Approach Outlined

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance said today that before attacking violations of human rights abroad, the United States must ask itself a series of questions, including whether its criticisms will make things worse.

In a speech the State department billed as the Carter administration's first systematic outlining of its approach to human rights, Vance called for a "realistic" approach.

Vance said that before speaking out, the United States must consider the seriousness and extent of the alleged violations, and the degree of control exercised by the government involved.

McManus Arrested

JACKSONVILLE BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Vernon Eugene McManus, who failed to appear for his capital murder trial at Houston Monday, was arrested here early Saturday, an FBI spokesman said.

Details of the arrest were not immediately available. Sources said the FBI agents were assisted by some Texas officers, including some Harris County deputies.

Troops Prevent March

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP) — Security troops ringing Rawalpindi prevented a planned march on Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto's residence Saturday. But 18 persons, including six policemen, were injured in scattered clashes.

Slick Breaking Up

MIAMI (AP) — A 60-mile-long oil slick floating just miles from AW-Keys beaches and the continent's only living coral reef was breaking up Saturday, and the Coast Guard said it might be completely dissipated by the end of the day.

Wave action, currents and the wind were breaking up the enormous oil spill, said Coast Guard spokesman Dade Tait.

TECHNIQUE WORKS FOURTH TIME

Texans Tame Wild Well

By PAUL TREUTHARDT
Associated Press Wrtier

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) A Texas well-capping team today sealed off the out-of-control Ekofish offshore oil well, ending the threat of further massive pollution in the North sea, Phillips Petroleum Co. sources said.

The troubleshooters used a modification of a shutdown technique that failed three times before.

Blind rams - heavy metal discs - were snapped closed at the wellhead late this morning, and a short time later a four-ton, three-part assembly, a giant stopper, was clamped on top of the apparatus.

The blowout, which had spewed millions of gallons of oil into the sea, was finally "killed" when the team pumped chemical mud down the well to offset the upward pressure of more than 4,000 pounds per square inch, said the sources in Phillips, the firm that operates the well.

Phillips officials had said earlier that once the mud stabilized the well, all danger of a renewed blowout would be ended

The shutdown came after the rig, in the middle of the North Sea 168 miles west of this Norwegian oil center had sprayed about 8.23 million gallons of oil into the surrounding waters. An estimated five million gallons remained in the water Saturday, the rest having evaporated or been skimmed off the surface by antipollution boats.

The fountain of hot oil spouting from the runaway No. 14 well on Bravo platform reached heights of 160 feet after the wellhead burst April 22.

The Norwegian government said that no major ecological damage was apparent as a result of the midsea slick, described as 32 miles long and 49 miles wide.

Four attempts to plug the well Thursday and Friday failed when rams closed off the flow for only a few seconds and then were forced open by the pressure, estimated a 4,000 pounds per square inch.

RACE INDICATED

Briscoe-Hill Swap Punches

MIDLAND (AP)- Texas Atty.gen. John Hill says Gov. Dolph Briscoe's statements on President Carter's energy plan are "irresponsible," and Briscoe says he "has not yet begun to fight."

You'd think they were running against one another.

Many people feel that's exactly the case, although Hill has yet to announce that he'll take on Briscoe for the right to sit in the governor's office.

Hill threw the first punches Thursday when he termed "irresponsible" statements by Briscoe about the possibility of cutting off Texas gas to other states.

During a news conference in Houston April 23, Briscoe had criticized President Carter's recently proposed energy conservation and development program and left open the possibility of throttling Texas' petroleum resources.

Briscoe swung back at Hill's implications, saying the attorney general was letting "partisan politics" interfere in matters of great concern to Texans.

"I stand by everything I have said about the Carter energy policy," the governor said."If those who want to knuckle under to greater federal regulations and to the federal bureaucracy want to criticize me, let them have at it. I have just begun to fight to protect the economy of our state."

On Friday Hill traveled to Midland where he told the Midland County Bar ASsociation that the outcome of the energy proposal reflected that governor Briscoe apparently is not influential in the Carter administration.

Hill said that President Carter had told him in a phone call that he would work to deregulate oil and gas. It is obvious that Carter has not followed through on that policy, Hill said. He also told the group that Briscoe's opposition to Carter's energy program was belated.

He said the governor had failed to influence the composition of the team that formulated the energy plan for Carter. He said 13 of the 15 men on the team were federal officials, and Texas was not represented by a single member.

"If Gov. Briscoe had acted then to persuade PresidentCarter that Texas should be represented, it is more than likely that we would have had some of our own experts on the team," Hill said. "Gov. Briscoe failed to take any effective action. He sat by while the policy was being finalized by someone else in Washington."

Hill added: "Participation in the decision-making process is more than threats to cut off gas to the other states, which would entail breaking solem contracts, an option which has been ruled unconstitutional by our court system."

Service Awards Highlight Annual Teachers' Banquet

Presentation of some 40 service awards and recognition of a half dozen retirees highlighted the annual teachers' banquet Friday night in the Scurry County Coliseum.

The event is held each year by the Snyder Classroom Teachers Association and the local unit of the Texas State Teachers association.

The teachers and their guests heard Dr. Ralph W. Steen, president emeritus of Stephen F. Austin State University, tell them the importance of the teacher in the lives of children is continually growing. He said that the need for guidance by the teacher has never been greater because "parents are not doing much about it and God knows that TV is doing nothing about it."

Dr. Steen warned that Americans today may be too suspicious of the pure scientist. The nation developed many of the tools required to bring it to its station today as the result of the work of practical scientists who produced such things as barbed wire, the Colt revolver, and mechanical implements, Dr. Steen reminded. Now, there is a different type of development going on and it has produced many items now in everyday use that did not exist 25 years ago. As an example, Dr. Steen said he was told recently by a physician that 75 percent of the medicine prescribed by doctors today was unknown 25 years ago.

Dr. Steen said the teacher must see that children get a broad-based education that will prepare them to live in this new environment, because he said that the pressure of man on the resources of the earth will continue to build as the population increases.

Mrs. Vera McSpadden, 1976-77 president of the school board, presented the service pins to school personnel as they were recognized by Supt. Bill J. Hood. Twenty-five year pins went to Libby Brinner, Ruth Eades, Virginia Grove, Billy Bob McMullan, Maxie McNew, Frank Miller, Johnnie Weems, Inez Wells and Ida Mae Webb.

Receiving 20-year pins were Charles Anderson, Rita Carter, Roy Carter, Ollie Clements, E. D. Flynn, Durelle Gorman, Phil Kelley, Wayne Kennedy, Jo Alyce McMullan, Jo Ann Peek, Bobbie Taylor, Ned Underwood and Ann Walton.

The 10-year pins went to Robert Adams, Bill Boles, Marilyn Crownover, Ben Dickey, Beverly Elrod, Mary Jimm Floyd, Geral Mac Greene, Bill J. Hood, Joyce Landon, Mary A. McCowan, Jean Sealy, Prentice Smith, Mary Williams and Mateo Zamarripa.

Receiving retirement gifts were Maxie McNew, Loyd Webb, Johnnie Weems and Ida DeShan. Introduced as taking early retirement were Inez and Ollie Clements.

Three board members also were presented service pins and one of them Dillard Teal, was recognized for having been associated with the Snyder Public Schools for 26

Is the high price of coffee bringing your sipping habits down low? Are you searching for a way to keep up the caffiene habit without deflating your wallet?

If so, you should be encouraged to learn that there are people working on these problems, some of them right here in Snyder, and they have some successes to report.

Bill Love gave us a first-hand report the other day on an experiment he has been conducting and he declares that it offers interesting possibilities. He has been taking the used coffee grounds from a drip type coffee maker and drying them out in an oven for use again. He has learned that these recycled grounds make a palatable pot of percolated coffee if you merely allow the percolator to perk a few moments longer than when you use fresh coffee grounds.

However, he warns that care must be given in the drying-out process. If the coffee grounds are scorched the least bit, it ruins the entire batch.

But, in this manner, a person may reduce the amount of coffee he uses. Of course two types of coffee makers must be employed—a drip type and a common percolator. But in the long run (perhaps not so long) it could pay off. If you get double use from coffee grounds, it wouldn't take long to amortize an extra percolator, or even one of the new drip type machines.

Love, who disclosed the details of his experiment while administering a hair cut in his barbershop, said he had been aware for some time that housewives had a system for stretching tea bags. For example, he said, he had learned that a batch of tea requiring eight tea bags can be duplicated by taking the eight used tea bags and drying them out and then adding three new bags to bolster their strength. This was news to us, but quite interesting since the soaring price of coffee has also influenced an upward trend for tea prices.

Thunderstorms Bring Moisture

A brief but booming thunderstorm swept through the Snyder area shortly before midnight Friday, dropping rainfall ranging from a tenth of an inch to nearly an inch.

Small hail accompanied the rain in Snyder, but apparently was not large enough to cause damage.

The official gauge at the Snyder water treatment plant logged .88 inch from the thunderstorm. This ran the total for the year to 6.79 inches and gave ranges and pastures an additional boost and enhanced crop planting pospects.

The thunderstorm moved in from the northwest and brilliant lightning and rolling thunder prevailed as it pushed eastward.

The heavier rains appeared to be across the north half of Scurry County. The gauge at Lake J.B. Thomas measured only a tenth of an inch, and around a quarter of an inch fell at Hermleigh.

The rains reached Snyder as thunderstorm activity was reported over much of the state. The National Weather Service had unofficial reports of eight inches around San Angelo. Thundershowers were reported all the way from the Dallas-Fort Worth area southward to Del Rio. There also were some showers in the Panhandle.

Forecasts called for showers and thunderstorms statewide, with temperatures expected to reach the 80s over most of the state.

Bill Simplifies Tax Returns

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate-passed tax bill would save money for 47 million taxpayers who use the standard deduction and make the task of filling out tax forms a little easier for nearly everyone.

"Most people will be able to do their tax returns for themselves for a change," Sen. Russell B. Long, chairman of the Finance Committee, told reporters Friday after the Senate passed the bill.

years. Teal is a former teacher and for the past 11 years has been a member of the board. The other board members receivng pins for 10 years or more of service were Ted Crenwelge and Max von Roeder. Crenwelge was elected president of the board the past week, the second time he has served in that capacity, and von Roeder is a former board president.

Charles Anderson, principal of Central Elementary School, and Joe Griffin, principal of Stanfield Elementary, presented Hood with his 10-year pin. Anderson noted it was the first time he could recall that a superintendent had served here long enough to receive a pin.

Jewell Harris, Region III Consultant to the Texas State Teachers Association, presented a report on the TSTA legislative program. She said TSTA was working to get teachers salaries in the school finance bill. She said it was difficult to understand how legislators could draft a school finance bill without a salary schedule when salaries account for about 85 per cent of the funds required to opeate funds required to operate schools. She said a bill now being prepared in the Senate offers hope that many TSTA recommendations will be included.

Jerry Worsham presided and dinner music was presented by Barbara Perkins at the piano. Charles Anderson gave the invocation.

Officers of the local TSTA unit are Emily Collins, president; Albert Mac Taylor, president-elect; John Short, first vice president; Linda Cozart, second vice president; Gaylean Dobbs, secretary, and Bobbie Combest, treasurer.

Officers of the Snyder Classroom Teachers Association are Bill Hartsfield, president; Faye Cook, president-elect; Helen Stephenson, first vice president; Phil Kelley, second vice president; Monette O'Day, secretary; and Roy Rosson, treasurer.

Lady Returns To Work To Be Laid Off

FLORENCE, N.Y. (AP)- Mary Munz has won back her county job as a snow plow operator just in time to be laid off with the rest of the town's road crew.

Mrs. Munz had complained of discrimination when the town board eliminated her position on the town's snowplow last January.

In protest, the town's highway superintendent resigned, then thought better of it and stayed on the job.

A state Human Rights Division official said there was probable cause that Mrs. Munz had been discriminated against because she was a woman.

So, the town board, while refusing to admit it was wrong, agreed to offer her the old job and pay her back wages.

The board's decision means Mrs. Munz now joins the rest of the town's road crew in being officially laid off. The highway department has exhausted its budget, officials say.

Amendment By Burleson Ok'd

WASHINGTON — In an uphill battle to restore $4.1 billion for national defense, cut from the President's Budget proposal, Congressman Omar Burleson was successful in the passage of his amendment to the First Concurrent Budget Resolution, considered by the U.S. House of Representatives Thursday. The House approved the Burleson Amendment by a vote of 225 to 184, in an all-night session, but later recommitted the Resolution to the Budget Committee before adjourning at 1:03 A.M.

In his plea to restore national defense funds, Burleson pointed out that his figure was still $2.8 billion below the figure recommended by President Ford as a minimum consistent with national security requirements.

Burleson stated that the Defense Task Force of the Budget Committee--of which he is a member--held only three formal meetings and was not asked to make any recommendations on the level of the defense budget, either to the Chairman or to the full Budget Committee. "The sum for national defense in this Resolution was simply plucked arbitrarily out of thin air and has neither logic nor recognition of the hard facts for our future safety in this volatile world," Burleson said. He also mentioned that recommendations of other Committees in Congress were much higher than even President Carter's recommendation. President Carter became involved in the effort by calling the House leadership to urge support of his total national defense recommendation of $120.1 billion for Fiscal Year 1978.

OBITUARIES

N. A. Buchanan

Funeral service has been set for 2 p.m. today at the Bell-Seale Funeral Home Chapel for N.A. (Albert) Buchanan, 85, who lived at 212 26th Street. Mr. Buchanan died at 1:45 p.m. Friday in Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

The Rev. James Jackson of First Assembly of God Church will officiate and burial will be in Hillside Memorial Gardens, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

A retired sheet metal worker, Mr. Buchanan was married in 1913 in Stephens County to Miss Ethel Rollins. She survives.

Also surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Oran Thompson of Snyder and Mrs. George E. Moore of San Angelo; six sons, Doyle, Houston, James and Harold Buchanan, all of Snyder, Jesse Buchanan of Watsonville, Calif., and Kenneth Buchanan of Eldorado, Ark.; 24 grandchildren, 22 great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be David Thompson, Butch Buchanan, Dennis Buchanan, Gary Buchanan, Skipper Moore and Vernone Moore.

BEST ACTRESS—Rotan High School student Lisa Hale, shown above, was named best actress in regional University Interscholastic League one-act play competition. She and the other cast members of Rotan High School's drama production of "The Wizard of Oz" will be competing in the state U.I.L. meet to be held Wednesday. Miss Hale is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Don Hale of Rotan.

2 Mishaps Occur Within A Minute

In an unusual coincidence Friday afternoon, city police officers were dispatched to investigate two traffic accidents that occurred within one minute of each other on the same block. Both accidents involved parked cars and both also involved persons living outside Snyder on the Arah route.

The first mishap occurred at 2:42 p.m. Friday in the 2500 block of Ave. R. Involved in the mishap were a 1974 Chevrolet driven Melva Ainsworth Craig of the Arah Route and a parked 1975 Oldsmobile owned by Billy Don Martin of Snyder.

The next mishap occurred at 2:43 p.m. Friday, also in the 2500 block of Ave. R. Involved in that mishap were a 1971 Mercury driven by Ethel Ida Reeves of Snyder and a Parked 1975 Chevrolet owned by Welda K. McHaney of the Arah Route.

No damage was reported to the vehicle driven by Ms. Reeves in the second mishap and only minor damages were reported to the other three cars involved in the accidents.

A theft and two more traffic accidents were also investigated by police officers.

Wayne York told officers that some parts had been taken from a grain drill that was parked at the roping grounds on Ave. N. Total value of the machine parts were estimated at $50. The incident was reported to police shortly after 10 p.m. Friday.

A 1974 Plymouth driven by Apolonia Gonzales Nichols was in collision Friday at 8:06 p.m. with a 1972 Chevrolet pickup truck driven by Jimmy Keith Ward of Hermleigh. The collision occurred in the 900 block of 25th and only minor damages were reported to the two cars.

No wrecker or ambulance was summoned, but both drivers reportedly received minor injuries and were taken for medical attention by private vehicles. They were not thought to have been seriously injured.

At 8:06 a.m. Saturday, two cars collided in the 1200 block of 25th St.

Involved in the collision were a 1975 Oldsmobile driven by John B. Halbert and a 1975 Ford pickup truck driven by Elvis Benton Bollinger.

Only minor damages were reported to the two vehicles.

Trading Not Influenced By Hunt Charges

CHICAGO (AP) — Trading in soybeans futures on the Chicago Board of Trade has not been influenced by charges that members of the wealthy Hunt family of Texas has been engaged in manipulations, market sources say.

The sources said Friday that there was a huge demand for soybean futures and that it was independent of any concern over the federal charges. It accounted for the increase of 45 cents for some contracts, the limit under rules set by the Board of Trade, the sources said.

Seven members of the Hunt family and a family holding company were charged in a civil suit filed Thursday in U.S. District Court with a violation of federal law by buying too many soybeans futures. Experts said the law is designed to prevent any group from getting a corner on the market.

On the Board of Trade, speculators do not buy the beans themselves. Instead, they buy "futures," or promises to deliver the beans by a certain date. Generally, speculators do not hang onto these "futures," or promises to deliver beans, and instead try to sell them for a profit. Other commodities, such as corn and oats, also are a subject of speculation.

May soybeans closed at $9.85 a bushel Friday.

The federal commodities Futures Trading Commission asked in its suit an order that the Hunts sell any soybean futures holdings in excess of the legal limit and yield any profits illegally gained.

Those named are W.H. Hunt; his son, Douglas Hunt; and his brother, Nelson Bunker Hunt; Nelson's son, Houston Bunker Hunt, and three of Nelson's daughter's, Ellen Hunt Flowers, Mary Hunt Huddleston and Elizabeth Bunker Hunt.

Man Studies Cockroaches

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) - Bruce Hammock has a lot of cockroaches around him: some 500 Madagascar and Panamanian cockroaches measuring up to three inches.

Hammock, 27, an insect endocrinologist at the University of California here, has been studying cockroaches for the past eight years.

He is working with juvenile hormones of cockroaches, and is trying to come up with a synthetic material that would replace insecticides like DDT.

The synthetic hormone would be something like birth control pill for cockroaches and other insects, he said.

"These giant roaches are permitted to be imported into the United States solely for research purposes," Hammock adds. "Every precaution is taken to insure they do not escape from the lab."

Walls Sales Up Sharply

Walls Industries, Inc., Cleburne-based manufacturer of sports and utility apparel which operates a sewing plant in Snyder, has announced sales of $6,061,587 for the first quarter of 1977.

This represents an increase of 59 per cent over sales of $3,794,923 for the same period in 1976.

Net earnings for the quarter increased 54 per cent to $562,784 from $365,327 in 1976. This amounts to earnings of 36 cents per share for the first quarter this year, compared to earnings of 23 cents per share for the first quarter of 1976.

Utilities To Submit Grid Plan

AUSTIN ((AP)-- Major Texas utilities are scheduled Monday to submit to the Public Utility Commission their plan to reconnect the Texas power grid.

On several occasions, commissioners have held hearings to consider the status of negotiations aimed at allowing the Lower Colorado River Authority, Austin and San Antonio to reconnect with Houston Lighting and Power Co. and the Texas Utilities subsidiaries.

The LCRA and the two cities have been connected with Central Power and Light Co. and the West Texas Utilities since the Texas Interconnected System was disrupted last May.

The disconnection came after WTU began serving Oklahoma customers. Texas Utilities and HL&P withdrew from the grid system because the Oklahoma connection would place all companies under Federal Power Commission regulation.

Several federal suits that, prompted WTU's move are still pending.

DESPITE DROUGHT, DEPRESSED PRICES

Most Farmers Able To Handle Bank Payments

WASHINGTON (AP) – Drought and depressed prices are causing severe problems for thousands of farmers who owe money to banks in nine Great Plains states, the Agriculture Department says.

Even so, more than two-thirds of the farmers are expected to have "no repayment difficulty," in handling bank loans, the department said Friday in a special report on Great Plains farm finance. Farmers were said to be getting especially low prices for livestock and wheat.

The report was ordered by President Carter on March 30 following a White House meeting with Gov. J. James Exon of Nebraska who sought help in softening the farm credit crunch in the region. Carter, however, did not promise specific action on the problem.

"Although credit is generally available," the report said, "loan funds are tighter in localities where farm deposits and farm loans make up a major share of bank business."

"Financial problems were found to be most widespread in Nebraska, Kansas, and Oklahoma where the major agricultural industries are livestock and wheat. Farmers producing these commodities are known to be suffering depressed prices and increasing production costs."

The report showed that of an estimated 226,100 farm bank borrowers in the nine states surveyed--assuming that current prices continue-some 152,900 or 67.6 per cent are in "no repayment difficulty" but that 59,300 or 26.2 per cent say they "required refinancing or disposal of assets" to repay loans.

Hardest hit are 13,900 farmers, or 6.1 per cent, who say they "cannot repay" bank loans, the survey found.

Farmers classified as unable to repay loans included:

Colorado, 400 of a total 11,100 borrowers; Kansas, 3,200 of 32,300; Minnesota, 1,400 of 45,600; Montana, 100 of 8,300; Nebraska, 2,200 of 24,500; North Dakota, 900 of 17,440; Oklahoma, 3,200 of 24,300; South Dakota, 1,200 of 19,200; and Texas 1,300 of 43,000.

"Continued farm problems could lead to large secondary impacts on rural communities," the report said. "Decreases in business receipts are evident as farmers forego purchases of machinery and equipment and cut back on other production items and family purchases.

"Such reductions in income to area merchants could reduce employment in the area," the report said. "Because of lower farm income and the potential for a decline in land values, local sales, income and real estate taxes could fall and local communities would be forced to cut services.

Carter Roots Traced To London Wine Merchant

LONDON (AP)-- A British genealogist believes he has traced President Carter's roots back to a 16th century London wine merchant.

Noel Currer-Briggs said in an Associated Press interview that he had traced the President to John Carter, a wine merchant whose son Thomas Carter was born in London in 1610 and sailed for Virginia in 1635.

"The Carter family was very prominent in the City of London," said Currer-Briggs, who is researching Carter's English connections for Debrett's, the peerage and genealogy publishers in London.

The President's direct ancestors had distant cousins who once owned Chequers, the country estate 25 miles west of London now used as a retreat for British prime ministers, Currer-Briggs said.

Currer-Briggs said Chequers was in the hands of the Carter family's remote cousins from about 1300 to 1700.

A similar genealogical tracer was reported last Thursday by the Deseret News in Salt Lake City, Utah.

In a copyright story, the paper quoted a genealogist of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) as saying he had traced Carter through family wills to a Thomas Carter Sr., who arrived in Virginia from England in 1635. The Mormon genealogist said Thomas Carter was the president's eight-great-grandfather.

President Carter is coming to London next week for an economic summit conference and plans to visit the ancestral home of George Washington in northeast England. The U.S. Embassy said there are no plans for him to see any of his ancestral areas, including Chequers.

Currer-Briggs, an expert on American-British genealogies, said he spent weeks wading through court records, wills, deeds, parish registers, records of the guild-like Company of Vintners and other documents.

Christ Church, the Carter family's parish church in the old City of London, now the capital's financial district, was bombed in World War II and records there were lost. But Currer-Briggs found in the Public Records Office the will of Thomas' vinter-father, John Carter, 1581-1630, and made the connection.

"I feel that John Carter is positive," he said, although in a case of this kind yhou are very unlikely to get a direct, watertight proof."

Less sure is a connection Currer-Briggs has turned up with a Richard Carter, who was granted a manor at Garston, 15 miles northwest of the center of London, in 1530.

The area is now part of the town of Watford, and a bus garage occupies the likeliest site of the old manor. The name Garston Manor is preserved on a new development of low-cost public housing.

Recognition Event Is Set By RSVP

The fourth annual recognition program of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) has been scheduled for 11:30 a.m. Tuesday in the Scurry County Coliseum, Mrs. Betsy Duncan, director, said.

Dr. Gil Fleer from Westtern Texas College will serve as master of cermonies for the program following a luncheon. Mayor John Fagin will give the welcome and Dr. Robert L. Clinton, WTC president, will present certificates to new members.

Mrs. Duncan and Marilyn Foster, RSVP secretary, will present plaques of appreciation to volunteer stations and other organizations and individuals who have given special assistance to RSVP.

The Rev. David Robertson is to give the invocation.

Members of the Sunrisers Kiwanis Club will be assisting with the program and luncheon.

RSVP is an organization for persons 60 years of age or over who would like to give volunteer time to community projects. The Advisory Council members this year are Ruby Anderson, Evelyn Boone, H. J. Clark Jr., Fred Davis, Herman Doak, Dr. Fleer, Mayor Fagin, Rev. Thomas Jordan, Mildred Lewis, M. S. Pilcher, Lida Rhoades, Rosa Walker and County Judge Preston Wilson.

Center Helps Teen Alcoholics

SEATTLE (AP)- Stu R. began drinking when he was 10 and was a roaring alcoholic by 16.

He got a car and a job and tried to wipe alcohol out of his life. He started drinking again, wrecked the car, lost the job and wound up facing up to a year in detention.

Then he got his Second Chance.

Second Chance is a King County alcoholism treatment center for juveniles, now one year old.

Michele McClung, director of Second Chance, says 20 teenagers have graduated from the program since it opened its doors in a renovated youth center. Ten have remained sober and 10 have had one or two drinking bouts, but none is "drinking alcoholicly" at present, she said in an interview.

Twenty-six boys and six girls,some as young as 14, are enrolled in the 90-day program, patterned after Alcoholics Anonymous. Most of them, like Stu R., were sent there by judges after alcohol-related arrests, but two entered voluntarily.

Like A.A. members, the Second Chance alcoholics use only their first names and last initials.

The youngsters follow a low-sugar, high-protein diet, engage in nightly discussion sessions, are taught the physiology and history of alcohol addiction, observe meditation periods and meet several hours a week with their parents.

Legal Battle Heats Up Over Gerber's Stock

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP)--The legal battle continues to heat up in a proposed corporate takeover that would create a food firm with more than $1 billion in annual sales.

Anderson, Clayton & Co. of Houston filed a federal court counterclaim Friday accusing its takeover garget, Gerber Products Co. with making false statements about Anderson's bid to takeover Gerber's stock.

The Texas firm asked U.S. District Court Judge Noel Fox to dismiss a suit Gerber filed last Monday challenging the takeover on grounds it would violate antitrust and stock exchange regulations. No hearing date has been set either on the Gerber suit or the counter-claim.

Anderson, Clayton also asked that Gerber's actions be ruled in violation of stock exchange rules and that the baby food maker be barred from making any statements to stockholders about the offer until Gerber corrects its earlier comments.

The Texas firm also asked Gerber be enjoined against issuing false statements and ordered to correct earlier ones with a formal notice to its stockholders.

The counterclaim also contended Gerber failed to show any reason that selling out to Anderson, Clayton would not be in the best interest of Gerber stockholders.

Anderson, Clayton denied the Gerber suit's claim that the takeover would create a baby food monopoly, and that the Texas firm is a potential competitor in the baby food market. Gerber now sells 69 per cent of the nation's baby food.

Friday's filing also included denials of Gerber claims that Anderson, Clayton failed to disclose questionable foreign payments and had no firm arrangements for loans needed to buy Gerber.

Anderson, Clayton contended Thursday that Gerber has been saying there are plans to shut Gerber plants and fire workers if the takeover succeeds.

"Nothing could be furthurer from the truth, and Gerber's board of directors is fully aware that we have no such plans," the Texas firm insisted.

Anderson, Clayton took quarter-page ads in several Michigan newspapers Friday charging Gerber management with stalling and depriving owners of Gerber's 8.1 million shares of common stock the chance to accept the Texas company's $40-per share offer.

John Suerth, Gerber's chairman and chief executive officer, said Anderson, Clayton cannot buy more Gerber shares until July 7 since the Texas firm has made recent additions to its filings with the Michigan Department of Commerce.

Suerth contended there may be even more delay if state officials decide Anderson, Clayton's information does not meet the disclosure requirements under Michigan laws governing takeovers.

Anderson, Clayton had $759 million in sales last year compared with Gerber's $372 million. Their combined sales would exceed $1.1 billion.

Carlsbad Group Boosts Tourist Attractions

Thirty-five members of the Carlsbad, N. M. Chamber of Commerce Goldcoater group visited Snyder Friday as part of a West Texas-wide sweep to inform area residents of Carlsbad's many tourist attractions.

The Carlsbad Goldcoaters were joined by about 20 Snyder Goldcoaters in a luncheon hosted at the Shack restaurant.

At the luncheon, Carlsbad Chamber President Louis Whitlock presented Snyder Mayor John Fagin with a glass figurine of a roadrunner, the state bird of New Mexico.

"Carlsbad probably has more fun-time attraction per square mile than any other city in the southwest," Whitlock said, "and we are here in Snyder to invite all of you to visit us this spring for a week or a weekend."

In addition to Snyder, Whitlock said, the Carlsbad chamber members were making stops in Pecos, Monahans, Odessa, Midland, Big Spring, Brownwood, Abilene, Lamesa, and Seminole during its two-day promotional trip.

Approximately 160 miles northeast of El Paso, Carlsbad is the home of one of the world's most famous caves, Carlsbad Caverns National Park, and one of the nation's newest parks, Guadalupe Mountains National Park, which is located adjacent to the Caverns inside Texas. Both are located on the highway between Carlsbad and El Paso.

Whitlock issued an invitation to residents of Snyder and the surrounding area, urging them to visit Carlsbad and see the many attractions.

Carlsbad Caverns National Park is open every day of the year and over 800,000 people from over the world visit the park each year, the Carlsbad chamber members pointed out.

Open Weather Boosts Agricultural Picture

COLLEGE STATION (AP)--Moisture is generally good over most of Texas and open weather the past week has boosted the agricultural picture, reports the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

However, cool temperatures have hampered the growth of young crops in most sections.

Aside from a few dry counties in the Panhandle and in South Texas and most of far West Texas, soil moisture conditions are favorable for planting and for young crops, said Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director. Soil temperatures also rose so that only the area from Lubbock northward is still on the cool side for planting sorghum and cotton.

Cotton planting has been active. Sorghum planting will get into full swing in the Rolling Plains and West Central Texas as soon as field conditions permit. Some cotton and sorghum is being replanted after heavy rains. Considerable cotton and sorghum acreage was destroyed in Cameron County in recent hail and heavy rains. Rice planting continues in the Costal Plains, and peanut planting continues in Southwest Texas.

Commercial vegetable crops are progressing well in southern sections of the stage. Sugar cane harvest is active in the Rio Grande Valley, but the citrus harvest is about complete.

Early indications point to excellent peach and pecan crops in most parts of Texas. Fruit sets are generally heavy.

Panhandle: Moisture is generally adequate in all but Oldham and Deaf Smith Counties due to good rains last week. Sugar beet planting is about complete but corn planting is active as field conditions permit. Most onions and potatoes have been planted. Ranges should improve. Cattle in good shape with market prices strengthening.

South Plains: Recent rains of 1-3½ inches has put the area in good shape for planting. However, some preplanting irrigation continues. About 25 per cent of corn, onions, potatoes and wheat are making good progress, and ranges are improving rapidly.

Rolling Plains: Recent rains of three to five inches have boosted moisture conditions for crop and forage production. Early sorghum looks good. Cotton planting is about to start. Mung bean acreage is increasing in Hardeman County due to good contract prices. Corn and potatoes look good. Fruit and pecan crops look excellent at this time. Wheat prospects are above average.

North Central: Corn and sorghum are making good growth. Greenbugs are heavy in many sorghum fields. About half the cotton acreage has been planted. A good peach crop has been set. Pasture conditions are improving.

Far West: A general rain is still needed. Recent hail destroyed some wheat in Reagan County. Cotton planting is active.

West Central: Soil moisture is generally adequate to surplus. Sorghum planting will start as field conditions permit; some early fields will have to be replanted due to the heavy rains. Small grains are heading. Livestock are in good shape.

Central: Moisture is plentiful. Small grains are heading and yield prospects look good. Early hay cuttings should produce high yields. Sorghum and corn are making good progress, and cotton planting continues as fields dry. Pastures continue to improve.

East: Corn and sorghum are up to good Peanut planting is about to start. Vegetables are making good growth, with pinto beans blooming. Pastures and ranges are in good shape, and hay meadows are making good growth. Oats are being grazed out. The calf crop looks good.

Southeast and Upper Gulf Coast: Cool weather and heavy rains have slowed crop growth. Rice planting is nearing completion; some early fields are suffering from the rains and cool weather. Home vegetable gardens have been slowed also. Pastures are beginning to provide good grazing for livestock.

South Central: Most corn and sorghum has been planted, and cotton planting continues as field conditions permit. Warmer, open weather is needed for all field crops and home gardens. Nutlets are forming on pecan trees, and the peach crop looks good. Range and livestock conditions are improving.

Southwest: Wheat, oats and flax are making good growth. Some corn and sorghum will have to be replanted due to recent hail and heavy rains. Peanut planting continues as field conditions permit. Spring vegetables look good with harvesting of lettuce and carrots continuing. Excellent peach and pecan crops are in the making. Forage and livestock conditions look good.

Costal Bend: Soil moisture is plentiful except in Jim Wells, Kleburg and Kenedy counties. Cotton, corn, sorghum and flax are making good growth but need warmer weather. Rice planting is 90 per cent complete. Insect and disease problems are increasing in vegetables due to the recent rains. Peach and pecan crops look excellent. Pastures and ranges are improving where there is good moisture.

South: Recent heavy rains and hail destroyed up to 3,000 acres of cotton and 2,000 acres of sorghum in Cameron County. An additional 8,000 to 10,000 acres were damaged. Some crop damage also in Hidalgo County. Otherwise crops are generally making good progress, with harvesting of sugar cane, onions, carrots and cabbage continuing. The citrus harvest is about complete.

DIVERSIFIED

BY BILLY E. ROACH
COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT

There were 73 participants in the Private Pesticide Application Training meeting held in Hermleigh last Monday. These will receive their certificates from the Texas Department of Agriculture shortly.

Along this line, there appears to be some relief to homeowners, apparently formulations of some pesticides will be made for the home and garden that will come in under the general use category. This is not so at present.

There have been some questions when another meeting will be held in the Snyder area. This has not been determined, but plans are to have probably two more for residents in the area. There will be more publicity when meetings are scheduled.

WEED CONTROL

The use of herbicides for weed control can be the finest thing or the most frustrating. How successful weed control is depends on several factors. took these mistakes in applying herbicides from an article relating to vegetable growing, but I feel they apply to other crops as well. Some mistakes are:

Poor land preparation including excessive undecayed plant residue, too many clods. Surface of soil not level and not finely prepared.

Wrong timing. a. Applied too early, too late or under adverse weather conditions resulting in crop damage and poor weed control.

Wrong rate--too high, causing crop damage, and too low or poor weed control.

Wrong herbicide--not recommended for the crop or specific weed problem.

Improperly placed herbicide--too deep, too shallow or misplaced when applied directionally.

Drilled row not properly shaped--herbicide leaching into drilled row when left concave or herbicide leaching away from row when over-crowned.

Poor soil moisture level--low soil moisture hundering activity of herbicide or excessive irrigation or rain causing movement of herbicide away from desired zone.

Use of wrong equipment--equipment not suited for herbicide application or equipment not maintained adequately.

Inadequate and infrequent calibration-- Application rates of both granular and spay equipment change with wear and time.

Movement of soil--cultivation causing movement of soil away or to appliction zone.

There may be other reasons for poor weed control, but if these are avoided many problems can be eliminated. We do have many excellent herbicides and when used correctly will do an excellent job, but the best herbicide applied incorrectly doesn't have a chance.

NOT QUICK ENOUGH—Lamesa's J. Robinson tries for extra bases, but Alvin Ollison threw from his centerfield slot to thirdbaseman Sid Everton in time to make the out for Snyder in Friday's Tornado-Tiger game here. Snyder won, and will face the Tornadoes in Lamesa, Tuesday. (SDN Staff Photo).

Athletes Take 20-Across USOC Board

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col. AP - Every four years American athletes sweat for medals and country in the Olympic Games, the world class athletes' forum.

The years in between have been reserved for the administrators and their forum, the meeting room. Indoor sports like forming committees, spending money and making decisions have been virtually placed off-limits to the athletes.

But that has been changed with the passage of an important constitutional amendment Friday at the U.S. Olympic Committee's meeting.

So chalk up a gold medal for the amateur athlete, America's best-conditioned oppressed minority.

This new provision gives athletes, current and those active in the past 10 years, 20 per cent representation on the USOC's policy-making Executive Board.

"I'm ecstatic," said Ed Williams, chairman of the Athleters' Advisory Council. "It's inportant for the policy-making body of the USOC to have direct input from athletes. It was the only critical item for us."

If that vote can be described as a victory for the sneaker-and-sweat set, then the following vote has to be counted a mild setback.

The Athletes' Advisory Council attempted to gain the same 20 per cent of seats on the USOC's nominating committee, the unit which recommends new slates of officers. It apparently has considerable clout, since its recomendations all were unanimously accepted Friday.

The new USOC officials are Robert J. Kane, longtime athletic director at Cornell University, president; John V. Kelly, first vice president; E. Newbold Black, second vice president; Joel Ferrell Jr., third vice president; William E. Simon, former U.S. Treasury Secretary, as treasurer, and Dr. Tenley Albright, former Olympic figure skating queen, as secretary.

But the delegates at this two-day convention voted down the proposal for two athletes on the nominating committee. They had to settle for one representative.

Butler Leads West To All-Star Victory

WACO—A 23-point performance by Western Texas College's Lawrence Butler paced the West to a 113-106 victory over the East in the first Texas Junior College All Star basketball game here Friday night.

Reginald Franklin, who added 19 points to the West cause, was named the West's most valuable player. He is from New Mexico Military Institute.

Ollie Mack, who scored 30 points in a losing cause, was named most valuable player for the East.

The West team was coached by Mike Mitchell of Western Texas College, who will soon become head coach and athletic director at Southern Idaho College.

Tigers Leak Thru Lamesa Defense In Seventh Period

The Tigers won't forget it. Lamesa won't forget it. And for sure, second baseman Dray Sikes won't forget it.

The junior ballplayer made a minor hero of himself as he slapped a bases loaded, seventh inning single to score Scott Crenwelge and give Snyder a 6-5 win over the visiting Lamesa Tornadoes, Saturday.

The victory, Snyder's seventh in district play, pulls coach Albert Lewis' Tigers within two games of winning the 3-3A crown.

The Tornadoes scored first under the partly cloudy skies of Moffett Field. Starting pitcher Albert Martinez came in on a A. Morales single in the top of the opening period with one out on register. A Sikes-Bobby Doe-Anthony Lewis double play cleared the bases and left Lamesa one point in the clear.

Snyder retaliated in similar fashion however, in the bottom of the second, as Tiger hurler Ricky Beard touched home on an Anthony Lewis base hit.

Lamesa added two more runs in the fifth inning. S. Whitiker and Morales scored to give the visitors a 3-1 edge.

Again, the Tigers returned the compliment with points from Sikes, Alvin Ollison and Tracy Witherspoon. The trio put Snyder in the lead by one, with two innings to go.

In the top of the seventh, Beard got into trouble following to quick outs. Lamesa's Whitacker secured first on an error and Morales doubled to put runners on second and third. An intentional walk filled the diamond, but the Tiger strategy failed, and next-up F. Martinez doubled to score the Tornado duo.

Behind by a point, the Tiger offense went to work. Lead-off batter Witherspoon flew out to centerfield, but short stop Bobby Doe secured a walk. Beard, who won his ninth season game with with the Snyder victory, blasted a triple which scored Doe and tied the tally at 5-5.

Relief pitcher Keith Lee took over for a rattled Martinez and intentionally walked Snyder's Scott Crenwelge and Mitch Mackey. The plan paid off at first glance, as a shot by Anthony Lewis went to the Lamesa short stop who threw home and caught Beard for the second Snyder out.

But next-up Dray Sikes managed a grounder through a hole at short on the following play to score Crenwelge for the Snyder win.

At 7-1 in district play, Snyder needs two more wins to clinch the championship. One win would give them a sure tie.

The Tigers go into action again Tuesday, when they'll meet the Tornadoes at 5 p.m. in Lamesa.

New Twist In Skiing At Brodie

NEW ASHFORD, Mass. (AP) — They require a full week to celebrate St. Patrick's Day at "Kelly's Irish Alps", also known as Brodie Mountain. It starts a few days before March 17th and ends a few days after the Irish national holiday.

The feature event has contestants skiing down a slope with nine gates, drinking a 12-ounce glass of green beer at each one, then crawling, staggering, or weaving to the finish line. The trick is to remember where they are and what day it is.

Mercardo Takes Top On WTC Boxing Card

FORT WORTH, Tex (AP)- Bernardo Mercardo of Colombia knocked down Dallas opponent Randy Stephens for keeps after only 2:30 of the first round Friday in the main event of the World Television Championship card.

Stephens' trainer, Angelo Dundee, screamed for referee Curtis Cokes to stop the bout after Mercado, a former Olympian with a 15-0 record, floored Stephens twice with vicious right to the chin.

The 217-pound former Colombia National Amateur champion has won eight of his 15 victories by first-round knockouts.

In a second duel, Nick Wells' budding pro boxing career was pushed to the limits, but it wasn't good enough to prevent a ninth round TKO by Mike Koranicki of Philadelphia.

NEEDED THAT—Snyder coach Albert Lewis praises Ricky Beard on a play. Though the senior hurler gave up five runs - the most he's allowed in a long while - he was hot at the bat, scoring a run, and hitting a single and a double. Lewis congratulates him on the triple, which scored Bobby Doe and locked the score at 5-5 in the seventh period. Snyder won, 6-5. (SDN Staff Photo).

DON COCKROFT

Banquet Planned Monday To Honor Snyder Athletes

The high school All-Sports Banquet, sponsored by Snyder Booster Club, will be held tomorrow night at 6:30 in the school cafeteria. Presentation of awards will follow at 7:30 in the auditorium.

Guest speaker Don Cockroft will highlight the banquet. Cockroft, a professional football player with the Cleveland Browns, serves as one of only two combination punters-placekickers in the National Football League. In 1975, Cockroft set an NFL record for career field goal accuracy (67 per cent) and tied an NFL record of 16 consecutive field goals without a miss.

He has climbed to third on the Brown's all-time scoring list with 729 points Just ahead of him is running sensation Jim Brown, whose 756 points is within reach in the 1977 season.

An active member of the fellowship of christian Athletes, Cockroft spends his off season months speaking throughout America. He spoke during the Northern Ohio Billy Graham Crusade in 1972 and attened Nazarene Bible College during 1972 and 73.

Cockroft, a resident of Fountain, Colo., and his wife Dianna have two daughters, Michelle Lee and Melinda Gale.

A special award elected by the students Monday evening will be the selection of the outstanding boy and girl athlete for 1976-77. Following the speaker and awards, the Snyder Gymnastic Team will perform.

Tickets for the banquet are $4.50 each and may be purchased at Snyder Athletic Supply, West Texas State Bank and Snyder National Bank. There will be tickets available at the door. Some 600 persons ae expected to attend.

Post Athlete Signs Letter With WTC

Karen Williams, a 5-8 forward form Post, has signed a letter of intent with Western Texas College.

Miss Williams was a member of the Post varsity basketball team for three years, and was named to the all-district 5AA team this year. During her senior year, she scored a total of 803 points in 28 games for an average of 28.6. She averaged 19.1 points per game throughout her high school career with an average of eight rebounds.

"Several coaches felt Karen was probably the best player in the district," Dr. Sid Simpson, WTC athletic director and women's coach, said. "She certainly is one of the fastest players I have seen all year, and is a good team player. She hits well from 18 feet on in.

"We expect Karen to adapt readily to the full-court game, and she has a good chance to be a starter for the Dusters next season," Simpson added.

As a freshman, Miss Williams scored a total of 361 points in 17 games for an average of 21.2. In her sophomore year, she played in 29 games and scored 319 points for an average of 11. During her junior year, she averaged 16.7 points in 27 games.

Miss Williams is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nolan Williams.

Cowboys Needing 3rd Quarterback

DALLAS (AP)-Dallas Cowboy Coach Tom Landry says it is imperative that the team comes up with a third quarterback for the 1977 National Football League season.

"We were in a very precarious situation last season when Danny White the backup quarterback to Roger Staubach was running around with a torn cartilage and Roger got his hand hurt," says Landry.

"With just a couple of hits in the wrong spots, we could very easily have been out off business."

Landry continues "I believe we should come up with a third quarterback. We didn't get to play Danny as much as we would have liked last season, but when we put him in he performed for us. We'll play him a lot more in the pre-season this year to determine how good he can be."

Landry, in Dallas' annual pre-season prospectus, says Staubach will be the No. 1 quarterback "until his efficiency drops off. I believe he'll recover from the setbacks he had last year and will perform upto his potential."

At running back, Landry says the Cowboys should be improved because injuries suffered by Robert Newhouse and Preston Pearson will have healed.

Landry has already announced that Bob Breunig will replace the retired veteran Lee Roy Jordan with Randy White moving to strongside linebacker.

"There was a possibility of White moving into the line, but we felt we did not want to attempt to replace two quality linebackers (Jordan and White) at the same time," says Landry.

Landry says there will be quite a battle for jobs in the offensive line with veteran Ralph Neely being pushed hard at tackle by Pat Donovan.

Ishtar was the Babylonian and Assyrian goddess of fertility and love.

NEW YORK (AP) — Walt Michaels, the new coach of the New York Jets, was a linebacker in his playing days. He retired in 1961 but came back for one game in 1963. Michaels, than an assistant coach with the Jets, was pressed into service in the season opener against Boston because of injuries to the regular linebackers.

"I played the whole game without getting hurt," Walt recalled. "But one of the officials kept warning me that he was going to call holding on me if I didn't stop grabbing the tight end.

"I kept telling him that it only looked like holding, "Michaels added, "and I got away with it."

Y. J's Gets 2 New Owners

Y.J.'s Marina at Lake Spence had new owners in Charles Travis and Joe Barrett, who aquired it from Y.J. Sherrill. Travis and Barrett said they are expanding merchandise, and services of the marina, located on the northwest side, off SH 158. Barrett is retired from the USAF at Webb AFB and was one time a crew chief for the celebrated Thunderbird serial acrobatic team. Travis was reared in Lubbock, as was in the automotive business there and at Slaton.

Capra Receives Hero Welcome

By HILMI TOROS
Associated Press Writer

BISACQUINO, Sicily (AP) — Hollywood director Frank Capra, who turns 80 this month, made a sentimental journey to find his roots and got a hero's welcome from the Sicilian town he left 74 years ago.

Capra's car was mobbed Friday as he drove past the stone huts, cactus trees and vineyards of southwest Sicily into this town of 8,000. The local band accompanied the procession through the streets.

"Oh, zio, ciao, benvenuto," were the greetings from six nephews and nieces, all dressed in black, and their 36 children. None had met the movie-maker before.

"I worked hard all my life. I had some success. But the real success is yours for being so close to the earth and God," Capra told the cheering crowd through an interpreter.

"Welcome," Mayor Antonio Russo told Capra, "this is your land. This is a land that demands sacrifice but also forms generous people. And our people still go to exile."

At the turn of the century Salvatore and Rosaria Capra sold their two-story stone house for 2,000 lire, worth $2.20 now, and left with Frank and five other children. First they traveled on mule-back to Corleone, then by bus to Palermo and finally by boat to America.

The Capras left behind one daughter, Ignazia, who died here in 1961. Her children opened their arms and houses to the director from Palm Springs, Calif.

One relative even knocked down a wall in a house to create a dining room large enough to seat 50. They offered him Sicilian rose wine and bubbling white spumante to go with a six-course bistecca dinner topped with birthday cake.

"How wonderful to be back with you," said Capra, who turns 80 on May 18.

One nephew, Salvatore "Toto" Troncale, a 73-year-old peasant dressed in his black Sunday suit, noted: "It's nice that people remember their ancestries. We shouldn't forget our past."

The trip stirred nationwide interest in Capra, the winner of three Academy Awards the best director. He was dubbed "simpatico" by the Italian press and there were new showings of his works, which include "It Happened One Night," "It's a Wonderful Life" and "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington."

'Star Trek' Is Making Progress

LOS ANGELES (AP)- Attention Trekkies: the feature version of "Star Trek" is making progress.

Producers Gene Roddenberry and Jerry Isenberg have signed Terry Carr as production manager for the Paramount movie to be based on the legendary TV series. Carr's latest film was "King Kong."

Cicely Tyson In NBC Film

LOS ANGELES (AP)- Cicely Tyson has been cast as the mother of Olympic track star Wilma Rudolph in NBC's 90-minute film, "Wilma."

Miss Tyson is famed for her performances in "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman" on television and "Sounder" in films. Filming of "Wilma" will start this summer in Miss Rudolph's native Tennessee.

LOS ANGELES (AP)- Ann Margret joins the cast of Neil Simon's "The Cheap Detective," replacing Lily Tomlin.

Peter Falk plays the title role in the Columbia Picture, with such costars as Louise Fletcher, Madeline Kahn, Marsha Mason, Stockard Channing and Eileen Brennan. Miss Tomlin was unable to appear because her one-woman show in New York has been extended.

Fiorello La Guardia, mayor of New York from 1934 to 1946, was raised in Prescott, Ariz.

He was, however, born in New York City of an Italian father and a Jewish mother.

Capp Homes Finish-It-Yourself House™: Proof that housing is still affordable.

Finish-It-Yourself means just that. By doing the finishing work yourself, you can save thousands compared to the cost of having a contractor build the same house on your lot.

CAPP CUSTOM QUALITY
Choose the home design you want, then customize it to fit your needs. For over 30 years, Capp has maintained an old-fashioned dedication to quality building specifications and materials.

WHAT WE DO
Capp custom-builds your home on your foundation. We install sub-flooring, interior partitions and exterior doors and windows, so you'll start off with a home that's completely enclosed and ready to finish.

WHAT YOU DO
You complete it yourself with all the finishing materials Capp provides. Things like plumbing and wiring aren't all that tough with the help of Capp instruction manuals. Finish it yourself, have your friends help — or hire tradesmen. The more you do, the more you save. And when you're finished, you have a home worth a lot more than you paid for it.

MUSEUM MONTH PROCLAIMED—County Judge Preston Wilson is shown signing a proclamation declaring the month of May as Museum Appreciation Month in Scurry County. With him is Sharon Sutton, director of the Scurry County Museum. Several exhibits will be featured at the Scurry County Museum in observance of Museum Appreciation Month. (SDN STAFF PHOTO)

MANY EXHIBITS PLANNED

Museum Month Begins

The Scurry County Museum, located on the Western Texas College campus, is featuring numerous exhibits in observance of Museum Appreciation Month.

May 1-31 has been designated as Museum Appreciation Month in Scurry County by a proclamation signed by County Judge Preston Wilson.

Director of the Scurry County Museum, Sharon Sutton, spoke of some of the exhibits to be featured by the museum.

Beginning today and continuing through May 13, Miss Sutton said, the annual Snyder High School Art Show will be featured. Also on exhibit in May will be a Boren Lighting Device Collection displaying lighting devices dating from 1609 through 1900.

Starting Monday and continuing through Friday, members of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) will be selling museum memberships at the Snyder National Bank and West Texas State Bank.

Next Sunday, May 8, Dr. James Tully of WTC will present a slide show on the history of WTC at the museum. The presentation is scheduled to begin at 2:30 p.m.

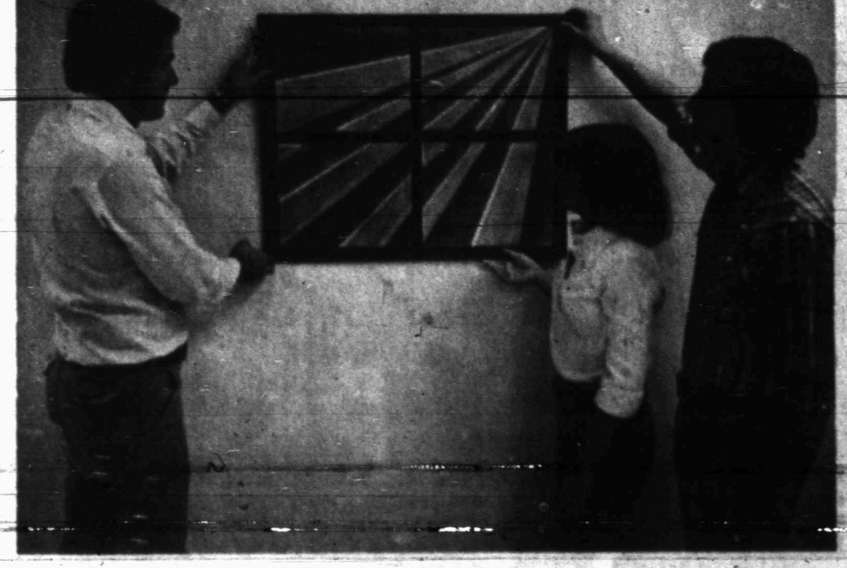
From May 15-29, Miss Sutton said, the museum will feature art works by members of the Texas Cowboy Artists Association. The exhibit will feature the works of Terry Gilbreth, George Kovach, Bill Leftwich, Jack Stevens, Jim Thomas, Tom Warren, Justin Wells, and Paul Wylie, she said.

A slide presentation featuring historic buildings in Scurry County is on tap for Sunday, May 22.

On Sunday, June 2, the Scurry County Museum Quilt Show will be displayed at the museum, featuring both antique and con-temporary quilts. Quilting demonstrations will also be ehld throughout June.

In addition to its other exhibits, the Scurry County Museum features a permanent exhibit gallery depicting the history of Scurry County.

The museum is open Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. until noon and from 1 p.m. On Friday, the museum is open from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. on Sundays.



MUSEUM EXHIBIT—Ted Bigham, left, Snyder High School art instructor, got help from Marcy Franks and Steve Floyd as the annual student art exhibit went up in the Scurry County Museum Friday. The exhibit will open today (Sunday) and remain through May 13. Both Miss Franks and Floyd will be exhibiting works in the high school division. Junior high students will also contribute works for the exhibit.

Appreciation Of History Is Urged

Scurry County History Appreciation Week has been proclaimed for May 1-7 by County Judge Preston Wilson.

Observance of the special week is being encouraged here by the Scurry County Historical Commission, which is headed by Mrs. Edith McKanna.

The official memorandum proclaiming the week points to pride that Texans have for their state's colorful history and the debts owed the pioneers and early settlers, and it also points up the need for increased public appreciation for the men and women who braved hardships to establish themselves as pioneers.

"The Scurry County Historical Commission and 253 other county commissions are working diligently and efficiently to preserve Texas' historic past," the proclamation reads. "The Scurry County Historical Commission, this year, is making a special effort to focus public attention upon the dramatic course of events in this county, highlighting the various elements of the state preservation program such as beautification of the approaches to areas surrounding historic sites and markers, locating and recording noteworthy landmarks, honoring pioneers and early settlers, involving youth in historic work and touring historical exhibits, sites and markers."

Rock Group Sets Stage On Fire

IOWA CITY (AP)- The 10,000 fans at a Doobie Brothers concert got a bit more excitement than they anticipated. The rock group set the stage on fire.

The Thursday night concert at the University of Iowa Fieldhouse featured a fireworks display. But when the sparklers went out, the curtains went up in smoke.

There were no injuries, and fire extinguishers were used to douse the flames.

The band played on.

HEALTH TIP from DEAN

Nine out of ten cases of hepatitis, the dangerous liver infection that follows blood transfusions, can be traced to use of 'commercial' blood, declares Dr. J.G. Allen of Stanford U. School of Medicine. This blood is from paid donors, frequently skid-row volunteers, prisoners and drug addicts. Dr. Allen advises the government either halt use of such blood or else label it as a 'high-risk' product. The public is well advised to secure blood for transfusions from quality donors.

Smith, Sexton Repeat Vows

Wedding vows were pledged by Miss Jana Sue Smith and Mr. Michael Thomas Sexton of Fort Worth, at 7 p.m., Saturday, April 16 in the Union United Methodist Church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. And Mrs. Bernarr W. Smith of Rt. 1, and Mr. John T. Sexton and Mrs. Alice Sexton of Fort Worth

The Rev. Wayland Dowden read the double ring ceremony before an altar arrangement of tree candelabra and baskets of yellow gladioli and daisies.

Miss Glenda Vaughn and Mrs. Jim Ray sang "Morning Has Broken," "I Take Thee, My Dear" and "Wedding Prayer," accompanied by Mrs. Ruben Vaughn, pianist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a pale green gown with candle light lace sleeves and trim. The tiered waist length veil of silk bouquet length veil of silk illusion was attached to a Juliet cap of matching lace. Her bridal bouquet was of yellow sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Harold Lewis of Austin, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, Miss Connie Sue Ray, cousin of the bride,was junior bridesmaid and Jennifer Marie Lewis of Austin, niece of the bride, was flower girl. They wore matching floor length dresses of calico print and carried nosegay bouquets of yellow daisies and baby's breath.

Best man was Mr. John T. Sexton of Fort Worth, father of the groom, junior groomsman was Charles Addington II of Lubbock. Lighting the candles and ushering were Mr. Bill Jackson of Snyder and Mr. John Hoover of Fort Worth.

A reception was held at the Union Community Center. The bride's table was covered with a yellow taffeta floor length cloth with lace overlay. Focal points of the table were a teired wedding cake complimented with candelabra. Silver and crystal appointments completed the setting. Mrs. Charles Addington of Lubbock, and Mrs. Troy Bentley of San Antonio, served at the bride's table. Mr. Charles Addington presented soft background of music.

Following a honeymoon to Colorado, the couple will be at home in Fort Worth.

Out-of-town guests were from Dallas, Arlington, Fort Worth, Breckenridge, Austin, Lubbock, San Antonio, Grand Prairie,Amarillo and Wichita Falls, Oklahoma City, Okla. and Albuquerque, N.M.

Couple Weds In Overton

MRS. MARK GILSTRAP

Billie Jo Lock of Mineola, became the bride of Mark Gilstrap of Longview, in the First Baptist Church at Overton, April 2, 7:30 p.m. Rev. Ray Williams, pastor of Missionary Baptist Church of Longview, performed the double ring ceremony.

The couple's parents are Mr. and Mrs. L.W. Gilstrap of Arp, and Mr. Billy Joe Lock of Mt. Enterprise. The bride was given in marriage by her father in a candlelight ceremony with a unity candle at the altar along with small candles in each window of the church. A kneeling bench was centered at the altar.

The bride wore an original wedding gown of imported silk organza with an empire style bodice covered with Venetian lace. The soft back fullness of the skirt fell into a circular train. An added softness was the full sleeves bonded at the wrist with a band of lace. Complimenting the gown was a headpiece of Venetian lace with three tiers of shoulder length bridal illusion. The traditional something old and something new was carried out. She carried a handkerchief her grandmother used in her wedding for something old. She wore a new wedding veil and gown and borrowed a diamond necklace from the bridesmaid.

Bride's flowers were a cascade of spring flowers and baby's breath carried on top of a white Bible.

Wedding music was provided by pianist, Sandy Thompson and organist, Mrs. T.R. Harrison with Bob Gilstrap, cousin of the groom singing "Wedding Song" and "Till".

Matron of honor was Mrs. Joy Larson of Houston wearing a long, light blue dress with a V-neckline and carrying a flower accented with streamers.

Flower girl, Angie Morgan of Arlington, wore a formal length, light blue dress with white lace around the collar with cap sleeves.

Bridesmaids, Mrs. Becky Rosson of Longview, and Miss Taffe Bradford of Dallas, each was wearing a dress fashioned after that of the matron of honor.

Serving as ringbearer was Jim Rosson of Longview. Lonnie Gilstrap of Arlington, brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Randy Levens of San Angelo, and Paul Jackson of Longview, cousin of the groom. Seating guests were Kenneth Lock of Mt. Enterprise, brother of the bride, and Tony Montanio of San Antonio.

A reception was held at the church following the ceremony. The bride's table held a three tiered cake topped with a miniature bride and groom along with five candles surrounded by attendants flowers. Charlotte Guynes attended this table. The groom's table was appointed with a silver coffee service and held a chocolate cake decorated with frosted fruit.

After the wedding trip to Dallas, the couple will reside at 1500 W. Fairmont No. 216, Longview. The bride chose for the trip a navy jumpsuit with a jacket ans wore a corsage from the wedding bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of Mt. Enterprise High and holds a BS in education from Stephen F. Austin and is employed by Mineola High School. The bridegroom is a graduate of Snyder High School and has a BS degree in education from Stephen F. Austin, and is employed by Longview High School where he is a high school varsity track coach.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were from San Angelo, Snyder, San Antonio, Houston, Gilmer, Dallas, Mt. Enterprise, Kilgore, Longview and Henderson

Rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L.W. Gilstrap in the fellowship hall of First Baptist Church. Colors of blue and white decorated the table.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The recent death of Paul Hodge of Houston deprives us of one of the most popular, expert players. Among his many national victories was the Chicago trophy in 1955 won with Ben Fain, George Heath and Oswald and James Jacoby.

This all Texas team win was Jim Jacoby's first major championship.

Here is one of Paul's hands that helped us materially. He opened the king of clubs against South's four-spade contract. George Heath followed with the deuce and Paul knew a shift was proper.

After considerable thought he shifted to the seven of hearts. East's queen fell to South's king. South drew trumps and led the king of diamonds. Paul was ready with his second fine play. He dropped his queen under the king.

This let George get in with the jack for the second defensive trick. A heart was led back and Paul's ace and 10 gave the defense the setting trick.

Ask the Jacobys

A Maine reader asks if we raise partner's 16-18 notrump to two with:

♠ A x x ♥ x x x ♦ K x x ♣ J x x x.

The answer is that we do not unless those x's happen to include at least one 10 and a couple of nines.

BANANA BARS

A friend of ours made these to utilize very ripe bananas and introduce her family to whole wheat cookies.

1 cup white flour
1 cup fine whole wheat flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup butter or margarine, at room temperature
2-3rds cup granulated sugar
2-3rds cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 egg
2½ ripe medium bananas, mashed
6-ounce package semi-sweet chocolate pieces

Stir together the flours, baking powder and salt. Cream the butter, sugars and vanilla; beat in egg and banana, then the flour mixture just until blended; stir in chocolate. Turn into a greased and lightly floured 13 by 9 by 2-inch baking pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean - 30 to 40 minutes. Cool in the pan on a rack. Cut in bars. Adapted from "The California Heritage Cookbook" by The Junior League of Pasadena (Doubleday).

Twenty-five members of Zeta Lambda Chapter of The Delta Kappa Gamma Society International answered roll call Monday night.

Hostesses were Billie Hartsfield, June McGlaun, Gerri Parker, and Margie McNair.

Nellie Smith opened the meeting with a meditation using "The Weaver", author unknown.

During the business meeting presided over by Helen Mock, president, it was announced that Zeta Lambda members were donating $125 to Jaycees and Jacee-ettes playground project.

Marge Mathis, chairman of the Professional Affairs Committee presented the program, a skit "Are You There, Bridey Murphy."

The skit depicted a group of Snyder School teachers who "might have lived in another era, a far away lifetime or may have lived different lives."

Joan of Arc, Amelia Earhart, Marie Curie, Cleopatra, Pearl Buck were portrayed by El Wanda Nall, Faye Cook, Johnnie Harber, Monette O'Day, Alta Nation, Carol Miller, and Helen Mock. A slide presentation accompanied the skit.

The program was concluded with the reading of a poem by Marge Mathis.

Butter, Cheese Production Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Butter and cheese production continues to run above a year ago, reflecting stepped up milk output.

The Agriculture Department said Friday that butter production in March was an estimated 98.4 million pounds. That was a two per cent increase from February and 10 per cent more than turned out in March of last year.

Total cheese production, at 299 million pounds, gained 18 per cent from February and nine pe cent from March, 1976.

PRIVACY RIGHTS QUESTIONED

Big Brother Is Watching You

Editor's Note: Nineteen eighty-four is still seven years away, but Big Brother is watching you already. How much can he see? The following condensation of a series that appeared in the St. Paul Minn. Dispatch and Pioneer Press looks at the government's records on its citizens.

By ANN BAKER
and
JOHN FINNEGAN JR.

The government information machine has a record on you.

Not just an average citizen, you probably appear in 10 to 20 federal files, according to the Office of Management and Budget OMB.

You also probably appear in state and local government files. How many depends on where you live.

Even a partial list of government records includes: birth, marriage, death, education, driver's license, public hospital, Medicare, military, veterans' benefits, civil service, land ownership, taxation, Social Security, welfare which accounts for 10 per cent of all government records, unemployment compensation, crime, courts, passports, FHA loans and on and on.

And none of this includes information that private industry has on you: credit, bank, insurance and personnel records, for example

The federal government runs more than 8,000 separate record systems, 6,000 computerized. And the computers process information at the speed of 100 million calculations per second.

Finding out what information the government has on you can be difficult. Government agencies are required to print a list of their record systems in the Federal Register. But is is up to you to guess which of the more than 8,000 listings contains information about you then file a request with the responsible agency.

The society runs on information. Without it, decisions could not be made properly. Intelligent planning would be impossible. Society as we know it would fall apart. We need information to survive.

But how much does the government need to know about you? What kind of information? How is it used? What are the hazards?

Only in the past few years have lawmakers started raising those questions and, in some cases, pushing for laws to ensure an individual's right to privacy.

The legislators have found that false information, biased information, half-truths, innuendo and odd snips of information that paint a distorted picture of you can whirl around the computers forever and you might never know it.

The information in the records may be true. But such data on a written or computerized file can be and sometimes is regarded as the whole truth about you. It conveys the impression of being formal, official and important.

Government agencies and departments tend not to question information they receive from one another.

Of 858 federal data banks studied by the Senate Constitutional Rights subcommittee from 1970 to 1974, nearly three-fourths were found to pick up a majority of their information from other data banks. Only 8 per cent refused to give their data to other systems.

Some agencies like Internal Revenue and Selective Service, pledged to confidentiality, then went ahead and passed information to other agencies, according to testimony before a Senate committee in 1974.

It was found that fewer than one-third of those 858 data banks notified people that information about them was being collected.

Law enforcement agencies traditionally have opened their criminal history files to certain employers and private detectives. Ten per cent of those records are thought to contain false information.

Social work agencies have done the same for one another, often swapping notes over the phone with schools and probation offices too.

Typically, such sharing is said to be "for the client's own good." Typically, the client knows nothing about it.

Information is gathered by government to help you, police you or for no apparent reason at all. Many subjects of intelligence files, in particular, find it hard to swallow assurances that nobody is "out to get them," whether to enhance personal prestige, secure a political position or stifle dissent.

Exactly what is the right ot privacy?

"The word 'privacy' may be a misnomer," said Louis Higgs, deputy executive director of the national Privacy Protection Study Commission. "Once you've collected information about someone, his right to be let alone is rendered moot."

Higgs said that if we accept the idea that government has a right to collect information to adminsiter legitimate social programs, "then the privacy issue becomes one of record-keeper responsibility."

Elliot Richardson, former secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, told a congressional committee: "The objective should not be to assure that the individual is let alone, but rather to assure that he can participate in determining how he will be affected by records."

Concern over the government records surfaced during the past decade through two chains of events.

The first was a series of concerted efforts by government bureaucrats to computerize all their information on citizens in one huge central data bank. The second was the story of military and law enforcement agencies' spying on peace and civil rights activists.

The central computer plan came to light in 1965, when the Social Science Research Council urged Congress to have the Bureau of the Budget establish a national data center to improve government efficiency and promote research.

But as congressional hearings revealed, the central information system contained few privacy safeguards. Though the information was supposed to be assembled for statistical purposes only, it would have been possible to trace the identity of citizens. The proposal was abondoned in a storm of public and congressional criticism.

The federal government did not totally give up plans to centralize record-keeping, however. The General Services Administration (GSA), in 1974, planned to link all of the federal government's computers with a $200 million message-switching program dubbed "FEDNET."

It would have allowed a lot of small computers to act like one big one. Each government agency could have had easy access to another's information. A GSA employe blew the whistle and Congress cut off funding.

The picture of government spying started emerging in 1970. On Dec. 1, Richard Kasson said in an NBC television news broadcast that he had worked as spy for the U.S. Army's 113th Military Intelligence Group stationed at Ft. Snelling, Minn.

He said he helped compile a secret card file on 5,000 to 8,000 Minneapolis-St. Paul residents, many of whom opposed the war in Vietnam. Kasson said later that he worked closely with University of Minnesota police and record keepers and regularly obtained the files of students and faculty members.

Subsequent hearings by U.S. Sen. Sam Ervin's subcommittee on constitutional rights showed that what military intelligence was doing in Minnesota was only the tip of the iceberg.

Information on hundreds of thousands of Americans in many cities was collected and forwarded to Military Intelligence Command headquarters at Ft. Holabird, Md. Ervin's subcommittee was never able to determine exactly why the information was being gathered.

Later, during the Watergate scandal, it was revealed that the President himself had compiled a list of people whom he considered his personal political enemies. The plan was to mobilize the full power of the government information machine to destroy the integrity and credibility of the people on the list.

Congress had already passed two laws dealing with the vast store of information collected by the government, acting following the U.S. Senate's 1964-66 hearings on electronic surveillance and wiretapping.

Yarbrough Says Job Fascinating

AUSTIN (AP)-Regardless of his troubles and he has many- Don Yarbrough says being on the Texas Supreme Court bench is "exhilarating."

"Absolutely fascinating," Yarbrough said of his new job. In an exclusive interview with The Associated Press he said...

"I've never had a job which was really any more challenging to me."

He faced similar challenge, he said, when he took over a bank in Victoria"30 days from being closed by the FDIC."

"But this thing here is just unbelievable... You feel like you're in the cockpit of a 747 airplane. To me, it pushes all of my buttons that need to be pushed.

"There's a strain of patriotism associated with it, a satisfaction that comes from it of knowing that you really have done something," he said.

He has written only one important opinion so far, a dissent in a congressional election contest that he thinks will help the loser to press his suit in the Us. Supreme Court. But other opinions are awaiting his pen.

Yarbrough says he commands a position from which he can contribute to the system that permitted him to rise from the obscurity and poverty of a rural Dallas County Community.

"I didn't have hot running water until I was a junior in high school," he said,"and we didn't have a commode that would flush until I was a junior in college. You talk about deprivation, we had it."

"Without the benefit of family, without the benefit of connections, without the benefit of all these things," he created a financial empire that allowed him to control $25 million in assets three years ago.

All of that is gone now, wiped out by enough troubles to rival those of the Biblical Job.

But he has had two stars to follow. At the same time one star sank with the filing of at least 16 civil suits against him, the other star rose with his victory in a race for a seat on the state's highest bench-a victory attributed by many to the similarity of his name to that of Don Yarborough, another Houston lawyer who ran unsuccessfully for governor in 1960s.

He lost one of those suits last June to Rex Coper and Douglas Gord, who claimed Yarbrough defrauded them in a bank deal. Yarbrough has appealed their $116,406 judgment.

It wasn't really fraud, he contends.

"In order to have fraud, you've got to have five or six different elements. You have to have specifically four. Now the jury found three of those elements,but they did not find the fourth element,"he said.

What was the fourth element?

"That's the element of damages," he said.

Face Lifts CAN Be Tax Deducted

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N Y News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I know you're not a tax expert, but I understand that you consult top authorities in all fields, so I'm writing to you.

I am a 59-year-old woman, and believe me, I look every day of it—and then some. My husband recently died after a terrible 18-month illness, and all that weeping and grieving put years on my face.

I'm sure a facelift would not only improve my appearance, but do wonders for my morale, so I've decided to get one. A friend who had one four years ago tells me that a facelife is NOT a tax deductible medical expense. Another friend who recently had one tells me that it is! Is it or isn't it?

WRINKLED IN NEW YORK

P.S. Have you ever had a facelift, Abby?

DEAR WRINKLED: No, I never have, but when I think I need one, I'll certainly give it serious consideration.

And now, I have some good news for you: A new wrinkle concerning getting rid of the old ones developed last year. The I.R.S. ruled that the cost of cosmetic surgery is a legitimate deductible medical expense. Women (and men, too) can now get a complete facelift—chin, neck, jowls, under the eyes, the eyelids—the works—and it's tax deductible!

I am indebted to my good friend, Sylvia Porter, for this up-to-date information. And if you don't own a copy of her MONEY BOOK, get one. It can save you a small fortune.

DEAR ABBY: If an American man marries a European woman, does she automatically become an American citizen? Answer in your column as soon as possible as a very important decision is predicated on your reply.

DON'T SIGN THIS

DEAR DON'T: No one "automatically" becomes an American citizen by marrying an American. There is a three-year waiting period. Then tests must be taken. If the tests are passed, the person must then be "sworn in."

DEAR ABBY: You may not understand how I feel, Abby, but I'm sure your divorced readers will.

Seven years ago, after 40 years of marriage, my husband left me and married another woman.

I see him from time to time, and I still care for him.

Lately when I receive my alimony check, it is sent in an envelope with a return address sticker reading, "MR. AND MRS. ———."

Abby, when I take that envelope out of my mailbox, it's like a slap in the face. It's bad enough to know that another woman is using the name I so proudly used for 40 years without seeing it in print. Do you think he's doing it to deliberately hurt me, or is he just thoughtless and insensitive?

Should I ask my "ex" to please not use those stickers? Or would that be childish of me?

HURT AT 69

DEAR HURT: There's nothing childish about wanting to avoid pain. He's probably just thoughtless. Mention it to him.

A CLASS IN RELAXATION THERAPY
IS BEING FORMED

Many times we create physical and emotional problems for ourselves by "uptight" living—a lifestyle that keeps us from relaxing sufficiently to allow our own resources to keep us in a restful, healthy state. It is not necessary to continue to live with high blood pressure, hyperacidity, shortness of temper and other related manifestations of uptight living, for simple techniques of relaxation can be learned, and with practice, put into operation in daily living. This new program is designed to communicate to both men and women methods and exercises which can make a dramatic difference in the way you feel and function day by day.

THE FOUR STEP PROGRAM INVOLVES:

I. Simple Exercises to gain muscle control and flexibility—a beginning step in relaxation.

II Total Breathing exercises to improve oxygenation and stamina.

III. Relaxation Techniques and practice. Deeper relaxation than most people experience even during sleep. Can help control hypertension, hyperacidity, general "uptightness" and related problems.

IV. Meditation Techniques. To enhance the relaxation process and to gain dynamic access to body functions normally beyond conscious control. Controlled thinking for positive mental, physical and spiritual development.

CLASSES WILL MEET FROM 7:30-8:30 PM ON TUESDAYS AND THURSDAYS, BEGINNING MAY 3RD.

Registration will be from 2-5 P.M. Sunday May 1st at the Western Texas College Gym. There will be no registration by phone or mail. Interested persons may call 573-8619 between 5:30 and 8:30 P.M. for more information.

Insure your property against flood damage for as little as 25¢ per $100 of protection.

If you live in a designated flood-prone area, your single family home can be protected against flood damage from $35,000 up to $70,000 for a reasonable cost.

Most other private and public buildings and their contents can be insured at comparably reasonable rates.

This is possible under the National Flood Insurance Program, a joint undertaking of the federal government and the insurance industry.

Floods can happen at any time, causing untold amounts of damage. Causes range from Spring runoff to Summer storms to Autumn hurricanes.

So be prepared. Check with your local property/casualty insurance agent. Find out if your area is eligible for the federal flood insurance program.

If so, apply for your flood insurance now. Because there's a mandatory 15-day waiting period before it goes into effect.

Don't let your future be swept away.

positive plan needed

In attempting to be fair to President Carter and his energy program, we have concluded that we can agree with him on only one point.

Americans waste far too much fuel or energy and that is of course the end product of a nation that has grown up not lacking or wanting for anything. For this attitude, we have only the federal government to thank since there has long been an underlying current for the government to provide for the needs of any "downtrodden" citizen.

Another blame for waste is government regulation that has made oil and gas one of the cheapest commoties on the market. Conservation has been practiced simply because it has been cheap when compared to other items we buy.

Government controls have made oil and gas cheaper than it should be and we made note of the fact that Congress gave the President his only applause of the evening when he said that he did not favor deregulation of natural gas.

Industry, unshackled and operating under the free enterprise system, has always before, in time of national emergency, been able to solve whatever problems and to come up with a needed solution. We think the petroleum industry can do it--if the federal government will only give it a chance.

The President failed to include anything in his energy message that would spur additional search for new petroleum reserves, nothing to remove price controls from "old" oil or interstate gas, but there was plenty of talk calling for more taxes and distribution of Texas gas to those states who need it.

Somewhere, the non-producing states have been successful in their program to convince folks that oil and gas are part of the public domain. That is nothing more than sheer socialism!

In addition to conservation, the oil and gas industry needs the encouragement to move ahead on enhanced secondary recovery of proven reserves, in development of additional reserves in the northeast, on offshore Eastern seaboard and on the North Slope.

The overall plan, as proposed, would raise taxes and increase prices. That's negative, and we need a positive program that includes incentives for oilmen to solve the problem.

harmony weakening

A limited amount of uncertainty follows a change in national administrations. Whether there has been more or less than normal during the first four months of the Carter stay in office is impossible to say.

But the harmony we had been led to expect as Democrats replaced Republicans in executive position, and took over a few more seats in the already heavily non-Republican Congress, is showing signs of weakening under pressure of recent events.

First indication of discord developed when President Carter suddenly decided to withdraw from further consideration his plan for passing out $50 bills to all Americans of voting age.

The recommendation was strongly emphasized during the campaign and became first of the list of things the new administration would be doing to create more jobs. House leaders responded quickly and rushed the measure to an overwhelming approval. The man in the White House made them look a trifle foolish when he capitulated to increasing popular opposition and a balky Senate.

Another priority went by the boards when devotion to human rights around the world came into question by White House approval of a drive to let bygones be bygones in relations with the Castro regime in Cuba. Of all the enemies of human rights on the current international scene Fidel Castro is most conspicuous. He is not only Soviet Russia's hatchetman in the Western hemisphere but has assumed leadership of anti-democratic forces in Africa.

These developments added to such worries as what to do about the Panama Canal, the energy crisis and an ambassador to United Nations who has developed into something of a genius when it comes to saying the wrong things at the precise moment when they will be most embarrassing, are sufficient evidence to support a conclusion that conditions and human nature haven't undergone noticeable change.

Most obvious need at this particular moment is consultation before, rather than after, decisions on national policy are made. Regardless of what critics say executive effectiveness is measured by the degree of rapport between power centers at opposite ends of Washington's Pennsylvania Avenue.

hit-and-run ads

With TV ads costing more and more, advertisers are trying to sell more products in fewer seconds.

At least one Chicago ad agency, J. Walter Thompson, is experimenting with three-second commercials.

They figure a product name can thus be engraved on your subconscious.

Any "hit and run" is irresponsibility that is going to invite increasing government censorship which none of us wants.

Cynical critics of contemporary advertising call it "brainwashing," with the victim ultimately paying for his own seduction.

When advertising claims are misrepresented--or when without any courtship you are hit between the eyes by some trade name which makes no effort to justify its intrusion--that's not seduction, that's rape!

If a product deserves a place in your life, in your home or in your garage, it should be willing to argue its case plausibly.

At the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School of Business they conducted an experiment.

Two hundred fifty regular beer drinkers were invited to taste and evaluate the name brands.

Each selected a favorite. Most found at least one of the brands "tasted horrible."

Then it was revealed that the bottles had been purposely mislabeled.

In all those bottles, with all those labels, the beer was identical.

One of the "experts" had insisted, "I cannot only taste the difference; I can smell it!"

So if the sellers of beer resort to such noncommittal phrases as "a billion sparkling bubbles racing to refresh you..."

That's all right.

But Wonder Bread helping children to "grow 12 ways" really ought to be required to prove it.

As FTC Chairman Lewis Engman said, "Advertisers need to provide more pertinent information in their ads."

And the implied threat is entirely justified.

In the insurance industry we resent and resist the sometimes capricious and arbitrary dictates coming from state insurance examiners, yet to remember the disgraceful contracts and exaggerated claims which invited this increased scrutiny must make us blush.

With self-discipline, our advertising industry is useful and beneficial to us all.

Advertising promotes competition.

By raising our level of longing it raises our level of living.

For us to resort to tricks or covert deception is both unbecoming and unnecessary.

my turn...

by roy mcqueen, publisher

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Another sign of middle age is when the phone rings on Saturday night and you hope it's not for you."

A columnist in the Dallas Times Herald recently penned an article about the virtues of small-town shopping. Dick Hitt tells of a weekend jaunt to see the azaleas and dogwood, and he discovered that shopping can be different away from the Metroplex.

Seems he decided to buy his son a pair of tennis shoes while in Athens and made a series of discoveries about the "eccentric way people shop there."

"They do it completely different from many parts of the bustling Metroplex. First, you pick out the store you want, and do a thing called 'park right in front of the store.' Then you walk right into the store and something happens to you that is being called 'being waited on.'

"Things got really eerie when the clerk accepted a credit card without calling the home office, looking through a volume of stolen numbers or even asking for a driver's license or birth certificate. We didn't wait 30 minutes for the sales entry to be made and for the shoes to be put into a bag.

"I found this primitive system so fascinating that derned if I didn't go back to town later and buy myself a shirt at a men's store. Parked in front again, walked in, got waited on, and was allowed to pick out a shirt without being offered a vest, jacket, pants and tie to go with it. The owner thanked me for coming in and handed back the credit card without fingerprinting me.

"Back in Dallas, I bought a throwaway fine-tip writing pen. The clerk said, 'That will be uh...' he punched nine buttons on an electronic console cash register, which went kerrickkk, nuclop, reeep reeep, poong, poong ticka hreesh chronk...' sixty-two cents,' he said.

"Machines make all that noise for sixty-two cents? I asked him.

"Yeah, but there's a lot of information has to go in there." he said. "It's for our records y'know."

Whether Athens or Snyder, there are rewards in shopping with home town folks.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — There is something hauntingly familiar about the pattern of Jimmy Carter's triumphs and tribulations in his first hundred days as president. Could it be that we have seen this show before?

Indeed we have. Although the similarities have been largely obscured by time and the distorting fog of sentiment, Carter's performance to date bears a striking resemblance to that of John F. Kennedy at the same point in his brief administration.

Kennedy and Carter, as it happens, are the only Democrats since FDR to win the White House on their own, rather than inheriting it. Both were narrowly elected following eight years of Republican rule. Both ran independently of the regular Democratic party apparatus. campaigned on promises to revive a stagnant economy at home and sagging American prestige abroad.

Like Kennedy, Carter has used his first three months in office to solidify and broaden his popularity with the voters. Like Kennedy, he has relied heavily on symbolic gestures and personal style to capture public affection. And like Kennedy, he has achieved a steady gain in the public opinion polls. His latest approval rating is 72 per cent — precisely the same as Kennedy's at a comparable period.

Carter's principal weakness was also Kennedy's: an inability to translate personal popularity into congressional support for his specific legislative proposals.

At the end of his first hundred days, Kennedy had managed to get only four pieces of legislation through a Congress even more heavily Democratic than the one Carter must deal with: temporary unemployment aid, a feed grains program, extension of the Sugar Act, and a revival of lapsed authority for government reorganization.

The Carter record on Capitol Hill? Virtually identical. At this writing, only four Carter bills have been signed into law: an emergency natural gas measure, emergency drought legislation, repeal of the Byrd amendment which had permitted U.S. imports of Rhodesian chrome in violation of UN sanctions, and — how little things change — renewed authority for government reorganization.

Kennedy suffered an early humiliating foreign policy setback with the calamitous Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba; Carter saw the SALT talks collapse as the Russians angrily rejected his first major foreign policy offering. Yet neither president experienced any loss of prestige or popular support at home.

For Carter, as for Kennedy, the true tests of leadership still lie ahead. It remains too early for a definitive judgment of this administration.

Thus far, Carter's substantive accomplishments do not begin to equal the changes he has wrought in the public mood. The faint stirrings of hope he has inspired that THIS president can actually make a difference will quickly curdle into even deeper voter disillusionment unless Carter succeeds in making Congress his "partner" in reality as well as rhetoric as he presses his sweeping new energy policy, tax and welfare reform, government reorganization and other promised programs.

In the words of Kennedy's inaugural address, none of this will be finished in the first hundred days, nor the first thousand days. And indeed, there is no reason to expect such speed in this era.

No president before or since has ever approached the astonishing record of FDR's first hundred days, for the simple reason that the nation has never so desperately needed the kind of leadership Roosevelt provided in the depths of the Depression when he convinced a panic-stricken people that we truly had nothing to fear but fear itself.

INTRODUCTION

If my wife and I can learn to understand each other better, then our chances of happiness are increased by that much.

In the last two articles, we have been thinking about how we communicate. We have thought of ourselves as communication devices, and have compared ourselves to transmitters and receivers. We have noticed that for communication to take place, the transmitter must be in working order and turned on, and that the same is true for the receiver.

STATIC

There is a third element in communication that we need to consider: Whatever is between the transmitter and receiver. This too, can help or impair communication. If you call me on the telephone, your voice must pass through a great deal of wire, machinery and electronic apparatus. If a wire is down, or something is wrong with the switchboard, then we will have no communication. If you turn on your radio or TV set, much of your reception depends on the atmospheric conditions between the transmitter and your receiver. In a similar way, a lot of the communication between husband and wife is strongly affected by what is going on around them.

"I CAN'T HEAR YOU"

Some things are almost obvious. "You know I can't hear you when the shower is running," is the name of a play that points to an all too frequent communication breakdown. In the play, the effects are hilarious. In real life, we describe it differently. "But I did tell you that the Internal Revenue man had called. Don't you remember, you came out of the shower and used the red towel that Aunt Doris gave you." This while he is holding the summons.

If Jim has to leave the house in three minutes, Joan is being unfair to him if she chooses that moment to ask him what he thinks about her looking for a job. This is saying something, and then dodging behind a wall of static.

HUMAN ATTENTION

A certain amount of static is inevitable in the communication between husband and wife. The most intimate and effective conversation can instantly be brought to a halt by the wail of a crying baby, for instance. Human beings are more than communication devices, and because of this versatility, we pay the price in interruptions. It is well that this is so, because the TV set will keep on playing even while the house is burning.

HELP

The problem with static is to notice it, talk about it, and work out what to do about it each time it happens "I can't hear you when I am in the shower or brushing my teeth with the electric toothbrush," is something that may need to be said over and over, "especially when you are in the kitchen cleaning the oven!" Talking it over is essential, it is often difficult for the transmitter to discover whether the message is getting through to the receiver.

One curious thing: I have noticed that when the man of the house begins to pray about what is happening between himself and his wife, the problems between them begin to diminish, and the relationship begins to heal. I have noticed that when the wife prays by herself, the same thing happens, but more slowly. If they both begin to pray together about their relationship, their communication problems seem to evaporate.

It helps communication when there is a third party present who loves both equally, whose interest is to help the two love each other more. It also helps when this third party knows a great deal about both of them. By bringing in a competent counselor, the couple can make the atmosphere for communication the most favorable possible.

Clean Air Week Important

AUSTIN, (AP)- It is more important than ever that Texans celebrate the week of May 1-7 as Clean Air Week in Texas, says Charles R. Barden, executive director of the Texas Air control Board.

"Now, especially, is the time when everyone must realize the importance of the damaging effects of air pollution, when our nation is being called on to sacrifice in order to conserve our depleted energy resources," said Barden in a statement.

"This must be a unified effort if Texas and the nation are to succeed. This means that cleaning up the air is not just the job of the Texas Air Control Board, it is also the responsibility of everyone that is willing to help, including industry, educators and private citizens.

API BOOK DEALS WITH TEN

Alternative Energy Sources Costly

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP)— Hundreds of private companies as well as the federal government are searching for alternative energy sources to supplement dwindling oil and gas supplies.

Some of the studies have been under way for decades. Others are relatively new.

All, however, have a common problem-high costs.

The American Petroleum Institute has just released a series of booklets dealing with 10 alternative sources that may help the nation meet its future energy needs.

The booklets were designed to provide a ready refcerence of the potential and the problems faced by each of the supplemental fuels-coal, gas from coal, oil from coal, oil shale, tar sands, geothermal, nuclear, solar, tide and ocean, and wind.

Economically recoverable coal reserves are estimated to be in the 250-300 billion ton range. The Institute says such reserves coul last at least 300 years compared with the present domestic oil and natural gas proved reserves that are estimated at only about 11 times current annual production.

"The most serious problem facing the coal industry is adequate capitalization," the coal booklet states. "Doubling coal production by 1985 will cost from $18-$20 billion in current dollars, according to both government and private estimates. The entire coal industry today, and there are some 700 companies in the United States, is capitalized at only slightly more than $4 billion."

The booklet states the nation's options are few.

"We can continue to import oil from unreliable foreign sources and live with the threat of another, and potentially more devastating, oil embargo. Or we can look upon coal as a significant contribution to our energy supplies and encourage many more companies of all kinds to help develop our vast coal reserves."

Five experimental processes for producing pipeline quality synthetic natural gas from coal have been developed beyond the laboratory stage, but the cost is said to be more than double that of current uncontrolled intrastate gas prices and three or four times the controlled prices of interstate sales.

The Institute reports synthetic gas technology could be proven by the mid-1980s, adding that "only the economics will remain in doubt.

Motor fuel derived from coal helped Hitler fuel tanks and planes in World War II but technical and economic estimates for 20 coal liquefaction plants around the world indicate such oil from a United States such oil from a United States plant would have to sell for $20 to $25 a barrel.

"To build enough coal liquefaction plants to replace 10 per cent of current petroleum consumption in the United States would cost an estimated $34 billion, based on today's technological processes."

Oil Shale—the largest deposits in Colorado, Utah, and Wyoming have been estimated to hold about 600 billion barrels of crude oil but large scale conversion is not yet practical. One study indicates $15 billion would be needed through 1990 to achieve a shale oil capacity of 1.5 million barrels a day.

Tar sands—Utah deposits are believed to hold 25 billion barrels of oil Canada 600 billion. It has been estimated, however, every barrel of daily production would require a $20,000 in vestment compared with $6,000 a barrel for north sea oil and $250 in the Middle East.

Geothermal—The geysers field in California is supplying the electrical needs of a typical city of 500,000 people but the operator estimates a $10 billion capital investment would be required to overcome cost problems and provide just five per cent of current national electrical capacity.

Nuclear—A federal report shows that nuclear fuel costs could nearly triple before becoming as expensive as using oil to generate electricity. But other studies indicate between $13 billion and $22 billion will be needed through 1990 for the uranium fuel cycle alone and from $169 billion to $379 billion will be needed for generating plants and transmission and distribution facilities.

Solar—A solar cell capable of producing one watt of electricity is said to currently sell for about $15.50 compared with only 50 cents needed to be competitive with conventional energy. "The costs are high, but they are coming down. And the costs of conventional energy are continuing to rise."

Tide and Ocean—"It will be a number of years before any of the proposed tidal and ocean energy systems become practical, from wither an economic or technical standpoint."

Wind—A federal study indicates hundreds of thousands of the largest wind turbines presently conceived would be needed to produce 20 per cent of today's power needs.

Dinner Honors Alfords

Mr. and Mrs. Quebe Alford, 2203 43rd St., were honored at a retirement dinner by Continental Oil Co. recently at the Dora Roberts Community Center in Big Spring.

Alford was employed by Continental in 1936. He has been located in the West Texas area since that time, having lived in Iraan, McCamey, Big Lake, Ozona and Odessa.

Among gifts presented to Alford were a color television and a 40-year service tie clasp set with rubies and diamonds. Alford also received a sterling charm bracelet, complete with an engraved charm signifying the date of his retirement.

Out-of-town guests attending include the Alfords' daughters, Darlyne Neubauer, Lana Manning, son-in-law and granddaughter, Keith and Heather Kay Manning, all of Dallas; Mrs. Evelyn Haynie, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Haynie, San Angelo; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Haynie and daughter Connie, Fort Worth. Their daughter Beverly was unable to attend but called from Dawson Creek, B.C., Canada.

Alford retired officially on Saturday, April 30, as a drilling foreman. He and Mrs. Alford will continue to make their home in Snyder where they have resided for the past six years.

Man Snarled In Red Tape

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)- Norman Kopp ran into procedural red tape when he tried to renounce his citizenship to demonstrate his anger with women's liberation and Family Court treatment of men.

The 52-year-old divorced father of four said Thursday he was told at Federal Court that he had to renounce his citizenship in the presence of an American in a foreign country.

But before he makes a trip to Canada, Kopp says he wants to make sure the action will not jeopardize his job as a truck driver.

Kopp, founder of a local men's rights group, denied he was seeking publicity and said he would go through with his plan.

Kopp said he hoped more American men would renounce their citizenship to protest what he called discrimination against men.

According to Moslem tradition, it was the banana, not the apple, that was the forbidden fruit in the Garden of Eden.

Chill of tobacco

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can you tell me if there are any conclusive studies on how much smoking constricts the blood vessels and how much this contributes to feeling cold? Is the total body circulation affected? My husband is a heavy smoker — I would guess about two packs a day. He is 55, weighs about 155 and is 5 feet 6.

He has been physically active all of his life, playing much handball in his teens and doing a lot of walking in his work-a-day life. Now he has begun to play racketball three times a week. We eat a well balanced diet. He is never sick.

He has begun to complain of the cold terribly and last winter here in Wisconsin it was very cold. We were thinking of trying cross-country skiing but his hands and feet just turn to ice at the first exposure.

He did take off about 30 pounds at the doctor's request about four years ago, through a routine exam, and was told to stop smoking but this is just as bad as ever. Perhaps hearing some facts from you about how he is squeezing the life out of himself may open his eyes.

DEAR READER — People respond differently but one of the old tests for sensitivity to tobacco was to measure the skin temperature. Sensitive people would have a drop in temperature of the skin over the fingers after smoking a cigarette. The temperature drop was caused by the constriction of the arteries controlling blood flow to the skin.

Your husband should know that heavy smoking will increase his chances of having a heart attack or dropping dead about three times what it would be if he didn't smoke. In his middle 50s, as an American male he is already a prime candidate for such disorders. He would really do himself a big favor to eliminate such a risk. After all, the first symptom many people have of a heart attack is dropping dead and it is a little late to change one's habits then.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-6, Tobacco; Cigarettes, Cigars, Pipes. It will give you more information that your husband needs. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. I'd like to add that if he is strong enough to quit smoking he should not take up cigars or pipes. Too often a former cigarette smoker will inhale cigar or pipe smoke. When that happens the former cigarette smoker gets more nicotine, carbon monoxide and tars than before. This can make matters worse.

In the past year there has been some encouragement to smokers to use low tar brands as opposed to trying to quit smoking. It helps some but the suggestion is a bit like recommending taking less cyanide poisoning. To reverse the changes in the cells inside the lungs a person needs to abstain from tobacco entirely. These are the changes that lead to lung cancer, the leading cause of cancer deaths in men. Also people who have a genuine sensitivity to tobacco will not get the benefits they need, and should get, by stopping smoking entirely.

Your husband should know that the benefits from smoking can start the day he stops. The risk of sudden death and heart attacks drops at once to the level of a nonsmoker. The changes in the lungs take longer.

There are other factors that can cause a person to feel cold or have unusual sensitivity to cold but a good place to start controlling any of these problems is by stopping smoking.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is there any way to treat nerve deafness with success? Do the very wealthy just put up with it and never find anything to help them? I'm not in this class but would be glad to spend some money if I could get some real help.

I have had hearing tests at the hearing clinic and they tell me I have hearing loss from perve deafness but they don't offer me anything for it. They just say if I can't get along this way to return before getting any hearing device.

My family doctor said the reason they didn't do anything was because hearing aids are expensive and many of them are no good and don't provide any real help.

I'm 83 and in good health otherwise, but am quite unhappy with this hearing problem. Our present minister has a rather high, thin voice. I have no trouble with TV programs and don't turn them up extremely high. Very soft, thin voices and whispering are not for me. I can hear the birds and most outdoor sounds.

There are others who are troubled like me and a lot of folks would appreciate your comments. Some say they have found a device which helps them and others say they are no good.

DEAR READER — You would probably be hard to fit with a hearing aid that would really help you. Your story tells me that you have a problem in "recruitment." That means that low-pitched tones are amplified by your ear and the high thin tones are diminished.

A simple amplification of all sounds wouldn't work because the lower tones would be distorted and cause you trouble in distinguishing sounds.

As you point out you can hear TV and other sounds. If you had the same amount of loss for all tones then a device that would just amplify sounds would help but that is not the case.

There are aids that amplify the high tones and do not amplify the low tones but these are expensive and difficult to match to the variations in tone loss and tone distortion associated with your type of deafness.

Your friends who have devices that work for them probably have a decrease in hearing at all pitches of sound and simple amplification works for them but not for others with a mixed hearing loss.

Your hearing clinic has given you good advice. When your condition bothers you too much then just ask them to see if they can fit you with a special model that will help with your particular loss of high soft tones.

Many people do waste money on hearing aids that are promised to provide miracles. Some of these do work but too often the person doesn't get the help he needs as well as losing money. The best advice I can give people with hearing problems is to let a professional test their hearing and decide what is needed — an operation, a hearing aid, if so, what kind, or if none of these will be helpful.

There are a number of changes that affect people as they grow older — hearing loss, arthritis and others. Some can be delayed, others helped. Those who want information on osteoarthritis, also called degenerative arthritis, can send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 4-10. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York NY 10019.

Top College Fad Is Photocopying Faces

EDITOR'S NOTE—With the advent of the computer, college kids complained of being just another number on campus. Now they're doing a number on the computer. Programming it to copy faces. It's one of several sedentary fads in a so-so year for such shenanigans.

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The computer has finally taken over. The top college fad of spring - and of winter, and of fall before that - is photocopying faces.

Huh?

Oh, for those halycon days of streaking, goldfish swallowing and cozy Mazola parties. And remember putting sharks in that Fort Lauderdale motel pool? Even crowding telephone booths beats imitating IBM.

Now, yawn, until something better comes along, students at Idaho State University in Pocatello give their photos to their buddies in computer science and get an 8½ by 11 portrait drawn with 0's and 1's. That's in binary, language, of course.

In Michigan, the students are even arguing over who thought of this ho-hum fad first.

California, of course, pooh-poohed the whole idea since it didn't originate there.

University of Southern California junior Dorothy Reinhold allowed as how she had heard of it. But she quickly added that it was only being done by "a couple weirdos."

While not exactly the merry pranksters of yesteryear, some isolated odd ball fads are around.

At the University of Toledo, it is chic to strut to class with a walking stick. At Yale, they are throwing laughing gas parties. No pot, no alcohol, just happiness in sharing a tank of NO2.

At Washington State University, they chomp "Pop Rocks" candy, which "crackles in your mouth," when combined with saliva.

Oh well, anything for a good laugh.

At Western Kentucky University, students wear farmer caps or carpenter hats. These in addition to jogging suits, which are replacing blue jeans as the de regeur outfit.

Students at Stanford University are in to how to rub someone the right way, so to speak. A campus counseling center is offering a non credit workshop on the art of massage. And if the masseuse feels more comfy working in the nude, so be it. But a stern warning goes with that. Students must refrain from "any overt sexual expression."

David Krajicek, editor of Nebraska-Omaha's "Gateway" student newspaper, says he hears a fad in abusing the English language. "People are using too many words to say something. Edwin Newman has been noticing it for a long time, but I guess it just arrived here."

Other than that, it's Frisbees, skateboards and some note of seriousness. Or, as Tom Lowery, a sophomore at Claremont College in California, put it: "People are just more worried about the future and are more into studying than before. I'm afraid that aside from the normal drugs and sex, nothing unusual is happening here."

Provincetown Is Subject Of Exhibit

Syracuse, N.Y. (AP)- The art colony at Provincetown is the subject of a new exhibition at the Everson Museum. It deals with artists, who, since the founding of the Cape Cod School of Art by Charles Hawthorne in 1899, have been drawn to the area.

"Provincetown: A Painters' Place," traces the development of American art from impressionism, cubism and realism to modern abstract and figurative art. The exhibition, made possible by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, will last through June 26.

Jarrell Heads Beef Taskforce

John Jarrell, has been appointed Scurry County chairman for the Beef Development Taskforce (BDT)

A national organization of cattle producers, the BDT has proposed a Beef Market Development Program to promote the industry through increased consumer education, research and foreign market development.

The Taskforce hopes to raise $30 to $40 million per year for the program. More than 80 cattle organizations have endorsed it. Cattle producers will register and vote on the program this spring.

As BDT county chairman, Jarrell will be organizing campaign efforts throughout the county, and he will be holding producer meetings to discuss the upcoming Beef Research and Information referendum.

"We want to make certain that every cattle producer in the county understands how much he personally stands to gain from the Beef Market Development Program," Jarrell said.

He said the beef industry needs to do more educational work with consumers, expand nutrition and production research activity, improve ways to market and handle cattle and tap huge foreign markets now able to buy high quality American beef.

Bible Camp Is Scheduled July 10-16

A week-long Bible Camp for students in grades 7-12 is scheduled July 10-16 at Western Texas College.

This is the third year that the Bible Camp has been held at the college. Recent high school graduates are also invited to attend.

Resident campers will pay fees of $40 for the week. Fees cover housing in the college dormitories and meals in the Student Center cafeteria. Reservations for the camp may be sent to Gary Lowe, Director of the Christian Student Center, Western Texas College, Snyder, 79549. A $10 deposit must accompany each reservation.

Activities in the camp will include daily Bible classes, outdoor devotionals, and inspirational messages. Students will aiso have recreational activities including team sports, crafts and swimming. They will have the use of the college's indoor swimming pool, the tennis courts and the new 9-hole golf course.

Persons interested in additional information about the Bible Camp may contact Lowe by mail or by telephone at AC 915 573-8242.

Rusk Content Teaching Law

EDITOR'S NOTE-Dean Rusk helped shape 10 presidents. Now he is teaching international law. He likes being a professor, being a private person, because he can express his own opinions rather than reflecting others. His students like it, too.

By JACK STILLMAN
Associated Press Writer

ATHENS, Ga. (AP)-A 30-year detour brought Dean Rusk, secretary of state under two presidents, to the academic life that was his first love.

"I always wanted to teach," says Rusk, and for the past seven years he's been doing that, as a professor of international law at the University of Georgia.

Washington is far off and "I have no desire to return," he told a reporter. "The only thing in Washington I miss are my friends."

Rusk was appointed secretary of state by President Kennedy and served under Lyndon Johnson through the bitterest days of the Vietnam war.

Perhaps the nicest thing about being away from high government office, he says, is that now he can express opinions that are his own.

"Today I can have one opinion," says Rusk, relishing the thought. "Tomorrow, I could have another opinion if I wanted. I can have an opinion for any reason I want to, or no opinion at all.

"It's a real luxury to express an opinion as a private citizen."

Any opinion on Henry Kissinger, one of Rusk's successors?

A slight pause. "Kissinger had some pretty difficult years, what with the windup of Vietnam and the problems with Watergate.

"Back during the problems over Berlin after the war, a reporter asked me about that, and I replied that I'd like to pass that problem on to my successors. What I meant was, I would like to keep Berlin from blowing up.

"Kissinger did a good job of passing along his problems to his successors. He helped add eight years without a nuclear weapon fired in anger. We're passing on to the young people 31 years since a nuclear weapon was fired in anger. We're doing very well on that score."

A few other non-academic topics:

On human rights, a big issue with President Carter, Rusk says he's happy to see the nation's "double standard" on that score beginning to disappear.

"It's highly appropriate for us to affirm our own beliefs," he says. "I'm glad we're getting over the double standard. Some people want to talk about human rights in Korea, Vietnam, the Far East and South America, but these same people don't seem willing to talk about Russia."

Rusk, architect of the nation's China policy under Kennedy, says he now favors increased trade with Peking "provided we're trading something for something. I'd be against any long-term loans that would provide China with great technical assistance for nothing in return."

Those things largely are other people's concerns now. Dean Rusk, professor and private citizen, has more immediate ones.

The possibility of retirement, for example.

Plans are under way to open a Rusk Center for International and Comparative Law at the university next fall. He will direct it.

"The university law school has been generous in encouraging me to stay on," says Rusk. "I don't want to stay longer than health permits. It's a year-to-year thing. About two years ago, I had an aneurysm. I have had no further problems, but I have to consider this from year to year."

Rusk lives with his wife, Virginia, in a modest apartment 10 minutes' walk from his campus office.

He still does a good bit of speech-making, usually without pay. When he accepts an honorarium, it goes into a law school fund for needy students.

Two Patio Special

HOME DESIGN
By Larry Farnsworth

This is a uniquely planned house which offers its lucky owners a double portion of delightfully good living, thanks to its two attractive and useful covered patios and its many other imaginative features.

Note that the first of these patios, which serves as a connection between the double garage and the main house, is shielded from the street by a utility room which provides both bath and laundry facilities and serves also to connect the garage and family room.

Open to the family room across a large dining counter is a well planned kitchen with cabinet and counter areas lining most of its four sides. Note, too, how conveniently it is situated to make outdoor patio dining as easy as it is pleasant.

A roomy, open planned, formal dining room, just beyond the kitchen, combines with the large living room to form a gigantic L-shaped area and thus add a feeling of additional spaciousness to both rooms. And, do not overlook that living room's glass doors, leading conveniently to the second patio which is nestled in the angle of the living room and master bedroom at the back of the house.

Naturally this master bedroom is also provided with sliding glass doors for full enjoyment of the pleasures of patio living. It has a big closet and a bath of its own too.

The rest of the house contains two more nicely ample bedrooms with good sized closets and a second full bath so large it handily accommodates a double lavatory.

Look finally at the long, attractively low lines of this design's ranch style exterior. It is every bit as good looking on the outside as it is convenient, comfortable and charming on the inside. It offers a truly fine way to double the pleasure which good living can bring.

IF any will not work, neither let him eat

Yes, a man ought to work if he expects to eat and make provision for his family.

The responsibility of man to engage in honest labor is a basic principle of Christianity.

The person who is not willing to work should not be subsidized, according to the New Testament. This principle is clearly and forcefully stated in 2 Thessalonians 3:10-12:

> "For even during our stay with you we laid down the rule: the man who will not work shall not eat. We mention this because we hear that some of your number are idling their time away, minding everybody's business but their own. To all such we give these orders, and we appeal to them in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ to work quietly for their living." (New English Translation)

Some modern social reformers might object to this ancient Bible precept on the grounds that it is unjust or unkind or even harsh. But this is the will of almighty God! Man achieves dignity in individual, productive, active effort. And man fulfills his purpose upon the earth when his productive effort conforms to the will of God. God is glorified when man reproduces the will of the Heavenly Father in his own life (Matthew 7:21-23).

Biblical testimony on the need for man to work is abundant. Consider these passages:

> "But if anyone does not make provision for his relations, and especially for members of his own household, he has denied the faith and is worse than an unbeliever" (1 Timothy 5:8, New English Translation).

> "Let it be your ambition to keep calm and look after your own business, and to work with your hands, as we ordered you, so that you may command the respect of those outside your own number, and at the same time may never be in want" (1 Thessalonians 4:11, 12, New English Translation).

The responsibility to be active and productive in the kingdom of God is the underlying philosophy of Christianity. Jesus said: "My Father has never yet ceased his work, and I am working too (John 5:17, New English Translation). And on another occasion the Christ said: "While daylight lasts we must carry on the work of him who sent me: night comes, when no one can work" (John 9:4).

Honest, productive labor is inherent in the order of God's creation. There is no place in the Lord's church for lazy, indolent free-loaders. Instead let a man "work hard and honestly with his own hands, so that he may have something to share with the needy" (Ephesians 4:28).

'BUGS' WILL BE WORKING FOR PEOPLE'

Scientists See Biological Revolution

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Science Editor

EDITORsS NOTE—Sometime after the turn of the next century, biology will replace chemistry as the science most important to new products. Everything from fertilizers to medicines to the stuff that keeps clothes wrinkle-free now comes from petroleum. It may soon come from microbes. That doesn't mean these "bugs" will be crawling on you. They'll just be working for you.

BERKLEY, Calif. (AP) —Our planet Earth can't stop at some celestial service station to fill up again on oil.

When the original underground tanks run dry, the oil-energy journey is over. That may be only 25 years from now.

Where, then, will we get the fertilizers, plastics, wash-and-wear clothing, pesticides, medicines, dyes, paints and thousands of other products now made from chemicals in petroleum?

Some scientists are betting on bacteria, molds and fungi as one vital source.

"A biological revolution is coming. In the next 30 years or so, biology will replace chemistry in importance in this country," say Drs. Ronald E. Cape and Peter J. Farley.

They are president and vice president respectively of Cetus Corporation here, a company already engaged in pushing along just such a revolution. In one success, they increased the annual yield of a major anti-biotic by 50 per cent by finding a new "bug" that does a better job of making that drug.

While oil can be used only once, microbes renew themselves, some every 20 minutes, while producing various chemicals. Only a few organisms cause disease—the vast majority to do useful things in nature.

"The business of a bug is to make a living," Dr. Farley says. "They 'eat' whatever is around them. There's an infinite variety of microbes, and they are phenomenal chemical factories. Some use and concentrate uranium, others silver or lead, still others digest lignin in wood.

"We supply them with a kind of plush hotel, feed them nutrients, keep them warm, and let them do their thing, namely to grow and produce chemicals of interest to us."

Numerous scientists feel that microbes can tackle almost any task that synthetic organic chemistry can do, it you find the right organisms.

The search for new organisms or ones that have undergone mutation or genetic alteration has long gone on in many laboratories.

The springboard for a biological revolution is all of the knowledge of genetics and biology learned in the last 20 years, including understandings now of the exquisite genetic code of life, says Dr. Farley.

But industry has done little with it, except for the pharmaceutical industry's making antibiotics and giving Cetus assignments to find better strains.

Industry uses microbes and fermentation to make beer and wine and some other products, but "in some of today's industrial laboratories, Pasteur would feel at home," says Dr. Farley. "In some places, the biologist has the job only of keeping bugs out of the laboratory or production line, to avoid contamination."

Now, numerous major companies are taking new interest in microbes and biology, Cape and Farley say—industries such as food, chemicals, energy, mining, pollution control, paper and milling, as the inevitable end to the river of oil approaches.

One great strength for the biological revolution, Cape and Farley point out, is that both the microbes and the nutrients they need are renewable. Cornstarch, so abundant, is a source of sugar to feed the "bugs."

Farther down the line is the possibility of producing drugs or chemicals through gene-stitching, says Dr. Cape, whose degree is in molecular biology. This is the much discussed recombinant DNA issue. Pieces of genetic material called DNA can be inserted into other cells, even across species lines, to give them new porperties. Genes responible for making insulin might, for example, be placed in common bacteria.

Some critics fear bacteria might be created which, escaping from laboratories or factories, could cause great harm or uncontrollable diseases. Safety precautions are being worked out before gene-stitching is applied on a significant scale in this country. Other nations are going right ahead.

When safety issues are resolved, Cetus may enter this field, says Dr. Farley, whose degree is in medicine.

One project Cetus is considering is development of an ideal or super-bug, he says. It would feed and be prolific on an inexpensive nutrient and be so genetically constituted that "It would become a basket case if it ever got away from you. It couldn't survive outside the laboratory."

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do something creative today, but make it more physical than mental. You'll enjoy gardening or painting, or some such pursuit.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today you may be called upon to arbitrate a situation. It's best to appeal to the antagonists' feelings rather than to their logic.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're more comfortable today in the company of your own household. If you have some drop-ins, try to exit them gently, but quickly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Screen from your mind any thoughts today of ambition or worldly gain. Focus on things relaxing and enjoyable.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your instincts about material pursuits are likely to be more accurate today than those who think they have all the answers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In many areas you're imaginative and clever today. Your originality does not, however, extend to things commercial.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Where others are just talkers today, you're a doer. You'll be the one who catches the brass ring.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The steadying influence you have on others today stems from your compassion and consideration. A friend in trouble knows you won't judge him.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll have better results today if you give vent to your imagination. P.S. — Your hunches aren't too bad, either.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A situation could suddenly crop up today to rattle you a bit. However, if you handle it like a past similar incident, you'll master it easily.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Something you've been secretly wishing for is progressing very well. Don't spoil things by talking about it prematurely.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're easygoing today and likely to overlook little things. Be sure to pick up the change!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Guard what you say today. Something could be picked up by unfriendly ears and stored away to be used against you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be sure you try an idea before you pass it on as gospel. If it's faulty, you could be blamed.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) False hopes could be raised today by something that a friend promises he'll do for you. Save your gratitude until it's accomplished.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Unwarranted criticism of one you're fond of could be voiced in your presence today. Nip it in the bud.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone you recently criticized may have a chance to get back at you today because of a mistake you make. He may not spare the invective.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Make it a point today to take care of small bills or obligations. If you don't, they'll pile up.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Normally you are purposeful, but today you could be too indecisive for your own good.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A chore you brushed aside to do at a more convenient time will rear its head and cause problems today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try to be a good a listener as you are a talker today. Subdue your tendencies to dominate conversations with friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Goals today may turn out to be near-misses, not for any major reasons but because of little details you may overlook.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Ideas you feel strongly about may be poorly received unless you present them masterfully and at the proper time.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In joint ventures today, you're likely to be annoyed because your partners want to stick you with trivial costs, rather than share them.

US Food Security Role Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senior Agriculture Department official has outlined what he considers the ways in which the government is viewing the U.S. role in world food security.

Assistant Secretary Dale Hathaway, who oversees international affairs and commodity programs, made his remarks at an international food conference on Friday.

Hathaway said above all "The United States must maintain its own productive capacity" and has a special obligation to the rest of the world in this regard.

Other efforts described by Hathaway include:

-"We are co-operating fully in international efforts to increase food production in developing countries.

-"The administration has taken the initiative to create a reserve from the existing large wheat supplies...

-"We hope to participate in an international agreement in which other nations would share obligations both for reserve stocks of food grain and for adjustment measures."

-"We are continuing our efforts to seek trade liberalization for agricultural products."
