Friday the Thirteenth

Wellington Seniors to Stage Broadway Hit

Wellington seniors prove their unsuperstitiousness and will present a mad, mad comedy Friday evening, May 13, with curtain time at 8 p.m.

Their class play this year is the Pulitzer Prize winning Broadway hit of other years, "You Can't Take It With You," by Moss Hart and George Kaufman.

The action centers around the Sycamore family, who comes to the conclusion that if they are mad, the rest of the world is madder, and at any rate they are better off than the unhappy Kirbys.

But when Tony Kirby falls in love with Alice Sycamore and his family comes to dinner on the worst of all evenings, marriage seems out of the question. He doesn't see it that way and the audience is left chuckling at the end.

Leslie Covey and Stan Bratten have the leading roles.

Others of the Sycamore family are Penny, the mother, played by Ginger Earnest; Paul, the husband, Don Sweat; Martin Vanderhof, the grandfather, Cleland Stallings, also Essie, the daughter, Linda Richardson, and Ed, her husband, Danny White. The maid Reba is played by Sharon Blackshear and her boy friend,

School Board Hires Architects for Complete Renovation Survey

The trustees of the Wellington Independent School District have hired the Amarillo firm of architects, Rittenberry, Murchison and Alexander, to make a survey of the entire school facilities in view of a complete renovation.

Dr. Floyd Golden is representing the architects.

Jones Singley, president of the school board, and J. L. Harper, superintendent of schools, have outlined the situation to this point.

It is expected that the survey will be completed by the time school is out, and this will be followed by a report and recommendations by the architects.

"When they are through they will have an estimate and we will go from that," Singley said.

"We have no idea of what we will have to do or how much it will cost."

Financing this renovation and any possible new construction will have to be through a bond issue, both Singley and Harper pointed out, but both reminded that until the architects' report is received, there is no way of giving even an approximate figure.

This action of the Wellington school board comes upon the recommendations made by the Texas Education Agency following a visit by an accreditation team on Oct. 5, 1965.

An earlier visit by an accreditation team in the fall of 1964 was followed by a number of recommendations and the 1965 visit was a return visit. The report of the accreditation visit by Walter Labay and Calvin D. Hibler, which was sent to the school, reads in part:

"The major problem remaining is the general renovation of the junior-senior high school building. As formerly reported, it is in a bad state of repair, but its renovation is being planned."

The report cited other areas in which deficiencies still exist, but which the school board proposes to correct in the renovation program.

In Collingsworth

Oil, Gas Important to County Economy

As Texas celebrates its 100th anniversary as an oil-producing state, Collingsworth County shares in the development that made the Lone Star State the No. 1 energy source for a booming American civilization.

In 1866 Lyne T. Barret—a man most history books forgot—drilled the first Texas oil well near Nacogdoches at a depth of 106 feet. In the one hundred years that followed, the search for oil and gas spread to every county in Texas, and today Collingsworth County is one of 210 which produce oil or gas.

Barret and other pioneer Texas oil men left a legacy for Collingsworth County that can be measured at approximately $1.7 million a year, based on statistics compiled by Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association.

During Texas' first century of oil production (29 billion barrels), Collingsworth County has contributed approximately 300,000 barrels, its record dating from 1936.

The latest U.S. Bureau of Mines figures (1964) show Collingsworth County produced more than 102,000 barrels of crude oil valued at $302,000; and 10.9 billion cubic feet of natural gas, worth about $1.4 million. The 1965 output would be approximately the same, preliminary estimates indicate.

Collingsworth County ranks 151st among the Texas counties producing oil and gas. It includes one of the state's 97 fields which are classified as "giants" with ultimate recovery estimates in excess of 100 million barrels—the Panhandle Field.

Payrolls, distribution of royalty checks to local landowners, new drilling ventures and tax payments are some of the ways by which oil and gas revenues are injected into the Collingsworth County economy.

One of the most important "crops" harvested by Texas ranchers, farmers and other

West Texas Utilities Open House May 16

Open House will be held at the newly remodeled and redecorated West Texas Utilities Company on Monday, May 16, and the public is invited to attend, Denver Powell, manager announced this week.

The hours of the open house are from 2 to 5 p.m. Refreshments will be served and door prizes will be awarded.

A new decorating scheme is carried out in the office and display space. The entire south wall was paneled in birch, as was Mr. Powell's office.

The new lighting arrangement is clear-view fluorescent panels that extend the length of the room and are flush with the ceiling. Refrigerated air conditioning was installed.

A new plate glass front was installed in the building only a few years ago, and this time a new awning was added and a sidewalk laid.

New desk arrangements were made for the convenience of personnel and customers.

"It is a pleasure for our company to serve the progressive Wellington area, and we urge that you visit us during our open house," Mr. Powell said.

Joining him as hosts at the open house are Mrs. Ina Brown, cashier - bookkeeper, Mrs. Bonnie Elbert, temporary cashier, W. T. McAdams and Donald Settle, linemen-service men, and Jim Sikes, service man.

Dr. Jones in New Office

Dr. Chas. B. Jones has moved his office to the O'Neil Professional Building, in the middle of the west side of the square.

He was formerly in the Small Building at the southwest corner of the square.

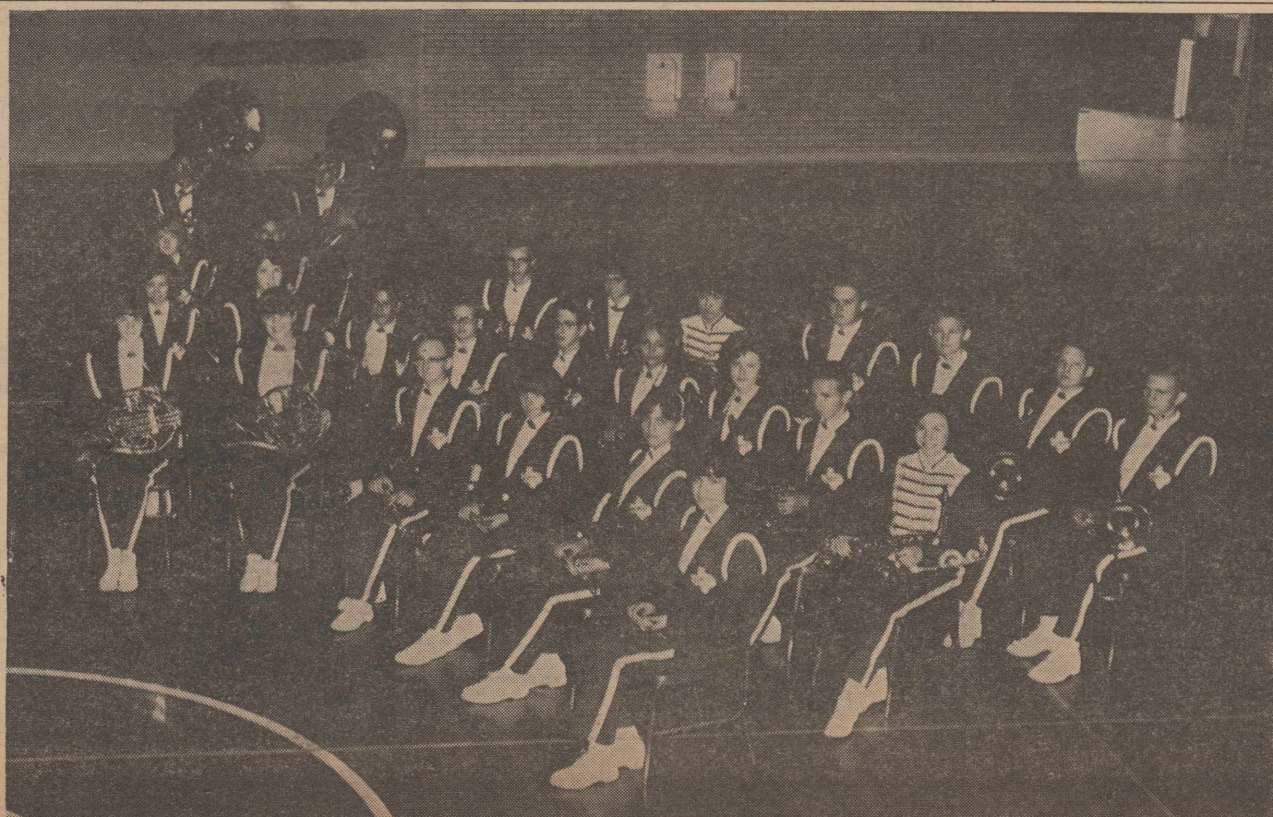

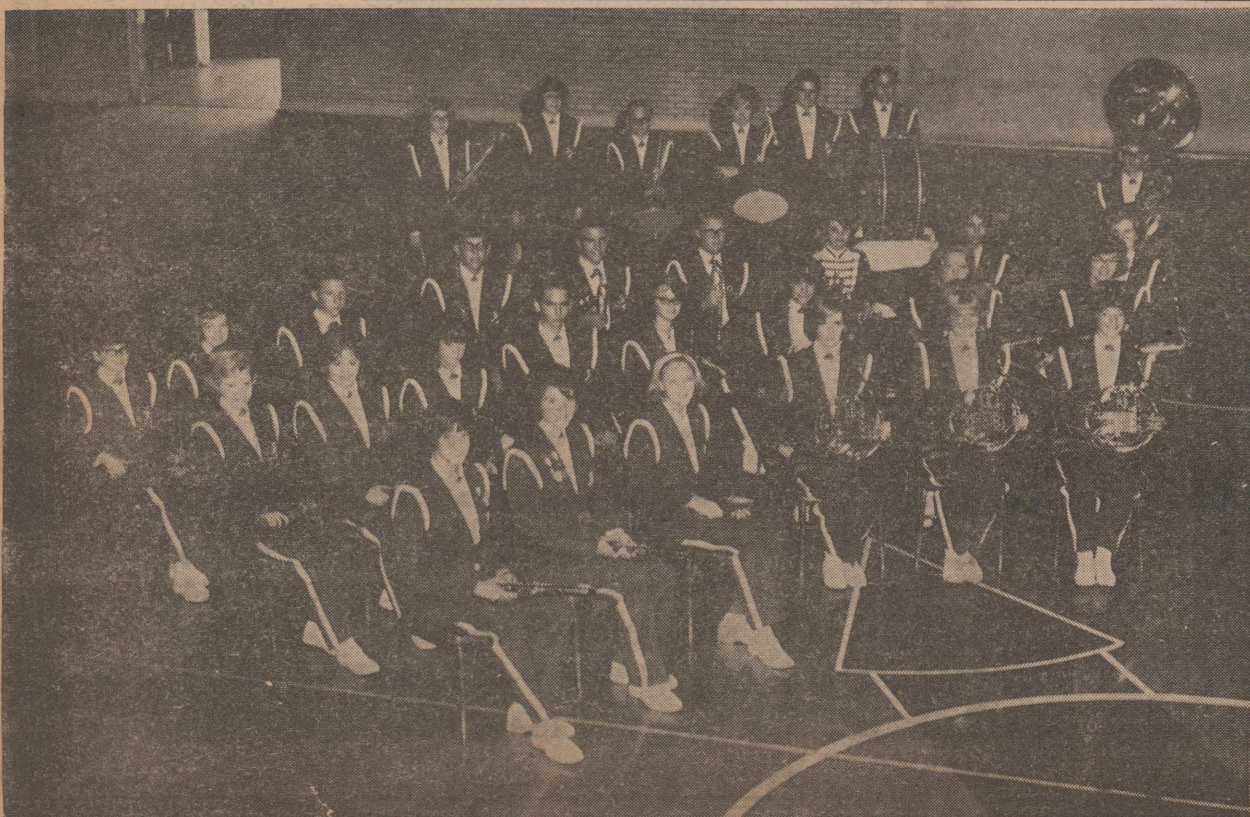

His new offices are in the building that housed Wellington's first hospital, as well as the old Hardy Drug Store. Last year Lee O'Neil of Lubbock, the present owner, had it completely rebuilt into a modern one-story office building.

Dr. Jones has all of the building except the suite occupied by Judge R. L. Templeton, county attorney.

Samnorwood Seniors ... 1966

Jimmy Dale Darrow

Jimmy Dale Darrow was the Samnorwood school winner of the state-wide Save the Soil and Save Texas essay contest, and this is revealing, for he plans to continue to study agriculture.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Darrow of Dozier Route, Shamrock, and was born at Shamrock General Hospital Oct. 21, 1947.

He has attended school only at Samnorwood.

Jimmy has been a member of the Future Farmers of America four years, in which he has been active and has held offices. This year he is a member of the annual staff and last year he was in the junior play.

Agriculture, chemistry and other studies related to science are his favorites.

As hobbies, Jimmy classes horseback riding, hunting, fishing and swimming.

Clarendon Junior College is his choice for his first two years of work, then he plans to transfer to Texas Tech to complete a major in agriculture.

Ken Ribble Baxter

It is an honor to be chosen class president, but classmates of Ken Baxter have given him this honor four times, freshman through senior. It is only part of the recognition that has come to him.

Ken Ribble Baxter is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baxter of Dozier Route, Shamrock, and he was born at Shamrock General Hospital Dec. 7, 1947.

All of his school work has been at Samnorwood.

Ken also has been class reporter and this year he is manager of the basketball and baseball teams. The Student Council elected him president this year, after he was vice president as a junior.

A member of the Future Farmers of America four years, Ken was elected vice president of the Greenbelt District, FFA. He also was vice president of his chapter last year and is secretary this year. In competition he was a member of the dairy judging team, parliamentary team and was district first place winner in public speaking.

In Beta Club four years, he was vice president when a junior. Also on the annual staff four years, he is now business manager.

Ken was chosen for the school Who's Who as a junior and senior; received the Citizenship award this year; was Best Actor in the junior play and in the senior play cast. The Future Homemakers elected him chapter sweetheart and the freshmen named him class favorite. For two years he has directed the basketball tournaments.

An honor outside of school came when he was chosen to be one of Collingsworth County's representative to Boys State in the summer of 1965.

Government and algebra II are his favorite studies, and his hobby is stamp collecting. Ken will attend West Texas State University at Canyon.

Sandra Kay Purkey

Many school honors have come to Sandra Kay Purkey, but two of special note have come from the community.

She was chosen Girls State representative in the summer of 1965, and the Samnorwood Lions Club chose her as their Sweetheart.

Kay is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Purkey of Dozier Route, Shamrock. She was born at Shamrock March 4, 1948, and she has attended Samnorwood school 12 years.

Kay played basketball and was chosen on the all-district team two years. She also played volleyball. She is a member of the Future Homemakers, Future Teachers of America and Beta Club. She is on the annual staff, is a member of the chorus and editor of the Samnorwood Eagle. She also helps in the school office.

Spanish and chemistry are her favorite studies, while her hobbies are swimming, horseback riding and cooking.

Next year, Kay will attend West Texas State University, Canyon.

Donald Chester Bodine

First of the Samnorwood 1966 senior class to go in the Armed Forces is Donald Chester Bodine, who has enlisted in the United States Marine Corps and will report for duty after graduation.

Don is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Bodine of the Aberdeen community and was born at Shamrock Oct. 7, 1945. He has attended school only at Samnorwood.

In high school athletics, he was a member of the baseball team a year and the basketball team. He belonged to the Future Farmers of America four years and was on the dairy cattle judging team.

His ability as an actor was shown when he won first place for his performance in the junior play and he was also in the senior play cast.

Literature and Spanish are his favorite studies.

Don has the unusual hobby of rattlesnake hunting, and his other hobbies are hunting, swimming and horseback riding.

Johnny Gordon Ross

A signal honor came to Johnny Gordon Ross a few weeks ago when he was named an alternate to the United States Naval Academy.

The son of Mrs. Helen Ross, Route 3, Shamrock, he was born at Shamrock April 24, 1948. He has done all of his school work at Samnorwood.

In athletics, he was on the baseball team. He was active in the Future Farmers of America, and classmates elected him to the Student Council. Johnny also has worked in the school office.

This year, the students chose him "Mr. Samnorwood." He is student councilman at large, and as a sophomore and senior, he was the class favorite. Science is Johnny's favorite subject.

He, too, enjoys "snake catching" and other hobbies are hunting and swimming.

If he does not get to go to the United States Naval Academy, Johnny will attend West Texas State University, Canyon.

Jackie (Tate) Sanderson

First of her class to be married is Jackie Anita Tate Sanderson, the wife of Gary Don Sanderson.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lisle, Route 2, Shamrock, he is one of two brothers to graduate this year. He was born in 1946 at Shamrock and before coming to Samnorwood he attended the Lela schools.

He played basketball and was a member of the Future Farmers of America four years.

To a motorist who still hasn't put a Tiger in his tank.

You're a skeptic. Good. Then you're going to be a good customer, if we can ever win you. We showed you proof on television that High-energy Enco Extra cleans your carburetor while you drive.

(Probably you said, "So what? My car still runs.")

We told you it improves firing power, helps prevent hot spots and misfiring and gives you the high octane to help you take off like a cat.

(You drove right on by.)

It's frustrating to develop a gasoline that gives this kind of performance and then not even have you try it.

Did you know new High-energy Enco Extra is more powerful than aviation gasoline of just a few years ago?

That the Tiger is now the favorite of motorists all over the world? And that Jimmy Clark became the World's Champion Race Driver with a Tiger in his tank?

So why not "Put a Tiger in Your Tank?" "Happy Motoring!"

BABSON'S POINT OF VIEW:

"MOONLIGHTING" IN THE JOB PICTURE

By Roger W. Babson

According to government figures for the most recent years of record, some 5.2% of all employed workers have been holding more than one job. This is known in labor circles as "moonlighting," a word that may perhaps still hold unpleasant implications such as taking jobs on the sly at sub-union rates, robbing the needy jobless of a chance to work.

Moonlight Now More Respectable

Today, however, multiple job holding seems often more a necessity than a sign of greed. Almost half of the moonlighters are family men between the ages of 25 and 44 in need of additional income to raise their living standards. There are clear indications that the typical moonlighter either does not make enough money at his regular employment to take care of his family as he wishes, or else he has only a part-time job as his chief source of income. An extra position is sometimes the only way out.

There is another interesting angle that shows up in the government figures. Very few of the dual jobholders do moonlighting in their base-job field. They are much more likely to reach for a part-time berth, say, in the services, retail trade, or agriculture. Few employed in manufacturing seem interested in taking their second job in the same line. In some instances, young men use their moonlighting experience to learn a new trade—one that they intend to make their regular career when they are ready for it.

Where Dual Jobs Are Most Common

About 8% of agricultural workers hold extra jobs, compared with only 5% of the labor force in other pursuits. The high rate of moonlighting in the farm areas is due in large measure to the seasonal aspect of most of the occupations. The same thing applies in the construction industry, where pay rates may be high but often last for irregular periods.

On the non-agricultural side, the greatest rate of multiple job holding occurs in public administration, with special emphasis on the post office department. Education services and transportation are also high on the list. It is, of course easy to see why teachers frequently seek outside employment. Not only do they have considerable spans of vacation time, but in many localities annual salaries in education are well below those in other lines.

Women Low on the Two-Job List

Almost six times as many men go in for moonlighting as women. This is not surprising in view of the fact that most housewives have their homes and children to care for, and many husbands would prefer that their wives not take any outside work at all—let alone two separate jobs. Actually, a busy wife and mother might be said to be moonlighting if she takes even ONE part-time job outside the home, since she already has a full-time housekeeping stint.

Where multiple jobholding shows up most commonly among women is in the case of widows, divorcees, and those separated from their husbands. Just about one-third of all female moonlighters are in these categories. This is natural, since they have often had to assume the type of responsibility that usually falls to the husband. Household bills must be paid, children must be reared and educated. It should be noted, too, that about 50% of all women holding more than one job work only part of the time on each.

Higher Living Costs Mean More Moonlighting

It is our opinion that there is probably considerably more dual jobholding than appears in the government tables. The steady climb in consumer prices has undoubtedly caused a lot of people to latch on to outside work that would be difficult to catch in a survey sampling. With creeping price inflation showing no signs of slowing down and with taxes also looking upward, living standards for many families will be less easy to maintain. More multiple jobholding is almost inevitable.

And it may well spread to groups who have never before engaged in moonlighting on any regular scale.

CJC Announces Summer Classes

The registrar's office at Clarendon College announces that summer evening classes have been scheduled which will be of particular interest to veterans who qualify for education or training under the Veteran's Readjustment Benefits Act of 1966. These evening classes will be especially beneficial to those veterans who wish to work during the day and attend college in the evening.

The act provides for financial compensation after June 1, 1966, for a veteran who enrolls in a course or courses at a college, vocational, business, high school or correspondence school. To be eligible for these benefits, a veteran must have been discharged or released from duty under conditions other than dishonorable and have active duty of more than 180 days, any part of which occurred after Jan. 31, 1955. If less than 181 days, the discharge after Jan. 31, 1955 must be for a service-connected disability. Consequently, veterans who do not have service subsequent to Jan. 31, 1955 need not apply. A person who is in service is also eligible, if he has served on active duty for at least two years.

The maximum time for such benefits is 36 months of schooling. Any previous educational benefits received by the veteran will automatically be deducted from the maximum allowed. If a veteran has served on active duty for less than three years, he may receive one full month of educational assistance for each month that he served on active duty on or after Feb. 1, 1955.

Any veteran desiring application forms for the veteran program of education and a schedule of classes should contact the Registrar's Office, Clarendon College, Clarendon, Texas.

How Capp Finds Kids

An UPI item came up last week with a quote by Al Capp, creator of "Li'l Abner." This particular remark came on the recent "Tonight" show on TV, as he followed the Tijuana Brass.

He said: It's so refreshing to see a group of young musicians who aren't sick about wars they've never been in and work they've never done."

He went on to say he had been on a lecture tour of California colleges and "I found that most of the California kids were passionately interested in two subjects: Vietnam and Sex. They were very eager to get less involved in Vietnam."

He related that at Chico State College he was asked: "Don't you think that opinions of teenage students are valuable?"—and that he replied, "Certainly, on subjects they know something about, such as puberty and hubcaps."

Though he was not against student protesting per se, he opined: "I don't know what they have to protest about. They no longer shave. They're supported by the very adults they denounce. They're the only morned leisure class."

Concerning songs of protest, he said it wasn't the songs, but the singers that he minded—"When I hear a song about the misery of hard work sung by a guy who has never none any harder work than unbutton his shirt to his navel."

He also remarked, "My feeling is that the student is an incomplete human being, hopefully that he's studying how to be a useful citizen. He isn't one quite. So I don't want to hear his opinions on anything until he becomes a useful citizen, is no longer a student, and is out in the world about five years surviving, then I'll listen to him."

—The Enterprise-Courier, Charleston, Mo.

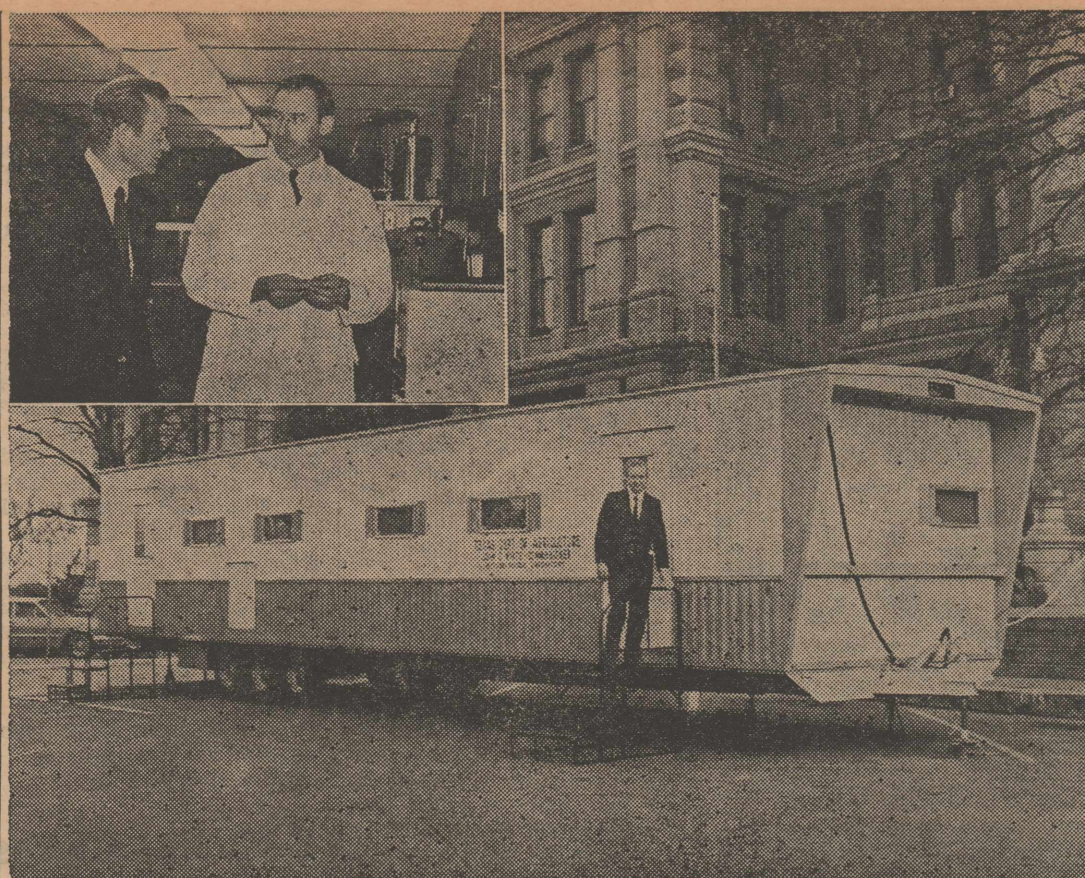

"There WAS something about you that I liked," said the glamor girl, "but you went and spent it all."

Today's riddle: How do they manage to make shoe laces that never seem to break until you're in a hurry?

CROSSROADS REPORT

Dear Editor:

There was some slight notice-ment of National Library Week down at this level, with its motto about "Reading Is a Family Affair."

But my filth-foiled neighbor says he goes into town to the library real often, and buys lots of magazines, and still can't find much late literature that seems suitable for togetherness reading in a sensitive family.

Says most latter day fiction is the kind that he reads only in private, and then hides somewhere while he takes a couple of turns around the barnyard to fumigate his mind.

My neighbor down the road a piece says a bad-mannered candidate has hung a lot of name signs on the fence around that community's little graveyard.

Says, though, he was well acquainted with most of the good folks now buried there, and he don't think this type candidate ever got any of their votes while they were living.

And now that they possibly have access to this fellow's record in the Lord's files, it seems unlikely they will ever come back and vote for him.

News is that some Detroit high school kids went on a 4-day strike, so the authorities crawled and fired their principal like they demanded.

Complaint was that he wasn't doing a good job, because graduates from some other schools in that town are smarter than the ones he has been turning out.

But my pedagogist neighbor says it's a Law of Nature that nobody can put more in a bucket than it will hold, and even jelly-spined school officials hadn't ought to blame a teacher because some kids' buckets are smaller than others.

My poverty expert neighbor says it's a dirty trick the Potomanians are fixing to play on poor people with the rent subsidy program.

Says this will just move these folks into neighborhoods where their under-financed condition will keep their frustration glands working harder than ever.

Because under the American plan, moving into a fancier house calls for better clothing to hang on the clothesline, a newer car to park in the driveway, a snootier dog, and other costly aids to over-living which Washington has not yet arranged to pay for.

From stories in the city papers which filter out here a day late, it looks like people working at the criminal trade may soon outnumber their clients.

My minoritized neighbor says, well, under our democracy, which is now being purified by the one-man-one-vote doctrine, the criminal bloc vote is getting very important and no wonder criminals are being pampered in the courts.

Says, after all, it's right and proper in a Great Society for the majority to rule, even in cases where the majority may be criminals or cockroaches.

Some city-type folks argue that if a farmer can't make a living in the business without federal help, it shows his talents lie somewhere else and he had ought to go there.

My marginal thinker neighbor says lots of marginal farmers have been let go broke and disappear into some limbo. And the survivors are doing better and can owe lots more money since the farmer species got thinned out.

And he says there could be some marginal cities on the federal succor list which had ought to be phased out and forgotten like the marginal farmers.

The low-priced high-price car.

Low-priced because it's a Catalina with a sticker that's within reach of a lot of low-priced car buyers. High-priced because it has the Pontiac name and everything that goes with it. Like a full 121 inches of road-leveling wheelbase. And 50 more standard horsepower than those low-priced cars offer. And steady Wide-Track ride and handling. With luxurious Interiors you practically sink up to your knees in. (And, of course, standard safety items like a padded dashboard.) All backed up by Pontiac's legendary resale value that makes such exciting reading in the record books year after year. Makes you wonder why anybody would buy a low-priced car when you can get a Pontiac Catalina for the same money.

Wide-Track Pontiac Catalina (A big, powerful Pontiac for less than $3000*.)

*Manufacturer's suggested retail prices for Catalina 2- and 4-door sedans and 2- and 4-door hardtops are all less than $3000. These prices include excise tax and suggested dealer delivery and handling charges. Transportation charges, state and local taxes, accessories and optional equipment additional.

DPS Training School Set

AUSTIN.—Col. Homer Garrison, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety announced today that Monday, June 6, is the deadline for applications to the next DPS recruit training school for patrolmen.

"We have several new benefits to offer qualified young men," Garrison said. "For instance, the pay during training has been increased from $375 to $400 per month, and upon graduation this is increased (effective Sept. 1, 1966) to either $468 or $484, depending upon the branch of service to which the patrolman is assigned."

"Also, for those who prefer one branch of the uniformed service over another, we can let the men select their service—highway patrol, driver licensing, license and weight, and motor vehicle inspection—and they can also choose the geographical area of the state where they will be assigned, consistent with openings."

To qualify for employment in the uniformed services of the DPS, a man must be between the ages of 21 and 35, not less than 5 feet 8 inches tall, have a high school education or its equivalent, be in sound physical condition with good vision and must be a citizen of the United States and a resident of Texas for at least one year immediately prior to the date of application.

"Among the many benefits that patrolmen enjoy," Garrison pointed out, "are two weeks annual vacation, all holidays provided for by the Legislature, modern liberal retirement systems and group hospitalization and life insurance plans, traveling expenses and longevity pay, and they are furnished with uniforms and all the necessary equipment to perform their duties."

Those men who are accepted for the position of patrolmen go through an intensive training program at the DPS Law Enforcement Academy in Austin for a period of 16 weeks. Upon graduation they are assigned to duty stations throughout the state.

Farmers to Vote on Sale-Lease of Allotments

Growers in about two-thirds of the upland cotton producing counties will vote during the period May 16 through May 25 on whether to permit transfer of cotton acreage allotments to other counties by sale or lease, Millard Brown of the ASCS office said.

If in any county at least two-thirds of the growers favor transfer, growers will be permitted to transfer allotments by sale or lease to farmers in other counties within the same state. Allotments may not be shifted to other states.

Where approved by at least two-thirds of growers in a county, transfers of allotments to other counties for the period 1967, 1968 and 1969 will be permitted. Transfer of allotments is authorized by the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965.

First vote on transfer of allotments was held Nov. 23, 1965. At that time growers in 349 cotton producing counties voted to permit transfers.

There are a total of 1,059 cotton growing counties in the U.S. Only those counties which did not approve transfers last November will vote in this referendum.

The May 16-25 referendum will be by mail, the first time a referendum of this type has been conducted by mail. Ballots will be delivered to all cotton growers of record in counties holding the referendum this month. Officials said a mail vote should be much more convenient for growers, rather than having to appear in person at their polling places, particularly during the busy season. USDA officials hope for good turnout in voting and will regard it as a sign the growers approve the mail method of holding referendum.

To be counted, all votes should be in the ASCS office before office closing time on May 25.

Quail Seniors

George Royce Mitchell

Honors have come to George Royce Mitchell in his work in the Future Farmers of America. He represented the chapter at the last national FFA convention in Kansas City; he also received the Electric award and was a member of the first place grass judging contest in 1964. He has been a member four years, and last year he was chosen Mr. Farmer.

Royce also played basketball and baseball four years and ran track two.

He was in the junior and senior plays, served as class reporter three years and this year he is on the annual staff.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Mitchell, Route 1, Quail, Royce was born Feb. 19, 1948.

He started to school at Plains and attended Allred grade school before coming to Quail in 1956.

History is his favorite subject, and horseback riding, camping and drawing are his hobbies.

Royce will attend Clarendon Junior College.

Wilson Bruce Ward

Wilson Bruce Ward is the first of his class to marry, and already he has begun farming. In this he is putting into practice his three years as a Future Farmer, during which he was an officer two years, was on the district first place winning junior farm skills team, which went on to win third in the area.

He also was a member of the grass judging team that won first in the area.

He excels in sports, also, and has played basketball four years, and for two he was chosen on all-district and all-tournament teams. He also played baseball four years.

Classmates chose Bruce Ward their president once and treasurer once. He was in the junior play and twice was chosen class favorite.

Bruce is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Ward, Route 1, Wellington, and he was born at Wellington June 24, 1948. He attended the Wellington schools through the fourth grade, then transferred to Quail.

Agriculture and science are his favorite studies and hobbies include hunting and fishing, basketball and baseball.

Don Morris

Don Morris has excelled in many ways, but the honor that brought him most recognition came when he and other members of the Farm Bureau Talent Find team won the county, district and state talent contests and received a trip to the National Farm Bureau convention in Chicago.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Morris, of Route 1, Wellington, Don was born June 4, 1948 at St. Joseph's Hospital. He started to school at Quail, then moved to Texico, N.M.,

Close Mowing Can Ruin Lawns

Don't ruin your lawn by mowing it too close, warns County Agent Sam Helmers.

Mowing too close or "scalping" encourages a thinning of the turf and shallow rooting. This lowers the resistance of your lawn to drought and diseases. It also makes it easier for weeds to invade and take over your lawn.

Mowing too close allows the soil to dry out and literally bake—this causes heat damage to grass during the summer.

Mowing too high can cause many of the same problems. For best results, Bermuda grass should be mowed to a height of 1 to 1½ inches. St. Augustine, buffalo, zoysia, blue grass and rye grass should be mowed to 1½ to 2 inches.

The grass should be mowed often enough that not more than 1 inch of the leaf tip is removed at any one clipping.

Many home owners want a dense mat of turf on their lawn, but the buildup of stems and leaves (thatch) can lead to trouble. This is especially true with St. Augustine and Bermuda. Mowing these grasses too high for long periods causes a thatch buildup. The thatch acts as insulation and new roots must penetrate it to get into the soil. The thatch increases the disease hazard, too.

Proper mowing requires a sharp, well-adjusted lawn mower. The mower should be sharp enough to cut the tips of leaves and not bruise them. Most mowers can be adjusted to the correct height.

Pay close attention to your mowing practices and you'll be rewarded with a more attractive lawn, concludes Helmers.

Cotton Insect Reports Planned

COLLEGE STATION.—Better and more complete reporting of the cotton insect situation in Texas is the objective of the 1966 insect survey program.

For the purpose of reporting, the state has been divided into six areas, said Joe Rothe, state agricultural agent for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. He added that the service's area entomologists will act as coordinators for the program.

Don Rummel, Lubbock, will serve the High Plains area; Emory Boring, Vernon, the Rolling Plains; H. A. Turney, Denton, Blacklands; F. W. Parker, College Station, will co-ordinate the insect survey work in East and Central Texas; J. A. Deer, Weslaco, will do the same in South Texas, and Charles Neeb, Fort Stockton, in the Trans-Pecos area.

Rothe added that each of the co-ordinators will make a weekly cotton insect situation report for his area for release on Tuesday of each week. He will also report to the state headquarters at College Station and a statewide report will be prepared.

The state agricultural agent said county agents have co-operators in the counties who keep a close check on the cotton insect situation and report their findings to him. The county reports are the basis for the area summaries and the state report.

"We are attempting to make the reporting system more effective so that cotton producers can know with the least possible delay just what the insect situation is and where infestations are spreading," said Rothe.

Deck's DIDACTICS

—By Deskins Wells

Young men in the National Guard and those approaching the draft age may be bewildered and the parents of fighting men already in Viet Nam may well be perplexed and outraged at this story which appeared in the daily papers Tuesday:

Athletes such as Joe Namath and Charley Taylor will stay out of the armed forces because the government can't afford them.

The Army, in testimony made public Monday, said one major reason that professional athletes with physical defects were deferred from duty was to spare the government the cost of paying injury claims for years to come.

Namath of the New York Jets and Taylor of the Washington Redskins, were rejected because of physical disabilities and the Army has been under fire from civilian groups who wonder why these young athletes can participate in rugged sports and still not be fit for military duty.

Paul Wauer, who lives in the southeastern part of the county reported a good shower Tuesday morning, but his real comments concerned the folly of planting Chinese Elm trees when we could have been planting useful, beautiful apricot, pear, pecan and other trees of that desirability. In order to have trees that would grow fast he planted two of them. This year he says there was an area fifty feet from each one of them where Chinese Elm sprouts pushed the ground up in solid patches.

While poking around in my yard last week I managed in my inimitable way to cut an artery in my right index finger leaving a jagged cut that eliminates the use of that finger for typing or writing for the present. For that reason most of the rest of this column will consist of quotations and clippings from other papers; but I think you will find some of them interesting.

Elmer Hiatt has a letter from Senator John Tower regarding the proposed meat inspection laws mentioned in this space three weeks ago, in which Senator Tower says:

Certainly it seems to me that the present meat inspection laws are working quite well and I would hate to see businesses such as yours burdened with additional costs and controls such as would be imposed by the legislation you mentioned. I certainly feel that the federal government should continue to bear the expense of meat inspection which it has imposed.

The idea of a farmer having to have meat he has slaughtered for consumption by his own family inspected by federal meat inspectors does seem to be going a bit far.

You may be assured that I shall keep close watch on this legislation.

Morris Higley does not write a column in every issue of The Childress Index; but when he does he comes up with some down to earth, common sense observations, such as:

Almost daily you read of a person or persons condemning the safety of automobiles.

My Sincere Thanks to all of you who supported me in my race for county-district clerk. It was a pleasure to visit you as I campaigned and to make new friends in all parts of the county.

The courtesy extended by all of you is appreciated.

Norwood PTA Installs Officers Mon. Night

By Mrs. J. H. Oldham

Officers of the Samnorwood Parent-Teacher Association for 1966-67 were installed Monday night, May 9 at the closing meeting for this school year.

With Mrs. Robert Baxter conducting the installation, Mrs. Douglas Coleman became president, succeeding Mrs. A. F.

The other day one "expert" said that cars were no safer today than they were 26 years ago.

The only thing I can say is that the man is either a publicity nut or that he hasn't been in an automobile for 26 years.

Today's automobiles are the finest that have ever been made and are the safest that have ever been made.

There is only one "nut" that must be figured in the safety of automobiles and apparently the politicians would much rather jump on the big "heartless" corporations since there is little chance of backfire.

That "nut" is the one that is at the wheel and until something is done about him, we are going to continue to kill and kill.

I don't believe an armored truck, with all of the safety devices ever made, would be safe if you ran into another armored truck head-on at 60 miles an hour.

Safe cars will be safe only when we have safe drivers.

I made the editorial page of The Dallas Morning News recently but not in too laudatory a manner for Larry Howell indulges in some kindly fun-making at my expense as you can see:

Another booster of Texas tourism is Deskins Wells at the Wellington Leader. Letting his home-state pride run rampant not long ago, he boasted that Texas' coastline is longer than California's and is second only to Florida's among the 48 adjacent states.

Well, his hand was called by a Californian, who ran to the atlas and found that state with 850 miles of coastline and Texas with 800. But Wells is not one to give up easily. He says if you count Padre, Galveston and all the other islands, it's Texas by a long shot. "To an inlander or a tourist a vast expanse of sea water is a coast regardless of whether he is looking west or east," Wells declares.

And with that sort of measuring one of our Arkansas friends tells us if you rolled the razorback country out flat, you could slip Alaska into one county and fill in the chinks with Texas.

And here is another thought provoker from Thomas Thompson in The Amarillo Globe Times:

Even the waters of Alaska, Canada and all the big rivers in the Northwestern part of the United States cannot provide all of the irrigation and drinking water that is needed west of the Mississippi River. This problem must be solved on a national scale and the political fighting in Washington is going to be ferocious. How the north and South Plains of Texas fare may depend a great deal on whom we have in Congress.

This turns out to be the easiest way to write a column I have found to date—sore finger or no sore finger.

Wischkaemper, Jr. Other new officers are Mrs. John Stages vice president, Mrs. Billy Waters treasurer, Mrs. Austin O'Neil secretary, Mrs. Leon Myers reporter and Mrs. Cecil Snead parliamentarian.

A program preceded the business session. Piano students were introduced by Loyd Stephens, high school principal, and included "Two Guitars" and "Sonatina"; Robin Waters, who gave "March of the Wee Folk" and Rita Lackey, who played "Don Yonder" and a Boogie Woogie.

Under the direction of Mrs. Selba Rainey, a group of small boys presented a playlet, "The Half Pint Cowboy." Larry Oldham was in the title role and the others, cowboys and Indians, were John Morgan, Philip Wischkaemper, Larry Stages, Randy Garnet, Laron Breeding, Joel Dean Rainey, Douglas Coleman, Jr., Kim Stephens, Kerry Stephens, Mike Oldham, Rocky Deger, Mark Simpson, Daniel Martinez, Clifford Oldham, Clinton Oldham, Gaylon Kirkland and Mike Owens. The first grade won the room count.

Refreshments were served to approximately 80.

School Board

As far as the school's physical plant is concerned, these include the homemaking and science departments and the library.

In these fields, along with the school health program and curriculum in grades 7 and 8, the report recommended that "the Wellington Independent School District be advised that some accreditation standards are not being met fully."

In view of this report, the school board was left without an alternative but to go into the renovation and repair program.

The accreditation report pointed out that the school district has an assessed property valuation of approximately $7,000,000, and its tax rate was $1.75, with $1.42 for maintenance and operation and 33 cents for bond retirement.

The bonded indebtedness at the time of the accreditation visit, Oct. 5, 1965, was approximately $340,000.

Wheeler, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Wheeler of Lillie, was graduated from high school at Quail and received the Bachelor of Business Administration degree from West Texas State University, Canyon.

His wife, Lucille, is employed at Parsons Drug.

Oil & Gas

landowners is the royalty interest from oil and gas operations. These payments are at the rate of approximately $207,000 a year in Collingsworth County.

More thousands a year are paid in lease rentals and bonuses on acreage which operators hope will some day yield oil or gas.

In addition to sharing the tax load for local schools and levels of government, oil and gas producers and royalty owners send some $108,000 a year to the State Treasury in severance taxes. Oil taxes account for $14,000; gas $94,000.

Triggered by the first discovery in 1936, the search for oil in Collingsworth county is still under way. The Oil and Gas Journal reported 19 wells were drilled in the county last year. Two of these were "wildcats" seeking new fields or production from new strata. Results: 6 oil wells, 4 gas wells, 9 dry holes. Oil men and other investors risked an estimated $1.1 million in Collingsworth County to drill 52,000 feet of hole. Some $534,000 disappeared forever in dry holes.

West Texas Inclusion in Water Survey Asked

Congressman Walter Rogers, chairman of the House subcommittee on irrigation and reclamation, said Tuesday, May 10 he will offer an amendment to Lower Colorado River Basin Projects legislation, to include West Texas in studies to be made of future water requirements in the west and southwest.

Congressman Rogers, who is presiding as LCRP hearings continue, said, "Water-short areas must think now about their future and consider all possible means to alleviate problems, including importation of water from water surplus areas elsewhere in the U.S. or adjoining foreign countries. There is simply not enough room for all of us to live on the banks of the creek but all of us must have water."

Congressman Rogers said state responsibilities "cannot be avoided simply because the federal government is willing to help," adding, "the Texas Panhandle and High Plains should be included in the Texas State Water Plan."
