Arabs ask U.N. action

By The Associated Press

High-ranking Arab envoys carrying a demand for international sanctions aginst Israel flew in to New York today to open a U.N. Security Council debate on the Israeli attack against Iraq's nuclear reactor.

At a meeting Thursday in the Iraqi capital of Baghdad, the Arab League called for U.N. penalties against Israel. But the United States, as it has done previously, was expected to veto any resolution ordering sanctions against Israel.

The Arab League delegation that arrived in New York was led by League Secretary-General Chedli Klibi of Tunisia and included Kuwaiti Foreign Minister Sabah al Ahmed al Jaber, the League's U.N. observer mission reported.

Iraqi Foreign Minister Saadoun Hammadi also arrived at U.N. headquarters to personally deliver his country's complaint to the 15-nation council when the debate opened later today. Israeli Ambassador Yehuda Z. Blum was to defend his government's action.

Asked how Arab states would react to a U.S. veto, Hammadi said, "It's too early to speak of that."

Foreign ministers or other representatives of the 21 Arab League members met in emergency session Thursday in the Iraqi capital. They adopted 11 resolutions charting a campaign of diplomatic pressure aimed at winning U.N. sanctions that would force a halt to U.S. military and political assistance to Israel.

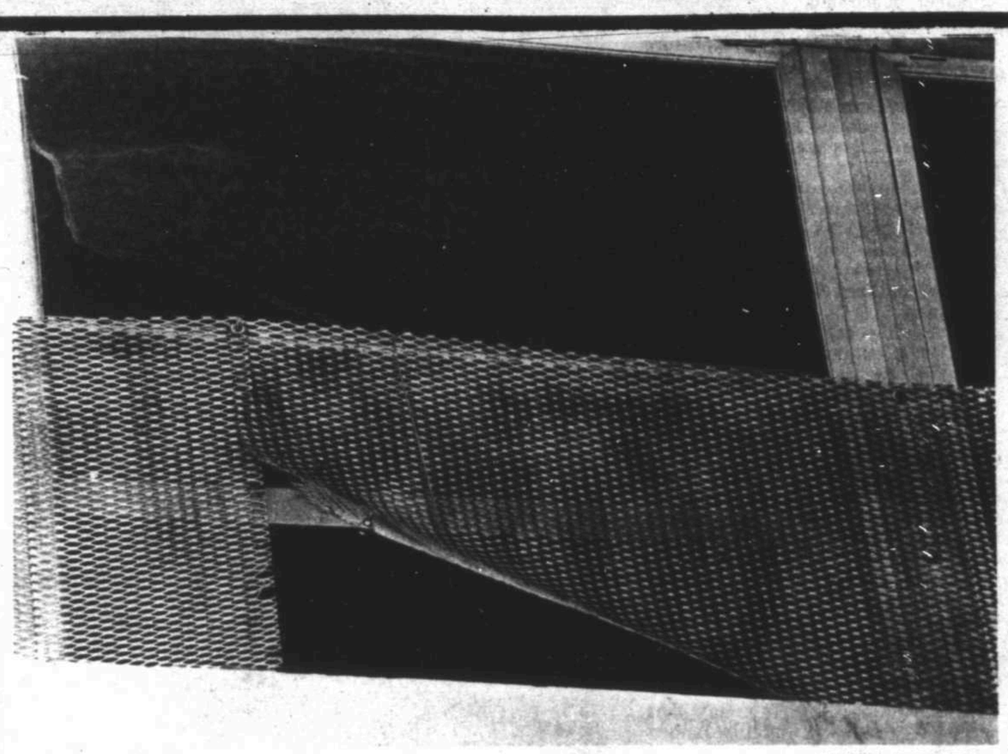

"What we are asking for is a complete stoppage of arms to Israel unless they abide by the rules and regulations of the United Nations," said Bahrain's Foreign Minister Mohammed Bin Mubarak.

In a preview of what the Arabs are expected to seek, one of the Arab League resolutions "calls upon the countries supporting the Zionist entity...to work seriously to put an end to Zionist aggression and to adopt practical and tangible steps to terminate this assistance."

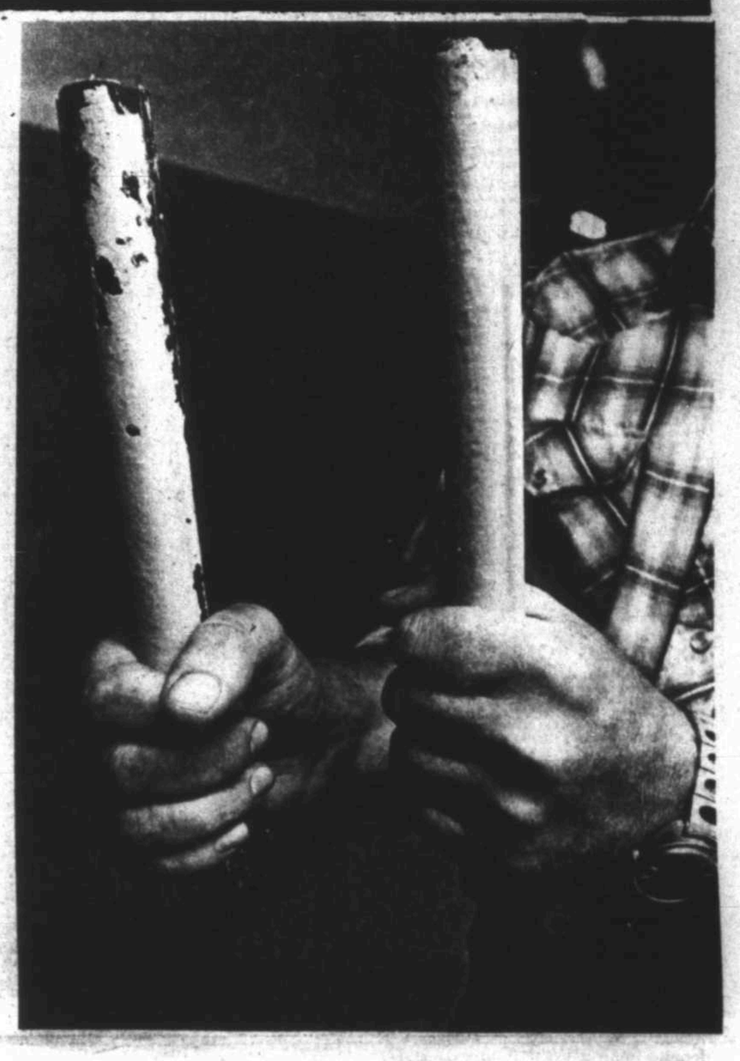

A Third World diplomat in Baghdad suggested Iraq was pressing for U.N. sanctions because "there is a limit to what they (the Iraqis) can do in the way of retaliation."

President Reagan halted shipment of four F-16 jet fighters to Israel until Congress determines whether the use of American fighters in the Baghdad raid violated a 1952 agreement prohibiting the offensive use of American military hardware. But the president reassured Israeli Ambassador Ephraim Evron that the fundamental relationship between their countries would not change, a senior administration official said.

Reagan also met with five Arab ambassadors and told them he was "shocked and disappointed" by the Israeli attack, one of the envoys reported.

Engineering an escape

A police department investigator holds two sections of the bars that were sawed over a two or three day period to allow four federal prisoners to escape from custody at the city jail sometime late Wednesday night or early Thursday morning. Toothpaste had been used to mask the cuts. The wire mesh screen, above, located on the second floor of the jail, had been pried loose, allowing the prisoners to squeeze through and drop 20 feet to the ground. The window above the screen may have been broken with a broom handle and used to haul escape tools into the jail.

Escapees at large in major jail break

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

Four federal prisoners who escaped from the city jail Thursday were still at large this morning, and a trusty suspected of aiding them is being questioned about his role in what police say is the first major jail break in city history.

A nationwide alert was issued at mid-morning Thursday for James Monroe "Cowboy" Crosson, David E. Wallace, William Anthony Dugan and Glenn Eugene Stewart — all of whom are believed to be armed and dangerous.

They were discovered missing from the second-floor lockup about 10:30 a.m. Thursday. Police said the escapees had help from the outside. Some 20 to 30 hack saw blades and a large pipe wrench were found in their cellblock, which is reserved for federal prisoners under a contract the city has with the government.

Details are still sketchy, but it's thought a makeshift rope was used to haul the tools through a window that's 20 feet above the ground and immediately adjacent to the main entrance of the police station on Texas Avenue.

The bottom half of the window is covered with a heavy wire screen. The upper part of the window was broken and a broom handle may have been used to break it, allowing the inmates to pull the tools into the jail.

The doors to individual cells in the cellblock are left unlocked, but a barred catwalk surrounds it. Two bars had been cut to provide a 12-by-12-inch opening, through which the prisoners gained access to the window and pried the wire screen loose to gain their freedom.

The cells are left unlocked because of federal exercise regulations, according to police, and government prisoners are sometimes housed here for months in connection with local court cases.

Fellow inmates said they were unable to provide authorities with any information on the breakout.

The bottom of the bars were sawed completely through, while the top of the bars were only partially sawed. The pipe wrench was then used to snap the bars loose.

Chief of Police Wayne Gideon is out of town on a two-day law enforcement conference in Irving, and Assistant Chief of Police Sid Corley indicated this morning they would have to wait for Gideon to return before deciding what measures will be taken to tighten security at the jail.

The night jailer goes off duty at 11 p.m. Under department guidelines, the night desk sergeant is to make periodic checks of the cells — when he has time. An intensive investigation of the escape is being conducted, and it was not immediately known when the prisoners were last checked.

Police speculate it took two or three days to saw through the inch-thick steel bars. Green toothpaste — which matches the color of the bars — was used to conceal the cuts.

The bars on individual cells have rolling, rod-like centers that make sawing through them impossible, police said. Catwalks, however, are constructed of standard bars.

"We're lucky it wasn't guns they brought up," said one officer.

Crosson, 36, of Odessa, was awaiting transfer to a federal prison on a drug conviction in Ector County that brought him a 10-year sentence.

All of the escapees are white. Crosson was described as 5 feet, 11 inches tall, weighing 185 pounds and having blond hair and blue eyes.

Wallace is 35 years old, 5 feet, 10 inches tall, weighs 145 pounds and has brown hair and gray eyes. He was in the process of being transferred from the minimum security

Special session may be longer, hotter than its topics indicate

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says the July 13 special legislative session may not be as short as some had hoped.

Clements told a news conference Thursday that the five subjects he listed in his call of the session did not mean that would be all he wanted out of the 30-day meeting.

In a special session, the governor has full power to say when the Legislature will meet and what subjects it will discuss.

"I strongly support the gasohol bill (for temporary exemption from the state motor fuel tax) but whether it gets into the special session is an open question," he told the news conference. "I haven't decided yet, but I have not changed my mind about supporting it."

Clements said the three "must" issues of the special session are:

— Abolishment of the state property tax. "That's my No. 1 priority," he said.

— Congressional redistricting.

— Passage of the Medical Practices Act. The Texas Medical Examiners Board, which licenses all Texas doctors and physicians, will go out of business Sept. 1 unless the act is continued.

"The other two items are certainly needed," he said.

Also on the agenda for the summer session are creation of a water trust fund from any state surpluses and a "tune up" revision of the 1979 property tax revision act.

On other subjects, Clements said:

— He was confident the recent meeting of President Ronald Reagan and Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo strengthened the lines of communication between Mexico and Texas.

— He would veto a bill changing the dates of local elections in Houston.

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements said Thursday he "really doubts that it's possible" for the state to renew negotiations with oilman Robert O. Anderson to swap his Big Bend property for University of Texas land along the New Mexico border.

And Clements reiterated he is opposed to the state buying the 190,000 acres along the Rio Grande to use as a state park and wilderness area.

Anderson announced recently he was calling off the proposed land swap, and Clements subsequently attributed that breakdown in negotiations to erroneous reports by El Paso area land speculators on the value of the property and "shenanigans" by several state senators.

At a news conference Thursday, the governor said Anderson and his family "were offended."

"I wouldn't rule it out, and I wouldn't say it couldn't happen, but I certainly have no optimism about it," Clements said, referring to future discussions with Anderson. He added, "I certainly am not going to inititate it."

Clements also re-stated his opposition to the state buying the land, saying he would veto any such deal.

Last month Clements announced that he and Anderson, chairman of the Atlantic Richfield Corp., had reached an agreement under which equal acreages of private and state land would be swapped. The state would have mineral rights on both pieces of property.

Midland Sen. W.E. "Pete" Snelson was able to win approval of a legislative resolution urging the University of Texas Board of Regents to consummate the trade. The 190,000 acres of state land along the New Mexico border is owned by the UT System.

Before that resolution was approved, Tyler Sen. Peyton McKnight and several other members of the Senate objected to Clements initiating such a trade, arguing that the Legislature should buy the property if it was such a good deal.

Tax appraisal board trying to cut budget

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The Midland County Appraisal Board, which is fighting itself in trying to resolve the 1982 budget of its chief appraiser, on Thursday whittled on a budget which seemed to regenerate.

The first proposed budget, recommended by Chief Appraiser Virgil Jones Jr., was cut downward from $864,038.47, as the six directors queried Jones and tried to find frills to expunge from the budget. But necessities, including the "preventative medicine" of an in-house attorney, pushed another tentative budget up to $850,672.

"We better stop going over this," said Board President Gil Tompson. "We keep going up instead of going down."

The board was trying to reconcile two budgets: one for carrying out the appraisal of property for the six taxing entities in the county and the other for collecting taxes for four of the six taxing agencies.

Board member Charlie Welch, who also doubles as a Midland County commissioner, all along has been assaulting the Jones-directed operation and his near million-dollar budget. His objective, it seems, is to eliminate Jones, to uncomplicate the appraisal-collecting system, and cut the budget to Model-T costs.

AFTER FAILING but not giving up on his efforts to oust Jones, Welch recommended that the budget be presented to the six taxing agencies's governing bodies: the Midland City Council, the Midland County commissioners, the Midland Independent School District trustees, the Greenwood ISD trustees, the Midland College trustees and the Midland Memorial Hospital directors.

Fellow board member Walt Holton objected.

"Wouldn't that be copping out on our part?" he asked.

The six taxing agencies ultimately will be paying for Jones's services, which Welch claims are far too expensive and which he could cut in half by radical measures.

WELCH'S BASIC measure to cut costs is to purge Jones, whom he

South Texas: A chance of showers and thunderstorms Sunday through Tuesday. Highs in the mid 80s to mid 90s. Lows in the 70s.

Scorchers ahead

Monotony could be the password for the weekend as another scorching, dry two days lay ahead for area residents. Relieving that monotony will depend upon what one does — sleep, swim, play tennis or leave town to go boating.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport is calling for mostly clear days through Saturday with continued hot afternoons.

After the mercury cools down to the low 70s tonight, it should heat up to the upper 90s on Saturday. Winds will be blowing out of the south at 10 to 15 mph tonight, whipping up to 15 to 20 mph on Saturday.

High on Thursday was a mere 94 degrees, a whopping 10 degrees off the record high of 104 degrees set on that date in 1959. Overnight low was 70s degrees, a heat wave compared to the record of 55 degrees set in 1979.

A few sprinkles were reported this morning, but no precipitation is expected through Saturday, according to the weather service. That should leave the year's rainfall total at 6.58 inches.

When, where bodies dumped being checked

ATLANTA (AP) — Authorities investigating the slayings of 28 young blacks here have been testing the temperature and water flow in the Chattahoochee River in an attempt to determine when and where the bodies of six of the victims were dumped into the water.

Meanwhile, Atlanta police said a missing youth called home this morning shortly after they issued a general alarm over his disappearance. The special police task force investigating the slayings had been notified that he was missing.

The youth, identified as 16-year-old Willie James Walker, called from a relative's home, missing persons investigators said. Walker had been missing since 3 p.m. Thursday and was reported missing by his grandmother, police said.

District Attorney Lewis Slaton confirmed Thursday that temperature and water flow tests have been conducted near the bridge where a young black man was stopped by police in the early morning hours of May 22 after the officers heard a splash in the river.

The man, who was questioned by authorities last week for 12 hours and then released, has not been charged in connection with any of the cases, but police have kept him under surveillance. They have not identified the man.

Authorities dragged the river near the bridge but turned up nothing after hearing the splash on May 22. Two days later, the body of 27-year-old Nathaniel Cater, the 28th victim, was found in the river downstream from the bridge.

In recent weeks, similar tests have been conducted elsewhere along the river where the bodies of five other victims were found, but authorities close to the investigation have said it is virtually impossible to determine accurately when and where they were dumped.

The man stopped on the bridge has been watched closely by police and press since last week.

His attorney said Thursday that news organizations would be named in federal court motions to be filed Monday asking "injunctive relief about prejudicial publicity concerning the Atlanta murder case." He said the motions will name "about 50 defendants."

Stewart is 37 years old, 5 feet, 8 inches tall, and has red hair and blue eyes. He was also being held for federal marshals.

The trusty thought to have helped the escapees is a 20-year-old man from San Diego, Calif. He's been in jail since May 29, following his arrest on traffic violations. Formal charges of aiding and abetting the escape may be lodged against him when the investigation is concluded.

By The Associated Press

Residents braced for more rain today in the soggy hills of Central Texas where rains of up to eight inches turned placid creeks into swirling floodwaters that drove 125 Austinites from their homes, officials said.

The National Weather Service said late Thursday night that conditions favored the development of more thunderstorms in South and Central Texas areas where the ground already is saturated.

Any additional rain would quickly run off, pouring more water into already swollen creeks and rivers, the weather service said.

No one was reported injured in Austin, where early morning floods killed 12 people on Memorial Day, but the Austin Fire Department evacuated creek-bank homes in the south part of the city as normally small Williamson Creek spread to a 350-foot wide flood.

Shoal Creek, the cause of much of the death and damage during the Memorial Day flood, rose quickly. At times the muddy water lapped near homes that have been abandoned since the earlier flood. Lawns in front of many houses along the creek in the northwest section of town still are strewn with debris from the Memorial Day tragedy.

Red Cross workers went door-to-door to make sure homes along the creek were empty.

In Northeast Austin, firemen used boats to rescue 20 people from a lumber yard threatened by rising water, according to fire department spokeswoman Debbie Brown.

Violent storms also raged across the Panhandle, where very heavy rain, hail and gusts of wind up to 70 miles an hour were reported in downtown Amarillo. A tornado was sighted six miles west of Panhandle, but no damage was reported.

The Department of Public Safety reported that nine inches of water from Village Creek in Hardin County had covered Highway 418 between Kountze and Silsbee. The creek rose about three inches an hour during the afternoon, a DPS spokesman said.

Street flooding was reported in Galveston, La Marque, and Texas City. In the San Antonio area, the San Miguel Creek and Frio River filled to the flood point.

While most of Texas had moderate temperatures, El Paso experienced its sixth straight day of record-breaking heat, with a high of 105, which broke the 103-degree reading that has stood since 1934.

The thunderstorm activity that spawned the violent weather in the Panhandle had dissipated early today into a few scattered areas of light rain.

Coleto Creek Dam in Southeast Texas reported 4.3 inches of rainfall between 1 a.m. and 5 a.m. today, the National Weather Service said.

Skies were cloudy over most of the state except in Southwest Texas where they were clear.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the low 70s and 80s. Extremes ranged from 66 at Dalhart to 81 at both Brownsville and Corpus Christi.

alleges is unreasonably raising property values across the city and rural areas, from the scene by (1) shifting all the tax collecting duties to Midland County Tax Assessor-Collector Frances Shuffield and (2) by naming Pritchard & Abbott as the district's principal appraisers at far less expense than proposed by the Jones regime.

"It (the budget) is not quite a million dollars this year," Welch said, "but it'll be way over that next year. I think we can do it for half."

"There's a more economical way to fly this kite," Welch said. "I think the taxpayers are entitled to that information."

Welch studied Jones' 1980-81 budget, which, at $475,471, essentially finances the same services which will be provided in the proposed 1982 budget but at almost double the costs.

"Part of the answer (to the lower costs) is we've been getting a bargain," Tompson said.

That bargain has been in the lodging provided by City Hall and in services, including those of counsel, furnished by the city.

The appraisal district currently is dickering with Joshua Muss & Associates, Dallas real estate brokers, for leasing space in Dellwood Shopping Mall until a permanent location is found for the chief appraiser's staff. A "home" for the appraiser's staff has been tentatively assured by Commissioners Durward Wright and Welch, who seem fairly confident that a new Courthouse Annex will be built within two years and will afford adequate space for Jones staff and other tax functions, including those of Ms. Shuffield.

UNDER THE SET-UP, Ms. Shuffield collects taxes only for Midland County and for the Greenwood ISD. Jones collects taxes for the city of Midland, Midland College, Midland ISD and Midland Memorial Hospital and does the property appraisals for those four entities as well as for Midland County and Greenwood ISD.

Tompson did agree that the proposal for Ms. Shuffield's collecting all the taxes for the six bodies is "something that ought to be looked into." At the same time, Tompson, in alluding to the six taxing bodies, reminded Welch that Ms. Shuffield would "have to do it their way."

Welch said that Ms. Shuffield would oblige and, as always, would follow the law.

"I'll guarantee you," Welch said, "her word is as good as gold."

The commissioner, still nibbling away at Jones, also said that Ms. Shuffield "doesn't have the poor record of tax collecting that the city has."

To help resolve the budget, Tompson suggested that each of the appraisal district board members individually advise the taxing bodies of the tentative budget and seek out the suggestions of those bodies's governing boards.

The appraisal board is to reconvene for further budget study at 9 a.m. Thursday in the Commissioner's Courtroom on the second floor of the Midland County Courthouse. Sometime afterward, the board is to call a public hearing to study its proposed budget.

All together, revenue brought in by taxes, fees and fines for the six agencies totals about $50 million.

New boarding record set last month

Midland Regional Airport chalked up another boarding record in its books for May with more than 49,000 persons boarding aircraft. This beats April's record of 46,000 persons, according to Col. Wilson Banks, director of aviation for the city.

With the arrival of American Airlines on Thursday, Banks said he expects the boardings to increase.

And he pointed out that "we're just now getting into the heavy travel months. August is historically the heaviest month for us."

In addition to American, Midland also is served by Braniff, Continental, Southwest and Texas International. By September, plans call for Sun-Air, a state-wide air service, to begin.

Air blower stolen

In complaints lodged with police during the past 24 hours, a $5,000 air blower belonging to Trans Pecos Materials Co. was reported stolen from a truck parked near Midland Regional Airport.

Donna Dubois, 1505 W. Kentucky, told officers her home was entered through a bedroom window and $1,100 worth of assorted items was stolen. And Judy Roberts of 2438 Whitmire said jewlery valued at $325 was taken from her apartment.

City firemen used 50 gallons of water to extinguish a truck fire near Regional Airport about 12:40 p.m. Thursday. The tank truck is owned by the Sanders Oil & Gas Co., Dallas. It sustained heavy damage to its tires, brake drums and one axle. Cause of the fire was listed as locked brakes.

ERA, birth control, rights criticized

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Religious groups have no right to impose their ideas of Christianity on America through politics, but political activity by individual Christians is mandated by the Bible, a national convention of Southern Baptists says.

"Baptist church-state experts are agreed on two major increasing tendencies today — that of the government to interfere in religious affairs and the growing movement of church leaders to dictate to government," said delegate W.W. Finlator of North Carolina, who introduced a resolution rejecting "the right of any group to ... seek through political means to impose this faith on the American people."

"My resolution has to do with encroachments by the church on state," Finlator said as the nation's largest Protestant denomination ended its 124th national convention Thursday.

The Moral Majority, the best known of the new conservative religious groups to declare their right to engage in politics, was mentioned only once, by Kerledge of Mulvane, Kan.

In urging the convention to stress individual participation in its statement approving of political activity by Christians, he said, "I don't want to be associated with the Moral Majority, and I don't want people to misunderstand our resolution as being a kind of affirmation of that kind of activity in our nation."

After objections from several men, and support from women, the delegates adopted a resolution condemning the proposed Equal Rights Amendment and reaffirmed "the biblical role which stresses the equal worth, but not always the sameness of function of women."

Other resolutions at the conclusion of the four-day gathering condemned distribution of birth control devices and information by anyone but parents, affirmed that "religion flourishes best without government's interference or tax support," and criticized pornography, anti-Semitism and television's portrayal of "an unacceptable lifestyle."

Several women, including Joyce Rogers, of Memphis, Tenn., warned of "great inherent dangers in the ERA."

"Good women have been used on the forefront, but the very core of the ERA are radical feminists who believe in secular humanism, abortion on demand, acceptance of homosexual lifestyle (and) forcing women into the armed services, which would be detrimental to our Christian lifestyle," she said.

The resolution deploring anti-Semitism said that Baptists and Jews have "a common heritage of persecution and suffering for conscience sake."

The Rev. Bailey Smith's public comments during his first term that "God Almighty does not hear the prayer of a Jew," and "they have funny-looking noses," were not mentioned.

Foreign tourism off; Hurting Florida industry

MIAMI (AP) — South Florida tourism officials, coming off one of the worst winters in the industry's history, are bracing reluctantly for a weak summer market, blaming crime and the strengthened U.S. dollar.

Many hotels, retail stores and other tourist-oriented firms were counting on a steady flow of foreign visitors to Miami Beach this summer to offset the bad winter season. But fewer Europeans are planning to vacation here. And federal officials say Latin American tourism has grown more slowly in 1981 than in recent years.

Overall, Dade County officials said Wednesday tourist traffic was down 10 percent during the first three months of the year, meaning 390,800 fewer people visited the county. That cost area businesses about $162 million.

"This is not the kinnd of season that we were expecting," said Rick Richardson, regional manager for Cosmos Globus Gateway.

His firm brought 45,000 Europeans to South Florida for vacation last year but expects only 28,000 customers this summer — and that's 7,000 fewer than predicted just two weeks ago, Richardson said.

South Florida tourism depends on foreign visitors during the summer. Local officials credited last year's excellent summer almost entirely to the 23 percent increase in Latin visitors over the previous summer and the 99 percent jump in European vacationers.

But economic problems in Great Britain and West Germany, reports of rising crime here and the sudden strength of the U.S. dollar are discouraging travel to the United States.

The dollar has gained as much as 25 percent against foreign currencies, meaning foreign money is worth less in the United States.

Intasun, South Florida's largest importer of European tourists, said it had numerous cancellations. Last year, it brought 78,000 tourists from Europe to Dade County. It expects to import fewer than 65,000 tourists this summer.

The Miami area's rising crime rate in the wake of the arrival of thousands of Cuban and Haitian refugees has been widely publicized.

Sewage spilled

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — More than 50,000 gallons of untreated sewage spilled into creeks of southeasern Travis County last Monday when two pumps at the Williamson Creek treatment plant failed, city officials said.

Health officials said the raw sewage clouded the waters and killed scores of fish.

Streams in McKinney falls State Park, southeast of Austin, were affected by the spill, officials said. The park, which is downstream from the treatment plant, was closed to water sports recently because of contamination by fecal coliform.

City tries to collect unpaid bills

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Austin is trying to collect 22,000 unpaid hospital bills totaling $4.8 million, officials of city-owned Brackenridge Hospital said.

Last week an Austin law firm sent letters to the 22,000 giving them 10 days to settle the accounts or face seizure and sale of non-exempt property. The law firm retained a computer expert to help track down the debtors through use of city utility records and other computerized information.

The firm said the delinquent debtors did not include indigents who quality for the city's Medical Assistant Program.

Session restricted

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Larry Don Shaw asked Gov. Bill Clements on Wednesday to allow the special legislative session to consider two gasohol porposals, but Clements said the July 13 session would be restricted to five subjects.

The list of subjects does not include gasohol.

Shaw, D-Big Spring, asked the governor to place on the agenda a bill that would exempt gasohol from the nickel-a-gallon motor fuels tax for six years.

His second proposal would eliminate a restriction that prohibits companies which are less than 51 percent Texas-owned from producing raw alcohol in Texas for any purpose other than to make gasohol.

Shaw said this discourages plant investment by out-of-state companies "who fear that gasohol will become uneconomical as a fuel if the heavily subsidized federal synfuels development program is successful."

He said in a statement the "quirk in the law" has cost Texas at least one $25 million plan which wold have created 485 new jobs.

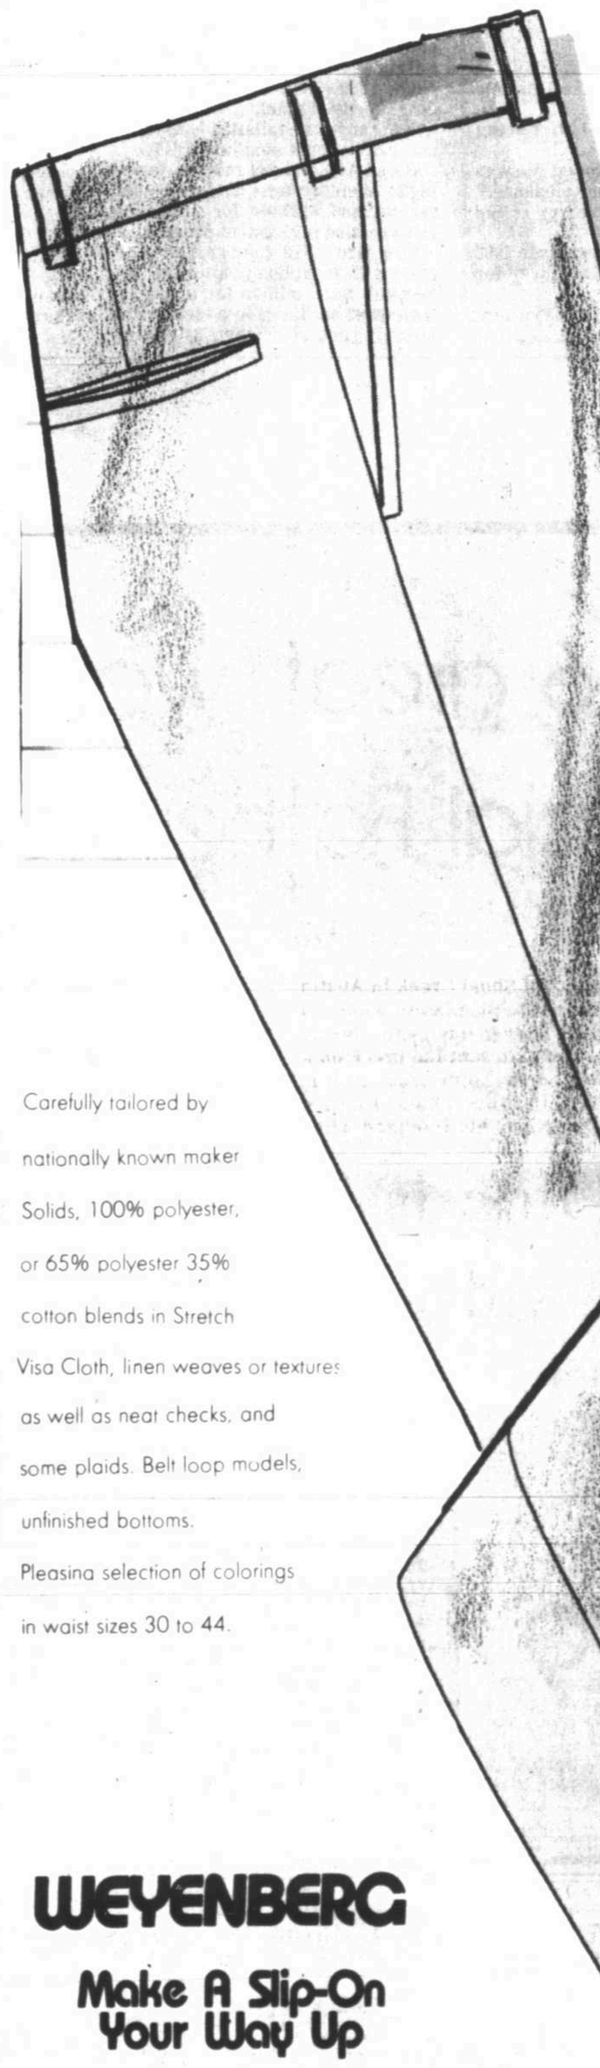

Radioactive water leaks

LOWER ALLOWAYS CREEK, N.J. (AP) — Workers were repairing a weld on a valve that spewed about 3,000 gallons of "low-level radioactive" water into a containment basin at the Salem II nuclear generating station, officials said.

The unit was not producing power at the time of the 10-minute leak Tuesday. No employees were contaminated, and there was no danger to the public, Ed Anderson, a spokesman for the plant's operator said.

Texas getting $125 million for military construction

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Almost $7 billion in military construction — including more than $125 million for Texas — has been passed by the House and sent to the Senate for its approval.

The chief Texas beneficiaries would be Carswell Air Force Base, whose main project would be $32.7 million in air-launched cruise missile support facilities, and Fort Hood, which would get almost $16 million in classroom, shop and other facilities.

About $1 million for data processing facilities has been earmarked for each of several Air Force bases in Texas.

Congress, giving its stamp of approval to a plea from the Defense Department, earmarked more money in the past "to improve work places, quality of life facilities and living conditions for service personnel."

THE MEASURE was passed, 311 to 36, with 20 of the 24 Texas congressmen among the majority. Rep. Ron Paul, R-Lake Jackson, was the only member of the delegation voting against it. Democratic Reps. Mickey Leland of Houston, Richard White of El Paso and Ralph Hall of Rockwall didn't vote.

Rep. Jake Pickle, D-Austin, occupied the chair and moderated over the 5½-hour discussion that preceded the vote last Thursday.

The bill authorizes total construction of $6.98 billion, about $50 million less than the Department of Defense had requested.

The Armed Services Committee recommended the legislation, saying it had heard repeatedly that recruitment and retention problems "are related to compensation issues and living conditions."

The construction for the active forces cover 773 projects at 399 major military installations in the United States and overseas. Among them are 80 projects designed to improve workplaces, enhance housing conditions and provide for additional quality of life facilities for military personnel.

THESE PROJECTS include additional family housing units, shipyard modernization efforts, training barracks, maintenance facilities, utility improvements, enlisted personnel housing, and Guard and Reserve facilities.

California gets more than any other state, $332 million, with Texas seventh. Behind California are Washington with $225 million, Virginia with $208 million, Georgia with $160 million, Ohio with $130 million, Maryland with $130 million and then Texas.

ARMY

Corpus Christi Army Depot: $840,000 for energy monitoring and control system.

Fort Bliss: $4.7 million for training facility-Roland.

Fort Hood: $15,960,000, including $2.2 million for battalion headquarters and classroom, $8 million for tactical equipment shops and facilities, $3.9 million for company administration and supply, $660,000 for tactical equipment shop, $430,000 for company administration and supply, and $770,000 for an Occupational Safety and Health Act project.

Longhorn Army Ammunition Plant: $257,000 for a herbicide mix and pesticide facility.

Red River Army Depot: $2.72 million, including $2 million for additions and renovation of depot operations and $720,000 for an engine and transmission test facility.

NAVY

Naval Air Station, Chase Field: $9.16 million, including $2.8 million for airfield pavements and $6.36 million for 88 family housing units.

AIR FORCE

Bergstrom AFB: $2.58 million, including $1.23 million for an aircraft maintenance unit facility, $1.14 million for a data processing facility, and $210,000 for land acquisition (perpetual assessment).

Brooks AFB: $3.11 million for an energy conservation investment program.

Carswell AFB: $39.81 million, including $5.5 million for a flight simulator training facility, $1.23 million for a data processing facility, $410,000 for an air installation compatible use zone, and $32.67 million for air-launched cruise missile support facilities.

Dyess AFB: $1.42 million for a data processing facility.

Kelly AFB: $3.55 million for renovation of unaccompanied enlisted personnel housing.

Laughlin AFB: $1.09 million for a data processing facility.

Randolph AFB: $3.36 million, including $990,000 to add to and alter a data processing facility and $2.37 million for an air installation compatible use zone (Seguin auxiliary field).

Reese AFB: $1.269 million, including $1.14 million for a data processing facility and $129,000 for an energy conservation investment program.

Sheppard AFB: $10.745 million, including $3.98 million to alter the base hospital, $1.52 million for a fire station, $1.42 million for a centralized aircraft support system, $1.175 million for an energy conservation investment program, and $2.65 million for an automotive maintenance complex.

ARMY RESERVE

NAVAL, MARINE RESERVE

Naval Air Station, Dallas: $13 million, including $2.6 million for an aircraft maintenance hangar, $5.5 million for Aicuz land acquisition, $2.2 million for a dining facility, and $2.77 million for a fuel system maintenance and corrosion control dock.

AIR NATIONAL GUARD

Ellington AFB: $1.66 million, including $450,000 to alter a hangar for avionics shop and $1.21 million for an automotive maintenance and refueling vehicle shop.

Kelly AFB: $3.01 million, including $1.71 million for composite squadron operations and $1.3 million for a fuel system maintenance and corrosion control dock.

AIR FORCE RESERVE

Kelly AFB: $4.125 million, including $2.345 million for a fuel system maintenance dock and $1.78 million for an aeromedical evacuation training facility.

Woman, dog united in death

MIAMI (AP) — Helen Skoien's French poodle, Sugar, was her joy, her good friend and the "person" she talked to after her husband died years ago. It was all she had left in the world.

When the little dog died in 1975, the Miami Beach widow vowed that they might be separated in life, but not in death. Mrs. Skoien's last wish will come true Friday when her ashes are buried next to Sugar's in Miami's pet cemetery.

The dog's death after 10 years of companionship nearly broke Mrs. Skoien's heart, according to those who knew her. She buried the dog in the Humane Society of Greater Miami's Oaklawn Pet Cemetery.

On holidays and on Sugar's birthday, Mrs. Skoien, who died June 4 after being bedridden for the last few years, carried flowers to the dog's grave.

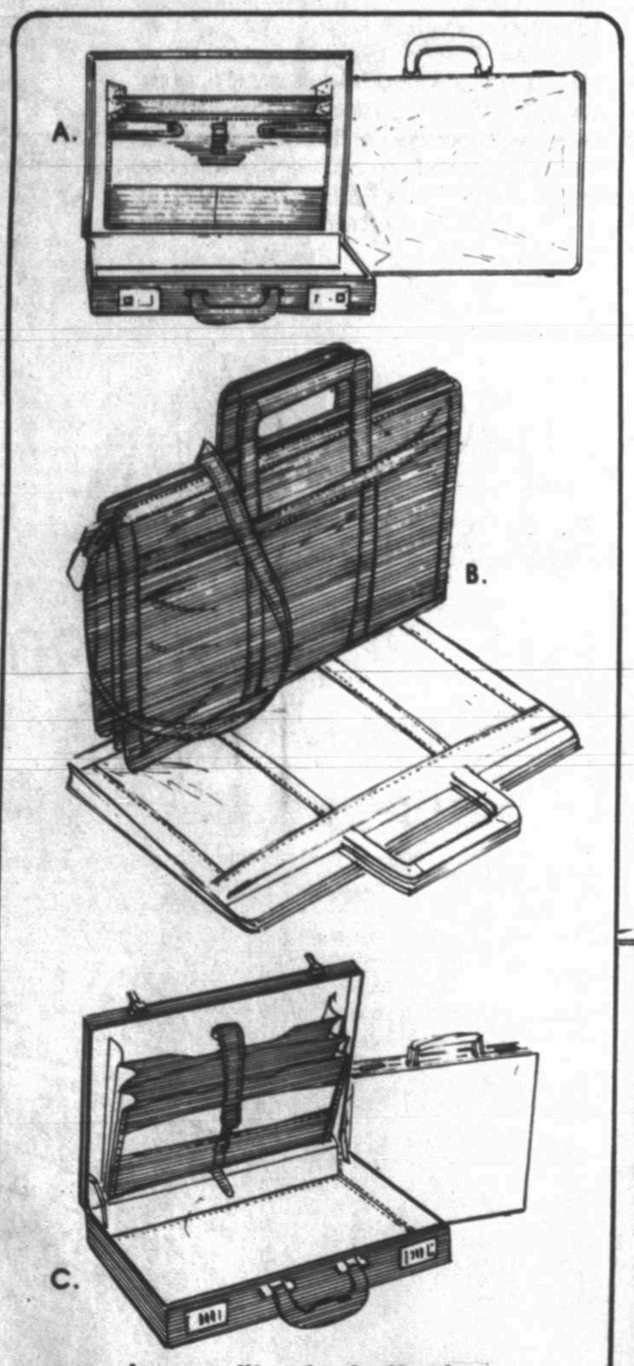

"She had no relatives or children and that was the one thing she loved. He was her only companion. She told me he was the one thing that gave her pleasure," said Margaret Brinkley, cemetery caretaker and executive secretary of the Humane Society.

Mrs. Skoien and Sugar came to Miami Beach from New York together in 1966 when Sugar was a year old. In New York she had been a clothing buyer for Abraham and Straus for 30 years.

The two were a common sight on Miami Beach. They went everywhere together and made weekly trips to Sugar's beauty salon.

The Newspaper BIBLE

I TALKED WITH AN ANGEL!

The next day Peter went with the three men, accompanied by some other believers from Joppa.

They arrived in Caesarea the following day, and Cornelius was waiting for him, and had called together his relatives and close friends to meet Peter. As Peter entered his home, Cornelius fell to the floor before him in worship. But Peter said, "Stand up! I'm not a god." So he got up and they talked together for a while and then went in where the others were assembled.

Peter told them, "You know it is against the Jewish laws for me to come into a Gentile home like this. But God has shown me in a vision that I should never think of anyone as inferior. So I came as soon as I was sent for. Now tell me what you want."

Cornelius replied, "Four days ago I was praying as usual at this time of the afternoon, when suddenly a man was standing before me clothed in a radiant robe! He told me, 'Cornelius, your prayers are heard and your charities have been noticed by God! Now send some men to Joppa and summon Simon Peter, who is staying in the home of Simon, a tanner, down by the shore.' So I sent for you at once, and you have done well to come so soon. Now here we are, waiting before the Lord, anxious to hear what He has told you to tell us!"

Then Peter replied, "I see very clearly that the Jews are not God's only favorites! In every nation He has those who worship Him and do good deeds and are acceptable to Him."

Battered child leads tragic life

By SUSAN V. HANDS
Hearst Special News Service

But in Middlesex Superior Court, where Pitcher, now 20, was seeking a lenient prison sentence after pleading guilty to manslaughter, the truth of that story finally came out.

Little Donna was a battered child.

Judge Peter Brady, "disturbed" after hearing the horror story of Pitcher's childhood, gave her a "minimal sentence" of four to seven years, which will make her eligible for parole in May 1983.

"Society has some rights," Brady said in open court, "but I am going to give her perhaps her last break.

"I have to give you some kind of punishment for what you've done," the judge told the slender, 5-foot-4 blonde, who sat quietly during her sentencing hearing. "But I am making it as brief as possible. There are people out there who will help you, if you only reach out."

BRADY'S SENTENCE was tailored, he said, to wipe out Pitcher's previous sentence of 20 years for two robberies she committed while trying to escape from the area of the killing last August. He said he considered the robberies "part and parcel of this tragedy."

State law permits a judge to substitute a sentence for manslaughter for the 20-year reformatory sentence, from which Pitcher could have been paroled in September 1982.

Pitcher told police she shot Warren J. Smith, 59, four times with his own revolver when he beat her in the bathroom of his apartment. She said she was afraid he would hurt or kill her.

Pitcher's attorney, Nancy Gertner, told the judge that her client had experienced hurt and abuse all her life.

PITCHER'S MOTHER, Gertner said, deeply resented her two daughters, and when they were pre-teenage, the mother often tied the two girls, naked, to a cellar post without food or access to a toilet for long periods of time.

When Pitcher was 12, her mother left her with her father, who, Gertner said, resented his daughter because she looked like his estranged wife. At this time, Pitcher began to get in trouble with the law and was arrested at age 12 for breaking and entering a neighbor's house.

A police officer, Joseph Burke, asked the judge to be lenient with Pitcher, whom he has known since her first encounters with the law, because, Burke said, "She was a girl with three strikes against her when she was 12 years old."

FROM 1978 TO 1980, Pitcher lived with a boyfriend, and during this time, her legal record was clean, Gertner said.

"For the first time in her life, she had someone to give her a little bit of attention," Gertner said.

But the boyfriend allegedly beat Pitcher, too. She was hospitalized twice with injuries, including a stab wound which she said her boyfriend inflicted.

Pitcher also was hospitalized twice for miscarriages which she said resulted from beatings by her boyfriend.

She left her boyfriend in May 1980, and shuffled among relatives until she was sentenced to Framingham Reformatory in June. It was after her release that she met Smith at a bar, and he offered her a place to stay, Gertner said.

BUT SMITH proved to be no white knight either. Pitcher said he was terribly jealous any time she spoke to younger men, even though she wasn't living with him as his girlfriend.

Pitcher told police Smith had challenged her to shoot him when she tried to scare him to stop him from beating her by grabbing his loaded revolver (which he usually carried with him).

"So then he went to hit me again," Pitcher told police, "and I like pulled back, but he still had my arm, and I shot him." When he moved to attack her a second time, Pitcher said she shot him three more times.

Pitcher said she hitchhiked in New Hampshire and Connecticut for three days before robbing a motorist of $70 and robbing a Cumberland Farms store in Hadley. She was convicted of the robberies in Hampshire Superior Court and sentenced to 20 years in Framingham House of Correction before she was committed for trial in the Smith slaying.

"IT'S TRITE TO say, but she has suffered enough," Gertner said of her young client, who has enrolled in a high school equivalencev program at the Framingham prison and has received an offer to live with a family after her release.

Too quick to talk

A recent item in Newsweek was interesting both from the standpoint of what it said and what it did not say.

The item related that Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin visited Secretary of State Alexander Haig not long ago and gave the secretary a note saying Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko wants to meet with President Ronald Reagan in September.

Gromyko is scheduled to be in the United States at that time for the opening of a new United Nations session.

Dobrynin also reportedly told Haig that the Soviets are willing to resume negotiations next fall on limiting deployment of medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

Some initial observations of this brief note would be:

— It's encouraging to hear that the Soviets are interested (if they really are) in limiting deployment of weapons.

— The United States certainly should be willing to negotiate with the Soviets in the interest of making the world a safer place.

— To rush in blindly, as though handed a wonderful gift, would constitute a major error for a new administration that, from all appearances, has been building respect inside the Kremlin.

The new direction launched by this administration within the United States is, hopefully, helping to recoup some of the damage suffered during the Carter years and before. If the momentum can be maintained, the armed forces will be rebuilt to their former level of prestige and the security of the United States once again will be ensured.

Already Congress is reflecting the sentiments of President Reagan and the American people by taking steps to make the country stronger militarily.

It's good, on the one hand, that the change of leadership in the United States has resulted in a little tension and, maybe, a bit of nail-biting inside the Soviet Union. The United States should always be willing to negotiate disarmament agreements. During past years, unfortunately, it became too commonplace for the United States to be overly eager to wade throuh arms limitation negotiations that all too often were drawn to our detriment and not adhered to by the Soviets.

Maybe the United States fell into the rut of negotiating arms agreements just in the interest of having agreements while realistically the two superpowers needed meaningful and verifiable terms.

Before indicating to the Russians that we're again willing to negotiate a reduction in arms, it would be best to let them sweat it out a little. It likely would serve us well to approach this olive branch with just such a perspective.

CHARLEY REESE

Ravings of 'Trendy Set' restricted to the minority

Charley Reese

The "Trendy Set" is not for me. I realized that when I saw the movie "Easy Rider" — the epic that ushered in the drug age — and found myself alone in cheering when the rednecks shot the drug dealers. It honestly never occurred to me that I was supposed to feel sorry for the scumbags on the motorcycles.

The same thing happened when I saw "Midnight Express," the movie about that American kid sentenced to a Turkish prison for attempting to smuggle drugs out of the country. I thought his sentence was fair and justified and that the Turks are very smart not to waste a lot of money on the care and feeding of criminals.

I don't even care for Alan Alda, the king of the Trendy Set, who is an actor of limited range and limitless ego. I have seen Alan Alda goes to war ("M.A.S.H."), Alan Alda goes to Washington ("The Seduction of Joe Tynan"), and Alan Alda goes on vacation ("Four Seasons"). Actually, Alan Alda ought to go home and watch old Robert Blake movies in the hope that some of Blake's enormous talent might rub off on him.

As nice as it would be to be accepted, I always find myself on the opposite side of the Trendy Set. Nuclear energy, for example, strikes me as sensible and the anti-nukes strike me as fools. With 20,000 nuclear warheads sitting on missiles, you've got to be dumb to think that a civilian reactor is a big threat to your safety.

Environmental extremists give me a pain. They would freeze 15,000 old ladies in Buffalo in order to avoid disturbing one sparrow 500 miles from the nearest human. The appointment of James Watt, a moderate common sense fellow, as Secretary of the Interior, may well solve my problem as it appears the environmentalists have been shocked into permanent hysteria.

I don't like feminists either. They are silly persons pushing an absurd unisex ideology and acting just like women when they don't get their way. They are living refutations of their own arguments. If I'd ever believed in sexual equality, I wouldn't after watching them. Women aren't equal or inferior; they're different and no amount of legislation is going to erase that difference.

I don't even feel outraged when nuns who take sides in other people's civil wars get shot as a result. I'm sorry it happened to these ladies, who were probably naive, but the hypocritical lamentations of the Trendy Set are stupid. What do they think happens in wars? I don't recall anyone getting upset when we roasted several thousands of Japanese ladies in Tokyo, Hiroshima and Nagasaki. War is a crime against humanity, all war, and nothing is more absurd than to construct dainty little rules about how to go about the dirty business of killing or to believe that you can go into a war zone, participate on one side or the other, but be exempt from all risks.

I guess I would be worried about the future if the Trendy Set weren't such a minority. After all, when you find people who think the American Army is more of a threat than the Soviet Army or that ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment is the most important issue facing mankind in the twilight of the 20th Century, you would naturally fear for the fate of any country in which such people held positions of leadership. Fortunately, the Trendy Set, since last November, make more noise than it does decisions.

As for me, I'm content to be unfashionable. I much prefer the real world with all its excitement to dull illusions of people who believe that all the world's peoples live and think just like the American upper class liberal.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Top officials protected Carter's cronies

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Locked in Justice Department files is compelling evidence that ex-President Jimmy Carter's chief prosecutors thwarted a grand jury investigation of the Robert Vesco case. The only question is whether their tactics constituted obstruction of justice.

Senior officials used every strategem from delay to deceit to keep the grand jury from indicting cronies of Carter. My associate Indy Badhwar has had access to the suppressed records. These show that the officials were preoccupied with neutralizing the federal grand jury, which seemed equally intent on getting to the bottom of the scandal.

One plaintive memo from Thomas Henderson, the public integrity chief, reported anxiously: "The grand jury foreman and some other jurors do not trust us and believe we are somehow involved in a cover-up ..."

Henderson seemed unduly concerned about "political damage" and bad publicity. "Jack Anderson apparently communicates with several witnesses," he warned.

The witness who could have turned the case into a political scandal of Watergate dimensions was presidential assistant Richard Harden. An approach had been made to recruit him into a $10 million conspiracy to fix international swindler Robert Vesco's troubles with the law.

There is circumstantial evidence that Harden drew President Carter himself, perhaps unwittingly, into the plot. But Harden stonewalled when he was hauled before the grand jury. He testified on Dec. 20, 1978, that he had rejected the Vesco advances.

Yet in a memo intended for official eyes only, Philip Heymann, chief of the criminal division, acknowledges there was a "distinct possibility" that Harden's testimony was "perjurious." Justice Department attorneys even drafted an official petition to the court asking for a special prosecutor to investigate Harden.

Not only was the petition never presented, but the documents accusing Harden of perjury were withheld from the grand jury. For the next four months, the prosecutors canceled more than a dozen scheduled hearing dates before they finally got back to the Vesco case on April 6, 1979.

Thereafter, jurors complained that the prosecutors seemed to be protecting White House witnesses. Some witnesses even appeared to be coached. When one witness forgot to hedge his answer with a parenthetical "to the best of my recollection," a government prosecutor did it for him.

The grand jury was also confronted with a succession of rapidly changing prosecutors, as if the Justice Department were shopping for someone who could dissuade the jurors from pursuing the evidence. One was a black government attorney, but he also failed to head off the predominantly black grand jury.

The prosecutors frequently brought White House witnesses back to clean up sloppy testimony. But the witnesses against the White House were put through relentless interrogation that seemed calculated to discredit them. Incriminating documents were also withheld from the grand jury. More than once, foreman Ralph Ulmer sought out documents on his own and offered them as evidence.

The Justice Department's tactics alienated the foreman who, in disgust, tried to resign. In a letter to the presiding judge, he accused the prosecutors of a whitewash to protect the Carter administration. The Justice Department then investigated itself and found the accusation to be "without merit." This determination was reached, incredibly, without ever interviewing the foreman who had made the charge.

The last in the parade of prosecutors, Harry Benner, finally told the grand jury that the Justice Department would refuse to prosecute any indictments. Instead, he tried to get the jurors to exonerate administration officials, including Harden. Harden had been accused of perjury in the Justice Department's own internal review.

The jurors, therefore, decided it would be futile to indict anyone, but they also refused to clear anyone — not even President Carter himself. Explained the foreman in a report to the judge: "The Justice Department told the grand jury there would be no indictments because they would sign none ... Jury was asked only to clear those involved by writ of ignoramus. Jury neither indicted nor cleared anyone."

Indeed, one juror was so distrustful of the prosecutors that he marked the writ of ignoramus with a huge cross so the Justice Department couldn't fill in any names in the blank space.

UNDER THE DOME: Forget Abscam! Honesty is alive and well in the House of Representatives. One recent Friday afternoon, Rep. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., found himself short on cash at Washington National Airport. Did he look for an Arab sheik? Of course not. He borrowed a buck from a reporter who was interviewing him — and meticulously noted down the transaction in a spiral notebook. Three days later, the reporter received a check for $1.

— The National Conservative Political Action Committee's media blitz against Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., has developed some backfire trouble. In newspaper ads across Maryland, NCPAC has provided preprinted coupons that readers can clip and send to Sarbanes, chastising him for his "dismal voting record." But about 200 fans of the senator have scratched out "dismal," substituted words like "fantastic" and accompanied their coupons with contributions.

INSIDE REPORT:

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

EVANS

NOVAK

WASHINGTON — George Bush, while determined to be a vice president who never disagrees with his president, contends "we need to do better" in convincing minority groups that Ronald Reagan believes in fair play for them.

"I think we've got a problem in this whole field of communication with blacks and Hispanics and women," Vice President Bush told us in an exclusive interview in his White House office. But he hinted no disagreement with President Reagan on this or any other issue.

On the contrary, Bush revealed he was following "some fair advice" from his Democratic predecessor, Walter F. Mondale: "If you disagree or have something that is a personal observation about the way something's running ... it's better to do that in private (rather than) speak up in a Cabinet meeting with a dramatic (announcement)." According to Bush, Mondale advised him to tell the president "what you think" but "don't make some crusade" in public.

In fact, Bush agreed to the interview with us only on the basis of conditions intended to prevent possible friction with Reagan: no discussion of the White House power struggle with Secretary of State Alexander Haig; no discussion of personalties in the administration; no discussion of meetings in the administration; no information provided off the record or on a background basis.

What he called an incorrect perception of Reagan's attitude toward minority groups was stressed by Bush as the condition that most needed changing.

"I feel very comfortable with what I know the president's approach (to minority groups) to be," Bush said. "But I don't think we've gotten that clearly across to people." This failure, he added, is "heightened by some of the (black) leaders, who claim this crowd doesn't care. We do care."

Bush's comments suggested he is becoming Reagan's emissary to the black community. He said "one of the great civil right leaders" (whom he declined to identify) had questioned whether it was wise for the vice president to deliver the commencement address at predominantly black Howard University in Washington last month.

Bush quoted the black leader as saying: "How can you do it? What are you going to say?" According to the vice president, "I said, 'Don't worry about it, I'll go out there and do all right — get out in one piece.' I think it worked out that way."

He said Reagan "cares very, very deeply" about the murders of young blacks in Atlanta and personally approved financial help asked by the city that was "very difficult in terms of the budget." Bush said it was "a manifestation of concern, but I don't know that others know that."

Bush indicated fear of an adverse reaction from blacks resulting from Reagan administration proposals, not yet determined, to change the affirmative action program. "I think what counts is what you really feel in terms of discrimination or a fair chance at the starting line," Bush said. "He (Reagan) feels very strongly."

Similarly, Bush expressed concern about black reaction to a change in the Voting Rights Act likely to be proposed by Reagan. The administration will have to make clear that its proposal "is motivated by a sense of fair play, and I do think we need to do better on it."

While putting himself forward as defender of the president on minority questions, Bush refused to play liberal critic of the administration's conservative stance on social issues. He said he backs Reagan in supporting a constitutional amendment to prohibit abortion, which was opposed by Bush as a presidential candidate last year.

Does that switch to the anti-abortion position bother Bush? "No," he said, adding: "If it did, I wouldn't discuss it, because I don't think the way to be effective is to highlight differences."

That practice follows the advice from Mondale, as related by Bush: "Tell him (the president) what you think, but don't make some crusade if everything doesn't go exactly the way you want.

"I feel very comfortable with that," the vice president added. "I feel very compatible and comfortable with the major thrusts the man is making in both foreign and domestic policy. It's a good job. Everyone knocks it, but I also notice a helluva lot of people have wanted it."

Declaring "I don't think I've ever worked harder," Bush said he was "not looking for" specific duties other than his chairmanship of the regulatory task force. That, he said, was his only designated regular responsibility. The highly-publicized selection of Bush instead of Haig as crisis manager gave him a post, Bush said, that is "a very limited, surrogate thing for the president."

In the interview, the vice president also made these points:

"Doing something about crime" will be a major theme of the Reagan administration once congressional action on the Reagan economic package is concluded. "The president's very much concerned about that."

There are no ideological differences on foreign policy within the administration. When Reagan lifted the Soviet grain embargo against the recommendations of his foreign policy advisers, "that was the president keeping his word (given during the campaign)."

"There will be some more emphasis on less regulation" — especially proposed amendments to the Clean Air Act that would ease environmental regulation.

MARK RUSSELL SAYS

Iraq makes bombs with Israeli's name on them. Israel destroys the factory which makes the bombs. The U.S. criticizes Israel — embracing the ancient fable, "The time to burn down the lion's house is after the lion chews on your foot."

●

Apparently, Israel doesn't read the small print whenever they purchase fighters from us — "Warning. These planes are to remain on the ground until they are flattened by an atomic bomb."

●

Ironically, criticism of Israel's raid comes largely from the same crowd that wants to make handguns available in vending machines.

Shipyard accident investigated

CHESTER, Pa. (AP) — Sun Ship Inc. is asking the FBI and local police to investigate a shipyard accident that killed three workers and injured three others, but the company did not say whether foul play is suspected.

Agent Michael Wald of the FBI's Philadelphia office said he was aware of the request, but "the only way we can get into that kind of stuff is if there is sabotage." He stressed he had no evidence sabotage was involved.

Sun Ship said after Tuesday's accident that the firefighting system was activated, an alarm sounded and carbon dioxide gas automatically released to smother non-existent flames aboard the drydocked SS LASH Atlantico. The engine room doors automatically slammed shut, trapping five of the men in the oxygen-depleted atmosphere.

Principals being sued

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Actor Burt Reynolds and all other principals in the movie "The Cannonball Rally" are being sued for $35 million by a stuntwoman permanently crippled while doubling for actress Farrah Fawcett in a car-crash scene.

Heidi Von Beltz, 23, was paralyzed from the waist down and lost use of her hands in the June 25, 1980, accident, her attorneys said Wednesday. The car was supposed to narrowly avoid collision with five other vehicles but collided with a van. The stuntman driving the car also was injured but has since returned to work.

None of the suit's defendants could be reached for comment.

Charge is dropped

MIAMI (AP) — Citing a lack of evidence, a federal judge has dropped the most serious charge against one of 11 defendants in the Ethiopian Zion Coptic Church marijuana-smuggling trial.

The action Wednesday dismissed a charge of participating in a continuing criminal enterprise against Clifton Ray Middleton, but all defendants still face several drug-related charges stemming from an indictment charging church members with importing "multi-tons" of pot.

The Coptic church, a long-standing religion in Ethiopia and Jamaica, believes marijuana is the sacramental body and blood of Jesus.

Suit talks under way

NEW YORK (AP) — Talks between the Reagan administration and IBM are under way and could lead to settlement of a 12-year anti-monopoly suit against the computer giant, a federal judge said.

U.S. District Judge David Edelstein confirmed Wednesday the two sides have begun talks but did not disclose which charges may be dropped.

The government sued International Business Machines Corp. in 1969, charging it with monopolizing the general-computer industry. The suit sought to break IBM into smaller, autonomous companies.

Viet vets to form convoy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A dozen Vietnam veterans on a hunger strike say they will either form a convoy or "just start marching" to Washington to demand an Independence Day meeting with President Reagan.

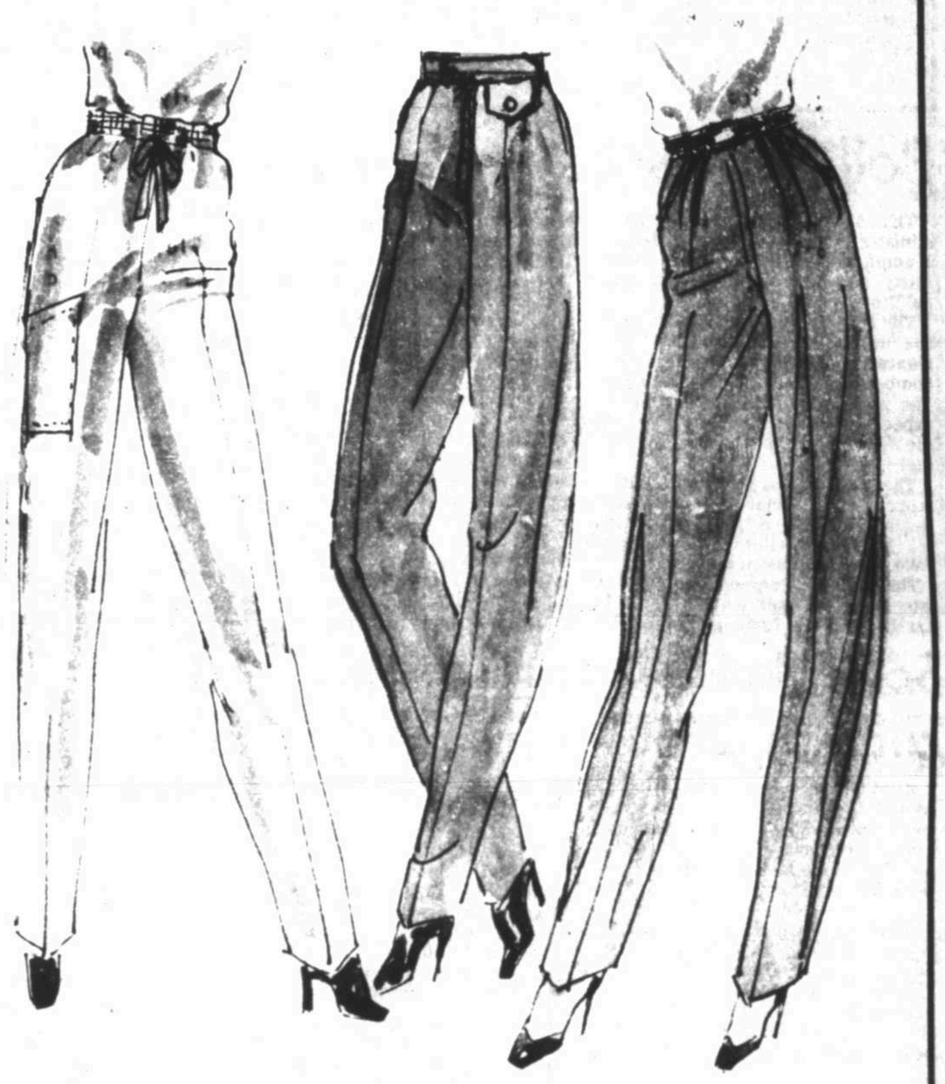

The group is seeking independent reviews of Veterans Administation hospital care and the effects of the defoliant Agent Orange and a study of the psychological.

Jaruzelski drops ministers

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski today dropped five cabinet ministers, including one criticized for hampering the investigation into the beating of three union members. He proposed a major cabinet reshuffle aimed at avoiding Poland's economic "ruin."

Jaruzelski, in a speech to the Sejm, or Parliament, also said he was ready to discuss with Poland's trade unions, including the independent union Solidarity, ways to increase production of coal.

"It was said that it was our gold," Jaruzelski said of coal. "I call it oxygen. We can live without gold but without oxygen there is no life."

COAL IS POLAND'S chief hard currency earner but has been produced in smaller quantities since miners began working five-day weeks instead of six-day weeks several months ago.

Jaruzelski also said Poles must halt declinging productivity and growing absenteeism, inefficiency and waste of raw materials and power if Poland is to survive its economic crisis.

The ministers dropped included Deputy Premier Henryk Kisiel and Justice Minister Jerzy Bafia. Kisiel, a long-time economic official whose tenure in government pre-dates the decade when Edward Gierek was party leader, was planning commission chief and a former finance minister.

JARUZELSKI SAID KISIEL was dropped for "health reasons." But a recent report on the economy prepared under his guidance was harshly criticized and rejected by both the Sejm and Jaruzelski.

He has also been criticized by the Polish news media in a period when many officials have come under fire or been ousted for their role in leading the nation into economic crisis.

The removal of Bafia appeared to be a concession to Solidarity, which criticized him for his role in investigating the beatings of three union members in northwestern Bydgoszcz March 19.

The beatings, which occured when police cleared a government meeting hall, prompted a nationwide warning strike March 27 and nearly sparked another regional warning strike in four northwest provinces Thursday.

THE STRIKE WAS AVERTED earlier this week after talks with the government produced a settlement, but no details of the agreement were publicized.

Jaruzelski also dropped Ministers Adam Kowalik of Internal Trade, Zbigniew Rudnicki of Communications and Jerzy Gabrysiak, minister without portfolio and head of the price commission.

Jaruzelski said Kowalik was dropped for family reasons and Rudnicki retired. Jaruzelski gave no reason for Grabrysiak's ouster.

Jaruzelski said his conditions for economic reform required "order...and a responsible attitude of all social and trade unions. Without such an attitude, we will see the ruin of Poland."

U.S. issues warning to Moscow

By BARTON REPPERT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a fresh warning to Moscow, the State Department says Kremlin pressure on Poland's leadership to quash the country's trade union movement represents interference in Polish internal affairs and a violation of the Helsinki accords.

Department spokesman David Passage said Thursday that the United States regrets the "apparently threatening tone" of a letter sent by the Soviet Communist Party's Central Committee to the Warsaw leadership.

"From what we have seen, the Polish people and government are in the process of resolving their differences in calm and in dignity without help from outside," Passage said.

On Capitol Hill, Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on Europe, said he believes the Kremlin will have to decide soon how to respond to Polish party leader Stanislaw Kania's reassertion of his leadership over the opposition of Soviet-backed hardliners.

"I think that Moscow has been embarrassed — if not defeated — by their failure to get rid of Kania," Hamilton said. He said that in advance of a special party congress scheduled for mid-July, the Polish situation now appears headed for a "critical period."

Lech Walesa, leader of the Polish labor union Solidarity, speaks to employees of of an auto factory in Warsaw Thursday.

REP. TOM LANTOS, D-Calif., said he was concerned that the United States and its allies may, in effect, be increasing the chances of Soviet military intervention in Poland because of their preoccupation with Israel's raid on an Iraqi nuclear reactor and other Mideast problems.

"Today, as many are mesmerized over the destruction of the nuclear capability of the radical and irresponsible regime in Iraq, the Soviet Union is again poised on the brink of crushing the budding independence of Poland," Lantos declared on the House floor.

Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., commented that in the long run, Moscow "simply cannot stand free expression, competition of ideas within the Warsaw Pact. They will have to alter their relationship with Eastern Europe very fundamentally unless they can persuade the Polish regime to put a halt on these changes."

But Findley added: "I think their (the Soviets') conservative inclinations will keep them from rash actions."

PASSAGE SUGGESTED at a State Department briefing that Red Army forces in the western Soviet Union near Poland are in a "high state of readiness" and could probably move into Poland fairly quickly.

OFFICIALS HAVE said in recent days, however, that they have not detected any unusual troop movements.

Court to hold hearing on Iran hostage accord

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time since Watergate, the Supreme Court will hold a special summer hearing. At stake: the Iranian hostage accord hammered out by Jimmy Carter in the last hours of his presidency.

Moving with unusual speed, the justices announced Thursday they would hear arguments in the dispute on June 24.

The Justice Department and the Iranian government asked for swift consideration because the agreement calls for transferring up to $4 billion in Iranian assets by July 19.

On July 8, 1974, the justices heard lawyers clash over then-President Nixon's authority to hold onto the Watergate tapes.

Nixon lost that historic struggle just 16 days later, when the court ordered the embattled chief executive to hand over the White House tapes to a special prosecutor.

The high court decided Thursday not to wait for a federal appeals court to decide the Iranian assets case — a rarely used procedure.

A federal judge ruled Thursday in New York, however, that Carter had no legal right to void liens on Iranian assets in the United States as part of the pact that freed the 52 American hostages Jan. 20 after 444 days' captivity.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Kevin Thomas Duffy involved a court-ordered attachment of domestic Iranian assets pending trial of a suit by the Marschalk Co. Inc., which contends Iran National Airlines Corp. owes it $46,528 for advertising services.

The 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals is expected to review Duffy's decision in time for the Supreme Court to consider it before ruling on the legality of the overall hostage pact.

Poll shows Begin ahead

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin has gained a comfortable lead over the Labor Party, according to two opinion polls published today.

The soundings were conducted for the dailies Jerusalem Post and Haaretz before Israeli warplanes bombed the Iraqi nuclear reactor. The popularity of that operation is expected to boost Begin's ratings in the next round of public opinion polling.

The Modi'in Ezrahi Applied Research Center projected 46 seats for Begin's Likud bloc and 40 for Labor in the 120-seat Parliament following June 30 national elections.

The gap had widened from 45-42 in late May, the poll found. Modi'in Ezrahi said the findings were bolstered by setting up a mock ballot booth and asking each of the 1,217 Israelis polled to cast their vote. This lowered the undecided vote from 22.5 percent to 14.5 percent, it said.

A separate poll by Public Opinion Research of Israel gave Likud a 43-37 lead over Labor.

The poll of late May was the first in two years to give Begin the lead. At one point last year Likud was trailing so badly that polls predicted Labor would win the first outright majority in Parliament in Israel's 33-year history.

The turnaround was attributed to lackluster campaigning by Labor, generous tax cuts by Likud and a burst of foreign policy combativeness on Begin's part.

Soviet leader expresses new concern about arms race

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev expressed renewed concern about the arms race in a one-hour meeting today with former Swedish Prime Minister Olof Palme, the Swedish visitor reported.

Brezhnev "seemed extremely worried about the current situation, the causes of the arms race," Palme said. "He said he was willing to enter into negotiations as soon as possible with the United States on Salt II and European missiles."

Palme said the 74-year-old Soviet leader looked "very good, active" during their one-hour meeting in the Kremlin.

"He expressed his good wishes to our commission," the Swedish politician said. Palme is a founder of the Independent Commission on Disarmament and Security, a non-governmental body that is meeting this weekend in Moscow. Former U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance is another participant in the session.

Asked if Brezhnev was critical of the United States, Palme said the Soviet eader "ws critical but by no means hostile. Rather he deplored the situation."

Despite name, Alamo Heights not much on height

Will suburb's zoning laws stand against condominium developer?

By MACK SISK
Associated Press Writer

ALAMO HEIGHTS, Texas (AP) — A complex of luxury condominiums whose selling prices start at $300,000 apiece might be considered an asset to many Texas communities.

But in Alamo Heights — an affluent San Antonio bedroom community where residents traditionally have objected to height — plans for such a posh high-rise condominium complex costing $45 million have been met with disdain, controversy and a lawsuit.

ONE ATTORNEY, who objects to the condominium plans, contends outcome of the lawsuit against the city of Alamo Heights may set a precedent on whether zoning ordinances are worth the paper they are written on.

Architect and developer Robert Callaway decided earlier this year that he wanted to build two high-rise buildings — one 12 and one 8 stories tall — on a thickly wooded 17-acre tract at the headwaters of the San Antonio River, about three blocks from the Alamo Heights businss district.

But Callaway was confronted with single-family zoning and a longtime city ordinance forbidding any residential structure more than 2½-stories, or 40 feet, tall in this community of old homes and old money.

THE TALLER of the two proposed high-rise buildings would rise 165 feet — about 125 feet taller than any other dwelling in this city of about 7,000 people. It would be located across the street from several homes nestled on finely landscaped and manicured estates.

Callaway convinced the city council in February to re-zone the 17 acres to allow multi-dwelling structures, by a 3-2 vote.

Then he won another 3-2 vote of the council in April granting him an exception to the height requirement despite objections by more than 1,000 people who signed a petition. Callaway agreed to lower the buildings to 10 and 6 stories before the council acted.

Attorney Doug Harlan, who lives in the area, contends that Callaway managed to thwart the zoning and height requirements by being a member of the "good old boy" clique that rules Alamo Heights.

CALLAWAY DISAGREES. He contends the undeveloped 17 acres is a unique site in Alamo Heights, which is a city that has seen San Antonio grow around it and has few open spaces left for development.

The developer has countered a lawsuit filed by several individuals and members of the Old Alamo Heights Neighborhood Association with a suit of his own, claiming $9,000 a day in damages for a nine-day delay of the proposed project by a temporary restraining order issued by District Judge James Onion. Onion dissolved the order which prevented a vote of the city council, clearing it to approve the high-rise project on April 3.

Callaway contends he is transforming a jungle filled with old abandoned autos, tires and brush into a well landscaped condominium complex of which any community could be proud.

"We spent a lot of money just cleaning the debris, tires, old automobies and trash people have thrown on it 20 or 30 years," Callaway said. "We have trendous landscape budgets on our projects — sensistive to the environment, landscaping, the environment, everything else. We're talking about $300,000-up condominium homes."

BUT HARLAN said throwing out the longtime residential height requirement could be the beginning of the end of what has made Alamo Heights an enviable place to live since it was established as an independent city in 1922.

"It is a way of life," Harlan said. "There are previous few places anywhere in the country anymore that really are little communities where you have a nice neighborhood, where you have single-family houses with a mix of small apartments and duplexes and churches and schools. Dogs can play in the street, people jog and neighbors know each other and they talk and they have block parties."

Kay Hays, president of the association, said it filed a lawsuit because it feels the city council acted illegally in granting the zoning change and height variance to Callaway. She said because no other residential unit had been more than 2½ stories tall, that Alamo Heights has no standards for any building taller than that.

"If we had a master plan, a comprehensive study of the city with designated areas in which high rises would be allowed, with standards attached, and this was done after a thoughtful study, then that would make it totally legal and acceptable," she said.

HARLAN SAID the Alamo Heights Fire Department does not have equipment to fight fire in high-rise buildings and the city has no standards requiring such fire safety.

Mrs. Hays said her group, which flew a balloon adjacent to the high-rise site to show residents just how tall the high-rises would be, was discouraged that so many older homes in Alamo Heights were being torn down and replaced with apartment units and condominiums that are not required to meet any standards.

"You're changing the whole atmosphere in Alamo Heights and we don't particularly want 130 families on a piece of property that has zero population," she said.

Callaway, however, said he expected the city would prevail in the lawsuit and he was going ahead with plans to build the condominiums.

He contends opposition to the plan has died down considerably since he won the city council vote and the last city election failed to change the 3-2 margin in his favor on the council.

"We will start the road system, utilities and there will be months and months of that. We're going ahead as planned. I think most of the objection has subsided," the developer said.

JAMES DROUGHT, attorney for the Neighborhood Association, said he expected trial of homeowners' lawsuit to take place within 60 to 90 days.

"The validity of the permit to build the high rise and the zoning amendment are still at issue in the lawsuit," said Drought, who further contends a three-fourths vote of the council was necessary to amend the city charter.

Harlan argues if opponents of the high-rise lose the suit, it spells hard times ahead for residents of any city who want to control their communities through zoning ordinances.

"If they get away with this, it would be so precedent-setting that zoning ordinances, in my judgment, don't amount to anything. If they survive our legal challenge and the courts uphold what they've done, then, why have zoning ordinances? They don't exist."

Nixons moving to suburbs

SADDLE RIVER, N.J. (AP) — After a year in bustling Manhattan, former President Richard M. Nixon and his wife are moving to the suburbs.

An aide says the Nixons are buying a $1 million house on a quiet cul-de-sac in this small Bergen County community, which has the highest per capita income in the state and only one welfare recipient.

And the new neighbors apparently are tickled about the prospect of living near the former president.

"He'll be most welcome in Saddle River," said Mayor Duncan H. Cameron, a retired stockbroker. "We've never had a Democrat serve as mayor or councilman since the beginning of time."

Nixon aide Nicholas Ruwe said Thursday the Nixons are moving to a sprawling seven-bedroom, contemporary house now owned by John Alford, also a retired stockbroker. The two-story, wood-trimmed house with a circular drive is near a peach orchard and surrounded by woodland.

Although Ruwe declined to give the purchase price, he said the house had been offered for $1.2 million.

Among its features are three built-in stereo systems, a 900-square-foot swimming pool, a tennis court and a 1,000-bottle wine cellar.

The closing of the sale is scheduled for late July, when Ruwe said he expects the Nixons to move from their $750,000 Manhattan townhouse. The townhouse where the Nixons have lived a little longer than a year probably will be sold, Ruwe added.

"The Nixons are not tired of New York, they loved that house," said Ruwe. "But a lot of their life right now is their grandchildren. Four acres in the country would be spectacular for the grandchildren.

"They loved the house and the pool is very important to him," he said.

When Nixon decided to sell the former Western White House, which was on a bluff overlooking the Pacific Ocean in San Clemente, Calif., he encountered a chilly reception from prospective neighbors at two cooperative apartments he considered buying in New York City.

But there was no outward sign of antagonism in this rural community, which is named for the trout stream that bisects it.

"I'd be very pleased to have him for a neighbor," said Mary McCaffrey, who lives nearby with her husband. The homes here are all on a minimum of two acres, however, so neighbors are spared the closeness dictated by city living.

The first incoming flight of American Airlines to Midland Regional Airport is being directed to its landing stop by Gaylan Morgan. The carrier's first flight was to land at 12:25 p.m. from Dallas-Fort Worth. American's entry into Midland marks it as the fifth air carrier for the Permian Basin, and ceremonies Thursday marked that opening.

Probe finds corruption rampant at state prison

NEW YORK (AP) — Widespread corruption created a "let's make a deal" atmosphere at Green Haven State Prison as guards accepted inmate bribes including sex, microwave ovens and theater tickets, a two-year investigation has revealed.

The scathing report released Thursday by the State Investigation Commission also charges widespread theft of state property by officials and prisoners, laxity and chaos because of poor administration.

The report called for an investigation of the entire New York state prison system.

In addition to sex with prostitutes and cash, correction officers received "color televisions, drapes, shoes, microwave ovens, watches, cufflinks, liquor, baked goods, toaster ovens and theater tickets" in return for favors sought by inmates, the investigators found.

"The inmates who could purchase the largest favors were principally white and those with organized crime connections," SIC Chairman Adam Walinsky told a news conference Thursday.

He said on "field days," when inmates can receive many visitors, the maximum security prison was turned into a "smugglers' flea market," with guards eating and drinking with the prisoners and their families.

The report also charged that bookmaking was rife at Green Haven, with a weekly handle of from $14,000 to $17,000.

Prisoners and guards cooperated in large-scale pilfering of prison supplies and some $10,000 worth of clothing was stolen monthly from the facility, the report said.

The SIC investigation was undertaken following the 1978 escape of Green Haven inmate Albert Victory, imprisoned for the murder of a New York City policeman.

Victory reportedly had been driven to a motel by guards for a rendezvous with his girlfriend and escaped while the guards were having drinks in a nearby bar.

He was arrested in California last February and is fighting extradition to New York, saying he will be killed here because he embarrassed correction officials by fleeing.

The SIC said one factor in the deterioration of Green Haven discipline was the fear of "another Attica," a repetition of the bloody 1971 riot there. It cited a tendency to ignore rules and regulations to "keep the lid on."

Another factor, the report said, was that "te most junior officers were placed in direct charge of the most violent felons as veteran officers sought assignments with the least inmate contact."

Although the commission said it did not want to imply that most correction officers are corrupt, it noted that "honest officers failed to report the corruption and favor-taking of others."

Following release of the report, state officials, including the governor and the state's commissioner of correction, agreed an investigation of the entire state prison system was needed, but did not agree on who should conduct the probe.

The SIC proposed that a special temporary legislative commission be set up to examine the problem and called for a major expansion of the inspector general's office which oversees the correction system.

Gov. Hugh Carey said he would ask the attorney general "to expand the scope" of the special prosecutor's current investigation of improprieties in the state prison system.

Census seminar releases useful data

By SUE FAHLGREN
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Agency representatives from Midland and Odessa learned not only the latest census population figures for the cities, but also how they would be able to use information from the 1980 census at a special session at The University of Texas at the Permian Basin Thursday.

The day-long seminar focused on "Census Data Users" and how anyone from a school board member to a hospital administrator could obtain information from the census count and convert it to usable facts.

Sponsored jointly by UTPB and the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission, the seminar featured representatives from the U.S. Bureau of the Census and the Governor's Office in addition to PBRPC spokespersons.

Although the final census figures in all categories are not yet available, officials want the public to know how to obtain the figures currently available.

"This is to show you how you can get hold of information — and accurate information — that you need from the census study," Al Mirabal, representative of the regional census office in Dallas, told seminar participants.

Mirabal and his co-worker, David Buentello, were quick to point out the necessity of reference locations due to a large cutback of federal print outs of materials.

"We are really in a belt-tightening budgetary situation," Buentello said, "and, consequently, a lot of the things we are used to will no longer be available in printed material, but in microfiche."

The majority of frequently used figures are available in this area at the PBRPC under the supervision of Jerry Tschauner. Kathy Clayton, spokesperson for the PBRPC at the conference, said in addition to some printed materials and books, microfiche information could be done as "blow backs," or printed and enlarged reproductions of the film.

A set of the microfiche itself for the entire state would cost only about $11, according through Buentello, and would be available from the PBRPC to groups with microfiche readers.

Bonnie Young, program director of Texas 2000 from the Governor's Office, described materials available through the census network on the state level. Texas 2000 is a group working out of the Governor's Office to provide workable information materials. Located in Austin, the group forwards materials from the Census Bureau, converted by the state, to local affiliates such as the PBRPC.

"We provide to the Planning commissions through the Census Bureau all the published materials and microfiche materials," Ms. Young said. "The local affiliates are the first place to go. If you are a Census data user, I'd get really well-acquainted with the Planning Commission here. You can get a lot of the same materials from your state affiliate (located at Texas Tech University), but it'll cost you."

Texas Tech operates the state affiliate office, using magnetic tapes of more detailed information. The university, through Dr. Evans Curry in the sociology department, stores and transforms information from summary tape files of the census findings.

The cutbacks may not allow as much printing by government agencies, Mirabal said, but it could be a boon to the private businessman. "It will be a wonderful opportunity for the private sector to come in and do that (printing)," he said. "It's a wonderful role for the private sector to use their ingenuity."

Local census figures released at seminar

ODESSA — Advance figures of the 1980 Census count for Ector and Midland counties were released to local officials Thursday in a special "Census Data Users" seminar at The University of Texas at the Permian Basin.

Although final figures are not scheduled for release until early 1982, according to regional Census Bureau representatives, the advance figures are currently being used by the Texas Legislature to figure redistricting.

Midland County's population is figured at 82,636, while Ector County totals 115,374. By city, Midland had the larger percentage climb with 18.6 percent increase from a 1970-figure of 59,463 to a 1980 total of 70,523. Odessa showed a 14.9 percent increase over the decade growing from 78,380 to 90,027.

The current working figure for the state population shows Texas moving to the no. 3 slot in most-populated states with 14,228,383 inhabitants.

"It will be a while before a final report is available," cautioned David Buentello of the Dallas office of the Census Bureau Thursday. "What takes time is tabulating the answers that are hand-written. However, the 100 percent data (items answered by both long-form and short-form recipients) has been available since March in the advanced reports. The State Legislature has been using it to reapportion the districts of the state."

Buentello said he thought the final figures would show "an undercut of less than 1 percent" of the population. He said in the 1970 census that margin for error was around 2.5 percent.

"I think this has been the best census that has ever been conducted," Buentello said.

In addition to population figures, the census data will include trends in housing, economy, unemployment, ethnicity, transportation and other items.

Battle of advertisers ends

DALLAS (AP) — The lyrics are cheerful, the music is bouncy, but the lawyers fighting the deadly serious battle of the ads argue copyright laws offer protection from "smiling assassins."

The four-day copyright infringment trial ended Thursday with an attorney for Dr Pepper telling the federal judge that Sambo's Restaurants Inc. should be ordered not to use a commercial that parodies the Dallas-based soft drink company's ad.

U.S. District Judge William Taylor, who has already issued a temporary injunction against Sambo's and its advertising agency, Bozell & Jacobs, said he would try to make a "prompt" decision in the case.

Sambo's has been promoting a senior citizen's discount program with an ad that features elderly dancers singing a sprightly jingle that asks the musical question: "Don't you want to be a senior, too?"

Dr Pepper sued the restaurant, claiming the commercial was "substantially similar" to the soft drink ad that queries, "Wouldn't you like to be a pepper, too?"

Begin says secret bomb plant destroyed in raid

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin says Israel's real target in bombing the Iraqi atomic reactor was an underground nuclear installation where the Iraqis allegedly planned to build nuclear bombs.

"This is where they were preparing to build bombs, but the inspectors did not see it," Begin told reporters at a diplomatic reception Thursday night. The Iraqis "fooled" inspectors of the International Atomic Energy Agency who checked the reactor in January, he said.

Begin claimed the installation was 130 feet underground, beneath the reactor, and was destroyed along with the reactor in Sunday's bombing.

Begin's disclosure appeared to be part of an Israeli offensive aimed at proving to the United States that there is no justification for punishing the Jewish state for the raid. Washington is withholding the delivery of four F-16 jets to Israel while it considers whether American-supplied warplanes were used illegally for offensive, rather than defensive, purposes.

The daily newspaper Haaretz reported that Israel was likely to divulge secret intelligence information to the Americans to prove that the Iraqis were planning to make bombs, despite Iraq's protestations to the contrary.

In Paris, the French Atomic Energy Commission, which supplied the Iraqi reactor, said Thursday the Iraqis could not have used it to produce atomic weapons. But three French physicists said they had written a memorandum before the Israeli raid including their findings that Iraq could use the reactor to produce "one atomic bomb per year."

Foreign reports say Israel has atomic weapons, but Israel insists its two nuclear reactors are for peaceful research. While it has not signed the nuclear non-proliferation treaty and keeps information on its nuclear activities under tight military censorship, Israel has vowed repeatedly not to be "the first country to introduce atomic weapons into the Middle East."

Begin said he was not especially worried about the suspension of shipment of U.S. warplanes and was sure that ultimately they would reach Israel.

Begin, who faces rival Labor Party leader Shimon Peres in elections on June 30, used much stronger language later in a campaign speech to several thousand people in Petah Tikva, six miles east of Tel Aviv.

He accused U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger of advocating a total cutoff of military and economic aid to Israel.

"By what morality were you acting, Mr. American secretary of defense?" Begin asked. "Haven't you heard of 1½ million little Jewish children who were thrown into the gas chambers?"

Begin then asked, "Who are you trying to punish, Mr. secretary of defense? Self-defending Israel or aggressive, murderous, dictatorial, piratical Iraq?"

Fears harm computer research

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fears by soldiers, diplomats and spies that their secret codes will be cracked are impairing private research into making business computers less vulnerable to unauthorized disclosures and abuse, a new report conducted for the government says.

The study by SRI International, a large consulting firm in Menlo Park, Calif., said fears that cryptography research will compromise national security are giving Japanese computer manufacturers a competitive advantage over U.S. companies.

The report, obtained by The Associated Press, said the government has not recognized that secret codes are now also crucial to protecting personal information on millions of Americans shuttled back and forth between computers every day.

It said federal policies could stifle civilian development of new, potentially profitable products and services, as the widening use of computers increases the need for computer security.

"Today's policy structure, based on an adversary relationship, assumes that national security interests and independent, non-military interests in cryptography are necessarily in conflict," the report said.

Failure to allow less restricted research in cryptography — the study of codes and breaking them — is weakening protection of information stored in private computers, the SRI report said.

For example, unfettered research in Japan might come up with a computer system more secure than the U.S. ones, and that security is a major selling point, the study said. Japanese computer companies already are closing in fast on the U.S. companies, a trend that the study says may accelerate.

Haig relaxing in Hong Kong today

HONG KONG (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. arrived in Hong Kong today for two days of rest and preparation for his visit to China.

Peking greeted Haig's arrival in Asia with escalation of its propaganda campaign against U.S. arms sales to the Nationalist Chinese government on Taiwan. Senior State Department officials sought to defuse the Chinese objections by signaling that they were prepared to talk about arms sales to the People's Republic of China also, but without any advance commitment to sell.

However, these officials do not believe China is in the market for any significant quantities of U.S. arms, especially since the government has just cut its defense spending 20 percent.

While the Chinese chafe over U.S. arms sales to Taiwan, they also complain they are being denied U.S. technology they need for their economic modernization program.

One offcial toldreporters traveling with Haig it is a "national disgrace" that the U.S. government has failed to approved China's request for a group of computers to use in its 1982 census.

The sale is subject to government approval because the computers might have military applications. The Reagan administration announced last week it was relaxing restraints on exports of such "dual use" technology to China, but the sale of the census computers is still delayed.

Earthquake rattles California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An earthquake registering 3.8 on the Richter scale was felt from Santa Monica to the Antelope Valley, but police said they received no reports of injuries or damage.

"If you were sitting right on top of it, you'd feel a real rattle, but it wasn't a damaging quake by any means," Dennis Meredith of California Institute of Technology in Pasadena said Thursday night.

Meredith said the quake struck at 11:06 p.m. and was centered about nine miles northwest of Chatsworth, on the western edge of the San Fernando Valley.

Simi Valley police in neighboring Ventura County reported receiving several phone calls from residents who wondered if there had been a quake. The earthquake's center was roughly halfway between Simi Valley and Chatsworth.

Seattle strike ends

SEATTLE (AP) — A nine-day strike by Seattle-area hotel workers has ended with union members approving a new contract by an overwhelming margin, a federal mediator says.

The strike involved almost 5,000 workers at its peak, with some of Seattle's best-known hotels and restaurants forced to operate with management personnel. Food service workers returned to work over the weekend after restaurants agreed to pay whatever settlement was reached by the hotels.

Doll sculptures homely

By TERRI PERRIN
The Chandler Arizonan

CHANDLER, Ariz. (AP) — The first time she saw "soft sculpture" similar to the stuffed dolls that have been selling like hotcakes for Chandler craft enthusiast Mert Stump, her reaction was "yuk."

"My first feelings were that they were repulsive," the artist recalls.

Other people respond with "gee — those thing are homely."

"Or sometimes, they use the word 'beautiful,' but they're really using it in the negative sense," Mrs. Stump says.

Contorted little babies with sneering faces stuffed in Mason jars, "kitchen witches" with a pursed look that would curdle honey; a full-size toddler with a cute yellow sleeper and a face that rivals something out of a nightmare — Mrs. Stump says she's been "into ugly" with these creations for several months.

It began near Christmas, when her daughter gave her a bag of nylon hose and asked whether there was anything she could do with them, she says.

"I sat and worked on them at art shows," the president of Chandler Arts and Crafts League says, "and it was obvious from the first that they would get a big response from the public.

"People would come up and ask me a lot of questions about what I was doing," she adds, "but at the time I didn't even really know yet."

Beads or moving doll eyes, yarn or fake fur and sometimes even wigs form the features for their faces. Noses are over-size and crooked. Eyes are close-set or grossly uneven. Mouths contort. Chins recede.

They all look a little, well, lumpy. Lumpy and fretful. Or shrewish. Seductive. Sometimes just plain mean.

"They really have character," the artist admitted. "The first thing I do is make the nose and then go to the mouth or the eyes. They just sort of take on personality as you go.

Straight talk

STRATFORD, Conn. (AP) — Striking back at the circumlocutions of scientists and engineers, a businessman told a group of computer experts that what they wrote and said was too often "periphrastic," "umbrageous," and "supererogatory."

This semantic riposte (which means, wordy, obscure and superfluous) was delivered by John Budd, vice president, Emhart Corporation, to a conference of computer scientists.

Budd said plain talk was as critical as technology if America was to rekindle its commitment to science.

Take a letter

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — The cost of writing and mailing a business letter has soared in the past 12 years — from $2.54 in 1968 to $6.07 in 1980. And that does not take into account the planned rise in postage costs, according to the Dartnell Institute of Business Research.

Clifford Bennett, coordinator of Pitney Bowe's postal education center, says companies can save money by remembering to:

—Use certified rather than the more expensive registered mail when mailing items without intrinsic value.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Refresher course on folding fitted sheets

DEAR HELOISE:

I watched you fold a fitted sheet on television recently, but I still can't fold one.

Can you again tell me how to do it? — W. Dekoski

+ + +

A picture is worth a thousand words but I sure hope I can explain it in a lot less than that!

Take a deep breath, grab that fitted sheet and let's go! Imagine your fist as a head and the corners of the sheet as "hoods."

Take one of the top corners and place it over your fist, wrong side out. Pick up the lower corner on the same side and put it on top of the first corner, right side out.

Okay so far?

Reach for the other two corners with your other hand (while hanging onto what you've got) and do the same thing. Now you should have the sheet folded in half with two corners on each fist.

Bring one side over and place it on top of the other two and you should end up with four "hoods" and the sheet folded into fourths. If not, go back to square one.

If you're still with me, the hard part's been done. Place thE sheet on a flat surface and smooth out the folds and the sides, with the hoods facing you. Fold the corners down flat.

Continue folding the sheet with the corners to the inside until you have the desired size.

Now practice a couple more times and you'll find yourself getting faster and faster and, before you know it, you can do it blindfolded. — Heloise

CHILDREN 'N CHORES

Dear Heloise: With two pre-school age children, I had difficulty getting them to go to bed promptly, keep their rooms straight, etc. But no longer. It was as simple as a little box of gold stars!

I made a chart for each child, listing his responsibilities and chores. The chart lasts for two weeks. At the end of that time, if they have enough stars, we do something extra special as a family. It needn't cost a lot of money — just a drive down to the beach is greeted enthusiastically. On some occasions it could be a special treat or inexpensive prize.

This is not a new idea, I know, but many parents may have forgotten about it. It may not work for every child but it sure has worked for us. — Chris Hauck

LETTERS DUE

Dear Heloise: Many of us are not at home when the mailman arrives and there is postage due on a letter, so why not leave a jar with about 50 cents worth of nickles and pennies in your mailbox.

That way, if there is ever any postage due, the mailman can handle it and save you a trip to the main post office.

The worst that can happen is that vandals make off with 50 cents. — Dee Dee Kearney

LUNCH PAIL

Dear Heloise: To renew a rusty metal lunch pail, or just rejuvenate one, use scraps of self-sticking shelf paper.

Just make sure the lunch box is clean and dry before applying the paper.

The box is now much easier to clean, doesn't rust, and the design can be replaced whenever desired.

This trick also helps keep a new lunch kit from rusting and getting scratched. — Mrs. James W. Calhoon

Growing foliage from seeds

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Most of the commercially-grown tropical house plants available in the northeast come from plant cuttings started in Florida, Texas and California, but exotic foliage plants may be grown in the home from seeds.

One benefit is that seeds are shipped more easily from distant sources than are bulky plant cuttings.

Researchers at Cornell University are helping home gardeners, testing growing from seeds such tropical plants as the South Pacific's bird of paradise, Chinese dwarf banana, India's rubber tree, and South Africa's asparagus fern. Of 40 species tested, they reported, 30 have grown into attractive house plants.

"These plants can be grown easily from seeds under typical home conditions, and a gardening project of this kind can be started at any time of the year," reported Leonard P. Perry. Among the findings from the project, begun in 1972 by Prof. James W. Boodley, are:

—No commonly used seed treatments are "best" for all species.

—Most seeds do not need light for germination. In most cases, a warm germination medium promotes faster germination.

—Planting the seed at depths twice the width of the seed is satisfactory for most species. A wide range of pH values of the germination medium has little effect on germination rate.

—An artificial soil mix consisting of one part sphagnum peat moss and one part vermiculite by volume with limestone added to bring the pH value to between 5 and 6 works best for starting seeds. Soil mixes with such ingredients and a small amount of plant nutrients can be used.

—Containers can be almost anything from paper cups to plastic trays to clay pots, if they have adequate drainage holes.

"House plants grown from seeds at home are adapted to indoor conditions, especially low light levels, from the start," says Perry. "This ensures better growth and a greater chance of survival than many plants that have been purchased at the store. For some gardeners, this method offers a new experience as well as a challenge — watching favorite or rare tropical plants that are not commonly available from stores emerge from seeds and grow into mature plants."

Seeds are available from many companies, generally sold by weight. Perry notes that the number of seeds in a packet varies greatly, from 15 of Abyssinia banana to a million of artillery plant. The size ranges from a pin point to a golf ball. And Perry says many tropical plant seeds perish rapidly when stored, so should be planted promptly upon arrival from the source.

Most seeds, he adds, have no light requirements for germination but fig (Fiscus genus) seeds should be sown on the surface of the medium. When young plants from seeds are up and growing, they should be given indirect light.

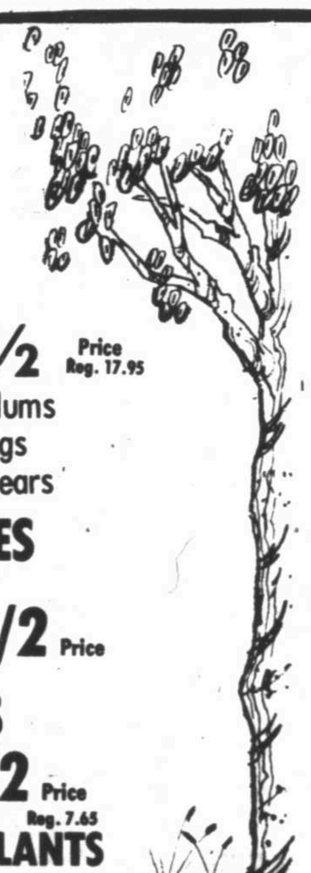

"Most seeds germinate in a week to a month, but bird of paradise and many palm types take several months," says Perry. Transplant when seedlings are 2-3 inches tall, using 2.5-inch pots and the same type medium. Repot into larger containers as their roots crowd their homes.

DEAR ABBY

Family ties tug and pull this ex-wife

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Bill and I have been divorced for nine years and have three teen-aged children who live with me. Bill remarried five years ago, and he and his wife, Ella, live nearby with their 2-year-old daughter. (I am single.)

I have remained friendly with Bill's family and am invited to all their family get-togethers. When Bill married Ella, she made it clear that she would not attend any family gathering that included me.

Naturally, Bill refused to attend those family affairs without Ella, so they both stayed away. Bill's parents are very unhappy because Bill and Ella no longer attend the family Christmas Eve celebration. I feel that if I'm invited, I must be wanted.

There was a death in Bill's family recently, and Bill called and asked me to please stay away from the funeral because he and Ella were going to be there and Ella would feel uncomfortable if I was there. I stayed away.

Do you think I should decline any future invitations from Bill's family in order to allow Ella to attend? I don't like feeling that it's my fault because Bill and Ella miss his family gatherings. — IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: If you are invited, that means you are wanted, so go if you wish. If Ella stays away because your presence makes her uncomfortable, that's her problem, not yours.

DEAR ABBY: Now that football training has nearly begun, I would like to bring up something that has bothered me for a long time. The boys love the sport and they love to win, but year after year they are told to "hit hard." As one coach told his team of 8-year-olds, "You'll know you've hit hard enough when you leave the other guy bleeding!" (This is building character?)

As a mother I want to speak out against this kind of brutality. My son's coach tells the boys that they have to be mean to play good football. The "meanest" boys are praised, and the gentle ones are subjected to verbal degradation.

Many of the boys say they don't hit hard because they don't really want to hurt the other boy. Now maybe I've missed something somewhere along the line, but I think the child who doesn't want to hurt anybody seems to have the right idea.

Abby, isn't there enough meanness in this world without encouraging our young men to be meaner? — ONE LAD'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I'd say you made a winning point.

DEAR ABBY: I am an 18-year-old student who travels to and from the city every day. I always get a seat both to and from work. My question is whether I should give up my seat to an older person. I also put in a long day and would rather sit than stand. What do you suggest? — DAVID

DEAR DAVID: Everyone would rather sit than stand, but only one with a tender conscience would ask that question. When you are TRULY tired, defer only to the TRULY needy.

(You're never too young or too old to learn how to make people like you. Get Abby's new booklet of practical advice. Send $1 and a stamped (35 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Popularity, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.)

'No-pans' latest fad

By ICHIRO KAWAKAMI
Kyodo — Copley News Service

TOKYO — A cup of coffee in Japan can easily cost $7 these days.

But that has little to do with the quality of the beverage.

No one, in fact, would probably make a fuss if it was simply colored water.

Because the main reason for the high cost is the waitress serving it — and wearing little else but a welcoming smile.

"No-pans" (no panties) tearooms are the latest fad sweeping Japan, to the bafflement of police and other protectors of public morals.

They first appeared in the western city of Fukuoka in the spring of 1980. In the last few months they have flourished in most major cities under names like Scandal, Secret Date, Delight, and for some inexplicable reason, Mary Poppins.

The greatest proliferation has been in the business capital of Osaka, which always manages to be a bit more risque than the staid political capital of Tokyo.

In Osaka there were at least 69 such establishments in February. By April, police counted 142.

The waitresses are not actually naked — which would have led to immediate closure.

They are invariably topless. But the bottom half is usually covered by thin panty stockings. Some of the more decorous tearooms have added a brief miniskirt, or a skimpy panties and diaphanous negligee combination.

Police were a bit baffled at first. There is, after all, no law that insists a woman has to wear a bra and panties.

Still, there was a general feeling at police headquarters that the trend was obscene and had to be controlled.

Japan manages to be sexually broad-minded and extremely straitlaced at the same time.

Blatant pornography is banned and those caught peddling in the trade are severely dealt with (customs men at the nation's international airports are especially eagle-eyed in inspecting luggage of male tourists returning from sexually liberated areas of Europe, for example).

Thus for years, part-time workers have been employed to blot out offending anatomical details in imported magazines.

Local pornographers thought they had got around the ban by draping their models in see-through panties.

Ostensibly, she was clothed, but it was easy enough to see what was underneath.

This led last year to an explosion in "vinyl" books (nude magazines sealed in vinyl to prevent their contents being examined), which brought their producers millions of dollars in quick profits before police finally decided the trend was going too far and began making wholesale arrests.

Western visitors to Japan often comment on the clean and wholesome appearance of its cities. Tokyo's famed red-light district, for example, was closed down after the war, and, although prostitution continues, it is done discreetly.

Striptease shows leaving nothing to the imagination are common, but they tend to be tucked away in suburban back alleys with little outward display.

It remains doubtful, anyway, whether the no-pans fad will last very long.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, June 13, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Talented young actor Richard Thomas shares this birthday with you, as does "Hollywood Squares" regular Paul Lynde. Also born on this date: the late Sir Basil Rathbone. Some of you will be tempted to quit one good job for another in the year ahead, but those who stay put will have the greatest success now. Strong-willed and clear-minded, you are determined to do things your own way. Although others sometimes see you as stubborn, you are right to follow your intuition. It will rarely lead you astray! A new romance is exciting but unlikely to be long-lasting.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Friendly cooperation leads to a happy family outing. You may have to go more than halfway to meet a difficult loved one. Mixed influences affect what you do today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Now is the time to deal with jointly held family funds. Accept an invitation to go out this evening. You will enjoy yourself more than you think. Avoid being overly critical.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Time is on your side when it comes to money matters. Do not make a hasty decision that you will later regret. The morning may be quiet but the pace quickens by afternoon.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Travel and vacation trips enjoy favorable influences. Take along a companion who shares your interests. You gain fresh insights and knowledge from visiting new places.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): An excellent day for encouraging and inspiring children. Be a good listener, but avoid becoming a human sponge, sopping up others' troubles.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Give creative hobbies a whirl. They could become a valuable source of additional income. You enjoy close rapport with an attractive member of the opposite sex.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Change is likely to work to your advantage today. Seek relatives' cooperation when revising the family budget. Make a special effort to replace bad habits with good ones.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An excellent day to spend with children. Keep spending within reasonable limits. You will enjoy relaxing at home this evening. Keep in touch with older relative.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Spend part of the day with offspring. Tend to important chores, errands during early morning. A stroll in the park or countryside will do you good, physical and mentally!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be patient when dealing with someone who has a difficult emotional problem. Others will look to you for guidance now. Protect the family unit as only you can!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Steer clear of financial schemes suggested by friends. Instead, cash in on the expertise of a close relative or neighbor. You stand to make sizable gains. Consult accountant regarding tax question.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Someone who asks your opinion on romantic matters does not really want your advice! Let friend use you as a sounding board. Hobby can give you a new lease on life.

The bidding:

Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ten of ♣.

There is much to be said for delaying a crucial decision as long as possible. Not because it may go away—it won't. But you may, in the interim, learn something from the opponents' discards.

North-South arrived at three no trump in quick time. North simply added his 10 points to his partner's announced 16 minimum, came up with the magic number of 26 and bid the game he thought his side could make.

West led the ten of clubs and declarer properly called for dummy's jack—West could have been leading from a combination that included the A-Q-10-9. East won the ace and returned the suit, and declarer wisely decided not to hold up—he felt he might need his low club later. There were eight tricks on top. The ninth could be developed either through a 3-2 diamond break or a spade finesse, or an end play.

South cashed the ace and queen of diamonds and was disappointed when East failed to follow to the second round. Next came the king-queen of hearts, and West had no difficulty in discarding a spade. Declarer was tempted to take the spade finesse, but he saw no harm in first cashing the ace of hearts. West was in obvious agony about finding a discard, and after much squirming he parted with a club.

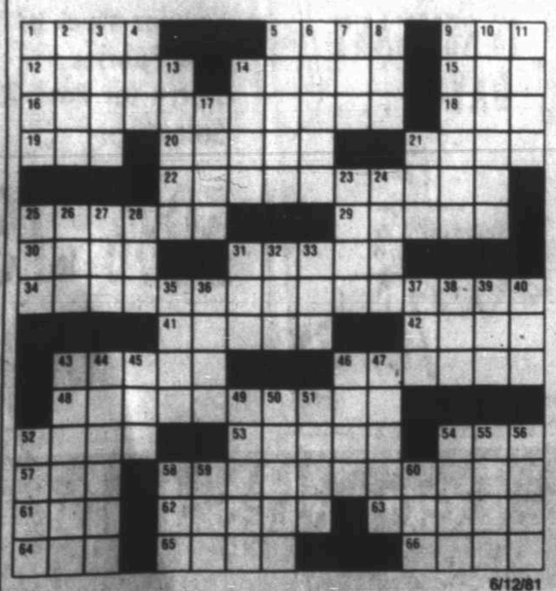

The contract now became a laydown. Declarer cashed the king of diamonds and threw West in with a diamond. That defender still had two clubs to cash, but he was then forced to lead a spade away from the king into declarer's major tenace.

West should have foreseen this development. On the third heart he should have discarded the ten of spades as if he didn't have a care in the world. Declarer might have read the situation and dropped the now bare king of spades, but it is more likely that he would have finessed East, who was marked with spade length, for the king, or tried the same end play. In either case, he would have been defeated one trick.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Ringworms now treated with antibiotics

Dear Dr. Solomon: I recall that when I was a child, friends of mine who had ringworm of the scalp were treated with X-rays. Now that I am an elementary school teacher, I'm interested to learn that this is no longer the treatment of choice. I assume the change in treatment is related to what we have since learned about the possible harmful effects of radiation, and I would like to know if this is so. If X-rays are no longer used, how is the condition treated? — Ms. H.D.

Dear Ms. D.: As you indicate, during the 1950s X-rays were used to treat ringworm of the scalp. The child first was given a close haircut before being exposed to the X-rays. It is estimated that about 200,000 children throughout the world were treated in this fashion. Now research conducted in both the United States and Israel shows that some patients who were treated by this method have a slower than normal response to light stimulation. The results suggest that even small doses of irradiation to the immature brain may adversely affect the central nervous system in later life.

At present, scalp ringworm (or tinea capitis), a contagious fungal disease, is generally treated with an antibiotic called griseofulvin.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I get winded from walking up a flight of stairs, but I've just finished reading about a runner who crossed the United States from east to west in about 48 days. Is there any medical information about the superman with such unusual physical abilities? — Joe

Dear Joe: The person you refer to is Stan Cottrell, who ran from New York City to San Francisco in a little over 48 days, averaging 64.5 miles a day. The most remarkable thing about ths athlete is that there is really nothing very remarkable about his physical or biochemical makeup.

Drs. S. Robert Lathan and John D. Cantwell, of Atlanta, who examined Mr. Cottrell both before and after this feat, note that he is not endowed with any unusual physical or biochemical advantages. However, both physically and mentally, he is prepared to run extremely long distances. His dedication and success are evidence that most people today use only a fraction of their physical potential.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Is it advisable to use the over-the-counter lotions to relieve the itching caused by insects? I've heard conflicting reports from people who've used these preparations; some say they work, and others say they make the condition worse. What would you suggest? — Tina

Dear Tina: In this case, it is possible that both groups are correct. For some people, commercial lotions are successful in relieving itching. Other individuals, however, may be allergic to one or more of the ingredients in nonprescription medications. Therefore, if you try one of these products and the condition worsens, its use should be stopped.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Reagan won't bargain with terrorists

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is telling international terrorists that it won't pay any ransom, release any prisoners or bargain for the release of hostages.

Undersecretary of State Richard T. Kennedy announced the policy this week at a hearing before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing.

"We have publicly put terrorists on notice that they can expect no concessions from us," Kennedy testified. "We will not pay ransom or release prisoners. We will not bargain for the release of hostages."

He said the administration is asking other countries to take the same stand against international terrorists.

Kennedy said the administration would be willing to conduct discussions in a hostage situation but only to work out safe release of the captives.

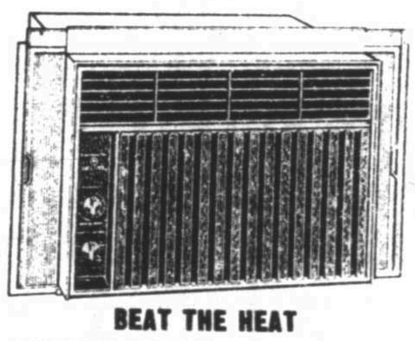

"There will be no discussion on substantive demands," Kennedy said. "There will be discussion on humanitarian concerns."

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, praised the policy as "a drastic change in what we will do. I hope we mean it."

Livestock export value declined

WASHINGTON (AP) — The value of U.S. exports of livestock and livestock products declined last year to $3.04 billion from nearly $3.24 billion in 1979, says the Agriculture Department.

In an annual report, the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said Tuesday the decline was led by exports of hides and skins, down 31 percent; live cattle, 20 percent; and pork, 17 percent.

"U.S. beef and veal exprts increased in quantity and value, largely as a result of increased demand in Canada for heavily marbled beef," the report said.

Police on bikes help youngsters

BRUNSWICK, Ohio (AP) — Wearing T-shirts and baseball caps, with pistols and police radios at their sides, the Brunswick Bicycle Brigade is pedaling its message to the two-wheel set.

Members of the mounted police force in this Medina County city about 15 miles southwest of Cleveland spend their days on 10-speed bicycles, talking to children and teaching them about cycling safety.

Mock citations are issued to reckless riders, while the model mini-citizens are awarded coupons entitling them to free milkshakes at a local restaurant.

"It's bringing the police officer a lot closer to the community, especially the kids," said Chief Clayton Crook. "You can't keep them away. It's like the Pied Piper, before you know it you have a parade."

The pedal-pushers also serve another purpose, said Sgt. Thomas P. Miller, who organized the two-wheel troops.

Miller said the bicycle force is able to patrol parks, playgrounds and paths unaccessible to the standard squad car.

The patrol is under the auspices of a bicycle safety program funded in part by a $9,400 grant from the Ohio Department of Highway Safety.

Last year, Brunswick used its highway safety money for radar control, but this year Crook decided on bicycles.

"Speed enforcement is a money-maker," Crook said. "But I wanted to do something nice for the community."

The police department bought two 10-speed bicycles and asked for patrolmen willing to pedal a beat of 25 to 40 miles a day. Eight volunteered.

A few of the more than 1,100 Haitian refugees wait at the Krome North refugee processing center. The refugees should know a little more about their fate in this country after today, when a federal judge will hear legal arguments about deportation proceedings.

Refugees await judge's word on deportations

By DENISE BRAZIEL
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — More than 1,100 Haitians at a refugee processing center in western Dade County know their chances of staying in the United States are dwindling. But their fate should be a little clearer after today.

U.S. District Judge Alcee Hasting planned to hear legal arguments about controversial U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service proceedings that led to the deportation of 11 Haitians last week.

Lawyers for the American Civil Liberties Union and the Haitian Refugee Center have asked Hasting for a temporary restraining order against the INS' closed-door exclusion hearings.

INS officials had arranged to put another 76 Haitians on a chartered plane back to Haiti Wednesday morning, but the deportation was blocked by U.S. District Judge Eugene Spellman.

Charlot Fadeus, 24, was being processed Thursday with some other Haitians who sailed into Miami Beach earlier this month aboard small boats from poverty-stricken Haiti. He spoke little English but hoped it would be enough to help him find work in this country — if he gets to stay.

"I came to look for a job," he said. "I don't have a chance to work in my country. But here, maybe ... I have a chance to work. I'm very happy to be here."

INS says economic oppression does not qualify immigrants for asylum in this country. Cubans — 37 recent arrivals also are housed at the camp — are another matter, they say, because they are seeking refuge from the political oppression of that country's communist regime.

The camp is set up so that refugees who arrived before May 20 are being resettled by a number of religious and community service organizations. Those who arrived after May 20, when INS announced it was resuming deportations of Haitian refugees after a several-year lapse, face hearings to determine their status.

The ACLU and refugee center lawyers say the Haitians don't understand the deportation hearings because many don't speak English, they were afraid to object because of years of oppression in Haiti and they were denied access to lawyers.

"The law simply states that exclusion hearings are closed," said INS spokesman Vern Jervis. However, he noted the deportation procedures are under review, and guidelines for access to lawyers "are being drawn up by the INS general counsel's office right now."

"They do have access to legal assistance," Jervis said. "The whole matter is being worked out now. We hope to have them (exclusion hearings) resume next week."

Four years ago, a group of Haitian refugees won a federal order requiring INS to advise each arriving Haitian of the right to apply for political asylum. The order effectively prevented INS from deporting Haitians, since most of them made the request. That made it necessary for INS to consider each time-consuming case individually.

In December, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the order, opening the way for INS to resume deportations of Haitians.

Jervis said it's not that the United States is tightening its immigration policy but that INS has regained its deportation rights.

"Our stance has not changed," he said. "What's changed is what we're allowed to do by the courts. We've been stymied for several years."

The Washington Post reported today that a Cabinet-level task force is considering such options as turning back boats far out at sea and detaining refugees in camps to prevent any new flood of Cuban and Haitian emigrants into the United States.

The newspaper quoted an unidentified Reagan administration official as saying that a crackdown on arrivals by boat is "the only way to sell" a proposal for granting amnesty to 2.7 million illegal aliens already in the country.

Cuban refugee wins release from prison

ATLANTA (AP) — The first Cuban refugee in a group that is challenging their imprisonment has been released from custody, but more than 1,700 "Freedom Flotilla" immigrants remain behind bars, their futures uncertain.

A year and 18 days after being taken into custody by U.S. immigration officials, Genara Soroa Gonzales walked out of the maximum-security prison Thursday when the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans lifted a temporary order blocking his release.

Soroa, 46, is one of several Cuban detainees who have challenged continued confinement since arriving in South Florida along with about 125,000 other refugees aboard a boatlift last year from Mariel, Cuba.

Other cases still are pending, including that of Pedro Rodriguez, who was ordered freed last April by a federal judge in Topeka, Kan., only to have the release blocked by the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver.

When his case first was filed, Rodriguez was being held at the federal penitentiary in Leavenworth, Kan. He since has been transferred to the Atlanta prison, where the remaining 1,745 boatlift detainees have been assembled.

Soroa was ordered released last week by U.S. District Judge Marvin Shoob, who said, "It violates every basic principle of our democracy to keep a man in a maximum-security prison with no evidence to prove he had committed a non-political crime."

Like most of his fellow detainees, Soroa was imprisoned for allegedly committing a crime in his homeland.

An immigration judge later held that allegations that Soroa had engaged in drug trafficking in Cuba were insufficient to justify his continued detainment but said he still could be excluded from the country because he lacked entry papers.

In ordering Soroa's release, Shoob said lack of papers could not keep the Cuban behind bars, since most of his fellow boatlift refugees also lacked visas.

Antona, president of the Atlanta Committee on Behalf of Cuban Prisoners, said Soroa had dinner Thursday night at his home and "was relaxing and watching TV."

He said the first item of business would be to obtain a Social Security numer for Soroa so he could find work, preferably as a butcher or plumber, occupations he pursued in Cuba.

In addition to legal challenges, Cuban refugees at the Atlanta prison have held a series of mostly short-lived hunger strikes to dramatize their confinement.

Guards face charges after prison riots

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Corrections Organization will defend two guards charged with surrendering their cell keys to rampaging inmates during riots last month, the union president says.

"It was their life or their keys," Jerry Fryt, president of the Michigan Corrections Organization, said Thursday.

He said the guards were charged with "failure to maintain control of their keys" durig the inital riot at Southern Michigan Prison in Jackson May 22.

A state investigator has blamed the guards for triggering the riot by staging an unauthorized attempted lockdown — locking prisoners in their cells.

Fryt said the state has notified him 32 guards will be charged in connection with the series of riots. The first Jackson riot was followed within hours by a disturbance at the Michigan Reformatory at Ionia. Four days later, rioting broke out again at Jackson and was followed by a disturbance at the Michigan Branch Prison at Marquette.

The charges were based on statements from prisoners at hearings this past week at the Jackson prison, Fryt said.

Fryt said he personally faces a battery of charges and possible dismissal.

Love 22, the man charged with selling $22 bills with his picture on it, is due back in federal court in New Orleans today for a ruling in his case. The government contends the bills look too real to be funny and if convicted, Love 22 could have to count out as many as 500 real greenbacks as a fine.

Trio charged in Siamese twin case

DANVILLE, Ill. (AP) — A nurse and her doctor-husband who allegedly decided their grossly deformed Siamese twins should not be kept alive have pleaded innocent to charges of attempted murder.

The twins, born with a common lower digestive tract and three legs, remained in state custody in a Chicago hospital.

Charges were filed Thursday against Dr. Robert Mueller, the father of the 5-week-old boys; Mueller's wife, Pamela Schopp, and Dr. Petra Warren, the attending physician.

The three appeared before Vermilion Circuit Judge James Robinson late Thursday and pleaded innocent. Robinson released them on their own recognizance and scheduled a preliminary hearing for June 30.

Vermilion County State's Attorney Ed Litak said the three were charged with attempted murder for allegedly asking Warren to withhold food and medical treatment from the boys after their birth May 5 at Lakeview Medical Center.

The three also were charged with conspiracy to murder and endangering the life and health of the children. In addition, the parents were charged with solicitation to commit murder and cruelty to children.

The father is on the staff at Lakeview Hospital, and the mother is a registered nurse.

Circuit Judge John Meyer ruled last week the infants were denied proper medical care and food at Lakeview and should remain in state custody at least until another hearing July 8. However, based on evidence presented to him, Meyer did not place blame for the twins' neglect on anyone.

The twins, Scott and Jeff, have been at Children's Memorial Hospital in Chicago since May 13 when the state took them from their parents' custody at Lakeview. The infants' medical problems were described as life-threatening in testimony during the three-day custody hearing last week.

One nurse testified at the hearings that she was told not to give the twins oxygen despite breathing problems, and another nurse said she fed the infants twice in violation of a written doctor's order.

The infants' weight dropped about 40 percent at Lakeview but increased overnight in the Chicago hospital where they were fed regularly, testimony showed.

The state presented a medical chart with the entry: "Do not feed infants in accordance with parents' wishes." Meyer ruled that hearsay and excluded it from evidence.

The parents, Warren, and the president of the hospital indicated they would invoke 5th Amendment rights against self-incrimination, lawyers said. They were not called to testify.

Litak said a conviction on the attempted murder charge could bring a prison sentence of six to 30 years, while penalties for the other charges are less severe.

Legal decision expected on Love 22's $22 bills

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Love 22, who got in trouble for selling funny money — $22 bills with his picture on the front — expected to learn today whether a federal magistrate thinks they're too much like the real thing.

Love 22, who legally changed his name from Lawrence E. Wagner, is accused of breaking a law that forbids circulation of "a handbill or advertisement in the likeness of a federal reserve bill."

If U.S. Magistrate Ingard Johannesen convicts him of the misdemeanor, Love 22 could be fined up to 500 real greenbacks.

For five years, he has meandered about the country, wearing a stars-and-stripes top hat and a dingy Uncle Sam outfit and selling his bills at five for $1 to raise money for his presidential campaign.

He was arrested while peddling the bills in the French Quarter the day after Mardi Gras. Secret Service Agent Thomas Ryan confiscated boxes containing about 6,000 of the $22 bills as evidence.

Love 22's top-hatted face looks out from the center of each. Next to it is a complete alphabet, each letter in a separate box.

During a court hearing May 21, Love 22 told Johannesen that he changed his name and gave up an advertising career after discovering that the number 22 has mystical powers.

He can relate almost anything to his favorite number, whether by addition, division or some other method.

For instance, telephone numbers for both Johannesen and public defender Jack Mulvehill both begin with 589, which adds up to 22.

Denver police, parents indicted in cult kidnap

DENVER (AP) — The alleged kidnapping of a young follower of Guru Maharaj Ji has led to the indictment of the 22-year-old's parents, a Denver policeman and seven others on charges of kidnapping and conspiracy.

Policeman Mark Gerard Roggeman, a 10-year veteran of the force, was indicted by a Denver grand jury Thursday on charges of second-degree kidnapping and conspiracy stemming from the April 8 abduction of Emily Deitz, a former employee of the guru's Divine Light Mission in Denver.

Also indicted in the alleged kidnaping scheme were the victim's parents, Dr. Leonard and Esther Leah Deitz, of Silver Springs, Md., and Joseph Phillips Alexander Jr., whom Denver District Attorney Dale Tooley described as a nationally known "deprogrammer" of cult members.

"Deprogramming" is the process whereby a cult member "unlearns" what he or she has been taught while in the cult.

Alexander was charged with second-degree kidnapping, conspiracy and false imprisonment and apparently was assisted by four people from out of state and two Colorado Springs women, according to the indictment.

According to the indictment, Dr. and Mrs. Deitz contacted Roggeman late last summer and asked him to locate their daughter. Roggeman met with Dr. Deitz last February and Roggeman was told Deitz had "hired some people to come and pick up Emily Deitz," the indictment continued.

On April 8, witnesses said, Miss Deitz walking down a Denver street when she was seized and thrown — screaming and fighting — into a van by three men. The victim later identified the three men as Alexander, Donny Edwin Hurst and Russell Allen Bennett, according to police.

She said her father also was in the van, and identified the driver as Marilyn L. Crowe and the driver of a backup vehicle as Tom Gibeon. The indictment states Roggeman observed the abduction and followed the vans to the Colorado Springs home of Jackie Lynn Jones and Sandra Jeanne Jones, allegedly for deprogramming.

Miss Deitz has said she was kept under guard in the home for a week and later taken to Akron, Ohio, where she was held for six days before making her escape.

Deitz, Hurst, Bennett and Crowe were charged with second-degree kidnapping, conspiracy and false imprisonment. Deitz's wife was charged with conspiracy, and Gibeon was charged with kidnapping and conspiracy. The Colorado Springs women face charges of false imprisonment.

El Paso teen gets 20 more years

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Efren Castro Ibanez, 18, already facing execution for a capital murder, has been sentenced to 40 years in prison on two more convictions here this week, should the execution never be carried out.

A jury Thursday sentenced Ibanez to 20 years in prison Thursday after convicting him of two counts of escape. The day before, another San Antonio jury sentenced him to the maximum 20 years for voluntary manslaughter.

Both prison terms were ordered to run consecutively with the death penalty assessed by an El Paso jury earlier this year.

On Jan. 28 this year, the El Paso jury convicted Ibanez of capital murder and sentenced him to death exactly one year after the robbery-strangulation of William Morris, 38, at El Paso.

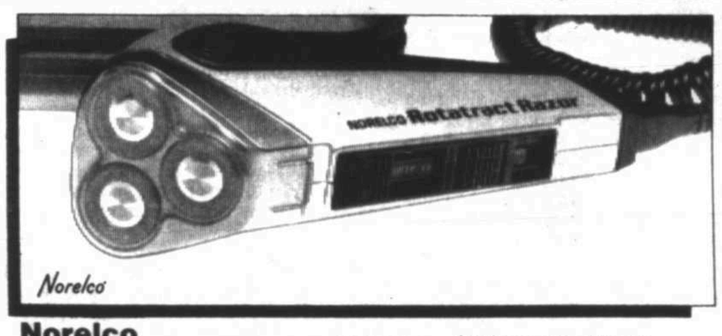

Then on Wednesday, a San Antonio jury convicted him of voluntary manslaughter in the strangulation of Arnolfo Rodriguez, 17, and sentenced him to 20 years.

The prosecution charged that Ibanez met both victims at gay bars in El Paso, then later killed them.

He was sentenced Thursday for stabbing a jail guard and attempting to escape from the El Paso County Jail last March.

El Paso District Judge Woodrow Seals II presided over both of the trials conducted here this week.

Faction remains allied with Syria

By NICOLAS B. TATRO
Associated Press Writer

ZAGHORTA, Lebanon (AP) — A blood feud with a rival Christian group and strong ties with neighboring Syria have kept the Christians here in north Lebanon out of the fighting which has spawned the current Israeli-Syrian missile crisis.

The Christians here are a rugged mountain people whose capital is this hilltop city 50 miles north of Beirut. Their leader is Suleiman Franjieh, a 71-year-old former president of Lebanon.

Franjieh's followers fought side by side with Christians of the Phalange Party, led by 76-year-old Pierre Gemayel, against a coalition of leftist Moslem militias and Palestinian guerrillas in the 19-month civil war that ended with Syrian intervention in November 1976.

But since June 13, 1978, the two Christian leaders have been sworn enemies. It was on that date Phalangists stormed into the mountain resort of Ehden and shot to death Franjieh's eldest son Tony, his wife, their infant daughter and 32 body guards, friends and servants.

The memory of the incident is still alive in the hills of northern Lebanon, where roadside shrines with posters of Tony Franjieh and his wife are draped with fresh flowers.

Throughout the current crisis over the stationing of Syrian antiaircraft missiles in the Bekaa Valley of eastern Lebanon and the Syrian-Phalangist clashes around the Christian city of Zahle, there has been no fighting reported in the mountain villages surrounding Zaghorta. Unlike Phalangist-controlled East Beirut, the buildings here bear no pock marks of bullets and artillery shells.

"Life is normal, with or without the presence of the Syrian army," Franjieh said in an interview with The Associated Press.

Syrian special forces in brown-and-red camouflage uniforms can be seen riding in trucks along the narrow mountain roads lined with olive trees and farm fields. Checkpoints are manned by Franjieh's militiamen but there is no sign of friction.

Like the rival Phalangists, Franjieh's followers have their own newspaper and radio station dominated by members of his family. A television station has also been built but it has not started broadcasting.

The sword-and-shield emblems of Franjieh's faction dot the countryside in the mountain hinterland stretching inland from the coastal city of Tripoli, a sign that the area is under the political control of the Franjieh family.

Franjieh, who claims the allegiance of one-quarter of the Christian population in the nation of three million which has roughly equal numbers of Christians and Moslems, condemns the Phalangists for their acceptance of military training, weapons and other help from Israel.

"The innocents of Zahle are paying the price for the game played by the Israeli bandits," Franjieh claimed. He maintained that the Syrian army was merely defending itself in Zahle against what he described as an Israeli-inspired plan to build a road from the Phalangist-controlled port of Jounieh on the Mediterranean coast through the mountains and into Zahle. Such a road, he said, could be a launching pad for an Israeli strike into Syria.

Franjieh is considered by some Lebanese political analysts to be a likely candidate for president in next year's elections since he has close ties with President Hafez Assad of Syria as well as a following among Lebanon's Christians and Moslems.

Franjieh said in the interview it was "too early" to say for sure if he will run.

Franjieh charged that Lebanon's current president, Elias Sarkis, who is not permitted to seek a second consecutive term of office, is failing to use the 30,000 Syrian troops placed under his command by an Arab summit resolution in 1976 to restore law and order in Lebanon.

"If he is convinced that the Syrian army is an occupation army, his first duty is to tell them to go back home," said Franjieh, who was president when the 1975-76 civil war began. "If he is convinced of the opposite, all he has to do is to tell this army, you are responsible for order in Lebanon and deal with things as you see fit."

Russians invited to send athletes to Luckenbach

LUCKENBACH, Texas (AP) — The Soviet Union has been invited to send a team to participate in Texas-style olympics planned during the upcoming Great Fifth Sometimes Annual Luckenbach World's Fair.

Guich Koock, a television actor who has sponsored the sporadic mock world's fair off and on the past decade, Thursday released the invitation he sent to A. Dobrynin at the Soviet Embassy in Washington, D.C.

The letter invited the Russians to compete in events of the Texas Decathalon — five of which consist of beer chug-a-lugs — during the festivities June 27-28 and July 4-5 at a ranch near this well-known Texas town, population 3.

"If the Russians are not used to Texas beer, they could substitute 12 ounces of vodka for a longneck," said Koock, who calls himself the grand exalted ringmaster of the beer bash.

"Now that your country is fixin' to go buy our grain, I think that in return, it is only fair to invite you to send a team to compete in our World Texas Hill Country Olympics," Koock told Dobrynin.

"We hope to have Soviet representation June 28 in the Texas Decathalon. I realize this is short notice, but my friends from Afghanistan tell me you Russians can move quickly when you want to."

Koock then listed the 10 events of the Decathalon which are, in order: cow chip toss, beer chug-a-lug, egg toss, beer chug-a-lug, log throw, beer chug-a-lug, stick horse race, beer chug-a-lug, back door races, beer chug-a-lug.

The idea of the egg toss, Koock said, "is to catch an uncooked egg at increasing distances without breaking it. This requires a fast shift and a gentle touch if you have miscalculated. I suggest some of your diplomats to Poland would be excellent candidates."

As for the log throw, Koock told Dobrynin, "we know that the Russians are experienced in throwing things great distances. But to win, you must admit it when somebody asks, "Who threw that?"

On the back door races, he told the Soviet diplomat: "From Russian movies I've seen on late night TV, Russian men are experienced at this action. The contestant is clad in long red underwear (even more appropriate in your case) and is lying in a brass bed. At the sound of a shotgun blast (which signifies the approach of a father or husband) he leaps out of bed and has to be dressed before he jumps out the window. This is fun and such practical training."

Koock advised Dobrynin, "to ensure fairness, you may bring along three judges, none of whom will be allowed to defect and become Texans. We will supply five fair-minded Hill Country Judges."

F-16 delay was middle course

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — At the end of a long day, President Reagan confronted the toughest item on his agenda: a response to the Israeli destruction of Iraq's nuclear reactor with American-built warplanes.

It was Tuesday evening, and after winding up diplomatic talks with Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo, Reagan assembled his National Security Council in the Cabinet Room to help him decide what should be said and done.

They met for about 90 minutes, adjourning without consensus. According to diplomatic and administration sources, who declined to be identified, Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger wanted to crack down on Israel for using American-made jets against another country.

SECRETARY OF STATE Alexander M. Haig Jr. was said to have counseled a softer line, suggesting public criticism of Israel but no interruption in weapons shipments.

In the end, after that meeting and another on Wednesday morning, Reagan chose a middle course, suspending the scheduled delivery of four F-16 jets to Israel.

But by Thursday, Weinberger's position at those secret NSC meetings stirred controversy all the way to Jerusalem.

It began with reports in Washington that the defense secretary had advocated a freeze on U.S. weapons scheduled for shipment to Israel in the coming months. Tanks, missiles, armored personnel carriers, jets, and even what one Air Force officer called "the cats and dogs," might have been held back.

ISRAELI AMBASSADOR Ephraim Evron called on Weinberger at the Pentagon in midmorning while the reports grew in force. At the White House, Reagan met with five Arab ambassadors, from Bahrein, Saudi Arabia, Morocco, Jordan and the Sudan, and then, separately, with Evron.

A senior U.S. official, who briefed reporters in late afternoon on condition his name not be used, said Reagan told the Arab envoys that no one was more surprised than he by Sunday's attack outside Baghdad. He sympathized with their governments' concern, called the bombing a tragedy and said it was borne of the hostility in the Mideast.

Evron told Reagan that Israel had to destroy the nuclear facility because Iraq, an implacable enemy, aims at its destruction. The president, the senior U.S. official said, registered his disappointment that alternative, diplomatic approaches had not been taken. At the same time, he offered assurances that the United States remains committed to Israel's military security.

WHILE REPORTERS at the White House were being cautioned not to describe the suspension in delivery of the four F-16s as a punitive measure, and diplomatic sources said they did not expect a long delay, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin was campaigning for re-election.

Angrily, and amid cheers, he accused Weinberger of demanding a total cutoff of aid to Israel. "By what morality did you act, Mr. American Secretary of Defense?" Begin asked during a rally in Petah Tikvah, east of Tel Aviv.

"The Iraqis were preparing atomic bombs to drop on the children of Israel," Begin shouted.

In Washington, Weinberger had refused to discuss his recommendations to Reagan. "I regard that exactly as I used to regard advice that I gave clients," the onetime corporate lawyer said. "That's classified, that's privileged material."

But after Begin's accusation surfaced, Weinberger said in a statement: "I'm sorry that Mr. Begin is proceeding on an erroneous assumption. I have made no such recommendation."

BENJAMIN WELLES, a Pentagon spokesman, added: "There was no essential difference between the secretary of state and secretary of defense on the recommendation on which the President based his decision."

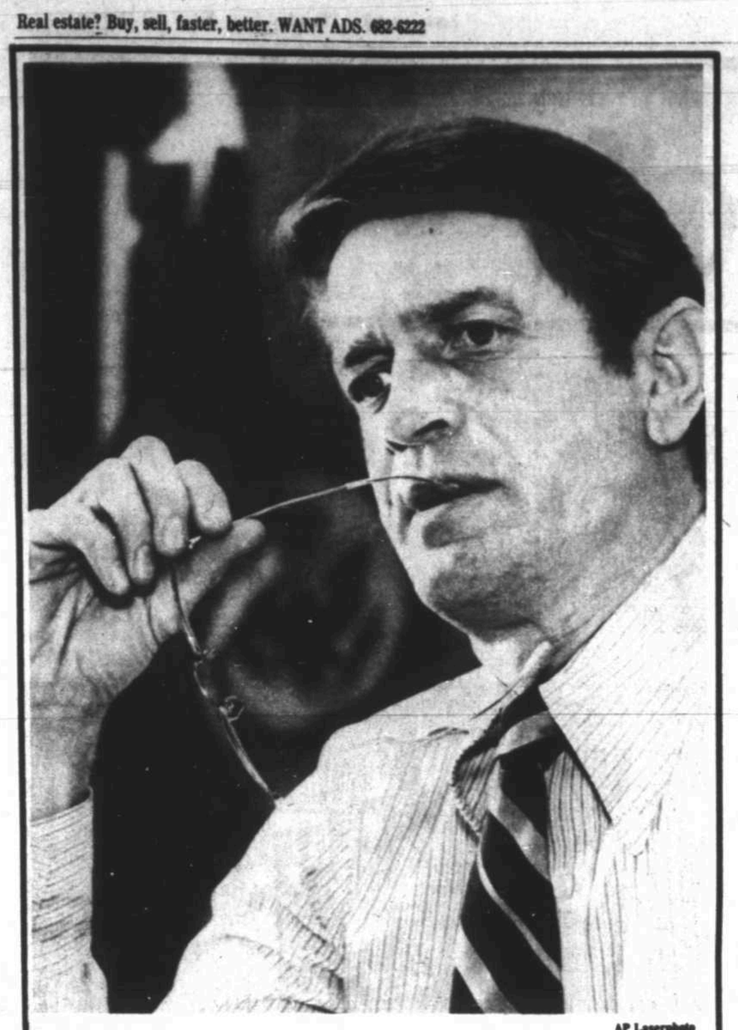

David Gergen, the White House staff director, told reporters: "We are categorically denying the assertion that Secretary Weinberger argued for the president to discontinue aid to Israel."

The U.S. involvement doesn't end there, however.

The administration will proceed with its review, balancing Israel's claim that it acted in self-defense — in conformity with a 1952 arms agreement — against the administration's preliminary finding that there may have been a substantial violation of the terms.

Reagan could decide to take no further action and lift the ban on shipment of the F-16s or he could impose further constraints. Congress also has the power to cut off deliveries, and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee will hold hearings next week.

And in the Middle East, where special envoy Philip Habib is trying to defuse tensions between Israel and Syria over Soviet-made missiles in Lebanon, Jordan's King Hussein sent Reagan a message Thursday deploring "the sneak attack" on the reactor plant. Hussein called it another in a series of "unprovoked and humiliating attacks against the Arab nation."

Wilson says Congress backs Israel's action

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The most intriguing thing about Israel's bombing of a nuclear reactor in Iraq earlier in the week is the lack of outrage from other Arab countries, says Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas.

"You haven't heard anything from Syria. Nothing from Saudi Arabia, Egypt, Sudan. To me, it indicates a tacit acceptance, and perhaps some relief that it happened," Wilson said Thursday afternoon.

He expressed his views in a news conference called explicitly to give his complete endorsement to Israel's attack. Had the country waited another 2 to 3 weeks, it might well have opened itself up to a nuclear attack from Iraq, he said.

"The United States — even the United States — would act similarly if such an example were to occur in Cuba. I don't think Israel had any choice," Wilson said.

"The best time to kill a snake is when you've got the hoe in your hand. They acted no differently than Egypt would have if Libya had been the one with the nuclear reactor."

HE CALLED IRAQ the most barbaric and murderous of all nations.

There's no question, Wilson said, that if Iraq had been allowed to proceed with construction at its nuclear site, it would have proceeded to bomb Israel.

"Iraq is the only Middle East country that never even signed the ceasefire with Israel in 1948, and they have never tried to keep secret what they intended to do with it once they got it built," Wilson said.

Unlike most other nuclear reactors, there was no possibility Iraq's could have a peaceful purpose such as electrical power generation, Wilson said.

Based on briefings he received from intelligence personnel in two congressional subcommittees, Wilson said he is convinced it was a matter of "two or three weeks" before Iraq's nuclear reactor would have been armed.

"I don't think Israel had any choice," he said.

ALTHOUGH FEW OF his colleagues have talked publicly of their feelings about the bombing, Wilson said he feels the House and Senate is overwhelmingly in support of Israel.

Congressmen have been silent, "I think because, since the Vietnam War particularly, it's anathema to even suggest the use of force. But when somebody's loading their gun, that's the time to shoot them. And that's what Israel did."

As an aside, Wilson said it's gratifying to note "that some pro-Western country CAN carry out a successful military operation. Certainly the United States can't. And wouldn't if it could."

ISRAEL WENT TO Baghdad with six F-16 planes carrying two 2,000-pound bombs each and connected on the target with 11 of the bombs. There's speculation that even the 12th "dud" was planned.

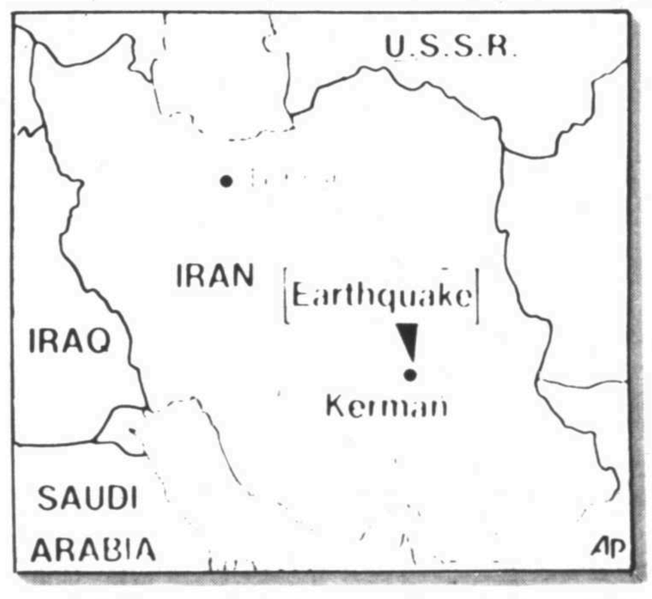

"They're not back in the reactor yet because of the missing 2,000-pound bomb still around somewhere," Wilson noted.

The Reagan administration has asked Congress to consider whether the sale of military planes to Israel should be cancelled, but Wilson said he feels the administration is doing only what it has to do to keep from openly condoning the bombing.

"I think the administration reaction was carefully thought out, but I don't think it's anything that Israel has to worry about. I think (the statement) was cosmetic, but they felt they had to do something."

ASKED WHETHER, at the briefing of congressmen, that Pentagon officials appeared pleased with Israel's success, Wilson smiled and paused several seconds before he answered.

"Our military people are always pleased to see our handiwork work well. I recall the jubilation the Air Force had when the Israelis shot down a bunch, really a bunch, of Syrian aircraft recently," he said.

Quake toll may reach 5,000

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Rescue workers reported finding 500 bodies in the ruins of a major earthquake in southeastern Iran's Kerman province, the official Iranian news agency Pars said today. The Red Crescent, Islamic equivalent of the Red Cross, said the death toll probably would climb to 5,000.

Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai flew today to the region to inspect the scene of the destruction, Tehran Radio reported.

Pars said rescue squads were still digging out dead and injured from the ruins from Thursday morning's quake. It said the tremors flattened 95 percent of the buildings in Gol Bagh, a city of 40,000 people near the provincial capital Kerman, 500 miles southeast of Tehran.

Pars said one casualty figure reported from the area "was put at more than 3,000 killed and more than 1,000 injured."

The agency quoted a Red Crescent announcement as saying 500 bodies had been recovered from the ruins by 10 a.m. today, and 1,500 injured people rescued. The Red Crescent report said 5,000 people "have been reported missing and they have probably been killed in the collapsed buildings."

Rajai called on the Iranian people for "revolutionary sacrifice" to aid the victims of the disaster.

Tehran Radio said food, medicine, blankets and relief personnel were being flown to the region 500 miles southeast of Tehran by helicopter, and the injured were being brought out to hospitals on the return flights.

In Washington, a White House spokesman told questioning reporters he knew nothing about any U.S. government plans to send aid.

The city of Kerman, the capital of the copper- and coal-mining province, suffered only minor damage, the governor's spokesman said.

The U.S. Geological Survey in Golden, Colo., said the earthquake registered 6.9 on the Richter scale. A quake measuring 5.8 hit the same area in 1977, killing nearly 600 people.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on a seismograph. Every increase of one number reflects a tenfold increase in magnitude, so that a reading of 7.5 shows an earthquake 10 times stronger than one of 6.5. An earthquake of 6 can cause severe damage, while one registering 7 is a "major" quake which can cause widespread heavy damage.

Postal negotiations to begin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service's negotiations with its unions, delayed for seven weeks over questions on union representation, are about to begin, and the results could affect the cost of mailing a letter.

The National Labor Relations Board on Thursday dismissed a Postal Service request that it determine which of four unions represented which of 600,000 workers before the onset of the contract talks — the biggest labor negotiations of the year.

After the dismissal, Postmaster General William F. Bolger said the talks, originally scheduled to begin April 22, could start immediately. Bolger had postponed the negotiations until the NLRB released its decision, saying the delay was necessary because of division in the unions.

The opening session had not yet been scheduled on Thursday.

"Collective bargaining under the structure proposed by the unions will be more difficult than it would have been if the appropriate structure had been defined by the NLRB," Bolger said. Nevertheless, he said he still thinks the negotiations can be concluded by the July 20 expiration of the current three-year contracts.

The negotiations will have a lot to do with how much Americans have to pay in the future to mail letters. About 86 percent of postal expenses go for labor costs, making rising labor rates the main reason for each increase in mail rates.

"I believe the NLRB has failed to address the unit question in turning down this appeal," Bolger said. "I am particularly disappointed that the NLRB did not even see fit to give the Postal Service an opportunity to make its case fully by granting it a hearing."

Before Bolger issued his statement, the presidents of the two largest postal unions continued pushing for the talks to start. Moe Biller of the American Postal Workers Union and Vincent Sombrotto of the National Association of Letter Carriers said the board action tells the Postal Service it "belongs at the bargaining table."

The unions headed by Biller and Sombrotto, which together represent about 500,000 workers, mounted attempts this year to sign members of two smaller unions.

House refuses to block neutron bomb

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is refusing to block development of the neutron warhead despite claims that the weapon could be a first step in bringing the world closer to nuclear destruction.

The House, in a 293-88 vote Thursday, rejected an attempt by Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y., to bar use of federal money for production of the neutron weapon or its components.

The vote came after Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., attributed the controversy over neutron warheads to Soviet propaganda "convincing people that somehow this was somehow even a more horrendous form of weaponry than what they have. And they have done the job."

Without the neutron weapon, Stratton said, NATO forces defending Europe would be forced to use conventional nuclear weapons to defeat an attacking Soviet tank force.

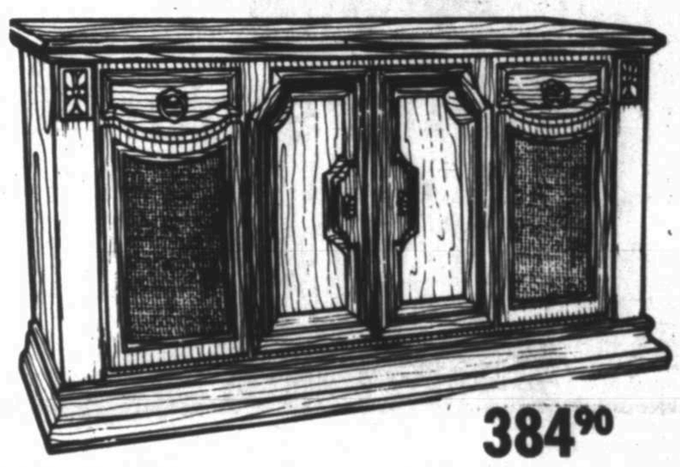

"The devastation and the casualties ... would be infinitely greater," he argued.

The neutron warhead produces less blast and heat and more radiation than a conventional nuclear bomb, allowing enemy soldiers to be killed with a minimum amount of damage to land and buildings.

Its supporters argue that because it causes less destruction, the neutron warhead is a better tactical weapon than ordinary nuclear devices to defend Europe against massive Soviet tank attacks. The tank crews would be killed by radiation with the minimum physical destruction of European cities and towns.

But opponents argued vainly on the House floor that the very concept was dangerous because it makes it easier to fire the first nuclear weapon.

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration took office intent on persuading friendly Arab countries that the Soviet Union — not Israel — represented the biggest danger to their interests.

Now the administration is trying to alleviate furor in the Arab world over the Israeli attack last Sunday on a nuclear reactor in Iraq.

Condemnation of the Israeli action may have been the only course open to the United States, which is publicly committed to peaceful resolution of disputes, the inviolability of national borders and the rule of law.

While broader U.S. foreign policy interests have suffered a setback, Israel and its sympathizers say they are reassured by the knowledge that Iraq, a country technically in a state of war with Israel, will not be joining the nuclear club for the foreseeable future.

THAT, THEY MAINTAIN, is no slight gain for a country which is too small to survive a nuclear attack.

The major question facing the Reagan administration is whether it will be able to contain the negative international political fallout resulting from the Israeli attack.

Moving with unsual speed, the administration condemned the attack within three hours after Israel announced it. And, 48 hours later, President Reagan decided to withhold the delivery of four F-16 jet fighters to Israel because of possible Israeli misuse of American warplanes in the attack.

But it still may be hard to erase the impression among Arab countries that the United States was a silent collaborator of Israel's in the raid. On Thursday, the 21-nation Arab League coupled a call for world isolation of Israel with criticism of the United States as Israel's main arms supplier.

IF THE ARABS aren't impressed with the Reagan administration's criticism of Israel, neither is Prime Minister Menachem Begin. Following the U.S. condemnation of Israel, Begin told his countrymen that Israel would repeat such pre-emptive strikes in the future if the Jewish state's security was at stake.

An Analysis

All this has posed a series of tough questions for the Reagan administration:

Should reprisals against Israel be limited to the temporary withholding of the delivery of a few jet fighters? If so, can other recipients of U.S. arms be expected to observe the prohibition of their use for offensive purposes? If additional equipment is withheld, will Israel's security interests — and President Reagan's domestic political interests — be adversely affected?

What position should the United States adopt when the Israeli-Iraqi issue comes before the United Nations? If the United States vetoes proposals for economic and diplomatic sanctions against Israel, would that lend credence to the Arab view that the United States was Israel's collaborator in the attack.

HAS THE ISRAELI raid opened the way for increased Soviet influence in the Middle East? Has it damaged relations with those Arab countries which pursued friendship with the United States because it was the only country capable of moderating Israel's behavior? Has it sabotaged the efforts of special envoy Philip Habib to bring about an accommodation between Israel and Syria?

That last question may be the first one answered first.

While Middle East experts at the State Department say Israel's raid has hardened Arab positions and damaged U.S. efforts to achieve a settlement in Lebanon, Saudi Arabia is reported to still trying to diffuse tensions there.

And Begin said Thursday the anti-aircraft missiles Syria has deployed in Lebanon will be removed shortly. Either Syria takes them out voluntarily, he said, or Israel will remove them by force.

Reagan reassuring Arabs, Israel

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, walking a diplomatic tightrope, is reassuring Israel that its bombing of an Iraqi nuclear reactor has not jeopardized U.S.-Israeli ties, while telling Arab leaders that a peaceful solution to the reactor issue might have been possible.

Asked if his Middle East peace efforts were "back on track" after meetings Thursday with five Arab ambassadors and the Israeli envoy, Reagan replied: "I think so, yes."

Reagan, who told the Arab envoys that "no one was more surprised" than he by Sunday's bombing, later reassured the Israeli ambassador, Ephraim Evron, that the fundamental relationship between the United States and Israel would not change, a senior administration official said.

The United States has condemned the Israeli action, which was carried out with American-made jets, and suspended a shipment of four fighter planes to the Jewish state.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said Thursday that Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger had recommended that all economic and military aid to Israel be withheld because of the raid, a statement denied by both Weinberger and the White House.

"I'm sorry that Mr. Begin is proceeding on an erroneous assumption," Weinberger said in a statement issued at the Pentagon. "I have made no such recommendation."

Said David Gergen, staff director of the White House: "We are categorically denying the assertion that Secretary Weinberger argued for the president to discontinue aid. ... The prime minister was misinformed."

Reagan met Thursday with the ambassadors of Saudi Arabia, Jordan, Morocco, the Sudan and Bahrain at their request. Deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan wanted the five Arab ambassadors "to be aware of his commitment and the commitment of the United States to the furtherance of the peace process in that critical region of the world."

The administration official, who briefed reporters on the condition that he not be identified, said Reagan told the Arab leaders "that perhaps there were other options that could have been considered in connection with this matter, perhaps peaceful means could have been totally exhausted, but that was not the case."

After the session, Sudanese Ambassador Omer Salih Eissa, describing Reagan as "very attentive, very responsive" to the Arab leaders' concerns, said the group was heartened by the president's statement that he was "shocked and disappointed, as we were," by Israel's raid.

The American official said the Sudanese ambassador told Reagan that in the eyes of many people throughout the world, it is difficult to dissociate the United States from Israel's actions.

The U.S.-Israeli relationship makes many people believe the United States was connected in some way with the attack, the official said, reading from notes of Eissa's remarks.

The Reagan administration is trying to assure the Arab world that it had no advance knowledge of the plan.

Speakes quoted the president as saying, at a staff meeting Thursday morning, "The incident earlier this week is evidence the only answer is to achieve a true peace. As long as there is suspicion among the nations, the specter of further tragedies will hang over us."

Meanwhile, special presidential envoy Philip Habib was said to be resuming his peace mission in Lebanon, where he has been standing by while Arabs and Israelis exchanged charges over the bombing raid.

Asked if the envoy's diplomatic shuttle would be broadened to include the bombing raid, Speakes told reporters, "I'm sure that will be at least a part of his discussions."

The spokesman said Reagan considers Habib's mission "of the utmost importance" and wishes that it "will continue with the cooperation of the concerned parties."

Speakes said a decision on whether to permit the shipment of the four F-16 jet fighters to Israel, which were held up Wednesday, would depend on the outcome of administration and congressional investigations of the bombing raid.

Administration shuts door on tax cut compromise

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, rejecting Democratic complaints that his tax-cut plan does too little for low-income Americans, is slamming the door on further compromise. "I've dug in my heels," he says.

The statement, relayed by a press aide, apparently assured an all-out battle when a tax-cut bill reaches the full House later this year.

"I can't retreat from the 25 percent, across-the-board" cut in personal tax rates, Reagan told a group of labor leaders Thursday at the White House.

Democrats on the House Ways and Means Committee, meanwhile, were telling one of the president's chief tax advisers that the across-the-board concept — meaning the same rate cuts for rich and poor — is not acceptable.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., the committee chairman, led the charge.

He told John E. Chapoton, assistant treasury secretary for tax policy, that the administration's bill is faulty because it does not increase the earned-income credit, which benefits working families with incomes less than $10,000, or the standard deduction, which helps mainly those making less than $20,000.

As a result, Rostenkowski said, "people in those brackets will be paying more tax" even if Reagan's tax cut is approved.

Rep. Donald J. Pease, D-Ohio, cited estimates by Treasury Department and congressional experts in an effort to prove that low-income families will lose under the president's plan.

If Reagan's bill is enacted, Pease said, inflation and higher Social Security taxes will force an average taxpayer earning between $5,000 and $10,000 to pay $42 more in federal taxes in 1982 than in 1981. A person at the $20,000 level would end up with a $103 tax cut; the $200,000-a-year person would get a $20,300 reduction.

The plight of the under-$5,000 worker in that example is exaggerated somewhat by the fact that 3 million couples and individuals at that income level already pay no tax.

Chapoton admitted Reagan's plan would not wipe out effects of inflation and rising Social Security taxes in 1982 and 1983. But when the program is fully effective in 1984, he said, most Americans at all income levels would get enough of a tax cut to offset those factors.

"I wonder how in good conscience you can ask this committee to vote for ... a tax cut" that so favors the wealthy, Pease said.

Such a measure is necessary, Chapoton said, to increase saving and investment and put the economy onto a path of stable growth.

While people earning more than $30,000 a year would get about 62 percent of the tax cuts under Reagan's program, Chapoton said, those people — who now pay 63 percent of the taxes — are most likely to invest their tax cut in ways that would benefit the economy.

House committees struggling to meet budget cut deadlines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The last of the House's 15 committees — all dominated by Democrats — are struggling to meet today's deadline for recommending $35 billion in specific cuts to meet the bottom-line figure in President Reagan's fiscal 1982 budget.

Although the committees are making the cuts, Democratic leaders are mounting a strategy to force a series of individual floor votes on the most popular programs, such as school lunches and student loans, in hopes of saving them.

That prompted House Republicans to renew their threats Thursday to draft their own package of individual cuts if the Democratic plan is not to their liking.

"In the end, you know, you can't take chances," said Republican Leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois. "You have to be absolutely sure you have an alternative that is agreeable to the administration."

Republicans used the same approach earlier this year to win the support of 63 conservative House Democrats for the administration's budget outline, instead of a Democratic alternative. But Michel conceded it might be more difficult to put together enough votes to defeat the Democratic majority on the actual cuts.

He said some Democrats may desert Reagan out of dissatisfaction with specific cuts. But others, who rejected Reagan's budget outline out of dislike for his three-year tax-cut plan, might be able to support the president on spending cuts alone, he said.

Michel also conceded some changes likely would be necessary in Reagan's proposed cuts to satisfy several Northeastern and Midwestern Republicans who want more money for energy assistance for the poor, guaranteed student loans and mass transit. "There's flexibility in there to do that," he said.

Republican Whip Trent Lott of Mississippi said the $35 billion in savings outlined in the earlier budget blueprint must be achieved through "real cuts" and not through a "shell game" on the part of intransigent Democrats.

Michel, Lott and Budget Director David A. Stockman said no decision had been made yet on whether to demand a vote on the House floor on an alternative package of cuts more in keeping with what the administration wants.

Fumes send passengers to hospital

PITCAIRN, Pa. (AP) — More than 70 people aboard Amtrak's Broadway Limited were taken to area hospitals after an alcoholic substance that leaked near the passenger train emitted a sickening vapor, officials said today.

The train, bound for New York and Washington from Chicago, had just stopped in Greensburg, Pa., to pick up six passengers Thursday when a freight train passed by that was leaking octyl alcohol, a chemical used to make perfume, officials said.

Chemtrec, a Washington-based information service sponsored by the chemical industry, identified the leaking chemical as a combustible liquid with "little or no immediate health hazard."

"It is a non-hazardous material, but if breathed in high concentrations of vapor it will cause respiratory irritation," said Chemtrec spokesman Carl Wallis.

When passengers and crewmen on board the Amtrak train began to complain of nausea, the train backed up to Pitcairn, where some people were taken off to be transported to local hospitals, officials said.

What Is Vespa?

vespa SM
THE UNCOMMON CARRIER

Riding a Vespa moped is fun and simple, you won't have to shift gears with the automatic drive system featured on Vespas. To start your moped, you just peddle, but no further peddling is necessary!

Vespa is the world's oldest and largest manufacturer of mopeds. They carry a 12 month unlimited mileage warranty on their full line of mopeds.

Vespa mopeds are economical, up to 160 mpg and unlimited fpg (funs per gallon). Right now a Vespa moped can save you even more during this big sale.

We have factory trained mechanics to service our full line of Vespa scooters and mopeds. We have a complete line of accessories including baskets, windshields, racks, covers and bumper carriers to attach to your car.

Reds' Foster sees baseball strike, but a brief one

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

"The strike is on," said Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association.

But George Foster, the slugging outfielder for the Cincinnati Reds, feels a baseball strike will either not occur or be of short duration.

"My gut feeling is that I don't think there will be a strike," said Foster, the Reds' player representative. "From a reliable source I hear there will not be a strike — and if there is, it will just be a couple of days."

Despite Foster's feelings, Miller said early today that "a substantial number of players have left for home, and as soon as everybody knows, the remainder will go home."

ALL ACROSS the country, and in Toronto and Montreal, baseball players and teams played a waiting game — waiting for the 1 p.m. deadline that was set early today by Ray Grebey, the chief negotiator for the owners.

"We are going on the assumption that the team will continue playing," said Fred Claire, Los Angeles Dodgers vice president of public relations and promotion. "But we have taken some steps to meet contingencies that could result from a strike."

One of the contingencies would be to strand the players in St. Louis where the Dodgers just finished a series with the Cardinals.

THE DODGERS' private plane was to remain in St. Louis until 11 a.m. according to Claire. If the strike is on, Claire said the plane would head to Los Angeles carrying only "non-playing personnel and media people." He said the players would be left in St. Louis to "shift for themselves."

The Cleveland Indians are in Oakland, where a four-game weekend series against the A's was to begin tonight.

"If there is a strike, the players will have to pay their own way home from Oakland," said Gabe Paul, Indians president. "The clubhouse will be locked and the players can't work out with any equipment owned by the team. They will be given the time to get their personal belongings."

The possibility opened up a humorous side.

"Well, it costs $118.50 for a bus ticket from Oakland to Cleveland," said reserve infielder Jerry Dybzinski. "Maybe we can get a group rate if we have to go home."

"At least I'll hit .200 this year," said light-hitting center fielder Rick Manning.

"I suppose I'll go home and finish painting my house," said Cleveland infielder Toby Harrah, who missed three weeks of spring training after falling off a ladder the last time he tried painting his house.

THE NEW York Yankees also were in a joking mood.

Pitcher Ron Davis said he would go to work at a New York restaurant, while infielder Bucky Dent said he do "absolutely nothing except stand on the unemployment line."

"I'll call up the probation office and see if I'm clean, then go on welfare and try to collect food stamps," laughed outfielder Bobby Brown when asked what his plans were.

For Yankee catcher Rick Cerone, a strike would mean he would "go to the Jersey Shore, go to Florida and maybe go to Hollywood and try to make a movie."

BUT THE strike affects not only the players and the owners.

Jimmy Saenger of New York, a high school student who works at a concession stand at Shea Stadium where the Mets play, said if there was a strike, "I just get a little vacation."

A security guard at Shea, George Duerr, said: "It's difficult for us to sympathize with the players union because we don't have any rapport with them. They would go through our picket line."

And Armand Damiani of Brooklyn said: "They ought to have a committee and let the fans sit in on the negotiations because they pay the freight."

Holmes holds 12-pound edge in title bout

By HAL BOCK

DETROIT (AP) — Three years and three days after he won the title, Larry Holmes defends his World Boxing Council heavyweight championhip against Leon Spinks tonight.

Holmes will carry a 12-pound weight advantage, 212¼ to 200¼ for ex-champ Spinks, into the ring at Joe Louis Arena when he makes his 10th defense of boxing's most glamorous crown.

The Dokes-Gardner fight and the main event between Holmes and Spinks will be shown by ABC-TV, beginning at 8 p.m..

HOLMES, 31, has won all 37 of his career fights, 27 of them by knockouts. Eight of those KOs came in successive title defenses after he outpointed Ken Norton for the crown June 9, 1978. His ninth and most recent defense was a 15-round decision over Trevor Berbick last April 11 at Las Vegas.

Before the Berbick fight, Holmes stopped Muhammad Ali, the same man Spinks beat in a stunning upset to win the universal heavyweight crown Feb. 15, 1978. Spinks, 27, was stripped of the WBC share of the crown because he refused to fight Norton, choosing instead to give Ali a rematch.

Norton was awarded the WBC crown and then lost it to Holmes in his first defense. Meanwhile, exactly seven months after he had beaten Ali, Spinks returned the World Boxing Association version of the crown to Ali on a 15-round decision that greased the skids for the ex-Olympic champion.

SPINKS FOUGHT only once in 1979, suffering an embarassing first round knockout against Gerrie Coetzee in Monte Carlo. But in 1980, he knocked out Evangelista, fought a 10-round draw with Eddie "Animal" Lopez, and stopped Kevin Isaac and Bernardo Mercado. The ninth-round knockout of Mercado came on the undercard of the Holmes-Ali fight in Las Vegas, Nev., and positioned Spinks for another shot at the crown.

"My head is on straight," said Spinks, who has had his share of ups and downs since the glory of the 1976 Montreal Olympics, where he won the light-heavyweight gold medal. "I am ready for my best fight."

So is Holmes. The champion seems in superb condition under the firm training hand of Eddie Futch, who handled ex-champ Joe Frazier. Futch replaced Richie Giachetti as Holmes' trainer before the Berbick bout, a fight which ended the champion's string of knockouts.

HOLMES BRINGS a healthy respect for Spinks into the ring tonight. "I've had no trouble getting up for this one," he said. "Leon is a lot better than a lot of other opponents I've had."

That list would include people like Evangelista, Osvaldo Ocasio, Lorenzo Zanon, Leroy Jones and Scott LeDoux, all title challengers who were kayoed in eight rounds or less by the champion.

Spinks says his strategy will be to stick close to Holmes, "like a wet T-shirt."

Holmes will try to keep off the ropes, preferring to fight in the middle of the ring, where he can utilize his advantage in size and reach.

Mamby, who celebrated his 34th birthday eight days ago, will be defending his 140-pound title for the third time. He won the crown from Kim Sang-Hyon Feb. 23, 1980 and defended against Eseban DeJesus and Termite Watkins last year. He carries a 29-12-5 lifetime record into the ring against the 31-year-old Kimpuani, a native of Zaire, who is 56-2 for his career.

Texan leads LPGA

Sandra Post looms one-stroke back

By GEORGE STRODE

MASON, Ohio (AP) — A sign of the inflationary times — Sandra Post can win $122,500 in four days at the Ladies Professional Golf Association Championship, more than any of the first 26 money leaders could earn in an entire year on the LPGA Tour.

The thought of such a bonanza, the product of a special bonus, is not unnerving Post, if the first round of the LPGA Championship on Thursday was any indication.

The 33-year-old Canadian shot a 67, the same as 1979 U.S. Open winner Jerilyn Britz and one shot off the pace of leading Lynn Adams, a non-winner in four pro seasons.

"I don't feel any pressure," Post said of her 5-under-par round that included 13 pars and five birdies over the Jack Nicklaus Sports Center's Grizzly course.

Raymond Floyd collected a $300,000 bonus on the men's tour earlier this year for winning successive Florida tournaments. McDonalds has put up a $100,000 bonus for the player who can win its McDonalds Classic, played last week, and the LPGA this week, the first of the women's majors this year.

That is some contrast to the early years of the LPGA Tour.

Babe Zaharias was the No.1 money leader in the opening year in 1948, with $3,400. Patty Berg led with $16,272 in 1957. Mickey Wright had $21,641 in 1962. Even in 1975, Sandra Palmer won only $72,374.

The 30-year-old Texan spurned tennis and teaching careers to take golf seriously five years ago. The closest she's come to winning was a third-place in 1979. She's missed the cuts in five tournaments and was disqualified in another event this season.

Yet she oozes with confidence.

"Every time I tee it up, I am confident I will do well. I've matured this year. I'm much more composed," said Adams, who quit a high school teaching job to take up this demanding game.

Adams shot into the sole lead of a tournament for the first time in her career by assembling six birdies and one eagle to offset two bogeys. Her performance came despite a broken toe on her right foot, suffered in a household accident last week. She stubbed her toe on a bed post while rushing to check on a roast.

Britz has a history of playing this 6,258-yard course north of Cincinnati well. She established the women's competitive course record with a 64 two years ago.

Diablos club San Antonio, 15-10

By The Associated Press

Johnny Evans had a grand slam homer and two-run homer as the El Paso Diablos beat the San Antonio Dodgers 15-10 Thursday night and moved to a 1½ game lead in the Texas League West.

And the race for the Texas League East first half title tightened as the Shreveport Captains edged the Jackson Mets, 2-1, and moved to within 2½ games of the division leading Mets.

In other Texas League action, Amarillo edged Midland, 6-5, and Arkansas beat Tulsa, 5-1.

Evans' grand slam came in the eighth inning and his two-run homer was in the third. Al Manning also had a two-run homer in the eighth when the Diablos scored seven runs.

Ross Jones had a two-run homer for San Antonio and Mark Bradley had a solo home run for the Dodgers.

Chick Valley, 5-1, was the winning pitcher. Orel Hershiser, 3-2, was the loser.

Three straight hits, a sacrifice fly and a throwing error allowed the Shreveport Captains to score two runs in the bottom of the ninth as the Captains beat the Jackson Mets, 2-1.

The winning pitcher was Mark Lohuis, 4-0. Terry Leach, 2-1, was charged with the loss.

Dan Winslow drove in both runs with singles as the Arkansas Travelers edged the Tulsa Drillers, 2-1.

Tulsa's only run came in the eighth on back-to-back doubles by Don Scott and Tracy Cowger.

Unser ponders hostile attitude of A.J. Foyt

By STEVE HERMAN

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Bobby Unser isn't sure why the U.S. Auto Club has it in for him, but he says he has a pretty good idea why A.J. Foyt is siding with Mario Andretti in the dispute over last month's Indianapolis 500-mile race.

Foyt, who testified for Andretti in the USAC hearing on Unser's appeal of his second-place finish, is the only four-time winner in Indy history. Johnny Rutherford and Al Unser — Bobby's younger brother — are the only three-time winners still active in racing. Bobby has won it twice.

"It's clear in my own mind why Foyt testified for Mario," Bobby said after Thursday's session ended. "That was to prevent me from winning a third time and being eligible to be another four-time winner. It's just like Foyt to do something like that."

Thomas Beasley, an assistant starter at the 500, and drivers Tony Bettenhausen, Sheldon Kinser and Herm Johnson testified for Unser Thursday. Unser attorney James Binns was in the middle of questioning car owner Roger Penske when the hearing was recessed.

The hearing will resume July 29 — the first date available for all parties in the case.

"If I'm puzzled over any one thing, it's why USAC is so deeply involved in making sure the race doesn't go to me, to the point of questionable truthfulness of some of their people testifying," said Unser, who is expected to be the final witness after Penske completes his testimony next month.

"Aside from that, the case has been very clear to me," he continued. "It's been very decisive on our part. We've taken their witnesses and made them good people for us, for the most part. Nothing they've brought out has really been damaging to us."

Unser beat Andretti across the finish line by 5.3 seconds. But Andretti, Foyt and Gordon Johncock — Andretti's teammate — signed an informal protest that Unser illegally passed a line of cars as he left the pits during the yellow caution period on the 150th lap. The next morning, when the official standings were posted, Andretti was the winner and Unser was second.

USAC stewards rejected two immediate protests by Unser and Penske — first, that Unser committed no violation and, second, that Andretti committed the same foul by passing Foyt under the yellow on the same lap. If this appeal fails, Unser could still take his case to the Federation d'Internationale Automobile, the international umbrella group for auto racing.

Foyt testified that his car was having trouble with the fuel mixture, and since the green light was about to be displayed, he didn't want to be run over by the faster cars, so he voluntarily waved Andretti around him. Video tapes showed Foyt pulling to the right and Andretti passing on the left as they rounded the fourth turn.

Umpire's lot not the happiest

Billy Martin

By RICHARD HOFFER
(c) 1981, The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — The umpire's lot is not the happiest. He makes, oh about $30,000, tops. He travels from April to October, having neither home stands nor many days off. He never gets to wear anything but dark suits to work, no matter what the weather. On a really good day nobody kicks dirt on him in front of 50,000 people.

On bad days, which umpires say are all too frequent, Oakland Manager Billy Martin may charge from the dugout and try to bowl an ump over. Or Jimmy Piersall, a White Sox radio broadcaster, may make a seemingly obscene gesture from the press box. Or Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda may shower some unfortunate homeplate umpire with that fine spray he emits when shouting, insisting later he never once cursed.

On a really bad day, of course, Orioles Manager Earl Weaver will simply show up and take his place in the dugout.

Bad days such as this have thrust baseball's anonymous men in blue into the news recently. The Billy Martin-Terry Cooney collision, especially. Although hardly life-threatening, the bumping has focused attention once more on the sporadic warfare, and uneasy truces, among the game's arbiters and participants. What Martin did was charge Cooney, after being ordered out of the game during an argument over a ball-strike call, bump him with his chest and then throw dirt on him.

UMPIRES HOPE this bumping thing does not become a vogue among managers. They say that the truce, in fact, has never been fully observed. If anything, they say, the game of baseball encourages flare-ups.

"There's no question it's encouraged," said American League umpire Nick Bremigan. "I don't mean the bumping, that's not encouraged; no physical contact is. But virtually everything else that happens between umpires and players and managers, that's encouraged. Arguments are part of the tradition of baseball. And I'll tell you something: Umpires enjoy them, too, sometimes."

Umpire emeritus Ron Luciano, now an NBC-TV announcer, said "encouraged" might not be the right word. "I don't think they (the major leagues) encourage all this fuss," he said, "but I know they don't discourage it. Ask yourself: Are players and managers ever disciplined?"

"I'm sure I'll think this is all very funny, too," said National League umpire Frank Pulli. "In about 10 years. In the meantime, I'll take the bad days with the good."

AS MUCH abusive verbiage as the umpire is required to take — from fans, players and managers — he alone is allowed the satisfaction of the last word. Umpires may get in many an argument, but they don't lose many. Old saying; Being an umpire means never having to say you're sorry.

Luciano, a former pro football player, says this makes baseball unique among sports. In football, for example, officials are empowered to issue penalties in degree — 10 yards, 15 yards and loss of down, so on. Also, officials can levy them indefinitely. But in baseball the umpire is required to listen, endure and

Milwaukee bombards Rangers

By MIKE O'BRIEN

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The strain on Ted Simmons' face was evident, but the Milwaukee Brewers' players' representative hasn't forgotten his primary duties as cleanup hitter.

Simmons, weary from hours of consulting with and advising his teammates during baseball's contract talks, lined a homer and RBI triple Thursday night. Gorman Thomas and Roy Howell also homered to help Pete Vuckovich win his eighth successive decision as the Brewers defeated the Texas Rangers 6-3.

"I really don't think it's been different for me than anyone else," Simmons said of the negotiations. "Everyone is affected by this condition. At least, I've been able to make the separation of talking to the newspaper people and playing the game.

"I've had a lot to do," he said. "But everybody has been under some strain. People are still trying to do their jobs."

The Brewers, who had lost their previous four games, trailed 3-1 until Simmons lined his ninth homer with one out in the sixth.

Howell put the Brewers ahead to stay at 4-3 when he slammed his third homer deep into the right center field bullpen with two out in the seventh.

A followup single by Cecil Cooper chased loser Ferguson Jenkins, 4-5, and Simmons tripled off the left center field wall against Steve Comer to make it 5-3.

"You can't look for anything against Fergie," Howell said. "I played with him in Texas and I know how he pitches. He's always a half inch on the inside or outside corner, changes speeds and stays ahead of the hitters. He can make you take a very comfortable 0-for-4.

"He got ahead of me, so I couldn't stand in and look for anything in particular," he said. "I saw the ball great off Fergie my first three times up, but I hit a little dribbler here and a weak grounder there. This time he tried to throw a hard slider by me, and I just reacted."

Amarillo squeaks by Midland, 6-5

AMARILLO—Joe Lansford hit a 400-foot two-run homer in the fourth and then knocked in the deciding run with a sacrifice fly in the seventh as Amarillo's Gold Sox prolonged the road agonies of the Midland Cubs with a 6-5 Texas League win here Thursday afternoon.

It was the third straight for the Gold Sox with three games still left in the series and gave Midland a sorrowful 4-23 road record for the year. And it was another one of those one run defeats. The Cubs now stand 6-17 in one-run games.

Midland had two opportunities after Amarillo had taken the lead in the seventh. With two out in the eighth, Dave Owen singled and stole second, but relief pitcher Wick Wyrick fanned Jeff Burton. With two out in the ninth, Fritz Connally singled, but Wyrick struck out Randy LaVigne to preserve the victory.

Midland struck first when Jack Upton singled with one out in the fourth, stole second and scored LaVigne's single. Carmello Martinez moved LaVigne to third with a single and Mike Diaz knocked in the run with a hit.

Upton opened the sixth with a base hit and took second on a wild pitch. LaVigne walked and with two out Mark Thurmond loaded the bases by walking Diaz. Mike Shepston walked to force in a run and Owen drilled a single to right for two more rbi before Mike Barba, the eventual winner, arrived to retire Burton on a fly.

Amarillo rallied for three in the sixth against Midland starter Tom Spino as Paul Pupura walked, Jerry DeSimone singled and Spino wild pitched the runners into scoring position. Lefthander Norm Churchill relieved to walk Lansford, then fanned Joe Steels before Dan Gausepohl doubled home three runs to cut Midland's lead to 5-4.

Churchill was pinned with the loss, his second of the series, and now has a 5-6 record. Barba, 2-0, got his second win of the series.

TED BATTLES BATTLE SCENE

We're beginning to get the uneasy feeling that the College Baseball World Series isn't really held in Omaha each June. It actually takes place sometime in late May at some remote, maybe even uncivilized, far western site.

The winner of the NCAA Western Regional then sends the champion to Omaha to engage in a bit of window-dressing as solace for those who weren't invited to the "real" tournament.

IT'S A hard fact-of-life to swallow, but it's in the records. Just check 'em.

Arizona State won again this year for the third time in the last six years. In the last 13 years, Arizona has won it twice, Cal-Fullerton once and Southern California seven times.

Still, want to make a case for those tournaments conducted in the East, South, Southwest, Midwest?

Teams from the territories like Arizona State, Arizona and USC have always been tough, but not to the point of shutting out everyone from the states all the time. We can recall, vaguely, Texas once winning a championship or two and one of our favorite trivia questions is What former Midland coach once played on the national baseball and football champions in the same year?

THE ONLY thing that can restore the fans' faith that the Series is for everybody is for Maine to win the Series. It would be like a return of the five-cent cigar and if not a chicken in every pot, at least a potato.

But while the rest of the nation is upset over the trend of recent years, there also is concern in the far west.

There was a time when you could get an argument over who had the best team in Los Angeles, even in years when the Dodgers won the pennant. There was a lot of sentiment in favor of the University of Southern California.

But, folks have begun to notice that USC hasn't won anything since they the NCAA hinted that it not only liked to have its "student-athletes" enrolled in college, but attend classes.

Others just as cruelly point out that USC hasn't been heard from in baseball since Arizona and Arizona State were invited to join the Pac-10 and began shutting the Trojans out.

Craig Lefferts, the Midland Cub lefty who pitched Arizona to the Series title a year ago, asked what has happened to the one-time colossus of college baseball shrugs, "Rod Dedeaux isn't as dedicated as he was once was. They says he's spending more time on his business," which as we recall was trucking.

But then how much incentive has USC offered him. They pay him a $1 a year and name a field after him. He sees what's going on in pro baseball and probably is sulking because they haven't doubled his salary.

...Ex-Midland coach who played on national football and baseball champions the same year?..John Reddell, Oklahoma in early 1950s. Today it would be a trivia question if you could find an athlete who just competed in college football and baseball.

Physical abuse brings quick thumb

"I GUESS physical abuse would be the first thing to get a guy run (thrown out)," he said. "Although I was never scared of that; I was so big (250 pounds and up). In fact, I think I'm the only umpire who almost hit Billy Martin. When he was with Detroit he challenged me on a close play, really tried to show me up. I was madder than hell, especially it being a TV game. We went on and on and he suddenly said, 'Oh, my God, Ron, don't hit me.' I'd had my arm cocked.

"Anyway, bumping, of course, gets you run. Then language. Of course, here it's a matter of circumstances. Past is prologue in baseball. It depends on who's saying what.

"Some players and managers, every other word is a cuss word. Take Lasorda. You can't throw him out for cussing. He doesn't even realize he's doing it. They tried to wire him for sound at third base once. That was unfortunate."

So unaware of his language is Lasorda, as a matter of fact, that he will sit in his office, hours after being ejected, with no satisfactory explanation for preceding events. Many a bewildered baseball writer has heard Lasorda insist he didn't curse. It turns out that Lasorda's definition of cursing is a peculiar one and is restricted to the umpire's genealogy. Anything else, evidently, is just conversation.

"Another example was Ted Williams. Why, he just couldn't speak without cussing. I saw him introduced to the president in Washington, this was when he managed the Senators. He shook his hand and said, 'Hey, how the ... are you?' So you can't throw him out because he cusses you.

"On the other hand, you've got a guy like Jeff Torborg, who managed the Indians. On a close play, he's likely to come out and say, 'It seems to me, with the trajectory of the ball and the rapidity of my base runner, that the events that would unfold...' If he says 'gosh' to me, I run him."

BREMIGAN, too, says language is a tough call with today's ballplayers. "Normally, you'd run them right away for language," he said. "But a lot of baseball people can't say hello without swearing. As far as I'm concerned, they can swear until they put my name in front of it."

Umpires are more than understanding. "When I was playing football and screwed up," Luciano said, "I could go out there and try to level the guy on the next play. Or bite him on the elbow, anyway. But there's no recourse like that in baseball. If Ron Cey strikes out with a guy on third, of course he's frustrated. Umpires take these things into consideration."

There are worse things you can do to an umpire than curse him. Maybe the worst is to impugn his integrity. "That will get you run faster than anything," Bremigan said.

You see the umpire's integrity questioned every time you see the manager scooping dirt on home plate.

To an umpire, scooping dirt onto the plate means the umpire doesn't need the plate to call balls and strikes anyway. It suggests that the umpire is really guessing out there.

There are other, more creative ways to get put out of the game. Weaver and Leo Durocher — every umpire's nightmare; "Weaver's the ayatollah of the '80s," Bremigan has said — put the patents on most of them.

Weaver, whose umpire baiting is as calculated as it is entertaining and frustrating, has been thrown out of 79 games in 14 seasons. It seems it's been for a different reason each time.

He accomplished an exit once by suggesting umpire Jim Evans' eyesight was not all it could be. In the dispute over visual acuity, Evans pointed to his one eye and said, "You see this eye? It's insured for $10,000." He pointed to the other eye. "You see this other eye, Earl? That's insured for $10,000."

Earl looked him in those eyes and said, "So what did you do with the money?" Earl was out of there.

Weaver was a special nemesis for Luciano. Luciano was once quoted as saying he didn't care who won the pennant as long as it wasn't Weaver's team.

DUROCHER, during his years as a manager, was famous for tiffs with umpires. The best known concerned Jocko Conlan. The two, for whatever reason, let their conversation degenerate into a shin-kicking contest. Conland had the edge, as he wore shin guards. Durocher said he learned something from that.

Which is not to say Durocher was never thrown out again. Once, his team leading after five innings and rain threatenng, Durocher went to the mound to talk to his pitcher under an open umbrella. In another game, before lights were standard equipment, Durocher was angling for postponement of a game due to darkness. His team was losing, of course. Durocher went to the mound with a lantern. He was out of there.

Luciano's favorite ejection came about as a result of his own mistake and was consequently as dramatic as he could make it. It was, by his own account, the worst moment in his life, inasmuch as he had to change a decision in favor of Weaver.

What happened was that Luciano, blinded by some glare, called an Angels' foul ball a home run. This was in Baltimore. "I have a 50-50 chance," is how Luciano explained the call. He guessed he missed it when he looked over and saw Boog Powell down on both knees laughing. Also, the bullpen charging him tipped him off.

uciano had to reverse the call, which brought Angel Manager Dick Williams out of the dugout. Williams told him to give him a real good throwout sign, at least as good as the home run sign Luciano gave. "I let him go pretty long on that one," said Luciano. "He was doing pretty good, too. Hey, I'm human."

Shea still Chez for Tom Seaver

By KEN RAPPORT
AP Sports Writer

It's been four years since Tom Seaver pitched for the New York Mets — but Shea Stadium fans still rolled out the red carpet for the Cincinnati pitcher.

"They pull for their own ballclub, as they should," said Seaver, "but it's nice to hear them welcome me back."

Many of the New York fans stood and chanted "Seaver, Seaver, Seaver", and gave him even more of an ovation when they felt the Mets' cause was lost Thursday night.

As it turned out, it was. They dropped a 5-2 decision before Seaver's masterful Six-hitter.

"The fans realized the Mets were not going to win, so they cheered for the second best thing," Seaver said.

Seaver's victory was his sixth straight this year and gave him a 7-1 record, his only loss coming April 18 against St. Louis. He struck out seven, and with the victory passed Bob Gibson for 30th on the all-time victory list with his 252nd triumph.

SEAVER was perhaps the Mets' most beloved player when traded to the Reds on June 15, 1977 in a multiple-player trade involving Pat Zachry, ironically the Mets' losing pitcher Thursday night.

George Foster provided the offensive punch for Cincinnati with a three-run homer in the sixth inning that snapped a 2-2 tie. The homer, his 14th, followed three strikeouts, and Foster joked afterward that perhaps he had jumped the gun on Marvin Miller, head of the Major League Players Association, which was ready to strike against the owners today.

Cardinals 2, Dodgers 1

Valenzuela, 9-4, suffered his fourth setback in his last six starts, despite yielding only three St. Louis hits, before departing for a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

Expos 7, Braves 0

Rogers, 7-4, who has won five straight games against the Braves dating back to August 1977, walked two and struck out one. It was his third complete game and first shutout of the season.

Atlanta starter Tommy Boggs, 1-10, who has been the victim of six shutouts this season, lost his ninth straight game.

"After the hassles of the last two or three weeks it was a relief just to go out and pitch," said Rogers, referring to the recent battle between the players' association and baseball management.

Cubs 6, Giants 1

Ken Reitz' two-run double capped a four-run first inning and Jody Davis hit his first major league homer to lead Chicago past San Francisco and provide the suddenly-alive Cubs with a three-game sweep of their series.

The triumph was the fifth in the last six games for the Cubs, who knocked loser Tom Griffin, 4-5, from the game in the first inning. Randy Martz, 3-5, was the winner, allowing five hits in the seven innings he worked.

Phillips' 69 leads

SOCORRO (AP) — Professional Bob Phillips of Phoenix, Ariz., shot a 3-under-par 69 to take the lead over four others going into the second round of play in the annual Hilton Open golf tournament here.

Phillips was one shot up on Jim Dickson of Rio Rancho, Ray Arinno of Scottsdale, Ariz., Jim Fiala of Durango, Colo., and former champion Jimmy Russell of Yuma, Ariz., who were all tied with 70s after Thursday's opening round of play.

Among those tied for third in the 54-hole tournament were amateur Joel Edwards of El Paso, Texas, and three-time Hilton Open champion Gene Torres of Las Vegas, N.M.

There are 46 professionals and 22 amateurs competing in the championship flight. The tourney offers a $3,500 purse to the top professional.

Lee's Williams inks with ACU

ABILENE — Midland Lee sprinter Arthur Williams signed a track scholarship agreement with Abilene Christian University, according to Garner Roberts, ACU Sports Information Director.

Williams finished second in the 200 meter dash at the state meet in May with a season best time of 20.8. Williammas lost to Fort Worth Wyatt's Darryl Austin at the wire. Austin was given the same time.

The loss at state was Williams' first of the year in the 200 meters. He was the District 5-5A and Region I 200 meter champion. Arthur also ran legs on the sprint and 1600 meter relay teams, both district titlists and both third in Region I.

Williams has also posted a 10.7 in the 100 meters and in the Region I meet ran a 47.1 leg on the 1600 relay.

The 5-9, 150-pounder is the third ACU track signee this spring. Earlier ACU got 7-1 high jumper Rick Watkins from Ranger Junior College and 17-10½ pole vaulter Dale Jenkins of Abilene Christian High.

RUIDOSO DOWNS (AP) — Classy Performance, a 22-1 outsider, survived a tooth-and-nail struggle win Thursday's six-furlong headliner at Ruidoso Downs.

The filly, ridden by Michael Meaux, got off to an early lead in the sprint for $12,500 claimers. But Crimson Avenger, a 6-1 shot, hounded the pacemaker all the way.

Royals whip Jays, 10-5

Chisox' Steve Trout beats Yank jinx

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

It's the kind of situation that would have some players talking to themselves.

Jamie Quirk listened.

"Going up to the plate with the bases loaded and then getting a 3-2 count is a situation you just dream of," he said. "But when you're at the plate you've got to try and keep it all in perspective and say to yourself, 'Just hit the ball.'"

He did — barely 150 feet down the third base line.

But Quirk's eighth-inning pinch-double off Roy Lee Jackson went far enough to allow two runners to score, wiping out Toronto's 5-4 lead and starting the Kansas City Royals on their way to a 10-5 romp. It was the Blue Jays' 11th consecutive loss, tying a club record.

"I tried not to strike out," said Quirk, who was batting for Dave Chalk. "Jackson threw it right where he wanted it. I'm sure if you ask him he's pretty mad right now."

George Brett led off the eighth with a triple off winless Wike Willis. After a walk to Willie Aikens, Brett was caught in a rundown but stayed in it long enough to let Aikens reach third and batter Amos Otis get to second. After an intentional walk to McRae loaded the bases, Quirk got his decisive hit.

Hal McRae and Rance Mulliniks drove in two runs apiece for the Royals. "Tonight we just got a bit lucky with the bloop hits and scored a few runs," said Royals Manager Jim Frey. "Things like that don't show up in the stats. Earlier in the year we'd go into the late innings losing, get two on and hit a one-hopper to the shortstop or a line drive to left and walk off losing a one-run game."

Mariners 8, Orioles 2

Julio Cruz's 32nd consecutive stolen base, tied Willie Wilson's American League record (Davey Lopes of Los Angeles owns the major league record of 38) and opened the door to a four-run first inning which propelled the Mariners past Baltimore.

White Sox 3, Yankees 2

Steve Trout has not had the best of luck against the Yanks. Last year they beat him 3-1. And barely a week ago they beat him again, 2-0. "Every time I face them it's gone like that," he said — so the victory by the White Sox starter was particularly sweet.

"It's really nice to beat them. They're a great team ... awesome from both sides of the plate. When you play good competition, it brings out the best in you."

Angels 8, Red Sox 2

Like the Mariners, the Angels locked up their game against Baltimore with a four-run first inning. Fred Lynn and Ed Ott hit run-scoring singles in the burst which made it easy for Ken Forsch to match Detroit's Jack Morris, Los Angeles' Fernando Valenzuela and Philadelphia's Steve Carlton as a nine-game winner, tops in the majors.

Tigers 7, Twins 2

Tom Brookens' three-run homer in the sixth inning obliterated Minnesota's 2-1 lead and helped the Tigers win for the 10th time in 12 games.

"We hate to see things stop because we're on a little bit of a roll right now," he said of the strike threat. "We'll just have to sit back, wait and hope they settle."

"It couldn't come at a worse time for us because we're playing so well," added Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson. "But I don't worry about it because it's out of my hands. I don't run nothing."

Fordham beat the Generals 27-15 in Lexington that day, but used an ineligible player in the game.

Fordham Athletic Director David Rice, in a letter to W&L Athletic Director Bill McHenry last week, said Fordham just learned that the player in question had not been enrolled at Fordham when the game was played.

That means that Fordham forfeits the game and the score becomes 1-0 in favor of the Generals in the record books.

W&L's record in 1979 was 3-7 before the forfeit, and now has been upped to 4-6.

Busy summer suddenly becomes an aching void

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Next week over the historic Merion course in the Main Line suburbs of Philadelphia Jack Nicklaus goes for his fifth U.S. Open golf title against Tom Watson and a crack international field. Ten days hence, Wimbledon, the dowager queen of tennis championships, begins with the unshakeable Bjorn Borg and Chris Evert striving to stave off the wunderkinds.

No baseball.

Not far from the Joe Louis Arena, where the title fight takes place, Tiger Stadium could be dark Friday night along with other major league ballparks around the country.

Baseball is the game that is woven into the very fabric of American life. Kids play it in schoolyards and on corner lots. They are taken to the parks by their dads to get free helmets and jackets, eat popcorn and watch their diamond idols run, hit and slide.

Heroics of the legends — Ruth, Cobb, Dizzy Dean, Joe DiMaggio and Willie Mays — are passed from lips to lips down through generations until they seem almost alive to almost every schoolchild.

HE DOESN'T know how long he'll have to wait to reach that plateau but he's not worried.

"I'd be worried only if I knew there would be no baseball until 1985," snapped Pete, a schoolboy at age 40.

Fans should not be too quick to blame the players because salaries have escalated to an average of $175,000 a year with many individual incomes reaching into the millions up to Dave Winfield's $20 million-plus with the Yankees.

It's not the players' fault. This simplistic, wonderful game — so easy to understand and so entwined in our national culture — has been spoiled by the sport's administrators, the owners, the rules makers, the executives.

It's their greed, shortsightedness and stiff resistance to change that has brought about the present impasse and general mess.

The players are merely artisans plying their trade. It is their natural instinct — as with any other employee, whether he be a movie celebrity or a ditch-digger — to demand whatever wages the market will allow.

As has been pointed out repeatedly by reasoning observers, they did not come by their salaries — unrealistic as they may seem — by sticking a gun to the owners' heads.

It's the owners, in their mad efforts to get the jump on their rivals, who have set the financial tone. Now they're trying to get the monkey off their backs.

ALL THE players are asking is "Give us a chance to bargain for our skills without impediment or restraint.

It's the American work ethic — a prerogative given to every working stiff as well as to every young brain in the corporate executive structure.

The owners want something called compensation. Why compensation? Why should baseball, a business that markets itself at every level, be given preferential status not afforded equivalent enterprises?

The truth is, baseball had its way too long — unjustifiably — with the grace of a naive Supreme Court which gave them exemption from antitrust laws. Baseball abused the privilege with the result that ball players were no more than serfs, bound to a club for life unless traded or sold.

Pleas for relief from such chains were haughtily spurned by baseball's hierarchy until an arbitrator in 1976 shockingly opened the dam to the torrent of free agency.

Now the owners are screaming "foul" and asking for mercy — a plea which the players made on deaf ears for generations.

Antuofermo may call off bout with Hagler

BOSTON (AP) — Middleweight challenger Vito Antuofermo says he'll pull out of Saturday's scheduled championship fight with Marvin Hagler if he is not allowed to use the cut salve of his choice.

The former champ, who retained his crown two years ago fighting Hagler to a draw, made his threats after Hagler's co-manager Pat Petronelli said he'd agree to nothing stronger than a weak cut solution known as 1-1000 adrenalin.

"I won't get in the ring," Antuofermo said Thursday. "Why shouldn't they let us use the stuff we used last time? It's the same stuff we always used except in London. What's the point of having a fight go three-four rounds and be stopped by cuts? That's not fair to the fans. I won't get my money, and they'll have to give everybody's money back."

Tony Carione, Antuofermo's manager, feels Petronelli is trying to dictate to the State Boxing Commission, which had a meeting scheduled for today to rule on the cut salve and to set rules for the fight.

"Why is Petronelli to dictate to us? We very well may pull out if they don't let us use our stuff," he said. "It's not Monsel's (a mixture of alcohol, iron and chloride) and that's the only stuff that's prohibited.

Kuhn, you gotta do something

Los Angeles Times

Ordinarily, I'm inclined to let baseball as an industry shift for itself; I have enough problems without worrying about Bowie Kuhn's. But I do admit to this recurring nightmare I have for the game. In it, the Chicago White Sox get in the World Series. And I have a horror of them being seen all over the world in those -- y-e-ech! -- uniforms.

I mean, have you ever seen a major league athletic team look any sicklier? They look like a bunch of guys who just left a hotel fire or got dressed in the dark in somebody else' clothes.

I mean, their shirts hang out, their pants flop over their calves, they have this open meshwork in their shirts. They look as if they're on their way to a game of one-o'cat in a vacant lot. They're the most undignified suits this side of a Borneo headhunter's tribe. You can't really tell if they just came in their pajamas, or if they're seriously suited up for a game.

They make everybody look fat. They put Greg Luzinski's picture on the back of a magazine in a Chicago White Sox uniform the other day and set the sport back about 90 years.

EVEN THE gender of these costumes is uncertain. You don't know whether you've wandered into a ballgame or the road company of Charley's Aunt.

There are certain things which should be immutable in nature. Bankers and prime ministers should have oak-paneled offices. Queens should wear big floppy hats to the races. Circus aerialists should wear pink tights.

And ballplayers should wear baseball uniforms. And baseball uniforms should be like tuxedos -- the same today as they were 50, 75, 100 years ago.

THE GREATEST uniforms in the history of the game were the ones worn by the St. Louis Cardinals. They had that great bat across the shirt front with the two red birds on either end, and those great socks with the rings of red and black and white through them. The Cardinals were pleasing to watch. Plus, the old Gas House Gang always added dirt to the ensemble. I honestly think those uniforms moved a player up a few notches in class. You FELT like a major leaguer in the Cardinal-and-white.

The most famous uniforms, I suppose, were the vaunted Yankee pinstripes but, sartorially, they never did much for me. I didn't like either one -- the Yankees or the uniform. The Yanks were the first to put numbers on their backs, but they are among the last to hold out against putting their names on. In a way, it's a waste of time. The Yankees are highly recognizable anyway. What's annoying is when a team like the Milwaukee Brewers doesn't put names on the back of their uniforms although, I must admit, in most cases, even that wouldn't be much of a help.

THE SECOND-worst uniforms in the history of baseball were those designed by Charlie Finely for his Oakland A's. When they came out in those green and white and gold creations, you were surprised their noses didn't light up. They looked like a collection of large white rabbits. They were one of the great teams in baseball for half a decade, but who could take them seriously in those abominations? It hurt just to look at them.

Soviets seek foreign grain

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Agriculture Department analysis says the Soviet Union has taken steps to gain access to vast supplies of foreign grain, thus greatly diversifying its source of agricultural imports.

One expert on the Soviet Union, however, says in a related report that despite other countries sharing the lucrative market, the United States will regain its prior eminence as a Soviet supplier.

David Schoonover said the Soviet Union's announced five-year plan for agriculture — along with production problems — are "likely to generate large grain import requirements" during 1981-85.

Schoonover, director of the Asia, Africa and Eastern Europe division for international trade policy in the department's Foreign Agricultural Service, said the Soviet Union's own feed resources "clearly are insufficient" to meet its livestock production goals.

Soviet purchases of grain from U.S. competitors "likely will continue strong in the years ahead," he said.

But Schoonover added that "U.S. exports of grain to the USSR probably will regain the relatively high levels prior to the embargo, given the expected huge Soviet import requirements."

An agreement reached earlier this week in London allows the Soviet Union — if it chooses — to buy an additional 6 million metric tons of wheat and corn for delivery through Sept. 30.

Until it was lifted on April 24, a partial embargo on grain sales restricted shipments to 8 million metric tons annually. The London agreement allows those to rise to 14 million tons without further discussions between the two countries.

The department said Thursday in its latest analysis that the U.S. agreement followed other recent accords, including one with Canada that covers the sale of 25 million tons of grain over the next five years.

"These, along with other agricultural trade agreements, appear to represent a Soviet effort to diversify suppliers and to assure a certain level of imports by formally locking in minimal trade levels," the report said.

Moths create many problems

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — What's slippery enough to stop a freight train, slithery enough to short-circuit a radio station and nasty enough to make kids break out in a rash?

The answer — as almost any tree owner in the Northeast can attest — is the gypsy moth caterpillar. Or rather, billions of gypsy moth caterpillars.

And none too soon, either. By the time the critters are done, federal officials estimate, they will have eaten the leaves of about 5 million acres of forest from Maryland to Maine.

In their march from tree to tree, the hairy, 2-inch-long caterpillars have taken a toll on scout camps, automobiles and golf courses, not to mention their favorite food — oaks, poplars, maples and fruit trees.

In Westminster, Mass., the bugs managed to stop two Boston & Maine Railroad freight trains. So many were squished under the trains' wheels that the trains could not climb the slippery rails. They had to wait for an extra locomotive to push them on their way.

Radio station WLKW-FM in Providence, R.I., was knocked off the air several times by the caterpillars. The insects caused tiny short circuits when they climbed the station's transmission towers.

When kids squeeze the bugs in their fingers, the insects ooze a toxic substance that can cause a rash. School nurse Hope Virostek in Burrillville, R.I., said her office ran out of calamine lotion to treat the irritation after an outbreak of skin rash.

The bugs are not fussy eaters. When police in Worcester, Mass., raided an apartment, they found caterpillars busy nibbling on six marijuana plants. Detective Sgt. William T. Quinn said he was worried the caterpillars would eat the evidence.

"The little fellas are sitting up and singing and waving their little tentacles at us," Quinn said. "All they need is a tambourine and a banjo."

"If you drive through them, they splatter worse than tar," said Carl Young, dispatcher at the state police barracks in Houlton, Maine. "You can't get it off. I've still got some of that stuff on my car from last year."

At least one person has been seriously injured battling the caterpillars. Michael St. Ives, 31, was gored by a limb that he cut from an oak tree Tuesday in Billerica, a suburb of Boston. He was trying to rid a yard of the insects.

At the U.S. Department of Argiculture's Otis Methods Development Center in Bourne, Mass., entomologist Vic Mastro said 1981 may be the worst year on record for gypsy moth caterpillars. No one knows why.

AGRICULTURE

Pastures, ranges reported in good shape nationally

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although actual conditions vary greatly, livestock pastures and ranges are generally in good shape nationally, according to the Agriculture Department's latest survey.

As of June 1, they were rated at 80 percent, down from 79 percent a year ago, the department's Crop Reporting Board said. That also down from the 77 percent average in the 1970s.

Under its rating system, 80 percent and more means good to excellent; 65 percent to 79 percent, poor to fair; 50 percent to 64 percent, very poor; 35 percent to 49 percent, severe drought, and less than 35 percent, extreme drought.

"Conditions were less favorable than a year earlier in 29 states, better in 17 states and equal to last year in two states," the board's report said.

Mozart symphony to premiere

NEW YORK (AP) — A Mozart symphony written by the composer at age 9 and discovered only recently will have its U.S. premiere July 8 at the Kennedy Center in Washington.

"The symphony had been missing for 216 years, except for 15 measures," Bill Lockwood, director of a "Mostly Mozart Goes To Washington" festival, said at a news conference Wednesday.

"We don't know who found it or where," he said. "It's owned by the Bavarian State Library in Germany.

After the Washington performance, the work will be played opening night July 13 of a Mozart festival in Lincoln Center in New York and then repeated July 15. It was performed once in Germany last May.

George Sturm, U.S. representative of Barrenreiter which has published the symphony — "Symphony in F, K. 19A" — said the find consisted of "a complete set of instrumental parts in the handwriting of Leopold Mozart, father of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart."

Rescuers nearing boy stuck in deep well for two days

By CLARA HEMPHILL
Associated Press Writer

FRASCATI, Italy (AP) — Rescuers were within inches today of freeing a 6-year-old boy with heart trouble trapped more than 40 hours in a narrow well 118 feet underground.

"I want water," the boy, Alfredo Rampi, was quoted as telling a fireman who was digging the last few inches with his hands.

"My arm is hurting...I want water," Alfredo said.

The boy's parents, Fernando and Franca, took turns talking to their son by walkie-talkie. Thousands of onlookers surrounded the site, near the boy's grandparents' house about 15 miles from Rome.

Alfredo fell into the well about 7 p.m. — 1 p.m. EDT — Wednesday while playing. He was caught at a point where the well, 16 inches at the surface, narrowed to 10 inches. His head was up and his arms apparently were free.

Italy's two major TV networks broadcast frequent live reports from the scene. The story of the boy's struggle was front-page news in all Italian newspapers, many carrying it under banner headlines.

Alfredo was breathing 48 times a minute, up from the normal range of 16-18, said Dr. Evasio Fava, one of two physicians monitoring the boy's condition with listening devices earlier today.

"It's a critical situation," he said. The boy "obviously is very, very tired and weak. His breathing is rough...but he appears to be in a good shape from a psychological viewpoint."

Fava and other doctors sent the boy a mixture of milk and sugar through a tube and said he appeared to be drinking it.

The rescue workers, drilling a parallel shaft about 10 feet from the well to rescue the boy, began digging a tunnel down toward Alfredo from a depth of 112 feet.

Originally, they planned to drill the shaft deeper than 118 feet and dig a tunnel that would slope slightly upward so the boy could be pulled out with minimal risk of a cave-in.

Film critic dies at 63

BOSTON (AP) — Robert Steele, internationally known filmmaker, film critic and pioneer in film education, is dead at the age of 63.

At the time of his death in his Boston home on Tuesday, he was a professor of film at Boston Univerity School of Communications.

Among his numerous awards was the highest honor from India's Ministry of Information and Broadcasting for making such films as "Mahatma Gandhi: Silent Revolution," and "Vinoba Bhave: Walking Revolutionist."

For a number of years Steele was a member of the jury at the Cannes Film Festival in France, and he was involved is several U.S. government programs, including the Peace Corps, UNESCO and the Fulbright Scholar Program.

He was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University and the Hartford Seminary Foundation. He earned a doctorate degree from Ohio State.

WASHINGTON (AP) — He isn't giving any speeches yet, but when he's rested and comfortable, wounded White House press secretary James Brady can talk "at length and in depth in a perfectly normal conversation," a doctor says.

"Jim doesn't deliver speeches, but he can talk about any subject he wants to," Dr. Dennis O'Leary, clinical dean at George Washington University Hospital, said Thursday. "But he's obviously had surgery on his head. He still tires."

Brady lost one of two nerves for smelling, but has "good taste functions" and has lost some weight, O'Leary said.

O'Leary wouldn't say when Brady would be allowed to go home from the hospital, and he said doctors won't be able to predict how completely he will recover until at least the end of the year.

O'Leary said X-rays showed virtually all the pneumonia Brady contracted last month is gone. Last week, doctors discovered Brady was capable of some movement of his left arm, the first indication he might regain some use of it.

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne and husband Mark Phillips have hit upon a bright idea for the name of their new baby daughter, the first granddaughter of Queen Elizabeth II.

They named her Zara Anne Elizabeth — Zara being a version of a Greek biblical name meaning "bright as the dawn," a Buckingham Palace spokesman said Thursday.

"Princess Anne and Capt. Phillips just liked the name. They don't know anyone called Zara, and she is not named after anyone," the spokesman added.

The baby, born May 15, is sixth in succession to the throne, but she will be known simply as Miss Zara Phillips. Like her brother Peter, born in 1977, she doesn't have a title because her father has not taken one. They are the first royal grandchildren in 500 years to be born commoners although able to succeed to the throne.

WASHINGTON (AP) — As one congressman called former President Carter's inquiry about using military commissaries "an affront" to taxpayers, a former aide insisted Carter never asked for any special privileges.

"There's never been any letter or any request for commissary or PX privileges for President Carter," said Jody Powell, Carter's former press secretary. "All that was involved here was a routine phone conversation as to what the regulations were — never any request for any special privileges."

An Army Times report said the former president wrote the White House asking to be allowed to use commissaries on military bases — where prices are lower than in most non-military stores.

But sources in the White House who asked not to be identified said the inquiry was made informally in a telephone conversation. The sources indicated it is uncertain whether the question will be answered unless Carter makes a formal request.

NEWMARKET, England (AP) — King Khaled of Saudi Arabia took time off from official duties during his state visit to tour this center of British horse racing and breeding.

The Saudi monarch sat in a ring Thursday to view four resident stallions, which were paraded before him.

The British government, meanwhile, announced that Trade Minister Cecil Parkinson and a team of British businessmen will leave for a week's visit to Saudi Arabia today for talks with government officials and heads of major spending organizations.

NEW YORK (AP) — Interviewing convicted mass murderer Charles Manson was "terribly difficult," says Tom Snyder, host of NBC's "Tomorrow Coast to Coast." Snyder said he had to keep steering Manson back to the subject of the killings he was convicted of ordering.

In the interview, to be broadcast early Saturday, Snyder asked Manson whether he had ordered the killings, and Manson repeatedly wandered from the subject, finally dismissing the question by saying that asking him whether he ordered anybody killed is "like asking Jesse James, 'Did you shoot somebody?' "

"I didn't kill anyone," Manson said.

The interview was taped June 6 at the California Medical Facility in Vacaville, where Manson is serving a life sentence for ordering the cult murders of actress Sharon Tate and eight others.

At a screening Thursday in New York, Snyder said the interview was important because "if we ignore (wickedness), then we condone it."

American dancers competing in Moscow ballet competition

By DAVID MINTHORN
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — Thirteen Americans are vying against the Soviet Union's best dancers at the prestigious Moscow International Ballet Competition, which opens today.

Soviet ballerina Nina Ananiashvili, a Bolshoi Ballet trainee, and Andris Liepa, 19-year-old son of famed Bolshoi dancer Maris Liepa, have already been tipped as the favorites to win gold medals in the two-week competition.

There are 103 competitors from 23 nations, and 23 other dancers who are not in the running for medals. The Russians with 16 entries have the largest team, followed by the 13 Americans.

The U.S. dancers are hoping to take home at least one medal in the classical ballet event, which is being staged for the fourth time since 1969 at the famed Bolshoi Theater.

"Americans have failed to win any top awards in the previous three Moscow competitions, but we have hopes of doing well this time," said U.S. team chief Randolph Swartz of Philadelphia, Pa.

Most of the 34 jury members are from Soviet-bloc nations, including 10 from the host country, and this could give Russian dancers an advantage, Swartz said.

"There is only one American on the judging panel, so we have to be realistic about our chances," he said. The U.S. judge is ballet impresario Robert Joffrey.

Seven of the U.S. dancers are getting full or partial expenses for the Moscow event after being rated the top prospects among 60 hopefuls who auditioned in six American cities last spring.

Joanna Berman, a young soloist from San Rafael, Calif.; duet dancer Amanda McKerrow of Washington, D.C.; and male soloist Nicholas Pacana of Boston are considered top U.S. entrants on the basis of the auditions.

Miss Berman, a 15-year-old, is one of the youngest entrants in the competition. She is dancing in the "young group," for entrants aged up to 19, as is the McKerrow-Dow duo. Pacana is competing in the older category for experienced professionals aged 20 to 28.

Martine Harley of Los Angeles, Linda Kintz of Washington, D.C., her partner Mark Mejia of Los Angeles, and William Starrett, also of Los Angeles, were the other four dancers picked for the U.S. team.

"I came here independently. I'm not a part of the American team," Martin said, explaining that residents of his hometown donated about $2,000 to send him here.

Japanese teen-ager Mari Maeda picked the No. 1 start in a drawing Thursday morning and will lead off the competition tonight.

Most of the Americans drew higher numbers and won't go into action until the weekend.

The first round, in which the soloists and pairs perform two dance variations from a prescribed list of famous ballets, will last for five days, with the jury judging performances live and from tapes.

About half the entrants are expected to qualify for the second round June 18-21, and about 36 for the finals June 23-24, after which medals will be awarded to the best dancers.

Don't leave children, animals in hot autos

By SUE ALFORD
TRAFFIC SAFETY PLANNING
MIDLAND COLLEGE

Temperatures are skyrocketing outside and that means temperatures in closed vehicles will be skyrocketing too. Why is this important?

Often adults leave children and pets in closed vehicles while just running into a store; most often, these same adults don't realize that the temperature in that car can easily and quickly rise to a life threatening 130 degrees or higher.

The combination of sunlight and little or no ventilation is an important factor in this rapid and dangerous temperature rise. Then, and luckily rarely for us, high humidity adds to the heat danger because it short circuits the cooling mechanism of sweating.

Put these conditions with a young child and you have a dehydrated, sick child because children are just more susceptible to heat stress than adults. A child, or pet, left in these conditions for an hour or less can die...needlessly.

If children are going to accompany us on shopping trips and the like, then we must be prepared to take them into the stores with us...the younger they are the more religiously we must do this. As they do get old enough to come and go alone we might, and I emphasize might, leave them in the car but with windows down and doors unlocked, so they can retreat to a cooler place when necessary. That still is an "iffy" situation, though. Further, because children do dehydrate so readily, we need to offer them frequent drinks of water when we do drag them out in the summer heat in cars.

Along the same thought, children can be seriously burned by overheated seats and seat belts. This problem can be avoided by covering the seating area...be it regular seat, infant carrier or child seat...with a light-colored cloth.

Other than this — summer outings can be fun. Hope you and your kids have a safe one!

JUST FOR FUN: This appropriate little sign hangs in an Albuquerque, New Mexico garage: "Don't smoke around the gasoline tank. If your life isn't worth anything, gasoline is."

EVERY SEVEN SECONDS: A defensive driver needs to know what is going on behind as well as in front of him to be able to make good decisions. So, if you're a defensive driver, you should check your rearview mirrors at least every seven seconds. But, your eyes should be moving constantly...in all directions.

TRAVEL GAMES: Midland College Traffic Safety Planning has several fun games and lots of safety literature available for free distribution as a public service. Some of this information is good to help entertain kids on trips or to help adults plan safer trips.

TRAFFIC TIPS: Midkiff — Haynes area, working northwest...city of Midland is continuing it's annual seal coating work in this area. Aside from men and equipment in the area, motorists need to be highly aware of loose gravel and adjust their speed accordingly for stopping distances and to protect windshields.

North Garfield...heavy construction is in progress. Traffic limited to two lanes at the ditch. Extreme caution required. Closing Garfield is not anticipated at this time.

INVOLVED IN AN ACCIDENT: A driver is "involved" in an accident even if there is no physical contact if he contributes in any way to a crash by another driver. If this is the case, a driver is required to stop just as if he had actually hit someone.

Mercury content in fish not hazardous: Agency

By EDITH M. LEDERER
Associated Press Writer

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The United Nations Environment Program is campaigning for the lifting of 15-year-old bans on consumption of fish with high-mercury content in countries around the Mediterranean Sea.

It still cautions pregnant women against eating tuna and swordfish from those waters, however.

Stjepan Keckes, a Yugoslav who is the director of the Regional Seas Program of the Nairobi-based U.N. environmental agency, said a four-year study has found that the Mediterranean always had high mercury levels as a result of natural forces — not as a result of industrial pollution.

The study by 34 marine laboratories in 15 Mediterranean countries also found that there was no danger from eating moderate amounts of tuna and swordfish — which have the highest mercury content — except to pregnant women, Keckes said.

"So, we are advocating now that the regulations be abandoned," he added.

"But we are also advocating that countries mount a publicity campaign warning pregnant women not to eat tuna and swordfish because unborn babies have a particular sensitivity to mercury — and also to enlighten fishermen not to have tuna and swordfish permanently in their diets," he said. "If you eat them once a week or once a month, there's no problem."

In response to a request from the World Health Organization, another U.N. agency, many countries around the world adopted regulations in the mid-1960s banning consumption of fish with high-mercury content. This followed an outbreak of mercury poisoning among people living around Japan's Minamata Bay. The poisoning was traced to fish contaminated by industrial waste.

Keckes predicted in a recent interview that it would take two or three years for governments in the Mediterranean to lift the ban. "We have to convince the same people who legislated the regulations that it's time to dismantle them," he explained.

When the World Health Organization requested governments to adopt the mercury regulations, Keckes said, nobody knew the mercury levels in the Mediterranean.

"In the late 1960s, scientists started measuring mercury in Mediterranean fish and much to everyone's shock, they found the mercury level in some fish — tuna and swordfish — was three to five times higher than the national levels would allow," he said.

As a result, Keckes said, people in the Mediterranean stopped eating tuna and swordfish because "everybody was scared."

In 1975, the Regional Seas Program, which is based in Geneva, Switzerland, launched a study to determine why the mercury level in the Mediterranean was so high and what effect it had on people in the region.

"It took us almost four years, but we now have a fairly complete picture," Keckes said.

"First, several Mediterranean countries including Turkey, Italy, Yugoslavia and Spain have rocks which are very rich in mercury. In pre-Roman times, mercury was mined in all those countries because it was needed for the extraction of gold. Through natural processes — rain and erosion — tremendous amounts of mercury were washed out into the sea," he said.

"Second, there are still active volcanoes. Mount Etna in Italy isn't erupting but large amounts of mercury evaporate from the crater into the air. These evaporations are washed out of the atmosphere in rain into the Mediterranean," he added.

"Today, from all sources, the Mediterranean gets 500 tons of mercury a year. But the total input from industries around the Mediterranean is no more than 10 tons per year," Keckes said.

"By analyzing samples of 200-year-old fish, we found the same high level of mercury," Keckes said. "So, we conclude the Mediterranean has always had a high level of mercury which had nothing to do with man-made pollution."

The samples were taken from fish, including tuna and swordfish, in several Mediterranean museums.

Keckes, who was in Nairobi attending a meeting of the U.N. agency's Governing Council, said the scientists then began studies to see if anyone in the Mediterranean was affected by mercury-laden fish.

The most natural consumers of fish are fishermen, but Keckes said scientists found they didn't eat very much tuna and swordfish. He said the reason was simple — tuna and swordfish are expensive "so they would try to sell it."

After further studies, he said, the scientists determined that only pregnant women were endangered and should be warned against eating tuna and swordfish.

By lifting the ban, Keckes said, governments will achieve "better harmony" of marine life in the Mediterranean. He said the governments will also help their economies because tuna and swordfish have been lucrative exports in the past.

Donation used to build 12 schools

ROME (AP) — A $46 million donation from the U.S. government will be used to build 12 schools in provinces in southern Italy devastated by an earthquake Nov. 23, officials said.

A statement Wednesday said the schools will have 239 classrooms, as well as gymnasiums, laboratories, and multi-purpose rooms.

Congress appropriated $50 million for relief, but $4 million was spent for operations immediately after the quake, which killed nearly 3,000 and left more than 200,000 homeless.

Little known crop has bright future in Texas

UVALDE, Texas (AP) — More and more farmers in dry Southwest Texas have begun cashing in on rising prices for guar — a little-known, drought-resistant crop that originated in India but whose gum now is found in such diverse U.S. products as ice cream and oil well drilling mud.

Jose G. Pena, area economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, estimates that guar plantings in Southwest Texas jumped from 2,000 acres a year ago to about 19,000 acres this year.

Pena estimates about 70 percent of the Southwest Texas guar crop will produce yields averaging 1,500 to 2,000 pounds an acre from irrigated fields and about 1,200 pounds an acre from dryland fields.

With domestic guar in high demand and its price up 50 percent from a year ago to 15 cents a pound, a farmer can gross $300 an acre if he produces 2,000 pounds an acre.

Guar gum is used in over 400 products, yet the plant is considered a "minor" crop because only 75,000 acres of the drought-tolerant summer annual legume are grown in the United States, most of them in Texas.

OTHER USES of the highly versatile product include whip-and-chill puddings, paints, whipped cream substitutes, cloth and paper sizing, some steak sauces, instant oatmeal, aluminum drink can lining, pharmaceuticals, and as a blood thickener.

But by far its largest use is in mud and fracturing compounds used in the oil-drilling industry because guar thickens these substances and keeps particles in suspension.

Drilling compounds used about 70 percent of more than 70 million metric tons of guar consumed in 1979, with only about a third of the amount coming from U.S. sources, Pena said.

Pena said guar is a little-known and even less understood crop in the United States. The seed contains a rather large endosperm, somewhat of a rarity since most other legumes contain little or no endosperm. The endosperm contains galactomannan gum which forms a thick gel when placed in cold water.

Guar was introduced into the United States in the early 1900s from India, where it is grown for human consumption, cattle feed and as a green manure crop for its soil-building properties.

Commercial production did not begin until the early 1950s in South Texas as the center of production quickly moved to the sandy soils of the rolling plains of Texas and Oklahoma.

Because of climatic problems, guar cannot be successfully grown in areas above 3,000 feet in altitude, so little of the crop is planted on the High Plains.

BECAUSE OF excellent growing conditions in Southwest Texas, the area is considered ideal for guar production, according to Ken Stephens, a representative of the Celanese Corp., one of the few companies actively pursuing the rapidly expanding guar market.

"We feel the future for guar is excellent here," Stephens said. "We hope to have 30,000 acres under contract here within the next two years."

At present, the only two guar processing plants for what is becoming a predominantly Texas crop also are located in Texas. The Celanese Corp.'s Vernon plant is beleved to be the world's largest such facility and the Hinkle Co. operates another guar plant at Kenedy, located 60 miles south of San Antonio .

Stephens said a minimum of 150,000 acres of guar are needed to keep his company's Vernon plant in operation. Eighty percent of that figure normally comes from imported Indian or Pakistani beans, and the remainder from domestic sources, he said.

)But Stephens said his firm prefers to purchase homegrown beans when possible, becuase U.S. beans are of higher quality, come from dependable sources and are much easier to obtain.

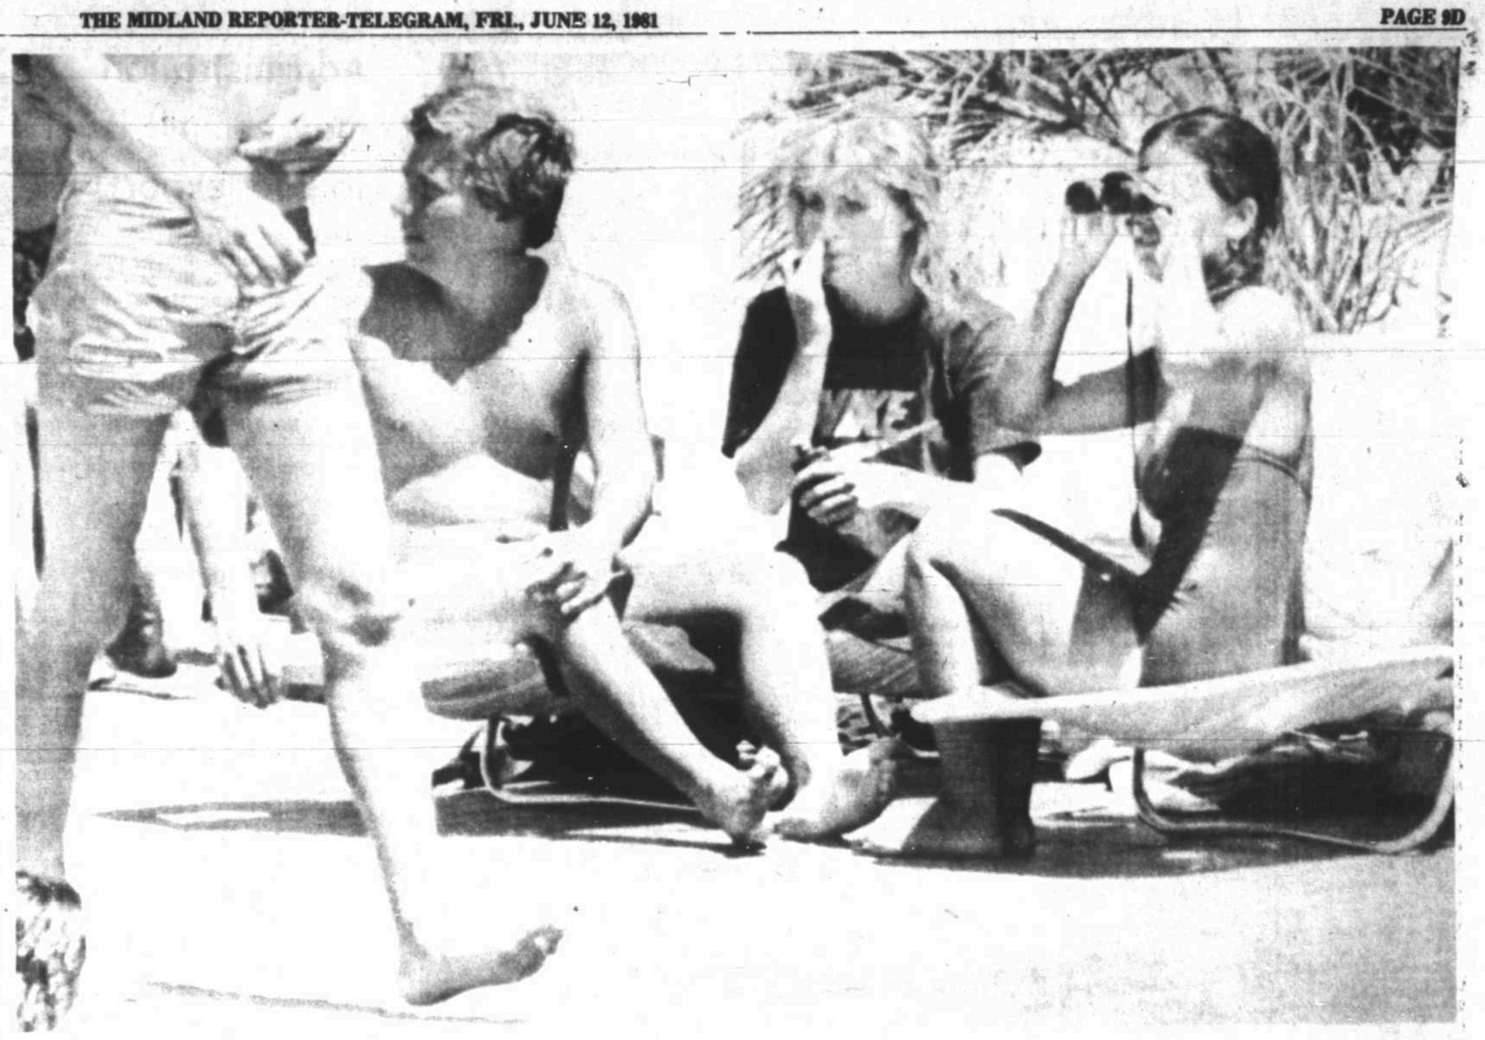

Last year, guar producers were paid $10 a hundred pounds for the beans, plus seed bean growers who passed rigid quality checks received a bonus. This year, prices have escalated by another $5 per hundred pounds.

STEPHENS SAID all guar transactions are strictly on a contract basis, eliminating price drops due to supply-demand fluctuations.

"We're buying all the guar beans we can locate," he said. "Growers are guaranteed a minimum price before seeds go into the ground. During the past 15 years prices have moved upward in fairly steady plateaus with no steep fluctuations like the major crops have experienced."

Pena said guar can be used in most crop rotations because it can increase yields of following crops by as much as 20 percent. But he said caution should be exercised when planting spinach after guar, because studies show that spinach has not performed well planted immediately after a guar crop.

After guar beans are harvested, the foliage can be plowed under as a soil conditioner or grazed by livestock, Pena said.

An Odessa oil-field rig foreman who was injured in the assembly of a rig in Odessa on July 21, 1980, has filed a $10 million products liability suit against Wansley Machine & Welding Service Inc., the Laurel, Miss., company which manufactures and sells rigs.

The foreman, 60-year-old G.W. Ward Sr., was left paralyzed and quadriplegic after an allegedly defective rig gate fell on his head and left him immobile and "totally paralyzed from the neck to his toes," says the petition, which was filed in federal court in Midland by Odessa attorneys Michael McLeaish and Allen Moore.

Ward's contention is that the gate was either defective in design or defective in manufacture, that there were no warning signs on the rig of the dangers of the gate falling and that the gate was without safety devices.

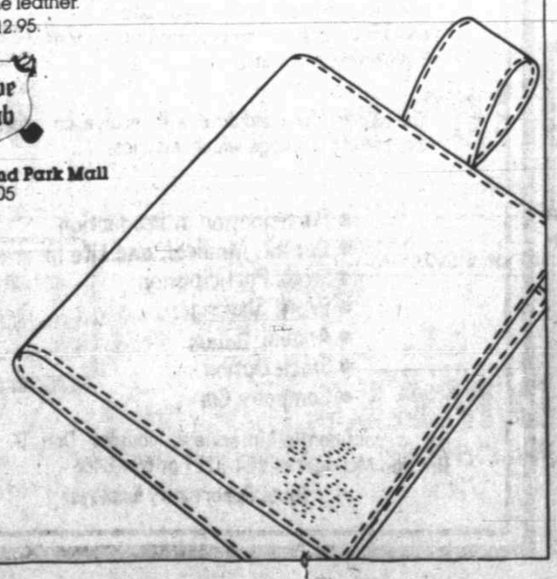

Ward was working for WellTech Inc. at time of the injury. Wansley had manufactured the rig and had sold it to WellTech, the petition claims.

The petition says that Ward was earning $2,200 monthly at time of the injury.

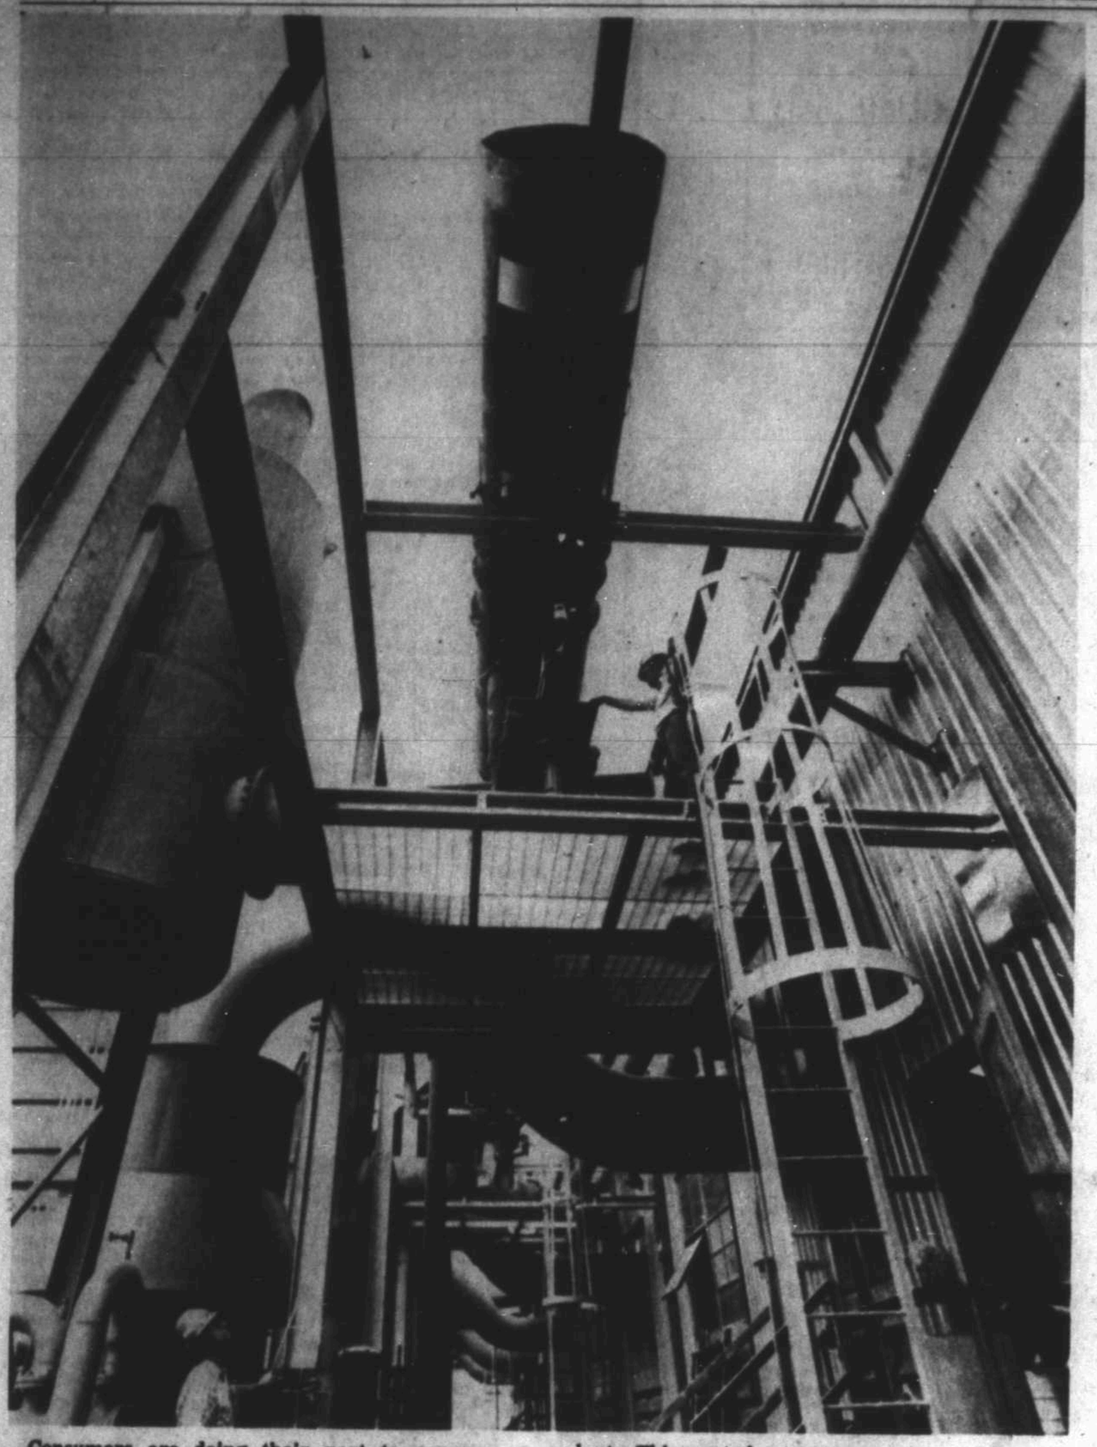

Medical and therapeutic treatment expenses have totaled $29,815, the petition says.

Consumers are doing their part to conserve energy — and so is industry. The production department of Exxon Company, U.S.A., for example is involved in an aggressive program to minimize energy consumption at its natural gas processing plants. This waste heat recovery equipment, being installed at the Katy Gas Plant in Katy is an effort to cut fuel consumption by recovering heat from engine exhaust.

Administration may commit itself to coal exports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, sometimes dubbed the Saudi Arabia of coal, is likely to commit itself to providing stable and adequate supplies of the fuel to foreign customers, an administration source says.

The Reagan administration's coal export policy statement, which is receiving finishing touches, also is likely to call for an interagency task force to examine federal regulations hindering the movement of coal to foreign users, the source said Thursday.

ENERGY
OIL & GAS

President Reagan has not yet approved the statement, which is expected to be released in about a week, said the source, who asked not to be identified by name.

The United States has recoverable coal reserves of an estimated 400 billion tons and is expected to play a key role in meeting worldwide energy demands in the future.

U.S. coal exports reached an all-time high last year of 89.9 million tons, 25.1 million tons more than exported in 1979, said the National Coal Association. Contributing to that surge were increased demand and labor troubles in Poland and Australia.

Total U.S. coal production was 830 million tons in 1980, up from 776 million in 1979, according to figures from the coal association.

The lobbying group forecasts exports of 103 million tons in 1985 and 142 million by 1990.

The coal export policy statement is expected to contain language reaffirming the United States will remain a stable and reliable supplier of coal in future years, said the source.

Barring a national emergency, it is likely to say the United States will maintain coal trade under contractual commitments.

The interagency task force on coal exports probably will be asked to look at federal regulations with an eye toward eliminating disincentives to coal exporting, said the source. In particular, it will try to speed up improvements in port and harbor facilities and transportation systems, he said.

The major industrial nations, meeting at economic summits in 1979 and 1980, underscored the importance of coal in meeting future energy needs.

At last year's summit, the participants agreed to the goal of doubling coal production and use by the early 1990s. They also agreed to encourage the long-term commitments by coal users and suppliers and to make any domestic improvements needed to insure the supply and use of coal.

A report by the congressional Office of Technology Assessment earlier this year warned that U.S. coal trading partners were concerned about the lack of deep-draft harbors on the East Coast to accommodate larger and more competitive coal carriers. They also were concerned about the limitations on port and ship-handling capacity, loading facilities and transportation costs, it said.

"The United States simply does not have sufficient capacity in the federal navigation system to handle deep-draft coal colliers," said J. Ron Brinson, executive vice president of the American Association of Port Authorities.

The Office of Technology reportsaid noneof the major U.S. harbors can fully load the new generation of coal-carrying ships of 150,000 tons.

"None of the major U.S. coal ports can now fully load ships over 80,000 tons, and larger ships now entering these ports must depart with a partial load," said the report, prepared for Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md. "Newer ships are tending toward the larger sizes because most of the rest of the world's major coal ports are deep-draft."

Brinson blamed federal regulations for hindering the dredging of ports to deeper levels to accommodate the larger colliers. He estimated it takes 20 to 25 years to complete a major dredging project.

"We are not proposing we jeopardize" rules that protect the environment, he said. "It simply shouldn't take that long."

Also seen as hindering the expansion of coal exports is the limited capacity to store and load coal at ports. Because of that, ships are forced to wait for their tonnage.

Demurrage costs due to waiting are said to run as high as $10,000 a day per ship, adding an average of about $6 to $6.50 per ton to the cost of shipping coal abroad, according to a recent Commerce Department report.

Arkla interstate pipeline approved

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co. probably will appeal a federal agency's approval to build a natural gas pipeline from Oklahoma to Arkansas, Arkla president Sheffield Nelson says.

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission approved Thursday the 285-mile gas pipeline from McAlester, Okla., to near Searcy.

The pipeline will carry as much as 170 million cubic feet of gas a day from the Arkhoma Basin, along the Oklahoma-Arkansas border. At Searcy, it will connect with a long-line transmission line that will carry gas to other areas.

Ozark Gas Pipeline Corp., a wholly owned subsidiary of Texas Oil and Gas Corp., will operate the pipeline, which is owned by Texas Oil and Gas and three other companies.

"We are very pleased with the ruling," said Charles Williams of Dallas, a vice president for Texas Oil and Gas Corp. He said the corporation has been trying to get approval of the pipeline for three years.

Arkla, which pumps gas from the field, opposes the Ozark pipeline on the grounds that there is no need for another east-west pipeline from the Arkhoma Basin, Nelson said.

Nelson said Arkla will evaluate Thursday's order, but he said he believes the company will pursue the matter in the courts.

Williams said appeals could delay the final decision on construction for several months.

Nelson said the federal agency's ruling seems inconsistent with the commission staff's recommendation on another pipeline from the Arkhoma Basin. He said the staff was opposed to the Trailblazer pipeline, which he described as similar to the proposed Ozark pipeline. The Trailblazer pipeline would carry gas from the basin further south, Nelson said.

Williams said as many as 60 wells have been drilled in the Arkhoma Basin, but the wells are not producing because there is no connection for a pipeline.

He said the pipeline should encourage exploration in the basin. "We think there is a lot of natural gas yet to be discovered in the basin. It should increase natural gas supplies."

Besides Texas Oil and Gas, the partners are ONEOK Inc., formerly Oklahoma Oil and Gas Co., Columbia Gas System Inc., and Tenneco Inc.

District 8 files three wildcats

ECTOR COUNTY

Andover Oil Co. of Tulsa has scheduled two 10,500-foot wildcats in Ector County, 23 miles north-northwest of Crane.

Both projects are located in section 29, block B-16 of the Public School Lands survey.

The No. 2 A.B. Campbell "29" is 2,310 feet from the north line and 1,787 feet from the west line of the section and is located just south of the Sonny B field.

The project is also 3 1/4 miles south of a 9,675-foot project abandoned March 24, 1946.

The No. 3 A.B. Connell "29" is 2,310 feet from the north line and 990 feet from the east line of the section and is south of the Jordan South field.

REEVES COUNTY

American Public Energy of Dallas has amended the No. 1 J.B. Southern Heirs et al to 6,500 feet in Reeves County, 25 miles west of Pecos.

The firm had originally filed for a depthof 5,500 feet.

Budget cuts change DOE prosecutions

By MARLENE CIMONS
(c) 1981, The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration's proposed spending cuts and policy changes in the Department of Energy would make it impossible to prosecute oil companies for $7 billion in alleged illegal overcharges, according to a report approved by a Democratic-controlled House committee.

The report, adopted 22-15 by Democrat members of the House Government Operations committee over the opposition of the Republicam minority, said that the administration's proposed actions were "suggestive of a grant of amnesty" for the country's major oil companies.

The report said that an attempt by the administration to slash the budget of the department's Office of Special Counsel by 80 percet to $6 million — reducing its staff from 612 to 120 — would substantially cripple its ability to litigate $7 billion in alleged past pricing violations by the nation's 35 largest oil companies.

The report also criticized an administration decision to "review" a regulation governing how oil companies pass costs on to consumers.

Republicans on the committee reacted angrily to the report, which was written by the committee's subcommittee on environment, energy and natural resources, chaired by Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn.

"This is a highly partisan report with only one intent: to embarrass the Reagan administration," said Rep. Joel H. Deckard, R-Ind., the subcommittee's ranking Republican member. "In fact, anyone who studied the report would find it nothing more than an intellectual embarrassment of the majority (Democratic) members of the committee."

Midland oil firm finals Nolan test

Gage & Company of Midland has completed the No. 1 Jahew Jameson "E", as a location northeast extension of the James, North (Strawn oil) field of Nolan County, 19 miles west of Blackwell.

The well has a pumping potential of 11 barrels of 46 gravity oil per day with a gas to oil ratio of 5454 to 1, from perforations at 6,081 to 6,176 feet.

Drilled to 7,191 feet it was plugged back to 6,319 feet and a ground level elevation of 2,438 feet.

CPII acquires new subsidiary

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — Consolidated Petroleum Industries Inc. Thursday announced the completion of its acquisition of Western Mud Co., a supplier of drilling fluids and services in major oil and gas basins of the Rocky Mountains.

The newest subsidiary has six offices in addition to a main office in Casper, Wyo., and a sales office in Denver. It has annual sales of about $8 million.

Jack W. Young, president and chief executive officer of CPII, described the acquisition as "an important step in our continuing effort to bring about the rapid development of CPII's new core businesses."

Wildcats planned in Borden, Motley, outpost in Lubbock

Wildcats were scheduled in Borden and Motley counties along with an outpost in Lubbock in District 8-A of the Texas Railroad Commission.

BORDEN COUNTY

Aminoil U.S.A. Inc. of Midland will drill the No. 1-159 Everett, an 8,765-foot wildcat in Borden County, 1/2-mile southeast of the opener and lone producer of the Wicker (Strawn oil) field and 10 miles southeast of Gail.

Location is 990 feet from the south line and 660 feet from the west line of section 159, block 25 of the H&TC survey.

Texana Resources Corp. of Dallas has scheduled a 10,000-foot wildcat in Borden County, 14 miles northwest of Gail.

Designated the No. 2 Vettrup, the location is 660 feet from the south line and 660 feet from the east line of section 35, block 32, T-6-N of the DL&RR survey and 2 1/2 miles northeast of the 10,026 Allen Turner, abandoned Nov. 5, 1948.

MOTLEY COUNTY

Koch Exploration Co. of Midland will drill the No. 1 Matador Cattle Co., a 3,500-foot wildcat in Motley County, 14 miles east of Roaring Springs.

LUBBOCK COUNTY

Texland, Rector & Schumacher of Fort Worth will drill the No. 4 Lubbock Country Club, as a 1/2-mile southwest outpost in a one-well southeast extension area of the Edmission (Clearfork) field of Lubbock County, one mile north of Lubbock.

Location is 1,594 feet from the north and 1,840 from the east lines of section 78, block A of the TTRR survey. Contract depth is 5,250 feet.

YOAKUM COUNTY

Osborne Oil Co. of Dallas will drill the No. 1 Noble, a 11,500-foot wildcat, in Yoakum County, 13 miles northeast of Denver City.
