Noted Republicans support state tax hike

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — On the eve of a House vote on deep spending cuts, two prominent Republicans endorsed Gov. Mark White's plan to balance the budget with a special session tax increase.

Flanking White at a news conference on the lawn of the Governor's Mansion Thursday, former Gov. John Connally and Houston banker Ben Love said opponents to the tax plan, such as House Speaker Gib Lewis and Republican gubernatorial candidate Bill Clements, are trying to avoid the inevitable.

"The sooner we face up to it the better," said Connally, who plans to support Clements in the November election against White. "I think Governor Clements happens to be wrong. He's a great guy, but he's not infallible."

Love said he will back White in the fall. "We must pass the tax and be a responsible state," he said.

The group spoke to reporters after a bipartisan meeting in the mansion with more than 80 of the state's top business leaders. White said he explained to the gathering why he supports a temporary sales tax increase along with budget cuts to solve the $3.5 billion deficit.

"We didn't hear one word of dissent," White said.

Meanwhile, a Wall Street investment banker told a Senate committee Thursday morning that Lewis' so-called Band Aid plan to temporarily patch up the Texas Treasury with budget cuts and bookkeeping maneuvers will damage the state's highly rated financial reputation. House floor debate on the first $632.3 million in cuts begins today.

"A budget can only be balanced by having real revenues and real expenditures equaling each other," Franklin Raines, senior partner with Lazard-Freres, said after warning the Senate Finance Committee about the dangers of a House plan to take $1 billion from the state's education trust funds.

"The credibility of the state is at stake, and in the financial world that is a precious commodity," Raines told the committee. The House plan to spend stock profits from the Permanent School Fund and Permanent University Fund, Raines said, could have "a devastating effect" on the state's bond ratings and on its credibility on Wall Street in the future.

"It is very easy to have your rating reduced, and very hard to have it increased," Raines said, pointing out that New York City is still battling back from its 1975 bankruptcy.

Lewis said he has moved the fund transfer plan "back on the back burner," taking it off the list of proposals he has to keep the state solvent until the regular legislative session begins in January. Although he doesn't know where he will make up that $1 billion, Lewis remained adamant about refusing to pass a tax bill during the special session.

"We're still trying to do the job that we have before us with available funds that we have and (that) we can transfer into the general revenue," he said. "We're way away from that final conclusion (taxes). I never say, 'Never,' but I just say that that's the last thing we can do."

White said he believes Lewis and the House Ways and Means Committee will listen when Texans let House members know that they will support a tax increase.

"I am respectful of his position," the governor said. "He's taking the time to make the right choice, and I am confident he will."

Raines said Texas' $3.5 billion deficit has caught the eye of the New York financial community.

"It's not a jaundiced eye," he said. "People tend to think the state's going to come out all right."

But Raines warned that Wall Street would frown at temporary plans such as dipping into the education trust funds.

Texas needs "real measures, permanent in nature and comprehensive in effect," he said. "Reliance on one-time measures, similar to an individual relying on selling assets to buy groceries, tends to undermine the state's financial credibility."

Meese: U.S. drug agent beaten by Mexican police

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Edwin Meese today confirmed that a U.S. drug agent had been beaten by Mexican state police and said the United States is "not going to stand for this kind of conduct."

Meese, appearing on NBC-TV's "Today" show, called the beating of Drug Enforcement Administration officer Victor Cortez Jr. on Wednesday "a most serious and very disturbing occurrence," but hastened to add that the action "does not represent either the approach or the commitments we have received from the president of Mexico and the attorney general there" to combat drug trade along the U.S.-Mexican border.

Meese spoke one day after Mexican President Miguel de la Madrid ended a two-day official visit to Washington, during which he pledged to President Reagan his cooperation in the administration's efforts to fight drug trafficking.

The attorney general said the United States is working with Mexican authorities and "we have the assurances of the Mexican attorney general that they will investigate and get to the bottom of this — as we are."

But, Meese added, "there's no question that our agent was badly treated, and we're not going to stand for this kind of conduct."

This was the second incident involving U.S. drug agents in Mexico. DEA special agent Enrique Camarena Salazar was kidnapped in February 1985. He was later found slain and a top Mexican drug dealer now in custody is suspected of masterminding the killing.

Cortez, who was flown out of Mexico to Tucson, Ariz. today, was seized in the neighborhood where Camarena was kidnapped.

Will drug booty fund jail?

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Nueces County Sheriff James T. Hickey has so much money confiscated in narcotics raids that he proposes to buy an old school building and turn it into a jail.

Hickey wants to buy the building and make it a minimum security facility.

He's got the cash — nearly three-quarters of a million dollars.

The sheriff's department has $740,725.86 on deposit at a local bank, money seized by deputies in eight narcotics raids.

Hickey will propose to the Nueces County Commissioners Court that the department buy the old Savage Elementary School in Corpus Christi. The purchase and renovation would cost an estimated $450,000, he said.

The sheriff won't be able to spend the money until the cases are disposed of in state district courts. But Hickey said he is confident that the money will be released.

Money accumulated by the sheriff's department through narcotics raids may be spent by the sheriff for law enforcement purposes. The funds are audited by the county auditor.

The proposed minimum security facility for about 90 prisoners is in addition to the planned $3 million expansion of the Nueces County Jail. Part of the funding for that project will come from a bond issue approved by voters last November.

The expansion will add 144 beds to the county jail, giving it a capacity of 435.

A minimum security prison is needed, Hickey said, because some prisoners need to be segregated from the general inmate population.

The problem at the jail now is more than not having enough beds, he said.

"Any time I have more than 275 prisoners, I have a problem in classifying and segregating prisoners," Hickey said.

He said he is in violation of the Texas jail standards most of the time because he can't keep all prisoners segregated according to classes, such as first offenders, youth offenders, misdemeanor offenders and felony offenders.

Woman 'owes her life' to 4-year-old son

The Bright Side

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Ramona Easton says she owes her life to her 4-year-old son, who knew what to do when he found his diabetic mother lying unconscious on the floor of the family home.

John Easton remembered what he'd been taught about dialing the 911 emergency telephone number, and that's what he did Wednesday.

"I'm glad he dialed the number," Mrs. Easton said. "My husband doesn't get home until 5 o'clock. If he hadn't called 911, I would have been hours in shock and I would've been far gone by the time he got home."

"There's an emergency," John told dispatcher Kim Ellis in a conversation tape recorded at the dispatch center.

"What's wrong?" she asked him.

John didn't know that Mrs. Easton had taken an overdose of insulin and had lapsed into a diabetic coma, but he explained to the dispatcher that she was lying on the floor.

"Can you see if you can wake your mother up? And I'm going to try to trace your address," Ellis said.

"Wake up! Wake up!" John yelled. "...She won't wake up."

Normally, a computer immediately pinpoints the location of a 911 caller, but the Eastons hadn't lived at the house long enough for the address to be in the system. Ellis kept John on the phone 10 minutes until he was able to remember the address, and paramedics were sent to the scene.

"He was real calm," Ellis said. "When I asked him how old he was and he said he was 4, I was really surprised."

Single? Try shopping at a 'meet market'

By LAWRENCE KILMAN

MARSHFIELD, Mass. (AP) — There's something new in the supermarket for singles besides frozen pasta and soup for one. Love and lust are there too.

The new package is called singles night, and it's the hottest idea in the supermarket business. On the special nights, Price Choppers and Shop 'n Bags and Purity Supremes become meet markets.

At an Angelos supermarket in this town of 3,300, men in Hawaiian shirts and women in hot pink dresses turned out Wednesday for singles night. A disc jockey near the produce section played tapes of Madonna, Michael Jackson and Dire Straits while couples danced in the aisles. A juggler tossed frozen pizza.

About 800 people stuck on name tags between 7 p.m. and 11 p.m., with a 4-to-1 woman-to-man ratio.

"It sure breaks the ice," said Nancy Malinkowski, 36, who drove 46 miles from Wareham. "I hate to sound stereotypical, but I'm not into the nightclub and bar scene. There's only so many things you can do alone. You have to go shopping. It's a great way to meet people."

One of the first supermarket chains to try singles night was Price Chopper, an upstate New York company with 58 stores in four Northeastern states. Five times since November, singles in Albany, Syracuse, and Schenectady, N.Y., Scranton, Pa., and Pittsfield, Mass., have cruised the aisles of Price Choppers looking for breakfast cereal and maybe someone to share it with.

They played ice-breaking games, sought out grooming experts, sampled free products, and even tried aerobic workouts.

Leach, UT System officials plead for limited budget cuts

By JIM WARREN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Univerisity of Texas System officials Thursday pleaded with Senate leaders to go easy on their budgets or risk lowering standards in higher education.

Dr. Duane Leach, president of the University of Texas of the Permian Basin, said he remains optimistic that the Senate will propose cuts far smaller than those the House prefers.

The House Appropriations Committee has recommended slicing $1.283 million from UTPB's budget, a 14.58 percent reduction. The Senate Finance Committee, however, postponed making specific recommendations.

"We think there are going to be ongoing negotiations," Leach said. "and the cuts won't be as severe as 13 percent," the level Gov. Mark White urged all state agencies to cut.

"We're hopeful the cuts will be shaved down to six or seven percent," Leach said.

Jess Hay, UT System Board of Regents chairman, told senators that universities already accepted cuts in the last two legislative sessions. Lawmakers should not try to balance the budget on the back of higher education.

House-proposed cuts, Hay said, "would constitute a full-scale and debilitating retreat from gains we've made in higher education. We would severely and negatively impair the quality and quantity of education for the System's 118,000 students."

Hay said universities have deferred major expenditures, trimmed payrolls and started other cost-saving measures and now are "to the guts."

Universities cannot recruit quality professors from other states or compete for research grants if Texas continues to cut higher education, he said.

At UTPB, Leach said cuts have come from non-academic areas. "Well, we water the grass every other week instead of every week, wash the windows less," he said.

The House Appropriations Committee's plan also takes money from two trust funds — the Permanent University Fund and Permanent School Fund for public education. But the Senate panel assured UT officials they will not support a raid on those funds, which historically have been off-limits to legislators.

City urges church to move shelter

SAN BENITO (AP) — City officials urged the Catholic Church to move a shelter for Central Americans out of a residential area before dissension between townspeople and shelter residents erupts into violence.

About 150 residents of this far South Texas town — some of whom clashed with shelter residents in a "mob scene" last week — packed a special City Commission meeting Thursday and asked that the shelter be relocated.

"Everybody wants them out of there," Mayor Cesar Gonzalez said. "They talked a lot about loading guns. We're just afraid somebody's going to get killed and we just want to do something before it happens."

City commissioners voted unanimously Thursday to ask church officials to move the shelter out of the residential area within 10 days.

City officials said a resolution calling for relocation of the shelter would be delivered today to the Rev. John J. Fitzpatrick, bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese in Brownsville, which opened the shelter in December 1982.

San Benito is in the Rio Grande Valley, about 20 miles north of Brownsville, the southern-most city in Texas.

Local residents and residents of Casa Oscar Romero — named after the slain archbishop of San Salvador — have had skirmishes since the diocese opened it in December 1982 to provide temporary accommodations for Central Americans passing into the United States from their war-torn countries.

In the latest confrontation, several local residents and shelter residents fought in the streets.

The brouhaha ended with about 150 shelter residents chasing the locals through the neighborhood. Police arrested 14 people and continue to investigate what prompted the incident, Sgt. Juan Cardoza said.

"There were some irate people at that meeting demanding that the casa be moved," commissioner Carlos Salinas said.

"We had an incident there last Friday night that turned into a mob scene. People have armed themselves. They said something like what happened Friday night is not going to happen again. They said they're going to have their guns loaded," Salinas said.

He added, "It's a very volatile situation. I think it's going to deteriorate if something isn't done. We want it moved as quickly as humanly possible."

Church spokesman Hernan Gonzalez said church officials will have to look at the resolution before deciding what to do.

Salinas said he didn't know how much weight a resolution carries, but said city officials would do all they could to get the shelter to relocate.

"They are in violatiion of city health codes and we're going to do everything in our power to get them out," Salinas said. "Hopefully, they'll abide by our request."

Brazil fears shift of cocaine center

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — U.S.-backed operations against drug producers in Bolivia have some authorities here worried that Brazil could be turned into South America's next big cocaine center.

After U.S. helicopter-support forces entered Bolivia in July to help in a crackdown on cocaine processors, the Brazilian government sent army, air force and federal police forces to the western Amazon jungle in an attempt to prevent drug traffickers from sneaking across the border.

"There's a general fear that as pressure builds in Bolivia, Colombia and Peru, the traffickers will move into the vast areas of Brazil that are so hard to police," George Brown, narcotics coordinator at the U.S. Embassy in Brasilia, said in an interview.

The U.S. government is increasing aid to Brazilian anti-drug programs and works closely with local police through an office of the Drug Enforcement Administration at the U.S. Embassy.

For now, Brazil has no plans to call in outside help to combat cocaine traffic. But there appears to be general agreement that the problem is getting worse.

"We can feel there is an increase in trafficking of the drug," Federal Police Chief Romeu Tuma said in an interview with The Associated Press.

The federal police say they seized just under 1,250 pounds of cocaine last year, up from 215 pounds in 1981. In the first six months of this year, police claim to have seized nearly 700 pounds.

But Tuma said that was just a small fraction of the cocaine that passes through this country, which is bigger than the 48 continental United States.

"Anybody who talks about volume is guessing," he said. "How can we know if we don't find it?"

For years, Brazil was a minor player in South America's cocaine trade. Producers in Bolivia, Peru and Colombia used Brazil mainly as a route to get the drug to markets in the United States and Europe.

But as foreign governments began to crack down on drug production, some traffickers tried to shift operations to Brazil.

In 1985, police carried out a nationwide series of raids against Colombian drug dealers they said had moved into Brazil. The campaign, called Operation Eccentric, resulted in the arrest of more than 80 people and the dismantling of hidden cocaine laboratories extending from the Amazon jungle to the industrialized south.

Tuma said the operation broke the Colombian connection. But he added that the problem of foreign drug invasions continues and could get worse because of the operations in Bolivia.

Brazil's concern is its western border, a sparsely populated frontier that extends more than 3,000 miles through often-uncharted wilderness along Bolivia, Peru and Colombia.

In this remote region, cocaine and unrefined coca-leaf paste are brought into Brazil by way of rivers, lonely dirt roads and clandestine air strips. Normally just 50 to 60 federal police agents patrol the huge area.

"We couldn't stop drug traffic here even with the entire army forming a human barrier," Tuma said.

Evidence that the traffic continues strong appeared in June, when federal police at Rio de Janeiro's international airport seized 220 pounds of pure cocaine in swimming pool filters bound for Belgium. The cocaine had been freshly refined, indictating that it probably was processed in a nearby laboratory.

Juarez Tavares, the federal prosecutor in the trial of three men arrested with the seized cocaine, said, "There is not the slightest doubt that Brazil is an important center for the refining of the drug."

Meese described the two incidents as "isolated."

"These are exceptions to what has been a day-to-day working relationship that our people have had with the officials particularly of the attorney general's office in Mexico and the police officials that are working for him," Meese said.

"The Mexican authorities have removed from office many police officials, many prosecutors, many judges; they have arrested others; they are prosecuting a number of people down there. So we are very hopeful that the cooperation we have been pledged will be a reality," he added.

In Mexico City, the chief spokesman for the federal attorney general's office said Cortez was "held one or two hours while he was identified."

"A report that he was beaten is false," said Francisco Fonseca, the chief spokesman, who added that he had no other details.

The attorney general's office in the Mexican state of Jalisco said Thursday that Cortez was picked up when his stakeout of a house in Guadalajara, 300 miles northwest of Mexico City, aroused neighbors' suspicions, but was released unharmed after two hours of questioning.

Meese and Vice President George Bush on Thursday held a news conference to announce "Operation Alliance," a program in cooperation with Mexico to stem drug smuggling across the 2,000-mile border. Meese said it would be "the most widespread interdiction program on our land borders in law enforcement history."

U.S. officials said the new U.S.-Mexico program will include hundreds of new federal agents and millions of dollars worth of sophisticated equipment.

The focus of the program will be to expand investigations of large drug trafficking rings and drug money-laundering operations, Meese said at the news conference.

About 35 percent of the heroin, 30 percent of the marijuana and 30 percent of the cocaine coming into the United States comes from Mexico.

The Defense Department will provide radar surveillance and intelligence gathering, while the National Guard will fly agents of the Drug Enforcement Administration in helicopters.

And although the county jail capacity is currently 291, Hickey said it often reaches 400.

"Expansion is two years away. I've got a problem now. The day they open the expansion I'll be able to fill the beds in both," Hickey told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times.

Hickey said he has already negotiated with the school building's owners, B.E. Beecroft and Fred W. Heldenfels III, for purchase of the property. Hickey said he has asked architect Robert Kipp to make renovation estimates.

Beecroft and Heldenfels bought the property from the city school district after the school was closed in 1980.

Though the money is in a sheriff's account, the capital expenditure must be approved by Commissioners Court.

County Judge Robert N. Barnes said he would rather have a minimum security facility closer to the courthouse. Savage School is about three miles west.

In addition to the $740,000 the sheriff has available to spend, he expects to receive $338,000 from federal narcotics cases that are the result of arrests by a task force of law enforcement officers.

The task force is composed of five of Hickey's deputies, two city police officers, one agent of the Texas Department of Public Safety and one agent of the Drug Enforcement Administration.

The sheriff's department, Hickey said, also has 48 vehicles seized by the department. He expects most of them to be forfeited to him for department use or sale.

LOVE

Purity Supreme, a Boston-based chain with 63 stores, including Angelos, has also had success.

"The first night we did it, it was nutso," said Michael J. Mahoney, a spokesman for the chain. "I walked out and it looked like a nuclear war. People were crowding in to register. The police had to barricade the parking lot because traffic had backed up onto Route 128."

Dick Syatt, the "singles guru" of Boston who has a call-in radio show and a newspaper column, said singles nights work because "the supermarket is the most comfortable atmosphere they can find and they can be themselves. It's completely unpretentious."

At the Shop 'n Bag in Cherry Hill, N.J., sales increased 72 percent on a singles night. IGA in State College, Pa., and Star Market in East Providence, R.I., held singles nights, and Pathmark in New Jersey and Stop 'n' Shop in Boston are considering doing the same.

One reason why the supermarkets started the get-togethers is that singles represent a growing share of their receipts.

"The census bureau says that half of all households in the country are one- and two-person households," said Karen Brown, a spokeswoman for the Food Marketing Institute, an industry group.

Shoppers at Angelos had mixed reactions about singles night.

"This is a less threatening environment and you can come away with groceries if you don't come away with anything else," said Bob Plausse, 30, a beach manager in Cohasset. "I wish they'd have this in a laundromat. I'd get my laundry done sooner."

"It's just not the right environment," said Susan Suddath, 33, a Boston research librarian. "People are more used to being closely integrated in a bar and at parties where you're forced to talk to each other."

"There aren't enough guys," said a woman who declined to give her name because she said she didn't want her boyfriend to know she was there.

Not every shopper was single. Even some married people got into the act.

"A lot of females with gray hair and wedding rings are grabbing me," said Peter Hampton, a 28-year-old research consultant. "You can't keep them out, but they're abusing what's going on."

A lot could be told about intentions by what was in — and not in — the shopping carts. "You know to stay away from a man buying Pampers," said Carolyn Bartley.

The key to singles night at Angelos was the name tags. Each contained half of a well-known pick-up line, and the singles sought out the person wearing the other half. So "What's Your" had to find "Sign," and "This Could Be The Start" sought out "Of Something Big." Completing the phrase allowed the couple to enter a drawing for a free trip to Disney World; some people met several "other halves" and registered a dozen times.

So how did people do?

Plausse, the beach manager, met a woman he liked, but she left before he could ask her for a date.

Al Domenicucci kept running into his ex-girlfriend, which put a damper on things.

Andrea, a nurse who declined to give her last name, was disgusted. "A bunch of losers," she said. To avoid unwanted come-ons, she filled her cart with hemorrhoid cream, anti-fungal ointment, milk of magnesia, Midol and Clearasil.

Reagan may announce Saturday plan to build replacement shuttle

WASHINGTON (AP) — After agonizing over the decision for months, President Reagan is ordering a replacement for space shuttle Challenger and hinting that he will announce the step on Saturday.

There was no official announcement from the White House, but a senior administration official, asking not to be identified, confirmed Reagan has directed that a start be made on the $2 billion spaceship.

It will be completed in 1992 and dedicated to military flights from Vandenberg Air Force Base, an industry magazine says.

The president hinted at a White House picnic Thursday night that he will make the announcement in his weekly radio address.

"Wait 'til Saturday," he told reporters who asked about the shuttle.

Reagan rejected the suggestions of some advisers to ban commercial satellites as shuttle cargo, deciding instead to allow some such satellites on a selective basis, Aviation Week and Space Technology says in its Aug. 18 edition.

A highly placed NASA official who did not want to be identified said those cargoes could include satellites that would serve foreign policy interests.

"There may be nations that we would want to curry favor with," he said.

The official said space agency executives have anticipated that the shuttle will be built on a reduced time schedule and will be based at Vandenberg in California.

Philippine jet crash kills three

ANGELES, Philippines (AP) — A Philippine Air Force jet fighter crashed and exploded outside the U.S. Clark Air Base today, killing the pilot and two other people and igniting a fire that engulfed three homes, officials said.

At least four people were rushed to a hospital at Clark for treatment of burns from the blaze, said Rizal Policarpio, spokesman for Angeles Mayor Franciso Nepomuceno. He said at least five people had been injured.

The Philippine Air Force press office in Manila identified the pilot of the F-5 as Lt. Noe Linsangan, and said only that the plane was on a training flight from a Philippine base in Floridablanca south of Angeles.

Policarpiosaid witnesses told investigators they saw the plane flying very low and already in flames before it slammed into the two-story house of Felix Timbol in the city' Lourdes district, two miles from the U.S. air base and 50 miles north of Manila.

Showdown expected between utility company, customers

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A showdown is expected today on the House floor between one of Texas largest utility companies and the state-paid attorney who represents utility customers.

Consumer activists Thursday accused Houston Lighting & Power Co. of using "scores of lobbyists and misleading facts" trying to convince lawmakers to eliminate funding for Public Utility Counsel Jim Boyle's office.

"The Office of Public Utility Counsel has been a force for fairness before the Public Utility Commission for three years," Brad Wiewel, president of the Texas Consumer Association, said at a Capitol press conference. He plans to ask the PUC to investigate HL&P to determine if the utility is using customers' funds in its lobbying efforts.

Boyle's office, created in 1983, represents residential and small commercial customers at rate cases before the Public Utility Commission.

A spokesman for HL&P said the company's two paid lobbyists have been talking to legislators about Boyle's $656,000 per year budget in anticipation of today's House debate on a bill to cut $632.3 million from the state budget. Graham Painter, HL&P public information manager, said the utility's stockholders pay the lobbyists and the company would welcome a PUC investigation.

"The Office of Public Counsel duplicates the responsiblities of the PUC," Painter said, explaining why HL&P wants to axe Boyle's budget. "The office has been politicized, it is not cost effective."

Boyle's office last week survived by one vote a move in the House Appropriations Committee to cut funding. Rep. Mark Stiles, D-Beaumont, who oversees Boyle's budget, said he expects Republican lawmakers to take another run at the office today.

"I absolutely am going to vote to keep Mr. Boyle's agency alive," Stiles said. Asked if he would lead the debate to save Boyle, Stiles said, "It depends on how serious it is."

Joyce Roddy of Nederland, chairman of the Concerned Citizens of Southeast Texas, told reporters she plans "to do all I can to lobby with every legislator in my district" to retain Boyle's budget. "This office is the only voice we have," Roddy said.

Wiewel said he did not think other utilities were joining HL&P's lobbying effort. "If they're doing anything, they're doing it much more low-keyed and they're not doing it with the avowed intention," he said.

David White, spokesman for Gulf States Utilities Co., said GSU is "absolutely not" lobbying to cut Boyle's budget.

Class discipline proposal gains approval

By JIM WARREN
Reporter-Telegram
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A proposal to give teachers more control over their classrooms gained tenative House approval Thursday.

Public school teachers have complained that the 1984 educational reforms made it difficult to manage unruly students. The discipline bill voted on Thursday gives teachers the power to remove rowdy students from the class and broadens schools' authority to expel students.

Part of the education reform package called for schools to try to place students with discipline problems in alternative education programs — another class, school or special class for problem students — instead of suspended them.

Under the new plan, school districts would have more leeway in dealing with problem students and can suspend students more easily.

"We are encouraging flexibility," said House Public Education Committee Chairman Bill Haley, D-Center and the bill's sponsor. School officials, Haley said, have felt the education reforms tied their hands in disciplining students.

Gov. Mark White, who controls the agenda of the special session, expanded the session to include the school-discipline bill Thursday morning shortly before the House convened.

The bill is expected to come up for a formal third reading Friday before going to the Senate.

A teacher can force a student to leave the class by proving that the pupil has "repeatedly interfered with the teacher's ability to communicate effectively with the students in the class."

Also, schools can expel a student who repeatedly sells, gives or uses alcohol or drugs, or "commits a serious act or offense" after drinking.

Some House members, however, opposed the alcohol provision, arguing that a student caught with a beer after a football game could be thrown out of school. But the House kept the alcohol section, with supporters saying the rule only allows schools to expel students who "repeatedly" drink on campus.

Haley's bill is similar to one that nearly passed in 1985 but died in the closing hours of the session. Senate Education Committee Chairman Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, has said he supports the bill, assuming it will accomplish what its backers say it will.

White: Drug sanctions along border aren't enough

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White said a federal drug interdiction program along the United States-Mexico border is good but it doesn't go far enough.

"We welcome the administration's involvement in an issue we have been advocating for so many years," White said in a statement.

"One thing that does appear to be lacking, however, is a priority role for state and local drug-fighting resources. For example, the Texas National Guard stands ready to join federal forces in the fight, and there is legislation moving through the U.S. House that would enable National Guard units to cooperate.

STATE IN BRIEF

Judge says man's acquittal left him with 'emptiness'

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — District Judge Roy Barrera Jr., says he was left with a "feeling of emptiness" when a man who pleaded guilty in June to a murder was acquitted of the crime.

William Campbell, 39, went to trial this week after Barrera, the Republican nominee for state attorney general, refused to accept a plea bargain.

The agreement called for Campbell to plead guilty to the stabbing death of Wilson Mendizaval and receive a sentence of no more than 15 years.

Barrera said he refuses to "rubberstamp" every plea agreement brought before him.

"In my six years on the bench, this is the first time this has happened to me," Barrera said. "To be honest, this leaves you with a feeling of emptiness and it causes you to second-guess your decision to reject a plea bargain."

Prosecutors alleged Campbell and Mendizaval argued and that Campbell intentionally went to his apartment, got a knife and returned to stab the victim eight times in the back on Feb. 7.

Utility refunds approved

AUSTIN (AP) — Refunds totaling $21.4 million to customers of two electric utilities have been approved by the Public Utility Commission, officials said Thursday.

The refunds, including more than $1 million in interest, will show up as credits on bills beginning in September, said PUC spokesman Bo Byers.

Gulf States Utilities, with Texas headquarters in Beaumont, was ordered to refund $15.7 million, including nearly $730,000 interest on over-recoveries of fuel costs from March through June.

West Texas Utilities, in Abilene, will refund $5.7 million, including more than $300,000 interest for fuel over-recoveries.

West Texas Utilities also will lower its quarterly fuel charges from September through November, the PUC said. The company said that would reduce estimated fuel revenues by $7.9 million over the three-month period.

Change due city inspectors

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — City Manager Lou Fox, who fired two city building inspectors suspected of taking bribes, says he will institute several changes to oust corruption in the city's Building Inspections Department.

Fox called a special city council meeting late Wednesday to announce his decision to fire electrical inspector Alfredo Cortinas and plumbing inspector Rudy DeGarza.

Fox said the alleged bribes ranged from $20 to $80 and were given in exchange for overlooking certain building code violations.

Charismatic congregation converts honkey tonk into place of worship

By KEN PELLIS

LUFKIN (AP) — Bar taps that once dispensed beer for thirsty country music fans will offer drinks called "Living Water" and "Fruit of the Spirit" when conversion of an ex-honky tonk near here is complete.

A charismatic church, the Family Worship and Teaching Center, started holding services last month at the Texas Stage building on U.S. 59 south of Lufkin, once a showcase for top country entertainers such as Ronnie Milsap and Jerry Lee Lewis.

Pastor V.E. "Buddy" Leach said the 150-member congregation leases the building at present but plans to meet the $1.28 million selling price of a Conroe corporation which owns the building and a 10½-acre tract.

"It's come a long way," says the 39-year-old Leach. "As someone said the other day: from the badland to the holyland."

In his view, the demise of the Texas Stage and occupation by the non-denominational group were divinely directed.

"As a club, I'm sure it did not make it because of the prayers of people in the area who asked to close the bar down and turn it into a work that is a help and not a hindrance.

"In a bar is where many kinds of sin are generated, and people are tempted beyond morality into immorality."

Leach says he wasn't among those who unsuccessfully opposed the granting of a liquor license when the Texas Stage opened in 1982; but he "prayed as an individual" against the business succeeding.

About a year and a half ago, the Texas Stage closed down.

Now, heaven's the limit for ambitious church members.

Plans call for a youth center — including a gameroom, reading center and music and video facilities — that is scheduled for completion in two months and will welcome area youth.

Other goals include a Sunday-morning television show, and baseball diamonds and tennis courts in back. The church recently invited bids for paving of the rocky parking lot.

"One of the reasons we took (the building) is because it's so versatile," says Leach. "If you walk into a cathedral, it can only be used for one thing: that's a cathedral. If we want to, we can stack these chairs and the kids can skate on the floor."

Leach says his wife, Connie, saw the building's potential when they rode by it early this year.

"We passed this place, and my wife said, "Wouldn't that make a great place for a church and youth work?' "

Leach said later he felt God asked him and his wife to go to the parking lot and pray. "As we prayed, we began to see the real potential for it, and God said, "I'll direct you.' "

Leach adds that God spoke "spirit to spirit." "There's been only twice when I've heard God speak in an audible voice" — both at troubled times in his life, says the born-again pastor.

A newspaper advertisement in late April called together those willing "to spread the Gospel of the Kingdom to all men" and "to take the now abandoned Texas Stage on Highway 59 South for Jesus!" An original group of about 50 met at a building on Schuller Street.

According to Leach, an unexpected telephone call followed from a Monroe, La., acquaintance who did not know of the plans to occupy the Texas Stage building. Leach says the man, a retired tugboat captain, told him: "Buddy, I'm fixing to come into a large amount of money, and I've been praying, and God wants me to send you this much ($150,000)."

Leach expects the money to cover the 10 percent downpayment on the property, which is owned by Velma Inc., of Conroe, according to records of the Angelina County Appraisal District.

When the church group moved in, several thousand cans of beer had to go.

But some sinners' materials will be put to saintly use.

One of three bar areas will serve as a baptistry, and a second will be restocked with wholesome drinks. The fate of the other was undecided.

The Texas Stage star-and-rainbow logo will remain by the stage area. Explains Leach: "The star represents Christ, because it (the Bible) says he's the bright and the morning star; and the rainbow is significant because it's the sign that God gave Moses of his covenant with man — and so it couldn't have been any more ideal."

Stage lights that were left behind will also be put to use. And, as Leach notes, "We have plenty of bathroom facilities."

Senate near agreement on sanctions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is nearing agreement on sanctions against South Africa, approving a ban on textile imports and withdrawing a threat to beat down the price of South African gold by selling off U.S. gold reserves.

In a long day and night of speeches and votes, the Senate on Thursday defeated moves to significantly strengthen the package of sanctions submitted by the Foreign Relations Committee. And it voted to delete two of the original provisions.

For the most part, the Senate heeded Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., the committee chairman, who said that stronger measures would erode support for sanctions in the Republican-controlled chamber and prevent them from being adopted with an overwhelming, bipartisan vote.

Such a vote is essential, he said, to send a strong signal to Pretoria that the United States is united in condemning South Africa's system of racial separation, or apartheid.

But he told senators who wanted tougher sanctions: "There is no good evidence that piling on sanctions to strengthen this bill will make one whit of difference" in ending apartheid.

As it considered the sanctions legislation, the Senate took these steps:

— Voted 67-29 to add a ban on imported South African textiles to the sanctions list.

— Adopted an amendment by Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., to make the effective date for a ban on U.S. landing rights for South Africa airlines 10 days after enactment instead of one year as provided by the bill. It acted by voice vote after refusing, 56-42, to kill the measure.

— Voted 51-48 to kill an amendment by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., that would have markedly toughened South African sanctions, including tightened financial restrictions and bans on the import of South African iron, steel and agricultural products.

— Adopted, 58-41, an amendment by Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., which removed from the bill a proposal to give President Reagan authority to sell U.S. gold stocks in a bid to depress the price South Africa receives for gold, its most important product.

— Decided, 99-0, to remove from the bill a section that permitted U.S. visas to be issued to South African officials only on a case-by-case basis. The Senate acted after Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., argued that the step was a violation of the traditional American insistence on the freedom of travel.

Later, the Senate voted 67-31 to approve a toned-down version of an amendment by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., which he said was an attempt to add balance to the measure by also criticizing violence by black nationalist groups.

It makes a policy declaration that unless the African National Congress and other black nationalist organizations forego violence and commit themselves to a democratic post-apartheid South Africa, the United States will support negotiations with black leaders from which they are excluded.

The amendment was changed to add the conditions that the present South African government must also have agreed to negotiations without preconditions, have abandoned "unprovoked violence against its opponents" and have committed itself to an end to apartheid and a transition to democracy.

The Helms amendment also condemns "the abhorrent practice of 'necklacing,'" the execution of blacks accused of cooperating with the white regime by hanging a tire around their necks, filling it with gasoline and setting it afire.

Rehnquist, Scalia now poised for confirmation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's nominations of William H. Rehnquist to be the nation's next chief justice and Antonin Scalia to fill a Supreme Court vacancy are in position for expected Senate confirmation next month.

The Senate plans to begin floor debate on the nominees Sept. 9 after it returns from an upcoming recess.

If bipartisan predictions are accurate, both men will be confirmed and assume their new jobs when the court begins its next term on the first Monday in October.

The Senate Judiciary Committee approved the nominees Thursday, but not before attacks on Rehnquist were renewed by five Democrats who voted against elevating the 15-year associate justice to chief justice. Two Republicans who voted for Rehnquist also expressed some misgivings.

Scalia, a conservative federal appeals court judge and former law school professor, won unanimous support in the committee.

Reagan selected Rehnquist, 61, to succeed the retiring Warren E. Burger as the nation's 16th chief justice. Scalia, 50, would fill the opening created by Burger's departure.

Scalia is the first Italian-American named to the court and would become its youngest current member.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said of the Judiciary Committee action, "We are extremely pleased. We look forward to early, full Senate action."

The 13-5 committee vote for Rehnquist followed attacks by Democrats on his candor, his ethics and his commitment to equal rights for minorities and women.

NATION IN BRIEF

Defense bill disputed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is driving toward completion of a Pentagon budget bill that would sharply limit major Reagan administration defense programs, amid a dispute about who best represents the public will.

After a week of controversial actions, the Democratic-controlled chamber was expected to give final passage today to the bill and then head home for a three-week Labor Day recess.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said Thursday that the House, which on several votes generally split along party lines, was "expressing the will of the American people."

O'Neill criticized President Reagan because he said Reagan "has no defense policy...except taking everything everybody at the Pentagon wants and buying it."

Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, said, "We're going to have an adequate national defense, but we're going to have a lean, mean military."

Budget battle expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate was bracing for renewed battle over the Gramm-Rudman law as the House sent over an emergency debt bill which must be approved before Congress leaves on a three-week recess.

The House agreed Thursday on a $73.3 billion borrowing boost for the Treasury, which has exhausted its credit limit of $2.079 trillion and needs more soon to avoid a default.

Congress, with its members eager to campaign, planned to adjourn tonight for its Labor Day break once the Senate takes action.

Firemen report progress

Associated Press

Firefighters reported progress in the battle against lightning-spawned blazes that have charred 345,000 acres in five Northwestern states, but forest fires still burned out of control in Oregon.

"It's really looking good," said Bert Hart, a U.S. Bureau of Land Management spokesman in Utah, where firefighters gained ground against flames that had blackened about 25,000 acres of trees and brush.

Rain and cooler weather helped bring Montana's largest fire under control late Thursday, while Nevada's biggest grass fire was out.

In Idaho, where scores of forest fires burned, crews sweating to save $30 million worth of timber brought a 10,400-acre blaze near Goodrich under control Thursday and drew a fire line between other flames and 70 houses north of Boise.

Premature boy delivered

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A premature baby boy delivered from a brain-dead woman who was kept on a life-support system by court order was in a hospital intensive care unit today and given little chance of survival.

The mother, 25-year-old Donna Piazzi, was pronounced dead at University Hospital Thursday night about two hours after her baby was delivered and minutes after her life support system was disconnected.

The child, a boy weighing 1 pound, 1½ ounces, was taken to the intensive care neonatal unit of nearby Medical College of Georgia Hospital. He was listed in critical condition early today, spokeswoman Gwen Corinth said.

A legal dispute developed over Mrs. Piazzi's life support after she was brought to University Hospital June 27 suffering from an unexplained drug overdose.

When she was later found to be brain dead, her husbad, Robert Piazzi, asked the hospital to turn off the life support system.

But another man, David Hadden, raised an undisputed claim that he fathered the child and asked the hospital to continue life support so the child could continue to develop in the womb.

Official refutes testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government official who assured Congress that reusing kidney dialysis filters poses no health hazard now says his testimony was seriously flawed and that he might not take the same position knowing what he knows now.

"There is no evidence there is a big problem" with reuse but new information suggests further study is warranted, Dr. John Marshall, a Public Health Service official, said in an interview.

Marshall said documents raising the concerns were found in government files by investigators for the Senate Special Committee on Aging and that he wishes others had been more forthcoming with information they supplied as he was preparing the testimony he gave last March.

Marshall is director of the National Center for Health Services Research and Health Care Technology Assessment.

MOVE neighbors back

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Modern row houses have replaced the post-World-War-I homes on the 6200 block of Osage Avenue, and Earl Watkins says his rebuilt neighborhood appears a little boring but it's good to be going home.

Watkins and his wife, Pearl, who lived on the street for 28 years, were among 250 people displaced by the fiery climax of the May 13, 1985, attempt by police to evict members of the radical group MOVE.

Five children and six adults in the MOVE house on Osage Avenue died. Sixty-one houses on three blocks burned.

An eye to future

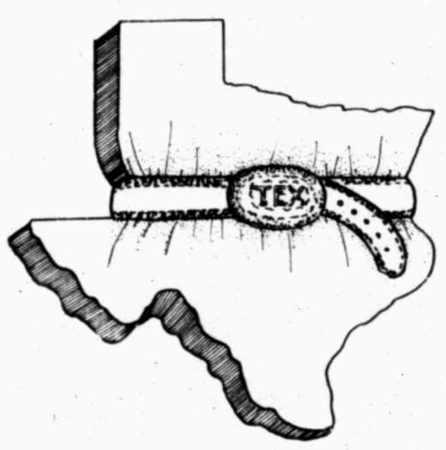
There's no doubt about what legislators must do to avoid the state ending the biennium with a deficit.

The facts may be disturbing but they are unavoidable:

★ Without action, Texas would end the biennium in the red. In fact, with the budget cycle only half gone the state already is looking at a deficit of about $3.5 billion. But Texas can't end a biennium in debt. The state Constitution mandates action to avoid that.



★ The only way to avoid a deficit is to cut spending or increase taxes to bring in more revenue or to employ a combination of the two. As expected, legislators are divided over which method to use.

★ Now isn't the ideal time to talk about raising taxes or cutting vital state services. Record unemployment rates in the state tell the story in heart-rending human terms. In Midland and Odessa, the oil industry is facing serious problems and the outlook for the next several years isn't good. There's no doubt the oil patch will rebound from its current low and will add to the state's coffers once again, but to rely on oil alone as the state's fiscal mainstay would be ludicrous. The best energy experts available are predicting oil prices will stay down and volume on the market will stay up at least into the middle of the next decade, compared to the recent oil boom period.

★ Attempting to solve the current budget crunch with a band-aid approach and postponing the real deficit debate until the regular session isn't acceptable. For one irritating fact, such a move would give legislators an "out" with the voters in November while at the same time compounding the problem to be addressed in the future session. Action on the budget crisis is needed now.

With those facts before them, legislators must devise a way to resolve the state's budget crisis and simultaneously plan for the state's future. Gov. Mark White's call for a combination of budget cuts and a tax increase may be distasteful to hardline conservatives, but it also may be the only realistic approach.

A number of tax hike opponents, including Midland Rep. Tom Craddick, continue to assert that deep enough cuts in state programs can be made to meet the state's no-deficit constitutional mandate without a tax increase. Maybe so, but we have our doubts. If it is indeed possible, that would be the preferable course because saddling taxpayers with additional expense in the current economic climate would be like trying to save a drowning man by pouring more water on him. By the same token, drastic program-cutting to avoid a sales tax increase — so drastic as to cause major local tax hikes in cities throughout the state — isn't going to help him much either. Nor will it make Texas cities attractive to outside industrial interests we seek to lure to the Lone Star State. If legislators do determine a tax increase is necessary, utilizing the increase in the state sales tax proposed by Gov. White would seem the most logical in that it would be spread fairly across the wide spectrum of the state's residents.

One crucial element of the budget dilemma is the state's future. While oil may never again be the dominant force it has been in the Texas economy, anyone thinking the oil industry is dead in its tracks is wrong. But that fact doesn't negate another — that Texas must develop a new industrial base to lead it into the 1990s.

Texas must still be attractive to prospective industries thinking of a move to the Lone Star State. It must have good highways, outstanding transportation services and airlines, great colleges, universities and school systems. It must continue to offer vital state services. In a nutshell, this budget crises mustn't be allowed to destroy the state's future.

Above all else, that is what legislators must be safeguarding in the special session.

Re: Sacred cows

We often find ourselves in disagreement with Gov. Mark White but not on the issue of raiding Texas' education funds which he opposes and which House Speaker Gib Lewis has proposed and the House Appropriations Committee has approved.

That panel voted Monday to take $1.1 billion from the Public University Fund (PUF) and Public School Fund (PSF) and use it to replace general revenue. Proponents see the move as an alternative to an increase in the state sales tax.

They have had a field day talking about the needlessness of a tax hike "when all that money is just sitting there." But the proposal poses serious dangers in itself.

The state's 22.1 million acres of state land yield income. That income is deposited in the PSF and PUF. It constitutes principal of each fund and is never spent, rather, it is invested. Income from the investment is then spent on public education.

Created more than 100 years ago by far-sighted Texans, these funds are the backbone of Texas' higher education and public education systems. White has said "taking money from the permanent trust funds set aside for our children and their education would set a terrible precedent." We agree.

True, a large endowment fund for education exists but education costs will no doubt rise, not fall, in the future. Most important is the precedent, as White points out. Done once, it can be done again.

Lewis says, "I don't know why we haven't done it years ago. It's been such a sacred cow that it's never been touched." That probably isn't because the idea never occurred to anyone but, rather, because Texas hasn't found itself in a budget crisis of the nature of the current one.

Even so, we don't believe dipping into these funds is the answer. On the contrary, it would be a dangerous move that would open the door to future raiding that could seriously imperil one of the most important and, up to this point zealously guarded endowments the State of Texas has for its citizens of today and tomorrow.

Congress uncovering its own 'Deavers'

WASHINGTON — Few things in this town are more amusing than the spectacle of Congress mounting its white horse and charging forth on a lofty moral crusade — only to discover that the target of its outrage is actually a mirror.

Jack Anderson

That's what happened when the lawmakers decided something should be done to curb the growing number of high-level officials who leave federal service and cash in on their connections by becoming Washington representatives of foreign governments.

It turned out that almost half of the 76 former public servants who recently registered as foreign agents came from the halls of Congress itself.

Rep. Howard Wolpe, D-Mich., introduced a draconian bill last November that would stop the revolving door with a nose-banging crash. It would prohibit former federal officials from advising or representing foreign interests for 10 years after leaving the government. Members of Congress were not included.

Wolpe always intended to include Congress and its senior staff, but he's been around Capitol Hill awhile. "We didn't want to prejudice the possibility of getting an initial hearing on the bill," he explained to our reporter Jim Lynch.

Even then the bill didn't draw much interest in what a Wolpe aide called the "pre-Deaver days." It initially had only four co-sponsors, but after the foreign consulting fees of former White House deputy chief of staff Michael Deaver began making headlines, Wolpe's bill began to pick up support. By February, it had 50 co-sponsors, and by May it had more than 120 in time for its hearing.

Wolpe requested a General Accounting Office study of former high officials who had recently made the career change to foreign agent. And he asked that former members of Congress and senior staff aides be included. When the results came in, Wolpe's bill was rewritten to include congressional job switchers as well as former agency officials. He also cut the prohibition period from 10 years to four.

The GAO's list — which it stressed was not conclusive, because of loopholes in the registration law — included 32 former members of Congress and staff, 18 White House and 22 other executive agency officials and four generals.

Gray & Co., a leading public relations firm, showed how to make the right draft choices when it picked up Donald F. Massey just as he left office as the Senate sergeant-at-arms. Massey became a senior vice president.

Massey's government service was varied and extensive. He was an assistant legislative counselor in the CIA from 1974 to 1979. He then went to the Senate, where he was on the Rules Committee staff and the Joint Council on the Inauguration, chief counsel to the Appropriations Committee and sergeant-at-arms. His current duties include lobbying for Turkey, France, United Kingdom, Morocco, South Korea, Japan, Canada and the Cayman Islands.

Former Sen. John Culver, D-Iowa, contacts members of Congress and staff aides on behalf of his law firm's foreign clients: Liberia, France, Japan and Germany.

Former Rep. Thomas Evans Jr., R-Del., is a partner in a law firm that represents Jamaica and Cyprus. Asked for comment, Evans said of the Wolpe bill's four-year restriction: "That's a long wait." He said he thought the legislation would be "a deterrent for people ... to serving in government, because of the limitations afterward."

HALL OF SHAME: Federal authorities cracking down on ineligible student aid recipients find that growing numbers of these chiselers use false identities to get the funds. An alert student-loan officer in Kansas spotted a dual applicant, and investigators found the student had used 18 different names and collected $21,693 before he skipped town. A Maryland student was sent to prison for using 15 aliases to apply for more than $42,000 in financial aid. And a South Dakota coed was indicted on charges of impersonating her former roommate to get almost $3,000 in student aid.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: While the Arab sheiks have failed to arouse much sympathy for the diminished degree of luxury they must now endure, the long-impoverished people of Egypt are truly suffering from the drop in world oil prices. Thousands of Egyptian workers used to support their families by working in the oil fields of Saudi Arabia and other neighboring countries; they were the first to be laid off when the oil producers had to trim their payrolls. In addition, Egypt's own oil fields in the Sinai are bringing in far less revenue. Sources say the poorest Egyptians are desperate and ripe for revolution.

MINI-EDITORIAL: In their pursuit of leisure, as in other areas, the French do a very civilized thing in a very uncivilized manner. Every French worker is entitled by law to five — that's right, five — weeks of paid vacation a year. The problem is, they all seem to take their holiday during the entire month of August. This makes for epic traffic jams, and it also means that the forgetful person who fails to pick up dry cleaning before July 31 will have to get along until the shopkeeper reopens in September. The only solution, of course, is to go on vacation.

Israel's role in arms smuggling plan painful

WASHINGTON — Unintended disclosure to a U.S. undercover agent by a key figure in the scheme to smuggle $2 billion worth of U.S.-made arms from Israel to Iran worsens an embarrassing new disturbance in the unwritten but intimate U.S.-Israeli alliance.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

Tapes now in the possession of the U.S. attorney in New York City reveal Samuel Evans, an American lawyer based in London, in conversation this past spring somewhere in Europe with alleged co-conspirators in the arms deal. In connection with the operation, he confided that Mossad, the Israeli intelligence, had sent his name to the CIA for a routine background check.

What Evans did not know is that he was confiding to an uncover agent of the U.S. Customs Service. When that information reached Reagan administration officials, it raised questions about Israel's claim to have known nothing about the plot to sell its surplus U.S. arms to Iran — an illegal sale to an enemy of the United States.

That deepens the irony of the special U.S.-Israeli relationship. While reaching a peak of intimacy in the Reagan administration, it is suffering from a series of deep embarrassments. Israel's disclaimer of any government knowledge of the Iranian arms conspiracy followed its policy of proclaiming ignorance in the matter of admitted Israeli spy Jonathan Jay Pollard. In that case, too, the Justice Department and FBI have found it difficult to accept Israel's claim of innocence.

Evans, reserve Israeli Gen. Avraham Bar-Am and three others were arrested in Bermuda last April, put on a plane to New York a month later and rearrested there on charges of conspiracy to smuggle arms to Iran. The trial is set for late November. According to the indictment, the planned sale included 18 F-4 Phantoms, 18 F-5 Tigers and 46 Skyhawks — now surplus aircraft in Israel's U.S.-supplied air force.

Prior to his arrest, Evans told the undercover agent that Mossad had told him the CIA had been asked for a "tracer" on him that would reveal any derogatory information in the files at Langley. That disclosure, picked up on tape by the agent, was news to U.S. officials.

In a separate taped conversation with alleged co-conspirators, Evans confided that both Mossad and the Israeli Ministry of Defense had instructed him not to set foot in the U.S. The reason, he said, was that information about the huge sale of American arms from Israel to Iran might get out because so many participants in so many different places were aware of it.

It was, he said, a matter of personal safety. If the U.S. learned about a conspiracy to violate its laws by selling the Ayatollah Khomeini weapons given by American taxpayers for the defense of Israel, he continued, the conspirators would risk immediate prosecution by the U.S. That could land them in jail after a trial that could embarrass Israel, he concluded. We have perused the transcripts of the tapes but cannot quote from them.

The record of one conversation has Evans telling his colleagues they must not dare come into the U.S. When undercover agents invented an Iranian participant named "Mehran," who insisted on consummating the arms deal in New York, Evans demanded that "Mehran" come to London or Paris. The two sides finally compromised on Bermuda. It was there, with the connivance of British authorities, that the conspiracy came to an abrupt end.

The full extent of knowledge, if any, within the Israeli government in this conspiracy may never be known. Officials throughout the Reagan administration — outside the State Department — are hoping that the trial will bring out the truth.

For political and diplomatic reasons, specialists at State are not anxious to publicize Israeli complicity. That explains a wise administration decision to keep the leaky State Department largely in the dark as the "sting" operation in the Iranian arms sale progressed early this year.

Behind this is an institutional conflict over how to handle the Israeli factor when American policy is undercut. In the Iran-Iraq war, Israel strongly backs Iran while the U.S. leans toward Iraq. That conflict will not be resolved any time soon. But Justice Department officials hope the trial in the Iranian arms conspiracy will prove beneficial to the U.S.-Israel relationship in the long run.

The trial will be painful if it demonstrates that Israel exploited its policies at U.S. expense. But the evidence has convinced high-ranking officials that the Iranian affair must be ventilated and might become the catalyst to end such practices. That would benefit both the U.S. and Israel.

Retreat of democracy proceeding blindly

Watching the retreat of democracy and the spread of totalitarianism for 30 years is getting to be a bore.

Those of us who grew up with the belief that freedom has utilitarian as well as moral value need to ask ourselves why it is that free people do not seem to be able to remember their past mistakes, let alone learn from them and avoid repeating them.

Charley Reese

After all, communists follow a formula that has become almost ritualized. It's the old hammer and anvil routine. You can see it at work in Ethiopia, South Africa, El Salvador and Nicaragua. The application of force in the target country accompanied by the application of propaganda in the West to support the application of force in the target country.

Ethiopia and Nicaragua are in the consolidation stage. Since the Ethiopian communists have been in power a bit longer than those in Nicaragua they are well along, having killed one million people and forcing 2.2 million more to flee.

In the consolidation stage, communists root out the last remnants of opposition and tighten their control over every aspect of the people's lives. They employ murder, imprisonment, forced exile, intimidation, and total intellectual and economic control. It is the most scientifically designed tyranny ever devised and once consolidated has never been overthrown from within.

In the guerrilla stage, which is where it is in El Salvador and South Africa, the aim is to destroy the economy, to kill off non-communist reformers and intimidate the others, and to provoke the target government to move away from reforms. At all costs, the communists must prevent a peaceful resolution of whatever problem they are using as an excuse to seize power.

And the West never learns. Every time I hear a public official say that economic development is the way to handle guerrillas, I feel like throwing up. You cannot develop a nation's economy when armed guerrillas are working full time to disrupt the economy. Peace is as necessary to economic development as capital.

Ditto when the Western politicians call on the besieged government to observe a peace-time level of civil rights. When guerrillas unleash a civil war, the targeted government cannot any more act as if it were at peace than Abraham Lincoln did when he had to fight a civil war. Lincoln imposed heavy restrictions on civil liberties in the North, including suspending the right of habeus corpus and silencing opponents with arbitrary arrests.

Communist propagandists have their jobs to do, too. They keep up a steady fire of character assassination against the enemies of the guerrillas and especially against reformers. Their job is to prevent the Western democracies from aiding the targeted government while the Soviet Union aids the guerrillas unhindered.

You would think that humane liberals would naturally be attracted to the moderates in such conflicts but they are not. They invariably side with the extremists. Winnie Mandela, who publicly applauds the brutal murders of South African blacks seeking a peaceful solution, is idolized while Mangosuthu Buthelezi, who argues for peace and reconciliation, is dismissed as a highly divisive figure.

Daniel Ortega, the head communist thug in Nicaragua, gets tours and pulpits in the U.S. while the democratic leaders of Nicaraguan opposition get booed and hounded off the campuses.

The propagandist does not need to convince the West to support the communists, though they sometimes do even that. All they have to do is prevent a consensus from forming to assist the targeted government.

The ease with which totalitarians manipulate free people raises serious doubts about any utilitarian value of freedom. Those of us committed to freedom must address this question. We know freedom can produce better toothpaste and refrigerators, but can it defeat totalitarianism? The record is not encouraging.

Americans had better wake up to the fact that our turn is coming.

Soldier: Most of time was in solitary confinement

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A former U.S. Army soldier who sailed to Vietnam in search of his fiancee today said he spent most of the past 16 months in solitary confinement in a Vietnamese prison and that he never saw the woman.

Robert Schwab III of Atlanta, Ga., arrived in Bangkok on Thursday after Vietnam's communist authorities decided to expel him the day before. He was accompanied by Richard Childress, director of Asian affairs for the U.S. National Security Council.

Appearing gaunt after losing 10 pounds in jail, Schwab, 44, told a news conference he was not allowed to see the 31-year-old fiancee he left behind at the end of the Vietnam War, and that Vietnamese Foreign Ministry officials would not meet with him to discuss the case.

"It really was a failure," he said.

Schwab said he was captured off the central Vietnamese coast in April 1985 after sailing 600 miles from the Philippines in an 18-foot boat. The journey took 13 days.

The Vietnamese, who accused him of violating territorial waters and infringing on their country's security, placed him in a 12-by-14 feet cell that had a tile floor, a hard bed and a desk, Schwab said.

"I did a lot of talking to myself. ...Most of the time was not interrogation; it was just lonely and depressed. ...The physical conditions were OK," Schwab said.

The meals were adequate and the guards ranged from "correct to cordial," he said.

Schwab said a fine was paid for his release, but neither he nor Childress, who also appeared at the news conference, would elaborate.

Schwab said he first met Mai, the pseudonym he uses for his fiancee, in 1972 at her family's coffeeshop in the city of Cong Tum.

"I think highly of a traditional Vietnamese girl, and she was the archetype of that. She remained in my mind as an extraordinary girl. When the country was falling in 1975, I decided I would like to marry her," he said.

Schwab was in Ho Chi Minh City, which was then called Saigon, when it fell to the Communists in 1975, and was among those rescued from the U.S. Embassy roof.

He was widely credited with helping evacuate Vietnamese civilians who had worked for the Americans. But he decided against taking his fiancee. He said she was "in terrible emotional and psychological shape, crying her heart out and very thin."

The couple re-established contact in 1981, and Schwab said he developed a plan to sail to Vietnam, walk ashore and turn himself over to authorities, hoping to impress them with his innocence.

Police identified vessel carrying Tamil refugees

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — Police today said they have identified the ship that carried the Sri Lankan refugees who were found adrift off Newfoundland.

An official at the Hamburg police department's press office said details would be released later today.

"We won't be releasing the name of the ship or anything else about it until the press conference," said the police official, Volker Sontag.

However, Hamburg harbor officials who spoke on condition they not be identified said the vessel was named the Aurigae, and that it sailed under the Honduran flag. They said the ship was not now in the Hamburg area.

Police in this north German port had been investigating whether the 155 Sri Lankan Tamils picked up in two lifeboats off Newfoundland on Monday had come from camps near Hamburg rather than from India, as the refugees had claimed.

Earlier today, Canadian officials said police appear to have traced the ship.

WORLD in brief

Rebel held nuns, Italians given to their governments

MAPUTO, Mozambique (AP) — Three nuns, two Italians and a Portuguese, who had been held by rebels for several months were turned over to representatives of their governments Thursday, Mozambique's official news agency said.

The agency, AIM, said the former hostages were in good health and would return to their countries Friday.

The Italian nuns, Almina Lombani and Erimana Botas, were kidnapped in November in northern Niassa province, the agency said. The Portuguese nun, Maria de Jesus Figueira, was abducted in March in Manpula province.

They were taken hostage in rebel raids, the news agency said.

The rebels recently took them to Malawi where they were left near a village, AIM said. A Mozambique government official traveled to Malawi this week and brought the nuns to Maputo.

Honduran plane crashes

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — A Honduran air force transport plane carrying 49 people, including a colonel's children, crashed Thursday in the jungle of eastern Honduras. Sources said at least two people were killed.

Maj. Jorge Alberto Arguello, an armed forces spokesman, said the plane carried four crew members and 45 passengers.

Arguello said he did not know how many children were aboard. The other passengers were all believed to be members of the Honduran air force, he said.

Several Honduran and U.S. planes and helicopters were looking for the Hercules C-130 transport plane in an area about 24 miles north of the Nicraguan border, Arguello said.

Sources who spoke on condition of anonymity said a lieutenant colonel and a major were killed but that the fate of the others aboard was unknown.

The sources said the plane had been en route from Mocoron, about 4 miles north of the Nicaraguan border, to the capital of Tegucigalpa where the soldiers were scheduled to go on leave.

Group to meet Shiites

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — A group of Arab-Americans left Syria in an effort to meet Shiite Moslem extremists who are holding American hostages in Lebanon.

Sources said Syrian officials arranged the trip for the group, led by Archbishop Philip Saliba, head of the Antiochan Orthodox Church of North America. The group departed for Lebanon Thursday.

The sources said Syria also arranged meetings for the delegation with the Shiite Moslem Hezbollah, or Party of God.

Hezbollah is widely believed to have links with Islamic Jihad, or Islamic Holy War, the pro-Iranian Lebanese Shiite faction that claims it holds the Americans.

Hezbollah denies any link.

The Arab-American delegation arrived in Damascus nine days ago carrying letters from the captives' families and a petition signed by hundreds of American and Canadian Arabs urging the hostages' release.

The delegation met with Syrian officials, including President Hafez Assad, who promised his country would do all in its power to secure the hostages' release.

Lavish living disciplined

PEKING (AP) — Six officials were disciplined for lavish wining and dining during an inspection tour of one of China's poorest regions, the official Xinhua News Agency said today.

The officials received warnings from the Communist Party and were ordered to write self-criticisms and pay for what they ate, Xinhua reported.

Five of the six belonged to a delegation which inspected poverty-stricken areas in Shaanxi province late last year. The other official was a local party secretary who arranged extravagant feasts for the visitors, Xinhua said.

The report said local officials spent nearly 150,000 yuan ($40,000) on the delegation, including 87,000 yuan ($23,500) for food and drink. Part of the money was to have been used for schools and other public facilities.

The director of the provincial education bureau attended eight feasts in one week, the report said.

Partly cloudy skies continue

From Staff and Wire Reports

Permian Basin area residents may expect much of the same weather for Saturday that has been experienced throughout this week. The National Weather Serivce is calling for a high in the middle 90s and partly cloudy skies.

Tonight, along with partly cloudy skies, the NWS forecast is calling for a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms and southerly winds at five to 10 mph. Southerly winds will increase to five to 15 mph on Saturday.

Thursday's high was nine degrees below the record high of 104 set for that date in 1946. This morning's low was 12 degrees above the record low of 60 set for this date in 1940.

STATE

Scattered thunderstorms and showers continued today over much of the low rolling and high plains of West Texas. This shower area remained nearly stationary along a trough of low pressure.

Skies were clear along the coastal plains with a few scattered thundershowers out over the gulf. The remainder of the state was under partly cloudy skies.

Winds were generally south at 5 to 15 mph statewide.

Temperatures were mostly in the 60s in West Texas and in the 70s and 80s elsewhere around the state. Overnight extremes were 64 degrees at Marfa and 81 degrees at Laredo.

The National Weather Service said skies should be partly cloudy and hot, with widely scattered thunderstorms in West Texas and Southeast Texas.

NATION

Drenching rain from wide-ranging thunderstorms touched off flash flood watches in sections of Oklahoma and Texas today.

The band of showers and thunderstorms extended from northwest Texas across parts of Oklahoma and Kansas into central Missouri.

Flash-flood watches were posted in sections of northwest Oklahoma and northwest Texas, where the ground already was soaked.

Thunderstorms also were scattered from the southern Rockies to western Kansas and from southeast Nebraska to Michigan.

Thunderstorms lingered near the central and eastern Gulf Coast and along the southern Atlantic Coast, while a few showers dotted the lower Mississippi Valley.

Clear skies prevailed west of the Rockies, across the northern Plains and across the mid-Atlantic Coast states.

Pony Express passes into history

One of a Series of SWC Previews

DALLAS (AP) — The "Pony Express" is history at Southern Methodist.

Football deliveries by alternating tailback tandems such as Craig James-Eric Dickerson and Reggie Dupard-Jeff Atkins are a luxury the depth-shy Mustangs can no longer afford.

The Mustangs have gone to more passing and less pounding. The air, not the ground, will be their prime way to travel during the upcoming Southwest Conference football season.

"We used James and Dickerson and Dupard and Atkins the way we did to utlize their talents and keep them fresh," said Coach Bobby Collins. "It was no secret we were going to run. But it was mighty hard to stop anyway."

However, SMU's ineffective passing caught up with the Mustangs last year.

They suffered through a 6-5 season, including a 35-13 slaughter by eventual national champion Oklahoma at the end of the year.

Because SMU could give no scholarships as the result of NCAA football recruiting violations, the depth is gone from Collins' manpower pool.

SMU will only be able to give 15 scholarships in the next recruiting session and of course the Mustangs aren't eligible to win the Southwest Conference title, play in a bowl game, or be seen on television.

The well-coached Mustangs will still be hard to handle.

"We should have our moments," said Collins, who has changed the Mustangs' offense into a more wide-open, pass-happy attack. "We have some talented receivers and we believe Bobby Watters can throw the ball. We won't be alternating tailbacks, either. Atkins will be our starter."

SMU

Collins said it will be hard to get over last season.

"We were very disappointed with our season last year," Collins said. "We had some close games that could have gone either way. In the past, we have been able to win those, but not last year. The NCAA penalties were a tremendous distraction. The further we get away from them, the better off we will be."

The Mustangs have strong weapons.

They've got a hard-running tailback in Atkins, who rushed for 810 yards and scored eight touchdowns last year.

Tight end Albert Reese is expected to be one of the best in the SWC. He caught 25 passes for 328 yards last year.

"I think we'll have more big plays on offense this year," Collins said.

On defense, Jerry Ball, who had 80 tackles, including seven quarterback sacks, returns to anchor the Mustang defense which loses eight starters.

Linebacker Ben Hummel showed his class by making seven tackles against Oklahoma.

"Replacing eight defensive starters, including four starting linebackers is a big concern," Collins said. "We'll be relying on walk-ons for a lot of help."

SMU redshirted all of its freshmen last year but one so they will still have four years of eligibility left.

Collins will get a break in that the Mustangs do not play an early game. They open the season in an SWC game against Rice in Houston on Sept. 13.

"A&M and Baylor should be the teams to beat and the rest of the conference should be in a dogfight behind those two," Collins said. "I believe we'll have an exciting team to watch. We'll be capable of springing some upsets."

SMU plays Arizona, Boston College and Notre Dame in non-conference games.

Browns tangle Dolphins in rematch tonight

Associated Press

The Cleveland Browns don't have the most pleasant memories of the Miami Dolphins.

The last time they visited the Orange Bowl, the Browns blew a 21-3 third-quarter lead in last season's AFC playoffs and lost to the Dolphins, 24-21.

With the advantage of hindsight, Browns Coach Marty Schottenheimer says the game was a good experience.

"The playoff loss isn't too significant to us today," Schottenheimer said as the Browns prepared for Friday night's exhibition game with the Dolphins.

The Browns-Dolphins rematch, to be televised nationally by ABC starting at 7 p.m., is one of three NFL preseason games tonight that open the second full weekend of the exhibition season. Pittsburgh is at Washington and Seattle at Detroit in the others.

Saturday Atlanta is at Tampa Bay, Buffalo at Houston, Cincinnati at the New York Jets, Dallas at the Los Angeles Raiders, Denver at Minnesota, Indianapolis at Chicago, Kansas City at St. Louis, New England at New Orleans, the New York Giants vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee and Philadelphia at San Diego.

Angel defense gives one away to Diablos

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Midland's pitching staff has taken a lot of flack this year for losing games that should have been won. They can again be blamed for Thursday's 12-7 Texas League loss to El Paso, but, an assist must go to the Angel defense as well.

The Angels held a 7-3 lead going into the top of the ninth when leadoff hitter Todd Brown set the trend for the rest of the inning by collecting a single off reliever Rich Carter and stretching it an extra base when left fielder Brian Brady booted the ball.

It was the first of six hits the Diablos would collect in the inning and the first of four Midland errors.

Brady's bobble was negated, however, when Kevin Smith followed with a triple to chase Carter. John Gibbons' single and doubles by Bill Bates and Lavell Freeman knocked Midland ace Terry Clark off the mound without recording an out with Freeman's two-RBI shot tying the game at seven.

The tie-breaker should never have been scored. Playing defense like the Marx Brothers — seemingly for laughs — the Angels started booting nearly everything in sight.

With Freeman on second and one gone after third reliever Julian Gonzalez got Charlie O'Brien to pop up a bunt, the Angels set up the double play by intentionally walking Billy Jo Robidoux.

The intentional walk would have worked to perfection except second baseman Pete Coachman bobbled a double play ball by Jesus Alfaro, allowing Freeman to score for an 8-7 game.

One out later, Alfaro was forced out at second on Alan Cartwright's grounder, which scored Robidoux. Cartwright and Brown scored on Brown's 13th home run of the year, 11-7.

The ninth and final run of the ninth inning was again a defensive gift. Coachman booted Smith's grounder and the Diablo shortstop rounded the bases when a charging Dante Bichette dropped John Gibbons' pop fly to center for the fourth error.

THE COMEDY hour the Angels put on in the ninth erased a strong pitching performance by starter Mike Romanovsky. In his eighth start since coming to Midland in midseason, Romanovsky allowed seven hits, one walk and three runs while striking out six.

A run, two hits and the walk came in the top of the seventh and Romanovsky didn't return in the eighth. Instead, Carter, who arrived Wednesday from Palm Springs, made his debut, allowing only one walk against the meat of the Diablo order — O'Brien, Robidoux, Alfaro and Cartwright.

Carter was given a Texas League welcome to start the ninth.

Other highlights for Midland came mostly in the first and fifth innings.

Trailing 1-0, Kevin King tied the game with his 25th homer of the year. His towering shot looked more like a routine pop up to center field than a homer, but kept drifting deeper and deeper until clearing the fence.

In the fifth, the Angels mounted a five-run, one-out rally off starter Dan Scarpeta with five straight hits including RBI shots by Dave Montanari, John Hotchkiss and Brian Brady. A fourth run scored on Brown's throwing error to the plate and the fifth on James Randall's groundout.

ANGEL NOTES — At the plate, Brady had the hottest bat with a 3-for-4 performance to drive in two runs and score another while Hotckiss was 2-for-4 with one RBI and one scored.Bates and Smith led the Diablos with three hits each while Freeman and Brown added two...The loss gives Midland a 1-4 record against EP in the six-game homestand and gives El Paso a 13-12 edge on the season...The Angels and Diablos will wrap up the series tonight with a 7:30 p.m. game.

Travelers' Dougherty buries Jackson with two swings

Associated Press

With two swings of the bat, Arkansas shortstop Mark Dougherty buried the Jackson Mets.

Dougherty slammed two homers, including a three-run, ninth-inning shot that gave the Travelers a come-from-behind 7-5 victory over the Jackson Mets Thursday night in Texas League action.

In other league action, Beaumont defeated San Antonio 3-2, El Paso defeated Midland 12-7, and Tulsa slammed Shreveport 10-4.

Dougherty slugged a grand slam in the fifth inning off Mets lefthander John Young. Dougherty drove in all seven Arkansas runs, and now has seven homers for the year.

His ninth-inning shot over the right-field fence came off Mets reliever and loser Jeff Innis, 2-5.

Reliever Paul Cherry, 3-3, who came on the eighth inning, won the game. Jeff Keener received his 12th save of the year.

Jackson leftfielder Jason Felice hit his 13th homer of the year, a solo shot. He drove in another run during a four-run Mets rally in the fourth inning. He now has 86 RBIs for the season.

Arkansas is now 25-30 for the second half. Jackson falls to 25-28.

Mark Poole's 4-for-5 performance at the plate led Tulsa in its rout of Shreveport. Brad Hill went 3-for-5 and scored twice, as the Drillers pounded out 15 hits.

The victory snapped a six-game Shreveport winning streak.

Kirk Killingsworth, 9-4, was the winner over Charlie Corbell, 10-6.

Poole's three-run home run in the fourth inning was his third round-tripper of the season and raised Tulsa's lead to 10-1.

Everett Graham had two hits for Shreveport. He scored once and drove home a run.

Rangers beat one of AL's best to stay close

Associated Press

The Texas Rangers, who are keeping close to California in the American League West despite a struggling pitching staff, turned the tables on one of the top pitchers in the league Thursday night.

Ted Higuera, 15-8, whose shortest stint in 24 previous starts this season was 2 2-3 innings on June 23, was relieved without retiring a batter in the second inning, and he was charged with five runs as Texas beat Milwaukee 8-2. The victory moved the Rangers to within 1½ games of the idle Angels in the West.

Meanwhile, Texas rookie right-hander Mike Loynd allowed one run on five hits in seven innings, the Rangers longest outing by a starter since Charlie Hough went eight innings on July 28, a stretch of 14 games.

"The big early lead made it easy for me," Loynd said of Texas' six-run second inning. "I was able to experiment with some pitches and the curveball I didn't have in the first inning suddenly came back."

Loynd, 2-0, gave up an RBI single to Gorman Thomas in the first after walking Paul Molitor to lead off the game.

"Just shows that walks come back to haunt you," said Loynd, who didn't issue another free pass.

Higuera gave up five consecutive hits in the second before being replaced by Chris Bosio, who gave up a three-run homer to Ruben Sierra that gave Texas a 6-1 lead.

In the big inning, Gary Ward and Larry Parrish singled, Don Slaught tied the game 1-1 with a double, Steve Buechele hit a two-run single and Toby Harrah chased Higuera with another single.

Bosio came in and got Scott Fletcher on a groundout, but Sierra's seventh homer capped the scoring.

Dale Mohorcic pitched the eighth inning for Texas and tied an American League record with appearances in eight consecutive games. The record was set by Boston's Bennett Flowers in 1953.

Red Sox 11, Royals 6

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Tony Armas knocked in four runs, three of them on his seventh home run of the year in the third inning, and Don Baylor singled in the go-ahead run.

The Red Sox, who also got homers from Rich Gedman and Dwight Evans, increased their lead in the American League East to four games over the idle New York Yankees.

Orioles 12, Indians 2

CLEVELAND — Storm Davis pitched his first complete game since April 20 and Lee Lacy extended his hitting streak to 15 games with four hits, including an RBI double during Baltimore's six-run second inning.

Davis, 9-9, gave up nine hits, struck out five and walked none in his second complete game of the season. Cleveland's only runs came on rookie Cory Snyder's leadoff homer in the second and Carmen Castillo's RBI single in the ninth.

Eddie Murray, who had three of Baltimore's 17 hits, walked to start the Orioles' six-run second against loser Jose Roman, 1-1, and capped the inning with an RBI single against reliever Dickie Noles. Four of the runs were unearned because of a two-out error by Cleveland shortstop Julio Franco.

Larry Sheets drove in three runs with a double and a two-run homer.

White Sox 8, Tigers 2

DETROIT — Ron Hassey had two doubles, driving in three runs, as the Chicago White Sox beat the Detroit Tigers 8-2 behind combined six-hit pitching by Jose DeLeon and two relievers.

Chicago ended the Tigers' three-game winning streak.

Hassey hit a two-run double in the four-run first inning. He doubled in a run and scored in the three-run eighth. Tim Hulett hit his 14th homer of the season in the inning.

Chicago's Russ Morman was 3-for-5, singling in a run in the first.

DeLeon, 3-1, allowed both Detroit runs on four hits during his 5 1-3 innings. Bobby Thigpen gave up two hits and five walks in 2 1-3 innings, then Ray Searage finished.

Frank Tanana, 9-6, lasted only 1 1-3 innings for Detroit.

Don Mattingly best in clutch, claims Niekro

By JOHN NELSON
AP Baseball Writer

Extra Innings

The Yankees' Don Mattingly is the best hitter in the AL in clutch situations, says former teammate Phil Niekro.

"He knows exactly what he has to do," says Niekro, who pitched for the Yankees in 1985. "If it's a double situation, he gets a double. If it's a triple situation, he gets a triple. If it's a home run situation, he gets a home run... In my mind, he's the best hitter there is...

The Cards' Todd Worrell would be the leading candidate for NL Rookie of the Year, except most people have forgotten he is still a rookie. He was the Cards' bullpen stopper down the stretch last season and appeared in seven postseason games with St. Louis. But he worked in only 17 regular-season games while spending most of the season at Louisville.

In one recent stretch of 13 appearances, Worrell was 1-0 with 12 saves...

Milwaukee pitching coach Herm Starrette is introducing yet another version of the forkball. He developed it several years ago by accident while playing catch. He calls it more of a split-finger pitch. It's held with the seams, but not stuffed between the first two fingers like a forkball. Actually, the fingers are held only slightly farther apart than normal. When the pitch is thrown, the middle finger is lifted off the ball, allowing the pitch to slide off the index finger. It is delivered with the motion of a fastball but arrives with the velocity of a changeup and the action of a screwball. "I taught it to Rawley Eastwick, and it gave him a few extra years in the big leagues," Starrette says. ...

Houston's Glenn Davis has found out there's a price to be paid for hitting home runs. He just wants to make sure he exacts his own price, as well. "I can't let the pitchers throw at me like they are," Davis says. "I'm not the kind of guy who goes around looking for a fight, but I have to put an end to this. A pitcher can end my career with one pitch, and I'm not going to let that happen."

Davis caps winning rally for Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Glenn Davis capped a three-run eighth inning with an RBI single that gave the Houston Astros a 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Thursday night.

Fernando Valenzuela, 15-8, took a two-hit shutout into the eighth, but Dickie Thon led off with a single and Bill Doran singled one out later. Billy Hatcher followed with another single, making it 2-1 and sending Doran to third.

Phil Garner tied the score with a groundout before Davis' single to center knocked in Hatcher with the go-ahead run.

Larry Andersen, 2-0, got the victory with three innings of perfect relief. Dave Smith pitched the ninth for his 23rd save.

The Astros, winners of 13 of the last 17 games at home, extended their National League West lead to five games, matching its longest of the season, over San Francisco.

Mets 4, Cardinals 3
Cardinals 5, Mets 1

NEW YORK — Rick Horton and Pat Perry combined on a three-hitter and Andy Van Slyke hit a two-run homer as St. Louis beat the Mets 1 for a split of their doubleheader. Kevin Mitchell drove in three runs with a homer and a tie-breaking single in the ninth inning as New York won the opener.

Horton, 2-3, gave up three hits in seven innings, and retired 17 straight batters at one point. Rick Anderson, 1-1, took the loss.

In the first game, Rafael Santana led off the Mets' ninth with a double against Todd Worrell, 7-9. Santana was unable to advance on a bunt by Wally Backman, who was thrown out at first, and Mookie Wilson followed with a single. Center fielder Vince Coleman threw Sanatana out trying to score as Wilson went to second on the play.

Mitchell, who hit a two-run homer as the Mets took a 3-2 lead in the seventh, followed with a hard single to center that got past Coleman as Wilson scored without a throw. Roger McDowell, 12-6, got the victory.

Phillies 8, Pirates 7

PHILADELPHIA — Von Hayes led off the bottom of the ninth inning with a home run after Gary Redus had tied the game in the eighth with his second homer of the game.

Hayes, who was 3-for-3 in the game, hit a 3-2 pitch off Pittsburgh reliever Barry Jones, 1-2, over the right-center field fence. The Phillies won their third straight.

Braves 7, Padres 3

ATLANTA — Ken Griffey's grand slam broke an eighth-inning tie and gave the Atlanta Braves victory.

With two outs, pinch-hitter Billy Sample doubled and Ken Oberkfell walked. Gene Walter, 2-2, was replaced by Craig Lefferts, who walked Dale Murphy, loading the bases.

Griffey then hit his ninth home run with Atlanta, and his fourth career grand slam. Jeff Dedmon, 4-6, got the win in relief.

Murphy and Omar Moreno homered for Atlanta, and John Kruk homered for the Padres.

Reds 2, Giants 0

CINCINNATI — John Denny tossed a three-hitter and rapped an run-scoring single.

Pete Rose had three singles, including an RBI hit in the fifth off Kelly Downs, 0-3, that broke a scoreless tie.

Expos 5, Cubs 4

MONTREAL — Tom Nieto hit his first home run of the season with two outs in the 10th inning.

Nieto fouled off several 3-2 pitches from Ron Davis, 0-1, before homering over the left-field wall. Davis, who took over to start the ninth inning, was making his first appearance since being acquired from Minnesota in a trade Wednesday.

Dollar rises

LONDON (AP) — The dollar rose against all major currencies except the British pound in early European trading today on rumors that U.S. and West German officials agreed to consider a joint reduction of interest rates.

Dealers said the dollar was boosted by a newspaper report that Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker and Bundesbank President Karl Otto Poehl agreed at a meeting earlier this week to consider joint U.S.-West German interest rate cuts.

The report said they agreed to intervene in the open dollar market if such a reduction failed to support the dollar.

A spokesman for the Bundesbank, the country's central bank, refused to comment on the report. But several dealers said it only reiterated old rumors and didn't offer any new supporting facts for an impending interest rate reduction.

On European markets, the dollar was trading at 6.7175 French francs, up from late Thursday's price of 6.7025 francs in Paris.

The dollar recovered from its lowest closing rate since the late 1940s in Tokyo, closing at 154.30 yen, up from Thursday's 153.60 yen.

In London, gold opened at a bid price of $387.70 a troy ounce, but the city's five major bullion dealers later fixed a lower recommended trading price of $386.50. Both were above late Thursday's closing bid of $385.00.

In Zurich, gold was selling at a bid of $386.50 at noon, up from $384.50.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold closed at $384.22 bid, up from $382.64 the previous day.

Silver prices also rose on the London market, where the metal was selling at a bid $5.33 a troy ounce compared with $5.30 late Thursday.

Rising U.S. gasoline demand pushes oil prices up

By ROZ LISTON
United Press International

Oil prices were mostly higher on world markets Thursday amid growing optimism that rising U.S. gasoline demand will help trim the global oil surplus.

Analysts said prices were bouyed by an American Petroleum Institute report Wednesday that gasoline demand in the United States, the largest oil-consuming nation, jumped 5.7 percent in July from year-earlier levels and scored the biggest increase in eight years during the first two months of the summer.

The failure of U.S. motorists to respond swiftly to falling pump prices became a major depressant on the international oil market this spring after some analysts predicted double-digit growth in the nation's gasoline use for 1986.

But energy specialists now expect the long-awaited rebound in U.S. gasoline demand to make some dent in the oil glut as the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries takes steps to cut production by over 3 million barrels a day and reimpose national output quotas on Sept. 1.

Some OPEC officials estimate that world oil supplies currently exceed demand by as much as 4 million barrels a day.

An official in Kuwait, one of the cartel's powerful Gulf states, said the state-owned petroleum company had made "the necessary arrangements" to slash production by 700,000 barrels a day to its OPEC-assigned quota of 900,000 barrels a day.

On the European spot market, Britain's North Sea Brent crude rose 15 cents to $13.80 a barrel. Dubai light crude from OPEC's United Arab Emirates gained a dime to $12.70 a barrel.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, West Texas intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude for September delivery, added 14 cents to $15.42 a barrel.

Unleaded gasoline for immediate delivery on the Merc moved up 0.28 cent to 44.35 cents a gallon, leaded fuel by 0.18 cent to 45.26 cents, and home-heating oil by 0.35 cent to 42.60 cents. But West Texas intermediate lost 40 cents to $15.20 a barrel on the U.S. Gulf Coast spot market.

Most analysts expect oil prices to hover in the $14- to $16-a-barrel range on world markets in the next few weeks because of OPEC's inability to enforce past production restraint agreements and the recent restocking of oil inventories in consuming nations.

But some specialists believe the 13-nation cartel will stick to its latest pact out of fear that Saudi Arabia and Kuwait will resume their pricing war if other OPEC members resort to cheating, which could drive prices down to $5 a barrel.

Mansour al-Fraih, an executive with the Kuwait Petroleum Corp., predicted oil prices would "shoot up" as long as OPEC members honored their national output quotas, the Kuwait news agency reported.

But he said Kuwait's adherence to the OPEC accord depended on similar commitment by other members. "In the event of a breach, Kuwait Petroleum Corp. can and will recover its original share of the market almost instantly," al-Fraih warned.

Committee okays branch banking

By DAVID PLESA
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Senate Economic Development Committee Thursday approved a bill that would allow limited branch banking in Texas.

The bill, which would become law only if voters approve a constitutional amendment Nov. 4, now goes to the full Senate for consideration.

Committee chairman Sen. O.H. "Ike" Harris, R-Dallas, who introduced the bill, said Gov. Mark White probably will open the special legislative session to consider the banking legislation next week.

The bill would allow banks to operate up to three branch offices within the same city or county as the main bank office. A branch also could operate two drive-up banks within 1,000 feet of the branch building.

The bill is in response to a ruling by Attorney General Jim Mattox in June that said a 1985 change in Texas banking laws effectively allows branch banking and thus contradicts the Texas Constitution, which prohibits branch banking.

That change in the banking code permits certain drive-up and walk-in banks as far as 20,000 feet from the main bank building.

The Senate committee also approved an amendment that prohibits a bank from branching into a small town with only one bank unless the out-of-town bank is granted a charter or the in-town bank branches into the other bank's area.

Former Sen. Don Adams of Jasper said Texas has 464 small towns each with only one bank.

"The rationale as I understand it, is that if a town could reasonably support more than one bank, there would be a charter for it," said Adams, a lobbyist for the Independent Bankers Association of Texas.

Wednesday, the committee approved an interstate banking bill that would allow out-of-state holding companies to acquire Texas banks.

Supporters say interstate banking will inject new capital into Texas banks and communities suffering from the bleak economy.

Royalties from Spindletop, the gusher that brought the oil business to Texas, have become the subject of recent lawsuits.

Woman files suit in connection with Spindletop

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A Kentucky woman who claims to be an oil heiress has sued two men in connection with a multibillion-dollar inheritance dispute involving Texas oil and gas fields.

Jewell Robbins of Lexington filed the suit Tuesday in Allegheny County Common Pleas Court against James Clark, a Cincinnati home remodeler; Don Profitt, a Covington, Ky., illustrator; and their Pittsburgh attorney, Richard Ferris.

Clark and Profitt filed a federal lawsuit on behalf of about 200 people, claiming they are heirs to one-eighth of the Spindletop oil and gas fields near Beaumont, Texas.

Clark and Profitt claim they are heirs of James Ruben Meadows, also known as James Ruben Meaders, James Meadows King and James Ruben Medders.

They claim Meadows purchased one-eighth of the tract of land in 1911 and that they found a deed to the property. Meadows supposedly died in 1939 in Pittsburgh without a will.

In her suit, Robbins claims to have a written agreement that says she represents the heirs of a James Meaders of Dallas County, Texas and that her descendants are the owners of the Spindletop property.

Wholesale prices show 0.4 percent decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices dropped 0.4 percent last month as fresh declines in gasoline prices more than offset slightly higher food costs. For the first seven months of 1986, wholesale prices fell at an annual rate of 6.2 percent.

Prices had held steady in June and, in fact, have fallen for five months this year.

Gasoline prices, after rising 2.9 percent in June, plunged 19.3 percent last month. That was the largest decline since as 22.0 percent drop in March.

The Labor Department's Producer Price Index for July did not reflect the temporary agreement reached last week by the Organziation of Petroleum Exporting Countries to cut production and raise prices — an action analysts say will add 10 cents or so to retail gasoline prices by summer's end.

Food prices rose 1.9 percent last month.

The biggest increases were a 10.5 percent rise for poultry, a 6.4 percent gain for beef and a 5.1 percent rise for pork.

Analysts said that the higher prices for these meats resulted from unusually hot weather, which resulted in the fewer animals being brought to market.

Prices for goods other than food and energy rose 0.3 percent.

If last month's 0.4 percent drop continued for 12 consecutive months, it would be equivalent to an annual price deflation rate of 4.9 percent.

The overall Producer Price Index stood at 288.0 in July, meaning that an assortment of goods that cost $10 in 1967 — the base period — would have cost $28.80 last month.

In July 1985, the index was 294.8 — meaning that prices for an identical assortment of goods fell 68 cents over the year.

The Labor Department index reflects the wholesale prices that domestic producers receive for their finished products. It does not include the prices of imports or costs charged by service industries and professions, such as restaurants and doctors.

'Baby Bells', workers continue negotiations

The Associated Press

Weary telephone company and union negotiators in New Jersey recessed talks for a few hours' rest early today, and progress toward a settlement was reported in Pennsylvania, but more than 50,000 workers stayed on strike in New York and Michigan.

Talks between New Jersey Bell Telephone Co. and negotiators for 4,500 workers represented by the Communications Workers of America recessed at 4:30 a.m. today. The union agreed to put off indefinitely a decision on whether to strike, said CWA spokeswoman Clara Allen.

The talks were scheduled to resume at 8 a.m., said NJ Bell spokeswoman Lynette Viviani. She declined to comment on the progress of the talks, but earlier today, she said, "As long as they're talking, that's progress."

Negotiators for Bell of Pennsylvania and its 11,300-member union worked past a midnight strike deadline on a new contract, and CWA spokesman Charles Stackhouse said shortly before 6 a.m. that they were still talking.

Stackhouse said the union would decide by 7 a.m. whether to call a strike.

"They are making progress," he said. "I think you'll see it all wind up this morning."

Contracts between the CWA and other unions and the seven so-called Baby Bells expired at midnight Saturday, but in most cases, settlements were reached before the deadline or the unions agreed to continue working without a contract.

The seven regional telephone companies were formed after the 1984 breakup of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

There were more talks Thursday in the biggest and longest strike, affecting 37,600 workers at New York Telephone Co., a subsidiary of New York-based NYNEX, and 1,000 other NYNEX employees in Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

Neither side would comment on whether negotiators had made progress toward ending the strike, which began Saturday at midnight.

Michigan Bell, a subsidiary of the Chicago-based Ameritech, said it had informal talks Thursday about resuming negotiations with the CWA, but reached no agreement on renewing the talks. About 12,600 workers represented by the union went on strike early Wednesday. The company has resisted a union proposal to bring in a state mediator.

Directory assistance, billing and filling of new service orders are being handled by supervisors and have been slowed since the walkout, Michigan Bell spokesman Phil Jones said.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Business inventories rise while sales rebound

WASHINGTON (AP) — American business inventories rose in June at the fastest clip in three months, while business sales rebounded after a huge downturn, according to the Commerce Department.

June sales hit $423.6 billion, up 0.5 percent from May when sales had plummeted 1.6 percent, the department said Thursday.

Inventories held by businesses rose 0.4 percent following a 0.3 percent decline in May.

White House defends sale of sugar to China

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is defending its decision to sell its sugar stockpile to China at a loss, despite complaints from the Australian government that the action will undercut its sugar sales and harm its military alliance with America.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Thursday the administration sold the 145,850 metric tons of sugar for $40 million less than it had paid because the sugar had to be disposed of before President Reagan announces the new sugar quota on Dec. 15.

China has assured the United States that the transaction would not interfere with its purchases from other nations.

Simmons gains control of NL Industries board

NEW YORK (AP) — NL Industries Inc., formally abandoning a two-month effort to defeat a takeover by Dallas investor Harold C. Simmons, has agreed to give Simmons control of its board of directors.

Simmons took effective control of the chemicals and energy-services concern last week when he raised his stake to 51.1 percent of NL's 60 million common shares outstanding.

Under the agreement announced Thursday, NL's board will be cut to nine members from 13, and will include Simmons and four of his associates.

Ex-Cell-O Corp. directors reject takeover bid

TROY, Mich. (AP) — Ex-Cell-O Corp. directors have rejected a $900 million takeover offer by Textron Inc. as too low because of recent improvements in the company's profitability.

Ex-Cell-O directors voted on the $68 per share Textron proposal during a meeting Wednesday in New York but did not reveal the outcome of the meeting until Thursday.

Textron remained silent over whether it would raise its bid.

U.S. basic money supply surges $2.7 billion

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's basic money supply surged $2.7 billion in early August, and last month broader money measures grew at clips close to the upper end of growth ranges set by the Federal Reserve Board.

But the Fed's Thursday report of the rapid growth produced barely a ripple in the bond market.

"A year ago, these growth rates would have horrified the market," said John Sebastian, chief economist of Clayton Brown & Associates, Chicago. "But the market knows now that the Fed doesn't pay much attention to the money supply numbers."

Doubleday publishing house said for sale

NEW YORK (AP) — Doubleday & Co., the publishing house that owns the New York Mets and the nation's second-largest book club, may be for sale, The New York Times reported today.

Wall Street sources told the Times that financial information about Doubleday was being circulated to a small elite group which includes Time Inc.; Gulf & Western Inc., which owns Simon & Schuster; and the Newhouse family, which owns Random House.

But Doubleday Vice Chairman John O'Donnell said the company "was not soliciting anyone's interest in buying Doubleday & Co. either in whole or in part and we do not wish to hear from anyone about such an interest."

Economist: Low oil prolongs reserves

DALLAS(AP) — Low oil prices increase consumption and discourage production but an economist says they also prolong the life of oil reserves, thereby enhancing the nation's future energy independence.

Consumption, production and reserve development depend on expectations of future prices, said William T. Long III, research economist for the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas.

"Delaying production of domestic oil reserves now because of lower prices could nevertheless enhance the nation's future energy independence," Long noted.

Long said when prices are low, there is less incentive to explore for new reserves, which explains the drastic reduction in the number of operating drilling rigs. Depressed prices also lower the level of reserves that producers can extract profitably.

However, these very same recoverable reserves that are uneconomical to extract at lower prices are not lost and can be developed when prices rise.

"Lower prices thus can delay extraction of oil that is more costly to produce until the time when it is more valuable — when the price of oil from other sources is higher," he said.

Long based his study on a comparison of crude oil reserves and annual production levels. He noted the ratio has been steadily falling in the past two and half decades, from about 12-1 in 1960 to about 9-1 at present.

"At the rate of production that existed before 1960, U.S. crude oil reserves would have lasted 12 years," Long said in an interview. "That number has been declining since then. The only break in that pattern came around 1970 with the discovery of large reserves on the Alaskan North Slope."

He said even when prices began to rise in the 1970s and early 1980s, the ratio of reserves to production continued to fall because most large U.S. reserves had been discovered relatively early in the country's producing history. In most years since the start of this century, production has more than offset new discoveries, leading to a fall in reserves.

Drilling recovery still far off

NEW YORK (UPI) — Oilman T. Boone Pickens Jr. said this week he opposes a fee on petroleum imports even though oil prices will have to rebound to $30 a barrel before drilling activity begins to revive in the United States.

"The biggest danger is the call for protection by certain segments of the oil industry," Pickens told an American Bar Association panel on the government's role in energy regulation. "Those are the same ones who were asking for deregulation when OPEC was pushing up prices" in 1979-1981.

Proponents contend an oil import fee would help the devastated U.S. oil industry ride out the oil price collapse and safeguard national security interests.

"If we want to stimulate drilling activity for national security reasons, the government will have to subsidize this effort," said Pickens, the chairman of Mesa Petroleum Co. in Amarillo, Texas. "President Reagan can't jawbone the rigs to go out there and drill."

He predicted the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' Aug. 5 decision to limit production probably would raise oil prices to the $18- to $20-a-barrel range by the first of next year.

Prior to the OPEC accord world oil prices had fallen to the $10-a-barrel level from an average of $28 last December, when OPEC launched a pricing war against outside producers. Oil prices have risen by more than $3 a barrel in the past week.

"If the OPEC agreement holds and we see $20-a-barrel oil, it won't spur exploration," Pickens said. "We need $30 oil with the prospect of $50 out there before the U.S. rig count rises."

The United States had only 734 rigs drilling last week, he said, less than 20 percent of the 4,500 rigs at work in December 1981.

Only 50 of the U.S. rigs now operating are looking for oil and gas, Pickens said. The rest are drilling in proven fields.

"Most of the oil in the United States already has been found, and I don't see any rush to go out and knock off the last of our crude reserves, which have a life of only nine or 10 years," he said.

French halt purchase of Libyan crude

NICOSIA (UPI) — French firms have stopped buying Libyan crude oil and products but deny that this was due to government pressure, the Middle East Economic Survey reported Monday.

The oil journal said French state-owned oil companies and affiliates of international oil firms operating in France have halted purchases of Libyan crude oil and petroleum products but have denied subsequently that they have done so because of pressure exerted upon them by the government.

Instead, the firms have attributed the move to "commercial and market factors," MEES said.

The publication said its sources indicate, however, that while no official instructions have been issued by the Ministry of Industry and Research, the French government has certainly made clear its displeasure concerning [illegible]

MEES said the suspension in Libyan oil imports [illegible] intended to provide direct support for the Reagan administration's pressure against Libya and is the first [illegible] by a European country.

PETCO second quarter losses triple from '85

HOUSTON (SWN) — Petroleum Equipment Tools Co. (PETCO) reported a net loss of $4.6 million or $.44 per share for the second quarter of 1986 on revenues of $7.3 million. This compares to a net loss of $1.4 million or $.13 per share on revenues of $17.4 million for the same period in 1985. The first six months of 1986 showed a net loss of $8.5 million or $.81 per share on revenues of $19 million. The corresponding period in 1985 showed a net loss of $3.6 million or $.34 per share on revenues of $34.8 million.

David M. Johnson, Petco's chairman and president, stated that it appears the decline in the activity in the oil and gas industry is at the bottom, but the road to recovery will be very slow.

Texas International cuts losses from last year

OKLAHOMA CITY (SWN) — Texas International Co. reported a loss for the second quarter ended June 30, 1986, of $9,147,000 or $.22 per share, on revenues of $15,741,000. For the comparable period in 1985, the company recorded a loss of $11,682,000, or $.42 per share, on revenues of $25,347,000.

For the first six months of 1986, the company reported revenues of $39,020,000 and a net loss of $18,528,000, or $.45 per share, compared to revenues of $56,034,000 and a net loss of $11,332,000, or $.41 per share, for the year earlier period. Figures for last year's six month period include certain first quarter restatements to reflect a credit of $6.7 million for previous overpayments of windfall profit tax expense.

Write-down pushes Entex further into the red

HOUSTON (SWN) — Entex Energy Development, Ltd. announced a net loss of $16.4 million ($2.01 per unit) for the three months ended June 30, vs. net income of $382,000 ($.05 per unit) for the comparable period of the prior year. The loss for 1986 includes $14.7 million attributable to a reduction in the capitalized cost of its oil and gas properties as a result of continuing declines in the prices of crude oil and natural gas. This writedown was calculated using estimated average prices received during July, 1986 of approximately $10.50 per barrel and $1.90 per Mcf.

Saxon files SEC registration, amends credit

DALLAS (SWN) — Saxon Oil Development Partners, L.P. announced that it has filed a registration statement with the Securities & Exchange Commission (SEC) to offer rights to its unitholders to purchase 19,701,904 additional units of the Partnership for a total of $12,313,690 if fully subscribed. For each unit held on the date the SEC declares the registration statement for the Rights Offering effective, unitholders will receive four rights.

Each right will entitle the Unitholder to purchase one unit at $.625 per unit.

Prior to the filing, the partnership and Saxon signed an amendment to the line of credit agreement with their lender that requires the partnership to reduce its debt from $15.75 million to $12 million by making ten $250,000 monthly principal payments commencing in July 1986 and a $1.25 million balloon payment on May 29, 1987.

Congressman meets with Administration

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressman Beau Boulter, R-Texas, urged support of retention of current tax laws for the oil and gas industry during a meeting with President Ronald Reagan and Vice President George Bush.

The 25-minute meeting Thursday was likely the last for representatives of the independent, domestic oil and gas industry before the House-Senate Tax Reform Conference ends.

Boulter also recommended during the meeting that Reagan consider various proposals to stabilize prices and to develop, in consultation with the industry, a national energy policy that will make the U.S. energy-secure.

Treasury Secretary James Baker, Energy Secretary John Herrington and National Security Advisor John Poindexter also attended the meeting.

Low oil prices hurt Soviet Union earnings

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The Soviet Union, the world's largest oil producer, will lose nearly a third of its hard currency earnings this year because of low crude oil prices, the Austrian Institute for Economic Research said.

The Soviet Union is likely to see a drop of $7 billion in its oil income, the institute said in its August report, which was obtained by The Associated Press on Thursday.

The Soviet Union earned about $23.3 billion in hard currency last year. Of that, $17 billion was income from the sale of oil and refined petroleum products.

In addition, the Soviet Union's purchasing power is being hurt by a weak dollar, said the report, written by economist Jan Stankovsky. Moscow sells oil for dollars but buys many Western goods in other convertible currencies that have gained in strength in comparison.

The forecast was based on an oil price of about $17 a barrel for this year, compared to an average $28 in 1985.

Prices have been substantially below $17 dollars for much of the year, but Stankovsky said in an interview that he expected an increase if the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries abides by its decision to cut production.

The Soviet Union is not an OPEC member.

The report predicted that the Soviets would try to increase gold sales and curb imports to compensate for the losses.

Democrats criticize Reagan trade policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democrats, gearing up for what could be a major campaign issue this fall, urged the administration to abandon its "ad hoc" trade policy and support trade reform legislation this year.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, complained Thursday the administration "lurches from one crisis to another with an ad hoc response," usually timed to coincide with congressional trade reform efforts.

Bentsen urged the administration to work with a bipartisan group in the Senate towards approving a trade reform bill before Congress adjourns for the year in October, even if it means staying in session an extra week. The House adopted a major trade bill in May.

"It is terribly important to reform trade policies, to do something about the alarming mounting trade deficit," he said.

The United States posted a record $148.5 billion trade deficit last year, and despite administration efforts to bring the dollar in line with foreign currencies and get tough on a case-by-case basis with certain products and trading partners, the trade deficit could hit $170 billion this year.

Earlier this week, the Senate's 47 Democrats agreed on a statement calling for trade reform legislation this year and urged the Republican leadership and administration to join them.

Senate trade subcommittee chairman John Danforth, R-Mo., said this week he would still like to see trade legislation this year, and Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia said he would be willing to limit amendments to the bill, allowing it to move through the Senate more swiftly.

But there is no word yet from Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas on whether he would schedule it for action on the floor.

"The problem we have is at the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue," said Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont. "The ball is in the president's court, and he's not playing ball with us."

Baucus suggested the administration does not want a trade bill before this fall's election because it would be "an admission of failure" that its policies are not working.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, noting that about 2 million American jobs have been lost due to rising imports and declining U.S. exports, was harsher towards the administration.

"I'm fed up with those in Washington who talk like Rambo but act like Bambi where trade is concerned," Glenn said.

Referring to Teddy Roosevelt's famous motto of international relations that the United States should walk softly and carry a big stick, he said, "The latest Republican president seems to think that we should talk loudly but leave our stick at home. And if we don't do something pretty soon, the next thing you know, we'll even be importing the stick."

Dallas real estate syndicator files lawsuit against FSLIC

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas real estate syndicator Craig Hall filed suit for more than $275 million in damages from the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., attorneys said.

Hall alleged in his court filings that recent actions by the federal thrift regulators are having "disastrous effects on the economic viability" of his business, Dallas-based Hall Financial Group.

Claims filed this week by Hall Financial partnerships in Dallas federal court and Michigan state courts said that recent court actions taken by the FSLIC against Hall will halt the company's financial restructuring and destroy Hall's business.

"It's not an exaggeration to say that we are very concerned about this and that it affects many other parts of our operation," Hall said Wednesday. "However, we are hopeful that we will find someone of a proper authority to deal with on this."

Hall Financial in January announced it was restructuring more than $500 million in loans on money-losing apartment and office projects in Texas, Arizona, Colorado and Michigan.

Hall said he has not been able to arrange out-of-court negotiations with FSLIC officials.

Last month, the FSLIC filed suits in Texas, Colorado and Michigan seeking control of 15 Hall properties. FSLIC officials acted as conservator of Westwood Savings and Loan Association of Los Angeles, which provided $132 million in financing for the properties.

Hall Financial and Westwood Savings reached a preliminary agreement in June to restructure the loans on the property.

One month later, the FSLIC filed suit against Hall asking the courts to appoint a receiver for the properties and seize all income from the properties.

Hall, in his counterclaims this week to the FSLIC suits, is asking for injunctions halting the agency's actions.

Mervyn's will lay off 300

HAYWARD, Calif. (AP) — Mervyn's, the department store chain based in Hayward, said on Wednesday that it will lay off 300 employees because of lagging sales and high operating costs.

Most of the layoffs will be among the 3,000 workers at the Hayward headquarters and will range from clerks to department heads, the company said. The 158-store chain has more than 35,000 employees nationwide.

The company that owns the chain, Dayton Hudson Corp., warned less than a week ago that it was expecting flat second-quarter earnings, mostly as a result of a "substantial profit decline" at its Mervyn's division.

Mervyn's officials began a reorganization last April, phasing out merchandise and sales promotion operations in Plano, Texas, and laying off 350 people. The Plano operation had been started two years ago in an attempt to regionalize operations, but was cut back after Mervyn's was hit by declining sales brought on by the depression in the energy business and competition in other areas.

French company announces buyout of Big Three Industries

HOUSTON (AP) — The French company L'Air Liquide S.A. will acquire Big Three Industries Inc. for $1.05 billion, company officials say.

L'Air Liquide agreed to pay $29 for each of Big Three's 36.3 million common shares outstanding, and Big Three's directors approved the offer, the companies announced.

Both companies are major suppliers of industrial gases.

The announcement Tuesday sent Big Three's stock up $4.50 a share to $28.62½ on the New York Stock Exchange. The stock also led the NYSE's active list, with more than 5 million shares changing hands.

L'Air Liquide's offer is conditioned on at least 24.5 million, or 67.5 percent, of Big Three's stock being validly tendered to L'Air Liquide, the companies said.

Big Three is a leading producer of industrial gases used in the chemicals, energy and electronics industries, and its gases are sold primarily through two pipeline systems along the Texas and Louisiana coasts.

For example, the Houston-based company sells nitrogen and carbon dioxide that oil companies use to enhance their drilling efforts.

Big Three also provides energy equipment and services, and sells welding equipment and supplies to the construction and manufacturing industries.

In 1985, Big Three's profit skidded to $14.5 million from $56.7 million the previous year largely because of a $42.3 million loss related to a write-down in the value of the company's energy group. Annual sales rose to $834.2 million from $775.7 million in 1984.

In the first half of this year, sluggishness in the energy industry continued to hold down Big Three's earnings, which inched up to $24.4 million from $23.9 million a year earlier. Sales fell to $368.5 million from $406.8 million.

L'Air Liquide, whose 1985 sales totaled about $2.25 billion, is one of the world's biggest industrial-gas suppliers. It has been operating in the United States since 1969 through its American Air Liquide Inc. subsidiary.

The French company said it was particularly attracted to Big Three because it would give it a significant and relatively low-cost source of argon, a gas used in the manufacture of specialty steel and semiconductors.

As part of the agreement, Big Three also granted L'Air Liquide an option, exercisable under certain conditions, to buy 6.72 million, or 18.5 percent, of Big Three's common shares for $24.12½ apiece, or $162.12 million.

Jury begins deliberations in Chambers case

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

A jury was deliberating the punishment today for 25-year-old James Robert Chambers, who was convicted Thursday for the 1982 robbery and beating death of Wylie Wilson.

The state declined to present any evidence in the punishment phase, but did ask the jury in a final summation for a punishment of 99 years or life in prison.

Defenbse attorney Robert Sutphen, in asking for a "fair and reasonable sentence," said testimony indicated Chambers was not the man who struck the blows that killed Wilson.

In his statement, First Assistant District Attorney David Rosado, said, "If we get anything that smacks of a light sentence in this case I submit to you justice will not be served.

The eleven men and one woman on the jury deliberated for about four hours before agreeing with Midland County prosecutors, who claimed Chambers participated in the robbery and murder the night of June 9, 1982.

When Judge Pat Baskin read the verdict, first for the murder count and then for the robbery count, Chambers closed his eyes and appeared to grimace.

In closing arguments Thursday, District Attorney Al Schorre told the jury that Sutphen was trying to frame the state's three key witnesses, Leroy McKee, Patricia McKee, and Eddie Johnson, as a conspirators against Chambers.

"The attack you heard by the defense attorney is fairly typical," Schorre said. "What the defense is saying is we are once again facing the great conspiracy...but saying it is a conspiracy doesn't work."

Schorre said Leroy McKee, who is serving a 20-year sentence for robbery in the case, had nothing to gain in his testimony Tuesday that Chambers grabbed Wilson after he left a package store and held him as another man struck him with a blunt instrument three times, fracturing his skull.

"He's no saint, but I think he's being honest," Schorre said.

Sutphen earlier had attacked McKee's memory as selective.

"He keeps remembering new things," Sutphen said, emphasizing to jurors that McKee did not implicate Chambers in the killing until the second statement he gave to authorities.

"Leroy's story is not to be believed," he said. "This story is ridiculous. he's still looking out for Leroy ...everybody did it but Leroy."

McKee told jurors Tuesday he did not actively participate in the murder, and was "in shock" after he saw Wilson meet his fate.

"If that's his story, he should not have pled guilty and received 20 years," Sutphen said. "Even after he's been convicted he can't bring himself to tell the truth."

Sutphen also attacked the credibility of Eddie Johnson, who testified Chambers described the robbery and murder to him in a brief conversation the two had outside Johnson's house in March of this year.

Sutphen told jurors Johnson's written statement differed from what he said on the stand, and said the defendant, who barely knew Johnson, would hardly volunteer information about a murder he was involved in, at the time of the conversation, almost four years ago.

Prosecutor Rosado told the jurors Chamber's claim on the stand he had no involvement in the crime was a "classic defense: 'I don't remember.'"

Rosado said Chamber's inability to remember anything about his whereabouts at the approximate time of the murder was damaging.

"I didn't try and tie him down," Rosado said. "I gave him the whole month of June (1982) and he still couldn't remember. If you are charged with murder and robbery that happened three or four years ago, you are going to try and make an effort to tell where you were.

"The fact he didn't do any of that tells me a whole lot — it tells me a whole lot," Rosado said.

Sutphen termed Leroy's wife Patricia, who identified Chambers in court as one of the men in blood-soaked clothes she saw the night of the murder, "the classic example of the person who has one thing in her head and that's all."

Sutphen said she saw the blood, Wilson's stolen jewelry, and Leroy's brother Elroy talking about the murder.

"Everything else was a blur to her," he told jurors. "Beyond that I think it's too much to ask her to remember four years down the line."

Panel: Confident no layoffs, salary cuts despite shortfalls

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

Two months into their budget study, Midland County Commissioners say they are confident there will be no layoffs or salary cuts this year despite a $1 million revenue shortfall.

"I'm concerned because I don't want to hurt the taxpayers and I don't want to create a problem for loyal employees who have been here for years," said County Judge William Ahders.

"My personal goal is to not cut any of the oldtimers. People who have served the county for a number of years," he said.

Despite the $1 million shortfall, the commissioners are attempting to keep their present tax rate of 19.96 cents per $100 valuation. A tax rate will be set by the commission and a budget adopted in September.

For the first time in the past 10 years, Midland County's tax base has dropped 11 percent from $5.12 billion in 1985 to $4.54 billion this year.

Along with no salary increases, the commissioners and 30 county departments are attempting to trim their budgets by cutting down on travel, overtime pay and buying new equipment, said County Auditor Floyd Jarnagin.

"We have not gotten to the point where we can say we will cut salaries or personnel," Jarnagin said.

Commissioner C. Wallace Craig said, "We're getting close enough that we can avoid any layoffs. I really don't personally anticipate any reductions in staff."

The commissioners are within $100,000 of making the necessary $1 million in cuts for 1987's budget, Craig said.

Commissioner Win Brown said, "I don't foresee any layoffs. There might be some reduction, but only through attrition.

"We're getting into the lean and mean type of operation. Services will not be as great as in the past," Brown predicts.

"This has been much more drastic than it has been in the past. We weren't as free to say, OK, get a new typewriter or get a new car. We've just said hold it together as best you can," Brown said.

Jarnagin agrees services will be affected by the cuts.

"It's pretty tough to cut as much as we have to cut and feel that you can maintain the service and not affect personnel. It's almost a Houdini trick.

"It's just a fact of life, if you have to operate with less equipment and less money then you would have to come to a point where services will be affected," Jarnagin said.

While it looks like the county may squeeze through this year without raising taxes and laying off staff, next year it may not be so lucky, Brown said.

"Next year, if things don't improve it will be much, much worse and we will probably have to use a meat cleaver instead of a scalpel to do our work."

In that case, along with layoffs and salary reductions, the county could have to look at a four-day week, Brown said.

Leadership Midland enriching community affairs

By JANE DEES
Staff Writer

There is an old saying that says the greatest wealth of a community lies not in the amount of its treasure but in the quality of its leadership.

Judging from the high number of Leadership Midland graduates who, director Alison Peeler says, are involved in community affairs, Midland is still one of the richest towns around — even in the midst of an oil decline.

"It's one of the most outstanding things in Midland — we've got a tremendous group of folks here," Steve Davidson, 1986 Leadership Midland Outstanding Alumni award winner said.

Steve Davidson

Mike McElwrath

"I think employers like for employees to participate also because it makes them more knowledgeable about the community," Davidson said.

Ms. Peeler said the purpose of Leadership Midland, patterned after a similar program in Dallas, is to give interested men and women with leadership potential, the opportunity to develop their knowledge, and to hone the skills of leadership through a planned learning process in the atmosphere of the city itself.

There is a tuition fee of $325, but in many cases the employer picks up the tab or scholarships are available through the Leadership Midland Alumni Association, alumni president Mike McElwrath said.

"The program lasts for nine months and each month we concentrate on a different aspect of the city, whether it be city government, education, health, the arts or whatever," Ms. Peeler said.

"It lasts from October to June and at the end of the course, we have an annual banquet," Ms. Peeler said.

Ms. Peeler said the program began in 1978 and each year about 90 apply for admission, but that only 40 to 45 are accepted.

"We only pick that number because logistically, it works out better than having a large group. The members can get to know each other better.

"We don't want to turn anyone away — especially if they're interested. We encourage them to try again the next year and many have gotten in on their second or third tries," Ms. Peeler said.

McElwrath said he's concerned with keeping graduates of the program involved once they finish the program.

"We keep them advised of the needs of the organizations in need of volunteer service. Our purpose, basically, is to foster the continued involvement in the community," McElwrath said.

"I joined the 1981 class because I saw it as a chance to become better informed about Midland's volunteer organizations as well as its business and cultural activities.

"There is no other single avenue available in Midland that better provides the opportunity to become involved than Leadership Midland," McElwrath added.

Applications will be accepted through Aug. 29 and those interested should contact Ms. Peeler at the Midland Chamber of Commerce, 683-3381.

Board selects law firm to represent Ector County

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Ector County Commissioners this morning met in special session to select an attorney to represent the county in a "Whistle-Blower" suit that is scheduled to be heard in Austin Aug. 25.

Commissioners voted to hire the Odessa law firm of Shafer Gilliland Davis McCollum and Ashley Inc., to represent the county's interests in the lawsuit.

Prior to the hiring the firm, County Judge Jan Fisher informed commissioners that she had been in contact with several other attorneys and they indicated that because of the lack of "Whistle-Blower" type cases, few attorneys in the state have the necessary experience to handle this kind of civil action.

The Shafer firm was selected because one of the members of the form, Jim O'Leary, successfully represented the city of Odessa in the "Whistle-Blower" action filed by former mayor John Minor.

Fort Stockton attorney Steve Spurgin filed suit in Travis County July 24, 1985, on behalf of Tana Stewart Perry under the Texas Whistle-Blower's Act. The purpose of the 1983 law was to protect employees who report perceived wrongdoing on their jobs.

Ms. Perry, a former county data processing employee, was fired June 25, 1985, by former data processing manager Mike Holden after she reported alleged improprieties in her department. Holden subsequently resigned July 15, 1985.

The lawsuit filed in Travis County district court alleges "criminal conduct" on Holden's part as data processing manager. The suit contends Ms. Perry "became aware of conduct and activities of her supervisor, Mike Holden, that led her to believe a violation of the law, including criminal conduct, had been committed by Mike Holden."

Ms. Perry claims Holden, who operated a private computer business while employed by the county, used county equipment at home and in county offices. In her original petition, Ms. Perry had sought $200,000 in damages because of her termination. However, her attorney later filed an amended petition increasing damages sought to $5.8 million, claiming Judge Fisher had harmed Ms. Perry's reputation.

Spurgin alleges the harm occurred when Judge Fisher described Ms. Perry as one of two "guilty birds chirping" in a television interview. The judge has termed the allegations "ridiculous," saying her remarks were taken out of context.

Following Ms. Perry's firing, Commissioners Court members asked Sheriff Bob Brookshire to assign a deputy to investigation the allegations against Holden.

Lt. Jerry Davis sometime later reported to Commissioners Court that he could find no specific evidence of criminal conduct, only indications of poor judgement and inadequate record-keeping.

With four days left, MC enrollment strongly ahead of last year's pace

From Staff Reports

Midland College's fall pre-registration count is running strongly ahead of last year's record pace, with only four days remaining.

By Thursday, 2,043 students had pre-registered for credit courses, compared with 1,705 for the same time last year. Midland College's all-time record was the 3,513 who signed up for courses last fall, according to Dee Windsor, associate dean of students and registrar.

"The Abell-Hanger Foundation's offer to pay the cost of tuition, fees and books for all 1986 Midland County public school graduates who wish to attend Midland College has had an effect," Windsor said.

"But a great many of those registering are older students who are unemployed, worried about being laid off, or seeking training for new careers."

Hours for pre-registration during the coming week are 7 a.m.to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday in the Student Services Office, Administration Building. Official registration is set for Tuesday and Wednesday, Aug. 26 and 27. Classes begin Tuesday, Sept. 2.

"With the higher count, it becomes even more important for students to pre-register and obtain time permits," Windsor said. "The time permits reserve specific periods for students to come for registration. Those who don't obtain the time permits will have to wait until the final two hours of registration on Aug. 27 to be processed. Persons who are seeking to enroll in specific courses might be disappointed if they don't pre-register, since those courses might be closed by the time they get to register."

Dr. Raymond Yell, vice president for instruction, said that deans and division chairmen were involved in planning to accommodate the anticipated larger enrollment.

"We realize some students will be disappointed if they can't get in specific classes, but we're going to do everything possible to handle the majority," he said. "Some classes are closed each semester due to classroom size or limitation in lab facilities."

United Way fears loss in donations

DALLAS (AP) — United Way officials say their operation here could lose $1 million in donations for this year's fund-raising campaign because of increasing unemployment in the North Texas area.

Bankruptcies, layoffs and foreclosures in the area are eliminating companies and employees that would have participated in payroll-deduction programs through United Way of Metropolitan Dallas Inc., said J.J. Guise Jr., agency president.

"We're going through things we haven't gone through in 28 years," said Guise. "We had a recession in 1970 where we had to underwrite the campaign, but it was nothing like this."

Officials said United Way's 88 affiliate agencies already have lost $8.5 million in federal money in 1986.

The nonprofit organization will have to appeal to more and smaller companies, said Guise.

"There will be no more TIs (Texas Instruments), but there will be many small service companies," he said. "We will have to come up with a method of reaching these new companies."

Coalition pledges to keep fighting proposed tax increase

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Accusing Gov. Mark White of giving up "before the fight has begun," a coalition of 64 conservative House members Friday morning pledged to continue to fight a tax increase in the special session.

Just hours before the full House was scheduled to begin debate on a bill to cut $689 million from the state's fiscal 1987 budget, the Texas Conservative Coalition announced they would look for more savings "to balance the budget without a tax increase at this time." They proposed five items, including the sale of White's controversial new jet, which they claimed would save a total of $56 million.

"When the governor came out with his plan (to temporarily increase the sales tax) on the first day of the session, it was apparent that he had given up the fight against tax increases," said Rep. Tom Waldrop, D-Corsicana and chairman of the coalition. "Nothing has been done to support legislative efforts to control the growth of state spending."

For the last three years, Waldrop said, conservatives have wanted to "seriously trim state spending in the face of declining tax revenues," only to have state leaders find "an easy way out" through increases in taxes and fees.

"There may not be anything wrong with (a tax increase), but we have every reason to believe that there is fat in state government," he said. "We intend to root it out and find it."

The coalition lists 64 of the 150 representatives in its membership, including Reps. Tom Craddick, R-Midland, Kelly Godwin, R-Odessa, Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield and House Speaker Gib Lewis.

Also early Friday morning, a group of House Democrats once again chided Republican gubernatorial candidate Bill Clements for not revealing his "secret plan" to balance the budget. "Texans want responsible leaders, not candidates who promise solutions and back down before we even get to the election," said Rep. Paul Colbert, D-Houston.

The Clements campaign says the former governor's 1979-1983 record in office shows the "blueprint" he would follow to "scrub the budget."

Actress doesn't let lack of hearing slow winning performances down

By CATHY FRISINGER

IRVING (AP) — Actress Bobbie Beth Scoggins seems to have everything — beauty, talent, intelligence and even the critics on her side — but still she has difficulty finding the right roles.

Deaf at birth, born to deaf parents and educated at the Texas School for the Deaf, Ms. Scoggins grew up in a separate, silent world that paralleled the world most Americans live in.

Within that world, Ms. Scoggins excels in nearly everything she does.

Four years ago her performance on Broadway as Sarah Norman Leads in "Children of a Lesser God," won abundant praise from theater critics across the country, including a "New York Times" reviewer.

Nearly every producer Ms. Scoggins has spoken to has been enthusiastic about her work.

She has beauty — Ms. Scoggins was first runner-up in the Miss Deaf Texas beauty pageant; she has intelligence — at age 16 she graduated valedictorian of her high school class; she has talent — she is an expressive actress; she even has athletic ability — she was a member of the U.S. swimming team at the World Games of the Deaf in Malmo, Sweden.

Add to that list determination, and Ms. Scoggins is an individual who can be expected to make a mark. She doesn't expect a problem like a lack of roles to stop her.

Ms. Scoggins' entry into acting came when playwright Mark Medoff, author of "Children of a Lesser God," came to Dallas looking for a woman to play the role of Sarah, a beautiful, young deaf woman who refuses to learn to speak.

Ms. Scoggins was cast as Sarah, and her outstanding performance at Dallas Theater won her the role of understudy to the woman who was playing the part in the Broadway production.

Since that time, she has played Sarah in regional productions all over the country, always receiving effusive praise for her work. Her challenge is to create a career beyond that one role.

Said Ms. Scoggins in sign language interpreted by her husband, " 'Children of a Lesser God' was written to create more roles for deaf actors. For a while, we thought 'Children of a Lesser God' would demonstrate that deaf actors can work with hearing ones — but that has not been the case."

She said deaf actors were disappointed that a hearing woman was cast in the lead role in the recent television remake of "Johnny Belinda."

Nevertheless, Ms. Scoggins is optimistic about her future as an actress. Her new tactic is to create her own roles.

"There is a play called 'Hands of His Enemy,' written by Mark Medoff. It's a play within a play. It's about a playwright who happens to be deaf. She writes a story about incest, but in the end she admits that she was molested as a child. We hope that we can produce it somewhere in the Dallas area," said Ms. Scoggins.

And she'd love to play a role on a television soap opera, perhaps J.R.'s illegitimate deaf daughter, a sweet-tempered creature who turns out to be a vicious liar who can backstab as skillfully as the rest of the clan.

"We are talking with several Pulitzer-winning authors," said Ms. Scoggins. "We want to hire them to submit scripts to soaps."

She is considering performing in a 1987 production of "Children of a Lesser God" in Anchorage, Alaska.

But it's other roles in productions with hearing actors that are her real goal now.

Ms. Scoggins spoke during the anniversary celebration of a school for deaf children recently. A 13-year-old girl came up to her and told her she wanted to be an actress.

"I told her you have to be more than 100 percent committed to the profession or you'll never make it."

Guns taken in burglaries, according to police records

From Staff Reports

Guns were the stolen article of choice Thursday, sheriff's and police department records indicate.

Lloyd Samples, Rt. 4, Box 816, in Midland County, had guns and stereo equipment valued at $2,358 stolen from his trailer late Thursday afternoon, Midland County Sheriff's Department records show.

Virginia Zankford, 910 Douglas, reported $1,200 worth of guns stolen early Friday morning, Midland Police Department reports indicated.

Five air nail guns and a Black and Decker drill bit, worth about $1,700 were stolen from Fernando Olguin, 508 E. Kentucky, police records stated.

Congressional candidate: National energy policy 'vital' to U.S. security

From Staff Reports

Pete Snelson, Democratic candidate for the 21st Congressional District post, said a a national energy policy which will provide a floor of stabality for the domestic oil industry and prevent overdependence on imported oil is "vital" to U.S. national security.

Snelson, a long-time state senator from Midland, told the Westside Lions Club Thursday "It was a sad day for the nation when the (Reagan) administration made a decision in 1983 to abandon the goal of energy self-sufficiency."

Government figures show that oil imports rose from 4.2 million barrels per day in January to 6.5 million barrels per day in June and that 40 percent of the nation's oil consumption is imported.

Before the 1973 Arab oil embargo, imports to the U.S. were less than 6.3 million barrels and about 36 percent of consumption. Result of the 1973-74 embargo was a "severe" economic recession from which the oil industry was slow to recover.

Instead of an embargo, OPEC is using over production to depress the price of oil and this ploy could again make our nation a pawn of the Arab oil producing world, Snelson said.

"An important first step in bringing a measure of stability to the oil industry would be the adoption of an import fee on foreign oil coming into this country," he said.

"The fee should be on a sliding basis so that both the oil industry and financial community would have a sound basis on which to continue the search for and development of our oil and gas resourses," he added.

Lee High, San Jacinto Junior High bands selected as finalists in state competition

From Staff Reports

Both the Robert E. Lee High School and San Jacinto Junior High School Bands have been selected as finalists in the State Honor Band Competition.

The competition was held recently at the Texas Bandmaster Association Convention in San Antonio. Prior to this convention both bands were selected to represent Region VI and Area "A" of Texas.

The competition, which included the best bands throughout the state, was based on recorded performances of last year's bands. The Texas State Honor Band Competition is considered to be the top competition for bands in the state. Only the state's finest bands are able to compete at this level.

Randy Storie, director of band and orchestra, is beginning his 11th year with MISD and his seventh year as director of the Robert E. Lee Band.

Storie was recently honored by being selected as a member of Phi Beta Mu, the National Honorary Band Director's Fraternity. He received his BME and MM from West Texas State University.

Don Lefevre, director of bands at San Jacinto Junior High School is beginning his 5th year with MISD and his third at San Jacinto. Lefevre received his BME at West Texas State University and his MM at the University of Michigan.

The Midland bands are continually striving to achieve the best possible music programs in the state of Texas. The results of the State Honor Band Competition demonstrate that Midland has instrumental music programs in which the community can be proud.

Music lovers take part in variety of ensemble choices through MC

From Staff Reports

Local residents who enjoy music have several opportunities with the various ensembles at Midland College.

"Unlike universities, our ensembles are primarily made up of people in the community who have had musical training in the past and like getting together with others to play or sing," said Dr. Don Grant, coordinator of instrumental programs at Midland College.

Grant pointed out that the college ensembles include the Community Band, directed by Walter Osadchuk, rehearsing on Tuesday evenings; the Community Evening Choir, which rehearses on Thursday evening under the direction of Dr. Michael Jordan; the Jazz Ensemble that's directed by Grant and meets on Sunday evenings; and at least three Commercial Music Ensembles that are led by Jerry Tubb.

The Commercial Music groups perform bluegrass, country-western, or rock groups. Some of the Commercial Music ensembles meet during the daytime and some in the evenings.

"Those interested in participating are urged to pre-register next week in the Student Services Office, which is located in the Administration Building. The hours of pre-registration are 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday, with Aug. 21 being the last day of pre-registration," Grant said.

Additional information is available about specific groups by calling 685-4640.

Elroy McKee, who did not testify, is serving a life sentence for the slaying and 20 years for the robbery.

Schorre also recalled Johnson's testimony that Chambers bragged that authorities lacked evidence to tie him to the case, and if they tried, he could produce two witnesses who would testify he wasn't at the scene of the crime.

"I kept waiting for those two witnesses he claimed he had," Schorre said. He also addressed the burden of proof — the familiar "beyond a reasonable doubt" standard criminal juries are given.

Earlier Sutphen told jurors the prosecution's case could be reasonably doubted, but Schorre refuted that.

"Reasonable doubt is a doubt based on reason; it is not a hunch, or a guess, or a dream," he said. "The evidence, I would submit to you is an open and shut case."

Chambers, as he had throughout the trial, sat quietly at the defense table as the jury deliberated in the jury room of the 142nd District Court.

He becomes the third man to be convicted in the case. The final defendant, Jackie Dorn, is scheduled to be tried later this month in Judge Baskin's court.

The range of punishment jurors can consider for murder is five to 99 years, or life imprisonment. A robbery conviction carries a punishment of two to 20 years in state prison.

Control of pet parasites essential to owners as well

Pets have been recognized as important members of American society for years and often are regarded as irreplaceable members of the family. Pet owners realize manny aesthetic, emotional and monetary benefits from ownership. Control of external parasites is essential to a pet's health and is important for owners, since some parasites may also attack humans.

Small domestic pets often are maintained in the home, an environment favorable to the year-round development of numerous external parasites. As a result, seasonal fluctuation in occurrence and abundance of parasites may not be detected as easily as on larger animals that are kept out-of-doors. Successful parasite control on dogs and cats usually requires the proper use of approved pesticides on the pet, its bedding, pen and other areas in the yard or house that are visited by the pet. Treatment of only one of these areas probably will prove unsatisfactory because parasite maintenance and pet reinfestation may occur from several sources. For example, fleas that attack the dog or cat may be harbored in the pet's bedding, the carpet of the home or the yard grass. Recurring parasite problems require treatment of the pet and of all these areas simultaneously.

Common parasites of pets:

— Fleas are common insect parasites of many pets. Dog and cat fleas feed on a number of hosts including man. The life cycle of the flea is composed of the egg, larva, pupa and blood-feeding adults. Eggs are deposited on the host but fall off the animal onto bedding and other areas frequented by the pet. Slender, yellow larvae hatch from eggs and feed on flea droppings and other debris found in the resting place of the host animal. Within nine to 15 days larvae develop into a resting, non-feeding pupal stage and individuals can survive prolonged periods of starvation caused by host detachment. Flea control is important since fleas can transfer a variety of disease agents, cause dermatitis and serve as the intermediate hosts of several internal parasites.

— Several species of ticks infest dogs and cats. The American dog tick and the brown tick are most common. The life cycle of the tick includes the egg, six-legged larvae (seed tick), nymph and adult. The larval, nymphal and adult stages require blood meals from warm-blooded hosts to mature. Tick feeding results in blood loss and irritation to the pet and the possible spread of disease-causing organisms. Pet paralysis caused by the injections of toxins during the feeding of some tick species is also possible.

— Although several species of lice occur on pets, they are uncommon and usually restricted to a localized situation. Both biting and sucking lice attack pets. Sucking lice are blood feeders and may cause anemia and severe skin irritations when these infestations occur. Biting lice feed on skin debris and the hair coat.

— Several species of mites infest pets. these often microscopic parasites may burrow into the skin or may exist under scabs of serum exudate that result from mite feeding. Mange symptoms (severe irritation leading to localized swelling, infection, and even loss of hair), result from mite burrowing and feeding. Extreme cases may kill the pet. Mites also attack the ears of dogs and cats, causing discomfort, loss of appetite and violent shaking of the head. Pets with a serious mite infestation often require treatment by a veterinarian.

ALl pesticides are toxic and should be used only according to instructions on the container label. Dosage rates, treatment methods, application intervals and the names of animals that may be treated with the pesticide appear on the label. The information should be read thoroughly and understood by the applicator prior to using the pesticide.

Study: Farm population shrunk more than one-tenth since 1980

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's farm population has shrunk by more than one-tenth since 1980 and, with more farms in financial trouble, it seems likely to continue declining, a government study reports.

Nationally, the farm population slipped 11.5 percent to 5,355,000 between 1980 and 1985, but the decline seems to be only just beginning to reach the Midwest, the nation's agricultural heartland.

The biggest decline occurred in the South where more than one farm resident in five left the land, according to the report released Thursday by the Census Bureau and the Department of Agriculture.

At the same time, the study showed only a drop of 4.6 percent in the Midwest, and even indicated a slight rise in farmers in that area between 1984 and 1985 — a tally questioned by farm population experts.

But whatever the short term count, the study observed that a majority of the financially troubled farms in the country are located in the Midwest — home of nearly half the nation's farm population.

"We expect...that the farm population will begin to decline in the Midwest, reflecting the region's growing number of financially stressed farms," the report said.

"It would be foolish not to think that the farm crisis is involved in this decline," said Calvin Beale, an Agriculture Department population expert who noted that financial problems are threatening many farmers with bankruptcy.

"A consolidation of farms is going on as they lose out, or decide they are about to, and quit. So the farm population is still continuing to decline, and the end of the decline is certainly not visible yet," Beale said.

"In some cases entire families whose farm businesses-residences become insolvent may be forced off their farms by foreclosure," said the study, "Farm Population of the United States 1985."

"In addition, young family members may be more likely now than in the past to move off the farm...in the face of current economic uncertainties," the report went on.

That trend has helped lead to a median age of 36.5 years for farm residents, significantly higher than the median of 31.4 for the nation as a whole.

"We had a fair number of younger farmers come in in the 1970s ... but many of them are among those who are in trouble now. They came in when it was both necessary and possible to borrow large sums of money for land and equipment, and find the value of their collateral now having dwindled," Beale observed.

"During the last two years we show no further increase in the number of younger farmers. Young people can't get started, or have changed their minds about desirability of going into the business," he said.

In 1920 the farm population had a median age of 20.7 years compared to 26.9 for nonfarm residents. By 1960 the median ages of both groups were about equal, 29.6 years for farm residents and 29.5 for nonfarmers.

Beale questioned some of the specifics of the new report, however, particularly an apparent one-year drop in the farm population, and an increase in the farm population of the Midwest between 1984 and 1985.

The study showed a sharp drop of 399,000 in the farm population between 1984 and 1985 after having held steady for a few years.

The overall decline between 1980 and 1985 seems accurate, Beale said, but he believes that it began earlier rather than dropping sharply last year.

The study is based on a survey of 58,000 households across the nation, but at 2.2 percent of the population that would include only 1,276 farm households, a small enough sample to result in some "bounces" from year to year, Beale explained.

Other findings of the new study included:

—The national decline in the farm population means that about one American in every 45 now lives on a farm, down from one in 7 in 1950 and one in four in 1930.

Yards, gardens now require special watering attention

With the current hot, dry weather, homeowners must give careful attention to watering their yards and gardens.

Here are some tips on getting the most from irrigation water to keep plants and lawns healthy while keeping water costs down.

1. Practice slow, deep watering to allow roots to penetrate deeper so that plants become more stress-resistant.

2. Soaker hoses and drip irrigation systems work well on trees and shrubs. It's more efficient to water at night or early in the morning because evaporation is less. However, night-time watering can promote more disease problems.

3. Too much water can be as detrimental, or even worse, than not enough. The rate at which water is applied should be no more rapid than the rate at which the soil can absorb it. Never fertilize landscape plants when soil is dry. It's best to water the area one day, apply fertilizer the next day, and then water again. Fertilizer will do no good unless it is dissolved and moved down into the soil.

4. Shrubs and trees near foundations, under eaves, or on southern and western exposures need frequent watering because they often get less benefit from rainfall and have to deal with heat reflected from walls.

5. Plants on mounds or slopes suffer from drought stress more easily than those on level areas, so these require more frequent watering.

6. Use an organic mulch of pine bark, chopped straw, hay or similar material to reduce irrigation needs.

7. Treat water as a valuable resource. Use it to water plants when needed, but do not waste water. Although considered a renewable resource, good water supplies are becoming scarce in Texas.

Opening lead: Ace of ◇

In a perfect elimination play, you strip your hand and dummy of two suits to force a return in a third suit or a ruff-sluff. However, there are times when you cannot achieve a complete strip. There may still be advantages to a partial elimination, as this hand highlights.

Although he had a minimum opening bid, North's four-card support for his partner's suit made a raise mandatory. While his queen of spades was a doubtful asset, we agree with South's decision to go straight to game, but he might have tried three no trump.

Under normal circumstances, declarer would have an easy passage at four hearts, losing a spade, a diamond and the ace of trumps. After the opening lead of the ace of diamonds and a diamond continuation, however, declarer was faced with the possibility of a diamond ruff. All would still be well if East was entryless, but it would be silly for West to look for a ruff if he felt that his partner did not have a way to gain the lead.

If that entry was the ace of trumps, declarer would be powerless to prevent the ruff. However, if he could succeed in eliminating West's safe exit cards, all might still be well. So after winning the second diamond, declarer cashed the ace-king of clubs and ruffed a club with a high trump. Since he had no fast entry to the table for another club ruff, declarer had to hope that West started with only three clubs. He continued with a trump to the ten and East's ace.

East gave his partner a diamond ruff, but that did not defeat the contract. West was down to nothing but spades, and his forced return of that suit eliminated declarer's loser there.

Note that it would not have helped East to shift to a spade. That would be exchanging trick for trick, since the defenders would then be unable to score a diamond ruff.

By Jeane Dixon
Saturday, August 16, 1986

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Show your true colors! Buckle down to work and do things that will advance your long-term career goals. Seize an opportunity to be a leader. You will know how to run with the ball once you get it. Your growing self-confidence enhances a love relationship.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: actor Robert Culp, ballerina Suzanne Farrell, first baseman Mike Jorgeson, Lauren Bacall, singer Edye Gorme, "Monday Night Football's" Frank Gifford, music-maker B.B. King, rock star Madonna, and Israel's Menachem Begin.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You may have to give way to an authority figure today. Games could bring out your athletic potential. Remain true to your principles and you will be a winner. Spend time with a child.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Too much comfort could sap your motivation on this lazy summer weekend. Self-expression is the key to overcoming a mental block. Free-lance writing could mean extra cash. Ignore minor irritations.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Avoid projects that are a waste of time and money. A good day to go shopping. Take advantage of end-of-summer bargains. Leave your credit cards at home and spend cash only.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Open up and let others know where you stand. Face an old foe and settle any grievances once and for all. Stop trying to appease a roommate who disapproves of your actions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A hobby or sport could introduce you to a potential romantic partner. Your beliefs are important; do not surrender them in the name of love. A dream that seemed impossible could come true.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Trust your intuition where a romantic or family situation is concerned. Play more of a supportive role with offspring. Growing up can be as hard for a parent as for a child.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Travel enjoys highly favorable influences. Try to fit in both outdoor fun and some study. Your warm-hearted generosity strengthens family ties. Give a financial scheme a lot more thought before investing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Reduce entertainment expenses by enjoying free community activities. You like to go your own way and pay for things yourself. An unexpected romantic encounter is exciting.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Broaden your outlook by joining a study group or social club. Long-distance travel provides a welcome change of pace. Clean out your closets and drawers. Donate unwanted items to charity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Throw yourself into a special project and you will banish that restless feeling that has momentarily engulfed you. Others show new respect, partly because you safeguard a secret for a friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Understand that you cannot handle everyone in the same way. A personalized approach helps you win someone's confidence. A romantic interlude brings peace of mind.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Rebelling against authority will only cause trouble. Plant your feet firmly on the ground and face reality.

Opening lead: Ace of ◇

In a perfect elimination play, you strip your hand and dummy of two suits to force a return in a third suit or a ruff-sluff. However, there are times when you cannot achieve a complete strip. There may still be advantages to a partial elimination, as this hand highlights.

Although he had a minimum opening bid, North's four-card support for his partner's suit made a raise mandatory. While his queen of spades was a doubtful asset, we agree with South's decision to go straight to game, but he might have tried three no trump.

Under normal circumstances, declarer would have an easy passage at four hearts, losing a spade, a diamond and the ace of trumps. After the opening lead of the ace of diamonds and a diamond continuation, however, declarer was faced with the possibility of a diamond ruff. All would still be well if East was entryless, but it would be silly for West to look for a ruff if he felt that his partner did not have a way to gain the lead.

If that entry was the ace of trumps, declarer would be powerless to prevent the ruff. However, if he could succeed in eliminating West's safe exit cards, all might still be well. So after winning the second diamond, declarer cashed the ace-king of clubs and ruffed a club with a high trump. Since he had no fast entry to the table for another club ruff, declarer had to hope that West started with only three clubs. He continued with a trump to the ten and East's ace.

East gave his partner a diamond ruff, but that did not defeat the contract. West was down to nothing but spades, and his forced return of that suit eliminated declarer's loser there.

Note that it would not have helped East to shift to a spade. That would be exchanging trick for trick, since the defenders would then be unable to score a diamond ruff.

In the late 1800's, Richard W. Sears had a pretty good business going selling watches and needed someone to handle his watch repairs. He placed a classified ad in the newspaper and Alvah C. Roebuck got the job. That's how the nation's biggest retailer got started... through a classified ad!

COPING WITH JOB LOSS

Retirement seen by some as ordeal

By JIM MAY and MARTI VERMILLION

May

Vermillion

DEAR COPING: I am writing regarding my husband, who is about to retire. We have been looking forward to retirement since we began working! But now I have identified a sense of panic in both of us as this event is about to come. Is it because his retirement is coming earlier than we planned? I am concerned because I've seen many of my friends who have retired immediately sink into depression and conflict.

What are some things we can do to avoid this in our own marriage? — S.T.R.

DEAR S.T.R.: The time to begin dealing with retirement is before that all-encompassing event begins.

Retirement constitutes a major crossroad in the lives of most individuals. For some, retirement is perceived as a well-earned privilege. Those individuals usually are successful in their adjustment to this significant life event. The opportunities now available to spend extended periods of time with family, friends, new or long-established interests can be extremely satisfying.

Yet many retirees do not experience such satisfaction. For some individuals, retirement constitutes a major life crisis. Some identify the lifestyle changes associated with retirement as a significant threat to their personal identity and role fulfillment.

Men who were raised with the "Puritan work ethic,' which defines personal identity and social status in terms of productivity, may especially view retirement as a time of uselessness and rolelessness.

These individuals appear to focus on the loss of the work role and tend to experience greater difficulty in developing new interests and activities. This further increases feelings of uselessness and role ambiguity. Their plight is very similar to pre-retirement individuals who experience unemployment.

It is not uncommon for such individuals (especially those who have faced mandatory or early retirement) to experience feelings of powerlessness, helplessness and even panic, as you mention. Research has shown other changes associated with forced retirement to include a set of dependent behaviors, reactions of fear, anxiety or anger and changes in health.

Being aware of the normal phases the retiree typically passes through is often helpful for both the retiree and the spouse:

- the near phase — when the reality of retirement sets in and the person begins to emotionally prepare for leaving the work role,
- the retirement event — usually consists of some type of celebration in honor of the retiree, characterized by feelings of exhilaration, followed by an emotional letdown,
- the honeymoon phase — when the retiree tests out his or her many pre-retirement fantasies by simultaneously trying a number of new activities and interests,
- the disenchantment/reorientation phase — the person considers realistic choices for his or her lifestyle, and,
- the stability phase — a routine is achieved.

An important consideration for individuals facing retirement is preplanning. The following suggestions for preplanning have been found to minimize the crises that retirement can bring:

- A gradual disengagement from the work role in the final working years and pre-retirement involvement in groups outside the work setting. This affords an opportunity to explore new activities and develop new friendships.
- Continued disengagement from the work role through the development of — or re-entry into — other interests. One way some individuals have accomplished this is by longer vacation times and shorter work days to try out new interests and activities.
- Exploring the possibilities of participating in community groups.
- Encouraging the pre-retiree to openly express feelings about retirement and expectations about life after retirement.

By engaging in such preplanning, the hard work is well under way before the retiree must learn by trial and error within the "foreign" context of joblessness. It is important to realize that you both are entering retirement (even if you are continuing to work), so your marriage would be well-served if these these preplanning activities become joint efforts.

Whether or not you participate in them together after retirement depends on your own interests and abilities, but planning together will avoid the conflict many couples experience when they suddenly discover they are seeing more of each other than they really wanted to see.

Congratulations on your awareness of the need to begin preparing for retirement ahead of time.

DEAR COPING: When my company took away my job, they also took away my health insurance. That is very scary to me. How does a person without an income pay for expensive health insurance? I heard about a United Way Health Care Program for people like us. Do you know about it? Does exist in our area? — Russ in Midland

DEAR RUSS: You have hit upon one of the real tragedies of unemployment. According to one nationwide survey, obtaining health care was the highest need of the jobless.

The cost of health insurance can indeed exceed 60 percent of the out-of-work individuals' monthly unemployment compensation. As such, it is not feasible for you, the jobless worker to absorb this cost.

I am aware of a number of programs used by community and state medical associations or United Way agencies to provide free or reduced-cost health care to those unemployed, uninsured and ineligible for Medicaid or other existing assistance program.

The United Way program you mention may be the "Project Health Concern" established in some large metropolitan areas. In one city, the local chapter of the State Medical Association developed a network of 1,500 physicians, nurses, area hospitals and community support groups to provide care to the 11 percent unemployed there.

That project received funding from an area foundation, a corporation and a union.

Although this particular program does not exist in our area, there is help available for individuals needing health care. Many area churches are extending help as they can, as well as certain kinds of services existing in most communities through a local public health facility.

While the "Project Health Concern" does not exist in our area, it's a wonderful idea for this region as we join together, in the plight of increasing unemployment, by helping and sharing where we can.

Boomers advised to prepare ahead

Hearst News Service

Gray Panthers founder Maggie Kuhn says baby boomers should start to prepare now for the problems they will face when they are elderly.

"As a group, the baby boomers are entering midlife, which means it won't be too long before they're concerned with the same issues as we who already are older are concerned about," says Kuhn.

Kuhn, 80, says baby boomers should be particularly concerned about what kind of income and health care will be available to them as older Americans, and where they will live in their later years.

"Now is the time to be looking at pensions, for example," Kuhn says. "Baby boomers should be working hard right now to improve pensions so they provide such things as survivor benefits and portabilitiy, which means simply that the pension goes with you when you move from one job to another.

"You may be successful at the moment, but there's no guarantee that you will be next year," she says. "And if you can't take your pension with you if you have to make a career change, where will you be in 20 years?"

Baby boomers also should make plans for other kinds of income, rather than depend on pensions and Social Security, Kuhn says.

"That way, maybe the next generation will be able to avoid what has happened to 70 percent of our population currently in the retirement age bracket. They've ended up with only Social Security to live on, when Social Security never was intended to be anyone's entire income.

"So, baby boomers need to start thinking about other means of support, including pushing for the continuing of IRAs (Individual Retirement Accounts) as a way to save for our future. There's been such an outcry already over Congress' proposal to eliminate their tax-free status that I think such a measure will fail if people will just let their congressional leaders know how they feel."

Health care is another issue that shouldn't be put off until the future, Kuhn says.

"Baby boomers should be out in the forefront of the move to get some kind of national health system, like that which Canadians have. We're the only industrialized nation besides South Africa not to have a national health system, and that's a real shame," Kuhn says.

As for where they will live in later years, baby boomers should look closely at how some elderly already are managing to avoid nursing homes and retirement communities by staying in their own neighborhoods and sharing their homes.

DEAR ABBY

Sister frightened

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a 40-year-old brother (I'll call him Ned) who is a convicted rapist. After serving a prison sentence on that charge, he was released, and then he sexually molested his 11-year-old stepdaughter. He is now in jail on that charge, but he'll be out soon.

My mother insists to this day that Ned is innocent — and in both cases it was the girl's fault!

I have a 6-year-old daughter, and I don't want Ned anywhere near my house or my daughter. I would rather have her think she has no uncle. This is causing me no end of problems.

I'm afraid to let my mother babysit for my daughter for fear Ned will come over. To complicate matters, I offered to rent my upstairs to my aunt (my mother's sister), and when she found out I didn't want Ned around, she hit the roof. She said I have no right to limit her visitors. I feel if Ned is in her apartment, he's in my house. I fear him because I don't trust him.

I would rather not break ties totally with my mother and her family, but I feel like I'm being backed into a corner.

Please give me some objective advice. — PENNSYLVANIA PROBLEM

DEAR PROBLEM: Your reasons for not wanting your brother near your home or your daughter are valid, and you have an obligation to do whatever is necessary to protect your daughter. Hold firm and don't give an inch!

DEAR ABBY: In the fall, my mother-in-law is moving into a small apartment directly behind our home. We will share a common yard and gardens. The woman is very nice, and even though elderly, is very self-sufficient. The problem: our privacy.

My husband and I have been married for only a year and a half. I know his mother won't be pestering us all the time, but I'm trying to find a nice way to tell her we need our privacy, should the need arise.

My husband and I both realize that we must extend certain "courtesies" from the very beginning, but how do we inform his relatives that just because they come to visit his mother doesn't necessarily mean that our doors are always open to them? His mother loves to talk, and I don't relish being "cornered" in the yard for hours listening to her go on and on about things I have no interest in.

Would it be advisable to lay down some ground rules for my mother-in-law and her family right from the start? — STARTING TO WORRY

DEAR STARTING: Yes, but do it with a minimum of militancy and a maximum of diplomacy. As my sainted mother used to say: You can catch more flies with honey than vinegar.

DEAR ABBY: I'm in my late 60s and profoundly deaf, but that is not my worst problem. I have a severe case of tinnitus, which is a chronic ringing sensation in my ears. My case is unbelievable. The sounds might be compared to a bad LSD trip without the psychedelic visions. They last sometimes as long as four days.

You, like most people, will probably think I'm a nut case. I hear music or singing, or both. The same compositions over and over. My last attack was a duet with a mezzo and a bass baritone. (Incidentally, the bass baritone was wonderful!)

Now, you probably think I am a nut for sure.

Would you be good enough to consult one of your authorities to verify the fact that I am not crazy? I believe that would be an otorhinolaryngologist. The very small town in which I live does not have such a specialist.

Hoping you can help me ... HEARING THINGS IN YORK, S.C.

DEAR HEARING: The American Tinnitus Association, P.O. Box 5, Portland, Ore. 97207, will refer you to the specialist nearest you. It will be well worth the trip. Please enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

ASK DR. RUTH

Lifestyle quiet

By DR. RUTH WESTHEIMER

Q. I'm a quiet guy with a quiet lifestyle — too quiet. I never meet women I want to date (where I work it's all men) and I know I'd shy away from one if I met her. My hobby is a solitary one — drawing. What'll I do?

A. Drawing doesn't have be solitary. It is true that it is absorbing and you can do it by the hour when you are alone, but you can also join classes at an art school or a community center and meet lots of other people who are doing the same thing.

You can also use your artistic ability at a community theater, decorating sets, and you'll meet women there. It is easier to get acquainted with people of the opposite sex in groups where people do things together and have a mutual interest to talk about with no pressure to put themselves forward romantically until the time is ripe.

Q. My girlfriend and I have not yet had sex. She was forced to have sex at 15. I understand that this is an influential experience for a woman. Have I missed something by not being the first?

A. I think it is a mistake to dwell on whether a girl is a virgin or not, when you have formed a loving bond with her. The first sex you have with her is special between you two. Let it be loving and gentle, and do, when you think of that bad experience of hers, remember that it had to be undesirable and unpleasant. It is not a thing for you to feel any jealousy about.

If you have any opportunity for it, perhaps you both might see a counselor together. It is important to understand that a first time with any couple, experienced or not, can be awkward — sweetly so, perhaps, but awkward.

If memories of that early trauma affect her, she may resist sex, or its pleasure. That does not mean that she does not love you, nor that she does not want sex, but that you both must have love and understanding and some guidance.

Q. My wife is seven years older than I, which is why, I think, she is inhibited sexually. I have to initiate sex every time. To build her confidence I suggest that she have some outside affairs, but she won't. What should I do?

A. If you want to build her confidence, don't tell her to go out and have sex with other men. If she did what you suggest, it could be very dangerous to her self-esteem. Suppose her experiences were bad ones? But, more important, when you say to do that, you're giving her the message that you don't care what she does, it's nothing to you.

She picks up that she is so unattractive that you're indifferent to her — which will not make her sexually bolder with you. When you tell her to have outside sex, she infers that you are taking your own advice, and she pictures a bevy of gorgeous, daring, much younger women that you disport yourself with. That's no encouragement to her self-confidence.

To build her up, treat her as someone of great value to you. Court her, bring flowers, talk to her, share confidences, listen seriously to her and encourage any interests she has. At some point, you and she might read some books on married lovemaking together. But, before that, work to restore her belief in her relationship with you.

Comic trying for big break on Dallas suburb's cable TV

By ALAN SAYRE

GARLAND (AP) — Maybe Chevy Chase started this way, maybe not. Jack Benny certainly didn't. And if Eddie Murphy did, he's not telling.

None of that bothers Lee Cates a bit.

Lee Cates? Sure, he's an unknown. That doesn't bother him either.

Cates, 23, is the executive producer, chief writer and star of a semi-monthly, half-hour comedy telecast. He's a bit hard to catch, though. The show is limited to a community access channel on the cable television system in this Dallas suburb.

That's too bad, says Cates, a fan of NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Live."

"Our show is funnier," he says, without a trace of modesty.

Headquartered in a Garland apartment barren of furnishings except for a table and a few folding chairs, Cates writes the show with Lynn Daniel, 18, a friend and co-worker at a printing company.

Community access TV takes on a new meaning with Cates' show.

"Name Your Torture," hosted by a character named Bob the Merciless, is described by Cates as a "game show for masochists" in which contestants answer such topical questions as "Using a hammer, how long does it take to neuter a cat?"

"Apartment 168," is a continuing series about two nitwits who housesit for a spy. No problem obtaining a set. It's Cates' apartment, back in the days when he had furniture.

The program is put on with a budget of $8 — the price of a blank videotape. Cates uses the cable company's production facilities without cost.

Cates began his foray into the entertainment business while in high school, although, according to his own admission, he didn't take any courses in the field. In fact, he has no formal education in film.

"I didn't even take drama in high school," he said. "I wasn't very sociable. I didn't even go to graduation."

Cates' first film, made in 1979, was a five-minue karate encounter. In 1981, he made an hour-long comedy called "My Dinner With Eddie," the story of a police officer who investigates the death of a man "who shot himself in the back 44 times with a rifle."

Cates has shown some of his short subjects at three Dallas-area theaters. Besides his cable program, produced with the help of an unpaid repertory company of several friends, Cates also is thinking about trying his hand as a stand-up comic.

Oh, yes. He also wants an audition with "Saturday Night Live." After that, he'd like a shot in the movies.

"I think the only reason I haven't made it is because no one's given me a chance," he says.

Cates says the major difference between the stars and himself doesn't involve talent and the willingness to work at the craft of comedy — it's merely money and promotion.

"You see how funny I can be for $8," he said. "Can you imagine if I had $100,000?"

In the meantime, Cates plans to keep working at the print shop and hoping for a break that will put his name in lights.

"I want to make people laugh," he says. "That's what I'm good at."

'Aliens' in top place for fourth week

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Aliens" clung to top place for the fourth weekend in a row in a box office race dominated by summer favorites and a newcomer, "One Crazy Summer."

Another sequel, "The Karate Kid, Part II," starring Ralph Macchio and Pat Morita, was in second place with $3.7 million in weekend ticket sales.

Moviegoers shelled out $3.5 million to be scared by "Friday the 13th, Part VI: Jason Lives," putting the Paramount offering in third place.

The newcomer, "One Crazy Summer," a comedy starring Demi Moore as a folk singer trying to best a ruthless developer, made $3.4 million and ended up fourth its first weekend in release.

"Top Gun" was fifth with $3.4 million. The action film starring Tom Cruise and Kelly McGillis is the summer's top earner, landing a total of $113.5 million in its 13-week run.

Another summer favorite, "Ruthless People," the Danny DeVito-Bette Midler comedy from Disney's Touchstone unit, was sixth with $3.1 million.

In seventh place was "Nothing in Common," with Tom Hanks, Jackie Gleason and Eva Marie Saint, which earned $2.8 million.
