General Shot Down At Home In Tehran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Gen. Mohammad Vali Gharani, the first chief of staff of Iran's armed forces after the revolution, was assassinated today while walking in the garden of his Tehran home, the official Pars news agency reported.

Radio Tehran said nine persons, including a Moslem clergyman and members of the shah's police and military forces, were convicted by Islamic revolutionary courts of murder and torture and were executed by firing squads in two cities today. The executions brought to 158 the number known executed by the revolutionary regime.

Gharani, who was chief of staff for six weeks, was cut down by a man with a machine gun who climbed his garden wall, wounded him in the stomach and left leg, and wounded a member of his household staff in the neck, Pars said. Meanwhile, an accomplice with a machine gun chased away a group of laborers working outside the house on Mossadegh Avenue, one of Tehran's main boulevards, the news agency reported.

Gharani was rushed to a hospital and was operated on, but died several hours later.

The assassins dropped their weapons and escaped, Pars said.

There was no apparent motive for the slaying, the first known assassination of an official of Iran's Islamic revolution.

Gharani, a former military intelligence chief who was jailed for opposition to Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, was appointed chief of staff on Feb. 13, two days after Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolutionary forces took over the government and the army collapsed. He was replaced March 27, reportedly because of his inability to convince army deserters to return to duty.

The executions announced today were the first since last Thursday. The government radio said six of them took place in the Persian Gulf city of Bandar Abbas. The clergyman, convicted of collaborating with SAVAK, the shah's secret police, and two other persons were shot in the holy city of Mashhad, in northeast Iran, the report said.

In the holy city of Qom, Khomeini's headquarters, Islamic courts sentenced five men to long prison terms for crimes committed during the shah's regime, the radio said. Six others were acquitted and 149 persons were released on bail while their records were reviewed, it added.

Radio Tehran reported an unconfirmed death toll of 100-150 in sporadic shooting in Naghadeh, 360 miles northwest of Tehran, by rival Turks and Kurds, two of Iran's rebellious minority factions. Pars, the official news agency, reported 180 unconfirmed dead and hundreds wounded. Two cease-fires already have been broken in the four days of shooting.

The fighting began Friday after unidentified gunmen fired on a political rally of the Kurdish Democratic Front Party, reportedly killing 25 persons and injuring many others.

Naghadeh, heavily populated by Turks, is in western Azerbaijan Province, about 15 miles northwest of the Kurdish city of Mahabad. The Kurds are Sunni Moslems and the Turks belong to the majority Shiite Moslem sect. The Tehran government sent 600 troops to the city, and earlier newspaper reports said they were in control, but shooting resumed and the troops were forced back to safer positions.

Israel Threatens Arab Terrorists

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli gunboats shelled a Palestinian camp on the northern Lebanese coast after four Israelis, including a father and his two young daughters, were killed in a guerrilla raid on a resort town five miles south of the Lebanese frontier.

Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman, speaking today at the funeral of the Israeli soldier killed in the guerrilla attack, said that his armed forces "will act again."

"The army will act so there won't be any more sacrifices," Weizman said. "The terrorist goal is to disrupt us while we are making peace with Egypt."

An Israeli civilian killed one of the four guerrillas involved in the raid. An Israeli army patrol killed another one and wounded and captured the other two.

The Israeli military command said the target of Sunday's naval attack was a training camp for Marxist guerrillas of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine at Nahr El-Berd, between the northern Lebanese town of Tripoli and the Syrian border. Palestinian spokesmen in Beirut claimed a refugee camp was shelled and said three persons were killed.

An Israeli spokesman said the shelling was not in retaliation for the terrorist attack early Sunday on the northern Israeli town of Nahariya. But Interior Minister Yosef Burg told Radio Israel the government would continue hitting Palestinian bases in response to raids, and Yasser Arafat put the guerrillas of the Palestine Liberation Organization in Lebanon on "maximum alert" in expectation of a retaliatory strike.

An Iraqi-backed branch of the PLO, the Palestine Liberation Front, claimed responsibility for the attack on Nahariya. It was the seventh guerrilla strike or attempted strike across the border this year and the most costly in terms of civilian casualties in more than a year.

The four guerrillas landed in a rubber boat and stormed into a three-story, brown stucco apartment house 300 yards away, firing and throwing grenades.

The Israelis killed were Daniel Heran, 28, the manager of a textile factory; his daughters Einat, 4, and Yael, 2, and police Sgt. Elihu Shahar, 34, who was shot and killed when he arrived on the scene. Four other Israelis were slightly wounded.

Charlie Shapira, 36, said he was awakened by pounding on his door about 2 a.m.

"First they shot through my door and then they started knocking it down," he said. "I let the first terrorist get in and then I shot him. He fell, but he still had a pistol in his hand, so I shot him in the head."

Meanwhile, two other terrorists had gotten into Heran's neighboring apartment and were dragging Heran and his older daughter out. Shapira said the father pleaded with the guerrillas to leave the child behind.

"I was scared to shoot at the terrorist holding my neighbor," said Shapira. "I thought if I killed him, the other one would kill the whole family."

An army spokesman said Heran and Einat were shot on the beach. But the terrorists encountered an army patrol there and were killed or wounded in the exchange of fire that followed.

The spokesman said the guerrillas killed Heran's younger daughter in the apartment, but neighbors said the child's mother suffocated her accidentally while trying to keep her quiet as they hid from the gunmen.

The raid caused Weizman to postpone a trip to Cairo Sunday to discuss Israel's withdrawal from the Sinai Desert. Prime Minister Menachem Begin telephoned Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to explain the delay. A spokesman for Begin's office said Sadat told the prime minister he was sorry about the casualties.

In Cairo, the official Middle East News Agency reported that the new date for Weizman's visit will be May 6.

Labor Backs Price Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — The country is heading for a serious recession unless swift action — including mandatory wage and price controls if necessary — is taken to control inflation, the president of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department said today.

In remarks prepared for the opening session of the department's annual legislative conference, Robert A. Georgine complained that labor is being asked to bear the brunt of the nation's economic problems.

"Only swift, effective action to control inflation, without increasing already high unemployment, can prevent a deep recession," he said.

He cited a downturn in housing and said it "will soon affect other segments of the economy" unless action is taken.

Administration officials have steadfastly disagreed with various private economists predicting a recession.

Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps said in an interview with U.S. News World Report, released Sunday, that the administration was sticking by its earlier estimate that the economy will grow about 2 percent to 2.5 percent this year.

Citing the administration's 7 percent annual wage guideline despite an inflation rate of 10 percent or more, Georgine said President Carter's program will not be successful in holding down inflation because "it does not have a comprehensive, effective, enforceable system of controlling prices. It is nothing more than wage controls."

"If there are going to be controls, then it is time for controls — not halfway, not just on wages, not just on certain products, not just on certain incomes," he said.

"There should be full economic controls — enacted by Congress and covering every source of income, profits, dividends, rents, interest rates, executive compensation, professional fees, as well as wages and prices," he said.

"The labor movement does not like controls," Georgine continued. "But we recognize that inflation will not be halted so long as only workers are called upon to sacrifice."

More than 1,000 building and construction tradesmen from all 50 states are expected to attend the three-day conference.

AFL-CIO President George Meany called for mandatory wage-price controls months ago, predicting that President Carter's voluntary program would not be effective. The giant union recently organized a group of its members as price-watchers, who will keep tabs on prices at their local stores and report violations to both union headquarters and federal agencies.

Union officials, as well as the rank-and-file, have been angered by recent reports of huge corporation profits and the steady rise in the cost of living. They have been joined by some members of Congress, who have branded oil company profits as "obscene" at a time when gasoline prices are climbing rapidly.

Labor officials have warned that they will not sit idly by while prices continue to climb, if restraints are placed on wage increases in new contracts.

Training Eyed For Jailers

By TOM GRIESS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The architect for Lubbock County's new jail told county commissioners this morning that jail employees should receive special training in the intricacies of the new facility before it is opened for use.

"It is of concern to me that we not expect jailers to move in there (the new jail) and know how to fully operate it in two or three weeks," architect Arnold Macker said. "If the employees understand what we try to do, how it (the new jail) works, then I think they'll make it work."

The architect said he foresees implementing the training in two or three phases. He said initially the employees should be acquainted with the various aspects of the facility.

Water Receding In South Texas

A-J News Services

While workers sandbagged today along the Neches River in anticipation of a record crest, a "gigantic cleanup" of roads and bridges flooded by heavy rains continued in other parts of hard-hit South Texas as the water receded.

The sandbagging and cleanup operations took place under improved weather conditions in most areas. Skies were sunny in West Texas, although forecasters said thunderstorms might return Wednesday.

Our immediate concern is sections inside the city," a Civil Defense spokesman in Beaumont said Sunday. "It's (the crest) going to break the record, they say. There's supposed to be a record crest Tuesday near 12 feet, and the record was 9.9 in May 1969. Most of this is from that deluge we had Friday."

The spokesman said workers were sandbagging along the river, but there were no more evacuations. Many residents were stranded or routed from their homes by the heavy rains Friday.

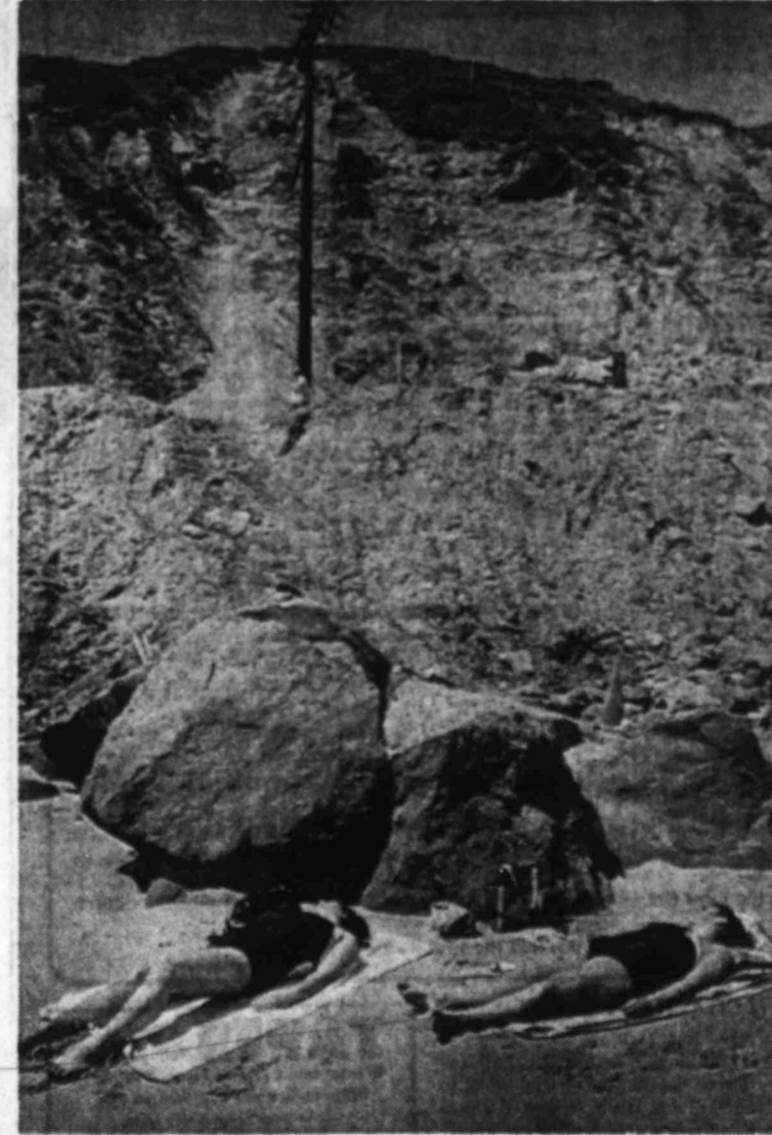

In other parts of Jefferson County, the spokesman said, "We just still got a lot of water. The water has stabilized at the north part (of the Neches). It's not rising, but it hasn't gone down."

Houston authorities said flood waters that entered homes and businesses throughout Harris County caused $100 million in damages, but were receding and all roads and streets were open.

The bodies of two more drowning victims were recovered during the weekend. Joel Cantu, 4, fell into an unfinished swimming pool that had filled with rainwater at his home Sunday. Donald Edwin Brigham, 40, of Porter, drowned in the San Jacinto River after falling out of his boat Sunday.

In Montgomery County north of Houston, officials estimated damage at $50 million, but Sheriff's Lt. Bob Williamson said "right now we're in a subsiding situation around Conroe."

Senators Block Power Bid By Governor

A-J News Services

AUSTIN — Unhappy Texas senators slapped down today Gov. Bill Clements' efforts to take over more power in spending taxpayers' money.

By a vote of 18-13, the Senate was three votes shy of approving debate on enlarging the governor's budget execution powers, one of Clements' main campaign proposals.

The vote came just after the Senate was read Clements' veto of the pawn shop regulation bill, which had been approved by a large vote in the Senate.

"This is the most insidious proposal we will have before us in the form of constitutional amendments," protested Sen.

Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena. He said a governor unfavorable to any particular state agency or program could destroy the legislature's efforts to finance it.

"This merely allows the governor to reduce line items in the general appropriation bill," said Sen. Ike Harris, R-Dallas. "He already has the power to veto such separate items."

Harris said his proposed constitutional amendment would also allow the governor to veto riders or special provisions in the state spending bill, which already are questioned by many legal sources.

"This just means the governor can take any figure in the appropriation bill and do what he wants to with it," protested

Sen. Bill Patman, D-Ganado.

If approved by two-thirds of the legislature, the proposed constitutional change by Harris would be put to voters on Nov. 4, 1980.

Meanwhile, the House's version of the proposed $20.4 billion appropriations measure stands at $86 million above what Clements wants, meaning the state's first Republican governor in more than a century could confront the Legislature early in his first term.

Clements' budget proposals are $700 million less than the House version, and through three days of review last week, the Legislature added an additional $156 million.

The House today was to resume debate on the complicated two-year budget, but political observers indicate it seems unlikely lawmakers will be able to make any substantial cuts.

The additional expenditure approved by the House that will cause Clements the most discomfort is an amendment that would appropriate an additional $106 million for pay raises for public school teachers. The governor as late as last week emphatically stated he would not give teachers more than the 5.1 percent salary increase all other state employees are supposed to receive each year of the 1980-81 biennium.

The amendment that Rep. Ron Coleman, D-El Paso, pushed through — $3-25 — would give teachers a 7 percent pay raise, in addition to the normal experience step increase written into the law.

"I don't think the governor will veto this pay raise," Coleman said. "I don't think he wants to carry out any vendetta against the teachers."

If Clements does decide to slash the pay raise for teachers, the House could very well override that veto, House Speaker Bill Clayton indicated long before the legislators began reviewing the budget that at least 100 members would be willing to override a Clements' veto against an additional pay raise for teachers.

NASA Pondering Ways To Bring Skylab Down

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — What goes up must come down. And if it weighs 85 tons, gently, it's hoped.

Yet man launched Skylab, an 85-ton space laboratory, in 1973 and left its destiny to the sun and the winds and to scientists' brains, figuring they'd have an answer when it was time to land.

It is, and they don't. "We're still working hot and heavy seven nights a week," reports Dr. Marshall makes up about three quarters of the Earth's surface.

And if they don't? "The probability of a single casualty is one in 150," figures Kaplan. "It's expected to crash somewhere between the 50th parallels where 95 percent of the world's population is located. Moscow is the only major capital in the world that's not in its path."

Edwards, too, says it's possible the predicted re-entry will be across a densely populated area, perhaps Europe. He concedes there are recognized hazards. But he says NASA doesn't think they're very great.

According to both men, scientists originally expected the spacecraft to remain aloft into the 1980s. By that time, scientists figured, refinements in the space shuttle program would make it possible to boost it up to a higher orbit where it could enjoy extended life.

Instead, according to Edwards, "solar activity, known as sun spots, was more active than expected, causing the atmosphere to rise up further. This in turn made more drag, speeding up Skylab's decay."

Kaplan, a private pilot, spends his nights with three assistants trying to better understand the spacecraft's behavior as it orbits the earth 190 statute miles away — it's lifespan on each trip being shortened by the ever-increasing atmospheric drag.

Most of the time, he says, is spent modeling the dynamics and motion of Skylab through computer simulations. He's also working on a computer-generated animation of its motion — "like a Walt Disney cartoon to demonstrate what we think is happening up there."

Some 1,000 miles away, scientists at NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., also are studying the spacecraft as it logs the final laps of its fatal journey.

"We're still in the midst of developing the whole scheme of things," reports Herman Thomason, director of the center's systems analysis and integration laboratory. "We have quite a ways to go yet."

Each week, he North American Air Defense Command provides NASA with the latest Skylab fixes and with updated predictions on when it will come down.

The 83-foot-long space station orbits the Earth 16 times daily, passing over both heavily and sparsely populated areas.

The scientists hope to coax it down over either water or uninhabited land by altering, at the last moment, the amount of orbital drag. Increasing the drag will bring it in faster, decreasing it, slower.

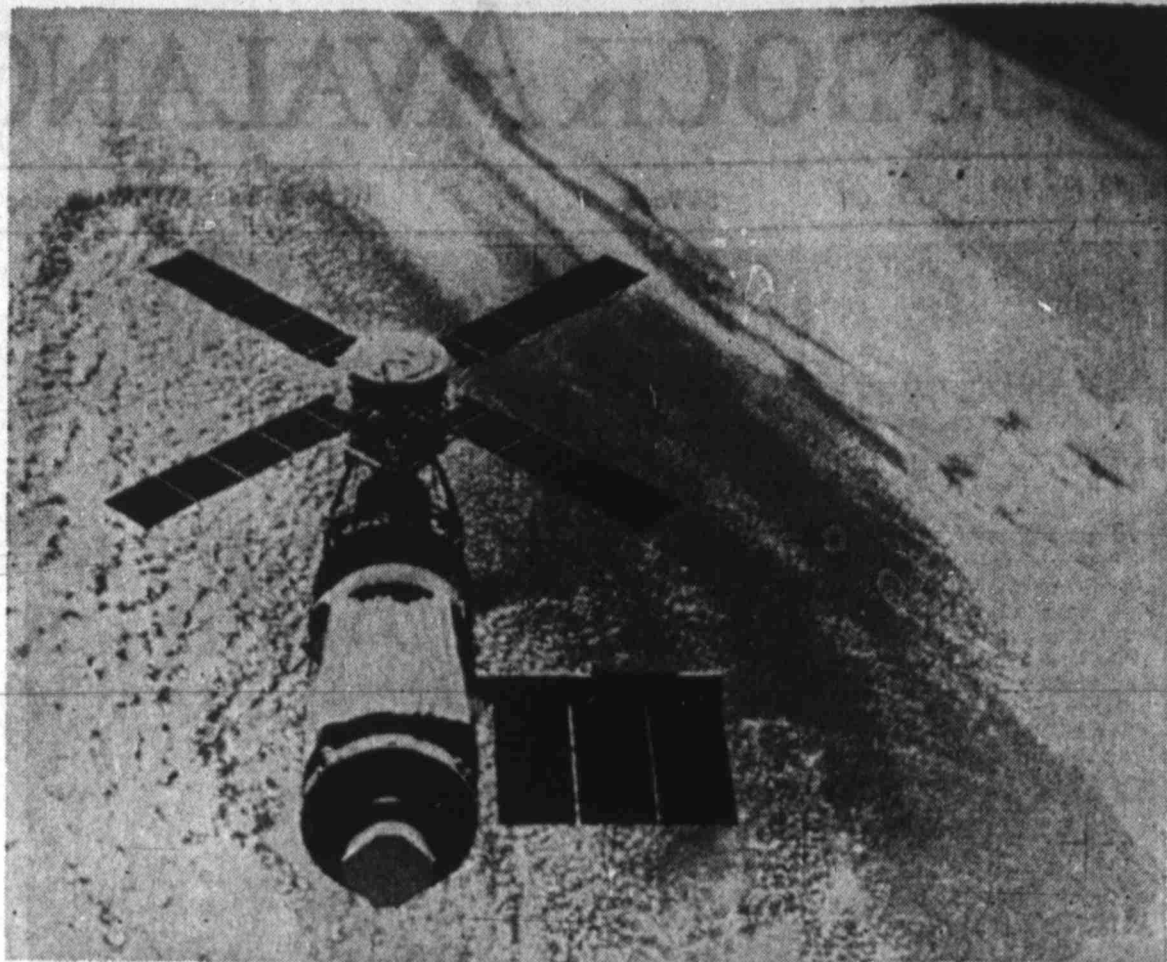

There is still some thruster power on board the dying space ship, enabling NASA personnel at the Johnson Space Center in Houston to control, to some extent, its orientation or angle of flight — and thus the drag.

"But we can't do anything until the last couple of days," explained Kaplan. "And we don't have much to play with."

"If it works, it's probably going to be because we were lucky — that we had enough gas left."

"Say at the end, NORAD tells us it's headed for a populated area."

"We'd fire the thrusters on board to cause it to tumble, like a badly-thrown football. That would actually double its drag, causing it to come in earlier."

Follow-Up

Kaplan, a professor of aerospace engineering at Penn State University who has been hired by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to help find a quick solution.

"I've been as busy as a beaver," he said in an interview. "We're anxious. We're trying to anticipate all the situations. A lot of things can happen at the end."

The end, according to NASA, is the latter part of June when Skylab is expected to tumble out of orbit and into a blazing dive on a collision course with Earth.

"The bird is coming down relatively fast," reports Larry Edwards, manager of Skylab studies for NASA in Washington. "The only thing that can be said with any confidence right now is that it's between plus and minus 50 degrees of latitude, which extends up into Canada and down almost to the tip of South America. "Between those limits it can come down any place. And we can't predict where until the final day."

Actually, the $2.3 billion spacecraft will begin breaking up about 60 miles above the Earth's surface. About 500 pieces — half weighing over 10 pounds with the biggest about 5,000 pounds — will shower an area 3,000 miles to 4,000 miles long and about 50 to 100 miles wide, according to Edwards.

He said the pieces of debris are expected to land about eight to 10 miles apart, and it's hoped they'll strike water, which

Vacationers Should Protect Vacant Homes

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

Millions of Americans are starting to plan for summer vacations, but if their planning doesn't include protection against burglars they could be in for trouble when they return home.

An empty house is a target for thieves, and experts in government, in the insurance industry and in the field of home protection advise consumers to take steps to minimize the dangers.

"The most effective deterrents are simple and inexpensive, but they're often neglected," according to State Farm Insurance Co.

Some people turn to house-sitters for protection, but letting someone else live in your home is not always a good idea. It is often wiser just to try to make it appear that the house is occupied.

Most experts advise you to stop all deliveries of mail, milk, newspapers, etc. A home safety guide from Action for Independent Maturity, a division of the American Association of Retired Persons, warns, however, that "burglars have tipsters everywhere." If you don't want to let strangers know you're away and still want to prevent things from piling up on your doorstep, ask a neighbor to collect and hold all deliveries.

If you are going to be gone for a long time, make arrangements to have the grass cut and the shrubs trimmed. Again, try to use someone you know and trust rather than a stranger.

Do not draw all the drapes and curtains. That's usually a sure sign the house is empty. Leave some open and some closed. If possible, give a neighbor a key and ask him or her to change the arrangements periodically.

Buy and install at least one electric timer to switch lights on and off automatically. Similar timers can be attached to radio and television sets. Test timers before you leave to make sure they work.

Do not advertise your absence. Don't brag about your trip where strangers could overhear. Don't put a notice in the local newspaper announcing that you are going on vacation. Wait until you get home to share your holiday.

Do not have your telephone disconnected. Would-be thieves frequently telephone potential victims to find out if a house is occupied.

Let local police know your plans and tell them to whom you have given keys and what sort of timers you have set. Ask neighbors to call police if they spot any kind of unusual activity — including the arrival of delivery or repair trucks. Find out if your community participates in the Neighborhood Watch program administered by the National Sheriff's Association. Participants in the program watch out for suspicious-looking cars and strangers and listen for sounds like glass breaking that could indicate a burglary.

As you leave the house, lock all doors and windows and make sure timers are plugged in. Don't forget the garage. For year-round protection, you may want to participate in an Operation Identification program, marking your valuables with an identifying number that is registered with police. These programs, run by local police departments, are designed to deter burglars by making it difficult for them to sell stolen goods. A decal in your window lets a thief know that your valuables are marked.

Make sure that the locks on your home are strong enough to keep burglars out. Consider a deadbolt lock with a straight bar that can be opened only with a key. The deadbolt should be at least five-eighths of an inch square, according to government experts, and should stick out of the lock by at least half an inch.

Note: Don't be taken in by appearances. "All too often," the Bureau of Standards warns, "what appears to be a good brass lock is nothing more than brass-plated 'pot' metal (which) breaks very easily, offering little protection."

Racism Worse, Angela Davis Claims

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Black activist Angela Davis says "the times they aren't a changin'" at least as far as racism is concerned.

"Racism is worse in this country now than it was 10 years ago, and we have to keep on fighting," she said at a rally here.

She said blacks have been hurt by an assault on affirmative action programs, noting the U.S. Supreme Court decision in the Bakke case.

In that case, the court ordered the University of California to admit Allan Bakke to medical school. He had been denied admission under a quota system that set aside 16 places out of 100 for minority applicants.

"The assault on the affirmative action program is based on an illusion that we're free. We (ust de-mystify this illusion," Miss Davis told the crowd Saturday.

think I can bring anything new to it, and it gets a little tougher all the time to do it," he said.

His contract doesn't expire until the spring of 1981 and NBC, hurting in the ratings, wants Carson to stay on.

There has been speculation that a compromise will be reached under which Carson would leave "Tonight" at the end of this year but remain with the network for specials. Carson's salary is reportedly $2.5 million a year.

Kucinich Prefers Allen Over Carter

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland's brash young mayor, Dennis J. Kucinich, isn't impressed by President Carter's performance in office, and says he'd feel better having actor Woody Allen in the White House than Carter.

"I've met President Carter a few times, and I personally find him a very engaging individual, but I also believe that when history is recorded, he may have trouble elbowing out some of our more mediocre presidents," says Kucinich, a Democrat who won office two years ago without party support.

His comment was in an interview with Robert Scheer to be published in the June edition of Playboy, said the Cleveland Plain Dealer, which obtained a copy of the interview and published excerpts Sunday.

Kucinich also discussed his stormy administration, which has seen the city plunge into default, the recall attempt and bitter fights with the City Council.

He admitted that "I asked myself from time to time: Is it worth it? Am I in the right business? Sometimes I sit here at night and I think about hearing myself compared to Hitler or Jim Jones, and I just ask, 'who wrote this script — Salvador Dali?'"

He said one of his safety valves is "an appreciation for the absurdities of life — including those in which I participate."

Trial Begins For 'Frisco Murders

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Former San Francisco Supervisor Dan White was called to trial today on charges of assassinating Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk.

White's lawyer says the crux of the trial is not whether White shot the victims, but rather "the real issue is why."

White, 32, also a former policeman and fireman honored for acts of valor, admitted invading the mayor's City Hall offices Nov. 27 and killing both men with a .38-caliber pistol. He surrendered a short time after the killings.

Defense lawyer Douglas Schmidt said it was "obvious" that his client acted with "an unsound mind."

"That he fired the shots has never been an issue," Schmidt said. "The real issue is why. The real question is what would make a man who has led an exemplary life suddenly snap and do such an irrational act."

White pleaded innocent, but not innocent by reason of insanity. Schmidt could enter an insanity plea later.

Among the first motions by the defense will be to remove Judge Walter Calcagno from presiding over the trial on grounds of bias. If the motion is denied, jury selection will then begin.

White, if convicted, could receive the death penalty because the victims were public officials.

The slayings followed White's resignation from the Board of Supervisors, the city's governing body, because he felt he could not support his family on the $9,600-a-year salary and because he felt thwarted in his attempts to affect change through the city's system of government.

He reportedly became enraged when he sought to withdraw his resignation and Moscone said it was too late and planned to appoint a successor.

White, a star high-school athlete and a former paratrooper as well as the son of a fireman, joined the Police Department and then the Fire Department. He quit as a fireman when the City Attorney's office ruled he could not be a firefighter and supervisor at the same time.

His financial pressures increased because his wife had a baby, quit her job as a school teacher and opened a fast-food business near Fisherman's Wharf.

He was a law-and-order supervisor with strong support from the police and firemen's unions. When he quit they sought to change his mind. And members of his family and friends offered financial support in an effort to get him back in office.

A pretrial psychiatric report said White had felt overwhelmed by financial problems, betrayed by Mayor Moscone and Milk, the city's first openly homosexual supervisor, and thwarted in his attempt to clean up corruption.

Nation To Set Clocks Ahead Next Sunday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Most of the nation goes on Daylight Saving Time next Sunday — so you have nearly a week to figure out how to reset your clocks and watches.

An expert in the Transportation Department, which administers the time changes, confides he uses the popular guide words to keep things straight when he switches from standard time to daylight time and back again.

The words: "Spring forward; fall back."

Early next Sunday — it's always the last Sunday in April — 2 a.m. instantly becomes 3 a.m. This means setting your timepieces one hour ahead.

Most people find it convenient to do this the night before instead of the next morning. The hour you lose will be returned next October.

The resetting of clocks every six months is called for by the 1966 Uniform Time Act. But the idea has been around, off and on, since 1918, when Daylight Saving Time was tried out to save energy during World War I.

"People couldn't stand it," an authoritative source recalls. "It was so 'popular' it was repealed the next year."

Some states continued to try it now and then, and it was used during World War II. After hours of argument each year, Congress enacted the change annually until it adopted the permanent Uniform Time Act in 1966.

Under that law, all of the United States observes six months of daylight time, except for states and territories that have exempted themselves. Arizona, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa and all of Indiana, except for 12 counties around Gary and Evansville, observe standard time the entire year.

Saving energy also was the goal of Richard Nixon when he persuaded Congress to enact year-round Daylight Saving Time in 1973-74 because of the Arab oil embargo.

But many parents complained about sending their children to school in darkness and the idea was dropped.

Doctors Asked To Oppose Nuclear Power

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A group of physicians opposed to nuclear power is asking Harrisburg-area doctors to become active opponents of nuclear power because of its potential impact on health.

"The ultimate in preventive medicine is to eliminate nuclear power and nuclear weapons," Dr. Helen Caldicott said Sunday at a meeting of medical students and doctors from the six counties surrounding the crippled Three Mile Island nuclear power plant.

Caldicott, a Boston pediatrician and president of Physicians for Social Responsibility, urged the audience to practice "political medicine."

"It's very important that we educate the politicians who are making decisions about life on this Earth based on total ignorance," she said.

Meanwhile, at Three Mile Island, decontamination efforts went smoothly over the weekend as atomic workers continued their cleanup task. Clyde Wisner, a spokesman for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, said temperature and pressure inside the reactor containment building at Three Mile Island Sunday were steady.

Also addressing the medical meeting was Dr. Carl Johnson, director of the Jefferson County, Colo. health department, who called nuclear power "one of the biggest blunders in the history of man." Johnson said he had found that plutonium contamination has greatly increased the incidence of cancer among residents of Denver, which is located near the Rocky Flats plutonium plant.

Johnson's findings, which he hopes to publish soon, are based on the Third National Cancer Incidence Survey by the National Cancer Institute, which studied a million people in the Denver area from 1969 to 1971.

Using data from the study, Johnson said he found that cancer rates were 24 percent higher than normal in men and 10 percent higher in women in downwind areas where plutonium releases from the plant had measurably contaminated the soil.

Several local doctors said the Three Mile Island crisis showed the inadequacy of regional evacuation and emergency procedures.

Dr. Alexander Rukow of the state Health Department said emergency preparedness plans have dealt solely with flood and fire. He said they are now being reviewed and revised.

Copter Crash Investigated

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The cause of a crack in the tail rotor blade of the helicopter that crashed and killed three passengers last week may be discovered in two to six weeks, says the chief investigator for the National Transportation Safety Board.

Initial lab reports show the blade broke off because of metal fatigue, a weakness that causes metal to snap at a point of stress, according to the board. Vibrations from the crippled helicopter also caused the rear gearbox to break off just before the crash.

"It's clear now that one of the tail rotor blades broke," said Leslie Kampforer, chief investigator for the NTSB. "What we're trying to deal with now is why it broke. They're designed not to break, but something caused it to break. Finding that is going to be more difficult."

Wednesday's crash of the Sikorsky S61, just after takeoff from Newark International Airport, killed three passengers and injured 12. It also prompted the Federal Aviation Administration to order inspections of a dozen such models throughout the nation.

The helicopter's four tail rotor blades that did not break and the tail rotor gearbox have been sent to the NTSB's labs in Washington.

"We did discover that the crew knew about nine seconds before impact that they were missing their tail rotor assembly," Kampforer said. "Other than that, the tape only corroborated what we'd already pieced together."

TV Viewers Believe World More Violent

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Children who spend more than four hours a day watching television think the world is more violent than do children who watch less TV, a new study indicates.

The study, released Sunday by the University of Pennsylvania's Annenberg School of Communications, also reported that violence in weekend network shows aimed at children rose to record levels on ABC and CBS and to a near-record level at NBC last fall.

"There is a consistent relationship between fear and the amount of television watched," said Nancy Signorielli, research coordinator for the project.

"They (heavy watchers) do perceive the world as much more violent and they are much more fearful," she said.

CBS officials were unavailable for comment. NBC and ABC said they would not comment until they had seen the study.

The study, part of a project that began in 1967, is funded by grants from the American Medical Association and the National Institute of Mental Health.

The researchers also found a relationship between aggressive behavior and the amount of television watched, and said children who watch a lot of TV are likely to believe that police often use force.

The researchers, who defined violence as "hurting or killing a person or the credible threat of hurting and killing," said almost 90 percent of the characters in television shows aimed at children are involved in such acts.

The average rate of violent incidents on children's programs zoomed from 15.6 per hour in the fall of 1977 to a near-record 25.0 per hour last fall, the study said.

Both ABC and CBS boosted the violence saturation of children's programs to 26.3 and 26.8 incidents per hour respectively — a record for both networks, the researchers reported. NBC's rate went to 20.6, its third highest level, the study said.

The study said overall violence during the "family hour" — 8-9 p.m. EST — decreased for the second year in a row.

NBC led in reducing "family hour" violence, followed by CBS. Both reached record lows in violence for that time slot, while ABC logged an increase.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Byrd Flies Into Bumper

CONGRESS IS threatening to force the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration to modify or abruptly suspend federal bumper standards ostensibly designed to save car owners millions in repair costs.

Beginning with the current model year, all new cars must be equipped with bumpers that prevent damage to the auto in front-and-rear crashes at 5 miles per hour or less. Starting with the 1980 model year, both the car and the bumper itself must resist damage in 5 mph crashes.

NHTSA set those standards several years ago pursuant to the mandate contained in a 1972 law. Apparently, all the major auto makers have begun meeting them without difficulty.

Now, however, Congress is threatening to force NHTSA either to suspend its standards or roll them back to a far less stringent 2.5 mph damage test.

HOUDAILLE INDUSTRIES, Inc., which makes steel bumpers at a plant in Huntington, W. Va., complained to Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W. Va., that the bumper regulation coupled with the federal fuel economy standards would put its product at a competitive disadvantage with lighter-weight plastic and aluminum bumpers and might drive the plant out of business.

Houdaille claims its own studies show a 2.5 mph standard would have more cost benefits for consumers. Congress, at Byrd's behest, ordered NHTSA to conduct a whole new $300,000 study of the relative merits of the existing 5 mph standard versus the rule sought by Byrd's constituents.

NHTSA subsequently coughed up a study full of arithmetical errors and other weaknesses that implied it couldn't tell which standard offered the most benefits to consumers.

THE AGENCY now is doing more tests and studies in an attempt to assess the relative merits of the two standards, and has invited comment from all interested parties and from the general public.

The trouble is Congress isn't waiting to see what the agency comes up with. Consumer subcommittees in both the House and Senate held their own hearings last week.

Interestingly enough, Houdaille's witnesses were the only ones to testify in favor of weakening the existing standard. Other bumper makers insisted the 5 mph standard is both workable and cost-effective.

The truth is no one inside or outside of government has any reliable data on the performance of bumpers meeting the 5 mph standard because cars built to those specifications have only been on the market a few months.

Until there is honest information available on which to base an intelligent judgment, it would seem the height of irresponsibility to tinker with the standard.

The Thrill Is Gone

NOW THAT CULLEN has been ordered to pay Priscilla $3.4 million as a divorce settlement, Lee has gotten off with a $104,000 payment to Michelle for their years of unmarried bliss, and John and Greta have gotten divorced after he was cleared of raping her while they were married, it just seems that there are no great issues left to make life interesting.

Headline: "Money Supply Shows Sharp Increase."
Sez who?

Here's a letter from a PR firm in Tennessee, addressed to A.J. Lubbock, beginning "Dear Mr. Lubbock..."

"PUBLIC FINANCING" of Presidential and Congressional campaigns—a soft-sell way of describing the use of tax money to promote personal political ambitions—apparently isn't fooling as many people as its bellringers would have us believe.

The number of Americans contributing to the program seems to be declining, the Internal Revenue Service reports.

Only 14.6 million taxpayers whose returns were checked early had agreed to have $1 of their tax money diverted to Presidential candidates in 1980, compared with 17.8 million through the same period last year, IRS said.

The public is waking up to the fact that "public financing" of political campaigns is just another way for the politicians to divert public money into their own coffers, an offense that should not be legalized.

It's something that Congress should mull over before it adds tax subsidies for Congressional campaigns to the onerous subsidies it already allows Presidential hopefuls.

Footnote: When a vote recount was needed in El Paso, officials discovered that, with no signatures on ballot stubs used in punchcard voting machines, there's no way to prove fraud.

The Legislature eliminated stub signing for all Texas elections in 1977 to protect the "secret" ballot. It may have opened a way to help steal elections.

Holmes Alexander:

Japan Doesn't Trust Us Much

WASHINGTON—Constitutions are made by men and changed by men. Only in America is the changing accomplished by prescribed methods, making the process slow and deliberate, and therefore presumably wiser and more enduring.

When the worst is said about the American Constitution, the criticism comes to very little. Practically everything was done right the first time, in 1787, during one of the hottest summers that Philadelphia had ever experienced.

One of the wisest provisions actually was put in place without vote or debate, and for that reason was something Americans hate to confess—prejudice.

Among the delegates to the Constitutional Convention, three were foreign-born—Robert Morris, Pierce Butler, Alexander Hamilton.

The eligibility of these men to become American citizens and members of Congress was thoroughly debated and decided in the affirmative.

BUT FOR some reason the qualifications by birth of a man to be President was not—probably because everyone assumed the first President would be Gen. George Washington.

As it happened, a non-delegate, John Jay, later Chief Justice and New York Governor, noticed this omission. Because all Americans of that day were technically foreign-born (most of them under the British crown), it seemed inconsistent to hold a bias.

But there was plenty of bias against von Steuben, a Prussian drillmaster, liked by many but distrusted by a few discerning sober-siders, such as John Jay, who on July 25, 1787, wrote to George Washington:

"Permit me to hint whether it would not be wise and reasonable to provide a strong check to the admission of Foreigners into the admission of our national Government, and to declare expressly that position of Commander-in-Chief of the American Army shall not be given, nor devolve on, any but a natural born citizen."

THE LANGUAGE was accomplished in Article II, Section I. Since then, a good many Americans, the latest being Sen. Lowell Weicker of Connecticut, were automatically off the Presidential eligibility list.

This lengthy dissertation is meant to lead into changes now contemplated in Japan which has a constitutional article, dictated by Gen. MacArthur, forbidding that nation the sovereign right to go to war.

But there are reasons why a quiet revolution, or a one-man coup, may change this provision. The central reason is that Japan no longer trusts the USA to protect it from conquest by Russia or China or both. The interior reasons are:

- 1) American debacle in South Vietnam.
- 2) President Carter's proposed troop removal from South Korea which is up against the Communist DMZ.
- 3) Recent and unpublicized reductions in the Seventh Fleet.

4) President Carter's attempted desertion of Taiwan.

5) Japan's nationalistic urge to "go it alone," despite grave dangers.

6) American disinclination to treat Japan as a co-equal of the NATO partners.

7) American disinclination to transfer military technology to Japan and to find it commercially applied to export productions which end up in American cities.

Gen. MacArthur's application of unilateral disarmament to a defeated, but troubling nation was intended to last "forever." It probably won't.

But it outlasted the League of Nations. It has outlasted the UN under which we have had 100 wars. Japanese disarmament is the opposite of the re-armament which President Carter is trying on Egypt and Israel.

Let us watch and see what plan, if any, can keep the peace.

Sylvia Porter:

Social Security 'Adds' To Shrinking Paycheck

(Last of four columns)
MORE THAN 107 million American workers pay Social Security taxes within a single year. That's the vast majority of us.

But specifically excluded by law are U.S. senators and congressmen, their staffs, and about 2 1/2 million federal civilian employees. Also not covered is a larger group of about 3.7 million state and local government employees, most of whom could be covered at the state's option.

More than 70 percent, or about 9 million of the 12.4 million state and local government employees, have been brought under Social Security. Of those covered, 72 percent are covered under their own state or local retirement system as well.

This is a point that federal employees make in defending their retirement system against charges that it is too generous.

SS RETIREMENT benefits, they note, are designed as a floor of protection—a base on which other forms of protection, such as an employer-retirement pension, can be built.

The Civil Service Retirement System was set up before Social Security and was designed to serve as a complete pension program.

Thus, federal employees resisted when Congress in the 1950s began extending Social Security coverage. They had been paying 7 percent of their entire salaries into the retirement fund for their benefits, and they feared that some benefits might be scaled back while Social Security taxes were slapped on them, too.

The military retirement system and Social Security were just added together, and there were no similar problems.

When the coverage proposal was revived during the financial troubles of the Social Security system in 1974-77, federal employees resented being asked, as they said, "to bail out the program."

ACTUALLY, THE concept of Social Security as the basic system for all categories of workers makes a lot of sense. The lack of coordination between civil service and SS systems creates gaps and inequities and critically affects the protection of workers who move back and forth between civil service and jobs in private industry, as many do.

If you go to work for the federal government, you do not have survivors protection until you have been on the job for at least five years.

Under SS, children of a young worker and the worker's surviving widow or widower caring for the children are eligible for benefits if the worker had only a year and a half of SS credit out of the three years just before death.

If SS were extended to public employees, it also would wipe out any chance of civil service employees qualifying for top-heavy retirement benefits—civil service benefits plus Social Security—earned moonlighting in a job covered by SS or through a second career after early retirement from a government job.

IN THE 1977 act, HEW was directed to start a study of the feasibility and desirability of making SS coverage of federal, state and local government employees mandatory.

A Boston attorney, Joseph W. Bartlett, chairman of the Universal Social Security Coverage Study, has been holding public hearings all over the U.S. A report on the study is due by December.

A presidentially-appointed Commission on Pension Policy, the current Advisory Council on Social Security and the National Commission on Social Security also are studying universal coverage.

Public pressure to head off the SS tax increases set for 1981 may lead to congressional action even before all of these studies have been completed.

A new combined system of Social Security coverage is logical and desirable but, warns Robert M. Ball, former Social Security commissioner in his new book, "Social Security: Today and Tomorrow," it must provide as much protection as the present Civil Service system does or it would not stand much chance of passage.

THE CHANGES could be phased in over a period so that they applied for the most part to new employees—and the coordination, if not complete extension, could be achieved smoothly.

What must be avoided are the problems of reducing protection for current employees with long years of service who otherwise might feel that agreed-upon conditions of their employment had been changed—and that promises trusted so deeply had been cruelly broken.

Berry's World

'How Come You're Just Hanging There?'

James J. Kilpatrick:

School Prayer Door Slammed

WASHINGTON—Just before it adjourned for Easter, thus giving implied recognition to the holiday day in the Christian calendar, the Senate voted to scuttle an effort by Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina to let public school children pray if they want to.

The senator is a stubborn man. His amendment, like Lazarus, will rise again.

The sequence of parliamentary events was unusual but not really baffling. On April 5, when the Senate was debating the bill to create a new Department of Education, Helms called up an amendment that took the leadership by surprise.

His amendment was adopted 47-37, but before it could be notified finally into the pending bill (by defeating a motion to reconsider), Majority Leader Robert Byrd compelled a weekend recess.

ON APRIL 9, after sponsors of the education bill had rallied their forces, the Senate stripped the Helms amendment from the bill and, in a nice hypocritical act of dumbshow, solemnly attached it to a wholly different bill—a bill that is certain to die in the House if it survives in the Senate.

The effect was to kill the Helms effort altogether.

Granted, the senator was embarked upon a novel—though not an unprecedented—course of action.

His amendment would have provided, notwithstanding other provisions of law, that the Supreme Court and other federal courts "shall not have jurisdiction to review...any case arising out of any State statute, ordinance, rule, regulation, or any part thereof which relates to voluntary prayers in public schools and public buildings."

IT IS BEYOND dispute that the Congress has power to fix exceptions to the Supreme Court's appellate jurisdiction. The power is spelled out in Article III of the Constitution in words that any child could understand.

From the beginning of the Republic, the high court has operated "under such regulations as the Congress may make."

The Norris-LaGuardia Act, defining the Court's jurisdiction in certain labor disputes, is one example of a specific exception.

By excluding the Supreme Court and the lower federal courts from hearing cases that relate "to voluntary prayers in public schools and public buildings," the Helms amendment effectively would have left this whole area of controversy to the states.

His amendment would have nullified the 1962 case of Engel v. Vitale and its regrettable progeny.

I WAS AMONG those who supported Mr. Justice Black's opinion in Engel nearly 17 years ago.

It then seemed to me wrong for the New York State Regents to compose an "official" prayer and to cause it to be said aloud by each class in the presence of a teacher at the beginning of each school day.

Even though New York pupils were not compelled to join in the recitation, I still believe the procedure smacked of a forbidden "establishment of religion."

If the courts had stopped with Engel, no great harm might have been done—but subsequent decisions have served effectively to stifle any exercise of religion in the classroom, no matter how totally voluntary it might be.

THE SENATE'S action might possibly be explained in terms of the parliamentary situation.

Some senators sincerely doubt the wisdom of creating exceptions to the Supreme Court's appellate jurisdiction; other senators feared the Helms amendment would defeat the Department of Education bill.

But the Constitution expressly authorizes Helms' approach as a form of restraint upon the judiciary short of a constitutional amendment; and the Department of Education bill is a bad bill to begin with.

Among the 37 senators who opposed Helms' attempt to bring back the possibility of prayer in public schools were Bumpers, Cranston, Culver, Eagleton, Glenn, Gravel, Inouye, Leahy, Nelson and Ribicoff.

They bear mention because they're up for re-election next year. Voters may want to keep the fact in mind.

SALT Plans May Be Announced

Ex-Speech Writer Critiques Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former White House speech writer describes President Carter as a good man whose judgment is flawed by "a combination of arrogance, complacency and... insecurity at the core of his mind and soul."

James Fallows resigned several months ago as chief speech writer to become Washington editor of The Atlantic Monthly. His article on "The Passionless Presidency," the first published critique of the Carter White House by a one-time insider, is in the magazine's May issue.

Fallows describes Carter as a problem-solver who lacks presidential vision and the knack of inspiring people: who holds explicit, thorough positions on every issue under the sun, but he has no large view of the relations between them, no line indicating which goals (reducing unemployment? human rights?) will take precedence over which (inflation control? a SALT treaty?)...

Carter and the associates who surround him "took office in profound ignorance of their jobs," Fallows says, but with a determination to prove they "had not stepped straight out of Dogpatch."

White House press secretary Jody Powell declined comment on the article, but said Fallows had sent Carter an advance copy with a note saying he hoped the president would find his criticisms constructive.

Fallows headed Carter's speech writing staff from mid-1976 through last fall. Expressing affection and respect for the president, he says he is writing "with sadness and without rancor."

"With his moral virtues and his intellectual skills, he is perhaps as admirable a human being as has ever held the job," Fallows says.

He adds, "...if I had to choose one politician to sit at the Pearly Gates and pass judgment on my soul, Jimmy Carter would be the one."

But his criticism of Carter as president is relentless: "I came to think that Carter believes 50 things, but no one thing," Fallows said. "He fails to project a vision larger than the problem he is tackling at the moment."

His long article on "The Passionless Presidency" includes a few tidbits of inside gossip likely to rankle Carter loyalists as much as the uncomplimentary analysis.

He says, for example, inner circle White House aides "detest" certain Cabinet members they consider "the hot dogs, the show-offs" — including Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal, HUD Secretary Patricia Harris and, especially, HEW Secretary Joseph Califano.

And, illustrating his view that Carter squanders time on trivial matters, Fallows confirms the rumor the president, for a time, personally decided who might use the White House tennis court.

In retrospect, Fallows says, "Carter's willful ignorance... could — to me — be explained only by a combination of arrogance, complacency and — dread thought — insecurity at the core of his mind and soul."

Fallows also says the president tends to "talk down" to Americans in simplistic terms. "Carter said that whenever he worked on a speech he thought of a man at a certain gas station in Georgia (not his brother). If that man couldn't understand it, it should be changed."

This is one reason Carter fails to inspire his listeners, he says.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Refreshed by an 11-day vacation, President Carter is back at work amid hints this could be the week he finally gets to announce plans to sign a new strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union.

State Department sources said last week — while Carter was still relaxing in Georgia — that there is a chance for an announcement by the end of this week.

But the sources, who asked not to be named, said Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin would have to meet at least once more on remaining issues, apparently precluding announcement of an agreement during the early part of the week.

When the announcement does come, the sources indicated it would be limited to saying that enough of the main issues had been resolved to warrant a summit meeting between Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev to add the finishing touches and sign an arms treaty.

There are growing indications such a summit might be held in Europe because of Brezhnev's uncertain health.

The White House press office was sponsoring a background briefing for reporters today on the impending treaty, but press secretary Jody Powell said it did not signal that an agreement had been reached.

Powell said the SALT session was designed primarily for reporters who have not specialized in the four-year-old arms limitation negotiations.

However, neither Powell nor other

White House officials seemed willing to preclude the possibility that Carter might have a SALT announcement by week's end.

Carter returned to Washington Sunday night after attending a dedication ceremony for his 4-month-old granddaughter and six other infants at the First Baptist Church in Calhoun, Ga.

The president was scheduled to address the annual meeting of the National Academy of Sciences this afternoon.

Powell said he would be talking about science and technology and making a fresh plea for enactment of a 50 percent tax on earnings the oil industry would net from the Carter-ordered gradual decontrol of domestic crude oil prices beginning June 1.

Apart from the address to the National Academy of Sciences, the president was meeting with his Cabinet today and lunching with Vice President Walter F. Mondale, recently returned from a goodwill trip to Scandinavia.

Carter visits Capitol Hill Tuesday to speak at a special ceremony honoring the 6 million victims of the World War II Holocaust and flies to New York City Wednesday for a what is billed as a major address to the annual meeting of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

From there he goes to New Hampshire for a town meeting in Portsmouth and a Democratic fund-raising dinner in Manchester.

Even as the signs pointed to an early announcement on SALT, questions remained about whether the treaty could win the necessary two-thirds support for Senate ratification.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, a leading supporter, said Sunday that a treaty could not win Senate approval unless the administration provides better assurances the United States can verify Soviet compliance.

"I want a SALT treaty," Glenn said on CBS' "Face the Nation." "But I'm also with those 80 percent of the American people who say they don't trust the Soviets."

And in Moscow, the leader of a 17-member congressional delegation visiting the Soviet Union told Soviet officials they will have to be more open with the United States if they expect approval of a new treaty.

"Again and again... we made clear... that it was going to be necessary from our viewpoint that there be greater openness in the Soviet Union and less secrecy," Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., said Sunday at a news conference as the group was preparing to return home.

Meanwhile, John Connally, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, said on ABC's "Issues and Answers" he is withholding judgment on an arms treaty "until we know what's in it."

But he said, "From what I know of it, I think it will allow the Soviet Union to achieve nuclear superiority by 1985."

IRS Alters Plans To Curb Tax Fraud

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government is bilked of millions and possibly billions of dollars each year by false tax returns and some of the people involved in the schemes are former employees of the tax-collecting Internal Revenue Service itself.

The IRS says it has upgraded its program to detect tax refund fraud and this week it goes before Congress to detail its efforts in the field.

Congressional sources say the tax refund schemes usually total $100,000 to $500,000, involving up to several dozen individuals.

Some former IRS employees have been used for their inside knowledge to help deceive the agency. Bank employees have been used to cash fraudulent refund checks quickly.

One problem in stopping the refund fraud, the sources said, is the decentralized structure of the IRS. And the political pressure for quick tax refunds increases the risk of fraud.

The problem will be examined Tuesday during hearings by the House Government Operations subcommittee on commerce, consumer and monetary affairs.

Committee Chairman Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., said recently the IRS has failed to implement its fraud detection program effectively and that this has "resulted in a huge loss to the U.S. Treasury of at least one-half billion dollars and very probably billions of dollars per year."

F. William Soisson, assistant U.S. attorney in Detroit, will testify. In 1977 Soisson broke up a phony tax return ring that during a five-year period cashed at least $21 income tax rebate checks, bilking taxpayers of about $250,000.

Soisson told the Detroit Free Press that members of the ring applied for Social Security numbers under false names, filed returns under their own and fictitious names and cashed the refund checks.

"We don't know how many checks they obtained," Soisson told the newspaper.

In such schemes, an individual may file a false W-2 form listing taxes withheld from money not earned. False tax forms often have been filed using the name of real or fictitious persons with a valid address and Social Security number, without the knowledge of the real person.

Those convicted of such schemes often get 10-year prison terms and $10,000 fines.

Second Firm Decides To Join Jakarta Market

By KENNETH L. WHITING
JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — The number of companies listed on the Jakarta Stock Exchange is expected to double this month — a second firm is finally going public.

"Another company should be listed before the end of April," J.B. Sereh, president-director of Indonesia's state-owned investment company, P.T. Danareksa, said in an interview.

Only one company was listed when President Suharto opened the reorganized exchange on Aug. 10, 1977. The exclusive role of P.T. Semen Cibinong, a U.S.-Indonesian joint venture that makes cement, is expected to end with the listing of a Japanese-Indonesian company called P.T. Century Textile Industry, financial sources said. P.T. means perusahaan terbatas, or limited company. It's the Indonesian equivalent of Inc. or Ltd.

Etiquette prevented Sereh from confirming the name of the second entry. He did say that one or two other issues were likely to be added to the board by the end of the year.

The sources said P.T. Sinar Surya Metal Works Ltd., a Hong Kong-Indonesian joint venture producing metal pressure lamps, and P.T. Union Carbide Indonesia, a unit of New York-based Union Carbide, were probably next in line.

Other candidates include local units of Goodyear, British American Tobacco, Dunlop, Philips, Bata Shoes and Unilever, these sources said.

Although inactive for some 17 years, the exchange dates to colonial days. It was founded by the Dutch in 1912 and operated until World War II with extensive listings of Dutch and other foreign firms with interests in what was then the Netherlands East Indies.

After the Japanese occupation and Indonesia's struggle for independence, the exchange reopened in 1952. Trading again was mostly in the shares of foreign-owned firms until the late President Sukarno started nationalizing the remaining Dutch companies in 1957.

A handful of vintage government bonds and a few foreign listings remained. One deal a week was considered brisk business until the reorganization.

Foreign firms were told at the time that going public was strictly voluntary. But prosperous multinationals which hoped to expand in this nation of 140 million were not expected to ignore Suharto's wish "to hasten the process of participation of the public in holding shares, with the goal of equalizing incomes."

Tax cuts and other benefits were offered those who listed shares on the revamped exchange. Firms were allowed to revalue their assets before listing without having the revaluation subject to taxation.

Corporate taxation is reduced from 45 percent to 35 percent for those firms with more than 30 percent of their equity in public hands and to 25 percent for those with more than 51 percent held by the public.

When there was no rush by qualified companies to go public in 1977 and early 1978, an additional incentive was announced. This offered to open some areas of industry usually closed to expansion by foreign companies.

One banker said Union Carbide is especially interested in the inducement to expand and would like to finance the expansion in part with funds raised from a stock issue.

Sereh said a second listing scheduled for last Nov. 16 was postponed at the last minute when Indonesia's rupiah currency was devalued the day before by 33.6 percent against the U.S. dollar.

"Devaluation held things up for months while everybody studied the situation," he said.

Danareksa is unusual in stock market annals, according to one of its executives.

It has the right of first refusal on at least 50 percent of every new share issue, on the basis of which it may then issue its own bearer certificates. These certificates are usually sold to the public through state bank branches, Sereh said.

Sereh said a profile of Indonesia's new generation of investors showed that 62 percent were white collar workers, two groups of 9 percent each were housewives and civil servants, 7 percent were students, 6 percent professionals, 3 percent private firms and two groups of 2 percent each were retirees and members of the armed forces.

"Only Indonesian entities may own shares," he said.

Danareksa passes on any dividends declared for the underlying stock to holders of bearer certificates. The value of certificates is expected to rise and fall with the movement of the underlying stock quoted on the exchange.

Danareksa is also empowered to buy and sell its own certificates at current stock market prices.

The national investment trust was originally capitalized at the equivalent of $24 million.

What's the action like in a one-stock market? Very quiet.

"Half an hour does it on most days," said a trader from one of the 26 member firms. There is no fee for a seat on the Jakarta exchange.

Floor traders sit at tables facing exchange officials when a bell rings to start trading each weekday. Trades are executed by a "closed bid" system, in which buy and sell orders have to match or else there is no deal.

Residents Look Ahead In Town Of Yesterdays

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — It takes some looking to find this Fayette County town of 400 or so. But once you find it, you'll want to stay a while.

Fayetteville is yesterday still living today, a town where youngsters have some of their classes in the same 1910 red schoolhouse where their grandfathers threw spit-wads and learned the Palmer method of handwriting.

It's a town where business is still conducted in and around the picturesque white frame courthouse in the middle of the square, a town where Sofie Michalsky's cafe puts crunchy, homemade pickles on your hamburger.

Yet, in this town of yesterdays, a growing number of young-to-middle-aged families are looking for tomorrow.

Fayetteville, says architect Clovis Heimaths, is "the little town that's coming back to life," partly because of economic stimulation from the construction of the Austin-Lower Colorado River Authority new generating plant nearby. But the big thing, says Heimaths, is a re-awakening of town pride and an influx of what he calls "mid-40s" people tired of big city living and ready for country ways.

Almost all the buildings in Fayetteville have been around for a long time. Around the square, they're built with roofs that extend out over the sidewalks, sheltering from the elements friends and neighbors who like to stop and visit while they shop.

Mayor Billy Graeter and his wife, Rosie, who run the town's only laundromat and sell auto supplies, both grew up not too far from here but tired of big city living before settling in Fayetteville.

"It was sort of like moving back home," says Rosie, who works alongside her husband in the business.

Jimmy and Sharon Turner moved here with their three children a couple of years ago from Louisiana to set up a nursery and an insurance agency.

"The people are so great," Turner says. "I feel like I have lived here forever. I don't think you could pick a better place to raise kids."

Marie Zdaril — everyone calls her Hatie — will vouch for that. She was a youngster in Fayetteville "a while back" and she distinctly remembers having a great deal of fun in the small town.

"We went to school in the old German building. We had school on the bottom and a dance hall on top," the spry 67-year-old recalls. "I danced many a waltz there and I still love to dance."

The landmark Zapp Building, across the street from the bank, was built in 1900 on the ruins of a store built in 1865.

When Clovis and Maryann Heimaths purchased it, their main idea was to have room for their offices and studios — he is an artist and writer as well as architect and she is a photographer who also makes woodcuts and silkscreen prints.

But the quiet old building, which had been dry goods emporium, hospital and boarding house on its way to falling into the good hands of the Heimaths, has so much room, the owners just had to do more with it.

So, in a room back of their offices, a dining room called "The Country Place," furnished with mismatched old tables and chairs, opens each Saturday night at 6, serves two full houses and closes down at 9 p.m. for another week.

The Country Place is Maryann Heimaths' pride and joy. In it she serves, among other things, gourmet food, cottage cheese made from milk from their own cow, chickens they raised themselves and what she terms "a very good French wine." Upstairs, the Heimaths fixed up six rooms for rent and, for $15 a night, you can sleep in an antique carved bed topped with a handpieced quilt, lulled by the gentle whirr of a ceiling fan supplying you with air-conditioning in the old way.

The creative Heimaths would like to see Fayetteville become the Santa Fe of Texas and say they believe artists should be subsidized when necessary.

They have already renovated the Fayetteville Professional Building and furnished Pat Johnson, the town's first potter-in-residence, with studio space rent-free until she is able to pay.

Now when townsfolk and visitors stroll around the square they frequently stop to watch the potter turn out clay creations on a wheel in the front window.

Pat's husband is a Texas A&M graduate and a rancher. The two say they have found at Fayetteville just what they want.

"I grew up in Houston," she explains, "and after graduating, I went back to get the big money job, then found I was isolating myself in the big city."

"It's true," she insists. "People are not half so free in the city to do what they want and go where they want as they are here."

School Superintendent Ben Cobb, after five years in Fayetteville, says the town "has something that's unique — the atmosphere of community here is definitely very strong."

What the Heimaths found in Fayetteville, they say, is a sense of identity with the past providing a strong link to the future.

"Fayetteville may be more like the city of tomorrow than the current city of today is," says Heimaths, pointing out that a really severe curtailment of energy could render the city's fixed-window skyscrapers and superlamb expressways all but useless, while places like Fayetteville, where such things have never mattered anyhow, continue to thrive.

"What's important is here already — family, church, community — a meaning system which fits nature's rhythm and provides continuity," the architect explains.

Although Jimmy Turner agrees, he wouldn't mind seeing the town have a few new businesses, he says.

"What we'd love to see is some good clean industry," he explains, "but nothing that would make a lot of changes. To change a whole lot would be disastrous."

Scientists Begin Study Of Rain

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Will the rain in Spain fall mainly on the plain?

Scientists are undertaking a two-year study into the feasibility of rain-making, officially called "precipitation enhancement."

The study, in the Duero River basin, is centered on the city of Valladolid, northwest of Madrid.

Scientists from the Spanish government and the World Meteorological Organization, a United Nations agency, will seek to determine "when and under what conditions precipitation enhancement can be achieved artificially in a given region."

The study will utilize sophisticated research equipment, including specially equipped aircraft, weather radar, upper sounding devices and satellites.

The experts will assess whether the cloud systems passing over the Duero basin are suitable for "seeding." If so, carefully designed experiments of "seeding" will begin in 1981.

Thornburgh Does Not Regret Evacuation Move

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh told Congress today that deciding against evacuating the vicinity around the Three Mile Island plant was "the toughest decision of all" during the nuclear crisis.

But Thornburgh told a Senate panel he has no regrets about the decision, even though later information showed the accident was far more serious than first believed.

"If I knew then what I know now, I still would not have ordered an evacuation," Thornburgh testified.

He was asked by members of the Senate nuclear regulation subcommittee to explain his steps in view of recently released transcripts of Nuclear Regulatory Commission meetings that showed several top NRC staff officials wanted an evacuation.

Thornburgh said these NRC officials changed their minds after getting more reliable information.

He said most of the calls for evacuation came not from the plant site but from Washington and Bethesda, Md., the NRC's headquarters. Those at the site had access to better information on the situation within the damaged reactor building, he testified.

Thornburgh defended his decision to just urge pregnant women and pre-school children, within five miles of the plant to leave the area instead of ordering a larger-scale evacuation.

"I had to weigh the potential risks of Three Mile Island against the proven hazards of moving people under panic conditions," Thornburgh testified.

He said he would not have hesitated to evacuate the "entire area" had it ever appeared necessary. But, he added, "I could not in good conscience have ordered such a step with the facts at my disposal."

Thornburgh was the leadoff witness as the subcommittee stepped up its investigation into the incident at Three Mile Island, the worst nuclear power plant accident in the nation's history.

Subcommittee Chairman Gary Hart, D-Colo., told Thornburgh he had made a "difficult and potentially very risky decision not to order an evacuation."

However, Hart noted that since a catastrophe had been averted, the governor's decision had turned out to be the correct one.

Both Hart and Thornburgh discussed confused and conflicting information on the accident. Thornburgh sharply criticized the handling of the crisis by the Metropolitan Edison Co., the plant operator.

"The company issued statements in the early days that proved to be something less than accurate and its credibility as a reliable source of information eroded rather quickly," the governor said.

And he said a "garble gap between Harrisburg and Washington" made true information on the extent of the damage at the crippled reactor difficult to come by.

"I had to make decisions no other governor has faced before, decisions which I pray we'll never face again," Thornburgh testified. He said that in all his moves he kept in close touch with the White House and with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's troubleshooter on the scene, Harold Denton.

However, Thornburgh told senators that the first time he considered ordering a full-scale evacuation occurred soon after trouble at the power plant was first reported early on March 28 "and it never left my mind for 10 entire days."

"The toughest decision of all was the one that I had to make 24 hours a day throughout this crisis. That was, of course, the decision not to order an evacuation that would have been unprecedented in its nature — as well as in its potential for harm," he said.

In other testimony, the president of General Public Utilities Corp., the parent company of Metropolitan Edison, told the panel the accident resulted from a series of "equipment malfunctions and human factors."

Herman Dietkamp said the damaged reactor will be brought to cold shutdown in two or three weeks. He said that while it is too early to tell how long it will take to put the reactor back in service, cleaning it up and replacing the broken fuel elements "is technically manageable."

William G. Kuhns, chairman of General Public Utilities, told the panel that the accident is costing his firm $32 million a month, most of which he said goes for purchasing high-priced replacement fuel.

Also on the witness list was Walter Creitz, president of Metropolitan Edison. Creitz acknowledged in an interview published Sunday that his company was not prepared for the accident and did not realize how bad it was for two or three days.

"When this thing occurred, none of us knew the extent of the accident at the very beginning," Creitz told the Reading (Pa.) Eagle. "We weren't lying. Darnmit, we tried at all times to tell the public as we saw it. The unfortunate thing is, we didn't know the total extent of the accident until several days later."

Transcripts of closed-door Nuclear Regulatory Commission meetings during the height of the crisis — made public last week — showed that on March 30, the day Thornburgh urged an exodus of pregnant women and small children within five miles of the stricken plant, some senior NRC officials were leaning toward a full-scale evacuation.

Hart said the transcripts laid bare a "crisis in leadership" among federal regulators in handling the accident.

"Nuclear power can have a future only if people are confident that it is being safely regulated," Hart said in a statement prepared for today's hearing. "These issues have a direct bearing on the future of nuclear power."

Congress is also expected this week to receive formally President Carter's legislation for a "windfall profits" tax on oil companies.

The plan would tax 50 percent of the extra revenues firms earn from a companion presidential decision that does not require congressional assent — deregulation of domestic oil prices.

Confusing Steel Haulers Strike Results In 5,000 Plant Layoffs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of wary steel-hauling truckers stayed off the job today, waiting for a first-hand look at a new agreement negotiated by Teamsters union bargainers.

Even that tentative agreement did not cover the entire industry.

One result of the confusing situation: more than 5,000 steel plant workers laid off in the face of growing stockpiles jamming storage yards.

A spokesman for Trucking Management Inc., a bargainer for about 500 trucking companies hauling a wide variety of freight, said TMI "settled by itself" Sunday with the national Teamsters union on a new supplemental contract for the steel haulers.

Spokesman Anne Banville added that another group, the Motor Carrier Labor Advisory Council representing 165 firms, "is going to go along with the same settlement." And then the Teamsters announced late Sunday that a third group, the Irregular Route Carriers Conference, also had come to terms.

However, the National Steel Carriers Association, a group of companies specializing in steel hauling, rejected the agreement.

Moreover, leaders of the Teamsters for a Democratic Union, organizers of the strike by dissident steel haulers, said there was some question whether the dissidents would go along with those agreements their Teamster leaders did reach.

"The union's credibility is pretty low right now," said a spokesman who asked not to be named. "We'll want to see the agreement in writing, look for loopholes."

And the lack of a settlement with National Steel Carriers Association, which "carries a lot of steel," might keep many drivers from going back to work because, he said, "We've got a strong tradition of 'if one's down, they're all down.'"

No breakdown was available on the percentage of steel carried by the association that has not settled.

Meanwhile, an unofficial straw vote of striking members showed that "75 percent to 80 percent" opposed the contract, Gene Fleszar, a member of the steering committee of the Teamsters for a Democratic Union said in Detroit.

Narrow Houston Channel Puts Ships On Collision Course

HOUSTON (UPI) — Every time giant ships pass in the narrower parts of the Houston Ship Channel, their pilots play a controlled game of chicken, aiming their bows on a collision course and then suddenly veering off to ride a dividing wall of water past each other.

"It's a situation we call a Texas meeting," Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. Gary Bird said. "They're on a collision course. They intend to be. If they tried to work their way over to the edge of the channel, the bank cushion (another wall of water on the other side of the ship) would tend to throw them into each other."

Bird said the maneuver — undertaken only by highly skilled professionals — is part of life on the increasingly crowded manmade waterway to the nation's third busiest port, 50 miles inland.

His job as commander of the Coast Guard's Houston Vessel Traffic Service is to help the 5,500 ships that call annually to make safe entry and exit through the winding 36-to 40-foot-deep channel that narrows from 800 to 250 feet.

Bird and 30 other Coast Guard personnel rely partly on television, with windshield wiper-equipped zoom-and-pan cameras (infrared-rigged for night use) on towers along the upper channel. They also use radar, radio and a computer.

When the computer fails, the center relies on a card and board system. Each ship is given a card and the cards are advanced manually through slots on a wooden board, signifying movement through port.

The ship channel is divided into three sectors. Each sector has a controller who exchanges traffic information with vessels making the eight-hour trip up or down the channel to the Gulf of Mexico.

A ship's captain contacts VTS by radio from open sea, reports in with his ship's name, size, cargo, course, speed and destination. The vessel then is logged into the VTS computer.

The computer notes the vessel, speed and course and, at 15-second intervals, automatically updates its record with projected ship movements. The controllers read visual depictions of their sectors on television computer terminals. Manual adjustments correct for ships that move faster or slower than expected.

Bird's staff members, whose VTS operation is one of several at U.S. ports, are not controllers like air traffic controllers at airports.

"It is not a mandatory system," Bird said. "Ships are not required to participate. There are regulations under study that would make it mandatory, but we have 99-plus percent participation on a voluntary basis."

Participation is safer. "Those we find not participating usually have electrical problems or something's wrong with their communications system or they are new to the area and don't know we exist."

Bird said it's hard to measure the benefits from the system, which costs $250,000 a year to maintain.

"We've tried to eliminate the element of surprise in transit," Bird said. "The amount of casualties has not increased with the volume of traffic."

Collector Believes Tarantulas Make Interesting Companions

PETERSBURG, Va. (AP) — Sharing your bedroom with 35 varieties of tarantula spiders would be an unsettling experience for most people.

Not however, for Lt. Col. Murray Cragin, a medical liaison officer for North American Air Defense Command's 20th Region Air Division at Fort Lee Air Force Station here.

A native of North Hollywood, Calif., Cragin collects tarantulas as part of his interest in arachnology — the study of spiders. He says it began in 1967 when a spider started spinning a web outside his office window at Poper Air Force Base, N.C.

He photographed it (another hobby) and has since further developed his interests in both photography and the study of several species of spiders, including the tarantula. He obtained his first tarantula four years ago while stationed at Kirtland Air Force Base, N.M. A friend who worked for the U.S. Forest Service found the spider in the desert.

"I am primarily interested in studying spiders in their natural habitats in the field," Cragin says. "That requires that spiders be studied and photographed under natural conditions whenever possible. Most scientists work primarily on classification of spiders into genus and species, not behavior," he said.

"Keeping live tarantulas is a natural and visible offshoot of the study of spiders," he says. "Since most domestic spiders live only a single year and are fully grown only a few months of the year, they do not lend themselves to be kept in captivity, whereas tarantulas may live from 12 to as long as 25 years."

Cragin's collection consists of tarantulas from all over the world. He has spiders from Mexico, Haiti, Guatemala, Honduras and Thailand, as well as from the states of Texas and Arizona.

He obtains them through tropical pet suppliers and from private collectors. Supply and demand determine the cost of a tarantula. Prices vary between $9 and $25, but some exotic foreign species cost up to $60.

"Each genus and species in my collection has its own distinct personality," Cragin says. "Some are desert burrowers while others live in trees and on jungle vegetation. Some are wanderers, whereas others never stray more than a few feet from their burrow.

"Some of my spiders are docile while others range from mildly aggressive temperament to violently aggressive. However, none of them is known to be dangerous to man; their bite is similar to a bee sting. Even those that are violently aggressive give fair warning that they wish to be left alone and you will be bitten only if you are careless and ignore their warning," he said. "That warning is issued by raising themselves on their hind legs in a threat position and baring their fangs."

Luke 14: 25-35. The Living Bible

25 Great crowds were following Him. He turned around and addressed them as follows:

26 "Anyone who wants to be My follower must love Me far more than he does his own father, mother, wife, children, brothers or sisters — yes, more than his own life — otherwise he cannot be My disciple.

27 And no one can be My disciple who does not carry his own cross and follow Me.

28 But don't begin until you count the cost. For who would begin construction of a building without first getting estimates and then checking to see if he has enough money to pay the bills?

29 Otherwise he might only complete the foundation before running out of funds. And then how everyone would laugh!

30 "See that fellow there?" they would mock. "He started that building and ran out of money before it was finished!"

31 Or what king would ever dream of going to war without sitting down first with his counselors and discussing whether his army of 10,000 is strong enough to defeat the 20,000 men who are marching against him?

32 If the decision is negative, then while the enemy troops are still far away, he will send a truce team to discuss terms of peace.

33 So no one can become My disciple unless he first sits down and counts his blessings — and then renounces them all for Me!

34 What good is salt that has lost its saltiness?

35 Flavorless salt is fit for nothing — not even for fertilizer. It is worthless and must be thrown out. Listen well, if you would understand My meaning."

American Silver Being Exhibited

By BARBARA BASLER
Associated Press Writer
An American humorist once voiced contempt for a couple by haughtily remarking that they were the kind of people who bought their silver.

The writer was implying — perhaps in jest — that silver truly belonged only to those well-connected enough to inherit it. But for more than three centuries, silver has played an important part in the lives of most Americans, even those who were not born with a silver spoon in their mouth.

Indeed, scholars say that while the rich may own more silver than you and I, every American has inherited a silver tradition.

"Ever since colonial times, Americans have used silver objects to mark birthdays, weddings, anniversaries, religious observances, civic achievements, and wartime and athletic events," says Gerald W.R. Ward, of the Yale University Art Gallery.

Ward and his wife, Barbara McLean Ward, have just finished preparing a major exhibition of American silver, drawn from Yale's fine, comprehensive collection.

The exhibition is "Silver in American Life." After opening in April in Pittsburgh, it is scheduled to tour museums in 11 major cities over the next three years. Organized by the American Federation of Arts and the Yale University Art Gallery, the exhibition contains more than 200 silver objects that illustrate the role of the precious metal in American cultural life from the 17th to the 20th centuries.

The exhibition explores the close relationship between silver and American life. Its 25 display cases show silver objects arranged in groups according to use, featuring everything from coins for the marketplace to goblets for the church.

The collection includes the earliest known piece of American-made silver, a tiny drum cup fashioned by a Boston silversmith about 1600.

One of the most monumental pieces of silver made in America is also included: "The Monteth Bowl" was a kind of large punchbowl used for cooling and holding wine glasses," Ward explains.

And, of course, no exhibition of American silver would be complete without several pieces by one of America's most renowned silversmiths — Paul Revere — a man who Ward says would have been famous as a silversmith even if he had never been a patriot.

The collection also includes many of the highly specialized silver pieces Americans were once fond of, from silver shoe buckles to a Victorian bread fork that was used to take a piece of bread from platter to plate.

The pieces are divided not only by use, but by age, as well.

In colonial America, Ward says, only those with real money owned any quantity of silver. In fact, silver objects were literally made by melting down money and turning it into pitchers, trays, cups and so on.

"Melting coins and shaping them into objects for the home did not decrease the value of the money," Ward explains. Indeed, it protected the money. "Silversmiths placed identifying marks on the objects they created, and colonial newspapers are full of accounts of how stolen objects were returned thanks to these marks."

In the 1840s, '50s and '60s, great deposits of silver were discovered in the American West. And, at about the same time, English craftsmen invented the silver-plating process. "This meant that silver was abundant and accessible," Ward says, "and what was once a very elitist metal became more democratic."

The 19th century, then, saw the beginning of mass-produced silver in America and the rise of the big silver companies.

Finally, Ward says, today there has been a revival of the tradition of hand-crafted silver, in contemporary form.

The Almanac TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International
Today is Monday, April 23, the 113th day of 1979 with 252 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase.

The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars.

The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Taurus.

English dramatist and poet William Shakespeare was born April 23, 1564.

On this day in history:

In 1898, the U.S. government asked for 125,000 volunteers to fight against Spain in Cuba.

In 1917, almost every performer stepped forward at a mass rally in New York City when asked to volunteer to entertain the troops overseas in World War I.

In 1941, thousands attending an "America First" rally in New York City heard Charles Lindbergh say "it is obvious that England is losing the war." The noted aviator opposed American entry into World War II.

In 1965, more than 200 U.S. planes struck North Vietnam in one of the heaviest raids of the war.

A thought for the day:
William Shakespeare said, "The web of our life is of a mingled yarn, good and ill together."

Ohioan Has Vast Tire Collection

SYCAMORE, Ohio (AP) — Noble Kirby has collected about 4.5 million discarded tires on 12 acres of his Wyandot County farm, and he has 66 more empty acres that are waiting to be filled.

Kirby is convinced that some day there will be a market for his mountain of rubber.

Kirby and his two sons are in the bulldozing, crane and earth-moving business. They also own a sandpit and deal in sand and gravel.

The tire stockpiling is a spare-time occupation. They unload about five truckloads a day, adding the old automobile and truck tires to the huge mound that towers above their cranes.

The cigar-chewing Kirby said he had noticed the potential for rubber recycling during World War II. The United States, England and France have no rubber plantations. Kirby said, but rubber can be recycled "and I'm getting ready for that time."

Kirby, who believes he is the only such tire collector in Ohio, has been accumulating the tires for 10 years.

"There's a guy in Minnesota that does the same thing I do, but he doesn't have near so many tires," Kirby said.

"This guy figures if he ever sells them, they'll be worth about a dollar apiece."

Kirby sold some tires five years ago in Georgia and Florida to be used as artificial reefs for fish habitats. But his biggest problem, outside of finding buyers, is proving the tires are for reclamation and he's not running a dump.

The tires come from the Brandman Corp. of Findlay, Ohio, which picks up the tire discards of Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Chicago and other cities and shreds them for recycling. The company gets more tires that it can handle and routes the surplus tons to Kirby's mammoth tire pile.

Even if the heap of tires can't be turned into dollars in Kirby's lifetime, he says he's sure his sons will be able to cash in on them.

Gannett Shows Income Hike

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — The Gannett Co. newspaper group reports net income for the first quarter of 1979 was 22 percent higher than the same period in 1978.

Gannett said its net income for the quarter, which ended April 1, totaled $18.44 million compared to $15.15 million for the first quarter of 1978.

Earnings per share were 69 cents for the first quarter this year compared with 57 cents in 1978, and operating revenues amounted to $168.71 million the first quarter of this year compared with $148.47 million for the same period last year.

Gannett owns 78 newspapers in 30 states and on Guam and the Virgin Islands.

Allen H. Neuharth, chairman and president, told stockholders in a letter:

"Despite some fierce winter weather in the West and Midwest, advertising linage remained strong. Linage was up 10 percent for the quarter. Circulation gains continued, too, with our daily circulation increasing about one percent while Sunday circulation rose by more than four percent."

High Court Rejects Bakke-Type Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today turned away a challenge to special admissions programs in education that do not consider "culturally deprived" Italian-Americans as minority members.

In a case with overtones of the Allan Bakke "reverse discrimination" case, the court refused to consider Philip DiLeo's challenge to the legality of a minority affirmative action plan used by the University of Colorado's law school.

In other actions today, the court: — Left intact a ruling that a defendant whose plea-bargained sentence is overturned may be retried on all the charges originally brought against him and may be given a more severe sentence in the new trial.

— Agreed to consider whether state prison inmates may contest their transfer to mental hospitals. A court in Nebraska had ruled that prisoners facing such transfers enjoy a broad range of due-process rights.

— Agreed to consider the constitutionality of an ordinance in the Chicago suburb of Schaumburg, Ill. barring door-to-door charitable solicitations unless 75 percent of the proceeds go directly to charitable purposes. Two lower federal courts have ruled the ordinance violates free speech.

In the case challenging a college admissions program which rejected "culturally deprived" Italian-Americans as a minority group, Justices William J. Brennan Jr., Byron R. White and Thurgood Marshall voted to review DiLeo's contention, but the votes of four justices are needed for the court to hear a case.

Two lower federal courts ruled that DiLeo, who grew up in poverty in New York City's "Little Italy," has no legal standing to sue.

DiLeo charged that he was wrongly discriminated against because he is not a black, Mexican-American or American Indian.

The case had similarities with the Bakke case last June in which the court ordered a California medical school to admit a white student after ruling that the school's minorities admission program illegally had discriminated against him.

DiLeo, a resident of Boulder, Colo., unsuccessfully applied to the University of Colorado's law school in 1973 and 1974. Each year, he sought admission under the school's "special academic assistance program."

The special program was set up to consider otherwise ineligible applicants "who are members of identifiable groups which have not had adequate educational and cultural opportunities available to them and which are seriously under-represented in the legal profession."

The program's rules identified "Negroes, Mexican-Americans and American Indians" as such groups.

DiLeo sued the university's regents, charging it is unconstitutional for a minority admissions program to be limited to "persons whose skin or surname entitles them to a disturbing and unseemly presumption of competitive inadequacy."

The Colorado Supreme Court ruled last August that DiLeo could not challenge the program's validity because he had conceded that he could not be admitted to the law school in the absence of the special program.

The state court said that finding the program unconstitutional would necessitate striking down its use — and that still would leave DiLeo unqualified for admission.

In the Bakke case, state courts found that Bakke would have been admitted if the affirmative action program had not existed.

In seeking Supreme Court review, lawyers for DiLeo stressed his background: that his family live in a three-bedroom apartment which had no hot water and no bathroom facilities; that the family was supported by DiLeo's father, a $50-a-week janitor; that DiLeo's parents spoke only broken English; and that young Philip did not read his first book until he was in the sixth grade.

Canadian University Engages Novelist

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — Ronald Sutherland, novelist, critic, columnist and commentator, recently became the first visiting professor in Canadian studies at the University of Calgary.

Sutherland will hold the visiting professorship for the winter term. He is the former head of the English department at the University of Sherbrooke.

pects of the jail's operation. Following the introductory period, the employees would be provided more intensive instruction in procedural matters.

Maeker said such a training program may require about six months time.

Commissioner Alton Brazell suggested the county architect meet with Sheriff C.H. "Choc" Blanchard and jail administrator Gary McGrew to devise a specific program.

Brazell also said, "If the costs aren't prohibitive, I'd like to get Guy Van Cleave here."

Van Cleave is a former executive director of the Texas Jail Standards Commission, who has extensive experience in the training of jail personnel, according to Blanchard.

Asked whether the current construction workers' strike has severely impeded the construction of the new jail, Maeker said, "It still remains to be seen what the effects will be."

He said the detention people, who furnish the jail cells, were delayed beginning their work for about 30 days, but he estimated the finishing date of the facility to still be "somewhere in January 1980."

In a matter that brought to the surface past court concern about the CETA-funded special employees program, Blanchard succeeded in obtaining an additional secretary for the sheriff's department.

Blanchard told the commissioners that in the last year he has had two or three CETA-sponsored employees "come and go."

He said, "I feel like we need a secretary, because we've had to bring in a deputy from across the street (to help with the work load)."

County Judge Rod Shaw responded to Blanchard's assessment of the federal employment program, saying that at most of the county departments "CETA employees don't work out too well."

The court also voted to maintain county participation in the Project Intercept grant program designed to provide special schooling for problem children.

Under the program, the Texas Criminal Justice Division will contribute approximately $50,000 for the fiscal year beginning in September, with Lubbock County and the Lubbock Independent School District providing a matching amount.

Lloyd Watts, county juvenile probation officer said $10,000 of the grant funds will be used for probation officers' salaries and $40,000 will pay teachers' salaries.

The renewal of Project Intercept represents the third year that Lubbock County has participated in the alternative school program.

Clovis Cager To Be Raider

CLOVIS (UPI) — Clovis High School basketball standout Nelson Franse, who led the Wildcats to a 27-1 season and the state AAAA basketball championship this year, confirmed Monday he will attend Texas Tech University.

Franse, a 6-2 guard who averaged 24 points per game, said he will sign a national letter of intent later this week committing himself to Tech.

Franse had been heavily recruited by New Mexico, Texas and Texas A&M.

Clovis High School basketball coach Jimmy Joe Robinson said Franse decided to attend Tech because it is close to his home.

Tornadoes, Rain, Tides Batter Much Of Nation

By The Associated Press

More rain, tornadoes and high tides have assaulted the flood-weary South, and the spreading Red River of the North is still rising in the Upper Midwest.

But the National Weather Service says water will begin receding around some Mississippi towns that have borne the worst flooding.

The Pearl River at Jackson, Miss., will "continue to fall" unless there is more rain than anticipated, and at Monticello, Miss., the Pearl will "continue to fall slowly." National Weather Service forecaster Toby Landers said Sunday. He said that at Columbia the Pearl has just crested and will probably begin receding in the next day or so.

An estimated 23,000 persons living along the Pearl have been forced to flee their homes.

In southeastern Texas, fresh cloudbursts on Sunday brought more record flooding.

And at least four tornadoes touched down in Louisiana Sunday. One demolished the midway of the Crawfish Festival in Chalmette, a New Orleans suburb, and injured two persons slightly.

A 6-year-old boy drowned over the weekend in Louisiana when he fell into a rain-swollen Baton Rouge bayou.

The toll in property damage from the flooding continues to rise.

Mississippi Gov. Cliff Finch estimated damage at between $90 million and $1 billion in his state.

Burt Bratcher of the Texas Civil Defense placed the damage since Wednesday at $100 million in Harris County and $50 million to $75 million in Conroe, about 50 miles north of Houston.

At Columbia, Miss., where about half the 8,000 residents have already abandoned their homes, Mayor Robert Bourne has ordered schools closed, told merchants to keep only minimum numbers of clerks in their stores and asked residents to stay home.

Other Mississippians also battled floodwaters Sunday, as high tides pounded the Gulf Coast. Harrison County civil defense director Wade Gulce said winds gusted to 50 mph Sunday, piling up tides in the back bay of Biloxi, on the coast.

Elsewhere, Natchez police dispatcher David Robinson said 6.9 inches of rain fell by 5:30 p.m. Sunday in the Mississippi River city.

In the Upper Midwest, the Air Force flew 450,000 sandbags Sunday to East Grand Forks, Minn., where volunteers were fighting to hold back the Red River, and another 460,000 bags were on their way from Offutt Air Force Base in Nebraska.

The river at East Grand Forks is expected to crest Tuesday at 48.99 feet, the National Weather Service said, but officials expect the reinforced dikes to hold up to 51 feet. The weather service said the river there was at 48.48 feet and still rising Sunday, more than 20 feet over the flood stage of 28 feet.

The Louisiana twistlers also touched at such scattered locations as Lafayette, Hammond and Belle Chasse. No major damage or serious injuries were reported. But another tornado Saturday near New Iberia caused more than $500,000 in damage. At least two other persons were hospitalized, but neither in serious condition.

In Baton Rouge, about 200 residents were evacuated as a precaution against possible flooding early Sunday, after the area received 8.8 inches of rain in 48 hours, but many of those evacuated were back home later in the day.

The National Weather Service said the Amite River at Denham Springs rose 14.8 feet in a 24-hour period ending early Sunday and would crest 8 feet above flood stage on Tuesday. And flooding was forecast along Louisiana's Gulf Coast.

Water Receding In South Texas

side didn't crest until (Saturday) evening and the water's just now beginning to subside," Williamson said. "We still have a great portion of high water. There are quite a few people that can't get back to their homes."

"The rains have stopped for the most part. We are in the midst of a gigantic cleanup, working around the clock to get bridges and roads back in shape."

Up to 1,000 people were forced to evacuate in the Conroe area at the height of the flooding Friday, but many of the residents affected by Saturday's crest were reluctant to leave their homes, said Ginger Pierce of the Red Cross.

"People had been living with water in their houses for the last three days and weren't planning to move," she said. "But the Civil Defense people decided to move them because the danger of electrocution in these houses was pretty severe."

Ideal weather conditions should continue today and tonight over the Lubbock area, with scattered cloudiness forming Tuesday and a chance of rain developing by the middle of the week.

Clear skies and mild temperatures with a high in the upper 70s and a low in the lower 50s will be the rule of thumb over most of the South Plains today and tonight.

The National Weather Service says southerly winds from 10 to 15 mph should decrease to five to 10 mph tonight, becoming a little more intense Tuesday as they switch to the southwest at 15 to 20 mph Tuesday.

The extended forecast calls for the possibility of thundershowers by Wednesday and overnight temperatures in the 40s by Friday.

Statewide temperatures this morning ranged from the middle 30s in the mountains, the middle 40s in the Panhandle and the 50s in the remainder of West Texas to the 60s in East and South Texas.

Cambodians Fleeing Across Thai Border

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — More than 40,000 Khmer Rouge and civilian refugees "stretching as far as the eye can see" today trekked south along the Thai side of the border to escape fighting inside Cambodia, witnesses said.

"Kilometer after kilometer, the road is full of people," one witness reported by telephone from the Thai border town of Aranyaprathet.

The long column was being escorted by armed Thai soldiers along a road running southwest of Aranyaprathet and parallel with the frontier.

There was no word on where they were headed, but witnesses said it appeared they were being taken to a point on the border where they could be sent back into Cambodia away from the fighting.

"They're riding buffalo, they're riding horses," he reported. "They have every means of transport you can imagine and they are stretching as far as the eye can see."

The offensive by about 50,000 Vietnamese troops in western Cambodia was aimed at crushing the rebels loyal to ousted Premier Pol Pot before the start of the rainy season next month.

Morale among the refugees, estimated to number more than 40,000 people, was reported to be surprisingly high. "They're laughing and joking as they walk," said one newsman. "It's an incredible sight."

On the southwestern Cambodian coast, the pro-Hanoi Phnom Penh government said its naval forces had wiped out the last of the Khmer Rouge navy, sinking or capturing about 50 gunboats.

On Sunday, Soviet-built T-54 tanks led another push into Khmer Rouge positions, Khmer soldiers told Thai officials.

The Khmer Rouge, most of whom appeared to be only 10 or 12 years old, said they did not have the weapons to halt the armor-led drive.

All the youthful combatants were armed with Chinese-made AK-47 or American M-16 attack rifles, hand grenades and rocket-propelled grenades.

Thai military sources said more than 25,000 Cambodian civilians and soldiers of the ousted Pol Pot government pushed their way past Thai border forces into Thailand this weekend at several points near the town of Aranyaprathet, 145 miles east of Bangkok.

Another 15,000 Cambodians, both soldiers and civilians, crossed into Thailand 50 miles to the south and opposite the Cambodian town of Pailin, a senior Thai military officer said.

Another pocket of 50,000 trapped Khmer Rouge soldiers and civilians were reported further south near the border, preparing to cross into Thailand to escape the unrelenting Vietnamese drive.

Thai officials, anxious to prevent the Indochinese fighting from spilling across the border, in the past have pushed Cambodian refugees back across the border, but there was no indication yet the Cambodians being forced back this time.

Some of the large numbers of Khmer Rouge trapped in the border area reportedly have moved farther south, apparently heading for a Khmer Rouge headquarters reported to be in the rugged Cardamom mountains.

Western intelligence sources said the Vietnamese and their Cambodian allies appeared to be tightening their grip on the rest of the country as well — with evidence indicating Khmer Rouge attacks have dropped off considerably.

KHMER ROUGE RETREATS — Troops loyal to the ousted Pol Pot government in Cambodia cross the border into Thailand near Kud Pai to escape a major offensive by Vietnamese-led forces of the new regime. Thousands of defeated Khmer Rouge soldiers and civilians have crossed into Thailand, posing a problem for the Bangkok authorities who hope to keep the war out of their territory. Most of the refugees are being moved southward. (AP Laserphoto)

Nation's Junior Scientists Predict Great Advances

WASHINGTON (AP)—Real-life bionic women and men, people talking to computers that have consciences, a solution to the energy crisis and a cure for cancer. These are among the advances some of the nation's top junior scientists expect to become realities before the end of this century.

The predictions were made by 40 high school seniors who met in Washington recently to receive scholarships and awards for original scientific research projects as winners in the 38th annual Westinghouse Science Talent Search.

"Bionic women and men are distinct possibilities," said 17-year-old Patricia M. Sandborn, who attends Fort Collins High School, Fort Collins, Colo. "However," she added, "I wouldn't want the concept used to replace people, only to replace body parts. And certainly not to replace parents."

For her winning project, Miss Sandborn developed a theory to explain why some flying insects can generate more lift than others, concluding that butterflies are the most efficient fliers and flies the least efficient.

She plans to study biomedical engineering at Tulane University, but she feels technology may be moving too fast. "Problems cannot be solved by technology. They have to be solved by people," she said.

In contrast, Bertha M. Olazabal, 18-year-old senior at Hialeah Miami Lakes Senior High School in Hialeah, Fla., views the rapid pace of technology as a cash through the use of universal credit cards.

Unz, top student in his class of 660 at North Hollywood High School, North Hollywood, Calif., believes that a solution to the energy crisis may be forthcoming. "If a great deal of effort is expended," he predicts, "nuclear fusion may be accomplished by the turn of the century."

"Nuclear fusion is the way the sun and other stars generate energy," he explains. "In the sun, this occurs billions of times every second, and scientists are now trying to duplicate that process to furnish a viable energy source on earth."

The original research project submitted by Unz relates to the possible effects of gravitational fields on electromagnetic interactions. After further study at Harvard College, he is planning to be either a theoretical physicist or mathematician.

Ron K. Unz, the 17-year-old winner of the first-place $12,000 scholarship, foresees "mechanized, almost completely automated homes and the disappearance of was the development of an electronic safety device he developed at the Charles E. Jordan High School there.

His invention has been used successfully during open-heart surgery at Duke University Medical School Hospital. After studying electrical engineering at Princeton University, Karis expects to enter medical school.

"For a complete health evaluation and medical diagnosis, the patient of the future will either have a light beam passed over his or her body or place the hand into a liquid," he says. Far from achievable right now, he concedes, but he adds, who knows what a future scientist will perfect?

"The sky's the limit," says Dr. Gene T. Seaborg, professor of chemistry, University of California at Berkeley and winner of the Nobel Prize for Chemistry in 1951. He also serves as president of Science Service, the non-profit organization that administers the $88,500 in scholarships and awards of the Science Talent Search program for Westinghouse Electric Corp.

"There will be great advances in molecular biology that should get right at the basis of life itself," Dr. Seaborg said. "There will be great developments in devices, bio-engineering, artificial organs, and maybe even artificial kidneys and artificial hearts. Just fantastic things."

Frustrated Wife

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
 DEAR DR. LAMB — I need help in understanding a sexual problem that exists between my husband and myself. It might even save our marriage if I could gain a little insight. At present I'm contemplating either an affair with a long-time friend or a divorce or both.

My husband is 64 and I'm in my early 60s. For the last 20 years there's been a decreasing ability to function sexually on his part and now no attempt at all is made. I've tried to be understanding but most of the time I just end up frustrated.

He won't see a physician. He is a heavy drinker and smokes two to three packs of cigarettes a day. I've tried to get him to give up these habits and told him that he would live longer and more pleasantly so we could enjoy our lives together but nothing works.

I can only conclude that he enjoys things the way they are which is to go to work, come home, start drinking and stagger off to bed. This means no home life for either of us and surely a shortened life span for him. What is woman supposed to do in circumstances such as these?

DEAR READER — You're right about the effect on his life span. If he drinks as much as you say and smokes as much as you say, at 64 years of age he may not be around much longer to provide any form of companionship.

The excessive use of alcohol can significantly impair a man's sexual capacity. Alcohol doesn't make men better lovers. It usually decreases their objectivity so they don't realize how bad they are. People who drink often think they drive better under the influence when, in fact, they're traffic hazards. Or they may think they do a dozen other things better. All of this illusion. Tests have shown that most people under the influence of alcohol turn in substandard performances in almost all areas, including the sexual area.

When a couple is caught in a problem and only one of them is interested in doing something about it, that one should probably go to a physician and possibly see a psychiatrist or family counselor. By direct discussion it may be possible to work out a solution that will help in that specific situation.

You might look in the yellow pages of your telephone directory for alcoholism and see what organizations or facilities are available in your community and talk to them about your husband's problem. In a number of instances, the victim has great difficulty helping himself and many organizations can be very helpful to the other spouse caught in such a situation.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-12, Impotence, to give you general information on this problem since it's the primary concern to you. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Just keep in mind that impotence is a symptom. It can be caused by hormonal factors, alcoholism, neurological factors such as complications of diabetes, circulatory disorders and, of course, psychological factors. A good evaluation by a professional is often necessary to understand what's really going on.

Travelers Receive Help From Motorcycle Group

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The disabled auto, its drive shaft inoperative, coasted to a stop along the edge of the dark highway. Moments later, two bearded motorcyclists pulled up.

But instead of having trouble on his hands, the driver had help.

"Hi, we're members of Joel's Horsemen," said one of the motorcyclists as he handed the driver a leaflet. "We help people in trouble on the highway."

The 100-member group is an offspring of the Church of God. The members practice what they call "New Testament Judaism." The Horsemen, dressed in bulky jackets, black ties and white helmets, patrol busy Interstate 95 from Pompano Beach to North Miami Beach from 6 p.m. until about 11 p.m.

Proselytizing is kept to a minimum, the group says.

"Changing tires, there's no religion in that," said Pam Wilson, 21, of Kansas City. "It's just helping someone."

The group was organized in 1969 in Kansas City by Earl Steward, 49, and began helping motorists six years ago. He said the winter snow and ice in Kansas had led him to form a Florida branch of the group last year.

"In having our activities so curtailed in the winter time, we sought a place we could do good all year," said Steward. "We came down here, we liked it, we saw the need."

Most of the 30 local members hold everyday jobs to support their nighttime work, and many live together in a large Lauderdale Lakes house.

The name "Joel's Horsemen" is taken from the Old Testament book of Joel, 2:4, in which that prophet describes "a great and powerful people." "Their appearance is like the appearance of horses, and like war horses they run."

Two "horsemen" ride each night, driving their $2,500 motorcycles at 40 or 50 miles an hour.

Temple Renovation Completed In Utah

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Renovation of the historic Logan temple of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has been completed.

One of the main reasons for the renovation, which began in 1976, was to increase the 95-year-old temple's capacity to handle sacred ordinances such as marriages, baptisms and family sealings.

"The new temple will take 75 percent more capacity than the old one," said a spokesman for the church.

Crime Line Offers New Rewards

Charley Pope was elected president and rewards totaling $2,100 were offered following a meeting of the board of directors of the "Crime Line, Inc."

Other officers named include George Scott Jr., vice president, Beverly Stribling, secretary, and Alan White, treasurer.

"Crime Line, Inc." is a major portion of Mayor Dirk West's double-barreled assault on the mounting crime wave in the city. Aside from the rewards program, it also is expected to feature "Crime Eye" cameras later. The undetectable cameras will be mounted by police in areas of high crime incidence if the city council authorizes the $25,000 to fund the project.

The mayor said Friday that the crime line "has received several leads and tips in its first week of operation."

"Curiously," he added, "some were on murder and felonies not publicized."

The hotline number is 741-1000. It is manned Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and at other times by an automatic answering device.

Callers are given a code number and are guaranteed complete anonymity at all times.

The crime line board will set rewards and will determine payments.

A $1,000 reward is being offered this week in the "Spotlight Crime of the Week."

It concerns the unsolved murder of David Allen Boone, 24, who was shot several times, apparently while sitting in a rocking chair at 926 E. Quinn St. The chair was overturned when officers found the body.

A back door was locked with a sliding bolt and all windows were secured. The front door also was locked. However, screen doors were not latched. Boone had been shot with a .38-caliber weapon.

Officers were called to the home by two missionaries who had been taking Boone to church services. When they knocked on the front door and got no response, they looked inside and noticed Boone's feet. The body was discovered at 8 a.m. on Dec. 5, 1977.

In an aggravated robbery case at the home of the Robert Parra family, 3313 Amherst Ave., at 10 a.m. March 21, 1979, a reward of $500 is being offered.

Three Mexican males wearing masks and carrying hand guns entered the Parra home, demanding money. Parra was tied with bed sheet and was struck on the head with one of the guns. Parra's 7-year-old daughter lashed out at the attackers. The suspects ripped the telephone cord from the wall and escaped with $47 in a piggy bank belonging to the youngster.

One of the suspects was wearing a red pullover ski mask with black stripes, another was wearing a bandana-type scarf and the third a stocking mask.

A reward of $300 has been posted for information about a business burglary at 719 Broadway at 10:12 p.m. April 10, 1979. Responding to a burglar alarm, officers found the firm had been broken into through a glass window on the east side.

The intruder apparently cut himself and officers followed a trail of blood down the sidewalk south on Avenue G, then east down an alley behind the Rose Hotel, where the intruder got into a vehicle and left, striking an avocado-colored car in the gateway. The suspect's car is believed to be beige with damage in the front left quarter and headlight areas. Taken in the burglary were rings and ring boxes.

Officers believe the same person or group of persons is responsible for at least six burglaries involving houses under construction. A reward of $300 is being offered in these cases:

— Between April 3-5, a front door was pried at 4601 Lehigh St. and a harvest gold Caloric gas stove was removed;

— Between April 7-11, a back door was pried and intruders made off with a General Electric built-in stove and dishwasher at 5010 60th St.;

— An RCA built-in oven, cook top and dishwasher was removed from 5302 96th St. by burglars who entered through the locked front door on April 11;

— On April 13, burglars pried the front door at 4901 78th St. and removed a Graco airless spray paint rig, 100 feet of air hose, one air gun, a three-horsepower Speedair air compressor, three pairs of adjustable stilts and two five-gallon cans of bone white interior latex paint;

— After failing to open the front door, intruders pried the back door at 9714 Kenosha on April 14 and removed an almond-colored Whirlpool dishwasher; — And, on April 14 or 15, a door was kicked open at 5806 13th St. and a General Electric dishwasher and disposal unit, vent-a-hood and assorted hardware and fixtures were stolen.

Total rewards still outstanding are $4,100.

They are payable to any person — except lawmen and their families — who directly calls the crime line with information leading to the arrest and grand jury indictment (or the equivalent in juvenile cases). Rewards will be doubled if the informant testifies in court and a conviction is obtained.

In the case of "spotlight crimes of the week," information must be given within seven days of publication of the incident.

Future Of Area EMS Depends On Grant Approval By HEW

By KIM PALMER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The fate of a proposed comprehensive emergency medical services system for a 15-county area of the South Plains depends on U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare approval of a $237,000 grant.

The South Plains Emergency Medical Services Inc. (SPEMS) is requesting the money to upgrade EMS communications and services in this area.

In its application, SPEMS states that existing EMS programs range in quality from "good" in Lubbock to "poor" in some of the rural areas.

And, says the application, lack of sufficient development funds has been a major stumbling block to the continued growth of the programs, to the detriment of rural residents who need emergency medical care.

If federal funds are appropriated for the project, SPEMS will be responsible for coordinating a four-year development program.

Most of the grant money would go for communication systems, said Giles

McCrory, Post mayor and SPEMS spokesman.

Relay towers would be installed throughout the region in order to provide an emergency communication hook-up with the Panhandle, Permian Basin and eastern New Mexico, he said.

EMS training programs to be offered at five area towns throughout the region are also part of the proposed program.

"With federal funding, the courses would be more accessible and affordable," McCrory said. "Tuition for the courses probably will be about $25 as opposed to in excess of $200 without the funding."

Transfer agreements signed by 23 hospitals in the 15-county area would allow a critically ill or injured patient to receive necessary care at one hospital and then be transferred to a hospital near his home for recuperation.

The transfer agreements would be used only in emergency situations, and Lubbock's Methodist and Health Sciences Center hospitals probably would be the major transfer points, McCrory said.

The proposed regional EMS program is flexible, allowing each community to participate as much or as little as it desires.

"The timing and ability of a community to participate in the program is based on the community's available funds," McCrory said. "The way we have designed this program will allow any community to enter the program whenever it wants. Each community can design its own program."

Communities will have until December to decide whether they want to participate in the program and to what extent.

The amount of funding that a community receives would be based on that community's income and future economic development. Participating communities would have to match federal funds either with money or in-kind services.

Deadline Ends For Cuevas' Attorneys

HOUSTON (AP) — Attorneys defending Ignacio Cuevas in his retrial on charges of capital murder during a 1974 escape attempt have had a three-day recess to find three missing witnesses. But the deadline ends today.

Defense attorney Will Gray last week asked State District Judge Miron Love for a recess until today to locate the witnesses, who were among hostages when three convicts took over a library at the Texas Department of Corrections Walls Unit in Huntsville in 1974. They have since been freed on parole.

"This will be the only delay, I expect you to have your witnesses here by then (Monday)," Love told Gray.

Gray replied "We have private investigators looking for them and we are sure we can have them here by Monday."

Gray has called four witnesses so far and says he wants eight more to testify.

Cuevas, the lone inmate survivor of the escape attempt, was convicted of causing the death of one of the hostages and sentenced to death in a 1975 trial. The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ordered a new trial because of a judicial error.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I married George — a sweet, generous man with five grown children, all married with families of their own. My complaint: George and I have spent only six weeks alone since our marriage!

Whenever one of George's children considers a divorce, loses a job, or wants to save for a vacation, he (or she) and their kids move in with their father and me. We have to clean up after them, watch their kids and treat them like guests. I am sick of kids living with us for weeks and sometimes months at a time!

We have a large home, but we're far from rich, and when they're here our grocery bills are sky high. They've yet to contribute one dime.

George and I get along fine until the kids move in, then we argue all the time.

I love George, but if these free-loaders don't leave us alone, I'm leaving him. Any advice?

Had It

Dear Had It: It's obvious that George is a soft touch for his kids, so don't YOU be the heavy. (Let George do it.) Tell him that you are through being a pigeon for a flock of homing pigeons. Then prepare to (a) live with the ills you know or (B) fly to others you know not of.

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you had a letter from someone who said the minute he opened his newspaper his nose started to run, his eyes watered and itched, and he went into a sneezing fit. You said he was probably allergic to the ink in the newspaper. You were right.

Years ago my son was being treated by one of the most highly regarded allergists in the country. After many tests it was discovered that he was allergic to newspaper. The doctor advised him to dry out the newspaper thoroughly in a dry (200 degree) oven before reading it. My son followed the advice, and it worked!

Chelmsford, Mass.

Dear Chelmsford: Thanks for the tip. And if any of you readers out there try it, let this serve as a warning. Do not overheat the newspaper. It contains highly flammable material!

DEAR ABBY: I recently learned that my husband's grandmother was very much offended by the letter I wrote thanking her for her wedding gift. It seems that everyone in the family calls her "Nanna" but not being aware of this, I addressed her as "Mrs. Brown" in the salutation, and again in the body of the letter.

Abby, she never asked me to call her "Nanna." In fact, I don't recall that she ever asked me to call her anything.

Quite frankly, since I have seen her only a few times, I thought the formal "Mrs. Brown" would be more appropriate — and anything more familiar would be a bit presumptuous.

Why can't people accept a thank-you letter and appreciate its sincerity and promptness without trying to find something wrong with it?

Bugged In Mesa, Ariz.

Dear Bugged: Some can. But not Nanna.

...

Confidential To Mary L. In La Jolla: Anyone who maintains that he's too old for "love stuff" either is or may as well be.

Battered Wives Service Group Holds Meeting

Persons interested in developing interim services for battered wives will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the University Ministries Building, 2412 13th St.

The group meeting tonight is a result of the Family Violence Conference held at First Christian Church in March. The goal of the group is to provide ways of meeting the needs of abused wives between now and the time a proposed shelter is ready for use.

At the present time, Lubbock has neither a shelter for battered wives and their children nor an organized program. Women's Protective Services is arranging funding for a shelter which should be in operation in about two years, according to the Rev. Clark N. Ross. At this evening's meeting, Jo Love Nelson, president of Women's Protective Services, will give a progress report on the shelter.

Area residents interested in working with the Task Group on Battered Wives are invited to come to the meeting or to call Billie Rutherford at 799-1539.

The Slim Gourmet

By Barbara Gibbons

With today's prices, food is a major purchase. But it rarely gets the same careful consideration of other big investments. Would you buy a house on your lunch hour or pick up a new car on the way home from work? Food costs more calories as well as money. Poorly bought shelter and transportation can't make you fat!

The war against inflation — physical as well as fiscal — begins at the door of the supermarket, a war zone booby-trapped with overpriced, overpackaged, overprocessed convenience foods just waiting to explode into unwanted pounds. By the time you reach the checkout counter, your "battle of the bulge" already has been decided.

Here are 10 rules for smart supermarketing, to save calories as well as cash:

- 1. SHOP LESS BUT BETTER — Supermarkets are psychologically engineered to sell you food. Why give them more shots at your wallet (or waistline) than absolutely necessary? One well-planned all-morning trip actually takes less of your time than several in-and-out errands to pick up forgotten items. Costs less, too.

- 2. SCHEDULE YOUR TRIPS CAREFULLY — Make an appointment with yourself and allow enough time to do the job. Pick the right time: when the store is less crowded, well-stocked and traffic is light. If you're free on weekdays, don't compete with after-work or Saturday morning shoppers. If you're not, consider odd hours. One working wife we know is a midnight shopper at an all-night supermarket. But never shop through your meal hour. If you're pushing a cart past aisles of food at a time when you would normally be eating lunch or dinner, you'll load up more.

- 3. RESEARCH YOUR PURCHASES — Shopping smart should really begin at home checking the "specials" in the newspaper ads for items you ordinarily buy, sale-priced. Comparison-shop in comfort at home, then decide which store gets the business this trip.

- 4. NEXT, PLAN YOUR MENUS — Plan what you'll cook, based on what's in store, what's in season, what's on sale, in the week: tender lettuce, ground meats, fresh fish, etc. Build later-in-the-week meals around smoked or frozen meats, poultry, seafood, tomatoes or fruit that needs ripening, and vegetables from the freezer. Plan two or more meals from one cut of meat or poultry, the leftovers reborn in a casserole.

- 5. COLLECT AND USE COUPONS, BUT — only if the item is something you'd ordinarily buy. Ignore, discard, trade or give away all others. Coupons cost you money. It's wasteful not to use them for needed items ... even more wasteful to use them on unneeded items. Why let coupons cost you money twice?

- 6. STOCK UP ON GOOD BUYS, BUT — consider your storage space. Bulky loaves of bread at a few cents off are no bargain if they leave no freezer room for small packages of frozen flounder at 50 cents off. On the other hand, a freezerful of fish won't save you a trip to the store if you're out of bread. The ideal bargain: big savings on small items that keep indefinitely.

- 7. BEWARE THE BAD BARGAIN — Especially beware of high-calorie, low-nutrition foods that fatten without filling, a bad buy at any price. More bad buys: the large economy size that spoils before you finish it (or that you feel obliged to finish before it spoils); cheapie brands of such inferior quality that nobody will eat them, override perishables that will perish before you can serve them, day-old bread that will be many-moons-old by the time you reach the final slice. The ultimate bad bargain: anything you wouldn't have bought otherwise.

- 8. MAKE — AND TAKE — A LIST — Keep pad and pencil posted on the refrigerator and jot down run-outs. Complete your list after checking newspaper ads. Take the list with you and don't buy anything that's not on it. If you can't make yourself stick to the list, send somebody who can. One compulsive shopper we know shares supermarketing this way: she makes the list, he fills it. (But other wives we know wouldn't dare let husbands or kids loose in a supermarket.)

- 9. DO-IT-YOURSELF AND SAVE, BUT — don't forget the value of your time when you choose a whole chicken you have to cut up yourself or a fish in need of filleting. If you can't afford the time to scrape fresh carrots, then frozen, ready-to-cook carrots are infinitely better than no carrots ... no apologies needed. Unfortunately, many conveniences should be avoided. Save your time and money for whole foods in easy-to-use form.

- 10. FINALLY ... SHOP ALONE! Spouses, sisters, mothers, neighbors — and especially kids — are, at best, a distraction, and, at worst, a bad influence. They suggest (and kids demand) foods you'd never think to buy otherwise. Some kids shouldn't be allowed in supermarkets until they're old enough to drive there. One young mother we know swears she cut her food bill by hiring a babysitter!

Fish is brainy food, because it's nutritious and non-fattening. For seafood slimmers, send a stamped self-addressed envelope and 35 cents to SLIM GOURMET NEW ENGLAND FRESH FISH DISHES, in care of this newspaper, Sparta, N.J. 07871.

D'Loris Evans gained 8 pounds for every 5 she lost. THEN SHE DISCOVERED PAT WALKER'S

Ms. Evans wrote:

"You are going to look so good in a size 9 or 10." That's what my consultant said as I was leaving Pat Walker's after my free demonstration and figure analysis. I remember smiling to myself then, but now I can't help smiling because I'm actually wearing size 10 dresses and my newest pant suit is an 8.

For at least 9 years I've had a creeping weight problem. I was always able to lose 5 pounds but would gain back 8 (or more). Finally, I reached a point where size 16 was getting too small. That is when I realized I needed help. When a friend, who had just joined Pat Walker's, suggested I go in for a free figure analysis, I decided this might be the help I needed.

After 30 minutes on the passive exercise unit I was convinced that it could work for me. Only one treatment helped my posture.

Best of all, my husband is just as pleased as I am, in fact he is my most enthusiastic supporter. With over 30 pounds gone, 42 inches slimmer, and still losing, who wouldn't be pleased? I wouldn't hesitate to recommend Pat Walker's to anyone with a weight or figure problem.

Sincerely,
D'Loris Evans

 1♦ 2♦ ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—East's interference has actually made your life easier. Had East passed, you might have considered your hand a trifle too good to simply raise to two spades, and would probably have overbid a little by introducing your diamonds before raising spades. Now, however, a free bid of two spades does your hand full justice.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠5 ♥KJ642 ○97 ♦K10652
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 Pass Pass 1♦ Pass
 2♥ Pass 2♦ Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—You are treading on thin ice, which is likely to crack at any moment. It is true that the hand should play better in one of your suits, but if you make another effort to improve the contract, partner might not let go. Be prepared to take a small loss on hands of this type, and pass.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AQ ♥K109 ○AJ84 ♦KQ87
 What is your opening bid?
 A.—Don't open one no trump—you are too strong for that action. The correct way to show your 19-point balanced hand is to open one club (or one diamond if you prefer), then jump rebid in no trump as your next turn.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠KQ65 ♥107 ○A9 ♦AKQ93
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1♦ Pass 1♦ Pass
 1♦ Pass 3♦ Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—This hand has great possibility, for slam should depend only on partner's heart holding. You need to make a temporary bid to give your side the opportunity of exchanging further information, and the ideal call is three diamonds. You don't have to worry about partner passing—his jump to three clubs was forcing to game.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AKJ853 ♥7 ♦AKQ ♦AQJ
 Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one heart. What do you bid now?
 A.—You must make some bid which absolutely ensures your side reaching game, while at the same time leaving you room to explore for slam in case partner has a key card or two. The only bid that fits is a cue-bid of two hearts—you are entitled to make that bid with a singleton in the opener's suit.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠A83 ♥9 ○KQ432 ♦J1075
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1♦ Pass 1♦ Pass
 1♦ Pass 3♦ Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—If partner has the hand shown in Question 4, your singleton heart is the key to a slam. However, partner might simply be probing for the right game contract so, for the moment, you should be content with bidding three spades. Since you have already shown a marked preference for clubs, this must describe a feature. If partner can show a solid club suit by jumping to five clubs, you can then raise to six.

Q.7—North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠K5 ♥QJ4 ○K107642 ♦K5
 The bidding has proceeded:
 East South West North
 Pass Pass Pass 1♦ Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—Here is a rare phenomenon—a passed hand which is good enough to jump to three no trump over partner's opening of one of a suit. Of course, it is the fact that the diamond suit is such an excellent source of tricks which makes three no trump the right bid. Neither two no trump nor three diamonds expresses anywhere near the trick-taking possibility of your hand, and you certainly want to declare the contract to protect your black-suit kings from the opening lead.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠K9 ♥Q9 ○K54 ♦AKJ1073
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 Pass Pass 1♦ Pass
 2NT Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—Partner is showing 11-12 points and a balanced hand, so you can rule out all thoughts of slam. A rebid of three clubs is not only pointless but improper—it suggests a weak, distributional hand with a dislike for no trump, and partner quite likely will pass. With a stopper in each suit, you should be delighted to play three no trump—a contract that should be a lot safer than five clubs.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

Can you believe it? It's only been a month since I last saw "The Wizard of Oz" on television and already I am having withdrawal. I see the Tin Man's face in every oil can, the Yellow Brick Road in my kitchen wall, and the Wicked Witch in every store where I am trying to cash a check with only one ID. Since "The Wizard of Oz" was filmed in 1939, it has been on television 21 times. Do you know what that means? It means Dorothy's clothes have come back into style six times and are currently in again. I take nothing away from the mystical land of Oz. It is a beautiful children's story that should be seen by generations for years to come.

I am only saying that after nearly a quarter of a century of viewing it, you get a little strange. The first time I saw the movie, I was beside myself with the horror of the tornado hitting Dorothy's simple farmhouse in Kansas. How I shrieked and screamed in suspense when I saw her little bed turn and spiral toward the unknown.

By the eighth time I had seen it, I was able to ignore Dorothy's screams that the sky is falling in around her and, in fact, left the room to check a cake of yeast in the refrigerator to see if it had expired.

By the 16th time I saw "The Wizard of Oz," I did a curious thing. I actually applauded when the tornado sucked up Toto and yelled to the Wicked Witch, "Go for it!" I don't know why I did that.

My kids have a polite way of putting it. They say I am over the rainbow, no longer have a childlike faith in goodness, or want to see anything from 1939 that looks better than I do.

That just isn't true. I love the classics and hope they'll be with us for a long time. But somehow, I dread the day when "Gone with the Wind" is being shown for the 97th time and as I watch Melanie writhe in the pain of childbirth while Atlanta is under siege, I yell at the set. "You think you got troubles now, Bunkie, wait until that ride in the backboard back to Tara!"

I'll know the magic is gone.

Physicians Provide Consumers Facts Regarding High Cost For Hospitals

By BETTY YARMON
 NEW YORK (WNS) — Sometimes seeing your hospital bill can be as traumatic as your stay in the hospital. The bill not only indicates just how expensive hospital care can be, but also how difficult and confusing it is for anyone, layman or professional, to interpret the many pages listing the hospital charges.

This is the conclusion of the authors of what probably is the first effort to put into a book those facts that can make an informed consumer out of a hospital patient: "The People's Hospital Book," by Drs. Ronald Gots and Arthur Kaufman (Crown).

After offering sound advice in such areas as how to judge a doctor's competence, choosing the best available hospital, and understanding hospital procedures from routine tests to major surgery, they all but throw up their hands when it comes to understanding the hospital bill.

They stress, first, that if you have health insurance, a substantial portion of the costs will be covered, with the patient responsible for the difference between the coverage and the final tally. At discharge time, the billing office discusses this reconciliation, and generally requires a payment or will accept a credit card or arrangement to send a statement.

The authors point out that the base daily room charge today in the U.S. varies widely from area to area — it may be twice as high in New York as in Selma, Ala. — but that the cost everywhere is high and rising all the time.

A semiprivate room costs between $120 and $230 daily, without such extras as supplies, laboratory studies, and other patient services.

And this is where the costs really mount up. Each time the lab technician draws blood from your veins, you can expect a bill of $50 to $300, depending on which tests are performed. When you consider how often this happens when you are in the hospital — often once a day — you realize that you may be automatically doubling the room charge. A urinalysis is another $25 added to your bill, a chest X-ray another $25 to $50, and a barium enema examination is $100 or more.

In the case of drugs, you are charged by the pharmacy for every pill, every intravenous bottle, every shot. Bandages, needles, tubing for intravenous bottles, cast materials, and scores of other incidental equipment and supplies are all billed to you by the hospital's central supply department. Other procedures, tests, operations, anesthesia and special care — private-duty nurses, recovery room, Intensive Care Units, Coronary Care Units — all cost extra.

"Literally each band-aid and each pill has its own line and its own charge," the authors comment.

When you consider hospital costs and hospital bills this way, you can see why costs are so high, and why, except for certain broad items or the occasional very brief stay, it is impossible to validate completely the accuracy of the bill.

"There is no possible way for any of us to keep track of and check daily charges," the authors admit.

"One would have to be a 100 percent healthy accountant, working every minute during his hospital stay, and studying every single event and collecting costs and charges from the relevant departments as he went along. There would be no time to rest or get well."

The Touch of Class is owned by Gary and Leola Chevalier, with Leola actively operating the attractive shop. Leola, a longtime Lubbock resident and a South Plains native, has had some seven years experience in the field, and her knowledge is most evident in the selection presented, with customer consideration and customer appreciation foremost.

Western Clarklift & Supply Occupies New, Large 118 Slaton Road Facility

Western Clarklift & Supply has a new home!
As another significant milestone in its steady progression of forward steps in serving area industrial needs, Western Clarklift & Supply is new in all-new, greatly expanded quarters at 118 East Slaton Road, just "down the highway" from its former 111 Slaton Road location.
The new facility is designed for even greater service capacity, although Western Clarklift long has been outstanding in its field. The new building involves some 14,500 square feet under one roof, including a big 7,250 ft. service department that is more than double the size of the previous one. The enlarged parts department occupies 2,250 square feet.
A special room is equipped with latest training aids including the Clark and Clarklift-developed audio-visual professionally-prepared training aids for the Clark line. Emphasis is on product knowledge for staff personnel, with customer-oriented presentations including mechanical training and safe driving.

Located on more than two acres of property, the new Western Clarklift & Supply building is functionally attractive, outside and inside, primarily of steel construction with finish including exposed aggregate concrete panels.
Long On Scene
With a dealership in Lubbock since the early '40s, the present Clarklift organization here was incorporated in 1971.
Joe Bob Johnston is president; Ed Patton, controller; Bill Herek is sales manager; Robert Christopher, service manager; and T.A. Pool, parts manager.
The firm has an Amarillo facility at 6654 Canyon Drive in Amarillo, and also has an Odessa representative, facilitating speedy and efficient service throughout a vast West Texas, Panhandle and eastern New Mexico area.
It seems that Western Clarklift & Supply has recognized and provided all the elements necessary for meeting materials-handling lift truck needs. The product needs no introduction to those recognizing the appreciating quality and performance.

Western Clarklift is big enough to serve rapidly, efficiently and economically. Adequate stock is maintained, as well as a full parts supply.
Then, add to this the dedication and well-manned staff, and one recognizes that Western Clarklift's image and record of reliability is no happenstance.
So... why shop around when there is one firm, the Western Clarklift & Supply, Inc., that traditionally measures up, progressing with the area and industry.
"Whether your business is warehousing, wholesale, compress, manufacturing, lumber, processing, meat packing or many other business, a lift truck likely is indispensable. Let Western Clarklift & Supply assist from its new 118 Slaton Road facility, phone 745-4201.
Remember... bigness is more than size at Western Clarklift, Inc., it is plus-service."

Riley's Burger, At Slide Road Address, Home Of 'Good Eating'

For "eat-in" or "carry-out", Riley's Burger at 5416 Slide Road (Plains Plaza Center) is heartily recommended. Essentially a family operation, the new Riley's is owned and actively operated by Mr. and Mrs. (Frank and Jane) Riley, veterans on the Lubbock food scene. Also on hand is co-owner Jerry Riley and Kathy Riley (with Jerry literally growing up in the business); Lou Wheeler who has been with the Riley establishments for over a decade; and Mike Farley.

Frank Riley may be remembered by many for his tasty food while owning the Husky Burger for 10 years, or later for over three years at a 50th & Quaker location before establishing the present operation in southwest Lubbock just north of South Plains Mall last November.

Not only is the food and service superb at Riley's Burger, but convenience and decor add to the satisfaction picture there. Seating for 65 is provided, as is off-street parking. Quick service is noted especially during the lunch hour when one must watch the clock; Riley's considers the customer in every way possible.

Carry-Out, Too
 Or if it is a carry-out order that is preferred, a call to 795-2331 will speed its preparation with it being ready when called for.

Want a really great bowl of homemade chili? It is available every day Riley's Burger is open (Mondays through Saturdays, from 10 a.m. until 9:30 p.m., closed Sundays).

Or a so-delicious foot-long open-face chili dog on a platter, served with chili and chopped onion. Um-m, how good! Actually, the menu is rather extensive, including a great 8 oz. club steak, chicken bits, chicken fried steak, burritos, homemade barbecue, and more.

Soft Ice Cream
 Soft ice cream malts and shakes is another reason for Riley's popularity, with ice cream cones at a modest 15 cents!

"Though especially filling a need in its southwest Lubbock location, Riley's Burger is worth a drive from most anywhere... for food like you remember it ought to taste! And without exorbitant price."

Remember the location, 5416 Slide Road, phone 795-2331.

House Clinic Aids 'Fix-Up' With Steel Siding, Overhang Protection, Cabinets

"Did you realize just how very much the House Clinic can do for you this spring... in the overall beauty and comfort of your home, in energy savings, in assisting your budget?"

Whether the need is (1) Endura steel siding from Arrowhead, (2) overhang and gable systems, or (3) even cabinets for anywhere in the home, the House Clinic at 1922 Ave. E, phone 747-4436, can be of exceptional service.

The House Clinic can cover your complete outside walls with quality Arrowhead vinyl-coated steel siding (manufactured from inland steel in Minneapolis, Minn.) that is especially designed to go over any outside surface of the home, regardless if it is stucco, asbestos or even brick.

The turnkey job includes insulation behind this siding, the storm windows, too, as optional benefits especially desirable for comfort and qualifying for tax credit.

Buying now can avoid the anticipated early-summer increase in steel costs. As added assistance, the House Clinic is now giving one the choice of 10,000 S & H Gold Bond stamps with all complete jobs!

Aren't these convincing reasons for letting the House Clinic work for you... for a better '79 and for years to come? We think so.

"Endura steel siding by Arrowhead is the only steel siding in the industry that is guaranteed for 40 years against hail," the folks at House Clinic emphasize, inviting inquiry about the special benefits and provisions of this guarantee.

The House Clinic has over 85 years of combined experience on its staff, so you know you can depend upon them to get the job done, right.

"Stop in and visit us at 1922 Ave. E in Lubbock for complete details on how to eliminate painting, increase property value and save on utilities.

Or call collect to 747-4436 for more information. (We are anxious for you to come by and see our display of Boise Cascade Kitchen Cabinets; you'll like them!)

"All the products at House Clinic are manufactured in the United States, and we at the House Clinic welcome your visits so that we may explain and demonstrate fully how we can work for you!"

"KING-SIZE PORTABLE EXCHANGE SERVICE CAN BE YOURS"

Two-Day Free Installation Offer Set For Culligan Portable Unit

A Portable Exchange Water Conditioner can be yours . . . and even without installation charge in a two-day extraordinary offer posted by the Culligan folks at 5280 34th St., phone 792-3341 in Lubbock!

Imagine . . . all the benefits of conditioned water, for only pennies a day, and with nothing to buy! No drains or electricity required. And a service unit exchanged on regularly scheduled basis.

Alley Installation

The Culligan Portable Exchange Water Conditioner unit can be installed underground, in your alley, hooked to the main water line to condition all water entering the home. And . . . a separate faucet is installed for watering grass, with a by-pass valve that enables regular or conditioned water directed to the residence! There is no salt to be added by the customer, and there are no maintenance chores!

For two days (today and Tuesday) one may call Culligan, at 792-3341 for free installation (normally $49) that can start you on your way to ever-abundant conditioned water, with the cost as low as $11 per month!

"It is so simple. We install our famous portable exchange unit and take care of everything.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Tardy are the owners of the Lubbock Culligan operation, and they are most happy to explain in detail the several units and services in the Culligan family of drinking water systems.

Multiple Systems

Culligan sells water conditioners, too, with the customer adding the salt himself.

"We want to tell you about the Aqua-Sensor, also, and the popular Aqua-Clear units. We want to help you if you are among the many concerned about the fluoride concentrations in much of the drinking water in the High Plains area. We are sincere in inviting you to secure full information regarding quality water conditioning systems and equipment and related services (each likely provided at less cost than you had believed) from the Lubbock Culligan firm, phone 792-3341, at 5280 34th St."

And we especially suggest that you take advantage of the two-day free-installation offer of the Culligan Portable Exchange Water Conditioner. After all, this system is said to be the easiest and most versatile way to enjoy the benefits of Culligan soft, filtered, conditioned water, and thanks to the arranged offer, there is no installation charge if one acts now.

"We want you to get acquainted with the Culligan 'we treat water seriously' staff at 5280 34th St. You can count on us as folks who care!"

Julius Tipton, owner, is marking his 10th year in business this year, and his trade has consistently grown during this period. He has been at this one convenient 2235 19th St. location throughout this time, although he has more than tripled the floor space of the business in recent years.

Service Specialists

Service on mowers and engines has been a specialty throughout these years, with a loyal group of customers joined by new ones each season who find that a superior brand of service, without excessive cost, is the rule at Tipton's. If repairs are the need, it is strongly urged to bring the mower in now to avoid long delays when the busy season really starts. You'll be glad you did!

"May we have the pleasure of serving you within one of our several departments at Tipton's Bicycle and Lawn Mower Repair, 2235 19th St.?"

READY FOR BUSY SEASON — Julius Tipton and staffmember Alisa Daniel are shown here with a Snapper mower and Roto-Trim edger, just two of the fine products afforded by the 10-year-old Tipton firm.

FORTUNATE CANINE — Pets receive the utmost in grooming care at CC's Pet Salon, as correctly hinted in this picture of salon owner Camille Chance giving undivided attention to the grooming of Mimi, a repeat customer.

Emphasis On Convenience, Grooming Expertise Noted At CC's Pet Salon

"For Your Convenience." This sums the whole operation of CC's Pet Salon, all-breed pet grooming specialists at 4405 50th St. in Lubbock.

Owned by the husband-wife team of Harvey and Camille Chance, the grooming salon is actively managed by Camille who marks some nine years experience in the field.

The salon was opened Oct. 1, and since that time has enjoyed an enthusiastic and growing response. No doubt the "convenience" concept and the expertise of groomers at the salon have contributed greatly to this population.

No Long Delays
With advance notice, pets brought in by 3 p.m. most usually can be groomed and ready for pick up by 5 p.m. the same day, as example of the customer-considering service of the firm.

Two proficient groomers, Camille Chance and Debra Randall, are on the job.

Hours are 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m., Monday through Saturdays, and both Master Charge and Visa use in enabled.

Strictly Grooming
"Repeat" business speaks well of CC's Pet Salon, with some customers having regularly brought their pets to Camille for some six years, long before she opened the present conveniently located facility in Quaker Square.

For appointments, call 792-3330. Even though it is advised to call ahead, "drop in" trade often can be accommodated without long delay.

Strictly a pet grooming salon, CC's stocks some accessories and maintains a bulletin board for customer use.

The customer list speaks well for the expertise and interest of Camille and the staff at CC's. Dogs are groomed here for Humane Society, Camille reports.

"For assurance that your pet, whatever breed, receives expert grooming by folks who appreciate and love your pets, then one need look no further than CC's Pet Salon, 4405 50th St. (in Quaker Square) in Lubbock."

Caprock Kirby, Across From Furr's, Proven By Decades Of Area Service

"If you don't buy here, you might be paying too much!"

For value, for the ultimate in home maintenance equipment, for a firm that "lays it on the line, just like it is," one can turn with confidence to J.R. Sides, factory Kirby distributor at 4505 34th St., just across from Furr's Family Center.

Caprock Kirby is no newcomer, no fly-by-night. Sides has been distributing Kirby since back in 1947, and he knows his business, he knows a good product, he knows service and he respects the customer's preferences, needs and pocket-book!

"Over the years, a lot of experience is gained in every phase of the business, and our claims and products have been tested and tried hundreds of times. It all stands up if J.R. Sides is concerned."

Sides, together with his wife, personally owns and operates Caprock Kirby at the west 34th Street location, featuring the complete Kirby line.

Advantages Defined
Aside from the product's advantages, look at these other considerations:

(1) "You can't beat our prices; we don't let anyone undersell us if we know about it."

(2) "All you pay for to have a Kirby repaired with us are the parts. There is no labor charge here on Kirby products. We mean just that... we charge for parts only and they are made available at a true, non-inflated price. No matter where you purchase parts for a Kirby, we invite you to check and see if you are paying the true retail price. We are strong at Caprock Kirby on going right down the line with true representations and best in service."

(3) Caprock Kirby sells rebuilt Kirbys at a saving, and with a one-year guarantee. A good stock presently is on hand.

Caprock Kirby repairs all makes of vacuum cleaners, also trading for any make.

Many repairs can be made "while you wait", and most are on a one-day service basis.

Home Demonstrations
Home demonstrations of Kirby units, including the sensational new Classic III model, is without obligation.

Shampoos are among the accessories and aids stocked, with the Super Upkeep spot remover recommended as "the best there is."

J.R. Sides not only is one of the longest-tenured Kirby dealers in the region but he is one of the veteran dealers in all the nation. One just doesn't maintain such a record without treating folks right and providing the best in products, year after year without exception.

For purchase of new or rebuilt Kirby units, for service at non-inflated prices (parts cost only, remember, on Kirby units), one is invited to patronize Caprock Kirby, 4505 34th St., just across from Furr's Family Center, where J.R. Sides has recently more than doubled the firm's floor space for better display, new convenience and a larger training and work area. Caprock Kirby still is on the grow, thanks to you."

PRODUCT, SERVICES STAND THE TEST — Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Sides are shown in their enlarged Caprock Kirby store, on West 34th Street, with a new Classic III Model Kirby unit. Check the accompanying story for the services, concept and track record of this longtime Lubbock firm.

NEW SAVINGS REVEALED — Judy Lindsey of the Maxey Home Improvement Center staff stands at a Genie automatic garage door opener display, calling attention to specials outlined in the story below.

Home Improvement Center Sets Special Prices On Genie Units

"Have you delayed in securing a Genie automatic garage door opener system? Then, there is no need to wait any longer, especially if price is a factor. It is this simple: Maxey Home Improvement Center, 120 N. University Ave., phone 765-7736, is posting limited-time specials on Genie!

The popular Model GS-200, with many features of more expensive units, is marked at a modest $99.95!

Model GS-450, the latest in residential design, is now offered by Maxey at $159.95.

"Imagine... just touch the button on your portable transmitter, Genie opens the door, turns on the light and lets you drive right in! An exclusive new light option switch allows you to choose whether the light stays on for two minutes 16 seconds and then automatically turns off after the door is opened or closed; or remains on as long as the door is open."

The T55 transmitter has a personal code card inside to lock in your "secret signal".

The utilized Sequencer (the computer-controlled brain) is smaller than a snowflake, yet it can control 22 operating functions with error-free precision, all with 1/3 less power consumption, as another Genie advantage.

Let us give you the entire story... at Maxey Home Improvement Center, 120 N. University in Lubbock.

And there is more:

"With savings in every department, and with a selection sure to please the homeowner or builder alike, Maxey takes special pride in its storm door values. In fact, it is so anxious that you have one of these superior units that only a $1 installation and deliver charge is made on storm doors purchased from the firm and to be installed within the Lubbock city limits."

Fourteen models presently are on display, including the No. 909 gold door at $91.95 (1-in. thick frame 1/8 tempered glass) and the No. 910 gold door at $134.95 (1 3/8-in. thick frame and 3/16-in. tempered glass).

Some are available with speaker, with gold, bronze and white finish; all featuring heavy extruded corners assuring no sag and no warp, and in standard 3'0" x 6'8" size.

"Be our guest at Maxey Home Improvement Center and look before you buy."

Maxey is ready for spring and summer with scads of handyman tools (carpentry and yard tools included). Maxey is a "family type of place in which to shop, select and purchase; with a record of satisfaction.

Look at some of the other Maxey features:

"Have you discovered the beauty and utility of Amerock decorative hardware?"

"And have you realized that Maxey Home Improvement Center includes a huge Amerock display and stock among its many products for the home?"

For fine decorative hardware, whether the item is an entry lock, towel bars, switch plates, and more, the Amerock collection at Maxey Home Improvement Center, 120 N. University Ave., phone 765-7736, is most impressive.

Not only is there a wide variety at the Maxey firm, but prices are kept in line throughout the stock, with specials arranged whenever possible to further assist.

There are very good buys on water heaters, bathtubs, marble top vanities, faucets, light fixtures, paint, etc.

And some may not realize that the Maxey Home Improvement Center stocks a good assortment of hand tools, both in sets and individual pieces, for auto repair.

Gary's Frozen Foods Products Label Sure Solution When Goodness Desired

"Have you noticed how with every sunny, balmy day the urge to picnic seems irresistible? And how very good those picnic meals can taste! And how much enjoyment there is for the entire family and for friends!"

Delicious, nutritious meat products from Gary's Frozen Foods can make each of these meals "something special."

(It is no secret that folks for years have depended upon these products, not only for out-of-doors time, but also as ingredients for nutritious meals for the student, as example.)

Gary's Bar-B-Que Flavored Delight is one of the most popular of the Gary's family of products.

"Shouldn't you find out for yourself how this and other of this Lubbock firm's fine products fit into your menu for the finest in nutritious food? Discover how Gary's provides the best in barbecue, corn dogs, super dogs, custom cooking and more. (Yes, Gary's is glad to custom prepare meat, throughout the year.)

Or one may simply discover that the Gary's Frozen Food label in a favorite grocery or supermarket opens the way to variety and nutritional goodness.

Select from Gary's Barbeque Flavor Delight, Gary's Corn Dogs, Gary's Bar-B-Que Beef brisket in bar-b-que sauce, and Gary's super dogs. Whether the occasion is a festive meal, a Sunday dinner or even a backyard snack, picnic or a birthday party, one can profit from dependence upon the home-owned, home-operated Gary's Frozen Food firm and its products.

The Bar-B-Que Flavored Delight is newest of the Gary's family of labels, and it is oh-so-good. A beef, beef suet and textured vegetable protein product, it is a new experience in delicious eating. Keep it frozen, and just heat to eat.

This new product is available in the area, distributed to retail stores and to institutions. Look for the label.

The 10-pack Corn Dogs have met with exceptional response.

Consisting of batter mix around a frankfurter, partially cooked in pure vegetable oil, these, too, are easy to prepare. Simply thaw, remove from bag, place in 375-degree oven for 12 to 15 minutes or deep fat fry.

Also, one can still get the delicious Gary's Barbeque Beef brisket in a favorite grocery or supermarket.

The many quality products and services from Gary's has made possible the continued growth of the firm, thanks to loyal customers who appreciate good food and Gary's sincere desire to please.

The barbeque brisket, super dogs and other quality items from Gary's Frozen Foods, 109th Street at South University Avenue, make many a West Texas meal something special — whether for a special event or simply a change of pace.

Finest Facilities

These products, long recognized as the finest obtainable, are prepared in the modern, enlarged, functionally attractive quarters for Gary's, specifically designed and built for service in South Lubbock.

Every Gary's Frozen Foods product is an experience in goodness! School children, their parents and a lot of other people (unexpected guests included) can attest to the deliciousness of Gary's Super dogs, corn dogs — and the Gary's Bar-B-Que package available on retail basis.

Teen-Ager Suspected In Shooting

A 55-year-old Lubbock man was in satisfactory condition this morning at St. Mary's Hospital after he allegedly was shot by the son of the woman he lives with. The 15-year-old youth was taken into custody shortly after the 7:30 a.m. shooting near a residence on 30th Street where he, his mother and her boyfriend live. The teen-ager, who was turned over to police juvenile officers, said, "I shot him because he was beating my mother and pulling my hair." The boy said that after he shot the man, who suffered wounds to the right arm, he gave the .22-caliber pistol back to his mother. Police found the weapon in the woman's purse. The junior high school student said the man and his mother began fighting this morning, and the man turned on him. He said his mother handed him the gun and told him to shoot the man if he tried to hurt the youth. The young suspect told police the man was throwing "big rocks" at him in the front yard of their residence when he fired the gun. In other activity, police today were investigating three reports of aggravated assaults.

Marcie Hereford, 21, of 1004 54th St., said she was in a club parking lot about 11 p.m. Sunday when a tall, thin black man threw a tire tool at her and hit her on the arm. The woman, who was treated and released at Health Sciences Center Hospital, said she was with two other friends in a van in front of a club at East 19th Street and Oak Avenue when the suspect drove up and ordered her out of the vehicle. She said she refused, at which time the suspect opened his car trunk and took out the heavy steel tool. She said she got out of the van, and the man threw the object at her, hitting her on the arm. She said she did not know what prompted the attack. Max Martinez, 24, of Slaton told police he suffered two deep gashes on the back of his head during a beating by three Mexican-American men about 5 p.m. Sunday. Martinez said he was watching his wife play baseball at Mose Hood Park, 2600 Ave. P, when the men began fighting with him. He said his attackers were armed with knives and baseball bats. Police said the victim refused medical treatment.

Pedro Ruiz, 36, of 315 N. Ave. Q said he was hit in the back of the head while at a pool hall in the 700-block of 13th Street about 6:30 p.m. Sunday. Ruiz, who was treated and released at West Texas Hospital, told police he was struck with a pool stick. He described the suspect as a young, short black man. Police arrested three women, ages 17, 20, and 28, about 1:15 a.m. today in the 1800-block of East Broadway for allegedly causing a disturbance and fighting. Reports indicate police arrived at the scene in front of a lounge and encountered a large crowd, which broke up when officers came. Police took into custody the oldest woman, from Slaton, and the 17-year-old for allegedly fighting with each other, and resisting officers when they tried to break up the altercation. The third woman was taken into custody after she tried to interfere with the arrests, according to reports.

CREATORS' REWARD — The arts are flourishing in Lubbock if the smiles of the two 1978-79 winners of the Texas Tech Robert S. Newton awards in creative writing are any indication. From left, Dr. J. Wilkes Berry, chairman of the department of English, presents Micala Markgraf, a senior education major from Plainview, and Julia Roberts, a junior pre-med, English major from Euless, with $75 checks at ceremonies Wednesday. Mrs. Markgraf won the fiction award for her story "Day After Christmas." Miss Roberts won the poetry award for a set of poems including "Adopted." (Staff Photo)

Linda Gail Dear of 1515 39th St. said five children, who were in her house while she was outside, stole two of her rings, with a total value of $3,100, sometime Sunday. The woman said she was outside painting the house, and when she came in the juveniles were gone, along with her wedding ring and a dinner ring. In one of several house break-ins, resulting in heavy losses, Marc Fielder, Charles Winder and Scott Vencil, all of 2013 15th St., said that burglars took $3,000 in property, including a television and stereo equipment, from their house between Friday and 4 p.m. Sunday. Sound equipment, a television and rifle were the apparent loot for burglars who entered Theodore James Taylor's residence at 2518 63rd St. between Friday and Sunday afternoon. He said his loss would total nearly $2,000. About $1,000 in guns was the loss Robert Davis said he suffered when 224 Red-bud Drive residence was burglarized between Friday and 4:35 p.m. Sunday. A 23-year-old Lubbock County man told police two black men robbed him at gunpoint in the 2700-block of East First Street about 2:40 a.m. Sunday. Don Lee Crouch of Route 7, Lubbock, said he was in his truck in the parking lot of a convenience store at Parkway Drive and Zenith Avenue when a black man walked up and pointed a pistol in his face, telling him, "Don't move." Meanwhile, Crouch reported, another black man displaying a pistol opened the passenger door. The complainant said both men got in his pickup truck and ordered him to drive to an area north of Parkway Drive. Crouch said the men told him to stop, ordered him out of the truck at gunpoint and took his billfold, containing $180 in cash. Reports also show that one of the suspects wanted Crouch's CB radio. However, when Crouch told the man that he couldn't remove the CB, reports indicate the suspect struck Crouch over the head with his pistol. The victim told officers that one of the men said, "Let's go ahead and kill him now." Crouch said he got scared and, reaching through a window, put the truck in reverse, knocking the suspect to the ground. At that point, reports show, the other suspect allegedly fired a shot at Crouch, and then both men fled north. Crouch said one of the suspects was of medium height, very thin and wearing a leather hat, dark leather coat, dark pants and sunglasses. He said the man's companion was tall, medium build and wearing a light tan leather coat and dark pants. Both men were 18 to 25 years old, reports show. In a reported motor vehicle theft, Frank Guzman of 2513 First St. said someone drove off with his $3,800 car sometime Sunday morning. Alfonso Benito Mendez of 2310 Second Place said he returned home from work early Sunday to find that burglars had taken a stereo and portable TV, valued together at $1,400, from his home. John Daniel Burnett of 2115 15th St. reported thieves removed a television and stereo, worth $1110, from his place about 10:44 p.m. Saturday. Nadine Lois Weems of 3101 Itasca St. said burglars took $800 worth of property, including a portable color TV and clothing, from her home sometime Saturday night. Randy Phillips of 2013 Eighth St. said burglars took a TV and receiver, valued at $800, sometime between 8:20 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. Saturday.

Oil Company Executive Speaks To Tech Petroleum Students

Solution to the energy crisis is going to require development of all sources, "everything we can get," an expert recently told participants in the Southwest Petroleum Short Course at Texas Tech University.

HL. Atnipp, executive vice president of the Texas American Oil Company, addressed a luncheon session of the 26th annual short course sponsored by the West Texas Petroleum Industry in cooperation with the Texas Tech Department of Petroleum Engineering.

is "How can we help solve the problem?" he said. Atnipp praised President Carter's move toward price decontrol for the industry because he expects that step to stimulate development of all kinds of energy sources, all of which will be necessary.

With population increases and consumption per person growing at "tremendous rate," energy is a constant problem for the world, Atnipp said, forecasting no decrease in prices.

The current phase of understanding, he said, acknowledges there is not only a local but also a national problem, affecting the inflation rate and the value of the dollar internationally. "The question people are asking now, Atnipp said he was going to need all sources," he said, "everything we can get."

Atnipp is a member of the Speakers Bureau of the Independent Petroleum Association of America. Each of the 50 IPAA members makes about two trips a year at their own expense to non-producing states to discuss the energy shortage and usually disseminate their message through newspaper, radio and television.

Strong showings by Southwest Airlines and Braniff International vaulted the airport to new records for most passengers boarded for March, and for the first quarter of the year, according to the airport's passenger boarding summary.

Continental boarded 8,153 person here, a 35.2 percent drop from its March 1978 figure of 12,573. For the quarter, Continental is down 32.1 percent, with a total of 21,733. The carrier's quarter record for Lubbock is 32,003, set in 1978.

"The energy shortage wasn't created in a day," he said, "and the problem won't be solved in a day." But Atnipp said people in non-producing states have moved through three stages of understanding. The first, he said, was indignation and a Belief that the crisis was contrived by producers. This stage grew into the concept that there is a genuine problem, which raised the question, "What can we do to get our fair share of the energy available?"

Crown Aviation flew 97 persons from Lubbock to Clovis, N.M., in March to bring its three-month total to 367, an increase of 60.3 percent over last year's figure of 229 for the same time period.

Southwest again led the field, flying out 21,863 in March, a 19.1 percent increase over the 18,354 in 1978. For the three-month period, Southwest has flown out 55,815 persons, more than twice as many as any other carrier serving the city.

Braniff International jumped its passenger load up 14.7 percent from last year, with a March 1979 total of 9,693. During the first quarter, Braniff flew 25,331 persons from Lubbock, an increase of 11.3 percent over 1978. Braniff's first quarter high from Lubbock is 28,809 persons, set in 1977.

With a flurry of new service, Midland-Odessa Airport surpassed Lubbock International Airport as the most heavily used airport in West Texas. Midland-Odessa flew out 57,629 persons in March, and 117,133 for the first quarter to take the lead.

A survey in the March-April issue of the U.S. Public Health Service magazine Public Health Reports said, "among adolescents aged 12-17, it is estimated that 53 percent have tried alcohol, 47 percent have tried tobacco, and 28 percent have tried marijuana."

Author Mary Grace Kover said, "As far as can be ascertained, the proportion using or having used alcohol and tobacco increased until the mid-1970s and has since leveled off."

Amarillo International Airport remains in third place, having boarded 32,063 in March and 85,545 for the quarter.

More Teens Try Alcohol

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More American teen-agers have tried alcohol than tobacco, and the proportion trying or using both has leveled off since the mid-1970s.

Continental Airlines lost ground in the air for the month and the quarter.

Lubbock Airport Sets Passenger Records

Both cars left the scene. Several hours later, Butler and Cortez turned themselves in to the police department, and Butler was taken to the hospital for treatment.

The proportion of marijuana use is on the rise, however. "If the trends noted in 1977 continues," Miss Kover writes, "it will not be long before more adolescents are using marijuana than nicotine, but daily use of nicotine appears likely to remain higher than daily use of marijuana ..."

Plains Regional Hospital today with a .22-caliber bullet lodged near his spine. The youth was shot about 12:50 a.m. Sunday following an argument between two groups of youths during a drag race in downtown Plainview, according to police reports.

Youth Remains In Critical Condition

Plainsview (Special) — A 16-year-old Plainsview youth, Dewey Butler, remained in critical condition at Central Plains Regional Hospital today with a .22-caliber bullet lodged near his spine. The youth was shot about 12:50 a.m. Sunday following an argument between two groups of youths during a drag race in downtown Plainview, according to police reports.

Both cars left the scene. Several hours later, Butler and Cortez turned themselves in to the police department, and Butler was taken to the hospital for treatment. The other two youths involved surrendered to police later Sunday morning. Police say no charges have been filed, pending completion of the investigation.

Butler's spleen was removed, but doctors say they will wait until his condition improves before attempting to remove the bullet. Police say Butler was a passenger in an automobile driven by Ernest Cortez, 19. Two youths in another automobile — David Koenig, 22, of Kress and Michael Scroggins, 19, of Plainview — were allegedly challenged by Cortez and Butler to the drag race, according to police reports.

After words were exchanged between the youths, Butler reportedly got out of the automobile and was hit by one of two bullets fired from a pistol. Both cars left the scene. Several hours later, Butler and Cortez turned themselves in to the police department, and Butler was taken to the hospital for treatment.

Police say Butler was a passenger in an automobile driven by Ernest Cortez, 19. Two youths in another automobile — David Koenig, 22, of Kress and Michael Scroggins, 19, of Plainview — were allegedly challenged by Cortez and Butler to the drag race, according to police reports.

Watson New TOC Champ

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — His current credentials are in order, but Tom Watson is not yet ready to claim the No. 1 spot in world golf.
"Jack (Nicklaus) is still the man to beat," Watson said after scoring an impressive, front-running, 6-shot victory Sunday in the prestigious Tournament of Champions, an elite event that brings together the winners of PGA Tour titles from the past 12 months.
"He's the greatest player," Watson said. "He's not playing very well right now and I know he must be burning inside. But he'll be back. He's too great a player not to."
Watson, a dedicated student of the game, mentioned some of the greats of the past: Bobby Jones, Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen, Ben Hogan, Byron Nelson and the more current stars, including Gary Player.
But he came back to Nicklaus.
"Jack's record is fantastic," Watson said.
Since the start of the 1977 season, however, Watson's has been better.
In that period, Nicklaus has won six American tournaments and the 1978 British Open. Watson has 11 American tournaments, including the Masters, and the 1977 British Open. For the period, Nicklaus has won $573,740. Watson $903,048. And Watson won the coveted Vardon Trophy, Player of the Year honors and the money-winning title in each of the last two seasons, the only man to win all three in consecutive seasons.

But the 29-year-old Watson is adamant. "I have a while to go before I can consider myself a great player," he said, then grinned and added: "But it's sure sweet right now. It's an honor to be called the No. 1 player. At times, I feel capable of playing and beating everybody. At times I don't."
"I haven't been here long enough to be called a great player. The test of great golf is over a number of years. It's a man's record over 10 years or 15 that makes him a great player. I haven't done that yet."
But he was easily the outstanding man the last two years and now has solid claim to that position this season.

Earl Scudday Price Too High

ALTHOUGH DALLAS COWBOY defensive end Ed "Too Tall" Jones showed up with the rest of the Hoopsters for that benefit basketball game here Thursday night, his thoughts must have been elsewhere. Money and career usually take precedence over fun and games, it seems.
Not that Big Ed didn't play well in his Hub City appearance. He gave the fans a show and demonstrated that, with incentive and hard work, he could have been a pretty good cager. But Ed picked pro football over basketball years ago, and now he is facing some decisions that will shape his future.
Jones played out his option with the Cowboys last season, as everyone knows, and became a free agent Feb. 1. He was open for offers from other clubs until April 15, under the NFL agreement with the players' union, then the Cowboys had a week to match the best offer or wave him goodbye. In that event, the Dallas club would get compensation in the form of draft choices.
All the deadlines have come and gone with no announcement of any kind, so there is one inescapable conclusion. Big Ed did not receive any firm offers from other clubs and now must resume contract talks with the Cowboys. They made him an offer before Feb. 1, to protect their rights in the case, and Jones must accept that or do some more bargaining to boost the figures.
IT ISN'T THAT a lot of National Football League clubs wouldn't like to have Jones. What coach would pass up a 6-9, 270-pound defensive end with 4.7 speed? But Big Ed never has reached the level expected after the Cowboys took him No. 1 in the entire draft. He plays great in most of the big games, but is an ordinary performer in ordinary games. The really great ones play 100 percent all the time.
So it is not surprising that other teams are reluctant to pay the price necessary to sign him.
Money isn't the only thing involved, either. That NFL rule forcing a team signing Jones to give the Cowboys compensation in the form of draft choices is a big factor. The payment would range from one to two first-round picks, depending on the exact salary involved.
A rival club would have to really need a defensive end to give Jones $200,000 a year, then hand over its top draft choices for the next two years to Dallas.
The same situation has kept many NFL players from riding the free-agent route to sudden wealth. Scores of the gridders have played out their options in recent years, but only a handful have received significant offers from other clubs. The price, considering the compensation rule, is just too high.
"All of which has the players' union complaining loudly and hinting of a strike next autumn, despite the fact their agreement with the NFL runs until 1981."

Spurs Tilt Sixers

Doug Moe isn't taking anything for granted.
"Yeah, we're in the driver's seat," said Moe, coach of the San Antonio Spurs, "but we can still have an accident."
Or to put it another way, a 3-1 lead in a best-of-seven playoff series — even with the home-court advantage for two of the three possible remaining games — is no guarantee of victory.
"The biggest thing we have to guard against is overconfidence. We can't afford that," warned Moe, whose Spurs took command of their National Basketball Association Eastern Conference semifinal series by edging the Philadelphia 76ers 115-112 Sunday. The Spurs will try to wrap it up at home Thursday night.
Moe's words also apply to the two Washingtons, city and state, whose teams also lead their respective series 3-1.

Three NHL Series Over

By The Associated Press
 The Montreal Canadiens started celebrating a little too early to suit defense man Larry Robinson.
 The Canadiens pulled to a 4-0 lead over the Toronto Maple Leafs midway through their National Hockey League playoff quarter-final contest Sunday night. Then they forgot Robinson's rule that the best defense is a good offense.
 "You have to keep forcing the play," said Robinson. "Any time you sit back (on a lead), you're asking for trouble."
 The Canadiens got all the trouble they could handle. The Maple Leafs clawed their way back to a tie, forcing the overtime Robinson ended with a power-play goal at 4:14 of the extra session.
 "You have to give the Leafs credit," said Montreal defenseman Guy Lapointe. "Even when they fell behind 4-0, they never quit."
 But they still lost, marking the 20th consecutive game they have met the Canadiens and come away winless.
 The 5-4 victory gave Montreal a 4-0 sweep in the best-of-seven series and sent the Canadiens into a semifinal meeting with the Boston Bruins. The Bruins finished their sweep of the Pittsburgh Penguins with a 4-1 triumph.
 Meanwhile, the New York Islanders scored a 3-1 triumph over Chicago to cap a sweep of the punchless Black Hawks. The Islanders will play the winner of the New York Rangers-Philadelphia series, which the Rangers lead 3-1 after a 6-0 triumph Sunday night.
 The Canadiens-Maple Leafs game capped a weekend which had all the wild and crazy turns of a ride on a roller coaster.
 The teams played 25 minutes, 25 seconds of overtime Saturday night, then Montreal recorded a 4-3 triumph on Cam Connor's goal. The Canadiens nursed a 2-2 lead until 2:20 remained in regulation, when Toronto's Darryl Sittler scored to force the extra session.
 The Leafs' Dan Maloney forced the overtime Sunday night, beating Montreal goalie Ken Dryden with 6:02 left in regulation to cap the wasted comeback.
 Referee Bob Myers called Toronto's Dave Williams for high-sticking Robinson at 2:38 of the overtime, and Robinson's 60-foot shot beat Maple Leafs goalie Paul Harrison just 1:36 later.

"It wasn't a call that should have been made, for sure," said Toronto Coach Roger Neilson. "First of all, it was out of the play. It didn't affect the play and Robinson wasn't injured or anything. It was just a hard check."
 It took some hard checks by his Maple Leaf teammates to keep the furious Williams from going after Myers after Robinson scored.
 "It was a bad call. That's what it was," said Neilson.
Bruins 4, Penguins 1
 Veteran center Jean Ratelle scored twice to carry Boston past Pittsburgh and into the semifinals against Montreal.
 The Bruins-Canadiens series will mark the third straight playoff in which the teams have met, with Montreal winning the last two — in the finals — to take the Stanley Cup.
 "Just once, I'd like to beat them," said Ratelle.
 Center Peter McNab agreed, offering the simplest of reasons: "If we beat Montreal, we'll win the Stanley Cup," he said.
 "We have a courageous bunch of guys who went through a lot of peaks and valleys but always came back," said Penguins Coach Johnny Wilson. "They made some crucial mistakes in this series, and Boston capitalized on most of them."

Islanders 3, Black Hawks 1
 Chicago finally managed to score a goal, ending a streak of 182 minutes, 50 seconds without one, but lost again to the Islanders and saw their record playoff losing streak raised to 16 games.
 New York got goals from Denis Potvin, Ed Westfall and Mike Bossy in advancing to the semifinals. Goalie Bill Smith gave up a goal to Mike Walton at 7:05 of the second period.
 "It wasn't artistic, but I'm pleased," said Islanders Coach Al Arbour.
 Black Hawks Coach Bob Pulford, obviously disappointed, still credited his players. "The players tried hard, and you can't ask for any more than that."
 "We tried as hard as we could, but we couldn't buy a goal the whole series," said Pulford, whose Black Hawks scored just four goals in the four games.
Rangers 6, Flyers 0
 Don Murdoch and Eddie Johnstone scored two goals apiece to back John Davidson's first career playoff shutout and give the Rangers their third straight victory over Philadelphia.
 After dropping the opener 3-2 in overtime, the Rangers have outscored the Flyers 18-2 and have held Philadelphia without a goal for 118 minutes, 22 seconds.
 "Goaltending is like playing poker," said Davidson, who has given up just seven goals in six playoff games this spring. "You go through stretches where you get aced whenever you pick up your cards. Then there are times when you can't buy a decent hand."
 Davidson has had the hot hand, and as a result, a victory at Philadelphia Tuesday night would send the Rangers into the semifinals against the Islanders.

— aided by Pittsburgh errors — by identical 5-4 scores. Their latest victory boosted the Astros to a 12-4 record and a three-game lead over second-place Cincinnati in the National League West — the best start in the club's 17-year history.
 The left-handed Sambito, who earned his second save of the year, has not been scored on in 8 2-3 innings.
Mets 4, Phillies 2
 Pinch-hitter Gil Flores singled home the tying run and scored the go-ahead run on shortstop Frank Taveras' RBI single in the eighth inning to spark New York over Philadelphia. The Mets had gone scoreless for 26 consecutive innings before Joel Youngblood hit his first homer of the year off loser Steve Carlton, 2-2. Jesse Orosco, 1-0, recorded his first major-league decision.
Cards 3, Reds 3
 Ken Reitz and Ted Simmons drove in eighth-inning runs, enabling St. Louis to snap Cincinnati's five-game winning streak. Reitz' game-winning hit was his third of the year. Buddy Schultz, 1-1, pitched the final two innings to pick up the win. Ray Knight had two singles and drove in three Cincinnati runs.
Braves 3, Padres 1
 Dale Murphy socked his seventh homer and Barry Bonnell singled home two runs in the bottom of the eighth inning to lift Atlanta over San Diego. Wade Winfield belted a solo homer for San Diego, which came back from a 6-0 deficit with a six-run sixth-inning outburst.
Dodgers 9, Giants 2
 Don Sutton pitched a six-hitter and tied a career high with 12 strikeouts and Von Joshua and Steve Yeager homered to lead a 15-hit Los Angeles attack. Bill Russell and Derrel Thomas had three hits each as every man in the Dodgers' lineup had at least one hit with the exception of Sutton.
Cubs 4, Expos 1
 Dave Kingman and Barry Foote each belted home runs and Rick Rueschel tossed a sixhitter as Chicago won its fourth straight. Rueschel, 1-2, lost his shutout bid in the eighth when Tony Solita doubled and scored on Andre Dawson's single.

Mistreated A's Rebel

By United Press International
 After being badgered by their own fans and bullied by the California Angels for two weeks, the Oakland A's finally got tired of having sand kicked in their faces.
 The A's, treated roughly by the Angels in five previous games this season, got up off their backs and got their licks in Sunday by snapping California's 10-game winning streak with a 7-6 triumph.
 A run-scoring double by Jim Essian in the eighth inning drove home the winning run, but it was a masterful relief effort by Dave Heaverlo in the ninth inning that saved the game for the A's.
 "If we hadn't won we would have been very depressed," said Essian. "They kicked our butts all up and down for five games. We just wanted to show them we could play a little ball, too."
 In the previous five games with the Angels, the A's were outscored 47-10, while Angel hitters maintained a .360 average against Oakland hurlers.
 Orioles 4, Twins 2
 Doug DeCinces hit a home run in each game in helping the Orioles stretch their winning streak and the Brewers' losing streak to five games each. Eddie Murray drove in four runs with a double and two singles and Ken Singleton homered for Baltimore in the nightcap. Sixto Lezcano hit a three-run homer for Milwaukee.
 Yankees 5, Rangers 1
 Graig Nettles went 4-for-4, including a two-run homer and a run-scoring single, to lead the Yankees to victory behind the six-hit pitching of Ron Guidry. The game was highlighted by the first appearance of relief pitcher Sparky Lyle against his former teammates. Lyle was tagged for a run-scoring single by Nettles.
 Twins 3, Mariners 1
 Butch Wynegar singled home the tie-breaking run in the sixth inning and the Twins went on to hand the Mariners their eighth straight loss behind the five-hit pitching of Dave Goltz. Glenn Abbott took the loss.
 Indians 8, White Sox 5
 Andre Thornton drove in four runs with a double and a three-run homer and Bobby Bonds and Gary Alexander belted solo shots as the Indians snapped the White Sox' five-game winning streak. Rick Waits went 8 1-3 innings to gain his second victory. Lamar Johnson belted a three-run homer for Chicago.

 Red Sox 6, Royals 0
 George Scott drove in four runs and Rick Burleson belted a homer to back the four-hit pitching of Mike Torrez as the Red Sox ran their winning streak to four games.
 Tigers 4, Blue Jays 1
 Dave Rozema retired the first 13 batters in order then settled for a three-hitter in pitching the Tigers to victory over the Blue Jays. Rozema, 1-1, lost his no-hit bid when Roy Howell homered in the sixth. Lance Parrish homered for the Tigers.

Astros Hot

By United Press International
 While Joe Sambito acknowledges there is a delicate balance between winning and losing the close ones, Houston's ace reliever is overjoyed that the Astros are tipping the scales in the right direction.
 "Last year we would play tough until we would make an error late in the game," said Sambito, who kept his ERA at 0.00 with two-thirds of an inning of relief work in Sunday's 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates. "This year the other team is doing it. Once it starts, you build confidence and momentum."
 An error by Pittsburgh shortstop Tim Foli, acquired last Thursday from the New York Mets, on Bob Watson's hard ground ball in the eighth inning allowed Craig Reynolds to score from second base with the decisive run.
 "This is the best team we've put together," said Watson, who has been with Houston since 1968. "It seems like the components are here."
 Cesar Cedeno's sacrifice fly in the first inning and back-to-back doubles by Cedeno and Watson in the sixth provided the first two Houston runs. But Pittsburgh matched the Astros with a run on a passed ball and John Milner's seventh inning RBI double.
 Houston managed to capture the first two games of their series with the Pirates game with two runs in the bottom of the sixth and blew open the second game with five runs in the fifth.

 The players and their lawyers thought it was a great deal when they signed it, but now they want out.
JONES' REPRESENTATIVE in contract talks with the Cowboys is a New York agent who deals primarily with pro basketball players, just to complicate matters. The wheeler-dealer undoubtedly thinks Big Ed ought to get a salary similar to those in the NBA.
 "Hoo boy! Is he ever going to get a shock!"
 The Cowboys do not pay those kind of salaries. Very few of the NFL clubs do, although Buffalo went wild a couple of years ago and gave O.J. Simpson a contract worth about $800,000 a year. A few quarterbacks in the league make from $250,000 to $500,000 annually.
 But that is a far cry from the NBA, where million-dollar contracts are as routine as ham and eggs for breakfast. The highest-paid defensive lineman in the NFL, last I heard, was Mean Joe Greene at Pittsburgh. He makes about $175,000 a year.
 Greene has been All-Pro for a decade, while Jones still is trying to reach the top rung. Ed is going to have a difficult time proving he is worth more than the Steeler star.
COWBOY OFFICIALS also know that what they do in Jones' case will be carefully observed by 'Poke defensive superstars Randy White and Harvey Martin. Those two All-Pro's will have contracts up for renewal next year, and they both have better credentials than Jones. Landry has called White the Cowboys' best defensive performer, with Martin just a step behind.
 So if the Cowboys open the safe for Jones, how much will it take to sign White and Martin next time around? Huge piles of greenbacks, you may be sure.
 It is easier to infiltrate Strategic Air Command headquarters than it is to get a peek at Cowboy salaries, but chances are that Jones will have to settle for something between $125,000 and $150,000 a year. That or get a tryout in the NBA.

Borger Skein Continues

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
 Not too long ago, the Borger Bulldogs had as few baseball victories as there currently are weeks left in the school year.
 Two weeks ago, Borger entered the 1-AAA baseball race with a 4-11 nondistrict record. Since that time, the Bulldogs have only lost once and are currently sharing the loop lead with the Dumas Demons. Borger and Dumas both sport 5-1 marks.
 Since the University Interscholastic League prohibits teams to practice on Sunday, coach Ray Murphree took a little time to talk about his team's success.
 "Maybe people didn't take us very seriously when the district race began," said Murphree. "But we've played a lot of tough teams and been able to stay close."
 Borger proved it was going to be a contender Saturday by sweeping a doubleheader from preseason favorite Levelland.
CITY PLAYER OF THE WEEK
 Monterey third baseman-pitcher Ricky Pinkerton: Allowed just three runs to record his first district victory of the season and help Monterey tie for the 4-AAAA first half title. Also, was 10-16, which included seven RBIs, three triples and one double.
THIS WEEK'S GAMES
 Tuesday—Dumas at Estacado, Borger at Canyon, Levelland at Dumas.

Tech Inks Recruit

Texas Tech doubled its list of basketball signees when coach Gerald Myers announced the inking of David Reynolds from Perryton.

Reynolds (6-7, 200-pounds), averaged 21.2 points and 12.3 rebounds a game in leading the AA school to a 26-5 record and the regional tournament. He established nine school records during his three-year starting career.

Reynolds scored 1,526 points in 89 games for a 17.1 career scoring average. He shot 54.8 percent from the field and 74.6 percent from the line during his career. He was named to the Texas Sports Writers Association's AA All-Star team. He also has been selected to play in the Texas High School Coaches Association's All-Star game this summer.

"David moves good, he's a good athlete," said Myers. "He has been in a good program and he is well coached. He has played inside but I'm impressed with the way he can go outside."

"Probably his strong point is his rebounding," said Perryton coach Allen Simpson. "He's a good outside shooter, but he can take it inside too. He should fit in well at Texas Tech because they run the motion-type offense."

Perryton competed in class AAA during Reynolds' first two years. The school was 9-17 his sophomore season and 18-14 his junior year, losing in the state quarterfinals to state finalist Mineral Wells.

Reynolds joins 6-6 forward Joe Washington from Tupelo, Miss. on the Red Raiders' 1979 recruiting list.

Playoff Series In Final Stages

17 games Friday night, did it to the Hawks at home again Sunday, beating them 120-118 in overtime. They'll try to close out the series at the Capital Centre in Landover, Md., Tuesday night.

"This loss might deflate a normal team, but the Hawks aren't a normal team," said Washington forward Bobby Dandridge, who scored 31 points Sunday. "You don't know what to expect from them. They are the kind of team that you just can't relax on."

Seattle took a 3-1 lead over the Los Angeles Lakers with a 117-115 decision Sunday at the Forum in Los Angeles behind 53 points from guards Gus Williams and Dennis Johnson, who have plagued the Lakers all series.

With the Kingdom committed to a baseball game, the Sonics will try to end the series Wednesday night at the smaller Seattle Center Coliseum. That was their home court prior to this season, and because of its low roof and high noise factor, it was always a tough place for visiting teams to win.

The home team has won every game so far in the other Western Conference semifinal, with the Phoenix Suns grabbing a 2-1 lead with a 108-93 rout of the Kansas City Kings on Sunday. That series resumes Wednesday in Kansas City.

George Gervin, the two-time NBA scoring champion, netted 32 points to lead San Antonio past Philadelphia. At the other end of the floor, the Spurs' Larry Kenon limited Julius Erving, who had scored 39 points in the Sixers' only series victory Friday night, to just 15 points on 6-for-17 shooting.

In fact, Kenon took Erving right out of the game. Dr. J played just 31 minutes, and Sixers Coach Billy Cunningham explained, "I didn't use Julius more because he couldn't get going."

Mike Green's jumper snapped a 90-90 tie with 7:13 remaining and the Spurs led the rest of the way. Gervin had 12 points in the final period, including a pair of free throws at the buzzer after Philadelphia had closed to within one.

Rookie guard Maurice Cheeks topped the Sixers with a career-high 33 points.

Dandridge was the hero of the Bulls' victory, scoring 15 of his points in the final period including a running one-handed that tied the game at 107-107 with seven seconds to play.

Atlanta guard Eddie Johnson was the goat, twice. He wasted too much time dribbling the ball and the Hawks were unable to get off a shot before the buzzer ending regulation play, then he missed a shot that would have tied the game at the end of the overtime after Kevin Grevey had helped the Bulls to the lead with a pair of 25-footers.

Williams scored 30 points and Johnson 23 for the Sonics against Los Angeles, giving them 208 points in the four games played thus far.

The Lakers, who trailed 112-102 with 3:20 to play, battled back behind 5 late points by Ron Boone and had a chance to tie the game after Williams missed on a second free throw attempt with two seconds left, but guard Norm Nixon — who had 21 points and 19 assists — missed a 20-footer at the buzzer.

Lakers center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led all players with 31 points and 13 rebounds, although Seattle outrebounded Los Angeles 45-29.

"We have not been able to control Seattle's backcourt, and, of course, their rebounding strength has hurt us," said Lakers Coach Jerry West. "We can't play much better than we are right now. This playoff is not over, and our players don't think it's over."

Phoenix's unheralded reserves combined for 51 points in Sunday's victory over Kansas City, 16 of them by Mike Bratz, who inherited the role of third guard after Ron Lee was traded in mid-season.

"Our bench has been very, very productive for this year," said Phoenix Coach John MacLeod.

Walther New Flick Idea?

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

If Hollywood should ever run out of ideas for a screen subject, it need only stroll down the boulevard a ways to Marina Del Rey and look up a young man named Salt Walther.

At age 30, Salt's life already is a book. Almost since he was big enough to hold a steering wheel, he has courted death. He has looked the specter straight in the eye, dared the ogre to do its best and then always come back for more.

Salt Walther, they say, is victim of a "death wish." He denies it.

There was the time his speeding hydroplane did a complete somersault and spat him into the sea.

Once his sleek thunderbolt of a racing car exploded in front of the packed stands of the Indianapolis Speedway. The machine disintegrated into flaming confetti. Salt was picked up virtually in pieces — both arms and legs broken, ribs crushed, burned from head to foot — and was carted off to the hospital to die.

Thirty doctors frantically worked to keep him alive. "No chance," they said. Salt wasn't listening.

Thirteen months later, his older brother, Skip, whom he adored, died in a hydroplane crash during a race off the Miami coast.

The emotional pain from this tragedy cut deeper than any physical wounds suffered in his own reckless, death-defying experiences and he thought he might never recover from the lingering nightmare.

"After Skip died," Salt said, "I thought I would never race again. I was sickened by the idea. But I became restless again. Racing is in my blood."

Today, the young driver is looking toward the big prize he has never won — the Indianapolis 500. When the loud speaker blares, "Drivers, start your engines!" on May 27, Salt hopes to be at the controls of his Penske-Cosworth. He is still looking for a sponsor.

Walther stopped in New York en route to Atlanta where he and other leading drivers of Indy-type machines were to compete Sunday in the second leg of the Championship Auto Racing Teams (CART) nine-race series.

He has lived a glamorous as well as perilous life.

He was pointed — but not pressured, he insists — toward a racing career by a doting father, George, head of the $200 million-a-year Dayton-Walther Corp., of Dayton, Ohio. He was driving hydroplanes and race cars before he was old enough to shave.

A dark-haired, handsome bachelor, he became a favorite of the jet set that pursues these helmeted daredevils all over the globe. He squired movie starlets, magazine cover girls and debutantes.

But he never married — and vows he never will. He is wed to the thrill of racing.

"No, I never feel that I am flirting with death," he says. "I am flirting with life. One cannot imagine the great feeling of just being alive after a tough race."

Walther now maintains residences in Beverly Hills and Marina Del Rey, where he counts movie celebrities among his closest friends. Already he has done a bit role in the TV series, "Rockford Files," and probably will get other roles.

Salt is the only man who races Gold Cup hydroplanes, Indy-type race cars and the stocks. Once he won 22 of 33 hydroplane races in which he competed.

One he didn't win was at Tonawanda, N.Y., on Lake Erie in 1971. His boat came out backwards, did a barrel roll and flung him 160 feet in the air.

"I swam back to it," Salt said, "and managed to bring it to shore. It tore up my left leg. I pedaled 60 stitches."

In the aborted start of the 1973 Indianapolis 500, Walther's car careened into the retaining wall and burst into flame.

 Probably the most effective illustration of how sport teams cycle up and down is the Rise and Fall of the Philadelphia Flyers. Official Attacks Allegations

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Allegations by Karen Silkwood that quality control reports on nuclear reactor fuel pins produced at the Kerr-McGee plant where she worked were falsified have come under attack.

The seventh week of the federal court trial of an $11.5-million lawsuit filed by Miss Silkwood's family closed with testimony by a company official who said Miss Silkwood's allegations were not true.

Martin Binstock, who still works for Kerr-McGee, testified Saturday the 28-year-old woman's claims concerned test materials and not the actual fuel rods.

Miss Silkwood, an employee at the Kerr-McGee nuclear fuel processing plant north of Oklahoma City, believed someone at the facility was using a felt tip pen to touch up X-rays of faulty welds on fuel rods.

Binstock admitted the X-rays Miss Silkwood found had been doctored, but said they were of test welds rather than actual welds used to seal the ends of the fuel pins.

The pins were sold to a federally funded test project for a nuclear reactor prototype. Witnesses have said if faulty rods were used in such a reactor they could endanger the lives of thousands of people.

Earlier testimony indicated Miss Silkwood was taking evidence proving her claims to a meeting with a New York Times reporter the night she died.

Annexation Figures Staggering

By TOM GRIESS

Avalanche-Journal Staff
Tiny, unassuming Carlisle lies tucked away immediately west of Lubbock's city limits, only a spectator of the affluent, fast-paced ways of urban America.

Boasting a dusty, narrow strip of commercial activity along the Levelland Highway and a surrounding cluster of small homes and trailer parks, the community of about 1,500 residents remains unincorporated.

With its sleepy appearance and several gasoline stations lining the roadway, Carlisle brings to mind an earlier trail stop era.

But beneath the surface events are in motion that could radically transform this rural area.

A Lubbock Planning and Zoning Commission subcommittee, formed to assess lands to the south and west of Lubbock for possible annexation into the city, has been studying Carlisle as part of a block of land between current city limits and Reese Air Force Base.

No recommendation on annexation of the block (referred to as area 3) has been made by the Rural Land Use Study Committee, but the findings of the January study indicate the total cost to Lubbock taxpayers for further expansion will be staggering.

Total capital outlays to provide water and sewage, street paving, a new fire station, sanitation and parks and recreation facilities for full development of area 3 beyond the year 2020 were estimated at $42,589,750.

"And at best this is a low estimate," city Planning Director Jim Bertram said of the capital costs figure.

Balanced against the cost to Lubbock taxpayers for a decision to annex the area are the benefits to be received from cleaning up Carlisle — a possibility discussed by P&Z Chairman Jim Ratliff at a recent meeting of the Rural Land Use committee.

Along with the desirable effect of providing basic services to a largely depressed area, Ratliff said, annexation of area 3 would enable Lubbock to increase its jurisdiction over the Levelland Highway, a major thoroughfare he said he believes is in the process of being widened into a four-lane road from the Hockley County line to Levelland.

Ethics Committee Looks At Witnesses, Evidence

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Ethics Committee is taking a look at the list of witnesses and evidence to be presented in its investigation of alleged financial wrongdoing by Sen. Herman E. Talmadge.

The public hearings — involving charges of a member breaking Senate rules — will be the first of their type held by the committee in nearly 12 years.

The actual hearings are to start next week and could run as long as two weeks, according to committee members.

But the committee scheduled a meeting today to iron out final details, such as the witnesses to be called and the evidence to be presented, in hopes of avoiding further delays in starting the hearing.

It also planned to discuss the reasons attorneys for the Georgia Democrat requested, and were granted, a one-week delay in getting the proceeding underway.

The hearing originally was to start today, but Talmadge's lawyers said they had not received all the financial information they had requested from Daniel Minchew, once Talmadge's chief aide and now his chief accuser.

Bertram said it may take "many, many years" for an annexed Carlisle to repay in city tax revenues the initial capital costs.

"People are not going to go out and build $80,000 homes in Carlisle," Bertram said. "If the costs (capital costs) are disproportionate to gains we hope to make, it may not be feasible."

He said that whereas Carlisle's depressed tax base would make it a liability to Lubbock initially, some of the other lands under consideration for possible annexation may be able to provide the estimated full development tax revenues within about five years.

The area 3 study shows estimated full development annual tax revenues to the city would be $10,996,260. Of this total, $9,795,000 would be provided through property taxes and $1,201,260 from sales taxes.

A sizable chunk of the total estimated capital costs necessary to annex area 3 — $16,950,000 of the $42.6 million total — would be expended on water and sewage facilities.

According to the study, about $10.5 million would be spent on a sewage treatment plant and approximately $1 million on a water pump station and reservoir. The remainder would be used for expanded water and sewage lines to serve the newly annexed area.

Carlisle residents now rely on septic tanks for disposal of wastes and private ground water wells for their water supply.

Just how urgent the need is for a municipal water supply to Carlisle is debatable.

A random Avalanche-Journal survey of 13 Carlisle households showed an almost even split of persons complaining of acute water supply problems and operations lauding their water situation.

Willie Hinojosa said his home has its own well providing good water. "But the other people have no water at all," he added. "And when they do, it is terrible — sandy and no pressure. I'd say all of Carlisle is lacking."

Ana Gomez said, "We've never had good, clear water. It's been off and on for a long time. We get water from our neighbors. All over town there have been problems not as severe as ours."

Andrea Hawkins, whose parents live in Carlisle, said, "My parents have been out of water off and on for the two years they've been here. Sometimes it's kind of sandy, and after they fix the well it's kind of muddy."

In contrast to the bleak assessments offered by some, five spokesmen claimed a clean, plentiful water supply for their homes, and two others cited no problems other than the inconvenience of periodic low pressure.

For those Carlisle residents afflicted with an inadequate water supply, relief in the form of annexation eventually may depend on the Lubbock City Council's inclination to burden the city with some type of financing debt.

Bertram said constructing a major sewerage trunk line westward to serve the Carlisle area would require "some kind of financing."

Asked whether the projected new sewerage treatment plant would be essential for annexation of area 3, Sam Wahl, director of the city public utilities division, said the plant would serve existing south and west Lubbock and "not just Carlisle."

Bertram said the Planning and Zoning Commission may consider the study with recommendations from the Rural Land Use Committee in June.

Recommendations from the Planning and Zoning Commission must be adopted by city council for final approval.

'Today' Hires Donahue To Provide New Look

By PETER J. BOYER
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hmm, what's this? Could be bigger than the recognition of China. The "Today" show is going to normalize relations with that part of America situated west of the Hudson.

"Today" has always had a Manhattan flavor, a flavor strong enough to overwhelm the bits of Midwest that NBC has injected into the show from time to time. Tom Brokaw may be from South Dakota, and Jane Pauley may hail from Indianapolis by way of Chicago, but I'll be dogged if an East Side publishing house air didn't slip in as soon as they hit the "Today" set.

For the longest time, it didn't really matter what sort of flavor "Today" displayed. If viewers didn't like the way "Today" greeted them in the morning, they could always switch to Captain Kangaroo.

Then ABC came along with "Good Morning America" and its everyman host, David Hartman. The show struck to the heart of the country, grabbed ratings from NBC and prompted the folks at "Today" to start thinking facelift.

So, beginning next month, "Today" looks west and begins the courtship of the American heartland. And they're not messing around. For the wooing, "Today" hired Phil Donahue, a man who has a direct line to the just-folks viewers across the country.

Donahue's specialty is women. He's become the most-watched syndicated talk show personality on the air, surpassing Merv Griffin, Mike Douglas and the rest in number of stations and viewers. And he has done all of this from Middle America, not New York or L.A.

With Donahue, the real stars of a talk show are sitting in the audience. He walks through the audience and gets a Middle America perspective on the subject of the day, which may be overeating or infidelity or drugs. He can get real celebrities, and does, but "no two people are that interesting five days a week," he says.

"What makes our show interesting is the woman from Kenosha, Wisconsin, who stands up and says, 'Let me tell you about my 14-year-old,' or 'Let me tell you about my husband.'

"I make my living according to my ability to attract an audience, and during the day, that means women. Women have, for a long time, wanted a show like we do and no one gave it to them until we came along."

Donahue began his show on a local TV station in Dayton, Ohio, in 1967. The show was such a success that it was syndicated nationally two years later. In 1974, Donahue and his production moved to Chicago, a city with an airport large enough to accommodate all the guests who were flying in from the big coasts to be on the air with Donahue.

Now Donahue is seen on 164 stations across the country, and beginning in May, he'll do eight minutes of his audience-chat routine for "Today" three times a week. There was even some talk that Donahue was in line for Brokaw's anchor job on "Today," but that possibility is at least five years away.

KIDS-ONLY CLUB Puppets Need Moving Mouths

By SHARI LEWIS
I don't really believe that a puppet is a person unless it has a moving mouth. I may like the other kind — or think it's cute — but when a puppet's mouth starts flapping, I sit up and pay attention. (One exception: Kukla, Oliver Dragon's friend, has always seemed a fine person to me.)

If you also prefer the gabby kind of puppet, these may please you:

— Glue two empty matchbook covers to the prongs of a spring-type clothespin. On the top one point a face and paste on tiny buttons or candies for features and bits of wool for hair, mustache or beard. Cut a body out of paper and glue it to the bottom of the lower cover. When you open and close the clothespin, your puppet will do the same with his mouth!

2 — Cut two paper shapes — one should represent the top of bird's head and beak, the other the lower beak. Glue the top shape to the outside of the top blade of a pair of scissors. Attach the lower part of the beak to the outside of the lower blade. Keep your finger out of this puppet's mouth, 'cause he's bound to be the kind that makes cutting remarks!

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: What always weighs the same, no matter what size it is? (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

Serra Shines In 'Manny' Lead Role

By MARY CAMPBELL
NEW YORK (AP) — There is a solid, substantial feel of rightness to "Manny," a play about Edward G. Robinson, which opened last week at the Century Theater.

Raymond Serra is magnificent in the title role. He is so good that clips from two Robinson movies, "Little Caesar" and "Hole in the Head," are not jarring at all. They just fit in naturally — vocally, visually and stylistically — to Serra doing Robinson.

Serra also wrote this play, the only writing listed in the actor's biography. "Manny" could have been a cliché — actor ignores family for work and stardom, wife gets depressed, son alcoholic. But it doesn't come out that way. It's the firmest, clearest explanation we've seen of a performer pursuing the stardom course, while realizing and regretting the wreckage at home.

There are a few brief scenes with Robinson being accused by the House Un-American Activities Committee of having given money to Communist-front organizations. But mostly, the actor is seen with his family. All are shown having faults.

The other outstanding acting job here is Pierre Epstein as actor Sam Jaffe, being the life-long, true-blue friend.

Frances Helm as Mrs. Robinson and Loren Haynes as Eddie Jr. were very good. Harold J. Kennedy directed and Robert R. Blume, Tony Comforti and Manny Taustine produced, in this middle-size theater which has a Broadway contract.

Robinson's real name was Emmanuel Goldenberg and his friends, according to the play, always called him Manny. The play is so convincing that we find no reason to doubt that or anything else, including the sentimental — but again right — ending in 1973 with an Academy Award.

Actor, Wife Enjoy Life At Home

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Vincent Price, urbane sophisticate that he is, was asked why he is so closely associated with horror films.
He replied in his measured, mellifluous baritone. "For some reason my voice has a timbre that evokes mystery, melodrama and horror."

Price's bright-eyed wife, actress Coral Browne, injected her own thought: "Your voice sounds dead, that's the reason."

Price arched an eyebrow that almost reached his hairline and muttered a deflated, "Touche."

Married four years, the Prices have a delightful putdown, one-upmanship relationship which keeps them both amused and on their toes for ripostes.

With a sideward glance at Coral, a former star of the English theater, Price went on: "In some 100 odd — very odd — movies only 20 of them were horror films. Some others, such as 'Laura' were mysteries."

"I suppose the fact that I'm tall and speak with a theatrical voice contributes my association with the occult."

Vincent, who established himself as a movie menace in "The House of Wax," and Coral are involved in mysterious goings on in the new CBS-TV series, "Time Express," a cross-country train on which passengers travel back through time in their lives to re-encounter personal crises.

Both Prices are delighted to have the opportunity to stay in their Beverly Hills home for a change. For most of their married life they have been on the road. Vincent spent the past year and a half starring in his oneman show interpretation of Oscar Wilde, "Divisions and Delights," in 82 cities across the country.

"I loved every minute of it," he said, smiling.

"What about me?" Coral demanded. "I've been following him around with my needlepoint like Penelope."

"More like Madame La Farge," said her husband, pleased with his mot. Coral touched her ample bosom delicately in a gesture of minor anguish. "I'd rather thought of myself as Penelope."

"At any rate, I've become the greatest authority on American television. I spend my nights locked in hotel rooms alone with the tube in the middle of nowhere from 7 until 11 p.m. while Vincent is in the theater. It's terrible."

"Coral is fortunate I didn't take her on the 72 one-night stands," Vincent said. "I didn't want to listen to her complain."

"We went on tour together in 'Charlie's Aunt' with Roddy MacDowell. It was an enjoyable way to see the country together."

Coral sniffed disdainfully. "He took me to some very strange places like Louisville and Pittsburgh. And one truly odd place on a lake."

"Buffalo," said Vincent.
"I've never performed in English cities that resembled those places," Coral said in a bewildered voice.

"Oh, you've played their counterparts in Britain," Vincent assured her. "You were in Leeds four years ago in 'The Waltz of the Toreadors' with Trevor Howard."

"How dare you compare Leeds with Buffalo!" Coral replied. "Leeds wasn't all that funny."

"We worked in London together for two months in 'Ardele,'" Vincent went on.

"I got a bit anxious working on stage with Vincent," his wife said. "I recall in that play he had a 12-minute speech on the staircase in the first scene. I had to give him the cue to start the long speech which he had memorized perfectly."

"A disaster!" Vincent groaned.
"True. I gave him the wrong cue and cut out the entire speech. Immediately thereafter I turned to a pillar of salt. I froze and couldn't say a word. Then I giggled as I watched him find his way out of it."

Vincent groaned again. "There I was on stage trying to revive that speech because the entire plot depends on it. I finally managed, with no help whatever from Coral."

"All the same," Coral said, "when we were married, I'd had an enormously successful career in England. But I fell in love with Vincent and didn't want to be separated from him. I chose him over my career."

"Not altogether," Vincent said. "She did a play at the Los Angeles Music Center a couple of years ago and I stayed home and cooked."

"They paid me so little he had to cook," Coral put in.

"We had roast wolf once a week," Vincent said. "The wolf who was knocking at the door."

Coral and Vincent hope that CBS will make a regular series of "Time Express" in the 1979-80 season. Vincent would prefer to stay in California. Coral would like to avoid a revisit to Buffalo.

Communities Become Involved In School Music Programs

WILMETTE, Ill. (AP) — Fourth-grade beginning band students at the Stewart School in Garden City, N.Y., have an unusual problem at practice time: getting the instruments away from their parents.

Mom and Dad have rehearsing of their own to do for the school's 35-member Parent Band.

New last fall, the Parent Band grew out of an orientation meeting called to acquaint parents with the problems of the first-year band student. From instrument assembly to the importance of regular practice. The response was so encouraging that parents were invited to form their own group, using their children's instruments.

In expanding the music program to include parents, the Stewart School is following a trend toward community involvement increasingly evident in schools across the country. According to the American Music Conference in Wilmette, schools are turning to community outreach programs as a way to strengthen support for school music.

Programs for adults give parents an opportunity to share a learning experience with their children, while building local support by providing a community service. Often, these programs introduce adults to the joys of making their own music, the AMC points out.

"A few of the parents were band participants in high school," said Stewart School music director Thomas Wagner, "but for most this is the first experience with a musical instrument. They learned scales and 'Lightly Row' right along with their 9-year-olds, and it's been a very positive experience for the kids."

"Those with parents in the band have a definite edge. They show more interest in music, and they're better prepared when they come to class because they're getting help at home. The experiment has significantly reduced the dropout rate among first-year band students."

In Prescott, Ariz., a popular guitar program at Yavapai Community College was inspired by guitar classes in the city's junior high schools. Each Friday, an ensemble of seventh, eighth and ninth graders goes into the community to entertain at homes for the aged, Kiwanis luncheons, church affairs or other social events.

"Many of the adults in the three college classes are people who became interested in guitar after they heard my students perform," said teacher Duane Burr. "And dozens of students have encouraged their parents to take up the instrument. The adult students, in turn, encourage their children to take guitar when they reach junior high school. The community is really behind us."

Another possible way for schools to encourage community involvement is to offer equipment and facilities for adult education classes. At the William Monroe Elementary School in Stanardsville, Va., adults from the surrounding area are learning to play the piano in the school's electronic piano lab. The fee: $15 for ten lessons, much less than a private instructor would charge.

The lab features 12 electronic pianos which are connected to a master piano by headsets, enabling the teacher to monitor the progress of individual students. Teaching aids include films and audio tapes, and a visualizer that permits the student to see the notes being played on both a staff and a piano "keyboard."

The lab was installed in 1975 to give disadvantaged students an opportunity to study a musical instrument. As teacher Bula Stein explained, "Band members are required to rent or buy their instruments, but not all students can absorb the cost. The county-financed piano lab, which is used by about 200 students per year, means that no student need be denied musical training for financial reasons."

The low cost of the adult lessons also offers an opportunity to senior citizens and others who might not be able to afford the cost of private lessons.

"But the big appeal seems to be the group-lesson format," said Mrs. Stein. "We're drawing students from the county as well as the town, because learning piano in a group situation is more fun than studying privately."

Dance Event Heads Bernstein Festival
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A highlight of the five-day Leonard Bernstein Festival, May 4-8 in Kansas City, will be the world premiere of a major dance event, says Maurice Peress, music director of the Kansas City Philharmonic.
Judith Jamison, a performer for the noted Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater, will star in the production, according to Peress. Choreography is by John Butler.
The ballet music is based on Bernstein's "Three Meditations from 'Mass.'"

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

Stock Mart Evenly Balanced

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed little change today in a quiet, drifting session. Advances and declines were about evenly balanced in the midday lull of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks at 856.98, unchanged from Friday's close.

In the economic news, the government reported that new orders for durable goods declined 2.5 percent last month.

Other than that development, which had little immediate impact on the market, analysts noted a generally quiet news background.

Exxon rose 1/4 to 52 1/2. The company reported first-quarter earnings of $2.16 a share, against $1.55 in the first three months of 1978.

Other oil issues were mixed. Revco D.S. fell 3/4 to 24 1/2. The company said preliminary merger talks with F.W. Woolworth had been dropped. Woolworth was off 1/4 to 29 1/2.

Colonial Commercial picked up 1/4 to 26 1/2 on the American Stock Exchange. The company, which early this year withdrew a $95 million offer for the Aladdin Hotel and Casino in Las Vegas, Nev., was reported to be considering making another offer at a lower price.

The NYSE's composite index rose .04 to 57.13. The Amex market value index was up .09 at 180.91.

Volume on the Big Board was a modest 10.25 million shares at noontime, against 12.19 million at the same point on Friday.
