State panel gives nod to speed leap

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Highway Commission voted unanimously today to raise the speed limit on rural interstate highways to 65 miles per hour for passenger cars, buses and light trucks.

The speed limit for heavy trucks would be raised from 55 mph to 60.

The commission order now goes to Gov. Bill Clements. If he approves the decision, the new speed limits would go into effect at 12:01 a.m., May 9, highway officials said.

Rossanna Salazar, Clements' deputy press secretary, said the governor favors the higher speed limit and plans to approve the order.

The higher speed limits would apply to interstate highways in areas that have less than 50,000 population. That would include 2,441 miles of the Texas interstate system, officials said.

The commission vote came after a brief public hearing. Lilla Barnes of Belton was the only witness who favored keeping the 55 mph speed limit, which became a national speed limit during the oil crisis of the 1970s.

"Can you live with your decision here today if the death rate increases?" she asked the commissioners.

Temporary new speed limit signs will be in place by noon May 9, if the order is approved by Clements, officials said.

The rural segments of interstate highways include:

Ask Us

Q. — You had a story April 16 that Mike von Erich drowned and the television said he was found in a sleeping bag. What was the official cause of death?

A. — The first Associated Press news story of the death, which the SDN ran on the 16th, indicated the body was pulled from Lewisville Lake. In a followup story reported by the SDN the next day, it was reported the body was found in a sleeping bag in heavy underbrush. The wrestler died as a result of an overdose of a sedative.

Raised intake to stymie lake clams

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

Snyder's intake pipe for its drinking water derived from Lake J.B. Thomas, a system which currently sits essentially on the bottom of the lake, is to be raised by officials with the Colorado River Municipal Water District (CRMWD).

The change is seen as a possible remedy to eliminate or cutback the population of Asian Clams which are now being drawn from the lake into the local water treatment plant.

The accumulated mass of clam shells--which individually are approximately thumbnail-size--have been linked to damage at the local treatment facility, to include added wear to a large wooden "paddle wheel" used to mix treatment chemicals into the raw water.

City of Snyder water officials also suspect the animal matter added by the clams might be tied to levels of trihalamethanes in the city's drinking water.

CRMWD officials discount this theory, however, noting that most cities which have surface lake water as a drinking source are plagued with the problem of trihalamethanes.

This chemical--which is officially classified as a cancer-causing carcinogen and, as such,

In Brief

Force okayed

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Gov. Henry Bellmon on Thursday signed into law the so-called "Make-My-Day Bill," which allows homeowners to use deadly force against intruders.

Under terms of the "Make-My-Day Bill," homeowners would be allowed to use "any" force, including deadly force, if they believed intruders presented a threat of violence.

It also would make the homeowner immune from civil liability and would allow the use of the fear of a threat of violence as a defense in any criminal proceeding.

Tort reform

AUSTIN (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby says he will recognize Sen. John Montford Monday for a vote that could start a two-day Senate debate on tort reform.

Montford said he planned to start Monday with his omnibus measure to make changes in civil justice procedures in handling personal injury cases, then follow with individual bills on related issues Tuesday.

Montford, D-Lubbock, and Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, have finally agreed on joint and several liability and comparative negligence, two issues they have been negotiating for weeks.

May Day auction will benefit center

The Scurry County Coliseum will open at 2 p.m. Saturday as some 30 quilts made by Senior Citizen Center volunteers go on display.

These same quilts will be sold at auction beginning at 6:30 p.m. as annual May Day activities to benefit the local center are observed.

Donating his services again this year as auctioneer will be Grady Morris of Colorado City.

From 4:30 until 6:30 p.m., a barbecue will be served also with tickets, priced at $5 each, on sale through Friday afternoon. No tickets will be sold at the event, however.

Musical entertainment featuring various groups will also begin at 2 p.m. and continue until the start of the auction.

Also going on display at 2 p.m. will be other items donated for the sale, to include a bronze sculpture by local artist Dr. Robert Taylor.

Other fund raising activities set for Saturday include the sale of arts and crafts and baked goods.

Jerry Baird, director of the senior center, will oversee the preparation of the barbecued beef. Also on the menu will be potato salad, pinto beans, cole slaw and a relish tray.

Open during the auction will be a Sweet Tooth Booth where diners can purchase dessert and coffee to top off their barbecue.

There is no charge for admission to the coliseum and the public is invited to come shop and participate in the auction.

All proceeds from May Day go into the operating fund of the Senior Center.

All year long, senior citizens volunteers work to make the quilts and other items sold.

North tried to stop FBI

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fired White House aide Oliver L. North twice sought to interfere with an FBI investigation into people North was using to raise money for the Nicaraguan Contras, it was disclosed at a congressional hearing.

The interference, which came in 1985 and 1986 during a two-year congressional ban on U.S. military assistance to the Contras, was detailed Thursday at a Senate Intelligence Committee confirmation hearing for FBI Director William Webster to head the CIA.

North's actions were in connection with a federal investigation of an Iranian, Mousalreza Zadeh, a swindler under FBI investigation who was posing as a Saudi Arabian oilman and who falsely offered to raise millions of dollars for the Contra rebels, Webster testified.

The committee released FBI documents showing North personally asked an FBI agent on July 18, 1985, to delay interviewing Zadeh for four days until he had made a promised donation to the Contras.

Another document said North told the FBI he held personal discussions in June 1985 with President Reagan and then-National Security Adviser Robert A. McFarlane about Zadeh's interest in contributing money.

Meanwhile, The Washington Post reported today that Carl R. "Spitz" Channell, who pleaded guilty Wednesday to tax conspiracy charges surrouding his Contra fund-raising activities, paid former presidential assistant David Fischer $20,000 a month in late 1985 to arrange meetings between Contra contributors and President Reagan.

The original arrangement was for Fischer, who retained access to the White House after he quit on April 7, 1985, to receive $50,000 for each meeting arranged with the president, the Post reported, quoting sources close to Channell.

Fischer finally gave up his White House pass on Nov. 24, 1986, the day before Attorney General Edwin Meese III disclosed that funds from the Iran arms sales had been diverted to the U.S.-backed Contra rebels fighting Nicaragua's government, the newspaper said.

Widow's Heart Determines Mourning Period

DEAR ABBY: When a wife has lost her mate through death, how long should the mourning period be? Also, how long must she wait before dating members of the opposite sex so people won't talk? Then, how soon after she has started to date must she wait before accepting an engagement ring?

And finally, what is the proper waiting period before she remarries without having people think she has no respect for her first husband's memory?

JUST ASKING IN CANADA

DEAR JUST: The mourning period is traditionally one year. After that, she may start dating. From six months to a year following the mourning period, she may accept an engagement ring. And remarriage can take place any time after that.

None of this is written in concrete, however. What is in one's heart is far more important than what others say. Play it by ear, and don't worry about people's mouths.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem that has been bothering me for a long time, but I haven't seen a doctor about it because I'm too embarrassed. I am a 15-year-old girl, and the nipple on one of my breasts is "ingrown." It looks funny because it doesn't match the other one. Also, I am worried that when I get older and have a baby, I won't be able to breast-feed it.

Will I grow out of this and have normal-looking breasts like other girls? Am I the only girl with this problem?

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: You have what is known as an "inverted nipple." It is not uncommon. First, you should discuss it with your mother — and then with your family physician. If necessary, he can refer you to a specialist who can surgically correct it.

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago, my son left Ohio to take an executive position in Denver. While there he met "Sue." To make a long story short, he divorced his wife of 16 years to make Sue his new bride. I flew to Denver, checked into a hotel and attended the wedding. I bought my son and Sue several wedding gifts and wished them love and happiness in their new life together. I never did receive a thank-you note, but at the time I wrote it off as simply an oversight.

Sue recently had a baby. I splurged on clothes for the new arrival. (You know how grandmothers can be.) It's been four months and I have not received an acknowledgment from Sue. Finally I mentioned to Sue that I was waiting for an acknowledgment from her. Her reply, "I have a perfect card for you; I just haven't had the time to send it." Abby, I know she's written thank-you notes to close friends and family.

How do you size this up?

HURT IN OHIO

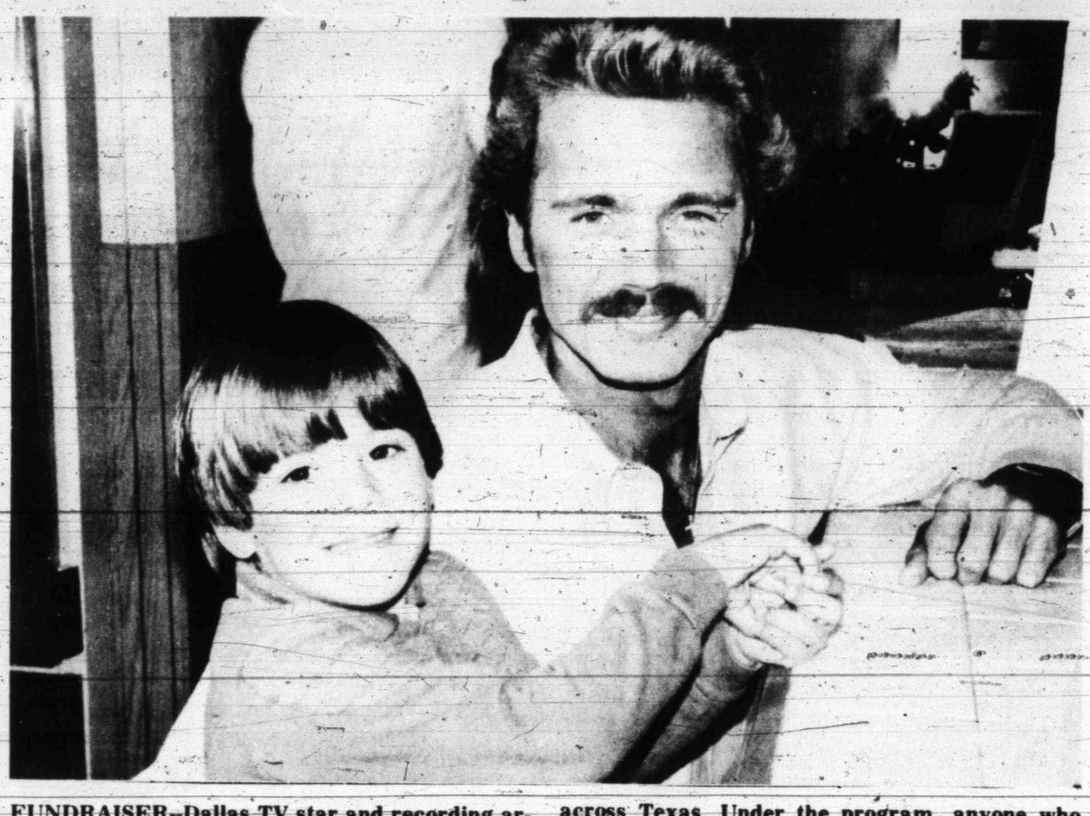

DEAR HURT: Obviously, Sue's manners leave much to be desired, but where is your son in all of this? He is equally guilty of ignoring the receipt of "several" wedding gifts as well as gifts for their baby.

Were I in your shoes I would feel more disappointed than "hurt" to learn that my son had married a woman who is either sadly lacking in the social graces or doesn't give a hoot about what you think of her.

Texas teeters on brink of another record-setting year

By The Associated Press

Texas is teetering on the brink of another record-setting year for bank failures now that two more have collapsed from overwhelming loan losses, officials say.

One of those banks that failed Thursday — Unitedbank-Houston, with $218 million in assets — was the largest to be shut down in the nation this year, state banking officials said.

With the additional closing of Peoples State Bank in the Panhandle town of Turkey, the state's depressed economy has claimed a total of 23 banks this year in Texas and edged the national total to 71. The state set a national record of 26 failures last year, breaking its 1985 mark of 12.

State Banking Commissioner Kenneth W. Littlefield closed Peoples State Bank and Unitedbank-Houston and turned both over to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. for sale or liquidation.

The collapse of Unitedbank-Houston is the largest this year and second-largest in Texas behind the October 1983 failure of the $1.4 billion First National Bank in Midland, FDIC spokesman Alan Whitney said.

The Houston bank had $161.1 million in 13,400 insured accounts, said Frank D. Norris, FDIC closing manager. About $3 million was not insured, most of it interest on jumbo certificates of deposits.

A recent bank examination revealed the bank was "insolvent by the tune of about $7 million," Littlefield told a press conference Thursday afternoon at the downtown Houston bank.

The examination also showed severe deterioration in the bank's loan portfolio, he said. Efforts to recapitalize were not successful.

"Huge loan losses, coupled with a mounting deficit from bank operations, rendered the institution insolvent," Littlefield said. "Loan concentrations for purposes of residential and commercial real estate development and construction and bank stock financing are major investment losses."

Whitney said officials were working to find another bank to assume Unitedbank-Houston. The negotiations included several banks, but he declined to provide any specifics.

"There's no way to predict what success we're going to have," Whitney said, adding that officials expect to make an announcement on their efforts later today.

If no buyer is found for the failed Houston bank, the FDIC will pay off the insured accounts, Whitney said. A team of 150 liquidators went to the bank Thursday to prepare it for a takeover.

The FDIC has already found a buyer for the Peoples State Bank, FDIC spokeswoman Julie Amberson said.

Memphis State Bank in Memphis, Texas, was to open the collapsed bank's only office today as one of its branches. Peoples' depositors automatically will become depositors of the assuming bank.

"Substantial losses on loans to various out-of-territory borrowers as well as to local agricultural customers were cited by Commissioner Littlefield as a primary cause of the bank's failure," state banking spokeswoman Heidi Cottingham said.

"Liberal and ill-advised lending practices, coupled with lax collection efforts, contributed significantly to overall poor loan quality," she added. "Efforts to recapitalize the bank were unsuccessful."

Your Birthday

Saturday, May 2, 1987

There will be a big burst of new activity and fresh involvements socially for you in the year ahead. The interesting people you'll meet will, in turn, lead you to other new friends.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your initial assessments of situations could be erroneous today. Before making important judgments, carefully re-evaluate every aspect. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today, don't get mixed up in anything financial about which you have doubts. Profit lies in areas where you feel comfortable and secure.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Those who don't know you well will judge you today by the quality of your companions. Don't get too chummy with a person who has a questionable reputation.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Try to handle a high-priority matter promptly today. The more you dawdle, the less chance you'll have of resolving it to your satisfaction.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's a pleasant diversion to think that wishing will make it so; however, you know better. If you want something to happen today, you have to make it happen.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your potential for success is good today, but if you let self-doubts dominate, you may only partly capitalize on your possibilities. Don't be afraid to make mistakes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Usually you are very forthright, but today if someone asks you for counsel, you might not be as helpful as you could be to spare his or her feelings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your good earning abilities are diluted by poor spending patterns. When a salesperson encourages you to buy, remember the money is coming out of your pocket, not his or hers.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In situations where teamwork is required today, don't leave everything up to your partner. The more hands, the lighter the tasks.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You have a tendency to underestimate the value of your work or product. Someone who appreciates their real worth might take advantage.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It may be necessary for you to associate with someone today who is a bit deceitful. Be careful what you say to this person so that it can't be used against you later.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An arrangement you recently made that hasn't turned out to be as desirable as you hoped can be improved upon today. Act now.

New bill could double state university costs

AUSTIN (AP) — Speaker Gib Lewis has won preliminary House approval for his bill that would let state college boards double tuition.

In a rare move, Lewis on Thursday came down from his House podium to present his bill. In a development almost equally as rare, the speaker's bill drew heated debate before winning tentative approval in a 98-10 non-record vote.

"If we think that higher education is wasting money, and then we give them the authority to raise tuition, it's like telling your teen-age son, 'Look you're spending too much money, so I'm going to raise your allowance,'" said Rep. Eddie Cavazos, D-Corpus Christi.

Also Thursday, the House voted tentative approval to a select committee recommendation for a required basic skills test for college students. Students would have to pass the test before they could take junior-level courses.

Cavazos and several other House members want to keep lawmakers in charge of setting college tuition. Under the Lewis provision, part of a comprehensive bill resulting from the Select Committee on Higher Education study, the tuition schedule approved by lawmakers in 1985 would be a minimum.

The boards could increase the tuition up to twice the minimum, which is now $16 per semester hour and rises, in increments, to $24 an hour in 1993.

House Higher Education Committee Chairwoman Wilhelmina Delco, D-Austin, defended the proposed system as the best way to handle the differing costs at state universities. Gov. Bill Clements said he likes the idea.

"Having this as a more flexible situation for the administration and for the systems of higher education on tuition I think is a step in the right direction," he said.

Rep. Al Luna, D-Houston, said the new system would make it difficult for poor students, including many minority students, to afford college. Delco said they would be helped by a program in which 20 percent of any tuition increase would be put into a special fund to help poor students.

A Cavazos amendment that would have kept lawmakers in charge of setting tuitions was killed in a 79-41 vote.

Lewis later told reporters, "I hope you all don't headline the story with tuition increase because that is a small, small element of what we did here today, and you probably will see absolutely no increase at all on college tuitions."

Lewis also said there are "ample, ample scholarship programs" to guarantee help for students who cannot afford tuition.

In a separate bill, the House gave voice-vote backing to a standardized basic-skills test for college students. The exam would be given to freshman to check their reading, writing and math skills. A student would have to pass the test before advancing to junior-level courses.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have been a born-again Christian for six years. Every day on the TV and radio I hear testimony of a miraculous healing. However, two children I know have died of cancer, despite being "healed." It seems an added heartache to parents of a terminally ill child to have people assuring them their child will be healed if their faith is strong enough. What do you think?

DEAR READER — I think that I should stay out of religious controversy. Nonetheless, I will say this: Although miracles do happen and the power of prayer is strong, I believe that a sick person's best hope for recovery comes from scientific medicine. It's true that therapy does not always work, but, for example, childhood cancer is more treatable and curable than ever before in history.

A good doctor is as concerned about the patient's spiritual health as he or she is about physical well-being. I think that religion can help us to accept the vicissitudes of life. However, it seems to me that a coordinated effort between faith and science is the most sensible way to handle disease. The devoted practice of one's religion allows for hope, salvation and miracles — but, in my view, this should not exclude the very real help that scientific medicine can provide.

In recent years, many religious groups and "mainstream" churches have shown renewed interest in spiritual healing. However, most of these groups note that, first, medical care is a necessary part of healing, and, second, that the healing might not be of physical illness itself, but an "inner healing" of the patient's emotions and attitudes.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My daughter has had four sets of tubes put in her eardrums for fluid behind her left eardrum. She's only 4, and the doctor says she will need four or five more sets. To me, cutting eight or nine holes in her eardrums definitely isn't necessary if medication will dry up the fluid. Of course, why should the doctor give me $15 worth of prescription drugs when he gets $400 out of surgery?

DEAR READER — Middle-ear infection (otitis) in children is common. In the past, otitis often led to deafness, because the infection disrupted the bones of hearing and the eardrum. The use of PE (pressure-equalizing) tubes has been a real boon for children with recurrent otitis. The tiny plastic tubes are surgically placed through the eardrum to vent the middle-ear compartment and allow for drainage of infected material.

Of course, the body attempts to heal itself. In so doing, the eardrums tend to reject the tubes. Therefore, the surgery may have to be repeated until the child outgrows the tendency to develop infections. Once the tubes are out, the eardrum seals off the puncture wound, hearing is maintained. Medicine is not usually effective as a sole cure for recurring otitis in many children.

Last year I answered another reader's question about PE tubes. Several readers wrote to tell me that they had discovered that food allergies were at the heart of their children's middle-ear infections. If you are truly uncomfortable with the idea of tubes in your daughter's ears, perhaps your pediatrician would give you a referral to an allergist or an ear, nose and throat physician who specializes in allergies. However, with the information you have given me, I'd side with your current ear, nose and throat surgeon.

My own son required several sets of PE tubes. Now, at 7, he seems to have outgrown the tendency to infection, and we are grateful that his hearing is normal.

Overcoming a 5-0 split

By James Jacoby

After South's opening bid, North had plenty of high cards to make a strong jump shift into spades. This jump shift is not usually based on a four-card suit, but North intended to support hearts next, and I certainly have no quarrel with the bidding. Note the jump to five no-trump. North was relying on South to hold first-round club control and at least the diamond king. If South also held K-Q of hearts, that would be enough for a good play for a grand slam. That was the meaning of five no-trump, the grand-slam force. It simply asked: "Do you have two of the top three honors in our agreed heart suit? If so, please bid seven hearts."

Declarer ruffed the club king and it looked like a lay-down grand slam until declarer played the first heart and East showed out. Declarer still had a workable play. He would simply run diamonds until West ruffed. He could then overruff with dummy's heart ace, pick up trumps and make the contract. However, what if West refuses to ruff and discards spades instead? In that case, it behooves declarer to score some spade tricks first. And just how many? The answer is two. If declarer can cash two spade tricks safely and if West follows to two diamonds, everything will be all right. Declarer can then simply play on diamonds. If West refuses to ruff, eventually the remaining two high spades will be discarded from dummy and the last spade in declarer's hand can be ruffed with the ace of hearts. Should West ruff in on an earlier diamond, that ace in dummy will overruff, and South can draw trumps and claim all 13 tricks.

College files bankruptcy

DALLAS (AP) — Million-dollar lawsuits and other financial woes have forced Bishop College to file for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection, attorneys for the predominantly black school say.

Bishop's filing Thursday came less than five months after the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools revoked its accreditation because of failure to meet requirements for financial stability.

"What precipitated the filing was there are several lawsuits pending against the college," said Dallas attorney T. Glover Roberts, whom the college hired a week ago.

A hearing was scheduled today regarding about $1 million in bonds the school owes Allied Bank Dallas, Roberts said. Another suit involves about $900,000 Exposito Food Service Co. of New Orleans claims Bishop owes.

In addition, the school owes the U.S. Department of Education $2.4 million, primarily in financial aid reimbursements, said Washington attorney Michael B. Goldstein, who is working with Roberts on Bishop's behalf.

The attorneys said the number of creditors could be 300 or more, and that the bankruptcy filing would protect the school's assets and prevent the college from possible closure.

Loss of accreditation last December means students may have trouble transferring credits to accredited schools. It also ends federal financial aid for Bishop students beginning this summer, as well as membership in the United Negro College Fund.

Bishop's enrollment dropped to 664 for the current semester, down from 924 in the fall at the 106-year-old institution.

"The board of trustees decided they were at a point that the only alternative left to them was to reorganize their finances," said Love Johnson, vice president for institutional advancement.

Governor blasts lawmakers...

Threatens special session

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says he likely will summon legislators to a July special session if they can't pass a budget within his $36.9 billion limit by their scheduled June 1 adjournment.

If one is needed, Clements said he probably wouldn't call a special session immediately because he wants lawmakers to go home and hear what taxpayers are saying.

"I want them to go home. I want them to listen to their constituency and see what's going on back there," the governor said Thursday.

Clements has been touring the state urging public support for his spending plans. He wants a $36.9 billion budget for 1988-89, combined with a $2.9 billion tax increase to be obtained by continuing temporary sales and motor fuel hikes now scheduled to expire Aug. 31.

But in a meeting with reporters, Clements complained that the Legislature's budget proposals are too high. The Senate has passed a $40 billion budget, and the House on Monday will debate a $39.4 billion spending plan.

"Those appropriations are wishful thinking," Clements said. "Certainly the progress that we've made to date in solving the budgetary problem would not indicate that we're going to get there by June 1. But who knows? Miracles can happen."

Clements repeatedly has said he would veto any tax increase higher than $2.9 billion.

If lawmakers can't get Clements to approve more taxes than that, any higher budget they pass won't be certified by the state comptroller and can't be sent to the governor for his signature or veto, Clements said.

"At some point, you folks (in the news media) are going to start reporting all of this business that's going on in the Senate and the House, with their appropriations being $3 billion over my budget and so forth," the governor said.

Those bills "can't be certified. They're not matched with revenues. They'll never get to my desk," he said. "I think the people of Texas do not understand what's going on about certification."

Clements also said he thinks the 140 days of a regular legislative session should be enough time for lawmakers to complete a budget.

"We're not engaged in the real world yet. But we will. We'll get there," he said.

On another subject, the governor said any recommendations from the Select Committee on Tax Equity appointed this week probably won't be ready until the 1989 Legislature. The panel will examine the tax structure and offer recommendations to make certain the state's tax burden is shared fairly by all Texans.

Clements said the committee should begin work in June or July. After a full schedule of public hearings, he said its recommendations should be finished by October or November of 1988.

The governor said no subject — not even income taxes — will be off-limits to study, although what finally becomes law is a different story.

Abortion bill garners committee approval

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislation attempting to regulate late-term abortions has cleared a Senate committee, but the original bill's sponsor says the amended version may violate the U.S. Constitution.

The Senate Committee on Health and Human Services Thursday approved a bill that says a physician's medical license can be revoked if he performs an abortion during the third trimester of pregnancy.

Sen. Ted Lyon's original bill made it a felony for doctors to perform abortions on a fetus capable of living outside the mother's womb, except when necessary to preserve the mental or physical health of the mother.

An amendment from Sen. Hugh Parmer Thursday dropped the criminal penalties and inserted a provision that would allow the Texas Board of Medical Examiners to revoke the medical license of a physician if the abortion was performed during the third trimester.

But Lyon, D-Rockwall, argues that the provision defines when a fetus is viable, and "the Supreme Court says you can't define viability."

Parmer, D-Fort Worth, defended his amendment, saying it is "a back-door approach to reaching the third trimester issue, and it's an approach never ruled on. Any statements that it's unconstitutional are clearly just crystal ball-gazing and not reality."

Despite the constitutional question, Lyon called the committee approval of the bill a victory for anti-abortion groups.

"Carrying this bill was like wrestling with an 800-pound gorilla. Every time I grabbed hold of it, it has thrown me up against the wall," Lyon said.

The bill was approved 7-1 with Sen. Craig Washington, D-Houston, voting no. The amendment — co-sponsored by Sen. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville; Sen. Eddie Bernice Johnson, D-Dallas; and Washington — was approved 5-3.

The deletion of a provision that would have assessed up to a year in prison and a $200 fine weakens the original bill, Lyon said.

"Do we want to pass a tremendously weakened bill, which would then give members of the House and Senate the ability not to have to vote on abortion again or do we want to stick with a bill that makes it a crime?" Lyon asked.

Parmer's amendment provides that medical licenses could be revoked, suspended or canceled.

"Instead of making it a criminal act, it places it where it more appropriately belongs; it makes it a violation of the Medical Practices Act," Parmer said.

The Texas Abortion Rights Action League said recently in a news conference that doctors would stop performing abortions because of the threat of criminal penalties.

"I think it is more appropriate to deal with the medical practice in the Medical Practices Act and not the penal code," said Pam Fridrich, the league's executive director.

Punishment program fails

TORNILLO, Texas (AP) — Authorities have junked a plan to punish children for speaking Spanish at school after state and federal agencies said it violated civil rights.

The local Board of Trustees also scrapped a requirement that teachers in the Tornillo Independent School District speak only English to students, school superintendent Francis Brooks said Thursday.

"The Justice Department just said there was a chance it could violate civil rights, but they recommended we withdrew that action," Brooks said.

Two TEA officials from the accreditation unit were in Tornillo Wednesday and spoke to Brooks before the board held a special session Wednesday night. Brooks also presented recommendations from the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division.

"This thing has been blown out of proportion," Brooks said. "We didn't intend for publicity to get out like it did."

Brooks said he received a scathing telegram from Ruben Bonilla Jr., chairman of the Corpus Christi-based Mexican-American Democrats of Texas.

"I filed that complaint" with the Justice Department, Bonilla said. "They (Tornillo school district officials) like their accreditation more than they like their prejudices."

Since the board's action became known last week, Cable News Network, ABC-TV and area news media have descended on Tornillo, an agricultural community of 1,100 residents some 40 miles from El Paso.

Raised intake to block clams

has its levels regulated by the state--is caused when chlorine used in the water treatment process interacts with animal matter in the water.

The state mandated level for trihalamethanes is 100 parts per billion, a level Snyder's drinking water is at or slightly in excess of.

City council members have now begun steps to add an ammonia and chlorine process at the water treatment plant which is expected to reduce these levels to as little as 5 parts per billion.

Regarding the lake intake, CRMWD officials have agreed to raise its level by fitting a metal "sleeve" in place. This will raise the point where water is drawn into the pipe some 6 to 8 ft. above the lake bottom, according to CRMWD Manager Owen H. Ivie.

The sleeve will change the intake point to some 17 ft. below the current surface level of Lake Thomas water, which now stands at 2,231 ft. above sea level.

The lake's bottom is set at 2,208 ft. above sea level.

With the lake's depth at the intake point now figured at some 23 ft., Ivie noted the sleeve would not have been possible several years ago when the lake level was some 13 ft. lower.

It was at 2,218 ft. above sea level in the spring of 1985.

The current intake sits essentially at the bottom of the lake. It is a 6 ft. by 6 ft. concrete structure which feeds a water line also sitting on the lake bottom.

Current plans are to fit a metal sleeve over the intake which measures some 8 ft. in diameter and stands some 8 ft. tall.

CRMWD officials say they believe its weight alone will hold the sleeve in place.

The higher level will stop silt from the lake bottom from flowing into the intake pipe--the area where it is thought the Asian Clams inhabit.

The work will be completed using a barge owned by CRMWD and is expected to the done within the next 30 days. Cost to the district is expected to be less than $10,000, Ivie said.

House grills watchdog members

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Rep. Ralph Hall angrily accused Health and Human Services officials of running a medical watchdog program that discriminates against doctors from rural areas.

Nearly 40 doctors have been barred from collecting Medicare payments from patients because peer review organizations, or PROs, reported that they were providing poor medical care.

Seventy-five percent of those doctors are from rural areas, and two-thirds practice in rural Texas.

Hall, a member of the subcommittee on health and the environment, said at a hearing Thursday the sanction decisions are made without giving the doctors adequate chance to defend themselves in closed sessions.

In some states, physicians can't bring an attorney or expert witnesses to the PRO review sessions in their behalf.

"This total lack of due process has created a very serious concern among the physicians, hospitals and the Medicare patients of our country," said Hall, a three-term Democrat from Rockwall.

Several Texas doctors testifying before the subcommittee echoed Hall's sentiments, saying that in addition to the lack of an appeal process, they fear being judged by big-city doctors who don't know the idiosyncracies of country medicine.

"I can say unequivocably that doctors in rural Texas are confused and are scared about the process of peer review by the PRO," said Billy Bob Brame.

One arrest noted

Police logged one misdemeanor arrest Thursday night.

A local man was jailed on suspicion of driving while intoxicated.

Ladies clinch berth to state

BROWNWOOD -- Maybe it wasn't necessary, but Snyder's girls shaved nine strokes off of their score anyway to insure second place in the Region I-4A Golf Tournament here Thursday and earn a berth to the Class 4A state tourney.

Snyder and Hereford went into Thursday's final round tied at 362. The Lady Tigers whittled their mark down to 353 over the final 18 for a total 715 score on the Brownwood Country Club course. Hereford, meanwhile, bulged to 366 and a 728 total, giving the Tigers a 13-stroke margin over third place. The top two teams advance to state play.

"The girls pretty well knew after the first nine holes they had a good lead because they were playing with the girls from Hereford and we were beating them," said Coach Jan Kruse. "The girls did a remarkable job. I'm real proud of them."

Andrews, District 2-4A champion, easily won the tournament for the second straight year. The Lady Mustangs had a comfortable 29-stroke lead after Wednesday's play with a 333, then slashed that to a 326 on Thursday for a total 659.

Andrews High School also won the boy's team title, shooting a 298 Thursday to edge host Brownwood 601 to 605.

Snyder's Lady Tigers finished second behind Andrews in district and regional competition a year ago, but managed to win the state tournament.

It will be Snyder's second straight trip to the state tournament, and the fourth time in six years under Coach Kruse.

"We had a tradition of going every other year but we finally broke that this time," grinned Coach Kruse.

The Tigers were paced by Leslie Light, who shot a 164 for the two days. She had an 81 Thursday, but her 83 on Wednesday kept her out of the medalist race in the end. Lea Ann Thompson shot a 174, Camille Reed a 182, Angie Lay a 195 and Kristi Neill a 199. All of the girls with the exception of Reed - who played consistently with a pair of 91s - improved their scores from the first 18 holes to the second.

Medalist honors went to Melissa Northcutt of Andrews, who carded a tournament-low 77 on Thursday after starting off with an 84. Teammate Genny Kovacs was second medalist with a 162.

Western gets off to fine start at final regular-season rodeo

STEPHENVILLE -- It was raining here this morning, but Western Texas College Coach Bob Doty was pretty much smiles as his rodeo team began to prepare for second-day action at the Tarleton State University NIRA Rodeo.

Western needed to do well during Thursday's show and it did, taking over the lead in both the bareback and saddle bronc events with solid scores.

"We're looking pretty good right now," said Doty. "We'll know a lot more after tonight and it may even be until the finals Sunday before we know where we stand, but we've gotten off to a good start."

Steve Roberts led the way with a standout 81 ride in the saddle bronc. His effort leads the event, and should win the long-go, though a number of performers have yet to compete.

"He made a super ride. I really feel like that 81 should win the round," said Doty.

Wesley Henderson scored a 73 and is sitting second in the event.

"Based on the draws left, I think Wesley will make it back in third or fourth place and maybe even stay in second," said the coach.

Western is also holding down first place in the bareback. Mike Carrillo scored a 70 to take the lead.

"Mike drew a real rank horse and he didn't look all that good on him. But the horse was hard to ride," Doty said.

The only other team member out was Scott Sharp. His 12.5 is holding down second in the calf roping, but probably will not finish in the top 10 and qualify for Sunday's finals.

The only other WTC student out Thursday was Robert Fifer. He scored a 69 to place fourth in the saddle bronc. He also teamed with Sharp for a 12.5 in the calf roping. He and Henderson then took an 18.4 in the team roping, after a plus-10 at the barrier.

Team members out tonight for WTC are Todd Danley and Joel Marr in the calf roping, steer wrestling and team roping. Women's team members are Mistri Davis in the breakaway and goat tying, Sandy Scott in the goat tying and Tana Whatley in the breakaway roping.

Western went into the rodeo in first place in the Southwest Region with 1,445. Tarleton and Odessa had 1,287 and 1,285 respectively. Doty pointed out that OC's Jim Sharp - the Wrangler's most consistent point producer and all-around leader in the region - scored a 70 in the bull riding and a 71 in the saddle bronc. He is second and third, respectively.

"That means he won't be able to get 120 points in the bull riding and 120 in the bronc, which helps us a lot," said Doty. "I feel better about our situation than I did before the rodeo."

The top two teams in the region advance to the College National Finals Rodeo. Western Texas is the defending champion in the men's division.

Annual roping scheduled May 9

The annual WTC Booster Club Scurry County Roping is set for May 9 at the old rodeo grounds here.

The event is open to Scurry County residents or those whose children attend public schools in the county.

Books close at 5 p.m. Thursday, May 7. Entries may be made at Brewster's Saddle Shed.

Events include the following: Barrel racing, begins 9 a.m., fee 1-for-$30; calf roping, begins 10:30 a.m., fee is 3-for-$30; team roping, begins 1 p.m., round-robin, fee either $100 or $125, depending on entries.

Final chance to enter scramble

There were still a few openings left this morning for the four-man scramble set at Western Texas College Golf Course, but chairman Jack Gorman was anticipating a full, 18-team field for the Saturday tournament.

Proceeds from the 18-hole event will benefit the American Heart Association.

Persons interested in entering the tournament should contact Gorman or the WTC pro shop as quickly as possible. Tee time is 8:30 a.m. Saturday. Entry fee is $100 per team.

Door prizes, trophies and gift certificates will be awarded to winers.

SHS Tigers host Big Spring Steers

Snyder Coach Albert Lewis isn't sure how his Tigers will look tonight against Big Spring, but he isn't expecting another no-hitter.

The teams square off for a 7 p.m. start at Moffett Field.

"It's a rare feat for anyone so I wouldn't expect it again. We hope we do better than that," he said, speaking of an earlier 10-0 loss to Big Spring, in which Steer hurler Aaron Alan pitched a no-hitter. "I know we are playing a lot better than we were at that time. We still might get kicked all over the place but we believe we can win the game."

Lewis admitted the Steers may have more incentive.

"I'm sure they've improved, too, and the playoffs are in sight for them so they have a lot of incentive to win this game. We want to finish the season as strong as we can, so we've got some incentive, too," he said.

Big Spring is 6-2 in District 2-4A play and tied with Pecos for second place in the standings. The Steers are 11-12 overall.

Snyder comes in with a 4-5 district record that includes back-to-back victories over Andrews and Monahans. The Tigers are 10-9 for the season.

Kenneth Pickering will take a 3-4 record to the mound for the Tigers tonight. Lewis has pegged Reynaldo Gomez for relief work if necessary.

Leading off in the batting order will be third baseman Israel Hinojos. He'll be followed by center fielder Troy Burton, second baseman Van Echols, Pickering, first baseman David Martinez, left fielder Scott Lanier, short stop Brad Gartman, catcher Lee Fletcher and designated hitter Kevin Combest, who will bat for right fielder Michael Long.

In other 2-4A games tonight, Fort Stockton is at Pecos and Andrews is at Lamesa.

In Thursday's makeup game, Monahans edged Fort Stockton 2-0.

Houston clinches series win but Mavericks are eliminated

by The Associated Press

The state of Texas and the Pacific Northwest each have something to celebrate and something to bemoan from the NBA playoffs.

Basketball fans in Houston rejoiced Thursday night as the Rockets eliminated the Portland Trail Blazers 113-101. But the Dallas Mavericks, who owned the second-best record in the Western Conference, were eliminated 124-98 by the Seattle SuperSonics.

The Rockets, who lost in the NBA finals to Boston last year, easily won Game 4 of their series with the Trail Blazers, whose 49-33 record was third in the West and seven games better than Houston's mark. Their Twin Towers were too much for Portland to handle.

Akeem Olajuwon scored 27 points, grabbed nine rebounds and blocked five shots as the Rockets clinched a playoff at home for the first time. Ralph Sampson scored 18 points and grabbed 10 rebounds.

"They were playing so well I wanted to run for cover," Portland forward Kiki Vandeweghe said. "I wanted to find a foxhole."

The Mavericks probably felt the same way after being bombed by Seattle in Game 4. The SuperSonics lost all five regular-season meetings with Dallas this season by an average of 18½ points.

But it was Seattle which dominated the postseason series. On Thursday night, Tom Chambers scored 31 points and Xavier McDaniel added 29.

"If we played these guys for 10 years, we wouldn't be able to beat them," Dallas Coach Dick Motta said.

Houston hosts Seattle in the next round's opening game on Saturday.

In games tonight, Milwaukee is at Philadelphia, with the Bucks leading 2-1; Atlanta, ahead 2-1, visits Indiana; and Utah tries to end its series, which it leads 2-1, at Golden State.

Rockets 113, Trail Blazers 101

Houston staged a 20-4 surge over the final 4:23 of the third quarter to take command.

Robert Reid hit for 22 points, including 10 in the fourth quarter, to keep the Rockets in control.

"Now was a good time for us to come together as a team," Reid said. "The other team's coach knows that if Akeem breaks out and you get on him, Ralph will hurt you. It's nice to have that Triple Tower effect with Jim Petersen coming off the bench."

Blazers Coach Mike Schuler said the matchup disadvantage finally caught up with his team.

"The Rockets are so much bigger than we are, we played absolutely the worst team for us to play in the playoffs because of the matchups," Schuler said.

SuperSonics 124, Mavericks 98

Dallas couldn't overcome the absence of 7-foot-2 center James Donaldson, who was out with a sore right leg. Seattle barely missed injured center Alton Lister as its high-scoring trio of Chambers, McDaniel and especially guard Dale Ellis were unstoppable. It was Ellis, who had 21 points Thursday, who led the Mavericks in their other two victories. The former Maverick had 118 points in the series, including 43 in Game 3.

Dribblers name All-Star teams

Snyder Girl's Little Dribblers named all-stars after concluding the regular season Thursday evening.

Named to the Major League team were Bridgett Braziel, Deana Ball, Cami Comer, Melanie Duncan, Stephanie Fambro, Christine Thompson, Jennifer Spurlock, Sheri Srna, Amy Maldonado, Annie Ragland, Kayla Walker and Jennifer Kime.

Named to the Junior League team were Veana Clay, Jodi White, Shawndalyn Callaway, Paige Gayle, Amanda Barrera, Tasha Johnson, Brooke Lowrance, Alison Hester, Jamie Franks, Bianca Rocha, Mandy Baker and Amanda Davis.

The girls will play in tournament action beginning June 3 in Amarillo.

Special awards during the closing ceremonies of the league included sportsmanship trophies to Lori Anderson and Devon Reed, and most improve player trophies to Becky McCravey and Jaime Duncan.

The league also awarded a $350 scholarship to Stephanie McKnight, former Little Dribbler and Snyder High School player who will be attending Western Texas College.
