Mrs. W. E. Marchant Hurt in 2-Car Collision

Mrs. W. E. Marchant was painfully injured in an intersection collision Saturday, June 20 about 3:30 p.m., 7 miles north of Carter, Okla. Her condition is improving in Community Hospital, Elk City, where she was taken following the accident, but it is not yet known when she will be able to return home, Mr. Marchant told The Wellington Leader Tuesday morning.

She received a concussion that is not believed to be serious, two cuts on her head and both internal and external bruises, Marchant said.

With Mrs. Marchant at the time of the accident was her daughter, Pam, 16, who had only minor injuries and was treated at the Elk City Hospital and then released.

The accident occurred in the intersection of Oklahoma highways 152 and 34 as Mrs. Marchant was driving north toward Elk City, her husband reported, and her car was hit broadside. It was a total loss. The driver of the other vehicle, Ray Linn, about 20, of Del City, Okla., died instantly. He was traveling east.

A number of friends have visited Mrs. Marchant at Elk City and she is able to have company, Marchant said.

Wells Attend NEA Convention

Representing The Wellington Leader at the annual convention of the National Editorial Association in New York are its editor and publisher, Deskins Wells, Mrs. Wells, and their son, Henry.

Accompanying them are her sister, Mrs. Irving West of San Antonio, and their niece, Pam Frost of Wichita Falls.

A tour of the World's Fair and other points of interest in New York is planned for the more than 800 editors and their families.

Wells will return to Wellington at the end of the NEA convention, while the remainder of the party will stop in Washington, D.C., for a short visit. The group left Dallas by plane Wednesday morning. The convention will continue until Monday, June 29.

The National Editorial Association membership is comprised of publishers and editors of weekly and non-metropolitan daily papers. A Texas is president of NEA this year, Max Thomas of The Kerrville Times. A Texas city, Dallas, has already been selected as the 1965 convention city.

Plane Available

Seek to Interest City in Civil Air Patrol Unit

Interest has been shown recently in reorganizing a Civil Air Patrol Squadron, Cliff Hartman of Marian Airpark reported this week.

The Wellington Flying Club is taking the initiative to determine if this interest is sufficient to support the CAP unit, and all those interested are urged to contact Hartman or any member of the club.

At least 12 members are required for a squadron, Hartman explained, and if these can be enrolled, the Air Force will furnish a plane to the local unit. The only expense is for oil and gas.

A program of study and work would be carried out, and in case of an emergency the Squadron would be subject to call for duty.

County Wheat Harvest Yields 200,000 Bushels

Harvesting of Collingsworth's wheat crop is all but finished, and the yield was considerably above predictions made when cutting started.

Buyers at Wellington and Dodson have estimated a 193,000 bushel crop that added more than a quarter of a million dollars—$285,000—to wheat farmers' pockets.

The harvest was finished just one jump ahead of the devastating hail that spotted the south half of the county Saturday night, June 20.

Still it was a shorter crop than last year, buyers agree. The per acre yield, county-wide, has been placed at from 12 to 15 bushels.

The top yield for wheat marketed here was 38 bushels per acre on a 119 acre field grown by Fred Cox of Loco. It was irrigated and fertilized.

Duard Luck, another extensive grower, had a 29 bushel average in the Arlie community.

Top dry land yields were between 20 and 25 bushels, with Ralph Tennison of the Salt Fork community harvesting a 23-bushel average.

The quality of the wheat was good, with most of it testing No. 1, buyers report.

The price of wheat this year averaged, for the season as a whole, around $1.43 per bushel, one buyer reported.

W. C. Needham, Retired Farmer, Dies Monday

William Columbus Needham, retired farmer and county resident 12 years, died in St. Joseph's Hospital Monday, June 22 at 10 p.m. He was 86.

Mr. Needham lived in Dallas county before coming here to make his home with a nephew, Walter Needham.

Funeral services were conducted at Faith Baptist Church Tuesday at 1:30 p.m., with the Rev. Carroll Harmon, pastor, officiating. Pallbearers were Lloyd Parker, Earl Parker, R. B. Lucas, Jack Clifton, Ross Blythe and Ray Scott.

Kelso Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

After the service here, his body was taken to Carrollton, near Dallas, where funeral services were conducted at 2 p.m. Wednesday, with burial in the Carrollton cemetery.

Mr. Needham was born in Springfield, Missouri, April 11, 1878. He was a member of the Baptist Church.

Survivors are three sons: Jim Needham, Fowler Needham and Clint Needham, of Chicago, Ill.; a granddaughter, Mrs. Carl Cooper of Amarillo; two great grandchildren, and a number of nieces and nephews.

High Tide Wins Honors at Two Shows

A Wellington Appaloosa, High Tide, placed eighth in the junior reining contest at the National Appaloosa Horse Show, which closed Sunday, June 21 at Albuquerque, N.M.

The handsome spotted stallion is owned by Richard Nall and Paul Guthrie.

Only two weeks earlier he won the junior reigning champion trophy and rosette in the 7th Annual Appaloosa Horse Show at Plainview.

In the same show he placed second in the junior cutting contest and fifth in the halter class for 1960 stallions.

This is the first year High Tide has gone on the slow circuit.

Earlier he took honors at Appaloosa Shows at Shawnee, Okla., and Bovina.

Nall, who handled High Tide at the Plainview and Albuquerque shows, entered him in the junior cutting contest, the Nez Perce stake race and Prairie Stump race.

Hail, Rain and Sand Damage Young Cotton on Saturday

Hail and hard rain lashed the county Saturday night, June 20 and cut down cotton in large but spotted areas over the south half of the county.

This was followed on Sunday night by high winds that whipped sand from the rain-packed fields and burned not only the cotton damaged 24 hours earlier, but other fields that had escaped.

Some property damage also was reported.

Jack Kopp of the Farmers

Co-op Gin, Wellington, estimated that from 20 to 25 per cent of the cotton will have to be replanted due either to the hail or burning wind. Ed Crowder of Dodson Co-op Enterprises, Tom Crabtree, Quail merchant, made similar reports from their areas.

The high winds, hail and rain came Saturday about 4 to 8 p.m. with great variations over the area.

Wellington had high winds and .17 inch of rain.

Fresno had 1.25 inches of rain and some hail. Elvis Crawley reported he will have to replant one field of late cotton due to water standing and not to hail. John Jackson and Misses Inez and Mabel Clement reported crop loss.

Other farmers in that section, like Cecil Shanks, will leave their cotton, although it was stripped of its leaves.

At Arlie, Jake Lawrence had a cloudburst of an estimated 1.5 inches in a short period of time.

T. Wyrick, not too far south, had a small amount of rain but winds gusting to 70 miles per hour.

Herschel Tabor lost cotton to the hail.

Dodson received only 1 inch of rain, but outlying areas received from 2.5 to 4 inches. South of Dodson only one-half inch fell and at the Hollis highway, it didn't even shower, Crowder said.

Around Dodson, most farmers had hail or high wind damage to their cotton and many were replanting. Some of these had just lost one planting to root rot.

There was considerable damage to trees in the Kelly area and Lynn Carter was reported to have lost cotton.

On the Mangum highway east of town, Goat Hopper lost half his barn, and tree damage was heavy. One giant cottonwood fell across the highway and had to be removed by the highway department so traffic could pass.

South of Wellington, Robert Barjenbruch lost his entire cotton crop of 68 acres. His tractor shed was demolished and there was minor damage to the tractors.

Delbert Seals, who now owns the Otto Buerger section on the county line was also reported hauled out.

At Rolla, among those to lose crops to the hail were Richard Fourmentin, Ernest Nunneley, Albert Fulcher, Bill Hall and Wayne Martin, and part of these, along with Claude Caisson, had additional sand damage Sunday night. Part of them will replant, other believe the cotton will come out.

One inch of rain fell at the Frank Fourmentin farm within a short period.

A. C. Patterson of Buck Creek reported cotton destroyed by sand Sunday night in a strip from two to three miles east to west, and even longer north to south.

O. A. Kiker reported damage on a place north of town and Cecil Welch to cotton in the Salt Fork community.

G. L. Roberts, who lives near Swearingen, reported he lost all his wheat and cotton in the hail storm Saturday about 6 p.m. An additional 2.25 inches of rain fell afterward.

National Guard Unit Training at Ft. Hood

Thirty-six members of the 49th Armored Division of the Texas National Guard left Wellington last week for two weeks active duty training at North Fort Hood. All units were ready for duty by Sunday evening and combat training started on Monday and will last until July 5.

In addition to the 36 Guardsmen who left Wednesday and Saturday, there were seven who had gone or were going for six months camp. These were William W. Colson, Alton D. Truelock, Thomas Joe Truelock, Jess Willoughby, Otis B. Belew, Robert D. Lane and Robert L. McDonald.

Leaving Wednesday were Donald R. Settle, Leomond R. Coburn Jr., John M. Grey, Jerry B. Crosby, and Carl D. Holliman.

Workers Set Cancer Crusade Wrap-up Date

"We are closing the 1964 Cancer Crusade. As the volunteers come and call on you, if they missed you the first time, we encourage you to join in this fight," Billy Moseley, Cancer Crusade chairman, said this week.

"Every man, woman and child has a stake in the outcome of the attack on cancer. Each has a right and a responsibility to participate in it," he continued.

"The American Cancer Society provides the vehicle for this participation. So let me urge you to learn the danger signals and act on them. Fight cancer individually with your annual checkup. Fight it jointly with your checks.

"I would also like to encourage all workers to close the crusade by July 10 and report," he said.

HAIL AND SAND DAMAGED COTTON

Saturday, June 20, this cotton was healthy and growing. Sunday, hail had stripped the leaves and beaten the stalks of most of this. The three large stalks are from the Robert Barjenbruch field south of town. It was from 12 to 15 inches tall and just ready to bloom. The next larger group of small plants are from a field operated by Cecil Shanks and damaged by hail. This will not be replanted, as Shanks believes it will leaf out again. The burned leaves on the four small plants at right are mute testimony to the blowing sand that swept the area Sunday night. The 1-foot ruler indicates the size of the cotton.

Substitution Between Wheat and Feed Authorized in 1965

To permit greater flexibility in farm operations, substitution between wheat and feed grains will be authorized under the 1965 program, W. C. Harwell, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said today. The program determination is announced early so that fallow operations for next year's crop may take place promptly.

Agricultural legislation provides for such a substitution in the 1964 and 1965 wheat and feed grain programs, but it could not be put into effect for 1964 because of the lack of time.

The chairman explained that the substitution will apply on individual farms only if the farm has a feed grain base or oat-rye base, and a wheat allotment. The substitution provisions may be used by producers who meet at least the minimum diversion for both wheat and feed grains.

As under this year's wheat program, marketing certificates will be issued in 1965 to program cooperators; however, the number of certificates allocated to a farm will not be increased because of the substitution of wheat for feed grains. The certificates will be provided for the smaller of (1) the normal production of the wheat acreage allotment, multiplied by the domestic and export allocation percentages, which will be announced later; or (2) the wheat acreage planted for harvest, multiplied by the normal yield.

The total wheat production of producers who carry out wheat program provisions will be eligible for price-support loans even though the wheat acreage is in excess of the wheat allotment because of the substitution provisions.

When feed grains are grown in place of wheat, the feed grain production of program cooperators will be eligible for price support loans. If price support payments are authorized as a part of the 1965 feed grain program, substitution of feed grains for wheat will not increase the payments available; the price support payments will be limited to the normal production of the feed grain base less the diverted acreage (at least the minimum diversion under the feed grain program.)

If a producer requests it, an oat-rye base will be established on the basis of the farm's 1959-1960 average oat-rye acreage as adjusted. Wheat may be substituted for such crops. However, corn, grain sorghum, or barley may not be planted as a substitute for the oat-rye base acreage. If an oat-rye base is established, the producer will need to meet the minimum diversion for it also.

FHA Will Help Young Farmers Acquire Farms

The measure proposed by President Johnson to eliminate rural poverty has been discussed at a three-day regional meeting of the Farmers Home Administration held in Dallas, June 2-4, L. J. Copeland, Texas state director for the federal agricultural credit agency has announced.

At the meeting the federal officials discussed steps being taken to help young farmers take over the farms of retiring elders, progress made in developing rural community water systems, and the housing assistance given senior citizens in rural areas.

During the past three years under a vastly expanded program the agency has advanced $2 for strengthening of family farms and rural communities. The $613 million loaned in the first 10 months of fiscal 1964 was nearly 100% greater than the amount loaned during fiscal 1960.

MORE COTTON EXPORTS
August-March exports of cotton by the United States totaled 3.3 million running bales, 64% above the same period in 1962-63 and 8% above the average of the past five seasons.

Earliest fish hooks known were discovered in caves in Switzerland.

TEN YEARS LATER

Whatever the Congress does with or to the "civil rights" bill, nearly all Americans of all colors, races and backgrounds are fervently hoping that the next 10 years will be much less filled with violence and tragic behavior than was the decade since May 17, 1954.

On that date was handed down the Supreme Court decision that was viewed by many hopeful persons as the dawn of a new era and by others as the beginning of the end of discrimination.

With a backward look, the discerning person who is informed at all would hardly insist that either of these visions has become a reality.

Some scattered results in desegregation, although rather meager statistically, have been recorded. Forced by court orders, backed by bayonets in a few instances, some 32 of the South's 292 public colleges and universities are reported to have admitted Negro students. However, 9 out of 10 Negro elementary and high school students in the South attend schools that are segregated.

Meanwhile, in the North many communities have experienced patterns of change leading more toward segregation than away from it. Whether we have advanced the nation's total well-being is a difficult question.

State laws already on the books against discrimination have probably not changed the views of many people nor have resulted in uniform treatment in human relations.

Laws against disturbing the peace and riots have certainly not prevented that kind of lawlessness. It would therefore seem a vain hope for any of us to suppose that passage of civil rights legislation would bring in the utopia of peace and harmony that we seek.

That the Supreme Court decision of 1954 has failed to bring a uniform paradise of educational opportunity may have disillusioned some people.

We wonder if any law can really ever settle issues so emotionally charged as those related to race. It has been time, those ten years, for reflection upon the moral issues involved and upon whether we are mature enough to seek judicial remedy. These factors of legality and morality could have been tested more adequately if so much tragic violence had not been brought into play.

What now of the "civil rights" legislation pending? At this writing leaders in Congress are saying, perhaps more to reassure voters than themselves, that some form of bill will be passed. Even if the bill is only advance payment of political tribute in an election year, no one should expect this kind of legislation to do more than remind us that America does have a philosophy on public and civil rights that is made formal by access to the courts. If, with this bill or without it, all Americans could put away strife and disorder (both violent and non-violent) the prospects for the next decade could be very bright indeed.

Agitations, demonstrations, inflammatory speeches, and street disturbances will lead inevitably to destruction of life and property.

Bombs and murders are not in the true American spirit of peaceful, orderly observance of law. Mobs on the streets that cannot wait for orderly legal processes are not the answer. Violating local laws to achieve notoriety or dramatic news play is wrong.

While these practices intensify feelings and emotions, they do very little for men's minds. As much as possible, we ought to learn to act through reason, after discussion, or because of persuasion.

After all, conformity achieved through use of force and coercive attack is unsound. Men respect law and obey it through reason and understanding, not superior propaganda or political dealing.

That men have the right to freedom of association on the basis of individual qualities, likes and dislikes, must be recognized. Whether these matters involve race, religion, or what-not, they are determined to a great extent by those directly concerned.

The preferences, habits and feelings of men are not easily changed. Those who expect

THE WELLINGTON (TEXAS) LEADER
Thursday, June 25, 1964

Little Chapel in the Wood Setting for Bawcom-Kurc Wedding Sat.

The Little Chapel in the Wood on the campus of Texas Woman's University was the setting for the wedding of Miss Jodie Elaine Kurc, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor E. Kurc, and Jack Leon Bawcom of Dallas Saturday, June 20 at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The Rev. John Hunstabile officiated.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Bawcom of Wellington.

Ivy and a basket of yellow gladioli decorated the altar, and wedding music was presented by Miss Katherine Patterson, organist, and Mrs. Judy Daugherty, vocalist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white peau de soie. The molded bodice had a rounded neckline traced with an applique of Alencon lace, and the sleeves tapered to petal points over her hands. A cummerbund, also accented with appliques of lace at the front, spanned the waistline and ended at center back with a small tailored bow and silk rose. A controlled skirt gave a bell silhouette at the front and unfolded in a burst of pleats across the back, then swept to a chapel train. A rose headpiece held her illusion veil and the bride's bouquet was an orchid and feathered carnations on a white Bible.

Mrs. Carol Wilmoth of Houston was matron of honor, while Miss Pat Chesnut of Dallas was maid of honor and Mrs. Barbara White of Garland the bridesmaid. They wore yellow peau de soie dresses with matching organdy bow and organdy back panel.

Edward Bawcom of Wellington, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and groomsmen were Leamon Bawcom of Wellington, another brother, and Jerry Parkhouse of Dallas. Ushering were Dwayne Godwin of Dallas and Floyd Minton of Wylie.

Junior attendants were Darla Dodge of Amarillo and Sheri Bawcom of Wellington, flower girls, and Butch Bawcom of Wellington, ring bearer.

The reception was held in

Mrs. Leon Bawcom

Hubbard Hall on the TWU campus. Members of the house party were Mrs. Susie Hunt of Austin, Miss Sandra Allen, Miss Elaine Harrison, Miss Suzanne Beach and Miss Barbara Kurc of Dallas.

Upon returning from their wedding trip to Galveston, the couple will be at home at 5503 Willis, Dallas.

The bride was graduated from

How To Write

Classified Ads That Get Action

BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete or definite details. Be sure to include price in ads, whenever possible — it is the consumer's "most wanted" information.

IT'S ALWAYS BEST to start your advertisement with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment or room for rent or property for sale, start your advertisement with the location and city in which it is located.

MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Insert your telephone number and your name and address. If you do not have regular hours give a preferred time to have prospects contact you.

THE GREATEST READER ATTENTION can be secured for your advertisement by using consecutive insertions. Play it safe—if you have a service to sell, keep your name before the public each week.

PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you would like to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good classified Want Ad.

WANTS THAT FAIL to bring satisfaction do so, not through any lack of readership, but because they are often carelessly worded and do not contain enough information to get prompt action.

TO PLACE YOUR AD in The Wellington Leader Call 447-2414 and an experienced and courteous ad-writer will help.

Buy From Your Local Merchant — This Advice Is State-Wide

Diverse sections of Texas sometimes have similar problems. This is seen in an editorial published in the last issue of the Hondo Anvil Herald, a weekly newspaper in the San Antonio area.

It is so apt, in fact that it was first published in that paper several years ago. See how well it fits Wellington:

There is an old saying—"Let one hand wash the other"—and the truth of this homely adage is constantly borne out in our everyday life. Purchasing from transients allows the buyers no recourse when the seller is gone to another address which is as flitting and unstable as the miles which add up on his truck.

Business concerns of (and you can substitute Collingsworth for Medina County) offer all kinds of merchandise and service . . . and they're still at their business when something goes wrong and the purchaser feels an adjustment should be made or service given.

"In addition, these local businessmen, who live in your community, contribute to the community's charities and other activities, pay taxes to support the schools, maintain the roads and assist financially in the operation of local government functions.

These businessmen know their customers, their needs and desires. They must satisfy their customers if they desire to remain in business and prosper and these businessmen make all efforts to meet this challenge—not evade it. The reputation of your local retailer stands behind every sale—he is ready to service your purchases, where you both live.

So think when you buy—if you buy at home you will not have to continually keep in mind this motto: "Let the Buyer Beware."

Getting Ready for the Big Party

CROSSROADS REPORT

Dear Editor:

News reports tell about a 5-minute Broadway show the other day, which featured eight deprived and frustrated youths beating up two New York citizens who didn't like nasty remarks being made to their wives.

There was a good crowd in attendance at this free street show, but no audience participation even when the over-matched assaultees begged for some help.

Could be that these live horror shows on city streets may get to drawing more viewers than TV and movie blooddramas and enterprisers may soon be selling tickets and popcorn at these affairs.

I see where Mr. Adlai Stevenson told some college students the other day that the civil rights ruckus has made getting in jail a proud achievement instead of a dishonor like it used to be.

He says the time may come when candidates will run for office on their prison record.

My hep papa neighbor says he has tried to raise his boy to be a social achiever, but it looks hopeless, because the kid has been in college three years now and hasn't once been on an Easter beach blast nor got in jail.

The news has kind of shocked our federal aidee class that former President Eisenhower has suggested a Constitutional amendment requiring the federal budget to be balanced every two years.

Which is obviously an idea that Mr. Eisenhower thought up after he got out of office, and is a clear threat to our great American Deficit Way of Life.

My fiscally unbalanced neighbor says this high-rank word against the debt-growth religion has got him confused, because he is just now getting his conscience adjusted so he can enjoy over-income government on his grandchildren's credit.

The news is noted down here that some citizens in New York City are patrolling the streets at night to help the police keep an eye on the metropolitan Mau Mau.

But these citizen patrolmen won't get to carry any arms, probably on account of Good Sportsmanship, which calls for a handicap on the good players so as to keep all contests evenly matched.

My Liberaler neighbor says he is glad to see that the deprived and frustrated are now getting fair play. And on the same grounds he thinks the Republicans in convention ought to put about a 656-delegate handicap on Barry Goldwater.

Impulse buying can wreck your food budget. It's best to shop from a list and watch the food advertisements for good buys, says Marie Tribble, Extension nutritionist.

Sullivans Tour Chittenden and Eastman Plant

Mr. and Mrs. James Sullivan and Phyllis Ann recently toured the Chittenden & Eastman Co. in Burlington, Iowa, and scenic and historic places of that state.

The Chittenden & Eastman Co. is the manufacturer of Permalux upholstered goods and of Restonic mattresses. The factory has been in operation on the same site for 98 years. It is a wholesaler as well as manufacturer, and manufactures 40% of the goods it sells.

The Sullivans saw the complete furniture-making operation from beginning to end. They saw a raw bale of cotton come into the factory, and watched as it was cleaned and made into padding for the furniture and mattress line. They also saw the construction of the all-hardwood frames.

A bale of raw cotton comes into the factory. Then it is cleaned and sent through huge machines to make the padding for the furniture and mattress lines. The Sullivans also saw the all-hardwood frames being constructed. Mostly maple was used, Mrs. Sullivan said.

They watched as the springs were attached to the frames and the piece of furniture upholstered. All pieces must pass a tough inspection, and any unsatisfactory furniture or mattresses must be reworked by the employee who made it, on his own time.

The Wellington family also visited Navoo, the village where the Mormons stopped on their way west. They ate in the hotel where Joseph Smith once stayed.

The Sullivans boarded the train in Amarillo and were met in Ft. Maddox, where they were taken to the factory by John Tyson, sales representative of the company.

They also took a scenic boat ride on the Mississippi.

White on LCC Honor Roll

LUBBOCK.—Rudell White of Wellington has been named to the semester honor roll at Lubbock Christian College, Lubbock, according to Dr. Jack W. Bates, Dean.

To be placed on the honor roll, a student must maintain a 3.25 grade point average. On LCC's 4.0 scale, 4.0 indicates a straight "A" record, and 3.0 indicates straight "B".

White is one of 13 from his class of 160 to achieve the honor. His grade point average is 3.56.

White was vice president of Kyodai Club and a dormitory counselor. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ode White of Quail.

More Safety Aim of New Highway Routes

AUSTIN.—More safety and less congestion for 2,067 miles of Texas highways was the objective of a $166 million improvement program authorized by the Texas Highway Commission.

The biennial Consolidated highway program is beamed at correcting traffic problems on parts of the primary highway system of US-numbered and State-numbered highways in the state.

The Highway Commission calls the 2-year program "vital to our keeping pace with a traffic explosion that is increasing 5% a year."

In view of the diffusion of Texas' 22 metropolitan areas—more than any other state—"these city-connecting highways must continue to be systematically upgraded for the good of the cities they serve, as well as the safety and convenience of the through traveler," the commission said.

The 25,000-mile primary highway system carries a bigger burden of the state's 50-billion-mile-a-year traffic load than all other systems combined, the commissioners pointed out. Yet some 20,000 miles of the primary system are considered obsolete by contemporary standards, they said.

Of the amount authorized for the consolidated improvement program, $151 million is earmarked for construction and about $15 million for right-of-way. The program will be funded from state gasoline tax revenue, license fees and federal grants in aid. About 65% of the cost will come from state funds.

Under the new program, heavily-traveled primary highways will be upgraded, some to four-lane standards. Widening of bridges, paving of shoulders, and other improvement for safety are also included for various highways over the state under the extensive program.

Highway Department studies indicate dramatic improvements in safety statistics result from such programs as the one authorized. Upgrading a two-lane highway to four-lane divided status, for instance, reduces the fatality rate by more than 30%. When "control of access" is added, the rate drops by 45%.

Slime Molds do Little Damage

COLLEGE STATION.—Slime molds often cause concern to many home gardeners. They occur suddenly in warm weather after heavy rains or prolonged periods of high humidity and may be found on lawn grasses, bedded flowers, mulches, ground cover, around the bases of trees and other plants, says Wendell Horne, plant pathologist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Slime mold, explains Horne, is caused by a low form of fungus which lives on and obtains its food from decaying organic matter in the soil. This organic matter is usually an accumulation of grass clippings and leaf mulch. During favorable periods, the slime mold grows up onto the grass leaves or other garden plants, sporulates, and the result is a discoloration of the turf.

The discoloring is due to the spore-forming masses of the organism. At first, these masses are gray in color but later become black. At this stage, says Horne, the grass has the appearance of having been dusted with soot or carbon-black.

Some molds, he adds, appear as thin, white, yellow or gray layers of slimy paste-like material that covers the grass blades. These masses later dry to form a bluish-gray, black or white powdery growths on the leaves.

Horne points out that slime molds are nonparasitic and technically do not cause disease. They use the plant leaves and stems as a means of support for their reproductive structures.

The specialist says slime molds can be removed from the turf or other plants by washing with a stream of water from a hose under pressure. Slight damage to the affected plants may occur when the leaves are smothered or shaded for several days by the slime, says Horne. The hosing-off process is usually sufficient to prevent damage, he says.

Pony-Little League Games at Fast Pace

On Tuesday, June 16 the Twins won over the Quails 14 to 10. The Quails led in the first, third and fourth, and the teams evened up the score in the fifth. The last regular inning saw no hits for either team and the game went to extra innings. In the seventh inning the Twins got four runs across the plate compared to 0 for the Quails, breaking the tie and ending the game.

In the second game Tuesday night, Wellington Pony topped Quail Pony 7 to 5. Pitching for Quail was Fielding and the winning pitcher was Black. Quail got one run in the first, while Wellington got none, but Wellington led throughout the rest of the game.

In the first game of the double-header Thursday, June 18, Quail Pony whipped Samnorwood Pony 24 to 1. Fielding was the winning pitcher and Tate, Chapa and Oldham pitched for Samnorwood.

In the second game Thursday night, Wellington Pony beat Dodson Pony 26 to 7. Wellington led all through the

The Twins won out over the Cubs 16 to 12 in the first game Friday night. The Twins scored 10 runs in the first inning and six in the second. The cubs failed to score in the first but scored four runs in the second. They rallied in the third with eight more runs but couldn't catch the Twins.

The Dodgers edged by the Quails in the second game Friday, June 19. The Quails scored seven runs in the third, but it wasn't enough to stop the six runs that the Dodgers added to the eight they scored in the second. The winning pitcher was West and Feemster and Langley pitched for the Quails.

Enjoy Visiting Historic Spots Over Texas!

Are you thrilled by Texas history? If so, you will enjoy visiting some of the scores of historic spots that mark the challenging episodes of our frontier land.

The battle cry that spurred the Texans on at San Jacinto was "Remember the Alamo; Remember Goliad", and it is quite fitting that the state, many years ago, established a state park at Goliad in southeast Texas. It was here that Colonel Fannin and his men were massacred on Palm Sunday, March 27, 1836.

Goliad is situated on U.S. Highways 59, 183 and alternate 77; and can also be reached on State Highway 239 from the west.

In Goliad State Park there is a small museum of early Texas relics and the Mission Espiritu Santo de Zuniga. In 1749 this mission was moved to Goliad by the Franciscan padres to Christianize the Indians and to civilize the frontier. It is open to the public.

Nearby is the Presidio La Bahia where the Goliad Declaration of Independence was drawn in 1835. Sunday mass is still celebrated there.

Near La Bahia stands a monument to Colonel Fannin and his men.

Goliad became the county seat of Goliad county in 1837. On the courthouse grounds you will find the famous "Hanging Tree."

City Park has a monument to the men who lost their lives at Goliad, erected in April, 1885, surmounted by two cannons found on the streets of the town after the Texas Revolution.

Twenty-five miles northeast of Goliad on US 59 is Victoria, one of the first three towns of the Republic. Here you will find a number of beautiful ante-bellum homes, still in good condition, as well as the famed Dutch Windmill in Memorial Square.

If you'd like a bit of fishing to finish off your trip, drive on another 27 miles on US 87 to Port Lavaca, where redfish and speckled trout abound.

Wellington Leader

Again in 1964
Your Hometown Paper
Is An Award Winner

Winning awards for excellence is nothing new for The Wellington Leader. We are happy to know that the paper won an award in the 1964 contests of The Texas Press Association.

This year it was for column writing. In other years it has been for General Excellence, Advertising, Special Edition, Editorials, etc.

The notable fact is not that your hometown newspaper was cited for excellence in 1964; the important consideration is that the loyal support of our readers and advertisers has made it possible year after year.

The staff of this newspaper is dedicated to rendering a similar continuing service in the remaining months of 1964 and again in 1965. We think that such a splendid, well-rounded, friendly, prosperous community such as ours deserves no less. We intend to try again next year—for you.

Compresses to Raise Funds for Weevil Control

The last of 36 cotton compresses in the 23-county High Plains area has signed a contract with PCG to participate in the collection of funds to carry out the "diapause" weevil control program so essential to preventing a Plains-wide weevil infestation. This is an excellent demonstration of the teamwork of which the High Plains cotton industry is capable in the face of a common enemy, and virtually assures $1 million to fight the dreaded pest. Federal funds to match this amount are being sought through the Plant Pest Control division of the USDA.

In effect, an important part of the weevil control program is already in progress in the form of extensive surveys and educational programs to get the most effective in-season control possible during this year's growing season. In-season control can reduce migration of weevils from heavily infested areas, thus reducing the acreage that it will be necessary to spray this fall. The "diapause" portion of the effort calls for spraying all infested acreage above the Caprock and all below the Caprock back to the line of ranches on the east. Fall sprayings will probably begin in September and continue at about 10 to 14 day intervals until frost, thus killing all weevils before they go into hibernation.

This is the same system that has been so effective in the Presidio area of Texas and on the Texas prison farms, and entomologists say it should reduce the High Plains weevil problem to one of inexpensive spot control operations within a very few years.

A hot-water heating system was added to the White House in 1853.

QUAIL COVER

G. L. Roberts is shown in the field he planted as a cover for Quail and other wildlife on his farm southwest of Wellington.

Conserving Wildlife Can Bring Benefits to Farmers of Area

Conservation of our farm game, such as quail, depends more and more each year on how well farmers and ranchers make full use of all of their land, Bob Crawford, soil conservationist of the Salt Fork District, said this week.

Contrary to what most people think, quail are an important agricultural crop. In addition to providing food and recreation, they help the farmer with his other crops by eating weed seeds and injurious insects. In some places, the land owner can also make hunting privileges a source of income.

On most farm land there is enough food from late spring to fall, but during the critical season in the winter, there is not a good source of food. Planting of small grain in corners of a field or not harvesting a strip of grain will supply the quail with ample food source during the critical period. It will also supply them with a cover protection.

Texas Tourist Report Issued

The Texas Highway Department today announced publication of the 1963 Tourist Industry Report.

The 16-page booklet describes in striking detail results of the annual survey conducted by the department. The cover depicts, in brilliant natural color, several scenes from the state's outstanding recreational areas.

According to the survey some 11.7 million out-of-state guests came to Texas last year. They poured approximately $532.2 million into the state's economy. The report points out:

"This was new money which generated new jobs, new construction, new business. This report is clear proof that every Texan has a stake in the state's travel industry."

The State Highway Department traditionally has been active in promoting tourist travel in Texas. The department operates seven hospitality centers on key highways entering the state and publishes and distributes travel-oriented literature, including the official Texas Highway Map.

Beef Abundant Throughout Year

The abundant supply of beef, which consumers have enjoyed this past winter and spring, will continue through most of this year. Most of this meat will come from cattle that were grain fed to produce top grades of beef. So bring out the barbecue grill—there'll be plenty of high quality steaks, say the Extension Service foods and nutrition specialists.

Deck's DIDACTICS

—By Deskins Wells

On first glance the recent decision of the Supreme Court ordering both houses of state legislatures to be selected on a strict population basis may seem reasonable enough to some people. In effect the Court has said that people and not areas are the important consideration which has something of a noble sounding note to it. On second thought this question remains: Is it practical, or even equitable?

Under the Texas Constitution as it now stands no county is entitled to more than one senator. Under the new ruling of the U.S. Supreme Court, five of the heaviest populated counties of Texas would be entitled to 12 senators, leaving 19 senators to represent the other 249 counties. This would create some districts 300 miles wide. No senator can serve such a vast area as well as even one senator can serve a single county.

Talk of the rights of minorities—that's us—the rural people of the nation. When I write of rural people I am also thinking of the county seat towns such as Wellington, Memphis, Clarendon, Shamrock, etc., for our welfare is linked together by common interests. We are a minority group and our rights are being whittled away rapidly, not by our state legislatures and not by the Congress but by a Supreme Court that seems bent on making laws instead of interpreting them as was originally intended. There must be a more equitable solution than this arbitrary ruling. We can hope, even though it is just hope, for a change in the high court so that its complexion will be more in keeping with the three dissenting justices who wrote biting criticisms of the recent decision of the majority.

The talk of the town is the weather—tornadoes and hail—and we have experienced more than our share of the latter in the past few days. They are necessary evils that must be endured. It is as the weatherbeaten old cowpoke observed: "If it were not for the tornado season, we would be a desert." We never get too much rain in a year's time. We sometimes receive too much at the wrong time. Every state in the union experiences tornadoes except Hawaii and they have typhoons and tidal waves.

Such "misery loves company" observations furnish small comfort to the farmer who is pacing the floor because the ground is too wet to get into the fields. I can't help remembering in spite of the present adversity that we always come out better at the end of a wet year. It remains to be seen as to whether this is a wet year or not.

The Earl Clarks have returned from the Fair and they report the lines are long and the weather is hot. If the temperature varies as much up there as it has here in June they may have a blizzard by the time I get there.

Luther Sullivan is taking his vacation this week. Instead of taking a trip, he is out in the back yard cultivating his lamb's quarter. Funny as it may seem, it still makes more sense than some of the things some of the rest of us do.

Roy Brinson, the grocer turned realtor, was in Wellington over the week end visiting relatives. He has a two section development surrounding the town of Fritch on the shores of what will be Lake Meredith when the dam is completed. At first the people who bought tracts put down their own wells, but the demand became so great that Roy had to install his own water system to serve the residents of the development. He calls it Ponderosa and he is well on his way to making not a modest but a whopping fortune.

Roy once worked for Raburns but he is remembered here best for his work in alerting the Baptist congregation on the night of Orson Wells broadcast of the invasion of the men from Mars. It came close to creating a panic on East Avenue.

Dry Weather Will Help

Blight Attacks Cotton In Fields of Territory

Cotton fields in the county are plagued with blight. Ascochyta or Rhizoctonia has attacked most fields of cotton that has four or more leaves, according to Cecil Regier, county agent. The blight causes a small tan spot with a purplish border around it on the leaf in the beginning. This will increase in size to take in the entire leaf, and when this happens, it will dry up and fall off. The young plants can be killed by this disease. Many fields in the county have lost their stand.

The blight, Regier said, like any disease, does best in damp, wet weather like we have had. If warm, dry weather continues the disease should stop.

The plants that are already damaged will shed affected leaves and recover, if the root is not severely damaged.

A farmer who is debating on planting over should pull up about a 3 foot strip and examine the roots of the plants. If there are enough plants with healthy roots to make a satisfactory stand, he should not plant over. But if most of the plants' roots are affected, he should plant over.

This blight is caused by a fungus that survives from year to year, in old infected stems, leaves and burrs of cotton plants.

The rain that has encouraged the blight has greatly reduced the thrip infestation, and they are causing little or no damage.

Some fleahoppers are starting to show up in older cotton. Farmers should check the older cotton which has started squaring.

Quails, Braves Win Double Header Monday

In the first game of the double-header Monday, June 22 the Quails beat the Cubs 13 to 10. Quails led through most of the game by a slight margin, and made three points in the last inning compared to one for the Cubs.

In the second game, the Braves topped the Twins 7 to 6. Harris was the losing pitcher. Don Martin pitched five innings for the Braves and Farrar pitched one.

City Installs New Pump

A new pump is being installed at one of the city wells east of town this week, according to Russell Yates, city secretary.

It replaces a pump that had worn out, Yates said. Water use has not reached the summer peak, he continued, and the largest amount used in any 24-hour period is 860,000 gallons.

The city has 8 wells now pumping and two in reserve.
