GEN. PATTON—A GREAT FIGHTING MAN.—Lt. Gen. George S. Patton will be acclaimed in history as one of the greatest fighting men of all time. He also will go down as one of the most colorful warriors, as depicted in the scenes above. Part of Patton's "color" was due to his self-designed spic and span uniforms, his polished boots and pearl handled pistols, as he is shown in the picture on the left. But he also was a soldier and one of the world's foremost tankmen, often riding into battle with his men as shown in the center shot. Hardboiled, tough, brassy and outspoken in the field he also was a sentimentalist. He drove his men and himself hard — but they won battles. And those battles helped win the war.

Patton To Be Buried On Storied Route Of Powerful Tank Assaults

By RICHARD A O'REGAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Dec. 21—America's great master of tank warfare, Gen. George S. Patton, jr., died peacefully in his sleep today of a blood clot which developed gangrene in his lungs and weakened his warrior heart. Mrs. Patton, who was at his side, decided immediately that the general would be buried in Europe, along the storied route of the powerful Third Army he drove to victory.

"The exact place of burial has not been decided, but presumably it will be in France," U. S. headquarters announced. The funeral probably will be Monday.

Went Down Fighting

The acid-tongued general, one of the greatest in American history, died at 5:50 p. m. (10:50 a. m. (CST) 12 days after a hunting trip accident.

"He went down fighting," said Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, commander of U. S. forces in Europe. Flags were ordered to half staff across the American-occupied zone of Germany.

"The cause of death was pulmonary (lung) embolism followed by cardiac," said the Army medical specialist who attended him.

Patton died almost a year to the day after one of the greatest military feats in history—the 78-mile plunge by his Third Army to the relief of the battered men of Bastogne, in last winter's "battle of the bulge."

Patton's neck was broken Sunday, Dec. 9, and he suffered paralysis from the shoulders down. He was injured in a collision between a truck and the motor car in which he was going pheasant hunting.

"This is a hell of a way to die," Patton said then as he was lifted into an ambulance.

But his condition steadily improved, and last Wednesday he sat up in bed. Then, 48 hours ago, bronchial secretions brought on congestion of the lungs and today his heart became affected.

Patton Mourned By Leaders Of World

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—President Truman today sent the following message to Mrs. George S. Patton who was with her husband when he died in Germany:

"Mrs. Truman and I extend our deepest sympathy to you in the passing of your distinguished husband.

"The entire nation, to whom his brilliant career has been a constant inspiration, has suffered a great loss."

MESSAGE FROM ATTLEE

LONDON, Dec. 21 (AP)—Prime Minister Clement Attlee tonight sent the following message of condolence to Mrs. George S. Patton, jr.:

"Deeply distressed to learn of the tragic death of your husband. Please accept my sincere sympathy in your sorrow."

FROM GENERAL WALKER

DALLAS, Dec. 21 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, General Patton's senior corps commander, said today that he felt that "the greatest tragedy of his (Patton's) life is that he did not die as he would have wanted to die—leading his troops in battle."

Gen. Walker led the 20th corps of Patton's Third Army from Normandy to the end of the war.

He issued the following statement today following Patton's death:

"I feel the army, and nation, has lost one of its finest soldiers and patriotic citizens. There is no man in America, in this or any other generation, who was more courageous, physically, mentally and morally."

GENERAL MACARTHUR

TOKYO, Saturday, Dec. 22. (AP)—General MacArthur said today the death of Gen. George Patton "fills me with the deepest regret."

"He was a gallant and romantic soldier of unquestioned greatness," MacArthur said in a statement. "All Army forces in the Pacific will mourn him."

New Housing Plan Stresses Lower-Price Construction

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21—Civilian Production Administrator John D. Small said today the government will see to it that "a fair share" of homes built next year will sell for less than $10,000.

He pledged this at a news conference in outlining how the administration's new program to stimulate home construction will work.

Here are highlights of the plan which will go into effect Jan. 15:

1. Ten critically scarce kinds of building material will be set stored to a priorities system designed to channel them to homes to sell at $10,000 or less or rent at no more than $80 a month. Officials have estimated that the plan will put an average of 50 per cent of the available materials into such houses.

2. During the period of construction and for 30 days thereafter, builders will be required to offer these homes exclusively to veterans. After that they may be offered to non-veterans but at no increase in the sale price or rent agreed upon before construction.

3. Applications for government aid in obtaining materials will be handled by the 52 field offices of the Federal Housing administration which will issue so-called "HH" priority ratings to builders who qualify.

To Check Specifications

4. —FHA will examine builders' specifications to make sure sales prices proposel are reasonably in line with the cost of the home. When they aren't, applications for priorities will be denied.

5. When these homes are resold, no more than the original price paid may be charged. Also, veterans have a 30-day option to buy in the case of resales.

Small predicted that 400,000 homes will be built under the program in 1946, and he said he believes a "substantial number" of them will sell for less than $10,000 or rent for under $80.

"If we find," Small said, "that a preponderance of priorities applications are for homes to sell at the $10,000 ceiling, we will establish quotas to see that a fair share of the homes built are in the lower price ranges."

May Use Quota System

Envisioning the possibility that applications for materials may outstrip supplies, Small said that if this happens the government will set up a quota system allocating materials to individual areas.

"This won't be necessary," he added, "if builders will avoid gobbling up more materials than they can use."

Small outlined these other provisions of the plan:

Builders will be required to

Controls To Lift From Newsprint

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 (AP)—Newsprint controls, excepting inventory restrictions, will be lifted Dec. 31, Civilian Production Administrator John D. Small announced tonight.

He said the decision to eliminate the newsprint ration order was based on recent recommendations of the special newsprint committee of the American Newspaper Publishers association, the newspaper industry advisory committee and the Boren congressional committee on newsprint, as well as on the statement issued last Nov. 28 by the American Newspaper Publishers association.

Represent Cross Section

Small said the first two committees mentioned "represent a cross section of newspaper publishers and include representatives of both large and small newspapers."

OPA's action means all government restrictions on use of newsprint will be lifted.

Retention of inventory restrictions maintains a limit on the amount of paper publishers may stockpile.

Newsprint rationing went into effect Jan. 1, 1943, as the result of a world-wide shortage of paper.

Under the program, publishers have been limited to a certain percentage of the newsprint they used during 1941.

Army Losing Battle To Break West Coast Troop Bottleneck

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—The Army reported today that it was fighting a losing battle in the attempt to move homeward bound troops out of Pacific ports and that "above 90,000" instead of a previously estimated 82,000 would spend Christmas in the staging areas.

The movement of troops eastward by rail increased almost 1,000 per day during the last week—but the numbers arriving by ship from the Pacific increased at an even greater rate.

"Few, if any, of the troops now on the west coast will be home for Christmas," said the War department in a statement.

The statement gave this account of the situation in various ports, both east and west coasts for the period December 21 through 26:

San Francisco—scheduled arrival of 24,423 men on 31 ships. Expected backlog for Christmas (the joes sitting out the holiday still far from home) more than 40,000.

Los Angeles—Scheduled arrival of 12,239 men on 16 ships. Christmas backlog of about 20,000.

Seattle—Arrivals 24,361 men on 23 ships. Christmas backlog 40,000.

New York—77,244 on 66 ships (and "this total very probably will be increased materially by arrivals of ships delayed by storms"). No backlog.

Boston—22,902 on 23 ships. No backlog.

Hampton Roads—31,379 on 37 ships. No backlo

Big Three Are Said Moving Toward Unity

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Dec. 21—Informed sources close to the Big Three foreign ministers said tonight a "positive stage" had been reached in their talks, and that Russia, the United States and Great Britain appeared closer now on vital international issues than before the conference opened.

The ministers talked informally for four hours and 15 minutes in the longest discussion held since the conference began. Without benefit of experts and with only the translators present, the three began talking and never did call a formal meeting.

Suspicion Dispelled

Considerable suspicion appears to have been dispelled on all sides, these informants said, as a result of the talks between U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov, who met for their sixth session today.

Observers said that this does not mean that all obstacles to understandings on international issues had been removed, but that there were good reasons for believing some agreements were going to be reached.

Both Byrnes and Bevin were said to be anxious not to raise the expectations of their people too much in regard to definite results from the conference.

No Official Report

There was no official word on progress of the ministers' conference, which had been slated to discuss control of atomic energy and other subjects held vital to the maintenance of world peace. Some sort of communique or announcement is anticipated when the conference closes.

In this connection it was suggested in American circles again that Byrnes still hoped to leave Moscow by Christmas, but observers said it was unlikely that the ministers would conclude their meetings by then. Byrnes plans to return to the United States before attending the general assembly of the United Nations in London scheduled to begin Jan. 10.

No Domination Planned

Foreign quarters said the foreign ministers of the Big Three have no intention of dominating the United Nations organization, nor is there any move afoot to dissolve the council of foreign ministers, which includes France and China in addition to Russia, Britain and the United States.

The United Nations organization will soon begin to take over some of the functions of the ministers' council, however, and it may eventually be dissolved.

Framework For Japan Finished

TOKYO, Dec. 21 (AP)—General MacArthur has completed the framework of a new Japan; there will be no more major Allied directives.

Allied headquarters, announcing today the achievement of this goal, said that the problem of constructing "a sound, acceptable state" now rests largely upon the ability of the fallen nation to assimilate the ordered changes.

Abolishing Shintoism

A recent directive abolishing state Shintoism completed the series of basic changes in Japan, said the statement, adding:

"Further directives most probably will be limited to those necessary to secure full understanding and compliance with basic premises already set forth."

Observing that Japan's main obstacle is "a lack of sufficient qualified leaders," the statement said political power in the future will be won by the party "which sponsors the greatest implementation to give effect to laws and constitutional changes," creating a government envisaged by the Potsdam declaration and MacArthur directives.

Anxious To Shake Bonds

"The changes as directed are expected to be assimilated rapidly, because it has been shown that the average Japanese is very anxious to be out from under the yoke of militarism," headquarters said.

Directives issued thus far, the statement continued, "effect the removal of those restrictive laws and regulations which study has revealed have been a major means where—by control and direction—the Japanese people had been formed into an aggressor nation."

"The war criminal suspects who have been placed in custody constituted the directing genii that formerly guided, shaped and provided leadership to run the government. We now must provide leadership, to cultivate new leadership and direct education."

That education and guidance "must be the main part of the program from here on, because a people who have lived their lives by the sword need help and leadership to adjust themselves to freedom," the statement added.

RELIEF PLAN OUTLINED

TOKYO, Saturday, Dec. 22 (AP) The ministry of welfare today completed plans for a 200,000,000 (m) yen ($13,333,333) relief program for unemployed, war sufferers, repatriates and other needy.

Fact-Finders Recess Hearing To Avert GM Showdown On Profits

By WILLIAM NEEDHAM
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21—Government fact-finders averted any immediate showdown with General Motors over examination of profits tonight by recessing hearings in the wage strike until Dec. 28 and urging the company and union to renew collective bargaining immediately.

The company yesterday threatened to bolt the hearing if its profits were taken into consideration in connection with the CIO union's demand for a 30 per cent wage increase. But President Truman ruled that ability to pay is a "relevant" factor in wages cases.

Only Reads Statement

Chairman Lloyd K. Garrison of the fact-finding board reconvened its hearing today only long enough to read a statement hich said that, if and when the hearings are resumed, the board ould regard the company's ability to pay as one factor in determining any age adjustment. The statement said developments ould determine whether the board would ask the company to submit its books.

Before reading the statement, Garrison announced that he was "not going to call upon" the union or company to make any comment on it. After reading it, he adjourned the session immediately.

Earlier in the day the oil-wage fact-finding board had recessed until Jan. 7 to permit direct negotiations between the oil companies and the CIO Oil Workers union. There were indications that settlement of the union's 30 per cent wage increase demand on a plant-by-plant basis, might be imminent.

Prices And Profits

Both developments followed an administration announcement which made prices as well as profits a matter for fact-finding boards to consider and required the boards themselves to determine whether their wage increase recommendations would justify companies in seeking price increases.

A fact-finding board's decision that a age increase would justify a price boost would not automatically win one for a manufacturer. He still ould have to convince the stabilization board and then the OPA. But the board's findings could be expected to carry some weight with these agencies.

A fact-finding board's recommendation for a wage increase without a higher price would not necessarily be binding on the manufacturer. Neither employer nor union is legally bound to accept any findings by such a board, and the legislation proposed by President Truman carries no legal compulsion on this score.

Six-Month Period

But once an employer and a union accept a board recommendation which vetoes any price increase, then the employer would be foreclosed from seeking any price relief for a six-month period—unless the wage boost was OK'd by the wage stabilization board.

Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach, implementing President Truman's statement yesterday that company earnings were relevant in wage disputes, issued a policy statement to fact-finders.

Goodfellows All Set For Big Day; Need Help On Deliveries

Lubbock Goodfellows are all set to make Christmas complete in Lubbock

They have ample funds, plenty of toys, gifts, fruits and nuts to fill a heaping sock for the less fortunate children of the city.

All they need now is a little help from Lubbock men on Christmas morning. These men who deliver the Christmas packages will only be needed for about an hour and a half starting at 7 o'clock Christmas morning. They will be as full-fledged Goodfellows as the hundreds who donated cash to the financial campaign.

All they have to do is telephone J. C. Hilton of the B. & H. Transfer company, phone number 7112, and give their name and then report at the American Legion home 910 Texas avenue, Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock.

The financial campaign last night totaled $2,409.37, more than $900 over the goal. Late contributions came in from the Lubbock High school Future Farmers 12, Las Cresas club, $7.10 and Girl Scout Troop No. 2, $5.

Formality Cast Aside As Chiang Warmly Welcomes Marshall On Special Mission

By RICHARD CUSHING
Associated Press Staff Writer

NANKING, Dec. 21—Gen. George C. Marshall arrived here today by plane from Shanghai and was warmly greeted at the airport by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, who cast protocol aside to welcome in person the special American envoy.

The two men and Madame Chiang left at once for the Generalissimo's official residence, to begin talks which may vitally influence strife-torn China's hopes of internal peace and unity.

When the generalissimo stepped out of his black bullet-proof sedan, Marshall saw him at once. They strode toward each other smiling. They saluted and shook hands warmly.

"Tell him I am deeply honored," Marshall said to Chiang's personal chief-of-staff, Gen. Shang Chen, who was acting as interpreter.

Chiang replied simply:

"I welcome you to Nanking."

The Chiang-Marshall talks were expected to cover a wide range of topics, most pressing of which were the question of halting internal hostilities and the possible formation of a coalition government taking in all major political groups.

A formal dinner in Marshall's honor was scheduled for tonight.

Meanwhile Associated Press correspondent Fred Hampson reported from Shanghai that the continued lull in the North China military situation was regarded as at least partly attributable to Marshall's arrival in the country. The conflicting factions in the undeclared civil war seemed to be marking time, he said, while waiting to see what the American envoy might accomplish.

In Chungking a Chinese Communist spokesman reiterated his party's demand for an immediate cessation of fighting, and said the Communist proposal for an unconditional armistice, with both sides "frozen" in their present position, would be officially put into writing.

Turner Says Navy Command Orders Not Complied With

By WILLIAM T. PEACOCK
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 — The Pearl Harbor committee laid aside its inquiry for a Christmas recess late today after hearing Admiral Richmond Kelley Turner contend the Washington top Navy command did all that was needed to avert the disaster.

The committee will reconvene Dec. 31 and go on with the Navy story of the Japanese attack.

Turner, 1941 chief of Navy war plans, asserted that the top officers here anticipated a possible Japanese blow in 1941, got the fleet "prepared for war" and issued "entirely clear" action orders. He added that Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, Pacific fleet commander, did not comply with those orders.

Frequent Arguments

His attitude drew him into frequent tangles with some committee members.

In one sharp exchange Rep. Murphy (D-Pa) remarked, "I've never seen a Monday morning quarterback go to the football game."

(Turner left his Washington post in June, 1942, and later took part in many of the amphibious operations in the Pacific war.)

Murphy's remark came after he had demanded that Turner produce any written pre-Pearl Harbor expression of opinion that there was a "50-50 chance" for an attack there. Turner had testified yesterday he considered those the odds.

Turner said he never wrote such an opinion and he thought neither the Navy nor War departments agreed there was a 50-50 chance. He named Admiral Harold R. Stark, then chief of naval operations, and Admiral Royall Ingersoll, Stark's deputy, as men who, he believed, thought there was a good possibility of an attack.

Kimmel Is Blamed

Had Kimmel complied with instructions to take deployment measures, Turner contended, damage on Dec. 7, 1941, would have been "materially reduced."

"And there was a good chance we could have inflicted considerable damage on the Japanese fleet," he added.

Murphy noted that a Navy court of inquiry into Pearl Harbor reported that the effectiveness of Hawaii's defense plans

Solons Proud Of Accomplishments

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21. (AP)—The 79th Congress closed its first session today—at 2:11 p. m. in the House and 3:47 p. m. in the Senate—with the summation of Speaker Rayburn that "we have a right to be proud of ourselves."

The session wrote history, in war and peace. But on many important matters which President Truman urged, it did not write laws.

On one of these, in fact, the Senate was wrangling at the end. This was the proposal to make permanent the Fair Employment Practice committee set up in wartime to police any discrimination against negroes and other minorities.

Senators Ball (R-Minn) and Chavez (D-NF) served notice that they would bring it up as soon as the second session orpened Jan. 14. Senator Bilbo (D-Miss), who is ready to filibuster against it if necessary, said grimly: "The Lord willing, I'll be here."

In the absence of the legislation he had asked, Mr. Truman yesterday extended the committee's authority under the emergency war-time grant of power.

At the same time, the chief executive made plain his dissatisfaction with Congress' handling of labor and employment bills.

Full Review Is Scheduled

(By The Associated Press)

UTICA, N. Y., Dec. 21.—Federal Judge Stephen W. Brennan tonight filed an injunction staying an Interstate Commerce commission order equalizing class freight rates of northern and southern railroads.

The injunction granted by a three-judge federal district court, had been sought by nine northeastern states.

Scheduled For January 1

The ICC order, which had been scheduled to take effect January 1, required a 10 per cent increase in class freight rates in the North and a 10 per cent cut in class freight rates in the South and West.

The interlocutory injunction stayed the order pending federal court review.

The three-judge court reserved decision Dec. 14 on the application of the nine states. Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York in an affidavit submitted to the court termed the ICC order a threat to the economic welfare of New York state.

Called Basic Trouble

Wendell Berge, assistant U. S. attorney general, had supported the ICC order, telling the court that one of the "basic troubles in our economy is found in rate inequities."

Other state petitioners were New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin.

The order originally had been scheduled to take effect Nov. 1.

The injunction was sought pending review of the order by the federal court.

TEXAS ORDER ALSO IS INVOLVED IN ACTION

AUSTIN, Dec. 21. (AP) — Chairman Olin Culberson of the Texas Railroad commission said today that a federal court injunction issued at Utica, N. Y., staying an interstate Commerce commission interestate freight rate equalization order, would also have the effect of staying a Texas order on intrastate rates.

The Texas Railroad commission, after lengthy hearings, recently issued an order directing a 10 per cent reduction in intrastate class rates, paralleling the ICC order on interestate rates.

It would have been effective Jan. 1, 1946. A long drawn out court battle was expected to hold up the entire question of equalization indefinitely.

GE Wage Hike Plan Rejected

NEW YORK, Dec. 21. (AP)—The negotiating committee of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers union of America, (CIO) tonight rejected as "grossly inadequate" a proposal by the General Electric company for a 10 per cent wage increase for 89,000 UEW members.

General Electric offered the increase in pay earlier today with the stipulation that the union agree not to impose limitations on or obstacles to increased production by its members.

The UEW last week voted five to one to strike after Jan. 1 in plants of General Electric, Westinghouse and General Motors in support of a $2-a-day pay boost, approximately 30 per cent.

Reject GM Plan Also

It recently turned down a General Motors offer of a 13½ cent-on-hour pay increase.

Joseph Dermody, international representative of the UEW, said the negotiating comittee for General Electric locals had notified E. D. Spicer, vice president of the company, of the rejection of the 10 per cent pay hike offer.

In notifying Spicer of the rejection, the union committee said the proposed boost was "grossly inadequate to the needs of GE employes, whose earnings have been cut as much as 50 per cent."

State Funds Use On Abandoned Military Bases Is Held Legal

AUSTIN, Dec. 21. (AP)—The attorney general has given the board of control a go-ahead signal on its program to develop abandoned military establishments to care for eleemosynary needs.

In an opinion to Control Board Chairman Weaver Baker, the attorney general today said the board may legally spend unused balances of its appropriation for reconverting, repairing and if necessary adding buildings to several Army installations which the board has been trying to secure.

Baker said the "effect of this ruling gives to the board of control the right to spend approximately $1,300,000 during the current fiscal year in the activation of Army forts and camps at Ringold, McIntosh, Brady, and Mexia."

The board wants to turn the former prisoner of war camp at Mexia into a school for handicapped children who are wards of the state. The former prisoner of war camp at Brady would be used as a juvenile training school for negro girls.

Either Fort Ringold near Rio Grande City or Fort McIntosh at Laredo (or both) will be converted into tubercular hospitals providing the properties can be secured.

The thing standing in the way of acquiring Fort McIntosh, said Baker, is that several federal government agencies might claim priority for its use.

The difficulty at Fort Ringgold lies in civic opposition to a tubercular hospital near Rio Grande City, but Baker said he hopes this can be eliminated in view of the pressing need for an institution of this type in Texas.

2 Full Shopping Days' Before CHRISTMAS

The Woman's Angle
By Margaret Turner

(A letter for men in service)
Dec. 21, 1945

DEAR:—
On this, the shortest day in the year, last minute shopping is heading the list of "must dos." Of course, long ago packages were mailed to you. It's safe to state that everyone wishes for you as much happiness as is possible at this time of the year when you are far, far from home.

Donations to the Goodfellows' fund this year went way over the top, with contributions today nine hundred dollars over the goal of $1500. J. C. Hilton of the B&H Transfer and Storage company has been designated by the Chief Goodfellow to head up the delivery of the packages of Christmas morning.

Former students and officials of Texas Tech college are launching a campaign to raise funds toward the $300,000 needed for the proposed athletic stadium. Persons wishing to contribute any amount from "$10 to $10,000" are requested to send their contribution to the Texas Tech Foundation, Stadium Fund, Box 86, Tech Station, Lubbock. Jason O. Gordon, president of the Lubbock county ex-students' chapter, said the drive is as much for the "little fellows who cannot give so much but whose contributions will go a long way toward completion of the new stadium."

Pre-Christmas snow sent the temperature down into the 'teens this week and set a new low reading for the season. A slight sand storm today and blinding sunlight bid fair to give us a Christmas without snow, however, and only a few splotches are left here and there.

Lubbock tire dealers say there will still be a lot of folks wanting tires and unable to get them when tire rationing ends Jan. 1. One dealer anticipated that most persons holding certificates would use them before the end of the year and after that, "we can start the new year with bare shelves."

Lubbock has fallen victim to a flu epidemic that has been sweeping the state and the last few days before schools and Tech college closed for the Christmas holidays there were hundreds of absences. Dr. George W. Cox, director of the state department of health, is warning all persons to avoid chilling, to avoid crowds, and to avoid contact as much as possible with known flu cases.

An explosion of an estimated $300 worth of fireworks Monday afternoon at Mark Halsey Drug No. 3, set fire to the awning, broke plate glass windows and sent customers and employes scurrying for safer premises. It was thought a carelessly-tossed cigaret had set off the initial blast. No one was injur

All officers and enlisted men at South Plains Army Air field are going home for Christmas as reward for a job well done, according to Col. H. O. Bordelon, commanding officer. The job was the removal of more than 1,000 planes from the field in the past two months by enlisted and civilian personnel at the field. The planes had to be "unpickled" so they could be flown to Kingman, Ariz.

Officers and enlisted men at Lubbock Army Air field who are not needed for the final closing of the field will be given Christmas leaves, according to Col. William G. Snaith, acting commanding officer.

F/O Walter E. (Jumbo) Webster, who was killed July 28, while on a flight from India to China, has been awarded the Air Medal posthumously, it was announced by headquarters, India-China division of the ATC.

Lt. and Mrs. Frank X. Tolbert are parents of a son born Monday night in Columbia hospital, Washington, D. C. Lt. Tolbert, son of Mrs. Frences Lee Tolbert of Lubbock, is associate editor of the publication.

The Jack Jenkinses are on a wedding trip to Mexico City. Mrs. Jenkins is the former Mrs. Brubette Harper. They will be at home in Orlando, Fla., where Col. Jenkins is to attend an aeronautical school.

Mrs. Frieda B. Seagraves of Lubbock has received eleven decorations, awarded posthumously to her husband, Capt. Robert K. Seagraves. The medals are the Legion of Merit, DFC and Air medal with one silver and three bronze Oak Leaf clusters. He devised a "valuable modification which greatly facilitated the operation of the bombsight and had a distinct effect in bombing accuracy." The device was known as the Seagraves attachment.

That's all for this week. Luck always.

Nu Phi Mu Group Is At Christmas Party

Members of Nu Phi sorority who are spending the holidays in Lubbock held a Christmas party at the home of the chapter registrar, Mrs. William A. Wilbanks, 2103-28th Street, Wednesday evening.

Singing of sorority songs and Christmas carols featured the entertainment. Special guests were psonsors of the Lubbock group, Texas Mu chapter, recently installed here. They are Misses Katherine Reese, Gene Skinner, Clyrene and Lavonne Kyle.

Members present were Misses Charlene King, Lou Nell Knott, Ella Norman, Jeannie Fry, Jynx Richards, Beti Dennison, Dixie McMullen, Lenora Lowe, Bettye Sue Tippit, Ruth Taylor and Marjorie Moore.

Miss June Haney Hostess To Club

The A. & M. board of directors has approved the undertaking and has authorized President Gilchrist to take necessary steps to acquire the plant.

The project has the support of the McGregor Chamber of Commerce, the Waco Chamber of Commerce and many other localities and organizations in the area near the ordnance plant.

Taxicab Service To Airport Is Restored

The Texas Railroad commission enter dean order Friday revoking the permanent certificate issued Sept. 17 to W. L. Coker to transport passengers between the city and Municipal airport and taxicab service to the airfield was restored Friday, it was announced at City Hall yesterday.

The commission, according to a copy of the order received by city officials, took the action after recognizing that the airport is within the suburbs of the City of Lubbock and therefore "has no jurisdiction under the motor carrier act to grant to a passenger service for hire."

Of Local Nature

The order thus sustained a bill of exceptions which the city filed with the commission contending that the airport was city-owned, that passenger transportation was of a local nature and, hence, the city, not the state, was the agency having rightful claim to jurisdiction.

Coker, a returned veteran, was granted an emergency certificate to haul passengers to the port last July 2, and was granted a permanent certificate Sept. 17.

The certificate, in effect, excluded cabs from making trips to the field, and the commission sent enforcement representatives here to see that the cab companies did not duplicate the service.

Officials said the order did not affect contracts, awarded on a competitive basis, under which Coker delivers mail and express to the field.

Man's Christmas Gift For Wife Blows Up

HOUSTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—A. E. Lyell was all steamed up about his Christmas gift for his wife—but not for long because it backfired on him.

He had purchased her a "new fangled stove" which was to be a surprise when she returned from visiting her parents in Nashville, Tenn.

He decided last night to try it out and struck a match. The stove exploded in his face. Firemen said the pilot light had been on but not lit.

"Sure wish we had the old stove back," moaned Lyell as he nursed body and head burns.

Patton Dies Of Wreck Injuries

partment medical specialist, said the blood clot which caused death occurred when Patton was well on his way to recovery from partial paralysis. The clot developed early today.

Attack Of Short Breath

"At approximately 2 a. m. yesterday he had an acute attack of breathlessness and pallor. The attack lasted about an hour and he was relieved by medication. At that time we felt relatively sure the general had pulmonary (lung) embolism."

Spurling explained the blood clot probably originated in his injured neck and was pumped by the heart to the right lung, causing "a spot" of gangrene in the lung.

"Anybody, particularly an older person and especially one who is paralyzed, is liable to develop such a 'spot'," Spurling said.

The specialist explained that the clot clogged up the vessels in Patton's lungs, and that though he recovered from the initial shock that morning, his lungs filled up with mucous.

Medical Efforts Fail

All efforts to stop the increase in the flow of mucous were futile, Spurling said, and early this morning Patton showed signs of heart failure.

"Late this afternoon Patton was in a very critical condition," Spurling said.

Doctors had hoped to fly Patton home within the next week or 10 days and the general was enthusiastic, Spurling said, adding:

"He had all the courage in the world and was confident he would pull through."

Spurling revealed that Patton had suffered two embolisms several years ago when he broke his leg, but had survived them.

Patton had been sleeping since 4 p. m., until the moment he died.

"When I talked to him just before he went to sleep he was bright and alert," Spurling said. "He said he felt better and very comfortable."

Constant Attendance

With the general just before he died were Capt. William Duane, jr., neurosurgeon of the 97th General hospital, who had been in constant 24-hour attendance, and Nurse Lt. Margery Randell of Ashland, Wis.

McNarney told reporters:

"It is my painful duty to announce the death of a great fighter and a great man.

"Gen. Patton died this evening at the 130th station hospital in Heidelberg.

"His injuries were grave, but his fight to overcome them was gallant. He went down fighting. Patton would have died in no other way.

Sudden Empty Feeling

"And now, for us over here and all who applauded his bravery, there is a sudden empty feeling.

"He brought to us a large part of our magnificient victory and this, too well known to need description, belongs to history."

The lung condition which weakened him was described as having been complicated by a partial paralysis of the diaphram, directly due to injury to the general's spinal cord.

Patton's job was war, and he had worked at it with amazing success for more than 30 years. But he was a stranger to the world of diplomacy, and his remarks and actions off the field of battle kept him in hot water.

Soldier Slapping Incident

The first great criticism rose when Patton reportedly slapped a hospitalized soldier who was suffering from battle fatigue, during the Sicilian campaign. Gen. Eisenhower made Patton apologize publicly, but kept him for his assignment later to the Third Army.

Three months ago Patton was removed from command of his beloved Third Army as a result of criticism of his actions in carrying out the denazification program in Bavaria. He was placed in command of the 15th Army, which had become largely a "paper army" compiling a history of American campaigns in the war.

Report MacArthur To Quit Branded False

TOKYO, Dec. 21. (AP)—A triple denial was issued today by General MacArthur's headquarters to broadcast statements that he opposed use of Russian occupation troops, halted the sailing of Australian occupation forces for Japan and threatened to resign.

The denials were touched off by broadcasts made from Tokyo by Larry Tighe of the American Broadcasting corporation.

MacArthur branded Tighe's statements as having "absolutely no basis in fact" and one was dismissed with the terse comment that it was an "unmitigated falsehood."

(After issuance of the denials Tighe broadcast a reaffirmation of his previous statement that MacArthur's express desire is "that the Russian troops not be allowed to take over the Japanese island of Hokkaido." He said he obtained his information "from a reliable and honest source and I still consider it both reliable and honest.")

Pearl Harbor Quiz

"depended entirely upon advance knowledge that an attack was to be expected within narrow limits of time."

Should not some further warning have been sent after that of Nov. 27? he asked.

"That was done with the code message," Turner replied. In early December, word was dispatched to Kimmel that the Japanese were burning their codes.

Statements Drawn Out

Rep. Gearhart (R-Calif) drew from Turner these statements:

He did not know of a November 26, 1941 message from the State department to the Japanese until he read it in intercepted Japanese messages.

He was convinced that this message had "no possible chance of acceptance" and he personally thought it had no effect one way or the other on Japanese designs against the United States.

Turner had testified earlier he had understood from Admiral Leigh Noyes, chief of naval communications, on three occasions that Admiral Kimmel was getting at Pearl Harbor all the information Washington was getting from reading Japanese codes.

Nomura Conference

Turner also told of a number of conferences he held personally with Japanese Ambassador Kichisaburo Nomura. In one of these in July, 1941, he said, "I told the ambassador I believed Congress would declare war if they attacked either the British or Dutch in Malaya."

Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) asked about the Navy's directing Admiral Thomas C. Hart, then Asiatic fleet commander, to put out scouting vessels in the South China sea. This was done at the direction of President Roosevelt.

Didn't Turner think that something of the same sort should have been done around Hawaii?

Told To Scout Area

"Admiral Kimmel was told on three occasions to use ships, as well as airplanes, to the north, as well as the south, for scouting purposes," the witness replied.

Senator Brewster (R-Me) remarked that the Navy court reported that Kimmel had issued orders for strange submarines to be depth-charged. Explosives were dropped on a submarine over an hour before the air attack.

The belief that the Navy should be free to take such action, Turner said, "might be the key" to why Kimmel was never instructed against committing "overt acts."

Congress Recess

marked that an "open break" existed between the President and southern congressmen of his party. Others, who would not be quoted by name, said so too.

Republican senators, for their part, were "fairly well pleased" with the record of the session, "both in what was and was not passed by Congress." This was the report of Senator Taft (R-Ohio) after a meeting today of the Republican steering committee which he heads.

Back in April on a warm day, congressmen had given thunderous applause to Mr. Truman when he first stood before his former colleagues as President and proposed to carry forward the policies of Franklin D. Roosevelt "with your help."

In the months that followed, Congress ratified the United Nations charter and provided for this nation to play its part in the international organization. It enacted the Bretton Woods Monetary pacts, and extended the reciprocal trade agreements. It continued the draft until May 15 and price controls until June. It cut income taxes. It empowered the President to reorganize federal agencies. It made new provisions for veterans.

Busy Inquiring Session

It was a busy Congress, and an inquiring one. It opened investigations of the Pearl Harbor attack, of atomic energy and many other matters. The Pearl Harbor inquiry, conducted by a joint committee of the Senate and House with all the stops out, continues into the second session—into the year of congressional elections.

But between the cherry buds of April and the snows now crusting the capitol, Mr. Truman recommended much other action which Congress has not taken.

Wage Disputes

He said they might propose:

1. Wage increases which meant no advance in prices;

2. Wage increases which employers could use as a basis for seeking price relief.

The boards themselves, Schwellenbach declared, must determine on which basis any given wage decision is made.

Board Must Be Satisfied

He specifically charged the boards ith satisfying themselves as to the ability of an employer to absorb recommended wage increases. Should an employer fail to submit evidence on his ability or inability to pay, the policy statement left a fact-finding board "free to draw such inferences as it may choose."

If price relief becomes a factor in the wage investigation, Schellenbach directed that the fact-finding board "free to draw such inferences as it may choose."

If price relief becomes a factor in the wage investigation, Schwellenbach directed that the fact-finders' wage decision first be approved by the government wage stabilization board. Where necessary, a board may recommend to the stabilization administrator that his standards for approving wage increases for price purposes be broadened, Schwellenbach said.

If wage increases are recommended without question of any price relief, the fact-finders may urge an employer to make them effective immediately.

In the "no-price-increases" cases, the policy specifies that:

"To the extent necessary to satisfy itself that the employers are in a position to absorb a recommended increase, the panel must necessarily inquire into the issue of the employers' ability to pay. Ability to pay is a limitation on and does not necessarily constitute a measure of the amount of a fair increase."

Fort Worth, Houston Grids Site For Semi-Final Games

Coyotes, Scotties Rated As Top Tilt

FORT WORTH, Dec. 21 (AP)—Highland Park of Dallas and Wichita Falls, two of the most powerful and resourceful teams over to reach the Texas schoolboy football semi-finals, meet here tomorrow with Fort Worth's largest crowd for a high school game —25,000—due at Farrington Field.

Because it is a return engagement—the playying off of a tie—interest in the contest in North Texas has been unprecedented Oct. 26, these two elevens battled at Wichita Falls. The result was 7-7 and argument over which was the better team has also been a stalemate.

Two Great Teams

Each is packed with what it takes to play football—strong ground games, dangerous passing attacks, great lines. Many think this is in reality the state championship game—that the winner will be the team that gets the crown next week in the finals against the eleven that emerges from Waco's battle with Goose Creek at Houston.

Wichita Falls will throw a forward wall on the field outweighing Highland Park four pounds to the man but the Dallas line isn't small by any means. It averages 174 pounds. The Coyotes' advantage in weight is accounted for by the two giant tackles—Willie Bigham, 248, and Bob James, 219. Some critics think they are the best tackles in the state.

KFYO TO CARRY GAME

Radio station KFYO, Lubbock, will take to the airways at 2:15 o'clock this afternoon with a play-by-play broadcast of the Highland Park-Wichita Falls game at Fort Worth. The broadcast will be carried over a statewide network of stations.

Highland Park may boast a slight edge in running atack with the three Bills — Weatherford, Foxley and Elliott—forming a devastating combination. But Wichita Falls has a high-powered passing offense featuring Lindy Berry, who teams with Joe Dean Caldwell and Billy Pyle to give the Coyotes strength aplenty on the ground.

Ganders Face Rice Field Jinx Today

HOUSTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—Rice Institute stadium which never has seen a Goose Creek Ganders victory nor losses for Waco High or its coach, Harry Stiteler, expects some 20,000 fans to be on hand tomorrow when Dan Stallworth's Robert E. Lee Ganders collide with Stiteler's Tigers in a semi-final game of the Texas High school football playoffs.

The Ganders are undefeated at the Houston High school stadium, but they have come away the loser

WEATHE FORECAST
(By The Associated Press)

Warmer weather was forecast for today's semi-final games in the Texas schoolboy football race.

At Houston, where Waco meets Goose Creek, the weather bureau said cloudy weather with occasional rain and moderate winds would greet the players. A high temperature of 55 was forecast.

At Fort Worth, where Highland Park (Dallas) meets Wichita Falls, the weather prospects were partly cloudy with light winds and temperature of about 60 degrees.

in three previous tilts at Rice. Their last game at Rice was in the 1943 state semi-finals when Lufkin won on penetrations by a 7-7 score.

Stiteler Well Known

Stiteler has brought three teams to Houston in the past, two from Corpus Christi and one from Waco. All were winners.

The Tigers rolled into Houston early tonight after a light workout in the afternoon at Bryan Thirty eight were in the party, including 33 players.

The Ganders planned to make their 28 mile trip into Houston after eating a light lunch at home.

Each Lose One

Although reports from both squads have been of the blues singing note, it is expected that when the whistle blows for the kickoff, each team will have only one regular on the sidelines.

They are Bob Sallee of Waco, who has the flu and Gene Jennings of the Ganders, who suffered a shoulder injury two weeks ago.

Waco has been installed favorite to win the game, and has been rated between a six and seven point edge in the wagering.

The starting lineups: (kickoff at 2:30 p. m.):

Canyon Cagers Romp Over Loyola, 60-47

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 21 (AP) — West Texas State Teachers' lanky Buffaloes defeated Loyola university of New Orleans, 60-47, in the first game of twin-bill sponsored by the National Association of Intercollegiate Basketball in Municipal auditorium here tonight.

Loyola, champions in the NAIT tournament here last March, got off to a fast start with Joe Gurievsky and John Castriex hitting field goals and Jim Bonck adding a free toss to make the count 5-0.

West Texas counted with the same two minutes old on a hook shot from the side of the court by Gorden Price and from there the Buffaloes got their eyes on the net and after passing Loyola with five minutes of play gone by, were never headed.

Hank Decker, 30-year-old 6-foot 3-inch West Texas center and a discharged war veteran, paced the Buffalo attack with seven field goals and three throws for 17 points.

Flashy J. W. Malone threw in five field goals and three charity tosses to help Decker wth the winner's point-making.

West Texas led at the half, 33-24.

Army-Navy Tilt May Go West Next Year

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—John L. Sullivan, assistant secretary of Navy for air, disclosed tonight that he is inquiring into the possibility of playing the Army-Navy football game in various parts of the country.

He told a reporter he has asked an aide to "inquire into the general situation."

The annual service game is traditionally played in the East. Sullivan explained that "some people asked me whether I was interested in seeing it played in other parts of the country and I said that I was."

He added that Secretary of Navy Forrestal "feels the same way" about it.

Tigers Head For Cotton Bowl Tilt

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 21. (U.P.) — Missouri university's Cotton bowl-bound football squad, 36 strong, left here today confident that they will give their New Year's day opponents, the Texas university Longhorns, a rough afternoon of football.

Three of the football Tigers were reported on the sick list today by Head Coach Chauncey Simpson. They were Tackles Fred Burk and Doyle McDaniel and halfback Loyd Brinkman. Simpson added, however, that he expected the ailing Tigers to be fully recovered for the Texas game.

Asked what he thought of Missouri's chances, Simpson replied:

"They haven't defeated us yet. We're not going to give up the ship until we are on the water anyway."

Scholarly Herb Bunker, head line coach had it figured down to finer mathematics.

"There are only two teams playing so according to my mathematics that gives us a 50-50 chance."

Tigers Carry Fight And Charms To Game

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 21. (AP) — Full of fight which was a matter of police court record, and carrying the best kind of good luck charm — the left hind foot of a rabbit—the University of Missouri football team passed through here tonight headed for Dallas and the Cotton Bowl clash Jan. 1.

R. E. Lucas, veteran Tiger follower, who provided the charms solemnly rubbed the legs against each players' nose as they left Columbia, Mo. He said that the rabbits were killed by three negroes in a graveyard at midnight.

The Columbia police court cleared three Tiger players just in time to depart. They were fined $15 and given five days jail sentences, suspended if they stay away from a certain dance hall for one full year, on charges they were fighting there last night after allegedly being attacked by a celebrant they didn't like.

Tahoka Cops Two In Three-Game Setto

TAHOKA, Dec. 21. (Special)—Tahoka High cagers won two out of three games tonight over the New Home cagers, playing before what was termed the largest crowd to ever turn out for a basketball program at New Home.

Tahoka won both boys games, winning the B game 9 to 6, with Minor setting the pace with five poitns. Jerry Edwards poured in 13 points to lead the Tahoka A team to a 17 to 12 win. Timmons paced the New Home five with six points.

The New Home girls roared to a 32 to 23 win, with Nettles setting the pace with 15 points. Waytt paced the Tahoka attack with 12 points.

Abernathy Gets Even Break With Cooper

ABERNATHY, Dec. 21 (Special) —The Abernathy Antelopes broke even here tonight with the Cooper High school teams, the local boys romping to a 46 to 14 victory in the nightcap, while the Cooper girls nosed out a close, 36 to 34 win in the opener.

In the boys game, Abernathy rolled up an 18 to 4 lead in the first half, then coasted through the final stanza. Harold Rhodes flipped in 17 points for Abernathy to set the pace, with Marvin Kelly ranked next with eight points. Elkins and Pierce accounted for six points each, 12 of the 14 cooper points.

In the girls game, Cooper grabbed the lead, and held on all the way, beating back a late rally by the Abernathy girls. Wilke of Cooper nosed out Edna Faye Ledford of Abernathy in a spirited individual duel for scoring honors, Wilke getting 20 points and Ledford 19.

Cooper led 9-6 at the end of the first quarter, and had built the lead up to 17-11 at the half.

Cooper went into the final period with a 25-20 lead, but ran into a stiff battle in the closing minutes.

JANIRO BEATS ZAVALA

Holmes Top Slugger For National League

NEW YORK, Dec. 21. (AP)—Tommy Holmes of Boston, who lost the batting title to Phil Cavarretta of Chicago by three points, salvaged the National League slugging championship with an average of .577 on 367 total bases in 636 times at bat.

Rookie Bill Salkeld of Pittsburgh, who played in only 95 games, was second, followed in order by Whitey Kurowski of St. Louis, Cavarretta and Mel Ott of New York.

Slugging averages, released today, often yield some interesting information about players low in the regular batting average column.

For instance, Vince DiMaggio of the Phillies, ho led the circuit in striking out for the fourth straight year with 91 and hit only .257, was up in the first 10 of the 100-game regulars in slugging. Stan Hack of Chicago, fourth in batting, was dropped to 21st in slugging and Don Johnson of the Cubs, a top hitter all season, was down around the No. 40 spot in slugging percentage.

Walker RBI Champ

Dixie Walker of Brooklyn, dethroned as batting champ, made up for it somewhat by annexing his first title in runs batted in with 124. It was the first time in his career he had driven home more than 100 runs.

Ed Stanky of Brooklyn established a new league record for drawing bases on balls with 148, one more than James Scheckard of Chicago had back in 1911.

Babe Dahlgren of Pittsburgh, the top fielding first sacker, grounded into the most double plays, 23, and the Pirates as a team led in that department with 122, a partial explanation of their disappointing season.

Mel Ott added two more marks to the books by walking 71 times upping his lifetime total to 1,700 and by driving in 79 runs increased his league record total to 1,856 RIBs.

New York as a club showed the way in slugging percentage, Brooklyn batted in the most runs and Cincinnati added to a dreary season by striking out the most times.

Only bright spot in the Reds' record came in extra-inning performances. Pittsburgh led by taking 11 of 15 overtime battles but Cincinnati was second with 10 of 15. Chicago played only six extra inning tilts all season, winning four.

The St. Louis pitching staff earned 18 shutouts and their hitters were blanked only five times to show the way with New York next.

Proving the old adage that a pennant club must be able to win consistently on the road, Chicago set the pace for the circuit both away and at Wrigley Field.

Barnhill Named New Coach At Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK, Dec. 21. (AP)—John H. Barnhill, athletic director and head coach at the University of Tennessee since 1941, was employed as head coach at the University of Arkansas today to succeed Glen Rose.

The university board of trustees said he had agreed to terms at $10,000 a year for five year. He will take over Jan. 1.

Rose was named athletic business manager today at a $4,000 annual salary. Rose stepped out as head coach after a disasterous 1945 season.

Barnhill, 42, announced that Herbert "Deek" Brackett of Knoxville, who quarterbacked the famous Tennessee teams in 1932, '33 and '34, would be his backfield coach. George Cole, long-time member of the Arkansas athletic staff principally freshman mentor and scout, was retained. The new coach said he would announce the other two members of his staff within a few days.

The university board announced Barnhill's selection after a three hour session which climaxed a two months search for a coach. It acted on the recommendation of an independent advisory committee of fans which was designated to receive applications for the job. The committee had sifted more than 50 applications. The 1945 legislature had authorized the board to pay $12,500 annually for a head coach.

Aggies Get Two Touchdown Nod

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 21 (AP)—The bookmakers believe the Oklahoma A. and M. Cowboys will beat the Gaels of St. Mary's in the Sugar Bowl here by two touchdowns—a bigger margin than has actually decided any game played in the bowl.

Local bet-takers today were offering 12 points against St. Mary's and asking 14 against the Aggies.

Don't Know Why

Most of the bookies were hazy about the reason for the odds, for although they can tell the maternal great-grandsire of every bangtail at the fair grounds, few of them know a lateral pass from a left tackle. "The odds came down the line," was the only available explanation.

However, they were following the gamblers' old rule of riding with a winner. The Aggies have beaten their last 18 collegiate opponents; the Gaels were upset by UCLA in their most recent start.

Moreover, the Cowboys have great advantages in weight, maturity, experience and reserve strength.

Of the 44 Aggies who helped beat Texas Christian in the Cotton Bowl last January, 11 returned this season—and if Coach Jim Lookabaugh had handpicked them he would have chosen almost the same 11. Six returning service men—four of them first-stringers—also have bolstered the squad.

St. Mary's on the other hand starts nine freshmen and two juniors, and uses only about 15 men in its tougher games.

War Veterans Form Oklahoma Aggie Club

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 21 (AP)—Contrasting products of wartime football—combat veterans and teen-age freshmen—will feature the respective supporting casts for All-American Halfbacks Bob Fenimore and Herman Wedemeyer in the Sugar bowl football game.

Four ex-soldiers who saw plenty of shooting will probably start with Fenimore for Oklahoma A. and M., and nine pink-cheeked freshmen are expected to take the field with Wedemeyer for St. Mary's Gaels.

Some of the Aggie veterans were playing college football when most of the current Gaels were hardly big enough for a high school junior team.

Jim Reynolds, for instance, was first-string tailback in 1941, before he took time out to fly 52 fighter missions over Europe.

Bert Cole, reserve tackle in 1941, became a bomber pilot, was forced down in Czechoslovakia, hooked up with some guerrillas and dropped to a quarterback's weight on a potato soup diet. He gained enough, however, to take a starting tackle berth this season.

Others Saw Action

J. D. Cheek, the other tackle, was a national guardsman and went across with the 45th division. Center Otis Schellstede dropped with the paratroopers on D day. Tackle Terry Monroe and Center Bob Hargrove are war veterans serving as reserves.

Throughout the regular season, the Gaels' first team was composed of Wedemeyer, "Spike" Cordeiro and nine freshmen. Although outweighed in seven of its eight games, however, an all-frosh line wielded only one of the five touchdowns scored on St. Mary's during the year. Passes brought the others.

Babe Named Athlete Of Year In AP Poll

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (AP)—Mildred (Babe) Didrikson Zaharias has been voted the woman athlete of 1945 by sports writers participating in the annual Associated Press poll and in doing so equalled one record and set two others.

As Mildred Didrikson she won the honor in 1932 because of her track ability. Now, 13 years later, she repeated because of her prowess as a golfer.

Mrs. Zaharias, wife of Wrestler George Zaharias, thus becomes the second woman to reign twice, Alice Marble dominating the field in 1939 and 1940 when she was the world tennis queen.

Ann Curtis of San Francisco, winner of the 1944 award for revising 18 swimming marks, finished second to Mrs. Zaharias, 126 points to 104.

Gen. George S. Patton

He Had A Great Fighting Heart

"OLD BLOOD AND GUTS" is dead.

It's like saying the Rock of Gibralter has dissolved and fallen into the sea. Gen. George Smith Patton, jr., seemed that indestructible. It is difficult to believe that Patton, always a winner, is now a loser.

When his physicians took him off the "critical" list a few days ago, the world sighed: "Old George has done it again." It had been the same countless times in North Africa, Sicily, France and Germany—everywhere in Europe. He had always come out on top.

In the days following the accident in which his sedan was in collision with a truck, the reports from his hospital bed told of the courage and the high spirits with which he faced his sudden afflictions. The thought was general that a brave attitude and his stubborn will to overcome adversities would pull him through. The thought was echoed only yesterday in a Morning Avalanche editorial. But even the iron will of a Patton could not stave off the inexorable effects of a bronchial infection which feasted on his weakened condition. His time had come; he had to go.

While the general doubtless had his full share of the faults which plague mankind, he was a great man and, without question, a great fighter. His men attest to that. He was no rear echelon man. He took his chances right up there with the doughfoots. He inspired his men to feats which they, themselves, thought impossible. He was a teamwork man; he wanted no individual heroes in his outfit. He believed that every man, from the quartermaster private who boiled the drinking water to the division brigadier, had a vital job to do for victory. He loved the American way of life and hated the fascist ideals of the enemy with every fiber of his being. He played the game to win and instilled in his men a virtual immunity to the thought of surrender.

The world owes a great debt to Patton, for it was he who was responsible for a large part of the victory over the German aggressors. And everywhere there must be sadness at the passing of the man whose fighting heart is unsurpassed in all military history.

Main Street Steps Out

THE greatest and most expensive face-lifting job in all history is getting under way along America's Main Street.

During the next few years new shops, stores, restaurants, office buildings, service centers and hotels will blossom forth in business sections from Lubbock to Fresno and back to Albany.

A survey by American Builder, building industry trade journal, gives this picture of the future: 50,000 new commercial structures in 1946; 100,000 in 1947; 150,000 in 1948 and 200,000 in 1949.

On top of that, business men are reported planning to spend $500,000,000 for re-styling and repairing in 1946.

Among cities which will be in the forefront of new construction and repair will be Lubbock, which recently obtained $249,000 building permits in a single day. Given the materials and labor, Lubbock will change more in appearance in the next five years than in all the past 15 years. The city may not be content with a mere face-lifting operation; indications are that it may not be satisfied with anything less than an almost complete set of new features.

Coming: The Aerial Cop

IN Faribault, Minn., a criminal held up a bank cashier at the point of a gun and escaped with $485 by taxicab and airplane. Since he hired both cab and plane for the getaway, his venture in crime could not have been highly profitable. Bolder and more ambitious brigands may in the future own their own airplanes, or helicopters.

Criminal escape by automobile is now made difficult by the high-powered and radio-equipped police car. And so it is probably only a matter of time until the wrongdoer abandons the traditional "black sedan" for a speedy, low-wing job with a pitch prop. This, of course, would bring the aerial cop who would patrol the skies as the present-day gendarmes prowl through city streets.

Yes, it looks as if Sherlock Holmes is going to have to learn to fly.

"If you'll quit eating before you have enough, you will always have a good appetite," asserts a physician. Perhaps so, but who wants to go around hungry all the time?

A teacher of singing says whether or not a crooner breathes correctly is of little importance. There are those who think that whether he breathes at all is not of major importance.

Marshall's Report On The War

By Gen. George C. Marshall
Wartime Chief Of Staff

(This is the 30th of 42 installments of material selected from General Marshall's report on the winning of World War II.

ADVANCE WESTWARD

FROM the Gilberts, Admiral Nimitz turned to operation FLINTLOCK—the seizure of several atolls in the Marshall Islands. On 31 January 1944, after two days of intense air and naval bombardment, the 7th Division, veteran of Attu, landed on the southern islands of Kwajalein Atoll, while the 4th Marine Division attacked the northern tip at Namur and Roi. These divisions were part of the V Marine Amphibious Corps, commanded by Maj. Gen. Holland M. Smith. By 8 February all resistance had ceased. General Richardson wrote me after a flight to the Marshalls:

MARSHALL

"As a result of the air, naval, and artillery bombardment, the scene at Kwajalein was one of great devastation. The destruction was complete. Upon approaching it from the lagoon side, it gave the appearance of no-man's land in World War I and was even gerater, I think, than that of Betio on Tarawa. With the exception of the rubble left by concrete structures, there were no buildings standing. All those which had been made of any other material except concrete had been completely burned or destroyed. The result was that there were practically no stores left except a few packages of rice an da little clothing and ammunition scattered here and there."

Majuro, with its excellent naval anchorage, was also occupied. Then after heavy attacks by carrier planes, a combat team of the 27th Division and a Marine combat team landed on Eniwetok Atoll on 19 February and completed its capture on 22 February. Control of the Marshalls enabled the interduction by air of the enemy naval base at Truk until the advance into the Carolines could definitely isolate it. Truk also came under attack by Thirteenth Air Force B-24's based in the Admiralties.

Airfields Gained

Concurrent with these moves were operations in the Southwest against the western end of New Britain, to establish control of Vitiaz and Dampier Straits. On 15 December 1943 a reinforced cavalry regiment landed on three beaches in the Arawe area. The airdrome on Cape Gloucester was a desirable link in the chain of bases necessary to permit the air forces to pave the way for further advances. During a period of weeks the area was subjected to intensive aerial bombardment and on 26 December the 1st Marine Division landed and 4 days later captured the airdrome. By mid-March joint operations of the Marines and the Army's Arawe Force had secured western New Britain. While this fighting was in progress General MacArthur's advance westward continued. On 2 January 1944 a regiment combat team of the 32d Division made a jump of 110 miles to land near Saidor, on the north coast of New Guinea, and 7 January an airstrip was in use.

The Admiralty Islands, lying west of the Bismarck Archipelago, were strategically important because of their airfields and harbor. An operation was originally scheduled for April 1944, but on 29 February General MacArthur accompanied advance elements of the 1st Cavalry Division, transported on Vice Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid's Seventh Fleet destroyers and high-speed transports to reconnoiter Los Negros Island. He was prepared to follow in force if the situation warranted. Little opposition was found, and the remainder of the division was committed. Momote airdrome was captured, and the beachhead secured after a series of fanatical counterattacks. During the remainder of March and the early part of April, the occupation of Manus and the adjacent islands was completed.

Jap Surprised at Hollandia

The next move to Hollandia and Aitape on 22 April involved a leapfrog advance westward of more than 400 miles. Since the landings were beyond the effective range of Army fighters, air support was provided by naval carriers. At Hollandia were located three excellent Jap airfields, and Humbolt Bay was suitable as an advanced naval and supply base. The airfields were found to reach overland, so General MacArthur occupied Titape and based fighters on the airstrip there. Three main landings were made by troops of the 24th, 32d, and 41st Divisions of Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger's I Corps, one just east of Aitape, one in Humbolt Bay, and one in Tanahmerah Bay. The Jap was taken by surprise; fewer than 5,000 of his troops were in the entire Hollandia area. By 30 April airfields there were in our hands. General Krueger's Sixth Army Headquarters moved into Hollandia 6 July 1944; General MacArthur brought his headquarters up from Brisbane on 8 September 1944. On this same date General Eichelberger was assigned to command the newly activated Eighth Army with headquarters also at Hollandia.

The Hollandia-Aitape operation cut off more than 50,000 Japanese troops to the eastward. The advance westward was continued in mid-May when elements of the 41st Division made an unopposed landing near Arara. A few days later a regiment of the same division captured the offshore island of Wakde with its airstrip and extended the beachhead on the mainland to include Maffin Bay.

Later in the month our 41st Division landed 330 miles farther west on Biak Island, strategically located off Geelvink Bay. The 8000 well-equipped Japanese troops on the island put up fierce resistance, and it was 22 June before Biak's three airfields were in use. In another surprise attack, this time supported by paratroops, a regimental combat team occupied Noemfoor Island in early July. The possession of the airfield at this point gave much needed breadth and depth to the air deployment, permitting the further penetration and dislocation of enemy supply lines in the Southwest Pacific. By this time Japanese air had almost disappeared from the New Guinea area except for an occasional raid on landing craft or over established beachheads.

A landing at Sansapor on 30 July by elements of our 6th Division secured air and naval bases still further west, on the Vogelkop Peninsula. Although 18,000 Japanese garrisoned the Vogelkop Peninsula, General MacArthur again caught the enemy off balance and resistance was slight.

Looking At Life ------ By Erich Brandeis

WHENEVER I come to New York—which, to my regret, I have to do quite often—I am impressed with the terrible impersonality of the place.

For instance, from my window, high up in the center of the city, I see thousands of people passing by. There are women in mink coats and women in shabby clothes. There are children and men of all ages and sizes and stations in life.

BRANDEIS

Everybody is in a hurry, everybody must get somewhere as quickly as possible.

But of all the thousands that pass, I see no one I know, I am so high up I don't think I'd recognize a familiar face.

Take Brookfield, on the other hand.

There aren't many people passing by. But every one of those who do pass is someone I know. And I not only know him or her, but I know pretty much all there is to be known about them.

I know that little Linda just got over her cold and that her father is expected home tomorrow from overseas.

There goes old man — I'd better not mention his name— in his broken-down car. He looks worried and he'd better be. Tomorrow he will have to go to court and answer a charge of slaughtering cattle without a license.

Here comes Mrs. Young with little Cynthia, whom she has just fetched home from kindergarten. I know what's in those packages she has on the back seat of her car—supplies for the week end when her husband is coming out—and I know that she bought the stuff from Carl's market three miles up the road.

I know what church everybody goes to and I know the Sundays they miss and why they missed them.

I know who has a cold and who their doctor is and what he prescribed for them. I know all the scandal and all the gossip and all the romances and I know who owes money to whom and how much.

SOMETIMES I think it's pretty awful, because we really moved out into the country to have some privacy and now we find that their is less privacy in the country than anywhere else.

But then I look down upon New York and its millions—and across the street there is a big apartment house with a lot of cubbyholes in which people do all sorts of things that mean nothing when you don't know them, so much when they are your neighbors in Brookfield.

Here in New York man amounts to so little—seven million of them all crowded together in space not much larger than a good-sized farm in Texas or California.

But in Brookfield and in thousands of other places just like Brookfield, man is still the ruler of his little kingdom of independence and human dignity.

And if all the world were like Brookfield and the thousands of other places like Brookfield, there would never be wars nor strikes nor race riots nor any of the other adjuncts of our 100-mile-an-hour civilization.

Because, where people know each other, respect each other, depend on each other and help each other, there had better be peace and good will—or else—.

Lobbyists Too Active!

Maritime Commission Loses Out

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker.

A RASH of letters and telegrams from steamship interests that swamped Capitol Hill lies behind the failure to exempt the Maritime commission along with similar quasi-judicial agencies from the operation of the government reorganization as finally passed by Congress. The lobbyists outsmarted themselves at the last moment.

Ironically, the men who inspired the literary bombardment of Congressmen were Vice Admiral Emory S. Land and Vice Admiral Howard L. Vickery, the chairman and vice chairman, respectively, of the Maritime commission. With billions of dollars' worth of war-built vessels to be sold, they wanted to boss the job. They did not care to have their unit put under control of Henry A. Wallace as Secretary of Commerce.

TUCKER

So, when the House bill left Maritime to the mercy of unsympathetic reorganizers, the two retired sailors slipped to New York to address a private meeting of the Propeller club of the city. This nation-wide organization consists of men whose companies furnish supplies, materials and services to ships operated under the commission's control. It is charged that they have had the run of the place during the Land-Vickery regime.

LESSON: Sen. George L. Radcliffe of Maryland persuaded the Senate to accept his floor amendment eliminating Maritime from the list of independent offices which could be abolished or merged or reshuffled at the discretion of the President. It was placed in a group of "untouchables" with such agencies as the Interstate Commerce, Federal Trade and Securities and Exchange commissions.

Until the Propeller club began to flood the Congressional mailbags with identical letters urging the House-Senate conferees to approve the Radcliffe revision, there was every expectation that the change would be okayed. But at one of the final meetings of the conference group the normally good-the normally good-natured John J. Cochran of St. Louis blurted out:

"I don't know how you fellows feel about it, but I'm so sick of getting letters from these Propeller boys that I intend to sit here until the end of the session and protest against exempting the Maritime commission from this bill. I think it's time to teach these lobbyists-by-mail a damn' good lesson. My office staff is overworked without having to bother with their stuff."

His colleagues agreed that they were fed up, too, and the Land-Vickery scheme was defeated at the last moment.

FAVORS: The commission will probably be returned to Commerce, where it originally belonged, because President Truman has detailed knowledge of condition in the agency. He investigated several shipping transactions when he headed the Senate committee that investigated the state of the national defense.

He discovered that the two top members, especially Admiral Vickery, make no bones about their constant and personal association with representatives of the large steamship interests. The vice chairman is frequently seen at downtown hotels at lunch or dinner with them. As the man actually in charge of the postwar disposal of millions of tons of shipping ,his conduct has been regarded as somewhat indiscreet.

Admiral Land is quitting soon to become head of the Air Transport Association. The CIO is boosting former Congressman Raymond J. McKeough of Illinois as his successor. He had trouble getting Senate confirmation when he was appointed to the Commission because of his PAC activities in the 1944 campaign. He headed the CIO's political auxiliary in the Midwest.

But it is believed that President Truman may seek to appease the Hillman-Murray group, especially the National Maritime Union of America, with the McKeough selection, which does not require Senate approval. Messrs. Wallace and McKeough could do many favors for their labor friends along the waterfront if they dominate this agency's future policies.

TEXAS
By Gordon Shearer

AUSTIN.—Did you ever hear the story of the "Talking Books?"

It's a fascinating account of how happiness and confidence have been brought to the blind — young and old.

Actually, the "Talking Books" themselves are the story-tellers. For they are recordings by a person of excellent voice reading good books ranging from Western and mystery stories to classical literature and the Bible.

But these interesting records are for the blind only. If your sight is good don't think you can buy them. They can't be bought — because they're loaned free of charge as is the handsome electric phonograph which plays them.

METHOD: You wonder what it's all about. Here is how this unusual and helpful service works.

The Texas State library is one of the 27 libraries in the nation and Hawaii which distributes "Talking Books." They are sent to the various distribution centers by the Library of Congress. The State Commission for the Blind distributes the portable phonographs, which also are provided through the Library of Congress.

Application for one of the especially-built phonographs first is made to the Commission for the Blind. When this is approved, the machine is sent to the applicant and the State library is notified.

From the library then is sent, let's say, that clever, hilarious adventure, "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay," by Cornelia Otis Skinner and Emily Kimbrough about their unescorted trip abroad in the 1920's.

This book is on 14 records. Miss Skinner, herself, is one of the readers on the recording. (Many outhors record their books, and popular radio announcers, such as Clifton Fadiman also assist.)

COMPLETE: When the records arrive snugly packed in a neat, black composition container all the blind person has to do is start playing them and listening. Even the phonograph needles are furnished.

Time limit on keeping a "Talking Book" is two weeks. And the person must use at least one book in two months to be permitted to keep the machine — unless there's a valid excuse. The library and blind commission, however, are very considerate about the time restrictions.

Fastened to the container is a self-addressed card for returning the records to the state library. There's no postage to pay, for the mails transport the records free under a special act of Congress.

RECORDS: Miss Adele Mitchell and Miss Nell Earnest in the state library keep a detailed record of each "Talking Book" which a person receives. This system prevents sending the same book more than once.

There are some of the blind who have preferences in the type of reading to which they listen. Majority of the 500 blind—and especially the elderly women — who receive the books ask for the Bible. Because there are so many requests for it, it is impossible to supply all at once.

Currently there are five war-blinded veterans on the list. There likely will be many more. One of the present listeners — who enjoys history, sports and travel most of all — is at the Army's McCloskey General hospital at Temple.

SCOPE: The blind are not "shallow" readers, librarians say. They desire books that not only entertain, but which are helpful.

There's most every type of good reading in the "Talking Books." There are records that deal with aviation, biographies, the blind, civilian defense, description-travel adventure, drama, essays, belles letters, fiction, history, law, literary history and criticism, nursing, music, philosophy, poetry, political science, religion and ethics, science and natural history and sociolgy — and there are still others.

Third Party Talk Said Gaining

Progressive In Both Parties Seek Leader

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON — It is time to take note of the third party talk now going on—lively, even if wishful at this stage.

It is interesting chiefly as a symptom of the dissatisfaction among groups in both parties over the present leadership of each.

STOKES

Progressive and left-wing elements in the Democratic party are grumbling about the Truman administration. These include the still powerful CIO labor ally of the last election. They criticize the President for failure to get through Congress the program of measures supported by progressives and labor that he recommended some months ago.

They would like for him to do something bold and dramatic to call the country's attention to the blocking tactics so successfully used by some southern Democratic leaders who occupy strategic posts in Congress. Thus far, the southern bloc has paid little heed to Mr. Truman.

It is natural for a discontented group to look around for a champion. The most logical one in the Democratic party is Henry Wallace. He has chosen hitherto to try to liberalize the party from within. But now some of the progressive and left-wing elements would like to induce him to leave the Truman cabinet and head a progressive movement that might end up in a third party, or might try to promote his own nomination by the Democrats in 1948.

There are obvious obstacles, well-nigh insuperable in modern politics, to either of these courses. Third parties are precarious because of the handicaps imposed nw in so many state laws. Democrats feel that a third party, progressive in makeup, would result only in electing a Republican. As for the other course, the Democrats can do nothing but renominate Mr. Truman. Not to do so would be a confession of failure before the voters.

IN THE Republican party there likewise is considerable discontent among progressives with their party leadership, both in and out of Congress. This has been exhibited from time to time—most recently in the rebellion of 39 first and second-term Republican House members who made it plain they did not want to be bound by every pronouncement of the party leadership in Congress.

This dissatisfaction among progressive Republicans also was manifest in criticism of the so-called interim party "platform" for the Congressional elections drafted by the party leadership in Congress and submitted to the Republican National committee at its Chicago meeting.

Republican PAC Urged

The most recent crusade to liberalize the Republican party comes from Newbold Morris, who attracted national attention when he rolled up 408,000 votes in the New York mayoralty election—more than the Republican candidate—running as an independent.

He advocated creation of an organization within the Republican party similar to CIO's Political Action Committee "to root out reactionary Republican leaders." His suggestion was in an address to the National Citizens PAC, which he criticized for tying itself to the Democratic party.

HIS proposed organization, he said, "would not be limited to Republicans, any more than the PAC membership is confined to Democrats and American Laborites. But by the natural force of circumstance, it would be preponderantly Republican just as PAC has been preponderantly Democratic.

"The eventual merger of these two groups into one great body of independents would depend on the good will and the political outlook of both groups."

Such a merger could be the foundation of a third party.

All this churning around within both parties is significant. It may become more so if returning veterans become active politically.

It is a healthy sign and if it jacks up both parties to take another look at themselves it will serve a useful purpose.

American Delegation For UNO Approved

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20. (AP)—The complete American delegation to the first formal session of the United Nations organization bore Senate approval today—after a two hour scrap.

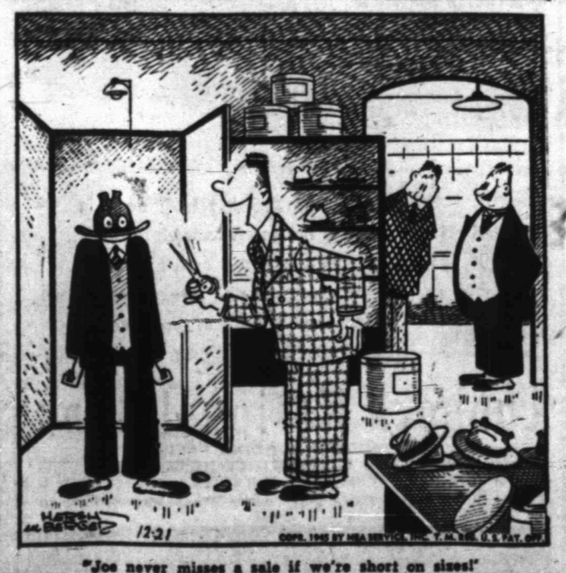

Four of President Truman's selections underwent sharp criticism from various senators yesterday, but it was abvious from the start that the entire group was going to receive overwhelming approval. It came by voice votes, for:

Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., former secretary of state, as representative on the security council adn also to the first session of the general assembly to be held in London early in January.

Senators Tom Connally (D-Tex) and Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich) and Mrs. Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, the late President's widow, as assembly representatives.

Rep. Sol Bloom (D-NY), Rep. Charles A. Eaton (R-NJ), former Postmaster General Frank C. Walker, John Foster Dulles of New York, and former Republican Senator John G. Townsend, Jr., of Delaware as alternate representatives to the first assembly session.

Two Suspects Caught In Houston Burglary

HOUSTON, Dec. 21 (UP)—A $25,000 burglary, described as the biggest in Houston in 20 years, was revealed by police today with an announcement two suspects had been arrested and the loot recovered.

Thieves broke into a jewelry store and loan company Wednesday night and took $12,000 in cash, 300 rings valued at up to $200 each, a $1200.00 diamond ring and $1,300 in novelty pins, watches and a pistol.

Two negro ex-convicts were arrested today and Lt. W. L. McGrew, of the police force, said they admitted the burglary. Part of the lot was found in the bedroom of one of the men in Houston where he was arrested.

The second negro was arrested at Navasota, Tex., by a highway patrolman after receiving reports of a negro man spending money lavishly. Despite the jewelry taken in the buglary the suspect had purchased a diamond ring, wrist watch and necklace for his girl friend. He had more than $1,100 in his pocket when arrested.

Abandoned Military Bases May Be Used

AUSTIN, Dec. 21 (AP)—Chairman Weaver Baker of the Board of Control announced today that the attorney general has given the board authority to proceed on development of abandoned military establishments to care for pressing eleemosynary needs.

The essence of an opinion handed down today is that the board may legally spend unused balances of its appropriation for reconverting, repairing and if necessary, adding buildings to several Army installations it has been dickering for.

More than $1,000,000 is available for the program if that much is needed, Baker said. He said the board would redouble its efforts to obtain possession of several former military installations it needs.

These include Fort Ringgold near Rio Grande City which the board houes to use as a tubercular hospital. This project has met some opposition which Baker said he hoped could be eliminated in view of the pressing need for an institution of this type.

Another is the former prisoner of war camp at Mexia, which the board wants to use as a school for handicapped children who are wards of the state. Another is the former prisoner of war camp at Brady, which would be used as a juvenile training school for negro girls.

He said he had been informed that Fort McIntosh at Laredo has not yet been declared surplus, and that if it is, several federal government agencies might claim priority for its use. The board had hoped it might be reconverted into a tubercular hospital.

Vets Of 36th To Be Home For Holidays

TYLER, Dec. 21. (UP)—Most of the veterans of the Fighting 36th division who arrived here on two trains yesterday will be home tomorrow night, civilians again.

Tired, cold, dirty but supremely happy, they are being rushed through the separation center at Camp Fannin today.

For many it ill be the first Christmas at home in years.

Processing began yesterday immediately following arrival of the two trains.

The men are billeted here, given one complete and clean uniform to wear home, instructed of their privileges under the GI Bill of Rights, carried through complete physical examinations, counseled on civilian life and pursuits, and given decorations they failed to receive during the hurried life of combat troops.

Following processing, there is a moment of silent prayer for buddies who did not come back, and for the men still wounded.

Then they receive their discharges. All, that is, except a few who will remain here for medical treatment.

Among the Texans being processed were Pfc. Wimert A. Hargiss of Marshall, Pfc. Hubert C. Spurgeon of Cirsicana, Pfc. Jesse Haines of Denison, and Sgt. Gibbs F. Wall of Paris.

Relief For Victims Of Volcano Planned

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 21. (UP)—President Avila Camacho today announced that the ministries of treasury and agriculture will administer relief funds to victims in the area of the active volcano Paricutin.

Paricutin — which suddenly erupted in a corn field in Michoacan state in February, 1943—has covered thousands of acres with lava and showered many thousands more with volcanic ash.

Most damage caused by the volcano was in the sugar cane regions of San Sebastian, Los Reyes and Santa Clara, in Michoacan state.

The federal government will spend $25,000 to build new irrigation ditches in the areas, $36,000 for insecticides to be imported from the United States and $254,000 to provide seedlings and machinery for destitue cane growers.

No Immediate Cut In Pensions Foreseen

AUSTIN, Dec. 21. (AP)—John Winters, executive director of the Department of Public welfare today foresees no immediate cut in pension payments but expressed doubt as to how long a cut can be stalled off.

Checks to 175,804 pensioners, averaging approximately $24.65, will be placed in the mails Jan. 2, Winters said after a conference with Gov. Coke R. Stevenson. There has been an increase of 1,355 pensioners this months but winters said enough funds were in sight to pay January checks without a reduction.

Stevenson told a press conference that a 40 cent (40 cent) cut in the average check might soon be necessary, probably for February. Winters agreed that this was likely but that factors bearing on future payments were still uncertain.

Increased payments in January amount to $62,812, Winters said.

U. S. Public, Uninformed, Cold To Big Loan To Great Britain

By GEORGE GALLUP DIRECTOR
American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J.—Government leaders who favor the proposed four billion dollar loan to Britain still have the job of informing the American voting public about Britain's need for the loan on the one hand, and the advantages which this country will enjoy in making the loan on the other.

Attempts to enlighten the public in these respects have to date not met with marked success.

GALLUP

At the present time a majority of the American voting public do not think England has to have this loan to get back on its feet.

Moreover, about half of the voters do not think the United States stands to gain anything from extending the loan.

These two facts are shown by replies to the following questions asked of a cross-section of voters throughout the United States:

"Do you think England has to have this loan to get back on its feet?"

Yes	28%
No	52
No opinion	22

"If we make this loan, do you think that the United States as well as England will benefit from this in addition to the interest paid us on the loan?"

The replies:

Yes	31%
No	49
No opinion	20

On the question of Britain's need of the loan, there is remarkable uniformity of opinion among all educational groups. On the question of benefits, however, a majority of college trained people say they think the United States will get other benefits besides interest on the loan.

Other factors which undoubtedly influence public thinking on the issue of the British loan:

1—There is widespread feeling that any loan to Britain will never be paid back. This is shown in a survey which found that one-half of the persons with opinions on the matter felt that a loan would not be repaid. This feeling may stem from the public's belief that Britain failed to repay her World War I debt.

2—From the beginning, there was widespread misunderstanding in this country of the concept of lend-lease. Surveys by the Institute have always found that a majority of voters here in the United States expected that lend-lease goods would be paid for in full or in part either in goods or money.

Moreover, a majority of the public has been found to be unaware of reverse lend-lease, under which Britain provided us with billions of dollars worth of goods.

Three Killed By Gas Poison In Floydada

FLOYDADA, Dec. 21. (Special)—Three victims of carbon monoxide poisoning — Mrs. Leland Woodward, 23, and two daughters, Patsy, 3, and Nancy Beth, 3 months—were buried after a service read this afternoon by Grady Pricer, Church of Christ minister, at the First Methodist church.

The family lived near Campbell which is seven miles east of Floydada. Leland Woodward, the husband and father, left home early Wednesday on a business trip and when he returned home shortly after 4 p. m., he found the family in various states of unconsciousness. The victims were rushed to the Floydada hospital but Mrs. Woodward and the baby were dead upon arrival. Patsy died about 11:55 p. m. Thursday in the hospital.

Fourth Critically Ill

A fourth victim of the poisoning, Mrs. Doyle Woodward, 47, of San Diego, mother of Leland Woodward, is in a critical condition. She was here to spend the holidays with the family.

Neighbors reported that a gas tank had been installed last Tuesday and that the family suffered headaches, but thought their discomfort was due to fumes from paint on new stoves. Dr. Guthrie of the Floydada hospital attributed the deaths to carbon monoxide poisoning.

Mrs. Leland Woodward was the former Miss Marie Harrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Harrison of Floydada. She was born and reared in Floyd county. Other survivors are a sister, Mrs. Blanton Hartsell and a brother, Milton.

Burial was in the Lakeview cemetery under direction of Harmon Funeral home.
