When you get Congressman George Mahon in a question and answer session, which is not difficult, you get a feeling right away that you are getting information that is as authoriatative as if it came directly from the lips of the president, or even more so.

That was the case Friday morning when the 19th District Congressman met briefly with representatives of news media and some WTC student leaders in the college board room.

As chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, Mahon naturally is money conscious, and this has been a factor in leading him to look with some favor on proposals to limit a president to a single six-year term.

"If he (the president) must think about being re-elected at the end of four years, he invariably must think about programs that cost money," Mahon said.

This situation, he believes, accounts for the paradox of a Richard Nixon a few years ago, who preached fiscal responsibility, turning into a president who has sent the national debt into its biggest spiral in history.

What about the possibility of savings from the defense budget being channeled into other programs if the Vietnam War is "wound down" thereby cutting down the over-all requirements? We can't afford to let our guard down as we did following World War I and World War II, Mahon asserts. However, there appears to be some hope that if the Vietnam situation improves, the United States and Soviet Union will reach some agreement on slowing their arms race.

"I have a feeling that it is a drain on them as well as us," said Mahon. "And I have reason to believe that something may be decided when President Nixon makes his visit to the Soviet Union."

★ ★ ★

The economic situation of the country is a matter of concern, not only to experts in that field, but to Congress and especially the House Appropriations Committee and its chairman. Inflation has been slowed somewhat, but the consumer has just about reached the end of his rope and there are grave doubts now that many more increases can be passed along. However, Mahon said he was encouraged recently to hear a labor leader, whom he did not identify, say that workers henceforth must be cautious in demanding increases in wages without corresponding increases in production.

What about the financing of public schools now that courts have ruled out property taxes in their present form?

"I don't see how the federal government can ssume much more responsibility for financing education than it is doing now without creating serious problems in other programs," said Mahon. "The federal government spends around $13 billion per year on education now. What the answer will be for public schools, I don't know."

PLANS FOR GARDEN AT COLLEGE DISCUSSED—Mrs. Edith Whatley McKanna discusses plans for an "Ikebana" (Japanese Garden) at Western Texas College with R.C. Patton left, member of the college board of trustees, and W.A.(Bill) Jones, president of the board. Mrs. McKanna's gift of $10,000 to the college, announced Friday at dedication ceremonies on the campus, will finance the project.

WTC Announces Major Gift From Mrs. McKanna

Mrs. Edith Whatley McKanna, whose civic, cultural and business activities have been widely known for a number of years, is the latest donor to Western Texas College.

Announcement was made Friday at the college dedication ceremony that Mrs. McKanna was making a $10,000 gift for a sunken garden on the college campus. The funds will be used to build an authentic "Ikebana," the Japanese term for shrubs, tree branches, even lifeless branches, driftwood, rocks and sea shells.

Mrs. McKanna is well-schooled in the art of Japanese gardening, having received her professorship in Ikebana in Kyoto, Japan. She belongs to the Dallas Chapter of Ikebana International.

The gift from Mrs. McKanna will be used for a garden at the Historical and Teaching Museum to be constructed soon, said W.A. (Bill) Jones, president of the WTC board of trustees.

In accepting the gift for the college, Jones expressed appreciation to Mrs. McKanna for a "beautiful and lasting gift."

The garden will be named the Edith Whatley McKanna Garden, in memory of the donor's parents, Courtney Elizabeth Whatley and Daniel Thomas Whatley.

For a woman who is used to making headlines, Scurry County History Appreciation Week (observed April 23-29) was another milestone for Mrs. McKanna.

On Sunday, April 23, she opened her spacious rural home, Rock Ledge Farm, to the public for the Martha Ann Woman's Club Annual Tour of Homes. Tuesday she was honored at dedication ceremonies in Fluvanna. There she donated an official Texas Historical Marker for the former town site of Light in memory of her parents who were early settlers in the area.

As vice-chairman of the local Historical Survey Committee, Mrs. McKanna attended activities at Hermleigh on Wednesday when markers commemorating the old Hermleigh calaboose and the former townsite of Wheat were unveiled. Thursday, she was present for the dedication of

Eugene Locke Dies At 52

DALLAS (AP) — Eugene Locke, prominent Texas political leader, former ambassador to Pakistan and one-time deputy ambassador to South Vietnam, died late Friday, the family reported today.

Locke, 52, had suffered for some time with a malignant brain tumor.

He was a lawyer and oilman, and ran for Texas governor in the 1968 Democratic primary. He received 218,118 votes and placed fifth in a generally strong 10-candidate field.

Among other things, he was head of the Democratic party in Texas at one time.

Locke was campaign manager for John Connally, now secretary of the Treasury, when Connally quit as secretary of the Navy to return to Texas and run successfully in 1962 for governor. He also had close ties to former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Locke went two times as ambassador to Pakistan in 1966 and 1971 and then was asked by President Johnson to team with Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker in Vietnam. Bunker succeeded Henry Cabot Lodge.

He was a Phi Beta Kappa at the University of Texas and received his law degree from Yale.

In addition to law and oil, he was interested in property development, building, investiments, commercial real estate and ranching.

Survivors include his widow; a daughter, Aimee Marie Locke; and two sons, John Patrict Locke and Thomas Neely Locke.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Confusion Seen On Texas Ballot

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

Texas voters make a preliminary decision next Saturday on who they want to be the state's next governor and a host of other confusing issues.

The balloting is preliminary because it is expected the final decision on the governor's race, the lieutenant governor's contest and a number of congressional and legislative races will not be made until the runoff primary June 3.

However, the May 6 voting and the precinct convention that follow will give a current view of school busing sentiment among voters and some indication of the feeling among Texas Democrats for would-be presidential nominees.

The Texas Election Bureau estimates there will be about 1,850,000 voters in the Democratic primaries and about 100,000 in the Republican primaries—out of the 4.2 million registered voters and the 7.68 million who could have registered if they wished.

State GOP headquarters thinks their primary vote will be higher, maybe up to 200,000, particularly because of hot local Republican congressional and legislative races in the Dallas and Houston areas.

In fact, the more than 600,000 registered voters in the Houston area and more than 500,000 in the Dallas area may decide a lot of the statewide issues because of the population concentration.

Voting estimates are higher than usual, the TEB says compared with the 1,750,000 Democrats and 104,765 Republicans who voted in the first primary of 1968 and the 1,011,000 Democrats and 109,021 Republicans in 1970.

The confusion of voters will not be confined to the long lists of known and unknown candidates on both the Democratic and Republican ballots.

There is the busing issue, a referendum that appears on both party ballots and is of interest nationally because it may indicate the strength of Alabama Gov. George Wallace in his Democratic presidential bid. On both tickets voters will have to vote "for" if they are against forced school busing to achieve racial balance and "against" if they are for it. The Republican referendum includes forced consolidation of school districts.

Republican voters have an exclusive angle at their primaries. They alone of all Texas voters will be asked to express their views on Daylight Saving Time. Democrat leaders defeated all efforts to put such a straw vote on their ballot.

However, Democrats have an exclusive attraction also. They are the only voters taking a presidential straw vote in their precinct conventions. This choosing up sides on the basis of support for would-be Democratic presidential nominees will be used in selecting delegates to county and senatorial district conventions on May 13. A similar straw vote at the state convention June 13 will influence selection of Texas' 130 delegates to the National Democratic Convention July 10 in Miami Beach, where the presidential nomination will be made.

N-Viets' Drive Is Unchecked

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The North Vietnamese offensive in the north rolled southward unchecked today, laying siege to Quang Tri and knocking out a fire base guarding Hue to the south, in an apparent bid to seize South Vietnam's two northern provinces.

Quang Tri, the northernmost provincial capital 19 miles south of the demilitarized zone, still held, with enemy troops battling in the southern outskirts. Highway 1, the supply line to the south, was cut.

Associated Press correspondent Holger Jensen reported from the front that the North Vietnamese had outflanked the South Vietnamese at Quang Tri and were advancing south of the city. There they stopped a column of reinforcements headed for Quang Tri and ambushed a refugee convoy.

Three more U.S. helicopters were hit by enemy ground fire in addition to eight hit Friday. Three Americans were wounded in the latest attacks, and one of the helicopters was shot down.

With Highway 1 blocked to Quang Tri, the U.S. Command was trying to establish an air corridor to the city to resupply the defenders and the Quang Tri combat base, 2½ miles to the northwest.

There appeared to be little or no maneuvering by the South Vietnamese troops to counterattack. For the most part they were on the defensive, again counting heavily on U.S. air support.

A division of South Vietnamese troops was reported trying to consolidate its position in and around Quang Tri.

Other North Vietnamese troops overran Fire Base Bastogne and an outpost called Checkmate defending the western side of Hue. These victories posed a new threat to the old imperial capital apparently the major prize on the northern front. It lies 32 miles south of Quang Tri and about 50 miles south of the demilitarized zone.

Casualties were believed heavy on both sides.

The district headquarters of Bong Son, in coastal Binh Dinh Province, was the latest government position to fall. One U.S. advisor in the area declared: "The Vietnamese are running away like you've never seen before."

Associated Press correspondents Holger Jensen and Lynn C. Newland reported from the northern front that Quang Tri was cut off from supply convoys. The main bridge was knocked out by tank-led troops at the southern edge of the city of 27,000, they said.

U.S. officers said about 200 wounded soldiers and civilians are awaiting evacuation from the city.

McGovern Endorsed By Blacks

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Leader

Sen. George S. McGovern enlisted the support of several top national black Democrats today as he mounted a major effort to cut into Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey's support in Ohio's black black communities in Tuesday's crucial Democratic primary.

Rep. John Conyers Jr. and state Sen. Coleman Young, both of Michigan, endorsed McGovern and planned to appear with his top California black supporters at an afternoon news conference in Cleveland before flying with him to Cincinnati for a walking tour of black neighborhoods.

McGovern aides said Georgia state Rep. Julian Bond and Chicago black leader Jesse Jackson planned to campaign for McGovern before the primary but would be unable to attend the press conference.

The aide said the status of the Rev. Ralph Abernathy remained uncertain. Other aides had indicated earlier that Abernathy would be among the group making the joint endorsement.

Absentee Voting Deadline Near

Voters have only two more days to cast absentee ballots in next Saturday's primaries, County Clerk Beverly Ainsworth has reminded.

Absentee voting must end three days prior to the election, which makes Tuesday the last day for those who will be out of the county on election day or for other reasons plan to cast absentee ballots.

Absentee voting for all precincts is conducted at the county clerk's office in the Better Living Building in Cogdell Center.

A total of 59 absentee ballots had been cast in the clerk's office Friday and several others had been sent out by mail.

Scientific Team Sees 'Planet X'

LIVERMORE, Calif. (AP) — "Intolerable errors" in the predicted timetable of Halley's Comet have led a University of California scientific team to believe a 10th planet may be circling the sun beyond Pluto—outermost known planet in the solar system.

Three computer scientists at the University's Lawrence Livermore Laboratory said Friday their prediction of the planet's existence is based on mathematical calculations related to the orbit of the mysterious Comet.

The team, led by Joseph L. Brady, named the proposed body "Planet X." According to the scientists, the planet would be 300 times more massive than earth and about six billion miles from the sun—far beyond the orbit of Pluto. The earth is 93 million miles from the sun.

The planet would take 512 years to make a single revolution around the sun, and its orbit would be sharply tilted from the plane in which the other nine planets revolve, the scientists said.

Brady said he came up with the "Planet X" theory after studying unexplained orbital deviations of Halley's Comet. He said he concluded the deviations could be caused by the gravitational action of "Planet X."

The scientist said past predictions of the arrival of Halley's Comet near earth have repeatedly been wrong by several days.

"Errors like those are intolerable and they demanded an explanation," Brady said. "They couldn't be satisfactorily explained by the turmoil in the gases of the comet's tail as it approached the sun, but they fit precisely into a gravitational picture of the solar system that included a tenth planet."

The findings of the team will be published in Monday's edition of the Journal of the Astronomical Society of the Pacific.

Brady said the prediction of new planets based on mathematical calculations was not new. He said Neptune's location was predicted in a similar way in 1846, as was Pluto's in this century.

He added he hoped his prediction would encourage astronomers with powerful telescopes to look for the planet, but he admitted the hunt would be like searching for a needle in a haystack.

"The proposed planet is located in the densely populated Milky Way where even a tiny area encompasses thousands of stars, many of which are brighter than we expect this planet to be," Brady said.

"If it exists, it will be extremely difficult to find."

DR. WALTER SORGE

Dr. Sorge To Lecture At WTC

Dr. Walter Sorge, head of the art department at Eastern Illinois University, will present a lecture on "The Print as Art" at 2 p.m. today (Sunday) in the Western Texas College Fine Arts Center.

Dr. Sorge's intaglio work will be shown in the lobby of the building. He will lecture again at 10 a.m. Monday on "The Value of Art," according to C. Warren Cullar, director of art at WTC. Dr. Sorge's appearance here was scheduled as part of a series of activities in connection with WTC's dedication.

A native of Forestburg, Alberta, Canada, he received both bachelors and masters degrees at UCLA, after which he became a high school art instructor. In 1959 he was awarded the Canada Council Grant and attended Columbia University and then after being awarded the grant again, he worked at the studio of Stanley William Hayter in Paris, France. He worked in Pacific Palisades, Calif., and in Taos, N.M., after received a Huntington Hartford Foundation Fellowship and a Helen Wurlitzer Foundation Grant. After being awarded a doctorate in fine art and fine art education at Columbia in 1964, Dr. Sorge joined the staff of Kentucky Southern College as chairman of the art department. He served as head of the department of art at Hardin Simmons University in 1969-70 and since 1970 has headed the department of art at Eastern Illinois University.

One Hurt In Car Mishap

Mrs. Essie Harris Orms, 79, 1607 Twenty-seventh Street, sustained a fractured arm in a two-car collision at the intersection of the Clairemont Road and the Old Lubbock Highway at 2:20 p.m. Friday.

She was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by Snyder Ambulance Service and admitted for treatment. Her condition Saturday morning was described as good.

Investigating officers said Mrs. Orms was driving a 1954 Model Chevrolet that was in collision with a 1970 Model Plymouth operated by Karleen May McIntire, 20, 419 Twentieth Street. Mrs. Orms was going south and making a left turn onto Thirteenth Street and the other driver was traveling north prior to the collision, officers said. Damage to both vehicles was considerable.

Therasa Hall, 18, Route 1, was a passenger in the Plymouth. She sustained minor injuries but was not admitted to the hospital.

Methodists OK Busing, Privacy

ATLANTA, Ga., (AP) — United Methodists have adopted resolutions approving school busing, urging dialogue with Jewish communities and supporting the rights of personal privacy.

The 1,000 delegates, who have been determining issues affecting their 10.5 million-member denomination for the next four years, swept through a logjam of resolution Friday, the final day of their session.

They approved without debate and by a substantial majority a resolution which called for support of busing for school integration and opposition "to legislative action or constitutional amendments prohibiting such busing."

In a separate action, the quadrennial conference voted for support of Project Equality, an interdenominational program for equal employment opportunity.

It also reaffirmed, with only token opposition, a proposal for dialogue with Jewish communities, saying it would open up "whole new frontiers of Jewish-Christian dialogue."

The delegates voted continuing participation in the nine denominational Consultation on Church Union.

They also called for reform at the state and national levels in laws controlling marijuana, and urged abstinence in the use of marijuana as their denomination has traditionally urged in the use of alcohol.

The conference also opposed the use of wiretapping and electronic surveillance without a specific court order as "an unwarranted invasion of privacy."

McKanna

another marker, "The Snyder Press".

Friday, Mrs. McKanna was honored guest at the formal dedication of Western Texas College, at which time her gift was announced.

Like her pioneering ancestors, Mrs. McKanna has been first in more than one field of endeavor. In the 1950's she made national news as the only woman independent oil operator in the fabulous Scurry County Canyon Reef Pool. She was selected as one of seven of the Southwest's outstanding women and February, 1951, was honored at the Party of the Year in Mineral Wells, Texas. Speaker for the occasion, Vice-president Alben W. Barkley, lauded her as one of the distinguished women of the Southwest.

A flying enthusiast since the early days of aviation, Mrs. McKanna was a charter member of the Ninety-Nine Club, an exclusive organization of American flying women. She was the first woman in Texas to solo in her own private plane. Her husband presented her with a 265 Travel Air in 1929. From that time she looked to aircraft as a means of transportation for both pleasures and business.

During World War II Mrs. McKanna was liaison officer from the Civil Air Patrol to the Army Air Force. She was the only woman in the United States who served continuously for three years in the Air Force Headquarters.

Today, Mrs. McKanna divides her time between Lubbock and Snyder. From her farm near Fluvanna she looks after her various agricultural and oil interests, finding time to contribute much to community activities. She is a founder member of the Martha Ann Woman's Club in Snyder, a life member of the Snyder Garden Club, vice-chairman of the Scurry County Museum Association, chairman of Ranch Headquarters, vice-chairman of the Scurry County Historical Survey Committee, president of Altrurian Club, and member of the Snyder Country Club, the Knife and Fork Club and the Presbyterian Church.

Pleas Entered In County Court

Three pleas were entered in county court Friday.

Jess Costillo pleaded innocent to a charge of disorderly conduct, and bond was set at $1,000. He will return to court May 4 for a pre-trial hearing. The offense allegedly occurred April 21.

David Rodriguez pleaded guilty to a charge of aggravated assault on a female. Judgment was entered providing for a 3-month jail term, and he will return to court May 11 for final sentencing. Meanwhile, he was released on $750 bond. He was arrested by City Police Thursday.

Robert Thompson pleaded guilty to a charge of theft and he received a 3-month jail term which was probated for one year. He also received credit for 12 days already spent in jail. The offense occurred April 11, and he was apprehended by Sheriff's Authorities.

NEW PUMPED IN

Man's Diseased Blood Drained

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—A young sergeant was placed in a bloodless suspended animation for about 10 minutes while surgeons drained his diseased blood and then pumped in new blood, the Air Force said Friday.

S. Sgt. Tors Olson, 20, of West Laurens, N.Y., was flown into the Wilford Hall Air Force Medical Center from McConnell Air Force Base in Kansas and the operation was performed March 31, an Air Force spokesman said.

Olson was in a coma due to a liver failure brought on by viral hepatitis, but regained consciousness the day after the operation.

Doctors said the operation was "an ultimate, last ditch effort" to save Olson's life.

"I feel fine, just like I did before (the illness)," Olson said at a news conference in the medical center Friday.

"I remember waking up the next day (after the operation) and seeing my mother and father," he said. "We sang a couple of hymns."

The sergeant's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Olaus Olson, were with their son during the operation. They returned two weeks ago to their home.

"It is a miracle, a marvelous miracle. I never gave up hope, but they kept saying there was not much hope," Mrs. Olson said.

Mrs. Olson said the Red Cross contacted her and her husband when her son was about to undergo the operation and flew them to San Antonio.

Mrs. Olson, who has two other children, 28-year-old twin sons, said, "We knew that for six minutes he was without any blood, and we just prayed. But for two hours we had no idea if he would live."

The Olsons immigrated from Norway in 1935. Olson is a barge captain for a towing company in New York City.

West Laurens is a village of about "two dozen families," as Mrs. Olson said. The residents we're all praying for Tors," she said.

Olson, dressed in blue and white striped pajamas and looking fine, was shy and reluctant to answer questions at the news conference.

Col. Joe Gerald Klebanoff of New York, head of the surgical team; Brig. Gen. Paul W. Myers, commander of the medical center; and Col. David E. Langdon, chief of the gastroenterology service at Wilford Hall, attended the conference.

They said they used a heart-lung machine to pump a clear salt solution into Olson's arteries as they drained him of his blood. They then pumped fresh donor blood back into his body.

Family Of Four Needs $11,090

NEW YORK (AP) — A family of four—working father, mother and two children under 14—needed $11,090 a year to maintain a moderate standard of living in New York City last October, says the Community Council of Greater New York.

The social-welfare planning group said this was an increase of 3.7 per cent over October, 1970.

Scott Seeks A New Image

NEW YORK (AP) — George C. Scott says he would like to change his image. His role as a policeman in the Hallmark Hall of Fame production, "The Price," set for a May 3 television showing, is no exception.

"It's a matter of personality," says Scott. "If you're forceful it comes through whether you want it to or not. It's hard to change your image once you're type-cast. Early in my career I always played villains. At the moment, I'm looking for a weak character to play."

THIS IS MY RECORD:

Two years as County Attorney of Scurry County
Six years as County Judge of Scurry County
Eight years in the Legislature from this six county area
Seventeen years, three months and six days as District Judge of this district.

As your District Judge I presided at the trial of some of the largest and most complicated cases that were tried in Texas. My record for cases affirmed by the higher courts compares favorably with the record of the better Judges of this State. On the Criminal side, I presided at the trial of many criminal cases in many different places with many different District Attorneys prosecuting, and of those cases, only one was reversed by the Court of Criminal Appeals. While I was Judge all civil cases were set for trial as soon as they were ready for trial. The criminal docket was called every 60 days. If there were no good motions for continuance, all cases in which the State announced ready, were tried.

I left the Docket in good shape.

The exercise of many virtues are necessary in the conduct of a court, not least among which are fairness and compassion for the feelings of others.

If I may be elected as your District Judge, every person will be given the same fair and impartial treatment before the court, without regard to his financial condition or station in life.

May I have your vote next Saturday?

The 18 year old vote is going to be given its first opportunity to be heard nationally in a presidential election year. With all of this in mind the Scurry County Jaycees would like to extend to you and your family a special invitation to our "Old Fashion Political Rally."

Women Extend 'Friendship'

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Life often is bewildering for a foreign student who must adjust to American ways while pursuing a tough course of University Studies.

But if can be even harder on his wife.

A group of Austin Baptist women helps ease the transition for about 200 wives and 150 children of foreign students at the University of Texas each year.

Some servicemen's wives and a handful from St. Edward's University here also attend the weekly meetings of "Friendship" in a Baptist Church near the University campus.

"Friendship" is a gift of Christian love from Americans to internationals whose worlds while in Austin might include no more than their own apartment complex and nearby grocery," says Mrs. Marshall Edwards, a Baptist minister's wife who directs the program.

About 150 local women help with the program.

Each week's meeting includes 45 minutes of instruction in English, much of it on a one-to-one basis.

Wives who already are fluent in English have group discussions about such things as curent events and the sometimes peculiar American way of saying things.

There also are classes in such things as art, cooking, knitting, dewing and typing. An Japanese woman teachers oriental flower arranging.

Children attend kindergraten-type classes that include art, music and vocabulary building—"all geared to equip the international child for schools here in the United States," Mrs. Edwards says.

She calls "Friendship" the "largest program of its kind in the United States."

Filming In London

Hickman Carries Cubs

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Joe Pepitone had a stomach ache. Jim Hickman played instead and turned out to be a real pain in the neck for the Cincinnati Reds.

Hickman, filling in for the ailing center fielder, belted a pair of three-run homers Friday to carry the Chicago Cubs to a 10-8 victory over the Reds.

"I didn't expect to play, not with a right-hander pitching," said Hickman.

But the fact that Jack Billingham throws from the same side that Hickman hits from didn't bother the veteran outfielder. He hammered Billingham's serves into the seats in the first and third innings.

Hickman's barrage was good medicine for Manager Leo Durocher, who came out of a hospital to manage his first game in a while. He watched his team halt an eight-game losing streak.

"Hickman will stay in the lineup," said a happy Durocher. "I'll certainly have to take another look at him."

In the other National League games Friday, the Atlanta Braves bombed the Pittsburgh Pirates 13-5; the St. Louis Cardinals trimmed the Houston Astros 7-2; the Philadelphia Phillies beat the the San Diego Padres 3-0; the New York Mets defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-1 and the Montreal Expos slugged San Francisco 8-6.

American League results: Minnesota 4, New York 1; Baltimore 12, California 2; Detroit 12, Chicago 0; Oakland 5, Milwaukee 1; Kansas City 4, Cleveland 0 and Texas 9, Boston 6.

Chicago needed Hickman's home run bat Friday because pitching star Ferguson Jenkins wasn't in 20-game-winning form. The Cubs' $125,000-a-year pitcher staggered to his first victory of the season, giving up 13 hits.

"It was a struggle," said Jenkins. "I've never given up that many hits and stayed in a game."

Hickman's first home run followed two-out singles by Billy Williams and Ron Santo. In the third, he hit one after Glenn Beckert singled and Williams walked. The reserve center fielder also hit two other shots that just missed being home runs.

"He could have hit four of them," said Durocher. "The one he hit hardest didn't go out."

Rick Monday and Jose Cardenal also contributed home runs to the Chicago attack. Johnny Bench and Denis Menke each smashed two-run homers for Cincinnati in the homer-happy game.

Hank Aaron singled twice in one inning as the Atlanta Braves exploded for eight runs in the sixth enroute to an easy victory over Pittsburgh.

Seven of the runs came off starter Bob Moose, who had held the Braves to just three hits over the first five innings. A total of 14 batters went to the plate for Atlanta in the big inning.

"I don't know what happened," said a shell-shocked Moose. "I wasn't that wild. I'll probably have some more nights like this some day."

Aaron got three hits in all and drove in two runs to lead the Atlanta assault.

Joe Torre's two-run triple keyed a five-run rally for St. Louis in the sixth inning as the Cardinals halted Houston's nine-game winning string.

"Hopefully this is the start of something ... this is two victories in a row," said Torre, whose club has been in a slump since the start of the season.

Woody Fryman pitched a six-hitter as Philadelphia handed San Diego its fourth straight loss. The Phillies collected seven hits off loser Clay Kirby, including a single and run-scoring double by Tom Hutton.

Tommie Agee clouted a grand slam home run to cap a five-run eighth inning that powered New York over Los Angeles. The Mets' seventh straight victory was played before 51,210 fans at Dodger Stadium.

Jim Fairey's two-run single with two out in the ninth inning broke a 6-6 tie and carried Montreal past San Francisco. The Expos had tied the game in the eighth.

Celtics To Move To San Diego?

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Irving Levin, president of National General Corp. in Los Angeles, is the new—and only—owner of the Boston Celtics and intends to move the National Basketball Associaton franchise to San Diego, it was reported today.

The San Diego Union said in a copyright story that an attorney representing Levin has been negotiating rental terms with the operator and the manager of the San Diego Sports Arena. An agreement has not been reached.

Before the newspaper published its story, arena manager Harry Ornest denied that any negotiations had taken place. However, he did say that "the sports arena has and will and can make excellent dates available for any major league basketball team which has the sanction of its league to establish San Diego as the home site of its franchise."

Ford, Rangers Rip BoSox 9-6

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP)—Stocky Ted Ford is a happy bundle of confidence and he owns just about the brightest set of teeth in major league baseball.

When the new Texas Rangers' stubby outfielder rounded third base after exploding a three-run homer Friday night, most of the 9,974 screaming fans were practically blinded by the smiling Ford's flashing molars.

His shot into the right field seats at the 385-foot mark capped a four-run seventh inning rally that led the Rangers to a 9-6 victory over the Boston Red Sox in the opener of a three-game series.

That moved the Rangers within 1½ games of front-running Minnesota in American League West Division and snapped a two-game losing streak.

"I'm not going to tell what kind of a pitch it was," grinned the 24-year-old Ford. "I want to get another pitch like that next time I'm up there. But I did hit it good and it was real fun."

Ford denied being nervous or tight, saying, "I feel I'm a pressure player. I think of nothing but to relax when I go up in a situation like that with men on base and us behind."

The 5-foot-10, 180-pound outfielder was called up from Denver Tuesday after Jeff Burroughs went on the disabled list for 15 days. Ford was acquired from Cleveland in late spring in a swap for Roy Foster and Tom McCraw.

Rangers manager Ted Williams, in response to a Cleveland boast it had "made the steal of the year" in giving up Ford for two veterans, quipped, "We got six years in age in one pop, plus a real fast player and a guy who can play anywhere in the outfield."

Until Ford's homer, it wasn't a happy home crowd because the Red Sox had just rallied for four runs on three walks and a couple of hits in the sixth to take a 6-4 lead.

Pete Broberg, in quest of his third straight win, was bumped by the Sox for six hits and five runs. He walked six and threw 95 pitches before retiring. Casey Cox came on and walked a batter with the bases loaded. Paul Lindblad rushed to the rescue.

Lindblad was greeted by Phil Gagliano's pinch single that drove in two runs and he wild-pitched another in before settling down to put out the fire.

Horacio Pina faced seven batters the final two innings to earn his third save. He struck out two, pinch hitter Ben Ogilvie and Carl Yazstremski, and gave up a harmless double to Carlton Fisk. It was a futile night for Yaz, 0-for-5 with three strikeouts.

Sonny Siebert, fitted with a new contact lens Friday after manager Eddie Kasko had said he couldn't pitch because of an eye irritation, started for Boston. He gave up four runs on five hits before bowing out.

Successor Bill Lee yielded a run in the sixth and one in the seventh before leaving with two on and two out. At that point Ford clubbed his homer off Bob Bolin.

Gary Peters worked the final inning for the Sox. Lee wound up the loser, Lindblad the winner.

Problems Bother Razorback Coach

By HARRY KING
Associated Press Writer

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Football coaches have to worry during the summer—it's an unwritten law.

Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles can spend the next four months fretting about fullback, tight end and some spots on defense—the same problems he had prior to spring practice.

"The disappointing thing is that some of the players we hoped would step forward in the secondary aren't ready and that we haven't settled on our fullback and that we didn't find any depth at tight end," Broyles said at the conclusion of spring practice.

Marsh White and Jimmy Fryer appeared to be the most likely candidates for the fullback spot, but Fryer missed all of spring practice and White was at full speed for only a week.

Broyles said the Razorbacks' troubles at fullback last year so sorely hampered our offense we had put top priority on that position this spring."

White underwent surgery for a cartilage problem in his knee but the operation proved to be minor. Fryer was injured last fall.

Mike Saint, who had said earlier that he would pass up his final year of eligibility, revealed recently he would return in the fall. If White proves to be the outstanding performer most persons expect him to be and Saint supplies the needed stability, then Fryer could be switched to tight end.

Steve Hedgepeth, a junior, ran as the No. 1 tight end in the spring, but promising Gary Capshaw also missed spring practice.

The remainder of the offense is like a dream. Quarterback Joe Ferguson is a legitimate All-American candidate. Both tailbacks—Jon Richardson and Dickey Morton—bring oohs and aahs from the crowd.

In the final Red-White game, Morton had 126 yards on 14 carries. Richard netted 145 on seven tries.

The wide receivers—Mike Reppond, Jim Hodge and Jack Ettinger—are excellent and Reggie Craig should be a fine substitute.

The offensvie linemen—Glen Lowe, Tom Reed, Randy Drake, Lee King, Ron Revard and others—are big and strong Revard, an All-Southwest Conference choice at center as a sophomore, has been moved to tackle, but a knee injury sidelined him near the end of spring practice.

In 1971, the offense had all the best of it—42-14 and 49-35 in the two Red-White games. This year, the defense showed marked improvement. The scores were 31-20 and 27-21.

"We had to make an awfully lot of progress this spring and I think, by and large, we have," said Mervin Johnson Broyles' defensive coordinator.

"Basically, the breakdowns we had were because of inexperience and things like this," Johnson said. "Some of our youngsters have shown they will indeed be sophomores."

Arkansas' secondary got stung on several occasions last year, but Johnson says the pass defenders have made great strides.

"We performed most of the spring better than we did in the final Red-White game, but were limited to one coverage," he said. "This enabled them to hit some passes we normally would have adjusted to."

He said Louis Campbell and Clark Irwin performed well at cornerback and that safety Jim Irwin was "much improved" over last year. John Moseley, a sophomore to be, ran No. 1 at free safety all spring.

"He makes an error or two, but he's got big play ability and should be a real comer," Johnson said. Moseley also figures to handle the kick returns.

Johnson said the fact that the defense was without middle linebackers Jim Benton and John Wheat most of the spring "was one of the disappointments of the spring."

Acapulco Tourney

DALLAS (AP) — Bing Crosby, creator of the National Pro-Am Championship, held annually at Pebble Beach, California and Dallas financier Troy V. Post, disclosed plans for the Bing Crosby International Golf Tournament scheduled to be held annually in Acapulco, Mexico.

Site for the tournament will be Post's private resort, Tres Vidas en la Playa, with its 36-hole seaside course. The invitational tourney will match 250 professional and amateur golfers in a 72-hole contest, they said.

Crosby and Post aid the Mexican Golf Association and Mexican Professional Golf Association officials are participating in the planning of the fall tourney.

They also said that the purse and prizes, as well as the exact November dates and other details would be announced soon.

Little Dribblers Win Two Friday

LEVELLAND—Snyder's Little Dribblers won two tilts Friday to remain in contention in the National Tournament being held at the Texas Dome here. The Snyder boys beat Lovington, N.M. 39-28 Friday morning and eliminated Huntsville 38-36 Friday night. They were to meet Hobbs, N.M. at 11:45 a.m. Saturday with the winner due to play the Levelland Mercer loser at 4 p.m. Saturday. The championship tilt was on tap for 8:45 p.m. Saturday.

Tony Cobb sparked the Snyder attack against Lovington with 21 points. Richard Crayton contributed 8, Zane Sterling made 4, and Greg Hinton, Randy Courtney and Dennis Gary each tossed in two points. For Lovington, Lopez meshed 10 points, Kilpatrick, Black Stowers and Choate scored 4 each, and Fulfer added 2.

Against Huntsville, Allan Robertson was high point man with 13, and Richard Crayton contributed 12. For Huntsville, Brett Davis tallied 16 points and Royce Craft added 9.

In other games Friday, Hobbs, N.M. eliminated Lubbock 44-39, Levelland beat Hobbs 38-36, Mercer Island, Washington beat Austin 39-31, Lubbock whipped Friona 55-29, Huntsville beat Austin 37-22, Welsh, La. clipped Meade, Kan 44-30, Brownsboro tripped Tatum, N.M. 30-19, Seagraves lost to Cochise County, Ariz. 39-37, Meade beat Brownsboro 42-25, and Cochise edged New Baden, Ill. 44-43.

SPORTS

Longhorns Dominate Golf Meet

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Texas swept the individual and team titles in Southwest Conference golf Friday with Ben Crenshaw's five-under-par on the closing 18 holes leading the way.

Crenshaw, low amateur in the 1972 Masters and the defending NCAA champ, eagled the par five 17th hole twice, the first time proving to be the turning point in his day and the second one wrapping up the individual title.

He shot 71-70-66—207, six under par for the 54 holes, half of which were played Thursday.

He finished five shots ahead of two freshmen, Mark Triggs of Southern Methodist and Sale Omohundro of Texas Christian, each at 212.

The Longhorns' four low players combined for 859 to win the team title. SMU finished second at 868 and Arkansas gained third with 889.

There was little doubt that Texas would win both titles. The main question was whether Crenshaw could overtake teammate Tom Kite, who led him at the halfway mark by three shots.

Kite faded over the closing rounds on the 7,200-yard Paradise Country Club course to finish fourth with a 214 total, one over par for the tournament.

The one man standing in Crenshaw's way turned out to be Omohundro, son of Reed Omohundro, who is partner with pro golfer Miller Barber in a golf development at Sherman, Tex.

However, the turning point seemed to be the 15th hole when Crenshaw knocked in a 45-foot putt for a birdie and Omohundro failed to get down in two from well above the hole on the same green.

Omohundro prolonged the suspense slightly with a birdie on the 16th, but Crenshaw's second eagle on No. 17 with a 20-foot putt finished the TCU golfer.

Lakers To Try Knicks Again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers, checking their pulses after going into shock Wednesday night, and the New York Knicks, who put them there, meet Sunday in the second game of the National Basketball Association championship series.

The Lakers, who set all kinds of records during the regular season, were heavily favored to defeat the Knicks before the series got under way. But any psychological edge Los Angeles had off its 4-1 margin over New York during the season may have been shattered.

New York, with Bill Bradley and Jerry Lucas firing away with uncanny accuracy for a total of 55 points, buried Los Angeles 114-92 at the Lakers' Forum Wednesday night.

The nationally televised second game, also at the sold-out Forum, begins at 1:40 (PDT), with the best-of-seven series moving to New York on Wednesday and Friday nights.

New York Coach Red Holzman, asked to compare this Knick team with the 1970 squad that upset the Lakers in seven games, responds: "That was 2,000 years ago."

He doesn't believe Wednesday night's game will have any bearing on Sunday's match.

"They're a good, strong team," Holzman said of the Lakers. "That was a very good game for us. This is another game. One game has nothing to do with another."

The Knicks, who had only the seventh-best record of the 17 NBA clubs during the regular season, defeated Baltimore and Boston to gain the finals.

The Lakers, who set a regular season record with 69 victories and had a record 33-game winning streak, ousted Chicago and defending champion Milwaukee from the playoffs.

The Lakers, who must win or face the possibility of being swept out by two Knick victories in New York, are in the playoff finals for the eighth time in 11 years, and have yet to win.

The Knicks, who didn't have an injured Willis Reed for much of the 1970 playoff finals, are without the 6-foot-10 center, out most of the season with a knee injury.

Petty Seeks Seventh Title

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Richard Petty has won the Virginia 500 stock car race six times, and for Sunday's 17th running of the short-track classic he's starting right where he wants.

The 34-year-old Petty will line up for the 1 p.m. EDT start behind the front row tandem of Bobby Allison's Chevrolet and Bobby Isaac's Dodge.

"It's right where I like to sit," said stock car racing's only $1 million career winner. "That way I can watch Allison and Isaac knock each other around for a while."

Allison won the pole position Friday at a track record 84.163 miles per hour. Isaac got the other front row berth at 83.509 m.p.h., with Petty third in a Plymouth at 83.329 m.p.h.

Twenty drivers made the 36-car field Friday. The final 16 starters were selected in time trials Saturday, after which there was a 100 lap race for the powerful little modified cars.

Petty's reference to Allison and Isaac comes from experience from only a week ago. Racing in a 250-miler for the same Grand National sedans of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing at North Wilkesboro, N.C., Petty ran behind the two for two-thirds of the race before eventually gaining the lead and going on to score the 143rd win of his career.

"Those two (Allison and Isaac) put on one of the best duels I have ever seen," Petty said of the North Wilkesboro race. "I had a ringside seat from 200 yards behind most of the way and I thoroughly enjoyed it."

He also said that Allison and Isaac occupied the front row at Wilkesboro while he started third—the identical alignment for Sunday's race.

Actually, Petty has won 10 times at Martinsville, a tightly wound 525-mile where car handling and driver skill is paramount.

Isaac and Allison also have won Grand National races at Martinsville, Isaac's latest triumph coming in the 250-miler last fall.

Mr. and Mrs. J.E. Hollis, Robert Lee, 20 crappie to two pounds; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bozar, Robert Lee, 18 crappie up to two pounds; John Connally, Robert Lee, a 10½ pound yellow cat; E.J. Kitchens and Tommy Myer, Odessa, 25 channel cat up to four pounds.

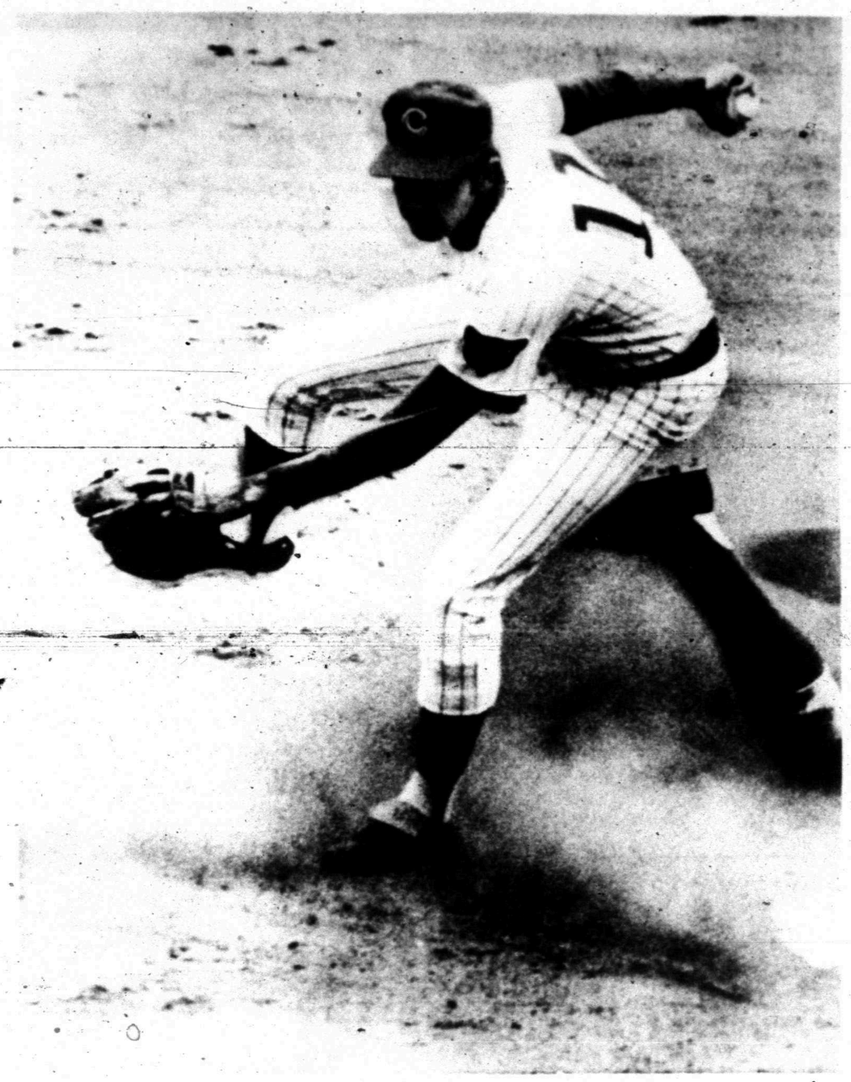
Biker, Midland, 23 crappie averaging a pound; J.E. and Don Mitchell, 50 white bass averaging three-quarters of a pound; R.E. Carr and Walt Pergason, C.J. Brent and Billye Brent, Big Spring, 60 white bass to a pound and a half, and in another day of fishing C.J. and Billy Brent 25 white bass and eight crappie to a pound. In three days of fishing Harold Adams, Alex Dawes and Gary Castain, Odessa, brought in 300 white bass up to 2½ pounds.

Jim Harpole, Monahans had 45 white bass, and three black bass. Jerry Matejek, John Kiffleer, Bill and Buddy Marshall of Big Spring, reported 40 crappie averaging a pound.

Senior Tennis Tourney Set

There will be a Senior Day Tennis Tournament Monday evening at the Towle Park tennis courts.

First place winners will receive two tennis racks and one can of tennis balls. Second place winners will get two cans of tennis balls and third place winners will receive one can of tennis balls.



RIGHT ON THE KESSINGER—Leg of Cincinnati Reds right fielder Ted Uhlaender finds its mark on underside of Chicago Cubs shortstop Don Kessinger in second inning Friday at Chicago. Uhlaender was forced on Dennis Menke's grounder to Cubs pitcher Fergie Jenkins, but the kick upset Kessinger and Menke got a single out of the deal. Chicago ended its eight-game losing streak by defeating Reds, 10-8. (AP Wirephoto)

Lions' Runner Posts Record

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Penn State's Greg Fredericks smashed the meet record Saturday as he sprinted past Gary Harris of Western Michigan with a quarter-mile to go to win the three mile run at the 78th annual Penn Relays.

Fredericks, the IC4A champion, ran the three miles in 13:31.5 to erase his own record of 13:36.1 set here last year on Penn's tartan track.

Both Harris, who was clocked in 13:31.6 and third place-finisher Mike Keogh of Manhattan, with a 13:35.6 performance, broke the old record.

Mike Haywood of Kentucky (13:39.5) was fourth with Bruce Fisher, of Syracuse, 11th.

It was a three man competition after eight laps of the 12-lap race around the quarter mile track, Keogh took the lead at that point with Harris and Fredericks on his heels.

They ran that way until Harris moved ahead with three laps remaining, and Fredericks burst into second and Keogh faded.

Fredericks made his winning move with 440 yards left, passing Harris, but the Western Michigan runner gamely hung on about a yard behind all the way to the finish.

"Honestly, this time I really didn't think we had a winner," said Villanova Coach Jim "Jumbo" Elliott.

Elliott talked about his gutty distance runners after Villanova raced to its seventh straight Penn Relays distance medley victory Friday over fast finishing Duke. Villanova won by four yards.

Not only did Elliott's kids win, but they broke their own meet record (9:37.9 in 1968) with a 9:37.5 clocking over the tartan track at Penn's Franklin Field.

Ken Schappert ran the opening 880 leg in 1:51.2, Greg Govan the 400 in 47.5, Tom Gregan the three quarters in 2:55.6, and John Hartnett the anchor mile in 4:03.4. Duke finished second in 9:38.1, mostly on the 3:59 anchor mile by sophomore Bob Wheeler.

The Villanovans experienced a wave of injuries to their distance runners as they prepared for the 78th annual Penn Relays. Lee Nagy and Jerry Buman, who would have been third and fourth man on the distance medley team, weren't even in uniform. Brian McElroy, the Cats' top half miler and miler was hurting. Govan nursed an injury. Schappert looked horrible all week and ran poorly last week in the Queens-Iona meet.

Despite all the problems, Villanova, a perennial winner at the Penn Relays, did it again. Elliott's runners have won 47 Penn Relay titles since 1955.

Before Villanova did its thing, Penn's Bruce Collins won the 440-yard hurdles in 50.8, Michigan's Steve Adams the discus with a mark of 175 feet.

Amado Vasquez To Meet Tessman

HOUSTON (AP) — Mexican light-heavyweight Amado Vasquez, instead of Joe Cokes, will meet Mark Tessman in the main event of next Tuesday's pro light-heavyweight boxing bout here, the promoter said Friday.

The fight will be part of an elimination tournament to determine a challenger for the current light-heavyweight champion.

There have been some changes made. Now you'll find the Lennox name on nifty weather machines that cool and clean the air and control moisture in homes and buildings. And these weather machines are designed so that even if you aren't lucky enough to have a Lennox furnace, you can still add Lennox central air conditioning, air cleaning and moisture control to nearly any forced air system.

Cohen Says Claims Stretched

BOSTON (AP) — A high Treasury Department tax official said today that claims by senators and congressmen that tax reform proposals would produce large amounts of revnue are "vastly exaggerated."

Edwin S. Cohen, assistant secretary of the Treasury for Tax Policy, said that advocates of tax reform on Capitol Hill should recognize that attempting to close so-called loopholes "are serious problems that require calm, deliberative reflection."

"The issues are far too important for hasty action," Cohen said in remarks prepared for presentation to the Federal Tax Institute of New England.

Cohen said that in many instances sudden tax changes "made without substitution of the other programs would damage the economy and endanger important social goals."

He said proposals to tax capital gains at death are not likely to produce significant amounts of revenue in the short run. Most of the pending bills would tax only the gains accruing after enactment of the new law, he said.

Instead of raising $2 billion to $3 billion as some claim, there would be "relatively little revenue effect for some years to come," Cohen said.

He said the same is true of proposals to tax interest on state and local government securities since it would apply only to future bond issues.

Cohen, joining Treasury Secretary John B. Connally and other officials in opposing tax reform this year, also criticized efforts to speed up tax write-offs under depreciation regulations and to change the oil and gas depletion allowances.

"EVERYBODY DRIVES A USED CAR"

EPA Under Fire Of Independent Oilmen

DALLAS (AP) — Two days of public hearings on Environmental Protection Agency proposals for taking the lead out of gasoline ended Friday, with the federal agency under fire from small, independent oilmen who said it would drive them out of business.

Art Tucker, 75, of Lueders, Tex., who has been an independent operator for half a century, told the three-man government panel in a quavering voice: "It looks like EPA is about to finish me off and the Petroleum Refining Co. will be my last business venture."

Tucker referred to William Ruckelshaus, head of the EPA, at one point as "that Russelkraut or whatever his name is."

A. R. Matthews, of the Texas Asphalt Co. at Euless, said his company might be forced out of business and 50 employes would lose their jobs.

W. W. Lax, manager of Williams Petroleum Co. of Burkburnett, near Wichita Falls, said: "You people are writing rules which will make it impossible for us to operate. Do it the American way—prove us guilty first and we'll quit."

Frank Wood Jr., president of Pride Refining Inc. of Abilene, warned that implementation of the EPA proposal would be "considered by history as a national disaster."

He said Pride might be forced from the gasoline business and the jobs of nearly 100 families and more than $3 million in assets would then be "in great jeopardy."

The Baton Rouge, La., and Pasadena, Tex., locals of the Allied and Technical Workers Union submitted a resolution approved by employes of the Ethyl Corp. plants, asking for the EPA to "recall and vacate" its proposed sets of standards because of the economic hardship they would cause.

But, if some oil producers and their employes objected, preservation and ecology groups came out strong on the other side.

"I can decide whether I want to smoke or drink moonshine whisky, but I cannot decide whether to breathe the air," pointed out Dr. W. G. Johanson of Dallas, chairman of the technical committee of the Texas Air Quality Association.

Mrs. L.H. Butler, of the League of Women Voters of El Paso, said El Paso was a critical area "having perhaps the highest concentration of dangerous emissions from auto exhaust in the country."

She said having a law on the statute books was no guarantee of its enforcement and she accused the Office of Management of the Budget of lobbying for industrial interests.

"We want this practice stopped," she said. "If polluters will not willingly comply with standards designed to protect life, then they must be forced to do so, be they industries, governments or individuals."

Mrs. Butler also remarked that "since traffic contributes most to pollution problems, we ask you (the oil operators) to re-examine your position regarding the re-refining of used oil."

"You tell us there is a crude oil crisis," she lectured them. "Why then are we wasting billions of gallons of oil yearly down drains, where they become a problem at sewage plants, or pouring it out on open fields where it seeps back into the water tables?

"Why do you not sponsor some kind of drive to encourage your dealers to collect used oil as they did during the war? We'd like that better than bingo."

The government public hearings, which opened in Washington, will conclude with a final session in Los Angeles starting May 2.

Quack Remedies

LONDON (AP) — Sore throat? Send for a roast potato. Earache? Then look for a hot onion. And if you have the mumps try trooping around the pig pen in a donkey's halter.

That's the kind of advice featured in an exhibition of old wives' remedies opened in London by the British Medical Association. A lot of the quack solutions did as much harm as good, the doctors say, but some contained at least the grain of a cure.

"I think there's a lot of good in the old remedies when you strip them bare of the mumbo-jumbo," a medical association official said.

Here's a sampling:

If you have a sore throat, apply a roast potato to your head and a half-tightly drawn left sock or stocking to your throat. Swallow and wait ...

For an earache place a hot onion against the orifice. If you can't get an onion, get a friend to blow in some tobacco smoke.

Rub an eye stye with a black cat's tail.

An ancient Irish cure for the mumps involved leading the patient around a pig pen by a donkey's halter.

The Irish also turned to the donkey to cure whooping cough. Victims were passed nine times under the animal's belly.

Fatal accidents this year total 840, compared with 797 for the same period a year ago.

Pair Nabbed Selling Heroin

SANTA FE, N. M. (AP) — State Police said Friday a Juarez, Mexico, man and his wife were arrested in El Paso, Tex., as they made a sale of a pound of heroin to a New Mexico narcotics agent.

Capt. T. J. Chavez, head of the Narcotics Division of the State Police, said the state agent had been working several weeks with the U.S. Bureau of Customs to set up the heroin purchase.

Customs agents made the arrests as Gilbert Flores, 39, and his wife, Aurelia Gonzalez Flores, 40, made the sale to the agent.

"These people have been on our files for seven years. They have been thought to have been dealing between Albuquerque and Mexico," Capt. Chavez said. "But we had not been able to get anything on them until now."

Capt. Chavez said the state agent bought an ounce of heroin Wednesday night from the Floreses, and made arrangements to make the larger purchase Friday. The agent was to have paid $750 an ounce for the larger quantity.

Price Rollback Plans Top Economic News

NEW YORK (AP) — The prospect of hundreds of millions of dollars in price rollbacks dominated the economic newsfront this past week as the Price Commission promised to crack down on firms with excessive profit margins.

C. Jackson Grayson Jr., chairman, said the Price Commission was reviewing the quarterly earnings reports from major companies and indicated that large price reductions and refunds were in the offing.

Later in the week, Ford Motor Co. voluntarily announced an average $13 price cut for its cars and trucks after reporting a 49 per cent leap in first-quarter earnings to $252 million.

The commission ordered rollbacks at six large companies, including Eckerd Drugs Inc., a Charlotte, N.C.-based chain of 123 stores, and F.W. Woolworth Co., which was told to rescind recent increases in lunch counter operations at its five-and-dime outlets.

Other news during the week gave conflicting signs of the nation's economic health. The government reported a worsening of the U.S. trade deficit in March and a slackening of productivity gains during the first quarter. On the plus side, leading economic indicators showed gains last month, while the Treasury's plans for refinancing indicated a smaller federal budget deficit than previous estimates.

The Commerce Department said the $584.3 million deficit in the nation's trade account last month, which was slightly lower than the February deficit, brought the first-quarter deficit to a record $1.5 billion.

A trade deficit occurs when the value of foreign goods brought into the country exceeds the value of American goods taken out of the country.

The Labor Department, meanwhile, reported that output per hour of work in the private sector during the first quarter increased at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of only 2.17 per cent, compared with a 3.2 per cent rate of gain in the fourth quarter of 1971 and 3.6 per cent for all of last year. At a congressional hearing, Commerce Secretary Peter G. Peterson expressed amazement at the slowdown.

Good news came with the report from the Commerce Department that the composite index of leading economic indicators rose 0.9 per cent in March, continuing its recent upswing. The index, which often foreshadows broad movements in the economy, had risen 0.7 per cent in February, and an average of about 1 per cent a month for the past half year.

The Treasury Department, finding itself with unexpected funds on hand because of what a spokesman said was overwithheld personal income taxes and the strong economy, announced plans to trim its borrowing plans, and pay off some of its maturing debt in cash.

Paul A. Volcker, treasury under-secretary for monetary affairs, said the stronger revenue picture indicated a small budget deficit, but did not indicate how much the planned $38.8-billion deficit might be reduced.

Other film locations will be in New York City and Kenya, Africa.

Scurry County Rodeo In IRA

The Scurry County Rodeo Association, which voted recently to join the International Rodeo Association, has received word of its approval.

Local contestants will not have to join the IRA to compete in the 1972 Scurry County Rodeo, it was emphasized, and those living within 125 miles of Snyder are considered local contestants.

There had been numerous requests for the Scurry County Rodeo Association to join the IRA. Many IRA members said they wanted to compete in the rodeo here, but in order to keep their points built up, they went to IRA-approved shows instead. The points are based on the amount of money won. The top 15 contenders then compete in the IRA finals at the end of the season for the championship.

Officials of the Scurry County Rodeo Association said they felt it would improve the local show considerably to have approval of IRA.

Several IRA champions are expected here to compete in the 1972 Scurry County Rodeo scheduled for July 19-22.

Only one event has been added as a result of IRA membership. This is steer wrestling, which always is popular with spectators.

Sloan Williams of Hungerford will be the stock producer again for the Scurry County Rodeo this year. Jim Miller of Rapid City, S.D., will be back for the fifth year as rodeo announcer. Clowns will be Lecille Harris of Collierville, Tenn., and D.C. Cogburn of Miami, Okla. Both clowns were here last year and gave outstanding performances. Harris is president of the IRA.

With added money to each event, the Scurry County Rodeo Association expects gross purses to total $10,000 for its 1972 event, and they expect it to be one of the finest and fastest rodeos in the state.

Cavett Show Faces Cancellation

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dick Cavett has three months to improve the ratings of his late night TV talk show against CBS movies or his show will be canceled.

Martin Starger, ABC vice president for programming, told the ABC television network affiliates meeting at the Century Plaza Hotel on Friday that unless the show improves in ratings and in the number of affiliate stations carrying it the show will be canceled on July 28, with the last air date Sept. 29.

He said the network is studying the effects of the CBS movies and of the move by NBC of Johnny Carson's "Tonight" show to Hollywood next Monday. He said Cavett's ratings were down in the first three months of the year and the study would determine if "this is just a temporary erosion as a result of the change in competition, or is it an indication of deeper, more basic problems."

HIDETOWN DRIVE—A historical marker proclaiming a segment of Avenue T between Twenty-fifth Street and Twenty-seventh Street as Hidetown Drive was officially dedicated in ceremonies conducted near Deep Creek Friday afternoon by the Scurry County Historical Survey Committee, city and county officials. Here, they stand beside the marker.

'Hidetown Drive' Sign Is Unveiled

A part of Snyder's past was officially linked forever with the city's present and future Friday afternoon in ceremonies conducted along the banks of Deep Creek in the 2500 block of Avenue T. City and county officials, members of the Scurry County Historical Survey Committee and others gathered to officially dedicate the two blocks on Avenue T between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-seventh Streets as "Hidetown Drive."

Hugh Boren, Jr., president of the Historical Survey Committee, was master of ceremonies, as he told the early history of Snyder.

Before it became a city, Snyder was referred to as "Hide Town" because buffalo hunters would bring their hides here for shipment on wagon trains to the major rail heads at Fort Worth and East Texas and thence to the Eastern and European markets, Boren said. He pointed out there were several half-dugouts located along the banks of Deep Creek at the present location of Hidetown Drive. Buffalo traders covered these dugouts with buffalo skins. They also slept on buffalo hides and used them for cover.

The City Council authorized the changing of the name of the two-block segment on Avenue T to Hidetown Drive, and Mayor Bill Seale read the official proclamation designating it Hidetown Drive. Councilman Joe Sentell and County Commissioner Thayne Mebane held a ribbon across the street while Mayor Seale cut it.

Invocation was given by Councilman Bill Vestal, who also discussed long-range plans to beautify Deep Creek.

Mrs. Roland A. Irving unveiled the street marker.

Big Spring Man Dies In Crash

STANTON, Tex. (AP)—A fiery crash of a gasoline tanker truck killed T. J. Proctor, 44, of Big Spring, near here in West Texas Friday afternoon.

Officers reported he was trapped inside as the vehicle rolled over a ditch and caught fire one mile west of Stanton on Interstate 20.

Firemen from Midland and Big Spring put out the flames. The truck knocked down a power line and the highway was blocked for a time.

Candidates Blast Opponents

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With exactly one week remaining until the May 6 state primaries, candidates for major offices teed off on their opponents Friday rather than extolling their own virtues.

One of the sharpest tongues belonged to Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, who struck out against at least three of his top opponents for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Barnes said Rep. Frances Farenthold "wants to reform the schools through forced busing, and she wants to reform law enforcement by abolishing the Texas Rangers."

In Austin to tape television shows, Barnes said Dolph Briscoe became a reform candidate when "somebody told him it was a good issue in 1972." Barnes added that Gov. Preston Smith can't talk about reform "because he's the main reason we need reform."

Meanwhile, gubernatorial hopeful Robert Looney called Barnes and Mrs. Farenthold "political sweethearts." He said Barnes, if elected governor, has agreed to hire Mrs. Farenthold as 'an administrative assistant or personal receptionist.

In the Republican governor's race, Dave Reagan singled out Sen. Henry Grover for criticism, asserting that Grover switched from the Democratic to the Republican party "out of expediency" because he "found himself in a solidly GOP district."

Another GOP gubernatorial candidate, Tom McElroy, said at an Austin news conference he probably will get 30 per cent of the vote next Saturday and go into a runoff against Grover or Al Fay.

In the Democratic race for lieutenant governor, State Sen. Ralph Hall criticized State Sens. Wayne Connally and Joe Christie for what Hall said was their opposition to his code of ethics bill last year.

Christie campaigned on the Alabama-Coushatta Indian Reservation in East Texas.

Connally announced he had received the endorsement of the Laredo Times.

The deadline for filing was midnight.

Garcia, Cisnero Exchange Vows

Miss Santa Garcia and Carlos Cisnero exchanged wedding vows April 15 at 3 p.m. in Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church. Rev. Francisco Peregina Lopez performed the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Mauro Garcia and Mr. and Mrs. Cruz Cisnero of Snyder.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white formal length gown. The gown was fashioned with an empire waist, long sleeves and a long train with lace and a large bow accenting the front of the gown. Her elbow lerigth veil was attached to a crown of flowers. The bride carried a bouquet of daisies.

Miss Sara Garcia was maid of honor and Sally Tovar was bridesmaid. They wore purple floor length gowns.

Moises Rodriquez served as best man.

The couple exchanged wedding vows beneath an archway of greenery and carnations.

Lola Ayala was organist.

The reception was held at the Latin American Center. The serving table was centered with the three tiered wedding cake which was served by Mrs. Rodriquez. Mrs. Willie Garcia registered wedding guests.

For the short wedding trip to Odessa the bride chose a red and white dress.

Both the bride and groom attended Snyder High School. The groom is employed by Wickes Home Inc.

For Dieters

CAN YOU GUESS? Which fruit is being described here? — a fruit of broadly conical shape with larger fruitlets at bottom, smaller ones at top, the fruitlets patterned in a regular spiral on the fruit axis, in two series, one turning around the fruit to the left, the other to the right. Yes, it's the pineapple. One cupful of diced fresh pineapple provides more than a third of the recommended daily allowance of vitamin "C", yet has only 75 calories. Sprightly-tasting, juicy, and tangy sweet, fresh pineapples are in good supply at your market now to use in many ways, the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association advises.

Green Onions In Good Supply

ZIP AND NIP are what fresh green onions add to your meals and they are in excellent supply at your market now, according to the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association. Green onions are tender savories to eat raw with meat, cheese or fish. Many like to eat the slender green stalks as well as the small, ivory-colored bulb. Sometimes the tops are chopped to mix with cottage cheese for a colorful salad, or they are tossed in a mixed green salad or sliced in rings and added to soups. The liking for this flavorful vegetable goes back a long way. Around the year 1340, the English poet, Chaucer wrote: "Wel loved he garleek, onyons and leekes." Young green onion tops are especially low in calories. To check quality at your market, see that they have green, fresh-looking tops and medium-sized necks which are well-blanched for at least two or three inches from the root. Green onions should be young, crisp and tender.

Serve Up An Election Year Stew

By RICH OPPEL
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Want to serve a good "political stew?" It'll be easy, with Myrna Shevin's new "Democratic Caucus Cookbook," which has recipes from political personalities such as Sens. Allen J. Ellender and Stuart Symington and others from wives of political figures such as Muriel Humphrey and Cornelia Wallace.

Mrs. Shevin, an opera singer, mother of three and the wife of Florida Atty. Gen. Robert Shevin, said she hatched the cookbook idea last summer, and got the cooperation of the Democratic Womens' Clubs of Florida.

"I sent out requests to about 700 persons—governors, senators, congressmen, mayors, state officials and party officials," she said. "We got about 200 recipes back."

The book goes to the printers in June, and Mrs. Shevin hopes to begin sales at the Democratic National Convention. About 250 pages long, it will sell for $5.50. It is illustrated with ink sketches of scenes from the Florida presidential primary by Fred Albert.

Mrs. Shevin said proceeds would be distributed among the Democratic women's organizations in Florida, with some going to the national committee.

Here are a few recipes from the same kitchens that serve George Wallace, Mayor John Lindsay and Sen. Edmund Muskie:

CORNELIA WALLACE'S SOUTHERN PECAN PIE

½ cup granulated sugar
1 cup light corn syrup
3 eggs
4 tablespoons melted butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup pecans, chopped
1 pie shell, uncooked

Cook sugar and syrup until mixture thickens at 228 degrees. Beat eggs well, add melted butter to syrup mixtures and add hot syrup slowly to beaten eggs. Add vanilla and nuts. Pour into unbaked pie shell. Bake in 450-degree oven for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 300 and bake for additional 35 minutes. Serves six.

MARY LINDSAY'S BROWNIES

2 eggs
2 squares bitter chocolate
¾ cup sugar
¼ cup light brown sugar
½ cup butter
½ cup chopped walnuts
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup flour
1 pinch salt

Beat eggs; gradually add sugars. Melt butter and chocolate together and let cool. Add to egg mixture. Add vanilla, flour, salt and nuts. Place in a greased 9 by 9 inch square pan and bake in a preheated 325-degree oven for 35 minutes. Let cool; cut into squares.

JANE MUSKIE'S NEW ENGLAND DINNER

4-5 pound corned brisket of beef
Cold water to cover
½ bay leaf
5 whole peppercorns
Basil, thyme and parsley
6 white or yellow turnips, peeled and sliced
8 medium carrots, scraped
4 parsnips, peeled if you like
10 small onions, peeled
8 medium potatoes, peeled
1 green cabbage, cored, cut in wedges

Place beef in kettle, cover pan, adding spices but no salt. Bring to a boil; skim off fat. Cover; simmer 3-4 hours. Add all vegetables but cabbage, cover pan. Cook 20 minutes. Add cabbage; cook until all vegetables are tender, about 25 minutes.

Place beef on hot platter, surrounded by vegetables.

Gourmet cooking can be as simple as opening a jar. Herbs and spices add infininte variety to your favorite recipes. Sprinkle basil on lamb chops, simmer a bay leaf in meat stew. Oregano adds a touch of Italy to tomato dishes, try turmeric on scrambled eggs and seafood salads. Tangy caraway seed goes with cabbage so add some to cole slaw or sauerkraut. Sage adds a special touch to poultry dressings, thyme to chicken stews and casseroles.

Program To Train Assistants

DALLAS (AP) — North Texas' first baccalaureate program to train physicians' assistants will be begun this fall by the School of Allied Health Professions at Dallas.

The program will train assistants capable of becoming "extensions of the physician," said Dr. John W. Schermerhorn, dean of the school, a component of the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School.

The role of this newest member of the health care team is to relieve the physician of routine duties not requiring the expertise that the physician has developed," Dean Schermerhorn said.

The program's first class of 10 students was to register Aug. 28-30 and begin a two-year academic course leading to a Bachelor of Science degree. A second class of comparable size will be accepted in January, 1973.

Applicants must have completed 60 semester hours of college work in arts and sciences.

Quotable Women

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some quotable quotes from women during the week:

"You can get the girl out of the reservation, but you'll never get all the reservation out of the girl."—Faren Sanders, 21-year-old Cherokee Indian who hopes to do what she can as a teacher to change the stereotype image of the American Indian.

"It was scary the first time ... Three of us stood out there, like slaves being sold. I couldn't drop the towel. So, my girl friend tore it off me—and that was that."—Actress Valerie Perrine, describing an audition for a Las Vegas topless show.

"Women's lib hasn't helped in child-rearing. It has been good in job discrimination and things like that, but it has resulted in the downgrading of motherhood."—Eunice Kennedy Shriver at a meeting of the John F. Kennedy Advisory Center.

"I thought it would be exciting and challenging work. I guess I was looking for a little adventure, too."—Sgt. Marilyn L. Pierce, the first woman flight crew member of an air rescue team in Air Force history.

"It takes a certain amount of courage to try out a new dish on a table full of guests, but it is a challenge I find hard to resist."—Metropolitan Opera star Elinor Ross, who takes her cooking seriously.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q.—I am thinking about buying an above-the-ground swimming pool. Can you tell me how to install it?

A.—Not in this available space. And it wouldn't do you any good anyway. There are many different kinds of above-the-ground pools, each requiring its own method of installation. Be sure the one you select includes detailed instructions and that you have a pretty good idea that you can handle the project. It's not one of those jobs you can do in a couple of hours.

Q.—There is some copper on the outside of our house. We'd like to paint it. Any special kind of paint?

A.—Ordinary house paint will do if you first give the copper a coat of metal primer.

Q.—We have sheets of fiberglass over our patio at the back of the house. They are very dull looking, having been exposed to the weather for about six years now. Is there any way of restoring the finish?

A. First, try washing the fiberglass sheets. The dullness may be the result of dirt and grime rather than loss of the original finish. But if the washing fails to achieve the result you want, go to a dealer who sells fiberglass sheets and ask him for the special finishing material designed to restore the gloss to such panels.

Q.—I am making over one of our bedrooms into a family room and want to install plywood panels over the present walls. The present walls have paper on them, but it is tightly attached. Can I glue the panels directly to the walls or must I put up furring strips?

A.—No matter how tightly attached the paper is, it would be risky to glue the panels to it. Eventually the paper might become loose and dislodge the paneling. However, if the walls are smooth, there's no need to put up furring strips. Attach the panels to the walls by nailing through them into the studs.

Q.—Should the walls or the ceiling of a room be painted first? And is there any special technique for the ceiling? I will be using a brush.

A.—The ceiling should always be painted first. Work across the width or narrow part of the room.

Don't over-reach even if you have to move the ladder 20 times. Paint in strips that you can reach comfortably. Always brush the paint on from dry areas to wet areas. Don't start the job unless you have enough time to finish the entire ceiling without stopping. No matter what paint manufacturers say about paints that leave no brush marks, you may find visible overlaps if you take time out for lunch in the middle of the job.

Gowns, Are Soft, Elegant, Romantic

RETURN TO ELEGANCE—The two looks in nightgowns now are the Oriental and the elegant, and shown here are four examples of the latter. From left to right, first is a two-toned nightgown, capelet sleeved and shaped to emphasize the empire waist. Next is a gown that's long, lean and lavished with lace. Delicate scrollwork outlines a sheer net insert here, and continues down the deeply slashed front. Black is back in the next gown of Enkalure nylon. It has strategic touches of white for the sophisticated woman. Last is a gown in Crepeset nylon, with puffs of maribou at the sleeves and hem. It has the 30's look that is sweeping fashion today.

A Nostalgic Street

FIFTH AVENUE By Theodore James Jr. Walker $25.

This large album, illustrated with more than 100 photographs and engravings, is more than the story of a famous thoroughfare.

Its nostaligic scope takes in the sociological themes of urban growth, the rise of fashionable society, significant moments in the nation's history, changes in architecture and the popular fads and social customs of the big city for more than a century.

Each chapter starts with a chronology of a couple of decades or so, and then proceeds with an anecdotal description of the period's main events. The account runs from the 1820s to the present.

The personalities range from the author William M. Thackery to the notorious dancer Lola Montez; from Charles Dickens to showman P.T. Barnum.

The events range through such things as the draft riots of 1863 to the lavish costume balls of the late 19th century.

The illustrations include many quaint views and street scenes of early Manhattan life and conclude with contemporary photographs of department stores and skyscrapers, made by Elizabeth Baker.

The book is not intended as a scholarly history of Manhattan's most famous street, but as a collection of sidelights to history, and in that respect it accomplishes its purpose.

The Weeders Guide

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Variability among grasses in your lawn provides flexibility for countering troubles—some of them your own fault because you may be a poor lawnkeeper.

Dr. Robert W. Schery of The Lawn Institute in Ohio says a lawn planted solely to highly-bred bluegrass, fine fescue or bentgrass can be the greatest, so long as you have suitable growing conditions. By this he means a golf green or where you have a gardener to maintain constant vigil.

It's riskier, however, if only a single variety is planted in a home lawn, considering the range of soil types, mowing heights and disease inducements likely to be met, Schery adds.

Many plots contain high ground, low spots, shade and sun, soil pockets of varying pH. And just as variability enhances survival value in an evolutionary sense, it can better insure grass persistence under changing lawn conditions. Lawn conditions, Schery reminds, always are changing—seasonally, when the weather becomes conducive to disease, because mowing is neglected, fertilizer is misapplied, as equipment wears paths and compacts soil.

You can introduce variability into your lawn. One way is to plant grasses that have a broad genetic base, such as Arboretum bluegrass and Highland bentgrass, both traditional favorites. Others are Pennlawn fescue, Penncross creeping bentgrass and Manhatten perennial ryegrass.

But you also must have what Schery calls genetically restricted varieties to provide grass in which all plants behave much alike. This you can do with clones that are propagated vegetatively, as with leading bermuda grass selections. These are plants that behave alike.

A similar degree of uniformity is approached by non-sexual seed, including Kentucky bluegrasses such as Baron, Fylking, Nugget, Merion, Pennstar and Sydsport.

A bit more variable because of their sexuality are such pure lines as the newer Jamestown, Highlight and Ruby fine fescue, or Exeter and Holfior colonial bentgrasses.

Plant breeders take the pure lines and mix two or more varieties. Research centers counsel blends for general lawn plantings. Two or three bluegrass varieties will be mixed, giving some assurance that no single race or disease is likely to decimate all varieties. Or Kentucky bluegrasses and fine fescues are combined to take advantage of bluegrass' sod-forming ability on good soil in the open, and fescue's tenacity on poorer soils and in shade.

The trick, Schery notes, is to choose compatible grasses, rather similar in appearance, responding to the same mode of lawn keeping.

Golfrood is a good dense variety of grass and Ruby is an excellent creeping variety noted for compatibility in seed mixtures in summer when less capable fescues tend to thin.

Nuggett Bluegrass was discovered in Alaska. It works well in short summer seasons and in surviving a rugged winter. It is dense and erect, even far from its northern home.

For quick cover, improved perennial ryegrasses Manhatten and Pelo are recommended; for humid climates and close-mowed turf, Exeter, Holifer and Highland colonial bentgrasses; and creeping bent hybrid Penncross.

Detroit urban and suburban areas are sites for research to improve the environment along Michigan highways. The major aim will be to find tree species best adapted to survive air and water pollution and salt damage arising from snow removal.

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AP) — Motorists in Yosemite National Park will get road directions and descriptions of scenic highlights this summer simply by tuning their radios to 650.

Short-range radio transmitters are being installed at strategic spots to tell visitors how to get to various places or explain the unique characteristics of the scenery they're approaching.

Each transmitter will continually repeat a different taped message that can be heard within a radius of about one-quarter mile.

As drivers near a transmitter, a sign will tell them to dial their radios to 650, the frequency the park service is using for its information service.

The United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association tells us that the Crusaders brought limes home with them to Europe, and it was Columbus who introduced limes to the New World on his second voyage.

WITH NEW PARTY RULES

Texas Demo Precinct Conventions Significant

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

Try something new Saturday night—go to a Democratic precinct convention and help your choice for president win the party's nomination in July.

For the first time, Texas precinct conventions will be a significant part of the process for choosing the Democratic nominee.

Republican conventions are expected to be little more than Nixon rallies.

New Texas Democratic Party rules give candidates with even minority support a chance of collecting some of the state's 130 delegate votes.

Hubert Humphrey, George Wallace, George McGovern and Edmund Muskie are making attempts of varying strength to get their backers to the precinct conventions.

Wallace and Humphrey are expected to campaign in Texas this week.

Muskie had tentatively been expected, but his decision Thursday to abandon active campaigning squelched that. Out-of-state workers for Muskie shut down their Houston headquarters Thursday and headed home.

McGovern's schedule is too tight for him to make a swing through Texas, says Robert Hauge, Rice University chemical researcher who is statewide co-chairman of the McGovern campaign.

Texas' chief political powers want the Texas delegation to go to the Miami convention uncommitted. Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, Gov. Preston Smith and party chairman Roy Orr all favor this position.

"My thoughts are that Texas will be more powerful at the convention if we go uncommitted," Orr said. "If you go down there, and 20 per cent are for one candidate and 20 per cent are for someone else, you are not as strong as you would be otherwise."

Hauge said the push is mainly "by those who are speaking for John Connally's effort to take an uncommitted delegation to Miami...Ben Barnes and Lloyd Bentsen will be answering to Connally."

Humphrey got off to a late start. He called his chief Texas supporters Wednesday morning with a request that they organize an effort for him in the precinct conventions.

Agriculture Commissioner John White, his wife and a number of labor leaders are pushing the Humphrey campaign.

"The 'uncommitted' thing really does represent a problem. But I think the left and the right are organized, and the great middle ground is going to have to find a candidate they can work with, and their alternative is Hubert Humphrye," White said.

McGovern and Wallace supporters seem to be the best organized, with the McGovern effort dating back to 1971.

Wallace waited until the new Democratic Party rules were adopted in March, but quickly organized after that and has been running an energetic Texas campaign ever since.

The Alabama governor has made two trips to Texas and has scheduled rallies in Beaumont and Houston Tuesday.

Mrs. Lee Sullivan, a bustling, gray-haired grandmother who runs Wallace's small, sparsely furnished Austin headquarter, says 180 counties are being organized.

The biggest fear of the "Texas Democrats for Wallace" is that many of his supporters will skip the Democratic primary so they can sign petitions to put him on the November ballot as an "American Party" candidate.

Wallace sent 10,000 letters to his American Party supporters, urging them to go to the Democratic precinct conventions.

"If you follow any other course in Texas, you will only succeed in dividing my forces in the state. This could be disastrous for our cause," Wallace said in the April 21 letter.

McGovern has headquarters in El Paso, Corpus Christi, San Antonio Dallas, Fort Worth, Arlington, Beaumont, Galveston, Austin and Houston.

"We're doing as much leafleting, and canvassing by telephone as we can possibly do," Hauge said, adding that working class neighborhoods had been "receptive" to McGovern's stand in favor of federal tax reform.

All the Presidential candidates' Texas organizations worry about making sure people understand the new party rules.

Until this year, all Texas delegates to the national convention voted alike under the unit rule and were pretty well dominated by such strong-willed political powers as Lyndon Johnson, Allan Shivers and John Connally.

But the national party killed the unit rule, and individual delegates now can vote their personal convictions.

How will the new Texas system work?

Only people who vote in the May 6 Democratic primary can participate in the precinct conventions and must show their stamped registration certificates or—in some counties—special party identification cards to get through the door.

When you arrive, you place your name and presidential preference, or the word "uncommitted," on a list.

The serious business of the precinct conventions is the election of delegates to county or senate district conventions. A precinct gets one delegate for each 25 votes cast in the precinct for Gov. Preston Smith in the 1970 general election.

Caucuses of supporters of various presidential candidates choose the delegates.

If your candidate for president has at least 20 per cent of the people listed on the precinct roll, you will caucus with them. If less than 20 per cent, you must join the caucus of your second choice. The uncommitted also caucus. Each caucus will choose a percentage of precinct delegates to the county or district convention equal to its percentage of strength in the precinct convention.

But if one candidate—or the "uncommitted" position—has 70 per cent of those present, the precinct can decide to cast all its votes at the county or district convention for that candidate or position. Wallace's people are ready to capture entire delegations wherever they get 70 per cent. Hauge says the McGovern forces won't take advantage of the 70 per cent rule.

The May 13 county and district conventions are where deals will be struck and coalitions formed to block certain candidates.

Nothing is in the rules about dividing delegates among presidential candidates at this state. So backers of candidates with little strength might have to join forces temporarily to keep from getting shut out at the next step, the state convention.

Hauge could even visualize an alliance between McGovern and Wallace supporters to stop the political "establishment's" push for an uncommitted delegation.

A county or district convention also will elect some delegates at large to the state convention to round out its strength to one delegate for each 300 votes cast for Smith in the county or senatorial district in 1970.

The numbers game starts all over at the state convention, and that's where each presidential candidate's ultimate strength in the Texas delegation will become apparent.

Seventh-five per cent of the 130 delegates to the national convention will be chosen by senatorial district caucuses under a formula that reflects both a district's population and its vote for Humphrey for president in 1968. The other 25 per cent will be chosen at large by the full convention.

Each delegate will mark a ballot with his presidential choice or "uncommitted" when he enters the convention hall.

Selection of delegates by district caucuses will be by majority vote, as in the county conventions.

The new party rules say the results of the "straw poll" on presidential candidates shall be a "general but non-binding guide" for use by district caucuses and a "strongly advisory guide" for the selection of at-large delegates to Miami.

This, the rules say, is "to help insure that the total delegation will be fairly representative of current political opinion within the statewide party."

And that's why the candidates are more interested in Texas at this stage of the political game than they ever have been before.

Junior Editors Quiz on ISINGLASS

QUESTION: What is isinglass?

* * *

ANSWER: Isinglass is the purest form of animal gelatin. It is a light colored substance, tough and semi-transparent, and is produced from the air bladder of certain fish. It may be secured from the common cod, but the finest isinglass comes from sturgeon which lives in Russian waters.

The bladder is taken from the fish and cleaned. The black outer skin is removed and the rest of the bladder is dried. Then it is dampened in warm water and the inner skin is eliminated by rubbing and beating. It is then passed between rollers and emerges as a thin, transparent ribbon.

Isinglass is used widely to clarify wines and beers and liquors. It is also used in jams, jellies and soups. It is employed in the making of India ink and certain types of glue and plastic and as a sizing for fabrics. Windows in stoves and furnaces are often called isinglass, but they are made of a mineral known as mica.

23 MEMBERS SEEK RE-ELECTION

Eighty Candidates In U. S. House Races

By JOHN L. HOTARD
Associated Press Writer

When voters go to the ballot box May 6, they'll find familiar names in the congressional primary races.

All but one of Texas' 23-member congressional delegation—24 after the November election—are seeking re-election.

The exception is Rep. John Dowdy of Athens.

Two incumbents even find themselves opposing each other this year after their districts were combined.

Texas will send at least two freshmen to the U.S. House after population shifts caused two new districts to be carved out of the urban areas.

In all, the Democrats are fielding 52 candidates in the 24 races and the Republican have 28 candidates in 14.

The race which perhaps is drawing the most attention is in Dowdy's East Texas district.

Dowdy was convicted recently by a Baltimore federal grand jury of bribery-conspiracy and is relinquishing his post, his wife running instead.

Mrs. Dowdy's strongest challenge appears to come from state Sen. Charles Wilson of Lufkin. Other Democratic hopefuls include Norman T. Birdwell of Hemphill, Louis V. McIntire of Orange and Thomas W. Porter of Vidor.

In the Republican primary, Dowdy's seat is being sought by Charles Brightwell of Nacogdoches and Maurice C. Elsberry of Clevelan.

The district stretches from Freestone, Leon, Madison and Grimes counties eastward to the Texas-Louisiana border.

Another interesting race in November will be in Dist. 13, where redistricting by the 19th Texas Legislature threw the two incumbents together. Democrat Graham Purcell of Wichita Falls will face Republican Bob Price of Pampa. Both are unopposed in the primaries.

Legislative redistricting also carved out the two new districts, one in Houston and one in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

In the 24th District, which takes in the midcities of Dallas and Fort Worth, state Sen. Mike McKool and former Dallas City Councilman Jesse Price are among eight seeking the Democratic nomination.

The others are Dorothy Bach, Jessey A. Coffey, Jim Gilley, Lee Goodman Jr., Dale Milford and Leon Rayburn-Williams.

Republicans in the race are George Arias, James Bond, Don Reeves, Courtney G. Roberts and Rose Vernon.

In Houston, state Sen. Barbara Jordan, the first black in modern times and the first woman ever to serve in the Texas Senate, is making her bid for Congress in the new 18th district in Harris County.

She is opposed in the Democratic race by State Rep. Curtis Graves, B. T. Bonner II, Milton King and Walter Nadnier. Paul Merritt, Abel Gonzalez and Alonzo Sargent oppose one another in the GOP race.

Four Democratic incumbents are home free—unopposed in both the primary and general elections.

They are Jim Wright of Fort Worth, Richard White of El Paso, George Mahon of Lubbock and Omar Burleson of Anson.

Eight incumbents, six of them Democrats, have no opponents in the May 6 primary, but will face challengers in November. Besides Price and Purcell, Rep. Ray Roberts of McKinney faces Republican challenger James Russell of Rusk, Rep. Olin Teague of Bryan will battle Carl Nigliazzo of Hearne, Rep. Jack Brookos of Beaumont faces the GOP's Randolph Reed of Houston and Rep. Jake Pickle of Austin is being challenged by Reinholdt Richter of Giddeings. Three Democrats—Sam Bostick, Jim Brady and C. L. Crider—are vying for the Democratic nominatin to challenge Republican Rep. Bill Archer of Houston in a pro-Republican Harris County district.

Rep. O. C. Fisher of San Angelo meets the winner of the Republican primary, either J. P. "Pete" Williams Jr. of New Braunfels of Doug Harlan of San Antonio.

Another six Democratic congressmen face primary battles but no November opposition, should they win.

Rep. Wright Patman of Texarkana is being challenged by Fred Hudson of Center, Rep. W. R. Poage of Waco will meet state Sen. Murray Watson of Mart, Rep. John Young of Corpus Christi is opposed by Yancy White of Portland, Rep. Kika de la Garza faces Ben A. Martinez of Kingsville, Rep. Henry B. Gonzales of San Antoiio is being opposed by Barron Fallis of San Antonio, and Rep. Abraham Kazen Jr. of Laredo meets Frank Boone of Pawnee.

In remaining races, the incumbent has a battle in the primary and then must win in November to return to Congress.

Rep. Jim Collins of Dallas is being met in the Republican primary by Tom Crouch. The winner faces the victor of the Democratic race between George A. Hughes and James M. Shepard.

Another Dallas Democratic race pits incumbent Earle Cabell against Mrs. Emily Cathey. GOP primary contestants include Robert Lyle, Gaylord E. Marshall, Rudolph Schmeishel, Ken Sikorski and Alan Steelman.

In Houston, Rep. Bob Eckhardt faces Democrat David Shell and the winner will oppose Republican Lewis Emerich in November.

Rep. Bob Casey of Houston is being opposed by state Rep. Johnny Nelms, and Ben Levy. James Griffin and Elsworth Tonn are fighting for the Republican mantle.

Oil Spills To Figure In Meet

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Oil spills in waters ranging from the Arctic region to the tropics will figure prominently in the world's largest conference on offshore technology.

More than 11,000 persons from around the world are to attend the three-day conference starting Monday. Service companies and manufacturers from France, Canada, the Netherlands, Japan, Africa, Australia and South America will be among the record 530 exhibitors.

The conference is a joint project of 11 international engineering and scientific societies with a combined membership of more than 400,000. In just four years, the attendance has jumped from 4,000 to more than 11,000.

The attendance boom is in line with a world wide boom in offshore oil and gas explorations.

Estimates of potential U.S. offshore reserves are indicative of the increased emphasis being placed on water explorations.

The U.S. Geological Survey has estimated between 160 and 190 billion barrels of crude oil and from 820 to 1,110 trillion cubic feet of natural gas should be recovered from the U.S. Continental Shelf under current technology and economics.

A crude oil potential study prepared by the National Petroleum council is more conservative but still impressive.

The council's study indicates about 60 billion barrels of recoverable crude oil in U.S. waters exclusive of the Gulf of Alaska and the offshore area adjacent to Alaska's North Slope region, where tremendous reserves discovered in 1968 still are without a market outlet.

While the council's estimate is significantly smaller than that made by the USGA, the indicated 60 billion barrels still is equivalent to nearly two-thirds of 97 billion barrels produced in the United States since 1859.

The 60 billion barrels estimate also dwarfs current U.S. proved reserves of 38 billion barrels, including Alaska's nonproductive North Slope region.

The domestic industry's 150-member potential gas committee has estimated U.S. offshore areas hold 238 trillion cubic feet of undiscovered natural gas. Again, Alaska's offshore areas were not included in the study.

The 175 technical papers to be presented during the conference include a report by Cmdr. G.P. Vance, professor of engineering at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, on the behavior of oil spills in the Arctic. A study off the northern coast of Alaska produced data on the spreading behavior of oil on ice and water surfaces, the interaction of crude oil with ice and the effectiveness of burning and absorption as methods for removing oil from ice.

J.L. Warner and J.W. Graham, professors of engineering at Nova Scotia Technical College, and R.G. Dean of the University of Florida will discuss the prediction of the movement of an oil spill on water.

Oil slicks on the open ocean will be discussed by George D. Waldman and Ronald A. Johnson of Wilmington, Mass.

Two technical sessions will emphasize new methods of detection, containing and removing ocean oil slicks.

Silver Custom

RACINE, Wis. (AP) — Collectors of antique silver are becoming more familiar with hallmarks appearing on old teapots, trays and candlesticks, says James Thornton of Goddard's Silver Museum.

A consumer protection device, the stampings were first instituted around 1300 in England when it became law for gold and silver articles to be tested, weighed and stamped before they could be sold. The first stamp was known as the King's mark and was in the form of a leopard's head.

Defect Detecter Tested

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston researcher foresees a deluge of electronic systems to detect eye defects overflowing diagnosticiaifs in the next 10 years.

"It doesn't take a lot of foresight to see confusion on a grand scale," said Dr. Thomas A. Decker of Baylor College of Medicine.

He said the first of such automated devices already are under tests.

He said the devices, using space age technology, will be electronic rather than mechanical and "uniformly expensive."

He predicted the systems will be marketed as the total answer to time consuming diagnostic procedures for busy doctors, with few solid facts to back the claims.

"The poor guy inpractice isn't going to know what's up," Decker said. "He will be deluged with all kinds of advertising claims."

Patients will be required to pay more for the expensive equipment with nobody really knowing if it is an improvement, he said.

Decker proposed that an organization "as free as possible of vested interests" be established for unbiasted testing.

He said the organization should include specialists in many fields, but not developers of the devices.

He said the organization should be based in medical colleges and could be funded through the federal government.

"After all, the government should be concerned that the patients get the best care," he said.

Late, Late Show

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — It was after 1 o'clock one morning when police were called by a movie patron who said he was locked inside a theater.

The man told police he had gone to the movies at 8:30 and had fallen asleep. Police directed the man, who had phoned from the ticket booth inside the theater, to a door which could easily be opened from the inside.

WITH ONE YEAR TO LIVE

Life New Ball Game

By RICHARD KISONAK

LEWISTON, Maine (AP) — I am scheduled to die this year.

For several months a mysterious, fatal disease, the name of which I can barely pronounce, has quietly and determinedly been waging a hellish war on my muscular system. It will continue to do this, the doctor says, until I am paralyzed—and die.

I found out about it on a raw, windy day last November. Since then my life has been a whole new ball game, and I don't know how I am going to react when it is obvious that my time is up.

It is a very rare disease called amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, and it results in degeneration and hardening of portions of the spinal cord. In time this brings on extreme weakness and, finally, paralysis and death.

Many years ago the same disease took the life of Lou Gehrig, the famous New York Yankee slugger. It is often called Lou Gehrig's Disease. The medical profession doesn't know what causes it.

I have agreed to put my feelings down on paper because of the possibility that what I have to say might be of some help in the future to somebody else. My message, for what it is worth, is that I have been able to adjust mentally to a point where I am able to cope so far with this awful thing that is pulling me down. Things aren't the same any more, of course, but at the same time my life is more beautiful and meaningful than ever before.

For almost 19 years I was a newsman for The Lewiston Daily Sun. The first signs that something was terribly wrong showed up about the middle of last year. I was losing weight, and also I began having a small speech problem. There was a slight slurring of some words when I spoke. At first it didn't concern me too much, as I figured it was caused by my dentures. I had the dentures realigned—but the speech problem grew steadily worse. A throat examination turned up nothing wrong there.

Summer went and autumn came and things were no better. Because of the speech problem, I was intentionally avoiding people.

By now there was a slight twitching of my tongue. Following a thorough examination, a specialist I went to see smiled and said he could find nothing wrong with me physically. He was 90 per cent certain, he added, that my speech and tongue problem was caused by an emotional thing. "Are you happy with your work? Do you have a problem at home with your wife or kids?"

Negative on both counts, I insisted. He insisted that all my signs were normal but that, if I wished, he'd arrange for me to be examined by a Portland specialist in neurology. Make an appointment, I said, and I went home wondering if I were beginning to lose some marbles upstairs.

The appointment was on Nov. 11 last year, the traditional Armistice Day observance. The doctor was very late. Later I was to wish that he hadn't shown up at all.

I remember that visit vividly:

We were in a side room and the doctor, a bland look masking his features, signalled that the examination was over. He said, "Get dressed, then get your wife." They were the last words he would speak to me.

Moments later Beverly and I sat before him side by side on hard chairs, waiting. The doctor, a young man with finely chiseled features and burning eyes, fingered a paper on his desk for what seemed like an eternity.

Then he turned to Beverly and said, "Your husband has a fatal disease.

"It is called amyotrophic lateral sclerosis," the doctor was saying, his eyes glued on a paperweight on his desk. "It also is known as Lou Gehrig's Disease."

The room was spinning crazily and my chest was on the verge of exploding. My arms were numb. My legs were rubber. In my head, the pounding intensified.

"I believe in being frank," the doctor was telling Beverly.

I looked at her. All over her face were the etchings of shock. Beverly was staring at the doctor, and her eyes were unbelieving.

"There is no cure," the doctor was saying. "There is no medication for it."

My heart was pounding madly, as I tried to digest what has happened. I couldn't believe it was happening to me. Say you are joking, doctor. Please say it isn't so. Please!

"He has all the symptoms," the doctor said to Beverly.

I managed to untangle the knots in my throat. I muttered, "Gawwd damn."

The doctor was explaining that it isn't a contagious disease. And it isn't a hereditary disease, he went on, in an apparent move to take some of the sting out of it for my wife and family. Beverly came across with the question that I didn't dare ask. How long did I have to live? The doctor answered quickly, bluntly.

"One year—if he's lucky."

Somewhere a siren was wailing. It was in another world. I got up, walked sluggishly to the inside wall in the doctor's office and slammed my fist hard against it.

Don't bother running to other doctors, hoping for another diagnosis, the doctor was telling my wife. It would be a waste of time and money. I should go home and enjoy what time I have left. I had an urge to walk over to his desk and break his nose with my fist.

We told the children the same night. Our kids are Richard Jr., 17, and Janis, 15, both students at Lewiston High School, and Wayne, 11, a fifth grader at Martel School. We called them to the kitchen before supper and told them what the doctor had said. When we'd finished, they cried.

Wayne rubbed his eyes with his left hand and complained, "But this only happens on television!"

Four days later, at Central Maine General Hospital in Lewiston, special tests confirmed the diagnosis. Confirmation was no surprise. Already I was beginning to adjust. A year if I'm lucky, the Portland doctor had said. If it was only nine months, that still gave me time to get in a bunch of living!

I made up my mind to live one day at a time, enjoying life to the fullest, and soon I was doing just that. A wonderful, understanding wife and children make it possible. We don't mention the disease much any more and life around the house has returned to near normal.

I am 42 years old, and I don't want to die. I want to stay with my wife and children. Oh, if I could stop the world from turning. Oh, if I could stop the clocks from ticking and make time stand still.

There is one thing I am going to try very hard to do. I hope I can hold my head high when it happens and handle it like a man. I'm going to try like hell.

Pros and cons of the quest for privacy

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: What's gotten into you? Everyone is entitled to privacy!

I refer to those people who were vacationing near Monterey when a car full of strangers drove up, and asked if they could share their picnic table. I think they had a lot of nerve trying to butt in that way.

I give those people credit for saying, "No, we want our privacy." You took the part of the intruders and gave out with a lot of dialog about "caring and sharing."

Look at the English. They are great protectors of their privacy. You don't see them letting just anybody move in and get chummy with them. LIKES MY PRIVACY

DEAR LIKES: For the other side of the coin, please read on:

DEAR ABBY: After reading about the people who didn't want to share their picnic table, I couldn't help but think how much they were missing. Privacy can be found in the confines of one's own home, and if that is what one wants, he should stay home.

We are not world travelers, but we have had many memorable outings when we took our children camping. We've shared picnic tables [and even lunches] with strangers from all over.

Had we wanted our privacy, we never would have met the two charming retired schoolteachers who were crossing the country on the narrow back byways instead of the freeways. ["You don't see anything from an airplane!"]

Or the party of happy young people who insisted that we share their campfire on the banks of a river one beautiful moonlit night too beautiful to describe.

Our children have romped with children of every color and creed, and it has enriched their lives.

Once we joined a family with nine children who were giving "Mamma" a vacation from the kitchen, treating her to a dinner of peanut butter and jam sandwiches and chocolate milk.

Those who shun strangers will never know the wonderful feeling of making friends of strangers, and have them blow you kisses when you wave them goodby.

Privacy seekers miss the whole point of living in, and enjoying, God's beautiful world, which belongs to all of us. I weep for them, and their growing numbers.

RECEIVED MORE THAN WE GAVE

DEAR ABBY: 27 years ago, I married a smart, young, ambitious man. Climb! Climb! Climb! Year after year the goals got higher. He worked, worked, worked!

Last week I nearly lost this wonderful man to a heart attack. What good was the split level home, the beautiful furniture, the sterling silver, the mink, the extra car? My only prayer was that this devoted husband and father should live to enjoy the fruits of his hard-earned labor.

I reproached myself a thousand times for having demanded so many material things. I nearly worked him to death. No wonder most women outlive their husbands.

I was lucky. Thank God mine is going to make it.

Abby, please tell young married women to settle for less and not to drive their husbands to exhaustion. Sign me,

GRATEFUL

DEAR GRATEFUL: No one can tell it like the one who's been there. Thanks for the reminder.

DEAR ABBY: Three of my friends came here for lunch and bridge the other afternoon. One is a widow, the other a divorcee and the third is married. They all had a wonderful laugh over a sign they had recently seen in the needlework department of The Farmers Market.

"NEEDLEWORK HAS TAKEN THE PLACE OF SEX"

TO APPEAR HERE—Fred Story, master magician, will present a magic show at 8 p.m. Saturday, May 13, in the Snyder High School Auditorium under the sponsorship of the Snyder Kiwanis Club. Tickets can be purchased in advance from any member of the Kiwanis Club. Here, Fred and his pretty partner practice one of their tricks.

Magic Show Set Here For May 13

The "Now you see it, now you don't," art of Fred Story, Master Magician and Company, will be on display at 8 p.m. Saturday, May 13, at the Snyder High School Auditorium when the star opens his show of "20th Century Phantasies."

For theatergoers who like magic revues, the appearance of Fred Story and Company is an adventure into the impossible. The present trend has been toward the sleek and sophistocated trickery which requires slight of hand at close distances. The large full evening show has taken a back seat in the present magic world.

Fred Story is unique at the moment, in that he presents a performance that runs a full two hours and utilizes over 2 tons of stage equipment. Of course, there are the small deceptive effects also which are a highlight of the masters show.

Some of the high spots in the show are "Where Do the Ducks Go?," "The Dancing Handkerchief," "Levitation," and the ever-popular and beautiful "Fantasy in Flowers."

Fred Story is a master in his field and his artistry and skill of presentation all rolled up with the dramatic touch make the "20th Century Phantasies" an entertaining two hours.

Tickets can be purchased from any member of the Snyder Kiwanis Club, the sponsoring organization, at the rate of $1 per person in advance of the show. At the door, tickets cost $1.50 per person. Children under six will be admitted free.

Term Paper Ads Nixed

KALAMAZOO, Michm (AP) — Advertisements from firms which market prepared term papers are no longer being accepted by the Western Herald, the student newspaper at Western Michigan University.

"There comes a time when one must decide what constitutes honesty and what doesn't," editor Will Snyder of Wyoming, Mich., explained.

"We have come to the conclusion that for one to buy a term paper from a mercenary and hand it in as honest work is a breach of honesty, and we have decided against further publication of term paper company advertisements."

Snyderite's Son Earns Honors At Ohio Univ.

GLENN HUFFMAN JR.

Glenn Huffman Jr., son of Mrs. Glenn Huffman, 3741 Sunset Avenue, recently received two college degrees and made the dean's list for scholastic achievement for both the fall and winter quarters at Ohio University.

He received the bachelor of science degree in interpersonal communication and also earned an associate of arts degree in aviation technology in 1971 at the university. He has been accepted for graduate study in the School of Education at Ohio U. and plans to transfer this fall to Temple University to complete his graduate work.

During the past session, Huffman, along with other students, taught communication theory to prisoners at a branch of the Ohio State Penitentiary. He is now employed by the Hocking Technical College as an instructor and teaches one of three communication courses being taught there.

Huffman will be working as a graduate research assistant on the Penal Education Project under the direction of Associate Prof. Charles V. Carlson, who has for the past year been setting up education programs in prisons throughout Ohio. He resently toured the state penitentiary in Huntsville to see first-hand what is being done in education for prisoners in Texas. He and two other prison educators are working together on an article for publication in the Speech Teacher, a national speech journal, on their experiences in teaching speech to prisoners.

The Institute for Aeronautical Education, located in New Jersey, recently named Huffman as a contributing editor for his contributions to a flight handbook published by the institute.

He is a member of the Speech Communication Association of Ohio and now lives at 13 High Street, Chancey, Ohio, with his wife, Bette, and their three children, Jennifer 10, John 7, and Patricia 6.

PA Building Is Approved

EDINBURG, Tex. (AP) — Architect Kenneth Bentsen of Houston was recently given approval to proceed with plans and specifications for a new $1.5 million business administration building at Pan American University.

The new building is to be the last in the $12 million Phase One development program at the Lower Rio Grande Valley university.

Only five of the 12 American League baseball teams seat 50,000 or more people.

Vacation Every Other Week

MARSHFIELD, Wis. (AP) — Employes in the physical therapy department at St. Joseph's Hospital get a one week vacation every other week.

But they have to work 10 hours a day, seven days a week every other week.

The experimental work calendar for the two therapy teams is finding favor with insurance companies and patients because it allows daily treatment.

This often shortens a patient's stay, hospital officials say.

Members of the two teams agreed to go without scheduled vacations in order to test the 26-week-off plan.

Scattered Rains Help Texas Crops' Prospect

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Rains which fell here and there in Texas in the past week—sometimes in good quantity—gave hope that something may be salvaged from what was a declining crop prospect.

The rains where they fell were in time to help just-planted crops, but the earlier drought had too big a bite on small grains in many areas and they were being grazed out or plowed up.

Cotton planting progressed northward with limited acreages being seeded in the Rolling and South Plains, said Dr. John E. Hutchison, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Planting in those areas will get into full swing in a couple of weeks where preplant irrigation is active. However, dryland areas will need planting moisture in those areas.

Wheat under irrigation is making good progress on the High Plains and in the Far West.

Corn and grain sorghum are growing well in South and Southeast Texas. Sorghum is showing some downy mildew in southern areas.

Harvesting of vegetables is active in the Rio Grand Valley and in parts of the Southwest. Peaches and pecans are making good growth over the state.

Livestock conditions are generally stable with supplemental feeding still active in western areas. conditions by districts:

Pan Handle: Irrigated wheat is making good growth while that on dryland suffers. Scattered showers brought little relief. Alfalfa looks good. Some insects are active. The recent frost killed peaches in Wheeler Coynty.

South Plains: Some farmers are seeding cotton and grain sorghum Preplant irrigation continued. Some alfalfa is being cut for the first time. Some feeding of livestock continues.

Rolling Plains: Most counties have received some moisture in recent days. Much of the small grain acreage is being grazed out or is being cut and baled for hay. Planting of grain sorghum and sudan has started as well as some cotton on irrigated acreage. Ranges are fair.

North Central: Cotton planting has reached the 30 per cent mark with planting of corn and grain sorghum near completion. Livestock remain in fair to good shape.

Northeast: Wheat, oats, barley and hay crops made slow growth due to the lack of rain but may pick up. Small acreages of corn and grain sorthum have been planted. Farmers waited on rain before planting cotton. Pastures and ranges need moisture.

Far West: It's still hot and dry. Some cotton is being planted. Irrigated small grains are heading out and alfalfa is being cut for bailing. Livestock feeding continues.

West Central: Rains of up to two inches blessed the area recently but soil moisture is still short. The small grain harvest will be sparse with much of the acreage being grazed out. Watermelons are growing well in Mason County.

Central: Prospects for a small grain crop are almost zero. From 50 to 70 per cent of the Blackland cotton crop has been planted. Pecans appear to be setting a good crop.

East: The first cutting of hay is underway in many counties. Most oats are about grazed out. Corn stands are fair. Pecans prospects are good.

Southeast and Upper Gulf Coast: Spring planting has been completed.

South Central: Planting of grain sorghum is complete with corn and cotton planting almost finished. The peanut acreage in DeWitt County is about half planted. Pastures and ranges are below average.

Southwest: Land preparation and planting of spring crops continued active during the week. Onions and some lettuce are being harvested. The cucumber harvest will get under way next week. Cantaloupes and watermelons are growing well. Pecans are setting nuts. Sheep shearing continues active.

South: Cotton and grain sorhum are making good growth but some grain sorghum is showing downy mildew. Vegetable harvesting includes potatoes, tomatoes, squash, onions, cabbage and cucumbers. Livestock still have generally adequate grazing.

Wine-Making Is Making Comeback

By STEVE WILSON
Associated Press Writer

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Wine-making, once considered a job for little old men with grape-stained feet working in dark cellars, is now coming out into the open in Indiana.

Speciality stores selling wine- and beer-making equipment have sprouted throughout the state.

Even in a somewhat unlikely wine making center such as the Sears Roebuck store in Terre Haute, a clerk says, "We've been having to restock the counter three times a day" with low-priced kits for the first time wine-maker.

It's "mostly the middle age group in the 30s and 40s and also young people," who are buying most of the kits, says Roxy Roenick, 20, a clerk at the suburban Glendale store of L.S. Ayers & Co. in Indianapolis. She says over 300 of the kits have been sold in her section of the store in recent weeks.

The demand to ferment your own wines has resulted in a new franchise business in the state—Wine-Arts stores. Within the last year, stores have opened in Anderson, Evansville, Indianapolis, Griffith and Mishawaka.

"We are the supplier of everything for the home wine makers," boasts Bob Higgins, 27, a former industrial engineer who now runs the Wine-Arts store in Mishawaka.

"I've been making wine for quite a while; I started fooling around with it in high school," he admits. Back in those bad old days, just three or four years ago, home wine-making was an ordeal, because the proper equipment and supplies were hard to get, he says.

Those dark days are now past, Higgins claims from his shop that stocks everything from imported grape concentrates to bottle corking devices.

"Some are doing it for fun and some for economy. And there is quite a bit of economy in it if you enjoy doing it," says Higgins.

Good wines cost less than $1 a bottle "including the cork" when you do it yourself. Beer is brewed for less than 10 cents a bottle, once you have the basic equipment, he says.

However, most persons appear less interested in saving money than in having a hobby to take up a few spare hours, claims Saul Cye, operator of the Wine-Arts store in Indianapolis.

Homemade wine and beer-making is also producing a lot of homemade criminals.

Federal law allows the "head of the household" to make 200 gallons of wine a year. But, apparently, if a wife wants to start her own gallon of blackberries fermenting, she would be breaking the law.

Enforcing such laws is not too efficient, to say the least, Internal Revenue Service officials point out.

Beer-making is strictly against the law for anyone but authorized breweries.
