Sterling Oil Conservation Bill Fails in Legislature

SENATE ADOPTS SUBSTITUTE TO ADMINISTRATION BILL REFUSING LAST OF GOVERNOR'S THEORIES

AUSTIN, Aug. 8. (AP)—The destruction of Gov. Ross S. Sterling's oil conservation legislation program, accomplished tonight by the Texas senate, was made irrevocable.

The senate, having voted to substitute the last surviving administration conservation bill, finally passed the substitute and through parliamentary maneuvers made it impossible to bring up the action for reconsideration.

Tonight's substitute bill, by Senator Frank Rawlings of Fort Worth and others, specifically declares against any consideration of market demand by the commission, and specifically prohibits any proration.

AUSTIN, Aug. 8. (AP)—The oil conservation program of Gov. Ross S. Sterling failed tonight in the Texas legislature.

By vote of 16 to 9, the senate adopted a substitute to the administration conservation bill, declining to accept the last of the governor's theories as how best to cure the oil industry's ills.

The administration bill had been passed in the house.

Both houses yesterday killed the companion measure designed to set up a new conservation commission to enforce more stringent regulations against waste projected in the bill that met death tonight.

The house was not in session as the senate, where members had been denied permission to leave pending action on the bill and the substitute, turned down the governor's program.

Sees Chaos Ahead

Senator Walter C. Woodward of Coleman, who steered the administration measure, in a last speech declared chaotic conditions in oil industry would continue under the substitute bill, offered by Senator Frank Rawlings of Fort Worth and others.

"I've heard lots of verdicts that were adverse," Woodward shouted. "But there is a Democratic house which never will swallow this substitute.

"I can't speak for the governor," Woodward called out, "but I know he doesn't want a law that more or less enacts the present statutes and had no teeth to stop this wasteful situation in East Texas."

Proponents of the substitute bill claimed it would authorize the state railroad commission to prevent physical waste—as Woodward's proposed—but that it would not allow the commission to consider market demand. It was contended, the Woodward bill would have much such an authorization by implication.

The substitute bill was engrossed 19 to 8 with two present and not voting and one pair.

The action of the advocates of the substitute was clinched a few moments later when Senator Pol-

BOTH BRANCHES FAVOR BILL ON REDISTRICTING

MEASURE FEARED TOO LATE FOR APPROVAL

East, West and South Texas Given New Districts Under Greer Bill

AUSTIN, Aug. 8. (AP)—Both branches of the legislature today had voted out favorably bills to provide for congressional redistricting.

Leading advocates of redistricting however, were apathetic and inclined to the belief that no bill would be passed and approved by both branches this late in the session, which will end Wednesday.

The bill reported by the senate committee was designed "to make doubly sure" of the re-election of Congressman John Garner, ranking Democratic in the national house. The district provided for Garner in the bill was drafted to suit his desires. Senator Julian Greer was the author of the senate bill. "We were careful in drawing it to get the district Jack Garner would like because we want to make doubly sure he is re-elected," Greer said.

Garner is in line for the house speakership in event the Democrats organize the house at the next session.

The Greer bill would cut off some of Garner's northern counties and it would follow the Rio Grande from Del Rio to Brownsville, a distance of approximately 400 miles. Advocates of the bill said they felt Garner was in no danger as the district now stood, but that he would be in an even more stragetic position by the change.

The Greer bill would give East Texas, South Texas and West Texas new districts.

The bill reported by the house committee was introduced by Representative Penrose Metcalfe of San Angelo. It would give South Texas, West Texas and the Panhandle new districts. It resembled, closely the bill that died in the regular session when the senate refused to pass it by one vote.

France Will Agree to Limitations Of Arguments in Proportion to Her Pledges of Security From Powers

By ROBERT J. BENDER

(Copyright, 1931, by United Press)

PARIS, Aug. 8.—France today is doggedly resolved to accept limitations of armaments at the 1932 world arms conference only in proportion to pledges other powers will give to guarantee her security.

This statement was made to me by Premier Pierre Laval. The premier is new to the chancellories of the continent, but already has become one of the most powerful figures in Europe. He said the world can be assured that France will neither seek to defeat limitations of armaments nor take a negative stand at the Geneva conference.

The nations, however, will find this country determined to stand by its policy of demanding guarantees against the possibility of future attacks. France has not forgotten that her territory has been invaded any many of the richest departments laid waste twice within the last half century.

The premier insisted that France already has gone far along the path toward disarmament. But he added that other nations had not followed France's lead.

He said he believed France now has arrived at a minimum of armed power compatible with national security.

Laval said it was not yet certain who would represent France at Geneva. It was believed that if he is still in power, he himself will head the delegation.

As premier, Laval has found himself head of a government of "prima donnas." There are several ministers far better known at home and abroad than Laval, including Aristide Briand and Andre Tardieu. Yet the short, dark attorney has become the real master of France. He is premier in fact as well as in name.

His success at the Paris and London conferences this summer is now referred to as the first French statesman to return from a postwar conference without sacrificing some of the interests of his country.

FOURTH DAY OF OIL SHUTDOWN IS UNEVENTFUL

Murray's Goal of $1 Per Barrel Appears Remote

TEXAS INDEPENDENTS TO MEET AT TYLER MONDAY

Champlin Company Still Seeks Relief From Sooner Edict

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 8. (AP)—The close of four days of martial law in Oklahoma oil fields found Gov. W. H. Murray's shutdown edict in full force tonight with around 3,000 wells choked down but the goal of $1 a barrel oil apparently removte.

As oil leaders of the midcontinent area turned their appeal to the East Texas independent producers for aid in extricating themselves from the mire of distress, two great fields were in the limelight of startling comparison.

TYLER, Texas, Aug. 8. (UP) Proposal for Texas and Oklahoma to "swap" governors was dispatched to the Oklahoma house of representatives today by a group of independent oil operators here.

Not only would the oil men "donate" Gov. Ross Sterling to Oklahoma, but would give a million barrels of oil "to boot," the telegram said.

The "to boot" would amount to only $100,000 at the present price of East Texas crude oil—10 cents a barrel.

A daily average production that set a record for any field had been recorded by the East Texas area at 664,236 barrels with a total of 1,468 wells completed for the week ended Aug. 5.

SUSPECTS IN CUBAN FILIBUSTERING MOVE PREDICT REVOLUTION

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 8. (AP)—Leaders of the 38 Cubans seized yesterday on the schooner Harold near here predicted today there would be a revolt in Cuba within a month, but maintained they were bound on an innocent fishing trip when halted by coast guardsmen.

Quartered in a national guard armory while awaiting action of the department of justice, the Cubans discussed the political affairs of their native land with interest. They criticized the administration of President Machado and asserted not more than 10 per cent of Cuba's standing army is loyal to him.

Members of the group expressed confidence they would be released after it was shown they were in the United States legally and a number of them are American citizens.

LEGS DIAMOND FACES FOUR YEARS FEDERAL PRISON, $11,000 FINE

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (US)—Jack "Legs" Diamond, the slippery king of New York's gangland, was found guilty of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws and illegal possession of an unlicensed still by a jury in federal court at 6:12 o'clock this evening.

The jury deliberated exactly two hours before returning the verdict of guilty on both counts of the indictment for Diamond, and guilty of the first charge only for his right-hand man, Paul Quattrocchi.

As a result of the jurors' courage, Diamond faces a maximum penalty of four years imprisonment and fines totaling $11,000. His aide may receive two years and be fined $10,000. Bail of $7,500 each was continued, and both men were freed pending sentence on Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

As the foreman read the portentious words, which can put the self-styled beer baron of the Catskills behind bars for four years, Mrs. Diamond burst into tears, and "Legs" turned a slow brick red. Quattrocchi, who has maintained his nonchalance throughout the four-day trial, continued to play with his fountain pen.

As the jury was dismissed, "Legs" walked hastily toward his wife, his eyes filled with tears.

The government had caught up at last with the man who thus far has seemed immune both to enemy bullets and to the long arm of the law.

Bail in the case of both Diamond and Quattrocchi was raised to $10,000, and it was announced that the men would be sentenced at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning.

FOUR HUNDRED KILLED IN MISSION HOSPITAL COLLAPSE IN HANKOW

HANKOW, China, Aug. 9. (Sunday) (AP)—Four hundred patients and attendants perished today when a wing of the Hankow Union Mission hospital collapsed as the result of floods.

The hospital is maintained in a native section of Hankow by the London Missionary society and the Wesleyan Methodist Missionary society, both British organizations.

FOUR BURN TO DEATH VIRGINIA PLANE WRECK

LYNCHBURG, Va., Aug. 8. (AP)—Four men burned to death tonight when a cabin monoplane crashed in a thicket at the edge of Preston Glenn air port.

The known dead are:

G. H. Clarkson, pilot of the Lynchburg flying service, and Lieutenant Mettee, Baltimore, a parachute jumper, who had been in Lynchburg the last three months.

The other dead were identified as Willis Carroll and Jack Adkins, both of Lynchburg.

OFFICERS INVESTIGATE SHOOTING AT REFUGIO

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, Aug. 8. (AP)—Officers tonight were investigating the fatal shooting of Mrs. Allie Heard Beasley and the wounding of her uncle, John Heard, at Refugio today.

C. W. DELP DIES WHILE VISITING IN LOS ANGELES

C. W. Delp, 62, retired ranchman and oil operator, who had resided in Wichita Falls nearly 15 years, died Saturday at the home of a sister in Los Angeles, Calif., where he and Mrs. Delp had gone about five weeks ago with the intention of remaining there through the summer, according to word received by friends.

Funeral services are to be held in Los Angeles from the sister's home at 1531 Cambria and burial will be in that city. Mr. Delp had been in ill health for more than a year.

Surviving him, in addition to the widow, are a daughter who resides in Bowie; and his mother and two sisters living in Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Delp came here from Illinois about 15 years ago. He had been engaged in the farming and ranching business in that state and acquired similar holdings in and near Wichita Falls. Later, he entered the oil business and was active as an operator for a number of years. Failing health hastened his retirement about a year ago.

SENTENCE IN INOLA BANK ROBBERY CASE AFFIRMED BY COURT

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 8. (UP)—Marvin Dold, Rogers county, must serve 25 years in the state penitentiary for robbing the Inola First National bank, the criminal court of appeals ruled today.

Dold was convicted of the robbery and kidnaping the cashier and his wife by a Rogers county district court. The court's decision was affirmed today by the appeals court.

Other opinions included:

Mike Risen Hoover, convicted in LeFlore county on a burglary charge and sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary, affirmed.

C. J. Troup, Muskogee county, convicted of obtaining money under false pretenses and sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary, affirmed.

FLIER MISSING AFTER TAKE-OFF IN FAROES

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 8. (AP)—Parker D. Cramer and his mechanic, Oliver Pacquette, the world's most unobtrusive long distance fliers, vanished again from public knowledge tonight.

The last heard of them was that they had left the island of Suderoe in the Faroes at 4:40 p. m. (11 a. m. E. S. T.) bound for the Danish capital. Their route lay over Bergen and Southern Norway and it was understood they would spend the night at Bergen and come on here Sunday.

Expedition Discovers Rare Phytosaur Fossil In Amarillo Region

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Aug. 8. (AP)—The museum of paleontology of the University of Michigan today announced discovery of the dorsal armor of a giant phytosaur of the Triassic age.

The discovery was made near Amarillo, Texas, by an expedition composed of Dr. E. C. Case, director of the museum of paleontology, W. H. Buettner, preparator, and Theodore White, graduate student in the university.

Dr. Case describes phytosaurs as large carnivorous reptiles, resembling crocodiles in form and habits. The specimen, discovery of which was announced today, was part of the skeleton of a great animal about 25 feet long which lurked in the swamps during the Triassic period, some 50 million years ago.

The phytosaur's back was covered by an armor plate made up of thick bony plates, and the Michigan expedition made the first find of a set of armor plates in undisturbed position.

Dr. Case said the finding of the plates of the dorsal armor in place is a unique discovery, as it will solve many questions concerning the form of these extinct creatures.

The expedition went to Texas June 15 to continue excavations which have been carried on during several summers. In the Triassic formation near Snyder, in southwestern Texas, the party found four complete skulls of large amphibians, three other skulls less complete and others parts of skeletons. These specimens are of the type named Buettneria by Dr. Case from specimens previously found in the Triassic formation of Texas.

"These amphibians were much like modern mud puppies or water dogs, found in rivers of today," Dr. Case said, "but they were much larger, the largest reaching eight feet in length. They were actively carnivorous, feeding on the fish and small reptiles and other amphibians of the pools which they inhabited."

Near Amarillo, the expedition found, besides the specimen of phytosaur armor, a large amphibian skull, probably new to science, two phytosaur skulls and many other portions of the skeletons of reptiles and amphibians. Much valuable plant material also was collected.

MRS. HOOVER CHRISTENS NEW NAVY DIRIGIBLE

Flock of 48 Pigeons Released From Bow of Giant Dirigible

AKRON, Ohio, Aug. 8. (US)—The ZRS-Four, world's largest dirigible, tonight was officially known as the U. S. S. Akron.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, first lady of the land, returned to Washington after formally saying only four words, "I christen thee Akron."

Ohio, birthplace of the airplane, again stepped into the aeronautical limelight and another milestone was placed in the history of American aviation. Akron tonight was recovering from the biggest hour in its history.

More than 140,000 persons gathered in the air dock and witnessed the simple, impressive ceremony. It was estimated that 200,000 were at the airport, many of whom saw the christening from vantage points outside the hangar.

Christening Party

Mrs. Hoover arrived at 11:35 a. m., in a special car. She was taken to the Portage Country club for luncheon immediately. Promptly at 2:20 p. m. She arrived at the air dock with the christening party.

Mrs. Hoover was greeted by a

LONE STAR PLANT AT HOLLIS BURNS AFTER EXPLOSION

HOLLIS, Okla., Aug. 8.—The Lone Star Gas company refinery located three miles northwest of here suffered more than $15,000 damage when an explosion, caused from a spark from an electric light bulb, set fire to the plant about 8:45 o'clock Saturday night.

The refinery is located on the pipe line running from Shamrock to Wichita Falls and the pipe line was shut off on both sides of the plant to halt the fuel supply. The blaze was still raging late Saturday night.

Superintendent Bill Crockett escaped uninjured in the explosion and no casualties were reported.

EAST TEXAS OPERATORS WITH 60,000 BARRELS AGREE TO SHUT DOWN

TYLER, Texas, Aug. 8. (AP)—W. E. McKinney announced tonight that operators controlling a daily output of between 50,000 and 60,000 barrels of oil daily had agreed to shut down their wells.

McKinney is a member of the steering committee for a mass meeting which is to be held here Aug. 14, at which time it is planned to formally declare a shut-down in production.

McKinney sought by his statements to refute reports that the Lathrop area was not in sympathy with the shut-down movement and that only 1,800 barrels of production daily would be stopped by its imposition.

He indicated approximately 100,000 to 150,000 barrels daily would be pledged in the shutdown movement by Aug. 14.

POSTMASTER IS UNABLE RESIGN

MIDLAND, Texas, Aug. 8.—J. E. Davis, postmaster at the once flourishing oil town of Bakersfield in Pecos county wants to resign but he can't do it. The U. S. postal authorities won't allow a postmaster to quit a job till his successor is named. Nobody will agree to be Davis' successor.

The Bakersfield area produced oil and had a boom in 1929, but when flush fields came in elsewhere, the shacks in Bakersfield were loaded on trucks and moved. Now the town doesn't even have a store and doesn't have a half dozen residents, but Davis must stay on the job as postmaster.

ROBBINS AND JONES LAND IN FORT WORTH AFTER NON-STOP TRIP FROM EDMONTON, ALBERTA

FORT WORTH, Aug. 8. (AP)—Reg. L. Robbins and Harold Jones landed their white monoplane Fort Worth at the airport here at 7:50 p. m. Saturday night, bringing to conclusion a chapter of disappointments in their two attempts to make a non-stop refueling flight from Seattle to Tokyo, Japan.

The two Texas aviators flew to Fort Worth non-stop today from Edmonton, Alberta, where they were forced to land yesterday in their jorney homeward from Fairbanks, Alaska.

AUSTIN, Aug. 8. (UP)—Reg. Robbins and Harold Jones, Texas cowpuncher and oil man, landed in Fort Worth tonight with the knowledge they would not be collared by the law upon arrival.

Governor Ross Sterling today had issued a full pardon for the pair for their two unsuccessful attempts to fly non-stop from Seattle to Tokyo. He asked Sheriff Red Wright of Fort Worth to abandon his plans to arrest the fliers when they landed at their home airport.

Sheriff Wright had promised to jail them if they returned home without detouring by way of Tokyo.

Twice they had attempted the hazardous hop from Seattle to Tokyo but each time were turned back by squally weather over the Bering sea, after they had been refueled over Nome and Fairbanks, Alaska, by the auxiliary fuel ship manned by Jimmy Mattern and Nick Greener.

After the first attempt, July 8, when stormy weather made a last

COOKE COUNTY FARMER REPORTS RETURNING FIRE OF ASSAILANTS

GAINESVILLE, Texas, Aug. 8. (AP)—John Wilson, 52, told Sheriff Bert Browning that he engaged in an interchange of shots with two men who attacked him this morning on his farm near Freemound.

He said the men emerged from a thicket and began firing at him with pistols. Wilson returned the fire with a shotgun, forcing his assailants to flee into the woods. It was believed that one of the men was hit by a charge of shot.

YOUTH BEING HELD FOR FATAL AUTO ACCIDENT

M'KINNEY, Texas, Aug. 8. (AP)—Three charges were filed by County Attorney C. Dowdy today against Martin Vance, 22, of Sherman, in connection with the death of Douglas McCarley, 3, of Blueridge, who was faltally injured by a car Wednesday night in front of his home.

Charges of transporting intoxicating liquor, driving while intoxicated and negligent homicide were filed against Vance.

Bond for the three cases was set at $2,750. Vance had not made bond tonight.

BREWERS RAISE FUND TO FINANCE COMEBACK

CHICAGO, Aug. 8. (US)—Brewers of the United States have raised a fund of at least $400,000 to finance a "come-back" publicity campaign, according to a statement issued here today by the American Business Men's Prohibition Foundation.

The old time brewers, the statement said, have become irked at the slow progress made by other liberal agencies and have decided to stage a publicity campaign on their own account.

M'DONALD TO TAKE COTTON ACREAGE FIGHT TO PEOPLE

Agriculture Commissioner May Be Candidate Ror Texas Governor

ANNOUNCEMENT FOLLOWS SENATE DEFEAT OF BILL

Acreage Reduction Measure Most Important Ever Presented He Says

AUSTIN, Aug. 8. (AP)—The legislature today rid itself of the cotton acreage reduction bill when it was killed by the senate, 14 to 10, but the issue was projected into the next gubernatorial campaign by J. E. McDonald, commissioner of agriculture, who announced the question of cotton acreage control would be taken to the people at the next election.

McDonald said he would be a candidate for governor on an acreage control platform in the event neither Gov. R. S. Sterling or Senator Clint Small, both ardent backers of the bill entered the race.

The cotton acreage reduction bill, endorsed at a meeting of representatives of six cotton producing states, would have prevented the planting of land to cotton on successive years. The bill was hailed as a method of overcoming the enormous cotton surplus and resultant low price.

McDonald said the legislature did not realize the imperativeness of

Farmers With Cotton Mortgaged for Government Loans to Be Allowed to Use Seed and Five Dollars per Bale

STAMFORD, Texas, Aug. 8.—Farmers whose cotton crops are mortgaged to the federal government as security for the 1930 production loans will be allowed to use the seed and $5 per bale from the proceeds of the sale of their cotton to pay for gathering, ginning and marketing, according to announcement by Clifford B. Jones, Spur, chairman of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce agricultural committee.

This information was given to the regional chamber today in a telegram from R. H. McElveen, administrative officer in charge of the seed loan office of the U. S. department of agriculture in St. Louis in response to an inquiry regarding the matter.

The telegram said: "Agreeable that farmers be allowed use of $5 per bale from proceeds of sales together with seed to cover expense of picking, ginning and marketing."

At a joint meeting Friday of the agricultural committees of the West Texas chamber of the Texas Bankers association in Lubbock, it was decided to request the government to permit Texas borrowers of the production loans to retain the cost of ginning, over and above the value of the cottonseed and a reasonable cost of picking. The matter was taken up with the government immediately following the meeting by the West Texas chamber. From the Stamford headquarters Mr. Jones is advising the chairmen of all West Texas county production loan committees of the allowances to be made the farmers.

LINDBERGHS BACK ON AMERICAN SOIL AT POINT BARROW

Making Preparations for 523-Mile Jaunt to Nome Sunday

ESKIMOS COME MANY MILES TO GREET THEM

Fliers Hour Late Because Of Heavy Fog Banks Along Course

POINT BARROW, Alaska, Aug. 8. (INS)—Safely back on American soil after some of the most disagreeable flying weather so far in their vacation trip to the Orient, Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh were making preparations today for their next hop—the 523-mile aerial jaunt to Nome.

Latest reports were that they probably would fly out to the coast guard cutter Northland to refuel if the ship was not able to make Point Barrow.

The Northland was said in radio advices last night to have freed itself from the ice pack at Icy cape, 150 miles to the southwest, but it was not here when the Lindberghs arrived.

Lindy and Anne were in readiness to take off late today if conditions were favorable and if their fuel supply was assured.

Their reception when they landed their Lockheed sirius plane in the harbor this morning at 2 o'clock Pacific coast time, (6 a. m. eastern daylight time), was much like that at Aklavik, N. W. T., last Wednesday.

Eskimos for miles around had been trekking into this most northerly outpost of Uncle Sam's dominions for days. They wanted to catch a glimpse of the famous flyer and his diminutive wife who is braving the dangers of the North with him.

Run Hour Late

The Lindys arrived from Akalavik an hour later than expected and some concern was felt for their safety. They had taken six and a half hours for the journey because of the fog banks into which the plane had run.

Anne, at the plane's radio transmitter, had told of the thick fog and of Lindy's attempts to get into better weather by turning the plane inland off its course.

When the drone of the motor finally was heard, the enthusiasm of the several hundred natives and the small group of whites knew no bounds. Even the Eskimos, known for their quietness and reserve, cheered along with the whites.

The crowd lined up along the water front, cheering and waving greetings to the visitors from the air. Eskimos in their quaint skin boats paddled excitedly around the plane which floated on the waters of the harbor.

Plans Uncertain

The Greists were the first to welcome Lindy and Anne when they climbed from the cockpit of their plane. The Eskimos shouted unintelligible welcomes as the fliers came ashore and walked toward the Greist home. The crews of trading vessels here also took part in the vociferous greetings.

Because of the non-arrival of the coast guard cutter, Lindy was not able to announce at once his plans for departure. If he did not wish to wait for the arrival of the cutter, it was said that he might be able to get a sufficient supply of gas for the hop to Nome from one of the trading vessels here.

From Nome, the travelers will hop 1,067 miles to Karaginsk, Siberia, which is regarded as one of the most perilous legs of their westward flight. This section of the route is nearly always covered with more or less fog.

Radio communication between Mrs. Lindbergh and the Aklavik wireless station of the Royal Canadians signals was continuous during the hop from here to Point Barrow, according to reports from there.

During the whole of the 550-mile flight the signal station was able to send and receive messages with the plane and was also able to keep in touch with the radio station here.

FALL LABOR GOVERNMENT PREDICTED IN ENGLAND

LONDON, Aug. 9. (Sunday).—The fall of the Labor government and a general election before the end of the year is confidently anticipated in many quarters, the Sunday Times declares today. The Times' political correspondent states:

"There is talk in high quarters of the alternative of a financial dictatorship. The appointment of a dictator with plenary powers in this country would be entirely unprecedented and mean the suspension of the financial authority of the house of commons."

FOURTH DAY OIL SHUTDOWN ENDS

months ago powerful gushers supplied a golden stream of sweet crude to the nation's pipe lines, was shut in under the military order of Governor Murray. The total production of the field was only 3,550 barrels from 11 exempted wells as of 7 o'clock this morning. Twelve barrels of "pick-up" oil was reported in addition to this.

No Advance in Sight

As other fields in the state were shut down under the drastic executive order, no price advance was in sight despite the announced purpose of Governor Murray's edict.

The greater Seminole group of fields had 785 shut-in wells late yesterday with 1,250 other wells flowing open under proration rules. Some of the open wells are classified as strippers, others as water wells, both exempted under the shutdown order. Yesterday's production in the area was around 43,000 barrels, indicating that some 150,000 barrels daily production had been eliminated.

Meanwhile, military authorities reported they had been obliged to force the Champlin Refining company, which lost a federal court case this week at Guthrie testing the validity of the proration statutes, to shut in a well in the Oklahoma City field. An unofficial report came that the same company was forced to close two wells it had been running open in the Seminole area.

Today, the Champlin company announced it had purchased enough oil to meet its needs of 60 days. The statement set forth the company's grounds in attempting to overcome the governor's shutdown ukase.

The concensus among Oklahoma oil men was that little could be expected of the Texas legislature toward bringing about early regulation of the East Texas production.

Texas Shutdown Rumor

However, hope was held out through announcement that the independents in Texas are to meet at Tyler Monday to perfect a compact for a voluntary shutdown similar to that at Oklahoma City prior to issuance of the martial law order by Governor Murray.

Troops in the Seminole area had been reduced to a handful of men, while only 123 guardsmen remained on duty in the Oklahoma City field.

"The Champlin company," Mr. Peppers said, controls East Texas oil properties that will produce approximately 20,000 barrels per day, and a satisfactory transportation rate will enable it to continue operation indefinitely, if only that supply of crude oil continues to be available.

Tank Car Customers

"The Champlin company has tank car customers in 16 states, and company operated filling stations in nine states . . . and believes that in the contest which it has been waging against the inequitable administration of the proration laws of the state of Oklahoma, it has the sympathetic support of the public, and that branch of the industry which is genuinely independent. In times of depression any program which is bound to have for its purpose the increase of price to the ultimate consumer, is not in the interest of the public, and Governor Murray eventually will learn that his efforts are misguided and in the interest of those whom he does not ordinarily serve.

"Any fictitious value placed upon any product by arbitrary action, in total disregard to the law of supply and demand, must be absorbed by the ultimate consumer, and to that extent is presently in disproportion to other economic conditions in the country.

"Any effort to arbitrarily restore the price of one of our raw products, without regard for the others—wheat, cotton, and corn—is no doubt doomed to failure.

"The longer a pegged price is maintained on any product, the longer will chaos reign. When failure finally arrives, as it certainly will, its fury will be in proportion to the period of its disillusioned existence."

Texas Hike Sought

TYLER, Aug. 8, (UP)—On a price of 50c per barrel for oil, East Texas operators hinged their hopes today for a stable industry.

Leaders in the East Texas movement to hike crude prices went out among the fields asking operators to shut down their flush wells for a few days. If the valves of East Texas wells are closed the market is expected to steady to a higher level.

Plans were also made to form a cooperative marketing body to control enough crude in the vast field to secure higher posted prices.

Bull Gasoline Market

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 8. (UP)—Refined gasoline market in Oklahoma was under the influence of a bull market today, the first in 16 months.

The cause, oil men said, was the drastically curtailed crude oil supplies caused by Gov. William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray's military shutdown of flush Oklahoma fields.

However, major crude oil purchasers continued to deny reports they were hiking the crude oil prices, the objective sought by the governor. These denials were made by such companies as Carter, Stanolind Crude Oil Purchasing company, Standard subsidiaries, and Gypsy Oil company.

Milk-Ice Fund Aids Helpless Sufferers

How a stroke of paralysis can ruin a strong man's earning power forever, make a sick wife weaker, and take the sparkle out of a small child's blue eyes is told in the tragic case of a local family, which one time was prosperous, healthy, and happy.

As the case stands, the Family Relief association must stretch its work of charity to this unfortunate group, as the three would probably starve without assistance from an outside source. The father of the child will never know what good health is again, and he cannot work at all. The mother grows weaker every day as the weight on her shoulders and on her heart becomes a greater burden. Worst of all, the fair-haired, blue-eyed baby and its older brother, about 5, must suffer without reason.

The Times and Record News Milk and Ice fund helps this family to some extent, but the funds are limited, due to scarcity of contributions.

The fund now totals $500.02, the greater part of which has already been expended for family relief with milk and ice tickets.

Contributions may be sent to the Times Publishing company with the folowing coupon:

Enclosed is $............ for The Times and Record News Milk and Ice fund.

COTTON PRICES BREAK TO ONE OF LOWEST LEVELS IN HISTORY ON BUMPER CROP PREDICTION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (US)—A bumper cotton crop of 15,584,000 bales is indicated for 1931 by the government crop condition report as compared with a production of 13,932,000 bales last year.

This estimate was based upon a condition of 74.9 per cent of normal on Aug. 1. It is the highest Aug. 1 condition estimate since 1915, despite the fact that less fertilizer than usual was used.

The indicated yield of 185.8 pounds per acre is higher than the yield in any year since 1914, when 209.2 pounds were produced. It is slightly higher than the yield in 1926, the last year in which conditions were uniformly good over practically all of the cotton belt.

Low Level Record

Prices were forced down to one of the lowest levels in history.

When the report was announced at 11 a. m., the Chicago exchange was the only principal market open in the world. The New York and New Orleans exchanges had closed shortly before the estimate was made public.

Immediately selling orders came pouring in from all directions and the market was so flooded that there was not sufficient buying to absorb the offerings.

The federal statement placed cotton production for the year at 15,584,000 bales, one of the largest crops on record. This was 1,734,000 bales more than the average guess of the New York exchange members last week. It was nearly 1,000,000 bales in excess of the highest previous estimate.

With announcement of the report, trading during the hour preceding the closing of the market saw the market reopen 117 points off, quickly dropping to 153 points off which represented the loss of $7.65 a bale.

DORNIER AIRSHIP LANDS AT PARA ON WAY TO NEW YORK

By ROBERT G. ASPINALL
(Copyright 1931, Universal Service, Inc.)

ABOARD DO-X, PARA, Brazil, Aug. 8.—The Dornier DO-X, with 43 persons aboard, including a 70-year-old woman who became a passenger at Maranhao, landed here at 5:52 p. m. today (4.58 p. m., eastern daylight time) from Maranhao, about 400 miles to the southeast.

We took off from Maranhao, on the northern coast of Brazil, at 2:15 p. m., continuing our flight from Rio De Janeiro to New York by easy stages. We will remain here tonight and hop tomorrow for Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana.

Following the coast to Para, the shadow of the giant 12-engined plane frightened fish in the shoals, and denizens of the deep scattered in all directions.

We passed over Marajo island, in the delta of the Amazon, said to be larger than the state of Texas, where thousands of cattle are raised.

That is the spot where fishermen, sailing out of sight of land, know how far they are from shore by the taste of the salt water.

The region over which we flew today is thickly covered with trees, of which scientists have already classified 20,000 different kinds.

SENATOR CAPPER ASKS LOWER BREAD PRICES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (US)—Lower bread prices throughout the country were demanded today by Senator Arthur Capper, Republican of Kansas, who headed a senatorial investigation into food costs last winter.

With wheat selling at 25 cents a bushel on midwestern farms Capper said bread prices should take a decided drop. He added:

"The low prices of wheat and flour should be reflected to the public in cheaper bread.

"In my opinion the bakers can make a fair profit on bread sold to the consumer at five cents a pound."

WICHITAN TELLS PLAN FOR FORMATION OF BARTER GROUP AND ISSUANCE OF SECURED CERTIFICATES TO RELIEVE UNEMPLOYMENT

Details of his proposal that "a barter company designed to bring about relief of business stagnation, unemployment and attendant suffering" be organized here were outlined Saturday in a statement issued by R. O. Grant, 1303 Marshall street.

Mr. Grant proposes that a non-profit corporation be organized with power to buy, sell, exchange and give evidences of debt, and from which members would be entitled to borrow certificates secured by collateral which would be used in the purchase of raw materials and the meeting of pay rolls. The certificates would be redeemable in trade and for the payment of debts at face value, according to the plan, as explained by Mr. Grant.

He proposes specifically that salaries be paid at the rate of 60 per cent in certificates and the remainder in cash.

"The present condition is due to lack of a circulating medium which is evident from the fact that there is an ample supply of every kind of material, transportation facilities, factory capacity to convert material into finished products, and labor of every kind standing idle and non-productive while the raw products rot in warehouses," he said. "If people were sufeited with goods there would be some reason for blaming conditions to overproduction, but there are some seven million unemployed workers, buying practically nothing and the remaining people in every industry are curtailing their buying, either through reduced income or fear. This condition is brought about by the inevitable working of a credit money system, aggravated by the machinations of international bankers guided by neither patriotism or conscience and made with uncurbed power as they gamble with the stability of governments and constantly menace the world's peace. On a system governed by such men depends industry, trade, employment and prosperity.

Proposes Plan

"Inasmuch as credit money is now unavailable because of the fact that through the operation of the system, accelerated by greed, the value, or purchasing power, of money has been enhanced to where the present debts of the people represent more than the sale value of all the assets, it is imperative that some method of barter be inaugurated. A great deal of barter is now going on between industry and farming, but it is inconvenient to deliver two bushels of wheat and a bushel of oats at the particular time that a farmer needs a haircut and shave. What I propose is to make barter scientific.

"The method I propose is as follows:

"A corporation should be formed with powers to buy, sell, exchange, give evidences of debt, lend evidences of debt, in fact with all powers necessary to carry out the purposes intended. This corporation would, of course, operate locally until proven a success. The capital should be as large as possible, not because the corporation needed money, or intended to use money, but in order to inspire confidence in the obligations issued. The corporation would not, of itself, earn any profit, but the profit accruing to the members would be the increased business brought about by the system.

"When a charter had been obtained the members of the association would be entitled to borrow certificates by making application for same, and putting up collateral sufficient to secure the redemption of such certificates. Also a small deposit in cash should be required. These certificates would be redeemable in trade in any of the goods offered for sale by the members of the association and it would be necessary to get into the association at least one member from each line of business representing a necessity.

"These certificates issued by the association to its members would be used in the purchase of any raw material produced locally and in the payment of pay rolls. I would suggest that 60 per cent of the sum due all employed persons be paid in such certificates and the remainder in money, in order that such employes might be enabled to pay any debt payable in cash and also purchase any commodity not sold by any member of the association.

"Every member would be bound to redeem in trade any certificate presented at its face value, and a committee should be employed to prevent any member raising the price of goods sold for certificates above that price at which he sold same for cash.

Wheat-Flour Exchange

"In addition the association should accept any wheat, oats, cotton or other staple product in storage and issue therefor its trade certificates in the highest amount possible. As an example, I would suggest that a deal be made with any local miller to exchange wheat for flour, which flour would be owned by the association. I understand that certain millers are now exchanging 100 pounds of flour for three bushels of wheat. The present price of flour would justify the paying of 50 cents in trade certificates for wheat so delivered, so that a farmer could realize twice as much in trade for his wheat as he now receives in cash. The flour would be withdrawn by the members handling flour, as needed and when withdrawn the trade certificates would be taken in and thus redeemed.

"Trade certificates could also be used by milk dealers, produce dealers and wholesalers in the purchase of any such products from farmers. This would insure a market for all of the produce of our valey which could be consumed in Wichita Falls and would probably solve the problem which has been exercising the minds of our citizens since irrigation was established here. It would deliver the entire market to our farmers and they have a right to expect it. It would be furnishing them purchasing power to trade with Wichita Falls merchants and intelligent self interest would dictate that we use any method possible to secure for them the Wichita Falls market.

"Every member of the association would turn into the office of the association all of the certificates redeemed by him in any given month by the 10th of the following month. If he had redeemed more ceritificates than he had borrowed he would be paid the difference, less his proportion of the operating cost, and if he had redeemed less he would pay the difference between the amount borrowed by him and the amount redeemed. This would effect a complete liquidation of accounts each month, or a clearing just as banks have each day.

"The certificates would not be redeemed in cash in the hands of a stranger to the association, but every member would be paid in cash the amount which he had redeemed in excess of his borrowings, and each member would pay into the association the difference between the amount borrowed and the amount redeemed where he had redeemed a less amount than that borrowed. The capital stock would remain intact as a guaranty of such redemption, and in the event of the failure of any member to liquidate his balance would be used for that purpose, and the collateral put up by such member sold to restore the capital stock.

Says Many Would Benefit

"The advantage accruing to a member employing labor, but exporting his product would be that he would be furnished with certificates to meet 60 per cent of his pay roll and he would have a month to pay, without interest.

"The advantage accruing to a member employing labor and distributing his product locally would be that he would thus be enabled to pay 60 per cent of his labor expense in the product he produced. Also he would increase the demand for his product.

"The advantage accruing to a member selling goods locally but with small pay roll, so that he would not be a borrower, would be that it would increase his market and would concentrate his accounts receivable in one place where he would be sure of collecting.

"The advantages accruing to farmers would be that they would thus be accrued of the entire Wichita Falls market and would have some assurance against over-production. This advantage would come right back to the merchants in increased trade.

"The advantage accruing to labor would be that the specter of unemployment would be removed by furnishing his employer with greater markets and thus keeping his job going. These barter certificates in his hands would be the equivalent of cash inasmuch as all laborers must spend at least 60 per cent of their wages for living expenses. I have every confidence that labor will see the advantage more quickly than others because their experience has been such that they know better than others that money has to be spent and they were the first and worst sufferers of our defective money system.

"The advantage to the unemployed is that the increased circulation and consumption of goods would create jobs and he would soon be absorbed in industry. Any increase in the consumption of goods will result in increased employment and any increase in employment will result in an increased demand for goods, so that the workings of a barter system would soon absorb the unemployed in useful productive enterprise.

"The association should offer to lend such certificates to the city, county and school board to be used in the payment of salaries and wages. The only obligation resting on the city, county and school board would be that of accepting a like amount of barter certificates in payment of taxes. This would enable Wichita Falls citizens to pay their taxes in their products. It would also enable the city, county and school board to employ more labor in times of stress. I have been informed that the school board is now overdrawn and its bond interest is due on Sept. 1 and also is facing a new school term. I believe that these teachers would prefer to receive certificates, good in payment of their living expenses, to receiving "hot checks" and having to stand a heavy discount on them in order to live.

"The association should also em- trade delegate whose duty it would be to endeavor to increase Wichita Falls exports. He would be a drummer for all of the Wichita Falls industries and would endeavor to pay for Wichita Falls imports with Wichita Falls exports on the basis of barter. Where such trade delegate was able to exchange Wichita Falls products for any products needed by a local member, the amount so exported would be credited to the account of the member furnishing the goods for export and the amount of the import would be charged to the member receiving the import, and the account settled in the monthly clearing.

"The question most frequently asked concerning this system is, 'What would happen if a member went bankrupt?' The fact that this question is so frequently asked shows the necessity of a barter system. Every man can discharge his debts in the commodity he produces, but no man can be sure of discharging a debt in cash, especially in a falling market such as we have seen for the past 25 months. If a member went bankrupt the association would be secured just as a bank is now secured, but with this advantage. If a bank lends money to a business which is losing money it is very likely that the day that bankruptcy occurs there will be no cash in the hands of the bankrupt whatever, but a member of this association would be obligated to redeem any certificates offered to him and unless he went bankrupt the very day on which he borrowed the certificates he would have redeemed a part of his obligation with goods and the debt would thereby be reduced while his collateral in the hands of the association would be intact. If the collateral held by the association was insufficient to pay such a bankrupt's obligation to the association the necessity of redeeming the outstanding certificates issued to such bankrupt would rest on all of the members, but they would at least redeem them in goods, and the loss would be spread out. As it is a bankruptcy loss frequently falls almost entirely on one wholesaler.

Safeguards Provided

"The association would have a better opportunity to watch its members than other ordinary creditors have and the necessity of each member liquidating his account once a month would keep any member from getting too deeply in debt to the association, as no new certificates would be issued to a member until he had redeemed his balance from the preceding month. Further there would be certain losses of certificates through fires and otherwise which would inure to the benefit of the association and would absorb some of the expense of operation and other losses.

"The method briefly outlined above would be in effect putting into circulation some human money; i. e., it would come into existence, perform its work and pass out just as everything human does. The money we now try to use has had legislated into it the power of Deity; i. e., it is supposed to be from everlasting to everlasting—forever growing. Further it commands all men and nations and every one stands in awe of its power. These are all attributes which nothing but Deity rightfully has. The system I propose is one which men can command whereas the system we now have commands us.

"Under a barter system every man producing useful goods could translate those goods into a medium of exchange and thereby obtain such other goods as he has need of, and I believe that privilege will solve all of our unemployment problems locally and if we set the example others will follow. We are facing a condition which didn't just happen and it will never adjust itself. It requires some positive action be taken. So far every man's hands hang helplessly at his sides, while every one looks everywhere for leadership. Hopelessness and social unrest increases on every hand while international bankers juggle their gold between nations and threaten financial ruin everywhere. The system I propose is beyond their power to juggle and if Wichita Falls will take up the proposition earnestly we can relieve our situation locally and when we do others will follow. In such an endeavor Wichita Falls would be resuming her former and rightful position of leadership."

STRIKE AND HEAT CAUSE SHUTDOWN AT BOULDER DAM

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 8. (INS)—Construction work on Boulder dam at Las Vegas, Nev., the biggest building project in the world at the present time, will be shut down temporarily immediately, it was announced here today by W. H. Wattis, president of Six Companies Inc., the contracting syndicate in charge.

A strike of 125 workmen for higher wages and the excessive heat which has sent the thermometer as high as 140 degrees, are directly responsible for the decision to stop operations, according to Wattis.

Between 1,000 and 1,200 men will be thrown out of work.

The length of the shutdown has not been determined.

"It will probably be about a month; I hope it won't be any longer," said Wattis, who has been in a hospital here for several months recuperating from illness.

200 KLEAN KLUB KIDS SEE SHOW AT MAJESTIC

More than 200 members of the Klean Kids Klub were present at the Majestic theater Saturday afternoon, when, through the courtesy of Victor B. Lowrey, manager of the theater, the children were permitted to attend the show, featuring "Politics," with Marie Dressler and Polly Moran, without charge.

Led by Leo Underwood's band, the kids marched through the downtown district from the Memorial auditorium, where they had assembled at 1 o'clock, and then proceeded into the theater.

Mr. Lowrey stated Saturday that the purpose of the club is in part to promote some incentive for the boys to keep them out of trouble, mischief, misbehavior and misconduct. He also announced that next week he would try to arrange for the boys to see "Huckleberry Finn."

Wife Was Fat

No Longer Attractive

Lost Husband's Love

The above headlines appeared in a New York newspaper of April 4 in connection with a divorce trial that has attracted wide attention.

"She was a beautiful woman," one witness testified, "but she got fat and is not attractive any more."

Thousands of women are getting fat and losing their appeal just because they do not know what to do.

If you are fat how would you like to lose it and at the same time gain in physical charm and acquire a clean, clear skin and eyes that sparkle with buoyant health?

And gain in energy and activity?

Why not do what thousands of women have done to get rid of pounds of unwanted fat? Take one-half a teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast and keep it up for 30 days. You can help the action of Kruschen by cutting out pastry and fatty meats and going light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar. Then weigh yourself and see how many pounds you have lost.

Kruschen Salts are a blend of 6 natural mineral salts your body, nerves and glands should have if you are to enjoy good health. Best of all, a bottle of Kruschen Salts that will last you for 4 weeks costs only 85 cents. Ask Allison's Drug Store or any druggist for a bottle and start to lose fat today—and remember this, if Kruschen doesn't do as advertised—money back.—Adv.

ALLRED INVITES CITIES TO JOIN UTILITY BATTLE

Attorney General Offers Assist Wichita Falls Gas Rate Fight

TIME FOR LOWERING OF UTILITIES RATES HERE

State Official From This City Ready for Strenuous Warfare

AUSTIN, Aug. 8.—Wichita Falls and every other city in Texas which feels itself aggrieved over its natural gas, electric light and power rates have been invited by Atty. Gen. James V. Allred to join with him in a fight which he has announced he will make to force down the general level of utility charges.

Mr. Allred said that he was ready to cooperate to the fullest extent with the city council of Wichita Falls and its citizenship in their effort to obtain lower gas rates.

He has already collected considerable data and is receiving many letters in response to his invitation to municipalities over the state to make him their champion in their efforts to obtain lower rates.

The time has come, he said, for the gas and electric service rates to be lowered in keeping with the decline of other commodities, and in proportion to the costs of the companies.

Instead, the companies are insisting on collecting a return on inflated valuations, he said.

He is ready to go to the courts with it. Here was what he told Grady Shipp, Plainview:

"The task"—of whipping down the utility rates—"is a great one and requires concerted action on the part of all state and local authorities.

"It is my belief that if the local officials of all the cities served by each of the utilities will join hands and pool their resources in unified effort to reduce rates, it can be accomplished.

"As attorney general of Texas, I stand ready to espouse your cause in accomplishing this object. It is an inherent function of the office to protect the public through the courts when they are injured or have a cause of action."

How Fight Began

First, the combative attorney general began his fight to put the public service people out of the retail merchandising field, charging them with getting monopoly control where they had no right at all. Then he followed up with this broadside. Here is some more of his official message to the Plains city that is complaining of its rates:

"I have come to the conclusion there should be a general reduction of rates throughout the entire state in gas, electricity and all public utility services. The rates they charge are based on property values established during a period of inflation and great prosperity. . . . It seems unfair and unjust for them to demand and collect rates which will yield what they term a fair return upon such inflated and fictitious values. . . . The public utilities are going to have to get down on the same level with all other business and industries. I have been making a survey of rates and costs . . . When this is completed I have determined to take appropriate action, in the courts if necessary, to prevent discrimination between the cities and towns of Texas, as well as between this and other states, and to effect a general scaling down of utility charges."

So much, in these two counts, for public utilities. But that is only the start of the attorney general's announced program.

Trust-busting, anti-price-fixing, anti-monopoly in oil and gasoline is another field which he has tackled, and tackled with the approbation of Gov. Ross S. Sterling and the backing of the Texas legislature.

Other Tasks Tackled

Fee-plugging by public officials, from justices of the peace on up, fee extortions, illegal claims and expense accounts, have the same attorney general and his department vigorously at work, in cooperation with a senate committee.

Gas waste in the production of oil on state lands; attempted claims of railroads to rights of way on which they were given public easement only, have the vigorous attention of the attorney general.

Numerous so-called insurance associations and insurance firms operating without what he considered adequate reserves have met with court action on the part of Attorney General Allred, or are threatened with it.

The attorney general has been holding courts of inquiry in the oil monopoly investigation. He also has been holding similar courts and taking sworn testimony in claims that there exist discriminations and price-fixing in the operation of the creamery business in certain cities of the state.

What an appalling mass of work this is can be imagined, when it is realized that all the investigations go up against hostile, and usually well-lawyered business organizations, and when the state, to avoid doing its legitimate business interests injury, and to protect the good name of its business, rightfully conducted, cannot afford to make mistakes.

MRS. MINNIE KENNEDY GOES TO LAS VEGAS TO SEE FORMER HUSBAND

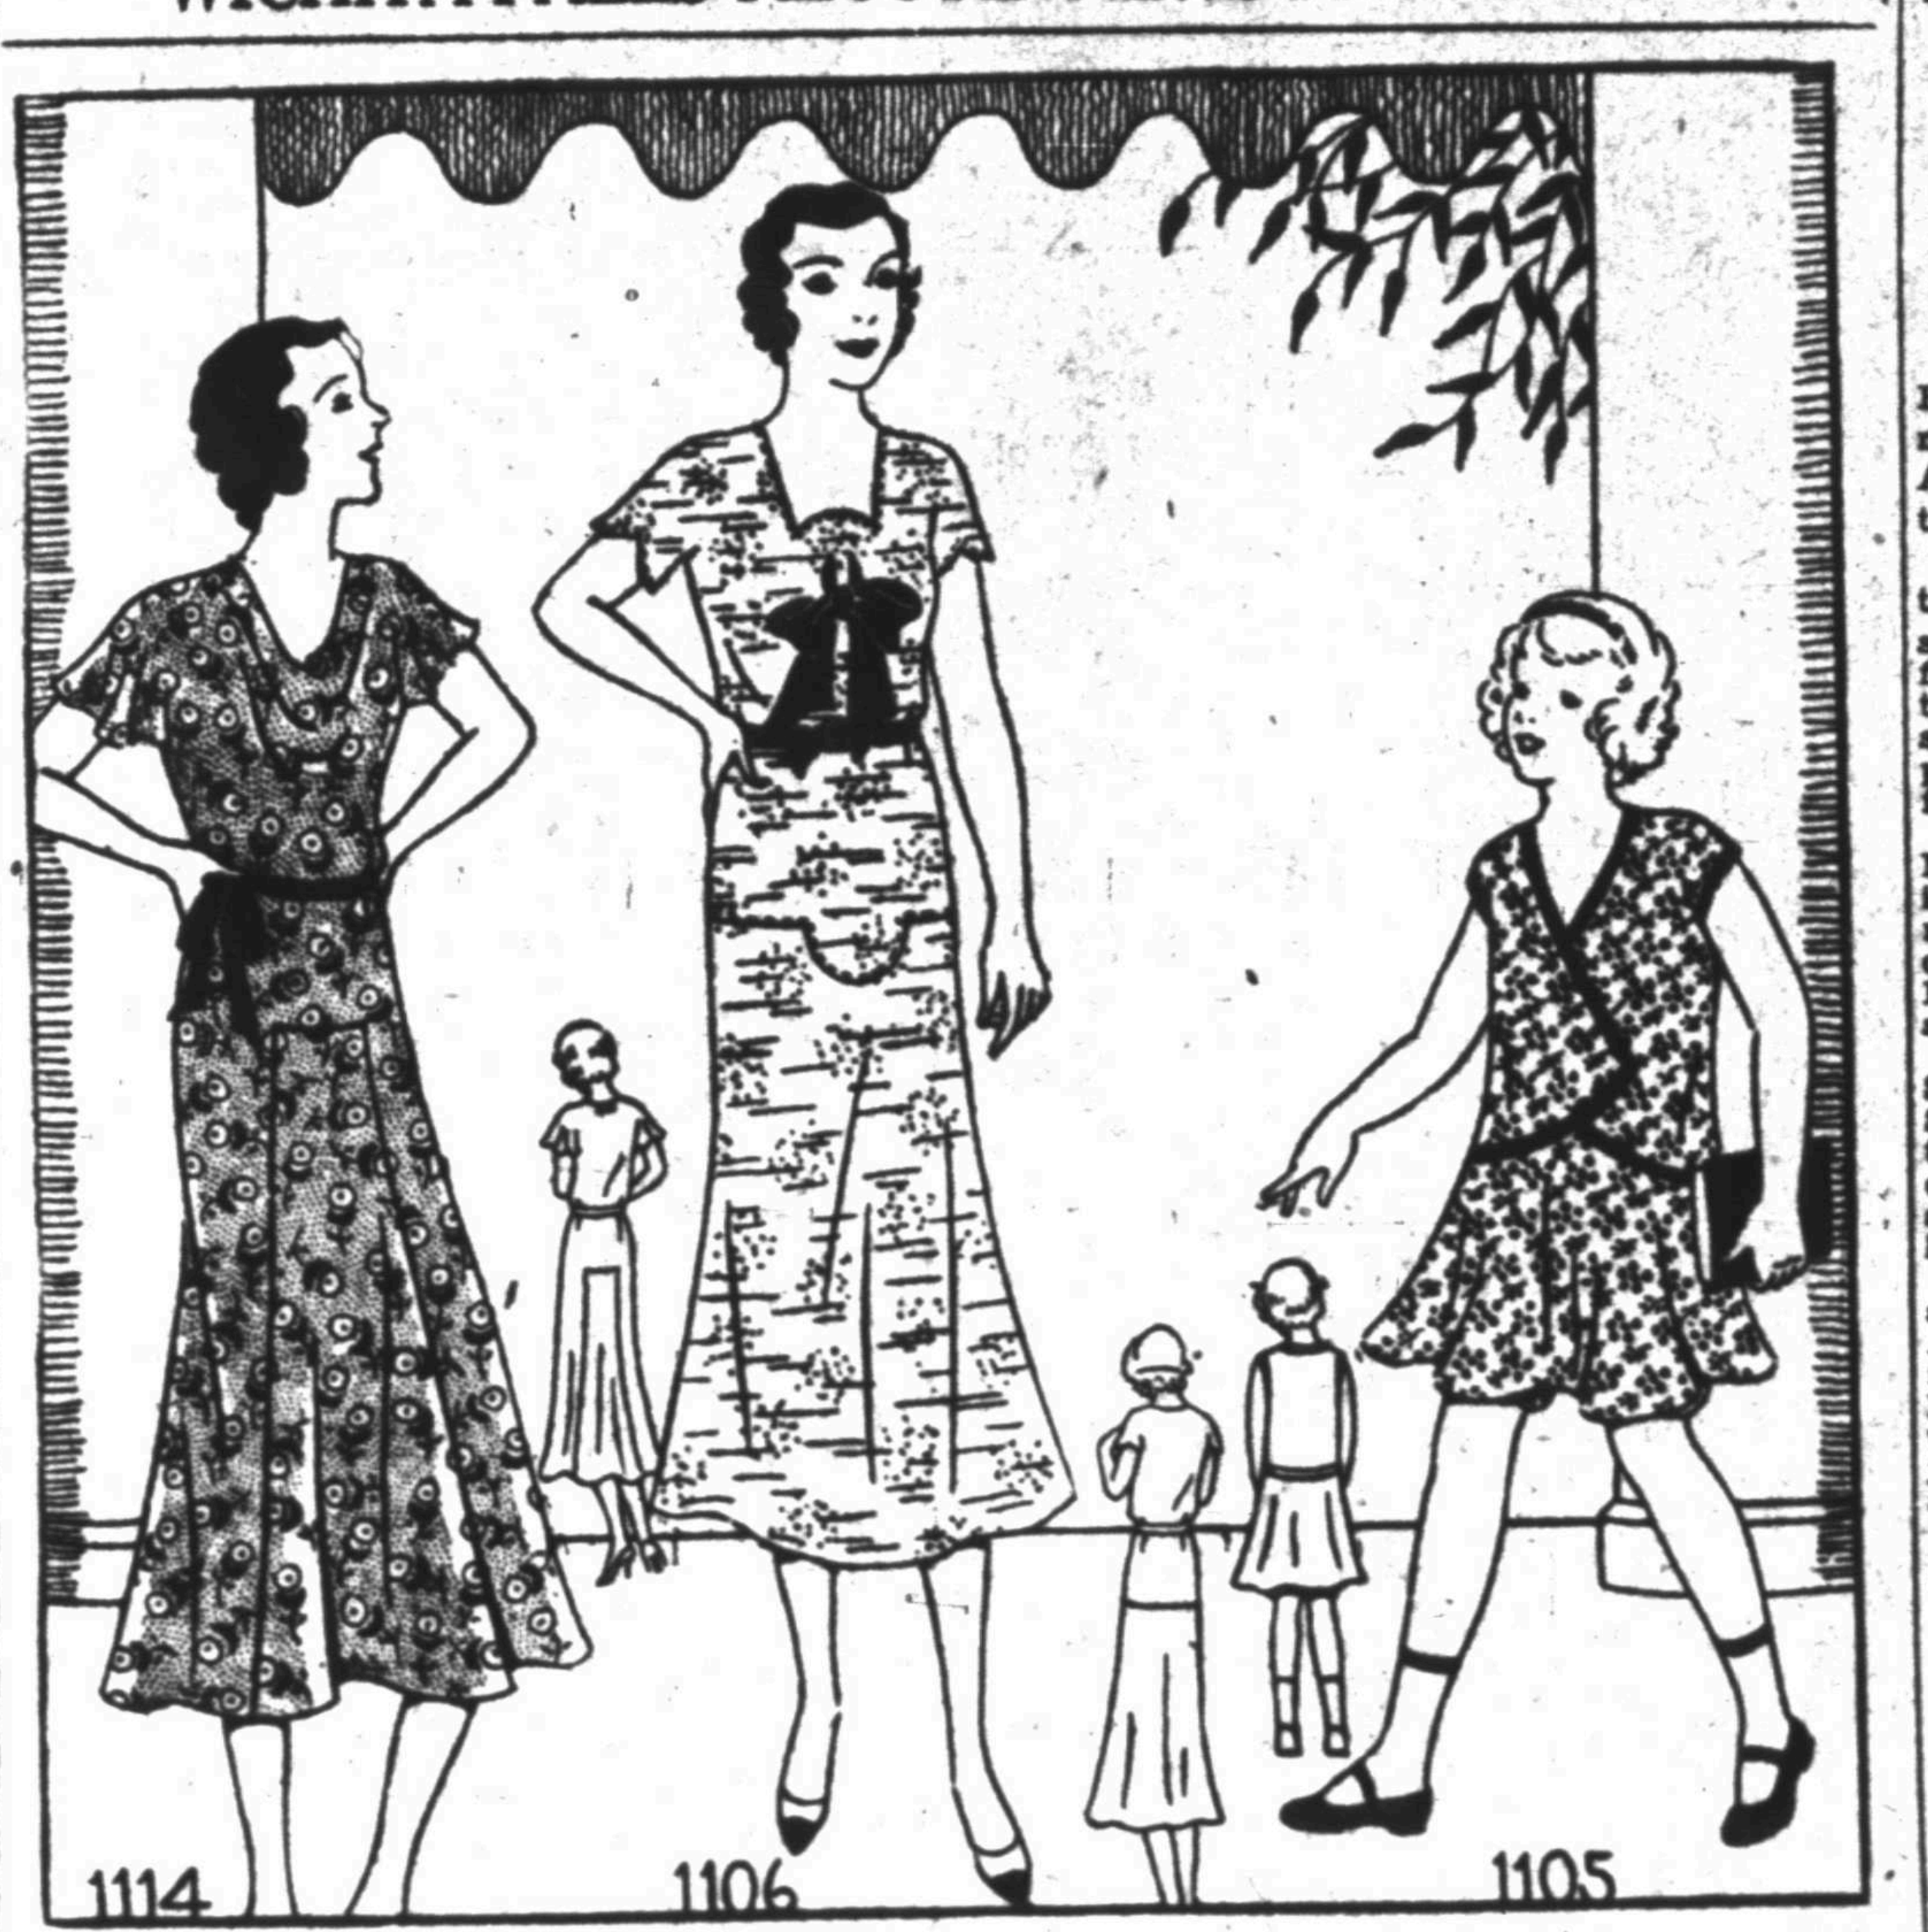
LAS VEGAS, Nev., Aug. 8. (UP)—Mrs. Minnie "Ma" Kennedy, mother of Aimee Semple McPherson, was here today to see the Rev. G. Edward Hudson, whose marriage to her was annulled recently in Los Angeles when it was determined that he already was wed to Mrs. Margaret Newton Hudson.

Hudson came here several days ago and hired legal counsel, presumably to permit him to file suit for divorce from Mrs. Newton Hudson.

Before she left Los Angeles, Mrs. Kennedy said she decided it would be cheaper to come here to see Hudson than to continue paying for long distance telephone calls.

"Mr. Hudson and I are wearing our wedding rings again," she said, "and you can guess that we intend to get married again as long as all the legal troubles are settled."

WICHITA FALLS RECORD NEWS PATTERNS



Youthful lines are characteristic of fashions for every age this season. Search as one will among the models presented in the new collections, one encounters hardly a single "grande dame" frock, a dress that stresses dignity, seriousness and age. Many of the best of the grown-up models resemble the printed frock shown at the left, with its very young cap sleeves and youthfully flaring skirt. A junior frock is shown in the center, simple and smart for the in-between age. The child's frock shows how easily many of the season's favorite style features are adapted even to very small girls.

Pattern 1114

Godets at the center front and the back increase the graceful flare in the skirt of this lovely model. Short flaring cap sleeves are cut in one with the bodice. The neckline is cut to fall in a modified hood effect, lending a note of dignity that makes the dress attractively suited to any age. Voile, printed crepe, georgette or chiffon look very well made up in this pattern, with a sash of velvet ribbon to accent the color scheme. Pattern 1114 is obtainable only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 44. Size 16 requires 3⅞ yards of 39-inch material.

Pattern 1106

This is a serviceable type of frock for a young girl, trim and neat enough in line for the most practical uses, with a tie of ribbon to give it a trimming detail that makes it suited also to more dressed-up occasions. The bodice has short kimono sleeves, and the skirt slightly flares. The rounded line of the neck and the skirt seamings form decorative details. A belt of fabric or leather marks the waist. Pattern 1106 is obtainable only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 requires 2⅝ yards of 36-inch material, and one yard of three-inch ribbon.

Pattern 1105

A hint of the important style of grown-up boleros is seen in this small girl's frock. The top crosses over in front, with bindings to accent the lines of the seamings. The skirt is cut on flaring lines. Any practical material such as cotton print, pongee, shantung, linen, or batiste would look well in this model, the major tone of the print being repeated in the bindings. Matching bloomers accompany this frock. Pattern 1105 is obtainable only in sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12. Size 4 requires 2¼ yards of 36-inch material, 2¾ yards of one-inch binding.

These models are very easy to make as each pattern comes to you with simple and exact instructions. Yardage is given for every size.

Send 15c in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern ordered.

Send for our new fall fashion catalog. It offers an opportunity to select smart fall and winter styles for afternoon frocks, sport models, house dresses, lingerie, pajamas, clothes for the kiddies, and accessory patterns. This catalog is 15 cents when ordered alone. Catalog and pattern together, 25 cents. Address all mail and orders to The Record News Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

CONFEDERATE VETERAN PASSES 99TH BIRTHDAY

SULPHUR, Okla., Aug. 8. (AP)—The closing year of a century of life was entered today by John J. Allen, Confederate veteran and farmer of this section. He became 99 years of age and celebrated it by handling a plow.

The aged man declared he could run a plow in as straight a line as any one, "although I ride now instead of walk as in the good old days."

WOMEN MAY MAKE NEXT PLANE RACE ACROSS ATLANTIC

BURBANK, Calif., Aug. 8. (AP)—Rumors hereabouts indicate there may be another air race across the Atlantic—but this time of a distinctly feminine character.

Carl Squier, general manager of the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, said last night that Elinor Smith, former holder of the women's altitude record, "perhaps" plans to span the ocean by air with the purchase of a fast ship equipped for distance flying.

The plane, built for John Henry Mears for a trip around the world, is a Lockheed-Vega high-wing cabin monoplane, practically a duplicate of that used by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty in their record-smashing round-trip flight.

The plane is in Detroit and Squier said he understood Miss Smith was there, too, giving it a thorough examination. It is equipped with a 550-gallon fuel tank and is capable of 200 miles an hour.

The other woman flier immediate interested in a trip across the Atlantic, retracing the Lindbergh route, is Laura Ingalls. A third, Ruth Nichols, who cracked up some time ago, is recuperating from injuries received from a cross-ocean attempt.

DISMISS OFFICIALS AT SOONER AGGIE SCHOOL OTHERS ARE EXPECTED

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 8, (UP)—With confirmation of the dismissal of three officials at A. & M. college, Harry B. Cordell, president of the state board of agriculture, declared today that Gov. W. H. Murray's appointive members of the board planned additional discharges in the administrative staff.

The board confirmed its action in dismissing L. W. Burton, registrar; Randle Perdue, publicity director, and J. W. Miller, engineer and employe of the school for more than 20 years.

Cordell, who opposed action on these dismissals said "This is just a start. They are doing all they can to wreck the administration end of the school and I am powerless to act. Murray's appointees outvote me right and left. They have to or Murray would throw them off the board."

Although the board had voted three to two on a test ballot to remove Sam Stone, comptroller of the college, disposition of the action was postponed until September.

Woman Continues Fight for Share In Flood Fortune

REDWOOD, Calif., Aug. 8. (INS)—Carrying on her five-year fight to win a share of the James L. Flood millions, Mrs. Constance May Gavin, alleged illegitimate daughter of Flood, today instructed her attorneys to appeal the "instructed" verdict handed down against her yesterday.

"We will move for a new trial within 10 days," her lawyers said, "and if that is denied we will go to the appellate court. We are not beaten by any means."

Confusion reigned in the courtroom of Judge George H. Buck when the verdict was returned in accordance with his orders. Ten of the 12 jurors said they were opposed to the verdict they were forced to give, expressing themselves as convinced that Mrs. Gavin was entitled to a two-ninths portion of the Flood millions.

One woman juror stood up in the jury box and refused to sign the verdict. She was applauded wildly. Deputy sheriffs had to clear the courtroom of spectators.

When Mrs. Gavin left the courthouse in an automobile, she was cheered and followed by many of those who had heard the decision of the judge which marked her defeat. Reports of a possible settlement in her favor were circulated.

TWO MEN PUT ON SPOT AS GANG WARFARE IS RENEWED IN PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 8. (INS)—Two men were shot to death here today in what police characterized as a renewal of racketeering feuds and blackhand warfare.

Joe Lentine, 36, was put on the spot and murdered in a lonely spot at Four-Mile Run hollow. Two shots from a sawed-off shotgun crumpled Lentine to the ground. His killers escaped.

Almost simultaneously, an unidentified Italian was shot to death in Sewickley cemetery. His body, riddled with six bullets, was believed to have been carried to the cemetery in an automobile and tossed out.

DALLAS WOMAN INJURED IN APARTMENT BLAZE

DALLAS, Aug. 8. (AP)—Mrs. T. E. Cook, 50, was burned about her head and body here today when flames caught her in a blazing apartment house. Damage to the building was estimated at $10,000. An adjoining building was damaged to the extent of about $3,000.

FRED STORY TALKS TO INSURANCE MEN ON TRUST BUSINESS

Fred Story, president of the Wichita Falls Life Underwriters association, spoke on the "Trust Business" at the regular meeting of the organization in Ansley's cafe at noon Saturday.

"Life insurance men should be interested in the trust business, as it is in close touch with life insurance," the speaker explained. "It has been said that life insurance makes estates and the trust companies manage them.

"All of the banks in Wichita Falls are qualified to act in a fiduciary capacity. One of the biggest reasons for leaving one's life insurance and other assets under the management of a trust company is that the heirs and beneficiaries often have no experience in handling funds and making investments.

"The trustee is not only liable for losses or damage caused by mismanagement or carelessness, but may sometimes be liable for the interest when funds are permitted to lie idle. Trust funds do not become part of the assets of a bank and are not endangered by a bank failure.

"The trust fund has two big advantages of a policy which provides for the handling of funds by the insurance company. Most insurance companies pay about 3½ per cent, while the trust funds average about 6 per cent interest.

"The trust fund also allows more latitude in the making out of a trust agreement than is possible where the funds are invested and dispensed by the insurance company. There are no limitations to the settlement options of a trust fund. Oordinarily, however, it is desirable to give the trustees as much latitude as possible, so that he can meet any emergency that might arise."

R. L. Bumbalow, first vice president of the association, presided at the luncheon.

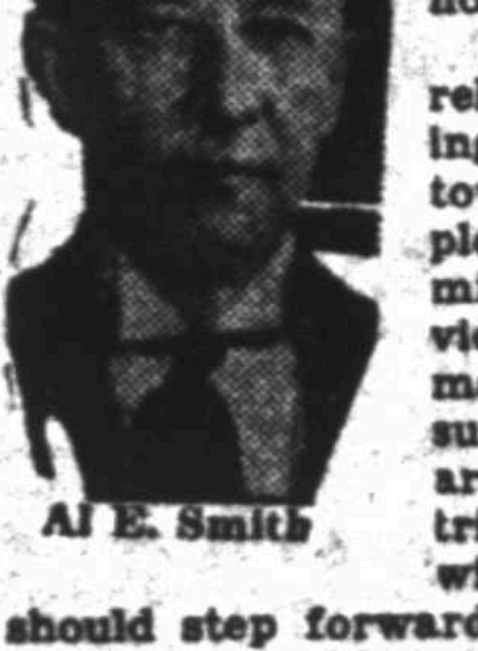
WARTIME METHODS NEEDED MEET UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM

Private Charity Can No Longer Meet Situation and Large Program Of Public Work Should Be Started

By ALFRED E. SMITH



Al E. Smith

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Unemployment has now taken on the aspect of a real emergency and is as difficult as anything we had to deal with when we found ourselves facing preparation for the world war. When you have to face an emergency, routine measures will not suffice for dealing with it. You cannot wait for the ordinary round of the economic cycle to swing itself back into place.

I am satisfied that private charity and voluntary relief will not solve the problem throughout the coming winter. I have personally given time and energy toward assisting the Red Cross and the local unemployment relief committees in New York. The many millions of dollars raised in New York City to provide part time employment on city improvements and maintenance are rapidly being exhausted. No such sums can be obtained this fall, because most people are actually unable to duplicate their previous contribution and because, rightly or wrongly, there is a widespread feeling that the agencies of government should step forward and do something on a sufficiently large scale to meet the problem.

Many suggestions have been made that the prompt and energetic planning, financing and speeding up of public improvements, national, state, city and local, will help. My experience tells me that if they are to be of any use it is absolutely essential that very definite steps be taken immediately. My own contact with large scale construction shows that there is a necessary lapse of time, even with the best will and no handicaps, before projects can actually begin.

No doubt our economic troubles are a reflection of an international situation which can be greatly improved by cooperation in adjusting international debts, by reduction in armaments and by international cooperation along other lines. My immediate interest is in the situation which we face in this country in the course of the next year, and especially in the coming fall and winter, when there is almost certain to be serious unemployment no matter how much the present conditions improve.

Recently, Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the president's committee for employment, stated that in a normal year public construction amounts to $3,500,000,000, or one-third of all construction. Assuming these figures to be correct, also that there has been no falling off in public construction and that the falling off has been in private work, it is obvious that if we double public construction, we shall go a long way toward providing work for the unemployed, not only directly on public projects, but indirectly in the numerous mines, mills, factories, plants, railroads and other business concerns which mine, manufacture, fabricate and transport the materials required for public construction. These include the so-called white-collar class as well as mechanics and laborers.

I need not dwell upon the kinds of public work which it is essential to carry forward, nor do I advocate any undertakings that are not clearly and absolutely essential. There are federal projects and state and municipal ones, roads, bridges, hospitals, special improvements to meet the needs of growing communities, all of which require speeding up or another year will pass without that degree of accomplishment that means actual relief.

Financing Projects

There are two important questions involved in securing relief through the construction of public works. One is the question of financing; the other is speeding up construction so as to get immediate results. States and localities use many different methods for financing public works. It is obvious that any new method of financing must be one which will not impose an intolerable burden upon real estate, or upon incomes of people of small or moderate means, or on business in the coming year, because this will make conditions worse and not better. In an emergency we cannot stop to surround ourselves with all of the safeguards that we employ at other times.

The federal government finances public works out of current revenues. But there is nothing in the federal constitution to prevent the issuance of bonds for a reasonable period to meet an emergency like the present one. These bonds need not be of long life but it is entirely logical that they should run for a sufficient period so that the great improvements which they will bring about will be paid for in part by the future taxpayers who will enjoy them. There is every justification, and I believe that it is financially sound to borrow money for needed improvements by issuing bonds or otherwise to meet the present emergency, and this might be done by the federal government in the same manner as state and local governments now do it.

Cut Red Tape

More serious than financing, because I believe that that can be solved by bond issues and perhaps by other methods, such as advancing dates of appropriations, is the actual speeding up of plans and construction. Governments move slowly. They are bound around with red tape. It is possible to speed up public works. Most of the red tape, delay and obstruction which tie up literally hundreds of millions of dollars of available public moneys are caused by the lack of co-ordinated authority. Disputes and arguments between between commissions, officials, localities, states, utility companies, or railroads, which have improvements under way, could undoubtedly be straightened out if the emergency be understood and some one with real authority and backing were delegated to get results in the same way that results were obtained in time of war.

We should call upon the best brains and ability of our citizenship to assist the federal, state and local governments in this process of speeding up public works. We could utilize the same types of men and women who aided us during the war. We could ask them to work for us again without compensation because this is a very genuine emergency in which thousands of lives are literally at stake. Such a group of men and women would at least be able to advise and suggest and I believe there is much more that they can do.

To be specific, I would suggest that the governor of each state appoint for one year a volunteer director of construction—an outstanding person whose record and ability are such that he will receive the full backing of the state government and the respect and cooperation of those who are charged with carrying out the plans. In New York state, we have such a person in the superintendent of public works. Empowered with the backing of the state government, such a director should plan and speed up all local improvements in cities, counties, towns and other municipalities as well as for the state government. In the large cities there could well be a separate administrator appointed by the mayor. In New York City, the mayor has already appointed a committee consisting of three officials who plan now for the emergency employment needs of next winter. An advisory committee could be asked to help but there should be an individual director charged with the responsibility, just as in times of emergency we had a fuel administrator or a food administrator. I am in favor of giving the job in each state to one man with all the backing and support that he needs to carry it on. This is not a matter of placing men in jobs or an employment service. This is an actual creation of jobs. Along with these various state directors there should be a federal coordinator or director of public works. He must be able to speak for the federal government with real authority and be aided by a definite program with a plan for financing and a speeding-up emergency administration to carry out the plan.

Cooperation Assured

To carry out such a plan needs the cooperation of the leaders in congress and the governors of the states. With the information that we gathered last year through Colonel Woods and his committee, the president can easily have a plan prepared to double public works and construction in 1932. He could obtain the consent of the congress just as he did in the case of the repaartions adjustments.

Last year there was much flourishing of trumpets by private corporations and by some of the states, telling of the work they were going to put under way and yet unemployment is steadily growing. Nobody knows what this winter will bring forth, except that it will bring suffering. Even if a few thousand men are returned to employment, there still remain many other hundreds of thousands who are heads of families who are out of work. With the group appointed by the governors to work in the several states, an organization similar to the war industries board should be set up. The president himself is entirely familiar with this form of planning and administration and is eminently qualified to organize and direct it for the federal government.

This is not the time to debate whether some of the steps here proposed are consistent with our theories of politics and economics, or with our ideas of the function of government, or the safeguards operating in normal times. The economic wheels cannot be put back into motion with one push. One starts the other. Production and activity in one place produces sales in another. The present emergency problem is extraordinary and extraordinary means are necessary to meet it.

Camp Fire Girls Give Program at Park on Friday

Camp Fire Girls of Wichita Falls, Electra and Archer City gathered at Week's park Friday night for a "Camp Echoes" program put on entirely by the members who attended the summer camp at Craterville, Okla., July 19th to 25th, and the Archer City camp the following week.

The program for Craterville camp opened with scene showing girls in their tents before the reveille sounded in the morning. When the whistle blew, sleepy girls were seen stretching and awakening the still sleepier girls who did not hear the whistle. This skit ended with the girls lined up for breakfast, sing the "Camp Fire Blessing," by Neidlinger.

"Camp cleanup" skit was enacted by Mildred, Olive, and Edatha Reich of Electra, Lois Schram, and Dorthea Whitehead of Wichita Falls, members of the Russia tent, who carried off the honors for the week for the highest average in tent inspection. "Square corners" on cots and "uniformity" as well as other important points were cleverly brought out in the skit.

A group of pretty songs featured the morning sing period, which was followed by the craft period. Margaret Hutchinson played the part of Mrs. Frank Michaux, nature counselor, and checked the girls off for requirements for the nature lore honor. The making of the pretty nature garden was featured as the high point of achievement in nature and handcraft classes.

Camp craft, with Miss Thelma Bridge as counselor was featured by a skit depicting the "overnight" showing some of the "joys and the sorrows" of the first night of sleeping out under the stars with the ground for a mattress and the night sounds for a lullaby. Cooking breakfast over the campfire was featured with much blowing of fires and cries for more matches. The sudden popularity of apple butter and oranges for breakfast was astonishing, after the attempt of new campers to cook eggs on hot rock or bake them in hot ashes.

Dorthea Whitehead and Lois Mae Austin dramatized health honor No. 205, showing the proper clothing and treatment of the feet to prevent blisters on a long hike, which was one of the many things the campers learned in the first aid classes taught by Miss Peggy Anderson, capable and lovable camp nurse, generally known as "nursery."

A review of handcraft taught by Charlotte Kennedy, evening programs, vesper services, swimming taught by Miss Louise Taylor of Sherman, and other activities not brought out through skits were mentioned by Mary McIlheran, executive and camp director. The closing scene of the program showed the girls seated in a circle around the campfire improvised by flashlights in the grass, singing their favorite "Mammy Moon" and lying down singing "Lay Me to Sleep" both Neidlinger songs.

The Archer City girls, with Mrs. Sam Newman as guardian, gave an outline of activities of their camp. Mary Frances McAnnany told of the camp meals prepared and served by the girls and the pretty table decorations. Vivian Abercrombie told of the daily schedule and classes, which she stated were outlined from the program followed the summer of 1929, when she and a number of the girls attended Camp Letoli with the Wichita girls at Craterville. These girls served as junior counselors at their camp, Vivian for camp craft, Emma Gragg for handcraft and Mary Frances for first aid. Emma Gragg told of the honors earned by the campers.

The Caribou dance, with clever costumes made up by the girls themselves, even to the Indian war bonnett and reindeer horns made from branches proved most entertaining. Their program closed with a group of songs learned at camp. Mrs. Newman stated that she hoped it would be possible for them to go to the Wichita camp next year as they had previously planned to do this year.

An interested group of parents and friends enjoyed the program as well as all of the camp counselors with the exception of Miss Taylor. Mr. A. C. Reich again proved himself a loyal Camp Fire Dad, by bringing some of the girls over for the rehearsal on Thursday and for the "echoes" last night.

Swimming Meet

The annual swimming meet will be held at Cedar Park pool on Friday evening of this week at 7 o'clock. Events will be worked out for beginners as well as the intermediate and advanced swimmers. Every Camp Fire Girl is urged to take part and to bring interested parents and friends to see the fun.

Guardian Association

The guardians met at local headquarters Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Tentative plans for the city-wide activities for the month of August were outlined to include: "Camp Echoes for Aug. 7; swimming meet at Cedar Park pool for Friday, Aug. 14; water melon party and hay ride for Friday, Aug. 21, and an overnight for Thursday, Aug. 27.

Mrs. R. E. Davis of local council explained the plans for the guardian institute to be held in Wichita Falls April 1 and 2, and urged the guardians to help make the meeting a real success. Mrs. Micheaux accepted the chairmanship of the exhibit committee and Mrs. W. J. Willis for the decorations.

Swimming Classes

The Friday swimming classes at Westmoreland will be dismissed, and only the Tuesday morning classes continued through the month of August, provided there are enough girls come out to have the instruction. Classes from 8 to 9 a. m.

Acancan Group

The Acancan group met Tuesday afternoon at the home of the president, Charlotte Lewis, 2312 Broad. Plans were made for the treasure hunt and picnic held on Friday afternoon. The group will meet again on Tuesday afternoon to earn some honor beads.

Oawakiya Group

The Oawakiya group met at the home of Mae Anna Duncan, 2700 Cooke on Wednesday afternoon. During the business session, plans were made for an outdoor meal to be cooked by members of the group for the parents. Complete plans will be made at the next meeting to be held at the home of the president, Ina Jo Ogle, 1208 Taylor, at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. Delicious punch was served by the hostess to Ina Jo Ogle, Mary Arwood, Evelyn Howard, Ruth Van Wormer, Dorthea Whitehead, Maurine and Willie Mae Bralley, visitors, and Mrs. Schram, guardian.

New Glasses

Some snappy new glasses for beverages have yachts painted on them in colored enamels. They are cool looking, zestful and very appropriate for summer resort entertaining.

Large Eruptions Caused Disfigurement. Healed by Cuticura.

"I had eczema for two years. It appeared on my arms, body and limbs in pimples. It itched severely and when I scratched it would bleed. Then the trouble would spread and form large eruptions that caused disfigurement. My clothing aggravated the breaking out, and at times I could not sleep.

"One of my friends read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and advised me to try them. I purchased some and the third application gave relief and after using two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and two cakes of Cuticura Soap I was healed." Times' Program for Wichita Falls

1. OIL—Place the Wichita Falls district on a parity with other centers in the marketing of both crude oil and refined products.
2. THE VALLEY—Systematic, vigorous development of the irrigated valley in keeping with its possibilities as Wichita Falls' greatest physical asset.
3. WATER—An ample, assured supply of soft water.
4. EDUCATION—Maintenance of a junior college in Wichita Falls to give opportunity for higher education to our youth—the highest standards in elementary schools.
5. THE LAKES—Full development of the recreational opportunities offered by the three lakes.
6. HIGHWAYS—Early consummation of a highway program covering all the main routes radiating from this city and all the local roads that serve its agricultural community.
7. DRAINAGE—Solution of the drainage problem in all three phases; first in the irrigated valley; second, with regard to Holliday creek. Third, in those portions of the city now inadequately drained.
8. GOVERNMENTAL ECONOMY—The adoption of such means as may be found most feasible to reduce the cost of local government by elimination of unnecessary offices and consolidation of others.

COMMON SENSE AT AUSTIN

Our respect for the house at Austin went up several notches Monday when we read of the emphatic manner in which it defeated a resolution to bar a Houston newspaper man from the privileges of the press table.

Dick Vaughan, correspondent for the Houston Press, wrote for his paper an article that dealt with the free and easy attitude of house members, and their habit of lolling back in their chairs, putting their feet on their desks and reading newspapers while important legislation was under discussion.

Representative Charles McCombs introduced a resolution declaring the article to be "scurrilous" as well as "highly contemptuous in tone and spirit" and "reflecting on the dignity and integrity of members of the house."

The house decided by a vote of 115 to 9, that its dignity and integrity had not been impugned.

About 20 years ago a San Antonio correspondent wrote along somewhat similar lines about the state senate. Half a dozen members of that body cornered the newspaper man and bravely attacked him with their fists. Apparently, common sense is more general at Austin than it once was.

TO STUDY AMERICAN SPEECH

There are Englishmen, it is claimed, who can promptly tell what part of Great Britain a countryman hails from, just by hearing him say a few words. Accent, idiom and intonation are said to be sharply distinct, as between one British country and another.

In our own country, there are countless variations in speech as between one state and another, but the differences are shaded rather than clearly defined. One might tell a southerner from a northerner by his speech, but to distinguish between a Tennessean and a Kentuckian, between an Alabamian and a Mississippian, by such means would be next to impossible.

A comprehensive study is now to be made of the variations in American speech. The American Council of Learned Societies is undertaking the task, which involves the preparation of a linguistic map of the country. Just one definition, given by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch as an example, shows what variations there. What is called a stoop in Massachusetts is a porch in the Middle West, a gallery in some parts of the South, a veranda in some localities, a piazza in others. There are differences in terms, as well as in accent and pronunciation, that will be studied.

We Texans speak of a small earthen reservoir, on a ranch or farm, as a tank. In many parts of the country, that word is used only in the sense of cistern. One never hears of a "brook" in Texas. If a stream has anything like regular flow of water, we are apt to call it a river. The task of Council of Learned Societies will doubtless reveal thousands of other variations.

This country, however, has no dialects, in the true sense of that word. The Arkansas backwoodsman and the Harvard graduate might have difficulty in understanding each other, for various reasons, but they speak the same language. The only dialect in this country is that of the Gullah negroes of South Carolina, and its use is restricted to just a few localities.

We are more nearly homogeneous in our speech than the people of any other country. There are no groups in this country that employ a separate language. The same is not true in Great Britain. For Wales has a considerable number who speak only Celtic and Scotland has several thousand inhabitants to whom any language but Gaelic is an unknown one. But within the broad confines of American speech, there are myriad minor differences that afford interesting study. There are so many that the Council of Learned Societies estimates that 10 years will be required to complete its task.

FOR A STUDY OF TEXAS' TAX PROBLEM

State Senator Ben G. Oneal has offered a concurrent resolution calling for appointment of a legislative tax survey committee, to make a general study of Texas' tax problems and report to the 43rd legislature. Four representatives and three senators would constitute the committee. For some reason, the resolution received scant mention in the press dispatches from Austin. It was referred to the state affairs committee, and that may be the last that is heard of it. But it is a thoroughly worthy undertaking, and we hope the legislators give the resolution the favorable attention it merits.

The resolution recites that existing tax laws are "a series of separate and in many instances incoherent measures enacted at different times and are not when taken as a whole grounded on a sound and fair basis." It also points out the need of careful study of the question "on account of the deplorable condition of the oil business and of the farming and cattle industries of this state." It is impossible, the resolution declares for the present legislature to give the subject adequate attention on account of the importance and magnitude of the problem.

Among the duties that would be imposed on the committee is that of making a study of revenue and taxation "with special reference to the comparative burdens of taxes as borne by the various industries and taxable values." Members of the committee would receive no compensation for their extra work, but their necessary expenses would be paid.

Times like these emphasize, in an unpleasant way, the wrongness of existing taxation measures. It has been said again and again, and it cannot be said too often, that the right sort of revenue program cannot be worked out on a piece-meal or patchwork plan. The tax problem must be remodeled in its entirety if the constitutional mandate for "equal and uniform" taxes is to be obeyed.

Senator Oneal's resolution aims at the right solution to the problem.

A CLEVERLY DRAWN BILL

The task which confronted the legislators at Austin, in framing an oil conservation bill, was a difficult one. The real purpose of any such legislation is to regulate production so that the market will not be depressed or demoralized. The legislators had to serve that purpose without seeming to do so. They had to write a measure which would appear to disregard any question of price or of market demand and which would apparently have conservation of a natural resource as its objective.

It had to make the bill appear as if conservation were the sole objective. Nobody, as we have said before, cares a rap about conservation. But it makes a useful and convenient smoke screen for the real purpose of the legislation. A bill that baldly dealt with matters of price would be invalidated the first time somebody went to court with it. A bill that apparently is concerned with the noble principle of conservation has a chance to get by.

The legislators carried out this idea to the extent of specifically declaring, in the bill that passed the house on Wednesday, that the question of economic waste must be ignored; that prevention of physical waste must be the sole consideration. The result is a cleverly drawn measure, which, if finally passed and approved, may be of very great value to the oil industry.

It is amusing to think that a state cannot try to help a great industry without camouflaging its moves in any such ridiculous fashion, but that is the situation.

The Red Opportunity

By GLENN FRANK

President of University of Wisconsin and Former Editor of the Century Magazine

(Copyright McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

Reams have been written on the red menace.

I want today to speak of the red opportunity that now faces us as a people.

The redness of which I speak is not radicalism.

There has just come to my desk a letter in which I find this sentence:

"Fremont Older in San Francisco gave the best short description of the improved outlook of the people when he said that everybody is in the red but everybody is getting used to it."

I do not presume to preach contentment with economic retardation.

We must buckle down to the business of recapturing a prosperity that shall be both stable and widely distributed.

But while we are beating our way back there is a benefit we can wrest from the current depression.

It is giving us an opportunity to stand back and look at the decade of prosperity that ended in the closing weeks of 1929.

It is giving us an opportunity to re-examine the way we reacted to that prosperity.

When we were in the radiant middle of that decade of prosperity, I said, in these articles, that prosperity, like poverty, can either make or break a people, that poverty is ancient, while prosperity is modern, that man is, therefore, an amateur in the uses of prosperity, whereas he is a professional in the uses of adversity.

In that decade of dizzy prosperity, we needed, as never before, to learn the uses of prosperity, as our pioneer ancestors learned the uses of poverty.

There was much we missed about this central issue of our generation.

Now is a good opportunity to study ourselves in relation to prosperity, so that we may better use it when, by the grace of foresight and hard work, we bring it back.

We must not grow sour under adversity.

ROUGHLY SPEAKING

Hope

The bustle, we're told, will be back in style,
To which fact we beg leave to advert,
With the hope that no lady will make use of one while
She has on a short circular skirt.

New York policemen are patrolling the streets with shotguns, but we haven't much hope of the child-shooting gunmen being brought to justice unless it is discovered they have been holding out on their income taxes.

Let Europe shake off its depressed air,
From the cup of its gloom cease to quaff,
For Jimmy Walker's en route over there,
And at least he can give 'em a laugh.

Sailors pour oil on troubled waters, but what Texas and Oklahoma need is something to pour on the troubled oil.

Working Regular

Though prosperity's lacking and times may be hard,
There's no unemployment in the Oklahoma National Guard.

President Hoover, it is discovered, is fond of gum-drops. Now if he will only feed them, a mouthful at a time, to Senator Fess.

It May Help

We are about to depart for our vacation and it just seems like something ought to be said about it. The word "depart" is used here in a limited sense. We aren't really going anywhere. We are just going to take a week off and give our brain a rest. It needs it. It has not been functioning at full efficiency, as our readers have no doubt noticed, so we are going to let it have a chance to relax and recuperate. That may do it some good. You never can tell about such things. Nature is wonderful and she knows her medicine. Yes, it may help it.

Our vacation will be different from the kind most folks take. In the first place, we're not going to send anybody any post cards with the legend, "having a fine time, sleeping under blankets, wish you were here." That's a promise. We wouldn't send that kind of post card even if we were going somewhere. And we don't expect to do any sleeping under blankets for the next few weeks. Not in Wichita Falls, Texas, in the month of August.

When folks write "wish you were here," it usually is a derned lie. Because the kind of folks that one sends such post cards to are the ones that one takes a vacation to get away from.

We shall not have any lies to tell about the fish we catch because we are not going fishing, and we probably wouldn't catch any fish if we did go, and we wouldn't lie about it in any event. Oh, we might do a little plain lying, just to fill in a gap in the conversation, but we wouldn't attempt anything of the kind in a serious, studied way.

Over-Rated

Vacations are all right, especially for us brain-workers, but the vacation trip is sadly over-rated as a means of relaxation. Our observation has been that with the worry of getting away, the desperate effort to have a good time while away, and the haste in which one has to get back, vacation trippers never have as much fun as they might. We have gotten the idea, observing them, that enjoying themselves is hard work.

We shall stay at home and devote ourself to reading and looking after our cantaloupe. The latter is now at a critical stage in its development and demands constant attention. With a few days of watchful care, it should be ready to pick. And we expect to pick it as soon as it is fully ripe, because it looks so lonesome, there in the patch all by itself. We believe in mixing a little sentiment with our farming.

Brains

As we said before, the principal purpose of our vacation is to give our brain a rest. We have been thinking about our brain quite a bit recently. We have been wondering whether, after all, if it really is as important a part of the anatomy as is popularly supposed. We see so many people getting along well enough without, apparently, any brains worth mentioning that we have come to doubt the value of that organ.

We have been wondering if what is politely called intestinal fortitude isn't more important, everything considered, than intellectual power. For instance, when an individual has a plentiful supply of the one and is practically devoid of the other, he can go to Oklahoma and be elected governor. The only trouble with that observation is that if one has neither brains nor abdominal stamina, he is likely to be elected governor of—some other state.

There doesn't seem to be any hard and fast rule about it, but the more one looks around and sees who is getting by and who isn't, the less he is apt to feel that brains are so downright essential. It is very discouraging. It almost makes us wish we didn't depend so heavily on our brain, for a livelihood. Not, however that we have ever entertained the idea of running for governor, on either side of Red river.

There are plenty of other callings, outside of politics, that offer opportunities to those whose mental development has been handicapped in one way or another. Look at the movies! Look at radio!

Still and all, it wouldn't do for intellectual sturdiness to be too general a characteristic of mankind. For one reason, there aren't enough newspapers to provide jobs for very many colyumists.

Well, as we said at the start, our brain needs a rest. And now that we have proved it, let's pass on to some other subject.

And just as if the gas men weren't having troubles enough these days, one of them has bought a daily newspaper in Missouri.

That sounds about on a par with getting inoculated with the hives when you already have the rheumatism.

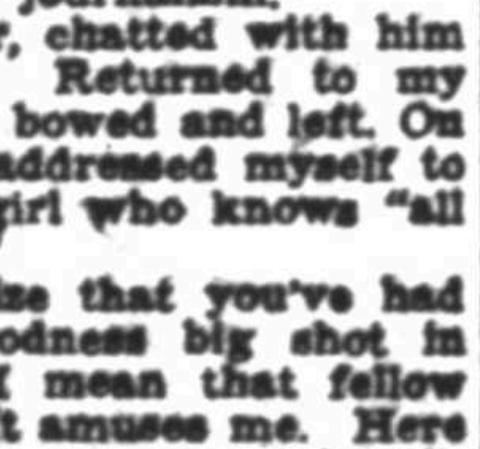
IN NEW YORK

with Gilbert Swan



NEW YORK.—Life is like that! . . . but it's also like this:

It was midafternoon on the Times square subway platform. Through the crowd hobbled one of those feeble old women, from the tenements of the East Side, who drift over to the Broadway sector to make a few pennies. Her head was wrapped in a venerable shawl, after the fashion of the peasant women of the ghetto. Her shoes were worn almost to tatters.

She carried under her arm a bundle. At first it seemed to contain pink editions of an afternoon newspaper. But as she came closer mumbling in some foreign tongue, she flashed a placard, just as the London vendors do. And in letters five inches high, I read—"Red Hot Songs . . . . 100 of the Hottest Tunes . . ."

The old crone ambled on, muttering to herself and flashing her placard now and then . . . and, very infrequently, sputtering in a cracked, high-pitched voice . . . "Von hundret Ret Hod Sungs."

I drifted over to a restaurant that has become the redezvous for Broadwayites. Here gather movie folk, stage folk, managers, song writers, playwrights, hangers-on, trade magazine gents and fan magazine girlies.

On the walls are cartoons of gents and ladies everyone has heard of; with twice as many pictures of folk that no one has ever heard of on the other side of Fiftieth street . . . nor ever will.

This is the sort of place where the illusion of importance is born out of three lines in a columnist's gag. Here gathers a world of sycophants; where bubble reputations are made for a few dozen big-town provincials; where the unimportant become important and where Broadway values are set.

The food is excellent; the crowd is generally amusing and chummy—and it's all part of the mid-town "racket."

At any rate, I dropped in there and fell to talking with the hat check girl, who has become one of the street's varied "characters." I fell to talking with a fellow column-spinner and some assorted newspaper men.

When, looking up, I noticed one of the biggest league newspaper men in all the United States dining, with his wife, in ac orner. Nobody had noticed him. Nobody seemed to know who he was. That's the way it is in the mid-town belt; they seldom know the really important and big people. And this particular gent happened to be one of the four or five outstanding figures in national journalism.

I walked over, chatted with him for a moment. Returned to my chair. He rose, bowed and left. On my way out, I addressed myself to the hat check girl who knows "all the celebrities:"

"Do you realize that you've had an honest-to-goodness big shot in here tonight. I mean that fellow who just left. It amuses me. Here you have your walls covered with muggs of cub-columnists, tenth-rate paragraphers; fifth-rate scenario writers—and all the rest—and that fellow could hire and fire the whole bunch of them."

I warmed up to my argument and the hooey of the Broadwayites. Only to the interrupted by a "Yeah, well who is he?"

I mentioned his name.

Nettle Rash

Many people are troubled with the appearance of a rash on the skin, accompanied by an intense stinging, burning sensation. This rash is in the form of wheals, and they may become maximum in size, varying from that of a pinhead to that of a half dollar within a few minutes, and they sometimes disappear as rapidly as they form.

These lesions may appear on any part of the skin, and they sometimes occur inside the throat on the epiglottis, giving a choking sensation or feeling of suffocation. When they appear on the tongue, they may cause it to become greatly enlarged.

The itching is so intense that it is almost impossible for the patient to resist scratching, which only increases the size of the wheals.

These rash attacks can only occur in people who are suffering from a form of chronic acidosis, and each attack is preceded by a period of lassitude, digestive disorders, coated tongue and possibly headaches. A fingernail drawn over the surface of the skin of these patients usually leaves a red line, and it is possible to write words on the surface of their bodies in this manner.

Poorly fed and undernourished children are most frequently sufferers from this disorder. The eruptions are usually small and appear about the hair follicles, accompanied by the usual intense itching.

In some forms of this disease, technically known as urticaria, there are also large swellings under the skin like small eggs, occurring most frequently on the face. The disease has a variety of forms. In some cases it occurs at regular intervals. Sometimes the irritations leave brownish discolorations or stains. These people usually become badly swollen as the result of mosquito or insect bites.

People susceptible to this disorder may suffer an attack from a number of causes. There is almost always an irritation of the digestive tract. The foods that most frequently bring on these eruptions are shellfish, cheese, sausage, pork, strawberries, cucumbers, and an almost endless variety of foods and drugs.

This disease may occur as a complication in the course of many chronic diseases, and in susceptible people the irritation of various substances applied to the skin will bring on an attack. Some of the substances which bring on this rash most frequently when in contact with the skin are rotogravure ink from newspapers, the content of certain plants, such as the primrose, various types of essential oils and gases. Worry and nervous irritation are also likely to bring on the eruption.

This disease is readily cured, since all that is required is to thoroughly alkalinize the blood. This is accomplished through the use of the acid fruit diet, such as apples, grapes, oranges or grapefruit for a period varying from five to 10 days and followed by a well balanced diet as outlined in my weekly articles in the newspapers.

One should be particularly careful to avoid fermentation in the intestines, and I am convinced that wrong food combinations are more responsible for this disorder than most of the foods that are blamed by the sufferers. One with a tendency to this disorder must be particularly careful in this respect. I will be glad to send without charge my article on food combinations to those who are interested, provided they send large self-addressed stamped envelopes.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Electrolysis

Question—Mrs. R. K. writes: "A short time ago I had some superfluous hair removed by electrolysis and it is growing in again. Could you tell me whether there could have been something wrong with the method, or whether electrolysis is not always successful with certain types of hair? I have been told that electrolysis sometimes stimulates a new growth of hair elsewhere. Is this true?"

Answer—If electrolysis is properly done it should result in a permanent removal of the hair. Sometimes a few of the hairs are missed in the first treatment and it may be necessary to have these treated again. Electrolysis does not stimulate the growth of hair elsewhere on the body.

After Eating Fruit

Question—L. O. R. asks: "What causes my gums to get sore from eating fruit? I can't chew for a few days afterward."

Answer—It is possible that you have some infection of the gums that makes them sensitive to fruit acids. I would suggest that you consult a good dentist and get his opinion.

Cholecystitis

Question—Mrs. V. B. writes: "I am just recovering from a mild attack of cholecystitis and would like to know what is best for me to eat to prevent its return. Have you any literature on the subject?"

Answer—You have evidently misspelled the name of the disease and I wonder if you mean "Cholesystitis?" This is an inflammation of the gall bladder, and a fasting and dieting regimen should prove very beneficial. I have an article called "Sick Gall Bladders" which I will be glad to send you upon receipt of a large self-addressed stamped envelope. It will give you some very helpful information.

NEW PLYMOUTH PROVES EXTREMELY POPULAR IN MOTOR WORLD CAPITAL

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 8.—Registrations of Chrysler corporation's new Plymouth exceeded all other makes of cars registered in Wayne county, Mich., during the month of July. This is the first time in recent years that retail sales of any automobile in the Detroit area have surpassed the sales of either Fords or Chevrolets in this county, which is recognized as the capital of the motor world.

July registration figures compiled by the state license bureau show that sales of Plymouths totaled 1,249 as against 1,063 Fords and 850 Chevrolets. The Plymouth figures are for a little more than three weeks, inasmuch as the new car was not announced until July 6.

Commenting on these figures, Walter P. Chrysler said today, "The fact that the new Plymouth took the leadership in July in the sales of all automobiles in Wayne county, where automobile values are subject to perhaps the most scrutinizing test in the world, indicates in our judgment the public's response generally to the development of something really new in automobiles. It is evident from reports from other parts of the country in terms of actual sales and forward orders from Chrysler, Dodge and De Soto dealers, that floating power, the new principle of engine mounting embodied in this first vibrationless four which has ever been built, is meeting a long felt requirement on the part of the public for greater comfort than has heretofore been available in an automobile in the lowest price class. No only has production for July exceeded our estimates for that month, but we are carrying into August more than 5,000 unfilled orders for July shipment."

NEW EQUIPMENT PLACED IN LOCAL BATH HOUSE

Announcement of the installation of an "electric vibratone rejuvinator" at the Sultan Turkish Bath house, 708 Travis, was made here Saturday, Mrs. N. M. Marshall, the proprietor.

Prior to the establishment of the bath house in April, 1930, Mrs. Marshall had been engaged in the hotel business for a number of years. She has been a resident of Wichita Falls since 1918.

The bath house here, Mrs. Marshall explained, is completely equipped for the giving of Swedish massages and for the giving of vabor, electric, tub and shower bath. A Swedish masseuse and masseur are in constant attendance, she said.

Turkish baths and massages were described as being beneficial for men and women of all ages by inducing rest, quieting nerves, relieving rheumatism, removing surplus fat and building up tissues.

Nick Was Lucky

MARSHFIELD, Wis.—Nick Henseler is thanking his lucky stars. Last year, while plowing on his farm, he lost his pocketbook containing 42 in bills. This year while plowing he turned over the pocketbook and what was left of the paper money. He sent the remnants to the U. S. treasury in Washington and that office sent him $43 in new money.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON. — Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, who came into office with a considerable reputation as a concocter of rarebits, hashes and omelettes and moved a stove in alongside his office so he might cook lunches to his heart's content, did not get far with that. Brown thought he was going to have more leisure than he has had. For a year and a half, with perhaps one or two exceptions, he hasn't used his little stove. More folks call on the P. M. G. than on any other cabinet official. He is the one who invariably seems to have callers waiting in his outer office. Other departments have diversified activities, whereas the postoffice is just one large service where things seem to converge on the man at the top. Visitors pile in on Brown from all points of the compass—people to talk about air mail contracts, promote appointments and postoffice sites and grind axes of all kinds. And, not quite strange to relate, a steady stream of men flows in just to talk politics.

Around corn planting time some one working in the treasury annex building on Pennsylvania avenue dropped some corn on the small lawn below. The corn sprouted and a tender hearted grass-clipper let it grow. Now there are five high stalks of corn growing behind heavy ramparts of stone and grilled iron and even a couple of what seem to be ripe ears. It looks funny and there's speculation in the coast guard and narcotics bureau offices in the building as to who will pick the corn.

Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska went out to his home town of McCook this summer to start construction of a new house. He has a nephew who is an architect and they had planned a long, low, white building which presumably would have been very beautiful indeed. But a next door neighbor, it turned out, had gone and built right up to the edge of the Norris ground and the plan had to be abandoned in favor of something like the old Norris house which didn't cover so much territory. The senator hadn't lived in his old house for many years. Norris has a large, attractive summer place at Waupaca, Wis., however, and his political enemies last year distributed pictures comparing the two houses and hinting that the senator had profited by his 1928 support of Al Smith, although everybody knew better . . . This sort of stunt is often pulled on western members of congress in campaigns. The Washington residences of the elder Senator LaFollette and of Senator Wheeler of Montana have been widely published in past struggles as if to convince the voters that they lacked progressivism. A Kansas congressman a few years ago bought a nice place in Virginia and was defeated for re-election after a photographic reproduction of it had been plastered on nearly every telephone pole in his district.

The 10-cent taxi fare which several cab companies established as a move in Washington's taxi rate war meant that five people could get in a cab and ride for miles at two cents apiece. And maybe you think they didn't take advantage of that!

One hears from the senate Indian affairs committee that the original apartment houses in America are the pueblos of New Mexico, some of them centuries old. The largest run five or six stories high and house several hundred Indians in one or two-room apartments. Stairways up the side instead of elevators, of course. Mr. Antonio Mirabal, one of the leaders at the Taos pueblo where the dwellers still wear blankets and braided hair, recently visited the East and reports by letters as follows:

"I learn that the east is entirely different from our home, as we don't have many people and not hot like in the East and not much noise. New Mexico is the country for me, where I can do the fishing and hunting any time I want."

Twenty Years Ago Today

From Files Wichita Times

August 9, 1911

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 9, 1911.—The bill granting statehood to New Mexico and Arizona, legislation that has been for many years the dream of the people of those territories, was passed by the senate last night 53 to 18 after rejection of the Nelson amendment, which proposed striking out of the Arizona constitution its judiciary recall provision.

The bill as passed by the senate differs only slightly from the house measure, and, it is said, may be unsatisfactory to President Taft. He has contended all along that he would be glad to sign the statehood bill if the Nelson amendment prevailed, but it is a grave question whether he would be willing to sign it if the amendment were defeated, as it was by 43 to 26. The indications last night were that the bill would become a law without his signature.

It now seems certain that Electra is to have a large brick hotel building at an early date to meet the demands incident to the progress in the local oil field and the consequent number who come to this place. A party of local capitalists cooperating with outside financial interests have the matter in hands and are fast shaping the proposition for a more definite announcement. It is understood that the building will be quite an extensive one and modern in every way.

Costly Banana Peel

PITTSBURGH.—Someone threw a banana peel on the stairway of the Union Trust company here and it resulted in a damage suit of $100,000. Glenn F. McBurney, in a suit against the company, alleges that he stepped on the peeling and fell, striking his head on a marble floor and suffering concussion of the brain.

Rubbed Wrong Way

SPOKANE, Wash.—The humane society has a lethal gas chamber for the execution of all wayward animals. Ralph Morse took a cat in to be killed. Just before he left he rubbed the cat's fur. But he rubbed it the wrong way and static electricity generated ignited the gas, burning Morse about the face. The cat escaped in the explosion.

Golden Wedding Celebrated by Wichita Couple

Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Givens, who have made their home in Wichita Falls except for short intervals for the past seven years, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Friday when 54 relatives and friends enjoyed a picnic dinner served at Weeks park.

CANNING TAUGHT AT CITY VIEW MEET

Mrs. Grover C. Johnson was hostess Friday to members of the City View Home Demonstration club at her home on Iowa Park road with Miss Ethel Luise Webb on the program for an interesting and timely talk on pressure canning problems.

Miss Webb suggested that members use soft water for canning vegetables and stated that for this altitude, the proper pressure was 15 pounds, raising the pressure slowly and releasing slowly to conserve the water in the jar. She also gave recipes for cantaloupe preserves and sweet pickles and directions for canning grape juice and peach juice.

Miss Johnson asked for recipes to be used in the Record News "Favorite Recipes of Wichita Women" column and Mrs. Bettes urged every one to attend the annual encampment of Wichita County Home Demonstration clubs to be held at Lake Diversion, Aug. 26, 27.

Delightful refreshments were served to the following members and guests: Mesdames T. H. Bettes, Arthur Scott, Arthur Ray, Irving, W. B. Taylor, N. K. Shamlian, Evans, J. F. Gross, Jim Rennels, Holcomb, J. H. Turner, J. C. Strauss, Mary Wisdom, W. T. Johnson, W. H. Kiel, Harris, Misses Harris and Ethel Luise Webb and the hostess, Mrs. Grover C. Johnson.

The Story of Sue

© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

"I haven't enough money to pay for my night letter." Barbara's face was really surprised. "Will you lend me some? After all, I went to all this bother just to be nice to somebody that you want people to be nice to," Barbara went on.

"It's nice of you," Sue answered, and knew very well that it was anything but nice. Barbara was being mean and doing it under the guise of kindness. Sue was paying for it.

"Thanks. I'll give it back tomorrow," Barbara said.

"Don't bother. It isn't anything." It was. But Sue couldn't have Barbara bestowing her amused, superior smile on her. "And it will probably give him ever and ever so much pleasure, you know!"

Sue couldn't resist the irony that flavored her words. She was growing tired of everything.

"But Jack asked me to write to him!" Barbara said.

"I hope you have. It's dreadful to be far away and lonesome." The words were casual, light, unimportant, as Sue spoke them. But she was flaming inwardly. She knew very well that Jack had not asked Barbara to write to him. She knew that he had looked under the silken fripperies and found Barbara's shallowness a long time before. But she disliked the idea that Barbara thought that she was putting something over on her.

Another idea came to Sue.

"I'm going to the hospital to see how Jean is," Sue told Barbara. "He made me promise to drop in often. Want to come along?"

"But—"

Sue knew what Barbara was thinking. That she, not Sue, was Jean's fiancee. That she, not Sue, was the one who should drop in to see him.

Sue was glad that she could speak truthfully. Jean had begged her to come often, even if he had done the begging before Barbara came to town. And Sue knew that if Jack had ever asked Barbara to write to him it was in the days when she was engaged to him, before Sue's own engagement.

"I'm just trying to be nice to someone that you want people to be nice to," Sue went on, quoting Barbara's own words. She knew that she shouldn't have stooped to fight Barbara with her own tools. And yet—why shouldn't she, she asked silently? Other girls did. And everything was said to be fair in love or war. Love, for that matter, was war. Veiled warfare. Subtle, usually. And because it was, it was harder to win a battle.

Everything was going against her, Sue knew. One after another, her castles had fallen. Only one remained. That was the most important of all. It was her faith in Jack.

But she was lonesome and angry.

"Want to with me, Barbara?"

"No, I'll go on home. Good night, Sue."

Left alone, Sue wondered if she had to go to the hospital. Not to go would give away her ruse even more thoroughly, much as she wanted it to be given away. But she certainly had no desire to inquire about Jean any more tonight. The hospital wasn't far, though. She walked down the street rather slowly, wondering whether she ought to go in, or ought to walk past and go home. When she was about two doors from it, she saw another figure come running up a side street, panting a little. Instinctively, Sue stepped behind a tree, into the shadows.

The figure hesitated on the first step of the hospital, glanced around furtively, and then ran up the other steps. It was Barbara.

Next—At the hospital.

PEGGY PIEDMONT Says

AUGUST as per annual schedule finds the majority of travelers leaving for their summer vacations. And while many Wichitans visit relatives and friends in the East, Northeast, Northwest and other sections at this time of the year, others grasp the opportunity to snatch a few weeks of some kind of study preparatory to opening their classes in the autumn. Others like the proverbial Arab, fold their tents and quietly steal away to the Texas gulf coast for a little bathing in the salt water, or to the numerous cool resorts in New Mexico and Colorado.

IN ARTICLES appearing in some of the leading papers on the first day of August, some splendid hints for vacationists during the month were given. One says, "Today starts the biggest vacation month of the year. Thousands of folks are off for good times and some of them will bring home the golf or tennis cup, the diving medal, the prize from the bridge tournament or the story about the big fish.

"There'll be fashion contests, too. Unannounced ones, though, where the judges will be 'the other women.' Here are some suggestions for vacation clothes given by the fashion writers from Paris in regard to the very newest wrinkle in hats sure to meet the approval of every woman.

"OSTRICH plumed hats, sponsored by fashionables during week-end social activities, have caused the same stirring excitement that long skirts caused two years ago.

There has been marked evidence of a revival of the Victorian style in dress at the Grand Prix and the annual Fete d' Elegance. Mannequins appeared in fitted jackets with flowing skirts, with lingerie muffs, small parasols, net and lace gloves, mitts and other details recalling the by-gone mauve decade and earlier periods.

New hats perhaps are the most commented upon of all the various aspects of the new mode. There is a distinct trend toward hats tilted over the eye at one side and off the hair on the other. Added to this new head silhouette are feathers of all kinds, and the effect is devastatingly different."

AN ANOTHER fashion dear to the heart of every woman is something new—perfume. And fashion writers ever on the alert for just these things that hold such a prominent place in the lives of women, seem to have solved this dainty problem in a unique and clever way. The information given out "on the last word" in perfume, says the young men, will soon be able to tell the time by the kind of perfume their girls are using. That dame fashion has decreed that the girls shall make their drugstore fragrance vary with the hour. The early morning toilette, say cosmeticians and perfumers, is the single flower odor—either lilac, rose, sweet pea or lily of the valley. For luncheon milady must wear a boquet blend. For evening, something oriental and subtle.

Summer scents must be light and airy, of course. In autumn and winter, the fragrance must be bolder, more pronounced.

The blonde must go for "etherial" aromas; the brunete must cultivate the exotic titillations of the far east; the titian-haired, something spicy and daring.

The question is, how to train the nose to become acutely sensitive to the differences of fragrances, to enable the beaux monde to distinguish the girl (whether brunete or blonde), and the hour, by the aroma.

AND NOW that Milady is all fixed up as to the newest in hats and perfume, I might tell you where a few of them are spending the hot season and where a few more will spend the remainder of it. Mrs. W. B. Hamilton and her two sons, with Mr. Hamilton's sister, Mrs. L. R. Mitchell and children of Dallas, are enjoying the cool Colorado climate at the Hamilton lodge. Mrs. N. H. Martin and son Billy are in Colorado, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Rut-

Wichita Campers Named Leaders At Kinnikinnik

Outdoor life, stressed as a means of physical, mental and spiritual growth, is featured in Camp Kinnikinnik, Manitou, Colo., where Miss Marguerite Fisher is acting as dramatic counselor and where, beside the girl campers from Wichita Falls and other cities of this vicinity, several Wichitans have been recent visitors.

The first month of camp has just closed and Ernest Katz of Wichita Falls was one of the guests who gave a progra mof music for the girls in camp some two weeks ago when he and several other visitors were present. Mrs. Ben Bell and Mrs. Frances Gardne rhave also been guests at the camp.

Among the Wichiita girls, there are on the staff of "Kinnikinnik Smiles," the camp paper whose compelte staff numbers 10, Nell Gardner is editor of fine arts; Jane Fisher, of camp activities; Jo Bell of wit and humor. The group from this vicinity are active in all programs and all phases of camp life.

Competing teams for camp honors give parties at the close of each competition, losers honoring the winners. There are stunt nights, assembly talks, hikes, tennis, nature programs, swimming and croquet, and it is interesting to know that Wichita Falls girls lead in archery, swimming, tennis, dramatics and dancing.

Miss Fisher, as dramatic counselor, assisted by Pauline Anderson, glee club director from Ardmore, Okla., recently put on a nature program that won the commendation of campers and visitors. All campers take part in the vesper service which takes place at sunset each Sunday evening.

The gayety and charm of Napoleon's Second Empire are reflected in our showing of new fall hats.

Never before has a more romantic, quaint and lovely fashion been captured from the pages of history.

Engagement of Miss Huntress Is Announced

(Special to The Times)

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 8.—Of wide interest, not only to San Antonio society but to many people of Texas and Missouri, is the announcement today by Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Huntress, of San Antonio, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Katherine Logan Huntress to Dr. Merton M. Minter, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Minter, of Corsicana, Texas.

Miss Huntress, on the maternal side, is a descendant of the Bryons, Logans and Johnsons of Kentucky and Missouri; and on her father's side she also comes of a high-repute family. Her father is the publisher of the San Antonio Express and the Evening News. She has been prominent in the younger set here and danced before the queen of the Order of the Alamo at the age of 6; was Duchess of the University of Texas in 1927 and in 1928 was the Duchess of Alexandria at the court of the Mediterranean. Princess of Texas at Waco, Texas, 1927 Cotton Palace. Graduated from the San Antonio High school and later attended the Ogontz school in Philadelphia, Pa., and also the Lady of the Lake college and the University of Texas. She is a member of the Kappa Gamma and Theta Sigma Phi honorary journalism sorority. At present she is in charge of the society department of the San Antonio Evening News.

Dr. Minter is an internist associated with Dr. Lee Rice of San Antonio. He was graduated from the Texas university and also from University of Texas Medical college of Galveston. He is a member of Osteon society, Phi Chi fraternity and Alpha Omego Alpha (honorary medical fraternity). He was also a member at coronation ceremonies of the court of the Mediterranean as duke to the Duchess of Galveston.

No date has been set for the wedding.

MUSICIANS CLUB HAS NEW YEARBOOKS

In the Musicians club yearbook, just issued from the press, programs of unusual interest are shown. Mrs. Fred B. Sharp, chairman, with a committee including Mesdames A. H. Mahaffey, Lucile Brooks Huff, Edwin A. Bebb and Ben Bell, arranged beautifully balanced numbers on the usual scale of one study and one evening program each month, with four programs open to the public, three to be given at the junior college and the Christmas program at the First Baptist church.

The beautiful improvisation on the life of Frederick Chopin, "16 Rue Pigalle" will be given for the music department of the Woman's Forum with Mrs. Pearl Calhoun Davis, who appeared in the original production, in a leading vocal role; Charles Kiker of the Knickerbocker Fine Arts school as Chopin, and all other parts taken by members of the club.

On Jan. 28, officers for the next year will be named at a luncheon business meeting and another luncheon May 5 will close the club work for 1931-32.

NEW HEAD OF JUNIOR COLLEGE FAVORS INSTITUTION AS ASSET TO TRADE AREA AND EDUCATION

By HELEN BROODO

"As the Wichita Falls Junior college renders service to all of the local and surrounding trade area, it is a valuable business asset as well as an educational asset," commented H. D. Fillers, M. A., president of the Junior college and superintendent of the Wichita Falls public schools.

"There is a demand here for the college," Mr. Fillers continued, "because it has no competition, and it appeals to the trade territory not only right in Wichita Falls, but for several hundred miles around in this vicinity."

The local Junior college is maintained wholly by the tuition and fees paid by the students, as a result of a law passed which makes illegal the use of city publis schools for the maintenance of a junior college. In regard to this law, Mr. Fillers declared that, after all, junior college work is only extended and more detailed high school work consisting of academic courses to build the foundation for higher and more specialized learning and training.

The president explained that because of the present economic situation, no move toward the general reorgaization of the college can be made now. "But we'll make the best of the present situation until conditions get better," he exclaimed.

The superintendent described his idea of the "ideal situation" to be for the taxpayer to carry part of the burden and for the student to pay part of the money needed for junior college expenditures, because no institution can last long by tuition and fees alone or by state expenditures alone. He stressed the significance of the fact that at present the state is expending a larger sum for the education of its youth on the junior college level in standard institutions than it would pay in case they were trained in public junior colleges.

Advantages Seen

Naming various advantages of attending the local institution, Mr. Fillers asserted that students and especially graduates of W. F. J. C. have always and are still making enviable records wherever they go in their vocations and in higher educational institutions. He stated that there is plenty of real evidence to prove that local students get such a good background that when they go away to greater colleges they win the highest honors and lead their classes and organizations in all phases of activity. He considers it a great advantage to be able to go to college and live at home at the same time, as not only Wichita Falls residents but also many students from surrounding towns do conveniently.

Mr. Fillers said that officials of the junior college expect an increase in attendance of from 20 to 25 per cent this year because more persons are acknowledging the value of the college as consistent with their intentions and because of the financial conditions. "This college ought to attract those students who cannot afford to go to larger and more expensive places," he said. Fillers reported that he and other members of the college board have already received many calls and letters of inquiry concerning the college, and a great interest has been shown thus far in its curriculum.

The academic calendar for 1931-1932, which is the tenth annual session of the college, shows that entrance examination will be given Sept. 11 and 12, while registration may be made Sept. 12 and 14. Classes begin Sept. 15.

Capable Faculty

The teachers, who are employed to give the students the best physical, moral, and intellectual development that can be had, are experienced and well trained. The following teachers comprise the faculty: B. T. Adams, mathematics; C. L. Brown, physics; Elizabeth Brown, zoology; Howard Bunch, engineering drawing; Mrs. R. J. Daniel, home economics; Madge Davis, English; Atticus F. Edwards, history; Mrs. Marie Gilbert, Spanish; Mrs. Roberta M. Ryan, librarian; R. O. Jonas, education and psychology; Juanita Kinsey, public speaking; W. A. Mangum, education; Kathleen Melat, French; Mamie Raborn, history; T. F. Richardson, chemistry; Eva Weber, English; Gladys Wilbanks, stenography and typewriting.

The aim of the college is to give to the students through a close personal touch between them and the faculty and under a home environment two years of work beyond the high school grade that will meet the needs of those who intend to complete an academic course, who plan to attend professional schools, or who expect to enter their life's work after leaving junior college. The building is situated on Avenue H and Florence Stone boulevard, and is occupied by both the high school and college students.

For 1931-1932 classes will be formed for chemistry, clothing, education, engineering drawing, English, foods, French, government, history, mathematics, physics, psychology, public speaking, Spanish, stenography, typewriting, and zoology.

Although the college has no facilities for football, Mr. Fillers stated that later on gymnastic or athletic activity may be made available for the students.

Extra curriculum work is liberally provided for all, students in attendence, and various organizations are formed under supervision of interested sponsors, for the mental, physical, and social development of student life.

The Wichita Falls Junior college is recommended for its high standards among the other colleges in the South, and willing students are offered many opportunities for successful learning.

Education and the Economic Crisis

By Edward McShane Waits, President of Texas Christian University

Certainly this is not a time for chauvinistic adulation. Apathy can be overcome at this time only by enthusiasm, and enthusiasm can be aroused and the heart put into the people only by two things: First, an ideal which takes the imagination by storm; and, second, an intelligent plan for carrying that ideal into practice. The wise course for any institution in this perilous hour is to increase effective action instead of spending its time in academic analysis, mutual criticism and self-excusing alibis. While we are called upon to practice the most rigid economics and pare our budget, both the instructional and our overhead, to the very limit, personally, I am not a defeatist but an enthusiastic advocate of at least our present program with the most rigid economic diet on which we can subsist.

That we are passing through one of the most peculiar economic conditions which has been witnessed in years cannot be denied—an unacknowledged panic described by every euphemistic name in the dictionary—"a psychologic state"—"a strange psychosis"—"economic depression"—but the cold, hard facts confront us, with one bank in every six in the country failing, with our low-price cotton, our elevators bulging with nearly a billion bushels of wheat, while thousands go hungry; a mass overproduction of fabrics with people shivering for lack of sufficient clothing to give warmth, with five million unemployed and drouth sufferers in scores of sections of our nation, surely the picture is not one to cheer our hearts.

Why this situation? The cause is just what the greatest statesmen and economists of this nation are trying to discover and, once a correct diagnosis is made, to find and apply a remedy.

Headache Due

Perhaps Irvin Cobb was right when he said over the radio the other night, "You can't stay drunk 10 years without having a headache for at least 24 hours afterward." This nation for 10 years has been in an orgy of extravagance, installment buying, our industries have been engaged in colossal schemes of mass production, and by crusades of selling we have been trying to force a market. Even in our eagerness, our madness and our intoxication to acquire things, we have turned to speculation, and, as Will Rogers said the other evening, "in everything we were buying that which we did not get from those who never had it." Today we are smothered with things. The desirability of their possessions is screamed at us from every radio and billboard, from every newspaper and from every magazine. Our life is like a parade before a brilliantly lighted show window—with its dummies screaming for our attention. Statisticians have calculated that 100 years ago the average person had 72 wants and of these 16 were regarded as necessities. Today the average person is, by the same calculation, said to have 484 wants, of which 94 are rated as necessities. A century ago we had only about 200 articles urged upon us, but the average person today has over 32,000 with 365,000 different brands. Thus we are like the fabled Atlas, attempting to rise and extricate ourselves with the world on our shoulders. We have exchanged the tangible for the intangible assets—even our good President Hoover has suggested the remedy of more buying. Again Will Rogers' good humor comes to the rescue when he said that the way to avoid traffic jams is to take off the streets and highways all unpaid-for cars.

The testing of educational institutions, like all other human enterprises, is shaped and colored by the environment in which it finds itself and the spirit that directs it. This is a machine age and a modern college has become a great business mechanism, but it is more like a great thought with a great spirit back of it than it is like a great industrial machine. Our colleges are like all industrial enterprises in that they cannot spend a dollar that they do not receive as income without the hazard of piling up deficits. It is like any other business—sure to arrive in bankruptcy when it pyramids its borrowings simply to cover its deficits and liabilities. There is not a well organized business today that is not on a diet, endeavoring to get rid of superfluous expenditures and eliminating extravagance. Texas Christian university is endeavoring gallantly to ride the storm. There are evidences that we are coming out of the troughs of the waves and we are facing the fall session with great hope and optimism.

NEGRO CHOIR TO SING AT HIGHLAND HEIGHTS

At the Highland Heights Baptist church, 3008 York avenue, Sunday evening at 8 o'clock there will be a special musical program given by a negro choir and quartet with special instrumental selections by a stringed orchestra.

WEATHERFORD COLLEGE GAINS IN ENROLLMENT

There were no signs of a depression last year in Weatherford college. Someone remarked that the reason for that was that the Weatherford college students never had much money at any time. But when registration time closed a 28 per cent increase in student body over the previous session was registered. This was the largest enrollment Weatherford college had ever had, and in times of depression.

The whole system of Weatherford college is organized around the thought of "better education at less expense" and the unbelievable has been done. In the boys' and girls' dormitories every student helps with the work and gets the benefit of the actual cost as a charge for his board. Board and room have averaged about $15 per month over a period of six years, since this experiment began.

An especially interesting fact about the history of Weatherford college, reorganized as a junior college 10 years ago, is that it has grown until now the capacity enrollment is had each year. While the cost to the individual student is wonderfully low the scholarship records of Weatherford college graduates in senior colleges reveal that the average grade of these students is higher than the average senior college grade.

The number of championships won by these students of few funds is equally remarkable—three of the last five basket ball championships, three of the last five track championships, one dramatic championship, three of the last four tennis championships, six of the last 12 oratory championships and always a strong contender for every football championship. There must be a difference.

Because of the endowment which Weatherford college has and because of the fact that the institution has not had a maintenance debt in nine years an unusually strong spirit of optimism and encouragement prevails among the faculty and student body of Weatherford college.

Representatives of the college feel that the outlook for the session of 1931-32 is that there will be more students applying for admission even than last year. The college authorities are wondering what they will do with them if such a condition prevails.

A LETTER received from Florence Sammons, well known pianist, who is one of the vacationists who always uses her leisure months from teaching for the purpose of furthering her knowledge of her chosen work, written from the Allerton house in Chicago, says that she is doing post-graduate work in the piano department of the American Conservatory of Music for the second consecutive summer. She says that she is also specializing in normal training in the famous children's department under the direction of Miss Louise Robyn. On Thursday, Aug. 6, Miss Sammons appeared at the Allerton house in a musical program and played for her solo numbers, "First Movement" (Les Adieux) of Beethoven's Sonata, Opus 81, and "Prelude in D Minor" by Mach. She said that she would be home about Sept. 1 and resume her classes about the middle of the month.

Dude ranches in New Mexico are also popular summer resorts for Wichitans and several families from this city are spending several weeks at one near Las Vegas.

Any way, Kitty, unless when you decide when you leave for your annual two weeks off duty, that you don't want to write to anybody or hear from any one, try and send a few scribs to your friend,

Texas University Professors Compile Suggestions for Guidance of Those Seeking Maintain Junior Colleges

AUSTIN, Aug. 8.—Suggestions for the guidance of those seeking to establish or maintain junior colleges in Texas have been compiled by Dr. Frederick Eby and Dr. B. F. Pittenger of the University of Texas school of education, following a detailed study made during two years of research under the terms of a $2,000 grant from the university bureau of research in the social sciences. These suggestions have been incorporated in a university bulletin, "The Financing of Public Junior Colleges," which has just been issued.

"The increasing demands year after year for more money to care for education, both public and private, could not continue without scrutiny concerning the causes of increases and of the unit costs of school work, Dr. Eby and Dr. Pittenger explained in their discussion of the problem. "Not until the last two decades, however, was a genuine study made of the expense to society of the various levels of education. The junior college, a newcomer in the family of educational institutions, had, as well as other schools, to meet this economic challenge.

"The problem, though, has a more vital significance than that of a mere cost accounting in these institutions. Several points give it special interest of a practical nature. First, it is often said by those enthusiastic for the establishing of such a school that the junior college can be added to a school system with little or no expense. Secondly, it is claimed that a junior college will save society some of the heavy cost now going into senior colleges and universities. Again, the charge has been made that school boards spend money on the junior college which would be utilized better in bringing the elementary grades and the high school to a higher level of efficiency.

State Aid Question

"Another reason for the inquiry is the feeling in some parts that the junior colleges cannot be regarded as permanent constituents of our school system until some secure financial support has been furnished for their maintenance. Finally, the question of state aid to the junior colleges and the amount of such aid will inevitably arise sooner or later in every state where public junior colleges are established."

In discussing the question of state aid, Dr. Eby and Dr. Pittenger continued: "Texas provides free tuition through state support in 17 standard colleges all of which are doing the greater part of their work on the junior college level. Texas provides free tuition through state support in two special junior colleges. Texas guarantees free tuition for every child up to 21 years of age unless that child is compelled to attend a junior college. There is nothing either in the constitution or in the school laws which restricts the expansion of the public school upward. At present the state is expending a larger sum for the education of its youth on the junior college level in standard institutions than it would pay in case they were trained in public junior colleges. Moreover, in addition to these larger expenditures for instruction and general control, it is compelled to put up buildings of all kinds and furnish libraries, gymnasiums and dormitories.

No Doubt as to Policy

"In view of these facts there can be no doubt as to the future policy for society as a whole. Secondary education through the junior college level should be furnished in local high schools and junior colleges at local or state expense. The existing state junior colleges should be maintained for a certain group of students who are best cared for away from their homes. The time will come when the standard colleges will give up the field of secondary education and become professional, technical and graduate institutions.

"The expenditure of state and local funds in maintaining the junior college would be largely justified by the beneficial effect which the presence of the college exercises over the other schols, especially the high school. Superintendents are more and more impressed with this unexpected advantage of the college. It stimulates teachers of the high school, gives pupils more concrete contact with higher education, and reacts wholesomely upon the patrons of the school system."

LOCAL ODD FELLOWS TO ATTEND DISTRICT MEET

A number of Wichita Falls Odd Fellows will go to Breckenridge, Aug. 17 to attend the district grand lodge of the Texas I. O. O. F.

The local delegation will be headed by C. B. McConnell, district deputy grand patriarch, and J. R. Ogle, district deputy grand master.

SIMMONS ENDS FOURTH DECADE OF ITS HISTORY

ABILENE, Texas, Aug. 8.—The annual opening at Simmons university Sept. 15 will mark the end of the fourth decade in the history of that institution. Forty years ago on a bright September day buggies and cow ponies brought nearly 5,000 people from the sparsely settled prairies of a frontier country to witness the opening of the new college which was to later become Simmons university.

The college at that time consisted of one mud-brick building, standing proudly alone on a sand hill dotted with mesquite and surrounded by range cattle. Today it is an institution with a $1,000,000 plant of 12 modern buildings, with an endowment exceeding half a million dollars, with more than 13,000 ex-students on every section of the globe, and with recognition accorded by the leading colleges and universities of the nation.

Dr. J. D. Sandefer will begin his 23rd year as the school begins its 40th. A great amount of the progress has been made since his administration began. In 1909 he took the reins of a little college of 300 students with few material assets and no recognition from the outside and immediately started the campaign of growth which has brought Simmons to its present status.

The latest step of advancement at Simmons was admission into the National Association of Schools of Music. This gives the university conservatory equal rating with 41 leading schools of the nation.

Strengthen Faculty

Christian Thaulow, eminent Norse violinist, was this summer added as head of the violin department to strengthen an already strong music faculty of such masters as Iri Allison, Josef Evans, William James Work, and Dewey O. Wiley, Miss Lucile Patterson and Mrs. Work. Courses in the school of fine and applied arts under the well known art teacher, A. M. Carpenter, embrace every phase of painting, design, commercial art and public school art.

Two new professors are being added for the coming year. They are Dr. N. A. Moore, newly-elected head of the Bible department, and Miss Nena Kate Ramsey, new director of the speech education department. Dr. Moore comes from Jonesboro, Ark. Miss Ramsey has just finished a year's study in the University of London and the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, after having taken a degree at Columbia university.

The well known cowboy band, which traveled eight weeks in Europe in 1930, is planning another transoceanic tour for next summer. Numbers of bandsmen from high schools over the Southwest are seeking membership in this organization.

With recognition gained among the leading schools of the nation in the college of arts and sciences, the graduate school and the fine arts, Simmons is ready to offer its students the finest type of Christian training in the liberal arts, the vocations and the basic principles of Christian manhood and womanhood.

PHILOSOPHY, PSYCHOLOGY AND EDUCATION

The modern trend of thought demands a more thorough knowledge of the subjects of Philosophy and Psychology than ever before. To be fitted to cope with present day problems, the student must not only possess an understanding of great branches of learning, but must have the mental training to meet rapidly changing conditions as they arise and to exercise an intelligence in coping with them which, without the proper training, would be impossible.

The mental sciences which, since the days of the Greeks, have been the basic courses in the curricula of our colleges, have assumed a new interest. Much progress is being made in the field of psychological research. Both Philosophy and Psychology are being related to the whole system of public education and university training.

The School of Education at Texas Christian University offers the degree of Bachelor of Education; has trained and placed more than a thousand teachers in the public schools in the last few years. Work leading to certification under the State Board of Education is accessible to all students who desire to follow the profession of teaching.

Instructors in these branches have been selected with most careful precision and these departments rank high at the T. C. U.

Wichita Falls Junior College

WICHITA FALLS, TEXAS

Tenth Annual Session Opens September 14th

The Wichita Falls Junior College offers work leading to the academic degrees, education, law, medicine, engineering and business administration, which is accepted at full value by all colleges and universities in the United States. The two years spent in this Junior College is better than the time spent in a Senior College because more attention is given to the needs of the individual student. Each class is taught by a highly trained and experienced teacher.

The building, laboratories, library facilities and class room equipment are equal to the best that can be found.

A beautiful and spacious campus with tennis courts and room for other sports affords excellent means for recreation for all students of the college. There are also organizations of a literary nature which afford practice in public speaking, dramatics, citizenship, journalism, music and art. Expert coaches are furnished for these various clubs.

All living conditions in Wichita Falls are on a parity with any other college city in Texas. There are plenty of nice homes available at reasonable rates.

THE WICHITA VALLEY FARMER

DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF THE FARMER, DAIRYMAN, POULTRY RAISER AND FRUIT AND TRUCK GROWER

FALL MARKETING OF TRUCK PLANNED BY GROWERS' GROUP

Plans for a fall truck agreement will be considered at a meeting of the Wichita Valley Growers association later this month, it was learned Saturday. The tentative program calls for planting of spinach and some of the root crops such as carrots and turnips. The valley is believed to have a very favorable marketing opportunity on these crops.

The association's officers have been outlining plans for next year's cantaloupe planting, with the expectation that the acreage will be greatly increased.

Meanwhile, those who participated in this year's cantaloupe project are awaiting returns from the shipments made. Indications are that the returns will be small, as the cars sent from here struck the market at an inopportune time.

CHILDREN'S AID GIVES TINY INFANT TO LOCAL FOSTER MOTHER AND DAD

A young married woman recently applied to the Children's Aid office for a child to adopt. This week she was awarded a tiny infant, which will be reared as her own child.

Mrs. Harley Snyder reports many peculiar cases and incidents that happen in the rounds of her charity work, and this case is one of the most unfortunate ones that ever had a happy ending. The baby, a chubby, round-eyed "butterball," as Mrs. Snyder described it, will probably never know that the lady who reared him is only his foster mother.

The little boy is the child of parents, who, under the circumstances, cannot possibly rear it into happy, well-bred manhood. Rather than see her child become a degraded man, the mother willingly relinquished him to a person who will always love and appreciate his value.

Such work as the placing of unfortunate children is done almost daily by the Children's Aid society, and Mrs. Snyder, executive secretary of the organization, always declares fervently that her work is gratifying to all parties concerned. She stated that in local charity homes there are several very attractive and fine children awaiting the lucky day when some foster mother or daddy comes to claim them. So Mrs. Snyder appeals to the public when she asks that any one having room accommodations, and love for another child in the home should apply to her for one of the many children who need a mother's care and a father's blessing.

POPULAR SONG HITS TO BE PRESENTED BY MISS MARY CHARLES

A program of popular songs will be offered by Mary Charles, soprano, during her broadcast over the WABC-Columbia network, on Monday, Aug. 10, at 5 p. m., C. S. She has brought back from England several novelty songs which she plans to introduce on her weekly broadcasts. Several of them have been written specially for her by continental tunesmiths.

New Owner Bridwell Farm Sees Rich Possibilities in Irrigation Here; Has Plans for Development of Properties

The Wichita valley has opportunities equaled by those of few other irrigated projects, in the opinion of A. E. Parker of Lyford, Texas, an experienced irrigation farmer, who was in Wichita Falls last week.

Mr. Parker and his three brothers recently purchased the J. S. Bridwell farm near Wichita Falls. Mr. Parker was here in connection with plans for taking over that property.

Irrigation farmers here do not realize what an advantage they have in the cheapness of the water, Mr. Parker said.

"In the Rio Grande valley," said Mr. Parker, "we pay an ad valorem tax to take care of interest and sinking fund on the bonds. We pay another ad valorem tax, known as a maintenance tax. On top of that, there is a drainage tax. And then we have to pay at the rate of a dollar per acre every time we irrigate.

Mr. Parker thought that perhaps better farming methods would be practiced here if the water cost more.

"The farmer who gets all the water he wants for $3.50 an acre per year" said Mr. Parker, "is likely to depend too much on irrigation and too little on cultivation."

Mr. Parker said he and his brothers had no immediate plans for the Bridwell farm which they have acquired. One of the brothers will come here in October to look after the property, he said. He indicated however, that the new owners were giving some thought to the matter of subdividing the farm and selling it in smaller tracts.

The valley here should have possibilities in fall truck crops, Mr. Parker thinks. He believes that fall truck would come onto the market at a time when it would have little competition. Mr. Parker also believes that onions should be given more attention here, owing to the fact that the Laredo district's acreage has been greatly reduced.

Mr. Parker was accompanied by his uncle, J. H. Parker of Navarro county, an experienced farmer who is interested in the valley as a potential pecan-growing section.

San Antonian Robbed

CARRIZO SPRINGS, Texas, Aug. 8. (AP)—D. M. Klutts, of San Antonio was robbed of $25 on the highway near here last night by robbers who bound and gagged him.

COOLING EGGS ADDS TO POULTRY PROFITS

Jourdanton—Not satisfied with the way his market eggs were grading out, J. R. Clinton, poultry flock demonstrator in Atascosa county, built an old fashioned iceless refrigerator to furnish a cool place to store his eggs while waiting for market. The first shipment gave him over four dozen more "special extra" eggs in each case that was kept in the cooler than in the cases stored in the usual warm place, and a much larger percentage of "number ones." In the last shipment 32¾ dozen out of 40 dozen eggs graded "special extra" and seven dozen "number one."

According to T. P. Metcalfe, county agent, the cooler was made from some light 1x2 lumber, with two sheet iron pans to hold water, and cloth obtained from feed sacks. The cooler temperature within the moistened cloth enclosure comes from the steady evaporation of water from the cloth surfaces. The total cost did not exceed $2 which was repaid from the extra premium from the first few cases of eggs.

The average amount of pasture per farm in North Dakota was 186 acres in 1930, compared to 118 acres in 1925 and 120 in 1920.

NORTHWEST TEXAS LOOMS LARGER IN TRUCK PRODUCTION

The increasing importance of truck-raising in Northwest Texas is shown by data on this season's shipments.

In Wise and Montague counties, in addition to several hundred cars of watermelons and cantaloupes, shipments of cucumbers, blackberries, beans, tomatoes and potatoes have been made.

Clay county entered the list of truck-shipping counties this year with watermelons as its chief product. There is a large acreage of melons in the Bluegrove section. Some difficulty in disposing of the crop is being experienced. Some small shipments of black-eyed peas have also been made.

Wichita county, though raising a larger amount and a greater variety of truck than ever before, has shipped comparatively little out of the county.

Possibilities of truck raising in Wilbarger county are now being studied by Vernon business men. Irrigation has been found feasible on a limited scale, by pumping water from shallow wells. Wilbarger county at one time was an important cantaloupe-shipping center, but has paid relatively little attention to vegetable crops in recent years.

Donley county raised a large crop of cantaloupes this year, having a total of about 50 cars. If the crop is successfully marketed, it is expected that cantaloupes will be planted still more extensively next season.

COOPERATORS TO CAN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

Pearsall—Frio county has established a community canning plant in Pearsall to which the women of the county come from every direction to can their surplus fruits and vegetables and to provide for their family meat needs by canning beef, chicken, lamb and chevon. The home agent of the county, Miss Bird Boswell, gives a canning demonstration each Monday at the plant which is under the general supervision of the vocational agriculture teacher. It is the practice of the home demonstration club women of the county to work together at their canning so that they may finish more quickly, since they drive many miles to the plant. Four families worked out a plan by which they worked four days, one day for each family. There is no charge made for the use of the canning equipment.

As much money from one cutting of a five-acre alfalfa patch as from 10 acres of wheat yielding 25 bushels per acre is the record made by Irwin Cole, Gray county farmer. He cut 3½ tons of good quality hay late in May from this demonstration field which is planted on the level with no side moisture running on to the field.

WOMAN FINDS MARKET FOR HOME CANNED CHICKEN

Levelland—"If my canned chicken trade continues, I will have to buy some poultry to meet it. I have about used all the culls from my flock," Mrs. R. E. Meadors, demonstrator in this commodity for the home demonstration club of Cobeland has reported to Miss Marie Tarwater, home agent of Hockley county. Mrs. Meadors standardized her canned chicken, using the process recommended by the extension home industries specialist, and has had her product approved to sell under the 4-H label, the only woman in Hockley county who has this right.

She says: "It doesn't take me so very long to can these chickens. I have dressed so many that I can dress six or seven hens in just a little while in the afternoon and then the next morning I start them cooking while I am cooking breakfast. I rather expect that I can dress, cook, prepare and can seven hens in not more than two hours' actual time. I have learned to do this work along with my other house work, so it is not so very much trouble."

In the last few weeks she has sold seven hens in 21 No. 1 cans and increased their value from $2 market price to $6.30. After the cost of the cans, labels, labor and market value of the poultry were deducted a profit of $2.92 was left.

Well fed hens in seven poultry demonstration flocks in Rockwall county produced an average of 18 eggs each in May at a feed cost of 5.45 cents per dozen. They sold at an average of about 14 cents per dozen.

HOGS BID HIGH FOR WHEAT ON LIPSCOMB COUNTY FARM

Lipscomb—Four meat hogs, five brood sows and 38 pigs have enabled L. G. Bussard of Lipscomb county to sell his wheat for more than $1 per bushel, reports W. K. Cottingame, county agent. Starting last September with 21,280 pounds of wheat, barley and kaffir, Mr. Bussard had sold $439.42 worth of hogs of April 20 last, butchered meat hogs worth $34.42 and has the five sows left. He used a sweet clover pasture in connection with his feeding business and added skim milk and 1,500 pounds of cottonseed meal to balance the ration.

Alternate rows of certified cotton and soy beans are doing remarkably well in a five-acre demonstration by J. C. Fisher of Overland community in Hopkins county. The 1930 crop was cotton which was followed by a winter cover crop of oats, barley, wheat, rye, hairy vetch and Australian winter peas. A good winter pasture was thus obtained and a good green manure crop turned under early this spring.

Sultain's Lenden, a registered cow in the demonstration herd of L. D. Singley of Rotan, produced 434 pounds of butterfat last year and made a profit above feed cost of $96.54. She was worth more than 12 such cows as Little Jersey, in the same herd who made $7.67 above feed cost. Little Jersey has gone to market, the county agent says.

In normal "life" of 50 years, a housewife is said to spend about 10 years in doing her household shopping.

CONTINUED USE OF POISON URGED IN MELON FIELDS

Continued use of nicotine arsenate is being urged in this county to prevent further depredations by the melon aphid. This pest has already caused damage to cantaloupes and is now reported to be very numerous in watermelon patches, the prospects for a good crop being seriously impaired. It also damages squash, cucumber and other vine plants.

The nicotine arsenate should be mixed with lime at the rate of one pound of poison to 19 of the lime. The mixing will be more thorough if gravel or small rocks are used with the mixture, so as to crush the small lumps of lime, and then screened out. The mixture should be dusted on the plants.

The cotton leaf worm, which nearly always makes its appearance in the irrigated valley's fields, has already shown up, and growers are urged to be on the lookout for it and to poison with a calcium arsenate spray as soon as the pest is discovered.

Web worms are reported doing some damage in local alfalfa fields.

Explanation of Last Sunday's Cartoon—Adam Could Not Have Counted to a Billion: According to Biblical chronology 5,690 years have elapsed since the creation of Adam. Counting at the rate of 200 to the minute, day and night, the first man would have reached number 598,132,800,000 by September of this year. Continuing at the same rate, the weary patriarch would not have attained his billion until the years 5753 of our area. Since Adam, were he alive today, would be an inhabitant of the old world, I felt constrained to use the term billion in the old world sense. North Americans understand a billion to be 1,000,000,000, but Adam would have called this figure a milliard, and would not consider to have counted a billion until he would have counted 1,000,000,000,000 in accordance with the system of notation employed by 94 per cent of the earth's inhabitants. In order to simplify the problem I used the solar year with 365 days as the basical unit for my calculations. Dave Tucker, Vice President of the Bank He Once Robbed: In 1894 Dave Tucker, accompanied by three desperadoes, held up the First Bank of Joseph, Ore., in broad daylight, and obtained less than $2,000. The robbers were caught before they could make their getaway, and Dave Tucker served a sentence of eight years in the state penitentiary at Salem, Ore. After paying his debt to society, Tucker became a respectable citizen and acquired a competence as a successful farmer and cattleman. Today he is looked up to by his fellow citizens, and among many positions of honor occupies that of vice president of the very bank he helped to rob 37 years ago.

Capital City Seemingly Lifeless Socially Speaking—Under Cover Is Mad Scramble of Activities

By GEORGINA WASHINGTON
Universal Service

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Socially this city is as lifeless these hot days as a last year's birdnest.

But behind the scenes, among those who cater to society and the official life of the capital there is a mad scramble of under-cover activity.

Beginning next month new members of the coming congress will begin to arrive along with those who were re-elected. There will be hundreds of new families taking up their residences in Washington and with them thousands of new clerks and secretaries.

Thus there is a stir among the costumers, designers, modistes, ritzy beauty shop experts and the staffs of swanky hotels and de luxe apartment houses.

Naturally, this army of newcomers will spend millions in Washington during the new congress. And just where it will be spent is a matter of no little concern in these trying times.

It is learned that one beauty shop establishment is considering opening a salon exclusive for the wives and daughters of cabinet members and senators.

This has been followed by plans of another beauty proprietor whose exclusive place is quite well known to open a beauty parlor for the wives of members of the house.

Meanwhile, the customers, and those who specialise in creating the latest things for milady are scanning their lists and planning personal appeals to those of the new set.

Few people outside of Washington realize the amount of money that is spent by Washington's official families during the congressional session.

The cast number of formal social functions, the White House receptions, dances and debutante parties for the younger set certainly cost money.

On top of that members of the senate and house are called upon to do a ceaseness merry-go-round of entertaining for out-of-town visitors.

Because of the upheavals during the last election the percentage of new members of congress coming to Washington this fall is greater than at any other time in recent years. Everybody is beginning to wonder just where these new families will make their home, whether in hotels, apartments or private residences. Certain it is that as soon as the vanguard reaches Washington the round of entertainment will begin.

BAYLOR TRUSTEES CALLED AUGUST 12 PICK PRESIDENT

WACO, Aug. 8. (AP)—Discussion of possible candidates for appointment as president of Baylor university, to succeed the late Dr. Samuel Palmer Brooks, was revived today after members of the board of trustees were called to meet Aug. 12 to choose a man for the position.

Former Gov. Pat M. Neff, member of the Texas Railroad commission, former president of the Baptist general convention of Texas, a trustee of Baylor and lifelong friend of Dr. Brooks, was among those prominently mentioned as possible appointees.

The board also was likely to consider Dr. W. S. Allen, acting president; Dr. T. D. Brooks, member of the university faculty; and Dr. W. B. Bizzell, president of Oklahoma university and former president of the Texas A. & M. college.

Dr. Allen, dean of the university, was named acting president after the death of Dr. Brooks, several months ago.

W. H. Jenkins, secretary of the board, yesterday advised members of the board of the meeting.

Baylor is the oldest institution of higher learning in Texas, having been founded while Texas still was a republic. Dr. Brooks served nearly 30 years as president.

DONATIONS PROVIDE AID FOR NEEDY IN WICHITA

Twenty needy families of Wichita Falls are now receiving food and other necessaries donated by local residents and distributed by a committee of which R. F. DeGraff is chairman, according to information given by Mr. DeGraff Saturday. Among items distributed have been 1,000 pounds of ice, 125 gallons of milk and 160 loaves of bread, according to the report.

Burglars Help to Settle Battle of Rowing Neighbors

CHICAGO, Aug. 8. (INS)—Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blackidge, former collector of internal revenue, and Mrs. Cora Rowe, who secured a warrant charging noisy parties at the Blackidge apartment, today had something in common.

While they were in court yesterday burglars entered their apartments and hauled away rugs, furs, jewels and clothing, valued at more than $2,500.

After Judge John J. Lupe dismissed the charges against Mrs. Blackidge, the principals in the case returned home to find their apartments looted.

Every Boy and Girl in Wichita Falls Invited to Participate in Children's Day Program Auditorium Lawn

Every child in the city of Wichita Falls is invited to participate in the children's day program to start at 9:15 on the morning of Friday, Aug. 14, on the west lawn of the Memorial auditorium, according to C. C. Bunnenberg, city park and playground superintendent, who is in charge of the program. The program is scheduled as follows:

8:30-9:30—Competition strictly between winners of the various playground tournaments, washers, horseshoes, croquet, checkers, dominoes and other games.

9:30-10:00—Concert by Leo Underwood's band.

10:00-10:30—Short talks by H. D. Fillers, superintendent, and Mayor Walter Nelson Jr., of Wichita Falls.

10:30-11:50—Competitive games for all children of the city.

12:00—Close by singing "America."

Mr. Bunnenberg's report stated that the following games would furnish competition: Pillow fight, blind jumpers, leg wrestle, rooster fight, blind boxing, cracker and whistle, Indian wrestlers, stick candy stunt, wiener stunt, ice-holding contest, operation, funnel act, sock-em, and prize fights. The contestants will be instructed before each game.

President's Message

President Herbert Hoover, in a message to the boys and girls of America, proclaimed Aug. 14 as national children's day. He fully approves the program of the National Recreation association. The president's message follows:

"To the Boys and Girls of America:

"Two and a half million of you are playing today in the playgrounds or nearly a thousand cities. Your elders rejoice with you in your fun and freckles, your sports and games, and all that goes into making you happy and healthy boys and girls. Your zest in life is a precious possession and your laughter makes a joyous chorus throughout the land.

Thousands of devoted men and women under the leadership of the National Recreation association have labored for a quarter of a century to provide the playgrounds which you enjoy. We rejoice with you and with them in this boon to the boyhood and girlhood of our country.

"Yours faithfully,
"Herbert Hoover."

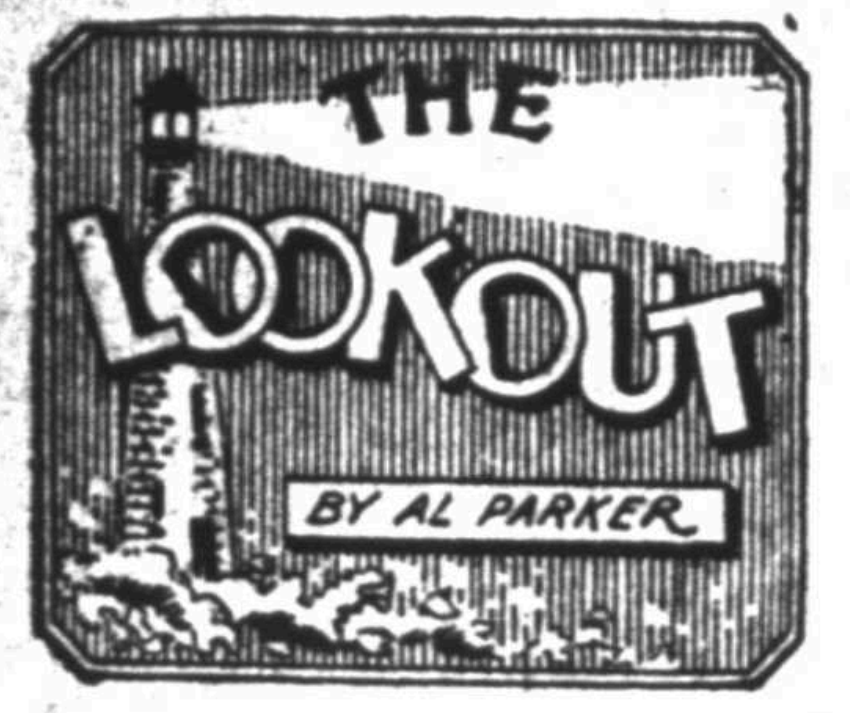
BRADBURY'S HOMER GIVES SPUDDERS EVEN BREAK IN TWIN



In the passing of Milt Steengrafe, Wichita Falls loses its final reminder of that great Spudder club of 1927. He was the last to go of the active players. Skipper Carl Williams still is around, but Carl was not an active player that season nor any other since 1926. It was Steengrafe who pitched the final game of the Dixie series at New Orleans. Throughout the season Williams had alternated five pitchers, often going days without a change. Herb Cobb was the No. 6 pitcher on that staff, and he didn't get to work often enough even to keep in condition. Fussell, Estell and Payne had won the first three games of the series and the starting assignment in the fourth rested between Steengrafe and Joe Kiefer. Carl had no good method of choosing between the two. One had been just as successful as the other through the season, and none knew for sure—not even Carl—who would pitch that last game until it came time to warm up. Steengrafe finally got the nod and he beat Dave Danforth, 4 to 2, to bring the series to a sudden close—the first and only time that the Dixie classic has been won in straight games. Kiefer's disappointment in not getting to start one of the series games ruined his pitching days, so far as the Spudders are concerned. He probably still harbors a grudge against the club for not getting a start in the series.

The last few years Steengrafe has become the Jekyll and Hyde of the Texas league. We have never known among the playing gentry a better fellow off the field than Steengrafe; nor the possessor of a nastier disposition on the field. The last two years he has become the bane of existence of the ball and strike umpires. There is no doubt but that his style of pitching is the toughest of all for the arbiter to call correctly, and the umps missed 'em sometimes when Milt was on the firing line, but not nearly so often as the pitcher claimed. The umps are accustomed to having their decisions questioned by the pitchers, and possibly the league has known pitchers who kicked as often as Milt. But hardly one who did as nasty a job of it. Whenever Steengrafe voiced his displeasure with hizzoner's decisions, every fan in the grandstand knew about it. That's the part that finally got the curver in so deep with the umpires. They don't like the idea of pitchers trying to show them up in the eyes of the fans. If Steengrafe was not getting quite all that was coming to him on balls and strikes in his final Texas league games, we say it was all his own fault. He made life so miserable for the umps they might be excused for handing it back to him in a way that hurt the most.

Fans here were fairly well divided on the capabilities of the coffee magnate from California, but for the past two seasons he steadily lost prestige with the customers, and we are quite certain that his knowledge of that condition had much to do with his inability to get going this season. We always have held that Steengrafe is a fine class A pitcher and still stick to our guns. We haven't weakened a nickel's worth. But we believe he was through in Wichita Falls; that he never again could return to winning form here. Ol' Milt simply had been around too long. The fans had watched him so long they had grown weary, and we are quite sure that all of us in the stands were just as much an eyesore to him. We believe the Memphis club is going to have an A-1 pitcher in this bird. He'll be even better if he goes into the new league with a determination to leave the umpires alone and attend strictly to his knitting.

And believe it or not, there's not an umpire in the league who hasn't kind words for the big fellow. They'll all tell you that he's a great guy until he gets to pitching; then it is quite a different story. It may not be years until you'll be watching Steengrafe call balls and strikes in the Texas league—not from the pitcher's mound as of old, but from a vantage point behind mask and protectors! Already he is talking of going into the business of umpiring. He has had a bit of experience—we don't mean the kind he has obtained by calling his own deliveries—in winter league games in California, and he really intends to make a business of it some day. He has umpired in this league quite often when one of the officials was sick or absent from some other cause. According to Prexy Gardner's standards of measurements, he ought to make a good one, too, for Gardner's belief is that the experienced player who really wants to make a good umpire can do it. Steengrafe comes under that classification.

It has been many a season since a South Texas club has humiliated the northern sector as did the Houston Buffs in their march that ended Friday with 11 victories and a lone defeat. This South Texas domination is not entirely new, for it wasn't so far back that the Houston club won a half championship and then whipped the Spudders in the playoff for the pennant. It is something entirely new for a South Texas outfit to bowl over the North Texas entries as did the Buffs. It is unusual for any club in any league under any circumstances to win 11 out of 12 on a road trip. The big three of the Houston pitching staff, Dean, Payne and Carleton, were largely responsible for the successful invasion, but they didn't do it without some help from the best attack the team has produced this season. The Buffs now are second only to the Spudders in team batting and that is a considerably higher rating than they held when they left home. Old Earl Smith has added a bit of punch, but the boisterous clouting of the youngster Medwick was the big noise of the road trip.

Fitz and Red Hit For Extra Bases To Decide Opener

Howard Fitzgerald and Red Bennett came back to Athletic park Saturday and combined their swatting talents to whip the Spudders in the opener of a double-header, 4 to 3, but their best efforts were not enough to offset Art Bradbury's one lusty wallop and Bob Cooney's near perfect pitching in the nightcap. The Spudders won the short game from the Panthers, 1 to 0, to gain an even break in the double bill that ended activities at Athletic park until Aug. 27.

The two clubs move to Fort Worth Sunday for a scheduled double-header.

Both contests Saturday were bristling mound duels, with each of a quartet of chunkers bearing up nobly. Dick McCabe bested Ash Hillin in the opener when Fitzgerald and Bennett re-enacted an old scene by doubling and homering, respectively, in the sixth inning for the tying and winning runs. Hillin allowed only six hits, half of which went to Fitz and Red, while McCabe was giving out nine, but the old boy was just as foxy as ever in the pinches and left nine Spudders stranded on the baselines.

Brad Saves Day

But for Bradbury's home run drive in the fifth inning of the second game, the battle between Cooney and Leon Chagnon might still be raging, for the one blow produced the only thing in the game resembling a run. It represented the only runner in the entire game getting as far as second base. Both Cooney and Chagnon allowed three hits and walked only one and each permitted only four men to reach the bases. Cooney received some important assistance from Art Scharein at short, but all in all, it was strictly a pitchers' affair, and except for Bradbury, the heavy swingers of both clubs were wasting their time.

Few double headers have been played at Athletic park with the speed of Saturday's. The first game required one hour and 34 minutes and the second one minute less than an hour, the latter probably ranking as the season's fastest Texas league game.

The Cats had a chance in the first inning of the first game when Hillin walked Frey and Fitzgerald, but Dalrymple sacrificed and Bennett and Brown popped out. McCabe disposed of the first three Spudders on outfield flies.

Hillin put the Cats away in order in the next two rounds and the home club took a one-run lead in the third. Scharein singled and scooted to third on Euller's single, scoring as Hillin was forcing Euller. Gerken reached first on Baker's bobble, but Allday and Stanton failed to deliver.

Lead Changes Hands

The lead lasted only until the Cats came up in the fourth to score two. Fitzgerald singled past second, advanced twice on a passed ball and Bennett's out and scored on Brown's double off the center field fence. Baker singled to center, counting Brown. Hungling squared it again by riding one out of the park in the home half. Fuss singled and Scharein was hit by a pitched ball, but McCabe quickly pitched out of that one by retiring Euller and Hillin.

Three Panthers went down in order in the fifth and the Spudders picked up an unearned run to take a 3 to 2 lead. Gerken doubled to center and scored after Allday and Stanton had gone out when Dalrymple failed to handle Badgro's roller.

The former Spudder combination delivered in the sixth to reverse the lead to 4 to 3 for the invaders. It looked like old times when Fitzgerald doubled to right and Bennett nonchalantly poled one over the left center field fence. McCabe stopped the scoring in the sixth, though Fuss opened with a double off the scoreboard.

Fort Worth passed up a chance almost as good in the seventh when Frey reached first on Euller's error. Fitz and Red both flied to Gerken this time. The Spudders also winked at opportunity, Gerken progressing no farther than second after opening with a single. Brown started the eighth the same way and the hit likewise meant nothing. Scharein singled and stole after two were out, but Fitzgerald braced his shoulder blades against the center field fence to take Euller's long drive.

The Cats failed to land on first in the ninth and the Spudders again failed to register after getting the first man on. Bradbury, hitting for Hillin, singled and Gerken sacrificed, but Allday and Stanton were retired for the final outs.

Real Mound Duel

Dalrymple's pop single was the only riffle for either club in the first inning of the second game and it was erased in a double play on Fitzgerald, Cooney to Scharein to Stanton. The pitchers were in even better command in the second, neither club getting a runner on base.

Engle singled to start the third, but Krauss bunted into a double play. Euller's single with one out in the home half was just as harmless, the infield taking care of Cooney and Gerken.

Only three Panthers faced Cooney in the fourth and Chagnon just as easily disposed of the same number of Spudders. Scharein threw out all three of the Cats in the fifth, coming up with a dandy play on Brown's sizzler. Bradbury's homer over the left field fence broke the ice in the fifth and was good for a victory. Euller walked after two were out and was forced by Cooney.

Cooney issued his firest pass to Krauss with one away in the sixth and he was left when Chagnon and Frey sent up short flies. Stanton singled after two were out and perished stealing.

Dairymple and Fitzgerald popped to Euller in the seventh. Bennett singled past second and Brown rolled out, Scharein to Stanton, to end it.

HELEN WILLS MOODY AND HELEN JACOBS LEAD U. S. VICTORY IN CUP MATCH

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 8. (AP)—The conquering Helens of California, Mrs. Moody and Miss Jacobs, swept aside the last British tennis hopes Saturday as the United States regained possession of the Wightman cup, emblematic of the international women's tennis championship, and filled appropriately for the occasion with American beauty roses.

The undisputed world queen of the courts, Mrs. Moody completed the American clean sweep of the five singles matches by trouncing Betty Nuthall, 6-4, 6-2, after Miss Jacobs had clinched the cup battle by vanquishing Phyllis Mudford, also by scores of 6-4, 6-2.

It was just as well the Americans held the balance of singles power because the British captured the two doubles matches concluding the two-day series. This made the final score 5-2 in America's favor and represented the most decisive victory for either nation since 1927. It was the fifth cup triumph for the United States, against four for England since 1923.

Mrs. Dorothy Shepperd Barron, captain of the invading team, paired with Phyllis Mudford to defeat little Sarah Ualfrey and Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman of Boston, the donor of the trophy and American captain. The scores were 6-1, 10-8.

The dashing team of Miss Nuthall and Eileen Bennett Whittingstall, scored the second British point by conquering Mrs. Moody and Mrs. Anna Harper, the California pair, in three sparkling sets, 8-6, 5-7, 6-3.

MORFAIR VICTOR IN U. S. HOTEL STAKES

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 8. (AP)—Morfair, a son of Morvich, carrying the silks of Victor Emanuel's Dorwood stable, Saturday won the United States Hotel stakes—first of the important 2-year-old stakes to be decided at the Saratoga meeting. W. R. Coe's Osculator finished a half-length back in second place with the Loma stable's Tick on third. Twelve started with Morfair quoted at 7 to 2.

Under the guidance of F. Munden, Morfair raced in second place to the final furlong pole and then went out in front to win going away. He reeled off the six furlongs in the fast time of 1:11 4-5. The race, which was won by Jamestown last year, was worth $11,850 to the Dorwood stable.

SUN BEAU DEEFATED IN HAWTHORNE RACE

Sun Beau, weighted down with 131 pounds on his back, was defeated by a length and half in the fifth running of the $25,000 added Hawthorne handicap by Plucky Play, owned by Norman W. Church Los Angeles. Paul Bunyan was third in the field of seven, four lengths behind the staggering and floundering Sun Beau.

Plucky Play ran the mile and an eighth in 1:49 2-5, to equal the track record held by Karl Eitel.

BEAUMONT, Aug. 8. (AP)—Warming up for his appearance Wednesday night against Houston in the fourth game of the playoff series, John Whitlow Wyatt took time out here Saturday afternoon to limit the Galveston Buccaneers to four scattered singles while pitching and batting the Exporters to a 5 to 1 victory in the first of a two-day three-tilt series with the Pirates. GEORGE LOTT CONQUERS SUTTER IN TITLE MATCH

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 8. (AP)—After two previous unsuccessful attempts to snare the championship, George M. Lott Jr., Philadelphia, won the singles title of the Meadow club's annual invitation tennis tournament Saturday by defeating Clifford Sutter, New Orleans, in the final round, 6-3, 3-6, 2-6, 6-3, 6-1.

The California team of Ellsworth Vines Jr., Pasadena, and Keith Gledhill, Santa Barbara, won the doubles final from Gregory S. Mangin, Newark, N. J., and Berkeley Bell, New York, 17-15, 6-2, 6-4.

The gallery of 4,000 saw the matches.

Vines shared in the mixed doubles championship. He and his partner, Frances Weeks of Easthampton, defeating Norma Taubele New York, and Eugene McCauliff, Yonkers, N. Y., 7-5, 5-7, 7-5.

SECRETARY JAHNCKE IN FAVOR ARMY-NAVY GAME

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (AP)—Acting Secretary Jahncke of the navy said Saturday that he personally favored a resumption of football relations between the Army and Navy as soon as possible.

He indicated no intention, however, of attempting to force the hand of Naval academy officials to bring it about.

"I feel that if the decision were left to a vote with the midshipmen and the cadets a game would be scheduled next year," he said, adding there should be no more "quibbling over rules."

Radcliff Takes Over League Hitting Lead

While the Houston Buffs were following the even tenor of their winning way last week, individual averages were experiencing a decided shakeup. The Texas league acquired a new batting leader in Ray Radcliff of Shreveport, whose consistent stick work took him to .356, while Buck Stanton, Wichita Falls, slumped to .350, a change that more than compensated for the Sports' loss of position among leading run drivers. Wichita Falls took the lead in home runs, held for most of the season by Shreveport, and this in spite of the Spudders' losing week. Lil Stoner lost his leadership of the pitching averages to his teammate, McCabe.

Texas league leaders: Batting—Radcliff, Shreveport, .356; Stanton, Wichita Falls, .350; Frey, Fort Worth, .346. Runs—Selph, Houston, 94; White, Beaumont, 88; Hock, Houston, 86. Hits—Stanton, Wichita Falls, 168; Stebbins, San Antonio, 157; Hock, Houston, 150. Doubles, Stanton, Wichita Falls, 45; Medwick, Houston, 38; Brown, Fort Worth, 32. Triples—White, Beaumont, 16; Fritz, Beaumont, 15; Flaskamper, San Antonio, and Garms, Wichita Falls, 12. Home runs—Gullic, Wichita Falls, 17; Solters, Shreveport, 14; Medwick, Houston, 13. Runs batted in—Medwick, Houston, 88; Brown, Fort Worth, 80; Fritz, Beaumont, and Stanton, Wichita Falls, 75. Stolen bases—White, Beaumont, 42; Hock, Houston, 27; Schuble, Beaumont, and Nash, San Antonio, 25.

McCabe, Fort Worth, tops the pitching averages with .810, with Stoner, Cromer and Wyatt in close pursuit. Other leaders: Games, Payne, Houston, 37; innings pitched, Payne, Houston, 227; complete games, Harris, Fort Worth, 22; control, McCabe, Fort Worth, 29 passes, in 224 innings; strike outs, Dean, Houston, 200; Carleton, Houston, 164; games won, Dean, Houston, 21.

Wichita Falls and Beaumont now divide all of the club honors, the former leading in batting, hits, doubles, homers and runs driven in, the latter in runs, triples and stolen bases.

The records of pitchers still in the league credited with victory or defeat, individual batting and club averages through the day game of Thursday, Aug. 6, follow:

Yankees 3, Athletics 2

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (AP)—The crippled Athletics, forced to use rookies in three positions, were defeated again today, 3 to 2, as Rufus (the Red) Ruffing, Yankee righthander, bested big George Earnshaw in a brilliant mound duel.

Earnshaw, seeking his 18th victory of the year, instead caught his sixth licking as his mates collected only four hits off Ruffing, who struck out eight batters and was invincible in all but one inning. Some 25,000 customers witnessed today's tussle. Score:

Senators' Relief Star Makes Good In Starting Role

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (AP)—Bobby Burke, an in-and-outer with Washington for four years, pitched himself into baseball's immortal's group today with a no hit, no run game against Boston.

The tall, slender southpaw who has been doing relief duty for a month, made it look easy as the Senators won 5 to 0. There was no error behind and most of the chances he made his support take were of the mild variety.

Burke put five men on base through walks and frequently had himself in trouble with the batters working the count to two strikes and three balls, but it was either a walk or an easy out when he finished with the man at the plate. He struck out eight of the Red Sox.

NEGRO TEAMS TO PLAY SUNDAY AT FAIRGROUNDS

The Wichita Falls Black Aces negro baseball team made up largely of Booker T. Washington High school players, is to take on one of its strongest rivals Sunday at 3 o'clock at the fairgrounds. The Aces' foes will be the Black Sluggers from Vernon.

The Wichita Falls team boasts an enviable record for the season's play, having lost but two games.

Wichitans Figure In Division Glen Garden's Honors

Bob Peck Wins Second Flight With Bobby Burns Victorious in Third

FORT WORTH, Aug. 8. (AP)—Dropping a 25-foot, downhill putt on the 38th green for a birdie three, Gus Moreland, the state champion, won the title of the second annual invitation of the Glen Garden Country club here Saturday, defeating Byron Nelson, the defending champion, one up. Moreland won after one of the greatest battles ever seen in Texas. The crowd of 3,000 persons crowded the fairways.

The match was forced into extra holes when Moreland, dormie two, won the last two holes. He squared the match on the 36th with a par three when Nelson, who had driven the green, three-putted from 20 feet.

Wichitans Win

Bob Peck of Wichita Falls was the winner of the second flight when he defeated James Parr, Electra, 4 and 3, in the finals. L. T. "Bobby" Burns, Wichita Falls, runnerup this year in the West Texas tourney, was the third flight winner, defeating Harry Gwinnup, of Fort Worth, 3 and 2. F. R. Harvey, Fort Worth, was the fourth flight champion, beating Fred Porter, also of Fort Worth, one up.

In the first flight consolations, Walter Emery, Duncan, Okla., defeated Dennis Lavender, former state champion, one up, for the title. F. Pipes, Dallas, won the second flight consolation from Royal Hogan, Fort Worth, 2 and 1, and W. J. Rieker, Fort Worth, grabbed the third consolation, 4 and 3, from Byron Williams, Fort Worth. O. L. Hoers, Fort Worth, took the fourth consolation by defeating Scott Teel, Fort Worth, one up.

Public Links Champ

KELLER CLUB, ST. PAUL, Aug. 8. (AP)—Charlie Ferrera, who drives steel rivets in San Francisco skyscrapers during the day and golf balls during his off hours, Saturday captured the national public links championship by crushing 15-year-old Joe Nichols, Long Beach, 5 and 4, in their California finals struggle for the crown.

The stamina that made Ferrera a good handler of steel, carried him over the top in his struggle for the highest prized title of America's public fee courses. While his younger, smaller and weaker opponent wilted under effects of the five-day campaign, Ferrara played with as much calm and composure as if he were doing just another job on a 40-story building.

The result gave the tournament an all San Francisco complex as its four-man team also captured the Warren G. Harding team trophy during the 36-hole qualifying round.

The only glory to escape the San Francisco golfers was the medal, which Dave Mitchell, Indianapolis, won with 148 strokes. But it was Ferrara who dropped Mitchell out of the championship competition in the first round, 4 and 3.

Their medal scores were not so far apart Saturday, Ferrara going 10 shots over par for the 32-hole stretch and Nichols going 18 over.

AMERICANS WIN TRACK MEET IN SOUTH AFRICA

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa, Aug. 8. (AP)—Barney Berlinger of the Penn A. C. and Walter Marty of the Olympic club, San Francisco, led a touring American track and field team to a decisive victory over a picked South African squad Saturday.

The Americans won 11 of the 12 events of the program, broke one South African record and tied another.

Berlinger won three events, the discus throw, shot put and pole vault. He set up a new South African standard of 132 feet, two inches for the discus throw; cleared 12 feet, 6 inches in the pole vault and put the shot 46 feet, two inches.

Marty was a double winner, capturing the high jump at six feet, three-fourth inches to tie the South African record, and the broad jump with a leap of 22 feet, 1½ inches.

BASEBALL BOYS TO BE GUESTS SWIM PARTY

All boys who are playing baseball under the supervision of the city park department will be given a free swim at Westmoreland pool Tuesday, through the courtesy of Otto Lazenby, manager, it was announced Saturday. Those who do not have transportation to the pool are asked to meet at the Memorial auditorium at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Lazenby has planned a number of events such as water polo, and swimming races to entertain the guests. About 40 life guards will be on the scene to take care of the crowd of from 300 to 400 boys expected to be present.

REPORT OF SCHMELING'S CONDITION REACHES U. S.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (AP)—A report of two German physicians to the boxing board of Deutschland, official governing body of boxing in Germany, in which they say Max Schmeling's injured eye will not allow of training or boxing for "a long time" has been received in the United States.

HAPP MORSE SIGNED AS DALLAS 1932 SKIPPER

DALLAS, Aug. 8. (AP)—President Sol Dreyfus of the Dallas Steers Saturday announced the signing of Happ Morse, manager of the Steers, to pilot the club again next year.

Morse is the first Dallas manager to succeed himself in four years.

In order to celebrate the signing of Morse for a second term as Dallas manager, next Monday night will be "Morse night" at Steer stadium when the locals will play the Fort Worth Cats.

McCarty in Semifinals Big Spring Tourney

BIG SPRING, Texas, Aug. 8. (AP)—A new contender for the West Texas tennis tourney singles title made his bow Saturday when Tom McCarty of Wichita Falls eliminated both of his townsmen, Charles Cook and Raymond McPhail, to fight his way to the semifinals.

McCarty is billed to meet Ed Bebb, another of Wichita Falls' contributions to the makeup of the 1931 West Texas all-star cast, for the right to play Ferguson of Midland, in the final match Sunday afternoon.

McCarty won from Bishop, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4, to advance to the semifinal founds. Finals will be played Sunday.

McCarty's win over Cook was not so startling as his triumph over McPhail. After dropping the first set to McPhail, McCarty staged a strong comeback to sweep the next two sets, 6-4, 6-3.

Bebb of Wichita Falls was forced to exert himself to win from Clark of Sweetwater, 5-7, 6-2, 7-5.

Bishop of Big Spring forced Ferguson of Midland to the limit before he won.

Cook and McPhail of Wichita Falls will tangle with Ballard and Lowe of Abilene for the doubles championship of the tournament. The Wichita Falls team eliminated Bishop and McCarty of Big Spring, 11-9, 6-3, to go to the finals.

Sunday Final Day For Qualifying in Club Tournament

Bob Peck Leads Field Thus Far With Score of 78; Burns Is Next

Bob Pack and L. T. "Bobby" Burns, both of whom were competing this week in the Glen Garden Country club invitation golf tournament at Fort Worth, are leading the qualifiers in the annual Wichita Falls Golf and Country club championship tournament. The qualifying round was started a week ago and Peck's 78 and Burns' 82 has withstood the attacks of 40 other players during the week.

Sunday is the final day for qualifying, according to announcement of Professional Phil Hesler, and pairings will be made Sunday night, with match competition swinging under way Monday. Hesler expects the field to be almost doubled by Sunday's entries.

An entry fee of 50 cents is being charged and as many flights will be arranged as necessary to care for all entries. Early rounds will be of 18 holes, with the final scheduled over the 36-hole route.

NOTED CHECKERS EXPERT SLATED HERE THURSDAY IN EXHIBITION MATCHES

Willie Ryan of New York, one of the most noted checkers players in the United States, is scheduled in a series of exhibition matches Thursday afternoon and evening at Marshall's and John's amusement parlor, 812 Scott avenue, it was announced Saturday by Marshall Franklin.

One of Ryan's stunts is playing six expert players simultaneously while blindfolded. Jeff Clayton of Marlow, Okla., one of this section's leading players, is to compete with the professional both Thursday afternoon and evening. The public is invited to attend the exhibitions.

FEATHERSTON TO JUDGE HORSE SHOW SCHEDULED THIS WEEK AT AMARILLO

C. H. Featherston, Wichita Falls polo player and horse enthusiast, has been selected to judge the annual midsummer horseshow to be held at Amarillo next Friday and Saturday, according to announcement from Amarillo.

Featherston, who has become one of West Texas' most prominent horsemen, is to judge all classes. Entries are expected to number more than 20.

COAST PITCHERS SHOW CLASS UNDER LIGHTS

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1. (AP)—Night baseball may or may not be responsible, but three of the outstanding pitching performances in the Pacific Coast league this season have been made under the arc lights. All three were turned in within the space of a week.

Willie Ludolph of Oakland twirled a no hit, no run game; Elmer Jacobs of San Francisco turned in a no run, one hit contest and Malcom Moss of Los Angeles allowed no hits and one run.

GIRLS' BASEBALL NINE SCHEDULED IN SUNDAY GAME AT BURKBURNETT

The first appearance of a women's baseball team in this section in several seasons is scheduled Sunday at Burkburnett when the Goldsmith D. & M. Girls of Wichita, Kan., play the Burkburnett town team in a game starting at 3 o'clock at Shamburger park.

Promoters of the game declare the Wichita team one of the most efficient feminine nines ever assembled, and one that will prove capable of putting on a real contest.

The Wichita team is making a barnstorming tour of the country that will carry it over approximately 10,000 miles of traveling.

Sullivan Grocery Team Goes After Seventh Victory

By MACK TURNER

Sullivan Grocery company will be out in full strength Sunday afternoon on Jalonic street diamond No. 1 to cinch the last half flag in the City league race and keep its record untarnished. The grocerymen have only the Modern Woodmen to beat to be in with the last half championship and it is the dream and ambition of the hustling little nine to finish the last half without a defeat. They are getting well along with that, too, having won six games without a loss since the season was sliced into halves.

The game was first scheduled for Katy park as the second game of a double-header, but the plans were changed early Saturday. It was learned then that the grocerymen would have two players who would have to be back on their jobs early. An effort was made to get the game played as the first game, but was unsuccessful, so the big contest of the day was moved to the Jalonic street diamond.

O'Dell McDuffy, recently transferred back to the Woodmen from the Booster club, is the only hope for the Woodmen to gain a victory over the Sullivan nine. Steve "Iron Man" Franklin or Flip Hoskins is slated to hurl for the league leaders in this game. The fast stepping Sullivan crew has improved in the last half with great rapidity, while the Woodmen have strengthened their club with the addition of McDuffy and Wesley Thompson in the hopes of obtaining their first win of the year from the Sullivan team.

Star Transfer company will meet the I. O. Boosters at Katy Park in a single game. Gabe Harris is likely to pitch for the transfer nine with the Booster pitcher unknown. Star Transfer has been playing in hard luck of late, but hopes to break loose from their slump Sunday.

With the rapid approach of the state playoff series with the Dallas city champions, interest in the City league has grown by leaps and bounds and a heavy sale of playoff tickets is expected. The ticket sale was opened Thursday with the early demand for tickets showing much promise for huge crowds at Katy park Aug. 29-30.

TWILIGHT LEAGUE GOES INTO SECOND WEEK OF LAST HALF FLAG RACE

With another heated race expected in the Twilight league, the second week of the last half schedule gets under way Sunday with five games on the card. The league is starting the second half race with but one change in its makeup. The fast stepping Meyers Grocery team has taken the place of the Sibley Street Loafers. The first half champions, the Northsiders, Meyers Grocery, Northwest Motors and Wichita Poster got away to a flying start in their first two games by registering a pair of victories each.

One of the winners must fall Sunday afternoon when Meyers Grocery and Northside meet on Scott street No. 1. Northwest Motors meet Tarry on the Jalonic street No. 2. Wichita Poster and Katy tangle on the Katy diamond. Taxman plays Panhandle on Scott No. 2 while the Denver-Smootch store game scheduled for Uncle Jo may be moved to Jalonic No. 1.

Tuesday Meyers Grocery takes on Sparky Ford's hustling little Wichita Poster nine in the feature game on Jalonic No. 2 Panhandle and Smootch play on Jalonic No. 1. Northwest Motors and Taxman play on Scott No. 1. Nortside plays Denver on Scott No. 2 while Katy and Tarry meet on the Katy diamond.

The feature game for Thursday is the Northwest Motors and Northside game scheduled for Katy diamond. Wichita Poster and Taxman play on Scott No. 1 while Meyers Grocery and Denver play on Scott No. 2. Panhandle and Tarry Transfer play on Jalonic No. 1 with Smootch and Katy playing on Jalonic No. 2.

The Twilight league is planning at present to assist the City league in every way possible with the state playoff with Dallas and plans are being made to postpone their games of Sunday, Aug. 30, to allow the fans and players to attend the Wichita Falls-Dallas playoff.

INDIANAPOLIS INDIANS BUY QUARTET PLAYERS FROM OKLAHOMA CITY

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 8. (INS)—One of the biggest baseball deals of the year by a minor league club was announced by Norman A. Perry, owner and president of the Indianapolis American association club, here Saturday.

Perry said that he has bought outright four star players now with the Oklahoma City team of the Western league from John Holland, president and owner of the Oklahoma organization. The consideration was not announced.

Perry, realizing the pitching weakness of his team, which nevertheless, through hard hitting, is tied for second place in the American association, is seeking to build a championship club in 1932 by bolstering the mound division, he indicated.

The Indians soon will have a new $350,000 stadium.

ANDERSON RETURNS TO WORK AT NOTRE DAME

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Aug. 8. (AP)—Hunk Anderson, senior football coach at Notre Dame, returned to South Bend Saturday after a two months battle to regain his health at Rochester, Minn. The successor to Knute Rockney will open Notre Dame's coaching school Monday.

HUNGARY DECLARES DEBT MORATORIUM TO AVOID CRISIS

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Aug. 8. (US)—The financial crisis in Hungary caused the government today to declare a moratorium on all foreign debts.

The government's decree prohibits exportation of Hungarian or foreign money, gold and jewelry, and forbids the purchase of foreign exchange and the incurring of foreign obligations.

A minimum sentence of two months in prison is fixed for persons convicted of attempting to send or take money or valuables from the country.

In the decree, the government asked the country to increase bank deposits as a means of keeping a liquid monetary circulation, and asked them to maintain calm.

It is understood the government is planning a forced national loan of $35,000,000 by levying a single-payment property tax for immediate payment.

The moratorium came as a surprise. Only a week ago, Premier Von Bethlen announced central banks, with the exception of the Bank of England, had agreed to loan Hungary $35,000,000.

France, on certain political guarantees by Hungary, had agreed to subscribe 40 per cent of the loan, it was said at that time.

Marlene Dietrich Ready to Fight Two Complaints

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 8. (US)—Marlene Dietrich, exotic figure in the film world, her husband, Rudolf Sieber, and Josef von Sternberg, motion picture director, stood shoulder to shoulder today to combat charges made by Mrs. Von Sternberg that Miss Dietrich had stolen Von Sternberg's love.

Branding the charges as "absurd, false and unwarranted," Miss Deitrich issued a formal statement after a lengthy conference with her attorneys.

"How ridiculous, unfair and unjustified these suits are," she declared, "will be fully demonstrated at their trial, if they ever do come to trial."

The suits referred to are two complaints filed against her in New York by Mrs. Von Sternberg, in one of which she is accused of libel and the other of alienating Von Sternberg's affections.

Existence of the two complaints was disclosed yesterday when Mrs. Von Sternberg had Von Sternberg before Superior Judge Lester Roth for contempt of court because of his alleged failure to keep up his alimony payments.

"I had just landed at New York on April 17," Miss Dietrich said, "when I was served with papers in two law suits which Mrs. Von Sternberg had commenced against me.

"Those papers, although nearly four months have passed, have never been filed in New York courts.

"Instead, all I have heard since then have been suggestions that publicity could be avoided if these suits were settled, and I have steadfastly insisted that I would far prefer the publicity of these suits to the payment of a single penny on the absurd, false and unwarranted charges which are contained in the complaints in those suits."

Common Labor Union Gets Building At 605 Austin for Use as Commissary For Distributing Help to Needy Here

The use of a vacant building at 605 Austin has been granted to the Common Labor union here by J. C. Hunt to be used by them as a commissary from which food and other necessaries will be distributed to the needy unemployed of the city, according to an announcement here Saturday.

The announcement was made by a committee named at a mass meeting of unemployed on the lawn of the Memorial auditorium last Wednesday night. Another meeting has been called for next Wednesday night, when the committee's formal report will be made. The committeemen are O. B. Kelly, George Voss, Wirt Butcher, J. C. Brown and John Terrell.

Investigations by committeemen, they said, have disclosed that many families are without food and without prospect of employment until cotton picking begins, probably about the middle of September.

The committee's report, as made Saturday, follows:

"We, the undersigned committeemen of the Common Labor union, have investigated to some extent the condition of the unemployed among us and find it serious.

"Many have practically no food and no hope of employment until cotton opens about the middle of September. We have never seen so many with wornout clothing.

"We have secured a building, rent free, from Mr. J. C. Hunt at 605 Austin to be used as a commissary from which will be distributed without cost food, clothing and other available necessaries to those in need.

"We have reliable men and women who will assist in making certain that donations will be distributed only to the proper persons.

"We also have men who have trucks and are ready to go anywhere to get anything that may be given by any farmer, citizen or any one else.

"Any one who can donate anything is asked to telephone No. 2-3183, the Family Relief association, and we will send for it."

GERMAN STEAMER PICKS UP VICTIMS OF WRECKED SHIP

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 8. (US)—Eighty-seven passengers and the crew of the Munson liner Western World, aground since midnight on the treacherous Ponta do Boi rocks, were rescued and taken aboard the German steamship General Ozorio today.

The General Ozorio raced through heavy seas and blinding rain squalls to the American liner's aid immediately upon receiving the Western World's SOS signals at 1 a. m. (midnight, eastern daylight time.)

The master of the German steamship reported he was standing by the stricken vessel at 5:30 a. m., and at 11 a. m. (10 a. m., eastern daylight time) he flashed word that the rescue had been accomplished and that he was starting out for Rio de Janeiro, expecting to reach here tonight.

The General Ozorio left on its mission of mercy from Santos, Brazilian port, 60 miles south of the dangerous rocks on which the Western World crashed. Its arrival at the scene was delayed by the furious storm that swept the Western World around.

Heavy seas were pounding the American ship, but wireless advices from her master declared he hoped to keep her afloat by working her pumps.

The Ponta do Boi rocks form the greatest hazard to shipping along the Brazilian coast. They have caused the end of numerous ships in the past.

UNPAID COWBOYS STOP NEGROES' ATTEMPT TO MOVE 101 RANCH SHOW

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (UP)—Attempts to move the 101 Ranch Wild West show with local labor were defeated today by employes who refused to permit any work until they get their pay totaling more than $22,000.

Fred Olmstead, representative of Zack T. Miller, owner of the Oklahoma ranch, appeared at the grounds with 150 Washington negroes in taxicabs. He announced his intention of pulling down the tents and moving the show, stranded since Tuesday, back to Oklahoma.

Cowboys led by Jack Brown permitted the negroes to enter the lot, but towered over them, frowning and dared them to pull so much as one stake. The negroes took the hint and went back to town.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCE TO BE HELD SUNDAY AT ANDERSON A. M. E. CHAPEL

A quarterly conference and a platform union meeting Sunday afternoon will feature a series of services to be held during the day at Anderson chapel, A. M. E. church, 315 Park, according to C. S. Clark, the pastor.

Sunday school will be held at 9 o'clock, and R. S. Jenkins, presiding elder, will preach on the subject, "A Right Heart" at the morning service, which will begin at 11 a. m.

The quarterly conference and platform meeting in which negro churches of the city will join will start at 3:30 p. m. The pastor of St. John's Baptist church will preach.

Dempsey Loyd, 13 years old, who is conducting a revival at the church, will preach at the evening service starting at 8 o'clock.

LA FOLLETTE AND DEMO FORCES MAY UNITE WISCONSIN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (US)—An alliance between Democrats and La Follette forces in Wisconsin to seek election of a Progressive Republican to succeed the late Representative Henry Allen Cooper, Republican, was reported in the making today.

Democrats were said to have virtually abandoned hope of electing a Democrat from the first congressional district in southern Wisconsin.

Though Cooper was a La Follette Progressive and represented the district for over a quarter of a century, he had a strong personal following in what is regarded as a much more conservative area than other parts of Wisconsin.

His widow has announced herself as a candidate to succeed him. Maneuvers were said to be under way for a coalition of Progessive Republicans and Democrats to back her or some other candidate acceptable to the La Follette organization.

GANDHI WOULD PLACE PROFESSIONAL MEN ON SAME PAY AS LABORER

BOMBAY, India, Aug. 8. (AP)—If Mahatma Gandhi wins self-government for India, doctors, lawyers and other professional people will have to work as cheaply as the laboring man, he said today.

Appealing to Parsee business men to abandon the liquor trade and luxurious living and to adopt homespun clothing, he said:

"Under swaraj (independence) physicians now receiving $5 a visit will get only 10 cents, while lawyers now charging fees of $5,000 will have to be content with 50 cents. Once lawyers and doctors are cheaper living itself will be cheaper."

RUTH AND SIMMONS IN CLOSE FIGHT FOR LEAD AMERICAN HITTING RACE

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (UP)—With the pennant races in the two major leagues virtually decided, interest is shifting to the fight for batting honors between Babe Ruth and Al Simmons in the American league and between Virgil Davis and his numerous rivals for National league honors.

While any one of a score of players has a strong chance to take the National league crown, the American league fight is a duel between Simmons of the Athletics, the 1930 champion, and Ruth.

Ruth jumped into the league lead early in May and has been the leader in nine of the 14 weekly lists issued since May 7, never slipping below third place.

Simmons has been the leader in only one of the weekly lists, that of May 21, and has slipped to fifth on three occasions, but has been near the top at all times and for the past month has been runnerup to Ruth.

Statistics issued Saturday including games of last Thursday, show Ruth topping the American league with an average of .384, and Simmons in second place with a .382 percentage. Earl Webb of Boston is third with .366.

Virgil Davis, Phillies catcher, tops the National league at .352, closely followed by his teammate, Chuck Klein, and Charlie Grimm of Chicago, who are tied for second with .343; Hendricks of Cincinnati at .339; Terry of New York at .337, and O'Doul of Brooklyn at .334.

TROPHIES FOR ELECTRA GOLF TOURNEY ORDERED

ELECTRA, Texas, Aug. 8.—Russell Scheurer, G. R. Davidson and H. W. Myers, members of the trophy committee for the second annual invitation golf tournament of the Electra Country club, announce they have ordered the trophies and they will be placed on exhibit several days before the tournament, which is scheduled for Aug. 17-20.

HOOVER CONTINUES TO STUDY PROBLEM OF UNEMPLOYMENT

Predict Peak of 7,000,000 Unemployed Men Next January

Senator Hebert, Republican, of Rhode Island, was present to give him first hand details of a recent study of that subject in Europe made by him as chairman of the special senate committee appointed at the last session to inquire into its possibilities.

Senator Walcott, Republican, of Connecticut, and Wagner, Democrat, of New York, are the other members of the committee. It was appointed under a resolution introduced in the senate by Senator Wagner. No information was available from the camp as to the nature of Senator Hebert's findings.

The president before leaving the White House yesterday formally placed the administration on record as favoring the handling of unemployment relief next winter by local communities and states.

Problem Is Studied

For three weeks or more, he said, the administration has been studying the problem. Heads of various relief organizations, labor and business leaders have been summoned to the White House to lay before the chief executive their figures on unemployment and to make suggestions as to future actions.

John Barton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross; Silas Strawn, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce; Julius Barnes, chairman of the board of the chamber; Secretary Doak, and others have outlined their views.

Judge Payne said after his conference that the national Red Cross could not take part in unemployment relief under its charter but later said that local chapters could cooperate with other community organizations without violating either the charter or the spirit of the Red Cross.

Strawn said the chamber would submit a definite program of relief to the president before Sept. 1. He added that unless something definite was done before congress reassembles there would be a flood of legislation "seeking the dole such as Germany and England never heard of."

Federation President

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, has not conferred with the president within recent weeks but a number of his public statements have been made available to the White House. He estimated in his last statement that in January next year unemployment would reach a peak of 7,000,000 men.

He was accompanied by Henry M. Robinson of Los Angeles. Senator Hebert arrived in time for lunch today.

Other guests included E. T. Clark of Washington, former secretary of President Coolidge, and Mrs. Clark; Charles S. Groves, Washington correspondent of the Boston Globe, and Mrs. Groves; Paul Wooten, Washington newspaper man, and Mrs. Wooten; Mark Sullivan, writer; Walter Newton, one of the president's secretaries, and Mrs. Newton, and Capt. Joel Boone, the White House physician.

Broadcasting companies set up a special microphone in the living room of President Hoover's camp for an address tonight to the world meeting of the Y. M. C. A. in Cleveland.

Mayors Will Meet

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 8. (INS)—To place the problem of unemployment relief directly before the federal government and to demand relief from that source, a conference of mayors of the larger cities of the United States will be held in Washington early this fall.

Plans for the session were revealed today by Mayor William A. Anderson, who made public a letter received by him from Daniel Hoan, mayor of Milwaukee, in which the conference was proposed. Mayor Anderson gave his approval to the plan and wrote Mayor Hoan asking that as early a date as possible be fixed for the meeting.

Rev. J. E. Montgomery Deliver Sermon Sunday Night at Second of Union Church Services of Summer

The August Sunday night union services on the Memorial auditorium lawn will be continued, with the second service tonight.

Harry Hines will be the lay presiding officer for this service. Rev. J. E. Montgomery, new pastor of the Highland Heights Christian church, will be the preacher, with special musical numbers furnished by the same church. Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Shepherd are in charge of the congregational singsong. The Underwood band will give a 30-minute concert beginning at 7:45 p. m.

The Ministerial alliance promotes and sponsors this service. About 2,000 people attended the service last Sunday night. The public is invited to share in this program each of the Sunday nights in the month of August. In case of rain, the congregation will move into the auditorium, and the program will proceed as usual.

Fancy Molds

You can turn out the same dessert several days in one week and your family won't know it is the same if you invest in enough fancy molds to make individual shapes, and have enough garnishes on the pantry shelf to change the ensemble.

FIVE ESCAPE AFTER OVERPOWERING TURNKEY AT BARTLESVILLE JAIL

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., Aug. 8. (UP)—Three county and two federal prisoners who overpowered two jailers at the Washington county jail, confiscated keys and commandeered a freight elevator to the ground floor were still at liberty today.

The escape was effected as Night Jailer A. M. Cobb relieved Day Jailer Ben Mathews. Four of the prisoners disarmed Mathews while wrone carried Cobb, who thought Wrone was playing, to a call. A trusty gave the alarm as the prisoners dashed to freedom.

..like the icing on your cake

IT'S CAKE without the icing, but it's better cake when the icing is added. The better the cake, the more delectable it becomes with the finishing touch of the icing.

Just as good cake is made better by icing, so is good gasoline made better by the addition of Ethyl Fluid. It is true, that the better the regular gasoline, the more desirable it becomes with Ethyl Fluid.

Before the Ethyl Fluid is added CONOCO goes to extreme lengths to build quality into its gasoline. Three types of gasoline are expertly blended in balanced proportions . . . Straight-run Gasoline, Natural Gasoline and Cracked Gasoline. Each possesses certain characteristics highly desirable in a motor fuel.

The result is CONOCO Balanced Blend Gasoline, the peer of any regular gasoline the market affords. To this is added the Ethyl Fluid, creating an anti-knock fuel which brings improved performance under all conditions. CONOCO Ethyl is the economical gasoline.

RADIO-TELEVISION JOINT BROADCASTS PLANNED BY CHAIN

The Columbia Broadcasting system announced today that effective next Sunday, Aug. 9, a number of its regular features would be televised over W2XAB while synchronized in sound over WABC and the usual network outlets.

Because of television's present limitations, these broadcasts necessarily must be limited to groups not exceeding four or five persons. Such group presentations or single acts as are scheduled over the network will be considered for visual broadcasting as well.

Sunday, Aug. 9, Tony Parenti and his Singing Saxophones will be carried both by the network and over the visual channel. On Monday the Bon Bons will be scanned while broadcasting at 6:30 p. m., central standard time, and again on Tuesday at the same hour.

Radio listeners tuned to WABC and W2XAB will hear and see the Boswell Sisters at 6:45 p. m. Thursday in the same week, and on Friday at 7:45 p. m.

The Hernandez Brothers with Vincent Sorey will perform before the flying spot Friday at 7 p. m. while their sound synchronization is being carried over WABC and a large network.

HAMBLETONIAN STAKE TO BE BROADCAST BY COLUMBIA ANNOUNCER

Ted Husing will announce the richest horse-and-suky prize event in the world, when the Columbia Broadcasting system broadcasts the running of the $60,000 Hambletonian stake from Goshen, on Wednesday, Aug. 12.

The preliminary heats will be heard from 10:45 to 12:15 and from 2:45 to 1 p. m., central standard time. The final, which will see the leaders of the 35 entrants in action, will be run off and described between 1:45 and 2 p. m., central standard time.

Foreign Piano Team

A marked contrast in musical technique and style will be illustrated by Fray and Braggiotti, Franco-Italian piano team, when they offer their current variations on the theme of "Yankee Doodle" in the manner of Scarlatti, 16th century Italian composer, and the manner of George Gershwin, American exponent of modern and classical jazz, during their broadcast from 5:15 to 5:30 p. m., central standard time, on Sunday, Aug. 9, over the WABC-Columbia network.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 9 (Central Standard Time)

America's two greatest laugh makers are united for the first time in Mark Twain's "A Connecticut Yankee" in which Will Rogers is starred by Fox film.

Mark Twain, one of the world's greatest humorists in his day, has his modern counterpart in Rogers, who ranks as the greatest living American humorist and comedian.

"A Connecticut Yankee," which opens Sunday at the Gem theater for three days has long been considered one of the world's greatest satires. In the new version of the famous Mark Twain classic, Rogers starts out as a small town radio dealer. He delivers a battery to a mysterious mansion on the hill one stormy night. The owner of the house hopes to tune his huge radio set in on sound waves which have been batting around in the ether since the beginning of time. He tunes in on what appears to be King Arthur's court. There is a terrific flash of lightning, and Rogers wakes up in the sixth century, right in the middle of the round table.

He narrowly escapes burning at the stake and then, through his native Yankee sagacity, becomes the prime minister. He introduces many novel improvements in the scheme of life of the ancients, including a service station for armored knights where they may be washed, polished, oiled and their rivets checked in a minute's time. Efficiency. That's the word.

His many improvements bring many screamingly funny situations and finally, Sir Sagramor, jealous of Rogers' popularity, challenges him to joust in the big tournament. How Rogers overcomes the burly knight is entirely too funny to spoil by revealing here.

Then Rogers becomes the unwilling hero selected to rescue the fair Princess Alisande from the wicked Queen Morgan Le Fay.

BROADCAST ON PARIS FASHIONS SCHEDULED FOR SUNDAY MORNING

The twice-postponed broadcast from Paris by the well-known couturier, Jean Patou, is scheduled for the WABC-Columbia network on Sunday, Aug. 9, from 10:30 to 10:45 a. m., central standard time.

Patou will interrupt his annual holiday at Biarritz to tell the American radio audience what he considers the general fashion trends for the coming season. He is well qualified to discuss this topic, ever important to at least half the total population of the United States.

The broadcast will be made from the studios of the ministry of posts, telephones and telegraphs, which is located in the famous Rue de Grenelle on the left bank of the Seine.

Talk on Magazines

A glimpse into the editorial office of magazines will be given radio listeners when Roy E. Larsen, vice president and general manager of "Time" and "Fortune" magazines speaks as guest in "Bill Schudt's Going to Press" over WABC-Columbia on Wednesday, Aug. 12, from 4 to 4:15 p. m., central standard time.

Marie Dressler, as a feminine candidate for mayor, romps through comical tribulations in a campaign and also dominates some very dramatic scenes in "Politics," her latest picture and incidentally her first as a full-fledged star. The picture opened a limited engagement at the Majestic yesterday.

The story deals with a housewife who, goaded to anger by corrupt conditions in the small town she lives in, starts out to clean up. She organizes the woman's vote, runs for mayor, routs the racketeers, exposes the crooked mayor and his satellites—and of course rides to victory.

Not without the help of the redoubtable Polly Moran, however, Polly is her campaign manager. They fight and make up, get into trouble galore—and out of it, and make millions of laughs in the process. Incidentally, in the dramatic parts of the story Miss Dressler also contributes some of the amazing character work that she did in "Anna Christie" and "Min and Bill."

The man who made "Caught Short" and "Reducing," made this comedy. The cast is more than adequate with William Bakewell, Karen Morley, John Miljan, Tom McGuire and Rosco Ates, the stuttering town barber.

Other units of entertainment on this program that come in for a big part are the Screen Souvenirs, views of the movies long, long ago. Another of those popular Dogville comedies, "Who Killed Rover," and Mickey Mouse is another delightful fun reel. The Majestic talking news completes the program.

Huck Finn Coming

Just about a year ago Paramount startled the world with the greatest film entertainment of all time. The picture was intended for the younger folks' entertainment and after the first showing in most cities, the kiddies had to come early to keep dad, mother and all the other relations from getting all the seats. That picture was Mark Twain's "Tom Sawyer."

Now Paramount brings out another picture, "Huckleberry Finn," which is destined to surpass all records set by "Tom Sawyer." The same cast will be seen that made "Tom Sawyer," only the star this time will be Junior Durkin. He will be supported by Jackie Coogan who was "Tom Sawyer." Mitzi Green and Jackie Searl will also be seen with Eugene Pallette, Clarence Muse and Clara Blandick. The management of the Majestic is making special efforts to see that all kiddies regardless of age see this picture. If necessary, special shows will be arranged to take care of the anticipated crowds.

"MURDER BY THE CLOCK" ATTRACTION AT STATE

Thrills — tingly, spine-chilling thrills; thirills that make you gasp, and thrills that make your head spin.

This and more is the fare at the State theater where that creepy and thrill-and-chill murder mystery play "Murder by the Clock" which opened Sunday, will hold the audience spellbound, in the opinion of the big crowd who attended the preview last evening.

"Murder by the Clock" is based on the story by Rufus King, but Paramount has wisely changed it about, and those who have read the book will have to see it all over again, because the film presents a new guilty person. Lilyan Tashman, William Boyd, Regis Toomey, and Sally O'Neil head the notable cast.

Even the squeak of a mouse will set your nerves jumping after you've seen "Murder by the Clock," the strangest of mystery thrillers. It's alive with thrills and horrible happenings, a murdered man comes to life, only to be murdered again within an hour, a woman returns from the grave for vengeance, a beautiful siren spins her silken net while strange death happens wherever her threads meet; a young detective pierces her sinster heart and puts himself in danger of her vindicative hate. Young love blossoms under the menace of ruthless, death-dealing greed. "Murder by the Clock" really holds the audience frozen with intense excitement, from start to finish. It's a real hour's entertainment.

In adidtion you will see Johnny Farrell in a series of golf shots called "Winning Putts," also Slim Summerville comedy "Royal Bluff" and Paramount sound news.

Transgression

No picture of recent months has evoked more spontaneous praise from critics than has "Transgression," stirring drama which is coming to the State theater Thursday for three days, featuring Kay Francis, Ricardo Cortez, Paul Cavanagh and Nance O'Neil.

Beautiful Kay Francis whose rise to stardom has been deserved and rapid, Ricardo Cortez, sauve villian of the talkies and Paul Cavanagh, notable stage star, play the principal roles.

The story from Kate Jordan's novel "The Next Corner" deals with the mental torment of a young woman reared in the peace and quiet of an English countryside who goes to Paris and struggles against conscience and impulse when an ardent lover attempts to sweep her off her feet.

Herbert Brennon, director of such screen classics as "Beau Geste," "Sorrell and Son," "The Case of Sergeant Grischa" and "Beau Ideal" has handled the production with notable success according to advance information, and Brennon considers it one of his major triumphs.

I'D pay several cents a mile extra for that Free Wheeling sensation in my Studebaker—if I had to.

But the joke is, it doesn't cost me money—it saves me money.

A Studebaker is swell when running along with the motor engaged, but it is those moments of momentum—those miles of Free Wheeling—which give me my grandest thrills . . . and these don't cost—they PAY.

I sail along, manufacturing miles and money!

About one mile in seven or six or five is free—because you save from a seventh to a fifth of your gas and oil.

Seems to me ridick to buy a car without Free Wheeling—when you can get a real Free Wheeling Studebaker for $845.

GOLD MEDAL PROGRAMS FEATURE STAR ACTS IN BROADCASTS FOR WEEK

"Without That Gal" will be the song hit to be featured by Eddie, the Gold Medal organist, in the fast freight program of Wednesday evening, Aug. 12. The bill will be broadcast over station KMOX from 7 to 7:30 p. m. central standard time.

Four all-star features will be presented during the Gold Medal express program Monday evening, Aug. 10. One stellar act is that of Ohman and Arden, famous double piano stars. Others are the Singing Strings, Frank Black's latest orchestra and the golden voiced tenor.

The express bill comes over WFAA at Dallas from 8 to 8:30 p. m.

YOUNG BLUES SINGER APPEARS BEFORE MIKE IN COLUMBIA PROGRAM

Lee Brody, young blues singer whose work in Heywood Broun's show, "Shoot the Works," has attracted considerable attention on Broadway, will appear before the microphone as guest artist on the "Views and Interviews" program to be presented over the WABC-Columbia network from 4 to 4:15 p. m., central standard time, Monday, Aug. 10.

Although she had been featured in many of New York's night clubs, Miss Brody never appeared in a musical stage show until the Broun production opened several weeks ago.

Miss Brody will be interviewed by Nelson Hesse, Columbia writer, and will tell something of her night club and stage experiences. In addition she will sing "Minnie the Moocher" and "Take It From Me," two current blues hits.

SEVENTH COLUMBIA CAMP CONCERT TO BE ON AIR AUG. 12

Vacationists in the woods and at the shore will hear the seventh of the series of Columbia camp concerts, a summer extension of the American School of the Air, which will be presented at 2:30 p. m., central standard time, Wednesday, Aug. 12, over a coast-to-coast Columbia network. It is to have "Flowers" for its subject.

The musical portion of the program opens with a selection from Henry Hadley's "Ballet of the Flowers" entitled "Daffodils." Following this, "Lilacs," written by Rachmaninoff, Russian pianist and composer, will be presented. This will be followed by Mendelssohn's "The First Violet."

The next part of the program will be devoted to folk dances and games in which the listeners are to be urged to take part.

The third and last part of the program will consist of a talk by Dr. Bertha Chapman Cady, formerly of the American Museum of Natural History and known throughout the United States as the organizer of the Coordinating Council of Nature Study Activities.

Her subject will be "Wayside Flowers."

HOME ON JALONIC WRECKED BY LATE NIGHT FIRE HERE

The home L. C. Baumgardner at Jalonic and Virginia streets was almost completely wrecked by fire which broke out late Saturday night while he and his family were at the bedside of his mother, who is critically ill, according to information given by members of the fire department. The origin was not determined.

The flames had gained such headway when discovered by neighbors who turned in the alarm that they threatened for a time to spread to other dwellings. They were brought under control, however, before damage was done to structures other than the Baumgardner home. No estimate of the loss was made.

DIAMOND FACES FOUR-YEAR TERM

After the lawyers had completed their summations, Judge Richard J. Hopkins, "the dry judge of Kansas," who has conducted proceedings in a rapid-fire manner, made a lengthy charge to the jury.

Address to Jury

"Gentlemen of the jury," he began, "I did not make this prohibition law, and you didn't make it. We have no concern here as to whether we think it is a good law or a bad one. We have only to consider whether the defendants are guilty of violating the law."

The judge then proceeded to read the indictment and to review the testimony.

"Most of the evidence in this case is undisputed," he said.

As he went on, the hopeful faces of the defense attorneys lengthened, and Diamond, who had been playing with his watch chain, sat upright and riveted his eyes on the judge.

Mrs. Diamond, the faithful wife who has stuck to "Legs" through all his ups and downs, raised tragic eyes from which the tears rolled copiously. She had been in court all day, dressed in a flowered chiffon dress and a large drooping hat, and she wiped the tears away with a small damp ball of a handkerchief as she heard the stern voice of the judge intone the law.

There was a solemnity about the scene. Even Daniel Prior, Diamond's attorney, had announced to the jury, as he made his summation —"this is a serious business."

Guard Courtroom

Extra precautions were taken this afternoon to prevent any disturbance of the judicial calm. Spectators were closely questioned before they were admitted to the courtroom, and marshals were on guard for strolling gangsters, who, it was feared, might try to shorten the path of justice by introducing a little machine gun fire into the court.

Judge Hopkins completed his charge of almost an hour with the statement:

"The testimony of these witnesses, although they are in the liquor business, dove-tailing and connecting as it does, indicates the reasonableness of the evidence."

He startled the courtroom with the observation that "in the charge of possessing an unregistered still, the burden of proof of registry rests upon the defense."

Prior, in his summation, charged that the government's witnesses had been induced to testify through promises of immunity. But Assistant U. S. Attorney Arthus H. Schwartz indignantly denied this.

"There has been no bargaining," he said. "I haven't the power to grant immunity to any witness. The only body which can do that is the grand jury, and it is a well known fact of law that the testimony of any witness before the grand jury cannot be used against him."

Around Town

Wilfred Peck of Mirando City, Texas, has returned home after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Robertson, 1707 Collins.

Miss Myra Katherine Douglas has returned from Dallas where she has beep visiting Miss Rose Buchanan for the past two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hudson and child of Iowa Park, left Saturday for Atlanta, Ga., where they will visit Mr. Hudson's mother.

A. L. Kingman, agent of the department of justice with headquarters in Dallas, was in Wichita Falls Saturday to make routine investigations.

Mrs. A. B. Eichelberger, district clerk, and her two daughters, Misses Lora and Janelle Eichelberger, left early Saturday on a motor trip to New Mexico, Colorado and Yellowstone park. The party will pick up Mrs. Eichelberger's brother, T. B. Donnell, in Amarillo.

William E. McBroom, city clerk, Mrs. McBroom, and their sons will leave early Tuesday for a vacation at Eagle Nest Lake, N. M., in the Rocky mountains. Although Mr. McBroom will remain only about a week, Mrs. McBroom and children will probably be at the lake for two or three weeks.

Deaths

Jackson Infant

BURKBURNETT, Texas, Aug. 8. —Funeral services for the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Jackson of Thrift will be held in the chapel of the Thomas Funeral home here Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The services are to be conducted by the Rev. Joe Miller, pastor of the Thrift Baptist church.

The baby is survived by its parents, two brothers and two sisters.

The Literary Lantern

The Literary Lantern burns weekly in the Sunday Times and is intended to throw light on writing around and about the South. Communications for this column should be addressed to the Editor of the Literary Lantern.

Publishers seldom give the birthplace of an author unless the author still lives there or at least writes of it. Yet the South is accustomed to claim as native sons all born within its lines, even if they have removed elsewhere in carelessly disloyal fashion. Thus Wilbur Daniel Steele is unalterably a North Carolinian, though he left his native Greensboro when scarcely able to walk.

We have added a few more Southerners to our list this week, following our reading of a new and newsy compendium of biographies, "Living Authors," by Dilly Tante —a pen name, of course—(H. W. Wilson, $5). From "Miss Tante's" sketches we learn that Upton Sinclair was born in Baltimore, Willa Cather near Winchester, Va., and S. S. Van Dine in Charlottesville, Va. To think that all this time we have omitted their books from this column! Many other facts are revealed in Dilly's book. For instance, S. S. Van Dine, the famous creator of the Philo Vance detective stories, kept his real identity a secret until he was goaded by persistent questioning to give the public a picture of himself. The caricature he drew was such a good likeness that all his friends recognized him as Willard Huntington Wright, editor, scholar and critic. Then Wright's earlier and neglected serious novel, "The Man of Promise," was re-issued and had a favorable reception. Now he wishes definitely to retire "Van Dine" from the scene and write altogether seriously. But we notice to our relief that his publishers announce a new detective story for next spring, to be called "The Kennel Murder Case."

"Living Authors" tells a great deal about Isa Glenn which we did not know. She has red hair. She studied painting under James McNeill Whistler, a cousin of hers, and was advised by him to take to "scribbling" instead. She married Brig. Gen. S. J. Bayard Schindel and traveled in the Orient with him before his death in 1921. She has a son, John Bayard Schindel, who has published his first novel, "Golden Pilgrimage."

The biggest surprise we had from "Living Authors" concerned Johnathan Leonard, author of "Back to Stay," "The Meddlers" and "Sympathetic to Bare Feet." By his photograph we recognized him as the Captain Leonard who directed the R. O. T. C. work at the University of North Carolina during the last year of the world war. We knew him then as a violinist and a painter and a gentle and courteous friend. His books have been written since his return with his family to New England. His first recognition came from "The American Caravan" in 1929.

Let us look at "The American Caravan. IV"—1931 (Macaulay, $5), edited by Alfred Kreymborg, Lewis Mumford, and Poul Rosenfeld. Here we find a short story by Johnathan Leonard, "Eyes of the Beach." There is one by Doris Peel, an English girl who has also a slight connection with the South, a couple of years' stay in Raleigh, N. C. Her novel, "Five on Parade" (Houghton Mifflin, $2), received praise here and in England.

North Carolina is also represented in the new "Caravan" with Joseph Mitchell's story, "The Brewers." Mr. Mitchell, a Tarheel born and bred, is now on the staff of the New York Herald Tribune. David Cornel DeJong, a young Dutch student at Duke university, contributes a story, "Four in a City."

From Tennessee "The Caravan" draws contributions by Evelyn Scott and Cary Ross; from Mississippi William Faulkner and Charles Henri Ford. The Kentuckian, Robert Penn Warren, contributes both a story and a poem. There is a long critical article, "The Impulse of Poetry," by John Gould Fletcher of Arkansas.

"The American Caravan," as in years past, offers examples of what is being done in America by the more unconventional writers, many of the contributions so unconventional that they could not be published elsewhere. It is a unique and invaluable project. . . .

Irvin S. Cobb comes from Paducah, Ky., and he does not forget it, for his fellow townsmen say that he still registers as a resident of Paducah when traveling, though he has lived away from Kentucky for years. He recently spent his 51st birthday in his home town. This year he has published an unusual kind of a book, entitled "Incredible Truth" (Cosmopolitan, $2.50), in which he has edited and arranged the contemporary accounts of some 34 remarkable events and experiences, such original material as an English woman's diary of the siege of Lucknow, in India, a young duke's recollection of the massacre of Saint Bartholomew in Paris, an Irish war correspondent's report of the battle of Bull Run in the civil war. These vivid first-hand accounts interested Mr. Cobb and he judged they would make a volume of wide appeal to the general reader who would not naturally run upon the old musty volumes from which many excerpts are taken. With true journalist's instinct, he has selected "civilization's front-page stories," related in every case with brevity but with the inevitable dramatic quality which inheres in descriptions of eyewitnesses to great events. . . .

By quoting from old complaints on the difficulties of traveling John T. Faris gives contrast to his description of good roads in "Roaming American Highways (Farrar and Rinehart, $3). The good highways of Virginia bear little resemblance to the mirey trail over which John Randolph passed in 1753, to be chided by William Byrd for venturing out at that time of year: "We have had the good nature to bide in pain for you ever since you left us, 'tho in truth your obstinacy in exposing your wife and children to be buried in the mire, hardly deserved it. No doubt you were obliged to have Pioneers to clear the way before you as far as Mr. Carter's Plantation, and you needed four yoke of Oxen, as they do in the deep roads of Sussex, to drag you thro' the Dirt.

"But what are such trifling difficulties for philosophers of your cold blood, who could see the wheels plunge up to the axle-trees without uttering the least hasty word, or suffering one peevish thought to start up in your mind."

Sarcasm is expressed by a traveler westward in 1818, who observes: "A road authorized by law is achieved by leveling the trees between given points, and thus making an avenue in the woods from 20 to 30 feet wide, the stumps dressed down so as to permit wagons to pass over them without striking the axle—if they can. This deliberate performance of wagons is called straddling. As to saplings, such are cut off by one or more oblique blows, some six or eight inches from the ground, the remaining stumps conveniently sharpened, and threatening to impale whoever may be pitched onto them from horses or carriage."

How strange a contrast to the easy skimming flight of powerful motor cars over these same trails as they are surfaced today! Dr. Faris describes nine main highways, running north and south, and east and west. His descriptions give the important items of history connected with places through which the tourist passes.

Charles J. Finger has written a travel book which is much more than a guide, "Adventure Under Sapphire Skies" (Morrow, $2.50), illustrated by his daughter, Helen. The reader can sit quite still in an armchair and yet enjoy the Finger family's roaming, so full is this delightful book of all sorts of homey details and poetic descriptions which make the adventure real. In the beginning of their trip they decide not to "flash through" the Southwest country, but to leave the tourist trail at will and see most of the things worth seeing on the way. This they do and Mr. Finger describes their explorations with adequate relish, giving many sidelights on such subjects as cooking steak, treating liars, handling baggage and snakes and boosters, even disquisitions on fish stories and the South and literature. Mr. Finger is a charming traveling companion, as readers of his previous books will know.

He was born in England, studied music in Germany, came to America at 16, and then plunged into a life of exploration and travel in South America, Africa and the antarctic. After his marriage in 1902 he settled in Texas and was editor, director of a conservatory of music, and manager of a group of railroads. He now lives at Fayetteville, Ark., in the Ozark mountains. Besides books of travel he is known for his books for children, his most famous one being "Tales from Silver Lands."

PAIR SUSPECTED OF FORGERY HELD BY POLICE HERE

Two men were held for questioning by Wichita Falls police Saturday night in connection with the alleged disappearance of a number of blank checks from the office of a large oil company at Pampa several days ago after one of the missing instruments had been cashed during the afternoon at a department store here, according to information given by Frank Burns, police chief.

The check cashed here had been forged, Chief Burns said he was advised. It was for $70.

First of the suspects was taken into custody, according to the report, when the cashier of another store here became suspicious of a check similar to the one previously cashed. Police were called and the arrest was made.

The second arrest was made by Bill Garland, city marshal at Burkburnett, at the request of Wichita Falls police. The suspects are brothers, Chief Burns said.

VERNON GOLF TEAM TO INVADE QUANAH LINKS

QUANAH, Texas, Aug. 8.—The Quanah Country club will be host Sunday to more than 20 golf players from Vernon, coming here for the second inter-city match played in Quanah this season. Several weeks ago the Quanah golfers defeated a team of players from Estelline and Crowell.

The Vernon delegation will be headed by Whitney Anderson and Roy Farrell, who have for the past three years been winner and runnerup in the annual championship contest held in that city. This youthful pair will have as their opponents here L. S. (City) Walker, three times champion of the Green Belt Golf association, and Herman Caskey, who top the list of Quanah players.

The contest will be played in Scotch foursomes, using the Nassau system of scoring.

Pairings of the Quanah players follow: L. S. Walker and W. H. Caskey, J. B. Moore and J. A. Koch, R. B. Magee and S. H. Coker, E. B. Caskey and T. D. Griffith, N. H. Lassiter and J. T. Hughes, F. B. Smith and R. R. Gilliland, J. T. L. Jones and E. W. Newton, G. T. Brewer and F. O. Griffith, W. H. Wright and A. P. Pierce, Spencer Marrow and A. B. Carlos, R. C. Willingham and L. R. Magee. Alternates: L. H. Smith, J. L. Elbert Jr., W. T. Perkins, Hayden Hunter, Frank Hook and G. D. McAdams.

A return engagement probably will be played on the links of the Hill Crest Country club in Vernon the following Sunday.

AMARILLO ASKS CUT IN TELEPHONE SERVICE RATE

AMARILLO, Texas, Aug. 8. (AP)—Reduction of Amarillo telephone rates was requested today in a letter from Mayor Ernest O. Thompson to G. N. Hailey, district manager for the Southwestern Bell Telephone company. Mr. Hailey could not be reached immediately for comment.

BIGGEST DIRIGIBLE CHRISTENED AKRON

As the official party entered the dock glee clubs bonds played "Anchors Aweigh," Mrs. Hoover was presented with a bouquet of roses by Girl Scouts who took places on the speakers' stand.

Litchfield in a preliminary speech, honored several notables in the lighter than air field, among them Thackeray Landstowne, late commander of the Shenandoah.

Moffett Comments

Rear Admiral Moffett said of the Akron:

"It is a monument to those pioneers who gave their lives and to their sacrifice to our own Shenandoah the ZRS-2, the Dixmude and RA-101.

Moffett expressed the hope that the next ship would be a million cubic feet larger than the Akron and said if the United States retains leadership ships must be steadily increased in size until the limit is reached. He placed the limit at about ten million cubic feet.

Mrs. Hoover, when introduced by Litchfield, was given an ovation similar to one given when she arrived. She took her place before the microphone and before the audience realized she pulled a red, white and blue cord releasing a flock of 48 pigeons from a hatch at the ship's bow.

As she pulled the cord she said, "I christen thee Akron," climaxing her 500-mile trip from the capital. Simultaneously with releasing of the pigeons, the glee club bands struck up "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The Akron rose slowly and majestically ten feet as the steel cables were released. After the ceremony the ship was brought back to its position before launching.

Announcement was made today that the next ship is being designed and the preliminary work already started. The size and changes are unknown. A movement is under way to call the next ship either Cleveland or Landsdowne, the latter for the late captain of the Shenandoah.

TWO TEXAS FLIERS REACH FORT WORTH

He explained that the ship had proved unwieldy with a full load of gasoline.

When their plane had been strengthened for the attempt with a more powerful motor, Robbins and Jones set out from Seattle again on August 3, still determined to capture the $25,000 prize offered by a Japanese newspaper for the first non-stop flight from Seattle to Tokyo.

Contacts Fail

First refueling contacts again were successful but as they approached the Bering sea, fog, wind and rain again interposed a barrier in their path, separating them from the refueling plane and preventing them from receiving the last quota of fuel necessary for the long flight along the Siberian coast to the Japanese metropolis.

When they returned to Fairbanks, Robbins declared it was too late in the season to make another attempt and made preparations to return to Fort Worth.

Still bent upon adventure, after a major defeat, the fliers resolved to attempt a non-stop flight from Alaska to Fort Worth but rainy weather again dashed their plans. They made an emergency landing yesterday at Edmonton, where the trimotored refuelling ship awaited them.

Overcoming this latest disappointment, they took off early today, determined to make at least the journey from Edmonton to Fort Worth a non-stop flight.

Sheriff J. R. (Red) Wright of Tarrant county, who jokingly telegraphed them he intended to arrest them and put them in jail as punishment for their failure to accomplish the trans-Pacific flight was advised yesterday by Gov. Ross Sterling that he had granted them a "full pardon" and welcomed them back to Texas.

the situation and the need for regulation of the production of America's greatest commodity and that the senate did not know the attitude of the farmers and business men. "Cotton is America's greatest product and its welfare or despair gives us prosperity or poverty," McDonald stated.

The bill was introduced in the senate by Senator Oliver Cunningham of Abilene, and in the house by J. J. Olsen of Yoakum. It was offered in the regular session but died on the calendar.

Senator Cunningham and Senator Small led the debate of the bill. Senators Joe Moore of Greenville and T. J. Holbrook of Galveston were the opposition's mainstays.

One of the arguments for the bill was that it would restore soil fertility through proration of crops. Opponents contended it was an invation of individual rights.

GEORGIA WOMAN HURT IN STAMFORD ACCIDENT

STAMFORD, Texas, Aug. 8.—Mrs. Elder Manse was injured near here Saturday when the car in which she was riding overturned within 30 miles of her destination and at the end of a 1,000-mile trip.

Mrs. Manse, with her 16-year-old son, were en route to Aspermont from their home in Georgia, when the accident occurred. She sustained a double fracture of her right arm and possibly internal injuries, physicians at the Stamford sanitarium, where she was taken for treatment, stated. The boy was unhurt.

Dean of Oklahoma Medical School To Resign as Result of Opening of Hospital Doors to Chiropractors

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 8. (UP) —Dr. Leroy Long, University of Oklahoma medical school dean, will resign immediately, it became definitely known today.

The resignation is the result of the controversy precipitated by Gov. W. H. Murray's executive order opening the university hospital to a chiropractor for treatment of a woman patient stricken with paralysis.

Dr. Long was to submit his resignation some time today, pursuing an announcement he made at a medical school faculty meeting here last night.

The medical faculty urged the dean to rescind his action in an unanimous vote, which carried a vote of confidence. A petition of confidence also was signed.

Dr. Long, however, refused to alter his decision. He was quoted by a member of the faculty as saying he could not function as dean of the school, exercising his authority with the chiropractor in the hospital. He said he could not go on and let this practice continue.

Dr. Long has been dean for 16 years, taking the position in 1915.

No other faculty members followed Dr. Long in his action, although Dr. Horace Reed, spokesman for the faculty, said:

Others May Quit

"The faculty is in a very sad mood I cannot speak for the others, but unless steps are taken immediately to clear the situation which threatens the school, other faculty members probably will follow Dr. Long."

Dr. Long could not be reached at his home, office or the hospital. His son, Dr. Leroy D. Long, said: "I cannot speak about it for my father. I think he will have an announcement later today."

Both Leroy D. and Wendell Long, the dean's sons, are on the medical school staff. There was no indication at last night's faculty meeting that they would follow their father in resigning.

Dr. Bizzell was to leave for Chicago today. Monday, he will confer with committees of the American College of Surgeons, American Medical association and National Association of Hospitals on the situation here in an effort to prevent a reduction of the school's rating.

Physicians were gloomy today over the outlook following Dr. Long's announcement. They predicted the school, crippled children's hospital and University hospital would be ruined unless the dispute was settled quickly.

George L. Bowman, university board of regents chairman, said before Dr. Long's announcement had become generally known, that he hoped a plan would be worked out soon to straighten the tangle.

"The school's rating must be maintained," he said. "We cannot reveal our plan now as it would cause discussion among those who don't understand and cause more trouble."

Regents Take Hand

Bowman said he did not know if sufficient progress in conferences with "all interested parties" would be made to hold the regents meeting for a solution in August.

Governor Murray, informed of Dr. Long's announcement, said he had not been officially notified. His comment was:

"You want to remember that you and I can pass along and there will be a man to take our place, just as good or better."

Murray, after ordering a chiropractor admitted to university hospital because "chiropractors are licensed by the state and have the right under the law to treat patients in state institutions" put the problem to the board of regents to solve.

Discussion in medical circles today brought out the opinion that the purpose of Murray's order was to set Dr. Long out, and that the board of regents had delayed meeting in anticipation that Dr. Long would resign, clearing the way for a "solution" agreeable to the governor.

Mrs. W. O. Burgett, 25, Hollis, whose illness caused Murray to issue an order admitting a chiropractor to treat her, was reported unimproved at the hospital today.

She has been treated daily by Dr. O. S. Witt, local chiropractor. Dr. C. J. Fishman, M. D., also has attended her.

The woman, stricken by a spinal affliction, was reported conscious, but able to move only her arms. Dr. Fishman said recently she had only a small chance to recover.

Regents to Convene

KINGFISHER, Okla., Aug. 8. (UP)—George L. Bowman, university of Oklahoma board of regents chairman, announced here today he would call a board meeting for early next week on the university medical school tangle.

The expected resignation of Dr. Leroy Long, medical school dean, will be considered at the meeting, he said.

Bowman said he talked with Dr. Long last night, and understood the dean would resign today.

A plan to solve the difficulties arising from the admittance of chiropractors to the university hospital will be submitted at the board meeting, said Bowman.

GOVERNOR OF DURANGO REMOVED FOR FAILURE TO LIMIT CLERGYMEN

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 8. (US)—Gov. Jose Ramon Valdez of Durango was removed from office by President Ortiz Rubio today on charges of violating the law limiting the number of priests permitted to hold services in his state to 25. Lorenzo Gemiz, deputy from Durango, was appointed to the governorship.

Burros Steal Ice Cream

CRESTONE, Colo. (UP)—Spending a quiet day on Middle Creek, L. W. Gross decided to put his two gallons of ice cream in the creek to keep solid while he fished. Surveying the neighborhood, he saw only two sleepy-eyed burros, and cached the delicacy in the cool water. While Gross fished, the burros awoke, found the freezer, nosed of the cover, and enjoyed a midsummer lunch at his expense.

WAY OPENED FOR MODIFICATION OF CIGARET TAX LAW

AUSTIN, Aug. 8. (AP)—The way was opened today to repeal or modification of the three-cent tax levied on cigarets by the legislature at its regular session a few months ago.

Gov. Ross S. Sterling submitted revision of the cigaret tax law as a legislative subject, having in mind amending the bill to make it more workable and less expensive to enforce. In submitting the subject, however, the law was laid open to any and all kinds of modification or repeal.

Representative Paul Finn of Sunset said he would offer an amendment to the bill to limit its effectiveness to two years. The bill will go into effect Aug. 22 and under Finn's amendment would not be effective after Aug. 22, 1933. A bitter fight was anticipated on this amendment.

The subject was submitted by Governor Sterling after Treasurer Charley Lockhart had reported several terms of the bill were ambiguous and fraught with opportunities for evasion.

SPECIAL GRAND JURY MAY PROBE SHOOTING CONROE CONSTABLE

CONROE, Texas, Aug. 8. (AP)—District court officials today considered convening a special term of court to investigate the fatal shooting of T. J. Beyett, constable, and the wounding of B. H. Dulaney justice of the peace.

The two Montgomery county officers were shot near Maynolia earlier in the week as they returned two negro prisoners to Conroe to face misdemeanor charges.

Isaiah Edwards and George Tolson, negroes, charged with murder and assault to murder, are held in the Harris county jail at Houston.

GLADEWATER TO HAVE NEW AFTERNOON DAILY

GLADEWATER, Texas, Aug. 8. (UP)—This East Texas oil town which has had a population increase of 600 per cent in six months from oil development will have a daily afternoon paper beginning Monday. It will be called The Daily Gusher and will be a United Press client.

S. W. Adams, formerly connected with The Houston Press and The Texas Commercial News, will be editor. His son, Mark Adams, an honor graduate of the University of Texas, will be business manager.

Mrs. Emma Etta Hughes

BURKBURNETT, Texas, Aug. 8. —Mrs. Emma Etta Hughes, 47, died at her home near Wichita Falls airport Friday morning. Burial was in Burkburnett cemetery Friday afternoon. Mrs. Hughes was well known in Burkburnett, where she was formerly a resident, and Wichita Falls. Surviving are her husband, A. H. Hughes, three sons, Oma, Henry, Arthur, all of Wichita Falls, one daughter, Mrs. G. V. Minick of Burkburnett.

DEAN HARRISON TO BE SPEAKER SUNDAY MORN AT FIRST CRISTIAN

Dean Harrison will speak at the First Christian church Sunday morning at the 10:45 o'clock service. Bible school will be at 9:30, Wayne J. Holmes, superintendent. There are classes for all ages under trained teachers.

The special music for the morning service will be furnished by the young people of the church. Merrell Strong will play a violin solo and Margaret Bone will sing.

DEEP TESTS IN ARCHER AND SOUTH WICHITA HOLD INTEREST

Shallow Tests Continue Drilling in Young as Second Producer in Field Kemp City Area Nears Completion

By JIMMIE MAXWELL

The district's oil situation remained, with few exceptions, about the same last week as in the previous week. The usual number of shallow tests were under way in the Young county field and two locations were staked out. No completions were reported, although one or more of these tests are nearing the pay depths.

In the new deep lime areas of Archer and south Wichita counties several tests are being watched with the keenest interest and from the performance of the Jack Martin well it is expected that by the middle of the coming week the second deep producer will be completed in the field.

This well, which drilled about 83 feet of saturated formations topped at 3855 feet, when partially cleaned out, made a number of flows but later cored a little too deep and as a result water trouble developed. Late Friday this menace was remedied and the hole was swabbed, showing plenty of oil. This will be swabbed clean and left to stand for a few days to determine its capacity before completion.

Two miles south of the Martin test at Kemp City, the Shappell Oil company's No. 1 Ferguson in the E. Patterson survey has drilled out the cement plug from the sand at 3815 feet and will bail Monday. The completion of a well here will be the chief factor in extending the saturated formation three miles to the south of the Munger well, original producer from this formation. In addition it will be the means of adding another deep pay horizon to the number in the Archer county pool.

Primrose-Consolidated's No. 1 S. I. & H. M. Munger, located in the southwest corner of block 31, W. V. F. L. and one and a half miles east of Kemp City, another 3800-foot test, is drilling at a depth of 2450 feet.

One and a quarter miles to the northwest of the Deep Oil No. 1 Munger, Wayne Hammon's No. 3 J. H. Bradley deep test is drilling at a depth of 3861 feet in a hard lime.

New Deep Sand

Interest of the operators in Archer county during the week was centered on the outcome of bailing a new deep sand topped at 3614 feet in the Deep Oil-Lindsay No. A-5 L. F. Wilson in block 75, A. T. N. C. L. survey, northeast of Archer City. This test earlier in the week encountered the sand which was entirely new to the field and showed considerable oil, or enough to warrant a test. Pipe was run and the hole cleaned out and 24 feet of sand were drilled when some water trouble started. This was quickly shut off and later the bailer was run and at each extraction came out full of oil. Friday, swabbing continued for a period of 24 hours and the well showed up for a 40 to 50-barreler. The company decided to pass this sand up and will continue drilling to the contract depth of 5,000 feet unless another sand is encountered before that depth is reached.

One mile north of the producer George Cooper and others will put down a deep test in the southwest corner of block 122, Bridwell farm, Aldredge survey, and are moving on rotary rig.

Pipe line runs from the pools of the district slumped 1,302 barrels per day during the week. A total of 55,309 barrels were moved through the various lines in the seven-day period ended Saturday, Aug. 8. Lack of completions with flush oil to offset the decline in old leases, and proration of the producers were the prime causes of the loss.

NEW PRODUCER COMPLETED IN TATUMS FIELD

CARTER COMPANY TEST GAUGES 217 BARRELS

Magnolia Preparing to Drill Deeper at Edge Of Pool

ARDMORE, Okla., Aug. 8.—One new producer has been completed and another was expected to be before the shutdown law went into effect in the Tatums district of northwestern Carter county in Southern Oklahoma. Another test in the field is shut down with casing cemented on top of oil sand. The only other operation in the area was building derrick.

The Carter Oil company, Edwin B. Cox and Jake L. Hamon No. 1 J. B. Spraggins in the northwest corner of the southwest of 19-1s-2w, was completed and swabbed 217½ barrels of oil during initial 24-hour gauge. It was shut in for proration. Producing horizons were found in this test between 1780 and 1965 feet.

The Magnolia Petroleum company was moving back boilers preparatory to drilling plugs and completing No. 5 Moss Dickerson in the northeast corner of the southeast of 24-1s-3w, at the edge of production on the east side of the field. Casing was cemented in this test at 1960 feet after broken sands showing oil were logged at 1969-81 feet. Operators expected to drill deeper in the sands and complete initial 24-hour test unless orders to shutdown the entire field were received. However, if the field is shut down before initial gauge is completed the test will be drilled in and cleaned out but will not likely take a gauge.

K. D. Oil company and Frank Gouin's No. 1 M. E. Burton in the center of the south half of the southwest of 30-1s-2w, half a mile south of production, has 6-inch casing cemented at 2216 feet on broken oil sand encountered between 2220 feet and total depth at 2400 feet. It is shut down for regular field proration, before drilling plugs.

Erect Derrick

Batson, Starritt and Autry's No. 2 Dr. Autry in the southeast of the northeast of 27-6s-2e, seven miles northeast of Marietta, in Love county, was shut down for boiler repairs with total depth at 1335 feet in sand showing oil topped at 1324 feet. Operations were due to be resumed late this week.

McCrory, McCrory and Frame, Ardmore, were due to resume drilling late this week in No. 1 Whitworth in the southwest corner of the southeast of 24-7s-5e, three-fourths of a mile northwest of production in the Kingston shallow area of southern Marshall county. It has been shut down for the past several weeks. They are preparing to pump two small wells completed in the area some time ago. The oil will be trucked to Kingston to a small lubricating refinery being built there.

Mid-Kansas Oil and Gas company and Ramsey Petroleum company's No. 6 Preston-Culp in the northwest corner of the northeast of 6-5n-9w, a deep test in the west portion of the Cement field of Caddo county, was drilling at 8983 feet in sandy shale. It was shut down part of the past week for repairs. This is the deepest test in the state and is reported as still in the Pennsylvanian formations. Hole is in good condition.

Topeka Slaying

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 8. (INS)—Police today are following a number of clues which they hope will lead to the arrest of two men who last night shot and killed John W. Kralino, a garage man, when he found the two men in his garage.

MOTHER JAILED FOR KIDNAPING CHILDREN BY FORMER MARRIAGE

Davis alleged the children were taken from him illegally in June. He was granted custody of the children under a divorce decree a year ago. According to Mrs. Peterson, she was allowed to keep the children two weeks a year, and after spending the fortnight with the children they refused to return to their father.

ONE DEAD, THREE HURT IN OKLAHOMA CITY CRASH

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 8. (UP)—Mrs. Ed Taylor, 50, of Oklahoma City, was killed and her husband and his two sons, were injured today when the car in which they were riding collided with another machine.

Hospital attendants reported Glenn Taylor, one of the sons, was seriously injured. The father and other son, John Edward Taylor, 12, were dismissed after emergency treatment.

Police held C. J. Jones and George M. Russell, occupants of the machine that collided with the Taylor car, for questioning. Physicians charged the men were intoxicated.

NEW WELLS IN WARD FEATURE OIL ACTIVITIES

Tubing Completed in Deep Test in Reagan County

TEST STARTED AT YATES POOL EDGE

Shell Posts Increase in Price For Crude From Shallow Area

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Aug. 8.—Principal oil developments in West Texas this week were the completion of two more wells in Ward county, the swabbing of 10 barrels of oil hourly by a well in the Wentz area in Upton county and the rising of oil 1,900 feet in a well in the Wheat field in Loving county. Tubing of Big Lake Oil company's No. 5-C University, one of the world's deepest producers, in Reagan county, was completed and the first oil was run through the Texas Pipe Line company 6-inch, 27-mile line from the Big Lake field to a junction in Pecos county with its 12-inch trunk carrier from Lea county, N. M., to Port Arthur.

Tests spudded included McCurdy & Easter's No. 1 Tippett on the northwestern edge of the Yates field and the south of the Toborg-Tippett shallow pool. Location is 270 feet from the north line and 250 feet from the east line of section 108, C. T. & M. C. Railway company survey. Until it began drilling there was an interim of a week or more, following the plugging of Honolulu-Penn's No. 1 Webb, in which there was not a drilling test in Pecos county.

Shell Petroleum corporation last Saturday posted an increase of three cents a barrel to 15 cents in the price of oil in the Toborg-Tippett pool. Shell takes the entire yield of the field, around 1500 barrels of 19½ to 24½ gravity oil daily produced by 55 wells ranging from 400 to 500 feet in depth. The raise was subject to revision in view of the fluctuating price structure of other Texas crudes, and followed the making by Shell of new analyses of the oil. Most other West Texas oil is bringing 25 cents a barrel.

McGinnis & O'Donnell's No. 1 T. A. Jean in Fisher county, making a two-mile north extension of the Royston field or indicating a new pool, initially flowed 1,720 barrels of 36.4 gravity oil in 24 hours. During the last 30 hours of a 72-hour test it averaged 80 barrels an hour with 280,000 cubic feet of gas daily. Humble Pipe Line company connected with the well and will take its daily allowable production of 139 barrels. No. 1 Jean has an elevation of 1,791 feet, topped the lime at 3087 feet, topped the pay at 3089 feet, obtained an increase from 3104-05 feet and drilled to 3205. It is 400 feet from the south line and 380 feet from the east line of section 201, block 1, B. B. B. & C. Ry. Co. survey.

The Texas company retains a one-eighth overriding royalty under section 201 and likely will drill an east offset to No. 1 Jean on section 194. Cranfill & Reynolds were preparing to drill a south offset to the new producer, their No. 1 George, 380 feet from the east line and 400 feet from the north line of section 200, block 1, B. B. B. & C. Ry. Co. survey.

News Wells Completed

New wells completed in Ward county were O'Quinn & Bentley's No. 1 Bentley (Cummings) at Grandfalls and Gulf Production company's No. 8 Hutchins. No. 1 Bentley, in the south corner of town lot No. 20, section 11, block 5, H. & T. C. Ry. Co. survey, topped the pay at 2150-60 feet, had an increase from 2178-92 feet and drilled to 2217, where it was tubed. It flowed 124 barrels of oil in 24 hours. Gulf's No. 8 Hutchins, in section 8, block F, G. M. M. B. & A. survey, deepened from 2695 to 2700 feet and flowed 372 barrels of oil in 24 hours. Its pay top was 2652 feet.

Rector Oil corporation's No. 1 Sealy-Smith, Ward county wildcat four miles northeast of Monahans in section 32, block A, G. M. M. B. & A. survey, shut down for orders at 3802½ feet in anhydrite and lime, steel line measured depth. It had had no shows and may be deepened.

Harry Baldwin and Mintex Oil company's No. 1 Lane in section 36, block 1, M-K-T Ry. Co. survey, in Upton county, deepened from 2800 to 2825 feet and was estimated good for 100 barrels daily. With 2000 feet of oil in the hole, the well swabbed 10 barrels hourly without lowering the column past 350 feet. It topped the first pay at 2280 feet, drilled in 10 feet and after standing two weeks swabbed 60 barrels of oil.

Harry Adams Drilling company and others' No. 1 Wichmann in Loving county, in section 84, block 1, W. & N. W. Ry. Co. survey, drilled plug at 4107 feet, struck oil and was in the top of the Delaware lime at 4182 feet and drilled to 4192 feet, where it shut down for orders. Oil rose 10000 feet. Eppenauer Drilling company's No. 2 Allen, in section 90, block 1, W. & N. W. Ry. Co. survey, which was shot early last week with 240 quarts from 4265 to 4305 feet, produced 212 barrels in one 24-hour period. This followed deepening from 4311 to 4343 feet and plugged back a short distance.

Lewis & Siagel's No. 1 Henderson, Loving county wildcat 25 miles northwest of the Wheat pool, in section 1, block 87, township 1, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey, was scheduled to deepen from 3175 feet and shoot again. It pumped 25 barrels of oil daily, with water diminishing. Lewis & Siagel are preparing to start No. 1 Johnson, one mile northeast of No. 1 Henderson and 330 feet from the north line and 1650 feet from the west line of section 6, block 54, township 1, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey.

Reduce Production

Production by Big Lake Oil company's No. 5-C University, one of the world's deepest producers, in Reagan county, was being reduced along with its gas-oil ratio, as the result of running 4-inch tubing. The well flowed 4699 barrels of oil with 23,194,000 cubic feet of gas during 24 hours ending Wednesday morning, compared with a daily average of 4899 barrels during the week ended Aug. 1 when pressure was lowered from 1200 to 400 pounds to permit tubing. This accounted largely for an increase in the deep well production of 3297 barrels to a total of 186,507 barrels by the five deep wells during the week ended Aug. 1. Texon's two deep wells yielded 2234 barrels less than during the preceding week. Production by the five wells during 24 hours ending Wednesday morning was as follows: Big Lake No. 1-C University, 6130 barrels; No. 4-C University, 2206 barrels; No. 5-C University, 4699 barrels; Texon No. 1-B University, 2155 barrels; No. 4-B University, 7153 barrels.

J. D. Wesner's No. 1 W. R. Nicks, Schleicher county wildcat in section 77, block LL, T. C. Ry. Co. survey, a mile and three-quarters northeast of Eldorado deepened from 4042 to 4065 feet without change and was scheduled to begin underreaming 6⅝-inch casing Thursday from 4006 to the bottom, where it will be cemented. There was about 3000 feet of fluid, mostly water, in the hole, more water having been struck at 4038, it was believed. The formation from 4062 to 4065 feet was shale. Eastland Oil company and others' No. 1 Joe Tisdale, Schleicher county wildcat in section 29, block M, G. H. & S. A. Ry. Co. survey, resumed drilling Sunday midnight at 2965 feet, passed from lime into shale at 3015 feet and shut down at 3025 feet to run 8¼-inch pipe. The shale was caving and about 2000 feet of sulphur water was being carried. Ten-inch casing is cemented at 2509 feet.

Stanolind Oil & Gas company's No. 1 W. H. Williams, deep wildcat in southeastern Irion county, in section 1196, T. C. Ry. Co. survey, began drilling out cement at 5090 feet and had reached 5315. Eight-inch pipe landed at 5924 feet, 26 feet off bottom, has been cemented three times. The Ellis-Flanery corporation's No. 1 J. M. Nutt, in section 695, H. W. Krekenbohn survey, planned to run 8¼-inch casing at 1218 feet after drilling past 1224 feet in red sandy shale.

Jones and others' No. 1 Pankenham, Terrell county wildcat in section 43, block B-2, C. C. S. D. & R. G. N. G. Ry. Co. survey, which recently had a showing of free oil at 2335 feet, had drilled to 2485 feet in grey lime without change. In Upton county, Porter Rankin and others' No. 1 Cordova Union Land company, in section 6, certificate 1-13, had reached 2352 feet in anhydrite. C. C. Duffy and others' No. 5 McClintic, in section 206, block F, C. C. S. D. & R. G. N. G. Co. survey, drilled plug at 2595 feet, where 8¼-inch casing was cemented, had a showing of gas at 2730 and had reached 2885 feet in lime.

The farthest western drilling test in Texas, the Tri-State Oil company's No. 1 Bobadilla in El Paso county, 2½ miles east of Vintin, in section 254, G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. survey, had drilled to 1358 feet in brown lime.

District's Daily Pipe Line Runs Drop 1,302

A total daily average of 55,309 barrels was maintained from the nine counties under the supervision of L. V. Hull, proration umpire, during the week ended Saturday, Aug. 8, 1931. These figures showed a slump of approximately 1,302 barrels per day when compared with the run of 56,611 barrels daily for the week before. All pools, with one or two exceptions, showed varying losses due to the decline in older wells and no flush oil to offset.

Four pools representing the North Texas division, Throckmorton, Jack, Haskell and North Young counties averaged 5,670 barrels daily, a decrease of 87 barrels per day. Below is the movement by pools.

Learned Hindu Is Too Poor Accept U. S. Invitation

CALCUTTA, India, Aug. 8. (AP)—Rich in the currency of the learned, Sir Chandrasekhara Raman, 43, holder of the nobel prize for physics, is too poor to carry the fruits of his research to the occident which honored him.

An invitation to go to California and lecture about his discoveries in light took its place today among others from many parts of the world, regretfully declined because of lack of funds.

Honored by a dozen countries with medals and degrees, he lives in comparative poverty and relative obscurity in the poorest quarter of Calcutta. He has no laboratory at all and his library is limited to a few chosen treaties.

Like Einstein Raman is a devotee of the violin to which he attributes his original interest in physics. America often occupies his thoughts.

"How I envy her wonderful facilities for research," he said. "I have little or no means of continuing my own studies and unhappily there is little realization in my own country of the importance of research."

India regards him as the "Einstein of the East" but he himself gives most of the credit for his discoveries to the students who labored with him in a room with a stone floor, bare walls and a leaky ceiling.

PASTOR OPENS FILLING STATION TO HELP PAY EXPENSES OF CHURCH

The Rev. Joseph B. Edie, pastor, Elder Charles H. Vogt and James Martin, a member of the congregation have laid aside their Sunday clothes and donned grease-soaked overalls in assuming the roles of operators.

Profits from the station, to which the entire congregation of 500 has pledged its business are to be used in defraying expenses of the church. It will not operate on Sunday, however.

FOUR DEAD IN BRUTAL SLAYING MISSOURI MAN

Quarrel Between Miners Ends in Quadruple Killing

FIFTH PERSON MAY DIE FROM GUNSHOT WOUND

Slayer Apparently Suffers Mental Derangement During Argument

POTOSI, Mo., Aug. 8. (INS)—This usually peaceful little mining community was recovering today from the horror of one of the most brutal and cold-blooded wholesale killings in the history of this section.

An argument which started between two miners in the bottom of a 15-foot tiff mine resulted in the slaying of four persons and the critical wounding of the fifth.

Elliott Missey, 40, shot and killed John Pitzer, 55, after the two had quarreled over the rights of their respective tiff mine holdings, Sheriff W. J. Simmons, of Washington county declared. Missey then turned the double-barreled shotgun with which he had dispatched Pitzer on Clarence Leach who was helping Pitzer, and wounded him critically.

Climbing out of the tiff pit where the quarrel had taken place Missey walked to the home of John Coleman, another miner whose house was about a mile distant and shot and killed him. Missey then hastened to his own home, locked his six children in his barn and shot his wife to death, according to the sheriff. The miner then killed himself.

According to Sheriff Simmons he was told that Missey and Coleman had formerly quarreled but the only reason that he could assign for Missey killing his wife was that he was mentally deranged.

OTTO OF HAPSBURG TO WED MARIE OF SAVOY

VIENNA, Aug. 8. (INS)—An agreement has been reached for the engagement of the Archduke Otto of Hapsburg, claimant to the Hungarian throne, and Princess Maria of Savoy, youngest daughter of the king and queen of Italy, it was stated by the Viennese newspaper Der Abend today.

The engagement will be announced, the newspaper said, on Aug. 18, anniversary of the late Emperor Franz Josef's birth.

Giant American Planes to Carry 40 Persons Each

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (US)—Two huge American airplanes, each able to carry about 40 passengers, soon will be ready for service, according to advices received here today.

One of the planes, an amphibian, is slated for service on the Caribbean lines of Pan-American airways, for which Lindbergh is technical adviser.

Designed and built by Igor Sikorsky at Bridgeport, Conn., it has four 575-horsepower engines mounted beneath a 114-foot monoplane. The craft is 73 feet in length over all and a wing span of 114 feet, weighs 21,000 pounds empty and 34,000 fully loaded.

The all metal hull is 58 feet long. The fuel tanks will take 1,025 gallons of gasoline and the cruising radius is 1,000 miles.

The other giant airplane is a four-motored Ford all metal monoplane. It is said to be the second largest transport land plane in the world, exceeded only by the German four-motor Junkers.

The craft was designed for long distance transcontinental service.

lard moved to reconsider the vote on engrossment and Senator Holbrook, another advocate of the substitute, moved to table. The motion to table prevailed, 15 to 11, making it impossible for proponents of the administration bill to move to reconsider the vote at a future date.

Senator Parrish, Woodward bill supporter, had voted with the prevailing side and already had given notice he would make a motion to reconsider the vote Monday when Pollard made his motion.

Provisions of Bill

The substitute bill would prohibit physical waste and define it as:

Operation of wells with gas-oil ratio (amount of gas required to raise barrel of oil) exceeding that fixed by the railroad commission.

Drowning with water any stratum capable of producing oil or gas or both in paying quantities.

Waste caused by premature intrusion of water into any producing well or its immediate offset by improper drilling or producing methods.

Permitting any natural gas well to wastefully burn.

Waste incident to "so, drilling equipping, locating, spacing, or operating wells" as to reduce or tend to reduce the ultimate total recovery.

The legal machinery necessary to enforce the railroad commission's order against waste was provided. Woodward charged it would be no more expeditious than, and was essentially similar to, the present machinery.

Any proration specifically was prohibited in the substitute.

Voting to substitute the Rawlings bill for the Woodward bill were Cousins, Greer, Hardin, Holbrook, Hopkins, Hornsby, Loy, Moore, Neal, Parrish, Patton, Poage, Pollard, Purl, Rawlings and Woodruff.

The Woodward bill would have placed the burden of proof on the complainant in any suit of grievance against the commission.

Woodward likewise would have required that all suits against the commission should be filed in Travis county and not elsewhere.

The administration bill also would have provided that the commission, when it was sued, should be entitled to an injunction compelling the complainant to obey its rules pending adjudication of the litigation. That right would apply until the commission was enjoined.

The substitute would levy a tax of one-tenth cent per barrel on crude petroleum production, to help pay the commission's expenses.

Woodward had contended there was a fatal weakness in the substitute's legal machinery. He claimed it would permit—like he said, the present laws permit—continued violation of commission orders pending litigation.

All through East Texas, he said, that action was being taken now—operators were running their wells "wide open" to the detriment of their neighbors, while their suits with the railroad commission were pending in the courts.

Validity Doubted

AUSTIN, Aug. 8. (AP)—An opinion from Assistant Attorney General Upchurch expressing doubt as to the constitutionality of certain provisions of the pending Woodward-Wagstaff administration oil conservation bill was read late today in the Texas senate.

The opinion emphasized that the views expressed were those of Mr. Upchurch alone and not of the entire department.

He held that a section of the bill providing an operator might take from a pool only an equitable proportion that could be produced without waste was invalid insofar as it authorized the state to curtail production to prevent inequitable withdrawals as between producers. Texas law, said Mr. Upchurch, recognizes no common ownership in an underlying oil pool.

As to another section, the assistant said it was so vague and general as to leave its meaning uncertain.

The bill, he went on, "unquestionably" contained inconsistencies. In one place, Mr. Upchurch found, it prohibited consideration of market demand in the prevention of physical waste and in another the conclusion could "not be escaped" that proration of production "in accordance with the available market" was authorized.

Provisions for litigation under the bill might be considered "usurpations of judicial power," the assistant declared, and there were many vague expressions in it.

GENERAL TRADE AND INDUSTRY SEASONAL DULL PAST WEEK

Automobile Industry One of Bright Spots in Business With Production Schedules Well Ahead of Last Month

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (UP)—Except in retail centers, with their active trade in summer goods, general trade and industry was seasonally dull during the past week.

The steel industry reported a further slight decline, and business men appeared to feel that recovery will be an uphill grind instead of a brisk rally on a sudden demand for goods.

The automobile industry was one of the brightest spots, with production schedules of all the leading manufacturers ahead of July. The industry entered the month of August with confidence that the period would make a favorable comparison with the corresponding period a year ago.

Prices were stronger in the petroleum industry and considerable interest was displayed in the result of Governor (Alfalfa Bill) Murray's forcible shutdown of the Oklahoma oil fields. Midcontinent lubricating oil manufacturers were hard put to obtain crude product for their operations.

Coal and lumber continued slack, the strike in Pennsylvania and Ohio coal fields augmenting difficulties faced by the former industry. A further decline was evident in the glass industry.

Farm Products Low

A sharp break in the cotton market to new lows since 1914 had an unsettling effect on textiles. The coarse yarn cloth market at New York showed easier quotations for print cloths, sheetings and other descriptions.

Private estimates on the grain crops were about in line with expectations, showing an increase in winter wheat and a rather sharp cut in spring wheat, due to the drouth. A remarkable change in sentiment on the Chicago board of trade late in the week brought about a brisk rally in grain prices after wheat had touched the lowest levels on record in sympathy with a decline in the Liverpool wheat market that carried prices for the grain there to the lowest levels since the time of Queen Elizabeth.

The commodity markets generally reacted to the uncertain business situation. Copper prices were dropped to the lowest levels on record at 7½ cents a pound for domestic delivery and 8 cents a pound export. Rubber made new record lows, while coffee, sugar and cotton oil all declined.

Weakness in the pound sterling was one of the features. A better feeling was in evidence regarding the German situation as result of the orderly reopening of banks in the reich and prospects of a reduction shortly in the Reichsbank's rediscount rate of 15 per cent.

Stocks firmed up after a week of irregularly lower price movements, while trading in bonds was marked by a sharp break in rails and South American issues.

Southwest Review

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 8. (UP)—A more favorable business aspect was seen in the Southwest area this week.

Soaking rains in Missouri and Kansas were factors in establishing brighter crop prospects in the two states. Missouri will harvest a bumper crop of corn this season, reported the United States department of agricultural economics. Kansas, where a complete failure had been feared, was expected to yield an average crop of 125 million bushels.

News was plentiful in the oil industry this week. Oklahoma's militant governor, W. H. Murray, issued an order closing all but stripper wells in the state. He enforced his order by calling out state troopers. They will patrol the restricted area until prices go to $1 a barrel, the price demanded by the governor.

On the other hand, Texas continued to settle its oil troubles peaceably—by legislative enactments. "Splendid headway toward the passing of conservation measures has been made," said Texas' governor in a message to Murray, when "Alfalfa Bill" asked Governor Sterling to follow his method in handling the oil situation. Late developments were not so favorable.

Zinc and lead production and receipts were steady. Zinc brought $22 a ton for prime western and lead dropped to $50 a ton at Joplin, Mo. Shipment for both metals were slightly larger than in previous weeks. Combined value was in six figures for the first time in several weeks.

Flour buying was somewhat curtailed, but spring mills increased bookings 15 per cent, according to the Northwestern Miller. Sales averaged 1222 per cent, compared to 230 a week ago. Quotations were unchanged to 15c lower. Spring wheat held relatively firm, due to small supplies of grain.

The livestock industry was erratic during the week, but prices held a better tone than for the previous month. Kansas City has more stock calves in the last five months of the year than any other two markets combined, reported a local authority.

Buildings, collections, retail and wholesale trade, savings and demand for farm labor were reported under the level of last year.

BOND MARKET HAS LOWEST TURNOVER IN LAST 12 MONTHS

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (AP)—The bond market made another new record for dullness today when sales totaled $3,358,000 on the new stock exchange, the lowest aggregate turnover for a short session since Aug. 2, 1930, when the total was $2,793,000. The previous low record for this year was established on Feb. 28, at $3,400,000.

Notwithstanding the dull trading considerable irregularity developed among prices. Foreign issues scored a number of large losses and several railroad loans reached new minimum prices for this year. The average price of the leading rails was 96.0, a decline of one-tenth of a point from the previous low reached yesterday. This is but a nominal loss but taken with other recent losses it has some significance. New 1931 low levels appeared in Colorado & Southern First 4½s, New York Central Debenture 4s of 1934, Delaware & Hudson refunding 4s, Great Northern series D 4½s, and Northern Pacific series B 6s.

Fluctuations were highly irregular among foreign obligations. Chilean Bolivian, Brazilian and Uruguayan loans scored most of the larger declines. Norwegian Bonds dropped fractions. German obligations were irregularly higher.

Issues of the United States government were firm but trading was as quiet as elsewhere in the list.

Public Utility and Industrial Bonds wavered back and forth and closed with narrow mixed changes.

TREMENDOUS DROP IN COTTON TAKES CORN TO NEW LOW

CHICAGO, Aug. 8. (AP)—Tremendous breaks in cotton prices smashed the corn market down three cents a bushel today to the lowest level reached since 1902. Wheat and other grains also suffered sudden sharp setbacks owing to sympathy with corn. The collapse of cotton resulted from amazement over a report by the United States department of agriculture estimating this season's cotton crop at almost a million and a half more bales than traders generally had expected.

Corn closed nervous at virtually the day's bottom level, 2 cents to 3½ cents under yesterday's finish, wheat 1¼@1⅝c down, oats ⅝@¾c off, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to 7 cents advance.

Wheat suffered a drop of 2⅜ cents a bushel compared with the day's top point. Wheat had scored fractional gains here owing to the Liverpool wheat market making a full response to yesterday's wheat price advances on this side of the Atlantic. Some steadying influence on wheat was also apparent because of liberal export business in North American wheat overnight, 1,500,000 bushels or more. All else was temporarily lost sight of, though, after the fall of cotton and corn.

Spot Cotton Prices

DALLAS, Aug. 8. (AP)—Cotton, 7.40; Houston, 7.85; Galveston, 7.95.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 8. (AP)—Spot cotton closed quiet and unchanged. Sales none; low middling 6.93; middling 7.83; good middling 8.33.

Cotton Goods Quiet

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (AP)—Cotton goods were quiet although somewhat firmer in the gray goods division today, business being influenced greatly on a short day by the advent of the noon cotton report. Burlap was steady and quiet. Silk goods were showing some improvement in sales. Wool goods were steady. Rayon production was being stepped up to meet demands.

Oats—No. 2 red, 24½@25½c.

OTHER ISSUES IN STOCKS UNHURT BY SELLING IN RAILS

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (AP)—Trading in the New York financial markets today was on a scale typical of mid summer Saturday. Stocks went through a perfunctory session, the dullest in more than five years. The bond turnover was the smallest since early last August.

Cotton broke badly in Chicago on publication of the government report, which came after the futures trading here had closed until Monday, and grains reacted in sympathy. On the stock exchange values of railroad securities plainly reflected the prevailing concern over earnings and dividends, but shares and loans of other descriptions were virtually unaffected. Several principal stocks, including U. S. Steel, American Can, American Telephone, Radio and Sears Roebuck closed unchanged.

New York Central, on the other hand, broke through 70 for the first time in 10 years, finishing two points off. There was a similar loss in Union Pacific and Wabash. Atchison's maximum recession was five points, while Southern Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Frisco and New Haven were down a point or more. The sales total was 290,030 shares.

General Motors' July sales statement was probably more favorable than had been expected, since it showed fair gains over the same month last year. Sales of cars to consumers were nearly 5,000 cars over July, 1930, but the seasonal drop from June was rather pronounced.

The cotton report was much more bearish than had been anticipated, being about 1,600,000 bales above private estimates. Trading in futures here, closing 10 minutes before the statement was issued, found final quotations 8 to 11 points net higher, an indication that traders had been taken quite by surprise.

KGKO INSTALLS 1000-WATT PLANT.

Test programs, broadcast after midnight, will start going out over the new 1,000-watt transmitter at station KGKO about Aug. 15. Station officials expected to begin using the new plant for regular broadcasting early in September.

The new transmitting equipment was designed by Station Engineer C. B. Locke and has been installed under his supervision. Voice input equipment of the latest design was purchased from Western Electric and only one other station in America, KMOX at St. Louis, has this modern equipment.

The transmitter has direct crystal control which prevents any variation of the transmitted wave from the frequency assigned to the station by the Federal Radio commission.

It also has 100 per cent modulation, which means that the new transmitter will give an audio signal four times the strength of that from a transmitter of the same rating but not so equipped.

Filter condensers for the transmitter were imported from Germany. Water cooled tubes of 4,000-volt size are used in this plant. The tube is enclosed in a jacket through which water is forced by a special pump.

LITTLE CHANGE IN CURB PRICES AFTER DAY DULL TRADING

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (AP)—A turnover of approximately 90,000 shares measured the extent of speculative interest in the curb market today. Prices were generally steady and although a few soft spots appeared final quotations on most principal shares represented narrow changes from the previous close.

Cities Service was steady in a substantially reduced volume. The common opened at 9, off ⅛, on a 3,500-share transaction, but prices thereafter ranged between 9⅛ and 9⅛ closing at the latter with no net change. The preferred dipped more than a point, although offerings were nominal.

Utilities were uninteresting. Pennsylvania water rallied about 3 points but otherwise fluctuations were mostly in the minor fractions. United Light "A" sagged ⅛ and Bond & Share was down ⅛ net.

General Theaters Equipment preferred broke to the new low of 3¼, reflecting the dividend uncertainties in Fox Film. Technicolor, Insurance of North America, Copeland Products, Aluminum Ltd. and Sherwin Williams were soggy but dull.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 8. (AP)—(USDA)—Strictly grain fed steers and yearlings found a fairly broad outlet around the 11-market circuit this week and advanced to new high price levels for the reason. Values on native grain feds were strong to 25c higher, finished matured steers at several points showing the full gain. There some expansion in the movement of western grass cattle, resulting in steady to unevenly lower prices on the slaughter grades. Chicago had a top of $9.40 on choice yearling steers and scored $8.90 on choice weighty beeves. Rather general rains over the corn belt stimulated demand for stockers and feeders at several markets with finishers for the first time this season showing an inclination to compete with the packers on the better kinds of western grass steers. Aggregate receipts were around 192,500, against 203,247 last week and 163,402 the corresponding period a year ago.

Hog prices continued to fluctuate considerably from day to day with trade especially erratic on strong weight butchers. Current prices at several markets are steady to 25c higher than a week ago while others show an uneven decline. Chicago had a late top of $7.90. Total offerings were around 337,400, a decrease of 10,000 from last week and 3,000 short of a year ago.

Increased receipts of sheep prompted an uneven decline on fat lambs, most markets showing losses of 15@25c. Aged stock was steady to 50c lower and feeding lambs closed steady to 25c lower. The supply approximated 314,000 as compared with 274,882 last week and 243,186 the same week a year ago.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 8. (AP)—Cattle—Receipts 50. Calves—Receipts 50. For week: Best yearlings throughout week scaled $6.50@7.50; odd head up to $8.25; bulk medium to good grass steers $4.50@5.50; canner types under $3.50@4.00; fat cows, heifers and bulls weak to 25c lower; odd head fat cows $3.75@4.00; bulk butcher sort $3@3.50; butcher heifers mostly $3@4.50; better sort $5@5.50; bulk canners and low cutters $1.75@2.25; bulls $2.50@3.00; few calves offered; fancy veals $6.50@7.00; bulk medium to good $4.50@5.50; heavy calves $4.50@5.50; white-faced yearlings and calves $5@5.50.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (AP)—Seventy-nine railroads have been assessed a total of $25,659,498.98 in excess profits for the railroad revolving fund held in the United States treasury for the benefit of less profitable lines under the recapture clause of the transportation act of 1920.

The Interstate Commerce commission has issued earning reports on 80 of the nations' 1,189 railroads covering varying periods between March 1, 1920, and Dec. 31, 1926. No reports have been issued covering the highly productive years between 1926 and 1930.

Seventy-eight of the reports making the assessments are tentative and subject to review and modification.

COVERING MOVES FILL MOST OF DAY IN COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (AP)—Cotton trading today consisted chiefly of evening up of accounts in preparation for the government crop report.

An early advance on covering was followed by partial reactions. December contracts, after selling up to 8.44, broke to 8.30 and closed at 8.31 with the general market closing steady at net advances of 8 to 11 points.

The crop report came after the close of the market here and placed the Aug. 1 condition at 74.9 and the indicated yield at 15,584,000 bales. The trade was taken completely by surprise, as the indicated yield was about 1,600,000 bales above the average of recent private crop reports.

The opening was very steady 15 to 20 points higher in response to the strength abroad, while a disposition to cover short contracts in advance of the bureau report may possibly have been increased somewhat by a bullish interpretation of the rejection of German cotton purchase proposals in Washington. This, however, had no very appreciable effect on the immediate market, which after selling up to 8.22 for October and 8.78 for March turned easier under a renewal of liquidation. Trading was moderately active at the start but comparatively quiet later with prices gradually easing off to 8.07 for October and 8.60 for March. Closing prices were only slightly up from the lowest on covering.

The official crop figures came in for much bearish comment, but few traders cared to make any definite predictions as to their effects on the general market.

The futures market at Liverpool and New Orleans as well as New York were closed before the report was issued, but reports from Chicago indicated a quick break over a cent a pound when that market reopened after the figures were published.

Liverpool cables attributed the advance there to covering, continental buying and trade calling.

New Orleans Cotton

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 8. (AP)—As the cotton market closed here today before the surprisingly large crop forecast by the government was issued, it was unaffected by that report and was swayed mainly by the process of evening up in advance of the report. The forecast of 15,584,000 bales astonished traders as it was a million and a half bales larger than the general trade expectation. The indicated yield per acre of 185.8 pounds was also considered enormous.

The market closed steady 10 minutes before the bureau report showing net advances for the day of one to five points.

Liverpool came in 8 to 9 penny points better than due and private cables stated that shorts covered and the continent bought. Manchester cabled that China bought cloth but that the home trade was disappointing. October dropped to 8.05 and December to 8.29 down. The close was at the bottom showing a net gain of one point for the day on October and a net gain of three points on December.

SHRINERS HERE PLAN FROLIC AT LAKESIDE PARK

The biggest of the outdoor frolics planned for members of Maskat temple during the summer season is that for nobles and their families to be held at Lakeside park Thursday afternoon and evening of Aug. 13, according to the announcement Saturday of J. M. Spoonts, general chairman.

Use of the swimming pool will be available to those attending the frolic between 1 and 7 p. m., through arrangements made with L. L. Allbritton. A "feed," arranged by Kindel Paulk, a band concert, arranged by Gerald Pond, and an open air vaudeville program, arranged by Clarence A. Rogers, are other features.

Half price charges will be made to Shriners and their families for admissions to concession, for boat rides and for dancing at the pavillion, is was announced. The orchestra directed by Jesse Smith will play.

Shriners have been requested to wear their fezzes. Visiting nobles have been especially invited.

PYTHIANS PREPARE FOR COLEMAN PARK PICNIC ON TUESDAY

The Texas-Oklahoma Pythian Picnic association will hold its fifth annual picnic at Coleman park near Iowa Park Tuesday.

Arrangements will be completed to take care of 500 as the estimated number that will attend, judging from the letters from the lodges of the two states. The responses received cover the territory from Tyler on the east to Wellington on the west, and from Weatherford on the south to Oklahoma City on the north.

All Pythians are invited to come with their families and any friends they may desire to bring along. The only requirement is that they bring a basket filled with good things to eat, including plenty of fried chicken.

There will be a program of speaking on Pythian topics by a number of distinguished Pythians from both Texas and Oklahoma, among whom are Royal G. Phillips, grand chancellor, and Theo. Yarbrough, grand keeper of records and seal of Texas, and Albert O. Romine G. K. R. S. of Oklahoma and a supreme representative from Oklahoma. Past Grand Chancellor Ellis P. House of Texas will also be on the program as will Rabbi S. J. Schwab of Wichita Falls.

The picnic will be an all day affair commencing with the usual games and contests in the forenoon and then a basket dinner at noon. The afternoon will be featured by the speaking program, band music and light games of croquet, horse shoes and dominoes and any others, including mumblepeg, such as might be desired. The games are under the supervision of Fred Music of Electra. Ice water and lemonade will be seved in barrels for the thirsty. The supper will be spread at 7 o'clock and then under a special lighting arrangement the festivities will continue till all are ready to leave.

CAPACITY OF REFINERY AT GRAHAM IS DOUBLED

GRAHAM, Texas, Aug. 8.—Installation of new equipment to double the capacity of the Gratex refinery here has been completed, according to the announcement of G. O. Cozart, owner and manager here Saturday. The former capacity of 100 barrels of crude daily has been increased to 200 barrels and the plant is running at full capacity, Mr. Cozart said.

Charge Attempt Being Made Ruin Mexican Fruit

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 8. (AP)—Charges that foreign fruit companies have established themselves in Mexico to destroy the country's production rather than develop it are contained in a report submitted to President Ortiz Rubio today by Gen. Juan Andreu Amazan, secretary of communications.

The report did not refer directly to American concerns, but said that the object in destroying Mexico's production was to eliminate competition which was difficult to meet in the American market.

The secretary said agents of an unnamed company had been discovered injecting banana trees in Mexico with the "Panama pest," which destroys the plant. Investigations are being made of alleged bribery of employes of the government, he said, and the president soon will be asked to deport the managing officials of the offending company.

The report contained a denouncement of "foreign capitalism" and said Mexico should protect her agricultural development to serve as an example for other weak countries, "which are beginning to organize to fight for their economic independence." In this fight, he said, they would have the sympathy of the American people, who he termed "also victims of capitalism."

ONE MAN HURT WHEN BLAZE CAUSES HEAVY LOSS IN MUNCIE, KAN.

MUNCIE, Kan., Aug. 8. (INS)—Five business buildings and two homes in this little town were in ruins today as the result of a fire late yesterday which is believed to have originated from a short circuit in a battery charging apparatus of a garage. Damage was estimated at almost $50,000.

Lawrence Pierce, operator of a restaurant which burned, is in a Kansas City, Kan., hospital suffering from injuries he received while searching for his wife, whom he believed to be in the burning building. His wife already had escaped, however. Pierce is suffering chiefly from gas fumes which were released when a refrigeration plant in the restaurant collapsed from the heat.

Several other persons, who received slight burns and were overcome by smoke, received first aid treatment without being sent to hospitals.

Fire fighting equipment was called from Kansas City, Kan., and Bonner Springs, but the firemen were seriously handicapped in checking the fire as there is no public water system in the town.

COOKING SCHOOL AT GRAHAM IS FINISHED

GRAHAM, Texas, Aug. 8.—Miss Zella Allen of Dallas has concluded a cooking school which she had been conducting here for several days. Unusual interest was shown in the school and the attendance was considerably above average, Miss Allen said.

RECENT EDITION OF CONOCO MAGAZINE DESCRIBES WICHITA

The Conoco magazine, a weekly published by the Fort Worth division of the Continental Oil company, has taken up some Texas city for discussion each week. A recent edition was devoted to attractions in the Wichita Falls area.

"Wichita Falls' greatest attractions to the lover of the out of doors are three lakes, among them being Lake Kemp, the eighth largest artificial lake in the world. They offer fishing at its best. At no time during the open season will even the amateur angler have trouble in landing his catch. These beautiful lakes furnish a mecca for the hunter during the duck season, where it is common practice for the limit to be bagged without great effort. At Lake Wichita, the smallest of the lakes, in addition to fishing and boating, the pleasure lover will find amusement of every kind in Lakeside park, the new half-million dollar resort.

"Golf courses which are among the sportiest in the country are at the disposal of the visitor. Swimming pools and parks offer a delightful rest, especially for the children, and a municipally-owned zoo will thrill every child who finds time to visit it.

"Those who visit Wichita Falls for the first time are often anxious to learn just how the city got its name. Legend tells us of an Indian tribe crossing the Wichita river for the first time and being desirous of learning the depth sent a squaw into the water. Upon reaching the deepest part the squaw shouted "Wichita" an Indian word meaning waist deep. The falls on Wichita river have long since washed away, but old citizens are proud to recount historic incidents which occurred near these falls. The bluff where the beautiful Memorial auditorium now rests is where the white man took an advantageous position against the Indians in the valley below which aided greatly in driving them further west. The location of Wichita Falls was ever a favorite with the Indians, believing as they did that along the Wichita river no tornado or cyclone would ever strike."

Health Forces Dr. Frank S. White Noted Specialist, to Leave Here

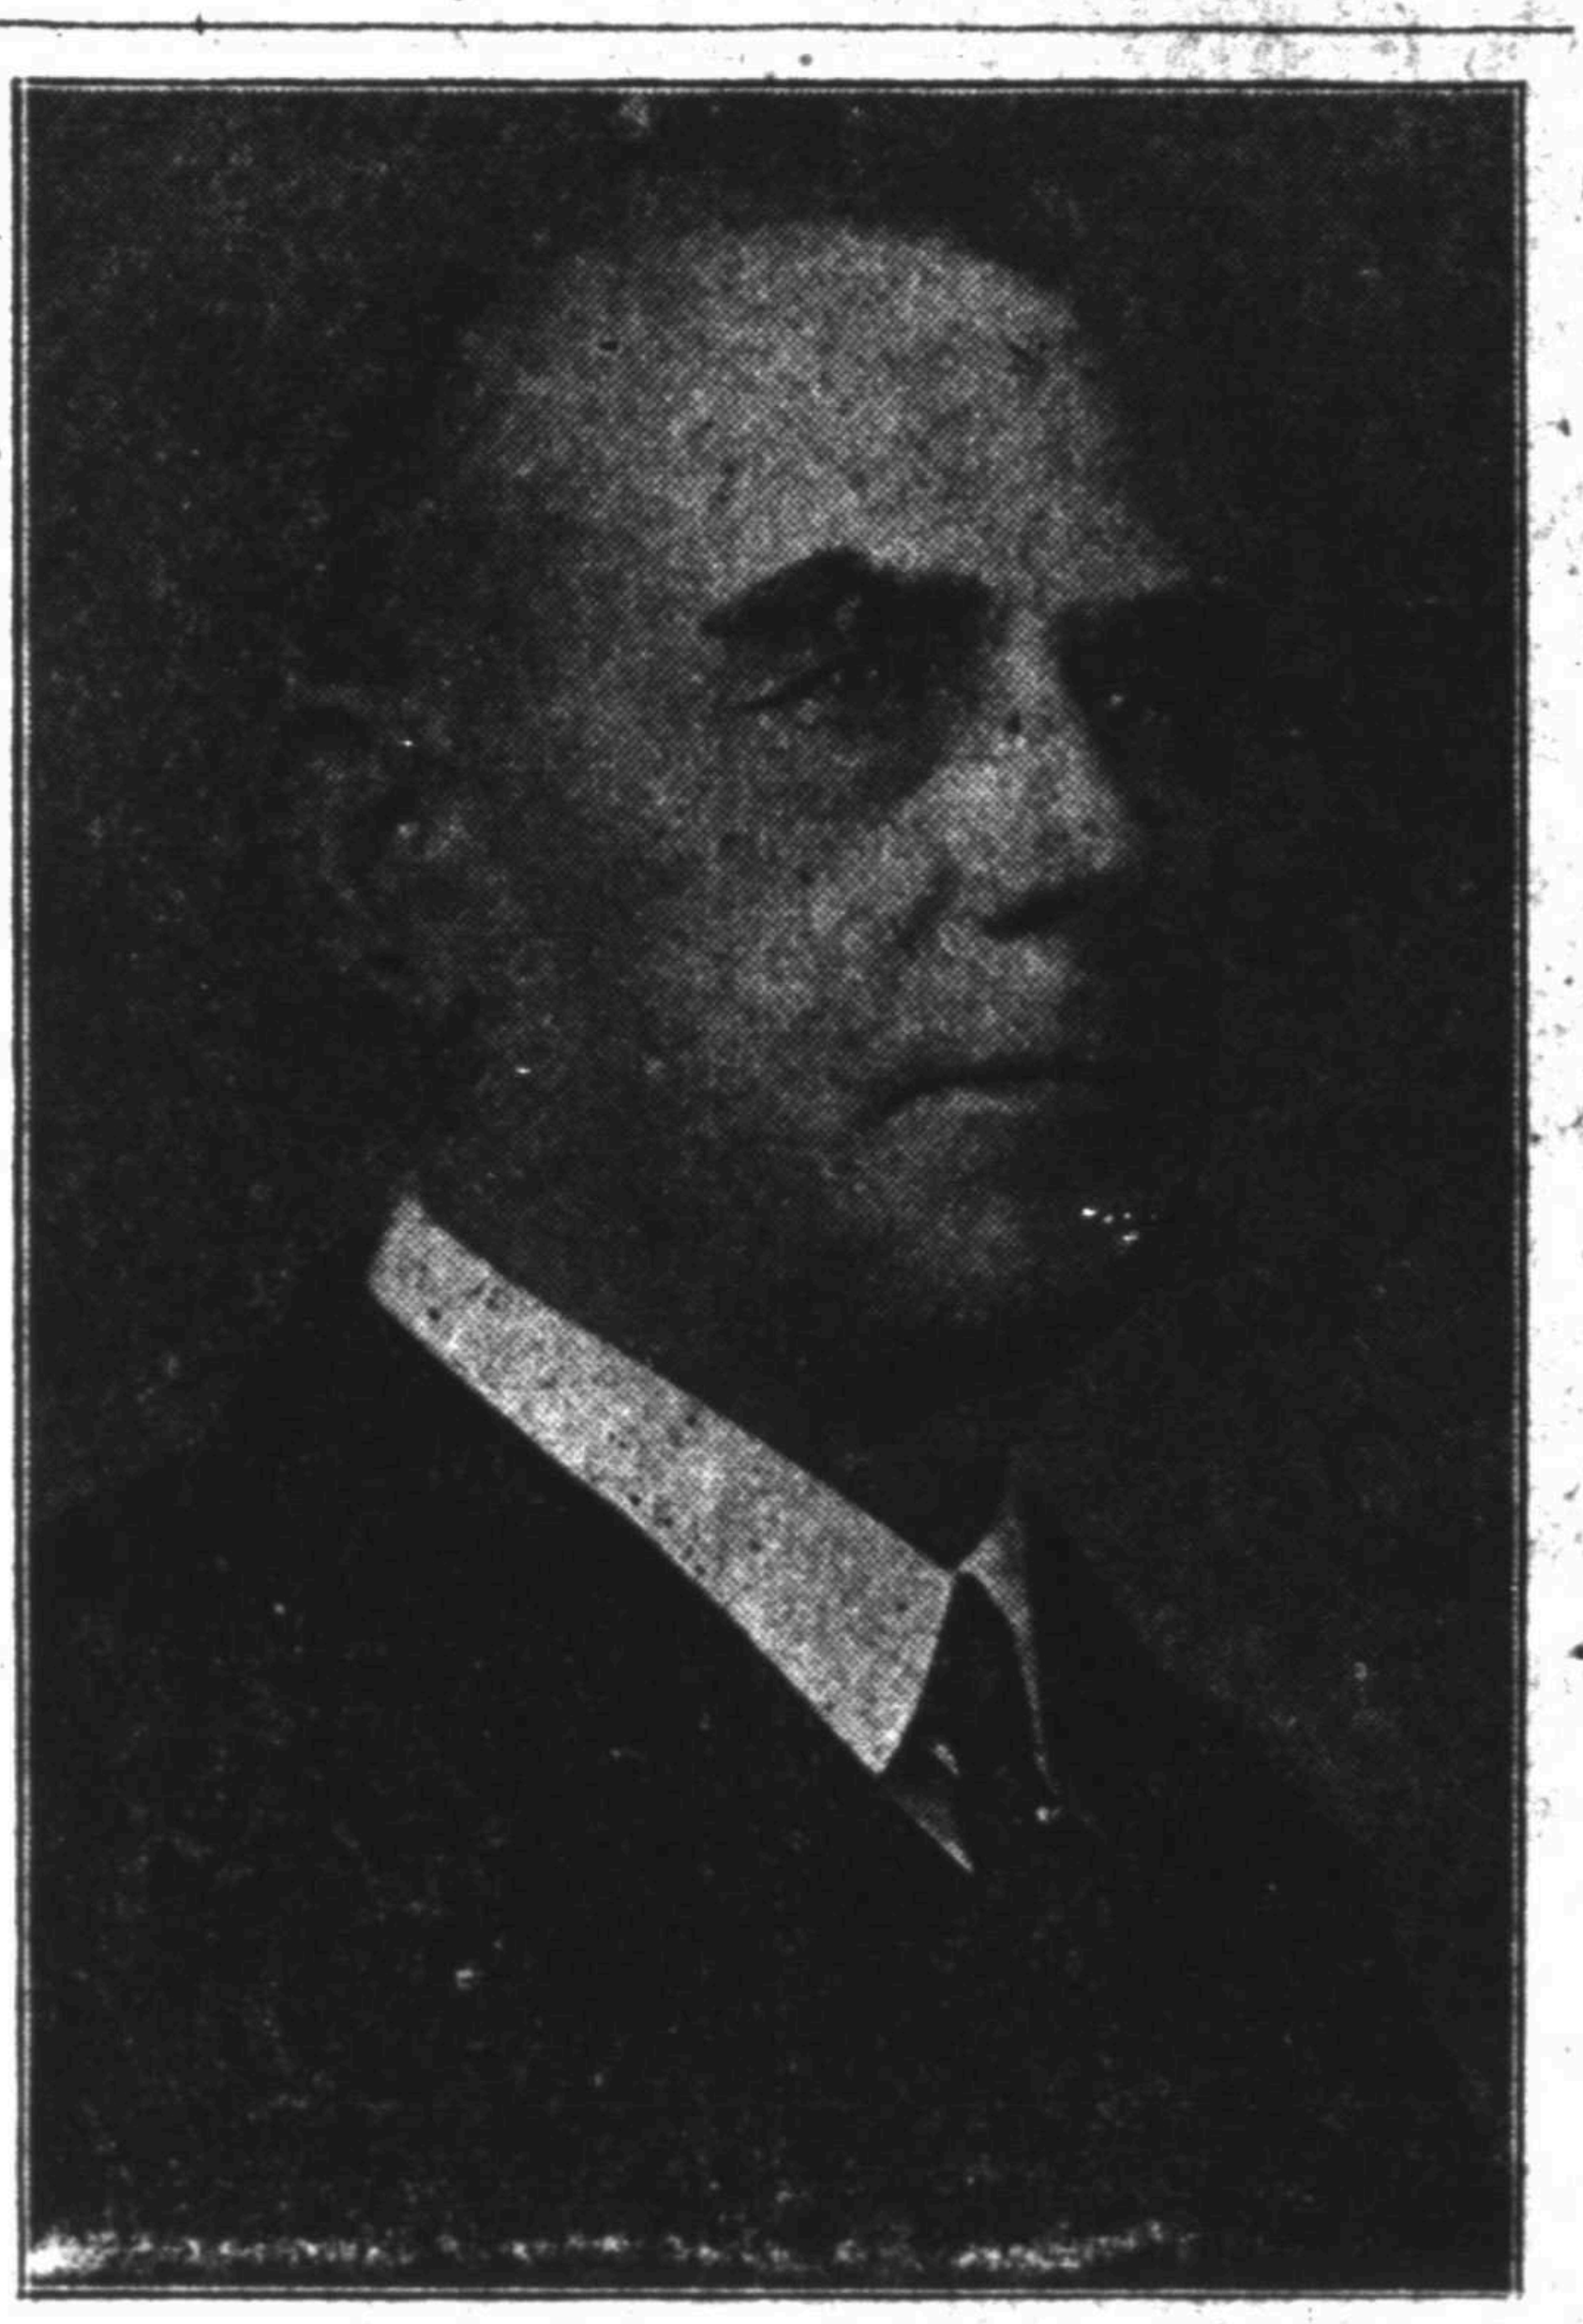
The formal announcement that Dr. Frank S. White, widely recognized as an authority on mental and nervous diseases, has been forced by ill health to sever his connection with the private sanitarium bearing his name at the southeast edge of the city and that he and Mrs. White will depart for San Antonio in the next few days to make their home was made here Saturday.

The institution, it also was announced, will continue to be known as Dr. White's sanitarium and will be operated in future as in the past. The sanitarium will be under the supervision of Dr. C. W. Stevenson, who announced, however, that definite plans for the future operation of the institution probably will be made in the next few days.

The necessity of Dr. White's departure brought expressions of regret from those with whom he has been associated in his profession as well as from leading citizens of the community.

During the 47 years that Dr. White has specialized in the treatment of mental and nervous diseases, he has attained recognition as one of the South's foremost authorities on cases of that nature. Much of his career has been devoted to public service and at various times he has been superintendent of state hospitals at Austin, Terrell, San Antonio and Wichita Falls.

He and Mrs. White have been residents here since 1921, and since 1926 he has operated the private sanitarium.



DR. FRANK S. WHITE

Reared Near Decatur

From early boyhood it was Dr. White's ambition to practice the profession which he now has followed for nearly half a century and in which he has attained emminence. The ambition remained deep-rooted during his boyhood on a farm near Decatur, while he "punched cattle" in the vicinity of Wichita Falls and as he assisted in surveying the route for the Fort Worth and Denver railway.

Dr. White was born near Decatur As he approached manhood, he found employment as a cowboy on ranches in various sections of Northwest Texas.

When plans were being made for the construction of the Fort Worth and Denver, he became a member of the engineering corps which made a survey of the various routes being considered between Fort Worth and the Canadian river. From that group another corps of engineers was chosen to survey the route which the Denver followed. Dr. White was a member of that group.

Money earned while employed in the railroad work made possible the realization of Dr. White's ambition to practice medicine. He entered the Central College of Physicians and Surgeons at Indianapolis, graduating in 1884. During vacation periods, he found employment as an attendant at the Indiana state hospital for the insane and his experiences there caused him to decide to specialize in the treatment of mental and nervous diseases.

Soon after graduation he returned to Texas and in 1885 was appointed assistant superintendent of the state hospital at Terrell, then one of the two state institutions of the kind in Texas. He retained the position for seven years, until his appointment by Gov. Stephen Hogg as superintendent of the state hospital at Austin.

Practiced in Terrell.

After remaining in Austin several years, he resigned to enter upon private prictice in Terrell. In 1911, however, he again returned to public service with his appointment as superintendent of the state hospital at San Antonio. After an interval he again returned to Terrell, only to be "drafted" as superintendent of the Wichita Falls state hospital when it was established in 1921.

When he arrived here to take charge of the institution, only the vacant buildings—nine of them—stood upon the site of the hospital opposite Lake Wichita. Upon him devolved largely the responsibility of equipping the structures, of making the initial preparation for the expansion which was certain to come, of perfecting the organization for the work to be done. He supervised the routing and construction of driveways and sidewalks on the hospital grounds. He designed the general plan of buildings of the institution which still is being followed, and which is said to have been duplicated by other similar institutions.

Dr. White severed his connection with the state hospital here after about four years and had about completed his preparations to move away when he again found himself "drafted" as a citizen of Wichita Falls. A group of local business men, appreciative of Dr. White's ability and believing that a private sanitarium was needed here, persuaded him to remain as the head of such an institution. Bonds were issued to finance the construction of the modern sanitarium now situated upon a beautifully landscaped tract at the southeastern edge of the city limits.

Opens Sanitarium

The sanitarium was opened in 1926 and, according to those in position to know, has been a remarkable success from every standpoint. Primarily, the record of the success in treating of patients has been above expectations. Likewise, it was declared, it has been a success from a financial standpoint. It is described as one of the most modern institutions of its kind to be found anywhere, ideally situated and equipped for the treatment of cases requiring highly specialized attention.

Whatever success the institution has attained is attributed by Dr. White himself to Mrs. White. She has been with Dr. White constantly and she designed the landscaping of the grounds about the building.

Dr. White's physical breakdown of several months ago, according to those associated with him, was due to his rigid adherence to the unwritten code of his profession to sacrifice self to respond to calls.

During his career, Dr. White has been called, perhaps hundreds of times, to give expert testimony in law suits. Several months ago he was asked to appear as an expert witness in a suit being tried in a nearby city involving a large sum of money. Dr. White remained there several days, gave his testimony, and returned to Wichita Falls only to find that he had contracted influenza.

Contracts Illness

Soon after his return and while still ill, Dr. White was asked to return and again testify. Informed that it probably would be necessary to declare a mistrial of the case unless he did appear, Dr. White gave his testimony.

He became seriously ill soon after, and his health has been bad for about four months, although it has shown great improvement during recent weeks. There were times during his illness when his condition was critical.

Dr. White's present plans are to retire completely from practice until he has more full regained his health. Later, he may return to a limited consultation practice.

Despite the demands made upon him by his professional work, Dr. White has shouldered a multitude of other responsibilities. He has been active as a member of the Rotary club here and in various other civic affairs. He has contributed papers frequently to professional publications and on numerous occasions has appeared on programs of meetings of various medical societies of which he is a member.

"Mrs. White and I shall always cherish the memory of pleasant years as citizens of Wichita Falls," Dr. White explained. "It is with a feeling of genuine regret that circumstances have made our removal necessary. It is one of the most splendid little cities to be found anywhere, and I have no doubt as to its future.

"I wish also to express my appreciation to the medical profession not only in Wichita Falls, but the whole of North Texas and Southern Oklahoma, for the cooperation they have unfailingly given."

Births reported to the city health department for the week ended Aug. 8, according to Dr. H. D. Fillmore, city physician and registrar, were as follows:

Boy Scout News

Troop No. 8, meeting at the Grant Street Methodist church with C. E. Rhoads, scoutmaster, spent the week-end at the scout camp on Diversion lake. Mr. Rhoads took 10 scouts with him Friday to the camp and Saturday 10 Boy Rangers went to the camp. The boys will come in to town Sunday afternoon. Those accompanying Mr. Rhoads, besides the boys, were Mrs. Rhoads and daughter, Louise, and Mrs. Bridges. Time will be spent in fishing and passing many tests, Mr. Rhoads said.

Tuesday afternoon the boys' baseball teams of the park department will have a swim at Westmoreland swimming pool, and as many boys as possible that have the scout life saving badge are asked to help Mr. Robertson. Those that do not have transportation are asked to be at the auditorium Tuesday at 1 p. m. Any scout that can go is requested to call the scout office not later than Monday afternoon, at 2-2183.

YEH, BY GOL! PLENTY O' MORTGAGES, AN PLENTY O WHEAT!
WHEAT AS FAR AS THE EYE CAN SEE.

By WILL ROGERS

Well all I know is just what I read in the papers. Been under the weather and been doing nothing but reading, and taking some pills, and trying to talk the Doctor out of some more grub. Good deal of debts have gone under the Auctioneers hammer since I last cummuned with you, both private and National and International. Germany got a Moratorium, the Big International Bankers got theirs guaranteed, Taxpayers got another assessment, and the Famers got exactly what everybody had been predicting they would get—two bits for their wheat. But we are told that indirectly this good that we did Germany will trickle to get through the weeds and mortgages.

Course here is one thing where the Farm Board is right: (I havent heard that in so long that it scared me when I wrote it down) They told the Farmers Not to plant so much wheat, they said there was going to be a big supply this fall, and you knew yourself that they hadent sold last years crop. So I kinder string with the Farm Board in that. You know the Farmers dont use their own heads a whole lot. Some of em dont even use anybodys.

Now it was last year that the Farm Board bought up all this wheat, and had nothing to do with it. From the day they started buying the first bushel it started going down, and no matter how fast they bought, it went down faster. Well there you was. You hadent put in this years wheat yet. Now Russia had an awful big mess of it, and if you read, you know that they would lose money on it in order to take away some one else's market, especially us. You knew that they would perhaps under the five year plan put in more wheat than ever before, because they aint supposed to know how to raise anything else.

Now the Argentine had a bumper crop. They had their last year's crop still to sell. Then you got to take into consideration that every country both big and little that havent heretofore raised wheat, knowing they were at the mercy of these few big powers, have encouraged raising all that their folks could. Italy and England raise a lot more than they used too; not near enough but it all counts up.

Now then here is the Farm Board with their millions of bushels. Granaries full of private wheat. The worst depression in years. Now I just want to ask one question. What in the World made any Farmer think that things could possibly be any better than they was when he planted the wheat? Had he been listening to Chamber of Commerce speeches? How did any one think that just over night we was going like we used too? What was there to look forward to that was going to raise everyone out of the dumps any more than there is something to look forward to that is going to lift us out overnight now—not even overnight but over a year? So why would a man, knowing the amount of wheat that was going to be on the market the next year, knowing that nobody was going to have anything to buy it with if they did want it, why would he go and gamble everything he had in more wheat?

We used to think that a Wheat Farmer was smarter than a Cotton Farmer, and the Wheat one thinks so yet, (Well maby not now). But, by golly, it looks like there aint no way to get any people to cut down on anything as long as they think the other fellow ought to do the cutting down first. There is some excuse for the Cotton Planter, especially the renter one, for he has to put in what he is told to or else, and he hasn't enough machinery and stock to put in anything else. But with the wheat Farmer its most generally a man that is his own boss. He generally owns the land, or has it rented to do with what he likes.

So it looks like he is going to do the same as the South has with its cotton, just go broke with it and be buried right in the patch, but he is going to plant plenty of cotton. You know there is few things that even the government cant protect you against, even if they wanted too, unless they send you to an asylum. Now here is where the government made their mistake; they said "Don't raise so much wheat," so you raised it, and they can't say they "told you not to." But they dident tell you NOT to raise anything, and everything else has been as low as wheat. See? That's what they should have done. They should have said, "Don't raise a thing only what you can eat yourself." You should have let your land gain a year, you would have saved all your seed wheat, or corn, or oats, and while you wouldent have made anything you wouldent have lost anything.

But the Gag now is not to raise anything only that fits your appetite. Then the prices don't worry you. The Republicans dont fret you. The Democrats dont preach at you. Just raise all you can eat and let the low prices go by.

THINK out this matter of how to dispose of your life insurance money for yourself. Why follow the traditional method of leaving it in a lump sum, when there is a better way?

The Life Insurance Trust offers you this better way. It gives you the right to say how the proceeds of your life insurance should be invested, how the income should be paid, for how many years and to whom.

You can go even further: You can direct us, as trustee, to hold part of the invested money in reserve to take care of family needs and emergencies which you can foresee may arise in the years to come.

By this flexible feature of the Life Insurance Trust you can project your wishes into the future, and with us as trustee you can be certain that these wishes will be carried out—in spirit and in fact.

If this plan appeals to you as logical and desirable in your case, come in. We will be glad to explain the details.

Making a Gift An Unmixed Blessing

Many a gift of money, securities, or property intended to insure the permanent happiness of a son, daughter, nephew, or grandchild, has been withheld through the fear that youth or limited business experience would prove inadequate to its proper conservation.

A Voluntary or Living Trust removes all need of such hesitancy. The gift can be placed with this company in trust, leaving to our careful and efficient management the protection of the principal and the maintenance of its earning power. Thus the gift will convey all of its intended benefits without imposing the burden of financial care upon inexperienced shoulders.

Permanence

More than five thousand years ago, the great rulers of Egypt erected as monuments to their vanity, the obelisks and pyramids and Sphinx that may still be seen standing nobly and eloquently in the sands of the desert. ¶ These baffling phenomena have withstood the ages and the elements because of the engineering genius, the patient workmanship, the boundless wealth that created them. ¶ Today, man believes in another kind of permanence. Today, an institution endures because of its ideals, because of its desire and capacity to serve. ¶ The City National Bank is such an institution. Its present building may give way to another, and still another, but the institution will endure, a credit to its community and founders.
