Farmers throughout the country are being urged by the Government to increase the production of foodstuffs, especially milk, cheese and eggs, during the coming year. The increase is needed to supply England and our own country during the emergency.

Farmers in this area have an advantage over other sections because of the cheese factory here. There will be no lack of market for the increase in milk production here. It won't be like it was a few years ago when the farmers in an effort to diversify got cows, sows and hens to supplement their incomes and found after a short time there was no market for all of their products. Now the cheese factory will supply a market for the milk—all the milk that is produced. The locker plant and curing room will provide a place to keep the meat, and there is always a market for eggs. Fortunately indeed are the farmers of this area in having their own cooperative market.

If You Own A Truck Let The Government Know About It

Austin, November 30.—Survey of motor transportation facilities within the state began to produce effective results the past week as F. Thayer Stoddard, Director of the Texas Division of the National Truck and Bus Inventory, reported having received completed forms on forty-one per cent of the ESTIMATED number of buses and trucks in the state.

Lynn B. Shaw, General Manager of the Texas Motor Transportation Association, said tabulations had been run on 119,000 returns, and that officials in charge of the survey hope to secure reports on at least 75 per cent of the trucks and buses operating in the State. A special effort is being made to get data on all privately owned school vehicles.

Of the total number of questionnaires mailed out, 45,000 have been returned by the Post office for better addresses. Almost all of these failed to reach the truck or trailer owner because of change in address since the vehicle was registered, or due to registration having been made in one county when the owner resided elsewhere.

Shaw emphasized the fact that the government must have information on trucks and trailers in order to plan production to meet all requirements under the defense program. Completed forms should be mailed to War Department, 607 Highway Bldg., Austin, Texas.

Two Factors To Govern In Increasing Dairy Production

Denison, Texas, Dec. 2.—Two factors—scientific feeding and strict observance of Federal and state sanitary regulations as they apply to the Dairy Industry will determine the success and profit with which Texas dairymen meet the national demand for milk production.

Commenting on these two vital points, A. J. Riddle, president of the Texas Dairy Products Association says, "To obtain the 14 per cent increase in milk asked by the government it will be necessary for Texas dairymen to give more thought to scientific feeding than ever before. You can feed a profit into a dairy herd but you can't starve one into it. The maxim of the Texas dairy cow might well be, 'I'll give, if I get! Starving a dairy cow does not necessarily mean depriving the animal of sufficient forage and water to cause death. It means through lack of proper concentrates and balanced rations the starving of the sensitive organic structures with which she produces milk."

For these reasons the dairyman should check carefully and scientifically the rations on which the dairy herd will go in to the barn on this winter. The tremendous crop of homegrown grains and ensilage are but a portion of the dairyman's answer to his feeding problem. To constitute a profitable dairy ration these must be fortified with proteins and minerals, the better and more varied, the more certain the result.

On the other hand it is folly to increase production and then through lack of proper sanitation have the milk turned down at the receiving station. This practice has already cost Texas dairymen untold numbers of dollars. Our Association is urging that dairymen study all bulletins and literature issued on dairy feeding and consult their county agent freely. We are also urging that they give the same attention to sanitary regulations and close observance of the rules set out for the handling of milk. These things call for serious thought on the part of the Texas dairymen if he is to enjoy to full advantage and meet the required contribution to National Defense."

NEED A NEW MILK BUCKET

College Station, Nov. 29.—Word that priorities officials in Washington have granted a preference rating to manufacture of dairy equipment has been received by E. R. Eudaly, dairy specialist of the Texas A and M College Extension Service.

The rating applies to such hot dip tinned and tin-plate products as milk cans, pails, strainers, and cream cans.

Steel is so necessary to defense needs that civilian use of the metal is being sharply restricted. The priorities officials, however, apparently realize the importance of milk in the Food-Freedom campaign.

Only enough steel will be allocated to produce the 1,340,000 milk cans needed for normal replacements plus 6.8 per cent to handle the additional eight million pounds of milk called for in the U. S. Department of Agriculture's national production goals for 1942.

"I don't usually like to holler 'but now', Eudaly commented, 'but this is one time the defense agencies want farmers to figure out their needs and to buy or order as soon as possible. Seems that will help manufacturers to estimate their steel needs."

Manufacturers will be required to get the cans and utensils to the milk producers before next spring, according to the terms of preference order.

NAVY RECRUITING CRUISER TO VISIT COLORADO CITY AND SWEETWATER

Observance of "First Line Defense Day" in Mitchell and Nolan counties will take place at Colorado City next Monday, December 8, and at Sweetwater Tuesday, December 9, when the huge U. S. Navy recruiting cruiser visits those cities. The cruiser requires 50 feet of parking space and has a crew of five petty officers. The cruiser will be anchored in the business district in both cities and open for inspection of the public until 9 P. M.

Chief Printer Ray Lockey, in Loraine last Tuesday in connection with advance arrangements for the cruiser's visit, said that a "display" will be shown all who visit the cruiser. Parents and relatives of men in the Naval service are especially invited. Chief Lockey said.

Visit of the cruiser to Colorado City and Sweetwater is being sponsored by the American Legion as part of the Legion's program of observance of First Line of Defense Day.

W. H. Wiggins of Cuthbert has opened the Rock Service Station formerly operated by Jack Walker. Mr. Wiggins will handle Conoco products and will be glad to see his friends.

METHODIST CHURCH

The pastor and his wife wish to express their gratitude to the church and the citizens of the town and country for the cordial reception we have received at the hands of the community.

The friendliness of the people as a whole is more sincere and wholesome than nearly any place we have ever been. The wife of the former District Superintendent told Mrs. Raney that Loraine was one of the finest charges of its size in the conference. Rev. Long, the present Superintendent, told us at Sweetwater Monday night that he was on this district two years ago and he had no less to say for the great spirit of the church and community. We can confirm all this in our observations.

We are glad to know that the Shewberts are so universally liked and they are happy and rushed in their new work.

Next Sunday is the first Sunday and we shall have our services as proscribed by the church and we trust that we may come prepared for a deeply spiritual hour.

At the church Wednesday night at the conclusion of the services the church had arrangements made for a surprised and well arranged feature, pounding for the parsonage dwellers. It was a liberal offering consisting of the best quality of foods and dry goods, from many members and friends of the church. We are grateful for this kindness and the parsonage pantry has assumed a swelled up appearance. This is a very fine supply for the parsonage larder. Thanks. Come when you can.

Tuesday night was a sub-district meeting of the Methodist Youth Fellowship at Sweetwater at the Highland Heights Church. Mrs. Martin, the sponsor, was unable to attend, due to sickness in the family and Mrs. Miles went in her stead. The pastor, wife and 11 youth went. We all had a refreshing time, a good program, with a chance to visit the Shewberts.

Monday night Mr. and Mrs. Meade with three ladies accompanying them, gave a very informing and inspiring service at the Methodist Church with some motion pictures of Palestine and Egypt. Mrs. Meade having been in these countries at the time and with the ones who took the pictures could relate the incidents of interest connected with the pictures as they were shown. Mr. Meade is the maker of the famous Meade bread we eat so much here.

After the program Mrs. Johnson, Sr. had a reception and tea for the visitors, the pastor, wife and some ladies of the church at her home, which was a very suitable culmination and conclusion of the evening's events.

On Sunday afternoon, December 7, the local PTA has arranged to show in the high school gymnasium, starting at 2 o'clock one of the most unusual talking motion pictures ever made. The title of the picture is "Golgatha" and it is the first and only talking motion picture ever made of the famous Passion Play. This motion picture presents the immortal story of the crucifixion of Christ in a spectacular and impressive manner. Critics everywhere have acclaimed it the greatest picture of its kind ever made. This remarkable picture should be seen by every man, woman and child in this community. A complete set of the finest talking motion picture equipment will be brought to this city for the showing of "Golgatha."

"Golgatha" is not an ordinary motion picture. It is a spectacular and thrilling entertainment. In addition to being a highly entertaining and interesting picture, it also renders an outstanding moral, religious and educational service to every community in which it is shown. Golgatha is one of the most costly pictures ever produced. The making of the picture required a cast of thousands of people.

The picture Golgatha covers the entire story of Christ's last days on earth, beginning with the first Palm Sunday and carrying through the trial before Pilate and Herod, the crucifixion by Judas, the Crucifixion, resurrection and Christ's words to his Disciples. The picture opens with Christ's triumphal entry into Jerusalem.

Children reported with messes this week are Hugh Elliott, Billie Joe Martin, Ecel Mae Cheek, Patsy and Peggy Beatty, Jo Ann Leggett, Bobbie and Wayne Reddin, Arvis Crockett, Barbara Anne Tally, two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Simmons, little son of Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Britton, Elaine James, Charles Kidd, Jean and Wynwone Reese, and the little son of Rev. and Mrs. Polnac.

DOTED LINE Honeymoon

By JOSEPH McCORD

THE STORY SO FAR: Larry Cutter started pretty Jacqueline (Jack) Anthony, public stenographer at the Hotel Baymont, by telling her she could realize her globe-trotting ambitions by marrying him. They were married after sign-

Jacqueline's relief was unspeakable, but already she was face to face with a problem that must be solved within a short time. What must she do when Vince left the hospital? She could not take him home with her to her little apartment, and he could not go back to that dreadful room in Elder street. He would need care for a long time perhaps. How could she manage that? And there was all this expense. Dr. Kennedy's bill.

The cash from that bond presented only a temporary solution. It was merely a loan. And that reminded her . . . Vince's second week was up. She would settle that on her way out; that would be one less worry.

It proved to be one more. The clerk at the cashier's window thumbed hastily through a file and extracted a card.

"This account was settled today, and an advance of one week paid on the room. This envelope was left with me when I came on duty. I believe it is your receipt."

There were two pieces of paper in the envelope. One was a statement from the hospital, including the operation expense and a week's additional rental for Vince's room. A rubber stamp indicated the account was paid. Dated today.

The other appeared to be a leaf torn from a memorandum book, scrawled over with a man's handwriting:

"Received from Miss Jacqueline Anthony, even date, the sum of two hundred dollars ($200.00). Account in full. Thanks. Erasmus Kennedy, M. D."

Larry, of course. Jacqueline stuffed the receipts into her bag and left the building. Her first reaction was a hot resentment. Larry had no right to place her under obligation that way. It had been hard enough to do what she had for Vince . . . swallowed all her pride. All this was involving her more deeply in . . .

In what? Perhaps Larry meant only to be kind. But this hurt . . . she gave a little gasp of consternation. It hadn't occurred to her before. If she insisted upon paying these bills, she would be forced to do it . . . with Larry's money!

How could she ever have become enmeshed in such a net of circumstances? But she would have this out with Larry the very first time there was a chance to talk to him. Jacqueline gave up the puzzle with a tragic little groan that was very nearly a sob.

Unfortunately for her peace of mind, there was no sign of the errand Larry Cutter during the ensuing days. He might be in hiding, for all she knew . . .

But you would think he would be sufficiently interested to want to hear about Vince, how nicely he was getting along now.

Vince's improvement was the only bright spot. In another week or so, Vince would be leaving the hospital. And for . . . where?

That problem struck her with renewed force when she called to see Vince that night. He was propped high in his bed. He was smoking, and waved a cigarette at her cheerfully.

"Hello, Skipper!"

"I am better. Feel fine. And I had a caller. A friend of yours."

"Who, Vince?"

"Mr. Cutter. He was here almost two hours. Seemed to know you pretty well."

"Oh, yes . . . We're quite good friends."

"Where'd you meet him?"

"He's been staying at the hotel for quite a while . . . off and on. I've done quite a little work for him."

"He's a nice fellow. And he's an engineer, Skipper." Vince beamed.

"I don't know when I've met a fellow you could talk to the way you can with him. He's got a head on his shoulders. Smart as a whip."

"Do you think so?"

"I'll say. I was telling him about my new invention. He was so interested and seemed to understand so well what I was trying to do that . . ."

"Vince smiled a trifle sheepishly. 'I guess I spilled pretty nearly the whole works to him. But I know he isn't the kind of a fellow to try to do me out of anything.'"

"Oh, I'm quite sure he wouldn't."

"That's the way I size him up . . . especially since he's a friend of yours." Vince lowered his voice.

"Cutter says I'll be making a big mistake if I don't go ahead with this thing. I wouldn't wonder a bit if he'd help me launch the blamed thing . . . get it started, you know."

"I wouldn't worry about it yet," Jacqueline suggested cheerily, trying to hide the dismay she felt. Suppose Vince were to accept Larry's help! She knew from a long and bitter experience about those "inventions."

"You must get well and strong again before you even think about work."

She resolutely changed the subject until the time came for her to take her departure.

As she reached the street, a tall

"I thought you'd be coming out about this time," Larry said, smiling. "Busy for a little while?" Without waiting for an answer, he tucked his wife's arm through his and started across the street. "The car's over here," he explained.

After they had left the hospital behind, he offered:

"I had a sort of sneaking idea you were set to give me a lecture, so I thought I'd be obliging. How about it?"

"I do want to talk to you," Jacqueline said soberly.

"And you thought I was keeping out of your way." Larry had a disconcerting way of figuring things out. "Shoot."

"I don't know what to say . . ." Jacqueline began unhappily. "Of course I want to thank you first of all for paying those bills . . . for Vince . . . but . . . but I wish you hadn't."

"I don't see why, my dear," Larry said. "I can't think of any better use of money than taking worries off your shoulders."

"That's just it!" she cried softly. "Can't you see that . . . that it hurts?"

"I'd never hurt you, Jack. I just want to . . . help—By the way, I hope you don't mind my dropping in watching him. She cashed one of the bonds when her father, Vince Anthony, needed an operation. When she visited him she was greatly relieved to learn the operation was successful.

Now continue with the story.

roadster into the weeds at the side of the thoroughfare and cut off the motor.

"Well, here . . ." He leaned forward, staring intently past his companion.

A little exclamation of delight escaped Jacqueline. There, in the brightly lighted clearing, stood an unusual house. It was long and low, with four former windows set in its steeply pitched roof.

The entrance door was shaded by a porch adorned with heavy, square columns. On either side of the main structure, an ell. Bathed in moonlight, the clapboard walls appeared as white as though freshly painted.

Even the windows, many of them with shattered panes, seemed able to hide their scars.

"Larry! What a beautiful little home!" Jacqueline said breathlessly. "What a shame that no one is living in it. Has it been empty long?"

"Ever since we lost it. The owner never used it."

"But, Larry . . . that high wire fence looks as though it were new."

"It is," was the grim retort. "Brand-new."

"Why do you suppose it's there? It even has barbed-wire on the top."

"Yes. I've noticed. The owner must have decided that he didn't want anybody fooling around there."

Larry leaned back in his seat, filled and lighted his pipe and sat smoking in silence. Jacqueline sensed that he was thinking deeply and did not disturb him. She resumed her study of the old house, trying to picture how it must have looked in former days, how it would look now with the soft glow of lamps shining from the black windows.

There should be climbing roses over those columns. She would clear away the encroaching underbrush, build a wide, velvety lawn . . . take away the tumble-down stable in the rear. And that disfiguring fence. It seemed to run . . .

"Larry!" She whispered his name, catching at his arm. "There's somebody standing in those bushes over there. I . . . I saw him move!"

Larry shifted his position slightly and leaned forward, one arm resting on the wheel. "Hey, you, over there!" he called sharply.

A deep silence followed. Jacqueline held her breath. The bushes rustled and the dim figure of a man appeared. After standing uncertainly for an instant, he strode forward. He was a short, heavily set man wearing a sweater pulled up about his neck.

"That will do," Larry ordered brusquely. "What's the big idea?"

"Just what I was going to ask you, mister. You're on private property here. Better go somewhere else to do your neckin'."

Jacqueline felt Larry's arm grow tense.

"We have been admiring the house," he answered, quietly. "Do you happen to know if it is for sale and who owns it?"

"Don't know."

"It doesn't look so valuable. I should think that fence would be protection enough without you . . ."

"That ain't none of your business. You'd better be movin' on."

"Please!" Jacqueline whispered. Larry chuckled as he started his motor.

"What a dreadful looking man!" she gasped. "He's a guard or something, isn't he?"

"Has all the earmarks of one. That seems to be a valuable piece of property . . . Maybe I can't have it, after all."

Jacqueline pondered that remark in silence. Larry made another turn.

"What a beautiful house that is over there!" Jacqueline exclaimed. "Yes, that's some joint. By the way, it's where the present owner of Fairlawn lives."

"Fairlawn?"

"Yes, the former Cutter castle. My mother gave it that name."

"It's a pretty name. But I thought you didn't know the owner's name. You asked the man who it was, didn't you?"

"Sure, I know. I was just seeing how much the gentleman would talk."

Jacqueline laughed. Then they were silent.

"Larry," she said suddenly, "I can't help wondering something. That man who owns your house . . . is he a friend of yours?"

"I wouldn't say that, exactly. What's on your mind now?"

"Something. Lieutenant Staples said to me. I didn't tell you before, because you didn't ask. But he did say that there was someone . . . And then, when I saw the way that house was guarded . . ."

"Fine! You do read mystery stories, after all."

Jacqueline subsided with a distinct feeling of disappointment. Larry wasn't going to tell her anything, after all. But she was satisfied of several things now. The same man who was having Larry watched was the owner of that house. It was Larry whom he was trying to keep off the property, out of the home that had been his father's.

CONTRASTING OUR TAXES

WITH ENGLISH SYSTEM

THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT wants jobs for its people; it wants industry to produce merchandise for export so it may have credits abroad against which to purchase food, raw materials and war equipment, and it wants cargoes for its ships. To encourage industry, it levies low taxes on corporations and, including those whose revenue comes as dividends from corporations.

In this country, Secretary Morgenthau has advocated confiscation of all corporation profits of more than 6 per cent on the invested capital.

A Minneapolis corporation with an invested capital of $3,490,000 earned and paid out in dividends in 1940 a total of $1,140,000. Under the 1940 law, it paid in taxes a total of $273,600. Under the law as proposed by Mr. Morgenthau, it would pay $930,240.

If that company were operating in England, with the same amount of invested capital and the same earnings, it would pay at the present time a tax of only $57,000. But in England each stockholder would have paid a tax on what he received as a dividend. That tax would have been deducted from his dividend check and would have been the same per share whether the stockholder owned one or many shares.

The individual pays instead of the corporation. The individual knows definitely how much tax he pays.

Directly or indirectly, we Americans own our American corporations. We provide the capital invested in the tools with which industry operates. The taxes they pay is paid with our money, but we are not supposed to know that. Figured on either a per capita or dollars earned basis, we pay a higher tax than is paid by the English people and that is another thing we are not supposed to know.

To me it seems the English way is the more honest and more conducive to national welfare.

PRICE RISES FAST

RECENTLY a woman went into a Chicago store to look at house dresses. She found one that suited, but wished to look elsewhere before buying. At another store she found the same dress, but the price was some 10 per cent higher. She hurried back to the clerk who had shown her the dress at the first store, saying she would take the dress she had looked at but a few minutes before.

"It will be about an hour before I can sell you that dress now," said the clerk. "And then the price will be higher. All dresses in that line have been taken away for today's mark-up."

"That is what is happening practically every day in the great mercantile establishments of the cities. The prices go up while you wait. Is that an evidence of inflation?"

UNION LABOR LEADERS will not be satisfied until every man and woman who works pays a union for the privilege of working.

'PORK BARREL' OF YESTERYEAR AND TODAY

IT WAS NOT so long ago, as time is measured, that I, as a boy, listened to the discussions of governmental affairs by the farmers and townspeople as they sat around the stove in the general store in the Iowa village in which I lived. The most frequently discussed subject was the "pork barrel," the rivers and harbors and public works appropriations made by congress.

Well do I remember an item of $10,000 in one of those appropriations for deepening the channel of the Des Moines river where it ran through our village. It was acclaimed as wise legislation, but other items for equally unimportant projects were severely condemned. They did not mean additional dollars to be spent locally.

What was true of the American people in those days is still true. We look at the activities of government from a selfish viewpoint. We approve of any activity that means a profit or benefit to any of us as individuals or to our locality, regardless of its need or value to the nation.

Farmers and town people are still discussing governmental activities and expenditures in thousands of American villages. Where appropriation items were once stated in terms of thousands of dollars, and totals in limited millions, the individual items are now in terms of millions and the totals in billions.

The figures are too great for those rural critics to comprehend. They cannot visualize such sums, but they are not alone in that. Their representatives in congress, the men who vote for such expenditures, have no realization of what a billion dollars mean. If we, their constituents, could appreciate just what such appropriations mean to each of us, the discussions of former days would be riots of today. It may be well for us that we do not know.

The "pork barrel" of yesteryear has become a great vat of today.

Barnum Had Plugged Holes And Was in the Money

When P. T. Barnum, as a young man, left Danbury, Conn., to make his way in the world, he left numerous unpaid bills behind him. To one creditor the imaginative showman said with great intensity: "I'll pay you what I owe you as soon as I get rich."

The other laughed and eyed the youth disdainfully.

"That will be when a sieve holds water," he jeered.

But in a few years the master showman was well on the road to success, and with great satisfaction wrote the man the following note:

"Dear Sir: I have fixed that sieve."

Junior Flashes--

The Seniors seem to have enjoyed the Thanksgiving holidays to the fullest. Everytime you looked around you saw a Senior or maybe more with some Ex L. H. S. students.

We have two new students, they are C. D. Holland, from Bartley Woods High School, and Wanda Smith, from Cisco High School. We are proud to have both students.

There wasn't very many Ex's at the Homecoming, but we hope those who came enjoyed it. We, the Seniors, want to thank every one who helped in anyway in giving our Homecoming. Especially we want to thank Mr. Williams; Mr. Corse and the Band; Mrs. W. R. Martin, and her choir group; Alleen Hallmark; Leon Duke, Mrs. Ison; and all the Seniors, who helped, especially the program committee.

This week is the beginning of the 3rd 6 weeks of school. Many happy and interesting moments have come to us Seniors and we are planning more.

M. D. Cheek, is improving rapidly and we are hoping he'll soon be back in school, after his operation.

All the Seniors, in football, pep squad, or the band, are all ready for the Football Banquet. Probably we will have the banquet in the next few weeks.

Be looking for this column next week, for the Senior news.

Sophomore News--

My! but we sure did enjoy those turkey dinners we had during the holidays. We were all so thankful that we could have turkey as we realize that people in Europe don't have the many blessings that we have.

Now that Thanksgiving is over our minds have turned to the thought of Christmas. Some more than usual and they have handed me some letters that they want me to hand to Santa Clause.

Dear Santa,
I have been a good little boy all year. Will you please send me an Algebra class that can pass the test I give them.
Your friend,

Dear Santa,
I have been a very good little girl and there is only one thing I am asking for and please send it to me. Please send me a curly headed boy whos nick name might be "Chick."

Your friend,

Dear Santa,
I have been a good little girl, I have gone to Church nearly every Sunday. Will you please send me a little Betsy-Wetsy doll.

This is all for this time but look for the "Sophomore Sayings" again next week. Goodbye--

Senior Flashes--

Well "hello" everybody. The Juniors are happy because six weeks tests are over. We all passed them. (We hope).

The measles are going around school pretty fast. Two Junior members, Hugh and Bernard, have the measles. We will be glad when they get to come back to school.

Well, our practice on our Junior play has started. It really is a good play. The name of it is "Cyclone Sally". When we have this play we want everyone to

Texas Merchants Enlist For National Defense

Sixty thousand Texas merchants have been asked to sell defense savings stamps to six million Texans—and they have responded with a campaign designed to put defense stamps on sale at retail counters in every store in the state. Representatives of retail associations in all branches of the industry met in Austin to chart the program, which will be directed by the Texas Retailers for Defense Committee. In the picture, left to right, are: Charles T. Lux, Austin, secretary of the Retail Merchants Association of Texas; H. F. Dill, Dallas, secretary of the Retail Furniture Association of Texas; Frank Scofield, Austin, State Administrator of National Defense in Texas; Albert L. Walters, Dallas, secretary of the Texas Chain Stores Association, committee chairman; Dr. W. J. Danforth, Fort Worth, secretary of the Texas Pharmaceutical Association; and Roger Q. Flournoy, Dallas, secretary of the Texas Retail Grocers Association. Other members of the committee are P. D. Moreland, Austin, secretary of the State Restaurant Association of Texas, and J. H. PROCLAMATION by the Governor of the State of Texas
No. 3505

To All To Whom These Presents Shall Come:

The State of Texas, like the Nation, is confronted with a rapidly rising traffic accident toll. At the present rate, the total number of deaths from automobile accidents this year will exceed 2,000. Some 60,000 persons will have suffered non-fatal injuries.

It is of small consolation that the increased death toll parallels a like increase in mileage traveled a factor attributed to the defense program. The fact remains that the State and Nation can ill afford this appalling waste of human and material resources through traffic accidents, particularly in this period of unlimited national emergency.

These unusual times require unusual safety efforts.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Coke Stevenson, Governor of the State of Texas, do hereby urge a concerted and intensified campaign against traffic accidents during the month of December when it is predicted 195 persons will be killed in traffic. To this end I hereby call upon the Texas Safety Association to coordinate civic effort with the official safety work of the State Department of Public Safety, the State Highway Department, and the State Department of Education. I further urge every citizen, in public or private capacity, to enlist in this campaign and do his part to make our streets and highways safe.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the official Seal of State to be affixed hereto this 24 day of November, A. D., 1941.

Like the faint, far call of bugles the trail cries of the coonhounds float across the ridges these nights.

And it is with shame and regret that I admit to owning not one coonhound with which I might join in the sport.

Used to, when I was a kid, before Life nurlled me into the savage, relentless battle to make a little place for myself in this world and to provide the bare necessities of livelihood for my family, I owned coonhounds, good ones, the best in the country. I thought. Don't all coonhound men think the same.

In those days, I lived the abundant life through the coon hunting season, merely existing in between times. In those days, I used to hunt with Charlie

Sanders. Charlie was a bachelor and had one squint eye—from squinting through the sights of a squirrel rifle. Mama used to tell me. Charlie hobbled around in old worn out shoes; but at that, he could travel faster and further than lots of men on a good horse.

Charlie always kept good coonhounds. And when we got together, our hounds made the woodland ring with our music in the dead of the night. And the coon that meant to escape our dogs had to drift far and fast and cover his trail well.

I was with Charlie the night our hounds put a big old boar coon in Little Charlie Lifeste's mud cattle tank and the coon drowned one good dog and Charlie went to the aid of the others with an axe and had to fight the coon in swimming water and sometimes the coon was on top of Charlie and sometimes on top of a hound, riding it under again.

Kid-like, I stood on the bank with my heart in my throat and watched the fight for life. And when Charlie finally swam out dragging a dead coon and two half drowned hounds, I hurried to build up a fire and dry him out, knowing that he was the most valorous hunter that ever followed the hounds. Nor has my sense of values changed in that respect.

I was with Charlie and Papa the night we hunted with a pack of hounds and one black fiest and the hounds treed a coon and the fiest went up the tree after it and Charlie shook out the fiest, thinking it was the coon, and the dogs piled on the little creature and tried to tear him apart while Charlie slid down the tree to its rescue. And Papa swung a pole in the dark, aiming to beat the hounds off the fiest, and hit Charlie over the head, knocking him cold.

And the coon leaped out and escaped.

It's recollections like this that make me ashamed to own that I don't have a coonhound.

Sometimes I wish Mama had let me grow up in the woods where I could have continued my happy life of running wild with a pack of coonhounds.

Some day I hope to be able to

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.
Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

THE NATURE AND WORK OF THE CHURCH

LESSON TEXT—Acts 2:41-47; Ephesians 4:11-16.
GOLDEN TEXT—Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it.—Ephesians 5:25.

The church, which is so much the center of life for Christians, is not as well understood as it should be. We have come to regard it as just one organization among many competing for the attention and interest of men, when it is really a divine, living organism established by Christ as His Body and representing Him in this world. Our lesson presents significant truth for both study and teaching. The church is

I. A Fellowship of Believers (Acts 2:41-47).

The church is made up of those who are saved (v. 47), those who have received the Word by faith and witnessed a good confession of their faith in Christ (v. 41). This is a fact to be remembered in a time when there is so much laxness in receiving members into the church. It is not a religious or social club. It is not a rallying place for those who wish to work for some economic, political, or social project. It is not a gathering of good people who wish to share common interests.

The church needs to cleanse its rolls of all unbelievers, all hangers-on, and get back to the purity which it had when only those were received who were manifestly "added" by the Lord (v. 47). Such folk have many interests which bind them together in fellowship, devotion, and service. The early church was interested in sound doctrinal teaching (v. 42), an excellent thing. They had fellowship in prayer (v. 42); we need that too. They had gladness of heart (v. 46); do we not need a renewal of the song of the Lord in our midst?

They had such fervent love for each other that they established a communal system of sharing with one another, something which God had never commanded and which apparently failed with them, for it was later abandoned. But the point is that they really did love each other and thus showed their true discipleship (see lesson of last Sunday).

II. A Center of Christian Ministry (Eph. 4:11).

The church is God's chosen depository for spiritual gifts, among them being the special ministries mentioned here. The Holy Spirit calls men as He chooses. Blessed is the church which recognizes His choice of teachers, evangelists, preachers, and leaders and gives them liberty to serve the Lord in their calling.

III. A Place of Spiritual Growth (Eph. 4:12-16).

The purpose of the gifts of the Spirit is the edifying and building up of believers. A church should always be evangelistic in its efforts. The pastor should be a soul-winner, but essentially his ministry is to edify and instruct believers that they may go out and win others to Christ.

Verses 13 to 16 tell us how this "perfecting of the saints" moves forward. There is unity of the faith and a growth in knowledge, a steadfastness which keeps believers from being led astray by error or the cleverness of men. Thus kept from drifting, and being steadily enriched in knowledge of the truth, the believer grows up to spiritual manhood. Do not miss the beauty and helpfulness of verses 15 and 16. Like the body "fitly framed and knit together," the church of Christ is to be a perfectly co-ordinated organism, every member performing its perfect service in building up the body in love for the glory of its Head—Christ.

This figure of the Church as the body of Christ and the working together of the members for the glory of the Head is further developed in Corinthians 12, which the reader is urged to consider, especially verses 12 to 27.

Watching to See

With the Christian who takes the deep true view of his religion as a guide in all earthly matters, material or spiritual, there is never any feverish, blind-alley skirmishing in the face of threatened ill. He just waits vigilantly, trustfully, upon God, ready to do His will the moment it is made clear to him. "I will watch to see what He will say to me." Watching to see! In those telling words lies the whole secret of the thing that mystifies non-religious folk so completely—the inviolate calm and courage with which real Christians meet the worst adversities that can befall them in this world.

Christmas Baking Begins With Luscious Fruit Cake!

(See Recipes Below.)

Holiday Fare

Christmas is something pretty special, I'm sure you'll agree, and as such deserves something pretty special in the way of food. To my notion the fruit cakes and plum puddings are that special something with their handsome brown, fruity richness and delectable flavors.

The charm of both these kinds of delicacies lies in their ripened, mellowed flavors which come only with proper aging when the spices, fruits, nuts and butter blend themselves into mysterious goodness. So bake the fruit cakes and puddings in advance and give them a chance to acquire their best in flavor.

While you're about the big business of making a fruit cake, bake several small cakes in small glass or pottery dishes to give as gifts. Gaily decorated with sprigs of holly and mistletoe and holiday ribbons they make a perfect gift.

Dark Fruit Cake.

(Yields 10 to 12 pounds)

- 12 eggs
- 4 cups sifted flour
- 2 cups butter
- 1 pound brown sugar
- 2 pounds raisins
- 2 pounds currants
- 2 pounds pecans
- 1 pound citron
- 1 pound almonds
- 1 teaspoon each, nutmeg, cinnamon, mace
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 1/4 cup canned peach juice
- 6-ounce glass jelly (blackberry, currant or grape)
- 1/2 cup cream

Wash and dry raisins and currants. Blanch almonds, drain and cut with pecans into quarters. Cut citron into thin slices. Place fruit in large mixing bowl. Sift flour, measure and sift with spices and mix with fruits until well-coated. Cream butter and sugar, add beaten eggs and jelly. Stir in flour and fruit alternately with fruit juice first, then cream.

Line pans with heavy waxed paper and butter slightly. Fill pans almost to the top. Bake small loaf cakes 3 to 3 1/2 hours at 275 degrees. Bake large loaf cakes 4 to 4 1/2 hours at 250 degrees. Cool.

Cool cakes on a rack. When cool, wrap in heavy waxed paper and store tightly.

If you prefer the lighter fruit cakes, why not try this less rich but just as elegant cousin of the Dark Fruit Cake:

Light Fruit Cake.

(Makes 3 1/2 to 4 pounds)

- 1 1/2 pounds mixed crystallized fruits (cherries, pineapple, etc.)
- 1/4 pound mixed lemon, orange, citron peels
- 1/4 pound blanched, chopped almonds
- 18 maraschino cherries
- 1/2 cup diced preserved ginger
- 2 1/2 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder

Line pans with heavy waxed paper and butter slightly. Fill pans almost to the top. Bake small loaf cakes 3 to 3 1/2 hours at 275 degrees. Bake large loaf cakes 4 to 4 1/2 hours at 250 degrees. Cool.

Reuben James, Forgotten

WHEN the radio flashed word recently that a ship of the United States navy had been torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine, it rescued from the obscurity which had engulfed it for more than a century the name of one of America's "forgotten heroes" and gave it world-wide fame. For the destroyer, which now rests on the bottom of the Atlantic with its crew of nearly 100 officers and men, victims of the modern "pirates," was named in honor of Reuben James, "common seaman," who once distinguished himself by an act of gallantry and self-sacrifice in a battle with the pirates of another era in the annals of the sea.

That was away back in the early days of the republic when we were at war with the Barbary pirates of the north coast of Africa who had been preying upon American commerce for years. On August 3, 1894, young Captain Stephen Decatur led his command of three gunboats into the harbor of Tripoli to attack some of the pirate ships which had taken refuge there.

Out to meet him came six enemy boats, all of them manned and armed twice as heavily as the American craft. Undaunted by the odds against him, Decatur urged his crews to grapple with the pirates and board their boats. The battle immediately resolved itself into a desperate hand-to-hand struggle.

gle in which the pikes, axes and cutlasses of the Americans were pitted against the scimitars and daggers of the corsairs.

Within a short time Decatur and the crew of the gunboat which he commanded personally had cleared the deck of the pirate ship. But bad luck had overtaken the captain's younger brother, James Decatur. The leader of the pirate boat which he boarded had pretended to surrender, then had shot James Decatur through the heart. Seeing this, Captain Decatur, mad with rage, shouted to some of his men to come with him in pursuit of the murderer. Another officer and 10 men responded to his call and within a few minutes they overtook the enemy's ship.

Led by Decatur, they sprang aboard and cut their way through the corsairs toward their leader. The captain, a giant of a man, swung savagely at the young American with a pike which he was using as a broadsword. Decatur, trying to cut the blade of the pike from the shaft, snapped his cutlass at the hilt. Dropping his useless weapon, he closed in, seized the pirate captain around the waist and back-heeled him for a heavy fall.

As the two struggling men went down on deck, one of the pirates rushed forward and raised his scimitar to deal the American captain a death blow. But before the weapon could descend, Reuben James, although badly wounded, sprang forward and threw himself across Decatur's shoulders. The keen blade of the long, curved sword slashed across James' head, inflicting a terrible wound. But he had saved his commander's life.

James eventually recovered. Later when asked to name his own reward, he is said to have scratched his scarred and battered head and murmured bashfully: "If it's all the same to you, Cap'n, let somebody else give out the hammocks. It's a business I don't like." And with that classic remark Reuben James steps off the page of history, his name to be all but forgotten until 137 years later when a German torpedo sent his namesake to its watery grave.

In a certain sense, Reuben James' heroic self-sacrifice was in vain. True, he saved Stephen Decatur for even greater service to his country later. But it is also true that he saved his commander's life only to have him lose it as a victim to the code duello which Decatur hated but which he was not brave enough to disobey. So in 1820 when his erstwhile friend, Commodore James Barron, who believed that Decatur had slandered him, challenged him to a duel, Decatur met him on the "field of honor" and died from the wound received there.

Prunes, stuffed with cottage or cream cheese and put in the refrigerator early in the day make a perfect salad ingredient for dinner.

Mops, dustcloths and brushes give best results when they're kept clean. See that such equipment is thoroughly washed, rinsed and aired, frequently.

To keep brass or metal door knockers, doorknobs and andirons shiny, apply a thin coat of colorless wax to them. You can do the same to brass candlesticks and other ornaments.

When opening a new pattern write the number of the pattern on each piece. No matter how scattered the pieces may get, you will know to which pattern they belong.
