Drive With Caution-271 Construction Underway

The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation has recently let a contract for the construction of hot mix asphaltic concrete pavement overlay on U. S. 271 in Red River County. The total length of the project is 7.9 miles with an estimated cost of $459,025.68. The proposed number of working days for completion of the project is (45) forty-five days. The limits of this project are from Bogata to Titus County Line.

Work has already begun with placement of barricades set up June 4, 1979. The contractor is Bi-Co Pavers, Inc., Garland, Texas.

At a pre-construction meeting, representatives of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation explained that certain hazards to the traveling public would be prevalent on this project during the process of construction. Adequate barricades, warning signs, and lights will be prominently displayed by the contractor but motorists should be extremely cautious in driving through the construction area.

The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, the contractor, and law enforcement agencies appeal to motorist to obey all barricades, warning signs, and exercise caution in traveling through the construction area.

FHA Members Attend Leadership Conference

Sharon Embrey, Rivercrest Senior FHA member, participated in the Area VI Leadership Conference held at Wilkes Lodge, Avinger, Texas, June 6-8. Miss Embrey is serving as secretary of the Area VI Association.

The theme of the conference, "FHA - The Light of Shining Stars," was carried out in decorations and program. The purpose of the conference was to give officers training for their responsibilities and to make plans for the Area VI meeting and other activities for the 1979-80 FHA year.

The theme selected for the year is "FHA: Stepping Stones to Opportunity." The area meeting has been set for March 21-22 in Tyler.

Each chapter represented had an exhibit which included their scrapbook, yearbook, and ideas for projects and activities. On Wednesday night, each officer and guest took part in a talent show fashioned after the TV show, Hee-Haw.

Doug Conn, co-owner of Mr. Lynn of Shreveport, a self-improvement and modeling school, conducted a two-hour session on poise and personality during the Thursday evening session.

At the Friday president's luncheon, Miss Belinda Bittick, Miss Kilgore, spoke to the group on developing personality and poise. Larry Hall, minister of the Church of Christ, Pine Tree, spoke on the qualities of a leader and emphasized the fact that a good leader focuses the spotlight on others. Following the luncheon, President Lisa Roe, Big Sandy, presented each officer with a red initialed tote bag. The conference ended with the Closing Ceremony.

The conference was under the direction of Mrs. Norma Shipman, Area VI Consultant, Sulphur Springs.

Others attending from Rivercrest were Tammy Strain and the advisor, Mrs. Anita Stubblefield.

Times Change, Buildings Vanish, Memories Remain

Joe Kelsey has a multitude of memories connected with the buildings being torn down on the east side of Deport right now.

Joe, his brothers, Roger and Russell, and his father, Dr. J. B. Kelsey, were the first people to occupy the buildings when they were brand new.

Deport Hardware Co., the business the Kelsey's started with $7000 cash, was originally located in a frame building located at the north end of the buildings now being torn down.

The owner, Albert Dickson, moved the frame structure back to the edge of Mustang creek while the new buildings were being constructed.

Joe watched the buildings going up, and says they were made from brick made in Blossom, Texas, and hauled over by teams in wagons.

The bricklayer was being paid the enormous sum of 75 cents per hour for his work, and the common laborers made around 50 cents per hour.

In 1910 the hardware store moved into the finished north end of the building and began paying $100 per month on a five year lease.

Joe says that was the highest rent in town, but also the most modern facilities in town.

The old frame building was torn down. At that time Deport was at the peak of it's growth. Enthusiasm and new businesses were not at all uncommon.

At the time Joe was very young, and his first part in the business was a bicycle shop which he operated out of the hardware store.

Behind the building, across the creek, was a lime warehouse. Lime and cement, along with other goods, were purchased by the carload and hauled by team from the depot at the south end of town.

Hardware stores then didn't handle any kind of lumber or furniture, Joe says, it was strictly bolts, equipment, wagons and harness. He recalls selling many a fine set of mule harness at the end of a good cotton year.

There was lots of competition around that time. Hayes and Sons, Griffin's, Smith's and Barham's all operated a hardware supply in Deport. When automobiles became popular almost all of the hardware dealerships acted as car dealers too.

Joe recalls purchasing an entire carload of Broadcast Binders and selling them across the Sulphur River bottom. Each took almost a week to put together and he spent a lot of time with the mosquitos around the river bottom.

The Kelsey's hired a "high-powered" salesman during that time, and paid him the princely sum of $100 per month, more than the bankers in Deport were making. The man stayed for several years, and Joe reckons he did them a good job.

When a wagon dealership closed out it's line in Paris the hardware company purchased one hundred wagons. Joe kept one of those wagons, claimed they were real quality. They must have been, for his granddaughter, Marilyn, recently repainted the wagon.

The rest of the wagons were sold at as little as five dollars profit apiece, with two years for the farmer to pay for it.

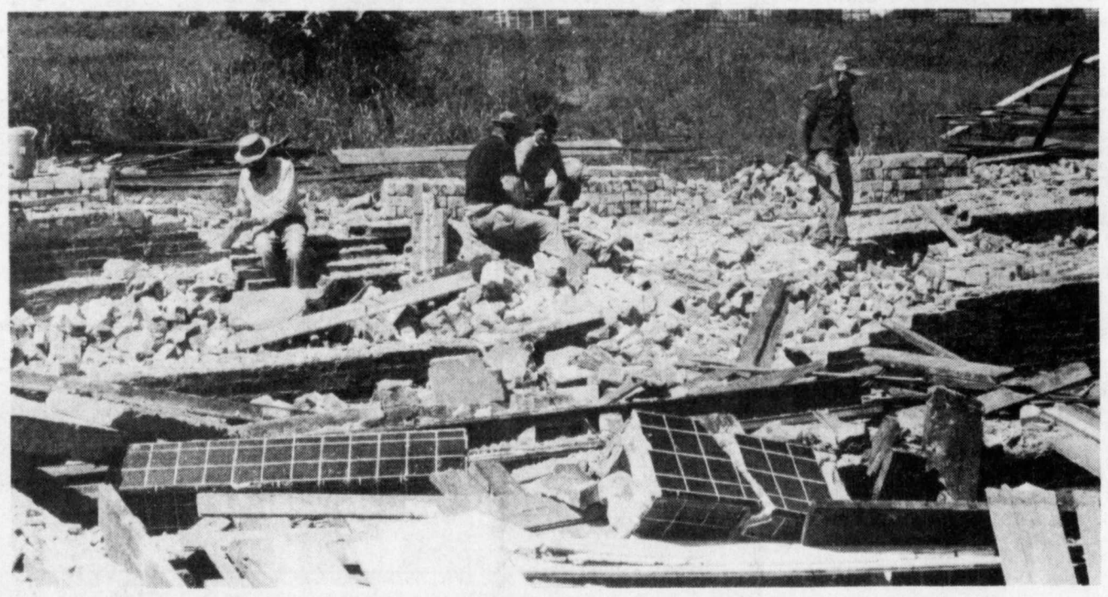

Other businesses soon occupied the completed southern end of the new buildings. Among them were John Daniel's Cafe and Charlie Davidson's Pool Hall. With two hotels operating in town there were often a lot of traveling salesmen around, and the pool hall provided a place for them to pass the time.

Also, there was a Pantatorium. Not familiar with that term? It's a dry cleaning business. A barbershop went in with the cleaners soon after it opened.

In 1914 Deport Hardware Co. left the east side of town and moved over into their own building, located where Tide Fertilizer is now.

Over the years a variety of businesses have occupied the buildings, from grocery stores to beauty shops. The face of Deport has changed, and it's economic system is different.

The buildings are vanishing fast, but Joe Kelsey's memory is sharp and clear. He remembers those new buildings as a symbol of when Deport was the center of business in the area. When people came from Cunningham, Detroit, Blossom and Bogata to shop, and when there was a livery stable and six doctors in town. Those days are gone now, as the buildings soon will be, but Deport goes on, with changes in life styles, but people, Joe says, are just about the same.

MORE THAN 100,000 bricks are estimated to be salvaged from the buildings built by Albert Dickson in Deport in 1910. The buildings are being torn down to make way for a new building for the First National Bank of Deport. (Staff Photo)

JOE KELSEY remembers vividly that he and his brothers and father were the first occupants of the buildings in downtown Deport that are presently being demolished. The hardware business, as well as the town, have changed in the 69 years since they were built. (Staff Photo)

Picking Apples

When picking apples from the grocery bin, keep in mind that the skins should be smooth and unbruised — bruises turn easily to decay. As long as rust dots are light, they don't affect flavor or quality. Always keep firm, crisp apples at room temperature.

Ward-Taylor Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Dean Ward, of Bogata, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Gail Dean, to Larry Paul Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Taylor, also of Bogata.

The couple will be married in a semi-formal double-ring ceremony at 7 o'clock in the evening on Saturday, August 18, 1979, at the First Baptist Church in Bogata.

Miss Ward is a 1977 graduate of Rivercrest High School. She has been previously employed by Dean Ward's Grocery in Bogata. The future bridegroom is a 1976 graduate of Rivercrest High School. He is presently employed with Texas Power and Light Co. He is enrolled at Tyler Junior College under TP&L's terminal engineering student program. In July, when he graduates, he will receive an Associate of Science Degree in Electical Engineering.

No local invitations will be mailed and relatives and friends are cordially invited to attend the ceremony.

Select Bulls On Performance

In selecting a herd bull, the producer should search for one with a high weaning weight that hopefully will be transmitted to offspring.

That suggestion comes from Dr. Larry Boleman, area beef cattle specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Since the weaning weight trait is about 30 percent heritable, this represents the estimated genetic difference that can be transmitted to offspring," says Boleman. Of course, each parent transmits only half of his genes to offspring. Therefore, a bull with a weaning weight of 100 pounds more than another bull would be expected to produce 15 additional pounds per calf.

"Even though this increase seems small, considerable herd and economical improvement can be realized from the weaning weight trait," contends the Texas A&M University System specialist.

For instance, the extra 15 pounds from a better performing bull on a 40-head herd can make a lot of difference, especially when the bull is kept four years or more. With 60-cent calves, this can add up to $360 more per year or $1,440 over four years.

"Also, many producers are beginning to keep their cattle after weaning and are sending them to commercial feedlots. Improved bull performance should mean more dollars per head when feeding cattle to slaughter weight," notes Boleman.

Yearling weight of the herd bull will reflect the gaining ability of his offspring. This trait is 60 percent heritable. So a 100-pound superior bull would transmit 30 pounds (one-half of contribution) to each offspring.

A bull's worth when selling finished yearling cattle can be easily calculated. At a yearling price of 50-cents per pound, the 30 extra pounds in a 40-cow herd add up to $600 more a year and $2,400 over a four year period.

"Sire selection is one of the most important decisions that cattle producers make because a herd bull affects the beef producer's income for many years," emphasizes Boleman. "Many feel that using top quality bulls or performance tested bulls is the cheapest improvement available today. Performance testing simply identifies genetically superior individuals for specific traits. This is the basis for the genetic improvement of the herd and ultimately increasing its profit potential."

Pierce-Hanna United In Formal Ceremony

Miss Diann Pierce and Timothy Hanna were married in a formal double-ring ceremony at 7 o'clock Friday evening, June 1, 1979, in the Chapel of Northwest Baptist Church in Oklahoma City. The associate pastor, the Rev. W. L. McEver, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Pierce, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hanna, all of Oklahoma City. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. W. S. Cody and the late Mr. Cody of Bogata.

Mrs. June Hanna, grandmother of the groom, organist, presented musical selections, chosen by the couple, prior to the ceremony. She accompanied Miss Florence Fly as she sang, "Because," and "I Love you Truly." Mrs. Hanna also played the traditional wedding marches.

The altar was centered with a 45 branch Cathedral candlelabra, flanked by white columns holding Boston fern. Other altar decorations were two nine-branched candlelabras and greenery. At the center of the altar were the Trinity candles used in and at the close of the ceremony when the bride and groom lit the unity candle symbolizing their life together as one family. Candels with greenery and blue silk bows decorated the aisle to the altar where the bride was escorted by her father and given in marriage by her parents.

For her wedding she chose a long empire styled gown of bridal satin encircled at the waist with a band of alecon lace with tiers of lace extending from the waist to the hem. The bodice featured a scooped neckline and full bell sleeves cuffed with satin and lace. She wore a portrait mantilla of tulle edged in matching lace. She carried a nose gay of white and blue roses, stephanotis and baby's breath with lace streamers. Inserted in the bouquet was a lace handkerchief made by her paternal great-grandmother and given to her grandmother more than 40 years ago. It had been carried in the weddings of her mother, her sisters and her aunt.

Mrs. Timothy Hanna

Honor attendants were Miss Ellen R. Hull of Wakita, Oklahoma, who wore a blue dotted Swiss gown accented with lace and blue ribbon with a self ruffle and lace at the hem. Mrs. Kay Martin, sister of the bride, and Miss Kelly Ann Hanna, sister of the groom, both of Oklahoma City, wore identical white dotted Swiss dresses with bands of white lace beading and blue ribbon encircling the empire waist with full cap sleeves. Each wore white picture hats banded in white lace beading and blue ribbon and each carried long stemmed blue silk roses.

Kenneth Box of Oklahoma City was the bridegroom's best man. Groomsmen were Harold Russell of Chickasha, Oklahoma and Forrest Reddy of Oklahoma City. Guests were registered at the entrance of the sanctuary by Terry Hanna, sister of the groom.

Bill Martin and Forrest Reddy, both of Oklahoma City, and Harold Russell of Chickasha, ushered the guests to their seats.

The bride's parents were hosts for a reception in the church parlor following the ceremony. Tables were skirted in white silk organza, illuminated with blue lights. The bride's four-tiered pale blue cake was complimented with silver candlelabra and accessories. The groom's table was laid with gold accessories centered with a chocolate cake decorated with chocolate grapes and chocolate beige chrysanthemums.

Members of the house party were Miss Leslie Ann Cody of Deport, Texas; Mrs. Barbara Cody of Paris, Texas; Mrs. Kay Martin, Miss Kelly Hanna, Miss Terry Hanna, all of Oklahoma City; and Ellen R. Hull of Wakita, Oklahoma. Jenifer Brooks and Janie Brooks of Garland, Texas distributed rice bags.

The bride is a student at Central State University at Edmond, Oklahoma. The groom is attending Oklahoma University and is an employee of CMI in Oklahoma City where the couple will make their home.

Out of town guests attending the wedding and spending the weekend in the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Pierce were Miss Leslie Ann Cody, Deport; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Cody, Paris; Mrs. W. S. Cody, Bogata; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Brooks, Jenifer and Janie, Garland; and Mr. and Mrs. John McGowan of Cedar Creek.

Change Proposed For Free Lunch Program

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman today proposed that schools participating in the national school lunch and breakfast program have an option on the procedures used to announce income eligibility criteria.

Currently schools must notify parents of the income scales for both free and reduced price meals.

Under the proposal, when sending out the required notice to parents, schools would have the option of including the maximum income standard for reduced price meals alone or they could also include the income standard for free meals.

"The maximum income for reduced price meals is the pertinent information that parents need to know to apply for either reduced price or free meals," Foreman said.

Under the proposal, a letter might advise parents that children from a family of four with an income of $12,660 or less would be eligible to receive either reduced price or free meals. Schools would continue to make both free and reduced price income scales available to local news media.

The national school lunch and breakfast programs provide meals free or at reduced price to children based on a poverty standard issued by the secretary of agriculture that takes into account family income and size. Eligibility is determined on information provided in the parent's application.

"The new option would impose no additional administrative burden on schools. At the same time, it can reduce the public perception that the application process may encourage families to report their incomes incorrectly," Foreman said.

The proposed regulations were published in the May 25 Federal Register. Comments should be sent to Margaret Glavin, director; School Programs Division, USDA, FNS, Washington, D. C., 20290, until June 25.

Stephens-Johnson Exchange Wedding Vows

The double-ring wedding vows of Miss Patricia Lynn Stephens and Raymond C. Johnson of Dallas were solemnized in a semi-formal ceremony Saturday, June 2, 1979, at 1:00 o'clock, in their suite at the Holiday Inn in Mt. Pleasant, Texas.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Stephens of Talco and the groom is the son of Mrs. Verna Johnson of Garland.

Judge Gene Gilpin heard the couple repeat their vows before an alter flanked by two tall brass candlelabras entwined with greenery and baby's breath holding mint green candles.

When the bride was escorted to the alter and given in marriage by her father, she was wearing a gown of ivory satin with tiered skirt and featured a sweetheart neckline. She carried a bouquet of yellow and white summer flowers tied with mint green satin ribbons. The bride's fingertip length veil of illusion fell from a caplet entwined with baby's breath.

Mrs. Sally White of Houston was matron of honor. She wore a pastel blue and mint green tiered dress and carried a smaller duplication of the bride's bouquet. Dawn Sherrie White of Houston served as flower girl in a white and mint green organdy dress. Jerry Trotter of Dallas was their best man.

The bride's parents were hosts for a reception following the ceremony. Mrs. L. O. Hanks registered the guests in the bride's book with a white plumed pen.

The bride is a graduate of Rivercrest High School, attended Paris Junior College and East Texas State University. She is presently employed by the Internal Revenue in Dallas.

The bridegroom is a South Garland High School graduate and is employed by Montgomery International Elevator Service in Dallas.

Following their honeymoon in Hot Springs, Ark. the couple will reside in Dallas.

Control Over Food Donations Tightened By USDA

The knowing misuse of food which the U. S. Department of Agriculture donates to child nutrition programs is a federal offense under regulations announced today.

"This action will help us to correct serious problems that exist in accounting for the receipt and use of donated foods," said Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman.

The department will provide about $600 million worth of food this year to states for child nutrition programs. States may distribute the food directly to schools or to commercial firms that contract to process the foods for use in schools. Previously, the federal government could not ordinarily prosecute for the illegal use of donated food once title had passed to state or local governments.

The regulations carry out a provision of the child nutrition amendments enacted in November. Under that provision, both these who administer child nutrition programs and those who receive benefits are subject to federal law. Fines and prison terms are spelled out according to the amount of loss to the program in food or property. The child nutrition programs include school lunch and breakfast; summer and child care food; and food service equipment assistance.

The regulations, published in the June 5 Federal Register, became effective on that date.

False Alarm

Contrary to popular mythology, Nero didn't actually fiddle while Rome burned. The fiddle hadn't yet been invented and Nero was actually in Antium at his villa, 50 miles away.

Doctor Retires To Oyster Farming

Six years ago, when Dr. Chester W. Brown of Worcester, Mass. was almost 60 years old, he had a severe stroke and was subsequently advised to retire.

Financially, this would have proved no hardship. His three daughters were grown and disability insurance would have provided a generous income.

"But that prospect didn't appeal to me," Dr. Brown told a writer from The National Council on the Aging.

The first thing he did was bring an associate into his busy surgical practice and planned to phase himself out over the course of a year.

Although Dr. Brown's recovery was better than anyone had anticipated — he was back to work after three months — he went ahead with plans to build a house near South Bristol, Maine, where he and his wife, Toni, would move.

But once in Maine, Dr. Brown put little time in on such hobbies as woodworking, photography and gourmet cooking.

"I spent more time in a rocking chair than anywhere else," he said. "I was also 40 pounds overweight and taking 20 pills a day."

Then, by chance, he watched a boatload of divers enter the frigid Atlantic in January.

"Outside of lost treasure, I couldn't imagine what anyone would be diving for in January," Dr. Brown said. "I asked around and found they were checking on oysters they had put there in warmer weather."

Thus began Dr. Brown's second career. He talked to some neighbors who were planning to commercially cultivate oysters and soon decided to try it himself.

After a couple of marginal years, Dr. Brown's oyster farm became successful. One of his chief customers is New York's prestigious 21 Club, which currently uses 4,000 of Dr. Brown's oysters a week.

Success in the oyster business has not been easy. According to Dr. Brown he had to "study the oyster business almost as much as I did medicine."

He still considers his second career fun, however, and Mrs. Brown agrees, even though it isn't exactly what she'd dreamed retirement would be like.

"I'm what you might call the chief bottle washer," Mrs. Brown said. "I do everything from manning the boat to doing the books. The important thing, though, is that he's healthy and happy."

A quick look at Dr. Brown is testimony to that: he's lost the extra 40 pounds and no longer takes any medication outside of an aspirin now and then.

"I think the secret is that nobody should retire unless they have something to do," Dr. Brown said. "You have to have a reason for getting up in the morning and a reason to lay down at night."

HYPOTHERMIA, a drop in deep body temperature can be fatal if it is not detected and properly treated. According to the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare, even relatively cool temperatures of 60 to 65 degrees can cause hypothermia. Older persons, especially those over 75, should avoid prolonged exposure to even mildly cold temperatures, as older people are more vulnerable than most. Individuals taking medication for anxiety, depression, nervousness or nausea should consult with the physician as these drugs may hamper the body's ability to regulate temperature.

During the cold winter months, people who are susceptible to hypothermia should try not to be alone for too long and should consider having their neighbors look in on them on a regular basis.

THOUGHT FOR FOOD By GOULD CROOK

Quick Tricks

1. For quick baked potatoes — wash and cut in quarters, rub cut sides with oil, bake on foil in 425 degree oven for about twenty five minutes. Or, put potatoes in boiling salted water for 10 minutes; then bake in oven until done.
2. To mince onions quickly — peel onion; cut a slice off the top, Cut crosshatch across the top and then cut across. The onion will fall in tiny squares.
3. For a quick potato salad drain small whole canned potatoes; toss over heat to dry a little bit and slice. Now use your favorite salad dressing plus the usual ingredients such as chopped pickle, hard boiled eggs, and chopped radishes and celery.
4. To pan fry frozen hamburgers, steaks or chops, first brown on both sides then cover skillet; cook over low heat until done as you like them.
5. For low calorie flavoring for vegetables: simply season with a squeeze of lemon juice just before serving. This is very tasty on green beans, broccoli and canned yams.

BUMPER STICKER OF THE WEEK: Don't Hit Me, My Lawyer's In Jail!

The Great Motorcycle Helmet Controversy . . . Do you really need a helmet? Here's Dr. Eugene Alvarez' "scientific" proof. "Just find a blunt instrument," he says, "and hit yourself on the head. When you wake up, repeat the procedure with your motorcycle helmet on. The point should be clear enough."

What's the most dangerous country to drive through? Could be Brazil, though statistics don't tell the whole story. Brazil, with a population of less than 80 million, has over 20,000 traffic fatalities a year. That's 25.9 deaths for every 10,000 vehicles on the road . . . eight times the U.S. rate of 3.3 deaths per 10,000 vehicles. A typical European country, France, has a rate of 7.5 per 10,000.

Check your brake fluid! Bet brake fluid is something you never think about . . . unless your brakes suddenly don't work one day on the freeway. A recent study quoted in Motor Trend Magazine revealed that over seventy percent of the cars tested were either low on brake fluid or had fluid so old it wasn't fully effective. Some experts insist brake fluid should be changed at least once a year under normal driving conditions.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT! Police in Lebanon have asked camel herders to use fluorescent paint on their camels' humps in order to reduce the number of car versus camel accidents at night . . . Now if Americans could just persuade kids to paint themselves orange before riding bikes . . .

Reader's Opinion Dept. J.R. of Houston, sends this impassioned comment: ". . . automobile drivers in Texas are careless, unlearned, and disrespectful to others, and those in Houston are the worst of all. It is a common occurance to see someone turn right from a center or left lane, and vice versa . . . on the freeway, people weave from one lane to another, not being able to tolerate any car in front of them . . . More people should be encouraged to take Defensive Driving courses and heed what is taught. Especially in Houston."

Today's Youth

BY PATRICK DUDGEON

Nasty Habit?

Teenagers are smoking more despite the reduction in the number of adult smokers in the past couple of years, statistics show. Approximately 54 million Americans smoke but there are more people now, resulting in increased cigarette sales. Percentagewise, the figure has actually gone down a few points among adults.

However, teenage smoking statistics aren't quite as encouraging, according to the National Cancer Society. Previously, the problem was most predominant during the early years of high school. But recent research indicates youngsters at the age of 9 and 10 are picking up on a habit which could last a lifetime — but one that will probably be shortened.

According to one Department of Health, Education and Welfare study, the smoking trend is more prevalent among girls and is apparently the result of "rebelliousness." The study also reveals that:

—Twenty-five percent of the teenage girls who smoked said they smoked marijuana, compared with only three percent of the nonsmokers.

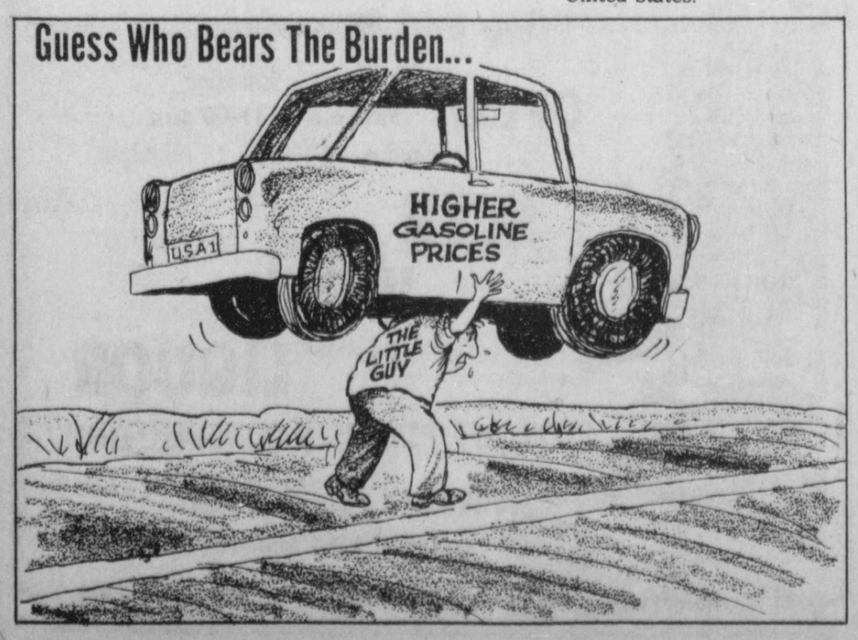

—One-third of the smokers said they drink to get drunk, compared with only four percent of the nonsmokers.

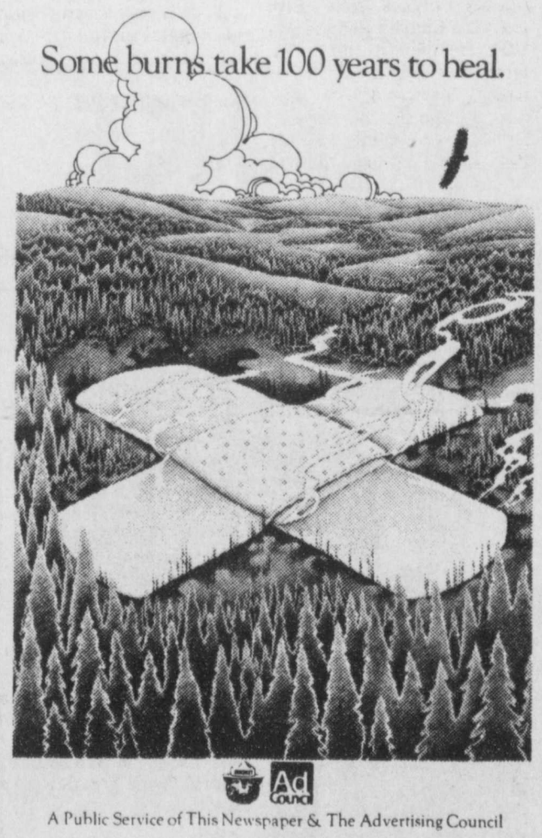

—One-third of the smokers reported they hate school, compared with 16 percent of the nonsmokers.

In addition, the study also concluded that teenagers who smoke are more apt to be C and D students and have friends who smoke.

Cats and Dogs

Approximately one million stray dogs and half that many stray cats inhabit the New York City metropolitan area. It is estimated that there are about 100 million dogs and cats in the United States. In addition, Americans probably spend more than $5 billion on their pets each year. And get this: More than 12,500 puppies are born every hour in the United States.

CONSUMER GUIDELINES

Low-Calorie

Beginning this summer, consumers can be sure what "low-calorie" means on food labels. Regulations will require foods labeled "low-calorie" that are shipped across state lines contain no more than 40 calories per serving. The label must show the number of calories, amount or protein, carbohydrate and fat in each serving, and the percentage of U.S. Recommended Daily Allowances for the seven vitamins and minerals.

Mushroom Care

Mushrooms are perishable, so plan on using them within three days of purchase. Mushrooms are best stored unwashed — and in the container and special wrap in which they are purchased. Rewrapped mushrooms have a tendency to become soft and dark — especially if washed first and tightly encased in plastic or other nonporous wrap which permits minimum air circulation.

The Good Word from the Bible

... a weekly inspirational message for today's life-styles...

Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers.
Romans 13:1

This is the advice St. Paul gave the Christians of his day about the rule of the Romans. In other words, government may be wrong, perhaps it should be changed, but it should not be changed by violence.

The change of government through revolution and bloodshed has been part of world history since time immemorial. For some people, it has almost been a way of life.

The attitude of the average citizen is the most determining factor in any government. In a democracy, the individual has the privilege — and the right — to vote for personal convictions, to support the principles of responsible government... at all levels of government.

Bogata Sunshine Club Hears Program Presented By Mrs. Holt

Mrs. R. J. Holt led the program, "Eggs, and their Nutritional Value," when the Bogata Sunshine Club met Thursday, June 7, with Mrs. Rubie Bell as hostess. "Sweet Hour of Prayer" was sung and the Club Prayer repeated in unison. Presiding was Mrs. F. P. Brumley, president. Mrs. Holt read minutes of the last meeting and it was voted to have one meeting each month during the summer.

Poems were given by Mrs. Bell and Mrs. Vera Craddock and a skit was presented by Mrs. Forrest Webster.

A slatted bread box of wood was shown by Mrs. Bell, made by her brother, Leroy Wilkinson.

Refreshments of sandwiches, pickles, pie and orange juice were served.

The next meeting will be held on July 5 with Mrs. Brumley, and Mrs. Bell as program leader.

Everybody Dreams

According to experts, there is no one who does not dream. Those who claim to have no dreams simply forget their dreams more easily than others.

Energy Checked makes hidden improvements show up as utility savings About 15 to 20 percent of your home air conditioning or heating can be lost through cracks around windows and doors. That's why the Energy Checked home has caulking and weatherstripping to help prevent this air loss. Because heating and cooling is also easily lost through glass, total window area equals only 10 percent or less of the floor area in the Energy Checked home. The Energy Checked home also features storm windows, or double-pane glass which can cut heat transfer through window panes by 40 to 50 percent. Energy efficiency in the Energy Checked home adds up to savings on your utility bill. Make sure your home is Energy Checked, the next time you build, buy, or remodel.
