New U.S. troops deployed near Iraq

More on the way, according to reports

KUWAIT (AP) — American soldiers fanned out across the desert for live-fire exercises near the Iraqi border today, and more troops headed to join them as the United States kept the pressure on Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein.

The confrontation between the United States and Iraq has eased in the past week, but the Americans continue their military buildup in the Gulf.

Two planeloads of U.S. soldiers arrived in Kuwait on Thursday from Fort Hood, Texas, and more were expected over the next few days. Some 3,500 soldiers of the 1st Cavalry Division were ordered to Kuwait by President Clinton to augment a force of 1,200 who have been conducting war games in the desert since August.

"The bad news is that we have to do it," said Army Col. Robert Pollard. He said Saddam "continues to flex his muscles, therefore we have to continue to deploy our forces, first to keep the peace in the region and secondly to protect national interests in the region."

The latest crisis in Iraq erupted Aug. 31 when Saddam sent troops to help the Kurdistan Democratic Party take control of the Kurdish safe haven in northern Iraq. The Americans responded with cruise missile strikes on military targets in southern Iraq.

Iraq has been using radar to track U.S. aircraft patrolling the "no-fly" zones over northern and southern Iraq since then, but it has not fired on any planes in the past week.

The zones were established at the end of the 1991 Gulf War to protect Kurds in the north and Shiite Muslims in the south.

More than 30,000 U.S. military personnel will soon be in the Gulf — compared to fewer than 20,000 before the crisis began three weeks ago. Kuwait and Saudi Arabia are the only Gulf states hosting large numbers of American forces, with several thousand U.S. personnel in each country.

U.S. troops revved up tanks and other armored vehicles that had been stored at Camp Doha, outside the capital, Kuwait City, before heading out to the site of the war games.

Nearby, another contingent of U.S. troops were at a Patriot missile unit, its desert-brown launchers pointed toward Iraq.

Most of the U.S. personnel are deployed on about 35 ships in the Gulf, including two aircraft carriers, the USS Enterprise and the USS Carl Vinson.

In Washington, CIA Director John Deutch said the Kurdish faction leader who forged a temporary alliance with Saddam Hussein to rout a rival Kurdish faction is now seeking U.S. protection.

"Mr. (Massoud) Barzani is urgently asking for our assistance to make sure that he doesn't become too dependent on Saddam Hussein," Deutch said.

Barzani met with U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Robert Pelletreau in Turkey on Wednesday.

Deutch also told the Senate Intelligence Committee that sanctions imposed after the Gulf War haven't weakened Saddam's hold on power and Iraq's military might still threatens its neighbors.

In another development, there were conflicting claims Thursday about the shelling of a refugee camp in northwest Iran that is hosting Iraqi Kurds who fled the recent turmoil.

Iran claims eight Kurdish refugees were killed Wednesday, and they blame the Iraqi army and KDP forces.

The international humanitarian group Doctors Without Borders said 10 people were killed and 43 wounded by artillery rounds at the Siran Band camp. The organization said a two-member team witnessed the attack while setting up a dispensary at the camp.

Top Texas court to hear boll weevil arguments

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court has decided to hear oral arguments in a case in which cotton farmers in South and West Texas have sued to get out from under a boll weevil spraying program.

In June, State District Judge Marvin Marshall of Plainview ruled in favor of 10 Hale County farmers in West Texas who challenged the constitutionality of assessments levied by the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation.

The foundation appealed the ruling to the state Supreme Court, which on Thursday set oral arguments for Nov. 20.

The Supreme Court consolidated the West Texas case with that of 31 Rio Grande Valley cotton growers who had been granted a temporary restraining order prohibiting the foundation from collecting overdue fees for pesticide sprayings.

Ed Small, attorney for the Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation, said he was pleased the Supreme Court had agreed to hear the case.

"I think if we lost this case it would gut the eradication program," Small said. "It's extremely important to the cotton industry of Texas that we win this case. The boll weevil still represents a tremendous economic loss to the cotton industry and to the entire economy of Texas."

Rudd Owen, a Plainview attorney representing the Hale County farmers, said: "I look forward to presenting our side of the case to the Supreme Court and having it confirmed that the trial judge correctly applied the law to the facts."

Faced with the emergence of the highly destructive boll weevil in some South Plains counties, farmers voted overwhelmingly in April 1995 to establish the foundation's spraying program in a 30-county area around Lubbock.

But some farmers in counties to the north, where the weevil threat is more remote, balked at the eradication program, which is funded by assessments on farmers.

Farmers in Hale County, one of the top cotton-producing counties in Texas, complained they were paying more than their share because payments were assessed according to how many acres each farmer cultivated and how much cotton each produced.

Hit with staggering losses blamed on the destruction of beneficial insects, growers in the Lower Rio Grande Valley have opted out of the spraying program, but it remains in effect in most areas of the state.

Also Thursday, the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation board voted to place a 90-day time limit on petition efforts to call for an election to recall the program.

The rule, which foundation spokeswoman Katy Bohuslav said probably will take effect in about a month, is designed to establish a time period for farmers to organize against the program.

Animal-to-human transplants coded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hoping to ease a shortage of human organs for transplants, the government proposed guidelines today for putting live animal cells, organs and tissues into people.

The guidelines from the Food and Drug Administration will cover all forms of xenotransplantation, as the practice is known, including the implant of whole animal organs such as livers into human beings. The proposed rules are aimed at preventing the spread of animal infections to humans.

The guidelines are critically needed because of speedy advances in medical science and a shortage of human donor material. In the last five years, an average of 4,835 people a year donated their Beat Wylie!

Keeping tabs on our neighbors: Snyder takes on the Bulldogs from Wylie tonight, and hopefully they won't be as talented as the dog in the story told by Lynn Brisendine in the Brownfield News.

The bulldog walked into a butcher shop, carrying a wallet in his mouth. He put it down in front of the meat case. "What is it boy?" the butcher jokingly asked. "Want to buy some meat?"

"Woof!" replied the dog.

""Hmmmm," said the butcher. "What kind? Liver, bacon, steak?"

"Woof!" signaled the dog.

The amazed butcher wrapped up the steak and found the money in the wallet carried by the dog.

The impressed butcher decided to follow. The bulldog entered the apartment building, climbed to the third floor and began scratching at the door. The door swung open and the man started shouting at the dog.

The butcher objected. "That's the most intelligent animal I've ever seen."

"Intelligent?" countered the man. "This is the third time this week that he's forgotten his key."

Go Tigers!

O.G. Nieman, in the Hereford Brand, says there is a new organization in Deaf Smith County.

"It's called Aerobics Anonymous. When you get the urge to exercise, you call somebody and he comes over and sits with you until the urge passes."

Welcome Exes!

Gene Dow, in the Seminole Sentinel, reminisced about the drug store soda fountain and short order diners. They had a jargon all their own. For example, a dip and a squirt was a scoop of ice cream with a squirt of chocolate.

Remember when dog soup was a glass of water and Jiggs and Maggie was code for corned beef and cabbage? Elephant dandruff was corn flakes and ship ahoy in a snowstorm was pie a la mode. Black cow-spank it was chocolate milk with whipped cream and graveyard stew was slang for milk toast. Shoot one and make it blush was a cherry coke while seaboard meant wrap it to go. Wreck 2 and burn the British was two scrambled eggs with an English muffin.

It's often more formal today... "I'll be your waitperson this evening," is a clue that a big tip is expected, regardless of the taste or the service.

Process speed up sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department isn't working fast enough in ruling on disaster requests by Texas Gov. George W. Bush for federal emergency loans for farmers and ranchers in dozens of Texas counties, says Sen. Phil Gramm.

The Republican senator complained Thursday that most of the disaster requests were filed months ago, one as far back as April.

Gramm said he has talked to Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman in a bid to speed up the process. Glickman or President Clinton must issue disaster declarations before farmers and ranchers who have sustained losses can be eligible for emergency loans.

Bush has requested assistance for counties around the state that have been hit by drought, tornadoes, freezes, hail or windstorms.

"I have talked to the secretary and urged him to expedite consideration of these applications," said Gramm. "The governor has done his part, everyone has done their part except the Department of Agriculture."

Gramm said Glickman promised to "try to expedite" the rulings.

Bush spokesman Ray Sullivan said the governor "is concerned that these farmers and ranchers in Texas get the assistance that they need as quickly as possible."

Ex-Houston executive says he is head of non-existent nation

HOUSTON (AP) — Former Houston executive Leon Excalibur Hooten III, the subject of a complicated investigation in the 1980s, has resurfaced as the self-professed former president of a non-existent island nation.

According to the Houston Chronicle, state insurance and securities regulators say Hooten ran several companies backed by millions of dollars in bonds issued by the fictitious Dominion of Melchizedek.

Texas Insurance Commissioner Elton Bomer said he has ordered Hooten and three related entities to stop doing business in Texas. He said Hooten's firms are not licensed to do business in Texas.

Unsuspecting businessmen paid Hooten for financial guarantees, then lost their investments when Hooten didn't back up letters of credit and guaranty bonds, regulators said.

"Hooten claimed more than $100 million in assets with which to back these letters of credit," according to an affidavit filed in a Harris County state district court by John Fahy, an enforcement lawyer for the State Securities Board.

Among the assets claimed by Hooten were a $15 million certificate of deposit from the Asia Pacific Bank of the Dominion of Melchizedek, $10 million in bonds issued by Melchizedek and $20 million in bearer bonds from the St. Charles University in Louisiana, signed by Hooten as president, Fahy said.

The Texas Department of Insurance said the university has no assets, and Asia Pacific Bank has been ordered in another jurisdiction to stop presenting itself as a bank.

Fahy said Hooten, the former chief executive of Member Services Corp., told him in 1994 that he was president of Melchizedek, supposedly an island in the South Pacific.

Hooten first achieved notice in Houston business circles in the late 1980s when Members Services gobbled up several smaller companies. Hooten claimed the company, which reported 1989 revenues of $3.8 million, was on its way to being a $100 million company.

Hooten resigned in 1990 after the corporation sued him and Betty Hooten, then his wife, accusing them of converting company securities to their names. Members later dropped the lawsuit against the Hootens and agreed to buy back 2 million shares of its common stock held by Hooten.

Now, Hooten faces a raft of serious legal problems, according to Fahy's affidavit.

The FBI began an investigation of Hooten's activities last spring after his current wife, Karen Hooten, invited agents to her house to inspect three boxes of his financial records, Fahy said in his affidavit.

Karen Hooten, locked in a divorce battle with her husband, "advised that everything Hooten did was a complete scam," Fahy said.

The securities board affidavit recounted five cases in which Hooten had collected more than $150,000 for letters of credit worth more than $6 million.

The Insurance Department said Hooten's enterprises collected more than $145,000 in premiums for bonds with a total liability of more than $10 million. The bonds were issued to guarantee performance by contractors.

Hooten admitted that he told the U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Houston in 1995 that his net assets, other than his home, were worth $10,310, Fahy said in his affidavit.

Is looted gold stored?

NEW YORK (AP) — Tons of gold looted by Nazis during World War II — some of it possibly taken from the fillings in Holocaust victims' teeth — are stored in the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and in the Bank of England in London, a Jewish organization said.

Recently declassified federal documents show that 6 tons of gold looted by Nazis are stored in the two banks, the World Jewish Congress said Thursday. The group's president has written to the two countries asking that the gold be returned to Holocaust survivors.

"At this point we cannot verify whether this report is true or not," said Rich Mills, spokesman for the Senate Banking Committee, which is gathering information on Swiss banks, where larger caches of Nazi gold are believed to be stored.

Elan Steinberg, a spokesman for the World Jewish Congress, said Thursday that the declassified documents from the U.S. State Department showed there were 2 tons of Nazi gold in New York and 4 tons in London.

He estimated that the gold in New York was worth about $28 million and the gold in London about $56 million.

"This is gold the Nazis plundered — whether from the central banks of Europe, the personal possessions of their victims or indeed from the gold teeth fillings of death camp victims, we don't know," he said.

13 soldiers ambushed

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Thirteen Ugandan soldiers and a commandant for a Sudanese refugee camp were killed in an ambush the army blamed on rebels.

The group was attacked Sept. 13 as the soldiers searched for rebels near the Ikafe refugee camp, 190 miles northwest of Kampala, U.N. refugee agency spokesman Peter Kessler said Thursday from Nairobi, Kenya.

Army officials in West Nile region, quoted by the state-owned New Vision daily, blamed the killings on the Uganda National Rescue Front, a splinter group of the West Nile Bank Front.

The WNBF is loyal to former dictator Idi Amin Dada, who lives in exile in Saudi Arabia.

Bill approved

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico's Senate on Thursday unanimously approved a bill to counter a U.S. measure, which seeks to discourage other world countries from trading with Cuba.

The bill would severely fine Mexican companies or individuals that obey provisions of the Helms-Burton law, which sanctions companies doing business in Cuba that involve properties confiscated from U.S. interests without compensation by President Fidel Castro's regime.

During debate, the legislators blasted the Helms-Burton law, claiming it violates Mexico's sovereignty. They also argued that the United States is trying to impose its own laws on world governments.

Open-bar reception spells trouble

DEAR ABBY: I usually agree with your advice, but you missed the boat when you sided with the woman who thought it was improper to have a cash bar at a wedding reception.

Serving liquor has become a liability even if you serve it to a guest in your home. If the guest leaves your home and is arrested or has an accident, is the guest blamed? No, the person who provided the alcohol is at fault. A nasty lawsuit can result, not to mention personal injury should an accident occur.

Did the woman feel she was entitled to free liquor because she sent an "appropriate gift" from one of the "best stores"? Attending the wedding, being part of the celebration and attending the reception wasn't enough? Does free liquor make the event more meaningful? I think not.

Unfortunately, people invariably drink more when the drinks are free. Paying for each drink is a reminder of how many drinks they have had. A cash bar at a wedding reception is indeed proper. Guests who must have alcoholic beverages can pay for them and bear the responsibility.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED,
CAPE CORAL, FLA.

DEAR TIMES HAVE CHANGED: Ouch! I was soundly clobbered for having agreed that a cash bar at a wedding reception was improper. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: You told a reader that a cash bar at a wedding reception was not proper. You are out of touch — it is proper. The key word is liability. An open bar may lead to overindulgence. Overindulgence may lead to automobile or other accidents. If the bar is free, the liability may be that of the host. If the wedding guests are charged for their drinks, it not only tends to slow them down, but puts the responsibility on the bar/restaurant/establishment.

Please do not use my name. My husband is a retired attorney and he refuses to acknowledge my law degree by osmosis. Sign me ...

M. FROM OREGON

DEAR ABBY: In the great state of Minnesota where lawsuits are running rampant, a cash bar is the only way to go.

The hotel or restaurant has the necessary insurance to cover any liabilities. If you provide the liquor, you are liable for anyone leaving drunk and killing themselves or others.

Have you ever seen what happens when free liquor is provided? People drink three times as much as they would if they had to pay for it.

A good idea is to provide alcohol-free champagne and toast the couple; then let the guests buy their own drinks.

The last wedding reception we went to had a free keg of beer. When the keg was empty, they played "Taps." Tacky? Yes. Funny? Very.

JEANNE GRATES,
PLYMOUTH, MINN.

DEAR ABBY: "Confused in Connecticut" implied that she gave wedding gifts in exchange for unlimited free drinks.

Abby, I could have been the bride at that wedding, so I hope you will air my side of the story.

I wanted my reception to be held at some out-of-the-way place that was absolutely "dry" — not because of my religious beliefs, but because I was horrified to think what could happen if my family had unlimited free booze. However, my mother insisted on having the reception at her favorite restaurant.

The manager tried to persuade me to have an open bar plus a champagne fountain, but I convinced him that it would not be a good idea by relating a few horror stories about my cousin's wedding. Unfortunately, I couldn't do anything about the main bar upstairs. At least the distance of the main bar from the reception and the expense of paying for their own drinks kept the lid on things.

I suppose I could have eloped, but I took the risk because I really wanted a wedding. My mother had looked forward to planning it, and my future husband and his parents expected one. I just didn't want my reception to involve a lot of police officers and emergency room doctors.

Please don't use my name. Sign me ...

Tigers ready for undefeated Bulldogs

By Brent Taylor
Sports Editor

A year ago, it was the death of a former student that caused a major distraction for the Snyder Tigers as they prepared to face the Abilene Wylie Bulldogs.

This year as the Tigers get ready for the Bulldogs, there is a minor diversion ...homecoming.

"I hope homecoming won't be a distraction for our kids," said coach David Baugh. "The parade on Thursday afternoon is good. You have the pep-rally on Friday and those things are good as long as the football team is not responsible for doing it all. As long as they focus on the game and get ready to play, the team is all right and those others things help them to get ready to play."

The Tigers come into tonight's game with a 1-1 record, winning the opener over Andrews, 22-21, and then dropping a battle to Sweetwater, 27-16.

The Bulldogs are undefeated as they come to Tiger Stadium for what will be their first road trip of the year. Wylie opened with a 28-7 victory over Hamlin and then got lucky on Friday the 13th with a 21-19 squeaker over Class 4A Graham a week ago.

A roughing-the-kicker penalty on a 39-yard field goal gave the Bulldogs new life. Four plays later, a 22-yard field goal with 11 seconds by Todd Barnett gave Wylie the win.

Wylie is the third playoff team the Tigers have faced in as many weeks. The Bulldogs made it to the third-round of the playoffs before being knocked off by Springtown.

Coach Hugh Sandifer has 23 letterman back, but only three returning starters on each side of the line.

Wylie has 10 wins in each of its last three seasons, but this year's team is a little different.

"My impression of Wylie is that they are very quick," Baugh said. "The last few years they have been huge up front, but they only have one big kid up front this year.

"This year they are extremely quick. I just hope our big guys can get on them because they are very aggressive and very quick."

In last week's game with Graham, the Bulldogs' quarterback, Brady Hall was 15 of 30 for 185 yards and two touchdowns.

Wylie had a balanced attack with 168 yards on the ground to go with its passing game. Jacob Pruitt was the leading ground gainer with 134 yards on 23 carries

After two games, the Tigers are averaging just over 300 yards, 229 rushing and 78.5 passing.

L.S. McClain is the leading yard gainer with 258 or 129 per game which averages out to 5.6 yards every time he touches it. Quarterback Russell Riggan's yard per carry average is even better at 6.8. Riggan has rushed for 191 yards or 95.5 a game.

In addition to his running, Riggan has thrown for 157 yards.

The injury report is long for Snyder, but the good news, most can play with their injuries.

Two-way starter Chris Post, who hurt an ankle against Sweetwater, will play tonight. Freddy Rocha is still having back problems. Eric Tovar has a sore shoulder. Jay Don Griffin's ankle is hurting some. Rocha, Tovar and Griffin should see some action.

The big concern for the Tiger coaching staff is Matthew Fambro. Fambro has been having some muscle spasms in his back. "I want him to be well for Friday night," Baugh said.

Kickoff tonight is set for 7:30 in Tiger Stadium.

WELCOME TO OUR JUNGLE — The Snyder Tigers will face the Wylie Bulldogs tonight at 7:30 in the annual homecoming contest. Thursday, the parade was held with the players and cheerleaders riding on a float entitled, Welcome To Our Jungle. (SDN Staff Photo By Brent Taylor)

Bulldogs look to make it 2-in-a-row

The Ira Bulldogs will be looking to make it two-in-a-row tonight when they hit the road for the first time to face Rule in a 7:30 contest.

The Bulldogs took a bite out of Veribest last week, 46-0, in a six-man contest that was called on the 45-point rule in the third quarter.

The win evened up Ira's record at 1-1. Rule is also 1-1 after falling last week to Newcastle, 55-24.

The other Scurry County team, Hermleigh, will also be traveling tonight. The Cardinals will face Klondike at 7:30.

Hermleigh will look to rebound after suffering a loss to Blackwell last week, 58-12. Klondike is winless so far and took it on the chin to New Home a week ago, 48-30.

Elsewhere in District 6 Six-Man, Highland will be at Paint Rock, New Home travels to Loraine, Westbrook is to face Jayton and Southland goes to Gail to contest Borden County.

Mariners sweep Rangers

SEATTLE (AP) — It's hard to believe. The Seattle Mariners may be on the verge of doing it again.

"It was a productive four days, wasn't it?" Seattle manager Lou Piniella asked.

Yes, it was.

Down by nine games on Sept. 11, the Mariners cut their deficit in the AL West race to two on Thursday with a 7-6 victory over the Texas Rangers, completing a four-game sweep.

"I normally expect the unexpected," Will Clark of Texas said.

And this was the unexpected.

The Mariners tied their longest winning streak of the season at eight games. Meanwhile, the Rangers lost their eighth out of nine.

Ken Griffey Jr. and Dan Wilson drove in three runs each for Seattle. Suddenly, a second straight division title seems realistic.

"I think everybody in here was thinking it was possible to catch these guys," said Norm Charlton, who got his second save in less than 24 hours. "The guys who won here saw what happened last year."

The Mariners have been down this road before.

A year ago, Piniella's team overcame a 12½-game deficit on Aug. 20 and beat California in a one-game playoff. This year's comeback has been even more stunning, with Seattle gaining seven games in the standings in eight days.

"We're down to nail-biting time and right now we're right there in it," said Tim Davis (2-2), who allowed one run in three innings. "I think our chances are looking good."

The Mariners also picked up half a game in the AL wild-card race to close within 1½ of Baltimore, which split a doubleheader at New York.

The Mariners owned the Rangers this season, beating them 10 of 13 games, including the last five in a row in Seattle.

Texas, with nine games remaining, is trying to overcome the pressure in its quest for its first playoff appearance. The Rangers aren't handling that pressure well.

"This is as much adversity as we've faced all year," manager Johnny Oates admitted.

WTC rodeo team off to a good start

PORTALES, N.M. — The 1996 season is underway for the Western Texas College rodeo team here as the first performance of the Eastern New Mexico University rodeo is in the books.

After long go, Chad Maynard is in first place with a 75 in bareback. Lance Gaillard is in a tie for first in saddle bronc with a 71.

In steer wrestling, Jason Shelby is sitting third with a 16.6.

Acording to rodeo coach Todd Danley, most of the WTC students are up for tonight's performance at 7:30. There will be slack following the performance and again Saturday morning.

8th grade gold blanks Wylie, 14-0

It was a 14-0 triumph for the Snyder Junior High eighth grade A team Thursday over Wylie.

Matthew Grimmett was on the end of a 20-yard touchdown pass from Jared Thornhill. Jessie Haines also caught a touchdown pass from Thornhill, this one from 28 yards.

Thornhill ended the game six of 10 for 77 yards. Josh Arizmendi rushed for 65 yards on 13 carries. Chris McClure had five yards on one carry. Jeremy Bowden picked up 21 yards on four carries and caught a pass for 12. Jamaal Wofford carried five times for 21 yards. Norris Williams gained five yards an a carry. Will Ballard rushed for 35 yards on two carries. Brandon McCraw caught two passes for 11 yards.

According to coach Chris Henson, the offensive line did a great jcb blocking. The line includes Lance Foreman, Mark Medley, Chad Thomas, Daniel Highfield and R.J. Hernandez.

The eighth grade black team tied Wylie, 12-12.

Scoring for the black team was Patrick McCamey on an 85-yard kickoff return and Edwin James on a 42-yard run.

The eighth grade teams will face Big Spring at Travis field Thursday.

JV remains perfect

WYLIE — The Snyder High School JV kept its unbeaten record intact here Thursday night with a one-point victory over Abilene Wylie, 9-8.

Ben Boyd caught a 43-yard pass from Justin McNair for the first touchdown. The two-point conversion failed.

Wylie came back and took the lead, 8-6, but the game came down to the wire.

With 27 seconds to play, Andy Parker was called on and was successful on a 37-yard field goal for the win.

According to coach Tommy Doyle, "We had five different people recover fumbles." The players were Aaron Stanley, Cory Chesser, Cory Mandrell, Toby Zalman and Jeff Knowles. Boyd also intercepted a pass.

The JV will be back at Tiger Stadium Thrusday to entertain Big Spring at 6 p.m.

7th grade black wins; gold loses

There were two shutouts Thursday in seventh grade football action.

Snyder Junior High's black team came out on top of Wylie, 22-0. Zack Billingsley scored on runs of 30 and 15 yards. Brooks Nunley threw to Mark Haines for one two-point conversion and Mark Beals ran for the second conversion.

T.J. Cagle scored the final touchdown on a five-yard run.

Coach Charlie Bollinger gave credit to his offensive line for a good game. The line consist of Sam Arizmendi, Sean Thomas, Heath Conners, Danny Thurman, Craig Bowen and Wesley Phariss.

The white team was not as lucky, coming out on the short end of a 36-0 score.

The seventh grade teams will go to Big Spring Thursday.

Ravens like Morris

OWINGS MILLS, Md. (AP) — The Baltimore Ravens, looking to bolster a struggling ground game, have opened negotiations with free agent running back Bam Morris.

Morris hasn't played in the NFL since the Pittsburgh Steelers cut him before training camp this summer. Morris pleaded guilty to a marijuana possession charge on June 26, and three months before that was arrested near Rockwall, Texas, after police reportedly found six pounds of marijuana in his car.

But Morris looked good in a tryout with Baltimore on Wednesday, and the Ravens are seeking to revive a ground game that is averaging just 88 yards a game.

"We're talking. Something might happen in one or two days," owner Art Modell said Thursday.

Gunman, hostage die in law office takeover

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Terry Hogan was angry that a law firm had fought to cut off his workers compensation benefits and out for revenge.

Hogan, whose picture was up in the office because he had threatened lawyers before, killed an attorney and then himself Thursday after holding at least 10 hostages during a four-hour standoff with police, witnesses said.

Millie Rodarnel was taking a smoke break outside the offices of Danielson, Clark, Pumpian and Ford when Hogan stepped out of a taxi he had carjacked and confronted them.

"He grabbed my arm and said 'OK, sweetheart, it's OK if you just listen to me and you won't get hurt,'" said Rodarnel, a secretary at the firm. He ordered her and two colleagues inside.

"We had seen his pictures up in the office because he had threatened us before," said Rodarnel.

Four taken into custody

Two people were arrested Thursday while two others were taken into custody early this morning on public intoxication charges.

A 47-year-old male was arrested at 2:42 p.m. Thursday in the 1100 block of Avenue E for driving while license suspended. At the same time, officers arrested a 25-year-old male on an outstanding city warrant for Class C assault and failure to appear.

Two people were arrested for public intoxication at 3:23 a.m. today near the intersection of Highway 180 and 84. Taken into custody were a 39-year-old male and a 37-year-old male.

In other activity Thursday, at 5:26 p.m., Jason Hewett reported the theft of a golf club from his vehicle while it was parked at the pro shop at Western Texas College. An offense report for Class B theft was submitted.

Alton Patterson requested to speak to an officer at 6:08 p.m. in reference to a theft from 2805 33rd St. An offense report for Class B theft was submitted.

An officer was requested at the Cogdell Hospital emergency room at 8:11 p.m. in reference to a 19-year-old male at the emergency room who had been assaulted. An offense report for Class A assault was submitted.

A report of gunshots being fired was made at 12:23 a.m. Friday in the area of 37th Street and Highland Drive. Officers did not find anyone with a gun in the area.

Minor wrecks reported here

City officers worked several accidents Thursday, all minor.

At 2:51 p.m., an accident was reported in the 3100 block of 32nd Street. Involved were a 1984 Cadillac driven by Shana Sanchez of 2008 30th St. and a 1988 Mercury driven by Sandi Nichols of 920 Oak in Fluvanna.

At 4:27 p.m., officers responded to an accident in the 1100 block of Coliseum Drive. Involved were a 1993 Kenworth truck-tractor driven by Kenneth Holdeman of Roswell, N.M. and a 1995 Chevrolet driven by Johnny Sutter of 3102 Ave. A.

A vehicle-pedestrian accident was reported at 9:43 p.m. from Scurry County Coliseum. Involved were a 1990 Ford pick-up pulling a flat-bed trailer, driven by Nathaniel Brown of Stanton. A wheel on the trailer ran over the foot of 13-year-old Felipe Gutierrez of 2803 Ave. Q. He refused treatment at the scene.

Teen-ager sentenced to maximum

NEW YORK (AP) — A teen-ager who killed a girl's dog by setting it on fire has been sentenced to the maximum penalty of six to 18 months in a juvenile facility.

Family Court Judge Richard Berman on Wednesday called the burning of the dog — named Granpa after the 11-year-old girl's grandfather — "a heinous act" before sentencing the 15-year-old boy.

A 10-year-old who admitted he also helped burn the dog awaits sentencing.

On Sept. 25, 1995, the two youths soaked the neighbor's dog, a husky mix, with flammable liquid and then set the animal on fire.

The owners found the dog in flames, its hair singed off and open wounds on its front paws, neck and face. Granpa died about three weeks later.

Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints...

Satellite branch opens here

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints has opened a new satellite branch in Snyder. New branches are established when there are enough church members in a given area to sustain it.

The new congregation was officially formed July 14. The Snyder branch is part of the Odessa stake, which includes the Permian Basin, Alpine, Ft. Stockton, Hobbs and other outlying areas.

Church members in Snyder drove 50 miles to and from Big Spring for Sunday services, said Charles Jarrett, newly-appointed branch president.

"I began to find out how many families had memberships in the church here who weren't attending," said Jarrett. From that point, he said his work was cut out for him.

A strong added boost toward his efforts was provided in March, when a pair of full-time missionaries, Elders Sorenson and Graff were assigned to Snyder. Then in May, another missionary team, Elder and Mrs. Hinckley were added in Snyder.

"Together, we worked even more diligently in contacting church members," said President Jarrett. "We were astonished at how rapidly everything came together."

In April, President Jarrett was given permission to find a building, and a former insurance office was found downtown at 2411 Ave. R.

He holds a full-time job as Food Service Director for Western Texas College. As almost all positions in the church, Jarrett receives no payment for his work.

He and his wife, Marilyn, have lived in Snyder since April of 1994. They have three children and six gandchildren.

"It's a big responsibility and very blessed to have this opportunity to serve the Lord," said Jarrett.

President Jarrett's first counselor is Elder Guy Hinckley, who is serving a full-time mission with his wife, LaPearl. They are from Rigby, Id.

"It's been a magnificent learning process," said Jarrett. "It's wonderful to watch the Lord's work grow and blossom."

The new branch has had nine baptisms in the past four months. Others who were instrumental in its success are Big Spring Bishop David Mohn and Big Spring Ward Mission Leader, Elton Wallace.

Torme moved to intensive-care

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mel Torme, who suffered a stroke last month, was moved back into an intensive-care unit because of gastrointestinal problems, his spokesman said.

The singer known as the Velvet Fog for his smooth, silky voice, was expected to be in intensive care until early next week. No additional details about the setback were released.

Torme, 71, was in his eighth day of rehabilitation when he was moved Wednesday, spokesman Rob Wilcox said. The name of the Los Angeles-area hospital was withheld.

"He was making daily improvements," said Wilcox, adding that Torme had been able to stand and communicate by mouthing words or writing notes.

Torme suffered a stroke Aug. 8 that caused slurred speech and weakness in his left side. He developed pneumonia and had a partially collapsed lung.

What causes daily ankle swelling?

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Every morning when I get up, my ankles and wrists swell. My left leg swells all the way to my knee. I've taken several diuretics that help a little, but the swelling doesn't go down completely until after a night's rest. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER: There are many causes of edema (excess fluid retention), ranging from heart failure to nutritional deficiency. Diuretic pills (kidney stimulants) may reduce the swelling but, I'm afraid, you won't be completely symptom-free until the cause of your edema has been identified and specific therapy prescribed.

In my view, your family doctor can begin the investigation with blood tests, X-rays, and a cardiogram.

Edema is a symptom, not a disease. You need to learn more about why this reaction is occurring. Your doctor can supervise the testing.

To give you more information on two possible causes of the edema, I am sending you copies of my Health Reports "Understanding Heart Disease" and "Eating Right for a Healthy Heart." Other readers who would like copies should send $2 for each report plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title(s).

DEAR DR. GOTT: More than 20 yeas ago, my sister became legally blind. Her ophthalmologist indicated the cause was histoplasmosis, described as a veil in her eyes that blocked forward — but not peripheral — vision. Never did the many doctors offer her treatment, nor any hope that her eyes could be treated in any way to restore vision. You stated in a recent article that this is a chronic infection caused by fungus, and it is treatable. Why, then, were her problems irreversible?

DEAR READER: Histoplasmosis, an infection caused by the inhalation of mold spores, usually causes little more than scar tissue in the lungs. However, in some patients, it can — for unknown reasons — spread to involve other organs: skin, liver, bone, and kidneys.

The eyes may be infected. If treated at an early stage — with drugs, such as amphotericin B — the disease is, by and large, curable.

However, if therapy is delayed, scar tissue forms in the affected organs. In the case of the eyes, vision diminishes.

Therefore, I assume that your sister's blindness was a result of ocular scarring, not the infection itself. Unfortunately, 20 years ago, therapy for histoplasmosis was not universally available.

I suggest that your sister be examined by an ophthalmologist. Perhaps newer surgical techniques might enable the specialist to remove the "veil" of scar tissue and restore a portion of her sight.

Panel recommends new drug for mild multiple sclerosis

GAITHERSBURG, Md. (AP) — Although no cure exists for multiple sclerosis, a new drug holds out the promise that some sufferers will have fewer attacks and a better quality of life as a result.

The drug, copolymer 1, got the go-ahead Thursday from an advisory panel of doctors and other scientists. The Food and Drug Administration usually follows such recommendations.

If approved, the drug would become the second type available to treat mostly people with mild to moderate forms of the crippling disease of the central nervous system. The other two drugs, both new, are similar to each other.

"The last three years have brought a major change in the way we view and the way we're able to manage multiple sclerosis," said Stephen Reingold, vice president for research and medical programs at the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, hailing the new drugs.

Unlike steroids and other drugs used to treat symptoms, the newcomers and several others being tested fight the disease itself.

By inhibiting MS attacks, copolymer 1 lessens the chance that patients will suffer progressively worse disabilities that would leave them unable to get around without wheelchairs or other walking aids, researchers said.

The advisory committee, however, said research data arguably showing that some patients had improvements in their physical ability were questionable.

About 300,000 Americans suffer from multiple sclerosis, which attacks myelin, a fatty substance that insulates nerves. Sufferers experience fatigue, vision problems, tingling or numbing in the arms and legs and other symptoms during early attacks of the disease.

The disabling attacks can last for months. It mostly attacks people in their 20s and 30s, women more than men. U.S. physicians diagnose 8,800 new cases each year.

"I could not walk, I could not hold my daughter, I could not take care of my kids," Donna DiCarlo, 37, of Baltimore, told the panel Thursday, describing a three-month episode shortly after her second child was born in June 1991.

She began daily shots of the new drug in January 1992 as part of a trial through the University of Maryland Medical Center. She has been free of attacks since then.

"I'm walking and I'm fine," said Mrs. DiCarlo, accounting manager at a graphics and printing company. "I'm able to function and take care of my husband, work, the kids, the house."

Copolymer 1, a protein, was developed at the Weizmann Institute of Science in Rehovot, Israel. It is manufactured under the name Copaxone by the Israeli drug company Teva Pharmaceutical Industries Ltd.

Questions may be addressed to the National Multiple Sclerosis Society at 1-800-FIGHT MS.

Texas poll shows Clinton, Dole running even

AUSTIN (AP) — President Clinton and Republican challenger Bob Dole are running even in the race to carry Texas in the Nov. 5 election, according to the latest Texas Poll.

Clinton and Dole each drew the support of 41 percent of the 820 likely Texas voters questioned Sept. 3-13. Reform Party nominee Ross Perot was supported by 8 percent of those surveyed, and the other 10 percent were undecided.

The Texas Poll, published Thursday, was conducted for Harte-Hanks Communications and other Texas news outlets by the Office of Survey Research at the University of Texas at Austin.

The poll has a margin of error of 3.5 percentage points.

The results show little change from a Texas Poll conducted in June. That survey showed Clinton and Dole in a statistical tie considering the margin of error, with Dole at 39 percent, Clinton 37 percent and Perot 11 percent.

Last week, a survey conducted by Mason-Dixon Political-Media Research Inc. showed Dole leading in Texas with 49 percent to 38 percent for Clinton and 5 percent for Perot. The survey conducted Sept. 6-8 had a margin of error of 3.5 percent.

Yet another poll conducted Sept. 2-5 for the Houston Chronicle and Dallas Morning News indicated a statistical tie, with Dole at 44 percent, Clinton 41 percent, Perot 4 percent and the same margin of error.

"We're a long way from declaring victory, but the momentum is clearly moving our way," said Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro, who heads Clinton's Texas campaign.

He gave credit Thursday to Democratic campaign workers for rallying support at the local level and narrowing the gap.

But while Democrats contend that gap is closing, Texas Republican Party Chairman Tom Pauken said the latest poll understates support for Dole in Texas.

He pointed to a recent survey conducted by the Mason-Dixon Political-Media Research Inc. that showed Dole leading in Texas by 11 percent, with 49 percent compared to Clinton's 38 percent and Perot's 5 percent.

Pauken estimates that Dole's lead is somewhere in the "5 to 10 percent range."

"My own sense is that Bob Dole has a lead — I don't think it's a dead heat," Pauken said.

A spokeswoman for the Dole-Kemp Texas campaign said the Texas Poll is outdated and doesn't reflect what's happening now.

"The poll was conducted from the day after Labor Day, when Clinton was still enjoying a bounce from the (Democratic) convention ... and ended when the Iraqi crisis was heating up," said spokeswoman Allison Griffin. "Naturally that's going to be a time when Texans rally around their troops and their commander-in-chief."

The winner in Texas in the Nov. 5 election gets its 32 electoral votes. Texas has not favored a Democratic presidential nominee since Jimmy Carter in 1976.

In other political news:

— Democratic Senate nominee Victor Morales was criticized by the National Republican Senatorial Committee for a $500 to $1000-a-head fundraiser where the committee said Morales and lobbyists will "raise more money, eat hors d' ouevres."

Morales' campaign coordinator Greg Weiner said it's almost a joke that incumbent Republican Sen. Phil Gramm would take up issue with the fundraiser.

"If there is any member of Congress who has cozied up to these guys ... it's Phil Gramm," Weiner said.

Gramm's press secretary, Larry Neal, said there is nothing wrong with Morales "swapping campaign stories and drinking whiskey with lobbyists," but he ought to come clean.

"We always thought (Morales) was just a little guy in a pickup truck, but apparently he has much higher ambitions," Neal said.

Young and gone

By Phillip Alder

It is depressing how many of my bridge friends have died this year. Another one, Richard O'Reilly, left us on March 28 at the early age of 47. He didn't play much bridge in the last few years, but he had been very successful in partnership with Chris Duckworth, winning the Guardian Pairs and Evening Standard Teams in 1974, both prestigious events. And they finished third in the Common Market Junior Teams the following year.

O'Reilly quickly spotted the right line in this deal. How would you play in six diamonds against a heart lead?

North's three-no-trump rebid is awful. Two diamonds is automatic. However, clearly O'Reilly knew his partner's eccentric tendencies, introducing his diamond suit.

A trump lead would have killed the contract, but West selected a heart.

O'Reilly saw that he didn't have the communications to establish his club suit. Instead, he won trick one with dummy's heart king, cashed dummy's spade ace, ruffed a spade in hand, played a heart to dummy's ace and ruffed the heart five in hand. Then came the club ace and a club ruff with dummy's diamond five. Having scored all his low trumps, O'Reilly claimed five more tricks on a high crossruff.

It is one of the pleasures of life to make a slam while your opponents are going down in three no-trump, as happened in this deal. Losing friends like Richard O'Reilly is at the other end of the stimulation spectrum. Almost all bridge players have their aggressive side. I never saw one in Richard: He was always happy and enjoying life.

Custody fight to be closed to public

NEW YORK (AP) — The custody fight over "Home Alone" star Macauley Culkin and five of his siblings will be closed to the news media and public, a state appeals court ruled.

In the 4-1 ruling Thursday, the judges said they ruled against an open trial because it was in the children's best interest.

Happy Birthday "Pam"

I guess I had forgotten just how much I love you
For since you left me all alone I don't know what to do.
I guess I took for granted the love I had at home,
But I want you to know I appreciate your love and hope it's not gone.
I guess that you will always be the master, I'm the slave,
And I will never get enough of that special love you gave.

The seconds seem like hours, the hours seem like days,
There's not a day that goes by, I don't relive the ways...
I still reach out in the night and can feel your soft touch.
It always gave me peace of mind when life had been too much.

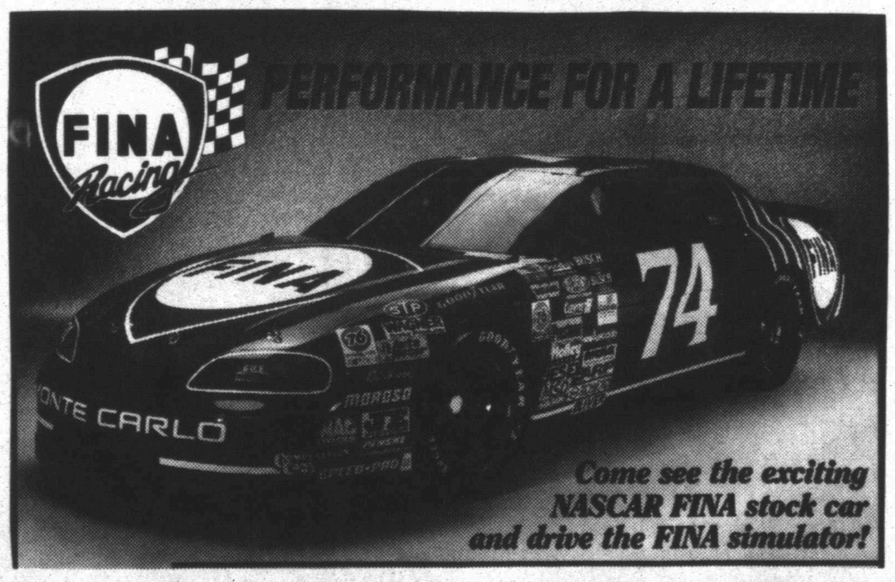

I guess I should have told you, you dominate my life
And it has always been this way, since you became my wife.
I guess each time the phone rings, I'll hope you're on the line
And pray that you'll be saying, you're coming home this time.
I guess that I should try to sleep, though you will fill my dreams
And try to keep my troubled mind from coming apart at the seams.

The seconds seem like hours, the hours seem like days.
There's not a day that goes by, I don't relive the ways...
I still reach out in the night and can feel your soft touch.
It always gave me peace of mind when life had been too much.

I guess that I will end this now, but the end is like the start.
Please don't ever forget, I love you with all my heart.

Abortion issue moves to Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opponents of so-called partial-birth abortion face tough odds in the Senate after celebrating a House vote to reverse President Clinton's veto of a bill banning the procedure.

"We have an uphill battle in the Senate. I don't think there's any secret about that," said Rep. Charles Canady, R-Fla., an abortion foe who led the 285-137 vote Thursday to override the presidential veto.

The vote, four more than needed for the two-thirds majority required for overrides, was a major victory for anti-abortion forces who have made the drastic form of late-term abortion their key issue this election year.

Republican presidential nominee Bob Dole, who supports the ban and has criticized Clinton's veto in campaign speeches, said Thursday that as Americans learn details of the procedure "the president has been left almost alone, defending the indefensible."

Last April, Clinton, surrounded by five women who had undergone the procedure, vetoed the bill, saying it failed to make an exception when the health of the mother is at risk.

Opponents of the legislation say the procedure, known medically as intact dilation and evacuation, is used only rarely when doctors discover severe abnormalities in the fetus or the mother has serious health problems.

Viki Wilson, a registered nurse from Fresno, Calif., had the procedure two years ago after she learned late in her pregnancy that her baby's brain had grown outside the head. She said Thursday that normal or induced labor would have ruptured her cervix and probably crushed her.

But Republican sponsors of the legislation won 70 Democratic supporters for the override by insisting that the procedure is often elective and is particularly offensive because the fetus is partially delivered feet first through the birth canal before the brain is removed.

It will be more difficult to get bipartisan support in the Senate, where the bill passed last December by 54-44, well short of the two-thirds margin needed to override.

Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott promised a vote, possibly next Thursday, but acknowledged, "I suspect it will be hard to override it."

Sen. Don Nickles, R-Okla., the GOP whip and chief vote-counter, expressed doubt they could change enough votes for the override. "That's quite a few votes (to get), but we'll be working at it."

Even with those prospects, abortion foes claimed a major victory. "It will mobilize millions of evangelical and Catholic voters who will go to the polls in record numbers in November," said Ralph Reed of the Christian Coalition.

"This was the most historic vote since Roe vs. Wade in the House," said anti-abortion leader Rep. Chris Smith, R-N.J., referring to the 1973 Supreme Court ruling that gave women the right to have abortions.

If enacted, the ban on partial-birth abortions would mark the first to ban a specific type of abortion since Roe vs. Wade.

"This bill is about restricting the moral decisions of American women, it's about taking medical discretion away from doctors and families, and its about eroding our reproductive rights," said American Civil Liberties Union Director Janet Gallagher.

Abortion rights proponent Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., asked supporters of the bill why they did not hold the override vote in April rather than just before the election. "If you thought this was so grisly and horrible, that's when you should have done it."

Under the legislation, a doctor who performs the procedure illegally could face fines and up to two years in prison. The bill also would let the father or maternal grandparents file a civil lawsuit against the doctor for monetary damages.

Some 75,000 pilgrims attend outdoor Mass in France today

SAINTE-ANNE-d'AURAY, France (AP) — Cheered by the biggest turnout of his visit, Pope John Paul II today cautioned young French Catholics against letting their faith weaken — an apparent response to those who reject his conservative stance on sexual issues.

At least 75,000 pilgrims attended an outdoor Mass in this Brittany town, where the pope arrived after spending a wet, chilly morning in the Loire Valley.

In the weeks while the French church was preparing for the pope's visit, hundreds of French Roman Catholics demanded their names be struck from baptism registrars to protest John Paul's conservative policies, including opposition to married priests, abortion, birth control and divorce.

Across the English Channel, the church was dealing with the fallout from a Scottish bishop who ran off with one woman and fathered a son with another. John Paul's acceptance Thursday of the Most Rev. Roderick Wright's resignation did little to quiet the uproar.

Cardinal Basil Hume, leader of Roman Catholics in England and Wales, had suggested the ban on priests marrying could be revised. The prelate also told the British Broadcasting Corp. that the church should have done more for the boy fathered by the bishop.

Guidelines are issued organs after death, federal statistics show. But 48,000 people are on a growing list of people awaiting transplants.

Scientists are increasingly worried about transfer of animal diseases to humans. For example, they are exploring possible links between mad cow disease and Creutzfeld Jakob Disease in humans. Even common animal bacteria such as salmonella can cause serious, even fatal, illness in people.

"This guideline is aimed at achieving the right balance," said FDA Commissioner David Kessler. "We want to protect the public and patients from potential risks while not impeding research into these promising new treatments."

The FDA recommends that patients be told of the potential risks of animal transplants to themselves, their families and close contacts, especially sexual partners. Patients should be monitored for possible new types of infections, the agency said.

Surgical transplant teams should include a veterinarian and a doctor specializing in infectious diseases, the guidelines say. The hospital or clinic should be associated with an accredited virology and microbiology laboratory.

Also, the proposals urge that samples of blood, cells and tissue from the animals and human recipients be saved for follow-up investigations. And the animals should be bred and reared in captivity from known stock and with close record-keeping and screening for known causes of infection.
