Carter Grooms Queen

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter welcomed Richard Queen to the White House today, and the former hostage who was released with an incurable nerve disease told Carter he feels better every day.

During a brief photo session in the Oval Office with Queen's parents and his brother Alexander, Carter listened to the freed hostage talk about the warm reception he has received since his release from captivity in Iran.

Slaying Suspect Freed

MCKINNEY (AP)—Candace Montgomery, accused of murder in the slaying of a family friend, has been freed on $100,000 bond and told to stand trial on September 15.

District Judge Tom Ryan accepted bond for Mrs. Montgomery after a three-hour hearing Friday which saw stern warnings issued to defense and prosecution attorneys.

Mrs. Montgomery, who was indicted July 9, has been in Collin County jail since July 11, when her original bond was rejected because of insufficient collateral.

The original bond was underwritten by Bob Hendricks of McKinney on June 27, a day after Mrs. Montgomery was arrested on a murder warrant. Hendricks also arranged for the new bail money.

Ryan told attorneys for both sides in the highly publicized case that he would throw them in jail if they violated his gag order.

Soviet Space Craft Falls

MOSCOW (AP)—The unmanned Soviet space freighter Progress 10 plummeted back into the earth's atmosphere and burned up today after carrying supplies to the orbiting Salyut 6 space station, Tass reported.

The official Soviet news agency said craft went down over the Pacific Ocean. It was not known if any debris had survived the fiery re-entry.

Progress 10 brought fresh supplies, fuel and other items to Soviet cosmonauts Leonid Popov and Valery Ryumin aboard the Salyut station.

They have been in space April 9.

Strike Worries Poles

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—Polish Communist Party leaders appealed to striking transport workers in the eastern city of Lublin, just 50 miles from the Soviet border, to return to their jobs, warning that their wildcat walkout could cause "anxiety among our friends."

Dissident sources in Warsaw said the strike for higher pay and other benefits crippled the city of 300,000 on Friday, forcing local authorities to call on the army to truck in milk, bread and other staples to hospitals, children's homes and similar institutions.

Almost all the city's striking workers returned to their jobs today, but railwaymen continued their walkout. Negotiations were said to be continuing.

One down and one to go

That's the political convention score. So far, although there were no fireworks in Joe Louis Arena at Detroit, the performance has been perhaps more interesting than expected. There was never any doubt about the nominee for president, which meant there was only one avenue for suspense—the vice presidential nomination.

Now, vice presidents are not noted for their magnetism when it comes time to rev up the voters, or even convention delegates. But the Republicans managed to get something going Wednesday night that apparently created interest in the convention hall among those who were aware of it and found enthusiasm in the television booths.

Poor old Walter, Frank and John and their cohorts didn't have much to work with before rumors began to circulate that Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan were working on a "deal" that was expected to put Ford on the ticket as candidate for vice president.

Some seasoned observers cautioned at the outset that such an arrangement was far-fetched and highly unlikely to develop, among them Sen. Jacob Javits of New York. They were right, of course, but Ford has been involved in so many "firsts" during his political career, that we figured if ever a former president should become a candidate for vice president, he was indeed a likely prospect. After all, he is the only man in history to serve the nation as vice president and president without being elected to either office.

The television people did not attach much significance to the actual voting in the convention. They continually cut away from the vote counts to ask questions—many of them woefully insignificant and elementary—of various personalities on the floor, or in the smoke-filled rooms.

There really was nothing in the vote count to create interest, of course, but the preliminary comments of state party leaders who announce the votes often contribute some of the most interesting moments. Such as the Ohio chairman who prefaced that state's vote with a reference to Ohio State's football team. That, of course, stimulated some anticipation, and sure enough, Oklahoma came through with some reaction. Unfortunately, Alabama already had been to the plate, and they cut us off for more interviews with "persons in a position to know" before they got to Texas.

We thought George Bush handled himself very well in a closing interview with Barbara Wah Wah. Now, we can catch our breath while the Democrats rehearse their big show.

Mother-Daughter Story...

Winning Saddles Has Become A Voss Habit

By JOHN LONG

On the Fourth of July, 1963, Marie Voss of Snyder won the first place saddle for the barrel race at the Texas Cowboy Reunion in Stamford. On the Fourth of July, 1980, Mrs. Voss' daughter, Jenny Hinton, won the first place saddle in the barrel race at the Stamford rodeo.

Not only that, but Mrs. Hinton won her race on the son of the horse her mother had ridden 17 years previously.

Rodeos and riding figure prominently in the family. Mrs. Voss hung her spurs up to professional riding only about two years ago, but still indulges in recreational riding. Her three daughters, of which Mrs. Hinton is the oldest, all ride in rodeos.

"They followed in my footsteps," said Mrs. Voss of her children.

Mrs. Voss, who first rode in a rodeo when she was about 12 years old, said she always derived a sense of accomplishment from competing. "It's the accomplishment, thrill, and excitement. It's all of them," she said.

Ask Us

Q—Is it true that our new county jail no longer meets state and federal standards?

A—It is not true. In fact, the Scurry County jail was re-inspected as recently as June 23 and passed with flying colors. There have been some minor equipment additions, such as smoke detectors which automatically turn on exhaust fans, etc., that have been initiated by Sheriff Keith Collier, despite the fact that it was approved without them.

she said, "Like any kind of sport, you put a lot of work into it."

Mrs. Hinton said barrel racing is a controlled-type sport involving coordination between both rider and horse. She, too, mentioned the sense of accomplishment she receives following a successful run.

"It's a sport you can go ahead and do all your life," said Mrs. Hinton. Junior rodeos teach responsibility to children, she said, a responsibility that helps mold responsible adults.

"I just feel like it's a good sport," said Mrs. Hinton.

Hospital Sets Blood Drive

A blood drive has been scheduled for Monday at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

The drive will be conducted in the hospital's conference room and it will begin at 2 p.m.

Plans Announced Here For Apartment Complex

Plans for construction of an apartment complex in Southeast Snyder have been announced by a group of local investors.

The group plans to begin construction soon, hopefully within 30 days on property located on 36th Place east of Avenue E.

Mike Graves, spokesman for the group, said the land is under contract and that plans are ready for bidders on 24 units. This would be a first phase and could be increased to 32 units, said Graves. Additional development is anticipated on the same property. However, part of the property will require a zoning change, which is now being sought. The portion earmarked for the first phase of development is already zoned for multi-unit dwellings, and this will enable the development to begin as rapidly as bids can be obtained, Graves said.

Others in the group of developers are Rod Waller, C.A. McCown, Dalton Walton, Tommy Davis, Truett Bryan and Ernie Armstrong, all of Snyder, and Ed Schulz, a former resident who now lives in Houston.

They hope to have the first phase of the complex ready for occupancy before Christmas.

Although predominantly two-bedroom units, there will be a variety of sizes available, Graves said. The buildings will be of masonry construction and total electric.

"These are not going to be luxury apartments, but neither are they going to be low income facilities," Graves said. "We believe they are the type needed most in Snyder and we hope that they will help ease the community's rental unit shortage."

Status Of Draft Sign-Up Clouded

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Four million young men are waiting to learn if they must register for the draft. And women are wondering, too, after a three-judge panel found the government's draft registration plan unconstitutional because it excludes women.

The Justice Department immediately filed a request with the U.S. Supreme Court for a stay of the three-judge panel's injunction. In Washington, a Supreme Court spokesman said today that Justice William J. Brennan has the case "before him for consideration and action."

Brennan, who supervises the district which includes Philadelphia, was reported to be at his summer home on Nantucket Island in Massachusetts.

Registration of 19- and 20-year-old men, those born in 1960, was scheduled to begin Monday, but Selective Service System officials said today the issue is now "on hold." The New York Times reported today that even if Brennan granted the stay, the registration would not have the force of law since the Philadelphia ruling that the law is unconstitutional cannot itself be stayed.

Spokesmen for the Justice Department, Supreme Court and the Selective Service System said they could not confirm that interpretation. If Brennan refuses to grant the stay, the government could go to another justice, or the entire court might take up the matter.

While President Carter

last spring sought registration of both men and women, Congress decided to exempt women. But on Friday the panel was sided with the president.

"Complete exclusion of women from the pool of registrants does not serve important governmental objectives," ruled 3rd U.S. Circuit court of Appeals Judge Max Rosenn and District Judges Joseph Lord III and Edward Cahn.

"Women do serve a useful role in the military and provide important skills," Cahn wrote in the 41-page opinion.

"It is incongruous that Congress believes on the one hand that it substantially enhances our 'na-

Rodeo Here Is One Of Biggest

With a purse of $23,000, the Raleigh Lights-Scurry County World Championship Rodeo is one of the largest rodeos in Texas, probably in the top 10, and the largest International Rodeo Association-sanctioned rodeo as to payoff.

It brings to Snyder six of the world's rodeo champions, explained Tom Abshire, president of the International Rodeo Association. It is the first time in several years the local rodeo has been held in conjunction with the IRA. Helping sponsor the rodeo is the tobacco firm of Raleigh Lights, a subsidiary of Brown and Williamson Tobacco Co.

The IRA, said Abshire, is one of two professional rodeo associations. It has over 3,000 direct members and sanctions more than 300 rodeos each year in the United States and Canada. For the professional cowboys traveling with the IRA, each dollar in prize money that is won represents one point. Those who qualify participate in the International Finals Rodeo held each year in Tulsa, Okla.

Abshire, an ex-saddle bronc rider, bareback rider, bull rider, steer wrestler, and calf roper, says rodeo is the hottest sport in the nation today.

"It's the hottest sport in the nation as far as sponsors wanting to tie in with it," he said.

Attendance-wise, too, rodeo is popular, he added. Last year, 14.8 million people in the United States purchased tickets to attend rodeos, as opposed to about 10.4 million for professional football, he said. Also last year, 3,300 rodeos were held in the United States.

Professional rodeo organizations, said Abshire, impose certain standards of conduct for its member as well as maintain standards of cleanliness and sanitation around the rodeo grounds.

"The reason for professional rodeo is the same as for any other sport," Abshire said. "It's to make it better."

Rodeo Heads Into Its Final Session Of '80

The Raleigh Lights-Scurry County World Championship Rodeo continued its string of performances Friday night at the Scurry County Coliseum. Winners of the rodeo were to be announced late Saturday.

Friday night, however, saw some good times and scores posted. Cam Forbes of Ira posted a 69 in the bareback riding division, and his closest competition came from Ray McKnight of Snyder who had a 65. An Arkansas cowboy, Joe Beard, came in with a 64.

Among calf ropers, it was a tie between Mike Green of San Angelo and Darrell Lambert of Abilene. Both cowboys were clocked in at 8.3 seconds. Following them was Wayne Walker from Chandler, Okla., with a 9.6. In saddle bronc riding, it was Joe Beard of Arkansas who led the others with his score of 89. Behind him was Tom McCarthy of Snyder with a 73 and Mike Mitchell of Aspermont who had a 65.

Steer wrestlers, however, had a difficult night with only Kirk Burkett of Slaton managing to post a

Miami Curfew Marked By Sporadic Violence

MIAMI (AP)—Sporadic gunfire and rock-and-bottle throwing broke out overnight in the racially troubled Liberty City district, and police arrested dozens of people for violating the dusk-to-dawn curfew as residents fled steamy apartments for the cooler streets.

The area was reported quiet by early morning. "It's very, very quiet out there now," said Dade County police spokesman Tom Banks. "We thought for a while that things were going to get out of hand, but it settled down."

No injuries were reported during the night, but police arrested 49 people, most for curfew or firearms violations. It was the third night of disturbances in four days in a section of Liberty City where the Scott Homes housing project is located.

"There was some gunfire, but no injuries were reported," Banks said, adding that in most cases, those firing guns seemed to want only to make noise.

"There was one incident they believed was aimed at one of our roadblocks, but we don't know whether any gunfire was aimed at people," Banks said.

Banks said county and police officials "haven't made a determination yet" on whether to extend the curfew. "The problem is it is extremely hot and muggy out there tonight, where last night it was cool with the rain," Banks said.

Wary riot-gear police swept through the area, urging residents to return to their apartments after the curfew began at 9 p.m.

Officers said they used tear gas to disperse a small group of black youths who had gathered near the housing project. Liberty City was the site of racial rioting May 17-19 that took 18 lives and caused $100 million in property damage.

Authorities blame the latest outbreak on young black hoodlums, whom they say are not necessarily motivated by racial concerns.

Scattered rock- and bottle-throwing, sniper fire, arson and looting broke out Tuesday night after county policemen tried to apprehend several robbery suspects inside the Scott Homes project. One officer was shot in the back as he retreated from a jeering crowd of blacks.

Since then, nearly 100 people have been arrested and 40 have been injured. Some 400 National Guardsmen have been called up as a precaution. Robert Dempsey, deputy Public Safety Department director, said the disturbances were "too systematic to be spontaneous." "We don't know who is behind it, but it is the kind of pattern that is not just random," he said.

Friday night, Patrolman Timothy Addison said he and his partner had some rocks and bottles thrown at them while they stood at a barricade near the scene of reported sniper fire.

"You could see some figures running back and forth, but there was really no serious threat," said Addison.

County officials said the curfew, probably would continue through tonight, but Dempsey said it would be extended as long as necessary. Besides the curfew, temporary restrictions were ordered on the sale of alcohol and gasoline and the sale of firearms was banned. Public displays of firearms also were prohibited.

The ruling continued, "Congress could not constitutionally require registration under the Military Selective Service Act of only black citizens, or only white citizens, or single out any political or religious group simply because those groups contain sufficient persons to fill the need of the selective service system."

The decision could "be a disaster for the security of our country," warned the chief sponsor of the peacetime draft registration bill, Rep. G.V. Montgomery, D-Miss.

Registration of 4 million men was to start in post offices across the nation on Monday. Those born in 1960 would sign up first, followed in a week by those born in 1961.

Next January, registration was to begin for those born in 1962. After that, men were to register whenever they turned 18.

Some Governors Asking Heat Aid

By The Associated Press Some governors have asked Washington for aid in coping with the unrelenting heat wave across the nation's midsection, but Oklahoma Gov. George Nigh plans to seek help from a higher authority.

Nigh has declared Sunday a "special day of prayer for rain in Oklahoma." In signing a proclamation for the observance, Nigh noted his office has been swamped with requests for a day of prayer since the dry spell began June 22.

The heat wave has now claimed at least 1,022 lives in 20 states, more than 700 this week, according to an unofficial poll tabulated by The Associated Press.

More than 400 people have died in Alabama, Georgia and Missouri whose governors have declared a state of emergency. In Missouri, for instance, health officials say the number of heat-related deaths in the current hot spell—237—is 20 times greater than the average for an entire summer.

Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale asked President Carter on Friday to declare Missouri a disaster area and make the state eligible for $20 million to help the elderly and needy pay utility bills inflated by the heat.

The hot weather has "taken on plague proportions. This is worse than any disaster I can remember," Teasdale said.

Police Have Quiet Friday

Except for the theft of several more rodeo banners, a quiet Friday was reported by Snyder police.

In addition to the dozen or so other rodeo banner thefts already reported this week, reports of other thefts surfaced at Bowlin Texaco, Kwik Grocery, and A-1 Electronics.

A minor traffic accident was also investigated Friday. Working it was Don Cheek. The accident occurred in the 2600 block of Hidetown Drive about 7:40 p.m. and involved a 1976 Ford driven by Willie Kinchloe and a 1973 Chevrolet driven by Joan W. Nobles.

Medical Examiner George Gantner Jr. said at least 108 persons have died of heat stroke in St. Louis since the hot spell began. He blamed the death toll on the combination of heat and humidity.

"I've never seen anything like this before and I've been coroner for eight years," said P.W. Mischler in Knox County, Ind., where four elderly citizens died from heat-related causes Friday.

The searing heat went unabated Friday in many parts of the country. The National Weather Service said the temperature reached 110 degrees at Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport in the late afternoon. It was the 26th consecutive day for 100-degree-plus days there.

More record-setting readings were noted in Wichita Falls. The mercury rose to 108 degrees there Friday, breaking a two-year-old mark.

Meanwhile, forecasters said there was no relief in sight. One weather service official in Arkansas said the heat wave affecting the area may last until September.

Among barrel racers, Nannette Fine of Snyder posted the best time of 14.92 seconds. She was followed by Dorothy Syper of Lubbock who had 15.26 and by Connie Voss of Gail who had a 15.50.

The duo of Rudy Gableton and Roy Wilson of Colorado City proved unbeatable with their time of 7.2 seconds in the team roping event. Coming in behind them were Rex Prather and Wendy Ferrell of Post with their 7.5 seconds. Placing third was the combination of Tracy Glover and Hanley Driver of Midland who had 8.3 seconds.

Two of the three bull riders who posted scores Friday night were from Snyder. Steve Mayo posted a 68, but beating him was Ronnie Rosas with a 70. Beating both of them, however, was Rusty Bradberry of Flushear. He had an 82.

Specific exercises needed

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR LAMB—I have always been pretty thin. I'm 5 feet 6 and weigh 115 pounds. I had a very flat stomach until about two months ago. All of a sudden my stomach protrudes and I look as if I'm stuffed whether I eat or not. When I get up in the morning my stomach sticks out like I have eaten a huge meal. What can I do to flatten my stomach again? I exercise a lot—nearly every day.

DEAR READER—It depends a lot on what kind of exercises you are doing. For example, you can walk on a flat surface or even jog on a flat surface and never use the muscles of your abdomen to any extent.

There are two basic principles in keeping your stomach flat. The first is that you have to stay lean. If you get fat there will be an accumulation of fat inside the abdomen as well as outside under the skin. The second is to do exercises that strengthen the abdominal muscles.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 3-7, Girth Control: Avoiding the Big Middle. It will explain these exercises in more detail for you. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The two types of exercises that you should use are sit-ups that strengthen the upper abdominal muscles and leg lifts, which strengthen the lower abdominal muscles. Many people don't realize that the ordinary sit-up does not do much for the lower abdominal muscles.

Finally, I'd like to point out that posture is important. If you tend to bend over and slouch, the bending of the spine allows the abdominal muscles to become slack and protrude. On the other hand, if you stand upright with the normal curvature of the spine, you'll pull the abdominal muscles taut and the abdomen will flatten.

To improve your posture you can do exercises that straighten the spine. The classic example is bending over and touching the toes and then straightening up. Don't force yourself. That can be harmful. It is the straightening up that works the long muscles along the spine. Exercises to strengthen the muscles that hold your shoulders back help, too. The net result should be a straightened spine that is not slumped and arched in tummy for ideal posture.

There are a few other problems that contribute to an enlarged abdomen. One of these is developing a gaseous condition. Accumulations of large amounts of gas, particularly in the colon, can result in enormous sudden distention of several inches. The problem here is determining what's causing the gas accumulation and how to prevent it.

develop fluid in the abdomen. This particularly affects women, sometimes just before the menstrual period. And it can occur with a variety of medical disorders. I suspect these are unlikely in your case since your letter otherwise indicates that you're probably in pretty good health.

By the way, bicycling or using a stationary bicycle won't use your abdominal muscles. Most exercises will not help the abdominal muscles very much unless they are at least some variation of sit-ups and leg lifts. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Man Treated For Snakebite

John Bloom, 16, of Rt. 1, Snyder, was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital about 10 a.m. Saturday for treatment of a suspected rattlesnake bite.

Hospital personnel reported it was not known conclusively whether Bloom was bitten by a rattlesnake, but they reported the wound was being treated as if it were poisonous.

He was listed in good condition.

In other hospital reports, Nicky Chapman of Snyder was admitted for observation to Cogdell following Friday night's performance of the rodeo. Chapman was participating in bull riding when he was bucked off.

GOP Campaign Begins Today

DETROIT (AP)—With calls for party unity, Ronald Reagan and George Bush open their Republican campaign for the White House with a rally today and then plan private sessions later to map out their strategy.

With the cheers of Republicans who nominated him for president still fresh in his memory, Reagan later heads for California and three days of relaxation and horse back riding at his Santa Barbara ranch.

On his way back to California, Reagan is to visit vice presidential running mate Bush's Houston home, to be followed by their first rally of the general election campaign at a nearby shopping center.

Course Set For Women Entering Job Market

Women who are planning to re-enter the job market or who are planning to seek employment for the first time, are invited to enroll in a Continuing Education course planned for them at Texas College from July 29-Aug. 26.

Classes will meet from 6-9 on Tuesday nights. Fees are $25 per person. Women interested in details are asked to contact Betty Sandel, assistant director of Adult Vocational Education and Continuing Education at WTC, and ask about Project Re-Entry.

"We welcome inquiries about the course," Ms. Sandel said. "It is a new course and offers information about a variety of subjects useful to the working woman."

Instructors in the course will be Bettie McQueen, Frances Wiman, Rosa McCowan, Ms. Sandel, and Ernie Armstrong. Each instructor will have charge of one evening's programs.

Mrs. McQueen, a vocational counselor at WTC, will present an explanation of testing procedures used in vocational counseling at the college and will administer tests for those enrolled in the course. The tests are designed to help students determine their career interests, developmental level, reading level, and personality traits.

Mrs. Wiman will be talking to the students about dressing for business, grooming, business etiquette, and personal hygiene. She will also discuss attitudes as they relate to the woman entering or re-entering the business world.

Mrs. McCowan is director of the local Manpower Office and will be discussing time management for the working woman. Women who work in the office should be aware of their need for time management, Mrs. McCowan points out, so that responsibilities to their homes and employers are fulfilled.

Ms. Sandel will be addressing the class on interviewing techniques, job applications, and attitudes about interviewing. Ms. Sandel has been manager of a personnel placement office in Midland, and has worked as assistant office manager for several companies in the Permian Basin with responsibilities for hiring personnel. She has also taught Mid-Management courses designed to prepare students for management positions.

Armstrong, a local attorney and city attorney, will be speaking to the women about the laws and statutes which affect the working woman, and registration now being proposed.

Women who would like to reserve space in the Project Re-Entry class are to call the Continuing Education office at 573-8511, extension 240.

Dear Abby

"Uncommon" Common Sense Eases Funeral Burden

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I attended three funerals in the last month and have some tips for good friends who really mean when they ask the family of the deceased, "Is there anything I can do?"

There are countless details to deal with, such as funeral arrangements, people to be notified, transportation and housing for incoming relatives and friends.

When bringing in food, please bring it in foil or disposable containers, otherwise containers must be washed, labeled, stored and returned. This takes time.

It would be helpful, too, if some casseroles could be brought in unbaked to be frozen and used a week or two later, when needed.

Friends shouldn't visit at mealtime, especially those with children who need to be fed.

Offer to sit with the house during the funeral. Due to publicity, families across the nation have returned from funerals to find that their homes have been burglarized. Most people are reluctant to ask a friend to miss the funeral, but believe me, this is one gesture of friendship that is greatly appreciated, so please offer.

I realize that these suggestions are only common sense, but you might find them worth printing.

IOWAN

DEAR IOWAN: Indeed they are. Common sense is very uncommon.

DEAR ABBY: Why would a man insist on knowing where his wife is every minute of the day? Do you think he suspects that she might be fooling around?

B. IN BIRMINGHAM

DEAR B.: Not necessarily. Maybe he just wants to be sure where she is while he's fooling around.

DEAR ABBY: Why do people expect musicians to entertain at weddings, benefits and other functions for free? They'll say, "You're lucky God gave you a talent. You should share it with the world!"

A good musical performance is 10 percent talent and 90 percent work.

Parents spend thousands of dollars on music lessons. They are not free!

Costumes, music, gasoline and baby sitters all cost money. Organizations will spend money for a meeting room, decorations, food and speakers. But they expect musicians to donate their time and talent.

Abby, please spread the word that the ability to sing or play an instrument may be a God-given talent, but it takes hard work and practice to make it entertainment.

PAYWORTHY

DEAR PAYWORTHY: Consider it spread.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I disagree on something. I feel that an 11-year-old child should be sent to another room, outside, or somewhere out of hearing range when his parents are having a serious disagreement about money matters, marital problems, etc.

My husband feels that it is perfectly all right for the child to hang around and listen, so he can "learn."

What do you say?

DIFFERING VIEWS

DEAR DIFFERING: An 11-year-old should not be an ear-witness to his parents' marital disagreements, money fights or adult discussions. But if he is pointedly sent away, he may suspect that something is seriously wrong between his parents, causing him to feel threatened, frightened and anxious.

So I recommend privacy for such occasions — and subtlety in acquiring it.

'Boatjacking' Cubans Held For Prosecution

MIAMI (AP)—Three young Cubans who stole a boat for their daring flight to freedom may land in American jails because the U.S. government has decided to prosecute "boatjackers" from the Communist island.

"Why are we being accused? Why are we the ones?" asked Epifano Mantilla, one of three 24-year-old refugees.

The trio had bound the captain of a 30-foot fishing boat and piloted his craft to Key West, where they landed July 8.

In a statement Friday, the Justice Department said the federal government "cannot condone situations where fleeing Cubans choose means of escape which jeopardize the lives or safety of innocent persons."

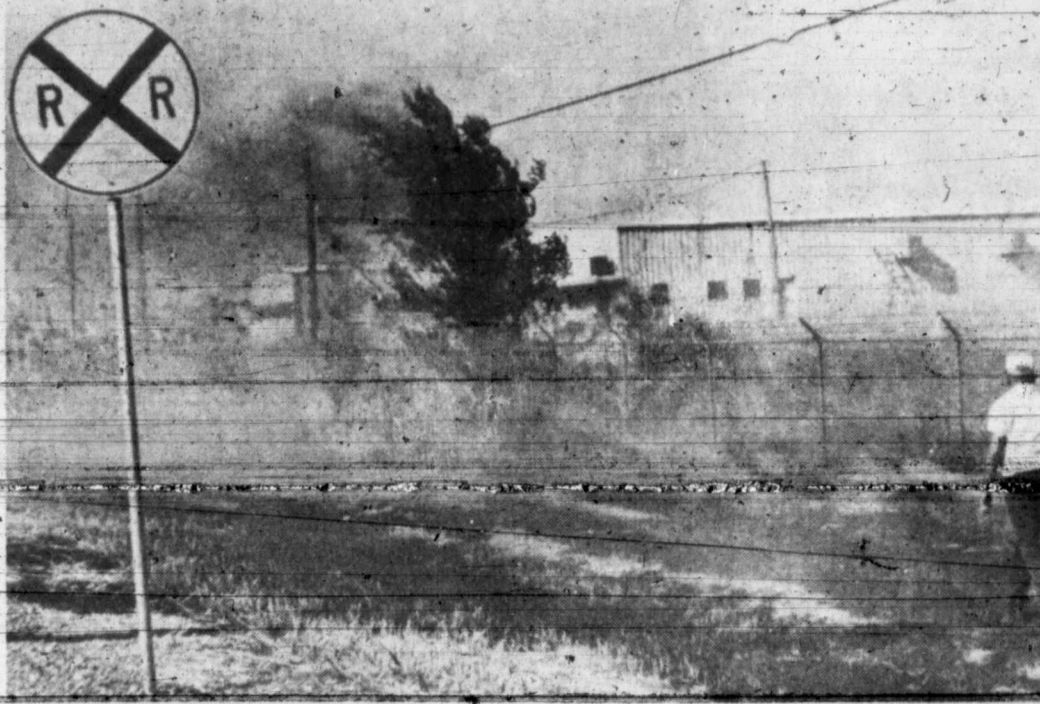

The three appeared before a U.S. Magistrate

Friday on charges of transportation and introduction into the United States of stolen property. A hearing on the charges, which could carry sentences of 10 years in prison and $10,000 fines for convictions, was set for Aug. 4.

The captain of the hijacked craft, Jesus Hernandez Rivero, returned to Cuba and may come here to testify in the trial of three men, authorities said.

U.S. officials say the decision to prosecute isn't intended to placate Cuban President Fidel Castro, who has complained about the United States accepting boatjackers.

"This problem has been under study by the Administration since last October, when the first incident took place," said a Carter administration official who asked not to

High Mercury Level In Home Poisons Family

DALLAS (AP)—After two weeks of painful treatment for mercury poisoning, an East Texas family of four has been released from Parkland Hospital — but they don't know if they'll go home.

David and Paula Kimbrough and their two young sons were slowly poisoned by the deadly silvery liquid that was all over and under the carpet in their house in the northeast Texas town of Jefferson.

When they noticed the mercury in the carpet last May, they assumed the previous occupants had broken a thermometer. They scooped up the stuff, had the carpets cleaned, and forgot about it.

Three months later, on July 4, the couple and their sons were admitted to Parkland Hospital for injections of BAL, a drug used to fight mercury poisoning.

Physicians say they don't think the family has suffered irreparable damage.

The Kimbroughs were released Friday and planned to stay with relatives for a short time in Dallas before returning home to East Texas.

"But I don't know if we will go back to that house," Kimbrough told the Marshall News Messenger.

The three-year-old brick house was the Kimbrough's first home. They were not alarmed when they found several beads of mercury in their son Darrell's room because they knew it had been previously used for a child.

"I thought a thermometer had been broken in the room," Mrs. Kimbrough recalled.

During the first month,

Mrs. Kimbrough became ill frequently, but dismissed the stomach cramps as a virus "going around" at Jefferson High School, where she taught English.

Her doctor prescribed antibiotics, and her mother feared she had a chronic stomach disorder, she said. Doctor's tests failed to turn up the cause of her sickness.

Pete Henderson, owner of the Firestone store where Kimbrough was working, said he noticed drastic changes in the entire family.

On June 20, Mrs. Kimbrough and Douglas began to tremble violently. Unable to take her son to the doctor, she said she sent her husband with a nearly unintelligible note to the pediatrician, Dr. Rush Harris in Marshall.

When Harris read the note and saw the boy, he told the 31-year-old Kimbrough his family was "breathing something toxic."

The Kimbroughs immediately left their home. When state health officials tested the house later, they found to times the average amount of mercury, and several pools "the size of a dime" beneath the carpet padding.

Mercury levels were recorded "as high as the instrument would go," said W.T. Ballard, spokesman for the state health department regional office in Tyler.

The carpeting was taken to a landfill and buried, Ballard said. Health officials tracked down the previous owners, but remain baffled as to where the mercury came from, he said.

Imports Only Dent

U.S. Beer Sales

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The U.S. beer market is so large that imported beer, although highly visible, accounts for only 2 percent of the total.

The top imported brands can cost double the price of national U.S. brands in a six-pack. But, according to one Japanese importer here, "consumers select imported beers by brand name, not by price."

Despite Speculation...

West Texas Not Likely For MX Missile Site

By SOLL SUSSMAN

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP)—

You might say as Sen. John Tower once said, that an MX missile is just like a freeway.

"Everybody wants them, but they don't want them through their back yards," the Texas Republican said.

The possibility remains slim that all or part of the Defense Department's proposed hide-and-seek missile system would be located in a rural section of West Texas or Eastern New Mexico.

Rep. Kent Hance, a Democrat from Lubbock, gives it a 10-20 percent chance.

Others maintain even that figure is too high.

"I don't think this is a serious proposal," Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said about the future of the MX in the southern High Plains.

The MX is a costly wrinkle in the nation's strategic defense plans. It is, essentially, a variation on the ages-old shell game. Under the proposal, missiles would be constantly ferried by huge 24-wheel transporters along dirt roads between dozens of launching sites, making it difficult for our enemies to know with certainty where a missile was at any one time.

Tower drew his parallel between freeways and missiles after the Senate Armed Services Committee voted to add a split-basing stipulation — and the chance that half the system would be located at least partially in Texas — to its authorization for the MX missile system.

The system's first half — or 2,300 shelters for 100 nuclear missiles should be planned for 10 federal lands located in the Great Basin of Nevada and Utah.

The decision on locating the other half in Utah and Nevada, where vocal opposition had developed, then would be made only after the Defense Department studied "all reasonable deployment areas."

A $51.9 billion weapons bill passed the Senate with that stipulation intact, but it remains to be reconciled with the House version of the bill which does not contain the split-basing amendment.

Whatever the outcome of the stipulation, its approval hinges on the Defense Department's investigation of sites in West Texas and New Mexico as the best alternative to Utah and Nevada.

Tower, the ranking Republican on the armed services committee, said he is virtually certain the review would end with a declaration that Utah-Nevada is the logical site for the entire system.

"The Pentagon tells it would be impractical to split-base the MX missile system and common sense tells us that the costs of using the West Texas-New Mexico site — in terms of both human dislocation and money — would be prohibitive," Bentsen said.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements and New Mexico Gov. Bruce King met in Santa Fe, N.M., recently for a briefing by high-ranking Defense Department officials.

"I endorse the program 100 percent," Clements said.

"But there are better locations than New Mexico and Texas," King said.

"I just don't want to see them put it in New Mexico."

In Lubbock, Hance sponsored a session to inform local officials from throughout the region about the plan.

Congressional sources say the stipulation was an effort to soften electoral problems that could come up for Utah and Nevada senators, postponing the decision about where to locate the entire system until after November.

Two conservative Republicans, Jake Garn of Utah and Paul Laxalt of Nevada, have terms expiring this year.

Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., is a member of the armed services committee.

"There are parochial problems involved in a situation of this sort," Tower said after the vote.

Larry Morgan, an aide to Rep. Harold Runnels, D-N.M., places the blame for increased talk about split-basing squarely on Utah-Nevada political considerations.

"Truthfully, we're of the opinion it's a subterfuge," he said.

"Things may be a little bit different after November."

The attention has not provoked an uproar in Texas and New Mexico as it has in the two states farther to the west.

Congressional offices report little mail.

Civic groups in Clovis, N.M., and the small West Texas towns of Andrews and Denver City have said they would welcome the vast project and its accompanying payroll.

There are no precise figures available, but the Defense Department estimates that as many as 20,000 people could be employed during construction of the project, and it is expected that approximately half of them would be working in Texas and New Mexico if the system was split.

Once completed, a maximum of 14,000 people would be required to work and maintain the system, according to estimates. Again, it is reasonably safe to assume that about half those would be employed in Texas and New Mexico under a split-based concept.

The scheduled date for release of the Defense Department's draft environmental impact statement on potential sites for the MX missile recently was postponed until later this summer.

One of the reasons given was the need to include additional information about split-basing possibilities.

The Defense Department has stated "publicly that its preferred alternative is locating the system in the Utah-Nevada area. The department then favors locating the entire system in another, as yet undesignated, area. Finally, Defense Department planners accept split-basing as the last alternative."

"They make no secret of the fact that they want it in Nevada-Utah," said congressional aide Morgan.

Experts Think Worst Is Over

By KRISTIN GOFF
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The nation's economic output tumbled at a record-setting 9.1 percent annual rate in the past three months, equal to the worst quarterly drop in the post-World War II period.

The drop matched that of the first quarter of 1975 when the country was in the depths of the last recession. The drop of more than 9 points followed a 1.2 percent rate of growth in Gross National Product in the first quarter of the year and a 2.3 percent rise in all of 1979.

Real GNP is defined as the economy's output of goods and services after adjustment for inflation. Despite the dramatic falloff in the economy's output, a number of economists have recently been declaring that the end of the recession is in sight.

"The worst of the recession is over," Michael Evans, a Washington-based private economic forecaster, recently declared.

"We are turning the corner on the recession. This is an important step in the right direction," said Moon Landrieu, Housing and Urban Development secretary. He cited a housing construction report released this past week showing a sharp rebound in housing starts.

The stock market gave signs of believing the same thing this past week as the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks climbed to its highest closing levels since 1977.

Reports on housing construction were also positive.

"The nation's manufacturers operated at only 76.1 percent of capacity in June, 2.3 percentage points less than in May, the government reported. The rate was the lowest since the 75.5 percent reported in October 1975, the Federal Reserve reported.

Ailing Chrysler Corp. received preliminary approval for an additional $300 million in government loan guarantees, for a total of $800 million in loan guarantees.

While final sales—defined as sales to the consumer or user—have declined, the GNP report showed that business inventories also have risen sharply in the latest quarter.

In other business developments this past week: The government said personal income of Americans increased 0.4 percent or $8 billion in June to an annual rate of $2,086 trillion. The figures, which are not adjusted for inflation, showed the biggest gain since March when the increase was 0.7 percent.

HEREFORD (AP)—Outside a hot and blustery wind blows across the High Plains, kicking up dust and dirt raised by the threat of a fierce thunderstorm.

Inside, all is serene. The house is quiet and clean, bathed in bright sunlight. Soft stereophonic music fills the spacious rooms.

Most puzzling, however, is the view from the terrace. One does not see swirling dust nor ominous clouds, or hear the sirens that signal the approach of a tornado.

There is only the sound of a splashing fountain and the glimmer of fish in the pool. Plants and flowers ring the courtyard, enhancing the seascape in the distance.

The seascape? Well, not exactly. But such a scenario is no fantasy, and a tall, lean Texan named Jay Swayze is here to tell us about underground living.

Actually, he's been talking about his subterranean homes for years. But now people are beginning to listen. He says his is an idea whose time has come.

"I'm saying that underground living gives us the best of two worlds," he said from his home in this Panhandle community of 17,000.

For those sick of soaring utility costs, home repair bills and disruptive noise, Swayze may be right.

"We've gone to the moon and back, and cured a number of common and uncommon ills," he said.

"The one thing we haven't done is utilize the underground potential."

"It offers us privacy, security, safety, and controlled environment and a better quality of living."

Envision a vandal-proof school house, for instance, or a chain of subterranean steak houses.

According to Swayze, the cost of an underground home is 10 percent to 20 percent higher than the cost of conventional housing, but reduced insurance, utility and repair bills quickly offset the initial expense.

A 2,000-square foot home within a 3,000-square foot shell would cost roughly $120,000, he said. The most expensive home to date was a $2.3 million model somewhere out west.

"We don't give locations because of customers' requests," he said.

"They attract the curious from all over the world." Since the "Geobuilding," as he calls it, is not exposed to wind, rain, heat and cold, such structures last for generations.

"This makes the home a lasting heirloom for families," he said.

With energy on the minds and draining the pocketbooks of everyone, Swayze is quick to note that the savings potential is substantial and the atmosphere control healthy.

He explains: "At a given depth the earth maintains a constant temperature which can be utilized for both heating and cooling, making additional heating and cooling minimal."

It's healthy, he said, because there is no air pollution, outside noises, blowing trash, allergy-causing pollens or dust in a Geobuilding home.

With air drawn through fiber filters at a central point, he said, one can create "the breeze of a mountain top or the exhilarating high pressure of a spring day."

Actual sunlight is funneled into the home through something called fiberoptics—a process similar to transferring sound through telephone lines.

"We estimate now that we can grow plant life 80 times better in the earth than it's ever been grown on earth," Swayze said.

Innovative lighting and colors and spectacular and imaginative murals simulate day and night, dusk and dawn, the mountains, the seashore, a river bank or anywhere in owners chooses.

"We'll give you anything from a sunny day to a star-filled night," said Swayze.

How about claustrophobia? "Occupants enjoy a feeling of spaciousness, never claustrophobia," he said.

And besides, the homes make dandy fallout shelters.

Old Master Exhibit To Close Aug. 1

The Old Master Paintings exhibit currently being featured in the Scurry County Museum will be closed at noon on Aug. 1, Sharon Sutton, museum director, said.

The exhibit has been on loan to the local museum from the Sarah Campbell Blaffer Foundation of Houston since June 1. The Blaffer Foundation makes its traveling exhibits available to small museums without cost to the host institution.

Other exhibits from the Blaffer Foundation scheduled to be shown here include an American Abstract Expressionist collection in January, Goya's "The Disasters of War" in May, and "A Golden Age of Paintings" in 1982.

The Scurry County Museum is on the campus of Western Texas College and is open each weekday and from 1-5 p.m. on Sundays.

English Muffin Marks Birthday

TOTOWA, N.J. (AP)—The English muffin is being toasted today on the 100th anniversary of the famous breakfast bun.

The muffin isn't English. But it was first cooked up by Englishman Samuel Bath Thomas who moved to New York a century ago, opened a bakery and began peddling muffins made from a family recipe.

From humble beginnings—the muffins were hawked by "muffin men" with a basket on one arm and a bell in the other—the muffins have become a well-known and widely advertised breakfast hit.

About 2,000 people are feasting today on a variety of foods—almost all featuring English muffins—to celebrate the beginnings of S.B. Thomas Inc.

"In the case of the barbecues, they will be served on English muffins," said Thomas' spokesman Glory Read.

"And there'll be all sorts of hors d'oeuvres. English muffins will be used in most of the menu."

Party-goers also are getting tours of the entire plant—with one exception. The place "where the secret of the English Muffin recipe is," is off limits, Ms. Read said.

Since baker Thomas' time, however, several other companies have been producing their own muffins.

The flat, crisp muffins trace their ancestry back to 10th century Wales, where similar cakes were baked on hot stone.

And although you can't buy English muffins in England, "they were very prevalent around 1880 when Samuel Thomas came to America with the recipe," Ms. Read said.

Thomas sold the muffins in his street-level retail store below his home and made deliveries to restaurants with a pushcart.

Later, he bought a horse and wagon, made deliveries to the suburbs and shipped muffins to New England and Pennsylvania by bus.

"At his death in 1918, Thomas' business was handed down to four nephews. The plant was moved here in 1962, and in 1970 the company was taken over by Corn Products Company-North America, a giant food concern.

English muffins are now so popular, the company says, an English noblewoman had her chauffeur pick up a special order when she was in New York. And comedian Milton Berle periodically had a fresh supply flown to Hollywood, and the Firestones had orders shipped to Ohio.

Studies show that rheumatoid arthritis patients have below-normal levels of zinc in their blood. In a trial, Dr. Peter Simkin of U. of Wash., Seattle, gave either zinc sulfate capsules or an inert placebo to a group of 24 patients. Zinc treatment clearly produced improvement in swollen joints, morning stiffness, walking time, etc. Dr. Simkin believes zinc sulfate deserves further study in patients with active rheumatoid arthritis.

Self Help Clothing Book Is Published

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Dressing is such a common thing. It's so routine, we don't stop to think about it. But if you have a handicap, even a simple act of dressing can be a problem.

So says Eleanor Boettke Hotte, professor emerita of the School of Home Economics and Family Studies at the University of Connecticut and author of the booklet, "Self-Help Clothing."

The booklet, written for parents of children with physical handicaps, is published by the National Easter Seal Society. It contains suggestions on how to teach children to dress themselves; how to adapt ready-to-wear clothing to fit the different needs of handicapped youngsters, and what fabrics to look for and how to care for them.

Seige Of Hot Weather Taking Toll Of Crops

COLLEGE STATION (AP)—The four-week

long seige of record high temperatures is taking heavier tolls each day of Texas crops and livestock, says Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

If the hot, dry weather continues through July, severe cotton crop reductions will be added to those already recorded for grain sorghum, corn, hay crops, pecans, fruit crops, home gardens, pastures and ranges, Pfannstiel said in his weekly agricultural report.

Should the dry weather continue into mid-August, the state's estimated 7.5 million acres of cotton may produce as low as 4 to 4.5 million bales this season. This would compare with the 1979 total cotton yield of 5.7 million bales grown on 6.9 million acres, Pfannstiel said.

Across the state, brown ranges and pastures are causing many livestock producers to cull their foundation herds heavily to reduce excessive feeding costs. Ranchers in the Southwest and South Texas and several other areas are already feeding hay and supplemental rations and some are attempting to grow out calves before shipping.

Calves and lambs in Far West Texas and other regions are being weaned early or sold at lighter weights than normal to reduce pressure on pastures. Stock water supplies are getting low in portions of the Rolling Plains and Southwest Texas, where range conditions have become almost winter-like, and in areas of West Central and South Texas.

Home gardens in most areas of the state are a total disaster, fruit crops are showing drought stress and pecans are shedding as a result of the prolonged extreme weather. Peanut crops are being irrigated where possible, and some drought-delayed soybeans are being baled for livestock feed in the Coastal Bend area in anticipation of a hay shortage.

Reports from district Extension directors showed the following conditions:

PANHANDLE: Hot, dry winds have sapped soil moisture, and most irrigators are behind schedule in watering corn and sorghum. Dryland sorghum is under stress and cotton is beginning to need moisture. Wheat yields are down considerably from last year. Some supplemental livestock feeding has begun.

SOUTH PLAINS: Pastures, ranges and dryland crops need rain, and corn watering is behind schedule, placing some fields under stress. Rain is critical in the next 10 days to prevent extensive dryland cotton losses. Growers are spraying to reduce spider mite damage to irrigated corn.

ROLLING PLAINS: Dry, hot conditions are taking a heavy toll as grain sorghum continues to deteriorate and range conditions become almost winter-like. Most gardens are a total loss and peaches are ripening prematurely. Pecans, fruit crops are showing drought stress. Heavy herd culling and early weaning of calves is under way.

WATER YARDS.

GARDENS WISELY. Keeping the yard and garden in good shape during the hot summer weather while at the same time keeping the water bill in check can be a challenge for any homeowner. Using proper watering techniques helps though.

While watering depends on many factors, such as weather, soil condition, plant type and rate of growth, and the method of application, the key is to get water to plant roots and to keep it there.

To begin, don't try to follow a set schedule for watering, such as every two days or three times a week. Instead, learn to recognize soil and plant conditions which indicate dryness and the need for water.

Also, when you do water, water thoroughly. Water until the ground is wet several inches deep. This promotes deep rooting and increases drought tolerance. Sprinkling the garden every evening is usually not adequate since most people don't have the patience to stand in one spot long enough to water for good penetration.

Generally, the best time to water is in the morning. Watering in the afternoon under direct sunlight can cause leaf burn when the sun hits drops of water on new leaves. Late evening watering invites disease problems since most diseases develop rapidly in cool, moist conditions.

Keep water off plants which do not need watering at the time. Also, be careful with plants that are easily troubled by leaf diseases which spread on wet surfaces, such as crapemyrtle and roses.

If runoff is a problem, use a mulch or work manure or other organic matter such as peat moss into the soil. A mulch can also help hold moisture in the soil by reducing evaporation, and it makes weed pulling easier. Although fertilizer is good for plants, it can pull moisture from plant tissue and cause burn spots if left on leaves. Applying fertilizer at this time is not recommended.

The method of watering the garden is a matter of personal preference. Sprinklers give good results if you pay attention to the rate of discharge and the spray pattern.

Watch plant conditions as an indicator of the success of your watering program. Symptoms of overwatered plants will be similar to plants suffering from lack of moisture. Our objective at this time should be to try and salvage or keep alive our most desirable plants.

UIL To Appeal Court Ruling On Cage Camps

HOUSTON (AP)—U.S. Dist. Judge George Cire has declared unconstitutional a University Interscholastic League rule that penalizes schoolboy athletes if they participate in summer basketball camps—but the battle isn't over.

The UIL also said schools could send entire teams to a camp for summer instruction, giving an unfair advantage over other schools.

and volleyball. Dean Steffey, another attorney in the case, said it was nonsense to say an athlete was too poor to attend a camp.

UIL Director Bailey Marshall said Friday the ruling would be appealed, and T. Gerald Treece, an attorney for the plaintiffs in the case, agreed the battle could continue.

Marshall said he fears the ramifications of Cire's ruling, if it is carried to a greater interpretation.

"You're talking about $150 to attend one of these camps," Steffey said. "I don't know anybody who couldn't work a little and scrape up that much. Greg Kite is not from a well to do family. He had to earn the money for camp."

"This is only the first round of a three round fight," attorney Treece said. "We're delighted with the ruling but the appeals court could undo everything."

"We have rules that say kids cannot take typing prior to taking typing the year in school which they enter our typing contests," Marshall said.

Steffey argued for Kite two years ago when U.S. Dist. Judge Finis Cowan issued a temporary restraining order against the UIL that allowed Kite to attend a summer camp prior to his senior year.

A third court date could come in the U.S. Supreme Court, Treece said. The suit was filed in

San Antonio Spurs Sign Their No. 1 Draft Pick

Associated Press Writer SAN ANTONIO (AP)—Although he still has a way to go before he starts collecting big bucks in the NBA, San Antonio Spurs No. 1 draft pick Reggie Johnson knows what he wants to do with the money—buy his mother a house in Atlanta.

"It's something I always wanted to do," the shy 6-9, 210-pound power forward said after signing with the team Friday. He said he immediately would begin hunting a house with his signing bonus money, explained his mother reared seven children and still has three of them at home.

Johnson is Tennessee's second all-time scorer behind Ernie Grunfeld with 2,193 points, an 18.3 average, and also snared 8 rebounds a game.

"It's going to be tough for me to come in and get adjusted," he said. "I hope to at least become a sixth man, if not a starter. I think I can. If Kenon doesn't sign, I'll have a better chance to become a starter."

UNUSUAL CONCERT PLANNED—Bob and Jan Salley of Waco will present an unusual concert of gospel music Sunday, July 17, at Colonial Hill Baptist Church. They will be representing World Hunger Relief, Inc., a Christian, non-profit organization founded in May of 1976 to promote awareness of world hunger and to raise money to alleviate this problem. They will appear during the 11 a.m. worship service, and the public is invited to attend.

Fire Prevention Lab Constructed

GRANVILLE, Ohio (AP) — To help meet government and public demands for safer products, a $1 million safety laboratory, specifically for fire research, has been constructed here.

Unique to the fiber-glass industry, the facility has room to construct and burn the equivalent of two rooms, a mobile home or the first floor of a small house.

In the laboratory, Owens-Corning Fiberglass Corp. engineers study fire codes, test standards and the fire performance of both fiber glass and competitive products.

Two Grass Fires

Logged Friday

Two grass fires were doused Friday. The first was reported about 4:10 p.m. on the north side of Cogdell Memorial Hospital. The second was at 6 p.m., approximately 12 miles southeast of Snyder on Farm to Market Road 2835.

Says China's Newspaper...

Conventions Like A Circus

PEKING (AP)—The People's Daily, trying to explain a political system utterly different from China's, told its 6.5 million readers today that American political conventions are like circuses and running for president, like climbing a mountain.

In a dispatch from Detroit by Wang Fei, the newspaper's Washington correspondent, it explained the Republican Party convention which ended Thursday amid thunderous applause, drums and music.

In democracy of the American type, such conventions are described as "circus shows," it said.

The Chinese reporter wrote that the convention auditorium boiled with thousands of people, orators trying to speak over the din; delegates talking and laughing; television reporters constantly squeezing through the crowds.

Delegates wore cowboy hats and bizarre dresses bearing buttons and ribbons in support of Republican presidential candidates.

date Ronald Reagan, he said.

"Start a march which will enable the U.S. to become great again" was Reagan's slogan, correspondent Wang wrote, apparently a Chinese translation of this year's Republican Party slogan: "Together — a New Beginning."

Some people, he said, called the slogan "Half-boast intended to win votes and half-longing for the 'Golden Dollar Empire.'"

"Can they actually realize the 'American dream' when the world situation has undergone such great changes? Can this ambitious slogan actually be realized?"

Wang wrote. Convention speakers attacked the "Errors, failures, wavering incompetence and humiliation of the Carter administration," he said.

China is clearly worried about a Reagan presidency because it fears he will try to reestablish some sort of official ties with Taiwan. But Wang reported Reagan was considered by many to be the "hope" of the United States and of "free people."

He said Republicans wanted to restore prosperity to the U.S. economy; America's position as a world leader and U.S. military superiority over the Soviet Union.

He noted that the plank in the Republican Party platform rescinding support for the Equal Rights Amendment drew the greatest attention and 12,000 persons demonstrated against it.

More Suspects Held In Assassination Try

PARIS (AP)—Police today arrested two more persons suspected of taking part in the attempted assassination of former Iranian Premier Shahpour Bakhtiar at his suburban Paris apartment, police sources said.

Bakhtiar escaped injury Friday when the would-be assassins, posing as reporters, failed to force their way past the reinforced door of his apartment.

Three persons — all of whom police said identified themselves as Palestinians — were arrested after a shootout that left a policeman and a woman neighbor dead and three other policemen and one of the gunmen wounded.

A police spokesman said Friday there was no evidence that more than three persons were involved in the attempt to kill Bakhtiar, the last Iranian premier appointed by deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. However, a witness at the scene reported seeing five persons.

Police refused to give any details of today's arrests. Nor would they comment on press reports that the leader of the death squad has been identified as a commander of the Palestine Liberation Organization's Al Fatah guerrilla army.

The French news agency Agence France-Presse, quoting unidentified informed sources, said the squad leader was 29-year-old Abou-Mazem, known by the code name Anis Naccache. It said he was a member of the Al Fatah central committee and a resident of Damascus, Syria.

Bakhtiar, 65, told a French television interviewer that he would continue his struggle against the Islamic government of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, and said he had no plans of leaving France for the moment.

Miss Ferrell, Scott Wed In Formal Nuptial Rites

Susan Ferrell became the bride of Larry Neil Scott in a double ring ceremony solemnized at 3 p.m. Saturday, July 5, in the First Baptist Church. Ken Andrews of Killeen, former pastor of the church, officiated. Vows were exchanged before an altar illuminated with brass candelabra entwined with greenery.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. J.L. Ferrell of 3012 37th St. and Mr. and Mrs. Forest C. Scott of Andrews.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of candlelight chiffon over ivory satin. A wide ruffle of chiffon trimmed in Chantilly lace formed an off-the-shoulder neckline. The high-rise waistline flowed into a circular skirt which formed a chapel length train. The skirt was encircled with three rows of satin-edged Chantilly lace, the third row edging the hemline. Her silk illusion veiling was caught up to a lace-covered camelot cap. The entire elbow-length veil was trimmed in Chantilly lace. She carried a bouquet of sonia roses, sprigs of baby's breath, and springeria fern tied with satin ribbon streamers.

Maid of honor was Miss Cynthia Ferrell of Midland, sister of the bride. Matron of honor was Mrs. Joe Bullard, also of Midland. They were attired in dresses of peach-colored shantung. A self-ruffle formed the top edge of their dresses, and the high-rise waistlines were accented with sonia-colored satin ribbon. They carried bouquets similar to that of the bride's.

Carl Scott of San Marcos was best man and groomsmen was Stanley Scott of Lubbock. Both are brothers of the groom. Ushers were Don Lee of Canyon, Wayne Roberts of San Angelo, Matt Ramsey of Round Rock, and Stan Ferrell of Odessa, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Randy Perkins, organist, presented the nuptial music and accompanied J.D. Smith as he sang "It Seems I've Always Love You" and "The Lord's Prayer." Mrs. Marty Pate of Bryan and Jerry Neill sang "He Has Chosen You For Me" and "Follow Me." Mr. Neill accompanied on the guitar.

Muleshoe and Miss Cynthia Schiebel of Amarillo registered guests at the church entrance.

A reception in the garden room of the church followed the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with a cloth of organdy over satin and was centered with a silver centerpiece which held an arrangement of sonia carnations, baby's breath, and greenery. The four-tiered wedding cake was decorated with fresh sonia roses and sonia carnations. Serving were Miss Liz Sadler and Miss Karen Oglesby, both of Fort Worth, and Miss Janie Bierschenk of Galveston.

The groom's table was covered with a lace cloth overlay and held a silver coffee service. Two silver candelabra decorated the table. Miss Nita Ellis and Mrs. Paul Prater, both of Fort Worth, served German chocolate cake and coffee.

A third table held punch, tea sandwiches, and a cut-glass bowl of fresh fruit, served by Mrs. Dub Preston of Abilene and Mrs. Marty Pate.

The bride is a graduate of Hardin-Simmons University and has been employed by the Weatherford Public School System for the past four years. She will be teaching in the Snyder school system this fall.

The groom is a graduate of West Texas State University and is employed by the Snyder schools as a teacher and coach.

The couple's wedding trip was to New Orleans.

Out of town guests were from Andrews, Austin, Canyon, San Marcos, San Angelo, Round Rock, Houston, Conroe, Odessa, Midland, Ballinger, Fort Worth, Weatherford, Amarillo, Pampa, Bryan, Lorraine, Hobbs, N.M., Lubbock and Borger.

The groom's parents were host to a rehearsal dinner at the Snyder Country Club on the eve of the wedding.

A brunch at The Shack, given by Mrs. Roy Carter, Mrs. Randy Perkins, and Mrs. Derald Lambert, honored the bride, her attendants, and friends on the day of the wedding.

Snyder Family's Relative Marries In Tucson Church

TUCSON, Ariz.—Christ the King Episcopal Church, Tucson, Ariz., was the scene of the Saturday evening, July 5, double ring ceremony of Tambre Carol Hicks, of Tucson, and Edward Herbert Marshall III, of Newport Beach, Calif., and Hinsdale, Ill. Officiants were Rev. Gregory Wives and Rev. Bud O'Dell.

Follow Directions When Pickling

COLLEGE STATION—Read the label carefully when selecting vinegar for making pickles, advises Mary K. Sweeten, a foods and nutrition specialist.

"Buy vinegar for pickles that is between four and six percent or 40 to 60 grains (one percent vinegar is equal to 10 grains), she recommends.

Some vinegar on the market is 100 grain vinegar (or 10 percent vinegar).

To dilute 100 grain vinegar to five percent or 50 grain vinegar, add an equivalent amount of water.

Also, don't reduce the amount of vinegar in recipes developed for a certain percent vinegar.

In other words, follow directions exactly, the specialist urges.

If a less sour pickle is desired, add sugar rather than decrease the vinegar.

It is very important that each pickle recipe have the right ratio of food to acid to obtain a safe acid balance, she explains.

A too-weak acid will result in an unsafe pickled product, Mrs. Sweeten adds.

TOYS FOR TOTS

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy" isn't just an old folk saying. As the summer months get longer a few new toys may make the days seem shorter for both mother and child. Choose them wisely.

Researchers have found that the time a child spends at play is not aimless or wasted—but is an important part of his development into mature adulthood.

Between infancy and age 2, it is play that does the most to bring out a child's natural interest in the world about him. With properly chosen toys as his 'tools' a child is encouraged to imagine, create and most of all—to have fun.

Toys offer a variety of experiences. They give a child an opportunity to express his very own creativity and ideas. Toys foster imagination and invite a child to pretend.

When a child dramatizes and imitates an adult, it helps him understand the world about him—it is sort of a trial or instant replay for children.

But toys need not be costly nor numerous to provide constructive play. Probably the only useless toy is the one child is no longer interested in or one that is too advanced for his young age. It's important to select toys on the basis of interest and the ability of the child.

Parents often find it easy to buy toys for older children and grandchildren, but they are sometimes puzzled about buying for the small child of 1-3.

What kind of toys are suited for the young child? The 1-2-year-old youngster enjoys creative toys such as a facing boot, simple puzzles, building toys such as a house, a boat or building blocks.

Toddlers need simple toys to work out problems at very slow speeds. Pull toys help toddlers continue to develop the large muscles in their bodies and develop coordination.

Toddlers and little children enjoy imitating mother in ironing, washing, dressing a baby, and make-believe household toys that are large enough to handle easily and big baby dolls are favorites of toddlers.

The infant enjoys a different kind of toy. He is learning everything. Toys of bright colors, shapes, textures all should appeal to the infant and help him discover colors, lines, forms, textures, shadows, space and sound. Care should be taken to eliminate the noises that are too harsh for young ears, she reminded.

The preschool child who is 3-6 years old has different needs in toys. A playhouse or telephones, that are life size and sturdy, and other creative toys are favorites for preschool children.

When selecting toys, be sure to check these points:

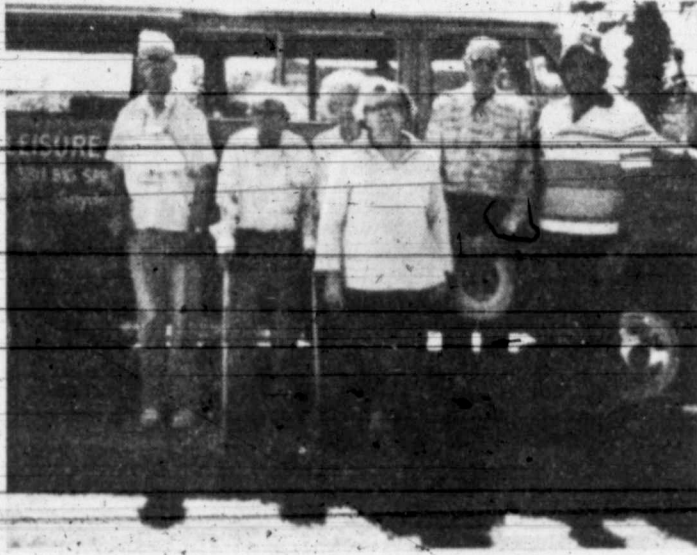

-Is the toy strong, durable, safe, sanitary and attractive?

-Can the child manage the toy by himself?

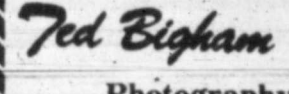

-Is the toy suited to the child's age and development?

-Do you have space to store the toys?

-Does the toy require a minimum of adult supervision?

Responding to one notrump

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

The notrump opening is a picture bid. In standard American it shows 16-18 high-card points and either 4-3-3-3, 4-4-3-2 or 5-3-3-2 distribution.

As responder you know immediately where you should head. With less than eight points, you want to find the best part score; with eight or nine, you want to suggest game; with 10-14, you want to bid game; with more, you want to suggest or bid a slam.

There is little need to explore when responding to notrump with a balanced hand, but even with 4-3-3-3 distribution such hands as S-A K 7 5 H-5 3 2 D-K 10 4 C-Q 9 8 may produce four spades and not three notrump if partner's notrump is S-Q 9 3 H-A 8 D-Q J 9 7 C-A K 10.

Playing in spades, you should lose just one heart and one diamond; playing in notrump, a heart lead will knock out your ace. If hearts break 4-4, you will still make three notrump; if they break 5-3 and the man with the long hearts holds the ace of diamonds, you will be held to two notrump.

There is a well-known convention today to get you to spades with this sort of hand.

Developed by Sam Stayman and George Rapee in the early Forties, it provides that the two-club response to notrump is artificial and forcing and asks partner to bid two of a four-card major if he can. Otherwise, he rebids two diamonds.

With this responding hand, if you elect to use Stayman your next bid will be three notrump unless partner's rebid is two spades, whereupon you bid four spades.

We will discuss the Stayman convention at length next week.

First Christian Church Is Setting For Formal Wedding

In a candlelit ceremony in the First Christian Church Janice Rhodes became the bride of Bill S. Philen, both of Austin, with the Rev. Gary Duder, pastor of the church, officiating the double ring rites June 21 at 7 p.m.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Coy Rhodes, Lamesa Highway. The groom's mother is Mrs. Jim Morgan of Irving.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a gown of original design by Priscilla of Boston, executed in white starched chiffon, English bridal net and Bristol, Alencon and Venise laces. Cut to a natural waistline the molded bodice of net applied all over with Alencon lace motifs rose to a portrait neckline and long fitted sleeves closed at the wrists with traditional bridal buttons and loops. The flaring skirt of double layers of starched chiffon over taffeta featured appliques of laces and scalloped Alencon edging, hemming the wide skirt and full chapel length train.

MRS. BILL S. PHILEN

centered with a bouquet of spider mums and greenery. Other bouquets adorned the altar area.

"Ice Castles" played by flutist Melinda Crow, and organist Mrs. Wayne Bethel, began the ceremony. Susan Ferrell Scott sang "Longer" as the mothers were seated. Darrell Collins sang "With You I've Found Again" accompanied by Melinda Crow and Mrs. Bethel. Mrs. Jack Jackson of Houston sang "The Lord's Prayer" during the ceremony.

The reception was held in the Martha Ann Woman's Club. The bride's table featured a petal shaped, four tiered cake tinted in pastel apricot. China doves belonging to the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Hinds, adorned the third layer. Serving were Mrs. Karla Rhodes, sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. Cinda Lacik, Brenda Billingsley, Marcia Hinds, and Mrs. Nancy Chandler of Fayetteville, Ark. Musicians providing wedding music also played selections during the reception.

Jo Ann Cotton registered guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Philen reside in Austin where the groom is self-employed and the bride is employed by Round Rock, I.S.D., as teacher and coach.

Out of town guests were from Fort Smith and Fayetteville, Ark.; Houston, Irving, Austin, Odessa, Pampa, Midland, Crane, Penwell, and San Antonio.

Wedding Vows Recited In Church Of Christ

Before an altar decorated with a brass arch, flanked by candelabra adorned with English ivy and featuring the couple's unity candle, Pattie Sue Wolfe and Mark Russell Musselman repeated solemn nuptial vows June 27 at 7:30 p.m. The double ring ceremony in the 37th Street Church of Christ was officiated by Pat Abbanato of Childress, former church minister.

The couple's parents are Mrs. Charles Wolfe of 2806 34th St. and the late Mr. Wolfe, and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Musselman of Tulare, Calif.

Dennis Wolfe of Joshua, brother of the bride, presented her in marriage as she was attired in a princess style gown of white organza with a high neckline of silk Venice lace. A sheer yoke adorned with seed pearls and brief sleeves complimented the fitted bodice. Her chapel train was outlined in Venice lace. The bride's headpiece was purchased in Austria where she and her mother vacationed in May. Yellow roses were predominate in her cascading bouquet.

Maid of honor Sara Watson of Lubbock wore a long yellow dress of giana with yellow lace collars forming a V-shaped yoke. She carried a small umbrella decorated with yellow and white flowers. Dressed like the maid of honor were bridesmaids Paula Rackley of Portales, Penny Wolfe, sisters of the bride, and Sharon Musselman, of California, sister of the groom.

Best man was Brent Musselman of California, brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Kirk Williams of Porterville, Calif., Larry Sullivan of Lubbock and Lonnie Aamil of Odessa.

The bride walked down the aisle as the groom sang "You're A Gift." The bride's maid entered while Mr. and Mrs. Bill Lyon sang "Wedding Song" and the mothers entered to "Annie's Song" sung by Kirk Williams.

The reception was held in the Christian Student Center at Western Texas College. The bride's table, covered with a yellow qiana cloth with an Italian lace overlay, held a white cake decorated with a cascade of yellow roses. Serving were Sonja Wolfe, sister-in-law of the bride, Cynthia Pherigo and Elise Gray of Winters.

Following the couple's wedding trip to California the couple resides at Grover City, Calif.

The bride is a 1976 graduate of Snyder High School and Lubbock Christian College, attended York College in York, Neb., and Texas Tech graduate school.

The bridegroom is a 1977 graduate of Tulare Western High School, attended Pepperdine University in Malibu, Calif., and LCC in Lubbock.

Out of town guests for the wedding were from California, Kansas, Nebraska, Hawaii, New Mexico and Colorado.

Tips To Keep Face Young

COLLEGE STATION--Keep your face "young" to look your best in the '80's, says Becky Saunders, a clothing specialist.

An awareness, and then avoidance, of specific routine habits can help reduce premature aging of the face, she points out.

Mrs. Saunders is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

The following outlines some of the causes of an "older than you would like" appearance:

Wrinkling your forehead and raising your eyebrows often causes horizontal forehead grooves.

Knitting brows when angry or thinking results in snow lines.

Frequent squinting produces crow's feet.

Frequent smoking causes premature wrinkles above your upper lip and around the eyes.

Tugging eyes when applying eye makeup results in drooping eyelids.

If you chew on your upper or lower lip, then you have curved lines surrounding your mouth.

Overindulgence in alcohol produces dilated or broken blood vessels.

Yo-yo dieting can wreck your complexion.

Too much sun causes leathery skin.

Rapid weight loss results in saggy, baggy skin.

Fast, Simple Baked Fish

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

If you hesitate to prepare fish, begin with a baked dish. It's a simple way to cook fish and more foolproof for a beginner than some other methods. Use your kitchen timer to remind you to check the fish for doneness, overcooking is one of the pitfalls every cook encounters.

Halibut steaks with a rich mushroom sauce provide a lower-calorie entree with high protein value. Serve with rice or a fresh green vegetable, perhaps steamed.

This is a good after-work meal since it's quick to prepare and takes little watching.

- BAKED FISH WITH MUSHROOMS
- 1/2 pound fresh mushrooms or 1 can (6 to 8 ounces)
 - 1 sliced mushrooms
 - 1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
 - 3 tablespoons
 - 3 chopped onion
 - 3 tablespoons
 - 1 diced green pepper
 - 1 teaspoon lemon juice
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon sugar
 - 1/8 teaspoon ground black pepper
 - 1 1/2 pounds halibut steaks

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Rinse, pat dry and slice fresh mushrooms (makes about 2 1/2 cups) or drain canned mushrooms.

Place mushrooms in medium saucepan along with tomato sauce, onion, green pepper, lemon juice, salt, sugar and black pepper. Bring to boil, stirring constantly. Reduce heat and simmer, uncovered, for 2 minutes.

Spoon half of mushroom mixture into lightly greased 12-by-8-by-2-inch baking pan. Top with fish. Cover with remaining mushroom mixture. Bake, uncovered, until fish flakes easily when tested with fork, about 20 minutes.

Arrange fish on heated platter. Spoon mushroom sauce over fish. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 portions of approximately 268 calories per portion.

WHY GAS IS PLENTIFUL, EFFICIENT AND RIGHT FOR THE TIMES.

It's time to kiss rumors goodbye and settle down with reassuring facts, one of which is that gas is plentiful for the residential and commercial customers of Lone Star Gas Company.

Rumors are usually more exciting than fact, but the fact is that approximately 2,500 drilling rigs were at work in the United States in December 1979. This was the highest active rig count since 1956.

Despite persistent rumors that America is running out of natural gas, industry statistics reveal an increase in the ratio of successes to failures in gas-well completions in 1979.

As a result, the United States has about 14,700* new gas wells it didn't have a year ago. And exploration is expected to increase — not decrease — as higher gas prices offset the increasing cost of drilling.

Another reassuring fact is this: 50% of this nation's estimated remaining onshore gas reserves are in nine major basins in Texas and Oklahoma. Lone Star's pipelines connect with eight of these basins; so we'll have plenty of opportunities to buy new gas.

The new gas appliances can help you hold down your utility bills.

Gas is the naturally efficient energy that works in its original form, free of energy conversion costs. Direct use of it in your appliances actually conserves energy and saves you money.

Now, with the new energy-efficient appliances that use up to 30% less gas to do the same jobs your old appliances do so reliably, economical natural gas becomes even more economical.

The new gas appliances can help you hold down your utility bills without cutting back on the comforts and conveniences energy can provide. It's why natural gas and the new gas appliances are so right for the times!

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Wilson F. McMennamy, former Snyder residents, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Helf of Dallas. Mrs. Clara McMennamy, grandmother of the bride and Mrs. Oscar E. Clark, aunt of the bride, are Snyder residents.

The bride chose a gown of ivory Chantilly lace, styled with a short sleeved overblouse. Her fitted bodice, tied with an ivory satin tied at the waist, formed a peplum over a skirt that fell to a chapel train.

The bride's fingertip veil of ivory illusion was attached to a caplet of satin adorned with lace and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of gardenias, stephanotis and baby's breath with accents of English ivy and lemon leaves. Nestled in the crescent shaped bouquet was a gold locket which belonged to her maternal grandmother.

Developing Diagnostic Flowcharts

GENEVA (AP)—The U.N.'s World Health Organization is developing a series of simple question-and-answer flowcharts to help paramedics decide what is wrong with their patients.

The pioneering work on diagnostic flowcharts was carried out by Dr. Ben Essex in Tanzania in the 1970s. Essex developed a series of 53 flowcharts which use 60 commonly observed symptoms of disease over 200 illnesses. Each flowchart begins with a symptom.

The health worker is then guided through a series of questions and answers and ultimately to a diagnosis.

Essex has also developed another set of flowcharts to help midwives select the best course of action when faced with 15 common obstetrical complications.

Grain Drying To Save Energy

Partially drying high moisture grain and then transferring it to a separate bin for tempering and cooling can increase the efficiency of high capacity dryers. The process, sometimes called dry-eration, uses less heat and thereby reduces the amount of energy used, says an agricultural engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. During tempering, grain kernels lose moisture to the surrounding air if its vapor pressure is less than that of the kernels. Cooling removes the moisture from the kernels' surface.

Texas High In Poultry Production

More chickens, more eggs and more money were the fruits of labor for Texas poultry producers last year. Texas ranked well within the "top 10" states in all categories of poultry and egg production in 1979, point out poultry marketing specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. Texas ranked sixth in gross income from poultry and eggs, ninth in total egg production, eighth in income solely from eggs, and seventh in both broiler income and production.
