OPEC raises price to $21

■ The oil cartel set a new production ceiling of 22.5 million barrels a day for the rest of 1990.

Associated Press

GENEVA — OPEC ministers agreed Friday to halt overproduction in hopes of pushing up the price of crude oil, and New York experts said U.S. motorists may wind up paying five to 10 cents more a gallon at the pumps this fall.

All 13 ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries signed an accord to notch up their target price immediately from $18 a barrel to $21.

Texas Railroad Commissioner Kent Hance, who had gone to Geneva to observe the meeting, stated that "I think the agreement reached Friday was positive news for Texas, and will be positive news for the Texas economy."

OPEC President Sadek Boussena, who is Algeria's oil minister, said the agreement allows no cheating on production quotas "for any reason whatsoever."

The cartel set a new production ceiling of 22.5 million barrels a day for the rest of the year.

Hance, calling from Chicago while waiting for his flight home, observed that "I think what the Iraqis did this week will help ensure quotas will be met and help cut back on cheating. They set a target price of $21, which shows they're serious about their quotas."

He went on to predict that West Texas Intermediate would rise to between $20 and $22.50 by the end of the year.

Hance will be in Midland Thursday to give a full report on the OPEC meeting to members of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

OPEC is producing about 23 million to 23.2 million barrels of oil a day, well over the ceiling of 22.1 million in effect in the first half of the year.

Friday's agreement was struck a little more than a week after President Saddam Hussein of Iraq threatened military action against overproducers.

Chronic oil-cheaters Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates — targets of Saddam's anger — agreed to slash their output by hundreds of thousands of barrels a day under the new agreement.

Iraq's oil minister, Issam Abdul Raheem al-Chalabi, said in an interview his country had to "put an end" to the excess production in OPEC, which depressed oil prices in the spring.

"We just cannot let anybody do whatever they like. ... They were harming the others," he said.

If excess production is indeed curbed, crude prices could climb several dollars higher by year's end, when demand for oil increases with colder weather in the United States and other consuming nations, analysts said.

New noble

PITTSBURGH (AP) — With two Rolls-Royces and a net worth put at $370 million, Joseph Hardy Sr. has some trappings of nobility.

But it wasn't until Thursday that the western Pennsylvania businessman could say he was a lord of the manor.

That's when Hardy and his wife, Dottie, purchased a title at a London auction for $187,000.

Now Hardy, founder of 84 Lumber Co., is lord of the manor of Henley-in-Arden in Warwickshire and is allowed to use the manor's coat of arms on his letterhead.

Pill 'hazardous'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration said Friday it wants Cal-Ban 3000 diet tablets and capsules taken off the market because they can cause throat obstructions and their weight-loss claims are unproven.

The agency advised consumers to stop using Cal-Ban, whose main ingredient is guar gum, a complex sugar that swells with water and creates a sense of fullness when eaten.

The FDA sent a letter to Cal-Ban's distributor, Health Care Products Inc. of Lutz, Fla., saying the agency would take legal action against the company if it does not stop distribution.

The agency called Cal-Ban "a health hazard" based on reports of 17 cases in which people experienced throat obstruction after eating Cal-Ban 3000. Ten were hospitalized and one died as an indirect result of the obstruction.

Bush boos

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — President Bush said Friday that comedienne Roseanne Barr's screeching rendition of the national anthem was "disgraceful" and that she wouldn;t be invited to sing at the White House.

"That's the way I feel about it and I think a lot of San Diego fans said the same thing."

Ms. Barr was loudly booed and has been roundly criticized since she sang the national anthem in an off-key, screaming voice between games of a baseball doubleheader Wednesday at San Diego's Jack Murphy Stadium.

Two people rescued from quake rubble

■ Miners continue to comb the Hyatt hotel for other possible survivors of the July 16 earthquake at Baguio, Philippines.

Associated Press

BAGUIO, Philippines — Miners who heard cries of "Help us!" rescued two people Friday from the rubble of a luxury hotel that collapsed 11 days ago in an earthquake that killed more than 1,600 people.

Doctors said the man and woman were in surprisingly good condition.

The man said a beam missed his head by inches. He was found lying near the bodies of four people.

Rescuers said the woman was in good spirits. They said when they called out "Mrs., are you all right?" she shouted back: "I'm still a miss!"

Manila radio reporters, broadcasting from the scene, said the two survived by drinking rainwater and their own urine.

Rescuers and spectators cheered as Luisa Mallorca, a 20-year-old cleaning woman, was pulled from the wreckage of the Hyatt Hotel at about 9:50 p.m. Arnel Calabia, a 26-year-old security guard, was recovered about an hour later.

As dawn broke Saturday, miners combed the hotel for other possible survivors. They pulled two male bodies from the debris.

At least 18 people who were in the Hyatt during the July 16 quake are still missing. Foreign rescue teams gave up searching last week, convinced no survivors would be found.

It was a major quake, measuring 7.7 on the Richter scale.

Calabia said he, Ms. Mallorca and a male employee were on the third floor when the quake struck. All three dived under tables "and then the ceiling fell in," he said in a radio interview.

"We recovered consciousness later and we called out to each other."

Williams among horizontal drilling leaders

By John Paul Pitts
Business & Oil Editor

■ An Analysis

Fate is smiling on Clayton Williams these days.

Leading in the gubernatiorial polls, Williams is also among the top three operators in the hottest oil and gas play in the state.

Oryx Energy is the leader in the horizontal drilling play in the Austin Chalk of South Texas, but observers say Williams and Eagle Pass wildcatter Charlie Winn are competing for second place. Second or third, it is a race for riches that stands to make him millions in profits.

If Williams has proven a ferocious spender in his race for governor, perhaps it is because of the promise of profits from his extensive interests in the horizontal drilling play that has captured the imagination of the oil industry everywhere.

"We are very satisfied with our results so far," said Tom Moore, president of Clayton W. Williams Inc., Williams' oil company. "All our dreams for this play have come true. We are right on target."

Williams recently completed his 17th horizontal well in the

Jurors in Mitchell trial had doubts officer gave proper identification

By Rick Brown
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Jurors who Friday found Midland tool shop owner H.L. Mitchell innocent of assaulting a police officer said afterward they had doubts whether the plain-clothed lawman had adequately identified himself.

After deliberating more than four hours, the six-man, six-woman panel of Travis County residents decided that Mitchell, who suffered two gunshot wounds in the altercation, was not guilty of all three charges leveled by the state.

In addition to assault, he was accused of resisting arrest while carrying a firearm and possessing a firearm on premises licensed to sell alcohol.

The owner of Red Snapper Reamers in south Midland, Mitchell showed scant emotion as State District Judge Pat Baskin read the verdicts, but the defendant removed his glasses and wiped away tears after his wife, Betsy, rushed past the bar to hug him.

Sounds of jubiliation came from other family members and friends gathered in the courtroom.

Mrs. Mitchell said afterward that "first" she was grateful her husband lived through the ordeal, which occurred just after midnight Aug. 6, 1988, in the parking lot at Bojangles lounge, 3709 W. Wall Ave.

Secondly, she wanted to express thanks to the people who had helped the family, she said.

Mitchell has filed a federal civil suit asking for $10 million in damages from the city of Midland in connection with the shooting. He refused the opportunity for comment after the verdict was delivered.

His attorney in the criminal case, Tom Morgan of Midland, also refused comment beyond expressing pleasure with the decision.

District Attorney Al Schorre also declined to speak about the trial, citing the pending litigation.

But the attorney who filed the $10 million suit, William Schmerler of Austin, said the verdict shows Mitchell "has been horribly, horribly injured under some pretty vicious circumstances."

LOCAL/AREA REPORTS

Two kilograms of drug seized

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — Law enforcement officials confiscated two kilograms of cocaine with a street value of more than $120,000 and arrested three individuals in connection with the drug about 2:30 p.m. Friday.

Three Hispanic men ages 26, 39 and 43 were apprehended along with the drug at 12269 W. Ben Brush Drive in Ector County, according to county sheriff Bob Brookshire.

The men remained in the custody of the Drug Enforcement Agency (DEA) Friday evening and are expected to be arraigned in federal court in Midland some time next week, Brookshire said.

The bust was a result of a three-day investigation that ended in a sting operation where law enforcement officers posed as drug buyers.

According to Brookshire, the information about the suspects came from Del Rio. The three men were known drug dealers believed to have moved from South Texas to the Odessa area, he said.

Brookshire credited the cooperation of six law enforcement agencies in the operation. "We can pull a heavier load by pulling together," he said. "I can't emphasize the cooperation (enough)."

Although the amount of the drug seized was considered a good-sized bust, it is a minor portion of what is coming into the area, Brookshire said.

The agencies involved in the investigation include: the Permian Basin Drug Task Force, DEA's Del Rio Narcotic Task Force, Texas Department of Public Safety Narcotics Divison, Ector County District Attorney's Office, and the Ector County Sheriff's Office.

Store robbery

ODESSA — A man in his late teens or early 20s robbed a convenience store of an undetermined amount of cash about 9:20 p.m. Thursday, Odessa police said.

The suspect reportedly entered the 7-Eleven store, 801 Harless Ave., and grabbed the clerk, Jania F. Cakl of Odessa, with his right hand and appeared to be holding something in his left hand.

The robber demanded money and threatened to "cut-up" the clerk if she didn't comply. The suspect then pushed the clerk toward the register and repeated his demand. Cakl opened the register and gave the robber an undetermined amount of cash.

The suspect, who fled following the robbery, was described as a Hispanic male, about 5 feet 2 inches tall, 115 pounds, with short brown hair and brown eyes. He was wearing a white short sleeved shirt with horizontal green stripes, dark cutoff shorts and white tennis shoes.

Robbery attempt

Two men were unsuccessful in an early Friday morning armed robbery attempt, Midland police reported.

About 3:20 a.m. a man entered the La Quinta Motor Inn, 4130 W. Wall St., and acted like he was going to check in.

At that time, the second suspect entered carrying what was believed to be a .22-caliber rifle and yelled at the desk clerk, Patrick Cowles.

Cowles then exited through a rear door to escape the would-be robbers, who fled the scene by breaking out a window on the east side of the building.

Nothing was taken in the incident.

Reward posted for information about killing

DALLAS — The owners of a North Dallas bar on Friday posted a $10,000 reward for information in the killing of a patron during an armed robbery.

The reward also is for information leading in the wounding of another man by a group of juveniles who robbed the Inwood Tavern and its customers before dawn Friday. The bar owners are Nancy Brinkley and Richard Isaly.

The five assailants, who remained at large late Friday, robbed a steakhouse, stole the manager's car and drove across the street to the tavern, where Jerry Poag, 31, of Dallas was shot.

Parents won't rest until they find out who killed daughter

AUSTIN (AP) — Her family knew her as Jan, their youngest daughter who loved animals and had sudden whims. Others knew her as Crystal, a 28-year-old prostitute associating with drifters, pimps and drug dealers.

Denise Jeanine Mason's parents and sister say she lived two lives: one as their daughter and sibling, another as a prostitute who had been infected with the AIDS virus.

Six months after she was found strangled, her relatives say they cannot rest until they know who killed her. Reaching into their savings, Don and Jean Mason are offering a $5,000 reward to find out.

"It's been a tough six months since this has happened, but we tried to go on with our lives," said her mother, Jean Mason, 53. "I don't think we'll be at ease, any of us, complete ease, until we know who did this."

Travis County investigators say the reward could be their only hope of cracking the Jan. 17 slaying. Bob Guard, a sheriff's office investigator, said there are no suspects and few firm leads.

Investigators say the young woman was killed at an unknown location and left lying face down about two feet from a roadway in northeastern Travis County. A passerby found her battered body. She had been strangled with a ligature that was still tied around her neck.

Just before her death, Ms. Mason had spent two days at her parents' home. Her mother dropped her off Jan. 16 at a bus stop. She was last seen talking on a pay phone about 11:30 p.m.

Guard said he plans to ask the Texas Rangers for assistance and will seek polygraphs from two pimps, one in San Antonio.

"Regardless (of her lifestyle), we loved her," Mrs. Mason said. "Regardless of what she did. The way she was killed, nobody had the right to take her life."

Ms. Mason often stayed with a friend but did not have a home of her own, her parents said. Every few weeks she would call or visit briefly, and those visits home made her family realize she was virtually two different people.

Once Mrs. Mason overheard her daughter talk to people from her other life on the phone during a visit home. "It was like someone else using the phone," she said.

Vietnam War Museum closes

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The Vietnam War Museum across from the Alamo has closed, and most of its exhibits will be moved out of town, its director said.

Museum director Gaylord Stevens said Thursday part of the museum will reopen in downtown San Antonio. However, many of the exhibits are likely to be moved to Corpus Christi.

Houston, Dallas, New Orleans, Fort Worth and San Francisco also are possible sites for the main museum, which has been located on Alamo Plaza since it opened July 4, 1988.

The museum, which had a theater and library, was to have incorporated a jungle trail with simulated booby traps and a restaurant serving Oriental food.

Son arranges the kidnapping of his father by Sikh militants

HARIKE VILLAGE, India (AP) — Ten Sikh militants burst into Shingra Singh's house and kidnapped the successful merchant, who has sold household appliances for a decade in this village surrounded by rice paddies and cornfields.

The abduction and payment of $12,000 ransom were arranged by his son Mekla, 17.

"I've spent my life bargaining," said Singh, a 37-year-old Sikh, sitting in the shade near his shop. "But who would have thought that I'd bargain for my life, and do it with my son."

The separatist battle for an independent Sikh homeland pits father against son and brother against brother.

Mekla Singh, on the bench beside his father, said he was ordered to arrange the kidnapping.

"I believe in Khalistan," he said. "If I am ordered by my leaders, I will obey."

Singh did not press charges against his son, who he said arranged "very tasty food" during the 10 days of captivity.

He is sending Mekla to work at the family hotel near New Delhi, and the boy is happy to go.

Cloudy skies forecast

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies and a 20 perecent chance of thunderstorms with a high in the low 90s and 10 to 20 mph south winds, according to the National Weather Service of Midland.

Tonight is expected to be partly cloudy with a low in the upper 60s, NWS said. Sunday's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a 20 percent chance of mainly afternoon thundershowers and a high in the lower 90s, NWS said.

The record high for Thursday's date was 106 set in 1954. The record low of 61 for today's date was set in 1933. Friday's high was 95 afterand overnight low of 72.

STATE

Scattered thunderstorms delivered heavy rain and small hail to parts of the Texas Panhandle and South Plains on Friday, and forecasters said more precipitation was expected later.

Skies were cloudy in much of West Texas from the Big Bend through the Panhandle, with sunny conditions elsewhere. Winds were southeasterly at 5 to 10 mph in most regions, and southwesterly in the Panhandle, with occasional gusts to 20 mph near Midland, Abilene and Wichita Falls.

High temperatures reached the 90s in most areas, with some 80s in West Texas.

Some afternoon thunderstorms were expected in West Texas through the beginning of the weekend, spreading to the lower coastal plain and some areas of North Texas.

On Saturday, highs were expected in the 90s, with 80s along the coast and in some sections of West Texas and near 100 degrees for the Rio Grande Plains of South Texas.

NATION

Roads flooded and rivers jumped their banks Friday as slow-moving storms dumped rain on central and northeast Iowa. Showers and thunderstorms fell elsewhere in the Midwest, as well as sections of the East and the West.

The Iowa River left its banks at Marshalltown, the Cedar River threatened Waterloo and Cedar Rapids, and the Nishnabotna River in southwest Iowa was still high as it tried to carry away rain that fell Thursday.

High water in creeks and streams continued to drain into the Cedar, Iowa and Skunk rivers, and produced significant flooding.

Heavy rainfall Thursday night caused flooding of many streets and underpasses in Des Moines.

Iowa rainfall between midnight and 11 a.m. EDT included more than 3.66 inches in Mason City, 1.43 inches in Waterloo and 1.28 inches in Des Moines.

OPEC: Ministers agree to raise price to $21

(From 1A)

They said higher gasoline prices could follow.

Paul Miotok, head of energy research at the Morgan Stanley investment firm in New York, predicted that with OPEC restraint, crude prices "could go up a couple of dollars a barrel" in the October-December period.

"This could add about five cents to a gallon of gasoline at the pump by the end of the year," he said.

Nauman Barakat, first vice president in the energy department at Shearson Lehman Hutton in New York, said gasoline prices could go up even higher — by about a dime a gallon.

"Gasoline prices are going to remain strong in the summer," he said. "They will get even stronger going into the winter period because of the agreement."

Every dollar decline or rise in the price of a barrel of oil amounts to a 2-cent to 5-cent change in gasoline prices.

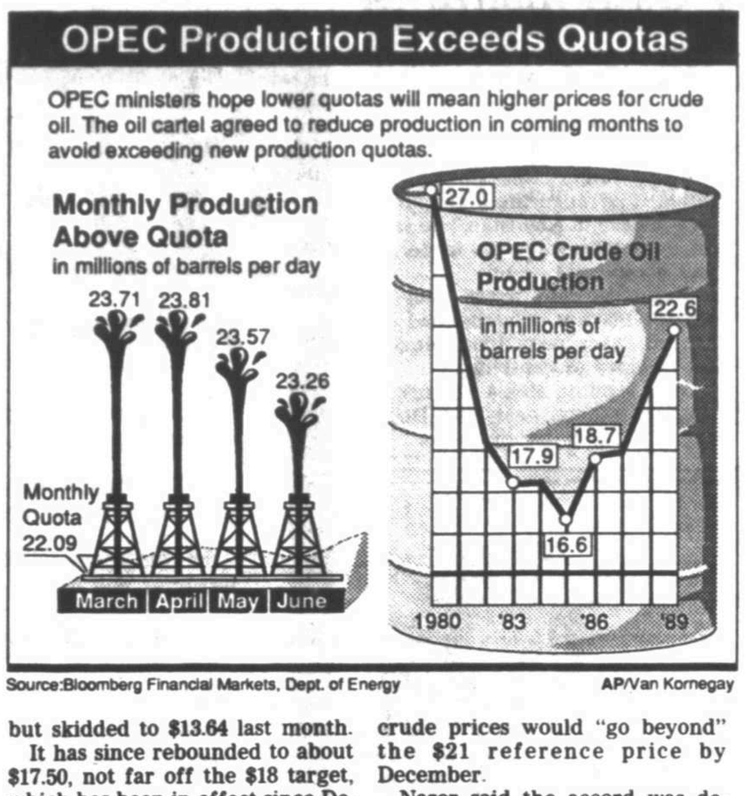
Crude prices were expected to hold steady in August and September because of the glut of oil on the market, which sent prices tumbling in the spring.

The average price of a basket of crudes monitored by OPEC surged to $20.46 a barrel in early January, but skidded to $13.64 last month.

It has since rebounded to about $17.50, not far off the $18 target, which has been in effect since December 1986.

Saudi Arabia's influential oil minister, Hisham Nazer, predicted crude prices would "go beyond" the $21 reference price by December.

Nazer said the accord was designed to "prevent deterioration of prices. ... This agreement emanated from a very bad situation."



In raising its supply ceiling, the cartel lifted the output quota of the United Arab Emirates by 400,000 barrels a day to 1.5 million barrels. However, the Persian Gulf producer has been pumping up to 2 million barrels a day.

The other dozen nations, including Kuwait, will keep the same quotas. Kuwait's cap is 1.5 million barrels a day, but it too had been producing well over that. Kuwait's oil minister, Rasheed Salem al-Ameeri, called the deal "excellent."

And the U.A.E.'s Mana Saeed Oteiba promised to toe the line.

"It is a good agreement," said Ecuador's Diego Tamariz. "It's about the best agreement we could get, considering."

Saddam claimed excess OPEC production cost financially strapped Iraq about $14 billion in lost oil revenues in the last year.

While the ministers made no mention publicly of the Iraqi threats, analysts said Saddam clearly influenced the outcome of the meeting.

OPEC chief Boussena said the accord was endorsed by the "highest level" of the members' governments. But he acknowledged OPEC has no penalties to enforce discipline.

QUAKE: Two survivors rescued from rubble

(From 1A)

The three lay in the dark, talked to each other and prayed, Calabia and Ms. Mallorca said. The other man was badly hurt and died about four days ago.

Ms. Mallorca said the man complained of thirst in his final days and became delirious. "He said: 'I'm very very thirsty. I want a cold Coke. Go to my wife and ask for money and buy us a Coke,' " she said on the radio. "The following day he was still asking for a Coke. I told him, 'Don't think about it, just pray.' "

The man finally fell silent.

"I convinced myself he was not yet dead," Calabia said. "I told him I would cover his face because rain was dripping down."

"I was OK where I was, but I realized just a while ago that there was a concrete slab above my forehead. Just a few more inches and I would have been dead too."

Calabia and Ms. Mallorca are employees of the state-run Philippine Amusement and Gaming Corp., which operated a casino in the 12-story hotel.

They were being treated at Baguio General Hospital. Doctors said both suffered cuts, bruises and severe dehydration. Calabia told reporters his right hand was injured and nurses told him three fingers might have to be amputated.

Ms. Mallorca complained of chest pains, rescuers said.

Officials planned to fly the survivors to Manila, but monsoon rains closed Baguio airport Saturday. The rains interrupted flights of relief supplies.

Attempts to look for other survivors had been slowed by a fire touched off Thursday night by acetylene torches used to cut through the wreckage. The ruins still smoldered early Saturday.

Local miners and other volunteers vowed to keep looking until all the missing were accounted for.

TRIAL: Mitchell not guilty

(From 1A)

Bystanders testified that after the shooting they saw a uniformed law officer swear at Mitchell and hold his bloody, wounded arm tightly behind his back while pushing his torso with a knee.

Schmerler, who observed several days of the trial, congratulated Schorre for "a hell of a job trying to prosecute an innocent man."

"He had a big hill to climb because the evidence was so overwhelming, and the jury saw that," said Schmerler.

Julian Drakeford, 30, one member of the panel, said jurors quickly decided that Mitchell was innocent of the assault and resisting arrest charges since state law holds a defendant must know an officer's identity at the time such offenses are committed.

The officer involved in the case, Det. Brian Bogart, testified he had identified himself clearly to Mitchell prior to pulling his gun, but he was wearing plain clothes and driving an unmarked police vehicle.

Mitchell testified the detective used hostile sarcasm when asked if he was "the law." That led Mitchell to doubt the officer's authority, he said.

He said he retreived his pistol from his pickup's side pocket because he was fearful Bogart was a thief in the process of towing a car away from Bojangle's lot.

Bogart testified he pulled his revolver only after seeing Mitchell's gun in his lap.

The third charge the jury decided, that of carrying a firearm on licensed premises, was more difficult than the first two, Drakeford said.

State statutes — laws that Schorre in his closing argument called a "throwback" to earlier times — allow residents who are traveling to carry handguns into bars and other necessary stopoffs.

Mitchell had testified he carried a gun in his pickup since the previous December for protection and to scare rattlesnakes.

He said he visited a drilling rig in south Crane county earlier on the day in question, and he later met a business associate at the My Place lounge, 3601 W. Wall Ave.

The two talked business at the friend's office and then went to Bojangles, where they hoped Mitchell's nephew, a bartender, could help them find extra workers needed to expand the capacity of Mitchell's shop.

Ed Toutant, 38 and another juror, said the panel had trouble deciding whether Mitchell could be considered traveling at the point when he met Bogart in the parking lot. An initial vote of jurors indicated most thought he wasn't.

However, "In the end, there was enough doubt in everyone's mind," he said, to justify a verdict of innocent.

OIL: Williams could make millions

(From 1A)

Austin Chalk, bringing daily production to 7,000 barrels. Discounting 25 percent for royalty interest gives Williams 5,250 net barrels daily. If the posted price of oil averages $20 per barrel that translates to $105,000 per day.

A recent reduction in Pearsall crude prices for quality could lower the average price $2 below West Texas Intermediate, but that amount of income is still nothing to sneeze at, especially when one considers the fact that Williams borrowed heavily to get into the Austin Chalk and has no partners on those net barrels.

Cumulative production to date is 410,000 from the horizontal wells.

Better still, his prolific production is expected not only to increase dramatically over the next year, it is also expected to last longer than originally anticipated. A recent Oryx Energy study indicates that production from the wells in the Chalk trend are holding up far better than expected.

Also, Williams has an acreage of 175,000 net acres in the heart of the drilling play, and has five rigs working full time. In the Pearsall Field, where he has acquired over 120,000 acres, the Texas wildcatter plans to drill 107 wells through 1991. And, in the Giddings Field, where he has over 40,000 acres, he will drill 28 wells through 1991.

In the 17 wells drilled thus far, 64,000 feet of horizontal well bore have been drilled, according to Moore and one well had 5,138 feet of 6½ inch horizontal hole for a new world record in that category.

While he has not encountered any of the prolific 17,000 to 19,000 barrel-per-day wells encountered by Oryx Energy and Charlie Winn and other operators, all Williams' wells have produced respectably. His latest well, the Nicholson No.2, flowed 879 barrels of oil and 385 Mcf of gas daily. A recent well in the Giddings Field was completed for 772 barrels of oil and 1,300 Mcf of gas daily.

If that's not enough, Williams also is a 50 percent non-operating partner with Union Pacific Resources Corp. in a large area of Burleson County and has participated with UPRC in three horizontal wells.

Tom Moore explains the aggressive position in the Austin Chalk: "One thing about Clayton Williams — if he believes in something he sticks with it. He has had to change strategy sometimes, but he has never lost faith in the oil business."

McSHANE: Man named 'Top Hand'

(From 1A)

Snyder Field of Howard County, Yates Sand in the Pecos Valley, and the Howard-Glasscock Field and Queen Sand waterflood in Lea County, N.M. The three are also credited with the discovery of the Keystone Southwest San Andres field, where McShane co-owns and operates 96 wells on the Keystone structure.

The partners have operated a total of 500 wells throughout the Permian Basin, recovering in excess of 10 million barrels of oil.

In addition, McShane has been highly active in PBPA political issues. As PBPA president in 1972, he led an effort to form the Regional Petroleum Association of Texas and held offices in the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners association and Independent Petroleum Association of American. He served as president of the National Stripper Well Association in 1978-79.

His wife of 38 years, Helen Marie, holds a degree in geology from the University of Oklahoma.

This is the 12th presentation of the "Top Hand" award, which is presented to a pioneer of the independent petroleum industry who has made numerous significant contributions to industry and community enhancement.

The award will be presented to McShane on Nov. 9 at the President's Banquet at the PBPA's annual meeting.

Plans for large Borneo dam canceled

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Scrapping one of Asia's more ambitious energy projects seems to provide something for everyone.

Thousands of tribal people in Borneo won't be displaced, environmentalists can stop worrying about the wilderness and anyone concerned about the cost of the Bakun hydroelectric project can relax, at least for now.

Those who believe the power is still needed propose several smaller dams on the same river that would produce a similar amount of electricity.

After feasibility studies that began in 1979, the government decided in principle five years ago to build a 670-foot semicircular rockfill dam at Bakun Rapids with a power station capable of generating megawatts.

The rapids are in remote jungle in Sarawak state, 175 miles up the Rajang River from the South China Sea, reachable only by helicopter. A 270-square-mile lake created in a catchment area of 5,700 square miles would force almost 5,000 tribal people out of their communal longhouses.

Officials said it was for the tribespeople's own good and they would be given new houses elsewhere. "We are convinced the only way to bring the people into the 21st century is by resettlement," said Abdul Taib Mahmud, Sarawak chief minister.

Plans to uproot the Belaga, Kayan and Kenyah peoples stirred controversy, as did plans to send more than half the Bakun power to peninsular Malaysia through two 400-mile high-voltage cables buried under the sea bed.

Environmentalists said the dam could help spread waterborne diseases and would create a disaster if it burst.

Other critics said the project simply was not needed and some contended Malaysia couldn't afford the $4.4 billion investment at a time of high foreign debt.

Proponents said studies indicated the dam would be financially self-supporting, with development loans repaid by 2015. They predicted such secondary benefits as industrialization, technology transfer, tourism and reservoir-based fishing.

In the mid-1980s, Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad derided opponents of the dam as "crypto-socialists." Members of his party, the United Malays National Organization, picketed the Kuala Lumpur ofices of the Environmental Protection Society, the sternest critic of Bakun.

Money for the project was never budgeted, however, and recession delayed it for several years.

Mahathir told an international conservation meeting in June his country was making a big sacrifice by scrapping Bakun and that Malaysians would have to continue paying higher electricity rates.

Ill will towards Gorbachev still palpable in Moscow

By Joel Connelly
Hearst News Service

SEATTLE — Mikhail Gorbachev is a star on the international stage but a failure on the home front, unable to delegate authority or dismantle a failed political system, according to the editor of the Soviet Union's most popular weekly newspaper who is visiting Seattle.

But Vladislav Starkov said the Soviet leader saved his country from civil war, putting every ounce of his prestige on the line to hold off conservatives during the recent Communist Party Congress.

"He gambled everything he had," said Starkov, in a recent interview. "If Gorbachev would have lost (to party conservatives) civil war could have happened. Nuclear war could have happened."

When asked what Soviet citizens think when their TV screens show American crowds chanting, "Gorby! Gorby!," Starkov said: "Actually, the success of Mr. Gorbachev in the West ... reduces his success in the Soviet Union."

Starkov became an international cause celebre last year when Gorbachev unsuccessfully sought his removal. Gorbachev was reportedly angered when Starkov's newspaper, Argumenty i Fakty (Arguments and Facts) conducted a poll on the popularity of Soviet lawmakers. Gorbachev's rating wasn't published, but it soon became known that he fared poorly.

Starkov, here for the Goodwill Games, spoke to University of Washington students about the love-hate relationship between Gorbachev and reformers, and the struggle between Gorbachev and rival Boris Yeltsin.

Starkov held his audience rapt with out-of-school tales about his country's leaders, and telling how he has tested limits on reporting in a society that rigidly rationed information.

He said it was not easy to ask for Gorbachev's annual salary in a society where freedom of information is considered an oxymoron.

"When we started writing about Mr. Bush's salary in the United States, it was natural to ask, 'How much does Mr. Gorbachev make?'" Starkov said. "It was taken very negatively at first. We were told, 'It is high state secret. We can tell you about the missiles but not his salary.'"

Eventually, however, Gorbachev delivered a full financial statement — remarkable in a country which has long put a curtain around its leaders' private lives.

Argumenty i Fakty has grown to a distribution of more than 30 million in its 10 years of existence. It gained popularity by breaking ideological bounds, providing a heady dose of American news, and discussing lives of both ordinary people and celebrities.

Starkov is an admirer of Yeltsin, the former party apparatchik turned populist who was recently elected president of the Russian Republic. Once fired by Gorbachev as Moscow party leader, Yeltsin has emerged as the Soviet leader's chief rival.

"Gorbachev vs. Yeltsin is almost like a Shakespearean play," said Starkov. "They are very similar people except that Gorbachev likes to speak long. Yeltsin usually speaks in short sentences, just like Stalin did. People like Yeltsin more now."

"I am against economic aid to the U.S.S.R.," declared Starkov.

Starkov raised one point that has intrigued Western military experts. As the Soviet Union shows signs of splintering, control of the Soviet nuclear arsenal has become a center of speculation. The Soviet government at one point defended the presence of troops in Lithuania, after the republic's independence declaration, on grounds of safeguarding nuclear weapons.

If a civil war does break out, Starkov implied that a number of rival factions might find themselves with fingers on the Soviet nuclear trigger.

West German official's car bombed

Government offers $30,000 reward after luxury sedan blasted

BONN, West Germany (AP) — A roadside bomb activated by a beam of light blasted the luxury sedan of a senior government terrorism-fighter Friday, but he escaped serious injury. A leftist terrorist group claimed responsibility.

The attack on Hans Neusel, No. 2 at the Interior Ministry, in charge of counterterrorism, marked a comeback by the Red Army Faction after last month's roundup in East Germany of eight suspected members of the terrorist gang.

The government Friday evening offered a $30,000 reward for information leading to apprehension of the attackers.

Federal investigators said a red Mazda 323 may have been used in the attack, with terrorists perhaps posing as construction workers or landscapers to plant the bomb.

The explosion smashed in the right side of Neusel's BMW, blew out windows, ripped apart upholstery, and sprung open its trunk and hood. It blew a crater in the road, near an autobahn exit in Bonn, and twisted an iron guardrail.

Neusel, 62, walked away with a few cuts on his right hand and arm. He pushed the car off the highway to keep it from blocking traffic.

His injuries could have been far worse had he been a passenger rather than driving, officials said. West German television said Neusel's chauffeur was on vacation, and he was alone in the car.

The Red Army Faction claimed responsibility in a note left near the scene.

Also discovered at the site was a sophisticated light-beam device similar to one used in the gang's killing in November of Deutsche Bank chief Alfred Herrhausen, whose car was blown up near Frankfurt.

The terrorist gang has been responsible for killings and bomb attacks in West Germany in the last two decades.

About three hours after the morning attack, Neusel strode into a news conference and said he was happy to be alive.

Speaking in a calm voice, Neusel described the impact of the bomb blast, saying, "Naturally the sensation of shock was there."

Neusel also said the note claiming responsibility indicated a connection between the Red Army Faction and a Spanish terror group called GRAPO.

The letter carried the Red Army Faction symbol, a red star superimposed by a machine gun. The letter said the attack was carried out by the "Jose Manuel Sevillano commando."

According to the federal prosecutor's office, Sevillano was a convicted member of GRAPO who died in May after a six-month hunger strike.

The Interior Ministry said Neusel had no security detail, and his automobile was not equipped with armor plating or bulletproof glass.

Friday's bombing was the first Red Army Faction attack since eight long-sought fugitives were captured in East Germany in recent weeks.

The eight had been living there under assumed names. Some say they had been granted sanctuary by East Germany's former Communist government.

Also Friday, law officials announced that one of the eight has been released for lack of evidence.

Ekkehard von Seckendorff-Gudent, a 50-year-old doctor, was picked up June 14 as a suspect in a 1984 bank robbery in the West German city of Wuerzburg.

The West German prosecutor's office said he was released by East German authorities after witnesses were unable to identify him as a participant in the robbery.

The prosecutor's office said it did not immediately appear the attack on Neusel was in reprisal for the roundup since the assassination attempt was likely mapped out before the suspects were nabbed.

Neusel called on the Red Army Faction to cease its campaign of violence.

"I appeal emphatically for you to give this up," he said. "Even if you were successful, how would that have changed the fact that we are a free democracy?"

Mexican police to search for bodies of cult victims

TEPIC, Mexico (AP) — Members of a drug-growing cult suspected of making human sacrifices testified Friday that police had beaten them and forced them to sign false admissions of murder.

Authorities have descended on a rural western town to search for up to 41 bodies of cult victims, but they were delayed by bad weather Friday.

Police have quoted cult members as saying they made sacrifices to the devil, whom they believed was embodied in a 16-inch earthenware statue of a monkey. They reportedly called the statue "El Amigo," or "The Friend."

However, District Judge Cuevas Zavala played down the cult charge Friday. "There is nothing to it," said the judge hearing the case in Tepic, the Nayarit state capital, about 450 miles northwest of Mexico City. He did not elaborate.

Some of the 14 suspects arrested in the case testified at their arraignment Friday that police had beaten them into signing accusations of murder against Olayo Soto Soto, the 65-year-old alleged leader of the cult.

Other suspects, handcuffed in pairs, made the same claims in interviews with reporters outside the courthouse.

The purported cult leader pointed to a dark spot under his eye and to other parts of his body and said he was beaten into confessing to killing three alleged victims.

Soto Soto, who was wearing traditional white garb of an Indian medicine man, said he was a "good Catholic."

Another suspect, Epifanio Soto, said he grew only apples, peaches and prickly pears. "We are peaceful peasant workers," he said.

He said the group had a temple in a cave. "There we had saints — the Saint Jesus Christ and the Virgin of Guadelupe," Mexico's patron saint, he said.

Of the monkey idol, he said, "the authorities must have mistaken the Virgin of Guadelupe for it."

The accused appeared Friday on the drug charges, which District Judge Jose Cuevas Zavala said could take 10 months to prosecute.

Confessions made without an attorney present are admissible in Mexico, although the accused are permitted to recant them in court later. They almost invariably do so.

Because there is no bail under Mexican law for people accused of crimes that carry a sentence of five years or more, the suspects likely will remain in jail the whole time their case is prosecuted.

Authorities say the victims were killed and buried by the marijuana-growers in a remote area along the line separating Nayarit and Durango states over a seven-year period.

The human sacrifices were made in the belief they would protect the drug crop from police, authorities said.

Nine men and five youths have been held by police in Tepic since Tuesday. They are charged with homicide, arms possession, criminal association and drug offenses.

Alejandro Maldonado Loyo, who represents the federal prosecutor in Tepic, said Friday all 14 had confessed to marijuana charges. He said the homicide charges would be handled by state officials in Durango because the bodies reportedly were buried on that side of the line.

He said the marijuana patches were small. "Their sacrifices didn't bring them many results, did they?" he said.

The Nayarit district attorney's investigator, Jose Fernand Armas Hernandez, said Thursday tht police found a leather quiver with 41 arrows, apparently dipped in blood.

One suspect claimed the arrows represented the spirits of each of the sacrificed humans, the investigator said.

Authorities said the occult rites were practiced in caves on remote hillsides where police discovered apparent cult material, including a statuette of the Virgin Mary with her face replaced by a skull.

Federal police said the group claimed to be practicing a version of Palo Mayombe, a religion that originated in the Congo and sometimes uses human skulls.

The group is reminiscent of another drug cult broken in April 1989.

WORLD in brief

Fujimori takes office Saturday

LIMA, Peru (AP) — President-elect Alberto Fujimori takes office Saturday inheriting a nation that is bankrupt, blacked-out and ravaged by drought and war. How he will cope remains a mystery.

Fujimori's team of advisers has been wracked by dissension and defections. Only days before the inauguration, Fujimori was scrambling to put together both a government and a plan with which to govern.

Fujimori's "good intention of selecting the best from each party may end in disaster, because the best may not want to join a government without well-defined aims," the magazine Caretas said.

Fujimori's government will face immense problems.

Inflation tops 3,000 percent a year. Four of five people lack steady work.

Uprising in Trinidad

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad (AP) — Moslem militants said they seized the Parliament building in this Caribbean capital on Friday and were holding the prime minister and his Cabinet hostage.

Abu Bakr, head of the black rebel group Muslim Meen, said in a nationwide radio and TV broadcast late Friday that the government had been overthrown but the claim could not be independently confirmed.

Earlier, Bakr had a station newscaster read a statement on national television about 6 p.m. EDT in which Bakr announced the uprising and claimed to be holding captive in Parliament the prime minister, Arthur Robinson.

An announcer on Radio 610, Dennis McComie, quoted Bakr as having said on TV his motive for moving against the government was "poverty and the destruction of Trinidad" — without elaborating on what that meant.

There has been no official reaction from the government but late Friday in Washington, State Department spokesman Dave Denny said, "We would deplore any attempt to overthrow the democratic government of Trinidad."

Traffickers offer truce

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Drug traffickers declared an end Friday to their campaign of bombings and assassinations, according to a communique bearing the letterhead The Extraditables, as the Medellin cocaine cartel calls itself.

The cartel said its offer follows recent movements toward peace in Colombia and the end of President Virgilio Barco's administration.

"We decree a unilateral, indefinite cease-fire and we suspend attacks against police, bombings in all Colombian cities and the executions of politicians, journalists, judges and other functionaries," the statement said.

The communique was faxed to news outlets throughout Colombia. Its authenticity could not be confirmed.

Barco leaves office Aug. 7.

Senate chairmen accepting some industrial contributions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate committee chairmen say they'll keep tapping the flow of campaign contributions tied to industries they oversee — despite the rush by some legislators to turn back money linked to troubled savings and loans.

A spot check of various committee heads turned up none willing to follow the lead of the Banking Committee's Donald Riegle, who is forswearing campaign contributions from interest groups under his panel's jurisdiction.

Spokesmen for several chairmen said the senators screen individual contributions and return any that appear tainted. But none were ready to ban all contributions from one of their biggest sources of campaign dollars.

Among those surveyed:

—Energy and Natural Resources chairman Bennett Johnston, D-La. He received $180,461 from energy industry political action committees from 1983 through 1988, according to a study by the public-interest group Common Cause.

—Environment and Public Works chairman Quentin Burdick, D-N.D., who received $97,103 from energy PACs and $327,700 from labor PACs, some of which have an interest in environmental legislation such as the pending Clean Air Act rewrite.

Burdick is intrigued by Riegle's decision and "might consider" adopting some version of it, spokeswoman Jean Brodshaug said.

—Commerce, Science and Transportation Committee chairman Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., who received $828,842 from business PACs.

Riegle, one of five senators whose links to a failed savings and loan are the subject of an ethics committee probe, last week announced he was giving the U.S. Treasury an amount equal to all contributions he has gotten and kept from S&L interests since 1983.

Some legislators are returning checks to S&L contributors, and others are mailing the money straight to the U.S. Treasury, often earmarking their checks for deficit reduction or the fight against S&L fraud.

But Riegle's decision to refuse all campaign money tied to industries that come before his committee is unlikely to start a trend, said Michael Traugott, a University of Michigan political scientist and authority on campaign finance.

The ethics committee is examining Riegle's ties to Charles Keating Jr. and his failed Lincoln Savings and Loan. Republicans and at least one newspaper in his home state have demanded that he step aside as Banking Committee chairman until the investigation is completed.

Riegle led the Senate in contributions from PACs representing banks, S&Ls, securities firms and others in the financial industry, accepting $344,133 from 1983 through 1988, Common Cause said.

Finance Committee chairman Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, refuses money from subsidiaries controlled by foreign corporations because he favors legislation to outlaw contributions by those PACs, spokesman Jack DeVore said.

Bentsen was the top recipient of contributions from business PAC donations, with $1.8 million.

DeVore said it would be difficult to weed out donations from all who are affected by the finance panel, which handles tax issues, because it cuts such a broad swath.

"Everybody either pays taxes or doesn't and wants to stay that way," DeVore said.

'New York is so crazy now'

NEW YORK (AP) — On the street, they're known as mushrooms — innocent bystanders who get stomped underfoot. Ordinarily they're just another crime statistic, but this week's instant victims here demanded attention: a year-old baby and a 9-year-old girl.

"It's not something recent. It's just getting more attention. It's becoming more common, and it will grow," said Thomas Reppetto, head of the watchdog Citizens' Crime Commission.

Yaritimi Fruto, whose first birthday was Friday, was shot in the head by a gunman who killed her father Tuesday in Brooklyn. She was in critical condition Wednesday at Brookdale Medical Hospital Center.

On Sunday, a 9-year-old girl sleeping in her parents' car after a trip to an amusement park was mortally wounded by a bullet to the head. Veronica Corrales died Tuesday at Brookdale, shortly before Yaritimi arrived.

"They're in the way, underfoot, so let's squash 'em down. That's the way they feel about innocent bystanders in New York City in 1990," said Reppetto, a former police officer.

More and more bystanders are becoming victims around the city, statistics show. Reppetto cited a study by his group which showed the number of bystanders shot in New York City quadrupled between 1978 and 1988.

A University of Maryland professor of criminology, Lawrence W. Sherman, did a study that showed a jump in the slayings of bystanders every year from 1985 through 1988. The number in the first year was five; in the last, it was 12.

This year's total is running slightly ahead of that: eight in seven months, police said. That doesn't include random victims like 18-year-old Hassoun Tatum, a one-time child actor on Broadway who was gunned down early Tuesday while driving his car.

"New York is so crazy now. People have no values. ... Why would anyone want to stand on a roof, fire a gun at an innocent kid in a car? It's all over. The city is finished," said Berkley Tatum, whose son was in the 1985 Broadway show "The Tap Dance Kid."

Cowboy trade

AUSTIN (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys obtained running back Lorenzo Hampton from the Denver Broncos on Friday for a conditional middle to late round draft pick.

Coach Jimmy Johnson said the Cowboys made the move because negotiations with number one draft pick Emmitt Smith had broken down.

"Negotiations have become totally unrealistic and (owner) Jerry (Jones) has been more than fair," Johnson said. "It should be easy negotiations. All the players around him in the draft have signed."

Johnson added, "We'd love to have Smith as part of the Cowboys but we can't sit around and wait."

Hampton signed with Denver in March under terms of the NFL's Plan B free agency. Hampton rushed for 1,949 yards and 22 touchdowns through five seasons with the Miami Dolphins.

He caught 123 passes for 954 yards and six touchdowns.

Seniors on hold

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Rain and wet grounds Friday washed out the opening round of the Newport Cup seniors golf tournament at the Newport Country Club. As a result, the event was shortened to 36 holes from 54, with rounds to be played Saturday and Sunday.

Jim Dent, a three-time winner on the Senior Tour this season, is the defending champion. The field features Lee Trevino, who has won six tournaments and more than $630,000 this season.

Former Newport Cup champions Walt Zembriski and Miller Barber also are in the field.

Midland ace fires no-hitter

By Bill Grimes
Staff Writer

Mid-City's Clay Johnston left little doubt about who was boss Friday.

Not only did Johnston no-hit the Pecos All-Stars in Friday's first game of a bi-district series at Windlands Park, but the tall righthander had two of Mid-City's eight hits in a 3-0 win that brings the locals to within one game of a state tournament berth.

Mid-City can wrap up a state tourney berth with a win at Pecos tonight, but coach Joe Nobles said that will be easier said than done, even with strong pitching from either Chad Villarreal or Rob Lawson.

"That's going to be the hardest game of the season for us," Nobles said. "Pecos is super at home."

Mid-City lost out in the bi-district round last year when Pecos parlayed a home-field advantage into a two-game sweep. Nobles hopes to use the home-field edge this season.

If the series goes to a third game, the teams will return to Midland for a 3 p.m. Sunday date at Windlands.

Johnston, who has pitched several no-hitters in his first year of pitching, wasn't even close to being challenged. The 12-year-old struck out 10, but walked five, including the bases loaded in the fifth.

But Pecos batters had trouble deciding at what to swing at. Several of the visitors were caught looking, while several more swung at pitches well out of the strike zone.

"The kids were just down today," Pecos coach Steve Reyes said.

Johnston said he didn't think about a no-hitter coming into the contest.

"You just go in and pitch as well as you can," he said.

Johnston struck out at least one batter in every inning, and no outstanding plays were needed to preserve the gem — just Mid-City's ability to make the routine.

Johnston's performance overshadowed a strong showing by Pecos hurler Jaime Varela, who allowed eight hits but walked only one while strikng out nine.

Ertl sets the pace

■ Six birdies paved the way to the second-round lead of the LPGA Championship for Sue Ertl.

Associated Press

BETHESDA, Md. — Sue Ertl shot a 4-under-par 67 and took advantage of a quadruple bogey by Rosie Jones to grab a two-stroke lead Friday after two rounds of the LPGA Championship.

Jones led by five strokes until her 7 on the 195-yard, par-3, 16th hole. That helped give the lead to Ertl, who had six birdies and two bogeys for a 5-under 137 total.

For the 32-year-old Ertl, it was the first time she led after a round since the du Marier Ltd. Classic four years ago.

"Everyone has their moments, and this happens to be mine," she said.

Jones was at 139 and Cindy Figg-Currier and Cathy Johnston were tied for third at 140. Marta Figueras-Dotti shot a 69 for a 141.

They were the only players under par after two trips over the unforgiving 6,246-yard Bethesda Country Club course. The cut, at a lofty 8-over 150, left 77 players to vie for a share of the record $1 million purse.

First-round leader Chris Johnson, beginning the day at 4-under, had a double bogey on No. 6 and bogeys on Nos. 7 and 9 en route to a 77 and a 144.

Pat Bradley shot a 71 for a 144; Betsy King a 73 for a 145; Patty Sheehan a 71 for a 146; and defending champion Nancy Lopez rebounded from her opening 78 with a 70 that included an eagle.

Jones cruised along with five birdies, until she encountered the 16th. Teeing off with a four-wood, she put her shot into the right bunker.

That's where the trouble began.

Jones proceeded to chip into the opposite bunker, then hit into the rough before she "flubbed" a shot that left her ball on the fringe of the rough.

Irwin catches Pooley

■ Hale Irwin and Ken Green both scorched Warwick Hills with 63's, the record for a round at the Buick.

Associated Press

GRAND BLANC, Mich. — Hale Irwin played flawlessly while Don Pooley fought off disaster at every turn Friday.

But when the second round of the Buick Open was over, Irwin, who last month became the oldest player to win a U.S. Open, and Pooley were tied for the lead at 132, 12-under par and two strokes ahead of everybody else.

Irwin and Ken Green both fired 9-under 63's over the 7,014-yard Warwick Hills course.

The 63's tied the record for a round during the Buick Open. The competitive course record for Warwick Hills is 62, by Jim Colbert during a pro-am event prior to the 1979 tournament.

"Hale Irwin is 45," said Pooley, tongue firmly in cheek. "He's washed up."

Pooley, who shot 65, missed half the greens but scrambled around and made seven birdies. He needed only 20 putts.

"I missed the first three greens but was 1-under," he said. "That was a great way to start. That kind of set the tone."

Green was tied at 134 with U.S. Open runnerup Mike Donald, Billy Andrade and Mike Sullivan. Fuzzy Zoeller and Dave Barr were at 135.

Wayne Levi, winner of three tournaments this year, was in a group at 136, Morris Hatalsky was at 139 and Payne Stewart at 142. Seventy-two players made the cut at 142.

Irwin, who took the Open from Donald in a memorable playoff at Medinah, birdied six of the final seven holes Friday.

"I'm swinging well," Irwin said. "I'm not putting superbly, but I don't have to putt too well because I'm hitting it so close."

Green birdied seven successive holes, the fourth through 10th, one shy of a PGA Tour record shared by many. Dewey Arnette was the last to make eight in a row, in 1987 at friendly Warwick Hills.

"I goosed No. 11. I got ahead of myself," Green said. "That's what happens when you start thinking."

Donald, playing the back nine first, started with a bogey but birdied 12 through 16 to get to 11 under. But he could manage only one more birdie, offset by a pair of bogeys, the rest of the day.

"I never could get the round going again," Donald said. "It doesn't matter who's leading right now. I feel like I'm still in great shape."

Andrade, whose best finish since turning pro in 1987 was a tie for second in last year's Buick Open, started on the back side and had four birdies and an eagle by the turn.

Sullivan, seeking his third victory on the tour, matched his first round with a 67. His lone mistake was knocking a drive out of bounds on the par-4 fourth where he missed a 15-foot putt to save par.

The winner of the tournament, which concludes Sunday, will collect $180,000 of the $1 million purse.

Game didn't end when fat lady sang

I never watch Roseanne Barr's TV show, because I'm usually at work.

I don't think I'd much care for her standup act, because gratuitous swearing isn't my bag.

And I certainly don't think she makes herself particularly attractive.

Grimes

But I have to disagree with ESPN's Larry Burnett, who chided the queen of domestic standup for "making fun of our National Anthem."

For those who aren't familiar with the scenario, Barr belted out her own off-key version of the anthem before a baseball game in San Diego recently.

C'mon Larry, lighten up a bit. I stand and shut up when the anthem is played, but I don't see any reason to be offended by someone singing it poorly.

I remember enlisting the services of a very average trumpet player to bang out our national song during my sports information days — and suffering when he had to stop three times because he hadn't practiced enough to hit some of the high notes. Embarrassing perhaps, but offensive?

Not to me, anyway. Now when she grabbed herself in response to the subsequent booing ... that's another thing.

If I'm not mistaken, the First Amendment covers the right to sing the National Anthem, no matter how poorly they may sing. Of course, the First also covers the right to disagree with the way it was being interpreted.

It would be too bad if sponsors shied away from Barr's hit TV show because of the incident. I don't think she was attacking anything — she just doesn't have the range to sing that particular song. Few do.

Barr aside, I wish they'd find something else to play before the game. If you listen closely to The Star-Spangled Banner, the words almost exclusively deal with a situation of war. Our diverse nation deserves a song with a more diverse theme ... like America.

Elsewhere in baseball, Phil Niekro's simply off-base with recent comments in the wake of Nolan Ryan's failed first attempt to win his 300th game. Niekro, the former knuckleballer, says that Nolan Ryan and Bert "No Summer in Midland" Blyleven will be the last 300-game winners.

(Hey Phil, I don't think Blyleven's a lock for 300, unless he pulls an Early Wynn.)

Ryan and Blyleven may be the last 300-game winners for some time, but I think there will be more — even though middle relievers and closers are getting more and more decisions.

The fact that starters aren't completing as many games means that they aren't throwing as many innings. But they're still throwing enough to get plenty of decisions.

Furthermore, pitchers are taking advantage of advances in sports medicine and physical fitness techniques to improve their athletic longevity.

The inability of Permian Basin sports fans to watch Ryan's bid for No. 300 this past Wednesday underscores the need to have a blackout rule similar to that used by pro football. In other words, if an event is sold out 72 hours ahead of game time, it should be possible to televise it nationwide. Everyone deserved to see Ryan go for 300 on live TV.

Strawberry disrupts Mets' newfound harmony

By Phil Collier
Copley News Service

In baseball, the inmates truly are running the asylum.

The New York Mets started playing as a unit after Bud Harrelson recently replaced Davey Johnson as manager. The petty bickering subsided and the team looked as if it was headed toward the National League East championship.

This atmosphere was blown away when right fielder Darryl Strawberry, upset about a breakoff in negotiations for a long-term contract, announced that he would love to play for the rival Yankees.

That was followed by pitcher Bob Ojeda's biting criticism of Harrelson for removing him from the starting rotation after Ojeda gave up eight hits and three runs in the first five innings of a 4-1 loss to Houston.

Cleveland first baseman Keith Hernandez, a former Mets co-captain, shook his head at the news.

"They never learn, do they?" Hernandez said. "They had their act together and now they start popping off."

Something less unsettling happened with the Indians, a collection of no-names who believe they're going to shock the world by winning the American League East.

First baseman-designated hitter Ken Phelps publicly complained that he doesn't know what his role is. Never mind that Phelps, cast adrift by the Mariners, Yankees and A's, had batted .133 (6-for-45) without hitting a homer or driving in a run in his first 15 games with the Indians, as of July 20.

Some would suggest that Phelps is fortunate just to be on a major-league roster.

The more salaries escalate, the more managers and coaches complain of selfish attitudes, of players who are interested only in personal statistics at the expense of doing the little things that help a team win.

STRAFING RUN

It was an interesting time at Chicago's Wrigley Field.

First, Cubs first baseman Mark Grace, some of his teammates and Dodgers pitcher Ray Searage were startled and frightened when the Air Force Thunderbirds air show group flew so low over the field that it rattled Wrigley's light towers.

Searage became so rattled that he committed a balk. "It scared the (bleep) out of me," said Grace, who was batting at the time. "I was waiting for guns to start shooting." After consultation, the umpires canceled the balk.

In a later game, fans approaching Wrigley were attracted to a new billboard featuring a high school picture of Cubs pitcher Rick Sutcliffe, who is on the disabled list. It was accompanied by the message: "Rick Sutcliffe welcomes his friends to Chicago. For ticket information, call Rick at (708) 272-5363 (Sutcliffe's real home phone number).

It turns out that the billboard stunt was arranged and paid for by such "friends" as Grace, actor Mark Harmon, Angels players Bert Blyleven and Wally Joyner, and Robin Sutcliffe, Rick's wife.

Sutcliffe was upset until he learned who was responsible. "I've got some great ideas (for getting even)," Sutcliffe said. "I just don't know which one it will be yet."

PSYCHO LYONS

The White Sox call outfielder Steve Lyons "Psycho." In a recent game with Detroit, Lyons slid headfirst into first base, got up and lowered his pants to shake out some dirt, momentarily forgetting where he was. "When I went back to the dugout, girls were waving money at me," Lyons said. "I'm glad the game wasn't on ESPN." The next day, Lyons appeared live on 15 television and radio shows. Tigers manager Sparky Anderson called Lyons a "chauvinist," until someone suggested that he meant "exhibitionist."

ASTROS CUTTING BACK

The Houston Astros are resisting baseball's astonishing salary spiral. They've never paid a player as much as $2 million a year and they're about to embark on a youth movement. "We're halfway through the season and I see no vital signs," said General Manager Bill Wood, who is prepared to deal away veterans and concentrate on the development of such young Astros as Craig Biggio, Eric Anthony, Eric Yelding and Ken Caminiti, hoping minor-leaguers such as outfielders Willie Ansley and Andy Mota, shortstop Andujar Cedeno and pitchers Darryl Kile, Jeff Juden and Todd Jones can soon take their places on the roster. It would appear Wood will attempt to trade veterans such as pitchers Mike Scott and Dave Smith, second baseman Bill Doran and shortstop Rafael Ramirez.

JOB FOR WHITEY?

The prospect that Commissioner Fay Vincent will suspend Yankees owner George Steinbrenner or force him to sell the team has increased speculation that Whitey Herzog might take over as manager/general manager of the decaying but rich New York franchise. Herzog was at his best in St. Louis when he held both jobs, because that enabled him to dispose of players he considered underachievers.

TRIPLE PLAYS

In Boston recently, the Red Sox became the first team to ground into two triple plays in one game. A day later, they tied an American League record by grounding into six double plays. It meant that they made 18 outs in eight at-bats over a two-game span. After the two triple plays, reporters found pitcher Dennis Lamp in Manager Joe Morgan's office. "Dennis has something he wants to say," Morgan announced. Reporters were expecting something important when Lamp said: "It's like Joe always says: You gotta stay out of the double play."

A HIT TUNE

Players are willing to try almost anything when things are going bad. Yankees first baseman Don Mattingly, who hasn't hit a home run since May 20, is trying to relax by taking his harmonica on the road.

PLAYOFF: Mid-City takes win

(From 1B)

Mid-City got all the runs it needed in the first inning on one-out singles by Johnston and Chris Owen, a double steal, a sacrifice fly by Kris Doan, and an error by Varela covering first that scored Owen.

The hosts added insurance in the third on a walk to Jason Rogers, a passed ball, and Johnston's clean triple into the right field corner — the hardest-hit ball of the game.

Pecos loaded the bases in the fifth on walks to Angel Ramirez, pinch-hitter Efrain Rodriguez and Hilbert Martinez, but Anthony Dutchover looked at a called third strike to end the threat. In the sixth, he retired the side in order to preserve the win and the no-hitter.

Watson is expected to compete in the 100-lap TIDA race at Twin Cities Speedway on Aug. 4.

Oilers release Bruce Davis

SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) — Houston Oilers second-round draft pick Jeff Alm of Notre Dame agreed to contract terms Friday, and the Oilers released 1989 starting offensive tackle Bruce Davis.

Davis, who agreed to terms with the Oilers at one point, said he would try to sign with another team.

Davis, 34, who started all 16 regular season games at tackle last season, had been replaced in the starting lineup by Don Maggs.

"With Don Maggs at tackle and with Doug Williams (1989 first round pick) coming along, we thought it was appropriate at this time to go with younger people," General Manager Mike Holovak said.

Davis was acquired from the Los Angeles Raiders in 1987 and was a starter all three seasons with the Oilers.

Alm, 6-6, 273, was the last Oiler draftee to sign and will give the Oilers another player in the defensive line, hit by injuries early in camp.

Defensive tackle Richard Byrd has been sidelined with a back injury and defensive end Alex Stewart suffered a knee injury in the Friday morning workout.

Stieb controls Rangers

Associated Press

Dave Stieb held Texas to five hits in seven innings and Glenallen Hill homered in the third as the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Rangers 1-0 Friday night.

AL

Stieb (13-3) struck out three and walked four, including Geno Petralli three times. Duane Ward pitched the eighth and Tom Henke pitched the ninth for his 21st save in 23 opportunities.

Hill's one-out homer was his ninth of the season and second in the last three games. Loser Charlie Hough (7-7) gave up seven hits in pitching his fourth complete game.

Red Sox 1, Tigers 0

Boston's Tom Bolton held Detroit to four hits in 7⅔ innings for his first career road victory after seven losses and the Red Sox scored an unearned run off Jack Morris to beat the Tigers.

Morris (8-13) yielded just four hits but was victimized when Mike Greenwell opened the Boston fourth with a single, stole second and continued to third on catcher Mike Heath's throwing error.

Yankees 3, Indians 0
Yankees 4, Indians 1

Andy Hawkins, winless in 12 starts, including a lost no-hitter, held Cleveland to three singles for his first victory since May 6 as the New York Yankees beat the Indians 3-0 and went on to sweep a doubleheader.

The Yankees won the second game 4-1 as Jeff Robinson pitched his third strong game since leaving the bullpen less than two weeks ago, scattering eight hits in seven innings.

Robinson (3-6) has yielded five runs in 21 innings as a starter and is 2-1 with a 2.14 ERA after going 1-5 with a 4.54 ERA in 32 relief appearances.

White Sox 7, Brewers 4

Carlton Fisk hit his 345th career homer in Chicago's three-run first inning and Dan Pasqua also homered as Chicago beat Milwaukee.

The victory lifted the White Sox within 2½ games of first-place Oakland in the American League West.

Twins 9, Athletics 4

Brian Harper extended his hitting streak to 16 games with a two-run double that highlighted a six-run fifth inning and carried Minnesota over Oakland.

Harper's double, the Twins' third of the inning agaisnt loser Mike Moore (9-9), followed an intentional walk to Kent Hrbek and gave the Twins a 5-1 lead. Greg Gagne capped the inning with a two-run single that made it 8-1.

Orioles 9, Royals 2

Rookie Ben McDonald, coming off a four-hit shutout in his first major-league start, scattered six hits in 6⅔ innings as Baltimore beat Kansas City.

McDonald (2-0) gave up both Kansas City runs while striking out seven and walking four. His ERA rose from 0.48 to 1.07.

Mets crush Cards

Associated Press

Frank Viola won his National League-leading 14th game and the New York Mets scored early and often Friday night, crushing the St. Louis Cardinals 10-1.

NL

Dave Magadan got three hits and drove in four runs in the first three innings as the Mets took a 10-1 lead. Cardinals center fielder Milt Thompson contributed, misjudging Daryl Boston's fly ball into a two-run triple that capped a five-run first and misplaying Magadan's line drive into a bases-loaded triple in the third.

New York won for the seventh time in 10 games. The Mets have won seven of eight against St. Louis this year.

The Mets, the highest-scoring team in the majors, got 13 of their 14 hits in 3 1-3 innings. By then, every starter had either scored a run or driven one in except Darryl Strawberry, who finished 0-for-5. Tom O'Malley added three hits and scored twice.

Viola (14-5) is second in the major leagues in victories to Bob Welch's 16. He allowed three hits, struck out four and walked one. Kevin Brown made his major league debut and got the final three outs, finishing the three-hitter.

Cubs 2, Expos 0

Pinch-hitter Gary Varsho's run-scoring single broke a scoreless tie with two outs in the 10th inning and Greg Maddux allowed two hits in nine innings as the Chicago Cubs beat the Montreal Expos 2-0 Friday night.

Maddux (7-9) won his third straight start after going winless in his previous 13, and helped the the Cubs snap a three-game losing streak. Bill Long pitched the 10th for his third save.

Shawon Dunston drew a one-out walk from reliever Bill Sampen (8-3) to begin the game-winning rally. Dunston stole second and one out later, scored on Varsho's single to left field. Dave Clark singled before Ryne Sandberg broke an 0-for-17 slump with a single to score Varsho.

Maddux retired 17 in a row after Marquis Grissom's one-out infield single in the first. Grissom, who had gone 3-for-7 with one homer off Maddux this season, broke the streak with a leadoff single in the seventh but was erased when Tim Raines hit into a double play.

Maddux made only 52 pitches in his first six innings, 37 for strikes.

Phillies 5, Pirates 3

Dennis Cook pitched five shutout relief innings and Charlie Hayes homered and drove in two runs as Philadelphia beat Pittsburgh, knocking the slumping Pirates out of first place in the National League East.

New York's 10-1 rout of St. Louis gave the Mets a one-game division lead, the Pirates' largest deficit since they trailed by a season-high two games on April 18. Pittsburgh has lost four of its last five games overall and three of its last four at home.

The Pirates have fallen out of the division lead three times previously since April 22, only to regain first place the following day.

Padres 6, Astros 2

Andy Benes allowed two runs in 6⅓ innings to earn his first victory in seven weeks as San Diego beat Houston 6-2 Friday night for its fifth straight victory.

Benes (7-7) allowed eight hits in making his first start since July 17. The right-hander, winless in his previous eight starts, had been sidelined with a sore left shoulder. Greg Harris worked 2 1-3 innings in relief of Benes, whose last victory came June 4 against the Astros.

LPGA: Jones' troubles began on No. 16

From 1B

She finally reached the green with her next shot and lipped a seven-foot putt before knocking the ball into the hole.

"It was hell," she said.

Jones finished with pars on Nos. 17 and 18 for a 1-under 70. Until the disastrous 16th, she hadn't made more than par in the tournament.

"I still haven't had a bogey," she joked. "I was playing an absolute great round of golf and was feeling lucky, leading the pack by five, and then I hit the rough on 16."

Walsh second fiddle

Associated Press

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Steve Walsh goes to work every morning with the knowledge he's second fiddle in coach Jimmy Johnson's quarterback band.

Walsh has no hopes of being traded this year.

And he admits the number one quarterbacking job for the Dallas Cowboys is closed tight, barring another broken finger by Troy Aikman.

"I'm excited about the season but the job is definitely not up for grabs," Walsh said. "And I don't think there are any prospects for me to be traded this year."

Walsh quarterbacked the Cowboys to their only victory in 1989, a 13-3 upset of the Washington Redskins in RFK Stadium.

But as soon as Aikman's broken finger healed, Walsh was back on the bench watching the majority of 15 losses from the sidelines.

Walsh completed 86 of 173 passes for 1,059 yards in five starts. He hit 52 per cent of his passes.

However, Walsh's five touchdown passes were counterbalanced by nine interceptions and he suffered 11 sacks for 84 yards in losses.

His best outing was against Kansas City when he hit 23 of 36 passes for 294 yards and a touchdown.

Even though Walsh quarterbacked Miami to a national title for Johnson, Aikman is still the man because of his stronger arm.

Walsh came out after his junior year and was taken in the supplemental draft by the Cowboys who gambled they could trade him for two or three front-line players.

So far the gamble has failed. Dallas has been asking a first round pick and a veteran player for Walsh with no takers.

Johnson is still high on Walsh although Aikman is tagged the team's quarterback of the future.

An Austin youngster helps Cowboy quarterback Steve Walsh with his helmet as he walks from the athletic center to the team's practice field at St. Edwards University. A local radio station sponsored a contest for children to become official helmet carriers.

"Steve is something special," Johnson said. "He's a bottom-line quarterback and he knows how to win."

The rap on Walsh is that he is slow delivering the sideline passes and can't throw deep.

However, former San Francisco coach Bill Walsh, no relation, has told Dallas owner Jerry Jones that Steve is a treasure to be guarded.

"He does so many things you just can't coach," Bill Walsh said.

Steve has taken an optimistic approach to the season.

"There's really not a legitimate competition for number one, but I need to concentrate on improving every day," Walsh said. "I'm not going into a shell. I'm just going to concentrate on what's best for Steve Walsh."

Then Walsh quipped "Do I sound like Bo Jackson?"

Aikman, the number one pick in the regular draft two years ago, and Walsh have a speaking relationship but the intense competition has kept them from being buddy-buddy.

"I think Troy and (third string quarterback) Babe Laufenberg are good friends," Walsh said. "There's no problem between me and Troy."

Cowboys are heroes again

By Denne H. Freeman

AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN — Cowboys are kings again in Texas.

Forget that highlights of their 1989 highlight film shouldn't last 30 seconds. Ignore that they had only one more victory than 45 dead men.

Don't dwell on their inability to win a game in Texas Stadium.

Perish the thought that they brought the most disgrace to the franchise in 30 years.

Hot jalapeno. They've come to Austin, which has turned St. Edward's University into an altar of adoration for the JJ boys, those tarnished star Dallas Cowboys.

We're talking big league swoon. Apparently word of the Cowboys' 1-15 record didn't reach the 15,000 who recently plunked down $16 each for an upcoming "scrimmage" against the Houston Oilers.

Another 6,800 fans by campus police estimate showed up for a Sunday afternoon workout.

The Cowboys, new heroes of Travis County, already have more volunteers than Col. James Travis got at the Alamo an hour's drive down the road over a century ago.

A big fat guy crawled over a fence, avoided security, and barged in the Cowboys' locker room saying he was ready to join the cause. The man was applauded for his enthusiasm, told to wait until a tryout camp next spring, and escorted to the gate.

The 1,200-mile move from Thousand Oaks, Calif., where Dallas trained for 27 years under Coach Tom Landry, has Lone Star football fans forgetting the Saturday night massacre of Feb. 23, 1989 when Landry was sacked.

Well, almost.

A woman recently asked Coach Jimmy Johnson for his autograph after a workout and said she didn't think she could ever forgive him for what happened to Landry. After Johnson talked to her, she forgave.

Like Landry prophesied the day of his firing: "They'll forget me quick."

Another guy toted a sign saying "Cowboys Unfair to Landry."

After owner Jerry Jones asked him he put down his sign, the malcontent joined the cause.

Training camp has been a daily circus. Seventy-five people sat in the stands just to watch workers line the field.

One practice in the rain drew more than 2,000 worshippers.

One writer remarked: "Are we at the San Francisco 49ers training camp by mistake? Don't these people know who they are watching, the worst team in the NFL?"

This is the way it was for Jimmy Johnson at the University of Miami, only he was a real winner there.

Dallas traded California cool for Texas chili hot practices. It's been a steamy 95 degrees most of the time.

"It's been so hot even I can lose weight," said 350-pound guard Nate Newton.

Don't worry, Jones has thought of everything. Yep, they're selling beer at a tent just behind the practice field.

Go have a bunch of cold ones and you'll swear that's Jerry Rice and Joe Montana out there on the practice field, which cost the city of Austin $200,000.

Johnson wanted to practice in the heat and he got it. Johnson, a native of hot and humid Port Arthur, believes a team forged from branding-iron hot practices won't wilt in the fourth quarter.

That theory worked great at Miami, where he had talent. It didn't work as well at undermanned Oklahoma State, where he lost to Oklahoma's Barry Switzer every year.

Johnson got a few things he didn't bargain for — like seven straight days of rain.

Rain. What rain?

"We worked out in monsoons at Miami one year and didn't lose a game," Johnson said.

Every negative is turned into a positive.

"These are the greatest practice fields I've ever worked on," Johnson said. "Did you see how they drained? Great setup. I would have been depressed if we had gone back to Thousand Oaks again."

Jones broke a promise to California Lutheran College that he would be back but paid the school some "do-right" money with the help of the city of Austin.

At least it has done worlds for the Cowboys' ego.

The golden calf of biblical times probably wasn't worshipped as hard as Troy Aikman and Michael Irvin have been at St. Edward's University.

That Michael.

He gave the fans a show.

Dropped down on his knees and kissed the end zone at the first practice.

This is one sideshow that doesn't need elephants, the alligator lady, or a guy swallowing fire.

The fans don't see the Cowboys as the ugly duckling of the NFL.

They're blinded by that star on the helmet.

There's the man with a duffel bag over his shoulder who evaded security and sought out Johnson.

Noticing some strange fumes, Johnson asked the huge man, "Have you been drinking?"

"Yes sir," the man replied, "but I'm a helluva ballplayer."

Johnson told him to sober up and come to a tryout camp in May.

Everyone wants to help the Cowboys in Austin, including the drunks. St. Edward's, built in 1888, is in a time warp machine.

Nobody remembers last year down here where Willie Nelson sings "Mamas Don't Let Your Babies Grow Up to be Cowboys."

Cowboys are heroes again.

Payton merely traded hats

By MIKE OWEN

Associated Press Writer

LONG POND, Pa. (AP) — Walter Payton still wears a helmet these days, darting left and right in No. 34 trying to outrun the opposition.

It's just that nobody tries to tackle the NFL's all-time rushing leader now that "Sweetness" is a race car driver.

This weekend, the former Chicago Bears star will drive in two Sports Car Club of America events at Pocono International Raceway. He has one victory in four starts this season, June 10 at Road America in Elkhart Lake, Wis.

As he did on the football field, Payton strives for consistency on the racetrack.

"Trying to put two or three laps together or four laps together with less than a second in difference. That's what it's about," he said. "If you can beat the track, then you don't worry about anybody else."

After retiring from pro football in 1987, Payton started racing, attended driving schools and won an SCCA Sports 2000 event at Rockton, Ill. He has three victories in his three-year career.

"The first time I ever went to a race I was in it," said Payton, who also has tried speedboat racing and motocross. "I finished fifth."

Payton, who turned 36 on Wednesday, coyly claimed not to know how he became interested in racing. Then he pointed to a young fan a few feet away.

"He can tell you. He's a kid," Payton said. "You always wanted your bike to go faster than anyone else's. ... You still have those things way back in your mind."

He said he didn't expect anything when he began racing.

"I just went out and saw what it felt like. It's a pretty good feeling," Payton said.

Payton is driving in two SCCA GT-1 races on the 2½-mile road course at Pocono for the Newman Sharp team, which has co-owner Paul Newman and driver Scott Sharp racing in an SCCA Trans-Am event at Road Atlanta.

Only the roof, tail lights and windshield are stock parts for his red, white and blue Oldsmobile Cutlass, which can go about 170 mph.

Eye-foot coordination is as important to him now as it was when he looked for holes in the line as a running back. Balance and feel are also important in both football and racing, he said, but he chooses his words carefully when asked if drivers are athletes.

"I'll put it like this: Auto racers come in all shapes and forms," he said. "Racing's sort of like racquetball. To play racquetball and be good, you don't have to be a real good athlete. All you have to do is play the ball off the wall and anticipate."

Likewise, he said, knowledge of the track is important to a driver, along with such skills as hand-eye coordination.

"I think because my hand-eye coordination's so quick, it's kept me from putting the car in the wall," he said.

Payton laughed while recalling a time Newman rode with him at the team's home track in Lime Rock, Conn. Newman, riding in a temporary passenger seat, reached down to make an adjustment, and a momentary glance by Payton put the car in trouble.

"He thought we were going to lose it big time," Payton said. "But I turned it and had it right on the line (coming out of the turn). I've done that a lot."

Peter Slater, vice president of Newman Sharp Racing, said Payton has a lot of potential and natural ability as a driver.

"He needs more track time," Slater said. "He needs more experience. ... It's a matter of time."

Payton, whose business interests include a bid for an NFL franchise in St. Louis, still must decide how serious he will become about the racing.

"I think this year he's going to have to flush that out," Slater said. "I think everybody has to go through that."

For now, Payton is looking forward to a potential match race in Winston Cup cars against NASCAR team owner Rick Hendrick, who was involved with Tom Cruise in the making of the movie "Days of Thunder." Payton said Hendrick issued the challenge to a race in the Sarasota, Fla., area.

"The reason I'm telling it is because I don't want him to back out," Payton said.

Indianapolis Colts in turmoil and without Chris Chandler

ANDERSON, Ind. (AP) — One year ago, the Indianapolis Colts were talking about going to the Super Bowl. Now, they're a team in turmoil.

Chris Chandler, the starting quarterback when the 1989 season began, is in Seattle after suing the team for breach of contract.

Eric Dickerson, the team's leading rusher since he arrived on Halloween Night in 1987, is in California demanding a trade, seeking a raise and criticizing his offensive line.

The Colts have threatened to suspend both players for a year.

Center Ray Donaldson, a Pro Bowl selection the past three years, reported to training camp Thursday and then left for "personal reasons."

Eight other veterans are unsigned and absent from camp, including three possible defensive starters, offensive lineman Randy Dixon and placekicker Dean Biacussi.

Defensive end Donnell Thompson is no stranger to the franchise's problems, having gone through his own contract disputes and a four-game suspension in 1984.

"I've been here 10 years and I've never seen this much go on in the offseason," Thompson said. "You just have to deal with it. We have no control. We're just hired help. We do what we're told to do. I'm just here passing through and doing as I'm told to do."

Soviets fall to Yugoslavia

Associated Press

SEATTLE — U.S. basketball moved to center stage again Friday. That's where the Soviets tried to take their slapstick act, too, but they only got halfway there.

The Soviet men's basketball team lost 84-78 to Yugoslavia, just one day after their baseball team lost 17-0 — exit stage left — to the Americans in a game stopped after 6⅓ innings by the 10-run rule. It was a real nine-man hook.

After the basketball loss, disaster loomed for the Soviets when their women gymnasts fell behind the United States halfway through the team competition. It looked like a huge upset in the making, but the heavily favored Soviets rallied in the final two events to win narrowly, as the United States took the silver medal.

In Friday night's other semifinal basketball game, the United States, beaten earlier in the tournament by the Soviets, met Brazil and its potent forward, Oscar Schmidt, perhaps the best scorer in the international game.

The winners meet Sunday night for the gold medal.

Friday's action also included the beginning of hockey and wrestling.

Gymnastics

The U.S. team, which has never won a team gold medal in a major international meet, took advantage of a rare mistake by Soviet world champion Svetelana Boginskaya, who fell from the uneven parallel bars, to lead 59.186-59.161 with two events left.

At that point, the Soviets had the floor exercise and vault left, while the Americans finished on the vault and uneven parallel bars. Kim Zmeskal, a 14-year-old American competing despite tendinitis in her left hand, had a 9.912 of a possible 10 in the uneven bars, her worst event, and 15-year-old Betty Okino scored 9.937. It looked like the Soviets would play second banana again.

But the Soviet girls got four scores over 9.9 in the vault, led by Oksana Chusovitina with 9.987, the best score of the night on any of the apparatus, to take the lead. They won with 118.759 points to 118.484 for the Americans. China was third.

With 39.661 points toward her team's total, Zmeskal had more points than any other gymnast, setting her up for a big day Saturday, when the women's all-around championship will be decided.

BASKETBALL

The United States moved into the championship game with a 112-95 rout of Brazil, the team that won the Pan American Games at the Americans' expense in 1987 at Indianapolis.

Kenny Anderson had 25 points and Billy Owens 22 for the United States.

Yugoslavia handed the Soviet Union its second straight defeat since it beat the United States earlier in the week. The Yugoslavs won 84-78 to advance to the championship game as Dino Rajda scored 31 points for Yugoslavia.

Australia defeated Italy 106-78 behind the 50-point performance of Andrew Gaze. The 6-foot-6 guard, who played for Seton Hall in the Final Four last year and was the second-leading scorer in the 1988 Olympics, shot 16-for-21 from the floor, including 9-for-12 on 3-pointers.

Puerto Rico beat Spain 75-74 on Angel Cruz's free throw with 14 seconds to go to advance to a game against Australia for fifth place on Sunday.

El Paso, Pecos go off to state

Staff Report

El Paso and Pecos won state tournament berths in Junior and Senior league Section I playoffs Friday at Angel Stadium.

El Paso swept two games from Arlington West Friday to win the Junior League Section I title and a berth in Waco's state tournament next week.

El Paso won the first game 11-10 and the second game by a 13-9 margin in a pair of high scoring tilts.

Eric Laredo picked up the first game victory for El Paso while Jim Geart took the loss. Despite the big score, Arlington's Josh Potter had the game's only extra base hit, a double.

In the second game, El Paso's J.P. Enriquez got the win while Potter took the loss. Again Arlington had all of the extra base hits with doubles from Brad McDonald and Justin Potter.

In Senior League action, Pecos swept Iowa Park to earn the other state berth in Waco.

Pecos took the first game with an 8-6 victory over Iowa Park, despite a homer by Iowa Park's Mark Childs. Tony Levario and Dominique Tellez doubled for Pecos and Scott McNeely had a double for Iowa Park.

Pecos came back in the nightcap and blasted Iowa Park by a 14-1 margin behind the two-hit pitching of Steven Villanueva. Pecos went wild at the bat as Charlie Zamarada, Tony Levarn and Ralph Dillard all doubled. Zamarada also tripled and Mario Almara homered.

NHL coup irks Soviets

Associated Press

KENNEWICK, Wash. (AP) — The departure of Sergei Fedorov to the Detroit Red Wings means the "future is not so good" for Soviet relations with the National Hockey League, a Soviet hockey official said.

Assistant coach Igor Dmitriev said the team no longer expects Fedorov to return before Saturday, when the Soviets face West Germany in their first Goodwill Games match.

"We are only thinking about how to win the Goodwill Games," Dmitriev said through an interpreter Thursday night.

Without Fedorov, 20, the defending world champions are now "a team like any other team," he said.

Others still consider them the favorites, though, and one player more or less does not make that much difference, said team captain Mikhail Tatarinov.

The rest of the team will try to "play even better than usual," Tatarinov said.

Other players on the Soviet team would like to play in the NHL, "but I don't think they will do what Fedorov did," he added.

Asked if he suspected Fedorov intended to jump from the team, Tatarinov said he "doesn't know."

Fedorov vanished Sunday after an exhibition game in Portland, Ore., and surfaced Tuesday in Detroit with a five-year contract to play for the Red Wings.

The Soviet team includes 15 players who have been drafted by NHL teams at one time or another.

Despite speculation that others might leave the team during the Goodwill Games to sign NHL contracts, there are no obvious signs that the Soviets have tightened security around their players.

However, the team has been making the short trip from the athlete's village to the Tri-City Coliseum by school bus, while most others walk to the arena in small groups.

When asked about security, Dmitriev called for a stronger agreement with the NHL to prevent the "stealing" of Soviet players.

"The future is not so good," he said. "We have no protection against the dishonest activity of the NHL."

Dmitriev said the Soviets may bring another player to the United States to replace Fedorov. For now Dimitri Khristich is playing in his slot.

Fedorov was Detroit's fourth pick in the 1989 NHL entry draft, the highest ever for a Soviet at the time.

The tournament's media guide described him as the "center around whom the next Soviet super troika will be built, despite the defection of Mogilny."

Alexander Mogilny defected from the national team during last year's world championships and now plays for the Buffalo Sabres of the NHL.

Beman slips ahead of British Open field

Senior Golf

Associated Press

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP) — PGA Tour Commissioner Deane Beman shot a 4-under-par 66 Friday to take a one-stroke lead over Arnold Palmer and Gary Player after the second round of the Seniors British Open.

Beman, who retired 16 years ago from the tour he now runs, had a 133 after two rounds.

Palmer, who shot a 68 Friday after tying for the opening-round lead with a 66, is seeking to win a pro tournament in a fifth decade.

The 60-year-old Palmer won the U.S. Masters in the 1950s, seven other majors in the 1960s, several tournaments in the 1970s and seniors events in the 1980s. He defeated Beman in a playoff for the Bob Hope Desert Classic in 1968.

"He must have a nice job to take six weeks off to practice," a smiling Palmer said of Beman who is completing a six-week golfing holiday. "Seriously, though, he has an infallible putting stroke and I think it's great that he is up there."

The best round on a blustery day was turned in by Player, whose 65 included an eagle 3 on the seventh hole.

Defending champion Bob Charles was two shots off the lead with 135, one shot ahead of American Larry Mowry and Englishman Brian Waites. American Billy Casper was in the top 10 with a 140.

Beman, 52, had six birdies in Friday's round and said he battled to maintain his concentration after being away from competition for so long.

Which uniform will Deion be wearing?

Associated Press

NEW YORK — One thing is certain: Deion Sanders will be playing in Detroit on Sept. 16.

What's not certain is what sport the outfielder-cornerback will be playing.

On that day, his Atlanta Falcons will play the Detroit Lions at the Pontiac Silverdome in a 1 p.m. game. Thirty-five minutes later, his New York Yankees will meet Detroit at Tiger Stadium.

While it is doubtful that Sanders will go the baseball route just to get an extra half-hour sleep, a $2.5-million contract might just convince him.

That's the amount the Yankees are offering Sanders to stay with the team past his July 31 football reporting date, the Atlanta Journal said Friday. The amount includes a $1 million base salary for the 1991 season, plus up to $1 million more in performance incentives.

It could go up to $2.5 million if, as expected, the Yankees pick up all or part of the penalties the Falcons might levy against him, the report said.

Eugene Parker, Sanders' personal attorney, said the Yankees contract is "inevitable at this point," but declined to comment on the details.

"I will say that we're talking about an absolutely awesome contract. It's too much for Deion not to consider," Parker told the Journal.

Yankees vice president George Bradley, who is handling the Sanders negotiations, could not be reached for comment.

Falcons officials conceded Friday that Sanders, their first-round draft pick in 1989, would almost certainly miss training camp and part of the regular season in order to extend his baseball season.

"It sure looks like he's going to sign (with the Yankees)," said Falcons president Taylor Smith. "We'll be extremely disappointed if it happens."

The 6-1, 195-pound Sanders signed a four-year, $4.4 million contract with the Falcons last September. His base salary for this season is $550,000.

Falcons spokesman Charlie Taylor said that Sanders would be fined $1,500 for each day past July 31 that he is not in training camp.

But Taylor also said the fines could escalate if the days turn into months. If he misses the entire season, Sanders might have to repay up to 75 percent of his $2 million signing bonus.

A new baseball contract would mean that the earliest the .156 hitter could be available for a regular-season football game is the Falcons' Oct. 7 meeting with New Orleans, their fourth game of the season.

Alabama star wanted in free

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. — University of Alabama star tailback Siran Stacy and teammate Robert Jones were arrested Friday on disorderly conduct charges at the same nightclub where another star runner, Bobby Humphrey, suffered a broken jaw two years ago.

Police Capt. David Hartin said Stacy, 21, and Jones, 20, were arrested at 12:20 a.m. and were released at 2 a.m. on $300 bond.

The two were accused of trying to enter the Citizens Club without paying the cover charge. They allegedly became loud and abusive with the club's security guard and manager and words were exchanged in the parking lot prior to their arrest.

"To my knowledge, there were no blows passed. It was all verbal," said Hartin.

Big Ten feels NFL squeeze

Associated Press

CHICAGO — From conference commissioner Jim Delany to Coach Joe Paterno of newest member Penn State, the Big Ten is concerned about the squeeze being put on college football by the NFL.

"In the 1950s, the NFL people were college people like George Halas, Bert Bell, the Maras, Paul Brown. Now we are dealing with corporations," Paterno said prior to the Big Ten's Kickoff luncheon.

"(The NFL) is squeezing us. They are adding teams. They have formed a minor league. They are siphoning off so much of the TV money. There is only so much advertising money to be had."

Delany said he's concerned about the NFL expanding from a 16-week to an 18-week season, which creates an overlap with college games in late December.

"The NFL expansion will conflict with our bowl games," he said. "We have to communicate with the NFL."

Colleges also don't like the NFL forcing draftees to attend minicamps in May when final examinations are being held or players are on the verge of graduating.

"It is difficult for youngsters to participate in minicamps when they are a couple of weeks away from getting a degree," said John Mackovic of Illinois, a former head coach of the Kansas City Chiefs. "They can push their minicamps back to June."

Some college coaches think pro scouts should be barred from campuses, but Michigan's Gary Moeller isn't sure. He said he's waiting for action on a proposal made by the American Football Coaches Association.

"The AFCA has a recommendation before the NFL commissioner on the problems and we'll see what their response will be," Moeller said.

Michigan State's George Perles, a former assistant coach for the Pittsburgh Steelers, said: "The NFL is trying to make a buck. That's the American way. But we have to sit down at a table and work out the problems. The NFL needs college football."

In the past, the NFL had a rule prohibiting the drafting of players until their class graduated. However, that has been dropped because of the threat of legal action.

"I like the old rules when pros did not draft underclassmen. But we know those days are over," Northwestern coach Francis Peay said. "Something has to be worked out between the NCAA and the NFL. We have to find a way where a player can test the (NFL) waters without disrupting his eligibility."

Martin enjoying Winston Cup lead

Associated Press

TALLADEGA, Ala. — When Mark Martin looks over his shoulder, he sees a scary figure — Dale Earnhardt.

The sight of NASCAR's "Intimidator" closing in would be enough to give some competitors the shivers, but Martin is enjoying being the Winston Cup points leader too much to worry about losing his edge.

Going into Sunday's Diehard 500 at Talladega Superspeedway — the 17th of 29 Winston Cup events this season — Martin leads three-time champion Earnhardt by just 48 points.

Rusty Wallace, the defending Winston Cup champion, is 105 points behind, followed by Geoff Bodine 114 points in back of Martin.

That is close enough that, depending on circumstances in the race, any of them could be leading after Sunday's 500-mile race on the 2.66-mile, high-banked oval.

Earnhardt won the pole — his first in three years — while Martin will start fourth in the 42-car field.

Martin, whose only Winston Cup victory came earlier this season at Richmond, Va., has earned his point lead based on the consistency shown by his team, owned and operated by Jack Roush.

"I think racing for wins is the same as racing for points," Martin said. "You can luck into races if you don't wreck or fall apart, if the faster cars wreck or fall apart. Several things can happen and, boom, you've won again, even on days when you aren't your best."

While Earnhardt and Wallace are known for their aggressive style of driving, Martin appears more conservative on the racetrack. But he says not to let appearances fool you.

NASCAR

"I've never finished any higher because I was wilder, or because I hung it out any more, because any time I hang it out more, I crash," Martin said.

"I run every inch of every race as hard as I can. I already run my guts out. If I'm not sideways and smoking the tires, it's because it's not my style. It doesn't mean I'm not driving hard.

"Trying to race smart has always been a lot better for me than trying to impress the crowd."

But Martin also insists he always tries to get the most out of his Ford Thunderbirds.

"The preparation of the cars and the bullet-proof engines are the real reasons we've done so well in the points," he said. "And we have a pretty fast race car — everywhere. Sometimes it's real fast, sometimes it's not so fast. But it's never really bad."

Martin has won two poles this season and has 12 top-10 finishes,

Broyles to make Arkansas decision known in August

■ A newspaper in Alabama reports that Arkansas has already decided to leave the Southwest Conference.

Associated Press

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. — Negotiations are over and the University of Arkansas will announce by the start of fall football drills Aug. 15 whether the university will jump to the Southeastern Conference, UA Athletic Director Frank Broyles said Friday.

Meanwhile, an Alabama newspaper reported Friday that Arkansas and Florida State have accepted invitations to join the SEC.

Arkansas athletic director Frank Broyles and Florida State athletic director Bob Goin both denied that the SEC had made any such invitation, but Broyles said whether the Razorbacks join the SEC is now "up to us."

UA and SEC officials have been talking since late May, when the SEC began courting Arkansas for inclusion in its expansion plans.

Arkansas has been in the Southwest Conference for 76 years. Broyles said after a mid-July meeting of SWC officials in Dallas that it was still highly likely that Arkansas would remain in the SWC. At any rate, the earliest Arkansas would leave would be the fall of 1992, he said then.

But any decision probably would come quickly, he said.

Friday, in a telephone interview from his office, Broyles said:

"Our discussions with the Southeastern Conference have ended, and it's up to us to decide what we want to do. There are no negotiations going on. We don't expect any more meetings to be held. We're just sitting here evaluating our position as to what is best for the university over and above athletics."

Asked how it is up to Arkansas to decide if no official invitation to join the SEC has been extended, Broyles said: "You're going to have to talk to the chancellor. He's making those decisions."

UA Chancellor Dan Ferritor was not in his office Friday and was not expected back until Monday, spokesman Jim Treadway said.

UA officials had planned an announcement for sometime in September but advanced the timetable, Broyles said, because of strong support among school faculty, student groups, administrators and others for a decision before school starts.

"And (football coach Jack) Crowe very much wants to speed it up before players report and not have it clouding the season. We have to take that into consideration," Broyles said.

The Alabama Journal quoted an unnamed source, identified as a "highly ranked SEC official," who confirmed that the two universities would join the SEC, bringing the number of SEC teams to 12.

"I don't think Arkansas will announce it this week, but I look for it to be announced by next week," the newspaper quoted the source as saying. "It's up to Florida State President Bernard Sliger whenever he wishes to announce."

The Journal story said SEC Commissioner Roy Kramer met with FSU officials earlier this week to make the deal final.

Florida State's athletic director issued a quick denial.

"If the story is we have accepted an invitation to join the SEC, that's false. Nothing could be further from the truth. We have not been extended an offer, nor have we accepted one," Goin said.

Donald Zacharis, president of Mississippi State University and president of the SEC, told Tupelo, Miss., television station WTVA that Florida State has not been issued a formal invitation.

"The bottom line is the SEC is continuing its discussions with several institutions and no official announcement is even close to being ready," Zacharis said.

The Arkansas Democrat, citing unnamed sources close to the negotiations, reported Friday that an official invitation was expected to be extended soon from the SEC to Arkansas and Florida State.

Earlier this week, Arkansas' faculty athletic committee recommended unanimously that the university join the SEC. A Tuscaloosa, Ala., radio station, WFFX, reported Thursday that UA officials already had made up their minds. The station quoted unnamed sources close to the university and the SEC in reporting that an announcement could come by week's end.

SEC Commissioner Kramer would neither confirm nor deny the station's report.

In Austin, Texas, David McWilliams, head football coach at the University of Texas, sounded as if he thought UA had already made a decision to leave the league.

"I think the important thing though is now we do know what the decision is so we've got to move on as the University of Texas and as the Southwest Conference to see if there's going to be any adjustments that we'll make."

Asked if Texas would like to face Arkansas as a non-SWC rival, McWilliams said, "I think it would be a good rivalry that we've had for many years, and I'd certainly hate to lose them."

But he added that if Arkansas does leave, "we'd probably lose that game, especially for a few years anyhow, until both of us could work our schedules out."

Shoal Creek episode now costing networks

Associated Press

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Another company has withdrawn its television commercials for the PGA Championship because the host club has no black members and ABC said its lost ad revenue is nearing $2 million.

It also appeared Friday that the tournament will be picketed despite a request by Birmingham's black mayor not to stage protests.

Leaders of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference said that promises by Shoal Creek's governors that the private club will consider blacks as members were too late to head off demonstrations during the Aug. 9-12 tournament.

For ABC, the losses have become costly.

Douglas fight moved back to October

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The title fight between heavyweight champion James "Buster" Douglas and Evander Holyfield has been moved from Sept. 21 to Oct. 25, Douglas' manager said Friday.

John Johnson said he was told of the change by promoter Steve Wynn, who owns the Mirage Hotel and Casino in Las Vegas, where the fight will be held.

Johnson said the change gives Douglas more time to train.

Dorsett introduces NFL candy

ATLANTA (AP) — Former Dallas and Denver running back Tony Dorsett was called "TD" when he was with the Cowboys. Now, the NFL is using that nickname to market one of its new "NFL Team Confections."

The chocolate-covered, football-shaped almond candies are called "TD's."

"Hey, how could you have a candy called 'TD's' and not have 'TD' involved?" Dorsett said during a news conference to introduce the new product.

"I eat a lot of candy. If you ever come to my house, I've got big jars of candy all around."

The NFL candies were introduced Thursday during the National Candy Wholesalers Association's annual convention in Atlanta.

Produced by Impel Marketing and NFL Properties, the line also includes a "Super Bar;" a bag of miniature "Team Bars" bearing the logo of each NFL team; a "Super Bowl Commemorative Tin" filled with silver-wrapped Super Bowl coins; and the "Official Chocolate Game Ball," a hollow, full-size replica of an NFL pigskin.

Cummings threatens retirement

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — San Antonio Spurs forward Terry Cummings said he might take a year off or possibly retire from pro basketball if current contract negotiations don't go his way.

But a Spurs spokesman said Friday team officials will continue negotiating with Cummings and his agent and undoubtedly the two sides will reach an agreement.

Cummings has a contract paying him $1.7 million the next two seasons. He wants a three-year extension that would pay him an average of $2.5 million over five years.

The team has offered a three-year extension giving Cummings a package averaging $2 million per season over the five years.

"I've always wanted to take a year off and now I have so many business ventures that it would be more profitable for me to concentrate on that area," Cummings told the San Antonio Express-News in Friday's editions.

The 29-year-old veteran said he is becoming heavily involved in television, audio and music production.

"It might not necessarily be a bad thing to leave basketball," Cummings said. "I've made a lot of money, a lot of friends and had a wonderful time."

Team spokesman Wayne Witt said Spurs executives will continue to negotiate with Cummings and his agent.

"Obviously they are apart on the needs and demands and the wishes on both parts," Witt said. "Obviously there will be additional talks."

Rockets enter Perkins chase

DALLAS (AP) — The Houston Rockets have entered the race to lure forward Sam Perkins away from the Dallas Mavericks, a report says.

The Dallas Morning News reported Friday that the Rockets have told Lee Fentress, Perkins' agent, that they're trying to find a way to compete with the six-year, $18 million offer Dallas has made to Perkins.

The NBA salary cap is expected to jump from $9.8 million to $11.7 million next week.

Houston general manager Steve Patterson says he doesn't see how his club can top the Mavericks offer with its present salary structure.

"It would be difficult, given what the projected cap will be," Patterson said. "But we've talked to Fentress, and we will take a look at him (Perkins)."

Several other NBA teams, including the Los Angeles Lakers, Denver Nuggets and Chicago Bulls, have expressed an interest in acquiring the 6-9 Perkins. Fentress also said Italy's Il Messaggero has asked about his client.

He said Perkins "is in no hurry to reach a decision about his future."

Houston coach Don Chaney said he believes Perkins is the type of player Houston needs to enhance its playoff hopes.

"Any time you can upgrade your team with a high-caliber player like that, you've got to try," Chaney said Thursday.

Soviet leads Pentathlon

LAHTI, Finland (AP) — Edward Zenovka of the Soviet Union took the lead in the World Modern Pentathlon Championships Friday with a third-place finish in the cross country race.

Anatoly Starostin, another Soviet athlete, slipped to second after a 13th place finish in the cross country.

Zenovka covered the 4,000-meter course in 12 minutes, 55.1 seconds and picked up 1,240 points. He leads Starostin 4,576 to 4,557 going into the final horseback riding portion Saturday.

Manuel Barrosco of Portugal won the cross country race in 12:38.9.

Robert Stull, the American champion from Austin, Texas, dropped from fourth to 18th overall. Stull was 57th among 65 competitors in the cross country.

Laszlo Beres and Douglas Stull, the other U.S. team members, were 47th and 52nd overall.

Sister City program leads to marriage

RICHMOND, Ind. (AP) — Richmond's Sister City program to foster good will between the United States and the Soviet Union has resulted in more than simple friendship. It led to marriage.

Carol Kimbrough and Igor Kuzminich were married last week, culminating a courtship that began last August when Kimbrough went to the Soviet Union on an exchange trip.

On her second day there, she met Kuzminich on a canoe trip.

"No man is an island," said the poet. Yet, in a real sense, every person is an island. And life is the process of building bridges from one island to another.

From the first cry in the delivery room, to the last whimper on the death bed, we are in the life-long process of building bridges to other islands (other people).

Your place of worship will give you tools for building bridges, not only to other people, but to the One who created you in His image. And building bridges is exciting, enabling you to cross-over into new lands of real living.

Let God's House be your bridge this week.

3 men will be ordained

Staff Report

SAN ANGELO — A spirit of joy and thanksgiving will spread across the Diocese of San Angelo as three men are ordained to the Catholic priesthood for service in the diocese.

The ancient rites of invocation of the Holy Spirit and imposition of hands by the ordaining bishop and priests in attendance will take place at 10 a.m. Aug. 4 at Sacred Heart cathedral in San Angelo.

Being ordained as priests are Deacons Barry Lynn McLean of Big Spring, Michael Amez Rodriquez of El Paso and Raymond Francis Gallagher of Cleveland, Ohio.

McLean, 29, is the son of Barry and Nena McLean of Big Spring. He was born at Vandenburg Air Force Base in California.

His decision to become a priest, he said, stems from the fact that "there's been a lot of pain in my life. God was very close and felt like an anchor. I want to share that." Despite his desire, McLean said that he "ran from the idea of priesthood for a while."

After graduation from Big Spring High School in 1980, he entered Texas State Technical Institute in Sweetwater, where he earned a degree in livestock and ranch operation.

Later, McLean attended St. Mary's Seminary in Houston, and studied at the University of St. Thomas. He has been awarded the bachelor's degree in psychology and the master of divinity degree.

During his seminary years, McLean ministered at a Houston youth detention center, at Darrington State Penitentiary and at the Santa Maria Hostel for Women. He spent an internship at LaMarque.

Born and raised in the Methodist Church, McLean converted to Catholicism in 1976.

Same family has rung church's bells for almost 100 years

By Laurie Casaday

MESILLA, N.M. (AP) — Every Sunday morning, George Gallegos pulls the ropes sounding the bells that call the parishioners to worship — just like his grandfather did before him.

When Gallegos can't ring the bells at San Albino Catholic Church in Mesilla near Las Cruces, his son or grandsons fill in for him.

For nearly a century, ringing the bells of San Albino has remained in one Mesilla family. The bell-ringing family is now as much a part of San Albino as the church is of Mesilla.

Since 1852, San Albino has sat graciously on Mesilla's plaza. It originally was built on the southern side, but after three years was moved to the northern side of the plaza.

In 1896, Gallegos' grandfather, Manuel Valles, began to ring the church bells at sunup to call parishioners to Mass. He did it for the next 60 years.

Valles rang the bells faithfully until 1956 when poor eyesight and bad health prevented him from continuing.

Gallegos' father might have taken over, but he had been killed in 1921 when he fell off a wagon and broke his back. Valles then became a father figure to Gallegos and his two brothers.

And, like a father passing on his vocation, Valles taught his grandsons how to ring the bells. Gallegos took to it with a passion that is still evident.

"I used to come once in a while with him when he rang them," Gallegos said. "To him, he loved ringing the bells. It would be automatic. Then he started losing his eyesight and when this started happening, I did it."

Gallegos was about 17 years old when he began ringing the San Albino bells. He's now 69, and when he can't make it for his Sunday morning ringing, he has two grandsons who know the ropes and are ready to take over.

'When they ring it I think they outdo other churches' bells. I love doing it because, I guess, it's in my genes from my grandfather and he loved doing it.'

— George Gallegos, bell-ringer

"Someone in the family had to do it, but others have rung the bells," he said.

Gallegos, a former employee of White Sands Missile Range, now rings the bells only for the 11 a.m. Sunday service. A friend who is also retired from the missile range rings the bells for 6:30 a.m. services during the week.

Gallegos also rings the bells for special occasions.

"I toll the bells for funerals. We toll them. That's what we call it when someone passes away," he said. "It's difficult. When you get to ring the big one — it's 4 feet in diameter. The other two are smaller — they're 3 feet in diameter."

The big bell in the church's west tower is rung only during Holy Week because its vibrations knock dirt loose from the upper floorboards, Gallegos said. To call people to daily worship, the smaller bells in the east tower are used in a distinguishing sequence.

Whether calling parishioners to worship or tolling the bells for a funeral, it's a well-choreographed routine.

"This is how it's done. I've done it for years and years," Gallegos said as he seized one the ropes to the smaller bells in preparation to explaining the procedure for tolling the bells during a funeral.

The ropes to operate the smaller bells are in a room in the back of the church where extra chairs are stored. Gallegos takes two of the ropes in his hands and begins to explain the steps he follows to make the bells ring.

He brings the two ropes together and says he holds that one note for about 20 seconds.

Then, for funerals, he rings the bells two or three times. If a man died, Gallegos will ring the bell three times. If a woman died he rings the bells twice.

It's another belling-ringing tradition that Gallegos said he learned from his grandfather.

He continued with the lesson.

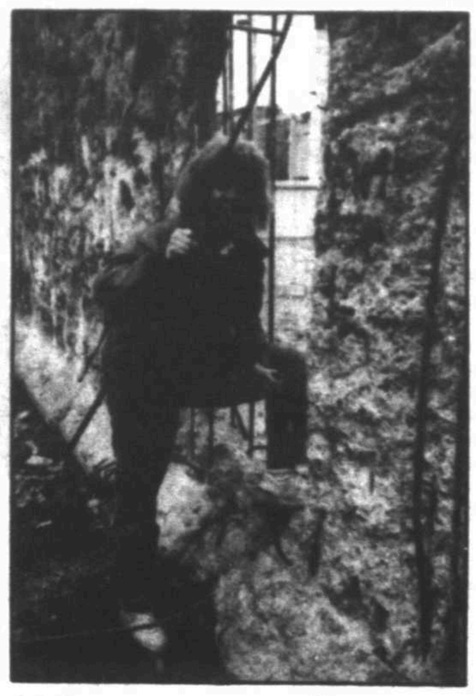
"Then I pull three more times the left (rope) and count to 20. Then I pull the other one so the hammer hits one side and stays there," he said. "Then I go back and hit the other (bell) three times then one time. Then I repeat (the last part) seven or eight times. Then I go ahead and ring it all over, just in case someone didn't hear it the first time."

Easy, right?

It is, Gallegos insisted. But it takes practice to learn it skillfully.

He boasted about the bells as he climbed up a wobbly ladder to the dusty west tower of San Albino.

There hangs the big bell. It was brought to Mesilla from Milwaukee in the early 1880s and, like a newborn, was baptized.



During her recent tour of Germany, Betsy Brown stopped at the Berlin Wall.

Woman to discuss ministry

Staff Report

Betsy Brown will lead a 6:30 p.m. praise and worship service Sunday at First Baptist Church, 2104 Louisiana Ave.

Miss Brown recently completed nine months of ministry in Europe. Last October she traveled to West Germany to work with the U.S. military and their families stationed in western Europe. Since that time, she has presented the gospel more than 220 times to about 20,000 people.

As a result of her ministry among the military, Ms. Brown has traveled to many small outposts in West Germany, Switzerland, England, Hungary, Romania, Holland, Italy, Greece and East Germany.

"There are many, many stories of adult men and women coming to know Jesus, of young people gathering to pray and study his word, of revival in Crete, of a young East Berliner who had never heard of God, and of a Wall that came down," says a release from the church. "But most of all, Betsy's story is about living a life of complete obedience to Jesus and the amazing provision, protection, life-changing results that come from that commitment."

Following the Sunday worship service, Miss Brown will share slides and stories of her experiences in Europe. She will sing and discuss her life commitment to return to Europe this fall for a full-time ministry in gospel music.

Crestview plans 'Singles Celebration'

"Singles Celebration" is set for 7 p.m. today in the Crestview Baptist Church Recreation Center, Midkiff Street a block south of Illinois Avenue.

Events include music, drama, speakers, a catered snack bar and fellowship. The theme for the evening's program will be "Who Can You Trust?"

Vouchers will be available for single parents to help subsidize child care for the evening. All area singles are encouraged to attend and bring a friend. No admission will be charged.

In addition, a special singles program will be presented at the 9:30 a.m. service Sunday. Then, at noon, singles from the church plan to eat together at the Ramada Inn buffet.

The Rev. Harold L. Quarles and his wife, Ruth, will move to Glenwood Springs, Colo., this coming week to assume the pastorate of the Church of the Nazarene there.

Quarles has served as the pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene here for 13 years. The couple has three children.

Quarles has been in the full-time ministry in the Church of the Nazarene for 28 years, since receiving his bachelor of arts degree from Pasadena College in Pasadena, Calif. He has served churches in Oregon, New Mexico and Texas.

Mrs. Quarles also received her bachelor of arts degree from Pasadena College and has been actively involved in the church in many capacities in addition to running a part-time piano tuning and repair business.

"They will miss the area immensely, but are excited about exploring new territory and continuing to serve the Lord in the work of the church elsewhere," says a release from the church.

Mistrial declared in second Buckey trial for molestation

NATION

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A mistrial was declared Friday in Raymond Buckey's second trial on charges he molested children at the McMartin Pre-School, and prosecutors said they wouldn't try him a third time.

The prosecutors' decision following a jury deadlock on eight sex counts ended the longest, costliest criminal case in U.S. history.

"It is clear to me that the jury will not reach a verdict in this case on any of the counts," Superior Court Judge Stanley Weisberg said in declaring the mistrial.

Votes on seven of the eight counts leaned toward acquittal, and deputy District Attorney Joseph Martinez said Buckey would not be tried again.

"The community has had enough. We gave it our best shot," Martinez said. "These kids cannot be McMartin kids for the rest of their lives. It's been a horrible experience."

BUCKEY SAID he would not be happy until Weisberg makes a final ruling at a hearing Wednesday on whether to abide by the prosecution motion to dismiss.

"No one has won in the McMartin case, one or two," Buckey said. "I was innocent coming in and I'm still innocent because I wasn't found guilty."

The lack of resolution was another bizarre development in the McMartin case, which has consumed seven years of court time and cost Los Angeles County more than $13.5 million.

During a news conference, District Attorney Ira Reiner conceded there were "fundamental problems with the evidence in this case that go back six or seven years."

But he said he did not regret going through with the second trial.

"The parents felt it was important there would be a resolution," he said. "I think it's clear now there cannot be."

DEFENSE ATTORNEY Danny Davis said the ordeal would never be over for the parents.

"It's a horrible predicament to ... consider it didn't happen and they bought into a circus," he said.

Even one of the most outspoken parents, who had demanded the retrial, said she had tired of the battle.

"I really wasn't surprised," Jackie McGauley said of the mistrial. "People are real divided on this issue. ... I feel such relief that it's over. I'd like to get on with the work of seeing that the justice system is changed to accommodate children."

Asked what he would do with the rest of his life, Buckey said, "I'm just going to go on. I've learned to endure a lot of things in seven years. ... I would like to be just left alone."

"I'll have to get a job now," he added with a smile.

Buckey's father, Charles, said he was disappointed his son was not acquitted.

"I'VE LOST faith in the district attorney's office," he said. "Every one of these people has lied and been very deceitful."

Divided on all counts, the jurors were unanimous on one thing: That the case should not be tried again.

"There are too many questions, too many gaping holes and it's too much time to spend," said juror Michael Carapella, a 25-year-old musician.

Jury Foreman Richard Dunham told the judge that an extra week of deliberation, which came after the panel reported earlier deadlocks, only resulted in splitting jurors further.

Early Friday, they retracted two unanimous verdicts they submitted in sealed envelopes, reporting they were deadlocked on those counts as well.

Dunham said the panelists had divided their votes differently on the eight counts, with the splits ranging from 6-6 to 11-1.

THE JURORS took the same route an earlier jury took last January, choosing not to decide because they could not agree whether Buckey was guilty or innocent of molesting three young girls as long as 10 years ago at his family's Manhattan Beach preschool.

A number of jurors said they felt the crucial pieces of evidence dividing them were the videotapes made by Childrens Institute International, in which therapists interviewed toddlers about whether they were molested.

"The CII tapes were in my mind very bad," said Dunham. "We did not put a lot of credibility in them. Most of us felt the techniques of the interviews were very leading."

Another juror complained there was insufficient corroborating evidence from witnesses other than the parents to back up the children's stories.

"All the evidence I saw in the process, to me he's not guilty," said juror Sylvia Scrigna, 30, a bank employee.

THE McMARTIN saga began in August 1983 when a mother called Manhattan Beach police to complain that her child had been molested at the school.

Police responded by sending letters to parents suggesting they check their children for signs of molestation. Hysteria followed, and the case ignited a national wave of concern over molestation. Buckey, his mother, grandmother, sister and three other teachers were arrested.

Children gave investigators accounts of "naked games," satanic rites and animals tortured to frighten the youngsters into silence.

The first jury spent nine weeks deliberating on the 65 molestation and conspiracy charges against the Buckeys, who were accused of molesting 11 children during a five-year period at their family-owned preschool.

On Jan. 18, the panel acquitted Mrs. Buckey of 12 charges, absolved her son on 40 counts but deadlocked on another 13 charges against him.

Parents who had championed the prosecution went on national TV shows and submitted petitions pressuring the county to retry Buckey.

Kodak bid had check on mirrors

WASHINGTON (AP) — An unsuccessful Eastman Kodak bid to make the Hubble Space Telescope mirrors called for a second company to double check the grinding and polishing, a provision not offered by low bidder Perkin-Elmer, the firm that produced the flawed Hubble mirror.

The Kodak bid submitted to NASA for manufacture of the Hubble mirrors called for Kodak to make one primary mirror within its plant and for Itek Optical Systems to make an identical primary mirror at another plant.

NASA made the bid proposal documents available in response to a Freedom of Information petition.

In its proposal, Kodak said that the two mirrors and the different testing systems of the two companies could be used to verify the prescription. One of the two primary mirrors would then be used in the Hubble Space Telescope.

NASA officials, however, awarded the contract to Perkin-Elmer. The Danbury, Conn. firm, now known as Hughes Danbury Optical Systems, did its own mirror grinding and polishing and used its own personnel and equipment to check the mirror prescriptions.

Perkin-Elmer's winning bid was $84.28 million. Kodak's proposal was for $99.79 million. Through overruns, the Perkin-Elmer contract climbed to an eventual total of $451 million.

The Hubble Space Telescope, which was launched in April, has been found to have a focusing flaw in either the primary or secondary mirror. This error, NASA officials have said, means the $1.5 billion telescope is now able to capture images that are only about half as clear as those planned.

Bush predicts Souter confirmation with 'flying colors'

AP Laserphoto

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — President Bush gave David Souter a ride back to New England on Air Force One Friday, saying he was pleased with the nation's reaction to the little-known Supreme Court nominee and predicting Senate confirmation "with flying colors."

Addressing the closest thing to a controversy so far, Bush denied that he had agreed before meeting Souter last Monday not to ask him delicate questions about his views on controversial issues such as abortion.

Two senators have quoted Souter as saying he had requested that such questions not be asked, and Bush has said he didn't ask them.

But Bush, when asked whether he had made such a deal in advance of interviewing his prospective high court choice, said, "No, nothing on my side on that."

Meanwhile, Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, announced the panel will open hearings on Souter's nomination on Sept. 13.

Souter, after a hectic week in Washington readying for the confirmation hearings, flew with Bush aboard the presidential aircraft to Pease Air Force Base in New Hampshire, then went his own way while Bush and his wife Barbara flew to Kennebunkport by helicopter to their oceanside summer home.

The laconic Souter briefly appeared in the press cabin aboard Air Force One, but quickly retreated after quipping, "I don't want to ruin my reputation. I have two words to say. 'Hi' and 'Goodbye.'"

On the ground, when reporters asked the 50-year-old federal appeals judge how it felt to be back in New Hampshire, he replied, "It feels damn good." He then drove off with a friend, Tom Rath, and Rath's twin children, to visit his mother at a retirement community in Concord.

Rath said Souter hopes to visit friends, do his laundry, get some rest and "try to disappear" while digging into a pile of reading in preparation for his confirmation hearings.

Earlier Friday in Washington, Souter continued his get-acquainted meetings with senators, fending off reporters' questions on specific issues — primarily abortion rights.

"I think, with respect, that that is certainly a question that I'm going to be asked when the time for the confirmation hearing comes, and I think that would be the appropriate place for me to respond," he said.

Souter also met with Vice President Dan Quayle, who later said the Senate should "avoid rancorous partisanship" and resist arguments of special interest groups that might oppose the nominee.

Errors leave woman broke

SAN JOSE, Calif. (NYT) — When Jerre Jackson went to her bank here on Wednesday, she got some bad news: Not only had the Social Security Administration declared her dead, the government had also confiscated all of her money.

Fortunately, Jackson quickly lined up a few advocates who were willing to attest that she was indeed alive — and quite angry. On Friday, bureaucrats officially resurrected Jackson and returned her $741.

"I'm very relieved," Jackson said after talking with the manager of her Wells Fargo Bank branch. Without a quick resolution, she said, "I would have been sitting here with what I had in my pocket, which is $1.50."

No one can say exactly how the 48-year-old San Jose woman was mistakenly declared dead, but the problem is not unprecedented. It is also standard procedure for the U.S. Treasury Department to reclaim any benefits paid after the date when a person supposedly died.

Jackson's nearest Social Security office, in Sunnyvale, Calif., averages about a half-dozen erroneous death reports per year among its 28,000 clients, according to operations manager Gail Breckenridge.

Escapee urged to run

MILWAUKEE (AP) — More than 200 supporters, many wearing "Run Bambi Run" T-shirts, rallied Friday to wish a convicted killer luck in evading capture.

Lawrencia Bembenek, 31, a former model and policewoman convicted of murdering her then-husband's ex-wife in 1981, is believed to have fled with her fiance after scaling a fence July 15 at a women's prison in east-central Wisconsin.

Ms. Bembenek, who was nicknamed "Bambi," was serving a life term, but would have been eligible for parole in 1993. Her efforts to win a new trial have been rejected by state appeals courts three times and the Wisconsin Supreme Court once.

Supporters at the rally, held at a municipal park next to the Milwaukee Police Department and courthouse where Ms. Bembenek worked, wore paper masks of her likeness and told passers-by, "Confuse the enemy."

Many maintained that Ms. Bembenek received an unfair trial and was the victim of a police setup.

Roswell sees tornado

ROSWELL, N.M. (AP) — A tornado touched down briefly Friday during a thunderstorm near Roswell but officials said there were no reports of injuries or property damage.

Witnesses said the tornado touched down for a few minutes at 4:05 p.m. about 15 miles southwest of the Roswell airport.

"We observed it from the tower," said Paul Weikel, an air traffic controller at the airport. "It was a small funnel cloud. It touched the ground two different times."

A National Weather Service specialist in Albuquerque said his office received reports of funnel cloud sightings and issued a tornado warning Friday afternoon.

Barry defense rests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The defense rested in Marion Barry's drug and perjury trial Friday, keeping Barry off the stand rather than give prosecutors a chance to question him before the jury.

Prosecutors immediately began their rebuttal case, attacking the accuracy of the testimony of four witnesses who had appeared at the trial on Barry's behalf.

"I have advised Mr. Barry that no matter how we restrict his testimony ... he would still be subject to cross-examination," R. Kenneth Mundy, one of Barry's attorneys, told the judge.

Mundy said he had told Barry he could have expected to face "all the questions" prosecutors wanted to ask about the numerous allegations of drug use.

Roemer vetoes new Louisiana law on abortion

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Gov. Buddy Roemer on Friday vetoed what would have been the nation's toughest state abortion law. He said the male-dominated Legislature that fashioned it was insensitive to the rights of rape victims.

Roemer

The decision by Roemer, who describes himself as "pro-life," drew outrage from abortion opponents.

"He's betrayed the pro-life majority that elected him," said Nancy Myers, spokeswoman for the National Right to Life Committee in Washington.

Rep. Woody Jenkins, the bill's sponsor, said he would ask the Legislature to return for a special August session to hand the governor an override. If that happened, it would be the first override this century in Louisiana.

The bill had been thrown together in the tumultous final days of the session, which ended July 9.

The bill vetoed Friday was passed in both legislative chambers with more than the two-thirds majorities necessary for an override. Because the session is over, however, lawmakers would have to call themselves back for a special session by mail.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Put greater personal effort into everything you do. Good luck, coupled with hard work, will brighten the financial picture. Creative activities bring new public recognition. Rearrange your schedule to accommodate family members. Loved ones need to be together during the Christmas holidays. Overseas travel may have to wait. Do not let romance slip away while you focus on business. February 1991 could mark the turning point in a longtime alliance.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: pianist Peter Duchin, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, actresses Linda Kelsey and Sally Struthers.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your vitality should return if you continue an exercise-and-diet regimen. The stress you feel may be caused by working with those who oppose you. A romantic interlude helps banish tension.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your romantic partner may be in an argumentative mood. Diplomacy helps avert a confrontation. A long-range career decision could have a big impact on a personal relationship.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Working alone may be more rewarding than helping the team today. Focus on projects already under way. Certain pleasurable activities could cause problems. Write or call relatives.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A change of diet or routine could improve your mood. New scenery would be helpful, too. Use public transportation whenever possible. Include loved ones when planning for the future. Follow your intuition.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Romance dominates your thoughts today. Hold fast to your vision of future achievements. Loved ones seek your company. Business affairs profit from your good sense of timing.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be more specific when you deal with figures. Carelessness could cause hardship. Your popularity increases. Wine and dine an attractive member of the opposite sex. Your charm is legendary!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A member of the opposite sex plays an important role in your plans today. Review your financial resources. You may have too much credit card debt. Think about starting your own business.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your special talents will be praised and rewarded soon. Avoid reckless spending. Domestic life could become complicated later in the afternoon. Aim for stability despite a challenge to a partnership.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Extra care helps a relative or close friend overcome a health problem. If your mate or partner feels neglected, show lots of TLC! Misplaced items will turn up in closets or drawers.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Play tennis, golf or some other sport that attracts you. Regular exercise will make you look and feel fit. You meet an interesting newcomer in an unlikely setting. Suggest a dinner date.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Learn all you can about an attractive newcomer. An old friend may help you reach a long-sought goal. Show your appreciation in a tangible way. Hearing from a relative boosts your spirits.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A secret relationship may prove to be too much trouble. A health problem could be psychosomatic. Break away from old habits. Joining a self-help group is a step in the right direction.

TODAY'S CHILDREN enjoy participating in active sports. They admire anything contemporary and may shun that which seems "old-fashioned." Generous and bossy, these Leos may try to run the lives of the people they want to help. These Lions think big and instinctively know how to succeed in business. They will make loving but overly protective parents.

Marceau says he's going deaf

AP Laserphoto

French mime Marcel Marceau mimics the photographers during a press conference at London's Savoy Hotel Friday. Marceau will be performing at the Sadler's Wells Theater.

LONDON (AP) — French mime Marcel Marceau, whose silent creations have captivated the world for more than 40 years, said Friday he is going deaf.

The 67-year-old Marceau, who's in London for a month at Sadler's Wells Theater, blamed the problem on excessive air travel during his years of performing all over the world.

"My ears are blocked. Fortunately I don't have to speak on stage but I do find it embarrassing," Marceau said.

But there also was a benefit to his deafness, he said. "Sometimes people talk nonsense so it lets me hear what I want to hear," Marceau said.

Over the decades, Marceau almost singlehandedly revived mime as an art form with his character Mr. Bip, the white-faced clown.

He said: "What is important is not the white face. It is the comic-tragic inspiration behind the white face.

"I consider I am a silent witness of our time."

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Comedian Roseanne Barr admitted Friday that it was a mistake for her to screech the national anthem before booing baseball fans, but she refused to apologize and denied being rude.

Barr

The star of the top-rated ABC-TV comedy "Roseanne" said she nearly left the field in mid-song Wednesday as San Diego baseball fans at Jack Murphy Stadium bombarded her with boos.

"I'm sorry I didn't sing so good. What else do I have to say?" she said. "I figured everybody knew I wasn't the world's greatest singer."

Barr said she realized how horrible the reaction was within three or four notes of beginning "The Star-Spangled Banner" before a doubleheader.

"Then everybody started booing me and I went into this panic thing," she told a raucous news conference at the Beverly Hilton Hotel which included the police ejection of a photographer. "It took all the guts I've got in my life to finish singing."

More than 2,000 phone calls about her unmelodious performance had come into the Padres switchboard by midday Friday.

Barr said she had the best of intentions. Although she refused to apologize, she used the word "sorry" several times.

"I'm not going to apologize for doing it," she said. "Because I feel like it was the wrong choice for all of us to make. But not anybody anticipated that it would be this negative."

She capped her solo by grabbing her crotch and spitting — actions she described as a parody of a baseball player, not a response to the boos.

"I probably should have waited a while before I scratched myself and spit," she said. "But I wanted to get out of there."

The news conference became as chaotic when her husband ordered police to eject a tabloid photographer.

"I want the cameras off right now!" bellowed Barr's husband, Tom Arnold, as three policemen arrived.

Photographer Kip Rano of American Photo Syndicate was led from the meeting room of the Beverly Hilton Hotel after police warned him he would be handcuffed and arrested if he refused to leave.

In a Hollywood twist, Rano was escorted out by police Officer Paul Kramer — the same motorcycle patrolman who arrested and was slapped by Zsa Zsa Gabor last year.

Rano said his firm sells photos to "everyone," including tabloid newspapers. He called the expulsion a publicity stunt by Arnold and Barr.

Barr, the Padres and Tom Werner, "Roseanne's" executive producer and the owner of the Padres, "thought it was going to be fun," to have the portly comic sing the national anthem on a night at the stadium honoring working women.

DEERING, N.H. (AP) — A fire destroyed folk singer Tom Rush's studio and office and damaged his backwoods farmhouse.

Rush was in Wyoming on vacation, and no one was in the house when the fire broke out late Thursday.

The state fire marshal's office was called to investigate the fire, which took 75 to 80 firefighters about three hours to contain. The buildings are surrounded by 600 acres of farmland.

The 16-track recording studio was in a barn behind the house and the office for his production company, Maple Hill Productions Inc., and record label, Night Light Recordings, was in a converted fishing shack.

Rush, 49, was a major folk star in the 1960s, and his 1974 album, "Ladies Love Outlaws," featured singers James Taylor and Carly Simon.

Democrats call Williams 'coward'

Associated Press

The state Democratic Party Friday called Republican gubernatorial nominee Clayton Williams a coward and said the state GOP should halt its new radio advertising campaign.

"Since I doubt the Republican mud wrestlers will pull the ads, I call on all decent Texans who want an honest campaign on the issues to call their radio stations and demand they refuse to play this kind of trash," state Democratic Party Chairman Bob Slagle said.

The Republican ads criticize Democratic gubernatorial nominee Ann Richards and other Democratic candidates.

In news conferences across Texas, state GOP chairman Fred Meyer said, "The facts are that Richards and the rest of the candidates on the state Democratic tickets are a bunch of liberals ... who support the liberal agenda of the gay and lesbian caucus and who plan to saddle Texans with an income tax."

Slagle said Williams was behind the ads. "Williams continues to hide behind his goofy grin, taking the cowardly approach of sending out others to tell his lies about Ann Richards."

Slagle said Richards opposes a state income tax "and the lying Republicans know it."

"With these kind of sleazy campaign tactics, thinking Texans will get so fed up with Clayton Williams that he couldn't get elected dogcatcher," Slagle said.

Meyer said the radio ads are targeted toward Democrats who voted for Republican presidential and senatorial candidates.

In other political developments:

■ In Fort Worth, Republican challenger Charles Gore said House Speaker Gib Lewis took political contributions from insurance companies and then killed an reform measure for the industry in the House.

Gore

Gore, who delivered his verbal assault before a GOP forum, said the insurance industry contributed more than $200,000 to Lewis' campaign between 1986 and 1989.

"I think without a doubt that this is the only reason that reform bill was rejected," Gore said.

Gore, a Colleyville businessman, will face Lewis in the November general election. Lewis, D-Fort Worth, has served in the House since 1971.

The fact that Lewis issued a parliamentary ruling at the end of the regular legislative session to knock key reform provisions out of an insurance bill is one of Gore's primary criticisms. The Senate had earlier passed the tougher version of the bill.

The deleted reforms would have removed insurance companies' exemptions from anti-trust laws and banned insurers from sharing loss and premium data. Insurance lobbyists strongly resisted the measures.

Lewis could not be reached at his Fort Worth headquarters Friday. Lewis' campaign consultant called Gore's charges "ludicrous."

"He's just trying to get free press," said Robert Jara.

The list of campaign contributors Gore is touting is filled with people who have no ties to the insurance industry, Jara said.

■ The Texas Municipal Police Association endorsed Williams for governor on Friday. The group's executive director, Jim Lyde, said it reflects the attitude of the state's law enforcement officers.

Lyde said the decision to back Williams broke a 40-year tradition of not endorsing gubernatorial candidates.

■ GOP state treasurer candidate Kay Bailey Hutchison picked up the endorsement of FirePAC, the political action committee of the State Firemen's and Fire Marshals' Association.

■ Rick Perry, Republican agriculture commissioner candidate, said a political group pushing his election has filed required campaign contribution and expenditure reports with the secretary of state's office.

This week, Common Cause of Texas said it filed a criminal complaint with the Travis County district attorney over activities of South Texans for Rick Perry. Common Cause had said the group hadn't filed the required designation of a treasurer and reports in order to hide the source of contributions.

Perry, in a prepared statement, challenged Democratic opponent Jim Hightower's filing with the secretary, which showed two Washington, D.C. fund-raisers two days before the reporting cutoff and listed 54 sponsors for the events, priced at $350 and $75 per person, respectively.

A&M names first woman dean

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Regents confirmed Texas A&M's first woman dean Friday.

Jane Stallings takes over as dean of education Sept. 1. She currently heads the department of curriculum and instruction at the University of Houston.

Stallings succeeds Dean Corrigan, who relinquished the position last year.

Stallings' experience ranges from teaching in an inner-city environment to a decade of study and work at the Stanford Research Institute.

Dallas official files obscenity charges over rap album's sale

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas County prosecutors filed charges Friday against two record store chains for selling the 2 Live Crew album "As Nasty As They Wanna Be."

But a former prosecutor said the case is weak and won't stand up against constitutional standards.

The million-selling album has been ruled obscene by a Florida judge and banned from record stores in San Antonio.

Dallas Assistant District Attorney David Pickett said the lyrics of the rap album are obscene under the Texas penal code.

"We feel the record is obscene to adults as well as children," Pickett said at news conference. "We felt like we needed to make a statement to these corporations."

The misdemeanor charges were filed against Sound Warehouse Inc. and Hasting's Records and Tapes. The prosecutor said the offense will be the sale, distribution and display of harmful materials to a minor.

If convicted, both retailers could be fined up to $10,000.

Sound Warehouse president Terry Worrell said the company isn't aware that it carries any product which has been deemed obscene by the district attorney's office.

No one was available for comment Friday at Hastings corporate headquarters in Amarillo.

Pickett said the controversial album includes 87 descriptions of oral sex, and 117 explicit references to male and female sex organs.

Pickett, who is running for district judge, said he isn't worried that people might think his move is a political one.

He also said he realized that the misdemeanor charges may ultimately benefit the group, based in Miami.

"The argument has been put forth that we're going to make a lot of money for 2 Live Crew and unfortunately that may be true," Pickett said. "But we cannot and must not turn our back on someone who violates the law like that."

But Brad Lollar, who is one of about 35 attorneys who have volunteered to represent anyone or group arrested for buying 2 Live Crew's album, said Pickett's motives were political.

"I absolutely think that David Pickett is doing this to get elected to Dallas County District Court of Criminal Appeal No. 1 ... and God help us if he does," Lollar said.

Lollar said he thought the issue was over after Dallas authorities made no arrests when the group came to town earlier this month.

Mega Borg on way to scrap heap

GALVESTON (AP) — The wrecked supertanker Mega Borg began an estimated two-month trip Friday to Pakistan, where it will be broken into scrap material.

A tugboat began towing the vessel from the Gulf of Mexico early in the afternoon, the U.S. Coast Guard said. The first stop is the Cayman Islands.

The Mega Borg had been crippled in the Gulf about 57 miles offshore from Galveston ever since it was rocked by an explosion June 8. Four crew members were killed and a fire raged for several days aboard the ship, spewing oil into the Gulf.

Later in June, the Mega Borg was inspected by maritime insurance adjusters who declared the ship a "constructive total loss."

The Norwegian owner sold the vessel for scrap to Ailesford Ltd. of Gibraltar for $2.4 million.

1,500 civilian workers at Kelly face drug testing

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Drug testing could start next month for nearly 1,500 civilian workers at Kelly Air Force Base who belong to a federal workers union, officials said.

The Air Force Logistics Command and the American Federation of Government Employees signed an agreement allowing civilian drug testing under certain conditions for 70,000 union employees nationwide.

Some Kelly AFB workers could be tested beginning Aug. 24 under the agreement, base officials said Thursday.

Antonio Salas, drug testing program coordinator at Kelly, said 30-day notices were distributed Wednesday to about 1,450 "bargaining-unit" employees at Kelly.

Kelly spokeswoman Phebe Brown said those employees become eligible for random drug testing in 30 days; employees who did not receive 30-day notices are not eligible.

Union officials said they were satisfied with the agreement.

"It's the best we could get under the circumstances," said Paul Palacio, president of AFGE Council 214.

Air Force guidelines call for testing of employees applying for sensitive positions; when reasonable suspicion exists; after an accident or mishap; if an employee volunteers; randomly, for designated job categories; and for follow-up testing.

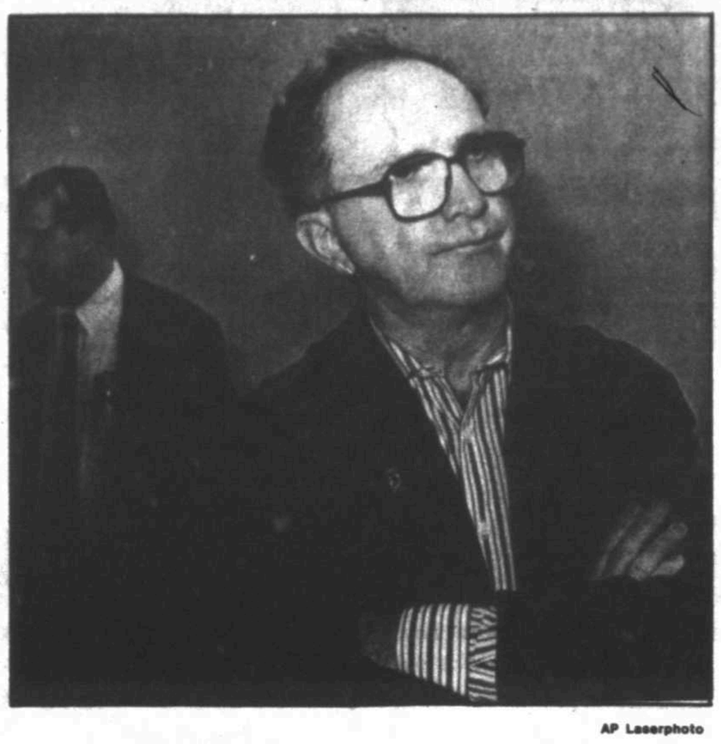
Workers subject to random urinalysis include those in safety-critical jobs such as medicine, security, and aircraft maintenance and operations, according to the Air Logistic Command headquarters at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base.

President Reagan issued an executive order in 1986 providing for the civilian drug-testing program.

In January the Air Force began testing eligible management and professional employees, but the program was halted in June after a federal judge in California issued a temporary restraining order in response to a lawsuit filed by the union.

The judge later lifted the order but limited some provisions of testing.

Texas a 'killing state,' AI official says



AP Laserphoto

John G. Healey, executive director of Amnesty International USA, spoke to a group of about 75 Thursday night in Harlingen.

HARLINGEN (AP) — Texas is known as a "killing state" because of its large death row population and politicians who brag about it, the head of Amnesty International USA said.

Texas' 331 death row inmates make it the state with the largest number of prisoners awaiting execution.

"Here in Texas, you're kind of known as a killing state, and that's too bad for you all," John G. Healey, executive director of the human rights organization, said Thursday night at the start of a two-day visit to South Texas.

One of Amnesty International's stated goals is to end capital punishment worldwide.

Healey criticized the United States for being the only Western democracy with capital punishment.

Texas gubernatorial candidates shocked the world during the spring primary campaign this year with pro-death penalty television advertisements, Healey said.

Democrats Mark White, a former attorney general and former governor, and Attorney General Jim Mattox ran ads in which they bragged about their role in putting people on death row.

"They're on the radical fringe of the world now," Healey said. "Those ads on television are so barbaric to the world at large, that it really is quite confusing to a world that is alive with the need for freedom," Healey said.

White was out of town Friday and could not be reached for comment, said a receptionist at his Houston law office.

"The citizens of Texas believe that punishment should fit the crime," Mattox said Friday. "We are carrying out the will of the people. Amnesty International has a right to their opinion. We would like for them to offer some solutions to the growing crime problem, in addition to their criticism of those who have to enforce the laws and protect the citizens."

Minorities are much more likely to be put to death, Healey said, adding that "half of death row is black."

STATE IN BRIEF

Tyler board says no to shorts at school

TYLER (AP) — Secondary school students were caught short by administrators who said that comfort and style must lose out to long pants.

Tyler school board members voted to ban shorts after giving students six weeks to get adjusted to the change.

During the meeting Thursday night, trustee John Payne said that the policy should be delayed for six weeks because it was approved so close to the beginning of school.

Before approving the measure, board members heard opposing views at a meeting hall.

Board members were reminded by Shannon Skelton, executive secretary of the Robert E. Lee High School student body, that dress codes have been overturned by federal court rulings.

"The purpose of short pants is not to distract," Skelton said. He said the comfort of the students is the main concern.

John Bockman, a student, said shorts should be allowed because the air conditioners at Lee High School break down regularly.

System 'disgrace' to Hispanics

VICTORIA (AP) — Texas public schools' failure to educate Hispanic students has sentenced them to a lifetime of hard labor and poverty, state Education Commissioner William Kirby said Friday.

Kirby was one of several speakers to address the Texas Association of Mexican American Chambers of Commerce convention in this South Texas city.

"When it comes to Hispanic children, our system is an utter disgrace — an utter disgrace," Kirby told delegates.

"We're facing a worker shortage. We can't afford to throw away these youngsters," he said.

Kirby, before an early-morning breakfast of delegates, said that Texas public education has serious shortcomings. The state faces far-reaching reforms in funding education and a severe dropout problem among Hispanic students, he said.

So far, Texas politicians' approach to education has been to ignore reality, said Kirby.

"Instead, they do the popular thing," he said, arguing that attitude has led Texas education into financial problems.

Even so, local property taxes in Texas and the state sales tax are too high, he said.

Educational problems are not unique to Texas, with institutions across the nation in a state of emergency, said Kirby and San Antonio city councilmember Maria Berriozabal.

3M eyeing warbler habitat

AUSTIN (AP) — The 3M Co. is taking an option on 215 acres of land to be used as a habitat for the golden-cheeked warbler and other endangered species.

The proposed purchase from St. Edward's University is expected to cost more than $1 million, said Ted Pickens, 3M's public relations manager.

The option will be valid for several months while 3M seeks permission from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to expand its facility west of the city.

Pickens said 3M hopes the federal agency will accept the 215 acres, which are several miles from its facility, as sufficient compensation for the 11.3 acres of warbler habitat that would be destroyed if the company goes ahead with its expansion.

El Paso man honored by Bush

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas quadriplegic who works with other physically disabled people and a New York man who helps in a suicide prevention program were honored Friday as "Daily Points of Light" by President Bush.

The White House said Ron Dickey, 28, of El Paso, who is handicapped as a result of a diving accident in 1985, has worked for the last two years with an organization called DARE, which stands for Disabled Ability Resource Environment. He volunteers 20 hours a week, visiting patients in rehabilitation hospitals and nursing homes.

David Goldstein, 21, of Albany, N.Y., works with The Samaritans, a suicide prevention program, befriending those who had wanted to end their lives, the White House said. He works more than 10 hours per week on the overnight shift, the citation said.
