CHICAGO GUNMEN AID WOMEN CANDIDATES

Three Women and Two Men Seek Office of Governor, Political Writer Asserts

Ferguson, Moody And Davidson Are Real Contenders, According to Veteran of Many Campaigns

BY HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD

AUSTIN, June 11.—Politics is a fascinating game to an observer in the type tops. Politics is a business game to those who are out for the profits. Politics is a sacred game to those who believe in high ideals of government and frugality and integrity without being niggardly in the expenditure of the people's money in order that the progressive procession may be continued along legetimate lines. Politics is an ugly and sordid game when played by men who seek to array class against class, who employ batteries to build barrages, to side track or obscure the real issues and who have no compunction or remorse of conscience in employing sewer methods or sprinkling their rivals with the aline of the gutter.

Texas has a voting population of 1,350,000. That is there are 1,350,000 men and women who armed themselves with poll tax receipts and exemptions last year in order to be able to vote this year in the primary election in July and at the general election in November. Now the books are closed as far as the candidates for the office of governor are concerned. There are two men and three offering for the high honor of governor. It is useless to state that it would be more accurate to say there are three men and two women willing to sacrifice themselves on the altar for their fellow citizens.

Two Are Unknown.

Two of the women are unknowns, to all intents and purposes. They will be numbered at the tail end of the also rans. Mrs. Ferguson is a candidate for renomination and re-election. To be exact, Mr. Ferguson is the real candidate for in the great battle of 1924 it was thoroughly understood by the anti-klan voters of Texas when they switched to Mrs. Ferguson in the run-off with Felix Robertson that her husband, familiar with state affairs, and experienced in the office of governor, would be the real governor in the event of her elecion.

Hence it is that the husband of the governor should be classed with the masculine and not the feminine contenders for that office. He is making the campaign, his voice has been heard from many stumps, he will continue in the fight until the primary ballots have been counted. Pitted against him is Attorney General Dan Moody, and the third man in the race is Lynch Davidson who ran third in the list of anti-klan candidates for governor two years ago. In that acrimonious contest religious finanticism ran high and when religious finaticism enters a campaign of any kind, it is certain to draw to the rolls, primary or otherwise a tremendous number of the voting electorate.

This was what happened two years ago. It was klan or anti-klan. Economic issues were thrown to the wind, and the real needs of the state were overlooked or forgotten. It is a matter of history that more than 700,000 voters participated in the July primary of 1924 and a greater number

Rangers Continue Search, Seizure Bill Offensive

AUSTIN, June 11.—(AP)—Cattle thieving in Texas is accomplished through the medium of modern conveniences, Ranger Captain R. W. Aldrich said today, and the number stolen will compare with those taken by the old fashioned two-gun rustlers.

Now the cattle thieves drive a truck along a highway near a herd of cattle, goats, or sheep, throw a rope over an aanimal: hit in the head with an axe, and throw the carcass in the truck. Several animals are taken, he said, and a tarpaulin is thrown over them. Under the search and seizure law, officers are not allowed to look under the tarpaulin without subjecting themselves to prosecution although they suspect the truck. Incidentally, the truck within an hour can be 30 miles from the scene of the theft, and there are crooks, even among butchers, Captain Aldrich said.

The truck which he was driving was fragmented almost as much as was Brown's body.

A hole large enough to completely hide a large sized truck was blown in the ground over which the machine was passing.

Officials of the company for whom Brown worked were at a loss to explain the cause of the explosion.

"The house of the government of Texas, is in danger," Moody declared. "The integrity of our institutions is threatened."

Moody said that the present government was a "de facto administration.

Public money was paid to foreign corporations during the present administration, Moody charged "and these corporations were organized for the sole purpose of operating in Texas."

HECKLERS ROUT "PA" FERGUSON IN WACO SPEECH

Jim Threatens to Ask For Rangers If Disturbance Continues

VOICE DROWNED OUT

Moody's Friends Keep Him From Talking When He Attacks Dan

WACO, June 11.—(AP)—The first hour was all Ferguson's in his speech on the court house lawn here tonight. Then a Moody crowd asserted itself and for the remainder of his speech, Ferguson was continually heckled and interrupted from all sides.

"Pat, Neff had rangers," Ferguson shouted at the top of his voice, "and I'm going to go down and ask the governor for 30 rangers if I'm interrupted again." Bedlam broke loose, before he finished.

The disturbance started about the middle of the oration. Ferguson exhibited what he said was a copy of a letter from Robert C. Davis of the war department at Washington. It purported to show in two paragraphs the entire war record of Dan Moody, saying that he claimed exemptions on false grounds.

"Hurrah for the American Legion, someone shouted. The cry was taken up around the ring. "What does the American Legion say?"

"Let me answer that," Ferguson shouted. He attempted half a dozen times before he could make himself heart above the roar of the hecklers.

You Dirty Coward.

"You dirty slacker, you out there, you pick out the bravest one that wants to break up this meeting, you dirty coward, and I'll whip you in two minutes, he interposed.

"Let Jim speak," the circle gathered about the platform pleaded with the audience of 3,0000.

"No American Legion ever denied I'm not reading from a certified copy of Moody's war record," Ferguson edged in. They hooted again.

"How about your record, Jim?" a listener questioned.

"Oh, you shut up or come up here and I'll whip you. You're a coward, you're a thief. You're hired as an agent to come here and break up this meeting," Ferguson screamed.

"If there's any officer in this crowd you're afraid to stop it," Ferguson appealed. He called on Waco officers.

"You're a bunch of ku kluxers," he called the officers. "If you had a deputy with a backbone you'd stop this bunch,"

The governor's husband found it necessary to retrace his speech on several occasions in order to pick up the thread of his discussion.

When the crowd quieted down momentarily he attacked Dan Moody's record and a prohibitionist.

May Make Mistakes

"Dan as a prohibitionist, should have gone to Atticus Webb or Dr. Brooks out here at Baylor university." Instead he said that Moody had gone to Colquitt and Amon G. Carter as his political god-fathers.

"Just wait long enough. If you ain't got sense enough to get a show of your own, you ought not to come up here and admit it. This is my show." Ferguson declared to a disturber.

Ferguson went into the pardon record of the governor.

"She may possibly have made a few mistakes in granting 800 or 900 pardons," he admitted, "but she is a Christian governor and will continue to grant them as long as she is in office."

He quoted figures on suspended sentences given by juries in McLennan and other counties and contended that a suspended sentence is the same thing as a conditional pardon, defending the actions of the governor on this ground.

Amarillo Getting Set For Some Real Fun As Convention Date Nears

Convention magic is being made in Amarillo these days and Wichita Falls intent on brewing the 1927 pot of the same portion Amarillo is now preparing, is faced next week with the ecessity of some strenuous action.

This developed Friday when, at the end of another day of solicitation in behalf of the special train to be run from here to the West Texas chamber of commerce convention June 21, 22, and 23, it was found that only 70 reservations had been assured. One hundred and twenty-five must be obtained to operate the train that will carry dining car and baggage cars equipped with shower baths will be included in the train that will serve as a home for the 125 local men during their two-day absence from the city.

Officials of the chamber of commerce and others interested in the movement are still unshaken in their belief that Wichita Falls, eventually will turn up in Amarillo with one of the largest and most vociferous delegations of any. They hold to this belief despite discouraging results of the first two weeks campaigning. A marked air of indifference regarding the trip has held down ticket sales thus far, it is declared, and to overcome this and secure the needed number of reservations for the train will require some active work the early part of the coming week. This is to be done, however.

In the meantime, word from the convention city brings assurance that the forthcoming convention of the West Texas chamber of commerce is destined to be a blowout of the kind you read about. Entertainment features calculated to make level heads revolve are being perfected by the entertainment committees of the Panhandle metropolis. Just what these will be is being concealed, more or less, but not enough has leaked out and spread this far south to make it plain Amarillo will be a royal host.

In addition to entertainment here, the local train committee is making plans for something unusual even before the Wichita Falls delegation reaches its destination. These plans, too, are being zealously guarded; but those who have been on similar junkets before know that they have always provided a maximum of fun.

The special train will leave here at midnight Monday, June 21, and arrive in Amarillo early the next morning. It will remain over there Tuesday and Wednesday for the last two days of the convention and will start on the return trip sometime Wednesday night, arriving back in Wichita Falls in time for breakfast Thursday morning.

HOUSE PROBES INTIMIDATION OF OFFICIALS

Gangsters Threaten Judges With Death If Precinct Goes "Wrong"

SPREAD TERROR

Voting Irregularities to Be Investigated by U. S. Bureau

WASHINGTON, —une 11.—(AP) —In the midst of the senate inquiry into primary elections, the department of justice was asked today to investigate the reported activity of gangsters and "well known gunmen" in behalf of a woman candidate in the recent republican primary in Chicago.

Representative Britten, republican, incumbent from the ninth Illinois district, and successful candidate for renomination, introduced a resolution requesting the department to ascertain "the extent to which constitutional rights of citizens were interferred with."

He prefaced the resolution with a declaration that armed gangsters and gunmen entered "various polling places in Chicago and terrorized not only the officials but also interferred with the rights of citizens," and that precinct committee men "under threat of murder unlawfully changed ballots to favor Bertha Baur (his opponent).

"I am hopeful that an investigation by the department will not only bring the gunmen into jail but that it also will show the person or persons back of these armed gangsters who spread their reign of terror on election day."

Report Gangsters

Britten asserted that reports of the activities of gangsters had been made to Chicago city election commissioners and to County Judge Jarecki.

Justice department officials declined to comment upon the resolution pending its formal reference to them but pointed out that except in the event of a breakdown of state and municipal enforcement agencies the federal government has no control over primary contests.

The resolution charged that the gunmen publicly threatened precinct committee men with a "ride to the cemetery" if their precincts were not carried for Bertha Baur.

In view of this and the report that the gunmen received $1,000 each for their work, Mr. Britten said in a statement that he was hopeful the department would start an inquiry at once.

"I shall immediately communicate," he said, "with the attorney general for the appointment of a special investigator to sit in with those now investigating the Chicago situation. The north side of Chicago needs a thorough cleaning out and the federal authorities should assist in every way possible.

In a final burst of anger over Audery's references to his own poverty, Parrish leaves the house, and as today's chapter opens, has been gone five days. Audrey does not send for him, but gives a bridge party to a bevy of girls. At the end of the last chapter, Audrey, who has just received a telegram, comes to the pavilion on the lawn where the girls are playing cards. Her eyes are swollen with weeping.

SECOND LOVE

MALCOLM DUANE

COPYRIGHT 1926 BY EUGENE MACLEAN

John Parrish and Audrey, his rich young wife, quarrel over her frequent references to the fact that it is she who maintains the household and pays his salary. They take Marcie Allen into their home, when Marcie, young, beautiful and extremely up-to-date, is ordered out of her own home by her old-fashioned father. Marcie blames Parrish and sympathizes with him. He leaves home, and cables Audrey's father, who is in London, that he is resigning as manager of his wife and father-in-law's properties. Audrey's father wires Audrey to go to Bitter Springs, a mountain resort, and await him there—he is sailing, at once. Marcie Allen is left by Audrey in charge of the house. Marcie explores her friends intimate belongings, reads her letters, and as the last chapter ends, goes to the telephone and calls up Parrish's office.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVI.

Parrish's voice, as usual, barked a brusque reply.

Marcie's voice was very sweet as she greeted him.

"What?—No, Audrey is well—but, John, I'm all alone at home—What?—Audrey's gone—away from town. No, I won't—I promised not to tell—I don't know when she'll be back—Yes, she got a cable from Mr. Morton What?—He's on his way home now—All right, I'll wait for you."

She hung up the receiver, and ran upstairs. With hurried skill she changed her dress, inspected her perfect skin for possible blemishes, arranged her hair, and was waiting on the steps when Parrish jumped out of his small, battered car.

"Where has Audrey gone? When did she go? Why didn't she say something to me?" he demanded, as he strode up the walk.

"Goodness—you sound like a catechism," she laughed. "Come on, and sit down here beside me."

She made room for him on the step. He was twisting his soft hat into a roll as he sat down, half facing her.

"Tell me what's up, Marcie," he begged.

"Well," she began, her finger to her lip, "let's see. I mustn't tell you anything that Audrey told me not to. But she got a cablegram from Mr. Morton yesterday—some girls were in to play bridge."

"They were, were they?" he interrupted with bitterness. "So she has a bridge party when the family's breaking up!"

"Yes," she said. "Then she sent a wireless to him, because he was on the Leviathan by that time, bound for New York. Late last night she got an answer and he told her to go away from Wichita Falls and meet him at—"

She tapped him on the cheek with the tips of her fingers.

"I won't tell," she said, with mischief in her smile. "But she started there this morning."

"Is it far from here?" he asked.

"She had to go by train" Marcie said. "And that's all I'll tell you—except that I'm a housekeeper now. Would you like some lunch, Mr. Parrish?"

"Suppose I've got to eat," he assented.

He stooped over, his elbows on his knees and stared at the stone flagging of the walk. Marcie moved nearer to him.

"Poor boy," she said, soothingly. "He's troubled, isn't he?"

He lifted one shoulder in a brief shrug. "Of course, I'm troubled.

Marcie watched him as he went out the gate, smiling after him as his little car chugged away.

Reckon I'm on my way to the divorce court. Oh, well."

He stood up, and clapped his hat on his head. "When do we eat?" he said.

"Pretty soon now," said the girl. "I told the maid to lay two places, John—" she arose and stood close beside him—"I hoped you would come and eat with me."

"Thanks," he said, briefly, "Glad somebody enjoys my company."

Marcie took Audrey's accustomed seat at table, and Parrish sat in his own chair. The meal proceeded, in silence so far as Parrish was concerned, but with much merry chatter from Marcie.

"It's so nice to do something for someone you like," she said, as they left the dining room.

"Have you been doing something for somebody?" He was standing in the front entrance, looking out into the street.

"Why, you horrid creature!" she cried, in mock indignation. "Didn't I just give you your luncheon?"

"Cook got that," he said. "Maid served it."

"But I ordered it for you," said she. "It—" she sighed humbly—"it was all I knew how to do."

Parrish turned and surveyed her. "You're a good kid," he told her.

She looked up into his face, and wrapped one arm around his. "Am I, John, dear?"

He hesitated, still looking at her, and then drew away.

"Going down to the office now," he announced, stepping out on the porch. "Got a lot to clean up before I quit my job."

"Are you really going to leave, John?" she asked, following after him.

He laughed, shortly and without mirth. "I'm going to hunt another place. You see how Audrey regards me—as a sort of footman. I'm tired of it, and I won't stand it. Of course I'm going to leave."

She was standing close beside him, and her hand stole into his. "I'm so sorry, John, dear," she breathed.

She watched him as he went out the gate, and gave him a friendly wave as his little car chugged away. Then she returned to the house, and curling up on her own bed, napped peacefully until late. When she came down stairs, she was dressed for the evening.

"Tell the cook not to prepare dinner," she directed the housemaid. "I think I'll be eating down town."

She had brought a cape with her, and this she draped over a chair in the hallway. Leaving the front door open, she tripped out to the lawn, and settled herself on the wicker chaise longue that Audrey often used.

With contentment in her wide, dark eyes, she rested on one elbow, her lips curving now and then into a smile at her meditations.

The telephone bell rang. She sprang to her feet and ran into the house.

"Hello, John," she said to the voice that spoke through the receiver. "I was hoping you'd call up. Are you going to ask me to dine?" She gave an exclamation of triumph. "I thought you would, and I told the cook here not to get dinner. What?—You won't come here?—All right. I suppose that's better. I'll meet you in twenty minutes."

She turned to the house 'phone, and called the chauffeur.

Audrey's car pulled up to the curb five minutes later, and she ordered the driver to take her down town.

"Just drop me at the corner of Eighth and Scott," she directed. "Then you can come on home—you needn't wait."

Parrish was waiting for her at the restaurant. He had on a neat blue suit, obviously new.

"You look like an ad in the newspaper," she admired. "Where did old sweetums get the spuzzy new suit?"

"Bought it ready-made," he said, as they followed the waiter to their table. "All my clothes are at the house, and I had only that old office suit at the hotel."

"We'll fix that," she said. "You come tomorrow and get all your grand duds."

"Huh!" he snorted, as he sat down and unfolded his napkin. "Grand duds nothing. I've got one evening suit, one golf suit, one morning suit and my old winter clothes, besides what I've been wearing. It's great to be the poverty-stricken husband of a rich wife."

"But Audrey would buy you anything you wanted," she said, watching the effect of her speech out of the corner of her eyes.

"Damn it," said he. "Oh—excuse me." His face clouded and angry. "I didn't mean to swear."

"Go ahead, honey boy—I swear, lots."

"I mean, I can't have a woman buying my clothes. What I've got is good enough for me, and for my friends. If they're not good enough for her friends—Oh, well, let's order."

He turned to the menu card, and gave the waiter directions for their dinner. As he laid down the card, he saw that she was smiling.

"What's wrong?" he asked.

"Nothing—I was admiring that meal you ordered. You choose a meal like an epicure."

"Oh—I got that from Mr. Morton." He laughed a little, as he went on. "Audrey's father told me that the first duty of a gentleman is to be able to order a proper dinner for ladies, and the second duty is to be able to pay for it."

"He's an old dear, isn't he?"

Parrish nodded. "Good scout—smart—made all his money himself—looks like a man of thirty, except for a bit of grey in his hair."

He stopped, as his thoughts reverted to other things. "Marcie, I can't come there to the house any more, while you're there alone. I can't do it even to get my clothes."

"Why not?" she asked, innocently.

He eyed her. "You know why not, well enough. For one thing, it would look like thunder, if anybody saw me."

"All right—I'll bring the clothes down to you. Where are you living?"

"That's worse yet. I tell you—I'll send the office boy over in the morning. You show him where they are, and he'll pack them in my suit case. Will you see that he gets the whole lot?"

She smoothed his hand where it lay on the cloth. "Of course, dear boy," she said.

After they had eaten, he asked her, hesitatingly, whether she would ride in his old, battered car.

"I'd love to," she said.

He drove out Tenth, and as they reached the quiet section, she rested her head upon his shoulder.

Grand Jury Probes Austin Man's Death

AUSTIN, June 11.— (AP) —The Travis county grand jury has under investigation the sudden death of John Didieu, 42, here May 27, following the report by Dr. E. H. Golas, head of the food and drug division of the state health department on an examination of viscera. The report, kept secret, will be turned over to J. D. Moore, district attorney, who said that the matter had been placed before the grand jury.

Didieu was a world war veteran and was apparently in good health when he died suddenly and neighbors instigated an autopsy which was ordered by Justice of the Peace Frank Tannehill.

American Kills Self in Mexico, Consul Telegraphs

NOGALES, Ariz., June 11.—(AP) Richard Dawson, American, reported last night to have been murdered at Los Mochis, Mex., did not meet his death at the hands of others, but committed suicide, H. F. Jones, United States consular agent at Los Mochis, told the Nogales Herald upon his arrival here today. Jones, who is vice president of the United Sugar company at Los Mochis, said Dawson, destitute and despondent, ended his own life with a pistol shot on the outskirts of the Mexican city.

"Young Dawson," said Jones, "arrived at Los Mochis ten days ago looking for work. As we are closing our factory my assistant advised him to leave. Saturday Dawson was missing from his hotel and Monday morning his body was found on the banks of an old canal on the outskirts of the city. There was a bullet wound, blackened by powder, in his temple. He was rushed to the United Sugar company's hospital where he died.

"In Dawson's pockets were found several cartridges of the same calibre as the bullet fired into his head. This led us to believe that he had taken his own life."

$40,000,000 Is Too Much, Vet Thinks

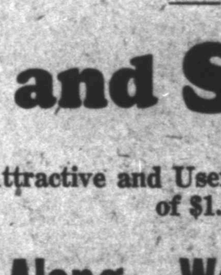

AUSTIN, June 11.—(AP)—J. A. Whittenburg, of Plemons, Panhandle rancher, on whose ranch some of the biggest oil wells in the country are flowing, was here today and said he didn't know what to do with so much money. He is reputed to be worth about $40,000,000.

Fifty-three years ago Whittenburg drove a rumuda of cow horses through Austin, and he said, "it sure has changed some." He fought Indians and weathered all the hardships of frontier life. He said he wanted to go back to Plemons and live and die, and be buried beside his wife who died in 1901.

Goes to Jail, But Studies As Well

FORT WORTH, June 11.—(AP) Some students have gone to jail to keep away from their studies, but Bailey Diffie, Texas Christian university, took his studies to jail with him Friday after a run-in with a copper over the necessity for the boulevard stop system of traffic control.

Diffie was assessed $14.95 for failing to observe a boulevard sign Wednesday and was ordered incarcerated when he failed to pay off. Then he explained that he hadn't time to go to jail because he had to study for Saturday's recitation.

Warrant Officer Francis solved the difficulty by bringing him his books to study while he is the city's guest.

AUSTIN, June 11.—(AP)—Sixty-five applicants, 15 teachers and 50 school boys and girls were given personal interviews today by the Texas sub-committee of the Sesqui-Centennial exposition in connection with the American Youth award and the American Teacher award here today. One teacher, one girl and one boy are to be given a free trip to the exposition at Philadelphia.

AMARILLO FIELD PRESENTS MANY PROBLEMS; BELL

Uniform Requirements Over Panhandle are Impracticable

AUSTIN, June 11.—(AP)—The Texas Panhandle Oil field, possibly the largest in the world in both area and production, presents unusual problems and no general rule will apply, Judge E. H. Bell, chief supervisor of the oil and gas division of the Texas railroad commission said today. Individual attention will have to be given the oil and gas wells to save for the nation these vast resources, he said.

Judge Bell said upon his return to the capital from an inspection of the field and a hearing at Amarillo that a "uniform requirement to cement the casing in the wells, seems impracticable."

The question considered was whether a specific rule should be made directing the cementing of the casing below all gas sands before drilling into and producing the oil from the oil sand below.

"I do not feel justified," Judge Bell said, "in holding that the casing should be set in cement immediately above the oil sand in every instance, since conditions in different parts of the field were so far from being uniform. In some instances the nearest gas sand is 400 feet or more above the oil sand, but in many others the distance does not exceed five, ten and 50 feet.

Judge Bell said his department is making a close study of operations in connection with a committee of the oil companies having in view the best possible solution of this question. He explained that no rules of the railroad commission have been changed and that the commission is insisting that every reasonable means be employed for conservation of Panhandle gas in keeping with the requirements of the conservation statutes.

Perkins, Chilson

Perkins, Cullum and Stump's No. 1 Chilson located 750 feet east and 150 feet north of the southwest corner of block 6, league 4 of the Denton county school lands topped a sand showing oil at 1801 and drilled in one foot. Casing will be set to test. The test, a semi-wildcat will make a nice extension to production if it pays off.

Shasta, Meade

The Shasta-Grebin interests No. 5-A Meade located to the north of No. 4-A in block 39 of the Meade pasture subdivision is being swabbed from 18 feet of sand topped at 1424 feet. The well is standing with 200 feet of fluid in the hole.

Camp, Porter

The Camp Oil & Gas company missed the 1000 foot sand and is drilling at 1129 feet in its No. 1 Porter test in the Poitevent survey, abstract 348, Archer county. The test is to the south and east of the Oldham pool.

Mid-Kansas, Andrews

The Mid Kansas Oil & Gas company has made location for a test and has a derrick on the ground for its No. 1 Andrews to be located 1320 feet south and 200 feet west of the northeast corner of block 137, of the Harris club ranch subdivision.

Marland, Thomas

The Marland Oil company missed the 1100 foot sand in its No. 2 Thomas test to the east of No. 1 in block 5 of the Thomas survey to the west of Archer City. The test is drilling at 1300 feet and will today be looking for the deeper pay. No. 1 is swabbing 60 barrels a day from the sand at 1157-66 feet.

Gas Fire Defies Man

AMARILLO, June 11.—(AP)—Shooting a forty-foot flame into the air for eight days, a hundred-million cubic foot gas well of the Gibson Oil corporation in south Hutchinson county, continues to defy efforts of workmen to extinguish the blaze, according to reports from the field.

The gas was ignited by lightning. Tex Thornton, oil and gas well "shooter" is in the field preparing to "shoot" the fire out with explosives.

Plan War on Gas Tax

DALLAS, June 11.—(AP)—City officials have completed plans for the fight to be made by Dallas before the next legislature for withdrawal of the state tax on gasoline used by municipalities.

In addition to asking for removal of tax on municipally used gas and oils, M. M. Murray, city purchasing agent, leader of the campaign, will ask the state to refund all such taxes paid since the law has been in force.

Dallas pays $3,000 upwards yearly for taxes on gases and lubricants. Other cities whose similar taxes vary below that figure, have pledged support of the Dallas campaign.

DEATH STOPS SUIT

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—The hearing in the government's suit to have patents under which Standard Oil and other companies "crack" crude oil to extract gasoline declared invalid was interrupted today by word brought to Special Master Martindale that Walter Taylor, representing the Standard Oil company of New Jersey at the hearing, had died suddenly.

Litchfield, Krupka

C. E. Litchfield has abandoned his No. 1 Krupka wildcat in the west part of the J. Scott survey as a dry hole at 1350 feet. The test had a dry sand from 1195-1203 and a sand with a slight oil show from 1223-32 feet. The test is of especial interest insofar as it is the first well to be drilled in that vicinity that has had either a sand or a show of oil.

The rotary test of Guthrie and associates to the south of the Baytex production in northwest Jack county is slopping over from sand drilled seven feet and topped at 781 feet. The test is being swabbed.

OIL RIGHTS TO BE SOLD SOON ON SCHOOL LAND

Property In Crane, Upton, Ector And Reagan To Be Sold

AUSTIN, June 11.—(AP)— Sale of oil and gas rights on Texas university lands in Crane, Upton, Ector, Andrews, Reagan and other counties soon will be advised, J. D. Walker, clerk of the state land office said today. Preparations for sale of these rights were begun Wednesday, following refusal of the supreme court to grant George W. Thiehen of Houston leave to file a petition for mandamus to compel, J. T. Robinson, land commissioner, to sell the rights for ten cents an acre and the customary one-eighth royalty.

Thiehen contended the more recent law, requiring the land commissioner to sell such rights to the highest bidder after advertising is unconstitutional because it does not set the specific time for the sale.

Refinery Dope Wrong

Contrary to reports as given in Chicago and Tulsa Thursday that the Miller Petroleum company's refinery at Wichita Falls was shut down due to a shortage of crude the company's office advised The Record News Friday that not only was the refinery at present running at full capacity of 2,000 barrels a day but that large orders for export shipment had been contracted that would in themselves demand a complete summer schedule.

BROOKHART SMASHES DOWN ALL BARRIERS

IOWA is a stalwart republican state. Iowa is the banner corn state. Iowa is one of the richest of agriculture states. Iowa has a very large farming population. In days gone by Iowa in value of farm product, was at the top or near the top.

Gilbert Haugen is an Iowa congressman and the author of the famous Haugen Farm Relief bill, which was sidetracked by a republican house and disfigured to make way for another farm relief bill by a republican senate.

Well, the republicans of Iowa have spoken. Their decision must have sent the cold chills down the back of President Coolidge and turned into icebergs the old guard senate leaders of the republican party. Iowa republicans have named Colonel Smith William Brookhart as their nominee for United States senator.

Iowa republicans have thrown into the ash can A. B. Cummins, thrice their governor and for 22 years their senator. They have discarded a senator who was the friend of the president, a supporter of the policies of the Coolidge administration and a man high in the councils of the republican party.

They have nominated a man who in the campaign of 1924 denounced Charles G. Dawes as a political unfit and gave his support to the late Robert M. LaFollette instead of Calvin Coolidge, the regular nominee of the republican party.

They have nominated a man who while running as a republican nominee, branded the policies of President Coolidge and Vice President Dawes as the policies of Wall street and the big business interest of the United States.

Brookhart's victory is sweeping. There were four candidates or contenders for the senatorial nomination, including the veteran Cummins, and Brookhart received almost as many votes as were cast for all three of his rivals.

It is necessary for a candidate in Iowa to receive 35 per cent of the total vote cast to be given the nomination. Brookhart received 45 per cent of all the votes cast, and when all the returns are in the percentage may go higher. He is a farmer and a lawyer. He is the best rifle shot in America.

He is thoroughly western and thoroughly untamed. He does not care a snap of his finger for the president of his party or the eastern leaders of his party.

He demands that the farmers shall be given the same relief legislation that tariff laws give to the manufacturers and the skilled wage workers of the country. He does not know how to go about it, but he demands it just the same, and almost a majority of the republicans of Iowa who participated in the primary, gave Brookhart a vote of confidence and re-echoed his demands that the farmer shall be placed on the same footing with the manufacturers or else the protective tariff system must go.

Brookhart has had a remarkable political career. He ran against Cummins first for a senatorship and lost. Then Senator W. S. Kenyon was given a federal judgeship and Brookhart became a candidate to fill the vacancy. He won. He served two years.

He became a candidate for re-election. He won the primary nomination. There was a bolt of republican regulars all along the line. Colonel Hanford MacNider led the bolt. MacNider spoke for the former service men of Iowa.

Democrats named as their candidate Dan Steck, a young lawyer who had been a soldier. It wasn't a bolt on the part of the regulars as much as it was a revolutionary protest on their part against Brookhart.

At the general election, Brookhart and Steck ran neck and neck, but Brookhart was awarded the certificate of election. Steck contested. It was a bitter as well as an exciting contest.

When the show-down came, the republican senators from the states of Vermont and Massachusetts voted to seat Steck. Others of the old guarders followed their lead.

Brookhart was thrown out. Steck was given the seat. Brookhart returned to Iowa and became a candidate for the seat of A. B. Cummins, thrice governor, thrice senator and in two national conventions, the choice of Iowa for the presidential nomination.

It is ancient history now. Brookhart, the man who denounced Coolidge and Dawes while running on the same ticket with them, the man who boldly declared that the late Robert M. LaFollette was a better republican than Coolidge or Dawes ever dared to be, is the senatorial standard bearer of the republicans of Iowa in this campaign and carries at his belt the scalps of all his political enemies.

If Brookhart is a republican, then Coolidge is not. If Brookhart a republican, Dawes is not. In his campaign Brookhart had the backing of the railway organizations and the labor unions of his state.

He had the backing of the farm organizations of his state. Now he is the cock-of-the-walk in the Iowa republican world, but there is no telling what may happen next November.

This has been a most disastrous year for Coolidge senators. First McKinley of Illinois was tossed aside. Then Pepper of Pennsylvania kicked into political obscurity.

Now Iowa has dragged Cummins, the friend of the president through a slaughter house to a bloody political grave and acclaimed Brookhart, the champion of LaFollette, the political idol and standard bearer of the growers of corn in the Hawkeye state.

And what of Haugen, Gilbert Haugen, whose farm relief bill was emasculated by a republican house. Why Haugen was renominated almost by acclamation by the repuubluican corn growers of his district.

Unless the signs in the political heavens are misleading, political hell has broken loose in the republican camp from Sandy Hook to the Golden Gate and the results of the coming November election may be staggering to the republican stand-pat mind.

NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER'S WARNING

NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER is president of Columbia university and prominent in the state of New York. Just before sailing for Europe, this noted educator declared the loquor question cannot be avoided in the coming elections and the evasion of this issue would spell state and national defeat for the republican party.

He asserted that the party which will win the next state and national election is the one that can offer a solution for the prohibition problem. President Butler shot his words straight from the shoulder or rather straight from the mouth. He said he favored repeal of the Volstead act, repeal of the 18th amendment and the adoption of the Quebec system for New York.

Incidentally he referred to the anti-saloon league as a money collecting agency to pay a few good salaries, saying, "the smartest thing its bosses ever did was blackjack both the republicans and the democrats."

Many republican leaders in the state of New York are grooming President Butler for the republican nomination for governor. He unbosomed himself before sailing, and this is what he said for the benefit of the New York press and the public,

"There is no use of running candidates for state office in New York this year if the republican party puts a dry plank in its platform. If we have any idea of taking the issue away from Governor Smith, we must present a solution. The prohibitionist is the only real friend of the liquor traffic. I am personally the dryest of the whole lot, but I cannot and will not tolerate a condition such as prohibition has imposed."

But the republicans of New York while President Butler is absent in Europe. If they wish to draft him, they must draft him on a platform for the repeal of the Volstead act and the 18th amendment. And the substitution of the Quebec system in New York. They must nominate as their standard bearer a man who says in advance that if the dry republicans control the democrats will sweep the state and that the result this year may drive the republicans from power in 1928.

If it is possible to win his consent the New York democrats are going to draft Alfred E. Smith for governor again this year. They are going to name for the senatorship a man of the Smith type. They are going to do their best to capture the legislature, which has been republican for years, and to prevent the return of James W. Wadsworth to the United States senate.

It is safe to predict that President Butler will not be the nominee of the New York state, which is the republicans stronghold, the drys are in control. They are opposed to President Butler as a Moses and they threaten to run a dry for senator in order to take down the scalp of Wadsworth, which is for modification and does not care who knows it.

THE WILL OF THE GODS

BY S. TEN EYCK BOURKE

Of course, he was plundered by Chiang Hoy of his rightful due, he and the rest of the Chinese working gang. Under the caisson contractor, Chiang Hoy allotted the work and handled the money which the government paycar brought regular and regular to Gatun Dam. But for every hard American coin collected Chiang Hoy paid the helpless gang in the "tin" money of the Panama Republic, thereby clearing a hundred per cent profit. This robbery it was that started a smouldering wrath in Hop Sing's breast. But this was not the only thing that threatened his future.

There was Chiang Hoy's conspiracy against the Canal. The wily old Chinaman was playing a deep game, and into the game Hop Sing saw himself drawn against his will, at the peril of his job, his life's ambition, and his life itself. And the plot thickened with sickening rapidity.

From the beginning the mysterious meetings at Chiang Hoy's house filled No secret was made that his uncle Hop Sing with suspicion and rage. was plotting evil to the big ditch. Why, Hop Sing did not know, but he did know that the air about the "Thirty-sixth Cafe" hummed with treachery.

Hop Sing's daily work had to do with the big steel caissons that formed the foundations of Gatun Dam, a huge granite wall designed to hold back a great inland sea. Before the wall was built upon them the big drums were filled with water and cemnted—so to remain until the last sun of the world fell upon the last man. For the work was good.

It was with these caissons that Chiang Hoy's conspiracy concerned itself—particularly as regards the part played by Chiang's associates.

The truth came out when Hop Sing was gathered with the others in his uncle's house one sultry night, just at the beginning of the rainy season. From outside came the chirp of the cicadas, the drip-drip of water against the great wall, and all the mysterious night-sounds of the drenched earth; from one side came the tinkle of guitars in the Italian quarter; from the other the melancholy chant of the Jamaican negroes—for the Chinese headquarters lay between the two races.

On Chiang Hoy's tables were refreshments for the guests, but Chiang Hoy himself lounged in his bunk, smoking his long pipe. Hop Sing sat in moody thought, his vagrant attention divided between the head man and a most elaborate and ornate lacquered coffin, splashed with beautiful dragons in blue, red and yellow, that held the post of honor at the head of Chiang Hoy's bunk.

Such a coffin Hop Sing had in his mind's eye before Chiang Hoy's treachery came to spoil his dream. With a store of American dollars and such a coffin, according to the best traditions of the Celestian Kingdom, he would be prepared for the eventualities of this life, and after. His hopes were already shady-looking, because of his uncle's cupidity and his own lack of progress into the rich old Chinaman's affection. Now his blood froze and boiled alternately as he listened to the plans of Chiang Hoy and his dupes, plotting against the Canal that gave them their living.

"It's not a question of what may happen after," Hoy orated, with a contemptuous wave of his pipe at a timid questioner, for the old head man was taking a high hand. "It is merely how and when—for I am head man here, and I will see that you come to no punishment. It is my will that the dam should be destroyed, now that the floods are come and the lake right to let down upon the head of the American Commissioner and his Canal. With you, Wang Loo, I will discuss the method, and how to lay the blame upon the Italians and the Jamaican black men, our neighbors, who cheated our countrymen out of this work. It may yet be, before the sun thrice shines, that the waters will fill the ditch. And," he muttered to himself, "the stiff-necked Americans may yet be glad to call upon the despised coolies of our Southern Provinces for help."

For a moment the old Chinaman's face was distorted with passion for, not many months before, he had been promised a profitable contract to import thousands of his countrymen solely to work as laborers on the Canal. Subsequently, however, the government concluded not to import Chinese labor at all. Now, if he could set back the work of excavating the big ditch, he was confident that the government would be only too anxious to employ all the labor it could get, and he would secure the contract after all. And, for that, he was willing to dare much. Besides, he was rich, no matter what happened.

Long after the plotters had dispersed, Hop Sing lay in his hard board bunk, thinking and smoking—for the latter accomplishment, also, Chiang Hoy had taught him; not only tobacco but the Black Smoke as well. "It keeps off the Icy Hand and the fever," his uncle said, when Hop Sing had complained of the stupor of death that followed its use. "Formerly, our people resorted to suicide because of the shaking sickness; likewise, many officers fled who came to complete the canal or die. Smoke, therefore, my nephew, son of the pig, my brother."

Hop Sing did smoke, and the smoke brought dreams, and the dreams brought resolution. In the morning, after a night spent struggling with the blue and gold dragons, he had fully determined to expose the plot to the American engineer of the section. But Chiang Hoy watched him like a shadow, and Hop Sing saw he was suspected. Then his last hopes of succeeding to his uncle's fortune vanished as he had all along—that, whether into thin air, Also he plainly saw—the plot succeeded or not, his job was doomed. For he had learned that the Americans had quick eyes and heavy hands.

"God's will," Hop Sing said. "Who shall dare question the gods?"

Matters stood quiescent for three days. On the night of the third day an Administration dance took place at the Tivoli, and the Canal Zone attended from Colon to Panama, including the officials at Gatun Dam, and such of the Zone policemen as possessed evening clothes. It was the were watching for, and they prepared opportunity that the Oriental plotters their alibi for the coming catastrophe.

At ten o'clock, on the night of the dance, someone fired a fusillade of shots into the Italian quarters, and promptly a rabid mob of Neapolitans, Venetians and Romans poured forth on the warpath. At ten-fifteen, shot rattled into the Jamaican quarters, and all the negroes in the settlement who were not bed-ridden took the back window, with them and fled toward the Italian quarters for protection. Midway between the two quarters the war party and the fugitives met.

Meanwhile, the Chinese quarters were black as Erebus and wrapped in the stillness of death. No eye, in the night, saw the little string of blue-bloused figures round the battle ground, where a tangled mass of Italians and negroes earnestly strove to unravel the mystery of the shooting. Carefully and cautiously the night prowlers approached the caissons which upheld that part of the big stone dam already completed.

Questions From the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

Should She Wish for a Girl Baby If Life Is Harder For Women Than Men?—Shall She Marry the Practical Joker or the Serious-Minded Young Man?—Shall He Drop School to Be His Own Boss?

Dear Dorothy Dix—My husband says that is is wicked for a baby girl baby girl because the lot of the average woman is far harder than that of the verage man. And he says that the majority of girls would prefer to be men if they had their choice. I do not agree with him. What do you think?

PROUD TO BE A WOMAN.

Answer:

Your husband is wrong when he says that it is wicked to wish for a baby girl, because God created woman just as much as he did man, and women are just as much a necessity in the world as men are. On the contrary, it is a fine and noble thing to wish for a baby girl, because girls generally get but a cold welcome when they come into this vale of tears. So it is good for one to get the glad hand upon her arrival, and know that she is preferred to the august male of the species.

From the parental standpoint, the girl baby is, as a general thing, a better bet than the boy. Formerly fathers and mothers wanted sons instead of daughters, because the sons were an asset and the daughters a liability. The sons could support themselves, but the daughters had to be supported. But modern conditions have wiped out even that objection to the girl baby.

Girls become wage-earners now just as boys do, and they bring home far more of their money than the boys do. A boy pays his board at home. The girl turns over her whole pay envelope to mother. It is the girls who furnish up the home, and buy new rugs and carpets and furniture. Not the boys.

Furthermore, it is the daughters that parents can depend upon taking care of them when they are old. It is to the daughter's home that father and mother go when age comes upon them. It is nearly always his wife's parents that some man is supporting, while his sister's husband supports his.

So, just considering the welfare of the child itself, it is another matter, and your husband is quite right in saying that life is far harder for the average woman than it is for the average man.

It begins with the initial fact that woman must go through the agony of bearing the race, while man goes scot-free, and it runs the gamut to the smallest task that a woman does, which is made the harder simply by being a woman.

The woman in business must work harder than a man and show more efficiency if she gets as much pay as he would for the same job. And she must work with one hand and protect her good name with the other.

The wife works as hard in the home as the husband does outside of the home. He draws a salary for his labor. She gets nothing but what he doles out to her. We shut our doors in the face of the girl who goes wrong, but we invite her man partner in, sin to dinner.

A man can pick out any woman he chooses and try to win her for a wife. No matter how much a woman loves a man, she has to keep silent. She has a man, she has to keep silent. She has what she wants.

A man can get up and go where he wants to go, live any way that suits him, and no questions are asked. A woman has to carry her credentials in her hand and do the conventional thing, or else Mrs. Grundy tears her hair out by the roots.

A man can have a few suits of clothes and be well dressed anywhere. A woman has to spend most of her time and energy on her wardrobe, or else look like a frump.

It is these and a thousand other things that makes this a man's world, and it is no wonder that most girls would choose to be boys if they had any say-so on the subject. And that is why so many of them try to make imitation men of themselves by wearing pants.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

GETTING NOWHERE

The squirrel inside a whirlin' wheel,
With bushy tail and flyin' heel,
Perhaps may mighty joyous feel,
But he ain't gettin' nowhere.
And lots of folks are just as wise:
They make good money; lots of guys—
But they don't seem to realize
That they ain't gettin' nowhere.

The squirrel may think it's lots of fun,
Inside a wheel to romp and run,
And yet you always notice, son,
That he ain't gettin' nowhere.
And lots of fellows make good pay,
And live a life that's fine and gay,
And never put a cent away—
And they ain't gettin' nowhere.

Some fellows call the job they know
A treadmill that they have to go;
That's true—for they have made it so.
For they ain't gettin' nowhere.
Some other fellows don't deny
They like their job, I'll tell you why:
Each day they're layin' something by,
And not just gettin' nowhere.
(Tomorrow: Going to Grandma's.)

Old Maids and Clover.

The intricate and important interrelationship of plants and animals with each other is referred to by biologists as a symbiosis or "living-together." The classic example is that cited by Darwin, of the relation between old maids and clover. The abundance of clover in a region is dependent on the number of bees however kept in check by the inroads of field mice upon the nests of wild bees. The number of mice is however kept in check by the number of cats in the neighborhood, and, as a wit has added to Darwin's observations, the number of cats is dependent on the number of old maids in the countryside. The more old maids the more clover.

Now what do you know about that?

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE

GEMINI

Today's planetary aspects are very favorable until about 2 p. m., when they assume a doubtful and confusing condition. Later on in the evening they become definitely adverse. The early part of the day will prove extremely beneficial for all literary and artistic efforts, and much good work of a useful character can be accomplished at this time. There will be sensed a clearness of vision and situations that appeared difficult of solution or tasks that could not be carried out hitherto to your own satisfaction, will, under the influences become easy of arrangement and accomplishment. Poise must be established during the balance of the day, if untoward results are to be avoided.

Children born today will, during their first months, suffer from physical weaknesses, and will not readily yield to the treatment that is prescribed for their betterment. There is no occasion, however, for discouragement, as, with patience and the right sort of alimentation, these little ones will outgrow their weaknesses and develop normally along healthy and vigorous lines. They will possess willfull natures, and their desire, no matter at what or at whose cost, to always have their own way must not be generously considered as cute, but must be effectively curbed. These children will probably be rather selfish and, though anxious and eager to succeed in life, will not derive the degree of happiness that they should from any degree of material advancement they may achieve.

If today is your birthday, you are of a very contented nature, although this does not imply that you are satisfied. Your ambitions are moderate, and you never go out seeking fresh worlds to conquer but limit your desires more to happiness, comfort and ease than to the harded strubbles that great achievements always entail. You are fairly, but not exceptionally, intelligent, and you are pleased with a smattering of knowledge, rather than with a profunity. You are not exactly lazy, but, if there were some incentive urging you on, your efforts would be, not only more consistent but more concentrated.

Your home life, given your lack of restlessness and your aversion to everything that preconceives excitement, is uneventful and peaceful. This pleases you, as at heart, you are a mental pacifist.

"Gee, you're looking swell today!"
"Girl, you make my senses reel."
"You're SOME Baby Doll. I'll say!"
"Gosh, you're sweet enough to steal!"
That's the kind of stuff to use
If you want to win a maid:
With such talk you cannot lose!
Spread it thick! Don't be afraid!

Never was there woman yet
Whe of compliments grew sick;
If you want a girl to pet
Hand the ushwah to her, thick!
"Gee, your dancing is divine!"
"You should be upon the screen!"
Such a hotsy totsy line
Captures each and every queen.

After all, it's funny how
Easy girlies are to win;
Tell each one that she's a wow!
Use your chin, boy, use your chin!
You will throw 'em for a loss
Without spending dough or toil
If you feed 'em Applesauce
Thinned down with Banana Oil!

THE $30 GOLD PIECE

By Arnold Crumpler.

Tim was absolutely broke, and to make matters worse he was starving. He had not eaten since—let's see, when was it? Sometime the week before. And now he had entered the fashionable cafe, to be tormented by the odors of cooking food. If he dared bluff his way through—he might eat. Then he saw something glitter under a vacant table—something round, bright and golden. A $10 gold piece!

Trembling with excitement, Tim took a seat at the table, and with his foot over the find, called a waiter. He ordered double porterhouse steak and a small one to go with it; he ordered soup; he ordered vegetables; he ordered three kinds of desert—in short, he ordered nearly everything on the menu and topped it off with a fifty cent cigar. He still had his foot over the treasure, not daring to look at it again. At last he finished with the huge repast, and the waiter brought the bill. It came to exactly $9.95.

He scooped up the coin and laid it on the little rubber pad in front of the cashier.

The cashier was looking at him suspiciously, and with a start of horror Tim discovered that the gold piece was nothing more than the gilt cap off a ginger ale bottle! For a moment he swayed with shock, then the idea—the big idea came!

"I found that thing in the soup!" snapped Tim, pounding the counter angrily. "I want damages—I want—"

"Shh," whispered the cashier. "Not a word—not a word. I'll give you your dinner free, and here—" he thrust a twenty dollar bill in Tim's hand—"take this and don't say any more about it."

DINNER STORIES

Every seat was occupied, when a group of women got in. The conductor noticed a man who he thought was asleep.

"Wake up!" shouted the conductor.

"I am not asleep," said the passenger.

"Not asleep! Then what did you have your eyes closed for?"

"It was because of the crowded condition of the car," explained the passenger. "I hate to see the women standing."

An Australian barrister tells of a black fellow charged in a country town with stealing. His solicitor decided to put him in the box to give evidence on his own behalf. The magistrate, being doubtful if he undrstood the nature of an oath, undertook to examine him.

"Jacky," he said, "you know what will happen to you if you tell a lie?"

"My oath, boss," replied Jacky, "me go down below—burn long time."

"Quite right," replied the magistrate. "And now you know what will happen if you tell the truth?"

"Yes, boss. We lose 'em case."

A Kansas man wrote to his newspaper and asked: "What's the matter with my hens? Every morning when I go to feed them I find some of them have keeled over to rise no more."

DENVER FILES ITS OBJECTION

Rail Officials Take Exception to Recommendations Of Boles

FORT WORTH, June 11.—(AP)—The Texas Panhandle and Gulf railway does not desire the conditional certificate proposed by Examiner Boles, and the Santa Fe desires to retain its "monopoly" in the south plains, declares the reply of the Fort Worth and Denver South Plains railway company made public here Friday. The reply is to exceptions of adverse parties and was drawn up by the Denver's attorneys here.

Briefs of exception filed by the Texas Panhandle and Gulf, the Quanah, Acme and Pacific and the Santa Fe to Commissioner Boles' report to the interstate commerce commission serve to clarify the issues which the commission is to decide, the Denver's reply declares.

"The T. P. and G. does not want a conditional certificate. It objects to conditions precedent which shall require it to abandon its own promotion scheme and sell out to some other carrier," the reply asserts. "The Quanah, Acme and Pacific does not wish to build new lines subject to a recommendation by the examiner that rights therein be sold to the T. P. and G. The Santa Fe desires a decision to confirm its monopoly in the south plains country so as to exclude all competitive railroad construction."

The T. P. and G. not only asks to be relieved of the burden of the conditions imposed by Boles' recommendations, but also that it be granted additional certificates to construct railroad mileage for which it has no application pending, the Denver reply declares, pointing to exception five wherein it seeks a certificate to build from McBain to Floydada in the event that the Quanah, Acme and Pacific should not build this line and thereafter transfer control thereof to the T. P and G. and also a right to parallel the segment of the Q. A. and P. between Paducah and Floydada in event the Q. A. and P. should not grant trackage rights to the T. P. and Q. over present line between these points.

The reply also refers to exception six where in the T. P. and G. asks for a certificate to parallel the line of the Gulf, Texas and Western between Seymour, Jacksboro and Sylesville in the event the latter company should refuse to sell out its line between these points or to grant trackage rights over it to the T. P. and G.

Champagne Costly But There's Plenty

HAVRE, France, June 11.—(AP) Champagne can be obtained anywhere in the United States if enough money is planked down, said Count Chandon Moet and M. Henri Moet, representatives of the famous champagne family, on their return from a trip to America.

"Of course not so much champagne is being exported to America as formerly," they said, "but a large quantity gets there just the same and we neither know nor care how.

"We get orders to ship so many cases from Havre and someone else does the rest. Our brand is supposed to be sold in the United States only by druggists for medicinal purposes and it is unmaterial to us whether or not it is used for bathing."

Henry Moet expressed the conviction that prohibition will not be a permanent institution in the United States.

Mexico Is Invited To Show Products

SAN ANTONIO, June 11.—(AP)—In order that closer business relations may be established between the business interests of Mexico and Texas, the Texas State Manufacturers' association has invited the Mexican government to send an exhibit of the republic's raw products to the Texas Industrial exposition.

The exposition held annually in connection with the state fair, will be staged at Dallas October 9 to 24.

In making the announcement Friday G. M. Knebel, general manager of the association, pointed out that the largest single item of imports from Mexico was petroleum and added there was "no valid reason" why many other raw products of Mexico should not find a good market in Texas.

Flying Squadron To Be Stationed At Galveston Fort

SAN ANTONIO, June 11.—(AP) Removal of the third attack from Kelly Field to Fort Crockett, now contemplated by the army air service, was recommended by Lieut. Colonel C. C. Culver.

It is reported unofficially, however, that eighth corps area headquarters opposes the move on the ground that Fort Crockett's parade ground is needed for use by the citizens' military training camps.

Removal of the attack group from Kelly Field has long been considered for the purpose of making room for expansion of the flying school.

Although refusing to state what action had been taken in regard to the contemplated removal, Colonel John F. Preston, chief of staff for the corps ares, said today that transfer of the fliers would prevent further use of Fort Crockett for summer training of the young men.

WEALTHY GIRL KILLS HERSELF

Lonely Because Chum Weds, Villager Drinks Poison

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—Found dead in a Greenwich Village apartment by a banker friend Miss Gene MacKenzie, an heiress, is supposed to have committed suicide because of loneliness after her roommate married a naval officer.

Her mother, Mrs. Charlotte F. MacKenzie, widow of a wealthy stockholder in the Singer Sewing Machine company, was on the way today from San Francisco for a last sight of her daughter.

The body was found by Raymond T. Fish, who called to advise her about some investments and who had a dinner engagement with her. Mr. Fish told police he found the apartment door open and walked in when nobody answered his knock. He found the body in the bath room, clad in a flimsy night gown. Two bottles that had contained poison were nearby and Miss MacKenzie's lips were burned. A doctor said she had been dead about 12 hours.

Police notified Dr. Burdette P. Craig, an uncle of Miss MacKenzie's, and Cornelius M. Bushnell, a brother-in-law of the former roommate, Miss Clay Schuyler.

Dr. Craig said Miss MacKenzie had recently inherited a large sum from another uncle. He declared that several times recently she had spoken of her extreme loneliness since her chum married. Miss MacKenzie was 28 and had taught school. Her mother was swindled out of $640,000 twelve years ago by Richard J. Hartman, former head of Tyson & Company. Hartman was convicted in 1915 and sentenced to five years imprisonment.

Wolfheart, New Dog Wonder, Scores In "The Big Stunt"

To a movie-going public "fed up" on trite western films, a treat is in store for them at the Mission theatre. When Wolfheart, the dog-wonder unreels his newest and best vehicle, "The Big Stunt," a promise is given to the audiences of seeing something that is different from the rest.

An amusing angle is introduced in this story which centers around the intelligence of a dog. The action is concerned in a motion picture company "on location," making a western picture with a "drugstore cowboy," a lounge-lizard type of male, as its leading man. Big Boy Williams, a cowboy employed on an adjoining ranch, misunderstands the struggles of the beautiful heroine from the unwelcome advances of the movie villain, and unmindful of the grinding cameras, enters upon the scene with a none too mild reprimand for the villain. Instead of ruining the scene, the director is captivated by his fast action and takes him into the company, much to the displeasure of the bogus leading man.

From this point of the story on begins the fast and furious action; the thwarting of a plot to kill Big Boy Williams, the rescue of the lovely girl from an inevitable death down the rapids, with Wolfheart the moving spirit behind the rescue, resulting in a western that is undoubtedly unusual from any motion picture with a dog hero, produced this season.

Eighty-six of the 110 county maintenance contracts let in 1925 have expired; 22 expire June 15, and two August 1.

Troops of Canada Parade Cleveland

CLEVELAND, June 11.—(AP)—For the first time in history armed troops of another country marched through the streets of Cleveland today. It was the famous Toronto Scottish regiment which was replaced six times during the World war. Four hundred strong, the regiment came to help celebrate the Cleveland-Canada day.

The celebration was held today in commemoration of more than 100 years of friendly relations between this country and Canada as well as the particularly close social and commercial relations between this city and the provinces.

It is the first time the Ontario government ever officially recognized any particular city or country.

My Favorite Stories

By IRVIN S. COBB

THE CONFUSING GEOGRAPHY OF JERSEY

Years ago, when I earned my daily bread and occasional beer on Park Row, one Andy Horn ran a cozy bar in the shadow of Brooklyn Bridge. All sorts of conditions of men frequented the saloon—sailors, newspaper men, rich men, poor men, policemen off duty, artists and commuters from over the river.

A grubby person known as Smitty was a fixture at Andy's. He cut up food for the free lunch counter, did odd jobs and in rush hours helped to serve the trade. Smitty was to Manhattan what a cockney is to London.

He had been born on Cherry Hill, right around the corner; he had been reared on the Bowery and he had never ranged farther than Coney Island or Far Rockaway. Greater New York City was all the world he knew or cared to know.

His sister married a German market gardner over in New Jersey, and when his summertime vacation came Smitty went to visit her for two weeks. His new brother-in-law had bought a car and had promised to tour Smitty about over the state and show him the sights.

At the end of a week Smitty was back at work. One of the regular patrons hailed him.

"Hey, Smitty, I thought you were going to stay longer. Didn't you care for country life?"

"Nix on dat stuff fur me," said Smitty. "I'm offen it fur life. Say, dat Joisey soitinly is one funny place. Why, all dem towns over there is got different names!"

Candidates File Managers' Names

AUSTIN, June 11.—(AP)—Two democratic gubernatorial candidates, Governor Ferguson and the Rev. O. F. Zimmerman have certified to the secretary of state the name of their campaign manager as required by article 6149 of the revised civil statutes of 1925.

Guy Holcomb Wichita Falls, is the Ferguson manager: and J. C. Martin, Naples, Zimmerman's manoger.

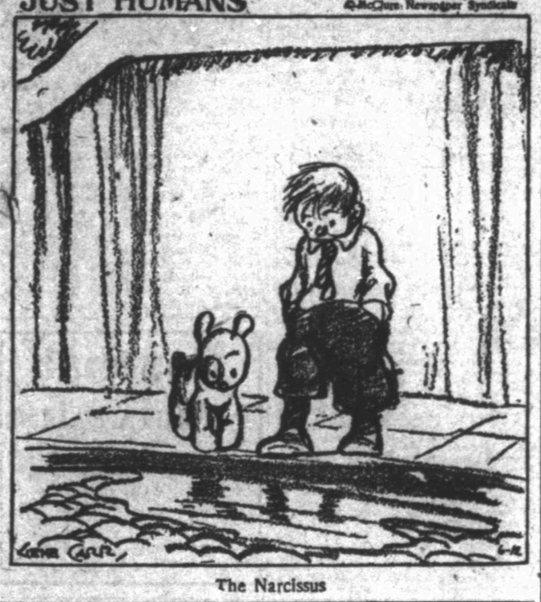

"Said Martin is to be in active control of headquarters at Naples, and is supposed to use his head, hands, feet, heart and other faculties to put me into Austin, Texas, as governor of said state, without fail, so may be it, amen." Zimmerman wrote in his letter of certification.

The campaign managers file a statement of campaign expenditures with the secretary of state and other data.

HEAVY COTTON CROP

BURNET, June 11.—(AP)—Predicting that 18 to 20 million bales of cotton will be on the market this season with a consequent suffering in prices, R. Q. Lee, president of the west Texas chamber of commerce, Thursday urged in an address here that farmers get sheep and hogs and plant grain with which to feed the stock instead of devoting so much acreage to cotton.

QUERY JUMPS IN AS PINCH SWATTER, HITS HOMER THAT STARTS SPUD VICTORY DRIVE

Domestics Unravel on Littlejohn and Ken Penner in Seventh, Scoring Six to Win, 10-9.

They look like they're off on another victory streak, these Spudders do. Waging a nervy uphill battle after having all but kicked the game away yesterday, Brainard's bombers twice overcame a Houston lead, the second time ripping into Carlisle Littlejohn and then Ken Penner, Buff aces, with a tornadic outburst of base bumps that dismounted both flingers, tabulated six golden scoring nuggets and nullified a four-run advantage to win the second engagement of the series within the Gardner fortifications, 10-9.

Texhomas Scare American Refiners, But Fail to Put Over Needed Run

A belated batting attack by the Texhoma Refinery baseball club fell one short of the tying mark and the American Refinery baseball club took off to a favorable start in the last half of the Twilight league race Friday afternoon by winning the first game 10 to 9.

Both clubs used two pitchers. Costly errors in the field by both clubs proved troublesome to the heavers and kept 'em in a hole.

Andy Taylor gave the Americans a scare in the seventh inning when he smashed one to left field for three bases and started for the plate with the tying score, but he was too much out of breath to beat the throw in and was trapped by several feet. Taylor also led the attack with three base knocks in four trips to the plate.

The Americans came near putting the game on ice in the first inning when three base hits and three errors chased over seven counters.

In the fourth inning Coyal Francis, American second sacker, was spiked in the ankle and had to be taken from the game.

Both of the American pitchers slapped out four base smashes.

Spudders Farm White to Paris

Lester White, the youthful Long Beach pitching prodigy, goes to the Paris farm for a bit more seasoning, announced Spudder Manager Brainard yesterday afternoon.

White came to the Spudders several weeks ago, picked up from Los Angeles semi-pro circles. He has won two and lost three games with the Spudders, hurling a neat brand of ball in all but one, the 14 to 2 defeat registered against him Monday in Dallas.

White is not expected to stay with Paris for long. Brainard expects to recall him at almost any stage of the current Texas league campaign. Lester is still the property of the Spudders and can be brought back on 10 days' notice.

ST. LOUIS, June 11.—(AP)—McMans' single with the bases filled in the tenth inning brought in two runs which gave the Browns a victory over the Red Sox today, 4 to 3. Gaston and Ehmke, opposing moundsmen, battled on almost even terms. Both teams went scoreless until the seventh. Triples by Durst and F. Robertson in the ninth gave the Browns one run and tied the score. Fingstead's home run in the tenth again put the visitors in the lead. Score:

Loop Leading Bears Break Up Panther Streak

Battered Bruins Turn In Tracks And Lead Cats Into Den

FORT WORTH, June 11.—(AP)—The battered Bears stopped the Cats' winning streak here Friday afternoon at seven straight games by winning the second game of their series here 5 to 1. "Tiny" Owens, San Antonio's huge hurler, pitched a victorious, if slightly defective brand of ball for the Cats were unable to do anything with the nine hits and two walks he allowed. Errorless playing by the Bruins helped a lot.

Owens backed up his hurling with the willow, getting three hits in four times at bat and scoring one run. Flashkamper's triple was the longest hit of the day. Eddie Moore and Rabbitt clouting a double a piece to keep their hand in. Score:

Yanks Bombard Cooper to Win Fourth From Ty

DETROIT, June 11.—(AP)—Wilbur Cooper, former Cub southpaw, got a warm reception in his first start as a Tiger today, being found for 16 hits in the four innings he worked, and New York made it four straight for the series. The score was 9 to 3. Neither Holloway nor Stoner, who succeeded Cooper could hold the slugging Yankees who garnered 15 hits. Only two New York blows, however, were for extra bases. Ruth's batting average dropped slightly, the Babe making only one hit in five trips. He walked twice. Score:

Giants Lose Again

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—The Giants suffered their fourth straight setback today when they were defeated by St. Louis, 10 to 5. Fitzsimmons started on the mound for the Giants and yielded two runs in seven innings, both as a result of wild pitches. With Southpaw Davies pitching in the eighth and ninth the Cardinals enjoyed a batting feast, scoring four times in each inning. The Giant infield cracked and contributed to the Card rally. Keen had an easy time breezing through for his eighth victory of the year. Score:

THREE WOMEN

in the run-off primary when the anti-klan forces overwhelmed Robertson and this is what restored the Fergusons to power, and this is one of the reasons why the Fergusons are candidates for the fourth time for governor of Texas. There are democrats who say that the total vote in July this year will approximate 750,000, but there is no religious issue involved in the political contest thus far. All three of the real candidates for governor are on record as anti-klan in their predilivities.

All Against Klan.

All three declared against the klan away back in 1922 when its secret political ramifications appeared on the surface of Texas politics. This is removed, to a vast extent, the religious issue of the ever memorable campaign, when the Fergusons by accident or a turn of the political wheel were returned to the office of governor for the third time. There is another significant feature this year. For the first time in history the republicans nominate by state primary. Wise politicians say, ever viewing the row between the Creager and Wurzbach forces, that 50,000 republicans, perhaps 75,000, who have often invaded democratic primaries, will register as straight republicans at the polls in the primary contest in July.

This is certain to largely reduce in certain counties in the state the number of voters who in other years have officiated as democrats on primary election day. In the primary election two years ago there were five anti-klan candidates. Moody running for attorney general polled a tremendous vote in a field where two anti-klan candidates and one klan candidate were in the running. Mrs. Ferguson, with her husband as her speaker and campaign manager, received 147,000 votes, and was high in the list of anti-klan candidates for governor. Lynch Davidson, with the best organization of all, ran second to Mrs. Ferguson, with T. W. Davidson third and the other candidates listed as also rans.

Now what are the issues this year. Have the Fergusons gained or lost speaking of voting strength. Has Davidson gained or lost. It is admitted, for voting purposes at least, that the klan is practically dead. It cannot be made a live issue when it is a corpse. This being the case what is the sentiment or prevailing sentiment of the thousands who attach themselves to the Ferguson candidacy of the Robertson cadidates in the run-off two years ago. Where will they go this year. What issue or candidate will control their voting sentiment or political activities.

Democrats Durded

In this series of three articles, the writer will endeavor, in an impartial way, to answer these questions in the second and third articles which have been outlined. It is a remarkable campaign. In less than 18 months, it resolved itself into this paramount issue. Shall the Fergusons be given four terms in the office of governor when Sam Houston, Richard Coke, Sul Ross, James Stephen Hogg, Charles A. Culberson and others of the illustrious dead considered themselves honored by the people when they held the proud position for two terms and retired of their own volition, their records disdemed with glorious achievement and honorable service.

To be exact, the democrats found themselves divided into two hostile camps, Ferguson and anti-Ferguson and he campaign thus far has been pitched along these lines. And, so it is that a campaign which began late bids far to become as famous in the annals of political history as the campaigns of other years which were long drawn out. July is approaching, and from this time until the ballots have been counted on the night of July 24, there is certain to be intense interest in the movements of the principle contenders on the stage of action and that suspense will not be relieved until the verdict has been returned by the democratic men and women voters of the commonwealth late in the coming month of July.

Melhorn Third In British Golf

MOOR PARK, Eng., June 11.—(AP)—Bill Melhorn of Chicago, finished third today in the first day's play of a freakish target golf tournament competition which has been heralded as an innovation. A scientific system of point scoring is used instead of the orthodox counting by strokes.

Melhorn's total for the eighteen holes was 160 points, out of a possible 228.

Abe Mitchell, British professional, who had the best count of the day, scored 172, while C. H. Corlett, of Dorsetshire, who finished second, had 161.

Other entrants from the United States finished far down the list, and probably are out of the running for the prize money—$5,000. Walter Hagen scored 143 points, Joe Kirkwood 128 and Joe Stein 115. Archie Compston, British professional champion, earned 184 points.

PROMOTER FREED

OMAHA, June 11.—(AP)—Mike Collins, boxing promoter of St. Paul, Minn., was freed from detention in connection with an "eye specialist swindle" at Red Wing, Minn., when Sheriff John E. Anderson and Prosecutor A. E. Arntson, of Goodhue county interviewed him at the city jail here today.

Collins was released from the $5,000 bail which was posted Thursday when he was arrested on request of Red Wing authorities.

FANS PAY HEAVILY

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—Thirty-four thousand spectators paid $221,000 to see Paul Berlenbach and Young Stribling fight their burlesque light heavyweight championship match at the Yankee stadium last night.

The title holder received $78,520 for his hour's labor while Stribling's percentage amounted to $20,174. Berlenbach's share represented 37 1-2 per cent of the net gate while Stribling drew down the challenger's usual 12½ per cent.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—The upward movement of prices in today's stock market assumed more general proportions but high grade rails and industrials continued on the forefront of the advance. Closing quotations which were around the highest a fine day disclosed a long list of net gains ranging from one to five points. Total sales were 1,562,300 shares compared with 1,311,200 yesterday and 1,662,100 on Thursday the high figure of the year.

Except for a lowering of the call money rate and unusual reports of trade improvement, there was little in the day's news to explain the further rise in prices. Trading appeared to be under the domination of large operations and powerful financial interests although signs of increased public interest developed in several sections of the list.

U. S. Steel common again changed hands in enormous volume, closing 2¾ points higher at 134 after having touched 134⅝. Independent Steels, however, did not follow in its wake despite the announcement that steel mill operations were being maintained at an unusually high rate for this season of the year and that railroads were in the market for heavy tonnages of steel products.

General Motors kept pace with steel crossing 136 to a new high level for the year and within 1¼ points of the record high for all time, established in 1925. Chrysler continues plans the corporation's second quarter earnings between $7 and $9 a share. Other motors were mixed, with bullish operations apparently discouraged by recent price cuts. Mack Trucks showed independent strength, closing 2½ points higher at 113.

Oil shares, which have been sluggish most of the week, showed signs of activity and strength as the session closed. Atlantic Refining was bid up 2¼ points, Pathandle Producers and Refiners touched a new high level for the year at 21 and Marland, Texas Company and General Asphalt advanced a point or so. Coppers maintained a firm undertone on the prospect of an early advance in non-ferrous metal prices.

Rails showed a more uniform upward tendency Union Pacific crossing 151 to a new high level for the year and Canadian Pacific duplicating its previous peak of 193⅜ on a net gain of 1⅝ points. Mobile and Northern common and preferred also attained new 1926 high levels at 35⅝ and 105¼, respectively, with buying accompanied by a revival of merger rumors. New York Central was up 1 1-8 to 130⅝, just before the close on reports that May traffic on the road rose all records and that October earnings between 27 and 30 a share.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent and then eased to 3¾, closing at the low figure. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Sharp tallies of 35 to 40 points respectively in the Norwegian and Spanish currencies, which ruled around 22.75 and 15.68 cents, featured the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held firm just above $4.86, but French francs sold down to 2.90 cents and then rallied slightly. Italian and Belgian currencies also were heavy.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—Continuation of yesterday's selling movement based on improving crop accounts led to further declines in the cotton market today. All new crop positions made new low records for the season, October contracts selling off to 16.32, or 46 points net lower and about 136 points below the price prevailing at the beginning of this month. October closed at 16.34, the general market closing easy at net declines of 36 to 45 points.

The opening was easy at a decline of 7 to 17 points under overnight selling orders which had been brought in by the weakness of yesterday afternoon and talk of better crop prospects.

A private report estimating the condition of the crop at 75.5 compared with a condition of 71.0 reported by the same authority toward the end of May confirmed recent talk of more favorable progress and no doubt stimulated the seling movement.

After showing net losses of about 20 to 25 points, the market rallied 10 to 15 points from the bottom on covering or buying of recent sellers, some trade buying and probably a little buying for a rally. Demand seemed to be readily supplied, however, and the market broke again during the afternoon reaching the lowest prices of the day and movement in late trading. Wall Street houses with western connections, southern and local traderers were all sellers on the late decline, which extended to 17.65 for July and 16.33 for December. The market closed within a point or two of the lowest.

The private crop report published this morning was regarded by cotton traders as pointing to an end-June condition somewhat above the ten-year average of 73.5. The mid-day rallies were probably influenced to some extent by reports of continued dry weather in the eastern belt, but rainfall in the southern sections conditions were supposed to be generally favorable for the further development of the plant.

Exports today 16,267, making 4,797,073 so far this season. Port receipts 5,836. U. S. port stocks 702,816 bales.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, June 11.—(AP)—The cotton market was more active today than it has been for some months, being characterized as continued liquidation by long interests and considerable short selling. Prices were downward from the start and the only rallies that occurred were due to satisfied shorts covering. The day's decline added to that of yesterday, represented virtually a cent a pound loss in prices. Liverpool made a full response to the decline in American markets yesterday and weather conditions remained favorable while reports fro mthe growing crop were generally of the most favorable character. Prices after a steady opening, soon turned easier and continued on the downgrade until prices near the end were 41 to 44 points under the close of yesterday. The December option broke through the 16-cent line to 15.98, the lowest price reached since March 1922. The close showed net losses for the day of 39 to 43 points.

Reuter's mill takings for the week of only 174,000 bales against 186,000 last year were disappointing.

At the start prices were two points up to 11 down and early trades at 17.27 for July, 16.39 for October and 16.31 for December were the high points of the day. The market continued to ease off practically all day and in the late trading July dropped to 16.82, October to 16.01 and December to 15.98, or 41 to 44 points below yesterday's close. The market closed steady at or near the low points.

Exports for the day totaled 13,267 bales and for the week 47,843 bales.

BOSTON WOOL.

BOSTON, June 11.—(AP)—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say:

There is a brisker movement in wool both to the worsted and the woolen mills which has been augmented by a big export movement. Prices are not greatly changed and some quotations may be a bit lower as compared with a week ago, but the sentiment in the trade as the week ends is better than for some time. Buying in the west has continued moderately and no one seems disposed to hurry matters, reflecting the slow demand for goods and clothing which even now persists, although the outlook seems more hopeful.

London showed a slight easing on the finer wools toward the close of the colonial series.

Mohair is very firm. Wool quotations: Scoured basis, Texas fine 12 months (selected) $1.10; fine 8 months 98c@$1.00.

Grain

FORT WORTH CASH GRAIN.

FORT WORTH, June 11.—(AP)—Slightly higher values on export wheat were apparent in the Fort Worth grain market Friday with considerable business in future delivering being booked. While oats prices did not follow the gains to contract prices, there was no lack of offerings to the new crop stuff.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, June 11.—(AP)—Wheat moved upward in price today at the last, more than overcoming early declines. Asserted further need of soaking rains in the northwest together with unfavorable foreign crop reports as well as word that France is likely to suspend the import duty on wheat, all tended to lift values. The wheat market closed firm, 1¼ to 1½ net higher, corn ¾ to 1c up, oats at 1⅜ to 1⅝c advance, and provisions unchanged to 20c down.

Unfavorable crop reports concerning oats in the southwest gave independent strength to the oats market and helped to lift corn prices, despite beneficial rains covering a large part of the corn belt. Selling out to realize profits weakened the provision market.

DUN'S REVIEW.

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—Dun's tomorrow will say:

"The unevenness of business trends has not appreciably lessened, though some of the favorable elements stand out more prominently. In the main, greater confidence in future condition appears to have developed, and certain of the current statistical indices make very satisfactory comparisons. Despite lower commodity prices, bank clearings outside of New York substantially exceed those of a year ago, while railroad freight traffic continues to be wholly without precedent for this period. This demonstrates that distribution of merchandise remains notably large, notwithstanding the retarding effects of an unusually backward spring in different sections and some unemployment of workers that has resulted from a curtailment of manufacturing activity. The latter phase partly reflects seasonal influences, yet it is significant that the rate of output in the steel industry holds at a relatively high level and that the total of new orders is gaining.

"Weekly bank clearings $8,608,293,000

SAVANTS SEEK OHIO KING TUT

Mounds Explored In Search For Real American Set Of Culture

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio, June 11.—Early summer will see the return of scientists to this section of Ohio, known as Ross County for a "100 per cent American King Tutankhamen," believed to have been buried in this center of classical culture left by the prehistoric mound builders.

Encouraged by their discoveries late ast year, archaeologists will continue heir excavations with the hope of learning more of the culture left by these prehistoric people.

Dozens of mounds, varying in size, believed to have been the seat of the mound builders' government or have formed a Mecca where great and significant ritualism was performed, are ocated in this vicinity and are expected within the next few months to give up the secrets locked in their underground cavities, probably for many centuries.

To the ordinary observer, the mounds only represent huge piles of earth, but to the scientists they represent the monuments of a great race of a people who believed in the teamwork of organized society and probably the existence of accepted religious beliefs—reminder of a glorious empire perhaps—that left no written or hieroglyphic records.

The task of raising these mounds to huge proportions was herculean. It required patient toil, born of love, devotion or spiritual hopes. The soil, dumped in an apronful or basketful at a time, was conveyed from distant points, which would indicate, in the opinion of the men of science, that the people had leisure for the work and were not given to the practice of war.

Relics found indicate that they were fond of chess, were traders, artists and engineers. Some authorities advance the theory that they were directly connected with, or were the descendants of the enterprising Mayans of pre-historic days.

The rendered tax roll for the city of Wichita Falls for the current year totals $39,371,120 it was announced Friday by City Tax Collector W. R. Hyer, following compiliation. Mother Wins Babe

Final judgment in the exparte proceedings for the custody of little Elizabeth Stringer, 13-year-old daughter of Mrs. Katie Erard and E. O. Stringer of Wichita, Kan., was returned by Judge P. A. Martin of the 30th district court Friday morning. Present custody of the child was awarded Mrs. Erard, the mother. In making his decision Judge Martin ruled that under existing circumstances it would be betted for the child to remain with her mother, and in so ruling countermanded a decree of the district court of Cowley, Kan., awarding the custody to the father.

Friday's hearing was the outcome of a four months fight for the little girl which began back in the latter part of February.

Thaw Reunion Rumored Again As Both Deny Charges Against Son

Moved by the common impulse to protect the reputation of their son, Russell, Evelyn Nesbit and Harry K. Thaw have reached an amicable understanding and may be reunited. A report issued by a Chicago hotel that young Russell—said by the hotel to be 19 years old—had been giving lavish entertainment for his lady friends and neglecting to pay the bill so aroused the boys parents that public statements were immediately and jointly made. They deny the report utterly, saying that Russell has not been in Chicago recently, that he is but 15 years old and that he is a source of real comfort and aid to his mother. And, as for themselves, they indicate that the "hatchet is buried." Young Thaw is seen above; also his mother, Evelyn Nesbit, and Harry K. Thaw.

A constitutional provision prohibits the governor or state officers from immediately succeeding himself. Trapp contends that he has merely acted as governor and has not been governor in fact.
