Truman H. Newberry of Michigan by a vote of 46 to 41 was declared entitled to seat in the senate. Forty-six Republicans voted for the "vindication" of Newberry; nine Republicans voted to oust him. Thirty-two Democrats voted that he was not entitled to a seat and one alleged Democrat. Tom Watson of Georgia, hid out. This is what Newberry said after he had been declared a winner: "My heart is filled with thankfulness that the three years and four months of prosecution have ended in complete vindication and exoneration of myself and all concerned." Of course he did not go into detail. He had forgotten that verdict of guilty returned by a Michigan jury which won for him a long term of penal servitude and a handsome fine in addition. Twelve Republicans elected him to the penitentiary and a federal judge, life long Republican, overruled a motion for a new trial and sentenced him. It came to pass that the supreme court of the United States pronounced void or unconstitutional a clause of the corrupt practices act and this alone saved Newberry from a prison cell and the garb of a convict. According to his admission his agents or friends spent $192,000 at one primary election and the Lord only knows how much more that was not accounted for. If Newberry has been vindicated then William Lorrimer of Illinois has been vindicated and should be called back to Washington, after all these years, and given a seat in the United States senate. His agents were accused of having four Democratic law - makers. spent $25,000 in the purchase of Chickens come home to roost and the administration now in power has the Newberry handicap to carry through the campaign of 1922.

Laws are made to be enforced. This includes all laws that concern sanitation. There are laws against gambling. There are laws against selling poisons for use as beverage. There are laws against highjacking. There are laws against vagrancy and prostitution. All these laws are for the protection of life and property as well as for the public health. Mexia, according to all the correspondents, as well as hundreds of reputable citizens who are not engaged in the newspaper business, needed a clean up. All the forces of disorder, pestilence and famine were there. All the forces of hunger were there. There were many disease breeding spots. There were dance halls of the vilest character, gambling houses where all the laws were flouted and drinking dens where all the vices were flaunted. When a clean up is necessary then a clean up should take place. Governor Neff declared martial law in certain districts. He sent Adjutant General Barton there with the rangers. He sent General Jacob F. Wolters there with his national guardsmen. If it is the right thing to do, then it is ever best to go all the way and not half the way. Governor Neff has instructed General Wolters and Adjutant General Barton to go all the way. They are going.

America's balance of trade with European countries was greater by 775 million dollars in 1921 than during the last pre-war year or 1913. Great Britain was the best customer while Germany has risen to second place. Exports to Europe were estimated 2,380 million dollars as against 1,500 million dollars in 1913. Imports for 1921 were 760 million dollars compared

"THERE'S HOPE FOR EUROPE," SAYS BABSON

Famous Statistician Sees Gas Bomb as a Financial Factor and Tells the Reader the Reason Why.

There Is Good Business Now to Be Had, He Says, for the Man Who Goes After It Aggressively.

Authentic Statement by ROGER W. BABSON
to be quoted only by Wichita Falls Record News.

WELLESLEY HILL, Mass., Jan. 13.—"A very interesting fact has developed in connecton wth the Conference for the Limitation of Armaments. At first thought this fact makes one feel very discouraged but on further analysis it has some very optimistic features. In other words the one thing which is causing the Conference the greatest trouble, may be the one thing that is to bring the nations together. I refer to the gas bomb.

"It is a simple matter to make an agreement relative to the building of battleships and to hold a nation to such an agreement. It takes a couple of years to build a good battleship and it is impossible to hide battleships. The nations of the world know when any nation lays down a new keel for a new battleship. Battleships cannot be kept in safety deposit vaults or hid in government buildings. The limitation of submarines and certain other forms of armaments is also practically possible. Big berthas are not as conspicuous as battleships; gun factories are more easily hid than ship yards; but in the long run the making of these cannot be kept a secret.

"It, however, is absolutely impossible to keep in touch with the manufacture of gas bombs. The German government could keep in the basement of one of its palaces enough compressed gas to destroy all the people in Paris and a good proportion of the French army. Therefore, though all nations might agree on the limitation of gas from war-fare yet there would be no way to enforce such an agreement. Moreover, as the commercial interests of the world demand the building and use of airplanes in times of peace, the

TRAIN WRECKS BUILDING AND 3 ARE KILLED

By Associated Press.

WILKES BARRE, Pa., Jan. 13.—Three men were crushed to death and ten persons injured at Ashley today when a freight train pushed onto a blind switch, broke down the snubbing block and crashed into and demolished a two-story office building of the Central railroad of New Jersey. The victims were pinned down by the heavy roof of the building and could not be released until working cranes were brought into play to lift the debris.

The train backed into the siding to cut a disabled car. Its failure to stop was attributed by railroad officials to a misunderstanding of signals.

BURCH CASE TO JURY FRIDAY; BURCH SMILES

Women Jurors Weep as Prosecuting Attorney Describes "Desolation" of Parents "Murdered Boy."

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 13.—The case of Arthur C. Burch, accused of murdering J. Belton Kennedy here last August 5, was given to the jury at 3:57 o'clock this afternoon.

Burch smiled as the ten women and two men filed out of the court room. He often said he hoped his fate would be put in hands of the jurors on a Friday, the thirteenth day of the month. The case went to trial eight weeks ago.

Burch smiled and some women jurors wept as Thomas Lee Woolwine, district attorney, closed the final argument with a description of the "desolation" of the parents of the murdered boy" as he characterized Kennedy.

Burch seemed in high good humor as he was led away to jail. He expressed confidence that he would be acquitted.

Judge Sydney N. Reeves' instructions to the jury occupied half an hour and included, besides definitions of first and second degree murder, that for the jury to determination that Burch was insane, it would have to find that he did not understand the nature of the act alleged to have been committed in the slaying of Kennedy.

Mrs. Belle Harris, the thirteenth, or alternate juror, was excused at the conclusion of arguments. She declined to discuss the evidence, saying she was not called upon to render a verdict and had none to give.

The jurors after deliberating two hours were taken out to dinner. Judge Reeves announced that he would return to the court room at eight o'clock. It was said the jury might return by 7.30.

11 JURORS IN BOX FOR TRIAL OF FILM STAR

By Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13.—Today's session of court in the second trial of Roscoe Arbuckle apparently advanced the case only in the resumption of peremptory challenges allowed opposing counsel. The jury box tonight had eleven jurors in it, passed temporarily, which was the situation last night.

Arbuckle is accused of manslaughter in connection with the death of Virginia Rappe, who was injured at a party he gave in rooms in the St. Francis hotel here. It is not considered likely the jury will be obtained before next Monday.

Howard Spreckles, son of Rudolph Spreckles, and nephew of John D. Spreckles, one of the states leading capitalists, was one of the jurors accepted temporarily today and still was in the jury box tonight.

What Can He Buy Half So Vicious As What He Sells

By Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 13.—Bootleggers were set up as models in salesmanship before students of the graduate school of business administration at Harvard today.

William Maxwell, in a lecture before the class of sales management said that personal observation of the sales methods of wholesale bootleggers had convinced him that in many cases they had developed a creditable sales technique.

"It is noteworthy," he added, "that salesmen engaged in illegitimate pursuits such as bootleggers, confidence men and the men who sell worthless securities, are for the most part closer students of salesmanship than the salesmen who are engaged in selling meritorious articles."

Dear Judge—Please Excuse Willie As He Can't Get Away

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—William Gonbert, recently fined $100 by Judge Knott of the court of general sessions for failure to appear for jury duty, simply couldn't tear himself away from his surroundings to answer the call, he said in an apologetic note received today.

"I am at present a guest of Warden Laws at Sing-Sing prison," he wrote. That is why I can't be a juror in your court, much as I would like to be. The state needs my services otherwise."

Adding that he was equally unable to pay the $100 fine he signed himself "respectfully, Wm. Gonbert, No. 71,860."

MEXIA GUARDS TOLD TO SHOOT WITH GOOD AIM

"Miss Means Court Martial," Declares Wolters, Commander of Troops Enforcing Court Martial.

Excitement Over Arrival of Guards Quickly Replaced by Interest in What the Wells Are Doing.

By Associated Press.

MEXIA, Texas, Jan. 13.—The lid was clamped down tight in Mexia tonight. The small force of state rangers on duty since last Saturday, and which enforced martial law in three justice precincts of two counties for thirty-six hours have been reinforced by about forty state guardsmen from Brenham, under command of Captain Edwin A. Gajeske.

Immediately after detraining the guardsmen were addressed by Brigadier General Jacob F. Wolters, commanding officer, and told in substance that they were assigned to Camp Winter Garden to guard prisoners sent there, and perform other duties. They were told that possibly some of those sent to the camp might attempt to escape, and that if necessary to prevent escapes they should shoot, and a miss meant court martial.

A plan of co-operation of city peace officers and the military was decided this afternoon, General Wolters announced. The police have been assigned to looking after minor disorders and misdemeanors. Reports of felonies, gambling and illegal liquor cases are to be turned over to the rangers for investigation and action. General Wolters said that many tips were being received from various sources, and investigation of all will take some time. He said citizens and peace officers were co-operating with him.

One Man Shot.

One white man was shot late last night, but after receiving a report General Wolters said he turned the case over to the civil authorities and grand jury at Groesbeck. The report was that the man was shot by a negress, who alleged he attempted to break into her home. The man's injuries were said to be serious.

The arrival of the troops caused a crowd to gather and follow them from the train to the military headquarters at the city hall. There was little comment, and the crowd was made up of the curious.

The curiosity of the crowds on the streets as to what martial law would mean had practically subsided during the day and gave place to the more general curiosity of an oil field—what new wells were doing. Arrival of the troops caused a revival of interest in their actions, however, but as the guardsmen were sent to what was named in general orders Camp Winter Garden, and neither troopers nor rangers were to be seen on the

FOREIGN DEBT AND BONUS TO BE SEPARATED

President Opposes Amalgamation; Impracticable and Not Dependable for Revenue, He Thinks.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The soldier bonus bill will not be made a part of the allied debt refunding bill, Chairman McCumber of the senate finance committee, said tonight after a series of conferences had been held between senate leaders to discuss the desirability of merging the two and it had become known at the White House that President Harding did not look with favor upon the suggestion that they be combined.

The foreign debt bill, Senator McCumber said, would be taken up by the finance committee Monday in the hope that it would be put in shape at that time for reporting to the senate. It was the intention, he added, to eliminate some of the features to which the treasury department has objected and which has resulted in the measure being held in committee for several weeks. These include provisions for semi-annual payment of interest and that the interest rate shall not be less than five per cent.

Although the merger plan was originally received favorably by a number of senate leaders, the president was said to regard it as impractical and his view was reflected in further conferences today between senate leaders.

The president's objection to the merger were said by callers at the White House today to be based on his desire for the assurance that provision definitely would be made for payment of the bonus. So far as the refunding bill is concerned, he was said to believe that the refunding process should be developed to insure returns from the allied loans before steps were taken to pledge them for a bonus.

He was represented, however, as not hostile to the suggestion that the interest or principal of the allied loans be used for paying the bonus, once they were available, and it was stated that he also would not oppose a sales tax for the purpose of paying the bonus, if congress should decide on that plan.

The president, however, was said to regard as impractical a suggestion that more than $400,000,000 in the hands of the alien property custodian be used for bonus payments. These funds, it was said, were regarded as pledged technically to private individuals whose property was taken.

FORD OFFER ON MUSCLE SHOALS UP TO CONGRESS

Decision to Forward Offer Reached After Lengthy Conference Between Ford, Weeks and Hoover.

Refuses to Accept Modifications Suggested by Cabinet Officers, Including Shortening Lease.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Henry Ford's offer for purchase and lease of the government's nitrate and water power projects at Muscle Shoals, Alabama, will be referred to congress for final decision it was announced today at the conclusion of conferences between government officials and Mr. Ford. Acompanying the Ford proposal when it is transmitted, Secretary Weeks, said, probably would be the two offers received from Frederick Enstrum of Wilmington, N. C., and C. C. Tinkler of San Francisco.

The decision to forward the three offers to the legislative branch of the government, it was stated, was reached after consideration on the question by executive officials lasting over a period of more than six months. Under the laws regulating disposition of real estate and other properties owned by the federal government, it was said, the department officers lacked authority to take final action and were compelled to refer the Muscle Shoals offer to congress for its consideration.

Actual transmission of the proposals was not expected to take place for at least two weeks. It was explained that the Ford proposal first would be drafted in contract form by laws officers of the war department and be submitted to Mr. Ford for his signature before it was submitted to congress.

While the legal department are working on the contract form, it was stated, Secretary Weeks would prepare a report for congress containing what "contents" he believed its members should have for their information.

Explaining the action taken by the conference, Secretary Weeks said he was disappointed in that Mr. Ford declined to agree to certain modifications of his plans which were held desirable by his conferees. One of these was known to be that affecting the reduction of the 100 year lease period.

The principal modification agreed to by Mr. Ford was that guaranteeing payment annually of 4 per cent interest on the cost of construction of dams numbers two and three, regardless of the cost where at first he offered interest only on $28,000,000.

NEW CABINET FOR FRANCE BY SUNDAY

By Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 13.—Raymond Poincare, who has assumed the task of forming a ministry to succeed that of Aristide Briand, said tonight that he did not think that he could complete his work before Sunday evening at the earliest.

M. Poincare added that he had informed David Lloyd George, the British prime minister that he would be happy to confer with him at the British embassy in Paris tomorrow.

IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENTS IN ANGLO-FRENCH AFFAIRS

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—Three important developments emerged today from the confusion into which the resignation of Aristide Briand, the French premier threw the Cannes negotiations. They were: First, that a ministry headed by Raymond Poincare will take the place of Briand administration; second, that the Genoa economic conference appears to have been saved out of the wreckage, and third, that the reparations committee, acting under the discretion it possesses by virtue of the Versailles treaty, has granted Germany a moratorium until the allied arrive at a new decision with regard to her condition.

Germany, instead of paying the 500,000,000 gold marks due next Sunday is to pay every ten days approximately 31,000,000 gold marks, which latter amount is considered as representing 25 per cent of her exports.

Whether the Anglo-French pact arranged between M. Briand and Premier Lloyd George also can be saved is considered to depend upon a conference between Mr. Lloyd George and M. Poincare. The latter always has been solid for the Versailles treaty, and, as much as France is known to desire a pact to replace the tripartite convention, including the United States, which was contemplated in the original peace negotiations, Poincare, like Briand, will have to count with the extreme nationalist views. Doubts are entertained here whether the nationalists will accept the stipulations Mr. Lloyd George imposes as necessary preliminaries to a conclusion of the pact.

For these reasons it is considered quite possible prolonged and difficult negotiations may ensue before an agreement is reached.

SHANTUNG QUESTION TO FORE AT PARLEY; MAKE REAL PROGRESS

French Delegation Notified to Proceed With Work Regardless of Cabinet Crisis at Home; Naval Treaty Ready.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—With the naval treaty virtually completed, the arms delegates are preparing to turn the conference spotlight on Shantung, apparently in the hope that a settlement of that controversy may make it easier to go ahead with other troublesome problems of the Far East.

It is now the expectation in conference circles that during the next few days, and probably until a decision is reached, the Shantung negotiations will have right of way while discussion of other far eastern subjects remains at a standstill.

So far the Shantung exchanges have taken place between the Japanese and Chinese alone, with American and British observers present, but the next phase of the conference program is expected at least to concentrate upon the problem of the friendly interest of all the governments represented here.

At their meeting today, the Japanese and Chinese groups reached an agreement for opening up the entire Kiao-Chow leased territory to foreign trade and tomorrow they are to take up others of the collateral questions involved in restoration of the leasehold to China. Their sessions are expected to last throughout the day and will form the only item appearing on tomorrow's conference program.

In the naval negotiations only a few details considered more or less perfunctory, remain to be arranged. An agreement has been reached regarding methods of scrapping, under which discarded battleships may be converted in some cases into air plane carriers and training ships, and a final settlement relating to Pacific fortifications awaits a reply expected hourly from Tokio.

If present plans develop, the final draft of the naval treaty will be laid before the full naval committee early next week and will be publicly accounted at a plenary session of the conference a few days later.

One possible element of delay in concluding the naval convention was eliminated today when the French delegation received instructions from President Millerand to go ahead with its conference duties regardless of the cabinet crisis at Paris. Albert Sarraut, head of the French here, indicated that he interpreted the message as giving him full power to sign the treaty unless some unexpected question of real importanc appears in the negotiations.

Under the scrapping provisions as finally agreed to, the United States and Japan are understood to be authorized to change into airplane carriers some of the battleships now under construction, but which under the original plan would have gone to the scrap heap, while France and Italy are to be permitted to convert into training ships the dreadnoughts of their fleet which by the agreement are to become obsolete in 1931.

The meeting of the Japanese and Chinese resulting in an agreement for opening up Kiao-Chow to trade was regarded in some quarters as one of the most important of the sessions that have been in progress on the Shantung problem. The policy of an "open door" is to be applied in trade development of the territory, the two delegations agreeing that all nations should have equal economic privileges. In addition, China is to undertake to protect the vested foreign interests that may be installed here. Kiao-Chow is to be a free port.

The decision to give the Shantung problem the right of way as details of the present naval agreement clear up was interpreted generally as another evidence of the fundamental importance attached by conference leaders to the question of the long contested former German leasehold. In American quarters particularly there is apparent a belief that a final settlement of the Shantung situation is almost indispensible to the program of readjustment undertaken by the conference in the Far East.

HI JOHNSON SHOWS LITTLE CHANGED VIEW

Statement on Return From West Indicates That He Will Repeat Fight He Made on League.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Senator Johnson, republican, California, on his arrival here today from the West issued a statement dealing with Pacific coast views on the four power treaty as he interprets them. He said it would be "presumptuous" for him to attempt an analysis except from his personal contacts.

"The prominent league of nations supporters hail it (the treaty) with glee," he said, "as the justification of their attitude on the league. The opponents of the league view it with regret because they fear its possibilities. The man on the street who voted by seven million majority to keep this country from entangling alliances, is wondering and wondering whether his victory was in vain. Of course, the English-Japanese propaganda newspapers and there are many of them, are quite enthusiastic.

"Taken altogether, the sentiment I met was not unlike the sentiment on the league after the league had been under fire six months or so. The old leaguers are for what they think is a new one, while the great mass of people want to know fully the situation, and wish to keep out of a little league just as they voted to keep out of the big one."

M. M. CARRICK RESIGNS FROM HEALTH DEPT.

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Jan. 13.—The resignation of Dr. Manton M. Carrick, state health officer, was announced by Governor Neff at noon today, effective January 20, one year from the date he assumed office.

The governor also announced the appointment of Dr. John Florence to succeed Dr. Carrick. Dr. Florence conferred with the governor this morning and the governor said he accepted the position and would take charge on January 20.

Dr. Florence advised the governor that he would appoint Dr. W. H. Beasly of Spring, Harris county, to be assistant state health officer to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. J. H. Blevins several months ago.

Dr. Florence had served as county and city health officer of Dallas and in the state health and quarantine department, as assistant state health officer, located at Galveston.

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 13.—Dr. Manton M. Carrick, whose resignation as state health officer was announced by Governor Neff today, will remain in public health work. He said today that although he will not announce definite plans until the 20th, when his resignation takes effect, he intends to remain in public health work but "on a much broader scale."

means will always be available for the drooping of gas bombs. Hence, although the Conference may be successful in limiting the building of battleships, submarines and even other things, yet it is helpless in limiting the manufacture of gas bombs, the most dangerous and deadly of all implements of war.

"As a result of this the delegates are passing through a most interesting spiritual renaissance. They came to Washington armed with statistics and accompanied by the greatest legal talent of their countries. They are gradually coming to believe that figures and agreements are of little value and that they need specialists on "feelings" rather than on "figures." In short those who come to scoff have remained to pray. There is a strong belief among the delegates of today that the only solution of our international problems is the golden rule and the principles that Jesus laid down 2,000 years ago.

"What has this to do with a financial article, you ask. It has a great deal to do with finance. The great load on the financial world today is Europe. The greatest difficulty with Europe is the hard feelings and jealousy among certain nations. There is plenty of money available to rebuild Europe and again to make her factories hum and her fields blossom forth. The difficulty is that those who have the money feel that the money would not be used for the restoration of Europe, but rather simply result in further fighting and destruction. Hence all of the European governments are in dire financial straits and some are on the verge of bankruptcy. This condition of affairs has disrupted foreign trade and is jeopardising all foreign credits. It hangs a great black cloud over the business world.

"But the deadly gas bomb may be the means of bringing every nation to its senses. It is actually converting financiers, diplomats, and hard headed statesmen to those fundamentals of honesty, justice, thrift, industry and kindliness, which in the long run form the basis of prosperity. It is even possible that Europe may again experience a great spiritual renaissance as took place three hundred years ago.

"Bankers are watching this change of attitude on the part of these foreign delegates with great interest. President Harding little realized when calling this conference that he was laying the seed for a great international, spiritual revival. The inventor of the gas bomb and those other chemists which since the armistice have invented gas infinitely more dangerous than it was during the war have also made their contribution. For the first time for many years a ray of sunshine is breaking through the international clouds. Let us watch the situation most carefully. If the clouds finally break and clear away a most rapid change will take place in foreign and American security markets a change which should distinctly affect the business index of the Babsonchart which now stands below normal. For the first time in many years I am somewhat hopeful for Europe and its recovery.

"The Babsonchart shows general business 18 per cent below normal, a drop of 10 per cent from last week. Business is experiencing a mid-winter reaction that will doubtless carry well into February. There is good business to be had, however, for the man who goes after it aggressively."

Present Condition of Texas Banks Furnishes Interesting Comparison With Pre-Guaranty Fund Condition

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS
(Record News Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—An interesting comparison of state and national banks in Texas in 1921 as compared with 1910 when the law providing for the guaranty of deposits in state banks of Texas was passed, is contained in the annual report of Comptroller of Currency Crissinger just made public.

On June 30, 1910 there were 608 state banks in Texas having a combined capital of $20,694,282, deposits of $46,562,760 and aggregate assets, including rediscounts of $79,005,629. At the same time there were 516 national banks having capital of $43,561,000, total deposits of $183,846,567 and aggregate assets, including rediscounts of $294,405,854.

On June 30, 1921, the number of state banks had increased 1052 with capital of $50,405,000, total deposits of $242,359,000 and aggregate assets of $357,065,000. The national bank's increase in number was only 41, or to 557. Capital, however, increased to $65,650,000, deposits to $483,559,000 and aggregate assets, including rediscounts, to $718,768,000.

Crissinger also quoted a letter from Commissioner Hall of the Department of Banking and Insurance in Texas, in which Hall said:

Hall's Statement

"There are 1022 state banks in operation in Texas, all of which with the exception of 35, are guaranty-fund banks. These 35 banks are bond-security banks. They are required to file with the department a bond to the amount of their capital stock for the protection of their deposits, unless such deposits exceed six times the amount of capital stock and surplus. In that event additional bond is required for the amount of the excess above six times the capital stock and surplus. We are discouraging and in fact refusing to permit the organization of bond banks, inasmuch as the bond furnished does not furnish ample or ready protection to the depositors in the event of failure of the bank. Since the guaranty-fund law became effective 51 state banks closed within the past 12 months. For the protection of the non-interest bearing and unsecured depositors of these 51 banks, the guaranty fund has paid out $5,151,736.

"The coudition of the guaranty fund on June 30 last was as follows:

"Cash on hand in state treasury	$ 584,472.54
"Demand deposits in banks to the credit of state banking board	1,827,072.02
"Total amount of guaranty fund	$2,411,544.56

Continuing Crissinger said:

"From the data submitted by the commissioner in relation to the 51 banks that have been closed it appears that their capital at date of closing was $2,515,000, surplus and other profits $356,911, all other liabilities $15,327,406, deposits guaranteed $9,215,473, liabilities not guaranteed $5,823,943, deposits paid from the guaranty fund $5,377,729, contributions (assessments) to the guaranty fund $180,643. The salvage is so far as the shareholders are concerned was nominal, the amount being approximately $75,000, distributed among the shareholders of seven of the banks, the shareholders of the other banks receiving nothing.

Reason for Failures

"The failure of 13 banks was due to criminal acts of officers, etc., 34 to losses, of which 6 were on account of cotton loans, 1 was due to drought, and 3 not accounted for."

Crissinger said that during the year ten national banks failed in Texas. These banks had a total capital of $655,000 and gross assets of $8,509,346.62. Two of these banks with an aggregate capital of $100,000 and assets of $1,014,172.65 were subsequently restored to solvency.

Eleven new national banks with an aggregate capital of $3,160,000 were chartered in Texas during the year, ending October 31, 1921. Several have been chartered since that time, but were too late to be included in the report. Those included in the report and their capital were:

First National Bank of Bangs	$25,000
First National Bank of Mercedes	60,000
Security National Bank of Electra	50,000
Clifton National Bank, Clifton	25,000

START BRIDGE AT DAM SITE FRIDAY, 13TH

Construction began Friday on a temporary bridge at the site of the diversion dam, the honor of being the first to start actual work on the three and a half million dollar big Wichita Irrigation project going to F. W. McCabe, sub-contractor, plans for which were recently announced in the Record News.

At the same time Baylor county officials started work on staking out the new road from Seymour to the damsite, and making preparations to condemn the right-of-way, if necessary. The big steam shovel which will be used by the Callahan Construction company on the main dam will also serve in grading the roads, as it proceeds from Mabelle, where it is now being unloaded, to the dam site, it is stated. The enormous piece of machinery is on tractor treads, and will move under it's own power.

By Associated Press.

MEXIA, Jan. 13.—By a special order posted on the front door of a local drug store here tonight, the establishment was closed "until further orders" of the military authorities by order of Brigadier General Wolters, in charge of the Mexia military district. Congressman Thomas L. Blanton will not be a candidate for the United States senate. He will seek a re-election. Thomas L. is a cunning politician. He knows that a bird in the hand is worth a thousand in the bush. He knows the value of publicity. On the subject of notoriety he is a paranoiac. He is as crazy for the center of the stage position as any musical comedy queen that the world has ever known. While he was toying with the toga Judge Cunningham of Abilene announced as a candidate for Congress. If Cunningham remains in the race there is going to be a lively time in the Abilene district. He is a rugged and shifty campaigner and a courageous and a hard hitter. On with the battle.

Colonel John Henry Kirby is telling it to the world that the South is going Republican unless the southern leaders of the Democratic party espouse the cause of protection. Colonel Kirby is a most admirable gentleman, a multimillionaire, a developer of waste places, a friend generous and loyal but as the Moses of a Republican hope away down in the southland his feet are certain to be blistered and thorn-pierced before he arrives at the end of his journey. Colonel Kirby is an oil producer. Republican tariff makers are going to keep oil on the free list. Now what is the Colonel going to do about it? Texas is the greatest of petroleum producing states and those engaged in the oil industry here are to be kept in competition with the pauper labor of Mexico and Pan-American countries. If protection is a good thing the Colonel should advise his Republican friends and associates to place a high tariff on oil importations. Of course it might not help the consumer but it certainly would help the producer.

"I am not a prophet nor son of a prophet, but just as sure as the several states fail to suppress mob violence just that surely will the federal congress pass some drastic law authorizing the federal authorities to take jurisdiction of all cases of mob violence and we Democrats and state righters may rent and tear our hair as much as we please about the reserve rights of the state; the answer to our cry will be the index finger pointing to our failure to protect the individual or punish the mob," declared Hon. J. R. Warren of Upsur county, judge of the seventh judicial district, in charging his grand jury. "Any man who joins with a mob to take the life of or injure another commits a crime; and it is no ordinary crime for in addition to the individual killed or otherwise injured it is assault upon organized society itself and a crime against all the people. Organized society is based upon the law. Law is a rule of action prescribed by the supreme power of the state. In a democracy like ours the people are the supreme power." Judge Warren realizes what is coming. He knows that Judge Lynch is responsible for the Dyer Anti-Lynching bill, and that mobs and their champions in states of the South will be responsible for the Federal law which is on the way.

Colonel John Henry Kirby insists that there can be no compromise on the issue of free raw materials and that unless Southern Democrats abandon the doctrine the Republicans are certain to make large gains in the South. Well, let us begin with oil. Mexican crude is on the free list. It was placed there by Democrats. It has been retained by Republicans. President Harding is for free crude. Republican senatorial and congressional leaders are for free crude. Texas is a great petroleum producing state. Its surface hasn't been scratched. As an industry it is growing by leaps and bounds. Colonel Kirby should do missionary work with President Harding, with Secretary Mellon, with Secretary Weeks and with the big chiefs of the Republican forces of the senate and house of representatives.

A ten thousand barrel well in a negro church yard west of Mexia has been brought in. This must have been a streak of what is known as "nigger luck."

Peter Rabbit Gets His Wish

Jumper the Hare who is Peter Rabbit's big cousin and had come down from the Great Woods of the North to live in the Green Forest, had seen very little of Peter lately because he disliked to leave the Green Forest, and ever since he had seen those strange tracks deep in the Green Forest Peter had kept close to the dear Old Briar Patch. So Jumper had not heard Peter's story, which nobody believed and about which everybody teased Peter whenever they saw him. One moonlight night Jumper took it into his head to visit his cousin and find out why he had been keeping so close to the dear Old Briar Patch.

First making sure that the way was clear, for Jumper is very, very timid, he scampered across to the Old Briar Patch as fast as his long legs could take him and was quite out of breath when he got there. He found Peter sitting under a bramble bush looking quite as miserable as he felt.

"Hello, Cousin Peter! Where have you been keeping yourself lately? I haven't seen you or your tracks in the Green Forest for days and days. Are you sick?" asked Jumper.

"No," replied Peter shortly, "I'm not sick, but I guess I will be if this keeps up much longer." Peter looked very glum and unhappy.

"If what keeps up?" asked Jumper, looking very much puzzled.

"Having everybody make fun of me every time I show myself, and nobody to believe what I say," replied Peter.

Jumper looked more puzzled than ever. "That is bad, Cousin Peter," said he. "It's bad enough to be made fun of. I know all about that. Everybody makes fun of me because I have such long legs and because I am so timid. I've grown used to it now, but still I don't enjoy being laughed at. But it's a whole lot worse not to have people believe what you tell them. I had a whole lot rather have people laugh at me than to say the things they do about Sammy Jay. No one believes him even when he does tell the truth, and that's perfectly dreadful."

"I know it," said Peter mournfully. "That's the trouble with me now. I've been telling the truth and no one believes it. Now they never will believe anything I say, and they'll think of me just as they do of Sammy Jay, and say the same dreadful things about me."

"But what is it that they don't believe You haven't told me," insisted Jumper the Hare.

"I—I—don't want to tell you because probably you won't believe me either," replied Peter. Now, this wasn't quite true. At least part wasn't. He did want to tell. He fairly ached to tell. But he was afraid that Jumper wouldn't believe his story. But after Jumper had solemnly promised that he would believe no matter how hard it was to, Peter told him all about his visit to the deepest part of the Green Forest and about the great big strange tracks he had found there in the snow—tracks as big as Farmer Brown's boy's, only different, and showing the marks of great claws.

Jumper had pricked up his long ears at the mention of those strange tracks, and now he was sitting up very straight and staring at Peter with his eyes very wide open.

"I—I knew you wouldn't believe me," Nobody does," said Peter sadly.

"But I do!" cried Jumper. "I've seen tracks just like those lots and lots of times way off in the Great Woods where I came from. I was just surprised that there should be any down here in the Green Forest. Of course, I believe you, Cousin Peter. I think I will go see them for myself. It's a long time since I have seen any."

"Oh, I'm so glad!" cried Peter happily. At last his wish had come true—he had found some one to believe him. He was so happy over it that he quite forgot to ask Jumper who could have made the strange tracks.

Rippling Rhymes

STOLEN FRUITS.

"The stolen fruits are sweetest," remarked some ancient jay, and handed out the neatest of falsehoods, I should say. A cheap excuse he furnished for weak, dishonest men, whose morals are not burnished until they shine again. I sometimes swiped a melon when I was young and frail, and then felt like a felon who ought to be in jail. For days and days thereafter, my heart was full of dread, stilled was my childish laughter, and trembling was my tread; I thought the cops were sprinting with zeal, upon my trail; each passing hour was hinting of fetters, law and jail. Old fashioned, stern endeavor of goods things is the chief, and stolen fruits forever bring sorrow to the thief. That saying utter bosh is, in which good faith is spurned; far better have two squashes that you have fairly earned, than wagon-loads of peaches like those of yonder skate, who cheats and overreaches, and earns his neighbors' hate.—(Copyright, 1922, George Matthew Adams.)

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE TROUBLE WITH THE MOON.

The moon is skidding.

o o o

According to Dr. A. C. D. Crommelin of the Greenwich Laboratory, England, it has slid twelve miles off the regular Blue Book route.

o o o

In fact, there is grave doubt that the well-known Man in the Moon is still in the moon, or has been thrown out by the sharp turn.

o o o

The problem of the minute is to get the moon back on the right road. Otherwise you can't tell what may happen. Nothing more disastrous can be imagined that the moon hitting a hydrant or a telegraph pole, unless it were a hydrant or a telegraph pole hitting a moon.

Dr. Crommelin alone seems unalarmed. He states that the moon has been skidding for thirty years, which beats W. J. Bryan's record. If it has only covered twelve miles in all that time it is almost as good a moon as our auto is a speedster.

o o o

Unknown influences, he states, are at work on the moon, but no attempt has as yet been made to involve the Democratic party.

o o o

Professor W. H. Pickering of Harvard also has a report to make regarding queer doings on the moon. It is his discovery that two crops a day are grown there. The bumper crops presumably lead to bumper appetites among the Mooneys as natives of the moon are known to scientists—hence the frequency of the Full Moons.

o o o

This two-crops-a-day report has caused great unrest among American farmers, but it should be explained that a day on the moon is as long as two of our weeks. In other words, a day and a night are a month long.

o o o

From this it will be realized that when a native of the moon goes to a matinee he or she is away four or five days.

o o o

Even the shortest moving picture runs from what would be Monday afternoon to Friday evening, American time.

o o o

This is probably why scientists never have been able to see any signs of life on the moon. All the "Mooneys" are indoors trying to see why the heroine is such a silly goop.

o o o

And fancy the nights, Nora! A little game of poker lasts fourteen nights, and if the boys vote at midnight to play until 6 a. m. they will be up for two more days.

CURIOUS WILLS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

(Copyright, 1921, by Frank Crane.)

A London solicitor gives in the Daily Mail a list of curiosities in the way of Wills.

All wills for which probate is granted in England and Wales are filed in Somerset House.

Any one can inspect them by paying a small fee, but this rule does not apply to the wills of the king and queens, which are sealed.

There are many strange and interesting documents.

Shakespeare's will, with its remarkable signature.

Nelson's will, written in an ordinary exercise book or copy book, on the eve of Trafalgar. Towards the conclusion are these words: "The enemy are in sight."

A soldier's will, through which a bullet has passed without making it illegible.

A portrait of a pretty girl, on which the testator had written: "I leave all I have to her." As it was properly signed by the legator, a soldier, and as there were supplied the necessary affidavits of identity, the will was probated.

One will is in shorthand. It is dated somewhere about 1700, and Pitman did not invent his system for over a hundred years after that. The testator left a key, however, and the authorities were able to decipher it.

One will was salvaged from the bottom of the sea. It had been in the water a long time, but the only damage caused was shrinkage. It was written upon parchment, and was shrunken to a tenth of its original size. But it was so carefully written that it is still clear as print and can be read easily by the naked eye.

Another will, made by a victim of the plague, when it was raging in London, was put in a bottle of alcohol and corked, so that it would not be suspected of carrying fatal contagion, and so destroyed.

Still another record, and perhaps the most cumbersome, is the leg of a four-poster bed. The will of an earl had been concealed in it, and as there was some dispute over it, the leg with its huge wooden castor had to be filed as evidence.

In one of H. Rider Haggard's stories he described a will which a father had tattooed upon the skin of his daughter's back.

In no matter are the ways of the law more tricky than in the matter of wills. Laws of inheritance and rules governing the interpretation of wills vary in different nations and in different states of the union.

Even able lawyers have been known to make wills that would not stand.

For this reason trust companies are coming more and more in favor among testators who desire to make sure that their property will be disposed of according to their wishes.

A trust company, being immortal, and being scrupulously guarded by the law, offers a better security than even the most trustworthy individual.

While courts as a rule endeavor to ascertain and to carry out the real wish of the testator, the conflict of clashing interests, taking advantage of every legal technicality, often renders this extremely difficult.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

By M. JESSIE LEITCH

THE BABY'S HOMECOMING

The woman who had had seven children met the woman who had only one at the door of the dingy tenement in which they lived when she came home from the hospital with the new baby in her arms.

"I don't know where the baby will sleep," said the young mother, who held the baby awkwardly and listened constantly to be sure that it was breathing. She was very nervous.

"We'll soon fix him at bed. I've an old clothes basket that will be the very thing," said the other woman, briskly, taking the bundle of white flannel from the worried young mother and leading the way along the hall.

There was little money to spend, even on life's barest needs, in the dingy tenement, but the woman who had seven children and loved them all alike gathered her neighbor's new baby to her heart and said:

This Tenement Home Well Aired.

"Don't you be worrying about where he'll sleep. A clothes basket or a banana crate or an apple box—what does it matter? As long as it's clean and comfortable and not placed in a draught 'twill make little difference."

"The windows in the hospital were always open" said the very young mother. "Down from the top, you know. I always thought that little babies caught cold when the windows were open, but they told me there that the more air he got the less likely he was to catch cold."

"It's all the latest treatment they give you in the hospital," agreed the mother of seven, "and I'm a firm believer in open windows and fresh air."

And as she spoke her glance traveled with pride over the shining kitchen in which they sat. The outlook was dingy enough, but the windows were sparkingly clean, the coarse curtains well washed and tied back so that the maximum of fresh air and sunlight filtering across the housetops might enter. A glimpse of a snow-white bed beyond a red cotton curtain told that cleanliness in this home was an established fact.

How Baby's Bed Was Made.

The sleeping baby was placed on the bed. The motherly woman produced an ancient clothes basket and promptly loaned a pillow, which she placed in the bottom of the basket. A couple of thicknesses of newspaper, folded between well-washed pieces of old blanket, followed. An improvised pad of soft blanket, folded, followed, and then a little sheet which had done duty for most of the seven.

The motherly woman then said that it had been her experience that new babies slept better without a pillow, and proceeded to put the still sleeping baby to bed in his clothes basket. He simply snuggled into it and slept on, the while the two women bent over him, tucking in the pink woolly shawl that was his only covering.

Sunshine, Fresh Air and Sleep.

"He wears his nightgowns a' day long. I didn't need those little fancy dresses I made for him," confided the young mother.

"And the little loose nightgowns are far better than the frilly dresses," said the mother of seven as she set about making tea.

"Our mothers would have been saved a deal of trouble in their time if they had known how few clothes new babies need and how much sleep and sunshine and fresh air they must have," she added, thinking of her seven who had been "brought up on sunlight and fresh air and sleep," as she was wont to say.

SCHOOL DAYS — By DWIG

The Daily Story

Unexpected Anniversary

Copyright, 1921, by W. Werner

Lyddy Alverson kneaded bread with hard thumps; she pounded the dough as if she had a grudge against it. Her thin old face was stern with repressed feeling. If it had not been for the bread Lyddy might have opened her tightly closed lips and spoken some of the things that rankled in her mind.

Jake, Lyddy's husband, brought in an armful of wood from the woodshed, dropped it behind the stove, and coughed loudly. Usually such a cough would have brought anxious comment from Lyddy, but now she paid no heed. Helpless, Jake went over and sat down by the window and turned his head persistently to gaze out at the falling snow. But for the snow he would have taken his ax and gone up to the wood lot and chopped wood. Anything was better than this persistent silence he was living in. Lyddy had not spoken to him in two days since their "difference" Tuesday morning. He passed his dairy old hand over his bald head and sighed, feeling himself a badly treated husband.

Lyddy cut her dough, moulded it, and put it in the tins to rise for the last time, apparently as unconscious of her husband as if he had not been in the room. But inwardly she knew by the way Jake clasped and unclasped his hands that he was miserable. She was miserable, too, but she wouldn't give in. She wondered how long she and Jake could go on living together without speaking. She wondered what ailed them anyway that they couldn't get along better after so many years of married life, during which they had been as peaceable and well-behaved as most couples. To think of her flying mad just because Jake had upset the chicken feed on her clean stove, putting out the fire and mussing up things generally! Of course, he didn't mean to do it; his hands were not as strong as they had been. But it had made an awful mess, which she hadn't felt like cleaning up just then. To think, too, that when she snapped up Jake he should have responded in kind! He never had done that before. She had always held that it was a disgraceful thing for two old people to quarrel, but they had quarreled as hotly and vociferously as if they were eighteen and twenty, instead of sixty-eight and seventy.

"If Jake stays in the kitchen all this morning I shall have to go up in the attic and find something to do, cold as it is," Lyddy thought as she covered the white loaves with a clean towel. She picked up a knife and began to scrape the breadboard, although scarcely a flake of dough adhered to it. The neatest of homemakers was Lyddy.

Behind her Jake spoke suddenly in tones of joy and surprise. "Hello! Here's Bessy!"

He had the door open and the woman was entering almost before Lyddy could turn round.

"Hello, good folks!" cried Bessy. She was a big wholesome woman, with red cheeks. She had a big basket. "How are you, Aunt Lyd? How are you Uncle Jake?" She kissed them both, with hearty smacks. "Shall I put you out if I stay to dinner? Harry's gone over to the village, and he'll probably be back, too. I brought along a few things in case you should not be expecting so much company."

"Now, you needn't 'a' done that," said Lyddy, reproachfully. "My bread'll be out of the oven, and I've got hash to warm up."

Bessy took off her hat and coat and furs, and, while Lyddy carried them into the bedroom, warmed her hands at the stove. When Lyddy came back Bessy opened the basket and took out a pair of roast ducks and a big white frosted cake. "Uncle Jake, what do you think of that?" she demanded. "They're a pair of my Perkins. I knew you liked duck. I brought them for you."

"Land's sakes, you didn't expect me to eat 'em both, did you?" cried Uncle Jake, warming up.

Bessy laughed. "You'll have to do your share. This cake is a golden sponge and I made it expressly for you, Aunt Lyddy. There now!"

"It's a beauty," said Lyddy, "but when I have company, Bessy, I like to furnish the victuals. Jake, who's that pounding at the door?"

She had said it in spite of herself and she turned so red that her cheeks almost matched Bessy's. But Jake did not hear. He, too, had heard the noise and hurried to the door, where was more company, heavily laden. This was Hiram Ward. Jake's nephew, and his wife, from over Chilton way.

"Land's sakes, what ever started you folks out on such a day as this?" exclaimed Jake, beaming. "Come in, come in. Where's your team? Left it at the stables in the village, eh? Well, this seems real kind-a pleasant to have you here with Harry and Bessie."

Lyddy was doing her best to welcome her guests. "I don't know when you've been here, Alice," she said as she helped Hiram's wife unwrap her many mufflings of fur and shawl and scarf. "It's a cold day. You need all on you can get on," she remarked as Alice laughingly apologized for her many outer garments.

As soon as she had made her guests comfortable Lyddy hurried downstairs and brought up a big pan of potatoes and sat down to pare them. Bessy put the ducks to warm, and Alice unpacked the things she had brought—a beautiful little baked ham, fruit, nuts, candy, and a delicious-looking salad.

"Well, I guess you folks thought we wouldn't have anything for you to eat," said Lyddy.

"I always like to take a little something along when I go visiting unexpected," Alice replied. "Uncle Jake, for goodness sake, who's that at the door? I believe it's Lon Piper and Frankie!"

It was, and these old friends of Jake and Lyddy entered gayly. Frankie Piper, tiny, merry, had brought two mince pies, a bottle of cream for coffee, a jar of mixed pickles and a glass of apple jelly.

"Forever more! What shall we ever do with all these victuals?" exclaimed Lyddy.

Harry, Bessy's husband, came bearing a small freezer of ice cream. Then the men sat down to talk, while the women put extra leaves in the dining-room table, hunted up Lyddy's best tablecloth and got out her best china and silver. For the first time in her life Lyddy came near burning her bread. But at last dinner was set forth! And such an array as there was!

"I declare, it's a feast!" said Jake, rubbing his hands and looking round delightedly.

His eyes met Lyddy's and she smiled. She couldn't help it, with everybody looking on. Besides, the fun and bustle and change had almost made her forget that she had ever been angry. She did love "something going on." Sometimes she felt that she suffered for a good time and that was what made her so crotchety. "Well, it certainly does seem good to have you folks here today," she said more than once during the meal, which was heartily enjoyed.

At its close Frankie Piper left the table for a minute and came back with a beautiful silver tea set, which she placed before the old pair. Then her husband jumped up, emptied a bottle of grape juice into six glasses and proposed the health of Lyddy and Jake.

"And many happy returns of the day," cried Bessy.

"Of what day? What is this day, anyway?" demanded Lyddy, in bewilderment.

"Your fiftieth anniversary!" cried Hiram.

"By jinks, that's so!" Jake said. He held out his hand to Lyddy and, fumbling through her tears, Lyddy's hand clasped that of her husband.

CLOSING OUT SALE OF GROCERIES

At a meeting of the Stockholders of the Wichita Co-Operative Supply Co., held Monday, January 9th, it was agreed that the company should discontinue business and liquidate its affairs. A liquidation board for that purpose was elected. The board has decided that the best way to wind up the affairs of the company is to sell at reduced prices the stock now on hand. The citizens of Wichita Falls will, for the next few days, have an opportunity to buy groceries at considerably less than prevailing prices as long as this stock lasts. The major portion of this stock consists of staple groceries. You should take this opportunity to buy several months' supply of what you will need. Come to the store and get what you will require while you have this opportunity to make a big saving.

—STOCKHOLDERS WILL HAVE AN OPPORTUNITY TO RECOUP A PORTION OF THEIR LOSSES on their stock by taking advantage of this opportunity. Prices will be the same to stockholders and non-stockholders alike; 15 per cent reduction from shareholders marked prices on everything except meats, vegetables and fruits

CHAPTER LI.

"If father only could know," Ruth said after she had attended to the paying off of the mortgage on their home and given the deed to her mother.

"Daddy does know. He was good and good people know what happens to those they love, even if they are in heaven." Susan's quaint philosophy often startled her family. Then she added in a changed tone:

"What shall we do to celebrate You know, Ruthie, you said we must do something."

"Suppose we play a game to decide. Shall we go to Atlantic City for the week-end, or shall we see two or three good operas before the season closes—or have you any other suggestions?"

"What game shall we play to decide?" Susan asked.

"There are four of us. We will each write our choice on a slip of paper and the majority vote wins."

"Hoo-ray! What fun!"

"You look, Sam." Ruth held toward him the workbasket which had been emptied of spools to make way for the slips of paper.

"Opera wins!"

"It's opera then."

Sam would have to be helped, so Ruth hired a neighbor to go with them and remain in town to assist him after opera was over. She had chosen Puccini's "Manon," with Farrar and Caruso in the cast, as their first treat. Sam, who was very fond of music, was delighted. Susan, as she said, was "wild."

"I feel as if I couldn't wait." she said, dancing about the room. "I never said anything because I knew it would make Ruthie feel bad. But I have been just dying to go to an opera all my life. When the girls talked about them I was almost sick, I envied them so. I know the story of almost all of them, and "Manon" I know by heart. You won't have to get a libretto so I can understand it, Ruth."

"I shall have to get one for myself though. Why have you never said anything about this great wish to hear good music, Susan?"

"Haven't you had enough on your young shoulders?" sarcastically replied Susan. "But now that Ted is rich and coming home we can talk of what we want to do—when he comes," she added mischievously.

Ruth found herself telling Robert Turnbull of her plan to visit the opera with Sam. Then of Susan's naive remarks.

"It seems like great extravagance to take a box, but with Sam nothing else was possible. Yet it isn't as extravagant as it seems. I was saving money to pay the mortgage on the house, and my younger brother—he is somewhere in China—sent the full amount. I felt so rich I thought we might afford to celebrate."

His face had shown such interest that she had gone on with her confidence almost unthinkingly. Now she flushed. What would he think of her telling her plans like the veriest school girl?

"Pardon me for running on so, but——"

Robert Turnbull interrupted her.

"Thank you for your confidence. I often have wondered why I never see you at any place of amusement. Now I know. It was the mortgage."

"Yes, it was the mortgage."

"Tell me about this other brother. I never heard you mention him.

"He is only two years younger than I. He ran away from home when he was sixteen. We were great chums, and I was heartbroken for a time. He was a happy natured lovable boy. He had never written us after the first year until he sent the draft. He declared he never would return until he made good. He is between twenty-six and twenty-seven now. When he sent us the mortgage money he said he would be home in a year or two if everything went well with him. It was so like him, that careless way of speaking of time—as if it were a day or two. The letter had been traveling about for a year. He may be home now at any time."

"I sincerely hope that he comes soon. And I am very glad for your sake he sent the draft. Can you not take things a bit easier now? Take more amusement? All work and no play makes Jill a dull girl, as well as Jack a stupid boy, you know."

"I know, and I have felt the need of relaxation. I shall be free now to be as giddy as any young girl."

"You are a young girl."

"Nonsense!" Ruth laughed and turned back to her work. Afterward she wondered to herself how two staid business people could have been so silly.

Could she have seen herself when she told her little story that unconsciously proved her self-denial she would not have wondered that he told her she was young. Her shining eyes and flushed cheeks made her look like eighteen instead of ten years older. She also seemed all that was desirable in the eyes of the man looking at her.

Justice of the Peace J. F. Maxwell Friday announced hi candidacy for re-election as justice of peace of precinct one, place two. The announcement assures that both the present justices of the precinct will be candidates for re-election Justice Gwinn having made his announcement Thursday.

Justice Maxwell was elected to the office in 1920 making his race this year for a second term. "Dad" as he is familiarly known around court house circles has been a resident of the city for 20 years. Previous to his election as justice of the peace, he was a member of the city police department.

Previous to that period he was a familiar figure to most Wichitans while he served for eight years as train caller at the Union station. No other candidates in opposition to Justice Maxwell have announced.

Must Secure New Permits By February 1

Nineteen twenty-two permits issued by the city to all cafes, groceries, fruit stands, and all engaged in sale of food products, must be taken out before the first of February, according to announcement from Dr. L. I. Lacey, city food and dairy inspector. All permits for 1921 have expired and must be renewed by that date, he says, under penalty of fines in city court.

Personal health certificates must also be taken out by all employes of concerns engaged in selling food stuffs Dr. Lucy says.

Fashions for Americans

One mid-season and two early spring hats are shown in the sketch. The upper hat, for mid-season wear, is made of a soft gray velvet combined with silver lace. The full crown is of the velvet and the wide brim of lace edged with a soft roll of the velvet. This hat would be suitable for restaurant or dinner wear.

The next hat features a crown of slipper satin, a fabric very much favored for early spring headgear, and the brim is of cire ribbon wired and arranged lattice fashion. The lower hat has a crown of gray straw braid with brim covered with glunias in various shades of yellow.

Medium sized crowns, fashioned to fit the head snugly, and brims of medium width are two of the style recommendations for spring, and the brim that is narrower in the back than in the front promises to be very popular. Certainly this type of brim is comfortable and it is generally becoming.

Of featherweight are some of the hair braid hats now being shown for southern resorts and early spring, and frequently in very high shades. All reds are said to be good in millinery, green of the jade family is approved and yellow, several tones of blue and the dahlia shades are also good.

Faille is one of the silks very much featured in the development of spring hats, this with slipper satin rather replacing taffeta except in hats for children, where it reigns strong.

Many of the new hats show but little trimming, a gracefully and becomingly draped veil being all that is required.

A hat for midseason and two spring chapeaux are here shown.

PAVED ROAD TO ELECTRA IS APPROVED

Final approval of the concrete road between Iowa Park and Wilbarger county line through Electra was given by the state highway department following an inspection Thursday afternoon and early Friday by H. J. Cox, division inspector from the state department.

The approval means that the 30-mile stretch of concrete road from this city to the Wilbarger county line through Iowa Park and Electra had received final approval by both the state and federal highway departments. The federal inspection was recently completed.

The approval by the state and federal engineers will result in the county receiving the maximum amount of state and federal aid in the construction of the road. The two aids on the road amounted to $225,000 and a part of this is yet to be paid the county.

UNIVERSITY CLUB AND HI SCHOOL RUN AMUCK IN CITY BASKET TOURNEY

Before another crowd that filled the American Legion hall, the second half of the formal opening of the City Basketball league was played last night, with two fast but rather lopsided games served as the evening's sport dish. In the opener the High school five smothered the North Methodists 33 to 8, while the University club quintet made a runaway race of their game against the Texhoma, winning 52 to 9.

C. Neal, captain of the North Methodists, played the whole game for the church team. With four men his equal to aid him, the Methodists would have a brilliant team—but the four were not there last night. In justice to the Methodists, however, it should be said they had the toughest of tough luck in the "breaks" of the game, many well timed shots repeatedly rimming the basket and rolling slowly over the outside of the iron hoop.

The team play of the High school five did the business. After gaining a big lead early in the game with the first string men, Coach Tate shifted his line-up repeatedly, using six substitutes before the game was over. Capt. "Brick" Johnson, Frank Shaw, "Dummy" Deems and Palmer Herrod split the scoring honors.

In the second game R. Harper and Bill and Harry Viner made life a the court miserable for the Texhoma five. Harper shot 9 goals from the field, Bill Viner 8 and Harry Viner 9—and they made 'em from every angle. A steady stream of basketball poured through the hoop, and the Texhomas were helpless before the onslaught.

LEONARD TO BOX KANSAS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Benny Leonard, world lightweight boxing champion today signed a contract to defend his title here in a bout with Rocky Kansas, of Buffalo, February 10.

RICKARD'S OFF DEMPSEY AND CARP MATCHES

Premier Promoter Praises European Champ as Light Heavyweight but Tex Would Be "Humane."

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—"A return match between Carpentier and Dempsey would not draw expenses in this country," Tex Rickard, boxing promoter, said today when informed that the French light-heavyweight had expressed a desire for another meeting with the world's heavyweight champion.

"Carpentier is without doubt the best 175 pound pugilist in the world," he said, "but he has neither the power or endurance to battle with a figher of Dempsey's class and calibre. I would not think of bidding for or promoting a second match between that pair."

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 13.—Jack Kearns, manager for Jack Dempsey, declared here that Dempsey was ready to defend his title as world's champion heavyweight at any time and against anybody and that such a match would be discussed whenever sufficient financial guarantees were put up by those who sought a match.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—Georges Carpentier, who decisively defeated Geo. Cook of Australia here last night, may ask another fight with Jack Dempsey, world's champion heavyweight, after meeting Ted "Kid" Lewis, the Evening Standard was informed today by Francois Descamps, Carpentier's manager.

GENE TUNNEY TOO MUCH FOR 'BAT' LEVINSKY

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Gene Tunney, New York, won the American light heavyweight boxing championship here tonight when he received the judges decision after a 12-round bout with Battling Levinsky, also of this city.

Tunney, who also was light heavyweight champion of the A. E. F. weighed 171 1-2 pounds, and Levinsky a veteran of more than 300 ring battles weighed 176 1-2.

They warmed up in the sixth and Gene shook Levinsky with left hooks to the jaw. He also cut his nose with a short left uppercut.

Tunney continued his assault in the seventh and punished Levinsky with several hard body blows. The veteran made Tunney wince in the ninth with three straight rights to the head, cutting his eye. Tunney resumed his body assault in the tenth and Levinsky appeared to weaken under the blows. Tunney punished the battler in the last two rounds but his blows lacked sufficient force to down his older opponent.

When Levinsky heard the judge's verdict he walked to Tunney's corner, embraced the new champion and said:

"Carry on, soldier. The American title is safe in your hands for a long time."

Levinsky has only been knocked out twice, once by Georges Carpentier, the French idol, who defeated him in the Frenchman's first fight in this country, and prior to that by Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion.

Fred Fulton, who fought in the semi-final, weighed 212 1-2 pounds and Bartley Madden 177.

A hard right to the head sent Fulton staggering into his corner in the tenth. The bell apparently saved him from being knocked out. He held off Madden in the eleventh and engaged in a vicious exchange of blows in the final round.

Motorists Out O' Luck On Friday

Friday the thirteenth was an unlucky day for twenty-four Wichita Falls motorists who were arrested by Captain Eyerley's squad of motor cops and charged with violations of the traffic ordinances. Following Commissioner Fitts' order to "crack down" and arrest every automobile driver found violating the law, during the day the cops were alert to discover various and sundry offenses coming under the head of traffic ordinances.

Troop 15 Pours It On Clara Scouts

Troop 15 of the local Boy Scouts romped away from the Clara Scouts in a basketball tussle at Iowa Park last night, the final whistle finding the local youngsters leading 36 to 6. The Iowa Park Scouts in a second game defeated the second team of Troops 15, 20 and 10.

Virgil Brown and Dick Gordon led in the scoring for Troop 15, each shooting 6 goals from the field. Lynn Ross and Hugh Kelly each collected three field goals, while Earl Chaffin failed to score, although he played a pretty game at guard.

BUCK WEAVER TELLS LANDIS ALL ABOUT IT

Third-Basin' Member of Black Sox 'Lows He Was Confronted by Three Evils and He Picked but One.

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—An echo of the 1919 world series scandal was heard today when it became known that George (Buck) Weaver, former Chicago White Sox third baseman, had personally appealed to Judge K. M. Landis for reinstatement in organized baseball and for the first time had told a baseball official his version of the deal through which it was alleged eight White Sox players were bribed by gamblers to throw games to the Cincinnati Reds.

Weaver, it has become known, actually appeared before Judge Landis last week, but since his appeal was a personal one and not a formal application, nothing was known of it publicly. In his plea to the baseball commissioner the third baseman reiterated his innocence and told a story which for many months has been known to a few of his personal friends but which has never been made public.

Weaver, it is said, declared that he was approached by a White Sox player near the end of the 1919 season and asked if he would join in a plan to throw games in the world series that fall. It was explained to him that several other players had agreed to deliberately lose contests and make the series a "made to order" one so far as the gamblers were concerned. "Buck" was offered $10,000 as his share if he agreed to "lay down."

Weaver at that time had just opened a drug store on the south side and needed capital, he is understood to have told Judge Landis. Thinking over the proposition, he found himself faced with three possible courses of action:

1.—To accept the bribe and help throw the series.

2.—To refuse the bribe and tell Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Sox, of it.

3.—To refuse the bribe and say nothing, thus avoiding the odium that attaches to one who "snitches" on a friend.

The third baseman told Judge Landis that while he needed the $10,000 badly in view of his new business enterprises, it never entered his head to accept it.

"The only doubt in my mind," Weaver is said to have informed the baseball commissioner, "was whether I should keep quiet about it or to tell Mr. Comiskey. I was not certain just what men, if any, had received propositions or whether they accepted. I couldn't bring myself to tell on them even had I known for certain. I decided to keep quiet and play my best."

Judge Landis refused to discuss the case.

ARCHITECT IS RETAINED BY SCHOOL BOARD

To Submit Plans Shortly; Both Unit and Compact Plans Considered; Two Schools May Be Planned.

W. B. Ittner of St. Louis, nationally known architect of school buildings, was appointed by the Wichita Falls school board at a special meeting Friday night, to draw up two sets of plans for new high school buildings, to cost in the neighborhood of $500,000 each, and to submit these plans back to the board for action. Mr. Ittner was called here by the school board to go over the initial steps incident to starting definite work on the new high school and to make suggestions to the board. His appointment carries with it the authority to recommend a local architect who will be associated with him in the work here.

While there was no time set by the board as to when Mr. Ittner should report back with his plans, it was stated that definite selection of the plans will probably be made within ninety days.

Two kinds of high school buildings will be considered in the plans, the unit plan and the compact or one building idea, according to W. W. Brown, business manager of the schools. The unit style, where one central building is built first with the idea of making additions as needed, is one which the board is known to be considering favorably, especially in view of the necessity of keeping the bond issue as low as possible.

Friday, Mr. Ittner and the board made a tour of inspection of the proposed school site and the school buildings in use at the present time.

At a morning session of the board, Mr. Ittner expressed himself as believing that an additional high school building was a present necessity and that the time was not far distant when the present high school will be insufficient to accommodate the students.

Approval of the junior college courses in addition to the regular four years of high school work was given by Mr. Ittner, and this idea, he said, will be considered in drawing up plans for the new building.

Other action taken by the board, authorized the rental of a room to take care of the overflow school children at the Fannin school in North Wichita. This action, the board believes, will take care of the crowded conditions prevelant there for the time being.

FULTON AND MADDEN DRAW.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Fred Fulton, Rochester, Minn., heavyweight and Bartley Madden, New York, fought 12 rounds to a draw in Madison Square Garden tonight. The verdict was booted by the fans who appeared to favor Madden.

Work Started on Big Addition to Ball Park Stand

Bert Adrian, contractor, started work yesterday on a 60-foot addition to the grandstand at Athletic park. The addition, which will join the north end of the old stands, will provide seats for 700 Spudders enthusiasts, with 27 extra boxes lined up in three rows of nine boxes to the row.

The new addition will be rounded slightly to the northeast, bringing that section of the stand directly back of third base. The bleachers also will be moved in closer to the field of play, and will extend well down the left field foul line.

Workmen also will double the size of the press box on the roof of the center section of the stand.

Sport Briefs

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Bob Shawkey, veteran hurling star of the Yankees, may be transferred, it was reported in baseball circles today, to the Detroit club in exchange for Bob Veach, the hard hitting Tiger outfielder. Johnny Mitchell, the young shortstop obtained by the Yankees from the Vernon club of the Pacific Coast league, also may be included in the transaction.

BELOIT, WIS., Jan. 13.—Jim Vaughn, former Cub pitcher, will remain with the Fairbanks-Morse baseball team here for three years.

HAVANA, Jan. 13.—Issuance recently by Mayor De Villegas of a decree prohibition prize fights in Havana has scattered the large colony of American boxers who had made this city their headquarters for the last six months.

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—Nearly all of the delegates to the annual meeting of the United States Golf association were expected to arrive in Chicago and a large number registered during the day in readiness for the opening session of that body which convenes tomorrow.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 13.—William Martin Dilhoefer, catcher of the St. Louis National league baseball team, will be married to Miss Massie Slocum of Mobile, Ala., in that city tomorrow, according to announcement here today.

"RINGER SCORE" TOURNEY ON AT COUNTRY CLUB

Members of the Wichita Falls Golf and Country club are battling Old Man Par himself these days in a "ringer score" tournament that will continue through March 1. All players are required to turn in their score cards properly attested, and all scores must be made in regular 18-hole play.

As a novelty the tourney is attracting considerable interest, only a few of the local players ever having participated before in an event of this character. The player with the lowest medal score for 18 holes will win—but the novelty lies in the fact that each player is permitted to count into his tournament score the lowest mark he may make on each individual hole between now and the close of the event. To illustrate: Bill Jones may shoot a 5 on No. 1 on Monday. He records it on his tournament score. Then on a later day perhaps he may play the same hole in 3. He promptly erases the 5 and chalks up the 3 on his tournament score. In this manner, he tries in every 18-hole round to better his previous low score on each hole played.

Tommy Cochran has been barred from the prize winning, as Tommy has a nasty habit of shooting too darn many birdies and eagles. At the present time Bill Norton is leading the field with a total of 66 for 18 holes, as follows:

Out:	4	3	4	3	4	2	4	4	5—31
In:	4	4	4	4	4	3	4	4	4—35
Total									66

George Reppy also has got away to a flying start on 10 of the 18 holes, having collected 5 birdies and 5 pars on Holes Nos. 1, 2, 6, 7, 9, 10, 15, 16, 17 and 18. Other players who have broken into the tournament with splendid chances to show unusually low scores at the finish are C. H. Reid, Morris Norton, Bobby Burns and Finley Weldon.

AGGIES START ON FIRST ROAD TRIP THURSDAY

Two Games Each With Baylor Bears and S. M. U. Mustangs Are Next on A. & M. Schedule.

Special to The Record News.

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Jan. 13.—The Aggie quintet will leave on its first road trip of the season Thursday, going directly to Dallas for two games with Southern Methodist University on Friday and Saturday and returning via Waco for two games with the Baylor Bears on the following Monday and Tuesday. They will return to the College and resume class work next Wednesday morning.

No serious competition is looked forward to in the contests at Dallas, since Doc Blackwell's basketeers dropped a couple of games to the Southwestern Pirates on their own court, but on the games at Waco more interest is manifested here. True, by comparison of games played between the Aggies and the Houston Triangles and the Bears and Triangles the edge is considerably with the Aggies, but it is believed that the Bears will show much better form on their own court than they did in Houston on strange and difficult court, facing only opposition and backed by no grandstand support.

The Aggies are in good condition for the trip. Except for the injured Hartung who jerked an ankle in the game here with the San Marcos quintet the team is in perfect shape. Hartung will probably play, but if he is not considerably able there will be plenty of good material to pick from to fill his place. Gill who made an excellent showing in the game with the Triangles will probably do most of the substitute work in the guard position.

DARCY WHIPS KEISER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Jimmy Darcy, Portland, Oregon, middleweight, received the judge's decision over Fay Keiser, Cumberland, Md., in the first of several bouts at Madison Square Garden tonight. Darcy weighed 161 1-2 pounds and Keiser was five pounds heavier.

TRUSTEES OF COLLEGE ARE INVITED HERE

Asked to Discuss Removal of College, One on Which C. of C. Is Working, to Wichita Falls.

Authority to invite the board of trustees of Midland college to visit this city for the purpose of consulting with chamber of commerce officials regarding the transfer of the college to this city was given to the committee in charge at a meeting of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce Friday morning.

The action was taken after the committee which met with the church officials at Fort Worth the first of the week had made a report to the board. It is expected that the officials will visit the city before making final decision in regard to the transfer of the school. The college and the church with which it is affiliated are considering other offers for transfer.

Frank Kell, R. E. Huff and C. H. Clark were appointed by the board of directors to appear before the county commissioners court Monday and urge the paving of the road from this city to the Clay county line after the Burkburnett road is completed. The court by a vote of three to one recently voted to divide all paving from the present bond issues between precincts 2, 3 and 4 after the Burkburnett road was completed.

According to opinion expressed at the meeting Friday it is believed that agreements with the state and federal highway departments demand that the road be completed to the Clay county line as a part of the Colorado to Gulf federal and state highway. The need of carrying out this agreement with the state and federal officials will be urged at the Monday meeting. Should the court agree to the paving of the road no additional funds for paving roads in precinct 1 will be asked from the present bond issue.

Sponge Squad Active

The local "sponge" squad was active Friday night but the total haul of "nubbin nectar" was rather light. In one case city policemen Glenn, Eyerley, Archer and Ranger McCormick swooped down on a residence on Austin street, arrested one man and confiscated two one-gallon jugs of corn liquor. The man was put in the city jail and will be transferred to federal authorities today.

Another raiding party composed of Night Chief McDonald and Detective Lenley Humphris located a trunk with 4 1-2 gallons of corn whiskey in it at a house on Lamar street. The bird had flown in this case, however.

SEIZE TRUCK WITH SECRET COMPARTMENT

Frank Morgan, constable, Friday was holding a practically new Reo truck which he seized from in front of a Lamar street residence late Thursday night. Acording to the officers making the arrest, they found 18 quarts of whisky concealed in the truck by means of a false botton in the truck body. The whiskey was packed in old rags.

Officers expressed the opinion that the truck had probably been driven some dsitance, possibly from the Mexican border. A complete cooking equipment was found in the tool box indicating that the driver kept away from large cities and cooked his own meals.

Officers said Friday that they waited se eral hours Thursday night for the owner or driver to return for the truck. It is believed that they became aware that officers were watching the car and deserted it.

The release of the boys follows the request of local juvenile officials that they be released at this time. The release of ten boys, some of whom have been at the school over a year was requested. The action of the officials in regard to three of the applications was unfavorable.

There were sales of 5,000 bags of Cubas to operators for January shipment at 2c cost and freight. The raw sugar futures market was irregular near months being lower under trade selling and liquidation, prompted by the increased offerings in the spot market, while later deliveries were steady on covering and outside buying. Final prices were 4 points lower to 1 net higher: March closed 2.23; May 2.43; July 2.63 and September 2.74. There was a reduction of 10 points in the price of refined sugar by local refiner, although the range was unchanged at 4.80 to 4.90 for fine granulated with a good inquiry reported.

The only business in refined futures was a sale of May at 5.50 or unchanged from the previous close. Final bids were unchanged to 5 points net lower with March at 5.15; May 5.45 and July 5.50.

Stocks

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Dealings in stocks today were more active and diversified than at any previous session of the week, many standard issues making substantial gains. Continued ease of money, strength of foreign exchange and signs of an early forward movement in the basic industries stimulates the advance.

Investment rails led the movement at gains of 1 to 2 points. Equipments, as well as miscellaneous specialties, chiefly of the food and chemical group, made similar or greater gains, but oils and steels lacked their usual prominence, sales amounted to 650,000 shares.

The official rate for call loans remained at 3 1-2 per cent, but that figure was shaded to 3 per cent on prime collateral in private offerings.

The unprecedented large gold holding of the federal reserve bank are said to have influenced the more liberal supplies of time money.

Regardless of the tension created abroad by the French political crisis, foreign exchanges rose apparently, sterling gained 1 1-2 cents but reacted later. Dealings in British, French and Dutch bills were large. Neutral exchanges were stronger in the main and the better tone extended to the new nationals.

Encouraging features of the domestic industrial situation were contained in the announcement that Calumet and Hecla contemplates early resumption of production in its copper fields and in the revival of activity in the Pennsylvania tinplate mills.

Transactions in bonds again assumed large proportions United States war issues contributing their usual quotas. Liberty issues were under further profit-taking, but Victory 4 3-4's made a new high at 100.36. Foreign bonds were undisturbed by the situation across the water. French government and United Kingdom of 1937 showing marked strength.

Total sales (par value) aggregated $25,500,000.

Livestock

FORT WORTH, Jan. 13.—Active trading at fully steady prices featured the cattle and calf market today. Receipts were small, only 1,000 head of cattle and 500 calves arriving. Some steers were good enough to bring 6.00, cows in car lots cleared up to 4.00 and the best calves here sold at 6.25.

Salesmen disposed of their hog consignments at a decline of about 10 cents. The best hogs cleared at 7.75. Bulk sales ranged from 7.35 to 7.65.

Hog receipts amounted to 1500 head. Nothing with the exception of a few drive-ins appeared in the sheep house. The market was nominally steady. Quotations:

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—After opening at a decline of 2 to 5 points the market for coffee futures steadied up on reports of a rally in mil-reis prices at Rio, but soon weakened and broke rather sharply in the late trading on lower quotations from Santos and talk of an easier tone in the cost of freight market.

Local brokers attributed the selling largely to liquidation of tired longs. March sold off from 8.53 to 8.42 and closed at 8.41 with the market closing at a net decline of 13 to 16 points. Sales were estimated at about 32,000 bags.

January 8.31; March 8.41; May 8.27; July 8.20; September 8.20; October 8.10; December 8.17.

Cotton

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—An early decline in the cotton market reflected the unsettling influence of the French political upset, but after selling off to 17.62 or 26 points net lower March contracts rallied to 17.95 on covering and trade buying. This improvement was not fully maintained as late realizing sales caused slight reactions in a narrow market, but the close was steady net 9 points higher to 2 points lower.

The market opened at a decline of 12 to 16 points, with active months selling 20 to 27 points net lower during the early trading in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables, renewed liquidation and scattering pressure which included some selling for Southern account.

The firmer tone reported in stocks and ruling of foreign exchange rates seemed to minimize nervousness over political conditions abroad, while the smaller volume of liquidation on the early decline was regarded as indicating a healthier technical position in futures. These features increased the disposition to cover short contracts but failed to inspire much fresh buying and the afternoon market was comparatively quiet.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 13.—Covering of the short interest furnished the cotton market with a good demand today and after moderate declines in the early trading there was a complete recovery, which around mid-season ran into small net advances. From declines of 21 to 27 points under the close of yesterday there was a rise to levels of 1 to 10 points over. The close was 1 point down to 5 points net up on the day. March traded as low as 16.64, rose to 16.92 and closed at 16.90.

The early decline was started by poor cables and continued under a more pessimistic view regarding the French political developments. As the market dropped, important buying came from the short side and continued during a part of the remainder of the session.

Smaller mill takings than expected caused only momentary recessions and fresh buying arose because of the bullish variations in the visible supply of American cotton. The mills of the world took this week 273,000 bales of American cotton, according to Hester, against 300,000 this week last year and 229,000 this week two years ago. The visible supply decreased 35,230 bales against a decrease this week last year of 9,532, and an increase this week two years ago of 71,928. In the late trading there was much comment regarding the shrinkage in supplies.

Liverpool Spot Cotton.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 13.—Cotton spot quiet; prices steady. Good middling 11.45; fully middling 11.03; middling 10.70; low middling 9.55; good ordinary 8.00; ordinary 7.25. Sales 5,000 bales, including 2,700 American.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Cottonseed oil declined 10 to 12 points early under scattered liquidation on the poor start in other markets, but a fair rally followed through buying by the west and room covering. Closing bids were 5 to 7 points net lower. Sales 19,100 barrels. Prime crude 7.00@7.15; prime summer yellow spot 8.35; March 8.70; May 8.96; and July 9.16, all bid.

NEW YORK DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Cotton goods markets were quiet today, buyers awaiting action by agents that will give them some idea of future prices for the year. Yarns were steady. Wools were firmer and tended higher. Burlaps were steady. Shipments for Calcutta in December reached 57,000,000 yards according to unofficial reports from the market.

Dun's Review of Trade Conditions

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Dun's tomorrow will say:

The development of general activity in business is still delayed but the prospect of further gradual revival remains. Annual inventories have not yet been completed in all instances, causing temporary deferment of new commitments, and many interests are disposed to adhere to a conservative policy. While confidence has unmistakably strengthened, different uncertainties make for continued caution, and rapid commercial expansion is not to be expected. A number of factors will, however, encourage the release of some orders that have been held in abeyance, and the large attendance of merchants in certain primary markets occasions favorable comment.

The easing in money rates, which has been extended in the new year, is one of the constructive forces present, and the comparative stability of wholesale prices serves to somewhat lessen hesitation in buying. With recognition of existing conditions of unemployment and their effect on the public future consuming capacity, dealers' demand to cover probable future requirements are chiefly of moderate size although appearing more frequently.

Weekly bank clearings $6,683,000,000.

Grain

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—Prospects of a liberal reduction of the visible supply total on Monday helped to turn wheat prices upward today after an early decline. The close was unsettled 5-8c to 1 1-3 net higher, with May $1.11 3-4 to 1.11 7-8 and July 1.00 to 1.00 1-8. Corn lost 1-8 to 1-4 to 3-8c, oats finished unchanged to a shade higher, and provisions varying from 2½c decline to 40c advance.

The fact that overnight developments in the French cabinet crisis were generally given a bearish construction as affecting the wheat trade did a good deal to deter buying in the first half of the day, and to depress values to a moderate extent. Later, however, more optimism was shown regarding the French political situation and the general European outlook. Attention of traders then turned to such bullish factors as a better domestic milling demand for wheat and to a material decrease of primary receipts as compared with a year ago.

Corn and oats averaged lower as a result of an apparent slackening in export inquiry for corn.

Stockyard interests were said to be buyers of provisions, and this circumstance appeared to be more than an offset for larger arrivals of hogs than had been looked for.

Cavalry Horse In Unique Race With Cow Pony

By Associated Press.

DALLAS, Jan. 13.—A race to test the merits in speed and endurance of the typical cavalry horse and the Texas cow puncher's pony was under way today, to end at San Antonio next Wednesday. Major Terry Allen, United States cavalry, riding his "Coronado," started the 300-mile contest from Dallas at 9:10 o'clock while at the same time Key Dunns, bronco buster of Sierra Blanca, departed from Fort Worth on his cow pony. The race will be made in stages, night stops to be made at designated points.

Wonder How Short Are the Skirts in "Other Sections"

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 13.—"Girls of Dixie wear longer skirts, drink less liquor, smoke fewer cigarettes and hold fewer 'petting parties' than girls in other sections of the country, Dr. Valeria H. Parker of the United States inter-departmental social and hygiene board declared in an address before the public health institute here. Dr. Parker said she based her opinion on the southern girl upon statistics collected by representatives of the department. She asserted that of 16,000 cases of girl delinquents investigated by the department the southern girls made the best showing.

CHARGE MINE UNION HEADS WITH TREASON

By Associated Press.

LOGAN, W. Va., Jan. 13.—Treason is charged against four mine union officials in indictments found among the 300 returned today by the grand jury here, dealing mainly with the armed march last August that came to a forced halt at the Logan county border. C. Frank Keeney and Fred Mooney, president and secretary respectively of the district, number 17, United Mine Workers of America, William Blizzard, president of sub-district four and A. C. "Andy" Porter, secretary of sub-district two are named in the treason indictments made public.

The 300 indictments made public today were in addition to those under which 94 men are now held in the Logan county jail for trial and like the former ones, are mostly on charges of conspiracy or of aiding and abetting other men against whom charges of murder were returned. The four union officers against whom the treason indictments were brought are among the men now awaiting trial on the other charges.

Keeney and his fellow officers under indictments are accused of undertaking the overthrow of the governor's proclamation of martial law in Mingo county of raising an army to wage war against the state.

MAGNOLIA STRIKE CONTINUES ITS REMARKABLE PERFORMANCE; BIG COMPANIES ACQUIRE ACREAGE

Continuing to flow steadily, and holding up to it's original performance, the Duke well of the Magnolia Petroleum company at Fowlkes station, continued to be the main point of interest to oil operators on Friday, Thursday and Friday's activities in leasing have resulted in tieing up of practically all the close-in acreage, with short time drilling contracts, and an immediate testing of the value of the new strike is expected.

The Gulf Production, the Texas and Humble companies, as well as the Magnolia are lease holders in this section, a considerable part of the acreage being acquired by some of the companies after the well was brought in. In addition a number of independent operators hold close-in acreage, and are planning to drill as soon as possible.

Wireless to Be Used to Trace Goods Astray

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—A plan to utilize the wireless telegraph on a hitherto unheard of scale for tracing goods astray in transit on American railways was announced here today by Jonathan Starr, president of the shippers clearing house company shippers in the United States now lose $100,000,000 annually, Mr. Starr said, through thieving and careless handling.

The plan comprises the establishment of radio plants in 35 cities throughout the country. Twenty-seven high tower radio transmitters already have been purchased from the navy department at Washington and if the experiment is successful, zones will be laid out to make communication easy from one end of the United States to the other.

Mr. Starr said that plants would be installed, beginning February 1, in New York, Boston, Hartford, Waterbury, Providence, Portland, Utica, Philadelphia, Harrisburg, New London, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Toledo, Wilmington, Baltimore, Toronto, Detroit, Indianapolis, Chicago, St. Louis, Memphis, Nashville, Birmingham, Atlanta, New Orleans, Dallas, Omaha, Cheyenne, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, and Grand Rapids.
