected president. Dan may not be old enough but we are sure he is smart enough, and we imagine that he is also smart enough to keep out of the race.

It is reported that nothing but rich men will be able to attend the democratic national convention, held on board and lodging will be high and they may have to stay there about three, especially if the present popular filibuster happens to get started.

It is reported that Amarillo is to have another newspaper. People make a great mistake by reading the newspaper field. Business in a town will justify a certain amount of expenditure for newspapers, and ever that amount becomes a burden.

It is reported that more money will be given Texas to use on the roads. That's fine but what part of Texas is going to get the benefit of this money?

It is reported that it is not the fellow that ate biggest that can always qualify as a big man. Part of the business it is very seldom that you find a big man that is big.

It is reported that there are very few women who can hit a nail on the head—possibly not with a hammer but knock out when they get the sailing pin.

It is reported that the fellow that wears a hat with just a sensible black or conservative band this year is going to be put in a class with the old fogies.

ANTI-ALIEN DISTRUST

President Coolidge's address at the United Press dinner in New York, Monday, was devoted to reviewing recent developments in foreign affairs and restating American policy. However, he digressed from his theme long enough to administer a reproof to two sorts of newspapers which he considers an obstacle to the government's task of promoting peace and good will—the fringe and the internationalist. Concerning the former the President said:

"A press which is given over to a narrow and bigoted nationalism accompanied by misrepresentations of other countries, not only misinform and misleads the people of this country, but produces the reaction of a ranking bitterness abroad."

Rightly, Mr. Coolidge observed that human nature at best provides enough distrust of all that is alien, without such sentiment being stimulated artificially. Ultimately, the fringe misstates his objective and provokes a war, far as a rule hostility is not sudden provoked, but is the fruit of slow growth.

No few American newspapers are addicted to such tactics, however, and their influence is so slight that the menace to peace from this cause need hardly invite attention. By this very bluntness the chauvinist proclaims the absurdity of his sturms.

By implication at the same time Mr. Coolidge rebuked those newspapers which have criticized his international policies, with becoming the appearance of seeming to support the position of foreign governments. He added that our press ought to be first of all thoroughly American.

A question as to whether the wartime rule that all differences of opinion must end at the Nation's boundary, should apply in peace also, is in controversy these days. Generally it may be said that the rule has not all the facts to such a situation the application of the Wilsonian doctrine, "Open covenants openly arrived at," is obvious.

FOR AND AGIN'

Secretary Hoover says the railroads are now in fine condition, supplying "completely adequate service."

"It shows, at least, that private ownership is working well, as it will when government guarantees railroad owners good earnings, including interest on their mistakes and much more. Private ownership of railroads is going to stay as long as presently stays—everybody knows that. If things become very bad of course railroads would go to the government."

"Please take us."

It should not be overlooked, and Secretary Hoover knows it, that the United States Post Office also gives "completely adequate service, and is not under private ownership. Mr. Hoover couldn't imagine any private enterprise carrying a letter from the southern tip of Florida to the northern end of Alaska for ten cents.—Hull County Herald.

And if the Herald can show us where the government can do that for two cents without putting a tax on the people to make up a big deficit every two years we will then be convinced that the government can even carry on the postal department as a business. It would certainly be a mighty business indeed, who could have given the service at a certain cheap rate provided he knew that if the business did not make ends meet that the directors would furnish the money at the end of the two years' time.

LAUGHS

On a hunt with his small son a farmer shot a hawk but missed. A second shot brought it down. "What's going to do with him, you've missed the boy." "Oh, I guess well have him for dinner," replied his father jokingly. On the way to the house the hawk was dropped into the pigeon, unseen by the boy. They found the minister at the house and a chicken already killed for dinner. Dinner time came and just as the minister was being served the boy piped out: "Do you know Pa had to shoot twice to get this hawk?" "Grace! I don't like you when you're sentimental. Can't we be just good pals?" "Tom! Rights! Lend me a couple of bucks, pal. I went broke showing a girl I loved time—last Panther." "A couple of travelers were discussing the places they had visited. "I suppose London is the foggiest place in the world," said one. "Why, no, I wouldn't say that," returned the other. "I remember once being in a place much foggier than London." "Where was that?" inquired his friend. "Hugged if I can tell you where it was," said the other. "You see, it was so frightfully foggy." "Out of curiosity a farmer had grown a crop of flax and had a tablecloth made of linen. Some time later he remarked to a visitor at dinner: "I grew this tablecloth myself." "Did you really?" she exclaimed. "How did you manage it?" "It was plain she had no idea of how tablecloths came into being, so the farmer lowered his voice mysteriously as he replied: "If you promise not to give the secret away, I'll tell you." The guest promised. "I'll tell you." "Well," proceeded the farmer, "I planted a hawk."

The Britains, Who Detest Slavery, Still Put Up With Dora

However, he may wish the devil around the stamp by having a clean selling machine in front of his shop where you can get a package of cigarettes by dropping six pence or a shilling in a slot.

After 9:30 at night if you want to shake your thirst you can go into a trolley pub and absorb any kind of hard drink you wish until a little after ten but you can't go to a cocktail-parlour and get an ice-cream, Dora forbids. You must buy potatoes in the skin after 8, but you can get them if made up in a salad until 9:30.

Dora intervenes. You can't buy soap after eight o'clock unless they are soaked. If you go to a drugstore after eight to buy a headache powder, the owner can't sell it to you unless he is convinced that you or somebody in your family really has a headache. Another little bit of Dora.

Girls Like Dora. The only friends Dora has are the retail clerks. They fear if Dora is killed, they will have to work long evening hours again. In the meantime, the papers are circulating for Dora's death. They are alive to the significance of some of her capers.

Our paper wants her killed because it fears Dora will keep American travelers away. In Paris they can buy anything they like until all hours of the night, but the paper humorously adds:

"If the American can not buy a packet of chewing gum after he has put the baby to bed, he will wonder whether he has committed a nation for a nursery."

The Best People Do Not Drink

Home brew is to be outlawed in the better homes of the state capital, if plans of the Austin W. C. T. U. are successful. A pledge, "I serve no home brew," is being offered to one thousand women in that city, and such women as "the best people do not drink" are being engaged in the campaign against violation of the spirit as well as the letter of the prohibition law. Incidentally, the Austin W. C. T. U. is also trying to "keep Al Smith from rolling into the presidency on a beer keg, but that appears to be a side issue in the local campaign against home brew and home brewer."

This is the beginning of the home-brew season, and Johnny everywhere are replenishing their stocks of "real hop malt ayran" which will be sold in enormous quantities throughout the warm weather period by grocers, druggists and other dealers. Along with the sale of malt ayran, there will be

JUST FOLKS

HOW TO SEE A BASEBALL GAME I've never forgotten the joy I had when I was a lad. And a man full grown, played the friend to me. Would that every boy had such a friend as he! For many a day when the summer came, he'd take me out to the baseball game. He gave me the thrill of the game complete. A grand stand seat. And all the popcorn I could eat. Introduced me to men that I longed to meet. Taught me the rules and the players' names, and that is the way to see baseball games. Oh man, when you go with that every thing. Take a boy along! Talk with him, walk with him, let him share in the glorious thrills of the game out there. And down to the end of your life you'll be that small boy's happiest memory. For there's nothing a boy likes better than to be him in a man. And I'll say for the friend who was good to me. That never a baseball game I see. But I think of him and his kindly ways. When I was a boy in those early days.

 Coach Bible has his 1926 squad again almost intact. The personnel of the team includes H. Brehmer, of San Antonio; A. O. Nicholson, Shamrock; J. C. London, San Angelo; and O. W. George Voight, New Find Of Golf, Given Big Thrill By Being Year's "Discovery"

PINEBLUFF, N. C., April 27.—George Voight, who got his start in Scotland's favorite pastime by chasing balls for members of the old Columbia Country Club of Washington, is enjoying the sensation of "being discovered" and his greatest thrill in golf.
 "All of which gives George a good laugh, for as you know in this game of golf he is not a young man—30 years old—and has been playing since he was a mere lad. But George has just won the United North and South amateur championships.
 George captured the 36 hole qualifying round of the tournament with a 67 and 68, establishing a new American amateur record in comp. two golf.
 Bobby Jones, credited off a 67 and a 68, last summer in qualifying for the British Open in Sunningdale, but in this country Voight's mark of 135 has been lowered for two rounds, and over the length of courts he played by professionals.
 Only on one hole was he over par.
 "Those two rounds were the finest thing I have done," George relates. "And I got a great thrill when Walter Hagen came to congratulate me and said he never heard of anything like them. Back in Washington there is a group of us who always consider Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen as our great golfers."
 William C. Fowkes, Jr., president of the United States Golf association and a spectator of the matches, classed Voight as "one of the four best amateur players in the country today."
 Voight has never had a golf lesson. He started to play more intensely after winning the public links championship, Washington in 1922 and 1923. "He was five of seven tournaments around the District of Columbia in 1925 and became district champion 1925 and 1927."
 Roland McKenzie, Walker cup player, has fallen before Voight in five of the six matches they have played. George was runner-up in the Middle Atlantic open and the Maine open this year and won the Palm Beach championship here with Bobby Cruickshank last fall.

KENNEDY'S PORTSIDE EFFORTS TO LEAD WESTERNERS IN CLASH WITH AMHERST AT MERRILL PARK HERE THIS AFTERNOON

Bob Kennedy, wrong-handed flinger of the Wrennery pitching staff, will make his debut with the Westerners on the mound this afternoon against the Amherst nine at the Merrill park at four o'clock. Kennedy is the only pitcher on the Von Tangein staff and is thought to be a good bet on the mound. He has had several years of high school experience playing with the Aspermont high school team before moving to this city.
 In connection with the Amherst bats they will meet with a well organized machine under the Pools regime. Pools is a former West Texas Buffaloes and has had good experience in the national position. The Amherst crew has established a good record this season in the baseball achievements and has won several good exhibitions with clubs in the northern portion of the Lubbock Interscholastic League.

This afternoon's contest will be the sixth for the season on the Westerner card. The homebats have won three and lost two thus far. In the last two games they have won over the Slaton Tigers and Bulldogs, of a Plainview, Tuesday afternoon the Von Tangein team defeated the Plainview aggregation with a score of 10 to 7 in one of the best baseball clashes presented here this season.
 Captain Raymond Aker, leader of the Westerner combination, will be sent to the short field this afternoon. Cates will go back to the boy's position and the remainder of the Westerner lineup will stand as it was in the game Tuesday.

Villages Emptied Before Oncoming Flood As Levees To Be Cut In Safety Action

Their views in one statement: "What can we do, since a majority of our committee seemed satisfied with the guarantee of reparations offered by the governor, the state of Louisiana and the city of New Orleans." Judge J. H. Perez, chairman of the committee said: "There seems to be nothing else to do but devote our efforts to getting the people out of the affected area to refuge camps. Hundreds of trucks, moving vans and army transports are being engaged in bringing out refugees and all should be safe and comfortable in camps here by Friday noon."

"Our committee will continue to function, however, but most of its time will be consumed in getting out and caring for the people. We still believe that a greater measure of relief would be afforded by cutting the levee above New Orleans than as proposed at Poydras. However, if the governor orders the artificial crevasse which now appears certain, we can do nothing but submit peacefully to the sacrifice."

Plans Kept Secret

In view of the tenacity of the atmosphere, engineers declined to say how the crevasse would be created.

"We will not reveal our plans until they are carried out," Colonel Marcel Perez, former chief engineer of the levee board and closely connected with plans for the break, said. "In view of the possibility of trouble in carrying out the plans should they be made known."

Former Governor John M. Parker, of Louisiana, was designated head of state relief operations after a protracted conference with Secretary Hoover today.

Levees Guarded

While plans were being worked out to relieve New Orleans from the impending flood, the battle with the rising river continued with unabated energy up the river and along tributaries of the Mississippi. Strenuous activity was necessary to quell a threatened break at Glacoeck plantation, about 20 miles south of Vidalia, when the levee began to cave. Several hundred men were thrown to work and a break prevented. Other weak spots, developing along the line brought the possibility of a break in the chain before the premeditated one at Poydras Friday.

At points along the waterfront in New Orleans, the water has been steadily coming through the levee walls and for days the water has been held back at spots by revetments and sand bags. The seepage, engineers said, was not dangerous, but it gave rise to occasional reports that the water was flowing into the city of New Orleans, that levees were giving away.

More Breaks

Three thousand additional acres of plantation lands were added to the already flooded area in Red river parish when a levee gave way at Crich-ton Lake. Only four or five acres at Crich-ton remained above water which made it very hard to reach.

At noon the only buildings that had not been reached were a store, the depot and two residences, but with the rate of the rise these were expected to be flooded.

Approximately 1,000 persons, many of them all workers, fled to the hills. The diversion began to flood that region two days ago when a levee cracked along the Louisiana Railway and Navigation company.

Town Isolated

Boat transportation was the only means of reaching Crich-ton, but the persons in the town were not believed in any danger.

A hundred and fifty persons had been driven from their homes in another section of Red River parish and were seeking safety on Butler Hill, a few miles from Coushatta.

Other towns in the region reported inundated included Abinger, Grand Bayou and N. B. Dale and virtually all the residents of the towns had been forced to seek safety on higher ground.

Meanwhile residents of other sections of northern Louisiana were impatiently awaiting knowledge of the route the overflow waters of the Arkansas river would take on their passage into the Mississippi. Many refugees in districts which might be reached by these waters already had made their way to higher ground.

Assistance Needed

Reports from Avoyelles said that 700 families of refugees were being cared for at Marskeville and other places in that parish while 100 others were camped at Deville, La., and were in need of assistance.

Baton Rouge, situated on a bluff above the river and safe from flood damage, broadcast an invitation to citizens of flood stricken districts to seek safety there.

The state board of liquidation met there today and will ask the legislature to authorize Governor Simpson to borrow $200,000, or as much of that sum as might be needed to bear the state's share of the flood relief expense.

Although extensive preparations had been made for the south coast refugees up to late today only two families had availed themselves of the facilities.

Red Cross Aids

Crews of workmen and corps of Red Cross workers worked throughout today and tonight setting up temporary sleeping quarters and mess kitchens and announced they would be ready by nightfall to take care of those arriving from the affected district. Accommodations will be available for 2,000 to 3,000 refugees by tomorrow afternoon Red Cross officials announced.

Most of the flood victims will be housed on two upper floors of the International trade exposition building wherein addition to sleeping and recreation space, room will be provided for storing household effects, automobiles and other possessions.

Scarcity of trucks and moving vans retarded the exodus to a great extent. Many New Orleans department stores and other business houses sent their trucks into Plaquemine and St. Bernard to assist in bringing out the people. Army trucks from Jackson barracks also were assigned to help. A great majority of the refugees either went to homes of relatives in the city or moved to safety just above the proposed crevasse.

ed the committee report, which recommended that the bill "do not pass," was returned after the defendants had "ceased to be members of the legislature."

Several minutes were spent in highly technical etymological dispute as to how the house revenue and taxation committee to which the bill was referred should be styled. With Mrs. V. D. Fugler, calendar clerk, on the stand, defense counsel McGregor finally established his point by her identification of calendar records that it is the committee "on" revenue and taxation instead of the committee "of" revenue and taxation as referred to by special prosecutor Will Hart.

Hart said it was a mere matter of a prefix and McGregor wanted to know what the difference is between a prefix and a preposition.

R. L. Robbitt, Laredo, speaker of the house was among the witnesses sworn in this afternoon. Robbitt advised Chamberlain to refer to the alleged bribe agreement to rangers after a conference with Governor Dan Moody, the speaker testified before the house investigation committee. He later made an impassioned speech calling for the two members' expulsion.

Jurors for the Moore case: Walter Schlitter, department store stock-keeper; A. R. Turner, paperhanger; Oscar Eschberger, tinner; J. Pillow, lumber company cashier; A. M. Johnson, boarding house operator; Gus Otting, retired baker; G. W. Canada, truck driver; W. W. Shropshire, note taker at a local bank; Michael Davis, bookkeeper; W. G. Andrewartha, plumbing contractor; Fred Bergman, farm owner, living in Austin; R. W. Gissell, plumbing contractor's estimator.

noted and assimilated and the number of members suggesting a particular plank and the feasibility of making the need a reality will be used in mapping out a program of work for the organization.

A letter went out by President Spencer A. Wells Wednesday advising of the meetings and urging that all members be on hand and be prepared to express opinions on what the Chamber of Commerce should work on.

Members Plan Work

"After careful thought and study the directors of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce have decided to build a program of work from the expressed desires of the membership of the organization," Wells said in his letter.

"Every member is going to be in-invited to a group meeting with other members and there asked what he wants the Chamber of Commerce to do.

To Serve As Guide

"From these expressed desires will be built a program of work to serve as a guide, chart or blue print for the officers, directors and committees to follow."

"This plan is standard Chamber of Commerce procedure, is absolutely democratic and has proven one of the most successful community builders that has been tried out by hundreds of similar organizations."

"These group meetings will be held within the next few days and you will be personally invited by the chairman of one of the groups to attend his particular meeting and there say in your own words what you think the Chamber of Commerce should do for the building of this community."

"The directors of this organization and those selected as group chairmen have gone into this matter very thoroughly and are very anxious that you attend this meeting without fail. If the citizens of Lubbock are going to cooperate and work as they should for the future development of the city, it is important that you attend this meeting."

OFFICERS PROBE SLAYING

Aged White Man Killed and His Camping Equipment is Stolen by Unknown Persons.

CORPUS CHRISTI, April 27. (AP)—Officers of Nueces and San Patricio counties are investigating the death of an unidentified white man whose body was found early today on the state highway two miles west of Aransas Pass, near the point where the man had evidently pitched camp the night before. Blood covered with earth, was found at the camp, but the body had been removed to the road. There were two wounds on his head and two on his face. He was apparently about 70 years of age, a kindly face and wore a bushy gray mustache. He was 5 feet 9 inches in height had a slight scar under the chin. He had camped near this city for the last three or four weeks.

Authorities are working on the theory that the man was killed at the camp and dragged to the road to make it appear he had been struck by an automobile. The slayer is believed to have taken the man's automobile and camp equipment.

EXECUTION IS POSTPONED

BOSTON, April 27. (AP)—Celestino Madeiros was granted his fourth reprieve late today when Governor Alvan T. Fuller and his counsel approved postponement of the date of his execution for murder to the week of July 18. That is the week in which Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti are scheduled to die for the Braintree payroll holdup murder which Madeiros says was committed by the Moretti gang of which he was a member.

DAUGHTERS of MIDAS

THIS HAS HAPPENED
BILLY WELLS, head of the glove department of the big Curtis Store, NYDA LOMAX, WINNIE SHELTON and seven other girls, almost every one pretty, win prizes in a second intriguing contest staged by T. Q. CURTIS, the millionaire store owner.

The prize in the second contest is an invitation to the Curtis mansion for a big formal dinner part at a near date and the gift of an evening dress and slippers for the occasion.

Billy's suspicious are aroused as to T. Q.'s ultimate intentions when the first contest is held. The fact that CLAY CURTIS, son of the owner, warns her not to participate, substantiates her doubts. Clay has dimmed himself and is living with the Wells family in a near section of the city, working in a factory by day and writing music at night. The fact that pretty little Billy's chief ambition is to be a great concert violinist is a strong bond between her and the music-loving boy.

The day Billy hears she is a winner in the second contest, a customer comes to her counter who charms her with his personality. He is a tall, Oriental-looking man. She is still under the influence of his strange presence when she goes to select the dress which she does it and shows it to her mother and Clay. Clay says he will write a piece of music to her called "Dance of the Autumn Dryad."

CHAPTER XVI

A TALL, stately old woman, with proud still face, whom every girl that worked for T. Q. Curtis knew as Mrs. Lucia Meadows, poor but aristocratic widow of a former governor of the state, received the girls as they arrived at the drawing room door. T. Q., a strange T. Q., the perfect host in well-tailored evening clothes, introduced the girls to Mrs. Meadows before she extended her hand.

"And this is little Miss Billy Wells, the musical genius of the Curtis family. T. Q. laid a hand feigningly on Billy's head.

If she said more, Billy did not hear. Her hand was tingling the clasp of thin brown, satin-smooth fingers, and for the second time she felt her blue eyes being drowned in a pair of brooding, sooty-black ones that made her forget everything else in the world.

His voice played upon her quivering nerves. No, she had not forgotten a single tone of it—rich, caressing, low, almost unbearably intimate.

She drew a sharp breath, took back her hand, though every nerve in it cried to remain that tingling contact. He said something and she said something, but the words didn't matter. She was conscious that Nyda Lomax had arrived, looked real and amazingly beautiful. And she was also dimly conscious that Winnie Shelton was holding court at another end of the room.

And she knew that so long as Dalhart Romaine—how fantastically right his name was!—walked at her side she would see all other things dimly, hear only the high, thin notes of sound, and find them meaningless. And if he went away, she would be straining to ward him, for as surely as witches had ever been burned at the stake, he had cast a spell upon her. And she knew that he knew it—and exulted in that knowledge, looking down upon her with that whimsical smile upon his clear-cut, thin lips.

They went in to dinner at last, or it may have been soon, but she only knew that it was he who took her in, her small white hand resting quiveringly upon his black coat sleeve. There would be pain when she took it away, at the table.

If T. Q. Curtis had cast himself in the role of a god, insofar as the destinies of the seven prettiest girls in his department were concerned, he looked a very good, kindly god indeed as he sat at the head of his table and looked south-ward eyes upon his nineteen guests.

Mrs. Blanche Corwin, Billy had learned the morning after the awards had been made, had begged off from the party and had been given in money the cost of the evening clothes which she had won as a successful contestant. An invalid daughter made money for her more importance to Mrs. Corwin than dinner parties and evening clothes.

bent toward Nyda Lomax on his right. Cleanly blond and pink-skinned, with nice, frank blue-gray eyes—eyes that twinkled when he looked up and caught her appraising him.

"I've been doing some sleuth work in connection with you," Ralph Truman said. "Miss Shelton tells me that you're the musical genius that my friend, Clay Curtis, has been lucky enough to discover."

"Clay boards at our house," Billy told him with uncompromising honesty, although she was aware that T. Q. Curtis had stiffened to rigid attention. "He's working in your father's factory now."

"Does he like it?" Truman asked, his smiling eyes grave for a moment.

"He hates it," Billy stated flatly. Oh, what was Dalhart Romaine talking about to Nyda Lomax—bending toward her, almost whispering in her ear, around which a glittering strand of her marcelled black hair, curled so seductively? She bit at her lip, forced herself to smile at Truman across the table.

"The noise of the machinery is tearing his nerves to pieces. It's Clay who is the genius," she added, with a flick of the eye toward Clay's father.

"I must hear you play," Dal Romaine's voice, vibrating, low, reached out for her, drew her away from Truman, brought her back into that pulsing world which he had walked off for the two of them.

"I didn't bring my violin tonight," she answered, her eyes raising against her will to cling to his. "I want to be a concert violinist, but you know I work for my living, and my mother—"

"The gloves were too small," he confided, "but the young lady would not let me exchange them because I told her of a pair of Cinderella hands are like white butterflies—"

Color flooded her face, made her eyes burn. She dropped her hands hastily to her lap, stared at them as if she had never seen them before.

"Miss Wells, you look like a beautiful girl," Wesley Warburton shattered the moment, and she was almost glad.

"Oh, I hope not!" she cried, as if in mock horror. "Maybe it's the dress—"

"The dress is charming, an excellent taste. You look like a lady in it."

"Oh!" Billy let the sharp exclamation escape her involuntarily, wishing that she dared look into Dal Romaine's eyes for a moment to see how he had been affected. She was going to hate Wesley Warburton, who thought he was too good to be dining with shop girls—but she must be pleasant, no matter what he said, she told herself fiercely.

"That's frightfully disappointing," she told Warburton, her blue eyes, very wide and innocent. "I was told by a young man of discrimination—that I looked like an autumn dryad. It's dreadful after that, to be told that one looks like a lady."

Dal Romaine's low chuckle rewarded her. "You see a dryad dancing in a drift of maple leaves," he whispered, his breath warm and sweet on her cheek.

Presley Warburton abandoned his soup entirely and concentrated his attention upon this astonishing young woman whom he had not suspected of having acute sensibilities.

"What do you think of Curtis' recent curious behavior?" he asked her in a confidential undertone. "For I take it that you do think?"

"I think it's a lovely party," she opened her innocent blue eyes still wider. "Such charming men"—and she glanced up and down the long table—even if they do seem a little at a loss as to what to say to 'poor but honest working girls.'"

"These sociological experiments!" Presley Warburton growled under his clipped mustache, as if he sensed that the impudent young thing on his left had been rebuking him.

Billy grinned, and gave a side-long look under her lashes at Romaine, who was watching her with narrowed eyes, a smile flickering over his lean, Hindu-dark face.

"You look like a gleeful, wicked little Puck when you grin like that," he told her. "Now what are you thinking?" he demanded, as if he had a right to know.

"I was just reminding myself that you can't be an East Indian, with a name like Dalhart Romaine, and with an aunt like Mrs. Meadows, and a voice straight from Boston, but every time I look under his lashes at Romaine, who is the genius," she demanded, with a curl of the lip, as if she had a right to know.

"I was just reminding myself that you can't be an East Indian, with a name like Dalhart Romaine, and with an aunt like Mrs. Meadows, and a voice straight from Boston, but every time I look under his lashes at Romaine, who is the genius," she demanded, with a curl of the lip, as if she had a right to know.

"So you feel it, too," he said at last in an almost expressionless voice, so low and quiet it was—

"I know—that first day—that you did. Some day I will tell you why, for it was meant that you should know. As for the dark skin, the Oriental cast to my features, I am French—and gypsy, on my father's side. My father married Mrs. Meadows' sister, and I was brought up in London and Boston and New York. My aunt would like to wash the dark gypsy stain out of my blood, because, being a mixture of French, gypsy and Boston is not quite respectable, you know. Tell me—" his face changed miraculously with his smile as he bent closer to her—"does the brown gypsy stain in my skin repel you?"

"Oh, Mr. Romaine, later!" Nyda Lomax called out imperiously. "Can you tell fortunes—if we cross your palm with silver?"

A stab of pain so sharp that she felt mortally wounded shot through Billy's heart. So he had told Nyda too. Cheap, theatrical! She hated him!

Young County Commissioners Order Road Bond Election In New Plan Of Highways

Opportunity to express their wishes as to whether roads in Young county shall be hard surfaced is afforded to citizens there with the opening of a vote on $1,200,000 worth of bonds by the city commission on May 23.

The election order calls for 52 miles of hard surfaced roads and appropriate $622,500 as the county's portion for same. The balance of bonds voted are to be used in the improvement of lateral roads throughout the county. Representatives from the various communities in the county have held frequent meetings; committee gatherings have been held practically every day during the past three months in order that a system of roads could be outlined that would serve the best purpose and the most people. The action of the Commissioners' board was brought about following recommendations of the chambers of commerce from Newcastle, Olney and Graham and upon presentation of petitions circulated throughout the county by them.

of the above mentioned highway all of the principal roads in Young county will be taken care of. The P&T highway extending from Fort Worth to the Dallas crosses the county east and west. Highway No. 73 fills in the gap between Wichita Falls and Breckenridge. Stephens county on the south already has hard surfaced roads, and Archer county on the north recently voted $1,000,000 so that a complete system of hard surfaced highways will be existing in all directions.

The balance of the bond issue will be applied on lateral roads extending into every important community center. Sufficient funds will be available to construct a road of standard grade on concrete culverts from Olney through Jean and Loving to the county line on the east, and from Olney through Padgett to the Throckmorton county line on the southwest.

Farmer Accused Of Incest Allowed Bond

J. C. Hill, Crosby county farmer, who has been held for several weeks in the county jail at Cross-tion on a charge of incest, is allowed a $5,000 bond in connection with attacks on his 15 year old daughter, was allowed bond in the sum of $5,000 by the court on criminal appeals at Austin Wednesday, according to Associated Press dispatches.

Hill was denied bond on the criminal assault charge in a preliminary hearing before Judge Homer L. Pharr three or four weeks ago at Cross-tion. He was indicted by a special session of the Crosby county grand jury, and in the preliminary hearing his daughter testified that she had been subjected to the attacks since she was nine years old.

Many Eggs Hatched By Olney Incubator

Special to The Avalanche
OLNEY, April 27.—The Olney Feed and Hatchery which opened for business February 7, 1927, has hatched 31,250 baby chicks since that date, according to H. Byrom, proprietor. These baby chicks have been distributed to citizens of Olney and the surrounding communities. So great has been the demand for chicks that the one unit incubator, with capacity of 12,000 eggs which is now being used, has not been able to supply the demand. Byrom stated recently that the demand was so great additional incubators will have to be added for next year, and that he would be prepared for the rush during the next hatching season.

SULPHUR IS BEST TO CLEAR UP UGLY, BROKEN OUT SKIN

Any breaking out or skin irritation on face, neck or body is overcome quickest by applying Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation that instantly brings ease from the itching, burning and irritation.

Mentho-Sulphur heals eczema right up, leaving the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment or disfigurement. A little jar of Rowles' Mentho-Sulphur may be obtained at any drug store.

Solons Approve Of Reagan Soil Survey

Special to The Avalanche
BIG LAKE, Tex., April 27.—Representative Claude B. Hudspeth has written from Washington, D. C., to Secretary-Manager C. F. Drake of the Big Lake Chamber of Commerce, assuring the Chamber of Commerce of his hearty support in the application made to Mr. Hudspeth and to Senators Sheppard and Mayfield, to obtain a thorough soil survey of Reagan county, and it may be expected that this progressive action will be taken at an early date. There are 574,000 acres of land comprised in Reagan county, of which 332,000 acres are owned in fee aside from the 241,920 acres of university-owned lands. In the total of fee-owned or patented lands there are many thousands of acres of fine soil comprised between the "folds" or mesas. It is well known as the "drawn" and it is noticeable that vegetation in many of these draws is luxuriant. It is proposed by the "soil survey" to ascertain the qualities of this soil and make an effort to get the government to establish somewhere in Reagan county an experimental farm to determine what drought-resisting crops are best suited; also to obtain from the government a scientific survey of the underground for meteoric waters of Reagan county, of which there is known to be a large underground volume. The latter, it is proposed to study from the standpoint of irrigation possibilities.

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—Opening advances in cotton market today were followed by reactions, but prices firmed up again during the afternoon on additional good news and unfavorable cotton and wool advice. After settling at 15.90 early July reacted to 15.12 and closed at 15.24. The general market closing steady at net advances of 12 to 15 points.

said to be offered on a competitive basis with Cuban, were responsible for the easier tone in raw sugar futures. Prices at one time showed net losses of 2 to 3 cents. The principal selling cause, food commission houses, some of which was believed to be for European account and by trade interests, but covering checked the decline and final prices were up a point from the lowest and 1 to 2 points below the previous close. Approximate sales 51,000 tons. May closed 3.00; July 3.06; September 3.16; December 3.29; January 3.05; March 2.89. Aside from a fair withdrawal demand, trading in refined sugar was light and prices were unchanged at 6.00 to 6.20 for fine granulated.

WHEAT HIGHER CHICAGO, April 27 (AP)—Higher prices for wheat today accompanied a big volume of export business, but other support was lacking and gains failed to hold well. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1 cent higher, with corn 3-4 cent to 7-8 cent up, oats 1-8 cent to 1-4 cent up and provisions varying from 17 cents decline to 20 cents advance.

Corn displayed firmness early, but slowness of shipping demand from the east together with improved weather for planting had a bearish effect here. Oats were responsive to exports sales of about 500,000 bushels. For the most part provisions were lower, sympathizing with downturns in the value of hogs.

COFFEE DECLINES NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—Coffee futures opened today at a decline of 8 points to an advance of 2 points and ruled rather steady until near month liquidation and selling supposed to be for European accounts. July eased off from 12.50 to 12.44 closing at 12.44. The general market closed 2 to 8 points net lower. Estimated sales 43,000 bags. Closing quotations: May 12.52; July 12.44; September 11.77; December 11.77; January 11.77; March 11.11.
