Reds Smash Kustrin Line

Nazis Say Soviets Reach City, And Units Lunge Ahead Toward Stettin

By W. W. HERCHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Saturday, Feb. 3.—The Soviet high command announced last night that Russian troops in a 15-mile smash through the Kustrin-Frankfurt defense arc had rolled to within 51 miles of Berlin, while the Germans said the Red Army already was attacking Kustrin and had reached the Oder river at new points only 38 miles from the imperilled Reich capital.

Simultaneously, the right wing of Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First White Russian Army penetrated to within 36 miles southeast of Stettin, the Baltic port for Berlin, threatening to cut off a 13,500-square-mile sector of Pomerania, the Polish corridor and Danzig territory.

Driving For Stettin

This stroke, a two-day 19-mile fighting advance northwest of fallen Landsberg, was aimed both at lessening the danger of a German flanking attack against Zhukov's Berlin-bound central spearheads, and also at the eventual seizure of the prize ports of Stettin, Gdynia and Danzig.

Berlin said that Soviet tank forces had begun attacking Kustrin, 40 miles northeast of bombridden Berlin, after coiling around northwest of that ancient fortress city and reaching the Oder river 39 miles or less from the Axis capital.

Other Soviet forces to the south were reported to have reached the Oder river on both sides of Frankfurt, 16 miles south of Kustrin and 38 miles from the capital. Berlin indicated that some Soviet units, perhaps patrols, already had crossed the icy Oder in this area.

May Outflank Kustrin

Moscow's communique announced the capture of Alt Limmritz, on the southern side of the Warthe river 10 miles east of vulnerable Kustrin. In this advance along the Warthe the Russians were threatening to outflank Kustrin and take it from the rear.

Late German broadcasts said that the Kustrin garrison was in close quarter combat with Soviet units attacking the town along the northern flank of the Warthe.

Although the Russians did not officially place their troops at the rim of Kustrin, dispatches from Moscow said the Soviet artillerymen already were pumping shells into that city, which, with Frankfurt, form the last major barriers before Berlin.

Nazi Hub Captured

Eight miles south of Alt Limmritz the Russians made their greatest gain of the day, plunging 15 miles straight through heavily reinforced German lines and capturing the seven-way communications prize of Drossen, 14 miles northeast of menaced Frankfurt and 51 miles east of Berlin.

In taking Drossen the Russians swept to within 10 miles of the ALLIED CAPTIVES FREED AS LUZON GAINS CONTINUE—Cross and circle locate Cabu, where American raiding party struck behind enemy lines on Luzon to free 513 Allied captives from a Jap prison camp. Friday reports listed capture of Cabanatuan, near Cabu. Arrows indicate American three-way drive to liberate Luzon, with penetration shown by heavy lines. Latest major gains are capture of Olongapo and Subic bay, and Sixth Army Yanks were nearing Malolos, below Calumpit, just above north end of Manila Bay.

Nazis Despair As Big Three Set Up Plans

By JOHN A. PARRIS
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 2.—There was every indication tonight that the fate of Germany was being decided by the Big Three somewhere east of London at an hour when a British government official said the enemy's people had "reached the depths of despair" and "anything might happen."

It was believed that President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Marshal Stalin were planning the final blows and the means of controlling the disorganized German homeland once victory is won.

Plans For Suppression

The urgency of the fast-changing military and political map brought under consideration, it was believed, detailed plans for suppressing Germany's aggressive powers forever.

A reliable source said Churchill was operating on the basis of reports from inside Germany that much of the political machinery there already had broken down and the process of decay had been accelerated further by Russian, British and American blows from east and west.

He was expected to ask immediate Big Three approval of plans for ruling the Reich.

In Depth Of Despair

One Whitehall official, discussing the situation in Germany, said "anything might happen" and added "reports we received show people have reached the very depths of dispair."

One reliable source said Roosevelt and Churchill would discuss the feasibility of transferring forces from Europe to the Far East. Roosevelt was understood to favor moving at least the greater part of the air force to the Far East as soon as Germany capitulates or its bombing targets are overrun by Allied advances.

Most quarters believed that Roosevelt and Churchill would not seek to bring pressure for Russia to join in the war against Japan.

Also up for discussion were American views on the "complete" and ruthless" abolition of German war industries and control of the country's future economy.

There was a belief in diplomatic quarters here that Russia would suggest that several million Germans be sent to Russia to help in reconstruction.

It was understood that the European Advisory commission's plans for controlling Germany after the war were based on the principle that military forces will be in absolute control of any occupied area for six months or more and that Allied civil government would then take over.

Reports reaching Churchill, it is understood, indicate a German plan to retreat south for suicide stand in southern Germany and Austria.

1,000 Square Miles

This resistance center was said to cover 1,000 square miles, embracing parts of Bavaria and Austria — mountainous country which would be difficult to storm and which would offer few good targets for bombing operations.

At the core of this area is a 100-mile stronghold centered on Berchtesgaden, which was reported to be heavily fortified and supplied for prolonged resistance.

Agreement on zones of occupation is another question before the conference.

The German Transocean agency said the Big Three meeting was at a Romanian port on the Black Sea and was "now in conference."

Two Main Siegfried Belts Are Smashed

Third Also Beats At Rhineland And Nazi Resistance Buckling In South

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Feb. 2.—The U. S. First Army assault carried it 10 miles into Germany southeast of Aachen today in a three-mile drive that broke through the first of the Siegfried line's two main defense belts at their widest part. This point is 33 miles from the vital communications center of Bonn on the Rhine.

The U. S. Third Army along the southern sector of the 40-mile front likewise was beating at the Rhineland's western defenses, widening its foothold inside the Reich to nine miles and seizing a village only five and a half miles from the fortress of Prum.

Buckling In South

Far to the southeast, French and American troops battered against buckling resistance into the center of Colmar, famed as the birthplace of the sculptor of the Statue of Liberty. (The Paris radio said Colmar had been captured).

The west bank of the Rhine was cleared of the enemy for more than 30 miles south of Strasbourg, more than 25 French towns had been liberated, the Germans' only Rhine railway bridge was hammered by artillery, and troops in flight were scourged by swarming warplanes.

While these drives rolled ahead, Gen. Eisenhower held a conference at an undisclosed point with Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, on "current operations" possibly presaging renewed Allied blows timed with the great Russian offensive from the east.

Bradley Command

(Thus far there has been no formal announcement of the return of Bradley to command of the entire U. S. First, Third and Ninth armies. Marshal Montgomery took over the parts of these forces north of the Ardennes during the battle of the bulge).

The U. S. Seventh Army with French units along the Rhine were shoving the enemy back 15 miles north of Strasbourg, and American forces had driven back north across the Moder river both east and west of Haguenau, Allied anchor on that front.

The Second Infantry division of Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First Army was in the van of to-

Nazi Bigs Fight Surrender Plea

By RICHARD KASISCHKE
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Nazi propagandists sought tonight to stiffen the German people against an expected "last surrender call" from the Big Three conference by warning of "political trickery in the decisive round of the war."

Neutral and German reports said that feverish preparations for defense of Berlin continued and a Moscow broadcast claimed that propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels already had deserted the capital with his propaganda ministry for Bavaria.

Victory Or Siberia

Dienst Au Deutschland, a publication of the German foreign office, told the German people that their choice lies between "victory or Siberia" and expressed the fear that the Russians might try to use the free German committee in Moscow politically against the Reich.

The German evening press denounced what it called the Big Three's "planned offensive against the war morale of the German people." Allied leaders were called "war criminals" and "arch hypocrites."

The Voelkischer Beobachter's headline said: "New gigantic swindle planned — Stalin, Roosevelt, Churchill want to outstrip Wilson." German broadcasts said the three were meeting in a "Romanian Black sea port."

The Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm Aftonbladet said that huge fires started by Mosquito attacks on Berlin last night and early today added to the gloom there as a "ring of trenches and tank traps around the entire city was being extended feverishly."

Salt Mine Fortresses

Unofficial reports reaching London from inside Germany said a connected series of salt mine fortresses near Berchtesgaden has been prepared as the possible final Nazi holdout position. The old salt mine caves were said to have been made gasproof and bombproof and capable of sheltering 100,000 men for months if properly stocked.

The caves were reported to be connected and fitted with a high-powered communications system with which the Germans could direct operations whereever fighting was in progress.

House May Clip Power Of FDR

By FRANCIS M. LEMAY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—House Republicans launched a drive today to deprive President Roosevelt of all authority to assign any powers to Henry A. Wallace except those of a trimmed-down Commerce department.

Republican Leader Martin, of Massachusetts, notified the House he would seek to amend the Senate's George bill to restrict the President's wartime power to reshuffle federal agencies. This would repeal a part of the war powers act.

Could Assign Agencies

"Unless we do that," Martin told newspapermen later, "the President could assign Wallace control over 25 or 30 federal agencies not now under the Commerce department.

The bill offered by Senator George (D-Ga) and passed by the Senate yesterday splits the Commerce department away from the vast lending agencies formerly administered by ousted Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones. To give the House time to act on this bill, the Senate has deferred action on Wallace's nomination to be secretary of commerce.

The House Banking committeemen indicated it would approve the bill overwhelmingly. The committee will vote on it Tuesday.

In the belief that the measure is virtually certain to become law, Washington began a game of speculating on big names — trying to pick the man who will handle the RFC's billions and the other lending functions, in a new office of loan administrator.

These were most prominently mentioned:

Fred M. Vinson, economic stabilization director; Joseph P. Kennedy, former ambassador to London; Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve board; and Henry J. Kaiser, shipbuilder.

If Joe Answers Call To Berlin It's True

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2. (AP) — The Navy — like the Washington press corps — was flooded today with inquiries checking up on rumors of a German surrender.

After answering a number of such calls, one navy officer quipped:

"Let's call Berlin. If Joe Stalin answers, it's true."

Limits Set On Beef Slaughter

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP) — Percentage limits for the slaughter of good and choice beef were provided today by the Office of Price administration in three zones.

The order established for February and March 75 per cent as the maximum percentage of good and choice grades of cattle that can be slaughtered in zones A and B and 50 per cent for zone C.

Zone A includes the mountain and west coast states; zone B the cornbelt and northeastern states, and zone C, the southeastern states, Oklahoma and most of Texas.

That part of Texas south of the 32nd parallel and west of the 103rd meridian is included in zone A.

The regulation means that a slaughterer in zone A or B must make up at least 25 per cent of his total kill with grades other than good or choice and a slaughterer in zone Cat least 50 per cent of the lower grades.

ONLY SMALL KILLERS MATERIALLY AFFECTED

FORT WORTH, Feb. 2 (AP) — Fort Worth packer said today the new Office of Price administration 50 per cent limit on good and choice cattle will have no effect on sizable slaughterers since the percentage of top grades of cattle marketed in Texas is small.

Small slaughterers who kill only good and choice grades for hotel and restaurant clientele will be affected and curtailment of their operations was expected to channel more top grade meat to packers who slaughter for government purchase.

The OPA here said the order means that in this area customs slaughterers can kill not more than 50 per cent of good and choice cattle for any one customer.

No Hits, No Runs, No Errors In Ector

ODESSA, Feb. 2. (AP) — Cupid can fume all he wants to over Ector county's marriage shortage but County Clerk Carl Akins says it won't do any good.

Akins says his office has been out of marriage license forms since Jan. 30 and the forms he ordered 30 days ago haven't arrived.

The harrassed clerk says all he can do is advise couples to try other counties—even in the face of the gasoline shortage.

Yank Drives Sever Jap Luzon Forces

Associated Press War Editor

American advances on all Luzon fronts, with one Yank force only 18 air miles from Manila's northern city line, were reported by Gen. Douglas MacArthur late Thursday.

On the northeast front the Americans pushed ahead 32 miles

IWO BATTERED AGAIN

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Forward Area, Saturday, Feb. 3 (AP)—Army Liberators bombed Iwo Jima in the Volcano islands 750 miles south of Japan Wednesday and Thursday, setting fires in aircraft installations, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

Iwo, from which Japanese aircraft have hit the Tokyo-raiding Superfort base at Saipan, has been on an almost daily bombing schedule.

to capture Cabanatuan, Santa Rosa and Gapan, while strong motorized forces penetrated to Sabang.

"This," said General MacArthur, "gives us dominance of all major roads and railroads in the central plains" and totally severs Japan's troops on north and south Luzon.

Yanks Near Malolos

On the front approaching Manila the Yanks were nearing Malolos, a road-rail center. Blocks on the main road in the Umingan sector gave the Americans complete control of the highway in the north-central plain. Heavy fighting was in progress on the outskirts of Umingan.

From the Olongapo naval base the Yanks pushed six miles across the mouth of Bataan peninsula. Japanese resistance was light.

In Batangas province the Americans secured their new beachhead, took an airfield, and pressed inland nine miles from Nasugbu. Many small Japanese ships were destroyed when they attempted a raid on the beachhead.

One Japanese destroyer was sunk and two severely damaged by medium bombers off northern Luzon. Yank fliers heavily hit the Cavite naval base and bombed Baguio and Camp John Hay in that mountain city.

Japanese losses on Leyte and nearby islands were boosted to more than 131,000 as MacArthur reported the killing of an additional 929 Nippon troops in further mopping up operations.

With American forces closing in on Manila from the north and the south the Japanese acknowledged Thursday that the war situation on Luzon island has taken "a further serious turn."

The Nippon agency Domei said the new Yank landings on the

Fall Of Manila Expected Soon

By JAMES D. WHITE
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP) — Hope ran high here today that Manila, capital of the Philippines, will be liberated in a matter of days.

Recapture will free nearly a million Filipinos reportedly on the verge of starvation and probably 3,600 American civilians who may be in equally squalid circumstances. Most of them have been interned at Santo Tomas university since early 1942.

Women And Children

A large proportion of the Americans are women and children, families of the businessmen, missionaries, engineers and others, caught there in 1941. With them are probably 900 other Allied nationals, mostly British. All probably are wearing the clothes they had on January 2, 1942, when the Japanese told them they were going in for a day or two "to be registered."

With American forces sealing off Bataan peninsula and converging on Manila through both the front door at Calumpit and the new backdoor landing at Nashgbu, the belief was growing here today that the Japanese garrison in Manila will put up a token resistance at best.

About 500 more Americans are interned at Baguio, near the northern American flank on Luzon, and another 1,500 at Los Banos, a town 40 miles southeast of Manila on the south shore of Laguna De Bay which lies in the path of the new landing force at Nasugbu.

Filipino refugees from Manila who have reached the American lines recently have told a uniform story of "famine conditions" in the city, with the poor dying daily in the streets.

Stock Dealer Killed When Struck By Car

ELECTRA, Tex., Feb. 2 (AP) — M. V. Poole, of Fort Worth, a representative of the Shirley Livestock Commission company, was fatally injured tonight when he was struck by an automobile six miles east of this city on the Fort Worth-Amarillo highway.

Chief of Police S. E. Middleton of Electra said Poole had parked his car and had gotten out of it when he was struck by an automobile driven by S/Sgt. Charles V. Rhodes of Sheppard Field and Snyder, Tex.

Justice of the Peace Thomas Haynie of Electra held an inquest and ruled that Sergeant Rhodes was not at fault.

The body was taken to Lufkin.

General Answers Ordnance Critics

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2. — Answering critics of American armament, Major General Lewin H. Campbell, Army ordnance chief, today quoted General Dwight D. Eisenhower as saying we have "general superiority" in armament ove rthe European enemy.

He quoted from a letter from General Eisenhow and said it was the answer to "some critics who write alleging inferiority" of certain American armor compared with the Germans'.

Campbell disclosed that we now have in action a new "assault tank" which has double the armor of our 35-ton General Sherman and is about five tons heavier.

Text Of Letter

The text of the letter dated January 18 and given to the Associated Press by General Campbell, is as follows:

Headquarters European theater, United States Army, office of the commanding general.

"Dear General Campbell:

"Battlefield reports from every front in the European theater of operations continue to tell of the splendid quality of our weapons and ammunition. What we need is more of both, as well as men, to finish the job.

Victory In Normandy

"Last summer, the enemy was defeated in Normandy by our firepower and the teamwork of our splendid soldiers at their rifles, mortars, machine guns, artillery, in their tanks and tank destroyers. The enemy then retreated five hundred miles, leaving behind much equipment in order to reach temporary security in his fixed defenses.

"The mobility of our ordnance enabled us to exploit our first successes in the drive across France, into Belgium, and Germany. Moreover, throughout the war there has been a noticeable and steady improvement in the quality of many of our weapons and equipment. Such imporvement is mandatory always; the alternative is stagnation and eventual disaster.

Design And Range

"The effectiveness of our ordnance is partly due to simplicity in design and partly to the range of U. S. equipment which provides a weapon for every target. The enemy's battle losses have been far greater than ours. In pieces of artillery, the enemy has lost eight to our one. We have knocked out twice as many tanks as we have lost.

"We have a general superiority in quality and quantity of our ordnance, a superiority that must always be maintained.

"Sincerely,
(Signed) Dwight D. Eisenhower
General of the Army, U. S. A."

U. S. Casualties Rise To 737,342

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2. (AP) — American battle casualties have zoomed to 737,342 since Pearl Harbor, rapidly nearing the toll of the Civil war, heretofore the nation's costliest conflict.

The great bulk of dead, wounded, missing or captured by the enemy was reported by the Army. Announcement also was made that 5,100,000 of the 8,100,000 in the Army now are abroad.

Acting Secretary of War Patterson told his news conference that Army casualties, including those during most of the fighting in December, have reached 650,420. The Navy reported 86,922.

The figures included an aggregate of 154,564 killed.

Bottom Of Barrel

Disclosure that the Army troops remaining at home had dwindled to 3,000,000 came with Patterson's report that the Army had reached the bottom of the barrel in drawing urgently needed infantry replacements from the divisions in the United States.

Patterson said that the domestic units had been tapped for 500,000 replacements and that 10,000 men overseas are being shifted every month from non-combatant units to the infantry.

The armed forces listed this breakdown of the casualties:

Army—Killed 121,676; wounded 379,638; missing 91,573; prisoners 57,533.

Navy—Killed 32,889; wounded 39,807; missing 9,750; prisoners 4,476.

16 MINERS KILLED

TIMMINS, Ont., Feb. 2. (AP)—A steel mine-shaft cage became a twisted tomb today for 16 miners at the Paymaster gold mine near here when it plunged 1,500 feet to the bottom of the 2,500-foot shaft. The cable snapped at the 1,000-foot level.

Flynn "Doesn't Know" Whether He's Married

NEW YORK, Feb. 2. (AP) — Actor Errol Flynn, arriving in New York by plane today, gave reporters who asked if he married Nora Eddington a cryptic "I don't know."

Tanned and shivering in the chill wind, Flynn was greeted at the airport by a young woman whom he addressed as "Joan," explaining she was an old friend from Hollywood.

The motion picture star adhered to his "no comment" policy when asked about reports that he was married to 20-year-old Nora Eddington and the father of a three-weeks-old child, born and registered in Mexico City as Deirdri Flynn Eddington.

"They've been asking me that for four days and maybe some time they'll get tired of it," he said. "It seems that everytime I go to Mexico I get married."

"Well, did you this time?" he was asked.

"I don't know," said Flynn after a moment's hesitation.

CONVENTION CANCELLED

NEW YORK, Feb. 2. (AP)—The American Newspaper Publishers association announced today cancellation of its 1945 convention, which had been scheduled for April 24-26.

Refugee-Packed Berlin Battered

LONDON, Feb. 2 (AP)—Air raid sirens shrilled through refugee-filled Berlin tonight as the German radio reported Allied bombers approaching the German spital. This would make the eighth attack on the metropolis in seven days.

Last night Mosquitoes made their biggest raid of the war on Berlin, hitting the city several hours before midnight and again before daybreak.

Other packs of speedy, twin-engined planes roamed within 80 miles of the capital tonight to attack troop movements to the east and otherwise participate in the massive hammering of Germany's over-burdened railway system.

Freight Yards Pounded

Cannon-firing Mosquitos struck at seven freight yards, shot up and bombed 13 trains, 540 railcars, 65 motor vehicles.

The RAF also dispatched two forces of Lancasters to the rail hubs of Ludwigshafen on the Rhine and Siegen, 45 miles east of Cologne, and a force of Halifaxes to Mainz, another [illegible] transportation hub—bringing the total of British bombers against Germany during the night to nearly 1,500.

TIRE QUOTAS CUT

DALLAS, Feb. 2. (AP)—Increased war demands dropped passenger tire quotas for the thirty-four county Dallas OPA district to 25,487 for February from 26,624 for the previous month, Harold Carmichael, district rationing executive, said today.

Dean Kyle, Named Ambassador To Guatemala, Expects To Help Latin-American Country With Her Farm Problems

By TEX EASLEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—At 68, and with nearly a half century as an educator behind him, Edwin Jackson Kyle, dean emeritus of Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college, is looking forward to a career in the diplomatic service.

The Senate foreign relations committee today recommended his confirmation as ambassador to Guatemala. Kyle has been in conferences here throughout the week at the State department charting a course he hopes will not only more firmly cement amicable relations between the United States and that country, but between the U. S. and all other Latin-American nations.

Next week he will return to College Station to begin winding up his affairs at the college. For 43 years he has been at A. and M., becoming dean emeritus last December, and it will take some time to write finis to a career of that duration. In April he will come back to Washington, go through a few weeks intensive study and then strike out for Guatemala City.

For 33 years the Texan was dean or agriculture at A. and M. In the past few years he has represented the office of the coordinator of inter-American affairs in agricultural conferences and in that capacity made an extensive tour of Central and South America. His biggest objective in his forthcoming role is to help Guatemala develop her agricultural resources.

"I want to be one of their people and keep in close touch with the country," he remarked after leaving a conference with Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Senate Foreign Relation committee.

"I intend to be very careful not to mix in their internal affairs. That is their own business, and I shall so respect it."

Tall and slender, and appearing agile for his years, the gray-haired educator-turned-diplomat recalled the close relations he has had with Latin-American students who have attended Texas A. and M. Some 100 of these young men annually have gone to Aggieland, and because of his particular interest in republics south of the Rio Grande most of them hailed him affectionately as "Papacito." During the tour of Latin-American countries he encountered at least two who were holding high cabinet positions in their countries and one who was a governor.

Convinced that student exchange promotes friendly relations as does nothing else, he said he hoped to institute an active program under which Guatemala young men and women would come to the United States to follow major studies in one or more of four courses: agriculture, engineering, veterinary, and home economics.

The Woman's Angle
By Margaret Turner

(This column of news notes is prepared for you to send to someone in the service).

Dear:—

This is Ground Hog day and if tradition is carried out the South Plains will have six weeks more of winter because the day dawned clear as crystal.

Ruby Mason, ensign in the U. S. Navy Nurse corps, San Diego, writes her mother, Mrs. L. R. Mason of Post, sends this column of news notes each week. She lived in Lubbock for years when she was on the nursing staff at West Texas hospital and she says "it is like getting an extra letter from home to read what happened around Lubbock and the South Plains."

Thanks Ensign Mason. You are the first woman in service to indicate she reads the news notes column so we'll remember to add a little embroidery. We had always written it primarily for men, thinking of our brothers and other men in service.

The last class to be graduated from Lubbock Army Air field received wings and commissions Thursday morning. Today the instrument training program got underway on the field. The new class is almost 100 per cent fliers who have returned to this country from many months overseas.

Many persons are signing petitions asking a bond election to determine whether the city shall issue bonds for purchase of the property from Lubbock Independent School district where Central Ward school is located. It's possible that at least 600 names will be on the petition when it is presented at the next meeting of the city commission. Plans are to build a civic center there in Lubbock's postwar era.

School board, meeting Tuesday night, voted to grant the city of Lubbock a 60-day option to purchase the property. At the meeting R. W. Matthews was voted a new three-year contract, covering the school years of 1945-46 through 1947-48.

Lovic Liston, former faculty member, has been honorably discharged as a sergeant in the Army and has rejoined the high school faculty.

As usual Lubbock remembered its crippled children and those suffering from infantile paralysis at annual President's birthday dances and March of Dimes campaign in theaters.

An incomplete count of receipts from the balls showed a total of $1690. The March of Dimes netted a total of $4,116, Clark W. Abbott, chairman of the drive, announced. Abilene's campaign brought $2,959, by way of showing you how satisfactory the contributions were here.

The money from the dances will go to the Lubbock Crippled Children's council and the National Infantile Paralysis foundation.

The G. F. Wacker interests have purchased another building in Lubbock it was announced Thursday with the filing of a warranty deed transferring $30,000 in cash properties at 711-13 Broadway. The location is occupied by Boyd Bros. Market and grocery. Wacker, who reputedly owned 39 variety stores before he recently bought the Wheelock corner at Broadway and Ave. L, for $100,000, announced through representatives he would construct at least two stores here when building materials were made available.

The Boyds plan to find another building when the Wackers terminate the lease.

Lubbock Avalanche - Journal district Golden Gloves tournament is underway. We doubt if you would know any of the entries who are on the card for the first time this year. One upset last night was H. C. McMillan of Tahoka getting a knockout blow 40 seconds after he had climed through the ropes. Grady Haynes of Seymour was the guy with the TNT laden right. McMillan was one of last season's contestants.

West Texas State Teachers college Buffalos won over a green team of Red Raider basketball players in a two-game series at Canyon this week. The first game was 66-38; the second, 55-43.

John Morrison, first letter carrier employed in the Lubbock postoffice, has retired after 35 years of duty. He and his wife have gone to Phoenix to make their home.

Pfc. Morris Allen, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Allen, was killed in Alsace Jan. 7, his parents were advised last week end. Young Allen was in a tank corps.

South Plains Army Air field's future remains "unsettled." It is to go on "temporary inactive status which will permit its reopening on a 30-day notice."

That's all this week.
Goodbye and good luck.

Texas U. Group Seek End To Controversy

AUSTIN, Feb. 2. (AP) — The "Student Committee for the Defense of the University of Texas" a newly formed organization, today issued a formal statement saying it was joining with the University Ex-Servicemen's association in "urging that the present controversy be put to an end."

"We believe that the future of the University of Texas is not dependent on any one man or group of men and that the progress of the university has always depended on the interest and support of the people of Texas," the statement said, adding:

"We deplore the action of certain students who claim to speak for a unanimous student body, which obviously never existed. We brand as untrue the arbitrary claims of certain groups who call themselves 'liberals' and classify the opposition under the term 'reactionaries' and we resent their continued attack on legally elected and popularly endorsed officials of the state of Texas. We express our full confidence in the legislature of Texas."

"Ditching" Tactics Laid To New Deal

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP) — A former Democratic national committeeman who testified he'd been "left out of the New Deal" was told by Senator Connally (D-Tex) today: "It's not the first time the New Deal has ditched somebody."

The exchange occurred at a committee hearing, and Connally, a close friend of former Commerce Secretary Jesse Jones, then turned to the official reporter and said, "you can strike that out of the record."

The witness was Archibald McNeil of Bridgeport, Conn., summoned to testify at a surplus property disposal hearing of the Senate war investigating committee.

Shortages Of Coal Sharply Affecting War Plant Output

WASHINGTON, Web. 2. (AP) — Winter conditions and rail traffic snarls, already cutting into industry through coal shortages, combined today to cool gas-fired war furnaces and force drastic curtailment of the use of that fuel.

The War Production board announced that some 200 vital war plants already have suffered cuts of 10 to 90 per cent in gas delivery. WPB ordered use of natural and "mixed" gas cut off completely in amusement places in seven states and Washington, D. C. tonight.

The order is effective until Monday night or "until further notice."

Affected are New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, parts of Maryland and Virginia, and the District of Columbia.

Winter-wrought conditions led to two other government actions:

1. A civilian freight embargo, except on coal, was ordered for four days beginning tomorrow in eight states of the same general area, following up a similiar order last week end to help clear clogged and winter-bound rails lines.

2. The solid fuels administration requested Pennsylvania anthracite miners to work a full day tomorrow, even though under their contract the Saturday shift may not bring them overtime pay. Appalachian area soft coal miners already have agreed to work Sunday.

Increase Reported In Texas Income

AUSTIN, Feb. 2. (U.P.)—Income in Texas during 1944 was more than double the "prosperity" year of 1929 and totaled approximately $6,000,000,000, Dr. F. A. Buechel of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research said today.

Income during 1943 was about $5,500,000,000. Of the 1944 boom total, agricultural income accounted for $1,300,000,000 and sale of minerals at mines for $1,100,000,000, while value from manufacturing was $900,000,000. The remainder was made up from wages, salaries and fees from other sources.

Except for production of lumber and cement declines, Texas business generally improved last year, Dr. Buechel said.

SPENDING MOUNTS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2. (AP) — Government war spending in January was $7,550,975,695, the highest since last August. The record is about $7,879,000,000, in May 1944.

That brings you squarely against the suspicion you've based a presumption upon a presumption, West Texas weather being what it is. # Many Yanks Slain By Japs, Other Hundreds Die Of Neglect, Abuse

By FRANK HEWLETT
United Press War Writer

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Luzon, Feb. 2. — Capt. Ralph Hibbs of East Oskaloosa, Iowa, said today at least 20 American and Filipino prisoners had been executed and hundreds perhaps thousands, of others had died of neglect in prison camps on Luzon.

Hibbs, among the 510 Allied prisoners rescued from the Cabanatuan prison camp by Rangers in a daring Commando raid, said 27,000 Filipinos and 100 Americans died of various causes in the O'Donnell prison camp alone and more than 100 Americans died at Cabanatuan.

Prisoners Often Beaten

Prisoners often were beaten with sticks which they called "vitamin sticks," Hibbs said. When men fell ill, the Japanese often refused to release medical supplies for them, he said.

Once 100 men died of diphtheria before they were given antitoxin. Another 100 died of dysentery, he said.

Hibbs said at Bilibid, the ancient Manila prison, the Japanese gave prisoners rotten vegetables covered with manure. American officers had to use clubs to keep the starving prisoners from eating them, he said.

Japs Stand And Laugh

"The Japanese laughed at the sight," he added.

Hibbs served with the 31st infantry at Bataan and was adjutant at the O'Donnell camp hospital under Col. James W. Duckworth of San Francisco, doctor hero of the siege of Bataan and another of the prisoners rescued from Cabanatuan.

Duckworth, senior officer among the rescued prisoners, confirmed that 250 prisoners were dying daily at Camp O'Donnell for a brief period after the surrender of Bataan in 1942.

"The Japs were panicky over the death rate," he said. "They sent me there and allowed me to take 68 truckloads of our equipment and supplies.

Death Rate Rapidly Cut

"Within a month, the death rate was cut to 100 a day, and during the second month to 15 or 20. When Filipinos were able to leave, they were freed and gradually the camp was colsed out."

Duckworth said he was able to save 80 of 160 American prisoners whom he found critically ill on his arrival at the O'Donell camp.

He said his personal dealings with the Japanese had been "satisfactory," but reported that 'many 'hundreds" of war prisoners were buried at Cabanatuan.

Maj. Emil Reed of Brownsville, Tex., formerly regimental commander of the 26th (Filipino) Cavalry, said some Americans soldiers at Cabanatuan had been beaten until they died.

Secret Radio Helps

Other prisoners told of receiving short wave news from San Francisco over a secret radio which they had built and nicknamed "Eleanor" for the President's wife. Some kept track of the passing months and years with home-made calendars.

Lt. Col. Donald W. Sawtelle of Corpus Christi, Tex., formerly an assistant on Gen. Douglas MacArthurs' staff on engineering detail, was on Mindanao when the Philippines fell. He escaped to Negros, but was captured Sept. 12, 1942 and sent to the Davao penal colony as a spy. He later was transferred to Cabanatuan, where he was rescued.

All rescued prisoners praised the work of medical corpsmen, many of whom were partly disabled themselves. Among them was Pvt. Alfred Jolly of San Francisco, who lost an arm in an ambulance accident during a bombing raid on Bataan.

Treatment Said Cruel

Jolly said the Japanese "used to treat us pretty cruel."

"We had to snap to or they used rifle butts on us," Jolly said. "We had to kowtow to the sons of guns all the time. We got a handful of rice and comotes for meals.

"Occasionally the Japs, would slaughter a carabao but they gave us only the head and bones. They gave us 30 cans of evaporated milk a week for the invalids."

At one time, he said, there had been 6,000 prisoners at the camp but he believed most of them had been taken to Japan, Formosa and China.

Japs Leave Warning

Two days before the Lingayen landings the Japs left the camp, warning the prisoners to stay there or be killed. They returned later and gave out the following supplies: two months supply of rice, 25,000 cans of milk, cooking oil, and salt fish that were hardly fit to eat. During the last three weeks the prisoners said they ate better than ever before. One prisoner claimed he gained 50 pounds on the diet.

Pfc. Siprano Greigo, Albuquerque, N. M., who made the death march from Bataan to Camp O'Donnel said:

"I'd hate like hell to repeat some of the things I saw. I saw the Japs order American soldiers at the point of guns to bury alive two soldiers who were too weak to move. The men screamed 'please don't.' So the Japs ordered the others to hit them on the heads."

"We went four days without food. Once we stopped at an artesian well and everyone tried to get a drink but they bayoneted or hit with gun butts anyone who got out of line. We were two or three days without water.

"Once four officers were too tired to walk. A Jap put them in trucks and gave them fans. When we reached O'Donnell another Jap noticed them and took them away. That was the last we saw of them."

Pvt. William Duncan, Troutville, Va., was also on the death march. He said the Japs once shot ten men at the prison camp because one man had escaped. Another time five were shot for the same reason.

On the death march, Duncan said, the Filipinos were treated much worse than the Americans.

Coaxed Near And Shot

At O'Donnell on one occasion the Japanese coaxed some men up to the fence—despite a rule that they were to stay two yards back from the barrier. When the men came up to the guards the Japs shot them. One man was called outside the fence by a guard, then tied up, paraded before the other prisoners and shot.

Cpl. William Peterson, Lake Park, Iowa, a Corregidor veteran, said he stole a radio from the Japs about three weeks ago and listened to the progress of the Luzon campaign.

Capt. Frederick C. Amoc, Humboldt, Kans., a Corregidor survivor, said he was sent to the Davao penal colony. He spent three weeks on a Jap prison ship on which only two small portions of rice and one canteen of water was served per day.

Sgt. John Kelly of the Fourth Marines, a veteran of 33 years in the Marines, said the Japanese showed some respect for age. They made him the group leader of a working party.

Work parties, he said, were given poor food, mostly rice and radish tops.

Among the civilian prisoners was George Weedon, 67, formerly of Legrande, Ore., who has been in the Philippines 45 years but thinks he will go home now. He was working as a contractor at a naval air base on Bataan and was treated as a prisoner.

There were about 20 British subjects among the prisoners.

Roofers Start AFL Organization Here

Lubbock roofers took first steps toward reorganization under the American Federation of Labor Thursday night in a meeting in the county courtroom.

Announcement was by Ben D. Vetter of Kansas City, first general vice president of the United Slate, Tile and Composition Roofers, Damp and Waterproof Workers association.

Application for membership was signed by 20 roofers, Vetter said, "and five or 10 more are expected to ask for membership before installation of officers and obligation of members after the charter for local No. 214 arrives Monday."

D. W. Hubbard of Lubbock was elected president, and a secretary is to be selected, Vetter said. Meetings will be in the labor temple here.

The average scale (for foremen, journeymen, helpers and apprentices) will be $1.12½ cents an hour, it was decided. This was said to be "about the same now paid here, which runs from $1 to $1.25 an hour."

The local had been organized in 1942, but virtually had been inactive in recent months, it was explained.

Funeral Set Today For George Clifton

Last rites for George B. Clifton, 57, Lubbock resident for 34 years and recently of Amarillo, who died following a heart attack at his Amarillo residence Thursday night, will be at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the chapel of Bryan McDonald and Son Funeral home.

Services will be read by Dr. C. E. Hereford, pastor of the Lubbock First Baptist church. Burial will be in Lubbock cemetery.

Pallbearers were announced as Jim Kimmel, Louie Moore, Lt. K. K. Kimbro, Ed D. Allen, William A. Fox and G. W. Gaines.

Clifton had been employed by the State Highway department for 17 years.

Survivors are the widow; three daughters, Mrs. R. L. Wagner of Dallas, Miss Georgia Clifton, court reporter of the 99th judicial district and formerly reporter of the 110th judicial district, and Miss Nell Clifton of Amarillo; a brother, Clarence Clifton of Taylor; three sisters, Mrs. L. H. Miller and Mrs. H. Greenway, both of Dallas, and Mrs. E. T. Renfro of Fort Worth.

Members of the state highway department here said Clifton had been an employe of a railroad, later a farm worker, then, in 1928, began work with the highway department as a laborer. He studied mechanics and had "worked up" to the position of district field mechanic. A few months ago he was transferred to district 4, at Amarillo.

They are training at infantry advanced replacement training centers at Camp Howze and Camp Maxey, Tex., Camp Livingston, La., and Camp Gordon, Ga. Separate training units also have been established at Fort Jackson, S. C., Camp Gruber, Okla., Camp Swift, Tex., and Camp Van Dorn, Miss.

Submarine 'Growler' Is Presumed Lost

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP) — The submarine Growler is overdue from patrol and is presumed lost.

The Navy announced today that the 1,525-ton vessel, commanded by Com. Thomas B. Oakley, jr., was the vessel which Com. Howard W. Gilmore sacrificed his own life to save in one of the most dramatic actions of the war.

The normal complement of a vessel of the type is about 65 officers and men.

Com. Oakley's next of kin is his wife, who lives at Los Angeles.

The Growler is the 36th submarine lost from all causes during the war, including four sunk, 30 overdue and presumed lost and two destroyed to prevent capture.

"We are predicting that receipts will pass the half-million dollar mark this year," Howard said. The 1944 total of $443,269.03 set an all-time record for the local post office.

Negroes Sentenced For Mass Mutiny

HONOLULU, T. H., Feb. 2. (U.P.) —U. S. army courts-martial have sentenced 73 negro soldiers to prison terms ranging from eight to 30 years at hard labor for their part in a mass mutiny at an American air base on Oahu island last July, it was disclosed today.

Another accused mutineer was convicted but is awaiting retrial after a review of his case by Maj. Gen. Henry T. Burgin, commander of the Central Pacific Base command.

The convicted men were sentenced after two extensive courts-martial, the first mutiny trials held in this area since the start of the war.

The men, whose names were not disclosed, were members of a general service regiment. They were convicted of refusing to obey orders of their superior officers to report for work at an airfield on the night of July 31, 1944.

Two other men who did not join in the mutiny but who were accused of aiding it are awaiting trial.

Home To Be The Same Old Place For Texan

HOUSTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—When Cecil Easley, private first class, gets back home from his long stay in a Japanese prison camp he will find his pajamas hanging on the closet door where he left them nearly four years ago.

His 11 year old dog will also be awaiting him if father and mother Easley and the veterinarian can keep the pooch alive.

Mother Easley said her only son can have his fruit cake which she mailed him in 1941 and which came back. It is in the ice box where it has been all these years, she said.

Father Easley hopes to catch up on his fishing when "Red" gets home. "I've only been fishing three times since my son was captured," he asserted.

Gloves Finals Set Tonight At Tech

Setting the stage for tonight's all championship finals, Golden Glovers from the surrounding area and Lubbock Army Air Field took it on the chin and dished it out again at the Texas Tech gym last night as a crowd of more than 1,800 fight fans roared its approval of a card featuring one knockout, three technical kayoes, four close, bloody decisions and a pleasing exhibition.

Tonight's title tussles get under way at 8:15 o'clock and the Texas Tech hall is expected to be jammed for the third and climaxing night of leather slinging featuring some of the gamest kids seen in Golden Gloves ring annals in this area.

Novice Champs Named

Eighteen bouts Thursday night and nine more last night set the stage for tonight's championship matches and the cream of the crop —sixteen youngsters who have battled their way to the top—will trade cushioned dynamite for top honors, the 1945 District Golden Gloves titles and the right to participate in the State Golden Gloves melee in Fort Worth Feb. 14-19.

Five titleholders in the Novice division were crowned in Friday night's at times bloody contests and the other matches assured one of the best nights of boxing of the entire tournament for the finals in tonight's open division.

Lubbock Entry Wins

The first three fights on the menu last night were settled via the KO or TKO route with the fourth winding up on a unanimous but close decision.

Lonnie Balch, Lubbock lad fighting in the 135 pound class, opened the night's leather slinging by opening up in a hurry on D. Carpenter of Texas Tech. After the Tech lad had rallied at the end of the first round, Balch wasted no time in coming back with everything he had in the second stanza. Both men were dead tired but Carpenter was the worst for wear and Referee Bo Sexton stopped the slaughter in 1 minute 55 seconds of the second round, the nod going to Balch.

Quick KO Registered

The second fight on the card wasn't much different. Petersburg's Frankie Mannon and LAAF's Lee I. Bohrer flew into each other as though both were in a rush to get it over with. Bohrer threw Mannon off balance with a few hard left jabs and an overhand right or two then blasted Mannon into near slumber with a terrific right that momentarily stunned the Petersburg youngster. Again Sexton stopped the useless struggle and gave the bout to Bohrer on a TKO in 1 minutes 13 seconds of the initial round. Mannon was a game fighter but too small for the LAAF lad.

Dynamite exploded with a sudden fury from the gloves of Ken Glasgow, Petersburg slugger, in the third match who chalked up a quick 46-second-kayo over LAAF's A. Haig in the record time for the night.

Winners Looked Impressive

Glasgow, who has a "body built by Atlas" physique, came out with fire in his eyes and a yen to make an impression in a hurry. He wasted no time. After mixing it up with Haag and receiving a few hard rights to his head for the trouble, Glasgow stepped back, measured his opponent for size and waded in. Haag wasn't impressed and mixed it with the Petersburg boxer. In a quick flurry of rights and lefts on both sides of the ring, Glasgow caught Haag with a hard right to the head. Haag dropped like the proverbial ton of brick in his corner and Sexton counted the toll. The two were fighting in the 160 pound class.

A novice championship in the 126 pound division was at stake in the night's fourth fight between Littlefield's L. Grissom and Bill Lynsky. Lynsky opened up fast in the initial round, continued to punish his fellow townsman in the second with body blows and lefts to the head, but Grissom still managed to hang on. In the third both started slow but Lynsky again got the range and racked up a close decision.

Gillum Wins On Forfeit

Billy Gillum, Tech entry in the 135 pound class, won his scheduled match over Lubbock's G. Bullock by forfeit but met Joe Wilson of Lockney in an exhibition that would have done credit to a championship battle.

The Lockney lad took everything Gillum could toss at him for two rounds then rallied to have the Tech lad bouncing off the ropes in the third. No decision was given.

The night's sixth bout was another Novice division title bout, and one of the best fights of the night.

Petersburgh's bounding George DePriest and LAAF's R. R. Harrington, one of the gamest lads on the entire program, tangled in an old fashioned slug fest. DePriest started out like he had a deadline to meet and for a few seconds his wild blows had Harrington bewildered. Toward the end of the first round the LAAF entry rallied and rocked DePriest with three well placed rights. In the second the crowd went wild as both boys mixed it up in a neutral corner with DePriest getting the best of the infighting. Both men came out for the third almost out on their feet and after a few seconds again took up their slugging spree, DePriest again pounding Harrington in the clinches and against the ropes for a close but unanimous decision of the judges.

Another Novice championship, this one in the 147 pound class, went to LAAF's smooth fighting Joe Lilly, who decisioned Alvin R. Robertson another LAAF fighter, in the night's seventh match. Robertson held a slight edge in the cautious first round, lost the second in a faster melee then slowed up completely as Lilly's right to the head started wearing him down.

Heavy Boys Turn On Heat

The night's last two matches perhaps were the best as far as crowd pleasers were concerned. A Novice title bout in the 175 pound class found Lockney's D. Williams mixing it up with John F. Henderickson, game LAAF entry. In the opening round, Henderickson opened up fast and bounced the pudgy Williams all over the ring. But as the round wore on Williams got Henderickson's range and started bombarding him against the ropes.

In the second Williams had Henderickson down for a nine count. But instead of giving up the LAAF lad came back with a fighting heart and had Williams groggy when the bell ending the second stanza sounded. Both were dead tired in the third but Williams had piled up enough points the first two rounds to win the title.

Stinnett Wins Bout

Finale of the night saw D. Vouch of Petersburg and Texas Tech's George Stinnett battling it out in an open 175-pound class elimination match.

Vouch chalked up an early margin but hurt his knee against the ropes and was easier prey for Stinnett's right and left jabs. In the second, both slugged it out with Stinnett getting a slight nod. The third was a waltz affair with both boys clinching at every opportunity, and the decision of the judges went to Stinnett.

Tonight's bouts possibly will be augmented by two or three exhibitions to fill out the championship card, although the lineup for the night will be enough ring entertainment in itself.

Tonight's Card

Tonight's Golden Gloves championship card features at least eight big matches with the area's top-notch leather slingers mixing it up for the 1945 District Golden Gloves titles and the right to participate in the Texas State Tournament in Fort Worth.

After two nights of crowd-pleasing battling, the lineup shows Tahoka leading the way with six fighters in the finals, Lubbock Army Air Field next with three, Texas Tech with two, Lubbock with one, Petersburg with two, Littlefield with one and Seymour with one.

Here is tonight's menu for the maulers in the order in which they will fight. The program gets underway at 8:15 o'clock. A sell out crowd is expected:

112-POUND CLASS—Jackie Driver of Tahoka vs. Van Brookshire of Tahoka.

Ropes Boys Advance

Ropes boys moved into the semi-final game with a 36-21 win over Union boys, with Hewlett and Jay setting a blistering pace. Hewlett dropped in 16 points and Jay added 14 more to account for 30 points between them. Freeman and Borland, with 10 and 7 points, respectively, paced the losers.

After a slow start, Sundown's boys team won a 31-13 win over Frenship in a consolation game. Matlock poured in 15 points for scoring honors of the game, followed by Wright with eight. Crump and Kinslow paced Frenship with four points each.

Another consolation game found Frenship girls winning a thriller over Smyer, 32-26. Williamson led the winners with 17 points, and Clark chipped in ten more. Benton, with 12 points, paced the losers.

LEVELLAND, Feb. 2. (Special)—The Levelland Lobos continued their uncontested rampage in district 4-A tonight, toppling the Sudan Hornets 19to 15.

Westerners Win Opener In Thriller With Brownfield

Coach Dixie White's Lubbock Westerners took over the leadership in the south half of District 1-AA cage race here last night, staving off a threatening last minute rally by the Brownfield Cubs to win a 32-26 victory over the visitors.

The Westerners made it a clean sweep for the night as the Westerner B team romped to a 30-21 win in the opener.

This game is the only one played in the conference by the Westerners, while Brownfield holds a victory over Plainview, the third team in the south half of the district.

The game was rough and fast all the way, with 33 fouls called, and three men leaving the game on the personal foul route as both teams battled hard down to the final gun.

The Cubs lost Franks in the last half on fouls, and the Westerners suffered the loss of Verdell Turner and Gerald Davis, while the Westerners gained the margin of victory on free throws, sinking eight out of 19, while Brownfield could get only two out of 22 tries for the margin of the victory. Both sides looped in 12 field goals.

The game started off fast, with Brownfield bounding into the lead as ranks looped in the first basket of the game. A moment later, Moyers looped a free pitch, then Turner sank a field goal to send the Westerners into the lead, and they were never headed off.

With Brewer sinking two short ones, and Moyers hitting a long shot, the Westerners pulled away and ran the count up to 11-2 before the Cubs scored again as Kempson dropped in a free pitch.

Pressley added a free pitch for the Westerners, and Franks dropped in a field goal as the first quarter ended with the Westerntrs leading 12-5.

The Westerners ran the score up to 23-8 late in the second quarter, but just before the half Kempson and Byler hit goals in succession and the halftime count was 23-12.

The Westerners gained a little more ground in the third quarter, and moved into the home stretch with a 31 to 16 lead, but it was there that the Cubs began to click, and threw a real scare into the locals.

Refusing to admit defeat, the Cubs began to hit the basket from near and far, and ran up ten points while holding the Westerners to a single free pitch in the last quarter. But time ran out with the Westerners still holding a six point advantage.

Hitting ten of his points in the last half, Kempson of the Cubs emerged with scoring honors of the game with 13 points. George Brewer paced the Westerners with ten points for second honors in the scoring parade.

Bob Galey set the blistering pace for the Westerner B team in the opening contest, looping in five field goals and five donation tosses for 15 points, while Wall followed him with eight points.

Moore paced the Brownfield club, looping in ten points. The Westerners took an early lead, and were never headed off, leading 16-5 at the half.

LAAF Fliers Romp Over Hobbs, 48-38

Lubbock Army Air field's Fliers put on three quarters of offensive power, then coasted under the wire with a 48-38 victory over the Hobbs, New Mexico, Army Air field five last night at the LAAF gym.

The LAAF five bounded away to a quick lead, and rolled up a 19-8 advantage at the end of the first quarter. LAAF's sharpshooters found the range in the second period, and reached the halftime mark with a 31-14 advantage over the New Mexico five.

Pile Up Big Lead

LAAF continued to hit the basket with regularity through the third period and moved into the home stretch with a 44-20 advantage. At this point, the reserves took over.

Hobbs began to click in the last period, but too late, and time ran out before the sensational rally of the visitors could prove threatening to the Lubbock lead.

McCarthy Sets Pace

Gerald McCarty set the pace for the home club, closely followed by Bruce Prior as the "field goal twins" accounted for 36 points between them. McCarty rifled eight baskets through the nets from the floor, and toed the foul line to drop in four more points to round out 20 points for the night. Prior matched him for free throws, but fell two behind in filed goals, and finished with 16 points.

Smith led the attack for the visitors, dropping in four field goals and five free pitches for 13 points. Perry followed him closely with ten points.

The game was fast and rough all the way, with foul shots coming thick during the scoring of both teams.

Sfreamlining Congress

The Voters Should Be Informed

ANY conscientious voter should find Robert Heller's new pamphlet, "Strengthening the Congress," interesting reading. Mr. Heller, a business manager consultant, has approached the subject of a proposed streamlining of Congress with businesslike efficiency. And his findings might provide the average citizen with some surprises.

This average citizen's judgment of Congress is often a hazy concoction of cusswords and misunderstanding. But the Heller survey, commissioned and published by the National Planning Association, is calculated to give the reader a new respect for the size of his senator's and representative's job, and cause some amazement that they perform it as well as they do under existing circumstances.

Mr. Heller suggests that many congressional shortcomings arise from the fact that Congress "is operating with hand tools in a mechanized age." And he would scrap many of these hand tools as outmoded, inefficient and occasionally harmful.

He recommends, among other things, abolition of too-numerous, overlapping, time-consuming committees, of the seniority rule for appointing committee chairmen, of the filibuster, and the practice of tacking controverisal and unrelated riders on imprortant bills that the President is almost forced to sign. And he would match these and other abolitions with some sensible recommendations.

Many of them involve the expenditure of money. Mr. Heller would give individual congressmen enough money to hire really first-rate assistants. He would allow committees funds for competent specialists, advisors and researchers, thus freeing them from their present necessity of depending on executive department "experts" who not infrequently have a departmental ax to grind.

AND Mr. Heller favors higher salaries for congressmen—$25,000 a year in place of the present $10,000—and a generous pension. It is well that an outsider proposes this, for whenever a congressman makes the same proposal the public immediately attacks him as a leech upon the body politic.

Of the 10-plus billions spent to run the government in fiscal 1944 (excluding military expenditures and debt retirement and interest) Congress's share was less than one-seventh of 1 per cent. Surely the constitutional equal of the Executive branch merits a larger expense account, especially when more money gives good promise of better government.

And the cost of being a congressman is high. He must maintain Washington living quarters in keeping with dignity of his office, and an office and residence in his home town as well. He has considerable travel and election expenses. Yet he makes less than many ball players, crooners and junior executives.

So we think Mr. Heller has a point. Congress is important enough that it should attract the best men, and promise enough money and help to do their job well, even though the pay hike may be postponed till after the war.

Tyrants Aid Liberty's Cause

THE day of retribution draws slowly but surely near for Adolf Hitler and his Nazi minions, whose avarice and selfish ambitions plunged the world into the most awful blood bath in all history.

At the same time, the clouds in the Orient are breaking, giving indications that the day is not far distant when the beasts of Japan also will get their just deserts for their part in the global holocaust.

And as the future promises a new era of freedom and peace for mankind, we are reminded of a statement made by Bertrand Barere before the Convention Nationale, held in France in 1792 — the first time in that nation's history when men sat in their nation's service without respect to class. Said Barere:

"The tree of liberty only grows when watered by the blood of tyrants!"

That was true 200 years ago.

Hitler, Hirohito & Co. have made it true today.

The public is almost 100 per cent in favor of the government paying old age pensions. It seems that nearly every person in the country is either old or expects to be some day.

A novelist says the next war will be between the sexes. That would be an easy war for the men to win. All they would have to do to weaken the women's defenses would be to lay down a barrage of flattery.

A DAY IN A VIRGINIA PLANTER'S LIFE (1713)

III

When breakfast over Swain and and Randall delayed their departure to play a game of billiards and to have a long and meaningless talk with a music master who had come out from the village to tune a spinet that stood in the large hall, or living room.

They were both saturated with the spirit of leisure which was an outstanding quality of life in colonial Virginia. In this respect Puritan New England and Virginia were far apart. The Puritans were tense, nervous, industrious and so reluctant to waste time that they labored even when there was nothing to do.

The Virginians were placid, friendly, lazy and pleasure-loving. They did not mind if time were wasted, for they had learned from experience that many a thing that ought to be done today could wait until tomorrow without harm.

Their sense of hospitality was so remarkable that one may search the files of history in vain for a parallel. In the 18th century a stranger in Virginia, if he were decent and well-behaved, might have lived for board and lodging, simply by moving from one locality to another and allowing the inhabitants of the various places to entertain him as a guest.

This desire to entertain strangers showed itself in some rather astonishing ways. There are recorded instances of Virginia gentlemen waiting on horseback on a well-traveled road for the purpose of intercepting wayfarers and inviting these travelers to come home with them as guests. The Virginia inns complained frequently that they could make no money because most of the travelers who passed through the neighborhood were entertained, without charge, at private homes.

• • •

Edward Swain and Henry Randall did not leave Williamsburg until 10 o'clock. About a dozen yards behind them rode their two servants on shaggy farm horses. Swain's man, Dave Pottle, was white, blond and Welsh by birth. He was an indentured servant who had still two years to serve before his freedom was due. Swain had bought him from a ship captain in 1708 for 2500 pounds of tobacco, which covered the cost of his passage from Bristol, the money value of which was around 12 pounds sterling. To repay this debt David had been indentured for seven years. Upon his release from service his master would give him, according to the Virginia law, 50 acres of land, two suits of clothing, a felt hat, 12 bushels of corn meal and a gun worth 20 shillings.

Randall's servant was a Negro slave, a native of Africa, alert and quick and unusually intelligent. He was about 25 years old, and had been in America for more than 10 years. As he had never worked in the fields, but had always been a house boy, he spoke English remarkably well.

Matthew, or Mat, took care of his master's clothes and saddle horses. The garments of a gentleman, in that period of Virginia history, required a great deal of attention, for they were expensive and made of delicate fabrics. The greater part of Mat's time was given to them. He had become a fairly competent journeyman tailor, and could make repairs in the garments.

Henry Randall's suits, like those of many Virginia gentlemen of of that era, were made in London. Every Virginian of means had an English tailor who kept his measurements on file and also knew his tastes in clothing. An order for a suit took from three to five months to fill, on account of the long ocean voyage both ways. There were some tailors in Virginia., but it seems that the higher social class did not partonize them.

• • •

The usual costume of men of wealth and authority consisted of knee breeches made of broadcloth, velvet or silk; a vest of colored silk—usually green or scarlet; and a coat of broadcloth. The vest was long in front and tight fitting. The coat reached nearly to the knees and was square-cut, with large pockets. Below the waist it flared out. It was usually dark-blue or black, but other colors—such as scarlet, brown and green—were also worn. A gentleman's clothes had buttons of silver or brass; men of lower rank had wooden buttons. Shirts were of white linen, with lace ruffles. The well-dressed man wore silk stockings, usually red in color, and boots with wide, spreading tops. But these clumsy boots were not worn all the time. On bright, clear days the gentleman would appear in low shoes, and indoors at home he wore soft-leather slippers. The head covering was a large, wide-brimmed felt hat which carried a plume. In cold or rainy weather a cloak was worn. There were no overcoats.

The habit of wearing wigs never became as popular in Virginia and the southern colonies as it was in New England; nevertheless wigs were common enough. Nearly all men of authority, or distinction, or wealth, wore them.

Both Randall and Swain were wig-wearers. Randall had adopted the fashion because he was partly bald and he thought that a fine, bushy wig would not only conceal his baldness but give him also an air of dignity. Swain's reason was altogether different. He detested wigs, but he wore them because Governor Spotswood was a wig-wearer, and he wanted the governor to have a good opinion of him.

Bill On Explosives Offered At Austin

AUSTIN, Feb. 2. (U.P.) — Drivers of motor vehicles transporting butane gas, explosives and other combustibles would be required to stop at all railroad grade crossings and determine if a train is approaching before proceeding, a bill introduced today provides.

Filed by Rep. Roger Q. Evans, Denison, in the house the measure directs drivers shall stop within 30 feet of grade crossings, open the vehicle door and look and listen for trains. Labeling butane gas, explosives, inflammables and combustibles as "explosives" on their bills of lading and containers also is required by the bill.

Penalty of a fine from $100 to $500 and a maximum of six months in jail, or both, are provided for violating the provisions.

STOCK SHOW OPENS

HOUSTON, Feb. 2 (U.P.) — The 13th annual Houston fat stock show and livestock exposition, proclaimed the greatest event of its kind south of Chicago, opened today with all the color of a gala world's fair.

Looking At Life - - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

I WAS very happy to read the report of the Social Security board which stated that more than 700,000 men and women over 65 years have stayed on the job and not claimed the benefits to which they are entitled.

More than 70,000 once retired workers, according to the report have given up their benefits for the time being and gone back to work.

I was very happy to read the report, as I said in the beginning, because it is so typical of America.

BRANDEIS

In Europe, before the war, there were many thousands of old men and women —some of them old in the forties and fifties—who lived on their incomes and loafed their way through life. The Riveria, the Italian resorts, the Spas were full of that kind of people.

Here in America there wasn't much of that sort of thing, and I hope there never will be.

Here in America living is working, and the average American isn't so much interested in living longer as in living more.

Almost everybody dreams of retiring some day, of taking it easy, of "being his own boss."

And then what happens? The retired man soon finds himself a lonesome loafer with very little more to do than to twiddle his thumbs, with no company but a lot of other old retired bores, and before long he yearns to be back at doing something useful.

• • •

Have you ever been in St. Petersburg and watched them sitting on those famous green benches, busily doing nothing, most of them half asleep, almost all of them half dead?

I tried it myself not so long ago.

I figured, oh, what's the use going to work every day and being a slave to the time clock?

So I stayed home, slept until 10 every day, loafed to breakfast, loafed between breakfast and lunch, wrote an hour or so, loafed some more until it was dinner time and then slowly loafed to bed.

Pretty soon I got bored stiff with myself. My wife got bored with me and even the dog was bored with me because I got too lazy to pick up his ball and play with him.

I gained eight pounds and started to feel groggy, and in four months I took on at least five years.

• • •

WELL, I am back at work again and happy. My weight is down to normal and my wife is glad to see me come home. (One of the things your wife appreciates most about your coming home in the evening is your going away in the morning.)

May be those 70,000 who went back to work felt just the same as I did. May be they had been put on the shelf against their own wishes.

At any rate, don't ever think that working is the hardest work of all. Loafing is much harder work.

And the best way to get old in a hurry is to let yourself get rusty. You know what happens to an automobile if you let it stand in the garage too long without using it.

British Fearful Of Our Strength

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

FRANK exchanges between British and American industrialists serving on joint war agencies here disclose that England stands in mortal fear of our newly achieved economic and commercial might which will be felt in the postwar period, especially in the early years after the guns have ceased firing.

This deep-seated concern over future trade rivalry is the key for a basic understanding of such seemingly unrelated questions as Britain's present foreign policy in the Mediterranean basin and the Wallace-Jones controversy. The inside implications of these and other dramas cannot be grasped without a full realization of our ally's plight.

William L. Batt, the brilliant, thoughtful vice chairman of the War Production board and member of the Combined Production and Resources board told part of the story in a recent speech at Cincinnati that was unique because of its frankness.

TUCKER

Nevertheless, he barely lifted the veil on secret discussions in the "Churchill castle" on Embassy row here, in the refurbished rooms of the State department building, in the handsome quarters of the Federal Reserve and in the Treasury's dingy, monastic offices.

Britain's dread that she may sink into the state of a second-class nation, economically, explains why London was so anxious for a Roosevelt victory last November.

Discreet warnings from Washington muted any pre-election expression of favoritism in our Presidential contest. But "the City," the equivalent of our Wall Street ,made no secret of its preference after the votes had been cast and counted.

Threadneedle Street preferred the reciprocal features of the Roosevelt-Hull tariff and trade program to the Republican verison, even though Gov. Tom Dewey embraced the administration's philosophy in vague and general terms. 10 Downing Street shied from the thought of having to make new "contacts" with a Dewey regime, especially in view of the many close friendships established during the last 10 years and the agreements concluded since Pearl Harbor.

• • •

SHREWDLY: These imperial worries also account for the unspoken British support of Henry Wallace in his fight for the Department of Commerce job, but more particularly as head of the Federal Lending agencies. It is no mere coincidence that the extreme internationalistic senators on both side of the Senate aisle took the Iowan's side in his fight for confirmation.

The canny British representatives shrewdly spotted their trading opposites in the capital ,and have filed voluminous reports in London. They dealt with the former Vice President when he headed the abortive Board of Economic Warfare ;they have played economic poker with Jesse H. Jones. Thier experience with both men convinces them that the Iowan would listen to their postwar pleas with a far more sympathetic ear than would the hard-boiled banker from the nationalistic Lone Star State.

• • •

MONOPOLY: Mr. Wallace, for instance, favors scrapping of the government's 700 million dollar investment in synthetic rubber plants, and a return to dependence on the raw material from British and Dutch possessions in the Far East.

Mr. Jones, who financed the factories now producing more rubber than we ever bought in peacetime, sees them as a distinct military and civilian asset for America. Naturally, London preferred Wallace to Jones, and Mr. Churchill cannot be blamed for his preference.

Mr. Wallace has definite ideas on an international setup for postwar aviation. He favors a world monopoly of aerial transport to operate as the "air arm of the United Nations." Since England, presumably, will have six votes to America's one in the world body, London likes that idea.

In short, the British used, all their influence for confirmation of the man whom they once described jibingly as "Corn Wallace." That was when the English Tories looked askance at his agricultural experiments.

• • •

INTERNATIONAL: Additional evidence that the Wallace wrangle has an international angle as well as domestic political implications springs from the fact that the English do not like our new State department setup even though it is more pro-British than the last. London was quick to note that businessmen of the Jesse Jones breed were given key posts in the reorganization of our diplomatic establishment.

Will Clayton of Houston, a Jones pal and a realistic cotton brokerage giant, will be in charge of all economic questions. He upholds an aggressive policy regarding export trade in raw cotton and textile commodities, a program which threatens England's greatest commercial asset. "Ed" Stettinius, Secretary of State, as an expert in coal, iron and steel, has scant sympathy with the Wallace viewpoint. The Clayton-Stettinius theories will be set forth in subsequent columns.

So Mr. Roosevelt apparently sought to balance their selection by naming the internationalistic Mr. Wallace to manage the two agencies which, if he had been approved, could have counteracted the State's more hard-boiled program in the postwar period.

• • •

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

KNOCK on wood. Thanks to medical science, the U. S. Army is surviving Europe's bitter winter weather without the flu epidemic that nearly everyone feared last fall.

GIs suffer from frostbite and various minor ailments resulting from strenuous marching and hard riding in motor vehicles, but the dreaded respiratory diseases, especially pneumonia, have been held in check. Tetanus, the most serious complication of frostbite, has been practically wiped out by effective prophylaxis.

LEMAN

In the last war — April 1, 1917 to December 31, 1919 — of every 100 deaths from sickness, 40 were caused by influenza and 33 by pneumonia. Flu killed three of every 100 afflicted by it; pneumonia, 25.

The fever which mowed down Pershing's veterans has not reappeared in virulent form. Chematherapeutic agents such as the sulfa drugs and penicillin, have lowered the death rate from pneumonia to less than seven-tenths of one per cent—a better record than among civilians.

Doctors were concerned about influenza as it usually recurs in quarter-century cycles; a fresh outbreak was expected in 1944, according to schedule.

A great many succumb to it. Survivors establish immunity for a number of years. The "bug" waits in ambush until a new crop of babies has reached maturity and the older generation lowers its guard — then it pounces.

A distinguished physician at the New York Academy of Medicine compares its action to a city gas works. A great flame suddenly bursts into the night air, burns itself out and subsides. There is a lull while the fumes build up a new density for a subsequent explosion. The course of flu —and to a minor degree measles — is like that.

Various explanations are offered by medical science Our people and the men overseas may have come through an epidemic without recognizing it. Because of its mildness we may have called it a "slight touch of grippe" or a "common cold."

The danger of the old-fashioned influenza is not in itself, but in the secondary infection which often is pneumonia. Swift ambulance transportation, adequately equipped and staffed military hospitals and certain new medicines spell a break for today's soldiers.

Texans In Washington

Californians Worry Connally

By TEX EASLEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON. — These Californians opposing the American-Mexican water treaty try Sen. Tom Connally's patience no end.

He sits at the center, on the outside rim of a horseshoe shaped committee table, and presides as the Senate Foreign Relations committee goes into the ratification question.

The pact gives the Lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas a lot of good water which drains from tributaries in Mexico; it gives Mexico some good Colorado river water that drains from seven western states. California contributes the least runoff to the Colorado, but is the principal objector and came here with a delegation of some 30 persons, including lawyers, engineers and press agents.

As proponents of the treaty began testifying, the veteran California Republican stalwart, Hiram Johnson, seated next to Connally, regained the spark of battles he has fought for decades past. He very nicely, but sarcastically, asked one government witness whether he was representing the United States or Mexico. His target was F. B. Clayton, one-time University of Texas professor and former El Paso city official, now attorney for the International Boundary commission.

• • •

Downey Busy, Too

During testimony of proponents, California's junior senator, Sheridan Downey, Democrat, asked questions obviously intended to trip the witness. Occasionally he leaves the committee table to confer with Californians out with the audience, then returns to resume the cross examination.

With a bored sort of look, Connally peers down over the top of his glasses toward Downey, and after several minutes questioning has continued on some point, interrupts:

"Now I want to be nice and fair to you Californians, but we got to get on with this matter. There are a lot of other witnesses here from a long ways off and we want to hear them all."

• • •

ONE of those witness from a considerable distance off, who learned he wouldn't be able to testify for a couple of weeks, was Texas Attorney General Grover Sellers. He went back home to do his waiting. The hotel bills and meals here meanwhile would more than make up the transportation, not to mention the time spent.

The hearings started first in the big Senate office building caucus room, Connally's own committee room in the capitol being too small to accomodate all witnesses and spectators. Then came the Jesse Jones-Henry Wallace hearing which captured the limelight, so the treaty hearing had to move around the corner to a smaller room.

Incidentally, Mr. Jones like a lot of other people first peeped into the treaty hearing room by mistake, in search for the back door to the place he was to appear. A few minutes previously another prominent Houstonian, former Gov. W. P. Hobby, also made that mistake. Both of them had a hard time squeezing through the crowds jammed outside the entrance to the caucus room.

• • •

Several Rio Grande Valley residents sat through the hearings, ready to testify in support of the treaty. They included Leo Owens, Brownsville newspaper publisher; E. E. Baird, Brownsville; A. L. Cramer Elsa; County Judge Oscar Dancy of Cameron County; J. C. Looney, Edinburg; T. B. MacLeaish, Weslaco; L. H. Ramey, Mission; Raymond Smith, San Benito; Alfred Tamm, Harlingen, Jim Ward, representing the Lower Rio Grande Valley Farm Bureau federation, and J. E. Wilkins, Mission.

Former Chambers County Judge Guy C. Jackson of Anahuac, president of the Texas Water Conservation association, and J. E. Sturrock, Austin, general manager; and J. Walter Hammond, Waco, also were in on the hearings.

Attorney I. W. (Ike) Keys of Corpus Christi, dropping in on the hearing for a minute, was spotted by Connally as he came in the door. The senator beckoned him to the committee table and gave him a seat there to hear the testimony.

AROUND the Capitol: Two veterans of bloody battles in Italy met at a recent Texas congressional delegation weekly luncheon.

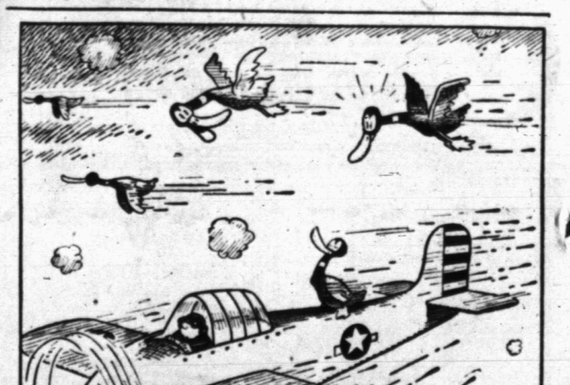

As the guest were introduced, Rep. Wright Patman presented Myron Blalock of Marshall, and Blalock's nephew, Lieut. K. N. Fitzhugh of Lancaster. Fitzhugh wore campaign ribbons and the purple heart for two wounds.

When the luncheon broke up Fitzhugh was approached by Rep. John E. Lyle of Corpus Christi, who introduced himself. It turned out Fitzhugh was in the battalion that relieved the very outfit in which Lyle was serving during the midst of extremely severe fighting at a river crossing. Lyle too is a Purple Heart holder.

A Navy veteran of Atlantic sea duty, Frank Smith of Lamesa, and Capt. William Florence of Slaton, who has spent the past two years in India and China with the Army Air Forces, also were at the luncheon, guests of Rep. George Mahon of Colorado City. Navy Ensign Bill Wilson of Nocona, just in from service on an Atlantic newspaper, was present as guest of Rep. Ed Gossett of Wichita Falls.

Visiting around Senate and House chambers: Judge and Mrs. P. Edward Ponder of Sweetwater; Miss Virginia Payne, Anson; Mrs. Fred Downs, sr., and Mrs. Fred Downs, jr., both of Dallas who have been up here to see Private Downs, jr., at nearby Fort Beloir; Al Heck and Woodville Rogers of San Antonio; John D. Rogers, Navasota; Seaman William Fisher, Fort Worth.

FAVORITES AT HIGH LEVEL

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP)—Buyers switched to selected rails and industrials in today's stock market and lifted favorites to best levels for the year or longer on the largest volume in more than two weeks.

Reconversion apprehension seemed to have waned even though a quick victory over the Nazis still was viewed as a possibility.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was up .5 of a point at 59.4 where it was only .5 under the 7-year peak of early January. The utility composite edged into new high ground since 1940. The market was broad, 966 issues appearing. Of these, 501 were in the plus column. Transfers of 1,871,100 shares compared with 1,558,510 the day before and were the best since Jan. 15.

Secondary railway bonds moved upward.

Curb gainers included Raytheon, reflecting approval of a stock split-up plan; E. W. Bliss, Cities Service and Transwestern Oil. The aggregate here was 715,164 shares versus 621,100 yesterday.

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 —Cotton futures rose 45 to 65 cents a bale today on mill and scattered outside buying in the face of a scarcity of offerings.

Reports in the trade that the Senate agricultural committee would probably consider favorably the Thomas amendment to liberalize the parity formula touched off a flurry of buying in late dealings with prices momentarily touching gains of $1 a bale.

First Hike In Crude Oil Prices Granted

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP) — The OPA today granted the first crude oil price ceiling increases under the high production costs provision of the stripper well premium payment plan.

The increases, effective as of January 1, are for four pools, as follows:

Hillsdale pool, Oklahoma, 35 cents a barrel; Getty pool, New Mexico, 14 cents; Grayson pool, Texas, 13 cents; and Clabberhill pool, Texas, ½ cent.

These boosts, to be met by subsidy, were provided under the extension of the premium payment plan last October to cover cases where average production costs for a pool are above ceiling prices. The subsidy is paid by Defense supplies corporation to the initial purchaser of the crude oil, usually a refiner.

Luzon Campaign

Batangas and Zambales coasts have made the Manila sector situation more critical.

A Tokyo broadcast to Germany noted that Japan's Luzon forces have not yet appeared for a fight and added "when and where the troops under General Yamashita take their stand and launch counter operations is not yet known."

The same thing was puzzling American Lt. Gen. Robert Eichelberger whose Eighth Army troops made the new landings. He asked "where in the hell are they going to fight?" explaining that the Japanese ran out when given the chance to put up real scraps on Mindoro island, Lingayen gulf and other western Luzon points.

Radio Tokyo reported, without American confirmation, that a single Superfortress bombed Osaka but made the usual claim—no damage. The influential Tokyo newspaper Asahi admitted B-29s "have caused damage to some parts of the city."

Subs Get Ten More

In Washington the U. S. Navy department reported the sinking of 10 Japanese tankers, transports and cargo ships by American submarines. This boosted to 989 the total bag of the subs since the start of the war, including 104 combatant craft.

The war against Japan was mentioned in an Associated Press London dispatch concerning the Big Three (Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin) conference supposedly in session somewhere east of the British capital. One reliable source said the heads of the American and British nations would take up the questions of sending forces from Europe to the Far East after Germany's collapse.

Campaign In China

The Japanese campaign in China to drive American airpower into the western hinterlands bore additional fruit as the U. S. 14th Airforce announced destruction and abandonment of its Suichwan base, Kiangsi province, about midway between Hankow and Hongkong.

A Chinese Army spokesman denied Japanese claims that the invaders now control all of the Canton-Hankow railway. He said fighting continues at several points along the line.

In central Burma the Japanese, making a last-ditch stand before Mandalay, were repulsed as they counterattacked.

British Indian troops made an unopposed landing on Sagu Kyun island, off Burma's west coast southeast of Akyab.

Soldiers Abroad Get "Full Pay"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP) — The War department gave assurance today that American soldiers in France were paid the "full amount" allowed them by law, either in United States currency or its equivalent in French francs.

Rep. Anderson (R-Calif) had forwarded a complaint from a constituent that exchange rates allowed by the Army paymasters were "beating" American troops out of their "modest earnings."

Reply To Complaint

The complaint stated the exchange rate recognized by the Army, through agreement with the French government, allowed about one-fifth as many francs to the dollar as American troops could get on the open market.

Brigadier General Edward W. Smith, deputy chief of the War department liaison and legislative division, replied to Anderson:

"U. S. troops no matter where located are paid the full amount approved by the Congress in U. S. dollars or equivalent thereof in legal tender local currency . . .

"If our soldiers were paid in France in dollar currency, they would be placed in a position of either obtaining francs for local expenditures at the official rate (which facility is made available to U. S. military personnel through Army disbursing officers) or of procuring francs through black market channels which would be in violation of the law in France.

"The prevailing high prices of certain goods in French markets . . . are considered to be due primarily to local shortages of goods, to the disorganization of civilian transportation and distribution facilities and to the general economic disruption which follows enemy occupation and military operations.

"Under these conditions it has been recognized by the Army that uncontrolled spending by our soldiers (which would be intensified if they obtained their francs at black market rates) would tend to aggravate the inflationary situation in France. Efforts have been made, therefore, with considerable success, to encourage our soldiers to send back to the United States as much money as possible out of the pay which they draw, and to discourage expenditures by them in French stores and restaurants. . . ."

Western Front

day's attack, plunging three miles through the hilly, wooded, terrain to within sight of the village of Schoneseiffen, seven miles east of Monschau.

Associated Press Correspondent Tom Yarbrough said that here, 10 miles deep into Germany, the doughboys were about midway between the two main defense belts of the Siegfried line without encountering enemy artillery fire.

Along this section of the front, the Siegfried line splits into two defense zones. The first, with its tank traps and pillboxes, lies close to the border and the second is farther east in the hills.

Eight miles to the south, the 82nd Airborne division struck both savage resistance and artillery fire as it fought into Udenbreth, a mile and a half inside Germany, where it seized key heights dominating all Siegfried positions in that sector.

Many of the pillboxes in the outer works of the westwall were deserted but the Germans were fighting from those in the most commanding positions and had to be blasted out by mobile artillery.

Road Junction Seized

The Ninth division seized a road junction five miles southeast of Monschau, while the First division farther south tore into the westwall's main fortifications.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army pounded out gains up to two miles, deepening its bridgehead across the Our river inside Germany east and southeast of St. Vith.

A number of German villages were engulfed and on the north flank the Third Army captured Bleialf, a village five and a half miles west of Prum, the heavily fortified communications center which supplies the Siegfried line.

At least on this sector there was as yet no hint that the Germans were about to turn and make a stand.

Supreme headquarters in a special announcement told the triumphant entry of a battle team of French and Americans into the southern Alsatian city of Colmar.

A high-ranking U. S. general was directing the operations against this city, famed as the birthplace of Bartholdi, sculptor of the Statue of Liberty.

A front dispatch said German resistance was relatively weak, although the city was heavily-mined and booby-trapped.

To the northeast, Lt. Gen. Jean de Lattre de Tassigny's French First Army drove up to the Rhine along a 30-mile front and was slowly enveloping Neuf-Brisach, the railway crossing city due east of Colmar. The salient once menacing Strasbourg was obliterated.

Ahead of the ground forces, artillery fire burst on the Neuf-Brisach bridge, without which many of the 25,000 Germans believed deployed around Colmar might never get back to the Reich.

Seventh's Front Flames

The U. S. Seventh Army front to the north was flaming into action.

Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's troops crossed the Moder river just west of Haguenau, 15 miles north of Strasbourg warded off two counter-blows and inflicted heavy losses.

The best weather in ten days released hundreds of fighter-bombers to batter German railroads from the Ruhr to the Black Forest across the Rhine from south Alsace.

This campaign was designed to prevent the transfer of German forces form the west front to the east.

It was considered unlikely that any of the German divisions withdrawn from the west had yet tackled the Russians, because of the disorganized state of railroads in the Rhineland.

Expanded Program Mapped By Gideons

Past accomplishments of the Gideons' International association were reviewed and an expanded, postwar program was discussed at a meeting Friday night of the Lubbock chapter in the annex of the First Baptist church.

More than 50 members and their wives and visitors were in attendance. Talks were made by A. E. Lewis of Eau Clair, Wis., trustee and past president of the international association, and George E. Simpson of Houston, state president. More than 8,000,000 small Testaments have been distributed to men and women in the armed forces, Lewis said. Approximately two and a half million Bibles have been contributed by the association to hotels, hospitals and other public places.

A Testament suitable for young people is being considered for distribution after the war. The local chapter will distribute 125 Bibles Sunday among four of Lubbock's smaller hotels. Dr. F. B. Malone, chapter president, presided. The secretary is A. L. King. Lubbock ministers present were Dr. J. M. Lewis, Dr. C. A. Bickley, Rev. Byron C. Welch and Dr. C. E. Hereford.

'Pussyfoot' Johnson, Dry Crusader, Dies

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Feb. 2. (AP)—William E. "Pussyfoot" Johnson, colorful dry crusader who retired to his Smithville Flats, N. Y. home convinced America "was nowhere near ready for another try at prohibition," died today. He was 82.

Johnson, who for 50 years waged battle against drink in every major country in the world except Alaska and South America, died in a Binghamton hospital where he had been taken in January.

As a government agent he obtained more than 97 per cent convictions in nearly 6,000 bootlegging cases from 1906 to 1908.

In England in 1919 he was mobbed and lost the sight of his right eye.

He acquired the nickname "Pussyfoot" when he arrested a bootlegging poolhall proprietor while enforcing dry laws in Oklahoma. An Oklahoma newspaper said, "the booze hunter strikes like lightning even if he is a pussyfoot."

Ceiling Prices On Underwear Are Cut

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2. (UP) — The Office of Price administration, in another move to put more low priced clothing on the market, has issued a regulation which will reduce ceiling prices of manufacturers of fall and winter utility outerwear about eight per cent.

The regulation lowers manufacturers' gross margins 20 per cent below their 1943 gross margins, an action which OPA said would still give the industry earnings comparing favorably with 1936-39 profits. The agency said the price saving will be passed on to consumers when the garments made under the new rule reach the markets in the late spring.

Sumners Undecided On Bishop's Place

HOUSTON, Feb. 2. (AP)—Rev. Thomas W. Sumners has been elected bishop of the Episcopal missionary district of North Texas, but said today that he has not accepted the post as yet.

The Rev. Sumners is rector of St. John's the Divine church here. He was named to succeed Bishop E. C. Seaman, who is retiring.

The North Texas missionary district has 25 churches and has headquarters in Amarillo.

Rev. Sumners said he will go to North Texas early next week to look the field over.

"I have to decide whether or not it is more important to do the job there than it is to be rector of my parish here," said he.

U. S. Subs Sink 10 More Jap Vessels

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2. (AP) — The silent arm of the U. S. fleet —the submarines — has racked up another 10 Japanese ship sinkings in the Pacific.

The Navy announced today the new list includes two medium cargo transports, two medium tankers (Japan's sorely needed category), three small cargo vessels, a large transport, a medium transport and a small tanker.

The total since Pearl Harbor now is 989, which includes 104 combat ships.

It takes one ton of jasmine blossoms to yield one pound of jasmine oil.

Russian Advances

At the lower end of a curving 55-mile-wide bulge pointed toward Berlin and Stettin, the Russians in an 11-mile advance seized Malsow, 24 miles east of Frankfurt. Wallwitz, another German stronghold in the Oder-Warthe bend, also was captured.

During the day Zhukov's troops overran more than 150 localities in Germany despite thousands of German reinforcements hurled into the desperate struggle along the Oder's eastern approaches and despite a thaw which hampered mechanized operations.

In the drive on Stettin the Russians captured Soldin, 57 miles northeast of Berlin and 25 miles northeast of Kustrin. This seizure put them within 36 miles of Stettin by Moscow's account, but Berlin placed them even closer.

Ninety-two miles northeast of Soldin other Soviet troops were within 58 miles of the Baltic, striking beyond captured Ratzebuhr, in their attempt to cut Pomerania into several segments.

German broadcasts reflected the Nazis' alarm at the drive on Stettin as well as Berlin. The German news agency DNB said that events were approaching a "decisive feat of arms."

The surrounded German garrisons in Poznan, western Poland, and Schneidemuhl, Pomeranian rail city 50 miles to the northwest, still were holding out, but Berlin said that Russian shock troops had penetrated inside both cities.

In East Prussia the Russians narrowed down the German-held territory to less than 1,000 square miles of the original 14,283, capturing 100 localities during the day. These included Domnau and Schippenbeil, junction towns 20 and 33 miles southeast of encircled Konigsberg, and Guttstadt, 46 miles south of the East Prussian capital.

The German garrison in Konigsberg was reported running out of ammunition, but the Moscow communique did not announce any fresh Russian progress in the fight to annihilate the Nazi defenders.

Peninsula Split

Twenty-two miles northwest of Konigsberg other Soviet units split the Samland peninsula into two sectors by capturing Germau, road junction two miles from its western tip. The Russians in this area now had reached Danzig bay at a point seven miles north of Fischhausen.

Adolf Hitler's newspaper Voelkischer Beobachter reported that "small forces" of Zhukov's Army had crossed the Oder, apparently due east of Berlin.

Inside Berlin the Germans were throwing up street barricades, digging trenches around the city and fortifying buildings. Stockholm dispatches said that British Mosquito bombers kindled huge fires in parts of the capital before dawn Friday.

Soviet planes were bombing and strafing the traffic-packed roads between Berlin and the Oder river.

Red Star, Soviet Army newspaper, commented thus on the second anniversary of the Stalingrad victory: "The ominous shadow of the Stalingrad defeat is now looming over the whole of Fascist Germany. The troops who fought at Stalingrad are celebrating this anniversary at the approaches to Konigsberg and Breslau and on the roads to Berlin. We'll force the enemy to answer for the ruins and blood of Stalingrad."

Berlin broadcasts were scarcely less comforting for the Germans. "The nemey knocks at the door of Berlin," said the Nazi commentator, Wilfred von Oven.

Assistant Director For PAW Is Named

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2. (AP) — Clayton H. Whitman of Shreveport, La., was appointed today an assistant director of the Petroleum Administration for War's supply and transportation division.

He succeeds Bruce Clardy, who resigned to resume operations as an oil well drilling contractor and crude oil producer in Texas.

Whitman, a native of Vernon, La., formerly was manager of the crude oil purchasing department of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey.

Slowing Of Red Drive For Berlin Believed Mainly Due To Supplies

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

The Russian advance upon Berlin down the Oder river box corridor in Brandenburg appears slowed down on the last lap, but whether due to concentrated Nazi resistance or to a Russian pause to bring up forces for the final cross-river plunge is far from clear.

SIMPSON

There remain only two city defensive bastions of the Oder box position, Frankfurt and Kustrin, both on the banks of the river itself. Both are reported by Berlin to be under immediate Russian attack or artillery fire which implies that Russian advance elements are well beyond the front in the Box and on both sides of the Warthe corridor Moscow outlined.

Battle Of Crossing Starts

If that is true, it means that the battle of the Oder crossings is now in progress and the fate of Berlin is hanging in the balance. It means also that the Russian commander of the main cutting wedge of the forward sweep from the Vistula, Marshal Zhukov, has satisfied himself that his northern flank stands in no grave danger of a Nazi counter thrust in force from Pomerania which could penetrate the Warthe (Warta) corridor deeply enough to cut or jeopardize his main communication lines.

So far as it can be traced, the right flank of the First White Russian Army penetration wedge to the vicinity of the Oder is the only real danger point.

There has been, however, no indication from Russian or Nazi sources that any German concentration north of the Warthe has been in progress.

It seems doubtful that in view of round-about communications available and the probable lack of any sizeable Nazi ammunition or supply depots in Pomerania that there is any real threat to Zhukov's communications from that direction.

South of the Warthe, Russian lines run along or at points beyond the Oder all the way to its rise in the Moravian gap sector. There is no danger point there to invite a German counter attack.

Thus there is a conviction that if there has been a slowing of the Russian pace, it is due more to efforts to bring up the forces necessary for the final thrust than to intensified and heavily reinforced German resistance east of the river. The Nazi hold too narrow and restricted a bridgehead east of the river in the Frankfurt-Kustrin sector for more than delaying action.

Farm Meeting Is Set Here This Afternoon

Lubbock county Farm Labor sub-committee and agricultural workers will meet at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Extension service building, 1320 Ave. Q, Jason O. Gordon, county agent said Friday.

The four-fold purpose of the meeting is to determine kind and amounts of labor-saving equipment which may be needed in the county, based upon soil and crop conditions; to plan survey of construction and repair facilities available in county experiment sub-stations, farm work shops, vocational agriculture farm shops, blacksmiths, machine shops, and others; to plan survey of labor-saving devices available on farms in county for field day demonstrations and for use as models in the construction program; and to plan a cooperative educational and exchange of idea program in the county, including tours, county-wide field days, construction and repair demonstrations at local shops.

"There exists a need for an intensive program for the construction of labor-saving devices and repair of farm machinery in Lubbock county to bridge the gap between available supplies of farm labor and the needs for farm labor in 1945," Gordon said.

"A cooperative program has been developed on a state level inviting the assistance of all agricultural workers in the county to bring about a unified front to the work in connection with the solution of the problem."

SPAAF On Inactive Status February 20

A report to Congressman George Mahon, made by an executive of the Army Air Forces Air Technical command, shows that the future of South Plains Army Air Field is still "unsettled."

The report, in the form of a letter signed by Col. W. W. Wood, deputy chief of the Air Forces Technical command's Personnel and Services division, Wright Field, Ohio, said on February 16, SPAAF will go on "temporarily inactive status which will permit its re-opening on a 30-day notice."

Otherwise, Colonel Wood's letter continued, "the future of South Plains Army Air Field is not known by this (Wright Field) headquarters." He said any future use of SPAAF's facilities would have to be decided and announced by higher authority of the Army Air Forces.

It had been previously announced that control of SPAAF would pass to Wright Field headquarters, Air Forces Technical command, on February 16.

Wright Field is located adjacent to Dayton, Ohio.

AUSTIN, Feb. 2. (AP) — Federal District Judge Charles Boynton today granted application of the Office of Price administration for an order restraining temporarily the state liquor board from selling to the highest bidder 1,200 cases of confiscated liquor.

LT. TONY J. WHEELER

Mother Overjoyed At Rescue Of Wheeler

SEAGRAVES, Feb. 2.—Mrs. Ray Willingham of Seagraves was unable to explain her feeling when informed Thursday night that her son, 2nd Lt. Tony J. Wheeler, was one of 40 or more rescued from a Japanese prison camp on Luzon Island in the Philippines, but she was "overjoyed," she admitted.

"I can't express just how I felt when I heard the news," she said.

"Something was wrong with my radio and one of my neighbors came in and told me the news. It was not long until the house was full of people—doctors, lawyers, bankers, merchants—all coming to rejoice with me. We really had a wonderful celebration," she said, her voice trembling.

Captured On Bataan

Lt. Wheeler was captured at the fall of Bataan in May, 1942, where he was serving with the Army Quartermaster corps, and was serving under Gen. Johathan Wainwright, following the departure of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

He had been in three prison camps, No. 7, No. 3 and No. 1. Mrs. Willingham did not know how long he had been in the last camp as cards she received from him had no dates on them.

She received a card from him about two weeks ago, she said, in which he told her, "I am in the hospital, but don't worry for I will be all right."

Fate Unknown For Year

Lt. Wheeler had been a prisoner of the Japs a year before Mrs. Willingham knew it. He had been reported missing by the War department. She learned he was a prisoner when she received a card from him.

Mrs. Willingham also received two letters from her son, written just before the fall of Bataan, in which he said "we are having quite a battle, one that will be tough to lose, but we are holding our chins up."

Lt. Wheeler entered the service Nov. 2, 1939, enlisting at Lubbock, and had been in the Philippines since early 1940. He was in Manila with MacArthur's troops when the islands were invaded by the Japs. He received his commission in 1941.

Lt. Wheeler, who is 28 years of age, received his education in the schools at Hereford, Canyon and Ralls, playing on the football team at Ralls High school. He also attended Draughon's Business college in Lubbock.

A brother, Gerrod Wheeler, recently discharged from the Marines, was at home here when the news of his brother's liberation was received.
