In this age of modern wonders, a new surgical procedure has been reported which renders the most deadly snake harmless.

The operation is performed on the snake's venom duct and leaves the reptile incapable of injecting venom into its victim.

According to the University of Utah, which was involved in the research of this project, even the bite of a puff adder leaves nothing more than a couple of puncture wounds which can be treated with an ordinary first aid kit.

Of course this new development is of little value, unless the snakes carry signs advertising the fact that they have had their venom ducts clipped. Even then, it is doubtful that many would volunteer to test the results. They do report that this type of surgery has the wholehearted support of zoo keepers.

The Texas Insurance Advisory Commission has sent out its annual reminder that Christmas decorations increase the danger of home fires.

Such fires now usually stem from electric decorations, but fire hazards have been associated with the Christmas season for centuries. Back in the olden days, candles were used for lighting and the Christmas usually meant that some of them would be burning near flamable decorations.

Of course everything should be checked throughly when it is hooked up, and safety experts recomend that all electric decorations be disconnected before the family retires for the night.

Woody Hayes, the vociferous football coach at Ohio State University who complained bitterly about the officiating in his teams' loss to Michigan, has never been a Dale Carnegie type. He was quoted once as saying that football coaches should forget about making friends.

"When you're losing, you won't have any friends, anyway, and when you are winning, you don't need any," Hayes said.

In case you haven't heard the latest, the common cold still is the most frequent and most costly ailment in this country. From 30 to 50 percent of all work time lost and from 60 to 80 percent of all school time lost is attributed to cold infections. And where do most people catch colds? At home, the researchers say. —WACIL McNAIR.

AFTER MONTHS OF BITTER WRANGLING

Berlin Wall Treaty Inked

By HUBERT J. ERB
Associated Press Writer

BERLIN (AP) — Eastern and Western negotiators signed two long-sought agreements today providing unrestricted West German access to Communist-Encircled Berlin and permitting West Berliners to cross the wall into East Berlin.

The agreements, reached after months of often bitter wrangling, are part of a package implementing the Sept. 3 accord among the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union over the status of Berlin.

The package brings the divided Geran a big—if tenuous—step closer together while giving the Communist regime in East Germany unprecedented, if still indirect, recognition.

And, it paves the way for a final protocol among the Four Powers on the fate of the city they have ruled since the collapse of the Third Reich at the end of World War II.

For those eligible for visits among the two million West Berliners, the inner city pact means that for the first time since the 1961 Communist wall sealed off their city they will be able to look forward to going east in a steady if restricted stream.

The agreement, however, still leaves the one million East Berliners shut in.

Both of today's agreements must still be approved by the Four Powers, but this is regarded as a formality.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said in behalf of the United States:

"While we have been consulted fully during the course of these negotiations, final approval must await a review of the texts by the governments concerned."

"With the signature of the protocol by competent German authorities," he added, "we are ready to sign at any time thereafter."

The agreement permitting unrestricted West German access to Berlin was signed by West German state secretary Egon Bahr and East German State Secretary Michael Kohl.

The Berlin Wall agreement was signed by Ulrich Mueller, West Berlin chancery chief, and Guenter Kohrt, an East German state secretary.

Published versions of the official text showed that while West Berliners will have permanent opportunity to visit the eastern portion of the city, the East Germans will exercise careful controls on travel to the west.

Each eligible West Berliner may have 30 days a year of visits to East Berlin or other parts of East Germany. But he may not use his car when going to East Berlin or to East Germany unless he is traveling at least 62 miles into the countryside. Exceptions include familes with children under 3.

In cases of visits from relatives, East Germans must first notify authorities that relatives from West Germany are coming. Other visits are classified as tourists visits and may be directly applied for in the west.

Excluded from visiting East Germany are persons who have violated East German Law, including all those persons who fled from East Germany after the Communists put up the wall in August 1961.

The restrictions, especially regarding refugees and the ban on cars, have prompted sharp criticism from West Berliners and debate inside City Hall. The opposition Christian Democrats have announced they will seek a no confidence vote against West Berlin Mayor Klaus Schuetz, charging him with agreeing to unacceptable terms.

COLD CONE NO PROBLEM — Eight-year-old Douglas Moore can now enjoy an ice cream cone without having to put up with the serious after effects he formerly had. Douglas suffered hypersensitivity to cold and his lips would swell when he attempted to eat and enjoy an ice cream cone. Douglas suffered fainting spells and vomiting and his feet swelled and covered with hives after wading in a mountain stream. Treatment with daily doses of a drug, cyproheptadine, at National Jewish Hospital in Denver has combatted the extreme sensitivity to cold. (AP Wirephoto)

Packard Resigns

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today accepted with "deepest regret" the resignation of Deputy Secretary of Defense David Packard, effective Monday.

The White House said Nixon has greatly valued Packard's "candid and forthright" service and outspoken views and the resignation did not indicate any difference in views with the President or his administration.

The multimillionaire Packard had for 35 months in his post tried to reshape military buying policies into a less costly mold.

Packard, in a letter to the President Friday, said he was leaving "for strictly personal reasons." And he told the President "I am certain the American people will re-elect you in 1972 so that you can continue your great work for peace and stability both at home and abroad."

Packard said he wanted to help with the job of re-electing Nixon in '72.

SIGNS TAX CUT BILL

Nixon Gives Taxpayers Early Christmas Gift

By ROBERT L. CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Calling it "a Christmas tree with something for all the people," President Nixon has signed into law a bill cutting individual, business and consumer taxes by $15.8 billion over the next three years.

The most immediate result of Friday's presidential approval was to make an estimated three million new-car buyers over the last four months eligible for refunds averaging $200. The bill repeals the 7 per cent automobile excise tax retroactive to Aug. 16.

That was the day Nixon proposed the legislation as part of his new economic program to spur the economy.

The President described the bill as a "critical part" of his program, one that would "benefit the economy and benefit all Americans."

Before it reached his desk, however, Nixon forced a delay in the starting date of part of the bill calling for a campaign-financing plan that would allow each taxpayer to earmark $1 of his income taxes for the party of his choice, or to be placed in a general presidential-campaign fund. All parties would profit from the provision, but Democratspushedforthemeasure to start by 1972 to ease their money pinch.

To avert a threatened Nixon veto, Congress delayed the starting date of the plan until 1976, but the White House has promised an effort next year to repeal the provision.

Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler noted the President also had the option of vetoing a later appropriations bill necessary to implement the plan.

As reworked during its four-month journey through Congress, the bill gives more tax cuts to individuals and fewer to corporations than Nixon originally sought.

Bombers Hit Belfast Store

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Christmas shoppers screamed in terror today as bombers blew up a crowded furniture store in Belfast's Protestant Shankill Road during the midday rush hour.

Police said four persons perished in the wrecked building, including two children, one of them in a baby carriage.

At least 19 were injured by the blast and hit by flying debris as the furniture store, a former movie theater, blew up.

The explosion brought Northern Ireland's death toll this year to 162.

Shoppers and pedestrians clawed at the rubble of the blasted building with their bare hands, searching for survivors. Ambulances carried the wounded—many with their faces cut and bleeding—to hospitals.

Mechanical shovels, mounted on bulldozers, were called in to search the debris for trapped victims.

The noon hour explosion came a week after a terror bomb in a Roman Catholic tavern killed 16 persons. British army officers feared the blast in the Protestant-owned Balmoral Furnishing Co. could be a deadly revenge raid by the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

"My God, this is just like the wartime blitz," said a British army sergeant digging in the debris.

Earlier, a clash between British troops and late night revelers in a crowded Belfast dance hall had sent Northern Ireland's toll of violent death higher.

A 25-year-old man died in a hospital from wounds after a military patrol, said to be under intensive pressure from a crowd, opened fire inside the hall.

Conflicting versions of the incident were given by army headquarters and by some of the 300 people who attended the dance in the heart of Belfast's Ardoyne Roman Catholic stronghold.

The army said the troops had entered the hall to search for a wanted man.

The military said the soldiers, "under vicious attack", fired into the roof of the hall to warn off their assailants and extricate themselves. Men and women at the dance charged the troops panicked and opened fire indiscriminately.

Two soldiers were injured in the fracas. Police said three civilians, one a girl, were treated for undisclosed injuries at Belfast's Mater Hospital The hospital refused to say if the casualties suffered bullet wounds.

Truck Tags To Be Discussed

There will be a meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Snyder Savings and Loan Association building to discuss new laws for 1972 registration of truck-tractors of one ton or over and semi-trailers with a gross weight in excess of 6,000 pounds.

The meeting is being sponsored by the Scurry County Tax Assessor-Collector's office and the Lubbock office of the motor vehicle division of the Texas Highway Department.

A representative of the Highway Department will conduct the meeting. It is open to the public. Owners of such vehicles are especially urged to attend.

"It is to the owner's advantage to attend the meeting," explained Don Adams, tax assessor-collector.

Christmas Passes Out

BONN, Germany (AP) — Egon Bahr, West Germany's chief Berlin negotiator, said today there would "with certainty" not be Christmas passes for West Berliners through the Berlin Wall.

Bahr, who initialed the agreement with East Germany on access to the divided city, told a news conference there wasn't enough time left for technical preparations by the East Germans. He said the East Germans had let him know that Dec. 6 was the last starting date for preparations.

"Despite efforts by both sides to complete the agreement, we did not finish in time," he added.

With the initialing, there were reports that the Communists might still issue wall passes for Christmas.

West Berlin City Hall sources pointed out that the first wall pass period agreement at Christmas, 1963, was implemented Dec. 19 after agreement Dec. 17.

Indian Troops Are Advancing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New Delhi spokesman claimed today Indian infantrymen in helicopters are advancing on Dacca from a river bridgehead 36 miles northeast of the East Pakistani capital.

He declined to say how far the Indian columns have advanced but reported they were moving southward on a main road from Bhaira Bazar, near the bridgehead the Indian army carved out Friday on the west bank of the Meghna River.

Another column was advancing toward Dacca after crossing a river obstacle east of Jessore, 90 miles southwest of the provincial capital, he added.

The spokesman claimed 1,800 Pakistani soldiers had been captured in the past 24 hours and the Indian army was advancing against little opposition.

The Indian army commander renewed his appeal to the Pakistani army to surrender, but it apparently still was under orders to stand fast.

Some Indian soldiers were about 22 miles southeast of Dacca, but they were on the other side of the broad Meghna River.

Pakistan still insisted that all important towns in East Pakistan were under its control and that an Indian attack 1,000 miles away in Kashmir had been repulsed and 300 Indian troops slain.

Radio Pakistan said that Indian helicopters landed troops behind the lines at Khulna in East Pakistan today, but claimed the entire Indian force was wiped out by Pakistani troops aided by the local population. No casualty figures were given.

Radio Pakistan also said Maj. Gen. Farman Ali, military adviser to the East Pakistani governor, had asked the United Nations to help end the war, arrange for the repatriation of Pakistani soldiers to West Pakistan and to help set up a new provincial government.

Red Chinese Majoring In Irritation At UN

By SHIRLEY CHRISTIAN
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Communist Chinese took their seats in the United Nations a month ago—with polite smiles and handshakes.

They have raised hackles ever since.

They urged U.N. members to shelve a pet Soviet proposal, blamed India for the Pakistan crisis and clashed head-on with a U.N. institution—the ambassador of Saudi Arabia.

They criticized the United States and other Western nations for their quality veto—an honor for their fellow Communist giant.

U. N. exchanges between the Arabs and Israelis, Indians and Pakistanis are mild compared with those that have occurred between the hulking Jacob Malik of the U.S.S.R. and China's silver-haired Chiao Kuan-hua and round-faced Huang Hua. Huang and Chiao seemingly dived into the fray with glee, and Malik treated them like schoolboys with a lot to learn.

On Nov. 15 Malik welcomed China into the General Assembly as "comrade." Things soon degenerated into "mister." That is not very polite by either U.N. or Communist standards.

"As for Mr. Huang," said Malik during the Security Council marathon on Pakistan, "if he wishes to call me mister I am quite prepared to call him mister, if he prefers to be a mister."

Such words as slander, lies, Socialist betrayal, and Socialist imperialism flew back and forth.

The Chinese said the world is divided between the two big powers and all the rest of the countries.

Malik, saying it is divided between socialism and imperialismn rejected China's claim that Russia practices both.

"Social imperialism is as great an absurdity as fried ice," he said.

In his first speech, Chiao, Peking's deputy foreign minister, took the assembly floor and attacked imperialism, colonialism and "superpowers."

He demanded that the United States get out of Indochina and quit its military support of Taiwan. He gave China's backing to Arab countries in the Middle East.

U.S. Ambassador George Bush assailed the initial Chinese statement as "empty cannons of rhetoric," then stepped aside in the dispute.

Chiao infuriated Malik by urging the assembly on Nov. 24 not to put to a vote the Soviet proposal to call a world disarmament conference of all nations. The Chinese delegate said the conference lacked a clear aim and would just become "a permanent club for endless discussions."

Malik said that only China and the United States had voiced opposition to the Soviet proposal.

"Thus the assembly has had an opportunity to witness a curious Sino-American duet of negativism," the Soviet delegate observed.

Huang, China's permanent U.N. representative, threw "duet" back at Malik, saying: "The representatives of the Soviet Union and India are singing a duet openly trumpeting for the dismemberment of Pakistan."

Malik retorted: "He has repeated here my word 'duet', but that is not original; he might perhaps have invented something new."

Huang compared Indian aims in East Pakistan with Japan's Manchukuo government in Manchuria before World War II. He accused Russia of being India's boss, and he warned Malik to beware of history.

Malik argued that the "decisive victory" of the U.S.S.R. liberated that part of China.

Later, Malik said war criminals had been hanged elsewhere, "but in China they became librarians."

Malik admonished Huang to improve his behavior and to consider how their behavior looked to the outside world.

"The Chinese representative, with his vicious, pathological slander against the Soviet Union," said Malik, "is aspiring in the principal organ of the United Nations to the role of an imperialist jester.

"He is amusing the imperialists with his malicious slander against the Soviet Union. Now, the imperialists have nothing more to do in this particular realm. They have a reliable spokesman."

Huang voted against Russia's Pakistan-India cease-fire resolution, but it did not count as a veto because the measure lacked a majority. Huang did not force China's proposal to a vote—and a Malik veto.

Huang explained his "no" vote with the charge that India had committed aggression with Soviet connivance. Malik several times broke out in laughter and interrupted the Chinese representative.

The next time Malik spoke, Huang responded with laughter.

The most formidable opponent for China may turn out to be Ambassador Jamil Baroody of Saudi Arabia who has been loved, feared and tolerated by his colleagues for 25 years.

Baroody is a brilliant speaker who can digress from the subject at hand. He is not accustomed to being talked back to—even by big powers.

Four days after China was seated, Baroody wandered into a committee disarmament discussion, and said he was shocked that China had just set off a nuclear test.

An Chih-yuan, the Chinese delegate present, replied that China's nuclear weapons were for self-defense, and that he denounced Baroody's attack.

"I did not denounce anybody," replied the surprised Baroody. "I can denounce him, but I do not want to denounce him: I am appealing to him."

Another Chinese delegate, Chen Chu, hurried to An's assistance. He said that whether Baroody was making an accusation or an appeal China rejected it.

"They're sensitive," the Saudi Arabian commented outside the hall.

He was not frightened off. Last weekend he scolded Malik and Huang for fighting and laughing while the Security Council tried to do something about India-Pakistan.

"Is it a tragicomedy, while people are suffering in the millions and there is war going on?" he asked. "How are we to expect any clear thinking on the part of those who indulge in vituperation and incrimination?"

When the issue went to the assembly he said other delegations knew by heart what China and the Soviet Union were saying in their "marathon of invective."

"We have had enough. We cannot take it any more," said Baroody. "If they call each other traitors and betrayers, what have they left to call us capitalists?"

Jean Andrews Wasson, a former Snyder resident, was honored with a special day in Corpus Christi recently following publication of her book, "Sea Shells of the Texas Coast."

Mrs. Wasson, who, among other things, teaches art at Ray High School in Corpus Christi, cleaned and photographed hundreds of shells for the book, which was published by The University of Texas Press.

The book has been hailed as one of the foremost contributions to the academic world in its field. As a result, Mayor Ronnie Sizemore proclaimed Nov. 7 as Jean Andrews Wasson Day in Corpus Christi.

Mrs. Wasson resided in Snyder from 1950 to 1956. While here, she was active in the Altrurian Daughters Study Club, the Snyder Garden Club and was president of the Medical Auxiliary. Escapee Is Caught

HOUSTON (AP) — Harris County sheriff's officers recaptured on Saturday Ronald Wayne Mitchell, 20, who escaped from the courthouse Nov. 20.

Officers arrested Mitchell at a Houston apartment.

Mitchell was one of two county prisoners who escaped during jury selection for their trial.

He had escaped with Willie Earl Ratliff. Both were charged with murder in the Aug. 19 death of Willie J. Prevost, 32, who was found locked in the trunk of his car after a robbery.

Prevost subsequently died from the effects of 200 degree temperatures inside the trunk.

Police said Mitchell and Ratliff were in the county courthouse awaiting trial when they slugged bailiff C. V. Miller, 64, locked him in a holdover cell, and fled.

Ratliff was recaptured Dec. 3.

Peace Resolution Circulated

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — (AP) — A resolution was circulated to the U.N. General Assembly today calling for renewed Egyptian-Israeli peace talks without requiring Israel to make a prior pledge to withdraw fro all Egyptian territory.

The resolution, sponsored by Barbados, expressed support for proposals from African heads of state that Egypt and Israel should accept the point that "secure and recognized boundaries" should be determined in a peace agreement.

It was a counter to a broadly sponsored African resolution calling for reactivation of the peace talks and also calling upon Israel in effect to pledge withdrawal from all Egyptian territory.

mitted that resolution Thursday.

A third resolution, also circulated today, asked Egypt and Israel "to agree to renew negotiations . . . and to do their utmost to make possible the agreements necessary" for a Middle East settlement. It urged them to study the African proposals "with the greatest care." The sponsors were Costa Rica and Uruguay.

CHICAGO (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson announced today he has resigned as head of Operation Breadbasket, the economic arm of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, in a dispute with its directors.

The young minister was suspended Dec. 3 for 60 days without pay by the SCLC's executive board which charged him with "administrative impropriety" and violations of SLC policies.

The dispute peaked when two corporations were formed allegedly without approval of the SLC national board to operate Black Expo, an annual exhibition of black business and cultural achievements.

It was not immediately clear what Jackson's future relationship to the SCLC at large would be.

Darrell Moore of the state narcotics division said 16 of those indicted were on probation for previous offenses.

PILOT RESCUED

U.S. Bomber Is Shot Down

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese surface-to-air missile batteries shot down the first U. S. fighter-bomber in more than eight months, but a rescue effort involving 40 aircraft plucked the injured pilot from behind enemy lines today. A second crewman is missing.

The U.S. 7th Air Force search and rescue armada flew through what the U. S. Command described as intense SAM and antiaircraft fire and attacked the sites inside North Vietnam several times.

At least four more of the 37-foot Soviet-made SAMs were fired at the search planes, which were in action from the time the fighter-bomber was shot down shortly before noon Friday until 8:30 this morning.

The pilot, Maj. Robert E. Belli, of Philadelphia, Pa., spent the time in jungled, mountainous terrain along the North Vietnamese-Laotian border. He suffered a broken left arm and torn ligaments of the right knee.

Fighter-bombers roamed overhead during the night, giving him an umbrella of protection. Poor visibility forced a postponement of his pickup until this morning.

M. Sgt. Leon Fullwood, of Scott Air Force Base, Ill., was lowered from a hovering rescue helicopter to pick up Belli.

Belli was flown to his home base at Korat, Thailand, and was reported in good condition at a military hospital.

It was one of the biggest rescue efforts of the Indochina war. Spokesmen described the region as a "high-threat" area where North Vietnam has increased its antiaircraft weaponry in efforts to protect its Ho Chi Minh trail supply route from heavy U.S. bombing strikes.

Belli's F105 had the mission of presenting itself as a target to antiaircraft defenses to protect other bombers attacking the Ho Chi Minh trail network. The jet, called a Wild Weasel, went down about two to three miles from the North Vietnamese border.

The plane was escorting other bombers on strikes near the Mu Gia Pass, about 85 miles north of the demilitarized zone, a key entry point for North Vietnamese trucks and war materiels entering the Ho Chi Minh trail for the push 255 miles southward into Cambodia and outh Vietnam.

The Wild Weasel is loaded with top secret electronics equipment to pick up the signal of North Vietnamese radar tracking and computing the speed of U.S. planes preparatory to unleashing a SAM.

A second F105 on the mission at the radar site, but the results were not known. The results of at least five other U.S. attacks on North Vietnamese antiaircraft defenses also were not known, the Command said.

It said no other U.S. aircraft were hit.

Tax Cut And Extended Powers Highlight Week

By LINDAY RUBEY
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) President Nixon signed a bill reducing taxes this past week and the House passed legislation to extend his economic control powers as the Pay Board and Price Commission took significant actions.

The Federal Reserve Board Friday approved another cut in the discount rate for four Federal Reserve banks, reducing it to 4½ per cent from 4¾ per cent.

President Nixon signed a bill Friday cutting individual and business taxes by $15.8 billion over three years and called it a "full employment measure" that will create jobs and more purchasing power.

The House supported the President's request for a full extension of his economic control powers through April 30, 1973, by passing legislation to that effect.

Another provision of the bill would require retroactive payment of previously negotiated raises stopped by the 90-day wage-price freeze with certain qualifications.

The Pay Board approved a labor contract for railroad signalmen which called for raises of 46 per cent over 42 months beginning in January.

It was the second major wage contract approved by the board which exceeded its guidelines.

The commission gave U.S. Steel Corp. an average price increase of 3.6 per cent. However, the commission dismissed a product-by-product consideration for price hikes and said the company could increase some items more and some less a long as it maintains a 3.6 per cent average.

The commission explained its action was meant to give the company "flexibility" in pricing certain products. Industry observers said the ruling meant U.S. Steel could increase prices as much as 4 per cent or 4.2 cent on certain key steel products. U.S. Steel had no immediate comment on its plans.

Two weeks ago U.S. Steel asked the commission for an 8.6 per cent price increase on certain products. Although never officially identified, they were believed to be sheet metal items.

In other actions this week the Price Commission approved a variety of coal price increases that in some cases were only about half of what the producers asked for.

The commission had warned the coal companies they wouldn't be allowed to pass on to customers all of their 15 per cent first-year wage-and-benefit labor contract settlement approved by the Pay Board.

Carl E. Bagge, president of the National Coal Association, called the commission decision "short-sighted."

Bagge asked the commission to re-examine its decision and said if it didn't the ruling might be appealed through the courts.

Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson said the administration had known it would have to accept very large wage increases in coal, aerospace, railroads and several other industries at the outset of Phase 2.

Hodgson explained that contracts in the industries were aimed at maintaining "parallel relations that have been established over the years" between these workers and other groups.

"What we have to do is make sure there is no breakthrough above past pattersn and then gradually bring the pattern down," added.

He also predicted the country should be able to asertain the success of President Nixon's program by the end of March. He added that it was unlikely controls would end next summer before the elections.

Henry Ford II, chairman of Ford Motor Co., sharply criticized the Pay Board and Price Commission for helping to create a "depressing" uncertainty that was holding back the economic recovery." He said the early decisions of the Pay Board present a "real risk" that the program could produce a profit squeeze that would undermine 1972 economic growth.

In other developments this past week, U.S. Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans said the Soviet Union wants to complete long-term contracts for the sale of natural gas, oil, chrome, titanium, tin, timber and other resources to the United States.

But Stans also said the discussion of cthe arrangments were still in a very early stage. He declined, too, to predict how soon President Nixon might authorize U.S. export-import bank credits to the Soviet Union or other Eastern European countries.

General Motors Corp., the world's largest industrial corporation, named Richard C. Gerstenberg to succeed James M. Roche as chairman and chief executive officer. Gerstenberg rose through the financial ranks of GM and will continue to hold the post of chairman of GM's finance committee.

Senate Sustains Antipoverty Veto

By JOE HALL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats have denounced President Nixon's veto of the antipoverty bill as hysterical, but failed by seven votes in an effort to overturn the veto.

The vote Friday night was 51 to 36 in favor of overriding the veto. Fifty-eight were needed with 87 senators on hand.

The result left the $6 billion bill, with its broad child development and day-care provision, dead for this session.

It would have extended antipoverty programs for two years and authorized funding.

But the programs will continue because Congress provided $741 million for the Office of Economic Opportunity, the chief poverty-fighting agency, in a supplemental money bill sent to Nixon also Friday. This will carry OEO through next June 30.

Nixon's denunciation of the child-care provision in his veto message and the Democrats' bitter replies seem to leave little room for compromise in the 1972 session.

The administration made it clear it prefers to deal with child care through a much less costly provision in the welfare reform bill.

This bill passed the House in June and the Senate Finance Committee has said it will act on it early next year.

It includes a section to provide day care for children of welfare mothers so they could take jobs. It would cost an estimated $750 million a year compared with $2 billion for the program in the vetoed bill.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., floor manager for the vetoed measure, said there was nothing in the bill that would weaken the family relationship as Nixon's veto message charged. Nixon opposed the child-care provision because, he said, it would take the caring of children away from the family.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., author of the child development section of the bill, emphasized that use of the day-care centers by parents would have been completely voluntary. Also, he said, parents would have served on local council's supervising the programs.

Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., told the Democrats: "I warned you all along this bill was in trouble."

He said it would have been completely unworkable to allow communities as small as 5,000 in population to set up day-care centers.

Dominick and some other Republicans said, however, the legislation could be revived and worked out in an acceptable form next year, if there were a will to do so.

Russians Touring Farms

DE WITT, Neb. (AP) — Soviet Agricultural Minister Vladimir V. Matskevich had a problem with the American system of weights and measures when he led an eight-man Russian agricultural delegation on tour of a Nebraska hog farm.

He said through an interpreter that he was having trouble "trying to translate everything they are telling us about these animals into the metric system.

"It is sometimes very confusing to understand," he addedm

Matskevich and his party visited the Waldo Hog Farm near De Witt on Friday as they began a 10-day tour of rural America following earlier conferences in Washington.

The group also visited a tractor-testing laboratory at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

"Our general impression of this is very good," Matskevich said after his tour. "We saw beautiful animals and the facilities are good. They are simple, quiet and clean."

The Russians presented their hosts with several gifts following the hour-long tour, cincluding a bronze medallion commemorating Soviet space achievements. In return, Matskevich received a "Nebraska No. 1" pin, in honor of Nebraska's top-ranked college football team.

Pope Paul VI Issues Schedule

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI will say three Masses on Christmas Day and deliver his Christmas message to the world at noon, a Vatican spokesman says.

The Pontiff's schedule for New Year's Day has not been decided yet, spokesman Federico Alessandrini said Friday. It tentatively includes a Solemn Mass in St. Peter's Basilica and a speech on peace.

On Christmas Eve, the 74-year-old pontiff will say the traditional midnight Mass for the cardinals and diplomats in the Sistine Chapel. On Christmas morning he will say a Mass in St. Peter's Square or inside the basilica, depending on the weather. During the day he will visit and say a third Mass at a Rome parish.

Language Separates U. S. And England

By DAVID LANCASHIRE
BAssociated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — "A lorry pranged the banger in the boot and I hadn't the readies to get it out of the ricky, so do you fancy taking the tube to the cinema or slipping round to the local for a pint?"

That's the kind of overheard remark that can make an American tourist in London think something's gone wrong with his ears. It means, as anyone who took English lessons before coming over here might be able to figure out:

"A truck smashed into the trunk of my car and I didn't have the money to fix it, so do you want to take the subway to the movies or go to the neighborhood bar for a beer?"

George Bernard Shaw, the "My Fair Lady" playwright, once mused that what separated the United States from Britain wasn't the Atlantic Ocean, it was the English language. And he wasn't kidding—or taking the mickey.

Now the British Council—the government agency that sends scholars to remote places like Dacca and Addis Ababa to teach the pristine tones of Oxford English to the natives—predicts in its annual report that English will be the most widely spoken language in the world by the end of the century.

Just listening to the different use of words by Americans and Englishmen, the ear boggles at what might happen once the language gets into the mouths of, say, Tibetans.

Slang, of course, which changes all the time, is bound to be different on opposite sides of the Atlantic. But even the most commonplace conversation reveals linguistic rifts wrought by American independence from the mother tongue.

A U.S. garbage can is an English dustbin. Sweets are candies. A chemist's shop is a drugstore, and a draper's shop is a dry-goods store. Gasoline is petrol. An American buys things on installments, but an Englishman gets them on hire-purchase—often called the never-never plan.

"The Americans often make words complicated," complains one British Council philologist. "They have automobiles and we have cars. They have exterminating engineers and we still have rat catchers. We have lifts and they have elevators—I'm surprised they don't call them vertical personnel distributors."

Even pronunciation can be confusing. For yes, an American may say yeah or yup, while a classy Englishman might mutter something like earce, rhyming with pierce. An English "no" is often pronounced near.

Other English-speaking countries have chosen sides and stuck with them. Thus Canadian speech is virtually indistinguishable from the American next door, but Australians, New Zealanders and South Africans speak fairly pure English.

"Americans began changing the language almost as soon as they got off the Mayflower," explains the British Council scholar. "They saw new things and met new conditions. And immigration into America brought all sorts of influences that changed the language. Negroes developed their own slang in the ghettoes.

"Immigration into Australia, for example, was much more English and the English influences have remained—English schools, literature. The Americans and Canadians evolved their own."

Rehnquist Is A Conservative

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — William H. Rehnquist, confirmed Friday by the Senate as an associate justice of the Supreme Court, likely will become known quickly as the court's conservative.

Rehnquist, to be sure, is only one of four conservatives appointed to the court by President Nixon, but his credentials as a clear cut and vigorous conservative are the strongest of the four.

What's more, his energetic, aggressive nature and his undisputed intellectual capacity stamp him for potential philosophical leadership despite his relative youth at 47.

Nixon's bloc of Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, Justice Harry A. Blackmun, Lewis F. Powell, who was recently confirmed, and Rehnquist will not form a majority, but they will be the largest distinctly identifiable philosophical group.

Of the liberal majority led by former Chief Justice Earl Warren during the 1950s and 1960s, only Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr., and Thurgood Marshall remain. The real balance of power in the court, at least until the next vacancy, will rest with two centrist swing voters, Potter Stewart and Byron R. White.

But with four sure votes for the conservative side of most issues to come before the court, the conservative wing holds the best cards.

What has been lacking among this growing faction is the kind of leadership that Warren gave the liberal wing. It also lacks the kind of intellectual direction the liberals got from Douglas and the late Hugo L. Black.

Rehnquist's views are unmistakable, single-minded and firm. He also has the intellectual and persuasive powers to put them across in those closed conferences at which nine men decide questions that mold a nation.

While Burger, Blackmun and Powell disagree generally with the liberal drift of the Warren court, Rehnquist has been one of the leading crusaders against it.

Rehnquist has declared he is opposed to the restraints put on law enforcement officers by the Warren court to protect the rights of defendants and suspects in criminal cases.

"I'm skeptical of either legislative limits on what can be investigated or judicial controls on investigations," he has said.

In this connection, he has stoutly defended the government's right to tap telephones without prior court approval, if necessary, in its fight against political extremists.

Action Expected Monday On Stop-Gap Aid

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agreement to push for a temporary extension of foreign aid authority and the Senate's confirmation of William H. Rehnquist to the Supreme Court have cleared the way for congressional adjournment early next week.

After a month off, Congress will return Jan. 18.

House leaders plan to take up and pass Monday the stop-gap foreign aid measure. The amount and the expiration date, either March 1 or 15, are still in doubt.

But Chairman George H. Mahon, D-Tex., of the House Appropriations Committee told reporters Friday the measure will include funds totaling $385 million in credit sales and supporting assistance for Israel.

Agreement on inclusion of the funds for Israel cleared the way for conferees to reach agreement on the massive $70 billion defense appropriations bill. Action is likely Monday.

Conferees meet today on the only other remaining money bill, providing funds for the District of Columbia.

A $3.4 billion catch-all supplemental bill won Senate approval by a vote of 84 to 9 Friday, clearing it for President Nixon's signature.

With the $15.8 billion tax reduction bill already signed by the President, the sole remaining "must" bill is the measure to extend the President's economic powers until April 20, 1973.

Passage of that measure was by a vote of 324 to 33 in the House after it softened the senate's provision requiring payment of retroactive pay increases that came due during the 90-day wage-price freeze. Conferees meet on the bill Monday morning.

The agreement to go for a temporary foreign aid extension was reached at a Friday morning meeting of House and Senate Democratic leaders.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who opposes the procedure as long as the regular foreign aid authorization bill remains deadlocked in conference over his end-the-war amendment, agreed to let the continuing resolution come up though he will speak and vote against it.

Besides the authorization measure, the procedure leaves in limbo until next year the regular foreign aid appropriations bill, passed Wednesday by the House and pending before the Senate Appropritions Committee.

LBJ Returns To Smoking

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The hectic holidays have driven former President Lyndon Johnson to take up smoking again after a 15-year abstinence.

Johnson lit up a cigarette Friday during a reception in Mayor Roy Butler's office prior to a ceremony in which Mrs. Johnson inaugurated a local beautification program.

The ex-president said he "gave up smoking 15 years ago and started again last week."

City administrative secretary Dorothy Roach said Johnson told her he gave up smoking after suffering a heart attack while serving as U.S. Senate majority leader.

Why did he start again?

"The trials and tribulations of Christmas," Johnson said.

Borys Shlapak of Park Ridge, Ill., set a Michigan State record in 1970 when he kicked a 54-yard field goal against Northwestern.

Man Takes Tip And Groceries

NEW YORK (AP) — As Asburry Smith, 55 and blind, left a Brooklyn supermarket Friday he was approached by a young man whose voice, he said, indicated he was in his 20s.

As Smith later recounted, the youth told him: "I'll lead you and help you carry the packages." Smith accepted and thanked him.

As the pair started up to Smith's fourth floor apartment, he recounted an incident last Christmastime.

"A fellow offered to help me, but when we got here, he pushed me into the elevator and ran off with $14 worth of food."

"Now I'm not about to pull that on you friend," Smith quoted the young man as saying as he carried Friday's purchases of $17 worth of groceries.

At the fourth floor landing, Smith handed his helper a $1 gratuity and said "Thank you."

The man said nothing, but bolted down the steps with the groceries—and the $1.

Smith, who lives on a small pension and Social Security with two sons, both of whom are students, said he wasn't sure how the three would eat this week, but that he was certain everything would work out.

"If he had to do that then I feel sorry for him. It's in God's hands now," said Smith, closing with a "Good night and Merry Christmas."

Texas Due More Moisture

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A weak high pressure system snaked into East Texas early today as a southerly flow of air promised to bring moisture and cloudiness in from the west.

The National Weather Service said mild temperatures would accompany the gradual clouding.

Conditions were clear Friday over most of the state with temperatures under clear skies early this morning sagging into the below freezing zone in the Panhandle.

Police Pilot Project Is Working In Quanah

Editor's Note: The citizens of Quanah have a way of getting into the news, sometimes without trying to. Some time ago they began an experiment in merger of city and county governmental functions that everyone worrying about taxes and duplication of services has been watching. How are things working out?

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

QUANAH, Tex. (AP) — When Quanah phased out its police department earlier this year, a few eyebrows fluttered in disbelief. It was, after all, a heady experiment.

Which is the kind that appeals frequently to the Quanah citizenry of 4,768. They often catch the nation's eye.

The scene once of a water witching convention, this West Texas town caught the national eye last spring with a longshot Indian rain dance.

They still chuckle over the great Hardeman County oil well caper. And with only a minimum of prodding, they'll tell you also about the running of the ponies in the Highway Handicap.

The water witches found water, the rain dance conjured up rain, the oil well produced oil and the ill-fated horse race might best be forgotten.

So when Quanah was selected as the target city for the police pilot project, the decision triggered no mass gnashing of teeth.

"Surprisingly, we didn't run into much opposition," says one law enforcement officer.

What happened, actually, was a kind of merger between the police and sheriff departments, except that the police department was largely devoured in the move.

The two became a single agency supervised by a city-county board but directed by Hardeman County Sheriff Chester Ingram. A friendly, cooly efficient man with a hint of quiet confidence, Ingram is uncommon among small town Texas authorities.

"We think it's working out real good," he said in an interview in his tiny office. "In fact, I think it's the greatest thing that ever happened to law enforcement in a small town."

The first arrangement of its type in Texas the consolidation could be a blueprint for meeting law enforcement problems in many small cities.

The project was initiated by the Nortex Regional Planning Council and was made possible by a $45,600 grant from Gov. Preston Smith's Criminal Justice Council.

"This experiment represents a sensible approach by city and county officials in attempting to provide economic and efficient police services to local taxpayers-who support both agencies," one large Texas newspaper observed editorially.

"Many rural Texas counties are operating under fragmented governmental situations that are costly."

Another advocate of the program is Dist. Atty. Bill Neal of Vernon, who said the merger has streamlined and upgraded law enforcement procedures.

"By doing this, we also were able to raise officers' salaries, which is one thing I've been interested in. I believe it's improved the morale of the officers up there in that county," he said.

"Improved morale and efficiency, you could say. It also improved communications between the law enforcement agency and the district attorney's office."

Neal and Sheriff Ingram both noted that taxpayers previously footed the bill for two jails, two communications systems, two fleets of cars, two sets of criminal records.

"I think there will be some savings on down the line," Neal said, although salary hikes and other consideration expenditures were not inexpensive.

And federal funds are being sought to replace the claptrap jail with a new law enforcement building and detention center.

Ingram said members of the former police force are "100 per cent" for the merger "and they don't want to go back like it was."

Until the consolidation, he said, "they were chasing dogs and cars, and now they're investigating. They're learning criminal investigation and they like it."

Ingram said the new alignment provides him "no more power than I had, just more people to work with. We had three men in the sheriff's office. Now we have eight. And there is no friction between departments."

With manpower has come flexibility, a degree of specialization, night patrols, an around-the-clodk radio network and, said Ingram, "a helluva lot more protection for our people."

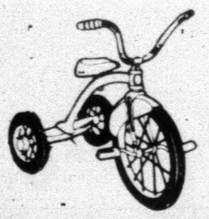

Night patrols roving the county have been credited with interrupting burglaries, apprehending arsonists and generally discouraging criminal acts.

"Law enforcement out here is suddenly taken more seriously," said Carroll Koch, publisher of the weekly Quanah newspaper. "They are making a profession out of law enforcement, that's what they're doing.

Conference Panel Still Facing Many Problems

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is now assured extension of his economic control powers, but a Senate-House conference committee still has a variety of problems to iron out.

The house passed Friday, 324 to 33, a bill granting the full extension Nixon asked, through April 30, 1973, in his efforts to push down inflation and unemployment.

The Senate has passed legislation with the same termination date, so the extension will not be in question in conference.

Both bills generally provide the machinery Nixon asked to administer Phase 2 of his new economic program aimed at stimulating the economy.

The two versions, however, differ on the question of retroactive payment of previously negotiated wage increases that were caught by the 90-day wage-price freeze, which ended last month.

The House version specifies they are to be paid if a public or private employer raised price or taxes, made appropriations or otherwise provided funds for the raises, or if productivity gains by workers justify them.

The Senate bill makes the standard reasonable conformity to Pay Board guidelines.

The differences on granting retroactive pay increases are among the issues that must be worked out by the conference committee, which is scheduled to meet Monday.

Also, the Senate version provides that a pay raise for federal civilian employes and the military go into effect Jan. 1, as originally scheduled, while the House bill contains a corresponding provision. Nixon had ordered it postponed six months to save an estimated $1 billion.

The Senate version contains a specific exemption from wage and price controls for newspapers, press associations, broadcasters, and book and magazine publishers.

The House bill does not contain this provision, but does include a statement that the President, in using his control powers, is not to infringe on the freedom of speech guarantees of the First Amendment.

Inclusion of this amendment in the House bill, members said, makes it possible for the conference committee to consider broadly whether to exempt all media, including motion pictures.

Both bills include provisions for a special federal court to hear appeals on price and pay decisions, and they both provide that consumers may sue if they are wilfully charged prices higher than those approved by the Price Commission.

Also, both bills would require the President to take measures stabilizing interest rates or make a formal finding that such action is not required. Nixon wanted only standby authority.

Quarterback Craig Curry of Minnesota paced the Big Ten in total offense with 2,071 yards and 17 touchdowns.

Dear Abby

Boy friend wants part-time engagement

By Abigail Van Buren

[© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: I recently became engaged to my boy friend who is 23. [I am 20.] When he gave me my ring, he asked me not to wear it in front of his parents or mine, or any relatives, because he hasn't told them yet. But he wants me to wear it to work every day.

One day after I got home from work, I forgot to take it off. Altho my mother didn't notice, when my boy friend came over and saw me wearing it he was furious. Well, I took it off and haven't worn it since. [But he thinks I am still wearing it to work.]

Abby, I have been engaged for six months and I would like to wear my ring at all times and let everybody know, but for some reason my fiance doesn't feel that way.

I know it's not that his parents or mine would object to it because my parents are fond of him and his parents seem to like me very much. I can't understand why the big secret.

I don't like being "engaged" secretly everywhere but at work. Can you figure out his angle? ANNOYED

DEAR ANNOYED: His angle seems to have several curves. He wants you to wear a "NO TRESPASSING, PRIVATE PROPERTY" sign at work, but he isn't man enough to let his parents [and yours] know that he has committed himself for marriage. In any case, he has a lot of growing up to do before he's mature enough to marry. Tell him you're thru playing games, and to either tell the world, or keep his ring.

DEAR ABBY: When I was in the hospital having my first baby one of the nurses [she was about my age] became quite friendly with me. She would come into my room several times during the day to smoke a cigarette because she wasn't permitted to smoke on duty. She asked me the first time if I "minded" and I said I didn't, so she made it a habit of running in for a cigarette.

The truth of the matter is that I really would rather she had not smoked in my room at all because I used to be a heavy smoker and I gave it up as a promise to my husband when I became pregnant, and when I smell smoke around me the temptation to smoke again is very strong.

Let's be realistic, Abby. Could I have told her not to smoke in my room? My husband says I was chicken not to, and he has no respect for chickens. What do you say?
NEW MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I say your husband is right on!

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I had a big fight which I would like you to settle.

We were talking about what we would do if the other one died. My husband said if I died, he would never marry again, because nobody in the world could ever take my place, so he would live alone, and be content with his memories.

I told him I would probably try to pick up the pieces and go on living as best I could, and if I ever met anyone as wonderful as he was, I might marry again.

Abby, he really got mad at me and said that my statement was proof that I didn't love him. I do love him, and I was only being honest.

I am 26 and he is 28. We've been married for six years and have two children. What do you think? WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: I think no one knows how he will handle a situation until it occurs. [I also hope your husband grows up before he dies.]

DEAR ABBY: You're sharp. Do you know of a legitimate tax loophole for a bachelor? T. IN BEVERLY HILLS

DEAR T.: Yes, a wedding ring.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Two Favorites Fall In 1st Round Of Reef Tournament

Snyder, Irving, Lubbock Dunbar and Hereford all won their first round games in the Nineteenth Annual Canyon Reef Tournament, which began Friday in the Scurry County Coliseum.

The Snyder Tigers tripped Lubbock Estacado 69-44; Irving whipped Phillips 79-46; Dunbar clipped Big Spring 85-72; and, Hereford beat Brownfield 73-60.

Snyder and Irving and Dunbar and Hereford met in the second round Saturday morning on the winner's side of the bracket while Brownfield and Big Spring and Phillips and Estacado tangled on the loser's side.

The Tigers got off to a slow start but took the lead at 7-6 in the first quarter and never fell behind after that. They led 15-11 after one period and 29-16 at halftime. Then, they outscored the Matadors 21-15 in the third quarter and 19-13 in the final period.

Snyder hit 30 of 81 from the floor for 37 per cent and 9 of 15 from the line for 60 per cent. Dubby Preston was the leading rebounder with 11 while Kent Horsley claimed seven.

Three Snyder lads hit in double figures, led by Jerry Brooks with 16 points. Kent Horsley netted 13, and Tommy Washington meshed 10. For Estacado Wjllie Newman was the only boy in double figures with 10 points.

Irving put forth perhaps the smoothest performance of the opening day. Phillips simply couldn't cope with their fast break. James Scott tallied 16 points and David Johnson pushed in 13 for Irving. Roger Holland was the only lad in twin figures for Phillips with 12 points.

Dunbar started out strong in their game with Big Spring and led 21-11 after one period. The Steers cut the lead to 41-36 at halftime. Dunbar outscored the Class AAAA team 20-19 in the third quarter and 24-17 in the last frame.

However, the Steers caught Dunbar at 66-66 on a free throw by Mike Randle with 5:10 remaining in the game and they went ahead 68-66 on a driving shot by Bones McKee with 4:30 left. However, Dunbar regained the lead at 69-68 with 3:47 remaining and never relinquished it. Big Spring was forced to go for the ball and committed numerous fouls in the last few minutes.

Gary Howard led Dunbar with 27 points. Larry Collins contributed 16, Calvin Walker added 15, and George Smith put in 12. For Big Spring, Robert Wallace was high scorer with 24 points while David Newman pitched in 12.

Brownfield couldn't overcome Hereford's full court press. Also, the Cubs missed too many free throws in the first half and were hurt by faulty passing.

Hereford exhibited a smooth attack with Keith Kitchens, Terry Scott and Larry Roberts collecting 18, 14 and 13 points respectively. Van Garner connected on 21 points and Gregg Jones scored 19 for Brownfield.

It was a close game for one quarter with Brownfield trailing by only one point, 13-12, but the Whitefaces went ahead 34-23 at halftime and out scored Brownfield in each of the two remaining periods.

Cajuns Are Still Same Old Bullies

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Moving into a classier neighborhood hasn't affected Southwestern Louisiana's basketball team a bit.

The Ragin' Cajuns are still the same, old bullies on the block.

A college division power for years, Southwestern Louisiana has joined the bigger university crowd this year and still is winning despite the tougher competition.

The roughnecks from Lafayette, La., humbled Pan American 102-83 Friday night in a first round game of their Bayou Classic and thus won their third game in four since graduating to the bigtime.

Other victories this season include successes over Western Kentucky who was in The Associated Press' Top Twenty last week, and Houston, the current No. 12 power.

And Southwestern Louisiana has a chance to knock off another ranked club tonight—sixth-rated Long Beach State. The teams will meet in the Bayou Classic finals.

Long Beach State gained the championship round with a 7464 whipping of Texas El-Paso Friday night.

UCLA, the country's No. 1 team, continued on its merry, undefeated way by trouncing Iowa State 110-81.

South Carolina, ranked No. 11, defeated Santa Clara 77-66 in one half of the Cable Car Classic in San Francisco. California stopped the host team, San Francisco, 64-63 in cthe opener.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 17 Arizona State stopped No. 12 Houston 98-97; No. 13 Southern California slammed Los Angeles-Loyola 85-65 and 20th-ranked North Carolina State walloped Purdue 84-71.

Reserve forward Larry Hollyfield scored a career-high 21 points and Henry Bibby had 19 as UCLA coasted to its third victory this year. Martinez Denmon led Iowa State with 22 points.

Rhea Taylor's layup with 29 seconds remaining and Bill Kennedy's free throw 19 seconds later gave Arizona State a tight conquest of brawny Houston. The Sun Devils, winning their fourth game without a loss, outscored the Cougars 17-6 in the closing five minutes to become the first visiting team to win in Houston's two-yearold field house.

Paul Westphal made six of his first seven shots and scored 21 points to lead fast-breaking Southern California over Los Angeles-Loyola.

Tommy Burleson had 24 points and 21 rebounds, powering North Carolina State past Purdue. Bob Ford had 19 points for the Boilermakers.

Elsewhere, it was Duquesne 80, Iowa 75; Wichita State 91, SMU 69; Missouri 64, University of the Pacific 54; North Dakota 110, Rocky Mountain t9; Oregon Stae 76, Oklahoma State 72; Baylor u9, Lamar 64; Colorado 89, Texas Tech 77; Northwestern 72, Rutgers 68; West Virginia 106, Columbia 53; California 64, San Francisco 63; Memphis State 74, Mississippi State 71 and Vanderbilt 82, Bradley 80.

Michigan's 1971 football team allowed opponents an average of 6.4 points a game in winning all 11 contests.

LA Lakers Tie Victory Record

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons' compliment to the Los Angeles Lakers after they defeated his Phoenix Suns ranks as a major understatement.

"They're really playing good basketball," he said after the Lakers posted a 126-117 overtime triumph Friday night to tie the National Basketball Association record of 20 straight victories.

Lakers Coach Bill Sharman acted relieved after the contest.

"The last three games have been tough on us especially due to the unusual traveling we've had to do. When they went into overtime I was really worried," he said.

Gail Goodrich's long-range sharpshooting accounted for seven points as Los Angeles outscored the Suns 15-6 in the overtime stanza victory streak established last season by the Milwaukee Bucks.

Los Angeles led 88-76 going into the final period but the Suns tied it on Mel Counts' jumper with 21 seconds remaining.

Goodrich led all scorers with 33 points, followed by Jim McMillian with 31 for the Lakers. Dick Van Arsdale paced the Suns with 31.

In other NBA action Friday night, Cleveland edged Detroit 112-111, Chicago beat Baltimore 118-102, Portland nipped Buffalo 101-100 in overtime, Milwaukee drubbed Boston 120-104, Houston downed Atlanta 95-88, Cincinnati upended Philadelphia 113-108 in overtime and Seattle dumped Golden State 105-94.

In the American Basketball Association it was: Kentucky 116, Floridians 100; New York 103, Memphis 101; Pittsburgh 144, Carolina 138; Virginia 118, Indiana 114 and Utah 110, Den-

Kareem Jabbar scored a career-high 55 points including 18 in the third period as Milwaukee whacked Boston.

Jabbar, who broke hs own club record by two points, also had 17 rebounds as the Bucks won their 25th game in 29 starts. John Havlicek had 32 for the Celtics.

Chicago's three-guard offense wore down Baltimore as the Bulls beat the Bullets.

Chicago saw a 17-point third period lead dwindle to a single point at the end of the quarter and then fell behind at the start of the final 15 minutes. But Bob Weiss, Jerry Sloan and Jim King turned it around for the Bulls, scoring 26 of Chicago's 38 last period points for the victory. Chet Walker led Chicago with 27 points and Archie Clark paced Baltimore with 25.

Bobby Washington's two free throws in the final four seconds moved Cleveland past Detroit and ended a four-game losing streak for the Cavaliers.

The Cavs had missed eight straight shots in a 24-second span before Washington grabbed a rebound and was hacked by Detroit's Bob Lanier to earn the two free throws. Butch Beard led Cleveland with 24 points and Lanier hit 35 for the Pistons.

Portland nipped Buffalo on Jeff Petrie's basket with 19 seconds left in the overtime period.

Petrie's two-pointer broke a 99-99 tie and then Buffalo's Randy Smith managed only one of three foul shots with four seconds left to clinch the victory for Portland. Petrie's 28 points was high for the game while Smith's 21 led the losers.

Houston opened an early lead and then hung on to whip Atlanta.

Stu Lantz led the Rockets with 28 points and Elvin Hayes hit 20. Lou Hudson had 27 for the Hawks.

Cincinnati came from behind to overtake Philadelphia in overtime, ending a five-game losing streak for the Royals.

Jim Fox scored 27 points for the Royals, who overcame a 10point deficit to score the victory.

Player-Coach Lenny Wilkens and Spencer Haywood each canned 21 points as the Sonics dealt the Warriors their sixth consecutive setback.

Golden State rallied twice in the second half but couldn't manage to overtake the Sonics. The Warriors narrowed their deficit to 87-84 in the final period but Seattle then rattled off seven points without a return.

Cowboys Shine With Staubach

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys haven't lost since Tom Landry named Roger Staubach as his No. 1 quarterback over five weeks ago and the National Football Conference East leaders are closing in on their sixth divisional title in a row.

A victory Sunday over the lowly New York Giants could clinch the title for the Cowboys, 9-3, if the runnerup Washington Redskins, 8-3-1, either tie or lose in Los Angeles Monday night.

The Giants have lost three in a row and have stumbled to a 4-8 record although the New Yorkers played well and narrowly lost to the Cowboys 20-13 in Dallas earlier in the season.

But head Coach Landry, who calls all the signals for Staubach, has the Cowboys rolling. The former Navy Heisman Trophy winner leads the NFC in passing statistics, hitting on 106 of 181 pass attempts for 1,503 yards, 11 touchdowns and a 58.6 per cent accuracy mark. He has only been intercepted three times.

However, Craig Morton, the No. 2 quarterback behind Staubach, did lead the Cowboys to the Super Bowl last year and he still is very much in the picture if Staubach stumbles.

"I'm just happy to be playing," Staubach says. Although he would prefer calling his own plays—Landry shuffles in tight ends Mike Ditka and Billy Truax with the plays—he claims, "If anybody has to call plays for me, I'm glad it's Coach Landry. He's a football genius."

Staubach will have plenty of help with receivers Bob Hayes and Lance Alworth and running back Walt Garrison, who is the team's top pass catcher with 39 receptions. Other rushers include Calvin Hill and Duane Thomas, who have run for 961 yards between them.

The Giants will have to reply on the passing of Fran Tarkenton to Bob Tucker, the NFC's second best pass catcher with 46 for 621 yards.

In other games, Andrews beat Kermit B 46-30; Fort Stockton tripped Monahans 42-30; and, Crane bested Kermit A 47-45.

The Bengals met Kermit A Saturday morning in the second round.

The Snyder Team took a 10-4 lead in the first quarter, but Pecos rallied to grab a 22-21 lead at halftime. The third quarter was a 19-19 standoff, and Pecos held a 15-13 edge in the last period.

"We broke their zone press, but we missed 18 layups," said Bengal Coach Jim Bartlett. "We also had a poor performance at the free throw line," he added.

Three Bengals hit in double figures. Moell Blalock and Darrell Morgan each netted 17 points, and Richard Gorman contributed 10. Bobby Herrod was high point man for Pecos with 16 points, and his brother, Donny Herrod, put in 11 points.

Plunkett, Namath Vie

NEW YORK (AP) — Quarterback Jim Plunkett of the New England Patriots, tied for second among National Football League touchdown tossers, will continue his drive for Rookie of the Year honors this Sunday against Joe Namath and the New York Jets.

Plunkett, described by Patriots' Coach John Mazur as the "next Joe Namath", threw two touchdown passes in an upset of Miami last week that brought his total to 17 for the season.

Only Miami's Bob Griese, with 19, has more. John Hadl of San Diego also has 17. Plunkett, meanwhile, is only one touchdown pass away from matching Namath's rookie performance. The record is 22, set by Charley Conerly of he New York Giants in 1948.

Plunkett has directed the Patriots to five victories in 12 games but all have been at home. Included in the five victoies was one over New York when Namath still was hobbled by his knee operation.

Namath, however, has passed well in practice this week and has been announced as Coach Weeb Eubank's starter.

The Patriots currently hold third place in American Conference East. The Jets are a game back with a 4-8 record.

Stomach Punch Stops McAloon

NEW YORK (AP) — Danny McAloon, a New York school teacher was in Emile Griffith's favorite classroom, and Griffith made his point—right in the middle of McAloon's stomach.

"I was strong all the while until I got hit with those two shots. They paralyzed me," McAloon said Friday night after Griffith almost knocked him out with a left and right to the pit of the stomach.

Eastland Stunned!

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Upsets rocked the first round of semifinals Friday night in the Texas Schoolboy Football playoffs with Eastland and Hondo the big surprise losers.

Jacksboro stunned the No. 1 ranked Eastland outfit 17-6 in a Class AA playoff game in Weatherford.

Rosebud blasted highly rated Hondo 30-7 in the other AA game to set up a Jacksboro-Rosebud finale.

In other Friday night games, Gregory-Portland routed Brenham 49-22 in Class AAA while Bargers Hill scored with 29 seconds left to tie Schulenburg 14-14 and advance to the Class A finals on penetrations.

Gregory-Portland meets the winner of Saturday's Brownwood-Plano clash at Fort Worth in next week's finals.

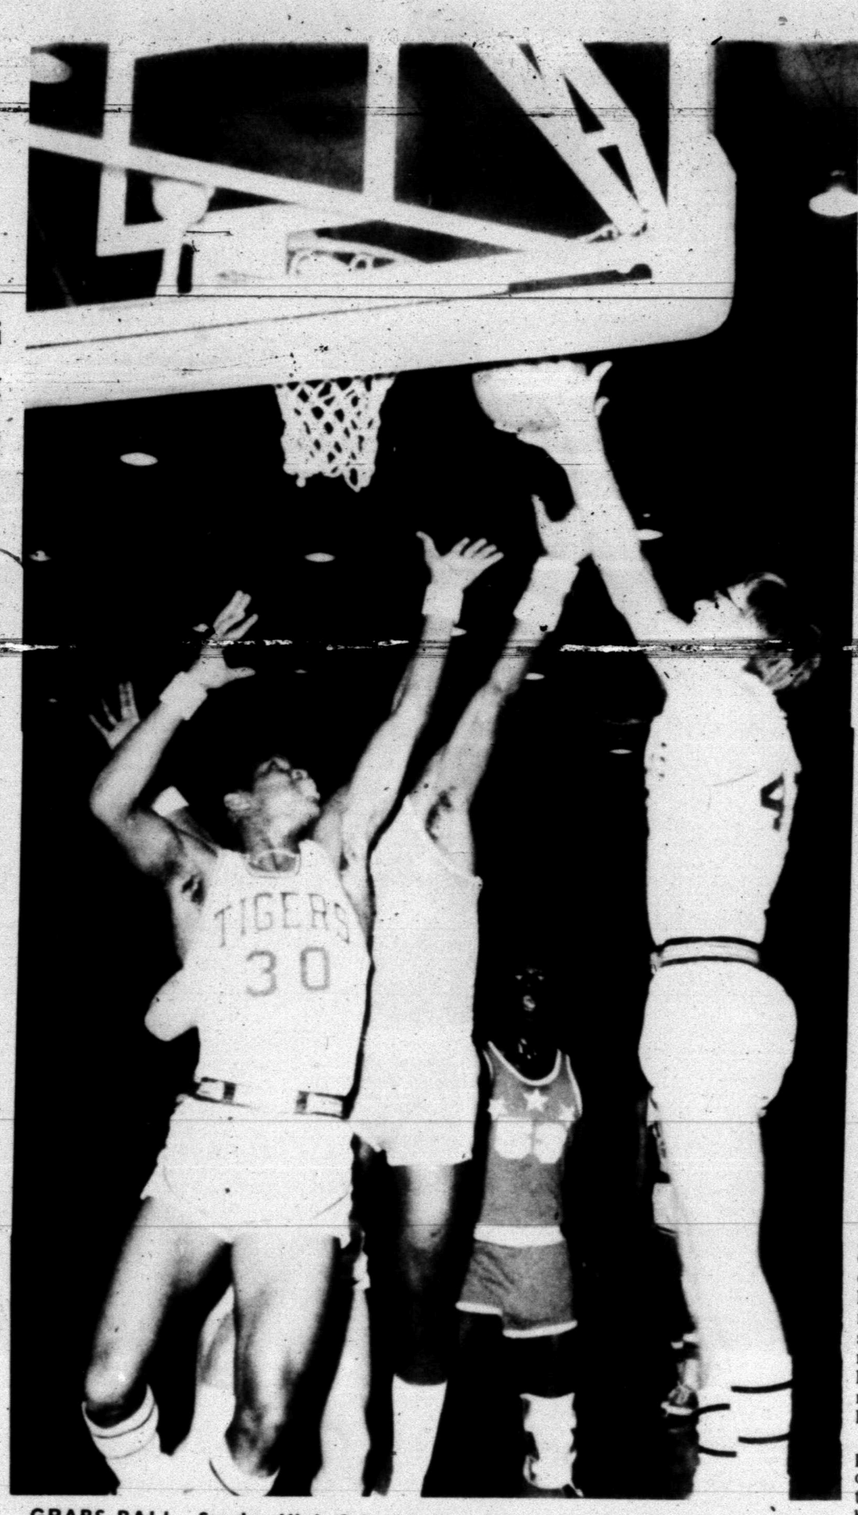

Barbers Hill, which had an edge in penetrations 8-2 over Schulenburg, will play the winner of the White Deer-Sonora game Saturday in Amarillo.

Dallas Carter met Wichita Falls and Houston Smiley plans San Antonio Lee in Class AAAA semifinal games Saturday.

Fullback Ricky Perritt scored two touchdowns to lead Jacksboro to its victory.

Jay Callaway, Alan Callicoat and Alan Bishop each scored two touchdowns in Gregory-Portland's victory.

Tailback Kenneth Scott piled up three touchdowns to pace Rosebud to victory while Barbers Hill was paced by Kenneth Doucette who scored the tying touchdown with 29 seconds left.

GRABS BALL—Snyder High School's Dub Preston (42) grabs the basketball during a rebound play in the first round of the Canyon Reef Tournament. Also jumping are the Tigers' Tommy Washington (30) and Lubbock Estacado's K. Williams (23). The Tigers won 69-44.

Barry's Shot At Gun Stops Pros

NEW YORK (AP) — Rick Barry had the time and the place. He also had the ball, which was nice for the New York Nets.

Barry, using the clock to full advantage, waited until the last second to flip in a field goal from the key and give the Nets a hard-earned 103-101 American Basketball Assocaition victory over the Memphis Pro Friday night.

"I heard someone holler, 'four seconds,' and I still thought that was too soon to shoot," said the Nets' star forward. "We've been finding ways of losing games of late ... and I didn't want to give the Pros a chance to get their hands on the ball again."

So Barry let the time run down, "spun around, dribbled twice and scored."

"I knew it had a chance to go in because I was right on the foul line," he said.

In the night's other ABA games, it was Virginia 118, Indiana 114; Kentucky 116, Floridians 100; Pittsburgh 144, Carolina 138 and Utah 110, Denver 102.

National Basketball Association results: Portland 101, Buffalo 100 in overtime; Cleveland 112, Detroit 111; Chicago 118, Baltimore 102; Houston 95, Atlanta 88; Milwaukee 120, Boston 104; Cincinnati 113, Philadelphia 105 in overtime; Seattle 105, Golden State 94; and Los Angeles 126, Phoenix 117, in overtime.

The Nets' victory snapped a three-game losing streak and gave them a psychological lift, said Barry.

"It's about time that we did something right ... although we've still got a long way to gon" said Barry. "But we've lost at least eight games this year in the last seconds. That'll bother you."

The Nets, winning by a point Thursday night, lost in the last eight seconds when the Virginia Squires stole a Barry pass and converted two foul shots.

Barry wanted to make sure it didn't happen again Friday night.

"Memphis might have gotten the ball and scored an 80-foot basket, who knows?" quipped Barry.

Barry wound up with 30 points in the game, second to hot-handed Bill Melchionni, who scored a creer-high 36.

"I was asking for the ball most of the game," said Billy The Kid. "I knew I had the hot hand. But when we had to take the final shot, I knew that Barry was the man to take it."

Wendall Ladner's two foul shots with a minute remaining tied the game at 101. Then Barry rifled in his game-winning basket as the buzzer sounded.

Ladner had 31 points, including four, three-point field goals for the Pros.

The winners pulled ahead late in the third period, building the margin to as many as 11 points midway through the final quarter.

Mets Acquire Third Baseman

NEW YORK (AP) — After running through 45 third basemen in 10 years, the New York Mets hope they've finally found a stopper in Jim Fregosi.

The Mets acquired the star California Angels' infielder in a trade Friday, sending three players to the American League club, including pitcher Nolan Ryan.

Along with Ryan, the Mets shipped out three promising minor leaguers—outfieler Leroy Stanton, catcher Francisco Estrada and pitcher Don Rose.

It was the first trade between the two expansion teams and squeezed under the inter-league deadline of midnight Friday.

The Mets, who joined the National League in 1962, started with Don Zimmer at third base and have used 44 others since, including Bob Aspromonte, Tim Foli and Wayne Garrett last year.

Fregosi could be the best so far—if he lives up to past performances with the Angels. The 29-year-old Fregosi has played on six American League all-star teams as a shortstop. New York Manager Gil Hodges believes Fregosi can easily made the adjustment to third.

The 10-year veteran, a right-handed hitter, has ripped 115 home runs and driven in 546 runs during his major league career. But he suffered through a year of injury last season. An operation on his foot put him out of action for three weeks.

Ryan, 24, had a 10-14 won-lost mark last year with a 3.97 earned run average. The hard-throwing right-hander, who won a playoff game for the Mets in their 1969 World Championship season, has had control problems while winning 29 games and losing 38 in four seasons.

Stanton, 24, batted .324 with 101 RBI and 23 homers last year at Tidewater of the International League. Rose, 25, was 11-10 with a 3.33 ERA at Tidewater while Estrada, 23, batted .260 with six home runs at Tidewater and hit .252 with seven homers with Memphis of the Texas League.

Dodgers Did Not Try To Hide Clemente

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

Managers and coaches of teams seldom reveal the inner workings of the front office but we have to believe Max Macon when he says he never had orders from the Brooklyn Dodgers to hide Roberto Clemente when Macon managed the 1954 Montreal Royals.

Clemente to this day feels he hardly played for the Royals after receiving a $10,000 bonus late in 1953 and that he was on the bench most of the time so the Dodgers could protect him from the eyes of Pittsburgh scouts. Pirate coach Clyde Sukeforth and scout Howie Haak also felt Clemente was being protected, yet they put in the word for the Pirates to draft him for $4,000.

"I never had any orders not to play Clemente," said Macon, now a Pirate scout, at his new condominium in West Palm Beach.

"I was told Roberto was only 18 when actually he was 19, but I had three proven Triple A outfielders in Sandy Amoros, Gino Cimoli and Dick Whitman. When the Dodgers took Amoros to Brooklyn I had Jack Cassini and Don Thompson. I was told to win at Montreal and simply had to play more experienced men. Roberto got in 87 games and I think that's good for a rookie.

"To me Roberto was a 'fill in guy,' an enthusiastic rookie you would spot in a game without rushing him. Amoros and Whitman didn't have the strongest arms in the world and if we were leading late in a game I would take one of them out and put Clemente in for defensive purposes. He always did the job. He was unhappy when he did not play, happy when he did. It did not disturb me when he got mad at me for not playing him. I would have been upset if he did not get angry at me. I'd say this very fact of him having desire and determination has been a great asset to him all of these years.

"There was little doubt of his potential but his growing up came along later. He put things together to become a star. Nobody could be more delighted about his career than I. All along I have felt he never has been given the credit due him. He is certainly a more 'complete' ball player than many fellows who are given more publicity."

Chiefs, Raiders Collide Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Most National Football League teams spent today watching television with American Conference players having a special interest in Miami's game at Baltimore and National Conference clubs more concerned with Detroit's test at Minnesota.

Especially concerned with the Miami-Baltimore clash were Kansas City and Oakland, who meet Sunday in the AFC's biggest matchup. The Chiefs need a victory to clinch the West Division title—the same situation Miami found itself in against Baltimore in the East today.

Dallas, getting ready for Sunday's game at New York against the Giants, had a similar interest in the Minnesota Detroit game, with the Vikings trying to nail down the NFC's Central crown. Dallas can clinch a tie in the East by beating New York.

Three teams are still in the race in the NFC West with two of them, Atlanta and San Francisco, clashing Sunday. Los Angeles, which plays Washington Monday night, can clinch a tie by winning, no matter what happens in Sunday's Falcons-49ers game.

Elsewhere Sunday, Denver plays at San Diego, Houston is at Buffalo, the New York Jets host New England, Pittsburgh travels to Cincinnati, Chicago is at Green Bay, St. Louis visits Philadelphia and Cleveland, the only divisional champ so far with the AFC Central titled nailed down, plays at New Orleans.

The Chiefs after their first division title since 1966, get a chance to nail it down against their arch-rivals from Oakland. The Raiders and Chiefs have finished in the top two slots in their division for five straight years and will repeat that windup this season.

Kansas City takes an 8-3-1 record into Sunday's game against Oakland's 7-3-2. The teams played a 20-20 tie in their first meeting.

Gary Cuozzo gets the starting call at quarterback for Minnesota as the Vikes seek to finish off Detroit's hopes. The Lions will be without defensive tackle Dick Evey.

Dallas, driving for a sixth straight division title, can get it by beating New York, if Washington loses or ties against Los Angeles. The Cowboys have won five straight with Roger Staubach, the NFC's leading passer, has been at quarterback in each of them. Staubach has had only three passes intercepted all season.

The best race going is in the NFC West, where LA is 7-4-1, one-half game ahead of San Francisco, 7-5, and one game up on Atlanta, 6-5-1. The Falcons and 49ers are playing for their lives Sunday with the Rams sitting back to wait for Monday's meeting with the Redskins.

Saigon Full Of War Orphans

SAIGON (AP) — One orphan is too many.

But in Vietnam there are many as 266,000 of them, living victims of a war most are too young to scarcely understand, only old enough to know they are alone. Only a small fraction are in orphanages, and less than half are official wards of the state that can't keep up with the expanding army of innocents abandoned by war.

Almost everywhere I turned in Vietnam, from the Saigon streets to the smooth white sand beaches near Da Nang, I saw thousands of orphans and waifs, torn from their families and homes or dumped alone into the world by unwanting parents.

Their look is always the same. The big, sad, dark eyes peering. Were they afraid of me, or was I to be their friend? I rather think the latter.

They were shy, on first meeting, these waifs of Vietnam. Slowly they warmed. First a little hand came out to grab mine and hold it tightly. Others followed and soon I was surrounded by the children. Other little hands fingered the cabin baggage tags on my camera case piled up over the years of assignments. When I tore them off and offered them as toys, the sad eyes brightened in acknowledgement but only for a fleeting moment. Then the gleam was gone and once again they were the waifs of Vietnam.

The warm hands still held mine. Braver now, they toyed with my dangling cameras. I wiped off more fingerprints in several months with the waifs than in the past 20 years of assignments. But I didn't mind.

Buddhist monks operate a large complex for the homeless near Saigon. I recall a particular day when I had been visiting and photographing in the area, one of the monks excitedly called one to another building, to display the latest addition to their "family" of more than 1,000 children.

There standing before me and looking up with the same sad, dark eyes I had photographed many times before was one of the most beautiful children I had yet seen. She tried to smile for me through the bruises and cuts that covered her tiny angelic face and her body. She wore blue, blood-stained pajamas.

The monk explained that the girl's mother, a Saigon bar girl, had borne her by an American GI, and had recently married a Vietnamese man. Since the child had some of her father's features, neither the new husband nor the mother wanted her. So, they simply beat her up to show their distaste and dumped her at the entrance to the orphanage. It was the first time in long, long years that I felt like crying.

Waifs in an orphanage fare better than the street urchins. At least they get some medical attention and usually enough rice and other foods to sustain them.

The homeless children who roam the larger cities live and sleep in the street. They rise with the dawn and begin scratching out their day-to-day existence. Many become thieves and pickpockets.

Within six months I will be leaving Vietnam for good.

Pearse Finding Place In Aviation History

By S. GORDON GAPPER
Assistant City Editor
The Flint, Mich., Journal
For THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The countryside around Temuka, a small town halfway down the east coast of New Zealand's South Island, is among the richest in the world in terms of agricultural production and the income of its farmers.

It is a countryside where lambs are shown and fattened for world markets, where dusty roads wind amid uncommonly green rolling hills and cross clear, swift rivers, where fields are divided by wild hedges of gorse, a prickly green shrub on which animals browse.

Away from the substantial farmhouses, the scene now is not much different from what it was in 1903. And it was in this unlikely setting in that year that a young, eccentric farmer-engineer-inventor may have left the ground in man's first powered flight.

The question of who made the first powered flight—a couple of obscure bicycle repairmen from Dayton, Ohio, at Kitty Hawk, N.C., or an obscure farmer along a New Zealand country road—may be academic. Wilbur and Orville Wright are the acknowledged pioneers, and Richard Pearse himself made no claim that would expunge their first flights of Dec. 17, 1903, from the record books.

But the question is now being raised seriously for the first time.

Pearse's name appears in no common book of reference and has only rarely appeared in aeronautical publications. Pearse is now finding his place in history, however, with the striking of a commemorative medal by the Museum of Transport and Technology in Auckland, New Zealand. The medal was issued Sept. 19.

And the first book on Pearse is soon to be published.

Pearse's second aircraft—which was never flown—and parts of his first—which definitely did fly—are on display in the Auckland museum.

Dick Pearse, born in 1877, was one of several self-willed boys in a family that farmed near Temuka. His parents were immigrants, his father Cornish and his mother Irish.

Pearse had a keen intellect but was sensitive and withdrawn, a dreamy youth with curly black hair. He never married.

His father, Digory, expecting his sons to become farmers like himself, eventually acquired 795 acres for them. One son became a physician. Another was as much a brilliant tennis player as a farmer. And Dick farmed just enough to make money for his aviation experiments.

He was obsessed by flight. As a small boy, he made a flying toy from a spool and a tin can lid shaped like a propeller.

He pored over the Scientific American magazine, his only link with the scientific world. He read it even while plowing, plodding along behind his horses.

On an old two-room farmhouse on his property, he built noisy engines that irritated his neighbors.

From Cecil Woods—a Timaru engineer who was the first New Zealander to build an automobile—Pearse learned how to make spark plugs. From the local junkyard, he got metal to make studs and bolts. The local blacksmith forged crankshafts for him.

He made a lathe, a sound-reproducing machine, geared and motorized bicycles, a potato picker, a motorized disc for farming, and, always, engines, several of which he used in his aircraft.

His bent for engineering rather than the pastoral life hardly pleased his family, and he received no formal technical training.

He became more and more a recluse, growing incensed if anyone walked into his workshop or touched his tools.

"Mad Pearse" people called him. But there was always an audience of boys around, including his brother, Warne, to watch his flying experiments, which began before the turn of the century.

One lad was punished by his mother for watching Pearse at work because 'God didn't mean men to fly."

Testimony from these witnesses indicates that Pearse was leaving the ground in numerous hops—hardly flights—in 1902.

Day after day he bicycled from his home to his workshop. He spent long hours on his machine, adjusting it, modifying it, changing its center of gravity, until he felt the contraption of bamboo, calico, string and metal parts was ready to fly.

He sat on a bicycle seat and three bicycle wheels supported the plane.

A Pearse researcher in Auckland, Shirley Holdsworth, reconstructs the scene:

"One morning after several test hops performed discreetly behind the 12-foot high gorse hedges on his farm, Richard decided he was ready for a controlled flight on the roadway. A crowd of about 25 gathered to watch but grew impatient as the day wore on with little success. Many of them left, but Warne, his brother, and a few friends were left to give him a push."

Warne Pearse himself described the scene:

"The flight started at Upper Waitohi School and several of us were there to give him a push. Mine was the last push and off she went.

Meditation Lowers Stress

HOUSTON (AP) — A psychologist says persons who meditate 15 minutes twice a day show much lower stress level than persons who do not.

David Orme-Johnson believes that transcendental meditation can stop wars.

"It won't make guns disappear," says Orme-Johnson, 30, psychology professor at the University of Texas at El Paso.

"But war is nothing more than the accumulation of individual stress and the only practical solution is to make each man feel less tense and less hostile."

In a recent speech here, Orme-Johnson said persons, probably due to the jet-age freeway togetherness, are looking for ways out of stress.

Using an electrode device which he described as much like a lie detector, he said he found that people who mediate have an average of 10 stress indications in 10 minutes, while nonmeditators register 30 to 35.

He said transcendental meditation is the ancient Indian technique popularized by the Maharishi Mahesh Yogi and brought to western attention by the Beatles.

He said each person who wants to lean the technique must have a teacher and "skeptics usually make the best students."

No religious belief, special posture, exercises or particular food are involved, he said.

"The mind always is seeking a more charming level," he said. "Meditation fulfills the mind through an inward march. The result is pure nervous system and clearer mind."

He said meditation is "a big leap in human evolution" and he expects the technique to be adopted as part of the American culture.

"Transcendental meditation is practical for Western man," he said. "You don't have to withdraw to a cave to practice it. It is a beautiful blend of Eastern and Western philosphy."

He said meditation is in use experimentally at La Tuna Federal Correction Institute near El Pason with some 23 former drug addicts being trained to meditate in drug therapy sessions.

He said the experiment appears to be successful.

"The only problem is if they will stay with it when they get out," he said. "If your nervous system is clean why pollute it with anything?"

Deafness Can Be Self Inflicted

DALLAS (AP) — Rock musicians who boast of playing by ear may ruin that talent through self-inflicted deafness, according to Dr. Hal Watson, professor of mechanical engineering at Southern Methodist University.

He said a recent impromptu experiment conducted in his noise pollution seminar showed that the decibel level of electronic rock music in a confined area such as a nightclub often runs 10 to 15 decibels above what experts consider harmful to hearing.

Moreover, he said, persons participating in the experiment suffer a temporary slight loss of hearing after being exposed to the loud music for a length of time. Continuous exposure to sounds of such intensity could result in major loss of hearing, he warned.

Ann Davis Is Lucky Actress

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Television viewers with a few gray hairs see the face and think of her as Schultzy.

Today's kids identify her as Alice, the Brady's housekeeper.

She thinks of herself as Ann B. for Bradford Davis, actress, and a lucky one who has managed to keep working pretty steadily over the past 15 years.

Currently busy in ABC's "The Brady Bunch," Ann B. may privately mourn slightly that the official stars of the show are Robert Reed and Florence Henderson, who play the mother and father of a large family. She is well aware, however, of the advantages of playing a comedy sidekick.

"I learned that lesson during the five years playing Schultzy in 'The Bob Cummings Show'," she said. "I may have been in a supporting role in the series, but I could go out and play stock each summer—as a star."

Her television specialty ever since Schultzy has been a variation of that perky, salty comedy character.

When one has a strong suppdon't have a feeling of responsibility for its success and you don't have to do much worrying," she explained.

"You can work hard to make your part interesting, even when you haven't much more to say than 'the carriage awaits without.' If you can handle your part well, if you deliver, then the producer, director and the writers will give you better and better lines."

Some of her activities have been less than satisfying: there was a short period when she played a physical education teacher during the brief run of "The John Forsythe Show." He was a swinging bachelor who inherited a girls' school. Ann's part consisted mostly of running around blowing a whistle—it amused neither the actress nor the audience.

"Look, though, how very well secondary roles work when the writing is good and the relationships are solid," she said, "Valerie Harper in 'The Mary Tyler Moore Show,' and 'Rosemarie' in the old 'Dick Van Dyke Show'."

Time was, Ann says, when a series that survived for three years had to be counted a success—and a bonanza for the performers.

"Now it takes five years to be really a help," she said. "They are making fewer episodes each season—today you need more than 100 episodes for reruns to really benefit in syndication."

The Cummings show ran through 178 episodes. Ann believes that she benefitted most from the show by establishing an identity—"the residuals were not all that good."

Group Informed On Tax Matters

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas city councilman Friday told a state tax group formed at his urging that junking the property tax "would be disastrous," even though tax reforms in Texas are badly needed.

Councilman Garry Weber addressed an organizational meeting of the Tax Council of Texas Cities, a group he proposed at a recent convention of the Texas Municipal League.

Weber said a special session of the legislature should be called solely to handle local tax reform. He said reform of property tax laws can effectively forestall the imposition of income or payroll taxes.

Research Project Launched

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A project to observe interstellar molecules in our galaxy has been undertaken by a research group at the University of Texas.

Initially, the research project will attempt to study the process of star formation.

"We want to determine the physical conditions which produce stars," says Dr. Paul Vanden Bout, assistant professor of astronomy.

Recent discoveries in astronomy indicate that complex molecules are actually floating among the stars in what astronomers call the interstellar medium. Some of the molecules, organic in nature, could be considered as building blocks of biological molecules, he said.

An additional goal of the project is the study of the shape and form of the galaxy. Previously the galaxy has been studied mainly by radio observations of interstellar atoms. The field of molecular observations will enable astronomers to go beyond our present knowledge, he said.

There will be 145 nights of harness racing at the Yonkers, N.Y., track in 1972.

Pay Delay Unexplained

BALTIMORE (AP) — John Marron finally got paid for refereeing a soccer game five years ago.

A check for $7 arrived at his home in a correctly addressed envelope postmarked Nov. 9, 1966.

Marron couldn't explain the delay, but added: "Now I'm paid $13 a game."

Spill Law Is Struck Down

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A shippers spokesman says he expects a decision that declares Florida's tough oil-spill law unconstitutional will block similar legislation in 30 other states.

The law was struck down Friday in an unanimous decision by a panel of three federal judges before it had a chance to take effect.

Under the statute, shippers were required to prove financial responsibility up to $5 million and pay all damages resulting from mishaps causing pollution in Florida waters.

The court said the law would have put the state in a position of intruding on maritime jurisdiction reserved under the U. S. Constitution for the federal government.

"We need not belabor the point that to permit the states severally to regulate these industries, as Florida seeks to do, would sound the death knell to the principle of uniformity," the decision written by U.S. District Court Judge Gerald B. Tjoflat said.

Judge Paul H. Roney of the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals and U.S. District Court Judge Charles R. Scott concurred.

Harold G. Williams of Jacksonville, who heads the Waterway Operators Environmental Control Committee, said the decision will head off similar acts in various stages of preparation in 30 states.

New Car Buyers Due Refund On Excise Tax

By A.F. MAHAN
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — About three million Americans who have purchased new cars since Aug. 15 can expect a Christmas bonus averaging around $200 each—or a total of about $600 million.

But Santa Claus may be a bit late in delivery.

President Nixon signed a tax bill Friday that included repeal of the World War II-vintage 7 per cent excise tax on new cars. The repeal applies retroactive to all new cars purchased since the President initiated his wage-price freeze Aug. 15.

The paper work required to send refund checks to buyers, combined with the Christmas postal jam, may delay many rebates until the New Year.

But Ford Motor Co. said Friday that its approximately 875,000 new car buyers will begin getting refunds immediately at the rate of 40,000 to 50,000 a day.

In anticipation of congressional and presidential approval, a Ford spokesman said Friday, the company already had 200,000 refund checks run out of computers and ready to go. Daily mailings, however, will be limited to keep from further overburdening the Christmas-clogged postal system.

To dramatize and advertise the swiftness of its refunds, Ford hand-delivered a $232.10 refund on a 1972 LTD to the Richard Doan family of Detroit within an hour of the signing of the bill.

American Motors Corp., taking a calculated risk that Congress would go along with the President's proposal to repeal the tax, has been rebating it immediately on the purchase of left-over 1971 models. AMC says it has rebated approximately $7.1 million on some 45,000 passenger cars and Jeep vehicles.

General Motors and Chrysler buyers looking for rebates must fill out an application and this must go through a verification process at various division headquarters before a check is mailed. The same applies to buyers of 1972 American Motors' models.

It was not determined immediately how Volkswagen, Datsun and othr major importers would handle their refunds, but most industry sources forecast it would be by the application-and-verification process.

The tax is based on the vehicle's wholesale price and is paid directly by the manufacturer to the government. The tax is put into the price for which the dealer is billed and in turn is collected from the buyer and rebated to the manufacturer.

It may still be a few days before one can walk into a dealership and buy at a minus-tax price, one dealer explained.

"We'll have to work out with the manufacturer how we handle our inventory, billed to us plus-tax, before we can start taking it off." General Motors reported sales totaling 1.6 million, counting 23,910 imported Opels, between Aug. 11 and Nov. 30.

Chrysler estimated it has sold 473,000 cars since Aug. 15. Chrysler said it will begin mailing applications for refunds Dec. 20.

MR. AND MRS. DAN COSTON STURDIVANT
(Photo by Raun's)

Wedding Solemnized In Baptist Church Nov. 27

Connie Rae Stansell and Dan Coston Sturdivant exchanged wedding vows Nov. 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the First Baptist Church. Rev. Jack Riley, associate pastor of the church, officiated in the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Carroll W. Stansell, 3612 Hill Ave., Snyder and Mr. and Mrs. Ivy Sturdivant, Hermleigh.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was adorned in an empire bridal gown of peau de soie with a nylon organza overskirt edged with lace daisies. The leg of mutton sleeves were of imported lace and organza matching lace formed a stand-up collar. A pearl and beaded tiara attached to overlapping bows of peau de soie held the three tiered veil of white illusion. In her white satin slippers the bride carried pennies minted in the years of the birth of both the bride and the groom. She wore a blue garter and borrowed pearl earrings. The bride presented a red rose to each mother. She carried a cascade bouquet of white frenched carnations accented with green salal leaves with a cymbidium orchid corsage in the center. Two red roses were attached to the bouquet for the mothers.

Miss Caroline Stansell, sister of the bride, of Dayton was maid of honor. She wore an empire dress of red brocade fashioned with a scoop neck and nylon organza full sleeves with wide cuffs. White velvet ribbon formed the belt and streamers down the front. White shoes and headpieces of overlapping brocade bows attached to short veils completed her out-fit. She carried a Colonial bouquet of peppermint carnations with white streamers.

Misses Vickie Shroyer of Snyder, Chere Stansell, sister of the bride and Mrs. Kent McDonald of Livingston were bridesmaids. They wore costumes identical to that of the maid of honor.

Ray Bowling of Kilgore served as best man. Mike Luncefore of Dallas, Larry Farr of Lubbock and Richard Trimble of Bedford were groomsmen. Ushers were Roy Rabenauldt of Dallas, Venod Malhotra of Bombay, India and Royce Mason of Hermleigh.

The couple exchanged wedding vows before an altar centered with a brass candelabra holding 15 burning tapers and flanked by baskets of white glads and white roses with red velvet bows. Candelabra trees stood on either side of the baskets with additional basket bouquets flanked by two candelabras holding eight tapers. A kneeling bench was also used in the ceremony.

Mrs. Wayne Bethel, organist, presented selections including "Chime Prelude No. 3 B Flat Minor" by Herbeck, "My Heart Shall Rejoice" by Nordman, "Andante Religioso" by Thome, "Prelude" by Demorest, "He Is All I Need" by Buchhaus, "Consolation" by Peery, "Altar Candles" by Clarke, "The Trumpet Tune D Flat Major" by Purcell and "The Bridal Chorus" by Wagner and "Mendelssohn's Wedding March preceeded by Wedding Chimes."

Joe Jones, soloist, sang "Together Forever" by Malotte and "The Lord's Prayer."

The reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table was covered with white bridal satin cloth and edged with scallops of white tulle attached with clusters of tiny red flowers. Appointments of crystal and silver were used. A silver candelabra holding an arrangement of white carnations and red bridal wreath with red tapers centered the bridal table.

The four tiered wedding cake, topped with miniature bride and groom, was served by Molly Love of San Angelo and Louise Kerby of Dallas. Anita Buchanan of Waco presided at the bride's book.

The groom's table held appointments of brass with brass candle lamp trimmed with tiny red roses. Debbie Vicary of Hermleigh and Gayle Turner of Snyder presided.

For the wedding trip to New Orleans, the bride wore a red shirtwaist dress with quilted skirt and long full sleeves. The orchid corsage from the bridal bouquet completed her out-fit.

The couple will make their home at 1509A L'Atrium, Arlington.

The bride is a graduate of Snyder High School and attended Sam Houston State University in Huntsville. She is a member of Tau Beta Sigma.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Hermleigh High School and East Texas University. He is a member of Delta Sigma Pi. He is employed by Safelite Division of Rayal Industries, Dallas.

Out of town guests for the wedding were from Dallas, Waco, Livingston, San Angelo, Roscoe, Lubbock, Big Spring, Odessa, Kilgore, Abilene, Irving, Dayton, Arlington, Huntsville, Lovington, New Mexico and Lancaster, Ohio.

Peanut Butter Has Protein

COLLEGE STATION—The protein in peanut butter is of higher quality than most vegetable proteins and is a good supplementary food to include as often as possible in menu planning, according to Frances Reasonover, Extension foods and nutrition specialist.

Peanut butter also ranks near the top of the food list in energy, fats necessary for body balance, phosphorus, thiamine and niacine, she says.

Whole or halved peanuts can decorate the top of a butterschotch pie, other desserts and salads. And peanut butter can be used in soup sauces, gravy, mashed potatoes and milkshakes.

Baked goods that can be made tasty with peanut butter include pies, biscuits, muffins, rolls, cakes, cupcakes, coffeecakes, brownies and cookies.

For something new and different, a peanut butter pie crust might be a big hit with the family. Use 1 cup sifted flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅓ cup shortening, 3 tablespoons peanut butter and 2 to 3 tablespoons cold water. Cut shortening and peanut butter into salted flour. Add just enough water to form dough into a soft ball. Wrap in wax paper and chill about 15 minutes. Roll and shape into fluted crust.

Bake 10 to 15 minutes in a 400-degree oven. For the filling, try a peanut butter chiffon, vanilla, chocolate or butterscotch pudding. Garnish with finely chopped peanuts.

Or, a chocolate peanut butter milk shake will please children. To make four cups: blend or use electric mixer to smooth one pint of fanilla ice cream and a half cup cream peanut butter. Gradually add two cups of milk. Then stir in a half cup of instant chocolate flavored mix and serve.

Snowmobile Squad Set Up

MONTREAL (AP) — Police in suburban Brossard have set up a 210-man emergency volunteer snowmobile squad to help them during severe snowstorms this winter. One of the snowmobiles will be equipped with a red flasher and a radio.

Lady Milkman

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (AP) — Beverley Himes likes people and the outdoors so what better job could she find than delivering milk for a dairy?

Mrs. Himes, 29, said she would stagnate if she was "put behind a desk and saw nothing but files." She drove a dry-cleaning firm's truck in Thunder Bay, Ont. for three years before returning here in 1969.

She says that for a married woman with two school-age children delivering milk is almost the perfect job.

Taylor, Fraizer Are Wed

Susan Taylor and David Fraizer exchanged wedding vows Dec. 4 at 7:30 p.m. at Bethel Baptist Church. Rev. R. Virgil Mott, minister of the church, officiated in the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Derryberry, 3406 Forty-fourth St. and the groom is the son of Mrs. Mozell Fraizer of Snyder.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white street length A-line dress topped with a long sleeve jacket. The jacket was trimmed in rhinestones and tiny white pearl buttons. The shoulder length veil was attached to a white satin bow. The bridal bouquet, centered with an orchid, was atop a White Bible.

Mrs. Bobbie Page, sister of the bride, of Windom, was matron of honor. She wore a pink knit dress and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

David Rayvon, of Snyder, served as best man.

A fifteen branch brass candelabra centered the altar with seven branch candelabras on each side. Baskets of white gladioli graced each side of the altar.

Mrs. Virgil Mott played traditional wedding selections at the piano.

The reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. The serving table was covered with a white cloth and centered with an arrangement of pink carnations. The three tiered wedding cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom. Judy Graham and Marie Fraizer presided at the serving table. Bobbie Page registered wedding guests.

For the wedding trip to Graham, Ft. Worth and Dallas, the bride chose a blue two piece suit.

The couple will make their home at 1916 Coleman, Snyder.

The bride is a graduate of Snyder High School.

The groom attended school in Graham and is presently employed by Brooks Oil Well Service.

Marketing Tips

COLLETE STATION—Take advantage of high quality food available this week at economical prices—follow these marketing tips, suggests Gwendolyne Clyatt, Extension consumer marketing specialist.

An abundance of food specials in this week's market places pork as a leader in money value among red meat selections. Pork fanciers should enjoy the wide selections available, including semi-boneless hams, cuts from the shank portion of the regular bone-in ham, rib and pork chops, one-fourth loin cut into chops, whole pork loins, and rib and loin-end roasts.

Beef has taken a back position during the holiday season but adequate supplies are available. Some markets are featuring chuck roasts and steaks, rib roasts, boneless rolled roasts, ground beef and beef liver. Scattered features are on porterhouse, sirloin, T-bone, rib and round steaks.

At poultry counters, egg prices are up a bit in some stores and are likely to continue increasing as more holiday baking gets underway. Nevertheless, eggs are still marked with attractive price tags, since prices have been so low. Fryer chickens are not in much demand, but they are an excellent protein choice, pricewise.

Large displays of apples continue to be in the limelight at fruit counters. Many varieties are available for eating out-of-hand, general cooking or baking. Texas grapefruit and oranges are now in larger supplies and are most economical when bought "by-the-bag." Other good fruit choices include bananas, tangelos, tangerines, pears and cranberries.

Traditional fall vegetables in good supply include cabbage, carrots, potatoes, dry yellow onions, mustard, collards and turnip greens along with several varieties of hard shell squash.

HOPES TO CHANGE LIFE RHYTHM

Scientist Plans To Live Outside Time 200 Days

By GODFREY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

DEL RIO, Tex. (AP) — Some time in the next week—it may be on Dec. 19, his first wedding anniversary—a French scientist named Michel Siffre will kiss his pretty 20-year-old wife, Nathalie, and set off down the hill for work. When he sees her again it will be June and they won't have exchanged a word in those six months.

In an experiment as arduous as flying to the moon if less spectacular, Siffre will live for 200 days outside the earth time cycle which surrounds him.

Deep in a limestone cave under the rolling, rock-strewn hills of Southwest Texas, he'll seek to prove to the world that man can change his life rhythm from its current 24-hour cicle to a 48-hour cycle in which he can work 36 hours and sleep for 12.

So as to cut himself off completely from all time sense, Siffre will have no watch, no clock, no radio, no television, no newspapers. Anther world war could break out and he wouldn't know it.

His teammates in the base camp atop the hill he's living in won't even give him the time of day. They won't discuss the weather up there, for that might give some hint of season, daylight or darkness. He'll exist in a time vacuum.

But, up above in the tent laboratory manned on an old-fashioned earth cycle of 24 hours, Big Brother will watch throughout the experiment.

Electronic recording devices will note when the modern day caveman wakes and sleeps, eats and drinks, as the eight electrodes attached to his body trip signals to activate data machines watched by his fellow scientists aloft.

Siffre himself describes the purpose of it all as increasing knowledge on human biological rhythms, "especially the desynchronization phenomena observed in long-duration cave confinement and during jet flights over several time zones."

What he finds might prove invaluable for all who, in a sense, must live outside time in their working lives—astronauts, pilots of super-jets, and the crews of nuclear submarines.

Siffre hopes to find some mathematical connection between the various time stages so they can be controlled.

"If I can find the mechanism of the 48-hour rhythm, he said in an interview, "there is a chance we may be able to produce soon medicines that will act selectively on the sleep centers so as to produce it."

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) is interested in Siffre's work. The French Defense Ministry and the French Institute of Speleology are helping out with funds. Texas Instruments Inc. and other firms have contributed equipment.

A visit to the base camp in remote ranch country in Edwards County, about 50 miles northeast of Del Rio, found the place humming with activity.

After miles of rough dirt road and dusty tracks, the last part of the jury involves scrambling on foot up a steep and bolder-strewn hillside where rattlesnakes abound.

The three base tents are erected on wooden platforms atop the hill. Equipment and supplies are painfully hauled from below on a cable powered by the back axle of the supply truck.

There was already a hint of Christmas in the air. Nathalie had brought her husband a little plastic tree from San Antonio.

Siffre will celebrate Christmas with a special festive dinner when he "feels" the date is right. It may or may not be on Dec. 25. He may also miss his 33rd birthday on Jan. 3 by a day or two.

A slightly-built Frenchman, his hair cropped close and shaved in small circles where electrodes are attached, Michel Siffre says American scientists would never work under the discomforts his party endures. He's possibly right.

Every piece of equipment, including an old refrigerator, has been carried up by the flimsy cable or on men's backs. Americans would have used a helicopter.

Piles of equipment lie jumbled near the unloading platform at the top of the table haul. Cases of canned food are part of the half-ton or so Siffre will eat in the next six months. Plastic jerrycans contain 2,000 liters of water. There won't be any wine because, he says, that "upsets the sleep mechanism."

The water works out at just under three gallons a day. He hopes that will be enough.

"It's warm and dry down there in the cave—a constant temperature of 20 degrees centigrade (68 fahrenheit)—so I may drink more than in France."

One big blue tent serves as the electronics lab. It is packed with the intricate dials and tapes of recording equipment. A cable with 26 recording wires and a cranky field telephone link the scientists on the hill with their leader.

A second tent provides living quarters for Mrs. Siffre, the only woman, and the rest of the team. She is a pretty blonde whose large and lustrous brown eyes smile out at you from beneath the brim of an Australian bush-hat. She cooks for the men and makes shopping forays as far away as San Antonio in search of French wine.

Jacques Chabert, 30, from Barbizon near Paris, has himself spent four and a half months in a French cave. So has Philippe Englender, 31, who like the aest of the party is from Nice.

Gerard Cappa, 28, and Raymond Valente, 23, complete the team.

So how did this all-French expedition come to land in Texas?

Siffre says it's because the best cave for his experiment is here.

It wasn't easily located. About 40 caves were checked with the aid of American spelunkers, all the way from the Minneapolis area down to Houston.

Midnight Cave, which he finally picked, is hard to find.

The cave is surprisingly large—about 70 feet long by 50 feet wide and 15 feet high—and a fairy world of stalagmites and stalactities. The dirt floor is level, chalky and dry.

Passages lead out of the chamber to other parts of the system, to which earlier explorers gave romantic names—the Castle of Oz, the Onyx Palace, the Pancake Room, and the Corkscrew.

Siffre is convinced there are no snakes—and no bats.

Bats are important because they could ruin his experiment. The time-oriented things will insist on flying out of their home cave each evening at dusk, providing the kind of time reference that Siffre is forbidden.

Siffre will live in the cave in a small red plastic tent erected on a wooden platform.

He expects to spend much of his time writing a doctoral thesis on the physical and psychological behavior of man under conditions of close confinement.

There will be a daily log to keep, books to read, records to hear, but above all five hours of scientific tests to be made each day. Attached by a kind of umbilical cord to the instruments on the surface. He can't wander off in exploration.

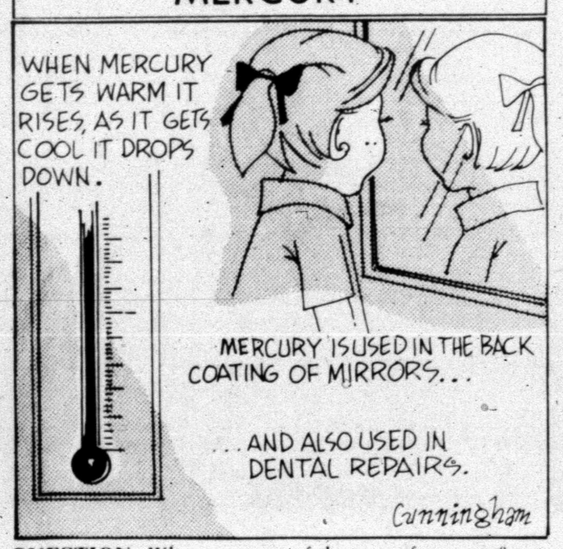

Five times a day he will fire off an airgun to test his performance and reactions. Two times at least, he will mount his captive bicycle and pedal for exercise.

Light comes from 100-watt bulbs, supplied with direct current from a small generator on the hillside

He says he doesn't want to try to produce the changed time rhythm but prefers to "let it appear spontaneously." He reckons that could occur in about three weeks.

"Of course, I'll have my moments of depression and boredom down there," Siffre said. "But I am curious to know what happens and I must do the experiment myself."

Junior Editors Quiz on MERCURY

QUESTION: What are some of the uses of mercury?

* * *

ANSWER: Mercury or quicksilver is a metallic element which is distinguished from the other metals by the fact that it is liquid at ordinary temperatures. The larger part of mercury is extracted from cinnabar, a mineral found near hot springs and in low temperature veins, usually near volcanic rocks. There are large deposits of cinnabar in Spain and in the coastal ranges of the western United States.

Mercury is a silvery white color with a striking metallic luster and is used in many ways. It is important in mining chiefly for the extraction of gold from the ore. It is used in many chemical industries and by scientists. It is valuable in the field of explosives. In photography, mercury vapor lamps are commonly used. Mercury is used for certain types of electrical switches and also in neon signs. It is used for coating the back of mirrors. The fluid in thermometers and barometers is mercury. It is used extensively in the field of medicine. There are ointments and antiseptics with a mercury base used for various ailments. A mercury preparation is used in dropsy because injections of this substance curtails water in the tissues. Calomel, another medicine made from mercury, is used as a purgative.

Rehnquist Confirmation Is Victory For Nixon

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate confirmation of William Rehnquist has given President Nixon another victory in his effort to make the Supreme Court more conservative, in line with his own judicial philosophy.

The Senate Friday approved the nomination 68-26, close to the margin that had been expected.

Nixon, congratulated Rehnquist by phone following the vote and issued a statement saying he was "extremely gratified" that the nominations of both Rehnquist and Lewis F. Powell Jr. had been confirmed.

Nixon said they would "bring to the bench such an exceptional degree of integrity and intellect and so keen an understanding of the judicial process that the quality of the court decisions should be enhanced for years to come."

Rehnquist opponents, led by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., had hoped to make a better showing, but liberal Democrats such as Adlai Stevenson III of Illinois, John O. Pastore of Rhode Island, William Proxmire of Wisconsin, and Missouri's Stuart Symington and Thomas J. Eagleton voted for confirmation.

Only three Republicans voted against the nomination—Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts, Clifford P. Case of New Jersey, and Jacob K. Javits of New York.

Over-all, 30 Democrats voted for confirmation and 23 against. Thirty-eight Republicans backed the nomination.

Rehnquist, 47, an assistant attorney and former Phoenix, Ariz., lawyer, was nominated to succeed retired Justice John M. Harlan.

The Senate voted 89-1 Monday to confirm Powell's nomination to succeed the late Justice Hugo L. Black. Powell is a Richmond, Va., attorney and former president of the American Bar Association.

Two Nixon appointees, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Associate Justice Harry A. Blackmun, already are serving on the court.

When he announced the nominations Oct. 21, Nixon described Rehnquist and Powell as judicial conservatives and said he hoped their appointment would strengthen the "peace forces" in society.

Nixon pledged during his 1968 campaign that he would try to restore greater balance to the Supreme Court.

Bayh and other Rehnquist opponents chalenged his commitment to civil rights and civil liberties but gave up their fight Friday after the Senate rejected, 70-22, Bayh's motion to postpone a vote on confirmation until Jan. 18.

Civil rights and labor leaders who took no position on Powell's nomination strongly urged that Rehnquist be rejected.

Their attacks were described by Rehnquist supporters as totally unfounded.

Doctors To Decide On Dowdy

BALTIMORE (AP) — Doctors will decide Sunday whether Rep. John Dowdy, D-Tex., will be allowed to take the witness stand when his bribery-conspiracy trial resumes the next day in federal court here, according to an aide to the congressman.

"We expect Mr. Dowdy to be able to take the stand, but the final decision is up to his doctors," Jerry Yost, the Dowdy aide, said Friday night.

The trial has been in recess since Tuesday when Dowdy, 59, became ill in the courtroom and was taken to University of Maryland Hospital, where doctors said he was suffering from a stomach ailment.

He was listed in satisfactory condition Friday night.

Yost said Dowdy probably would be released from the hospital Sunday.

Dowdy, who has represented the same East Texas district in the House of Representatives for the past 19 years, was indicted by a federal grand jury here of conspiring to accept a $25,000 bribe from Maryland businessman Nathan Cohen in September, 1965.

According to the indictment, Cohen offered the bribe in an effort to avoid prosecution for fraud in connection with the operation of his Monarch Construction Co., a now-defunct home repair firm in Silver Spring.

Cohen has already testified that he arranged to give Dowdy the $25,000 in a briefcase at the Atlanta, Ga., airport on Sept. 22, 1965.

In addition to bribery, Dowdy is charged in the eight-count indictment with conspiracy to obstruct justice, interstate transportation of bribe money, and five counts of perjury before the federal grand jury.

Drama, Choral Groups Schedule 'Music Man'

Snyder High School's drama and choral departments will combine talents to present the musical, The Music Man, in the high school auditorium on Friday evening, Jan. 28, and Saturday evening, Jan. 29. This will be the first time in about five years the two departments have pooled their talents to stage a musical extravaganza.

The Music Man, a Broadway hit musical of the 1950s, is a figment of the imagination of Meredith Wilson. Setting for the musical is a small midwestern town, River City, Iowa. The story revolves around a charlatan salesman, Professor Harold Hill, who hoodwinks towns people into organizing and financing a boys' band. This quack, a pretender of considerable musical knowledge and ability, schemes to take money from the town's citizens to fleece his own pockets. The story's plot takes many an interesting turn as Marion Paroo, a local piano teacher, becomes skeptical of the sharp salesman's pretended musical abilities and is suspicious of the intentions of his pretended civic interest and operations. To complicate the plot, Hill becomes secretly enamored with this pretty miss.

Mike Dennis will play the part of the crooked salesman. Vena Genuchi has been selected for the role of Marion Paroo. Joe Bullard is cast as Marcellus, Hill's partner in crime. All three students chosen to play the leading roles are members of this year's Senior class. Mike is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E.B. Dennis. Vena is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Marvin Genuchi. Joe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Bullard.

Voices of Donald Burk, Mack Walker, David Poe and Johonnas Eicke will blend as a barbershop quartette.

Chortus members will include Julia Griffin, Jane Ann Harrington, Elizabeth Miller, C'Ann Donaldson, Donna Gray, Susan Ferrell, Patti Pointer, Sheila McCann, Judy Shelburne, Jan Shelburne, Debbie Sadler, Pam Smith, Mary Ray, Anita Felan, Vicki Hall, Wanda Raborn, Judy Hendrix, Terry Bowden, Jim Shelburne, Andy Maldonado, Paul Hook, Tommy Rylander, Bill Giles, Terry Jones, Moses Braziel, Toby Black, Cleo Wolf, Kyle Rosson, George Chamblee, Steve Miller, Joe Rios, Steve Randell and Bill Garrett. Pianists for the choral numbers will be Jana Tharp and Ralph Wesson.

A dance troupe will also be featured. The "kids" dance group will include Donna Messimer, Cynthia Shiebel, Allana Patterson, Holly Pitts, Paula Bell, Paula Baldwin, Jane Anne Harrington, Pam Smith, Emilio Vargas, Mark May, Robert McCommon and Danny Martin. Elaine Lambert, local dance instructor, is working with the group of dancers has choreographed the dance routines.

Several instrumentalists, members of the Snyder High School Stage band, will be in the orchestra pit and will be heard in special spots during the performance.

Mid-Cities Area Being Transformed

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — The so-called mid-cities area between Dallas and Fort Worth is being transformed into a major tourist attraction for both cities.

Cow pastures and empty lots are being converted to amusement parks and stadiums, which some observers estimate should bring in more than $100 million annually in another decade or less.

The past few months saw the opening of Texas Stadium in Irving as home of the Dallas Cowboys, and the refurbishing of Turnpike Stadium as home of the incoming Washington Senators.

Records Hurt

NEW YORK (AP) — Starting with the 1973 edition, the Guiness Book of Records will no longer list outlandish drinking and eating feats because people have been hurt trying to better them.

One man caused his ulcer to perforate in Bristol, England, by trying to break the record for beer drinking while standing on his head.

Medical Records Keepers Needed

Career Corner

by Joyce Lain Kennedy

what job would you like to see explored in this column?

Dear Joyce: Please give information concerning the RRL (Registered Record Librarian) which is in the medical records field. -- E.H., Blytheville, Ark.

Despite the nation's economic doldrums, there is still strong demand for trained medical record specialists -- male or female -- according to Elizabeth Price, director of professional services for the American Medical Record Association (AMRA).

And this is a field where a woman can work part time or return to work in later years.

WHAT DATA KEEPERS DO. The medical record administrator (formerly called medical record librarian) handles the individual medical records of hospital and other health facility patients. (This is not the same occupation as medical librarian, one who works chiefly with books, magazines and other publications.)

A medical record is a permanent document of the history and progress of one person's illness or injury, made to preserve information of medical, scientific, legal and planning value. It is a compilation of observations and findings recorded by the patient's physician and other professional members of the medical team. These entries and reports originate at various points throughout the hospital, clinic, nursing home, health center or other health care facility.

THROUGH A NETWORK of communications systems, the information is entered in the individual patient's record. X-ray and lab reports, cardiogram tracings, diet orders and pulmonary function tests are examples of pertinent data included. This vital medical profile constitutes the patient's own unique medical history. The medical record administrator is responsible for providing a system for acquiring, analyzing, storing, and retrieving information so that it can be readily available when needed.

CHANGE OF THE NAME. To become a top professional -- Registered Record Administrator (RRA) -- you must complete the required education and pass a national certifying exam. Until October of this year, the RRA was called a Registered Record Librarian (RRL). The name was changed to more accurately reflect the nature of the work.

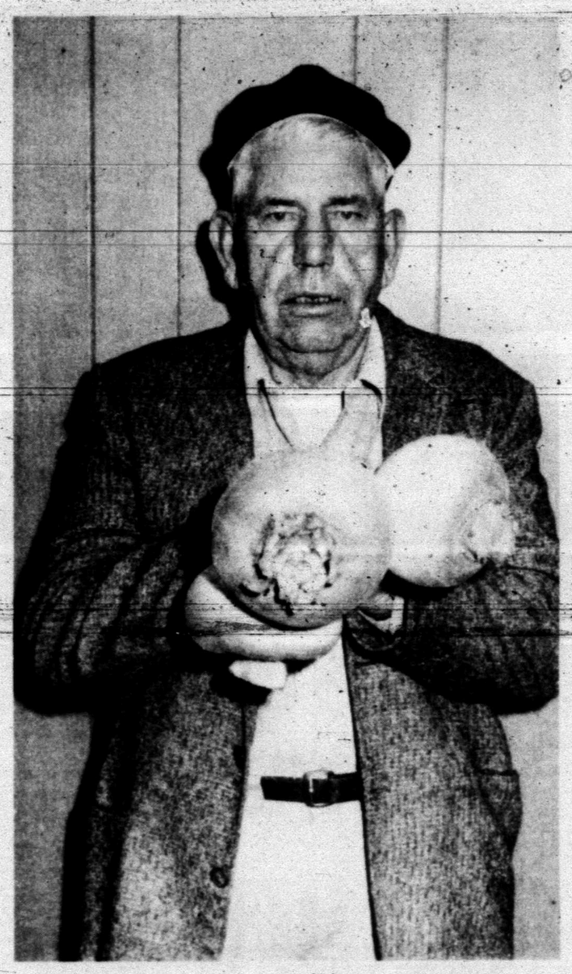

EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS in 36 approved colleges fall into 2 main groups: (1) For the high school graduate -- complete a 4-year college program leading to a bachelor's degree with a major in medical record administration (course titles vary from school to school). (2) For the college graduate -- those with a bachelor's degree in a related academic area, and who have taken required courses in biological sciences, may enter postgraduate programs, 12 months in length, which offer a certificate in medical record administration.

Some 31,000 hospitals and other medical installations employ medical record personnel. There are an estimated 3,600 RRA's today, and RRA's earn between $9,000 and $25,000, with the 1971 median salary being $10,300.

MEDICAL RECORD TECHNICIANS assist medical record administrators; they handle the less complex phases of the work. Salary range for medical record technicians is $7-15,000, with the 1971 median salary being $7,200. There are some 3,500 accredited technicians today. To qualify, you complete a 1- or 2-year program offered by community or junior colleges, or hospital schools. Or, you can complete a correspondence course offered by the American Medical Record Association. Whether you prepare in school or by mail, you must also pass a national certifying exam to become accredited as a medical record technician.

FOR MORE INFORMATION. The American Medical Record Association will send additional free career literature to readers who request by postcard to Joyce Lain Kennedy at this newspaper. Specify whether you are interested in becoming a professional-level medical record administrator . . . or in becoming a medical record technician. Ask for "MEDICAL RECORD CAREERS."

"Santa Claus" Seeks Family

By JIM MCCALL
Associated Press Writer

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The newspaper advertisement signed "Santa Claus" seeks two small children and their parents to share Christmas, including turkey and gifts, with a widowed father and his young son.

"The past few Christmases we've been alone," Paul Harris of North Little Rock said as he explained why he and his son Ted, 9, had placed the ad.

"And you know, it's hard to get into the Christmas spirit if you are alone—even if you love each other very much."

Harris, an automobile salesman, said his wife was killed in an auto accident six years ago and his two older sons have married and moved away.

"When the older boys were home, there was always a lot of life," he said Friday. "Since my wife was killed I've missed those things.

"I guess maybe you could say I'm a little selfish in wanting some companionship for my son and me on Christmas morning," Harris said. "But the child is what I'm primarily concerned with. Really the joy of Christmas is in giving. Besides it's hard for two people to eat a whole turkey."

Harris also said the project would teach Ted the "joys of giving."

He said the ad specified that the children must be between the ages of 3 and 9 because "that's when their eyes really light up."

"What I'd really like to do is find a case where there's been a hardship," he said. "I just have a moderate income and this sort of thing probably wouldn't be anything special to people who have a lot."

The ad has been running in the Arkansas Democrat for two days.

"Ted is very excited about it," Harris said. "He asks every day if anyone has answered the ad, but we just haven't had time yet for letters to begin arriving."

School's Crisis Is Eased

DALLAS (AP) — A committee which is nursing Dallas Baptist College through a financial crises reports operating expenses at the school are "being brought under control and we are optimistic about the future."

The committee reported Friday to the Texas Baptist Executive Board, the body which appointed it.

Committee leader Bill Carden of Waco said an emergency allocation solved the crises the school faced in the form of an involuntary bankruptcy suit. Carden said the committee wants to have a plan of long-term financing by the next executive board meeting.

The executive board in other action approved a $3million construction loan for Baptist Memorial Hospital in San Antonio, elected a Plano pastor as new board chairman and announced a major staff promotion.

James Basden, secretary to the Human Welfare Commission of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, said the building loan would defray costs of constructing a six-story administration and office building and a 550-car parking garage.

The new facilities will be built under the charter of the hospital-owned M and S Corp. A commercial lending source will supply the funds.

The board elected the Rev. Travis Berry, pastor of First Baptist Church in Plano, as chairman to succeed Dr. James Harris of University Baptist Church in Fort Worth.

The pastor of Congress Avenue Baptist Church in Austin, the Rev. Gordon Hays, is the board's new vice chairman. Dr. E. Eugene Greer, Jr. was named program planning associate for the board's administrative staff.

Jews Celebrate Ancient Religious Rights Triumph

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Once upon a time, a mighty ruler sought to impose a state religion on all people. Many submitted and bowed down to the state idols. But a tiny, stubborn band of hill folk refused.

It cost them dearly, but the gain was great—the first victory in history for the principle of religious freedom.

As Jews around the world begin celebrating that ancient triumph this Sunday night in their festival of Hanukkah, Rabbi Marc H. Tanenbaum said it "assumes greater relevance with each passing year."

For the struggle for religious rights still goes on as it has ever since, and does today in many parts of the world, including Christians and Jews in the Soviet Union and elsewhere.

"As it was in those days, so may it be in our time," commented Rabbi Tannenbaum, inter-religious director of the American Jewish Committee.

In those days, the rustic little guerrilla band of Judah Maccabee fought for three years against the huge Syrian army, finally winning victory in 165 B.C.

That triumph saved Judaism, the "mother religion" of all monotheism, including Christianity and Islam, from being wiped out of existence.

In commemorating that event, the eight-day celebration of Hanukkah is a bright and cheery festival, including songs, games, gift-giving, prayers and pageants recalling the immemorial fight for faith.

At the time it occurred, the Syrian empire had spread over the entire Middle East, and ordered the extermination of all vestiges of Judaism so that subjects would be "one people" worshipping the state pantheon of pagan gods.

Thousands of Jews were slain. Scripture scrolls were torn up and burned. Observance of the Sabbath was forbidden. A statue of the idol Jupiter was set up in the Jerusalem Temple.

Pagan altars were erected all over Israel, and patrols deployed to force villagers to bow to the new "gods." But the aging Maccabee, father of five sons, refused to kneel, and instead attacked the Syrian commander and killed him.

He and his sons fled to the Glilean hills, collecting a small army of guerrilla fighters. Their relentless three-year struggle marked the first successful use of guerrilla tactics-lightning strikes, ambushes, night raids, harassment.

In the final battle, the little army of 3,000 routed a Syrian force of 47,000.

Legend says there was only enough oil for the redidicated Temple lamps to burn one day, but miraculously they burned eight days until more oil could be made.

In observing the holiday, Jewish families light one additional candle each night, beginning with the first Sunday night, until on the final evening, eight tapers glow in the menorah.

Panhandle Counties Quarantined

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Thirty-four Panhandle counties have been quarantined by the chairman of the Texas Animal Health Commission because of an outbreak of cattle scab.

The technical name of the disease is psoroptic scabies.

George W. Apple Sr. ordered the quarantine Friday, prohibiting all movement of cattle in any of the following counties:

Violation of the quarantine is a misdemeanor.

The quarantine went into effect at 8 a.m. Friday and will remain in effect, Apple said, "until further notice."

The only exceptions will be movement of cattle from "non-quarantined herds," where they are accompanied by a certificate of inspection issued by state or federal personnel or accredited veterinarians and dated within 10 days before they are moved. The certificate must say the cattle apparently are free of scabies infestation or exposure, Apple said.

Wells Are Logged

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Four wildcat oil wells—one each in the Houston, Corpus Christi, San Antonio No. 2 and Kilgore No. 6 districts—were drilled in Texas during the past week, the Railroad Commission reported Saturday.

That rised the total of oil wildcat wells to 238 for the year, a decrease of 64 from this time last year. Wildcats are wells drilled on unproven territory.

The commission said four wildcat gas wells were drilled for a yearly total of 344, or 147 fewer than a year ago. The new gas wildcats included three in the Houston District and one in the Kilgore No. 5 District.

The commission reported 107 oil wells were completed during the week for a yearly total of 4,560, or 173 fewer than a year ago. Twenty-four gas wells were completed for a yearly total of 1,719, or 14 fewer than a year ago.

A total of 295 wells were plugged during the week, including 78 dry holes.

Grocery Cart Thefts Costly

DALLAS (AP) — The grocery cart is just about everything else as well. And its cost to area stores runs in the vicinity of $60,000 a month from thefts, one grocery chain executive estimates.

Each cart costs about $30. Few if any persons are ever prosecuted for theft of the carriers.

Gun Runner Is Charged

HOUSTON (AP) — Don Wagers, 29, was being held in lieu of $100,000 bond today after being charged Friday with running stolen guns into Mexico.

Wagers, who is originally from Edinburg, Tex., police said, is charged with taking guns stolen from a pawn shop here to Reynosa, Mexico, last May.

The FBI said Wagers is also wanted on a fugitive warrant from Missouri where he is due to begin serving a seven year term for grand theft.

Tailback Eric Allen of Michigan State led the Big Ten in rushing last season with 18 touchdowns and 1,494 yards.

Quarterback Maurie Daigneau of Northwestern led the Big Ten in passing last season by gaining 1,733 yards via the air.

Firemen Charged With Arson

HOUSTON (AP) -- Seven members of a volunteer fire department here were charged Friday with arson in fires they allegedly set out of boredom, arson investigator George Caldwell said.

"There probably will be several more warrants in the near future," Caldwell said. He said the fires had been started in rural areas since 1968.

All had been in vacant buildings and there had been no injuries, he said.

He attributed a minimum of 30 to 40 fires to the men.

Investigators became suspicious Oct. 2 when a haybarn burned although there appeared to be no natural fire hazard. Several spent shotgun shells found in the barn were traced to the volunteers, Caldwell said.

The monetary loss in the fires has not been set, Caldwell said.
