Draft Studied...

Panel Suggests 6-Month Hitch

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Pentagon advisory panel is recommending that Congress consider reinstituting a version of the military draft that would require youths to serve six months and then decide whether to stay on active duty longer or join the reserves.

Louis J. Conti, chairman of the Reserve Forces Policy Board, called this a "try it before you buy it" approach.

Reporting to Congress, Conti noted recent increases in Reserve and National Guard strength but said the board still is concerned over "inadequate force levels which must be responsive to mobilization demands."

The board, which includes reserve and active-duty senior officers as well as civilian officials, functions by law as an adviser to the secretary of defense.

However, Conti made it clear the board was not speaking for Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger when it expressed its views to Congress.

There has not been a military draft in the United States since 1973 and it would take an act of Congress to revive it.

However, draft registration, which was ended by former President Ford in 1975, was resumed for young men last summer by former President Carter to have names on hand in case the draft was reinstituted.

Weinberger and President Reagan have indicated reluctance to keep the draft registration machinery intact and have voiced strong opposition to reviving the draft itself.

"The board fully realizes that a return to the draft will fall far short of resolving all the pro-

Speaking Softly On El Salvador

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reacting to concern that it is risking a new Vietnam-type conflict, the Reagan administration is suddenly speaking softly about its involvement in El Salvador while sending Green Berets to train government troops in guerrilla warfare.

Meanwhile, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig told reporters this morning the guerrillas may be "running short of ammunition" and said the United States has "seen some slackening of the movement of arms through Nicaragua."

But Haig said there is evidence that Cuba, which the United States maintains has been using Nicaragua as a funnel for arms going to the Salvadoran guerrillas, is searching for "alternative routes" for arms supplies.

On Thursday, several officials said the administration has decided against any deeper involvement in El Salvador, barring some major setback to the government at the hands of Marxist guerrillas. And even then, no one was prepared to predict the United States would do anything more.

Ask Us

Q.—How do you keep neighbors' cats and stray cats out of your yard, and is it against the law to shoot them or poison them?

A.—Yes, it is against the law to shoot or poison animals in the city, and cats are more difficult to control than dogs. The city animal officer will provide you with a cat trap and if, and when a cat is caught in the trap, the animal officer will come and remove it. You may contact the animal officer through the police department.

Another Fire At TCU

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The third arson-related fire at Texas Christian University campus in one week damaged an art department print shop, but officials say the blaze was not directly linked to an earlier pair of fires.

Arrests in Oil Probe

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — Police in two states have arrested 11 people named in sealed indictments returned by a Gregg County grand jury in connection with oil thefts from the huge East Texas Oil Field, the sheriff said.

Gregg County Sheriff Bobby Weaver said Texas authorities have made eight arrests and three people were arrested in Oklahoma.

In all, 16 people were named in two sealed indictments returned Monday by the grand jurors, charging the defendants with engaging in organized crime and conspiring to commit theft over $10,000.

ACAPPELLA—The Acappella Mixed Choir won sweepstakes by taking a I in concert and I in sight reading when Snyder High School Choir students were in competition at the Abilene Civic Center recently. Ninth grade girls were given I in concert and I in sight reading and the men's choir had I in concert and III in sight reading. Pictured in the front row are Jeanna Fox, Teka Eicke and Linda Walker, representatives from the freshmen girls choir. From left, back row, are Paul Fagin, baritone section leader and reporter; John Davis, vice-president; Dale Shifflett, first tenor section leader; James Hanks, bass section leader and treasurer; Kelly Scott, second alto section leader; Randy Cook, president, second tenor section leader; Katrina Humble, first alto section leader; Teresa Smith, second soprano leader; Diane Sentell, secretary; and Becky Pierce, first soprano section leader. MOVING IN—Hospital personnel have been moving their equipment to the emergency room in the new wing at Cogdell Memorial today and were expected to begin using the facility at noon today. Emergency patients are to be brought to the door on the north side of the wing under the covered driveway. The new trauma room and waiting room are also being readied for use. Cy Miller, hospital administrator, says they don't know yet when the rest of the new wing will be ready for use. Shown moving in supplies are, from left, Eula Williams, Jean Campbell and Clara Salmon. (SDN Staff Photo)

Weather Modification Project Put On Block

The HIPLEX weather modification research program, in which the Colorado River Municipal Water District has been a participant, may become a casualty of federal spending cuts.

Roy Peeples, budget officer for the United States Water and Power Resources Service, which has spearheaded the HIPLEX effort, said that the $4 million set aside for HIPLEX would be wiped out entirely next year under the proposed cuts. He added that Secretary of the Interior James Watts supported elimination of the program on the grounds that private donations and increased state funding would fill the vacuum. Besides the federal service, other cooperators in the Texas part of the research have been the Texas Department of Water Resources, the CRMWD, Texas A&M University and Texas Tech University.

While Peeples said the program this summer will not be affected, Bob Riggio, head of the weather and climate section of the Texas Department of Water Resources, disagreed. The Texas plan for the next five-year period has not been approved by the Power and Water Resource Service, hence funds for this summer's work may be limited

Gilbreth To Quit Post At Diamond M

Terry Gilbreth, director of the Diamond M Museum here, has submitted his resignation to the Diamond M Foundation.

"This is one of the finest things I have ever been associated with," said Gilbreth, a well-known sculptor and painter.

However, he said he felt that he had to give up his duties at the museum to devote full time to his own work, He and his family plan to continue living in Snyder and he plans to continue operation of his own foundry to fill sculpture orders that have been piling up.

"We have shows coming up from California to Columbus, Ohio, and there is a big backlog of orders," Gilbreth said.

"I appreciate the support here, and my family and I like the community, the school system and other things in Snyder."

He said the foundation had indicated that future plans for staffing the museum would probably be made in May.

to state funding. Because HIPLEX is a research effort that covers the High Plains, from bases in Big Spring to Miles City, Mont., it is unlikely that Texas would carry on alone.

O. H. Ivie, general manager of CRMWD, said it is his understanding that some $50,000 in federal funds for this summer's work has never been cleared because the Texas five-year projection has not been approved. He also pointed out that the vast bulk of HIPLEX funds in the first five years of the research has gone to the Montana study and that Texas received a very minor share of the funding.

What happens to HIPLEX, he added, will not directly affect the CRMWD weather modification effort during 1981.

"We carried out our own program for 10 years, and we plan to continue the summer cloud-seeding efforts," said Ivie.

As part of its contribution to HIPLEX, the CRMWD has made data from its comprehensive rain gauge network, together with some of its facilities, equipment and manpower available. The CRMWD has contracted with HIPLEX to furnish two airplanes for cloud-seeding and for cloud physics research.

Ivie ventured that something similar to HIPLEX will be needed in the long run, especially in view of an in-depth study the federal government and others are making into the depletion of the Ogallala aquifer.

Hostages Not Out Of Danger

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The leader of a trio of hijackers warned today that none of the more than 100 hostages aboard a Pakistani jetliner seized 12 days ago would be freed "until all political prisoners and family members" released by Pakistan arrive in Libya.

The Pakistani military government began assembling the political prisoners it agreed to free Thursday after the heavily armed hijackers threatened to kill three Americans among the hostages. Libya, asked to provide asylum for the hijackers and to receive the freed prisoners, has agreed, a Pakistani diplomat here said.

Pakistani officials said the latest demands by the hijackers were "not a problem," but that the timing of the release was still unsettled.

Jim Cornish of the Post Dispatch reports that the sun will rise at 6:43 a. m. March 22. This is an important piece of news for people in and around Post, because that is when the farmers of the area will learn what to expect from their crops this year.

A ceremony called Taba'na Yuan'e is held at sunrise on the first day of spring each year at Post. The event begins with Frank (Chief) Runkles lighting a fire by rubbing two sticks together. The smoke from the fire then is used to determine the wind direction at sunrise, which is the basis for the crop yield predictions.

The Sweetwater Reporter says city officials there have discovered that water from any source is likely to be more and more expensive.

A consulting engineering firm told them that development of a well field they are considering could cost $6.8 million before any water reaches a household tap.

That is more than half the cost of the original Colorado River Municipal Water District project of the early fifties which provided water for Snyder, Big Spring and Odessa and included construction of a 200,000-acre-foot lake.

a stillness in iran

Have you noticed anything different about Iran lately?

It isn't making the headlines it did for so long and until so recently. The country and its continuing tumult have by no means dropped out of the news, but they have slipped from front to inside pages.

It could, of course, be sheer coincidence that this has followed so rapidly upon the release of the hostages. But it is not.

This country and the rest of the energy-consuming world have long since adjusted to the impact of the Iranian revolution on oil economics and politics. The war with Iraq is stalemated, and in their internal squabbles the revolutionaries have been repeating themselves for some time. In short, there's not much new coming out of Iran to make news.

With the removal of the hostage issue that had brought that country's insititutionalized chaos so intensely and personally home to this country, Americans have with something like relief turned their attention to other matters — to the settling in of the Reagan administration, early skirmishing over the budget and economy and the explosive development of a new international crisis in El Salvador.

If this comes as relief to Americans, it could also be of some benefit to Iran. A little less publicity for a time may make it somewhat easier for the Iranians to bring themselves to the compromises and accommodations necessary in dealing constructively with their manifold problems, most of what they have brought upon themselves. The revolution has a great deal of unfinished business to dispose of.

This is a situation and a period when little news may in fact be the best news.

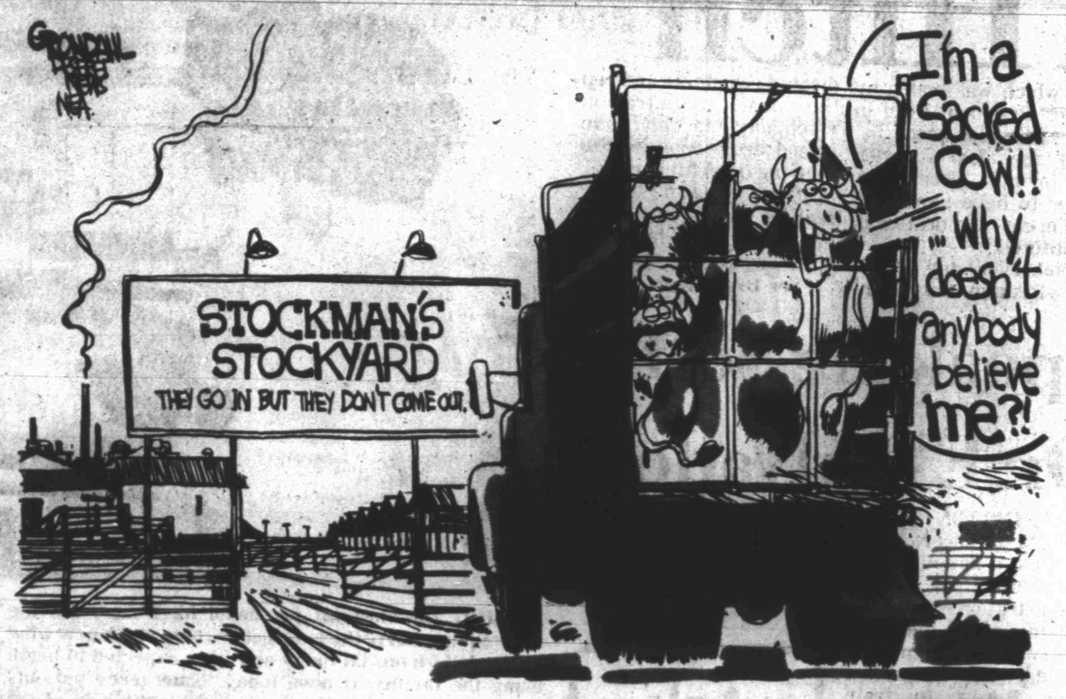

unwanted freedom

It sounds like a plot for a classic Peter Sellers film. A tiny Asian country is about to receive independence from Britain, but it does not want it.

Brunei, a tiny Asian state near Borneo, spends it oil wealth on things like polo, celebrating Queen Elizabeth's birthday as a national holiday, maintaining a Winston Churchill museum and paying Britain $2.5 million a year for Princess Mary's own Gurkha rifles, a crack honor guard. It probably would not surprise anyone if it turned out the people raise bulldogs and the upper classes wear tuxedos to dinner.

So uneager for independence has the country been, that few natives have been trained to take over for the British administrators. Brunei passports are still handled in London.

Indeed, if Britain goes down the tubes, places like Brunei may preserve what is left of the old customs, just as former Roman colonies such as France and Britain herself, preserved some of the old Roman codes and standards when Rome was overrun by barbarians.

at wit's end

by erma bombeck

If you are under ten years old, there are three things you cannot relate to:

A day without denim.

Real money.

A home-cooked meal.

Last year, in a typical household in this country, everyone in it ate out 6.4 times a week (mainly the main meal) at a cost of $25.86 per week per household.

It should be obvious to everyone that Moms have not kept pace with the competition. While fast-food emporiums were developing secret sauces, mopping floors to music, hiding prize-winning numbers under the lettuce and putting applie pie under a red spotlight, Moms were pushing the same tired well-balanced meals.

Face it! Food is show biz! You have to have pizzazz to keep kids eating at home. When was the last time you saw your mother standing under Golden Arches singing about hamburgers? When was the last time she wore a derby hat and tap-danced with a cane while serving you pizza? Or cooked Chinese food at your table while juggling two meat cleavers?

I don't excuse myself. I was one of the mothers who thought home-cooked meals would go on forever. I became sloppy, careless and took the family for granted. Then I realized we were eating out all the time.

I said to my children one night, "How would you like to stay in this evening and have a home-cooked meal?"

"What's a home-cooked meal?" they asked.

"It's where we stay at home and Mommy cooks dinner."

My son propped my mouth open with a fork and said, "I'll have two burgers, three fries and a chocolate malted."

"No, no, dear," I said, removing the fork. "You don't understand. Mommy cooks whatever she wants and serves it."

Later as I spooned beef stew generously on their plates, I saw them heading toward the car. "Where are you going?" I asked.

"To the car, and how do you eat this stuff with your fingers?"

"You don't. You use silverware and you eat at the kitchen table."

"What's silverware and where's the little flag on the table that we raise for more catsup and more to drink and seconds on the chips?"

"You get up and get the stuff yourself."

Afterward, as I washed and dried dishes into the night, I couldn't help but wonder if the home-cooked meal didn't deserve to die.

my turn

by john dunnam

Whether it's bunions on the bottoms of our feet, or that good old West Texas hay fever pressure-packed into the top of our heads, or something in between, we all have our pet ailments.

Inflation or not, we support the vitamin hawkers in high style, and cheerfully try every concoction that promises relief of the common cold, and swallow aspirin-substitutes as fast as they can turn them out, and then sit back passively and watch TV as the commercials show us yet more everyday situations that produce headaches cured only by their pills.

It's enough to upset a person's stomach.

Since it is Friday the 13th, or in spite of it, let's forget about lower-back pain and the ravages of stress, and ponder a few of the amazing facts about the human body.

Consider your eyes for a moment. Did you know that your eye can distinguish nearly 8 million differences in colors?

The ears aren't there just to hold up your glasses either. They can discriminate among more than 300,000 tones.

The next time you have trouble getting up in the morning remember that if all 600 muscles in your body pulled in one direction, you could lift 25 tons.

Your body produces one billion red blood cells every day. (And you thought you worked hard.)

Your heart pumps more than 5 quarts of blood every minute, 2,000 gallons a day.

Every pound of excess fat you carry requires an extra 200 miles of capillaries.

One cubic inch of bone can withstand a two-ton force.

More than half of your body's 206 bones are in your hands and feet.

Your digestive tract is 30 feet long.

The surface area of your lungs is 1,000 square feet—20 times greater than the surface area of your skin. (really)

Also, since it is Friday the 13th, perhaps it is an appropriate time to look at the dark side of exercise. The following are the proponents of the anti-exercisers:

Chauncey Depew—Politician and railroad president: "I get my exercise acting as a pallbearer to my friends who exercise."

Robert Maynard Hutchins—Eminent educator and former president, University of Chicago: "I never sit when I can lie down. Whenever I feel the urge to exercise, I lie down until it goes away."

Dr. Peter J. Steincrohn-Medical doctor and author: "The American obsession with exercise-exercitis-is an iatrongenic disease." (Note: Webster defines this as a disease caused by doctors.)

Robert Darling-Authority on physical medicine and rehabilitation, when asked how much exercise an office worker needs to keep physically fit: "Fit for what? Your're physically fit if your body can get you through your day's work. As for exercise itself, it's been the subject of a lot of nonsense."

If you are a health nut and disagree with these people, I'm afraid you're out of luck as far as changing their minds is concerned. Why? Most of them are already dead.

NEW YORK (AP) — If you're mortgaged to the limit — first mortgage, second mortgage and probably a home improvement loan too — you have some understanding also of the condition of American industry.

These are hard times. Businesses are paying some of the highest interest rates ever, and they're paying them on bigger loans than they can really tolerate. They need them to survive.

Henry Kaufman, a man who keeps reminding us of the painful realities of our personal, business and government economies, says the financial positions of corporations are worse than at any time in decades.

Kaufman, a partner of Salomon Brothers, the investment bankers, has offered so many grim reminders of late that he might by now have lost his audience were it not for his credibility and reputation, built by numerous demonstrations of economic knowledge and forecasting acumen.

He relates this "alarming" tale about the deteriorating credit structure of American corporations:

—The ratio of liquid assets to short-term liabilities has been cut to one-third the level of the 1950s. It is now at a record low of 0.60 for the post-World War II period. (In the case of an individual, a record like that might earn him a flag on his file at the local bank.)

—The ratio of corporate long-term debt to short-term debt is now at a new low of 2.5 to 1, compared with nearly 4 to 1 in the late 1950s and 3.4 to 1 in the second half of the 1960s. (It's hard to borrow long when you have no notion at all what to expect in the next decade.)

—The growth of corporate liabilities in the past five years is outpacing the growth of equity by the huge margin of 3.5 to 1. (If that happened to you it would present a sick, sinking feeling. Maybe it is.)

—The interest expense of corporations is now equal to a "vast" 45 percent of net profits before taxes, compared with 14 percent in the 1960s. (Try applying that ratio to your household budget.)

—Corporate credit quality, as reflected in credit ratings, is disturbing. In 10 of the past 12 years, more corporate bond issues have been downgraded than have been upgraded.

And now for the worst: Despite good intentions, President Reagan's fiscal policy is unlikely to be sufficiently forceful in throttling inflation, which is the prerequisite for improving corporate credit.

That's Kaufman's latest forecast, based on an analysis that also produced the possibility of a fiscal 1982 budget deficit of $60 billion or $70 billion instead of the $45 billion foreseen by Reagan.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Members of the Democratic National Committee met here recently for the first time since their party's debacle at the polls last November. There was much swapping of horror stories as is common at reunions of survivors of a common disaster.

The meeting signaled the start of the Democratic Party's search for new leadership and new ideas. It is beginning to appear that this search will be long and difficult.

At the heart of the problem is a disagreement among Democrats as to what exactly happened on Election Day.

Some party chiefs refuse to concede that a majority of the voters turned their backs on the themes that have united Democrats for nearly 50 years. Instead, they blame the party's losses on Jimmy Carter and John White, the former president's hand-picked DNC chairman. These Democrats say that the party needs only to return to its traditional values to regain momentum for the 1982 and 1984 elections.

Others in the party attribute the Republican victories to the disenchantment of many voters with those same traditional Democratic values. These Democrats agree that their party must redefine itself for the 1980s but disagree on what its new identity should be.

Initially, the biggest decision facing the party is who will lead its rebuilding. Several factions are fighting for control behind the scenes.

Some Democratic leaders want former Vice President Walter Mondale to be at the center of power; others support Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass. Some say that the leadership should come from the still-Democratic house, which would mean a big role for house Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, D-Mass.

Still others say that Washington's Democratic establishment has been thoroughly discredited and should be replaced by an entirely new power structure of Democratic leaders from outside the nation's capital.

The top order of business at the Washington meeting was the election as party chairman of Charles Manatt, a California lawyer who had served as national finance chairman and as chairman of the California Democratic Party. Manatt fought hard for the post and won almost unanimous approval through the time-honored political strategy of offering his opponents important party jobs in exchange for their support.

Manatt plans to take a leaf from the book written by Bill Brock, who headed the Republican National Committee during the comeback years of 1977 to 1980.

The new chairman says that his first responsiblity will be to rebuild the party's tattered organizational structure. He gives high priority to recruiting professionals who will remain independent of any candidate.

Another of Manatt's early tasks will be launching a major fund-raising program that will rely on direct-mail solicitations.

The Republicans have raised millions of dollars in small contributions through direct-mail appeals, while the Democrats have traditionally relied on large sums from a relatively small number of contributors. Manatt especially wants to solicit donations from younger, moderately affluent voters who might give annual amounts in the $500 range.

Manatt also realizes that the party must begin a serious reappraisal of its philosophy. But events at the Washington meeting illustrated how hard it would be for the party to turn even slightly away from its traditional liberalism.

Above all, party leaders wanted to present to the nation a picture of a party unified and beginning to rebuild. But they were prevented from doing so by a series of bitter regional and racial battles.

For example, many blacks have called upon the party to aggressively fight President Reagan's economic proposals, which they view as anti-black. Manatt, however, does not want to involve the party in major national issues while it is preoccupied with the nuts and bolts of rebuilding.

So, the blacks sought to increase their strength on the DNC at the same time that organized labor was seeking to boost its strength at the expense of two black seats. A walkout was narrowly averted when Manatt greed to maintain black representation at the existing level.

All of this points up the difficulty of rebuilding a party that is bitterly divided over what it should be, what it should do and what it should stand for — especially at a time when the rival party is becoming more united and more certain of its identity with each passing day.

ASTRO·GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

March 14, 1981

This should be a more active year for you socially than you have exerienced for quite some time. If you happen to be unattached, this may be especially true.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You have excellent leadership qualities today because you know how to manage others without making them feel they are being directed. Romance, travel, finances, luck and possible pitfalls are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your concern for those you love will be strong today. You'll be anxious to help make things easier for them. Do so without admonishing them simultaneously.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You tend to reflect the attitudes of persons you're with today, so make it a point to be with cheery types. You'll be assured of a pleasant day.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Sometimes, in order to get what we want, we must first cast a little bread upon the waters. A thoughtful gift to the right person could smooth your path today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If companions do something worthy today, by all means acknowledge their accomplishments with a few kind remarks. Compliments mean a lot.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's often been said that, when one is lucky materially one is usually not lucky in love. What may occur for you today should dispel this theory.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today's happenings may offer you the opening you've been looking for to draw closer to someone you are fond of, but whom you've been unable to truly reach.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Situations others may find a bit intimidating won't prove difficult for you today. You have the ability to make the hard look easy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You don't need to be doing special things today or to be around certain types of people in order to enjoy yourself. Where you go, the sunshine follows.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Something could occur today to give you the opportunity to change things for one you love. By all means, make this a top priority.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your secret for success today is to bend a little extra in order to show others how cooperative you really are. A right example is magic.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Doing good work is reward in itself, but today jobs which you perform well may carry extra bonuses. Take pride in your tasks.

Husbands Host Party For Beta Sigma Phi

Members of Beta Sigma Phi were guests of their husbands at the Knights of Gold Blue-Tongue Festival Saturday night. Husbands of social committee members planned and carried out the festival which was held in the home of Mickey and Jerry Baird.

Bill Early was the evening's chef and oversaw the roasting of a pig and served it to guests. Others on the committee were John Greene, Mackey Greene, Howard Limmer, Joe C. League, and Baird.

Following the dinner, there was dancing in addition to songs around a campfire.

Special guests were Mrs. Baird's brother and his wife, Jack and Brenda Weaver.

Members and husbands attending were Mona and Truett Bryan, Wanda and Bill Early, Donna and Joe Fowler, Carolyn and John Greene, Bette and Joe League, Carolyn and Howard Limmer, Twila and Glenn Polk, Sue and Morris Sewell, Mary Lou and Troy Scott, Carol and Chuck Kelly, Cyndee and John Gayle, Judy and Ray Max Grimmett, Carolyn and Keith Glaze, Barbara and Joel Hamlett, Paula Middleton and Joe Simpson and Harold Ellis.

When you play bridge you have to be an optimist... especially if you like to bid. For example, take today's four heart contract.

The bidding needs some explanation. West's double of two hearts is a negative double showing length in the unbid suits and at least seven high card points. North's redouble shows a good hand considering that everyone else is bidding.

East passes to let West get out of his own trap and West does so by bidding two spades. North goes to three hearts and South bids four hearts because he feels like bidding.

South wins the spade lead and takes stock. He has two spade losers, the ace of trumps and possibly the jack, one club loser and problems in diamonds. He wishes he hadn't bid four hearts, but there he is, flying at 10,000 feet with one motor conked out.

Still, with a little bit of luck, he might get home.

He takes his ace of spades and promptly leads the jack of diamonds for a finesse. West produces the king and things have started out nicely. He plays dummy's ace of diamonds and leads a trump from dummy.

East produces the ace, cashes two spades and shifts to a club. South takes his ace, draws the last trump and now is ready for the plunge.

He leads his five of diamonds. West plays low, South plays dummy's nine, the finesse for the ten works, and South makes his contract instead of going down two.

Invalid's Live-In Help Might Take Out Jewelry

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My mother is an invalid, close to 80. She has live-in help to look after her, and she changes help very often. With so many strangers coming and going, a problem has come up.

Several years ago, when Mother first became ill, we agreed that I would place her jewelry (which is very valuable) in a bank vault. Now she wants me to bring all her jewelry home.

I told her that I would be glad to take out special pieces for her to wear on special occasions, but this doesn't seem to please her. She wants all her jewelry at home.

I am so afraid it will be stolen. It's her jewelry, Abby. What to do?

WORRIED DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: One of the most controversial issues people must deal with is, "How much can one properly do for somebody else's 'own good'?"

Your reluctance to let your mother keep her valuable jewelry at home is understandable, and very wise indeed. It may be her jewelry, but you are her daughter and responsible for her welfare.

Bring all the jewelry home for Mother to see and handle, and then return it to the bank for permanent safekeeping. Continue to reassure your mother that it's much safer there. And keep reassuring her. And reassuring her.

DEAR ABBY: I am 11 years old and have a big problem. My mom and dad fight at night, and last night they had a big one. There was loud yelling and I woke up scared and sick. I started to cry and my dad came into my room and gave me a glass of water. I asked him why they had to argue all the time, and he said, "Your mother is not well."

Abby, they act like children. My mom puts my dad down, and I don't like to listen to it. Please print this to let them know that I love them both, but I sure wish they wouldn't argue so loud. Thank you, Abby.

PROBLEM CHILD

DEAR CHILD: I am printing this letter because you aren't the only child with this problem. I hope all parents will realize that little pitchers have big ears. And are easily shattered.

DEAR ABBY: I went to a shower for an acquaintance. The hostess was a lady I had met only once before. We played a game and I won a darling stuffed animal. I was delighted, and planned to give it to my youngest child.

In the hustle and bustle of leaving, I left my prize behind. The next day when I went to pick it up, the hostess told me that she had given it to the guest of honor. She said it was customary that all prizes be turned over to the honored guest! She said she assumed that my leaving my prize behind meant that I wanted her to have it.

I thought this was rather presumptuous and felt quite annoyed that she didn't leave that decision to me. Am I wrong for feeling that way? And are prizes won at a party traditionally turned over to the guest of honor?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Some prize-winners do give their prizes to the guest of honor, but it is not traditional. Your hostess should not have assumed that because you left the toy behind she had the right to dispose of it.

Reaves Tells Athenium Club Of Summer Trip To Greece

Laquita Reeves presented a program to the Atheneum Study Club at their regular meeting. She showed slides and told of her trip to Greece last summer in the American Field Service program.

A Western Texas College scholarship of $220 has been given by the club for the coming year and also a $100 donation to the American Field Service.

The club recently held a social in the home of Martha Scheibel with husbands as guests. A Mexican supper was served, after which a program of 1950's music was presented by Glen Poll, Donna Fowler and Sue Sewell.

The next meeting will be in the home of Shirley Jones at Fluvanna.

BIRTHDAYS—Leisure Lodge residents celebrating March birthdays were (sitting) Thomas Hunt and Francis Frazier. The Highland Bakery donated a cake for the birthday party, Hub Evans, with Gandy's, gave ice cream and Hinshaws sent boutonnieres for the men. R.S.V.P. volunteers who helped with the party included, from left, George Montandon, Juanita Land who is the new administrator, Opal Evans, Sam Floyd, Irene Hudgins and Dean Cochran. First UMC Sets Four-Day Revival

A four-day Lenten Revival will begin Sunday at First United Methodist Church in Snyder.

Speaker for the services will be Dr. Donald W. Haynes, vice president for institutional advancement of St. Paul School of Theology (United Methodist) in Kansas City.

Dr. Haynes will speak in the Sunday morning service of worship at 10:55 a.m. and Sunday through Wednesday evenings at 7 p.m.

There will be a luncheon at the church Sunday at noon.

Sermon topics announced by Dr. Haynes are:

Sunday at 10:55 a.m., "The Gospel for Our Time;" Sunday at 7 p.m., "Knock, Knock, Who's There?" Monday at 7 p.m., "The Power to Become;" Tuesday at 7 p.m., "What It Means to Live by Faith;" Wednesday at 7 p.m., "Lord, Teach Us to Pray."

A native of Rockingham County, N. C., Dr. Haynes holds degrees from High Point (N. C.) College and Duke University and has done additional study at Western North Carolina University, Oxford University, the University Of Edinburgh, the University of London and at Duke.

DR. DONALD HAYNES

He has held several pastorates in North Carolina and also has held offices in several denominational organizations.

Police Report Minor Mishap

Police investigated a minor accident Thursday and apprehended a shoplifting suspect.

At 2:14 p.m. a 1981 Ford driven by Margaret Stubblefield of Rt. 2 struck a parked 1977 Chevrolet, owned by Joe Carrisalez, also of Rt. 2. Only minor damage was reported.

A juvenile shoplifting suspect was taken into custody shortly after an incident in Hastings Books and Records in Varsity Square Shopping center. That report was logged in at 5:32 p.m.

The International Olympic Committee was formed at the Congress of Paris in 1894, two years before the modern Olympic Games were begun in Greece.

French and English are the official languages of the International Olympic Committee.

St. John's Sets Classes

St. John's Episcopal Church, 2214 42nd St., will hold Episcopal information classes at 7 p. m. on Tuesday evenings beginning March 17.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Concerned about impotence

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a male, 21, and I am concerned about being impotent. I would like to know if this trait is hereditary. Neither of my parents had any problem since they had seven children. My sister is now having a problem getting pregnant.

I would like to know if the male always ejaculates sperm in a white milky substance or can it also be clear. Who can I go to about this problem? Is there a certain type of doctor for this? Is there a test that can answer my question about impotence?

DEAR READER — We need to sort out some terms first. I think you are concerned about being infertile, the ability to produce adequate healthy sperm to induce a pregnancy. Impotence, as commonly used, means difficulty in obtaining or maintaining an erection.

The fluids from the male do vary some — depending upon sexual activity. The milky white fluid is normal with an orgasm but clear fluid may be present as a lubricant.

I think you have a lot of questions you need answered so I am sending you The Health Letter number 17-4, Male Reproductive Functions. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Yes, there is a test that can be done. A portion of the ejaculate can be examined under the microscope and the number of sperm cells actually counted, like counting seeds. Their characteristics can be observed, whether they are motile or not. This is usually the basis for determining whether a male is sterile.

You can talk to your family doctor about these matters. He will be able to answer your questions. Sterility is not usually an inherited problem, because sterile couples don't have many offspring.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My son is 16 and thinks he has syphilis. He says he has never had sexual intercourse. He has only one symptom, bumps on the penis. My husband and I have told him it is acne or a rash. Could this be true?

DEAR READER — In very rare cases a person can get syphilis from the edge of a moist glass or in some way that permits the syphilis germ to live in moisture long enough to be transmitted. That is so rare that you can be rather certain that if a person has never had intercourse he or she does not have syphilis — unless you want to talk about congenital syphilis that a baby can be born with.

Syphilis may cause a localized sore. This is called a chancre and is a primary lesion. It doesn't last long and usually forms a painless ulcer.

Syphilis can cause a rash but it is usually generalized. Since the germs are transmitted by the bloodstream, syphilis may cause a rash of nodules on the palms of the hands and soles of the feet.

There are sebaceous glands that produce acne of the skin of the penis. And there are other causes of a rash. You were probably right in what you have told your son but he will be far better off psychologically if you send him to a physician and have him reassured about what his problem actually is.

Everybody Has A Hand In Controlling Water

WASHINGTON (AP) — Regulations everywhere, more than you'd ever think; regulations everywhere, so water you can drink.

In one way or another, nearly every federal department, all of the states and most local governments have rules, policy, planners and projects affecting the nation's most precious liquid asset — water.

"Everybody is in charge (of water). It's kind of like the weather, everybody is in charge, and nobody is," said Russell Langford, associate chief hydrologist for the U.S. Geological Survey.

"It is totally confusing," added Gerald Seinwill, acting director of the Water Resources Council, the agency with the task of trying to bring order to water policy.

Water quality is one major focus of all the work. Simply finding water and getting it to people and places which need it is another. And different agencies often are responsible for each function.

Water management historically has been primarily state or local matters, but the federal government is taking a bigger part, both as a project builder and as a regulator of water use and quality.

Perhaps the biggest of the federal offices involved in water matters is the Army Corps of Engineers with its flood control, power, transportation and other projects across the country, and a civil works budget proposal of more than $3 billion for the coming year.

With a 1979 budget of more than half a billion dollars, including $399 million for construction projects, the Bureau of Reclamation also is a force to be reckoned with.

Primarily active in 17 dry Western states, the bureau started out in the 1920s to help restore dried out farmland. Over the years it has grown to include water power projects, recreational uses of water, flood control, municipal water systems and environmental enhancement.

Under the new name "Water and Power Resources Service," the agency recently issued a study of its work: It covers 1,462 pages.

The Agriculture Department's Forest Service and Soil Conservation Service are active in the small watershed program, setting up flood control projects on watersheds that aren't big enough for the Corps of Engineers: that is, 250,000 acres or less.

Cooke Tops Tyler 67-62 In Overtime

DALLAS - Cooke County Junior College of Gainesville upset nationally ranked Tyler Junior College 67-62 in overtime here last evening to advance to the second round of the NJCAA National Basketball Tournament. Last night's encounter was considered a first-round game, although it was not played in Hutchinson, Kan., site of the annual men's Juco tourney.

Tony Moore slipped in 23 points and Bruce Tipton added 14 to claim the victory. Regulation ended in a 58-58 draw.

Yesterday's win was another in a stellar season for Cooke County, ranked as high as No. 2 in the NJCAA poll early in the year. Cooke had not been ranked in the last few standings, however.

The Lions, under Coach Jim Voight, defeated No. 8 rated Midland College in Brownwood at the Region V Tournament before tripping up No. 3 Tyler last evening.

If that kind of competition weren't enough, Voight's Lions have been paired against No. 1 ranked Three Rivers, of Poplar Bluff, Mo. at 3:30 Tuesday in the Sports Arena at Hutchinson.

"Well, we are getting a tough road," chuckled a happy Coach Voight via telephone this morning. "But I suppose you've got to meet these kind of people sooner or later. Hopefully we can do a good job. I just hope we don't embarrass the region up there (in Hutchinson). We're pleased to represent the region and appreciate their support of us."

NCAA Cage Tournament...

Lamar Upsets Missouri, Arkansas Wins

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Back in December, the Missouri Tigers thrashed the Lamar Cardinals in the "Show Me Classic."

Thursday night, it was the Cardinals' turn to show the Tigers.

Getting revenge for a 92-70 rout in the holiday tournament, the Cardinals upset the Tigers 71-67 in the NCAA basketball tournament and headed for a second-round game of the Midwest playoffs Saturday.

A 25-point performance by Mike Oliver led the Cardinals, who pulled off their second upset in as many years in the NCAA playoffs. Last season, they knocked off Pac-10 winner Oregon State in an early round. The Cardinals advanced to the second round Saturday against No. 4 Louisiana State.

In Thursday night's other Midwest game at Austin, Tex., 20th-ranked Arkansas held off upset-minded Mercer 73-67. Darrell Walker came off the bench to score 19 points for the Razorbacks, who advanced to a meeting Saturday with Louisville.

Atrocious free-throw shooting by the Razorbacks helped keep the 13-point underdog Bears in the game. Arkansas hit only 19-of-40 free throw attempts and Walker could hit just 3-for-13. But the Razorbacks just had too much depth for the Bears, who finished third in the Trans America Athletic Conference but won the postseason tournament.

In other tournament play, Linton Townes led James Madison on a nine-point run midway in the second half, and the Dukes held on to beat Georgetown 61-55 in the first round of the East Regionals at Providence, R.I. The victory sent the Dukes into a Saturday game with seventh-ranked Notre Dame.

Danny Ainge scored 21 points and Brigham Young University solved Princeton's deliberate offense in the second half to beat the Tigers 60-51 in the other first-round East game. The 16th-ranked Cougars will face 10th-ranked UCLA Saturday.

Tony Costner's 14 second-half points, including two free throws with three seconds left, rallied St. Joseph's of Pennsylvania to a 59-57 victory over Creighton in NCAA Mideast Regionals.

Costner finished with 18 points and John Smith added 20 for the Hawks in the game at the University of Dayton Arena. Kevin McKenna had 18 points for Creighton and George Morrow added 17.

St. Joseph's, the East Coast Conference champion, moved into Saturday's second round game against DePaul.

Albert King scored 25 points to lead Maryland to a come-from-behind 81-69 victory over Tennessee-Chattanooga in the night's second game. The Terps, of the Atlantic Coast Conference, will meet No.9 Indiana Saturday.

Charles Bradley and Bill Garnett combined for 38 points as 17th-ranked Wyoming crushed Howard University 78-43 in the nightcap of the West doubleheader. Wyoming will face 19th-ranked Illinois Saturday.

First-round action continues tonight at other sites in the four regions.

In the East at Charlotte, N.C., it's Virginia Commonwealth vs. Long Island University and Houston against Villanova. In the Mideast at Tuscaloosa, Ala., Ball State faces Boston College and Alabama-Birmingham meets Western Kentucky. In the Midwest at Wichita, Kan., it's Kansas vs. Mississippi and Southern University against Wichita State. And in the West Regional at El Paso, Tex., Idaho takes on Pittsburgh and Fresno State tackles Northeastern.

National Invitational...

Clemson, St. Johns Fall Short

by The Associated Press

Holy Cross, Alabama, Temple and Connecticut began their march toward the National Invitation Tournament title the hard way - posting first-round victories on the road.

Reserve forward Dave Mulquin took a pass from Ed Thurman and sank a 10-foot baseline jumper at the buzzer Thursday night as Holy Cross nipped Southern Mississippi 56-54. In another close game, Alabama reeled off the first six points of the overtime period and defeated St. John's 73-69.

Guard Keith Parham scored 25 points to lead Temple to a 90-82 decision over Clemson. Bob Dulin's 16 points led five Connecticut players in double figures as the Huskies topped South Florida 65-55.

In other first-round games Thursday night, Michigan beat Duquesne 74-58, Purdue topped Rhode Island 84-58 and Duke defeated North Carolina A&T 79-69.

Those winners join Georgia, Toledo, Minnesota, South Alabama, Texas-El Paso and Dayton in the second round. The remaining spots will be filled tonight with the final three first-round games: Marquette, 20-10, at Syracuse, 18-11; Penn, 20-7, at West Virginia, 20-8, and Pan American, 18-10, at Tulsa, 21-7.

Southern Mississippi's Eddie Jiles had tied the score at 54-54 with a free throw with 23 seconds left before Thurman set up Mulquin's game-winning shot for Holy Cross.

"I was thinking, 'Get loose, throw it up soft,'" said Mulquin, who was carried off the court on the shoulders of his Holy Cross teammates after his clutch basket.

Holy Cross, 20-9, will face the Marquette-Syracuse winner in the second round.

Wayne McKoy's basket for St. John's with 52 seconds left sent the game into overtime, but baskets by Mike Davis and Ken Johnson and two free throws by Eddie Adams at the start of the extra period put Alabama in command.

David Russell of St. John's led all scorers with 25 points but was held to just six after halftime. Eddie Phillips had 17 points for Alabama, 18-10, which next plays Duke.

"Once we got into the overtime I insisted that we wait for good shots," said Alabama Coach Wimp Sanderson. "I told our kids to be patient, run our offense and let them foul us - and that's what happened."

Temple, 20-7, turned back two second-half rallies to beat Clemson despite 34 points by the Tigers' Larry Nance. Temple moves into a second-round match against the winner of tonight's Penn-West Virginia first-round game.

Classic Held Here Today, Tomorrow

Snyder High School was to host the fourth annual Snyder Classic Golf Tournament today and Saturday, beginning each morning with 9:30 tee times.

Lamesa, state qualifier from last year, and Andrews, were considered the favorites in the 36-hole meet, according to Snyder Coach Mackey Greene.

Other teams entered include Snyder, Pecos, Colorado City and Seminole.

The tournament is being held at Western Texas College Golf Course. Public play will be suspended during tournament hours, but spectators are welcome.

SSA Seeks Contributions

The Snyder Soccer Association, expecting its best season ever and a huge increase in participation, is seeking $4,500 for goals, nets, trophies and other equipment.

Dr. John Best, president of the association this year, has announced that the association plans to raise the money by taking orders for decorative canisters, one filled with 16 ounces of popcorn and the other filled with 11 ounces of hard candy.

Chairman of the fund campaign is Brenda Smith and the cochairmen are Elaine Steakley, Linda West and Judy Bynum. Other team mothers working on the project include Debbie Graves, Anne Everett, Pam Hester, Vicki White, Sandy Smith, Vicki Best, Margaret Corkran, Jan McCathern, Louise York, Deborah Rogers and Kathie Wade.

"These attractive canisters filled with popcorn or candy are excellent to have around the house, or they may be used as gifts," spokesmen for the association emphasized.

The soccer program had 109 youngsters paticipating last year, and some 230 are expected to be involved in the program this year.

Tigers Stun Panthers

MONAHANS - Snyder's Tigers slammed 15 hits, including a pair of home runs by sophomore Barry Davis, to shock highly touted Fort Stockton in the first round of the Monahans Tournament here yesterday, 16-5.

The victory pits Coach Albert Lewis' charges against Seminole tonight at 7:15. The Indians pulled off the other upset of the night, zapping host Monahans 7-5. In other games here yesterday, Pecos defeated Kermit 12-7 and Andrews rallied to nip Alpine 5-4.

"The two teams that came in with a winning record were the ones that got beat," said a happy but tired Coach Lewis, who said the game between Snyder and Fort Stockton - scheduled for 7:45 - didn't get underway until 11. The game stretched until 2:30 this morning. "I can't explain it, but we're not complaining at all."

Fort Stockton's Sam Bowen was pegged with the loss. Bowen, a left-hander, was a key factor when the Panthers took the second-half District 2-3A crown last year. The loss puts the Panthers at 4-2, Snyder is 2-4.

Mike Roemisch went the distance for Snyder, fanning six Panthers players and allowing only two hits, but walked six. Snyder also suffered through five errors.

"Mike was having a hard time out there for a while," said Lewis. "It was very cold and I think he had trouble getting settled. But we got the lead and I think that helped relax him. He did a good job for us."

Snyder got on the board when Perry Echols slapped a two-run basehit in the top of the second inning. Fort Stockton retaliated with four runs in the bottom of the stanza, to take the lead, 4-3. Davis, who had four RBI for the night, slammed one of his two homers to tie the game in the third. He then cracked a three-run shot over the fence to put Snyder back in the lead, 7-4 in the fourth.

The Tigers added another trio of runs in the fifth; Stockton answered with a run on two errors in the sixth; and Snyder belted out six more in the seventh to easily take a victory.

Tiger hitting went like this: Davis, three hits, four RBI (two HR); Brent Roemisch, three hits (one double); Perry Echols, two hits, two RBI; Mike Roemisch, one double, two RBI; Curtis Gafford, one double; John Wilson, one hit, two RBI; Neil Evans, two hits, two RBI (one double); and Jesse Hernandez and Gary Don Edmiaston, a hit apiece.

Lewis indicated he would start Gerald Don Hicks (0-1) tonight and relieve with Tommy Gressett. Tony Degrate, the senior fireballer, was slated to start last night before a crowd which included "three or four pro scouts", but was unable to go after developing pain in his shoulder.

"The (Fort Stockton) trainer said he did not think it was anything serious," said Lewis. "He's had some shoulder problems in the past. We're hoping maybe the weather had something to do with it. It wasn't blowing here, but it was awfully cold. We hope Tony can go for us Saturday, but if he can't, we'll use someone else."

Today's lineup had Kermit versus Alpine at 12:30, followed by Fort Stockton against Monahans at 2:45, both in the consolation bracket. Pecos and Andrews vie at 5 p.m. with the winner to meet the victor of tonight's Snyder-Seminole tilt in Saturday's championship game at 7 p.m.

Hutchinson Leads Bowlers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Joe Hutchinson averaged 199 in the fourth round but nonetheless maintained the lead in the $125,000 Miller High Life Open Professional Bowlers Association tournament.

Hutchinson, who had led the 18 games of qualifying with a 225 average and rolled a 300 game in the first round, rolled scores of 192, 215, 179, 165, 208, 190 and 193 in his first seven matches and had a 244 in his eighth to stay ahead of George Pappas by 48 pins.

Carter To Toss Out First Ball

CINCINNATI (AP) — President Reagan officially will open the 1981 major league baseball season by throwing out the first ball of the Cincinnati Reds' traditional season opener, the National League club announced.

The present Republic of Italy was established by a national plebiscite on June 2, 1946.

Sued For Wanton Acts

DALLAS (AP) — Next time that lemon of a car refuses to cooperate, don't beat on it. Sue it.

That is what happened to a 1957 Chevrolet accused of "wanton and malicious acts."

The car, abandoned at an auto repair shop three years ago, "has failed and refused to divulge its ownership or provide ... any information which would lead to the identity or location of any person which might claim any right, title or interest in the defendant, past or present," claims the suit filed Tuesday in state district court.

Even worse, the car ran up a $1,050 bill for body work at the repair shop and hasn't even tried to settle its debt.

"The defendant wouldn't pay us. We beat on it, and it wouldn't pay us," said James H. Baumgartner Jr., attorney for the Vette Shop.

The shop filed the suit in an effort to gain title on the car — an action common in federal tax courts but not in state courts, Baumgartner said.

The Vette Shop spent a year trying to locate the car's owner and another year trying to persuade the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation to grant the shop a title, the attorney said.

Judge John Marshall will be asked to order the highway department to grant the repair shop a title on the car, which the shop bought from itself for $1,500 at public auction.

Inflation Barrier To Highway Construction

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — It would take an 11-cent per gallon gasoline tax to cover the increasing costs of building and fixing Texas highways during the next biennium, according to a state energy panel staff report.

Texas' gasoline tax is five cents a gallon, the lowest in the nation. Three-fourths of the money is spent on highways, one-fourth on public schools.

The problem is inflation: motorists are buying more efficient cars in order to skirt the rising gas prices. Less gas used means less gas tax collected. Meanwhile, the cost of highway construction is rising.

In the 1982-83 biennium, the difference between the motor fuels tax and the amount needed for highways will be $950 million, according to Ted Taylor, director of the policy analysis division for the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council.

That difference — which will top $1.3 billion in 1984-85 — has to be made up from the state's general revenues.

At the request of Speaker Bill Clayton, Taylor on Thursday reported to TENRAC on the effects of raising the gas tax.

Taylor's charts showed that a one-cent increase would give the state an additional $70 million a year for road building and maintenance — barely a dent in the $950 million drain on general revenues.

The council, chaired by Gov. Bill Clements, took no action on the gasoline tax. Clements said he, Clayton and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby have talked about the tax and the wisdom of raising it. Clayton and Hobby are on TENRAC, but were presiding over their respective houses when Taylor made his report.

Taylor had no recommendation on whether the tax should be raised. He offered a system which would tie the tax to inflation factors, raising it as prices jump.

Clayton has said raising the gasoline tax could become a major issue before the regular legislative session ends.

"It's a continuing problem and it will get worse as inflation continues and gas demand falls off," Taylor said after the meeting.

Projections show gas demand in Texas will drop about 1 percent a year through 1990, he said.

Uses Minimum Violence...

Gentle Killer Stalks Children In Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — The medical examiner who performed an autopsy on the latest victim in a series of 20 child slayings here says the last seven cases are "disturbingly similar" and show evidence that links the victims to a "gentle killer."

Joe Burton, chief medical examiner for suburban DeKalb County, said Thursday that 13-year-old Curtis Walker, like the six youngsters before him, was asphyxiated.

Burton said neither Walker nor the others had been mutilated, and their remains showed no indication of violence or signs that they had resisted abduction.

The only signs of injury to Walker's body, Burton said, were "indications of minimal trauma" to his neck and bruises and abrasions on the nose. The nose injuries indicated Walker was suffocated with an object other than fabric, he added.

"It seems that this person is doing just enough to kill the child," Burton said.

He said the seven cases "are disturbingly similar, and we're finding evidence also to connect the cases. I would not argue with anyone who says they are connected."

Physical evidence found on Walker's body, including fibrous materials, lend credence to a theory that one person was responsible for the last seven killings, all of which have occurred since city officials formed a task force to probe the mysterious child disappearances and slayings. One child still is missing.

The Fulton County district attorney had said Wednesday, in a copyright story by the Atlanta Constitution, that he believed as many as 10 killers might be involved in the 20 deaths.

But Lewis Slayton also said he felt evidence — including fibers — indicated the last seven cases could be connected. He said the deaths of three other children, all found in the adjacent community of East Point, could be the work of another individual.

Three children found earlier also were asphyxiated — either strangled or suffocated. Others were shot, stabbed or beaten to death, and several bodies were too decomposed to determine a cause of death.

Like 14-year-old victim Lubie Geter, Walker was clad only in underwear when his body was discovered March 6 in the South River, 15 days after he was last seen, Burton added.

Burton cautioned against assuming too much from the physical evidence.

DRAFT

blems of a modern, technologically advanced military force," Conti said. "On the other hand, the board sees too many positive outcomes resulting from a draft not to pursue the question with utmost vigor."

He described the draft as "potentially the most cost-effective and equitable answer" to many of the problems.

Under the board's recommendation, men — "and women, if mandated by Congress" — would be required to serve six months on active duty. It would start with a "military orientation" period of three to four weeks, followed by basic and advanced individual training.

The required military service would begin after graduation from high school or at the "conclusion of the academic term of college in which the individual was enrolled."

For a high school dropout, service would start within 90 days of the time he left school or at a specific age, which was not given.

At the end of the orientation phase, the youth would be offered a choice among three options: remain on active duty in the service of his choice if openings existed, join a reserve unit or go into the Individual Ready Reserve of the Army or Marine Corps, which have had the most trouble filling this mobilization manpower pool.
