SHEEP AND GOAT RAISERS MET THIS WEEK.

The following members of the Executive Committee were present at the meeting at Hankins-Riley Hall Monday of this week: Claude A. Broome, President; James T. Elliott, Secretary; Roy E. Aldwell, Oscar Appelt, V. A. Erown, W. C. Bryson, Bob Davis, T. L. Drisdale, Frank Greenwood, Albert Kincaid, A. V. Livingston, Jim Moore, Rob't Real, W. M. Noelke, N. H. Skaggs, J. A. Whitten, B. M. Halbert and Attorney C. C. Belcher.

A number of the gentlemen brought their wives or daughters.

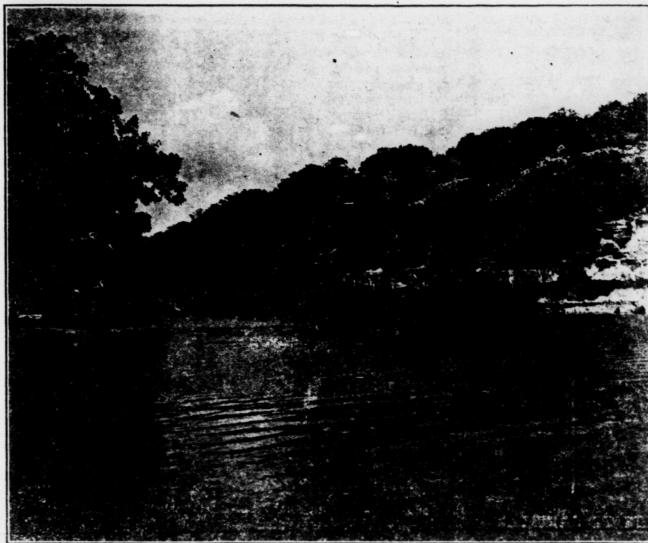

The business session began about 9 o'clock Monday morning and after a few preliminaries, the order of business was taken up. President Broome gave a general report of the work of the Legislative Committee. The amendment to the law creating and governing the Livestock Sanitary Commission was amended at the last session of the Legislature to provide for control of scabies. The "Truth in Fabric" bill was passed by the Legislature, but was vetoed by the Governor at the request of the sheep and goat men on account of an amendment tacked on in the Senate by Senator Dudley. It was stated, that practically killed the effect of the bill.

B. M. Halbert, chairman of the Chevon Committee, gave a report of the work of his committee. After his report a resolution was adopted asking the Secretary of Agriculture to recognize the word "chevon." C. C. Belcher, B. M. Halbert and Bob Davis were appointed as a committee to present the proposition to Secretary Wallace.

A resolution was adopted asking that the study of wool scouring methods and the study of wool and mohair fleece, be made a part of the regular courses at A. & M. College.

Plans were discussed for the convention which meets at Del Rio, June 26, 27, 28, and 29, and committees were appointed. A committee was also appointed to revise the Constitution and By-laws, and to report at the time of the Del Rio Convention.

A reception was given the visiting ladies on Monday afternoon at the Schreiner Park and a banquet was tendered the members of the Committee at the

Who wouldn't like to fish or go boating in this "big hole" on The Llano Rivers are unequalled for beautiful scenery, fine fishing and camping places.

Fritz Hotel Monday night.

Tuesday the Committeemen were guests of the town and of the I. O. O. F. Lodge. The Odd-fellows were having a barbecue and picnic at the Park, celebrating the 104th anniversary of the order in America. A large crowd was present and the lodge furnished plenty of bread, barbecued chevon, fish, coffee and pickles for all. Weaver H. Baker was in charge of the ceremonies and introduced a number of the visiting sheep and goat men who made short and interesting addresses.

The principal address was made by the Association Attorney, C. C. Belcher. Mr. Belcher, a former citizen of Sutton County, made an excellent address, outlining the important accomplishments of the Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association during its eight years' history.

Shortly after the noon hour, the visiting committeemen left for their homes.

Go easy on criticising the faults of others; you may be stepping on your own toes.

SOME PROMINENT MEN VISIT IN JUNCTION.

Last week a large number of tourists and camping parties were seen on the streets of Junction. Among those who were in Junction for the first time were, W. H. Furlong and wife of San Antonio, and E. A. Peden and wife and daughter of Houston. Mr. Furlong is Highway Secretary of the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce and has been promising to come here for more than a year. Directing thousands of tourists, as he does, he wanted to familiarize himself with the different sections of the country surrounding San Antonio. He expressed surprise at finding such a scenic and well watered country so near the City, and says he will be more enthusiastic than ever about this Hill Country and doubtless his first hand knowledge of the country about Junction will be the cause of many tourists coming who would otherwise visit other places. He predicts a great future for the Llano country and says the only thing that is necessary to attract tourists in numbers to compare with California and Colorado, is to advertise.

Mr. Peden is a prominent wholesaler and banker, being connected with the First National Bank of Houston, and head of the Peden Iron and Steel Co. This was his first time to realize the beauties of the Llano River country. He drove over a considerable portion of the country around town and visited the 700 Springs. He was kind enough to say some nice things about the Eagle, and stated that the desire to visit Junction was created by the fact that E. A. Loedler had been mailing him copies of this paper, which he read and passed on to others in the office.

We predict that both these gentlemen and their families will be with us again soon and will arrange to spend a longer time here.

LOCAL FIRM IS A STRONG ADVERTISER.

It is doubtful if any other firm in any other town the size of Junction has a more progressive and public spirited management than the Junction Hardware Co.

This month's Grinstead's Graphic carries a whole page advertisement of the Junction Hardware Co., telling of the advantages of Junction and Kimble County. Recently Farm and Ranch commented on a picture folder that this firm had sent them, showing views of the country around Junction and describing the country.

Replies have been coming in from every direction, and the result is going to be that many people who never heard of Junction will be coming this way. Many of them will like so well that they will want to locate with us.

The Junction Hardware Company, aside from being the biggest advertising patron of this paper, spends hundreds of dollars every year advertising the town and county. This is very commendable and other merchants of the town will find it very profitable to follow this example, even if in a smaller degree. The tourist trade is a big asset. Their visits here benefit every person in the county.

Junction is setting on the map. Everyone should co-operate to advertise it.

DIRECT MAIL ROUTING TO JUNCTION IS URGED.

Recommendations have been made by the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce to the local postoffice for the delivery of mail and parcel post to Junction from San Antonio via Kerrville by railroad and from there to Junction by stage, after the automobile road from Kerrville to Junction was logged and reported to be in excellent condition by W. H. Furlong, director of the highway department of the Chamber of Commerce.

This was done at the request of the city of Junction since the present routing of mail by Austin, Temple and Menard, and thence to Junction by stage, causes a delay of three and four days in the delivery. The San Antonio Chamber of Commerce was asked to log the Kerrville-Junction road and report its condition to the Postoffice Department and state whether or not it would be feasible to route mail from San Antonio in a more direct way.

Mr. Furlong said that he had found the road in excellent condition and that he learned that San Antonio Express is delivered to Junction each day by truck from Kerrville and that it arrives at about 3 p. m., much quicker than any mail sent thru the postoffice from San Antonio in the usual way can reach that city.

Mr. Furlong said that there had been a great deal of money spent on the road by Kerr and Kimble counties and that it is being rolled and dragged now so that its condition is unusually good and the motor trip through the hills in that section is unequalled in scenic beauty.—San Antonio Express.

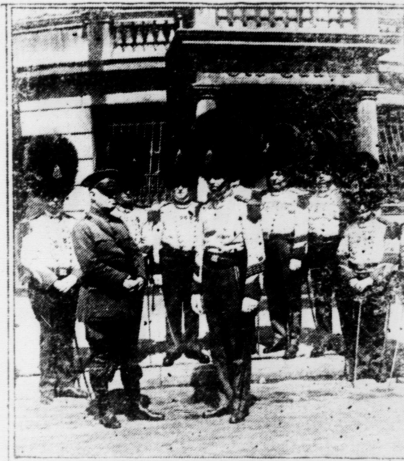

MEMBERS WEST TEXAS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

J. H. Burris, organization field manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, with headquarters at Stamford, was in Junction Tuesday in the interest of that organization.

The following old members renewed their membership: Junction Hardware Co., J. A. Heyman, druggist, P. Joseph, dry goods, Schreiner-Hodges Co., First National Bank, Junction State Bank, and Junction Publishing Co.

Charles Vaillant, the great French radiograph specialist, signing the "Golden Book" in the City Hall, Paris, at the recent ceremony in his honor, when Ambassador Herrick decorated him with the gold medal of the Carnegie Foundation. As a result of his fearless and faithful devotion to radiography, Dr. Vaillant has undergone amputation after amputation, losing first his fingers, then his right hand, then his left arm, and recently part of his left shoulder.

The Old Guard composed of veterans of American wars, of regular military and naval establishments of the United States, celebrated its 97th anniversary by marching from headquarters at 91st Street to the Arm and Navy Club, where they had a luncheon, and then proceeded to the Church of Heavenly Rest for Memorial Services. Photo shows the newly elected officers who were sworn in by Adjutant General Meyers (foreground) and Major Edward Havemeyer Snyder, Commandant, also in foreground.

HOW THE UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT WORKS.

SECTION D OF HIGHWAY MAY BE ROCK ASPHALT.

Kerrville's proposition for State aid in paving Water Street from the Town creek bridge to Glen Rest Cemetery, which is a part of the Old Spanish Trail, was turned down at the last meeting of the State Highway Department at Austin. However, they practically pledged that aid would be given provided all of Section D, or six miles, were included, the pavement to be 18 feet wide through the city and 16 feet in the country.

Arrangements to finance the proposition have been made and the necessary plans and specifications are being prepared by County Engineer Simpson, and the matter will be taken up with the Highway Department at its next meeting, May 21st.

While it is felt certain that the action of the State Highway Department will be favorable, full details will not be given until after they have passed upon the matter.—Kerrville Mountain Sun.

COMMERCIAL CLUB TO FINANCE EXPERIMENT.

The Mason Commercial Club met at the court house Monday night in the County Judge's office. In the absence of President Hoerster, the meeting was called to order and presided over by W. I. Marschall.

One of the most important matters of the meeting was the body endorsed the experimental work being carried on by a number of farmers of the Katemey section in an effort to exterminate the boll weevil by the Florida Weevil Control method, under the supervision of the A. & M. Extension Department, with the co-operation of our county demonstration agent. The club voted that it stand the expense of the poison these farmers will use in their experiments, the expense of which will amount to something like $40.—Mason County News.

BRADY TO CLOSE SHOP FOR ANGELO CONVENTION

Brady business men will close up shop on Wednesday, May 23, and attend the West Texas Chamber of Commerce annual convention at San Angelo, according to present plans. As a matter of fact, quite a number of Bradyites will observe the three days of the convention, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 21, 22 and 23, as a holiday and join the Brady Municipal Band in their visit to the city on the Concho, and will incidentally pay homage to her majesty, "Lady Brady," as represented by Miss Marjorie McCall and her court.

The matter of closing shop one day received the unanimous approval of the Brady Luncheon Club, and inasmuch as Brady expects to put in her bid for the 1924 convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, every citizen who possibly can, should join with the Brady delegation on the last day, if not for all three days.—Brady Standard.

The present Legislature is still ringing true to the wall earned appellation as the "Taxing Legislature." On Monday of last week one representative (Patman) introduced nine tax bills. It seems he would tax everything that he has been able to find, by constant study, that is not now being taxed to the limit. Finding new sources of revenue seems to be taking all the time of the statesmen at Austin, and consequently no time is left to study the ways and means of economizing. It seems to those who have given the matter some study and attention, that at the present rate of raising taxes the future holds nothing for the man who has an ambition to accumulate a competence by hard work and economy. Has it come to the point when the State of Texas is placing a premium on shiftlessness and incompetence, hanging a yoke about the necks of those who would build stable homes and business institutions, that are the bulwarks of the State and Nation?

It seems that every effort is being made to ferret out those lines of industry which, by reason of the fact that they fill a necessary round in the ladder of development and progress, have become in a measure prosperous or show signs of becoming prosperous, to lay a burden of taxation on them that will discourage their efforts to help develop the unlimited resources of this great State.

Much has been said about encouraging cotton mills and other manufacturing industries to come to this State. Is it reasonable to assume that capital will be invested in mills in this State when the avowed policy, as shown by the efforts of some members of the Legislature, is to tax them beyond their ability to pay and make a reasonable profit on their investment?

Isn't it time to forget about new sources of revenue for a time? Isn't it time to spend less and earn more? The State is only an individual of a larger kind. The same principles that apply to the well being of an individual, apply to the State. Let's call a halt.

Wednesday the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Convention will be held at San Angelo. That progressive city has made arrangements for caring for 10,000 visitors on this date. Delegates from practically every town in West Texas will be on hand.

The elaborate program was printed in the Eagle two or three weeks ago. Many prominent speakers will be there and a very pleasant and profitable visit is assured those who attend. A number from Junction are planning to go.

NOVEL CLOCK IN THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

When you have seen the recently installed clock in the window of the First National Bank, you will have to agree that there is "something new under the sun." This clock keeps perfect time, has no springs, electrical equipment, weights or other motive force. It simply runs itself. Take a look at it and if you can't figure out how it runs ask the boys in the bank.

gestions of the various judges are returned to the writer and he uses such of them as he may think will improve the original.
It may be necessary for him to recast his whole opinion. At the next meeting of the conference, the first business is a call for opinions, which means that the judges who have written opinions shall answer whether or not they have a majority for them, as written, and, if there is a majority for them, they are announced at the next session as the opinions of the court.

Has Benefit of Criticism.

"Thus every opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States," he went on, represents not only the best that is in the man who writes it, but also the best that the criticism of every other judge on the bench can make of it.

"There is an erroneous impression that is quite widely entertained in our country—I heard it within a year in New York and in San Francisco—relating to the method of disposing of petitions for writs of certiorari which I should like to correct. So many petitions for such writs are presented to the Supreme Court, and they are disposed of often so promptly, that the notion has been spread abroad that the cases are apportioned by the Chief Justice among the judges, that each reports on the case assigned to him, and that his conclusion is accepted and announced as that of the court.
Nothing could be further from the fact. Each judge receives a copy of the record, and the briefs in support of it, and each is supposed to, and actually does, work out to his own conclusion with respect to it. In conference the petitions are called and discussed, a vote is taken, and each is decided precisely as if it were an argued case. So that, on such petitions, the country and the bar may be sure they have the benefit of the court."

After a brief pause, Justice Clarke continued thus: "There is another misunderstanding which I think should be corrected.
You see, I can say things now which members of the court cannot and some of them are things that ought to be said."

"Every third or fourth week in the court year the Chief Justice announces that beginning the next Monday the court will take a recess for two, three or four weeks; and as these announcements are frequent, the notion is widely entertained, especially among laymen, that it is a very leisurely kind of life the judges of the Supreme Court lead—that they are a group of leisurely old men, leading a leisurely life in a leisurely way in the leisurely atmosphere of Washington.
As a matter of fact these recesses are the times when the judges do their closest and most important work, for they are the weeks in which the opinions are written. Most of the judges work steadily day in and day out through all of these recesses. Some of them work best, they think, in the early part of the night; others think they can accomplish most in the early morning. It is an open secret that the present Chief Justice is in his study at five o'clock many a morning, and all Washington knew that the late Chief Justice White turned night into day when he was working on important cases."

"I think I saw as much of the American lawyer at work, between Boston and Chicago, in the 20 years before I went on the bench as anyone is likely to see, and I say without reservation that I never saw a group of lawyers, anywhere, work with anything like the intensity of application that the judges of the Supreme Court of the United States work.
They deserve what is said of them so frequently in Washington—that in time of peace the court is much the hardest working branch of the United States Government."

And He Won His Case.

From this serious discussion of what he termed "bone labor" he turned abruptly and closed the interview by relating this amusing incident: "Once the court had been listening to Four teenth Amendment cases for three or four days. You'll never know how the Fourteenth Amendment is overworked until you sit for two or three years on the bench of the Supreme Court of the United States. There are lawyers all over this country who seem to think that any judgment rendered against any client of theirs necessarily denies to him the equal protection of the laws or is without due process of law—or both."

"We had been listening to that kind of cases for several days when finally a man arose and stated a case of very different character. I had turned to the opinion of the Court of Appeals, as was my custom, because I had found by experience that I could, in most cases, get an understanding of a case more quickly from that than from the statement of counsel. I was reading, but with one ear open to what the lawyer was saying, and I remember very distinctly the thought went through my mind, 'This man has an extraordinary vocabulary and he is speaking with most unusual cogency; I wonder who he is?' I looked at the brief and saw his name, but it didn't mean anything at all to me."

"He continued in a sharp, clear, condensed argument for about 15 or 20 minutes, and then summing up briefly, he paused and said, 'Your Honors, that is my case. I, of course, restate it in a different form. I could amplify it and consume the rest of the time allotted to me, but from the attention I have received and from the questions that have been asked me, I am sure that the points upon which I rely have been appreciated, and will receive the attention which they deserve.' Then, after another pause, he said,
'Time has dealt gently with me, your Honors, but I am no longer young; and I live in such a remote part of the country that it is highly probable that I shall never be permitted hope that it may be decided on the principles of substantial justice, and not upon the rule of practice founded in pure fiction, upon which it was disposed of in the courts below.' I am happy to say that his case was disposed of in his favor upon principles of substantial justice. I read the opinion a few days ago and I found myself as well satisfied with it then as I was the day I wrote it."

VOLUNTEERS AND THE LACK OF THEM.

If a child is in danger, having suffered a severe burn, and skin is needed for grafting, publish the call and watch the response. It will be eager, unafraid. If a community gets caught in the jaws of the wind and crushed to bits, issue the call and watch money and food pour in. But when the country needs level-headed men to guide the government and take the places occupied by professional politicians, what happens? Is there a rush? Not so you might notice it. Only a sullen wail, "Politics is too dirty to tamper with." Oh, that we had the same zeal for government and righteous legislation that we have for a handful of persons affected! For had government means misery in every gruesome shape—hungry children—wantons—criminals—suicides.—Farm and Ranch

HODGES HOTEL SELLS.

Recently Mrs. Bob Motley purchased the Hodges Hotel and three lots from T. M. Hodges.

This is a very desirable piece of property, and is a splendid location for a hotel. Mrs. Motley expects to gradually refurbish the hotel and may change the name later.

T. M. Hodges and wife have moved to the house across the street from the Baptist church, which was built by Mr. Hodges last year.

PECANS

EVERY YEAR Sees the Llano River Pecans in bigger demand. A normal yield, brings thousands of dollars into the county, and the producing cost is very small. This is a source of revenue that we are very fortunate in having, and it behooves us to increase this revenue if possible.

THERE ARE Many trees that produce a pecan much superior to the average, and these better grades command high prices. A systematic study of the methods of producing more of the better grades will pay well. Top grafting has proven a decided success in other localities and can be profitable resorted to here.

THERE ARE A number of men experienced in this work, living in the county and the County Demonstration Agent is also well qualified for this work. Get in touch with some experienced pecan man now and do some top grafting this season. Now is the time. It will pay you well
