Robbery Causes Dilemma

DALLAS AP—It became just another unsolved armed robbery for the Dallas police files last month after a gunman robbed and shot a 76-year-old electrician.

The haul was $157.

But the loss of that $157 may cost O.E. Cole his home and his business, said an official of the Older Americans Legal Action Center, a free legal service for needy elderly persons.

The money was earmarked to cover a check Cole had already mailed for his monthly payment on his mortgage.

The electrician was already two months behind in his mortagage payments because of medical expenses incurred during the lengthy illness of his wife, who died last February after lying in a coma for 18 months. They had been married 50 years.

Cole said his mortgage is now about to be foreclosed.

"I'm in a place where I don't know what to do," said Cole.

"They are going to take my car back. My lights will be cut off any day because I can't pay a $160 light bill."

Sister Rosemary Redmond, an attorney for the legal service, said she has unsuccessfully tried to find a small loan for Cole. "But partly because of his age and partly because of of lack of collateral, he can get no more credit," she explained.

Mike Alexander, who sold Cole his Oak Cliff home and shop five years ago, said the electrician was always prompt with his monthly payments until three months ago.

Cole had to sell his delivery truck and most of his badly needed equipment to meet payments on loans. One $500 loan went for a marker for his wife's grave.

Cole's wife, Nettie, died after her second stroke. She had been paralyzed and unconscious for 18 months.

"All over town hundreds of my customers know I always turn out good work," said Cole. "I am still healthy and I work long hours, on into the evening as long as I can keep going.

"But now I can't even buy materials to complete the work I have on hand," he added.

Federal anti-discrimination laws do not yet protect such elderly persons from credit discrimination.

An amendment bringing the aged under the coverage of the Equal Credit Opportunity law has been passed, but won't go into effect until next March, said Pat Praise, regional counsel for the administrator of national banks.

Cole had a bullet removed from his leg the day after the robbery Aug. 17 in his workshop. Cole was clubbed on the head and knocked to his knees as the bandit fled.

The gunman is still at large, Dallas police said.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, September 6, the 250th day of 1976. There are 116 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1620, the Pilgrims sailed on the Mayflower from Plymouth, England, to settle in the new world.

On this date:

In 1899, the United States proposed an Open Door policy to give foreign powers equal trade rights in China.

In 1901, President William McKinley was shot by an anarchist in Buffalo, N.Y. He died eight days later.

In 1909, explorer Robert Peary sent word that he had reached the North Pole five months earlier.

In 1914, the first battle of the Marne began in World War I.

In 1940, in World War II, King Carol of Romania abdicated as the Germans prepared to occupy his country.

In 1965, Indian troops invaded West Pakistan.

Ten years ago: Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd of South Africa was stabbed to death during a session of Parliament in Capetown.

Five years ago: President Richard Nixon, in a Labor Day address, called on Americans to increase productivity.

One year ago: More than 2,300 people were killed by a devastating earthquake in eastern Turkey.

TAKING OFF—A hijacked KLM Royal Dutch airlines DC9 takes off from Larnaca airport on Cyprus Sunday with its 78 passengers and the five-member crew aboard. The jetliner, which was hijacked by Arab terrorists Saturday night on a flight from Spain to Amsterdam, landed at the airport for the second time after its fuel supply ran low over the eastern Mediterranean. Hijackers Reported En Route To Libya

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Three Palestinians who hijacked a Dutch airliner with 80 other persons aboard over France and surrendered the next day in Cyprus have left for Libya, Arab sources reported today.

The Greek Cypriot government denied the report, saying the hijackers were still in police custody in Nicosia. But observers believed the government was withholding confirmation of their departure during the night until they arrived safely in Libya.

The hostages left for Amsterdam today aboard a special KLM jet sent to pick them up.

The hijackers gave up Sunday without harming the hostages after the Greek Cypriot government promised them safe conduct to the country of their choice. The country was not announced, but a Libyan Embassy official accompanied them to Nicosia after they surrendered.

There were two Americans among the 75 passengers hijacked Saturday, but most of them were Dutch vacationers on their way home from southern Spain.

"The hijackers did not ill-treat us," said Otto Horsting of Selma, Ala. "They said this was the only way they could make the world realize what was happening to their country, Palestine. They assured us we would not be harmed."

He said the three Arabs were armed with grenades and guns.

Horsting also told reporters the Dutch pilot recognized one of the hijackers as a participant in the hijacking of another KLM plane four years ago. "This is your second time off, isn't it?" the pilot reportedly told the man.

The KLM DC9 was en route from Malaga, Spain, to Amsterdam and had just taken off from Nice, France, when the three Palestinians took control of it. They ordered the plane to fly to Tunis.

After refueling in the Tunisian capital, the plane flew to Larnaca, on the southeast coast of Cyprus, refueled again, and then flew to Israel.

The hijackers radioed that they would blow up the plane in flight unless the Israeli government freed eight prisoners, including Greek Catholic Archbishop Hilarion Capudji, the Japanese terrorist who survived the Tel Aviv airport massacre in 1972 and six Arabs. But the Israeli government rejected the demand and blocked the runways at the Tel Aviv airport so the plane could not land.

Kissinger Says Talks Fruitful

By NICK STAUDINGER
Associated Press Writer

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said today his talks with South African Prime Minister John Vorster formed the groundwork for ending racial problems in southern Africa.

"The discussions have been fruitful," Kissinger said at a news conference after completion of the three days of talks and before leaving for London to report on them to President Valery Giscard d'Estaing.

"A basis for further progress exists, but still much has to be done because of the extraordinary complexity of conditions and parties involved," Kissinger said.

The secretary said he was unable to disclose more details before the United States informs the leaders of five black African states holding a summit conference in Dar Es Salaam.

He said he tentatively planned to send William Schaufele Jr., U.S. assistant secretary of state for African affairs, to Africa in the near future to inform black African leaders of the Zurich talks.

"I believe progress has been made for fitting up a negotiating framework," Kissinger told newsmen.

He emphasized that the aim of his talks was to create black rule and protect whites in southern Africa. The talks concentrated on Rhodesia and Namibia, or South-West Africa, which is controlled by South Africa.

"The U.S. believes majority rule and minority rights are attainable with patience, good will and dedication," Kissinger said.

"The U.S. seeks a peaceful end to disagreements," he said. "The U.S. is negotiating to enable all communities to live side by side ... in the interest of world peace (and) in the national interests of the United States."

Kissinger said Vorster had invited him to South Africa, but that he would go only if negotiations move forward and after he first visits black African states.

Kissinger originally intended to go to Africa on Tuesday to confer with black leaders, but changed his plans when he received word of a hastily called summit meeting of the leaders of Tanzania, Zambia, Mozambique, Angola and Botswana.

Kissinger said he had no plans to meet Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith.

Mrs. Woodruff Dies Sunday

Mrs. Daisie Woodruff, 92, died at 3:55 p.m. Sunday in Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Woodruff, who lived at Rising Star, was the mother of Mrs. A. Z. Glover of Snyder.

Graveside rites were set for 4 p.m. today at the Pioneer Cemetery near Rising Star, with the Rev. Dick Williams, pastor of First Baptist Church in Rising Star, officiating. The body was taken to Rising Star from Bell-Seale Funeral Home here.

In addition to Mrs. Glover, survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Nathline Nelson of Fort Collins, Colo., and Mrs. Marjorie Barber of Kenedy; a son, Randolph Woodruff of Dallas; a sister, Mrs. Hattie Berry of Pasadena, Calif.; four grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Spraying Begins In Cotton Fields

Spraying operations began today in the diapause program to control boll weevils in Scurry County cotton fields.

The Scurry County Producers Association, which developed the diapause program here, announced that planes were to begin spraying this morning in an area east and southeast of Snyder and to the northwest of Snyder.

The eastern sector scheduled for spraying was generally east of the north-south county road through the Plainview area and from cotton fields north of U.S. Highway 180 to the south to the county line. This included Hermleigh.

Fields northwest of Snyder also were to be sprayed today, while the center of the county is scheduled for spraying on Tuesday. The spraying was expected to reach some of the southwest part of the county possibly this afternoon and the remainder in that area will be sprayed Tuesday. The first spraying is expected to be completed Tuesday.

It was reported also that the South Plains boll weevil control project was expected to spray today in the northwest corner of the county, including the Fluvanna area.

The spraying launched today is the first of six scheduled in the Scurry County diapause program.

Illegal Dumping Of Trash Causes A Prolonged Problem Near Bridge

Snyder already has one officially sanctioned city garbage dump, but some people seem determined to create another. And, persons caught illegally dumping trash and refuse can be fined a maximum of $400.

The site in question is on Huffman Avenue, approximately eight-tenths of a mile east of College Avenue. There, at a small bridge, people have been illegally dumping their garbage into the usually dry creek underneath. Though apparently unnamed, the creek is a tributary to Deep Crek.

A recent sampling of the garbage there revealed an abandoned reclining chair, a rusting car seat, the decayed bodies of numerous household pets and several paper bags of household litter. When the rains come, the refuse is washed downstream and into Deep Creek.

The tragedy of the matter is that the garbage problem there is at least 20 years old. One county commissioner said that the problem has existed for as long as he can remember.

"No dumping" signs have been posted on each of the four guard posts at the bridge. Yet, people continue to dump their garbage there. To add insult to injury, weekend hunters have used the "No Dumping" signs for target practice.

When the landowner was contacted, he said the garbage problem there is so bad that sometimes even his cattle won't cross under the bridge. His cattle, he explained, will not cross underneath the bridge when the area is littered with the rotting corpses of other animals.

The landowner said that he recently had to remove the rotting bodies of three dogs that had kept his cattle from crossing that area for several days.

A county commissioner said that a proposal for building a fence underneath the bridge had been rejected after it had been pointed out that rain and wind would only cause the garbage to collect along the fence. At least now, he said, the garbage washes down stream. But even that, he added, is a mixed blessing.

The city of Snyder has an anti-dumping law that calls for violaters to be fined a maximum of $200. However, the State of Texas has an anti-dumping law that would take precedence over the city law and it calls for violaters to be fined $50 to $400.

Persons having refuse to dispose of are urged to dump it at the city dump south of town.

The dumping of a family's garbage onto another man's private land is not a very good solution. "How would those people who have been dumping their garbage onto this man's land like to have this garbage dumped in their front yard?" one county official said.

SIGN IS IGNORED—This sign, just one of four posted at a bridge northeast of town is apparently ignored by all who dump there. Persons caught illegally dumping can be fined as much as $400, and not the $200 marked on the sign.

DUMPED REFUSE—This refuse found at the foot of the bridge on Huffman Avenue is just a sample of the garbage that has been dumped there. Found in the garbage were paper plates, paper cups, and large amounts of human hair.

DISCARDED CHAIR—This battered reclining chair, thoughtlessly discarded by some anonymous family, is an eyesore to what would otherwise be a beautiful landscape. In the background can be seen the bridge where people have been dumping refuse.

Abby's Namesake: Of Births and Bottoms

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: In reading about your 40th high school reunion, we were most interested in learning that your nickname is "Popo."

We lived for a while in Micronesia (a Pacific Island) where Truskee is spoken, and "popo" in Truskee means "pregnant."

We have a loyal and sensitive dog, which we appropriately named Popo. Just thought you would like to know about your namesake.

DIANE

DEAR DIANE: Thanks. I have several other namesakes. Popo is short for Popocatapetel, a volcano in Mexico. And it's also the German word for that part of the anatomy on which one usually falls.

DEAR ABBY: My only grandchildren (a boy, 14, and a girl, 15) live in a distant state, and I always remember them handsomely at Christmastime.

Last March I received a letter from their mother (my daughter-in-law) that said, "Barby and Sonny have asked me to thank you for your fabulous Christmas gifts, and they're terribly ashamed that they never got around to thanking you themselves."

I replied to that letter as follows: "As far as I'm concerned, Barby and Sonny have not as yet acknowledged my Christmas gifts properly; furthermore, they are old enough to write their own thank-you notes, and it's high time they learned some manners."

Next thing I knew, I got a snippy letter from my daughter-in-law, saying, "If you're going to make such a big deal out of thank-you notes, please don't send the children any more presents."

Abby, you know perfectly well that I am not going to forget my grandchildren at Christmastime. Was I wrong to complain?

HURT NANA

DEAR HURT: Yes. And your daughter-in-law was also wrong to have written that snippy letter. What motivates your giving? Is it the pleasure of giving? Or the pleasure of being thanked?

There is no excuse for the rudeness your grandchildren showed, but if their lack of appreciation irritates you, you should tell THEM, not their mother.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 9 years old and I want a horse more than anything in this world! Dad said, "You can have a horse if you can pay for it, plus all the equipment and the upkeep."

The horse I want costs $150, but I don't have the money. I don't get an allowance, and I can't earn money doing chores for the neighbors because they say I'm too young and I might get hurt.

I can't earn any money doing chores around my own house because my folks say I live here and should do whatever I can for nothing.

I have run out of ideas. How can I get the money?

HORSE-CRAZY IN INDIANA

DEAR HORSE-CRAZY: I'm afraid you will have to be patient until you are able to EARN the money—unless you can persuade your dad to lend it to you with the understanding that you will repay him when you become a wage earner.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Field Day Set At Halfway Station

HALFWAY—Cotton, corn, sorghum and sunflower research are featured attractions for this year's field day of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Halfway. The premier event begins at 1 p.m., Sept. 14, at the research site 14 miles west of Plainview on Hwy. 70.

According to County Extension Agent Billy Roach, field tours will be conducted throughout the afternoon with special presentations planned on irrigation, variety evaluations, weed control and insect pest management.

The Texas Agricultural periment Station at Lubbock is co-hosting the event. In past years, the Lubbock and Halfway stations held separate field days but will begin this year alternating as hosts. This means the field day this year will be at Halfway and next year (1977) it will be in Lubbock.

Cooperators are the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, High Plains Research Foundation, Agricultural Research Service - USDA and the National Weather Service.

A large machinery display featuring latest farm implements available will be a part of the field day activities, says Roach. Guests will be able to take tractor-drawn trailer tours of the 320-acre research site to closely preview latest developments in crop production. During the six featured stops of the tours, Experiment Station scientists and Extension Service specialists will present brief summaries of research highlights and will answer questions.

The six tour stops include a comprehensive review of cotton variety studies, soil fertility, corn irrigation, modified pivot irrigation systems, insect pest management in sorghum and corn, weed control and other research highlights of particular interest to High Plains agriculturists.

Roach said that an irrigation well capable of pumping 1300 gallons of water per minute of clear sand-free water will be of particular interest to field day-goers. The well, recently completed, triples the output of two other irrigation wells at the same location and features new innovations in well drilling.

The field day marks the 67th consecutive year for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station on the South Plains.

'Big D' Facing Coyote Problem

DALLAS (AP) — The official coyote trapper of Dallas County, site of the nation's eighth largest city, says the predators have tripled in the county in the last three years.

Last week the Dallas county commissioners approved a $100 a month raise for Ellis Crawley, who has been searching for coyotes in the county's timberland and along city streets since 1968.

Charles Waymire, owner of Running Duke Ranch in north Dallas County, says he has lost $5,000 worth of stock to coyotes since he began raising cattle and poultry on his 200-acre spread.

"I've lost about 2,000 head of poultry--chickens,tukeys, guineas, peacocks, geese and ducks," Waymire said. "I used to have 300 head of goats, but they actually draw coyotes to the place."

Waymire called for Crawley's help. The two men set traps across the ranch.

Now, Waymire said, the coyote population has thinned out so "we're not even worried about it any more."

Waymire is one of the lucky ones.

Bud Moon, state district supervisor at the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife in Fort Worth, estimated coyotes do about $100,000 damage in Dallas County annually.

"No way is the coyote in danger of being exterminated," Moon said. "Even with the trapping, they've gained on us. He'll get by when the rest of us are starving to death."

Crawley said coyotes prefer sheep and goats. The predators will also attack poultry, calves and colts.

"But if worst comes to worst, he'll eat watermelons, mesquite beans and even grass," Moon said.

Currently Crawley uses cyanide guns to kill coyotes rather than snares and traps.

The gun is stuck in the ground, baited with rabbit fur and loaded with a cyanide capsule. When the coyote pulls the trigger by grabbing the bait, the cyanide capsule is fired into his mouth.

According to Steve Wheeless, county extension agent, coyotes are often smart enough to get the bait out of the old style traps without getting caught.

"If he gets one leg caught in a trap, sometimes he'll chew it off," Wheeless said.

Naturally the coyotes are more common in the less densely populated areas of the county although they sometimes show up in urban areas.

Crawley said "once I got a call from a lady in a high-rise condominium who said coyotes kept getting in her garbage cans."

Great American Is Won By Dark Gray Mule

By ROD ANGOVE
Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — After 98 days and 3,200 miles, a dark gray mule emerged from among the Arabians, Appaloosas and quarter-horses to win the Great American Horse Race.

Lord Fauntleroy, with owner Virl Norton of San Jose, Calif., in the saddle, galloped into the California State fair on Sunday, stopped at a ring before about 200 spectators, and gave a victorious hee-haw.

Many of his rivals were already there, because Lord Fauntleroy was only 31st to complete the final 12-mile leg.

His victory was based on total time in the saddle — 315.87 hours.

It was hard to tell whether the assembled horses were embarrassed, but Norton said some of their sponsors were.

He said some of the horse-breeding associations that sponsored other riders "think it's hell. I'm not too popular with them, especially the Arabian associations."

Norton and his mount were one of 94 entries that left Frankfort, N.Y., on May 31 in a race dreamed up by breeding associations to help celebrate the Bicentennial. Fifty-three were around for the last leg.

For coming in first, Norton won $25,000, which he said was $10,000 more than he spent on the contest. Others among the first 10 finishers split a total of $25,000.

The prize money came mostly from the $500-per-rider entry fees. Organizers said the riders paid for their own food and lodging, their own animal feed and veterinarian services, and fuel for their vehicles. They also paid the organization a $5 daily "logistics fee."

In second place was Juel Ashley of Ada, Okla., whose Arabian went lame near the end of the race. Including the penalty time for not finishing the last leg, his time was 324.60 hours.

The rest of the top 10 included five Arabians, one Appaloosa, one Irish Connemara and another mule.

Some of the animals seemed thin at the end of the race, but Robert K. Hillman, director of the Sacramento Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, said they were "well taken care of."

Hillman said the SPCA doesn't condone or encourage "this kind of animal exploitation," but inspectors following the race in California found no violations of cruelty laws.

Fire Put Out

A minor grass fire near the U.S. 84 overpass on the Roby Highway was extinguished by city firemen Saturday morning. The fire had been reported to firemen approximately 10:30 a.m. Saturday. No damages were reported.

There are approximately 10,000 sink holes in central Kentucky. The National Geographic reports that one of them is over a quarter of a mile wide and 200 feet deep.

Burglary, 2 Thefts Reported

The reports of a burglary and two thefts kept police officers busy over the weekend.

Beatriz Escalera told police officers Saturday night that her residence in the 400 block of Thirtieth Street had been broken into and about $75 wogth of goods were taken. Taken in the burglary were two cameras, a high chair and a baby walker. Police officers theorize that entry to the house was gained by an unlocked back door.

A hood ornament had been taken off the car belonging to James Ellis while the car had been parked at his 3704 Noble Drive residence. Value of the hood ornament was set at $100.

In an act of vandalism, three windows had been broken out of a 1955 Chevrolet owned by Burton Tankersley while the car was parked in the 2200 block of Fortieth Street. Total damage was set at $70.

Charles Wells reported to policemen the theft of a pair of boots. The boots, valued at $60, had been taken from his residence in the 700 block of Twenty-seventh Street sometime over the weekend.

In a final weekend report, Juanita Land told police officers that she had found the bicycle that she had earlier reported taken from her residence.

Women Lose Weight To Feel Better About Themselves

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

It isn't to attract men, improve their sex lives, save a marriage or get a promotion that drives women to seek help in losing weight, a recent survey showed.

"The real reason they want to lose weight is to feel better about themselves," explained Gloria Marshall of Downey, Calif., who has figure salons in 15 states. She became so intrigued with the reasons behind it all that she conducted a survey of patrons of 100 of her salons.

On the questionnaire she prepared for 7,500 clients, she found, too, that the women's image of the ideal figure was different from that of fashion designers. In the opinion of 48.4 per cent of the women polled, the classic 34-24-34 is still the ideal, with the glamour girl figure of 36-24-36 registering approval with 38 per cent of the women. Nine per cent voted for the sweater girl, 38-26-36, and only 4.6 per cent chose the super slender figure, 30-22-30.

Among the reasons cited for being overweight, 37.4 per cent confessed they love to eat and 26.6 blamed "not enough exercise." Such choices as unhappy love affairs, marital problems and so on were not big influences.

And overweight women aren't usually the frustrated, moody, depressed individuals that are depicted by some psychologists. In fact, 2,453 women said they were happy and content and 1,096 chose "jolly, outgoing" to describe themselves. Only 8 per cent thought of themselves as depressed.

Thirty-three per cent of the women surveyed are in the 18 to 30 year age bracket. Thirty-seven per cent were from 30 to 50 years old, and others ranged in age to 80.

Miss Marshall explained that she was "pleasingly plump as a teen-ager" but she was conscious of it — a teen-ager either learns to conquer it or stays that way — and she began dancing and taught dance. She recommends a good eating plan as well as exercise to her clients.

"They tell us the dress size they would like to be. We compute the number of visits they must make and the number of pounds they must lose and within what period of time it can be achieved — say 20 pounds in three months.

"The women fill out a form on which they tell what they like to eat, how many meals a day they eat and so on, and they get a personalized diet based on the material fed into the computer."

The diet doesn't deviate from their natural eating habits.

"People usually can't stay on diets because they don't like the foods they are told to eat and when they must eat them. We suggest things that fit into their normal eating pattern. If they don't eat breakfast, we don't suggest breakfast. If they eat six meals a day, we give them six meals a day. If they eat spaghetti for breakfast, they can do that. If a woman takes her lunch to work, she can't eat grapefruit and steak, so we tailor the lunch to her convenience. But all the daily eating programs supply the proper vitamins and calories."

Red-haired Miss Marshall, a size 8, believes exercise is essential to any reducing program. The two must work together.

"There is no way really to have an attractive figure if you don't exercise at the same time you are curtailing food. Muscles are made to be used," she said.

Betty Guest At Lithuanian Day

CHICAGO (AP) — First Lady Betty Ford said it was "a treat for a retired dancer" as she viewed more than 2,000 Lithuanian folk dancers during Chicago's Lithuanian Day festivities.

Mrs. Ford, who once studied and taught dance at a studio in Grand Rapids, Mich., spoke briefly to the crowd of 12,000 here Sunday before the festival officially opened.

During opening ceremonies, officials presented her with a gift of amber, the natinal Lithuanian stone, and a Lithuanian dance costume.

Earlier in the day, she attended church services at the Shiloh Baptist Church in Waukegan, Ill.

Nowhere on Cape Cod is the sea more than six miles away.

Legumes are a good source of protein; however, they are low in one of the essential amino acids — the chemical building blocks of protein. Cereals have this amino acid in abundance. Therefore you can combine a legume with a grain (for example, red beans and rice) and have protein with the amino acids needed for good health.

EDUCATIONAL BOOTH—The Scurry County Fair has been an annual event for several years now. Each year fifteen to twenty-five educational booths, such as the one pictured above, have been on display, each well organized with an interesting theme. Sponsors of thses booths are 4-H Clubs, school FHA's and FFA's, other school organizations, also civic clubs and charitable organizations. Roy M. Hanson is superintendent of the educational booths. Oswald: "Standard American with variations is the system used by almost every American expert. Some variations are way out. Others just common sense developments that haven't really reached the general public as yet."

Jim: "Standard American goes back to the Culbertson system of forty-five years ago. In those days the simple two-over-one suit response might be made with a very weak hand. Within the last twenty-five years this minimum has risen to ten points in general and many experts make their minimum an eleven point hand.

Oswald: Forty years ago South would respond two diamonds and the partnership would probably climb to an impossible game contract. The modern expert responds one notrump. His partner passes and our expert makes his contract and may even score an extra trick."

Jim: "The main point is that this balanced ten points with no high-spot cards is not considered to be worth a two-over-one response."

We continue to get questions about scoring an unfinished rubber.

The answer is that a side with a part score on an unfinished game is given a 50-point bonus; a side with a game in on an unfinished rubber is given a 300-point bonus.

Uncle Sam Has Pipeline On The Block In Alaska

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Here's one for the person who has everything: There's a pipeline for sale here by the General Services Administration.

Not THAT pipeline. The military surplus pipeline for sale and the crude oil pipeline under construction by the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. between Prudhoe Bay and Valdez are two different entities.

The pipeline system on the auction block runs 600 miles between Haines in southeastern Alaska and Fairbanks in the interior.

The original cost of the pipeline was about $43 million.

David Head, regional administrator of the GSA, said no sale date has been set but late spring appears likely.

Actually the auction will be a lease-sale combination, he said.

Plans call for the government to lease the 300 miles of pipeline, including five pumping stations, in Alaska — with 300 miles of pipeline and six pumping stations in Canada to be sold.

The lease-sale must go in a package to a single firm or consortium.

The reason for leasing the Alaska package is an unsettled land ownership questions, including everything from native land claims to wildlife refugees.

"There is no question that the government has the right to operate a pipeline," said V. L. Barnes, director of the GSA's regional Real Property Division in Auburn. "But when you try to go outside government ownership, there are problems. The present status of land ownership in Alaska is very complicated."

The Alaska section of the pipeline system will be sold once the land questions are settled.

No minimum price will be set because of what Barnes termed the "uniqueness" of the offering.

"We're pretty excited about it," he said. "This is going to be a very good for someone. The right-of-way alone is valuable."

Included in the package is the government's 50-foot, right-of-way corridor in Alaska — plus the 600 miles of eight-inch-diameter pipe, the 11 pumping and booster stations along the route, the tanker pier and 200 acres of terminal facilities in the ice-free port of Haines, tank storage at Haines and Tok of 75,000 barrels capacity and a complete stock of spare parts.

The military completed building of the pipeline in October 1955 but later stopped using it for a variety of reasons.

One was that some buried parts needed expensive repairs. There had been a few spills and the Army was becoming concerned about environmental safety.

In addition, requirements for the products transported by the pipeline diminished, and rail and highways were proving to be more economical ways of getting the jet fuel and other supplies to interior Alaska.

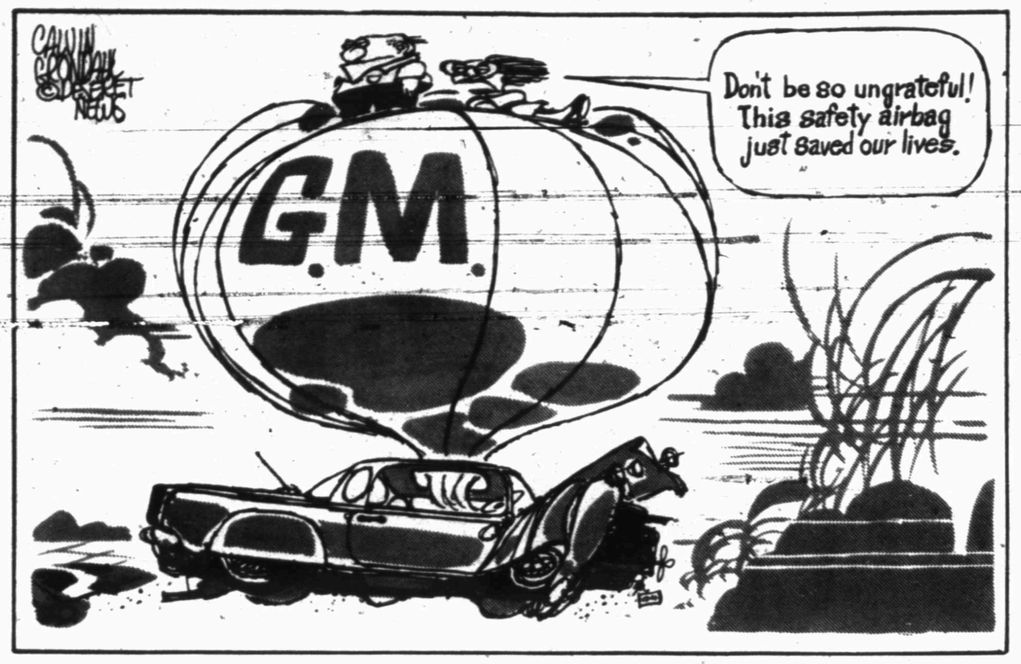

So, who wants to buy a dilapidated pipeline?

"It's in much better shape than is generally realized," Barnes said.

"Some of the buried parts need to be replaced, but they're not all that bad. Our staff has been over every inch of the line and we have a wealth of detail available."

The GSA hopes petroleum industry firms will be interested in buying the pipeline, and has written 397 of them about the sale.

There is speculation outside the GSA that some of the companies proposing natural-gas pipelines through Alaska might want that right-of-way, if only to keep it out of the hands of competitors.

Gas Shortage Predicted After '54 Court Ruling

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — In late 1954, L.F. McCollum said the predictable end of a cycle set into motion by a Supreme Court decision would be inadequate supplies of natural gas.

McCollum, then the chief executive officer of Continental Oil Co., was discussing the June 7, 1954, decision that upheld the authority of the Federal Power Commission to control wellhead prices of natural gas entering interstate markets.

"The inevitable result will be further imbalance between demand and supply," McCollum said in his Oct. 26, 1954, speech before the independent Petroleum Association of America.

"Supplies of gas for interstate sale will dwindle," he added.

McCollum, now retired, told the independents prevailing field prices for gas are the result of operation of the laws of supply and demand.

"Federal interference, attempting to decrease those prices, will, at first, stimulate demand," he said.

"There will, however, be no corresponding increase in supply, because the incentive to find and develop new sources is dependent upon receiving a fair price for the product. Further, such new supplies as are found, incident to the search for oil, will be diverted to intrastate sale outside the jurisdiction of the FFC.

At the time McCollum made his speech in Tulsa, Okla., domestic natural gas reserves approximated 210 trillion cubic feet. At the end of 1975, excluding Alaska's vast Prudhoe Bay, the industry estimate was only 196 trillion cubic feet.

In 1954, natural gas demand totaled 9.3 trillion cubic feet, then a record. Last year's production exceeded 19.7 trillion, down from the record level of 22.6 trillion cubic feet set in 1973.

Actual production has exceeded new additions to natural gas reserves in each of the past eight years.

And industry officials say intrastate sales now account for about 40 per cent of all the natural gas consumed in the nation.

McCollum told the independents in Tulsa the industry could not survive without continuous, unremitting efforts to find new sources of supply in order to provide sufficient gas both for new pipeline systems and to continue the operation of then existing lines beyond the life of the gas fields supplying them.

"Let me repeat the words 'continuous and unremitting' because they are the keys to exploratory success," he said.

"It has been industry's experience that the time required to transform as original exploratory idea, as to where new reserves may be found, into actual production averages about six years."

McCollum said such a time lag made it obvious any stoppage or slackening in exploratory effort because of governmental actions would not be felt immediately by the public.

"By the time the effects are evident, it will be practically impossible for the gas industry to make up for lost time," he said. "There is more involved in the process of finding gas than the simple turning of a valve."

McCollum said gas reserves at that time should last about 24 years at the then rate of demand and production.

"But that is not an accurate portrayal of the situation because the demand for gas is hardly likely to remain at the present level," he said.

"Now, if we assume an average rate of growth in demand for gas during the next 15 years of only five per cent per year, and if we further assume we should at least maintain the present ratio of reserves to production, we will have to find not less than 436 trillion cubic feet during the 15-year period. In other words, we must find more than twice as much gas as we already have."

During that 15-year period ending with 1969, the industry added 279.7 trillion cubic feet to proved reserves but demand required 216.9 trillion cubic feet and the reserves-production ratio dropped to 13.3 years.

In the 21-year period ending in 1975, the reserves-production ratio dropped to 9.9 years as 332.9 trillion cubic feet in additions to reserves were more than offset by 345.9 trillion cubic feet of production.

Blames Crime On Unemployment

DETROIT (AP) — United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock says widespread national unemployment is threatening the American democratic system.

And, he added, society will be pulled down by forces of lawlessness and eventually replaced by an authoritarian state unless the nation gets millions of unemployed persons back to work.

"You cannot have a democratic society ... and look into the future and see 7 per cent plus unemployment, without having crime get out of control, (and) having antisocial forces get out of control," the 65-year-old labor leader said Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press."

America's first Presbyterian church was established in 1684.

North Viets Tell Names Of 12 Dead

PARIS (AP)—The Vietnamese government today gave the U.S. Embassy the names of 12 American airmen it said were killed in the Vietnam war. They had been listed by the United States as missing in action.

A statement from the Vietnamese Embassy said the Communist government in Hanoi "shares the feelings of American families who have relatives who disappeared in Vietnam." It said the list was delivered as a good-will gesture.

There was speculation that the Vietnamese move was an attempt to rally public opinion against an American veto of Hanoi's application for membership in the United Nations.

The U.S. Embassy confirmed receiving the list but wouldnot comment further.

More than 900 Americans who fought in the Vietnam war are still listed as missing in action in Southeast Asia. Most of these were fliers lost on missions over Vietnam, Laos or Cambodia, and it is generally assumed that all are dead. But Hanoi and the other Communist governments of Indochina have refused to admit American search teams to search for their remains.

The Vietnamese have released some names of Americans killed in action, but it was believed that this was the first time they have used an official diplomatic channel.

President Ford said in July that unless the issue of the missing Americans was resolved, there would be no further progress toward establishing relations between the United States and Vietnam.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN—If you should find yourself unable to pay a debt, it's possible that you may begin to receive "dunning" letters from your creditors, or that a creditor may turn your account over to a professional debt collection agency for action.

Our Consumer Protection Division attorneys say that you may be able to avoid potential debt collection problems by taking the simple step of getting in touch with your creditors as soon as you realize that you are having financial difficulties.

Explain that you are temporarily unable to pay all of your bills on time and ask if you can pay a smaller amount over a longer period. If you have a good reason for being unable to meet payments but fully intend to repay all your debts eventually, your creditors may agree to such a plan.

If you fail to notify creditors about your problem, or if they do not agree to a reduced and extended payment plan, you still have certain legal rights under both Texas law and certain federal regulations.

A debt collector cannot threaten to file criminal charges against you if they are unwarranted. And bill collectors cannot send you notices that are designed to make you think they are legal documents such as a government agency or a court might send.

No debt collector can impersonate a law enforcement officer or any agent of federal, State, or local government, nor can they use any deceptive representation or other means to collect debts or to get information from debtors. In the past, there have been reports of unscrupulous bill collectors dressing in uniforms that resembled city policemen. Other illegal methods used by a few collectors were representing that they were casting directors for a movie or TV show, representing that they were taking a survey or representing that a prize would be sent to the person supplying certain information.

In Texas, no debt collector may "...oppress, harass, or abuse..." a debtor. This means that no profane or obscene language or language intended unreasonably to abuse the debtor may be used. And no collector can repeatedly telephone debtors with willful intent to harass them. This does not necessarily mean, however, that creditors or collectors cannot make several attempts to talk with you by telephone each day.

Our office has obtained several court judgments against businesses and individuals who have violated the law by their debt collection practices. In one case, our attorneys received an assurance that a collection agency would refrain from sending deceptive notices that looked like telegrams. In another, we filed a suit against a firm that represented that they had turned the case over to an attorney for legal action when they had not done so.

If you have a consumer problem with questionable collection practices, contact our Consumer Protection Division or the Texas Consumer Credit Commissioner.

Elderly Have Drug Problems

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The drug problems of the elderly are a growing concern of doctors, according to Dr. Wenell Lipscomb, a Berkeley psychiatrist.

Some older people abuse mind-altering drugs in an attempt to escape from loneliness and boredom. Others are unintentional victims of the "spaced-out grandma" syndrome — peculiar behavior resulting from the interactions of drugs prescribed for the ailments of old age, he says.

The "spaced-out grandma" syndrome is apt to develop, Lipscomb says, when patients are overtreated for the multiple conditions common in old age, such as sleeplessness, high blood pressure, arthritis and mood swings.

The problem is apt to arise when doctors prescribe multiple prescriptions for these ailments, producing in the patient's system a cocktail of different drugs which can cause strange behavior.

The chemical psychosis clears up as soon as the patient is taken off the drugs, he said.

WTC's Golf Course Is Due To Be 'Interesting'

Tom Jones, the man responsible for building the golf course at Western Texas College, believes it will be an interesting course. What's more important for local golfers is the fact that, when completed, the course will be open to the public.

"It will be operated like a municipal course," said Jones. "Green fees will be $3 for the public on weekdays and $4 on weekends and holidays." Students with activity cards, college employes and board members will pay $2 for week days and $3 for weekends and holidays.

Jones, a native of Ruidoso, came to Snyder last August from Lubbock where he was a graduate student. Since Jones has been here, all of the work on the course has been done by students at Western Texas College.

The golf course ties in with an occupational course in golf and grounds operation, and provides a unique situation for the nine students enrolled in the course.

"This is one of only three schools in the country that offer this type of program," said Jones.

Jones said he has had one problem. Students in the course are required to take a six-credit hour summer internship where the work is on another course.

"This is to expose them to someone else's operation," Jones explained.

Last summer, three WTC students worked themselves into fulltime jobs after their summer internship.

"I don't really feel bad about that," said Jones. "If they can get out and get a job and keep it -- that's what we're here for."

Jones' title is Director of Grounds Maintenance and Instructor of Golf and Grounds Operation. He did summer intern work at Fairfax County, Virginia, and Sunnyvale, California, working in their Parks and Recreation Departments.

Work on the WTC golf course began about four years ago, and it was to have been completed this fall. However adverse weather, mechanical breakdowns and a lack of personnel have resulted in postponement of the opening of the golf course until next spring.

"It will be open to the public next spring," Jones said.

A lot has been accomplished since Jones came here a year ago. During that time, all of the greens have been constructed. The fairways have been "rock-picked" with a mechanical rock picker. The irrigation system, which was not operative, has been completed and it is an automated system. All of the fairways except one have been planted, and all of the greens have been planted.

"We lost one green and will have to go back and replant it," Jones said. In addition to work on the golf course, Jones and his crew have taken care of the campus grounds.

The WTC golf course will have a par 35. There will be two 3's, one 5, and six 4's. Golfers will have a lake to their right side on three of the holes. On two of the holes, players will have to cross water. One of the greens will be on an island.

"It will be pretty interesting," said Green, who used to golf himself until he became so busy he didn't have time for it.

Jones said seven of the greens are in pretty good shape. Another one will have to be re-seeded, and the other one is in fair shape. The greens are constructed from 90 per cent seed and 10 per cent organic material.

"They will be larger than most greens in West Texas," Jones said.

All of the fairways except No. 4 are completed.

Asked if he had any special problems in constructing the course, Jones pointed out that fishermen have been coming out to the lake although it is closed to the public.

"They tear down our signs and carry them off with them," he said.

Twice cars have run through the wire fence surrounding the course. For this reason, Jones and his crew are hoping they can secure enough pipe to construct a pipe fence around the course.

Next spring, some local golf buffs are going to be happy when the course opens to the public.

NEW GOLF COURSE—Tom Jones, who is director of grounds maintenance and instructor of golf and grounds operations at Western Texas College, points down the fairway on the No. 1 hole where a new golf course is being constructed at the college. Since he came here a year ago, Jones has done all the the work with student help. The course will be opened to the public next spring and will be operated like a municipal course.

9th Grade Gold Wins

The 9th Grade Gold team beat the Big Spring girls in a volleyball match in Big Spring Saturday, 15-9, 15-1.

Playing for the Snyder team were Suzanne Fisher, Kim Harlin, Connie Weber, Vanessa White, Demetra Cobb, Laura Fortune, Norma Garcia, Sherry Stewart and Debbie Johnson.

The next game will be between the 9th Grade Black and Denver City at 6 p.m. Thursday in the Junior High gym here.

The Caspian Sea is 169,381 square miles in area.

$1,200 Is Paid For A Pigeon

STOW, Ohio (AP) — With two other men, Richard Murphy bought a pigeon for $1,200 recently.

The pigeon, named "Big Red," is the second best racing pigeon in America, the grandson of Belgian champion Motts, which reportedly won $90,000 in European racing events.

Murphy, a businessman and member of a pigeon racing club, plans to use the bird for breeding.

The $1,200 was the highest price paid for a pigeon at an auction of 35 pigeons to raise money for nursing scholarships.

Rules Of Course Are Established

Rules for the operation of the golf course at Western Texas College have already been established. The course will be in operation next Spring.

The Director of the Pro-Shop and Golf Course is responsible for the use of the facility. Sudents enrolled in the golf-grounds operation program and physical education golf classes, as well as the WTC golf team, will be given priority in the use of the golf course.

Other groups or individuals, faculty included, will be permitted to use the golf course upon payment of established fees. Persons using the facility are to comply with the rules and regulations as set by the board-of-trustees. It is to be understood that WTC is not to be responsible for personal injury or loss of equipment while groups or individuals are on the campus. Rules are as follows:

1. All play, except when modified by local rules, will be governed by U.S.G.A. rules.
2. All players must register in the pro shop.
3. No more than five players are allowed in one group at any time, unless permission is granted from the pro shop.
4. Each player must have a golf bag and clubs. Sharing of golf clubs is prohibited.
5. All play must start on No. 1 tee, unless permission is granted otherwise from the pro shop.
6. Allow next group to hit from tee boxes on No. 1 and No. 6 (par 3 holes) after all players are on the putting surface.
7. Slow and inexperienced players must allow faster threesomes, foursomes, or fivesomes to play through. Singles or twosomes have no priority over these groups.
8. Players looking for lost balls must signal following players to pass and not resume play until they are out of range.
9. No alcoholic beverages are permitted on the golf course.
10. Repair ball marks on greens, rake sand traps, and replace divots on fairways and tee boxes.
11. All players must wear a shirt.
12. No pets are allowed on the golf course.
13. Children below junior high age must be accompanied by an adult.
14. No groups less than four players are permitted on weekend or holiday afternoon when course is crowded, unless permission is granted from pro shop.
15. No mulligans or practicing on greens or fairways.
16. Group completing hole No. 9 has right-of-way between groups one and two waiting on No. 1 tee box.
17. Do not play from tee until players are out of range, nor up to the green until they have holed out and moved away.
18. Place all litter in containers provided.
19. Junior high age students are not allowed to drive golf carts unless accompanied by an adult.
20. No shoes are allowed on golf course which will cause damage to course and greens (spiked heels, soccer shoes, etc.).
21. All players must know and apply the rules and etiquette of golf. Players who fail to observe course regulations, proper golf eitquette, or rules of golf will be denied the privilege of playing the golf course.

Green fees will be $3 for the public on weekdays and $4 on weekends and holidays. Students with activity cards, college employes and board members will pay $2 for week days and $3 for weekends and holidays. These fees are for 18 holes.

Annual fees will be $180 per year for one person and an additional $60 per year for each family dependent.

The above fee may be paid semi-annual on Jan. 1 and July 1 of each year at the rate of $90 for a single member and $30 for a family member.

Private carts are $1 per nine holes for persons paying individual fees as well as annual fees.

More Novels In TV Fall Lineup

EDITOR'S NOTE — The dramatization of novels on television offers creative people a chance to do something a little different. But there's also the risk the dramatizations will become soap operas.

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Having claimed the motion picture for its own, television is now courting the printed word with equal fervor.

Long dramatizations of novels, sparked by the success of "Rich Man, Poor Man," will appear regularly this season for the first time.

NBC will serialize four or five books for its one-hour weekly "Best Sellers" show and will air a 6½-hour version of Arthur Hailey's "The Moneychangers" on its "Big Event," a 90-minute weekly show.

ABC will air a 12-hour production, in one or two hour segments, of Alex Haley's "Roots," beginning in January. In addition, ABC will telecast "Rich Man, Poor Man, Book Two" — a one-hour weekly series — from an outline prepared by author Irwin Shaw. CBS has no announced plans for dramatized novels.

Is this the new Movie of the Week? "I hope not," said Charles Engel, Universal Studios' executive in charge of the "Best Sellers" project. "I'd hate to see too many best-seller series on the air. The quality would go down."

The translation of novels to television is not entirely new. Sometimes they were called long movies, as "Vanished" and "QB VII." Or mini-series, as "The Blue Knight" and the "Zoo Gang."

"Vanished" suffered from the same flaws as the book, particularly its unsatisfactory ending. NBC insisted on a major star for "The Blue Knight," and as a result William Holden was miscast as Bumper Morgan. The "Zoo Gang" turned out so poorly that NBC slipped it in among the summer reruns hoping that no one would notice.

"QB VII" was the most successful. But it wasn't until "Rich Man, Poor Man" last winter that the idea caught fire.

"'Rich Man' dealt with people you could instantly identify with," said Engel. "You could love with them, cry with them, be upset with them. You were interested in them as characters. In 'QB VII' although it was well done you tended to be objectively involved."

Engel said Universal first approached ABC with its "Best Sellers" concept in 1968. No one was interested at the time, but after the success of "Rich Man," the studio dusted off its presentation and sent it off to NBC.

"What we're looking for are character pieces with romance and action motivated out of character rather than plot," said Engel.

For its "Best Sellers," NBC has in production Taylor Caldwell's "Captains and Kings" and Anton Myrer's "Once An Eagle," a war story. In preparation are Norman Bogner's "Seventh Avenue," Robert Ludlum's "The Rhinemann Exchange" and Suzanne Morris's "Galveston."

"The writing is very difficult," said Peter Fischer, who wrote the eight-hour script for "Once An Eagle." Even with eight hours, he said that he found it necessary to make changes to emphasize dramatic highlights. For instance, one minor character in the book was expanded in the film to give a major character a sounding board.

Stan Margulies, producer of "Roots," which traces Haley's ancestry from Africa to American slavery and down through the decades, said that the most important thing was to construct the TV dramatization so that it deals with characters who hold a viewer's interest.

"The (Haley) book covers a 200-year period and when we started out we thought 12 hours would be enough for 200 years," he said. "We ended up doing only 100 years in 12 hours — and I wish I had four more hours to do the 100 years."

Engel said he is often asked if he's had any problems with network censorship.

"We don't intend to do anything that's untrue to what the authors have written," he said. "If romance is called for, romance is what the audience will get. If action is written in, that's what the audience will get. But it will be done with good taste."

The TV novels, obviously, will not be shown during the "family hour." Obviously, too, the novels selected are not saturated with sex and violence. A controversial theme might appear here or there, but in "Captains and the Kings," for instance, references to a consortium involving Communists and bankers were dropped.

What does the future hold for novels on television? The danger exists that they could just become soap operas.

"This kind of television, like all other kinds of television, will depend on the material and the execution," said Margulies. "The form itself is no guarantee.

"This form does give creative people a chance to do something a little different, a little more interesting. The opportunity is here for those of us plowing the field, but the fact that you're doing a novel in eight or 12 hours is not a guarantee of success."

Tarkenton Draws Praise, But Efforts Fall Short

By The Associated Press

Randy Gradishar came to praise Fran Tarkenton, then he buried him.

"There just couldn't be any more to a quarterback than he is," Gradishar said of Tarkenton after intercepting a pass by the Minnesota signal-caller and racing 87 yards for a clinching touchdown in the Denver Broncos' 30-17 victory over the Vikings Sunday — the final day of the National Football League exhibition season.

In another Sunday finale, the New England Patriots defeated the winless Philadelphia Eagles 20-7.

On Saturday, Dallas outlasted Houston 26-20 in overtime, the unbeaten Miami Dolphins whipped New Orleans 20-7, undefeated Los Angeles downed San Francisco 10-3, Pittsburgh routed the New York Jets 41-6, the Oakland Raiders trounced Seattle 45-28, San Diego edged the New York Giants 14-13, and Cincinnati topped Tampa Bay 24-13.

The regular season opens next Sunday.

Tarkenton, one of the NFL's all-time leading passers, completed 27 of 41 passes for 315 yards and one touchdown — a 50-yarder to Sammy White. But he suffered four interceptions, including the one by Gradishar with 30 seconds remaining in the game.

At the time, the Vikings were trailing 23-17, but had moved deep into Denver territory. However, the threat ended when defensive tackle John Grant deflected a pass by Tarkenton and Gradishar intercepted and ran for the decisive touchdown.

The Broncos had gone ahead for the first time earlier when Lonnie Perrin blocked a Minnesota punt, then grabbed the ball on the Vikings' 29 and ran for a touchdown.

Earlier, Otis Armstrong scored twice on short runs for the Broncos, who won their fourth straight game and ended the exhibition season with a 5-2 record. Minnesota wound up 3-3, and Coach Bud Grant was unhappy. "When you don't win, you don't have to be satisfied with anything," he said.

New England, 3-3, used second-period scoring runs by Don Calhoun and Ike Forte to hand punchless Philadelphia its sixth setback.

Scott Laidlaw's third touchdown of the game — on a 10-yard run at 6:43 of overtime — enabled Dallas, 3-3, to overcome state-rival Houston, 0-6, in a nationally televised game and win the "Texas Pro Football Championship." Laidlaw's first two scores were on runs of six yards in the fourth quarter when the Cowboys rallied from a 20-3 deficit.

Miami, 6-0, broke a 7-7 tie against New Orleans, 4-2, on Duriel Harris' 59-yard punt return for a touchdown in the second period. The Dolphins' sturdy pass defense limited the Saints to 11 yards in the air.

Los Angeles, also 6-0, defeated San Francisco, 4-2, with the help of cornerback Monte Jackson, who blocked a punt and raced 50 yards for the game's only touchdown, then killed a 49ers' fourth-period drive by intercepting Jim Plunkett's pass with 2:45 left in the game.

Jets' quarterback Joe Namath was given a warm ovation by Pittsburgh fans just before making his first pro appearance in his home area, then the Steelers' defenders went out and manhandled him, sacking him six times. Meanwhile, quarterback Terry Bradshaw completed 17 of 20 passes for 245 yards and two touchdowns, for the Steelers, 5-2.

"Pittsburgh came out, lined up in the pro formation and the next 60 minutes they beat the daylights out of us," said Coach Lou Holtz, whose Jets finished the preseason 1-5.

Oakland's Ken Stabler fired three touchdown passes, including 60 and 33-yarders to Mel Branch, as the Raiders, 5-1, built a 45-7 lead and withstood three fourth-quarter scores by Seattle, 1-5.

Quarterback Neal Jeffrey, cut by San Diego last year and by the Giants earlier this year, capped a 76-yard fourth-period scoring march with a 27-yard pass to Charlie Joiner, lifting the Chargers, 3-3, to their victory over New York, 4-2. Joiner also scored San Diego's first TD, on a 41-yard pass from Dan Fouts.

John Reaves connected on 21 of 32 passes for 272 yards and three touchdowns, two to tight end Bob Trumpy, leading Cincinnati 4-2, over Tampa, 1-5. The Buccaneers' Isaac Hagins, who had returned a kickoff 92 yards for a score against Chicago last week, sped 102 yards with a kickoff for a TD against the Bengals.

Arizona State plays eight night football games this season.

Four Top Teams Open With Wins

By WILLIARM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

There probably will be a new No. 1 team in Class B, but the rest of the top-ranked teams looked brick-solid on the first full weekend of Texas schoolboy football.

Claude knocked Groom off the lofty No. 1 perch in Class B with a 13-12 victory but Brazoswood, Beaumont Hebert, Rockdalle and Aledo should maintain their top posts in The Associated Press poll.

Brazoswood, the 1974 Class 4A champion picked to win again in 1976, crushed Angleton 35-0; Hebert of Class 3A mangled crosstown rival Forest Park 35-7; Class 2A's Rockdale tripped Brenham 21-9 and Aledo of Class A manhandled Cedar Hill 47-0.

The Beaumont Hebert and Rockdale victories were accomplished against teams in a higher class.

The most embarrassing losses in Class 4A were by sixth-ranked Baytown Lee and No. 9 Wichita Falls Rider. Lee fell 21-7 to Houston Spring Branch and Rider was humiliated 39-0 by Abilene.

Brownwood and Mount Pleasant were top 10 casualties in 3A, but the losses were to 4A rivals, Abilene Cooper and Marshall, respectively. Ennis, New Braunfels, Beeville and Cuero joined Beaumont Hebert in besting 4A opponents.

In Class 2A, No. 2 Pittsburgh, third-ranked La Grange and No. 4 Pearsall lost while No. 7 kermit bested No. 9 Alpine in a battle of rated squads.

The key game in Class A saw second-ranked Big Sandy whip No 4 Ore City 22-14. Big Sandy had won or tied for the last three Class B state titles before moving to Class A this season.

The ninth-ranked B team, Gorman, outslugged the No. 9 Class A team, DeLeon, 29-8. Chico, No. 4 in Class B, enjoyed weekend's biggest thrashing—a 62-0 humbler over Millsap.

How the top ranked Texas schoolboy football teams fared:

Class 4A
1. Brazoswood (1-0) beat Angleton 35-0.
2. Sherman (1-0) beat Hurst Bell 30-13.
3. Odessa Permian (1-0) beat El Paso Coronado 21-6.

Jack Proves He's Not Over The Hill

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Jack Nicklaus concedes it was irritating, all that talk he was over the hill at the young golfing age of 36.

"Just because you don't win doesn't mean you're washed up," Nicklaus said Sunday after he had won his 60th official professional tournament, the $300,000 World Series of Golf.

Nicklaus demonstrated he's the greatest shotmaker on the tour, and possibly the best ever. He was the lone player in the select field of 20 never to go over par on Firestone South's awesome 7,130 yards.

His final round of 68, preceded by earlier efforts of 68, 70 and 69, added up to 275, five under par and four shots better than second-place Hale Irwin.

Nicklaus earned a payday of $100,000 to send his unprecedented career total past $2.8 million. Of that, more than $261,000 has come this year and he's the leading money-winner in 1976.

Irwin fashioned the best round of the cool, crisp day, a 67 that earned him second money of $50,000. He became the game's 12th millionaire.

Dave Hill was the other player to match par of 280, shooting a closing 70 for third place and $20,000.

Australian David Graham, the winner last week of the American Golf Classic on the Firestone North layout, ran his two-week earnings to $55,000. He shot a 69 for 281, fourth place and $15,000.

Second-round leader Hubert Green, who struggled to a 73 playing with Nicklaus, picked up $13,000 for his 282 and fifth place.

Stories this year suggesting Nicklaus was through as a big winner upset him.

"I shouldn't read the newspapers and learn how bad I've been playing and how bad a year I've had," he admitted.

Nicklaus now is only two victories away from Ben Hogan's 62 titles, second on the all-time list, and one shy of Arnold Palmer's 61. Sam Snead has won 84 tournaments.

Tar Heel Fake Injury Play Sparks Controversy

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Did North Carolina use an unethical play to score a touchdown in its 14-10 triumph over 20th-ranked Miami of Ohio?

The Tar Heels' fake-injury, no-huddle trick play produced a 69-yard scoring run and triggered a lively topic of conversation on a slim opening weekend of the college football season.

"It doesn't do any good to blast it in public because that makes the game of football look bad, but I don't think it looks good when you have to do that to win," Miami Coach Dick Crum told The Associated Press Sunday night after having more than 24 hours to digest the occurrence.

Crum was strangely silent immediately after the game, saying only, "I have never seen that play before." But the more he thought about it, the more annoyed he became over the play.

"Had it been done with a player not faking an injury ... he began. "If you've got to do that to win ... Wow!"

This is what happened.

With Miami holding a 3-0 lead in the second period, North Carolina had a first-and-10 on its own 34. Quarterback Bernie Menapace ran a keeper, losing three yards, and staggered around after the tackle as though injured.

"Our kids said he was crying, 'Oh, my arm, my arm,'" Crum said. "The North Carolina players walked away like they anticipated the trainer coming on the field. We tell our kids that any time there's an injury to go into a huddle and the officials will bring them out."

So the Miami defense went into a huddle. That proved to be a miracle cure for Menapace. He scooped up the ball and pitched it to wingback Mel Collins, who wasn't touched until his teammates mobbed him in the Miami end zone.

"The fake injury put everybody off guard," Crum said. "But as soon as the referee marked the ball, he was okay. Without the fake injury I think it would still be shaky, but it would be within the framework of the rules. This way, it was used to gain an unfair advantage and the rule book says something about faking an injury not being in the spirit of the game. We've tried to legislate that type of thing out of the rules and I think it's worth pursuing."

Miami regained the lead 10-7 but Menapace threw a legal and ethical winning nine-yard touchdown pass to Collins in the final period.

Big Spring Trips Volleyball Teams

The Snyder High School girls volleyball teams were beaten at Big Spring Saturday. The varsity lost 15-11. 11-15, 6-15. The JV was tripped 15-10, 4-15, 6-15.

Scoring for the Varsity: Kim Nicholson 13 points, Dana Elrod 5, Susan Walker 4, Cindy Koonsman 4, shelly Nutt 3, Donna West 2, and Kathy Harrell 1.

Snyder took an early lead in the first game, 7-0, with Big Spring having trouble at the serving line. Big Spring closed the gap some at 9-6, but Snyder capitalized on accurate serving, much of it by Kim Nicholson, and strong net play by Della Braziel to take the first game.

The second game found Big Spring taking the lead 2-0. Snyder caught up and pulled ahead 9-6, but Big Spring pounded away at the net, using their superior height to their advantage. The Tigers had trouble coordinating their defense, and a few mistakes were costly. The Snyder girls fought back in the third game and took a 5-0 lead. Their momentum soon lessened, however, and failed to score through four different serves. Big Spring caught up and took command of the game to win the match.

"I was pleased with the way the team looked even though we lost," said Coach Joyce Elrod. "Big Spring had much height and power that we were unable to stop at the net. However, I think we played better than we did at San Angelo."

Big Spring stands a good chance of winning their district this year.

Snyder blocking continued to improve as well as serve receivers. Tiger serving was better 90 per cent accurate for the second straight game.

"Offense remains to be the one area in which we need the most improvement," said Coach Elrod. "We said at first that we needed to be deceptive on offense, and we have much work yet to do."

Scoring for the Junior Varsity: Sherry Neves 11 points, Sylvia Garcia 3, Shana Smith 3, Connie Pollard 2, Danna Meyers 2, and Beatrice Rodriguez 1.

Tuesday, the girls play Cooper High in Abilene. Cooper will be the Tiger girls' third 4A opponent in as many matches. The JV match begins at 6, followed by the varsity match at 7 p.m.

Probable starting lineup for the varsity: Kim Nicholson, Valerie Wilson, Pam Kohl, Susan Walker, Della Braziel and Jeana von Roeder.

Booster Club Meets Tonight

The Tiger Booster Club will meet at 7 o'clock tonight in the high school cafeteria.

Erwin Pavlik, club president, said members will see films of the Monahans game and hear a scouting report on Borger, the Tigers' opponent Friday night.

Members of the high school volleyball teams will be guests of the club.

8th Grade Gold Defeated, 22-0

SWEETWATER—The host 8th grade football team shut out the Snyder 8th Grade Gold team, 22-0, here Saturday morning.

Sweetwater scored in the third quarter on a 10 yard run and in the fourth period on a four yard run and a 35 yard screen pass.

The 8th grade Gold team will host Goliad at 5:30 p.m. Thursday.

WTC Gym To Begin Season

The W.T.C. Gymnasium facility begins its regular operation on Tuesday, Sept. 6. Dr. Sid Simpson, chairman of the physical education division, announced the gym will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday; 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Fridays; and on weekends the gym will open Sundays at 2 p.m. until 5 p.m.

All persons enrolled for classes at WTC and holders of Booster Club gym passes are eligible to use the facilities during the listed hours.

Dr. Simpson cautioned that, because of the demands, it will be necessary to reserve time periods on the handball and tennis courts. Reservations may be made by phoning the athletic office (extension 284) at the college between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 3 p. m. Students enrolled in College tennis and racquetball classes will be given priorities in the use of these facilities.

The Booster Club drive is currently in progress and gym passes are being mailed to donors as rapidly as possible, Dr. Simpson stated. These passes should be presented to the instructor on duty when the gym is used.

JV, Dunbar Fight To Tie

LUBBOCK—The Snyder High School junior varsity football team fought Lubbock Dunbar to a 6-6 tie here Saturday afternoon.

The hosts went ahead in the fourth quarter, driving 40 yards to pay dirt. The touchdown came on an end sweep from eight yards out.

Late in the game, the Snyder boys blocked a Dunbar punt for their touchdown. The line of scrimmage was the four yard line.

Neither team was able to collect any extra points.

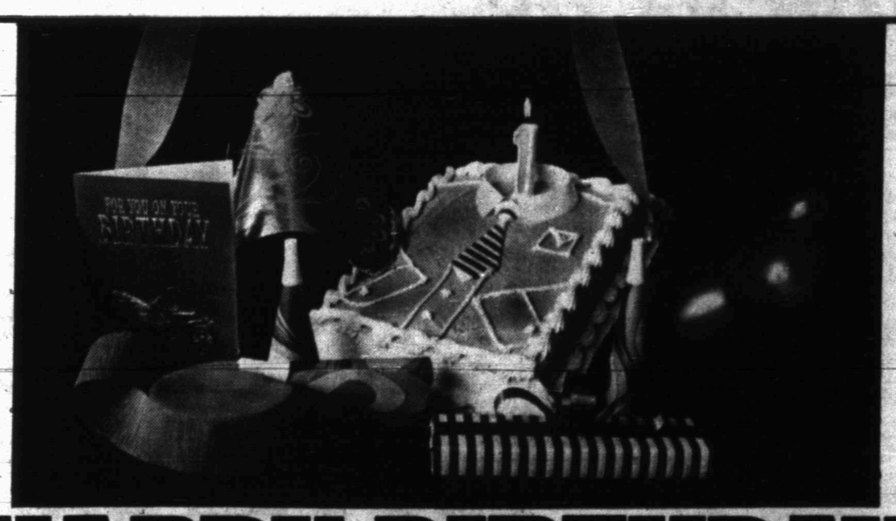

The JV will be at Big Spring at 7 p.m. Thursday night.

VINTAGE HOUSE RESTORED—Artist C. Warren Cullar and his wife, Donna, stand beside a covered wagon in front of the turn-of-the-century house they restored near Bertram. Cullar will observe "open house" at his new studio there on Sept. 11-12.

AT NEW HILL COUNTRY STUDIO
Cullar Planning 'Open House'

C. Warren Cullar, artist of the Southwest, will be celebrating his move to the Hill Country with an open house at his new Bertram studio on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 11 and 12 from 1 to 5 p.m. A transparent watercolorist, Cullar will be demonstrating painting technique from 2 to 4 each day and approximately twenty of his works will be on display. The location is one mile east of Bertram on Highway 29 and easily identified by the restored covered wagon in the front yard.

CULLAR AT WORK—C. Warren Cullar is shown at work in his new studio near Bertram, where he will have "open house" on Sept. 11-12.

Cullar received his Bachelor of Fine Arts Degree from Abilene Christian College beginning his career as a commercial artist. After receiving his Master of Fine Arts from the Instituto Allende, San Miguel de Allende, Guanajuato, Mexico, he entered eight years of college teaching first at Hardin-Simmons University-Abilene and most recently at Western Texas College in Snyder. In May, the artists and hiw wife, Donna, who assists in the management of the studio, moved to Bertram to paint full-time and open a watercolor school. The scenery and the fellowship of the area artists attracted them to the Hill Country. Cullar is a member of the Texas Watercolor Society, Southwest Watercolor Society, and Texas Fine Arts Association.

Because he paints from personal experience, Cullar travels widely in search of new subjects. Scenes from New England, Egypt, and Mexico will be featured in the show. However, many of his best subjects come, literally, from his own backyard, for example, the oaks on his property which are some of the largest and oldest trees in Burnet County. A realistic painter, his favorite subjects are people, houses, wagons, in short, anything with character or as he calls it "time in." All interested in watercolor or art in general are invited to put a little time in at the Cullar Studio Open House.

The steamer Lady Elgin collided with the lumbership Augusta on Lake Michigan in 1860. An estimated 300 persons died.

7 Graduate Courses Set

Seven graduate level courses will be offered at the Sul Ross State University extension center at Western Texas College during the fall semester starting Tuesday.

Sixty students are enrolled in the classes, Mrs. Mary Pinkston, Sul Ross coordinator, said. Persons interested in information concerning future courses may contact her in the WTC Administration Building.

The fall schedule is as follows:

Paden was stationed with the Officer Assignment Division, Headquarters, Air Training Command, Randolph Air Force Base, San Antonio. Sgt. Paden's parents are Jammie and Mary Paden of Fluvanna.

Postman Has An Assistant

MIDLOTHIAN, Va. (AP) — Postman Ralph Branch has unauthorized company each day as he makes his deliveries on a 10-mile route.

His buddy is a mixed-breed dog named Bullet who travels beside and in front of the mail truck as Branch delivers the mail.

"Every day," said Branch, "Bullet picks me up on Fitzhugh Avenue and follows me all day from the time I start until the time I stop — including lunch."

At the end of the route, Bullet sits and watches as Branch drives away.

Branch said the dog belonged to an area resident.

Crosbyton Bidding For Fame In Solar Energy

LUBBOCK—A new contract signed by Texas Tech University and the national Energy Research and Development Agency (ERDA) could make the [illegible] household word in a nation hungry for moderately priced energy.

The contract calls for total research funding of about $2.4 million but leading to the possibility of funding up to $22 million for the construction of a solar energy plant. It would serve the city of Crosbyton but also be a prototype for future energy systems for other small towns or agricultural areas. The research is organized into steps, the first of which costs between $658,000 and $879,000.

Crosbyton's population is 2,314. It is on the edge of the Texas Panhandle, on the South Plains of West Texas, where clear sky days average about 163 per year and the partly cloudy days are likely to account for another 104. A major reason for its selection as the possible site for a prototype solar energy plant was its early reaction to the energy crisis. Officials of the town approached Texas Tech University engineering faculty [illegible] for help. The ERDA contract is an outgrowth of that request.

Working with Texas Tech faculty in the research will be E-Systems, Inc., of Dallas.

Principal investigators are two members of the Texas Tech electrical engineering faculty, Drs. John D. Reichert, the project director, and Stanley R. Liberty, project manager. Liberty is also a director of the Institute for Energy Research in the College of Engineering and an associate dean of the Graduate School.

E-Systems, as a subcontractor, will assist with both research and construction phases of the project if actual construction is the route chosen, Reichert said.

The first step of the contract signed this week (week of Aug. 29) covers a 10-month period with a review at the end of six months, according to Reichert and Liberty. If research results are positive at the end of six months, the project will move forward toward construction of a prototype for the solar energy plant.

If research results indicate that the original project design could not succeed, it will be documented for future researchers, phased out, and alternate sources of energy will be sought for Crosbyton.

It is the review provision which accounts for the contract range of ERDA support in the first step, amounting to $658,212 if initial research gives negative answers and $878,710 if the project is moving forward toward actual construction of a prototype solar energy system.

A major review at the end of 10 months will determine if the second step of funding will take place and the project develop toward completion of the entire solar energy system.

"Because Texas Tech faculty have other commitments, including regular teaching loads, and because this is an unusually large and complex project," Reichert said, "E-Systems will furnish corollary work as a subcontracter."

Dr. Yudi P. Gupta, director of energy programs for E-Systems, will be the project director for that company and Robert Walters will be project manager for E-Systems.

Other Texas Tech faculty involved in the project at this time are associated with the departments of electrical, chemical, civil and mechanical engineering, geosciences and mathematics. Additional disciplines probably will become involved later, the engineers said. Travis L. Simpson will be administrative coordinator.

Initially, research will require gathering and analysis of site data. There will be studies of soil and wind at Crosbyton, the frequency and velocity of dust storms which might damage a solar mirror, the frequency of cloud or dust cover which could reduce the availability of solar energy, and other factors important to the success of the venture.

The concept involved in the Crosbyton project is more than a century old, but it has unique features which promise highly practical results, Reichert said. The approach proposed for the project is the Fixed Mirror-Distributed Focus (FMDF) concept, while most other systems call for the use of reflectors which move with the sun and focus its rays on one hot spot.

The FMDF – with the focus of the sun's rays distributed across the collector as the sun moves – is expected to be less costly than the more commonly proposed systems. It is being designed to feed solar energy, converted to electrical energy, into the power system Crosbyton already has.

The research will include a study of the interface between solar and fossil fuel systems in order that electrical frequencies, energy loads and all other elements can be matched to make the two systems work in harmony.

The look of the system will be something like a partially sunken football stadium with an east-west alignment and bleachers removed on the south side. The remaining "bleacher and playing area" would encompass the solar collector. Because of its appearance, Reichert refers to it as a "solar gridiron."

"The high cost for this prototype," Reichert said, "will be the result, in part, of the research and design costs and first-of-a-kind hardware. We would expect that future systems could be built for about one-fourth as much and, although that appears high, the cost of energy produced could be held to moderate levels."

INNOVATION IN ENERGY—Texas Tech University officials sign a contract with the national Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) to begin a $2.4 million program calling for research and the possible $22 million development of solar energy-generated power for the town of Crosbyton, Tex. Left to right are: T. J. Taylor, mayor pro-tem of Crosbyton; D. K. Nowlin, contracting officer and director of the Special Programs Division, ERDA Albuquerque operations office; Dr. J. Knox Jones, vice president for research and dean of the Texas Tech Graduate School; Texas Tech President Cecil Mackey; and Dr. Lloyd K. Lauderdale, E-Systems vice president for research and engineering and general manager of E-Systems Energy Technology Center. (TECH PHOTO)

Look Closely At That Fine Print

Private insurance policies to supplement Medicare might seem like a good idea at first glance, but Medicare clients had better take a close look at the "fine print" of this good idea, according to Don Minyard, Branch Manager of the Big Spring Social Security office.

Buying a private insurance policy has no effect on Medicare coverage. These policies are designed to fill in the gaps in the government program, mainly those left by deductibles and payments required after a certain length of time. These gaps are covered for a price by programs neither sponsored nor endorsed by the federal government.

Medicare clients are sometimes confused by the prominent use of the term Medicare in advertising and mailings. But, if the coverage being offered claims to fill in the gaps of Medicare coverage, then the policy is not being offered by the Medicare program or the Social Security Administration.

Another notice included somewhere in most, advertising from private companies states the insurance company is not associated with any federal program or the Social Security Administration.

Also, envelopes containing Medicare related materials from the Social Security Administration have a return address from that agency. Self-addressed envelopes will also show the agency's name as part of the address.

Correspondence from companies trying to sell private insurance policies to supplement Medicare should be read with a clear understanding of whom the information is from and a sharp eye on the "fine print", according to Mr. Minyard.

Delays removal of plantar warts

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—Could you please give me some information on plantar warts. I have had one for about one-and-a-half years. Now I notice I'm getting others. I went to a podiatrist about eight months ago but at the time I was severely anemic so he didn't want to begin treatment. He told me no matter what I do I shouldn't have them cut out because the scar formation can be more painful than the wart. Others have told me the only real way to cure them is to have them cut out. What do you advise?

DEAR READER—The podiatrist gave you good advice. Plantar warts are different than other warts and the treatment is not the same.

Warts, regardless of location, are caused by a virus. They are mildly contagious. They seem to have a life cycle and will disappear on their own time. Unfortunately, a wart may last five years, but many disappear within a year. Although there may be several warts they may all disappear about the same time, suggesting that the body has finally developed an immunity to them and literally expels them.

One of the problems about removing a wart is that a new one may then develop. It is not a regrowth of the old one if it has been completely removed, but a new wart. It is advisable to remove most warts because the presence of one may lead to a spread with new wart formations.

The plantar warts are caused by the same virus, but the location, in the dense tough tissues on the bottom of the foot, makes the usual means of destruction unsatisfactory because you may be left with a painful scar. It is better to live with a painful wart for as much as five years than to live the rest of your life with a painful scar on the bottom of your foot.

Liquid nitrogen to freeze out warts, electrocautery to burn them out, and other treatments are used to destroy warts in other locations.

A good method is to apply a small piece of 40 per cent salicylic acid plaster the size of the wart. The plaster is held in place by a piece of waterproof tape and them replaced every three days. The wart tissue will turn white and can be pared away each week. This will keep the size of the wart down and eliminate some of the discomfort. In some cases it will eventually cure the wart. Applications of cold cream containing five per cent formalin can also be used in some cases.

Some patients develop a sensitivity to formalin and if there is any sign of a rash the treatment should be stopped.

For other warts, removal by liquid nitrogen is usually successful. All of the methods to destroy warts must be done under a physician's supervision.

A strong medicine called cantharidin can be applied to a wart and the area covered with collodion and properly dressed. Regardless of the method, the successful ones depend on destroying the wart-infected tissue.

Some folk medicine cures seem to work on occasions. Usually this is a happy coincidence with the treatment being applied just at the time the wart was all through anyway.

Those who want information on dangers of using sprays can send a long stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents for The Health Letter number 3-4, Aerosol Dangers. Address your letter to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Great Baboon Hunt Successful

KILGORE, Tex. (AP) — Rusk County authorities had a suspect in custody Sunday after a six-day reign of terror, ending the county's most intensive baboon hunt.

Baboon hunt?

Armed with a large net, four Rusk County Health Department officers and two dove hunters Saturday apprehended Handy, a 140-pound baboon, who escaped last Monday from his owner, Ronald Reagan, a Kilgore businessman.

Handy eluded Rusk County sheriff's deputies, shotgun-toting Kilgore police officers and dozens of vigilantes for six days.

He was responsible for at least one assault and one attempted assault while terrorizing citizens and dogs as he bounded around this East Texas county, authorities said.

Handy was incarcerated at an animal clinic in nearby Henderson.

A sheriff's department spokesman said Handy will probably be sent to Austin to be tested for rabies.

"He scared the hell out of a lot of people," said Kilgore patrolman Charles Rogers. "We received all kinds of calls saying he was everywhere.

"He grew with each call," Rogers added. "One report had him about seven feet tall, weighing 450 pounds and with tusks six inches long."

Reagan's pet escaped in the Laird Hill area Monday morning and bit [illegible] ago of Laird Hill in the thigh, severing an artery, authorities said. Jennings was hospitalized until Saturday.

Rusk County deputy sheriff Kelly Freeman said about 30 persons steadily searched for the fugitive, including eight deputies and seven Kilgore police officers.

Two Kilgore men, Nathan Haley and Dudley Plaisance, tried to capture Handy with a net Monday.

He threw the net off and fled. Later they tried bananas and a bottled soft drink treated with tranquilizers.

Handy threw the bananas back and broke the bottle.

Finally, two Kilgore College students hunting dove cornered the fugitive in a stock pond, where he was netted by the students and four health department officers.

Bishop Again Defies Vatican

BESANCON, France (AP) — Dissident Roman Catholic Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre again defied a Vatican order by taking part in another Mass celebrated in Latin.

It was the second consecutive Sunday on which Archbishop Lefebvre, whom the Pope suspended from all priestly duties last summer, took part in a Mass in defiance of the Vatican's ban against Latin.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your hunches are fairly accurate today, but if you don't follow through with them the way they're perceived, you could wind up in a confused state.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you ask business advice of someone you respect today and the matter is rather complicated, write down what you were told or you'll foul it up.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Should you choose halfway measures today, don't expect full results. You can never get from something more than you put into it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's possible something will be lost in transmission today when you relay a message. Make doubly sure you have your facts straight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may think you're pretty shrewd businesswise today, but you'll be out of your league if you tangle with one who doesn't come up to high standards.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Avoid agreeing too readily to propositions today. You may regret making a decision you rushed into needlessly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A little windfall may come your way today. Accept it without any qualms, providing your conscience is clear.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Someone you met recently and who you enjoy very much is probably a fine person. Wait till you know him better before lending him anything, however.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Give your nobler instincts full sway today. If you feel like doing something nice for a friend, do it now while you're in an expansive mood.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Heed the advice of positive pals today rather than the rumblings of pessimistic friends. Don't let the crepehangers' grim pronouncements upset you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you promise to do something today, don't back off, even though it could cost you something out of pocket. You'll damage your image.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Make analytical judgments regarding your goals. Things you feel deserve top priority today may not rate that highly over-all.

Ranch Style Living

HOME DESIGN
BY Larry Farnsworth

The luxurious touches in the imaginative plan used for this attractive ranch style house are numerous indeed.

Note for example, the long, pleasant, sunken living room with its charming bow window and big fireplace. The formal dining room beside it on the regular level gains drama, both from the railing between them and from the diagonal utility room wall, which creates an optical illusion of extra space by focusing attention clear through to the kitchen dining area at the back of the house and the family room which adjoins it.

Note, too, how the kitchen's U-shaped work area provides maximum counter and cabinet space, as well as a counter for family room dining. Additional built-ins fill most of the fireplace wall too. The fireplace, by the way, is part of the double chimney installation which also provides one for the living room, but note, that on the family room side, the raised hearth is of stone for a cozy, less formal look. Note, too, the huge covered patio outside the family room, accessible from it and the master bedroom too, through pleasant glass sliding doors, and also accessible from the big utility room.

That utility room has another interesting feature, too. In addition to laundry and pantry storage areas, it includes a practical half bath to keep in again, out again, back yard traffic from "tracking" through the rest of the house.

The master bedroom is a huge affair with a bath, dressing room and walk-in closet. And see those two additional walk-in closets in the other two bedrooms. The main bath backs up to the other and has a double lavatory, too.

The exterior of this large ranch style house has combined used brick with board and batten siding for a most attractive overall look.

For most attractive, luxurious living, this house is an excellent choice.

Senior Citizen 'Discounts' Take Bite Out Of Inflation

EDITOR'S NOTE — More than 10 per cent of the U.S. population is over 65 and the proportion is growing steadily. Inflation has hit particularly hard at many of these people because of their fixed incomes. But lately there has been some relief in the form of senior citizen discounts on a growing variety of items.

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Norman A. Brinker of Charleston, S.C., gets a 10 per cent discount every week on his grocery bill. He estimates he and his wife save more than $200 a year.

Brinker also gets a cut-rate price at the drugstore. And there are discounts waiting for him at almost 200 other Charleston retail outlets, ranging from auto repair shops to motels.

He's a senior citizen, one of millions of Americans taking advantage of the growing number of discounts offered to the elderly by government and industry.

The discounted items include transit fares, groceries, movie tickets, auto repairs, medicines and motels. Some utilities offer "lifeline" electric rates, providing a minimum charge for a minimum amount of power for the elderly. The most popular programs are those offering savings on prescription drugs — which can account for up to 25 per cent of all the money spent by senior citizens on medical care. The minimum age for eligibility varies, but generally it is either 60 or 65.

The discounts are available in cities from coast to coast. Some are arranged by national organizations for senior citizens, but most are organized on a local basis. Merchants say the programs are good business: they draw customers and build goodwill.

Joan Barnes, director of Charleston Area Senior Citizens, Inc., said 190 South Carolina retailers in Charleston, Berkeley and Dorchester counties participate in discount programs. For a $3-a-year fee ($5 for couples), her group provides a list of the druggists, groceries, motels, movies, auto repair shops, restaurants, etc., offering discounts to the elderly.

Eleanor Mueller's membership in the Metropolitan Senior Federation of Minneapolis saved her $1,000 when she had to spend three weeks in the hospital recently. Miss Mueller had a private room and was treated by five specialists, but she paid nothing.

That's because the federation, organized four years ago, worked out an agreement with local hospitals and doctors to accept Medicare as full payment for outpatient care and all tests and physicals. The hospitals absorb the deductible portion usually paid by the patient.

Minneapolis senior citizens can also ride public transit free between rush hours.

The most widespread discount program is offered by the American Association of Retired Persons, a Washington-based group with 9.2 million members. You must be over 55 to join, but you don't have to be retired.

Members pay a $3 annual fee and get discounts at eight nationwide hotel and motel chains and two rent-a-car companies, Avis and Hertz. The group's other programs include a pharmacy service providing home delivery of prescription drugs and other medical items at low cost.

Another nationwide discount plan is offered by "VIP," a nonprofit group in Milton Township, Ill. The group issues ID cards to the elderly and publishes lists of available discounts.

"One man went out to the West Coast and went all up and down from San Francisco to Seattle and got discounts with it (the ID card)," said Janet Trojan, director of the program. "It is honored all over the country." She said 20,000 ID cards have been issued so far.

At the federal level, the National Park Service offers a Golden Age Passport to anyone 62 or over, as long as the individual is a citizen or permanent U.S. resident. The passport is good for life and can be obtained in person at any park.

The passport provides free admission to all National Park Service parks — about 70 in all — and is good for a 50 per cent discount on "user fees," such as charges for campsites, boat launchings and entry to historical sites. The discount also applies at facilities operated by other federal agencies such as the Forest Service.

Carl Christensen of the park service said almost 500,000 passports were issued last year and 300,000 to 400,000 are expected to be issued this year.

Among other local discount programs:

—San Francisco started a discount program late in July. Among the savings available to holders of identification cards are reduced-price ice cream cones, lower movie admission prices and discounts at drugstores.

—The Los Angeles Department of Recreation and Parks distributes booklets, printed by local banks and savings and loan associations, listing firms giving discounts to the elderly. Chuck Geleide, manager of an International House of Pancakes branch offering 10 per cent off, said the discounts are good business. "Ten per cent ... is not a big deal and it makes someone happy," he said. "As long as they walk out of here full and smiling, that's where I'm at."

—Florida, retirement home for millions, has discounts on just about everything. Alice Jackson, supervisor of the Aging and Adult Services Program, says banks offer no-charge checking, motels take 10 per cent off bills and some community colleges provide free tuition. Not everyone is pleased, however. Max Friedson, 78, head of the Congress of Senior Citizens, a statewide group, says inflation and high prices make the discounts meaningless. "Sure they give you 10 per cent off the top," he says. "But it doesn't help. Ten per cent off what top? They charge us more and then give us discounts."

—Chicago residents 65 and older pay 20 cents instead of 45 on transit authority facilities under a program paid for by the state. A spokesman for the Chicago Transit Authority said 52.2 million riders used the reduced fare in 1975 and the city was reimbursed $12 million by the state. The city offers senior citizens municipal licenses at half price and the Chicago Metropolitan Senior Citizen's Center lists discounts at 1,300 retail outlets.

—Revco D.S. Inc., an Ohio-based drugstore chain with outlets in 21 states, began a 10 per cent discount program in 1962.

—The National Tea Co. of Rosemont, Ill., offers a 5 per cent discount on foodbaskets of less than $30. "It's an image thing," said Linda K. Anderson, director of consumer affairs. "It is not whether we are making money or not making money." The chain, however, is running at a loss over-all and has not decided whether to extend the program past December.

—A coalition of groups in the Washington area is trying to build a network of stores to provide discounts for the elderly. "We're after everyone in the metro area to recognize every county's (senior citizen) cards," said organizer Virginia Skaggs, 68.

—The Elderly Affairs Commission in Boston offers a discount coupon book to over-60 residents, with sayings ranging from 10 to 30 per cent. The commission also provides $5 worth of taxi chits for $4 to people over 65. "We got a lot of input before we started from the 100 or so (senior citizen) clubs we're in touch with," said Jack McCarthy, deputy commissioner. "They all said it was getting harder and harder to live on fixed incomes and we wanted to do something."

By 2000 B.C., American indians had permanent village settlements and were cultivating manioc, squash, maize and beans and domesticating dogs.

Conservation Leaders Attend Bronte Session

Five local conservation leaders were in Bronte, Tuesday, attending the West Texas Association of Soil and Water Conservation District Directors meeting.

W.L. Wilson, Jr., Carl Williams, Walter Stirl and Leon Sterling, directors of the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District and Erwin A. Pavlik, district conservationist, for the Snyder Field Office, Soil Conservation Service attended from Borden and Scurry Counties.

David Firor, of Athens, Georgia, the southern representative for the National Association of Conservation Districts (NACD) reviewed progress that conservation districts have made since they began in the 1930's. He noted that in 1937, each state began to adopt a soil conservation program which led to conservation district being individually established. Today there are more than 3,000 conservation districts in the United States.

Firor noted that NACD had its origin in 1946, and emphasized that the NACD organization speaking for the "wishes of the majority of the districts."

Soil Conservation Service State Conservationist George Marks of Temple, reviewed the status of conservation programs and SCS operations in Texas. The experienced conservationist said that the SCS and USDA "are not going to tell you (farmers and ranchers) how to do your job or do it for you – we are here to help you....here to assist you."

Harvey Davis, executive director of the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board in Temple, review the land-use proposal commonly known as "208". If adopted, "208" would mean a non-point source pollution plan which would blanket the state.

Davis said that the SCS has pledged to help the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board on researching the problem through coordination with the Governors office.

Sam Faubion, president of the West Texas association, presided at the meeting and said he was happy that Tuesday's meeting gave opinion from all over the country on the issue of farmers and ranchers and conservation. Faubion said he had great faith in young people to carry out needed conservation on the land in years ahead.

J.M. Sterling, Chairman of the Howard Soil and Water Conservation District's board of directors will become the West Texas Associations president after the State Association meeting which is to be held in McAllen October 12-14. J.D. Crawford of the Midland Soil and Water Conservation District was elected president-elect.

Kelly Wed A Former Nun

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley, 64, says he and Shirley Dyckes, a former nun now teaching in Maryland, will be married later this year.

Kelley made the announcement at a dinner in his honor here Saturday night, a few hours after he received a vote of confidence from President Ford. No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Dyckes, an elementary school teacher in Prince Georges County, said she was a member of the Sisters of Holy Cross for 15 years. She would not reveal her age.

Kelley's first wife, Ruby, died here Nov. 9, 1975.

Moynihan Hit With Cream Pie

NEW YORK (AP) — Former United Nations Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan was hit in the face with a mocha cream pie while campaigning on a New York City street for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate.

Moynihan at first appeared shocked when the pie hit him Sunday, then he wiped it from his cheek and, with a laugh, tasted it.

The bearded man who tossed the pie identified himself as Aron Kay of the Youth International Party, or "Yippies." Police seized him, but Moynihan declined to press charges.

Appliances Are For Everyone

NEW YORK (AP) — A recent survey of electricity users shows there is little significant difference in the use of electrical appliances between income groups.

The study, conducted by General Public Utilities Corp., showed that virtually all families have combination refrigerator-freezers, but more low income than high income homes use electric water heaters. Room unit air conditioners are owned by 28.5 per cent of low income families as compared with 44.4 per cent for high income families. The greatest spread was found in the ownership of color TV, with 56.8 per cent of the less wealthy owning them, compared with 83.7 per cent of more wealthy families.

Three dirigibles built by the United States — the Shenandoah, Akron and Macon — all crashed. A huge hangar, used to house them when they were on the Pacific Coast, still stands and is in use at Moffett Field, near San Jose, Calif.

Harvest Operations Are Making Good Progress

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Harvest operations, making good progress in most sections of the state, are generally [illegible] with last year, Dr. Daniel Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says.

Sorghum harvesting is past the halfway point, about 5 per cent of the cotton crop is in, and rice harvesting is more than 90 per cent complete for the first cutting, he said. The corn harvest is approaching 30 per cent completion.

Corn, sorghum and rice yields have been generally good but the cotton crop is off somewhat in southern counties, he said.

Hay harvesting has slowed across the state because of recent dry conditions, Pfannstiel said.

Livestock conditions have declined and many pastures and ranges are suffering from lack of moisture. Screwworms, ear ticks and other pests continue to plague livestock, Pfannstiel said.

District agricultural agents gave these reports:

Panhandle: Harvesting of corn silage is in full swing. Cotton has fruited well but is shedding much fruit, especially dryland cotton. The dryland sorghum crop is under stress. Harvesting of potatoes and onions is about complete in Deaf Smith County.

South Plains: Irrigated corn, sorghum and cotton are making good progress. Cotton needs hot, dry weather. Peppers, cucumbers, tomatoes and cabbage are being harvested.

Rolling Plains: Sorghum harvesting is active in many counties yields are generally good. Boll weevils and bollworms are causing heavy damage to cotton fields. Cattle shipments have increased.

North Central: Corn and sorghum harvesting is well past the halfway point. Yields range from fair to good. Rain is needed for peanunts and hay crops. Fall vegetables are being planted.

Northeast: Hay harvesting has slowed because of a lack of rain. Soybeans also need rain. Livestock are in good shape.

Far West: Dryland crops need rain as do pastures and ranges. Bell peppers are maturing in Presidio County. A large pecan crop is expected in most counties. Livestock are in good condition.

West Central: A general rain is needed. Cotton is making mostly good progress although boll weevils, bollworms and cotton root rot are causing some damage. Some planting of small grains is under way.

Central: Rain is needed in most areas. Some early peanuts are being harvested. Insects are hurting some pecan orchards. Most pastures and ranges are below average.

East: Corn and sorghum yields are good. Dry conditions have slowed grass growth for hay as well as for grazing. Armyworms remain heavy in pastures.

Southeast and Upper Gulf Coast: Harvesting of corn, sorghum and rice is moving toward completion. The cotton harvest remains in full swing. Yields for most crops have been good. Soybeans need rain. Pecans are shedding nuts because of dry weather.

South Central: Cotton harvesting will start soon but insects are damaging some fields. The pecan crop is poor. Fall vegetable gardens are being planted. Pastures and ranges need rain.

Southwest: Harvesting of corn, sorghum and early peanuts is nearing completion. Fall vegetables look good but the pecan crop is poor. Livestock are mostly in good shape except for ear ticks, screwworms and stomach worms.

Dallas Schools Planning To Grapple With Morals

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Independent School District is planning to grapple again with the difficulties of teaching morals to students although a similar program failed two years ago.

Last week, School Supt. Nolan Estes said he will present to a school board committee next month plans for a moral education program that will be piloted in a few of the district's schools.

"There are some common moral and spiritual vlues to which all people can agree," Estes said. "Those common values are the ones we want to be about teaching and supporting in the school district."

A similar experiment was dropped by school officials two years ago because an evaluation showed it not be cost-effective, Estes said.

According to some school officials, the problem with the earlier plan was in its implementation and interpretation by individual teachers.

"Nobody's concerned about the fact that everybody ought to have moral and spiritual values," said one high-level administrator who asked that his name not be used. "But what moral and spiritual values are going to be taught–that's the issue."

"It's hard to teach somebody to develop moral and spiritual values without somehow having some effect on their thinking process," he said.

B.J. Stamps, who heads the district's instructional programs, said educators have "backed away" from moral education too long.

"As we begin to talk with kids about values, character education, especially at tender ages, parents become rightfully concerned," Stamps said. "Primarily because every teacher is not able to handle this as well as we might like."

Stamps said he thinks parents are ready for schools to teach morals.

Many people see public school's refraining from teaching character education as one of the things wrong with public schools, he said.
