Gunfire Shakes Island As Talks Bog Down

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—Heavy gunfire and explosions shook Santo Domingo early today in the Dominican civil war as peace talks appeared to have reached a stalemate.

The heaviest firing came from the northern areas of the city, where rebels are fighting forces of the rival civilian-military junta. Fighting has been going on there for three days. American troops are not involved.

Residents in the rebel-held downtown sector reported intensive shooting through most of the night along the Ozama River, whose east banks is controlled by U.S. troops of the 82nd Airborne Division. One paratrooper was wounded.

A U.S. Embassy source said there had been no progress in efforts to bring the rebel and junta leadership to the conference table.

Santo Domingo awaited the arrival of a watchdog body from the United Nations as the cease-fire threatened to break up into bloody new fighting between rebels and the junta forces.

An advance party of four U.N. secretariat members was flying her from New York under orders from the Security Council to report on "the present situation."

Indian Maj. Gen. Indar Jit Rikhye, military adviser to U.N. Secretary-General U Thant, heads the team, which becomes a kind of third force in the Dominican Republic, alongside the United States and the Organization of American States.

Rebel-operated Radio Santo Domingo was blasted off the air again Friday by automatic weapons fire and possibly a bazooka. A rebel spokesman said a truckload of Dominican troops drove past the station, hitting an antenna and transmitting equipment with their fire.

The station had returned to the air earlier Friday after being knocked out Thursday in an air attack by Dominican air force planes.

The rebel station has been delivering a harangue against the U.S. Marines and paratroopers here, as well as against the forces of the Dominican junta headed by Brig. Gen. Antonio Imbert.

No injuries were reported at the station Friday, but a teenage boy was killed when a shell fell in a patio where five persons were seated.

The junta's armed forces chief said the rebels would be bombed again "if the situation warrants it." Junta planes circled over the city during the day.

Explosions were heard in the northern part of the city at intervals during the night. There was sporadic gunfire.

U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker told a special conference of the OAS in Washington that there have been 137 violations of the cease-fire agreement arranged two weeks ago by an OAS commission.

Seventeen American servicemen have been killed and 86 wounded, largely by rebel sniper fire.

Informed sources said special U.S. emissary John Bartlow Martin has withdrawn, at least temporarily, after failing to achieve progress toward negotiations.

Martin, former U.S. ambassador to the Dominican Republic, was said to believe that every time negotiations seemed possible a small group — principally Communists — caused an incident to make negotiations impossible.

The rebels said Friday they would not negotiate with the junta but said they would talk peace "with the true creators of this junta, the North Americans."

A rebel spokesman said after an OAS commission met with both junta and rebel leaders that the OAS was being given a "last chance" to help resolve the situation.

THE OUTSTANDING YOUNG MAN OF THE YEAR award was presented to George Patterson, right, at the annual Junior Chamber of Commerce banquet. Making the presentation is Johney Greenfield, Jaycee vice president. Patterson was cited for his civic work, and for outstanding performance in his position as city manager of Snyder.

Jr. College Session Set

"A Bold proposal. . .For A Scurry County Junior College!"

That will be the theme Monday night at the Snyder High School auditorium when the Junior College Survey Committee of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce presents its latest findings for a Scurry County Junior College District.

The meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m.

All citizens of Scurry County are being urged to attend the meeting.

Spokesmen for the survey committee said that Scurry County still can meet the minimum legal qualifications established for a county junior college district by legislation passed in 1957.

Because of the strengthened high school graduate picture of the area — both present and future — and because of a very economical proposal for providing the initial buildings and equipment, the committee expressed strong belief that the forthcoming proposal is one which can be endorsed by the State Board of Education and Scurry County taxpayers alike.

The survey committee emphasized that it can only make studies and present proposals. It will be up to the citizens to give the project the wholehearted endorsement it must have to succeed.

For that reason, the committee is anxious for a large turnout at the Monday evening meeting.

Junior High Band Concert Set Thursday

The Snyder junior high schools will present their annual spring band concert Thursday, May 20, at 7 p.m. in the high school auditorium. Admission will be free.

Included in the combined concert will be the Lamar Seventh Grade Band, the Travis Seventh Grade Band, the Lamar Texan Band, and the Travis Blue Devil Band.

Included in the combined concert will be the Lamar Seventh Grade Band, the Travis Seventh Grade Band, the Lamar Texan Band, and the Travis Blue Devil Band. The program will include a variety of music that should be entertaining to all tastes and ages.

The Lamar bands are directed by Don Eiring and the Travis bands are directed by Jerry Pickens.

Miss Perkins, 83, died Friday in New York. She was secretary of labor in the Franklin D. Roosevelt administration.

Bill Seale of Bell - Seale Funeral Home, received the award for "Outstanding Boss of the Year," and the Mr. Jaycee Abernathy Award, highest award a local Jaycee can receive, went to Ken Aldridge. Awards for outstanding committee work were presented to Eddy Pylant, Gerald Johnson, Billy Joe Brown and Bob Watlington, while Key Man awards were made to Herb Reed and John Jarrell.

He emphasized a two-fold program now underway, which involves a city-wide clean-up, to be followed by a beautification program.

Outlook Dim For Viet Settlement

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH

VIENNA (AP) — Chances of any diplomatic breakthrough on Viet Nam appeared dim today as the Big Four foreign ministers gathered in Vienna for the 10th anniversary of the Austrian independence treaty.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart still hoped to sound out Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko privately on the prospects of bringing Red China and North Viet Nam to the conference table without prior conditions.

But Western officials gained the impersssion at a dinner party with Gromyko Friday night that the Soviet Union is not interested in talking with the West about Viet Nam at this stage.

"The time clearly is not right," one Western diplomat commented. French officials said French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville also believes this is not the moment to expect a breakthrough on possible peace talks.

Austrian Foreign Minister Bruno Kreisky was the host at the dinner for the foreign ministers, some of their top advisers and a group of Austrian diplomats.

Rusk returned to his hotel after three hours at the affair and told newsmen, "It was a purely social occasion."

He said there was no meaningful discussion. When asked whether he still hoped to have such a discussion, Rusk raised both arms in a gesture of doubt.

Gromyko, who returned to the same hotel a few minutes earlier said, "It was a very good dinner and a very pleasant conversation." Asked whether he expected to have political talks during his brief stay in Vienna, Gromyko shrugged.

A diplomatic source who attended the dinner said the foreign ministers "scrupulously avoided talking" about political issues." He said Rusk and Gromyko talked privately only for about two minutes.

Alex Quaison-Sackey, president of the United Nations General Assembly, was the only dinner guest to return in an optimistic mood.

He said he raised his plan for a compromise in the United Nations financial crisis and was "more hopeful than ever" of an early agreement.

The three Western foreign ministers were scheduled to leave Vienna early Sunday, but American officials said Rusk was prepared to prolong his stay in case of an unexpected reversal of Gromyko's negative attitude.

'HOWDY' IS THE WORD

"Howdy!"

That's not exactly the password, but it will be heartily endorsed around Snyder business firms during the coming week.

Local merchants are making this an occasion to introduce themselves, as well as their employes, to all residents of the Snyder area.

Perhaps there is a clerk in a store, or a service man or woman in a local firm who serves you regularly and efficiently, but you have never had an opportunity to learn his or her name. If so, you'll probably find a picture of that person in the employer's advertisement in this issue of The Snyder Daily News.

These owners, managers and employes will be ready to say "howdy" when you visit their firms, and they'll welcome your "howdy" in return.

80 Feared Lost In German Slide

GARMISCH- PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany (AP)—More than 50 persons, possibly 80, were buried today by a huge avalanche that swept down Mt. Zugspitze here here, police said.

Unconfirmed reports said four bodies were recovered during the first three hours of a rescue operation involving hundreds of workers.

The big slide, estimated by some who saw it to have been 650 to 800 feet wide, swept over a hotel and down on an area where skiers were practicing.

Police said some guests at the Schneefernerhaus Hotel, enjoying the sun on the terrace, were swept away and hurled down the slope beneath.

The hotel, especially reinforced, withstood the crush of the slide.

Police said rescuers searching the 17-foot high layer of snow numbered several hundred.

The snowslide started at a point below the peak of the 9,719-foot Zugspitze, Germany's highest mountain, and soon covered a great part of the Zugspitzplatt, a skiing site.

First reports said about 25 skiers had been recovered by rescue groups. They were taken to hospitals in the valley by the cog wheel train that usually takes tourists up the mountain.

West German army helicopters were flown to the site, carrying more rescuers, search dogs and rescue equipment.

U.S. Army crews also joined in the search for survivors.

Death Count High In Pakistan Cyclone

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP) — The death count from the cyclone in East Pakistan is now 1,435, officials said today.

The cyclone hit East Pakistan Wednesday and swept over eight districts of East Pakistan Province.

The cyclone, moving at over 100 miles an hour, left tens of thousands of persons homeless. U.S. Ambassador Walter P. McConaughy announced a gift of $25,000 to provide the first foreign aid for victims.

This Is The Week To Say 'Howdy' In Snyder

Dear Abby...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Don't expect a signature at the end of this letter. When you read it, you'll know why. The problem is my wife. She is very "cold-natured" if you know what I mean. She stays up until all hours of the night doing dishes, cleaning house, canning, mending — doing just about everything she can think of — and when she figures I am asleep she will come to bed. On other occasions she'll rush to bed when I am taking a shower, and pretend she's asleep when I get there. Other than this she is a very good wife. Tell me how to cope with this hunk of ice. I am not the type to look at another woman while married. Don't tell me to see my clergyman or a marriage counselor as I don't care to discuss this with anyone. I am not bad looking, I am clean, and there is nothing wrong with me. If there is something I can do on my own, tell me in plain English.

KANSAS CITIAN

DEAR KANSAS CITIAN: In plain English, your wife would rather do anything than go to bed with you. There may be nothing wrong with YOU, but there may be something wrong with your wife's attitude about the physical side of marriage. Both you and she should ask your family doctor to help you resolve this problem. If it's to be solved, it must be discussed candidly. P. S. Ice will melt under the proper conditions.

DEAR ABBY: My mother, who has been a widow for almost 20 years, has had her brother living with her for the past year. He is a bachelor of 64 and he has money to burn. My mother wrote that he is getting on her nerves and she wishes one of us would invite him to visit us, and maybe find him up with a nice woman so she could get him off her hands. He is not bad looking, but he is a first-class pain-in-the-neck. He isn't really tight, and could have any kind of house or apartment he wanted, but he prefers to live with a relative so he'll have someone to talk to. We don't want him staying with us because we could never get rid of him. What do we do now?

PIEDMONT

DEAR PIEDMONT: Don't invite him if you don't want him. And a man who has "money to burn" can usually find his own match.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I married a man I knew a very short time. It was the biggest mistake of my life. I could write a book about what happened, but it's so fantastic nobody would believe it. I became pregnant immediately, and five weeks before my baby was born I left my husband. I was told I was entitled to an annulment, but the red tape was getting me down so, on the advice of my attorney, I filed for divorce. I was moved away from my home town, where this all took place. My problem: Here I am, an unmarried woman with a small child in a strange city. No one believes I was ever married. I've been told, in a nice way, to quit telling that "story." How can I prove I was married? I refuse to carry a photostat of my divorce around!

HURT AND ANGRY

DEAR HURT: People who matter don't need "proof" — and people who need proof don't matter.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: This morning I was going through my husband's wallet, and I came across a piece of paper and on it was written a list of ladies' sizes for everything from coats, dresses, gloves, hosiery, to bras. It was "signed" with a lipstick imprint, "From your Honey." What does this mean?

ARLINGTON

DEAR ARLINGTON: It probably means that you can't trust your husband, and somebody else can't trust your husband's memory. (At least you know the vital statistics of your competition.)

Bell-Seale Firm Here To Serve

Dedicated to service to the people of this area are the employes of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

Not only are the employes dedicated to the service of their fellow-man, but the building itself was designed and built especially to be of service as well. The new building which houses the funeral home was completed in August, 1964, and is a decided source of pride to Snyder citizens as well as employes of the firm.

Gaither Bell, co-owner of the firm, has been a licensed funeral director since 1935, and was for many years associated with the Odom Funeral Home here. He has been a resident of Snyder since 1926.

Bell, along with Mr. and Mrs. Seaton Barnes, opened the Bell Funeral Home here in 1952. After Mr. Barnes' death early in 1963, Mrs. Barnes continued to be active in the operation of the funeral home until B. J. Seale purchased her interest in October of that year.

Seale, a former resident of Matador, has been engaged in his profession most of his working life, and has been a licensed mortician for 17 years.

Mrs. Seale is also active in the firm, handling bookkeeping and assisting wherever possible.

Also on the Bell - Seale Funeral Home staff is Rodney Mayo, a native of Hermleigh who has been with the firm since his graduation from the College of Mortuary Science school of Commonwealth College of Sciences in Houston.

Members of the Bell-Seale staff stand ready to go anywhere at any time to lend a helping hand at any time where help is needed. Their ambulances are equipped with two - way radios, and with oxygen and other emergency equipment, and the drivers are trained in emergency first aid.

Women Drivers Have Man On Their Side

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Victoria State's new traffic chief, Supt. George McCulloch, says women drivers are a better safety bet than men.

"Male drivers are too venturesome," he said. "Women are cautious, courteous and they obey regulations."

Protest Strike Held

SRINAGAR, Cashmir (AP) — Sheik Mohammed Abdullah's supporters declared a week-long general strike today in another protest against police detention of the 60-hear-old "Lion of Kashmir."

Abdullah, who leads the struggle for Kashmiri self-determination, was seized in New Delhi May 8 and exiled to the south Indian town of Cotacamund.

Widespread Rains Slow Field Work

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Farm field work stopped over much of Texas because of widespread rains.

John Hutchison, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, said rain fell in all districts. Damage to crops from excessive rains, hail and high winds was noted.

He said the rains in mid week didn't relieve the dry conditions in Northwest and West Texas and other spots on the upper gulf coast and South Texas.

District agents reported:

The Panhandle got widespread rain after being very short. Some dryland wheat was being grazed out, but irrigated wheat made good growth. Ranges were fair to poor.

Showers fell over the entire South Plains with up to an inch in parts of Floyd, Garza, Lubbock, Lynn and Terry counties. Rain still is needed, especially in dryland counties. Up to 75 per cent of the cotton and grain sorghum have been planted in some counties north of Lubbock. Planting has been light to the south. Hail damage was reported in Floyd and Crosby counties. Stock water was low in some counties. Ranges needed rain. Sugar beets, potatoes and irrigated wheat did well.

Rains didn't meet the needs of the rolling plains. Only three of the 22 counties had adequate moisture. Grain is heading. Cotton and sorghum planting was on.

Rains were general and excessive in parts of North Central Texas. Grains look good, but for rust damage. Most cotton, corn and sorghum have been planted. Most are up to a good stand.

Rains were heavy in some northeast areas. The moisture is improving things. Thrips and aphids were damaging cotton and welch. A good pecan crop is set. Peach growers hope labor can be lined up for the harvest beginning June 1.

Far West Texas had its best rains in the eastern counties. Livestock conditions improved. Cotton and grain planting went on with excellent stands in some areas. Labor was short. The lamb and kid crops have been excellent. Shearing is about over.

Rains were spotted over West Central Texas and ranged from light showers to around 4 inches in Taylor County. Dry weather has cut prospects for grain for grain and most fields have been grazed out. Livestock are fair to good. Lambs are moving to market. Sheep shearing is on. Pecans are setting a good crop. Labor is adequate.

Rains have been heavy in parts of Central Texas and lighter in other counties. Wheat yields were reduced considerably by rust. Cotton seedling disease is reported. Some replanting will be necessary. Corn and sorghums are late and chinch bugs hit Falls and Limestone counties. Pecan prospects look good.

Northern counties in East Texas got good rains but more is needed in the south. Some oats are being cut for hay. Pecans and fruits are developing well. Pastures are average to below.

Rains in Southeast Texas generally were not sufficient to relieve the drought. Before the rains, most crops were hurting from dry weather. Rust hit some oat fields. Cotton insects are active. Labor is adequate.

General rains fell over South Central Texas with an excess in some spots. Cotton, corn and sorghums made good progress.

Rains fell in parts of the South Texas District but moisture was short in the Coastal Bend and Rio Grande Valley and short to adequate in the Winter Garden. Dryland sorghum in the Valley suffered from the lack of rain. Cotton made good progress and insects are light. Dry weather slowed watermelons and tomatoes. The flax harvest picked up. Labor was generally adequate but some areas needing hoe hands and harvest crews.

TO GRADUATE AT A&M — A Snyder graduate of Snyder High School, David Prentice Smith, will receive his bachelor of science degree in education Saturday, May 22, at Texas A&M University. Smith and his wife, Kathryn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Forman of Cisco, will make their home at Beeville, where he will teach in the junior high school.

Glover's Is A Growing Business

Success can be measured in many ways.

One measure of success is the length of time a firm stays in business. Another measure would be if the firm is growing.

Glover's, on the southwest corner of the Snyder square, measures up as a success on both counts.

The firm was founded 12 years ago, and has grown into the larger quarters it now occupies. That twelfth anniversary was passed Mar. 1.

Owner of the firm is Kathryn Glover, a native of Rising Star, who has lived in Snyder for the past 15 years.

The friendly salespeople one meets in Glover's are Mary Hood and Juanita Sullinger.

And, some of the name brand merchandise these friendly folks will show the customer — after they've said "Howdy"—include Nardis of Dallas, and Justin McCarty dresses; Van Raalte lingerie and gloves; Paddle and Saddle sportswear, and many more.

SHS Class Of '15 Sets Reunion Here

The Snyder High School graduating class of 1915 will hold a Golden Reunion here Saturday, May 22.

Approximately 15 members of the class are expected to attend the event, along with four teachers who have indicated that they will be on hand.

The group will meet at the home of Mrs. Gladys Brown Johnson, 3009 Crockett, for a covered dish luncheon at noon. The 1915 graduates who live in the immediate Snyder area will bring the covered dishes.

Plans for the reunion of the graduating class of 50 years ago were initiated by Sims A. Parmer, one of the class members who is now in the real estate business in Colorado City. Ultimately, contact was established with all members of the class, except one.

Among those who will be here is the class president, Loy Ramsour, who now lives in Edinburg.

Alabamans See Truth In Legend Of Conjure Women

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The old conjure women have a legend that stars once fell on Alabama, a powerful omen the land was cursed. Today there are Alabamians who nod ruefully and allow, half in earnest, that there just might be some truth to the old tale after all.

For something, many call it fate, has brought down upon their state more grief than Alabamians feel they deserve.

They acknowledge that, yes, Alabama is the place where Selma is, and where Mrs. Liuzzo was murdered, and the Rev. Mr. Reeb and eight others, and where two counties were found without a single Negro registered to vote. In fact one of the most profound changes between the Alabama of today and the Alabama of a year ago is the widespread introspection of its people; a re-examination of old assumptions to a degree civil rights leaders feel many in the North have yet to make.

Alabama's complaint isn't that there is no guilt, but that its burden has been distributed unfairly.

Citizens are virtually unanimous that scattershot condemnation, the making of the whole state a symbol of evil, of punishing it border to border with, as one instance, a boycott of all its products, is "a perverse form of discrimination," as one Alabamian put it, and all the less warranted at a time when they felt the state was making more progress than ever in adjusting to its greatest social upheaval in a century.

There are, indeed, convincing signs of adjustment made during the quiet between the Birmingham church bombing and the Selma march. After one of last month's demonstrations Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. remarked: "When Negroes and whites can stand on Highway 80 and have a mass meeting, things aren't that bad."

The steeple bell in downtown Birmingham still marks the hours with strains of "Dixie," but throughout the city Negroes and whites eat at the same restaurants without murmur, stay at the same hotels, sit routinely in the same classrooms, play golf on the same fairways. There still are no Negro policemen, but Negro doctors are on the staff of the University Medical Center — and thereby are instructors at the University of Alabama medical school.

Allies March In Berlin

BERLIN (AP) — Nearly 30,000 West Berliners turned out today to watch U.S., British and French troops parade in celebration of Allied Forces Day.

Nearly the entire garrison of 11,000 troops turned out with tanks, armored personnel carriers and self-propelled howitzers to parade along the broad boulevard, "Street of the 17th of June," named in honor of the victims of the 1953 uprising against communism in East Berlin.

The parade was staged less than a mile from the wall dividing the city and was reviewed by the three Western commandants — U.S. Maj. Gen. John F. Franklin Jr., British Maj. Gen. David Peel-Yates and French Maj Gen. Gen. Francois Binoche. Among the spectators was Mayor Willy Brandt.

Coach Salty Parker of the Los Angeles Angels is in hs 35th year in organized baseball.

Nevada Underground Test Is Announced

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission has announced another nuclear weapons test explosion at its underground test site in Nevada.

The 11th weapons test announced by the commission this year, Friday's detonation came on the same day China announced its second nuclear blast in the atmosphere.

The American explosion was described as of low intermediate yield, which means its power was equivalent to that of 20,000 to 200,000 tons of conventional explosives.

New Jr. High Band Pupils To Meet

Instrument displays and conferences for sixth grade beginning band students and their parents have been scheduled at Lamar Junior High School Monday night and at Travis Junior High Tuesday night.

All students who have not obtained an instrument or conferred with junior high directors on the choice of an instrument are urged to attend.

Band instrument dealers from Lubbock and Midland will display both new and used instruments at the meetings.

Parents and students may come any time between the hours of 7:00 and 9:30 p.m., and may attend either meeting, regardless of the junior high school they will attend next year.

Band directors will be on hand to answer questions and explain all facets of the Snyder band program.

Left Fielders Have Great Day In AL

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Maybe Willie Horton and Carl Yastrzemski are drinking from the same bottle — of juice.

The two left fielders exploded in a furious slugging battle Friday night in Detroit's 10-inning, 12-8 triumph over Boston.

Detroit's Horton erupted for two home runs and two singles while Yastrzemski of the Red Sox belted two homers, a triple, a double and a single. Each drove in five runs.

Horton, who has been drinking juice to regain his strength since a nose operation, was hot for the fourth consecutive game.

In that time, he has collected 12 hits in 18 times at bat, slammed six homers and knocked in 15 runs.

Over-all, the 22-year-old right-handed batter leads the league with a .383 average and nine homers. He has batted in 20 runs and has a slugging percentage of .900.

The 25-year-old Yastrzemski has rocketed his average from .236 to .304 the past week, clouting five homers and driving in 10 runs in five games.

In two of those contests, the lefty rapped two homers each. Horton has accomplished that feat three times this year, including the past two nights.

Elsewhere in the AL Friday night, Cleveland edged Washington 2-1, Chicago nipped Los Angeles 2-1, New York whipped Baltimore 9-3 and Minnesota beat Kansas City 5-3.

In the National League, Chicago edged Los Angeles 2-1, San Francisco nipped Houston 2-1, St. Louis trimmed Pittsburgh 8-7, Philadelphia defeated Milwaukee 5-3 and New York stopped Cincinnati 5-3.

Despite all of the slugging by Horton and Yastrzemski, it was a leadoff triple by Jerry Lumpe and Don Demeter's double in the 10th infing that broke an 8-8 deadlock. Horton added a run with a single, and Norm Cash finished the winning rally with a two-run double.

Victim of the uprising was relief pitcher Dick Radatz, whose earned-run average soared to 7.43.

Sam McDowell stopped the Senators on five hits while striking out 12. The only run off him came in the third on pitcher Phil Ortega's double and Joe Cunningham's single. Vic Davalillo homered in the Cleveland fourth while Fred Whitfield doubled in the winning run in the seventh.

Ken Berry's fourth - inning homer and Bill Skowron's run-scoring single in the fifth gave the White Sox their victory. Joe Horlen and Eddie Fisher combined for a six-hitter, one of the hits being Willie Smith's leadoff triple in the Los Angeles seventh. Smith came home on an infield out.

The Yankees erupted for five unearned runs in the ninth inning, clinching their triumph over Baltimore and Robin Roberts. Tom Tresh's two-run homer was the only hit in the rally that was aided by errors by Harvey Haddix and Jack Brandt.

Bob Allison's three-run homer handed Minnesota a 3-3 tie in the eighth. Then the Twins went out and beat Kansas City in the ninth on Zoilo Versalles' run-producing single and John Wyatt's wild pitch which permitted Jerry Zimmerman to score from third after a double play.

Yankees, Buffs Win In Openers

The 1965 Colt and Pony Leagues opened in a flurry Friday night as the Yankees and the Buffs chalked up victories.

In the first game the Pony League Buffs outscored and outhit the Rebels as they romped to a 12-2 victory. In the nightcap the Colt League Yankees, with Freddy Benitez pitching a 2-hit shutout, won over the Red Sox 3-0.

The Buffs chalked up 10 hits in their win, with 3 of the blows being for extra bases. Jay Kidd, Wesley Bishop and Gary Bailey each hit a double. They jumped ahead in the first inning with two runs on a hit batsman, a single by Richey Thompson, and an error and a sacrifice. They added 3 more in the 2nd, 3 in the 4th, one in the 5th, and 3 in the 7th. Leland Herod tallied 4 runs on 3 hits. He was on base 5 times, as he walked once and was hit by a pitch. Thompson and Bailey scored 3 runs each. The Rebels scored single runs in each of the first and 6th innings.

The Yankees got all three of their runs in the 3rd inning on singles by Rick Hall, Steve Moffett and David Lester and a walk to Royce Starnes. Dink Foree had two singles to lead the batters. Benitez had little trouble as he struck out 9 and walked only two. Bob Ray got both hits off of Benitez.

The next action in the Colt and Pony Leagues will be next Saturday night in Towle Park.

Patterson Happy After KO Win

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A happy Floyd Patterson prepared today to start a Sweden exhibition tour Sunday in the wake of his quick knockout of Tod Herring.

Patterson, the former world heavyweight champion from New York, stopped his unranked opponent from Houston in the third round Friday night for his fifth straight victory since he lost the title to Sonny Liston.

Referee Teddy Waltham of Great Britain stopped the fight after 40 seconds of the third round. Herring was hanging helpless on the ropes and Waltham said "one more punch from such a hard-hitting fighter as Patterson could have killed him."

A capacity 11,000 at the indoor Johanneshov Ice Stadium gave an ovation to Patterson who regards Stockholm as his second home.

The former champ appeared sharper than he did in his previous outing when he outpointed George Chuvalo, the Canadian champion, in a 12-rounder in New York Feb. 1.

After his exmibition tour Patterson plans to attend the Cassius Clay-Liston title bout May 25 in Lewiston, Me. He said that Clay has promised him a title shot if the champion retains the crown against Liston.

"One thing is clear," Herring said after the bout. "Floyd could lick Clay any time." The loser said he plans to return to Houston as soon as possible.

Patterson weighed 195 pounds, Herring 210.

TOP SPOT in the Jolly Bowlers League which ended Wednesday was taken by this team composed of Lily Farrar, Connie Behringer, Faye Mize (who posted the high game of the season with 218), and Betty McLennan. Team member Duffy Small, who had the high series of 569, is not pictured.

Jack Nicklaus Has New Look

By BEN THOMAS
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — It's the new look these days on the fairways for big Jack Nicklaus. The Masters champ is clowning and cutting up to the delight of huge galleries.

There's no change in his phenomenal golf game, however, and he starts today's third round of the $100,000 Greater New Orleans Open with a two-stroke bulge over a quartet of eager, victory-hungry youngsters.

Jack sank birdie putts on three of his last five holes Friday for a three-under-par 69 on the 7,020-yard Lakewood Country Club layout.

Coupled with his course record 65 from the first round, it gave him a 134 going into the final 36 holes.

Through his first nine holes — he played the backside first — the birdies were as elusive as they had been easy the previous day. He carded a five-under 31 on the back nine in the opening round, but had to settle for a 36 Friday.

After 13 straight pars, his sticks began clicking and on the 530-yard No. 5 hole — Nicklaus' 14th — he wedged to within eight feet of the pin and putted in for his first birdie.

After Nicklaus at 136 came Homero Blancas, Bill Martindale, Sam Carmichael and Ray Floyd.

Carmichael shot 67, Floyd 69, Blancas 71 and Martindale 71.

Martindale and Gene Littler had tied Nicklaus with 65s in the first round. Littler slipped to a 73 Friday and was with a dozen others — including PGA champion Bobby Nichols — at 138.

Arnold Palmer birdied two of his last three holes for a 70 and a 143, just surviving the cut.

Hermleigh Star In All-Star Tilt

HERMLEIGH — Terry Smith, 190-pound four-year letterman for the Hermleigh Cardinals, has been selected to play for the North team in the Texas High School Coaches Association all - star football game in Dallas, Aug. 5.

Smith is one of only four players from Class B schools to be selected for the North squad.

He has been in the starting lineup for Hermleigh for all four years of his high school career, and was named to the all-district team for District 8-B for the past three years in a row.

His coach, W. C. Hodges, rates Smith as one of the best players he has coached, and is particularly enthusiastic about Smith's desire and team play.

Smith, the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Smith Jr., has played fullback on offense and in the line on defense for the past two years. He has played both guard and tackle on defense. He has consistently been rated a top back in the district for the past two years, and also has done place kicking and punting for the Hermleigh team.

Smith has doubled in track in the spring seasons in high school. He anchored the Hermleigh 440 yard relay team to a fifth place finish in the state University Interscholastic League Meet in Austin on May 8. Previously he had won the 100 yard dash and the discus throw in the district meet. He has been clocked at 10 seconds flat in the 100.

SHS Track Team Chooses Captains

The Snyder High School Track and Field Team ended one of the most successful seasons in history this week with the election of captains for this year's team. Three seniors, Paul Tidwell, Charlie Park and J. B. Murphy, were selected by their teammates. These 3 were instrumental in helping lead the Tigers to four meet championships and a tie for another title.

The Tiger cindermen won meets at Levelland, Andrews, the district meet in Snyder, and the regional meet in Odessa. They tied with Andrews for the championship in the Seminole meet. The Tigers also came in third in the Canyon Reef meet in Snyder, and in the state meet in Austin.

The success of this year's squad can be partly determined by the number of school records set. New records for SHS were set in 7 events, and the old record was tied in one more

Tom Kincaid set a new record in the 220 yard dash on a curve. He ran it in 22.2 seconds. John Weaver set the record in the 220 on a straight - a - way in 1961, but the race is now run on a curve in most meets.

Other school records set this year are: Paul Tidwell in the 440 dash - 48.2; J. B. Murphy in the 880 run - 1:59.4; Jackie Rice in the pole vault - 13' ¾"; 880 yard relay (Charlie Park, Kincaid, Leon Smith and Tidwell) in a time of 1:28.2; sprint medley relay (Kincaid, Smith, Tidwell and Murphy) in a time of 3:35.4; mile relay (Park, Smith, Leslie Anderson and Tidwell) in 3:18.6. The Tiger 440 yard relay tied the old record of 42.1 seconds. Running in this foursome, were Park, Kincaid, Smith and Tidwell.

Coaches Jim Stehley and V. V. Shearburn will be in a rebuilding year next year as the bulk of this year's squad are seniors. Only two boys who chalked up any points in the regional meet will be back. They are Jackie Rice and Mike Tipping.

Several more boys who got a sprinkling of points in the district meet will return next year. They are Roy Taylor, Steve McMahan, Ronnie Hardwick, Teddy Brown and Jerry Jackson.

Dallas Sends McDonald To Los Angeles

DALLAS (AP) — Peppery Tommy McDonald, the pass-receiving wizard obtained from Philadelphia in a trade that sent ace kicker Sam Baker away, is going out to Los Angeles so Dallas can get somebody to do the kicking.

The Cowboys announced Friday night that McDonald had been traded to the Rams for Danny Villaneuva, a five - year veteran punter and place-kicker.

McDonald had asked to be traded and Dallas needed a punter so the deal was made with Los Angeles.

One of the things Coach Tom Landry said last season, when his punters and place - kickers were mediocre, was that Dallas had to have a good man at the job in order to succeed.

Dick Van Raaphorst, who did the place - kicking for Dallas, was cut as soon as the 1964 season ended. Van Raaphorst had been quite unsuccessful.

Landry said he hated to lose McDonald, a fine competitor and one of the leading pass-receivers in the National Football League, but the coach added that McDonald wanted to be traded and the Cowboys wanted a kicker.

McDonald was one of three top flankers last season and when he departs Dallas still will have Frank Clarke and Buddy Dial.

"We know now that we will go into the season with a sound kicking game," said Landry.

Villaneuva scored 243 points place-kicking and averaged better than 44 yards punting in his five years with Los Angeles.

Snyder Eagles To Play Big Spring

The Snyder Eagles will be playing in Big Spring Sunday. The contest is scheduled for 2 p.m. and will be played on the high school field.

Buford Thompson is due to start on the mound for the Eagles. He has won 3 and lost none. The Eagles have a 5-1 record for the season.

Civitan Opens Gets Ready To Begin

DALLAS (AP) — The gals of the links start moving into Dallas Sunday for the 10th annual Dallas Civitan Open with $14,000 in prize money dangling before them

Betsy Rawls, the Austin veteran playing out of Spartanburg, S.C., and Kathy Whitworth of San Antonio, the year's leading money winner, head up the parade. Miss Rawls is defending champion.

Miss Whitworth, the only two-tournament winner, has socked away $5,273 thus far this year.

The tournament starts Thursday over the Glen Lakes Country Club course and is a 72-hole event, winding up Sunday.

Mickey Wright of Dallas will be seeking her third Civitan title. She last won the 1963.

JoAnne Prentice, Marilyn Smith and Misses Wright, Rawls and Whitworth have won the women's tournaments on the tour this year.

She last won in 1963.

Sweden Has Troubles In Cup Play

LONDON (AP) — Defending European Zone Davis Cup champion Sweden, experiencing surprising difficulty with Czechoslovakia, sent its doubles team after the important go-ahead match today in second-round play.

Sweden, which trounced the Czechs 4-1 a year ago, was held to a split in the opening singles matches of the second round in Stockholm Friday and needed a victory in today's doubles to take the upper hand.

The concluding two singles matches in the best-of-five series are scheduled Sunday. Should Sweden win the doubles, it will need only a split of Sunday's singles to advance, while a loss would require a sweep of the final two rounds.

Yugoslavia, playing one day ahead of the rest of the field, clinched its second round match against Rhodesia, winning the doubles for a 3-0 lead at Zagreb.

Other team results after two singles matches:

Italy 2, Brazil 0 at Milan; France 2, Austria 0 at Vienna; Spain 2, Chile 0 at Barcelona; South Africa 1, Norway 1 at Oslo; West Germany 2, Luxembourg 0 at Wiesbaden; Denmark 1, Britain 0 at Copenhagen.

No World Records Set In LA Meet

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A crowd of 18,000 came to the Coliseum Relays Friday night expecting at least a world record or two, but left disappointed despite the efforts of Randy Matson, Gerry Lingren and the Villanova two-mile relay team.

Matson, who set the world shotput mark of 70-7 just a week ago, attracted the most attention, but had to settle for a meet record of 67-11 on the chilly night.

Matson said he had been concentrating on the discus in practice this week. He won the event with a 186-5½ throw—far short of his earlier 201-5½ mark.

The meet's top performance was turned in by Villanova when its speedy foursome of Jim Orr, Al Adams, Tom Sullivan and Noel Carroll equalled their own listed world record of 7:19.0 in the two-mile relay.

Last week, however, Oklahoma State ran a 7:18.4, which stands as a pending record.

Willie Davis Is Too Fast For Own Good

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Boy, that Willie Davis is fast. So fast, in fact, that he spoiled a sixth inning rally by buzzing past a teammate on the bases and helped the Chicago Cubs hold on to a 2-1 victory over his Los Angeles Dodgers Friday night.

The Cubs led 2-0 in the sixth when a couple of errors suddenly brought the Dodgers close. Maury Wills reached base with one out on a muff by Ernie Banks and raced around to third on a single by Wes Parker.

Davis, acknowledged as one of the fastest men in the majors, then lofted a shallow fly to Don Landrum, who dropped the ball. Wills sped home and Davis careened around first so fast that he dashed right past Parker and into an automatic out.

Ron Fairly then ended the threat by grounding out.

In other National League action, San Francisco edged Houston 2-1 on Jim Hart's ninth inning homer, Dick Stuart's homer triggered Philadelphia to a 5-2 victory over Milwaukee, St. Louis outlasted Pittsburgh 8-7 and the New York Mets defeated Cincinnati 5-3.

In the American League, Detroit outslugged Boston 12-8 in 10 innings, the New York Yankees walloped Baltimore 9-3, the Chicago White Sox nipped the Los Angeles Angels 2-1, Minnesota downed Kansas City 5-3 and Cleveland beat Washington 2-1.

The Cubs scored their first run in the second inning on an error by Dick Tracewski, two wild pitches by Dodger starter John Purdin and Doug Clemens' sacrifice fly. Ron Santo supplied the eventual winning run with his sixth homer, a solo shot in the sixth inning.

Bob Bolin, who blew a 5-1 lead to the Dodgers in the seventh inning when he gave up three hits, still needed ninth inning relief help from Ted Abernathy before gaining his fourth victory against two losses.

Hart's homer, a leadoff shot in the ninth, broke up a duel between Gaylord Perry and the Astros' Ken Johnson. Perry checked Houston on four hits while Johnson kept eight Giants hits scattered until Hart slammed his game-winner.

Singles by Bob Aspromonte and Eddie Kasko around a walk produced the Houston run in the second inning. The Giants tied it in the sixth when Willie McCovey doubled, moved to third on Willie Mays' bunt single and scored as Hart hit into a double play.

Stuart triggered a three-run rally that proved enough for the Phillies, collecting the first hit off Billy O'Dell with a leadoff homer in the fifth inning. Singles by Tony Taylor, Alex Johnson, Gus Triandos and Bobby Wine produced the other two runs.

Art Mahaffey won his second without a loss, by holding the Braves to five hits while striking out 10.

The Cardinals came from behind to [illegible] two ninth inning runs on a walk to Ken Boyer, Dick Groat's triple and Bill White's third single.

The Pirates had taken a 7-6 lead in the sixth inning when Donn Clendenon and Jim Pagliaroni each stroked two-run singles. Clendenon also hit a two-run homer.

Solo homers by Johnny Lewis and Charlie Smith got the Mets by the Reds. Lewis' homer, off Joey Jay, tied the game 3-3 in the fifth, then Smith put New York ahead to stay with a sixth inning shot off Joe Nuxhall.

Al Jackson, rocked for Tommy Harper's threerun homer in the third inning, settled down after that and brought his record to 4-2 with a six-hitter.

Excise Tax Cut Eyed By Economists

NEW YORK (AP) — President Johnson's plans to cut excise taxes drew renewed attention during the week with the nation's record peacetime economic expansion well into its 51st month.

By doing away with a number of these taxes on products and services, the administration hopes to keep Americans spending in the months ahead.

Johnson's proposed $1.75 billion excise tax cut, as well as future cuts, were major topics at a meeting in Hot Springs, Va., last weekend of top government officials and corporation executives.

The meeting of the Business Council produced the usual optimism about the business outlook. But Gardner Ackley, chairman of the President's council of Economic Advisors, warned that excise taxes would have to be cut to get the economy "through the year in good shape."

The present proposed cut would take effect July 1. Items that would be freed of excise taxes under this proposal have not been named, but Johnson is expected to detail them for Congress soon. Last year, the administration suggested doing away with taxes on retail sales of luggage, jewelry, cosmetics and furs.

Eventually, say some observers, the government may whittle away $5 billion in excise taxes, some of them dating back to World War II. Likely targets for future cuts would be the 10 per cent taxes on new automobiles and on telephone service. Together these total about $3 billion a year.

Elsewhere, General Motors rolled its two-millionth car of the 1965 model off the assembly line and Ford finished its one-millionth 1965 automobile.

For the week, automobile production was an estimated 207,304 cars, a 19 per cent gain over the comparable week a year ago.

New car sales for May 1-10 climbed 17 per cent to 227,171 cars from 194,206 a year ago. But a moderate decline in automobile sales in April was the main reason for a slight drop in the nation's retail sales for that month, said the Commerce Department. Retail sales last month came to a seasonally adjusted total of $22.81 billion, compared with $22.84 billion in March and a record $23.31 billion in February.

Steel production slipped during the week as buyers eased up on orders.

The nation's steel mills poured 2.71 million tons of ingot in the week ended May 8. This was a decline of 2.2 per cent from the 2.77 million tons poured the previous week.

U.S exports and imports, rebounding from the late winter dock strike, set records in March, said the Commerce Department. Exports jumped 73 per cent from February's $1.59 billion total to a seasonally adjusted $2.75 billion. Imports climbed 17 per cent to a seasonally adjusted $1.86 billion total.

Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler, meanwhile, said the nation's balance-of-payments problem eased during March and April. Fowler said the U.S. deficit in international payments was $750 million in the first three months of this year, compared with a $1.5-billion deficit in the last three months of 1964.

Fowler said President Johnson's voluntary program for curbing the flow of dollars abroad "will continue to be effective, but let me caution you vigorously against interpreting these results as indicating that the battle has been won."

Market Is Stronger

AUSTIN (AP)—Broiler markets slightly stronger Monday in South Texas and about steady in East Texas. Both areas were steady all week and closed firm, reflecting an increase in prices in other parts of the country. Shortages were apparent all week in the south. East Texas supplies were barely adequate Friday. Demand was fair. Movement was light to normal.

Closing prices: South 15.00; East 14.00-16.00. Last week: South 14.50-15.00; East 14.00-15.70. A year ago: South 13.67-14.00; East 12.50-14.40.

THIS LITTLE TRUCK took a beating Saturday at about 6:20 at Dunn when it was struck by a big Mack truck. Driver of the pickup was Thurman Weldon Tilley of Colorado City, who received a minor bump on the head, and driver of the gasoline transport which was also involved was William E. Mahoney of Lubbock. Both trucks were going north. The front of the transport received minor damage. A Bell-Seale ambulance answered the call.

Roe's Firm Has Steady Growth

Faith in the future of Snyder, as far back as 1941, has been proven justified for one of Snyder's most progressive merchants, Myron Roe.

Originally founded as Roe Home and Auto Supply in a small building at 2110 Avenue S, the firm outgrew that no-longer-existent building in 1950, and moved to larger quarters across the street. That building is now occupied by the Sue and Charles School of Beauty.

The next move was in 1959 when Roe's moved to the Highland Shopping Center. Shortly after that move, the firm expanded even further, taking in the adjoining store building.

Roe has served in the civic life of the community, having acted as president of the Chamber of Commerce in 1947-48; director of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce; president of the Lions Club; and boy scout director.

Mrs. Roe has also been active in civic work, including church and P-TA work.

Other employes of the firm, which is now known as Roe's Furniture and Appliance in order to better tell the nature of the merchandise, are A. C. Floyd, Jr. who has been with the firm for eight years; Mrs. Pearl Firestone, who has been a bookkeeper at Roe's for nine years; John Garcia, serviceman and deliveryman for three years; and Cap Hernandez who has been at Roe's over two years.

A complete line of appliances, both large and small; furniture, bicycles, and hardware items including mowers and lawn and garden tools are carried by Roe's.

Controversy Continues On US' Foreign Aid Spending

By BEM PRICE

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the past 20 years the United States has spent more than $111 billion on foreign aid, military and economic.

From the beginning the wholesale spending has been the subject of controversy. Congress, however, has invariably decided that such aid is in the best interests of the United States.

In the past year, however, a number of long-time supporters of foreign aid, both in and out of Congress, have been raising questions about its effectiveness and in some instances, its continuation.

The Agency for International Development, headed by David E. Bell, former director of the Bureau of the Budget, is the main agency dispensing U.S. economic assistance to foreign nations.

How effective has the foreign aid program been? Will it ever end?

The answers to these and other questions were sought in an interview with Bell. Here are the questions and Bell's answers:

Q. Can you foresee the day when the foreign aid programs of the United States will come to an end?

A. Yes, certainly. We have seen them come to an end in a reasonably orderly fashion in Europe. Of the $111 billion you cite — I've forgotten exactly — but perhaps $35 or $40 billion was military and economic assistance to Europe. The economic part came to an end in the early 1950s. The military assistance continued for some years but has now come to an end in most of the European countries and is coming to an end in the rest.

The current illustrations which seems most significant is that of Taiwan (Formosa) where economic aid is coming to an end in the present fiscal year and the AID mission will be closed there on June 30. Economic assistance was, of course, ended in Japan 10 years ago

We are concentrating our assistance in countries where substantial progress is being made. And we have identified another six, eight or 10 countries where we expect economic aid to complete its mission and be phased out within the next two, three or four years.

Looking ahead we can see prospects that in country after country, economic strength will be suffiently established so that aid can be ended. It won't be quick, nevertheless it is perfectly feasible to anticipate the picture you talked about — the orderly termination of our assistance programs.

Q. The point has been made that in handing out foreign aid funds, the rich get richer in some countries and the poor get poorer.

A. There have been cases in which individuals have become wealthy in countries where foreign aid has been involved. In some cases, that has been the natural result of the operation of the economic system. People get rich in the United States, too. It doesn't necessarily mean they get rich at the expense of others. The rich get richer in the United States and the poor get richer. This is a characteristic of a dynamic economy. There have been other cases in which individuals have managed to milk the AID program. Those we obviously seek to prevent. And our system for preventing that sort of thing has been getting steadily better over the years. I personally think it is pretty good today.

Q. What are the basic assumptions behind the AID program? Is it economic assistance to further U.S. political aims, or is it economic assistance for the sole purpose of creating a viable economy? If there is a conflict between the two how do you solve it?

A. Well, it is easier for us to work in those areas where there is no conflict. Let me illustrate. In Latin America — it is the whole theory behind the Alliance for Progress — it is the belief that economic assistance will contribute to the political objectives of the United States in the Western Hemisphere; namely, "by the strengthening, improvement and support of free societies. It is a case where the two objectives are in a sense the same thing because, obviously, the strengthening of economies makes them more resistant to the appeal of communism.

Now, there are cases were there is a conflict. The conflict arises in the form that we — the United States — have a political interest in the advancement of a particular country. But the government of that country is not doing what is necessary to bring about improvement. What should we do? Increasingly in recent years we have insisted on appropriate self-help measures. Indonesia is a perfect case. We have not made any kind of loan to Indonesia for over two years. Even our surplus agricultural commodities assistance came to an end over a year ago.

Q. Why does the United States continue to offer aid to nations which have demonstrated rather clearly that they are unfriendly. to be specific: Egypt?

A. The question of aid to Egypt is, I think, the most difficult we have faced in the last year or so. We have not made a development loan to Egypt for over a year and a half because we felt the Egyptians were not following economic policies as good as they should be.

Lubbock Man Indicted

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Jan Ronald Guy, 28, of Lubbock, Tex., was indicted by the Allegheny County grand jury Friday for murder in the death of Alfred Price Jr., 38.

Price, supervisor of Personnel at U.S. Steel Corp.'s nearby Edgar Thomson Works, died March 31 in a fall from the ninth floor of a Pittsburgh hotel.

Detectives said the plunge followed a fight between Price and Guy in a hotel room.

Guy was freed under $35,000 bond.

Group Aids In Battle On Crime

NEW YORK (AP) — The Maccabees, a civilian anticrime group marking its first anniversary today of patrolling the streets of Brooklyn's Crown Heights area, feels it has aided police in restoring more peace to the neighborhood.

Police Capt. Eli Lazarus, who until last month commanded the station house which covers Crown Heights, said he thought there had been a drop in crime there. Police do not provide crime statistics on a precinct basis.

Lazarus also stressed there had been added police activity in the area.

Many store operators who stay open at night agree that the neighborhood "seems safer" now.

"It's good for business," a drugstore proprietor said. "We get people out walking in the evening, and buying."

The Maccabees, originally made up mainly of Hasidic Jews, now embrace all faiths and races. Using four sedans, each carrying four unarmed volunteers, they cruise the neighborhood from 8 p.m. until 1 a.m. or later.

The cars have two-way radios, enabling the volunteers to signal police if they witness a street crime or a suspicious character or incident. Occasionally they take an active part in in the capture of a criminal.

"One of our men was commended by a grand jury only a couple of weeks ago," said Rabbi Samuel Schrage, the organization's founder.

Dukes Talk Of Forming Own Union

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — Dukes in a trade union? Gad, sir, what a suggestion.

But it was put forward in all seriousness.

At a conference of the owners of Britain's stately homes — who charge admission to see the historic buildings and their contents — Maj. J. R. More-Molyneux suggested the owners form themselves into a trade union.

The major owns historic Loseley Park, near Guildford.

At the conference this week, called by the British Travel Association, about 50 owners listened to the suggestion but took no immediate action.

Present at the conference were three dukes, three marquesses, a trio of earls, a pair of viscounts, four barons and a Labor party member of the House of Commons, Tom Driberg.

Driberg joined in the attack on shoddy souvenirs sold at some of the stately homes, saying some were "absolute trash."

The Duke of Bedford, whose Woburn Abbey attracts thousands of paying sightseers annually, retorted:

"I quite agree that the majority of souvenirs are deplorable, but so is the taste of the people."

With a happy note in his voice, he added:

"We sell about 7,000 plaster stag heads every year."

The Duke of Atholl, whose Blair Castle is another mecca for tourists, complained that bus drivers who pilot tourists to his place expect kickbacks.

Lord Geddes, chairman of the travel association, gave the owners a pep talk, telling them they were an important part of Britain's economy.

Britain has 580 historic houses which charge admission, and many sell souvenirs.

One Killed, 3 Hurt In Forney Mishap

TERRELL, Tex. (AP)—Larry Curry, 30, of Dallas was killed and three others injured Friday in an accident about a mile west of Forney on U.S. 80.

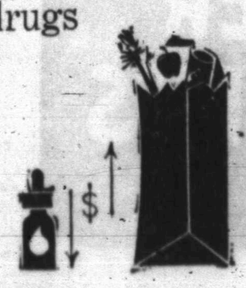

Curry was trying to help an accident victim when a tractor-trailer loaded with bananas jackknifed and pinned him against the car.

Patrolmen said Curry and his wife stopped to aid Peggy Flander, 18, of Garland, whose auto struck a bridge on the East Fork of the Trinity River.

The truck overturned, pinning Charles McCartney, 27, of Coca, Fla. and Kenneth McClure f Shreveport, La., in the cab.

The first barbed wire was introduced about 1873. The first large scale manufacturer was Joseph Glidden of DeKalb, Ill.

MORE FACTS about modern drugs

① In the past ten years, wholesale prices for all commodities went up 20%, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. In the same period, prices of specialty drugs did not go up at all.

② Most modern drugs go down in price after sales and production increase. Salk vaccine, penicillin, and streptomycin are typical examples.

Reserve Merger Is Still Disputed

WASHINGTON (AP) —Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and the House Armed Services Committee arranged a cease-fire today in their fight over plans to merge Army Reserve units into the National Guard.

But at an elaborate ceremony announcing the agreement, it was apparent neither party has backed down a bit in the long standing dispute.

McNamara made it clear he is going to put the merger into effect, and the committee made it just as clear it still doubts his authority to do it without congressional approval.

Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., chairman of a subcommittee considering the proposed merger, met with McNamara in the lavish Armed Services Committee room before a crowd of newsmen and television cameras.

The secretary announced he is submitting to the committee a series of legislative proposals dealing with the National Guard and the Army Reserve, but none of them had to do with the merger.

They covered such details as permitting women and retired enlisted men to serve in the National Guard, letting individual reservists be attached to the National Guard for training, and establishing a National Guard in the Virgin Islands.

Hebert and L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., committee chairman, hailed this as recognition by McNamara that Congress has the constitutional right to pass laws dealing with the raising and maintaining of an army.

Under questioning, McNamara said he has always recognized this. But then he said he regarded the proposed merger as a matter of combat readiness entirely within the discretion of the Defense Department and the military.

After mutual protestations of esteem and promises to walk hand in hand toward the goal of national security, the joint news conference produced these statements:

McNamara — "I am not ready to compromise on anything regarding combat readiness."

Hebert — "The committee offers no compromise on its legislative responsibility. We insist the merger not take effect without proper legislation."

When McNamara agreed not to put the merger into effect until the committee had cleared the fringe items he was submitting, it appeared he might have conceded a point to the committee.

THE SNYDER DAILY NEWS

VOL. 16, NO. 13 SNYDER, TEXAS (79549) SUNDAY, MAY 16, 1965 SECTION B

THE WEATHER WAS A HANDICAP, but it didn't prevent this group of P-TA officers and instructors from appearing at Stanfield Elementary School for the City Council P-TA instruction classes Thursday night. The instruction classes are held each year to familiarize local unit officers and committee chairmen with their duties and objectives. Officers and committee chairmen for the 1965-66 school year attended the classes Thursday night. From left, seated, are Floyd Boston, vice president of Central P-TA; Mrs. Robert A. Sims, out-going city council P-TA president; Mrs. Robert B Pierce, Stanfield P-TA president; Mrs. June Bellamy, past vice president of the city council, and Mrs. Bob Mahood, incoming city council president. Standing is Mrs. Elmo Crowder, an instructor and past city council president.

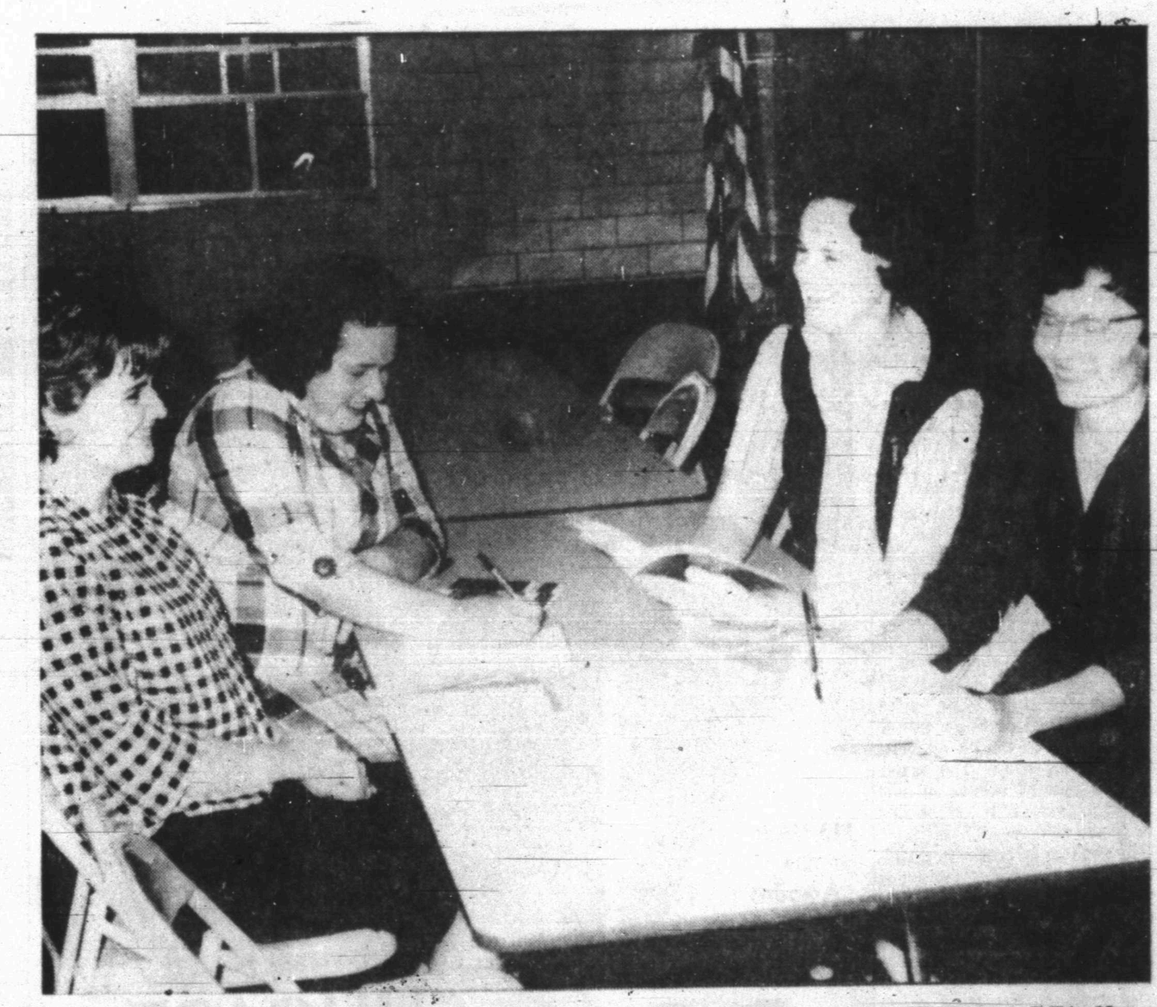

THE FIRST PHASE of instruction for local P-TA officers came with the visit last week of Mrs. Jean Harris, seated left, of Agua Dulce. Mrs. Harris is the State Secretary of the Parent-Teacher Association. With her, seated, is Mrs. M. F. Garland of Rotan, president of the 18th District. Standing are Mrs. W. D. Sims, the president's aide, and Mrs. Sue Mahood, incoming council president for Snyder. Those who were to be instructors Thursday night were themselves given a course of instruction by Mrs. Harris and Mrs. Garland.

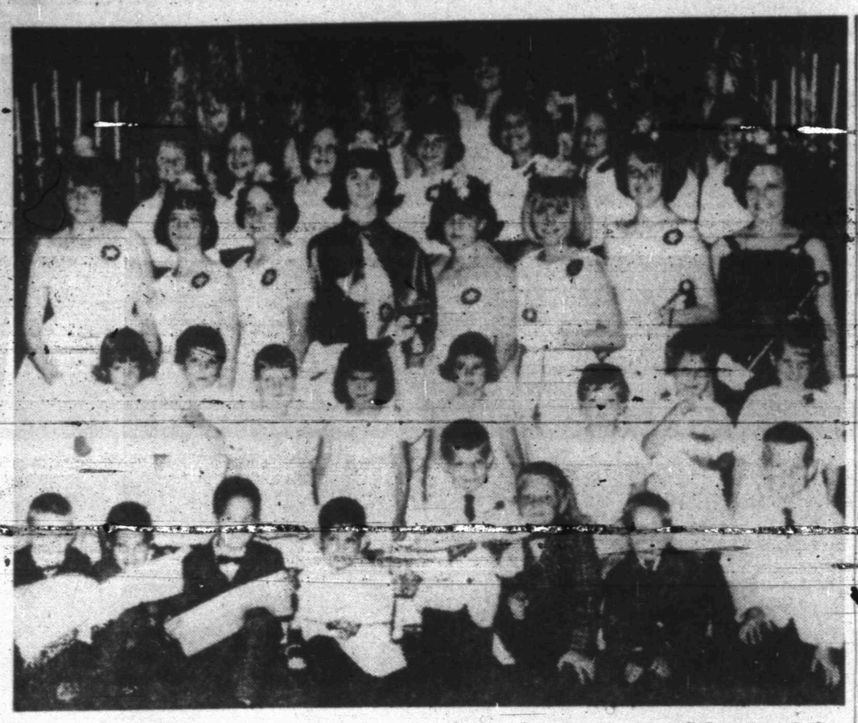

NEW P-TA OFFICERS STUDY TO PREPARE FOR NEXT YEAR

Standing are Mrs. B. F. Head, safety chairman for Stanfield P-TA, and Mrs. V. V. Shearburn, outgoing president of Stanfield P-TA and an instructor for the class.

THE STREETS WERE AWASH and the thunder was rolling outside, but the Stanfield Elementary cafeteria was a pleasant setting for this group beginning its class at the city council P-TA instruction meeting Thursday night. From left are Mrs. Velda Stephens, treasurer of East Elementary P-TA; Mrs. Kenneth Smith, publications chairman of East P-TA; Mrs. Bill Sikes, secretary of East P-TA, and Mrs Wade Davis, Central P-TA hospitality chairman and city council membership chairman.

Palette Club Holds Last Spring Meet

The Palette Club met May 13 at the Martha Ann Woman's Clubhouse for the last regular meeting of the season. Joann Hirst was hostess.

The speaker at the meeting was Wallace Salmon who spoke on the famous Texas artist, Buck Schwitz. Schwitz graduated from Texas A&M College in 1921, and became famous for his sketching soon after.

Salmon showed a collection of the artist's landscapes in watercolors, and sketches of noted courthouses, churches and famous buildings in Texas.

Mrs. Salmon read the introduction to the artist which was written by Walter Prescott Webb.

Salmon also displayed some of his own wood carvings, including a "Tall Texas Cowman" and also a tall miniature pulpit-like table stand.

One painting was brought to the meeting for criticism.

The paintings at Cogdell Hospital and nursing home lobbies have been changed recently. Emma Huffman has six at Cogdell Hospital and Joy McGlaun has 6 at Snyder Hospital.

It was announced that the club has been asked to have a display of paintings at the County Fair in October. The club members agreed to do so.

After a discussion of the new year book, refreshments were served to 14 members and two guests.

The next meeting of the Palette Club will be held the second Thursday in September.

ON THE HOUSE

To fill or not to fill the open pores of mahogany, walnut and oak is apparently of considerable concern to many persons who want to finish pieces of furniture made of those woods.

Most letter writers seem to have the feeling that there is some pat reply that will satisfy everyone. There isn't. As with almost everything else in the wood finishing area, it's a matter of taste. If you want an absolutely smooth surface for the finishing coat, then such woods require the application of paste wood filler. But if you like the textured, woodsy appearance of the open pores, they by all means forget about the filler. Experience has taught us that mahogany, walnut or oak seem to need a filler if the final coat is to be glossy, no filler if it is to be dull or flat. This, however, is opinion. Form your own by looking at furniture in your friends' houses, department stores and furniture showrooms.

If you decide to use a paste wood filler, you will need some burlap, a clean cloth and a liquid thinner, usually either naptha or turpentine. When buying the filler, read the directions on the container to determine which liquid should be used. Only enough liquid should be mixed with the paste to produce a combination that flows very slowly, like thick molasses.

Apply the filler with a brush, moving with the grain and in generous quantities. Immediately go over it again, this time across the grain and with light strokes. The filler quickly begins to lose its wet, shiny appearance — in a matter of a few minutes. Now take a piece of burlap and, using a circular motion but bearing down as you go across the grain, rub the surface. The filler gets into the open pores mostly from the movement of the burlap across the grain. Finally, clean the surface with a dry cloth, moving in the direction of the grain and with a light touch.

Wait a few minutes and inspect the surface thoroughly, being certain there is plenty of light during the inspection. You will be able to tell quickly whether the pores of the wood have been filled properly. If not, repeat the entire operation, this time using a lighter mixture.

When the filler has dried thoroughly, preferably a day or two, seal it in before applying the finishing coats. The sealer can be thinned shellac or any similar product recommended by your dealer.

In addition to mahogany, walnut and oak, some of the woods which have open pores are chestnut, hickory, rosewood, ash, elm, butternut, satinwood and locust.

QUESTION: How deep should the foundation be for a garage? Also, how thick should it be? I will be using poured concrete.

ANSWER: The depth and thickness of concrete foundations differ around the country. Check with your local authorities, from whom you probably must obtain a permit. In some areas, the base or footing of the foundation must be considerably wider than the upper part. Still further, some local regulations require certain proportions of cement, sand and aggregate. Example of what we mean: a friend who recently built a garage had to have a foundation at least 36" deep, with a general thickness of 8" but a footing thickness of 16". And he had to use what is called a 1:2:3 mix; that is, one part of cement, two parts of sand and three parts of coarse aggregate. For a foundation, you probably will be hiring a concrete company which delivers the mix in the proper proportions for a garage in that area.

QUESTION: I recently saw a brief note about a new electric radiant heating system which rolls on the ceiling like wallpaper. Can you tell me something about it?

ANSWER: It's a flexible material only 1-16th of an inch thick, consisting of two outer layers of vinyl and a filling of nylon net. The net is interwoven with thread-thin resistance wiring. Special mastic is applied to the ceiling, after which the material is laid on. The electrical connection is made through lead wires attached to the back of the panels, holes having previously drilled in the ceiling to accommodate these wires, which are connected through a standard junction box. The system has been approved by the Underwriters Laboratories. However, it presently is being sold only in the Ohio area, the South Central States and California. Control of each room is possible through independent thermostats.

It takes a lot of "outside" help to get this year's big telephone job done...

This year Southwestern Bell is investing nearly $1 million a day in an intensified construction effort to make your telephone service (already the most modern and reliable in the world) even better.

These construction dollars, pouring into communities large and small, account for some 17,500 jobs among the hundreds of firms which sell supplies, services and materials to the telephone company.

These jobs mean more paydays for secretaries, accountants, architects, brickmasons, carpenters, engineers, truck drivers, bulldozer operators, ditch diggers—thousands of people who aren't telephone company employees.

There's another tangible benefit, too. Because hundreds of individual projects affect virtually every telephone exchange we serve, the economic impact in these communities will be significant and widespread.

That's how Southwestern Bell's construction program works to help build a more prosperous America. You, personally, will benefit through even better telephone service. "Your Town, USA" benefits from a surge of new dollars into the local economy.

Book Tells Stories Of Wild Horses

By ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Writer

MUSTANGS AND COW HORSES, edited by J. Frank Dobie, Mody Boatright and Harry Ransom (SMU Press, $7.50).

Somewhat overlooked in the literature of the Southwest are the vast herds of wild horses that once roamed the southern Great Plains and areas south of there.

The SMU Press has revived a 1940 collection of stories about the wild horses in a newly published book.

The herds of horses were almost as large as those of the buffalo and much harder to handle.

A stallion headed each herd and he drove out all other stallions until he grew so old he was defeated—at which point he became a loner.

These wild horses had a market value, but not much. Nevertheless, it was enough for men to try to catch them.

This required extensive labor to build hedges to guide the horses to a corral. Building the corral was a major job, for it must be strong enough to resist the frenzied attempts of the animals to break out.

Driving them into the area of hedges and corral was almost a military-sized operation.

Other methods of attempting to capture them failed. The wild horse stamina was enormous and no tame horse could outrun them or exhaust them. There are some stories of individual captures by stunning the horse with a rifle bullet through the neck, but this usually proved fatal.

No one but a romanticist really liked the wild horses. For one thing, the stallions were experts at stealing—both horses and mules of ranchers and adding them to their herds.

Legends are without end about the super stallion, usually white, that was sought by everyone who saw him. But these supers were never caught, even by the corral method—at least that's what the stories say.

Gardener's Corner

SCATTERED across this broad land are many boys and girls who had their first communion with the world of gardens, forests and lakes under the guidance of "Mandy."

Mandy is Abraham Mandelstam, who 55 years ago put behind him a teaching career in New York City and trekked into Maine to found Camp Wigwam for boys at Bear Lake, Harrison. Years later he established Camp Hiawatha for girls on Stanley Pond in Kezar Falls, Maine.

Both camps were noted for beautiful gardens. It was through gardens that I came to know and admire Mandy, for whom former campers gave a testimonal dinner May 6 at the Hotel Astor in New York. Mandy is one of the oldest active camp operators. His boys and girls came from all parts of the country.

It was during World War II. The telephone rang in my office and a clipped voice asked if I would like a story. Of course!

Mandy related that vegetable crops were threatened because there were not enough hands to harvest them. His young charges had volunteered to go to the rescue. They worked many hours, free, to save peas, beans and other vegetables.

This was the beginning of an enduring friendship. It has not been unusual to get long distance telephone calls, generally at 6 or 7 a.m. on my day off from work. After he states his business, he never fails to inquire politely if he has awakened me. His aim always has been to get things done as early as possible.

Mandy's friends, many prominent in music, theater and sports, often visited his gardens. Once I saw a little girl helping the renowned pianist, Josef Hoffman, wash his hair beside the lake.

There was an anguished telephone call one morning. Drought and a blight struck one of Hiawatha's gardens. Camp was scheduled to open in three days. What can we do about it?

We scoured greenhouses, found hundreds of plants in pots and flats, hired a big truck and a gardener and 24 hours before camp opened the garden had an air of permanence.

Hundreds of former campers will honor Mandy. The steering Fabian (Stanley Warner Theaters). The committee includes Judge Charles E. Wyzanski Jr., chairman; the Loesser brothers, Frank and Arthur, both composers; composer Richard Rodgers; historian Richard B. Morris.

NOW THE SHOE CORSAGE

Are conventional coursages losing popularity?

A new Manhattan flower shop (Nosegay) says they are. For instance, reports Clinton Lindley, there is the shoe corsage, very chic, always worn on the left foot, and recommended for cocktail and late evening occasions. Then there are special floral arrangements for the hair, to harmonize with the hair styling. Some look like hats of living flowers.

Something different suggested for the bride is a dainty bo-peep cane garlanded in colorful flowers—or just a single flower to be carried.

Floral fashions for men also change. For instance a boutonniere of mixed foliage, a blend of green leaves with no flower. The green foliage is considered appropriate with formal evening attire.

Add lime juice to apricot nectar and pour into classes over ice cubes. Fill with carbonated water for a refreshing drink.

Toperettes Reveal Pals

Snyder Toperettes weighed in Tuesday night at the Stanfield Elementary School Gym.

After recording weight losses and gains, the members went to the Steak House for salads.

Each member brought a gift and secret pals were revealed. New pals were drawn for the remainder of the year.

Dorothy Berryhill lost the most weight last week and Mildred Richardson gained the most in TOPS. In KOPS, Rita Dowdy gained the most and Eleanor Burns lost the most for the week.

Group points included 75 for Group One, 45 for Group Two, 65 for Group Three, and 83 for Group Four.

When you are preparing tomato aspic, you might like to season the tomato juice used with bay leaf, celery tops, sliced onion peppercorns and a whole clove or two.

Library Notes

Scurry County Library is appreciative of all donations of interesting data on this immediate area. Printed facts of pioneer Scurry County and early Snyder are hard to come by.

Only recently Mrs. Gladys Johnson, nee Gladys Margry Brown, gave the library a copy of "The Burro," first high school annual published in Snyder. The library would like very much to have any and all high school annuals from schools of the county should local citizens have copies they would like to donate.

The Burro, fore-runner of Tiger's Lair, was published in 1915. Members of the graduating class that year were Loy Ramsour, Robert Welch, Lucy Mae Hull, J. B. Curry, Lillie Wilson, Clifton Doak, Pat Barton, Cleo Stewart, Fannye McMullan, Ora Wilson, Esther Periman, Satira Norcross, Ora Farr, Gracy Whitmore, Alta Hull, Elvia Pierce, Velma Rodgers, Jim McClinton, Winifred Winston, Willie Mae Daniels, Vera Jones, Charlotte Sturdivant. Mary Isaacs, Gladys Brown, LeClaire Stokes, Burnice Brice, Reba Smith, Ilene Harpole and Sims Palmer. Faculty members and subjects they taught were E. A. Watson, superintendent, mathematics; B. D. Black, principal, physics; Miss Mary Bullard, history; Miss Mamie Dorfman, English, and Miss Annie Mae Klapproth, Latin and German.

Books make lasting memorials to a departed relative or friend. The library receives requests for such tributes often. A book selected may characterize some special interest of the departed person for whom it is given in remembrance or it may reflect the sentiments of the donor.

Among most recent memorials are such books as "Foreign Correspondence," written by John Hohenberg given for the late Joe D. Scott, a well-known newspaper man, and son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Scott, 3600 Ave. U. The late Lee T. Stinson, well - known local druggist, was remembered by friends with the book, "Great American Cattle Trails," written by Harry Sinclair Drago.

"Flower Arranging," by Joyce Rogers has been given as a fitting tribute to the late Mrs. Nora I. Jordan. A thoughtful gesture of friends of the late Harry S. Lee have placed "Making Useful Things of Wood," by Franklin H. Gottshall on library shelves. Earlier this year, the book "Crystal Arrow," was contributed in memory of the late Mrs. H. G. Towle. Religious books are often selected such as "Prayers for a New World," given in remembrance of the late Joe Stinson, local druggist, and written by Wallace John Suter.

Library staff members are always glad to help those wishing to give memorials. Such requests may be selected from books recently received or a special book will be ordered if available.

Reports Due On Projects To Boost Petroleum Uses

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP)—Progress reports are due this week on two oil industry projects designed to boost demand for petroleum products.

Refiners already are crediting the American Petroleum Institute's travel development program with boosting gasoline sales.

Research engineers still are at work on an oil burner they say will give the industry the first major improvements of consumer-oriented home oil burners in 30 years. The aim is expansion of the light fuel oil market.

The current status of both projects will be presented at mid-year meeting of the institute's marketing division. Wednesday's general session will be preceded by two days of committee huddles.

In addition to travel and oil burner development, subjects to be discussed include marketing research, service station trends and lubrication advances.

More than four years of research have emphasized new concepts to permit the design of small oil burners best suited to heat small homes and to fire water heaters.

The travel program the institute began in 1962 has organization of an automotive travel council as an ultimate goal.

Early efforts to persuade automobile and tire manufacturers to help organize and finance the council failed.

Institute officials have expressed hope the other industries eventually will take part.

Meanwhile the institute has boosted its annual travel promotion advertising budget from $400,000 to more than $1 million.

A major part of the advertising campaign has linked a "see America best by car" slogan with promotion of "close to home" tours.

The 1965 campaign calls for promotion of 249 individual tours through advertisements published in 48 states. The 1963 campaign included only 76 tours

The travel development committee is headed by Grant Young of the Marathon Oil Co.

"We've got a good thing going and it will be to our advantage and the oil industry's to keep it going," Young said at last year's marketing division meeting.

The oil burner development committee's research has been directed by a technical advisory group headed by Dr. Julius Heldman of Shell Oil Co. in New York City.

A year ago Heldman said the project was on schedule or ahead but a burner to end all burners was not just around the corner.

"We believe refined prototypes will have been developed by the end of 1965 but more extensive lab tesing and, perhaps, debugging will be necessary before production designs can be completed with confidence," he said.

City Has Grown On Caprock Materials

If any one company could be singled out as having provided a good foundation for the city of Snyder's growth, that company would be Caprock Material Company.

Caprock has literally provided the foundation for most of Snyder's growth since company was founded by Gene Best in 1950, and they have provided a good base on which to build.

As a matter of record, over three-quarters of a million cubic yards of concrete have been furnished to area residents and firms since 1950. If it were all in one huge chunk, that amount of concrete would cover one complete city block to a dept of 225 feet!

Caprock cement is found in Snyder's schools, churches, homes, gas plants, roads and highways.

And not only has Caprock been a friend to the oil industry and to city folks, but to area ranchers and farmers as well. Ready - mixed concrete has actually been delivered as far away as 50 miles west of Jayton.

But Caprock has furnished more than just ready - mixed concrete to the building of Snyder. Sill blocks, concrete building blocks of all sizes, stepping stones, flower boxes, concrete fence posts, water troughs, and concrete utility buildings are all products of the firm.

Best, who came to Snyder from Albany, is assisted in the bookkeeping end of the business by Mrs. Best.

Two employes of Caprock have been with the firm since its earliest days over 15 years ago.

They are Clarence Hall, a native of Arkansas, and Raymond Pylant, a native of Snyder. Two other employes are also natives of Snyder. They are Don Grant, who has been with the firm for three years; and Kenneth Palmer, who has been a Caprock employe for two years.

Other part - time employes are called in to help with the Caprock operation when they are needed. Caprock Materials is located at Avenue Q and Twenty-third Street.

Tot-2-Teen Is Center Of Fashion

Irene Brooks and Verna Foree are the owners of the "Children's Fashion Center of West Texas", Tot-2-Teen, located at 2617 Avenue S. They took over the firm from Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Gebhardt in January, 1962.

Tot-2-Teen truly lives up to its name as children's Fashion Center, for they offer clothing for infants through pre-teens in abundance.

The infant's department features home - from - the hospital sets, and a complete line of christening clothes for both boys and girls. Complete lines of knitwear, boy's dress up and play wear, girl's dresses, playwear and casual wear, and lingerie for the younger set are just a few of the many fashions offered by Tot-2-Teen.

Mrs. Brooks, a native of East Texas, has lived in Snyder for three and one-half years. Mrs. Foree is a native of Scurry County. They invite everyone to come in and visit with them.

Prescriptions Get Priority At Burgess

Burgess Pharmacy, located at Fortieth Street and the Big Spring Highway, has offered a complete prescription pharmacy service to the people of Snyder for the past eight and one-half years.

Much personal care and attention go into each prescription filled by Rayburn and Roy Burgess, both registered pharmacists.

Although Burgess Pharmacy specializes in prescriptions, they also carry a complete line of vitamins and general sick room needs.

In addition to the professional pharmacy service offered by the Burgess Brothers, the store has a full line of baby needs, complete cosmetics and photography departments.

The drive-in window on the north side of the building permits pickup of prescription and shopping for most items from the car.

Roy and Rayburn Burgess have been licensed pharmacists for 28 and 16 years, respectively.

The firm employes Mrs. Burton Tankersley who has been with the firm seven years, plus Raymond Graves and Larry Vaughn, D. E. students.

Theatre Group To Headquarter In Rome

ROME (AP) — Off - Broadway's Living Theater group may establish new headquarters here.

The company which is headed by Julian Beck and Judith Malina recently benefitted from a fund-raising auction, with sale items contributed by local artists.

Living Theater has been touring Europe for several months. The organization ceased New York operations a year ago as the result of a federal government suit for nonpayment of taxes.

Plans Revealed For Theological Talks

LONDON (AP) — Plans have been announced here for the resumption of full - scale theological discussions between the Anglican Communion and the Eastern Orthodox Church after a lapse of more than 30 years. The decision was reached after an exchange of deputations between the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Patriarch of Constantinople.

Royal Ballet Takes Part In Class

NEW YORK (AP) — Rudolf Nureyev, Dame Margot Fonteyn and six other members of the British Royal Ballet took part in a class at Ballet Theater School on April 20, the day before the Royal Ballet's gala opening at the Metropolitan Opera here.

The 39 students, in a professional class, and the eight British guests did advanced bar work and practiced technical jumps and turns.

With Nureyev and Dame Margot were Lynn Seymour, Georgia Parkinson, Graham Usher, Christopher Gable, Anthony Bowell and Derek Rencher.

The Royal Ballet has invited the instructor of the class, Mme. Valentina Pereyaslavec, to give its company classes three times a week during its four - week New York season.

Ballet Theater School is the official school of the American Ballet Theater.

Say Poor Listeners Reveal Barren Soil

CHICAGO (AP) — People who say they don't go to church because the sermons are poor may be pointing to a failure in themselves, the Rev. Webb Garrison, an Evansville, Inc., Methodist pastor, writes in the church magazine, Christian Advocate. "Listeners who go away empty-handed reveal themselves as 'barren soil,'" he says.

Star Discount Nearing 4th Anniversary

Star Discount is nearing its fourth anniversary in Snyder. The firm first opened its doors June 15, 1961 and moved to its present location May 1, 1963. The modern plant contains 10,000 square feet of floor space, nearly an acre of paved parking area and gives a much wider selection of merchandise with more convenience for the customer.

The large store gives the customer still another advantage. By having more warehouse area, Star's is able to buy in larger quantities, and thereby give their customers better prices.

Tommy Johnston is the manager of the firm. A native of Snyder, he has been employed one and one-half years.

Other employes and their length of employment are David Taylor, two months; Ruth Kee, two years; Marie Moore, one and one-half years; Lee Weaver, three years; Maxine Thompson, two years; Lennie Wells, one and one-half years and Virgie Martin, one year.

Star's handles only top quality merchandise. They do not buy seconds to be sold at "ridiculous" prices, but rather offer quality merchandise at the best possible prices.

Humanists Speak From The Pulpit

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — Seven humanists were allowed to enter the pulpit and state their objections to the Christian religion during Lenten lunchtime services at St. George's Anglican Church, Edgbaston.

Each spoke for 10 minutes and then was answered by a leading churchman, including the Rt. Rev. John Wilson, the Rural Dean of Smethwick (the Rev. Donald Tytler), and Canon William Purcell, head of religious broadcasting for the British Broadcasting Corporation (midland region).

The Rev. George Browning, vicar of St. George's, believes this is the first time humanists have been allowed to speak openly against Christianity in a church building.

"It's an unusual procedure," he admitted, "but it is one called for in the times in which we live. There are many uncertainties about what people believe, and we thought it was better they should be talked about in church."

Broadly speaking, humanists substitute faith in man for faith in God.

Hunter Has Alias

NEW YORK (AP) — Evan Hunter, author of the Broadway play, "A Race of Hairy Men!" keeps his real identity concealed deep within an academic alias.

The writer also of several best - seller novels, he created his nom de plume out of Evander Childs, the name of the New York high school he went to, and Hunter College, where he received a B.A. Business associates unable to penetrate the disguise get only a smile when they ask why.

Les Francis Chev. Has 23 Employes

"Red Hot and Rolling" is the theme of a sales campaign that's going on right now at Les Francis Chevrolet.

And all of the friendly personnel at the firm have joined together to make this one of the outstanding value events for automobile buyers.

Francis Chevrolet operates on the theory that an automobile agency should be in a position to serve all of a motorist's needs, and the present sales campaign is designed to let everyone who needs a better car get that better car!

At Les Francis Chevrolet, a person in need of a good used car, repairs, or maintenance work, or just a new part, is given the same consideration as the new car customer.

And with the type of personnel employed in each of these departments, the customer will find that he need go no further than Francis Chevrolet to fill any automotive need.

'Lady In The Dark' Enters Stock Circuit

NEW YORK (AP) — The musical hit "Lady in the Dark" gets its first airing on the summer stock circuit this year, a quarter century after Broadway premiere.

Performance rights have been released by Kitty Carlisle, widow of Moss Hart, author of the libretto to a score by Kurt Weill. Hart, who died in 1961, had regarded the work along with "Winged Victory" as his favorite, Miss Carlisle reports.

Complex Is Top Priority In Africa

By KENNETH L. WHITING

ACCRA, Ghana (AP) — The highest priority construction project in Africa today is "Job No. 600" of the government-owned Ghana National Construction Corp.

Thousands of workers toil around the clock behind high barbed wire fences to complete a massive conference complex for the Organization of African Unity's summit meeting in September.

Bullet-proof glass will be used. The complex includes an 11-story hotel, conference hall and smaller auditorium, committee rooms and offices, swimming pool and other recreation facilities. All are being built from scratch.

Cost appears to be no object. Night work and airlifting of supplies from overseas have caused the original estimate of $19.6 million to climb to $36.4 million.

Ghana is a nation of 7.3 million whose economy is suffering pangs from rapid industrialization and a drastic drop in income because of poor prices for its basic crop, cocoa.

Most other government construction work in Accra is marking time as men and materials are borrowed for the 600 project. Elevators have been flown in from Britain.

Floodlights illuminate the project at night and work continued even when much of Accra was without electricity for three nights recently.

The complex is rising near seaside Black Star Square with its Arch of Triumph and elaborate reviewing stands.

The project, according to diplomats here, was ordered by President Kwame Nkrumah to show Gamal Abdel Nasser that "anything you can do I can do better."

Nasser was host to the 1964 summit conference. Nkrumah returned home determined to make Accra's facilities bigger and better than those he saw in Cairo, these diplomats say.

O'Rear Furniture Here Since 1948

Snyder's oldest furniture business is that of O'Rear Furniture Co., 904 Twenty - sixth Street, just off the East Highway.

Owned by Mr. and Mrs. M. M. O'Rear, the store was established here in 1948 by L. C. Carmichael and Mr. O'Rear prior to the oil boom. A native Texan, O'Rear moved here from Altus, Okla., where he had lived most of his life and Carmichael had moved here from Post, where he had operated a variety store for about 20 years.

The store, originally located on the south side of the square, was moved to its present location in 1950, where more parking was available.

O'Rear bought sole ownership of the store when Carmichael retired in 1954.

The store has a complete line of furnishings for the entire home, including Norge appliances and a full stock of furnishings for living room, dining room, bedroom, den, and occasional pieces.

The firm handles Kroehler, Westeed, Broy Hill, and others in living room suites, as well as chairs by Broy Hill, Strato-lounger, Swing King, Burkliner, and others.

In the bedroom line O'Rear Furniture features among others, the well - known Tell City maple line.

In the bedding department, customers choose between Taylor bedding, Blackwell, Morning Glory and U. S. Koylon foam products.

The firm also features Sandran plastic and Armstrong floor covering.

The store is open six days a week from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and offers terms up to 36 months.

Home Town Motors Has Big Stock

One of the best selections of used cars in Snyder is found on the East Highway.

Pinkie Ferguson and Sam Stephens, owners and operators of Home Town Motor Sales at 1100 Twenty - fifth Street, usually have from 30 to 35 used cars in stock.

The cars range from a few low-priced older work cars up to nearly - new models which can hardly be told from brand new cars.

Financing, of course, can be arranged on any car, new or used, that is purchased from Home Town Motors.

Home Town Motors is a local firm, owned by local people. Stephens and Ferguson have worked together since 1950. In 1957 they formed the Home Town partnership, and since that time have sold literally thousands of cars in Snyder. Home Town Motors has a good reputation, built on many years of fair dealing.

A customer deals with confidence when he deals with Pinkie Ferguson and Sam Stephens.

They are ably assisted by "Shorty" Soria, clean-up man.

Hungary Manages To Break Away From Traditional Communist Gloom

By PRESTON GROVER

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — The chauffeur was telling political jokes, laughing and waving both arms so much that the drive through city traffic was as hair-raising as a road race.

He had dozens to tell, and it was the same with the Hungarian friend who piloted this correspondent around among the stores and new parts of the city.

It is the way in some of the variety theaters also — satire and ridicule. Budapest is like no other city in the Communist camp. Everybody has a gay story about communism to tell, or how Hungarians live, and how people live in other Communist states.

This country has broken away from many of the restraints that make some of the other Communist capitals gloomy and dull under police watchfulness.

Even Premier Janos Kadar is credited with one airy comment, although no official seems ready to vouch for it. The story is that during an airport chat with an American correspondent, Kadar asked:

"How much does an American worker make?"

"About $400 a month," the newsman replied.

"And how much does he spend to keep himself?"

"About $250."

"And what happens to the rest?"

"He spends it as he likes. America is a free country. It's strictly his affair."

Then came the newsman's turn.

"How much does a Hungarian worker make?"

"About 1600 forints."

"How much does he need to take care of himself?"

"About 3,000 forints."

"But what does he do to get the rest?"

"This is a Socialist country. It's strictly his affair."

Similar stories are part of the routine of such theaters as Vadim, where the actors compete for laughs.

Many of the political jokes about Hungary and other Communist countries are simply light and gay but you can't help suspect that they will have an undermining effect on the prestige of communism.

There are efforts to control it here, but it is not easy. From time to time the Vadim theater is asked to trim its patter, but it simply drifts off the stage into the cafes.

Vadim's actors ridicule slow building, sluggish farming and bureaucratic foulups.

"Most of Budapest was built under the lash of the Austrian oppressors," an actor said, then added: "Since then, nothing has been built."

"I've just returned from a tour in America," he continued. "In New York you are likely to see as many as 200 men working on a new apartment house. Here you see two or three men, if the weather is good."

Tourism was a source of stories one night.

"An Englishman came to Budapest and went home happy," the actor observed. "He saw no danger that this country would be overtaken by communism."

In one scene, an American boasted that people were free to tour abroad. "Eighty thousand Americans came to Hungary last year," he said.

"That about balances the 150,000 who left here for the West in 1956," replied another actor, and the audience applauded this reference to the Budapest uprising.

By contrast, Hungarian literature tends to reflect the same melancholy tone that has always pervaded it. The government printing agency lists an unending series of stories of resignation, sadness and suffering.

A Budapest newsman says there's "self-censorship."

Recently in Yugoslavia, Prof. Mihailo Mihajlov wrote a book of Soviet prison camps, saying Stalin preceded Hitler in setting up genocide camps. The writer was sentenced to 10 months in prison.

"The story never would have been published in Hungary," the newsman said. "Self-censorship would have stopped it, either before he wrote it, or when it reached the editor's desk."

Peron Cult Still Plagues Argentina

By JOSE M. ORLANDO

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Political peace in Argentina may rest with a 48-year-old general who has the unusual idea that soldiers should not plot.

This military modern in turbulent Latin America is Lt. Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania, who swings a polo mallet as well as he cracks the whip as army commander in chief.

"The government should be left to run the country," he says. "The army's gravitation on political affairs should be only toward tolerance and concord."

Whether this idea can be enforced is the key, perhaps, to a full term for President Arturo Illia, 64, a country doctor whose top patient now is a nation suffering from economic and political ills.

The most explosive political factor in Argentina is Peronism, the cult of exiled dictator Juan D. Peron. Most military men shun Peronism as they would the plague.

In 1962 President Arturo Frondizi let Peronists field candidates in provincial and congressional elections.

They won 9 of 22 governorships and 47 of 96 congressional seats up for election, including the governorship of key Buenos Aires Province.

The military immediately stepped in, overthrew Frondizi, and voided the election. Ongania emerged as a key figure in the resulting military-civilian regime, which bowed out when Illia won the presidency in July 1963.

Now the specter has risen again. Two months ago Peronists under the banner of the Popular Union party elected 52 deputies to the House and emerged as the country's biggest single political force. They won the popular vote at Buenos Aires Province.

In 1967, governorships come up for election. A presidential election is scheduled for 1969, when Illia's 6-year term should expire.

If the Peronists are allowed to run, will tney win Buenos Aires and other governorships in 1967? Or the presidency in 1969? If they win in 1967 will the military again void the election and overthrow the Illia regime? How are the military going to stop a political force —which polled over three million votes in March?

These are the thorny questions facing this country of 22 million people in the next 24 months. Ongania, as the respected, strong-willed commander in chief of the army, can do a lot to keep the peace. He summarily fired a powerful general recently. But hurdles are sky high.

"If the political parties, including the Peronists, evolve toward a constructive order, there is no reason why the armed forces should intervene again to run the government," a prominent source said.

"But if no such order exists, then it is possible some form of intervention may become necessary."

With half a dozen major parties and over 200 smaller ones feuding all over the country, chances of immediate political order are scant.

Argentina lived under a two-party system until 1943, when a conservative government was toppled by a military coup that catapulted Peron to the presidency in 1946.

His fiercely nationalistic regime lasted until the military and opposition parties ousted him in a 1955 revolution.

He was packed to exile in Spain, where at 69 he is aging luxuriously — and keeping Argentina in turmoil. His orders are blindly obeyed by his followers, who still long for the inflationary blanket salary raises and unrestricted social privileges Peron lavished on them.

Under Peron, Peronism was neither a leftist nor a rightist movement but more a personality cult. Since Peron's overthrow, his forces have drifted toward leftism. The labor movement is their backbone.

Peronist leaders have denounced the United States for intervention in the Dominican Republic and Viet Nam. Communist influence in Peronism, however, is slight and Red efforts to infiltrate the Peronist-controlled union have met scant success.

Illia, helped by a new breed of younger, more tolerant military officers — including Ongania — has managed to keep this republic in relative peace for nearly two years. But the Peronist upsurge in the March elections tore the wounds wide open again.

Anti-Peronists have started shuddering again with the fear of a return to the Peron era. Clear in their memories are Peron's demagogic rabble-rousing; the "descamisados" (shirtless) workers who were the backbone of his regime and virtually took over the country; the police persecutions; and the financial sprees that pushed Argentina to the brink of bankruptcy.

Most men in power agree Peronists should be stopped before they take over Argentina again. But nobody seems to know exactly how it can be done, short of outright repression.

Once-Doomed State Forests Boast Abundance Of Timber

Editor's note: How to find a forest fire in 1915? Climb a tree, of course. Things have changed radically in 50 years, the Texas Forest Service notes on its golden anniversary. Once the state's forests appeared doomed. Now there is an abundance of timber —some even call it a surplus. How did this take place?

By B. F. KELLUM

LUFKIN (AP)—A half century ago they perched precariously atop the tallest trees on the highest hills.

When they spotted a fire, they would seek it out on horseback and tried to put it out with green pine tops, tow sacks, rakes and shovels.

They were the hardy forest patrolmen of the infant Texas Forest Service.

Forest fire protection and control have come a long way since the early days of the service which became 50 years old this year. A Golden Anniversary program is set for next Tuesday here

Today, 93 steel towers overlook nearly 12.5 million acres of Texas piney woods. Men in the lookout towers keep in contact with their district headquarters by two-way radio.

In the spring and winter—the period of greater fire hazard—12 contract aircraft fly fire detection tours to supplement the lookout towers.

The Texas Forest Service was created in 1915 because of a growing concern over the depletion of forest resources.

The service had eight employes in 1916. Six were forest patrolmen who traveled their areas on horseback. They rode 15 to 25 miles per day telling rural people the importance of preventing fires.

Today the service has more than 300 employes, 29 of whom are graduate foresters.

Dr. A. D. Folweiler, director of the service, says there is a lot more to the organization than prevention of fires.

He said the service contributes to the state's woodland economy with such activities as forest management assistance, insect and disease control, production of high quality seeds and seedlings, tree improvement research, development of new forest products and ways to use wood, public education, administration of four state forests and enforcement of laws relating to forest fires, insects and disease.

"We are constantly trying to develop new uses of our timber," Dr. Folweiler said.

He said research has been under way for some time in the development of new strains of trees.

"Certain fiber quality is required for different types of paper and we must keep research ing in this direction," he said.

Folweiler said Pacific Northwest pine has been used for years as a type of sheeting on houses.

"We believe Texas pine can be made to do the job just as well," he said.

He said there is no specific use for tree bark. The service is studying how it might be used.

"We try to squeeze as much money out of a log as a meat packer does out of a hog," he said.

During the first two decades of the century there was a strong belief commercial sawtimber operations would soon come to an end because timber was being harvested faster than it grew and costly fires ravaged large areas annually.

The trend has been reversed today and the Texas Forest Service believes the result, in a large measure, is due to forestry practices long preached by the service and progressive private land owners.

"The service continually persuades owners of forest lands to maintain interest in growing trees," Folweiler said.

He said it had been estimated that three decades from now the consumption of wood and forest products will be slightly in excess of what is now growing.

"Some people refer to a present surplus of timber," he said. "We refer to it as an abundance.

"We like that term because if there is not an ample supply of raw material an industry is just not going to be attracted to an area.

"The complaint of a timber surplus comes from people who want to get their timber on the market today and are not willing to wait awhile."

He said the Siecke State Forest, purchased by the state in 1926, is a monument to the value of planting and managing trees as a crop.

The 1,722-acre site near Kirbyville in Newton County was nearly barren at the time.

The service started a tree planting program with the first slash pine plantation in the state. The forest is now productive with lofty pines towering as high as 100 feet.

The Texas Forest Service is part of the Texas A&M system.

Forest products, fire control and pest control activities are headquartered at the Cudlipp forestry center here. Other departments and the office of the director are at College Station.

The seven field districts are at Linden, Henderson, Lufkin, Woodville, Kirbyville, Conroe and College Station.

The four state forests are in Newton, Montgomery, Tyler and Cherokee counties.

Forest products research and new pulpwood technology are creating marketable products from sawmill residue that were worthless 20 years ago when the pulpwood industry took hold. Sawmill residues made from chips make up more than 20 per cent of the pulpwood in Texas.

Texas forests sustain more than 900 wood using industries with annual sales of more than $500 million. Their 34,000 employes are paid $140 million each year.

The pine-hardwood region of East Texas covers more than 12 million acres in 43 counties. Net pine sawtimber volume in this area is expected to increase from 23 billion board feet in 1965 to about 32 billion in 1975.

US Becomes Scapegoat For India

By CONRAD FINK

NEW DELHI (AP) — Frustrated Indians have picked the United States as a scapegoat for India's somewhat humiliating encounter with Pakistan in the Rann of Kutch.

U.S. military aid to Pakistan — not Pakistan's strategy or its army morale — is held responsible for the licking India took in battles last month in the sand dunes and salt flats of Kutch.

It even is suggested President Johnson knew in advance the battle was coming and failed to deter the Pakistanis or, at least, strip them of their American equipment.

Then, many Indians claim, the United States stepped in just as India was rolling up its sleeves for a counterblow.

Columnist Inder Malhotra of the Statesman, one of India's leading newspapers, had an explanation why India, a nation of 480 million, was humiliated by 110 million Pakistanis:

"At the time when the Pakistani invaders were rolling in U.S. Patton tanks, the U.S. representatives here were warning Indian officials that the U.S.A. would take a grave view of any Indian attempt to hit back somewhere other than Kutch."

Prime Minister Shastri said he had not heard of these "warnings" but drew loud cheers in Parliament by declaring India would not tolerate interference in its affairs by any one—"whether they be Americans or anybody else."

It has become fashionable to criticize the United States on the assumption that it had interfered somehow with India's defense of its honor.

The net result is that U.S.-India relations have suffered a severe blow.

Beneath all the angry talk is fear among many Indians that their country has been a loser since 1962 when its army was defeated by Communist Chinese troops in a month-long border campaign in the Himalayas.

National prestige has dipped steadily and India's once strong voice in international affairs has thinned.

Sections of the economy are a mess and millions of Indians eat off the American dole every day.

This hurts, and there is a constant search for explanations.

Indian officials have little difficulty explaining why India, militarily weak in 1962, was no match for the immense, well-disciplined army of China. But Pakistan?

Almost from the beginning of India's reverses in the Rann of Kutch affair, the Indian government pinned much of the responsibility on the United States.

The Pakistanis also produced "evidence" that American military equipment was used by India.

Since both countries have received massive doses of American aid — $6 billion to India, $5 billion to Pakistan — there is little doubt that American largess played a role in Rann of Kutch fighting.

But Americans in both India and Pakistan suspect that factors other than American equipment were responsible for the outcome in the Rann of Kutch.s

Government Painfully Slow In Rescuing Cotton Farmer

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government has been slow to follow through on a program it touted a year ago as a way to ease taxpayer burdens in support of cotton prices and to raise incomes of cotton growers.

That program was a $10-million special research program designed to help reduce production costs of cotton. Lower costs, the administration said, would make it possible to reduce government price supports and subsidies and also enable cotton to do a better job competing with cotton abroad.

Even more important, the research was pictured as a way to help cotton hold many markets it has been losing to synthetic fibers.

Congress went along and authorized the $10 million for the crash research work.

But only $2 million has been appropriated and only an additional $736,000 has been requested for the 1966 fiscal year under the President's budget.

A year ago, the research program was hailed as offering the best possible long-term solution to cotton's problem of meeting its competition — which it has not been doing effectively for many years. Cotton lags in filling fiber markets, surplus supplied have accumulated under government price supports and grower incomes have suffered.

A cotton industry leader recently called attention to the lagging research effort.

G. C. Cortright, of Rolling Fork, Miss., president of the National Cotton Council, said in a statement that benefits of the research could exceed its costs by at least ten to one and eventually as much as a hundred to one.

He estimated that each cent per pound that cotton production costs could be lowered would mean a saving of $75 million in government cotton program costs.

The original plan called for establishing seven new laboratories. Yet funds have been made available for only two — $644,000 for a cotton-plant disease laboratory at College Station, Tex., and $92,000 for a pilot ginning plant at Mesilla Park, N.M.

The $10 million has been described as peanuts compared with the more than $100 million spent annually by the synthetic fiber industry in improving and developing fibers.

Many factors have contributed to a federal let-down on cotton research. A major one has been the pressure on the White House to hold down federal spending.

Benefits of cotton research would be, of course, somewhat uncertain and might not be realized for several years. An extra large amount spent for research might not show in lower farm program spending as quickly as budget officials would desire.

Then there is the problem of sectional differences over cotton production. New means to cut production costs most likely would be seized more quickly by the larger and more efficient producers than the smaller, less efficient ones.

As a consequence, the present disparity between these two classes of growers could be widened by research results, with the problems of the low-income growers being aggravated.

More support for the research comes from growers in the Mississippi Delta, Texas and California than from producers of the Southeast, where farms are much smaller and where many have not been able to take advantage of cost-reducing practices already available.

There are more than 45 collectors of barbed wire in the United States. In 1941 there were only 13.

Junior Editors Quiz on BALLERINAS

QUESTION: Do ballerinas really dance on the tips of their toes?

* * *

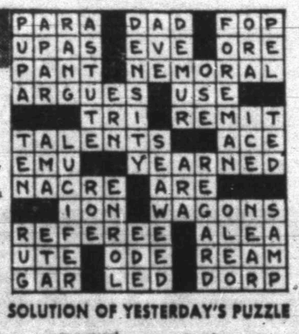

ANSWER: The particular thing which makes ballet dancing so interesting and beautiful is that the dancers seem to defy the law of gravity. They appear almost to float in the air. This lightness of effect was first developed on the stage by the Italian dancer, Marie Taglioni, who charmed audiences in the early 1800's. To produce the light effect, Taglioni raised herself as far as possible towards the point of the toe—called dancing on the "demi point." Since she wore soft slippers, it was not possible for her to dance completely on toe tip. In 1837, Carlo Blasis became director of a ballet school in Italy, and conceived the idea of a shoe with a boxed-in toe which would support a dancer's foot so that she could actually raise herself on the tips of the toes, called dancing on the full point. With such square-toed slippers, a dancer could pirouette or spin around while still on the full point. It was the great Russian dancer, Anna Pavlova, who, through her many tours through this country, inspired America with a love for the ballet and led so many American girls to take up this beautiful and exciting way of expressing rhythm and grace.

* * *

FOR YOU TO DO: See if you can walk or dance as if you were being pulled up by a string. You may not turn into a Taglioni or Pavlova, but you will experience a sense of lightness which will make you feel better and look better. 5/15

Priests Move To Retreat

CARDIFF, Wales (AP) — For the first time, 12 priests from the Anglican Church in Wales are going, with approval of their bishops, to a group retreat conducted by Roman Catholic monks.

The clergy, from the dioceses of Swansea, Brecon and Llandaff, will join the Cistercians at Caldey Abbey on their tiny island off the coast of South Wales in May.

The idea grew from a hospital bed, when the sick Abbot of Caldey made friends with the Anglican chaplain who came to visit him. Abbot Wicksteed offered his island monastery as a place of retreat. Dr. Glyn Simon, Bishop of Llandaff and leader of the Anglican community in Wales, gave his approval.

Says AMC Also Makes Glamor Cars

By CHARLES C. CAIN
AP Business News Writer

DETROIT (AP) — American Motors President Roy Abernethy says his No. 1 problem is to convince the motoring public AMC's cars are just as glamorous as those of its competitors.

Abernethy said in an interview this week that he is disappointed at AMC's showing in the auto marketplace this year, but he predicted better things to come.

"Our biggest problem is to improve our company's sales image," he declared, adding, "We sold economy and compactness for eight years, and to many people we are still a six-cylinder company. That is where we have an image lag."

The interview was held almost at the hour that R. L. Polk & Co., auto industry statisticians, released registration figures for the first three months of 1965. They showed General Motors, Chrysler and Ford running ahead of their 1964 pace, with American Motors trailing its sales total of last year.

"In this particular market when there are only four auto companies left, obviously people look at the low man on the totem pole and the minute you have a sales and profits dip, the gloom boys come out."

Abernethy, 57, AMC's No. 1 man since Feb. 1962, said he was counting heavily on the recently introduced sporty Marlin car to give AMC a sparkling new image, particularly attractive to youthful buyers.

Carr Rules On County Depositories

AUSTIN (AP)— A bank with county officers as directors or stockholders may not be used for a county depository, Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr said Thursday.

The legal opinion was requested by Banking Commissioner J. M. Falkner.

Carr said it is against public policy for a public official to hold a financial interest in a contract, "no matter how honest he might be."

BENTLEY BAIZE

Local Man Active In Cotton Circles

Bentley Baize, co-owner and general manager of Von Roeder Seed Farms of Snyder was named vice president of the Texas Certified Seed Producers at a recent meeting of the organization in Houston.

Baize, along with the directors and members of the association works for the interest of cotton breeders of Texas and the Southern cotton producing states.

In connection with formulating a plan for breeders' rights, Baize has attended meetings in Dallas, Austin and Atlanta, Ga.

Baize said that he believes that cotton is in a very critical position both from a possible acreage decrease and from synthetics. A decrease in cotton use would definitely hurt the economy of our county as well as the state, Baize said. He added that cotton must be of a high quality to give a good performance at the mill, and that the breeders believe there is a definite need to keep the private cotton breeder in business so that the farmer will be able to purchase high quality seed to produce even better fibers.

Most of the leading cotton varieties today are the result of breeding by private companies, Baize said.

Certification, he added, has and does render a service to the agricultural industry and is the best assurance a farmer has in securing planting seed of a definite variety. "For the good of agriculture," Baize said, "we need to keep both the private breeder and the certified seed producer in the Certification Program."

In addition to his activities regarding cotton seed, Baize is active in numerous civic projects.

He is a vice president of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce; is a director and past chairman of the Scurry County Child Welfare Board; is on the Water Resources Committee of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce; and is co-chairman of the Snyder and Scurry County Fourth of July Celebration.

Asks Extension Of Arms Control Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has sent President Johnson legislation to continue the life of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency for three years. It would be authorized to spend $30 million.

Johnson had asked for a four-year extension and a $55 million authorization. The House voted three years and $40 million, the Senate two years and $20 million. The final compromise got the Senate's voice vote approval Friday.

Solons Would Soothe Fears

WICHITA FALLS (AP)— Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., and Rep. Graham Purcell, D-Tex., said at home town news conferences Friday the United States should not be unduly alarmed over Red China's explosion of another atomic bomb.

They were in Wichita Falls for an Armed Services Day luncheon.

"It is the belief of the secretary of defense, the joint chiefs of staff and most members of the Senate Armed Services Committee that the Red Chinese will not in the near future be able to develop their nuclear capacity in terms of weaponry," said Tower, a member of the Senate committee.

"I feel the Red Chinese will use this for propaganda purposes but they do not as yet have the capability to build a system of nuclear weapons," Purcell said.

Churches Say Outlook Is Brighter

EDINBRUGH (AP) —The Presbyterian Church of Scotland sees the new outlook of the Roman Catholic Church as a hopeful sign that relations among the churches may be brought closer.

The report which the Church of Scotland's interchurch relations committee will present to this summer's general assembly praises the Roman Catholic Church's new alertness to the problem of contemporary society and its readiness for change.

"There is no doubt that the Roman Catholic Church shows itself to be taking other churches more seriously as partners than it has done since the Reformation and indeed since the great schism," the Church of Scotland report says. "On the other hand," it adds cautiously, "its attitude seems still frequently hesitant and equivocal."

The committee says it is gratifying that the Vatican has accepted the World Council of Churches proposal to set up a mixed committee to explore the possibilities of a dialogue.

"While recognizing the large and serious divergences in doctrine which separate those of us who belong to the reformed churches from our Roman Catholic brethren, we must endeavor to assess the present situation with fairness and charity and await further developments with hope," the report concluded.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A Southern Baptist "30,000 movement" — aimed at establishing that many new congregations and missions over a nine-year period — has come to a close, with the final figure showing 24,917 new preaching places started — about 5,000 short of the goal.

Suburbs Changing Face Of America

Editor's note: Suburban growth accounts for a significant portion of the American population explosion. Suburbs' dependence on the automobile and their largely white populations, set them apart from the Big Cities around which they cluster.Here is a report.

By TOM JOHNSON

DALLAS (AP) — Explosions of villages into cities — drawing their strength from nearby population centers — are changing the face of post-war America.

Land on which cattle once grazed or crops grew now often is occupied by street after street, subdivision after subdivision of one-family houses.

Late afternoon summer finds the air filled with back-yard barbecue smoke and the sound of power mowers.

Two such village explosions adjoining Dallas show the nationwide pattern.

They followed this modern-day maxim:

If a small town is isolated, it will stay small and perhaps shrivel. But if it is near a large, dynamic metropolitan center, it probably will prosper and grow.

Each exploding suburb has a personality of its own, but there are central threads that characterize them all:

—Dependence on the automobile.

—A high ratio of white to nonwhite families.

—Employment largely in the metropolitan center.

One good example is Richardson, just north of Dallas. Mrs. Emory Lee Huffhines talked talked about it this way:

"There were a couple of grocery stores and four churches in Richardson when I moved here in 1953. It had a population of 1,300, and everyone knew everyone else.

"You could see for miles in every direction. It was a quiet little town.

"Then the expressway from Dallas came through and everything exploded."

Richardson had a 1950 population of 1,289. It was 16,810 in 1960. The 1965 estimate is 36,000, and it's predicted that the city will top 100,000 before 1980.

North Central Expressway connected Richardson with downtown Dallas in 1955. An added growth factor has been giant electronics firms, such as Texas Instruments and Collins Radio, which are located in or near the city. Those two companies alone employe 21,000 in their Richardson area plants.

Many of these employes live in Richardson. But many more commute from Dallas and other suburbs.

An even more fantastic growth picture occurred at Irving, just west of Dallas.

Its 1950 population was 2,621. It shot to 45,985 (an increase of more than 1,600 per cent) by 1960. Today's estimate is 73,000, and 100,000 might be reached by 1970.

Although Irving has no large industry such as Richardson's aerospace-electronics, it has a more favorable location from the view of the commuter because it is between Dallas and Fort Worth.

Of Irving's 45,985 citizens, only 64 were listed by the census as non-white (Negro).

Richardson had 95 Negroes living there in 1960 out of a population of 16,810.

Mesquite had 125 of 27,526, Garland 1,498 of 38,501 and Grand Prairie 2,117 of 30,386, for a percentage of 6.9, the highest by far of the suburbs under consideration.

Downtown is sometimes hard to find in the suburbs. Shopping centers account for the great majority of commerce, whether it be hardware, office supplies, theaters or restaurants.

Once located, the downtown section, being older, is apt to seem drab compared with the shiny new shopping centers.

But the centers depend on cars, and suburban traffic often suffers from congestion nearly as bad as the central city's.

Most suburbs have no city bus service.

Irving's new, modernistic high school could be taken for a commercial plant, clogged as its parking lots are with student and faculty automobiles.

About the only pedestrian to be seen in the new suburbs is the person walking to or from his car, so geared to the automobile is the entire pace of life.

And like the old joke about California, the rarest thing to be found in the exploding suburbs is the native.

Mrs. Clifford Moore was born in Irving in 1903. She grew up with the town and has this appraisal:

"For the old folks, it was better as a small town. But it's better for the children today, with the new schools.

"I went to school in a red, one-room school house across the street from the fire station. There's a big supermarket there now.

"Dallas was a long way off when I was a little girl. Now I can drive downtown in 10 minutes.

"Things have changed so much, I could just as well be living in a different town."

'Valise' Packs Again

PARIS (AP) — "La Grosse Valise," an on-again-off-again show for export to Broadway, is now scheduled for premiere there next fall.

Creator of the revue is Rober Dhery, whose "La Plume de Ma Tante" was a major White Way success in 1958. Rumored in preparation for transfer under various managements for the past three seasons, the property is now under sponsorship of Joseph Kipness, currently the producer on Broadway of "I Had a Ball."

Rector Wins Promotion

LONDON (AP) — The Rev. Nicholas Stacey, Anglican Rector of Woolwich, who got nation - wide publicity by confessing in a series of newspaper articles that he had failed in his mission despite "playing every card in the pack," has won unexpected promotion.

Some 50 to 60 priests have elected him Rural Dean of Greenwich, a post which gives him a kind of overseer role in part of the diocese of Southwark. Three assistant rural deans are being named to help him.

Stacey has continued as unpaid Rector of Woolwich since March 1, when he started paying all he received into church funds. He has carried out his avowed intent to earn his living by taking secular employment, while still serving as a part - time priest. He is working as a free - lance journalist and as chief executive of a housing association.

As Rural Dean he says he intends to try and win the goodwill of those clergy who suspect him for his radical views.

LIGHTEST MEXICO

BY JOHN ABNEY

ZIHUATANEJO, Mexico — It occured to me that the sky was extremely bright and clear this morning when Mr. Jim began shouting for his bottle (of milk, silly) at something like 6 o'clock.

And to be completely sure, I rushed to the airport to see what kind of information they had. The weather people said the only clouds in the sky were over Florida.

So naturally, I am lying here on the beach studying the surf, tide and estimating the number of grains of sand around me. And thinking about the sights flying in.

I never hit a town or a landing field on the nose like professional airlines. I gaze around at the countryside as we fly along. Admiring the scenery. And pretty soon notice (accidentally) that the compass is about 10 or 15 degrees off but do not know for how long.

Therefore, I have to try and figger. Probably 30 miles south of the course, etc. and then turn in another direction until I figger I'm more or less where I should be.

As it happened, I missed Zihuatanejo only 15 miles or so but it was a lovely sight flying up the coast looking for the little town. Coves so clear you had to look twice to see if they really were wet.

And in a lot of these coves you could see black patches. So down to 500 feet altitude for a quick check. They were giant ray fish. A whole flock of them just sitting there in the rocky inlets, having a nice time. These guys jet into a cove and nose around eating lobsters for free that would cost people $6.50 a plate up home.

So lying around here on the beach, grief - stricken at the thought of people up home perspiring in offices to keep Progress Moving, it occurred to me that the big old green mountain right over yonder may be loaded with sapphires and emeralds and jumk like that.

Some day I'll have to come back and inspect the geological indications of the region. Maybe there are a few pounds of loose gold lying around a little creek that ribbons along below the mountain.

But right now I cannot waste time on trivial matters because there are important decisions to make. A barefoot gentleman named Tomas is standing beside me, waiting.

He wants to know if I would like a tray of giant clams (not really giant; about ashtray size), a platter of lobster or just some old fish. Tomas and his family operate a kitchen down the beach. And he serves clients anywhere they care to eat.

Well, the clams are a rare treat. They squinch up when you squirt lime juice on them to down-'em raw (who wouldn't?). And the lobster is something I never turn my back to. And the dolphin fillets smothered in little clam sauce is way out yonder.

So to make things simple I ordered everything. The works, plus a couple of cooling coconuts with some vitamins injected into the juice to purify it.

Tomas beamed happily, It took two boys to carry the trays and coconuts and the transaction bolstered his economy. Cost me a sturdy $2.56 U.S. to purchase this amount of odder.

Allen Luddens Go For Those Games

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Allen Ludden, a Phi Beta Kappa and former university instructor, plays games professionally — on television — 52 weeks of the year. Even his vacation period is filled with programs which are pre-taped.

Betty White, his wife, is an actress who plays games professionally — on television — two weeks out of every four.

So what do the Allen Luddens do when they are relaxing at home?

They play games. At this writing, Ludden is murmuring because in a two-year-old cumulative gin rummy score, his wife has a lead of almost 6,000 points.

The couple, who base their activities in New York where Allen's daily "Password" is produced, have lived since their marriage two years ago in a big, old and beautiful house in Westchester County, about 35 miles from midtown Manhattan.

There are three Ludden children — Allen was a widower — David 17, Martha, 15, and Sarah, 11. They are as eager gamesmen as the adults in the family.

The family often plays "Password" at dinner; chess, checkers, bridge, cribbage or anything else in odd moments.

Allen and Betty met on "Password," having arrived at their professional status by two very different routes.

She grew up in Los Angeles, studied acting and moved into radio, with bit parts in such shows as "This is Your FBI," "The Great Gildersleeve" and "Blondie." In 1951 Betty became the star of a local Los Angeles television program — on the air five hours a day, six days a week, which explains her easy manners before the cameras.

Later she starred in "Life With Elizabeth," a live comedy show seen all over the country, and in 1954, the daily "Betty White Show" on NBC.

Allen became interested in dramatics as a student at the University of Texas and directed an Austin Little Theatre group while teaching there.

He produced Army shows in the Pacific during World War II, and later became personal manager and advance man for Maurice Evans on a nationwide tour of "Hamlet." Eventually he got into radio, with a teenage interview show, "Mind Your Manners" on a Connecticut station. This led him to New York as moderator of the radio version of "College Bowl."

"College Bowl," a top-speed quiz show went on television and led him logically to the daytime "Password" when it started in 1961.

Allen has a cultivated taste for games: Betty was born with it.

"I come from a family of compuslive game players," she said. "Last week when I was flying east with my mother, we made up a little game. I gave her initials, and she had to fit them to the titles of old movies."

Ludden, author of four nonfiction books and a novel, all directed at readers under 21, is more inclined to non-game pursuits in his spare time.

He is a gardener, and in two years the spacious grounds and gardens of their old colonial home have been restored to mint condition. While he is involved in two writing projects, Betty has been busy redecorating the interior.

ELVIS PRESLEY croons a love song to Mary Ann Mobley in "Girl Happy," his new MGM romantic comedy in Panavision and Metrocolor In co-starring roles are Shelley Faberes, Gary Crosby, Nita Talbot, Jody Baker, Harold J. Stone and Chris Noel. It is coming to the Canyon Drive In Theater here Friday, May 21.

Railroad Commission Lists Completions

AUSTIN (AP) — The Railroad Commission said Saturday that 134 oil and 41 gas wells were drilled during the week.

Year totals are 2,610 oil and 3,149 gas wells, compared to 3,149 oil and 1,002 gas wells.

Wildcatters brought in 14 gas and 6 oil wells. Wells plugged totaled 219, 128 of them dry holes.

The average calendar day oil allowable was 2,866,066 barrels, an increase of 10,187.

Director Switches To Comedy Writing

NEW YORK (AP) — Chester Erskine, a Broadway director who switched to script writing for the screen, is the author of "The Passionate Hypnotist," a play bought by the Theater Guild for Broadway production during the 1965-66 season.

The comedy concerns a psychiatrist, who while doing research in hypnotism, mesmerizes himself into renewed romantic ardor for his wife.

Soviets Stay Atop Fence

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Alexei N. Kosygin assured India today the Soviet Union's efforts to improve relations with Pakistan do not mean a lessening of friendship with India.

The assurance was given in a speech at a Kremlin friendship rally for visiting Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri of India.

"When the Soviet Union strives to improve its relations with third countries, it does not do it at the expense of Soviet-Indian friendship," Kosygin declared.

President Mohammad Ayub Khan of Pakistan visited Moscow last month. The visit caused some concern in New Delhi that Soviet support for India on such issues as Kashmir might be lessened.

Radiation May Help Lift Planes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Radiation may help pilots get heavily loaded airplanes off the ground safely.

Two National Aeronautics and Space Administration scientists proposed today development of a new device consisting basically of very weak radioactive sources imbedded in the runway at known intervals — along with simple radiation - detection equipment in the plane.

The scientists, Fred J. Drinkwater III and Bernard R. Kibort of NASA's Ames Research Center, Moffett Field, Calif., said the device would keep the pilot continually informed of his position along the runway under any visibility conditions.

ANN-MARGRET and Michael Parks are shown in a scene from "Bus Riley's Back In Town." This color production will start Sunday, May 23, at the Palace Theater here.

Briton Likes U. S. Sports

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — British actor Richard Attenborough is the sports fan deluxe.

He recently made his first trip here to make "The Flight of the Phoenix" and was met by his publicist.

The publicist took him to the hotel and then excused himself by saying he was going to a basketball game.

Attenborough, without sleep for 26 hours, insisted that he go along since he had never seen an American basketball game. His first night in town was spent watching the Los Angeles Lakers in the NBA playoffs with the Boston Celtics.

"It's a thrilling sport," says Attenborough, who spent the next four nights watching the Los Angeles Dodgers play baseball. It also was his first taste of baseball.

"I say, that Koufax is quite a hurler, what?"

Neilson Must Be Busiest Of Actors

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Leslie Neilsen must be one of the busiest actors in the business.

At one time last week he was acting in two television series and one movie simultaneously.

He bicycled between "Ben Casey," "Peyton Place" and the movie "Harlow."

"The only way I was able to accomplish it," he says, "was that my 'Ben Casey' part is played mostly while lying in a hospital bed."

Frankie Avalon Has A Busy Year

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — By all the cool logic of show business, folks should now be asking, "Whatever happened to Frankie Avalon?"

So how come he's making four pictures this year? How come, huh?

Avalon became a star seven years ago, at a time when you could pick up any kid off a South Philadelphia street and make him a teen-age favorite by deft manipulation of television and record media. Within the dazzle of a few months he was appearing in "The Alamo" with John Wayne and selling one hit record after another.

Many young chaps with $300 suits, wavy hair and wavering voices hit it big in that era, only to vanish into limbo with the advent of Beatles. It figured that Frankie Avalon should join the march to oblivion. Yet he works.

He was working the other day in "Sergeant Deadhead," his third American International film this year. There he was, breezing into a scene and taking over from such pros as Eve Arden, Cesar Romero, Fred Clark, Reginald Gardner and Gale Gordon.

Avalon came out of the scene to enthuse: "Being in a picture with people like these can only make me look good. My next picture is going to be 'Dr. Goldfoot and the Sex Machine' with Vincent Price. Great! You can't help but come off well when you're with fine talent."

At a ripe 24, Frankie can stand back from his career and take a long view. It was admittedly a treacherous path.

"Look — I was a star when I was 17," he said. "I mean I knew from nothing. In the old days they had vaudeville, stock, burlesque — lots of ways to learn the business before they hit it big. Me, I had to learn the business after I became a star."

The Avalon career was beginning to flag when he was offered a role in a quickie called "Beach Party" — Paul Anka turned it down. The film was an instant success with the younger crowd and was the progenitor of the beach-pajama-ski-what-not series that has minted millions for American-International.

Eddie Fisher To Watch Self Work

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What does a star like Eddie Fisher do when he's onstage at the same time that he's on television?

"Very simple," says Eddie. "I intend to bring a television set onstage at the Riviera Hotel in Las Vegas and let the audience watch part of the show with me."

Eddie came to town to tape an Andy Williams show over NBC-TV. When it airs Monday night, he's working.

"Andy and I sing a jazz duet at the beginning of the show that I don't want to miss," he says.

Eddie has just signed a new deal with the Riviera Hotel that gives him one of those fabulous Las Vegas salaries plus 2 per cent of the hotel action. That's like having 2 per cent of the Bank of England.

Star's House Is Blasted

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Back in the silent era, one of the screen's most famous vamps was Barbara Lamarr, the star of "The Prisoner of Zenda" and "Trifling Women."

She lived in a seven-room beach house at Venice at the height of her fame.

This week the house made its first and last screen appearance.

Producer Alan Pakula and director Robert Fulligan bought the house for Natalie Wood, who plays a teen-age star of the Thirities in "Inside Daisy Clover."

It's Natalie's house in the movie, climax of which comes when the house is blown up.

That was done this week — with one take.

"Else," says Mulliga,, "we would have been in the real estate business again."

Ambassador Named

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marshall Green, a career Foreign Service officer, is President Johnson's choice to succeed Howard Jones as U.S. ambassador to Indonesia.

Green, 49, is now deputy assistant secretary of state in charge of the Bureau of Far Eastern affairs. His nomination to succeed Jones, who is retiring, was announced Friday by the White House.

Champion Directs

NEW YORK (AP) — For his first nonmusical directing stint on Broadway, Gower Champion has selected a play written by the librettist for two of the tune shows which he staged.

"He to Hecuba," slated for premiere next fall, is the work of Michael Stewart, who wrote the plots for "Bye Bye Birdie" and "Carnival." The drama, which concerns a travelling theater troupe, is being sponsored by Edward Padula.

Conflict Changes

NEW YORK (AP) — "Old oppositions of science versus religion . . . are no longer the real oppositions," writes American psychologist James Hill, director of studies of the Jung Institute in Zurich, Switzerland. "The new opposition, the real one in this generation, is between the soul and all that would butcher or purchase it," he adds in a new book, "Suicide and the Soul."

Steve Allen Is Top Commuter

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Steve Allen has television's ideal job—if you like transcontinental commuting.

As he stood waist-deep in his Sherman Oaks swimming pool, Allen told how he jets to New York once every two weeks, tapes two "I've Got a Secret" shows and then comes home in a day or two and spends the next two weeks writing songs or articles.

"I hate to say it," says Steve, "But being the emcee of a panel show is like stealing money.

"I even enjoy the flights because I can do a lot of work on them. I never watch the movies."

Steven says the new setup is a lot easier than his former nightly show—but he enjoyed that too. Steve enjoys whatever he is doing.

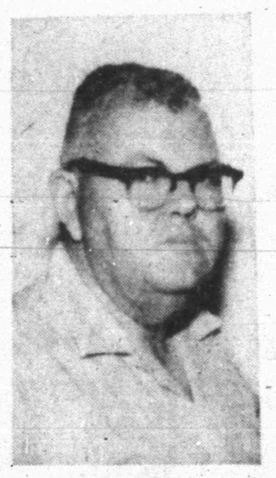

Allen is one of the more prolific composers. He estimates that he has composed more than 3,000 songs. Some, like the theme from the movie "Picnic" and "This Could be the Start of Something Big," have become big hits.

When he is not writing songs, he is studying languages. He and his wife, Actress Jayne Meadows, are now studying Chinese.

Deffebach No Newcomer To Insurance

Deffebach Agency provides Snyder with versatile services of comprehensive insurance protection, bonds and real estate in its role as one of the older agencies in Scurry County.

It has been in existence as Deffebach Agency for 35 years and had about 13 years background in the form of insurance agencies which Lyle Deffebach operated before he bought the business in more recent years.

Lyle divides his attention between an accounting business in which he is partner with R. S. Yorgesen, and the agency. Tom Deffebach, his brother and partner in the insurance business since 1947, serves as agency manager.

They have three on the staff besides themselves — Lyle's wife, Rene; Flo Neumeyer and Onie Koch.

Deffebach Agency keeps its clientele in step with most modern insurance advantages. They represent all capital stock companies and prepare coverage programs which are best tailored to the client's exact needs.

The firm is located at 2606 Avenue R.

Lad & Lassie Now Has New Owner

A change in ownership last November affects in no way the courteous service and high quality merchandise the people of the area have become accustomed to at the Lad & Lassie Shop, 1810 Twenty - seventh Street.

The firm is now owned and operated by Mary Ellen Headstream; she purchased it from Mrs. Dewey Odom who originated the business in 1950. Mrs. Headstream is a native of Scurry County.

Mrs. Headstream is ably assisted by Evalyn Walker, a native of Illinois who has lived in Snyder for two years.

The business has continually grown in both volume and inventory due to the fact that they feature the most famous name brands in their fields, carry everything from infants' sizes to 14 and pre-teens, and always give friendly, courteous service.

Besides soft goods, the Lad and Lassie shop also handles shoes for boys and girls, infants sizes through 8.

Bolger Continues Service Tradition

G. Edward Bolger carries on one of Snyder's oldest businesses through the facilities of Bolger Funeral Home, an outgrowth of the Odom Funeral Home.

Bolger has been a part of the firm since 1950 and a sole owner since May, 1952. The original business dates back to about 1920.

Bolger Funeral Home offers the services of four emergency vehicles, counting the combination funeral coaches which double as ambulances, and also has aerial ambulance service available on call. The ambulances have two - way radio, oxygen units and are air conditioned.

Bolger has some hopeful long-range plans to augment the equipment he features in the business — that of facilities, including a building and funeral chapel of his own.

Bolger heads up an experienced, competent staff of five, including his wife, Ian, who assists when needed. Quaid Richburg is a funeral director and embalmer. Langdon Withers is an able assistant to Bolger, being a funeral director and also handles the insurance phase of the organization. Roy Havens and Jerry Tatum assist in all phases of the operation.

Associated with the funeral home is the Bolger Benefit Association which offers a thoughtfully - converted burial insurance, providing coverage for up to $700 for an individual or a cash basis. Individuals who participate can expect to have their policies converted to cash, best serving those who might have moved far away from the original area where the policy is issued.

Bolger Funeral Home has two slumber rooms, a preparation room, and a large display of caskets (30 to 35) — one of the largest in the entire area.

Furniture Store Past 1-Year Mark

The Grady Erwin Furniture Company, located at 603 East Highway, is one of the newer businesses in Snyder and offers a complete stock of home furnishings.

Erwin, who worked for Barrow Furniture for five years before starting his own store, has worked in retail stores in Snyder for over fifteen years. He opened his own business fifteen months ago.

The store boasts many famous brands of furniture which are known for high quality such as: Ballman - Cummings, Bassett, Hammary (tables), A - Brandt, Englander, Serta (mattresses) and Fort Smith Chairs.

Actress Busy With Double-Duty Acting

NEW YORK (AP) — Carolyn Coates has been having a busy spring with double acting duties.

Miss Coates, who took over a leading role in the off-Broadway production of "The Trojan Women," simultaneously studied lines for the main part in the Broadway drama "And Things That Go Bump in the Night," as standby for Eileen Heckart.

While on call for the uptown production, she continued as Queen Hecuba in the Euripedes classic.

The base of Egypt's Great Pyramid covers enough ground — 13 acres — to hold the cathedrals of Florence and Milan, St. Paul's of London and the Basilica of St. Peter's in Rome.

Solons Jump At Chance To Win Jumping Frog Jubilee

By HARRISON HUMPHRIES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Congress are jumping at the chance to win fame and fortune in this year's jumping frog jubilee in Calaveras County, Calif.

Some are even risking the reputation of home-state frogs.

The attraction is the 100th anniversary observance of Mark Twain's story, "The Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County," and a $1,000 top prize for the sponsor of the frog-breaking the world's record. The jubilee is set for May 20-23 at the Calaveras County Fair.

Members of Congress were invited — in fact, challenged — by Rep. Harold T. Johnson, D-Calif., to enter their jumpiest frogs in a special congressional division event. Johnson warned his colleagues they would be competing against Gold Back "the outstanding frog in my personal stable."

Rep. John A. Race, D-Wis., claiming to represent the frog capital of the world — Oshkosh, Wis. — accepted the challenge. He bragged that the smallest Wisconsin frog can outjump California's biggest.

Signing himself John (Frog) Race, he entered a frog he named Old 89 in honor of the current 89th Congress.

Not so boastful was Rep. James M. Hanley, D-N.Y., who said: "I can't help leaping at the opportunity to field an entry in your centennial frog race."

Submitting his entry, Rep. Howard W. Robison, R-N.Y., remarked: "This congressional session is making this Republican kinda jumpy anyway."

Sens. Thruston B. Morton, R-Ky., and George Murphy, R-Calif., gave what may be the first thoroughbred Kentucky bullfrog ever entered in the annual jubilee a workout Thursday on the Capitol steps.

Murphy was named the jumper Kentucky E., because, according to Morton's office, the Californian detects a resemblance to GOP Senate leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois.

None of the congressional entrants volunteered to be their own frog jockeys.

The rules say a jockey may not touch a frog after placing it on the canvas at the starting line. But he may "jump up and down, whoop, holler, blow on him, beat on the canvas and-or pray for him to make a move."

The frog is permitted three jumps, the distance from the starting point to the spot on which he lands on the third jump determining the score.

The Calaveras County recognized record is 17 feet 1.5 inches.

The King Ranch, the largest in the world, has never used barbed wire. Instead, a strong round wire is run through holes drilled through the posts.
