Acceptable Plan For Suez Canal Sought

Firm Blocks Road Project

By BOB PEREZ, Pampa News Staff Writer

County Judge Bruce Parker reported today that the farm-to-market road approved by the county and financed by both the state and county has been halted as a result of the refusal of the Phillips Petroleum Company to lower its pipe lines without reimbursal from the county in the sum of $37,887.

About a year ago, the state appropriated the sum of $92,000 to Gray County under the provisions of the farm-to-market bill, commonly known as "farm-to-market money." This permits a yearly allowance from the state government to each county for the construction of roads.

Surveys were made, and a road was planned from the city of Lefors to Bowers City, (where a Phillips Company plant is located). However, the cost was estimated at more than the original appropriation. The state then volunteered to contribute $128,000 if the county would finance the remaining $20,000 to equal out the $148,000 the job would cost. This the county agreed to do and the job was turned over to the State Highway Department. Rights-of-way were obtained from adjoining land owners providing the county would put up the fencing.

The Highway Department then notified all oil companies having pipe lines running through the proposed route that they would have to lower their lines.

All were agreeable to the idea except Phillips which notified the county that it would not consider lowering of its lines unless the county financed the $35,487 they estimated such an undertaking would cost them.

The other oil companies, in view of the Phillips refusal, then put off their plans until further developments made certain whether or not they should do so.

The county felt that if it were to pay the Phillips company the $35,487 it wanted for lowering its lines it would be obligated to pay all the other companies since the policies should be the same for all, Judge Parker said. Further, if they were to reimburse all the companies, then the total cost of payment for pipelines alone would run over the total cost of the road itself which is $148,000.

Since this money was obtained from the tax payers, and since Phillips is one of those tax payers, the county cannot see where it will be doing anything but putting the money they spent in

Woolworth Store To Open Next Month

The business district of Pampa is constantly changing with the remodeling of present buildings and the construction of new buildings.

The newest building in the downtown section of Pampa is the Woolworth Building at the corner of Cuyler and Kingsmill which is now under construction.

Plans call for the opening of the new building sometime during the latter part of October, Hoover Pitcock, store manager, has announced.

The only part of the building which hasn't been completed is the floor and as soon as it is completed the equipment will be installed.

The new store will have approximately double the amount of display space with the most modern type of fixtures installed.

Pitcock reported that the new store will be of the self service type. Three check stands, with provisions for additional check stands when needed, will be located near the front of the store. Customers will find the merchandise displayed and marked so that they will be able to choose any item in the store.

The store will be equipped with rolling carts and hand carried baskets for the convenience of the customers in choosing their selection, Pitcock stated.

The present store is now stocking approximately 10 thousand items and Pitcock reported that new items will be added when the new store opens with an expected doubling of selections.

The store will be painted in green and yellow with the area behind the fountain to be papered. The fountain will be stainless steel and of the latest design.

The building will be air-conditioned throughout and the basement will be used for an employees lounge and storage area. Stock will be moved from the basement to the main floor by means of a conveyor belt.

N. A. A. C. P. Says Hearings 'Rigged'

Integrated School Problems Are Told

By VINCENT J. BURKE
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) —Integration of white and Negro students caused sex and disciplinary problems and lower academic standards in schools here, a congressional hearing conducted by southern segregationists has revealed.

But the National Association for the dvancement of Colored People said a teacher and retired principal who testified at the inquiry's first session Wednesday "smeared" the public schools for political purposes.

Chairman James C. Davis (D-Ga.) said his House subcommittee would question additional teachers today in its investigation of conditions in the District of Columbia's public schools. The schools were among the first in the nation to become integrated following the Supreme Court's ruling.

The hearings, attended only by three southerners on the six-man subcommittee, were denounced by

with:

Sex — John P. Collins said in an affidavit integration brought problems to his high school. He said they contributed to a breakdown of his health which forced him to retire as principal last year. Collins cited instances in which Negro boys wrote notes to white girls and made "obscene remarks" to them in the corridors. He said he heard "Negro girls use language far worse than I ever heard in the Marine Corps." A dozen Negro girls became pregnant during the past year, he added.

Academic standards — William Gerber, subcommittee councel from Memphis, Tenn., produced records showing that two-thirds of the eighth grade students in predominantly Negro schools tested recently on word meanings showed an educational level from the second through the sixth grade. In predominantly white schools the number falling that far below normal was only 11.9 per cent.

Integration Said Hasty

Moderation — C. Melvin Sharpe, president of the Washington Board of Education, agreed with the subcommittee that integration in the District of Columbia schools was hasty. He said it pould have been "much better" to have taken a more moderate approach.

Discipline — Mrs. Katherine Reid, a mild-mannered third and fourth grade teacher, said she is not able to understand the speech of some of her Negro pupils. Mrs Reid said they are constantly fighting in the classrooms among themselves and sometimes with white pupils.

Although he said intergration here was carried out more rapidly than he thought wise, Sharpe later stated that "we have made great advances — there is no question that we have succeeded in doing a great many things that will gradually work out."

One principal, Hugh Smith of Jefferson junior high school, testified that he favored integration and believed the problems would be eliminated within 10 years time.

Cabot Meeting In Last Day

Cabot's 26th Management Conference is scheduled to end today with discussions by carbon black men tabbed for the last day.

The conference, which has lasted three days, is held for management representatives of the company to get together to attempt to solve mutual management problems and to coordinate facilities up and down the supervisory line.

Dr. M. L. Wardell, professor of history at the University of Oklahoma, was the conference's main speaker. Wardell gave an address Tuesday on the Mid-East problem in Cabot auditorium in the Hughes building.

Approximately 60 management representatives attended the affair.

Interest In Soil Bank Program Up

Interest in the soil bank program is increasing as wheat farmers in Gray County are faced with the lack of moisture to plant wheat this fall, Ralph Thomas, county agent, reported this morning.

The current drouth has resulted in a lack of adequate moisture on most farms for the planting of wheat and the prospect for necessary rains in time to plant is not bright at this time.

A few wheat farmers, who have summer fallowed their land, have sufficient moisture to plant but are faced with the possibility of not receiving the necessary moisture to produce a crop.

The final date for signing up for his year's soil bank program is Oct. 1, and Thomas stated that those wheat farmers who have not been informed of the advantages and disadvantages of the program should contact his office before the final date.

Eisenhower In Mid-West

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

WASHINGTON (UP)— President Eisenhower carried his re-election fight into the crucial midwest farm belt today. He opened his nationwide campaign here Wednesday night on a Republican record of "progress without precedent."

Mr. Eisenhower will spend this afternoon and most of Friday in Iowa, following up on his belief that government policies to meet farm problems must be tailored to peacetime conditions and "not the policies of the past that applied only to the demands of wartime."

The Chief Executive and the First Lady were scheduled to leave by plane this afternoon for Des Moines. A motorcade will take them to Boone where they will spend the night in the house once occupied by Mrs. Eisenhower's grandmother and father. The Boone home is now the residence of Mrs. Eisenhower's uncle, Joel Carlson.

The president Friday will attend the national plowing contest at Newton, Iowa. He planned to make a speech at the Des Moines Airport during the late afternoon before taking off for the return flight to Washington.

Three Central Themes

Mr. Eisenhower has been making political statements of various lengths since his renomination, but Wednesday night's speech was his 1956 campaign debut on nationwide television and radio.

He concentrated on three central themes:

The domestic economy has improved vastly under his administration.

The effort for world peace since the Republicans took over in 1953 has been successful to the degree that "not a single nation has been surrendered to aggression."

And, in an obvious shot at the Democrats, he opposed "any theatrical rational gesture" such as stopping American H-bomb tests or ending the military draft.

Mr. Eisenhower made a special point of his own health, saying he was firmly convinced of "my own physical strength to meet all the responsibilities of the presidency today, and in the years just ahead."

"I hope this conviction — this peace of mind — may bring assurance to many others, as I stand ready to serve as your president for another four years, if this be your will."

Gave Sober Appraisal

Mr. Eisenhower's formal campaign opener was no shower of political fireworks. For the most part, it was a sober-voiced appraisal of his administration program, presented as he said, "without the noise and extravagance usual during a political campaign."

Mr. Eisenhower's voice rose with emotion only during the portion of his address when he was obviously talking about the Democrats.

He gave his opponents no name advertising, but he outlined several ways not to meet the great problems facing this country.

"We cannot prove wise and strong with public speech that erroneously asserts our economic weakness," he said. "Some Democrats have claimed that the Republicans have woefully mismangled the economy and wracked the country with high prices and bigger profits for big business."

Mr. Eisenhower said it is wrong to deceive or delight the people of the world, particularly Soviet leaders, with any "myth of American weakness."

Must Know Strength

"They must know the truth of our strength," he said.

Democratic presidential nominee Adlai E. Stevenson suggested last April that the United States should consider suspension of H-bomb tests as a contribution to peace. Stevenson recently also came out for ending the draft as soon as practicable.

Mr. Eisenhower Wednesday night abruptly rejected both ideas.

"Our atomic knowledge and power have forged the saving shield of freedom," he said. "And the wise future use and control of atomic power can be assured, not by any theatrical national gesture, but only by explicit and supervised international agreements."

He said naturally every family in the United States hoped for the day when the draft would end.

Adlai Maps Attack

By TOM NELSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Adlai E. Stevenson mapped a counter-attack today against the Republican project of following up Democratic campaigners with "truth squads."

Stevenson's press secretary Clayton Fritchey, said the Democratic presidential nominee would have "a few well-chosen remarks" to make on the subject in a speech tonight at nearby Silver Springs, Md.

He said Stevenson remarked to his staff that "it is significant the Republicans can make page one headlines by promising to tell the truth."

Stevenson will speak tonight at a rally in the Montgomery Blair high school at Silver Springs. He will be introduced by Baltimore contractor George P. Mahoney, Democratic candidate for U.S. senator from Maryland.

Preparing Speech

Stevenson will spend the day putting the finishing touches to the speech, conferring with advisers, and working on a series of papers he will issue hitting specific campaign topics.

Fritchey Wednesday revealed Stevenson's plans to hand down formal papers from time to time in the seven weeks before the election. Each will cover a single subject.

Two such "policy statements" now are in the works, Fritchey said. One will cover the problems of the nation's old people, and the other will be devoted to schools.

Take Up Problems

Fritchey said these papers will differ from campaign speeches in that they will center on "positive aspects" of his program and go into problems in "much more detail and depth than is possible in a political talk."

Stevenson sent a telephone message Wednesday to the United Steelworkers convention at Los Angeles, criticizing Republicans for claiming credit for increasing the minimum wage to $1 an hour.

Stevenson said he was "disgusted" by these claims because a Democratic Congress enacted the $1 minimum "over the expressed objections" of President Eisenhower.

Three permits for new residences to be built in Pampa have been issued by the city engineer's office this week.

A permit for a new residence at 1912 N. Nelson to be built by Highland Homes was issued Monday. The estimated cost of the residence was given at $11,750.

Two permits were issued Wednesday. One of the permits was for a residence at 1800 Dogwood at an estimated cost of $21,000. The contractor was listed as J. E. Wall. The second permit was for a residence to be located at 1301 E. Kingsmill to be built by Raymond H. Ellis. The estimated cost was given as $5,000.

Reports Of Stolen Items Are Made

Reports of stolen hubcaps and wheel covers are still being received by the local police department, Jim Conner, chief of police, reported this morning.

A report was eceived caps being stolen last night and reports are still being received of hubcaps that were stolen last week end.

Conner urged all owners of automobiles to place some type of identifying mark inside their hubcaps or wheel covers so that positive identification can be made if they are stolen.

Recently the police department has recovered several hubcaps but no positive identification could be made because of the lack of identifying marks.

Efforts are being made by the local policemen to apprehend those persons responsible for the recent increase of stolen hubcaps, Conner reported.

Committee Gets Task Of Pleasing Neutral Nations

By WILLIAM SEXTON
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON —UP— The Western Big Three gave to a committee of experts today the task of drawing up a plan for the Suez Canal users association that would be acceptable to the neutral nations.

The Big Three called back the original blueprint as a result of the critical reaction the plan received at Wednesday's opening session of the 18-member second London Suez conference.

Britain simultaneously gave an official cold shoulder to Soviet feelers for a Suez "summit" conference of the Big Four heads of state and the rulers of Egypt and India.

"Our attitude is that we are at present concerned with one conference in London and we propose to continue to do so," a foreign office spokesman said.

Withdraw Original Plan

The decision to withdraw the original plan apparently was taken at a meeting this morning of the Big Three foreign ministers before this morning's 55-minute Suez conference began.

Pakistan rejected their plan outright as an unnecessary affront to Egypt. Several other nations were doubtful about it and such shipping countries as Norway, Sweden and Denmark suggested the whole issue go to the United Nations.

Dulles had prepared a draft "working paper" blueprint on the technical details of the Big Three sponsored association. However, in the face of such sharp division of opinion, it was decided not to put the blueprint before the conference.

Instead, the conference accepted a Turkish proposal that a committee of experts be set up to amalgamate the main proposals and criticisms.

"Association of War"

Egypt declared the original plan an "association for war." Western pilots called it impracticable. The Scandinavian countries expressed serious doubts it would work. Opposition was so great the West feared their stand against Egypt would be weakened.

Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau met this morning to seek a milder form. Later they announced they were scrapping the original blueprint

Although the Bulganin proposal was reported to be under discussion, informed sources said the main purpose of the strategy con-

New Actions To Aid Home Building Told

WASHINGTON (UP) — The White House today announced four new government actions designed to strengthen the home - building industry and make it easier to buy low cost homes.

The actions reduced the down-payment requirements for FHA-insured homes costing no more than $9,000 from 7 to 5 per cent,

Dick Hughes, Pampa home-builder, met with the group, including Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey, on home building problems, the results of which are told here.

eased mortgage sale requirements to make mortgage money more easily available, and relaxed the borrowing limits of members of the home loan bank system to meet the heavier demands for mortgages.

Housing Administrator Albert M. Cole said the actions "will be of particular benefit to home buyers of modest means" and will "raise the level" of housing construction in the nation.

The action was taken by government home financing agencies in response to President Eisenhower's request for a review of housing credit needs in the United States.

The actions followed strong complaints from the housing industry that the government's hard money policies are holding down home construction across the nation. They said would-be home owners and builders in many areas are having trouble arranging mortgages because of "tight money" situations and higher interest rates.

Wrong Addresses Given In Fire Calls

Wrong addresses were given on both alarms received by the Pampa fire department yesterday, Ernest Winborne, fire chief, reported today.

The first of the alarms was at 12 noon and the address given to the fire department was in the 300 block of S. Faulkner. As there are no buildings at the address given the fire department checked and located the fire at 841 S. Faulkner. A gas blaze was at the connection of the cook stove and was put out by the hand extinguisher carried in the fire department station wagon.

The person who called in the alarm had called the telephone operator and did not wait to see that the proper address had been given.

The second alarm received by the fire department was at 5:35 p.m. Again a wrong address was given and the firemen finally located the fire at 520 Yeager where grease in the oven was on fire.

Winborne stated this morning that all persons should call the fire department and not the telephone operator. The number of the emergency phone at the fire department is 4-3366.

He also requested that the person making the call stay on the line until the fireman has checked to make sure they have the proper address. Valuable time is lost in trying to locate a fire when the firemen do not have the proper address and must hunt for the fire, Winborne concluded.

Gray Motorists Are Still Passing School Buses

Reports of motorists passing school busses while they are loading or unloading children have been received since the beginning of school, Justice of the Peace John Andrews reported this morning.

Andrews urged all motorists to observe the law so no children will be killed or injured while entering of leaving a school bus in Gray County.

The law of the state of Texas states that all motorists, upon meeting a school bus which is engaged in loading or unloading children, shall come to a complete stop and then shall proceed at a speed not to exceed 10 miles per hour when the road is clear of all children.

Andrews stated, "all persons who are reported to have passed a school bus without stopping will be vigorously prosecuted by this court."

Suez Canal Crisis Ends Cyprus Self-Rule Chances

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

The Suez Canal dispute has ended any chance that Great Britain might grant self-rule to Cyprus within the foreseeable future.

More than ever, the eastern Mediterranean island has become for Britain an indispensable military base.

For several months, there was hope in London that an agreement might be reached that would end the violence by Greek Cypriots.

Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser's seizure of the canal ended that hope.

Hence the prospect is that violence will continue and that Field Marshal Sir John Harding, governor and commander in chief, will concentrate on stamping it out. British relations with Greece, which wants Cyprus, will remain correspondingly bad.

Stiffens Terms

Britain stiffened its terms for a Cyprus solution last week.

Alan Lennox-Boyd, colonial secretary, said in the House of Commons that Nasser's action had strengthened the government's determination to keep full sovereignty over the island. He said:

"All the government thinking has led to the inescapable conclusion that recent events in the Middle East have underlined what we have always said — that Cyprus is vital for the protection of our strategic interests and the strategic interests of the free world."

Lennox-Boyd specified that Britain must maintain full control of internal security in Cyprus, as well as control of foreign affairs and defense.

Draws Up New Constitution

In mid-July, Prime Minister Anthony Eden gave Lord Radcliffe, a high-ranking judge, the task of drawing up a "new, liberal" constitution for Cyprus. Under this constitution, Cypriots would have been given internal self-government. Radcliffe is still drafting his report. But the Suez dispute has made the question of self-government one for the far future.

"EOKA," the Greek Cypriot organization which is conducting the campaign of violence in Cyprus, demanding that the island be given to Greece, called a truce on August 16. It suggested new negotiations.

Harding's reply was to offer the EOKA extremists a chance to lay down their arms. He said his offer would remain open for three weeks. Under it, members of the EOKA organization who surrendered would be permitted to go to Greece and become Greek citizens.

Calls Off Truce

EOKA rejected this offer and called off its truce. Violence was resumed.

Harding's amnesty offer expired on Sept. 12. He said that he would intensify a drive to stamp out violence. There would be no new attempt at a political solution of the Cyprus issue until the drive succeeded, he said.

Even before the Harding offer expired, the situation was complicated by a new development. Britain charged it had evidence that Greek Orthodox Church Arch bishop Makarios was the real leader of the EOKA organization. Makarios had led the campaign for the union of Cyprus with Greece. He is in exile on an Indian Ocean island.

As of now, the Cyprus situation is further than ever from a solution.

Moon To Be Stop On Way To Planets

DETROIT (UP) — A space medicine expert predicts that man will fly to the moon in 10 or 15 years but says he isn't sure how the travelers will get back.

Dr. Hubertus Strughold, chief of the space medicine department at the Air Force School of Aviation, Randolph AFB, Tex., said Wednesday night he expected man to blast off for the moon before trying to reach any of the planets.

Strughold told a join meeting of the Engineering Society of Detroit and the Detroit section of the American Rocket Society that he expected the lunar flight to become a reality within the next 10 to 15 years.

He said that a round-trip flight from the earth to the moon should take about three days.

Strughold said that present technical and engineering developments were advancing rapidly enough to insure shooting a rocket ship to the moon in the time he mentioned but admitted that he didn't know if engineering developments were advanced enough as yet to bring the ship back to the earth again.

ference was to find ways of modifying the users association plan to win more supporters.

The plan found heavy going in Wednesday's session and the West sought a milder version that would win wider support. Some of this support will be sought in private talks outside the conference, the sources said.

The less belligerent approach already was having its effect on Egypt. Cairo dispatches said Egypt believed the intial session bolstered President Gamal Abdel Nasser's proposal to set up a negotiating body to settle the canal dispute.

Hints Of Espionage

Egyptian government sources, buoyed by dissension among the 18 nations in London for the conference, also believed the London meeting was leaning toward settlement of the dispute by direct negotiation or through the United Nations.

Dulles himself offered to drop a key point of the original plan—the use of Western pilots aboard association members' ships — "if the Egyptians insist on the employment of Egyptian pilots."

He also found time to hint that the Soviet pilots now being trained on the canal might be there for espionage purposes.

Doria Trial Continues

NEW YORK (UP)— Italian Line attorneys press cross-examination today of the Stockholm's 26-year old third mate who was in command of the bridge when the Swedish liner crashed into the Andrea Doria.

The third mate, Ernest Carstens-Johansen, testified Wednesday that the Stockholm gave no warning signal when it changed course sharply to the right before it rammed the Italian liner the night of July 25.

Carstens-Johansen said Capt. H. G. Nordenson, master of the Stockholm, had gone to his cabin, leaving him in charge of the bridge.

He said he ordered the Stockholm to change course to the starboard (right) shortly before the crash because of Nordenson's orders "not to let anyone come closer than one mile."

The third officer was the first witness at the pre-trial hearings on suits filed in U.S. District Court to fix the blame for the sea disaster that sank the Andrea Doria and took a toll of 50 lives.

Two Arrested On Driving Charges

George Alexander Kopp of Wellington pleaded not guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated yesterday in county court.

Kopp was arrested by sheriff's department officers Tuesday at 7 p.m. on the Lefors Highway. Officers reported that Kopp hit a mail box and ran through a fence.

He was released on $1,000 bond.

Floyd L. Hays, 49, of Phillips, also pleaded not guilty to dwi yesterday and bond has been set at $1,000.

taxes right back in their pockets, and thus depriving the county of money for other expenditures, Parker continued.

In a letter to the Phillips Company from Judge Parker, he asked that the company reconsider its stand in view of the other companies' willingness to finance their own lowering of pipe lines. He further pointed out that 90 per cent of the traffic on the proposed road would be employees of the Phillips company. He added that the county did not have the $35,485 demanded available for use and pointed out that if the county did pay for the lowering of the one company's pipe lines, they would have to pay all the other companies having pipelines in the new route. He said that such an act on the part of the county would run over the total cost of the road. He ended the letter by saying that the county would rather abandon the project and put the money in another part of the county as payment to the company would make the project an impossibility.

In confirmation of this letter, Clay D. Carrithers, manager of the Amarillo Claim Division, said "We have examined our rights-of-way easements and we do not feel that we are legally obligated to make these proposed alterations which will total $35,485. We are agreeable to make the proposed changes if we are reimbursed for the above expenditures."

In another letter, dated after a meeting on Sept. 12 between Judge Parker and S. B. Green regarding the construction of the road, Carrithers emphasized his company's stand, and later upped the demand another $2,400, totaling $37,885.

The result has been the cancellation of the entire project, unless some form of agreement can be reached, Parker said.

Investigation Being Made In Bomber Crash

WASHINGTON (UP) — Investigators sought today to learn whether any basic fault caused a B52 bomber crash which took five lives Monday.

The crash near Merced, Calif., and subsequent grounding Wednesday of all B52s came at a time when the Joint Chiefs of Staff were considering increasing the Air Force's planned B52 fleet by more than 50 per cent.

The Air Force has proposed equipping 16 wings with the H-bomb carrying bombers instead of the present - planned 11. To do so it would have to buy about 800 B52s. There now are 500 on order.

So far, Air Force authorities said, there is no reason to suspect that the accident Monday had the same cause as the B52 crash last Feb. 16 which also brought on a temporary grounding order.

Authorities as yet see no evidence of a dangerous pattern of trouble in the 650-mile-an-hour intercontinental jet bombers.

The crash last February was caused by disintegration of a part which relayed power to the plane's electrical system. All but a few of the B52s which had the faulty part have now been modified.

About 100 B52's have now been built. The exact number is secret.

Nixon Tours Northwest For Ike

By WARREN DUFFEE
United Press Staff Correspondent

EN ROUTE WITH NIXON (UP) —Vice President Richard M. Nixon talked of power, peace and prosperity today to the power-conscious voters of the Pacific Northwest.

But Nixon stressed as much as anything in his whirlwind tour the "morality" of the Eisenhower administration and the need for a Republican Congress to carry out its program.

Scarcely rested from Wednesday busy campaigning in California, Nevada and Oregon, Nixon launched into one of the toughest days of his 32-state ordeal.

Today's schedule called for him to appear at rallies in Boise and Nampa, Idaho, and in Spokane, Wash. At midnight, he flies to Rapid City, S.D., for a campaign assault on the Midwest Friday.

In remarks prepared for appearances at Boise and Nampa, Nixon accused the Democrats of "trying to paint in blacks and whites" the "extremely complicated issue" of power development.

He said the opposition's program of "single shot" federal development of all projects, regardless of their circumstances, "will not work because it cannot tap all the immense resources" of the Northwest states.

Nixon urged the re-election of Sen. Herman Welker (R-Idaho), who is challenged by Democrat Frank Church, with almost the same enthusiasm that he entreated Oregon voters Wednesday night at Eugene to support Interior Secretary Douglas McKay. McKay is fighting to unseat Sen. Wayne L. Morse (D-Ore).

In the first two days of his 15,000-mile swing, Nixon concentrated his speeches on several main themes—defense of the Eisenhower record, peace and prosperity, the administration's morality and digs at former President Harry S. Truman.

Nasser Watching Suez Conference Like A Hawk

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt probably is watching the London conference on Suez with considerable anxiety.

Nasser still is talking big. He claims the support of the Arab countries in his attempt to seize the Suez Canal.

The political committee of the Arab League, in fact, has just voted approval of Nasser's nationalization of the canal. It has denounced Great Britain and France for sending troops to the Middle East.

There is talk that, if the Suez dispute ever reached the fighting stage, Arabs would cut the pipe lines which carry oil to Arabian seaports.

Oil Big Business

But that oil situation, while it has not received as much attention as some other aspects of the Suez situation, is a very big one to some of the Arab countries.

The less trouble Nasser stirs up, the better it is for them.

Some of the Arab countries including Iraq and Saudi Arabia, both prominent members of the Arab League, just about live on their oil revenues.

About 850,000 barrels of oil flow each day through the two big pipelines. This oil, from Saudi Arabia and Iraq, goes direct to the Mediterranean and is independent of the canal.

About 1.2 million barrels have been moving daily through the Suez Canal, including some from Saudi Arabia and Iraq.

Saudi Arabia Would Lose

If the pipe lines were cut, the biggest losers would be Saudi Arabia and Iraq.

Other Arab oil producing countries would be hit hard if the Western countries boycotted the Suez Canal.

That boycott threat, of course, lies behind the attempt in today's London conference to form a Suez Canal Users' Association.

If the association is formed, and Nasser refuses to cooperate with it, a boycott of the canal is in prospect.

There are credible reports that some of the Arab countries, despite their expressed support of Nasser, are not too happy over his ambition to become Mr. Big of the Arab world. That is notably true of Jordan. But it is reported that King Saud of Saudi Arabia also is worried about Nasser.

King Saud gets more than $250 million a year in royalties from the American-owned Arabian-American Oil Co. Iraq gets about $160 million a year from the Iraq Petroleum Co., jointly owned by American, British, French and Dutch interests. Tiny Kuwait on the Persian Gulf, incidentally, gets $280 million a year in oil royalties. Its population totals 200,000.

Regardless of the pipe line situation, there will be some big and lasting changes in the oil industry if there is a boycott of the Suez Canal and oil production in the Western Hemisphere is stepped up to replace Middle Eastern oil. The changes will be made at the expense of Middle Eastern oil producing countries.

Nasser has no oil to worry about. But his neighbors have — and he is playing diplomatic poker for enormous stakes with their money.

Tangy New Dressing Gives Spark To Potato Salad

While there's still time to enjoy warm fall days and all outdoors says "Come, it's cooler out here!", move the family to the back yard for dinner. A meal that coaxes most these busy days is the kind that takes but moments to prepare—potato salad and cold cuts.

Try a different dressing that will lend new interest to your salad. You will like this new one. It's made with economical Carnation instant nonfat dry milk. Perhaps you didn't know that it is good for cooking as well as for drinking. When recipes call for milk, simply use reliquefied instant. Low-calorie "Magic Crystals" dissolve instantly in cold water. There's no beating, shaking, lumping or foaming. Mix as needed or mix a day's supply for all your cooking, baking and drinking.

Tangy Cooked Salad Dressing
(Makes about 1¾ cups)

⅔ cups "Magic Crystals" Instant
1¼ cups water
1 egg
1 teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon celery seed
cayenne pepper, to taste
2 tablespoons flour
⅓ cup vinegar
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon salt

Mix instant nonfat dry milk with water. Beat egg. Combine with reliquefied instant. Blend well. Mix dry ingredients together in top of double boiler. Slowly add instant milk-egg mixture. Stir until thoroughly blended. Cook over hot water until mixture begins to thicken (about 5-8 minutes). Stir constantly. Add vinegar and butter. Continue cooking until thickened (about 3-4 minutes). Remove from heat and beat with rotary beater until smooth. Chill in covered container in refrigerator. Two hours before serving time, combine salad dressing with salad ingredients. Let stand in refrigerator until ready to use.

Approach Of Longer Evenings Means Returning To More Indoor Entertaining

With the approach of longer evenings the family will be coming back to the living room as the members desert the picnic tables, tennis and golf courses for radio and television.

Organizations, clubs, and the children's home work will interrupt pleasant family after - dinner hours in the North and the veranda after - supper visits in the South. This is the transition month from summer athletic activities to TV or radio listening, card playing, or visiting with friends who drop in to chat.

The hospitable hostess likes to serve a "friendly glass or plate" or both, to the children's playmates, her husband's or her own friends who turn into the driveway or stroll up the walk. It is easy to be prepared for unexpected guests in this day of modern refrigeration.

Sandwiches and drinks can be made in less time than it takes to tell it. . .or almost, if a container of sandwich filling or the ingredients for a refreshing drink are always available in the refrigerator.

Luscious sandwich filling is made by blending honey with equal parts of cream cheese, peanut butter, with chopped dried fruit, or nuts mixed thoroughly and chilled. Bread, buttered, and spread with honey is a favorite, too. Creamed honeys and honey spreads are on the market which make excellent filling when used with graham crackers. Creamed honey may be varied by adding peanut butter or chopped dried fruits.

For the expected guest a rolled sandwich can be prepared early. Spread creamed honey butter on cut end of bread loaf. Cut slice of bread thin and remove crust. Sprinkle chopped nuts on honey butter. Roll slice and fasten with toothpick. Seal open edge with honey butter. Cover with waxed paper. Place in refrigerator to chill. Another sandwich is made by cutting bread with the biscuit cutter. Spread the round bread circles with softened butter or margarine and top with cream cheese mixed with honey. Place a dot of red raspberry jam or a berry in the center before serving. Chopped nuts or raisins may be added to the cheese for variety.

Fruit punches are popular with children and adults alike and if prepared in the morning and refrigerated can be ready at any hour. Honey fruit punch consists of

1 cup orange juice
½ cup lemon juice
2 cups grape juice
2 cups water
4 tablespoons honey

Mix thoroughly and place in the refrigerator until visitors arrive.

Another favorite is made by mixing two tablespoons of honey with the juice of ½ lemon. Stir well. Add 1 cup of cold water and refrigerate. If a hot drink is desired, use hot water and serve immediately.

Fruit punch makes use of ½ cup of berries in season, ½ cup honey, ¾ cup orange juice, ¼ cup lemon juice, 1 cup of double strength fresh tea, ½ pint ginger ale, and crushed ice. When ready to serve add ginger ale and crushed ice. Yield: 10 servings.

Honey added to either medium strong or strong coffee, served hot or cold, though simple, gives an air of trying to be a gracious hostess.

Brighten Brown

Brown, newly popular hue for children's wear, is usually brightened by being combined with a contrast color, when it is used in girl's clothing.

Pasties Rate High For Meals, Picnics

Cornish Pasties are little meat turnovers that have been favored for centuries by the English. . . hot or cold, . .tea time, dinner time or luncheon. We even like them for picnics instead of sandwiches. And this recipe uses left-over beef. . .a good way to solve the knotty problem of a new disguise for left-overs.

CORNISH PASTY

1 pkg. pastry mix
2 cups diced cooked beef
1 teaspoon kitchen bouquet
1½ cups thinly sliced potatoes
1½ cups thinly sliced onions
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon marjoram

Prepare pastry according to directions and roll ⅛" thick. Cut six 6-inch circles with a cookie cutter. Meanwhile, place diced beef in a large mixing bowl. Sprinkle kitchen bouquet over meat. Combine potatoes and onion with meat. Add seasonings and mix lightly with a large fork. Fill each circle of dough with meat-vegetable mixture.

Fold dough in half and press edges together to make a seal. If desired, finish by making a "Cornish crimp". This is done by folding a corner of the pastry over, like dog-earing a book, and so producing a new corner. Continue doing this around the pastry. Make a slit on top to permit escape of steam and bake in a hot oven, 400 degree F, for 45 minutes or until done. May be served hot or cold. Makes 6 Cornish Pasties.

Lani Is Heavenly Hawaiian Dessert

"Lani" in Hawaiian means "heavenly" and we're sure you'll agree that this is a "Lani Dessert". It's rich and creamy and delicious with the flavor of Dole Hawaiian Pineapple adding a delicate, tropical touch. It will be a favorite whenever you think of extra-special desserts.

LANI DESSERT

2 cups vanilla wafer crumbs (½ pound package, crushed)
½ cup butter or margarine (at room temperature)
2 cups sifted powdered sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup (½ pint) heavy cream, whipped
4 egg yolks
1 cup drained Dole "Crisp Cut" Crushed Pineapple (14 oz. can)

Spread 1¼ cups cookie crumbs in bottom of pan, 9x9x2 inches. Cream the butter, powdered sugar and vanilla together until light and fluffy; beat in egg yolks one at a time; carefully spread mixture over crumbs. Beat cream until stiff; fold in drained crushed pineapple; spread carefully over butter-sugar layer. Top with remaining cookie crumbs. Cover with waxed paper or foil and chill for several hours in refrigerator. Cut in squares. Makes 12 servings.

Gala Company Buffet Is Easy

Outdoor entertaining is fun for everyone including the hostess, when the menu is based on a convenient fully cooked, skinless, shankless ham. There is a wide range of ham styles available this year to fit every family size or party occasion.

For a work-free outdoor buffet, score and glaze a fully-cooked ham ahead of time. Then, when company arrives, the ham is ready to carve without additional preparation. Because Swift hams labeled "fully-cooked" are completely cooked when purchased, they may be sliced and served without any heating if you prefer.

It's easy to carve uniform slices from a ham that has the shank bone and skin removed before it is cured. For attractive buffet service, arrange several ham slices around the ham on the cutting board and bring it to the outdoor table just as it is.

For ham leftovers, serve fully-cooked ground ham in "Deviled Ham Balls."

DEVILED HAM BALLS
Yield: 4 servings

2 cups ground cooked Swift's Premium Ham
1/4 cup chopped onion
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1 tablespoon catsup
1 egg, slightly beaten
1/4 cup margarine or butter
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup tomato juice
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Combine thoroughly ham, onion, mustard, catsup and egg. Form into 1-inch balls. Brown balls in margarine in a heavy skillet. Remove ham balls from skillet. While ham balls are browning, combine flour and enough tomato juice to make a paste. Add remaining tomato juice and Worcestershire sauce. Return ham balls to gravy and cover. Cook about 15 minutes to thoroughly blend flavors. Serve ham balls over cooked rice, potatoes or noodles.

Hasty Chili Rated 'Magic Fall Meal'

It's fun to get back into the kitchen to do a little "fussy" cooking after, perhaps, neglecting it in the past two to three months.

Change of weather brings a change of appetites. Hasty Chili, according to Reba Staggs, well known home economist, affords an excellent lunch or dinner entree. Cooked with a generous amount of ground beef, this recipe is actually a meal-in-one dish. Just add milk, hard rolls and a refreshing cool salad and the meal is complete. A piece of lemon layer cake would be an excellent choice for dessert.

HASTY CHILI

1 pound ground beef
2 tablesponns lard or drippings
2 small onions, chopped
1 can (1 lb. 13 oz.) tomatoes
1 can (1 lb. 4 oz.) kidney beans
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons chili powder
¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper

Brown the beef slowly in lard or beans and seasonings. Cook slowly for 1 hour. Water may be added if desired and the seasonings can be adjusted to taste. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

Lamb Cuts Provide Economical Supper

Take advantage of economically priced lamb cuts at the meat counter by selecting some low-in-cost neck slices or stew meat. These cuts have lots of good flavor and make delicious braised supper meals. In this recipe, braised lamb neck slices are well-seasoned with thyme and marjoram.

BRAISED LAMB NECK SLICES

4 lamb neck slices, cut 1 inch thick
2 tablespoons lard
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoons each, pepper, thyme
½ teaspoon dreid marjoram
½ clove garlic
¼ cup water

Brown meat in hot lard. Add seasonings and water. Cover and cook over low heat until meat is tender, about 1 hour. Remove meat to heated serving platter, discard garlic, and thicken drippings with a flour and water paste. Serve gravy with meat. 4 servings.

Cheeseless Cheese Cake Is So Good!

This is an easy, can't-fail cheese cake which uses lots of milk but no cheese! It's so very easy to make, you'll be including it in your weekly baking regularly!

3 cups milk
2-3 cup uncooked white rice
1¼ cups fine zwieback crumbs
½ cup melted butter or margarine
¾ cup beet or cane sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup beet or cane sugar
3 eggs, beaten
1 cup heavy cream
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
1 teaspoon vanilla

Put the milk and rice in a 2-quart saucepan. Stir well. When bubbles appear around the edge of the saucepan, turn the heat as low as possible. Stir well. Cover and leave over this low heat for 45 minutes or until the milk cooks into the rice. Stir frequently during the cooking.

While the rice cooks, place the zwieback crumbs, melted butter or margarine, ¼ cup sugar and cinnamon in a round baking pan or deep 9" pie plate which will hold at least 6 cups of liquid. Mix together well. Pack firmly into the bottom and the sides of the pan or pie plate.

Stir into the cooked rice, the 1 cup of sugar, eggs, cream, salt, lemon juice, lemon rind and vanilla. Pour over the zwieback crumbs.

Bake in a 300 degree F. oven, 1½ hours or until firm in the center. Remove from the oven and allow to cool before serving. This recipe makes 8 servings.

Better Breakfasts Receive Emphasis

September is Better Breakfast Month and with this in mind let's take a look at the type of breakfast your family is receiving. Is it a wholesome and nutritious breakfast, adequate for hubby as well as the children? Nutritionists report that youngsters as well as adults should receive between ¼ and 1-3 of their daily food needs at the breakfast table.

A nutritious breakfast is one that provides generous amounts of high quality protein. Protein in the meal gives you that "stick-to-the-ribs" quality and pays off in the get up and go alertness.

A high protein breakfast will tend to retard the mid-morning listlessness so prevalent among persons who rely only on coffee and juice before leaving for the office or school.

Breakfast meats — ham, sausage, bacon and chipped beef — are an appetizing means of increasing the protein content of breakfasts.

The ham slice is a pleasing way to vary the meat at your breakfast table. It may be broiled, panbroiled or pan - fried: ½-inch slice requires 8 to 10 minutes per side and a 1-inch slice requires 10 to 15 minutes per side when broiled.

Reba Staggs, well known home economist, emphasizes that proper eating habits must be considered a lifetime, as well as a daily project.

So plan breakfasts around different meats and find out how quickly you find new energy and a brighter outlook on like during the morning hours.

Apples, Pork Give A Colorful Salad

Diced red - skinned apples and chunks of cooked pork make this salad colorful and hearty. Save some of a boned pork loin roast and cut the meat into bite-sized pieces for this whole meal salad. Here is the recipe:

PORK AND APPLE SALAD

1½ cups diced cooked pork
1½ cups diced unpeeled, red-skinned apples (2 small apples)
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1-3 cup mayonnaise
Salt and pepper

Combine pork and apples which have been sprinkled with lemon juice. Add mayonnaise and salt and pepper to taste. Serve well chilled in lettuce cups. 4 servings.

She is en route to the United States with her husband, Prince Rainier, who, hands gripped, already suggests the traditionally tense expectant father. The princess told reporters that her film career is ended and she will concentrate on being a wife and mother.

Navy Puts On Recruit Drive

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Navy has embarked on a full scale recruiting drive to keep up its strength without resorting to the draft as it had to do last year.

Expressing confidence that the sea service can be kept entirely voluntary, personnel officers disclosed Tuesday that an intensive plan is under way to recruit 133,000 men in the year ending next June 30.

Much of the success of the plan will depend upon reaching a 25 per cent reenlistment rate for men completing their first four year terms. The rate now runs at 10 to 12 per cent compared with 4 per cent at the end of 1954.

The 133,000 prospective recruits in fiscal 1957 will be needed to maintain the Navy's strength at 593,200 enlisted men and 73,800 officers.

Americans Unaware What Real Suez Problem Is

EDITORS: A poll taken this week by the Wall Street Journal showed that only six out of 1 Americans could even locate the Suez Canal on a map, let alone understand why it has brought a world crisis.

By UNITED PRESS

Why all the shouting — and maybe shooting — over the Suez Canal? Why is one waterway so important it has brought a world crisis? What difference whether Egypt operates it or an international authority?

Let's take a look at some fundamental facts about the Suez Canal:

It is 101 miles long. The Panama Canal is 50. The Suez runs at sea level, without locks, from the Mediterranean to the Red Sea. It links Europe with Asia and with the oil fields of the Middle East.

On any given day 40 to 50 ships transverse the canal. They are carrying one-sixth of the entire maritime cargo of the world and 65 per cent of it is going to or from Europe. The Suez tonnage last year was 115 million on 14,666 ships — almost three times that of the Panama.

Heavy Oil Tonnage

Europe consumes 2.5 million barrels of oil a day. About 1.2 million of it passes daily through the Suez. Some 800,000 comes through pipelines to the Mediterranean, the remainder from North and South America.

Should the Suez flow be stopped, Europe would get only half as much oil products for its automobiles, furnaces, factories.

The alternative for getting Middle East oil would be for tankers to go around the Cape of Good Hope at the southern tip of Africa. That is about 5,000 miles longer to London.

The company charged a tanker carrying 100,000 barrels of oil $12,000 to use the canal. It costs about $3,000 a day to keep a tanker at sea. So in four days on the Cape voyage the $12,000 would have been spent and the remainder of the voyage would be tremendously expensive.

British Imports

Great Britain gets its tea from Ceylon, its cotton from India, its woo from Australia, its rubber from Malaya. The voyage from Bombay to London via the Suez is 7,028 miles. By the Cape it is 12,548.

The Suez was built by a private French company, completed in 1869. There are now some 800,000 shares of stock outstanding. The British government owns 44 per cent. Private individuals in France hold about 42 per cent. The rest is scattered around the world.

The Suez is a very profitable operation. Last year its total revenues were $97,596,000 and its gross profit $45 million. Shares before the seizure sold around $300 apiece. Last year they paid a dividend of $30.50 — more than 10 per cent.

In a treaty signed in Constantinople in 1888, the then major powers of the world agreed that the canal must at all times be open to every nation of the world. Last year it was used by ships of 40 nations.

DEATH RIDES THE RANGE—There are 14 valuable, registered Hereford steers in the photo above, all struck dead by a single bolt of lightning. They belong to Morris Barnes, of West Mineral, Kan. They were some of many cattle killed when vicious thunderstorms swept the area around Parsons, Kan.

14 Year Old Boy Foils Kidnap-Robbery Plan

HEIDELBERG, Germany (UP) — American banker John W. Kuhel said today his 14-year-old son Robert was the calmest one in the family when the boy foiled a $71,600 kidnap - robbery attempt by shooting a German bandit in the head.

Police said Robert undoubtedly saved his mother's life Tuesday when 58-year-old Hugo Walgenbach kidnaped the family in a ransom attempt. The criminal was holding his gun against Mrs. Kuhel and was threatening to pull the trigger.

Kuhel told today how he overpowered the bandit and his ninth grader son shot him dead. He said he swerved his car to throw Walgenbach off balance and then lunged over the front seat to pin him down. At that instant, he said, he heard two shots fired close together.

Robert had shot Walgenbach with a .22 calibre target pistol he had hidden in his school jacket before Walgenbach forced the family into their car. The bandit had hoped to hold them until Kuhel got the ransom money from the Chase Manhattan Bank branch here that he manages.

Kuhel said his action in swerving the car came when Walgenbach opened the back door to take over the wheel while the car was parked in downtown Heidelberg. He ordered Kuhel to go to the bank on foot and join him later at the forest rendezvous.

"I saw that he had one foot on the sidewalk. Then a godsend—an American MP jeep—approached at cruising speed," Kuhel said.

"It was a spur of the moment thing, but there was only one thing in my mind. I was sure if the man left with my wife and son I would never see them again — even if I got the money," he said.

Kuhel said, "I never would have tried" to overpower Walgenbach if the MP jeep hadn't approached. "It was the most beautiful sight I have ever seen, those two blond boys with their guns drawn," he said.

The MPs in the jeep were SP-3 Tolentino Jacobs of San Francisco and Pvt. Melvin C. Dunlap of Mechanicsburg, Pa.

Joy In Education

John Dewey, considered by many as the outstanding educator in this nation during the 20th century, was not totally wrong although he is hardly to be thanked for giving birth to a cult of addle-pated educationists. Dewey found that schools operated by the government prior to 1900 were frequently dismal places in which boredom competed with laziness in dominating the minds of the students.

Instructors in those early days took a dim view of any individuality. You learned what the books had to say or the birch descended. Most youngsters grew up hating school. The occasional brilliant student became "teacher's pet," and took almost morbid pleasure in being superior to his contemporaries.

Dewey set about finding a "cure" for these conditions, and discovered that most persons will assimilate more knowledge if they are happy. He then deduced that happiness must be the new device to instill learning. Such discovery was neither profound nor startling but Dewey proceeded to go after this "new" idea in education with the fervor and tenacity of a convert to a new religion.

Teachers, instead of concentrating on the rules of rhetoric, were encouraged to entertain their charges. It was assumed by Deweyites, who quickly numbered in the thousands, that if only the atmosphere in the school was changed, the little boys and girls would not hate school. They would love school! And with this new found joy in their involuntary incarceration, the acquisition of knowledge would take an enormous spurt.

After 50 years of experimenting with this "new" line, we now view the result. Boys and girls still dislike school. But in addition to their antagonism, a new factor has been added. They have in large measure lost respect for teachers, principals and parents. In the grim old days, despite their hostility they did learn respect. And some of the basic rules of learning were driven into their cute little heads. Nowadays, attending school has many of the aspects of a weekend at a psychopathic summer resort.

Dewey may have run across an important factor in the business of getting some facts into otherwise empty craniums, but the pursuit of happiness for its own sake is the primrose path, however it is disguised. And today's students are the worse for the experiment.

Without any claims to the profound or the philosophic which might tend to place us in rivalry with Mr. Dewey and his apostles, we would like to suggest some ideas that Dewey apparently overlooked, or lacked the practical intelligence to recognize. Happiness in learning usually comes because a student is learning something he actually wants to know.

Nowadays the student is still forced to go to school, but his instructor is so preoccupied with seeing that he has plenty of light, plenty of fresh air, a comfortable seat and generous time for recreation that there is no energy left to imbue the student with any desire for knowledge. The classroom emphasis is on poise and adjustment. Indeed, the major problem of the pedagogue is to strike an unhappy balance to avoid intellectual contrasts through which the students might develop inferiority or superiority complexes.

Now it stands to reason that the learning of basic rules for reading, writing and arithmetic, spelling, geography, science and history can be a tedious occupation, but nowadays the tedium is aggravated when the instruction seems so unimportant to the student who has been conditioned to believe that social poise and group adjustment is far more important than the mastery of a subject.

Had Dewey gone a little further into his subject he might well have shown that there can be no real joy in education until the rules have been learned, and the student is granted the option of whether or not to voyage into the breathless wonderland of knowledge.

The old school rooms were gloomy prisons; the new schools are delightfully appointed prisons; but a prisoner is a prisoner. Change the jail all you please, you can only obscure the prisoner status; you do not change it.

The job for parents and teachers is to impress the child early that learning is a joyful experience so that he will be hungry for knowledge. He will not be going to school for entertainment — a condition which grows boring — but to renew and stimulate his mind with the ever new faces of knowledge.

Of course, this will never happen so long as the government forces everyone to go to school and compels everyone, regardless of whether they are in the market for schools, to pay for them. Indeed, the end result for most children forced into schools without desire for knowledge is frustrating, a rejection of the "fun" principle, and very often, too often, a revolt in dangerous ways against social norms.

The most important step to cure the sadly inadequate educational foibles and fashions is to get the government out of the education business.

In progressive societies government has been separated from religion to enhance moral development of the citizen. It will be an equal boon to individuals and to the society as a whole when the state and the school are separated.

Then acquisition of knowledge will become a matter of deep and urgent longing. The drive for learning occurs within the individual, and such will be that drive, among those to whom it is a natural characteristic, that lack of facilities will serve only as an added spur to intellectual achievement.

Happiness in education is all very well, providing the happiness is found in the pursuit of knowledge and not in country club surroundings and the administrations of charming governesses and masters of ceremony.

Modern state education is nothing in the world but government provided baby-sitting and, to a very great extent, the students know it. The only question which remains is when will parents realize that they are not fooling their children with the spoon-fed poblum they are getting, and insist that the politicians get their fingers out of the educational pie.

Case Study Of Church Politics

III.

In the last issue I was quoting from Edmund A. Opitz' book, "Case Studies of the Church in Politics" or "The Powers That Be."

Opitz goes on to tell how the church was taken over by Constantine in the Third Century. Then Opitz writes:

"Before this union was accomplished, however, certain institutional changes had taken place in the church itself. From a revolutionary force working within the minds and hearts of individuals, religion gradually moved toward and finally deposited the hard shell of an organized ecclesiastical system around itself. In short, the institution was already well on its way to becoming politicalized when the state, recognizing a rival, made of it an ally. The Church's open accommodation to political power took place under Constantine."

"This rich and mighty church was not long wanting in brilliant outward show. The cult was made majestic by sumptious church buildings and an imposing ritual; the life of the higher clergy, at least in the large cities, was princely.

"Religion and Freedom

"In America things were to be different. Here, no man was to suffer civil disabilities on account of his religious faith. The church and the state were to be separated by an impenetrable wall; an arrangement deemed best for religion and the church, best for the state, best for everyone.

"One of Thomas Jefferson's proudest accomplishments was his 'Bill for Establishing Religious Freedom.' (1779) The Opening clauses of this are well worth quoting:

"'Well aware that Almighty God hath created the mind free; that all attempts to influence it by temporal punishment or burdens, or by civil incapacitations, tend only to beget habits of hypocrisy and meanness, and are a departure from the plan of the Holy Author of our religion, who being the Lord both of body and mind, yet chose not to propagate it by coercion of either, as was in His Almighty power to do; that the impious presumption of legislators and rulers, civil as well as ecclesiastical, who, being themselves but fallible and uninspired men have assumed dominion over the faith of others, setting up their own opinions and modes of thinking as the only true and infallible, and as such endeavoring to impose them on others. Hath established and maintained false religions over the greatest part of the world, and through all time; that to compel a man to furnish contributions of money for the propagation of opinions which he disbelieves, is sinful and tyrannical; that even the forcing him to support this or that teacher of his own religious persuasion, is depriving him of the comfortable liberty of giving his contributions to the particular pastor whose morals he would make his pattern, and whose powers he feels most persuasive to righteousness . . . .'

"The Constitutiton forbade an establishment of religion, but the dire consequences predicted by the politically - minded clergy did not materialize. Rather, the church prospered in proportion as she was free. De Tocqueville, observing his country at first hand during the 1830's, wondered how it 'happened that the real authority of religion was increased by a state of things which diminished its apparent force.' Here he found the 'spirit of religion and the spirit of freedom' marching in the same direction, whereas in his native France they pulled in opposite directions. 'The Americans,' he said, 'combine the notions of Christianity and of liberty so intimately in their minds that it is impossible to make them conceive the one without the other.' The American clergy, he noted, 'do not support any particular political system. They keep aloof from parties and from public affairs. In the United States religion exercises but little influence upon the public opinion; but it directs the customs of the community, and, by regulating domestic life it regulates the state.'

"The New Departure"

"This volume attempts to document and survey the measure of the church's departure from its exercise of a salutary indirect force upon public life a little more than a century ago, to the present when many churchmen are trying to play power politics with the church.

"I have a deep concern for the health of the church which is what prompts this diagnosis of her present political sickness. And as for the men; there is not a one mentioned herein who does not have some qualities I admire; but I thing they are tragically mistaken in the matters here dealt with. If, in the heat of indignation, I do any an injustice, I herewith make what apologies and amends I can, in advance."

The Mysterious Arthur J. Goldsmith

LOS ANGELES — There have been many wide-eyed references to Arthur J. Goldsmith, of the Waldorf Tower, in connection with Harold Stassen's mysterious campaign to dump Richard Nixon off the Republican ticket. The New York Times is too, too naive about Golosmith and his machinations conducted from a hotel suite, which is also his dwelling, in the same pillar on Park Avenue which is the residence of Herbert Hoover and General Mac Aarthur. James Reston, the chief of the Times' Washington Bureau, pretends to know nothing about Goldsmith and this seems to be the editorial policy of the paper.

Another Times story hinted that the chief or only suspicion of Goldsmith came from Gerald L. K. Smith, of Los Angeles. However, the fact is that Smith did not poke this phoney dragon out of his cave and expose him to public view.

I am the one who poked him out. He now says, in the quote published by the Times: "I am mysterious only to would-be wits, dim-wits and half-wits." Well, five years ago I challenged Goldsmith to give an account of himself, and his backing and expenditures for political candidates and causes and he ducked back into his hole. He said he would answer no questions put orally whether by phone or face-to-face, but would answer questions put in writing. I immediately wrote some questions and sent them to him and I have yet to hear a word from him.

Horsepark Herbie Swope, Bernie Baruch's old press-agent and author of his publicity title of elder statesman, then told Goldsmith that such reticence created that very mystery which Goldsmith now denies the existence of. Of course Goldsmith was in on Stassen's raid and it is silly to believe Ike doesn't know the facts. He and his mysterious, letter-head political fronts financed a campaign for the radical Democrat, Matt Neeley, of West Virginia against Chapman Revercomb, a Republican Senator, and helped to kick the Republican out of the Senate for the sole reason that Revercomb had helped to write and enact an immigration law for the benefit of the United States.

I can tell you also, that Goldsmith sent money to New Hampshire to support Senator Tobey, a left-wing Republican, and that he imported George Franklin, of Nevada, to his mysterious political plant in the Tower and adopted him for $5,000 worth of political backing against Pat McCarran in 1950 Like Cevercomb, McCarran had helped to enact an immigration law. McCarran also had put through a "security" law which earned him the hatred of all those who hated Joe McCarthy.

Now we come to the sensitive fact that when Dick Nixon was on the House Committee on Un-American Ativities, he, too, like McCarran and McCarthy, put himself on Goldsmith's list for the same reason.

Ere leaving George Franklin, I would report that Franklin recently told me all about his pilgrimage to the Waldorf Tower at Goldsmith's invitation and expense and admitted that Goldsmith sent $5,000 to Nevada to dump McCarran in that primary. McCarran won. Franklin has now swung away from the Goldsmith cult and has fought them in Las Vegas at great personal expense and pain. He refused to touch a nickel of Goldsmith's $5,000 himself but says it was sent in from the Waldorf Tower and spent in his behalf.

Altogether, Goldsmith's activity deepens the mystery of President Eisenhower's strange "tribute" to him, a sort of diploma contrived by the present Denator Case, of New Jersey, and Congressman Hugh Scott, of Pennsylvania, after Ike's two brothers, Milton and Arthur, had spent ten days conferring with Goldsmith in the Tower. After all, Ike, Case and Scott are supposed to be Republicans whereas Goldsmith seems to be anything else but.

I doubt that any of this is unknown to the New York Times. It certainly is not unknown to Nixon.

BID FOR A SMILE

The stage troupe had been reduced to playing in small towns. One of the players had quit and a rookie was put in his place. The financial situation was acute.

Manager — I want you to go out there boldly. You're not afraid of that audience are you?

Rookie — Certainly not. We got them outnumbered.

The CRACKER BARREL

Good words are worth repeating, so in case you weren't listening, I'd like to quote Senator Knowland's words at the Republican Convention: "As long as I have a voice and a vote in the Senate of the United States, I shall oppose the admission of Communist Cina into the United Nations. . .Another secret Yalta agreement with its devasting effects on the nations of Eastern Europe and Asia must never again be permitted to darken the scene of this nation's foreign policy. Nor is it wise in international affairs or partisan politics to ABANDON YOUR FRIENDS and supporters TO PLEASE YOUR OPPONENTS."

To me the Republican Convention at San Francisco had a moment of almost sublime drama that, overcoming the racket of contrived ballyhoo, reached out and touched the heart of every citizen. This occurred when Dick Nixon, at the moment when his political career was in greatest danger, left the convention to go to the bedside of his father who was dangerously failing. It is reassuring to know that a man who, conceivably, may someday have to enforce all our man made laws still responds intuitively and at the risk of self-sacrifice to the Divine law: "HONOR THY FATHER AND THY MOTHER".

Harold Stassen always advances his career by giving something away. So it's only natural that he's given himself away (to anyone with an ounce of intelligence) by trying to dump Nixon. And I think Ike performed a public service by letting him do it.

Bank Holiday Could Have Been Avoided

WASHINGTON — The unhappy bank holiday of 1933 could have been avoided, if Franklin D. Roosevelt and Congressional Democrats had been willing to co-operate with Herbert Hoover between F.D.R.'s election and his inauguration. Equally blameworthy for their refusals to stave off the financial panic were the late J. P. Morgan, Henry Ford and Senator James O. Couzens of Michigan.

This hitherto unpublished story is the most sensational revelation in a new book on the life and career of the late Jesse H. Jones of Houston, Tex., the architect of national recovery as Roosevelt's Chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Written by Bascom N. Timmons, veteran Washington correspondent and Jones' literary executor, it might well be selected as the political biography of the year by the Pulitzer Prize judges.

Although a fascinating romance of the big, blue - eyed and racy Texan, it is Jones' experiences in national finance and politics which will excite greatest interest. In fact, numerous secrets spilled by the Jones - Timmons combination may become issues in the Presidential campaign. For they present Hoover in a far better light than Roosevelt in those depression days.

According to Timmons, "the natural turning point of the depression arrived in midsummer of 1932." Before creation of RFC in January, 1932, bank failures had amounted to $200,000,000 a month. Afterward, they fell to $10,000,000.

Had the Democrats on Capitol Hill worked with Hoover during that period, and had the former President displayed greater economic audacity, it is the Jones-Timmons contention that the collapse would have been avoided or minimized.

Hoover proposed that Congress permit RFC to lend money to banks on the true worth of their securities rather than on their depressed value; to lend money for plant improvement; for farm exports and for public works. Congress withheld the necessary authority.

Jones and former Vice President Garner also believed that an essential step for restoration of public confidence waas Federal guarantee of bank deposits. But Congress refused to enact this safeguard because F.D.R. was bitterly opposed to it. He said to Garner:

"It won't do, Jack. The weak banks will pull down the strong."

Jones, Garner and the late Senator Vandenberg of Michigan conspired to ram through the bank insurance measure in May, 1933. F.D.R. signed it only reluctantly, although he subsequently took great credit for this reform.

After Roosevelt's election, Garner and "Joe" Robinson, then Majority Senate Leader, tried to obtain Roosevelt's approval of the Jones - Hoover banking program which Congress had rejected. But Roosevelt withheld approval and advanced no substitute remedies.

As conditions grew worse, both Congress and Roosevelt had to accept Jones' recommendations, and the RFC became a great economic machine instead of an economic poultice. Enjoying the full confidence of Capitol Hill Democrats, the Texas plouged $50 billion into the nation's banks, industries, railroads, insurance companies and small firms, and wound up on the profit side. In all human history, there has never been such a daring or successful operation.

Jones attributes great responsibility for the bank crash to Ford and Couzens for their failure to co-operate to save two Detroit institutions, whose closing contributed to the nationwide holiday. When Ford was warned that his insistence on withdrawing $20,000,000 from the First Wayne National Bank would be disastrous, he replied:

"All right then, let us have it that way. Let the crash come. Everything will go down the chute. But I feel young; I can build again."

When Couzens was asked not to oppose an RFC loan to this same bank, according to Timmons, "he ranted over the telephone that he 'was not going to have the United States Government lend money to bail out Henry Ford.' "

Morgan's role was neither noble nor farsighted. In March, 1933, the only New York City bank with closed doors was the Harriman National. When Jones suggested that the RFC, Morgan and other bankers form a pool to pay Harriman depositors in full, only $11,000,000, thus generating public confidence in the New Yorking and financial capital, Morgan snapped:

"I have no responsibility to the depositors of the Harriman National Bank. Moreover, it is not my business to tell the other New York City bankers (or to tell anyone, for that matter), what to do."

However, Jones outmaneuvered the President and financiers, and saved them in spite of themselves. He was a Michelangelo of money, credit, business and industry — an artist in his field.

You Don't Have To Know The Language

MUNICH — I would never want to visit a foreign country whose language I spoke.

Not that there is any danger, since I speak only English — and that with an accent — but many people are envious of those who are able to talk to Frenchmen in French, Germans in German, Greeks in Greek, and Cambodians in Cambodian.

Not I. I want to keep travel travel. By that I mean that I want to feel completely out of place, thoroughly lost and bewildered, when I go to the trouble of leaving home for a distant shore. Otherwise, I would see no great sense in leaving home.

I can imagine nothing duller than "One World." In this set-up, as I see it, we would all wear one standard dress, talk a common language, wave the same flag, cuss the identical politicians, eat the same chow, and, eventually, become as indistinguishable as units in a housing project.

Our names would be eighter Joe or Ruth, we'd all be interested in the same things and talk about them all the time, and it would be un-worldish to have close friends for fear of hurting the feelings of hundreds of millions of others.

And just think of the birthday and Christmas gifts you'd have to give, the anniversaries you'd have to remember, and the parties you'd have to go to, because it would be impolite to have a party and not ask everybody in the whole, wide one-world.

Here in Germany I have met scores of Americans who are working away at learning German. In Turkey I found Americans studying Turkish, and in Egypt they were trying to learn Egyptian. They spent most of their spare time at this project, and seemed perfectly willing to pass up a trip down the Rhine to master an irregular verb, miss a trip through the champagne country to learn the subjunctive, and forego the theatre to be able to ask a Turk the name of a place to get good scrambled eggs.

If you know the language of a country, just think of all the idle conversation you hear streaming into your ears.

You go to a restaurant and here is what you are most likely to hear from the natives close by.

"It looks as if Aunt Gretel never is going home. She came to stay a few days, and she's been with us three weeks. But what can I do?"

"Well, you didn't miss much by not going. It was as dull a party as I have ever been to. That awful Mueller man was there, and so was his wife. They never stopped talking the whole time."

"Won't it be a blessing when the tourist season is over and all these foreigners have gone home?"

Mastery of the tongue eliminates many pleasing adventures of traveling. Sending out laundry via hotel maids, for one. Maids, incidentally, speak no language. Trying to talk with them is like calling a squirrel from a tree and telling it something. A professor of Dead, Alive, and Romantic Languages would find it impossible to make any maid understand that he wants no starch in his collars. Maids have different names for days of the week, also. And they have no word for "hurry" either.

Eating in a foreign language is fun, too. To get breast of chicken when you ordered breast of chicken, would be disappointing. How much more adventuresome to get oxtail soup with noodles, or ragout of raisins, or some other unfamiliar dish.

No, sir, you just can't beat being ignorant when traveling.

And I now whereof I speak.

There are many tweeds and flannels in the current Paris collections. Tweeds are usually a mixture of colors, are used for coats, suits and dresses. Luxurious daytime tweed in black-and-brown orlon-and-wool mixture (left) is used by Jean Desses for three-quarter flared coat with deep slits at either side. It's worn over a short-sleeved afternoon dress. Fine flannel in spun orlon-and-wool is the fabric chosen by Jacques Griffe for daytime coat dress (center) with soft lines. It has a diagonally buttoned front. Elegant, feminine lines are typical of Jacques Heim's collection. They appear here in an afternoon coat-dress with belled skirt. Fabric is black-and-white tweed in spun orlon-and-wool. Dress has removable black Persian lamb shawl collar and black buttons in diagonal trim.—By ROSETTE HARGROVE, NEA Staff Correspondent, Paris.

Year's Program Outlined At Breakfast Meeting Of The Parent Education Club

The theme for the year, "Living With Your Children," was introduced by Mrs. Homer Johnson, program chairman, at the breakfast meeting Tuesday of Parent Education Club in the home of Mrs. Gene Fatheree, 2126 N. Russell.

Mrs. Johnson and her committee, composed of Mmes. Myron Marx, Raymond Hampton, and Jack P. Foster, outlined the year's program, suggesting new ways for program leaders to present their material.

Age levels will be studied consecutively with only members participating who have children of the age being studied, they explained. A comprehensive bibliography for the study program is included in the yearbook, they pointed out.

Mrs. Johnson also reviewed club social functions for the year.

Mrs. Julian Key, parliamentarian and immediate past president, gave a brief survey of parliamentary procedure. She emphasized that rules of club procedure are merely a device for insuring fairness and courtesy to all individuals in the group and to allow the club to function in an efficient manner. She also reviewed the club constitution for the benefit of new members.

Mrs. Jack P. Foster announced the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs is reactivating interest in the American Indian, and it was voted to save several types of clothing and other articles for the Indians.

The group voted to send Mrs. Tom Rose, president, and Mrs. Homer Johnson, vice-president, to the Seventh District Federation workshop, to be held Oct. 3, in Memphis.

New yearbooks were presented to the members by Mrs. Art Smalley, chairman, and her committee, composed of Mmes. Gene Fatheree, Warren Fatheree and C. C. Whitney Jr.

A history of Parent Education Club, prepared by Mrs. Gene Fatheree, charter member, was presented to the club. Mrs. Fatheree also gave a report from the Council of Clubs.

The Parents' Prayer, read by Mrs. Rex Rose, opened the meeting.

Prior to the meeting, a breakfast was served, with Mrs. Warren Fatheree assisting Mrs. Gene Fatheree, hostess.

Welcomed as new members were Mmes. Harold Meador, C. R. Hoover, Jack Lockett, Fred Vanderburg and L. L. Garren.

It was announced the next meeting will be Oct. 2, in the home of Mrs. Myron Marx, with Mrs. C. R. Hoover and Mrs. Raymond Hampton leading the program "Living With Yor Children From From Infancy To Five."

AS LONG AS MAN HAS BEEN EATING, he has been eating rice. The earliest recorded history of the origin of the crop is Chinese. Emperor Shennumg is generally given credit for developing rice as a cultivated crop during his reign more than 3,000 years before the Christian Era.

HOWEVER, other evidences of the importance of rice thousands of years before the dawn of history have been found in Thailand, Burma, Malaya and French Indo-China.

Throughout Southeast Asia, a wide variety of wild forms of rice 'Oryza Sativa," are found, so it is safe to assume the crop originated there.

Use of rice as a major food spread from Southeast Asia until it circled the world by 1700. Columbus brought the cereal to this part of the globe on his second voyage.

However, it was not until 1685 that rice became a crop in this country. A ship, damaged by storm, sailed into Charleston, South Carolina for repairs. Its captain gave a local planter some rice seeds and from this small beginning sprang the great rice industry of the South.

Research by the American rice industry and the U.S. Department of Agriculture has produced vastly improved varieties of rice with superior milling and cooking qualities.

Because rice combines so amiably with other foods, it has become one of our most reliable food staples.

WHAT IS there about this season that makes whipped cream such appropriate topping?

As autumn glamorizes the land with her touches of red and gold, so does whipped cream glamorize desserts and salads.

Like a magic wand, shipped cream turns an unpretentious slice of pumpkin pie or a square of gingerbread into a creation to delight the eye and palate.

Use your imagination to help the magic. Try whipping spices into cream to serve over pumpkin, mince or apple pie. Transform a lemon pie with nutmeg - flavored whipped cream or serve it over fresh Bartlett pears now so plentiful.

Whip jelly and cream together or beat your pet flavoring extract into the cream. Make pink whipping cream with a little food coloring or color it with a few sliced cherries.

To meet the snap of the first cool weather, try ginger - flavored whipped cream. Use ½ teaspoon ginger to 1 cup of cream and 4 teaspoons sugar.

But whipped cream is more than a topping. In some cases it's half the dessert. For parfaits, beat honey into whipped cream or use it with juices from canned or frozen fruits.

Another dessert for this season is a can of applesauce combined with a pint of stiffly beaten cream, seasoned with cinnamon.

Whipped cream can do much for fruit salads. Whip 1-3 cup cream and 2-3 cup mayonnaise together. Add a spice suitable for the fruit you're serving. Ginger is good for pears — allspice, nutmeg or cinnamon for apples.

See how easy it is to make magic in your kitchen when you keep plenty of whipping cream handy. And whipping cream, like all dairy foods, is on the U.S. Department of Agriculture's plentiful foods list of this month.

To Decorate

Flowers and other plants make one of the easiest and most attractive ways to decorate a home. Gaily blooming potted plants and graceful, leafy greenery in plastic or metal planters are right for every room. A box of herbs or parsley dresses up the kitchen and is practical, too. Planters and pots in many new designs are available.

Mural-type scenic papers have a wonderful way of opening out a room or giving the illusion of space.

Going for a few days to the country or the seaside does not mean rounding up all of your old worn-out clothes for the trip. You'll be seen there just as you're seen at home. So plan to have well-fitted, becoming clothes.

Install Soft Water Plumbing In Home When First Building

Home owners will save money by having modern soft water plumbing installed as the house is being built.

Referring to the dissatisfaction of many individuals over the cost of converting existing plumbing to accommodate a water softening appliance, the Water Conditioning Research Council recommends that home owners advise their builders to include provisions for soft water plumbing in their plans.

In almost all cases, the Council says, home owners want soft water pipes routed around such outlets as water closets and outside sillcocks, where the advantages of soft water are wasted. Thus bypassing of these outlets is required, and this requires some additional connections and piping.

When this is done as the house is being built, it involves only a trifling amount of material and labor. But in houses already built it sometimes runs into quite a lot of expense.

According to the Council, if you have modern water using appliances in your home you will eventually want soft water for them. If the house is piped for soft water, as it is built, it will save the owner $10 to $50, maybe more, when they are ready for soft water.

IT'S THE LAW ★ IN TEXAS ★

Thousands of school children are now trooping back to school throughout Texas. Many of them will be transported by school buses. Most people are careful when approaching a school bus which may be standing beside the road or school to pick up school children or allow them to alight. However, we have already had some very bad accidents this year because a child or a motorist, or both, were careless at that very time.

Most Texans are aware of the law which requires a driver to come to a complete stop when overtaking from the rear a school bus which has stopped to receive or discharge school children. After stopping immediately behind the bus, he is then allowed by law to proceed past smae at a speed "which is prudent, not exceeding (10) miles per hour, and with due caution for the safety of such children."

What many persons do not realize is that the very same rule applies when MEETING a stopped school bus. While everyone is interested in protecting our children, unthinking violators of this simple safety rule greatly outnumber those who comply. Failure to follow the law in this case can lead to fines up to $200.00 even when no accident occurs. Following an accident in which some child is injured or killed, the penalties are naturally much more serious.

Although the above rule does not always apply when passing a stopped school bus in a business or residential district of a town, the necessity for extreme caution even in those locations is obvious.

When it comes to overtaking and passing moving vehicles, exercise of ordinary common sense will generally keep a driver within the law. For instance, when passing a car it is only common sense to proceed on past it a safe distance before cutting back to the right side of the highway. Also, any driver would realize the danger of increasing his speed while another is attempting to pass him.

In the same category is the prohibition against passing on the right under most ordinary conditions. Of course, you may legally pass on the right in a few specific instances, such as when the vehicle overtaken is making or about to make a left turn, or upon a one-way street with two or more lanes, or upon a four-lane highway.

However, our traffic laws state that even when passing on the right is allowed, it shall be done only under conditions permitting such movement in safety. And, in no event should such passing be accomplished by driving off the pavement or main-traveled portion of the roadway.

Familiar to all are the no passing zones designated by dash lines placed to one side of the center stripe on our highways. Not so well known are the restrictions against crossing the center line when approaching within 100 feet of or when traversing any intersection or railroad grade crossing.

A driver should never cross the center line of a highway when the left side of the road is not clearly visible and free of oncoming traffic. Generally speaking, when not engaged in passing another vehicle, one should not drive to the left of the center of the roadway.

Have Dior Suit, Willing To Travel

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP) — A week in Manhattan:

Girls who'd like to have a Christian Dior suit and will travel have a new chance for jobs. Six new secretary-hostesses were introduced here this week by the New York Central Railroad. They will travel on the 20th Century Limited.

Dior joined other top designers who have made uniform styles in the past and agreed to design the dress of the new train hostesses. His only stipulation: Call it a Dior suit or costume, but not a Dior uniform.

He designed the suit in blue-grey chiffon flannel in what he calls his "magnetic line." The skirt is slim, the shoulders rounded in a horseshoe silhouette.

The French designer, who dropped some of his skirts to a point just above the ankles in his fall Paris collection, gave no hint of longer skirts to come in his new train hostess costumes. The skirts are approximately 14 inches from the floor.

Like pastel colors, print dresses are becoming 12-month fashions. Many designers showed printed silk and satin dresses along with their winter tweed suits this year.

The latest print promoter is the designer for Hattie Carnegie. The custom clothes created under the name of the late fashion leader were shown this week, including an entire group of evening prints.

Short and long evening dresses can bloom with everything from zinnias to lilacs, something that used to be considered proper only in the spring. The printed materials most often are heavy taffeta or satin.

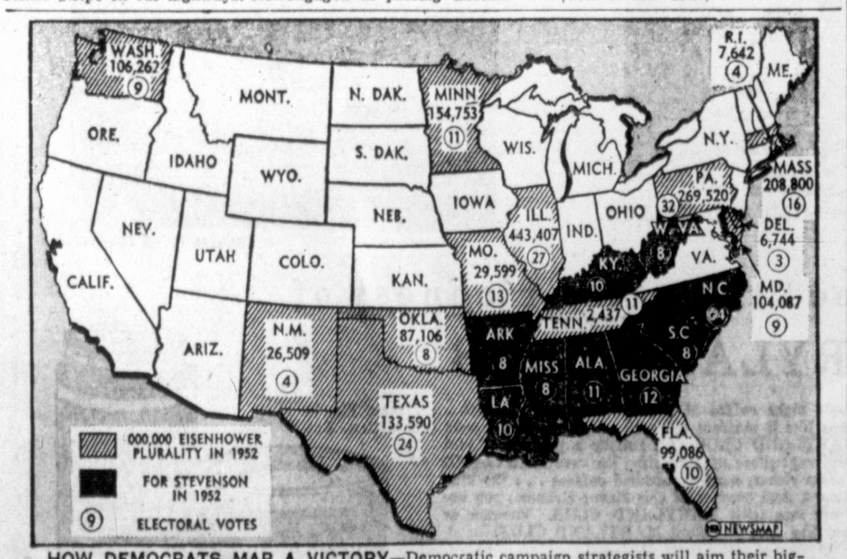
Names Cleburne Jude

AUSTIN (UP) — District Judge Penn J. Jackson, of Cleburne, was named Tuesday by Gov. Allan Shivers as presiding judge of the third administrative judicial district. Jackson will fill the unexpired term of District Judge A. P. Mays of Corsicana, who resigned.

Boy Dies of Polio

DALLAS (UP)— A seven-year-old boy, Danny Rar Brunson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Brunson of Grand Prairie, died of bulbar polio Tuesday. His sister-in-law, Mrs. Charles Brunson, 19, is in serious condition with the same disease.

REDS CALL THE TUNE—Teen-agers crowd a record bar, set up at the Leipzig Fair in East Germany by a Communist-dominated recording firm. The mass listening device provided a rare opportunity for many of the young folk to listen to latest recordings of popular music.



HOW DEMOCRATS MAP A VICTORY—Democratic campaign strategists will aim their biggest guns at 14 states (diagonal shading) carried by President Eisenhower in 1952. If they can switch 851,000 votes in those states to the Democratic column, they figure Adlai Stevenson and Estes Kefauver are in. The reasoning: In 1952, Stevenson won (black area) 89 electoral votes. If he holds those this year (they're all in the Democratically "solid South"), and adds the 181 electoral votes of the 14-state area, he will have a total of 270. The minimum number of electoral votes needed to win the election is 266.

16 THE PAMPA DAILY NEWS THURSDAY, SEPT. 20, 1956 48th Year

Heard Through The Barryl

By BARRY A. LITTMANN
Pampa News Sports Editor

It just goes to show you. The whole world loves a winner. Two weeks or so ago when Head Coach Jack Lockett spoke at Kiwanis, he made it quite clear that there was somewhat of a disinterest in football in the High School this year. The boys weren't coming out for the team like they should. Plenty of big fellows who would make excellent linemen were just going about their business after school was over instead of heading toward the locker rooms and a football uniform. Why not, the Harvesters had a poor record last year, and anyway, who wants to play with a losing team. That's not our own personal idea behind playing football, but unfortunately, that's the idea in a lot of high schoolers' minds when they're thinking about going out for football.

Well, here is what has happened in the past two weeks. The boys that did decide to take advantage of the opportunity afforded them by Jack Lockett and his assistants and play have been doing a bang-up job of it. They've worked hard, gotten into the spirit of things by working together, and by golly, they won their first game last week over the Austin Panthers of El Paso by a 28-13 count. And they figure to whip the Capitol Hill Redskins this Friday night too. Now, the complexion has changed a bit over on Harvester Street. Yesterday afternoon four new faces dotted the 35 or 40 boys out there. Where'd they come from? They aren't new students, they aren't transfers from another school, they are four men who decided to come out after watching the Harvesters win last Friday night and hearing the talk around the High School campus that the Harvesters were low on reserves and depth. Congratulations fellows, you're doing yourselves and your school a great service.

Without waiting for me or anyone else to get around to writing about it, the first big college football weekend is upon us. Those of you luckier people who don't have to work on Saturday — can you imagine not missing a college football on a Saturday for four years, going all over the Southwest watching the best, and the worst, play, and now having to work on a Saturday!!! O, you lucky, lucky people you. Thank goodness for the radio. At any rate, there is a fine card throughout Texas this weekend. In this area, Texas Tech is at home hosting Texas Western. Going downstate a bit, Austin is in for dandy opening game when two of America's finest halfbacks, Texas U's Walt Andrew and USC's John Arnett hook up as Texas plays Southern Cal. In Fort Worth, Texas A and M plays a rapidly rising team from the East, the Villanova Wildcats. The 'Cats, finishing 1-9 last year and are expected to have a much better ball club this year. While they won't beat TCU, they should make it interesting. Rice plays Alabama in an interconference game, and that's about the top of football in Texas this weekend. If you're driving to any of these games, after first watching the Harvesters play Friday night, of course, remember to please drive carefully, for the life you save may be your own.

INCIDENTALLY AND BY THE WAY — Local Boys make Good Dept. Sammy Baugh, Hardin-Simmons coach, tells us that Jim Doom, former Lefors ace will be a big help to him this year — Bud Cockrell, a mountain of a tackle for the Cowboys, should start for them over in Fort Smith, Ark. this Saturday. Remember him, he played some fine tackle for the Harvesters a couple of years back — Down TCU way, they tell us that Bill Farrington, 6-1 end who calls Perryton his home, won a seat on the varsity bus as did Pampa's Bill Culpepper, another soph and he a horse — weight 225, stands 6-3 and calls the Top o' Texas City his home — Of course, TCU's starting lineup will sport big Don Cooper from Perryton. This 6-2, 202 tackle will get his name on many All - American lists this year. Heard he's real tough — Coming tomorrow, another gaze into the Crystal Ball, and another .800 week. I hope.

TCU 19 Over Kansas; A&M, Rice, SWC Favorites

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UP) — The first big weekend of the college football season will see Notre Dame, Maryland, Pittsburgh, and Southern California scoring important victories, if the odds-makers are right.

The first rundown on football odds, established by a Minneapolis syndicate which rates the teams weekly, also picked Coach Jim Tatum to make a winning debut at North Carolina, and Washington and Stanford to score wins in Pacific Coast Conference play.

Notre Dame, led by quarterback Paul Hornung in only its third night game in Irish history, was picked by 13 points over Southern Methodist and Maryland, the No. 3 team in the nation last year, was picked by the same margin over Syracuse although star back Frank Tamburello may not be able to play because of a draft call.

Pittsburgh, tabbed by many as the East's top power, is favored by only seven points over West Virginia in a hot rivalry game at Morgantown, W. Va., and Southern California is picked by just six over Texas in possibly the day's biggest intersectional game at Austin, Tex.

Tatum, who switched from Maryland to his alma mater, North Carolina, this year will find his Tarheel team picked by seven points over arch-rival North Carolina State.

In other games:

Major intersectionals — Oregon and Colorado even; Missouri six over Oregon State; Baylor seven over California; Rice 13 over Alabama; College of Pacific 14 over Colorado A&M; Texas A&M 20 over Villanova.

Midwest and Southwest — Texas Christian 19 over Kansas; Cincinnati six over Dayton; Detroit seven over Marquette; Kansas State six over Oklahoma A&M; Arkansas 14 over Hardin-Simmons.

Major League Roundup

Newk's 25th Win Gives Brooklyn ½ Game Edge

By FRED DOWN
United Press Sports Writer

Don Newcombe's taken his place with the majors' greatest pitchers of the last 20 years—whether the Brooklyn Dodgers win or lose the pennant.

With the possibility of three more starts in the last 10 hectic days of the National League race, the 240-pound right-hander already has:

1. Become the NL's fourth 25-game winner since 1936.

2. Compiled a 45-11 won-and-lost record for the last two years that gives him an .804 percentage and a chance to equal a record held by Lefty Grove.

3. Been the Dodgers' "big guy" with a 16-1 record since July 4.

Big Newk, who swings a mean home run bat in addition to his pitching talents, "took charge" Wednesday when he blasted two round-trippers and stole a base in leading the Dodgers to a 17-2 rout of the St. Louis Cardinals. The victory enabled the Dodgers to open up a .004-point, half-game lead over the Milwaukee Braves, who were rained out of a scheduled game in Pittsburgh.

Gives Up Seven Hits

Newcombe gave up seven hits, including homers by Al Dark and Stan Musial, before retiring in favor of Don Bessent with the Dodgers leading, 15-2, after seven innings. Sandy Amoros and rookie Don Demeter also homered for the Dodgers while Duke Snider had four hits and drove in three runs in the 17-hit Brooklyn assault on five pitchers.

Wednesday's victory again evened the Dodgers with the Braves in the "won column," each with 88 and left Brooklyn with 57 losses compared to 58 for Milwaukee. The Braves, therefore, are on the spot to beat the Pirates today or drop two games behind in the "last column" with seven games to go.

The Cincinnati Redlegs, still hoping for the miracle which will vault them back into serious contention, swept a doubleheader from the Philadelphia Phils, 6-3 and 6-0, to move within four games of the Dodgers. Wally Post hit his 32nd homer to help Johnny Klippstein win his 12th decision in the opener while Tom Acker pitched a three-hitter and George Crowe homered in the nightcap.

Giants Down Cubs

The New York Giants downed the Chicago Cubs, 7-2 and 3-2, virtually dooming the losers to a last-place finish in the other NL activity.

The American League champion New York Yankees were idle but the Cleveland Indians helped Bob Lemon gain some personal satisfaction for the season with a 6-0 victory over the Washington Senators in a game held to seven innings by rain. Lemon, who yielded five hits, reached the 20-victory circle for the seventh time in his career.

Al Kaline, continuing his late-season bid to win the RBI crown, knocked in four runs with a 4-for-4 day as the Detroit Tigers scored a 9-1 triumph over the Baltimore Orioles. Ray Boone also homered for the Tigers as Frank Lary turned in an eight-hitter for his 19th win. Kaline now trails Mickey Mantle by only one RBI.

Harry Simpson's grand-slam homer sparked the Kansas City Athletics to an 8-1 decision over the Boston Red Sox.

Fondren and Arnett Battle To Be SWC Highlight

By ED FITE
United Press Sports Writer

DALLAS (UP)— A potent potential duel between two of the nation's more versatile backs—all-America Jon Arnett of Southern California and Walt Fondren of Texas — offers the spice of the menu for the initial serving of Southwest Conference football.

These two left halfbacks do just about everything with a football with statistics indicating that the handsome Fondren knows every trick of his talented tailback rival.

Texas enthusiasts were particularly pleased when Arnett, limited to only five games this season under Pacific Coast Conference penalties assessed for excessive aid to athletes, chose to start his string with Saturday night's game at Austin with the Longhorns.

The Texas-USC tilt is only one portion of the rugged intersectional fare lined up for conference teams this week, but the Fondren-Arnett duel pares it off well with such games as Southern Methodist-Notre Dame at Dallas; Texas A&M-Villanova at College Station, Alabama-Rice at Houston, Baylor-California at Berkeley and Texas Christian-Kansas at Lawrence.

Both Fondren and Arnett are noted primarily for their elusive runs from scrimmage, but both also are passers and punters of note and are specialists at returning kicks, can hold their own as pass receivers and do right well at converting that point after touchdown.

Fondren operates "full-time" in all these categories, while Arnett punts only occasionally, eight times to 44 for Fondren a year ago.

Fondren's passing is limited to the running pass off Texas' straight-T formation, but should Coach Ed Price try to utilize the single wing portion of his newly installed multiple offense, Fondren will be in position to match his Southern Cal rival on that score, too.

Pass Specialty

For Arnett plays the tailback in Coach Jess Hill's single wing scheme of things and his pass specialty, too, is the running option pass.

They met a year ago in Los Angeles when Arnett was a junior and Fondren was playing only his third game as a sophomore. The check sheet shows Fondren carried 11 times for 67 yards, caught a 36-yard pass to set up Texas' only touchdown, which he scored, and averaged 40 yards on five punts.

Arnett rushed nine times for only 38 yards, completed two of three passes for 50 yards and returned one kickoff 62 yards.

Over the full season, Arnett averaged 4.8 yards from scrimmage to 5.3 for Fondren, but the Trojan ace averaged 27.9 yards on 15 kickoff returns to 21.3 for Fondren, and 17.6 yards on 16 punt returns to 12 yards for Fondren.

There'll be 20 other players on the field at Austin Saturday night, but the eyes of Texas will be on Fondren and Arnett. As they go, so will the outcome.

Faurot Quits Coaching Spot After Season

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UP)— Don Faurot, the greying 54-year old master football tactician of Missouri, will end 31 years of coaching at the end of the current season, he announced Wednesday night.

Faurot said the combined job of athletic director and head football coach "were too much for one man." He will remain at Missouri as athletic director.

Missouri University President Elmer Ellis, the man who hired Faurot to coach there in 1935, said a successor would not be named until the end of the season. He said the man would be "one who believes in the Missouri system of fair and straight athletics."

Clay Cooper, a Faurot-trained assistant at Missouri, was reported to have the inside track for the job. Another person mentioned was Volney Ashford of Missouri Valley College at Marshall, Mo., a strong believer in Faurot-type athletics.

Faurot, who gained fame in inventing the sliding or split T type of football during World War II, is a strong believer in honesty in athletics in recruiting, administration and on the playing field. He often has pleaded with the other Big Seven schools to keep the conference clean and free from any possible investigations by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Faurot began coaching at Kirksville, Mo., State Teachers one year after graduating from Missouri and nine years later was called back to his alma mater as head coach. He has a 94-74-9 record at Missouri and an overall record of 160-87-12.

Two-Year Old Sets Two Records

DELAWARE, Ohio (UP)— Good Counsel, a two-year old filly, set two world records at the Delaware Grand Circuit Wednesday. The filly first won the opening heat of the filly pacing stakes in 2:01 2-5 for one record and then won the second heat in 2:02 4-5. The combined time of 4:04 1-5 beat the old record by 6 4-5 seconds.

Harvesters Get More Men; Ready For Redskins Friday

With their second game just over 24 hours away, the Pampa Harvesters have some added faces to their roster. Four new men, most of them just out this week, are trying hard to show up well in practice and to possibly get a chance on the varsity before too long. Jerry Rockwell; a soph end, Billy Smith; a halfback, Charley Snyder; a fullback and Hank Mitchell; an end, all joined the Harvesters squad in the past week. These four men, all of whom will be playing B ball until their play warrants a promotion to the Varsity squad, are indicative of the spirit now found on the Harvester team as they go through eight workouts today for tomorrow's encounter with the Capitol Hill Redskins.

Capitol Hill comes down here with, as Head Coach C. B. Speegle said, "our weakest team since the late '40's. They may develop later in time, but they can't get any worse". And that's what Coach Lockett and his assistants fear might be in store for them tomorrow night. This team, walloped soundly by Amarillo last weekend, may just rebound Friday night against our Harvesters. Without spring practice, it is going to take this type of team a week or two longer to jell than it would a team that benefited by spring practice. This might be the week the Redskins find themselves and upset Harvester plans.

While anything is possible, the Harvesters have worked hard all week trying to get ready. Yesterday, they worked on kicking of extra points, with Jerry Bonsai doing a fine job of splitting the uprights. Although the immediate plans are right now to run the extra points, and why not, said Coach Lockett, "We made four out of four on the ground. Don't think we'd do that well in the air", an extra point kicker could come in mighty handy before the season is over.

Another phase that the Harvesters worked hard on was the defense on kickoff returns. Lumps came into the throats of many fans at the Harvester Field last Friday night when the opening kickoff was returned 82 yards, almost for a touchdown. Dick Maulkin did a fine job of hauling the runner down when he looked like he was touchdown-bound.

Ticket sales for this game are moving very slowly, the business manager's office reports. There are still plenty of good seats available on both sides of the Stadium. They will be on sale this afternoon until 5:00 and tomorrow until 5:00 at the business managers office and then at the gates of the Stadium.

SWC Opens With Tough Schedule

By UNITED PRESS

Southwest Conference coaches, faced with one of the toughest in history, put the finishing touches on their 1956 football editions today and hoped for the best.

The best was expected to be victorious in at least five of the seven games with Texas Christian favored over Kansas, Texas A&M over Villanova, Baylor over California, Rice over Alabama and Arkansas over Hardin-Simmons in Saturday's openers.

Texas was rated an even choice with Southern California, but Southern Methodist was a rank underdog against Notre Dame.

Coach Ed Price at Texas wound up contact work with his Longhorns Wednesday and planned a "dress rehearsal" under the lights at Memorial Stadium tonight. Two players who have suffered injuries, halfback Carl Wylie and fullback Jimmy Welch, may see limited service against the Trojans.

At TCU, Coach Abe Martin made adjustments to the defenses he plans to use against Kansas. Center Dale Walker, who fractured a jaw in last Saturday's scrimmage has been outfitted with a special helmet and will be available for duty at Lawrence.

Coach Sam Boyd at Baylor picked a 42-man traveling squad for the trip to Berkeley, Calif., after a light, snappy drill Wednesday, but held off naming a starting lineup until Friday.

At College Station, the first two Texas Aggie teams were given the day off while Coach Paul Bryant and his aides took a look at the incoming freshmen players.

SMU spent most of Wednesday's drill working on offense it hopes will work against Notre Dame. Long punts by sophomore Don Stewart, last spring's high jumping sensation, featured the sessions.

Coach Jack Mitchell was pleased with the physical condition of his Arkansas team, but not with the spirit and hustle after a general all-around session Wednesday.

Dummy scrimmage and offensive drills occupied the Rice Owls at Houston.

"Silence Is Golden"

TUPELO, Miss. (UP)— Marvin Cook should have remembered the maxim, "silence is golden" when he was found guilty of drinking. "Ten days!" Cook grumbled when he was sentenced. "Why you might as well make it 15." The magistrate agreed.

Calf Named For Elvis

POMONA, Calif. (UP)—Crooner Elvis Presley has an unusual namesake. A calf born at the Los Angeles County Fair last week has been named Elvis Presley because officials said "the animal has been bawling since it was born."

Oyster Habitat

Some species of oysters will grow in sea water, but the brackish waters of bays, inlets, and river mouths are a prerequisite for most culture.

"Death Masks"

Lysistratus, fourth century Greek sculptor, was the first to take impressions of human faces in plaster, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Lane Wins TV'er Over Lightburn

MIAMI, Fla. (UP) — Kenny Lane's manager followed up his nationally-televised victory over Ludwig Lightburn today by asking for a shot at the lightweight title, but then conceded he'd settle for a shot at contender Larry Boardman.

Lane, sixth-ranking contender in the 135poudn ranks, scored a unanimous and convincing victory over Lightburn, the ninth-ranking contender from British Honduras in their bout at Biscayne Arena Wednesday night.

Jack (Doc) Kearns, manager of the Muskegon, Mich., victor, announced at once that he was "offering" a $40,000 guarantee to lightweight champ Joe Brown to risk his crown against southpaw Lane here in February. Then he said he'd also like a return shot at Boardman.

The schedule:

Sept. 28 Channing-there
October 5 Booker-here
Oct. 12 open

"Fisherman's Ring"

When a Pope is crowned, a signet ring is presented to him which bears his name and a picture of Saint Peter in a boat. This ring sometimes is called the "fisherman's ring." When a Pope dies, his ring is broken and a new one made for the next Pope.

Oklahoma City Golf Tourney Opens Today

By JIM WILLIAMS
United Press Sports Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY (UP)— A youth-packed field of 135 golfers, more than 90 who haven't reached their 30th birthday, teed off today in first round play of the $15,000 Oklahoma City Open.

A register of 100 professionals went after the top prize money. The amateur field was trimmed to 35 in qualifying action Wednesday.

The tournament, which runs through Sunday with 18-holes each day, is Oklahoma City's first golf open since 1929. That year Craig Wood, one of the game's great names, picked up the top cash prize of $1,000.

The winner of this year's PGA co-sponsored event carries home a $2,400 check.

The scene of the open, the Twin Hills Country Club course, is a rugged 6,670-yard layout. Par is 36-36—72.

Trouble awaits the golfer who strays outside the narrow fairways. They are lined with scrub oaks and blackjacks. A trip to the rough is dangerous scorewise.

Leading the pros, who teed off at 7:30 a.m. were such veterans as Ed (Porky) Oliver, Canton, Mass.; Bob Toski, Holyoke, Mass., winner of George S. May's $50,000 world championship tournament at Chicago in 1955; and Tommy Bolt, Houston.

Other name golfers in the lineup included Art Wall Jr., recent winner of the $15,000 Fort Wayne, Ind., Open; Marty Furgol, Lemont, Ill.; Freddie Haas Jr., New Orleans; Frank Stranahan, Toledo, Ohio; Dick Mayer, St. Petersburg, Fla.; Dow Finsterwald, Bedford Heights, Ohio; Dave Douglas, Newark, Del., and Johnny Palmer, Tulsa.

Most of the young professional golfers who have been consistent money winners this summer were also in the lineup. In that group were Gardner Dickinson Jr., Panama City, Fla.; Fred Wampler, Lafayette, Ind.; Bill Trombley, Dallas; Bill Casper Jr., Chula Vista, Calif.; Bo Wininger, Oklahoma City, and Billy Maxwell, Odessa, Tex.

Charlie Coe, Oklahoma City, national amateur winner in 1949 and this year's Trans-Mississippi titlist, led the list of amateurs.

Teen-Agers Lead Women's Golf Tourney

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UP) —A trio of teen-agers threatened today to take over in the National Women's Amateur golf tourney after elimination of top favorite Wiffi Smith, and three former champions.

Grabbing the challenging positions were Joanne Gunderson, 17, Seattle, Wash.; Clifford Ann Creed 17, Opelousas, La. and Anne Quast 19, Everett, Wash.

All scored major triumphs in third round play Wednesday with Miss Gunderson ousting defending champion Pat Lesser 2 and 4, Miss Creed bouncing Barbara McIntire, Toledo, Ohio 3 and 1, and Miss Quast defeated the 1954 titleholder, Barbara Romack, Sacramento, Calif., one up in 19 holes.

Today the path for all three could be just as tough. Two rounds, each of 18 holes, will be played, and in the morning Miss Gunderson faces a Curtis Cup player, 38-pear-old Mrs. Philip Cudone, Montclair, N. J. Miss Creed bumps into Mrs. William Hartson, a 30-year-old San Francisco veteran who Wednesday put out the 1948 tourney champion, Grace Lencyzk, Newsington, Conn., and Miss Quast tangles with Maureen Riley, 22, Pittsburgh district champion from New Castle, Pa.

Some "name" veterans still remained in contention too. The 1951 titleholder, Dorothy Kirby, Atlanta, Ga., twice previously a tourney runner up faces Helen Sigel Wilson also twice a runner-up in the past, in today's first match and Mrs. Ann Casey Johnstone, Mason City, Iowa, a four time state champion who beat Miss Smith Wednesday, one up in 19 holes, tangles with Greta Leona, Chicago.

Polly Riley, Fort Worth, Tex., another Curtis Cup player faces Mrs. John Pennington, Buffalo, runner-up, Jane Nelson, Indianapolis, meets Wanda Sanches, Baton Rouge, La.

Fraley Mixes Football, Baseball For The Record

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Fraley's follies and the first edition of the weekend football "winners"—along with a few observations on the National League pennant race.

The Midwest

TCU over Kansas— It's an anticlimactic series for the NL.

Marquette over Detroit— Brooklyn's bandage brigade will shoot its wad in the stretch.

Aggies— Milwaukee can't match the Yanks anywhere.

Oregon State over Missouri— Redleg power would make it a donnybrook.

Miami, Ohio, over George Washington and San Jose State over Drake.

The West

Stanford over Washington State —The Yanks would clobber Brooklyn or Milwaukee.

Baylor over California— Cincinnati would give 'em a battle.

Washington over Idaho— The Redlegs are pitch poor.

UCLA over Utah— But they'd have plenty for a short series.

Also— Oregon over Colorado, Denver over Utah State, COP over Colorado Aggies and Brigham Young over Fresno State.

The South

Duke over South Carolina— Kinda nice if Brooklyn wins.

Mississippi State over Florida— "One for the road" for the nine old men.

There's a new Flatbush theme song.

Georgia Tech over Kentucky— "Breaking up that old gang of mine."

The Southwest

Notre Dame over SMU— October joy-ride for Mantle and Company.

USC over Texas— The Yanks'll be fit and rested.

Rice over Alabama—They have pitching and power.

Arkansas over Hardin-Simmons —And, as the man says, they've got Casey Stengel.

Lefors vs. White Deer Is News Game Of The Week

The Lefors Pirates will be looking for their first win tomorrow night when they play the White Deer Bucks at White Deer. The Pirates opened up their season with a 13-13 tie with Dalhart and last week lost a tough one to the Shamrock Irish 12-6. In the meantime, White Deer will also be looking for their first win tomorrow night. They tied their opener, 6-6, with Groom and took a solid trouncing 47-6, at the hands of the Clarendon last week.

What does this ball game shape up to be? A battle of the defeated, and you can bet your life that both of these teams will be looking to break into the win column in time to make Sunday's Pampa Daily News.

Both teams have a lot to back up the fact that they are looking for their first victory. efors has Tommy Johnson, a fair-to-middlin passer and Jimmy Wariner, a not-too-bad-at all halfback. He ran very well in last week's tough loss. Johnson, on the other hand, had it a little tough, getting no breaks on his flings and having a tough time finding receivers. White Deer, Don Essray is one of the better passers around this area and Jerry Mills and Powell are fine halfbacks. A. J. Alford can handle Essray's flips with ease.

It shapes up as a great ballgame and for those of you who can't attend, The Pampa News will bring you complete coverage in Sunday's paper.

Elks Move Into Bowling Lead

The Elks bowling team came into undisputed first place in their bowling league last night as a result of winning all four points.

So far, the team is undefeated in league competition.

Members of the team are Ed Phillips; Don Riggs, Phil Shelton, Don Rochelle and Horace Prince.

NEW YORK (UP)—The American League champion New York Yankees now are accepting mail orders for tickets for the third, fourth, and fifth games of the World Series to be played at Yankee Stadium.

Mick Looks To Win Tri-Crown

BOSTON (UP)— Mickey Mantle is one Yankee who can't afford to "just go through the motions" for the remainder of the season if he is to wind up with the triple batting crown.

Mickey seemed to have it cinched a month ago when he had wide leads in batting average, homers and runs batted in. But he goes into the final 10 days of the season trailing Ted Williams, .350 to .355 in average and with red-hot Al Kaline of the Tigers only one behind in RBI, 123 to 122.

Mantle was idle Wednesday when Williams lost a point on his average and Kaline drove in four runs. Williams has 372 official at bats and needs 28 in the Red Sox' last eight games to qualify for the title.

Mickey and Ted are idle today but the Yankees and Red Sox open a three - game series here Friday.

Lemon Wins 20 Plus For Seven Seasons

CLEVELAND (UP(— Bob Lemon, who will celebrate his 36th birthday Saturday as one of six modern pitchers who won 20 games seven times, said today he'll go on pitching for the Cleveland Indians "as long as I can."

Lemon notched his 20th win of the season Wednesday when he shut out the Washington Senators, 6-0, in a game held to seven innings by rain. Walter Johnson, Christy Mathewson, Grover Cleveland Alexander, Eddie Plank and Lefty Grove are the other pitchers to hit the 20-mark seven times.

Savitt Out Of Davis Cup

NEW YORK (UP)— Another ray of hope for U.S. Davis Cup chances flickered out today with the announcement that Dick Savitt will be unable to compete on the American team.

Yankees Should Show Smashing Series Win

(Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.)
By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)— Anything can happen in the World Series yet it appears today that the New Lork Yankees are headed for one of their most smashing triumphs when the annual classic goes up for grabs just 13 days from now.

The Yankees will be favored, whether the opposition is the Brooklyn Dodgers or the Milwaukee Braves. And, while many favorites have wound up on the short end in the series, this doesn't appear as if it will be one of those times.

There are many reasons.

The greatest, apparently, is that the Yanks will go into the classic relaxed and well rested while the Dodgers or the Braves will have had to wear themselves to the bone merely getting there. You'll hear much talk about whether a relaxed team can get back "up" after clinching its flag early—but any manager would prefer a rested team.

Casey Stengel, the skipper of the Yankees, seemingly has his sixth world championship all ready for the big blue ribbon. Indications are that the Yankees will enter the series in top physical shape and everybody rolling in high gear.

Last time out, when he lost to Brooklyn, the Yankees made a terrific run of it despite crippling injuries to such as Mickey Mantle and Irv Noren.

This time, Mantle is having his greatest year.

Yankee pitching is not too deep but there seems to be plenty for a short series with such as ageless Tommy Byrne, Whitey Ford, the maturing Johnny Kucks, Don Larsen, Bob Turley and—possibly, a sleeper—the reviving Bob Grim.

Meanwhile, the Brooklyn team which won its first world championship last year is a year older —and doesn't have two-time winner Johnny Podres.

PeeWee Reese, Roy Campanella and Jackie Robinson all are nursing aches and pains and act like men who will settle just to make it as far as the series. Duke Snider and Gil Hodges are having sub-par years.

Pitching, surprisingly enough, has been holding up Brooklyn but it isn't a great staff and Don Newcombe, having his greatest season, never has been able to best the Yankees. Maybe this is the time, but it's still something which has to be proved.

Milwaukee's chances apparently are even slimmer than those of the Dodgers. The big item, if the Braves even make it, is that they aren't used to the pressure. Should they scrape through to the flag, that feat alone will put them on the border of exhaustion.

To boot, the Braves are inclined to streaky play, their vaunted pitching has almost come apart at the seams, their defense is on the mediocre side and their right-handed power would be a bit short of the barrier in the vast reaches of Yankee Stadium.

At 16, Hollywood Told Her To Go Home And Grow Up; Now She's

Bing's Girl Kathryn

KATHRYN GRANT AND DATE — New role is co-headliner with Bing Crosby, here at 1955 Oscar ceremonies.

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
NEA Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Texas-born Kathryn Grant, 23-year-old actress who is currently co-starring in the off-stage news with Big Crosby, is one of Hollywood's fastest-rising young players.

At 16 she had already won a couple of beauty crowns and she figured Hollywood was just around the corner. But Art Rush, manager for cowboy star Roy Rogers, told her to finish school and "grow up."

She did — she went home and entered the University of Texas. And she continued to pile up beauty laurels — "Gold Girl" of the Texas baseball League, Queen of Lions, second place in the "Miss Texas Carnival."

Fired up with Hollywood hopes again, she went along with her father on a California vacation in 1952. She arrived on a Sunday night, not unheralded. Art Rush met her that night, took her to Paramount on Monday, has her in front of the test cameras two days later.

She was signed for the ingenue role in "Forever Female" with William Holden. Kathryn didn't get the part, but she got another role in the film and it led to others in "Rear Window," "Living It Up," "Arrowhead," "Casanova's Big Night" and "Unchained."

But she didn't stop school. She enrolled at UCLA to complete her interrupted college education and took a summer course at Texas. For a while she even tackled journalism and became an accredited correspondent for 20 Texas newspapers.

Acting, however, was what Kathryn calls her earliest ambition, and family cooperation helped her reach it. When she was in school in West Columbia, Tex., she recalls, an aunt used to drive her 17 miles every morning before school began to attend dancing lessons.

She's descended from Texas pioneer stock. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emery Grandstaff, still live in West Columbia, where her father is a political figure.

Along with enjoying tennis and being proud of the fact that she's an aunt (she has a married brother and sister), Kathryn also loves food.

"I can't decide whether I'm a gourmet or just always hungry," she says.

At the moment, she's under contract at Columbia Pictures, where she recently completed lead roles opposite Guy Madison in "Reprisal" and Audie Murphy in "The Guns of Fort Petticoat."

KATHRYN GRANT, REPORTER — A few years ago, one of her off-screen roles was correspondent for Texas Newspapers.

Lawyer Acts In TV Movie

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — On a courtroom set on a big movie stage a well-known San Francisco attorney is figuratively re-living a chapter from his past — for the benefit of the home TV screens.

George T. Davis, well - known lawyer for Caryl Chessman, Alfred Krupp, Tom Mooney and other headlined cases, is the "star" of this unusual drama.

Warner Studio is filming the story of one of his famous trials, the Kenneth Long murder case in Martinez, Calif., for the studio's ABC-TV series, "Conflict" (to be telecast Nov. 13). On "Medic" actors in rubber gloves and grim expressions portrayed doctors of the real-life cases. But Warners made its story authentic by importing Davis to play himself — the first time a lawyer has recreated his own case for TV or the movies.

Now Davis is defending Long again, using exact "dialogue" taken from court records. Long thought he had killed his wife while he blacked out in a jealous rage.

The case created a sensation when attorney Davis fed the defendant sodium pentothal, "truth serum." Long then said he remembered seeing his wife's lover stab her to death.

"I feel right at home in this courtroom," said attorney Davis as he showed me around the set. "The studio sent a man to Martinez to duplicate that court.

"Even the actors look like their real life counterparts! Today I saw a man and wondered how the dickens did they get McBride, the district attorney, here. But it was only an actor portraying him."

Warner Studio bought the story eight years ago after the case ended, but could not stretch it into a full-length movie. When it was turned into a teleplay, Davis was asked to be technical adviser and portray himself.

"I decided it would be fun, but more important, this case was an experience in the search for truth in courtrooms and I wanted to see it done correctly," he said.

In the story, as in real life, the defendant goes free but the lover never is prosecuted for the murder because of legal difficulties. The motion picture code says a murderer can not go unpunished on the screen, but the studio anticipates no trouble from TV censors.

Attorney Davis, sitting on the make-believe set with "extras" as courtroom spectators, reflected that acting is easy for him. He's known for spectacular courtroom histrionics.

"I'm not doing anything different than I've done in court for 25 years," he smiled. "I'm wearing one of Liberace's shirts here but I'm not really acting. The only difference is—in a real trial you have no way of knowing the outcome!"

Jacoby On Bridge

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

No matter how well you play bridge, you must guess in certain situations. You will be a good guesser if you know something about human nature of if your opponents are obliging enough to give themselves away.

In today's hand, South should have been forced to guess for his game contract. Instead, however, a naive opponent made things easy for declarer.

West opened the three of hearts, East put up the queen, and South won with the ace. This false card shouldn't have deceived anybody. A player who holds both the ace and king of a suit often wins the first trick with the ace in the hope of making each opponent believe that his partner must hold the king. This shouldn't work much of the time because a player whose only high card is the ace will usually refuse the first trick or two. If he fails to refuse the first trick, you should suspect that he has the king as well as the ace.

South could expect to win two hearts, two diamonds, and four clubs. He needed a spade trick for his game contract, and he would eventually have to guess whether to play the king or the jack of spades from the dummy.

Postponing the moment of decision, South ran his four clubs after winning the first trick. West eagerly discarded the eight of spades and then the deuce of spades, thus giving away the location of the ace of spades.

These discards might have meant nothing if made by a crafty player, but South correctly sized West up as an eager beaver rather than a fox. He led a spade from his hand and played the king from dummy, easily winning his ninth trick.
