Congress expected to restore of minimum Social Security

WASHINGTON (AP) — Concurring with President Reagan's change of heart, congressional conferees are endorsing restoration of the minimum Social Security benefit for the 3 million current recipients who stood to lose it March 1.

But Senate and House negotiators agreed Monday that most new Social Security beneficiaries will not be eligible for the $122-a-month minimum benefit after Jan. 1.

The Social Security legislation was expected to be taken up today by the full House and Senate, which must approve the agreement. It was expected that some effort would be made in the House to restore the benefit for future recipients as well.

The agreement also would permit borrowing among the three Social Security trust funds until January 1983, a limit designed to force Congress to find more more comprehensive solutions to financing problems of the system by then.

The conferees also agreed to a Senate provision putting a new tax on sick pay.

Congress eliminated the minimum benefit, at Reagan's request, when it passed 1982 budget legislation in August. But a public outcry prompted Reagan to reverse himself and call for its restoration.

PEOPLE WHO WERE RECEIVING the minimum benefit prior to November were to have lost it after their February check.

The estimated 5,000 people who were to have come on the rolls since Nov. 1 have not been receiving benefits while the cutoff was pending and it was unclear whether they now will get payments for November and December.

Under terms of the conference agreement, which sets Jan. 1 as the cutoff date for new recipients, about 5,000 more people will get the minimum benefit than if a Nov. 1 cutoff date in present law had been carried over in the revised version, said Robert Myers, deputy Social Security commissioner.

Under the agreement, members of religious orders would be able to come on the minimum benefit rolls for the next 10 years.

"While the conference agreement does not achieve all our objectives, it constitutes a major victory with regard to our No. 1 concern: the protection of minimum benefits for those now receiving them," said House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill. "It represents a first step in making good on President Reagan's own campaign commitment to protect Social Security benefits."

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATOR John Svahn also expressed pleasure at the conferees' action. "They have agreed to restore the minimum benefit as the president requested," he said. "In addition, by taking the action on interfund borrowing, they have recognized we have a significant fiscal problem in financing Social Security."

The conferees discussed the possible need for a lame-duck session to pass long-term solutions if Congress takes no such action prior to congressional elections in November 1982.

"The bottom line is, we're trying to avoid it as a campaign issue," remarked Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Sit-ins reported across Poland

By The Associated Press

Sit-in strikes were reported in major industries across Poland, but the protests against the government's crackdown on Solidarity apparently were far short of the general strike urged by militants in the independent trade union.

Solidarity and other sources reported strikes Monday in the Silesian coal mines, steel mills in Warsaw, Katowice and Krakow; the big Lenin shipyards in Gdansk, where the union was born in the strike wave of 1980; most factories in Poznan and Wroclaw, the big Ursus tractor factory outside Warsaw and other factories in the capital.

The ruling military council Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski named when he declared martial law tried to check the protests by putting the steel and coal industries and other factories under military control. This made strikers liable to prison terms or even the death penalty.

POLICE AND TROOPS surrounded several of the struck plants, including steel mills in Warsaw and Krakow, witnesses reported. Warsaw Radio, in a broadcast monitored in West Germany, said there were between 20 and 50 arrests of "irresponsible Solidarity extremists" at the big Huta steel mill in Katowice.

Solidarity militants distributed leaflets calling for a general strike Monday, the first work day after the Communist government proclaimed a state of emergency, suspended the 9.5-million-member union that had been challenging it for 16 months and rounded up thousands of union leaders and activists.

One member said the union was stunned into inaction by the removal of its leaders, hence the sporadic response to the strike call. But independent reports from Warsaw said the shock appeared to be wearing off, and the survivors of the roundup Sunday were beginning to try to reorganize. However, they were hampered by the government's disruption of communications throughout the country.

Normal communication lines abroad of The Associated Press and other Western news agencies also were cut Monday.

ALTHOUGH THE GOVERNMENT claimed Sunday that Solidarity's national leader, Lech Walesa, was not among those arrested and interned, he was reported being held incommunicado outside Warsaw after the government apparently failed to get him to appeal to the workers not to strike. Union sources said they didn't want him to make any statement unless it was recorded at a factory before witnesses to insure that he was not under "psychological duress."

The government media sought to minimize the Polish protest against the crackdown.

"Calm continues to prevail in most of the country," said Polish Television's evening news, monitored in London.

Polish Television film broadcast by a West German network Monday night showed public transport functioning in Warsaw and people going to work over snow-covered streets.

"Only in some areas is Solidarity trying to create unrest," said the Warsaw correspondent of neighboring Czechoslovakia's Radio Prague. "... Supplies and transport are approximately the same as in preceding days."

PAP, the official Polish news agency, said the country was quiet and most factories were working normally. But it admitted there were exceptions.

Another Warsaw broadcast monitored in Vienna carried an appeal from the health ministry to all medical students to report for duty at health centers, indicating that workers in the center were striking.

In Warsaw, the public flocked to food shops and cleaned them out Monday, many of them by 10 a.m. Warsaw Radio said there was little food in the storehouses, and farmers might be "forced to deliver such goods to the state."

IT WAS BITTER COLD WITH snow covering the ground, but the mood of those on the Warsaw streets was reported grim rather than anxious. There were Christmas decorations in the shops and more butter was for sale, prompting one middle-aged woman to remark, "They've given us something nice for Christmas this year." But the sale and consumption of alcohol were banned.

Western diplomats who tried to go from Warsaw to Gdansk Monday reported they were turned back. But they said they saw many tanks along the highway.

Four-man army patrols walked the streets of the capital, but there seemed to be fewer than on Sunday. The troops and the police were generally cheerful and polite.

But Warsaw Television in a broadcast commentary warned of "very severe consequences" for those who failed to observe martial-law regulations. It said most people realized the seriousness of the situation and were reconciled to the new conditions, but there had some cases of failure to understand.

Another Polish television report said the police in a raid late Saturday on Solidarity's Warsaw headquarters found instructions for staging acts of subversion.

The broadcast said union leaders were told if government forces attacked factories, the workers should put up barricades, start fires, dig up streets, harass patrols and "carry out subversion in the enemy's rear."

THOUSANDS MARCHED IN major West European cities to express support for Solidarity, and similar rallies were planned in the United States. Western governments generally conceded there was little they could do as long as the Soviet Union did not intervene militarily, but the U.S. government delayed approval of a $200-million food package for Poland "until the situation clarifies."

Israel braces for attack after annexation

MAJDAL SHAMS, Golan Heights (AP) — Israeli settlers on the Golan Heights cleaned out bomb shelters today as their government braced for possible military trouble from Syria following Israel's annexation of the Golan Heights.

U.N. spokesman Hugo Rocha, who visited U.N. peacekeeping forces on the Golan, said there were "no extraordinary movements in the area."

Lt. Gen. Raphael Eytan, Israel's military chief of staff, was called home in the middle of a five-day visit to Egypt, and the Defense Ministry declared that the army had taken "all necessary steps" against possible Syrian troop movements or guerrilla attacks on the Golan settlements, Israel Radio said.

In Damascus, the Syrian defense minister, Maj. Gen. Mustafa Tlass, declared "the sword is the best answer" to the annexation. He made the statement as he emerged from a four-hour emergency session of the Syrian government.

ISRAELI SETTLERS AND some Druse Arabs were elated that Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government had rushed the Golan annexation bill through parliament Monday, but there was concern that Syria might attempt some military action against the area which Israel conquered from Syria in 1967.

Meir Vaish of Katzrin, the largest of 31 Israeli settlements on the Golan, said the Israelis had spontaneously started cleaning their bomb shelters during the night.

"We have always lived with the fear of attack and we believe there won't be hostilities," Vaish said. "But some kind of reaction may come and we should be ready."

Israel was concerned that Syria might move forces into the Golan Heights in violation of a 1974 separation-of-forces agreement. The pact limits forces along the Golan buffer zone to two army brigades with a maximum of 75 tanks and 36 short-range artillery pieces.

THE LEGISLATION WAS introduced Monday in the Knesset, Israel's parliament, without advance notice. Begin, in a wheelchair recovering from a broken hip joint, piloted it through the necessary three votes and committee consideration without delay.

The prime minister told the Knesset he had given the U.S. government no warning of his move because he knew it would object.

"Why put the Americans in a difficult position?" he asked. "To invite their 'no' and then not take it into account would not be politically wise."

The Golan Heights is a bleak, volcanic plateau, 458 square miles in size, with a population of about 15,000 Arabs and several thousand Jews who have built farm settlements there since 1967.

It overlooks Israeli agricultural settlements in Northern Galilee, and Israel conquered it in the 1967 war because Syrian batteries there had been shelling the settlements.

THE NEW LAW EXTENDS Israeli "law, jurisdiction and administration" over the territory, the same procedure used to annex Arab East Jerusalem after it was captured in 1967. The votes in the Knesset were 60-17 on first reading and 63-21 on the two final readings, after three hours of committee consideration.

The bill was supported by Begin's conservative Likud Bloc and its allies in the coalition government as well as by some members of the opposition Labor Party. It was opposed by a scattering of splinter parties and other Laborites, but a number of Laborites were absent because of the lack of advance notice.

Israel used the same method in 1967 to annex Arab East Jerusalem, which it captured from Jordan in the same war.

The annexation seemed aimed at appeasing Israeli nationalists who have mounted a massive campaign to block Israel's withdrawal next April from the Sinai Peninsula in compliance with its 1979 peace treaty with Egypt.

Pate chosen to design courthouse annex

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

Although the site of the proposed county courthouse annex is still undetermined, Midland County Commissioners did agree to employ Walter F. Pate AIA Architecture & Planning to do the designing during a marathon meeting Monday.

The decision came after talk of building an annex had dragged on since the mid-1970s. Pate was one of several architectural firms to give presentations to the commissioners during the past year.

"We are pleased that he (Pate) was selected," Commissioner C. DeWayne Davis said this morning. "We must have had seven or eight (firms) that came and made presentations throughout the year.

"He was the most local in every way," he added.

According to Commissioner Durward Wright, Pate will look into the comparative costs and study alternatives of the two proposed sites before bringing reports before the commissioners for discussion and approval.

THE TWO SITES BEING considered include one adjacent to the north side of the county courthouse and the second would be county-owned property along Baird Street, between Illinois and Texas avenues.

Davis said the "feasibility study" includes many alternatives. The original intention for the Baird Street location was to provide sufficient parking, he said. There was also discussion about providing space for the jail, the sheriff's department and a judicial wing at that location.

Commissioners also spent more than two hours discussing amendments to various department budgets, including Midland County Library, the district attorney's office, the tax office, the county attorney's office, district judges and justices of the peace and the constable's office.

The library was awarded a $600 increase allowing the catalogue librarian to make the same monthly salary as the reference librarian; the district attorneys were budgeted a $40,000 increase, which includes salaries for two new attorneys and the change of a part-time secretary into a full-time employee.

Although no figure was amended to the tax office budget, Frances Shuffield, Midland County tax assessor-collector, explained the difficulty of keeping employees without some sort of a salary increase.

"WE'RE CONSTANTLY TRAINING new people," she explained. "As a result, many of our employees are working two jobs — the one they're training an employee for and their regular job. They are carrying a double workload."

Wright, agreeing, said, "We are in an unusual situation in Midland.

"We can look around us and see people out there who may hire our own people away from us. The demand is greater than the supply."

An increase in office supplies from $1,000 to $2,000 was awarded to District Judge Pat Baskin. Also, some extra $200 was given his office for phone installations and bills.

Rosenelle Cherry, county clerk, was given $25,000 for her office's microfilming of books.

In other items on the agenda, the speed limit of 55 was reduced to 40 mph on County Road 65, beginning at Loop 250, and at County Road 124 West and 125 West from County Road 1308 north to 1309 North.

Bids for two cars for the constable's office, three for the investigator's office, one compact car for the juvenile probation department and four radios were approved.

Due to a city request, a change in the name of the Westgate Addition to Wakefield Addition also was approved by commissioners.

Drowning ruled accident

DALLAS (AP) — The father of a Marine Corps recruit who drowned during water survival training says he is "disappointed but not surprised" by a Marine report that calls the death accidental.

"There is nothing they can do to satisfy me about what happened out there," Artie Christian said. "But they should look into it truthfully ... This whole matter deals with the integrity of the Corps."

His son, Pvt. Randall C. Christian, 18, of Dallas, drowned Aug. 27 during training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot in San Diego, Calif.

Marine headquarters in Washington said Monday that the commandant of the Marine Corps, Gen. Robert Barrow, has approved a three-member investigating board's conclusions that the recruit's death "was the result of a training accident, and there was no misconduct, or criminally culpable act."

Midlanders can expect fair weather

While Jack Frost nipped Midlanders' car windshields this morning, the forecast is expected to be fair through Wednesday with mild afternoons and and cool nights during the next couple of days.

According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, the mercury will dip once again to the mid-30s tonight and should slowly climb into the low 60s Wednesday.

The record high and overnight low for today is about a 23-degree spread. Monday's high of 51 was rather cool compared to the record high of 77 degrees set in 1933. The overnight low of 30 was quite a bit warmer than the record low of 17 marked in 1951.

Westerly winds will calm tonight to 5-10 mph, becoming northwesterly 15-20 mph Wednesday.

Parade of Homes viewing hours changed

Two Dallas police officers shot while serving drug warrant

DALLAS (AP) — Two veteran police officers were reported in serious but stable condition after being shot while approaching a house to serve a drug warrant, says police spokesman Bob Shaw.

Shots were fired from the house about 5:15 p.m. Monday as six policemen walked up to the house on Dennison Street in a West Dallas housing project, Shaw says.

Sgt. Thomas A. Wafer, 41, was shot in the lower right abdomen and Investigator Jack Goulding, 41, was shot in the lower left side and a bullet grazed his head, Shaw said.

Remains of American soldier unearthed near Seoul

By RON HARRIST
Associated Press Writer

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Relatives of an American soldier killed 31 years ago in the Korean War said Monday they never gave up hope he was alive until they learned his remains had been found south of Seoul.

"I know I never gave up hope, never gave up praying," said Jean Booth, a sister of the dead soldier, Master Sgt. John R. McInnis.

Mrs. Booth and other members of the family gathered at a sister's home near Prentiss, Miss., on Monday after learning through an Associated Press report that her brother's remains had been found at a former battleground south of Seoul.

"This has really been nagging at our family," Dixie Magee, another sister, said by telephone. "I think this will finally give us some peace."

The last time the two sisters and other family members saw McInnis, then about 31, was in 1948 after he had re-enlisted in the Army and was sent to Japan.

Mrs. Magee said the family now hoped to have a belated funeral service after her brother's remains are returned home. They had not heard from military authorities on Monday.

Chi Kap-chong, chairman of the non-profit, non-political U.N. Korean War Allies Association, said the remains were identified as those of McInnis with the help of U.S. military authorities. McInnis had been listed by the Pentagon as missing in action during the Korean War.

The association believed he was assigned to the 3rd Battalion, 21st Regiment, 24th Infantry Division. The division was the first American unit to see battle in the Korean War after North Korea launched a general attack across the border on June 25, 1950.

However, Rep. G.V. Montgomery, D-Miss., active in helping families get information on servicemen missing in Vietnam, cautioned that officials could not be certain about the remains until they are examined in Honolulu.

Guy Magee, a family spokesman, said McInnis' parents "are both deceased now but they grieved about their son for as long they lived — not being able to know for a certainty what had happened."

Military authorities had presumed that McInnis had died in combat.

Mrs. Booth said McInnis' wife, Anna Mable, had remarried five years after her husband was declared dead and she later moved to Greenwood. She said the wife and their 3-month son, John R. McInnis III, were in Japan in 1949 when McInnis was sent to Korea.

John McInnis III, a teacher at a private school in Brandon, said an aunt had given him the news about his father. "It was a total shock. It was an empty feeling," he said. "I didn't know what to think."

McInnis said he had called his mother at her Greenwood home and "she couldn't believe it. She took the news OK but it was a total surprise to her."

Panel reports on consequences of nuclear weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representatives of Pope John Paul II are telling the presidents of the United States and the Soviet Union this week that "the only hope for humanity" is to prevent nuclear weapons from ever being used in war.

Members of a papal delegation reported to President Reagan Monday the findings of a scientific study commissioned by the pope on "the consequences of the use of nuclear weapons on the survival and health of humanity."

The head of the delegation, Victor Weisskopf, said the meeting with Reagan — and a similar session scheduled to take place with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev later this week — resulted from the pope's special concerns about a nuclear holocaust.

Members of the group said Reagan acknowledged the study's findings and did not contradict them. But they also said he did not acknowledge that a nuclear war would be unwinnable.

Weisskopf said a papal letter presented to Reagan "emphasized that the conditions following a nuclear attack would be so severe that the only hope for humanity is prevention of any form of nuclear war. Nuclear weapons must not be used at all in warfare and their number should be progressively reduced in a balanced way."

Weisskopf said Reagan did not commit himself to specific action but expressed optimisim that the U.S.-Soviet weapons talks in Geneva could lead to reductions in the size of nuclear arsenals.

Dr. Howard H. Hiatt of the Harvard School of Public Health, who served on the scientific panel and was a member of the delegation, said he explained the effects of a nuclear exchange in personal terms to Reagan, whose life was saved by modern medicine earlier this year.

Hiatt said it was clear that Reagan survived the assassination attempt last March 30 because the medical personnel and emergency facilities of George Washington University Hospital were able to concentrate on treating him.

The physician said he told Reagan that a single one-megaton weapon detonated over the White House would overwhelm the medical community with 800,000 seriously wounded people.

He suggested that "those people who talk about surviving or winning a nuclear war" simply aren't aware of the medical realities.

Weisskopf said the pope had asked the scientific panel to study "the consequences of the use of nuclear weapons on the survival and health of humanity." When the panel presented its findings in October he dispatched emissaries to inform leaders of the world's nuclear powers of his views.

Low-risk IRAs shouldn't be neglected as a tax break

By BILL MODISETT
Staff Writer

The single most significant tax break in many years — possibly ever — will take effect Jan. 1, 1982, Investment Company Institute vice president Reginald F.D. Green said here Monday as he embarked on a tour of Texas to alert potential investors of the impending tax option.

After Jan. 1, Green said, any worker will be able to purchase an IRA (Individual Retirement Account) up to $2,000 a year. What the Washington, D.C.-based Investment Company Institute foresees taking place because of this change is increased savings — perhaps as much as $20 billion a year in IRAs for several years.

This change will be beneficial to both executives and to young married couples with two incomes, said Green. "It's a very attractive thing to start putting away a nest egg," Green noted.

Green's tour was launched, he said, noting that "Texas is important because of sheer size of investment in mutual funds." As an example, he pointed out that 400,000 Texans now have $8.5 billion invested in money-market funds. That compares to the $3.5 billion invested by only 175,000 Texans a year ago, Green said.

Money market funds are extremely low-risk, Green stressed, and offer a wide range of investment opportunities.

"Not a penny has been lost in money market funds in all of their history (since 1972)," Green noted.

Furthermore, money market funds tend to be attractive to young couples since initial investment can be as low as $1,000 and an investor can get out of the funds "on any business day."

Mutual funds make low initial investment possible because a large number of investors "pool" their money and then money managers invest in various companies. "If you're in a mutual fund, you're spread between 50 or 60 companies to reduce risk and the money is in the hands of professional money managers," said Green.

As further indication of the profitability of mutual funds, Green noted that during the past five years common stock mutual funds doubled in value, to 105 percent, while the stock market rose only 52 percent.

The new IRAs can be deducted immediately from taxable income and they grow tax free, Green stressed. They can provide a hedge against inflation, he added.

The investment executive repeated in closing that the new tax break will be as important for executives as for young families. "People tend to overlook an opportunity like this," he said, stressing that this tax break not be neglected.

Murder suspect prefers death to life imprisonment

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A drifter, jailed as a suspect in the deaths of at least nine young women in four states, may be put under 24-hour guard to prevent a possible suicide attempt, said Police Chief Robert Heuck.

The comment came after a court-appointed attorney said suspect Stephen Peter Morin, 34, would prefer death to a sentence of life in prison.

"Our posture will be that if the jury finds him guilty, he would rather be shot by a firing squad than serve a life term," the lawyer, Pete Torres Jr., told reporters Monday.

Told of that remark, Heuck said, "That means possibly having a man in there (jail cell) looking at him for 24 hours a day."

Bexar County Jail Sgt. E. Martinez said Morin was in a maximum-security cell, held without bond since his arrest in an Austin bus station Saturday, but was not under individual 24-hour supervision.

Morin is charged with eight crimes, ranging from kidnapping to capital murder, in four states.

Local officers have been hit with a flurry of telephone inquiries from out-of-state police agencies wanting to question Morin about unsolved killings of as many as 11 more young women.

In San Antonio, Morin is charged with capital murder and attempted capital murder in a Friday shooting that killed one woman and wounded another. A pre-trial hearing on those charges is scheduled for Dec. 29.

Police have said Morin will probably face the San Antonio charges before he answers accusations in other states.

"It's very possible that he will be tried here," said homicide detective Larry Rowe. "We'll probably get the first shot at him."

Capital murder convictions in Texas carry only two possible punishments: life imprisonment or death by injection.

Detectives from nine states have expressed an interest in questioning Morin, who is from Providence, R.I. Utah authorities were in San Antonio on Monday and Colorado investigators are expected later this week, said homicide Lt. Jack Summey.

Officers in New York, Iowa, Oklahoma, Virginia and Nevada also have inquired about the possibility of interviewing Morin. However, he has refused to talk to any investigators, police said.

"He's under investigation for possible murder convictions in all these places," Summey said. "But with all this publicity the guy is getting, I can't tell you for sure how many murders this guy is involved in. It's just speculation when you say 20 or 30 murders. When you travel around that much and move from state to state, it could be more."

Corpus Christi police said most of the victims were blondes, but Summey said Monday he could not confirm that report.

Morin was arrested early Saturday. He had eluded FBI agents and police since Friday, when two women were shot outside a San Antonio restaurant.

FBI agents described Morin as a cocaine addict who used several aliases during a crime spree that may have lasted more than five years. Paul Graf, one of the Utah investigators in San Antonio, called Morin a "master of disguise" who would frequently change his appearance as he wandered.

Summey said Morin apparently traveled in stolen vehicles, buses and rental cars that he leased with fake identification.

"It appears as if he lived off the fat of the land wherever he went, probably through the crimes he committed. Again, it's all speculation," Summey said.

Police said Morin apparently traveled with female companions, using them to rent vehicles and obtain lodging.

Two women were taken into custody at the scene of the Friday shooting. They were Sarah Clarke, 32, held without bond on a capital murder charge, and Pam Jackson, who was reported abducted from a Corpus Christi nightclub Nov. 30.

Morin was charged with capital murder Sunday after Carrie Marie Scott, 21, of Corpus Chrsti died in a local hospital. Dru Valdes, 25, of San Antonio was wounded in the shoulder. Police believe the gunman in the shooting was trying to steal Ms. Scott's car for an escape.

Also on Sunday, Morin was charged with a kidnapping and rape in San Francisco, murder and sexual assault in Golden, Colo., aggravated kidnapping in Corpus Christi and murder and kidnap in St. George, Utah.

Corpus Christi police say they will charge Morin in the strangulation of Janna Bruce, 21, found floating in a culvert on Mustang Island Dec. 3. Ms. Bruce's car was found outside the San Antonio motel where Morin's two companions were arrested Friday.

San Francisco police officer Martin Bastiani said a rape warrant has been outstanding on Morin since 1976, when a 14-year-old girl was assaulted, bound, hung from a ceiling hook, raped and brutalized for several hours.

Nevada police want to question Morin about the deaths of three Las Vegas women whose nude bodies were found in the desert. High school student Kim Bryant was abducted in 1979 from a drive-in restaurant and found dead a month later in a desert grave.

Explosion rips through Iraqi embassy in Beirut, Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A powerful explosion ripped through the Iraqi Embassy in predominantly Moslem West Beirut today. A police spokesman said "damage is extensive and casualties very high."

The spokesman, who declined to be named in complaince with Lebanese government regulations, refused to speculate on the cause of the explosion.

The right-wing Christian "Voice of Lebanon " radio station said first reports from its correspondents spoke of 11 people killed and 24 wounded in the explosion.

But the police spokesman said it was impossible to give an accurate casualty figure one hour after the early afternoon blast shattered most of the five-story embassy building. The building also houses the Iraqi News Agency.

Units from Syria's army troops in Lebanon cordoned off the explosion site.

Syria has an estimated 15,000 troops in Lebanon to police the five-year-old civil war armistice between rightist Christians and an alliance of leftist Moslems and Palestinian guerrillas.

Dummy gets closer to White House

COLUMBUS, Mont. (AP) — Christopher the traveling dummy is getting closer to the White House.

Students at the Columbus Elementary School here placed the 6-foot-tall wooden mannequin beside Interstate 90 on Dec. 7, with a suitcase filled with messages for President Reagan.

A sign attached to the dummy's shirt explained the project and told how Christopher could be folded to fit inside a car.

Christopher's suitcase also contained stamped postcards for motorists to send back to the youngsters to let them know of Christopher's progress, and second-grade teacher Jeanne Harsha said Monday that Christopher was reported on his way to Newport News, Va., just 195 miles from Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Harsha said the students "couldn't believe it" when the school received a post card Monday that said:

"Just me, Christopher. I got picked up today (Wednesday) by some really nice people from Kalispell, Mont., who are working in Newport News, Va. Their names are Denny and Carrie Rowe. They are giving me a ride from Mitchell, S.D., where the Corn Palace is. Love, Christopher."

There was no answer Monday at a listing for a Rowe in Newport News.

If Christopher from Columbus does reach the White House, the students think the Secret Service will let him inside because he's carrying a supply of Reagan's favorite candy, jellybeans.

It was not known how Christopher got to Mitchell, located about 70 miles from Minnesota.

It is known that he made it down Interstate 90 to/Billings, south through Sheridan, Wyo., across the South Dakota border into Rapid City.

CONTRACTORS

There are over 90,000 Homeowners and Businesses who place three or more calls a year needing a contractor's services.

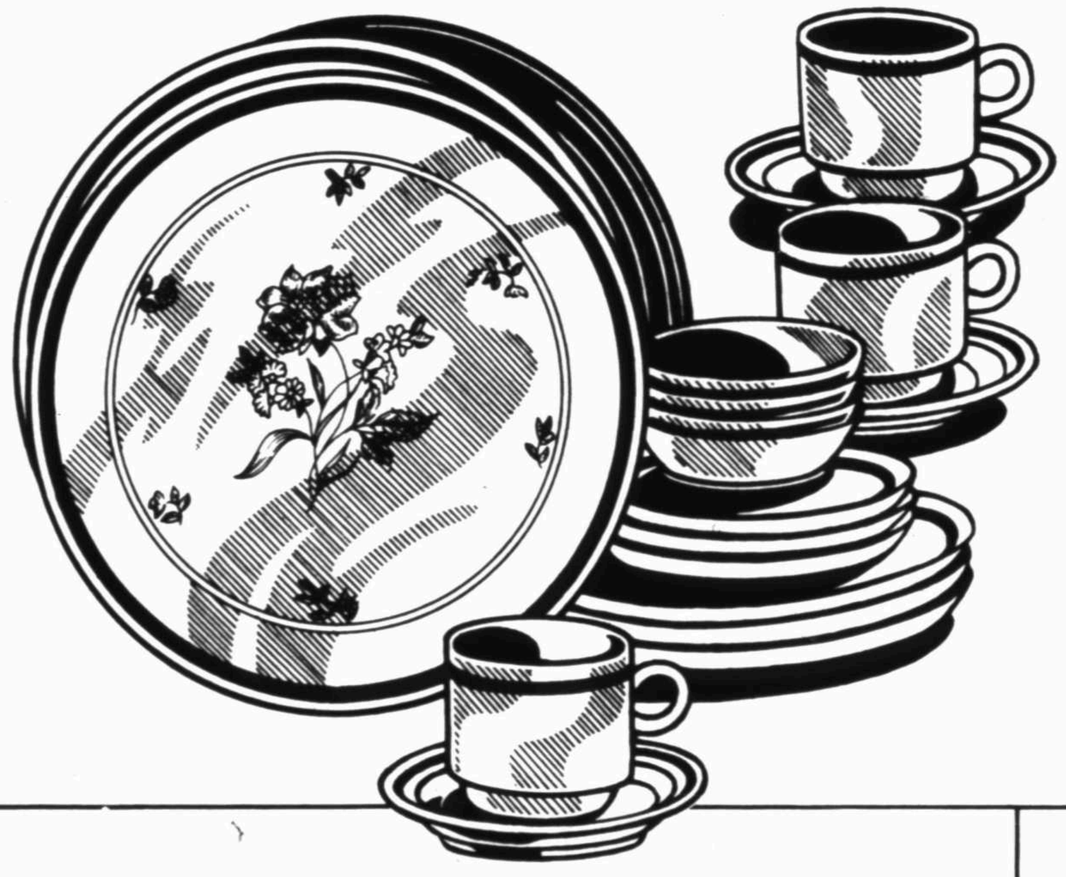

The consumer has three main sources to locate a contractor besides direct advertising: the yellow pages, classifieds, and word of mouth.

Starting January 1, 1982, there will be another way. The Contractors Bureau — through extensive advertising — expects to have at least 25% of these calls channeled through its office. This means Contractors Bureau will refer 3,900 contractors each week.

Contractors Bureau is now compiling files on contractors that offer services in the Midland & Odessa area. If you, the contractor, are not already listed in our files, call 686-7623.

Opening lead: King of ♠.

This excellent piece of card-reading is reported by Pierre Schemiel in the French magazine, Le Bridgeur.

West might have been better off had he taken advantage of the vulnerability to preempt with four spades. As it was, North-South were able to get into the auction at a low level. Unfortunately, they ended up in their 5-4 fit rather than the 4-4 fit—five clubs would have been on ice with a 3-2 trump break.

West led the king of spades and East took advantage of the situation to play his ten—a suit preference signal for a heart shift. West duly switched to the jack of hearts, which ran to declarer's queen.

It seemed that declarer would have to lose two heart tricks in addition to the spade, but he worked out a distribution that would allow him to make the contract with a strip and end play. First, it required West to have started with specifically J-10 of hearts bare. It seemed from the bidding that West held seven spades—with four spades and an ace East would have raised over the double; with eight spades, West probably would have rebid four spades. That left him with four minor-suit cards. If declarer could guess how those were distributed, he was home.

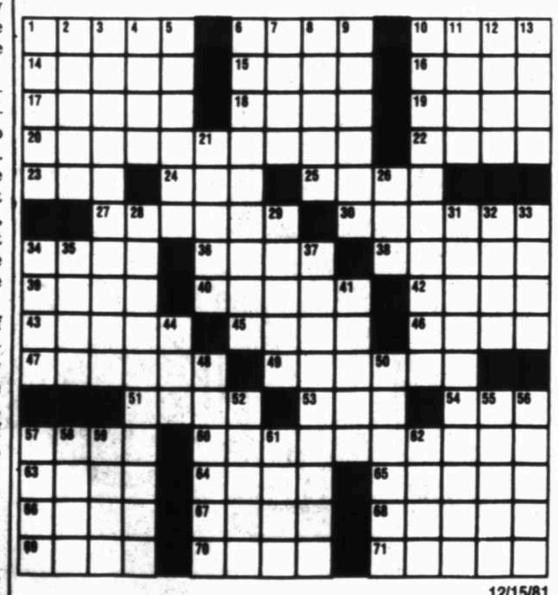

South cashed the king and queen of diamonds, and was delighted when both defenders followed. Next came a spade ruff and the king and queen of clubs, to remove all of West's exit cards. Then declarer led a heart and played low from dummy when West produced the ten. West was now forced to give declarer a ruff-and-sluff, which allowed him to make the contract.

Observe that it would be fatal for declarer to play a third club before trying to end play West. West would discard his ten of hearts on the third club, and declarer would not be able to execute his end play and would end up down one.

No motive known for ambush killing of brother and sister

CHICAGO (AP) — A young man and his sister, on their way home after delivering a birthday present, were ambushed by three men and shot to death, police say.

Police said they have no suspects or motive in the shooting, which occurred Saturday evening in front of Joey and Theresa Palmer's home on Chicago's South Side.

The two were pronounced dead on arrival at the University of Illinois Hospital — 20-year-old Joey of head wounds and 18-year-old Theresa of wounds in her back.

Their mother, Margaret Anderson, heard the shots and ran to the street.

"I went downstairs and when I got there, it was Joey and Theresa, lying there," she said. "I didn't know which one to hold first."

The brother and sister had taken a birthday present to a girl who was to become Theresa's godchild.

As they walked up to their front door, police said, the three assailants emerged from a vacant lot and approached them from behind, opening fire with at least two guns.

A witness told police the three attackers fled on foot.

"You probably couldn't have prevented this with a police station on the corner," said Detective Pat O'Hara. "It's one of those things that gives everyone nightmares."

East Texas angel dust lab shut down after police raid

MURCHISON, Texas (AP) — A lab capable of turning out "angel dust" was shut down by officers who dodged semi-automatic weapons fire during a raid on a rural East Texas farmhouse, authorities said.

The raid by 12 officers representing the Drug Enforcement Administration, Texas Department of Public Safety, Henderson County Sheriff's office and Athens Police Department culminated several weeks of undercover work, Athens Police Chief Dave Harris said Monday.

Harris and Henderson County Sheriff Charlie Fields said officers surrounded the house, located on a dirt road just outside Murchison, then announced their presence with a bullhorn.

About 20 shots were fired at the officers from a semi-automatic weapon, the officers said, through windows and a door in the house.

Officers did not return fire, Harris said, because there were three pre-school children inside the house. The shots stopped after 10 minutes or so, said Harris, and officers stormed the house to finish the raid. There were no injuries.

A man and a woman were arrested. The Department of Human Resources office in Athens took custody of the children, officials said.

Harris said the laboratory was dismantled and sent to DPS agents in Tyler for analysis. The agencies involved in the raid plan to seek charges of attempted capital murder and operation of an illegal drug manufacturing plant against the two adults, Harris said.

Baker: Try tax increases to cut deficits

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration officials and key Republican senators alike are calling for tax increases to help shrink budget deficits in 1983 and beyond. But President Reagan seems to remain opposed.

"I feel that we must find some more money," Senate Republican leader Howard Baker of Tennessee said Monday.

He urged Reagan to consider coupling the tax increases with reductions in benefit programs and "more than just token savings" in Defense Department spending when he submits his 1983 fiscal year budget to Congress in January.

Baker also told a group of Gannett Newspaper executives that Congress already may have cut too much from those domestic programs which bore the brunt of 1981 spending slashes and which budget director David A. Stockman has targeted for further cuts next year.

"I agree with ... others who say that you've cut all you can cut for all practical effect from discretionary programs and that there may be some of them that you may have to go back and repair. . .," said Baker.

He gave no hint as to which programs he considers immune to further cuts or which ones might need more money.

While Baker was talking about tax increases, the chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers was calling for faster decontrol of natural gas prices coupled with a new tax apparently aimed directly at consumers.

Murray Weidenbaum told reporters that would lead to increased production by industry and greater conservation by consumers facing higher prices.

But in suggesting a new tax on decontrolled gas, Weidenbaum said he opposes the type of windfall-profits tax imposed on domestic crude oil because it reduces the capital needed for investment.

Tax experts outside the administration have speculated that the president might get around his declared opposition to a windfall-profits tax by supporting a measure that has the same effect under a different name.

One alternative could be a "severance" tax on the full price of natural gas charged to consumers rather than producers.

Whether the tax is charged to producers or added to homeowners' bills, "ultimately it will get passed through (to consumers) one way or the other," said a gas industry official, who did not want to be identified.

Despite the suggestions from Baker and Weidenbaum, Senate sources say Stockman gave a few Senate Republicans a "preliminary" look at the 1983 budget proposals last week — and that they did not include tax increases.

Instead, sources said Stockman reported that the president intends to seek a new round of deep cuts in domestic programs, combined with about $18 billion in reductions in benefit programs for 1983 and 1984. There would be no cuts in the defense buildup, other than the $11 billion reduction already planned for 1983 and 1984, sources said.

The result would be deficits of well over $100 billion through 1986, figures the administration and many senators say are unacceptable.

Republicans on the Senate Budget Committee have lined up behind a plan developed by Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., that includes $48 billion in tax increases and $39 billion in benefit program cuts to try and balance the budget in 1984.

And an aide said Baker's remarks to the Gannett group amounted to an attempt to "send a signal downtown (to the president) that this is where we need to go."

In addition to repeating his call for a windfall-profits tax on natural gas, Baker urged consideration of excise taxes, perhaps on alcohol or tobacco.

He ruled out changes in the three-year income tax cuts Congress approved earlier this year, but said there were unspecified "loopholes that ought to be tightened up."

On defense, he said, "I simply cannot believe that out of a budget as large as the Pentagon budget, we can't find $5 billion or maybe even $10 billion that we can save if we really put our minds to it" without eliminating any weapons.

Scientist: Creationism law needed for balance

By BILL SIMMONS
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A new law requiring schools to give equal treatment to creationism if they teach evolution has put Arkansas "on the cutting edge of a progressive movement cutting through decades of prejudice and ignorance," a scientist says.

"I personally feel it's time we allow the students of this state and nation to hear both views," Wayne Frair, a biochemical taxonomist at The King's College in Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., testified Monday.

The Balanced Treatment for Creation-Science and Evolution-Science Act, which takes effect in September, is being challenged in U.S. District Court by the American Civil Liberties Union, which says the law violates the constitutional doctrine of separation of church and state. The ACLU also says the law violates academic freedom and is unconstitutionally vague.

Frair said Monday, the sixth day of the trial, that if Charles Darwin were alive today, the originator of the theory of evolution by natural selection would be a creationist.

In explaining, Frair said scientific data shows development within kinds of creatures, but not from one kind to another. Missing links aren't found among fossils because they aren't there, he said.

On cross-examination, Frair didn't have a definition for the word "kinds."

Frair, a creationist, said science could benefit from the creation theory being taught alongside evolution because it would relieve scientists of pressure to force their data into an evolution theory that does not easily accommodate it.

He said creationism is sweeping the nation and is gaining support among scientists.

The trial is expected to end this week, and Judge William Overton says he hopes to rule on the case by Christmas.

Evolutionists say life developed slowly through millions of years, that the earth is about 4.5 billion years old and that man and ape have a common ancestor.

Licensing board may approve restart of one TMI reactor

By GENE GRABOWSKI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Nuclear Regulatory Commission licensing board is giving preliminary approval to a restart of the undamaged reactor at the Three Mile Island nuclear plant in Pennsylvania.

But a legal challenge still must be considered and a decision by the full NRC next month will be required before the tests can begin. Other considerations could put off full operation of the reactor until March.

TMI unit 1 has been shut down since March 28, 1979, when its twin reactor was involved in the worst accident in the history of commercial nuclear power.

General Public Utilities Corp., owner of the plant near Harrisburg, Pa., has been pushing for a restart of unit 1, maintaining that it is spending about $14 million monthly to purchase power not being produced by the closed reactor.

Stephen Brooks, a spokesman for Campaign to Stop the Restart, said Monday that the Harrisburg group would petition the NRC to hold a public hearing in the plant's vicinity before deciding on restarting unit 1.

"Today's decision does not resolve several important problems," Brooks said. He cited a case of alleged cheating on operator licensing tests, the need for an evacuation plan for Harrisburg and the issue of who will pay cleanup costs for the damaged second reactor at the plant.

A federal appeals court in Washington is also considering whether the psychological stress of nearby residents should be studied before allowing a restart.

Nevertheless, an NRC Atomic Safety License Board said Monday that it found "reasonable assurance that the Three Mile Island Unit No. 1 can be operated in the short and long term without endangering the health and safety of the public."

In an 806-page report, the board pointed to "various deficiencies in design, procedures and planning which must be corrected before restart." But it added it was satisfied that the corrections had been made, in effect, in the form of "licensee commitments, NRC staff requirements and board-imposed conditions."

It said it was maintaining jurisdiction over a case of alleged cheating by people taking operator license tests at TMI and expects to decide that case in March or April. It said it would allow operation only at test levels — 5 percent of full power — until it decided the cheating case.

Responding to a need

The Reporter-Telegram extends a West Texas welcome to Sam Ogletree, recently named district manager for Southwestern Bell Telephone Company. Announcement of creation of a district office in Midland is made elsewhere in today's edition.

The decision to establish district management by Bell in Midland is a result of reorganization and changes within Bell's management structure but also is a response by the company to interest on the part of Midland leaders in securing district-level telephone company management here, an interest which we had strongly endorsed.

Bell's recognition that the unprecedented growth of Midland and the Permian region warranted the reorganization essential for bringing district management to Midland will be welcomed by all segments of Midland and, hopefully, will result in improved service.

Certainly better communication between Bell and our growing business community will be among results. In the announcement of his move here, Ogletree recognized the importance of both responsiveness and visibility of today's corporate leadership to citizens of the areas they serve.

The new district manager is no stranger to West Texas and that will no doubt be of additional value to both him and Midland as district operations get fully underway here. Ogletree has served as district manager for business office operations in Abilene since 1968, having begun his career with Bell in 1951.

In Abilene he served as a vice president of the Abilene Chamber of Commerce and president of the Abilene Philharmonic as well as in a wide variety of other civic roles.

On choosing a judge

No computer can tell a president how to select a judge for a high court.

It is difficult to determine whether an appointee will turn out to be liberal or conservative, regardless of the record of past decisions and opinions. Basically what the president should do is find someone of honesty, integrity and intelligence. Add to that legal talent and that nebulous qualification called judicial temperament.

President Reagan seems to have found just such a man in Robert H. Bork, the lawyer he has appointed to the important position of judge on the Federal Appeals Court in Washington.

Observers immediately labeled Mr. Bork a conservative, and with good reason. He would admit to that himself. His name became a household word in 1973 when he carried out President Nixon's orders to fire special prosecutor Archibald Cox in the "Saturday night massacre." The then Solicitor General did his duty as he saw it.

If confirmed for the appeals court, Bork might go even higher. Attorney General William French Smith already has said Mr. Bork "certainly would be looked at in the event of another vancancy" on the Supreme Court.

It would be risky, however, to try to prejudge how Robert Bork will conduct himself as a judge, except that he will use his scholarly legal mind to interpret the laws of the land as honorably as he can. Felix Frankfurter was acclaimed as the liberal's great hope when Franklin Roosevelt put him on the high court. He ended his tenure acclaimed by the conservatives. Friends of Hugo Black were jolted by the revelation he was once a member of the Ku Klux Klan. As Mr. Justice Black of the Supreme Court he was an arbiter of nobility and tolerance.

What the future holds for Robert H. Bork, no one knows. What we do know is that President Reagan has nominated for a key appeals court post a distinguished former Yale law professor, a former solicitor general, and a nationally recognized student of antitrust and constitutional law. He fills those broad qualifications a president must recognize as he shapes the future of the American judicial system.

CHARLEY REESE

Government regulations kill freedom

I have been thinking about freedom lately and it occurs to me that many of us are not as free as we think.

Charley Reese

We still have most of our political freedoms as outlined in the Bill of Rights but even some of these are being eroded. The right to due process, for example, has become so expensive that for many it is a moot point. I have written about one small firm which has spent over $100,000 and six years defending itself against an allegation by an agency of the federal government. Availing yourself of your right to due process can mean bankruptcy.

Thus, if we are to preserve the reality of this right, we must reform the judicial system so that once more it is within the reach of ordinary citizens at a reasonable cost in both time and money. Otherwise, any right dependent on the judicial system will be lost in practice if not in theory.

Another area in which we are less free than we like to think is economic. When you get right down to the bone of the matter, a person who is not economically independent is not really free.

Our transition to a credit economy has made more of us indentured servants than we like to admit. A debt is a claim against future income. Like the man who sold his soul to the company store, many of us have sold our souls, or at least hocked them, to the mortgage and commercial bankers. We are not free not to work, for we have obligated future wages. A heavy burden of debt certainly has a "chilling effect" on a man's independence.

This is something we have done to ourselves, of course, but at the same time, the present monetary system in which the Federal Reserve is free to inflate our currency has certainly been a contributing factor. Anytime you have a situation in which people can make more money investing in debt rather than in productive enterprise, you have trouble. It is depressing to think about how many years of human labor have been pledged to pay off debts.

There was a time when it was possible for many Americans to buy land or a home and pay for it. Almost no one these days expects to own a home free and clear. So long as we allow monetary inflation to continue, wage earners will remain little better off than tenant farmers tied to a job with no hope of ever achieving a state of economic independence.

A person who is economically independent is a person who can survive without the permission or favors of others. If you cannot own basic shelter and accumulate sufficient savings to provide for your needs, you cannot become independent.

If we are to return to being a nation of free men and women, then we must re-structure our economy in such a way as to once more make this goal achievable for a majority of our people.

One way is to reduce severely the cost of government. When governments at all levels take 40 percent of your income off the top while inflating the economy, you are in a hopeless situation unless you are born wealthy or can become a rock star.

Of course as individuals we should all resolve right now to free ourselves of as much debt as possible and to use credit judiciously. Too many of us have formed the habit of deferring the completed purchase instead of deferring the immediate pleasure of consumption.

We should pressure Congress to create a healthy environment for small business. This is the most widely used avenue toward independence. Concentration of business in a relatively few giant corporations is conducive neither to freedom nor to efficiency. Here again government is the villain. Taxation, regulation and inflation are killing small businesses like the plague.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Libyan student aid agency 'watched'

WASHINGTON — The Libyan diplomats were kicked out of their embassy last May for harassing students who were considered less than loyal to Libya's dictator, Muammar Qaddafi. Now some mysterious Libyans have turned up across the Potomac, and the State Department suspects they're up to the same old tricks.

Jack Anderson

The expulsion of Qaddafi's diplomats left the 4,000 Libyan students in the United States without supervision — and without a means of collecting the scholarship money on which most of them exist.

To remedy this situation, the Libyans' American attorney, Richard Shadyac, set up a non-profit corporation across the Potomac in fashionable McLean, Va. The outfit is called the People's Committee for Students of Libyan-Arab Jamahiriya — a name straight out of Qaddafi's dogma.

Its ostensible function is to process payments to the Libyan students scattered across the country and handle the other details of their scholarships.

Shadyac checked with the State Department and got permission for the arrangement. The new corporation hired several non-Libyan employees who used to work for the embassy — to provide continuity, it was explained.

But government sources are concerned about the Libyan nationals who are also present in the corporation's suburban office building. They are described as student volunteers — and the fear is that they may be providing an undesirable continuity to the old Libyan embassy and its history of harassment.

"Extremely close watch is being kept on that office," a State Department source told my associate Lucette Lagnado. "Information is being gathered. The whole question of what that office is doing is being examined."

The investigation has turned up nothing concrete yet, but U.S. officials have been informed that harassment of Libyan students has continued since the Washington embassy was closed.

Furthermore, investigators have concluded that the Libyan "volunteers" are in fact running the corporation. Shadyac conceded that the students are helping to "manage" the office.

The pressure on Libyan students in the United States varies in degree. Outspoken opponents of Qaddafi are threatened with loss of their scholarships and retaliation against their families in Libya. Those who are not politically active are urged to be openly supportive of the Qaddafi regime.

"Most of them are apolitical," a reliable source said. "There is pressure on them to get interested and involved."

Shadyac acknowledged that he has been asked about allegations that the operation has been involved in harassment of Libyan students in this country. He denied emphatically that it was engaged in any such activity. When pressed on the point, however, he said it was possible that harassment might be going on without his knowledge.

Shadyac said he has asked the U.S. government to provide him with any evidence of the committee's wrongdoing. "They have never proffered any proof," he said. "Not one single iota." While he was at it, Shadyac also denied that the Libyan diplomats expelled last May had been indulging in dirty tricks.

NANCY REAGAN'S JEWELS: Nancy Reagan sparkled with jewels at the royal wedding in London last July. But the luster was somewhat dimmed by the revelation that she had borrowed the gems from jewelers. The thought of the president's lady wearing borrowed jewels evidently bothered somebody in the government, and the suggestion arose that a jewelry collection be purchased for the first lady and stored in the Smithsonian Institution's Museum of Natural History.

The museum's department heads scotched the idea after careful deliberation. "Several people expressed their opinion that the National Museum of Natural History should not become the keeper of the crown jewels," the minutes of the department meeting report tersely. Officials said the vote against the suggestion was unanimous. There were some legal objections, concern about adverse publicity — and the possibility that the first lady might not be interested.

TROJAN HORSE?: Dr. Roger W. Fontaine is the National Security Council's expert on Latin America. He is also listed as a director of the extremely conservative Council for Inter-American Security on the organization's stationery and newsletters. The CIAS has criticized the Reagan administration's policy toward Latin America as too "soft," and urged forceful action against leftist elements.

A spokesman for the CIAS said Fontaine is on leave of absence while he works for the National Security Council, and said the organization has taken "all necessary precautions" to clarify his status — including an asterisk next to his name on CIAS letterheads with a note that he is on leave. But there are still several CIAS documents that don't have this explanation.

WATCH ON WASTE: On Nov. 18, I reported that the Pakistani government still hadn't paid the United States some $7 million for damages to American property when mobs sacked our Islamabad embassy two years ago. A Pakistani Embassy spokesman assured me then that payment would be forthcoming "in the next couple of days." Sad to say, the State Department hasn't received a single rupee yet. Sen. Claiborne Pell, R-R.I., has been trying to get assurances from the administration that it will pursue collection efforts diligently.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Dec. 15, the 349th day of 1981. There are 16 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Dec. 15, 1961, former Nazi Adolf Eichmann was sentenced to death in Jerusalem.

On this date:

In 1916, the French defeated the Germans in the World War I battle of Verdun.

In 1965, the U.S. Mariner spacecraft relayed back data about Venus as it flew past the planet.

In 1974, U.S. Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. took over as Supreme Allied Commander in Europe.

And in 1979, the deposed Shah of Iran flew from the United States to what was called "temporary" exile in Panama.

Ten years ago: The Nixon Price Commission voted to limit increases in doctors' fees to 2½ percent and placed a 6 percent ceiling on rises in hospital charges.

Five years ago: Spanish voters approved a government plan for free elections to choose a new parliament to rewrite the laws of the Franco dictatorship.

One year ago: Outfielder Dave Winfield became the highest-paid player in baseball history when he signed a contract with the New York Yankees for nearly $1.5 million a year.

Today's birthday: Former Metropolitan Museum Director Thomas Hoving is 50.

Thought for today: The strongest man upon earth is he who stands alone. — Henrik Ibsen, Norwegian playwright (1828-1906).

BIBLE VERSE

Wives, be in subjection unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord. Husbands, love your wives. Eph. 5:22,25

●

A righteous man hateth lying. Prov. 13:5

INSIDE REPORT:

Electronic intercepts bolster assassination plot charges

WASHINGTON — Electronic intercepts in Europe of conversations dealing with Col. Muammer Qaddafi's assassination plans are key pieces of evidence bolstering charges against the Libyan strongman by the Reagan administration.

This contradicts widely-circulated reports that U.S. intelligence was relying solely on a single, new informant for its charge that Libyan hit men have targeted President Reagan and other top U.S. officials. In fact, the electronic intelligence is also known to U.S. European allies.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

A footnote: Unpublicized by the Reagan administration, Libya's own intelligence agency — ostensibly running the assassination campaign — is under the virtual control of East Germany, with closest ties to the Soviet KGB.

GOP POLITICKING

White House chief of staff James Baker III is credited with taking over the national Republican headquarters with the appointment of political operative Rich Bond as deputy national chairman there, but the truth is that Bond was not his first choice.

Baker wanted Haley Barbour, a Yazoo City, Miss., lawyer who was John B. Connally's southern presidential campaign coordinator in 1980. Barbour, who plans to run against veteran Democratic senator John C. Stennis for re-election next year, showed no interest.

Bond, who masterminded George Bush's upset win over Ronald Reagan in the 1980 Iowa caucuses, has been serving on Bush's vice presidential staff. His selection to the vacant deputy chairmanship at the national committee was widely interpreted as another sign of the growing influence of Baker, who was chairman of the Bush presidential campaign.

KHOMEINI IN TROUBLE

The early downfall of Ayatollah Khomeini as popular opinion swings against him, based partly on the endless, unpopular war with Iraq, is now privately predicted by intelligence reports from Tehran.

These reports are confirmed by Western industrialists who have maintained intimate contact with Iran's Islamic revolution ever since the fall of the shah in January 1979. Iranian political popular opinion moves very quickly when the mood changes, a factor in predictions that Khomeini is nearing the end of his bloody rule.

Earlier this year, a proposal by the Islamic conference for ending the Iran-Iraq war was quickly approved by Iraqi president Saddam Hussein and by all the secular leaders of Iran, including since deposed President Bani-Sadr. Only Khomeini vetoed ending what is probably the most unpopular war in Iranian history.

HARRY BYRD'S SURPRISE

Nobody was more surprised over the announcement by Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr. of Virginia that he would not seek re-election next year than the White House political operatives who spent months trying to woo him into the Republican Party.

President Reagan's men used polling information in trying to convince the veteran conservative that he could no longer be elected as an independent. Byrd switched his party label from Democrat to independent in 1967 though he has continued to sit on the Democratic side of the aisle in the Senate.

Byrd seemed so impressed by the White House polls that Reagan aides predicted he soon would cross the aisle to the Republican side. In fact, he long ago made his secret decision to leave elective politics.

REGAN IN CHINA

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan's biggest surprise on his recent trip to communist China: Not one word was said to him opposing possible U.S. sale of new F-5 jet planes to Taiwan.

Sinologists have cautioned Regan not to make too much of it. As the leading U.S. official on financial matters, they say, Regan is thought of in strictly non-military terms. Nevertheless, Chinese officials in the past have confided their intense apprehension over U.S. arms for Taiwan to all American officials, not just military specialists.

A footnote: A lesser surprise for Regan was that Chinese officials told him their greatest need for outside private investors is to finance more Chinese restaurants and tailors.

Discovery completed, three wildcats planned

A Wolfcamp oil discovery has been finaled in Mitchell County, along with three wildcats planned in districts 8 and 8A.

HOWARD VENTURE

Laguna Petroleum Corp., Midland, will drill the No. 1 Sumruld, a 9,000-foot wildcat, five miles east of Luther.

The project is 660 feet from the south, and east line of section 10, block 31, T-2-N, T&P survey.

It is just north of the Nearco (Reef) field which is expected to produce from an average depth of 7,693 feet.

Monsanto Co., Midland, will drill the No. 1 Pentecost, a 10,100-foot wildcat, 7 1/2 miles southwest of Smyer.

The wildcat is 467 feet from the north, and 1,000 feet from the west line of labor 19, league 19, Wichita CSL survey.

It is located in the depleted Pentecost field, which produced from the Wolfcamp at 8,594 feet.

PECOS SEARCHER

TXO Petroleum Corp., Midland, will drill a 5,200-foot wildcat, eight miles south of Girvin.

The No. 4 Champlin Cities Service is 2,073 feet from the south, and 1,849 feet from the west line of section 123, block 11, H&GN survey.

Amoco Production Co., Odessa, has completed as a Wolfcamp discovery the No. 1 Susie Snyder Rankin.

The well pumped 11 barrels of 43.6 gravity oil in 24 hours through perforations between 7,996 and 8,000 feet, which had been acidized with 2,000 gallons, and fractured with 11,400 gallons plus 108,000 pounds.

The total depth is 8,650 feet, with 5 1/2 inch casing set at that depth, and plugged back to 8,400 feet.

It is 1,531 feet from the east, and 2,292 feet from the north line of section 37, block 30, T-1-S, T&P survey.

Little Exxene beats Exxon

CHICAGO (AP) — The inventor who called his tiny company Exxene Corp. says if giant Exxon Corp. had only been gentlemanly about asking him to change his trademark, he would have done so.

"But they acted like God, and like I'm some little guy," William Warmack said. He decided he "wasn't going to be pushed around."

He and his wife, Marilynn, took on the lawsuit that Exxon filed against his company five years ago, and won. Exxene was awarded $250,000 in damages in U.S. District Court.

The giant oil company, with $108 billion in annual revenues, charged Exxene, a $1 million-a-year business that makes antifog coatings for goggles and other products, with trademark infringement.

Exxene is a contraction of "excellent scene," but Exxon claimed the oil company had a virtual monopoly on the letters "Exx," no matter what letters followed the three-letter combination.

Congressmen want merger moratorium

By ROBERT L. SHAFFER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate supporters of a temporary ban on takeovers by large oil companies, such as Mobil Corp.'s proposed acquisition of Marathon Oil Co., agree that the moratorium should be in effect until June 1983, the House sponsor of the legislation says.

Rep. Clarence J. Brown, R-Ohio, said Monday that he had reached agreement on compromise language with Senate sponsors of a similar moratorium proposal.

He said Senate supporters would try to get the legislation tacked on as a rider to a Senate bill.

Brown's original bill called for a nine-month moratorium on major oil companies' takeovers of smaller companies pending an administration study of the effect of concentration in the oil industry.

Sens. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., and Howard K. Cannon, D-Nev., co-sponsored a Senate bill that would require a one-year moratorium.

After conferring with Packwood, Cannon and staff workers on the House and Senate energy committees, Brown said agreement had been reached on a measure that would extend the moratorium to June 1983. Brown said it was decided to seek the longer moratorium to give the Congress that convenes in 1983 a chance to study the matter.

The legislation would bar the top 20 oil companies from acquiring more than 5 percent of the stock of any of the top 40 companies, Brown said. It would also put a limit on the amount of crude oil reserves the top 20 or foreign groups could buy from any of the top 40 companies.

Marathon is fighting Mobil's takeover attempt.

During a joint House-Senate committee hearing Monday, Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., charged that an antitrust suit filed by the Federal Trade Commission against Mobil simply provided the company with a blueprint to legally accomplish its proposed $6.5 billion takeover of Marathon.

Dingell described as unprecedented the terms of the suit filed by the FTC in U.S. District Court in Cleveland.

The FTC petition asks for an injunction against the takeover unless Mobil divests itself of the transportation, storage and marketing assets of Marathon "in such a manner as to maintain the divested entity in viable competition."

Thomas J. Campbell, director of the FTC's Bureau of Competition, said the FTC would insist that Marathon's marketing operations be taken over by a Mobil competitor that can assure a continuation of those operations.

He said the agency had determined that the only aspects of the merger that would be considered an antitrust violation were in the areas cited for divestiture.

The FTC found significant "overlaps" in gasoline marketing by Mobil and Marathon in 18 metropolitan areas, mainly in the Midwest, Campbell said.

Mobil, which is interested mainly in the large crude oil reserves held by Marathon, announced last week an agreement to sell Marathon's marketing and other "downstream" assets to Amerada Hess Corp. if Mobil wins the takeover battle against rival bidder U.S. Steel Corp.

U.S. Steel's offer, valued at $6.3 billion, is favored by Marathon.

Questioned about Mobil's announced plans to buy up to 25 percent of U.S. Steel's outstanding stock, Campbell said the FTC would have the same concerns over possible antitrust violations if Mobil tries to get control of U.S. Steel as the agency has over a Mobil-Marathon merger.

Such a move also would trigger a Justice Department investigation, said William F. Baxter, head of the Justice Department's antitrust division.

Both Mobil and U.S. Steel are barred by court orders from buying Marathon stock. Hearings on court actions filed by the various parties are scheduled Thursday in the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati.

Reagan may couple natural gas decontrol with new tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of President Reagan's Council of Economic Advisers called Monday for faster decontrol of natural gas prices, coupled with a new tax apparently aimed directly at consumers.

Murray Weidenbaum declined to say exactly what kind of tax he had in mind, but he appeared to rule out a "windfall profits" tax on increased production, such as that enacted when oil prices were decontrolled during the Carter administration.

Reagan has said repeatedly he would veto a windfall tax on natural gas, though he wants to decontrol prices as of January 1983 — effectively two years head of schedule.

In a meeting with reporters, Weidenbaum said the speedup on removing price controls would lead to increased production by industry and greater conservation by consumers facing higher prices.

But in suggesting a new tax on decontrolled gas, Weidenbaum said he opposes the type of windfall-profits tax imposed on domestic crude oil because it reduces the capital needed for investment in production.

With that, Weidenbaum appeared to be trying to strike a compromise between opposing viewpoints in Congress and the administration.

Congressional leaders have indicated that swifter decontrol of natural gas would have to be accompanied by a windfall profits tax. While the president has consistently rejected that notion, officials within the administration have been eyeing it as a way to raise new revenue to narrow a growing federal deficit.

Tax experts outside the administration have speculated that the president might get around a windfall profits tax by supporting a measure that has the same effect on producers and consumers, but bears a different name.

Last week, Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan told reporters that a letter the president wrote last summer to Rep. Glenn L. English, D-Okla., promising to veto a windfall profits tax bill was "a letter on paper; it's not in cement."

Under current law, all federal price controls on natural gas discovered after April 20, 1977, would be removed by 1985, while gas discovered before 1977 would stay controlled as long as supplies last.

The administration wants to begin decontrol of all gas starting Jan. 1, 1983.

With inflation held constant, the administrration contends that the natural gas prices for the average consumer would rise 50 percent by 1985 under both the current law and the accelerated schedule now being promoted. The difference is that under the current law, consumers would avoid most of the increase until 1985, while an accelerated schedule wold mean larger increases in 1983 and 1984.

The current windfall profits tax on crude oil is, in fact, a type of excise tax, not a corporate income tax. That is because the tax is not levied against profits, but rather on the increase in prices that resulted from decontrol. The tax is paid by producers.

An alternative to a windfall profits tax could be a "severance" tax, whereby a tax is levied on the full price of natural gas and charged to consumers rather than producers.

Four-year-old Mat and six-year-old Mark Leavell of Monroe, Mich. sit around the family Christmas tree in their home. The Leavell family moved to Michigan from Redkey, Indiana this year and continued hanging their tree upside-down as they did in the Hoosier State. According to the boys' mother, Nancy, the tradition started two years ago when Mat was 18 months old, to keep the toddler out of the tree.

Defense bill expected to pass easily

WASHINGTON (AP) — A military spending bill totalling approximately $200 billion, approved after a lengthy closed-door session by a House-Senate conference committee, is believed headed for easy passage before Congress adjourns.

The version approved by the conferees Monday — less than $1 billion below what President Reagan wanted — would fund the Pentagon for fiscal 1982, which began on Oct. 1. Congressional aides said the exact amount of the compromise had not been calculated.

The House last month had approved a $197.4 billion spending measure. The conferees' task was to reach a compromise with the Senate-approved measure, which totalled $208.6 billion. The measure approved by the committee is about $29 billion more than the Defense Department's appropriation for fiscal 1981.

Conferees told reporters that Senate members of the panel agreed quickly to drop $4.8 billion their chamber had set aside for pay raises, $1.6 billion in extra inflation allowances for major weapons systems and $250 million for projected cost overruns for the MX missile and B-1 bomber programs.

The raises and some of the other dropped items will be included in a supplemental spending bill to be drawn up next year, said Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, and Rep. Joseph P. Addabbo, D-N.Y., the chairmen of the congressional defense appropriations subcommittees.

Both predicted easy passage of the compromise bill before Congress adjourns for the year, which is expected to be by Friday.

House-Senate conferees on Monday also approved an administration-supported measure to have the three million people receiving the minimum Social Security payment of $122 a month continue to get their benefits.

The measure, which must be approved by the full House and Senate, is intended to reverse legislation passed by Congress in July and signed by President Reagan that would have eliminated the minimum benefit in February. Reagan changed course in September and said he wanted Congress "to restore the minimum benefit for current beneficiaries with low incomes. It was never our intention to take this support away from those who truly need it."

The agreement also would permit borrowing among Social Security's three trust funds until January 1983, a step aimed at keeping the financially troubled retirement fund afloat with money from the hospital and disability insurance funds.

In other business Monday:

— The House Rules Committee cleared the way for final congressional action this week on an $11 billion, four-year farm bill, which includes price support programs for major commodities and a one-year extension of the food stamp program. The Senate approved the compromise bill last week.

A coalition of House members, however, scheduled a news conference for today to announce efforts to defeat the bill, which opponents say would cause excessive costs for producers and consumers.

— Sen. Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala., sought to reinstate a strict anti-abortion provision in a $9 billion Treasury Department spending bill, but Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker postponed possible action until today. The provision would eliminate abortion funding from health plans for federal workers unless the mother's life was at stake. With the Senate trying to adjourn this week, it was uncertain whether the proposal would be brought up again.

— The House voted 391-2 to give the Coast Guard $159 million more than the Reagan administration sought for fiscal 1982, after hearing arguments that the service's efforts against drug smugglers are a good investment. The action, if backed by the Senate, would set the Coast Guard budget at $1.825 billion.

— The House voted 244-136 to restore the president's authority to impose controls on prices and allocations in the event of a severe oil supply crisis. The Senate earlier had passed a similar measure, so the House bill now goes to a conference committee.

— By a 3-1 vote, a Senate Judiciary subcommittee approved changes in the Freedom of Information Act to make it easier for the CIA or Pentagon to claim that information must be kept secret on national security grounds.

House group: Bill should be defeated

WASHINGTON (AP) — A coalition of House members is calling for the defeat of a compromise $11 billion farm bill, saying it will result in excessive costs to food producers and consumers.

The group, led by Reps. Stan Lundine, D-N.Y., James Jeffords, R-Vt., Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, Ron Marlenee, R-Mont., and Peter Peyser, D-N.Y., scheduled a news conference for today to announce efforts to defeat the measure.

The House Rules Committee cleared the way Monday for final action this week on the four-year bill, which includes price support programs for major commodities, a one-year extension of the food stamp program, continuation of agricultural research and maintenance of the Food for Peace program.

A vote on the measure, which was generating little enthusiasm even among its supporters, was expected Wednesday. The Senate approved the compromise last week.

"I'm not proud of it, but it's all we could do," House Agriculture Committee Chairman Kika de la Garza told the Rules Committee, which turned aside efforts to get separate votes on controversial aspects of the package. The House will be forced to consider the bill as a single unit.

Experiment that's full of bull given 'Golden Fleece' award

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire is giving the Navy his Golden Fleece award for housing a bull in a 10-foot-square pen for six years as part of a purported scientific experiment that Pentagon officials now concede had no value.

In 1980, Sylvester the Bull was shot and an autopsy concluded that the animal "appears to be essentially a normal bull although somewhat obese."

Sylvester's story was disclosed today by Proxmire, a Wisconsin Democrat, who awards the Golden Fleece for wasteful government spending.

According to Proxmire and Navy spokesman Lt. Cmdr. Tim Taylor, the bull was purchased after former Deputy Defense Secretary William Clements briefed an influential member of the House of Representatives about a controversial Navy program designed to improve communications with submarines around the world.

Variously named ELF and Sanguine, the program called for the construction of 28 miles of above-ground cables that transmit radio waves into the air and back down into the ocean.

Fear of ill-health effects had stirred local resistance in various states where the Navy proposed to install the system, including Wisconsin and Michigan.

In 1974, Clements, now the governor of Texas, was asked by former Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., if Sanguine damaged beef cattle.

Clements responded that the Navy was running a study on cattle at Clam Lake, Wis., headquarters for Sanguine.

In fact, according to Navy documents, there was no study. "It has been determined that no one has ever heard of the bull idea," said a Navy memo from the time, according to Proxmire.

Clements ordered purchase of a bull. Sylvester initially cost $300, plus $700 in feed costs. Over six years, according to spokesman Taylor, Sylvester cost about $13,000.

Over the years, various Navy scientists questioned the quality of any study involving just one bull, and there were questions raised about the danger posed by a bull kept by himself in a Navy facility unrelated to livestock.

All my life I've had the feeling that God put me on earth to love and fulfill the needs of someone like Barry Manilow, someone who has everything in the world but happens to be very lonely. Please don't get me wrong. It's not the money, fame or glamour I'm looking for. I just want to devote my life to someone who wants more than anything in the world to be loved for himself, but has never found that person.

If Barry is involved already, I would like the chance to make Burt Reynolds happy. In spite of his macho confident manner, I sense that Burt is also a very lonely person who needs love.

I am not a fat, ugly old woman who has never had a date. I am 22, attractive and have no trouble getting dates. I just need help to do what the Lord wants me to do.

Can you help me meet Barry Manilow or Burt Reynolds? — NEEDS AN INTRODUCTION

DEAR NEEDS: Superstars such as Barry Manilow and Burt Reynolds work very hard, and their schedules are so demanding they have very little time to become lonely. However, if the good Lord wants you to meet either one of these gentlemen, trust him to provide the introduction.

DEAR ABBY: I am particularly upset when I arrive early at a movie to select a seat where I want it, and then have two or three people come in and sit near me and start talking or giggling or commenting on the movie. Even "stage whispers" can spoil the show for me.

I realize that the sooner I speak up, the better, but I keep putting it off, hoping it won't happen again. But it usually does.

How do you ask people to be quiet? And what do you say if they say, "If I want to talk, I'll talk"? Or worse yet, "If you don't like it — move"? — ATLANTA MOVIE LOVER

DEAR LOVER: Politely ask your noisy neighbors to please be quiet. And if you encounter a rude response, complain to the manager.

DEAR ABBY: I have no sympathy for the 52-year-old woman who married a 60-year-old man (second time around) and found that he was impotent.

I am 75 and my husband is 77. When he was 30, due to a bungled operation, he lost all sexual desire. Of course we were both very unhappy about it, but it wasn't the end of our marriage and it didn't diminish our love for each other.

Over the years we have experienced an intimacy that would not be believed by this present generation, which thinks all there is to marriage is sex. When we cuddle up in each other's arms on a cold winter night, we achieve a more lasting closeness than those couples who make love for three minutes, then leave each other to go to sleep in separate beds. - TRUE LOVERS

Here's the answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — Will you please discuss in your column how to take apart the aluminum frame on the glass insert for an aluminum storm door? The frame on each corner has four dimples. Do I have to take apart the corners where the mitered corners are? I have to replace the broken glass.

A. — The corners are not meant to be separated. On the side opposite the dimples, you will find a rubber or plastic material a fraction of an inch wide. It is fitted in around the edges of the glass and is similar to the putty found around the glass in a wooden frame. Remove it, replace the glass and put back the moulding-like material or buy a new piece of it.

Q. — Please tell me how to get rid of cloudiness in crystal decanters and glasses. I have tried ammonia and vinegar with tea leaves. Neither works. Can you help?

A. — Credit my wife for the answer to this one. She says that since she took the stopper out of the decanter and stored the glasses in the cabinet open side upwards, the cloudiness has disappeared.

Q. — The wall of our bedroom begins to sweat in the fall and winter months. What causes this? It is an outside wall.

A. — There appears to be excess moisture in that room which is condensing on a cold wall. Is it a master bedroom which has a private bathroom? If so, then the warm, moist air is comin from thebathroom. Try opening the window in that room a trifle, especially after showering or bathing. An exhaust fan would be even better.

Q. — I have a 50-year-old house that had wooden roof shingles. After 30 years, asphalthingles were placed over them. It's been good for 20 years, but now the shingles need replacing. Can I put another layer of shingles on or must everything be ripped off?

A. — Only a personal inspection by an experienced roofer can determine that. It depends on how much weight the old framework can hold and the condition of the shingles already there.

Q. — Our roof is in poor condition. It is the roof originally put on the house when it was built 27 years ago. When my husband was alive, he did all the necessary repair work on it, so I do not have a regular roofer or know anyone in the business. How do I go about getting a reliable roofer? I know there is one in our neighborhood for more than 20 years. Would you recommend him?

A. — There is no way that I can recommend a roofer unknown to me. The fact that he is still doing business in the area after all those years is in itself a fairly good recommendation. You can check your bank, the local roofers' association and the Better Business Bureau, but no recommendation tops that from a neighbor who has used him and knows the quality of his work, whether he gets things done on time and whether he backs up his work. Let it be known to your neighbors that you are in the market for a roofer and ask questions. You'll find that people generally are willing to discuss the merits of local businessmen.

Apricot Tart: Winter wonder

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Pressood Editor

One of the best things that can happen to canned apricots is for them to be put into a tart. Especially if the tart is made by the fllowing recipe. Cooks who have baked this dessert with the recipes I have given using fresh peaches and pears will, I believe, be happy to have this latest variation. Our tasters could not have praised it more highly.

APRICOT TART

Two 17-ounce cans whole peeled apricots in heavy syrup
Pastry Shell, recipe follows
3 egg yolks (from large eggs)
1-3rd cup commercial sour cream
¾ cup sugar
¼ cup all-purpose flour

Thoroughly drain the apricots; halve and discard pits; thoroughly dry the apricots between sheets of paper toweling.

Prepare and bake the Pastry Shell.

In a medium bowl beat together the egg yolks, sour cream, sugar and flour until smooth. Arrange the apricot halves, cut side up, in concentric circles (overlapping if necessary) in the still-hot Pastry Shell; pour the sour cream mixture over the apricots. Bake in the preheated 350-degree oven until top is golden and meringue-like — 45 minutes. Place on a wire rack to cool. With a small metal spatula, loosen edges; remove side wall of pan. Delicious served while still warm or at room temperature. Makes 8 servings.

PASTRY SHELL

1¼ cups all-purpse flour
½ cup (4-ounce stick) butter
2 tablespoons commercial sour cream

In a food processor with the metal blade, process the flour and butter until no butter is visible. Add the sour cream and process just until dough forms a ball. Remove and flatten into a disc; place in the center of an ungreased, round, 9- by 1½-inch cake pan with a removable bottom. Press over bottom and sides of pan to cover evenly and completely. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until set-looking but not browned — about 20 minutes. (Pastry may be puffed in places.) Reduce oven temperature to 350 degrees.

Weight Watcher's founder not skinny

By BEA PIXA
Hearst Feature Service

The empress of the struggling obese isn't skinny, at least not in the voguish, semi-emaciated sense. Jean Nidetch, 58, 5 feet 7 inches, buys a respectable but unsylphlike size 12 — a generous size 12 if one had to guess. It's not a size models are made of, but all things are relative. Until she was in her late 30s. Jean Nidetch's clothes were size 44.

A former Queens, N.Y., housewife, wed to a bus driver with whom she shared a love of food and a weight problem, Nidetch is one of the wonder women of recent decades. In 1961, she founded Weight Watchers, a weight control program that became a runaway success.

It grew from informal meetings with six friends at her house, and soon exploded into an international, publicly-owned company offering summer camps for the overweight, meetings, books and specially prepared foods.

After 17 years, Weight Watchers was sold for 72 million. The buyer, ironically, was Heinz, a company known for beans, ketchup and an assortment of other foodstuffs, many of them forbidden to dieters.

Nidetch now serves as a consultant - touring, speaking, and most recently promoting the "Weight Watchers 365-Day Menu Cookbook," based on the food plan official Weight Watchers must follow.

Brooklyn-reared Jean Nidetch is not a woman given to understatement. Her image conveys more brass than class, yet she is thoroughly likeable, open and down-to-earth. Her poufed hair is bombshell blonde. Her skin reflects hours of leisure spent in Southern California sunshine. (Her home is now in Los Angeles, although she maintains an apartment in New York, which she visits every six weeks to see her granddaughter.)

If Nidetch has the look of a woman who is enjoying her self-made success, she also leaves no doubt that she comes by it righteously. She has seen a genuine need to inspire the obese and to prove to them, as she proved to herself, that the fight against fat can be won, without gimmicks, with medical approval, and with a lot of support and encouragement.

Weight Watchers has mellowed over the years. Now, with doctors, nutritionists, psychologists and various experts employed as advisers and possessing, admits Nidetch, "much more expertise than I have," the "legal" foods have expanded to include former unmentionables such as wine, peanut butter and pastas.

For her own purposes, Neidtch still has trouble "even saying wine and peanut butter."

Although she realizes that most obese people are searching for a miracle that will allow them to shed their weight quickly and still let them eat all manner of forbidden fare, she prefers to tell it like it is. Which is to say, weight control is, and forever will be, a constant struggle.

Over the years she has heard all the excuses anyone could possibly offer for remaining fat. To those who resist losing weight because they fear a gaunt appearance, she says, "You can get fat again if you don't like the way you look when you get thin."

To those who refuse to exercise, assuming that it will only encourage a keener appetite, she says, "Actually, the reverse is true."

Nidetch says her overall health since she's lost weight has never been better. In her obese days, she believed heartburn was a condition of life and that "the world had to live on Tums." She believed everybody got winded after climbing a flight of stairs. And she never would consider learning to ride a bicycle because she would have been too embarrassed.

When she became slender, new worlds opened. She learned to ride a bike at age 45 and she walks three miles daily and likes it. "I used to think of exercise as torture."

There have been lots of other changes in Nidetch's life as well. Three years ago she gave up a three-pack-a-day cigarette habit. This year, she's given up coffee and switched to herbal tea. Most recently, she's grown interested in metaphysics, having long believed that her mission to help the overweight is foreordained.

Nidetch recognizes that nobody can be talked into losing weight unless the will to do so is there.

"Only one thing will make you slim: A desire and a knowledge that you are capable of being slim. Eliminate the word 'can't.' I'll accept 'won't' but 'can't' leaves you nowhere to go."

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Nursing home residents have special clothing needs

DEAR HELOISE:

I have worked in a nursing home laundry room for over five years, so I have some helpful suggestions for families of nursing home residents.

When purchasing clothing for them, be sure it can be machine washed and dried. Avoid turn-up cuffs on the sleeves of ladies dresses or dusters — they catch lint — and frilly decorations that require special care or handling.

It's better to have gripper snaps instead of buttons or zippers.

If the resident is not up walking about, dresses or dusters that open all the way down the back are best. In some cases, pajamas are better.

Be sure and put the resident's name on every personal item and in plain view. — A Faithful Reader

■■■

Thanks for letting us benefit from your experience. It's traumatic when we have to put a loved one in another's care, so any tips that make it easier on the resident, the staff and the family are most gratefully appreciated.

Hugs to you and those you care for. — Heloise

TRAVEL TIP

Dear Heloise: If you have a child who insists upon taking a pillow in the car, here's an idea for one that will fit in the glove compartment.

Take an inflatable beach ball and blow it up a quarter to half the way. You can make a fabric cover for it if you want.

Simply deflate it when not in use and put it back in the glove compartment. — Jennifer

GIFT TAGS

Dear Heloise: For the past three years I have saved the little tags that I attach to gifts for family members.

I purchased them on sale and then use them over again each year.

The kids enjoy finding the ones they wrote. You might even date them on the back and have a keepsake of your child's signature over the years.

Besides, think of the money I save every year! — Gerry Clark

THOUGHTFUL GESTURE

Dear Heloise: Seems there is one group of people we all are guilty of taking for granted.

They are the trash collectors. No matter how cold the morning, there they are, right on schedule, doing their thankless job.

I thought it would be nice at Christmas time to bake some extra cookies or buy some extra warm gloves and wrap them up for them.

Wouldn't it be great if everyone who reads and benefits from your column would do the same? — Garey Bostion

■■■

Sure would! There are a lot of hard-working people doing jobs in extreme cold or blistering heat, tough jobs that someone has to do.

Let's all do what we can to help each other and give a little pat on the back for jobs well done. — Heloise

FIREPLACE DECORATIONS

Dear Heloise: To hang a wreath or other decoration on the face of a brick fireplace can present a problem. Here's what I do.

Stretch a string of nylon fishing line tautly between two hooks in the wood wall on both sides of the fireplace. Run the line across the mortar, between the brick, for support.

No holes in the mortar and, since it doesn't show, it can be left in place for other seasonal displays throughout the year. — Mrs. Keith Burgess

SEWING TIP

Dear Heloise: My friend was making a top for her young daughter for Christmas and found it necessary to try it on her for a correct fit.

She wanted the garment to be a surprise, so my clever friend simply blindfolded her daughter, had her try on the top and was able to get a proper fit.

The young girl never guessed what her gift looked like and was pleasantly surprised Christmas morning! — Reader

Supply and demand

By ERMA BOMBECK

Every year, one of my children wants a game for Christmas where the demand exceeds the supply by about 355,000.

The game is touted on television, beginning in June, with the approach that if it is not under your tree on Christmas Day, you are an unfit parent and your children will grow up to steal hubcaps.

By September, your child has built up to a pitch. If he doesn't get this game, he may give up breathing for Lent. He assures you it is the only game he wants. Now the pressure is on for you to find the game that, for the purpose of avoiding a lawsuit, I will call "Humiliation" . . . a game for the entire family, order No. 17055354, batteries not included.

By October, every store in your area is sold out of Humiliation with no hope of getting a new order in. But the television teasers go on . . . showing a typical American family with Mom and Dad and two-and-a-half children sitting around a table playing Humiliation until they faint from joy.

Forget baking fruitcake, buying a Christmas tree, entertaining with wassail, caroling, sending out Christmas cards, or decorating the house. Every morning as soon as the alarm goes off, your feet touch the floor and you give the battle cry, "Find Humiliation today!"

By mid-November, you have driven 1800 miles in search of the game, following tips from friends that a discount house has two left in the northern part of the state, or a toy dealer has one under the counter that is damaged, but negotiable.

Several times you are tempted to get a game that is a ripoff of Humiliation, like Mortify or Family Conceit, but it won't be the same.

If you're lucky (?) just before Christmas, you race a little old grandmother to the counter and wrench the last Humiliation game on earth from her fingers, buy batteries and put it under the tree.

On Christmas night when you are picking up all the paper, ribbon and warranties, your eyes fall upon Humiliation, still in the box, the $49.95 price tag shining like a beacon.

The kids are playing with a cardboard box and snapping the air pockets of plastic packing material.

Christmas is not a game for kids.

Log cabins gain renewed interest

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

A few years ago I was up to my hip boots in books, letters and press releases about solar-energy houses.

Today I am being engulfed in data about log-cabin homes. The avalanche of information includes everything available on the various sizes and shapes of log cabins, but most of it concerns structures to which you contribute all or part of the labor.

While most of the log-cabin companies once were principally in the business of building and selling such houses, many of them these days are putting out do-it-yourself kits. We supply the materials, they say, all measured, cut and marked — and you supply the elbow grease. Of course, they add, we will handle as much or as little of the construction as you want.

One company, Indian Creek Corp. of Rochester, N. Y., says slightly more than half of its log-home sales are to people who do all the construction work themselves, with 20 percent having the houses partly erected and then finishing off the remainder. Another upstate New York company, Lincoln Logs Ltd. of Chestertown, even turns out what it calls passive solar log homes.

All this renewed activity in log-cabin houses is a result of the housing squeeze that has been generated by high mortgage-interest rates and increased prices, both of which have shown some signs of backing off very slightly in recent months.

Young couples finding it difficult to get into the housing market are investigating every possible avenue in the hope of discovering a solution to their problem. At first, their efforts were directed towards so-called creative financing; that is, the many new forms of loans being offered these days in place of conventional mortgages. But no matter how the mortgage loan is sliced,, it must be paid back at a high rate of interest. The alternative is cheaper housing cabins, chiefly because they are smaller and without frills, offer cheaper housing, although you can get some large and pretty fancy log cabins if you have a mind (and a pocketbook) In th case of the Indian Creek log cabins, the logs are hand-peeled in such a way that the exterior surface remains rounded but with a reduced curve. Inside, the logs are machined flat, forming a horisontal paneled interior. In place of the old style heavy mortar between the logs is a double tongue-and-groove. The solid, massive, white-pine log is engineered to be self-leveling and self-seating.

In the case of the passive solar energy log house, it does not rely on separate collectors, storage units or machine equipment. Logs themselves are natural solar collectors, the manufacturer points out, storing heat and releasing it only as temperature drops. Thick hollow-masonry walls faced with bricks, stone or other dark coating, plus a concrete floor and an underlying 14-by-16-foot rock bed, work together to absorb and radiate heat through daylight hours and start releasing it when the temperature falls after sunset.

Still another New York company that sells pre-cut log cabin kits, Lock-N-Logs of Sherbourne, estimates that its shell generally can be erected in three to 10 days, with the interior work taking from three to 10 weeks.

Among the many books on the actual details of log cabin building is Roger Hard's "Build Your Own Low-cost Log Home," which is for those really serious about such a project and not for dabblers. As Hard says, "One characteristic found in common with all log home owners is that they like to work with their hands and build things."

(Do-it-yourselfers who do things around the house will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, NJ 07666.)

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Depressed children may profit from counseling

Dear Dr. Solomon: My 7-year-old son has become quiet and moody since his father and I separated. Would you suggest that I take him for psychiatric help? — Mrs. N.C., York, Pa.

Dear Mrs. C.: Separation, as well as divorce or the death or illness of a parent, may cause depression in a child. Some of these children would profit from counseling. You might consider discussing the situation with your pediatrician or family physician to see if he or she believes that a referral to a psychiatrist is indicated.

Some self-examination on your part may also be advisable. Sometimes a parent's depression rubs off on a child; if that is the case, you might want to consider counseling for yourself. In any event, a discussion with your pediatrician or family physician would be a sound first step.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My mother used to tell me that her arthritis got better when she was pregnant, but I felt it was all her imagination. Now I'm pregnant and my arthritis feels better, and I know it's not my imagination. Do you have any explanation for this? — Mrs. V. O., Cheyenne, Wy.

Dear Mrs. O.: There is evidence that women with rheumatoid arthritis often do experience less pain in their joints during the time they are pregnant. However, the pain returns about six weeks later.

A number of researchers have studied this phenomenon. Now Dr. Robert H. Persellin of the University of Texas Health Science Center in San Antonio reports that he has isolated a protein that is linked to inflammation. The substance seems to increase in amount during pregnancy, when women say their joint pain is often reduced.

It is possible that scientific evidence may soon be available to support the view that women with rheumatoid arthritis actually feel better when they are pregnant.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I'm sold on the value of exercise to prevent heart attacks in most people. However, I come from a family where there's a history of high blood pressure and heart disease. Under these circumstances, might it not be better for me to avoid strenuous exercise? — Vito, New York, N.Y.

Dear Vito: A study conducted at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine indicates that vigorous exercise can protect against coronary heart disease even in men with a number of risk factors, even including cigarette smoking and obesity. This conclusion is based on a study of almost 18,000 middle-aged men in white-collar jobs.

After periods ranging from 10 to 12 years, a review of these men showed that more than twice as many episodes of coronary heart disease occurred in the men who did not engage in vigorous exercise as in those who did.

These findings, of course, do not eliminate the need for a thorough physical examination for people before they begin engaging in strenuous exercise.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My daughter and I have been having a running debate, which I hope you can end. It seems as clear to me as anything could possibly be that if it is harmful for a pregnant woman to smoke cigarettes, it must be harmful for her to smoke marijuana. My daughter says that smoking cigarettes and smoking marijuana are two different things. May we have your opinions? — Mrs. T.N., Bradenton, Fla.

Dear Mrs. N.: At least one study indicates that smoking marijuana during pregnancy has an adverse effect on the fetus, possibly even more so than occurs with cigarettes. Dr. Barry Zuckerman and his associates at the Boston University School of Medicine and Boston City Hospital interviewed almost 1,700 new mothers about a variety of variables, including the use of marijuana. They found that the infants of mothers who smoked marijuana during their pregnancies were lighter in weight and shorter than other infants.

It seems clear that women who would like their babies to get the best possible start in life should stay away from marijuana, at least during their pregnancies.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have been treated for angina for over a year, but the condition still troubles me. My doctor tells me I ought to think about seeing a shrink. Can you tell me what a psychiatrist is going to do for a heart condition? — George, Atlanta, Ga.

Dear George: I have no way of knowing if your doctor's suggestion that you see a psychiatrist is related to your angina. Assuming this is the case, however, there are indications that psychological and behavioral factors can trigger attacks of angina, and psychotherapy may therefore be advisable for some patients.

A study of 124 men by Dr. C. David Jenkins, of the Boston University School of Medicine, showed that 45 percent of the patients experienced angina when they were excited, angry, or upset. Therefore, a patient who is depressed and has difficulty sleeping, for example, may find the frequency of his anginal attacks reduced if he can resolve some of his emotional problems through psychotherapy.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I seem to be reading a lot more lately about how older people have brittle bones. What is the problem, and can anything be done about it? Are all older people affected? — Mrs. D.C., St. Petersburg, Fla.

Dear Mrs. C.: Bone density loss (or osteoporosis) is a common problem among elderly people. It is a common cause of fractures, particularly hip fracture. The problem is aggravated because many older persons who suffer these fractures are not in the best of health, and surgery is therefore risky.

Preventive measures that might be taken include calcium supplementation and a regular program of exercise. In addition, hazards around the house that might cause a person to fall, such as a torn rug, should be eliminated.

Federal prosecutors say Hinckley took rifle training

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Hinckley, Jr., the man accused of shooting President Reagan, took rifle training last December a few days after spending time in Washington at the same time Reagan was here preparing to take office, federal prosecutors say.

Hinckley repeated his rifle training in early 1981 and the ear protecters he used at the rifle target range near Denver were taken from his room in his parents' home the day the president was shot, they added.

Those details were revealed Monday in a memorandum filed in U.S. District Court by U.S. Attorney Charles F. C. Ruff and Assistant U.S. Attorney Roger M. Adelman.

U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker asked for the memorandum, which outlines evidence the prosecutors plan to present against Hinckley.

Hinckley has said in legal documents that he is not contesting that he shot Reagan and three other men March 30, but that he is innocent by reason of insanity.

The prosecution memorandum said Hinckely was in Washington in early December while Reagan, as president-elect, lived at Blair House across the street from the White House.

Just two months earlier, the memorandum said, Hinckley was in Dayton, Ohio, and Nashville, Tenn., on days when President Carter was campaigning in those cities. While in Nashville, Hinckley was arrested for possessing three handguns.

Adelman and Ruff said the FBI also took from Hinckley's room in his parents' home in Evergreen, Colo., "magazines and newspaper articles relating to earlier assassinations, including those of President Kennedy and Governor (George) Wallace."

The prosecutors also told Parker in the memorandum that they would not sign a proposed agreement sought by the defense that would state Hinckley committed the shootings and make it unnecessary for the government to present evidence of the crime.

The prosecutors said the defense has not offered, as part of the proposed agreement, to stipulate that it was Hinckley's intent to shoot the president.

The government has charged Hinckley with assault with intent to kill, a crime that involves intent and could bring a life sentence. Without proof of intent, Hinckley could be convicted of the lesser crime of assault with a dangerous weapon, which carries a maximum 10-year sentence. Hinckley also is charged with attempting to assassinate the president, which carries a maximum life term.

The defense has asked for a two-phase trial with separate juries. The first phase would be on the crime itself, while the second would consider whether, as a result of a mental defect, Hinckley was unable to appreciate the wrongfulness of his actions, and thereby be absolved of criminal responsibility.

Woman's cries for help are ignored

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A young woman went door-to-door through an apartment building trying to get help for a friend who was being raped, but she says only one man answered her cries, and he wouldn't open the door.

The 20-year-old woman said she ran into the building after an assailant grabbed her 18-year-old friend as they walked through a parking lot Sunday morning.

"I kept knocking. I kept knocking. Finally someone answered and I said, 'My friend is being raped. Please call the police.'"

She told the Omaha World-Herald, which did not identify either woman, that when the man didn't answer, "I started to panic, knocking on other doors."

Finally, she said, she gave up and drove to a restaurant where she called police.

She said officers told her the man in the apartment had called.

"But if that guy had answered the door, I'm sure we could have gone back and done something. I'm sure they were still there."

She said the feeling of helplessness terrified her.

"I wish there was something I could do," she said. "I kept thinking I could have told him (the rapist) that she had epilepsy or something. But all I was concerned with was getting help. I was scared for me and I was scared for her."

She said the rapist said hello when they passed him in the parking lot, but they ignored him.

"When he first walked by, I just didn't even look at him. I just thought he was a smart-aleck guy. All of a sudden I heard a gasp or something," she said.

The man had grabbed her friend by the neck and told the other woman to go around the corner, saying he only wanted the purse.

"I went around the corner and in two seconds I came back. They were squatting down and he said, 'I've got a knife to her stomach.'"

The woman said she offered the man money to leave her friend alone, and he responded by threatening to kill her.

The man, who remained at large Monday, assaulted the 18-year-old woman and then forced her to a nearby creek bed where he raped her again. She suffered bruises on the face, legs and arms, and was released from a hospital after treatment.

Court rules out high school prayer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A week after saying state college students must be allowed to use campus buildings for worship meetings, the Supreme Court is refusing to give that same right to public high school students.

Acting without comment Monday, the justices left intact rulings that prohibit a group of students at Guilderland High School near Albany, N.Y., from holding prayer meetings in a classroom before the start of school each morning.

"We're surprised and very disappointed," said spokesman Orland Love of Milwaukee for the Catholic League, whose lawyers filed the appeal for the Guilderland students.

"Some hopes were raised last week when the court recognized that religious worship is a form of free speech," he said. "We had hoped the court would grant high school students the same free-speech rights as college students."

ALTHOUGH THE ISSUE IS NOT settled definitively, the signal to lower courts at least for now is that treatment of religion in public schools still depends in great part on the age of the students involved.

The Constitution's First Amendment forbids the government to "establish" or promote religion — a prohibition that sparked the Supreme Court's 1962 outlawing of organized prayer in public schools.

The Guilderland students had contended their case was different. Although they would be meeting at the high school, they would do so during non-class hours and without teacher supervision.

In other matters Monday, the nation's highest court took these actions:

—Left intact a ruling that Vietnam veterans cannot sue makers of the defoliant Agent Orange under "federal common law."

The practical effect, according to lawyers for many of the veterans, is the possibility that some 600,000 veterans may be barred, for various reasons, from pressing their suits under state laws.

Veterans have claimed that Agent Orange has caused them severe health problems, including cancer and multiple birth defects in their children. The herbicide was used by the U.S. military in Southeast Asia between 1962 and 1971.

—Ruled in a Berkeley, Calif., case that local governments may not limit the amount of money people give to committees for or against voter referendums.

The court said those communities, however, could require that the names of contributors and the amounts they contributed be made public.

—RULED IN A CASE FROM Polk County, Iowa, that public defenders cannot be sued under a federal civil rights law by penniless people the county assigns them to defend.

—Agreed to decide, sometime by July, in an Ohio case whether states can demand the full name and address of each financial contributor to campaign committees of such splinter political groups as the Social Workers Party.

Abduction victim tells about sexual abuse

AP Laserphoto

Steven Stayner, 16, testifies with detail of his seven-year abduction and his sexual abuse by Kenneth Parnell in an Alameda County Superior Courtroom in Hayward, Calif., Monday. On trial with Parnell is Ervin Murphy, who is accused of aiding Parnell in the abduction.

HAYWARD, Calif. (AP) — Steven Stayner, who as a 7-year-old was snatched from a street in 1972, says he was sexually abused during the seven years he was held but did not try to escape until his captor came home one day with another young boy.

Stayner testified Monday for the first time in the trial of Kenneth Parnell, a 50-year-old drifter charged with kidnapping him.

Cross-examination of Stayner by Parnell's lawyer, Neil Morse, was to resume today.

Stayner, now 16, told the Alameda Superior Court jury that 5-year-old Timmy White appeared in Parnell's cabin Feb. 14, 1980, and asked help in getting back home to Ukiah, in northern California.

"After about a week, Timmy started talking to me. He was always talking about his parents and how he wanted to go home. I told him I would try to get him home," Stayner testified.

They hitchhiked into Ukiah and went to police.

Parnell has been sentenced to seven years in prison in connection with White's abduction.

Speaking haltingly and with embarrassment, Stayner said Parnell forced him into oral sex. He said that within a few weeks after the abduction, Parnell began sodomizing him regularly.

Stayner gave a long list of homes he said he shared with Parnell during the seven years, and confirmed the names of his playmates, the schools he attended and the conversation that allegedly enticed him into Parnell's car in Merced on Dec. 4, 1972.

Shortly after the kidnapping, Parnell said he had gone to court and won custody of the boy and that his name would be Dennis Parnell, Stayner said, adding he called Parnell "dad" as he was told to.

On trial with Parnell is Ervin Murphy, who is accused of aiding in the abduction.

Auto exhaust may cause cancer

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A scientist reported laboratory evidence Monday that automobile exhaust and other forms of urban air pollution could pose cancer and genetic threats.

A chemical compound produced by burning gasoline causes malignant tumors in laboratory mice, according to tests conducted since 1979 by Dr. Ercole Cavalieri and his collaborators at the Eppley Cancer Institute.

Cavalieri said that when the compound, called cyclopentapyrene or CPP, was applied to the skin of the mice along with another compound found in auto exhaust, many more tumors resulted.

He said he believed it was the first such laboratory evidence.

CAVALIERI SAID CPP was found in every sample of auto exhaust in tests conducted in Germany, so he suspects CPP is common in the American environment.

Along with Dr. Michael Gross of the University of Nebraska, who also worked on the study, Cavalieri is seeking an $843,000 four-year grant from the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences to determine exactly how common CPP is and whether, as suspected, it poses a serious cancer risk to humans.

"Certainly, it is not the right moment to ask for new money," Cavalieri said, but he feels the government should be "sensitive" to the potential danger.

He said scientists have long been aware of the other compound used in the tests, benzopyrene, or BP. "This is present pratically everywhere. It is produced in the combustion of almost any organic matter, including tobacco."

BP is the most potent carcinogen, Cavalieri said, and CPP is probably the second most potent. The German tests, he said, showed that CPP is 10 to 15 times more abundant in auto exhaust than BP.

Working with the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cavalieri said, the Eppley Institute also has found evidence that CPP induces mutations.

"WE HAVE DONE an experiment that shows CPP is 100 percent carcinogenic. It also could be a genetic hazard," he said.

The grant would allow Cavalieri and his co-workers to gather and analyze air samples from Chicago. He wants to sample industrial, high-traffic and urban residential areas. On the basis of those tests, Cavalieri said, researchers should be able to determine if the combination of CPP and BP in the air can cause tumors in lab animals.

Man found freezing 'critical'

La CROSSE, Wis. (AP) — A man found outside in freezing weather with a body temperature of 71 was in critical condition today even though his temperature had returned to the normal 98.6, doctors said.

DeWitt Henson's blood pressure also was normal. But he was unconscious, had only the slightest eye and mouth movements and possible brain damage remained "the big question," said Dr. A. Erik Gunderson of Gunderson-Clinic-Lutheran Hospital.

Henson, 32, of Fort Worth, Texas, was found in the driveway of the house owned by the family he lived with in nearby Ettrick. A family member said Henson had been drinking.

His blood was warmed in three hours by passing it through a heart-lung machine and life-supports were hooked up in hopes of restoring him to consciousness, Gunderson said.

"If you don't hook him to a (heart) monitor, you would think he was dead," Gunderson said.

Henson lived with the Leonard Fausak family. Mrs. Fausak, who would not divulge her first name, said their young grandson found Henson after he apparently spent the night outside with temperatures in the 30s. She would not elaborate.

Gunderson, a heart surgeon, said cold can be fatal, but also can preserves tissue and allows a freezing victim to recover in some cases.

One year ago, Jean Hilliard, 19, of Lengby, Minn., was found frozen "like a piece of meat out of a deep-freeze" and registered 12 heartbeats a minute, less than a fifth of normal, after spending a night in snow at 22 degrees below zero. She survived with some permanent frostbite damage but no brain damage, doctors said.

Chester Metcalf, 24, had a body temperature of 69 degrees when found unconscious in subzero weather in 1979 in Madison, Wis. His death two days later was blamed on brain damage.

News reporter David Lopez testified that Freeway Killer defendent William Bonin confessed to him that he had killed 21 young boys during proceedings in Los Angeles Monday.

Reporter gives trial surprise finish

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A TV reporter, saying his civic duty outweighed his obligations as a journalist, provided a surprise finale in the Freeway Killings trial, testifying that defendant William Bonin confessed to 21 killings in a jailhouse interview.

"I'd still be killing," Bonin was quoted as saying by reporter David Lopez, who provided details of the confession in the murder trial Monday after earlier refusing go beyond limited testimony.

"I couldn't stop killing. It got easier with each one we did," Bonin was quoted as saying.

Bonin is charged with 12 slayings in what came to be known as the Freeway Killings case, so named because bodies of 44 young men and boys were dumped beside freeways in Southern California between 1972 and 1980. Officials say the killings might not all be related.

Bonin also said he led police to one victim's body solely because he wanted police officers to buy him a hamburger, Lopez testified.

Bonin, who was arrested in June 1980, received a letter in jail from the mother of Sean King, 14, of South Gate, pleading to have "my little baby buried for Christmas" and adding: "I forgive you for what you did. I'm a born-again Christian," Lopez said.

But Lopez said Bonin told him the day he led investigators to King's body in San Bernadino County, "I was dying for a hamburger and I knew if I went out with the cops they would buy me a hamburger."

Lopez, who works for KNXT in Los Angeles, was to resume the witness stand for cross-examination by Bonin's lawyer today. The attorney, William Charvet, had tried to block Lopez' testimony and called it "very damaging" to Bonin's case.

Superior Court Judge William Keene delayed closing arguments, which had been scheduled to begin Monday, to allow the testimony.

Lopez said he decided to testify because "it was the only humane thing to do."

"We're journalists and we're also citizens," Lopez said outside court. "I testified as a citizen ... You're a citizen first."

Lopez appeared earlier in the trial, but would only confirm the contents of a report he broadcast about the interview with Bonin. The report did not provide details on the confession.

Lopez had claimed rights under California's shield law to protect a news source in his refusal to testify further, but said after his testimony Monday he felt that "a million-pound weight has been lifted off my head."

He said he believed "every mother and father" had a right to know about the confession.

The management of the station "totally supports" Lopez' position, said Phyllis Kirk-Bush, a KNXT spokeswoman.

Commercial Bank's IRA:
saves tax dollars now ... provides retirement security later.

The New Individual Retirement Account

In 1982 everyone who works for a living is eligible for an Individual Retirement Account (IRA), even if they already are participating in a pension or profit sharing plan. You can save hundreds of tax dollars in 1982 by starting your own IRA. It would be a costly mistake to pass up this opportunity.

The amount each person can save in an IRA has been increased to $2,000 a year as long as earned income is $2,000 or more. Deduct $2,000 from your taxable income or $4,000 if both husband and wife are working.

Taxes on IRA interest are deferred until you begin withdrawing from your account. Most likely you will be in a lower tax bracket after retirement.

Rebs host Dunbar

Lee, MHS girls on road

The Midland Lee Rebels will carry a 7-2 mark against the 6-4 Lubbock Dunbar Panthers at 8 p.m. today at Chaparral Center as coach Paul Stueckler's crew enters a week of play that could show just how tough the Rebels are.

The Rebels own a three-game winning streak while Dunbar is coming off a 20-point loss (75-55) to the 11-1 Midland High Bulldogs last Friday at this same site.

Lee was last in action last Thursday in a 79-32 rout over Kermit as Alvin Dunson hit for 26 points and Andre Van Buren for 18.

Van Buren's 18.1 points per game average leads the Rebels while Dunson is hitting at a 16.2 per game clip. Randy Pepper is also averaging in double figures with 12.4 points per game.

Lee will enter the Reese Air Force Base tournament Thursday through Saturday and with that schedule, the Rebels should get a tough test.

The Bulldogs of coach Jack Stephenson take the night off today while preparing for the prestigious 32-team Optimist Classic Thursday through Saturday in San Antonio.

Like Lee, the Bulldogs will face a stern test this week as they put their 11-1 record and 10-game winning streak on the line against some of the state's top cage units in the San Antonio tournament.

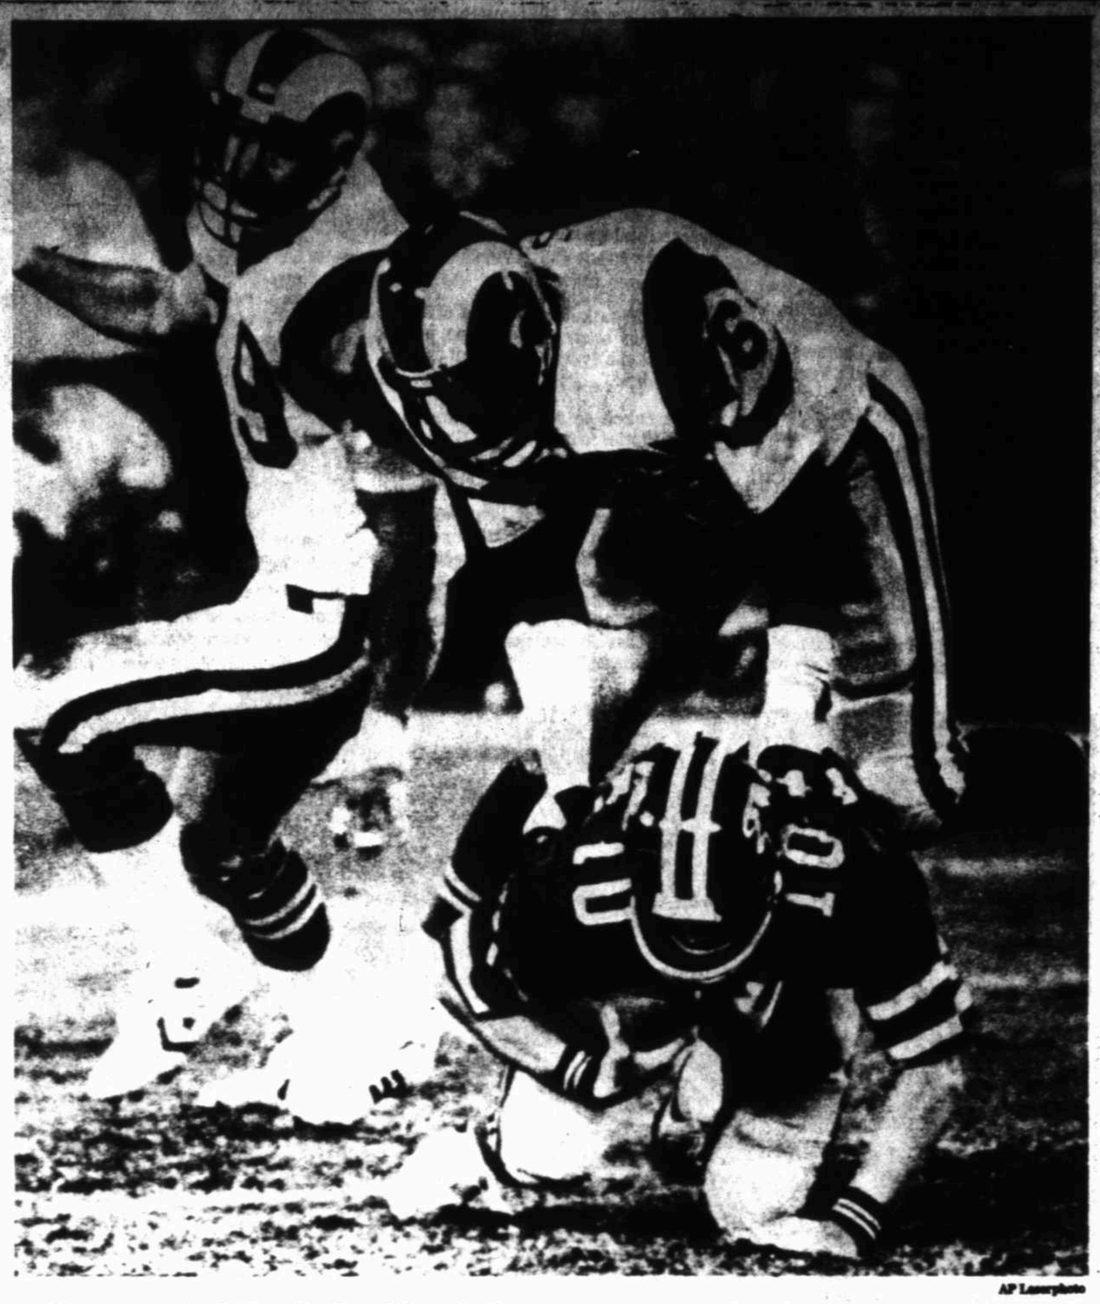

MHS senior center Preston Robertson has been the Bulldog workhorse this year and owns a 20.4 points per game average and leads the team in rebounds.

Don Sharnowski, the only returning starter from last year's 5-5A championship team, is carrying a 13.5 average and Raymond Parker is hitting at an 11.8 clip.

But surviving a 32-team tournament unscathed is quite an accomplishment, so the Bulldogs have their work cut out for them.

In other action tonight, the girls at both Lee and MHS hit the road in final tuneups for the MHS-Lee Girls Invitational basketball tournament, which will be held at Chaparral Center Friday and Saturday.

Midland High travels to Crane with a two-game winning streak while Lee goes to Pecos, trying to come back after a loss last week to Lubbock Monterey, the defending state 5A champion.

Atlanta quarterback Steve Bartkowski is sacked by Rams Cody Jones (76) and Mike Fanning (79) in NFL Monday night action as Rams knocked off Falcons, 21-16, to severely cripple Atlanta's NFC playoffs hopes.

Falcons' season 'ends'

Rams' 21-16 win dampens Atlanta hopes

By KEN PETERS

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams were already looking ahead to next season. Now it seems the Atlanta Falcons are, too.

"Realistically, we're going to be at home at Christmas time just like the Rams," Atlanta Coach Leeman Bennett said Monday night after Los Angeles severly dampened the Falcons' playoff hopes with a 21-16 victory.

"It looks like we finally ran out of chances," said Falcon quarterback Steve Bartkowski, who was held in check by the Los Angeles defense. "Obviously I'm disappointed, but we were simply outplayed in this game."

Atlanta, 7-8, still has a slim shot at the lone remaining National Football Conference wild card berth. If the Falcons whip Cincinnati in next Sunday's regular-season finale at Atlanta, they could possibly finish as one of six NFC teams with 8-8 records. The NFL's complex tie-breaking system would then determine the wild-card berth.

Atlanta's loss assured Philadelphia of the other NFC wild card spot.

WENDELL TYLER ran for two touchdowns, the last to bring the Rams from behind with 7:17 remaining in the game.

"We have a lot of pride," Tyler said of the Rams, out of the playoff picture with a 6-9 record. "We went out there to play hard and have fun."

Trailing 16-14, Los Angeles went 80 yards to Tyler's 7-yard scoring run with the help of two pass-interference calls, against the Falcons' Bobby Butler and Kenny Johnson. The penalties, which occurred two plays apart, moved the ball all the way from the Rams' 20 to the Atlanta 7.

Despite those two mistakes and an interception off Bartkowski that ended the final Falcons' hope at the Ram 7-yard line with two minutes remaining, Bennett said an earlier play made the difference.

"I felt the key was the interception by Nolan Cromwell when it looked like we were going to score," said Bennett. "That was a swing of 10 or 14 points."

WITH ATLANTA at the Rams' 11 late in the second quarter, Cromwell picked off a Bartkowski throw three yards deep in the end zone and raced 94 yards to set up a 3-yard touchdown run by Mike Guman. That gave Los Angeles a 14-10 halftime advantage.

Tyler's other touchdown came on a 6-yard run earlier in the second quarter.

Lynn Cain gave Atlanta a 7-0 first-quarter lead on a 2-yard touchdown burst. The other Atlanta scoring came on field goals of 45, 25 and 22 yards by Mick Luckhurst, the last giving the Falcons a 16-14 edge with 8:40 left in the game.

Atlanta's William Andrews rushed for 115 yards on 23 carries, running his career total to a club record 3,569 yards. Bartkowski connected on just 14 of 36 passes for 160 yards.

Tyler rushed for 79 yards on 22 carries, putting him over the 1,000-yard mark for the campaign. Los Angeles quarterback Dan Pastorini, starting in place of the injured Pat Haden, completed 11 of 22 throws for 111 yards and, like Bartkowski, was intercepted twice.

"It's been a frustrating year but I'm proud of these players," said Rams' Coach Ray Malavasi. "The defense played extremely well."

Hoosier hoopster gets the message

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Indiana Coach Bobby Knight is not one to mince words, so when he told Steve Bouchie he was going to swim or sink, the junior forward apparently took him seriously.

"I told Bouchie after the game (against Penn State) on Saturday that he was going to play no matter how he plays," Knight said. "He can play well, and we need him to play like he can play."

Bouchie scored 12 of Indiana's first 23 points in the second half as the 13th-ranked Hoosiers built a 61-30 lead and clobbered Tulane 77-59 in college basketball Monday night.

"I was just looking to take the shot more," Bouchie said. "Coach Knight really didn't tell me to shoot more, but it just seemed I got a hot hand at a certain point of the game."

TED KITCHEL scored 23 points for the defending national champion Hoosiers, whose only loss in six games this season was to second-ranked Kentucky, and Bouchie wound up with 18, all but four in the second half.

Tulane Coach Ned Fowler felt like he'd been bushwhacked.

"I didn't realize he could shoot like that," Fowler said. "He's 6-foot-8, and to shoot from the corner the way he did — you just don't see that very often."

Southwestern Louisiana, which had worked its was up to No. 15 in the poll, was the lone upset victim in a light Monday night schedule of ranked teams. The Ragin' Cajuns bowed, 70-65, to New Orleans. No. 16 Alabama-Birmingham downed Roosevelt 86-40, and newly ranked Villanova, No. 18, defeated Towson State 85-55.

The Top Twenty

New Orleans got 22 points and 12 rebounds from junior forward Mark Petteway to hand Southwestern Louisiana its first loss in nine games. The Ragin' Cajuns shot only 32.4 percent in the fist half and trailed by four points, 31-27 at intermission. Petteway scored 16 of his points in the second half, however, including a layin with 30 seconds left to salt away the victory for New Orleans, 3-0.

Oliver Robinson scored 29 points as Alabama-Birmingham rebounded from its loss Saturday night to Wichita State by routing Roosevelt University. The Blazers, 4-1, led 39-18 at the half and continued to widen the margin as they forced Roosevelt into 24 turnovers.

Cowboys resist that temptation

TED BATTLES
BATTLE SCENE

Only moments before, Dallas had performed its almost annual ritual of clinching the NFC East title, sweeping Philadelphia's irreverent usurpers two straight for the season and handing the lads from the City of Brotherly love their fourthstraight loss in the process.

In view of the manner in which the Eagles lorded it over the Cowboys last year in winning the NFC championship on the way to an unaccustomed Super Bowl appearance, the temptation must have been almost irresistable for a little nose-in-dirt rubbing. However, the Cowboys are above such things, and have been around long enough to be wary of the consequences of such loose talk, even if their post game deportment wasn't another illustration of the class and dignity of the organization.

THE COWBOYS were gracious in post-game statements, refusing to gloat over the Eagles' misfortunes while giving the devil and Dick Vermeil their due.

Coach Tom Landry sounded the keynote, "The Eagles are still a good team. They haven't been getting the breaks and after a while, that tends to build on your mind. But one of these games they will put it all back together."

A sampling of opinion among the Cowboys indicated Landry's sentiments were shared by his players.

Dennis Thurmond elaborated on Landry's confidence theory. As he saw it, the big difference between the swaggering Eagles of a year ago and the head-hanging club Dallas beat Sunday, was Ron Jaworski. "Ron looks like he has lost some of his confidence. Last year, he was the leader. He was in control of the team. And it showed in the faith they had in him.

"If the leader is down, it is reflected by the entire team," Thurmond added, "And Jaworski is down right now."

DEFENSIVE lineman Randy White, who didn't contribute to building Jaworski's confidence any Sunday, came closer to what everybody might have been thinking and had no hesitation about saying it. "Last year they were on top. They beat people a few times, then talked about them. You do that a few times and the next time you play them, they're going to be ready for you."

"They still have a fine football team. You can't go out there and make mistakes and expect to beat them," he added.

White said the one thing the Eagles have got to learn is to "bounce back. They were riding a crest and now have lost a few and it has shaken their confidence. They are still a good team and still have the capability of making trouble in the playoffs."

QUARTERBACK Danny White, who received Ivory Tower protection from his offensive line in coming back after a rib injury, "Philadelphia is a team capable of great things, if you let them get the lead and don't match 'em. Today we matched their intensity and that was the difference."

Philadelphia's Dick Vermeil sounded like he just plans to add a few hours to his 18-hour work day in an effort to get the Eagles back on track.

"Right now we are groping a little bit offensively, but I think if we go back to the original schemes we've always been successful with and quit screwin' around trying to be a little fancy with multiple formations, we can get back to where we can take some people on and be all right...I think offensively I've let some things influence me and it has hurt our offense. We're doing the same things that got us 92 points in three weeks and now it has caught up with us.

"We gotta get back to some very basic things. That will solve a lot of our problems."

Vermeil was even gracious in defeat, "They are a helluva a football tea, a better football team than us and they deserved to win."

TCU upsets Iowa State

FORT WORTH (AP) — Texas Christian University basketball coach Jim Killingsworth was upset despite a 72-63 non-conference victory over Iowa State.

"It's a lot nicer to be upset when we win than when we lose," Killingsworth conceded Monday night.

What had Killingsworth upset was the inability of the Frogs to keep their concentration after they grabbed a 34-21 halftime lead, but had to scramble to cut down a last half rally by the Cyclones of the Big Eight Conference.

"We can't get a big lead and delay well for some reason. We weren't helping out on defense in the second half and we just seemed to lose our concentration," Killingsworth said.

Iowa State coach Johnny Orr praised his team for making a comeback in the second half.

"But we just couldn't put it in the basket early in the game. We were very tight early and we were able to loosen up some but didn't do it soon enough," Orr said.

Heat stroke serious problem

Los Angeles Times

A "handout" is a newsman's word for an indiscriminate press release sent out by scattershot and fourth-class mail to news shops all over the country. Slugged "For Immediate Release," it is usually immediately released to the wastebasket. Once every other eclipse of the sun, one proves newsworthy.

The release from Temple University caught my eye right away, I guess because it didn't dance around its subject but led with a haymaker. "Records show that 53 high school and college football players died during the last 15 years because the hot humid August weather did not allow their bodies to dissipate the heat generated during pre-season practice sessions."

They died from heat stroke which Temple University researchers say was preventable.

THE POINT struck home with this researcher because, over the years, I have chanced upon not college or high school summer training camps, but those of the pros – West Liberty, W. Va., the last place I talked to Big Daddy Lipscomb, and that sweatbox in Maryland where I first met Carroll Rosenbloom, who was then owner of the Baltimore Colts.

I remember on such occasions marveling at how 300-pound linemen could stand the fearsome heat and humidity in full football gear. Some of these megamen looked like melting candles. Big Daddy was so awash in perspiration, he looked like a relief map of Niagara.

IT WAS the custom of some coaches in those days to turn these sessions into hell camps worthy of Devils Island by denying their athletes even cups of water, a refinement which the researchers at Temple, Tina Wailgum and Dr. Al Paolone found was not only sadistic but homicidal. Deprivation of water can cause death under those conditons, they reported. Far from forbidding players to drink during practice, Ms. Wailgum reported, "in fact, they should force their players to drink."

Coaches who insist players keep their helmets on during hot humid sessions, should have their head examined, so to speak.

Not surprisingly, the studies found that humid heat affects the 300-pound linemen more than the economy-sized 180-pound backs. In conditions simulating 95-degree heat and 80 percent humidity, the linemen's heart rates, temperatures and heat storage rose to dangerous levels. Linemen's heart beats rose to 133 per minute. The backs' only rose to 112. After wind sprints, linemen's pulses rose to 190 per minute. Linemen stored 35 percent of the heat they were producing and, after sprints, the percentage of stored heat by linemen was double that of backs. Body temperature rose as much as one degree centigrade.

THE PRACTICE of coaches insisting on weight standards is inadvisable, the researchers say. They recommend that weight loss be monitored, because drastic weight loss not replenished by fluid can be self-defeating. Instead of becoming more mobile and stronger, the individual just becomes weaker.

The lay term for the condition is "sun stroke." What happens, Dr. Paolone confides by phone, is that the body is "overloaded with stored heat which it can't dissipate. The central nervous system breaks down and the body stops sweating, which is the classic defense against accumulated heat and the body temperature rises till the victim dies."

THE TEMPLE researchers, who used varsity players from Temple for their studies, recommended that coaches who model their training methods after Prussian boot camps modify their tactics, at least for the first few days of camp. "The body will acclimatize," Dr. Paolone admits. "The fatalities almost always occur in the first few days of camp."

The good news is, any body type can tolerate climatic conditions where the temperature is no higher than 75 and the humidity 48 percent. The bad news is, when the player reps or their agents find out about this study, they may insist that the training camp stadiums be domed, and air-conditioned, too – or the training camps all be moved to the French Riviera in August.

9-6 record not what Eagles' Vermeil expected

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Eagles coach Dick Vermeil admits he expected a lot more than a 9-6 record heading into the final game of the National Football League season.

The playoff-bound Eagles have lost four straight and all of them resulted directly or indirectly from crucial mistakes.

"People ask me if we're snakebitten. I don't know," Vermeil said at his weekly news conference Monday.

The coach, of course, was upset over Sunday's 21-10 loss to the Dallas Cowboys, but he did his best to look forward instead of backward.

"That's my thinking and I believe the squad feels the same way," Vermeil said.

The Eagles meet the St. Louis Cardinals here Sunday, and a victory would give them a home-field edge as a wild-card team in the first round of the playoffs.

The Eagles beat the Cardinals in St. Louis, 52-10, but Vermeil said he hopes his team doesn't use that score as a barometer.

"I haven't seen St. Louis play since," Vermeil said, "but I know they've improved, gained momentum. They're a lot better defensively. When we beat them we weren't that much better. Everything worked our way. I expect a tough, physical game this week."

St. Louis had won four straight until losing to the New York Giants Sunday. Rookie quarterback Neil Lomax has keyed the Cardinals' improvement since taking over for veteran Jim Hart. Roy Green, who plays wide receiver, defense and on the special teams, also has given coach Jim Hanifan's team a big lift.

Vermeil talked about his offense, which has scored just three points totally in the fourth quarter of the last four games.

The coach said his team has had opportunities to score in the final quarter of these games, but always appears to make a mistake at a critical time.

"I know this, that if I've done anything different this year, it's send them in fresher the last third of the season. I haven't worked them as hard in practice. Maybe they've lost their physical toughness. There is no one explanation. I know they're not tired, and are in good condition."

Claude Welborn, Houston, displays a nine-point mule deer bagged while hunting with Midland's Bud Munroe on the Mike Wood ranch near Sanderson. Wood said he has never "seen anything like it in seven years here. It looks more like a Colorado mule deer than a Texas deer."

NCAA extends the olive branch

CFA TV power bid fails

By DOUG TUCKER

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A victorious NCAA is holding out the olive branch to rebellious factions within the College Football Association after the CFA admitted its bid to take control of television rights had failed.

Tom Hansen, speaking Monday for NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers, also said "it was fairly obvious" at the end of the association's special convention Dec. 4 that a majority of the CFA's 61 members would side with the NCAA.

Arthur A. Watson, president of NBC Sports, announced in New York Monday the CFA had been unable to gather enough support for its four-year, $180 million contract. The NCAA, which has always controlled football telecasts, has made a $263.5 million deal with ABC and CBS for the same period, 1982-85.

THE CFA, which includes all major football schools and conferences except the Big Ten and Pac-10, tentatively ratified the NBC contract by a 33-20 vote Aug. 21. But in the meantime, the NCAA mounted a vigorous lobbying campaign, including threats of sanctions or outright explusion of CFA schools who adopted the NBC pact.

The turning point, everyone agreed, was the special convention in St. Louis Dec. 3-4 when about 40 schools were trimmed from the 137-member Division I-A, the top football division.

CFA Executive Director Charles M. Neinas said from his home in Boulder, Colo., Monday that he did not view the setback as a victory for the NCAA. Hansen, an assistant executive director of the NCAA, later agreed.

"It's a victory for the fans who watch TV and for the young people who play the game," he said. Hansen and Byers are in San Diego, Calif., negotiating a supplemental television contract with cable companies.

"Let's also hope the misunderstandings and apprehensions have been put behind us now," Hansen added.

NEVERTHELESS, the explosive issue of cable rights is expected to dominate the NCAA's annual convention Jan. 11-13 in Houston. The policy-making NCAA Council has proposed a constitutional amendment, dubbed "proposal 47," which would give the NCAA control over all football cablecasts.

"There isn't going to be a CFA member in Houston who doesn't know about 47, and who doesn't know about its ramifications," said Neinas. "The entire CFA membership is now much more attuned to the area of television and is now at least recognizing what they themselves have at stake."

Neinas and Oklahoma officials also said they will pursue an antitrust suit against the NCAA which Oklahoma and Georgia have filed in federal court in Oklahoma City.

Dr. William S. Banowsky, Oklahoma president, had urged "at least nine other" CFA schools at the end of the St. Louis convention to join Oklahoma in the separate NBC contract.

"We would take part in the NBC package if we were joined by a majority of other members in the CFA," Dr. Joab Thomas, president of the University of Alabama, said Monday. "But Penn State and Notre Dame would have to join us before we would enter into that agreement."

Gene Corrigan, Notre Dame athletic director, said his school has "stood with the CFA all along, but we did not support them as strongly on this."

THE OKLAHOMA City court had issued a temporary restraining order keeping the NCAA from threatening or taking disciplinary action against CFA schools adopting the NBC deal, but Neinas said the threats had a big affect.

"Although a number of CFA members expressed interest in the NBC agreement, there was continued concern about the possibility of the NCAA initiating enforcement procedures against those universities that would agree to participate in the proposed CFA-NBC television program," he said.

Dr. Boyd McWhorter, commissioner of the Southeastern Conference, predicted the CFA would still be heard from.

"It was just that some people felt that the television issue was too narrow a one to take a strong position on," he said.

The week that shouldn't have been

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

It began with Joe Frazier coming back in the "Home of the International Amphitheatre" and it ended for Muhammad Ali at the clank of a cowbell.

In between there was lot of bull.

"It was an agriculture experience," said Hugh McIlvanney of the London Observer.

Frazier, fat peeping over the top of his trunks, came out of a 5½-year retirement Dec. 3 to fight Floyd "Jumbo" Cummings at the International Amphitheatre.

Smokin' Joe missed with his famed left hook most of the time, and when it landed it had little effect. At the end of 10 mauling rounds, the referee favored Cummings. But the two judges, obviously scoring with their hearts instead of their heads, saw the fight as even, and it was declared a draw.

Ali, with bounce in his belly but not much in his legs, fought Trevor Berbick in a 10-rounder Dec. 11 at Nassau, Bahamas. Ali lost a unanimous decision ... as much to Father Time as to Berbick.

"I know myself better than anybody," Ali said the day after his fight. "I know it's the end."

But not all of the ineptitude was in the ring. In fact, most of it was to be found in the promotions and most of that was in the Bahamas.

The Frazier-Cummings fight was a shoestring budget production, and lack of money and experience in promoting fights was evident, although Bill Cooley of the Minnesota Professional Boxing Association, Inc., made a sincere effort.

On the other hand, the "Drama in Bahama" was the "Comedy in Bahama" and almost was the "Disaster in Bahama."

Until about 5 p.m. EST, the day of the fight, Berbick was threatening not to fight because he had not been guaranteed all of his purse, which was estimated to be from $250,000 to $500,000, with $350,000 the most used figure. SelecTV, in charges of worldwide television sales and distribution, came up with the letter of credit that satisfied Berbick.

The fight was promoted by Sports Internationale, Ltd, a Bahamian company whose president, James Cornelius of Los Angeles, spent most of his time dodging reporters.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Track marks ratified

By The Associated Press

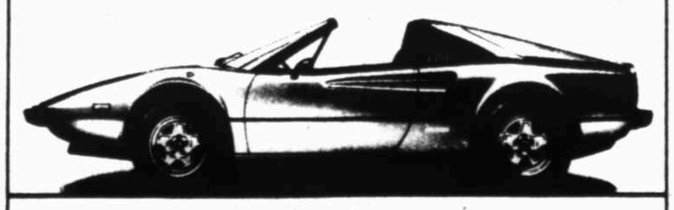

TRACK— The International Amateur Athletic Federation has ratified Briton Sebastian Coe's world record for the 800 meters as 1 minute, 41.73 seconds. The record was first given as 1:41.72, but a closer check of the official timing put it at 1:41.724, and the IAAF rounded it to a hundredth of a second higher according to its rules. The other 1981 world records ratified included Coe's 3:47.33 for the mile; Renaldo Nehemiah's 12.93 seconds for the 110-meter high hurdles; Thierry Vigneron's 19 feet, one-quarter inch pole vault; Toshihiko Seko's 1 hour, 13 minutes, 55.8 seconds for the 25,000 meters; Seko's 1:29:18.8 clocking for the 30,000 meters, and Antoaneta Todorova's 236-10 javelin throw...

The International Amateur Athletic Federation has reduced to 18 months its bans on American discus thrower Ben Plucknett and Australian shot putter Gael Mulhall, both charged with having taken anabolic steriods and Swedish sprinter Linda Haglund had been banned for life on the same charge...

SKIING— Steve and Phil Mahre, the twin brothers from Yakima, Wash., scored an unprecedented 1-2 triumph in a special slalom World Cup ski race, leaving their Swedish rival Ingemar Stenmark a poor third in his specialty at Cortina D'Ampezzo, Italy...

HOCKEY— Right wing Lanny McDonald of the Calgary Flames, who scored three goals and collected four assists in National League Hockey action last week, was named the NHL's player of the week for the Dec. 7-13 period. McDonald led the Flames to two victories and one tie in three starts. He assisted twice during a 7-4 victory at Quebec, scored a shorthanded goal during a 3-3 tie with the New York Islanders and finished the week with a four-point effort in a win over Vancouver.

Sinclair Paint heir sabotaged UCLA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The heir to the Sinclair Paint fortune was identified in published reports today as one two men who contributed to violations that caused UCLA to run afoul of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The Los Angeles Times quotes "a source high in the UCLA athletic department" as saying that millionaire real estate investor Keith Sinclair is one of the "representatives of the university's athletic interests" named in the NCAA probe.

The investigation into free dinners and transportation for some players and reduced rent for one led to two years of probation for UCLA on rules violations.

The NCAA did not identify the "representatives" when it released its findings Dec. 8, "but it was quickly established that Encino contractor Sam Gilbert, 70, a longtime booster of UCLA basketball, was one of the two," The Times said.

When asked directly about Gilbert, Chancellor Charles Young skirted the issue but said, "I believe he'll conduct himself in the future in a way that will not be a violation of NCAA rules."

Schnellenberger to stay

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — A Peach Bowl championship and a national ranking might satisfy some football coaches.

Not Howard Schnellenberger of the University of Miami. On Monday, saying the successes of his first three years as Miami's football coach weren't enough, Schnellenberger signed on for five more years.

The coach was reported to have turned down $200,000 from Kentucky, his alma mater, and to have settled for some $140,000 at Miami. The exact value of the contract wasn't announced.

But President Edward T. Foote II said the contract included "a series of independent commitments" and would be funded separately by the school, Miami's Athletic Federation and a group of corporations that who wanted Schnellenberger to stay in the community. No exact breakdown was revealed.

Fuller sees better days

DENVER (AP) — Leon Fuller, the new head coach of the winless Colorado State University football team, has promised to make the struggling Rams competitive.

Fuller, named Dec. 7 to revive the CSU football program, told reporters Monday it was time to "get our backs together, circle the wagons and face out at the conference together."

Fuller replaced Salk Arslanian, who was fired midway through the Rams' 0-12 season.

Fuller said he saw in CSU's program "the potential for an outstanding program" that should be competitive in the Western Athletic Conference "in not a very long long time."

Slush fund probed

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A University of Arizona investigating committee could not verify whether only $35,000 was disbursed through a secret, emergency slush fund used by athletic department coaches and administrators, a committee staff member testified.

Linda S. Tansik, assistant to the vice president for planning and budgeting, said the committee tried to verify receipts it received from Glenn R. "Bud" Daniel, former head of the Wildcat Club and administrator of the fund between 1971 and 1977.

"But without subpoena power there was just so much it could do," Ms. Tansik testified Monday in Pima County Superior Court where Judge Michael J. Brown is hearing a complaint brought by the university's student newspaper, the Arizona Daily Wildcat.

Through that complaint the Wildcat hopes to force the university, its president and the Arizona Board of Regents to release all records dealing with the slush fund investigation.

Ms. Tansik testified that Daniel was the sole keeper of the records and that no one else was in a position to know whether more than $35,000 was involved. She said, however, that the committee "had no reason not to believe Daniel."

UT-San Antonio wins

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Mike Gray, Dennis Mumford and Mike Pickens scored 16 points each Monday night to lead Texas-San Antonio to an 82-72 victory over Austin College.

Texas-San Antonio is now 2-5 in its first season of intercollegiate basketball.

Austin College is 3-4. The Kangaroos were led by Melvin Myles with 16 points and Harry Husmann with 14.

The Roadrunners' winning effort got a strong boost from two players coming off the bench, Gray and Glenn Carraway. Gray scored 12 of his points in the second half and Carraway scored all of his eight points in the late going.

Lomax experiences humility

By PAUL LeBAR

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Despite considerable trial, rookie Neil Lomax says he may have experienced his most valuable day yet as a National Football League quarterback.

"I guess I needed one of these to humble myself," Lomax said after he and the St. Louis Cardinals were beaten 20-10 Sunday by the New York Giants. "The first four games came too easy. The NFL is tough. It's going to take a while."

During his previous four starts, all St. Louis victories, Lomax had completed 63 percent of his passes with a rollout style in the face of blitzing defenses.

But on Sunday he became the hunted instead of the hunter and did well to survive. He was blindsided early in the game by New York rookie linebacker Lawrence Taylor, causing a fumble converted by the Giants into a touchdown. And it never got easier.

"THE WHOLE idea was to keep Lomax bottled up. We didn't want to give him room to run," said Taylor, who also sacked the quarterback in the third quarter.

"If he was going to scramble, it was going to be backwards. We wanted containment on all sides," said Taylor.

"He's a good quarterback. He's great at improvising. He can be real dangerous if he slips through the pass rush, so you have to keep him under control."

Lomax, who had run 15 times for 85 yards and scored two touchdowns, opted to test his legs only twice against New York and gained six yards.

Most of the time he found himself throwing hurriedly, then picking himself up off Busch Stadium's artificial turf after flattened by a tackler. Once, when hit late by Gary Jeter, he was sidelined for a series.

Lomax was generally under par preceding a late Cardinal scoring drive, a factor St. Louis Coach Jim Hanifan blamed on inadequate pass protection.

"Whoever the quarterback is, he's going to have the same problem," said Hanifan. "It was a combination of things that they (Giants) were doing. It was coordination between the backs and the linemen."

IGNORED by Hanifan were pleas in the final half by 47,358 Cards partisans to relieve Lomax with Jim Hart, the 16-year veteran the rookie quarterback replaced last month.

"I'm not sure the results would have been any different if I played," said Hart, however. "The Giant defense was really coming."

As St. Louis, 7-8, was bowing out of the chase for a wild-card berth in NFL playoffs, Lomax was completing 16 of 31 passes for 163 yards with one interception.

"I got to the point where I was feeling a little shaken. I hate to use the word intimidated, but they made me think twice," said Lomax. "This will make me a better quarterback."

Blase Bengals excited over playoff prospects

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Bengals Coach Forrest Gregg and his team's veteran players normally are low-key about coming events. But now they are talking with enthusiasm about their National Football League playoff prospects.

"We're happy to be in the playoffs, but at the same time there are a lot of other things we'd like to accomplish. We're not going to get fat," Gregg said Monday after the Bengals defeated the Pittsburgh Steelers the previous day to earn the American Football Conference Central Division championship and increase their record to 11-4.

Gregg was asked about the Bengals' chances against other AFC playoff contenders.

"We've played (and beaten) all the teams that are in the running except for Miami. From that standpoint, you'd have to say our chances are good," said Gregg.

Several veteran players who had declined to discuss the team's prospects all year were just as direct.

'King of Torts' asks for new trial for Hughes' cousins

By SHARON HERBAUGH
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Melvin Belli, whose courtroom prowess earned him the nickname "King of Torts," wants to reverse a jury's verdict that denied 400 distant cousins a share of the late Howard Hughes' estate, an associate says.

Belli, a San Francisco lawyer, asked for a new trial Monday on behalf of the second cousins who contend they deserve half of Hughes' fortune, estimated to be as much as $2 billion.

"It's an effort to reverse the things that led to an unfair trial. A lot of deserving people got the short end of the stick," said Belli's associate, Daniel Smith.

Attorneys for an additional 100 second, third and fourth cousins also petitioned Probate Judge Pat Gregory for a new trial.

Gregory, who last month signed the final decree designating 17 maternal relatives and five paternal first cousins as Hughes' sole heirs, has 45 days to rule on both motions.

The 400 distant relatives challenged the claims of five paternal cousins, arguing that the late Elspeth Hughes Lapp — the first cousins' bloodlink to the late billionaire's fortune — was illegitimate.

The other 100 cousins, mostly from Alabama, claimed the real Elspeth died as a child and was replaced by an impostor.

On Sept. 4, a six-person jury swept away both challenges.

The 400 distant cousins turned to the 74-year-old Belli, who estimates he has won $100 million in civil damages during his 47-year career.

Belli once defended Jack Ruby, who was convicted and sentenced to death for murdering Lee Harvey Oswald, who was accused of assassinating President John Kennedy. Ruby, a Dallas nightclub operator, died before his appeals could be heard.

Belli also has written more than 30 books and has head at least 10 settlement awards between $1 million and $2 million. Last year, he won a $27 million judgment for two paralyzed people in Fresno, Calif.

In the Hughes case motion, Belli argued the 400 distant cousins should be granted a new trial because the judge's charge to the jury was based on the assumption that Elspeth was legitimate.

He also claimed the distant cousins were entitled to obtain blood tests from the 18 surviving heirs. He also said newspaper articles supporting the first cousins' claims were admitted into the trial, while evidence from the Libary of Congress that backed the distant relatives' case was excluded.

The other 100 cousins argued Gregory erred by granting a separate trial to determine Elspeth's legitimacy and that the jury's verdict went against the evidence presented at the two-week trial.

Hughes died April 5, 1976, aboard a medical emergency flight from Mexico to Houston. Five years after his death, Gregory ruled the eccentric recluse left no valid will and no immediate survivors and ordered four separate trials that determined the 22 heirs.

Michener's candidacy is just speculation

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Speculation that author James Michener will be the Democratic Party's 1982 candidate for the U.S. Senate is just that, the Democratic State Committee chairman says.

"His name has been mentioned but there's nothing concrete. It's very premature," the chairman, Edward Mezvinsky, said Monday.

The 74-year-old author was mentioned last weekend at the Pennsylvania Society dinner in New York City as a possible contender for the seat now held by Sen. H. John Heinz, R-Pa.

However, Mezvinsky called Michener "a credible candidate" and said he would be contacted along with other potential contenders.

Michener, a Bucks County native, was not available for comment. His secretary, Nadia Orapchuk, said she thought her boss "would love" the Senate. But she added, "I think it's just a rumor. I would doubt it very seriously."

Michener has written 27 books, among them the best-sellers "Hawaii," "Centennial," "Chesapeake," and "The Covenant."

Michener ran for Congress in 1962 and lost badly. That year he was appointed co-chairman of President Kennedy's Food for Peace program. In 1967 he was elected a delegate to Pennsylvania's Constitutional Convention.

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — When Ivonette Wright Miller was a teen-ager, she climbed into the open cockpit of her Uncle Orville's plane and went for the ride of her life.

"We stayed up for a little less than 10 minutes," Mrs. Miller, now 85, recalled of the 1911 flight. "My sister and my cousin went up before me. It was very exciting and something I'll never forget. I haven't been the same since," she said Monday.

Several years before, Orville and Wilbur Wright had designed and built the world's first heavier-than-air, power-driven aircraft. On Dec. 17, 1903, they piloted the plane to four successful flights at Kitty Hawk, N.C. The longest was 852 feet and lasted 59 seconds.

During cermonies Thursday to mark the 78th anniversary of the flight, Mrs. Miller — the oldest living descendant of the Wright brothers — will present to the Air Force Museum a piece of fabric that covered the lower left wing of the Wright Flyer.

BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy says he's ready to do battle with the Moral Majority and any other conservative groups who try to stop him from winning re-election to the Senate in 1982.

"I would hope that you would all agree that Masachusetts is not a place for the New Right and the Moral Majority," Kennedy, 49, told 1,000 cheering supporters at a fundraising unofficially opening his re-election bid Monday night.

The elegantly clad audience included several Kennedy relatives and a cross-section of prominent Massachusetts Democrats.

Kennedy, who entered the Senate in 1962, is expected to make an official announcement some time around his 50th birthday, Feb. 22.

Republican businessman Ralph Shamie is his only announced opponent.

Keeshan's first grandson was born Dec. 1.

NEW YORK (AP) — Because the late costume designer Edith Head and Pat Nixon "had been friends for 30 years," former President Richard Nixon has doated $1,000 to a charity in Miss Head's name, an aide says.

The Academy Award-winning designer died Oct. 4.

Nixon made his contribution to The New York Times Neediest Cases Fund, said aide Nicholas Ruwe. Earlier in this year's drive, he contributed $3,000 to the fund in memory of three former Republican members of Congress who died in the last few months — Sen. Peter H. Dominick of Colorado and Reps. Donald L. Jackson of California and Frank J. Becker of New York.

Eight-year-old boy keeps his cool, helps save brother's life

MURPHYSBORO, Ill. (AP) — When Becky Reagan heard her 4-year-old son had fallen into a 35-foot well, she rushed down after him, even though she knew their lives would depend on her other son, age 8.

"I just ran down and jumped in the well," Mrs. Reagan, 28-year-old wife of a coal miner, said in an interview Monday. "I didn't think twice — my baby was down there."

Charlie Reagan, the younger son, and Timothy Reagan Jr. had been playing near the unused well Saturday when Charlie fell through the rotted wooden cover.

Timothy, known to the family as "T.J.," ran to tell his mother, who was at home while his father was working 22 miles away.

"T.J. came running toward the house and I went flying out the door," Mrs. Reagan said.

When she reached the well, Mrs. Reagan said, she climbed down a pipe to reach the boy. She clung to the pipe for 45 minutes, struggling to keep her son's head above the 14 feet of water in the bottom of the well while shouting directions to T.J.

"At first he got kind of shook up because he thought it was his fault," she said. "I told him to calm down and listen to what I say."

She had T.J. call the telephone operator, who called the Jackson County sheriff's office. He then got two lifejackets from the family's fishing boat and tossed them into the well.

"I was really scared," T.J. said. "But I just kept cool and listened to what my mom told me."

T.J. then ran three-fourths of a mile to a neighbor's house, where he came across the sheriff's deputies, who were trying to find the Reagan's house in a rural area of southern Illinois.

"My first impression was that the little boy had drowned," said deputy Dave Nichols, who climbed into the well.

"He was floating face down," Nichols said. "It was really a scary feeling.

Pope: artificial birth control 'degrades human sexuality'

By SAMUEL KOO
Associated Press Writer

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II refused today to change the Roman Catholic Church's ban on artificial birth control or its prohibition against giving the sacraments to divorced Catholics who remarry.

In his most comprehensive statement on family issues, the pontiff rebuffed American Catholics and declared that the truth "is not always the same as the majority opinion."

The document represented the pope's verdict on a package of 43 secret recommendations made by the world synod of Roman Catholic bishops last year.

During the month-long meeting, some of the American bishops asked for a reappraisal of the contraception policy, saying those who violate the ban on artificial methods are often conscientious Catholics.

They cited surveys indicating that 76.5 percent of American Catholic women use some type of artificial birth control method and only 29 percent of the Catholic priests in the United States believe such contraception is immoral.

The pope, however, emphatically rejected artificial contraception, saying it "degrades human sexuality" by permitting couples to act as "arbiters of the divine plan."

The only "lawful birth regulation," the pontiff continued, is the so-called rhythm method of sexual abstinence during a woman's fertile period. He said "every effort must be made" to spread knowledge of "the body's rhythms of fertility to all married people and to young adults."

"The choice of the natural rhythms involves accepting the cycle of the person, that is the woman, and thereby accepting dialogue, reciprocal respect, shared responsibility and self-control," the pontiff said.

"In this way, sexuality is respected and promoted in its truly and fully human dimension."

Analyzing woes besetting the modern family, he condemned the "scourge of abortion, the ever more frequent recourse to sterilization and the appearance of a truly contraceptive mentality."

The 167-page document also made these points:

—Catholic education must stress self-control and the "absolute necessity" of chastity.

—"Trial marriages" are unacceptable because they amount to "an experiment with human beings."

—Pastors should not turn down couples asking to be married in church for motives which are social rather than religious unless they reject "explicitly and formally what the Church intends to do."

—The church must "tirelessly insist" that the work of women in the home be recognized and respected. "The true advancement of women requires that clear recognition be given to the value of their materal and family role. The mentality which honors women more for their work outside the home than their work within the family must be overcome," he said.

The pontiff mixed stern words with an appeal for pastoral care on the part of priests for those who fail to meet the standards set by the church.

However, he rejected a gradualist approach to accepting the church's teachings.

(1)Talk to friends and neighbors to see if they would like to join you. Each family can work from their own area. Doing a sale as a group will provide more items and will draw more people to your sale. It can also be much more enjoyable for you.

(2)Prepare a list of items in advance of the sale and what price you would like for each. This advance organization will help you make the sale more successful.

(3)Be sure to check your local laws and aquire a permit if needed.

(4)Place a Classified ad telling people about your sales. Be sure to list date, time, location and list some of the more desireable items you have for sale.

Stock market loses

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market retreated sharply along a broad front Monday, recording its worst performance in more than three months, amid heightened tensions in Poland and the Middle East and concern over the economy at home.

Most of the losses occurred during the first and last hours of trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which fell 6.18 points last week, plunged 15.03 to close at 871.48.

It was the biggest single-day slide since the blue-chip average fell 17.22 points on Sept. 3.

Of the 65 stocks in the Dow Jones combined averages, only one wound up with a gain as of the 4 p.m. EST close of the New York Stock Exchange, Pan American World Airways, up ⅛ at 3⅛. But by day's end, after trading was completed on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, Pan Am was unchanged at 3.

For every issue rising in price, more then five fell on the NYSE.

"It was one of those days with few redeeming qualities," said analyst Larry Wachtel at the investment firm of Bache Halsey Stuart Shields.

A martial-law regieme was created in Poland during the weekend in a crackdown against the independent labor movement. The military was placed in charge of power plants, coal mines and many factories.

Meanwhile, Israel's government moved to annex the Golan Heights, captured from Syria in the 1967 Middle East war. The action was condemned by Syria and opposed by President Reagan.

Analyst Monte Gordon at Dreyfus Corp. said concern that the Camp David plan for Middle East peace would break down spurred selling late in the day.

The increased international tensions came at a time when investors were growing increasingly wary over an upturn in interest rates and the deterioration of the U.S. economy.

An unexpectedly sharp bulge in the nation's money supply was reported after the close of trading Friday. And on Monday, Crocker National Bank increased its prime lending rate to 15.75 percent from 15.5 percent.

The Commerce Department on Monday reported a continued buildup of inventories of unsold goods by U.S. businesses in October.

But both Gordon and Wachtel cited an absense of buying activity, rather than a rush to sell for Monday's declines.

Big Board volume totaled 44.74 million shares, down slightly from Friday's 45.85 million. There were 659 trades involving blocks of 10,000 or more shares of stock on the NYSE, down from 688 Friday.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 51.86 million shares.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials fell 2.43 to 137.18, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was down 2.15 at 122.78.

Phillips Petroleum topped NYSE active list, up ⅛ at 45, in trading that included a block of 124,000 shares changing hands at 43⅛ a share. The company said it knew of no reason for the activity.

MGIC Investment soared 4⅛ to 47¾ after Baldwin-United announced an agreement to acquire the mortgage and bond insurer in a deal valued at $1.2 billion. Baldwin-United fell ⅞ to 55⅛.

Precious metal stocks were among the day's few winners, as gold prices rose. Bullion is a traditional haven for funds during times of political unrest. ASA rose 1⅛ to 45⅝, Hecla Mining gained ¼ to 10⅞ and Homestake Mining jumped 1⅜ to 40⅛.

The NYSE's composite index of all of its listed common stocks fell 1.19 to 71.24.

The market value index at the American Stock Exchange was off 6.15 at 316.86.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Avoid 'wash sale' by pulling out of reinvestment plan

By BILL DOYLE

Q: I own shares of a municipal bond mutual fund, which have dropped in price. I would like to sell some of the shares, to establish a capital loss for income tax purposes. This fund pays dividends every month and I have signed up to have the dividends reinvested to buy additional shares. If I sell some of my shares, the dividends on the remaining shares will be used to purchase more shares within 30 days.

Will the Internal Revenue Service consider this a "wash sale?" Am I required to terminate my monthly reinvestments to avoid the wash sale rule?

Doyle

A: You get "yes" answers to both questions. When you sell stock or any other security at a loss you can't take that capital loss on your income tax return if you buy the same or a substantially identical security within 30 days before or after your sale. Purchase within that time span constitutes a wash sale and the IRS will disallow your capital loss.

This applies whether you buy in the open market or through dividend reinvestment. So, to avoid that wash sale tax trap, you would have to pull out of your mutual fund's dividend reinvestment plan for more than two months. You could then redeem some of your shares — by turning them back to the fund for their asset value — at least 31 days after your last dividend reinvestment and don't get back into the reinvestment plan for at least 31 days after you redeem.

As it turns out, it's too late in the year for you to accomplish that and establish your capital loss in 1981. But that might end up being a good thing for you.

When interest rates went into a decline near the end of October the market prices of bonds and mutual funds holding bonds began moving up. Your municipal bond fund shares are now, no doubt, worth more than they were a month and a half ago.

Q: A small company recently filed its first 10-K with the Securities and Exchange Commisssion. Is there any way I can obtain a copy of that company's 10-K, such as by writing the SEC?

A: You can get a copy of that 10-K, one way or another. The easy way would be by writing the company. If you're a stockholder, the company is required to send you a copy, when you request it. Many companies also send 10-Ks to non-stockholders who ask for them.

If you're not a stockholder and the company won't send a copy to you, you can obtain a copy through the SEC. You can visit one of the SEC public reference rooms in New York City, Chicago, Los Angeles or Washington, D.C., and use a copying machine, at a cost of 15 cents a page.

Or you can get a copy by mail, at a cost of 10 cents a page, $3.50 minimum charge, plus postage. The SEC has turned that work over to a commercial copier contractor, Disclosure, Inc., 5161 River Road, Bethesda, Maryland 20014.

So that all readers know what we're talking about, it should be explained that a 10-K is a detailed report every company with more than 500 stockholders must file with the SEC within 90 days after the end of the company's fiscal year. And 10-Ks are much more revealing than the annual reports corporations mail to their stockholders.

•

Q: A group of us plan to form an investment club. Can you send us information about how to organize and run the club?

A: I can't send you that kind of material. But I can tell you where to get it. Write the National Association of Investment Clubs, 1515 East Eleven Mile Road, Royal Oak, Mich., 48067.

And good luck with your investment club. When properly organized and well run, such a club can provide an investment education and, hopefully, profit for its members.

BUSINESS MIRROR

Recession makes retailers scared, wary

NEW YORK (AP) — As you go about — or don't go about — your holiday shopping rounds in the next 10 days, you will be playing a part in an economic drama of considerable importance.

Like "The Nutcracker," or "Miracle on 34th Street," the production in question is presented every year about this time.

But as the "Christmas selling season" unfolds, there are some extra elements of suspense in the 1981 version of the script.

To the retailing industry itself, and its several million employees, the closing weeks of the year are always pivotal. Many stores do a quarter or even a third of their annual business in these few weeks.

What's unusual about this time around is the fragile position of the U.S. economy, already in a recession and threatening to get worse.

If consumers stage some sort of cavalry charge of buying between now and the end of the month, they could slow or even reverse the decline. If they don't, and thus leave the pipelines of the economy clogged with unsold goods, it may mean several more months of tough times for business and jobs.

Among the interested spectators will be President Reagan and his economic policymakers. Reagan's supply-side economic program could desperately use some breathing room if it is going to get the chance to work its promised wonders.

Retailers by tradition are an optimistic lot. They have to be to survive in a business that is always fiercely competitive, and filled with surprises dictated by fashion, fad and the fickle fancy of the customer.

This year, however, store operators are being described as cautious, concerned or just plain scared. Evidence of their mood abounded in the torrent of price-cutting and "pre-Christmas sale" advertising that appeared at the very beginning of the season.

Analyzing November reports of the country's largest retailers, economists at New York's Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. said, "In some cases, sales last month were lower than in the same month in 1980."

Rangers in foul mood after win

By BARRY WILNER

NEW YORK (AP) — For a team that had just snapped a six-game winless streak at home, the New York Rangers were in a foul mood after beating the Pittsburgh Penguins.

They had good reason, too, since team captain Barry Beck earned a six-game suspension from the National Hockey League for leaving the bench in the second period to fight the Penguins' Paul Baxter.

The Rangers won the game, one of only two played Monday night, 5-4. In the other, Montreal beat Washington 6-3.

New York had built a 5-1 lead at 15:31 of the period when Beck and Baxter were handed 10-minute misconduct penalties by referee Bob Myers. The Ranger defenseman was on the bench when penalized and he stepped back onto the ice to confront Baxter.

"The way I saw it was I was getting one penalty, so once I was on the ice, I was going to do something about it," said Beck, who had been suspended for three games earlier this year after similar action in a preseason game against the Islanders.

NHL rules call for a six-game suspension and a $3,000 fine to the team for the second such infraction. "Baxter tried to spear Eddie Johnstone in the face, and Eddie didn't even see it. What I did hurt our team but I will always do the same when they try to hurt our players. It's part of my job. The NHL won't do anything about it but I will."

Baxter, who was involved in a fight with Philadelphia's Paul Holmgren last week that led to Holmgren's swinging at referee Andy Van Hellemond, claimed innocence in provoking the melee.

"I like to play the game. That (the fighting) is not a part of hockey," said Baxter. "I don't think Barry has any basis for his argument. Johnstone hit me along the boards and I pushed him and turned away to go to the bench. As I skated to the bench, Barry yelled at me.

"I can understand how he felt — he's a player who leads and means so much to his team. I have no ill feelings toward him."

Rangers defenseman Dave Maloney, who assisted on two goals as the Rangers jumped ahead 3-0 in the first period, said, "Baxter cut Jere Gillis for five stitches on the shift before. Then he tried to spear Eddie in the face."

Beck was given 20 minutes in penalties, including a game misconduct — Nick Fotiu of the Rangers also left the bench and was ejected. The Penguins scored three times after those dismissals, including Rick Kehoe's goal with 47 seconds left after goaltender Paul Harrison had been lifted for an extra attacker.

But the Rangers, who got goals from Mark Pavelich, Ron Duguay and Steve Vickers in the first period, Mike Rogers and Reijo Ruotsalainen in the second, held on behind goalie Steve Weeks.

Pittsburgh's Doug Shedden had a goal and two assists, while Peter Lee and Baxter also scored for the Penguins.

Canadiens 6, Capitals 3

Doug Wickenheiser scored twice and Keith Acton had a goal and two assists for Montreal, which built a 4-2 first-period lead and coasted to victory.

Biles sounds warning for Oilers

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ

HOUSTON (AP) - It will "be to the benefit" of key Houston Oiler players to remain in Houston in the off-season to prepare for the 1982 season and that goes double for quarterback Ken Stabler, Oiler Coach Ed Biles said Monday.

"You can't force anyone to stay but it would be in their best interest if they stayed and took advantage or our new training facility," Biles said. "We have an opportunity to get ourselves together and we highly encourage it."

Biles said it would be almost mandatory for Stabler to participate in an off-season training program here if he intends to return next season.

Gifford Nielsen, Stabler's backup last year, started Sunday's 28-6 loss to San Francisco and will start in Sunday's season finale against the Pittsburgh Steelers in the Astrodome.

"Stabler's future is based on what happens in the off season," Biles said. "He'll have to stay here and work and get himself ready for training camp. We've talked about it and he's prepared to do it."

Nielsen was slated to be the Oiler starting quarterback going into training camp but a shoulder separation and Stabler's return from a brief retirement, relegated Nielsen to the bench most of the season.

Nielsen completed 21 of 30 passes for 140 yards against the 49ers but still is not 100 per cent, Biles said.

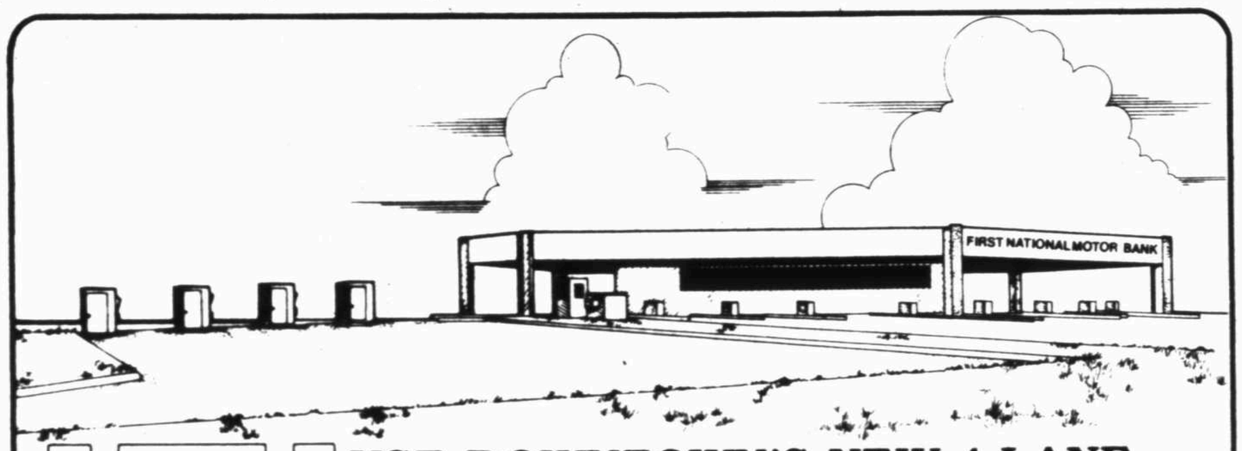

"The only thing that will make Gifford 100 per cent is one month of rest before he starts working with the weights, and he cant do that until the off season," Biles said. "Gifford did some things well and some things not so well."

Nielsen replaced Stabler at the half against Cleveland Dec. 3 and rallied the Oilers to a 17-13 victory and played the entire San Francisco game.

"The experience he's gotten so far this year and what he will get Sunday will be a great help to our football team next year," Biles said.

Biles said the Oilers gave a good effort against the 49ers but were just beaten by a good team in the third quarter. "Things didn't go our way in the second half," Biles said.

Sunday's loss assured the Oilers of their first losing season since a 5-9 finish in 1976.

BEDROCK FACTS OR HOW TO WRITE A PRODUCTIVE CLASSIFIED AD.

BY NEANDERTHAL MANN

We've reprinted here the basic truths from the original carvings by Neanderthal Mann.

Back in Nean's day, notices of items offered for sale had to be chiseled on tablets of stone. Fortunately, now, with the use of Classified ads in your daily newspaper, it is much easier and more effective.

To write a result-producing Classified ad, here are a few simple rules that worked for Nean and that are certainly just as true today.

Abbreviations are a no-no.

Studies and surveys prove that most Classified ad readers do not like or understand abbreviations. Make it easy for your prospective buyer to respond to your ad. Eliminate abbreviations.

Walk in the prospect's shoes.

Give complete information and details about what you have to sell. Describe the benefits your item offers to the buyer. Be sure to state condition, size, capacity and advantages. Be sure to include price! Many buyers lose interest in an ad that fails to state price.

No need to be "wordy."

It's just good sense to eliminate unnecessary words, but be sure it does have the necessary ones. Your ad's main duty is to get results, so be sure the ad is complete and gives all of the important details. An ad that is too brief may save a few pennies but lose many dollars in sales.

Help is at hand.

A trained Ad-Visor will be happy to help you word your ad for maximum results; just dial the Classified Action number.

If You Know What An Owner/Operator Is...

You Know It's Worth $2,500 To Become One.

The only thing stopping a lot of good truckers from becoming owner operators is the tractor cost. That's why Aero-Mayflower developed a new tractor lease program. It's a way for owner operators to get started. All it takes to begin is $2,500. As an owner operator with Mayflower you'll get:
1. 56% of the line haul ($560 out of every $1,000.)
2. If the fuel goes up, so does your fuel surcharge.
3. Training (if you need it) at our expense.
4. Your own business with a very successful company behind you.
We'd like to tell you more. Call 1-800-428-1220 (in INDIANA call 1-800-382-1212) between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Eastern Standard Time.
