First Bale Of 1941 Ginned Here

R. P. Burrus Is Grower Of First Bale Of Season

Bale Will Be Sold To The Highest Bidder Friday Afternoon At 3 O'clock

The first bale from the 1941 cotton crop arrived in Lamesa Wednesday night and was ginned by Lamesa Gin Company. It was grown by R. P. Burrus, who lives south of Patricia and it weighed 645 pounds. The bale will be auctioned off to the highest bidder Friday afternoon, beginning at 3 o'clock, on the court house lawn. This first bale came several days later than the first bale last year which arrived on August 19. However, at that, it arrived ahead of most estimates, who did not think Lamesa would gin a bale before September 1st and possibly not before the 10th. This is possibly the largest first bale ever ginned in Lamesa. The 1940 first bale weighed exactly 400 pounds, or 245 pounds less than the one ginned Wednesday.

Feather-Cotton Comfort Making Be Demonstrated

Miss Mattie Phenix, County Home Demonstration Agent, will give a demonstration on the making of cotton and feather comforts. Monday, September 2, at the warehouse building on the Dawson County Fair Grounds. The demonstration will begin at 9:00 a. m., and will last most of the day. Representatives of the various home demonstration clubs and any others wishing to do so may attend the demonstration. In making the cotton comfort, Miss Phenix will show the preparation of loose cotton into batting, placing it in the cover, and tacking. In making the feather comfort, Miss Phenix will demonstrate the designing, stitching, and the use of a vacuum cleaner in filling the cover. The purpose of this demonstration is to explain the advantages of light weight covering, and to show how it may be had with little effort and expense.

Rainfall Totals 59 Inches In City Thursday

Rain began falling in Lamesa early Thursday morning and continued until noon in a steady fall that totaled 59 inches, according to the local weather bureau gauge. The skies cleared Thursday afternoon and the sun showed clear throughout the latter part of the day. Many farmers had reported that they were needing rain on their crops and it is believed this rain will prove highly beneficial. Many Dawson County cotton growers report that their cotton is heavily infested with worms at the present time, but they are small and a few days of clear weather will enable them to potash. The moisture will prove highly beneficial to all kinds of feed.

Enrollment Is Already Under Way At Schools

All Students To Be Ready For Opening Tuesday

All Will Be Enrolled But First And Second Grades When Doors Officially Open

Enrollment in the Lamesa Schools is already under way, and with the exception of grades one and two, will be completed before the week is out. These two lower grades will be enrolled Tuesday of next week, the day school opens. Enrollment of elementary school students from the third to the eighth grades has been under way throughout the week. The High School Seniors began enrolling Wednesday, the Juniors on Thursday, the Sophomores on Friday and the Freshmen will enroll on Saturday.

It is understood that enrollment in the rural schools of the county will be started with the opening of the various schools, most of which will open Monday morning. The city schools will officially open on Tuesday morning. Buildings and grounds for all the schools over the county are in readiness to care for the more than four thousand students who will trek back to school in this county. Buses of many of the schools have either been replaced with new ones, or the old ones completely reconditioned, so as to put the transportation facilities in tip top shape for the winter.

More than one hundred and thirty instructors will be on the job in the various schools to handle the teaching. Parents and children alike have been busy shopping in Lamesa stores for the past several days making preparations for the opening. Mr. Mahon spoke about the aid that the United States is giving to Great Britain under the lease-lend act and stated that this has shown a tremendous increase during the past few weeks and was steadily increasing. He also discussed the strike situation, the speed with which the government is getting its armed forces into shape and general conditions as they exist today.

Drive Carefully

Next week some four thousand boys and girls of Dawson County and Lamesa will wend their way back to the various schools of the county, and with this announcement also comes the chances of increased accidents on the part of Dawson County motorists.

Won't you, as a crusader for safety, make it a point to not only drive carefully, but to suggest to your neighbor that he also drive with every precaution so that this school term may be marred by one single accident?

We, as adults, must fully realize that children are just children, and that life to them is not so serious as it is to us. They are inclined to be careless with their play for which we must necessarily excuse them. But it also must be borne in mind that because of this carelessness, the responsibility is placed on the adult.

Slowing down and driving carefully in the vicinity of school grounds or along thoroughfares which the children travel to and from schools, may cost you a few moments of time, but in so doing, you may save the most precious thing on earth, the life of some mother's child. You know that you wouldn't save those few minutes at such a tremendous cost, if you would only stop and consider the gamble you take when you drive without every possible precaution among these youngsters. For a few minutes saved might bring a lifetime of regret.

So won't you please drive carefully, watch for the children, and help make this school term free of any traffic accident wherein the children are concerned?

Congressman Geo. Mahon Is Lions Club Speaker Here

Congressman George Mahon was a Lamesa visitor this week and addressed the Lions Club at their regular meeting Wednesday at noon at the Plaza Hotel.

Mr. Mahon was introduced by Dee Hull, who had charge of the program.

Mr. Mahon spoke about the aid that the United States is giving to Great Britain under the lease-lend act and stated that this has shown a tremendous increase during the past few weeks and was steadily increasing. He also discussed the strike situation, the speed with which the government is getting its armed forces into shape and general conditions as they exist today.

Mr. Mahon stated that this government had adopted a certain policy in regard to its dealings with the Axis powers and did not expect to make any deviation from this set route. He said that America's entry into the war depended solely upon the actions of Germany and Japan, as the policies of the United States are firmly established and official Washington had no intention of changing.

He said that in regard to the strike situation, it had given the Congress about as much thought as any other subject. In trying to represent agriculture, capital and labor, he said that it was a ticklish situation.

There were about fifty members and guests of the club present at this meeting, which was in charge of President Henry Norris.

Guests, besides Mr. Mahon, were: John T. Agee, M. C. Lindsey, Charlene Jobe, Leo Reithmayer, Mr. O'Brien, O. H. Morris and Mr. Debenham.

With the schools of the territory opening next week, you will find many items for the children specially priced for this one day only. Lamesa merchants have made this buying easier by offering many suggestions in these special ads, at money saving prices. Look up the ads in this issue of the Courier and by all means make your plans to be in Lamesa next Monday to take advantage of the savings which are being offered in all lines of business.

Bids For Migratory Camp Will Be Opened Friday

Announcement was made this week by Wilson Cowan, regional director of the Farm Security Administration, that bids would be opened Friday, in Amarillo, for the construction of the migratory labor camp to be constructed two miles southeast of Lamesa.

The new camp will consist of 50 cottages, 25 of them to be 4-unit affairs, a community center, manager's house, office and other buildings.

It is expected that the camp will cost around $160,000. A previous opening of bids resulted in all of them being too high and they were rejected.

It will be recalled that the government purchased the old Bailey home place several months ago upon which the camp will be located.

It is not known just when construction will be started, but it is expected to get under way as soon as possible after a contract has been awarded.

The Albaugh John Robinson No. 1 started active lease play in Dawson County and many thousands of acres have been under lease since this well was started.

Many Guessers Place Cotton Crop Of County Above Sixty Thousand Bales

Crop prospects in Dawson County are better than they have been for many years, according to those who have toured almost every section of the county. Some reports are that unless something happens, much of the cotton in this county will make a bale to the acre. Estimates advanced by local prognosticators place the total yield from fifty to seventy-five thousand bales, with the average guess around sixty thousand.

Ray Albaugh, J. Handley No. 1 Be Drilled Soon

Ray L. Albaugh, local operator, announces location for his J. J. Handley No. 1, 660 feet from the South and 1920 feet from the West line of Section 36, Block M, E. L. & R. R. Co. Survey, in Dawson County, Texas. This test is located approximately one and one-quarter miles northeast of Albaugh's John Robinson No. 1, which encountered the first production ever discovered in Dawson County, and which, although a small producer, was later abandoned for lack of pipeline facilities and the low price of crude at that time.

After drilling John Robinson No. 1, Albaugh contributed leases for the E. L. Wilson Texas Land and Mortgage Company well, which was located in the Northwest one-fourth of the Southeast one-fourth of Section 45, Block M, approximately one mile south of the John Robinson No. 1. This well was approximately sixty feet lower than the John Robinson No. 1. Still later, Albaugh contributed 1280 acres, together with a cash consideration, for the drilling of the E. L. Wilson-Scanlan well, located in the Northwest one-fourth of Section 83, Block M, which was a small producer and operated for some time. Last year Albaugh drilled his John Robinson No. 2, located about one and one-quarter miles northwest of John Robinson No. 1, drilling to a total depth of 5,398. After encountering a show of oil at 4,953, this well was plugged and abandoned. John Robinson No. 2 ran considerably lower on formation than the John Robinson No. 1. It is the opinion of oil men and geologists that structural condition exists east of the John Robinson No. 1, and the J. J. Handley No. 1 has the support of various major companies, including Cities Service Oil Company, Magnolia Petroleum Company, and others, and also the support of independent operators, including Hugh Corrigan and Joe Crump, of Midland, Texas, both of whom have bought spreads around this well.

The Albaugh John Robinson No. 1 started active lease play in Dawson County and many thousands of acres have been under lease since this well was started.

It is expected that the camp will cost around $160,000. A previous opening of bids resulted in all of them being too high and they were rejected.

It will be recalled that the government purchased the old Bailey home place several months ago upon which the camp will be located. It is not known just when construction will be started, but it is expected to get under way as soon as possible after a contract has been awarded.

Many People Use Courier Classifieds

With the approach of fall, many Courier readers are finding it profitable to use the classified section of this newspaper, to rent houses and sell articles which they want to dispose of. This department of the Courier is constantly growing and the interest among users and readers increases with each succeeding issue.

The cost of these little ads is small—seldom exceeding the minimum charge of 25c—which pays for not only one issue of the paper, but each classified ad is run in both the Monday and the Thursday issues of the Courier at the one price.

Aside from the fact that it is a real bargain in an issue, it will prove a super bargain when you get it in both papers at the price you would ordinarily pay for only one.

Club Woman Makes Coil Springs Cover

Mrs. J. C. Stewart, bedroom demonstrator in the Bartlett Home Demonstration Club, will more adequately protect her bed with a covering which she has made for the bed springs.

The advantages of the coil springs cover, are as follows:

1. Keeps dirt from the floor away from mattress and springs.
2. Prevents tearing the ticking on sharp edges of the coils.
3. Protects the mattress from rust stains caused by the springs.
4. Makes your bed warmer by cutting off cold currents of air from the floor.

The materials suitable for such a cover are six-ounce mattress ticking or sturdy, closely woven bags, such as those used for feed or fertilizer. In event one is unable to obtain the mattress ticking, eight or nine bags may be substituted in the following manner:

1. The first step in making the cover is to sew bags together to make a big rectangle 46" longer and 46" wider than the springs.
2. Place the springs in the middle of this rectangle. Fold the material over the top, making all sides equal. Miter the corners.
3. Cut a slit down the center of one end, extending it over the side and 16" down the bottom of the cover. Fasten this opening with tape ties or zipper.
4. Hem around the open space in the center of the top.
5. Cut a piece of bagging 2" wider and 2" longer than the open space.
6. Hem this piece and tack two 9" ties firmly to each corner and two in the center of each side and each end. These are to be tied to the springs so that this piece will cover the open space. Ties may be made by folding and stitching 1-2 inch wide strips cut from cotton bags.

Mrs. Stewart will be happy to show her coil springs cover to anyone who is interested. Information concerning the making of coil springs cover may be secured in the office of Miss Mattie Phenix, County Home Demonstration Agent, Court House, Lamesa.

Paving Begun On Highway 15 In Scurry County

Actual paving work on Highway 15, beginning at the Borden County line and coming eastward toward Snyder is getting underway this week.

So announced highway department engineers late Wednesday afternoon, who pointed out that approximately three miles of oil surface coat has been applied to the East-West Roadbed from the Borden County line east, and will be followed by hot topping as soon as the oil surfacing is ready.

Gradually as the work progresses, the East-West road will be given oil surface treatment eastward toward the Scurry County seat, and will be followed by hot topping.

Word that actual paving work is now underway was received gleefully this week by Borden and Scurry County motorists, and by officials of the East-West Highway Association.

When complete, the paving of Highway 15 from the Borden line east to Snyder will fill in another of the final gaps in the trunk line roadway from the Louisiana line on the east to the New Mexico line on the west.

Highway engineers point out that some 8,000 yards of caliche remain to be placed on the Highway 15 roadbed just west of town, but that this phase of construction work will be finished in ample time for hot topping work.

Beginning of paving on the East-West Highway in Western Scurry County marks an important milestone in the State Highway Department's determination to get Highway 15 gaps filled in as rapidly as funds will permit.

Contract for placing select material on Highway 15 from the overpass southeast of town southeastward to the Fisher County line is expected to be let early in September. If okayed, this will mean that hot topping will be given Highway 15 in Eastern Scurry County early next spring.

Other than the two gaps in Scurry County, a 12-mile stretch in Western Fisher County and the highway across Borden County will comprise all the unpaved gaps in the airline route entirely across the state.

Highway department officials believe that paving of the Highway 15

Eleven Rights In Bill Of Rights Are Noted

There are eleven basic rights of men in the Declaration of Rights that famed author H. G. Wells offers in the current Rotarian magazine. These, plus the tried and tested institution of a consolidated opposition, "dovetail into the plan of creative political action I am putting before you," he writes.

First is the right to live, "within the measure of these (natural) resources and without distinction of race, color, or professed beliefs or opinions, and medical care needed to realize his (man's) full possibilities."

Second is the right of protection of minors. The third "right" is a duty — a man's duty to the community within his beliefs and capabilities. "To perform no social duty whatsoever is to remain unenfranchised and under guardianship."

The next five rights in the declaration are the right to knowledge, freedom of thought and worship, the right to work, the right in personal property, and freedom of movement. "A man may move freely about the world at his own expense. . . . So long as by his movement he does not intrude upon the private domain of any other citizen. . . . he shall have the right to come and go wherever he chooses."

Personal liberty, so long as one does not forfeit it by illegal actions under the other rights, is another inalienable right under this declaration. So is freedom from violence. "The fount of legislation," concludes Wells, "in a free world is the whole people, and since life flows on constantly to new citizens, no generation can, in whole or in part, surrender or delegate this legislative power which is inalienably inherent in mankind."

It intended to excuse these men from the obligation which rests upon every young man — that of helping his country in times of emergency. General Page pointed out. Every man is expected to do his share, in one way or another, when a crisis threatens the national security. He said:

"Many of our young men have entered the armed forces, leaving at home others who for one reason or another have had their military training deferred. Those who remain owe it to those who have been called and owe it to their country to help in its defense when and wherever they are needed.

"They can do their part by offering their services in the interests of civilian defense. In the very near future almost every community will be engaged in civilian defense activities. Such activities, of course cover a wide range and should include tasks for all young men who are deferred from military training."

No young man should shirk his responsibility if it is humanly possible for him to take part in the increasing civilian defense activities. General Page said.

WILSON BAPTIST CHURCH

We have enjoyed a great revival in the Wilson Church. Brother Fred McPherson brought some great messages that were enjoyed by everyone. We trust this revival will go on through the year, and the indications are, it will. We had one conversion and addition by baptism last Sunday.

Mrs. Claude Isaacs, one of our fine ladies of the church, underwent a major operation last Saturday, but is doing fine at this time. All of us wish for her a speedy recovery, and hope to see her back in her place in the home and in our church soon.

Klondike Baptist Church has just enjoyed one of the greatest revivals in her history. Brother Clyde Campbell was our preacher for the meeting and the good Bible messages he brought stirred our hearts. I don't believe this church will ever be the same again. Our vision has been enlarged, and we have been inspired to undertake greater things for our Lord and His Church.

All of us regret the accident that happened to Mr. Rip Spraberry in his being burned, but he is doing fine, and we trust he will be home again soon. We are missing him around here, and hope to have him with us again soon.

The pastor is in a revival at Shumake this week, and we desire your prayers for the meeting.

Wilson and Klondike churches extend to you a cordial invitation to attend their services.

The Churches with a friendly welcome.

Ernest Phillips, Pastor.

END OF A CHASE, SIGHT UNSEEN

GREENVILLE, S. C. (AP) — "What's going on up there?" demanded Deputy Sheriff A. C. Gossett when, upon entering a suspected bootlegger's house quietly, he observed a pair of legs standing on a platform, the top portion of the body in the attic.

"Don't bother about that," said the partially invisible one, "just hold these for me."

He started passing down fruit jars of illicit whisky.

Gossett waited until all jars were handed down and then set out for headquarters with the attic explorer and the fruits of his exploration.

Registrants Who Are Deferred Urged To Help

All Selective Service registrants in Texas who have been deferred from military service were urged today by General J. Watt Page, State Director, to offer their full assistance to State and local civilian defense agencies.

Many young men have been granted deferments because of their occupations, because they are dependents, or because they are not physically capable of undergoing service in the armed forces, General Page said. Nevertheless, he added, they are qualified to perform some work in connection with civilian defense activities and should offer their services to existing agencies or those which are being organized.

By granting certain men deferment, Congress, when it adopted the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940, gave no indication that gaps in Scurry, Borden and Fisher Counties will lead to early federalization of the roadbed, and to subsequent utilization as a military route between Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and Fort Bliss, near El Paso.

British Invasion Of Europe Would Mean Big Losses

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer

WASHINGTON — Will the British army invade German-controlled Europe at any time in the predictable future?

The various answers one gets from military men all add up to "NO!" Some feel the British might dress up a small raid or two as an invasion attempt, if their losses could be held to a minimum. But the few have no deep convictions.

I can state definitely that the British air command agrees with other branches of the service that a full-scale invasion attempt against the Germans this year would have no better than a 1-to-3 chance. It would, therefore, run the danger of going down in history as a futile raiding party. Annoyance to the Germans would be the only result.

Invasion talk is prevalent at this time only because it serves a propaganda purpose, in the view of well-informed observers, and it's based on the idea that the Germans will hear the talk, and prepare for invasion, even though they are convinced it will NOT come.

The basic reasoning behind the British high command's refusal to consider invasion at this time, lies in military principle. Any force attempting to establish a beach-head must count on losing perhaps 600,000 out of every million men thrown into action. Even if the force should establish a beach-head, it would be exhausted, and the problem of winning the breach would be even more serious than the original attack.

The stream of death notices to parents, sweethearts and friends would damage morale, perhaps wreck it, if the invasion should fail in the end.

From the point of view of the British government, the first duty of a prime minister and his military advisers is to defend the homeland. That means the British must conserve men and materials for a full scale defense, especially since the target for the Germans is concentrated, and therefore invasion is somewhat simpler from their point of view and from their spring-board.

What, then, can the British do? They can continue to blockade the Germans by air and sea, and blast continental industries from the air, now that their naval force is buttressed by command of the air over Western Germany and France. These are slow, unspectacular methods of attack. The public cannot see victory when it's coming at a snail's pace. But the ultimate results might be the same, especially if the British keep up the drumfire of bombs, hold tight the steel chains of blockade, and the Germans might be doing without butter and beef steak, but in the end, the effect of denial is the same as the drip-drip of water on the brow of a prisoner. After several thousand slow drops have hit him in the forehead, each additional drop feels like a sledge-hammer blow. The Germans know this. They're trying to achieve the same results with counterblockade.

British forces can continue also to fight for the strategic outposts of empire, restrict Germany to land victories in Europe. They can constantly demonstrate their control of the world's sea highways, especially for the benefit of Axis partner Japan.

They can make minor raids against the German-held coast, too, especially around Murmansk, where they have a fighting chance to keep open the supply road to Russia. Finally, there's Russia.

If the Germans should close off Murmansk, the best feasible route of British attack against Germany would be up from the Middle East, where supplies and man-power could move the year round. The Russians could hold the Germans somewhat short of the Volga this fall, there would be a chance for Britain, with American aid, to use the Caspian door.

British empire men and American material could pour in from the south by sea and land, and actually join a continental ally still fighting Germany. The effort probably would first take shape as guerilla warfare—sneaking raids on Germany's stretched communication lines. But losses should be negligible.

At the "right moment," huge armies could be rallied to take the offensive. Meanwhile, Germany would be required to squander men and materials in Russia to meet the constant threat of attack. This would lessen their remaining forces for invasion of the British Isles.

Therefore, the eyes of military men are on the Caspian sea. And they ask: Are the Russians willing to make the further huge sacrifices required to hold off the Germans? The Germans obviously see the open door in the south, too. They've thrown their major weight against the Ukraine at last, in an obvious maneuver to close the Caspian door before winter comes.

FOR THE SUPERSTITIOUS
FORT JACKSON, S. C. (AP) — When members of the 113th field artillery band signed the payroll their black cat mascot, Pete, leaped upon the table and strutted across. Then three musicians reported minor accidents. Sergeant Ed Parker got wored his daughter had appendicitis, and a brigadier general, a lieutenant colonel, a major, two captains, two first lieutenants, and two warrant officers showed up to inspect the unit. Peter was put out of quarters for 24 hours.

Soil Conservation Surveys Made On 5,000,000 Acres

Detailed soil conservation surveys covering more than five million acres of farm and range land in the Southern Great Plains were made by technicians of the Soil Conservation Service during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1941, according to H. G. Lewis, in charge of the physical surveys for the Service at Amarillo. This was in addition to approximately ten million acres that had been surveyed prior to July 1, 1940.

The conservation surveys made by the Soil Conservation Service were plotted on aerial photographs used as a base map and show in detail the soil type, slope, the extent of erosion and the present use of every field on the farms surveyed. The surveying was done at a cost of approximately 18 cents an acre, according to Lewis.

On the High Plains of West Texas and the Oklahoma Panhandle, approximately 1,800,000 acres were covered by the detailed surveys during the year, bringing the total area surveyed in this section to about 5,000,000 acres. In addition to the detailed surveys, reconnaissance surveys were made from several Soil Conservation Districts in West Texas and a flood control survey was completed on Wolf Creek in the north Texas Panhandle and the Oklahoma Panhandle, during the year. The reconnaissance and flood control surveys show considerable less detail than the conservation surveys, but are useful to county land use planning committees, to flood control committees, and others doing land and resource planning over large areas.

The detailed surveys are used widely for farm planning by the Soil Conservation Districts, CCC camps and technicians of the Soil Conservation Service working on the Department of Agriculture's water facilities program, and for other types of farm planning work. These Soil Conservation survey maps show in addition to the physical factors as mapped on the field, classes of land according to use capability, indicating the most intensive or maximum utilization of the land. The type of soil, the slope of the land, the amount of erosion that has taken place, and the past use of the land all are important factors in determining what the land can best be used for in the future and the conservation treatments needed in order to maintain permanent productivity.

"There is just as much difference in soils as there is in people," Lewis states. "Most farmers recognize this fact but sometimes fail to realize that you can treat different soils in the same manner and get uniform results."

"The conservation surveys made by the Service show a complete inventory of the soil resources of the farm or ranch on which they are made, from which a sound plan of conservation farming can be developed," he continued.

"Farmers often notice a difference in crop yields on various fields of the farm or even on parts of the same field. Sometimes the cause for this difference in fields is obvious and other times it is not so easily explained. It may be due to a difference in the type of soil or to a difference in the amount of run-off water. It may be the humus supply in the soil has been exhausted. The purpose of the survey is to bring out all these factors in a clear inventory so that long-time farming can be developed on a sound basis."

Now Is Time To Stop Land From Blowing

"The time to stop land from blowing next winter and spring is this summer," C. H. Emmons, Jr., Agriculture Engineer of the Soil Conservation Service states.

"The only sure way to keep land from blowing during periods of high winds in late winter and the early spring is to nail the soil down with some type of vegetative cover. A dense stubble of sorghum crops is probably the best and surest protection, especially on fields that have been blown severely during recent years. Growing wheat on the land will do the job, provided the wheat makes sufficient growth during the fall and winter to cover the land. Increasing the humus content of the surface soil by plowing under stubble straw and other types of crops residue helps, and in most cases will control wind erosion," he continues, but he warns that if fields have been blown severely in the past, a sorghum crop should be planted this summer in time to make sufficient growth before the freezing weather in order to give the soil protection next winter and spring.

"Next year may be another wet year, in which case the wind erosion problem will not be so serious on most of the land in Dawson County," the conservationist states.

"However, farmers who have land that has been blowing in the past can't depend on receiving big rains again next year, and plans should be made now to get sorghum stubble or some other cover on the land as protection against erosion."

New York, N. Y. (AP) — Alice Frost, radio actress, returned from her honeymoon and began reading the accumulated fan mail. It included an even dozen proposals of marriage.

"Box" Silo Is Good Substitute For Trench Silo

A "box" silo, built above ground, is a substitute for a trench silo in regions where the land is more or less level and keeping water out of a trench is a problem.

E. R. Eudaly and M. R. Bentley, respectively dairyman and agricultural engineer of the A. and M. College Extension Service, suggest two methods of constructing such a feed container: One—build two parallel levees of dirt any height and width desired, then fill between the levees with silage and cover with dirt. This sometimes is called a trench silo upside down. Two—in places where lumber is cheap it might be advisable to build the upside down trench out of lumber and tar paper. This is called a "box" silo.

The specialists say that it is not advisable to build a "box" of smaller dimensions than four feet between walls, six feet high and 20 feet long. Lesser space between the walls would be hazardous since a little spoilage at the edges would be too high a percentage of waste. A minimum height of six feet is suggested because of settling and the possibility of some spoilage on top. If the silage settles a whole lot there might be a high percentage of spoilage.

Width and height may be as much as desired beyond the minimum footings as far as keeping the contents of the silo is concerned. But the width should be regulated according to the number of livestock to be fed, the specialists advise. At least five cows are necessary to obtain the most success from a "box" silo.

The posts should be three feet apart in the row if one inch lumber is used, but it may be as much as 4 and one-half feet apart if 2-inch lumber is used. Ship-lumber is best for siding, but rough sawed lumber may be used provided it is laid so that the inside of the wall will not be so rough as to break the lining paper. Tar, or asphalt, paper, is recommended for covering the inside of the wall, and No. 9 galvanized steel wire, or the equivalent in strength, to tie the posts together at the top.

The silage at the open end of the box should slope from the ground to the top of the wall so that the end may be covered with earth. Only two or three inches of earth may be used provided oats or barley is planted in it, and the earth kept moist until the grain makes enough growth to form a good root system and hold the dirt together to prevent cracking.

Brooklyn, N. Y. (AP) — Pete Reiser, star Brooklyn outfielder and hitter, can round up a good sized cheering section by just inviting his brothers and sisters to the park. Pete has five sisters and 2 brothers.

Dr. Cox Says-

Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, calls attention to the fact that fair grounds that have been lying idle the greater part of the year are now taking on activity as they are being made ready for fall festivities.

Community and county fairs may present many health hazards when the standards of good sanitation are not properly maintained. Civic authorities and community leaders should give careful consideration to the following suggestions which are designed to protect the health of those who will visit the fair.

1. Any water supply available for drinking or culinary purposes on the fair grounds should be of a safe, sanitary quality. 2. Any water found unsafe for human consumption on the grounds should be either eliminated or purified by a process recommended by the State Department of Health or should be kept posted with placards definitely warning persons against its use.

3. Insect proof pit privies or water flush toilets with a system of sewage disposal approved by the State Department of Health should be provided and should be maintained in a clean and sanitary condition. Separate installations for men and for women should be provided to adequately accommodate all persons attending or using the fair grounds.

4. Supervision and equipment sufficient to prevent littering of the grounds with rubbish, garbage, or other refuse should be provided and maintained. Insect and rodent traps, depositories for such materials should be provided and conspicuously located. These depositories and any final disposal should not be permitted to become foul smelling, unsightly or breeding places for vermin and rodents.

5. All food stuffs stored or offered for sale should be protected from contamination by suitable covers. The term "food stuffs" includes both raw and cooked foods, candy and any other food not sold in single service sanitary containers except food in the process of cooking.

6. Single service cups, dishes, spoons and drinking straws should be protected from contamination. All glasses, cups, knives, forks or dishes that are subject to repeated use should be thoroughly washed after each use by cleansing with hot water and soap and then placed for three minutes in water heated to 170 degrees or for two minutes heated to 180 degrees F.

7. All drinking beverages not bottled should be kept in sanitary containers from which liquid may be removed only by sanitary faucets. "Wise indeed are those communities that will give these minimum sanitary standards careful consideration in order to protect the health of those participating in community fairs or those who come to visit in their town," concludes Dr. Cox.

SHRINKAGE

NEW YORK (AP) — Determined to lose some excess poundage during his summer sojourn in Vermont, the rather stout gentleman decided the quickest way would be through labor on his farm. So he went to the general store to buy a pair of loose, comfortable overalls. As the clerk was wrapping up the blue jeans, a sudden fear struck the city farmer. "Wait a minute—those fit me now, but I expect to lose a lot this summer. Maybe I better buy a smaller pair." The clerk shook his head, continued to wrap the overalls, replied, "Mister, if you can shrink as fast as these you'll be doing pretty good."

GRATITUDE: Kingstree, S. C. (AP) — When a prospective bridegroom asked the Rev. C. W. Cantrell for a loan of the price of a marriage license the minister didn't have the correct change and handed the youth $1.00; 50 cents more than required. Then the fellow not only took his bride elsewhere to have the knot tied but evidently used the extra four bits on his honeymoon.

"Stop Accidents" Is Rallying Cry

"Help Defense—Stop Accidents!" is the rallying cry issued by the Texas Safety Association in its role as state coordinator in the nationwide campaign against accidents launched by President Roosevelt.

By proclamation the President called on every American citizen to devote maximum effort to a "concerted campaign against accidents which are wasting the manpower and resources so sorely needed for national defense."

The statewide campaign against accidents on the highways, on the farms, in industry, and at home will be waged by more than 30 organizations cooperating with the Texas Safety Association.

"The importance of helping defense by stopping accidents cannot be overemphasized," said George Clarke, managing director.

"For example, the traffic toll for the Labor Day week end holiday is expected to take the lives of 27 Texans, permanently disable 71 persons and injure some 900 others. The economic loss for the three day celebration will amount to more than one million dollars!"

"The prediction is based on the accident trend of this year and the accident rate for the same holiday period last year.

"Translated in terms of the defense program, four bombers could be built with the economic loss of the Labor Day holiday alone.

"Help Defense—Stop Accidents!" is a patriotic appeal which every Texan should heed."

13,398 MILES ON 5-QUART FILL OF OIL in the Certified DEATH VALLEY DESTRUCTION TEST

CERTIFIED I hereby certify that the Death Valley Test and related work were thoroughly and fairly conducted. Engine Destruction occurred in each case at the mileage stated.
A. H. Jaellin
Consulting Engineer, who during Academic year is Professor of Automotive Engineering, Purdue University

Revolutionary New Oil tested against 5 other big brands. 6 new cars Destroyed to prove Economy and Protection.

The oil that reeled off an amazing 13,398 miles on one regular fill, in blazing Death Valley, was proved to be an oil of the Nth degree—an oil of new high character... Hence its name:

CONOCO Nth MOTOR OIL

This dramatic test, supervised impartially and Officially Certified, was simple, yet harsh. 6 identical new cars were taken to Death Valley—where the heat hits record highs. 5 of these cars were each assigned a different widely-known, highly advertised motor oil. The sixth car used new Conoco Nth motor oil.

Each car was broken-in on a brand assigned by lot. Then, one 5-quart fill of this same oil went into the crankcase—kept under lock. The cars were driven 57 miles an hour until oil failure cracked up each engine—utterly wrecked it! All of this under impartial official scrutiny, as was every step in the test, right on through the dramatic finish.

Here is what happened

New Conoco Nth oil went 13,398.8 miles. Not another oil came within 5,883 miles of this. One outstanding oil failed 8,268.6 miles sooner than new Conoco Nth motor oil. So it outdistanced the five competing oils by 74% to 161%.

Why this Astounding result was possible

New Conoco Nth motor oil contains a Conoco-originated synthetic (U. S. Patent 2,218,132) called Thialkene inhibitor. An inhibitor in motor oil acts pretty much as an inhibition acts on you. Inhibitions hold you back; police many actions. And so Conoco's Thialkene inhibitor polices Conoco Nth oil... arrests pollution that otherwise comes from normal operation. And that's your aid against a dirty engine with inferior lubrication.

Are you an OIL-PLATING "fan"?

If you are, more power to you! Don't for a minute feel let down, for Conoco Nth also contains the famous synthetic that OIL-PLATES engines. OIL-PLATING comes from the magnet-like attraction that keeps it bonded to inner engine parts, so that it can't all quickly drain down to the crankcase—not while you're using Conoco Nth oil. This same famed OIL-PLATING is still yours to guard against wear.

Because of OIL-PLATING and Thialkene inhibitor, one 5-quart fill of new Conoco Nth oil went an astounding 13,398.8 miles. Of course, you'll never Death-Test your Conoco Nth oil in sinister Death Valley, nor repeat any other proving-ground tortures. You'll still drain and refill at the intervals recommended by qualified authorities. But how you'll expect to stretch the distance before you ever add a quart, judging by this big fact:

5 heavily advertised oils in the Certified Death Valley Test were out-miled 74% to 161% by Conoco Nth oil. Economy like that counts up into dollars! Change to Nth oil today at Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station. Continental Oil Co.—Pioneers in Bettering America's oil with Synthetics

Weedy Barb a Despoiler of Sheep Pelts and Meat

SPRAN-POINTED SEEDS of wild oats, needle grass, poverty grasses, foxtail, and bromes spell trouble in summer and fall for shepherds in the western states.

Carcases and pelt (1), pierced by the sharp awns, are cut to half value or less. (2) At first, the awns can be spotted (in circle) by parting the fleece, but having passed through the pelt (3) they make a pin cushion out of it. By painstaking work the awns can be cut out singly (4), much in the manner of trimming out pinfeathers, but often whole strips of meat must be sacrificed (5), so that the carcass is rendered unsightly (6).

"Weedy Barb," to give it a name, is an affliction grazing animals contract on ranges and pastures infested with awn-seeded grasses. Mechanical injury around the eyes and mouths of grazing livestock is frequently noticed, but in sheep the pelts and carcasses, pierced by thousands of barbs of weedy seeds, take a market loss of fifty per cent or more.

The sharp awns, or sheaths encasing the seeds of wild oats, little and wild barley, foxtail, bromes grasses, needle grass, poverty grasses, and others, break off in the fleece of sheep, work their way through the hide, and lodge in the flesh. Increase of the trouble in recent years has given rise to buyers' reports of "wild cat lambs" from western states, particularly California, Oregon, Arizona, Montana, and Idaho.

In the green stage these forage plants are succulent but in late spring and summer the seeds ripen and the rough awns catch in the wool of sheep. Then, as one packing house buyer relates, "every movement of the animal seems to propel these needles deeper until they reach the flesh itself, where they fester and cause bloodshot circles an inch or two in diameter."

Some of the animals die, literally stuck to death. The pelts of others, looking like pin cushions, have no market, and may be carried a year before bringing $2.50 a dozen as No. 2 seedings.

"When lambs are killed within a month of the time the seed barbs lodge in the wool, the carcasses are severely trimmed by government inspectors," the buyer states further, "which usually leaves a badly mutilated cutter worth about one-third as much as the ones free of grass."

Good management of herds, range, and pastures are the only effective preventive measures, buyers and experiment station specialists alike declare. Lambs may be sheared before the seed is ripe. Sheep may follow cattle which have been allowed to graze the weeds down early in spring before the spear points can develop. Ranges and pastures loaded with weeds at maturity should be avoided, especially in late summer and fall. Single night bedground on the range should prevail and permanent bedground avoided. Open herding should be followed, close herding avoided, and dogs used as little as possible, all to prevent close contact of the entire flock with weedy patches.

In pastures, control of the weeds, most of which are annuals, is simply done by cultivation, and on open lands grubbing out is often resorted to, or soon after the plants have blossomed they are cut or burned.

Will That Feud Between Roosevelt And Wheeler Be Among The Famous?

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
AP Feature Service Writer

WASHINGTON — The feud between the President and Montana's "Bulldog" has become the No. 1 political animosity of the battle-ridden Roosevelt administration. It may turn out to be one of the classic enmities of American political history.

Since the days when silk-stocking Thomas Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton almost came to blows in the cabinet of President Washington, the voters have been stirred by history-shaping feuds of "big shot" politics.

Senator Wheeler, long a rough and tumble political fighter, has been the generally recognized leader of the opposition in President Roosevelt's two most spotlighted struggles—over the Supreme Court enlargement plan and over the country's war policies.

War, the threat of war and party splits have dramatized the nation's famous political antagonisms. Most of these feuds have been between members of the same party. One deprived Maine's brilliant James G. Blaine of the Presidency.

Secretary of State Jefferson and Secretary of the Treasury Hamilton frequently were on the verge of fist-cliffs during cabinet controversies over the rights of the individual and the separate states as against those of the federal government, with Hamilton the proponent of a powerful federal central government.

Although Federalist Hamilton and Republican Democrat Jefferson were said to have tried to remove each other from the cabinet, neither leader publicly indulged in rabid verbal onslaughts upon the other. Their duelling, fist-fighting followers, however, tossed torrid invectives.

Federalists, shouting for war against the France to which Jefferson was friendly, thus toasted the new President, John Adams: "To Adams, may he slay thousands of Frenchmen with the jawbone of Jefferson."

Republican Democrats called Hamilton "an English monarchy-loving Tory" and spread malicious stories of "his affair with a Mrs. Reynolds."

The break between President Andrew Jackson and his vice president, John C. Calhoun, came in "an era of political hydrophobia." Calhoun resigned as vice president and won a seat in the senate when Old Hickory took a strong stand against "nullification." States-Rights Calhoun held that if an act of Congress seemed unconstitutional to a state, the latter might properly suspend or "nullify" operation of the act within its jurisdiction.

When Calhoun's South Carolina "nullified" a tariff act, Jackson issued a proclamation of warning to the people of the state, ordered a naval force to occupy Charleston harbor and said privately he would make Calhoun the first victim of any open conflict.

Calhoun lashed at the "spoils system" under Jackson and supported a senate resolution which censured the President for removing government deposits from the United States Bank.

One legend has it that Jackson's dying words were: "I should have hanged Calhoun."

Roscoe Conkling, Republican boss of New York, twice thwarted the popular James G. Blaine's attempts to win the G. O. P. presidential nomination. And when Blaine finally was nominated, Conkling's failure to support him prevented his election.

The feud started while both were members of the House of Representatives. On one occasion when Blaine was making a speech, Conkling interrupted him several times. The annoyed "plumed knight" said Conkling "strutted like a gobbler" and resembled a "singed cat." The New Yorker never forgave him for that.

When Blaine was running against Cleveland for the Presidency, he sent an emissary to ask Conkling's aid in the campaign. The latter's answer was: "I have long since given up the practice of criminal law." Cleveland nosed out Blaine, winning New York state's electoral vote by a slim margin.

The break between Teddy Roosevelt and President Taft, erstwhile warm friends and political allies, split the Republican party wide open in 1912 and resulted in Woodrow Wilson's election. Teddy started shooting at the conservative policies of the Taft administration. Taft, in a speech at Boston, accused T. R. of adroit appeals to discontent and class hatred. Administration supporters at the meeting sang: "We'll hang Teddy to a sour apple tree."

The Rough Rider exploded, charging Taft with being "disloyal to every canon of fair play." Alluding to his selection of Taft as his successor in the White House, Teddy remarked: "It is a bad trait to bite the hand that feeds you."

The Republican convention re-

Workers Warned About Social Security Numbers

Workers who go from town to town and work on defense projects or in private industry were urged by Robert M. Mayne, manager of the Big Spring office of the Social Security Board, to cooperate with their employers and the Board by having their social security account numbers recorded at each place they work.

"If your employer should fail to request your social security account number, you will be doing him a favor, as well as yourself and the Board, by reminding him of this oversight and showing him your number in order that he may copy it for his records. This will insure proper credits on your old-age and survivors insurance account."

A typical case is where an employer fails to get the worker's account number at the time his name is placed on the pay roll, and the worker leaves the service of the employer to accept employment elsewhere before the account number is recorded. Mayne said, "This results in extra work and considerable expense to the Government, as well as inconvenience and annoyance to the employer in trying to locate the man in order to ascertain his correct account number.

nominated Taft. Progressive Republicans bolted and nominated Roosevelt on the "Bull Moose" ticket. The jovial Taft, who despised squabbles exclaimed: "This wrenches my soul." The ebullient Teddy, who loved a scrap, said: "It's a bully battle."

"The employer must have the worker's account number in order to make out his quarterly wage report to the Collector of Internal Revenue. Unless this is done, the worker will not receive credit for all his wages from which he is building up old-age and survivors insurance. That is why it is important that an employer have the account number of each individual employed," Mayne said.

It was further pointed out that a worker should have but one social security account number which should be kept in a safe place in order that he may know what it is and where to find it.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Koger returned this week from a two weeks' vacation in Colorado.

You Never Saw 'Foreigners So Thick Before

By JACK STINNETT AP Feature Service Writer

WASHINGTON — As the world unconquered by Hitler shrinks, the diplomatic world in Washington expands.

Burrowing into the memories of old-timers, I find that there never was a time—not even during World War I—when there were so many "foreigners" in Washington. Some embassy staffs have increased a thousand-fold. There are purchasing commissions, "good neighbor" commissions, special military and naval delegations and attaches, secretaries and clerks.

One should start with the British embassy, purchasing commission, etc. but I'm not going to. I'm going to start with the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. Only a few months ago, Amtorg, the Russian purchasing agency in this country, was running out of work and about half of its staff was sent home. The embassy staff slipped below levels of any recent years.

Now the embassy staff has 15 accredited diplomats; Amtorg boys are coming back, and what is happening to the clerical and secretarial staff is mushrooming. The luxurious old Pullman mansion, built from the sleeping car fortune, is now the Russian embassy. A few months ago, it looked like a haunted house. Now it looks like a weekend excursion.

Not only that but the Russians have taken over another spreading mansion on Military Road, just off Rock Creek park, and it too is brimming with activity as well as bristling with a couple of radio towers that stretch skyward to bring the latest news and diplomatic code from Moscow.

It is ordinarily a quiet, sleepy neighborhood, but not any more. Stopping in at a little house a few hundred yards away, I was informed by the "landlady" that she would like to ask me in, but that all her rooms were occupied and in order to take care of the tenant boom, she had established her own quarters in the basement.

But the increases in the Russian, Norwegian, Greek, Australian, Chinese, French and other delegations are only a drop in the bucket compared to Great Britain. British employees, both American and English, now number in the thousands, and on K Street Northwest is the new British employment agency, busily devoted to nothing but placement of workers in the various missions and commissions. Veteran civil service officials have been brought over from London to supervise.

I have counted 24 different commissions and agencies now representing Great Britain here.

Long ago the huge British embassy on Massachusetts avenue was filled to overflowing and when the British Purchasing Commission dumped its duties here, they had to take over floors in the Willard Hotel. They lasted less than a fortnight. Official Washington had hardly caught its breath before the English took over the swank apartment house where the late Andrew Mellon once lived.

Since then, it has been touch and go and the English now are scattered through half a dozen other buildings.

Oddly enough, all of this vast expansion in the diplomatic corps has been attended by a great decline in diplomatic social activity. In the first place, the folks from abroad are too grimly busy. In the second it's too difficult to tell whether the friend of today might be the enemy of tomorrow—or vice versa.

The social amenity that is observed—and religiously—among the British workers and their bosses—is teatime. Every day at 4:30 from Lord Halifax down to the lowliest office boy, work halts for a cup of tea and a bit of cake.

GETS JOB DONE
SUPERIOR. ART. (AP) — It was not quite up to what he'd expected but Fire Chief Bat Gays conquered his first blaze last night—with a tea kettle.
The new chief smelled smoke and traced it to a tourist cabin where a mattress was burning. He put out the fire with a tea kettle of water and revived a smoke victim with artificial respiration.

Hapless Lobos Continue To Win Some, Lose Some

The Lamesa Lobos have met with humiliating defeats during the past four games, dropping two to Big Spring and two to Amarillo, moving them into a tie with Lubbock for fifth place.

The Big Spring Bombers came to town Monday and Tuesday nights and they brought their best pitchers, as well as their rabbits foot for luck, and they made the Lobos look like sandlotters in winning the first game 11 to 2 and the second 13 to 3.

Amarillo dusted the locals off in the Helium City Wednesday night winning both ends of a double bill, with young Delbert Thurman, Lamesa boy, winning the second game for Amarillo.

Kirby Jordan, who has been playing right field for the Lobos almost all season, asked for his release Sunday and it was granted to him, so that he might join the San Diego Padres in the Pacific Coast League. He finished his service with the Lobos in the second game Sunday. His big stick at the plate has been sorely missed by the local team, but fans and directors alike are glad that he has the opportunity to get a berth in better baseball. The Pacific Coast League is a AA set-up, just below the majors.

The Lamesa club will be on the road until next Monday when they return for a double header with the Big Spring Bombers to end the season.

Big Spring, Berger, Clovis and Amarillo look like the top four and the teams that will go into the Shaughnessy playoff to decide the pennant winner for 1941.

With the fan interest in baseball waning, local sports are beginning to eye McCollum Field and start wishing that the football season was underway.

WATERMELON KING
 Without doubt, J. W. McDonald is really and truly the Watermelon King of West Texas, for this week he gathered a melon from his farm ten miles west of Lamesa that weighed exactly 80 pounds. The melon was grown in the 9 1/4 with no irrigation. It was the round variety and thin rined.

FRANKLIN COUNTY REUNION
 The sixth annual Franklin County Reunion will be held in the City Park at Big Spring on Sunday, September 7th. This is an excellent time and place to meet some 300 or 400 of the folks from home again.

Be there with your basket lunch, says Finley Moore, secretary. Barbecue has been arranged again this year.

Mrs. G. H. McDonald of Abilene is visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McDonald this week.

Soldiers Given Opportunity To See The World

Under recent regulations young men entering the Army through their Selective Service Boards have no chance of seeing the world. It is only by an enlistment through the Regular Army Recruiting Service that the young man's normal appetite for travel and adventure in foreign lands can be satisfied. The U. S. Army Recruiting Station at Lubbock, (with sub-stations at Amarillo, Plainview, Pampa and Dalhart) now has many vacancies for service in the Hawaiian Islands and the Philippine Islands and young men registered for the Selective Service but who have not been called are eligible for enlistment in these vacancies.

For service in the Hawaiian Islands there are the following vacancies: Infantry, Coast Artillery Corps, Field Artillery, Corps of Engineers, Medical Corps and Ordnance Department.

For service in the Philippine Islands there are the following vacancies: Infantry, Coast Artillery Corps, Field Artillery, Quartermaster Corps, Medical Corps, Ordnance Department and Chemical Warfare Service.

These vacancies are something new, heretofore, it has been the policy of the War Department to send no one to Foreign Service with less than one year's service. Now a young man can enlist for one of these vacancies and be sent to Foreign Service without delay.

There are only a few of these choice vacancies left so young men desiring to travel and see the world should apply for enlistment at the nearest recruiting station without delay.

Mrs. Raymond Bryant of Brownfield spent Tuesday in Lamesa shopping and visiting with relatives and friends.

Mrs. Nelson Williams, Mrs. Buster Davis, and Mrs. Hardy Jones visited with friends in Big Spring, Monday.

Mrs. Sam Jenkins, Misses Eleanor and Elizabeth Duff, Kathleen Webb and Elmerine Barron spent Thursday in Lubbock visiting friends.

Lamesa Chain Stores To Aid In Stamp Sales

More than a thousand chain stores in Texas became agents of the U. S. Government in selling national defense savings stamps today, it was announced by A. D. Emory, manager of the J. C. Penney store here.

"The chain stores want to make the purchase of stamps easier for persons who do not customarily go to banks or post offices," Emory said.

In making plans for putting defense stamps on sale at the chain stores, company executives worked out the program with federal officials in charge of the sale of defense savings bonds and stamps in Texas and with the state savings staff, on which F. T. McCollum is Dawson County chairman.

"Chain stores can reach a class of people who can't be reached thru the banks or post offices," Frank Scofield of Austin, Federal Administrator of the sale of defense savings bonds and stamps in Texas, said.

C. B. Roberts of Dallas, president of the Texas Chain Stores Association, said that chain store cooperation in the sale of defense savings stamps was requested by the U. S. Treasury and first tried out in Michigan, where more than 12,000 chain units and independent stores are now selling the stamps. Many stores in Michigan are selling more than a hundred dollars worth of stamps a day, he said.

Texas chain store companies who are selling defense savings stamps and will have them on sale at their counters regularly hereafter include Safeway Stores, J. C. Penney Company, Sears, Roebuck & Co., F. W. Woolworth Company, W. T. Grant Company, H. L. Green Company, Melville Shoe Corporation, Martha Washington Candies, Western Auto Supply Stores, S. H. Kress & Co., McCrory Stores, National Shirt Shops, Duke & Ayres, C. R. Anthony Company, Adams Hat Stores, Edison Brothers Stores, Lerner Shops, Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, Montgomery Ward & Co., Walgreen Drug Company, Nelsner Brothers, J. J. Newberry Company, United Cigar-Whalen Stores, Liggett's Drug Stores, Franklin's Ladies Ready-to-Wear Stores, and McLeishan Stores.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kelsing are the parents of a baby boy born August 25.
