ENDORSEMENT MAURTUA REPORT ATTACKED BY DELEGATES FROM COUNTRIES AT HAVANA MEETING

HAVANA, Feb. 4. (AP)—A series of international principles proclaimed by the United States as forming the basis of its policy in the western hemisphere were criticized, attacked and denounced at the Pan-American conference today by the delegates of a half score countries.

The attack which has been brewing ever since a report on the fundamental rights and duties of nations, prepared by Dr. Victor Maurtua of Peru, was published Thursday, broke with stunning suddenness today as soon as Charles Evans Hughes, head of the American delegation, had finished a speech giving the Maurtua report the full and unconditional support of the American government.

Following each other without delay in short speeches remarkable for a lack of oratorical flourishes, speaker after speaker arose to pour a greater or lesser measure of censure on the Maurtua proposal. Argentina, Mexico, Guatemala, Salvador, Santo Domingo, Honduras, Colombia and Uruguay joined with varying degrees of intensity in assailing the principles approved by the United States.

Gustavo Guerrero of Salvador, chairman of the committe on public international law where the discussion took place, abandoned the chairmanship so as to be able to participate in the debate. Sounding the keynote of the remainder of the debate he was on his feet hardly before Mr. Hughes was through speaking and delivered a speech in which he finally proposed that the recommendations of the jurists conference at Rio Janeiro be substituted for the Maurtua proposal.

Intervention Condemned

The jurist's report unconditionally condemns the intervention of one state in the internal affairs of another while the Maurtua report expounds the principle that the independence of countries is corelated with their duty not to "intervene with or violate the rights of other states."

In presenting his report, Dr. Haurtua asserted that the principles included in it contained the fundamental rights of all states which are above treaties since they do not let in the power of states to contract away. He declared that this "is an age of interdependence and solidarity among nations."

Nations Must Cooperate

HAVANA, Feb. 4 (AP)—Cuba's ambassador to Washington, Dr. Orestes Ferrara, in an eleventh hour attack tonight on critics of the Maurtua report on fundamental principles of international law and the definition of rights of states, defended the right of intervention. He flayed critics of United States policies who had maintained a continuous barrage of oratory today condemning any intervention by one state in the affairs of another.

HOME TOWN TALK

By J. G.

Substituting for B. D. D.

If this misplaced April weather continues much longer—and for all the balmy pleasantness of it, we're hoping it doesn't—fruit trees will be budding and the inevitable cold-snap that's bound to come will put a crimp in the peach prospects. You can see plenty of evidence that spring is here. There must have been upwards of a thousand kites flown in and near Wichita Falls yesterday. We noticed a few sandlot ball games. And near this office an English sparrow couple are starting housekeeping. Sparrows and fruit trees are in for a jolt.

Speaking of kites, a number of those seen lately were "store" kites, bought instead of home made. The youth of a short generation ago would have scorned to buy a kite. Today, parents would rather come across with the small change to buy one than to have little Reginald messing up the house trying to make one. Bought kites have no tails, and a raid on the rag-bag is necessary to make them air-worthy. In spite of wires and other obstructions there is still plenty of room to fly kites in Wichita Falls. The J. W. Culbertson tract is a favored spot. Some youngsters seem to have the skill necessary to get a kite into the air in sections where wires are numerous and there is little space to maneuver.

J. L. McConkey, grain man of Byers, recently came into this office with a hefty pail of homemade sausage, which was hugely enjoyed by those who partook thereof. Mr. McConkey is no slouch as a hog raiser—some of his porkers topped the Fort Worth market the other day—and he certainly is no slouch when it comes to transforming pork into country sausage. There is an art in making sausage and those who appreciate good sausage will rue the day when modern efficiency takes that manufacture away from the farm and into the factory. Much obliged, Mr. McConkey.

Between Mr. McConkey's ground hog and Archer county's capons,

Fisher of circuit court in sentencing John Beyer Jr., Janesville, Wis., self-styled prohibition investigator, convicted of manslaughter, declared today that the youth was "extremely fortunate in being found guilty only of manslaughter." Alienists for State Stand Fast on Opinion That Hickman Had No "Illusions"

HALL OF JUSTICE, LOS ANgeles, Feb. 4. (AP)—The defense cross examination of Dr. Cecil Reynolds, prosecution alienist witness, was resumed this morning at the sanity trial of William Edward Hickman.

The early opening hour of 9 o'clock and the downpour of rain apparently combined to thwart the usual crowd of trial fans. Less than half the spectators seats were filled. The long row of special seats inside the court railing, usually filled by friends of court officials and attorneys, all were vacant.

Under an involved attack by defense attorney Jerome Walsh, the witness contradicted testimony given by defense alienists. These had declared the prisoner's spinal fluid far from normal, and that he suffer-

STUDENT SETS WORLD RECORD PLANE LOOPING

ST PAUL, Minn., Feb. 4. (AP)—Gene Shank, the flying St. Paul law student, established a world record for airplane looping when he made 515 loops in 258 minutes over the St. Paul airport today.

This number exceeds by 200 loops the record of 315 aerial somersaults turned in France by Belvin W. Maynard, "the flying parson."

Taking off from the air field at 12:05 p. m., in the same plane he used in his attempt to beat Maynard's record Friday, when he was forced down by engine trouble after 137 loops, Shank climbed to an altitude of 2000 feet in five minutes to start his looping.

Dipping the nose of his plane downward, he started the swift plunge on the first great arc at 12:10 p. m. and thereafter with unceasing regularity he rolled off his loops at the rate of two a minute.

At the 510th loop, the plane's supply of 35 gallons of gasoline gave out and Shank was forced to descend.

He averaged 1.8 loops a minute for the first 215 somersaults, but when the gasoline became lighter, the plane picked up speed and swept along in swift short arcs in groups of sixes and sevens.

NON-STOP FLIGHT TO NICARAGUA BY MARINE AIRPLANE

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 4. (AP)—Lieutenant George H. Towner, U. S. M. C., and two companions, arrived in a marine corps monoplane at 4:15 p. m. from Miami, Fla.

The aviators completed the approximately 1200 mile hop from Miami in 11 hours and 42 minutes, having left here before dawn this morning, at 5:15 o'clock. This was about half an hour less than the time required for the flight over the same route and in the type Fokker monoplane made by Maj. Louis M. Bourne several weeks ago.

Word of the landing in Nicaragua was sent to the local tropical station by its agency at Managua, which placed the time of arrival there at 4:15 p. m. local time, which is more than half an hour slower than eastern standard time.

Stations of the tropical radio here and along the route kept in constant communication with the big transport plane.

Bonds for Approval.

AUSTIN, Feb. 4. (AP)—The city of Galveston Saturday presented records in a $75,000 intercoastal canal bond issue to the attorney general's department for approval. It is the first issue sent in under authority of an act for the 40th legislature, Assistant D. L. Whitehurst said.

FRENCH FLIERS MAKE NON-STOP FLIGHT AND REACH NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 4. (AP)—Dieudonne Costes and Joseph Lebrix, "flying ambassadors" of France, completed another leg of their air journey from Paris and New York when they landed at Alvin Callender field here this afternoon after a non-stop flight from Mexico City. They took off from Mexico City at 7:08 a. m. and landed here at 5:16 p. m., completing the 1100 mile hop in 10 hours and 8 minutes. It was the first non-stop flight between the two cities.

Several hundred persons, most of them from New Orleans' French quarter, were at the field to greet the intrepid airmen who have blazed an air trail between France and the United States by way of Africa, South America, Central America and Mexico.

Their journey will be resumed Tuesday morning when they take off for Washington, going by way of Pensacola, Fla., from Washington they will proceed to New York.

The fliers were greeted by Mayor Arthur J. O'Keefe of New Orleans; Maurice de Simonin, French consul general, and Andre La Fargue, local attorney. Through Mr. La Fargue, the fliers said they had a good trip with the exception of a short while just before they entered Louisina, when they bucked head winds.

When the Nungesser-Coli, the plane named from the French airmen who perished in an attempted non-stop flight from Paris to New York, was brought to the ground the crowd surged toward the fliers and the police had to hold them back from the plane while it was being wheeled across the field.

The aviators then emerged from the cockpit and after posing for photographers, were taken in tow by the reception committee and started to their hotel.

BATTERED VESSEL LIMPS INTO PORT 12 DAYS OVERDUE

PORTLAND, Maine, Feb. 4. (AP)—Battered for 25 successive days by gales of hurricane force, the big American Scantic line steamship Casper limped into port today, 12 days overdue from Gothenburg. The liner was hove to for six days, while oil was poured on the mountainous seas without effect. Her lifeboats were smashed from the davits.

Captain H. Langer, master of the heavily laden freighter, said it was the worst voyage within his experience, but no member of the crew was injured. It was necessary however, he said, to keep a sharp lookout for oncoming waves and to signal to the men in the leaking forepeak by blasts on the whistle when it was safe for them to run aft.

John A. Barr Is Badly Hurt When Struck by Truck

John A. Barr, who lives a short distance from Wichita Falls on the Iowa Park road, was seriously injured when he was struck by a truck at the intersection of Sixth and Burnett streets about 8:30 o'clock Saturday night.

Mr. Barr had just stepped out of his car and started across the street when the accident occurred. He was taken to the Wichita General hospital in a Merkle ambulance.

Attending physicans said late Saturday night that Mr. Barr was suffering from a possible fracture of the skull and a broken ankle. His condition was considered very serious.

FLIER AT KEY WEST ON SOUTH AMERICAN TRIP

KEY WEST, Fla., Feb. 4. (AP)—Captain Joseph F. Donnellan, Chicago to South American flyer, arrived here this afternoon, after flying from Miami in an hour and 45 minutes and plans to take off with the Pan-American mail and passenger plane tomorrow morning for Havana and thence to Yucatan.

MAY CONFISCATE MEXICO PROPERTY OWNED BY HEARST

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 4. (AP)—Property owned by a company in which William Randolph Hearst, American publisher, holds a majority of stock, is threatened with confiscation under the Mexican land laws.

Julio Trena, well known Mexican journalist, has filed an information with the government charging that the Bavicora Development company has failed to comply with the land laws and regulations requiring a report to be filed with the foreign office mentioning the percentage of stock owned by foreigners. The penalty for failure to file such a report is forfeiture of the property.

It is alleged that the company, situated in Chihuahua, is included in the zone along the border barred to foreign ownership of agricultural properties and that Hearst owns a majority of stock in the company.

It is not believed here, however, that the government will take drastic action as the secretary of agriculture recently declared that the government did not intend to confiscate the Hearst properties in Mexico as a retaliation for the campaign of his publications against the government.

SENATORS ROUSED OVER INTERFERENCE BY COURT

Hearing Tuesday to Decide if Stewart Must Pay Penalty For Defying Probers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. (AP)—Facing summary punishment by the senate for his defiance of its oil committee Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, took his case to court today and obtained his release from arrest on a writ of habeas corpus.

With the hour of noon, the time set for his appearance before the senate bar almost at hand, the oil magnate threw his legal forces into the fray and they emerged from the chambers of Justice Bailey of the District of Columbia supreme court with an order which called on senate sergeant-at-arms to release Stewart, who was placed under bond of $1000 and ordered to appear again next Tuesday. At that time arguments will be heard as to whether he shall retain his liberty.

Developments Are Swift

Coincident with the swift movements in the oil case downtown the senate oil committee sought to obtain from W. S. Fitzpatrick, president of the Prairie Oil & Gas company, evidence of the disposition of the profits of the Continental Trading company of Canada, which Stewart had risked jail to withhold.

LLANO, Texas, Feb. 4. (AP)—A special grand jury here has returned 26 additional indictments in connection with the operations of an alleged automobile theft combination investigated by Ranger Captain Frank Hamer, it was revealed today.

YOUTH ARRESTED AS BURGLAR SAYS HE IS DESERTER

The confession of an 18-year-old youth surprised by Patrolman Austin early Saturday in the act of burglarizing the W. S. Auto Supply company store at 617 Indiana avenue that he is a deserter from the U. S. army will cause him to be surrendered to military authorities, according to Sam B. Spence, assistant district attorney.

The youth signed a confession to the charge of burglary filed against him here.

He declared that he enlisted in the army at Dallas and deserted in San Antonio a few weeks later.

The youth, after entering the store through a skylight, surrendered after Mr. Austin had fired two shots into the air.

TWO WOMEN INJURED ON FORT WORTH PIKE

DALLAS, Feb. 4. (AP)—Mrs. V. R. Breitharpt, 2326 Hillcrest avenue, Fort Worth, and Mrs. Elizabeth Beech of the same address were injured in an automobile accident on the Fort Worth pike today. They were brought to a Dallas hospital where Mrs. Breitharpt's leg had to be amputated.

They were on their way to Fort Worth with Mr. Breitharpt and had stopped at a roadside stand. Another machine was said to have hit their car from the rear.

SECRETARY OF STATE ADVISES COMMITTEE AMERICA READY TO PROHIBIT THEIR USE ENTIRELY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. (AP)—Secretary Kellogg today advised the house foreign affairs committee that the American government would be "willing to sign a treaty with all powers of the world prohibiting the use of submarines entirely."

The secretary's views were set forth in a letter to Chairman Porter in response to a request for an expression on a resolution by Representative Frothingham, Republican, Massachusetts, to prohibit the construction of submarines.

"There is no objection to the resolution," the secretary said, "provided it expresses the opinion of congress that submarines be abolished and their construction prohibited by all the nations of the world.

"Of course, it would be impossible for one country to abolish submarines and leave any other country free to operate and build them. The United States would be willing to sign a treaty with all the powers of the world prohibiting the use of submarines entirely."

After a study of the resolution, Mr. Kellogg recommended that it read as follows:

"That it is the opinion of the congress of the United States that all nations of the world should unite in prohibiting the use of submarines and discontinuing the construction thereof in every country. That the government of the United States continue to use efforts to bring about these results."

The resolution will be taken up next week by the committee.

Secretary Kellogg emphasized, however, that while the Washington government was ready to sign such an agreement, it would be impossible for one country to abolish submarines and leave other nations free to operate and build them. The resolution, which the secretary endorsed, would provide that the United States "continue to use efforts to bring about the discontinuance of this type of vessel."

Chairman Butler of the house naval committe, was called in by the foreign affairs group for consultation, and agreed that the submarine could be dispensed with only by the agreement of all powers. He touched upon the administration's $740,000,000 new warship building program, saying that it proposed construction of 32 new submarines.

But Butler added that the navy department's total construction plan for a 20-year period would approximate $3,000,000,000, and Porter said that he regarded this as "cheap" insurance for a nation as wealthy as the United States. The foreign affairs committee head contended that the United States must build submarines as long as any other country did.

Representative Frothingham, Republican, Massachusetts, author of the resolution, said the world war had demonstrated that the submarine was an inhuman weapon and that the S-4 disaster showed that its use in peace was hazardous.

CITY OFFICERS SEIZE WHISKEY AND CAR AND ARREST MAN SATURDAY

Jim Glenn, night captain, and Noah Daves, plainclothes officer, seized a half-gallon jar of whiskey and a roadster and arrested one man here late Saturday afternoon.

The prisoner was being held at police headquarters Saturday night and will be turned over to federal authorities Sunday, Captain Glenn said.

Levine Refuses to Cite Reason for Having Plane's Barograph Sealed Prior to Start on Flight to Cuba

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Feb. 4. (AP) The proposed flight of Charles A. Levine's monoplane Columbia from New York to Havana with Miss Mabel Boll as a passenger, has been postponed for one or two days, Pilot Wilmer Stultz announced tonight after a conference with Levine and Dr. James H. Kimball of the weather bureau.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Feb. 4. (AP)—Charles A. Levine, failed to get off on a projected flight to Havana today, but planned to start with his monoplane Columbia, of transatlantic fame at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Levine said definitely that he would fly to Havana but would not explain why he had loaded the plane with enough gasoline for a 4000-mile flight, while Havana is but 1400 miles away, and speculation was rife. Also he declined to explain why David H. Strother of the National Aeronautical association, was present to seal the barograph, which is done ordinarily for the purpose of establishing record flights.

Wilmer Stultz, the Columbia's pilot, arrived at the field in the early morning, and the plane was prepared for a take-off as soon as there was enough daylight, but Levine and Miss Mabel Boll, "queen of diamonds" who plans to be a passenger on the flight, failed to appear until nearly mid-afternoon. weather conditions had been ideal

Moody Hears Strange Story in Confession Of Former Wichitan

AUSTIN, Feb. 4. (AP)—Depicting himself as a savior of the dead czar's daughter, victim of revolution and unfaltering loyalty to the last Russian dynasty, a man calling himself Nicholas Trotzsky and claiming kinship with the deposed Leon Trotzsky of soviet fame, unfolded a strange romantic story and a confession to Governor Moody Saturday.

Caught up by police here on "hot check" charges in Wichita Falls and for other alleged peculations in Shreveport, La., and Ponca City, Okla., "Trotzsky," who first called himself Dr. Bob Lukan, in Moody's words practically convinced the executive that his story was true.

Officers said traceable portions of the Russian's explanation were verified.

Trotzsky or Lukan had been allowed use of the city hospital clinic here for several days before his arrest. The officials believe that he is skilled in medicine, because he performed seven surgical operations within about 10 days.

He admitted, Moody said, that he gave checks in excess of his balance at Wichita Falls, but declared he violated no law in Shreveport.

The prisoner told the governor that he was a Cossack, attached for medical service in the imperial Russian army.

He claimed to have been forced to pronounce the Czar Nicholas and members of his family dead, after they had been shot down by a firing squad.

"Trotzsky" said he witnessed the executions and held an instrument

100,000 Cheer Lindbergh as Daring Argonant of Air Brings Down Plane Safely at Dominican Capital City

The American air hero, now steadily drawing nearer to the end of his great good will flight that has carried him to the Central American states and around the curve of the Antilles which border the Caribbean, came to earth at 2:25 o'clock this afternoon.

His next hop will carry him to Port-Au-Prince, Haiti, and thence will fly to the Pan-American conference at Havana. Then he will make a bee line for home in a non-stop flight to St. Louis.

Although as far as the colonel was concerned his birthday was just another good day for flying, today was one of tremendous interest to the inhabitants of the Dominican republic. Hundreds of automobiles were lined up at the landing field and the thousands of spectators massed about the filer giving him a tremendous ovation.

President Vasquez was on hand to receive the colonel and the various ministers, diplomats, consuls and military figures were waiting to greet him.

MOODY HEARS STRANGE STORY

Picking up his story after the execution, the Russian declared he found the youngest daughter of the emperor only slightly wounded; that he crept from the barracks to her during the night while her slain relatives lay neglected in a pool of blood, killed the guard, fitted his uniform on the princess after cutting her hair, stole a horse and traveled by night to reach neutral territory and finally was separated from her in Liverpool, England, having last heard of her, he said, when she reputedly was in Australia.

"Trotsky," still possessing a Cossack uniform, came to Moody in an effort to obtain aid in the event federal authorities seek to deport him for violation of immigration laws.

No extradition papers have come for him, but a federal complaint claims he stole an automobile in Ponca City, and the charge in Shreveport is embezzlement, Chief of Police J. N. Littlepage said.

Moody was touched by the account. He said it "rolled back the years" and reminded him of experiences as district attorney.

Brought before United States Commissioner W. Trenckmann late Saturday afternoon Trotzsky waived a preliminary hearing and pleaded guilty to illegally transporting an automobile from one state to another, as charged in the complaint. Bond was set at $5000, which the defendant was unable to make. After the hearing he was turned over to the sheriff's office and placed in the county jail.

PRESIDENT SPEAKER DEDICATE NEW CLUB

with the conduct of international relations and suggested that when any of the press undertakes to exert its influence in behalf of foreign interests "the candor of the situation would be greatly increased if their foreign connections were publicly disclosed."

Foreign interests, the president said, have the privilege of being represented in the United States and their right to fair treatment is acknowledged.

"But," he said, "when foreign governments are represented here, their agents are required to come publicly accredited and be publicly received.

"For generations our law has forbidden our own citizens entering into any negotiations with a foreign government concerning its relations with our own government. Such negotiations can only be carried on under the direction of the president."

Publicity Is Safeguard.

The president reiterated his belief that one of the greatest safeguards of official integrity is publicity and while this should not extend to "an espionage" of the personal and private action of government officials, it does concern their public conduct.

"All those who have interests which may be affected by governmental action should have the privilege of employing representatives to present their cause and defend their rights," he continued.

"Nobody questions this on the judicial side, but those who are so engaged are required to be licensed and their appearance before such tribunals is a matter of court record. As in the case of the federal government those who are analogously employed in legislative and departmental matters are not required to make a like disclosure of the interests which they undertake to serve, it is necessary to depend on the press for such information."

As time goes on, Mr. Coolidge said, "the spirit of mankind," is more and more demanding that government and society be conducted under the laws of truth, and he cautioned that those who forget that percept "are bound for a moral explosion."

Agency of Prevention.

"Publicity," he said, "is not only the main agency of reform, it is likewise the main agency of prevention. In its true function it is not the voice of the individual reporter or editor, but the voice of public expression. If represents the thought, the hope, the aspirations and the faith of the people."

The press, however, should not only be fair, Mr. Coolidge declared, but it should remember in its criticism that there is a need for discrimination. Constant attack upon the administration of public affairs, the operation of commercial enterprises, the conduct of social life and the fomenting of class distinction and jealousies, he said, disintegrate the spirit of patriotism.

"There is always need for criticism," the president declared, "but there is likewise need for discrimination. There is requirement for justice and truth.

"Constantly to portray the failures and the delinquents is grossly to mislead the public. It breeds an unwarranted spirit of cynicism. Life is made up of the successful and the worthy. In any candid representation of current conditions they have the first claim to attention. In the effort of the press to destroy vice, it ought not to neglect virtue."

Symbol of Development

Turning to a description of the new press building, the president said it was a symbol of the development of the whole United States.

"The old, the outworn, the poorly adapted, has been discarded and removed to make place for the new and the modern," he said. "It represents an increase in power, not by any means limitless, but very vast. The process has transformed our press club into a great business institution.

"Something analogous to this has taken place in the journalism of our country. The press itself, by the very force of circumstances, in order to survive has been changed from an organization of partisan and personal opinion into a very great commercial organization. It has become much more important, in fact indispensable, to the business enterprise of the country, but appears to have lost very much of its power as a director of public thought. There are so many other avenues of information that people are much less dependent than formerly upon the press for their knowledge of men and of affairs.

"Now that the transition has been made through various consolidations, and through the elimination of the unsuccessful, the journalism of the United States has on the whole established itself according to the new standards upon a profitable financial basis. It ought to undertake to recapture the dominant position it formerly held as a distributor of current information and a director of public opinion. It ought to contest with our universities as an influence for education and match the pulpit in its support of high moral standards."

FRENCH FLIERS AT NEW ORLEANS

vealed they had tentatively decided upon an air tour of the United States, visiting all principal cities and were holding in abeyance their original plan to make the last leg of their hop a non-stop New York-to-Paris flight. They said a definite decision would be reached with their arrival in New York and would depend largely on weather conditions.

The most troublesome part of their journey today was in flying from Mexico City to Tampico, they said, due to low hanging clouds, which forced them down to a low altitude. After passing Tampico they found fairly good flying weather until after they had entered Louisiana from Texas, where they encountered head winds. The worst stretch of their entire journey was between Buenos Aires and Rio de Janeiro, due to bad weather. Their flight across the South Atlantic from St. Louis, Senegal, to Port Natal, the first in history, and made in 16 hours, was without incident, they said.

The fliers praised highly their two-seated biplane. Since the departure from Paris on October 10, the Nungesser-Coli has been in the air a total of 227 hours. The plane had flown 45,000 miles before starting in the tour.

Costes and Lebrix emphasized the purpose of their tour as one for perpetuating friendly relations between France and the Americas and promoting aviation.

They expressed deep appreciation for receptions accorded them at every stop and expressed great admiration for American fliers, especially Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

HICKMAN IS SANE SAYS STATE EXPERT

ed a form of meningitis. The state's witness declared the prisoner showed not the slightest symptom of meningitis, did not ever complain of any of the pains considered as such symptoms.

The witness admitted he did not try to take a spinal puncture to determine this but asserted he agreed with the jail physician that the jail was not a proper or safe place for permitting such operation.

Hickman Under Observation.

The witness admitted under Walsh's attack that he had not attempted to determine by direct questioning if Hickman was ruled by asserted "delusions of divine guidance." He explained that direct questioning and suggestion was the most "impossible method of obtaining the truth."

Questioned further, the witness said he ascertained that such delusions were not affecting the youth. By "watchful waiting," he said, he found them to be absolutely absent. He added that he had been informed that one of the "defense alienists was overheard deliberately coaching Hickman in this 'divine guidance' delusion."

Walsh took up the entire first court hour hammering at the testimony of the witness. Many of the questions Dr. Reynolds asserted were so vaguely or poorly stated that they "could not be answered in any manner."

No trace of Illusion.

The witness reiterated his testimony that he found in the prisoner "not the slightest trace of any illusion or hallucination."

Dr. Paul E. Bowers of Los Angeles the next state's witness, described himself as a surgeon, specializing in diseases of the brain and nervous system, and a professor on these subjects at Loyola college. He testified that after making a thorough examination of the defendant, talking with and questioning him on four occasions, and observing his daily conduct during the trial, he "would say that he was sane."

Bowers testified the prisoner had no organic or nervous disease whatever, and that the physical examination proved him to be entirely normal in health.

Denial that divine providence had directed his kidnaping and killing of Marian Parker was made by Hickman to Dr. Bowers, the latter testified. He quoted Hickman as commenting it "wouldn't have been a very kind providence" if the crime had been so directed, the witness said.

Hickman Knew "Right"

This was brought out in attempting to determine if Hickman was ruled by delusions and that Hickman himself declared he was not insane.

Evidence that Hickman knew right from wrong was declared by Dr. Bowers to have been instanced in reply to his questioning on love and marriage. He testified Hickman said people get married because they loved each other and to care for a family.

"Couldn't they love and have a family without marriage?"

Hickman replied: "Yes, but that would be contrary to law and the rules of society." Bowers testified he found no hallucinations, and no true delusions, but conclusive evidence of an attempt to create the possession of delusions.

Admission was made by the witness that trial testimony of Hickman's family history "indicated psychopathic parents" and a "bad heredity," which often constitutes a predisposition to insanity."

Alienist Is Grilled.

The testimony was drawn under cross examination. Bowers added that it did not necessarily result in any insanity. He cited medical proof and asylum records showing that children of a sane father and insane mother are not necessarily insane.

Hickman was stripped to his waist in the courtroom so that the witness might demonstrate for the defense and jury that his skin was not in the diseased condition which is indicated by "skin writing."

Dr. Bowers then drew with his thumb nail, a large letter "H" on Hickman's chest and back.

He had testified that if the disease was present the red marks drawn would remain over three minutes.

The defense contended the lines were observable after that period, and Dr. Bowers admitted there then was present slight indication of a "diffused" skin-writing condition. Under defense attack on his previous testimony, the witness refused to admit that he had been in error.

No Proof of Disease

He declared the "diffused" condition was not proof of the diseased condition, as the marks were not remaining in marked or "raised" evidence. He said the three-minute test merely indicated a temporary condition, possibly from eating something that disagreed. He cited the common disease of "hives," resulting from improper eating, as a condition under which skin-writing could be performed.

The remainder of the Saturday morning session saw the defense continuing to lay down a persistent barrage of questions in attack upon Dr. Bower's testimony. The attack centered upon medical phases of the prisoner's condition and assailed the manner in which the witness had arrived at his diagnosis of sanity in the case of the defendant. The witness, apparently in some exasperation, was both protesting and answering the defense attack when adjournment of the trial to 9:30 o'clock Monday was ordered.

we have become better acquainted with two of this section's products, and we are willing to improve on that acquaintance still further. Archer City's Chamber of Commerce held its capon banquet last Thursday night. Capon is to chicken what tenderloin steak is to chuck roast. More tender, more tasty, better in every way. D. F. Daub, proprietor of the farm that the capons came from, gave some interesting facts and figures about caponizing, and made it hard to understand why more poultry-raisers do not adopt the practice. It seems to us to offer a very profitable way of getting rid of the cockerels, even on the poultry farms where little attention is given to the meat end of the industry.

It was our first visit to Archer City in two or three years and the appearance of that community has certainly changed since our last previous trip there. Paved streets certainly make a big difference in a community's appearance; the difference goes further than the mere substitution of a concrete street for a mud-and-dust one. It is reflected in the stores and the homes and in the spirit of the people. We may expect to see our neighbor to the south make significant further progress. It isn't in our province to offer advice, but we firmly believe that Archer county will make a big mistake if it fails to employ an agricultural agent.

Wichita Falls again showed its appreciation of high class musical talent when it greeted John McCormack with a packed house Friday night. Not all popular singers are artists. Mr. McCormack undoubtedly is one. If any special proof of this had been required, it would have been furnished when he gave the Italian selection. To all intents and purposes, it was an Italian that was singing. It is told that McCormack, in his younger days, had a part in a grand opera company which performed in Italy, and that his audiences never discovered that he was not of their country.

The next big event on the local entertainment calendar is of course the grand opera. We hope to see audiences each night as great as that of Friday night, and we may confidently expect to see audiences as well pleased as that of Friday.

One of the proposed charter amendments would provide the public library with a substantial increase in revenue and enable it to become still more useful. As admirably as it has been conducted and as popular as it has become, it is still far below the standard for cities of this size. That standard seems to be, one book for each resident, and one dollar of annual revenue for each resident. That would mean $80,000 annual revenue and 60,000 volumes on hand, in Wichita Falls. The proposed increase would not bring the library to such a standard, but it would bring it appreciably nearer to it. We hope that a way may be found to take care of our library in a better way.

of international cooperation," he said.

"In the American continent especially," he continued, "international cooperation has a special physiognomy. It is more intense than in the rest of the world. It is based, however on 'internal sovereignty and the external independence of nations."

Those countries which are most jealous of their independence, he added, should be keenest for international cooperation, solidarity and respect for law.

Mr. Hughes, in his address on the report expressed unqualified approval of the principles expressed in it, lauding them as a forceful expression of the collective duties of nations. He expressed the opinion that the declaration of principles expounded by Dr. Maurtua were a "magna charta of the western hemisphere" and that they set forth the fundamental principles controlling the policies of this hemisphere.

Report Is Attacked

Mr. Hughes had scarcely sat down when Senor Guerrero opened the attack against the Maurtua report, saying that it has ignored completely the Rio Janeiro jurists' recommendations. These recommendations contain a specific article reading "no state may intervene in the internal affairs of another."

Senor Honorio Puerrredon of Argentina declared that the sovereignty of states consisting of "absolute rights to entire internal autonomy and complete external independence" must be consecrated in law and practiced in fact or "international juridicial harmony no longer exists."

Diplomatic or armed intervention, permanent or temporary, is an attempt against the independence of states without finding its justification in the duty of protecting the rights of nationals since the same right could not be exercised in their turn by weak countries should their subjects suffer from conclusions in strong countries," he said.

Aquiles Elordui, Mexican delegate, continuing the general attack against the Maurtua report, charged that the proposed code did not guarantee the security of small nations while strong countries by virtue of their strength, need no guarantees.

STEWART RELEASED BY RULING OF COURT

his refusal to answer questions. Fitzpatrick gave the committee its first clue as to the profit of the Continental, which bought American oil for $1.50 a barrel and sold it back to Stewart and Harry F. Sinclair's companies for $1.75.

The witness said James E. O'Neil, who fled to Europe after the oil scandal broke, had turned over to his company $590,000 of Continental Liberty bonds in 1925, but that O'Neil said he knew nothing of Teapot Dome, whose lease to Sinclair started the present investigation. O'Neil was a former president of the Prairie. O'Neil felt the profits were due the Prairie, he said.

Stewart Decides Tardily

Stewart's decision to go before the courts with his case came too late in the morning after a number of Washington attorneys had been called into his hotel suite to confer with his regular legal staff. Bulky brief cases were carried up and down the halls of the Willard hotel as the lines of battle were formed and when the decision finally was reached only a few minutes were required to take the case before Justice Bailey, where it was disposed of in quick time.

The success of Stewart in obtaining the writ was a distinct surprise in the senate, so sure were those interested in the case there that the oil man would be on hand at noon that all of the precedents had been placed on hand so that there would be no slip in procedure in this unusual case. A chair even had been placed for the prisoner.

Senate Fans Disappointed

The senate galleries were crowded long before the time for convening and the sudden turn in affairs sent many away disappointed.

The $1000 bond of Stewart, himself reputed to be a millionaire, was signed by Robert F. Fleming Jr., president of the Riggs National bank, one of the largest financial institutions in the East.

When official word of the writ was served on the senate by David S. Barry, the sergeant-at-arms, the senate directed that its resolution ordering his arrest be sent to the district attorney for appropriate action in connection with the habeas corpus petition.

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, asked the senate to employ counsel to represent it in the proceedings and this resolution was adopted. Walsh also offered a resolution directing that the report from the public lands committee on which Stewart's arrest was ordered, be sent to the district attorney by the vice president. This was done without debate.

Senator Walsh said that Stewart's offense was a punishable one and that he now was not prepared to excuse the oil magnate if he should agree to testify.

Senate Dignity Ruffled

"I think the time has come when the dignity of the senate ought to be recognized and appreciated," he declared, adding that it was "no trifling affair to defy" the authority of the senate.

Senator Heflin, Democrat, Alabama, demanded that Stewart be put in prison, while Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, regretted the prospect of delay in the courts in Stewart's case, adding that such delays were "more than regrettable."

"It has become a scandal," he added.

The senate tension finally was relieved when Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, asked for action on the interior department appropriation bill, and work was resumed on that document.

In his plea to the court, Stewart claimed his detention was unlawful because the questions propounded to him by the senate oil committee were beyond the jurisdiction of the senate and constituted an inquiry into the private affairs of himself and other persons. His counsel set forth that the queries were not pertinent to any legislation pending in congress, but were immaterial and called for hearsay evidence. They also challenged the power of the committee to swear and interrogate on the subject at issue.

The weight of the blow caused by the release of Robert W. Stewart, on a writ of habeas corpus today weighed heavily on the senate, where some of the lawyers said it might be even several years before Stewart was returned to the custody of that branch of congress.

Courts Must Decide

These lawyers held that the District of Columbia supreme court must decide whether the questions propounded to the oil man were designed to elicit information about matters on which congress must legislate. After the decision on that, they said, appeals were in order by Stewart to the higher courts.

Although Stewart gained his liberty today, it was pointed out that under the usual procedure in such a case the district attorney might order his arrest when the senate proceedings are certified to his office, and take the case before the grand jury. Even then Stewart would be entitled to bail, however. District Attorney Gordon was unwilling to forecast his course in this regard.

AIR MAIL PLANES START FOR SOUTH TEXAS ON MONDAY

FORT WORTH WILL BE HUB OF AIR LINES TO SOUTH AND CENTRAL TEXAS

FIVE REGULAR PILOTS NAMED FOR SERVICE

Emergency Pilots Are Stationed at San Antonio and Houston With Fast Planes

FORT WORTH, Feb. 4. (AP)—So complete are arrangements for inauguration of air mail service between Fort Worth and South and Central Texas points that the first consignment of mail and express packages will hop off at 8:15 Monday morning with no more ado than the pulling of a trigger, officials of the Texas Air Transport, Inc., announced.

The service will be instituted after a city-wide celebration at the municipal airport Sunday afternoon.

The final detail in arrangements for initiating the service—selection of a pilot from the staff of five to make the inaugural trip South—will be attended to in conference with T. A. T. officials and Tom Hardin, chief pilot, today.

The staff announced by Temple Bowen, vice president and general manager of the T. A. T. includes five regular pilots to make their headquarters at Fort Worth and two emergency pilots, one to be stationed at Houston and the other at San Antonio.

Pilots Are Designated

Regular pilots, in addition to Hardin are L. S. Andrews, Hugh Brewster, Charles Pedley and Jerry Marshall. V. W. Barnette will be stationed in Houston and W. A. Moores in San Antonio as emergency pilots. All are transport licensed pilots, having as qualifications extensive aerial experience.

The fleet of four Pitcairn mail wing and two Swallow planes, groomed for inauguration of service over the two South Texas air mail routes, is a modern, complete and well equipped as could be found, Bowen said. The planes are designed especially for transporting air mail. Since it was decided to postpone inauguration of passenger service over the two routes for some time, no provision is made for carrying passengers in the planes.

The planes are equipped with Wright whirlwind motors and with all the instruments and devices for safe flying. Landing lights and parachute flares will insure safety in emergency landings. All the pilots will wear parachutes. Wheel brakes, a comparative innovation in airplane equipment, will provide for quick stopping in landing.

The four Pitcairn planes will be quartered at Fort Worth, while the Swallow machines will be available for use in emergency by pilots at Houston and San Antonio.

Flying of each pilot will be cut to an average by a rotating system in which each aviator works two days and is off two days. Flying during the two work days will average 10 or 11 hours.

Big Cargo of Mail

Demand for special envelopes designed for the initial flight indicates that a gratifying cargo of mail will be ready for delivery over the two routes Monday morning, Bowen said. The envelopes show an air plane view of Fort Worth and are marked with the words, "first air mail flight," "commercial air mail," and "route 22," or "route 21."

The South Texas air mail lines are to be operated by a Fort Worth organization incorporated after a group of local business men had been awarded the air mail contract last summer. Directors of the organization are R. C. Bowen, Temple Bowen, F. G. Kippitt, John Hancock and Seth Barwise.

$80,000 FOR HIS DISCOVERY

Formula for Stomach Medicine Brings Large Sum

This is E. M. Gordon, widely known Dallas, Texas, pharmacist, who spent twenty years developing "Gordon's," an Internal Antiseptic for the stomach and bowels, for which he received $80,000 for the rights to the secret process of compounding.

"The greatest obstacle to the successful treatment of stomach troubles," said Mr. Gordon, "was fermentation (souring of food matter in the stomach and bowels), which inflames and irritates these organs and produces gas that causes much distress. Fermentation can be stopped only with an antiseptic."

"Gordon's goes right to the seat of the trouble, as it exercises a distinctly antiseptic as well as a digestive effect. It stops and prevents fermentation, soothes and heals any irritated or inflamed condition and will bring quick relief in cases of gas, dyspepsia, heartburn, bloating after meals, excess acid, bad breath, constipation, sick headache, nervousness, when caused by faulty digestion, tone up the digestive organs and stimulate the stomach and bowels to their normal functions. A few doses will convince you. Sold by good druggists. $1.80 per bottle of sixty-four doses—less than three cents a dose. —Adv.

Wichitans Plan Attend National Chest Conference

Members of the directorate and executive staff of the Wichita Falls community chest are greatly interested in the national conference on community responsibility for human welfare which will be held at the Mayflower hotel in Washington, D. C., Monday and Tuesday, February 20 and 21, under the auspices of a national citizens' committee appointed by the Association of Community Chests and Councils. The conference will be the first of its kind arranged and carried out by laymen of American business and professions to consider the phenomenal results of the community chest and council movement in the United States during the past 12 years, and to discuss current problems and next steps in community development generally.

Mayor R. E. Shepherd, chairman of the welfare board, which is the administrative board of the Wichita Falls community chest, stated today that the program for the Washington meeting is rapidly taking shape and that this city will be represented by Messrs. W. D. Cline, Harry Hines, the mayor, Mrs. Frank Kell, Mrs. C. R. Hartsook, Mrs. J. A. Kemp, and Harry Gray, or at least invitations will be sent them asking that they be present.

Bridegroom of Week Ends Life "Unloaded" Gun

HOUSTON, Feb. 4. (AP)—Mrs. Mable Chamberlain, 22, bride of a week, today laid aside her wedding clothes for a mourning dress for her husband, W. F. Chamberlain, 25, cotton classer, who pointer a newly purchased pistol at his temple and pulled the trigger at their home here last night under the impression that the weapon was unloaded.

"If you didn't love me, I'd shoot myself," Mrs. Chamberlain quoted him as having said, teasingly. "He raised the gun to his temple and it went off," she said. He died 40 minutes later at a hospital.

Records in Oil Contempt Trial Costly to Keep

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. (AP)—Copies of the record of the criminal contempt proceedings against Harry F. Sinclair and associates had cost the government $5,862 as the case today ended its second month. The record this far has amounted to more than 1,675,000 words, double that for the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy case, out of which the contempt proceedings grew.

The record in this jurisdiction is taken by a firm of public stenographers, as the law does not provide for a court stenographer. In addition, to the cost to the government for four copies of the record each day, counsel for the defendants buys a copy.

AUSTIN, Feb. 4. (AP)—The state highway fund was increased by $4,465,430.79 by receipts during January, but paid out only $1,605,280 during the month, State Treasurer W. Gregory Hatcher reported Saturday.

Payments from the general revenue fund, however, exceeded the receipts, the disbursements totaling $4,267,870.58 and the amount taken in $4,269,719.16. The general revenue fund will suffer depression, Mr. Hatcher said, until more January taxes are received from the county collectors whom he is urging to remit as soon as possible instead of waiting until the legal limit of February 25.

January receipts in the available school fund were $2,421,606, with only $149,043 paid out.

The University of Texas building fund received $76,821, representing interest from investments made with oil royalties.

Receipts for the month in all funds totaled $12,259,695 and the funds paid out $6,524,093.

MEXICAN EDITOR "PANS" PAN-AMERICAN DELEGATE

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 4. It is necessary, the editorial says, to make the pan-American conference hear the voice of protest raised throughout this continent against Maurtua's recommendations.

BANANA INDUSTRY GETS INGREASE OF 800 PER CENT

Shipments in 1923 were 869,716 bunches; last year 2,773,792 bunches were exported principally to the Pacific and Atlantic seaboards.

$5000 AWARDED WIDOW OF MAN KILLED BY CAR

Mrs. Arietta Arbuckle was awarded judgment of $5000 Friday afternoon by verdict of a jury in the 78th district court before which her suit was tried against the Wichita Falls Traction company growing out of the death of her husband under the wheels of a street car last June 4.

The judgment was said to be the first to be returned against the street car company in a contested damage suit in more than five years. It was indicated that an appeal will be taken from the district court should a new trial be denied. The case had been tried once before, resulting in a disagreed jury.

The trial of the case developed as its chief issue, unusual in damage suits, the contention on Mrs. Arbuckle's behalf the operator of the street car failed to bring the car to a stop in time after having discovered that her husband was lying beside the tracks. The contention, somewhat intricate in its details, was developed by Arch Dawson and Sam Holliday, members of the local law firm of Kenley, Dawson and Holliday, attorneys for Mrs. Arbuckle.

According to evidence in the case, Mr. Arbuckle had gone to sleep beside the tracks on the Wichita Lake line while waiting for a car at the Rosemont cemetery crossing on the night of June 4. Attorneys for Mrs. Arbuckle conceded that his going to sleep constituted an act of negligence which would have cleared the traction company of liability had all efforts been made to bring the car to a stop immediately after the operator had seen the man lying beside the tracks. The defense contended that all such efforts were made. The question was submitted as a special issue to the jury, which answered favorably to Mrs. Arbuckle.

Herbert Hoover for President Club In Wichita Falls to Be Organized At Meeting Set for Tuesday Night

A call for a meeting of supporters of Herbert Hoover was issued Saturday, to be held Tuesday evening in the 78th district court room at the courthouse for the purpose of forming a Hoover for president club. The meeting will be called to order at 7:30 p. m.

Those sponsoring the movement were named as including Roy B. Jones, O. R. Hartt, N. H. Martin, J. T. Harrell, Oral Jones, Grover Bullington, Harwood Stacy, W. C. Witcher, Orville Bullington, J. W. Culbertson, Fred Couper, L. V. Hull, Wayland Sanford, M. E. Peters, Walter Curlee, W. J. Morgareidge and John B. King.

The formal call for the meeting as announced by Mr. Stacy follows:

"On next Tuesday evening, February 7, at 7:30 o'clock in the 78th district courtroom at the courthouse there will be organized a Herbert Hoover for president club of Wichita Falls, which club will assist in the movement, to make Herbert Hoover the Republican nominee for president. All men and women in sympathy with the movement and willing to help in his nomination and election are urged to be present. Officers will be elected, committees appointed and the purposes and aims of the organization will be further explained. The local club will be affiliated with the associated Hoover clubs of Texas, which has state headquarters at Dallas. The object is to have a solid Hoover delegation from Texas.

"Herbert Hoover has endeared himself to the people of the nation generally by his superlative ability, training, experience and character. His Mississippi flood prevention work alone has added greatly to the esteem in which the South holds him. Hoover is the outstanding leader of the Republicans and his nomination will mean that, for once, wise politics and constructive statesmanship will walk hand in hand.

"R. B. Creager of Brownsville, a native Texan, was the first southerner to announce for Hoover. He had the vision and courage to start what promises to become a stampede for Hoover for president. Hoover's ability and character are such that he will appeal very strongly to all southerners, regardless of former political affiliations. All persons, no matter what their previous party affiliations, who will in good faith work for Hoover, are asked to be present."

Women particularly are urged to be present at the meeting, according to Mr. Stacy. Mrs. P. A. Welty, woman's Republican chairman for the county and congressional district, has active supervision of the women's divisions of the work.

"Practically every state executive committee that has had a meeting since Mr. Hoover allowed his name to be considered has endorsed him," Mr. Stacy said. "Strong indications are that if Herbert Hoover is not nominated on the first ballot, he will be nominated before many ballots have been taken at the Kansas City convention.

"The executive committees of the following states have endorsed him: Texas, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana, New Jersey, New Hampshire, Wyoming, Colorado and California. Henry Ford and Thomas A. Edison are two prominent independents who have announced their support of Hoover. Seventy-five congressmen have made similar announcements."

JURY FOREMAN LABELS REPORT POLITICAL ONE

HOUSTON, Feb. 4. (AP)—Charges and denials that politics entered into the final report of the grand jury filed Friday were being made Saturday by some of the men who served on the investigating body, according to the Houston Chronicle.

The Chronicle says:

"Walter W. Fondren, vice president of the Humble Oil and Refining company and foreman of the retiring grand jury labeled the report as a 'political one' and indicated it was signed in the interest of harmony. He was supported in that by John G. Blackburn and two other jurors.

"On the other side were Sam McClure and Carleton Moore, insurance agents, who denied that any politics entered into the investigation. They made a joint statement assailing Mr. Fondren."

POSTPONE HEARING IN BROWNWOOD GAS CASE

BROWNWOOD, Texas, Feb. 4. (AP) A hearing in the rate dispute between the city of Brownwood and the Community Natural Gas company scheduled for February 9 has been postponed indefinitely by the state railroad commission.

The company has obtained a court order enjoining the city from enforcing a new rate which is lower than that the company wants.

AUSTIN, Feb. 4. (AP)—The agreement to postpone hearing of the gas rate case at Brownwood was by agreement of the parties concerned, it was said at the oil and gas division of the state railroad commission today. The agreement was to delay the hearing until some time after April 1, officials said.

VIENNA, Feb. 4. (AP)—Claiming that he had been commissioned to murder the former Albanian premier, Hassan Bey Pristina, who is now living in Vienna, Ibrahim Lica, an Albanian today threw himself on the mercy of the Vienna police. He asked protection, saying that two other Albanians who had been charged with the same mission would shoot him because he confessed his part in it.

He asserted that Achmed Bey Zogu, president of Albania, gave him money and a revolver for the purpose. He claimed he threw the revolver into the sea on his way here.

OFFICIALS OF SANITARY DEPARTMENT WILL URGE CLEANING OF ALL YARDS

Officials of the Wichita Falls city sanitary department will start Monday to make every effort to have all property owners clean their yards and the alleys at the rear of their homes, Dr. L. I. Lucey, director of the department, said Saturday.

Unclean yards and alleys not only mar the appearance of the city, but may cause a menace to health, Dr. Lucey said.

Dr. Lucey urges that all trash and cans be placed in a convenient pile in the alley in order that they may be more easily gathered and hauled away.

The last volunteer came down hale and alive but was killed a few days later when he fell from the Woolworth building New York, S. M. Ramsey, secretary of the board said. White was told that the arm of the statue holding the globe mountings is cracked.

In the future however we shall endeavor to present in our advertising such descriptive matter and such information as will be of real interest to the reader and we shall devote our best efforts and our advertising expenditure to the preparation and the display of such copy as will direct attention to the quality and desirability of our merchandise and to the honesty of our service.

FEDERAL HOME LOAN BANK SYSTEM PROPOSED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. (AP)—Establishment of a federal home loan bank system to encourage home ownership and to stimulate the buying and building of homes is proposed in a bill introduced today by Senator Copeland, Democrat, New York.

It provides for establishments of banks under supervision of a commissioner in the treasury department and for the issuance of currency on first mortgages up to 75 per cent of the value of the home.

The borrower would be required to repay the loans in equal semi-annually payments in 10, 15 or 20 years and also would be required to pay semi-annually an interest charge of 1 per cent a year on redeemed currency.

An appropriation of $200,000 is carried in the bill to provide for establishment of the proposed system of banks.

CHARGES EFFORTS TO MAKE WORKERS PAY MINE LOSSES

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 4. (AP)—Completing his second day of investigation of the coal strike in Western Pennsylvania, Congressman LaGuardia, New York, today said "the operators are seeking by a systematized, organized campaign of wage reduction to make the workers pay for the unstable condition of the industry that they themselves have created."

"An industry that cannot continue without reducing wages below the American standard of living," he said, "has no right to exist."

Congressman LaGuardia said he would present his findings in the house next Wednesday morning, consent having been gained for that purpose and would urge that an investigation be started immediately.

"Every other industry in the country with the exception of agriculture," LaGuardia declared, "adjusts itself to marketing and labor conditions. But here I find there is no attempt to adjust the industry to a sound business basis, but the plan to meet competition and over production by wage reduction. The coal business is unsound and cannot continue."

After several hours in which he interviewed officials of coal companies and inspected the striking miners' camps and coal company properties, Congressman LaGuardia said he believed "it will be a long, drawn out fight."

The congressman said he found the "morale of the strikers excellent." He said there were few pickets and the picketing was done peacefully.

VERNON TRUSTEES TO ASK ELECTION ON SCHOOL BONDS

VERNON, Feb. 4.—An election on the proposed issuance of $250,000 in bonds for school building purposes will be asked of the Vernon city commissioners at their regular meeting February 14, it was decided at a meeting of the Vernon school board with several prominent citizens.

Fifty thousand dollars of the bond issue would be used for construction of a ward school building advantageously located in southwest Vernon, where there is greatest need, according to the plans discussed and approved by the citizens and the board members at the meeting. The remaining $200,000 will be used to build either a junior high school or senior high school building. Which of these will be built will be determined by the apparent need after completion of the ward school building, according to the outlined plans.

It was agreed to have work rushed on the ward school building in the event the bonds are voted. Immediately after completion of the ward school, work is planned to start on the high school structure. In the event it is deemed wise by the board to build a new senior high school, the present senior high school will be used as a junior high school building.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4. (AP)—President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university today issued a statement denying published reports that President Cosgrave of the Irish Free State had been hissed by a small group of students during his visit to the university on Friday. Newspapermen who were with the Cosgrave party as it passed through the buildings reported the incident.

Dr. Butler made public a wireless message he had sent to President Cosgrave who is now on his way home on the Olympic, deploring the newspaper accounts. "Cannot understand origin of these baseless reports," the message said in part. "Your reception was hearty and affectionate by entire university."

SCATTERED RAIN OVER TEXAS BENEFITS GRAIN

FORT WORTH, Feb. 4. (AP)—Rains that fell in many points of Texas Friday night and Saturday not only will be of great benefit to small grain crops and livestock ranges but also will put an excellent season in the ground for spring planting, according to Fort Worth grainmen and farmers in areas reporting precipitation.

Showers in the last two days, in some instances amounting to an inch, are expected to carry fall grain crops to maturity. At the same time the moisture has made possible the planting of spring oats, held up in many sections on account of a lack of rainfall.

Occasional showers in Fort Worth, parts of West Texas and East Texas are predicted for Sunday, with somewhat lower temperatures over most of the state.

Attend Dentists' Meet

ELECTRA, Texas, Feb. 4.—Dr. Royal R. Ramey and Dr. C. H. Schulkey will leave Sunday for Dallas, where they will attend the meeting of the State Dental association. Dr. Ramey will remain for a two weeks' post-graduate course in dentistry.

ELECTRIC CURRENT RATE AT GRAHAM IS LOWERED

GRAHAM, Texas, Feb. 4.—The Texas Electric Service company has announced a reduction in rates for both residential and commercial lighting in the city of Graham, to be effective on all current used after February 20, 1928. The rate for residential lighting is reduced to 12½ cents per kilowatt hour for the first step and 10 cents for all current used in excess of the first step. The first step of this rate is reduced to 50 kilowatt hours per month, as compared with 200 kilowatt hours in the present rate. The rate for commercial lighting is also reduced to 12½ cents per kilowatt hour for the first step, 10 cents for the second step, six cents for the third step and four cents for the last step. Officials of the company state the changes in these rates are being made to encourage the larger use of electricity both by the housekeeper and the merchants.

ENGLAND MAINTAINS WAR ON SMUGGLED SAXOPHONES

LONDON, Feb. 4. (AP)—England is maintaining war on saxophones smuggled from America. Two brothers, William and Geoffrey Gann, are held by the police without bail until Monday, charged with "knowingly harboring" four saxophones contrary to the customs act. Another man, Charles Edwards, was fined 48 pounds sterling ($240) for attempting to smuggle a saxophone from the Aquitania, on which he is a musician.

William Gann is also a musician on the Aquitania, which arrived from New York Friday.

"If the activities of men like the accused continue," said Patrick Mareney, chief customs officer at Southampton, who appeared against the Ganns, "they will drive all the music dealers into bankruptcy."

BANKERS' REWARDS TOTALING $15,000 CONTINUE UNPAID

FORT WORTH, Feb. 4. (AP)—Rewards totaling $15,000 for dead Texas bank bandits remain unpaid.

Whether these will ever be paid is problematical, for before the Texas bankers will pay the rewards for dead bank robbers they must first be furnished conclusive evidence that the payee held the gun and fired the shot that ended the career of the robber. The unpaid rewards are held up because of disputes and unproven evidence that the claimants actually ended the lives of the bandits in question, according to W. M. Massie, president of the Texas Bankers' association.

It is this factor that may cause the withdrawal of the bankers' reward in the future and not the mass of public sentiment that is being rolled up against the sodid "head price," Texas bankers point out.

The three unpaid rewards are for alleged bank bandits, one killed at Cisco in the raid on the First National bank of Cisco and for two slain in the attempted robbery of the State bank of Rankin.

In the Cisco bandit killing there are three claimants to the reward, the widows of Chief of Police G. E. Bedford and Police Officer G. W. Carmichael and Mrs. B. P. Blassingame. The widows claim that their husbands fired the fatal shots, while Mrs. Blassingame claims a part of the reward because of the fact that she escaped from the bank while it was being robbed and warned the police.

The Rankin reward is being contested by several, all of whom claim they fired the fatal shots.

Massie said that the Texas Bankers' association was ready to pay the rewards on the day of the killings, but his organization, to protect itself against law suits, must be sure to whom the rewards are due.

AUTOMOBILE EXPORTS SHOW LARGE GAIN 1927

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. (AP)—Exports of automotive products from the United States registered a signal gain during 1927.

The commerce department today estimated that machines and parts shipped abroad during the year were worth $406,007,984, approximately 29 per cent more than the total of $327,458,157 shipped during 1926. The gain was made in spite of the fact that the Ford company, prior to that time by far the largest producer, suspended production during the final seven months of 1927.

Among the trends of world trade in automobiles disclosed was a marked proportionate increase in demand for higher priced cars on the part of foreign buyers of American machines. Shipments of cars valued at between $1200 and $2000 apiece during 1927 were 189 per cent greater in number than during 1926.

There was an increase of 62 per cent in the 1927 export of cars valued at more than $2000 as compared with the like exports of 1926. The 1927 increase in shipments of cars valued at between $500 and $900 amounted to 54 per cent and the increase in cars valued at from $900 to $1200 was 48 per cent. The total export of automobile products includes the figures of a large quantity of parts and materials which go into assembly of machines abroad.

If you invest your money and then re-invest your interest, the principal will double itself in as many years as the rate of interest goes into 72.

SENATE MAY LASH 'WHIP' OVER HOUSE ON SHIPPING BILL

LOWER BRANCH'S FAILURE TO ACT ON MERCHANT MARINE INCITES

JONES BILL MAY BE PUT ON TAX SLASH AS RIDER

Senate Vote Stands for U. S. Ownership of Big Merchant Marine for Present

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. (AP) — A threat to attach the shipping bill passed this week by the senate to the tax reduction measure as a "rider" unless the house takes it up meanwhile was made today by Senator Jones, Republican, Washington, author of the legislation.

Declaring he had heard rumors that his bill was to be "stifled in committee" in the house, Senator Jones said the shipping proposal would be in order as an amendment to the tax bill which is still to be taken up by the senate.

If approved as a rider it would force house consideration.

At the same time the Washington senator offered hope for a compromise with administration leaders in the house who are opposing his bill as one providing for government ownership of the merchant fleet in contradiction of the policy of President Coolidge for early transfer of the fleet into private hands.

"Our bill may be supplemented by several alternatives to promote private shipping," he said. "To the extent they succeeded our method need not be followed.

"If our bill comes back with an adequate ocean mail pay provision with the loan provisions of the act of 1920 reasonably modified and with certain provisions of the bill now pending such amendments will in my judgment have most sympathetic consideration and an adequate measure be paid."

Talking in cognizance of attacks made on the senate bill because of its provision requiring unanimous consent of the shipping board for the sale of any vessels hereafter which many contend means permanent government ownership, Senator Jones declared that "no senator had the hardihood to offer an amendment or a substitute to give to private parties to build and operate ships."

"The only gesture made," he said, "was a proposal to modify slightly the loan provision of the act of 1920. This was decisively beaten. It made perfectly clear that no government aid proposal could pass the senate. The only recourse then for the senate was government ownership, at least for the present.

"Good results will come, the importance of a merchant marine is being more generally and earnestly discussed than ever before. Its need is more and more appreciated. We have taken a long step by passing our bill."

HOMES FOR FAMILIES OF SICK VETERANS NEEDED AT LEGION, TEXAS, PLEA

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. (AP)—The house veterans' hospitalization subcommittee today concluded its hearings on the Luce bill to appropriate $14,000,000 for the veterans bureau.

Frank T. Hines, director of the bureau, said he favored an American Legion plan to purchase from the government a tract of land in the vicinity of the hospital at Legion, Texas, for the purpose of erecting on it houses to be leased for small sums to families of veterans.

WANTS U. S. TO ASSUME DEBT CHANNEL CONSTRUCTION

LAKE CHARLES, La., Feb. 4. (AP) Leon Locke, as a representative of the Calcasieu parish police jury will leave for Washington Sunday to attempt to interest federal authorities in assuming the remaining indebtedness incident to construction of the Calcasieu ship channel.

Mr. Locke declared the police jury and sentiment generally was for the federal government to assume the indebtedness, inasmuch as the channel soon is to be taken over, controlled and operated as a national waterway.

Mr. Locke is confident actual surveys and dredging will begin during the spring. With the exception of 12 acres of land, all problems relative to the intracoastal rights-of-ways and easement rights have been disposed of and is confident no difficulty will be encountered in securing rights for the entire route.

W. E. WILSON TO BE CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY ATTORNEY

W. E. WILSON

W. E. Wilson, who has resided in Texas all of his life and in Wichita county since 1919, and has been engaged in the practce of law since 1911, has announced for the office of county attorney.

Mr. Wilson was associated with C. K. Walsh in the practice of law at Wichita Falls for several years, under the firm name of Wilson and Walsh, and until October, 1927, he was associated with Judge W. L. Bass under the firm name of Wilson and Bass. Mr. Wilson made the race in Wichita county in 1924 for judge of the county court at law, and in this race, which was a three-cornered one, he lacked less than 100 votes of getting more votes than both of his opponents in the first primary, being the highest man in every box in the county except one.

In announcing his candidacy he states that it is his desire to lay down a few planks on which to build a substantial platform to run on, and then if elected to work on. His platform follows:

"It is my opinion that the county attorney's office is as important, if not more important, than any office at the court house.

"The county attorney is charged with the enforcement of all criminal laws, in all of the five justice courts of the county, in the county court at law, and in all criminal cases that have been appealed from the corporation courts of the county, and it is his duty to see that these cases are prosecuted without delay, and regardless of whom the charges are against, or the attorneys representing the defendants.

"The county attorney is charged with the collection of delinquent taxes, and it is my opinion that the county attorney should make these collections with as little cost to the county and the individual taxpayer as possible. There are two reasons why 90 per cent of the delinquent taxpayers do not pay their taxes before they become delinquent: First, the taxpayer is short of funds; second, is neglect. Most people are not slackers, and are willing to do their full duty, and it is my opinion that a great number of these delinquent taxes can be collected without suit, and adding this additional cost to the taxpayer, who is not able in a great number of cases to pay the tax, without a sacrifice in the first place.

"The county attorney is the adviser on all legal matters before the commissioners' court, and he should be in a position to represent the county on all legal matters without outside assistance.

"I am against the fee system, not only in the county attorney's office, but in every office in the county, and I believe that if every office in the county was placed on a salary basis that there would be less complaint from the public, and more satisfactory enforcement of all laws.

"I promise, if elected, that I will maintain an office in the court house, that this office will have my own attention, that I will enforce all of the laws to the best of my ability, and that I will secure the best assistance possible, and will be fair and impartial to everyone."

RIVALS FOR PRESIDENTIAL PREFERMENT ARE MANY IN BOTH PARTIES

Old McAdoo-Smith Controversy Again Gets Major Gossip In Democratic Ranks

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. (AP)—As the persidential campaign begins to emerge from the bashful age, bringing men and politics into frank relief and open rivalry, it grows more and more apparent that there will be no shortage of candidates.

At Madison Square garden four years ago the Democrats split their first ballot among 18 aspirants, and at Chicago in 1920, when the Republicans staged their most recent real set-to for the nomination, 16 were voted for on the initial roll-call. Already in 1928 active campaigns are under way for seven Republicans and nine Democrats, with as many more of each party hovering in the background, apparently assured of at least a scattering of complimentary first-ballot strength.

Many in G. O. P. Race.

The Republicans whose followers regard them as certainly in the race, even though most of them remain silent, include Secretary Hoover, Frank O. Lowden, Vice President Dawes, and Senators Curtis, Watson, Willis and Norris. On the Democratic side, preparations are under way to send delegates to Houston variously instructed for Governor Smith, Governor Ritchie, Senators Reed of Missouri, Robinson, George and Harrison, Representative Hull of Tennessee, and former Senators Pomerene of Ohio and Hitchcock of Nebraska. To these lists might be added a considerable group of those whose friends are hopeful but not so energetically at work, such as Speaker Longworth, Senators Borah, Walsh of Montana, and Glass, and Governor Donahey.

And despite the fact that one does not "choose" to run, and the other has decided to "stand aside," there still are Republicans who hope to vote for Calvin Coolidge, and Democrats persist in supporting William G. McAdoo.

OHIO JUST NOW HOLDS CENTER OF THE STAGE

Ohio, which more than once before has been a front-line trench in national politics, holds momentarily the attention of at least two in the rival camps of Republicans. Senator Willis of that state is an avowed candidate and had hoped to have the delegation without a struggle; but the friends of Secretary Hoover see possibilities for them in the situation. Yesterday Representative Theodore Burton of Cleveland, long a figure in national party circles, declared the sentiment of the state was for Hoover.

Burton Starts Debate.

Today several other Ohio congressmen, when asked for their views, took issue with Mr. Burton and rededicated themselves to the support of Willis.

The interesting feature of all of this is that any candidate who wants to participate in the April primary in Ohio must publicly declare his candidacy before February 24. If Secretary Hoover goes into Ohio for delegates, as many of his closest political advisers are urging him to do, he must say openly, within the next 20 days, that he is a candidate. And so far he has said nothing.

WILLIS EAGER TO LOCK HORNS WITH HIS RIVAL

The Buckeye state may also have the distinction of taking the lead in bringing policies as well as candidacies into the open. Senator Willis says he is disposed to take the offensive in any fight with Hoover, and he announced today that he would insist on calling the commerce secretary before the senate commerce committee for questioning as to his exact position on flood relief. The senator wants to know particularly whether Mr. Hoover agrees with the proposal of the Coolidge administration that 20 per cent of the cost of flood relief should be paid by the individual states in the flood area. Many sections of the South have sent delegations to Washington to protest this proposal, and Willis himself has doubts as to the practicability of the scheme.

If the plan of the senator from Ohio succeeds, the capital is looking forward to some interesting remarks when he and Mr. Hoover face each other across a committee table.

MELLON SUBJECT OF TALK BUT HE HOLDS SILENCE

The process of bringing campaign realities into the full light of day is proceeding under great pressure in other directions, as well. Nowhere is there a greater concentration of political inquisitiveness than that which centers constantly about the person of Andrew W. Mellon of Pennsylvania, secretary of the treasury. At first friendly to Charles E. Hughes, Mr. Mellon became extremely noncommittal when Mr. Hughes eliminated himself. Now he is being kept busy remaining non-committal.

Pennsylvania Is Prize.

The big Pennsylvania delegation is a prize that would mean much to any candidate. The Hoover people hope to get it, despite the warm friendship and long official relationship between the treasury secretary and vice president Dawes. The situation is complicated by the Vare and anti-Vare entanglements within Republican ranks back home in the keystone state. And Mr. Mellon seems in no hurry to announce his position.

"There's luck in leisure," he says.

Demos Sawing Wood

On the Democratic side of the political pond here in the Capital the surface is for once comparatively placid. Mr. McAdoo's Richmond speech, in which he suddenly renewed his old controversy with Governor Smith, is receiving a great deal of thoughtful attention, but no one has shown any disposition to be vocal about the matter.

JONES MODESTLY CARRIES HONORS HEAPED UPON HIM

HOUSTON, Feb. 4. (AP)—Jesse H. Jones, Houston's outstanding citizen Saturday was modestly carrying the honors heaped upon him at Knife and Fork club banquet here Friday night attended by 600 representative citizens.

To the suggestion of Dr. Stockton Axton, Rice Institute professor and brother-in-law of the late President Woodrow Wilson that Mr. Jones was fit timber for nomination for president at the Democratic national convention here in June, Mr. Jones said it and other similar tributes could not be taken seriously. "No political office has ever lured me," he said but added "that does not prevent me from liking to hear these things."

Dr. Axton also disclosed at the banquet that President Wilson shortly before the world war, began, decided to send Mr. Jones on "an extremely dangerous mission." Its nature was not disclosed. Departure, for the mission, however, became impossible Dr. Axton said.

The speaker, who was stationed in Washington during the conflict, also disclosed that when Mr. Jones entered the new draft limit age he decided to abandon his work as director general of military relief work for the Red Cross and enlist. Efforts to dissuade him, the speaker said, were met with the reply that "perhaps I won't last six months. But any way I'm going to try to do the thing I have been urging young men to do." A few days later, however, the armistice ended the conflict.

Jed Adams of Dallas, Democratic national committeeman from Texas; Judge Edwin B. Parker, umpire of the mixed claims commission setting German war claims; State Senator T. J. Holbrook of Galveston and R. M. Kelly of Longview, president of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce were among the notable guests.

Telegrams also were read from the mayors of Dallas, Waco, Fort Worth and San Antonio and from many prominent figures in Texas regretting inability to be present.

EXTEND TIME FOR ENTRY SCHOOL SONG FOR T. C. U.

FORT WORTH, Feb. 4. (AP)—In an effort to secure more entries in the contest for new school songs for Texas Christian university the closing time of the contest has been extended to February 15.

"Interest in the song contest has not been what it should be," says Jerome Smyser, president of the student body of Texas Christian university. "The melody of the song now used by T. C. U. belongs properly to Washington and Lee university. It is a copyrighted melody, owned by Thornton W. Allen. Allen has asked that T. C. U. not use the melody after the present school year.

"School pride also makes the student body want a song, or rather two songs, representative and distinctive for T. C. U. Hence the present contest."

Prizes of $50 each for a new alma mater song and a new football song are offered in the T. C. U. contest. All students, faculty members, alumni and ex-students are eligible to compete. Contributions may be turned in to Jerome Smyzer or to a special "managing committee" composed of Elizabeth Nabors, chairman; Rainey Elliott, Williamson, Weir McDiarmid and Rowena Johnson.

SENATE APPROVES $272,400,000 TO PAY GOVERNMENT BILLS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. (AP)—The senate today passed the interior department appropriation bill carrying $272,400,000, the fourth of the regular supply bills to be disposed of this session.

All funds provided in the house measure were approved by the senate with the exception of the provision authorizing completion of the power plant on the Flathead irrigation project, in Montana, and the leasing of this plant to the private interests.

To the house appropriations for several reclamation projects the senate added the following amounts: Yuma, Ariz. and California, $35,000; Minidoka, Idaho, $50,000; Milk River, Mont., $5000; North Platte, Nebr., and Wyoming, $75,000; Riverton, Wyo., $20,000.

An addition of $20,000 for the Gallup-Shiprock highway, Navajo reservation, New Mexico, also was put in the bill.

Differences between the senate and house will now be worked out in conference.

BURKBURNETT, Feb. 4.—Butler Westerfield, who succeeded W. B. Hogg as superintendent of the Burkburnett schools, began his duties in this capacity Wednesday. Superintendent Hogg resigned to enter Oklahoma university in January.

RIVAL OF HOOVER PLANS TO CALL HIM BEFORE RIVER QUIZ

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. (AP)—Full responsibility for the administration flood control program was assumed today by Major General Jadwin, chief of the army engineers, after he had been forced by unanimous vote of the senate commerce committee to tell whether his conversations with President Coolidge and Secretaries Hoover and Davis had influenced him.

General Jadwin appeared at a committee session which was enlivened by argument, during which Senator Willis, Republican, of Ohio, acting chairman and a presidential candidate, announced that he was determined to call both Secretaries Hoover and Davis before the committee to testify. Chairman Jones had previously indicated that Mr. Hoover, who just now is considered as a possible opponent for Mr. Willis in the Ohio presidential primaries, would not be called.

SLOT MACHINES TAKEN IN RAIDS HERE SATURDAY

Four slot machines were seized and two others closed as result of raids conducted Saturday afternoon and night by Sheriff W. G. Bralley.

Five of the machines, the sheriff said, were found in such downtown places of business as domino parlors, a drug store, a cafe and a club equipped with billiard tables. Three men arrested in connection with the alleged operation of the devices gave bond for appearance Monday, at which time decision will be made regarding the nature of charges to be filed.

The seizures which were made were of machines said by deputy sheriffs to have been in actual operation at the time of their arrival. Two were not in operation and were not taken, because of technicalities which the sheriff said he feared might arise if actual eye-witness proof was lacking. The two machines, however, were said to be where he can readily lay hand upon them if state's attorneys advise that proceedings looking to their confiscation can be brought. The machines were said to have a value of about $150 each.

Five of the devices were of types into which five-cent pieces or metal chips of the same size could be dropped, thereby permitting the release of a trigger which caused three cylinders of exact size and placed beside each other to spin. Each of the cylinders was decorated at intervals by colored squares. When the cylinders stopped so that certain color combinations appeared beneath a pointer, it is alleged, coins or chips would drop from a slot. At least two of the machines, one a 25-cent "play," paid its winnings in coin, it is alleged, ranging from as low as two for one to as high as 20 to one.

Two other raids by the sheriff's department led to seizures of beer and to the arrest of two women and three men at one place and of one man at the other, Mr. Bralley reported. The one man was permitted to remain at his home because of illness in his family.

DELEGATES FROM 10 COTTON STATES TO ATTEND MEET

AUSTIN, Feb. 4. (AP)—Ten of the south's cotton producing states, through their governors late Saturday had promised to join Governor Moody in a conference at Jackson, Miss., proposed for February 20, to work out plans for cotton acreage reduction and to begin a campaign against alleged malinformation predicting an increase.

Moody said he expects to appoint 15 or more delegates early next week — representative growers, bankers and factors from all sections of the state—to represent Texas. Other executives said they would do likewise. Clarence Ousley, Fort Worth, will be among this state's contingent.

The Oklahoma, Missouri and Virginia governors said they would be unable to attend but promised to dispatch proxies and cooperate in any possible manner.

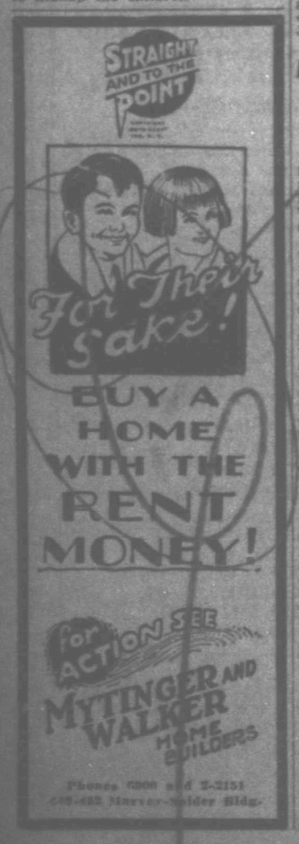

The total list of states "lined up": Texas, Virginia, Missouri, Mississippi, Georgia, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee, Louisiana, Alabama, North Carolina.

Moody also has received he said, "stacks of telegrams from farm and bank associations and other agencies" offering support.

He was outwardly enthusiastic visioning prospects of ridding the South from the "economic peonage which for 30 years had been pressed on it by Wall street."

RICH CHICAGOAN PLACES GUARD OVER CHILDREN

CHICAGO, Feb. 4. (AP)—The Lake Forest, Ill., estate of Charles H. Schweppe, Chicago millionaire, has been turned into the semblance of a fortress, it was learned today, as insurance against the kidnaping of the Schweppe children, John and Jean. Guards were stationed at the Lake Forest estate last spring after Schweppe learned of a plot to kidnap the children.

Barton French's Body is Sent to Va. for Burial

SANTA FE, N. M., Feb. 4. (AP)—The body of W. Barton French, 32, tonight was en route to Richmond, Va., where it is to rest, marking the close of the colorful, brief career of a scion of one of New York's wealthiest and socially prominent families. French committed suicide here last Wednesday while visiting at the home of a friend.

The return of the body was delayed a day when a comely young woman, claiming to be his widow, appeared and protested against the burial in Virginia. She declared she was the third wife of French and had married him at Albuquerque, N. M., January 4 of this year. Investigation launched by county officials revealed no marriage license had been issued to French and no ceremony performed at that place. The woman later declared the couple had married at El Paso, but was unable to produce a marriage certificate. Nothing has been seen of her since her story was disproved.

The body of French is being taken to Virginia at the cabled request of his mother, Mrs. Seth Barton French, who now is sojourning in Southern France.

Young Woman Detained.

SANTA FE, N. M., Feb. 4. (AP)—The young woman who claimed to be the third wife of W. Barton French, who committed suicide here last Wednesday, has been taken into custody and will be sent to the state hospital for the insane at Las Vegas, N. M., for observation, District Attorney J. J. Kenney announced late today.

She declared at different times to have been married to French at Albuquerque, El Paso and Juarez, he declared, but so far as he has been able to learn her name is Mrs. W. L. Brackett. This follows upon a statement by Thomas L. Mabry, Albuquerque attorney, last night that a young woman of similar description had attempted to engage him to straighten out the estate of William Brackett of Los Animas county, Colorado. She was at that time in possession of various papers which tended to prove her claim to being Brackett's wife.

Local Arrest Puts Girl on Pathway Home

A path of hunger which led a young woman into the county jail here four days ago Saturday led her from the barred doors toward her home in El Paso.

After having been stranded with a man companion in an automobile camp here, she related, she went to a grocery store and offered a check in payment for merchandise. The proprietor declined to honor the check.

"But I'm hungry," she protested.

The groceryman then permitted her to take about $2 worth of groceries, telling her he would send her the balance if the check proved good. The check was worthless, the proprietor of the store called police and Will Allen, police inspector, arrested the woman. The man had disappeared.

Investigation convinced Mr. Allen that the groceryman accepted the check at his own risk, regardless of the woman's fault. But to release her would have done her no good, because she had nowhere to go and was unable to work.

So the police inspector made arrangements with the Salvation Army to care for her and then, from other charitable agencies, secured enough money to buy her a ticket home.

RELIC OF CHRISTIANITY OF SECOND CENTURY IS DISCOVERED IN SPAIN

MADRID, Feb. 4. (AP)—An archaeological relic of early Christianity of the second century, discovered near Madrid, in the municipal district of Valleverde, has caused a stir in the scientific world.

It is a Roman Christian villa, built upon the ruins of another Roman villa, and according to archeological authorities, its existence proves that there were Christians near Madrid as early as the second century.

The discovery was made by Professor Fuidio, an archaeologist who was making explorations on the ground, together with several of his pupils. Several pieces of sanguine ceramic, elaborately worked, and pieces of black ceramic, of Neolithic origin, have been unearthed near the villa.

LONG BEACH, Cal., Feb. 4. (AP)—Mrs. E. A. Packard, Manila, Iowa, died here today, a few hours after her son, Dr. J. E. Packard, Sioux City, Iowa, reached her bedside after a race with death across five states in an air mail plane.

Charles Packard, another son, of Cincinnati, Ohio, also flying to his mother's bedside, was forced down at Reno, Nev., by storms and lost in the race with death.

Remission of Auto Penalties Banned by Law

No official has authority to waive the collection of penalties fixed by law for those who drive after February 1, automobiles which carry license plates issued for the previous year, according to a declaration Saturday of S. O. Hamm, state highway officer for 14 counties in Northwest Texas.

The statement was caused, he explained, because many of those who have been arrested since February 1 for driving cars with 1927 plates have urged him or various other officials to remit the 25 per cent penalty fixed by law for delinquents.

Most of the appeals, Mr. Hamm said, have been made to Guy C. Raley, the county tax collector from whose office the automobile license plates have been issued. That official, according to the highway officer, is held strictly accountable to the state for penalties as well as for fees collected, and he would be called upon to make up personally for any remitted penalty. Further than that, Mr. Hamm said, even if the official were willing to shoulder the cost of remitting a fee, he would be violating his oath of office by so doing.

"Those who register automobiles other than new ones after January 31 must do one of two things," Mr. Hamm said. "They either must make affidavit that the car has not been driven since January 31, or they must pay the penalty fixed by law for being delinquent. The law provides absolutely no other choice. Probably all officers would be glad to save the citizen any money that they could. But the situation is one in which neither the officer nor the official has any choice, unless he himself is willing to violate the law."

CARRY VARE FIGHT TO SUPREME COURT MOVE IS SURPRISE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. (AP)—For the first time in history a petition was filed today with the United States supreme court by the senate asking for the maintenance and preservation of "the coordinate authority of the senate and the judicial branch of the government."

The petition was sponsored by the special senate slush fund committee and grew out of the refusal of the federal district court at Philadelphia last summer to order the election authorities of Delaware county Pennsylvania, to turn over to the committee ballots and other documents used in the contested senatorial election in which William S. Vare, RepubBean, and William B. Wilson, Democrat, were the candidates.

It was explained that the action brought in the highest tribunal would not operate even to delay the senate elections committee in obtaining the ballots in Delaware county as the federal circuit court ordered their preservation and can release them upon application by the committee, which probably will be made next week when the recount of the ballots in Allegheny county is to start.

The petition of the slush fund committee, headed by Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, came as a surprise and is designed to bring about a decision which will be binding upon the federal courts in such cases in the future.

In district court at Philadelphia refused to act because a question had been raised as to whether the slush fund committee in fact existed due to the failure of the senate of the resolution to continue its life during the recess of congress.

MARION TALLEY PLANS TO SING IN CONCERTS NEXT YEAR, SHE SAYS

NEW YORK, Feb. 4. (AP)—The World will say tomorrow that Marion Talley, youthful soprano of the Metropolitan opera, announced today that without doubt she will sing in concerts next season.

F. C. Coppicus, under whose management Miss Talley has sung in concerts, for the past two seasons, was quoted in dispatches from Kansas City as saying in a letter to a newspaper there that he had suggested that Miss Talley "retire for a year or two in order to study further."

The World quotes Miss Talley as saying she had refused to sign a new contract with Coppicus because she "was dissatisfied with the work he was doing for her," and that "to get rid of him" she told him she was not going to sing next season, when he sought a new contract with her.

"Without doubt I will sing in concerts next season," she said. "In fact, I have already signed a contract with my new manager, George Engles, which will take effect as soon as my contract with Mr. Coppicus comes to an end in April."

Miss Talley plans to sing in 20 or 25 opera performances this year, and then go on a concert tour under Engles' management, the World will say.

FORMER PROHIBITION DIRECTOR DROPS DEAD EN ROUTE TO HOSPITAL

BOSTON, Feb. 4. (AP)—William J. McCarthy, former prohibition director for New England, dropped dead of heart disease as he walked into the emergency hospital at Washington, D. C., today to apply for treatment, according to word received here from Washington tonight.

The former prohibition official had been residing at a Washington hotel as a result of having been informed he stood at the top of the list in examinations for his old position. He had been in ill health for some time as a result, his physicians said, of his three stormy years as local prohibition chief.

In June, 1921, McCarthy officially was cited for bravery and for achieving a record in prohibition enforcement by the prohibition authorities in Washington. During his regime he had made 5000 arrests, confiscated millions of dollars worth of liquor and liquor manufacturing parphernalia and was responsible for the imposition of thousands of dollars in fines.

He was 42 years old.

GUARD AT SCHOOL WILL BE EQUIPPED WITH MACHINE GUN

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 4. (AP)—The school house in the mining town of Broughton, closed when shots were fired into it several days ago, will reopen Monday under the protection of a machine gun manned by an Allegheny county deputy sheriff, Robert H. Braun, sheriff announced today.

The sheriff said the situation in the mining village was quiet. He felt that a machine gun would go far toward preserving the quiet and protecting the pupils. He said he did not expect any further trouble.

The Broughton shooting, United Mine Workers leaders charged, was done by non-union miners who in addition to shooting into the school house also fired shots into the barracks occupied by striking miners and their children. Officials of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal corporation, owners of the Broughton mines, said non-union men were not involved.

ESCAPED CONVICT AND PAL HELD AT HOUSTON FOR DOUBLE SHOOTING

HOUSTON, Feb. 4. (AP)—An escaped convict and his pal were arrested here Saturday in connection with the shooting of R. Richardson, 52, and his wife, Grace, 50, in a small hotel here Friday. They are being questioned also in connection with half a dozen recent holdups here and in Galveston.

One of the arrested men escaped from the Blakely prison farm December 27 after serving about a year of a burglary sentence imposed in San Antonio officers said.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Richardson is near death in a hospital here from a bullet wound just below the heart. The shot was fired by one of two men who were creating a disturbance at the hotel and while Richardson, a guest, was endeavoring to eject them. Richardson, who grappled with the gunmen, is recovering from a bullet wound in his right leg and injuries inflicted by a billy.

LITTLE AMERICAN GIRL IS CENTRAL FIGURE IN STORY BY QUEEN MARIE

BUCHAREST, Feb. 4. (AP)—A little American girl is the central figure in a fairy story just completed by Queen Marie.

In the book Queen Marie takes a tiny American from a humble home across the ocean to the Black sea. There the child sees how kings and queens and princes and princesses of which she knows only from reading fairy tales, actually live.

Under the escort the girl sees golden thrones and jewels and as a special treat is allowed to play with little King Michael.

"The idea of writing this story," the queen said, "came to me during a banquet the Americans gave me in Denver when Senator Tolly told me how his little girl liked another of my stories. I thought a story which would bring east and west nearer would be most appropriate."

Chamberlin Will Again Try for Air Endurance Record Despite His Close Shave From Death in Ship's Fall

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 4. (AP)—Clarence D. Chamberlin and Roger Q. Williams, whose big Bellanca monoplane crashed at Byrd field here today when they attempted to take off for a third attempt to break the world's endurance record, were making plans tonight for their fourth effort at the mark of Johann Ristics and Cornelius Edward, German holders of the record.

A. R. Martine, financial backer of the flight, talked to Joseph Bellanca, designer of the plane soon after the crash. He said that the wreck of the plane would be sent to New York for repairs after which it would be brought back to Richmond for another try.

Chamberlin and aviators who gathered to witness the take off today unanimously blamed the short runway for the crash. Chamberlin said that he realized he could not get away when he reached the point where the ground observers signalled he must rise. He said he forced the plane into the air and signalled to Williams to release the gasoline in order that they might come down again without injury to the plane.

As the big monoplane rose the tail skids were seen to hit a railroad track at the end of the runways and turn suddenly to the right. Chamberlin said he shut off the motor and the plane came down, crushing the right wing, tearing off the undercarriage and breaking the propeller. He said he was aware of the danger in coming down with the 460 gallons of gasoline aboard and thought emptying the tanks would insure their safety.

The two men were quickly out of the plane and after waving to the crowd that surged the field, began to inspect the wreckage. Williams was smiling and told the spectators: "We'll make it next time."

Martine was obviously disappointed but emphatic in his praise of Chamberlin and Williams, accrediting the New York to Germany flyer with preventing serious injury or death to the fliers by his skill. He also expressed confidence in the Bellanca plane.

PROFESSIONAL DANCING BOYS WILL BE LICENSED LIKE TAXI CHAUFFEURS

PARIS, Feb. 4. (AP)—Because many of them have proved to be as light fingered as they are light footed, the Gigolos, the professional dancing boys of Paris, are to be licensed like taxi chauffeurs.

By a new police order every Gigolo must register and secure a card bearing his number, description and photograph. Minor offenses will be noted on these cards, and if the total mounts high enough or if the youths just can't learn to keep their fingers out of their partners' pocket books they will be banned from the waxed floors of the dance places.

In announcing the registration of the Gigolos, police described them as a menace to morals and a phase of low life introduced by foreigners. The action was brought about by the frequency of cases listed on the records under the general heading "pocket book stolen by dancing partner."

WINK TO OPPOSE CONSTRUCTION OF TEXAS-N. M. ROAD

AUSTIN, Feb. 4. (AP)—The new oil town of Wink in Winkler county will oppose the construction of the 35-mile Texas-New Mexico railroad from Monahans on the Texas & Pacific line, unless the line runs through Kermit, Winkler county, to the New Mexico line, unless the line runs through Wink, it developed here Saturday when the state railroad commission set February 28 for a hearing.

News reports from Washington say that the Texas & Pacific has applied for right to buy the small company's $35,000 capital stock. R. S. Shapard, assistant general attorney for the Texas & Pacific, Dallas, is one of the Texas-New Mexico company incorporators.

The chamber of commerce at Wink has filed a plea of intervention and protest in the case, which the Interstate Commerce Commission has asked the Texas commission to hear. Articles of incorporation for the company were filed with the secretary of state here some months ago. Whether New Mexico mileage is contemplated is not disclosed in officials filings here.

All the features of the new Ford cars are brought to you in this new Sport Coupe . . . beautiful low body lines and choice of colors . . . Ford-Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield . . . 55 to 65 miles an hour . . . 40-horse-power engine . . . remarkable acceleration . . . 20 to 30 miles per gallon of gasoline . . . Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers . . . four-wheel brakes . . . typical Ford reliability and long life . . . low first cost and low up-keep cost.

Make it a point to see and examine this new Ford engine. Many features of it are exclusive Ford developments.

The new Ford has a remarkable engine

Development of 40 horse-power at only 2200 revolutions per minute an example of fine automobile engineering

THE four-cylinder engine in the new Ford represents a new development in modern automobile engineering. It is unique in design and performance because it develops 40-brake-horsepower at only 2200 revolutions per minute.

This means you can do 55 to 65 miles an hour in the new Ford and yet you do not have a high-speed motor.

The low r.p.m., or revolution speed, also means greater efficiency and longer life because the lower the speed of your engine, the less the wear on its parts.

Some of the factors which have contributed to this power are the specially designed carburetor, the new hot spot manifold, larger valve diameter, the carbon chrome nickel alloy valves which resist the oxidizing and scaling effect of hot gases, the shape of the combustion chamber which helps to insure higher compression and complete explosion of the gas, the aluminum pistons, the 63-pound fly-wheel, the heavy crankshaft which is statically and dynamically balanced, and built to withstand a twisting stress up to 60,000 inch-pounds, the five-bearing camshaft, and the newly designed exhaust system which minimizes back pressure.

The fine limits of measurement in the new Ford cars are shown in the diameter of the piston pin, which is held within three ten-thousandths of an inch (.0003). An even closer limit is maintained in the diameter of the hole into which the piston pin is fitted. Here the limit of tolerance is two ten-thousandths of an inch (.0002).

All of this may sound a bit technical, but there is nothing complicated about the engine in the new Ford. It has been designed for reliability and long life as well as speed and power. There is, in fact, no automobile engine so simple in construction as the engine in the new Ford, yet so capable and efficient in operation. "Make it better—make it simpler" has always been the policy of the Ford Motor Company. This policy has been carried forward to new heights in this new car.

A further indication of the efficiency of the engine in the new Ford is shown in its smooth, quiet running at all speeds. It is practically vibrationless, because of its low r.p.m. and the many mechanical improvements that have been built into it. To insure quiet, the timing gears are made of bakelized fabric instead of metal and the cams on the camshaft are so designed that the valve push rods follow closely, preventing valve clicking.

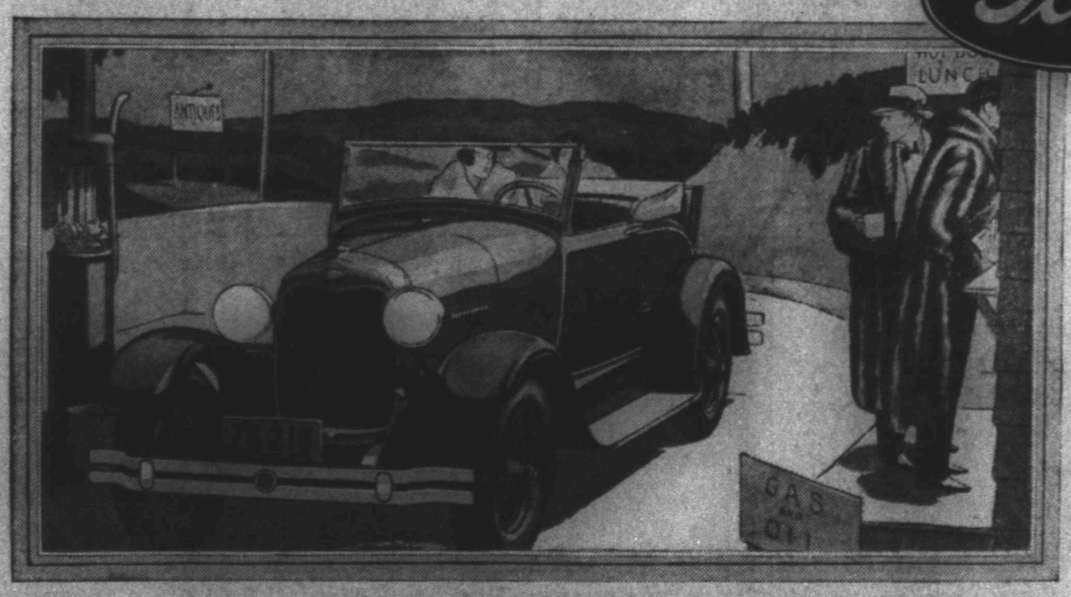

The new Ford Tudor Sedan is an exceptionally roomy car. Designed and built to accommodate five passengers in comfort. Your choice of a number of beautiful two-tone color harmonies.

These are but a few of the many reasons for the speed and power of the new Ford—for its quick acceleration—for its reliability, low up-keep cost and long life—for its alert, capable performance under all conditions.

Arrange now to see this new Ford and know the thrill of driving it. You will know then that it is not just a new automobile—not just a new model—but the advanced expression of a wholly new idea in modern, economical transportation.

The Roadster sells for $385; the Phaeton for $395; the Coupe for $495; the Tudor Sedan for $495; the Sport Coupe for $550; the Fordor Sedan for $570. (Prices F. O. B. Detroit.)

The new Ford is the complete car, giving you everything you want or need in a modern automobile. Standard equipment includes five steel-spoke wheels, four 30 x 4.50 balloon tires, windshield wiper, speedometer, gasoline gage on instrument panel, dash light, mirror, combination stop and tail light, oil indicator rod, complete tool set, theft-proof coincidental lock, pressure grease gun lubrication, and Ford-Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield.

SPUDDER BATTERYMEN WILL REPORT FOR WORK ON MARCH 1

REMAINDER OF SQUAD ORDERED IN 10 DAYS LATER; INTEREST CENTERS AT SHORT AND FIRST

Twenty-five days—count 'em—remain until Wichita Falls' proud Spudders start in quest of the condition they hope will carry them through to another season like 1927, when Wichita Falls' entry set a new mark for Texas league clubs to shoot at in winning the pennant and then grabbing the Dixie championship in four straight games.

Prexy J. Alvin Gardner, back from a prolonged visit in the oil fields of the Panhandle, announced that contracts had been sent to the bulk of the players to report for duty at Athletic park on March 1. This opening date, if the players respond to it, will be a few days earlier than usual, as the club for the last few years has started its training about March 5. Players other than pitchers or catchers have been requested to put in their appearances not later than March 10 and are given the option of reporting as soon as the batterymen if they so desire.

Williams All Set.

The prexy on his return found a letter from Skipper Carl Williams to the effect that the crop was all laid by, ground broken for planting and that he had nothing in front of him but another big season for the Spudder cause. Carl said he would be on the job a day or two before March 1 to get things shaped up at the park for the start of actual training.

Even ahead of the manager some of the early birds are quite likely to report. Pete Turgeon and Tom Jenkins, who have wintered here, probably will make up the first contingent to start to work. Turgeon a few days ago declared it his intention to stay with his banking job until March 1, but a few more balmy days like Saturday and the date is likely to be moved up.

Several signed contracts have been received, according to Prexy Gardner, but sufficient time has not elapsed to receive replies from most of the players.

Nothing Serious.

Some of the boys have written in asking for increases in the figures contained in their contracts, according to Gardner, but none looms as a holdout and no trouble in signing the entire personnel is anticipated. The Spudder owner declines to announce the names of those who have signed, declaring he deems it best to wait until the entire flock is signed or there is a serious holdout problem before public announcements are made.

A sandlotter or two have been signed during the last few weeks and something like 40 players will be tendered contracts when the job of sending out the documents is completed.

The Spudders will have more than two weeks of conditioning under their belts when the first exhibition game is played on March 17.

Shortstop Scramble.

These typically spring days are bringing the fans around to the subject of baseball and the two points of interest on the Spudder club whenever these fanning bees get under way invariably are shortstop and first base.

The large quantity of shortfielders on the roster makes that position one of interest. The loss of Johnny Mann, drafted by the Chicago American league club, leaves Rabbitt Benton as the veteran guardian of the post. Benton played splendidly last season when he took over the job after Mann was hurt and a repetition of his 1927 work will insure him first call over all competitors. One of the team's mainstays at bat, he was equally efficient in the field and was one of the main cogs in the big season.

Buddy Lewis, the youngster taken from the Texas Valley league in mid-season will be back and has written that he intends to beat somebody out of a job this year. Buddy was given little opportunity to display his wares after joining the club for the simple reason the team was too busily engaged in winning the pennant to take any chances with youngsters.

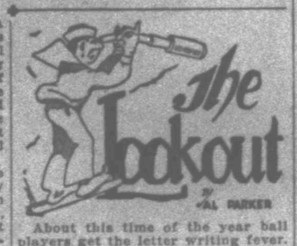

Bright Prospect.

Lewis in his few opportunities was not flashy, but bore all the earmarks of being a comer. Even if he doesn't make the grade in the coming campaign, he is sure to go out on option for experience in a league of lesser classification.

Two youngsters, both from the Blue Ridge league, and highly touted for their ability at bat and afield will be in the competition for the shortstop position. Joe Luciano and Ed Roetz had big years in the Blue Ridge and are backed by recommendations of many capable baseball men who saw them last year. Both hit well above .300 and fielded well.

The importance at first lies in the departure of one of the old standbys in the sale of George Lafayette and the acquisition of a youngster to take his place, George Stanton from the Virginia league is tagged for the place and Gardner avers he will fill the bill in every particular.

The groundkeeping crew at Athletic park has been engaged for weeks in putting the finishing touches on the playing field, and everything should be in readiness for the athletes when reporting time comes—just 25 days in the offing.

About this time of the year ball players get the letter writing fever. Whether they have any contract requests to make or not, they are usually taking pen in hand about the first of February. They know it is too early to start training, but the fever strikes 'em and they have to get as close to the game as quickly as they can. Prexy Gardner returned Friday from the oil country and found his desk piled high with letters from the athletes.

Howard Fitzgerald, who has wintered in San Antonio, was among the contributors. The Eagle Lake pride finally has gone through with the tonsil operation he had been threatening to have for several weeks. At the time of the letter he was over the worst part of it, but still on a soup diet, he said. Nearly every spring Fitz has been troubled with his throat and Gardner believes the removal of the obstinate tonsils will put him off to a better start this spring.

Joe Cobb, Buddy Lewis, Joe Luciano, Lyman Lamb and several others also were on the list. Cobb has spent the off season in El Paso, his first winter in Texas, and writes in glowing terms of the border climate. Lewis proclaims to the world at large that he can't be left out of the scrap for the shortstop job this season. Luciano is well pleased with his transfer to the Spudder club and is ready to report.

Prexy Gardner's favorite subject these days is picking a ball club that will beat out Houston. Just a few days back he was quoted in this column to the effect that he feared Fort Worth far more than the Buffalo entry. He's added another to the list and now says he can name three clubs that will beat the Buffs to the wire next September. Of course, the Spudders are included and Fort Worth already has been named. The newest is Dallas. The prexy has much respect for the Steer team and believes the Spudders will receive much opposition from the Dallas entry this year.

Dallas has bought a flock of pitchers since the close of last season, but not so many who loom as world beaters. If Bert Ellison, the new manager, is able to pick up a new winner or two to go along with Slim Love, Dick Shuman and Alex McColl, the Steer chances will be much enhanced. But the department that gave Dallas club the most trouble last year has not been thoroughly worked over. The outfield lost many a ball game for the Steers in 1927. Love and Shuman were the leading Steer pitchers in point of earned runs allowed and their averages were no better than 3.76. But poor support in the outfield probably had more to do with the high pitching averages than faulty chunking.

One of the Steer outfielders, Hack Miller, a bulwark of strength at bat, but hardly an asset afield, was to undergo an operation for removal of gall stones last week. If the outfielder has gone under the knife at this late date, it is hardly to be expected he will be at his best when the season starts.

The Steers have a corking good infield and one that has not been tampered with in the rebuilding plan. Jim Reily at first, Hap Morse at second, Turkey Gross at short and Joe Tate at third make up a powerful infield. Morse is no great hitter, but a splendid fielder. Gross probably is a bit slower than in his balmiest days at San Antonio, but he's still a fine Texas league shortstop. Tate ranks with the best of the third basemen. It would be difficult to choose among Swenson, Tate and Richardson in naming the best hot guardian of last season.

Announcement from San Antonio is to the effect that Bob Couchman is to retire this year from active duty, but is to be retained by the Bears as a coach. In the passing from the hillock of this veteran moundsman, the league will lose one of its most colorful characters. Old Bob has been fooling Texas league hitters for a long time and last year was really his only poor season. Wichita Falls fans always will remember the many brilliant games he has pitched in Wichita Falls. The most notable was a one-hit affair of several years ago. If we remember correctly, the lone blow was a long, lazy fly to center field by the opposing pitcher, Rip Wheeler, early in the game that a loafing San Antonio outfield permitted to fall safe for a double.

L. C. Norton, attache of the state game, fish and oyster department in the capacity of superintendent of hatcheries, paid a flying visit to Wichita Falls Saturday to confer with Joe Dixon, superintendent of the state hatchery at Diversion lake. A number of Wichita Falls sportsmen have been interested since Lake Kemp came into existence in experimenting with rainbow trout at Lake Kemp, and L. O. "Doc" Landon discussed the possibility of such a move with the hatchery official. Rainbow trout have been tried in Texas, principally in Medina lake, near San Antonio, and so far as the game department has been able to ascertain the species has managed only to exist in Texas waters. The fish live, but do not propagate or show the healthy growth they do in their native waters.

While Norton told Landon he was not enthused over the prospect of stocking Lake Kemp with trout, he would like mighty well to see wall-eyed pike tried in the big lake. The wall-eyed pike, Landon explains, is a much to be desired fish that puts up a nifty fight in the water and more than holds his own in the frying pan. Norton volunteered the services of the hatchery branch of the game department in making the experiment and Landon hopes to start the machinery rolling at once toward getting some pike started in Lake Kemp and Diversion lake. The pike, though a scrapper, is fished for with "still" bait, and that's the kind of fish needed in the irrigation lakes. These lakes can't be beaten for the angler who is able to possess a boat and its accessories, but successful fishing from the banks is difficult at Lake Kemp and Diversion lake. Anything that will improve the bank fishing at these lakes is worth trying hard for.

CHICK HAFEY REPORTED CURED OF EYE AILMENT

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 4. (AP)—One of baseball's little side dramas came to light Saturday with Charles "Chick" Hafey, star outfielder of the St. Louis Nationals, as the central figure.

Most fans are familiar with Hafey's great work for the 1926 World's champions, also his playing last year. Only a few know that a growing defect in his vision has been threatening to end his playing days.

Last month in a hospital here Hafey was told "this operation will either make or break you as a baseball player." Saturday Dr. John Jacob Smith announced that a delicate operation performed on Hafey for sinus trouble had proved successful that the young man's vision "is improved 100 per cent."

It was a joyous chap who bounded out of the doctor's office and headed for his home in Berkeley. Not only had he been released from a prison of gloom, but his 1928 contract was forthcoming—it had been held up by the club until a final report was had from Dr. Smith.

Now Hafey has visions of his greatest season in baseball—he confidently expects to lead the National league in hitting this year. Despite the handicap in 1927 he finished eighth in hitting with an average of .359 and was rated as the leading slugger of the circuit with an extra base hit average of .559.

Buffs Bring in Flock of Talent to Make Pennant Scrap

Mandell Ready For His Yearly Title Defense

CHICAGO, Feb. 4. (AP)—The sheik of the lightweight boxers, Sammy Mandell, who likewise is king of that division, has promised to defend his championship here next summer, which will be about the time of his second anniversary as world's lightweight title holder.

It will be only the second time that Mandell has entered the ring to defend his crown, but he has been one of the busiest boxers who ever held the championship—in non-title bouts.

Since the era of big purses sifted down even to the lighter classes of boxers, champions can hardly afford to risk their titles in indoor bouts where the gate receipts seldom run more than $20,000 to $30,000 and outdoor championship matches just haven't been offered by any promoter. At least this is the contention of Mandell and Eddie Kane, his manager.

Beat Phil McGraw.

Last summer Mandell won from Phil McGraw at Detroit with an unmistakable superiority and that is the only time he has hung up his crown for the contenders to shoot at. Lots of boys who could make the 135-pound weight and several who could not without sawing off a leg, have had a chance to whale away at the champion's chin, when the title was not involved.

Gradually, Mandell has been trying to live down his early reputation as a powder-puff fighter, one who hits and runs away to hit again some other round. Against Jackie Fields on the coast a year ago he fought a terrific match. He stood toe to toe and slugged with Spug Myers in Chicago. He tried the same thing with Billy Petrolle in Minneapolis and took one on the chin that had him doing some rapid back-pedaling for a few minutes.

Titles Cost Money

Mandell and Kane, being thrifty business men, take the view that they should receive, for a shot at the title, at least as much as they themselves put up for their chance when Sammy won the crown from Rocky Kansas of Buffalo in Chicago, July 2, 1926. To meet Kansas' guarantee of $50,000, Mandell and Kane put up their own money, and Kansas took it down for the gate fell short of the guarantee by nearly $20,000.

There are two other reasons, too, Sammy's first act, after he won the title, was to lead his sweetheart to the altar, and now Sammy Jr., needs a new pair of shoes ocasionally. Several warm-up fights are being planned for the champion in preparation for the big shot next summer.

HOPES OF BURKBURNETT HIGH VOLLEY BALLERS ARE EXTREMELY BRIGHT

BURKBURNETT, Texas, Feb. 4.—The Burkburnett High school volley ball team lost in the finals last year to the Electra girls, but the Bulldog six has hopes of going still farther this year. Electra this year looms again as the most powerful contender in the county meet which takes place February 11 at Electra, and with the Electra team on the home court it will be just a little harder for the Bulldog girls to get over the hump. Electra has copped four games in a row from the Bulldogs this year, but ever have the Bulldogs faced them with their full strength on the court. Electra may have the strongest team of the two, but the Bulldogs claim that Burkburnett will have to de defeated with her full strength on the court before they will admit defeat.

Burkburnett has won 14 games and lost six this year and the team is confident of copping the county honors. Burkburnett has broken even with Iowa Park, defeated Fairview three times, Cashion once, won four and lost one to Clara and dropped four to Electra. This is the record of the oil city sextet against other Wichita county teams. Weeth and Petrolia have each fallen under the Burkburnett advance twice this year.

Addie East, due to her swift serve of the ball, is the leading scorer of the team with Captain Pauline Patterson close behind her in this report. These two volley ballers have been running up the scores for Burkburnett all year.

Coach Jones has 14 girls who will take active part in the Electra tournament and has a lineup that he is sure will go over big. The first string lineup for the tournament will be Captain Pauline Patterson, Addie East, Viola Crittenden, Lucille Dilbeck, Thelma Mitchell and Louise Woods. On the reserve list is a number of girls who can play with the first team very easily.

The reserve list is composed of Yleta Foster, Violet Steele, Ina Fay Norvill, Lola Mae Wimberly, Mildred Key, Ruby Bucalow, Ruth Bryarly and Margaret Snoddy.

IF AGE COUNTS A'S WILL WIN

Old heads will be guiding the destinies of the Philadelphia Athletics in the coming American league pennant fight. Connie Mack (lower left), who is 65 and the oldest manager in big league baseball, will have as his chief aides "Kid" Gleason (upper left), 62, and Captain Eddie Collins (right), still an active second baseman at 40.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 4. (AP)—Connie Mack's Athletics may not win the American league pennant this year, but if they miss it won't be through lack of grizzled heads and baseball brains.

The oldest board of strategy in baseball will guide the A's with the 65-year-old Mack still directing the show from the bench with the aid of a lead pencil and a bit of paper and with the veteran Billy Gleason, whom they still call "Kid" despite his 62 years, again his right hand man.

Out on the playing field some of the time and on the coaching lines the rest, the Athletics will have Captain Eddie Collins, who at 40 is one of the oldest active performers in the majors.

These three will do most of the actual directing when the team is in action, but they have a couple of able lieutenants in Ira Thomas, 46-year-old professor of advanced pitching, and Earl Mack, Connie's son and the youngest of the five at 37, who has charge of the rookies. This combination saw service last year and is showing no signs of weakening. The average age of the five is 50 years. The two Macks and Thomas were catchers in their playing days, while Gleason and Collins got their experience in the infield.

Outlining the duties of his board of strategy, Mack said Collins, when not playing, will control traffic at third base, while Gleason sees similar duty at first base. This year Mack is going to keep idle pitchers and reservists off the coaching lines and put the corners in charge of two old heads at the game who think quickly and quite often accurately.

Thomas, an old time member of the Athletics, retains his job of preening the pitchers into top form, while the younger Mack will shepherd the first flock of battery men to the Florida training grounds about February 20.

The venerable head of this array of talent and experience will be starting South even sooner, as the tall tutor expects to get in some golfing in Florida before the advance guard of the Athletics reaches the Southland.

Grid Training Teams to Play Regular Games

Coyote Gridiron Students Divided Into Four Squads; Round Robin Scheduled to Be Played

The spring training football squad of Wichita Falls High school has been divided into four groups and intra-squad competition is to start February 17, according to announcement of Coach Bud McCallum. Harvey Black, Raymond Mitchell, Duncan Perkins and Bill Habern, letter men of last season's team, have been named as coaches of the four squads and the quartet of leaders put their men through the paces several afternoons last week.

The training thus far has been confined largely to perfecting condition, with the fundamentals coming in for some attention late in the week. With 80 men out for practice, each squad consists of about 20 men and the coaches are to pick their teams to play in the intra-squad contests.

Present plans call for a round robin schedule, with one game each week, through the months of February and March. Regulation games will be played on the practice field back of the junior college and the public is invited to attend the contests and view next season's crop of talent, according to McCallum.

February 17, Army vs. Navy.
February 23, Blacks vs. Reds.
March 2, Army vs. Blacks.
March 9, Navy vs. Reds.
March 16, Army vs. Reds.
March 23, Blacks vs. Navy.

Dazzy Vance Is Strong for Golf As Pitching Aid

Veteran Brooklyn Star Swings Mean Mashie and Believes it Helps His Box Work.

CLEARWATER, Fla., Feb. 4. (AP)—Dazzy Vance of the Brooklyn Robins, who has achieved fame in the baseball world as strikeout king of National league pitchers, now is storming the heights of another sport through his sensational playing in the Florida West Coast Golf league.

He is a star performer of the Clearwater team, having qualified for one of the six places with the second highest medal score. Listed among his brilliant achievements is a round in the course record of 72 for the home links for which par is 72. The record never had been equaled since the links was lengthened and otherwise changed some time ago.

Loosens Muscle

"I don't agree with some of the big league bosses who forbid their men to play golf after the season opens," Vance says. "At least, I don't agree from the pitcher's standpoint.

"I believe golf is a great help to my hurling, and I have already told Robby my new contract must contain a clause giving me permission to play golf the day after I pitch.

"In 1924, my best big league season, I played almost every day after working on the mound. I won 28 and lost six baseball games that year.

"After I pitch a game, naturally my arm and shoulder muscles are stiff. By playing golf the next day, I loosen these muscles, for I get the wrist snap, the arm action and shoulder exercise. Most pitchers work out the stiffness by warming up the next day, but I find that the jerky motion of pitching does me more harm than good."

Will Be Ready

Neither does Vance believe that playing golf before pitching is harmful.

"Why, last summer I played 36 holes of golf on one of Brooklyn's off days," he relates. "And the very next day I went to the mound and struck out 13 Pittsburgh Pirates."

The big hurler, who has a winter home here, does not depend upon golf alone to get himself into condition. Hunting, fishing, boating and trap-shooting claim his time. His keen eyesight from the mound holds true with the trap guns and he has an average of 88 out of 100.

"I'll be about ready when the Dodgers start work March 1," he says. "Just a little pitching to get the feel of the ball ought to fix me up. I'll be loosened up long before then."

Nations Compete In Attempts for New Auto Speed

Lockhart to Represent United States With 36-Cylinder Car In Florida Next Month

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Jan. 31. (AP)—On the same wide beach where W. K. Vanderbilt, Barney Oldfield, Henry Ford and other racing pioneers burned new records over the hard-packed sand, England and America soon will renew their battle for automobile speed supremacy.

The trials here February 15 to 22 will mark the 25th anniversary of automobile racing and the first attempt by the United States to regain the world's speed record, which Major H. O. D. Segrave took to England last year after shooting his giant machine over the beach at 203.79 miles per hour.

Frank Lockhart, veteran of American tracks, and J. M. White, Philadelphia manufacturer, in specially constructed racers will seek the new world's record for this country when Captain Malcolm Campbell will attempt to uphold the honor of Great Britain by breaking the mark set by his countryman. In addition, M. Dependin, French driver who recently won the Grand Prix in Spain, is reported planning to enter the international events.

Two Distinct Types.

One of the problems which may be solved is whether the highest speed can be attained by a huge car of enormous power built to overcome wind resistance by sheer force, or by the smaller car designed with a minimum of wind resistance and calculated to gain its speed by a high per minute revolution.

Major Segrave's "Mystery S," which weighed three tons, and White's "Triplex," which will register four tons, represented the first type which Lockhart's new car, Captain Campbell's "Bluebird" and M. Dependin's machine will typify the second.

With his "Bluebird," Captain Campbell held the world's record at 187 miles per hour until Segrave established the new mark. For the Daytona Beach trials Captain Campbell's racer will be equipped with a new body and a special 450-horsepower Napier engine, the secret British admiralty development with which England won the last Schneider cup seaplane race at a five-mile-a-minute clip.

Most Powerful Car.

White is completing a 36-cylinder, three-motored engine, which he expects to develop 1500 horsepower and to be the most powerful ever created. Lockhart's car has been under construction almost a year, but little is known of it. Described as small and light, it is said to have a minimum of wind resistance and a high revolution per minute motor.

To gain a picture of what will be enacted here, one only has to recall Major Segrave's experiences. He registered 72 miles per hour in low gear, threw the car into second until 142 miles per hour was reached and into high gear. At 170 m. p. h. he aimed the machine as one would a gun and released every ounce of power the $100,000 creation would hold.

The giant leaped 10 and 15 feet as it struck slight undulations in the white silica sand. In the blink of an eyelash, it had gone 300 feet. Newspapermen reported they could not turn their heads fast enough to follow the car. After Segrave had taken four miles to slow down he found his hands blistered by the heat of the 24 cylinders.

In addition to the international trials, special races for stock cars have been arranged.

GIRLS' CAGE TOURNEY SCHEDULED AT LAMESA

LAMESA, Texas, Feb. 4.—A South Plains girls' basket ball tournament will be conducted under the auspices of the local high school on February 10 and 11, with F. T. McCollum Jr., promoting the tournament. Already Stanton, Slaton, Crosbyton, Lamesa, Snyder and Mule Shoe have signed applications for the meet. Medals and prizes will be awarded to winners of the tournament. Most all South Plains towns have indicated a desire for such a meet and will participate, according to McCollum, high school principal.

STAMFORD HIGH NOSES OUT BRECKENRIDGE FIVE

STAMFORD, Texas, Feb. 4.—Stamford high defeated Breckenridge high here Friday night in the high school gymnasium by a score of 29 to 27. The game was very hotly contested from start to finish. A large crowd saw the game. Breckenridge recently defeated Stamford in Breckenridge.

INFIELD SET FOR RACE, BUT PITCHING ADDITIONS AND NEW OUTFIELD STRENGTH NEEDED

HOUSTON, Feb. 4.—The 1928 edition of the Houston Buffaloes will bear slight resemblance to the team that last season finished third in the Texas league race. Not only have gigantic changes been worked in the actual club roster by President Fred Ankenman, but the club will be doing business at a new stand, a $350,000 baseball plant that rivals in beauty and size any minor league ball park in the country.

Gigantic changes have been and are being worked in the personnel of the Houston club, but there has been none of the old-time wrecking methods employed to dismantle the Buffs. Rather, there has been a gentle process of withdrawing a piece of weak timber here and there, and replacing it with stronger fibre.

Theoretically Strong

The result should be a ball club theoretically much stronger than the the club that fought Wichita Falls tooth and toenail for the lead over the great part of the 1927 season. In fact, many of the more astute Texas league observers are training their sights on the Houston club, and charting the route for the pennant toward Houston.

A survey of the situation reveals that Houston has disposed of 12 ball players that were 1927 regulars, leaving only eight that saw service regularly. Included in the host that Houston has sent away are the names of players that made Texas league history for Houston last year.

Catchers Joe Burns and Ernie Vick have been sold outright to Omaha, Western league, and Columbus, American association, respectively. Replacing them are Catchers Frank Snyder, Houston's new manager, and Clarence Jonnard, erstwhile Texas leaguer, last year with the Philadelphia Phils.

Snyder expects to bear the brunt of the receiving duty this year directing the Houston club from the field. Snyder replaces Joe Mathes as manager of the Buffs. Mathes was signed in December to manage the Chattanooga Southern association club.

Remake Infield

Johnny Kane, for years the sparkplug of Houston's infield around second base, has been sold to Chattanooga. He will be replaced by Carey Selph. It is hardly proper to mention Selph without his running mate, Louis Benson, who will play short for Houston this year. Selph and Benson were bought by the Bisons from Syracuse, where they established a double-play record in 1927. It might be pertinent to note that Houston ranked last in double plays last year.

Thus, Eddie Hock, another holdover, will be shifted to third to replace Tommy Taylor, who was drafted by the Washington Senators. With Fred Henry, the shuffling initial sacker, at first base, the Houston infield is complete.

Ray Powell is the only survivor of an outfield that was ranked with the league's best last year. Wally Roettger, Ernest Orsatti and Pepper Martin were all sent to the Cards at the close of last season. So far, Houston has Johnny Mokan, obtained from the St. Louis Cards, who procured him in a trade from the Phillies along with Jonnard. The Buffs have also signed George Watkins, outfielder last year with Syracuse.

Pitchers Wanted

It is now the pitching staff that needs reinforcements. Dick Whitworth, Stuart Jacobus and Carl Littlejohn are the reservists. Kenneth Penner, Tex Carleton and Al Grabowski were all sent to Syracuse at the close of last season, along with Firman Warwick, catcher. The other regular hurler, Fred Frankhouse, went to the Cards, where he won five straight games before the season closed there. So far, Herman Bell is the only hurler added to the Houston staff. He was bought from the Cards in the same transaction that brings Jonnard and Mokan to Houston.

Two utility infielders have been carried over by Houston. They are Punk Baker and Art Schacht.

Taking the Houston club by and large as it shapes up at present, it would seem to rank high in both experience and all around ability. Two, possibly three, more pitchers will be sought along with an outfielder to complete the club for spring training, which will be started here about March 1.

Houston pre-season schedule includes games with Detroit, Minneapolis, Omaha and the House of David team.

Playing sensationally the British team won three games to one, 16-17, 15-8, 15-11, 15-8.

BIGGEST WEEK OF LEAGUE BASKET BALL STARTS TUESDAY

Tuesday Night
Landon-Hill-Electrics vs. Hub clothiers.
National guard vs. Junior college.
Continental vs. Draughon.
Wednesday Night
(First Half Playoffs)
Landon-Hill-Electrics vs. Continental.
Texas Electrics vs. P. B. M.-Whippets.
Thursday Night
Draughon vs. Texas Electrics.
P. B. M.-Whippets vs. Continental.
Saturday Night

Lots of Basket Ball

The biggest week of league basket ball Wichita Falls has ever known is on the calendar beginning Tuesday evening with the start of second half championship play in the Commercial league, and ending Saturday night when Landon-Hill company-Texas Electric Service company, co-champions of first half Commercial league play, clash with an invading Dallas team at the junior college gymnasium.

The high spot in the big week of cage entertainment comes Wednesday night when four teams tied for championship honors in the Commercial and girls' leagues settle their arguments in a double header.

Landon-Hill company-Texas Electric Service company and Continental Oil company mix it in the men's section—and what a scrap it promises to be! No less a battle is promised when the girls go to it. P. B. M.-Whippets and Texas Electric Service company are slated to decide which is the best in the girls' league. The first game is to start at 7:30 o'clock.

Both Teams Improved.

The commercial league half of the program presents two teams that deserved their places at the top of the heap at the finish of the first half. Each won four games and lost one, while the next two teams in the standing column each won three and lost two. The L.-H. Electrics lost their opening game of the season to the Hub clothiers, but came along speedily in succeeding weeks and downed their other two chief rivals, National guard and Continental. The fact that the "combination" team defeated the Conocos in their first meeting probably will make this team the favorite to win the playoff.

Continental also displayed its best basket ball in the late stages of the first half and finished up with a hard earned victory last week over the clothiers. A new scoring threat in Jud Waller was developed last week and the Landon-Hill defense is going to be hard pushed to stop the goal shooting of Dickey, Waller and Ray. By the same token, the Conoco defense is not going to have easy sailing in stopping the "big three" of the opposition, Francis, Rawls and Gantner.

Start Second Half.

Both teams play Wednesday night with no rest after their start Tuesday night in second half play. Continental is favored in having the easiest foe in the regularly scheduled league game the evening preceding the titular affair. Conocos play Draughon Business college Tuesday, while Landon-Hill-Electrics must wrestle with the efficient Hub clothiers. The latter game is the first on the evening's program.

National guards play junior college in the second game, with Conocos and Draughon in the final.

Thursday evening the girls start their second half, the two leaders in the first half, Texas Electric Service company and P. B. M.-Whippets playing Draughon and Continental, respectively.

It is a busy week for the Landon-Hill-Electrics. Besides playing two league games, this club also draws a strong team from Dallas for a game Saturday night at junior college. The opposition will be furnished by the Texas Power and Light company team.

MANTELL AND KETONEN SCRAP MONDAY NIGHT

Dutch Mantell and Waine Ketonen, wrestling faudists of two weeks standing, clash Monday night in the feature event of Promoter Alec B. Ross' weekly mat show at the Gym, 605 Scott avenue. On their previous meeting Mantell was the winner and following the match it was announced by the promoter that Mantell would not meet the veteran Finn in a return match. Nevertheless, the two are scheduled Monday night.

Jack Larry of Portland, Oregon, and Lee Meyers of Houston, middleweights, are slated in the preliminary, also a finish skirmish.

Stecher Arrives On Scene Match With Strangler

Heavyweight Wrestling Title to Be Cleared in Bout at St. Louis on February 20

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 4. (AP)—Visions of the winner's share of a $125,000 gate brought Joe Stetcher, claimant of the world's heavyweight wrestling title to St. Louis Saturday. The scissors-hold expert immediately set about to finish off training for the match here February 20, with Ed "Strangler" Lewis, also a claimant, which is expected at last to settle the question of championship rights.

Lewis, cherishing a similar desire for the major portion of the golden harvest, is expected to breeze in Monday.

In the meantime, Promoter Packs is going ahead with plans for staging what he terms the biggest grappling exhibition in history. The coliseum, with a normal seating capacity of 12,000, will be fixed up to seat approximately 14,000. The promoter stated that he has $35,000 worth of reservations now recorded, with sales in the surrounding cities of Chicago, Memphis, Tulsa and Omaha rapidly swelling the total.

Packs is confident the bout will eclipse the $75,000 affair staged back in 1913 when Frank Gotch met Hackenschmidt in Chicago.

Stetcher arrived from his farm training camp at Dodge, Neb., apparently in excellent condition, but weighing 225 pounds, which is slightly above his normal ring weight. Lewis has been working on his famous headlock hold in Kansas City and is expected to arrive here in the pink of condition.

MOORE AND BECKWITH TO MEET FEBRUARY 17

Dempse Moore, Wichita Falls amateur light heavyweight, and Russell Beckwith of Oklahoma are scheduled in the 10-round feature event of a boxing show scheduled at the Gym for February 17, according to announcement of Promoter Alec B. Ross.

The Gym matchmaker was busily engaged over the weekend lining up more than 20 entries in the amateur tourney for a show Wednesday night and the professionals were forced to wait until next week for their run in the ring.

In the senior girls' division Bunger won out by beating Proffitt, 49 to 12, and Colston, 26 to 15. The Bunger junior girls and Bitter Creek junior boys won in their divisions by default.

The Young county championship tournament will be played here next Friday with the following teams competing: Olney, Jean, Newcastle, Loving, Graham, Ellasvill Bitter Creek and Flint Creek.

ARTISTIC SUCCESS WAS THIS HUNT

Twenty-Nine Geese, Twenty-Three Ducks and Three Men —Photo by McGee

Outwitting the wily Canadian grey goose is a severe task for the best of hunters, but Jim King and Jim Robinson of Wichita Falls, and John F. Robinson and A. E. Grimes of Fort Worth, the first named three being shown in the above photo, both the best of 25 in a two-day shoot early in the week. The battle scene was laid on the Brazos river northwest of Munday in Knox county. The bag of geese is one of the biggest reported in Wichita Falls in several years and the greater part of it went to the Isaak Walton league banquet Friday night.

HELEN PAYSON GRABS OFF BERMUDA CROWN

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Feb. 4. (AP) Miss Helen Payson of Portland, Me., won the women's annual Bermuda golf championship here Saturday by vanquishing Miss Ada Mackenzie of Toronto, former Canadian titleholder, by 3 and 2 in the 36-hole final round.

CUB MANAGER PLEASED WITH TEAM'S OUTLOOK

CHICAGO, Feb. 4. (AP)—Manager Joe McCarthy of the Cubs arrived Saturday in the midst of a warm wave which added signs of spring to the baseball situation. Two months of ice skating at his home in Buffalo, had put McCarthy in spring training condition. He continued westward Saturday night to prepare the Cubs' quarters at Catalina, for the squad of batterymen which leaves February 10.

The infield, said McCarthy, is not a problem at all, as Freddy Maguire, the new second baseman, is "ready," and Johnny Butler, will be acceptable at third, if no one else comes through.

"Condition of the pitching staff, is going to count a lot in the 1928 race," McCarthy said, in explaining the early calls to arms. "It's a cinch Pittsburgh and Cincinnati will not suffer from the sort of bad pitching they received last year, during the first two months of the race. Therefore, we've got to be in shape to meet them on equal terms."

Golf Averages Show Little Fluctuation

MacDonald Smith Second in El Paso Open to Keep His Score at Extremely Low Figure; Plays 18 Holes in 71 5-6 Strokes

Although Larry Nabholtz won the El Paso open, he didn't particularly disturb the standings in golf's medal averages.

MacDonald Smith continues in the lead, having played 18 rounds of tournament golf with the remarkable average of 71 5-6 strokes to the round, or 287 1-3 strokes per 72-hole tournament.

Since the winter season began, Smith has played in five tournaments, having low score at Los Angeles and Palos Verdes, second low score at Long Beach and El Paso and fourth lowest score in the Mid-South at Pinehurst, the latter a 36-hole event.

Leaders in the averages continue in the same positions they held a week before. Abe and Al Espinosa still are having a brotherly struggle for sixth and seventh place positions.

To date Walter Hagen hasn't entered the lists. When he does competition will grow hotter. The averages:

FORT WORTH, Texas, Feb. 4. (AP) Spring training for the battery men and probably the young infielders of the Fort Worth baseball club will start February 27, three weeks from Monday, Paul LaGrave, business manager of the club, definitely announced Saturday.

At the same time he also let it be known that Howard Lindimore is once again a Panther.

The veteran second baseman, who has played with the Atmen through most of the last two campaigns, was announced sold to Nashville in the Southern league some weeks ago. There was some misunderstanding, complications recently arose and LaGrave called off the deal.

Pre-season work of the Cats will be done at Panther park as usual.

Every member of the squad will be due to be here by March 5, just a week after the pitchers and catchers start work.

ABILENE, Texas, Feb. 4. (AP)—Texas Tech's weary Matadors wound up their week's stay in Abilene Saturday night by dropping their second game to the Abilene Christian college Wild Cats, 36 to 32.

GOLFERS FORCED INDOORS BUT HOPE TO START TITLE SPRINT WITH EIGHTEEN HOLES SUNDAY

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Feb. 4. (AP)—Chafing under a two-day delay caused by rains some hundred-odd professionals assembled here for the annual Texas open golf tournament watched the skies anxiously Saturday night, hoping for clear weather and a chance to start the competition Sunday.

The field was scheduled to start the 18 holes of medal play Friday, but heavy rains made this impossible and a severe thunder shower Friday night left so much water on the course Saturday morning that the event had to be postponed a second time.

Forecast More Rain

Weather forecasts indicated that the rains would continue at intervals Sunday, but the course dried considerably Saturday and the committee in charge of the event hoped that the first 18 holes could be gotten out of the way Sunday. In that case another 18 holes would be played Monday and 36 holes Tuesday.

The course was closed all day Saturday and the assembled golfers spent most of their time playing bridge or swinging clubs indoors.

Another Postponement.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 4. (AP)—Officials of the South Central Open Golf tournament, scheduled to start here next Wednesday, indicated Saturday the tournament probably would be postponed because of the delayed start of the Texas open tournament at San Antonio. They said they would not decide definitely until they communicated with officials of the Texas tournament. Many players in the Texas meet were to enter the tournament here.

PROBE INTO TRIO OF DEADLOCK JURY VERDICTS ORDERED

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 4. (AP)—An investigation of all three federal court juries which disagreed in the case of Frank De Mayo and Robert Carnaham, charged with conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws, will be made immediately, R. R. Brewster Jr., assistant United States district attorney announced today.

Charges of jury tampering in connection with the third trial which ended in a hung jury January 27, when but one man held out for acquittal, were filed against three men yesterday by Roscoe C. Patterson, United States district attorney.

The charges followed the story of D. W. Mathews, Lawson, Mo., foreman of the jury, that he had been approached before the trial with offers of $500 and $1000 to hang the jury.

LEADER OF REPUBLICANS ASKS FOR UNINSTRUCTED DELEGATION FROM OKLA.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 4.(AP)—An uninstructed Oklahoma delegation to the Republican national convention in Kansas City was urged late today by W. G. Skelly of Tulsa, national committeeman, following a meeting here of the state executive committee.

At the same time Mr. Skelly formally announced his candidacy to succeed himself on the national committee and said he would not be a candidate for delegate to the Kansas City convention.

Mr. Skelly has just returned from Washington where he arranged for hotel accommodations and convention seats for the Oklahoma delegation.

"I am for an uninstructed delegation from Oklahoma," Mr. Skelly said. "We have a number of splendid potential nominees for president, but not until the convention is actually held can we properly determine who is the best man and will make the strongest candidate. Furthermore an instructed delegation is only a dummy organization and obviously does not wield the power and influence that an unfettered delegation does."

While the proprietors admitted they never wrote home for money themselves, receipts for the first few days have paid a month's rent, they said.

AUSTIN, Feb. 4. (AP)—George B. Terrell, commissioner of agriculture urged Governor Dan Moody Saturday to speedily appoint the remaining four members of the state pink bool worm commission so it can strike at worm infestation in Midland, Martin and Ector counties. Three more commissioners must be appointed from the infested section and one more from the state-at-large, Mr. Terrell said, explaining that there must be one commissioner from each of the four judicial districts found to be involved, and that only one has been appointed. One commissioner from the state at large also is lacking. W. R. Dickinson of Lubbock having declined to serve.

Commissioner Terrell said West Texas including the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, have been urging him to get speedy action in the situation. Eradication measures may cost $2,000,000 with the federal government "going half" on it. The department has estimated. Hearings are expected to be held in each of judicial districts about eradication measures, Mr. Terrell said.

HOUSTON CLUB WOMEN PROTEST REMOVAL OF BIENNIAL CHAIRMAN

HOUSTON, Feb. 4. (AP)—Officially characterized as an unjust act, the Federated clubs of Houston, with a membership of 8500, today announced that it had forwarded to Mrs. John D. Sherman at Washington, president of the National Federation of Women's clubs, a resolution protesting against the recent summary removal of Mrs. J. U. Fields of Haskell, Texas, as state biennial chairman.

Mrs. Fields, it appears, was removed by the national executive board because she failed to raise $25,000 by January 7 for entertainment of the biennial meeting of the National Federation of Women's clubs at San Antonio, Texas, May 29 to June 6. Texas club women. Mrs. H. M. Heyde, president of the Federated clubs of Houston, said today Texas club women understood that the time limit was February 28.

The resolution recited that because Mrs. Sherman had asked for the resignation of Mrs. Fields, "whom the women of Texas had elected as chairman of the state biennial, and since Mrs. Fields had not resigned, we ask that she immediately be recognized."

Mrs. Heyde said that the Federated clubs of Houston is the largest unit in the fourth Texas district and that the district is the largest in the state, which contains 35,000 women club members.

The protest, Mrs. Heyde said, was a part of an ever-increasing surge of resentment in Texas at Mrs. Sherman's action to which the national executive board had lent authority.

Among those who were present at the meeting were Edward A. Bates of Los Angeles; Mrs. Modeska M. Haskin of Brooklyn, and Theodore Hopkins of Akron, O.

Mark Hopkins died in 1878.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Troop twenty, R. E. Davis, scoutmaster, opened its meeting Friday night at the Southern Presbyterian church at 7:30 with the pledge of allegiance to the flag and the scout oath.

The scoutmaster talked to the troop on passing tests.

There were seven boys at the meeting.

Several contests were held and several games were played.

The meeting was closed with the pledge of allegiance to the flag and the scout oath.

Extension

Much progress has been made this year toward organization of new troops in other towns in the district and reorganization of old troops that have been out of registration for some time.

Olney is one of the cities where scouts have been out of registration for some time. They are now reorganized under the auspices of the American Legion and will hold a father and son banquet Friday, February 17, in that city.

Graham has had three troops at one time but through absence of leadership and various other reasons, scouting has been dead in that city for some time now. Two new troops are to be organized there soon, however, under the sponsorship of the chamber of commerce.

After a year or two of boosting scouting in Charlie and Byers, word has been received that a troop will be organized in each of these towns under the sponsorship of the school.

Troop One

Troop one, Lowell Nichols, scoutmaster, met Friday night at the Floral Heights Methodist church at 7 o'clock. The meeting was in charge of Milton Johnson, troop committeeman, as the scoutmaster was unable to attend on account of illness.

Leonard Ratican, better known as "Red," applied for membership. He was sent out of the room with a member of the troop and the scouts voted on him. The result was unanimous in his favor.

Robert Sheldon was elected scribe.

After the business meeting mats were brought out and contests in jumping were held. "Red" Ratican, new member of the troop, excelled.

The troop was dismissed at 9:30 o'clock.

Regional Officer to Be Here

Word was received during the past week that E. E. Voss, deputy regional scout executive, will visit this city for the purpose of reorganizing the council.

Petrolia Scouts Meet

The meeting opened with the scout oath, followed by a quiz on second class and tenderfoot tests.

Plans were made for a father and son banquet to be held Tuesday, February 7, at the scout hall.

It was decided that the troop would visit troop twelve of Wichita Falls Friday night, February 10. Troop twelve will visit the Petrolia troop soon.

A 30-minute play period was held and the following games were played: "block relay," "poison," "snatch the handkerchief" and "skunk tag."

Plans were made for an all-day advancement hike to be held Saturday.

The meeting closed with the scoutmaster's benediction.

Troop Committeemen's Conference

The last week in February a one-night troop committeemen's conference will be held. This conference will be for the purpose of enlightening troop committeemen as to their duties.

Troop Twenty-Two

Troop twenty-two, Bob Tinsley, scoutmaster, opened its meeting Friday night at the First Methodist church at 7:30 with the pledge of allegiance to the flag and the scout oath.

The troop was divided into four patrols and an election of patrol leaders, assistant patrol leaders and scribe was held.

A study period followed with patrol contests. Questions on all tests and on the flag were asked by the scoutmaster.

After a game of "knock them down and grab it" the meeting was dismissed with the scout laws.

Leadership Training

An outdoor session of the scout leaders' training school will be held Thursday evening. The men will leave the First Methodist church at 6 o'clock sharp and go to Weeks park, where they will cook their suppers out of doors. After supper a camp fire program will be held.

Troop Five

Troop five, which has not been meeting for lack of a scoutmaster, will hold a reorganization meeting Friday night, February 10, at the Catholic church hall, with Leo Andrade as scoutmaster. It is hoped that a good representation of the old membership of the troop will be present, as well as some new ones.

Scoutmasters' School

Saturday, February 18, members of the scoutmasters' school will go to the scout camp at Diversion dam to spend Saturday night and all day Sunday. Scout Executive J. B. Parrish of Altus, Okla., and Scout Executive G. N. Quirl of Eastland, will be present to help with instructions.

Troop Nine

Troop nine, D. M. Burgan, scoutmaster, met at the Floral Heights Baptist church Friday night and opened the meeting with the pledge of allegiance and the scout oath.

Ten scouts, 10 visitors, and two new members were present.

One of the trusty scouts of this troop, Albert McClellan, is leaving for Bowie where he lived once before.

Scoutmaster Burgan read roll call and dues were paid.

The scoutmaster and Patrol Leader Gordon Ellis arranged the scout hall so games could be played. A contest game of "whippet and packard" was played. The "whippets" won three games. A game of "poison" was also played.

The meeting was closed with the pledge of allegiance, the scout oath, and the scoutmaster's benediction.

Board of Review

The board of review will be held at 5:30 o'clock at scout headquarters Monday and Tuesday, February 6 and 7. Monday, examination for first and second class tests will be given, and Tuesday merit badge examinations will be given. A large representation of scouts is expected to attend this board of review, which will be the first of 1928.

Troop Twelve

A very interesting and novel parents' night program was held Friday night at the Grace Methodist church when troop 12 demonstrated its knowledge of several branches of scouting.

The program opened with a flag ceremony. The members of the troop assembled at the back of the troop meeting room, the color bearers and color guards advanced to the front of the room with the flags and the troop stood at attention while Ken Wharton, troop bugler, played "To the Colors." This was followed with the pledge of allegiance to the flag and the scout oath, led by Ken Wharton.

An interesting demonstration of the Schaeffer method of ressuscitation and bandages for different types of injuries was given by Harold Dawson, Bonner Barton, Ken Wharton and Lee Goodson. This demonstration showed that the boys knew what they were doing, as it was done with swiftness and skill.

A harmonica and jew's harp contest was held between Scouts Vernon Culpepper, Glenn Wharton, Pete White, Orby Hodges, and Albert White. Glenn Wharton, who won the harmonica contest at the last jamboree, delivered some very pretty numbers on the harmonica he won as a prize.

Joe Perry and Bonner Barton entertained the visitors with a pillow fight. Bonner won and was challenged to another fight by Pete White, who was also defeated. Bonner was declared the champion pillow fighter of the troop.

A knot tying contest was held between Russell Leach and Orby Hodges. The contest was judged a tie, as both boys finished all nine required knots in 17 seconds.

A fire by friction and flint and steel contest was held. Bonner Barton had a fire in 15 seconds, and Joe Perry was a close second with flint and steel. Other scouts who entered this contest were Harold Dawson, Morris Fisch and E. C. Stocton.

An amusing game of "Are You Ready?" was played by Lee Goodson and Harold Dawson.

Frank B. Creighton, scout executive, gave an interesting talk in which he related the history of the Boy Scouts of America.

The feature number of the program was the Indian war dance. Troop 12 has chosen as its emblem and name the Indian, and the boys have been working for many months on their Indian war bonnets and other paraphernalia. Beautiful scenery made by the boys and painted by Glenn Wharton formed the background for their Indian council ring. All the lights were out when D. W. Ross, scoutmaster, entered with his tom-tom and beat the signal for the other braves to appear. The dance represented a council held by the chiefs of several tribes of Indians in which they made plans for conquering the white man and driving him from their land. Cooper Waters was the first chief to arise and smoke the peace pipe. Then he danced around the circle and finally presented the peace pipe to another chief, who smoked the pipe and repeated the performance of the first chief. This was repeated until every chief had smoked the pipe and passed it on to some other chief. Then they all entered into the war dance. Finally they all danced away and the tom-tom's beats grew dimmer until everything was silent again. This was the troop's first public demonstration of the war dance and was considered excellent by those who saw it.

Following the war dance refreshments were served and the visitors were invited to see the troop handicraft room. This proved extremely interesting. There were the neckerchief slides, etc., that nearly every scout troop has in its handicraft display, but in addition to these things there were bows, arrows, Indian war bonnets, Indian peace pipes, old Indian arrow tips and many other old Indian articles.

Calendars

Scout headquarters still has about 30 calendars that were presented to the scouts of the city by the Wichita Cycle company. It is hoped that 30 scouts who do not have their calendars will appear at headquarters within the next week and get their calendars.

Troop Two

Troop two held its regular meeting Friday night at the First Methodist church. The meeting was opened with the scout oath, scout laws and the pledge of allegiance.

After the opening the scoutmaster, W. B. McClure, gave some time to the study of first aid from the scout handbook. Troop two plans to have a study period each Friday night, taking up some phase of the handbook at each meeting.

Following the study period the boys enjoyed several games, among them "challenge," "leg wrestle" and basket ball.

Troop two has a good basket ball team composed of the larger boys of the troop. Three games were played last week, one with Reagan Junior High school and two with the Junior sophomore team at the high school. The team would like more competition from the local scout troops.

The meeting closed with the scout oath and laws. The basket ball team then went to the Gym, where Captain Irwin gave his men a short workout, followed by a scrimmage with the second string men.

Anniversary Sunday.

Two special events have been planned for scout Sunday, which will be February 12. The Rev. Nat Grafton, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will preach a sermon to the Boy Scouts at his 11 o'clock service. All scouts in the city who are not having special scout services at their own churches are cordially invited to attend this service in a body. The boys are requested to wear their uniforms and bring their troop flags.

Sunday afternoon, February 12, an archery tournament will be held in which all scouts in the city are invited to participate.

During anniversary week special troop activities will be carried out to celebrate the 18th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America.

Troop Three.

Troop three, Lee Loeffler, scoutmaster, journeyed to Electra Friday night to visit Taylor Cash and his Indian troop. Thirty boys left the First Methodist church at 7:15 p. m. and arrived at Electra at about 8:30, where they went to the Thompson Ward school, where the Indian troop meets. They were cordially received by the Electra scouts and were divided among the different patrols.

Many interesting stunts and events were given. Two demonstrations of fire building were given. Fire was made by flint and steel in 10 seconds and by friction in 15 seconds.

Two stunts were given. One was a playlet of Bunker Hill and his prize fighting and the other was of Napoleon and one of his victories.

All the troop three scouts had a very good time and it is hoped that the Electra Indians will visit their troop some time.

Fort Worth Trip.

Boys who wish to pass their first class swimming tests will be allowed the privilege of a trip to Fort Worth the middle of this month. The trip will cost $2 plus meals. Reservations may be made for this trip now.

Troop Thirteen.

Troop 13, J. H. Kauffman, scoutmaster, opened its meeting Wednesday night at Temple Israel with the scout oath. The flags were raised while the troop stood at attention.

Minutes were read and corrections made.

A troop contest was announced in which there will be six divisions: Leatherwork, artistic knot boards, aeroplanes, paper knives, boomerangs and bow and arrows.

The troop was divided into two patrols. The big boys were put in one and the younger boys in the other.

A snappy game was played and the meeting was closed with the oath and the flag lowering ceremony.

Inter-City Archery Contest.

Plans are under way for a scout archery contest between the scouts of this city and those of Denison, to be held in the near future. This promises to be an interesting event.

Troop Four, the Pirates

Troop four held its regular meeting at the First Christian church Friday night. The meeting opened with patrol assembly and "assembly," blown by Edwin Suttin, troop bugler.

The scout oath, laws, motto and the allegiance to the flag were repeated, followed by patrol inspection, which resulted in a tie between the Jackass patrol, Henry Helgerson, patrol leader, and the Beaver patrol, Emmett Paulson, patrol leader. Each lacked one member being 100 per cent, but all present were in uniform.

There were 37 scouts present, 25 of whom were in complete uniform. There were 15 visitors. The troop was led in a few snappy yells by L. D. Herbert, troop yell leader. Patrol calls and yells were given, after which patrol squats were given.

The Flying Eagle patrol gave a relay race with rocks. The Stag patrol gave a paper blowing contest. The Raccoon patrol gave a contest on knowledge of the troops of Wichita Falls.

The scoutmaster, Mr. Tevis, made a few announcements. The passing of tests was stressed. Max Lloyd, D. L. Smith, Emery Davis and Douglas Balden are to join the troop soon and will probably be assigned to the new patrol which troop four is organizing. When this patrol is organized troops four and seven will have eight patrols.

The Pirates' troop charters are now in the scout room and all scouts were told to look at them. Troops four and seven, generally known as troop four, now boast of one of the best and most attractive scout rooms in the state. Members of troop four Sunday school class were urged to be present and bring one Sunday morning. The troop and Sunday school class form a sort of union with John Tevis as scoutmaster and teacher. Troop four is 100 per cent in membership of a church.

Edwin White, Eagle Scout and an old-timer of troop four, junior assistant scoutmaster, and in the honorable patrol, the Pine Tree patrol, has a cinch of becoming the first Eagle Pom Scout in the city. The pom scout is a new addition to scouting and the highest honor a scout can attain in scouting. He was given a generous applause.

Many bows and arrows have been made in the troop and the whole troop is so interested in archery that the Pirates will soon be eligible to be a logical contender for the championship of the city. Edwin Sutton, senior patrol leader, has a shop for making bows and arrows for all Boy Scouts of the city.

The troop is wanting to go on an overnight hike and make use of the 12 good pup tents donated by the church. Mr. Tevis announces that we will take the hike as soon as the weather is favorable. A new game of base ball, by throwing washers into a ring marked with hits and outs by chalk, was played. L. D. Herbert was pilot of one side and Maynard Creighton of the other. L. D. piloted the "Spudders" and Maynard the "Pirates." The Spudders won by a score of 11 to 8.

Junior Assistant Scoutmasters Edwin Suttin and Edwin White were in charge of the meeting. Troop four has a hall of fame, all patrol leaders and junior assistant scoutmasters will have their pictures put in it, including the following boys: Edwin Suttin, Edwin White, Richard Griggs, L. D. Herbert, Emmett Paulson, Bryant Creighton, Maynard Creighton, Henry Helgerson and newly selected patrol leader of the new patrol, which is to be organized soon. The meeting closed with the scoutmaster's benediction.

CAMP FIRE SPARKS

The Adi-Iwah Camp Fire group met at the home of Mrs. R. E. Davis, guardian, Wednesday afternoon. Plans were made to begin work toward the national birthday honor. Each girl will make one garment for a child's wardrobe to be distributed by the needlework guild or Red Cross. Each girl will select her own honor from the list to fulfill the other requirements toward the national honor. Plans were made for a group party on February 15.

A nature hike was enjoyed by the group the previous week. All the girls hiked to Cedar Park pool. Each girl went on a 15-minute hike, to see what she could find in the way of beauty in nature. As they sat in their campfire circle, each girl told what she had seen. The camp craft honor was earned for cooking eggs on hot stones.

The Aishi Camp Fire Girls met in their club room Friday afternoon. At the business session the following officers were elected: President, Edna Mae Stegal; vice president, Dora Jennet Nix; treasurer, Frances Hyland; secretary, Charlotte Kennedy, and Millie Pastusek, chairman of the social committee. The girls began work on carving of paper knives.

The Cantawayua group, Mrs. Frank Jones, guardian, met with the Zundelowitz group to rehearse the skit to be given before the Parent-Teacher association Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. R. E. Davis met with the girls at their regular club period, Tuesday morning.

The Takoma Camp Fire Girls met at the home of Margaret Davis Wednesday afternoon. Three of the girls, Kathlyn Medlinger, Mary Teresa Boyle, and Alma Nichols, who are working for their fire makers rank, prepared and served dinner for other members of the group, actually doing the planning, buying, and serving. A menu of creamed beef, mashed potatoes, cold slaw, hot rolls, jello with whipped cream and cake was served to Mrs. Hyland, guardian, Mrs. Davis, Dorothy Hatcher, Roberta Hayes, Jennie Marie Walsh, and Margaret Davis.

The Guardians association will hold its monthly meeting at the new headquarters in the Memorial auditorium. The building will be scouted for chairs enough for members to sit in. Any furniture house or individual who has a surplus of chairs might do a good turn to Camp Fire by donating chairs or a sofa.

A reduction of about $10 a ton also permitted Chilean nitrate companies to compete more successfully against synthetic nitrate and with the increase in sales, prices have recovered about $3.75 a ton from the low levels last year. Exports for 1928 are now estimated at 2,700,000 tons.

STOCK OPERATORS REGAIN CONFIDENCE AS PRICES REVIVE

NEW YORK, Feb. 4. (AP)—The stock market today rallied briskly in the last few minutes of trading, after an earlier period of heaviness. Persistent strength of a few issues such as Vanadium Steel, which climbed 7½ points to 87, the highest since 1919, induced considerable short covering and led to demonstrations of last minute strength in many quarters of the list. Optimistic notes sounded by the weekly business reviews, and a $12,000,000 decline in stock exchange member loans were factors in restoring confidence in the face of an increase in the San Francisco federal reserve bank's rediscount rate.

Sharp criticism of Chesapeake & Ohio purchases of Erie Stock voiced last night by the Kemp committee of stockholders, caused an early decline of 3 points in Erie shares, but nearly half the loss subsequently was made up. Delaware & Hudson, however, failed to recover any of a 3½ point drop.

Several leading issues which were headed downward during the first hour or so, turned their losses into gains before the session was over. General Motors opened at 134, sagged to 133¼ and then snapped back to 134⅞, a net gain of a point. U. S. Steel rallied to 143⅛ after earlier heaviness, and Bethlehem and Crucible Steel each gained more than a point on the day after starting toward lower ground.

Allis Chalmers had a net advance of 5¼ to 133⅛, a record price, and Hudson Motors sold up 1¾ to 84⅝. Radio was forced down 1⅝ early in the session on selling induced by reports from London of progress in plans to inaugurate telephone service based on the new beam radio devices.

Nevada Copper, usually an inactive stock, was bought in large amounts, forcing the price up to 23⅛, the highest since 1917. Gains of 1 to 2 points were recorded by several outstanding favorites, such as Montana Power, Montgomery Ward, Greene Cananea Copper, International Match preferred, American Linseed and Warner Bros "A."

A firm trend was shown by the foreign exchanges. Slightly lower quotations were given for both wheat and cotton. Sugar was unchanged and coffee prices were a shade higher.

The weekly statement of clearing house banks showed a deficit in reserve of $20,283,840, a decrease in reserve of $26,712,360. Actual condition this day of clearing house members showed decreases in all the principal items except time deposits, which gained $1,141,000. Loans, discounts and investments declined $13,408,000; cash in own vaults $1,504,000; reserve in federal reserve bank of member banks $27,254,000, and net demand deposits $4,112,000.

Bond Market

NEW YORK, Feb. 4. (AP)—Further easing of bond prices resulted today from the uneasiness of traders over the financial outlook. There was considerable weekend profit-taking in issues which had been buoyant earlier in the week, and a spurt in new offerings, bringing the largest total of the year, close to $202,000,000, gave the listed market considerable competition.

New York Traction liens which have been going up on the strength of the Interborough's movement for higher fares, turned reactionary. New York Railway 6s and Third Avenue Elevated 5s lost more than a point each.

Several of the railroad mortgages inclined to heaviness, including Seaboard 6s and 5s, Northern Pacific 3s and Lehigh Valley 4s, all of which sustained losses of more than a point. Such leading issues as the Missouri Pacific bonds, Erie 5s, Rock Island 4s and Southern Pacific 4s showed resistance to selling pressure, in some instances scoring slight gains.

Public utilities turned extremely quiet after the week's firm movement, and there was only nominal trading in the important industrial issues.

There were a few firm spots in the foreign group, but prices on the whole eased off. City of Copenhagen 5½s gained a point, and fractional advances were made by several of the leading French issues.

Trading in the federal government department was on a limited scale and price changes were negligible.

Sugar and Coffee

NEW YORK, Feb. 4. (AP)—The raw sugar market was quiet today, but the undertone was steady. Buyers bid the last paid prices of $4.24, but holders asked slightly more and no sales were reported.

Price changes in futures were narrow. The undertone was steady, due to the firmer tone of the spot market. While there was some liquidation and commission house selling, offerings were not aggressive and were absorbed by houses with trade and Cuban connections. The market opened and closed unchanged to 1 point higher. Approximate sales 11,450 tons. March closed 2.54; May 2.63; July 2.73; Sept. 2.81; Dec. 2.88; Jan. 2.86.

The refined market was unchanged 5.70 for fine granulated with better inquiry reported.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4. (AP)—Coffee futures were steady today owing to the slightly steadier showing of Brazil and further covering or trade buying. Old style May sold up to 13.67 and closed at that figure, the market for old style contracts generally showing net advances of 2 to 8 points, while the new style was net unchanged. Estimated sales old style, 14,000; new style, 1000. Closing quotations: Old style—March 13.84; May 13.67; July 13.52; Sept. 13.33; Dec. 13.21; new style—March 20.70; May 19.55; July 19.32; Sept. 18.83; Dec. 18.45.

Dry Goods Market

NEW YORK, Feb. 4. (AP)—Cotton goods were very quiet today with prices irregular. Raw silk has been selling quite freely for mill delivery. Burlaps were easier. Moderate sales were reported in men's wear lines. Wash fabrics sold more freely.

CURB MARKET QUOTATIONS

Sales of bonds—2,890,000.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4. (By the Associated Press)—In the absence of the hasty liquidation that unsettled market quotations on several periods yesterday, the general list of stocks on the curb exchange presented a firmer front at today's opening. Mercantile Chain Stores as a group came forward with early advances of about 2 points with Grand Stores and Melville Shoe featuring.

Industrial shares were mixed in trend. Celanese Corporation preferred continued to encounter selling from the start and suffered a loss of 4 points early. The common shares, Aluminum and United States Gypsum were also lower. Bancitaly Corporation, Gobel Incorporated and Johns Manville displayed strength with some gains of a point or more on moderate dealings.

There was a distinct broadening of activities in the last hour's dealings and numerous issues found substantial support on the upturn that developed in some sections. Among the wider movements during the short session Celluloid rose 6¾ points while Tubize Artificial Silk dropped 7 points to 465.

Public utility showed moderate strength. American Light improved 1½ points.

BETTER WEATHER FACTOR IN DECLINE OF COTTON PRICES

NEW YORK, Feb. 4. (AP)—Better weather reports from the Southwest and uncertainty of the labor situation in Lancashire, were factors on the decline in the cotton market today. After selling up from 17.24 to 17.35, May broke to 17.10 and closed at 17.14, the general market closing steady at net declines of 16 to 23 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 4 to 8 points. Initial selling orders were comparatively light, and the market stiffened up after the call on covering and local buying probably inspired by firmer Liverpool cables than anticipated. March sold up to 17.17 or 3 points net higher, while October rallied from 17.10 to 17.16, or within 2 points of yesterday's closing quotations.

This bulge met increased offerings, however, and the forenoon market broke quite sharply on reports of rains in the western belt, which trader evidently thought would extend into West Texas where moisture is believed to be seriously needed. There appeared to be a renewal of old long liquidation on the decline which uncovered stop orders, the break extending to 16.92 for March and 17.00 for October or about 18 to 23 points net lower. Closing quotations were a few points up from the lowest on covering.

Private cable advices said the relatively steady tone of Liverpool was due to covering with trade calling and continental buying, but that political disturbances in Indian were checking business in cotton goods at Manchester and that cotton yarn sales were running below production.

Later advices from Manchester said the labor situation there was considered serious, as employers were expected to insist upon a reduction in wages and increase in working hours, proposals which were rejected by employees at a conference yesterday.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 98,476 bales, against 160,121 last year, and 91,253 two years ago.

New Orleans Cotton

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 4. (AP)—The cotton market was dominated mainly by reports of precipitation in the drought section of the belt today and although prices had some moderate rallies, the general trend was downward.

March contracts after selling up to 17.02 gradually eased off on selling induced by the rains and on placing of hedges until it reached 16.80. Following a rally of 6 points in the late trading the option closed at 16.81, 17 points net down. The general market closed steady at net decline of 17 to 20 points.

Although Liverpool cables were higher than due, the execution of some overnight selling orders influenced an easy opening here, but the market soon responded to the relative firmness of Liverpool and May traded to 17.06 and July 17.10, 2 to 4 points up.

Map indications of relief for the drought stricken section of the western part of the belt induced moderate selling and this coupled with some hedging forced May down to 16.82 and July 16.90, or 20 to 24 points under the highs and 18 to 20 points below the previous close.

After rallying 5 to 8 points in the late trading final quotations showed a loss of approximately $1 a bale with May at 16.83 and July 16.70.

CORN PRICE SWELLS WHILE WHEAT SKIDS ON REPORT OF GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 4. (AP)—Directly opposite results from unsettled weather developed in the grain markets today, corn going upward in price and wheat down. Good export business in corn helped to lift corn values.

Closing quotations on corn were firm, ¼c to ⅜c net higher. Wheat finished unchanged to ⅝c off, oats at ¼c decline, to ⅛@¼c advance, and provisions 22c to 60c down.

Right from the outset, the corn market showed an upward trend, widespread wet mild conditions prevalent being adverse for the movement of the corn crop. Besides, new export business in corn was estimated at 250,000 bushels or more, with purchasing going on both at the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic seaboard.

The trading basis at the gulf especially was firmer, 6¾ cents over the Chicago May price being paid and offerings scant even at 7 cents.

Buenos Aires reports that the corn market there had finished 1 cent to 1¾ cents higher, with new crop months showing the most strength, received particular notice, and so too did advices that Liverpool corn values were at the highest point yet this season. On the other hand, the cash corn trading basis in Chicago, was unchanged to 1 cent lower, the decline being on the poorer grades. Bookings of corn to arrive in Chicago were small, mostly from other markets rather than from growers.

Influenced by corn strength, wheat rallied a little at the last, but throughout the day was chiefly dominated by the fact that scattered rains had fallen in parts of Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas, a sharp break in wheat prices at Liverpool was also a bearish factor in connection with reports of heavy shipments of wheat from Argentina.

Oat prices kept within narrow limits and were swayed by the action of other grain.

Active selling of lard by eastern houses and foreigners pulled down the provision market.

HIKE IN BANK RATE FEATURES IN WEEK OF HECTIC TRADING

NEW YORK, Feb. 4. (AP)—Increased rediscount rates by New York and San Francisco Federal Reserve banks, a decline in sterling exchange and heavy liquidation of cotton were the outstanding features of the financial markets this week. In the stock market, many traders felt growing conviction that the raises in rediscount rates was directed against speculative credit, and with this belief in mind, considerable selling took place.

The decline in sterling exchange was due to the expectations that large amounts of American capital would be withdrawn from London to take advantage of better rates here following the rediscount raise. Other exchanges followed an irregular trend, with few important gains on the week.

Selling of cotton futures was based on unfavorable mill news from various quarters and to indications of a large crop. March cotton fell below 17 cents. Softening prices for sugar also occurred during the week, but other commodities were relatively steady, except rubber which showed easing tendencies, due to the failure of the British colonial office to restrict shipments.

Bond prices slipped slightly downward following the increase in the New York rediscount rate, but there was no general wave of selling. New offerings for the week approximated $202,000,000, most of which was promptly taken by dealers.

The return of February 1 checks to the banks caused a lowering of call money rates around the middle of the week, but there was a slight stiffening of bankers acceptances. Time money remained unchanged.

Grain Pit Notes

CHICAGO, Feb. 4. (AP)—A more bearish feeling prevailed among wheat traders after the close, and in most quarters it was felt that the persistent pressure of Argentine wheat abroad would ultimately bring about a lower range. To some extent the market is expected to be influenced by weather conditions in the Southwest, and there was fair selling during the day on private forecasts of rain over the weekend, although the official forecast failed to indicate any moisture. May, at the inside figure today was the lowest since January 11.

Although the export sales of corn at the seaboard and Atlantic coast are not large in comparison with the size of the crop, the foreign business has considerable sentimental effect, and many of the leading operators express confidence that the market will work higher. The gulf basis was about the highest on the crop, with 7c over Chicago May mentioned. The sharp advance in corn prices at Buenos Aires today with May 1¾c higher at 78⅝c was regarded as reflecting a less favorable crop outlook in Argentina.

Expectations are for a decrease of around 1,250,000 bushels in the domestic visible supply of wheat Monday comparing with 1,070,000 bushels the previous week, and 1,133,000 bushels last year. Corn may increase 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 bushels or more, depending on whether the grain on track is unloaded or not.

Liverpool wheat is due unchanged to ¼c higher based on action of the Chicago market today.

Grain futures purchases February 3 were: Wheat 9,378,000 bushels; corn 12,901,000; oats 777,000; rye 303,000. Total 23,359,000 bushels.

GOHLKE SEMI-WILDCAT TO RENEW ACTIVITY GERALDINE AREA

By JIMMIE MAXWELL

The usual number of dry holes and a few producers featured another week of development in the Wichita Falls district. New locations were also made, these being scattered throughout the various fields, but as a whole the end of the week failed to disclose anything of a sensational character.

A review of activities in the Archer pool showed plenty of new wells spudding in, the wildcat and productive tracts both getting their share of the operators' attention.

What will probably start a renewal of activities in the Geraldine townsite portion of the county is looked for on account of the bringing in of the Gohlke well. This well, which is some distance from the productive leases, topped a sand at 1551 feet and is showing the makings of a nice 50 to 60 barreler. While not a pure wildcat, considerable new territory will be exploited, despite the many dry holes in the vicinity, as each of these had at various depths some good shows of both oil and gas.

While considerable new drilling is going ahead, and many new locations are being made in the shallow and deep pays, Jack county is looking ahead for a busy spring and summer campaign. Each week finds one or more new producers in the shallow sands, and each week the deeper tests get nearer to the interesting stage. During the week the Texas and consolidated companies putting down a wildcat on the Fields farm, Balch survey, picked up a deep sand at 1955 feet that showed in excess of 1,000,000 feet of gas with a show of oil. The test is reaming down to set pipe.

Rock Crossing in Southeast Wilbarger county is still showing the most drilling. Between 17 and 18 rigs are drilling in various stages of completion on the various Waggoner tracts, and in addition many locations are rigging up.

That the district is showing about as much development as other sections of the country is found in a review of work under way. A summary of the wells drilling, others rigging up and those shut down for various reasons totals 304, and with a fair market for the output as an incentive to the wildcatter, a few weeks would find the number greatly augmented.

Perkins and Cullum further enlarged their holdings during the week by the purchase of 87½ acres out of the Graham-Stewart land in North Young county from Woody, Perry and Moran for a consideration of approximately $100,000. While this is the only sale of importance closed during the week, others are pending, though not ready for publication.

Pipeline runs increased slightly. The district showed an average of over 83,000 barrels, due to the running of oil from Wilbarger, and cleaning up of lease storage for the first of the month.

HOPE TO FIND SECOND PAY ABILENE AREA

SMITH WELL IS RATED 100-BARREL PRODUCER

Special to the Times.

ABILENE, Texas, Feb. 4.—Believing that the pay stratum encountered in their No. 1 Smith, section 51, block 15, T. & P. survey, four miles north of Noodle Creek field, is the same formation struck in the Noodle Creek producers about 10 feet above the Joe Winter lime, the producing horizon of that pool, from which only a show of oil came, Shaheen, Hutson and Weaver, owners of the new strike, have decided to drill deeper and they hope to pick up a second sand or lime pay 10 to 15 feet deeper.

After being drilled four feet into the pay first struck at 2499 feet, the Smith well as it now stands is rated as a 100-barrel pumper. The drill is still mined in the pay formation, which is a hard lime.

Cavings in the bottom of the hole and a stream of salt water which broke in between six and eight-inch pipe from a water sand at 2240 feet have been cleared out of this well and the drilling resumed, which was stopped last week when the pay was tapped.

During six hours Wednesday the well bailed 75 barrels of oil. Further drilling will be carried on cautiously, it being planned to go six inches to a foot deeper each day for the next week or so.

Deeper Drilling.

Close correlation of the log of the Smith well with the producers from the 2525-foot level in all particulars save that the formations have uniformly been a little higher and the first show of oil encountered in the Noodle producers being on a show, while that in the Smith is considered good for at least 100 barrels a day, make prospects for the area about the new well very rosy, oil men here think.

It is thought that deeper drilling will bring the Shaheen-Hutson and Weaver well to a better producing formation than is found in the Noodle Creek wells. Should the well continue to check with the Noodle producers and find a second show that increases as much over the producing sand of those wells as does the first show over the first show of oil in those wells, it is expected that a prolific pool will be opened for development.

Trading in leases has been stimulated considerably during the past week. The McMan Oil and Gas company is reported to have bought several blocks about the well for prices ranging from $75 per acre for the lease up to $150, the lesser price being paid for acreage one-half mile from the well and the $200 stuff was within a quarter of a mile of the strike. Several other deals on stuff further away at proportionate figures have been reported.

Well Takes Spurt.

After averaging about 120 barrels of oil per day for more than a week, swabbing, Texas company's No. 1 D. W. Stephens, Fisher county's first commercial producer, section 79, block 1, H. & T. C. survey, took a spurt this week and is now making about 180 barrels per day. That amount of oil is being taken from the well during a daily swabbing of about four hours. The oil fills up about 3,000 feet in the 3275 foot hole each night. The well has been deepened gradually from 3237 feet, where the pay was first struck, and has gone through one and into the second oil bearing formation. The first was 3237 to 3241 underlaid by a shade and at 3250 feet another pay was struck which went to 3255.

It is reported that the well will be put on pump as soon as the walls are in shape. Pipe line connections between the well and the M.-K.-T. railway, three miles south have been made and the first shipment of oil from the loading rack there went out this week, 2600 barrels being in the tank.

Two new locations have been announced in the south part of Haskell county. The Healdton Oil and Gas company has spudded its No. 1 Newcomb, in H. & T. C. block 2 and the location has been made for Haskell No. 1 Reynolds, section 94, Rose survey. Both these new tests are in the south part of the county.

Reports here are that four other locations in that area will be announced shortly. E. P. Campbell of Breckenridge is to drill on the Scott ranch, 24 miles east of Stamford, it is said, and Adler Edmiston and others on the Rose fee 27 miles west of that town.

C. T. Stubbie's No. 1 Jeter, section 53, H. & T. C. survey, after a prolonged shut down, is reported to have resumed drilling at 1535 feet.

S. B. Kouri's No. 1 Reynolds, section 102, Nabors survey is drilling around 1871 feet. Kouri will soon spud another test on that lease, it is said.

AMONG the DERRICKS

By JIMMIE MAXWELL

The Texas company has completed another good producer on its G. H. Saunders lease in Gray county, No. 4 in J. G. Eustis survey, which was drilled in and is flowing at the rate of 600 barrels per day. The well is located two miles east of the town of La Fora and topped the pay at 2970-87 feet.

C. H. Clark and associates have made location for their No. 6 W. T. Waggoner test, to be drilled 300 feet south of No. 5 in section 33, block 5, H. T. C. R. R. survey, Wichita county. No. 5, completed during the week, will be placed on the pump as a 75-barreler.

R. F. Brotherton, chief engineer for the Texas company, has returned from a tour of the company's holdings in the Panhandle and Gray county sections.

Gohlke and associates are bailing a sand at 1561-43 feet in their No. 1 L. F. Wilson test in the Grayson county school lands, abstract 139, Archer county. The well, which is showing the earmarks of a 50-barreler, is in a semi-wildcat section, which, however, has been partly developed, and is in the midst of a number of dry holes.

Two Good Wells Indicate Field South Lueders

Special to the Times.

One well on the Clark King ranch is flowing 72 barrels every day, not pumping, but flowing that much. Another is making 40 barrels.

There are several other wells getting in shape to touch the pay and everything looks good for the field. These wells are six miles south of Lueders. They are about 17 miles southeast of Stamford.

GULF PREPARES TO MAKE COMPLETE TEST OF WELL AT M'ELROY, LOUISIANA

BATON ROUGE, La., Feb. 4. (AP)—The Gulf Production company will rush the completion of temporary storage tanks at McElroy, 20 miles southeast of here, in order that complete tests may be made of the company's well, near that point. A separator which separates the oil from the gas and the water from the oil and the gas has been brought to the field from Shreveport and will be used in the tests. It will not be possible to determine whether the well which was brought in last week is a gusher or an oil well until these tests have been made.

Perkins and Cullum Purchase 87½ Acre Lease in North Young County For Consideration Around $100,000

One of the most important transfers of oil properties and production made in the district for some time was closed Saturday when the Perkins-Cullum interests of Wichita Falls purchased from W. C. Woody, T. H. Peery and J. J. Moran, local operators, two leases totalling 87½ acres out of the Graham-Stewart farm in the A. Rohus survey, north Young county.

The property, which has a daily output of 134 barrels, producing from 8 wells in the shallow sand, involved a cash consideration of approximately $725 per barrel.

DUNAWAY WELL ONE OF BEST COMPLETED

ELECTRA, Feb. 4.—One of the best completions to be made lately in the South Electra field is the J. Dunaway No. 5, H. & T. C. survey. The well, drilled with a spudder by Paul George to a depth of 974 feet, was swabbing at the rate of 50 barrels per day. It is believed that the well will settle to 25 barrels on the pump. Dunaway has other producers on this lease which offset production owned by the Texas and other companies in that proven district.

Fifty-four permits to drill were issued by J. Lon Martin, deputy supervisor of the oil and gas division of the Texas Railway Commission for the Electra district, for the month of January. Twenty-six of these were in Wilbarger county and 28 in Wichita county.

Those in Wilbarger county are as follows: Roxana Petroleum Co., No. 1, T. J. Milner, section 30, block 9, H. & T. C. survey; Golding & Cochran, No. 1, Waggoner, section 17, block 4, H. & T. Burkburnett Runs Below 10,000 Mark Daily First Time Since Boom Days

Pipeline runs from the various pools in the Wichita Falls district for the week ending Monday, January 30, 1928, showed an average daily of 83,120 barrels, a slight gain of approximately 50 barrels as compared with the previous week's runs.

Losses were shown in Archer, Jack and Cooke counties, and for the first time since the boom years of 1919 and 1920, Burkburnett fell below the 10,000-barrel figure.

The Wilbarger and Electra pools registered gains, the former due to completions by the Texas, Lawson and other companies in Rock Crossing, and some line wells southwest of Electra boosted the runs 310 barrels during the week. Below are the runs by pools:

BIG GAS SAND STRUCK BY TEST IN SCHOOL OIL FIELD NEAR WINFIELD

WINFIELD, Kan., Feb. 4. (AP)—What was believed by geologists to have been an important find was made last night when 2,500,000 feet of gas was struck by Earl Wakefield and Roth and Faurot at their No. 1 Winfield, in the town lot district of the state school oil field.

The gas was struck in the Burbank sand, a new producing formation in the field. The sand was topped at 2905 feet and the well was drilled to 2917 feet. The gas was turned into the Winfield city-owned mains.

The sand was 61 feet higher than in the Winfield field, two miles east, where wells producing as much as 1200 barrels of oil daily have been brought in.

The No. 1 Winfield is located on a lease owned partly by Southwestern college. It is within the city limits and near the Southwestern campus.

EVERY EFFORT EXERTED TO CONTROL WILD GAS WELL, ALTO, LOUISIANA

MONROE, La., Feb. 4. (AP)—Every effort was being exerted today to control a wild gas well at the little town of Alto south of here, which was brought in Wednesday and has been running wild since.

The well, Thomas A.-1 of the Natural Gas and Fuel corporation, broke through its casing Wednesday afternoon and has been gradually widening its crater as it throws sand, water and gas 200 feet in the air. The derrick collapsed yesterday. School has been adjourned since Wednesday due to the terrific noise made by the gasser which is likened to the roar of 20 locomotive whistles. Fear has been expressed that the gasser will ruin other wells in the vicinity and an effort will be made to drill another well immediately beside the wild well, which it is believed would reduce the flow of the latter and permit it to be controlled.

STUDEBAKER

The Great Independent

Behind Studebaker Performance Records —engineering genius!

As a result of the engineering genius in Studebaker motor cars, Studebaker now holds all the highest endurance and speed records (from 1 mile to 25,000 miles) for fully equipped stock cars, regardless of power or price. Headed by D. G. Roos, Studebaker's engineering staff leads the industry in point of actual achievement.

It is the work of genius to produce such a car as The Studebaker Commander—the car that went 25,000 miles in less than 23,000 minutes. Nothing else on earth ever ran so far so fast. Studebaker engineering genius is reflected, too, in the increase of the power of The Studebaker Dictator from 45 to 70 h.p.—with greater economy of operation—and with no increase in price.

Constantly kept up-to-date

During the past three years Studebaker engineers have adopted such advancements as the magazine lubricating system; thermostatic cooling system; no-draft ventilating windshield; engine thermometer on dash; full-vision welded steel bodies; coincidental lock to steering and ignition, etc. Some of these improvements were pioneered by Studebaker and are still exclusive Studebaker features.

Studebaker engineers have provided such an ingenious lubricating system that you need change oil but once every 2500 miles.

And now, as a result of advanced engineering, Studebaker and Erskine cars may be driven 40-miles-per-hour the day they are delivered. No more tedious "breaking-in" at 20-mile speed.

Studebaker spends millions to make sure

Engineering and laboratory facilities for experimentation and research are of the utmost importance. Studebaker provides its brilliant staff of research men headed by W. S. James, former section chief of the U. S. Bureau of Standards, with the most complete facilities that money can buy.

In Studebaker's laboratories technicians test all raw materials. Over the diversified roads and grades of Studebaker's million-dollar Proving Ground, Studebaker and Erskine models are driven in extended tests of speed and mechanical endurance.

Studebaker gives more; costs less

Because Studebaker builds bodies, engines and chassis for Studebaker cars, profits of outside manufacturers are reduced to a minimum. These savings are passed on to you in the form of higher quality materials and the highest type of precision workmanship—at a low One-Profit price.

GOHLKE SEMI-WILDCAT TO RENEW ACTIVITY GERALDINE AREA

By JIMMIE MAXWELL

The usual number of dry holes and a few producers featured another week of development in the Wichita Falls district. New locations were also made, these being scattered throughout the various fields, but as a whole the end of the week failed to disclose anything of a sensational character.

A review of activities in the Archer pool showed plenty of new wells spudding in, the wildcat and productive tracts both getting their share of the operators' attention.

What will probably start a renewal of activities in the Geraldine townsite portion of the county is looked for on account of the bringing in of the Gohlke well. This well, which is some distance from the productive leases, topped a sand at 1551 feet and is showing the makings of a nice 50 to 60 barreler. While not a pure wildcat, considerable new territory will be exploited, despite the many dry holes in the vicinity, as each of these had at various depths some good shows of both oil and gas.

While considerable new drilling is going ahead, and many new locations are being made in the shallow and deep pays, Jack county is looking ahead for a busy spring and summer campaign. Each week finds one or more new producers in the shallow sands, and each week the deeper tests get nearer to the interesting stage. During the week the Texas and consolidated companies putting down a wildcat on the Fields farm, Balch survey, picked up a deep sand at 1955 feet that showed in excess of 1,000,000 feet of gas with a show of oil. The test is reaming down to set pipe.

Rock Crossing in Southeast Wilbarger county is still showing the most drilling. Between 17 and 18 rigs are drilling in various stages of completion on the various Waggoner tracts, and in addition many locations are rigging up.

That the district is showing about as much development as other sections of the country is found in a review of work under way. A summary of the wells drilling, others rigging up and those shut down for various reasons totals 304, and with a fair market for the output as an incentive to the wildcatter, a few weeks would find the number greatly augmented.

Perkins and Cullum further enlarged their holdings during the week by the purchase of 87½ acres out of the Graham-Stewart land in North Young county from Woody, Perry and Moran for a consideration of approximately $100,000. While this is the only sale of importance closed during the week, others are pending, though not ready for publication.

Pipeline runs increased slightly. The district showed an average of over 83,000 barrels, due to the running of oil from Wilbarger, and cleaning up of lease storage for the first of the month.

Perkins and Cullum Purchase 87½ Acre Lease in North Young County For Consideration Around $100,000

One of the most important transfers of oil properties and production made in the district for some time was closed Saturday when the Perkins-Cullum interests of Wichita Falls purchased from W. C. Woody, T. H. Peery and J. J. Moran, local operators, two leases totalling 87½ acres out of the Graham-Stewart farm in the A. Bohus survey, north Young county.

The property, which has a daily output of 124 barrels, producing from 8 wells in the shallow sand, involved a cash consideration of approximately $725 per barrel.

DUNAWAY WELL ONE OF BEST COMPLETED

ELECTRA, Feb. 4.—One of the best completions to be made lately in the South Electra field is the J. Dunaway No. 8, H. & T. C. survey. The well, drilled with a spudder by Paul George to a depth of 974 feet, was swabbing at the rate of 50 barrels per day. It is believed that the well will settle to 35 barrels on the pump. Dunaway has other producers on this lease which offset production owned by the Texas and other companies in that proven district.

Fifty-four permits to drill were issued by J. Lon Martin, deputy supervisor of the oil and gas division of the Texas Railway Commission for the Electra district, for the month of January. Twenty-six of these were in Wilbarger county and 28 in Wichita county.

SMITH WELL IS RATED 100-BARREL PRODUCER

Special to the Times.

ABILENE, Texas, Feb. 4.—Believing that the pay stratum encountered in their No. 1 Smith, section 51, block 13, T. & P. survey, four miles north of Noodle Creek field, is the same formation struck in the Noodle Creek producers about 10 feet above the Joe Winter lime, the producing horizon of that pool, from which only a show of oil came, Shaheen, Hutson and Weaver, owners of the new strike, have decided to drill deeper and they hope to pick up a second sand or lime pay 10 to 15 feet deeper.

After being drilled four feet into the pay first struck at 2499 feet, the Smith well as it now stands is rated as a 100-barrel pumper. The drill is still mined in the pay formation, which is a hard lime.

Cavings in the bottom of the hole and a stream of salt water which broke in between six and eight-inch pipe from a water sand at 2240 feet have been cleared out of this well and the drilling resumed, which was stopped last week when the pay was tapped.

During six hours Wednesday the well bailed 75 barrels of oil. Further drilling will be carried on cautiously, it being planned to go six inches to a foot deeper each day for the next week or so.

Deeper Drilling.

Close correlation of the log of the Smith well with the producers from the 2525-foot level in all particulars save that the formations have uniformly been a little higher and the first show of oil encountered in the Noodle producers being on a show, while that in the Smith is considered good for at least 100 barrels a day, make prospects for the area about the new well very rosy, oil men here think.

It is thought that deeper drilling will bring the Shaheen-Hutson and Weaver well to a better producing formation than is found in the Noodle Creek wells. Should the well continue to check with the Noodle producers and find a second show that increases as much over the producing sand of those wells as does the first show over the first show of oil in those wells, it is expected that a prolific pool will be opened for development.

Trading in leases has been stimulated considerably during the past week. The McMan Oil and Gas company is reported to have bought several blocks about the well for prices ranging from $75 per acre for the lease up to $150, the lesser price being paid for acreage one-half mile from the well and the $200 stuff was within a quarter of a mile of the strike. Several other deals on stuff further away at proportionate figures have been reported.

Well Takes Spurt.

After averaging about 120 barrels of oil per day for more than a week, swabbing, Texas company's No. 1 D. W. Stephens, Fisher county's first commercial producer, section 79, block 1, H. & T. C. survey, took a spurt this week and is now making about 180 barrels per day. That amount of oil is being taken from the well during a daily swabbing of about four hours. The oil fills up about 3,000 feet in the 3275 foot hole each night. The well has been deepened gradually from 3237 feet, where the pay was first struck, and has gone through one and into the second oil bearing formation. The first was 3237 to 3241 underlaid by a shade and at 3250 feet another pay was struck which went to 3255.

It is reported that the well will be put on pump as soon as the walls are in shape. Pipe line connections between the well and the M.-K.-T. railway, three miles south have been made and the first shipment of oil from the leading rack there went out this week, 3600 barrels being in the tank.

Two new locations have been announced in the south part of Haskell county. The Healdton Oil and Gas company has spudded its No. 1 Newcomb, in H. & T. C. block 3 and the location has been made for Haskell No. 1 Reynolds, section 94, Rose survey. Both these new tests are in the south part of the county.

Reports here are that four other locations in that area will be announced shortly. E. P. Campbell of Breckenridge is to drill on the Scott ranch, 24 miles east of Stamford, it is said, and Adler Edmiston and others on the Rose fee 21 miles west of that town.

C. T. Stubblefield No. 1 Jeter, section 53, H. & T. C. survey, after a prolonged shut down, is reported to have resumed drilling at 1535 feet.

S. S. Kourl's No. 1 Reynolds, section 102, Nabors survey is drilling around 1571 feet. Kourl will soon spud another test on that lease, it is said.

BIG GAS SAND STRUCK BY TEST IN SCHOOL OIL FIELD NEAR WINFIELD

WINFIELD, Kan., Feb. 4. (AP)—What was believed by geologists to have been an important find was made last night when 2,500,000 feet of gas was struck by Earl Wakefield and Roth and Faurot at their No. 1 Winfield, in the town lot district of the state school oil field.

The gas was struck in the Burbank sand, a new producing formation in the field. The sand was topped at 2908 feet and the well was drilled to 2917 feet. The gas was turned into the Winfield city-owned mains.

The sand was 61 feet higher than in the Winfield field, two miles east, where wells producing as much as 1200 barrels of oil daily have been brought in.

Burkburnett Runs Below 10,000 Mark Daily First Time Since Boom Days

Pipeline runs from the various pools in the Wichita Falls district for the week ending Monday, January 30, 1928, showed an average daily of 83,120 barrels, a slight gain of approximately 50 barrels as compared with the previous week's runs.

Losses were shown in Archer, Jack and Cooke counties, and for the first time since the boom years of 1919 and 1920, Burkburnett fell below the 10,000-barrel figure.

The Wilbarger and Electra pools registered gains, the former due to completions by the Texas, Lawson and other companies in Rock Crossing, and some line wells southwest of Electra boosted the runs 310 barrels during the week. Below are the runs by pools:

AMONG the DERRICKS

By JIMMIE MAXWELL

The Texas company has completed another good producer on its G. H. Saunders lease in Gray county, No. 4 in J. G. Eustis survey, which was drilled in and is flowing at the rate of 600 barrels per day. The well is located two miles east of the town of La Fors and topped the pay at 2970-87 feet.

EVERY EFFORT EXERTED TO CONTROL WILD GAS WELL, ALTO, LOUISIANA

MONROE, La., Feb. 4. (AP)—Every effort was being exerted today to control a wild gas well at the little town of Alto south of here, which was brought in Wednesday and has been running wild since.

The well, Thomas A-1 of the Natural Gas and Fuel corporation, broke through its casing Wednesday afternoon and has been gradually widening its crater as it throws sand, water and gas 300 feet in the air. The derrick collapsed yesterday. School has been adjourned since Wednesday due to the terrific noise made by the gasser which is likened to the roar of 20 locomotive whistles. Fear has been expressed that the gasser will ruin other wells in the vicinity and an effort will be made to drill another well immediately beside the wild well, which it is believed would reduce the flow of the latter and permit it to be controlled.

Two Good Wells Indicate Field South Lueders

Special to the Times.

One well on the Clark King ranch is flowing 72 barrels every day, not pumping, but flowing that much. Another is making 40 barrels.

There are several other wells getting in shape to touch the pay and everything looks good for the field. These wells are six miles south of Lueders. They are about 17 miles southeast of Stamford.

GULF PREPARES TO MAKE COMPLETE TEST OF WELL AT M'ELROY, LOUISIANA

BATON ROUGE, La., Feb. 4. (AP)—The Gulf Production company will rush the completion of temporary storage tanks at McElroy, 26 miles southeast of here, in order that complete tests may be made of the company's well near that point. A separator which separates the oil from the gas and the water from the oil and the gas has been brought to the field from Shreveport and will be used in the tests. It will not be possible to determine whether the well which was brought in last week is a gasser or an oil well until these tests have been made.

STUDEBAKER

The Great Independent

Behind Studebaker Performance Records —engineering genius!

As a result of the engineering genius in Studebaker motor cars, Studebaker now holds all the highest endurance and speed records (from 1 mile to 25,000 miles) for fully equipped stock cars, regardless of power or price. Headed by D. G. Roos, Studebaker's engineering staff leads the industry in point of actual achievement.

It is the work of genius to produce such a car as The Studebaker Commander—the car that went 25,000 miles in less than 23,000 minutes. Nothing else on earth ever ran so far so fast. Studebaker engineering genius is reflected, too, in the increase of the power of The Studebaker Dictator from 45 to 70 h.p.—with greater economy of operation—and with no increase in price.

Constantly kept up-to-date

During the past three years Studebaker engineers have adopted such advancements as the magazine lubricating system; thermostatic cooling system; no-draft ventilating windshield; engine thermometer on dash; full-vision welded steel bodies; coincidental lock to steering and ignition, etc. Some of these improvements were pioneered by Studebaker and are still exclusive Studebaker features.

Studebaker engineers have provided such an ingenious lubricating system that you need change oil but once every 2500 miles.

And now, as a result of advanced engineering, Studebaker and Erskine cars may be driven 40-miles-per-hour the day they are delivered. No more tedious "breaking-in" at 20-mile speed.

Studebaker spends millions to make sure

Engineering and laboratory facilities for experimentation and research are of the utmost importance. Studebaker provides its brilliant staff of research men headed by W. S. James, former section chief of the U. S. Bureau of Standards, with the most complete facilities that money can buy.

In Studebaker's laboratories technicians test all raw materials. Over the diversified roads and grades of Studebaker's million-dollar Proving Ground, Studebaker and Erskine models are driven in extended tests of speed and mechanical endurance.

Studebaker gives more; costs less

Because Studebaker builds bodies, engines and chassis for Studebaker cars, profits of outside manufacturers are reduced to a minimum. These savings are passed on to you in the form of higher quality materials and the highest type of precision workmanship—at a low One-Profit price.

HUGE BUILDING MOVE IS UNDER WAY PLAINVIEW

PLAINVIEW, Feb. 4.—Approximately three quarters of a million dollars worth of building is under way in Plainview.

The major pieces of construction are the Harvest Queen Mills addition to its elevator and storage capacity, and the Skaggs four-story office building. Guy R. Speed has practically finished the group of buildings that have been under construction for the past 90 days, and D. M. Thomas and P. Flaxman have finished their buildings adjoining the Speed buildings. Speed's buildings, among other things, will house the Plainview postoffice. New fixtures are being placed now in the rooms which will be occupied by the postoffice.

The Harvest Queen Mills is adding a unit to its elevator storage bins which will bring the capacity of the storage facilities to a million bushels of grain, or double the present capacity. The approximate cost of the construction is about $250,000.

The excavation for the basement of the Skaggs building is finished and the foundation is being poured. This building is designed to house the Third National bank on the first floor, and will have up-to-date offices on the other three stories. This building will cost approximately $200,000 when completed.

Forty residences in various parts of the city are under construction or nearing completion.

Special to the Times.

MIDLAND, Feb. 4.—The 12-story Hogan Petroleum building to be erected at Midland has been started. A large steam shovel was shipped from Dallas to do the excavation which is now under way.

The building will be completed by late summer. Oil companies numbering 20 have assured T. S. Hogan, owner of the building, that they will move their offices here.

Architects declare the Hogan building to be one of the best and finest of its kind in Texas. Oil companies already here are making temporary offices in other buildings here until the petroleum building is completed.

West Texas offices of the Woodley Petroleum company have been moved to Midland. E. M. Fuskhouser, chief geologist, is in charge of the Midland offices. A Midland oil man revised the list of companies located in Midland and records show 34 oil companies' offices or representatives in Midland.

R. W. WILSON PURCHASES PLAINVIEW PROPERTIES BONNER-PRICE COMPANY

PLAINVIEW, Feb. 4.—R. W. Wilson, for the past two years field superintendent for the Mistletoe creameries, has purchased the properties of the Bonner-Price Grain and Coal company and is moving to Plainview. Mr. Wilson is regarded as a competent dairy authority and will specialize in dairy feeds at Plainview.

COMMENCE WORK ON NEW LAMESA BAPTIST CHURCH

LAMESA, Feb. 4.—The Baptist Missionary church broke dirt last week for the erection of a new building at North First and Bryan streets. The Rev. W. B. Wages is pastor of the church.

The cost of the building will be $5000 when complete, according to present plans.

LAY RAILROAD AND PAVEMENT WINKLER POOL

Special to the Times.

WICKETT, Texas, Feb. 4.—The world's second largest oil field, the Hendricks pool in Winkler county, soon will be connected with this little fast growing town by a new paved highway and a railroad into the field.

The road is already under construction from the Wickett to the Winkler county line, and work will be started on that end within the next few days. Winkler county already is preparing to vote a $600,-000 bond issue for road work this month, but the road from Wickett to the Hendricks pool is to be built regardless of that bond issue.

Surveying was also begun this week on the new railroad that is to connect Wickett with Kermit, in the heart of the oil field. Wickett is located on the Texas & Pacific railroad, 16 miles south of the field, and is the nearest railroad point.

This little town, started less than a year ago, has been one of the fastest growing industrial towns in the West Texas oil fields, and right now is experiencing a greater boom than housing facilities will care for, according to T. J. Wagner, townsite manager.

Wickett was started less than a year ago when Southern Crude built its first tank farm here. Since that time two other tank farms have been built here, as well as the Blue Bonnet refinery. This refinery was built in 32 days, said to be the fastest time ever made on refinery construction anywhere.

Plans are also under way now for two more hotels in Wickett, the present hotel not having a large enough capacity for local workers, much less transients, according to Wagner. Patrons also line up in front of the restaurants at meal time, taking their places as fast as they can, because of the crowded conditions of the restaurants brought about by the hundreds of oil field, railroad and highway workers.

Several new wells brought in during the past two weeks giving wide extensions to the Winkler county fields, are said to be responsible for the influx of new workers, and the typical oil town boom which is prevailing at Wickett.

Wanted! 25,000 Sufferers from DEAFNESS

Startling Free Offer!

This announcement is being published in order to secure the names of 25,000 people who are suffering from catarrhal deafness, dullness of hearing, head noises or ordinary nasal catarrh. To everyone so afflicted, a wonderful trial treatment, originated by Dr. W. O. Coffee, for many years a nationally known specialist, will be sent to try without obligation or expense.

Dr. Coffee, himself, suffered for many years from ear tubal catarrh, deafness and head noises. He tried many different treatments which failed to give permanent relief. Then he began experimenting on himself and finally developed a method which completely healed his ear tubal catarrh, restored his hearing and stopped the distressing head noises.

You can test this remarkable treatment, originated by the doctor and since then used with such astounding success by thousands of people afflicted with these troubles. Coupon brings free trial without the slightest cost. Mail it today. You incur no obligation whatever.

Don't Neglect These Troubles!

Deafness, Ear Tubal Catarrh, Head Noises, and Nasal Catarrh generally grow worse when neglected. Authorities claim that ninety per cent of all deafness is primarily caused by catarrh of the head and air passages. Others state that nasal catarrh often causes indigestion, rheumatism, catarrh of the stomach, and many other diseased conditions. If you suffer from dullness of hearing or nasal catarrh, do not neglect this condition.

There are thousands, who are now practically stone deaf, whose hearing could no doubt have been saved had the right measures been taken in time. Dr. Coffee restored hearing in hundreds of cases, where the patients were so deaf they could hear nothing. Of course, those were cases which, in spite of their severity, fortunately had not advanced to the stage that the actual tissues or nerves had become affected. Just remember this—you can prove the value of this treatment entirely without risk or expense. It will come to you absolutely free. Just fill out and mail the coupon.

25,000 Trial Treatments Given This Month

FREE

Naturally, the doctor was proud of the results reported by so many thousands of sufferers who have used his simple home treatment. It is because of this success that these 25,000 demonstration treatments are being prepared and sent absolutely free to all who answer this offer within the next 30 days. This liberal plan should convince you that Dr. Coffee's Original Home Treatment will give you relief from catarrhal deafness, dullness of hearing, head noises and also nasal catarrh. The results are quick and convincing. You feel the difference the first day. Try it. This treatment costs you nothing whatever. Simply send coupon or write and say you are suffering from deafness or head noises or catarrh. You will receive a free treatment which Dr. Coffee always claimed was the best treatment he ever found in his 45 years' practice as a specialist. Every sufferer should take advantage of this offer. The demonstration treatment is FREE.

Hundreds Praise this Original Method

Mona McBride

Here is a recent picture of Mrs. Mona McBride, an Illinois woman whose remarkable case and glowing testimonial letter show what this treatment can accomplish. From childhood, Mrs. McBride's hearing was affected, the result of serious illness. Her story is the most convincing proof of the merits of Dr. Coffee's Home Treatment. Mrs. McBride says, "This is to certify that since having scarlet fever when a little girl, I have been hard of hearing, and for the past four or five years I have been almost entirely deaf. A few months ago my left ear began to discharge. I found it to be abscessed and discharging a foul fluid. Nothing seemed to stop it and finally I tried Dr. Coffee's Treatment. To my surprise and delight the hearing in the ear which was partially deaf for nearly 20 years has returned and the abscess has healed. Now I can hear a conversation six feet away. I didn't believe it possible and I certainly advise anyone suffering with deafness to try this treatment. I obtained relief in a short time."

An Octogenarian's Praise

At eighty years of age, D. B. Simmons, of Maine, ascribed partial deafness with which he was afflicted to his advanced years. Developing severe head noises, however, he determined to seek relief from the Dr. Coffee Treatment, the success of which he had heard in similar cases to his own. "I am glad to be able to tell you," he writes, "that after using your treatment as prescribed, the head noises left me entirely and I am rid of the deafness besides. Can hear well again."

Greatly Benefited at 86

"I had suffered with nasal catarrh for seven or eight years; I had terrible head noises, my hearing was bad. It was necessary for people to talk loud, otherwise I could not hear them. I used Dr. Coffee's Home Treatment for four months, and it restored my hearing to such an extent that I can now take part in an ordinary conversation. The head noises are a thing of the past. I am 86 years old."

J. C. Patterson, Indiana.

Head Noises Disappear

With Mrs. Reed Page, of N. Y., Dr. Coffee's Home Treatment quickly relieved a serious and rapidly developing case of deafness and head noises. From normal hearing, in scarcely four years, Mrs. Page became quite deaf. People had to shout close to her ears for her to understand them. Now she writes, "I am happy to tell you how good I feel and how much improved I am. Can hear everything, and the head noises are gone entirely."

After 10 Years' Suffering

"My hearing is now even better than when I was a boy," writes Peter Storm of Iowa. Gradually but surely growing deaf over a period of nearly ten years, Mr. Storm became afflicted with severe head noises which alarmed him greatly. Much to his amazement and when he had practically given up hope of regaining his hearing, Dr. Coffee's Home Treatment relieved him within two months.

Relieved After 48 Years

"I had been gradually growing deaf for 48 years. I had not been able to hear over a telephone for 17 years. Naturally I was discouraged for I had tried everything and found no relief. Dr. Coffee's treatment restored my hearing so I could hear over a telephone in either ear, quite plainly. I no longer suffer with intense headnoises."

Mrs. M. Sherier, Missouri.

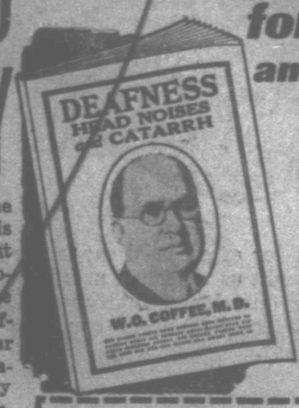

Restored Hearing in Month

George Bishop, a native of Saskatchewan, tells how he suffered for 12 years and spent hundreds of dollars seeking relief to no avail. Read what he says of Dr. Coffee's Home Treatment—how his hearing has improved and the head noises disappeared as a result of this simple method: "My hearing grew so bad that people had to shout into my ear for me to understand. Dr. Coffee's Treatment helped me greatly in one month. It is wonderful."

DONT SEND ONE PENNY

You are not asked to send one penny for this treatment. It is sent free to you prepaid without cost. This is done to quickly introduce Dr. Coffee's original home treatment to sufferers from deafness, or head noises caused by ear tubal catarrh, or from nasal catarrh itself. Dr. Coffee probably treated more cases of deafness, head noises and catarrh than any physician in the United States. He considered this treatment the best he ever found in over 45 years active practice. The fact that it cleared his own case and restored his hearing to normal, after the condition had grown really acute, gave him absolute confidence in it. Then, too, he witnessed what it has done for hundreds of sufferers. Send your name and address today. State whether you have catarrhal deafness or head noises or just have catarrh. This notice may not appear again so mail the coupon at once.

MISS CATHERINE RAYZOR

Month of Holidays Furnishes Inspiration for Numerous Lovely Affairs and Colorful Decorations

With the onrush of parties centering around February's two holidays, St. Valentine's day and George Washington's birthday, hostesses have the opportunity of using colorful decorations, and beautiful, too, in plans for social events. Several have taken advantage of the season, and among the ones who have been lavishly entertained during the week is Miss Annette Heiman of Flagler, Colo., guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Lemen.

And then, because it's leap year, too, the girls of the Junior Forum are entertaining Friday evening at the clubhouse with the last of their "Leap Year" dances, after having given one which was so successful that arrangements are almost complete for a second. The Little Rovers orchestra will play, and members of the Junior Forum will be hostesses.

Evening Party

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Dooley entertained at their home on Avenue B. Thursday evening, honoring Miss Annette Heiman of Flagler, Colo. Cut flowers were used in the decorations, and red and pink roses were used throughout the rooms.

Mrs. J. U. Fields Makes Statement About Biennial

Mrs. J. U. Fields of Haskell, past president of the Texas federation of Women's clubs, whose resignation as chairman of the state biennial finance board was requested by the general federation at a meeting of the state board held in Fort Worth, January 7, makes a statement concerning the action taken, as follows:

"In the administration 1925-27, Texas federation of Women's clubs, the president, Mrs. J. U. Fields, in her first announcement of policies, November, 1925, said, 'Public opinion will be aroused in favor of Texas entertaining the general federation in biennial convention.' At the first board meeting in January, 1926, the state chairmen from San Antonio presented an invitation from the city of San Antonio for the biennial convention to be held in San Antonio.

"At the first meeting of the 50 Texas delegates attending the Atlantic City biennial in 1926, it was unanimously decided to invite the 19th biennial convention general federation to meet in Texas in 1928. On state presidents' evening, Tuesday, June 1, 1926, the subject was, 'What is Nearest My Heart as a Club Woman.' The Texas president, Mrs. J. U. Fields, said, 'During this convention one of the things that is nearest my heart, as a club woman, is going to be realized, because from Texas we come—fifty strong—to invite this great body of women to come to Texas for the 1928 biennial.' Immediately every one began to talk about Texas for the 1928 biennial convention. Dallas, Houston and San Antonio were spoken of as hostess cities. As the general federation ruled one particular city had to be designated as hostess city, in a meeting of the Texas delegates, Mrs. R. Q. Lee of Cisco moved that delegates decide to name San Antonio as hostess city. Friday, the last morning of the convention, the Texas president extended the formal invitation from Texas. It had always been customary for the board of the general federation not to decide upon the selection of the biennial hostess state until the following January board meeting. Because of the serious illness of her daughter, Mrs. Day Mills, Texas director, could not remain for the general federation board meeting. The following day, Saturday, June 5, 1926, much to the surprise and delight of the Texas women, the Texas invitation was accepted by the general federation board. There was not a Texas woman present on the general federation board when this invitation was accepted.

Confers With Women

"July 10, 1926, Mrs. J. U. Fields, then president of the Texas federation, went to San Antonio to confer with the San Antonio women about the biennial. Two weeks were spent there in conference. At a meeting of all San Antonio clubs, called by the president of the city federation, Mrs. J. S. Peter, Mrs. Henry Drought was elected San Antonio biennial chairman. After persuasion Mrs. Drought agreed to be San Antonio biennial chairman, but said she had not been active in state club work in so long she refused to have anything to do with the state plans. At this time the magnificent Municipal auditorium was secured for the convention. This was granted without

PEGGY PIEDMONT Says

I am just brimming over with news, Kitty, and good news, the kind your ears wiggle like a fox terrier's at the prospect of hearing something interesting, and that's what I have up my sleeve that has run down to my inky pen to impart to you.

As you already know, I've been helping Cupid along in his field of work and we have been quite busy announcing engagements as joint partners in marrying off pretty girls. But for the present, at least, business of that kind is a little dull with me and my partner, and I have turned my attention to things of a different nature.

This has been a bridge week, just as the Christmas week was our dancing time, and don't you think four and five bridge parties in a day is a record? That's what society has been doing, and some of them big parties, too. Tuesday, afternoon and evening, about eight hundred played bridge at the Woman's Forum clubhouse, when the forum entertained with a benefit.

I must confess if I had the regulating of social affairs, I'd vary the amusements some time. Now, for instance, over in a neighboring city recently, a moving picture party was given in honor of one of the most prominent debutantes, and all the characters were famous movie stars and appeared as they had seen them in certain successful films. The honoree herself was Renee Adoree as she was in "What Price Glory," and "Sorrell and Son," (a recent good picture that has not yet been shown here) appeared at the party.

Never mind though, spring is coming, and as benefit affairs in name of sweet charity take precedence over everything else, I just know we'll develop something new and original as a means whereby we may coax the dimes and dollars away from folks.

No, we're not passing up a thing this season. For along with bridge are dances and teas, receptions and theater parties, and an unusually attractive artists program. A real event of the weekend was the appearance of the genial Irish tenor, John McCormack, presented by the Woman's Choral club and especially sponsored by the director of the club, Mrs. Luella B. Thompson, who personally, and as head of musical organizations in the city, has been "the power behind the throne" lit-

Mrs. J. U. Fields Makes Statement

cost by the mayor and city council of San Antonio.

"At the meeting of the board of directors of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs in Dallas, November 8, 1926, it was voted that Mrs. J. U. Fields and Mrs. Henry Drought and one chairman from each of the seven districts (these chairmen to be appointed by the 1926 district presidents) should be members of the Texas local biennial board, and that this committee should hold over until after the biennial in 1928. Without a dissenting vote this action was upheld by the convention assembled November 3, 1926.

"In January, 1927, Mrs. Maggie Barry, Mrs. Day Mills, Mrs. B. Youngblood and Mrs. J. U. Fields met in Washington with the executive committee of the general federation. This executive committee voted that the selection of the Texas local biennial board chairman was technically a state question—that this was 'up to Texas'; that they were willing for Texas to meet the situation. On motion made and carried it was decided to permit Texas federation to divert from the precedent established of having the chairman of the local biennial board located in the entertaining city.

"In February, 1927, at the state board meeting of Texas federation held in Fort Worth, Mrs. Rice had announced the action of the general federation executive committee. Upon motion of Mrs. W. R. Potter, now president of the Texas federation, Mrs. J. U. Fields was nominated and elected by the state board as the Texas local biennial chairman. At this meeting Mrs. Fields presented a plan for financing the biennial. Each club member was to be asked to make a voluntary offering of not less than 50 cents. Individuals and chambers of commerce were to be extended the privilege of contributing—no one to be asked for more than $100. This plan was accepted. Immediately the chairman began active work. A state committee of finance and a finance chairman from each of the seven districts were appointed and assumed office.

Trips to San Antonio

"Mrs. Fields has made five trips to San Antonio. As she had written the president of the general federation she expected to take up her abode in San Antonio in January and remain there until after the biennial, October 17 and 18 the first meeting of the Texas local biennial board was held in San Antonio. Another meeting of this board was to have been held in San Antonio in January, 1928. The plans from California and New Jersey and Pennsylvania, where former biennials had been held, were being followed.

"November 11, 1927, in convention assembled in El Paso, the Texas Federation voted without a dissenting vote to uphold the action of the state board upon the selection of Mrs. Fields as Texas local biennial chairman.

"Mrs. Fields has a copy of her communications regarding all matters pertaining to the biennial; all letters received are on file. She has a letter dated Jan. 1, 1927, from the secretary of the president of the general federation acknowledging receipt of Texas plans. After the first meeting of the biennial board held in San Antonio, Mrs. Fields' secretary sent a copy of the minutes with a letter of explanation to the general federation president.

"After the El Paso meeting, fearing something might go wrong, Mrs. Fields wrote Mrs. Sherman Nov. 25, 1927: 'Will you please send us the position you wish our Texas women to follow in regards to our plans; tell us everything you expect us to do. It is the wish of the Texas women to do everything you desire.' Dec. 19, 1927, a reply was received—a very friendly letter from the president but no plans or outline.

Message Received.

"Jan. 7, 1928, at 5:20 p. m. by relay from Fort Worth, the following telegram was received: 'The executive committee of the general federation is concerned because no official report of finances for the biennial has reached the president of the general federation. Unless full amount of $25,000 for biennial expenses is reported by the state treasurer as in the Texas federation treasury at the time of the meeting of the Texas state board of directors on Jan. 7 we request that your resignation as chairman of local state board be presented to the Texas board on Jan. 7.—Mrs. John D. Sherman, for the executive committee.' Mrs. Maggie W. Barry of A. & M. college, College Station, is a member of the general federation executive committee. She and Mrs. Florence C. Floore of Cleburne were both in Washington at that time. Why was the Texas biennial chairman asked to present her resignation to the Texas federation board if this was not a state affair? Jan. 5, 1928, the following women from Texas went to the general federation board meeting in Washington: Mesdames W. R. Potter, B. F. Lindsay, R. Q. Lee, Charles Ashcroft, E. E. Maloney and Henry Drought. Mesdames Barry, Floore, Pennybacker and Mills were there. Mrs. Day Mills, Texas director, was the only one who spoke in defense of Mrs. Fields.

Did Not Resign.

"Mrs. Fields did not resign, because she felt the demand was unwarranted. Her reply to Mrs. Sherman was: 'I have not ever undertaken a job and then turned back. Had the Texas club women in convention assembled demanded her resignation, then she would have bowed to the will of the majority.' The office of Texas local biennial chairman was declared vacant Jan. 12, 1928, by the executive committee of the general federation and Mrs. Henry Drought was named Texas local biennial chairman.

"The demand for the resignation was received Jan. 7. Mrs. Fields has kept silent. She even refused at first to give reporters any information. Letters protesting this action of the general federation and requests demanding an explanation are being received by Mrs. Fields from all parts of the state.

"Because of death in her immediate family on the day she should have left it was impossible for Mrs. Fields to attend the state board meeting in Fort Worth, January 7, 1928, or to go to Washington. It was very thoughtful of her friends to have moved in the state board meeting that a telegram of sympathy be sent and silent prayer offered. Both were possibly 'observed,' but the telegram was never sent from Fort Worth nor received in Haskell.

"Mrs. Fields says: 'I do not wish to disparage any Texas woman for what may have been done or said in Washington to bring about this situation. I only know I was condemned without a trial. Let us forget personal matters and put the glory of the Lone Star state above everything else. It is to be deplored we women of Texas have yet got to learn the real meaning of the name Texas—friends.'"

Letters Received.

Letters of inquiry concerning the action of the general federation executive committee in declaring the office of the Texas local biennial chairman are being received from El Paso to Beaumont, from Amarillo to Brownsville.

And speaking of John McCormack reminds me that while his appearance here made many hearts glad, and he was received with enthusiasm by music lovers, not only because of his golden toned voice and the kind of songs he selects for his programs, but also because of his sincere, humanlike personality, one small boy received perhaps the greatest thrill of anyone in the vast audience of more than 4,000 people who heard him.

This particular small boy (musically inclined and a talented player of the saxophone) probably had harbored in his heart a desire to hear John McCormack sing, from the date the first publicity announcing his approaching recital . . . . no one knows exactly what is in the heart of a small boy . . . . but when the tickets for the family were brought home, it developed that the sister in the home, was provided for and no one thought of the small boy wanting to go. He was hurt. Not even the promise of seeing one of the grand opera performances furnished consolation.

A grown-up friend and admirer of all small boys—a woman who has had a boy and lost him—one who perhaps knows as much about the working of small boys hearts and their natures as any woman can know, heard of the situation. Thinking of her own son, who passed to the Great Beyond several years ago, but whose musical talent and appreciation was ever a solace to her, when she was troubled with perhaps just the every day ups and downs of life, came to the rescue. She sent the small boy a ticket to the great singer's concert. He went and he was thrilled. Do you think he will ever forget his kind adult friend, this lover of all boys . . . Dorinda?

At last I have a dot, as some of my good friends say, when they have a bit of interesting news for me, which I think will interest you, too. You probably remember what a success the last leap year dance given by the Junior Forum proved to be. In fact, it proved such a thoroughly delightful affair for the younger set . . . both boys and girls, that announcement of another one to be given Friday night has been made. Thinking of this coming event and of others to follow, I wonder if local hostesses are interested in the stand taken by New York hostesses recently, a report of which reads: "New York hostesses have taken an emphatic stand against young men guests guilty of tardiness in accepting or declining invitations. Those who failed to send acceptances to a recent dance within a reasonable time received cards from the hostesses inscribed, 'Not having heard from you, this is to state that your place has been filled and you are not expected.'"

Don't think for a moment that I am forgetting the doings of the Woman's Forum in all this line of talk I am handing out to you this week. How could I, with the prospect of the annual luncheon to be given by the civic department looming up big before my eyes. The special event planned is to be known as a "plantation luncheon," and the date is set for Valentine Day, February 14, at the clubhouse.

A program probably in keeping with the plantation idea, including old Southern songs and readings, will be given, and is being arranged by a committee composed of Mesdames J. A. Kemp, A. R. Bleakley, J. C. A. Guest, Rhea Howard, J. H. Allison and Orville Bullington.

Those who will take reservations and serve on the phoning committee are announced as Mesdames J. D. Parnell, C. E. McCutchen, J. D. Proctor, B. F. Dutton, Dan Landien, D. T. Tackett and W. E. Cobb.

Hostesses will include Mesdames Fred T. Couper, W. B. Jarrel, Archie Kautz and J. E. Childers. The menu will be planned by Mesdames William Muff, A. H. Carrigan, Frank Creighton, R. H. Roberts, Harry Davis and J. W. Duval. Mesdames M. H. Glover, R. L. Hargrave, Edwin Bebb, F. H. White, M. A. Beckman and J. R. McKinney will have charge of the ticket sales, and Mesdames H. C. Lankford, Harry Striefe, Grover C. Johnson, W. T. Westmoreland, Julian Ivy, Thomas H. Peery, I. R. Sheldon and Louis V. Abernathy will plan the decorations.

With the last word for this week said, this ends this epistle from your friend,

Federation Press Chairman Issues Statement Friday

Mrs. Meade F. Griffin of Plainview, chairman of the department of press and publicity of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs, issues the following statement made by Mrs. R. F. Lindsay of Mt. Pleasant, Texas, past parliamentarian of Texas Federation of Women's clubs:

"The board of directors, Texas Federation of Women's clubs met in business session January 7 at the federation headquarters, at Fort Worth. A telegram and letter were read from Mrs. J. U. Fields of Haskell announcing the death of her grandmother. Mrs. C. D. Kelly of Crossbeck moved that a telegram of sympathy be sent Mrs. Fields and Mrs. D. L. Stephens moved that members stand in silent prayer. This was done and the president, Mrs. W. R. Potter of Bowie instructed the recording secretary to send the message, which she did.

Telegram Read

"Before the board was called to order that morning three telegrams were received from the General Federation of Women's clubs, one addressed to the Texas board of directors, one to Miss. Ollie Bird, treasurer, and one to Mrs. J. U. Fields. These telegrams were not mentioned at the morning session. When the board adjourned for luncheon, Mrs. Potter, knowing that it was her duty to dispose of the telegrams to the board in some manner, called the executive committee together and the telegrams were read by the secretary, Mrs. Fred Fleming. Mrs. Potter then said, 'I deeply regret this and am going to ask you to give Mrs. Fields the same consideration that we would desire for ourselves under like circumstances. To save our embarrassment I hope you will vote not to bring this matter before the board of directors in her absence, but that a telegram be sent to the general federation board asking that further consideration be given her.'

"The following telegram, on record in the Fort Worth Western Union office was sent: 'Telegram received. Executive board Texas Federation Women's clubs requests that resignation of Mrs. J. U. Fields be deferred until she has had opportunity to report condition of finances in her hands. Death in her family today.' signed, Mrs. John B. Hunt, corresponding secretary.

In Washington

"The telegram from general federation was forwarded to Mrs. Fields at once. Mrs. Fields' later statements show that the telegram was received and read by her before the Texas delegation left for Washington to attend the general federation board meeting. The delegation included Mrs. H. Y. Drought, San Antonio; Mrs. A. H. Bailey, Dallas; Mrs. D. S. Peden, Dallas; Mrs. E. E. Maloney, Commerce; Mrs. W. R. Potter, Bowie; Mrs. Charles Ashcraft, Sulphur Springs; Mrs. R. Q. Lee, Cisco; Mrs. B. F. Lindsay, Mt. Pleasant, and Mrs. W. L. Whitsel, Canadian.

"This group arrived in Washington, D. C., January 10, three days after the resignation had been requested. Upon arrival the women found that Mrs. Day Mills of Texarkana, Texas, director, who had preceded them, had learned of the action of the general federation executive committee. Mrs. Mills urged that the action of the executive committee of the general body be referred to the general board. Mrs. John D. Sherman, president, agreed to accede to Mrs. Mills' request to satisfy all that every consideration had been given to Mrs. Mills' request. The board unanimously sustained the action of the executive committee, with Mrs. Mills present and not voting. The other Texas women present had no vote.

Board Acts

"A second telegram was sent to Mrs. Fields declaring that the special chairmanship created by the general federation for Mrs. Fields had been officially declared vacant. Creation of this chairmanship and a direct deviation from the custom of the general federation. The general federation gave as reasons for this action overlapping of expense, overlapping of work which hindered the progress of biennial plans and interferred with the collection of the biennial fund.

"The general federation at this time announced that Mrs. Henry Drought of San Antonio, outstanding Texas club woman, had been named by the executive committee of the general federation as general biennial chairman for the state of Texas. Mrs. Drought and the San Antonio group serving with her for the biennial officially recognized this action in a telegram sent to Mrs. Griffin at Texas federation headquarters Saturday.

"The facts herein presented are matter of record. Now that these truths have been presented, Texas club women may prove their loyalty to the federation and their obligation to the biennial by turning their faces steadfastly to their great task, thereby showing that Texas women must, with a single mind, work to the honor of Texas. Informed club women should concede that the General Federation of Women's clubs must transact its own business for its own reasons and in its own way."

Congressional Reception Proves To Be Brilliant Affair of Year

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. (AP)—President and Mrs. Coolidge held their congressional reception Thursday night and its representation of every phase of social and political life gave ample testimony that this annual White House event is not what it used to be.

In years past the congressional set turned a cold shoulder to the party, often going to the extreme of sending butlers and maids to represent their households. The practice waned, however, to an extent that was clearly evident this time when senators and representatives almost unanimously requested extra cards for their guests.

Members of congress began attending the congressional reception in force a few years ago when the White House dropped its custom of inviting them to all other social events and now it is by far the most interesting and democratic of the season.

Senator and Mrs. Royal S. Copeland of New York, brought their son, Royal S. Copeland Jr., on from Syracuse university to attend, and Former Senator and Mrs. Rice W. Means of Colorado, first entertained a large dinner party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Deiches of New York, and then accompanied them to the White House. Senator and Mrs. Lawrence D. Tyson also took a large party, and Senator and Mrs. Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey, were accompanied by the latter's sister, Mrs. George Roe of Patchotgue, Long Island.

On Tuesday night the President and Mrs. Coolidge met a group of distinguished Hoosiers at the home of the Postmaster General and Mrs. New, who gave their annual presidential dinner. Mrs. New operates a moving picture machine with great success and she fairly bewildered the company, especially pleasing the president by giving a moving picture show of bird life following the dinner. She considers this quite an amateur exhibition, but the consummate care she uses in picturing the hundreds of birds at Hemlock Hedge, their suburban place just over the district line in Maryland, made it a show worth the efforts of a professional.

The week started off with the thrilling Bal Boheme of the Arts club of Washington, and it was inspiring to see the Perisian minister and others of the diplomatic corps wearing ceremonial dress of their own countries, while a number of representatives in congress and their wives disported themselves in fetching disguise.

Mrs. Henry Riggs Rathbone, wife of Representative Rathbone of Illinois, was a stunning Queen of Sheba in richly embroidered and bejeweled robes, while Representative and Mrs. Maurice H. Thatcher of Kentucky, caught the spirit of the evening, as a Spanish Grandee and an amber princess, hair, dress and jewelry all corresponding. Mrs. Carl R. Chindblom, wife of the Illinois representative, appeared and carried out her part as a small girl in pink gingham rompers, a big pink ribbon holding back her curls.

Mr. and Mrs. Putnam Brinley of New York, who assisted in the judging of costumes, wore copies of medieval court dress and Washington was charmed with them. Mr. Brinley descended from his throne to have a newspaper woman's pencil sharpened, helped adjust a fold of a garment where needed, and was altogether the right kind of a king for such a ball.

A ball at the Spanish embassy and another Saturday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont were two of the largest dancing events of the week, aside from the Bal Boheme. The Spanish embassy ball was given by the Ambassador and Senora de Padilla for their two daughters, Senoritas Rosa and Maria, who are very popular with Americans. There were some Spanish solo dances, and a gay Spanish atmosphere prevailed through the costumes, decorations, music and refreshments.

Among those who came from afar for the Spanish ball were the daughters of the American ambassador to Spain, Ogden H. Hammond, and Mrs. Hammond, who were guests at the embassy.

Mrs. Henry F. Dimock will entertain the Belgian ambassador and Princess de Ligne at dinner before the Perry Belmont ball tonight, asking a number of important persons to meet them. Mrs. Richard M. Townsend, Mrs. Joseph Leiter, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Wilkins and Mrs. Henry Leonard will entertain.

The Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Wilbur will give a dinner Tuesday night for the President and Mrs. Coolidge, who on Thursday night will give the speaker's dinner at the White House. Secretary and Mrs. Wilbur will likely follow their custom of former years and bring some of their guests from the Pacific coast to dine with the president.

The speaker's dinner is the one which was forced on a former administration by "Uncle Joe" Cannon who as speaker of the house, refused to dine with men out-ranking him. There will be a fine play of politics at this dinner and the list of guests is eagerly watched for. Dinner lists in Washington tell full many a political tale, while dinner parties in other cities are usually simply social events.

The ambassador of France and Mme. Claudel are giving their ball of the second empire period on that night and unless the president keeps his guests too late the speaker and Mrs. Longworth will don empire robes of state and go to the ball. Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom are entertaining one of the dinner parties preceding the French ball.

DELPHIAN CHAPTER HAS LESSON PROGRAM

At a meeting of the Wee-Chee-Tah Delphian chapter held at the Memorial auditorium Tuesday, the topics discussed included three epochs of pre-historic life; the discovery of fire, primitive homes, development of food plants, the domestication of animals, primitive clothing, art and picture writing and the religion of prehistoric man.

The lesson was directed by the national representative, Miss Roller, and those taking part on the program were Mesdames J. F. Boyd, W. S. Curlee, Bert King, J. Wilkie Talbert, Joe B. Carrigan, W. L. Mulligan, Allan Montgomery and A. H. Carrigan.

A summary of the readings on the prehistoric man studied by the club members in preparation for the lesson, was given and his mode of living was described. Another interesting feature of the lesson was brought out when it was found that cereals so universally used today, were originally wild grasses. It was also revealed that the religion of the primative man was nature worship and ancestor worship.

The chapter is open for charter privileges while the national representatives are in the city, it was announced.

MRS. FLOYD ALLEN BASH SPEAKER AT P.-T. A. MEET

Mrs. Floyd Allen Bash was the principal speaker at the meeting of the Alamo P.-T. A. Friday afternoon, held at the school, when she gave an instructive address on the question of sex education and social hygiene as it effects school children. Mrs. Bash urged that parents tell children the truth concerning sex matters, saying that it is as easy to tell the truth as fiction, and that the child can understand it better. "Do not treat the subject as a mystery or as something which is taboo," she urged. "Be prepared for questions which may come up from a discussion of these matters." Mrs. Bash used as illustrative lessons for her talk in teaching the child the secret of life, the story of the seed in the flower and the egg in the nest of the mother bird.

The program was opened with a group of songs sung by pupils of the high third grade under the direction of Miss Nan M. Scott, accompanied at the piano by Miss Erma Nala Voss.

Mrs. A. C. Price spoke on the importance of nutrition as related to mental development, and Mrs. Ray Wilhite sang "Boy of Mine."

It was also reported that the music department of the school now has a new Orthophonic Victrola, for the purchase of which the club voted a donation of $50.

Mrs. T. H. Lawson, Mrs. C. O. Nickell and J. E. Park were named a committee to select a delegate to the district P.-T. A. federation meeting.

LITERATURE CHAIRMAN WILL INTERPRET NOVEL

Mrs. J. C. Berney, chairman of the literature department of the Woman's Forum will give an interpretation of Gertrude Atherton's novel, "An Immortal Marriage," at the regular monthly meeting of the department to be held at the clubhouse Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Berney is giving the interpretation in response to numerous requests for it from club women of the city.

Speaking of the author, Mrs. Berney said "Gertrude Atherton has been the subject of more controversies than any other living American novelist. It is one of the evidences of her importance that England regards her as one of the greatest living novelists of America and many Americans so rate her.

"Abroad, the opinion of her work approaches something like unanimity, and rated very high. Her public is made of thousands who are capable of true enjoyment of literature.

Grant Overton says, "these people of her vast audiences are the people of the great middle class, and they represent in their attitude toward fiction, the healthiest note of all."

The story of the love of Aspasie and Pericles as told in "An Immortal Marriage" is said perhaps to be the only history chronicled in which the greatest man and the greatest woman of any age found each other and loved one another. Thus their love influencing the course of history, and making the immortal marriage.

Hostesses for the Thursday meeting will include Mesdames Harry ten Brink, N. B. Chenault, Ivan Murchison, E. P. Bass, Louis Pink, J. C. Hanks, W. B. Hamilton, W. S. Langford, Abe Marks, R. B. Clark and J. C. Hunt.

Marion Talley Joins Ranks of Rich Folk as Result of Her Big Earnings During Two Years as Concert Singer

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 4. (AP)—Young stars in various fields who report their annual income in six figures face another contender for financial honors with the announcement that Marion Talley, Kansas City opera singer, earned more than $300,000 in less than two years from concert tours alone.

Part of the income of the young soprano who was 21 years old December 20, last, was revealed in a letter to the Kansas City Star from F. C. Coppicus, head of the Metropolitan Musical bureau and former manager of Miss Talley. He stated that her net earnings under his management totaled $324,892, since her concert career began in the spring of 1926.

This amount, Mr. Coppicus said, did not include Marion's earnings from her Metropolitan opera engagements or her income from her phonograph record royalties. He explained that in reporting that amount he had deducted all expenses except hotel accounts for those of her family who accompanied her.

Mr. Coppicus announced that when Marion recently left the management of the Metropolitan Musical bureau which is not a subsidiary of Metropolitan opera, he advised her to retire for a time to permit further study.

"On Miss Talley's recent concert tour, the music critics of many cities suggested in their reviews of the representative concerts that Miss Talley should retire for a year or two in order to study further," he said. "I made the same suggestion to her."

No statement was made by Miss Talley concerning her plans for the immediate future except that she did not expect to appear in concerts this summer following the close of the Metropolitan opera season.

Miss Talley, who studied a year abroad before her debut as "Gilda" in "Rigoletto," in New York in February 1926, when asked recently as to her plans, was quoted as saying:

"Of course, you see, I am a fatalist. If I go to Europe I will be pleased, but if I don't go I will not be disappointed. I never worry about anything because I am a fatalist."

It was pointed out that from the time she first gained recognition while singing in a church here in 1922, that she avoided a professional career on the plea she wished to study, and that her debut in New York was postponed for a year for this reason.

Bob, who had been putting up the car for the night, came into the living room where Faith was resting on the couch, just after Cherry had kissed her sister joyously and aped from the room.

"Good news, sweet!" He stopped and lifted his wife into his arms and carried her to the biggest of the arm chairs, cradling her slender body comfortably in his arms.

"Oh! Then Cherry's heard from Nils? He told me not to tell her—" Faith began, lifting a very white, fragile-looking hand to rumple his chestnut hair.

"No." Bob shook his head, then caught her hand and pressed it to his lips. "This is you-and-me news honey. Hemingway has approved my plans for his country home."

"Bob! Oh, darling, I'm so glad and so proud! But I knew he would like them. He'd be a fool not to. He'll have the most beautiful home in the state—"

"In the whole Middle West!" Bob interrupted exultantly. "There are places that cost more than this one will, but if I do say it, there won't be a handsomer one." He broke off to stare at the small figure that had run noiselessly into the room.

"Cherry! Where in the world did you get that costume?" Faith twisted about in Bob's arms to stare at her sister. "It's adorable! Surely you haven't had time to have it made—"

"Rather not!" Cherry laughed and pirouted joyously on the toe of a green leather boot.

The costume was a musical comedy version of an aviatrix's outfit. Cherry's coppery-gold curls were completely hidden under a snug helmet of hunter's-green leather.

"It's a costume used for a specialty dance in the prologue for that aviation picture they were showing at the Liberty theater last week," Cherry explained. "I rented it. Isn't it a gorgeous fit? I'm sick of going to masquerades as Pierette or Madam Pompadour or 'A Belle of 1860.' What do you bet I'll take the prize for the best costume?"

"I wouldn't bet on a sure thing," Bob chuckled. "Isn't she a knockout, sweet?" he appealed to his wife, and for the first time Faith heard Bob pay Cherry a compliment without wincing with a twinge of jealousy.

When Cherry had run to the kitchen to show Rhoda, Faith said quietly: "That settles it, Bob. If Nils calls tomorrow, Cherry isn't to know. It would be criminal to cheat her out of the glorious time she's sure to have."

"Oh, don't bother about Nils," Bob reassured her. "If he's as gone on her as you think he is, he'll stay over Thursday night to see her."

"I wish I could be sure of that," Faith worried. "But lets talk about the Hemingway house, darling. Do you realise what it will mean—to the boy?"

Monday: Bill Warren assumes importance.

REGISTERED UNITED STATES PATENT OFFICE

State Marriage Laws.

"Dear Zoe: Will you please tell me what the marriage laws of New York and Pennsylvania are? Is a boy of 18 capable of love and can a girl depend on him for a happy future?

—I. H."

Licenses for marriage are required in all tates. In New York the marriage may be performed without delay. In Pennsylvania the same. In Pennsylvania a health certificate from a physician is necessary for the man. In Pennsylvania marriage between first cousins is forbidden.

ZOE BECKLEY

For the rest of you will find all the requirements printed upon the application for the license itself.

The man and the girl both must be 21 years of age or over, in these states in order to marry without parents' consent.

A boy of 18 might be capable of love, but he seldom is. Without experience, it is impossible to distinguish physical attraction from real love.

The majority of marriages made when the parties are very young go to pieces. This does not mean there is always divorce, but that marriages are not happy.

As one grows older, one's tastes and ideas change. You don't usually care for the same things at 30 that you do at 18.

Moreover, a girl should have a few years a carefree good times between schooldays and marriage. Too many girls who marry in their early teens wake up in a few years to the fact that they have been cheated of life and chained down to drabness and responsibility before they were ready for it.

Quick! Hide Your Feelings.

"Dear Zoe: I am 15 and care very much for a certain boy. We agreed on friendship but I have grown to care more. He says I am too serious. It is my nature, Zoe. I don't want to lose him; he is the only boy friend I want.

—CONSTANT READER."

You'll scare him away as sure as you live girl, if you drape yourself around his neck when he doesn't want you to. Can't you keep to your agreement like a good little sport?

You are too young to be in love with anybody. Have sense, that's a good kid, and don't bother your head about "love" for years yet.

You are lucky to have a nice boy friend who is willing just to be a friend and not make fake love to you.

Ships That Pass.

"Dear Zoe: I am 20 and am interested in a man who works where I do. I see him every day but having no chance for introduction, I spoke to him one morning when we met. Later I saw him again and he didn't even look at me. Have I done wrong by speaking?

—CURLYHEAD."

There's certainly nothing wrong in a courteous howdy-do when you meet a fellow worker at your place of business. The reason he didn't speak the next time was probably because he was thinking of something else and didn't see you.

Or perhaps you overdid the "good morning" and made it seem like a hug. And he got scared. Some men are terrible prudes.

If we were you we'd keep up the morning salutation as if nothing had happened, and if he is rude and ignores it, simply turn up your nose and bestow your kindness on some chap who appreciates it.

She Needs Discipline!

"Dear Zoe: I am a young man nearly 20. There is a girl I love more than my own life. Sometimes she says she loves me; then after two or three days she says she's sick and tired of seeing me. There is nothing I wouldn't do for her. On several occasions she has asked people to introduce her to this one and that, but they always refuse because they know I'm square and won't do me dirt. Please advise me.

—D. U. D."

We think you are probably too kind to this frivolous kid. Back off for a while and give her a chance to want you. When we are sure of anybody or anything we mostly don't want it. Your loyal friends suspect you're too good for her—and maybe they're right.

Where's Your Problem?

"Dear Zoe: I have been going with a nice, quiet, sensible girl I liked very much. Lately I met another, also quiet and sensible but with more spirit. I can't get her out of my mind but am ashamed to give either of them up. They both like me.

—K. C. A."

Why should you give up either? Don't boys know lots of girls and girls know lots of boys?

How are we ever going to choose a life partner (assuming we want one sometime!) without knowing a number to choose from, hey?

Unless you're old enough to know what love is, what marriage means and are financially and every other way ready for it, don't worry about giving anybody up.

Have friends. Be nice to them all. Be frank, play straight and leave the rest to the future.

Only a Few Objections.

"Dear Zoe: I am 15, he is 18. If I ask him a question, he always asks why I ask it. When I tell him anything he misunderstands and we quarrel. We are to be married when I am 16. He wants to live with his mother and I do not. Advise me as I love him so much.

Outside the fact that you are too young to marry and so is he, that you do not understand each other and always quarrel, and are contemplating living with ma-in-law and storing up trouble for yourselves, everything's all right!

Well, don't do it. Don't do any of it. Don't marry at 16. Don't start out by living with mother-in-law. Don't consider marrying anybody you constantly quarrel with and who rubs you the wrong way.

If the reasons for all this are not clear to you (as they should be), write again, asking specific things, and we will take another crack at your problem.

Next Thing to It

"You were no spring chicken when I married you."

"No; but I was a goose."—Tit-Bits.

Flowers that Waft Lovely Scent and Sentiment

DID you ever notice how many birds and flowers there are on valentines? There are two legends concerning the origin of Valentine's day but the one I like better says that on February 14 the birds start out to find their mates. Hence all young things turn to "idle thoughts of love" and express them in flowers and other such appropriate gifts which convey the delicate sentiment of the occasion.

I am sure dear old St. Valentine himself would approve of Bebb's flowers as a lovely means of expressing messages of love, appreciation and friendship. Wichita Floral company's greenhouses are filled with beautiful blooms of all sorts.

For young girls order a shoulder bouquet. They are as fragile and charming as the girl herself. There are blooming pot plants galore and armloads of roses, climbing vines laden with sweet peas.

February 14 is an excellent date to surprise your mother or wife with a living gift of appreciation. Flowerphone 3300.

A BRIGHT corsage from Joga Dickson's in the lapel of your last spring suit or on your new ensemble adds chic and freshness indescribably lovely.

THESE two smart little frocks are from McClurkan's. But seeing them is just as satisfactory as peeping through a key hole. They are such a little part of such a gala collection of sport dresses. They run to very tailored models in Friska cloth, Basket cloth jersey, crepe combinations and Voile De Laine. That last mentioned is one of the most popular new materials. It is like smooth thin silk wool. These two piece frocks have clever trims of blocks and figures sewed on. One adorable dress in gray has blue blocks patched on. Another has a Kaska blouse that looks like striped candy.

The darling suits are tweed and twill in solid colors or with invisible stripes. Mannish lapels and insert pockets bound in heavy silk braid. Wrap around skirts. There is just something about a spring suit, isn't there? Well, McClurkan's have all that spring suit lure and just a little bit more.

Emancipate Yourself from Want

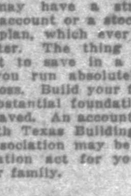

SIXTY-FIVE years ago last month the pen of Abraham Lincoln made all men in the United States free. Slavery and serfdom are now illegal by statutes in the federal constitution. And yet, in this land of freedom and equality, there are men and women still held in bondage by want and poverty. The biggest cause of this bondage is neglect. They put off until tomorrow systematic savings and investments. They neglect to save in times of prosperity for the uncertainty of tomorrow. Financial and government reports say that money is plentiful now. While times are prosperous you should deposit a small amount in the North Texas Building and Loan Association, 822 Scott, each week. You will be making for yourself permanent prosperity. Your dollars work hard for you in North Texas Building and Loan. It is safe and busy growing and protecting you.

You may have a straight savings account or a stock acquiring plan, which ever suits you better. The thing is to save but to save in a place where you run absolutely no risk of loss. Build your future on a substantial foundation of dollars saved. An account with the North Texas Building and Loan Association may be your emancipation act for yourself and your family.

LITTLE Dan Cupid certainly shot a winning dart when he whispered to you to serve Colvert's ice cream at your valentine party. Follow his advice and watch your guests succumb. Colvert's individual molds have skillfully turned delicious rich ice cream into pierced hearts and bold cupids. They add infinitely to a red and white color scheme giving a distinctive note of completeness. Edible Valentines almost too pretty to eat but once you taste that good Colvert flavor you forget the beauty and devour it greedily. That's the only bad thing I can say for Colvert's ice cream. It is so good that it is hard on my table manners. Once I taste it I simply want to gobble.

February is an ideal month to entertain. Besides Valentine's day there are two patriotic occasions of note. Remember your Colvert dealer can solve your refreshment problem for any occasion. For details on molds call 2165.

THERE are so many beautiful new spring things coming in at McClurkan's that there is hardly room for them all on the racks. The ensemble is making its spring debut in the fashion world and such a charming appearance!

The three-quarter or full length ensemble coat has slender lines like the fitted hip line of the spring dresses. Since they are shown in jersey, kasha, tweeds, they have body enough to be worn as a separate coat. Some have soft, full length linings and others no lining at all.

The ensemble dress has two pieces. Usually a skirt of same material as coat, and the blouse some novelty. The quality of these ensembles make them outstanding. There is a subdued refinement in such well made models.

"A New Hat!"

"I'LL ADMIT it does look like a new spring lid but it isn't. It's my last spring hat cleaned and reblocked by De Luxe."

The DeLuxe Dry Cleaners, phone 7174, have improved their hat department with new equipment. Increased service at reduced prices. Hats cleaned $1.00.

"Why don't you send yours? It will come home looking just as new as it did when you first lifted it out of the box."

ONE BEAUTY of the popular water bottle lamp is that you can change its color at fancy. Out with one fluid and in with new magic. Several of the city's best decorators use Dip-It Dye for this fluid. "Lest We Forget"

NO MAN ever took the chair of state under more harrowing conditions and circumstances than did Abraham Lincoln. With the country which elected him torn by strife, with foreign powers waiting eagerly to strike when America should lie helpless and practically defenseless, with those whom he trusted betraying him, Lincoln worked at a task fraught with almost insurmountable obstacles. Yet he achieved the thing which seemed impossible.

Because he succeeded in his ideal of union and equality, his life proves an example to every American and we honor his memory. The Wichita State Bank and Trust Company have a policy of equality in serving their patrons. A friendly smile and courteous attention awaits each one alike regardless of the size of his deposit.

It stands for the business ideals which help to make this community happy and prosperous. Its officers have before them the ideal of your financial success and independence. All of its employees are pulling together with a spirit of unity striving toward the goal of efficient service for its depositors.

When you select a bank don't just choose any bank but pick one that will walk side by side with you in your struggle for financial independence.

DID YOU know that Frigidaire had won and held first place in the sale and manufacture of electric refrigerators. That to-day more Frigidaires are used than all the rest combined? There is definite proof that they delight and satisfy the user.

And why not?

They give a woman what she is looking for. Something to simplify her kitchen work and give her more time for recreation. That means she stays years younger and keeps her girlish appearance. Unexpected guests no longer startle or rush her. She merely goes to her Frigidaire and takes out a crisp salad and a delicious ice that Frigidaire had tempted her to prepare.

They tell me around at the Texas Electric Service company that Frigidaire saves $105.36 a year in ice and food. At any rate the operating cost is very low according to reports from users all over the country.

And Frigidaire adds indefinitely to the beauty of your kitchen. The cabinet combines all elements of style and classic beauty in perfect harmony. Have you seen the one in the Texas Electric Service company window finished in green and orchid? They can match the new colored plumbing fixtures with a Frigidaire if you wish. When you pay your light bill this month ask to see Frigidaire and have the General Motors easy monthly payment plan explained to you.

P. S. To husbands:

ISN'T Valentine's Day fun?

I rumaged around in Lovelace's Bookstore all Saturday morning and the Valentine's are the cleverest things. One for each member of your family and all the relatives.

Dennison's full line of papers and material for favors. Hearts and cupids galore. Heart shaped doilies to slip under your ice course. In fact all the little touches to make your party a long remembered occasion.

MOST of us are continually hunting something attractive for young sters. Sometimes our own or often a new baby or for some child's birthday. For growns-ups exquisite Florentine frames in dull bronze finish or a lovely sewing or hose box, imported of course. Phone 4256.

Happy is the Home Where Music Dwells

THE PIANO with its rich mellow tones as we have it today is the outgrowth of centuries of development and invention.

The monochord, the ancestor of the piano, was a one stringed instrument popular in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries. About 1340 some unknown genius invented the keyboard.

Handel, Mozart, and Bach along with other composers of the eighteenth century used a Harpsichord. The courts of William Third, Anne, and the three Georges favored this instrument and fostered its development until today we have the incomparable grand.

While I was in McConnell Bros. beautiful store the other day I made the startling discovery that he is handling Adam Schaaf pianos so I had to tell you about it. They have Grands to grace a stately drawing room, and to give inspiration to those aspiring to concert work.

I think the small new uprights are too cunning for words. Have you seen them? They fit the smallest apartment and yet, most wonderful of all, maintain that splendid Adam Schaaf tone. See them on your next visit to town or dial 5723 and ask about them.

MAJESTIC

THE PROGRAMS at the Majestic have been good all season but they are getting better all the time. Weren't Ned Wayburn's Buds of 1927 fine?

Well, next week here is a real treat. Harry Kahne, the world's supreme mentalist, will be here to hang by his heels and add long columns figures to amaze us with his speed and accuracy.

W. H. Crob and his piano hounds have a novel act. Jazz and lots of it. How their fingers do slide over the ivory.

Bartram and Saxton put on an entertaining skit.

Surprise your wife by asking her for a date to see next week's Majestic program. You will both have a good time and be well entertained.

ONE OF THE clearest early remembrances I have is of crying for the big Victor pasteboard dog who used to sit in the phonograph store in our little town. I thought the quizzical yet contented expression as he sat there and listened to his master's voice was just too pleasing.

Victor records hold the same fascination for me today. They give me all the latest music by the best talent. That's why and how they please.

Nunn Electric company, 822 Scott, keeps a large stock of the newest hits as well as classic selections. Johnnie Marvin's new numbers are just out and have that winning note. They are on Victor record 21153. "Is She My Girl Friend?" and "Keep Sweeping Cobwebs off the Moon." Don't they sound like his songs?

Victor 21114, "Did You Mean It?" and "The Man I Love," are Marion Harris' latest.

LIFE IS SO SHORT

by Irene Davidson

An' Scattered so Thick With Rather Nice Things, We Don't Bother With Dirty Front Steps

I knew a perfectly lovely person who lived in a perfectly lovely house.

She kept the house herself; I mean, she was responsible for the whole works. She swept and dusted and selected the furniture and mowed the lawn, even—

As I said, the house was lovely—and she was lovely—

All except the front steps. The front steps were wide and deep, and extended quite a ways. In fact the front steps were the first thing you could see; the most thing you saw, even from pretty close up. And I do admit that the front steps were disreputably unkept.

Not just once a week, or once a month—they were always that way. She knew it. She liked them that way—

Not So Good

(Well—she'd have to know it if they were; I can't get around that; and she'd have to like it before she let them stay that way. So now you know it was a fairy tale, and that I didn't know any such person with any such front steps. Not if she liked them that way—)

The reason I thought of it was that yesterday somebody told me something, and afterward I passed a house where there was a wide front porch going clear across the front, and it was so utterly disreputable I stopped before I thought.

Then I remembered what the person had told me. And the suggestion flitted into my mind—. "A very lovely person lives there. She keeps the porch that way because she likes it—"

—And just then a blowsy woman came out on the front porch wiping her hands on a dirty apron, and called across the yard to a child. "Get yourself home, or I'll come after you with a tree lim'!"

I knew she didn't mean me, but I hurried along just the same.

Well, there's a store on Indiana avenue maybe you haven't noticed. It's different from most stores. The front is all dusty and scattered with bills and papers, and the glass is paint-splotched and chalk-marked.

As you glance in, you see that it's empty, and wonder why such an obviously good location seems to be unoccupied. But there are dirty old pieces of rope and hand bills and envelopes and broken bottles and cement crumbs and splintered wood on the dusty floor, and besides these, two or three signs on the front door and windows saying it's empty.

"Tenant wanted; inquire Blankety blank blank."

Signs All Wrong

Well—you're mistaken, and the signs are all wrong—including empty space. The place is occupied—farther back than you can see. There's a fine business going on in there—a salesman selling beautiful things—

The dirty old hand bills and envelopes and broken bottles and nails and odd piles of trash are testimonials of the beautiful and enduring things he has inside.

(No—that didn't go so well either. Let me think. If what they told me was true, there ought to be at least one successful proposition of the same sort in nature or business—)

Oh yes; how would this do? The skies were full of golden light from the sun, that hung like a ball of molten flame right in the middle of heaven.

And a lot of clouds came up and piled themselves about it—somewhere this side, of course—and finally hid it entirely from view. The clouds were forbidding and ugly things and lapped themselves like gray blankets across every outlet of light.

It would have looked, just casually, as if there weren't any sun at all; there wasn't even a curtain-hole to peek through at it and reassure oneself. But you knew it was there, shining and beautiful, right behind the clouds. And for some strange reason utterly unchronicled by the astronomers, or whoever it is studies the skies, the clouds stayed that way permanently, hiding the warm and lovely thing that was the sun. The only thing that made it absolutely all right (geewiz—we've got it this time—) was that you knew the sun was there—and that it wasn't one atom less perfect because of the clouds—

Things Died?

Things died? Why—I don't know. . . . I hadn't thought—; Everything froze over—and the flowers faded—and the birds stopped singing—sa-a-a-y!—

Now w'y do you bring that up?

Well—I know it was childish—ideas and all. But the other thing is childish, too. What they told me you see, was this: That somebody I had met several times was an unusually sweet and lovely person "down deep." "When you get to know her," they said, "she's very fine; really a wonderful person. But you have to know her."

"W'y," I said, remembering, "I've met her and talked with her two or three times, and was really interested in knowing and appreciating her. But she didn't show a single one of those qualities you mention. Where are they?"

"Oh, you have to get beneath all that exterior," I was assured largely. "That's just the shell. You have to really know her. She isn't the sort of person who responds to casual acquaintance at all well. You have to go deep. Then you'll find how fine and—"

"Lovely she is," I finished mechanically. But just then somebody else came up—one of those folks who are the same stuff straight through—and I was intrigued away.

Since then I've been intrigued away a dozen times. There are so many folks who are wide open—

Maybe—But I Won't.

Maybe I ought to stay and delve around and find the jewels in that mine. The only trouble is, life is so short. It's not only short, but it's scattered fairly thick with people who unfold their loveliness with a heartening promiscuity—

To tell the truth, I've never been able to solve the problem of a human being—myself included—who withholds in the heart anything that might make life kinder or lighter or sweeter for any other human being in it.

The problem of a human being who, for some inexplicable reason, elects to be Cultivated. To respond only to the person who digs about the roots and prunes the limbs, withholding their beauty from all else.

Life—from the atom upward, in all nature and humankind, is charged with a single urge. The urge to grow and blossom and serve the ends of beauty and more growth. As Gibran says, the apple tree doesn't choose for whom it will scatter blossoms nor bear fruit nor offer shade. It simply grows apple blossoms and fruit with every ounce of its energy, and because it does grow with every ounce of its energy, it even affords the by-product of shelter.

The whole eternal lesson of life is right in the apple tree. Among those who come to gather the blossoms or eat the fruit may be many unworthy. There may be many of such perverted tastes that the simple fresh crispness of an apple is unpardonably insipid. There may be those who don't like apples anyway, and merely eat to pass the time away in a spot of shade. There may be those who eat the apple with bitterness and hatred, crying out for pommegranates or pawpaws.

The truth is that none of these things matter. The apple tree's business is to blossom and fruit to the zenith of its power; not to concern itself with who profits thereby.

If it did concern itself, and withheld its copious and full flowering in order to choose among recipients of beauty and food and shade—well—it would just be its own growth that was stunted. Among the inevitables!

Can't Pigeonhole 'Em.

Of course, getting back to human beings, the psychoanalysts and other meddlers explain a lot of the "withholding" habit by their inferiority complex theory. But it isn't easy to pigeonhole things, and even when you think you've netted the humming bird you haven't. Personally, I believe that back of any inferiority complex, or superiority complex, or whatever complex or subconscious impulse is selected to explain any matter of timidity, or unfriendliness, or stiffness, or inarticulateness, or lack of perfect ease and freedom in contacts, is bound to be the initial urge of selfishness. Consideration, in one manner or another, consciously or unconsciously, of self.

Somebody introduces you to me, for instance. We shake hands with a nice amount of friendly reserve, smile an equally nice smile, and say something. We may talk for 10 or 15 minutes if neither can find a convenient this-way-out.

At the close of the whole thing, in nine hundred and ninety-nine cases in a thousand, if we'd been apple trees, endowed with human urges and inhibitions instead of the divinely lovely and simple purpose of an apple tree, this is what we'd both look like—

Nice, straight trunks, and bleak, bare limbs pointing in selected directions!

Maybe a bud; maybe a blossom or two, in carefully selected spots.

And the tragedy of it being that we see some distorted purpose, or beauty, or reason, or life—in all of it! God help us!

And this thing that we make of it!

Never mind; c'mon. . . . How many years have we got left? One day if we see it so, would be enough to put the blossom-side of us on the outside.

One day could be enough—if the light reached us.

COWARDLY FATHERS

by Kathleen Norris

One of the tragedies of American life is the fact that so many fine, good men are worrying over the necessity of making provision for their women and their children.

This seems to be a survival of Middle Age sentiment; a legacy from the days when, the minute father died, the widow and the orphans were turned into the snow to starve.

They can't enjoy today, these good and conscientious husbands and fathers, because they are so anxious and so uncertain about tomorrow.

A few days ago I met a man of this type; a nice, quiet, comfortably successful man going home after the business day was over. On a ferry trip we talked together.

He said that Anne was well, and lovely, and that the baby had gotten entirely over his croup, and that the little girls were in school, and a couple of darlings.

"Aren't you rich to have three of them, Bert!"

He laughed, and frowned, and hesitated, and said:

"Well, yes, but it's an awful responsibility, you know. Two little girls, and the boy such a baby, and Anne has never earned a cent of money in her life. I get terribly worried about it. Sometimes I can't sleep nights, thinking. I look at them all, the girls playing with their dolls on the rug, and Anne with the baby, and I wonder what in God's name would happen to them if I were suddenly taken away. Of course I carry some insurance, but that would take care of them only a year or two, and then I don't know what Anne could do. Her parents could help a little, I suppose—"

It seemed to me so pitiful that this conscientious, loving, intelligent man, going back to a lovely country home, in the pleasant late afternoon sunshine on beautiful San Francisco bay, could be so short-sighted as to waste one minute, or one second, in foolish apprehensions of this sort.

They all do it, I know, hundreds and thousands of them lose the best years of their lives, lose all the glory and sweetness of fatherhood, for troubled concern as to who will be buttering little Barbara's bread 20 years from now, or who will pay for Peter's graduation suit.

Poor fathers! and poor, pitifully limited human nature generally, that can pick out, from a whole world full of thriving, busy, contented, three-meals-a-day-eating persons, just two or three to worry about!

You lack imagination—I want to say to them. You lack the vision to see that no matter how much you love them, no matter how hard you try to save them, no matter how far ahead you look, you can't live their lives for those adored babies of yours, you can't provide for them, they're going to be individual entities, just as you were, and having launched them into this world, your most sensible course just now is to put something quite inexpensive and intangible into their hearts and souls, and stop worrying about what you can, or can't, put into a little material bank, in your little material town.

If they grow up healthy and intelligent, with an idea of duty and goodness here and there, and a love of each other, life, good books, neighbors—they're rich, they're entirely provided for, now.

And if they grow up neurotic and selfish, snobbish and stupid, your thousand won't help them, and millions wouldn't.

They've got to learn their lessons, take their knock-down blows, eat their due allowance of humble pie, just like the rest of us. Money has absolutely nothing to do with it.

Why, there are girls and boys on every side of us who are "well provided for." That precious forty-two thousand dollars of Aunt Emma's colors all their lives.

Forty-two thousand dollars doesn't keep a girl from bitterness in life, from loneliness, sensitiveness, and a feeling of superfluousness and failure. On the contrary, it may easily develop in her exactly the qualities that lead to general wreckage.

Half a million dollars didn't save the beautiful little daughter of a friend of mine from a ruined life. She married at 19, a splendidly prosperous and attractive fellow, apparently. He really had nothing, not even a job on credit, because he was going to marry her. She paid the first month's rent, and for everything else—even the lovely bridal bouquet he had sent her.

And in seven years every penny of her fortune was gone, and she was raising two darling babies, and renting furnished rooms—and not unhappy, either, for she clung to her handsome scapegrace, and idolized her children, and being a fine business woman, to everyone's surprise put us very well.

The girl without money, who faces life happily and confidently, interested in teaching, nursing, painting—any one of a thousand occupations, has a great advantage over the heiress nowadays. The latter is pretty sure of a supremely dull life. The former is bound to love her work, if it really is her work, and while she is doing it she finds all sorts of side interests, and makes all sorts of new ties.

That sounds like nonsense, and I can hear harrassed fathers and mothers saying, "Certainly, let her have a profession, let her work at what interests her. But let her have a comfortable hundred thousand in the bank, besides! It won't do her any harm to be fixed financially."

Ah, but that's just where I think you're wrong. That neat little fortune does do her harm, from the very moment she knows she's going to get it. In the back of her mind there is a little sense of superiority—she isn't quite like the other girls in the high school—she is going to get Aunt Emma's money, when she is 21.

If there is any snobbishness, any silly vanity or pride, any laziness or procrastination, any mercenary arrogance in her—and these things exist in almost all of us, awaiting their chance to raise their heads—that little legacy is going to help them along. She won't want to work hard, in training school or laboratory or normal college, because she's going to get Aunt Emma's money. It will be easy for her to suspect that certain of her friends like her the better because of expectations; that certain men are all ready to profess love for her—because of her money.

So that the very safeguard that her worrying, self-sacrificing father and mother worked so hard to place about her, is really a quicksand, and her path is harder because of it, and not easier.

Just at first it seems easier, and we are all deceived. Very few of us live long enough to discover that money, in itself, isn't happiness. We hear that that nice, hardworking Mr. Brown is dead from over strain, and we say contentedly, "Well, I imagine Mrs. Brown and Mabel are pretty well fixed. They'll have at least $200 a month."

After that we forget them: they disappear. They live timidly, nervously, restrictedly on their money, afraid to see it go, because they haven't the least idea where it came from, or how to get any more. As the years go by it seems less and less, because living expenses and common needs are always on the increase, and Mama and Mabel are not the sort to study budgets, and new methods of spending.

They want to come back to ten and talk.

They become the sort of women we all know; women with "something," quiet, solitary, unnecessary women who live in constant terror of anything and everything that may take away their precious income. They hardly dare glance at more prosperous folk, on one side of them, because money scares them so, and on the other hand they are not rich enough to help poorer neighbors—the more thought agitates them intensely.

One such woman was an acquaintance of our family, when I was a child. I can remember still the naughtiness with which we used to disturb her with vague hints as to property values in the Mission going down—as to there having been a big fire in the Mission this afternoon. The poor little withered old lady would twist and stutter with anguish; for sixty years she had been drawing some seventy dollars a month in rents from two cottages in the Mission; and her whole useless, idle life had been built about that one fundamental fact,—that she had "something."

"Something" in the heart and soul and mind really is a legacy for our children, but the little limited stocks, or bonds, or property, are lifeless and sterile things at best, and shorn of the energy and enterprise that originally made them valuable, they don't amount to much.

When their time comes, let your children do their full share of living, hoping, fearing, failing, succeeding, let them have their turn at doubt and discouragement, their depths of despair, their glorious heights of achievement. No life really worth while was ever lived in continuous cotton wool, and no one of us—be he the most industrious and necessary father who ever slaved himself to death,—is indispensable.

That weeping, meek, undeveloped little wife of yours may develop strange business capacity; she may turn out to be a natural born engineer, or undertaker, or explorer, and twenty years from now we may all be gazing at her pictures in the papers, and saying dazedly,—as we do about someone or another almost every day,—"And we all thought that when poor George died her life was over, too."

Those delicate, helpless little daughters may be destined for literary or artistic fame, they may get thousands of dollars every week for captioning movies or designing dresses, they may marry rich men. And in 10, or 15, short years they may only have one sorrow, as they live their busy and happy lives,—sorrow because daddy didn't live to share the big houses and the motor cars and the comforts and glories generally.

Just the rich women in America were poor girls a few years ago, and more than half the rich men were penniless boys. You and I can't save our children the experiences of life, nor deny that very often wealth is more of a curse than a blessing, and that the truest happiness, to the truest hearts, comes only from being useful and healthy and busy and beloved.

We can't give our children the future, strive though we may to make it secure. But we can give them the present, you fathers of little girls who hardly know you. They don't want $20,000 in 1940—they want Dad, this very Sunday. They want to go on a cold, bracing walk with him, and come back to tea and talk; they want to tell him about school, and have him tell them in return a good deal of nonsense, that will make them shout with their generous laugh, and a little common sense underneath, that will stick.

Talk to them about the years to come, about the patience and sweetness that are such helps to success, about humility, that essential ingredient to happy living, about the way in which they must help mother if anything happens to dad, about girls in your office who are disliked because they are lazy and selfish, and other girls who have been pushed right up to the top because they have capability and promptness and politeness.

One such talk, from the comrade they have come to love and trust, will be worth more than money you can hoard and scrape together for your girls. If their mother happens to be a saint, then everything is all right anyway. But if their mother happens to be merely human, a little bitten with the social mania, extravagant, vain,—not aggressively so, but just a trifle set upon the superficialities of life, then you owe your daughters the other viewpoint, the glimpse of service and self-expression and love for love's own sake, as the real riches of the world.

Years and years ago, on a Sunday walk, a father and his four oldest children once stopped at a neglected, four-room cabin that was known as "Prince Charlie's." The old half-witted man who built it believed himself to be a son of the last Bourbon, but he was long dead, and the cottage had fallen into decay.

"We could rent this place, if we had to, for $7 a month," said the father. "But we couldn't have any servants here; you would have to do a lot of cleaning."

Girls and boys, alike fascinated by the thought, explored the old place, their shouts regarding paint, planks, nails, bonfires, raking, whitewash, ringing over it. They never passed "Prince Charlie's" cabin after that without a rush of eager and interested speculation about coming there to live. The girls worked out budgets—this was before the day of budgets,—beginning with $7 rent. They placed an imaginary soup-pot on the back of an imaginary stove, imaginary apples and cabbages flourished in Prince Charlie's backyard. They announced triumphantly to their father that they could manage it, all six of them, on $40 a month.

Sometimes, since, I have wondered if that Sunday talk, in all the greenness of youth and ignorance and hope and California may-time, didn't permanently affect the lives of that quartet. For before spring came again they, who had never been away from their father and mother in their happy lives, were orphans, and had to face living on nothing per month, instead of the computed $40.

Trained by this father to think for themselves, rather in terms of hoarded thousands, the fact remains that these four did fling themselves into the business of living with an ardor that amounted to actual enthusiasm, and that everyone of them today could pay—and would pay, God only knows how gladly!—a good many thousand dollars apiece for that old May-day walk with Dad, again.

Isn't it just possible, in conclusion, that your youngsters want you, you, their father, right now, in 1928, more than they will want money in 1940? Your wisdom, your philosophy, your experience, are their real birthright, and when you run away from them, Sunday after Sunday, sometimes to the golf links and sometimes to the office, you rob them of an element they need now, and will need all through their lives; the influence and advice of the biggest figure in their small world.

Stop worrying about putting money in the bank for them. But begin today to put companionship, love, confidence, advice, and the radiant memories of happy childhood, into those enduring banks that are their hearts and souls.

MANY DELEGATES TO ATTEND C. E. CONVENTION HERE

A total of 55½ registrations has been received for the Wichita District Christian Endeavor convention to be held in the First Presbyterian church on February 17, 18, 19, according to J. T. Morrow, chairman of the registration committee.

The registration according to churches is: East Side Presbyterian, 26; First Presbyterian, 15½; Floral Heights Presbyterian, 10½; First Christian church of Electra, 2½; and Central Christian church of Burkburnett, 1, making a total of 55½. Several churches out of the city who plan to attend have not as yet sent in any registrations.

On Monday night, February 6, a rally will be held in the First Christian church. Several churches from outside the city will send representatives. It is planned to carry out a program bordering along the lines of the one to be used during the district convention.

Word comes from Miss Ruby Brown, chairman of the homes committee, that homes have been found to care for 15 delegates. It is hoped that there will be a ready response from local members of endeavor to help entertain the visiting delegates.

New Hair Style from New York

"It's so little time to myself," says Mildred Warshaw, lovely New York City girl who lives at 1313 42nd street Brooklyn. "That's why it's been such a help to me to learn the new way so many of my girlfriends are doing their hair. Now I just put a few dashes of Danderine on my brush every time I use it. It makes my hair easy to dress and holds it in place. All I need is one shampoo a month, now. It stopped my dandruff, and my hair is always gleaming and silky, instead of looking dull and stringy like it did before I started using Danderine."

Danderine does more to bring out the natural color, the gleam and lustre of your hair, than any shampoo or treatment. It removes all the dust, grime and oily film from your hair—tones and refreshes your scalp—keeps dandruff away. All drug stores have the 35c bottles. Lovely hair and a healthy scalp for a few cents!—Adv.

DIAMOND IMPERFECTIONS

You are doubtless aware that Mother Nature does not produce all of her diamonds perfect, and we must accept them as she produces them. By recutting an imperfection may be eliminated, but only when it is so located that the removal of the imperfection will not so reduce the diamond in size as to reduce its value. Only a Diamond Expert knows whether or not such removal will reduce or enhance the diamond's value.

Dr. Locke, whose captivating humor and oratory have won him a place as one o fthe most popular speakers on the American platform, is one of an exceptional group of well qualified men who are touring the middle west as part of the "Bringing the World to Your Door" campaign being carried forward by the Presbyterian board of foreign missions from its Chicago office to acquaint the American people in a popular way with the world's people and with present-day world movements affecting the life of every American citizen.

With so many important world events taking place today vital to America, including the question of the independence of the Philippine Islands, the critical situation in Mexico, and the rapidly changing movements in China and the Far East, no wide-awake American citizen can afford to be uninformed about the present world situation. Weak Intestines Nearly Ruined Texas Boy

R. F. Bayes, "My son Alfred, seemed to have weak intestines. He was nearly always constipated, so he became sallow, bilious, weak and half-sick all the time. His breath was very unpleasant, his appetite poor, and he was always cross and fretful.

"I tried several medicines, but nothing really helped until I began giving him California Fig Syrup. He liked the taste and would ask for it. In a few days it cleared up his trouble and since then I've always kept it in the house to give any of my children when they have any trouble with their stomach or bowels, or are stuffed up or feverish from colds. It's simply splendid!"

All drug stores have California Fig Syrup. Always ask for it by the full name, so you'll get the genuine, endorsed by physicians for over 50 years.

Constipation is one of the worst health ruiners for children. Waste matter held too long in their bowels, forms poisons which pollute their blood, causes headaches, bad breath, coated tongue, indigestion, make them bilious, weak, sallow, fretful and underweight.

Don't let your child suffer from constipation until his stomach and bowels are weakened. At the first sign of bad breath, coated tongue or feverishness, give him a little California Fig Syrup. It gives tone and strength to the stomach and intestines so they act normally, of their own accord.

Millions of mothers are using California Fig Syrup. Thousands all over Texas are eager to tell about their experiences with it. Mrs. Clara Mild, Route C, Box 76, San Antonio, writes:

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE PROPOSED TAX AMENDMENTS TO THE CHARTER.

The city council will go easy, we hope, in submitting other proposed charter amendments at the time that the city manager plan is passed on by the voters. The city manager amendment need not be considered a signal to open the doors to a more or less general amending of the charter. The city manager question is vital enough to be considered by itself, without anything else to detract interest or attention from it. Furthermore, there are voters who would be willing to alter the tax-rate provisions, as proposed, if there were a city manager, who would be unwilling to do so if no manager is to be employed.

The tax rate amendments do not increase the tax limit, which would remain at $2.00. They are, however, almost certain to increase the tax rate, which is now $1.40.

This $1.40 is now distributed as follows: Interest and sinking fund, 50 cents; general fund, 60 cents; street maintenance, 15 cents; parks, 12 cents; library, three cents.

The proposed increases would add 20 cents to the rate if the other charges were unchanged. It is proposed to make the street tax 20 cents, the park tax 15 cents, the library tax five cents, and to establish a new tax, that for health and sanitation, 10 cents. If the interest and sinking fund tax remained at 50 cents, and the general fund at 60 cents, these special taxes would add 30 cents more, making a total of $1.60 instead of $1.40 as at present.

We do not believe that the public will put its o. k. upon a 20-cent increase in the tax rate, under existing conditions. The worthiness of the activities to be served by the increases cannot be questioned, but the public's state of mind with regard to municipal affairs is such that it will be difficult to obtain approval of an additional tax burden. In view of the needs of the departments in question, we might wish that this condition did not prevail, but it does prevail, and the public is apt to think more of its pocketbook than of those needs.

If the adoption of the city manager plan brings the results that its proponents predict, that attitude may be changed to the extent that the additional levies would later be approved. It might even result that the general tax rate could be lowered so that the proposed new rates would cause no increase. Stranger things have happened, under the city manager plan elsewhere. It is true, of course, that a city manager canot create revenue, but he can perhaps bring about a more judicious use of the revenue already available.

We seriously question the wisdom of submitting the tax amendments this spring. If the people want a city manager, let's settle that matter first, independently of any other, and if the expediency of the proposed levies become apparent at a later time, we will have lost little by the delay.

BAD FOR "BIG BUSINESS."

Mr. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard of Indiana is doing the oil industry in particular, and "big business" in general, a distinct disservice by refusing to answer questions asked by the senate's oil investigating committee. There may be doubt of the committee's rights in the matter; we must await final adjudication of the Sinclair case to determine that. But regardless of any fine legal points that may be involved, Mr. Stewart is gaining nothing by his attitude. His company is among the very first that come to mind when someone speaks of "big business," and "big business" as a whole must suffer when one of its high officials takes such a stand. His attitude is all the more unfortunate from the fact that when the Sinclair trial is held, before a duly established court, he can be called upon to testify there on the same matters.

His refusal emphasizes the importance of going to the very bottom of the whole matter involving the mysterious Continental Trading company, a phase of the Sinclair-Fall affair that has received comparatively little attention so far. We had hoped that the worst was already told of that ugly story, but it is beginning to look as if there is more to be found out. It should be found out, even if the revelation involves giving Mr. Sinclair some congenial companionship when (and if) he goes to jail.

Hope springs eternal. If it doesn't everybody hopes it will, which amounts to the same thing.

TIME TO READJUST OUR SIGHTS.

The need for readjusting our sights, insofar as the junior college is concerned, was pointed out several weeks ago by Supt. Cantwell, and is now emphasized by some figures published in the "Wichitan," the college paper. At the opening of the new semester, about 200 more high school students were enrolled, after graduation from junior high schools, and the enrollment of the college was increased by 50, including a number from out of town. The total number of students using the building is now 1600; it was designed to accommodate only 1500.

We may expect to see the congestion increased next fall, for it will not be possible to provide additional facilities by then. If some steps are not taken pretty promptly, the usefulness of both high school and junior college will be impaired. It is a problem which must be met.

AN INTERNATIONAL ANTHEM.

Will Rogers' recent plaint about having to stand up while 21 different national anthems were played at Havana, has brought some results. A rhymester on the New York Times has written a song which all nations can use, with no fear of hurting each other's feelings. The first verse, given below, is sufficiently typical of the others to show the nobility of the sentiment:

"Beloved Planet Earth, we sing
In praise of thee like anything,
As Rogers doth propose.
Thou art the most important star,
The noblest orb of all, as far

ANOTHER FAILURE IN LATIN.

Time was I studied Latin, but that was years ago.
I thought I knew my Caesar—my teachers told me so,
But now the nouns are missing, and all the verbs are dim.
Bud's lost in Aquitania and I can't rescue him!

I heard his call for succor; I heard his plea for aid—
"I'm stuck! I'm stuck!" he shouted. A dash to him I made.
His eyes were sad and troubled, his plight was plain to see.

And I who studied Latin full thirty years ago
Sat down with him and pondered the stuff I ought to know;
But all in vain I struggled to set that youngster free,
For where the lad had stranded was much too deep for me.

Oh! Had I mastered Latin, as now I wish I had,
When came his call for succor, I could have helped the lad,
But being young, for Caesar I saw no use at all,
And so I had to leave him still floundering in Gaul.

Three Humiliations

By GLENN FRANK
President of University of Wisconsin and Former Editor of the Century Magazine

The old missionary set out in high-hearted confidence that he was the carrier of a gospel that stood above the battle of the varied nationalisms of earth.

The new missionary knows that the religion he carries to a foreign field will be judged by the kind of civilization it has helped to build back home.

The Oriental hears us preach peace and sees us practice war.

Can we blame him for being a bit puzzled?

I give you three pictures from the pen of Stanley Jones, who has played the role of far-sighted missionary in India.

"All Russia became Christian with Vladimir the Emperor. He desired to become a Christian, but hesitated, for, as being beneath his dignity, he would not be baptized by the local clergy. He wanted the Patriarch of Constantinople to perform the ceremony—that would give the desired dignity. But to ask him to come to do it would be receiving a bounty at the hands of another. He decided that the only thing consonant with his honor would be to conquer Constantinople and compel the Patriarch to baptize him. He would then stand as dictator and not as suppliant. . . . Constantinople was captured and the Patriarch forced to baptize him. Thus Russia became Christian! Is it to be wondered that domination still continues in the West in spite of Christianity? It came in with it.

"The Saxons, a warring tribe of Europe, were practically compelled to become Christians. They consented on one condition. That condition would only be known at the time of their baptism. When these warriors were put under the water as a symbol that their old life was dead, they went under—all except their right arms. They held them out, lifted above their heads. These were their fighting arms. They were never Christianized! Is it to be wondered that war continues in the West in spite of Christianity? It came in with it.

"One Mayflower carried the Pilgrim Fathers to religious liberty in America; another Mayflower goes to bring a load of slaves to these same seekers after liberty. The good ship Jesus was in slave trade for our fathers. Is it to be wondered that race and color prejudice exists in the West in spite of Christianity? It came in with it."

We must either bring the civilization of the West into harmony with the religion of the West or utterly divorce Western civilization from Western religion when we presume to preach to men of other races and other religions.

ROUGHLY SPEAKING

The Blighted Romances

The young hen moped in the chicken-yard,
With sorrow all downcast.
With grief and care her face was marred,
Her load of woe seemed vast.
Her mother went to her and said,
"Why do you act this way?"
The young hen raised her drooping head,
And unto her ma she did say:

"Oh, William was a loving lad,
When he chose me for his own,
And life seemed glorious and glad,
When he cared for me alone.
But now his love has all grown cold,
My sad heart will not be consoled,
Since they've gone and made a capon out of William."

The mother said, "To grieve for that
You realy hadn't oughter,
A capon soon gets fine and fat,
You should be proud, my daughter."
The young hen said, "You do not see
The cause of my dejection.
His plumpness now means naught to me,
Since he's lost his affection.

"Oh, William was a loving lad,
When he chose me for his own,
And life seemed glorious and glad,
When he said he cared for me alone.
He said he'd love me true and long,
But now I fear there's something wrong,
Since they've gone and made a capon out of William."

As we understand this city manager plan, it means running the city administration without backseat drivers. That ought to recommend it to all married men.

Grand opera tickets, it is announced, are now on sale. See your banker first.

Kinfolks

We have experienced considerable concern of late, over the fact that out in Los Angeles, young Mr. Hickman's lawyers have been endeavoring, by parading the eccentricities of his kinfolks, to prove that the young man is goofy. If the existence of queer relatives is evidence that a man is mentally off balance, this country is due for a building boom in hospitals for the mentally ailing. It is a dangerous proceeding. None of us is beyond the suspicion that he isn't quite all there, if such evidence is to be considered.

Just line your own kin up, in mental array, gentle reader. Take in all the uncles and aunts and cousins and ancestors for about four generations back, and look 'em over, in your mind's eye. There will be, let us suppose, somewhere around fifty of 'em, all told. Out of that 50, you can probably discern at least 10 per cent who, to phrase it euphemistically, are not intellectual giants. We don't mean to be personal, in this. It's just a fact, that's all. In some such groups the percentage might run a little higher.

In all modesty, we believe such a line-up of our own kin would stack up pretty well alongside of anyone's and yet it would undoubtedly include a few whom we would prefer to have absent on important business whenever one of these intelligence tests was being made. If our own mental status were to be judicially determined through our kin, there are some who we would prefer, in all candor, to have left out of the picture.

Some Specimens

For instance, there was Aunt Louise, a woman of many noble qualities and admirable traits. Yet she wrote poetry and sent it to the newspapers whenever somebody died or got married. There was Cousin Jerry, who fell off the roof of the feed-house when quite young, and lit on his head, and who thereby became unfitted for manual or mental labor and had to give up farming and teach school. And Cousin Albert, a confirmed practical joker who disappeared suddenly from the community.

The prize of the lot, though, was Uncle Casper. Casper was a printer by trade. He had ideas that caused many of the folks in the little town where he lived to seriously question his right to be at large. He was just full of crazy notions, and was always talking about them, especially when he was in liquor. Printers drank some, in those days. The boys at the general store used to bait him to get him started, and it was better than a circus to hear him carry on. He was the town's most reliable source of public amusement.

We never shall forget the merriment he caused when automobiles first appeared. He had some silly ideas. He told folks that some of them would live to see the day when automobiles would be more numerous than buggies and wagons. He was just loaded with crazy stuff like that, and everybody had fun making him talk, except some of the older folks who felt sorry for him for being such a crack-brain. And even these couldn't keep him from laughing that day when he told the bunch in the store that some day men would be able to fly through the air. It was about that time that some of the citizens began seriously thinking about having Casper put under restraint. They eventually decided, however, that while he was undoubtedly crazy, he was harmless.

Theory

One of our theories on the subject of mental development is that the dumbest are the happiest. You never encountered a really ignorant individual who was unhappy. It is those who learn to think and find out things that have troubles. Reviewing, in our mind's eye, the array of our kin above referred to, we find considerable confirmation of this theory.

Mr. Dempsey says he can't fight Mr. Tunney for seven months. It may be on account of his eye, and again, it may be on account of reading Mr. Tunney's recent statement in this journal that his hardest battle was with himself.

Wonder if Gene had one of those slow-motion referees in that fight, too.

So Careless of Him

That was a very brite anser, pop sed, and I sed, Yes sir, but enyways I started to climb up agen with the crowd cheering like enything.

But with eyebrows, that must of bin some consolation, pop sed. But wile I am master in this house every hero is going to have a meddle and if you think you can buy yourself one with 6 cents, wich is the extent of the hero fund in my

And he gave them to me, ony I decided to add the rest myself and to see Lovey Darling at the Little Grand in Her Last Defents.

Our Washington Correspondent

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer
WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—

"If the Army and the Navy
Ever look on Heaven's scenes
They will find the streets are guarded
By the United States Marines."

After that, though the marines' song ends there, there will undoubtedly be a few casualties among the innocent bystanders to be taken care of by the heavenly undertakers.

In the last batch of bills received from Capitol Hill, one finds, without bothering to make a complete list, these provisions for legislation:

To pay the British government $1000 as indemnity for the death of Samuel Richardson, a British subject "alleged" to have been killed by U. S. marines at Consuelo, Dominican Republic, November 1, 1921.

To pay the Chinese government $1000 for the death of Chang Lin, "alleged to have been killed by an American soldier at Leichuan in 1923.

To pay the Chinese government $500 for a man's injuries received from an assault by a U. S. marine in 1923.

To pay the Dominican Republic $2000 for the death of Juan Soriano, killed by a marine corps airplane landing at Guerra, San Domingo, in 1923.

To pay the British government $2000 for the death of Edwin Tucker killed by a U. S. army ambulance at Colon, Panama, in 1924.

To pay the British government $1000 for the death of Ethelbert Myrle, killed by a U. S. army truck in the Canal Zone in 1921.

Also $500 apiece to the Netherlands for two Dutch subjects killed while the U. S. government ship Canibas was loading at Rotterdam in 1919 and amounts ranging from $25 Mex. for Mexico to $38,791.25 for Great Britain to several foreign nations in settlement of claims of their subjects arising out of the occupation by American bluejackets of Vera Cruz in 1914. Austria, France, Germany and Spain are the other recipients.

Although payment is rather late, we still don't admit liability, as it is provided that all payments shall be made "as a matter of grace and without reference to the question of liability therefor." Even in doing the decent thing, we often have to be self-righteous about it.

Thoughtful Jim Watson, senator from Indiana, introducing a bill to regulate amateur boxing and ban professional boxing in the District of Columbia, aimed it not only at "whosoever shall voluntarily engage in a pugilistic encounter between a man and man," but also at he who engages in "a fight between a man and a bull or any other animal."

Senator Frazier of North Dakota, apparently persuaded by the International Longfellow society, that the New England poet should be more highly honored than any other American except Lincoln, has a bill to provide coinage of up to 10,000,000 large one-cent pieces bearing a likeness of Longfellow to be issued only on the request of the International Longfellow society.

Senator Norris of Nebraska has a joint resolution providing for a reunion of surviving veterans of the civil war, on both sides, in Washington this year at government expense.

Congressman Dyer of Missouri has another joint resolution providing that a three-fourths vote of a jury may render a verdict. He would also have one or two alternate jurors for all protracted trials to be herded with the rest of the jurors at all times and ready to dash in as substitutes in case any of the jurors become ill, die or both.

DAILY HEALTH TALK

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

The blisters that sometimes occur around the mouth, the shingles that may occur along the ribs, or similar blisters on the eyes or on other parts of the body are seen not only after diseases in which there is high fever, such as pneumonia or meningitis, but also in connection with common colds, disorders of digestion, changes from low to high altitudes, after the use of certain drugs and under many other circumstances.

Investigators have attempted to find a specific cause for these conditions, perhaps a germ or a virus, but the evidence is not yet certain as to what part may be played by such a cause, and what part may be played by a condition of the nerves.

If there is a virus-cause, it is probably so small that it cannot be seen under the microscope. It has been determined that it is small enough to pass through the pores of filters that are able to filter out bacteria.

A consideration of the investigations of this condition made by Prof. Charles E. Simon caused him to believe that the virus may be constantly present on the human skin or in the human body, and that it is only under special conditions that it reacts to produce the types of blisters that are so familiar.

Attempts have been made to find the relationship between this condition and chicken pox, also between this condition and epidemic encephalitis or inflammation of the brain. The proof is not yet convincing of such relationships.

There is evidence that there are instances in which germs may live upon the human body and not cause disease until all of the circumstances are favorable. The person who has the germs is capable of transferring them to other people. He is called a germ carrier.

Your Boy and Your Girl

By ARTHUR DEAN, M. D.
The Parent Counsellor

Dr. Dean will answer all signed letters pertaining to parents' problems with their boys and girls. Writers' names are never printed. Only questions of general interest answered in the column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Address Arthur Dean, in care of this paper.

Wet Wash

Today we will take a look at some of the contents of the mail bag that seldom creep into this column.

A youth, signing his letter "Sixteen," desiring to indirectly take unwarranted slam at his father through this column, closes his communication with: "Be sure to sign it just 'Sixteen' so he won't know I sent it. He reads your column every night and this letter will have a good effect on him."

Another youth whose motive is all right but whose tactics are all wrong says: "I cannot get the old man to send me to college. Please write an article on the value of an education. He reads your column every day and usually winds it up with, 'Huh.' Give the old boy a scorcher that will make him wake up!

This letter is signed "Collegiate."

Grown persons, too, sometimes strive to take a wallop at a neighbor through this department by suggesting that I write about some situation next door that doesn't please them.

Human relationship is a proper subject for this department but we cannot wash the soiled linen hanging on the boundary line between parents and children or between neighbors. It is not the province of this department. In the cases above I have written these correspondents without attempting to solve the particular problems they present but rather with the thought of correcting their point-of-view.

Intertwined with another letter which is a bit out-of-bounds there is an excellent thought never before developed in this department, so let's consider that section of an otherwise "wet wash" letter. Here it is:

"If they (the neighbors) want to go out in the evening they simply put their children to bed and disappear until 11 or 12 o'clock. This happens time and again. They 'Poohpooh' any suggestion that any emergency such as illness, fire or burglars might arise to menace the sleeping children.

Folks, there is a point that is well made. These possibilities are real. This thrust goes pretty close to home. Only the other afternoon I had my office floor painted with a quick-drying preparation. This done, I tied my dog, Pry, to a filing cabinet where he would be out of reach of the paint. The papers used in the painting had been thrown into the fire-place in which there was apparently no fire. After opening the windows and locking the door, I went out on the street leaving the varnish to dry. Why I returned earlier than I expected, I do not know. Intuition, perhaps. The first thing that greeted my eye as I turned the corner was smoke pouring out of the windows of the building. I rushed in and saw two things—a fire raging over, under and around the mantle—and a tied, and therefore helpless dog.

"The neighbors heard the dog bark furiously. At first they paid no attention. Then the reflection of a light against the wall brought them to the window. The house next door was afire! 'Where are their children?' I asked my husband, adding: 'I remember Mr. and Mrs.——say they were going out for the evening.' My husband rushed over while I telephoned the fire department. . . . The children, a boy of five and a baby of two were saved. The house was destroyed."

Readers, there was a happy ending to what might have been a tragic story. Fathers and mothers need to go out together in the evenings. We all grant that. Everyone needs some recreation. But parents, it should never be had at the risk of paying so terrible a price. Surely everyone can find a neighbor or high school boy or girl—someone to stay with the children while the parents are away. They should never be left alone.

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER.

Problems of Youth

Many girls and boys are writing to me about their emotional problems. And they are very welcome. To help others I have prepared some Helplets which girls and boys may have if they underscore the one needed and include with the clipping a stamped, addressed envelope to Dr. Arthur Dean in care of this newspaper. Here are the titles: The Kind of Boys Girls Admire; The Kind of Girls Boys Admire; Which Girl Boys Choose; Which Boy Girls Choose; Should a Young Girl Have a Beau; The Kind of Girl Friends to Select.

When We Were Four

When a fellow takes a girl to supper is it correct for him to take the meat from the platter, put it on her plate and cut it up?

—RUTH.

Answer: You do not give your age, my young friend, but from your handwriting I should judge you were 14 and beyond the stage where either papa, or a gentleman friend, needs to cut up your meat. Either may very properly serve you from the platter.

Stone Upon Stone

When a boy tries don't you think he should be passed to a higher grade, regardless of his marks?

—MOTHER.

Answer: The scale in which your boy is weighed uses studies for balance. "Trying hard," called "application," is marked on one of these balancing weights. But there are necessarily other considerations. It would be an injustice to your boy and impose an impossible handicap upon him were his teacher to advance him to work more difficult than he has failed to master. You see, mother, grades are building stones through which youth builds a structure of knowledge. If one stone is weak the whole collapses.

TIMES COOKING AND HOMEMAKING SCHOOL TO OPEN FEB. 13

Mrs. J. F. Plummer, Nationally Known Expert, to Conduct Five-Day Series of Classes at New Memorial Auditorium

The annual Times cooking school will open Monday, February 13, at the Memorial auditorium, when housewives will have the opportunity to hear Mrs. J. F. Plummer, nationally recognized authority on cookery and homemaking.

Mrs. Plummer has planned a comprehensive program for the five afternoon sessions of the school, which opens at 2:30 o'clock Monday and closes Friday. The school gives every promise of being the largest and best conducted of its kind ever offered in Wichita Falls.

From breakfast in the dainty breakfast nook through dinner and the formal party with luncheon and tea service between, every usual and unusual problem with which the housewife has to deal, will be covered and explained by the expert in charge of the school.

From day to day Mrs. Plummer will demonstrate economical ways of baking various foods, interspersed with lectures on the home and management of the better home as well as the most approved methods of cooking all manner of foodstuffs found on the menu of the average family.

Mrs. Plummer has her program arranged in such a manner as to give each housewife a chance thoroughly to acquaint herself with the methods employed, the cooking being done during the course of the lecture. New recipes, new kitchen conveniences, new ways of combining foods and designs for making the serving of foods more attractive are promised by Mrs. Plummer for the cooking school.

All of the recipes used by the expert in her demonstrations will be given to the women so that they can take them down, so be sure to bring note book and pencil for you will surely want Mrs. Plummer's recipes. Mrs. Plummer invites the women to ask questions about anything they do not understand as the school is a courtesy from the Times to the women of this locality and she is very anxious that each one who attends get something worth while out of the school. Mrs. Plummer has conducted cooking schools for a number of years and during that time has established herself as one of the most competent teachers in this country.

Foundation For Knowledge

Mrs. Plummer is justly confident of her ability in her chosen profession, having gained the foundation of her knowledge in practical home experience and also in some of the best schools in cookery in the country. She realizes the advantage of the simple, clear suggestions and explanation rather than the lengthy involved and many times confusing theories.

Her methods are simple and her explanations direct to the point. At baking a fish, roasting a crown cut of lamb, stirring a cake or concocting an original entree, Mrs. Plummer simplifies the method of mixing and dispels the apparent veil of mystery by practical common sense in directions and executions.

Her cakes and pastries invite comparison with similar achievements anywhere. Cakes using the entire egg, cakes using only the yolk and the popular angel food with the whites are equally successful and compounded with ease in the shortest possible time.

Mrs. Plummer does not take a day off to make cakes, cookies and pastries, but in the course of her daily food preparation plans the baking into her allotted working hours.

Guests of the Times at the cooking school will see why this is possible. Simplified methods carefully worked out and systematically executed are the reason. Mrs. Plummer appears to have accurately asserted the value of food preparations in the scale of home making duties.

Makes Happy Homes

Nothing is more necessary to happy homes than the proper selection and preparation of foods. Nothing is more unnecessary than for a woman to make herself a slave that this may be so. Women of varying financial resources everywhere are giving the marketing and meal planning their personal attention, she says.

System in planning, marketing and cooking when the housewife prepares the food with her own hands is essential to the successful home. Adhering to this course means better food, more attractive homes and a happy, satisfied family. Also the housewife herself finds time to play and relax—both necessary for real efficiency in any work or profession. This is only part of the message Mrs. Plummer brings the women of Wichita Falls who will avail themselves of this wonderful opportunity of attending a real cooking school and home exposition.

She is much interested in helping young housewives with their problems and has numerous suggestions to make which will tend towards lightening their burdens and making their first housekeeping more interesting.

She brings to the experienced homemakers a new enthusiasm and a fresh point of view through keeping abreast of the times and in knowing the latest and most improved methods in the kitchen and in planning the home. Mrs. Plummer said that cooking schools and home exposition are growing more and more in popularity among all classes of women.

The business women are becoming greatly interested and are requesting everywhere that a night session be held so that they too may attend the classes and keep abreast with late methods of making and running their homes.

She also says that many men attend her classes with note book and pencil. She says there is no reason at all why men and boys should not know as much about the science of foods as women do. Men have to eat in restaurants to a great extent and they should know what foods to order to make up a well regulated meal. Something most of them can't do now.

If boys were taught cooking and the budget system in the same manner as the girls are in the school this would make for much better homes in the future. No longer would men be complaining of cooking without knowing what they were talking about and they would have a better idea how to apportion their pay envelopes each week. Mrs. Plummer is looking with great pleasure in meeting the women of Wichita Falls and trusts that she will be able to count them among her many friends at the end of the school.

Mrs. Plummer has prepared a splendid program for the five days and expects to touch on practically every problem that the homemaker is confronted with.

What Has Happened So Far

Emily Day, daughter of very poor parents, has a great yearning to make a success. She finds it impossible to mingle with the socially elect of the little town where she lives owing to her poverty and the fact that her father is a factory worker. She loses her heart to Kent Rossiter, a rich young man, who is supposed to be engaged to Marilee Grainger. One moonlight night at a party, Kent kisses Emily and calls her beautiful. He goes away to study law, but she never forgets him. Meanwhile, Marty Nolan, whose father keeps a "speakeasy," tells her he too is going to be a lawyer and that some day he intends to marry her. She gets a job with Mrs. Frances Halden, a wealthy interior decorator, who tells her the only aristocracy is that of work. Mrs. Halden introduces her to Kingdon Coles, a dramatic critic, who proposes to her in vain. Meanwhile, Kitten, Emily's younger sister, is wildly seeking for thrills. She meets Ted Lanier on the sly. Stella Brent, a school girl friend of Emily's finds herself deserted by Skeets Bradley, reckless son of a rich family. Kitten goes on a wild party with Ted without letting her sister know.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER XXI

A day was to come when Kitten would understand how little wrong there was in Ted Lanier.

Just an average young fellow, this Ted—perhaps rather above the average—who liked to listen to the call of adventure.

But he had his own code and it was sound in the main. It precluded, for one thing any pleasure in the sight of a girl experiencing her first drink and her first jag.

Accordingly when Kitten finally lifted her head and began to look about—it was quite dark now, and she knew at once they were on a back road far in the country—she heard him say, "Why didn't you tell me? Good Lord! Think I wanted to get you stewed?"

She answered drowsily but with a flare of spirit, "Guess it's my business if I want to get stewed."

"Not when you're with me it ain't. Say, I'll bet you never tasted liquor before."

She was silent at this and he drove thoughtfully. "Feeling better now? Want to go home?"

"All right." Sullenly.

He turned the car and put on a little speed. The cool air cleared her brain, she brought out the vanity case and began to run a lipstick over her mouth.

"What makes you do that? A kid like you—and say, how come you trail with that Gaines trick? Most anyone'd think, just like I did—"

She began to cry then. Her morale was very low.

"Listen; don't be hurt. I'm not thinking anything I shouldn't. Not now. But a kid like you!"

"I'm not a kid," she sobbed.

"A darn nice kid. One I'm going to look out for. You get that? You're my girl, Red-head."

He stopped on a dark corner a block from home and helped her out. She stood a second, half expecting he would try to kiss her. But he got back into the car and kicked off the brake. "Phone you tomorrow," he called back.

She went prowling along through the shadows toward the house.

Emily had come in late that evening. Frances had a new commission, one which would require weeks of planning, and they were enthusiastic. Together they remained long after hours going through the dusty books, talking over colors and schemes.

When Emily did turn up Highmount and start climbing the hill, rather wearily, it was already dark and she later found Agnes in an injured frame of mind.

"You might let me know when you're going to be late. Lonsly here by myself. Have to warm things over for you now—"

Emily asked sharply, "Where's Kitten?"

But Agnes avoided this. If she, too, was beginning sometimes to feel uneasiness about her younger daughter she said nothing of it.

Her whole drab being came alive with love for the bright, capricious thing she had mothered; she saw in Kitten herself as she might have been and she couldn't bear that color to be dimmed by question.

A sort of silent struggle went on between herself and Emily because this was so. No word of criticism was spoken but it was doubt on one side beating against a still, fierce protectiveness on the other.

So now she merely shrugged and Emily resolved to have a talk with her sister. She had been working almost since daylight, first helping about the house and then in the shop and she was cruelly tired.

She told Agnes about the new commission and tried to interest her in the plans. But Agnes, too, was weary and this was outside her small world.

"Frances is going to give me another raise, dear. I've been thinking that now you can give up the sewing. Hard to sit with a needle in your hand all day."

"I don't know, Emmy. Your sisters' most 18 and more expense than she was. She needs things."

"Why can't she work, Muz, now that she's getting out of school? I shouldn't wonder if we could find a place for her in the shop."

"Kitten work? That baby?" Instantly the thin hand came up.

"But I worked when I was two years younger than she is now. You didn't feel that way about me."

Agnes began to walk about unsteadily, twisting at a corner of her apron. Emily saw the knotted ropes spring out and turned her eyes away. A thing she couldn't cope with, this was; tragic and yet so unreasonable.

Even if Kitten earned nothing at all, she would be better off with a job. Safer. Emily had seen her tearing along the street with Dottie and Flossie Gaines.

"You never understood her," Agnes moaned. "Just a child—you were always older even when you were a little thing. I didn't want you to leave school, Emmy. I opposed your poor father in that. We're better off now. She's all I've got."

"You have me, Muz."

"It's all right, dear. We won't mention it again."

Emily gathered the dishes and washed them; then she followed Agnes up the stairs, turning out the lights along the way. She cried a little as she ran the comb through her hair and dabbed a bit of cold cream on the sun-burned end of her nose. Life had a way of growing very complicated at times.

Things she wanted to do—dreams that came like winged things—give all those up? Grow middle-aged, wear flat heels and tweeds, know when it was spring only by the calendar?

It was true that Emily didn't know very well how to play, not as Kitten knew how.

But she was aware of it. She was aware of what she wanted—blithe things, the feel of the sun on her throat, fragrance, laughter.

Nearly 21. Only spring that was. Settle down now, grow old and responsible? Why should this be for her?

Once she had said to Agnes, "Supposing something should happen; supposing I should get married."

"Indeed, Marty'd be proud to take care of us!"

But Emily couldn't think of Marty as a husband. She couldn't think of him at all tonight.

Briefly her mind turned to Kingdon Coles and what he had said on the terrace at Grand View. But he seemed as far removed from her as Marty; the spell the night had conjured was broken now. Only the image of Kent was always vivid.

Kitten, coming from the back way, climbing through saplings and locust brush, saw the light go out.

She was all alert now, fully herself, and she had no wish to answer Emily's questions. She tiptoed around but the doors were locked. They thought she was in.

She sat down on a bank to think it over and the grape trellis fastened to a bit of projecting roof over the kitchen caught her eye. She almost laughed aloud; the roof was directly under her window. It was no trick at all for her to do a bit of climbing.

The trellis and the roof and the window loomed large in her life after that.

Court Refuses to Release Hi-Jacker After Doctor's Operate on His Sinus To Cure Youth of Criminal Tendency

NEW YORK, Feb. 5. (AP)—Pronounced by physicians as cured of criminal tendencies as a result of surgical operations, Edward D. Lyle, 24, was nevertheless under sentence today to an indeterminate term in the city reformatory for further medical treatment.

County Judge Tiernan of St. George, Staten Island, in imposing sentence, said he was not convinced that the "cure" had been complete.

Lyle was arrested in March, 1927, for stealing an automobile at the point of a gun. Dr. William B. Pritchard, an alienist for the prosecution in the Harry K. Thaw trial, recommended an operation for sinus trouble. Lyle was released on $5000 bail. An operation was performed on his nose, his tonsils and adenoids were removed and four teeth extracted.

When his case was called to trial he was allowed to plead guilty to petit larceny after physicians had testified that they believed the medical and surgical treatment had cured him of his criminal tendencies. The district attorney concurred in this view and said he would accept a suspended sentence.

Judge Tiernan, however, said he felt that it would be dangerous to allow Lyle to remain at large. He imposed sentence because he believed further hospital treatment was necessary and not because he believed a prison sentence would impress or help him.

He ordered the plane, which had been posed at the field since dawn, to be wheeled back to its hangar on Curtiss field.

JOHN B. RHEA WILL BE CANDIDATE FOR DISTRICT ATTORNEY

John B. Rhea, local attorney with offices in the Hamilton building, Saturday confirmed reports recently current to the effect that he will be a candidate for the office of district attorney of the 30th judicial district.

The district is composed of the counties of Wichita, Archer and Young. Mr. Rhea was county attorney of Young county from 1922 to 1926, but is now engaged in the practice of law in Wichita Falls.

MASKAT TEMPLE DANCE WILL BE TUESDAY NIGHT

VETS OF RAINBOW DIVISION HERE TO MEET AT BANQUET

Veterans of the Rainbow division, famous band of world war fighting men, will gather round a banquet table on the evening of February 22 at the Kemp hotel to renew old companionships and possibly to form an organization among themselves, according to an announcement by Milton Gaines, president of the Gaines Motor Sales company. It is to be a "stag" affair.

The meeting will be the first of its kind held here by former members of the famous Forty-second, as the Rainbow division was officially known, since the armistice. The gathering, however, is intended to be the first of a series of gatherings which will keep the former buddies in touch with each other "from now on."

Many former veterans of the division reside in Northwest Texas, so many in fact, according to Mr. Gaines, that the individuals have been brought in peace time contact with very few of their friends of fighting days. The invitation to attend the banquet, he said, includes all former members of the division who may find it possible to be present. It is particularly desired, however, that those residing in the vicinity shall attend.

The Rainbow division emerged from the war as one of the most famous among the allied armies. Composed largely of crack national guard units, it was among the first to go overseas and there compiled an active service record equalled by few divisions. Its name, "Rainbow division," was derived from the fact that its personnel was representative of so many states.

Mr. Gaines urged that those desiring reservations shall telephone him as early as possible at the Motor Sales company. The number is 2-1145.

Infant Care

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless and reliable, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill throughout the system. Fretfulness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, and without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. Castoria is delicious. Your own tongue will tell you why. "Children Cry for It." Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's the least sign of colic; constipation; diarrhea. Or whenever there's need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Only one word of warning: the above is true of genuine Castoria. Fletcher's is the original. Other preparations may or may not be as pure, as free from a single doubtful drug. Physicians tell parents to get Fletcher's Castoria, and no child of this writer's is going to test any other kind. I'll save a dime some other way.

'The Gaucho' One Of Best Pictures 'Doug' Fairbanks

The torrid breath of the pampas, dusky riders of the South American border, gold, combat, love and daring! Douglas Fairbanks as "The Gaucho" carries the spectator of this gripping production far from the highways of ordinary film fare. The picture opened atthe Majestic Saturday for five days, and bids fair to establish itself as one of the best Fairbanks plays.

Doug appears as an outlaw Gaucho leader, head of a band of hard-riding bandits who occupy the mysterious shrine city under the very nose of the usurper of the country. The fortunes of the bold adventurer are affected for good and ill by the lure of fair maidens: one a wild mountain girl, the other a saintly girl of the shrine. By the jealousy of the former, the outlaw is betrayed into the clutches of the usurper and his ruthless commandante.

Contaminated by the touch of a victim of "the black doom," the Gaucho leader is saved and healed by the shrine girl. But his band has been dismissed through the treachery of a lieutenant, and he is imprisoned, likewise the girl of the shrine and her padre protector.

Understanding the simple devotion of the shrine girl, the madcap repents and rides to bring the Gauchos to the rescue of their captain. The latter digs his way out of his cell, and, joining the oncoming horde, rescues the padre and the shrine girl from the scaffold, stampeding a vast herd of steers which rout the forces of the usurper.

Doug has added to his repertoire of amazing stunts by the use of the bolas, familiar to horsemen of the South American plains. This missile consists of metal balls covered with raw-hide and attached by thongs. It is swung about the head and thrown to entwine itself about its prey.

Dangerous leaping and riding feats are performed by the star, whose role throughout shows him at the peak of his prowess and carries a charm equal to that of any of his famed pictorial offerings.

The photography of Douglas Fairbanks as "The Gaucho" marks an advance in the cinema art. Panoramic beauty and intimate detail are handled with unusual skill. The scenes from the designs of the supervising art director are notable for their originality as well as their majestic appeal. The settings are so realistic that their artificiality escapes detection, in the intense action of the play, but the local color supplied by peons, townsfolk, venders and soldiers arrests the eye and the atmosphere of the ensemble takes hold on the imagination.

"Mr. Pathe," winning rooster in the poultry show contest conducted for the selection of a new bird for Pathe's trademark, is a Golden Duckwing Leghorn owned by M. B. Cooper of Closter, N. J.

Critic New Orleans Paper Praises "Broadway" Coming to Auditorium For One Performance February 10

If the theatrical writer of the New Orleans Times-Picayune is correct in his criticism of the play, Wichita Falls is to have a dramatic treat in "Broadway," which comes to the Memorial adultorium Friday night, Feb. 10. He says:

Having cribbed part of a headline from Wr. Woollcott, the idea now is to fill a column. Fortunately there's a holdover play, which makes "second thoughts" worth saying. Usually, with a play been and gone, they are redundant and tautological anachronisms.

But "Broadway" stays and that, ladies and gentlemen, is one of the few blessings of these times; though, to be sure, there is another in the evidence given in another column that the St. Charles theater management is beginning to see a little light. There hasn't been news as important as the prospective presentation of "Anna Christie" and "Mrs. Dane's Defense" at the stock house since "What Price Glory?" or, at least, since "The Green Hat."

"Broadway," however, has the floor. What a show! What a cast! What perfect ensemble; what direction, what a blending of diverse histrionic types into a harmony of effect almost musical.

The show, frankly, represents to some of us almost a new high water mark for the drama in America. There are those who sneer at it as drama, giving it praise only as "a show" and pointing out in defense of their position the relative insignificance of the plot revealed. Still, isn't it a fact that every play of any importance whatsoever almost, has had a plot utterly trivial, when compared with the dominance of character and that neglected factor in dramatic success called "atmosphere"? The plot, to most of us is more than enough to keep the play going. Keep it going? Why, it races across the stage as kaleidoscopic as that provided by the automatic gelatine disc fitted over the baby spot back stage!

"Broadway" not only is show and play and drama, if you will, it is actius, too. Jed Harris and his associates in the Southern tour of the company are to be commended for their generous casting policy, painstaking and successful from every point of view. In Monday's review, by the way, exigencies of space caused a neglect that should be remedied; the cameos of chorines contributed by five young women of the ensemble had to be omitted. Yet every one stood out, not like a sore thumb but more elegantly. Kay Vaughn, Peggy Hastings, Eleanor Ladd, Pieter Dominick and Margaret B. Vaughn, one and all they rate a rave.

Finally, may New Orleans never again see a good show if "Broadway" doesn't get at least five S. R. O. houses this week.

America Is Becoming 'Air-Minded' as College and Community Organizations Take Up Study of Commercial Flying

By FRANK J. CARMODY

Aviation movements generally are regarded as destined to make sweeping progress during the current year. One that seems most significantly promising in this respect is the flying club.

Quite common in Europe, particularly in England, the flying club really is just beginning to get under way in the United States. Several universities already boast of such organizations and, here and there, youthful groups in various communities have banded together for the purpose of getting in on the ground floor of aviation through the very practical method of acquiring a plane and learning to fly it.

Representing, at first, an isolated gesture, the flying club now is beginning to get a general support that makes its followers believe that it is destined to a really important role in the creation of greater air-mindedness. Growing confidence in this respect has led important figures in aviation to lend their support and guidance to the club movement.

In the matter making an individual air-minded, there is pretty general agreement that the flying club is one of the most effective mediums. As one prominent figure in aviation puts it:

"Seeing or reading about a sensational aerial feat is a basic step in teaching the layman that the day of the airplane has arrived; giving him a ride in a good ship is a further important step; but, teaching him to fly one makes a convert that never can be completely won back to any form of terrestrial travel."

This statement sums up excellently a sentiment that is wide-spread among the growing host that believes in air travel with almost fanatic fervor.

The flying club idea is simple in essence. Such an organization is made up of a group of persons who have an interest in learning to fly and who believe that the soundest way to acquire the knowedge is by banding together in the interest of economy and thoroughness. Usually, the club is built around an experienced pilot who is willing to serve as an instructor for a small stipend or, occasionally, for nothing more than the satisfaction of keeping his hand in the business.

There are thousands of former war-time pilots scattered throughout the country who, though perhaps slightly rusty in their technique, can quickly and safely brush up on the various phases of the subject.

The first step after the organization of the club is the procuring of a plane, the cost of which varies with the richness of the club's treasury. Clubs now functioning have plane equipment ranging from the cheapest of the war surplus planes to the most expensive of the single-engined new production ships. A majority, perhaps, have acquired one of the many craft of post-war design and construction which are built around the unused Ox 5 war-time motors.

It is this type that the war-trained pilot finds himself capable of handling most adroitly unless he has kept up with the procession which has led through progressive steps both in engine and general design.

Club landing fields vary from the most modern airport to the most level cow-pasture. In many cases, individuals from the membership of country clubs have formed a flying school and have obtained the right to use a portion of the grounds for landing and take-off purposes. The club whose campus is a cow-pasture is a most effective medium for teaching the vital advantages of a regular, well-graded, up-to-date airport and its members can be counted upon to work ardently and unceasingly toward getting the community to establish such facilities.

In teaching this lesson, as well as in instructing individuals to fly, the club is proving of real merit, according to backers of the movement.

One of the important aspects of the training that the individual gets in the flying club is that it is not all practical. When he learns to fly, he may not have the advantages of the army's air school course at Brooks field, but, at least, his knowledge of the subject is not entirely drawn from a few hours in the cockpit, says one prominent figure in commercial aviation. The flying club worthy of the name does not ignore the importance of groundwork. In night sessions, usually on regular schedule, its members are lectured and drilled on the theory of flight. Aerodynamics becomes something more than a hyper-technical word. Plane and engine construction and maintenance are taught, usually with the great advantage of enthusiasm on the part of both instructors and students.

Against this background of theory, the individual is given practical instruction in handling the controls of a plane. In addition to his initiation fees and dues, which vary of course with the size of the club and the scope of its program, but which in most cases are well within the limits of the average youth's income, he pays for the plane by the hour. This cost, too, varies but, on an average, ranges from $5 to $10 an hour.

Once past the solo stage, the club proves a real boon to the person attempting to qualify for a license, other than that of a private pilot. An application for an industrial or limited commercial pilot's license must show 50 hours of solo flying by the applicant, and the club offers a means of getting a plane at a reasonable charge in which this time may be built.

The regular plane operators, in most cases, are unwilling to turn over their ships to inexperienced flyers to allow them to "do time." The student is unable to finance a plane purchase, so the club fits in ideally in filling the need.

For the community which has the facilities for a landing field, organization leadership and the personnel for instructing, interest and enthusiasm in aviation, the flying club is looked upon by aviation leaders as an excellent venture. Youths who desire to learn to pilot a ship can do so in their spare time, without the necessity of leaving home and present employment, and at a cost that is not prohibitive, it is pointed out.

The flying club idea is "catching." It has a great deal more official and unofficial backing as it starts the new year.

PRIZE FLOAT PASADENA, CALIF., TOURNAMENT OF ROSES

The Chicago Civic Opera company, which will play in Wichita Falls, February 29 and March 1, playing the operas, "Aida" and "Resurrection," won first prize in the 29th Annual Tournament of Roses parade at Pasadena, Calif., January 2, 1928. This was the first instance in the history of the famous tournament of roses wherein a musical or theatrical organization participated in the event of world wide interest and witnessed by nearly 1,000,000 spectators.

The decorations on the Chicago Civic Opera company's entry were green tree-fern foliage as background; white and pink carnations; pink roses; lettering on side, "Chicago Civic Opera Company," was of miniature yellow chrysanthemums.

Miss Mary Ellen Lewis, noted Los Angeles beauty, sat in a golden throne chair, surrounded by the trumpeters, who were members of the Los Angeles Symphony orchestra. Their instruments blared forth the triumphal music in "Aida," (act II).

The entry created greater general applause along the line of march than any other float in the pageant, not only because of its general artistic beauty, but for the typification of the spirit intended to convey.

The trumpets used in this parade were exact re-productions of those used in the second act of "Aida," which is famous as the act never fails to rouse the audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm. These trumpets are unlike any now made and are so constructed as to get a strain of music produced by no other instruments. The origin dates back to the Pharoahs. Rosa Raisa, the star of "Aida," says these trumpets, with their high clear call, thrill her as do no other instruments.

Olympic Features 'The Gay Defender' With Richard Dix

There was a knock on the door of the cabin. Inside was Joaquin Murrieta, wealthy young California rancher, staying in the mountain shack near his gold mine. With him was the old Mexican servant, Rosita who was preparing her young master a meal of tortillas and chile.

At the knock they looked at each other quickly.

"See who it is, Rosita," Murrieta said. The gold rush of '49 had filled the country with American ruffians who took any measures to get the gold they sought, and Murrieta had had trouble with them before. This visitor might be another.

It was. He swaggered in, a huge, burly hulk of a man, surveyed the cabin's one room, its occupants and at last the rough table on which Rosita had just set a steaming stew.

"Will you dine with me, sir?" Murrieta inquired politely. The stranger seated himself without further ado.

They ate in silence for a few minutes and then the American said, "Do you know who I am?" And without waiting for an answer—"I'm Jake Hamby, the killer. I'm out looking for my twenty-second man now. He's a Mexican named Joaquin Murrieta. Know him?"

Rosita started, but Murrieta drank another sip of wine before replying.

"What if I tell you that I'm Murrieta?" he inquired, measuring his opponent.

"What if I tell you that I'm Napoleon?" laughed the American.

But Murrieta finally convinced Hamby he was the man the killer sought. And how he extricated himself from the situation after a contest of knife throwing and finally saved himself from the killer's bullet with a timely crack of his bullwhip is the climax to this tremendously dramatic situation.

It is one of many such tense moments in "The Gay Defender" which will be shown at the Olympic Sunday for three days. Richard Dix is the star in the role of Murrieta; Fred Kohler, "wolf of the screen" is Hamby, the killer; while Thelma Todd is cast as the American girl who finds herself involved in the stormy events of early California history.

"The Gay Defender" an original screen story based on the life of Murrieta. To revenge himself for injuries done his brother and wife by American gold-seekers, he terrorized the state in a series of bold raids.

FIRST 1928 MODEL FORD DELIVERED WICHITAN FRIDAY

To Michael H. Shanahan of the Continental Oil company production department, goes the honor of owning the first 1928 Ford delivered in Wichita county. The new Model A roadster was delivered Friday. According to officials of the Langford Motor company some difficulty was encountered in securing the license for the new car, as county authorities were not certain of the legal license charges for the car.

However, Mr. Shanahan has the car and is enjoying his new possession. According to T. E. Edwards, manager of the Langford dealerships, regular delivery of the new model is expected during the next few weeks in all Langford agencies throughout the county.

Doctor Found What is Best for Thin, Constipated People

AT AGE 83

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of his 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical college back in 1875) he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in his private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home—where many live someone is sure to need it quickly.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.—Adv.

TIMES' BOOK REVIEW AND LITERARY LANTERN

Good Titles in W. W. Norton's Science Series

By ROBERTA CLAY

A group of interesting little books, selling at $1, is included in W. W. Norton's New Science series. At hand we have "The Standardization of Error," by Vilhjalmur Stefansson, and "Culture: the Diffusion Controversy," with papers by G. Elliott Smith, Bronislaw Malinowski, Herbert J. Spinden and Alexander Goldenweiser.

"The Standardization of Error" is a most entertaining little volume, the humor of which belies the dignified title. Mr. Stefansson projects the interesting theory that all error might be as easily standardized as mathematical error; for instance, he says that a square by definition has four sides and therefore any surface with three or five sides can not be a square. Similarly, he points out, a Christian may be by definition a good man, and anyone who is not a good man is not a Christian, and an Eskimo may live by definition in a snow house, and if he does not live in a snow house he is no true Eskimo. And so on, and on, he recounts the adventures of the simple scheme for doing away with all argument.

"Back of all individuals, corporations, or groups will be the sound good taste of the community, which will take care that mere facts shall not lead us too far astray," the author concludes.

The divergence of views contained in the second book is of some interest, but leads the casual reader to wonder just "what's the use, anyway?" on the subject of scientific dispute. Mr. Smith, writing on "The Diffusion of Culture," takes the view that all culture had one origin, and that by devious channels this culture had been taken to the ends of the earth. Mr. Malinowski differs sharply with the first author, going so far as to state that "culture is not contagious," in italics. Mr. Spinden gives a deep, but not so readable discussion of "The Progale vs. the Romantic School in Anthropology"; and Mr. Goldenweiser sums up the whole matter in the concluding paper, "The Diffusion Controversy."

Other titles included in the series are: "Myth in Primitive Psychology," by Bronislaw Malinowski; "Science and Poetry," by I. A. Richards; "Fatalism or Freedom," by C. Judson Herrick; "Types of Mind and Body," by E. Miller; "The Father in Primitive Psychology," by Bronislaw Malinowski; and "Economics and Human Behavior," by P. Sargant Florence.

NEW NOVELIST WILL MAKE LITERARY DEBUT ON FEBRUARY EIGHTH

February 8 will mark the debut of a new novelist, Cornelia James Cannon, who, like Willa Cather and Martha Ostenso, has taken the Northwest as her locale. Mrs. Cannon is the author of "Red Rust," an Atlantic Monthly press publication, which is to be published by Little, Brown and company.

This book belongs to the tradition of novels which have pictured the elemental struggle of man with the earth and the forest for food. Its characters move against a background of the soil and the seasons. It is an epic of the pioneer spirit. The story takes its name from a disease which frequently blights the standing wheat, and concerns the endeavors of Matts Swenson, dreamy, idealistic son of a Swedish immigrant farmer, to breed a perfect wheat which will be impervious to the disease. Human nature at its noblest and at its worst is delineated with striking force, and the human problem involved is handled by Mrs. Cannon with artistic restraint and simplicity.

N. Y. TIMES ESTIMATES AS BOOK OF VALUE "OLD HOUSES OF NEW ENGLAND"

"A book of unusual substance and value" is the New York Time's description of "Old Houses of New England," by Knowlton Mixer. The Times says: "It is the first book to deal with the early domestic architecture of New England comprehensively and in connection with the political, economic and cultural development of the colonies. . . . It is so rich in information, historical, architectural, biographical, that it becomes an addition to the social history of a colonial period. There must be 150 or more old homes whose stories it tells. The many illustrations are excellent."

The Literary Lantern

The Literary Lantern burns weekly in the Sunday Times and is intended to throw light on writing around and about the South. Communications for this column should be addressed to the Editor of the Literary Lantern.

So many writers have recently become literary Columbuses trying to find America, only to discover on their voyages that they had to stop and ask who are the Americans, it is only proper for us to pause now and then to inquire who are these Southerners anyway. Especially when confronted by a book about New Orleans—yes, by Grace King. Who else could write a believable one? But are Creoles Southerners? Isn't there always a sort of shrug-the-shoulder aloofness about them? Aren't they an untranslatable Gallic phrase on the page of a book? It is true that "The Pleasant Ways of St. Medard" (MacMillan, 1927) centers about a proud "American" family suffering the horrors of reconstruction, but the chapters which Miss King writes con amore are those describing her Madame Joachim, her Cribiche, her Papa Pinseau and her ugly Mimi Pinseau, not to speak of the San Antonio family and of Dr. Butot who has a way with the ladies, and who cures the fevers like no other doctor. Oh, we like our Americans, but one of those poverty-stricken Creoles is richer in literary interest than all the Americans in the volume. A good book, with pleasant writing and quiet humor; and we don't care whether New Orleans is southern, northern, or European, as long as its geographical location brings it within our province.

But alas! there are things southern and less pleasant than Miss King—for example, a study of the "North Carolina Chain Gang" by Professors Steiner and Brown (University of North Carolina Press, 1927). Professor Steiner, by the by, has gone to Tulane. One of the newer volumes of the University of North Carolina Social Study series, it is a clear account of a system of penology which persists in the South, despite its demonstrated inefficiency and waste, its failure to recognize modern methods of crime prevention, and its notorious abuses. We are glad to see the inclusion of case histories in the book, despite the prejudice against them in some quarters as being unscientific. A few human details give a better idea of a social problem than 10 chapters of scientific jargon.

So, like the rest of the human race, we sometimes grow discouraged over southern prospects. Penology and poetry are not what they ought to be south of the Mason and Dixon line. But when we grow discouraged we can at any rate remember that things are better than they used to be. Perhaps only specialists know how dark the struggle of southern authors for southern recognition was in the nineteenth century. We have been reading a study devoted to "Dr. George William Bagby" by Joseph Leonard King Jr., (Columbia University Press, 1927), sub-titled "a study of Virginian literature, 1850-1885." Mr. King writes with economy. Dr. Bagby, he says honestly, "was little known outside of Virginia in his own day and is now hardly a name to other than careful students"; and one learns more about the man than about "Moss Adams," his humorous creation, from the book. But in resuscitating Bagby, Mr. King also pictures the hand-to-mouth struggle in which he engaged, merely to live and write. Magazines and newspapers died under him; lecturing brought him $10 a speech; and Southerners generally were quite willing to honor him but quite unwilling to support him. The consumption of books in the South may not yet be what it should be, but conditions are unquestionably better. Mr. King has done himself and his subject honor by chronicling thirty lean years of Virginian letters.

While we are on the biographical theme, let us report on John Wilson Townsend's study of "James Lane Allen" (Louisville Courier-Journal company, 1927). Frankly, the author of "A Kentucky Cardinal" is entitled to a better book. Mr. Townsend has not sufficiently understood the task of a biographer to give us a complete picture of so important a figure in our letters. We think he intrudes himself too frequently for sound biography—so much so that in the last third of his monograph one sometimes forgets Allen for Mr. Townsend. On the other hand, the author has included a great many valuable Allen letters which a future critic can use with profit; and his relation of personal experiences with the novelist has the freshness and importance of documentary evidence. James Lane Allen still awaits his biographer; Mr. Townsend, meanwhile, has contributed some valuable sidelights on the man and the personality.

If Allen was a personality, Corra Harris is one; and her latest volume, "The Happy Pilgrimage" (Houghton Mifflin, 1927), will renew the delight which her admirers find in pungent style and happy comment. The book is like her others, quasi-autobiographical. But one may admire Mrs. Harris' gift of phrase without subscribing to her doctrine, and in such volumes of hers as we have read, we have never been quite clear what her doctrine is. In the present book she seems to believe that a good injection of old-fashioned Christianity is what the modern world really needs. The question turns on what old-fashioned Christianity really is; is it, for example, a collection of prejudices, however wittily presented? We are inclined to think that the social problem is too complex for such simple unriddling; and we are too keenly interested in the contemporary literary movement to subscribe to Mrs. Harris' unsparing denunciations of Messrs. Lewis, Joyce and the rest. Indeed, we are tempted to think that a restudy of Christian doctrines rather than a renewal of an older form of that doctrine is what the modern churches are working for.

If this be true, two books are extremely pertinent at this juncture. We have not seen a more searching criticism of Christianity than that of H. R. L. Sheppard, called "The Impatience of a Parson" (one of the first books from the new Doubleday, Doran company, 1927). Mr. Sheppard cuts into sham, but he sees a way out. His way out is a sincere living of the Sermon on the Mount. The book is written for the Angelican Church and for England, but we think America and the South might well read and ponder him. The younger generation is the question—that younger generation which demands the genuine. We are sure that no generation ever hated sham and sentimentality more. Fortunately for the forward-looking church the Century company has taken away the sentimental older hymns and left a host of solid songs, to which it has added another group of rugged spiritual lyrics set to vigorous music. The product is called "The American Student Hymnal," and is edited by H. Augustine Smith. It looks to us like a very genuine sort of thing.

It is pleasant news that Edgar Allan Poe's tomb in Westminster graveyard, Baltimore, is no longer neglected. The Publishers' Weekly informs us that a caretaker has been installed and that, whereas in 1924 the total of visitors to the grave was less than 500, some 26,000 visitors have registered since March, 1925, representing 13 foreign countries and 46 states. We suspect that the recent outburst of Poe biographies has led to this increasing interest in him who is still the most mysterious, the most important, and the most popular of southern literary geniuses. Dead poets make us think of living ones; the Year Book of the Poetry Society of Texas has reached our desk, and we note that this flourishing association is continuing to offer annual prizes for the best poems submitted under certain conditions. The rules are too long to quote here, but doubtless the secretary, Mr. N. M. Crowell of 719 Lowell street, Dallas, Texas, will inform the literary aspirant what they are. And now let us conclude with a short poem, but a good one, by Rosa Zagnoni Marinoni of Arkansas:

Bread and Laughter

I wish I were a field of golden grain
Where crimson poppies grow among the wheat—
A field that raises yielding bread to man,
With blooms of laughter flaming at my feet.

"The Verdict of the Sea"

Alan Sullivan went John Erskine, James Branch Cabell and Murray Sheehan one better in "In the Beginning," published a year ago. He didn't stop at the Garden of Eden for his material but went on back to the Pleistocene Age, building a scientific fantasy which challenges the wildest imagination, yet which might be true.

His new novel, "The Verdict of the Sea," is the tale of a young doctor who, for the love of a lady buries his identity and because a bully mate says to him: "If there's anything you want to forget I'll show you how," ships for ports southeast of Suez and for a startling adventure.

How much of this book is his own story Mr. Sullivan does not say, but asked for a bit of biography with which to introduce him to readers of his novels, he has compressed into a dozen lines enough suggestion of adventure to set anyone with restless blood a-dreaming.

His profession is that of civil and mining engineer and for a time after leaving the university he was engaged in survey work and railway construction. Then the call of the wild became insistent and for some years he lived the life of an explorer in the far north, learning to speak the languages of the Indians there and along the British Columbia coast. Some of his vividly real short stories are based on the experience of these years.

When ready to settle down he was put on the government staff of construction on the canal at Sault Ste. Marie, and later on different works of the Lake Superior company. Then "gold mining in western Canada" disposes of quite a long period of time, though leaving something to the imagination. Possibly it was not particularly remunerative; or what is to be inferred from the next item: "Manager of Large Works in Canada."

Four tragic years are disposed of in: "Enlisted in R. A. F., Discharged in 1918," after which he was occupied in writing a history of "Aviation in Canada" for his brigade and incidentally learned to fly. He admits having "travelled a good deal" although he does not say when or mention where except in a casual reference to the Mediterranean and the north of Africa. But if he was never in Patagonia or touched the Nicobar Islands, "a group lying well off the northerly horn of Sumatra," then his two recent novels are even more remarkable than appears on the surface; and that is saying much.

Wisely he began his writing of fiction during the years of mechanical work "to achieve a mental 'house cleaning' in the evenings," working out a technique of dramatic description which has made the critics rate him as comparably only to Rider Haggard and Jules Verne. Take, for example, his "In the Beginning." Mr. Sullivan has imagination as well as invention and breadth of experience. In this novel a scientist with a reputation to lose is caught at sea off Punta Arenas in a storm. A giant wave thrown against the bow of the ship the body of a creature which the scientist identifies beyond any doubt. Yet as the gale sweeps it away again he knows that if he ever dared report what he has seen even men who know him well will believe him either drunk or crazed and a lifetime's work will be discredited. The Independent guarantees to the reader of the story so begun "a pulse of one hundred and twenty at the least," and declares "that everything in the book might have happened, which only aggravates an already red-eyed imagination the more."

More than one matter which is decided by "the verdict of the sea" is woven into the plot of Mr. Sullivan's latest novel. There is, in the first place, the young doctor. In the profession because his father was and is restless since the war, he cannot have the only girl he wants; what is worse, he cannot explain to her why he does not propose. He is utterly "fed up" with the prospect of a drab future, to be spent in slowly building up a doctor's practice in the mean streets of outlying London.

Just at this time it chances that the gift of an old suit of clothes and of some little oddments to a man in need leads to a report of his death by drowning. Being away from home he can choose whether to go back and protest or to throw over the old life, seek one of adventure, and leave the future to the verdict of the sea . . . . . There is a mate, a fair man, but hard—made so by the battering of the sea—yet hiding one burning desire, his love for a girl whom he sees becoming more and more attracted by a man who is not of her sort, and not deeply in love with her as she thinks she is with him. Shall the mate maneuver to get rid of him, or wait and leave the end to the verdict of the sea?

Then there is Sir Peter, owner of the Baxwell traders, genuinely in love with his wife, a pretty woman probably incapable of any really profound emotion. He did not love her the less for that, but rather more because it kept her childlike and aroused his desire to protect. But how? He, too, an old seaman, asked the verdict of the sea. So vital and powerful a factor in the story interest is the sea that it becomes almost a living figure in the background; now it is a tortured sea writhing in the grip of a typhoon, but again it is a sapphire sea, vibrant with life, luring its lovers into an entrancing tropic harbor.

Lucy Furman's novel of the Kentucky mountains, "The Lonesome Road," is pure fiction, the author explains, with the exception of one of the minor characters, "Old Doc Ross," the mountain doctor whose quaint, deep wisdom adds so much to the book.

"There was, in a certain section of the Kentucky mountains, just such a remarkable old man, the only doctor for many years within a radius of 20 miles, who, like Old Doc Ross, never sent in a bill, and always at the call of the poorest as well as of the thrifty, making no discrimination; and who also, having most of Shakespeare, Burns and other poets in his memory, and loving to recite them, was a kind of walking university for the people. When he was called to a case, and had gotten its safely 'past the peak,' all the people living along that creek would gather in and listen all night to his words. No man was ever more beloved, and at his passing, two or three counties mourned."

The Pleasant Way to Reduce

An intimate glimpse of Thomas Hardy, the man, and of his experiences as an author, is given by J. Henry Harper in "The House of Harper," a book which depicts a century of publishing.

Mr. Harper, who is of the second generation of the publishers who founded Harper and Brothers, relates how his firm came to be the sole publishers of the "Dean of English Letters" whose death has brought him into the limelight after years of retirement in Max Gate, Dorchester.

Mr. Harper was attending a dinner given at the University club, New York, by Henry Holt. "During the evening," he writes, "the conversation turned on the representative merits of William E. Norris and Thomas Hardy, and Holt expressed the opinion that Norris was the coming man. I stood out for Hardy, and Holt turned to me and generously offered to exchange authors—he having published for Hardy and we for Norris. I accepted his proposition, and from that time on we have published all of Hardy's novels."

"The first time I met Thomas Hardy, he called on me and suggested that we should take a stroll together. We turned out of Albemarle street and wandered along Piccadilly to Hyde park, where we sat down on a bench, and Hardy took a roll of paper from his pocket and began to read off a list of titles, from which he wished to select one for his forthcoming novel, and honored me by requesting my practical advice in regard to the most suitable and striking one. They all impressed me as admirable, but finally they were resolved down to what we agreed was the best, I think it was 'The Return of the Native.' Hardy was always particular about the titles of his novels, and it seems to me that no author has ever been more happy in the christening of his stories. I always found Hardy an exceedingly courteous and sociable companion, and extremely modest withal for a man so pre-eminent among English authors."

"Tess of the D'Urbervilles" first appeared as a serial in Harper's Bazar, then published by Harper and brothers. Mr. Harper writes:

"Hardy told me that his first conception of Tess was derived from a glimpse he had of a comely country lass sitting in the tail end of a cart which rumbled past him as he was strolling along the road. Her pretty face was so sad and appealing as it slowly disappeared from view that it haunted him many a day, and he evolved from this transient vision the story which has become an English classic."

After the serialization of "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" in Harper's Bazar, Hardy offered a new story he had in hand for publication in the magazine. "We wrote him," Mr. Harper continues, "saying that we should be delighted to have another serial from his pen to run in our monthly, but that for obvious reasons we must first be assured that it would be in every respect suitable for a family magazine. Hardy replied that it would be a tale that could not offend the most fastidious maiden; so we began Jude the Obscure. It had not progressed far in Hardy's hands, before he informed us that he was distressed to say the development of the story was carrying him to unexpected fields and he was afraid to predict its future trend. With the keenest sense of the awkwardness of the situation, he promptly and magnanimously proposed that we should either cancel our agreement with him and discontinue the story, or make any change in the serial form which we might deem desirable."

Hardy therefore rewrote one of the chapters and the editors of the magazine made some modifications as the story ran through the magazine. The serial was called "The Simpletons," afterward "Hearts Insurgent," as it appeared in the magazine, and was then published by Harper and Brothers in book form under the title "Jude the Obscure."

Mr. Harper concludes the story as follows:

"'Jude' is not meat for babes—it is a most powerful novel, true to nature, and Hardy's many admirers regret only too acutely the fact that the great and popular author has determined to conclude his series of novels with that work—novels which will be famous as long as English fiction rules."

"TOWARD THE OPEN" GIVEN FIRST PLACE

MODESTLY OFFERS TO WRITE A BOOK

A modest individual has written the following letter to John Farrar who conducts the column "Anonymously" in "The Bookman."

"Dear Sir:

"I think I could write a good fiction book. Would you be in the market for such book—if you thought what I wrote would be a good seller? If so, what do you pay an author for a book as good as the average or better, and when does he receive his pay?

"I never wrote a book.

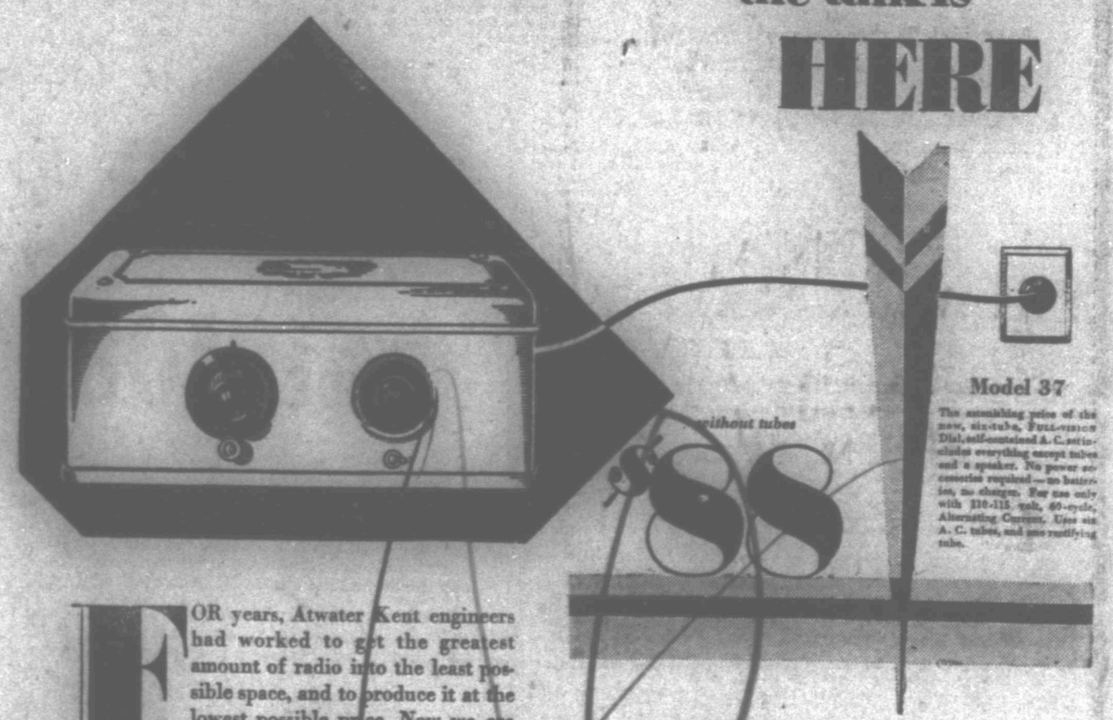

"Yours Truly."

Yes, Indeed.

"And you know what happens to the little boy who clings to his mother's skirts in these days?"

"Yes. He becomes a trapeze artist."—Tit-Bits.

The reason there are 36 columns outside the Lincoln memorial at Washington, is because there were only 36 states in the union at the time of Lincoln's death.

The Parent-Teacher association of the Zundelowitz Junior High school will meet Tuesday, February 7, at 2:30 o'clock at the school. Plans have been made for a special program to welcome the mothers whose children have just entered from the ward schools. The teachers will act as hostesses during the social hour and will each wear a card wearing her name in order that the newcomers may have no trouble in getting acquainted. Refreshments will be served.

The executive board of the Zundelowitz P.-T. A. met Friday morning at 9 o'clock in the office of Mr. Glass. The program for the next P.-T. A. meeting was arranged. It was decided to send special invitations to all parents whose children have just entered from the ward schools.

Austin P.-T. A.

Boys and girls of Austin school dressed in the quaint Colonial costumes of the days of 1776 will appear in a patriotic playlet, "When Betsey Ross Made Old Glory" the evening of February 17 at the auditorium of Reagan Junior High school. The play is under the auspices of Austin school Parent-Teacher association, and a small admission price is being charged.

On Thursday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock, mothers of the Austin school district will meet at the school for the lesson given by the health and Nutrition classes sponsored by the P.-T. A.

John Hays of the Sanitary Market talked at the lesson on Thursday. The different cuts of meat were enumerated to the mothers, according to cost, as follows: Chuck, prime rib roast, rump, arm, brisket or neck. Mr. Hays said that first grade meat should be pink, with cream colored fat—that the "buttons" on young meat are red and soft. He pointed out that the neck and shank are best for hamburger and that the popular "Pike's Peak" roast requires long cooking, is best for beef tea, and is a most nutritious cut of the animal. The fact was brought out that liver is now bringing 65 to 75 cents a pound in Eastern markets owing to recommendations made by physicians and surgeons engaged in medical research work as to its preventive qualities in cases of pernicious anemia. Mr. Hays said that the shortage of beef was caused by the ill advised slaughtering of young calves, and that beef is now bringing higher prices than pork. The mothers discussed the cooking of the cheaper cuts of the animal, such as plate cross ribs, short ribs, flank, "swinging tenderloin," heart and kidneys, exchanging ideas as to the best methods.

Miss Mary Sutherland, nutrition expert, made a short talk on nourishing foods, and said that fruits and vegetables are nature's bottled medicines. Mrs. J. E. Steinkoenig, health chairman, distributed menus to the mothers and announced that the subject of next Thursday's lesson will be "Meat Substitutes."

Austin P.-T. A. has recently been honored by having bestowed on them a certificate from the national headquarters of pre-school round-up work of Philadelphia, Penn. These diplomas are given only to those associations that have completed every phase of the pre-school round-up work. Austin School P.-T. A. has sponsored two medical clinics, with prominent Wichita Falls physicians in charge, organized a Child Health Study club, at which Drs. Austin Leach, W. J. Masters and J. A. Little addressed the members; made the required number of calls on cases brought to the attention of the clinic, and carried on the work of the health and nutrition classes now meeting on Thursdays of each week, after which short courses in first aid will be added to the series of lessons now being given. The story of the year's work has been written and sent on to the educational secretary, Mrs. S. M. N. Marrs, at Austin, for use in the Child Welfare Magazine. Red Cross workers are also interested in what Austin school P.-T. A. has been able to accomplish in a year's time, as their health campaign has been a pioneer undertaking in this city.

Bowie P.-T. A.

The Bowie P.-T. A. met Wednesday at the school with Mrs. W. D. Hagemann, the president, in charge of the meeting. "America" was sung by the audience. Devotional and prayer was led by Rev. Reese-Jones, who also led the house in sing song, "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" and "Love's Old Sweet Song."

Mr. Jones then gave a lecture on "Child Welfare." He said to keep the child from contracting diseases as long as possible, and cited physical exercise as a foundation for resistance and preservation of a healthy body. He urged originating play equipment as mind exercise, and said model and spiritual education starts at home; also that too much liberty for a child is dangerous.

In the business session the minutes of last meeting were read by Mrs. Gladys Roberts. Mrs. Gray gave the treasurer's report, and Mrs. L. B. Bruner reported three new members. It was voted to get individual donations for the menu to be used at the Valentine banquet given the principals of the city schools, at the Bowie cafeteria next Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock. Also that a table be prepared for the second grade room.

Mrs. Wenonah Roach Ware made made a talk in behalf of the Junior Red Cross work, saying Bowie's chapter is improving all the time. The sixth grade's room got the picture. Twenty six members were in attendance.

Barwise P.-T. A.

The Barwise Parent-Teacher association will have a father-mother banquet at the school on Thursday evening at 7:30 to increase the interest of the parents in the school. The program committee has arranged a very helpful and interesting program in connection with the P.-T. A. meeting, which will be held after the banquet supper.

Junior College P.-T. A.

Last week the Junior College-High School P.-T. A. sent a petition to Congressman Guinn Williams in Washington requesting his influence to secure the passage of the Curtis-Reed senate bill 291, and to prevent the abolishment of the children's bureau. Mrs. C. H. Rugeley acted as chairman in preparing the petition. The January Parent-Teachers' magazine contained a message from the state president urging the cooperation of the P.-T. A. throughout the state.

Tuesday, February 14, the Parent-Teacher club of the junior college-high school will hold a social meeting in the form of a valentine tea. The meeting is to give the mothers and teachers a chance to meet and to extend a warm welcome to the members who recently came from the junior high.

Visits Valley View

"School—the Stepping-Stone to Education" was the general theme for short talks made by Dr. J. F. Kimball, professor education, S. M. U., and J. L. Long, president Practical Drawing company, Dallas, before the Valley View student assembly, Wednesday morning at the school. Fred Rand, representative Winston's Publishing company was also present and the three were in company with County Superintendent Burl Bryant, who congratulated the Valley View faculty and student body on the splendid work being done. The speakers were introduced by J. R. Steedham, superintendent of the school, who also announced that Valley View was hoping soon to become an affiliated school in order that those graduating out of the high school might be qualified to enter college.

Mr. Bryant introduced Mesdames Harry ten Brink and W. A. McGee of Wichita Falls, members of P.-T. A. council who had part on the morning's program. Mrs. ten Brink talked on "Life in Holland" and illustrated her talk by exhibiting wooden shoes, Dutch dolls, silverware, a Dutch maiden's dress worn by the native fisher-folk women pictures of Holland bulb-gardens, landscapes displaying also a hand-painted china plate, the gift of Queen Wilhelmena to the grammar school girls who lived in Amsterdam.

Following the brief singsong which preceded the program, two of the high school girls dedicated a vocal selection, "Me and My Shadow" with the encore "Blue Heaven" to Miss Birtie Lea Porter, member of the faculty. Miss Thelma Adams, faculty member, played the piano accompaniment, and Miss Lorene Hayter, faculty member, was in charge of special numbers on the program. Mrs. McGee read an original short story entitled "The Sunshine Business." Approximately 400 children made up the assembly audience.

OLD DOC HAWLEY By Don Marquis

"It's just my luck," complained Old Doc Hawley. "Here, after workin' half my life to perfect that there deevice, I finally got a non-refillable bottle invented years and years after Prohibition comes in.

"And now what they want is not bottles that can't be refilled, but bottles that can be refilled again and again."

"How's that there electric invention of yours comin' on, Clem?"

"Fine! Fine!" said Mr. Hawley. "It's almost ready to fit onto these here airyoplanes!"

"Airyoplanes?" said Jake. "Humph! I thought it was somethin' for automobiles!"

"It could be used onto automobiles too," said Mr. Hawley.

"But," he continued, "the invention business ain't what it used to be in the days of open liquor openly arrived at.

"In the old days when there'd be a lot of fellows standin' round the bar, talkin' of this and that, notions for inventions and big business deals of all kinds was always poppin' into my head. Yes, sir, the air was full of ingenuity and ideas in them days; ideas floated in the air like influenza germs.

"Scarcely a day passed by that I didn't think up some scheme for makin' a million dollars."

"How come you never made it?" asked Mr. Hennery Withers.

"Too many of them ideas," explained Mr. Hawley. "So many that they got twisted up and confused along with each other. There was inspiration everywheres, and a man with inventive genius into him was bound to feel the effects of it when the liquor was good and his friends was kindly.

"But nowadays the liquor is so bad that nobody gets friendly and believin' when he drinks it. You used to tell a feller you had an invention that was gonna make you a million dollars, in the old days, and he'd get well-nigh as happy over it as you was yourself, and ask you to have another drink, and believe in it like you did yourself. And get enthusiastic along with you.

"And then you'd both have another one pretty soon, and you'd give him a half interest in it. And then he'd introduce you to his his friends, and you'd introduce him to your friends, and all get to likin' each other so well that none of you cared whether you had a million dollars or not.

"But nowadays, with the liquor what it is, nobody is gonna believe in the first place that you actually got an invention that's gonna bring in a million dollars. And me, I always gotta be believed in by the people round about me, or my genius don't sprout none. And if you was to make anybody believe, nowadays, that you had a patent that was worth that much money, he wouldn't be glad—he'd be grouchy. The liquor's different, and life ain't the same. Now this here electric deevice of mine, for submarines—"

"And now what they want is not bottles that can't be refilled, but bottles that can be refilled again and again."

"I thought you said last week," interrupted Al the Bartender, "that it was for sewing machines."

"It could be used onto sewing machines," said Mr. Hawley, thoughtfully. "It could be used onto purty nigh anything that has wheels and machinery into it, that deevice could. And I can't help thinkin'—"

"Then you oughta get somebody to help you help thinkin'!" sneered Hennery Withers, who occasionally delights in taking the wind out of Mr. Hawley's sails.

"I can't help thinkin," went on Mr. Hawley, with a bitter look at his friend, "that billions and billions of dollars must be lost every year in this country just on account of the liquor being not right any more, and bunches of friends not thinkin' up the big business deals they used to."

"And then you'd all get to likin' each other so well that none of you cared whether you had a million dollars or not."

"What would you do, if you had a million dollars?" inquired Al, dreamily.

"I'd travel around and see some of them Seven Wonders of the World I'm always reading about," said Mr. Hawley.

"You never read anything except the Old Testament and free drugstore almanacs," said Hennery Withers. And, as a matter of fact, it was out of these same almanacs that Mr. Hawley has gotten most of his general ideas. "Just for the sake of argument, what was the Seven Wonders of the World?"

"Well, just for the sake of argument," returned Mr. Hawley, "the first and most important one was the Pillers of Hercules."

"What are them for?" inquired Al.

"To lay his head onto," said Mr. Hawley. "Anybody but an ignoramus would know that, and the way you fellers act about the information I'm givin' you just goes to prove my point. People can't get any belief nor friendliness anymore like they had in the old days afore Prohibition brought all this here bad liquor onto the market.

"It ain't only inventions and big business deals that has gone with the doing away with the open bar, it's civilization in general. There's art, for instance. There used to be beautiful pictures in every bar room, and it was a liberal education just lookin' at them there pictures and speculatin' what they was about. I'm a poor man, and I don't get any chance to run about and buy hand-paintings like that, nor even look at them. Prohibition has took all my artistic education plumb away from me.

"And music, too. Remember the songs the boys used to sing when they all got a little jingled, in the old days? I don't ever hear any songs like that comin' out of the stuff they sell nowadays. My music is took away from me top by Prohibition.

"And my morals is detrimentalized to an equal extent. A good many of them songs used to be all about Home and Mother, and they used to make me cry and resolve to be a better man in the future. But they been took away from me, too. Yes, sir, Prohibition has took away my morals, too."

"Well, cheer up, Clem," said Jake Smith. "Mebby they'll give us legalized light wine and beer again."

PRISON HALL SCENE FATAL GUN BATTLE AS CONVICTS RIOT

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 4. (AP)—Joseph H. Tinney, 42, a deputy keeper at the state prison here, is dead; Harry Baxter, a long term convict with several aliases, is dying, and Frank Wunkowski, another convict, is in solitary confinement as a result of an attempt by the two prisoners to shoot their way to liberty early today.

The finding of a crude bomb in the prison yard at a point near where the prisoners attempted to scale the wall and the report that an automobile sped away from Federal street when guards showered the convicts with bullets, led prison officials to believe that the men had outside aid.

"They've got me, boys—look out."

Then he dropped to the floor, dead.

The man in charge of the center desk immediately sounded an emergency call, and a few minutes later men on duty in the towers spotted the men scurrying across the foggfilled yard and opened fire.

Both convicts were armed with automatic pistols and returned the fire. Wunkowski first attempted to scale the wall after tossing a line over it.

Just as liberty seemed within his grasp, a policeman who had been attracted by the prison siren, arrived on the scene. He fired a shot at Wunkowski's head and the prisoner dropped back into the yard, ran into the prison and handed his weapon to Center Keeper McChesney.

After Wunkowski had given up the attempt, Baxter attempted to scale the wall. He was nearly half way to the top when he suddenly moaned, "It's all over with me," and dropped to the ground. He was taken to the prison hospital, where it was found that he had two wounds through the right chest and another through the lower abdomen. His condition was grave.

Many of the convicts were in the dining room when the shooting started. Edward L. Maire, the chief commissary officer, immediately locked the doors of the large room as soon as the alarm was sounded. Later all the convicts were returned to their cells and doorkeepers were instructed to allow no visitors to enter the prison today. Every cell in the big institution is being searched and a rigid investigation is being made to learn how the guns were smuggled into the institution.

Wardlaw-Ferguson Combination Is New Angle to Political Situation Confronting Texas Voters in 1928

Special to the Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 4.—What weight is the Wardlaw-Ferguson combination going to have in Texas politics this year? That is the question being asked around over the state with considerable frequency. This might be a good time to analyse the personalities and elements entering into this political entente.

L. J. WARDLAW

Louis Wardlaw, the Fort Worth attorney who announced a couple of weeks ago as a candidate for governor, is very much in the same situation as Jim Ferguson was in 1914. He is a virtual unknown. Evidently it is his hope and expectation that he will run the same kind of race and with the same result that Ferguson did against Colonel Tom Hall.

Wardlaw comes into the political arena like a bolt out of a clear sky. He comes as an unknown quantity, but as the champion of the people—the common people—and the taxpayers. He comes as a lawyer, farmer and ranchman. He owns fairly extensive ranch interests in Sutton county and several farms in other parts of the state.

Wardlaw is the nearest prototype to Abraham Lincoln that Texas politics ever produced. He has the same lantern-jawed, rugged facial characteristics and is even taller than Lincoln was—probably about six feet, five or six inches. He is from a family of rugged pioneering farmers, his father, Newt Wardlaw, having settled in Runnels county on a small farm near Ballinger more than 35 years ago.

This writer recalls vividly some of Louis Wardlaw's youthful traits, chief of which was his dogged determination and fighting spirit. He took his school work seriously and did his boyish chores around the farm with less of the playful spirit common in boys. When 13 or 15 years old he went to A. & M. college, bent on getting a training that would fit him for scientific farming.

Some of the upper classmen at the college started in to "haze" this serious-minded youngster from the "sticks," but they hardly counted on the force of his 200 pounds back of a toil-hardened fist. Louis was not able to stay in the college, but he wasn't hazed. Incidentally, that grand hazing fight changed his career from that of a farmer to a lawyer.

Louis returned to Ballinger and began teaching a country school, spending his evenings studying law. After three or four years of this he was admitted to the bar and then moved to Sonora to engage in the law practice. He served several terms as county judge of Sutton county, built up extensive sheep and goat ranch interests and finally, some 10 or 12 years ago, moved to Fort Worth to an enlarged law practice.

Wardlaw is a good business man, a sound thinker and a man of ability. If his political venture should be successful, however, his biggest handicap would be the same seriousness that would not permit him to enter into the playful spirit of college life. There has to be a lot of give and take in politics—a lot of play, as it were. And Louis has been too busy all his life to play.

So much for the personalities. Now for the generalities and probabilities. The conclusions must be, of course, based on the private opinions of the writer, in which some readers may disagree.

It would seem to this writer that Mr. Wardlaw has launched his candidacy at the wrong time. If he hopes to beat Dan Moody for reelection. Neff, Colquitt, Campbell, Lanham, Sayers, Culberson, Hogg, Ross and nearly all governors since reconstruction days served two full terms. Jim Ferguson was elected for a second term, while Will Hobby served virtually two terms. The only exception to that rule was Mrs. Ferguson, who was elected not as a first choice but to defeat an organization candidate.

Likewise, it could be said that Moody was elected to defeat a particular candidate, but in Moody's administration there has been no scandal, no charges of waste or graft. Consequently it would seem a difficult matter for any candidate to beat him if he runs for reelection, which he is almost certain to do.

The candidacy of Wardlaw should be welcomed by Moody, for it will weaken the chances of Senator R. A. Stuart, also of Fort Worth, and Stuart might have been a fairly strong contender against Moody.

Wardlaw Speaking Dates.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Feb. 4.—Louis J. Wardlaw, who recently announced for governor of Texas, has announced the following itinerary for the week of February 6:

Monday: Gunter hotel, San Antonio, Texas.

Wednesday: Rice hotel, Houston, Texas.

Saturday: Jefferson hotel, Dallas, Texas.

Wardlaw has received letters and telegrams from all over the state of Texas during the last week lauding him on his announced stand for a reduction of taxes in Texas, and says that this is one of the chief issues brought out by those who interview him concerning his candidacy. He has issued an invitation to constituents to consult with him on any state problems while he is visiting over Texas.

The reason side whiskers are known as sideburns is because they were named for Gen. Ambrose E. Burnside of the federal army.

WORK ON TOPPING HIGHWAY EAST OF LEUDERS BEGINS

STAMFORD, Feb. 4.—The topping of the road between Lueders and the end of the pavement leading to Fort Worth and Dallas a distance of 13 miles, has been started. Workmen are on the ground and are getting along well with the work. This will bring the paved road out of the above cities 13 miles nearer Stamford and Jones county's part of the work is soon to be started as the money is in the banks for that purpose.

The topping northwest through Stamford will be for 15 miles or to Stamford when 23 more miles out to Hamlin will be started.

THE WICHITA VALLEY FARMER

DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF THE FARMER, DAIRYMAN, POULTRY RAISER AND FRUIT AND TRUCK GROWER

FARMING PROBLEM TO COMPLEX FOR SINGLE PANACEA

DIFFICULT SITUATION EXISTS IN INDUSTRY

Control of Surpluses, and Better Equalization of Tax Burden Among Needs

By NEA Service.

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—The farmer's problem isn't the lone matter of financial relief, but one that varies all the way from immigration to research and education, according to a special committee of the American Association of Land Grant colleges and universities.

After six months of investigation, the committee reports that no single relief act can solve the complex agricultural situation in America. At the same time, however, its members have summarized some of the more important improvements that might hasten relief. These are:

1.—Control of surpluses by adjustments in acreages and livestock, withholding new land from cultivation, greater use of storage facilities, second marketing organization, unified action in handling such parts of a commodity as may prove burdensome and favorable legislation.

2.—No further development of land for agricultural use and development of a far-sighted land policy.

Want Fair Taxes

3.—Equalization of the tax burden so that part of the load now borne by farm property be transferred to other sources of income.

4.—Early completion of the investigations of freight rates and prompt readjustments, together with careful studies of the possible effects of deep waterways on the agriculture of the interior.

5.—Making credit from the federal intermediate credit banks available to cooperative buying and selling associations, through educational campaign to transfer more of the credit from merchants to banks, and authorization to federal intermediate credit banks or some other agency to make capital loans on the amortization plan to cooperatives.

6.—Alleviation of the farm labor situation through some other method than relaxation of immigration laws.

Want to Help Selves

8.—Considerable extension of the cooperative form of business and avoidance of a paternalistic attitude on the part of the government.

9.—Changes and adjustments by individual farmers in commodities they produce, in methods of production and in the size of their business.

10.—Continuations of research to improve methods of economical crop and livestock production and economic and social conditions, together with improved educational opportunities for the farmer and his children.

11.—Enactment of broad, permanent legislation that will enable agriculture to meet emergencies as they arise and that will provide for equalization of taxes, tariff and freight rates.

Farm Income Halved

In conclusion the committee reports that since 1920 agriculture has received only a little more than 10 per cent of the total current income of the United States, whereas from 1909 to 1919, inclusive, agriculture received not less than 20 per cent of the total income of the country.

The report points out that this reduced income is not due to lack of productive efficiency on the part of the farmer and that too great a responsibility for the conditions of agriculture are placed upon the farmer himself.

Wheat Yield Record

John Thorsley of Rolla, British Columbia, claims the world's record for wheat yield, with 50 bushels to the acre.

Crop Land Decrease

During the five years from 1919 to 1924, crop land area of the United States decreased by 13,000,000 acres.

Many Co-Ops

There are now 341 active agreements for cooperative activities between the federal bureau of agricultural economics and state agricultural bodies. Every state and Porto Rico is represented.

A rat, according to government figures, destroys at least $3 worth of food a year on a farm or in a home. Using calcium cyanide gas in a wholesale extermination, Clinton county, Ohio, saved itself $100,000 by killing 50,000 of these rodents.

PRESIDENT OF FARM OFFICIALS

William A. Graham, commissioner of agriculture for North Carolina, has been chosen president of the national association of commissioners of agriculture. Graham has won distinction in the South because of his diversification views and his opposition to cotton price predictions by the U. S. department of agriculture.

MASS PRODUCTION CAUSES INCREASE IN GRAPE GROWING

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Last year saw the grape again moving towards the top of the list of commercial fruits in this country. It is now next to the apple and the orange in popular demand, says the American Society of Agricultural Engineers which has been surveying the various crops and crop practices.

California alone produced 2,372,000 tons of grapes, 1,424,000 of which were raisin grapes.

New York, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Arkansas are other states of importance in commercial production. However, California is the only raisin state, only table and juice varieties being grown in the other sections.

Prohibition No Factor

California's rise in raisin, table and juice varieties since the war is one of the wonders of the varied agriculture. In spite of popular belief that prohibition has been the big factor and that the big advance has been in juice grapes alone, such is not the case. Her advance in table varieties outstrips her gains in juice grape production.

"Mass production," or mechanization of her vineyards into a big business that cuts down costs and increases production per man, per acre and per vine, is the answer. Huge tractors pull sub-soilers that rip the plow pan to a depth of 30 inches to permit rains, sunshine and bacteria to penetrate and make a deeper seedbed for the roots.

More Sugar Content

This aids in getting quality grapes with high per cent of sugar content. Grapes with 12 per cent sugar content are grown in the sandy areas. The lightness of this sandy soil requires either chiseling or sub-soiling about every other year or both yield and quality rapidly decline.

Marketing 75,000 to 100,000 cars of grapes, mostly east of the Rockies in the larger cities, all within a few weeks, is one of the greatest problems of the grape industry. Railroads, banks and growers' cooperative associations combine to bring it about successfully.

Otherwise, a glut of the markets would ruin most of the producers and cause the abandonment of many thousands of acres to other crops.

MUCH DEVELOPMENT IN LAMESA FARM SECTION

LAMESA, Feb. 4.—The development of agricultural lands in Dawson county is evident by recent improvements made by Higginbotham & Bartlett company of this city in the matter of starting 10 complete sets of farm improvements on new land in the county, four of which are now completed.

It is estimated that 100 new farmers have moved into Dawson county this year.

Green Bug Busy.

This year should see the green bug busier than it has been for seven years, according to C. E. Sanborn of the Oklahoma A. & M. college. "According to its historical appearances we should really expect severe damage in 1928," he says.

Floydada Man Claims Cotton Picking Machine of His Invention Capable of Clearing Seven to Ten Acres Daily

FLOYDADA, Texas, Feb. 4.—A cotton harvester for the plains, which it is claimed, can be operated by one man and a team, getting 95 per cent of the cotton from the stalk, and taking from it 95 per cent of the first and 75 per cent of the hulls, completed here in the late fall by J. P. Raine, recently was demonstrated here. The weight of the machine is approximately 1200 pounds. Its frame is 10 feet long and about 21½ feet overall, with the tongue and platform. The first part of the machine that comes in contact with cotton is a drum holding picking "fingers." As the picker is pulled down the row, straddling the cotton, the fingers pull the cotton bolls, which are thrown into a boll breaker, set immediately behind the finger drum. Here the bolls are crushed, and the mass turned over to saw fingers on a revolving drum that pulls the cotton from the burrs, the burrs and dirt falling back to the ground. To get the cotton from the saw teeth, a rapidly revolving fan in the rear blows the staple cotton upward through a pipe into a sack on the driver's platform, or into a wagon driven alongside or behind.

All the machinery of the picker, including the picking fingers, hull breaker, fans and the saws are operated by chain drive from the traction of the wheels on which the machine is pulled along the row, geared by chain drives that eliminate the need of any motive power except the tractor or team.

The demonstration indicated it was claimed, that the claims of the inventor are practically correct, in that a farmer can cover as much ground in one of the machines as he can drive with a cultivator. His estimate is that from 7 to 10 acres of ground can be covered in a day, the yield having nothing to do with the rapidity with which the crop can be gathered.

Mr. Rains, the inventor, is 56 years of age. He has been making his home in Floyd county for four years, coming to the plains from Sweetwater. He has spent years in the cotton business, being an experienced gin man. The machine, which is the result of years of study, was set up at the Floydada Welding works, and most of it made by E. A. Garner, manager of the plant. Patents on the cotton harvester are pending, and several manufacturers have had engineers and designers to see it.

The recent demonstration was made on the Mrs. J. D. Price farm, two miles west of Floydada.

GRAIN SORGHUM THRESHER DRAWS MANY TO LOCKNEY

LOCKNEY, Feb. 4.—Seventy-five capitalists, grain dealers, and farmers were in Lockney recently inspecting the combination grain sorghum heads dump and thresher recently invented by Ray C. Ayers, local grain man.

R. W. Seawell, Dallas patent attorney, and R. D. McBride, representative of Dallas capital, were present and stated that this machine would fill a long needed want to the farmers and grain dealers of this section in the handling of the grain-sorghum heads.

The device, as formally presented by Ayers, consisted of a grain dump especially designed to handle grain sorghum heads; a system of conveys, installed in a manner to allow only the proper amount of heads to be feed to the threshing cylinder; a threshing cylinder that is approximately four times as large as that usually employed in an ordinary grain thresher, and a storage room to care for excess heads. This machine is all housed under one roof.

Indians on the Osage reservation are allowed $125 each by the agency if they desire to set out orchards on their farms.

SWINE AND DAIRY STOCK IN DAWSON COUNTY INCREASES

LAMESA, Feb. 4.—C. B. Martin, farm agent of Dawson county, has, during the past 12 months, brought 75 head of registered bulls and cows to the county. In addition to this he has brought equally, this number of hogs to the county.

This means that Dawson county will substantially increase her already large income of cream, butter and meat supply. The demand for a creamery at Lamesa is fast becoming realized among the farmers and business men of the county and Lamesa.

At present there are more than 5,000 good blooded Jersey cows in the county and the farmers are fast taking to the idea of a cow to every farm and then one with which to help buy the grocery bills.

QUITAQUE FARMER QUITS COTTON AND FINDS PROSPERITY

By G. H. RUSSELL

QUITAQUE, Feb. 4.—The writer has just made a visit to the dairy farm of J. L. Grundy in the northeast part of town. He has some of the best looking jersey cows that I ever saw. Mr. Grundy started in the dairy business something over a year ago with two or three cows. By giving the public a good product, courteous treatment and the best of service, he has increased his herd until he is now milking about 15 of the very best cows that money can buy.

Mr. Grundy states that he has a milk trade that is consuming all the milk, both sweet milk and sour, that he has to spare. He has also worked up a nice butter trade.

Mr. Grundy is the owner of a nice farm that joins the town section on the northeast. He is a scientific farmer of diversification. He says he devotes certain days of the week to the cleaning of the cow lots and stalls. He rotates his crops, plants plenty of feed for his dairy cattle, and raises chickens and hogs. He He says there is more to be made plants some cotton but very little in raising feeds, good truck patches, orchards, chickens, hogs and dairy cattle, than can possibly be made in planting the whole farm to cotton, beside the work is more pleasant.

Mr. Grundy was a cotton farmer the greater portion of his life, but never did realize very much from the cotton crops. He says he has realized more clear profits from raising dairy and poultry and diversified farming than any other undertaking.

AGRICULTURE EXPERTS VISITORS TO QUITAQUE

QUITAQUE, Feb. 4.—H. D. Cuykendall, a representative of the Memphis Cotton Oil mill of this section and the Gate City creamery of Childress, and L. M. Thompson, Hall county demonstration agent, visited schools of the Quitaque community recently.

Mr. Cuykendall was here in the interest of the dairy and poultry movement. He passed out considerable amount of literature to the farmers and business men. Mr. Cuykendall presented the school children with novelty pencils.

The estimated value of all capital invested in agriculture during 1927 is 58 billion dollars. In 1920 this value was 79 billion dollars.

HEREFORD DAIRY INDUSTRY MAKES PHENOMENAL GAIN

COW-SOW AND HEN PROGRAM PROVES PROFITABLE ON PLANS

BULL CIRCLES STRESSED IN DEVELOPMENT PLANS

1927 Declared Best Year in History of New Farm Enterprise In Deaf Smith Area

HEREFORD, Feb. 4.—Starting only a few years ago the dairy industry in this county has grown to phenomenal proportions, it was made known by a survey just completed here. In carrying out the famous "cow-sow-hen" policy of stock farming, people of this vicinity have turned what was once regarded as a mere side-line into a profitable business.

J. L. Parks, Berry Orr and Jim Lipscomb, pioneers in this field of endeavor here, say that they are having better results from their work each year and that 1927 was a bumper year in the dairy business. Last fall, Mr. Orr's Clover-Dell farm near Hereford held the largest sale of dairy cattle in the history of this city.

Hereford dairymen are not content with amateur methods or guesswork. They have, instead, put the industry on a sound business basis, cooperating at all times with leading cattle authorities and the Texas A. & M. college in keeping this business up to the highest standards.

Importance of the bull circle as a means of maintaining quality stock and peak production has been stressed to the limit in Deaf Smith county. Twelve registered bulls have been purchased from the Flowerdale farms near Dallas, and the bulls were the sires of more than 200 high grade calves this year.

Bulls are now in use in three circles, made up as follows: Circle 1, D. E. Turrentine, S. C. Wilson, R. M. Tankersley and Harvey Nunn; circle 2, J. L. Lockingbill, A. B. Schultz, Lester Galley and O. L. Rutherford, and circle 3, Ira Ricketts, Geo. Lewis and Jim Chapman.

The success of Geo. Lewis is considered typical of dairymen of this county. In the year just closed, Mr. Lewis sold more than $1400 worth of cream. Skimmed milk from this production was used to help furnish a balanced ration for more than 100 head of hogs. Mr. Lewis says that if it were not for his milk cows, the profit on his farm would be much lower and that the value of his grain would be much less than it now is when fed to the hogs and Jersey cattle.

WHEAT CROPS AT LOCKNEY ESCAPE HARM FROM COLD

LOCKNEY, Feb. 4.—The continued cold weather during the earlier days of the month failed to damage the large wheat acreage of this section, according to several of the major wheat growers of this section. Many of the farmers think hitat the crop was benefited by the hard freezes, in that, the growth was retarded and a stronger root developed.

The greater percentage of the wheat in Floyd county was planted early in the season and a large part seeded in the summer fallowed land making the crop drouth resistive, judging from past experiences. Prospects were never better for a good yield from the coming harvest if moisture is received in any reasonable length of time.

Poultry Sales In Lockney for Week Top $3000

LOCKNEY, Feb. 4.—Dairying and poultry raising have long been sidelines with the South Plains farmer, but since the adoption of a diversified program of agriculture, these two sidelines are being recognized as two major factors in the agricultural prosperity of this section.

Over a seven day period during the early part of January, cream receipts in Lockney totaled 1580 gallons and brought the farmer approximately $2200. This industry ceases to be one of minor importance when the year's total is considered.

The poultry industry has also become one of major importance in this section. Approximately 12,000 pounds of live poultry was received by the produce houses of this city from January 21 to 26, placing in actual circulation more than $2,000 over a five day period. The hatching season is now well under way and prospects are bright for a large spring production of poultry, however, the excess eggs sold to Lockney dealers have placed more than $1,000 in the hands of the farmer in the last seven days.

Farmers of this section are increasing their flocks as they state that this industry is one upon which money cannot be borrowed and the returns come 365 times per year rather than once a year.

Business men and bankers are advocating these two industries as it places money in actual circulation at all times, thereby relieving the farmer from buying his necessities on time, and is now promoting the most healthy prosperity ever experienced on the plains.

Cotton Falls Off.

Cotton production for 1927 fell about 5,000,000 bales short of the 1926 mark. Acreage reduction, the Mississippi flood and weevil damage brought the total production down to nearly 13,000,000 bales.

Poultry Industry And Dairying on Rise in Donley

CLARENDON, Feb. 4.—Farmers in this section are placing more orders for baby chicks and making more hatching contracts with hatcheries than ever before in the history of Clarendon.

With the likelihood of a good market for dairy products head, many dairy cattle are being brought into the county at this time also. One carload of registered Jerseys has just been sold at Lelia Lake, seven miles east of here. Buyers here are getting together in an effort to secure another carload for this section this spring.

Donley county, and the Clarendon section in particular, is making rapid strides in developing its dairy industry and poultry raising. There are more cows, and more milk in Donley county by three times than there was a year ago at this time. The most serious problem confronting this section at this time is a market for milk.

Master Farmer of Manhattan Is Wayne McClure

MANHATTAN, Ill., Feb. 4. (AP)—Farming 280 acres for 17 years with the aid of only one man was one of the paramount reasons the Prairie Farmer bestowed the title of "Master Farmer" on Wayne McClure of Manhattan.

McClure's farm is a maze of labor-saving equipment, installed to such an extent that it almost runs automatically. His livestock is watered and fed by automatic devices. Nine work horses and a tractor enable him to cultivate his acreage with a minimum of labor. At harvest times, McClure uses an automatic corn picker. Modern barns for the housing of all livestock have made sanitation thorough at a small expense of time. A modern poultry plant has been constructed with the same result.

McClure is a "college farmer," a graduate of the University of Minnesota, and he keeps in close contact with the experiment station of the University of Illinois. A library in his farm house contains a complete collection of agricultural bulletins and publications, as well as a business record that tells him where his money is going and how expenditures might be reduced.

In planning his crop rotation he has followed the plan of using a major rotation for crop production and a smaller acreage in a minor rotation for livestock.

INCUBATORS AT HEREFORD BEGIN 1928 OPERATION

HEREFORD, Feb. 4.—With the opening next week of Hereford's largest hatchery, the Hillside Poultry farm, the baby chick season in Deaf Smith county will be well under way. The new Smith incubator which has just been installed has a capacity of 47,000 eggs.

More than 600 head of Rhode Island Red laying stock has been purchased from the J. B. Yeakley farm of Melrose, New Mexico.

According to H. V. Williamson, manager of the Golden Rule hatchery, scores of visitors have already been out to inspect his newly-improved place in the east part of town. This concern broadcasts a series of radio programs over station KGRS of Amarillo every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday morning from 7:00 to 7:30 a. m.

Operations will begin in the near future at the Hereford electric hatchery, owned and operated by J. M. Henderson & Son, and at Jack Van Ness' new Sunset Poultry farm which begins its initial season this year.

RUDOLPH FRIML TO BE GUEST ARTIST AT FAMILY PARTY

The personality and music of Rudolph Friml, composer of "Rose Marie," "The Vagabond King," "Katinka," "Firefly," and "The Three Musketeers," will feature the Chevrolet hour on Monday evening, February 6, when the celebrated musical author himself will play his own selections as guest artist in the General Motors Family party.

Friml's rise to eminence as one of the foremost modern composers had its beginning in a humble home in Prague, Bohemia, in 1895, where the boy of eight years, whose father worked in a bakery, flashed out his first original composition on an accordion—music so inspiring that it tempted his father to buy him a cheap melodeon with the scanty funds which he and his wife had saved for their winter's supply of wood. When the father trundled the melodeon home on a wheelbarrow Friml's mother threatened to smash it and burn it in place of the fuel, so badly needed. She had no patience with the lad's musical ambitions, but his father stood by him and the owner of the bakery, after hearing the boy play, advanced money to give him a course in the Prague conservatory.

Friml had as schoolmates Anton Dvorak, composer of the "New World Symphony," a struggling lad like himself, and Jan Kubelik. These three worked together for six or seven years, studying, composing, playing, earning a little money and now and then by semi-amateur appearances. Finally, a local manager happened to hear them and started Friml and Kubelik on a concert tour, which was subsequently repeated for five successive seasons, (1901-1906). They trouped through the little towns of Central Europe, half the time without enough to eat. Finally they got to Berlin and made a success. London followed and it was there that Daniel Frohman heard them and signed them for a tour of American cities, where fame and fortune awaited them.

In rapid succession Friml produced "Katinka" (1915), "You're in Love," "The Blue Kitten," "Tumble Inn" and others. His latest triumph is "The Vagabond King," the exciting music of which will be heard, with selections from other of his light operas, on Monday evening. The vagabond's song, throbbing and drumming recurrently as it depicts the exuberance of desperate and outlawed folk, will be sung by a double quartet with band accompaniment. Friml says he wrote this now popular song in 15 minutes, after 3 o'clock one morning.

In addition to Friml's selections, the Chevrolet program will include music by a concert orchestra with Roderic Graham as conductor, by Joe Green's novelty orchestra, and by a concert band, with Edwin Franko Goldman as leader.

Before the Mike

With 47 stations from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the gulf to the Canadian border, relaying the recent Dodge program, there was hardly a spot throughout the country where this program could not have been heard by the average receiver. A combination of the three networks of the National Broadcasting company did the trick.

Clark Fiers, the 19-year-old organist of WGBI at Scranton, Pa., is known especially by fans of New England. But he has gained considerable attention among listeners of the east and middle-west. No sooner had the Scranton Republican brought him from his home at Kankakee, Ill., for its station concerts at WGBI, than FIERS letters came in great abundance than ever.

Fiers

Nearly $400,000,000 worth of radio apparatus was sold in this country last year. That puts radio up among the greatest of industries in America.

G. Allison Phelps, "Your Friend in Hollywood," at station KMTR, is living up to his other sobriquet of "Radio Philosopher." With one leg in a plaster cast, confined to bed at his home, Phelps continues to announce the KMTR programs by remote control. And his genial philosophy survives his pains.

Midnight revels are more frequent with the greater number of broadcasters. But the Night Hawks of WBBM, Chicago, haven't lost any of their popularity due to this. It's the Coon and Sanders orchestra that has won this midnight frolic such fame. Joe Sanders, of course, adds greatly to the orchestra's distinctiveness by his singing.

BAND MUSIC TAUGHT BY SEARS ROEBUCK THROUGH BROADCASTING STATION

Thirty-four hundred boys and girls, representing 67 high school bands in 20 states, have reported to WLS, the Sears Roebuck station, that they are listening to the band concerts now being broadcast from WLS on Wednesday evenings at 7:10 by Bachman's Million Dollar band, directed by Harold Bachman. The third of these concerts will be heard on February 1.

In these concerts Bachman's band plays the numbers which more than 1000 school bands all over the United States are now studying in preparation for the annual state and national contests sponsored by the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music. The national contest will be held in Joliet, Ill., in May.

By hearing these compositions played by a band of excellent standing and wide experience, the members of the school bands have an opportunity to secure many ideas of interpretation. Several bands have told WLS that during the first concert their members sat in formation and followed their parts as the music was played.

Opera Put On Air

TOULOUSE. (AP)—By arrangement with the local opera house complete operas are broadcast almost every day from Toulouse. Radio fans are sending letters congratulating the station.

Good Antenna Aids Signal

NEW YORK. (AP)—Properly designed aerials, erected with as much care as is taken in receiver construction, mean better signals. Antenna wires should be kept as far as possible from interfering objects. Besides the lead in must be short and at least a foot away from the side of the building.

New Station For Italy

WASHINGTON. (AP)—A new radio station which has the program broadcasting concession for all of Italy has been completed near Milan, the department of commerce has been informed. It has a 7000 watt power plant and takes the place of a 1500 watt station.

Crystal Set Rapped

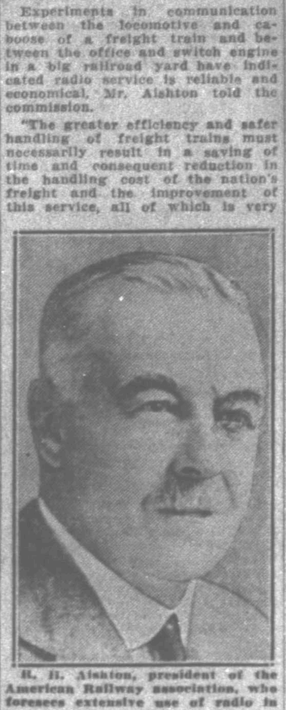

The large number of complaints on interference being received by the Federal Radio commission is due to the persistence of crystal and old-type regenerative receivers, says the Radio Manufacturers association. They should be junked, is the verdict.

RAILROADS WILL MAKE USE RADIO HANDLING TRAINS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP)—Railroads plan to go rapidly forward in the next five years in establishing radio communication for handling freight trains, E. H. Aishton, president of the American Railway association, has informed the Federal Radio Commission.

Experiments in communication between the locomotive and caboose of a freight train and between the office and switch engine in a big railroad yard have indicated radio service is reliable and economical, Mr. Aishton told the commission.

"The greater efficiency and safer handling of freight trains must necessarily result in a saving of time and consequent reduction in the handling cost of the nation's freight and the improvement of this service, all of which is very

The development of train radio communication, using low-power transmitters, has proceeded in the short wave band of 109 to 130 meters, G. T. Stanton, chairman of the radio committee of the railway association said. Experiments have indicated that these wavelengths are the most desirable for train service, he added.

"This is due to the fact that the antenna is limited in length by conditions governing its mounting on the locomotive or caboose," Mr. Stanton said.

"The efficiency is very low, due to the high absorption of radiated energy by the steel mass of the locomotive and the steel parts of the caboose. Wavelengths substantially above this band would require antenna of such length as to be impossible of mounting upon railroad rolling stock, or would require loading to such an extent that the already inefficient radiation would be reduced."

Any substantial increase in the wavelength also would place this service near the lower limits of the broadcast band and might cause some interference with broadcast receivers near the railroad right-of-way, Mr. Stanton asserted.

Attempts have been made to determine whether or not interference with broadcast programs can be caused by the train sets. A test was made recently at Richmond, Va., when an impromptu program was broadcast by the train transmitter for one hour.

Frequent announcements were made that this program was from the train and all persons hearing the program were requested to report reception. Mr. Stanton says not a single report was received. Only one case of interference was reported and upon investigation the set was found to be a regenerative receiver made in 1922. The voice from the train was faintly heard as the train passed within 300 feet.

Radio aids materially in the elimination of train delays occasioned by lack of communication and reduces the time consumed in performing switching operations, recalling flagmen and starting trains, Mr. Stanton declares. It also provides a means of notifying the enginemen in cases of emergency to stop the train.

PLANES MAY USE RADIO SET WHEN WRECKED AT SEA

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. (AP)—Navy engineers declare they have devised radio power generating apparatus which they believe will make it possible for transoceanic planes to send and receive messages after they have been forced down at sea.

Information concerning this equipment will not be made public until patents have been obtained. At that time it will be available for use on all aircraft.

Radio operation in most well equipped planes has been dependent on electrical generators which get their propelling power from wind drive fans attached to the wings of the plane. As soon as the plane goes down the radio power supply is cut off. The apparatus now being designed affords continuous power.

The navy engineers regard long distance overseas flights without adequate "two-way" radio sets as hazardous. In the disastrous Dole flights from San Francisco to Honolulu last summer, the plane of Art Goebel, the winner, was the only one that carried both sending and receiving sets. The ill-fated "Miss Doran" had no radio apparatus and Jack Frost, who piloted the "Golden Eagle" on its tragic voyage declined to take a sending set on account of its weight. The "Dallas Spirit," from which came the dramatic message "We are in a spin—SOS," did not have a receiving set. Col. Charles Lindbergh carried no radio because of the weight it would add to his heavily burdened plane.

Navy experts are working on the problem of designing transmitting and receiving sets which combine the qualities of lightness and ruggedness. The making of light weight continuous power equipment for commercial planes is an easier task than the designing of similar apparatus for navy craft, they assert.

On Eveready Hour

EDGAR WHITE BURRILL

Edgar White Burrill, for the fifth consecutive year, will read Ida M. Tarbell's story, "He Knew Lincoln," as the principal attraction of a Lincoln program to be broadcast by the Eveready Hour over WEAF and associated N. B. C. stations Tuesday evening, February 7, beginning at 9 o'clock, eastern standard time.

With music incident to the period in which Lincoln towered among his contemporaries, this Lincoln program, given each year on the Tuesday preceding Lincoln's birthday, has become one of the few traditions which the still young broadcasting industry has as yet associated with it. On each occasion, as evidenced by the many letters received by the Eveready Hour management, Miss Tarbell's simple, homely sketch of the man Lincoln has secured new admirers.

As Billy Brown, the old Springfield, Ill., storekeeper who "knew Lincoln," Mr. Burrill in his reading of the sketch brings a peculiarly intimate quality of sympathy to the program. Eveready Hour listeners now look forward each year to the rendition by this interpreter, whose "Literary Evenings" are a feature of the lecture season this year at New Steinway hall in New York City.

With Nathaniel Shilkret conducting, the Eveready orchestra will provide the musical side of the program, aided by a male quartet.

RADIO LASSIE

The lighter side of the war was recalled when the Salvation Army Carollers presented a Christmas program at Station WGBS, New York. Besides singing, they baked thousands of doughnuts and sent a box of them to each fan who responded to their call for toys, food, old clothes or other necessities for the poor. This "lassie" helped dispense the doughnuts.

New Loud Speaker

PARIS. (AP)—The latest in French loud speakers is in the shape of a spiral shell. Near to the reproducer the sides of the throat are covered with a very thin felt. It is claimed that this method eliminates all metallic sound. The effect is to deaden the sound a little but improve the tone.

Singing Orchestra

A new organization in radio broadcasting is the singing orchestra. The Ramos Singing orchestra from station WMAQ, Chicago, consists of the father, mother and three daughters of a Mexican family. The rendition of musical numbers balances perfectly.

City Has a Heart

CLEVELAND.—Joe Hansen's dog was caught by the dog catcher. Joe's friends told him about it. But Joe had only five dollars and the dog catcher wanted $5.75 to release the dog. He told his story to Safety Director Barry, explaining how he had saved his pennies so he could buy a gift for his mother. The director told Joe to buy the present and ordered the dog released and the expense charged to the "city with a heart."

FIVE WAVE BANDS ARE REQUESTED BY U. S. OIL INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP)—Declaring that radio communication is essential in oil industry operations, the American Petroleum institute has applied to the Federal Radio Commission for permission to use one long wave and four short wave bands in point to point service.

Professor C. M. Jansky, consulting radio engineer of the institute, presented to the commission the needs of the petroleum industry. Radio stations for service to the oil industry are often located at inaccessible points where wire communication was, and in many cases still is, unsatisfactory or unavailable, Professor Jansky said.

"Communication is first necessary to promote the development of the new and prospective territories," Mr. Jansky said. "Commercial communication companies have been adverse to the establishment of communicating systems to supply the needs of the petroleum industry until developments warranted ample reimbursement or return on their investment.

"In the West Texas and Panhandle fields of Texas and other sections of the country, the petroleum companies, finding themselves without communication facilities, found it necessary either to establish radio systems or to construct their own land wire facilities."

The amount of power required for point to point communication by the oil companies will depend upon the geographic location of stations and the frequencies used, he said. The principle should be adhered to that higher power than is necessary for maintaining communications should not be used, Professor Jansky said. It is not expected power will exceed 5000 watts, he declared.

There are today approximately 35 stations engaged in point to point communication which are operated by organizations closely affiliated with the petroleum industry. Professor Jansky expects a 100 per cent increase in the number of stations within the next five years.

Hear Game in Africa

WASHINGTON, (AP) — Gobs in Tunis, Africa, enjoyed play-by-play returns of the Army-Navy football game transmitted by the naval communication service. Navy radio men here have just received a letter from the flagship of the commander of the United States naval forces in Europe expressing appreciation of the service. The vessel was in drydock at Tunis.

Farmers Radio Society

PARIS. (AP)—Farmers in France have formed a Radio Agricultural association. Reports of interest exclusively to farmers are transmitted from Paris every afternoon, and additions have been made to the daily weather report so that it may be of greater value to the farmers. Members pay an annual subscription of 40 cents.

RADIO ARTISTS

There's nothing like putting reality into a broadcast. But to do this for a program of the Oklahoma Agricultural college at station KVOO, Stillwater, the artists have to be brought from the barnyard of the college. The pig grunts and the rooster crows as an instructor gives his talk on livestock breeding and care.

FRENCH VIOLINIST WILL BE FEATURE OF ATWATER KENT

Jacques Thibaud, the French violinist, will be featured in the Atwater Kent hour, Sunday night, February 5. He will be assisted by a chorus of 16 male voices and the Atwater Kent orchestra, under the direction of Robert Hood Bowers.

This Parisian artist was born in Bordeaux. He studied first with his father and then at the Paris conservatoire, where under Marsick, he won a first prize. He is considered France's greatest violinist.

Since his American debut, 20 years ago, Thibaud has regularly returned for recitals in New York, Chicago, San Francisco and other music centers. During the past season he has played as many as 40 concerts in five months and has an enthusiastic American following.

Mr. Bowers, who is conducting the Atwater Kent orchestra, this year, was conductor for Victor Herbert for five years, but is perhaps best known for his many compositions. He wrote the score for such well knowns successes as the "Vanderbilt Cup," "Spring Maid," "Rose Maid," "The Hoyden," "In the Barracks," "Daughter of the Gods," and many others.

The Atwater Kent singers is a double octet, made up of members of the University Glee club. They will sing three numbers, including Werrenrath's "The Cavalier's Song."

The program, to be broadcast through the National Broadcasting company and 23 associated stations, will begin at 9:15 Eastern time.

DIVERSIFIED LINE OF CARS FEATURED BY DODGE BROTHERS

Dodge Brothers enters the new year in a strong trade position, offering in the four and six-cylinder fields three distinct lines of passenger cars and complete coverage in commercial vehicles. This is in contrast with the former Dodge policy of concentrating on four-cylinder models exclusively and marks transition of the company to a more strategic position in the industry.

Shortly after the passing of control of Dodge in 1925 from private to public ownership, the new Dodge management foresaw the need for diversification of its products if earnings were to be maintained. Although that year was the largest in the company's history, with net profits of over $28,690,800 before interest, income taxes and preference dividend requirements, it was evident that changing conditions in the industry gradually were making it more difficult for the producer of one line of low priced cars.

In the four-clyinder passenger field Dodge now offers eight body types ranging in price from $795 to $995. In what is probably the most popular price field of sixes, the company now has the Victory six, with prices ranging from $1048 to $1170. In a higher priced six-cylinder field is the Senior six line, introduced last June, listing at $1495 to $1595. Trucks are supplied in 22 models, both fours and sixes, with capacity ranging from one-half to two tons. Entire commercial vehicle line, which includes buses and parlor coaches, ranges in price from $670 to $4290.

Dodge now has 5600 dealers, a world-wide organization which has been built up from an initial representation of 600 dealers. Increase in number of overseas dealers is indigative of the growth of the company's foreign business. In 1925 Dodge Brothers had 300 foreign dealers and now there are about 1800.

The brunt of the Dodge reconstruction was borne in 1927. The management realized that earnings would suffer, but once the period of adjustment was passed, Dodge Brothers, Inc., would be in a stronger trade position than ever before and would benefit rapidly from the work done.

This policy is reflected in earnings of the past three years. In 1926, earnings showed only a slight decline from the record, 1925 dropping to $27,790,000 before interest and preference dividends, compared with an estimate of over $12,000,000 for 1927.

$10,000,000 Spent on New Lines.

While passenger car production was curtailed from time to time for changes the commercial vehicle division was more active than ever, and as soon as normal production was obtained in one line the revamping or development of another was started. Thus the company was able to retain its skilled workers, close the year 1927 with an output of better than 200,000 cars and trucks, and at the same time pay its way as it went.

Dodge Brothers spent $10,000,000 on the new four, the Senior and the Victory six, in addition to a relatively small expenditure for the truck division. This included a $4,500,000 plant for production of the Senior six. All but capital expenditures were charged off currently, and the company finished 1927 without recourse to outside financing.

Surveys Made to Find Position of 48 States on Restrictions on Cars With View to Justice and Equity for All

By WILLIAM ULLMAN . . . .

Four subjects of the utmost importance to motor car owners—special taxation for motor vehicles; state restrictions on motor vehicle sizes, weights, and speeds; state regulation of motor vehicle common carrier business, and compulsory automobile liability insurance—again have been made issues of the most sweeping study and report by the national motor vehicle conference committee.

Determination of just where each of the 48 states and the District of Columbia stand on these basic motoring issues, with a view toward directing the trend in motor legislation upon reasonable, equitable and non-discriminatory lines, is the annual function of the national vehicle conference committee. Engaged in work of so obviously vital interest to the car owners of the nation, the committee probably is little known to the average motorist, although it may be regarded as the most representative agency of its kind.

The committee's right to the distinction of beig called the "most representative agency" may be inferred from the fact that its membership includes delegates from the American Automobile association, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, the National Automobile Dealers' association, the Rubber Association of America, and the Motor and Accessory Manufacturers' association. Thus constituted, it represents every motoring interest.

Of the committee's four reports, that on the broad subject of special taxation for motor vehicles, has a vital importance to the motorist because it affects him through his purse. Before setting forth some of the significant and unique figures which comprise the main body of this particular report, it would be well to note a few of the statements enunciated under the prefatory heading, "Sound and Equitable Principles to Control Special Taxation for Motor Vehicles."

Under that general caption, the committee, among other things, declares that:

"The state should be the sole special taxing agency—federal, county and municipal governments should be excluded from the field."

"The motor vehicle tax should be simple in form and distributed in equitable and just proportion between the different types of motor vehicles."

"No highway shall be improved by the expenditure of public funds in excess of its earning capacity. The return to the public in the form of economic transportation is the sole measure of the justification for the degree of improvement."

"The cost of building and maintaining adequate systems of highways should be distributed in an equitable relation to the benefits derived. These may be summarized as follows:

"(a) Benefits to society in general, such as influence on education, recreation, health, fire prevention, police protection, the national defense, the postal service, living and distribution costs.

"(b) Benefits to definite groups, such as agriculture, manufacture, labor, railroads, mining, forestry and waterways.

"(d) Benefits to the road user."

Irrespective of the particular form of special tax of the motor vehicle, whether registration fees or motor fuel taxes, the aggregate amount of these taxes in any one year should not be so great as to impose an undue burden on the individual motorist."

In addition to these principles which the motor vehicle conference committee believes should guide the taxation of motorists, it has laid down others of a more detailed nature, interest in which, while great, is technical. They all are written with broad ideals in view—protection of the motorist, sound development of the highway system, and enhancement in the use and value of the motor car.

The report includes a statistical examination of the fees in force in all of the states of the union, and study of the chart reveals interesting and significant variances in cost. For instance, in Arkansas the annual minimum license fee is set at $15 for privately owned and operated passenger cars, while the gasoline tax in that state is five cents a gallon. This appears to be about the peak in these two directions, while the District of Columbia fares outstandingly better in that its motorists pay but $1 under the first item, along with a two-cent gasoline tax.

Careful perusal of the data compiled by the committee shows a similar divergence in the manner in which those fees are computed. Further, the applications of the funds are varied, although an overwhelming majority uses them for highway improvement purposes.

Alabama requires that cars under 25-horsepower must pay $11.25, while those from 25 to 30 cost their owners $18.75. Farther up the scale, one finds that 40 horsepower means a $30 tax. This is in addition to a four-cent gasoline levy. On the other hand, Colorado sets a minimum fee of $5 and the costs are figured on the basis of one-half of one per cent of the original cost price f. o. b. factory, with a 30 per cent reduction after the fifth year and a 50 per cent cut after the eighth year of service. Colorado imposes a three-cent gasoline tax.

South Dakota's minimum fee is $13, and the state has a four-cent gas tax; Oregon, $15 and three cents; Vermont, $14 and three cents; Georgia $11.25 and four cents; North Carolina $12.50 and four cents.

In New York state snowmobiles pay a $4 fee, while cars of less than six cylinders cost their owners a minimum of $6; more than six, $10. This state levies no tax on gasoline purchases. Connecticutt, along with a majority of other state, specifies that the annual registration and license fees are to be paid into the state fund for construction and maintenance of state highways, and that motor fuel taxes are to go to the highway commission for the construction, maintenance and reconstruction of state highways.

In the matter of compulsory automobile liability insurance, a question which is attracting nation-wide attention following adoption of the plan by Massachusetts, the motor vehicle conference committee also has gone on record. In view of the widespread interest in this question, the following concluding paragraph from the committee's report is quoted in full as follows:

"Since there are, as yet, no facts which indicate that compulsory liability insurance has, or will, reduce the number of accidents, and, since there are no available facts or statistics to show the complete amount of uncompensated losses due to motor vehicle accidents, the motor vehicle conference committee is opposed to the enactment of compulsory automobile liability insurance laws until it can definitely be established that such legislation will accomplish the desired results. The committee strongly urges that other states withhold legislative action on this subject until time and experience have proved the success or failure of the existing plans."

The committee believes, on the question of intra-state regulation, that control over intra-state transportation of persons and property for hire, over regular routes or fixed points, if adopted, should be exclusively in the hands of some agency of the state. No power, whatever, in the premises should be vested in county or municipal agencies, the committee holds. Legislation also should be enacted, according to the committee, enabling steam railroads, trolleys, shipping companies, and other public utilities to acquire, own and operate motor vehicles in conjunction with their regular lines of business.

In its full discussion of the subject of restrictions on motor vehicle sizes, weights and speeds, the committee points out that the following important question immediately is raised, namely:

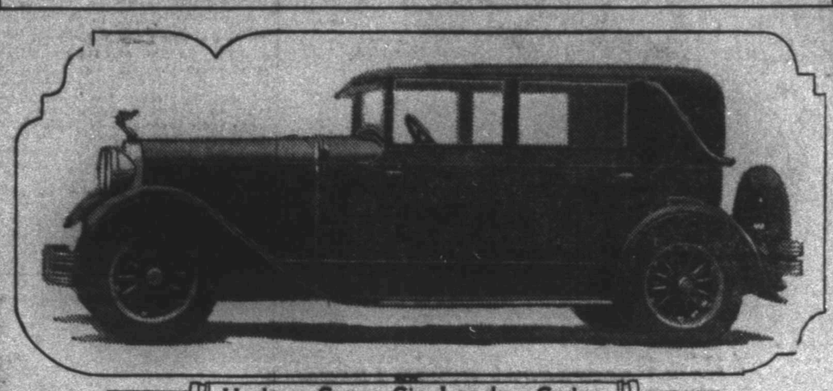

"Shall the dimensions, weights and speeds of motor vehicles and their loads be reduced to the capacities of the weakest highways or parts thereof, or shall all highways and parts thereof be lifted up to standards of improvement adequate to carry the biggest, heaviest and swiftest loads that users of motor vehicles desire to place upon them?"

Answering this essential query, the committee states that it believes that between these two extremes lies a compromise which motor vehicle manufacturers in designing their vehicles, highway engineers in building their roads and bridges and state authorities in maintaining and regulating traffic upon them, would do well to follow.

Care and thought, it is apparent, have gone into the motor vehicle conference committee's reports. They represent a vast amount of painstaking research and are the fruit of untold conferences and discussions. Reflecting the most scientific and judicious consideration by representatives of the car owner, the car maker, the dealer, the tire manufacturer and the accessory maker, it can be safely assumed that the best interests of all concerned, not omitting in any circumstances the public as a whole, have been deeply considered in the preparation of the reports.

DE LUXE MODELS IN 1928 LINE HUDSONS

Hudson Super-Six Landau Sedan

In its new line of custom-built cars, presented for the 1928 season, the Hudson Motor Car company offers an innovation which will undoubtedly prove important. There are three of these models—the victoria, the 5-passenger landau sedan, and the 7-passenger sedan.

All these cars were designed for Hudson in Hollywood, Calif., by a firm which has specialized in special, exclusive bodies, none of which ever have been offered at less than $5500. A few months ago a number of these de luxe bodies were purchased by Hudson officials, and others, for their personal use. So different were they from models current at the time that Hudson determined on them as the basis for a special line of cars on the 127-inch chassis.

These custom bodies are built to express what Hudson terms "the vogue of tomorrow." The whole contour of the car is designed to express fleetness and modern style with a sport motive. Color schemes and mouldings are more daring than in Hudson's usual models. The front window pillars are slender in outline, while the outer rim of the windshield is brightly nickel-plated. Similarly, the window supports at the top of the doors are unsually trim and are nickel-finished. This is said to improve vision from within the car and to assist an impression of smartness.

The rear quarters of these cars are covered with landau leather, which comes down from the top in an unbroken surface. Car interiors are fully and richly finished in de luxe style.

These cars are being manufactured for Hudson in Amesbury, Mass., by a firm of custom builders whose total capacity has been contracted for by Hudson. The construction is of hand-hammered aluminum panels and selected hardwood. The use of aluminum instead of sheet steel permits the obtaining of distinctive and subtle body lines and saves the weight of one passenger.

Hudson's big production program at this time of the year is declared the result of the reception of the new Hudson-Essex line. From reports the country over, this is said to have been the most favorable of any line of cars in the company's history, despite generally cold weather. In Detroit, since the introduction of the cars, retail sales have exceeded 100 cars a day—or about triple the normal rate.

OAKLAND COMPANY WILL HAVE RECORD FEBRUARY OUTPUT

PONTIAC, Mich., Feb. 4.—The highest January pr duction in the history of the Oakland Motor car company—19,774 Oakland and Pontiac sixes—is being eclipsed by a record February production schedule of 22,265 cars, it is announced by W. R. Tracy, vice president in charge of sales.

The extent to which recent plant expansions at the Oakland and Pontiac six factories have increased production capacity is revealed by the following comparison with production figures during the corresponding months of previous years:

February	8549	9634	22,265

"The fact that our totals for both January and February of this year exceed by a wide margin the combined 1926 and 1927 production during those respective months is the best evidence that the Oakland Motor Car company will be an even greater factor in the automobile industry during 1928," said Mr. Tracy.

"Our schedule for the present month is not a theoretical figure; it is based upon the signed orders sent in by our dealers.

"The Oakland Motor Car company sold 191,000 Oakland and Pontiac sixes during 1927, which represented an increase of more than 40 per cent over the total for the preceding year. If the demand for motor cars continues at its present high level we confidently expect that in 1928 the volume of Oakland-Pontiac business again will show a 40 per cent increase.

"The continued popularity of the Oakland All-American six and the enthusiastic public reception accorded the new Pontiac six, with its many improvements and new features, indicate that our hope of bettering the national position of fifth in point of sales Oakland achieved last year is in process of accomplishment."

NEW SYSTEM ENDS GREASING TROUBLE ON AUBURN AUTOS

The life of the chassis of the average automobile is cut one-half because of improper or in many cases complete lack of lubrication, engineers of the Auburn Automobile company, point out.

"Few of us care to get down underneath a car every morning and turn a dozen or more grease cups," H. C. Snow, chief engineer for the company says, "even those of us who realize the tremendous importance of plenty of grease on moving parts often as not neglect or forget this, one of the most important functions of driving an automobile.

"Some owners, mindful of the life of their car, yet disliking to attend to greasing the chassis themselves, pay out an endless amount of money each year for greasing service.

"With the new Bijur system, which comes as regular equipment on all Auburn cars, none of this trouble or annoyance is experienced. This system does the work of 40 service station men in a moment's time. Merely by pressing a plunger on the dash of the car grease is forced around every moving part on the Auburn chassis. There is no dirt, no fussing about, no soiling of hands and clothing. Merely a gentle push of the foot does the trick.

"Auburn, Rolls Royce and one other expensive American car, are the only automobiles in this country equipped with the Bijur system," Mr. Snow points out. "This one improvement places Auburn years ahead of the average car."

Speeding Takes Lives

Results of a survey taken by the National Safety council show that 11 per cent of the total number of motor accidents last year were due to "stepping on the gas."

Sale of New Passenger Cars in Texas During 1927 Fell 40,000 Below 1926 Due to Suspension of Ford Business

DALLAS, Feb. 4.—As the probable result of the practical suspension of Ford business in the latter part of 1927 and the buyers' suspense incident to the Ford situation, sales of new passenger cars in Texas for 1927 fell approximately 40,000 below the total of 1926, it is shown in registration tables published in Southwestern Automotive Journal, a trade authority published in Dallas.

While total sales of makes other than Ford showed an increase of 9943 in 1927 over the preceding year, their gains failed to make up for the loss in Ford sales which amounted to 51,382 new passenger cars for the year. Sales of all makes including Ford in 1926 numbered 163,518 as compared with 131,979 in 1927, Southwestern Automotive Journal shows. In making the comparison, however, it should be remembered that total new car registrations reported for 1926 are complete, while the 1927 total may be increased somewhat by the inclusion of late registration reports.

Many Texas counties have not reported all cars registered in December, while in other counties registration receipts for cars actually delivered in December were post-dated January and will not appear until the January report is published. This was done in order to save on the cost of license fees.

That many December sales were not reported is indicated by the fact that total registrations for December were reported as only 2759 as compared with 8871 in November, and 10,281 for December, 1926.

A falling off in sales in 1927 was general in all Southwestern states. Oklahoma dealers sold but 61,018 new passenger cars in 1927 as compared with 86,662 in 1926, a loss of 26,055, Southwestern Automotive Journal shows. Arkansas sales in 1927 numbered 28,839 as compared with 37,775 in 1926, a loss of 8936. Louisiana sales in 1927 totaled 23,051, which was 12,969 less than the 1926 total of 36,020, and New Mexico dealers sold but 5,925 passenger cars in 1927 as compared with 6,539 in 1926, a loss of 614.

HUPMOBILE COVERS ALL QUALITY FIELD OF MOTORDOM NOW

Hupmobile, today, is now covering the entire quality field of motordom. Its line of cars comprises 23 body styles on two straight eight and one six-cylinder chassis, ranging in factory list price from $1345 to $2795. Its body styles include both custom built bodies, and its remarkably successful custom equipped models which actually greatly increase the total number of body types.

The company's decision to produce cars for this entire market is expected to enlarge considerably the scope of its operations, and make it even more successful. Prospective purchasers now can enter Hupmobile salesrooms everywhere with the knowledge that the company has a car in every field from that of medium price upwards, including the finest in standard and custom body creations.

Success Already Evident.

It is universally predicted throughout the industry that Hupmobile, during 1928, will enjoy by far the greatest year in its history. Even officials of the company recognize for their conservativeness in predictions, have been recorded several times as stating that they anticipated their greatest year in 1928.

"We decided to cover the entire quality field of motor cars when it was brought home to all of us that the Hupmobile reputation, consistent and growing greater over a period of nearly 20 years, made it a virtual certainty that our success in so expanding was a foregone conclusion," says DuBois Young, Hupmobile president. "Our decision was made nearly a year ago. In the intervening period we have designed and are building the Century eight, we have brought out the new Hupmobile six, and have introduced a new model of the distinguished Hupmobile eight. I might say right here that we anticipate the Hupmobile Century eight to be equally as successful as the new Hupmobile six has already proved itself to be. Our 125-inch wheelbase eight has already won its market, and is continuing to maintain its impressive position among the world's most distinguished cars.

Record-Breaking Sales.

"But that is only part of the story. Our plants in Detroit and Jackson, Mich., have undergone extensive changes. Our production facilities had to be increased to care for this greater business. These resulted in a new record volume of sales in November, an even higher level per working day in December, and the prospect that both these records would fall many times in the demands of 1928.

"We have strengthened our service and sales outlets in every part of the country. We are already finding that the demand may be even greater than we can meet. The outlook is most optimistic."

One day's total of traffic violators in New York City was 1900. It took seven magistrates to handle these cases.

WICHITA WILLARD DEALER BACK FROM COMPANY MEETING

After spending two days in Cleveland at the Willard Storage Battery company's convention for its warehouse men, John Lane of Willard Battery station, has returned with a lot of new ideas on storage battery sales and service.

Mr. Lane was one of several hundred of the Willard company's warehouse men who attended this convention at the Willard main office and factory January 16 and 17.

Addresses to the convention delegates were made by R. C. Norberg, vice president and general manager; H. S. Gardner, sales manager; S. W. Rolph, assistant general manager; S. E. Baldwin, advertising manager, and a number of other Willard officials. A trip through the great Willard factory and several sales demonstrations were further features of the convention, as well as a farewell banquet at the Hotel Cleveland to finish up the affair.

"The Willard company looks forward to a big year for 1928 and its sales organization has given us many new and practical ideas which will make Willard service even more in demand by car owners of Wichita Falls and vicinity," says Mr. Lane.

THE VICTORY SIX AND AMERICA'S FASTEST FOUR ALSO ON DISPLAY

MANY PERSONS PAY VISIT SHOW ROOMS TO VIEW WHIPPET

TOLEDO, Ohio, Jan. 5.—Immediately following the slashing price reductions in the Whippet motor cars, placing them directly in price competition with the lowest priced cars in America, approximately two million persons visited the various showrooms where these perfected Whippets were on display. This outpouring equals the interest displayed when the Whippet was first presented to the public about 19 months ago, which set a record at that time for public interest in a new product.

Reports that are pouring into the executive offices of Willys-Overland, Inc., indicate that the interest of the public is centered in the perfected Whippet, this fact being borne out by the sales volume that has resulted, being far in excess of the expectations of company sales executives.

It is said that never before in the history of the automobile industry has a price reduction on a car that had been before the public for more than a year, brought about such a notable reception in every section of the nation.

Reports also indicate that in the higher ranges of cars, there is a decided trend toward Willys-Knight models, which have been presented for 1928 with numerous refinements. Unusual interest, it is said, is being exhibited in the new Willys-Knight Standard Six, the first car powered by a Willys-Knight sleeve valve engine to sell in the $1100 price class.

Atlanta, Ga., reports an attendance of more than 500 a day with a complete sell-out of cars in stock, while dealers in the adjacent territory placed orders for the immediate delivery of 250 Whippets to fill the orders of buyers.

At Akron, Ohio, 2000 visited the Whippet display in two days.

Despite the heavy snowstorms in St. Paul, Minn., thousands came to see the perfected Whippets following the price cut with many orders resulting. This same interest held true throughout other snowbound regions.

A total of 30,000 visited the dealer showrooms in San Francisco in three days.

In Detroit, the center of the automobile industry, 15,000 came to see the Whippets with the dealers booking scores and scores of orders.

From every point throughout the country the dealers report that the same enthusiasm is being shown in the Whippet which is being offered at the lowest prices in Wilys-Overland history. This has resulted in a sales volume never before attained at this season of the year with every indication that capacity production will be necessary at the Willys-Overland plants for months to come to keep pace with the demand of the motor car buyers of the nation.

TIRE VARIATIONS DUE TO NUMEROUS REASONS--SEGALL

"That several operating conditions are responsible for variations in tire mileage, of which some automobile owners complain, is shown in the accompanying illustrations which were prepared by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber company," said Gene Segall, Goodyear dealer whose service station is located at 616-618 Ohio avenue.

Size, inflation, speed, and brakes, are given as the most important of these factors.

"Although Goodyear is doing its part to give car owners uniformly long tire mileage," he said, "there are many variables in the question of tire wear which accounts for some users getting short mileage from even the best of tires."

"The illustration at the top shows how smaller wheel diameters decrease tire mileage. Since 1924, there have been many changes in the design of automobiles. One of the most radical has been the much smaller wheel which, of course, requires smaller tires.

"Next, is the effect of severe breaking on tires. In one instance, a test was made when the speed of a truck was maintained at 35 miles an hour and was brought to a stop, without skidding, every quarter mile. The result was that one-half the tread design was worn off in a little more than 100 miles of this almost constant braking.

"Application of two-wheel brakes suddenly has a tendency to lock the wheels in many cases, causing skidding that often leaves a trace of rubber on the pavement and a flat place on the tread of the tire.

"With four-wheel brake equipment the car can be brought to a sudden stop with a minimum amount of effort on the part of the driver, and it is practically impossible to slide the wheels.

"The resulting wear on tires is therefore over the entire circumference. This makes it very difficult to prove excessive use of brakes; but nevertheless the tires will show fast wear.

"Too little or too much air in tires has an important bearing on tire mileage, too. The figures in the chart are based on actual tests.

"The wear on under-inflated tires is comparatively more serious than that on over-inflated tires. The third illustration in this group shows what happened when all four tires were under-inflated, while the figure of 45 per cent less mileage represents the wear wheels will get too much air and driven at high speed.

"Mechanical irregularities such as misalignment of wheels or rims on the wheel, bent spindles, wobbly wheels, or uneven brake adjustments take their toll in excessive tread wear.

"Fast driving also means rapid tread wear. Rough road surfaces and hilly country are harder on tire mileage than level territory and smooth roads. Tires wear out faster in summer than in winter and tread wear is faster on dry roads than on wet.

"Changes in car design and operating conditions have come singly and perhaps their importance in the total is not generally recognized in considering causes for rapid tire wear.

"The investigations outlined prove how greatly these factors can affect tire mileage. To get the long satisfactory mileage that Goodyear builds into its tires we urge motorists to take these facts into careful consideration."

THE ILLITERATE DIGEST

By WILL ROGERS — Sunday, February 5, 1928 — (Copyright 1928, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

FEEDING THE DEMOCRATS RAW ORATORY

Well, all I know is just what I see in the papers, or what I hear as I sit behind the free lunch table, and listen to the boys bark for their meals. Did I ever tell you about the time I broke bread with the Democrats in Washington? I passed myself off as a Democrat one night just to get a free meal.

I had watched the Republicans eat, but I never had seen them feed the Democrats, so I crawled in under the tent and watched 'em throw the good old raw Jeffersonian oratory right into the cages with 'em. They call it a Jackson Day dinner. I made the mistake of my life, I went there with a speech prepared about Jackson, telling how "He stood like a Stone Wall," and here it wasent that Jackson that they were using as an alabi to give the dinner to. It was old "Andy" Jackson. Well to tell you the truth I am not so sweet on old Andy. He is the one that run us Cherokees out of Georgia and North Carolina. I eat the dinner on him, but I dident enjoy it. I thought I was eating for Stonewall. Old Andy, every time he couldent find anyone to jump on, would come back and pounce onto us Indians. Course he licked the English down in New Orleans, but he dident do it till the war had been over two weeks, so he really just fought them as an encore. Then he would go to Florida and shoot up the Seminoles. That was before there was a bathing suit in Palm Beach. Then he would have a row with the Government, and they would take his command and his liquor away from him, and he would come back and sick himself onto us Cherokees again.

He was the first one to think up the idea to promise everybody that if they will vote for you why you will give them an office when you get in, and the more times they vote for you the bigger the office you will give them. That was the real starting of the Democratic party. It was called Democratic because you was supposed to get something for your vote. Then the Republicans come along and improved on the Democrats and Jacksons idea, by giving them money instead of promise of jobs. In that way you got paid whether your man was elected or not. So naturally thats why more people are Republicans than Democrats. Nobody with any business sense wants to wait till after election to see if they get something. They liked the Republican idea of "Paying as you go."

But old Andy made the White House. He got in before the Republicans got their scheme working. The Indians wanted him in there so he would let us alone for awhile. Andy stayed two terms, and was the first man that dident "Choose" to run again. He had to get back to his regular business, which was shooting at the Indians. They were for a third term for Andy. They sent the Indians to Oklahoma. They had a treaty that said, "You shall have this land as long as grass grows and water flows." It was not only a good rhyme, but looked like a good treaty, and it was till they struck oil. Then the Government took it away from us again. They said the treaty only refers to "Water and grass, it dont say anything about Oil."

So the Indians lost another bet. The first one was to Andrew Jackson, and the second was to Rockefeller, Doheny, Sinclair and Socony. After the Cherokees went back and saw where they used to live in Georgia, North Carolina and Alabama, why we always felt that Andy had unconsciously done us a favor. For Georgia never was heard of again till Ty Cobb. North Carolina was in a rut till Lucky Strikes and Camels pulled them out, and Alabama layed dormant till Tom Heflin made the first page for them. So we Cherokees can always kinder forgive old Andy for not knowing what he was doing. Got to give old Andy credit, he fought duels when duels was duels, and not just the inconvenience of getting up before sunrise.

Now we got an election coming along and us "Injuns" got an entry in the race. Its Charley Curtis, who was smart enough to live in a Northern State, which is a physical hardship, but a political advantage. Charley has used awful good judgment in his Presidential ambitions. Al Smith, and Jim Reed, and Donehay, and Ritchie, all have splendid qualifications, and have studied and acquired traits that will help them to the Presidency, but Indian Charley Curtis with one swoop embraced a requirement that will be of more advantage in a presidential race than all the combined qualifications of the others I mentioned. He is a Republican. Of course that aint saying much. But its just that little thing that is lacking in any of these others that will be their principal handicap. So if we get Charley in there, we will see what he does for the Indians. I hope he dont send us back.

I thought at the time of the dinner that the Democrats were going mighty far back to find some Hero that they could worship. But I happened to be in Cuba when President Coolidge delivered his speech to the Latins, and the Republicans had to go even further back than the Democrats did for Jackson. He went back to Columbus. I had never known or even heard Columbus's political faith discussed before. But he must have been a Republican, the way Cal was boosting for him. So you see neither party hasent got much when they have to reach back that far to find some one to boost. The dinner started at seven o'clock on Thursday, and run till 3 a. m. on Friday the 13th. We dident eat that long. We only eat as long as they brought it. They run out of food about 8 p. m. From then on you had to subsist on "Prohibition, with or without a license," and "Party Harmony." Jim Reed closed the show with "Corruption" at exactly three a. m. the next morning and held em in their seats. You know the Democrats can just naturally stand more oratory than any other race.

But it was all mighty fine. The Democrat is just naturally a better Orator than the Republican. The Democrats have the best side. They are always attacking, and the Republicans have to defend. The Democrats always have things to attack for the Republicans furnish them plenty, and on the other hand the Republicans havent got much to defend. Their only defense is, "We are in, try and get us out." So if you ever get a chance, don't miss one of these Jackson day dinners, they only hold em on election years. They save up four years stuff to tell about the Republicans, and its sure worth the money.

ANGLERS WORRIED AS FISH IN LAKE ERIE DISAPPEAR

CLEVELAND, Feb. 4. (AP)—Lake Erie, once considered among the most heavily stocked fresh water lakes in the country, is fast being depleted of its fish, causing alarm to fishermen and marine scientists.

Experts from Western Reserve university, University of Michigan, Ohio State university, the Ohio Fish and Game commission, and the province of Ontario, Canada, will convene Monday to lay plans for a scientific investigation that may reveal the cause of constantly decreasing fish hauls.

Physical and chemical variations in the lake waters due to pollution, as well as commercial fishing practices now in use, will be studied.

SEVERAL CITIES AFTER DEMOCRATIC MEETING

GEORGETOWN, Texas, Feb. 4. (AP)—Dallas, Fort Worth, Wichita Falls, Brownsville and Amarillo appear to be the most intensely interested cities in getting the state Democratic convention in May which will select the 40 delegates to the national convention to be held in Houston, D. W. Wilcox, chairman of the Democratic executive committee in Texas said here today.

Austin may get the committee meeting at which three vacancies will be filled, and at which the place for the state convention will be chosen, Wilcox said. He added that he probably will issue the call for the committee meeting the first of next week for perhaps the latter part of this month.

The committee has made no declaration in favor of any of the Democratic presidential possibilities and is not likely to do so, the chairman said.

REDUCTION OF TARIFFS URGED UPON COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. (AP)—A joint resolution calling upon the president to reduce by one-half the tariff on materials and commodities used in agricultural pursuits has been introduced by Representative Romjue, Democrat, Missouri. Traded in High-Priced Car
On Two New Hupmobiles

No new car in years has so upset popular ideas of value as the New Hupmobile Six of the Century, now in its third month of record sales.

Not the least astonishing feature of this great public reception of the new Hupmobile, is the increasing number of owners accustomed to more costly cars turning to Hupmobile as the complete fulfillment of their needs.

A Texas owner of one of the most expensive American cars, driven only a few hundred miles, turned in his big car as partial payment on two new Hupmobile Sixes. He was attracted both by the new beauty of the Hupmobile Six and by his own tests of its remarkable performance.

Hupmobile facilities are being taxed to the utmost to meet the demand that has sprung up overnight for the Six of the Century. In fairness to buyers, Hupmobile dealers are making deliveries in strict rotation as orders are received.

1928 OLDSMOBILES BEING SHOWN HERE BY BIRCH COMPANY

The new 1928 Oldsmobile six models are being shown by the Birch Motor company, local Oldsmobile dealer, at its salesrooms at Sixth and Indiana. Two types, a landau sedan and a two-door sedan, are on display. Many changes in the body styles are apparent in the line and many important mechanical improvements have been made, officials of the firm state.

"Official announcement of the new line will be made during the next few days," M. T. Birch, manager of the firm, stated Saturday. "Oldsmobile is looking forward to the biggest year in the long history of the factory and has many surprises to offer the motor buying public. The two new cars are the first to be shown in this section of the country and regular delivery is expected during the next few weeks."

COUNCIL TO OPEN BIDS CITY REFUNDING BONDS MONDAY NIGHT MEETING

The Wichita Falls city council will open bids on $61,000 worth of general improvement refunding bonds at its regular weekly meeting Monday night, according to an announcement Saturday by City Clerk W. E. McBroom.

The bonds, issued from 1908 to 1914, are now bearing five per cent interest, but when they are refunded the interest rate will be only four and one-half per cent, according to Mr. McBroom. This will mean a saving of several thousand dollars to city taxpayers, he said.

By taking this action the council is issuing no new bonds, but merely refunding the old ones in order to secure a lower interest rate as the result of the existing favorable market for municipal bonds, Mr. McBroom declared.

REV. J. L. DONOVAN OFFERS TO DEBATE ON EVOLUTION WITH DOCTOR D. S. LIGON

Referring to a series of lectures delivered in Wichita Falls last week by Dr. D. S. Ligon, an account of which was printed in the Times Thursday, the Rev. J. L. Donovan, of this city, has addressed the following letter to Dr. Ligon:

Wichita Falls, Texas,
Feb. 3, 1928.

Dr. D. S. Ligon:

Dear Sir: Your challenge on evolution in the Times has just been read by me, and I take this first opportunity to accept same. Will discuss question with you publicly and in a cooperative and educative spirit rather than that of the clash of swords. Will consider the subject from a three-point basis, viz.: Man is an animal; there is no conflict between the Bible and evolution; science does understand the origin, function and destiny of the Nebulae.

Am willing to meet you at your convenience to arrange time, place and terms. Respectfully, says Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale. This famous political economist sees 1928 through very optimistic glasses, and his prophesies seldom fail.

J. L. DONOVAN.

"Better Times for the Average Man"

We can at least conserve the prosperity that is now ours. And how better can we do it than by taking every dollar we don't need for current expenses and placing it where it will be safely, profitably invested? In other words put it in our Savings Department, where it will earn 4% interest, while waiting for the time it will be needed.
